

Students may be sitting with board

PLYMOUTH—Students in the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park may soon find inroads to the Plymouth School Board table through which they can voice opinions and ideas.

The school board Monday unanimously approved the concept of student representation at school board meetings to receive student ideas on policies that will affect them.

Students and the district's administration will meet to form channels between the two groups. The plan will be subject to school board approval.

The board approved the concept in response to a Student Senate request to form a student advisory committee, composed of five students from the Centennial Educational Park. That committee, the students proposed, would voice opinions to the school board, and three members would hold non-voting seats at the school board table.

In adopting the concept, the board did not approve the student plan as submitted.

"I'm sympathetic to the request, because there's a symbolism involved here," said school board trustee Gary Mirto. "There's a symbol of formal representation that people can point to and say student government is recognized. I think from an educational point of view, it invites student representatives and their constituents to take a closer look at the board."

Trustees Carl Berry and George Lawton feared approval of the concept would establish a precedent under which other organizations would desire representation at the board table.

"If we provide the students with seats," Lawton said, "it would seem to me that we'd have to grant any reasonable request for the same thing. My question would be on what grounds would you deny them, if you grant this precedent?"

Mirto answered, "We'll get requests, no doubt, but we can examine each one of them."

"Although the board might approve the concept in principle," Mirto told board members before approval was granted, "it still awaits the recommendation of the administration."

School board President E.J. McClen-don said, "I think they (students) need to understand some of the legal restraints we operate under. I hope we can work it out."

Fifteen Cents

Phone rates drop for many residents

Some Plymouth, Canton and Westland residents will start the new year with a pleasant surprise.

While prices of most goods and services are rising, telephone rates for many residents will decrease 55 cents to $2.50 a month, beginning in mid-January, because of a Michigan Bell Telephone redistricting move, recently approved by the Public Service Commission.

Although the move will cost Michigan Bell $47,660 in annual revenue, the company is implementing the plan "because of growth in the area," according to press relations manager Phil Jones.

"It's really a matter of improving service," Jones explained. "As the area continues to grow, the revenue base will grow as well."

The plan will affect some residents of Plymouth, Canton and Salem townships and some residents of Westland, who have received "suburban zone charges," fees for living away from population centers, on their telephone bills.

The redistricting plan will eliminate those extra charges by placing residents in the base rate areas of population centers.

Residents of the northwestern chunk of Canton Township, who live between Joy and Cherry Hill and Canton Center Road and the township line; and residents of Plymouth Township, who live between Joy and North Territorial and between an extended line of Canton Center Road and about one-half mile west of Beck, will receive a rate decrease because of placement in the Plymouth base rate area.

Westland residents who live between Newburgh and Hannan and between Joy and Cherry Hill will receive the same rate decreases.

Those residents will pay 85 cents less a month for one-party lines and 55 cents less for two-party lines.

Michigan Bell is adding those areas to the base rate area because of new subdivisions, apartment complexes and shopping centers.

Plymouth Township residents who live between Ridge and Napier and between North Territorial and Five Mile will receive a rate decrease of 80 cents to $2.50 a month, as will residents of a Canton Township subdivision, located between Napier and Ridge and Joy and Warren.

Residents with one-party lines, who live within the previously zoned circle of "rural zone one," will receive a rate decrease of 80 cents a month, while residents with two-party lines will receive a rate decrease of 85 cents a month.

Those residents who live within the previously zoned circle of "rural zone two," which is farther from Detroit will receive a rate decrease of $2.50 a month with one-party lines and a decrease of $1.70 a month with two-party lines.

The areas include new subdivisions and a mobile home park.

In addition, the redistricting plan will push out the concentric circles of rural zoned areas that buffer Detroit's western suburbs and lower rates from 85 cents to $5.05 a month.

"The redistricting plan will affect 4,890 homes in all."

Accidents injure 7

CANTON TOWNSHIP—Two separate accidents at the Canton Center Road-Cherry Hill intersection sent seven persons to Wayne County General Hospital.

Three persons were injured Monday at 11:30 a.m. when, according to a Wayne County Sheriff Dept. report, a car driven by Lawrence Roy Workman, 43, of Wayne, "ran the stop sign on Cherry Hill," into the path of a car driven by Lavern Williams, 47, of Detroit. Her car then veered off Canton Center Road and slammed into a telephone pole.

Both drivers were taken to the hospital as was Workman's passenger, Bertha Workman, 73, of Dearborn.

