Builders too busy for Homearama

Canton Township was to be showcased in a Homearama. But it won't happen. Builders are just too busy for the project. Township officials are disappointed because the event attracts attention to any area where it is held.

Homearama won't be coming to Canton this year.

"There just weren't enough builders," said Nancy Rosen of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan. "We thought it would be wonderful for the community."

So did township officials. "I'm disappointed," said Supervisor Tom Yack. "But I certainly understand that it's a robust housing market. Usually they do Homeramas when the housing market isn't doing so well."

The builders' association earlier this year approved Canton as a site for their Homerama, which is a single-site event, as compared to Parade of Homes, which showcases new home construction at a variety of sites.

The site chosen by the Homearama committee of the builders' association was in Kimberly Meadows, a new 77-lot subdivision on the southwest corner of Canton Center and Geddes roads. Little work has been accomplished at the subdivision. "There was no way they could have made it by August," Yack said, referring to the targeted Homearama date.

Rosen said that the Homearama committee in February began contacting its membership to determine who was interested in participating in the event. Builders would have been asked to sign a participation agreement. The Homearama committee approves builders' plans for houses and landscaping.

But not enough builders signed up for the event and not just in Canton, which was one of a couple sites considered. "There will be no Homeara-

The Sheldon Road home that has become too big for Robert F.C. and Marie Labadie will now become Plymouth's first bed and breakfast inn.

The 1844 home is located at 448 North Sheldon Road in Plymouth, between the railroad tracks and North Territorial Road.

Marion and Thomas Miller of Canton Township are in the process of purchasing the Labadie family home. City officials say all requirements have been met and systems are go for the residence. Two bedrooms will be rented out.

The home, in which eight Labadie children were raised, will have its welcome mat out for the entire Plymouth-Canton community.

Summit

The recreation side of the Summit is expected to open in late fall, while the banquet facilities will open Sept. 1. A committee of township staff has formed to plan grand opening festivities and activities.

"We are actually making good progress," Hall said. "We phased all of the construction. We are now in the final phases."

Summit visitors will have their choice of exactly what kind of swimming they want to do. There's the 120-foot water slide, a lazy river where you can float on tubes, a lap pool, a therapy pool that's like a whirlpool or spa, and a leisure pool that boasts a sloped floor and knobs for kids to turn water sprays and gushers on and off.

"The current is what propels the tube," said Debbie Bilbrey-Honsowetz, Summit manager, about the lazy river pool.

Lifeguards and pool attendants will be on hand during open hours. Even with a lap pool, there will be no competitive swimming — it's not deep enough.

The aquatics area will be for the most part surrounded by two-story-high tinted glass windows. "In the winter when the sun is low, you'll get great natural light in here," Hall said.

The aquatics area is on the first floor of the center and dominates the central-eastern portion of the 85,000-square-foot building, which is accessible from the two-story glassed rotunda lobby. From the aquatics area, you will be able to look through indoor windows into the fitness room that will feature cardiovascular equipment.

As you walk toward the Summit, you will be greeted by a large reflecting pool. Inside the lobby you will see seats, chandeliers and a reception desk. Staff offices, including conference room and employee lounge, will be off the lobby.

■ As you walk toward the Summit, you will be greeted by a large reflecting pool. Inside the lobby you will see seats, chandeliers and a reception desk. Staff offices, including conference room and employee lounge, will be off the lobby.

You can reach the lobby either by the front door past the reflecting pool or the back way through Heritage Park. A drop-in child care center will be available near the lobby, as are restrooms and a vending area.

Behind the aquatics area is the gym where you can play volleyball or basketball and above the gym is the walking-jogging track, a portion of which is suspended from the ceiling. Two racquetball courts also will be available. "It will be nice with the colors we are putting in here," Hall said.

The second floor features three dance studios that offer a waiting area from which you can look into the aquatics area down below, Bilbrey-Honsowetz said.

The banquet center on the west side of the center will seat 350 guests and can be divided into two rooms. A 2,850-square-foot kitchen supports the banquet facilities. A smaller kitchen is also available.

