McDonald's takes money and runs

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Maybe McDonald's restaurants are so plentiful now that the burger company can make more money by accepting payoffs NOT to build stores.

Last week Canton's board of trustees accepted a settlement whereby township property owners and the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority will pay McDonald's $400,000 in exchange for the company's agreement to forget about building a fast-food joint on Ford Road just east of I-275.

Canton taxpayers will pick up $50,000 of that with the MMRMA's insurance pool coughing up the rest. In addition, the township spent more than $94,000 on behalf of Canton property owners to defend against the two McDonald's law suits.

The tale began five years ago this month when McDonald's applied to build its third restaurant in Canton. The board of trustees denied McDonald's request for a special land use permit and site plan approval the following August.

McDonald's filed suit two weeks later, asking the court to require Canton Township's approval.

After the state court of appeals denied McDonald's request, the company submitted a second application for special land use and site plan approval in December 1987.

The planning commission recommended denial of McDonald's new request in August 1988. The board of trustees tabled action on the planning commission recommendation pending a review of McDonald's traffic studies.

The board then referred the matter back to the planning commission in December 1989.

In the following month, January 1990, the board changed Canton's zoning ordinance. Among the changes was one that affected the lot owned by McDonald's to the effect that any fast-food joint built there had to be attached to a "larger commercial structure," a township press release says.

The idea was to prevent the I-275 interchange area at Ford Road from getting cluttered with a bunch of small businesses.

Then the board denied McDonald's second site plan approval request in March 1990. McDonald's filed suit again, this time asking for money in addition to compliance with its request.

The township and McDonald's were set to go to court again this August when the settlement was reached.

"There was a great sense of relief on my part," said Supervisor Tom Yack. "(It's a) bittersweet end to a long struggle. I'm sure McDonald's has the same sense of relief.

"You can officially throw the McDonald's files away. I think they take up two whole file drawers in various departments."

Hoben to stay at post

John Hoben will be superintendent of the Plymouth-Canton schools for two more years. He received an A- on his latest evaluation.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Superintendent John Hoben received a contract extension through June 30, 1994 and a favorable evaluation from the Plymouth-Canton school board last week.

The action came on Tuesday, the day after voters rejected a 1.5-mill property tax increase 5,360-3,331.

Hoben was rated on a one-five scale in 15 categories. His average score was 4.48.

Five represents outstanding; four, satisfactory; three, average; two, needs improvement; and one, unsatisfactory.

"The highest ratings Hoben received were in the areas of financial responsibility and legislation," said Trustee Carl Battishill, who chaired the evaluation committee.

"The board has repeatedly commended him in those areas and his ratings have been consistently very high. One area of concern is student performance." Hoben received a 3.9 rating, just below satisfactory, in student performance.

Concerns include the MEAP test scores, testing programs and recommendations for improvement, board members said.

While it's recognized that the state standardized MEAP test is being revamped, "we also understand students' needs for improvement and it's an area we'd like to see emphasized in the upcoming year," said Battishill.

Board rating

Ratings in specific areas were as follows:

- 4.5 in board-superintendent relations. "Dr. Hoben has done an excellent job of communicating issues and maintaining positive relations. He interacts with the board in an open and thorough manner. The board looks for more analysis and direct assessment of issues, not just information from the superintendent," trustees said.

Prehistoric pair promote reading

Rex and Rita Saurus are back.

For the second consecutive year, the literate prehistoric pair are back to challenge children in grades one through eight in the summer Family Reading Challenge.

Sponsored by the Borders Book Shops in Birmingham and Novi, the competition challenges children to hone their reading skills and, at the same time, qualify for a prize drawing on Sept. 2.

To qualify, the children must read at least three books and three newspaper articles between June 15 and Aug. 28 and then discuss them with their parent or guardian.

All children who complete the project will receive a "Readers are Leaders" bumper sticker and qualify for the drawing. Those whose names are picked in the drawing will win a $50 shopping spree at the Birmingham or Novi Borders Book Shop or one of 25 $10 gift certificates.

Look for the entry forms available in this newspaper throughout the summer.

High taxes

At last week's board meeting, Supervisor Tom Yack noted that construction of a condominium in Canton Forest on Lilley Road means that administrative services director Dan Durack plans to buy a home in the area have begun. "His future condo is finally under construction," Yack said. Durack, a Dearborn resident, replied, "I don't know. I just found out how high the taxes are out here."

New toys

Canton's board of trustees approved the purchase of a brake drum/rotor lathe and an air compressor last week.

The lathe was deemed necessary because the township currently spends about $1,000 a year having brake drums and rotors ground down in town. The $6,739.10 lathe will be bought from K-Tool Corp. of Wixom. The other two bids were $6,986.98 from Wright Tool Co. of Troy and $7,248 from Allied, Inc. of Ann Arbor.

The air compressor will replace three old unreliable compressors that were recently sold. The new compressor is a Ingersoll-Rand 125 CFM diesel model costing $10,995 from Plymouth Construction Equipment Co. of Canton. The only other bid that met township specifications was $10,998 from Hull Bros. Equipment of Taylor.

We got tires

The township board of trustees approved the site plan for a Discount Tire store last week.

The 7,300-square-foot building will be built on the north side of Ford Road between Speedy and Midas on a 1.11-acre vacant lot.

New subdivision!

In the continuing saga of Sunflower Village, the township board gave final preliminary plat approval to Sunflower No. 10 last week.

This latest addition to Sunflower's Canton empire will hunker down on a 22-acre parcel of land at the southeast corner of Warren and Beck and harbor 71 houses when finished.

• 4.4 in community relations. "This area has improved greatly this year. Dr. Hoben has done a good job of getting more citizens involved in the educational process. Citizen committees have done an outstanding job. The board, however, recognizes the need to continue improvements in this vital aspect of our responsibilities."

• 4.4 in personnel affairs. "This area is much improved with the new director. Board concerns include the handling of individual incidents, transfers, and the development of a trusting relationship between personnel and staff."

• 4.7 in fiscal responsibility. "Dr. Hoben continues to demonstrate superior management in the face of a chaotic state posture and an unstable economic climate. It has been a most difficult time, and the board is very pleased with the performance of Dr. Hoben and his staff."

• 4.5 in physical facility. "Dr. Hoben has done a good job of assessing needs and prioritizing with limited financial resources."

• 4.4 in curriculum and instruction. "Board members' comments are positive, with concerns in the areas of site-based decision making, outcome-based education, staff development and excess pressure on staff."

• 3.9 in student performance. "This is the lowest rating in the superintendent's evaluation and the area of greatest concern for the board of education. It is also the lowest average evaluation score in the last two years, and the first to fall slightly below the satisfactory level."

• 4.4 in long-range and short-term planning. "Very positive comments on the quality of short-term planning in difficult economic terms. Attention is still required for the difficulties that we face in the long term."

• 4.9 in legislation. "This has consistently been one of Dr. Hoben's strongest areas and this year he receives his highest ratings for the leadership he has provided the district in the legislative arena. His efforts with the federal technology grant are particularly appreciated."

• 4.5 in leadership. "Dr. Hoben is recognized as an excellent leader and brings positive recognition to the district. Leadership in some of the instructional areas needs more attention at the building level."

• 4.6 in special education. "Special education leadership is excellent. The board has deep concerns about the withdrawal of state and federal support. The many challenges in this area will require the superintendent's best efforts."

• 4.3 in non-instructional services. "The board is very satisfied with Dr. Hoben's performance in this area. We want to be flexible, creative, innovative and 'customer driven.'"

• 4.6 in legal affairs. "The board has seen continued improvement in this area in the past two years. Dr. Hoben knows how to utilize our staff attorney and when outside counsel is required."

• 4.5 in staff relations. "This area continues to show improvement. Schools seem to be using their planning time well, and response to needs of the community and staff needs to continue. With the pressures of next year, it is essential that a maximum effort be made to generate continued improvement in staff relations."

• 4.6 in goals and objectives. "The board is very satisfied with Dr. Hoben's performance in meeting goals and objectives. He has involved the staff and continues to encourage a change toward a more participative system. Organiztion and execution are impressive. Working toward specific goals has helped to focus attention on those concerns, and while there is much progress still to be made, the board is satisfied that the process is moving forward."

Graham questions

Trustee Barbara Graham, who also served on the evaluation committee, abstained from the 6-0 vote on Hoben's contract extension.

She asked fellow board members whether it wasn't time to form a committee to launch the process of replacing the superintendent, who is 68.

"At the point where Mike Hoben makes that decision formally, he will let us know one by one and we will then start that process," said board president Dave Artley.

"Dr. Hoben is an outstanding administrator, but I do believe the process should begin," said Graham. "I would rather leave the contract open and renew it on a yearly basis as it becomes necessary," she added.

Trustee Les Walker said "as we move into the start of the year, I would anticipate we would move forward in a positive manner (with the formation of a superintendent committee)."

"The board needs to talk about the process sometime after (newly elected trustee) Mr. Farrow takes his seat on the board," said Trustee Roland Thomas.

"It doesn't mean we start the search tomorrow, but it would be appropriate to start the process."

Domino's exec writes book

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

■ 'The Domino Effect' lays out the concepts by which Vicek has motivated employees by setting objectives and recognizing employees' desire to improve.

Domino's Pizza vice president Don Vlcek of Plymouth Township has written a book, and it could soon go into a second printing.

Vlcek's "The Domino Effect," released in January, has already sold 10,000 copies.

"It wasn't my idea. Tom Monaghan encouraged us executives to speak to the community and share things with them," said Vlcek.

Vlcek is president of Domino's Pizza Distribution Corp. Under his tenure, the subsidiary's annual revenue has grown from $5 million to more than $600 million.

"The Domino Effect" lays out the concepts by which Vlcek has motivated employees by setting objectives and recognizing employees' desire to improve.

He said the subject matter for the book grew out of speaking engagments at the University of Michigan, Eastern Michigan University and Harvard University.

"When I spoke to colleges, I told them here's what I didn't learn and here's what I wish I would have," Vlcek said.

"I knew of a lot of assorted programs that worked, I actually did have a way I went about things." On speaking before a Harvard crowd, Vlcek said, "That was scary, for me to speak to people who graduated from there. I just gave them my normal speech, and I got 45 business cards from people to send stuff. My vice president said you should write a book."

The book is co-authored with Jeffrey P. Davidson. It was started last July.

"I went in my house in Plymouth, I drank about six or eight beers and talked into a dictating machine and I had a 350 page book," Vlcek said.

"It's supposed to be a how-to book," he said, adding he reworked the first 100 pages in the fall. The American Library Association has selected "The Domino Effect" as the best business book of the year.

"I think we're very close to going into the second printing," Vlcek said, adding the book has sparked more speaking engagments for this summer.

Vlcek, an avid outdoorsman, is also active in Ducks Unlimited. A member of their executive committee, he recently set a record for securing donations for Ducks Unlimited's Life Sponsor group, as he found 49 people to contribute $10,000 each to support wildlife preservation projects.

While Domino's Pizza has like other corporations been affected by the recession, Vlcek said the company is taking steps to become stronger.

"Last year for the first year our company sales were just flat, down from 40 or 50 percent growth a year. It was almost like the stock crash of the '20s, it unnerved a lot of people," he said.

The company determined the slowdown "was just a sign of the times. McDonald's and a lot of other companies were going through the same thing," Vlcek said.

The company decided to offer a less expensive product for people not seeking delivery and looking for a deal. "Our focus on delivery hurt us," Vlcek said.

Also, Monaghan has decided to sell off other business interests, including the Detroit Tigers, and will make a public stock offering for some Domino's operations to lessen company debt.

Purse snatcher lucks out

■ CRIME

A 62-year-old Canton woman told police a man stole her purse in the Meijer parking lot at 1:42 a.m. Wednesday.

Having parked her car, the woman put her purse in the top tray of a shopping cart and walked toward the store entrance, the police report says.

A man walking toward her smiled, then pushed his shopping cart into hers, grabbed her purse and took off running.

The woman chased the man for a short time, but couldn't keep up.

The purse, worth $100, contained eight credit cards, $1,000 cash, a $4,000 check, driver's license, keys and a $3,000 Omega watch.

Catering wars

A 43-year-old Westland woman, who drives a vehicle for American Catering of Garden City, told Canton police her driver's side mirror was struck and broken by a flying green bottle at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday.

The woman had been driving northbound on Haggerty near the railroad tracks between VanBorn and Michigan Avenue.

She told police the green bottle was thrown by the driver of a southbound Gary's Catering van out of Wixom. The suspect's vehicle didn't stop.

The victim said she knows the suspect and can identify him.

Blazer heist

A 1992 Chevrolet Blazer worth $26,000 was reported stolen from in front of the Budgetel on Ford Road Tuesday. A VCR worth $1,000, linesman tools worth $500 and a leather jacket worth $200 were inside.

Police identify dead trucker

The state police have identified the trucker who was killed about 8 a.m. Friday, June 5, when his rig hit the median wall on I-275 and tipped over.

James Wingler, 49, of Taylor, was dead on the scene after 12 coils of steel he was hauling crashed onto the cab of his truck.

Police said the accident was likely caused by a 36-year-old Canton man driving a 1972 Camaro.

The Camaro spun in front of Wingler's truck while getting on the freeway at Ford Road. Attempting to avoid the Camaro, Wingler hit it, then lost control of his truck, police said.

At press time, police hadn't decided if the Camaro driver will be charged with a crime.

Isn't It A Shame?

You had no idea, did you, that a seemingly harmless piece of plastic could become an implement of death to an innocent sea creature? Yet it happens, unfortunately, on a grand scale.

Tons of plastic material are lost or dumped into the oceans each year, imperiling the lives of hundreds of thousands of aquatic animals.

Plastic bags, six-pack yokes, fishing nets and other materials can trap fish, mammals, turtles and birds, causing death by drowning or strangulation. Sometimes animals get sick or starve when they eat plastic that they mistake for food.

But plastics pollution is preventable.

Corner anchors Plymouth's past

Editor's Note: This story is part of a series that takes a look at the historical buildings in the Canton and Plymouth areas.

BY JAN JONES
STAFF WRITER

From hardware to antiques, with women's clothing in between, the distinctive brick building on the northwest corner of Main and Penniman has been a popular place to shop in Plymouth since 1898.

Originally a hardware store built by Michael Conner, the Renaissance Revival structure with its set of triple Renaissance windows and corner tower, replaced an earlier frame building that was moved to Adams Street.

According to the American Association of University Women, who researched the history of the building and assigned it local landmark status in May 1992, "The architecture is similar in features to the Detroit Club on Cass and Fort. The Detroit Club still has its graceful balustrade stretching the length of the building at the roof line, a feature lost from the Conner Building through remodeling or wear. Also gone are the row of shade trees that lined the street on the south side of the building and a pump for watering horses."