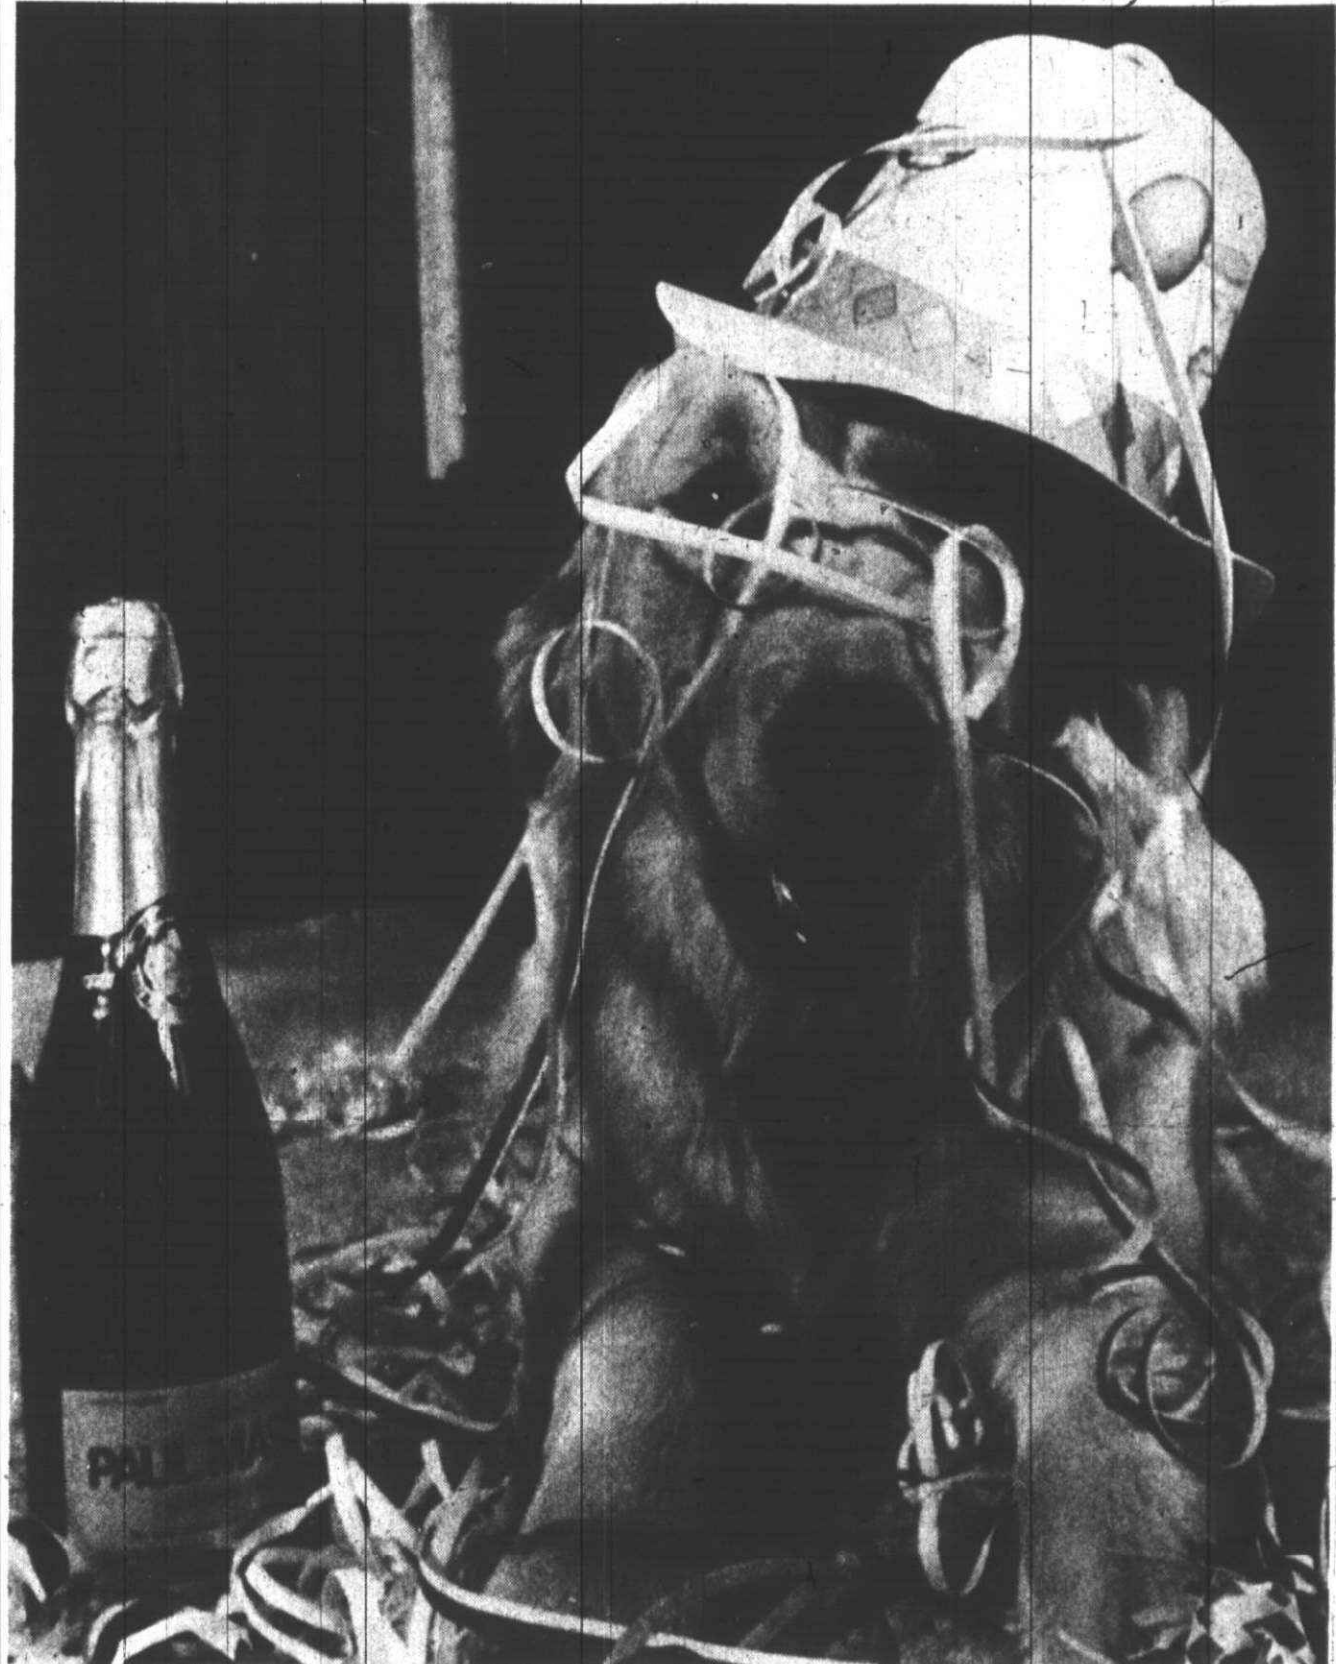

On Tuesday, at 2:50 p.m. four persons were injured in an accident involving three cars.

A sheriff report states a car driven by Sherry Ann Bryant, 16, of 940 Douglas, Garden City, "failed to yield the right of way" while heading west

Schools brace for changeover to metrics

By STEVE BARNABY

WESTLAND—After months of preparation, the Metric Community Resource Center, in conjunction with the Wayne-Westland School District, is primed to deluge the community with information on the metric system.

Focusing on elementary schools, the district has trained teachers to begin teaching the metric system in six of its schools: Elliot, Hamilton, Hoover, Kettering, Jefferson and Roosevelt.

The entire district will be using the metric system within three years, according to Ann Chowdhury, community involvement agent.

THE TRANSITION to metrics is being financed through a $177,000 federal grant for the first year. The district must reapply each year for the grants.

"There is no turning back," says Mrs. Chowdhury. "We just have to be successful."

Conversion from the traditional system will be avoided, she says. Rather, students will learn from the beginning how to "think" metric. Mrs. Chowdhury estimates it takes 25 per cent less time to teach metrics, as compared to the system now in use.

"It is so much easier to learn the metric system because it is based on units of ten. When a student is learning about the traditional system, he is labored with the conversion from such things as ounces to pounds."

Because it is a nationwide objective to use metrics within 10 years, the resource center has planned activities for parents. An adult instructor has been trained for each school, who will teach parents in workshops in school facilities. In this way, parents and children will be able to work together on the concept, she says.

The resource center is planning classes for adults at its headquarters at 646 Wayne Road. Presently, Mrs. Chowdhury is mapping out classes for interested civic and church groups. Also planned are classes for groups of individuals.

Wayne State University extension centers are working with the center in planning classes for their students.

Crowning the early year activities will be an appearance by resource center personnel on a local television program.

It is important for adults to learn the metric system, says Mrs. Chowdhury, because of the total conversion planned by the federal government. Consumers face buying gasoline by the liter, rather than the gallon. Already some of the oil companies are using selected stations, selling gasoline in liters, she says.

THE CITIES OF Wayne and Westland are converting some road signs to read in kilometers. They will be placed on Wayne Rd.

"The necessity of utilizing metric measurements in the highway and traffic engineering fields has been recognized by highway industries for a number of years," according to a statement from the Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation.

Changing to metrics is important, says Mrs. Chowdhury, because 90 per cent of the world's population uses the system. Already 103 countries are on the metric standard, while 28 countries are changing over. Only 10 haven't made a decision.

The kilogram

The metre

The litre

THESE UNFAMILIAR terms soon will become a part of the everyday vocabulary in Westland as the Wayne-Westland School District prepares to launch its project metric. Classes also are being planned for adults.

Mulligan returns as Plymouth postmaster

By MIKE ARNHOLT

PLYMOUTH—After five months off the job, Plymouth Postmaster Arthur Mulligan returned to his desk last Thursday, and while Mulligan is happy to have his job back, some of his employees are less than pleased with his return.

Mulligan resigned his position with the Postal Service in May of this year, with an effective date of July 30. Just prior to that time, he attempted to withdraw his resignation, was unsuccessful and appealed the decision to the Civil Service Commission.

Mulligan's appeal was upheld and he returned to work with full back-pay.

EMPLOYEES, WHO asked that their names be withheld, noted that while Mulligan served in Plymouth, morale was low, but during his five-month absence things improved. "We've had problems with Mulligan in the past, but I hope he will change now that he's back," noted one employee.

The same employee said that interim Officer in Charge Kenneth Harris had been very "reasonable" and "fair" to work with, noting Harris had maintained an "open door policy" for the employees.

"He (Mulligan) seemed to be concerned with picky things and not whether a person was handling his job right," noted another employee.

WHEN ASKED about alleged morale problems, Mulligan said things were not that bad prior to his leaving in July. "I felt I was getting along with people here, and I felt I could work with these people. Some I got along with and some I didn't. There are some people who you can never get along with."

Mulligan said he first submitted his resignation because he felt he was not getting any cooperation from the district office in Detroit. He said he later decided that he would start over again and try to work with it, but his initial attempt at withdrawing his resignation was unsuccessful.

The postmaster and former teacher added that rumors that he wanted to return to teaching were in error. "At no time did I consider going back to teaching."

NOW THAT HE is back on the job, Mulligan noted some changes that he had tried to make prior to his leaving in July had been accomplished. Several offices were enlarged, and others were built to add privacy for some supervisors and foremen who had desk work to do.

