Christmas recycling

Canton's third annual Christmas Tree Recycling Program is Saturday, Jan. 12. All you have to do is put your Christmas tree, without the stand or a bag, out at your curb by 6 a.m.

If you miss your day or want to keep your tree longer, you can bring it for free to Canton Waste Recycling's center 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. any Friday or 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. any Saturday. The center is at 42020 Van Born Road, the second building on the north side of the road east of Lilley Road.

All Christmas trees will be turned into wood chips, which will be reused.

Stolen Christmas decorations

Marion Rozum, a Canton resident, was disappointed last week when her Christmas decorations were stolen from her front lawn. And she learned that a lot of people in area communities reported similar thefts.

Two 5-foot tall, hand-painted plywood snowmen were stolen from Rozum's front lawn, she said. She called the Canton police department, as well as other police departments, and came up short. But she did learn that each department had a number of Christmas ornaments in their property rooms.

Before the deed, her lawn was decorated with a 5-foot high snowman and a snowlady, and two children snowmen with a dog.

Rozum said she didn't think she would ever get her ornaments back, and would likely have to make new ones.

She recommends people who lose Christmas ornaments to call area police departments. And if you've found an ornament call police, because stolen ornaments are being dropped off in other communities, she said.

Schools get ready to help grieving students

While national safety investigators look at the Christmas tree lights blamed in the deaths of seven Canton family members, Plymouth-Canton educators prepared to help students deal with their classmates' deaths.

Three of the six Dell'Orco children, who died in the Dec. 22 fire, attended Hoben. Another Dell'Orco child, Adam, 7, will be returning to the school on Monday as a first grader. His brother, Jimmy, 16, and sister, Kelly, 14, are expected to return to Plymouth-Canton High School.

"Basically, we're waiting to see how things begin when the kids get to school," said Hoben Principal William Pearson. Pearson said on Friday he will meet with teachers before classes on Monday to outline strategies for students who have difficulty dealing with the deaths.

"Students react in different ways," Pearson said adding that students had two weeks, since the tragedy, to deal with their emotions.

Counselors, social workers and psychologists will be available to talk to students.

THE THREE Hoben students who died in the fire are: Bonnie, 11, a fifth grader; Sara, 9, a third grader and Katie, 8, a second grader.

'Basically, we're waiting to see how things begin when the kids get to school.'

Pearson said he believes Adam will be returning to Hoben. "And I believe he will be coming the first day," Pearson said.

The children's father, Martin Dell'Orco, 38, died in the fire believed to have been started by a hot Chirstmas tree bulb light. Twins Meagan and Michael, 5, and Robert, 4 also died in Canton's worst fire. Martin Dell'Orco's wife, Debbie, 36, survived.

Tom Tattan, executive director of secondary education, said the high school will also provide counselors and social workers for students who need help.

MEANWHILE, THE Consumer Product Safety Commission is investigating, Hofert Company indoor-outdoor Christmas tree lights, which were reportedly on the Dell'Orco Christms tree and were listed as the likely cause of the fire last week by Canton Fire Marshall, Art Winkel.

Martin Dell'Orco, 38, escaped his burning house but died after he returned to rescue his children.

"Something had to start the tree on fire and the only thing on there were the lights," he said Friday. "Whether they were too hot, there was a short or a bulb bursted, we just don't know."

Canton police Detective Robert Kerr said he learned during the in-

Recycling

Canton Township is trying two pilot recycling programs. The items that can be recycled are:

- Newspapers
- Cans
- Plastic
- Glass

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A curbside recycling program is coming to Canton by April.

And two pilot programs will help a township recycling committee decide what recycling method they will ask residents in 13,000 houses to implement come spring.

"We'll go with one program or the other and we'll try to work-out any problems before the entire township takes part," said Cindy Burgess, Canton recycling committee member.

"We hope everyone will take part in spring, you bet, but we won't have ordinance officers going through people's trash," said Burgess.

Clerk Loren Bennett, a recycling committee member, said recycling likely will become mandatory.

"Within a year, once people get used to the program, it will over time become mandatory," Bennett said.

ONE PILOT program — in Holiday Park subdivision, in the Koppernick and I-275 area and Greenbrooke Village subdivision, in the Palmer and Canton Center area — asks residents to place all their recyclables in one bin and put them at their curbs on trash day.

Employees of Canton Waste Recycling, Canton's trash hauler, will separate the mixed recyclables as they are placed on the truck. The voluntary program begins Jan. 14.

A second pilot program asks residents to separate recyclables and place only one type of material at the curb each week. For instance, newspapers are placed out one week, plastic is put out another week, glass would go out the following week and metal the next.

Franklin Palmer subdivision residents, in the Sheldon and Palmer area, will be asked to take part in this rotation program starting Feb. 4. Canton will mail a calendar to these residents explaining what type of recyclables should be placed at the curb each week.

That voluntary program would cost the township half as much as the other plan, Burgess said.

Legislator to discuss proposed state cuts

By Diane Gale
staff writer

State Rep. Paul Hillegonds kicks-off the 1991 Canton Economic Club roster of speakers Tuesday talking about what state budget cuts will mean to the average resident.

The budget changes call for sacrifices from state employees, legislators and most of all Michigan residents, the House of Representatives minority leader said last week.

"It will affect not only state employees, but all people in the state who will be seeing a reduction in services," he said.

"I'll try to pull out my crystal ball on the larger state policy and political question," said Paul Hillegonds, House of Representatives Minority Leader.

The budget changes call for sacrifices from state employees, legislators and most of all Michigan residents, Paul Hillegonds said.

"I'll emphasize what I view as the fiscal taxing and spending challenges that the new administration faces and some of the policy changes that have to be debated to make the taxing and spending changes work," said Hillegonds.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS say the Holland Republican hopes to sit in the governor's office or win a U.S. Senate seat. Hillegonds also spoke recently at a Plymouth Jaycees luncheon.

"I'll try to pull out my crystal ball on the larger policy and political question," Hillegonds said.

Gov. John Engler's proposed budget cuts, Hillegonds said, will be "extremely painful."

They will test how serious the state administration, legislators and residents are about downsizing government, Hillegonds, 41, said.

Hillegonds is a former legislative and administrative assistant to U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe. He was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1978.

Gov. John Engler is considering eliminating 1,400 prison jobs statewide and closing the Phoenix Correctional Facility in Northville Township.

Area prisons on Engler's list of proposed budget cuts

By Kevin Brown

Some of the staff jobs at a Plymouth Township prison and two nearby Northville Township prisons could be on Gov. John Engler's budget cutting block.

Engler is considering eliminating 1,400 prison jobs statewide and closing the Phoenix Correctional Facility in Northville Township, along with two out-state prisons, a prison official said last week.

LUELLA BURKE, warden at the Western Wayne Correctional Facility in Plymouth Township, said a decision on job cuts won't come until mid-January — according to a fax she received from the governor's office on Wednesday.

Among her employees, "Sure there's concern," Burke said. "It's a stressful time, not just for corrections but for all state agencies."

For now, "You just come to work and do your job," she said. "There's nothing we can do until we see what the impact will be."

The prisoner population at Western Wayne, formerly the Detroit House of Corrections on Five Mile Road, is at 500, Burke said.

She estimated that less than half of the 300 prison employees live in vestigation that the Dell'Orcos bought Hofert's indoor/outdoor lights at Cornwall Pool & Patio in Plymouth a week before the fire. Debbie Dell'Orco gave that information to police chaplain Tom Keilman, Kerr said.

Cornwell owner, Gary Visel, said he hasn't received complaints about the lights. He was not sure how long the store had been selling the lights.

Rudy Trostman, U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, said he began investigating the case Friday when he picked-up copies of fire reports and interviewed Canton Fire Chief Mel Paulen.

Cathy Thorsen, safety commission director of public affairs, said: "We are investigating what happened and whether the lights were responsible. It's impossible to recreate the fire scene."

The safety commission investigation will take at least one month and will include testing whether the lights generate enough heat to ignite a Christmas tree. Hofert representatives failed to return Observer telephone calls.

KERR SAID the police and fire departments received a call from a woman who bought Hofert lights. The woman said she noticed that the bulbs become hot, Kerr said, and she promised to send Canton investigators a letter verifying that.

Some neighbors have said the Dell'Orco family had their carpets cleaned shortly before the fire and that the cleaning chemicals accelerated the fire.

Winkel refuted that theory.

"We just had our carpets cleaned and they use a little bit of cleaning fluid and a lot of hot water," Winkel said. "I can't see how that would cause the carpet to burn any quicker."

Neighborhoods targeted for 2 pilot recycling programs

Dave Denski, Canton trash hauler and owner of Canton Waste Recycling, said there are many more problems with the comingled plan. It takes the haulers longer to separate the recyclables. There's spillage problems, blowing debris and workers' hands are exposed to the sharp edges of cans and glass.

The separated system is quicker and allows for fewer pick-ups during the year, which would save the township money, Denski said.

"Although the rotational program has advantages, it's a more complicated program and requires more attention and more education," Burgess said.

IF THE rotational program works in Franklin Palmer subdivision the township will ask all residents to get involved in the program sometime in spring. Residents also would be asked to add grass clippings to the materials they recycle, Burgess said.

One bin will be given to each house free of charge. Residents who want additional bins will be charged $10 for each bin.

Recycling promises to be an important answer to a waste reduction plan necessitated by limited landfill space. Strict guidelines were outlined by Wayne County in an ambitious plan that forces communities to limit solid waste and file a plan that outlines a 75 percent decrease in waste dumped in landfills by the year 2000.

Area prison staffs concerned about planned cuts

Plymouth or Canton.

State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, said Engler is "apparently trying to hold education as harmless as possible."

"Corrections was the greatest growth budget in the '80s," Law said, asking, "When you cut the budget, where are you going to cut?"

Warden Emmett Baylor Jr. of the former site of the DeHoCo women's prison on Five Mile in Northville Township — said roughly 10 percent of his 175 employees live in Plymouth, Canton or Northville.

HE SAID THE proposed closing of Phoenix "would be detrimental in the long run."

"Everyone is nervous, apprehensive," Baylor said., both staff and prisoners.

While Phoenix houses 311 prisoners, Baylor said the prison processes 2,500 to 3,000 prisoners a year in its role as a reception prison for parolees and felons placed in halfway houses who violate their probation and are imprisoned.

"You're talking about that process going somewhere else," said Baylor, who said the proposed prison closings could result in prisoners being double bunked. He suggested across-the-board salary reductions for state employees as a better way to cut the budget.

"I do not have any problem cutting the fat," he said, "But Lord knows I don't have any fat here.

"If you shave me now, you're going to take the skin off — I'm bleeding heavily," said Baylor, former director of DeHoCo.

Baylor stressed that the cuts now suggested by Engler could be modified.

Lance Schuhmacher, administrative assistant to the warden at the Scott Regional Correctional Facility on Beck just north of Five Mile in Northville Township, said there's concern among staff following Engler's announcement.

"I've been out walking and talking to different staff and they're worried that their jobs might be in jeopardy," he said.

Ask The Eye Doctor
Q. What is the monovision technique in fitting contact lenses and how can it solve both distance as well as reading vision requirements?
A. Monovision is a prescribing concept first proposed more than 30 years ago for contact lens-wearing persons who have reached the age where bifocals or reading glasses are required. With this method one contact lens is prescribed to correct distance vision and the other to correct near vision. This can be visually confusing to some patients, but we have found that there is about an 80% success rate as compared to 25%-50% success with bifocal contact lenses. Among the many advantages are cost, with monovision being approximately half the cost of bifocal contact lenses.
Other advantages that contact lenses offer over glasses are:
1. They do not fog up with temperature changes or vigorous activities.
2. It is less difficult when walking up and down stairs.
3. You do not have to tilt your head in awkward positions when trying to read, view computers, shop, or work in confined or cramped spaces.
All methods of correcting vision have their shortcomings including monovision, but even with its limitations it can be a very exciting and rewarding way to see.

Area man puzzles over hobby

By Leonard Poger
staff writer

Westland's Steve McKolay likes to create story puzzles, something he started when he was a youngster and continued in his spare time as a soldier and later as a Ford Motor Co. industrial relations administrator.

McKolay, who retired a year ago at the age of 62, said he started creating the puzzles when he was 9.

"I saw one in the newspaper and said 'I can make them up.'"

He did.

In the past 50-plus years, McKolay, who lives on Fernwood in the Cherry Hill-Carlson area, continued to create the puzzles and answers. They were eventually laminated and stored in a tin can in his home.

Last week, McKolay showed off some of the more than 200 puzzles he has done.

One puzzle contains 81 letters but with a little effort, a person can find the abbreviated names of 42 states.

Another has 25 letters with the names of 30 animals.

All the story puzzles are merely a series of clues, which people can use to solve the puzzle, McKolay said.

His story puzzles mostly begin with the names of Art, Bob, Cal, Don and Ed, based on the first five letters of the alphabet, he said.

"THERE ARE enough clues in each puzzle for a person to figure out if they use logic," said McKolay.

His love of logic comes from his majoring in philosophy — which is merely a series of principles based on logic, he said. McKolay studied philosophy at the University of Detroit and received his bachelor's degree in that subject in 1950.

While serving in the Army during World War II, he created puzzles during days aboard a military transport.

After he completed his office hours at a Ford industrial relations administrator, he continued to create more puzzles.

"My family (of his wife and their eight daughters and seven sons) gets excited about the puzzles and sometimes overwhelmed," McKolay said.

The puzzle maker, a Westland resident for 25 years, isn't the only person in the family with special skills.

HIS DAUGHTER, Annie, has been spending her spare time in the past six to seven years painting small buildings as part of an old-fashioned Christmas village.

She now has 34 buildings tiered on several levels in her parents' family room.

"I start the painting in the summer and sometimes get help from my nieces," said Ms. McKolay.

Her favorite building is the old-fashioned mill, which ironically resembles the Westland's Nankin Mill on Ann Arbor Trail at Farmington Road.

Other miniature features of her village are a skating pond, fire hall, railroad depot, numerous businesses, church, post office, police station and a bank.

Year's First Baby

The first baby born in 1991 in St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, did not arrive shortly after midnight as is traditional for New Year's babies. In fact the New Year's First Baby, Matthew David Arthur Haslam of Canton, arrived almost 2½ hours into the new year. Matthew, son of Cecilia and David Haslam of Canton, checked in at a healthy 10 pounds. Other New Year's babies arrived at metro area hospitals later than Matthew and so far no earlier arrivals are known.

Heintz fends off challenge for vice-chair post

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County Commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell will continue his role in the new commission term.

Commission Vice Chairwoman Susan Heintz was re-elected to that position Thursday, maintaining a post she's held since 1988.

The Wayne County Commission's top two officers will remain the same for the coming term, while one local commissioner has received her second term in two months.

Commission chairman Arthur Blackwell II, D-Detroit, retained his post during Thursday's swearing-in and organizational session. Vice chairwoman Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, will also stay on the job.

While Blackwell's appointment was uncontested, Heintz had to fend off a challenge from Susan Hubbard, D-Dearborn.

Though Hubbard was nominated by fellow commissioner William O'Neil as a "good Democrat," Blackwell and six other commissioners crossed party lines to vote for Heintz.

Due to vacancies, absences, and abstentions, Heintz' 7-2 margin was enough to retain the seat.

The chairman's salary is $53,396. The vice chairwoman's salary is $47,396. The standard commision salary is $41,396.

Blackwell had previously said Heintz was the commission's key link to new Gov. John Engler. She has been vice chairwoman since 1988.

Heintz's district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township. She is the only Republican on the board.

Among area commissioners, Kay Beard, D-Inkster, nominated Blackwell. She and Kevin Kelley both voted for the chairman. Kelley also voted for Heintz as vice chairwoman, while Beard abstained. Kelley's district includes Redford and part of northwest Detroit. Beard's district includes Westland and Garden City.

SHORTLY AFTER the swearing-in and organization session, another local commissioner was appinted to her second interim term in two months.

Shirley Poling, D-Canton, was appointed to fill a portion of Milton Mack's 11th District term, pending a special election tentatively scheduled for April.

Poling was appointed last month to fill the unexpired balance of Mack's 1989-90 term. Now she intends to fill the two-year term Mack won in November.

"I'll definitely be running for the seat," said Poling, a GM Hydra-matic employe and a regional UAW coordinator.

Heintz, Beard and Kelley all voted for Poling's appointment.

At least two other Democrats, assistant county executive Bryan Amann and Robert Beeny, a Wayne city councilman, have also said they would run for the seat. Republican Victor Gustafson, a Canton planning commissioner, is also an announced candidate.

Mack resigned from the commission after being appointed a county Wayne County Probate Judge.

Mack, one of several former commissioners to participate in the swearing-in session, administered the oath of office to Poling.

"I HAD to resist the temptation to swear myself in," he joked.

The session began with a moment of silence for Commissioner Clarence Young who died Wednesday after a long illness.

Blackwell dedicated the session to his colleague. "I know he'll be watching over us trying to get us to do the right thing," Blackwell said.

Young's post as chairman of the commission's powerful Ways and Means committee will pass to George Cushingberry, D-Detroit. Young's wife, Opra, was appointed to fill his commission seat until an election could be scheduled.

Blackwell was sworn in by new Michigan Supreme Court Justice Conrad Mallett, godfather of the commissioner's young son.

"This is my term," said Blackwell, who initially became chairman after Arthur Carter resigned to join the Detroit Schools.

While praising the courage of American troops in the Middle East, Blackwell said the commission would be dedicated to fighting crime, drugs and poverty at home.

"If we don't do something soon, the war in this gulf will be 10 times worse than the war in that gulf," Blackwell said.

McNamara's band celebrates new term

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara began his second term Saturday, surrounded by some 1,200 well-wishers.

McNamara put in a full day, beginning with the annual county prayer breakfast in the morning. Swearing-in ceremonies took place at his inaugural ball that evening in the Detroit Westin Hotel.

McNamara was sworn in by new Michigan Supreme Court Justice Conrad Mallett Jr., who praised the executive for his "extraordinary standard of excellence" in leading the county for the past four years.

The evening also witnessed unveiling of the official portraits of McNamara and his predecessor, William Lucas. Both paintings will eventually hang in the Wayne County Building in Detroit.

"I've been talking to Bill Lucas from time to time, and I feel his portrait should hang in the county building as well," McNamara said.

Suburban officials who attended the gala included Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett, and Wayne County Commissioner Kevin Kelley, D-Redford.

Richard Connor, who painted McNamara's portrait, has been "a friend for over 50 years" the executive said. The California artist is married to the sister of McNamara's wife, Lucille.

Despite looming recession and a tough budget fight, the mood was light and upbeat inside the hotel's Renaissance Ballroom.

"Mr. McNamara asked if there was anything he could do to help," said assistant county executive Bryan Amann, who helped organize the event. "We told him all he had to do was look as much like his portrait as possible."