Focal point

Conner, an early Plymouth businessman had been village president several times prior to 1890. When he died, son William took over the business. William was also elected village president.

Conner Hardware became a focal point in the community. The AAUW reported that, "The Plymouth Brass Band would practice amidst the store's pots and pans. Local politics were discussed around its (the store's) pot-bellied stove on winter evenings and a good game of checkers could be played any time. William Conner, like his father, was an ardent Democrat so it was only natural that the store became the local headquarters of the Party."

Long time Plymouth resident, Margaret Dunning, remembers Conner Hardware well. "When you were talking Conner Hardware, you were talking quality," she said. "It was a very well-run hardware store with all the necessities that farmers and local people needed anywhere from stove pipe to dishpans and utensils. It was upstairs, downstairs, for everything — all kinds of nails, wiring. I remember that they had a ladder that ran along on wheels so you could go up and get the things that were stacked so high on the walls."

Sold stoves

Dunning also recalled that the store sold Garland stoves. "I can remember those blamed stoves up near the front of the store. They were spread all over everywhere and we couldn't get past them."

There was a stairs at the back of the store that Dunning thought too grand for a hardware store. "It was a beautiful oak stairway just like in a wealthy home. I remember that the store also had a beautiful old tin ceiling."

After Conner's Hardware went out of business, a women's apparel store, Cassady's, took over the location. Norma Cassady, who closed the store and retired in 1966 said of her days in the retail business, "I remember when they (the building's owners) asked me to rent it for my store. It was quite an experience. Cassady's had everything for women but shoes, and they were right next door. The second floor of our store went right over Fisher's shoe store. We had a big sale once a year, and there were women lined up outside waiting for the doors to open at 9 o'clock." Cassady had six women working in the store, three upstairs, and three downstairs. Cassady took buying trips to New York, Chicago, and California every year to stock her store with the latest fashions.

Women's store

When Cassady's closed, two more women's clothing stores followed in its stead. They were Harvey's and The Willow Tree.

The building is currently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith, and the corner store is leased to Mr. Martyn Hessey, proprietor of the Plymouth Antique Emporium.

According to Mrs. Smith, the original cornerstone dated 1898 and another cornerstone dated 1904 (an addition) were recently uncovered by workmen in the basement. "They (the cornerstones) were under a pile of rubble," Smith said. "We took it (the one dated 1898) up to a monument company in Northville. They cleaned and polished it and beveled the edges. It looks like its original state." The cornerstone is now installed on the Penniman side of the building. "It's at eye level," Smith explained, "due to the brick structure, we had to go so high up before we could take the bricks out."

Smith, who along with her husband owns other buildings in Plymouth, says of the old Conner structure, "Of all of our buildings uptown, that's our favorite. We like the old look and the architecture of the building."

Center piece: The Conner building on Main and Penniman still stands at one of the main intersections in Plymouth.

Landmark: The architecture is similar to the Detroit Club on Cass and Fort streets in Detroit.

Summer park activities start

Interested Plymouth Township kids aged 6-12 are urged to register now for the township's summer park program.

Chris Morrison of the supervisor's office said about 70 have already registered, adding, "We can take a maximum of 150." She can be reached at 453-3840, extension 203, for information.

The program opens June 22-26 with park orientation week. Featured will be a fire smokehouse demonstration, name games to get kids to know each other, papier mache crafts, flower planting and composting and recycling education.

June 29-July 3 is wet and wild week. Activities include water and pool games, making small boats from popsicle sticks, a science workshop, boat regatta and use of microscopes to study creek life.

July 6-10 is fitness week, with aerobics instruction, junior Olympics competition and awards, sun prints, solar energy demonstrations and a cookout.

July 13-17 is art week, with soccer lessons and games, a discussion of statues, monster showers, a scavenger hunt, and chalk the walk.

July 20-24 is gone crazy week, with crazy hats, plant reproduction experiments, plaster of Paris crafts, mismatch day and tie-dyed T-shirts.

July 27-31 is music appreciation week with a musical instruments demonstration, guest speakers, art projects, learning about insects and a talent show.

Aug. 3-7 is farewell week, with participation awards, earth science day, arts and crafts, games and sports and a going away cookout.

The program runs 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is no cost and daily attendance is not mandatory. Transportation to the park is the responsibility of parents.

Wednesdays are designated as earth science days and each program leader will plan an event, to be announced in advance.

The program is designed to entertain, educate and provide physical, mental and moral development opportunities for kids, and a break for parents.

Man told not to return to coffee shop

CRIME

A Plymouth man, 29, was told by police not to return to Dunkin' Donuts at 1042 Ann Arbor Road after he insulted a customer and punched an employee, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

Just after midinght Wednesday, the man made vulgar remarks to a female customer, and punched a wall, the report said. When an employee told him to leave, the man went behind the counter and punched the employee.

At that point, a customer tried to restrain the man to allow the employee to call police. When the man said he'd leave if let go, the customer let him go, but the man took a swing at him, the police report continued.

When a township police sergeant arrived, all three were on the floor. Police arrested the man starting the fracus for disorderly conduct.

Windows smashed

Windows were reported smashed in three separate incidents last week in Plymouth Township.

On Wednesday, the front windshield of a 1988 Chevrolet parked on Ball Near Joy was found broken, at a cost of $150 to the owner. Also Wednesday, a $500 window to a business on Keel was found broken. With no leads or suspects, police closed these cases.

On Friday at 12:30 a.m., a house owner on Brooks Lane Near Wellington heard the sound of his house front window breaking, and found an empty gin bottle used to do the damage in his living room.

Police are investigating the incident.

Volunteer school booster retires

'Much to my regret, because of my health, I'm not to be participating in any school activities.'

Ray Buckman

Ray Buckman

Ray Buckman, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' legislative liaison and the founder of the I Care Committee, told the school board last week he was resigning due to health problems.

"Much to my regret; because of my health, I'm not to be participating in any school activities," said Buckman, who is in his 80s. "All I'm asking is everyone's prayers, because I need them."

Buckman then excused himself from the board meeting, saying he had to attend another meeting.

Before he could get out the door, Trustee Roland Thomas stood up, presented Buckman with an engraved plaque and attempted to sum up Buckman's contributions to the school district.

"Ray immersed himself in the activities of the school district, despite his late wife's illness. He became deeply involved in our schools, giving of himself unselfishly. He gives of his time, talent and his treasure," said Thomas. "He cares about people, makes great pies and loves to be involved.

"He has helped many in this community, including administrators, board members and staff members. He has been a grandfather to the entire school and is the father of I Care.

"He has the respect and love of everyone he's touched. He's been a great role model for all of us. The only words that mean anything are htank you for all you've done for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools."

Thomas presented Buckman with the plaque, which reads, "The seeds you have planted today will bloom into beautiful flowers tomorrow."

An overwhelmed Buckman thanked the board and said, "Due to the financial condition of this community, I would stress to the board of education: Go back and ask for another millage, and allow enough time for the people to work on this, as we did two years ago. Let me be the forerunner of the pack, going out and ringing doorbells."

Barricaded gunman in Canton was fugitive

When Canton police helped officers from the Michigan State Police fugitive team resolve a barricaded gunman incident June 3 at Canton's De Swan Village Motor Inn, they knew only that the 34-year-old drifter was wanted on a Genesee County criminal sexual conduct charge.

Sgt. Karen Pizzala of the Flint Police Department said Marvin Joseph Juen Jr., formerly of Flint and Ypsilanti, had been on the run for two years. He was wanted in connection with the April 1990 molesting of his 11-year-old stepdaughter, Pizzala said.

Juen, who until April 1990 was employed with a cleaning service, was arrested on the charge in January 1992. He was bound over in Genesee Circuit Court for trial on a charge of first-degree criminal sexual conduct last February.

State police turned Juen over to the Genesee County Sheriffs Department after he gave himself up following the two-hour stand-off.

Juen, armed with a loaded shotgun, had threatened to shoot police at the motel at Michigan Avenue and Belleville Road. Police were tipped by an informant that Juen was living at the motel.

Juen gave himself up after speaking with members of the state police hostage negotiating team.

Rouge still among state's dirtiest sites

BY WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

Cleaning up the Rouge: Greg Hirami, Ray Gaudreau and Bill Garbutt all of Livonia struggle with a large tree branch which was resting in the river at the Nankin Mill Picnic site in Westland. The trio were among more than 2,000 who participated in the Rouge Rescue earlier this month.

Maybe someday the Rouge River will rank among Michigan's cleanest. But not today.

The Rouge, running through Wayne and Oakland counties, ranks among Michigan's most hazardous sites on a newly-released state Department of Natural Resources list. The ranking puts the Rouge alongside waste dumps, landfills and manufacturing sites in its threat with the environment.

With a pollution index score of 43, the Rouge tied for 22nd place among 3,396 Michigan sites polluted by toxic waste.

The entire river was ranked not just specific sites.

"It's all pretty polluted," DNR environmental quality analyst Seg Norgbey said.

The now-closed G and H Landfill in Shelby Township, near Rochester, tied with the Saginaw River and Saginaw Bay as Michigan's most toxic site. Each received a pollution index score of 48.

Differences in point total are "somewhat significant" Norgbey said, though they don't necessarily indicate the level of pollution at each site.

"It could be more of a threat to nearby plant life or there could be a school nearby," he said, indicating how sites were ranked.

The Rouge contains substantial traces of heavy metals, pesticides and PCBs, according to previous DNR evaluations.

Swimming is prohibited throughout the river. All but a few small stretches are also closed for boating and fishing.

The DNR list was issued almost simultaneously with the seventh annual Rouge Rescue, a volunteer effort designed to clear debris from the river.

People remain enthusiastic about restoring the Rouge, said event coordinator Carol Weihe.

"We've had some people attend all seven, while each year we pick up new people as well," she said.

Though industrial discharges were once the primary source of Rouge pollution, experts now list combined sewer overflows as the primary culprit.

Combined sewers are old, outmoded systems that dump storm water and human waste into the river during periods heavy rainfall. They are being eliminated through a $300 million multi-community sewer replacement project, expected to begin in 1997.

The DNR list shows just how poorly Michigan waterways have been treated.

Portage Creek, near Kalamazoo, Manistique River slips, in Schoolcraft County, were also included on the list.

Wayne County's highest ranked sites included the Petroleum Specialities plant, Flat Rock and Marathon Refinery Weathering Pit, Detroit.

The Rose Township Dump was the only Oakland site in the top one percent on the list.

All four sites, including the Rouge, ranked in the top one percent.

The list is drafted every November under the 1982 Environmental Response Act.

The state has budgeted $76.8 million for site cleanup this fiscal year.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Volunteers needed to assist area senior citizens

The Senior Alliance (Area Agency on Aging 1-C) is looking for people of all ages to assist seniors who have questions about Medicare and Medicaid. Volunteers in the Medicare/Medicaid Assistance Program receive free training in Medicare rules, Medicaid and supplemental insurance.

The MMAP volunteers then work at hospitals, senior centers, mall displays, and other sites, to provide help in filling out claims and to answer questions about Medicare and Medicaid. Volunteers are requested to make a commitment of at least eight hours a month for at least six months.

Training for new MMAP volunteers will take place in early August. If you're interested in getting involved, call The Senior Alliance at 722-2830.

The Senior Alliance is a nonprofit agency serving seniors in western and southern Wayne County. Its goal is to assist seniors to live with dignity, as independently as possible.

HOW LONG SHOULD YOU WAIT FOR A MEDICINE TO WORK?
Rarely in the treatment of arthritis can a drug make you feel better immediately. Medications used to stop inflammation require days to weeks to exert their affect since reaching a therapeutic blood level takes that long.
Certain medications prescribed in rheumatoid arthritis, such as gold compounds, penicillamine, or methotrexate, may require months before evaluation is appropriate. You build anti-inflammatory levels slowly because the drugs are toxic and a rapid accumulation could lead to a sudden disaster. The rule-of-thumb for physicians is: "go low, go slow." Prescribe the least amount possible and increase blood concentrations in a deliberate step by step fashion.
The result of such caution is that you may have to deal with pain and impairment while waiting.
Often aspiration of fluid accumulating in joints and injection of steroid suffices to carry you until the drug takes effect. Another strategy is to use high amounts of medications like aspirin or pain relievers (but not narcotics) and then drop back to conventional dosages if the trial medication proves successful.
The test of a drug is how well it relieves your pain and improves your mobility. If the medication does so, even if slowly, continue its use. If the drug does not, look elsewhere for help.

Expert says schools should teach for technical age

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

New York's Dr. Willard Daggett, an educational consultant for school districts throughout the United States and nations including Japan, Germany and Russia, isn't just lamenting America's decline; he's implementing solutions.

Many of them are included in recommendations recently offered to Plymouth-Canton school board by the "Vision 2010" committee.

Daggett addressed state legislators and educational leaders at the state Capitol Wednesday at the invitation of state Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, and Speaker of the House Lewis Dodak, D-Birch Run.

Daggett, who has worked as a high school and graduate school teacher, university administrator, and director of occupational education for New York state, prefaced his remarks with good news: "America's schools are doing a better job than at any time in our history.

"Michigan is one of 47 states to raise test requirements, raise graduation requirements and reduce its dropout rate during a decade when more of our children are coming to us out of poverty and broken families, and with substance abuse problems.

Improvements made

"We are making incremental improvements. The problem is the rate of change in society," he said. "The world our sons and daughters are going to live in will change four to five times faster than are schools are changing."

Daggett said he saw his father, a 1938 high school graduate, experience firsthand a problem faced every day in Michigan.

"Dad made steel clamps at a company in upstate New York," said Daggett, the father of five teenagers. "When they went to advanced zero-based automation, the company laid off more than 80 percent of its workers. Dad was employee of the year seven times, and they kept him on. But when he went back to his work station, there were no tools. Instead he found computers and a statistical numerical control system.

"They told dad, 'It will take us two to four years to retrain you, and we can't afford it.' They had to let him go. That happens in your state every day.

Outmoded education

"Dad's education was fine for 1938. It just had nothing to do with the 1980's," he said.

The problem, says Daggett, is that we don't live in grandma and grandpa's world any more, yet we're teaching the same subjects grandma and grandpa studied.

Subjects like applied physics, statistics, measurement, technical reading and repair, speaking and listening, keyboarding and data manipulation, career planning and human relations aren't emphasized in the U.S. They are in other industrialized nations, which is why wage-earning capacity and the standard of living in the U.S. are slipping, said Daggett.

Adding to the problem, he said, is the fact that fewer and fewer jobs are available for unskilled laborers. In 1950, 60 percent of jobs in the U.S. were unskilled. That number has dropped to 35 percent today, and will dip to 15 percent by 2000.