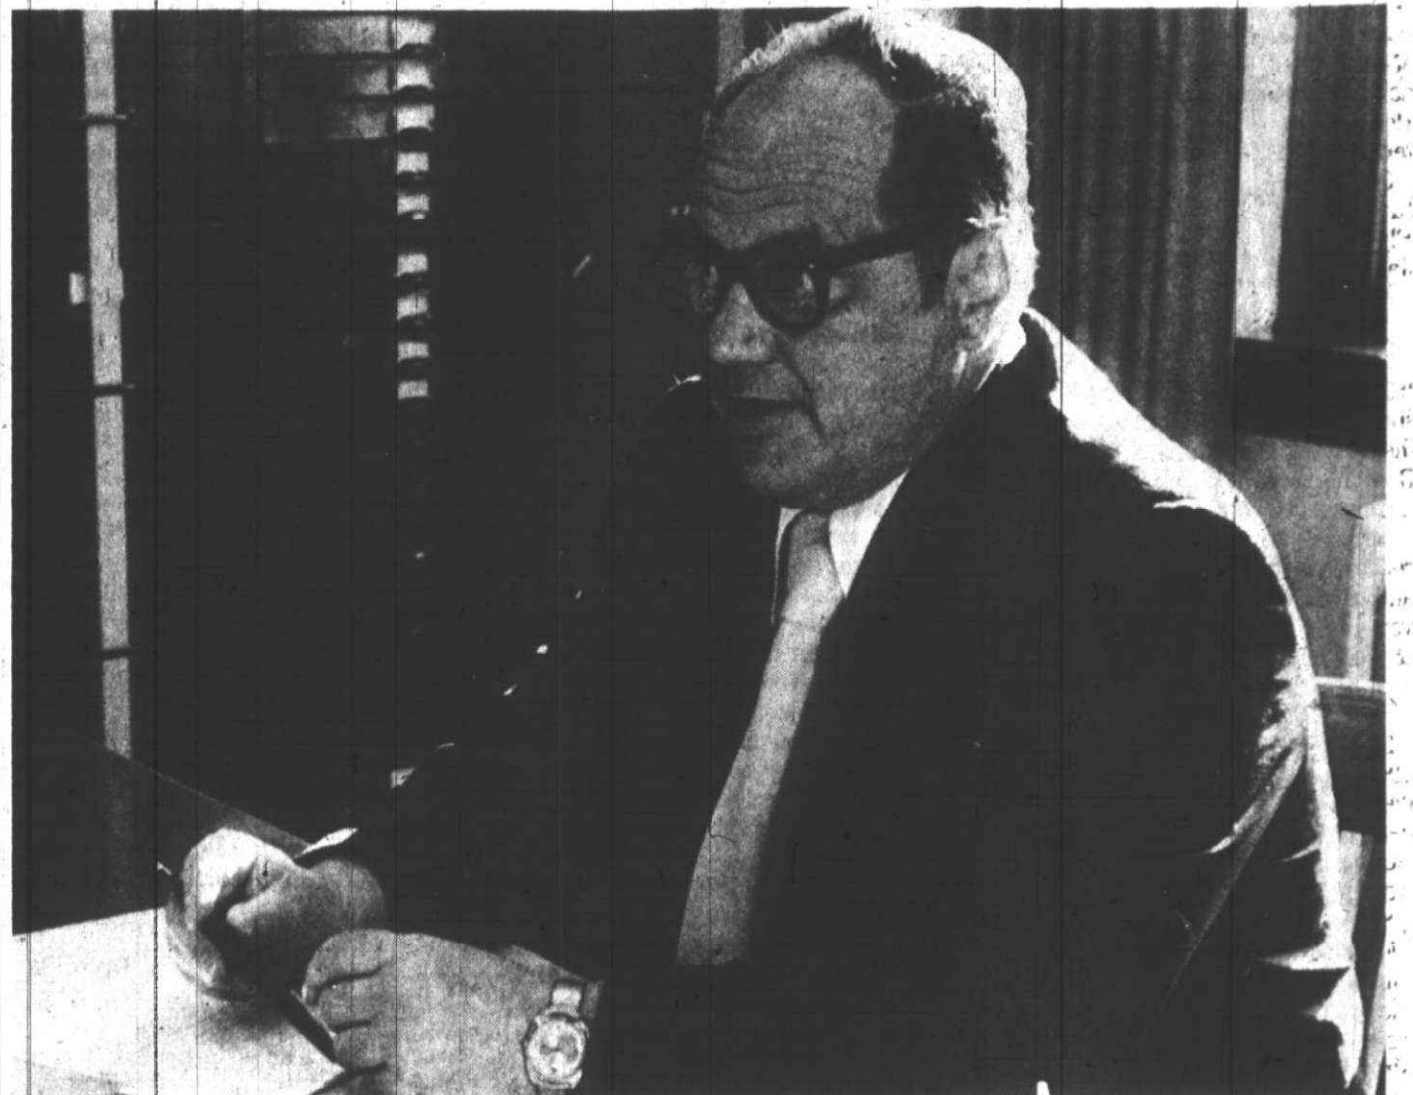

Mulligan added that the building will be completely painted inside and flooring replaced in part of the building.

Looking to the future, Mulligan said plans are currently under way to build another post office "within the next three years."

Citing the expansion taking place in Canton Township, a majority of which is served from Plymouth, Mulligan said that plans were under way to construct a new building "within the next three years."

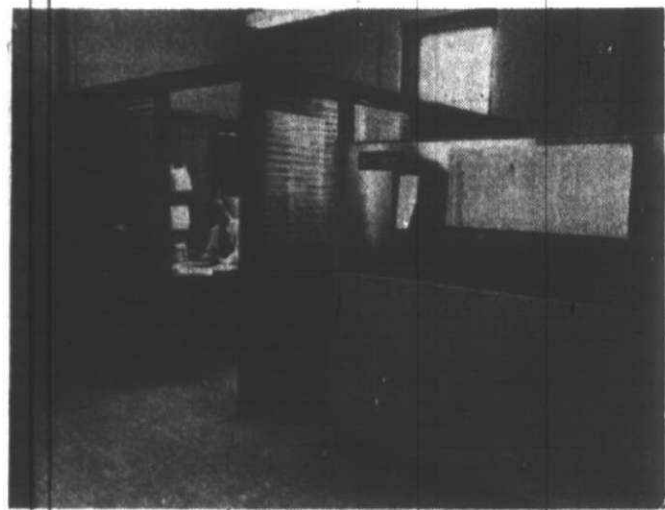

"We will need at least 10 acres for the facility, to allow for adequate parking for employees and patrons. I'd like to see the new post-office built in downtown Plymouth, but I don't think there is any site big enough," he said.

According to Mulligan, the next logical step might be to look for a site in Canton.

the job and found there'd been some changes made. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

Prof says '50s weren't all fun

The 1950s were "more" fun than fun," according to a Michigan State University history professor.

Douglas Miller says there was fear because after the depression and World War II people were searching for permanent values.

"Current nostalgia is so selective, we forget that the era wasn't just one big soda-shop world nearly contained between 1950 and 1959," says Dr. Miller who has coauthored a book on the '50s and will teach a course on that era at MSU.

rial things—big-finned cars, television sets and a piece of turf in suburbia.

"Materialism of the 1950s, epitomized by the exodus to suburbia, superhighways, reliance on the private auto and the resulting breakdown of mass transportation, has led to 1970s' problems of pollution, congestion and deteriorating cities."

DID ANYONE realize what was going on in the 1950s?

Dr. Miller feels that raucous rock and roll "hoods" who stole hub caps, and the appeal of young actors such as James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause" show that young people were questioning their parents' values even if they did not actively rebel.

on Cherry Hill. Her car was struck by another car driven by Sam Henry Music, 34, of 433 John Hix, Westland.

Miss Bryant's car was pushed into a third vehicle, driven by Floyd A. Disbrow Jr., 22, of 33952 Fountain Blvd., Westland, who ended up near the telephone pole being repaired from the accident the previous day.

Music and his passenger, Wilma Jarvis, 36, of Ypsilanti, were taken to Wayne County General Hospital.

Miss Bryant and her passenger, Mary Bryant, 52, of the Garden City address, were also hospitalized. Disbrow did not require hospitalization, according to the sheriff.

Both accidents are still under investigation.

Leave policy questioned

PLYMOUTH—The Plymouth school board and the Plymouth Educational Association will attempt to iron out two grievances Jan. 13, typing students at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park soon will pound on new electric typewriters, and school board meeting audiences will hear board proceedings better.

Those were items on which the school board unanimously acted last week.

The board set Jan. 13 as the hearing date for two PEA grievances. Both grievances, according to School Supt. John Hoben, concern a contract stipulation requiring 90 days of teaching time per semester.

One teacher, Hoben said, wants to apply a 30-day maternity leave to the required time, and another, who was hired late in the year, wants to apply the teaching time he missed at the beginning of the semester.

The board approved the purchase of 34 IBM electric typewriters for the Centennial Educational Park through state vocational educational added cost funds.

Funds for the typewriters, costing $630 each, will come from the district's general fund. The state which approved the purchase, will later reimburse the district, according to Plymouth School Board President E. J. McClendon.

The new typewriters will replace 34 other IBM electric typewriters, now nine years old, McClendon said.

In other action, the board agreed to purchase a sound system from Stereoland for $842.

The system will be installed in the Plymouth Canton High School Little Theater where school board meetings are usually held and will enable audiences to hear proceedings at school board meetings better.

Many shocked by 1907 wreck

On July 20, 1907, shortly after 9 a.m., an eastbound Pere Marquette train, filled with passengers from Ionia, hurtled around a sharp curve and into a steep embankment four miles west of Plymouth.

At the same moment, a six-car freight train, heading west, entered the cut on the same track. They met head-on, creating one of the major railroad wrecks in the history of the United States.

The events leading to the tragedy began early on a Saturday morning. Conductor Hamilton, in charge of the freight, received orders to take his train on the main line toward Salem. Some of the cars contained gravel to be dumped enroute.

Hamilton read the orders. He handed them to the rest of his crew to read. Engineer Wilson Rogers read the orders and climbed into the cab.

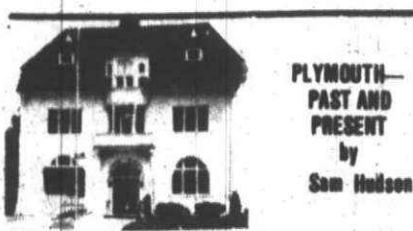

THIS IS WHAT happened from then on:

8:45 a.m. The freight train pulled out of the Plymouth yards and headed for Rathburn's Crossing.

9:05 a.m. Two carloads of gravel were dumped just east of the crossing. The train proceeded toward Salem.

