School smoking ban wins favor

The smoking controversy at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools has been smouldering for serveral years. But now that the schools have addopted a non-smoking policy, things seem to be going well for both school officials and the students.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Sangita Baxi, a junior at Plymouth Salem High School, says that thanks to the district's new no-smoking policy, the smog that used to hang over Centennial Educational Park is gone.

"You couldn't even see the sun come up; I'm serious," said Baxi, a member of Salem's executive forum.

Now, students can walk past the south mall and without having to breathe cigarette smoke, she said. "I think it's really working. I know some people are opposed to the policy, but I think you go to school to learn. And you're only here for six hours anyhow."

Tom Single, a Salem senior, said smoking shouldn't have been permitted in the first place.

"I think it's a good policy. It just never made sense to me how — if you're legally not supposed to buy cigarettes — the schools could allow it."

Thus far, between 65 and 100 students have been caught smoking at Canton and Salem high schools.

"It's going pretty well," said Thomas George, chief security officer at CEP. "We noticed at the beginning that a lot of kids hadn't gotten the message yet."

Cooperation has been good among teachers, security guards, and parents, George added. "Teachers are supposed to enforce this too, not just my six guards, and they do. Parents have been very supportive also."

Under the new policy, students charged with their first offense must attend a five-hour session conducted by health teachers who discuss the hazards of tobacco use. Parents are notified.

Students caught smoking a second time are given a one-day in-school suspension. Students are given more instructional material on the health hazards of smoking and parents are contacted.

The third offense is punishable with a one-day out-of-school suspension. A parent conference is set up with the area coordinator (assistant principal), student and parent.

Students caught a fourth time are suspended for two days. A parent

It was a perfect evening for a homecoming.

There was a crowd, a band, a queen and a parade, but most of all there was a victory.

The Plymouth Salem Rocks drubbed Livonia Stevenson 29-7 on Friday, improving their record to 3-2 in the Lakes Division and 4-3 overall.

In the game, junior Rob Shepley rushed for 107 yards and two touchdowns. But all the activity wasn't created by the football squad and band.

Cyndi Platter was crowned Homecoming Queen, and students paraded around the field dressed in costumes from the Wizard of Oz.

Visit proves costly

BY DIANE GALE
STAFF WRITER

President George Bush's visit to Canton cost Canton taxpayers $6,786.51 in overtime for police officers and firefighters.

Overtime for police officers cost $5,752.68 and overtime for firefighters cost $1,033.83.

Other township-related costs, $11,587, were billed Oct. 7 to the Bush-Quayle campaign election office. The bulk of that was $8,000 for public works wages and equipment.

CAMPAIGN '92

Bush spoke to a crowd of about 6,300 people Aug. 24 in Canton.

Canton Clerk Loren Bennett, who is active in the Republican Party, defended the local costs.

"Anybody who comes into the community has a right to those services," just as if someone were coming to the community from Ann Arbor and were involved in a major car accident, Bennett said.

"We provide those services to the public at large to help and protect those people in the community, and the president is no different. I can't think of a community in the country that would say "no" to a presidential visit."

Bush also visited Plymouth last month during a campaign that has focused on Michigan.

During a whistle-stop tour, on a train dubbed "The Spirit of America," Bush visited Old Village on Sept. 26.

Crowds were estimated at about 20,000. Metal detectors counted about 15,800 people attending. Add to that people who were waiting on the perimeter and at rail crossings.

The Plymouth visit cost taxpayers $10,000 for police protection. The city's cost was $4,000 and Plymouth Township police costs were estimated at between $6,000 and $7,000.

Canton man ponders mystery deer

BY DIANE GALE
STAFF WRITER

When Mike Boyd saw a gutted deer on Michigan Avenue at Morton Taylor, the one-time deer hunter thought it was a shame to see the meat rot.

"I was upset to see an animal go to waste, said Boyd, who lives in the apartment complex near the wooded intersection.

"They took the horns, gutted it and left the deer to go to waste," he said. "They left it up to us to dispose of it."

Boyd, who last hunted deer in 1984, said he planned to bury the carcass last week.

Beside the deer going to waste, Boyd said he and his neighbors are concerned about hunters illegally shooting in the field despite "No Trespassing" signs.

The field is attractive to hunters, because it's not unusual to see five or more deer in the woods at a time.

"We've been having problems in that area for a long time," Boyd said. "A lot of kids are in that apartment complex, and I hate to see anyone get hurt."

Despite the police reports that he and his neighbors file, hunters continue to return.

According to Canton police information officer, Tammie Colling, the only places hunting is allowed in Canton is most of the area south of Warren west of Beck to the township line; and from Beck to Canton Center south of Palmer.

CANTON CONNECTION

Playing for years

This year marks the 15th anniversary of the Canton Seniors Kitchen Band's first formation.

The musical group was started in November 1977 and has since had hundreds of senior citizen performers. Today there are some 30 members ranging in age from their mid-70s to mid-90s.

Bernice Russian is the current director. Past directors who were key to the organization's formation and survival include Doris Begg and Dolores Edwards, who died in 1982.

The band was once dubbed "Canton's Ambassadors of Goodwill." It performs weekly in all settings, from nursing homes and hospitals, to festivals and schools.

Members do not have to possess musical ability and there are no auditions. Spoons, drums and a banjo are among the instruments the seniors use.

For more information about the band, call Canton Senior Coordinator Diane Neihengen at 397-5444.

Absentee ballots

The polls are now open in Canton.

Residents can pick-up absentee ballots from the clerk's office at township hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, south of Proctor Road.

More than 2,700 absentee ballots have been mailed to those who filled-out an application. Any voters who still wishes to vote absentee ballot have until 2 p.m. Oct. 31 to request a ballot from the township clerk's office.

Residents can vote absentee if they expect to be absent from the community during the time polls are open; if they are physically unable to make it to the polls; if they are at least 60 years old; and if they are in jail.

To request a ballot, call the township clerk's office at, 397-5367. Voters may also pick an absentee ballot up from the clerk's office.

Smoking

conference is held to determine the student's status at CEP.

Salem Principal Jerry Ostoin and area coordinator Ken Jacobs said instituting the non-smoking policy has gone well.

The students caught smoking have been charged with first or second offenses. No students have been apprehended three times. "By and large, that's where it's all stopped," said Ostoin.

"It's going a lot better than I anticipated. I thought it was going to be a little more difficult for us to monitor the amount of territory here," said Jacobs.

"Thus far, the response has been fairly decent. We still have some kids who do choose to smoke, but a lot of kids are responding to it."

Ostoin says less than 1 percent of the student body has violated the policy. Reaction from parents and students has been excellent, he said.

"The response we've had in our (no-smoking) clinics has been just amazing," said Ostoin, who's sat in on some of the sessions conducted by teachers Diane Gailey and Judy McKay-Wall. "At one clinic that sticks in my mind,

■ 'Nineteen percent of high school seniors smoke on a daily basis.'

they showed a video on the old Marlboro man. Apparently he died of lung cancer. During his last few years, he'd quit smoking and he did quite a few testimonials. It's powerful stuff, telling how harmful cigarettes really are."

Jim Moore, director of smoking and health programs for the American Lung Association, heads up the association's Tobacco-Free Teens program, which aims to keep teenagers from smoking and chewing tobacco.

Moore said the smoking rate among teenagers has stayed the same for the last 12 years.

"Nineteen percent of high school seniors smoke on a daily basis," he said. The girls seem to be smoking slightly more than the boys. Probably a more disturbing trend is that females seem to be starting at earlier ages. And we know that when kids start at earlier ages, it's more likely that they become addicted. It's harder for them to quit. Also, they're more likely to develop smoking-related disease."

Moore's no-smoking programs are designed to be used in schools. The association also provides trained people to facilitate the program in schools throughout the state.

For more information, call Moore at 1-800-678-5864.

Canton ballot has one local proposal

With such a long ballot facing residents when they go to the polls Nov. 3, it is possible Canton voters will pay little atention to the one local proposal on the November ballot.

Proposal A was put on the ballot by the township board of trustees and seeks to amend Canton's Merit Ordinance in several areas.

It's Happy haunting at Jaycees' house

If you get your kicks out of spooks, the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees want to send a few chills up and down your spine with their haunted house.

The house opened on Friday and will be available for tours from 7:30-10:30 p.m. Sundays through Thursdays. The scares and creeps will continue at the haunted house through Oct. 30.

The location has been changed from a Michigan Avenue building to a house across the street from Canton Township hall on Canton Center Road south of Cherry Hill.

Admission is $5 for adults and $4 for children under 12 years old.

Friendly monsters, for children, will be on hand Friday nights from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Proceeds will benefit the Plymouth-Canton Jaycee Park and the Canton Community Foundation.

The foundation provides scholarships and supports Canton Sell-a-bration; Canton Challenge and the Canton Economic Club, which meets monthly. The foundation also supports a number of local organizations.

Feds investigate grant sought by Plymouth schools

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

At the request of members of Congress, the General Accounting Office is investigating charges that an educational grant applied for by districts including the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools was awarded to a Texas district because of political considerations, according to "Education Week."

The Washington-based "Education Week" functions as a watchdog for scholastic interests nationwide.

Plymouth-Canton schools, with the help of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, applied for the $6 million grant designed to help integrate technology into K-12 instruction.

Local school officials were optimistic Plymouth-Canton would receive the grant. Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben drafted the proposal and testified before Congress. It was hoped that the district could become a national demonstration site for high technology in the classroom.

High-tech equipment is being installed, using $12 million in bond money recently approved by Plymouth-Canton voters.

When the grant recently was awarded to McKinney Independent School District in Texas, Hoben said the decision, coming in an election year, likely was politically motivated.

Pursell took exception to Hoben's remark. "For Mike Hoben to say this was a political decision because of Texas being is outrageous. Congress doesn't operate that way," said Pursell, who is stepping down this year.

"We lost fair and square. It's a competitive bid process and we came out 37th of 102 applicants."

According to "Education Week," a top official in the U.S. Department of Education overrode the recommendations of a peer-review panel in awarding the grant to McKinney schools.

McKinney didn't receive the highest score from the peer review panel. It ranked fourth, the paper said. The applicant with the highest-scoring proposal wasn't identified.

Diane Ravitch, assistant secretary of education for educational research and improvement, denied that the presidential election played a role in awarding the grants, among the biggest ever funded by the department.

Ravitch acknowledged that the way McKinney was chosen was unorthodox. Ravitch, who described the highest-scoring proposal as "weak," re-opened the review process last month after members of Sen. Edward Kennedy's staff complained that a Massachusetts grant request hadn't been considered fairly.

"After meeting with department officials, Ravitch said she decided to invoke her authority to select the grantee, and she picked the McKinney district after reading the top seven proposals," Education Week reported.

She denied being swayed by political concerns. Ravitch said that had she wanted to make a politically motivated decision, she would have selected a bidder from a state whose senator oversees the agency in Congress, the paper reported.

Hoben said the district will move ahead with the high technology program regardless. He is contacting companies such as IBM and Digital to see if there's interest in furnishing the schools with demonstration equipment.

Six run for Library Board

BY DIANE GALE
STAFF WRITER

The Canton library board has been a neglected race, even though those elected will preside over a $1.9 million budget.

The library levies 1.7 mills on Canton property owners and serves as an autonomous governing body apart from township government.

Canton's library on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill is expected to circulate more than 600,000 materials this year.

Six people are running to fill six vacancies.

They include current library board members, James Gillig, Katherine Baldrica, David Bone and Bill Simmerer. The fifth candidate is Greg Stachura. All five candidates have filled out nominating petitions and will appear on the ballot.

Library board members are also supporting write-in candidate Beverly Way, a Canton resident.

Board members meet at least once monthly and they are not paid.

"It's a hard working position," according to Library Board Director Jean Tabor.

"We just finished long range planning," she said. "The only satisfaction is seeing the library being such a success. It's a governing board. We are a taxing body. We're totally autonomous."

The Canton library is expected to circulate more than 600,000 materials this year.

The most critical issue currently facing the library is a proposed move to join Metro Net.

Canton, along with six other libraries in Wayne and Oakland counties, is looking at breaking away from the Wayne Oakland Library Federation.

Since the seven libraries are well-stocked and adequately funded by local millages they say they don't need WOLF services.

Oktoberfest raises $8,000 for speech-impaired kids

The Oktoberfest for Kids family outing in Canton last week reportedly attracted 700 people and raised $8,000 for the Children's Miracle Network and William Beaumont Hospital's Children's Services.

It was sponsored and organized by the real estate office of RE/Max Crossroads at Heritage Park in Canton.

Party goers played games and activites such as a moon walk, bean bag toss, cake walk and pumpkin drawing with markers. RE/MAX broker and owner, Chuck Hromek, took his spills for charity in a dunk tank.

The event was filled with food, refreshments, a bake sale, a magician, a face painter, live band and a disc jockey, as well as raffles with drawings for prizes every hour.

"We are very pleased with how well the event went, said Lillian Sanderson, a RE AX Crossroads Realtor.

"From 50 different Canton businesses donating over 70 prizes to the hundreds of people that attended, it's clear that the community really cares about kids. RE/MAX Crossroads was happy to help it all come together."

In addition to holding fund-raisers, participating local RE AX Realtors are raising money for Beaumont's Children's Services by donating a portion of their commissions from each and every home they sell. Local RE/MAX Realtors are providing the necessary funding to be the sole sponsor of Beaumont's Communication Station Preschool, Michigan's only hospital-based, fully licensed preschool program for children who have speech and language impairments.

Clerk's suit settled

The Canton Board of Trustees has authorized the settlement of a lawsuit filed by former Canton Clerk Linda Chuhran.

The board approved a $14,000 settlement, well below the figure sought.

The money will be awarded to Chuhran's attorneys. Settling the suit over legal fees should put an end to legal wrangling between Chuhran and Canton during the past six years, according to Canton Clerk Loren Bennett.

Chuhran sued the township with allegations that her responsibilities as clerk were being usurped.

Debate unlikely in house race

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Republican state House nominee Steven Cabrera continues to challenge Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, to debate him in the 18th District race.

But Barns, still angry over what she has called campaign lies by Cabrera, has stood firm in her refusal to even consider debating him unless he apologizes.

The standoff has continued for weeks, and it appears unlikely to end just two weeks before the Nov. 3 election.

Cabrera, a 33-year-old employee of Michigan National Bank's sales and real estate finance division, has mounted an aggressive campaign to unseat Barns, who's seeking a sixth two-year term at age 67.

In a recent letter to Barns, Cabrera invited her to a series of three debates, saying Westland citizens have repeatedly asked him if the candidates would square off in public.

■ 'As a public official and a candidate for public office, I believe it is our duty to participate in debates.'

Steven Cabrera

"As a public official and a candidate for public office, I believe it is our duty to participate in debates," Cabrera wrote.

Barns has refused his invitation and accused him of campaign lies for saying she spent $120,000 on her 1990 re-election bid. Campaign expense reports have indicated she spent just $36,045.

Cabrera has refused to explain the discrepancy, but has said he would elaborate if Barns agrees to debate him. He has said the $120,000 figure came from research conducted by his campaign staff.

Barns' staff, meanwhile, has rejected claims that she has refused to face Cabrera on the issues. The two have been questioned during forums sponsored in Canton Township by the League of Women Voters, in Dearborn Heights by a group of churches, and by the Observer Newspapers.

For Cabrera to claim that Barns hasn't faced him "is a slap in the face to those people," said Barns' aide Eileen DeHart. "What are these people — chopped liver?"

On Thursday, DeHart noted that Cabrera appears to have changed some of his statements about the money Barns' spent on her last campaign. In recent election fliers that went to absentee voters, Cabrera dropped the $120,000 figure and said that Barns spent "tens of thousands of dollars" in the 1990 race.

Call it the prize-fight battle of the megabyte microchip coming to a polling place near you.

The purse? A $78,000 a year job as treasurer of Wayne County.

In the challenger's corner, spending about $10,000 on her campaign, is former Livonia city treasurer Elaine Tuttle, a Republican.