Mettetal decision was rushed

To the editor:

The Mettetal Airport issue has created a firestorm of controversy, and justifiably so. The issue was joined when Canton Township, after a lengthy study, refused to enter into a public authority with the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township to purchase the airport. Since August there has been precious little debate, and persistent legal and structural issues remain unresolved.

Snag No. 1: A dearth of public information. After months of private meetings, the proponents called a public meeting on Dec. 10 to discuss the Authority. Both sides presented a limited view of the issues, and citizens raised several vital questions. It soon became clear that the skids were well greased when it was announced that the Township Board would vote on the Authority the next night, and the Plymouth Commission would act one week later, Dec. 17 (Note the timing — just before the Holidays). No copies of the proposal were available at any of the three meetings. The rush to judgment had commenced.

Snag No. 2: Supervisor Breen cuts off discussion. At the Township Board meeting, Mr. Breen pulled out his three minute rule, and I was cut off in mid sentence. And when the Board sat in stony silence as the lone dissenter, John Stewart, raised several legal questions, I knew it was a done deal. The Board rubber stamped what had become, in twenty-four hours, a Joint Operating Agreement, and the Breen Machine was in high gear.

Snag No. 3: Plymouth City Commission votes to table. The vote to table came after two hours of comments by concerned citizens, as they raised new and disturbing questions relative to FAA rules, state regulations, and potential tax, fiscal, and legal liabilities. Mr. Breen left the meeting visably shaken, his plans put on hold.

Snag No. 4: A public facility? How can a private recreational airport, housing 106 planes, with only seven owned by residents of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, be converted to "public" is the principle of greatest good for the greatest number. This certainly is no golf course or park, no skating rink or civic center.

Snag No. 5: A business asset? The most blatant, preposterous, and deceptive piece of salesmanship is the assertion that the airport is good for business. Proponents admit it will remain a recreational airport, and a check of the flight logs bears this out. The facility cannot be expanded (it is landlocked) to accommodate commercial aircraft, and it recently lost its instrument approach, thereby limiting its usage and rendering it useless to businesses. Besides, it could never compete with Willow Run, Detroit Metro, Ann Arbor, Pontiac, and Detroit City, all within a 25 mile radius.

Snag No. 6: FAA rules. Federal Aviation Administration rules require an authority receiving federal grants to operate the airport in perpetuity (Canton study). Also, FAA Advisory Circular No. 150-5300-13 states "For airport projects receiving federal grant-in-aid assistance, the use of the standards is mandatory." One of the standards requires a 2700 foot runway at Mettetal instead of the present 2100 foot strip. Since Mettetal has a single north-south runway, crosswind problems are another negative factor.

Snag No. 7: Michigan Airport Zoning Act. Under MCLA 259.441 Canton Township has the authority to "acquire land or property right" to eliminate an airport hazard. Canton could make the airport inoperable by condemning a strip of land at the northern runway terminus to create a buffer zone south of Joy Road. The runway is only 15 feet from the right-of-way, and landings from the north pose a continuing threat in light of the increasingly heavy traffic flow on Joy Road.

Snag No. 8: Immunity from lawsuits. Mr. Breen has stated on more than one occasion that municipalities have governmental immunity. The "Notes of Decisions" under MCLA 259-132 of the Michigan Aeronautics Code opines this section is "not intended to cloak municipal airports with governmental immunity."

Snag No. 9: Use of local funds. Proponents assert that no local funds will be used, but the Township attorney presented the Joint Operating Agreement to the Board on Dec. 17. Are we to believe his meter was turned off during his appearance? And what of the hours of preparation to make certain the Agreement is legal? And who will pay for attorney fees to prepare for appearances before county, state, and federal agencies as required by law? Canton Township is almost certain to sue Plymouth and Plymouth Township to stop this encroachment. Can the City afford another costly lawsuit?

Snag No. 10: Loss of tax base. By placing this property in the public domain, our school district stands to lose at least $500,000 in property tax revenues.

This list is far from exhaustive, but it does provide sufficient evidence to give pause to those who would like to ram this Agreement through without any meaningful debate or independent analysis.

Yack covers tracks on the airport

To the editor:

In your Dec. 17 paper, Tom Yack says efforts to save Mettetal Airport must not be allowed to succeed. Why? Will it come to light that everything Canton officials have been saying about the airport will be wrong and the things airport supporters have been saying will be found to be true? Yes, Mr. Yack, let's talk facts.

I asked Yack about the conflict of interest James Darling had in working on the Airport Study Committee and also being an employee of Jan Mueller, owner of New Hudson airport. Mr. Yack referred my question to Canton board members. Why couldn't he answer my question?

Mr. Yack's administrative assistant, Dan Calabrese, who was in charge of running the Airport Study Committee, has been questioned about the way he filtered information to the committee. He did not respond. At another meeting Mr. Calabrese would not allow John Wagner, from the Michigan Aeronautics Commission, to answer a question about Mettetal's VOR approach, leading those who didn't know better, to think that Mettetal had none and was, therefore, not able to attract new business. I call that misleading the citizens.

Again when asked why Mr. Wagner was not allowed to set the record straight concerning the fact that Canton does have a VOR approach, Mr. Calabrese told us that he was running the meeting the way his boss (Mr. Yack) wanted him to. I have attended all the meetings on the airport issue and have seen Canton officials hold back information, cover-up information and mislead its citizens time and again.

This is one Canton resident that feels that Mr. Yack owes the taxpayers an apology for the way he and his assistant have conducted business over the airport issue during the past nine months.

The meeting scheduled for Jan. 7 to rezone the airport, seems to be another attempt at covering tracks behind you, Mr. Yack, because if you didn't know in the past, you certainly know now that the airport has been and will continue to be an asset to Canton and surrounding communities.

Thomas J. Ranta

Just say no to Mettetal

To the editor:

We have been Canton residents for more than 13 years and have read with interest Mr. Yack's editorial entitled "Canton At Odds Over Mettetal."

We are in complete agreement with Mr. Yack's observations and statements. We, too, believe that Mettetal Airport is a small recreational facility that has little impact on local economic growth. It is supported mainly by a small number of pilots and their friends. We salute them for their efforts in drumming up support for the project. Their efforts apparently swayed the thinking of some Plymouth officials — right or wrong? It is amazing how far some people will go to achieve their desires — even at the expense of others. The reason "nay sayers" didn't show up at the recent meeting could be the average resident probably had faith in Plymouth officials to say no as Canton did.

We also agree that Mettetal is used little by Canton manufacturers since both Metro and Willow Run Airports are so close with more modern facilities. Mettetal has had little impact on economic growth. If the airport is such a "money making, good buy" a private investor would have purchaseed it long ago.

The best way to settle this issue is to let the voters decide although this may not happen. In any event, we commend Mr. Yack and the decision the Canton officials made not to purchase the airport. Regardless of what has been said, this venture will carry many financial risks down the road and some officials making decisions now may no longer be in office. Residents may have to foot some of the bill.

We believe elected officials have something more important to do. Mr. Yack and Canton officials could have "the last laugh."

Legislator unhappy with gun bill story

To the editor:

Your Dec. 10 article regarding gun control seriously misrepresented my position as well as that of many of my colleagues. The article would lead the reader to believe that on the same day I called a procedure disgusting (and I was referring to the House, not the Senate, as your article states), I voted for the bill anyway. That is simply not true.

I have always opposed local preemption laws generally and gun preemption laws specifically. When House Bill 5437 first came before the House a week before the scenario described in your article, I had several amendments ready. At that point, when the NRA realized it was losing, a deal was struck that maintained 5437, but tied it to bills with the best gun laws we could ever get, including background checks, quality training, etc.

The deal fell apart in the Senate. The bills requiring training were seriously diluted, but the Senate rescinded changes in House Bill 5437, meaning that the House could not vote again on the issue. That trapped many of us and it was disgusting that the House remained in session three hours beyond its proposed adjournment only to cater to the NRA.

The "yes" votes you listed were taken from a session days earlier than the events the article describes. Many of those votes would have changed, given the opportunity.

I also sent a letter to the governor, requesting that he veto the bill.

Maxine Berman,
State Representative
64th District

Mettetal should be left alone

To the editor:

Citizens of Plymouth awake before it is too late. You must attend the city's commission meetings and witness what your elected officials are really doing with your tax dollars.

On Monday, Dec. 17, there was a rare full-house audience. At the top of the agenda for the evening's meeting was the question: Should the City of Plymouth join with Plymouth Township and establish a joint authority to purchase and maintain the Mettetal Airport?.

During the first two hours of the meeting, the commissioners listened to those present expressing opinions pro and con on the resolution. Those from the city voiced strong feelings against the joint authority, preferring to let the airport remain in private hands. A few from the township spoke in favor, wishing to have a taxpayer maintained airport for the personal benefit of a few pilots. The main contentions expressed were these: First, why rush the decision without specific research and second, why not have the citizens of the city vote on the proposition?

When the comments from the audience ended, the commissioners took over with theirs. The first one to speak was an eager member who berated the citizens who had the courage to stand and voice their democratic right. This kind of response is unbecoming of an elected official. Thank heavens there is still a Vorva on the commission who is courageous enough to speak for the electorate.

Citizens of Plymouth, it is time we all joined together to stop this ridiculous abuse of public authority. Leave Mettetal alone and keep our deficit down.

MEA nixes 'choice' between districts

The Michigan Education Association said it continues to oppose inter-district schools of choice.

MEA president Larry Chunovich reacted to the State Board of Education's unanimous endorsement of the concept late in December. Gov. John Engler endorsed the general idea in his Jan. 1 inaugural but didn't specify inter-district choice.

"By concentrating its efforts on schools of choice as another quick-fix solution," said Chunovich, "The state board is diverting attention from the real issue — providing quality education to Michigan students.

"The board and the Legislature have a responsibility to every child in each Michigan school district to find the resources necessary to implement the quality package mandated by Public Act 25 (the quality act of 1990). The people of Michigan deserve more from the state board. They deserve a board that is an advocate for the needs of all our children."

Chunovich cautioned that the potential impact of statewide schools of choice would be to penalize poor and minority children who may not have access to transportation that would be needed to fully participate.

He said statewide schools of choice may also lead to segregation and encourage schools to get involved in recruiting for athletics.

The State Board of Education asked the Legislature to fund pilot projects for inter-district schools of choice. The battle remains to be fought in the Legislature. The House in 1990 rejected an intra-district schools of choice bill.

Applicants sought for rehab care grant

Applications for a $100,000 grant in rehabilitation services are now being accepted from victims of head injury who are in need of rehab care but unable to afford it.

The grant, part of a national program offered by New Medico Head Injury System, is offered to Michigan residents 16 years of age or older, who suffer head injury ranging from memory loss to personality change to physical impairment. Applicants must be in stable physical condition, have no severe behavioral problems and be willing to participate in an active rehab program.

Rehabilitation will be provided by New Medico Community Re-Entry Services of Michigan in Battle Creek. The facility specializes in the care and treatment of head injured people.

Interested candidates must submit an application by Feb. 1, 1991. Rehab begins March 1.

Applications may be obtained from the Michigan Head Injury Alliance, 8137 West Grand River, Suite A, Brighton, Mich. 48116 or by calling 229-5880.

New Medico is the nation's largest network of head injury treatment programs, with 35 facilities nationally. For more information, call 1-800-227-3824 or (617) 596-4631.

Career workshops on tap

The counseling division of Henry Ford Community College will offer a series of free workshops in January on how to choose a career.

During each workshop counselors will introduce participants to the MOIS (Michigan Occupational Information System) career inventory, which contains information on hundreds of job titles.

In addition, those participating will receive information on Henry Ford's career exploration courses and view a short film on how to make a career decision.

Career workshops will be offered 10-11:30 a.m. Mondays, Jan. 14; 7:30-9 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15; and 12:30-2 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 16. The workshops will be conducted in the college's career resource center in Room 110 of the library.

To reserve a place in one of the workshops, call the counseling office at 845-9611 or 845-9612 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

200 days of school

Bemis plan would add class days

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan students might be in school 200 days a year under a proposal by the state superintendent of public instruction.

"Drill and practice do make a difference. Drill and practice do make a difference," said Donald L. Bemis, who heads the state Department of Education.

For a generation, the state has required 180 days of class a year. In earlier years, Bemis said, some districts offered 190 days or more. But the 180-days law had the effect of making that the maximum.

BEMIS, IN a year-end interview, billed his 200-days proposal as a method of making Michigan competitive in an international economy.

Japanese students have 243 days in a school year; South Korean, 220; Israeli, 215, Scots, 200.

Michigan ranks with Mexico and Sweden in requiring only 180 days.

"It's the way we have to go," agreed Dorothy Beardmore, a Republican member of the state Board of Education from Rochester. "It may not be 200 class days; there may be some staff development time."

A spokesman for the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, a supporter of quality improvements in public schools, said that business group was not inclined to support the idea at this point.

A LONGER school year would cost more money, and Bemis has a way to finance it.

"We could do it five days at a time over four years," he said.

"We've been increasing K-12 school funding 7 percent a year. We would allow 4 percent for inflation. That leaves 3 percent. With 3 percent, we could fund five more days a year."

Under his plan, the state would provide monetary incentives to schools willing to extend the length of the school year.

Bemis' figures make two unspoken assumptions: Inflation would be held to 4 percent, and school employees would accept pay increases limited to the rate of inflation.

In recent years, the annual increase in the consumer price index has been 4 to 6-plus percent.

BEMIS LAUNCHED his idea in an Oct. 5 speech in Flint on the "state of education" and at first got little attention.

His 200-days proposal was added at the last minute and wasn't in the original speech text. A departmental news release buried the idea in the 13th paragraph. There has been virtually no public discussion of it since then. Neither Democratic Gov. James Blanchard nor John Engler, his successful Republican challenger, discussed it.

A former superintendent of Utica public schools, Bemis was appointed to the state post in January of 1988 with support from Blanchard.

In mid-1990 Republicans on the State Board of Education tried to give him an unsatisfactory performance evaluation. But with a 4-4 partisan split, the board was unable to dump him. Under a ruling by attorney general Frank Kelley, Bemis has 2½ years left on his contract.

Bemis plans to stay around that long. Meanwhile, Republicans have picked up a 5-3 majority on the state board.

ANOTHER MAJOR idea in Bemis' speech was to raise the mandatory school attendance age from 16 to 18 and to prohibit those under 18 from holding full-time jobs until they have reached "essential skills standards."

Beardmore liked that idea. "A kid who can drop out at 16 is not employable," she said.

The student wouldn't necessarily have to be in class until age 18. He or she might engage in "job shadowing, apprenticeships, mentor kinds of things that give hands-on experience," she said.

The idea of raising the mandatory school attendance age to 18 was picked up by Gov. Blanchard in his 1990 "state of the state" message, but it fell flat in the Legislature. Lawmakers saw it as forcing kids to stay in school who might be discipline problems and failed to enact it.

OTHER BEMIS proposals, some of which have been incorporated into the State Board of Education's new goals:

- Reduce school dropouts by 16 percent and achieve a 90 percent high school graduation rate by the year 2000.
- Conduct a statewide literacy assessment as part of the 1990 national adult literacy survey.
- In 1991, begin testing all new teachers to ensure competency in basic skills. "In 1992 we will begin testing their subject knowledge as well."

Program explores region's future

The Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments will focus on "Looking Into the Future" in a presentation to be given Monday Jan. 14 at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Sponsored by the UM-D Natural Areas department, the presentation will explore a projected regional profile of southeast Michigan in the year 2010. Ed Hustoles, deputy director of SEMCOG, will address the potential for the areas growth based on current statistics for transportation, population distribution, schools, services and other economic and demographic elements.

According to SEMCOG, the strong competition between various areas of southeast Michigan for residents, stores, office buildings and industries is caused by population migration, which creates distinct changes in the way a community must address its needs for roads, utilities, services and even laws.

Each community must develop a clear understanding of where it may be headed under current trends, in order to develop a consensus on the direction in which it actually wants to head.

Hustoles will offer the "Looking into the Future" slide show and discussion at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 14 in Room 179 of the Engineering Laboratoy building on the UM-Dearborn campus (Evergreen between Ford Road and Michigan Avenue). The presentation is free of charge and open to the public.

FINE ON TUESDAY, CAN'T WALK ON WEDNESDAY

The erratic nature of arthritis makes it particularly difficult to live with. If you have rheumatoid or osteoarthritis, you know from experience that its flares can be recurrent, prolonged, and unexpected.

Doctors can recount personal experiences of a patient seen on Tuesday who came smiling, with all joints moving freely, walked without hesitation and left in good spirits. Yet the same person had to be seen as an emergency on Wednesday, appearing in great distress, with four or more joints swollen, painful to the touch, and fluid filled.

Neither patient nor physician can foresee that such an occurance is in the making. The chemical reactions that set off inflammation can be brewing silently for weeks. The actual cascade of events resulting in painful joints can occur in hours.

Your possible responses are limited. One, you can, as much as possible, lay out plans with two alternatives: plan A if your joints are well, Plan B if they are ill.

Two, even if you have just been in the office, you can call your doctor. Physicians understand the unpredictability of arthritis. Your doctor likely knows from experience what strategy will tide you over during this stormy period.

Taking measure of 1991

Here I sit, gazing into my crystal measuring cup, trying to once again discern the culinary trends for 1991. This is the list for what's hot and what's not in the kitchen.

I'm going out on a limb with my first prediction and bucking all the type I'm receiving from manufacturers and retail establishments regarding electronic breadmakers.

This definitive "gotta have" gadget, introduced last year and supposedly gaining in popularity, will end up being the $300 crockpot that will soon be drawing dust in the fruit cellar. Yes, sales will continue to be strong but once our weight-conscious society wakes up and smells the bread, they will soon realize that the tiny loaves these mind-boggling gizmos produce are the reason for the additional belt loops and "button moving" on our garments.

Personally speaking, these breadmakers are a lot like my programmable coffeepot and just not worth the effort of filling and programming after a hard day at the office. I predict they will be readily available at many garage sales when people find they're just too big and bulky for storage.

On the other hand, another electronic kitchen wonder, the combination espresso-cappuccino machine, will slide into the breadmaker's place as the "must have" for the remaining cold winter days and nights.

SINCE EVERYONE has his or her chance at Andy Warhol's proverbial 15 minutes of fame, you can say goodbye to folks like Martha Stewart and Paul Prudhomme. As far as Stewart is concerned, I know of no one, even Momma, whose house, garden and kitchen all look like they came from the pages of Better Homes and Gardens, and Stewart's signing with Kmart was like putting beluga caviar on sale at the A&P. In regard to Chez Paul, etouffe, s'il vous plait, is now passe.

Motown is still riding high on the apron strings of Heartland cooking, especially when it comes to restaurant menus featuring the likes of $14 meatloaf and mashed-potato blue plate specials. Look for cookbooks that will be featuring the likes of rain forest nuts and other ecologically sound ingredients from relative unknowns.