9:10 a.m. A special excursion train, consisting of 10 passenger coaches and a baggage car, pulled out of Salem and headed toward Plymouth. The crew included conductor E.J. Pixley, engineer Alvard, fireman Charles Knowles and brakeman Ed Cowan.

The train had originated at Ionia, where the Pere Marquette Railroad had a large car repair shop. Some 800 railroad employees, their families and friends, aboard the train, were headed for Detroit, where a boat had been chartered to take them to Belle Isle for their annual picnic.

9:12 a.m. Nine-year-old Clyde Smith and his father Edward were hoeing potatoes on the farm they rented from Will Thayer, on Six Mile about three-fourths of a mile north of the railroad tracks. They saw the trains approach Van Side cut from opposite directions. The cut is about a quarter mile east of the Napier Road crossing where Robert Willoughby was injured by a train a few years ago. The Smiths stood transfixed as the trains rushed toward each other.

AT THAT MOMENT, a recent graduate of the eighth grade in Ionia, Ethel Connor (later Mrs. Robert Joliffe of Plymouth) was riding backward in the front seat of a coach next to the smoker. Ethel and two companions carried basket lunches for the picnic. Thoughts of the picnic were suddenly shattered by the shrill blast of whistles, the grinding of wheels, and a deafening crash as the two locomotives smashed into each other.

The wooden coaches collapsed like matchwood, huge splinters shooting out in all directions. The hiss of escaping steam drowned out the screams of passengers.

Ethel, knocked unconscious, recovered quickly. Her back hurt, but she was able to move. Steam was filling the coach. Ethel and her two companions pushed a window open. The coach they were in had telescoped on top of the smoker. The girls dropped to the roof of the smoker and jumped to the ground.

By this time, Clyde Smith and his father had arrived at the 20-foot embankment. It was a jumbled mass of passenger and freight cars. The six leading coaches were piled one on top of another. People were crawling out of doors and windows. The Smiths, Jim Spencer, and others from nearby farmhouses, began to pull the injured from the wreckage. One dying man begged to be shot.

Uninjured passengers, who had recovered from the initial shock, improvised coach doors as stretchers and began to move the dead and injured.

Approx. 9:30 a.m. Someone phoned Plymouth, asking that all physicians be dispatched to the scene. Doctors Patterson, Kimble, Kenyon and Knight, with several women to assist, rushed to the Plymouth depot where a special train took them to the wreckage.

By the time the doctors arrived, 28 of the dead had been lined up with their heads along the south fence. Most of those killed had been in the smoker which was next to the locomotive. Some of the injured were taken to nearby farm houses, including that of James Boyle, a quarter-mile north of the wreck. Some were cared for in the rear coaches of the train. The Plymouth doctors went about, administering emergency treatment.

11:30 a.m. A special train, carrying doctors, nurses and medical equipment pulled out of Fort Street station in Detroit. Aboard the train was Iva Bentley, whose people owned a restaurant in Plymouth.

Noon: Fourteen-year old Ezra Rotnour, of Plymouth, jumped on his bicycle and pedaled to the wreck. He parked his bike near a cemetery and clambered down the embankment. When he reached the spot where the two locomotives were still locked in deadly embrace, Ezra saw a brass plate bearing the number of one of the locomotives. He thought it would make a good souvenir to put on his bike. It was too heavy to carry so Ezra gave up the effort.

Seventeen-year old Walter Ebert, who worked at the Markham air rifle factory, left the plant at noon and walked to the wreck. Ebert was one of many in Plymouth who never returned to work that day. When only six Markham employees showed up after lunch, Superintendent Ernie Roe closed the plant and followed his men to the Van Side cut.

(The story of the wreck will be concluded in Part II).

La Charite in CMU glee club

PLYMOUTH—Judith La Charite of 4302 Arlington, Plymouth, a sophomore at Central Michigan University, is a member of the women's glee club for the fall semester.

The women's glee club performed with the men's glee club, the university chorale and the concert choir in Warriner Auditorium on the CMU campus, Nov. 10.

New arrivals at the library

Rosemary K. Collett "My Orphans of the Wild" A pelican in the bath-tub... baby birds nesting in the kitchen mixing bowls... a red tailed hawk in the laundry basket? You might find all these in Rosemary Collett's house where she cares for sick, injured and orphaned wild creatures. "My Orphans of the Wild" relates some of her experiences and provides not only lively entertainment for animal lovers, but also a unique reference work.

Peter DeVries "The Glory of the Hummingbird" In a day when malfeasance in high places is a burning concern, here is a study in the subtle corruption of an essentially good young man whose career reminds us that our major political miscreants are but heavy-weight blowups.

They are, after all, part of a standard American drive to success at any cost... the corner cutting. Take it and make it, psychology by which millions of ordinary citizens are propelled through life.

Marc F. Fasteau "The Male Machine" This is a myth-shattering book about men from the most intimate aspects of their lives, their sexuality, to the way they conduct themselves in the external world of work, social life, and sports. In the words of Gloria Steinem in her introduction to "The Male Machine," "This book is a complement to the feminist revolution, yet it is one no woman could write."

"It is the revolution's other half. True, no group of people gives up power voluntarily, and therefore women can never relax efforts to overthrow the structures of patriarchal power. But there will be male allies like this one: men who also want a world in which we can shed the crippling stereotypes of sex or race and become the unique individuals we were born to be."

James Herriot "All Things Bright and Beautiful" This long-awaited sequel to "All Creatures Great and Small" continues the rich and rewarding day-to-day life of a small-town veterinarian.

Michael McFadden "Bachelor Fatherhood" The author, himself an experienced "bachelor father," covers virtually every aspect of the single father's life. He offers practical advice on dealing with the divorce and custody hearing, raising small and teenage children, running a household in the simplest way possible, cooking, and readjusting to life as a bachelor in general.

He also examines the viability of stereotyped social roles and attitudes toward marriage, divorce and child rearing, and presents emancipating alternatives.

Pushies, Showies challenge best berries

Did you ever ask yourself if it's worth it? I mean the whole routine of life, and for what? There is no equality in this world. I've never been able to understand that reasoning, no matter how many laws there are to govern your stand. People are conditioned to appreciate the very best. Everything has to have that certain well, let's call it POW! Who do they think they're kidding calling me organismatic? I'm just one of those chemically pumped-up strawberries for a quick buck. The real tasters were left behind only because they lacked that all-American attitude (I'm the biggest and the best).

ON THIS New Year morning, marketers were bidding outlandish prices for my charismatic crimson-colored fruit as we were catalogued on the tailgate of a grower's truck ready to be dumped for whomever would pay the ridiculously high price, even though I'm worth twice fold of any current rating system.

All of us, the Pushies and the Showies were right in front and on top to make a good first impression for the produce buyers. They know the public will pay top dollar for our romantically red, rose fruit sending yuletide goodness to the hearts of all.

Why couldn't an entrepreneur or an impresario be passing by our strawberry world of wonder where fields upon fields lie in the comforting sun with their roseateous fruit illuminating the land as far as forever can see.

NOW, THAT'S a contribution to the arts. We could be crushed against a light living room wall to form art deco, art nouveau and art modern all into one, creating a symphony of movement with layers of shellac shiny clear to preserve our color for a very long time.

What a great New Year this is gonna be. Gulp.

HABBIT ROUGE CHEESECAKE FOR TORTE

1/4 cup flour
1/4 lb. butter
1 cup sugar
1 lb. cream cheese
1/2 lb. bakers cheese
1 cup milk
1/2 qt. whipped cream (stiff)
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon cornstarch
5 eggs separated
1 tsp. plain gelatin dissolve in cold water (quickly)
1 tsp. vanilla
Juice of 1 lemon strained
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup ground or finely chopped almonds

METHOD

Scald milk. Whip egg yolks and sugar in an electric mixer to a frothy consistency. Add flour and cornstarch to melted butter. Save one-quarter for crust. Whip both cheeses until fluffy.

Add sour cream and fold to the cheese mixture. Mix graham crackers, almonds, two tablespoons sugar and the remainder of melted butter. Add cinnamon.

Add milk to the whipped eggs and fold gently with a wooden spoon or a rubber spatula set in a water bath that has been simmering. Cook, stirring constantly until the frothy custard kind of coats the stirring instrument.

Do not overcook unless scrambled are desired. Fold in gelatin. Cool. Boil one cup water. Add the roux flour, cornstarch and butter with a French whisk and whip until smooth. Add the cheeses and flavorings, lemon and vanilla.

WHIP THE EGG whites until frothy with a pinch of cream of tartar. This keeps the whites together. A pinch of sugar may be added. Add the egg white mixture to the warm cheese panade (always add the light stuff to the heavy stuff.)

When mixture has cooled slightly (room temperature) fold in the fresh whipped cream. Now blend with a French whisk the egg yolk mixture. If mixture has become congealed in the interim just whip to a froth.

More vanilla or some rum may be added to your taste. If mixture is too stiff to fluff out onto the crumb-lined nine-inch cake tins, then just add some hot water while folding.