A pre-function area for the banquet facility is also available such as for serving hors d'oeuvres and greeting guests. "It really is limitless," Bilbrey-Honsowetz said.

A professional development center that features a sloped floor will offer audiovisual equipment for meetings and seminars. "It has everything we are going to need to run educational seminars and meetings," Bilbrey-Honsowetz said.

A multipurpose room will be offered that features both carpeted and wood floors, plus a mirrored wall. The room also will have access to an auxiliary kitchen. Two craft rooms — one for wet crafts, another for dry crafts — also will be available.

Down the hall is the Parkview Room, which is where the senior program will be housed. "It could also have community functions as well," Bilbrey-Honsowetz said.

ma in 1995," Rosen said. In 1996, the Homearama will be in White Lake Township.

Sites for Homearama are chosen in communities where the housing market is healthy, as well as where the property accommodates the event for parking and traffic, Rosen said.

Plans included building 20-25 homes in Kimberly Meadows for the Homearama. The 70-foot-wide lots are considered medium-sized in an R-4 zoning district, which allows four dwellings per acres.

Yack said he did not believe that the moderate-priced homes targeted for Kimberly Meadows were a cause for a lack of interest among builders. "Usually they have trouble selling the real big homes," he added.

Rosen said builders hop onto the Homearama bandwagon for exposure and marketing. It was expected that the event also would have been a boon for Canton, particularly bringing in tourism dollars.

"If another developer comes forward with another site, the association would love to do it in the Canton community," Rosen said.

Inn

"It is something that we dreamed about, that it would become a bed and breakfast," said Marie Labadie. "It will be a joy for the Plymouth community."

The Labadies were expecting their fifth child when they moved into the home in 1962. The home was 100 years old then, Marie Labadie said.

The Labadies plan to purchase a retirement home in Arizona.

"We just don't need six bedrooms anymore,' Marie Labadie said.

The Labadies owned a dry cleaning business in both Detroit and Westland. Marie later became a registered nurse and worked part-time at St. Mary Hospital and Wayne County General.

Their children are Robert F., John, Michelle, Madeline, Mary-Renee, Maureen, Margaret and Jim. Five children still live in the area.

"We are expecting our 17th grandchild," Marie Labadie said. "Sometimes we look at our family picture and say, 'To think that we began with just the two of us. Now look how large our family has grown.'

The home has a large country kitchen, ornate archways, hardwood floors among other amenities, Marie said.

The closing date is Aug. 14 or 15," said Marion Miller. "We plan to have an open house Sept. 7." She's looking forward to the home being available for the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Plymouth-Canton could be site of new Catholic school

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

■ It's hoped that the school — to be funded solely by parents — will open in the fall of 1996. It would serve St. Kenneth in Plymouth Township and Canton parishes St. John Neumann, Resurrection and St. Thomas A'Beckett.

There's growing optimism that Plymouth-Canton will be the site of the first new Catholic elementary school to open in 30 years in the Archdiocese of Detroit.

"I'm confident there is going to be a new regional Catholic school in Plymouth and Canton. Look for an announcement from the archdiocese," said Michael Gerou, a Plymouth attorney and member of ACCESS, Action Committee for Catholic Educational Systems. ACCESS was founded last year by a group of local parents interested in establishing a local Catholic school.

"We hope to hear something, probably relatively soon," said Kathryn Kristoff of Plymouth Township, who, with her husband Mike Mitchell, founded ACCESS.

Richard Laskos, spokesman for the archdiocese, said a Monday meeting was attended by Director of Education Msgr. John Quinn, Superintendent of Schools Sr. Frances Nadolny and pastors from Plymouth-Canton. "They're working on this. They discussed a possible 'multi-campus;' having schools at more than one site," said Laskos.

While no firm decision was made, "It was decided they will continue to meet," he said. "The archdiocese is aware of the support and is discussing possibilities. There's optimism for a school down the road."