■ ELECTION '92

Wojtowicz

Tuttle

She says that 16-year incumbent county treasurer Ray Wojtowicz, 63, is way behind in computerizing the treasurer's office, which costs the county money in everything from postage to wages.

Tuttle is trying to unseat Wojtowicz (pronounced voy-'tow-vich) based almost entirely on that criticism.

"Ray's a good guy, but nothing has been done with the computers for the 16 years he's been there," she said. "At the county (treasurer's office) a lot of things are still done by hand."

In the incumbent's corner, spending about $6,000 on his campaign, is Wojtowicz.

In a separate interview, he agreed that the treasurer's office needs computer upgrades, and most of what Tuttle suggests is in the pipeline, but he can't get it all done by waving his hand.

"The computerization system we have does meet our immediate needs, but I'm not satisfied with it," he said, adding that the county doesn't have enough money to make all the desired improvements at once. "In all practicality, you have to have the wherewithall in order to accomplish a goal," he said.

Tuttle, 50, said that with a $500 computer program the treasurer's office could begin using the nine-digit ZIP code, thereby saving one-half cent on every letter sent through the mail. Wojtowicz said the ZIP-plus-four system Tuttle referred to is being planned now and will be installed soon.

Tuttle also criticized Wojtowicz on the billing of delinquent taxpayers. As Livonia treasurer, she said she sent a computer tape record of delinquent taxpayers to the county treasurer's office in April, but the county didn't send bills out to some of the taxpayers until October, also dunning for an interest charge since March 1.

"I would think that if you had computer tapes, those bills would go out a lot sooner than that," she said.

Tuttle's other complaints are that . . .

■ The county treasurer's office does not deposit some checks until two months after receiving them, thereby losing interest income.

■ Taxpayers find it difficult to reach the treasurer's office on the phone.

Wojtowicz admits that some of Tuttle's criticisms are valid, but to make changes in the computer system he has to work through the county's information processing department, which also works to upgrade computers throughout county government. Most of the changes Tuttle suggests, Wojtowicz said, will be in place within the next four years.

Steve Goodhall, director of the information processing department, said there have been plenty of computer upgrades since Wojtowicz took office, and "(the treasurer's office) is in the best shape of any county department as far as computerization is concerned."

In response to Tuttle's assertion that he can make changes unilaterally, Wojtowicz said, "That shows how much people know about county government."

Tuttle, who ran unsuccessfully for Livonia mayor last year and county commissioner in 1984 and 1986, has a certain amount of baggage coming into this race.

While she served as Livonia treasurer from 1980 to 1991, Tuttle filed a number of lawsuits against the city and refused to sign checks for things she thought the city shouldn't spend money on.

Tuttle blames her controversial reign as Livonia treasurer on a male-dominated city government. "Politics is basically a man's world," she said.

Before 1980 Tuttle was an auditor, controller and accountant for various companies in Wayne County. She has a certificate in accounting and financial administration from Walsh College, earned in 1972.

Wojtowicz has been the county treasurer since 1976, but worked from 1952 to 1970 in quality control for several aerospace companies that built Army rockets. He has also been mayor of Hamtramck (1970-1973) and a Wayne County Community College trustee.

Catherine Wheel rolls on 'Metallic'

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

One-hit wonders or a band onto something majestic?

Only time will tell.

Meanwhile, Catherine Wheel's "Black Metallic" is to be wholly savored. It's an indelible pop song, exploding into a glittering array of guitar atmospherics that envelops mind and spirit and transports them into a scintillating realm during its eight-minute duration.

In attempts to fully grasp its blissful ramifications, analogizes to Led Zeppelin's overplayed classic "Stairway to Heaven" have even been bantered about.

Overstretching it a bit, perhaps, but song of the year is not out of the question.

"Surprised?, yes," said singer Rob Dickinson in a telephone interview about the favorable reactions to the number. "The song was being played on import well before the album ("Ferment" on Fontana/Mercury). Being so long, I was surprised radio would be interested in it."

"Ferment" is a stunning evidence Catherine Wheel is beyond the one-hit domain. Encased in swirling, sonic guitar induced soundscapes is an outfit with above-average songwriting acumen.

That gets lost in all the hoopla of "Black Metallic" and carelessly being lumped into the "shoe-gazing" crowd of such pedestrian English bands as Curve, Blur and Ride.

Unlike those soundscape outfits, Dickinson and bandmates Brian Futter, Dave Hawes and Neil Sims create guitar music with a searing edge. Dickinson adds the band's dense sound is becoming even more focused and less textural on this tour that has included 180 gigs so far.

"Our live sound is getting more aggressive, more unpredictable," he said.

Few would have predicted such a rapid ascent for the Great Yarmouth, England based outfit. Their two EPs "She's My Friend" and "Painful Thing" crashed onto the British indie charts, leading to their debut LP "Ferment" to be highly anticipated.

For Dickinson, success is really all in the family. His cousin is Iron Maiden lead singer Bruce Dickinson, who apparently approves of the Catherine Wheel's musical tactics.

"He came along to our first gig in London," Dickinson said. "I told him he might come incognito and he showed up in a bright orange anorak and stood in the middle of the floor with his arms folded while critiquing us. He likes what we're doing actually."

Catherine Wheel will perform as part of the Spin/Fontana Tour, featuring House of Love and Ocean Color Scene, on Wednesday, Oct. 21, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Advance tickets are $13.50. For information, call 961-MELT.

Code Industry brings the music home

■ You would think that being from Detroit, Code Industry would be making it in Motown. But not so. The four-man band had to go to Europe to gain recognition for their industrial dance music, which may explain the anger reflected in their verses.

Breaking the Code: Code Industry members William Keith, E.N. Sevy, Rob Myers and Kyl Cris tackle racism, drug abuse and other plagues on society on its Antler Subway/Caroline release "Young Men Coming to Power."

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

The message is rather explicit: "Detroit, the dead city, your image is carved in stone. It can not be erased. Burn it up!"

Its author, Rob Myers, makes no apologies for the sentence scrawled on the liner notes of his band's Code Industry's latest release, except to say he was a little angry at the time.

The city's stagnation is only one focal point for his rage, though. Racism, drug abuse, the media and ignorance regarding AIDS are forceably scorned in an all-encompassing 14-tracks on the Austrian label Antler Subway (distributed stateside on Caroline).

The band's lack of support in its home city brought about the message on the sleeve.

"I don't know what it is," said Myers, 26, who's earnest and congenial in explaining his band's music. "We're from here. We're signed, which is unlike a lot of groups here, and I think we're good."

Code Industry invites paradox.

As four black men they excel in the white-dominated medium of industrial dance music. More so, intertwined in their keyboard-generated and sample-laden sound a larger, universal message is being put forth.

Industrial dance music with a meaning is a daunting task. Granted, the target's rather obvious.

To explore the evils and euphoria of drug abuse as Myers does in three tracks: "Suffer," "Faceless" and "Last Breath," one couldn't call Code Industry efforts cursory, though. But are people listening?

"They are and they're not," Myers said. "They are in a way, but they're not looking underneath it all to what it really means.

"I don't think a lot of people are ready for Code Industry," he added later. "I don't think people want to be reminded of the ugliness of racism. I don't think people want to be reminded of the ugliness of political corruption.

Nonetheless, they're going to hear it anyway. With it, listeners may be also taken aback by Code Industry's sound.

Foregoing the banality of pummeling pulse beats, William Keith, E.N. Sevy, Kyl Chris and Myers' venture into industrial music that is more drawn out with the keyboard dirge wafting from the taut lyrics. The result is a deliberate and ominous effect, which has the industrial music world on its ear.

Since the band's formation in 1985, Code Industry (they first operated under the name Code Assault) has made sizable strides. Initially, the group started out as a dance pop band but an affinity for the music of Thomas Dolby, Tangerine Dream and Depeche Mode and refused to leave it there.

Code Industry cut a few singles. A friend, WDET deejay Alan Oldham, took one of the group's 12-inch singles, "Action," to the New Music Seminar in New York to impressionable ears.

Antler Subway seized the opportunity and promptly released the outfit's singles in Europe. "We didn't really want to release it at first because they were demos," Myers said.

"Young Men Coming to Power" is a culmination of experimental forays. The recording process only took three weeks, completed at The Underground Studios in Warren.

Already, Myers said he's working on songs for the next album tentatively due out sometime in winter. One song is titled, "Salome," which distinguishes between a woman's inner and outer beauty. Another song focuses on violence.

Code Industry's sound will also continue to evolve, Myers said.

"It has a personality," he said. "It's hard to categorize us. There's few groups to compare us to."

STREET SENSE

Father has right to be person he is

BARBARA SCHIFF

Dear Ms. Schiff:

At the request of my mother, I am writing to you to inform you of an incident that was very upsetting to me.

As a three-pack a day smoker, I finally stopped smoking on Aug. 24, 1992. As you can imagine, this is not an easy effort. Yet, with the aid of Nicoderm, so far I've been successful.

The upsetting incident involving this matter is that my father, as usual, is not supportive of this effort. He made me pay for the Nicoderm patch. Also, his comment was, "It's no big deal to stop smoking."

My mother has been very supportive of the effort. She's even signed me up at a health club in the city in which I live so that I can incorporate an exercise regime into this program.

Ultimately, what bothers me about this is not that my father made me pay for the patches but rather the continued lack of support from my father in any aspect of my life — whether it be quitting smoking, graduate school, my career and future career objectives.

I would like your input on this, so that I can deal with future disappointments from my father in a better way.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
J.

Dear J.:

My congratulations to you for your accomplishment. If you follow this pattern you will achieve success in your further endeavors as well.

May I add a recommendation to my compliment? Do not fall into the trap of emphasizing what a terrible man your father is. He has a right to be who he is and you have the right to develop into an independent, self-sufficient, creative adult.

As such an adult you will not need others, even your father, for you to become a person you can like and respect.

Barbara

'Of Mice and Men' remains an American classic

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

As far as adaptations of classic novels, you can't get much better than the new "Of Mice and Men." Not only is it faithful to the tone and characters of John Steinbeck's Depression-era novel, it also has an Oscar-caliber performance from John Malkovich as the simple-minded Lenny.

Some say that this story of friendship between two itinerant ranch hands was practically written for the screen. The detailed settings, character descriptions and dialogue of the book, which is less than 100 pages long, has transformed incredibly well to film, television and theater.

This time around, director Gary Sinise and screenwriter Horton Foote have decided not to monkey with it much at all. Some scenes have been trimmed, a couple added, but the timeless qualities of the story remain remarkably intact.

Director Sinise also stars as George, who makes the circuit of California ranches with his best friend Lenny in tow. Lenny is retarded and his poor judgment and passion for stroking soft things keeps them in constant hot water.

"I'd be so much better off without you," George says time and again to the dim-witted Lenny, yet the two stay together, fueled by the dream of settling on their own ranch. For George, a place of their own means no more working for slave-driving bosses. Lenny simply wants to tend the rabbits.

John Malkovich ("Dangerous Liaisons") didn't originally seem large enough to play Lenny. How could he compete with Lon Chaney Jr., whose performance in the impressive 1940 film version has remained one of the most enduring single characterizations in film history?

Malkovich, with his high forehead and thick features, is up to the challenge with his intelligent reading of a mental handicap. He towers physically over co-star Gary Sinise and only once do you get an embarrassing glimpse of Frankenstein-like lifts in his shoes.

Sinise, who like Malkovich is a veteran of Chicago's Steppenwolf Theatre, makes an effective, if too-handsome, George. One of the few added scenes in the story hints at a possible romance between him and the sole woman on the ranch ("Twin Peaks" Sherilyn Fenn), but it remains tastefully low-key.

Fenn's sympathetic femme fatale highlights the well-chosen supporting cast. "My Favorite Martian's" Ray Walston plays the aging Candy, whose loss of his crippled-up old dog sends audiences on the first of many trips to the Kleenex box.

The antique-tinted cinematography and Mark Isham's pastoral musical score are both gorgeous but in no way intrusive. In fact, the film's talent for understatement adds to the realism and dignity of characters in the midst of broken dreams and painful decisions.

Great acting: John Malkovich turns in a stellar performance as the dim-witted Lenny in "Of Mice and Men."

"Solaris" (USSR — 1972), 8 p.m. Oct. 19-20. Andrei Tarkovsky directed the hallucinatory adaptation of the science fiction novel by Stanislaw Lem about a psychologist investigating strange deaths on an orbiting space station near a remote planet.

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call 832-2730 for information. ($5)

"Rocco and His Brothers" (Italy — 1960), 7 p.m. Oct. 23. Luchino Visconti's epic tale of five brothers who emigrate to Milan was cut by 30 minutes in its original release. It's shown here in the full version, thanks to the preservation efforts of Martin Scorsese among others.

"Andrei Rublev" (USSR — 1969), 7 p.m. Oct. 24 and 4 p.m. Oct. 25. The renowned 15th century painter is brought to life by Soviet director Andrei Tarkovsky. Like most of the late director's works, it's a long haul at 185 minutes, but well worth the effort.

"Feed" (USA — 1992), 2 p.m. Oct. 25. A 76-minute collection of sound-bites featuring Bill Clinton, George Bush and Ross Perot in moments when they forget the camera is still running.

"Blade Runner" (USA — 1982). The re-released director's cut of Ridley Scott's influential sci-fi film stars Harrison Ford as a futuristic policeman on the trail of runaway robots. The irritating voice-over narration is gone and the ending has been changed to the bleaker one that Scott originally envisioned.

■ MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students and senior citizens)

"Ali — Fear Eats the Soul" (Germany — 1974), 7 and 9 p.m. Oct. 19. In this early film from late director Rainer Werner Fassbinder, a German widow in her 60s marries a much younger Moroccon man. The director also appears in this fascinating remake of the '50s Hollywood tearjerker "All That Heaven Allows."

"Wild Wheels" (USA — 1990), 7:30 p.m. Oct. 22. A wild and wacky look at California's obsession with souped-up and wildly modified automobiles. This short documentary should strike a chord with Motor City car buffs as well.

■ REDFORD THEATRE
17360 Lahser Road, Detroit. Call 537-2560 for information. ($2.50)

"Daddy Long Legs" (USA — 1955), 8 p.m. Oct. 23; 2 and 8 p.m. Oct. 24 (organ overture begins 30 minutes before show time). Fred Astaire stars as a playboy who adopts an orphan girl only to have her grow up and fall in love with him.

■ STAR JOHN R
32289 John R, Madison Heights. Call 585- 2070. (Tickets $6; $3.75 before 6 p.m.).

"Light Sleeper" (USA — 1992). Willem Dafoe and Susan Sarandon play drug dealers forced to re-evaluate their careers and relationships in a hostile modern landscape. The latest from Paul Schrader, the director of "Patti Hearst" and writer of "Taxi Driver." As with most of Schrader's pictures, expect a fascinating mess.

■ STATE THEATER
2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call 961-5450 for information. ($1.89)

"The Exorcist" (USA — 1973), 9 p.m. Oct. 19. William Friedkin directed the still-shocking account of a girl (Linda Blair) possessed by Satan. Ellen Burstyn and Max von Sydow co-star, but young Regan is still the head-turner as mother and the church try to rid her of the evil.

■ STATE WAYNE THEATER
35310 Michigan Ave., Wayne. All films play nightly from Wednesday through Sunday. Call 326-4600 for show times. ($2; $1 students and senior citizens)

"The Gunfighter" (USA — 1950). Gregory Peck has one of his greatest roles as a gunslinger trying to live down his violent past. Moody, low-key direction by Henry King makes this one of the great unsung westerns.

More Detroit suburban car buyers

The SPRING Newspapers' circulation more than doubles the daily suburban circulation of either The Detroit News or Free Press.

In fact, SPRING's suburban circulation is greater than the two metro dailies' combined.

And that's not all.

According to the 1991 Belden study, SPRING reaches more of the affluent suburban consumers who have more—and spend more.

▶ 44,500 more purchasers of new vehicles than The News (21,900 more than the Free Press).

▶ 53,900 more purchasers of used vehicles than The News (23,100 more than the Free Press).

▶ 52,500 more households with three or more vehicles than The News (5,700 more than the Free Press).