Upwards of 80 percent of fast food jobs won't exist in the near future, said Daggett. McDonalds and Burger Kings will be automated with laser high-speed cookers, the next generation of microwave ovens. Restaurant cashiers will be replaced with machines.

Daggett said he lives next door to a couple, one German and one Japanese, making nearly $30 an hour setting up such a restaurant. They were hired because the employer couldn't find American workers with the needed skills, he said.

Technical skills

Most of us can't program our VCR's, but our schools require not a day of technical reading or repair, said Daggett. "One-third of all new jobs are in the area of technical writing and repairs. There isn't an industrialized country in the world, excluding the U.S., that doesn't require four years of technical reading," said Daggett.

Our skills for entry level jobs are higher than our skills for higher education, he added.

In production and manufacturing, and at companies like General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, operations revolve around statistical numerical control instrumentation, he said. With the exception of the U.S., industrialized nations are teaching statistics, logic, applied math and science, probability and measurement systems needed today in production manufacturing.

"What are we doing? Requiring more algebra," he said.

Daggett says he's not suggesting we mimic what's being done in Japan or Germany. But, he said, education in Europe and Asia is improving because decision making begins with the question, "Where are we" and builds back. "We have institutional inertia," said Daggett. "You need to build from skills, knowledge and behavior, back, not the other way aroupd."

Teacher training

Teachers in Europe and Asia spend 20-30 days in re-training a year. In New York state where some districts are adopting Daggett's recommendations, teachers receive 10 days of re-training.

"I profess to you our preoccupation with institutional boxes is killing us," said Daggett. "That's why the schools in Europe and Asia don't look like schools of 1987. Our schools still look like my dad's class of 1938."

Legislators react to education speaker

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

State representatives James Kosteva, D-Canton; Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia; and Bill Keith, D-Garden City agree with international education consultant Willard Daggett that the U.S. is caught in an economic freefall that won't stop unless we re-define education.

New York's Daggett, speaking last week at the state Capitol, says America is in decline because our antiquated method of teaching doesn't equip students with the skills they need in today's workplace.

A video of his presentation will be available in local libraries, said Keith and Bankes.

"We can look to pockets of excellence in education in all of our areas," said Keith, introducing Daggett to educators and legislators, among them state Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills.

"Yet we are facing in this state a drop out rate of 24 percent, which is intolerable. We have a lot of our students going out into the world who don't have appreciable vocational/technical skills. And the unskilled workplace is getting smaller."

Keith, chairman of the House education committee, has introduced a bill that would establish a high-level commission of business, labor and educational leaders to re-define the purpose of education; study what occupations and job opportunities will exist, and define the proficiency and mastery levels they'll require.

"In middle school, students' skill levels and aptitudes would be identified, so that instead of pumping gas in the summer, students can work in a vet's office or a doctor's office in 'apprenticeship' programs," said Keith, a former school board member.

Bankes and Kosteva serve on the education subcommittee working on the bill.

Kosteva says Daggett's ideas have merit.

"We start with institutional boxes. We start with what we have and say, 'How can we change to a small degree,' as opposed to taking a looking further ahead and saying how do we get there?" With other legislators and at her own expense, Bankes spent 10 days last winter studying education in Germany. She's now visiting schools throughout Michigan and plans to sit in on summer school classes in Detroit.

Bankes said she's still in the information-gathering stage, but passed along some observations.

As opposed to what happens in Europe, "If you're a youngster in a middle school in the U.S., your parents are going to encourage you to go to college. But if you want to go into vocational education, it's not thought of with the same pride.

"Only 20 percent of people who start in community colleges finish, and only 40 to 50 percent in state universities finish."

Bankes said teams from Daggett's firm now are working with districts in three states. "For $50,000, a school district can hire him as a consultant, and for 18 months, a whole team of experts comes in. They don't come in like God and dictate; they set up focus groups" to identify problems and solutions, she said.

Keith is disturbed by the fact that some local superintendents say their job isn't to prepare students for the workplace.

"It's like alcoholism," said Keith, a former school board member. "First we have to recognize we have a problem. Then we have to change.

"We are going to have to adjust if we are going to compete, or resign ourselves to the fact we are not going to be a world-class nation."

Marriage license fees to fund domestic counseling programs

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Local police would be told to take domestic violence calls more seriously under a package of bills that breezed through the state House of Representatives Thursday.

Well, most breezed — 97-0 to 105-0.

One — raising the marriage license to $30 from $20 — barely floated through on a 57-48 vote because many lawmakers rebelled against a revenue increase.

"Every time the state does something, it increases fees," complained Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township. "The easiest thing in the world is to increases costs. The hardest thing is to reduce expenditures."

The $1 million or so in new revenue is supposed to pay for domestic counseling programs. County boards would allocate the money for contracted services for abused spouse shelters. Jamian and others said the goal was too vague.

Voting yes on the license increase were five of the area's women members — Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, Georgina Goss, R-Northville, and Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak — plus Richard Young, D-Dearborn Heights.

Voting no were Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, Justine Barns, D-Westland, Jamian, William Keith, D-Garden City, Gordon Sparks, R-Troy, and Wilfred Webb, D-Hazel Park.

Missing the vote were James Kosteva, D-Canton, and John Bennett, D-Redford.

All measures go to the Senate, where action is unlikely until a fall session. Lawmakers will meet June 25 to wrap up budget bills before the summer primary campaign break.

Record high yes vote — 105-0 with four absent — went to House Bill 5546 by Dobb of Union Lake. It will allow people to seek court injunctions prohibiting former spouses or live-in mates from threatening death or injury.

"There is nothing law enforcement officers can do about threats, which often precede acts of violence," said Dobb.

"Because police currently have no legal recourse to act on threats alone, many women tragically are killed by spouses or other household members who first threatened physical harm before carrying it out."

Key measure was House Bill 5551 by Tom Hickner, D-Bay City. It tells police departments to establish a "preferred or pro-arrest" policy for dealing with domestic violence calls.

The preferred policy is to make an arrest or at least to write a formal report of the incident. That bill passed 97-0.

Other bills would:

- Allow law enforcement agencies to obtain an arrest warrant in domestic violence cases on the basis of an officer's "information and belief," without the signature of the victim. Lawmakers believe many victims refuse to pursue complaints for fear of retaliation.
- Limit to one the number of times a judge may defer sentencing for an abusive spouse. Lawmakers say convicted abusers quit going to counseling or alcoholism programs with no judicial punishment. "Dogs do not get two bites in our state," Denise Alexander, Southfield lawyer who heads the state's Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board, said in committee testimony.
- Increase penalties for spouse abuse.
- Allow probate judges to order an abusive adult to vacate a child's residence rather than removing the child.

SMART merger, tax plan on hold

By Wayne Peal
Staff Writer

Can Keith Butler steer Detroit into a transportation merger with the suburban-based SMART bus service?

Long-frustrated SMART officials are guardedly optimistic about the city councilman's plan.

"We're just grateful someone has decided to take the lead and get this thing moving," SMART chairman Matt Wirgau said.

SMART officials have long been frustrated in their attempts to merge with the Detroit Department of Transportation.

There are differences between Butler's plan and that proposed by SMART officials, particularly in the apportionment of delegates to a new, regional governing board.

SMART and Detroit officials have been at odds over whether the city or suburbs should have the largest number of delegates.

Butler's plan would divide delegates 50/50, though there would be an additional board member confirmed by a board majority.

The biggest obstacle, however, could lie with other Detroit council members.

"He's going to have to get a majority before anything can happen," Wirgau said.

At present, merger talks are on hold.

Also on hold — at least for now — is SMART's plan for a regional transportation tax.

Permission would have to be granted from the state Legislature before the first-of-its-kind tax could be placed on the ballot.

But Wirgau said advance lobbying isn't occurring.

"We're not going to the Leglsature unless the plan is pretty well concrete," he said.

The tax would likely be levied in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

WHAT EVERY MAN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT IMPOTENCE.

IT'S TREATABLE.

The real tragedy of impotence is letting it go untreated even one more day. Stop denying yourself and your sexual partner an important part of your life. Impotence can be treated in almost every case.

The STAR program developed by Grace Hospital provides complete diagnosis and treatment of male impotence. This confidential program is directed first at determining the cause of the problem. Diseases such as diabetes, cancer, multiple sclerosis and problems with prostate, heart and high blood pressure are common causes. There are many others. Injuries to the spinal cord, and low hormone levels can also cause erection failure. So, too, can fatigue, alcohol, drugs, smoking, stress and depression. Medicines used to treat such things as depression, high blood pressure and ulcers can be part of the problem. Age alone is not a cause of impotence. And, yes, some impotence problems are psychologically based, even organic impotence has an important psychological component that requires identification and treatment. An accurate diagnosis is the key to effective treatment. Sometimes, only a change in medication is needed. More serious problems may require surgery. But help is available. Complete, confidential and supportive. Call today and talk to one of our professionals.

Sport of sea kayaking paddles along

BY EVERETT POTTER
SPECIAL WRITER

From the coast of Maine to the shores of British Columbia, people are discovering the joys of sea kayaking.

The sport provides fitness and adventure — with no harmful effect on the environment.

"It's popular because it's a relatively inexpensive way to get on the water," said Christopher Cunningham, editor of Sea Kayaker, a quarterly magazine.

"Like cycling it allows you to go places under your own steam."

"It's a sport anybody can do," said Lee Moyer, a co-owner of Pacific Water Sports, a kayak manufacturer in Seattle. "If white-water kayaking is like rock climbing, then sea kayaking is like backpacking."

He also conducts Bean's annual Atlantic Coast Sea Kayak Symposium, which will be in Castine, Maine, July 10 through 12. For more information call (800) 341-4341.

"There are many misconceptions about sea kayaking. In fact, the name is a bit of a misnomer. You don't have to be out in the open sea to do it.

"Sea kayaking can be 'gunkholing,' where you spend an afternoon paddling in tidal marshes and estuaries looking at blue herons."

The number of sea kayakers grows steadily each year. Tom Derrer, a spokesman for the Trade Association of Sea Kayaking (TASK), estimates there are between 200,000 and 300,000 active participants in the sport around the United States and Canada. About 50,000 new sea kayaks are sold yearly.

"The number of users is very hard to determine accurately," said Derrer, a 25-year veteran of the business and the owner of Eddyline Kayaks, a kayak manufacturer. "And the numbers don't reflect those who spend a weekend or a week sea kayaking with an outfitter somewhere."

Indeed, the growth of the sport has given rise to dozens of regional outfitters in kayaking hot spots such as Seattle, Vancouver, Alaska, the Great Lakes and Florida.

Kayaking among the 3,000 or so islands off the Maine coast became so popular that the non-profit Island Institute in Rockland, Maine, set up The Maine Island Trail Association in 1988.

The organization now has 2,600 members. A $35 yearly fee allows members access to 80 islands.

For more information contact the group at 60 Ocean Street, Rockland, Maine 04841 or call (207) 594-9209.

Those who are curious about the sport but baffled by the array of kayak models offered by manufacturers may attend one of the weekend sea-kayak symposiums, which are held throughout the United States and Canada.

L.L. Bean's symposium, now in its 11th year, is always a sellout, according to Perry.

"We allow only 400 attendees and, basically, it's like a salad bar for sea kayakers. Most of the major manufacturers come here, so our participants get to try out many models and attend workshops with world-famous kayakers.

"People don't leave here as sea kayakers, but they leave with what they need to know to become one."

Sportsmen can count on spending between $1,000 and $2,000 for a good sea kayak, Moyer said. He adds that a sea kayak is an entirely different kind of craft than a white-water kayak.

The big question novices always ask is about the infamous eskimo roll, a self-rescue maneuver to right a kayak in the event it turns over. The spin leaves the paddler hanging upside down in the water.

"You can ask 10 experts that question and get 10 different and very adamant answers," Perry said.

For more information on sea kayaking, including symposiums and outfitters, contact TASK, P.O. Box 84144, Seattle, Wash. 98124 or call (206) 621-1018.

Sea Kayaker is a good source of information and is $13 for four issues: 6327 Seaview Avenue, N.W., Seattle, Wash. 98107 or call (206) 789-9536.

Folding Kayaker is published six times yearly and is $28: P.O. Box 0754, New York, N.Y. 10024 or call (212) 724-5069.

Visitors value Vancouver's view

BY MOIRA FARROW
NEW YORK TIMES SYNDICATE

It would not be accurate to say Vancouver, British Columbia, has completely escaped the economic recession that has brought gloom to many North American cities.

But it would be fair to say this West Coast Canadian city, the province's largest, has been spared the worst of it.

Vancouver's natural beauty and mild climate continue to attract visitors and immigrants by the thousands. Last year more than 33,500 people moved to British Columbia from across Canada and 25,000 came from overseas, mostly from Hong Kong, Taiwan, Indonesia and the Philippines.

The downtown skyline is spiked by building cranes, new luxury apartment suites are selling fast and restaurants are opening weekly.

Another big part of the city's resilience comes from the increasingly active Vancouver-to-Alaska cruise business. Last year more than 400,000 passengers made the trip in 22 ships from 12 lines.

A new cruise ship terminal has sparked construction of two nearby hotels and several restaurants. As a result the port has been transformed into a lively place where it is possible to dine on smoked salmon while watching float planes land in the harbor or helicopters take off for Vancouver Island.

What to do

A colorful pageant of Chinese origin, the Canadian International Dragon Boat Festival takes place this year June 19 through 21.

The big, vividly painted canoes, propelled by paddlers, will race in False Creek, an ocean inlet nearly two miles long that juts right into the middle of the city. Organizers expect even more than the 2,000 paddlers from 11 nations who took part last year.

Single-day admission is $5 for adults; $2.50 for children. For more information call 681-4433. (The dialing code for Vancouver is 604 and all prices are given in United States dollars.)

More than 500 international musicians will liven up the city June 19 to 28 for the Du Maurier International Jazz Festival. There will be concerts at 20 sites, a street festival in Gastown and a free outdoor concert at the Plaza of Nations (the former Expo site) on the closing weekend.

Performers will include the Staple Singers, the tenor saxophonist John Griffin and the blues guitarist and singer John Hammond. Some concerts are free; the top ticket price is $23.50. For more information call 682-0706.

The Vancouver Sea Festival, July 16 to 19, has local clubs involved in events such as sailing and water-skiing displays in English Bay. There will be a "floating" parade at sea on July 18 at 10 a.m., which can best be seen from Beach Avenue.

All events will be free and salmon barbecue dinners will be sold at several sites. For more information call 684-3378.