CRUST: Pat crumbs on bottom. Only bake four minutes. Cool. Freeze overnight or until ready for torte.

HABBIT ROUGE TORTE

1 yellow nine-inch yellow cake layer split through to make two separate layers
1 quart and 1 pint of whipping cream
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup grenadine
Whip until stiff. Set in cooler.

Two quarts fresh strawberries hulled with the exception of 12 or so to decorate with, depending on their size. Slice the remainder thinly. Wash the strawberries with the hulls on. This will secure all the flavor of the berry.

To assemble the torte, follow these simple steps: Remove frozen cheesecake and set on a nine-inch flat plate or your cake stand, crumb side down.

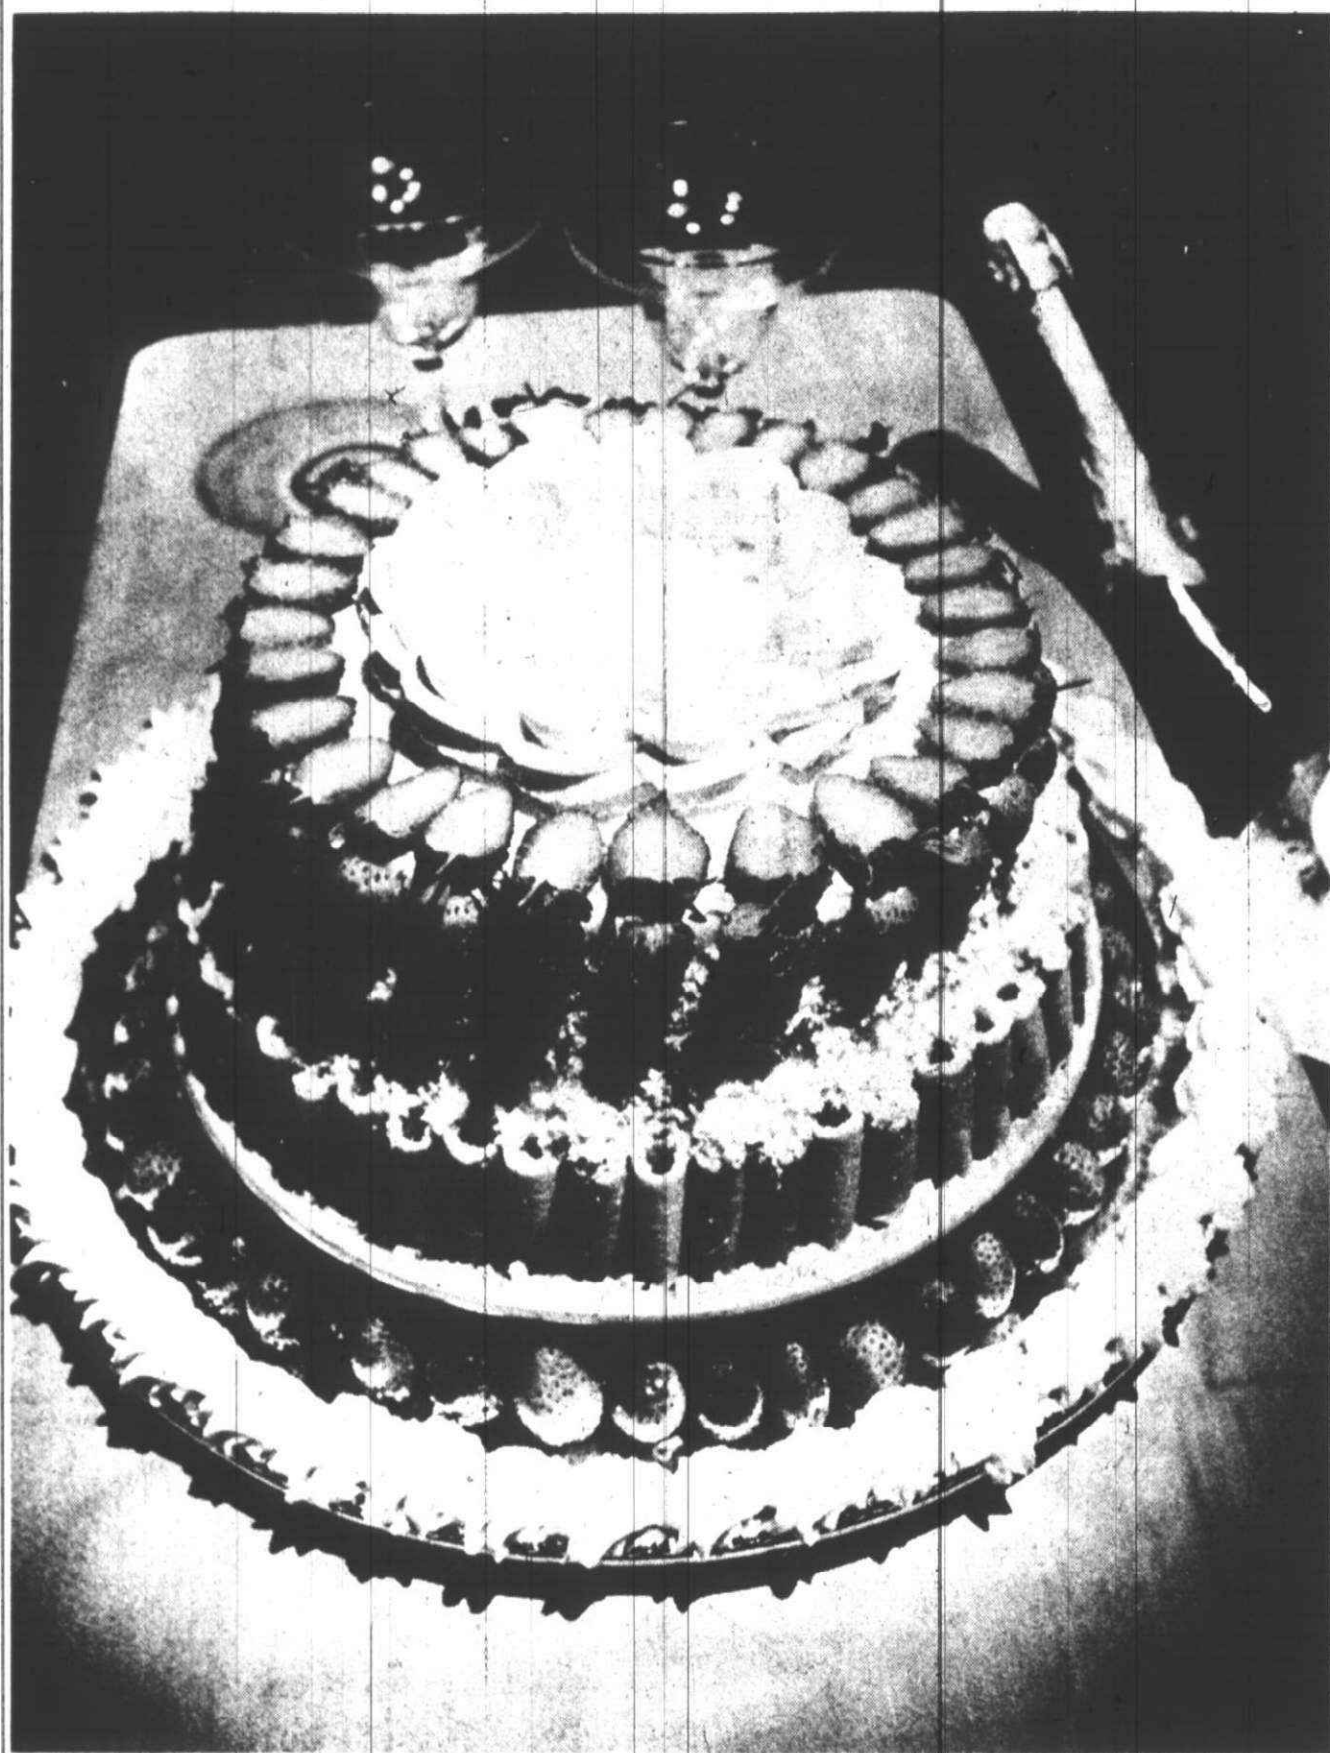

Spread about one quarter thick of whipped cream, then some strawberries (sliced). Add some more whipped cream. Then add layer cake, whipped cream, strawberries and more cream. Add the remaining layer and press gently to flatten top. Check and make sure sides are uniform.

Frost cake with stainless pastry spatula, keeping a round form. Cut the large berries. Set aside for decorating in half and line around the top of the torte with the hulls slightly outside, over-hanging the side of the torte side by side as closely as possible.

THIS WILL eliminate any irregularities in the circumference. Fill the remainder of whipped cream in a pastry bag with a No. 5 star tube (purchased at a pastry shop supply house) and try your hand at making a capital "C" all around the center of the top.

Rules for pressing cream through a pastry: After bag is filled to half, twist, squeeze with your palm and guide with your opposite index finger on the side of the star tube. Hold elbow with bag in hand as close to your side as possible. This will steady your hand as she goes.