Not to mention more TBA purchasers, boat owners, and owners of expensive homes.

Simply put, one order in SPRING delivers more.

Forsyth's 'Gregory's Girl' is a gentle Scottish comedy

PASS THE POPCORN

LeANNE ROGERS

A recent five-inch growth spurt has left teenager Gregory rather at odds with his gangly arms and legs. He moves along in fits and starts like an ostrich. It's that leap in size that Gregory attributes for his increasingly dismal performance on his school's soccer team. They've lost the last eight games in a row, much to the chagrin of the team's hyperactive coach.

The young hero of the 1980 Scottish comedy "Gregory's Girl" assures his coach that football is only entertainment. "We give them a good laugh," says Gregory. The coach decides to hold tryouts and Gregory loses his position as striker. The good-natured Gregory, played by Gordon John Sinclair, manages to finagle a one-week tryout to stay on the team, this time as a goalie.

As luck would have it, Gregory is replaced on the soccer team by a classmate. Not just any classmate. A terrific player, Dorothy is quick, graceful, blonde, leggy and worshipped by her less skilled teammates.

Bill Forsyth's gentle comedy isn't really a battle between the sexes. It's a war that's over before it starts as the more mature girls have complete control over their social interactions with the boys who often don't have a clue to what is happening.

■ It's a war that's over before it starts as the more mature girls have complete control over their social interactions with the boys who often don't have a clue to what is happening.

The lovelorn Gregory soars when he thinks about Dorothy and sinks when he laments the state of his would-be romance. But, as his friend points out, Gregory ought to at least ask her for a date before complaining that his romance has gone astray. It's that invitation that sets Gregory on a wild goose chase of an evening that doesn't turn out at all like he expected. In the end, he doesn't really mind.

Like his later films, such as "Local Hero," Forsyth adds some whimsical touches to this amusing little comedy. Trying to cross a street, the gawky Gregory ends up pursued by a student driver. Then it turns out the instructor is his father.

For all his confusion, Gregory at least makes more progress with the girls than do a couple of his buddies. They try to meet girls at lunch with snappy informative opening lines about how sneezing sends projectiles at more than 100 miles per hour.

Out of desperation, the two end up on the highway with their thumbs up. Caracas or bust, after one tells the other there are eight women to one man in that city.

Sinclair is very likeable as the good-natured Gregory, with all his adolescent ticks and eccentricities. It's an amusing confection of a film.

Whiskey-drinking white males had good points

There's an idea out there that drunken white men have screwed up the country, if not the world.

The idea was brewed and bottled on college campuses, it's vintage academe 1992. Not a particularly good year, too dry.

Just the other day I was flipping through a college history book when a woodcut caught my attention. It was a depiction of voting day in the 1830s. Guys who spent most of their time behind a mule went to town for the day.

The caption stopped me. It took note that only white men, many of whom were drunk, were the people voting. The observation was right, but the assumption wrong. The assumption is that things were bad before the Civil War because only drunken white men voted; as though things are perfect now that women and blacks can vote.

If that were true, chances are there never would have been a Civil War and women probably wouldn't be voting. The fact is, white males, many of whom took a nip of whiskey now and then, voted for a president who started the War Between the States and then later voted to allow women to vote.

One of those white males who tended to drink a bit was Civil War General U.S. Grant. One story goes that when Lincoln was told that Grant had a bit of a drinking problem, Lincoln responded with: "Find out what he's drinking and send some of it to my other generals."

The reasoning here was that Grant was the only northern general able to win a battle.

But when it came to white males mixing politics with a couple of drinks, nobody had anything on the founding fathers.

These white males with a taste for the grape and anything else that could be fermented would have made a convention of Elks look like the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

It seems that when these guys showed up to sign the U.S. Constitution, they were probably nursing hangovers. Two days before the Constitution was signed on Sept. 17 1787, the First Light Cavalry threw a party for George Washington at the City Tavern.

According to the National Constitutional Center, the bill for the party shows that 55 men consumed 54 bottles of madeira, 60 bottles of claret, eight bottles of whiskey, 22 bottles of port, eight bottles of cider, 12 bottles of beer and seven bowls of alcoholic punch.

But drunk or sober, these white males came up with an agreement that we're still using. Chances are they did a better job than all the sober folks now in Congress, and this is with a culturally diverse membership.

The point here is that historians, liberals, sociologists and newspaper people are trying to prove that women and blacks should be involved in government because in the old days we just had drunk white men making decisions.

I've even come in for the same kind of criticism. People who don't like my column call my boss and tell her I look drunk or hung over in my picture, just another drunk white male screwing things up.

Also, these folks tend to ignore prohibition during the 1920s. It came about when women got the vote. They pulled the lever on the saloons, drying up the country and creating the largest criminal class, the bootleggers, in recent history. That reform movement, backed by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, caused thousands of deaths and poured millions of dollars into the hands of gangsters.

Let's face it, this country was settled and its government created by white males, many of whom took a sip of whiskey on occasion. They didn't do that bad a job. I feel in good company, so please pass the Jack Daniels.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers who plans on getting a new picture taken to go with his column.

College rivalry creates a cultural crisis for dad

I'm a father caught in the midst of a cultural conflict. While it certainly doesn't compare with the on-going crisis in what used to be Yugoslavia, there are some squabbles.

My crisis peaks every Saturday afternoon during the fall. One relative is happy while the other is sad. Rarely are they both happy by Saturday night.

The conflict began in earnest two months ago when my youngest daughter, Rebecca, started her freshman year at Michigan State University. Her older sister, Sarah, is a junior at the University of Michigan.

Sports columnists and TV commentators have a good time making fun of the football fortunes or tragedies at the two schools.

On a family level, my daughters maintain a humorous approach to their universities.

In one instance, my Spartan daughter bragged about the season football tickets being 10 percent less than those in Ann Arbor because of better fiscal management of the athletic department budget.

LEONARD POGER

But my Wolverine daughter quickly replied that the MSU football tickets are less than U-M's because the Spartans offer an inferior product.

The cultural conflicts really began when I was growing up; the cultural environment clearly favored Michigan as the school to attend.

Rebecca was accepted by both the institutions, but there was no hesitation that she would be wearing the Spartans' green and white.

As the father, I had to maintain a semblance of academic neutrality.

While I have a longer and deeper affection for U-M, Michigan State is starting to grow on me.

Visually, East Lansing is a beautiful, picturesque campus with the Red Cedar River running through the middle. Compared to Ann Arbor, which has an older and contrasting development history, most of MSU's buildings are relatively modern.

But my life has changed with a split family.

One news contact, a school principal and MSU grad, quipped that while his favorite school is sarcastically referred to as "Cow College," "the cows really attend U-M."

On campus visits, I have observed several differences.

In Ann Arbor, there must be a shortage of makeup for the young women and a surplus of sandals. For a moment, I felt I was back in the 1960s, expecting to witness yet-another protest against the Vietnam War or the board of regents' latest attack on students' rights. But I love the variety of coffee shops along State Street and the changing of colors of the trees in the diag.

At MSU, students appear to be more upbeat while walking to and from their dorm and cheerful in giving a visitor directions.

In contrast, Michigan students walking across the diag look like they were on their way to the dentist for root canal work.

Those are merely personal observations, not a comprehensive evaluation of the merits of the two schools.

I have two visual reminders of the divided loyalties.

On my birthday last April, my daughters gave me a sweatshirt from the "Great Divide" store at Twelve Oaks which specializes in clothing and souvenirs from the two schools. The design of the sweatshirt has a maize and blue block M on one side and a green and white block S on the other.

While vacationing this summer, I passed by a store which was displaying a three-foot long wind sock which combined the Michigan and Michigan State letters and colors. I couldn't resist.

Just add that $20 bill to the growing cost of higher education.

Leonard Poger, community editor of the Observer Newspapers in Garden City and Westland, has a closet bursting with an ever-growing assortment of maize-and-blue and green-and-white clothing and souvenirs.

Airport committee argues with staff

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County residents deafened by the din of jetliners will be chagrined to hear that officials tasked with finding ways to reduce the noise spent 30 minutes of a three-hour meeting Friday arguing about when and how often they should meet.

The discussion got so heated at one point that everyone was talking at once, after which Commissioner Bryan Amman, R-Canton, said, "I don't think we need a vice-presidential debate (here)."

Lester Robinson, the deputy director of county airport operations, contended that meeting once a week, as airport noise committee chairwoman Susan Hubbard wants to do, doesn't give him or other administration personnel enough time to prepare.

Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, told Robinson he was "way out of line" to object so strenuously to weekly meetings, particularly because he hadn't objected the week before at a similar meeting.

Later Beard said, "We don't think (Robinson) should be disagreeable when he disagrees."

Hubbard also wants to schedule a meeting of the special committee on airport noise for Oct. 27 instead of Oct. 30 because several of the officials can't make it on the 30th.

Beard was upset in that regard because she's all tied up that day. So someone suggested a night meeting. "I can't do it night time," Beard said. "There are just too many things I'm involved in at night."

Later Beard said, "That really bothered me because I want to be there for every single meeting. People's lives are being so drastically impacted by airport noise."

Once the "bickering," as Amann called it, subsided, Hubbard said, "Now let's finish. Let's try to get through some work." Fifteen minutes later she left, more than an hour before the meeting ended.

Hubbard hopes to convene the committee once a week between now and the end of November. So far the commissioners are about one-third of the way through a list of 34 noise reduction rules suggested by a company the county hired to help. After they discuss all the rules, the commissioners will make a recommendation to the full board.

The committee members (except Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, who was absent) spent most of the rest of their time Friday discussing the purchase of property from homeowners distressed by jet noise, a policy that is already underway in Romulus.

Mary Vigilante of Landrum & Brown, who is studying noise reduction for the county, displayed a map that shows the areas of greatest distress.

Most of the property in question is in Romulus and Huron Township, with just a bit of it in Westland, Taylor, Inkster and Dearborn Heights. To buy all that property would cost about $300 million, Vigilante said. But much of it would probably be paid for by the federal government and the airlines.

Residents in other cities plagued by jet noise should get at least partial relief after Nov. 9 when a new set of airline routes are allowed to be instituted.

The idea is that there will be five flight paths into and out of Metro Airport from the northeast instead of the two flight paths we have today. Ergo, folks living underneath one of the flight paths now would suffer just one-fifth of the final approaches or takeoffs instead of half.

The new plan also calls for more takeoffs and landings to and from the southwest, which should reduce the number of aircraft over communities northeast of Metro.

The next meeting of the committee is set for 9:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 23, in the Extension Center at 5454 S. Venoy in Wayne.

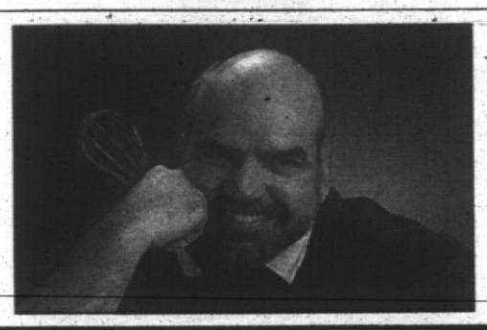
TASTE BUDS



CHEF LARRY JANES

Toast morning with chewy, warm bagels

Bagels are to the East Coast what tortillas are to the Southwest. But the "iron doughnuts" long ago crossed geographical and cultural miles to become a common treat from Philadelphia to Phoenix.

A bagel is simply a round yeast bun with a hole in the middle. It can be eaten alone or topped, warm or toasted. It can be made smooth or twisted, plain or studded with onion flakes, sesame seeds, salt, poppy seeds or even raisins.

Bagel books

In their book "The Bagel Bible," (1992, The Globe Pequot Press,) Marilyn and Tom Bagel, that's right Bagel, have compiled a complete guide featuring bagel facts and fiction, recipes, serving suggestions and even bagel favorites of the rich and famous. Priced at only $9.95, this paperback is a must read for any true bagel enthusiast.

A true bagel, according to Joan Nathan in "Jewish Holiday Cooking," (1988, Schocken Books), is made from white wheat, high gluten flour and is plain. European and Israeli versions are thinner and crustier than the commercialized American bagel.

The bagel's satiny sheen and crust comes from first being parboiled in water, which also reduces the starch content. Then bagels are brushed with an egg wash before oven baking. The traditional water bagel is made without eggs and, because it doesn't contain fat, is chewier than an egg bagel, another American invention.

Breakfast food

Bagels are a great breakfast food, can substitute for a luncheon sandwich or may be served as an alternative to dinner rolls. Halved mini bagels make great hors d'oeuvres and mini pizzas, even when sprinkled with a variety of "frostings."

The most traditional topping for a bagel is cream cheese. Lox (smoked salmon) is another favorite which is usually accompanied with sliced onion and diced tomatoes.

Although the simplicity of cream cheese and a warm bagel is in this writer's mind near perfection, variations on the theme are wonderful extras. With the introduction of flavored cream cheeses, bagels can now be topped with fruit, herb and/or savory additions like chive.

Reduced fat and other "lite" varieties of cream cheeses have sent bagel producers to new heights opening their market to yet even more calorie conscious consumers.

There's little argument that a fresh warm bagel is nothing short this side of "heavenly." There are a few tricks of the trade that need to be passed along to keep those bagels fresh and moist, especially when the only way to buy them is by the proverbial dozen.

Storage tips

To keep bagels overnight, leave the bagels in a plasic bag at room temperature. To keep two or three days, keep the bagels in the plastic bag in a sealed container in the refrigerator. To keep longer than three days, they are best kept in a plastic bag in the freezer.

To warm bagels (or freshen stale ones) I've read that you should first sprinkle them with a little water and wrap in foil, then warm gently in a 350 degree oven for 10 minutes.

Unfortunately, they never last that long at the Janes Gang house. One word to the wise is that you should never wrap warm bagels or they will get unbearably soggy. Always allow them to cool first, then wrap in foil or a plastic bag for optimum results.

Making bagels

The metro area has many small bagel outlets where folks like you and me can buy them. Tuesday nights usually offer a two-for-one deal, but with all due respects, they are fairly easy (and inexpensive) to make at home.

There are even recipes to make bagels in those nifty home bread machines. I've included a recipe for easy bagels that looks far more difficult than it really is to make.

Similar to a basic egg bread, the only additional step requires the bagel baker to drop the rounded dough into boiling water one at a time before baking for about one minute. This is a necessary step that gives bagels their characteristic chewiness.

Of course, for the culinarily uninformed, you can venture off to the grocery store for a package of frozen bagels, but once you've tasted a warm bagel direct from the oven, you too will notice quite a difference.

So if you like the taste of a homemade bagel, remember an old Yiddish recipe for bagels from Joan Nathan's "Jewish Holiday Kitchen" that says "first you take a hole and put some dough around it. . ."

See Janes Family recipes inside.

discover hearty GERMAN fare

■ Hans Delicatessen and Import in Troy has the foods that German Americans crave — hearty black breads, sausages and desserts.

BY JOAN BORAM
SPECIAL WRITER

Every school child knows that Detroit was originally a French city, but German immigrants, who started arriving in numbers early in the 19th century, quickly made their mark on the fortified town.

It has been said that the first thing the Germans established was a church, and the second a newspaper. Indeed, the French were not newspaper readers, and Detroit existed from 1701-1809 without any newspaper of any sort. The first German newspaper, the "Michigan Democrat," was founded in 1844.

After a church and a newspaper, could breweries be far behind? or sausage makers? or bakeries? Hearty bread, with wurst and a stein of beer, and Black Forest cake!

German-born Inge Hosp has been presiding over a little bit of Germany in Troy for over 20 years. You can't get a cold brew at Hans Delicatessen and Import, 1049 East Long Lake Road, but there are cold cuts and sausages made by German sausage makers in America, including Detroit's own Alexander and Hornung. Other sausages come from New York or Chicago.

"We have some imported German black breads," said Hosp, "and on Thursday and Saturday we have fresh German-style rolls, crisp on the outside, and chewy on the inside.

"Occasionally, we have homemade cakes baked by a German lady who lives in the area. We also have imported noodles, jam, mustard, cake mixes and other foodstuffs that German-born Americans crave."