The waterfront meadows of Jericho Beach Park will be the site of the Vancouver Folk Music Festival July 17, 18 and 19. The eclectic program will include Saffire the Uppity Blues Women, Peggy Seeger, Roots Punta Rock from Belize and the English group Barely Works.

Organizers hope to hold ticket prices at last year's rates, which ranged from $22 for one concert to $63 for a weekend pass. For more information call 879-2931.

Timely treasure: The Gastown Steam Clock at the corner of Cambie and Water streets is the only steam clock in the world.

Things to see

The city's backdrop of 4,000-foot peaks of the Coast Range, snowcapped into June or July, plus 10 sandy beaches within easy reach of downtown, mean that the spring and summer visitor is never short of activities.

Hiking, swimming, sailing, wind surfing and golfing are all within easy reach. Eighty miles north is the two-mountain ski resort of Whistler-Blackcomb, where glacier skiing continues into summer.

But if a visitor has only one day to spend in Vancouver it should be spent in Stanley Park.

This 1,000-acre peninsula close to downtown has forest, formal gardens that change every season and nature trails bordered by a 7-mile seawall walk for cyclists and pedestrians. There are also tennis courts, pitch and putt golf, restaurants and a miniature train.

Another of the city's favorite spots is Granville Island, no longer an island because it is linked by causeway to False Creek. The island has a food market, art galleries, craft shops, light industry, marinas and restaurants.

POINTS OF VIEW

Clique dashes hope for auto insurance plan

I had heard horror stories about Lansing but was skeptical until I saw it. House Speaker Lewis Dodak, D-Birch Run, single-handedly threw around more raw power than the majority of the 110 representatives, 38 senators and the governor.

Dodak's ego prevented state government from dealing with a problem that has been plaguing us for years. He was just plain unfair to his representatives. And he is costing suburban auto owners money.

Here's what happened:

Michigan's no-fault auto insurance law expired in April after a legislative deadlock. We've existed on a 1982 system of territorial rating, whereby rates charged suburban drivers are tied to Detroit, which has the highest theft and damage experience in the state. Our bills went up.

In May the Senate passed a new no-fault bill and sent it to the House, where it was doomed. House Democratic leaders offered a version that would have been doomed in the Senate and on Gov. John Engler's desk.

But June 4 the House rejected the Democratic version, 48 to 56. Abstaining — in effect voting no — were three area Democrats: James Kosteva of Canton, John Bennett of Redford and Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park.

Clearly, 10 Democrats weren't going to back Dodak and would seek a compromise with Republicans. Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch, offered the compromise version, with Kosteva as a key co-sponsor. Alley and Kosteva are neither mavericks nor lightweights in the Democratic caucus.

The House adopted the Alley version — putting it on the agenda for amendments and passage. The vote was 67-39, a clear defeat for Dodak.

Dodak's clique did some fast-gavel machinations. The official House journal said: "Rep. Gagliardi moved that consideration of the bill be postponed temporarily. The motion prevailed. . . . Rep. Gagliardi moved that the House adjourn. The motion prevailed."

A double lie. Our representatives wanted to vote but weren't allowed to. Bang! They were adjourned.

TIM RICHARD

That was a Thursday. Usually the House runs a brief Monday night session, but Dodak prohibited further action again Tuesday, June 9. Seeing no legislative action, AAA Michigan's members exercised their constitutional right and filed 600,000 initiative signatures asking that AAA's own version of a no-fault insurance law be on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Dodak's alibi: He didn't want to be blackmailed by AAA. Yet that is precisely why the state constitution provides for the initiative petition — so citizens can coerce lawmakers into acting.

So what are our choices? One is AAA's proposal. Lawmakers could pass it but won't. If they don't, it goes on the ballot.

The second choice is the current law, which shafts the suburbs.

Kosteva tells me the Legislature still could act, but he didn't convince me to bet my vacation paycheck on it.

The bills are aimed at cutting rates (maybe). The chief difference: Current law places a $5 million cap on payouts for "catastrophic claims" such as closed-head injuries. AAA's proposal drops the cap to $250,000, arguing that will cover 99 percent of claims.

The Dodak-backed plan set the cap at $3 million; the Alley-Kosteva plan at $1 million.

When the "catastrophic claims" think started, we paid $3 a year for it. Now we pay $111. Something has to give.

Dodak didn't take defeat like an adult. He kicked over the scoreboard twice, then pulled the plug on the game.

Bad enough it cost us money, but it was dirty politics.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

We've forgotten to pass on skills of our fathers

There's a picture on my desk that keeps me going. It's of my grandfather and his cousins, taken shortly after the turn of the century. They're dressed in overalls. They could be the prototype for Little Abner and the setting, Dogpatch.

Perhaps they had just finished picking a field. Tomatoes in central Arkansas, or it could have been a hog killing.

Whatever the work, they learned how to do it from their fathers or the older men in the community. Those then-young men handed down that work knowledge to their sons, one of which was my father.

Then when the time came, my father taught me those skills. We don't grow cotton in suburban Detroit, but my flower garden is useless based on that knowledge. We don't have any barns in need of repair, but those same skills work well on a house.

That knowledge came from an apprenticeship, an apprenticeship to a father. And with the passing of Father's Day 1992, it makes me lament that the tradition is dying.

There's a reason folks are on welfare and that teenagers end up flipping hamburgers or delivering pizzas. It's that they learned nothing from their fathers or the sad substitute, the schools.

The reason families stay on welfare for generations isn't just that the fathers abandon their sons and daughters, it's also because those fathers don't know how to use a screw driver, wrench or a saw.

They end up sitting in public housing projects, watching too much Oprah on TV and complaining that the government isn't keeping the place fixed up. Daytime TV makes them think they're victims of some affliction concocted by a sociologist or psychologist who is more interested in drumming up business than in helping people.

JEFF COUNTS

But back to my picture. These guys never watched Oprah. They didn't know they were victims of a vindictive government that was intent on punishing the South after the Civil War.

Jim Harrison, a Michigan novelist and screenwriter who spends much time in Arkansas, once told me that reconstruction didn't start in Arkansas until the 1930s because the Federal government thought the people were too stupid.

And because my grandfather didn't know he was a victim, he declined welfare during the Depression after losing his job on the railroad, telling relief workers offering food, "I'll grow my own."

And he did. Here's a man who never got past the sixth-grade, but was smart enough to realize that welfare is bondage to the state. Pride was certainly a factor, too. But the skill of knowing how to farm was another. It was something he had learned from his father.

The farming was sharecropping. It was another kind of bondage, but it paid the bills.

That's just my story. There are others. A local minister told me fondly how his father taught him to properly set a fence post. He said that helped him learn how to work with his hands, and that led to getting interested in ham radio. And from there it was a short jump to computers.

And it all started with a fence post.

These are things schools can't teach. That's why education is too important to turn over to professional educators. Schools give people the tools, but fathers give their sons the will to work and learn. Without that will, there's the Oprah show, welfare and bondage.

That's why on Father's Day I'll be over my devotional tin cup of Jack Daniels and saying my prayer, "I'll grow my own," to my long-dead and uneducated grandfather who had the sense to say no to dependence.

It's just too bad others didn't have a grandfather or father like that.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers and a seventh generation redneck.

Show humanity

Our society's moral priorities have changed dramatically — to our discredit — having in mind the termination of human conceptive life on demand, with the legalization of abortion — thanks to the U.S. Supreme Court.

We've become passive, cold, lacking total compassion — part of a supposed humanity — making every feeble excuse to abort precious, innocent, unborn life — though legal, but undoubtedly not righteous.

We've pleaded we're too young, too poor, not economically healthy — yet we've failed to confront a sensible resolve! As we continue to dismiss it's defenseless life as if it were a bubonic plague!

Whatever happened to mankind's intellect? Why have we lost the capacity to protect, defend, the right to life of every conceived unborn baby cherub, who looks to us at such a difficult time of it's life?

Pro-choice and others, consistently plead harassment, when asked to see the presence of an active, unborn baby in the womb of the mother, through ultra-sonography. They would rather put on their dark glasses, and pretend it doesn't exist . . . they refuse to see the "miracle of life" at it's very best. Furthermore, they've run out of excuses and finally, must decide to take personal responsibility, if they're to be a civil and moral society.

Why do "we" abandon the unborn cherub? Why do "we" insist on sentencing it to death by "personal choice?"

Julianne Pieknik, Westland

Fair to reimburse city

I am writing in reference to the article by Tim Richard, "Suburban lawmakers back regional control of water board," which appeared in the June 1, 1992, issue of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. When the new water pipeline was being installed some years ago, I was living in Detroit. At the time a number of articles and editorials appeared, as I remember, concerning past experiences of such large public projects where Detroit citizens paid the large part of the bill, and then the suburban communities passed legislation to take control of it. Perhaps my memory does not serve me right, perhaps it does.

Has your staff writer, Tim Richard, researched this? If the Detroiters did pay a larger part of this bill, I would hope that any legislation passed would include in it the reimbursement which the City of Detroit would get for the original investment which was made. If I am correct in my assumption about Detroit taking the larger burden of cost, it would only be fair to reimburse them if you plan to take the control away from them.

FAMILY READING CHALLENGE 1992

Parents: Do you wish your child would read more?

It's been proven that the child who reads during the summer months is a better reader when school begins. If you'd like your children to read more or improve their reading skills, tear this page out of your hometown newspaper. Show them Rex and Rita Saurus™ who are challenging them (along with you) to join the Family Reading Challenge 1992.

All they need to do is read at least three books and three newspaper articles between June 15 and August 28 and then discuss them with you, their parent or guardian.

There's no better place to find interesting news than in your hometown newspaper.

If they are in grades one through eight and successfully complete the Family Reading Challenge, they'll receive a "Readers Are Leaders" bumper sticker and qualify for a drawing on September 2, 1992 for either a $50 shopping spree in the Birmingham or Novi Borders Book Shop or one of twenty-five $10 gift certificates.

After their reading assignments are completed, fill in the entry blank below and send it, along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to:

READING CHALLENGE
OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC NEWSPAPERS
36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150

Enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. Your child will receive a bumper sticker right away.

Of course, Rex and Rita Saurus™, the world's leading reading dinosaurs, hope all of the Reading Challenge contestants will get so excited about reading they'll read more than three books and three newspaper articles this summer.

Rex and Rita know that Readers Are Leaders.

FAMILY READING CHALLENGE 1992 ENTRY FORM

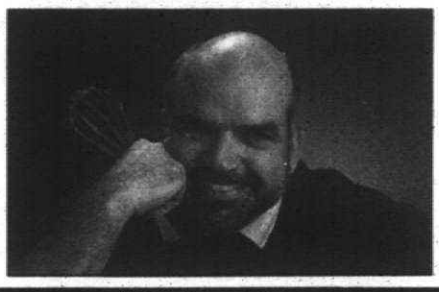
TASTE BUDS



CHEF LARRY JANES

Roll out the dough to make pocket bread

When it comes to creating food from the Middle East, my palate quickly gyrates to unique flavors and tastes of tabbouli, falafel and lamb.

Long a staple in the Janes Gang kitchen, Middle East flatbreads have played an extensive role (excuse the pun) as tasty envelopes for the above mentioned foods.

Easy to prepare and even easier to stuff, these breads can turn a cooling, crunchy tabbouli salad into a meal with minimal fuss.

Depending on what region your taste succumbs, pocket bread can be called Armenian, Peda, Greek, Arab, Syrian or Euphrates bread.

Widely used

Widely used as pocket bread, the dough can also be made into hard rolls or long thin loaves. They can be brushed with butter and sprinkled with sesame seeds or even deep fried into a quasi-Mexican version of sopaipillas.

Needless to say, a recipe for this type of bread is multi-national and can be used in many different ways.

Baking secrets

The secret for making true Middle Eastern flat bread lies in the final baking process. The recipe is vaguely similar to a basic white bread and when experimented with in the kitchen also can be rolled into pretzels.

The kneading and the rising processes are the same as is the addition of some salt and a dash of sugar to bring out the richness.

As a matter of fact, about the only thing you can do wrong with this recipe is to use a non-active yeast. To make sure that doesn't happen, check the expiration dates on the packet and make sure to proof it in some very warm tap water before adding.

If you haven't invested in an instant read thermometer before now, making sure the water is between 105 and 115 degrees virtually assures a tasty finished product.

These instant read thermometers, by the way, are also infallable for grilling steaks and cooking meat in the kitchen and can be bought from any reputable gourmet or gadget shop for around $15.

Middle Eastern flat bread can also take on different shapes and textures. A recipe for Khubz Rkak (thin bread) calls for taking a basic recipe for pocket bread and rolling it out to tissue thickness before baking.

After preheating the oven to 400 degrees, a non-stick cookie sheet is then placed on the hot coils. The thin bread is then rolled around a ½ inch stick and unrolled onto the hot cookie sheet, baking only for 2-3 minutes or until golden brown.

The hot bread is then folded into fourths, sprinkled lightly with water and then covered with dry cheesecloth until ready to serve. Usually served with soup or kebabs, this bread literally melts in your mouth, and since it was rolled so thin, has a unique texture.

Be creative

If you think you can only make bread with a basic Middle Eastern flat bread recipe, think again. The dough, when rolled as flat as pastry, can also be used in a dish called Akras Al-Laham, also known as meat pies.

The dough can be rolled and studded with black caraway seeds if desired for additional flavor, but upon sampling, yours truly thought the caraway seemed to overpower the meat pie itself.

The basic recipe can also be fortified with a biscuit baking mix, eggs and butter for a heavy market-type bread that is exceptional when mixed with caraway and sesame seeds.

And, if that's not enough, some milk and eggs in addition to th basic recipe, coupled with a sweet mixture of sugar, cinnamon, and chopped walnuts can produce a product called Mutabakaya (sweet bread). When made into a rolled loaf, this bread can double as an exceptional coffee-type bread that is delectable when slathered with a little butter or margarine.

So if your cooking talents find you venturing into the kitchen to make a basic Middle Eastern flat bread, use your imagination and experiment with some additional flavors — you won't be disappointed.

ART EMANUELE

Middle East cuisine: Brothers Ziko and Casper Sobh offer a wide variety of Middle Eastern dishes including Hummous, Baba Ghanouge, Tabbouli, raw kibbee and Lebanese salad at Pine Land Restaurant in Westland.

■ Refreshing, light and nutritious, Middle Eastern cuisine tastes good in the summer. Now is a good time to try it.

A taste of THE MIDDLE EAST

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Middle Eastern food does your body good, it's hearty fresh food, it has a special flavor, when you eat this food you enjoy it," said Casper Sobh, owner of Pine Land Restaurant on Middlebelt in Westland.