Make a complete circle with your pastry bag on a 75-degree angle. Overlap each circle slightly as you make a complete circle of circles. Do the same thing on the base of the cake. Decorate with strawberry wedges. Then sprinkle with toasted almonds chopped finely in sugar on the sides. Exquisite with asti spumanti.

Habbit Rouge Torte begins with a cheesecake (Photographed by Barbara McClellan).

The Stroller

Legend of bells

By W. W. EDGAR

When the hands meet at the top of the clock Tuesday night and we reach midnight, The Stroller will open the back door and race for the old farm bell to carry out the tradition of "ringing out the old and ringing in the new" to start the New Year celebration.

He's been doing this for years. While others may be raising their glasses in toast or join millions in front of TV sets to await Guy Lombardo and his orchestra swinging into "Auld Lang Syne" with the "Sweetest Music This Side of Heaven," The Stroller will be ringing the treasured old bell that has weathered the summer suns and winter winds for more than a century. It will be his part in welcoming the new years.

How did this tradition start? THE STROLLER doesn't know exactly, except that ringing of bells has played a prominent part in celebrations and lifestyles since his childhood.

As a youngster it was the school bell that beckoned him to class each morning in the Dutch country. We used to have a bell ringing at 8:30 a.m. This was first call. Then the bell rang at five minute intervals until 8:45.

Many a morning there was a race to beat the third bell and escape the penalty for being late.

It was the same on Sunday morning, except that it was another bell with a different tone. It was the bell in the belfry of the little white church on the hill sounding the call to worship.

READERS' FORUM

Stroller told putz hasn't disappeared

Editor:

I was delighted to read W.W. Edgar's "Stroller" column about the Moravian putz as I was born and raised as a Moravian and am still a member of my home church in Wisconsin.

The putz has not disappeared—not where there are still Moravians!

My home church, Watertown, Wis., has a very elaborate basement display just as you described it—lights, music and usually a narrator. When I was a child, an aunt and uncle had a large putz under their tree also for my four cousins, and I always enjoyed seeing theirs. I was an only child and did not have a putz.

HOWEVER, I AM sure you also know that no Moravian home would be without a Moravian star in the window! This tradition I have carried, and if you drive past my home you will see a star shining brightly in my front window every night.

They really are something to put together, and I am so proud of myself that when I had to buy a new one I managed to put it together myself.

I can remember riding around town at Christmas to see the home decorations and always thrilled to spot a home with a Moravian star in the window. Non-Moravians also purchased them, and somehow I never thought it was right as it is truly a Moravian custom.

YOU PROBABLY are also familiar with the candlelight Christmas Eve services—truly a beautiful and moving experience.

When I was young, it was quite an event when you reached the age old enough to be a "diener" and serve the candles. At first they were served from special made candle trays and were brought into the church already lit. It was a beautiful sight.

Now (at least in my home church) a candle is lit for the first person in the pew, and he passes it down until every person in every pew has a candle. Yes, it is somewhat dangerous but there never has been an accident as many people (ushers, etc.) are appointed to stand guard. When all the candles are distributed, the traditional hymn "Morning Star" is sung.

There is a Moravian church on Hively in Westland and they observe the usual Christmas Eve candle light service.

Thank you for bringing back lovely memories and for telling the Observer & Eccentric readers about a Moravian custom. So few people know about the Moravians, and I seem to have spent a life time explaining what a Moravian stands for!

SHIRLEY SUMMERS,
Plymouth

It was this church bell that sounded the news that the armistice was signed Nov. 11, 1918, to end World War I. At the evening service the previous Sunday, the minister told the congregation that there was hope the armistice would be signed and that he hoped he could ring the bell to spread the news.

In the wee hours of Monday morning, we were awakened with the sound of the church bell. The war was over, and it was time to celebrate. This signal from the old church bell set off one of the greatest celebrations the Lehigh Valley ever knew.

AS YOUNGSTERS we were taught the significance of bell ringing.

The Stroller remembers being taken to Independence Hall in Philadelphia each July Fourth by his aunt Fannie to see the famed Liberty Bell. As we entered the room that housed the bell, she'd always lean over and whisper:

"Put your hand on the bell, bow your head, and say a prayer for our country!"

It was always a solemn moment, and it is ingrained in The Stroller's memory. Even today, when he visits the old home areas he takes a stroll down the main street and pays a visit to the old church where the Liberty Bell was hidden during the war.

Before the areas were heavily settled, each farmhouse boasted a bell. It was used to call the farm hands to meals and to ring at various celebrations during the year.

On cold, winter nights, ringing these bells was sweet music as the sounds rent the air across the countryside, heralding the arrival of the new year.

So it was only natural when The Stroller had a home built out here he would have an old fashioned country bell. He returned to the old Dutch farm country and found one that, legend had it, was rung for at least a half century. That was 36 years ago.

SINCE it was placed in the back yard landscaping, it has played a prominent part in New Year's celebrations. This year will be no different as the neighbors and friends are invited to join in carrying out the old tradition.

So, by any chance, if you want to find The Stroller on New Year's Eve, there's only one place he'll be—in the yard ringing the old farm bell to usher in the young 1975.

Mail's been sidetracked

Some strange things are happening in the U.S. Postal Service, as anyone who has paid a bill or sent us a news article well knows.

We analyzed a batch of mail received the day before Christmas and found that two-thirds of it arrived here in our main office at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, within a few days after you mailed it.

But a whopping one-third took 10 to 12 days to deliver, even though the senders lived in nearby towns. Here's a tally of 45 pieces of mail received here on Dec. 24:

Postmarked Dec. 12—items from Pontiac and Grosse Pointe Shores.

Postmarked Dec. 13—items from northwest Detroit, Southfield and Farmington.

Postmarked Dec. 14—items from Plymouth, West Bloomfield, northwest Detroit, Redford Township, Livonia, Inkster, Southfield, Lathrup Village and Farmington Hills.

Postmarked Dec. 15—items from Garden City, Redford Township and Plymouth.

IN OTHER WORDS, while two-thirds of the mail was delivered normally, one-third was unexplainably sidetracked for nine to 12 days. A terrific proportion just sat around someplace for the better part of two weeks.

'Time, you old gypsy man, will you not stay, Put up your caravan, just for one day?'

But the words of poet Ralph Hodgson can't halt the passing of busy 1974.

So the year ticks away on clocks all over our area--on the huge zodiac clock over the Westland shopping center, on the historic grandfather clock in Redford Township's Presbyterian Village, on the antique timepieces in a Plymouth collector's home, on countless kitchen clocks, school clocks, office clocks and wristwatches.

Happy 1975!

New Year is welcomed by a Plymouth collection

By MARGARET MILLER

A collection of clocks of the past will usher in 1975 with assorted chimes and dongs in the William Bake home in Plymouth.

"My interest is in antiques in general rather than specifically clocks," who works for General Motors and has lived in Plymouth most of his life.

He counts his noteworthy time pieces at 14—"a small collection compared to many"—but numbered among them are some interesting examples of clockworks and cabinetry art.

Bake's favorite probably is the English clock that rests on his living room mantelpiece.

"I bought it in London and it is representative of those made about 1800," he said. "It's unusual in mantle clocks because it has installed both Wittington bells and Westminster chimes."

Also distinctive in this clock is the bronze ornamentation on the outside of the case and gold leaf on the area surrounding the dial behind the glass.

ANOTHER UNUSUAL timepiece is a Wedgewood clock that Bake acquired in an auction sale in Lockport, N.Y. several years ago.

It dates from about 1900, Bake said, and the Wedgewood blue English case makes it rare. The works are American.

An eight-day weight clock with a rosewood case is another example of the unusual in the world of timepieces.

This one, bought by Bake at an auction in Indiana 25 years ago, comes from Plymouth Hollow, Conn., and was made about 1830. Below its face is a hand-painted design.

"Its works of the weight variety are earlier than the spring type of clock works. Weight clocks are more accurate and less troublesome in terms of breaking and repairing."

This clock needed a lot of restoration, its owner said. "Everything was there, but it was in pretty bad shape," he added. Bake said he does quite a bit of repair and refinishing work on the clock cases and can do some of the simple mechanical work.

A FAMILY HEIRLOOM is a calendar clock that records not only the time of day but also the day of the week and the date.

"It dates from 1850 and was owned by Col. Miles Saunderv, who fought with the Union Army in the Civil War and is an ancestor of mine on my father's side."

Many calendar clocks were made, he added, but not too many of the mantle variety like his. This one also is distinctive because of its wood carving.

Calendar clocks are geared to 31-day months, he said. For shorter months there's a trip mechanism to adjust manually.

A grandfather clock stands in the corner of the Bakes' living room. It's not particularly old, but has great sentimental value because it belonged to Bake's parents, William and Jessie Bake, longtime residents of Plymouth.