It's hoped that the school — to be funded solely by parents — will open in the fall of 1996. It would serve St. Kenneth in Plymouth Township and Canton parishes St. John Neumann, Resurrection and St. Thomas A'Beckett.

The elementary school would be located at one or more of those parishes. ACCESS considered off-site locations, such as closed Radisson Hotel or the Agape Christian Center, but opted against it. "Why buy something when we have land available?" said Kristoff, whose husband serves as parish council president at St. Kenneth. "Opening in the fall of 1996 is still a real possibility."

It's not clear how Our Lady of Good Counsel — a Plymouth Catholic church and school with a long waiting list — will fit into the plan.

Kristoff is encouraged by the support ACCESS has received from Cardinal Adam Maida of the Archdiocese of Detroit. "The school crisis in the inner city, as well as in the suburbs, has been heavy on his mind," she said. "Cardinal Maida has said he believes the days of a single parish with a single school probably are gone. He says we need to look at regional solutions. This could be used as a model for other areas too."

More than 320 Plymouth-Canton families have expressed interest in a school. Many of them made a financial pledge.

"We asked folks to pledge $5,000 per child to hold a spot. We were able to raise $500,000 in a week and a half," said Kristoff.

While the money wasn't collected, it gave the archdiocese an indication of how strong local support is, Kristoff said. An ACCESS study showed the per-pupil cost of private education would actually be substantially less; roughly $2,000 per child, Kristoff said.

The results didn't surprise Gerou, a member of the St. Kenneth parish council. "There are people in Plymouth-Canton who belong to two or three parishes, just so they can have their child on a waiting list," he said.

Susan Kopinski is Canton Township's financial service manager and served on ACCESS's finance committee. "At St. John Neumann, there are 1,500 to 1,600 kids in the religious education program. If even a quarter of those kids enrolled, they could fill a whole Catholic school," she said.

Kopinski said she would love to send her fifth-grader to a Catholic school, "but there's nothing available. I don't want to send him to a public middle school. That's not to say he won't go, but I'm looking at private schools. I think parents have more control, and that goes for any kind of private school."

Kopkinski said she attended a board meeting of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools a few years ago and was "horrified" to see how parents were treated. "If the Canton Board of Trustees treated its residents the way I saw the school board treat parents, it would never be accepted. I thought it was terrible."

ACCESS members say their efforts aren't intended as a criticism of public schools. "I'm a product of Catholic schools, and so are my brothers and sisters. I think it's important to be taught religion all week, instead of once a week, after hours," said Gerou.

"We'd like to raise our children the way we were, with morals, values and perpetuation of the faith," said Kristoff. "To teach things in a moral vacuum is very difficult, the way public schools are force to do it. You can only do so much at home. Kids have to get it in their peer relations as well."

Plymouth student visiting Japan

Thomas Charron, of Plymouth was among 23 high school students selected from around the country to participate in Mazda's 12th annual summer scholarship program.

Ten students are selected from high schools across the nation and another eight from Wayne and Monroe counties in Southeastern Michigan, near Mazda's Flat Rock operations. An additional five scholarships are awarded to high school students of U.S. Mazda company and dealership employees.

"Mazda's summer exchange program reflects our commitment to developing a spirit of cooperation and mutual understanding between the United States and Japan," said Yoshihiro Wada, president of Mazda Motor Corp.

"It is always encouraging to see high school students develop global friendships and gain cultural awareness that will last long into the future," said Yutaka Hirose, president of Mazda (North America), Inc., Mazda Research and Development of North America, Inc. and Mazda Systems Servcies of North America, Inc., in Flat Rock.

Mazda sponsors the program in conjunction with Youth For Understanding (YFU) International Exchange, a private, non-profit educational exchange organization.

Founded in Ann Arbor, and now based in Washington, D.C., YFU is one of he world's oldest and largest exchange organizations.

The scholarship students are selected by YFU for Mazda on the basis of academic achievement, extracurricular activities, volunteer and/or work experience, teacher recommendations, written essays and a general suitability for a foreign exchange experience.