If you've never tried Middle Eastern food, now is a good time. "Our food is healthy," said Sameer Eid, owner of the Phoenicia Restaurant on Woodward in Birmingham. "It was healthy out of necessity. People created wonderful dishes out of the food that was available, lamb, grains and vegetables. It's so light and refreshing in the summer."

Middle Eastern food was uncommon in this area 20 years ago when Eid opened his restaurant in Highland Park. Besides Phoenicia, there was the Sheik in Detroit, and Uncle Sam's in Dearborn.

Now Middle Eastern restaurants are popping up everywhere. Two area newcomers are Pine Land which opened a year ago, and La Cedar's in the food court of Wonderland Mall, Livonia, which opened May 5.

Sobh, grew up in Lebanon and studied cooking at the University of Beruit, he also studied cooking in Italy and France. "I always liked to cook," he said. His brother, Ziko works beside him in the restaurant.

A Middle Eastern meal often begins with hommous, a dip made from pureed chick peas mixed with tahini (seasame seed paste), or Baba Ghanouge, baked or char-grilled eggplant, peeled, mashed and blended with tahini.

Lemon, garlic, olive oil and mint give Middle Eastern salads a zesty flavor. Many people are familiar with tabbouli, a mixture of parsley, mint, cracked wheat and tomatoes. Other popular salads are Fattoush, a mixture of salad greens, cucumbers, radishes, mixed with toasted and cracked pita bread, and Greek salad made with salad greens, green peppers, cucumbers, black olives and feta cheese

"These salads are especially delicious in the summer because of the availability of and freshness of Michigan produce," said Eid.

For a main course, try some of the grilled dishes like shish kabob, Shish Tawook, (chicken kabobs) or Shish Kafta, (ground lamb or beef with parsley, onions, and spices).

"Marinading tenderizes the meat and adds flavor," said Casper Sobh. Eid recommends a marinade of olive oil, lemon juice and garlic.

Grains are also a very important part of Middle Eastern cuisine. "We use a lot of rice and vegetables," said Lillian Shallal of West Bloomfield who is Chaldean. "You can serve a very nutritious meal, and not have a lot of fat. If you're trying to cut back on cholesterol, it's very good food."

Some popular vegetarian entrees are stuffed cabbage and grape leaves made with a mixture of rice, parsley, chick peas and pine nuts, Mdardara, (lentils and rice topped with onions and spices), and falafel, ground chick peas, fava beans, parsley and onions that is deep fried.

Lebanese winemaker survives war

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Chateau Musar wines are available from the following vintages:
- 1981 ($19-$20)
- 1982 ($15-$17)
- 1983 ($15-$19)

All three wines demonstrate the ageability of these outstanding Lebanese wines.

Serge Hochar, owner of Chateau Musar in Lebanon, explains the dedication necessary to produce wines in his war-ravaged Middle East homeland.

"I have been producing wines in Lebananon since 1958, when I took over for my father. For years, 90 percent of my wine was sold and consumed in Lebanon, but because of the war, I now export 90 percent of it."

Chateau Musar was founded in 1930 by Gaston Hochar, Serge's father, in an old Moorish castle named Mzar. The name was changed to Musar because of the strong French presence in Lebanon at that time. War has plundered Lebanon and local demand for Musar wines. Hochar was happy to sell most of his production in Lebanon, but when circumstances changed, he was forced to change his tactics in order to stay in business.

"This all turned out to be a blessing," Hochar said optimistically. "By entering the world market, I discovered how good my wines were compared to the great wines of the world. I showed my wines for the first time in 1979, in Bristol. They were a hit because no one expected to taste such fine wines from Lebanon."

Michael Broadbent, writing in "Decanter," the prestigious British wine journal, described Musar wines as a "full soft — a bit of claret and a touch of Burgundy."

Others have debated whether the wines are more like those of Saint Emilion or Pomerol. Let's just say Chateau Musar is akin to the Middle East's Chateau Lafite.

Today, Hochar is lauded globally for overcoming the obstacles of war and producing wines that rival some of the world's best. "We made a wine every year except 1976 and 1984 because the war prevented us from trucking the grapes from the vineyards to the winery," said Hochar. "The winery is located 15 miles north of Beirut and the vineyard is in the Bekaa Valley south of Beirut — a distance of 50 miles."

In 1976, fighting cut off electrictiy to the winery making it impossible to process the harvest. Hochar has since installed a diesel generator as insurance.

The Bekaa Valley is an ideal site for wine growing. An old alluvial river valley at 2,500 feet evaluation, the Bekaa is watered by the rains and melting snows from two mountain ranges. There are 300 days of sunshine a year, with little or no rain betweeh June and October. The altitude plus overcast summer weather act to moderate the extreme heat.

Moslem farmers also grow apples, pears, peaches, cherries, and melons in the Bekaa, but because of religious laws they do not drink the wines produced.

Chateau Musar wines are a blend of cabernet sauvingnon and cinsault (a variety usually associated with the southern Rhone Valley in France). According to Hochar, they show best with 12 to 15 years' aging.

Roll out the dough for flat bread

See Larry Janes' column on Taste front.

BASIC FLAT BREAD

1 package active dry yeast
1 cup water (105-115 degrees F.)
3 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon shortening, softened

Combine yeast and water in a mixing bowl and allow to stand 5 minutes. To the yeast mixture, beat in 1 ½ cups flour, salt, sugar and shortening. Mix until smooth. Add remaining 1 about 5 minutes. Place the bread in a lightly greased mixing bowl, cover and allow to rise until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Punch the dough down and divide into 4 balls. Flatten the dough evenly and roll into a 5 inch diameter. Place the four rounds onto a greased cookie sheet and allow to rise until double in bulk. Brush with a little milk, if desired. Bake in a preheated 425 degree oven for 15-20 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 4 pitas.

MIDDLE EASTERN MARKET BREAD

5 pounds all purpose flour
3 teaspoon black caraway seeds
1 cup sugar
1 pound biscuit baking mix (about 4 scant cups)
1 ½ sticks melted butter or margarine
4 tablespoons solid vegetable shortening (heated to smoking, then cooled)
2 packages active dry yeast
6 cups warm water
sesame seeds
4 egg yolks
4 tablespoons water

Mix the egg yolks and the 4 tablespoons water for brushing. Set aside. Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Dissolve the yeast in ½ cup warm water with a teaspoon of sugar; cover; let stand 10 minutes.

Mix remaining flour, sugar and biscuit baking mix in a large bowl. Add butter, shortening and yeast mixture. Mix and knead until a soft dough is formed. (Additional water may be needed.) Cover with foil and a blanket and allow to rise for 3 hours. Make a ball of dough the size of an orange. Roll the dough in sesame seeds. Flatten with a lightly greased hand to ¼ inch thickness. Repeat with remaining dough. Place on a lightly greased sheet of foil about 4 inches apart. Cover again and allow to rise until doubled, about 1 ½ hours. Remove covering. Brush the tops with beaten egg yolk mixture. Place foil on cookie sheet and bake on the bottom shelf and continue baking for 2-3 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from the oven and sprinkle lightly with water. This bread freezes well. Makes about 15 small loaves.

Try some Middle Eastern favorites

See related story on Taste front.

TABBOULI

½ cup medium bulgar (cracked wheat)
3 bunches fresh, crisp, curly parsley, finely chopped
1 bunch green onions, or scallions, finely chopped
5 fresh ripe tomatoes, finely chopped
1 cup fresh peppermint, finely chopped, or 2-3 tablespoons dried mint, crushed
½ cup olive oil or vegetable oil juice of one lemon
salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
1 clove garlic, mashed (optional)
Fresh, crisp romaine lettuce leaves

Place bulgar into a measuring cup and add warm water to cover and allow to soak and expand until soft, about 20 minutes. Drain and squeeze out excess water. Place into a large mixing bowl.

Place chopped tomatoes over bulgar to allow juice to absorb into bulgar. Add rest of the ingredients and toss gently. Adjust seasonings. Serve well chilled with romaine lettuce or pita bread. Chopped green pepper or cucumbers may be added for added crunch.

HOMMOUS

1 can chick peas
½ teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
juice of 1 fresh lemon
3-4 tablespoons, tahini (sesame oil)
½ cup water

Drain liquid from chick peas and reserve in a measuring cup. Put chick peas, minced garlic, tahini, salt, lemon and water in blender of food processor. Blend well, adding liquid from can of chick peas if needed. Hummous should be of medium consistency, not too thick or thin. It will thicken as it sits and should be thinned down before refrigeration or just before serving. Taste, adjust seasonings. When ready to serve, spread onto a large platter and drizzle with olive oil. Sprinke with paprika and garnish with finely chopped parsley. Serve with fresh pita cut into triangles.

SHISH TAWOOK

2 whole chicken breasts, skinned and cut in large cubes
2 large tomatoes, wedged
2 green peppers, wedged
1 pound mushrooms
2 onions, wedged
¼ cup lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter, melted
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper

In a large bowl, combine lemon juice, butter, paprika, salt, pepper to make marinade. Stir in chicken and vegetables. Cover and marinade at room temperature for one hour, stirring occasionally.

Put chicken cubes on skewers, alternating with vegetables. Brush with rest of marinade. Broil in oven-broiler or barbecue on grill, turning 2-3 times until cooked to taste. Serve over rice. Serves 4.

FALAFEL

one pound dry garbanzo beans
1 medium onion
⅓ stalk celery, chopped
½ bunch parsley, washed and chopped fine
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon cumin, ground
3 teaspoon coriander, ground
2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon paprika or red pepper
1 teaspoon flour

Put garbanzo beans into large bowl, cover with water and soak overnight until soft. Drain any remaining water.

Place all ingredients in food processor and process until completely ground, adding a little water if necessary. Be sure the mixture is thick enough to form patties with a patty tool or as you would form a small hamburger the size of a half dollar. Fry patties in hot vegetable oil until browned on both sides, 2-3 minutes. Drain on paper towel. Makes about 30-40 patties.

To serve, cut fresh pita pocket in half. Fill with 3-4 falafel patties, shredded lettuce, chopped tomato and drizzle with Tahini sauce. This is your basic Syrian taco.

Treat dad to some low-calorie, easy oven pancakes

If you're looking for another place to pick strawberries, visit the Long Family Orchard and Farm on Bogie Lake Road, ⅓ mile north of Wise Road in Commerce Township.

Rob Long called to say the berries will be ready this week. The u-pick season at his farm begins in early spring with asparagus. He also offers sour cherries in July, and apples in September. For information, call 360-3774.

Tassos Epicurean Cuisine, Inc. at 6887 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield, 539-0110, is offering a cooking class, 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, June 24. The menu will feature seafood and vegetables julienne in a delicate sauce, boned, stuffed duck with veal, pistachio nuts and herbs, genoise with apples and Sabayon Sauce.

Bring your spouse or friend for an enjoyable evening of culinary expertise and fine dining with a complete healthy dinner including recipes, and complimentary wine for $25 per person. Call Carol, 539-0110 for reservations.

Florine Mark from Weight Watchers offers some ideas for Father's Day which is coming up fast on Sunday, June 21, coincidentally the first day of summer.

"If the Dad in your house has been trying to lose weight, you can help," said Mark. "Studies show that people with social support do better in a weight loss effort, so be an enthusiastic supporter of his success, and a sympathetic listener when the going gets tough. You can also help by stocking your pantry with low-calorie alternatives and by encouraging him to be more active — taking a walk each day for example."

Here is a satisfying low-calorie dish sure to please dad on his day.

EASY OVEN PANCAKES

⅓ cup plus 2 teaspoons buttermilk baking mix
¼ cup plain low fat yogurt
2 tablespoons, plus 2 teaspoons apricot or peach nectar
1½ teaspoons grated orange peel
½ teaspoon poppy seed

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In small mixing bowl combine all ingredients, stirring until smooth. Spray nonstick baking sheet with nonstick cooking spray. Using a heaping tablespoon of batter for each pancake, drop batter onto baking sheet, making 6 pancakes and leaving a space of about 1 inch between each. Bake for 10 minutes, or until pancakes are browned on bottom; using pancake turner, turn pancakes over and cook until other sides are browned, about 2 minutes. Makes 2 servings, 3 pancakes each.

Betty Crocker tip of the week: For delicious summer punch, chill all ingredients before mixing them. Add carbonated drinks just before serving so they don't lose their sparkle. Finally, be creative with ice cubes or ice rings; make them from lemon, lime or orange juice and float them in the punch.

Kids can make Father's Day sweet

AP — Let Mom give Dad that new tie for Father's Day! What Dad really wants is something sweet to eat — like Chocolate Quickie Stickies. Kids can't do this without Mom's help, but it is a relative simple recipe to make.

CHOCOLATE QUICKIE STICKIES

8 tablespoons butter or margarine (1 stick)
¾ cup packed light brown sugar
4 tablespoons cocoa
5 teaspoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup coarsely chopped nuts (optional)
Two 8-ounce packages refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
2 tablespoons granulated sugar

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. In a small saucepan over low heat, melt 6 tablespoons of the butter. Add the brown sugar, 3 tablespoons of the cocoa and the water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, just until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat; add vanilla.

Spoon about 1 teaspoonful of the chocolate mixture into each of 48 small muffin cups (1¾ inches in diameter). Sprinkle ½ teaspoon nuts, if desired, into each cup; set aside.

Separate rolls into eight rectangeles; firmly press diagonal perforations to seal. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter; brush over rectangles. Stir together granulated sugar and remaining 1 tablespoon cocoa. Sprinkle mixture over all the rectangles. Starting at longer side, roll up each rectangle; pinch seams to seal. Cut each roll into six equal pieces. Press gently into prepared pans, cut side down. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 11 to 13 minutes or until light brown. Remove from oven; cool 30 seconds. Invert onto cookie sheet. Let stand 1 minute; remove from pan. Serve warm or cool. Makes 4 dozen small rolls.

Note: Rolls can be baked in two 8-inch round baking pans. Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Cook chocolate mixture as directed; place half in each pan. Prepare rolls as directed; place 24 pieces, cut side down, in each pan. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 20 to 22 minutes. Cool and remove pans, as directed above.

Recipe from: Hershey's Cocoa

Baby carrots cloaked in gingery sauce

BABY CARROTS WITH PINEAPPLE GLAZE

3 cups baby carrots (1 pound)
3 medium leeks, sliced 1¼-inch thick (1 cup)
2 tablespoons water
One 6-ounce can (⅔ cup) unsweetened pineapple juice
2 teaspoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon grated gingerroot, or ⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon salt (optional)
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Plain yogurt (optional)

Trim carrots, leaving 1 to 2 inches of stem, if you like. Do not peel. In a 2-quart, microwave-safe casserole combine the carrots, leeks and water. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 9 to 11 minutes or until crisp-tender, stirring once. Drain; cover to keep warm.