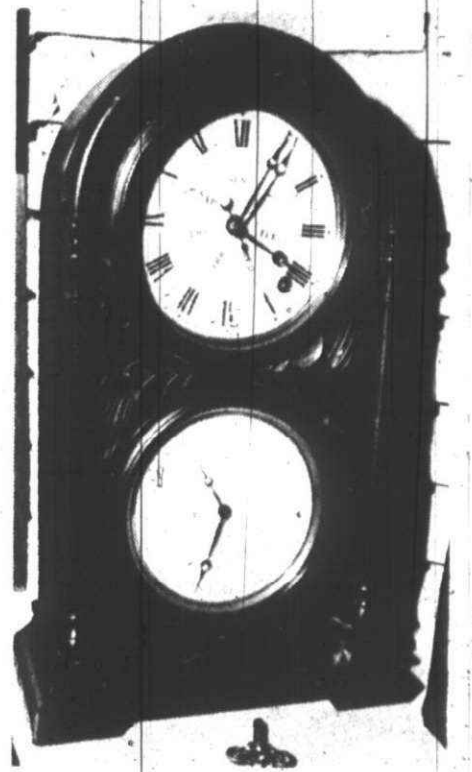

BAKE'S CLOCKS all keep good time and all have their spots in the home decor.

Winding them, he said, is a chore usually done on Sundays. "But they have eight-day mechanisms so it doesn't hurt if you miss a day."

He keeps them set so they aren't exactly together as they tick off the minutes.

"I like to keep a slight gap so they don't all strike at once," he explained.

Even with that gap, 1975 definitely will be heard as it enters this Plymouth household."

And a stately 'grandfather'

The tall grandfather clock that will chime in the new year for residents of Presbyterian Village in Redford Township is a timepiece that once graced the stately home of a prominent Detroit family.

The clock has been recording minutes of new years since 1894, when it was a gift for the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Scotten and their nine children.

It stood for years at the turn of the immense staircase in the home that Scotten, owner of a tobacco firm and active member of the Fort Street Presbyterian Church, built for his family on several acres of land near Vinewood and West Grand Boulevard.

It was given by the owners of a Cincinnati area farm that grew most of the tobacco Scotten's firm used.

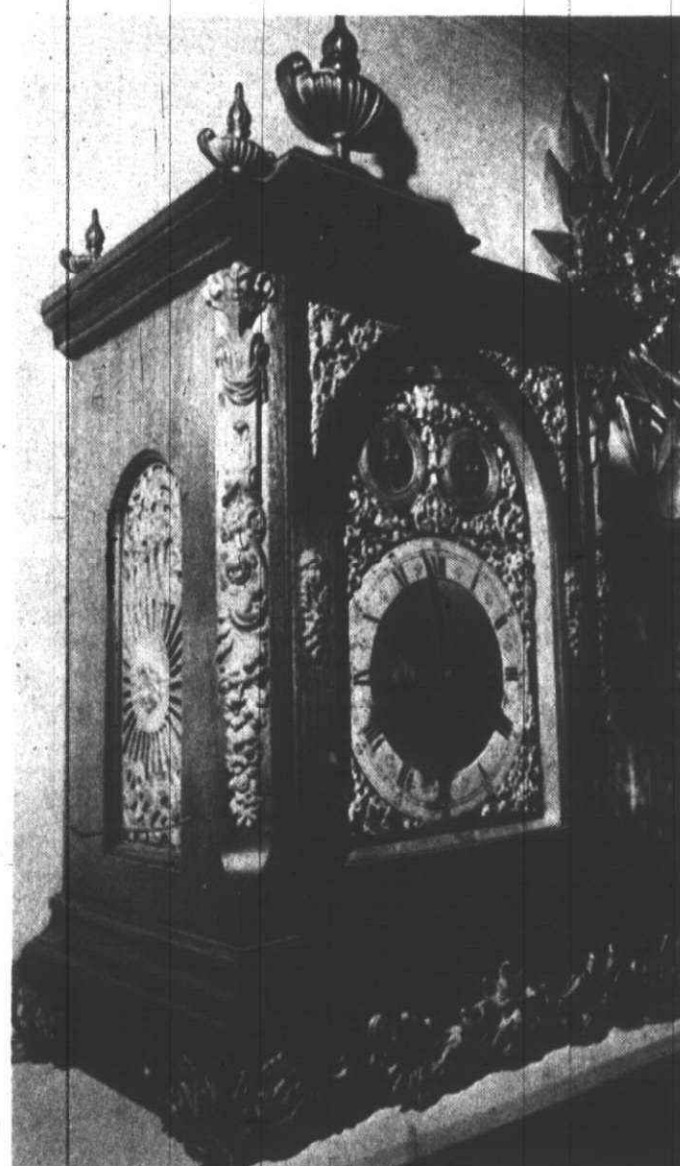

Standing on the stairway beside a stained glass window, the intricately carved clock was witness to many important events in the Scotten family, including the wedding of Priscilla, one of the Scotten daughters, to Dr. Armin A. Darmstaetter Jr., now a Bloomfield Hills physician.

After Mr. Scotten died and the children of the family grew up and scattered, Mrs. Scotten sold the big home and gave several pieces of furniture, including the grandfather clock, to the Presbyterian Home, then known as Hoobler House.

In 1969, Mrs. Mary Brown, an active member of the Presbyterian Village, had new works installed and moved the clock to Patterson Hall of the Redford residence complex for senior citizens.

There residents and visitors alike can read the inscription on the clock face, "Time and Tide Wait for No Man," and hear it chime in each quarter hour as 1974 advances into 1975.

Livonia has once again proved its supremacy over Southfield in prep hockey prowess.

For the third consecutive year, Livonia is assured the George Gee Hockey Cup.

It will be an all-Livonia show tonight (Monday) in the semifinals at Ford Ice Rink.

STEVENSON tourney champion the past two years, got by Southfield Lathrup in the opener, 5-3, and meets up with the Bulldogs of Bentley in the 7 p.m. battle.

Mike Dudley's Bentley crew has something else to shoot for besides a right to move into the finale in this outing. Bentley has never beaten Stevenson in hockey.

The following 9 p.m. clash has Franklin pitted against the unbeaten Chargers of Churchill High.

Adam Mitchell's Churchill crew ripped Southfield High in the other tourney opener, 9-0.

The two victors from tonight will meet in the finale on Friday, Jan. 3, faceoff slated for 8 p.m.

CHURCHILL has to be considered the favored club to take it all. The nine, goal win over Southfield upped the Charger mark to 7-0, and Mitchell is the first to admit that this "has got to be the year for Churchill."

It was hardly a contest when the Chargers took the ice against Southfield. At 1:36 into the contest, Brian Veasey slapped a shot by netminder Dennis O'Connor.

Jeff Truax, Steve Ursitti and Todd Bond followed suit, and it was 4-0 Churchill after one period.

The second stanza saw Fred Korte, Kevin Kardos, Todd Bond and Ursitti raise it to 8-0. And that goal by Kardos was the 19th for the 5-foot-9 senior in seven games, along with his two assists, which also upped that figure to 19 for the season.

THE OTHER tourney outing evolved into who could keep from falling to the ice the most. In a rather uneventful 45 minutes of hockey, the Spartans hung on to defeat Lathrup, 5-3.

NOW IT'S STEVENSON against Bentley in the 7 p.m. clash tonight at Franklin against Churchill at 9 p.m.

Paul Ferguson's Franklin Patriot crew is fresh from a Trenton Invitational tourney, where they dropped the first game to Assumption, 4-3.

Franklin bounced back in game two to rout Finlay of Ohio, 8-0.

Churchill, which topped Franklin earlier in the season, 7-3, should handle the Patriot crew tonight. In the other match, the Bulldogs of Bentley will emerge as the "tourney sleeper" and be readied for that Churchill bite.

Bentley 'fouls out' -- Groves wins cage tourney

Bentley High basketball Coach Larry Jackson can rightly claim "foul play" in the Northwest Suburban Holiday Tourney.

Preface that claim, however, with the fact that it was his own Bulldog squad that fouled itself right out of the tourney.

Bentley was the favored club to cop the eight-school holiday clash, but after taking Farmington in the opener, 55-48, that vision quickly vanished.

The Bulldogs ran into foul trouble against the eventual tourney champ, Birmingham Groves, then finished the game with three sophomores and slipped into the losers' bracket, 63-51.

AND TO MAKE the holidays almost a complete disaster, Bentley bowed to Walled Lake Central in the final consolation match, 73-65.

All five of the starting Bulldogs fouled out against Central.

"About all I can say is that I am glad this tournament is over," said the first year Bentley coach, whose Bulldogs are now 4-3 for the season.

"It was just a complete disaster for us. When it rains, it pours. I guess we simply chalk it all up to experience."

THE OTHER Suburban Eight club in the tourney, Carl Andrew's Redford Union crew, fell into the losers bracket in the opening round.

Groves nipped RU, 58-56, but the Panthers bounced back to crush Farmington, 80-59, and edge Walled Lake Western in overtime, 62-60.