Since 80 percent of the deli's customers are from Germany, it's only appropriate that 90 percent of the employees speak German, including manager Christine Olsztyn who was born in Poland.

There's a little cafe in the store, serving soups, salads and sandwiches. A very popular sandwich is a German-style "Bavarian Delight," a hearty combination of liver loaf, melted Swiss cheese, Bavarian mustard, onion, lettuce and tomato, served on German-style light rye bread.

"In the afternoons, Europeans in the area stop in for coffee and cake," said Hosp. The cafe is not open for dinner.

The store also carries German cards and gift items, and German videos for rent or for sale.

Brenda Wugazzer of Southfield doesn't cook German-style foods, but she and her family have welcomed several German exchange students into their home, and have in turn visited the students in Germany.

"The German custom of eating the main meal at noon is one of the hardest things for an American to get used to," said Wugazzer. "Most often, we would be served saurbraten, goulash, or schnitzel for lunch. A typical meal might be saurbraten and potato pancakes with onions, served with the gravy from the saurbraten

"Then, around 6 p.m. supper would consist of cold cuts and cheese, and perhaps a "monkey"-type bread, that you pull apart. Generally, supper isn't a cooked meal. Families we visited would sometimes offer us a heavier evening meal as a courtesy to our "foreign" tastes, but it wasn't the typical German supper.

"You might think a heavy noon meal would make you sleepy, but the Germans are used to it, and besides they walk everywhere so they walk it off."

Wugazzer adds that the family missed the green salads that they're used to. "A typical German salad consists of julienned white radish, carrots and zucchini. As soon as we get back to the States,

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

In the mid 1980s, German wines lost their luster with many American wine drinkers when they discovered chardonnay. They considered German wines sweet and they wanted to drink dry.

Today, many chardonnays are produced "sweeter" than German wines labeled "dry."

To encourage you to take a new look at German wines, we are discussing the wines of only one producer Deinhard & Company. Founded at the end of the 18th century by Johann Friedrich Deinhard, the firm is one of the largest and universally respected private estate owners.

Holdings total more than 250 acres in the most prestigious vineyards of the Rhine and Mosel. Among these are the largest shares of the famed Bernkasteler Doctor and Wehlener Sonnenuhr vineyards, a well as parcels in more than 40 other outstanding sites.

White wine grapes account for 88 percent of German wine production. About 20 percent of the grapes are the noble riesling, Germany's second most-planted grape variety after Muller-Thurgau, a lesser varietal. Riesling produces wines that are crisp with fruity acidity and have an almost indefinite aging capacity.

German wines are significantly lower in alcohol than chardonnay and their finesse and breed harmonize them easily to a broad spectrum of lighter foods such as seafoods, cold meats, poultry, veal and pork. They are especially flavorful with stir-fried vegetables and roast turkey.

Germany's Mosel and Rhine winegrowing regions experienced a trilogy of exceptional vintages in 1988, 1989 and 1990. These wines are available and represent good values.

As Americans, we're into over-chilling our beverages. Before serving, remove a German wine from the refrigerator for at least 20 minutes. If served too cold, the wine will not immediately reveal its full bouquet, flavor or complexity.

Connoisseurs frequently refer to Deinhard wines as the first "chateaux" wines of Germany. Deinhard has a complete line of wines from a sparkler (referred to as sekt in German) through elegant, lush dessert bottlings.

Deinhard created its first sekt in 1833, when one of the partners married a member of a leading family of Champagne. The sparkler Lila Brut (pronounced Lee-lah) for the German color violet is produced from 100 percent riesling grapes which give it breed and elegance. It sports a generous, fresh fruitiness and long-lived effervescence. Slightly floral and spicy notes pair it well to hors d'oeuvres and at $8.25, Lila Brut is bargain-priced bubbly.

Perfect as an accompaniment to appetizers or fresh fruit is the delicate, apple blossom and floral 1989 Bereich Bernkastel Riesling Q.b.A. ($6.25) from the Mosel-Saar-Ruwer area. It's fresh, clean finish is a great starter wine.

Deinhard's 1990 Riesling Dry ($7) is 100 percent riesling from the Rheinhessen. With only 11 percent alcohol, its fresh dough and baked apple aromas remind us of fall. Pair it with broiled whitefish

Cobbler's Pie

- 1 pound herring fillets
- 1 pint sour cream
- ¼ cup milk
- 3 pounds cooked potatoes, thinly sliced
- 1 pound cooked ham, cut into julienne strips
- 2 onions, minced
- dry bread crumbs for topping pie
- 1 tablespoon butter

Soak the herring fillets for four hours in a bowl of cold water. Drain fillets, pat dry and mince.

Blend together the sour cream and milk in a bowl.

Line the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish with a thin layer of sliced potatoes. Cover with a layer of minced herring and onions, then top with a layer of julienne ham. Continue layering until potatoes, herring, onions and ham are used up. End with a layer of potatoes.

Cover the mixture with the sour cream and milk mixture, then top with dry bread crumbs and dot with the butter. Bake in 350 degree oven for one hour.

Recipe from the Larousse Treasury of Country Cooking

Noodle Pudding

- ½ pound egg noodles
- ¼ pound unsalted butter, at room temperature
- 1½ cups sugar
- 6 eggs, separated
- rind of 1 lemon, grated
- juice of 1 lemon
- 5 ounces raisins
- 4 ounces blanched almonds, slivered

Plunge the noodles into a large pot of boiling water and cook about 12 minutes. Drain, rinse under cold water, then drain again.

While the noodles cook, cream the butter in a large mixing bowl, then gradually blend in the sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat the egg yolks into the sugar mixture one at a time. Stir in lemon rind, lemon juice, raisins and almonds. Combine the noodles with the sugar mixture. Blend thoroughly.

In another large bowl, beat the egg whites with a pinch of salt until stiff. Carefully fold the egg whites into the noodle mixture. Pour pudding into a buttered baking dish and bake at 350 degrees until browned, about 1 hour. Serve hot from the dish.

Apple Pancakes

- 2 cups pancake mix
- 4 tablespoons light brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1⅓ cups milk
- 2 tablespoons melted margarine
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 cups apples, pared, sliced very thin
- ½ cup white sugar
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon

Combine pancake mix, brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add milk, margarine and egg. Mix thoroughly. Fold in apple slices. Cook on hot, lightly greased griddle.

Combine white sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon. When pancakes have cooked on one side, turn and sprinkle with sugar mixture. Do not stack. Serve warm with warm applesauce, honey or syrup.

we head for the nearest salad bar and stuff ourselves with lettuce and tomatoes."

In October, 1992, 38 years after coming to the United States, Hannah Lafollette of Garden City timed a visit to her hometown in the Rhine area in time for onion cake and new wine.

"The only time we make onion cake is before the new wine is bottled. New wine is cloudy, and has a slightly higher alcoholic content than the bottled wine will. Germans prepare certain dishes only during particular seasons, so this is the first time in 38 years that I've had onion cake."

Onion cake is very simple to make, according to LaFollette. "Just take yeast bread dough, and lay it out over a shallow pizza-type pan. Then chop a lot of onions very fine, and saute' with a little bit of very lean bacon, also finely chopped. The onions shouldn't be greasy. Put the onions on the yeast dough, and cover with whipping cream. (Note: NOT whipped cream in a can.) Bake in a 350 degree oven until solid and slightly brown on top. After it's baked, you can't taste the onions. It's just very, very good!"

or trout and enjoy its fruity crisp edge against the slightly carmelized character of broiled fish.

The 1990 Piesporter Riesling ($9.50) is fuller bodied than the Riesling Dry. It showcases rich elements and a good finish. It will pair well with roast chicken, poached white fish with a cream sauce or crab legs.

Lending understanding to the aging potential of German wines is the 1989 Piesporter Goldtropfchen Q.b.A. ($9.50) highlighted by rich apple aromas with a full finish. Serve it with grilled pork tenders or a grilled veal chop.

Even richer is the 1989 Piesporter Goldtropfchen Riesling Spatless ($14) with attractive fresh fruit nose and flavors. This deliciously complex off-dry wine is versatile with fruit and cheese appetizers or a fruit and cheese course ending a meal.

Homemade bagels pack a lot of punch

See Larry Janes' column Taste Buds on Taste front.

Easy Bagels

- 1 package dry yeast
- 1 cup water, divided
- 4 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 2 eggs, beaten
- coarse salt, poppy seeds, sesame seeds, optional

Dissolve the yeast in ½ cup lukewarm water. In a large bowl, sift together the flour and the salt. Add sugar and stir in dissolved yeast and beaten eggs.

Add ½ cup water, or more, enough to make dough pliable without allowing it to get too loose. In a warm place, allow the dough to rest 2 to 3 hours or until doubled in bulk.

Punch down the dough and roll on a lightly floured surface. Cut into small pieces. Roll each piece in your hand into a circular strip.

Form each end into a circle, pinching ends together to form a doughnut shape. Cover with a cloth or towel and allow to rise for 2 hours in a warm spot.

Bring a large pot of water to a boil then drop bagels into the boiling water one by one for only one minute each. Remove with a strainer and shake off excess water.

Place bagels on a preheated baking sheet and if desired, sprinkle with coarse salt or other toppings. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 10 minutes, until golden brown. Makes about 2 dozen bagels.

Cinnamon Raisin Bagels

- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 3 tablespoons honey
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2¾ cups high gluten bread flour
- 1½ cups golden raisins
- 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 cups whole wheat flour
- ¼ cup yellow cornmeal

Mix the yeast with 2 cups warm water (about 110 degrees) in large bowl and let stand for 5 minutes. Stir in honey and salt. In a smaller bowl, mix the whole wheat flour, 1¼ cups of the bread flour, cinnamon and sugar. Using an electric mixer, add the flour mixture to the yeast mixture a bit at a time.

Stir in raisins. When all the flour has been incorporated, beat for four minutes. Add the remaining 1½ cups of flour and mix by hand. Dough will be stiff.

Turn the dough onto a liberally floured surface and knead for 15 minutes. If the dough is still sticky, add a bit more flour a bit at a time and knead until smooth. Place the dough in a bowl and cover with a clean dish towel.

Place in a warm, draft-free spot for about 45 minutes to rise. (an unheated oven is perfect.) The dough should almost double in size. Knead the dough for one minute. Take a section of the dough in your palms to make a ball.

Poke a thumb through the center and work around to make a hole a bit larger than the size of a quarter. Repeat with the remaining sections. Place the bagels on a lightly floured wooden surface, cover with a dish towel and place in a warm, draft free spot for 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, bring 3 quarts of water to a boil. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Drop the bagels into the boiling water one at a time and boil for 4 minutes. Flip occasionally. Remove and shake off moisture. Place on ungreased cookie sheets and bake for 35 minutes or until golden. Makes 16 bagels.

Tips aim for pie in the sky results

By Nancy Byal
AP Newsfeatures

"As American as apple pie" says how much we love to dig our forks into flaky, pastry-covered fillings. But busy schedules leave precious little time for making favorite pies.

The secret to keeping the pie baking tradition alive in your family: set aside some time to get a head start. Shape and freeze some pastry shells ahead of time. Or put together the whole pie and freeze it, baked or unbaked, until you need it. You can fill, bake, or reheat your pie before serving. Just follow these easy hints.

Making and Freezing Pastry Ahead

Make up a few batches of your favorite piecrust recipe. On a lightly floured surface, roll the pastry into rounds. Stack them with two sheets of waxed paper between layers. (Or fit the pastry into aluminum-foil pie plates or tart pans.) Place the pastry in freezer bags, then seal, label and freeze. Plan to use the frozen pastry within six to eight weeks.

To use the frozen pastry, thaw the flat rounds, covered, at room temperature while making the filling.

You can fill and bake the frozen pastry shells without thawing them first. However, when using frozen pastry shells, you may need to add 5 to 10 minutes to the total baking time.

Making and Chilling Pies Ahead

You can make and bake fruit pies and dumplings a day ahead and let them stand at room temperature for up to 24 hours. Or cover and refrigerate them for up to four days. You should serve custard and cream pies as soon as they are cool, then cover and refrigerate any leftovers for no more than two days. (To cover a meringue-topped pie, place toothpicks halfway between the center and the edge of the pie to hold the wrap away from the meringue.)

Make Halloween night a howling success

AP — Halloween can be a howl for parents and children alike — especially when everyone gets together for a family Halloween dinner.

There are two tacks to take before the children go trick or treating: Serve them a junk food dinner of choice, just to set the tone. Or serve them the healthiest raw vegetables and fruits you can find, to counterbalance the bags full of candy that are sure to follow.

Cookbook writer Elizabeth Berg, who alternates between the two, suggests a Halloween dinner menu consisting of hearty pumpkin or split pea soup, crusty Italian or French bread, a crisp green salad and a nippy cheese spread. For dessert: orange sherbet and thin chocolate wafers.

Berg, author of "Family Traditions: Celebrations for Holiday and Everyday" (Reader's Digest, $22), uses festive orange and black paper plates for the dinner table, with a carved pumpkin for the centerpiece.

For a more elaborate dessert (or if you're planning a Halloween party), you can choose from the "spooky" and "scary" recipes in "Trick or Treat" by Emily Gwathmey and Suzanne Slesin (Clarkson Potter, $14).

Peggy Cullen, a professional baker, has created six recipes for children and adults to enjoy: Crunchy Bone Cookies, Graveyard Gateau, Witches' Brew with Ghostly Manifestations, Soothsayer's Sliced Apples, Spectral Spiders and Ichabod Crane's Baked Pumpkin Mousse.

For those who don't want to hand out candy as trick or treats, Berg suggests fruit roll-ups, small bags of popcorn, a handful of pennies, colorful pencils, or Halloween decals.

As for those bags full of candy the kids bring home . . . Berg suggests a visit from the "Sugar Witch," who will take away the extra candy, leaving behind a "coupon" for other sugarless treats.

Italian cookbook author plans visit

KEELY WYGONIK

Meet the "Pavarotti of pasta" Giuliano Bugialli, author of "Foods of Tuscany," noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24 at Jacobson's in Laurel Park Place, 37500 Six Mile Road, Livonia.

Known for his keen methods of research, Bugialli, a native of Florence, Italy, has compiled a collection of recipes from old Tuscany families, including his own.

"Foods of Tuscany," $50, highlights the wines of Chianti, regional fresh pasta dishes, the many varieties of bread focaccias and pizzas for which the area is famous.

The book contains photographs by award-winning photographer John Dominis. "Foods of Tuscany," will be available for purchase at Jacobson's in Livonia Oct. 24, and Bugialli will be happy to autograph your copy.

Tassos Epicurean Cusine, Inc. at 6887 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield is offering a cooking class, 6:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21. The menu is shrimp and avocado salad, Cornish hen stuffed with Orzo and fruit, and chocolate cake with raspberries.

Treat yourself to an enjoyable evening of culinary expertise and fine dining with a complete dinner including recipes and complimentary glass of wine for $25 per person. Call Carol, 539-0110 to reserve. Limited space available.

Here are some pasta cooking tips from the Olive Garden Italian Restaurant which is featuring a special Roman Pasta Holiday menu through November 22.

Use four quarts of water per pound of pasta. Too much pasta in too little water, may cook unevenly and may stick together. Add salt to the water after it comes to a rolling boil. Use one tablespoon per pound of dried pasta.

Add pasta all at once to the boiling water and stir hard from the bottom of the pot periodically with a long-handled spoon to pevent noodles from sticking.

To accelerate the water's return to a boil, cover the pot after adding the pasta. When the water returns to a boil, uncover, and cook at a lively (but not too fierce) boil. Never break the pasta in two when cooking long noodles. Instead, use a long spoon/fork to bend the pasta and force the strands entirely under water.

Start timing the pasta once the water returns to a full boil. However, the times given in recipes are usually not exact — many variables, such as the type and make of pasta, the hardness and quantity of water, the heat source, and even the altitude can affect cooking time.

A taste test is always a good way to determine when pasta is done. Aim for al dente (literal translation is "to the tooth") firm to the bite, not mushy.

Undercook pasta slightly when it is to be used in dishes requiring further baking.