For glaze, in a 2-cup glass measure stir together juice, cornstarch, gingerroot or ginger, salt (if desired) and nutmeg. Cook, uncovered, on high for 2½ to 3 and bubbly, stirring every minute until slightly thickened, then after every 30 seconds.

Pour the glaze over carrots; stir to coat. If desired, garnish each serving with a dollop of plain yogurt. Makes 4 side-dish servings.

DeMent's vocals reflect her life

■ Iris Dement is winning the praises of many a country star with her distinctive vocals and her debut album, "Infamous Angel." But there's more to those vocals than her gospel training.

By Larry O'Connor
Staff Writer

She sings to the heavens; her songs are simple and pure from the heart.

Little else would be needed to describe Iris DeMent, but her enormous singing/songwriting talents somehow require deeper exploration and understanding.

The Kansas City resident immediately sparks such a reaction listening to her stunning debut "Infamous Angel," a collection of 11 timeless country sounding numbers drawn from personal trials and triumphs on Philo/Rounder records.

DeMent's distinctive voice, which is somehow both beauteous and stark, draws the most attention. Her vocals are a culmination of gospel training and emotional engulfment and has people such as John Prine and Emmylou Harris singing her praises.

Yet DeMent's songwriting speaks volumes as an artist attached spiritually and emotionally into her immediate surroundings. As her lyrics bear testament, she doesn't shy away from the most painful of subjects.

On "After You're Gone," DeMent sings of what her life would be like without her father. She wrote the song nearly four years ago after her dad was left partially paralyzed with a stroke.

Sings DeMent plaintively: "I'll miss you, O how I'll miss you/I'll dream of you and I'll cry a million tears/But the sorrow will pass and the one that will last/Is the love that you've given."

Tender vocals

When treated with her tender vocals, the touching acoustic number becomes so personal the moment stands still.

The realization her father, Patric Shaw, 82, had died only a few days ago of natural causes, makes the emotional impact of the number heart wrenching.

"It would be painful for me to sing that right now," DeMent said in a telephone interview from her home in Kansas City. "When I wrote it, I guess it was painful for me at first but then it seemed there were people it meant a lot to when I'd sing it. When you sing in public, you can't be crying when you sing.

"It's really strange," she added, her voice trailing off. "I never had somebody die, lose someone you'll never see again . . . We all have to go through it."

DeMent's connection with her parents is a profound one. Her album is dedicated to both of them and she cites her mother, Flora Mae DeMent, as one of the biggest influences on her career.

And it was her mother who held out the dream of some day singing at the Grand Ol' Opry, aptly denoted in the DeMent's endearing number "Mama's Opry."

Mom's dream

Perhaps vicariously, the daughter has helped to partially see her mother's vision to fruition. At her urging, DeMent's mom does a stirring rendition of the traditional gospel number "Higher Ground" on her debut album.

"I just thought it would be neat for her to come in and sing," DeMent said. "She didn't want to do it at first. It was a scary thing for her to do, but she got up the courage and came in and did it."

DeMent goes into detail on the album's liner notes about her life as well. Raised in a family of 14 children, her father was a farmer and then had to turn to factory work. Things went bust there, and in something of a 1960s twist to Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," the family moved to California.

DeMent, 31, played piano and sang in the church choir, exposed to a steady diet of gospel music that her parents listened and sang to at an early age. She made up songs as a child, but didn't write one until she was 25.

"Our Town" was one of the first, poignantly capturing rural life and its psychic fallout.

"I was taking a trip, down through Kansas and Oklahoma," she said. "I saw some of those towns and saw those people who have gone onto somewhere else.

"Even though I didn't grow up in a town like that, 'Our Town' is really about change and it's about losing things, your inability to control everything around you and keep it the way you want it to be. I guess you can say that's a personal song as well."

After performing open-mike nights around Kansas City and beyond, DeMent was discovered and signed by Philco/Rounder Records. "Infamous Angel" is enjoying a groundswell of support, receiving airplay on WDET-FM.

While many immediately latch on to her singing, her songwriting is beginning to earn just praise. Either way, DeMent doesn't mind.

"I'm just glad they like something," she said.

Iris DeMent will perform Friday, June 19, as part of the La Casa Music Series at Birmingham Unitarian Church, 651 N. Woodward Ave. at Lone Pine Road. Tickets are $10 in advance; $12 at the door. For information, call 646-4950.

STREET SENSE

Some people don't want advice, answers

BARBARA SCHIFF

Dear Barbara,

I read your column on May 26 with interest. I have a girlfriend who complains constantly about the way her husband treats her. She asks me what she should do and then she says she knows she should leave him, but she can't.

Sometimes I get sick of listening to her but I've never been able to be as outspoken about this as you were in your column. So, I gave her your column and she got angry at me.

Why does she ask for advice and then get angry when I try to help? Is this a specific kind of syndrome or does it have a scientific name?

Margi

Dearc Margi,

I don't know if it has ever been identified as a special syndrome, but I recognize this collection of behaviors in patients, people I know and letters I receive from readers.

People like this are characterized by their saying "I knew I shouldn't do it, but I did it anyhow" or "I knew I should but I didn't." They say they know what is right and they also say they can't do it.

The question I ask myself and you are asking yourself is why do they come for treatment or ask friends and families for advice. The answer is they don't really want the advice they ask for. What they do want is to be told they are fine the way they are and that they can stay that way.

They want to be told that it is the world's fault and so they want to know the secret of how to change the world. It's quite probable that if anyone could discover how to change the world, then there would be no more wars, injustices and environmental traumas.

That this is an unrealistic fantasy is lost on them. They keep asking for advice and coming for treatment because they don't believe the world can't be changed or they do believe it and they want to complain about how mean a place the world is.

They are enraged to be told that there is no Santa Claus.

Often people like this will go from therapist to therapist or friend to friend insisting that they be told what they want to hear, rather than what is the truth. One can say that they suffer from a contest with reality that cannot be won. They will never stop hitting their heads against a brick wall even if they end up unconscious.

I fully sympathize with this type of person because I, too, would like to know how to change reality and find the Easter Bunny.

Barbara

If you have a question or a comment for Barbara Schiff, a trained therapist and experienced counselor, send it to Street Sense at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

'Waterdance' is insightful film

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Spotted white ceiling tiles and looming faces. This is Joel Garcia's world after a hiking accident places him in the hospital with a broken back.

His partial recovery and acclimation to life in a wheelchair is the basis for "The Waterdance," an insightful, and surprisingly fun, look at convalescence. It screens through Thursday (possibly longer) at Bloomfield's Maple Theatre.

The script for "The Waterdance" springs from a knowledgeable source. Neal Jimenez, a successful screenwriter with films like "River's Edge" to his credit, based the film on his own extended hospital stay. This is his first stint as a director (actually co-director with Michael Steinberg).

A few TV movie cliches still surface in the script. The shared hospital room is filled with blacks, Mexicans, and a white biker named Bloss (William Forsythe) who doesn't like either. Of course, he comes around by film's end.

Wesley Snipes has fun with the considerable quirks of hard-living, hard-drinking Raymond Hill, who ignored and abused his family before the accident. Now, they're all he can think about. His wife has other plans, however.

Joel has his own problems with girlfriend Anna. She's sensitive, smart, attractive, and desperately in love with him. She's also married. We suffer through their frustrating attempts at lovemaking and his needling her to get a divorce.

There's also the inevitable depression. For the first half of the film, Joel is surprisingly good-spirited. A successful writer, he starts to note the ironies of the situation and his fellow bedmates, including Bloss, who tries to collect $2.5 million from a traffic accident that was probably his fault.

"The Waterdance" is not all soul-searching gloom and doom. There's also a sense of humor at work here, especially involving a hospital telephone operator who puts patients on indefinite hold, cuts off calls in progress, and follows complaints with snotty comments.

There's also an exhilarating scene where patients swipe the keys to the hospital van and head for a local strip joint.

"I'm glad we're already paralyzed," one of the passengers notes when Joel almost smashes the van into oncoming traffic.

Eric Stoltz, most memorable as the deformed Rocky in 1985's "Mask," brings marvelous restraint to his performance. He doesn't resort to emotional outbursts calculated to cop an Oscar nomination. He treats his character in measured tones and with dignity.

The film recalls "Mask" in other ways because it never distances itself from the physically-challenged characters. In "The Waterdance," you know these folks so well that they become intimates.

And though it probably never began with this intention, this admittedly small film (it was created by a production company called No Frills) cries out for a sequel that takes these fascinating characters into real life outside of hospital grounds.

On the throne: Andrew Tiernan plays the commoner Gaveston who has a 13-year-long homosexual affair with a king in director Derek Jarman's "Edward II" at the Michigan Theatre this week.

"Howard's End" (Britain — 1992). A romantic tale of two families and the inheritance of a beloved ancestral home. In the tradition of "A Room With a View," the producer/director team of Ismail Merchant and James Ivory turn to another E.M. Forster novel with completely winning results.

"The Waterdance" (USA — 1991). Eric Stoltz and Wesley Snipes star as men paralyzed from the waste down who learn to reflect on their lives and loves during their convalescence. Based on the real-life recovery of screenwriter (and here co- director) Neal Jimenez.

■ MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students and senior citizens)

"Toto Le Heros" (France — 1991), through June 17 (call for show times). In this brilliant new film from France, a man is convinced that he was switched at birth with another baby. He feels cheated of everything from wealth to education to true love.

"Edward II" (Britain — 1992), June 19-25 (call for show times). Derek Jarman-directed this bold adaptation of the Christopher Marlowe play about a homosexual king and his 13-year affair with the commoner Gaveston.

"Kafka" (USA — 1991), 7:30 p.m. June 15 and 9:15 p.m. June 16-17. Jeremy Irons stars as an insurance salesman who gets caught up in the moody, black-and-white world of Czech writer Franz Kafka. An interesting, if misfire, experiment in style from Steven Soderbergh, the director of "sex, lies, and videotapes."

■ STATE WAYNE THEATRE
35310 Michigan Ave., Wayne. Call 326-4600 for show times. ($2; $1 students and senior citizens)

"Vertigo" (USA — 1958), June 17-21 (call for show times). Alfred Hitchcock's most personal film, about an obsessed man (Jimmy Stewart) who tries to turn his new girlfriend into the spitting image of a lost love. With Kim Novak and a dreamy Bernard Herrmann score.

"The Cocoanuts" (USA — 1929), June 17-21 (call for show times). The Marx Bros. exploded on screen in this early talky, based on their popular stage play. Full of great bits, though not as fun as subsequent romps.

Moshimer to coach in all-star classic

Here's something for your calendar.

In fewer than seven weeks, the opening boot will be administered to officially open the prep football season. Or maybe, considering the game in question is the 12th annual Michigan High School All-Star Classic — with teams consisting of already graduated players — it should be considered the final game of last season.

Whatever. The game is scheduled for Aug. 1 at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium, as usual. Among those selected to coach the East team is Tom Moshimer of Plymouth Salem, who will serve as the head honcho. He will be assisted by Jim Jarvey, one of his Salem assistants, and John Walker, Troy Athens' head coach.

It's an honor for all three, to be sure — particularly for Moshimer, who will begin his 34th year of prep coaching this fall, his 26th at Salem (his record with the Rocks is 139-81-3).

Coaching in the all-star game is an honor because the game has proved successful. No, the stadium doesn't sell out, and no, the play is what one might expect in an all-star game — a bit ragged. But it's a good idea, one the state's football coaches' association has made work.

More for playoffs

Which brings us to another topic . . .

The powerful MHSFCA (officially, that's Michigan High School Football Coaches Association) is rethinking its state playoff format — again.

It was just two years ago the association pushed through an expansion doubling the number of classes, from four to eight. The new revision would not change that. What would change are the number of teams in the playoffs and number of regular-season games per team.

There are two plans being discussed. Plan A would divide the eight classes evenly, putting about 77 schools in each. There would be four regions per class — about 19 schools apiece. Playoff points would be accumulated the same way, by computer, but the regular season would last just seven games.

The top 16 teams in each region after the seven-game season would qualify for the playoffs. To reach the state final, a team would have to win five games.

What about league champs?

Plan B is much the same, the exception being the number of playoff qualifiers. Only one regular-season game would be lost; eight teams per region would qualify (instead of Plan B's 16), and a team would have to win four playoff games (instead of five) to reach the state final.

The MHSFCA's object is to get as many teams into the playoffs as possible. Plan A would certainly do that; only three of 19 teams per region would be left out. They could, if they so desired, schedule games against other non-qualifiers for those final two dates.

Neither plan is bad, really. I like both more than doubling the classes (I'll give a nickel to anyone who can name all eight '91 state champs).

But I do have reservations.