As much as I hate to admit it, the crystal measuring cup is predicting a boom year for kid-type food items. With the majority of moms and dads now working till after 5, the microwavable market will continue to operate on high power. Even food companies such as Mueller's — whose pasta has been the proverbial Wednesday night staple in many homes — are now introducing rock star, dinosaur, spaceship and teddy-bear-shaped pasta that will have our evening meals looking like something from a circus big-top catering van.

Speaking of catering vans, the food-to-go market will prove that Yvonne was just a couple of years premature with her cuisine-to-go routine. Look for prepared food prices to fall slightly as the competition increases, especially in major supermarkets and gourmet delis.

Look for the fresh herb market to blossom this year, especially with basic herb staples such as basil, oregano, chives and mint being grown in just about every garden and upon any window sill. The Spice Islands display shelf will be relegated to the back of the grocery store, with fresh herbs soon taking over a major portion of produce department shelves.

Lastly, as the measuring cup begins to cloud over, coming soon to market shelves in time for the great diet of 1991 will be fresh and smoked sturgeon now being farm raised and mass produced.

Starting from Scratch

It's just as easy as packaged mixes

By Phyllis Kreger Stillman
special writer

MOST OF US have happy memories of time spent in the kitchen watching someone, usually our mother or grandmother, as she baked.

The memory comes complete with a cold, windy day outside and a warm, fragrant, safe kitchen inside.

For some of us, the memory may extend back in time to encompass a wood stove and a week's supply of fresh-baked bread. For others, the memory is more recent, with a modern range and chocolate chip cookies.

Whatever the image, these are happy memories of magic times where flour and other simple ingredients were transformed into spectacular goodies — an afternoon well spent.

NOW WE zoom to the present, with two-career couples, single parents and not a moment to spare.

The best we often hope to achieve in the kitchen is throwing together a prepared mix.

To do otherwise would be foolhardy, given how long it takes to make anything from scratch, how difficult it is, and how many dishes would have to be washed afterward, right?

MAYBE NOT. Baking from scratch can be as easy, simple and fast as using a mix, if you choose the right recipes and read through them before beginning, keeping in mind how you can minimize the steps involved and the number of dirty dishes produced.

When you bake from scratch you create something of your own, something that tastes better than anything that comes out of a box.

In the process, you can link up with those magic afternoons from the past, and with the people who created them with you.

BAKING FROM scratch also addresses one of today's major health concerns: nutrition. When you bake from scratch, you know exactly what goes into what you serve.

Take pancakes. The ingredients used in pancake mix are virtually the same as those used if you make the pancakes from scratch, so the nutritional content may be the same — but maybe not.

You don't know, for example, how much salt or sugar was used in the mix. If you make the pancakes from scratch you can control the amount, or even eliminate sugar and salt completely.

You also can use whatever kind of flour you want — whole wheat, rye, buckwheat, unbleached white — in place of the highly processed flour used in the mix.

AS FOR TIME and dirty dishes, if you compare making pancakes from scratch with a regular (as opposed to instant) pancake mix, you may be surprised to find that, using flour instead of mix, you need add only three extra ingredients — sugar, salt and baking powder — to the egg, oil and milk you have to add to the mix anyway.

You can make the batter with one bowl, one measuring cup and two measuring spoons. With the mix you use only one less item, a measuring spoon.

Another example is brownies. The ingredients listed on a package of brownie mix are: sugar, enriched bleached flour (flour, niacin, iron, thiamine, mononitrate, riboflavin), shortening (contains: one of more of partially hydrogenated soybean oil, beef fat), cocoa processed with alkali, salt, leavening (tricalcium phosphate, monocalcium phosphate, baking soda) and artificial flavor.

Notice that, along with all the ingredients you can't pronounce, the type of shortening used may be beef fat; the exact type is not specified.

You also don't know how much sugar or salt was used.

If you make brownies from scratch you can use the type of shortening you want. You can also use a less-processed flour, reduce the amount of sugar and reduce or eliminate the salt.

AS FOR cleanup, you can stir the brownie mix in one dish. If you use the recipe for brownies that follows, you also use just one dish, although in this case it's a saucepan.

Looking through any good cookbook, you will find lots of recipes that are easy to prepare, are simple when it comes time to clean up, and taste wonderful.

Too Chez changes but still on top

DISHING IT OUT By K.C.

Too Chez restaurant in Novi is going into the new year with a vibrant new look and its exciting, more comfortably priced menu earning a special place in the hearts of serious restaurant-goers.

Whatever 1991 brings, Too Chez is a little more recession-proof than it was at the start of 1990 when, as Chez Raphael, it was one of the most expensive and refined restaurants around.

Today, its style is much more eclectic but its reason for being, the menu, is as promising and interesting as ever.

CHEF Ed Janos can be counted on to take everyday foods and turn them into extraordinary entrees.

He does such things as serve chargrilled tuna over a spinach salad with artichokes and roasted pearl onions, finished off with a wine and thyme sauce ($15.50).

He serves many entrees "over" something else.

Scallops recently were served over a salad of cucumber, broccoli, tomatoes, corn and black beans ($16.95). Atlantic wolffish came over a potato pizza with mozzarella cheese, bacon, tomatoes and broccoli, then was lightly coated with a garlic-cream sauce ($15.50).

Although the results of such presentations can look more like a stew than an artistic creation, they are inviting and definitely make dining at Too Chez an adventure in new tastes.

A MORE "ordinary" dish we sampled was crisped duck and shrimp ($15.95) served with roasted potatoes, onions, pea pods and a superb sherry and sesame sauce with peppers.

Though the shrimp were a tad overcooked, the duck was excellent and the overall impact of the entree was pleasing.

Take slices of Jamaican strip loin and serve it over a stir fry of spicy corn, leek, peppers and mushrooms and, again, you have an interesting and very tasty dish ($16.50).

INDEED, THERE is hardly anything boring on this ever-changing menu, which is presented to guests in a looseleaf binder.

The menu covers several pages (including a lengthy, excellent wine list), but flipping through the binder is a welcome alternative to trying to concentrate on a recitation of special entrees that never does give the diner a good idea of how the entrees are prepared.

Salads, soups and side dishes are a la carte, driving up the cost but allowing diners the opportunity to mix and match as they please.

IN THE salad department, Too Chez has an excellent spinach salad served with slivers of beets, oranges, gorgonzola cheese and pinenuts.

Appetizers, or "small courses" as they're called here, include an interesting "reduced-calorie" white tail venison pate that is served over a vegetable salad with a red wine vinaigrette.

The pate resembled salami, was shaped like a slice of bread and had a much milder taste than we anticipated.

The restaurant is noted for its Baileys chocolate soup, but you also can't go wrong

It's just as easy as using packaged mixes

You also will find many recipes that, using some of the tips below, can be made simple.

TIPS

● Read the recipe through before you start, and simplify the steps.

Many cake recipes require that dry and moist ingredients be added alternately. If you are using an electric mixer, that isn't necessary. Just dump all ingredients in together and let the mixer do the work.

● Do things in a logical order; many recipes are not arranged that way.

If you need melted chocolate, that may appear in a recipe as a third or fourth step. If you rearrange the order, you can melt the chocolate while getting started with the rest of the recipe. Then the chocolate will be ready when you need it.

● Think of time and dish-saving methods.

There's no reason why you should mix the flour, salt and leavening in a separate bowl you will have to wash later. Just add the separate ingredients when it would have been time to add the mixture.

● Don't be afraid to vary the ingredients used: decrease the amount of sugar, salt and/or fat; use a different type of flour.

Once you have found simple recipes, adapted some of them so they are easier to use, and mastered the art of baking from scratch, you can start experimenting — such as using honey instead of sugar, or coconut instead of nuts.

As these experiments produce great results (most of the time), your confidence will grow.

In no time at all you will be moving on to more difficult recipes, tackling Julia Child or Craig Claiborne, or even creating your own concoctions. Can the Pillsbury Bake-Off be far behind?

The recipes below give ranges for the amounts of some ingredients. If you want to cut down on the fat or sugar content, use the smaller amount.

Nothing is better on a cold winter morning than hot pancakes with the tang of blueberries and the sweetness of Michigan maple syrup.

BLUEBERRY PANCAKES

1 ¼ cup flour (whole wheat, unbleached white, rye, buckwheat)
2 tablespoons oil
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar, optional
3 tablespoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt, optional
1 egg
1 cup blueberries

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt; add oil, milk and egg; mix until smooth, then stir in blueberries. Bake on preheated griddle until tops bubble; turn and bake until done. Makes about 6 small pancakes.

When you are in need of a chocolate "fix," these chewy brownies fill the need in no time at all.

BROWNIES

2 ounces baking chocolate
¾ to 1 cup sugar
2 eggs
⅔ cup flour
½ cup chopped nuts, optional
½ cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt, optional

In a medium saucepan over low heat, melt chocolate and butter; remove from heat. Add sugar and vanilla to the chocolate mixture in the saucepan, mix well. Add eggs and stir until smooth; then add flour, baking powder and salt, again mixing until smooth. Stir in chopped nuts. Pour into an 8-inch-square baking pan and bake in a 350-degree oven for about 25 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in the center of the pan comes out clean; don't overbake.

This dessert is really just sweetened fruit and biscuits, but it looks and tastes like a lot more.

BERRY COBBLER

2 ½ cup berries (blackberries, blueberries, raspberries)
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup milk
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ to ¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt, optional

Topping
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ to ¾ cup sugar
¾ cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place fruit in a deep-dish 10-inch pie pan; sprinkle with lemon juice. In medium, ovensafe bowl, melt butter in preheating oven. Add flour, sugar, baking powder and salt, then stir in milk until smooth; spoon over berries. In the same bowl, mix together cornstarch, sugar and salt; sprinkle over batter. Pour boiling water over all. Bake at 350 for about 1 hour. Serves 6.

This is a moist, spicy cake that is easy to make but special enough for company.

OATMEAL CAKE

1 ½ cups boiling water
½ cup raisins
1 cup quick-cooking oats
½ to ½ cup butter or margarine

Put oats, raisins and butter or margarine in medium bowl; add boiling water. Let stand for about 20 minutes. Then add:

¾ to 1 cup white sugar
2 eggs
1 ½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅝ to 1 cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt, optional
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder

Stir together until smooth; pour into a 13-inch-by-9-inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for about 35 minutes.

Topping

While cake is baking, combine in a saucepan:

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup milk
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup coconut

Cook together over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until butter is melted. When cake is done, spread topping over cake while it is still hot and broil until frosting is brown (about 3 minutes).

OK, this dessert is not a health food. But it's a festive, dinner party dessert that you can whip up in no time the day before the party.

GRASSHOPPER PIE

Crust:
3 tablespoons butter
20 creme-filled chocolate cookies, crushed (about 1 ¾ cups crumbs)

Melt butter in 10-inch-deep dish glass pie pan in the microwave. Add crumbs and combine. Firmly pat on bottom and up sides of pie pan.

Filling:
1 cup heavy cream
3 tablespoons green creme de menthe
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 tablespoons white creme de cacao

In medium mixing bowl, whip cream until stiff. On low speed, fold in rest of ingredients. Pour into crust; cover. Freeze for at least 4-5 hours before serving.

with its delicious and extremely light raspberry/cranberry torte. A perfect ending to an adventuresome meal.

WE REALLY enjoyed the atmosphere at Too Chez.

With the kitchen and bar areas opening into the dining room, the restaurant feels like one big happy place. That may be due in large part to the wait staff, which is among the best and most efficient we have seen.

For those who haven't been to Too Chez, we recommend resolving to get there in 1991. Expect a busy, somewhat noisy atmosphere — great for almost any, except perhaps the most solemn, occasion. Treat yourself to the adventure.

Details: Too Chez, 27000 E. Sheraton Drive, just off the Novi Road exit from I-96, Novi. 348-5555.

Hours: 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday-Friday, 5:30-11 p.m. Saturday, closed Sunday. Reservations recommended, not required.

Prices: Lunches $5.95-$7.95; Dinners $9.95-$21.95 for main entree, half portions available, $2.50-$6.50 for salads, soups, small courses. MC, Visa, American Express, Carte Blanche, Diner's Club.

Value: Definitely worth the expense.

Flaming cherry sauce dramatizes this cake

JUBILEE CHOCOLATE CAKE

¾ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk
1 ¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup cocoa
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup vegetable oil
2 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup sugar
Vanilla ice cream
Flaming Cherry Sauce (recipe follows)

In a medium bowl, stir baking soda into buttermilk until dissolved; set aside. Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. In large mixing bowl, stir together flour, one cup sugar, cocoa and salt. Add oil, buttermilk mixture, egg yolks and vanilla; beat until smooth.

In small mixer bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining ⅓ cup sugar until stiff peaks form. Gently fold egg whites into chocolate batter. Pour batter into prepared pan.

Bake in a 350-degree oven 30-35 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly in center. Cool in pan. Cut into squares. Top each square with a scoop of ice cream and a serving of cherry sauce. Makes 12-15 servings.

Flaming cherry sauce: In chafing dish or medium saucepan, combine one 21-ounce can cherry pie filling with ¼ cup orange juice; heat thoroughly. In small saucepan, heat ¼ cup cherry-flavored liqueur; pour over cherry mixture.

Carefully ignite with match. Stir gently; serve as directed. Repeat procedure for sufficient amount of sauce for entire cake. Makes 6-8 servings.

Note: To sour milk, use 1 tablespoon white vinegar plus milk equal to one cup.

Garnishes, presentations add flair

AP — Try these simple presentation and garnish suggestions from Janet Herwig, food stylist in the Better Homes and Gardens test kitchen.

LOOK AHEAD

● Plan to garnish with an ingredient that's already in the recipe, such as celery leaves, fresh herbs, lemon or orange slices, carrot curls.

● Have on hand some leaf lettuce or other greens, red and/or green grapes, cherry tomatoes, mint leaves, canned crabapples, oranges and lemons.

PLATTER PRESENTATIONS

● Wreath the turkey platter with fresh sage or other herbs, glazed squash rings, poached apple and pear wedges, kumquat flowers, glazed sweet potato slices, frosted grapes, crabapples and orange slices, baked apples filled with mashed sweet potatoes.

● Steamed vegetables, such as shredded zucchini, sweet potatoes, or french-style green beans, make a colorful base for chicken breasts, fish, chops, or other meats.

NATURALS

● Edible serving containers are fun. Present dip in a green or sweet red pepper; spread in a seeded small squash. A hollowed-out round bread loaf holds appetizer-size sandwiches or cheese dip. Convert a pumpkin or large, colorful squash into a stunning soup tureen.

● Flowers make lovely garnishes, but choose only those grown for use with food, not those that have been treated with pesticides that might leave harmful residues.

● Leaves safe to use with food include ti, lemon, kale, herbs and flowering herbs.

SLICK AND QUICK

● For greater interest, place a garnish at one end or side rather than the center, or line the bowl or platter with greens.

● Piping quickly gives shape to a creamy, thick mixture. Try it with appetizer spreads, butter, cream cheese, cream puff dough, deviled egg filling, dessert mousse, mashed potatoes, mashed sweet potatoes and whipped cream.

● Sift powdered sugar or unsweetened cocoa powder lightly over plates before placing torte or cake slices on top. Use a doily as a stencil if you like.

● Use egg substitute instead of raw eggs to brush grapes and flowers before frosting with sugar. Dilute egg substitute with an equal amount of water.

CUTOUTS

● Melt semisweet chocolate pieces. Pour onto a waxed-paper-lined baking sheet; spread ¼ to ⅛-inch thick. Chill 15 minutes or until almost set. Firmly press hors d'oeuvre cutters into chocolate. Chill 10 minutes more. Remove the cutouts with a toothpick. Be careful not to touch the surface of the chocolate; fingerprints will show.

● More cutouts: Use hors d'oeuvre or small cookie cutters to cut trims from citrus peel; apple, beet, carrot, or jicama slices; jellied cranberry sauce; butter; cheese; or pastry.

USING GREENS

● Looking for a change from parsley? Try celery leaves, curly endive, or leaf lettuce. Cilantro makes an attractive garnish but wilts quickly.

● Place salad or dessert on a glass plate set on top of ferns or other florist greens arranged on a metal or china underliner. For buffet service, use large plates or platters.

Reaching, sharing bring their reward

Ellen Folz of Rochester Hills makes dinner featuring Upper Crust Chicken.

Each week when I begin to write this column, I sit down at my trusty word processor and say, "O.K., what are we going to cook up this week?"

As I organize my thoughts, I picture, albeit idealistically, a huge collective of readers, reaching out and sharing recipes with one another. Hopefully, at least some of the 66 menus shared here have helped make your dinner hour tastier as well as more rewarding.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Ellen Folz of Rochester Hills, also has discovered the rewards of reaching out and sharing through her volunteer efforts for the Oakland Family Services. For more than a year, Folz has served as a perinatal coach for a single mother, offering her a positive role model as well as giving her emotional support, beginning in the seventh month of pregnancy. She will continue to visit both mother and child until the baby is one year old.

She has thoroughly enjoyed working for the Oakland Family Services and is a frequent participant in panel discussions held for new volunteers. Folz has found her experiences working for this very professionally run organization to be tremendously rewarding, fulfilling and very "hands-on." She suggests that anyone interested in getting involved in the Oakland Family Services call 858-7766. In January, the organization will be training volunteers whom, Folz says, "they treat like gold."

ORIGINALLY FROM New Jersey, Folz has lived in the Detroit area for more than 14 years. Married and the mother of a young daughter, Floz left a full-time career as a market analyst with Volkswagen, and since October has worked part-time for Pampered by Polly, a catering service.

Her recipe for Upper Crust Chicken is delicious and easy to make. She suggests using the low-calorie, no-cholesterol mayonnaise and low-fat cheese, for she has found these work as well and are healthy alternatives.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's Winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

UPPER CRUST CHICKEN
CABBAGE SALAD
CHERRY CRUNCH

Recipes

UPPER CRUST CHICKEN

Easy to make. Be sure to allow enough time, at least 4 hours, for the casserole to refrigerate before being baked. This recipe serves 4-6.

10 white bread slices, day-old
2 cups chopped cooked chicken
2 cups cooked broccoli
2 cups shredded sharp natural cheddar cheese
1 cup mayonnaise
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1½ cups milk

Trim the crust from the bread, reserving the crust. Cut the bread slices diagonally into quarters. Cut the reserved crust into cubes. Combine the bread cubes, chicken, broccoli and 1½ cups of cheese. Mix well and spoon into a 9-by-13-inch baking dish. Arrange the bread quarters over the chicken mixture. Combine the mayonnaise, eggs and seasonings and mix well. Gradually add milk, mixing until blended. Pour over the bread and sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight. Bake, uncovered, at 375 degrees for 30 minutes.

CABBAGE SALAD

Combine and toss with the dressing, just before serving.

2 cups finely shredded cabbage
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons green onions, chopped

Dressing
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 teaspoon salt

This recipe serves 4.

CHERRY CRUNCH

Keep this recipe in mind when celebrating President's Day in February. This recipe serves 6-8.