Remember that fresh pasta cooks much more quickly than dried pasta. Fettucini can be be done in just two minutes, while angel hair pasta can be done as the water returns to a boil.

Drain pasta in a colander the instant it is done. Shake the colander a couple of times to remove excess water. Never rinse the pasta with cold water, unless the recipe says to do so.

Sprinkle pasta with cheese if it is called for, as soon as the pasta is drained. The pasta's heat will melt it partially so that it will blend easily with the sauce.

Drain, sauce and serve the pasta quickly to keep it hot and firm. Pasta continues to soften at every stage from the colander to the table.

Eat pasta with a fork. Slide the fork into a few strands near the side of the bowl or plate. Twirl it against the side until you have gathered a small, tight ball of spaghetti near the end of the fork. As the fork is lifted, the loose strands will drop away. The most common mistake is to load too much spaghetti onto the fork.

Butterscotch apple cookies sweet treat

AP — Butterscotch Apple Cookies are a sweet treat for Halloween. Serve at a party with your favorite witches' brew, or send a batch to school with the kids for a special snack.

Butterscotch Apple Cookies

- 2½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1⅓ cups packed brown sugar
- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1 egg
- ½ cup apple juice
- ¾ cup (1 small) grated apple
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 2 cups butterscotch-flavored morsels
- Glaze (recipe follows)
- Finely chopped walnuts (optional)

In a medium bowl, combine flour, baking soda, cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and salt. In large mixer bowl, cream brown sugar and butter. Beat in egg. Gradually beat in dry ingredients alternately with apple juice. Stir in apple, walnuts and 1½ cups of the morsels. Drop by slightly rounded tablespoon, 3 inches apart, onto lightly greased baking sheets. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on wire racks. Spread with glaze; sprinkle with nuts. Makes about 3½ dozen cookies.

For the glaze: In a small heavy saucepan over low heat, melt the remaining ½ cup morsels and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Remove from heat; whisk in 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, 1½ to 2 tablespoons apple juice and ¼ teaspoon salt until smooth.

Kitchen hints save time

Here are some tips from Louis Rich slow roasted turkey.

For moist, succulent poached chicken, simmer very gently and remove the bird when the breast and legs are firm. Do not cook until the meat can be easily pulled away from the bone.

When seasoning ground beef or turkey for loaves or burgers, lightly mix in seasonings with two forks and gently shape. Too much handling toughens the meat.

When grilling turkey or hamburgers, sear them and cook over medium-hot coals.

Speedy supper cooks in skillet

What's the secret for a rave-winning weeknight dinner? The answer varies, depending on the person asked. Busy cooks like quick, convenient dishes. The health-conscious applaud well-rounded, low-fat menus.

And everybody wants a meal that tastes great. For a super supper to please all, pull out a skillet for a quick one-dish meal.

Made with a variety of on-hand ingredients, skillet dinners are fast, convenient and healthful with these easy-to-follow tips.

Start with a nonstick skillet. Less oil will be needed to saute meat and vegetables so the dish will contain fewer calories and less fat.

Include at least one source of protein. Choose from lean cuts of beef, pork and veal; skinless chicken and turkey breasts; fish and seafood; beans and lentils; and dairy products like low-fat cheeses.

Add vegetables for vitamins and minerals. Some fall favorites include squash, corn, bell peppers, Brussels sprouts and carrots.

Include a source of carbohydrates like noodles. Experiment with herbs, seasonings and spices to enhance flavors without additional salt. Basil, oregano and garlic add Italian flair. Chilies, cumin and coriander provide spicy Mexican flavors. And ginger, red pepper flakes and lemon grass lend a taste of the Pacific.

Quick-to-fix on busy weeknights, Savory Skillet Chicken Dinner, can go directly from the stove top to the table in about 20 minutes.

Chicken breasts are seasoned with rosemary and lemon pepper then cooked with noodles, carrots and zucchini. A dash of white wine and chicken broth add the finishing touch.

To receive more healthy eating tips and recipes, send a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to: No Yolks, Dept. 310, 520 E. Church Street, Libertyville, IL 60048.

Savory Skillet Chicken Dinner

½ package (4 ounces) No Yolks cholesterol-free noodles
½ teaspoon crushed dried rosemary
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
4 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves (about 1 pound)
1 tablespoon olive oil, divided
1 cup shredded carrots
⅔ cup chopped onion
1 cup shredded zucchini
¼ cup low salt chicken broth
¼ cup dry white wine

Cook noodles according to package directions without salt. Meanwhile, combine rosemary and lemon pepper. Rub half of the rosemary mixture onto chicken. Brown in 2 teaspoons oil in large nonstick skillet over medium to medium-high heat until cooked through, about 3 to 4 minutes on each side.

Remove chicken from skillet; reserve. Saute carrots, onion and remaining rosemary mixture in additional 1 teaspoon oil, if needed, 2 to 3 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Add zucchini. Drain noodles; stir into vegetables. Place chicken in skillet, arranging noodles and vegetables around each piece. Add broth and wine; simmer 3 to 5 minutes or until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Kiwifruit adds tangy flavor to variation of Key lime pie

AP — Kiwifruit has come a long way. Chances are that 10 years ago, you'd never heard of kiwi, let alone tasted it. Today, the fuzzy, brown-skinned fruit is regularly stocked in supermarket produce departments.

In this delightfully tangy variation of key lime pie, kiwifruit and lime slices crown alternating layers of flaky pastry and luscious lime-lemon yogurt filling.

Kiwi Lime Pie

¾ cup sugar
⅓ cup all-purpose flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups milk
3 beaten eggs
¼ cup margarine or butter
2 teaspoons finely shredded lime peel
¼ cup lime juice
One 8-ounce carton lemon yogurt
Few drops green food coloring
Pastry for Double-Crust Pie (see recipe below)
¼ cup apple jelly
Whipped cream
2 kiwifruits, peeled and sliced
1 or 2 limes, sliced

For custard, in a saucepan stir together sugar, flour and salt. Stir in milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Reduce heat; cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Remove from heat. Stir 1 cup of the hot mixture into eggs.

Return to saucepan; cook and stir until thickened. Cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Do not boil. Remove from heat. Stir in margarine or butter, lime peel and juice. Fold in yogurt.

Tint with food coloring. Cover surface with plastic wrap; cool.

On a lightly floured surface, roll half of the pastry into a 12-inch circle. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry.

Trim and flute edge; prick pastry. Bake in a 450-degree F oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool on a wire rack.

Divide remaining pastry in half. Roll each half into circles ⅛-inch thick. Cut an 8¾-inch circle out of one portion and an 8-inch circle out of the other portion.

Place the circles on a baking sheet; prick with a fork. Bake in a 450-degree F oven for 10 minutes. Cool on a wire rack.

Brush the pastry shell with some of the apple jelly. Place about 1 cup of the custard in the shell. Cover with the 8-inch pastry round; brush with jelly.

Spread with 1¼ cups of the custard. Top with the 8¾-inch pastry round. Top with remaining jelly and custard. Cover and chill pie overnight.

Before serving, garnish with whipped cream, kiwifruit slices and lime slices. Makes 8 servings.

Pastry for Double-Crust Pie: In a mixing bowl stir together 2 cups all-purpose flour and 1 teaspoon salt. Cut in ⅔ cup shortening. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon water over part of the mixture; gently toss with a fork. Push to the side of the bowl. Repeat until all is moistened (6 to 7 tablespoons total). Form dough into a ball.

TRAVEL

Waltzing through Vienna

Old World city attracts newcomers

By Paul Hofmann
New York Times Syndicate

After several decades of seeing its population shrink, Austria's capital is growing again.

Vienna, which in 1910 counted more than 2 million residents, had fewer than 1.6 million in the mid-1980s. Since then immigration from Eastern Europe, the Balkans and Turkey has increased the population to an estimated 1.7 million.

In addition, many thousands of Bosnian and Croatian refugees have arrived during the past few months, and many are expected to stay on.

The old city, traditionally a central European melting pot, looks more cosmopolitan today than it has for a long time.

The newcomers are not only immigrants from Eastern Europe but also employees of multinational corporations that have established their headquarters in tidy, comfortable Vienna, while their executives commute to Budapest, Prague, Warsaw and other former Communist centers.

A building boom with a forest of cranes on the skyline speaks of the need for more office and living space, and Vienna Schwechat Airport too is being enlarged.

Another noticeable change is the number of young people in a city where until recently old faces seemed to prevail. The young predominate in the Bermuda Triangle, a trendy neighborhood around Vienna's oldest church, St. Rupert's, dating to the 11th century, and the principal synagogue, built in 1825.

The triangular section gets its nickname from the urban folklore that holds that some patrons of the taverns and discos vanish into the bohemian life, never to return to their old routines.

Music

Young people have ensured the continuing success of the "Vienna Modern" avant-garde music festival the Italian conductor Claudio Abbado founded four years ago and that starts Oct. 25 this year, running through most of November.

The State Opera, with 1,713 seats and room for 567 standees, has performances every night and on some afternoons until the season closes June 30, 1993, except Feb. 25, March 1 and April 9.

In addition to more than 30 repertory works from "Aida" to "Zauberflote," the new productions are of Wagner's complete "Ring," conducted by Christoph von Dohnanyi, Verdi's "Macbeth," conducted by Jan Latham-Konig, "Falstaff," by Verdi, conducted by Seiji Ozawa, and Richard Strauss' "Capriccio," conducted by Heinrich Hollreiser.

Some 40 evenings of ballet at the State Opera during the 1992-93 season will include a "Don Quixote" with music by Ludwig Minkus. Tickets cost from $1.50 for standing room in the gallery to $200 for the most expensive orchestra seat. (All prices are based on an exchange rate of 10 Austrian schillings to the United States dollar.)

The 1,319-seat Volksoper (People's Opera) also has performances almost daily until June 30. Among the new productions are Gottfried von Einem's "Danton's Death," conducted by Isaac Karabchevsky, and Lehar's "Giuditta."

The eclectic repertory ranges from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" to Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady" and such classics of Viennese operetta as Lehar's "Merry Widow." Ticket prices range from $1.50 for standing room to $80 for the best seats.

Ticket sales for the State Opera and Volksoper start seven days before each performance at State Theater Booking Offices, 3 Hanuschgasse, 51444-2960, near the State Opera. Standing-room tickets are sold only in the evening at the box offices of the two theaters, which open an hour before the performance. People often line up hours earlier.

Holders of major credit cards worldwide may buy tickets by phone during the six days before a performance, calling 43 (the code for Austria) 1-513-1513, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday, and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday or 9 a.m. to noon Sunday, Vienna time. Information: 51444-2955.

The celebrated Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra will be heard in 11 concerts in the "golden hall" of the Musikverein Building, Vienna's Carnegie Hall (the main entrance is at Dunbastrasse near the State Opera) until June 13. Each performance is preceded by a public rehearsal a day earlier.

Claudio Abbado, Sir Colin Davis, Carlos Kleiber, Riccardo Muti and other conductors will be at the podium. Although most tickets go to subscribers, a few will be available. The secretariat of the orchestra, 505-6525, opens a waiting list two days before each concert. Tickets cost from $6 (standing room) to $80.

Concerts by other local or visiting orchestras and recitals are almost daily in the Musikverein Hall. Program and ticket information: 505-8190. The ticket office at 6 Karlsplatz is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 to noon Saturday.

Concerts, chamber music and recitals also take place almost daily in the halls of the ornate Konzerthaus, two blocks east of the Musikverein. In addition to the Vienna Symphony, orchestras and soloists from all over the world will be heard during the 1992-93 season. Tickets cost $9 to $30, higher for exceptional events. The ticket office, 20 Lothringerstrasse, 712-1211, is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

The Vienna Boys' Choir sings at Mass in the former Imperial Chapel (entrance in Schweizerhof courtyard), beginning at 9:15 a.m. every Sunday until Dec. 27. Tickets at $5 to $22; no more than two per person can be bought at the chapel after 5 p.m the preceding Friday.

The musical "Elisabeth," which had its world premiere at the Theater an der Wien (where Beethoven's "Fidelio" was first performed in 1806) on Sept. 3, is expected to have a long run.

Tickets are $10 to $99 at the box office, 6 Linke Wienzeile; reservations: 599-7719.

Adventurous travelers get inside Outside magazine

Shopping around

By Everett Potter
Special Writer

For adventurous, athletic American travelers a getaway means more than a week at the beach.

It means sea kayaking off Vancouver Island, rock climbing in Ecuador, mountain biking through Kenya's game preserves or in-line skating on the boardwalk in Venice, Calif.

It means new activities such as snow-boarding and bungee jumping and taking a fresh look at white-water rafting, sculling and hiking.

It means approaching travel with an ecological conscience, a sense of responsibility for preserving the earth.

And it means sharing a fitness level common to a generation that believes smoking is bad, french fries are not a major food group and camping needn't be done with a Winnebago.

The bible for this new breed of enthusiast is a magazine called Outside, which is celebrating its 15th anniversary with the October issue.

"Outside is for people who lead a year-round, active lifestyle," says Lawrence Burke, the publisher, editor in chief and founder. "It's for people who try and make the most of their personal time."

Burke features a roster of such well-known outdoor writers as Jon Bowermaster, Tim Cahill, Trip Gabriel, Barry Lopez, David Quammen, Nancy Shute and Randy Wayne White. Their savvy, witty, irreverent style is a far cry from the usual outdoor writing.

The September 1992 issue has a feature on a trip to Muli, a remote and little-known province of China near Tibet; a profile of three brothers who are champion bicycle racers; an article on an 86-year-old adventurer who spent 11 of the past 12 summers camping in Greenland; and a detailed piece on the U.S. Forest Service's management structure.

Also in the September issue are equipment reviews of new backpacks, cross-training shoes and tents. There are travel articles on photo safaris in British Columbia and trout fishing in Montana. And stunning color photographs dot the whole issue.

In the past year the magazine has rated dozens of environmental and nature charities, from the World Wildlife Fund to the Audubon Society.

Burke, a former IBM executive, founded the magazine in 1976 and called it Mariah. He had just spent four years sailing around the world in his 30-foot sailboat Mariah.

"I didn't have one hour of publishing experience, but I wanted to do this magazine," he says. After eight issues the journal on sports, travel and adventure had 90,000 subscribers.

In late 1977 Straight Arrow Publishers, which puts out Rolling Stone, launched Outside magazine to compete with Mariah. They got off to a good start but were foundering a year later.

In 1978 Burke bought Outside from Straight Arrow and merged it with Mariah. The new bimonthly Mariah/Outside lasted until February 1980, when Burke dropped "Mariah" from the title.

In March 1984 Outside went monthly. Within a year circulation was up to 225,000; the current figure is 375,000. It is expected to top 400,000 by the end of 1992.

And in the face of an ongoing recession, Outside's advertising pages are up 20 percent.

Burke says 73 percent of his readers are men with an average age of 35 and an average household income of $71,000. These readers take about 11 trips a year — a trip being defined as two nights away from home.

Burke recently commissioned a study from the Yankelovich market-research company. It tracked the leisure-time activities of 46 million Americans who are defined as "outside enthusiasts."

The Yankelovich survey found that this area of outside activities was a "new social arena of the 1990s." They said it was maybe the most significant primal movement in America right now," Burke says.

Indeed, Burke plans to launch Outside Kids in May 1993, aiming for the market of readers ages 8 to 12. He'll be moving his headquarters from Chicago to Santa Fe, N.M., a city he says is "more closely related to our own philosophy about life."

For further information contact Outside, P.O. Box 54729, Boulder, Colo. 80322 or call (800) 678-1131. A one-year subscription is $14.95.

But he also cites a more elemental reason for his magazine's success.

"Remember the snowball fights you had as a kid or playing in the woods or hiding in a big pile of leaves or going on a fishing or camping trip with your Dad? We're trying to reconnect with that first excitement we had as kids playing outside."

Rocks register 7th WLAA victory

Plymouth Salem remains a co-leader in Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball after turning back Walled Lake Central last week. The Rocks and Livonia Stevenson are atop the league standings at 7-0.