The exchange scholarship includes round-trip domestic and international transporation, orientation materials, counseling services, placement with a host family and a variety of special activites. Recipients are responsible for arranging their own passport, medical insurance, excess luggage tariffs and personal spending money.

Golf course borrows money to finish project

By Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

The Pheasant Run Golf Club is borrowing money from the township to pay its final construction and equipment bills.

"No interest will be paid. It's not a loan. The general fund is fronting the money," said John Spencer, Canton chief financial officer.

Canton trustees approved a request to borrow $300,000 out of the township's general fund for the building authority construction fund to pay final bills for construction and equipment for the new 18-hole golf course.

The loan is needed because township officials are waiting for money from the sale of 48 township-owned acres next to the golf course that the Robertson Brothers Co. is buying to develop 218 condominiums.

"It (the deal) has been consumated. But we don't receive our money until certain things are done on the property," said Supervisor Tom Yack.

Developers of the condominiums are waiting for approval from the township engineering department before getting to work. "They aren't going to be giving us money until they start developing," Spencer said.

When money comes in from the sale of the property over the next two years, the general fund will be repaid without interest. The property sale should give the township about $1.7 million. But only $300,000 of it will be borrowed for the golf course. Yack assured that the golf course and Summit on the Park community center will not take any more money from the property sale. Proceeds from the sale will be put into the general fund.

Borrowing from the general fund is the township board's latest action with financing for the golf course, which opened July 1. The construction bid for the course exceeded estimates by about $1 million. Township officials sold $5.7 million bonds for the project, including clubhouse, practice range and maintenance facility, before construction bids came in.

"We bonded before so we could get the good market," Spencer said, adding that there was also a delay in the bidding process.

Township officials and staff have been whittling down the financial gap. In March, the township board approved borrowing $550,000 from a bank to buy needed equipment and golf carts. The loan will be repaid over five years and according to officials, will lessen the need for the township to come up with the full costs of the equipment up front.

Township officials also borrowed $319,500 from the general fund to complete the maintenance building and other outstanding items. Yack said that revenue generated from the golf course will retire the debt, including the bank loan. "We haven't been open that long and it looks really good so far," he said.

The bulk of the project's costs, $3.7 million, was for actual construction. The clubhouse was another $800,000, maintenance building, $236,000.

Addressing requirements for wetlands that sat where the golf course has been built were an unknown cost amounting to about $200,000-$250,000. Boardwalks are required to allow golfers to cross the wetlands, which was an additional costs.

In addition, the bid on the clubhouse came in higher than the estimate, but the bid for the parking lot came in lower. The initial plan was to include equipment with the cost of the clubhouse but mounting costs forced the bank loan.

Street work delays music fest

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

The Plymouth Music Celebration and Taste of Plymouth/Canton festival set for Aug. 4-6 has been postponed to Sept. 29-Oct. 1 to allow time for the downtown streetscape project to be completed. The event will be combined with the "Artrageous" Festival, which showcases Plymouth's art galleries.

The Sidewalk Sales will take place Aug. 4-6 as planned.

"We have a major concern because of the delays in the status of what's happening with streetscape about bringing a large amount of people in," said event organizer Mike Watts of Watts-UP, Inc. The change was decided upon at a chamber of commerce meeting Tuesday.

"Art in the Park was held last weekend, but they were able to close off a lot of streets," said Watts. "There was plenty of room to walk around. We're concerned about liability, with all the ongoing construction. It's easy in my mind to see someone twisting an ankle; not that it necessarily would happen, but the potential is there."

The Plymouth Music Celebration features live entertainment, Epicurean delights, children's activities and rides, and lots of blues, jazz, contemporary and country music.

Friday, Sept. 29 will feature the Blues in the Park concert and Taste of Plymouth/Canton.

Watts is hopeful the artists lined up for Aug. 4 will be able to make the switch. If so, there'll be performances by Mudpuppy, Mimi Harris and the Snakes, James Walin', and Detroit's top reggae band, Black Market.