1 can cherry pie filling, 21-ounce size
1 can pitted, dark, sweet cherries, drained, 16-ounce size
¾ cup Bisquick baking mix
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup firm margarine or butter

Mix the pie filling and cherries in an ungreased square baking dish, 8 by 8 by 2 inches, spreading mixture evenly. Mix baking mix, nuts, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in margarine or butter until crumbly; sprinkle over the cherry mixture. Bake at 375 degrees until lightly browned, about 35 minutes. Serve with ice cream, if desired.

Shopping List

1 loaf day-old white bread
2 cups cooked chicken, about 3-4 breast halves
One 10-ounce package frozen broccoli
Mayonnaise
2 eggs
Salt
Poultry seasoning
Milk
Cabbage
Parsley
Green onions
Sugar
Vinegar
Salad Oil
1 can cherry pie filling, 21-ounce size
1 can pitted, dark, sweet cherries, 16-ounce size
Bisquick
Chopped nuts
Cinnamon
Margarine or butter

Notes

Try rolled, stuffed turkey breast for dinner party

AP — For a small dinner party, or just for a change, serve turkey breast rolled and filled with delicious rice stuffing. For easier preparation, ask your butcher to remove the bone from the turkey breast. Or, you can remove it yourself.

Use a sharp knife and cut along one side of the turkey breast next to the bone. Gently pull the meat away from the bone.

To make ahead, prepare and refrigerate the stuffing for up to 48 hours. Once the turkey breast is stuffed, roast it at once.

BROWN-RICE-STUFFED TURKEY-BREAST

¾ cup sliced celery
¾ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
¾ cup regular brown rice
2 teaspoons curry powder
½ teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
1 ½ cups chicken broth
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
¼ cup snipped parsley
One 2 ½- to 3-pound fresh breast half of turkey with bone
¼ cup apple jelly

In a medium saucepan, cook celery and onion in hot margarine or butter until tender but not brown. Add brown rice, curry powder and thyme. Cook and stir for one minute. Stir in chicken broth. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 40-50 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Stir in walnuts and parsley. Cover and chill up to 48 hours.

Meanwhile, remove bone from turkey; discard bone. Rinse turkey; pat dry. Butterfly turkey breast by slicing horizontally from thick side to within one inch of the opposite side. Fold top portion back. Place turkey, skin side down, between two pieces of plastic wrap. With the flat side of a meat mallet, pound turkey to a 12-inch square about ¾-inch thick. Remove and discard plastic wrap.

Spoon rice mixture over turkey. Roll up, starting from the side without skin underneath. Tie in at least six places with string. Place turkey on a rack in a shallow baking pan.

Roast in a 350-degree oven for 1-1½ hours or until a thermometer inserted in center of turkey registers 170 degrees, brushing with jelly the last 10 minutes of roasting. Let turkey stand, covered, 10 minutes. Remove string from turkey; slice.

UNFORTUNATELY, THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART REALLY IS THROUGH HIS STOMACH.

While your cooking was supposed to help you win someone's heart, it may also help you destroy it.

Because a diet that's too high in fat may increase the risk of heart disease as well as certain kinds of cancer.

Fortunately, you can help reduce your risk simply by eating a low-fat diet containing lots of fruits and vegetables, whole grain foods, lean meats, fish, poultry and low-fat dairy products.

What goes with Famie's Chicken?

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Kitchen responsibilities have diminished since the holidays, but quick and simple meals must still remain attractive and flavorful, even if classified as "carry-out."

Typical take-home delights such as pizza, burgers, chicken, ribs and Oriental dishes can be a special dining experience with the addition of a flavorful wine selection — a wine that can please the palate without pinching the purse.

With this goal in mind, we recently tasted Famie's Chicken (2707 N. Woodward Ave., Royal Oak) with a dozen red and white wines especially selected by local wine distributors to complement the herb-roasted chicken.

We were joined in our tasting by Les Auteurs restaurant manager John Baumgartner and Maitre d' Michael Hardy. In search of the wine candidate for the Chicken Hall of Famie, we tasted each of six white wines with Famie's Rotisserie Chicken seasoned with herbs and then with each dipping sauce — honey mustard and Southern barbecue.

THE FAVORITE white wine with the chicken (no sauce) was the 1989 Buena Vista Lake County Sauvignon Blanc ($8). By itself, the wine is fresh and attractive. With the chicken, the wine is refreshing, fruity and complementary.

Other compatible wines that added flavor interest to the chicken were the 1988 Forster Bischofsgarten Riesling Kabinett, Burklin-Wolf ($8 per litre) and the 1989 Liberty School California Sauvignon Blanc ($8).

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Our white and red wine selections for the "Chicken Hall of Famie" are the 1989 Buena Vista Lake County Sauvignon Blanc ($8) and the 1987 Seghesio (red) Zinfandel ($7.20). Nothing says lovin' like something from the oven!

We all agreed that the tomato-smoke flavors of the Southern barbecue dipping sauce killed the flavor of the white wines. While the 1989 Z-Moore "Quaff" Gewurztraminer ($8) was too sweet for the herbed chicken, it was a clear winner with the honey mustard sauce.

We frequently recommend red wine with grilled poultry and game birds. Therefore, it was a natural to repeat the tasting with several light, flavorful red wines that could be served slightly chilled.

Three of the reds were particularly good with the herbed chicken. Those that paired best showed rich fruit, good body and a fair amount of structure. Lighter red wines gave a thin impression against the mixture of 13 herbs and spices.

OUTSTANDING MATCHES were the 1987 Seghesio Zinfandel ($7.20), the 1988 La Vieille Ferme Cotes du Ventoux ($6) and the 1989 Preston Vineyards Estate Red, a blend of carignane and zinfandel.

With the dipping sauces, the tables were turned. While the Southern barbecue sauce killed the white wines, it did not dampen the richness and depth of the Seghesio Zinfandel or the Preston Estate Red. The sweet honey mustard sauce detracted and confused the palate.

Food and wine combinations are fun when you do not take them too seriously. Remember, you can learn as much from a poor combination as a good one. You may discover wine harmonies that you prefer to those recommended here, but you have to be adventurous enough to try them.

Please notice the best wines in this experiment did not include a cabernet sauvignon or a chardonnay. Another surprise was that the sweetest wine "Quaff" complemented the chicken with honey mustard sauce, while a dry wine assaulted the palate. Finally, red wine went as well as white wine with the herbed chicken, but the choice of sauce changed all the rules.

One of the real pleasures in life is a simple meal with friends, especially one that you didn't have to prepare, accompanied by a delicious, yet affordable wine.

Chef offers recipes for pasta, meatloaf

BASIL AND GARLIC PASTA

1 pound fettuccine pasta, cooked and drained
¼ cup fresh basil, chopped
1 teaspoon minced garlic
3 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and fresh ground pepper
¼ cup fresh grated Parmesan cheese

Place cooked and drained pasta into a medium serving bowl. Add chopped basil and garlic and just a pinch of salt and fresh ground black pepper to taste. Drizzle with olive oil. Toss gently. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and enjoy.

MOMMA'S MEATLOAF

1½ pounds fresh ground stewing beef
2 eggs
⅔ cup cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons Worcestershire
½ cup ketchup or tomato sauce
1 teaspoon garlic, chopped fine
1 small onion, minced
½ cup catsup or tomato sauce

Combine ground beef with eggs, cracker crumbs, Worcestershire, ½ cup catsup, garlic and onion. Mix well. Shape into loaf and place in a lightly greased loaf pan. Brush with ½ cup ketchup. Bake at 350 degrees for 40-50 minutes, basting off fat as it accumulates around meatloaf. Enjoy.

Karl Wukie's three-point basket gave Canton the lead with :05 remaining, but the Chiefs lost 66-65 when Pioneer made a last-second shot Friday night.

Buzzer shot nips Canton

basketball

Senior forward Aaron Johnson hit a 15-foot jump shot at the buzzer to lift visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer to a 66-65 win Friday at Plymouth Canton.

Canton is 3-3 overall, while Pioneer improved to 4-3.

Pioneer senior guard Matt Efsell led all scorers with 22 points. Johnson finished with 21 points. Junior guard Derrick McDonald led Canton with 17 points. Senior guard Karl Wukie scored 11 points and junior guard Jon Paupore added 10 points.

Canton went ahead when Wukie hit a three-pointer with five seconds remaining. After a Pioneer timeout with three seconds left, Johnson took a pass and sank the winning shot.

"It was a good, exciting high school game," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "I'm proud of my team. We executed well and we played tough. Those things happen in basketball."

Canton raced to a 17-10 lead after the first quarter, but were outscored 24-12 and trailed 34-29 at halftime.

"We had a real good first quarter, but then we had a letdown in the second quarter. In the third, we played well and were up by eight with two minutes left and then we let them back in the game with some critical turnovers."

PLY. CHRISTIAN 73, BAPTIST PARK 55: Plymouth Christian Academy broke open a tight game with a 22-16 run in the fourth quarter to ensure a win at Baptist Park, Friday.

Senior center Keith McCants led the Eagles with 26 points, 26 rebounds and seven assists. Senior guard Manish Mandani added 12 points and six assists.

Baptist Park was led by senior Jeff Stimpson with 23 points.

Plymouth Christian Academy, which improved to 3-3 overall, led 35-24 at the half.

Ypsi shoots hole in Salem record

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

basketball

Marlos Long wears one black sneaker and one white as his distinguishing trademark on the basketball court.

The Ypsilanti sophomore didn't need the contrasting shoes to be noticed Friday night. His excellent shooting touch made him a standout.

Long sank six three-point baskets and scored a game-high 22 points as the Braves dealt host Plymouth Salem its first defeat, 65-62.

"In the preseason, he was lighting it up, but then his shot flattened out," Ypsilanti coach Bob Rowley said. "We worked on it, and he got in the groove again. It looked like it."

"Marlos is an extreme streak shooter. If he's on, it doesn't take much. He's hit a few (triples) but nothing like tonight."

THE NO. 5-RATED Rocks dipped to 6-1 overall while the unranked Braves, who lost to Adrian but defeated Redford Catholic Central, Romulus, Highland Park and Westland John Glenn, improved to 5-1.

Salem coach Bob Brodie, like Rowley, was surprised by Long's scoring outburst, too.

The 5-foot-9 guard made five triples in the first half and had 19 points by halftime. He was 4-of-4 from three-point range in the second quarter when the Braves outscored Salem 28-24 and created a 41-33 halftime gap.

"We had two scouting reports on them, and there was no inclination he could shoot the ball that well," Brodie said. "When you have a guy on him and he still makes them, it's kinda irrelevant whether he can or not."

And compounding the problem for Salem was the fact it wasn't just Long doing the long-distance damage.

Senior guard Wayne Miner sank three of his four triples in the second quarter, too, as the Braves shot an incredible 10-of-14 from the floor for 71 percent. Salem shot a not-too-shabby 57 percent, making eight of 17 shots in that period.

In all, Ypsilanti tallied eight triples in the second quarter, nine in the first half and 11 for the game. Long and Miner had one each in the second half.

MINER AND 6-foot-6 center Shannon Williams, supposedly the team's best three-point shooter, finished with 12 points apiece. Salem made more field goals (24-21) and twice as many deuces (23-10) but was outscored 33-3 on triples.

"Against a man-to-man, you don't think you're going to get those kind of shots," Rowley said. "That was as good a three-point shooting exhibition in the first half as you can find.

'Anybody who knows anything about basketball knows (defense is) what did it. We bottled them up as much as we could and kept pressure on the ball. They have an excellent offense and, if you don't work on it, they'll kill you.'

— Bob Rowley
Ypsilanti basketball coach

"We set things up with the defense and hit the open shots. They happened to be three-point shots we hit."

The second quarter, which contrasted with the first in which both teams were a combined 0-for-10 from the floor to start and the Braves were 5-of-15, was a coaching highlight for Rowley.

After K.C. Kirkpatrick tied the score at 19-19, Ypsilanti jumped ahead 31-21 Miner's three first-half triples and Long's fourth. The Braves had everything going their way.

"That's basically what you're in coaching for," Rowley said. "The only problem is you have as many of the others, and I don't know how long you can last in coaching."

AS MUCH AS the three-point shooting was entertaining, Rowley had to credit his defense for the win.

The Braves guarded Salem's big men well and prevented the Rocks from establishing a consistent inside attack. Thus, they denied Salem an opportunity to get rolling offensively and dominate in a way it can.

Salem senior Jake Baker scored 19 points, including nine in the last quarter when the Rocks made an attempt to salvage a victory. Kirkpatrick played a strong game around the glass and finished with 16 points, and John Hoffmeyer added 11.

"Anybody who knows anything about basketball knows that's what did it," said Rowley of the defense. "We worked hard on it, and I thought that was the difference in the game.

"We bottled them up as much as we could and kept pressure on the ball. We made it hard to get the ball in from the guard. They have an excellent offense and, if you don't work on it, they'll kill you."

Salem closed to within 50-46 at the end of three quarters but missed two straight one-and-one chances that would have tied the score at the start of the fourth.

THE ROCKS got within three, 59-56, on five straight points by Baker. When the Rocks failed to convert a three-point play and made a turnover, that left the score at 63-60 with half a minute remaining. It enabled Ypsilanti to run the clock and take a 65-60 lead on two Williams free throws.

Cliff Lee's layup with 14 seconds on the clock made it 65-62, and Miner missed a one-and-one. That kept Salem alive, but Mike Mulder and Mike Abraham missed threes in the last five seconds.

Ypsilanti converted 10 of 14 free throws in the last quarter after being outscored 11-2 and outshot 16-6 from the line in the first three periods.

"We were real lethargic," said Brodie in assessing his team's play. "I don't think our mental concentration was there. Ypsilanti played aggressive man-to-man defense, and we didn't accept the challenge.

"Now the question is 'Is this team capable of lacing up its boots and getting ready to play?' because now we're into our league season. Sometimes a loss helps you in the long run; sometimes you can learn from a loss."

Rowley said he was concerned about his team being physically ready to play because two players, including Miner, had been ill. He was pleased with the result, to say the least.

"It was an emotional game for our kids," he said. "They beat us by 20 last year, and the kids were up for it."

Rocks ready to contend

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

After a year of learning, evaluating and improving, Plymouth Salem's volleyball team won't be content with the hope of one day being a contender.

The Rocks, beginning their second year under the direction of co-coaches Brian Gilles and Allie Suffety, believe they're ready to stand up and be counted. The future is now.

Salem was 4-6 in the Lakes Division and 6-7 in the Western Lakes Activities Association, but that first season was dedicated to teaching the sport, honing skills and gaining experience.

Gilles also believes he and Suffety have put together a combination of players who are capable of taking Salem to the next level.

"We were young last year, and we're still a young team this year," Gilles said, "but we're not going to use that anymore. We're ready to start playing some ball.

"WE HAVE SO many kids with experience we think we're ready to start challenging."

The Rocks return five players and two others who lettered while dividing time between the varsity and JV. But the 10-player team has only two seniors — co-captains Amy Krajewski and Andrea Welling — and includes six juniors and two sophomores.

"Now we've got a handle on who the kids are and who is ready to play," Gilles said, adding the coaches set out to play everybody and evaluate them last year. "We think things are ready to turn around for us.

"Last year, our lineup would change drastically from game to game, because we were trying to play 11, 12 kids. This year they know what their positions are. It will be like a batting order, and we've got a lineup we're going to go with."

Krajewski and Welling are 5-foot-7 outside hitters, and the other returnees are 5-foot-10 junior Martha Bol, 5-foot-6 junior Jenny Emmett and 5-foot-3 sophomore Caryn Tatterton.

Shelby Carey, a 5-foot-7 sophomore, and Julie Thomas, a 5-foot-8 junior, spent enough time on the varsity to earn a letter. The junior trio of 5-foot-6 Sarah Krieger (setter), 5-foot-5 Nicole Santilli (back row) and 5-foot-9 Suzane Tihanyi (middle hitter) played on the JV team.

A PLUS IS nearly all of the players are well-rounded athletes who have distinguished themselves in other sports as well.

"That's what we were looking for last year," Gilles said. "It's tough sharing them (with other sports), but we need those kind of players. We're trying to build a ballclub, and it seems we're going to get the players we want."

In addition to the seniors, Carey, Thomas and Emmett will be the primary attackers. Emmett has been ill and just returned to practice last Wednesday.

Chiefs to build on experience

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Jacque Getz begins her second year at Plymouth Canton a more experienced coach with a more experienced volleyball team.

The Chiefs were third in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and .500 overall under Getz, a former three-sport star at Salem and Hillsdale College athlete.

"I know more of what to expect at this level as far as the league," she said. "Knowing the coaches and type of teams they have is a benefit rather than coming in completely cold."

Canton lost only two players — Christyn Halliday and Susan Ferko — and returns six. The senior duo of Cindy Granger and Rachel Poole and juniors Lorena Sanford, Jenny Davis, Renee Dory and Danielle Meyka are the holdover players.

While the graduation losses were few, the Chiefs did lose their top two hitters. Getz believes they can distribute the combined hitting stats of Halliday and Ferko among a number of players and offset their absence.

THE 5-FOOT-10 Poole is primarily an attacker, and Davis plays all the way around as do sophomores Jori Welchans and Kari Drinkhan.

In addition, Canton has the leading hitter off last year's JV team, 6-foot sophomore Stephanie Gray, and a transfer from Redford St. Mary, 5-7 senior Alleah Collier.

"(Ferko and Halliday) had the most sets and hits, but Jenny Davis, Kari and Stephanie have come along real well," Getz said. "I think we're deeper this year. We don't have as dominating a hitter as Susan was, but I think we're just as strong in that we seem to be a little more well rounded, which will be to our advantage."

The Chiefs are working to be more consistent in their attacking, too, she added.

"That's probably the one thing we really have to work on now," Getz said. "The girls relied heavily on (Ferko) last year and almost put too much pressure on Susan. This year we have girls who can pick up the slack."

Setting will be a team strength. Canton will run a 4-2 offense again and returns both starting setters, Meyka and Granger, who averaged 11 assists per game. Junior Allison Phillips is the back-up setter.

"I THINK WE'LL be a lot more consistent than last year," Getz said. "This year we'll be better because we're a little stronger in that department."

Amy Krajewski will be an all-around player for the Rocks with emphasis on hitting.

Shamrocks lose division opener

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

ReShawn Sumler hopes to receive a Division I basketball scholarship later on this spring, but Friday night he was satisfied with earning something else: a win over Redford Catholic Central.

Sumler, Redford Bishop Borgess' 6-foot-6 senior center, missed most of the second half because of foul trouble, but his supporting cast came through for a 60-54 win over the host Shamrocks.

"This is the best feeling in the world," said Sumler, who scored seven of his nine points in the first half and finished with eight rebounds. "The other players did a good job and held their own. We got the road game out of the way. Now they've got to come to our place (Jan. 25)."

This was the Catholic League Central Division opener for both teams. Borgess improved to 3-3 overall and the win helped avenge an embarrassing, 64-36 loss to Riverview Gabriel Richard the week before.