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Walled Lake Central coach Ken Butler didn't endorse a presidential candidate Thursday, but George Bush might agree with his post-game comments following a 59-53 loss to visiting Plymouth Salem.

"I should have been more conservative," Butler said. "I didn't do a good job coaching in the first half. I think I made a mistake pressing early in the game."

The reason for Butler's second-guessing was that the Rocks took advantage of a slower-than-normal Central team that still showed the effects of its shocking 63-56 victory Tuesday over Plymouth Canton.

"I think we were tired (from the last game)," Butler said. "We didn't shoot well and I expected that. We only practiced 40 minutes yesterday. We just didn't have that spark tonight."

The Rocks are undefeated in seven WLAA games and improved to 7-6 overall. Salem, the defending league champion, is tied for first place with Livonia Stevenson.

Central, 4-3 in the WLAA and 8-4 overall, made several rallies to make the game close but hurt itself with missed free throws and blown layups.

The Vikings jumped to a 6-3 lead as their press and running game got in motion, but their energy seemed to taper off as the first quarter continued.

Salem was able to run with Central and took an 18-15 lead into the second quarter thanks to a nine-point effort from senior center Cyndi Platter, who finished with 25 points and 15 rebounds — both game highs.

"Our style is to run," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "We went out and said 'Let's see who stops running first.' They stopped running first and, after they stopped, we stopped.

"What they're good at doing is getting the rebound, pitching it to (guard Cindy) Muha and then she would pass it up to (Kerri) Kobus. We were able to stop that, and I think it frustrated Kerri and also frustrated their team."

After a jumper by Central's Toni Flood closed Salem's lead to one, the Rocks went on a 15-1 run to take a 33-18 lead. Free throw shooting, which was a key to the Canton upset, doomed the Vikings, who made one of five in the second quarter and nine of 21 for the game (43 percent).

Central closed an 11-point halftime deficit to 48-45 after three quarters by scoring the final 10 points. The run was keyed by senior center Bridgette Norris, who scored eight points in the run. She finished with 19 points and nine rebounds.

Salem led 57-47 with three minutes remaining in the game. After a free throw by Flood and baskets by Norris and Jenny Czach (eight points and 14 rebounds), Salem led by only five.

The Rocks clinched the victory after the missed front ends of consecutive one-and-one opportunities were rebounded by senior forward Shelly Sockow. Sockow, who had five offensive rebounds to go with her 15 points, added two free throws and the Rocks were able to run out the clock.

Central had several chances to come back but missed many easy shots and four free throws down the stretch.

"We got back into the game, but we missed too many putbacks and too many free throws," Butler said.

Canton gridders roll

Plymouth Canton handed Livonia Churchill its 25th consecutive football loss Friday while winning for the second time in three games.

The Chiefs are 2-3 in the Western Division and 2-5 overall, the Chargers 0-5 and 0-7.

Eric Arnold began the scoring with a 3-yard, first-quarter touchdown run. The score gave the Chiefs a 6-0 lead heading into the second half.

Brett Elledge's 1-yard carry gave Canton a 12-0 lead. Elledge completed a 4-yard pass to Matt Demey on the game's final play to make it 18-0.

The Chiefs outgained Churchill in total offense, 128-63. The Chargers did not complete a pass.

Neil Haremski rushed for 77 yards on 11 carries to lead the Canton attack. Linebacker Matt Horn recovered a blocked Churchill punt.

District soccer preview

The Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton soccer teams will be at nearly full strength for tonight's district tournament game, 7 p.m. at Centennial Educational Park.

After being beset with injuries recently (especially Salem), both teams benefitted from added rest last week.

They were supposed to play Wednesday in the Western Lakes Activities Association consolation game, but the game was cancelled because of heavy rain and lightning.

"We didn't get into the psychological aspect of one team losing and the other winning (just before the district)," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "Both teams can approach the game with a fresh start. It's good for the kids that way."

The Rocks, 14-2-2 and ranked No. 7 in Class A, struggled to overcome injuries for two thirds of the season. They still were unbeaten in their first 14 games until losing to Farmington and Livonia Churchill in back-to-back games.

Tom Baker, who injured an ankle in the first Salem-Canton game (1-1 tie), missed the last five games but will be back in the midfield tonight. Jeff Kley and Brad Jaskolski return to the defense, and Brian Spuck won't start but is expected to play at stopper.

"It's better than it's been for a few weeks with Baker back," Johnson said. "It gives the other players a feeling of confidence. It's the strongest we've been since early in the season."

Canton, 10-3-4 and unranked, was missing goalkeeper Ryan Henkel and stopper Owen Crosby because of minor injuries a week ago when the Chiefs lost 4-0 to top-ranked Troy. Both would have played Wednesday.

"We didn't come off a good last game, so we can't do anything but go up," Canton coach Don Smith said. "I think the kids are ready to play a good game, and it doesn't take too much to get them fired up to play Salem. I think we're right where we want to be right now."

The Chiefs had the best overall record (8-1-1) in the WLAA but failed to win their division and reach the championship game. The same happened to the Canton girls in 1988, and the Chiefs later won the state title.

"It would be nice if we could repeat history," Smith said, "but we have a tough first ballgame. We better get by Salem first. We're playing well. We can do it just as well as anybody else."

Chiefs back on track

Plymouth Canton rebounded from its first loss in girls basketball Thursday with a 57-34 win over visiting Walled Lake Western.

Judging from their 20-3, first-quarter lead, the Chiefs were eager to right themselves after losing to Walled Lake Central on Tuesday. Canton led 35-15 at halftime and 50-21 entering the third period.

"What the loss did was point out the things we need to focus on: defensive position, movement and getting ready to play," Canton coach Bob Blohm said.

Senior center Stephanie Gray scored 12 of her 21 points in the first quarter and also had eight rebounds.

Nine players scored for the Chiefs, 6-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 12-1 overall. Christie Anderson and Jori Welchans (seven rebounds) came off the bench to contribute eight and six points, respectively.

Erin Vicary had 17 points to lead the Warriors.

Rocks set for key dual

The Plymouth Salem girls set the stage for their cross country showdown with Livonia Stevenson later this week by running past Farmington 17-42 Thursday.

The Rocks and Stevenson are 4-0 in the Lakes Division and will compete against each other Thursday at Cass Benton Park. One point separated the two in the Ypsilanti Invitational recently.

"They've got a great No. 1 runner, and we match up pretty evenly after that," Salem coach Mike Krafchak said. "It's going to be a matter of who runs (well) that day. It's ashame one has to lose; I hope it's not us."

Freshman Leah Retherford, who was the top runner (19:53) in the Westland John Glenn JV meet earlier in the week, finished first with a 20:35 time at Oakland Community College.

Stacy Witthoff was second (20:48), Emily Farrell third (20:53), Lynda Sebestyen fifth (21:22), Courtney Sheldon sixth (22:04) and Stacy Moore seventh (22:25). The Rocks are 5-0 overall.

Shepley carries Salem gridders to 29-7 victory

BY DAN O'MEARA

FOOTBALL

After having a minus-1 yard total in the first quarter, Plymouth Salem needed some offense Friday night against Livonia Stevenson.

So the Rocks turned to junior Rob Shepley, who responded with 107 rushing yards and two touchdowns as host Salem rallied from an early deficit to trounce the Spartans 29-7.

The 6-foot-1, 215-pound Shepley's offensive duty had been limited by a nagging ankle injury. He had been playing wingback but, with Andy Szydlowski still sidelined by injury, the Rocks needed Shepley at fullback.

"There's no question he turned it around for us," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said. "That's the kind of fullback we have to have in our offense.

"The original plan was to alternate him and Szydlowski. Szydlowski started out (the season) well so we kept Shepley at wing. We kept trying to get by without him. He practiced all week, so he knew we were counting on him."

Salem improved to 3-2 in the Lakes Division and 4-3 overall. The Spartans dropped to 2-3 and 2-5.

Ironically, while a fumble hurt Salem early and helped Stevenson to score first, the Rocks capitalized on a Stevenson fumble and used it to turn the game around.

The Spartans recovered a fumbled punt at the Salem 41 on their first possession and kept the effort going for a 16-play scoring drive, which used up the first seven minutes. Joe Bracali ran 1 yard for the touchdown.

Stevenson was driving for another score when it fumbled at the Salem 8. Scott Helmstadter recovered and the Rocks went 92 yards in 14 plays to take an 8-7 lead on Shepley's 22-yard run and two-point conversion.

"That was a critical turnover because they had us on the ropes," Moshimer said. "If there was a key play in the game, that was it. It took the momentum away from them, and we were able to drive the ball."

Shepley took over at fullback at the start of that possession and punched out 66 yards on 10 carries. The Rocks used 7:12 of the second-quarter clock with the drive and led 8-7 at halftime.

"We had the momentum in the first quarter; we fumbled the football and never had it again," Stevenson coach Jack Reardon said.

When the season started, North Farmington coach Norm Staniszewski figured his girls tennis team would do well to finish with a .500 record.

But the Raiders were much better than their preseason expectations and confirmed that by winning the Western Lakes Activities Association tournament and overall championship last week.

It was the first title since 1988 for North, which scored 23 tournament points to finish ahead of Walled Lake Central (20) and defending champ Farmington Hills Harrison (18).

"This is one of the more satisfying years, mainly because I don't think the kids thought they were going to do that well at the beginning," Staniszewski said.

"There were a lot of question marks in doubles. We were stable at first and second singles with Keely Jones and Jennifer Reff. They were our anchors, but we had a lot of questions after that."

North clinched the tournament title Tuesday at Livonia Stevenson, but it was not assured of the WLAA crown until winning its final dual meet Wednesday against Harrison.

The dual-meet and tournament results count 50 percent each toward the overall title. The Raiders finished 10-0-1 in duals, Central 9-0-2 and Harrison 9-2-0. Teams earn one point for each victory, half a point for each tie.

North needed a victory or a tie in its last match to win the combined crown. If the Hawks had won the dual, Central would have been the overall winner.

"We really felt when beat Harrison, the defending champion, we would be OK, but North kinda surprised us," Central coach Larry Geelhood said. "It was a real competitive tournament, and North just edged us out."

Despite returning largely the same team from last year, Harrison was denied a third consecutive championship. The Hawks were first at No. 4 doubles, second at Nos. 3 and 4 singles and semifinalists at four other flights.

"I don't think we were any worse," Harrison coach Bernie Goldstein said. "Other teams have improved. We have as good a team as last year; the others have just gotten better.

"North has so much depth. They have so many players over there; it's tough to beat them."

North's Allison Walkon and Heather Stoneman were league champions at third and fourth singles. Both defeated Harrison players head-to-head in the finals.

"I call them Wall 1 and Wall 2," Staniszewski said. "Playing against them is like playing against a wall, and the wall very seldom loses."

Renee Chou and Emily Ochs won a first-set tiebreaker from Central's Danielle Geelhood and Crissie Hanje and claimed the No. 1 singles title in two sets.

Patriots, Falcons share soccer title

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Farmington High figured what was good for Giese was good for the gander in Friday's Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer championship.

In a match suspended with 19:48 to play Wednesday because of lightning and resumed Friday afternoon with host Livonia Franklin holding a 3-2 advantage, it ultimately ended in a 3-3 draw as Farmington rallied to gain a co-share of the title with the Patriots.

Mike Giese, Farmington's All-State forward, notched his 27th goal of the year just two minutes into the restart. The score came off a free kick.

"Kris (Wiljanen) put it into the middle, the ball bounced off a couple of players and I kind of mis-hit it, but luckily it went in," Giese said. "It was a crazy way to end.

"There was really no time to get into a rhythm. We just had to go as hard as we could go."

The tie didn't sit well with the Patriots.

"The kids feel bad about it, but I knew this could happen," Franklin coach Frantz Lamarre said. "They (Farmington) had everything to gain and nothing to lose.

"We feel a little disappointed, but it shouldn't take away from the celebration."

Lamarre was concerned about the mushy field from two days of rain, along with the gale force winds in his team's face.

"As soon as I came out and saw the way the wind was blowing and the field, I knew they (Farmington) had the advantage, but it's no excuse," he said. "We just didn't clear the ball (on Giese's goal)."

Farmington coach Luke Juncaj, who left the game Wednesday protesting to referee Jerry Gibbons about the darkness and weather conditions following a Franklin goal off a corner kick at the 26-minute mark, was pleased with the outcome.

"I think it's the fairest score, I think this was right," he said. "There was not much time. We just had to get out there and play aggressive. There was no going halfway with so little time."

Giese said the co-championship should give the Falcons incentive going into this week's tough Class A district tourney (hosted by Southfield). The field features Redford Catholic Central, Livonia Stevenson, Franklin and the Falcons.

"We should definitely turn it on for the playoffs," he said. "A lot of people around school didn't realize our guys came this far."

The two schools were surprise finalists, each playing in its first-ever title game.

Franklin is now 12-2-3 overall, while Farmington is 9-5-3.

Franklin, enjoying its best season ever, must now regroup for today's district opener at Dearborn Fordson.

"For our sake we had to play the last 19 minutes, but hopefully the league will make some changes and ties won't happen again," he said. "The league championship should be allowed to go into overtime.

"But it's a new season now and hopefully in the next two days we'll try and put things back together."

Shamrocks take while to reach final

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

■ 'I don't think there was any doubt about it. We looked a little out of sync. But give (Gabriel Richard) credit — they wanted to win too.'

Phil LaJoy
CC coach

Redford Catholic Central's quest for a Catholic League soccer title can be summarized in one word: Delay.

The league's championship match was supposed to be Saturday afternoon, allowing the winner to reach an emotional peak for the state district tournament, which begins today. But that didn't happen; fields were too saturated to play Thursday's semifinals and they were pushed back to Saturday.

So perhaps it's understandable that it took the Shamrocks some time to get rolling in their semifinal against Riverview Gabriel Richard Saturday. They expected to be in the league final; instead, they were still trying to get that far.

Another element delayed CC as well — the Canton field, which was, in many spots (including in both goals), mostly mud. That neutralized the Shamrocks' advantage in speed and ability for nearly two-thirds of the match.

But the Pioneers couldn't contain CC forever. Two goals in the last 23 minutes gave the Shamrocks a 2-0 win and a berth in the final.

"I don't think there was any doubt about it," said CC coach Phil LaJoy when asked about his team's slow start. "We looked a little out of sync. But give (Gabriel Richard) credit — they wanted to win too.

"Sometimes you get into the flow of a game and emotion takes over. But, well, we won the game."

The goals that won it for CC didn't come easily. With 23 minutes left, the Shamrocks forced a turnover deep in the Pioneer end, and Matt Kopmeyer centered it to Rich Walos. Walos had his back to the goal, but his bicycle kick got past keeper John Scotta to make it 1-0.

With 10 minutes left, Kopmeyer got the insurance goal, taking a pass from Anthony Verino and lining a shot from 25 yards into the corner past Scotta.

The win makes CC, the Central Division champions, 11-2-2 overall and lifts the Shamrocks into the league final against Brother Rice, 2-1 winners over Madison Heights Bishop Foley Saturday.

BACK STRAIN
The sinews of the back include seven layers of muscles. They begin with the trapezius and latissimus dorsi and go down through the rhomboids, erector spinae, the multifidus, rotatores etc. Some muscles run straight from sacrum to skull, others span a single vertebral spine, others slant medial to lateral, while others do the reverse. Some fibers plunge to reach the bone, and other muscles connect to ligaments on the plane of their path.
Back ache can result when any muscle group, single muscle, or segment of that single muscle suffers strain or unusual stretch.
Even sophisticated tools of evaluation such as x-rays, CT scanners, EMG analyzers, or thermographic imagers, can rarely distinguish where in the back the problem lies, and from which layer of muscle the pain comes.
To date, no form of medication or medication or meditation has shown itself consistently effective in reducing the pain backache produces or accelerating resolution of the discomfort.
Finally, the complexity of the back musculature brings into question the value of exercises intended to relieve or forstall back strain.
Thus in this age of interplanetary travel and analysis of the human genome, your doctor must talk to you about treatment of back strain in the same manner your grandmother did: take rest, use heat, don't strain your back further, and wait for time to heal the hurt.