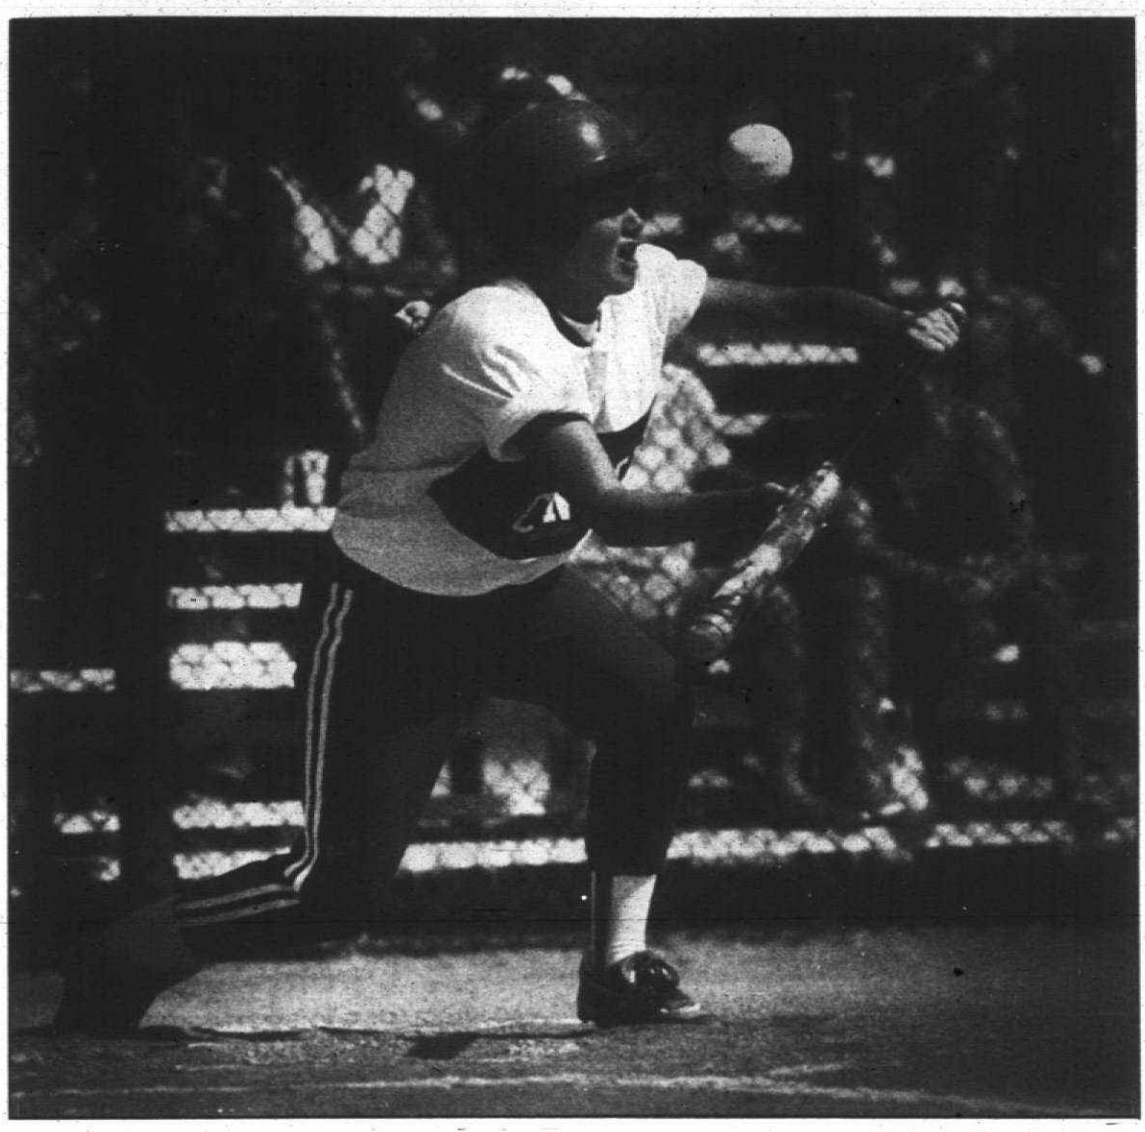
Canton stopped in state final, 1-0



BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Frustrating day: Michelle Metzger was among the Canton batters who found it difficult to hit or sacrifice against Jenison pitcher Betsy Morse, who allowed only three hits Saturday.

Plymouth Canton reached the state final in Class A softball but fell one victory shy of winning the championship Saturday, losing to Jenison in nine innings.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Coach Jim Arnold will get a Haircut this week, but it will be just a "light trim" and not the complete buzz job he would have received had Plymouth Canton won the state softball title.

Arnold had agreed to let his players shave his head (and mustache) if Canton was successful; thus, the Chiefs were twice disappointed despite a fine performance at Battle Creek.

The Chiefs battled top-ranked Jenison for nine innings Saturday as pitchers Kelly Holmes of Canton and Betsy Morse engaged in a suspenseful duel before the Wildcats prevailed 1-0.

Jenison (36-5) won its fourth title in six seasons, while sixth-ranked Canton (32-4) is the third straight Observerland team to finish as runner-up in Class A. Garden City lost to Waterford Kettering last year and Livonia Franklin to Jenison in 1990.

"We played them tough — and it could have gone either way," Arnold said. "We can play with any team in the state of Michigan, and we proved it today."

Unfortunately for the Chiefs, the game ended with an error, which Jenison used to score the only run in the bottom of the ninth.

With runners at first and second, Jenison's Tracy Taylor hit a grounder to shortstop Dani Mortiere, who looked to third and saw she had no play, turned and threw to second. But nobody was covering the bag, allowing Kelly Reagan to score.

Chiefs clobber Kearsley in 'A' semifinal

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

SOFTBALL

When the lead-off batter hit a line-drive single to begin a Class A semifinal game Friday, Plymouth Canton softball pitcher Kelly Holmes was a little worried.

There was no need to be, however.

At the end of seven innings, Holmes had given up only two other hits and the Chiefs had outslugged power-hitting Flint Kearsley for a 5-1 victory at Battle Creek.

"I thought every single batter would do that, but luckily they didn't," Holmes said. "Even when it was 3-1, it was still a close game because I knew they could hit. I felt a lot better when it got to 5-1."

Holmes proceeded to pitch another fine game, striking out seven, hitting one batter and issuing no walks.

"She lost the no-hitter on the first batter," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "That calmed her down and allowed her to pitch her game."

Holmes also outdueled Kearsley's left-handed ace, Christina Lee, who gave up eight Canton hits, struck out six and walked one.

"The biggest factor was we just were not hitting," Kearsley coach Chuck DeArmond said, adding the Chiefs "are an outstanding softball team, better than I thought they would be.

"(Holmes) kept the ball low the whole game and that's where we got hurt. We've seen that all season, so I don't think our kids were intimidated at all. But she does a much better job of ball location."

Junior second baseman Kate Strahan and senior third baseman Nicole Sequin were the offensive leaders for Canton. Strahan was 3-for-4, scored two runs and drove in another, and Sequin had two hits and two RBI.

"A lot of the game is just mental, and you go up there knowing you have to hit the ball," Strahan said. "I was really relaxed at bat today. I just knew I had to get the job done. I've been in a slump.

Like clockwork, the slow-starting Chiefs waited until the fourth inning to score and lead 2-0. Strahan's triple and Sarah Schimmelpfenneg's single and stolen base set the table for consecutive sacrifice flies by Renee Dory and Sequin.

"That's the way this team has been 95 percent of the time," Arnold said. "They wait and make me nervous.

"They were hitting the ball through the early innings. They just weren't getting the hits, but I knew they would come through."

A big double play in the bottom of the fourth kept the Hornets (34-10) from tying the score.

Sarah Princinsky hit an RBI triple with one out and tried to score on Jenny Dunbar's grounder to first. Julie Nicastri made the unassisted putout and relayed to Dory to nail Princinsky.

"At that point it was 2-1, and I thought the play at the plate would be the key thing in this whole game," Arnold said.

"Then I realized we were into the fourth inning and we come alive in the fourth, fifth and sixth. I felt we could get a couple more runs."

The Chiefs did.

Sequin's two-out single scored Strahan to make it 3-1 in the sixth. Strahan started the inning with a single and managed to steal second despite getting caught between bases.

"(Arnold) gave me the hit-and-run, and I knew the sign was missed," she said. "I knew if I went back to first I'd be out, so I ran my little heart out."

Canton rallied for two more on three hits in the seventh, including RBI singles by Dani Mortiere and Strahan.

Another big defensive play was Schimmelpfenneg's running catch in center field. With runners at the corners and two out, she saved a couple runs in the fifth inning.

"I told the girls 'You're too serious; you gotta have some fun; you gotta create something,'" Jenison coach Jerry Hoag said. "It was a matter of creating something to get a break."

Such breaks were otherwise nonexistent, as Holmes and Morse showed why they are two of the best pitchers in the state.

Holmes (23-3) gave up six hits, four in the last three innings. She struck out 12 and walked one in 8⅓ official innings. Morse allowed just three hits in nine full frames, struck out 13 and issued one walk.

Every one of the nine hits was a single. Mortiere, Renee Dorey and Holly Miller had the Canton hits, while Reagan had two for the Wildcats.

"I didn't like the 3-0 counts I sometimes had to come back on," Holmes said, "but I like to pitch in tight games."

With neither team able to string together a series of solid hits, both tried bunting to move base runners. That resulted in more frustration when they were unsuccessful at that, too.

"If I had it to do all over again, I wouldn't have called so many bunts," Arnold said. "I made some mistakes and that was one of them. I took the bat away from them."

"(Holmes) was throwing it high and we were bunting high," Hoag said. "If someone wants to bunt, put it up in their eyes and make them pop it up. It became such a mental thing. I told them to stay off the high one, just put the ball in play."

Morse walked Mortiere to start the game but retired the next 15 in a row before Miller began the sixth with a hit. Lisa Nicastri, running for Miller, gave Canton its best scoring chance by reaching third on a wild pitch and a strikeout/dropped ball, but was stranded there.

Holmes pitched 3⅔ innings before Jenison got a hit, but the Wildcats didn't get a runner past second until the eighth.

Keri Hess led with a single, stole second and took third when the play led to an error. Holmes retired the next two and Mortiere kept the Chiefs alive with a just-in-time throw from short for the third out.

While unhappy with the outcome, the Canton players were pleased to be in the final — and with their performance.

"We took them to nine innings, so we don't feel too bad because we played a good game," Holmes said.

"We were just happy we made it this far," Mortiere said. "It was kinda disappointing, but it was nice to get here and we had a lot of fun," senior catcher Renee Dory added.

First, the state playoffs would be all that mattered — league championships be damned. Indeed, in Plan A nearly half a championship team's season would consist of playoff games (seven regular season, six playoff).

Good idea, but . . .

Leagues that feature championship games might have to consider making revisions. Non-league games will be forgotten completely — perhaps eliminating some cross-town rivalries.

And, although more teams would be involved in the state tournament, in Plan A 11 of 19 teams per region would be on the sidelines after eight weeks instead of nine.

Those are negatives I think are worth weighing. Still, the sport is changing; coaches and athletic directors are having problems filling the non-league slots in their schedules. This would eliminate the need. And I would assume a team need only a 3-4 (or, in Plan B, 5-3) record to qualify for the state tournament.

I have nothing against getting more teams involved in the playoffs. But I would miss those end-of-the-season clashes between non-league city rivals like Wayne Memorial and Westland John Glenn, Birmingham's Seaholm and Groves, Southfield and Southfield-Lathrup, and Troy and Troy Athens.

Why not? After all, it's oft been said, the more the merrier.

Stevenson's Johnson paces All-Area squad

By BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Area coaches gathered recently to select Observerland's best in girls golf.

Coach Vicky Kowalski led Farmington Hills Mercy to a 15-0 dual meet season, a first-ever Catholic League championship and a berth in the state Class A meet and where the Marlins finished 12th.

For her efforts, Kowalski has been named Coach of the Year.

Mercy placed two on the first team along with Livonia Franklin.

The other first team spots are filled by golfers from Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill.

Presenting the 1992 All-Area girls golf squad:

FIRST TEAM

Megan Johnson, Liv. Stevenson: The area's top individual golfer for the second straight year, Johnson tied for eighth at the state Class A meet held last month at Forest Akers in East Lansing, coming on the heels of a season-low 76 to win the regional at Oak Pointe.

Johnson, bound for Purdue University in the fall on a golf scholarship, also won the Western Lakes Activities Association title.

She was medalist in 10 of 14 matches this season and averaged 45 in dual meets.

The senior was named the No. 1 junior girls golfer in the state by Golf Digest.

"She hits the ball very, very long for a young lady," Stevenson first-year coach John Wagner said. "She's been know to practice long after practice is over. She has that kind of work ethic. She's very focused and a very professional young lady."

Kristyn Schulkins, Farm. Hills Mercy: The senior averaged 46.1 strokes per nine, including a season-low 42 to win the Catholic League meet.

Schulkins, headed for Michigan State, also finished second at the Monroe Invitational (45), and sixth at the regional (89). The two-time captain added an eighth place at the Oakland County Meet (99) and took 22nd in Class A (93).

"Kristyn was our number one player all four years and her leadership will be missed," said the Mercy coach (Vicky Kowalski). "She was very excited when the team beat Northville, and individually when she beat Patti White (Birmingham Seaholm's defending state champ) in a dual meet."

Colleen Hansen, Liv. Franklin: The senior was Franklin's top individual after finishing fourth in the Western Lakes Meet and ninth at the Class A state regional tournament.

Hansen also helped Franklin to a second at the Monroe Invitational.

She was Franklin's medalist five times and dual meet medalist once.

"Colleen began golfing just three years ago and her terrific attitude and coachability, along with marked ability, made her a pleasure to coach," Franklin coach Darlene Marohnic said.

Nancy Noechel, Liv. Franklin: The junior helped the Patriots finish second in the WLAA meet after taking fifth place individually.

In the regional tourney, Noechel took 11th as Franklin finished sixth in the team standings.

She was medalist in one dual meet and was the Patriots' low scorer five times.

"Nancy has been the epitome of a strategist and a competitor on the links," Marohnic said, "and these traits have helped her become a fine golfer and leader of our team."

Noechel and Hansen were also members of the Franklin swim squad.

Whitney Said, Liv. Churchill: The senior was Churchill's first four-year varsity letter winner.

She took medalist honors at the nine-hole Monroe-Jefferson Invitational with a 44.

She also made All-Western Division in the WLAA after tying for seventh. Said was 25th in the regional and averaged 50.5 strokes per nine.

Said is an honor student who was also a member of Churchill's 1991 state Class A championship volleyball team. She was also a member of the swim team.

Dana Deshaw, Farm. Hills Mercy: The Mercy junior averaged 51.2 per nine.

She medaled in Mercy's first match of the year with a 46 and finished 10th at both the Oakland County and Catholic League meets with a 102 (18 holes) and 54 (nine holes), respectively.

The captain also took 19th at the regional (100) and 14th in Class A (101).

"Dana was instrumental in helping the team reach the state finals for the first time since 1983," Kowalski said. "And she encourages the younger team members. Dana is dedicated to the game of golf. She practices many hours on her own and hopes to golf in college."

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Those who try to oppose you during this period will be sorry. You have the strength to outlast most everyone in verbal and mental arguments.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Whatever happens, don't try to deceive those closest to you. You will experience great pain if you are dishonest with loved ones.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
You are long overdue for some spiritual enlightenment. Get off the fast track and see the world through different eyes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
You will receive favorable testimony from a close friend. A strange message could put you in a tailspin. Read between the lines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Don't rest on your laurels after a great accomplishment. That which could bring great riches carries with it a great deal of pain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Look deeper into yourself to find great joy. Superficial knowledge will bring you little happiness. Someone will announce good news.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
You have a sense of being right with the world. Children figure prominently in your near future. Don't let ambition block your happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
Money worries have taken over your life. Do what you can to improve your situation, but do not fret over things you cannot change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
You have the energy to do what is right for yourself and those around you and will meet most any challenge. Take some time off late in the week.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Plan a party to celebrate life and invite all those who are dear to you. A confusing message can be cleared up by dealing directly with the sender.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Revenge is not the answer, but you will be vindicated personally and professionally. Participating in social functions will cheer you up.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
A loving friendship could develop into a more satisfying relationship. Your search for truth may yield unexpected answers.

More heat than light from NBC's 'Home Fires'

Nuclear family under attack from within

By Suzanne Gill

Householder Teddy Kramer (Michael Brandon) spends most of one television half-hour preparing to kindle the "first fire of the season" in his living-room hearth. The meaning of this ritual is lost on his family, who inform him that it's still too warm for a fire. But he's a man with a mission, and besides, he's trying to avoid washing the dogs.