The Spartans' balanced attack included 16 points from senior guard Kevin Riser and 10 by junior forward Darwin Cegers. Junior Jermaine Parker matched Sumler with nine points and junior Lamar Westbrook added eight points and six rebounds.

"I'M VERY ELATED right now," Borgess coach Mike Fusco said. "We really, really, had a lot of things go wrong with our team (against Gabriel Richard). Tonight, we concentrated on two things: playing hard and being ready to play. They came through with flying colors on both."

With Sumler watching most of the third quarter from the sidelines after picking up his fourth foul, the Spartans rallied behind Riser, who scored eight third-quarter points.

Riser's three-point basket at the end of the third quarter capped an 11-4 Borgess run and gave the Spartans a 47-45 lead entering the fourth quarter. Borgess outscored CC, 6-2, to start the fourth quarter and led, 53-47 with 5:25 left on a backdoor layup by Parker.

The Spartans were outrebounded, 32-24, but they shot 50 percent from the field (25-50) and limited CC to 37 percent shooting (19-51). CC made only 4-of-14 field goals in the fourth quarter.

The loss dropped CC to 2-4 overall and leaves the Shamrocks with another tough assignment tonight at the University of Detroit Jesuit.

"We didn't deserve to win," said CC coach Bernie Holowicki. "This was a very pivotal game. It means a lot in the sense of confidence and getting on a roll. Now we've got to go into the 'Cubs' (U-D's) Den.' They're a very good team.

"BORGESS GOT in its comfort zone and with their big guy (Sumler) out they took the lead on us. We made a run, they took the lead and we were tentative. We didn't shoot the shot when we were wide open. If you play scared, with handcuffs on, your game goes down. We're hurting, and I'm hurting worse."

CC wasted a fine effort by junior swingman Bob Kummer, who finished with 24 points and a game-high 12 rebounds. The Shamrocks also got a season-high 16 points from sophomore guard Bob Schneider, but continue to search for an effective point guard.

It was Steve Whitlow's turn to handle the point Friday, and he finished with six points, seven rebounds — and nearly as many turnovers.

"We just kind of backed off," said Kummer, who scored eight of his points in the third quarter. "People were afraid to shoot and there was a lot of unsuredness. We've got to turn it on and play from tip-off to the final buzzer. We want to play them again. If we don't want to, we don't belong in the league."

THE SHAMROCKS trailed, 32-29, at halftime, but they outscored Borgess, 9-2, to start the third quarter. Schneider's three-point play in the paint, followed by six straight points by Kummer gave CC a 38-34 lead with 5:16 remaining.

CC outrebounded the Spartans, 7-0, in the third quarter, but Fusco was still pleased by the play of Cegers. With Sumler out, Cegers' five rebounds and strong play in the paint were needed.

Fusco would rather have Sumler on the floor than sitting next to him on the bench.

"ReShawn's best years are ahead of him," Fusco said. "Some college is going to get a very good player. He's gaining weight and is still growing.

"Darwin gave us a lot of rebounding inside and played good inside defense. We call it the 'Pump-fake, step through,' and he gave us two or three buckets like that and had a real complete game."

basketball

Salem 'D' improved

"It's just going to take a while to get her ready," Gilles said. "She started last year, and when she gets going again she'll be a big asset to the ballclub.

"The key to our club this year is, one, the setters have to put the ball where the hitters can get a swing at it because we have good hitters. Two, we have to serve well. We're going to play good defense and move well, but the hitting and serving will be the key to our success."

Bol and Tatterton are returning starters at the setting positions in Salem's 6-2 offense. Bol will do some hitting this year and play all around, and Krieger, who spent some time on varsity, will rotate and share time at setter.

"(THE SETTERS) are improved because they know what we want and how to run the offense," Gilles said. "They learned a lot in terms of decision making and who should be getting the ball.

"Bol was the setter 95 percent of the time last year, but we pulled her out when she got in the front row. It's a matter of time before she becomes one of the big hitters and blockers."

The Rocks are much improved defensively from a year ago, Gilles said. He noticed a big difference in the way Salem played in the Madonna College tournament and a four-way scrimmage from this point last season.

"This year we put in a few new wrinkles," he said. "We want to eliminate the mental mistakes and upgrade what we're doing. Right now it looks like one of our strengths."

Ideally, Gilles would like to see the Rocks challenge for the division and league championships by season's end.

"There are four or five teams that are going to be hard to handle," he said. "But this year I think we're ready. We want to challenge the Stevensons, the Walled Lake Westerns, the Walled Lake Centrals and the Livonia Churchills and see what happens."

Chiefs in strong division

Junior April Billins, a back-row specialist, completes the 12-player varsity, which will still have an element of youth with only four seniors.

"Our bench is deeper and we have more players who can play all around," Getz said. "We have a lot of athletes on this team who not only know the game of volleyball but have good floor sense, can read the floor and play well with the person next to them."

Aside from the setters, Getz was uncertain who will start in the season opener Wednesday against North Farmington at Canton, but she has plenty of possible combinations.

Gray is an improved player who will see a lot of playing time, Getz said. Dory has improved her passing and is a strong defensive player, and Davis is a consistent, all-around player.

Sanford and Brinkhan are smart, scrappy players. Getz is counting on Poole and Collier to develop into strong hitters.

Getz thinks the Chiefs will be a good defensive team.

"WE PROBABLY were not as good at blocking as I hoped (last year)," she said, "but this year we'll do a good job of anticipating and blocking, which helps the defense.

"Our primary goal is not to block but to deflect the ball and slow it down and give the defense a chance to recover."

Canton must contend with defending WLAA champion Livonia Churchill and Walled Lake Western in the division again.

"One goal we set is to be better than .500 and at least second in our division," Getz said, adding it will be difficult to win the Western title. "But we would like to be third in the tournament and have a chance at winning our division and coming out of our district."

Chargers finish off Woodhaven

By Brad Emons
staff writer

There was a time when Livonia Churchill couldn't hold a candle to once-powerful Woodhaven, but on Friday the Chargers came out smoking, rolling to an easy 58-36 non-league boys basketball win.

Visiting Woodhaven, an impressive 45-3 record over the past two seasons but now 1-7 in 1990-91, was left smoldering by the end of the third period.

After leading by seven points at intermission, 26-19, Churchill got hot, going on a 22-3 scoring run during the next eight minutes to put the game out of reach.

"Obviously we're not the same team," said Woodhaven coach Mike Krogel, who lost three top-notch players to graduation last year in 6-foot-7 Vernon Crump (Miami of Ohio), DeAnthony Hartman (Ferris State) and Dustin Snell (Alma College). "We were in it until they (Churchill) put that box-and-one (defense) on us. And then their size bothered us. We had nobody to stop No. 42. He's a good player."

Number 42 was Churchill's 6-7 senior center Randy Calcaterra, who notched a game-high 23 points (on 11 of 16 shooting from the floor) to go along with 10 rebounds and four blocked shots.

HIS INSIDE play left Woodhaven in ruins, but it was a change in defensive strategy by coach Fred Price which ignited the host Chargers.

"We ran our offense and played together extremely well in the third quarter," said the Churchill coach. "And I thought defensively we made some key plays."

Churchill focused its attention on Woodhaven's top scoring threat, guard Ernie Nemeth. The Chargers had four players sitting back in a zone, with the odd man chasing the 5-10 Nemeth around the floor.

Nemeth hit a pair of three-pointers in the opening quarter as Churchill led 14-12, but he was held scoreless the rest of the way.

"We wanted to take him (Nemeth) out of the game and I think by doing that we disrupted their flow," said Price. "It was just a stab in the dark, but I figured we should do something."

With the new defense acting as an extinguisher, Churchill was able to hold Woodhaven to a total of 10 points during the second and third periods.

"He (Nemeth) knocked down a couple of 'threes' and that drew their attention," Krogel said. "It's the second time now that somebody has done that to us. And we don't have another player who can take the pressure off."

AS A RESULT, not a single Woodhaven player scored in double figures. (Ben Haynes and Fred Damron each finished with eight.)

Meanwhile, Churchill got just about everybody into the act. Six different players scored points in the third period alone.

For the game, senior forward Mike Thomas wound up with 10 points, while junior guard Brian D. Johnson added nine.

"I was quite pleased with his (Johnson's) performance being that it was his first start," Price said. "He showed he could shoot the ball and he's quick.

"And I thought Jeremiah Sarnovsky and Thomas were able to push the ball up the court and help get us some transition baskets."

Woodhaven tried to pressure Churchill's backcourt, but ended up with more turnovers. The Warriors had 19 to the Chargers' 13.

"We still have to work on taking care of the ball and we're still going to have our share of turnovers, but we're working on it constantly," Price said. "It was fun game from the standpoint that everybody had a chance to play for the first time."

MEANWHILE, it was another long night for Krogel and his team.

"We were pretty successful the first part of the game," he said. "But then we kind of fell asleep and they were successful at breaking the press. Then we couldn't score."

By that time Woodhaven could only fan the Churchill flames.

Harrison wins, 69-68

By Neal Zipser

It was predictable Oak Park's fate would be decided at the free throw line.

The Knights, who converted only eight-of-21 free throws for the game (38 percent), had a chance to pull out a come-from-behind victory against host Farmington Harrison in a non-league basketball game Friday.

Senior guard Herb Taylor was fouled with :09 seconds remaining in regulation and Oak Park trailing 69-67. Taylor hit his first free throw but missed his second, and the Hawks held on to edge Oak Park 69-68.

"If we just shot decently at the line tonight, we would have won — but 'if' is a big word," said Knight coach Howard Golding, whose team fell to 5-2. "Free throws are that — free points. I hope the players learned tonight how important making your free throws is."

Harrison (4-2) trailed 47-46 entering the final quarter, which turned out to be an excitement-packed and controversial eight minutes.

WHILE OAK PARK struggled at the charity stripe, Hawks' guard Andrew Smith had no problem finding the bottom of the net. The 6-foot-3 senior finished with 32 points, 14 in the final quarter.

"It was obvious he was the best player on the court tonight," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said.

"He killed us," Golding said. "He probably finished with his number, 34."

THE Observer & Eccentric NEWSPAPERS

SC cagers lose 3 with poor grades

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Once again, the new year brought only disappointment for Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team.

The news wasn't as devastating as in the past, but it was still very bad. The Ocelots — whose on-court chances for victory have been crippled the past two years by academic losses at the break between semesters — lost three of the 12 players on their roster.

In addition, Westland John Glenn grad Marcus Lowe, who sat out the first semester because he didn't have enough credits, also failed to make grades. He will remain ineligible.

The backcourt will suffer most for SC. The academic casualties are starting point guard Lynell Collins, back-up guard Charles Perkins, and swingman Tony Flowers. All three are freshmen. Lowe — another guard who played a year at Madonna College before the program was cancelled — is a sophomore.

"It's not too bad," said SC coach Dave Bogataj, trying to remain optimistic. "We're going to be all right. We've got nine (players) left."

INDEED, THE Ocelots do have a strong nucleus of players remaining, including top scorer Randy Watters. Kwesi McGill, who had played shooting guard, will probably switch to the point. Barry Quayle, Mitch Fyke and Dave Hamilton are also major contributors for SC.

Still, the Ocelots would have been hard-pressed to break even in the difficult Eastern Conference with their roster intact. They were 7-6 overall, 0-2 in the conference entering January.

Now, that task will be much more difficult.

The loss of the four players means doubts regarding the Student-Athlete Support System (SASS) remain. Despite its design to closely monitor the progress of student-athletes, with weekly tickets from instructors required before a player is allowed to compete, the losses continue.

It's not as bad as in the past, its true. Last year, the Ocelots lost five players to grades; in 1988-89, they lost seven.

But the losses are still far too high.

Bogataj did not want to comment further on the situation, and SC athletic director Marty Nowak on Friday refused to even acknowledge any players had been lost.

But it seems apparent the academic problems plaguing SC's men's basketball program have not yet been solved.

Salem topples Novi

Plymouth Salem evened its dual-meet swim record at 1-1 Thursday, edging visiting Novi 100-96.

"I saw Novi swim Livonia Stevenson before Christmas and was impressed," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "I saw we had a lot of catching up to do."

The Rocks obviously did so, having five second-place finishes to support their four firsts.

Jon Stridiron placed first in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:01.7) and had a hand in Salem's triumphant 200 medley relay. Stridiron, Curt Witthoff, Albert Sneath and Gary Bergman won the race in 1:47.17.

Salem's Joe Pawluszka captured the 100 freestyle (52.24), and Pat McManaman took the diving with 226 points.

Pawluszka had two second-place swims, one on a relay, and Witthoff and Bergman had one each.

Pawluszka swam the 200 freestyle in 1:55.14 and anchored the 200 freestyle relay team, which included Matt Erickson, Brett Petroskey and Todd Piwowar.

Whitthoff was second in the IM (2:09.99) and Bergman the 50 freestyle (24.35). Brett Meik was runner-up in the 500 freestyle (5:20.9).

Novi's Matt Spearschneider won the 200 freestyle (1:54.4) and the 500 freestyle (5:16.39). Matt's brother, Derek, captured first place in the IM (2:07.89) and the backstroke (59.17).

No lights during no-tap bowling

IT WAS NEW YEAR'S EVE, and my wife Sandy and I were invited to attend the no-tap bowling party at Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills.

It turned out to be a lot of fun and there was a huge turnout. Now I see what I've been missing all these years.

The buffet dinner started at 6:30 p.m. and the rest of the evening was non-stop eating, drinking, celebration and of course bowling.

It was a new experience when they turned out the lights for the no-tap competition. This is not good when you've been a spot bowler all your life. I adjusted to the darkness, but it wasn't until I had a bad game under my belt.

Why is it when you get a strike for nine pins that you always seem to get eight on your first ball?

Sandy and I did not win the money, but we sure had a great time!

Ed Wright tossed the first ten strikes in the second game and each was a full-count. He finished with a 285 game.

The bowling was capped off with a super-strike elimination and then on to the lounge for more fun with the disc jockey. We socialized until the wee hours of the morning.

As for the winning scores: The top prize of $1,000 went to Val and Dennis McCune with 1,518. Sandy McIntosh and Vic West took second place with 1,466 and Fran Harrison and Clifford Willis took third with 1,448.

This was the typical scene at many of the local bowling centers on New Years Eve. It's a great way to ring in the new year.

- The Coca-Cola Classic Doubles Tournament was held Dec. 29 at Oak Lanes in Westland.

The winning duo turned out to be couple of Observer & Eccentric employees.

Terry Davison had a 245 game and 666 series, while Rick Necker scored a 232 game and 642 set. With handicap, they totalled 1411.

- Super Bowl in Canton Township will host a fund-raiser for the Henry Ford Heart Transplants Saturday Jan. 19 at 2 p.m. Check-in is at 1 p.m.

Prior to the tournament, another event will take place. Rich Clark will marry Janet Lynne Robertson at Super-Bowl. Plymouth magistrate Eric Coldhurst will perform the ceremony. Rich leaves a week later for a tour of duty in the U.S. Army.

RECYCLING IS GOOD NEWS:

Overcrowded landfills. Garbage barges no one wants to deal with. Terminal trash.

News.

Bad news.

The good news? More and more people, businesses and industries are finding ways to recycle.

It takes more than 6,000 tons of newsprint each year to print The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers plus a number of other publications, so we're doing a number of things to help the solid waste situation:

1. For years we've sold our waste newsprint to a recycling firm.

2. 25% of the newsprint we print on is recycled and we're increasing this amount by another 25% this year.

3. Our employees have begun to routinely put officer paper (memos, computer paper, waste copy paper) in recycle bins instead of waste baskets.

Of course, we still deliver thousands of newspapers twice each week. It's our business to bring you news of your local government, schools, sports scene and community events; the news you need to know.

And when you're finished reading your hometown newspaper there are places that will recycle them.

We've listed a few for you on this page because we think recycling is Good News.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, help me see this everything & show me the way to reach my goals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me & You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short prayer, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my Loved One, in Your perpetual glory. Amen.

ST. JUDE NOVENA. May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved & preserved throughout the world, now & forever. Sacred Heart Of Jesus, pray for us. Mary, Help of Hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer nine times a day & by the ninth day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. My prayers have been answered. R.M.S.

ST. JUDE - Thank you again for more favors received. CLM

STREET BEATS

Wrath of Christian didn't set out to have a good time playing around town. This trio is doing things differently. It's meticulously plotting a musical course because of a firm belief it can get signed to a record contract.

STREET CRACKS

If there's a traffic jam on the Southfield Freeway, Stacey Duford can tell you about it. If there's a joke to tell she's up to the challenge. This Canton resident is finding fame on the airwaves and the stage in two totally different careers.

COVER STORY

Brian Jablonski is earning a name for himself with his design work from a modernistic lamp to the sleek lines of a telephone. Now, the Birmingham resident has headed for Italy and a 10-month stay at Milan's prestigious Domus Acedemy to further his studies in industrial design.

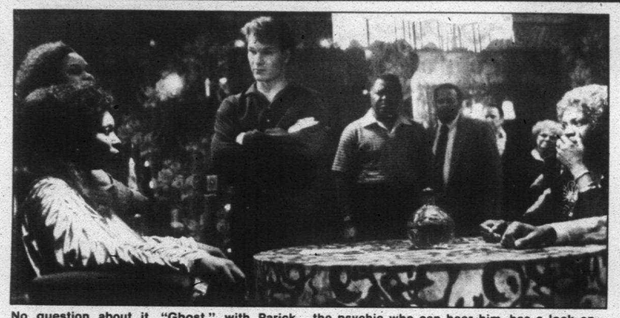
MOVING PICTURES



No question about it. "Ghost," with Parick Swayze as the ghost and Whoopi Goldberg as the psychic who can hear him, has a lock on top spot for box office takes in 1990.

Looks like 'Ghost' wins the box office bonanza

The totals for 1990's box office receipts won't be in for another week, so all the wise minds will have to wait to second-guess the movie mavens running around telling everyone, "I told you so."

Probably won't hear too much from those who were way off base. No question on the number one and two slots, "Ghost" and "Pretty Woman." Quite probably "Home Alone" will continue its phenomenal success and take third place. Fourth probably goes to the "Ninja Turtles," but after that the rest of the lineup is still open.

In the meantime, no new films open in the Detroit area until Jan. 11 so here's another week to catch up on the holiday releases. Look what's still playing:

STILL PLAYING:

"Almost an Angel" (C-, PG, 95 minutes).

A slow, cliched Paul Hogan doesn't make it as a probationary angel.

"Bonfire of the Vanities" (C+, R, 120 minutes).

"Child's Play 2" (*, R).

"Chucky" returns.

"Dances With Wolves" (A, PG-13, 180 minutes).

Kevin Costner's magnificent ode to brotherhood and brutality on America's western frontier during and after the Civil War.

"Edward Scissorhands" (C, PG-13, 180 minutes).

Unusual young man with scissors instead of hands shakes up the suburbs after moving in with the Avon lady and her family.

"Ghost" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).