Sponsors include the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Johnson Controls, Blackwell Ford, WYST Star 97 Young Country radio, and the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Stormy weather keeps firefighters hopping

Listed below are some of the Canton fire and rescue incidents reported during the past week, as well as fire safety tips and programs available free to the community. Year-to-date (January 1-present) runs for the Canton Fire Department: 2,148; last year's total: 3,445. Last week's total runs: 104

Bad weather

Canton firefighters responded to 74 calls for service from July 13 to July 16 during the heavy storms that wrecked havoc on the Detroit area. The calls included wires down, trees down, car accidents and lightning strikes.

On July 15, firefighters responded to a call of downed wires in the 8200 block of Lilley. When they arrived, they found wires laying across a metal greenhouse. They secured the area while waiting for Detroit Edison crews to arrive.

An hour later, firefighters were called to the Canton Oakwood Health Care Center to set up a landing zone for a helicopter to land and transport a child with severe respiratory problems to the University of Michigan Hospitals.

Also on the July 15, firefighters were called to a house in the 45000 block of Morningside. Canton police were already there on the report of a breaking and entering. But officers determined that the house had been struck by lightning, not by a burglar.

■ FIRE/RESCUE

Firefighters found that the chimney had been hit by lightning, causing the electrical outlets and light switches in the house to be blown apart. There was no fire.

On July 16, firefighters responded to three rescues and one fire alarm at the same time. Also on July 16, firefighters responded to an oven fire in a house in the 1200 block of Franciscan Court. The fire was believed to have been cause by the homeowner leaving a Tupperware bowl in a hot oven. The bowl melted.

Also on July 16, a house in the 45000 block of Brunswick was struck by lightning. A brick chimney and flue was damaged. There was no fire.

■ APARTMENT FIRE

Fire officials are investigating a fire at the Crossings of Canton Apartments, July 11.

When firefighters arrived they found smoke coming out of the eaves on one of the apartment buildings. They cut holes in the overhang with a chain saw, located the fire and extinguished it. It's believed the fire may have been started while repairs were made on the roof.

■ HOUSE FIRE

Firefighters extinguished a fire that broke out in a house under construction in the 45000 block of Seabrook in the Glengarry 4 subdivision, July 12.

It's believed the fire began when crews cut I-beams with torches. Firefighters removed drywall and found the insulation and wiring on fire.

■ PROGRAMS OFFERED

Canton residents and businesses are reminded that a number of programs are available to them for free from the Canton Fire Department. Programs include CPR and basic First Aid classes, juvenile fire setters, baby-sitter awareness and tours and department presentations.

■ CPR/FIRST AID

Groups may sign up for training for adults, infant/child and CPR and First Aid classes. Groups may be as small as three or four people. Most of the classes are about four hours in length. Participants receive a card that says they completed the course. The only cost to participants is the purchase of a textbook. For more information contact Sgt. Jim Davison, 453-4114.

■ SAFETY HOUSE AVAILABLE

SC vet moves on

Greenleaf looks forward, not back

By Mary Rodrique
Staff Writer

Certainly 1995 will be remembered as a year of change for Harry Greenleaf. In January, he retired from Ford Motor Co. after a 36-year career in engineering management. In June, he was unseated from the Schoolcraft College board, ending an 18-year tenure as trustee.

In those years, Greenleaf saw the college through labor strife and campus expansion, through selection of a new president and addition of new curriculum.

Greenleaf, 59, was the longest-serving board member, and his loss surprised many.

"We ran a good campaign, but we weren't the top spenders," he said. "It was a surprise. I did expect to be re-elected."

High voter turnout in Plymouth and Canton was his downfall. The Livonia resident won handily in other parts of the Schoolcraft district — in Garden City, Northville, Clarenceville as well as his hometown. But he was 500 votes behind the nearest competitor in Plymouth-Canton, and was replaced by Brian Broderick, a 28-year-old Plymouth resident.