Grand Rapids roster features ex-area stars

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

The misconceptions surrounding junior college football are plentiful.

First and foremost: Such a thing exists?

After that, questions range from who plays it and why, the caliber of talent, and — most basic of all — where do you find it?

Let's deal with the last item first. Grand Rapids Community College is the only two-year school in the state that fields a football team. And just how good is it?

Better than most would think. "The caliber of players I play with is as tough as a lot of (NCAA) Division I teams, certainly as good as many Division IIs," said Ryan Johnson, a sophomore at GRCC from Plymouth Salem.

Said Eric Stover, the Raiders' quarterback and a Westland John Glenn grad, when asked if it was much different than prep ball: "It's definitely a level above high school. There's a lot better competition, bigger guys, and a lot of guys you have to beat out."

Johnson and Stover are two of seven players from Observerland playing for GRCC. The surprise is this isn't a team consisting entirely of wannabes, nor is it a bunch of academic failures. Johnson attended Eastern Michigan, but after a disagreement with the coaching staff, he left.

Stover took his ACT admission test late during the summer after his senior year and came up one point short to play collegiate sports. He enrolled at Henry Ford CC to play baseball, but missed football. That brought him to GRCC.

One of GRCC's top offensive threats this season, and one of the bigger names coming out of Observerland, is Roy Granger, the former Farmington Harrison standout. Granger had his sights set on attending Michigan State, but he didn't have the grades.

Enter GRCC. Granger enrolled and lives with two former Harrison teammates, Greg Piscopink and Mike Gloetzner, both starters with the Raiders. Kendrick Harrington, from Livonia Clarenceville, also starts at wide receiver for GRCC, and Chad Myers, from Livonia, is a reserve running back.

"I didn't know much about it," Granger said of his initial reaction to GRCC. "I didn't have a clue what it would be like until I came here."

Granger was disappointed he would not be able to go to MSU, but he says now, "After I got here, I knew it was tough. And in the long run, it will work out best for me."

Like most of his Raider teammates, Granger figures this year will be a blessing in disguise simply because he's playing instead of sitting and watching, as most freshmen at Division I schools do. He still plans on attending MSU next year.

Johnson is hoping to attend an NCAA II school, perhaps Grand Valley State. The Lakers also recruited Stover out of high school and may still be interested in him. Stover would like to continue playing football, probably at Division II, but he isn't ruling out anything — including baseball.

All three firmly believe their futures have been aided by their stay at GRCC, and all three believe their football playing days will extend to a four-year school. One more thing: All three are enjoying GRCC.

And, by necessity, they are improving. According to Raider coach Fred Julian, at least a half-dozen players on his current roster were in the high school all-star game. "If they're just coming up here thinking they can play, it's not that easy," warned Julian. "There's tough competition."

And it needs to be, because the Raiders play a first-rate schedule. Indeed, at their level it's easily the most formidable schedule of any collegiate team in the state.

Can you imagine Michigan or Michigan State playing five top-10 ranked teams during the regular season? GRCC will this year. And the Raiders handle a similar schedule successfully every season. They were 5-1 going into last Saturday's game at Triton College; in 1991, they finished 6-4. In Julian's 7½ years, GRCC has gone 63-17-1.

There's post-season play, too, although it doesn't match the playoff system of Divisions 1AA, II and III. The coach's poll is the sole determining factor in deciding who plays in the post-season. The top two teams in the poll play in the Mid-American Bowl in Tulsa for the NJCAA title. A half-dozen other bowls games feature the remaining top teams.

GRCC has been to four bowl games in the last six years. The Raiders only loss this season was to defending NJCAA champion Northeastern Oklahoma A&M.

"I'm getting smarter as the games go by because I see so many different defenses," said Stover. But recognizing and reading defenses isn't all he's learned: "That and throwing the ball on time," he said, adding, "What you have to have is experience."

Stover is confident he has the ability to quarterback at a four-year school. His strength? "Being a leader," he answered. "You have to have a leader on offense, and people naturally look at the quarterback. You have to take charge and let them know you're confident."

Granger has been learning a lot, too, and not just on the football field. Unlike football freshmen at four-year colleges, he had to learn how to fend for himself, from disciplining himself to make morning classes to buying his own groceries.

And then there's football. Granger has been strictly a wide receiver for the Raiders, and he's been a standout, leading the team in touchdowns. The first time he touched the ball, on the opening kickoff in the first game of the season, he returned it for a touchdown.

But the rest hasn't been so easy. "In college, you've got to run your pass routes real good," said Granger. "In high school, you can just run, but in college on certain patterns, you have to have your steps down."

Has all this helped? "If I go to MSU next year, I feel I can step right in and play," Granger replied confidently.

Johnson, who played linebacker his first year at GRCC, switched to tight end this season. "I love it," he said of the change. "I feel I've got a good pair of hands."

He doesn't lament leaving EMU for GRCC. Like Stover, Johnson will graduate in December, which means that whatever four-year college he chooses, he'll be able to play spring ball.

"I've never had any doubt about my decision," said Johnson. "I just wanted to play football. I'd do whatever it takes to play.

"The experience I'm getting here has to stand for something."

For him and his teammates, it's no doubt will.

Canton boys outduel Pats

Plymouth Canton's top five runners finished within 27 seconds of each other Thursday as the Chiefs coasted past Livonia Franklin 17-46 in boys cross country.

Casey Moothart ran 17:34 at Cass Benton Park, David Yack (second) 17:43, Todd Smith (third) 17:44, Ian Bedford (fifth) 17:54 and Jeff Keith (sixth) 18:01.

Teammates Shawn McNamara was seventh (18:05) and Tim Czerniawski eighth (18:10) for Canton, 3-1 in the Western Division and 4-1 overall. Lee Devers was fourth (17:49) for the Patriots.

"It was a real mud bath," Canton coach Mike Spitz said. "Ours was the last meet out, and the other teams tore up the course pretty well on a day like this.

"It made the times slower, but the guys ran pretty well. We try to maintain in the forefront of our minds what this is all leading up to — the league and regional meets.

"At this time of the season, things get old. The guys are doing a good job of seeing through that to the brass ring at the end."

■ SALEM BOYS

Farmington scored an impressive victory in boys cross country Thursday, winning the duel for second place in the Lakes Division from Plymouth Salem 26-29.

The Falcons finish 4-1 in the division and stand 5-2 overall. The Rocks are 2-2 and 2-3.

Dave Clinard of Farmington was first (16:56) at Oakland Community College, Tom May third (17:28), Kevin Afflerbaugh fifth (17:59), Mike Langdon seventh (18:31) and John Lane 10th (18:46).

Salem's Derek Cudini was second (17:03), Justin Richardson fourth (17:28), Andy McDonald sixth (18:06), Russ Polcyn eighth (18:35) and Jamie Miller ninth (18:37).

May and Richardson had the same time, but May edged in front at the end.

"It was one of the deciding factors," Farmington coach Jerry Young said. "They came to the line together. It was almost a dead heat, but May inched him out."

■ CANTON GIRLS

Plymouth Canton improved to 3-1 in the Western Division with a 22-33 win over Livonia Franklin in girls cross country Thursday. The Chiefs are 3-2 overall.

Kathleen Landelius edged Canton teammate Laura McWilliams by first place, 21:05 to 21:06. Karina Kilpelainen was third (22:58), Janie DeCourcey sixth (24:09) and Michelle Magers 10th (25:17).

"Landelius and McWilliams have been staging their own personal dual all season," coach George Przygodski said, adding the course was a quagmire. "It's the best thing for both of them. I can't say enough about either one."

■ 'We were a little apprehensive at first, because we didn't want to give up the big play. But once we got into the flow of the game we settled down and played real well.'

Tom Moshimer
Salem coach

"I hate to say a couple plays could take us out of the game, but we just lost momentum. We're disappointed in the way we played. I think we're a better football team than that."

Salem scored two quick TDs in the third quarter to take a commanding lead, 23-7.

Shepley carried three straight plays for 34 yards, and quarterback Rob Kenney, faking this time to Shepley, kept the ball and dashed 23 yards around end for a 15-7 score.

"That was triple option; he read it," Moshimer said. "He practically walked into the end zone because they bit on Shepley so hard."

Salem's Brad Schultz got the first of his two interceptions and returned it to the Stevenson 5. The Rocks were in the end zone again four plays later on Shepley's 1-yard run. Kenney passed to Helmstadter for the conversion.

The Rocks had four second-half interceptions to keep Stevenson off the scoreboard. Shepley and Jay Perko had the other pickoffs.

The Spartans, facing a 23-7 deficit, drove to the Salem 9 in 16 plays before Shepley ended the drive with his interception. Schultz, who had 86 yards on 13 carries, added a 6-yard scoring drive in the fourth quarter.

"We're much improved in our secondary," Moshimer said. "We didn't have as many adjustments this week and that helped us.

"We were a little apprehensive at first, because we didn't want to give up the big play. But once we got into the flow of the game we settled down and played real well."

Salem rushed for 251 yards and passed for 39, the Spartans 98 and 145. Stevenson quarterback J.J. Rarog was 12-of-29 passing for 137 yards, and Cliff Mikelson rushed for 48 yards before leaving the game with a possible concussion.

Agape cagers boast best record

Who has the area's best record in girls basketball?

No, it's not Western Lakes Activities Association leaders Plymouth Canton or Plymouth Salem but Plymouth Agape Christian.

Led by sophomores Tonya Gowen and K.C. Younkin, Agape beat United Christian Academy of Inkster 51-18 Friday and improved to 10-0 overall. The team is 8-0 in the Metro Christian Conference.

Gowen ripped down 24 rebounds while Younkin poured in 17 points.

■ ROEPER 47, PCA 32: Plymouth Christian Academy, playing without leading scorer Karin Reed (ankle injury), lost to visiting Bloomfield Hills Roeper for the second time this season Friday.

The Eagles, 4-3 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference and 8-5 overall, shot only 28 percent from the floor (12-of-42) and 37 percent from the free throw line (6-of-16).

The Roughriders, 6-1 and 9-4, jumped to a 16-4, first-quarter lead and were never threatened. Junior forward Mikesha Crook's nine points paced a balance Roeper scoring attack.

"We came out with our usual press and they did a good job breaking it and getting some easy baskets," PCA coach Dennis Horton said. "When we took the press off, they kept scoring. We had plenty of opportunities to do well but couldn't hit our shots. We needed Karin's scoring."

The Eagles were received 14 points from senior guard Lyndsey Horton and nine points from junior guard Nancy Kobernik.

LADYWOOD 57, DDC 49: Sophomore forward Tara Overaitis scored 21 points Thursday, leading Livonia Ladywood to a Catholic League Central Division victory over visiting Dearborn Divine Child.

The Blazers are 4-2 in the division and 12-2 overall, the Falcons 1-5 and 6-6.

Ladywood led by as many as 18 before the Falcons sliced the margin to six in the final quarter.

Sophomore center Anne Poglits chipped in with 13 points, while senior guard Mary Jo Kelly added eight.

Jessica Toth led DC with 15, while Dawn Pelc added 10.

Only four Salem players scored. Beside the output from Platter and Sockow, the Rocks received 10 and nine points, respectively, from senior guards Leslie Gotts and Christy Parimucha.

"They're extremely fast and they shoot well," said Butler of the Rocks. "They will definitely make some noise in the league playoffs."

SPORTS SHORTS

Items for the Sports Roundup should be submitted by 5 p.m. Tuesday (for Thursday edition) and 5 p.m. Friday (for the Monday edition).

■ GOLF FINALS

Farmington High's Jason Buha, shooting a 2-over 74, was on top of the leader board Friday after first-round action in the Michigan High School Athletic Association Class A boys golf tournament at Forest Akers West Golf Course on the Michigan State University campus.

Plymouth Canton's Brad Paskievitch shot an 81, but missed the cut by two strokes.

■ SOCCER TRYOUTS

The Canton Soccer Club will have tryouts for its under-15½ boys (born between Aug. 1, 1977 and July 31, 1978) soccer team at 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 24 and 25, at Heritage Park Field No. 4.

The team will compete in the Little Caesars Premier League. For information call Tom Martin (565-6490) or John Davidson (459-6739).

Tennis from page 1C

"Renee Chou was very good at the net this year, and Emily Ochs was a real pleasant surprise," Staniszewski said, adding the doubles team got better as the season progressed.

North's Jennifer Irani and Jennifer Kosutic captured the No. 3 doubles crown over Lauren Tucker and Korin Szopo of Farmington. The Raiders lost the first set 6-0 and were down 5-2 in second but came back to win 7-6 (7-2) and 7-5.

Jennifer Reff at No. 2 singles and the No. 2 doubles team of Lindsay Livermore and Jennifer Pajewski were runners-up but provided important points by getting to the finals, Staniszewski said.

The No. 4 doubles team of Stephanie Panush and Heather Brown lost in the first round of the tournament but redeemed themselves Wednesday by clinching the dual-meet win over Harrison.

Central senior Stephanie Geelhood won the No. 1 singles championship after being the runner-up last year. Following wins over Jones (2-2) and Sarah Brudi of Farmington (2-1), she defeated Salem's Jennifer Clack in the final (3-2).

"She's a very hard-paced hitter," said Geelhood of Clack. "I like to slow it up and change pace, and she has a hard time with that. I knew the type of player she is and how to play her."

Geelhood, who was the top seed at No. 1 singles and won the No. 3 singles title as a sophomore, also is the team leader based on her talent and experience.

■ 'They have the two best players in the conference. That's like when I had Kori (Davidson, the two-time Class B state champion now playing for Arizona State University). They give Cental two automatic points, and it makes them even stronger.'

Bernie Goldstein
Harrison coach

"This is my senior year, and I'd like to go to state with the team," she said. "I'm very enthusiastic and positive with my teammates. I think they expect me to win and it rubs off on them. The more I win it helps them to think 'I can do it, too.'"

Central also had the No. 2 singles champ in Rachel Clanton, and the Vikings won at No. 2 doubles with Nevada Breniser and Aurea Alday.

"They have the two best players in the conference," Goldstein said. "That's like when I had Kori (Davidson, the two-time Class B state champion now playing for Arizona State University). They give Cental two automatic points, and it makes them even stronger."

Harrison was first at No. 4 doubles with Lindsay Frank and Kristin Wolters.

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
If you are not making progress, it may be time to look for alternate methods to accomplish your goals. Health matters need to be looked into quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Inexperience could cause grave problems. Seek an expert's advice about serious matters. A sensible woman could offer a new opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
A young person may offer to help you with something important. Obstacles will soon be removed. It is important to think before you speak.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
You have a big decision to make that could affect the rest of your life. It's time to see the light — materialism will get you nowhere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Someone close to you could be retreating emotionally and is unwilling to share a problem. Keep a positive attitude and show you care.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Do not feel sorry for yourself; look around for new opportunities. You should be prepared to adapt to different circumstances.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Opposition could cause a delay of plans. In a case of mind over matter you will acheive your goals. Tell the truth in an uncomfortable situation.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
You should probably take the advice of a reliable man who may be associated with religion or law. He has a great deal of empathy for your situation.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Be alert to subtle changes going on around you. You must be more independent and trust your instinct. Good news is on the way.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
You are too wrapped up in material concerns and are being inconsiderate of others. You must investigate a certain situation carefully.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
You are not using your talents wisely and your short-sightedness can make you look stupid. There is an indication of travel in your near future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
You may be headed down the wrong path. You need a new focus on life — a happier, more relaxed outlook. Avoid stressful situations. © TV Listing Inc.

Perkins makes classy exit in NBC's 'Deep Woods'

Suspense hindered by TV limitations

By Steven Alan McGaw

Actor Anthony Perkins inhabits a distinctive space in the public mind. With his carefully constructed portrayal of murderous mama's boy Norman Bates in Alfred Hitchcock's Psycho in 1960, Perkins moved beyond the status of mere movie star to become a familiar resident of our collective nightmares. In his long career, beginning with 1953's The Actress to his death last month from AIDS, Perkins enjoyed many successes, from his Oscar-nominated turn in Friendly Persuasion to a Tony-nomination for his performance in Broadway's Equus. On a lark, he partnered with Stephen Sondheim to script 1973's delightful puzzler The Last of Sheila, and he offered a determined Javert in the lavish 1978 remake of Les Miserables.