Banker's ghost (Patrick Swayze) hangs around after life to protect loved one (Demi Moore). Spiritualist (Whoopi Goldberg) helps him in this romantic comedy/thriller.

"Godfather III" (C+, R, 161 minutes).

"Havana" (B, R, 135 minutes).

"Home Alone" (B-, PG, 100 minutes).

"Jacob's Ladder" (A, R, 115 minutes).

Sensational, riveting film experience redeems and rewards with its story of Jacob Singer's (Tim Robbins) re-entry to civilian life after Vietnam trauma.

Kindergarten Cop" (B-, PG-13, 105 minutes).

Schwarzenegger is macho and the kids are cute but the plot isn't.

"The King of New York" (R, 103 minutes).

Violent return of recently paroled drug lord.

"Look Who's Talking Too" (F, PG-13, 75 minutes).

Stupid sequel has nothing to offer.

"Mermaids" (A-, PG-13, 110 minutes).

Fine romantic comedy features Cher as an unusual matriarch. Winona Ryder is excellent as her teenage daughter.

"Misery" (C+, PG-13, 100 minutes.)

Story of writer and obsessed fan waffles back and forth from psychotic thriller to slasher epic.

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect
B	Good
B-	Good but notable deficiencies
C+	Just a cut above average
C	Mediocre
C-	Not so hot and slipping fast
D+	The very best of the poor stuff
D	Poor
D-	It doesn't get much worse
F	Truly awful
Z	Reserved for the colossally bad
*	No advenced screening

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

Mall plays 'em again, Sam

By John Monaghan
special writer

Humphrey Bogart was one of those rare actors whose love affair with the camera made even his worst films watchable. So it's no big deal that the monthlong tribute to Bogey at the Livonia Mall runs the gamut from great to godawful.

"The Treasure of Sierra Madre" (1948) kicks off the series on Tuesday. In perhaps his finest performance, Bogart is Fred C. Dobbs, one in a trio of prospectors who grows paranoid and crazy with greed after striking gold.

The adventure was directed by John Huston, whose natural gifts as a storyteller plus his use of deep focus and natural locales made his film unlike any others at the time.

The film also featured the director's father Walter Huston in an Academy Award-winning role as the old prospector. John Huston even shows up as a white-suited tourist early in the film.

IN ONE OF the film's many amazing sequences, Bogart and partner Tim Holt encounter a shady contractor who refused to pay for their work. The high contrast lighting and simply staged violence make the ensuing barroom brawl one of the best conceived fist fights in the movies.

There are similarly great moments in Huston's "Key Largo" (1948), which paired Bogart with Lauren Bacall for the fourth time. It screens Jan. 30. Bogart plays one of a handful held hostage by psychotic gangster Edward G. Robinson in a Florida hotel.

In an odd shading of his heroic persona, Bogart is a war veteran and pacifist forced to kill again. In a truly suspenseful climax, he guns down

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Beginning the new year with a look at America's past may prove rewarding. Ken Burns' stunning presentation, "The Civil War," which aired on PBS last fall, is now available on nine video cassettes, totalling more than 11 hours of excellent, engaging documentation of America's bloody Civil War.

Burns has emerged in recent years as one of the country's outstanding practitioners of the documentary film form, with diverse productions ranging from "Brooklyn Bridge" to a feature-length presentation about Louisiana's Governor Huey Long.

The nine tapes in "The Civil War" series are chronologically ordered and present a superb, detailed view of the war, its causes and complications and many of the background issues, issues not always apparent but extremely important in understanding how human culture inflicts so much suffering on its members.

THE NINE are "The Cause — 1861" (99 minutes), "A Very Bloody Affair — 1861" (69 minutes), "Forever Free — 1862" (76 minutes), "Simply Murder — 1863" (62 minutes), "The Universe of Battle — 1863" (95 minutes), "Valley of the Shadow of Death — 1864" (70 minutes), "Most Hallowed Ground — 1864" (72 minutes), "War Is All Hell — 1865" (69 minutes) and "The Better Angels of Our Nature — 1865" (68 minutes).

All were first aired in 1990 and are unrated. Although they're marked "color," a good deal of the photos Burns incorporated so creatively are black and white.

Burns' technique and his superb research are at the heart of the film's impact. Here as in his other films, Burns incorporates all available sources to present a vivid, gripping picture of the subject.

Letters home, the music, newspaper reports, journals and diaries, contemporary historians as well as the many paintings and photographs of the Civil War are, indeed rich sources. Burns uses them to great effect in a superb mix.

THE THOUGHT of stills on motion picture film is not particularly inspiring, but here the effect is sensational.

The third episode, "Forever Free," opens with a montage of portraits of soldiers. Rather than the obvious technique, which has the camera linger on individual stills, Burns cuts rapidly from photo to photo, using gunfire sound effects as his motivating transitional force. In addition, he cuts with a variety of visual transitions creating the dynamic impression of war's violence.

Just as Vietnam was our first war reported live from the front via television, the Civil War marked the first combat in our national history reported via photography.

Wrath charts a path to success

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

Chris Mison of Redford, the voice and guitar behind the band Wrath of Christian, is determined that his band is not going to fall in the usual local band rut.

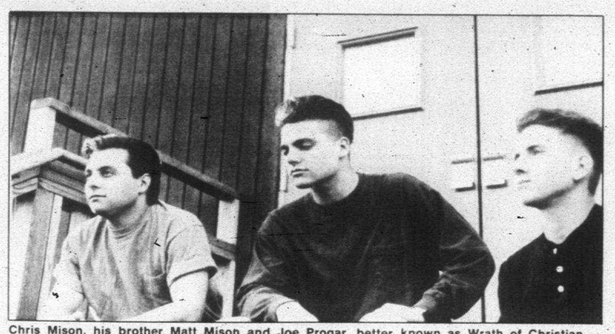
"We didn't set out to have a band just to have a good time playing around town — this band can get signed," Mison said.

So, the guys in Wrath of Christian — Mison, his brother Matt Mison of Southfield on keyboard and programming and Joe Progar of Southfield on drums — have decided that they are going to do things a little differently. This involves meticulously plotting each step of the band's career and breaking a few rules in the process.

CONSIDER THE band's just-released four-song demo cassette. Instead of spending a lot of money and giving up creative control by recording in a studio, the band decided to record the tape in the Mison basement.

This might mean disaster in the hands of another band, but, luckily, Mison happens to be an experienced sound technician. He occasionally moonlights at the sound board of the Majestic Theater in Detroit.

Anyway, what the band eventually came up with is an amazingly professional-sounding tape. The four songs — with names like "Pluckavage" and "Precious Marigold" — are of a Euro-electronic variety and sound just as good as any you could hear on your local cutting edge radio station. But perhaps the most surprising thing about the tape was that it was recorded live.



Chris Mison, his brother Matt Mison and Joe Progar, better known as Wrath of Christian, are meticulously plotting each step of the band's career.

THE FINE sound quality is due to the time and care they spent before recording the tape, Chris Mison said.

"That's what always fascinates me — sound quality," he said. "I can't imagine ever letting somebody take my material and not being able to follow up on what I do."

Brother Matt explained the brothers' working process: "I'm like the producer and he's (Chris) the engineer. It's kind of like an assembly line. I write the music and he writes the vocals and the vocal melodies. Joe puts his 2 cents in, then we all work on it together.

"This band has been a year in the basement before coming out. Before we left the basement, we said, 'We've got to have a final project.' "

Because the band recorded in the basement, it saved a lot of money on the tapes and is passing along the savings to its fans by selling the tapes at cost.

"Basically, even if you've head a band a few times, at $4 (a tape) you start wondering," Mison said.

THE BAND has no plans to make an album.

"If we wanted to make an album, we could have, but, if no one knows who you are, why go out and record an album? You have no market," Chris Mison said. "The whole idea is to get people to hear you.

"My theory is the people who buy records and the people who see shows are not the same. You may have the best band in Detroit and play every weekend, but not everyone is going to know who you are."

INSTEAD OF hitting the club circuit after creating five or six original songs, like many other local

What a bash!

The fans were into the beat and Cobo Arena was rockin'n'rollin' New Year's Eve, thanks to famed rocker Ted Nugent. The Motor City Madman was in his prime at his annual Whiplash Bash, with screaming guitar licks and heady lyrics. Nugent (center) shared the stage with Damned Yankees members Tommy Shaw (left) and Jack Blades and local group Heaven's Wish, which had played its way to being the opening act at the Bash.

CHILDHOOD — Missionary Stew

A pop band doesn't have an easy go of it today. Thanks to many predecessors (Air Supply, for example), many are quick to write the lot of them off as facile, banal and total lacking in overall imagination.

Some choose the pop route, not out of affinity but necessity due to a lack of talent. Also, there are all those limitations — albeit many self-imposed — that state a pop song should be short, sweet and not disturb the thought process.

Then comes Missionary Stew.

This five-man outfit works within the constraints of the pop genre, professing a vision and fulfilling it without compromising in the least bit. That took some doing.

First off, Dion Roddy's voice is an unflawed, unrelenting flow of choral expertise — the perfect vehicle for a pop band that could be light on substance. Then there are the air-driven keyboards that would seem at home in an Archies' song.

Well, one thing the lyrics capture more than chronicling conquests in the backseat of a souped-up Chevy.

Many of the numbers speak of voids be it in love, childhood or day-to-day living. The lyrics in the barebones guitar offering of "Waterworld" reflect this: "The waterworld is a no mans' land/ where reason has no place to stand/ where love and hate go hand/where I obey your every command."

Of course, no set of songs is complete without a utopian vision. The dissonant acoustic number "Peace Like a Prayer" is rather straightforward in this regard.

"I want the clouds to blow away/I want the sun to shine/my-my-my/I want my peace like a river/I want to give this life of mine/give it all to you."

The bottom line in Missionary Stew's successful debut is mostly due to talent, something that even pop's limitations can't suppress.

LIVE AT LEGS — John D. Lamb

With all its engaging narratives and sterling musicianship, John D. Lamb's "Live at Legs" has an undertone of desperation. An urgency that more than pushes this nine-song offering over the top.

Lamb sounds like someone who sat down, pondered his place in life or, rather, as an entertainer and came out with all musical cylinders firing with a go-for-broke effort utilizing all his strengths as a live performer and a songwriter.

The setting is Legs Inn, a scenic little lakefront enclave judging by the painting on the cover which depicts a place with a teepee standing next to the pickup truck, motorcycle and automobiles in its parking lot.

Lamb's perpetual tour of the smalltown club circuit comes across with the introductory guitar lines of "Fire Me." "Hi, my name is John D. Lamb. I've been fired from more bars than anyone I know."

Lamb's songwriting is marked by introspection and self-realization, often preferring the directness of first-person references opposed to wrapping himself in vague imagery and metaphors. To his credit, Lamb pulls this off without sounding self-absorbed. His story-telling narrative especially washes well with the unpretentious shot-and-beer set who don't give a hoot about the surreal, visceral or the obscure.

On numbers like "Honest," "Suburbia Boy" and "Lover Man," Lamb sings as much about them as he does about himself.

Sometimes in the quest for sincerity and passion, Lamb can steer close to New Jersey ala Springsteen. "Unbelievers," a knock-out of a number, has that quality of a grease-stained motorcycle boot stomp and an arm with partially covered by a T-shirt with a pack of Marlboros rolled up in the sleeve thrusted in the air.

When not unveiling his apparent songwriting talents, Lamb, or more precisely, his band mates showcase some excellent musicianship on the instrumental "Atlantic Ocean." Salvatore D'Agnillo's lead guitar soars above the crashing waves and the blue horizon on this number.

Andy Boller's keyboards ooze with tranquility, putting a shiny finish on Lamb's well-painted lyrics. Myk Rise'é bass and Mitch Purdy's drumming pounds it all home.

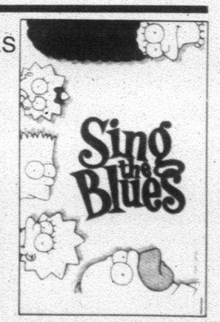
SINGS THE BLUES — The Simpsons



Holy, Milli Vanilli! Stop the presses!

For people who still care about this sort of thing, the Simpsons — those lovable(?) characters that are a marketing man's dream and a retail juggernaut — DO NOT SING ON THEIR OWN ALBUM!

The music industry is hush on the topic, but insiders say former "Tracey Ullman Show" alumni Dan Castellaneta (in place of Homer Simpson), Julie Kavner (Marge Simpson), Nancy Cartwright (Bart Simpson),Yeardley Smith (Lisa Simpson) and Matt Groening (Maggie Simpson) do the actual vocals for the tone- and tune-deaf cartoon characters.

When contacted via phone, Bart Simpson — who had to be pulled from a power brunch with his media guru — would neither confirm nor deny the persistent rumors, but did say: "So what if we didn't sing, dude? Don't have a cow, it's only a novelty album!"

That being said, "Sings the Blues" isn't the worst record released this year — but it probably won't make anyone's top 10 list either despite some cameo appearances by such notables as Buster Poindexter (David Johansen) DJ Jazzy Jeff (of the Fresh Prince Fame), Joe Walsh and blues legend B.B. King.

There's very little blues on "Sings the Blues," which relies mostly on a rap beat and rhythm to get its message across.

There's some cute stuff here, most notably the hit single "Do the Bartman."

Do the Bartman? Thank you, no. That marketing megalith known as the Simpsons marches on, but it marches to the beat of a different drum.

bands do, Wrath of Christian decided to delay playing live until it has developed a full night's worth of material.

"My object is not to be an opening band," Mison said. "I'll open up once at a certain club. We're choosy as far as the clubs we play."

The band selects clubs on the basis of their sound systems. So far, Finney's, Paycheck's and the Majestic Theater have passed muster.

In their live performances, as well as their studio projects, the emphasis of Wrath of Christian is on the music.

"WHAT MAKES a song is the music itself," said Chris Mison, a classically trained musician. "People underestimate the power of music. My brother's the really talented one as far as that goes — he makes sure the dirty work is done. Our lyrics are the last thing to be put in."

"I don't consider myself as talented as my brother does," Matt Mison said.

Working with his brother has been a good experience, Matt said.

"We're able to work better together because we're not afraid to hurt each other's feelings. If I think something he does sucks, then I tell him."

THE BROTHERS played in their first band together when they were in the seventh grade so they have a lot of experience working together.

"Chris doesn't like the music to sound too mechanical," Matt Mison said, "but I'm a keyboard player, so I'm into all the technologies."

One thing they agree on is that they want Wrath of Christian to create its own sound, instead of becoming a pale imitation of an already known band.

"This band was never designed to copy another band," Chris Mison said. "You're in a lot of trouble if you're not doing your own thing."

From the painstaking quality of their music to the way they talk to the press ("I have to be careful about how we publicize the band," Chris Mison said), each step that Wrath of Christian has taken has been carefully plotted out. It's a perfectionism that may well pay off.

"I will never put on a show where it's going to sound mediocre," Chris Mison said.

STREET SENSE

Time to talk to your wife

Barbara Schiff

Dear Barbara,

This letter is hard for me to write even though it is anonymous. This is so private a matter that I know I will blush when I read your answer in the paper. I masturbate almost daily. Usually, I am at home and sometimes I am at work.

I have been masturbating since I was in my teens. I thought that as I grew older I would just naturally stop, but I haven't.

I am in m 40s and I have been married for about 10 years. My wife and I are sexually active although not as often as I would like. I fantasize about other women, not about my wife, when I am masturbating. This makes me feel that I am betraying her.

There is really nothing urgent about any of this and I could go on this way forever, but I wonder if any of this makes sense to you. I will sign the letter anonymous as this will make me feel safe.

Anonymous

Dear Anonymous,

Did you learn that masturbating is bad when you were a child? Did you feel guilty about it and do you still?

For most, self-soothing and self-stimulating behavior, like masturbation, begins early in life. It is healthy and natural when it is not overdone.

Thumb sucking and other forms of mouth play could be said to be the forerunner of genital masturbation. These behaviors are used by the infant to calm himself. Thus, he is no longer completely dependent on the caregiver but can regulate his own emotions. The increased impact of combined mental and physical stimulation promotes even greater independence.

So, masturbating for a child is healthy. The question is why some men continue to find masturbation pleasurable in addition to intercourse. You give us a clue in that you do not have intercourse frequently enough for you and resort to masturbation to fulfill your unfulfilled needs. I would think that there can be a healthy combination of intercourse and masturbation for some men.

There also could be a group in which masturbation becomes a compulsion resulting from a need to discharge anxiety in this manner. From the fantasies you describe which accompany your masturbation, it appears that this does not apply to you.

Being able to fantasize good sex is healthy. There are many unanswered questions about this relationship between you and your wife that need to be discussed.

ALTERNATIVE MOVIE

Robinson aboard ship. The foggy setting and more high contrast lighting add realism to the violence.

Raoul Walsh directed the 1941 effort "High Sierra" (playing Jan. 22), but Huston co-wrote the screenplay for this sympathetic study of a convicted killer on the run. "Mad Dog" Earle was a breakthrough for Bogart which added a new dimension to the tough guy characters he was typecast into playing.

AND THE TRULY awful title? In what has arguably been hailed as the actor's worst drama, "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" (1947) wastes both Bogart and Barbara Stanwyck in a melodramatic tale of an artist who marries women, paints their portraits and "The Angel of Death" and then murders them. It plays Jan. 15.

Warner Bros. obviously knew it had a dog on its hands. The film was actually completed in 1945, but held back from release until 1947. Audiences weren't likely to forget Bogart, who completed some 25 features in the 1940s.

For movie buffs, Bogart remains a larger-than-life actor. The opportunity to see any of his films — uncolorized and on the big screen — is well worth skipping a morning of work for.

painting and drawing as the preferred visual format. Mathew Brady, in particular, popularized the photograph with his Civil War work and his extensive, by contemporary standards, photography of President Lincoln.

BUT BURNS' technique does not rely on these visuals alone. His impact evolves from careful integration of sound and picture tied together with voice-over narration by David McCollough and the finest professional actors available to read the letters and other reports of the Civil War.

Sam Waterston is President Lincoln, Jason Robards reads General Grant's words, Morgan Freeman is Frederick Douglass, Garrison Keillor is Walt Whitman and Arthur Miller is William T. Sherman. Julie Harris and Jody Powell are among the voices.

Ex-slave recordings from the Library of Congress and extensive traditional music combine with sound effects to create an energetic and engaging soundtrack to match the vivid visuals.

There is a great deal to be learned by viewing Liese nine tapes in Burns' "The Civil War." We should be grateful for his work.

Traffic jams and jokes: Life's twice as 'NIC'

By Larry O'Connor
Staff writer

A four-car pile up or a congested comedy club? Call Stacey Duford. Why? She knows the road to a good laugh.

The traffic reporter on WNIC-FM has pulled up on comedy stages at area clubs, performing the thankless task of emcee.

Emcees set the tone for the night, put the kilowatts into the plug and, generally, warm up the audience. They are, in essence, an alternative to dancing bears and court jesters juggling bananas.