Groves won the tourney in a Birmingham finale over Seaholm, 65-63, for its fifth win overall in eight games this season.

Clarenceville snaps 18 game losing streak

Clarenceville High basketball Coach Bob Wolf received his Christmas present two days late, but he couldn't have been happier.

"It wasn't the fanciest way to win a ball game, but it was a win," commented Wolf, whose Trojan cagers had dropped their first six outings of the 1974-75 campaign.

It was Clarenceville over the Aggies of St. Agatha in a non-league battle, 49-34. It was also Clarenceville's first victory on the hardwood court since back on Jan. 8, when the Trojans won their only contest of that season over Brighton, 65-53.

Clarenceville jumped off to a first quarter, 12-4 lead, but things quieted down in the second with the Aggies fumbling to a 7-4 margin.

"That second quarter was simply a comedy of errors," added Wolf. "I have never seen so many turnovers in eight minutes of basketball."

Clarenceville hit on two of 12 from the floor in that quarter, and St. Agatha two of seven. The Trojans wound up 18 of 50 for 36 per cent and St. Agatha 10 of 40 for 25 per cent.

Both clubs now sport 1-6 marks heading into 1975. The Trojans kick off with Pinckney on Jan. 3 and the Aggies home against St. Andrew, Jan. 3. Box scores:

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

Although it might have been overlooked by many people, bowling celebrated another unusual anniversary on Christmas day.

It was the 30th anniversary of organized bowling for senior citizens and it proved to be one of the highlights of the season at Livonia Lanes.

It was on Christmas Day in 1944 when Clarence Hoffman, then owner of Livonia Lanes, was standing at the counter watching the juniors bowl with their parents and having a most enjoyable time.

Suddenly, he was struck with an idea.

"I wonder what the senior citizens are doing to spend the holiday up in their little house that was serving as their club room," he said.

Figuring that they, too, might enjoy watching the fun he phoned and invited them down.

The invitation was accepted. The seniors came and not only enjoyed the sight but decided to try their hand at the game, too. They got a 'kick' out of it and soon formed several teams.

It wasn't long until they formed a league of four teams. In several weeks it grew to six teams, then to eight, and as word was passed along, a traveling league.

That was the start. Now there is senior bowling in every establishment, and the seniors furnish an integral part of the game.

THE BOWLERS IN THE Michigan Open got a real treat for Christmas last week at Schafer Lanes.

When the team reported, it was one man short. That didn't bother Irv Jaffe, the Stroh manager.

He inserted himself into the lineup and, amid a lot of fun, contributed games of 129, 140, and 116 for a 385—the lowest ever written into the Stroh records.

Mike Totsky, one time king of the Detroit bowlers, is making a strong bid to become the "average king" at average of 206. He is hitting 211 in the Michigan Open and in the All-Star Classic he is in the group at 198.

WHEN BOB ROSE, of Westland Bowl, left up the 8-10 recently in the state open at Thunderbird Lanes in Troy and had to be content with a 298 game. Owner Buck Walby said, "I can't give you the pins, but here's the next best thing." He gave him two bottles of champagne, one marked "8" and the other "10".

Rocket grad stars at WSU

Westland John Glenn graduate Bob Kruse opened the 1974-75 wrestling campaign at Wayne State University on a bright note with three wins in three outings in the Southwestern Michigan Wrestling Tournament.

Set school marks

During the 1973-74 school year, Wayne State University's baseball and wrestling teams set school season victory marks.

THE WOMEN'S IMPACT on bowling was felt again this week Marge Stroks, secretary of the Michigan Women's Bowling Association, announced that the entry for the '74-75 tournament which opens in another month in Lansing, has passed the 3,500 mark.

A record could be in the offing.

ONLY ONE COUNT over the 700 mark was reported during the week, and it was the work of John Lennon. He put together games of 237, 290 and 203 for 730 in the Businessmen's League at Bel Aire Lanes. At that figure he had a 95 pin edge on Bill Cooper, who had a 246 in 635.

Another close finish marked the Classic Competition where Ed Donkel had a 258 in 634 to beat Jerry Pepples with a 632.

Ed Wright is going great guns in the Farmington Teachers League. A week ago he posted a 643 and came back this week and had a 669 on counts of 206, 227 and 232.

Meanwhile Jackie Dix paced the women with a 244 in 610 and Vic Wilkinson was top man in the Lady of Sorrows with a 276 in 601.

RICH SETON did an unusual job of pacing the Falls Lounge team. Current leader in the Junior House League at Westland Bowl.

He opened with a 289, followed with 176 and then fashioned a 201 for 666. Leo Hecht followed him with a 255 in 654, and Randy Onzca landed third with a 635.

Scoring dropped a bit in the Classic where Rich Hughes showed the way with a 656, while Frank Ashcraft had to be content with second place at 649 despite a 267 game. Don McKay was third with a 231 in 638.

YOU CAN ADD the name of Sandy Woodward to the membership in the triplicate club. She posted three identical games of 116 at Plaza Bowl, while Jackie Kuczorski made the 7-10 split.

Kathy Biernack never rolled a 200 game in her life until last week. Then she rolled two—a 216 and 223 for a series of 580. And she's a 140 average bowler!

SHE DIDN'T pace the Mixed league at Farmington Lanes, but Marge Smith took much of the spotlight when she rolled a 215 game in a 531 series. It was her best showing as she carries only a 136 average.

Cal Smith was high with a 635 and Tom Hay followed with a 621.

In the high school girls league, Linda Molnar showed the way with a high game of 217.

JEANNETTE VANEVRY hit a new high at Mayflower Lanes when she posted a 560 to beat her closest rival, Marge Salneto, by 56 pins while Dianne Richardson landed third with 521.

Patti Bastian had a big night, too, when she converted two splits—the 7-9-10 and the 5-6-10.

A NEW STAR was uncovered in the Elks league at Country Lanes when Jim Morrall linked games of 224, 214 and 212 for 650.

The closest to him for the week was Bill Allor who had a 636 in the men's league. He opened with a 253, but fell to counts of 195 and 188 in his closing games.

Franklin nips Catholic Central

Three goals in the final four minutes gave the Patriots of Livonia Franklin a 6-5 hockey victory over Catholic Central.

After trailing 5-3 with four minutes left on the clock, John Vella slapped in his third goal, Bob Sergerson assisting, and the Patriots had pulled out a non-leaguer in preparation for the Observer & Eccentric-sponsored George Gee Tourney, which started this week.

A tally by Mike Barta got Franklin off to a 1-0 lead, but Tom Michaels made it 1-1 after one stanza for Catholic Central.

Vella struck twice early in the second for Franklin, but Catholic Central proceeded to score four straight goals to take a 5-3 lead before Franklin came up with its last period charm.

RELOCATING...DOESN'T HAVE TO BE DISLOCATING

We belong to RELO, a national real estate organization whose job it is to relocate you physically without relocating you mentally.

And this we can do. Through our association with RELO, we can help relocate you to at least 6,500 different communities throughout the country.

All you have to do is contact any one of our offices, and we'll take it from there.

But remember one thing. If we can relocate you from coast to coast with a minimum of woe, imagine what we can do anywhere around Detroit and its environs.

SALES TAX

ON JANUARY 1, 1975, the amended sales tax act will be in effect. Non-taxable items will include prescription drugs for human use or food for human consumption.

WHAT IS? AND WHAT ISN'T? Basically, if you can eat it, it is non-taxable. The majority of food items intended to be eaten outside of the store for human consumption are not taxable.

PREPARED FOODS intended for immediate consumption will still be taxable. This means that items purchased such as snack bar items or ice cream cones or coffee and donuts will be taxed. However, for example, the purchase of a dozen donuts to take home will be nontaxable.

TAXABLE ITEMS will include alcoholic beverages, tobacco products, pet foods, nonprescription drugs, ice, distilled water, cocktail mixes and seeds. Paper products, soaps, household supplies and all other nonedible items will be taxed.

SEPARATE ORDERS We could ring all taxable items first, tax the total, and then ring in all non-taxable items. Not at Meijer. After changes are made on our cash registers, it will NOT be necessary to separate your food from your non-food. The registers will be able to separate the taxable items into a taxable total.

REGISTER CHANGES are already being made for us. We hope to complete the change by January 1. However, if all registers are not converted by January 1, we ask for your patience in separating orders temporarily.

BY THESE REGISTER CHANGES, we hope to start 1975 off right.

AT MEIJER, we want to serve you better.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

WE'LL HELP YOU RETURN NON-RETURNABLE BOTTLES

Non-returnable bottles have a bad reputation. They're too often found where they shouldn't be and can't account for their presence. You'll find large glass recycling bins in the parking lot of most Meijer Thrifty Acre stores. They are provided as part of our effort to return those non-returnable bottles back to the glass factories. You can help, too! Please sort the bottles by color into the part of the bin so designated. We'll see that they are returned to the foundry.