"Harry has been a great contributor to Schoolcraft and the community and I think he'll continue to be," said Steve Ragan, a colleague, following the election.

Trustee Mary Breen expressed similar sentiments.

At Greenleaf's final board meeting on June 28, Bill Nickels, president of the Faculty Forum, saluted the trustee in a moving tribute.

"Eighteen years doesn't sound like a lot, but in the years of our college it has been dramatic change that (Harry) has been a part of, always acting in the best interest of the college."

Don't expect Greenleaf to ride off into the sunset. As he sees it, he's in the beginning stage of retirement, far from filling his days with checkers or fishing.

"Last month I was elected vice president of my college alumni board of directors," said Greenleaf, a graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

"We have over 60,000 members."

And he's the director of transfer college programs for engineering and science at the University of Detroit Mercy, a part-time endeavor he plans to expand on in the coming months.

As for politics, don't count him out yet.

"I don't know if I'd run again, but I don't want to close the curtain yet," he said. "The reality is, I served for 18 years. It would take a set of circumstances to run again. I don't know what the future holds.

"I'm going to continue working, but with time for recreation, family, and being civic-minded."

Greenleaf was chairman of the Schoolcraft board from 1979 to 1983, ran unsuccessfully for the Livonia City Council in 1985 and for the state Board of Education in 1992.

During his tenure with Schoolcraft, he helped develop a plan for the college to lease land it owned along Seven Mile to provide a continuing source of revenue — the Seven Mile Crossing development.

He helped select current President Dick McDowell from a national search. And he worked on the consolidation of child care/instructional facilities on the Livonia and Garden City campuses. A new building will be dedicated later this year on the Livonia campus. In it, child care workers

Governor signs welfare bill, vetoes county health funds

AP — Gov. John Engler signed on Friday a $2.4 billion bill to finance welfare in the upcoming fiscal year, but he vetoed $6.5 million in state spending for a Wayne County medical care program.

The Department of Social Services bill totals $7.6 billion when federal money and restricted funds are included. Engler thanked the Legislature for supporting policies he said have helped move people from welfare rolls into productive jobs.

Engler noted that for the first time in more than 20 years, Aid to Families with Dependent Children rolls have dropped below 200,000 cases.

The vetoed money, totaling $50 million when all funds are included, was targeted for the Wayne County PlusCare program which provides comprehensive medical care services mainly for 31,000 to 33,000 single adults who previously were eligible for General Assistance.

Engler asked the Legislature to restore funding at his original recommendation of $34.8 million.

'I support the PlusCare program," Engler said, "but I'm not willing to support funding which expands the program beyond its original intent."

After 9 years, 'Yankee Lady' takes to air Friday

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Let it not be said that the Yankee Air Force is superstitious. In the old wooden hangar, built in 1941 by the Ford Motor Co., sits what members feel is the organization's pride and joy — the "Yankee Lady."

Resplendent with its 1940s-style pinup girl logo, the B-17G "Flying Fortress" is ready for its first public flight since touching down at Willow Run Airport on July 2, 1986.

"Yankee Lady" was the 12,718th of 12,731 Flying Fortresses built during World War II, the 13th from the last B-17G built at the Lockheed plant in Burbank, Calif., and delivered to the U.S. Army Air Force on July 16, 1945.

When "Yankee Lady" takes to the air Friday, July 21, it will join a very elite group. She will be only the 13th B-17 in the world in flyable condition.

"It was a labor of love," said Norm Ellickson, the plane's crew chief, surveying the aircraft. "We wouldn't have put that much time into it if it wasn't."

Time? In the nine years the plane has sat on the ground and in the hangar, the YAF members have spent $500,000 and 120,000 man hours to buy the plane and do a "ground-up restoration."

The "newest" of the flyable forts, "Yankee Lady" doesn't have as memorable history as the "Memphis Belle," made famous when its crew completed 25 combat missions and was glamorized by Hollywood in a film of the same name.