Duford has become quite adept at this emcee business. She yearns for better, though.

"It's hard to be a good emcee when you're not in the mood to do it," said Duford, 26, who lives in Canton. "The best thing for an emcee is to make everyone in the audience feel like they're part of one big crowd."

She's upbeat, but not to the nauseating extreme of sounding like a cheerleader on a glucose buzz. And with only two years in the business, her humor has a bit of savvy.

Her schtick is one-part topical, four-part observational. She pokes good-natured fun at causes not known for humor.

ON THE RIGHT to Life movement: "The right to lifers say that life begins at conception. If that's the case, instead of saying I'm originally from Flint, I'll have to say 'Hi, I'm Stacey. I live in Detroit but I'm originally from the back of a 1959 Ford wagon parked somewhere outside of Duluth."

On animal rights: "I'm for animal rights. I don't think they need to vote."

Her act is clean.

"I don't like dirty humor on stage unless it's really clever," she said. "I think very few people can pull that off."

Comedy is something Duford could pull off from the start. Her original creative outlet was acting. She was involved in theater at Albion College, where she graduated with a bachelor's degree in English.

She worked as a public relations assistant for Championship Auto Racing Teams in Bloomfield Hills. While taking an acting class at the Southfield Actors' Alliance Theatre, one assignment included her doing a three-minute stand up routine.

The class project called for students to perform something they had never done before. For three minutes, she owned the classroom.

Instructor and classmates alike encouraged Duford to try her luck at a comedy club. She chose an open mike night at Mainstreet in Ann Arbor.

"IT WAS LIKE surgery," she said. "I know I was there, but I don't remember it. I'm pretty sure I was anesthetized."

The audience was lucid with laughter. Owner Kirkland Teeple and others at the club gave Duford a few pointers and she was back for more.

Another regular comedian at Mainstreet, Mike Orenstein, later became her boyfriend. The two comedians have been dating for two years.

"We've traded jokes," Duford said. "Sometimes, we give each other criticisms."

Since her debut, Duford has performed at numerous area clubs and has even ventured outside of the Detroit area to Catch A Rising Star in Chicago, Last Laff at the Rosemont, Ill., and Funny Farm in Louisville, Ky.

So much for her comedy career. What about this other job hovering over streets and freeways? Another odd tale unfolds.

Duford left CART in January 1989 and was scanning classified ads one day. She came across one for a helicopter traffic reporter.

Unusual, Duford thought. Still, she sent a tape of a voice-over to Metro Traffic. She didn't hear anything for awhile.

Then a friend and fellow comedienne, Lisa Goich, brought WNIC-FM morning man Jim Harper to Chaplin's West. Duford just happened to be performing that night. WNIC also had an opening for a traffic reporter.

HARPER APPARENTLY liked what he saw and things have been twirling for Duford since.

"It's a really nice setting for when I think something is funny, I can use it immediately on the air," she said. "Jim and Chris (Edmonds) are good feedback."

With her venture into comedy has come some sobering discoveries. A woman in a male-dominated field still has a rough go of it, Duford said. This holds true despite the successes of comediennes Paula Poundstone, Rita Rudner and Brett Butler.

Duford said she's constantly "hit on" by male audience members. Some have even followed her to her car after shows.

Then there is the overall lack of acceptance that peeves Duford.

"I've been heckled by older men, business men," she said. "They say, 'You suck,' before I've even said anything just because I'm a woman. You can't do anything about it."

Stacey Duford, the traffic reporter on WNIC-FM, is earning her stage "wings," performing the thankless task of emcee at comedy clubs.

Stacey Duford will appear Wednesday, Jan. 9, at Yuk Yuk's in the Royal Windsor Hotel, 675 Goyeau, south of Wyandotte Street, Windsor. For information, call (519) 971-9999.

Designing a lifestyle in design

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

Brian Jablonski was having quite a week.

He had just moved from Dayton, Ohio, back to his parents' home in Birmingham. And he was busy packing for a year's stay in Milan, Italy. And the packing promised to be a challenge.

Jablonski is one of 30 students worldwide who have been awarded scholarships in industrial design to the prestigious Domus Academy in Milan. In seven days he'll be in Italy.

Oh, and another thing, Jablonski doesn't speak Italian.

"I've never been out of the States, so it's kind of exciting," said the soft-spoken Jablonski.

It's an honor to receive such an award, but it is nothing new to the 24-year-old Birmingham Groves graduate. He has received an honorable mention in a contest sponsored by International Design Magazine and third place in a contest called IDEA, sponsored by the Industrial Design Society of America. For Jablonski, the IDEA award "was just a national contest."

Jablonski entered the Domus competition as "a shot in the dark." He sent off the required slides of his work, letters of recommendation, transcripts and letter of intent, then promptly put the contest in the back of his mind.

A graduate of the Center for Creative Studies' College of Art and Design in Detroit, he was busy pursuing job opportunities in California, New York and Atlanta.

"TWO MONTHS later I received a letter (from the Domus Academy)," said Jablonski. "At first I was like, 'Yeah, right.' " At the time, he didn't really known all that much about the school.

"The only things I knew were from a magazine that they put out. It's a big, office table magazine," Jablonski said.

Soon, Jablonski's own designs may grace the pages of that magazine. His designs already are stunning. He is able to combine form and function with inventive results.

The Domus Academy was founded in 1983 as a graduate school and is the only such school offering programs leading to master's degree in idustrial design, fashion and design management.

Jablonski will be at the academy for 10 months. Now through July, he'll spend one month in each of five design studios and take core classes covering such areas as design economics, industrial technologies and design culture and history.

The remainder of his stay will be spent working on a thesis or project that represents an in depth development of one of the projects completed during the design studios.

AMONG JABLONSKI'S current work is a Central Processing Unit (CPU) he designed for National Cash Register (NCR) in Dayton, Ohio. The CPU "is the brain part of the computer." It's usually very functional and, well, very boring, according to Jablonski.

For the CPU, Jablonski "wanted to make something different — like a piece of sculpture." What he created was a sleek, curved design that adds a certain amount of grace to the normally bland piece of equipment.

"I'm happy with it," he said.

Jablonski said companies are looking to design their machinery with more "emotion." The success of such designs as the Ford Taurus showed manufacturers that customers do look for unusual design in their machinery.

But Jablonski's real love is designing furniture. His furniture has the same sort of simplicity and beauty as his more technical designs. His several designs for coffee tables are sleek and graceful with very simple lines. His fold-up table is artistic as well as quite functional.

The artist in Jablonski has been in evidence since he was a young boy.

"I was always 'the artist' in elementary school," he said.

While he was a student at Groves, he filled his schedule with technical classes like shop and drafting. It was not until his senior year in high school that he decided to pursue art as a career.

"I SUDDENLY decided that I wanted to go to art school, so I had to take an art class," Jablonski said. It was his first since grade school. "I just knew I wanted to make things."

After his stint at the Italian school, Jablonski plans to bring expertise back to his hometown.

"Sometime — I don't know when — I want my own design firm; I'd like to do furniture design," he said. "I'd like to end up back in Detroit.

"I think there's a market here for nicely designed furniture that doesn't have to be sold at an art gallery."

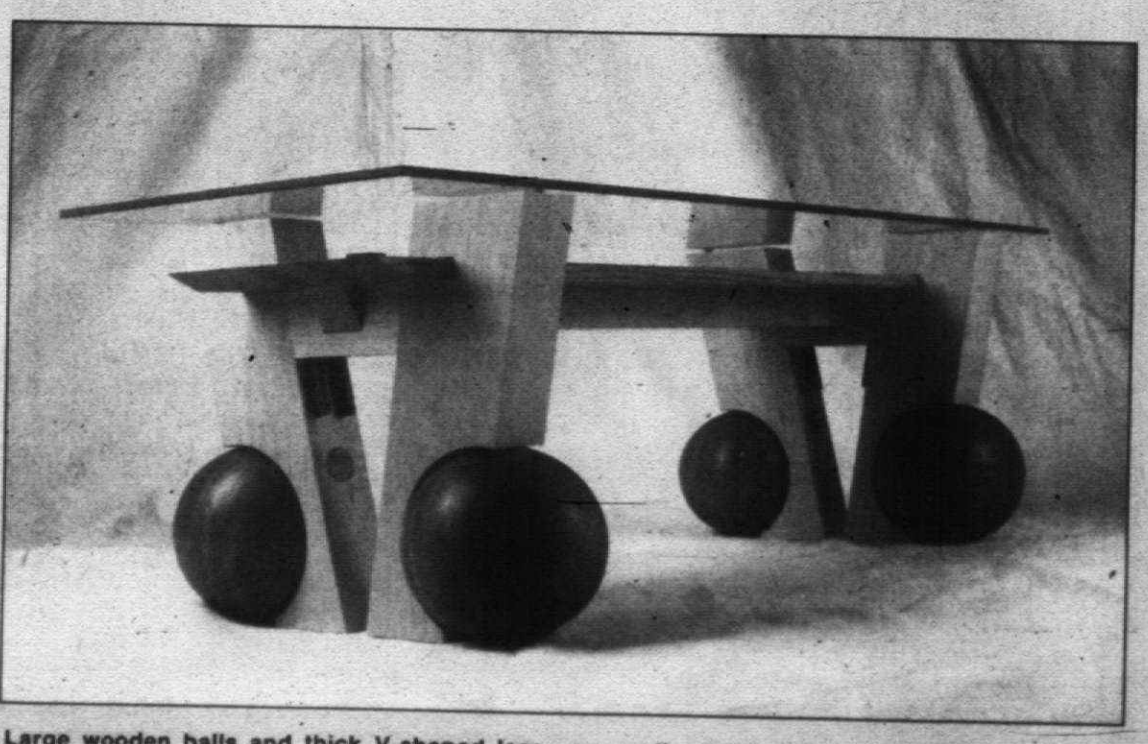
He has seen very average-looking office chairs selling for $1,500 and "that's not uncommon," he said with a touch of disbelief.

Before his big plans can be realized, though, he plans to pick up as much knowledge as he can — possibly by staying in Europe for a few years after graduation.

"I'm not looking to start my own business right away; there's always more you can learn from other people," he said.

Still, he ultimately does want a business of his own. He learned that when he found out the paltry fees that beginning industrial designers earn.

"If I'm going to scrape by like that, I may as well scrape by on my own," he said.



Large wooden balls and thick V-shaped legs are easily visible through the glass top of this coffee table, designed by Brian Jablonski.

Roadside graphics: vintage signposts

By Cathleen Collins Lee
special writer

ON THE corner of Five Mile and Farmington Road in Livonia sits a small, white, metal building called Bates Hamburgers.

To some of the many people who pass by, it's just an old hamburger stand. But to Dan Hershberger, roadside enthusiast and associate professor of graphic design at the Center for Creative Studies (CCS) in Detroit, it's a vintage example of late '40s roadside architecture and a significant piece of American history.

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Bates Hamburgers, at Five Mile and Farmington Road in Livonia, is an untouched example of a late '40s, prefabricated hamburger stand. The exterior and interior are porcelain-enameled steel.

"It's a great example of a prefabricated restaurant from that time period, and it's virtually unscathed," Hershberger said. "You literally ordered one from a catalog and you were in business. They were so standardized that only one of the two owners of Bates could get their name in the space above the door."

Hershberger, who grew up in Plymouth, has spent the last several years studying these bits and pieces of the American roadside: hamburger stands, service stations, signs, diners and maps. And he presents the results of his research in a course at CCS titled, "Gas, Food and Lodging: the Design of the American Roadside."

For Hershberger, these seemingly mundane signs and oil company logos show how effective graphic communication can be. And they help mark the tremendous influence of automobile transportation on American life.

HERSHBERGER IS worried that soon much of the history of the American roadside, as reflected in graphic and architectural design, will have vanished from the landscape.

Many people don't see roadside artifacts as historically significant, so they don't make an effort to save them. And everyone from Mobil Oil to McDonald's tries to obliterate company logos and styles that they feel are outdated.

"A lot of 20th-century American history is rooted in the automobile," Hershberger said. "Much of what we do, where we eat lunch, where we get our car serviced, the whole development of suburban area, would not exist without the automobile. But we're going to wake up in the 21st century and find that much of what happened in the 20th century will be torn down."

Hershberger begins his course in the late 19th century because much of the roadside lodging and food took its early inspiration from what was available along the train tracks. But the automobile offered a personal freedom to go where you want to go, something we take for granted today.

In the 1920s, '30s and '40s, driving cross country was an adventure. Instead of our well-marked interstates, there was a network of state and regional trails marked by signs along fenceposts and telephone poles. People would strap some folding cots and a tent on the running board of an open-air touring car, tie on at least two spare tires and set off for weeks.

THE OIL companies offered a certain amount of security along uncharted and often bumpy roads. They built gas stations to look like country cottages, offered oil and windshield cleaning and maps.

Around 1915, an advertising man named William B. Akins, who often got lost driving the mountains of Pennsylvania, approached Gulf about the idea of distributing free maps to customers.

The idea caught on, and soon all the major oil companies were distributing free maps stamped firmly with the company logo. All these design elements helped to create a corporate image that drivers could identify with as they drove across the country.

In addition to gas stations, Hershberger also studies other institutions that sprang up to serve the American driver: diners, drive-ins, McDonald's and tourist camps.

Diners, which were entirely made in a factory and always offered counter seating, were an important sociological phenomenon.

"There are no class distinctions at a diner counter," Hershberger said. "A doctor can sit next to a plumber and have free conversation. There are no first-class seats, no second-class seats."

Often located next of factories, they were also largely a male domain, although some tried to counter that by advertising, "Table Seating for Ladies."

HERSHBERGER, A graying, bearded 34-year-old, realizes across the country researching roadside design and collecting postcards, maps and signs. He has everything from a huge 1935 Texaco sign to a Shell station trademark shell that an Iowa family thought was a birdbath.

Many of the signs are made of porcelain-enameled steel, which involves placing ground, colored glass on pieces of steel and then firing it to make a design. The result is a durable finish that holds up for years.

Not many of these remnants of the past remain. Red Knapp's Dairy Bar on Main Street in Rochester, originally had a Vitrolite exterior, which involves gluing pigmented panes of glass onto the building. By the early '70s, the glass was cracking and Knapp bricked over the exterior.

'Much of what we do, where we eat lunch, where we get our car serviced, the whole development of suburban area, would not exist without the automobile.'

— Dan Hershberger associate professor

But a few years ago, Butch Knapp, current owner of the restaurant, went to great expense to restore the Vitrolite exterior. The interior is still that of an early '50s malt shop, complete with a double-U-shaped counter.

Daly's Drive-In in Plymouth has a neon sign from the '60s that Hershberger says is spectacular and an orange "mountain range" style canopy over the cars. The Daly Drive-In in Wayne has an undulating orange and blue, "rock and roll" canopy made out of metal.

THE PROBLEM is that many of these signs and buildings aren't quite old enough to be appreciated. But Hershberger points out that the pace of change today makes things that happened even 20 or 30 years ago quite different than now.

"I like to talk about the idea of 'recent history,' " he said. "When we talk about the '70s, that's only 20 years ago. But look how much has happened in 20 years."

Hershberger will take a large garish roadsign over a tasteful imitation-wood one any day.

"People today want everything to be homogenous and blend in with the landscape," he said. "But these things have an identity, an exuberance about them. More important, they're part of our history." →

James Bonadeo puts his more than 30 years of experience as a builder to work as president of the Builders Association Southeastern Michigan.

3rd BASM term for Bonadeo

By Doug Funke
staff writer

James S. Bonadeo, a Plymouth builder who specializes in residential construction in western Wayne County, will serve as president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan in 1991 for the third year in a row.

And if you don't think that's a tremendous tribute to his leadership, consider this: No person except Bonadeo has served more than one term as president since the BASM's founding in 1928.

"Was I surprised? Yes and no," he said. "Not only did they (directors) come to me, but I got letters from the membership. I got calls."

Bonadeo figures his performance had a lot to do with the attention.

He cited several areas — Alliance for Progress, Homearama, membership — in which the BASM has prospered during his stewardship.

The Alliance for Progress, an education forum, was established last year to promote sensible growth generally and to deal with traffic problems specifically.

The alliance consists of people directly and tangentially connected with the industry — builders, developers, Realtors, bankers, truckers, retailers.

"If we can just get people thinking, talking and doing, we can make life comfortable," said Irvin H. Yackness, vice president and general counsel for the BASM. "You don't need government mandates."

Bonadeo is a bit more outspoken about some no-growth proponents.

"They're trying to crucify developers," he said. "What they're saying is, 'I've got mine, the hell with the next guy.' What we want is sensible development."

That can best be determined by government officials and builders working together, Bonadeo said.

PROPOSALS BANNING construction 50 feet from wetlands as opposed to 25 feet and duplication of necessary approvals from state and local agencies were cited as unreasonable by Bonadeo.

"What it's doing to the cost of housing is horrible," Bonadeo said of the entire approval process. "We used to develop a piece of land in four or five months. Today, it's 20 to 24 months. During that time you're paying paying taxes and interest on the land."

Homearamas — annual exhibitions of idea homes by builders — continued to grow and attract huge crowds during the past couple of years. "These give our industry a real shot in the arm," Bonadeo said.

Homearamas this year are slated for Novi, where builders will be challenged to construct houses to sell for less than $200,000, and Clarkston.

There's a good chance that a Homearama will be scheduled within the Detroit city limits soon, Bonadeo said.

"We're working with the mayor of Detroit. We have met with him and his people on three occasions. It's possible we'll work something out in late '91 or early '92. I'm very optmistic," Bonadeo said

In return for a good deal on land, builders probably will have to build to sell for less than $100,000, Bonadeo said. That price would fetch 1,200 square feet, three bedrooms and 1½ baths.

Detroit may be the new frontier for builders starting out in the business today, Bonadeo said. But they're going to be cautious given the school and crime problems in the city.

"I think the city is a sleeping giant," Bonadeo said. "If we got industry really going like housing in Detroit, it would help employ many young men."

A CORE of well-paid people still in Detroit, many public employees, are potential buyers, he said.

The BASM membership rolls have increased from 1,100 to 1,800 since he took over as president two years ago, Bonadeo said.

"Our first priority is to promote our industry," he said. "You have to go out there and talk to them about the benefits of being a member. Last year, we had over 300 meetings and seminars.

"We have to deal with local municipalities, county, state. It (membership) gives you power, clout.

"Things are slow now and probably will be until the middle of summer," Bonadeo said. He suspects that residential will recover first due to overbuilding in office and retail sectors.

There's no denying the high regard Bonadeo is held by BASM members.

"Our membership is increasing. It's the highest it's ever been," said Gerald Kosmensky, a former BASM president who nominated Bonadeo for a third term.

"He's a statesman-type person," Kosmensky said. "He's the epitome of a gentleman. It's one hell of a commitment. He's done a fine job."

Joseph Slavik, a former BASM president, has known Bonadeo for several decades.