So far, "Home Fires," the first half-hour comedy from the creative team behind "St. Elsewhere," sounds like familiar domestic territory. For the most part, it is.

Appearing in viewers' homes beginning Wednesday, June 24, "Home Fires" trades heavily on the reputation for upscale quirkiness cultivated by its executive producers, Bruce Paltrow, Tom Fontana and John Tinker during their days at MTM, where Paltrow worked on "The White Shadow" and "Tattinger's" as well as "St. Elsewhere."

But what works in a professional setting is not always desirable at home. Perhaps that's why this family is in counseling, which is where we find them as each episode opens.

Therapist Frederick Marcus (played by Norman Lloyd, an "Elsewhere" holdover), listens, sometimes visibly scandalized by the things he hears. Besides fire-builder Teddy, his patients include mother-figure Anne (Kate Burton) and their children: Libby (Nicole Eggert), a college freshman; and Jesse (Jarrad Paul), a hormonally active 14-year-old. Extended family and friends include Anne's mother, Nana (Alice Hirson), and Libby's boyfriend, Mike (Tyagi Schwartz). Most of the action takes place in the Kramer home, a museumlike structure distinguished by its interior glass walls (a visual comment on emotional stone-throwing, one presumes). A simply pastel drawing, which appears during the show's opening and at commercial time, is all we see of the building's facade.

Although "Home Fires" has been looking for a time slot since January and no fewer than three installments air during the first week, NBC has made no episodes available for advance viewing. Columbia Television, the show's production studio, was able to provide one half-hour preview tape, but even this is not a sufficient basis on which to form an opinion of the series.

"Madonna and Child Reunion," the episode Columbia released, is schedule to air Thursday, June 25. (The series' regular time slot is on Saturday; NBC terms the Wednesday and Thursday airings "previews.") The main plot concerns Jesse, who's trying to speak the language of love to his beautiful classmate Shauna, who's tutoring him in French. With bad advice and sometimes cruel prodding from Mom, Libby and Mike, and Dad off doing the Jack London thing, Jesse makes the wrong move with Shauna and faces the teen death sentence: social humiliation. This is pretty familiar ground, even if there are some bits of dialogue that must have burned the censors' ears. On the whole, Teddy and Jesse are more appealing than the womenfolk, who seem fretful and overwound.

Advance material describes "Home Fires" as a comedy about "a '90s family facing conflicts that arise in the absence of the traditional generation gap." In keeping with its sophisticated atmosphere, "Home Fires" has no laugh track, a device often used to give viewers a sense of a show's direction. In this case, the silence betrays the faint cry of a drama trapped in the creative attic.

TIME OUT

Special probes racism in sports

By Steve Paschal

Since 1946, when Jackie Robinson joined the Brooklyn Dodgers and became the first athlete to break the racial barrier in professional sports, athletics have been viewed as America's great integrator. That notion is challenged in The Other Side of Victory: The Challenge of the Black Athlete, a documentary currently airing in syndication.

Thirty-one years after Robinson's history-making achievement, Los Angeles Dodgers assistant general manager Al Campanis questioned on national TV the ability of blacks to perform managerial jobs. Campanis was promptly fired, but his bigoted remarks caused many to consider the role discrimination continues to play in sports.

The Other Side of Victory goes beyond the mere identification of racism in sports and looks into such related issues as unethical recruiting and substance abuse. Close examination suggests an ongoing pattern of discrimation that exploits the black athlete and gives little in return. By contrast, the special profiles blacks who are breaking new ground in sports such as swimming and tennis.

ESPN's Robin Roberts and James Brown of CBS Sports, both black, are hosts of the two-hour special. They were highly recruited prep school all-Americans who have distinguished themselves in and out of the arena.

Doctor Dean, a new weekday series, debuts Monday on NBC, featuring nationally known Dr. Dean Edell.

A historic episode of All in the Family is one of many programs examined in Color Adjustment, the fifth-season premiere of P.O.V., airing Monday on most PBS affiliates. The show looks at television's depiction of blacks.

Filmmaker blasts small screen's narrow view

'P.O.V.' launches season with 'Color Adjustment'

By Suzanne Gill

In most American homes, television is available around the clock on dozens of channels. It never stops — never even pauses — of its own accord. Hyperkinetic by nature, the medium is all but incapable of self-analysis.

Into the void steps PBS's summer documentary series P.O.V., opening its fifth season with Color Adjustment, 80 minutes of exploratory sociology by filmmaker Marlon Riggs. Last season, Riggs' Tongues Untied, a film about the special torment of black men who are gay, touched a raw nerve; though it was praised by critics, many PBS stations refused to air it.

Color Adjustment, airing Monday, June 15, on most affiliates, is Riggs' view of television's portrayal of black Americans. Narrator Ruby Dee recalls the first roles for blacks on television: in Amos 'n' Andy and Beulah, a comedy starring Ethel Waters as a cheerful domestic. In 1956 Nat "King" Cole became the first black host of a variety program, sharing the stage with the leading white performers. Sponsors forsook the show and it was cancelled after 15 months on the air.

In 1965, I Spy made Bill Cosby the first black to play a role that wasn't defined by his color. Three years later, Diahann Carroll played a professional woman in Julia.

Riggs both praises and damns these isolated examples. He points out how little such series had to do with reality in the streets and how carefully orchestrated they were: plucking these acceptable blacks from their unacceptable backgrounds and washing them of their racial identity. Riggs criticizes black sitcoms generally for failing to portray ghetto life as the degrading experience that it is.

On television, the seminal drama of black life was the 1977 miniseries Roots. Yet in Riggs' view, "prime time had selectively reformed American history, transforming a national disgrace into an epic triumph."

In on-screen graphics, Riggs repeatedly asks, "Is this a positive image?" But he fails to define his own term and so ultimately lets the medium escape with its message intact.

FAMILY FARE

'When a Tree Falls' calls for ears to hear

By Chris Carpenter

For a child watching the world go by from a leafy backyard perch, picturing his strong, silent friend as a ream of paper is unimaginable. For others, it's business as usual.

When a Tree Falls, a special airing this month on many PBS stations, takes an honest, even-handed look at the issues surrounding timber harvesting. It's must viewing for families even remotely interested in preserving a legacy of forestlands for posterity.

In the backwoods of coastal South Carolina, timber has historically lost in the race for progress. Pointing no fingers and assessing no blame, this program features instead the growing pockets of resistance — including a grade-school teacher — supporting Project Learning Tree and the Wildlife Action group — whose messages are taking root. Trees are one of our few renewable resources, they stress, and we're selling out future generations by not putting back what we take.

When a Tree Falls delivers an effective, eloquent message in simple stories from ordinary people.

"We feel we are the experts in our own backyards," says one Wildlife Action volunteer.

When a Tree Falls offers a sharply focused view of a bigger issue in microcosm, begging in a small way for discerning ears to listen for every branch that falls.

Aidan Quinn and Sissy Spacek star in A Private Matter, premiering Saturday on HBO. Directed by Joan Micklin Silver, the two-hour film dramatizes the true story of Sherri Chessen Finkbine, who, in 1962, struggled to get an abortion for medical reasons. Academy Award winner Estelle Parsons also appears in the film.

LET'S TALK

What's that Dame's name?; Tandy's dandy but no nurse

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Can you please tell me a little about the show* Dame Edna's Hollywood*? We love to watch this and would love to know who this is, what this is and if this is for real or what. We also would like to know about her gal friend; she calls her "Bridesmaid" or something. There are big name stars on the show, which is great. Will we see more of her in the future? —Dondi McHenry, Vancouver, Wash.

A: The "person" in question is Australia's very own Barry Humphries, who, as Dame Edna Everage, has been parlaying England's fascination with men in drag into phenomenal comic success for many years. Humphries is said rarely to step out of character, even in private, which must account for Dame Edna's convincing mannerisms.

NBC aired two Dame Edna specials, set in her "palatial and deceptively posh" (and totally fake) Bel Air mansion, during the 1991-92 season. A third special has already been taped for next season. As for Bridesmaid, or Madge Allsop, to whom Dame Edna refers as "Vivian Vance to my Lucille Ball," she is but another part of the divine mystery of Dame Edna, just the fictional member of the wedding party who wouldn't leave.

Q: I should very much like to know if (actress) Jessica Tandy ever trained for a nursing career at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, Canada, in the late '30s. I trained there, and one of my friends was named Jessica Tandy. It's not a common name. —Eileen Cunningham, Atascadero, Calif.

A: While you and your friend Jessica Tandy were studying blood counts and prescribed medicines in Quebec, the star of such recent hits as Driving Miss Daisy and Fried Green Tomatoes was probably preparing for the film Murder in the Family, released in the U.K. in 1938. She was well on her way to a professional stage career by 1925, so it is doubtful that the two Tandys are one and the same.

Q: My roommate and I have had a dispute over the actors who've played Tarzan. I said Buster Crabbe was the first Tarzan, but he said "No way!" I could be wrong. Who is right?

Dame Edna Everage

—Charlotte Betz, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

A: You are wrong, Charlotte, but only a Tarzan purist would be likely to know this arcane bit of trivia. Tarzan of the Apes (1918) was the first filmed version of the Greystoke tale and starred an aged and bloated actor named Elmo Lincoln, a far cry from the athletic leads who were to follow. Buster Crabbe's only appearance as Tarzan was 1933's Tarzan the Fearless, a fairly forgettable outing for the King of the Jungle.

Q: I am trying to find information on an old MGM musical. The act was called "Triplets" or "Twins." Nanette Fabray was in the middle, with a gentleman on either side. They wore big baby bonnets, and part of the song lyrics they sang was "... we look alike, we talk alike ..."

I live in a retirement community and we put on little shows for our own amusement. We would love to do the skit. —Jeanette Ball, Paso Robles, Calif.

A: If you are interested in performing this number, you need to rent the 1953 musical The Band Wagon and study the number "Triplets," taken from the stage show "Between the Devil," starring Nanette Fabray, Fred Astaire and Jack Buchanan. Most any video store worth its salt will have The Band Wagon on tape. Good luck with the show!

Dream picks for Daytime Emmys

By Candace Havens

Many daytime actors and actresses begin to feel a touch of anxiety around this time every year. It's Daytime Emmy time. And while many of the nominees say things like, "It's an honor just to be nominated," most are praying feverishly that this will be their time in the limelight.

There were some outstanding performances by daytime actors and actresses this year, which is amazing considering the terrible story lines the writers provided.

The award for Outstanding Younger Actress is one of the most difficult choices. Cady McClain (Dixie, All My Children) and Alla Korot (Jenna, Another World) each gave wonderful performances, but McClain steadily gives her best to the role and deserves to win.

Outstanding Younger Actor should go to Patrick Stuart for his portrayal of wicked Will Cortlandt on AMC. His performances rated far above others in this category.

Charles Keating is up for Outstanding Supporting Actor and should win for his portrayal of evil Carl Hutchins, but the award will likely go to Bernard Barrow (Louie, Loving).

This is one year when the Outstanding Supporting Actress category boasts better performances than its counterpart for leading ladies. Linda Dano (Felicia, AW), Darlene Conley (Sally, The Bold and the Beautiful), Lynn Herring (Lucy, General Hospital), Maureen Garret (Holly, Guiding Light) and Maeve Kinkead (Vanessa, GL) were all nominated for supporting roles. Each actress has more than proven herself, but Herring stands out. She didn't have the best material to work with, but she consistently gave excellent performances.

Jessica Tuck should win the Outstanding Lead Actress award for her portrayal of Megan Gordon on One Life to Live. Of course, it would be terrific if Susan Lucci won just this once, so she could loose the stigma of being a loser 12 years in a row.

I feel certain David Canary will pick up the Outstanding Lead Actor award for his portrayal of Adam and Stuart Chandler on AMC, but I'd really like to see Peter Bergman (Jack, The Young and the Restless) win. He's one of those actors who gives his all to every performance.

Romance in Paris; news in Moscow

She's on the rebound for trouble. In the NBC movie Masquerade due to air next season, Connie Sellecca plays a Park Avenue socialite who goes to Paris for a visit with friends and to escape the husband she is divorcing. There she is chased by shady characters who claim she has something they want and will kill to get it. She is also being followed by the mysterious, trench-coat-clad Ed Marinaro, but it's love that he wants; well, that's his story. David Hemmings (Running Scared) is directing the production in Paris and Budapest.

First The Cartoon Network, now this. Media mover and shaker R.E. "Ted" Turner has pulled the switch to start a new Russian broadcast station airing in Moscow. Programming scheduled includes two hours of CNN International translated into Russian daily. According to Stuart Loory, the CNN veep who completed the deal, "We feel that with simultaneous transmission of our 24-hour English service and the excerpted Russian version of CNN, we will do much to provide a good international report to residents of Moscow."

Gavril Popov, Mayor of Moscow, is also pleased. "I think this is a very important development for democracy in Russia," he says.

The Discovery Channel, widely regarded as the premier venue for insightful documentaries focusing on science and nature, seems to be wading in the shallow waters of network reality-based programming. New additions to the TDC fall schedule include Justice Files, the reconstruction of real-life crime stories reported on ABC's 20/20; and Heart of Courage, in which host Alex Trebek shares true stories of "normal everyday folks who become heroes when they are thrust into crisis situations." Let's just hope they stop short of Forest Ranger: Emergency Call of the Wild.

STAR NOTES

'Aloha' flashbacks: Elvis remembered

By Steven Alan McGaw

Marty Pasetta's career dates back to the early days of television and he credits his experience in live broadcasting with preparing him for the many big events and specials he's produced over the years. Pasetta helmed 17 Oscar telecasts, as well as several American Film Institute tributes, the People's Choice Awards and specials featuring George Burns, Carol Burnett and Alabama. He also was responsible for Elvis Presley's Aloha from Hawaii special in 1973, a landmark, live-by-satellite concert that reached an international audience.

Pasetta recalls approaching the Presley show with some trepidation, especially in his first meeting with the reclusive star.

"We met in Las Vegas," Pasetta says. "I went up to his hotel room and he had three bodyguards. When Elvis came in, they all sat down and took out their guns and laid them on the table." Shaken, Pasetta decided to go ahead with what he'd planned to say.

"I took a breath and said 'Elvis, I went to your show in Long Beach. You just stood there. You're fat, you're slow and you're boring.'"

Pasetta and Presley eyed each other silently. "Then he took off his glasses," Pasetta recalls, "leaned back in his chair and started laughing. Elvis said, 'Not many people are ever honest with me like that.' We became friends from that moment on."