Still, it was Psycho that defined Perkins' indelible place in film, and he seemed content with that, even reprising the role of Norman in three sequels. He also used the Psycho pedigree to color other ominous or mysterious portrayals, like the oddball arsonist in 1968's Pretty Poison and the crazed street preacher in Ken Russell's unnerving Crimes of Passion in 1985.

Perkins' presence is a powerful part of NBC's suspenseful In the Deep Woods, a two-hour film airing Monday, Oct. 26. Based on a chilling novel by Nicholas Conde, the movie focuses on Carol Warren, a successful children's author played by Rosanna Arquette. When a childhood friend apparently falls victim to the serial murdered known as the Deep Woods Killer (after the locations where he dumps the bodies), Carol meets New York detective Eric Gaines (Will Patton) and learns that after at least 40 victims, the police are no closer to tracing the killer. She is further alarmed to realize she matches the profile of the Deep Woods Killer's victims.

Days later, at a book signing, Carol notices a tall, somber man waiting in line. "Sign it 'To Suzanne,'" he says flatly, handing the writer her latest book. Carol hastily scrawls the inscription and returns the book, somehow knowing she'll see the haunted-looking stranger again.

In the Deep Woods is among the best suspense-type telefilms the networks have produced in a long time. Arquette delivers a powerful performance, heading a fine cast that includes Chris Rydell as her dutiful, angelic-looking brother and D.W. Moffett as a charming womanizer. The script by writers Robert Nathan and Robert Rosenblum is a skillful adaptation of Conde's novel, and director Charles Correll keeps the action moving at an admirably swift pace. On the whole, the movie achieves a high degree of suspense, but the format of mainstream television (commercials, etc.) simply doesn't allow for the sustained tensions a work such as this really needs.

It is, of course, Perkins who dominates the film, in a role calculated to trade on his larger-than-life persona. Perpetually swathed in a trenchcoat, his unsmiling Paul Miller says more with his sad, silent gaze than most characters can with a soliloquy. It is a fine final bow for an actor whose place in cinema history is assured.

White's 50-year career goes 'Golden'

By Suzanne Gill

Long before there was a ZIP code to put it on the map, Betty White was a graduate of Beverly Hills High School. Born in 1922, White became a radio actress (Blondie, The Great Gildersleeve) in the 1940s and ventured into local television in Los Angeles before most people had a set. Her sitcom Life With Elizabeth was syndicated in 1953 and earned White her first Emmy.

By the 1960s, White had married quizmaster Allen Ludden (College Bowl, Password) and become a regular TV host for the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade and Rose Bowl Parade. In 1973, she created the role of predatory cooking-show hostess Sue Ann Nivens on The Mary Tyler Moore Show, for which she won two Emmys as best supporting actress. Stints on Mama's Family and Ludden's Liar's Club followed, and White spent much of her off-camera time working for various Humane Societies and encouraging people to take care of their pets.

In 1985, another hit series, The Golden Girls, put her back in the limelight. This fall, she has stayed with the show during its metamorphosis and rebirth as The Golden Palace, a Friday-night series on CBS.

TRIVIA, ETC.

How many Motos were there?

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. Warner Oland, Sidney Toler and Roland Winters are each identified with the role of Charlie Chan. Name the actors who portrayed Mr. Moto.
2. Identify the 1968 film promoted with the line, "Somewhere in the universe, there must be something better than man."
3. Name the film based on Ernest Haycox's short story, "Stage to Lordsburg." (Hint: There are actually several movie versions of the story.)
4. Who played the famous baritone in the 1943 version of The Phantom of the Opera?
5. Randolph Scott made his last screen appearance playing an aging lawman hired to protect a shipment of gold. Name the film. (Bonus: Who directed the picture?)
6. What movie gem climaxes with the line, "We belong dead!"?
7. Who played The Spy Who Came in From the Cold?

Answers:

1. Only Peter Lorre played the clever sleuth.
2. Planet of the Apes.
3. Stagecoach. John Ford's original version remains the best.
4. Nelson Eddy.
5. Ride the High Country, directed by Sam Peckinpah.
6. 1932's The Bride of Frankenstein.
7. Richard Burton.

STAR NOTES

After a half-century in show business, how does White manage to rise and shine for work every morning?

"I have a poodle that's set for 6:15," she says.

Tim Burton, the visionary director responsible for the heavily stylized films Beetlejuice, Edward Scissorhands and the Batman movies, began his career with a featurette titled Frankenweenie. The story concerns Sparky, the pit bullterrier of 10-year-old Victor Frankenstein. When the sweet-natured pup is run over by a car, his young master endeavors to revive him using a toaster and a microwave. The darkly comic short, starring Barrett Oliver, Shelley Duvall, Daniel Stern and Paul Bartel, makes its TV debut on The Disney Channel Sunday, Oct. 18.

Star-crossed lovers are caught in the violence of Northern Ireland in the romantic thriller The Railway Station Man, a TNT original movie debuting on Sunday. Donald Sutherland and Julie Christie (reunited on film for the first time since 1973's Don't Look Now) star, respectively, as a reclusive eccentric dedicated to restoring an abandoned railway station and the widowed artist with whom he becomes involved.

BUTS AND PIECES

Savage behind wheel; Steinem behind scenes

Wonder Years star Fred Savage turned 16 in July ... which means he was driving without a license in some of last season's shows.

"I had a permit when we were doing the shows," Savage explains. "A permit says that you can only drive with a licensed driver 25 years or older. So when I was driving the car with Paul or the buddies, what you didn't see was a Teamster crouched underneath the back seat." Executive producer Bob Brush adds, "He (the Teamster) was lying down, saying, 'Oh, my God. Oh, my God. Oh, my God.' "

These days, Savage can be seen driving (legally) his mom's old Toyota Celica convertible, which, he says, makes him "very happy."

Gloria Steinem is executive producer of an upcoming Lifetime movie, Better Off Dead, set to air in January. Currently in production in Seattle, the drama stars Mare Winningham as a con woman who is convicted of murder and sentenced to death. As her execution date draws near, the case is reopened and new and unsettling evidence comes to light. Steinem is developing the film with production partner Roslyn Heller, who was executive producer of Which Way Is Up? and American Hero.

Fred Savage...

Denzel Washington plays a lawyer stalked by a killer in Ricochet, debuting Saturday on HBO.

Warner Bros. scored big points for family values earlier this month with the opening of its 4,500-square-foot Children's Center, a day-care facility for the children of studio employees. Kids 3 months to 5 years old can enjoy a nursery, classrooms, indoor and outdoor play areas and hot meals in the lunchroom. Obviously hoping the show-biz bug will bite young Warner, he also provided a theater arts and storytelling room for the little ones. On hand for the ribbon-cutting were Candice Bergen and Bugs Bunny.

Sammy, winner Steve Warner performs in Friday's installment of TNN's Drivin' Country Concerts.

SOAP TALK

Hall's no-pain, no-gain 'pregnancy'

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I heard that Deidre Hall had a baby and I wondered how they covered it up on Days of Our Lives. She always seemed so fit and trim. –Thanks, Amanda, Waco, Texas.

Dear Reader: Hall did stay fit and trim through the entire pregnancy, because the baby was carried by a surrogate mother named Robin. Hall is unable to have children of her own, so she and husband Steve Sohmer went through the Center for Surrogate Parenting in Beverly Hills.

David Atticus Sohmer was born Aug. 23 and weighed in at eight pounds three ounces.

Also, there is big news about another Days star. Lynn Herring, who portrays Lisanne Gardner, is leaving the show. Her last tape date is Oct. 30. A release from NBC states, "The decision was a mutual agreement between Herring, NBC and Corday Productions. Her character will not be replaced on the show."

Herring had signed a two-year contract, so this is an interesting turn of events. Herring's husband, Wayne Northrop (Roman), is remaining with the show for the time being.

Dear Candace: Please help me settle an argument with some friends of mine. They say that Amanda Bearse on Married...With Children used to be on All My Children. I have watched AMC for years and I don't ever remember seeing her. I hope you can help me; there's a big favor riding on this one. –Thanks, K.L. and friends in Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: Bearse portrayed Amanda Cousins on AMC from 1982 to 1984. Cousins was a friend of Liza (Marcy Walker). If you remember, Liza spent most of her time trying to keep Jenny (Kim Delaney) and Greg (Laurence Lau) apart, and Cousins helped Liza with her schemes.

Dear Candace: What happened to the actress who played Blake Thorpe on Guiding Light? The actress who took over the role is not very convincing. –L.M., Greenville, N. C.

Dear Reader: Sherry Stringfield (ex-Blake) decided to leave the show to pursue other interests, namely prime-time television and features. I wouldn't be surprised if she turned up on another soap sometime soon.

Write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, TX 76161-1009.

LET'S TALK

Home fires burning for 'Homefront'; Duke ahoy

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My favorite show is ABC's wonderful drama* Homefront, *and one of the reasons for that is the superb acting of its cast, particularly Tammy Lauren (Ginger) and Jessica Steen (Linda). Could you please provide me with some professional and personal information on both actresses? At what address can I write them? —Jamie Molchan, Greenville, N.C.

A: I quite agree with your critical approval of Homefront. It's exceedingly rare to find a network program so charged with genuine drama and chemistry among the cast members. This production was obviously well-conceived from the beginning and hasn't let up since, and the show's producers deserve the growing attention they are beginning to receive.

Tammy Lauren was born the daughter of a preacher in Carrollton, Ga., and has appeared in guest roles on a number of television series, including Sister Kate, Family Ties, The Hogan Family and The Bronx Zoo. She has five brothers, teaches an acting class and lives with her teacup poodle, Chaplin, in Los Angeles.

Jessica Steen was born and raised in Toronto, and she also has appeared in a variety of guest roles on television, including spots on Wiseguy, Kay O'Brien and daytime's Loving. A true animal lover, Steen claims to spend her free time with her two enormous cats, Zack and Same. You may write Steen and Lauren in care of Homefront, ABC Television Network Group, 77 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y., 10023.

Q: My favorite movie is* A Christmas Carol *with Alastair Sim as Scrooge. I've never seen in the opening credits who plays whom. I would like to know who plays Alice and also who portrays Fan (Scrooge's sister). —William Cowley, Olathe, Co.

A: In the 1951 version of Charles Dickens' Christmas parable, Alice was played by Rona Anderson and Fan by Carol Marsh.

Q: I would like to know how to obtain tickets for* The Oprah Winfrey Show. *I am interested in getting four or five tickets in April for my mother's 80th birthday. —Ann Thompson, Big Spring, Texas.

A: Wisely, Ann, you will have given the Oprah people plenty of time to respond to your request and should have no trouble in confirming a date near that time. Rather than writing, Oprah's studio, Harpo Productions, suggests you call them directly at 312-591-9222.

Q: Years ago, I saw a movie with John Wayne that was filmed in the South Sea islands. There was a terrible storm in it — either a hurricane, tornado or tidal wave. I think "Paradise" was somewhere in the title, but I'm not certain. Do you have a clue? —M. Patton, Kerrville, Texas.

A: After poring through volumes of information and browsing virtually every description of every Wayne movie, I finally happened upon Reap the Wild Wind, released in 1942. The film opens with a tropical storm, and, in its aftermath, shipwrecked sailing vessels spill floating debris into the water. Wayne and company make their living by scooping up said cargo from points far and wide through hurricane territory, off the southeastern coast of 19th-century North America. Some of the more ruthless types in this film also line their pocketbooks by steering unsuspecting vessels into dangerous reefs. Paulette Goddard, Raymond Massey and Ray Milland are among the supporting cast. Reap the Wild Wind won an Oscar for special effects.

TIME OUT

ABC puts fans in stands, where they belong

By Michael Scogin

Hurry down to participating stores! Saturday, Oct. 31, is the last day to enter the 1992 Fan Fantasy Sweepstakes, sponsored by ABC Sports and Nutmeg Mills, makers of officially licensed products from the NFL, NBA, NHL and NCAA.

Entrants have the chance to win two tickets to one of the following sporting events televised by ABC Sports: the Kentucky Derby, the Indianapolis 500, the Rose Bowl, the U.S. Open Golf Championships, the Sugar Bowl, the NFL Hall of Fame Game or the college football or Monday Night Football game of their choice.

Winners also receive round-trip airfare and two nights' lodging.

According to spokesmen for ABC, promotion logistics are hampering the flow of entries, so chances of winning are unusually good – if fans can find a participating sportswear retailer offering the necessary entry form.

No purchase is necessary, and fans may enter as many times as they wish. Employees of ABC/Capital Cities, Nutmeg and companies involved in the advertising and public relations of the sweepstakes are ineligible to apply.

Winners will be announced about two weeks after the Oct. 31 deadline.

Stay-at-home fans can enjoy several televised events this week, including CBS' coverage of the World Series.

ESPN carries live coverage of NHL hockey beginning Friday, Oct. 23.

Jeremy Irons stars in PBS' fascinating 'Tales'

Hampton looks at emigres in Hollywood

By Steven Alan McGaw

Oscar winners Jeremy Irons and Alec Guinness head the cast of Christopher Hampton's Tales From Hollywood, the premiere presentation of American Playhouse's 12th season. Sinead Cusack, Charles Durning, Elizabeth McGovern and Jack Shepherd also star in the two-hour show airing Monday, Oct. 19, on most PBS affiliates.

In 1980, producers at Los Angeles' Mark Taper Forum approached Hampton (Dangerous Liaisons) about writing a play on some aspect of the city's history. He soon envisioned a piece about the many European writers and intellectuals who found refuge and employment in the film industry of the late '30s and early '40s.

Hampton was also familiar with the works of Odon Von Horvath, a Hungarian playwright who died on the eve of his move to America. Horvath, in fact, had just begun a novel when he died titled Adieu, Europa, the first line of which read, "Ein poet emigriert nach America" ("A poet emigrates to America"). Hampton decided to make Horvath the central character in his play and the audience's link (speaking directly to them) with a fascinating circle that included writers like Bertolt Brecht, Salka Viertel and brothers Heinrich and Thomas Mann. Through Horvath's monologues and asides — sometimes wide-eyed with innocence, often darkly comic — we understand the unusual plight of brilliant men and women who found themselves in a culture sharply different from their own, trying to make a living in a business that sought at once to exploit and suppress their talents.

Irons is fascinating as Horvath, aided by Hampton's razor-sharp dialogue. Guinness excels as elderly Heinrich Mann, his marriage to the unsophisticated Nelly (Cusack) a tragic mirror to the May-December romance in 1930's The Blue Angel, which was based on one of his novels. Shepherd is appropriately irritating and amusing as Bertolt Brecht and Durning's performance as a studio mogul is hilarious. Only McGovern is disappointingly bland as playwright Helen Schwartz.

Alaskey feathers nest with 'Plucky Duck'

By Chris Carpenter

With compatible companions at a premium these days, Joe Alaskey believes in keeping a few of them in his head just for safe measure. One feathered friend is Buster and Babs Bunny's sputtering sidekick, Plucky Duck, who was recently granted the Hollywood equivalent of a gold star — his own show.

Steven Spielberg Presents The Plucky Duck Show, a spin-off of Spielberg's Tiny Toons, is currently airing Saturday mornings on Fox.

Mouthing Plucky's egotistical and comically contemptuous opinions on what makes good entertainment is an amusing catharsis for Alaskey. Happy to have several years of experience on the stage and in television (Out of This World) and film (Lucky Stiff), Alaskey still feels his most fulfilling roles are ahead of him.

"I'm very happy to be nearing the final edit on what is not just a one-man (stage) show, and also a darn good play. These shows never go out of style," he says, adding that he hopes to hone the show to completion in early 1993.

But in the meantime, Alaskey terms himself "very lucky" to have landed The Plucky Duck Show, especially considering the latest trend in voice-over acting.

"Now it's a constant process of auditioning, and many of the roles are going to star performers, making the competition even tougher."