"He's contributing so much to the industry," Slavik said. "He started out as a plumber and got to know the needs of the people for housing. He's been a hard, hard worker."

Bonadeo on building & development

Leaders of professional organizations are expected to be articulate.

James S. Bonadeo, starting an unprecedented third consecutive term as president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, fits the mold.

He generally paints a pretty clear picture with his words.

- On some anti-growth adversaries: "They're trying to crucify developers. What they're saying is, 'I've got mine, the hell with the next guy.' What we want is sensible development."
- On development in Detroit: "I think the city is a sleeping giant. If we get industry really going like housing in Detroit, it would help employ many young men."
- On BASM membership: "Our first priority is to promote our industry. Last year, we had over 300 meetings and seminars."
- On prospects for builders: "Things are slow now and probably will be until the middle of summer."

Does attorney have conflict of interest?

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

The managing agent of our association recommended our attorney and he has done generally well. Recently I found out through a third party that the attorney has actually done legal work for the management company, but that was never disclosed to us by the management company of the attorney. I see that as a conflict of interest, particularly since the attorney reviewed our management contract before we signed it. I want to fire the attorney, but I am wondering if I am overreacting.

The attorney and managing agent are both fiduciaries of the association and owe their duty strictly to the association. To the extent that the management company and the attorney have business or financial ties, or to the extent that the attorney has done legal work for the management company, that fact should be disclosed to the association by both parties so as to ensure that there is full disclosure of that relationship and that the association has no objection to it.

As a practical matter, it would appear that the attorney would have a difficult time meeting his ethical obligation to avoid even the appearance of a conflict of interest if in fact he or she is doing legal work for the management company. He or she may have well breached ethical responsibilities by not disclosing that fact to the association, particularly since you indicate that he or she was involved in reviewing the management contract for the association. I think that you should bring this matter up with the board of directors.

Can you tell me if there is anything new in the new Reconciliation Tax Act of 1990 that affects small corporations in regard to facilitating access to public accommodations by disabled persons?

The act creates a new tax credit for 50 percent of the costs incurred in excess of $250 per year to facilitate access to public accommodations by disabled persons. The credit applies to expenditures incurred by eligible small businesses after the date of enactment and is limited to $5,000 per year.

HOROSCOPE

January 6 through January 12 By C.C. Clark

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Look closely at priorities. Now is the time to do things you have been putting off. Put your best foot forward regarding business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
It is time to break from the past. Keep an open mind about a relationship that is being sorely tried. Just stop to think about things.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Business matters should have high priority. A former mentor offers you much needed advice. Listen and make use of this valuable information.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
This is the week for you to outshine all others in your business environment. Your week will be highlighted by much deserved recognition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Romance is highlighted. Problems at work tire you, but somehow in the commute home your energy will soar and you will feel refreshed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
If you feel like singing in the rain, do it. Don't take life so seriously; enjoy the simple things around you. Your lucky number is 4.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Trying to make a loved one jealous will only backfire on you. Instead, openly discuss what is troubling you about your relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Hearth and home keep you busy. A relative could cause problems in an already sagging relationship. Take charge of the situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you happen to find some free time, use it to relax and reminisce. An older family member will appreciate a short visit. Organize priorities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Put a hold on accepting new obligations; you're needed most at home. A change at work is imminent. Don't settle for less than you think you deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
If you haven't been invited to a party, plan one of your own. This is a great time to build useful business contacts for future reference.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Restrictions placed on you recently will lessen in severity. Try to understand the rules and avoid these hassles in the future.

STAR NOTES

Clare Wren's character enlivens 'Young Riders'

By Candace Havens

Everywhere you look these days, the western genre is in full swing. ABC's popular series The Young Riders is one example.

The show centers around a group of young men who deliver mail along a rugged 2,000-mile route as Pony Express riders in the 1860s.

This season a new house mother for The Young Riders was introduced, Rachel Dunn (Clare Wren). "My character is a wiley woman," commented Wren in a recent interview. "They brought her (Rachel) in, I think, because they are starting to develop the sexuality of all the characters on the show. She is not just a mother to the guys. She's close enough in age that she is sort of a contemporary. There is this wonderful tension, yet she is very maternal," the actress said.

"The role is a lot more fun because nothing is wrong for the character. She has been through so much. She can go in any direction and she will be OK."

Born in New Orleans, Wren grew up in Texarkana, Ark. She attended a performing arts high school in Boston, where she first became interested in acting.

After graduating from Southern Methodist University's Professional Acting Program in Dallas, she moved to L.A. and did guest stints on several television programs. She has also done films, including Steel and Lace, due out in January; Season of Fear; No Man's Land and Extremities.

TIME OUT

ABC dives into swimming coverage

By Steve Paschal

ABC goes to the Land Down Under this week for coverage of the World Swimming and Diving Championships.

Gary Bender, John Naber and Donna de Varona will be in Perth, Australia, providing extensive coverage of the 10-day event that draws the top amateur athletes from around the globe. ABC will air three segments beginning with preliminary competition Sunday, Jan. 6, then returning Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 12 and 13, with same-day finals coverage.

Bender will serve as anchor, while de Varona and Naber provide color commentary. Bender joined ABC in 1987 as a play-by-play announcer on ABC's Monday Night Football after 13 years with CBS Sports.

The other members of the sportscasting team bring experience into the booth unsurpassed in television sports. Naber won four gold medals at the 1976 Olympic Games and set world records in both the 100- and 200-meter backstroke. He was also a member of the world-record setting 4x200-meter freestyle relay and the 4x100-meter medley relay teams.

De Varona, a two-time Olympic gold medalist, is perhaps the most widely recognized swimmer in the United States. From swimming analyst to commentator in several areas, she is also an author, lecturer, political activist, volunteer and adult athlete.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

I dedicate this column to Judy Kral, a Plymouth resident, who has been our Administrative Assistant for the Southwestern Oakland Cable Commission for the past seven and one half years. Judy has just retired from her position but her contributions will remain as we continue to promote and develop new strategies to attract a greater television audience. We have always brainstormed because we have always appreciated each others ideas. The simplest idea can lead to another helpful idea. Over the years Judy would always surprise me as I conducted my administrative business, with new ways for us to reach more people. She would use her natural creative talents to come up with ideas and she would also develop a plan of action. She even began editing our SWOCC newsletter. Any one of our staff could be seen walking through our halls asking for variations on specific ideas.

When one does produce a television show it is easy to get caught up in the production itself. Please take note to have someone other than yourself plan to prepare the publicity. If you must, do it yourself, take the time to map out a plan of action. Here are several considerations:

• Determine who your target audience is. It may be as large as the metropolitan area or as specific as your neighborhood association, a classroom of children or a specific age or interest area.

• Next find out if this target group already has access to some existing publicity tools... for example a church bulletin, an organizations newsletter, flyers from school to parents, another television show or a radio program.

• Appeal to your Community Television Organization for a grant to cover design and printing costs. Also consider asking an organization with similar objectives to donate to your non-profit volunteer project.

• Write our a Press Release. Keep it simple and interesting. Just the facts man! Let the writers fill in the more detailed information. Send the press release to the periodicals and tabloids covering the target audience area.

• Prepare a thank you flyer for your crew, guests and studio audience as well as passers by. Keep it simple, with a eye catching picture that will tell the title of your show, guests and topic, CHANNEL, DAY AND TIME!!!

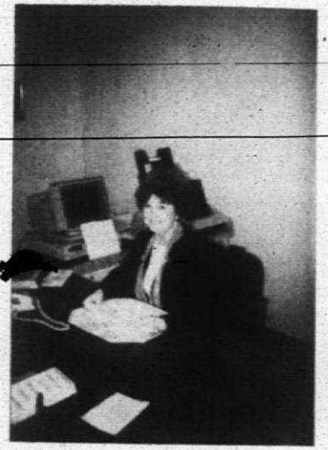
• If you have an ongoing series your Community Access Center may be interested in consolidating several series and sending out a Direct Mailer. We have found that this form of advertisement is very effective.

• Take advantage of all the wonderful video footage which you have just shot. Listen to your audio track as well and create a 30 second promo for your show. This can be scheduled in between other shows. Use your audio track for a radio promo.

• David Zmich of Omnicom says that 'when the truck rolls... or the cameras are set up they get tons of calls'. "When is the show going to be aired" they ask. Producers should wear your shows personalized T-shirts and have those flyers ready.

Remember, how exciting it is to recognize someone you know while watching tv. Don't discount this... You and your guests are exciting, especially to those who know you.

• Prepare an even shorter announcement to go on the alpha numeric channels of the Cable lineup. Alert the intended audience. People do read these!!! Omnicom has such announcements on Channel 15 when there is not video programming scheduled. MetroVision has its Community Bulletin board on Channel 3.



Judy Kral

Most importantly is the time element. Be serious about your show before anything goes out and follow through on this personal commitment. The press does not take lightly to missed deadlines nor to inaccurate information. The Cable Companies' Community Access Staff provides the weekly schedule to the Newspapers and TV Guide at least two weeks in advance. Frankly this time schedule helps one to be more organized and adds incentive to follow through beyond the 'shoot in the studio.'

Therefore, we all thank a person like Judy Kral who took her responsibilities so seriously. She also added a creative dimension which enhanced everyone's effectiveness and success. Look around you and share your ideas in television, and watch your audience grow!

'Dark Shadows' returns to TV as miniseries, series

Jean Simmons plays Collins matriarch

By Mary Ann Townsend

Producer Dan Curtis recreates and updates his eerie tale of the Collins clan that ran on daytime television for five years when "Dark Shadows" airs as a four-hour miniseries Sunday and Monday, Jan. 13 and 14, then later as a series, on NBC.

Ben Cross portrays venerable vampire Barnabas Collins, and Jean Simmons plays Elizabeth Collins Stoddard, the matriarch of Collinwood, an isolated New England manor house. The series chronicles the mysterious events that begin in Collinsport, Maine, following the arrival of long-lost relative Barnabas and Governess Victoria Winters, played by Joanna Going ("Another World").

Oscar-nominated British actress Simmons has been a fan of the show since it aired on daytime TV in the '60s.

"My children and I would watch it daily, I mean before homework, with, which I gather doesn't always happen in a series all the time," Simmons said. "And the kids in it are just terrific, very professional, and fun to be with."

And what does Simmons think of the actor who play Barnabas?

"Ben Cross is to die over. Do you remember him im 'Chariots of Fire'? Oh, a wonderful actor and very funny — a great sense of humor."

Although some of the storylines may sound funny on paper, with vampires and werewolves gallavanting about, the updated version of the show has the same serious, Gothic tone as the original.

Part I catches first-time viewers up with the basic plot: Barnabas Collins is released from the family crypt and becomes reacquainted with his modern-day relatives.

In Part II on Monday, he has agreed to try out an anti-vampire serum because he has fallen in love with distant relative Victoria Winters. However, he is constantly fighting his lust for blood.

As for the outcome of the four-hour miniseries? Tune in Friday, Jan. 18, when the tales of Barnabas Collins continue in a weekly series.

before anything. They'd come home from school, we'd all sit down and watch 'Dark Shadows.' We were great fans, great fans. And I thought this would be fun to do. Mind you I've always wanted to play a kind of madame vampire of a whore house. This may be the closest I can come to it."

That coming from a reserved actress who received her first Oscar nomination for her portrayal of Ophelia opposite Sir Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet."

The actress said the opportunities for the show are limitless, and one thing she looks forward to is the possibility of exploring different time periods.

"Maybe (in) a couple of segments they could fang me up or something. I don't know. They're trying to look forward because there's so many directions they could go with all the characters in the show," she said.

An added bonus, she said, is working with a cast of talented performers. In addition to Cross and Going, "Dark Shadows" also stars Roy Thinnes and Barbara Steele.

"The producer got a bunch of actors together and it was just great, all professionals and fun to be

BITS AND PIECES

Will Smith, Carol Burnett have something in common

NBC has extended full-season pick-up orders for two new comedy series, Fresh Prince of Bel Air, the highest-rated new situation comedy series of the season and the No. 1 show among teens, and Carol & Company, a show that has continued to win its time period against regularly scheduled programming.

Barbara DeAngelis, a new half-hour daytime talk series hosted by the counseling therapist, author and TV and radio personality, will premiere on Monday, Jan. 14, on CBS.

Bart is the world's largest living movie star. Thirteen years old and weighing 1,500 pounds, he's worth more than most humans. His movie, The Bear, earned over $200 million.

Wendy Kilbourne (Midnight Caller) and actor James Read recently announced the birth of their son, Jackson Tavish Read, born Nov. 21 at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles.

David Hartman is planning a TV talk-show comeback. The show, to be called Realities With David Hartman, will be syndicated and is scheduled to begin airing next September. Hartman reportedly will be paid a minimum of $1.25 million a year.

Will Smith

Showtime and Atlantis Films Ltd. have started production on a new anthology series, Kurt Vonnegut's Monkey House, in Vancouver, B.C. The series, slated to premiere in early 1991, features three programs inspired by the short stories of author Kurt Vonnegut Jr., who will also serve as host.

ITC is pulling the plug on the syndicated Tic Tac Dough game show. Its final telecast will be March 8. This is the second game show to be killed off this season. The Quiz Kids Challenge was cancelled recently.

Bob Costas (pictured) welcomes Peter Marshall to Later With Bob Costas, Thursday on NBC.

Night Court star Marsha Warfield also hosts The Marsha Warfield Show, weekdays on NBC.

Rue McClanahan continues her role as one of the Golden Girls, Saturdays on NBC.

SOAP TALK

Anthony Geary to return to 'General Hospital'

By Candace Havens

One of daytime drama's most popular characters is returning to General Hospital. Anthony Geary, the Emmy Award-winning actor who made daytime history as part of the Luke and Laura team, is returning to the show.

Gloria Monty, who has just returned to the program as executive producer, said, "Tony and I have remained friends since we first worked together. I am delighted he is rejoining the show. However, he will not return in the character of Luke Spencer; that would be going back to the past, while I am definitely interested in General Hospital's moving forward. By mid-February, I will have a number of Valentine's week surprises in store for our viewers."

GH was the No. 1 serial in daytime when Monty introduced two new characters Luke (Geary) and Laura (Genie Francis). The romance between these two young lovers captivated the nation.

Newsweek magazine even devoted a 1981 cover to GH, calling it "TV's hottest show." The show has since fallen in the ratings, and once again ABC is hoping Monty can pull it out of the doldrums.

Geary has been busy since leaving the show, having guest-starred on several popular series and television movies. He also worked quite a bit in the theater.

Dear Candace: I would like to let you and Days of Our Lives know that I hope Patsy Pease comes back to the show. If they don't watch out, only Dr. and Alice Horton will be left!

I think the show needs to finish some of the loose ends and have some happy times for awhile. I hope Patch comes back also. —A reader in Statton, Neb.

Dear Reader: By now you know your wish for Pease to return has come true. I agree with you about asking the writers to give the characters some good times.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

LET'S TALK

Dirk Benedict discovered acting on a college buddy's dare

By Polly Vonetes

Q: What can you tell me about an actor named Dirk Benedict? How old is he? I am a real big fan. Please answer, don't let me down! —Jo Burkhart, Marble Falls, Texas

A: Dirk Benedict was born in White Sulphur Springs, Mont., on March 1, 1944. There was nothing in his hometown to turn a young man's fancy toward Hollywood or Broadway. Instead, his time was filled with hunting, fishing, skiing and high school athletics. He discovered acting when, on a dare from a fellow Whitman College freshman, he tried out for the lead in the school's production of Show Boat. After graduating with a liberal arts degree, he enrolled at the John Fernald Academy of Dramatic Arts in Rochester, Mich., for a two-year training program. He later moved to New York where he appeared in several plays on Broadway and with a touring company. His first movie was Georgia, Georgia, filmed in Sweden. He starred in SSSSSSS and in W with Twiggy. He made his television debut as a guest lead on Hawaii Five-O. Benedict was quickly acknowledged by the television industry as one of its most promising newcomers. His television series include Battlestar Galactica, Chopper One and The A-Team. He makes his home in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles. A licensed pilot, he spends his leisure time flying.

Q: How do you find out about how to join a fan club? The one I'm interested in is Larry Hagman's of Dallas. —Ginger Jeusen, Miltonvale, Kan.

A: You can learn all about the various fan clubs by writing to: National Association of Fan Clubs, 2730 Baltimore Ave., Pueblo, CO 81003. The association has more than 1,500 listings of your favorite stars.

Q: I have tried everywhere to locate some information on an actor named Anthony Denison who starred as Ray Luca on Crime Story. I would like to know how old he is, what state he lives in, and what other acting jobs (movies) I could see him in. Also, what has happened to him since Crime Story? Please print this. I have tried on my own — libraries, video stores, etc. —John Scheets, Salem, Ohio

A: Anthony Denison was born in the Bronx, N.Y., Sept. 20, 1953. He is a college graduate, having supported himself through college by running his own construction company. Upon graduation, he set out to define his role in life. He worked as a chauffeur, theater manager, newspaper editor and promoter of chess and backgammon tournaments. He became involved in performing with the Community Experimental Repertory Theatre, a professional touring company in New York State, while selling life insurance for a living. After 10 years of working regional theaters and daytime television, his rise to stardom happened almost overnight. Forty-eight hours after his first audition, he was on a flight bound for L.A. and his role in Crime Story. His TV credits include featured roles in the daytime dramas The Edge of Night, One Life to Live, Ryan's Hope and As the World Turns. He continues appearing in live theater and made-for-television movies. His new dramatic series, Under Cover, will be previewed this Monday on ABC. The series will premiere on Saturday, Jan. 12. He and his wife, actress Jennifer Evans, make their home in New York City.

Q: Where can I obtain a listing of all the movies in which Ronald Reagan has appeared? —Mary Zahn, Shawano, Wis.

A: Reagan's film credits list 53 movies. There are too many for me to list for you. I suggest you look in your local library for The Film Encyclopedia by Ephraim Katz; it will give you all the information you seek.

FAMILY FAIRE

High school boys confront problems

By Anne Wheeler

Two teenage boys face very different dramas in afternoon specials presented on CBS and ABC this week.

On Tuesday, Jan. 8, Christopher Rydell stars as a handsome, seemingly perfect valedictorian who is tormented after he and two friends leave the scene of a hit-and-run accident. His father complicates matters when he encourages the boys to remain mum about the incident. In the CBS Schoolbreak Special, "Lies of the Heart," the young man's guilt increases when he becomes involved with the daughter of the hit-and-run victim.

Charles Frank (All My Children, The Right Stuff) stars as the teen's misguided father. Brooke Theiss (Just the Ten of Us), Tricia O'Neil and Jennifer Gatti also star.

Then on Thursday, Jan. 10, the ABC Afterschool Special depicts a family coping with mental illness. Wil Wheaton stars in "My Dad Can't Be Crazy ... (Can He?)" as a high school sophomore who fears his father's increasingly bizarre behavior is a sign of serious mental illness.

Don Murray plays the boy's father, whose erratic behavior has cost him many jobs and forced the family to move from city to city.