Rolling off the production line at the end of the war, "Yankee Lady" never saw combat. The closest it came was as an "extra" in the film "Tora, Tora, Tora."

Instead, "Yankee Lady" was transferred to the U.S. Coast Guard in 1946 for use in air-sea rescues and iceberg patrol until 1958. It was sold for $5,887.93 in 1959, a bargain considering it had a wartime price tag of $249,000, used for aerial surveying and as an insecticide and fire-bomber sprayer for the U.S. Forestry Department. Her last working day was July 22, 1985, when she was used to spray grasshoppers in Oregon.

Special insignia

"Yankee Lady" carries the insignia of the 381st Bomb Group and its five squadrons," said Fred Lockwood, crew chief for the YAF's C-47, the "Yankee Doodle Dandy. "That's for Joe and Steve Slavik. Joe was a pilot during World War II and had 35 combat missions over Germany. He called and said if we buy the last one (B-17) in Arizona, they'd give us $50,000."

"Quite a few of us co-signed for the ($200,000) loan, and I'd estimate we spent another $250,000 in parts and materials, but everything is paid for, thanks to the generous support of the members," Ellickson added.

The plane was in rough shape, a shadow of the combat plane it was meant to be. It was missing it turrets and 12 50-caliber guns; the floors had been lowered and the bulkhead taken out. The bomb bay doors also had been removed to accommodate tanks for the borate, and the firefighting chemical had caused a lot of corrosion.

The restoration was time-consuming. There was no store to visit for new parts. In fact, YAF scoured the U.S. for parts and relied on copies of blueprints acquired from the Smithsonian to make those that couldn't be found.

The chin turret on the nose of the plane came from a Florida dealer who unearthed some that had been buried for 20 years. It took two turrets to come up with a complete one, said Bruce Vance of Livonia.

"My dad used to be a gun turret designer at Emerson Electric in St. Louis during World War II, and I share his enthusiasm for the plane," said Vance, who has done a lot of work on the turret and supercharger and made a lot of flooring plates.

The ball turret in the plane's underbelly was acquired in pieces from the maker's of the will be trained and child care will be available to staff and members of the community.

But Greenleaf's most triumphant memories are more personal.

"The most gratifying moment is standing next to President McDowell and shaking hands with the graduates," he said. "They are who we serve."

Greenleaf is enjoying trips up north with his wife, Audrey, and visiting with his four young grandchildren. The couple has two grown children, Mark, in management at Ford Motor Co., and Kimberly, an engineer.

"Audrey and I have both done things in the community behind the scenes," he said. "We've both been delegates for the Republican Party, me in '76, her the last election. She was also involved with the Livonia historical commission. I'm also on the national policy board for the Republican Party on economic development.

"It's really a team effort."

Greenleaf also enjoys golf, reading historical and science fiction books, cooking and gardening.

Although officially off the Schoolcraft board, Greenleaf speaks glowingly of the college.

"The culinary program is wonderful, but what isn't as well-known is how many other excellent programs there are at Schoolcraft," he said. "The music program is outstanding, math is great, and there are great technology programs.

■ 'The most gratifying moment is standing next to President McDowell and shaking hands with the graduates. They are who we serve.'
Harry Greenleaf, former trustee

"Schoolcraft students transferring to four-year universities do as well or better than those who go into the four-year institutions as freshmen."

Greenleaf says the economic savings that come from earning an associate's degree before transferring to a more expensive school are substantial.

"Now more students are coming in with an end degree in mind. That's been an important development. And many people with bachelor's degrees are coming back to Schoolcraft to get new technical skills or enrichment courses."

As a tribute to the school and their community, the Greenleafs have established the Audrey and Harry Greenleaf Endowment at Schoolcraft.

"We're not done yet," Greenleaf said.

"Memphis Belle" movie. And places like the H&S Prop Shop in Pontiac rebuilt the two outboard engines, a job that cost $30,000 per engine, while the new windshield frame was hand hammered by Litz Corp in Hillsdale from a pattern made by Magnum Corp. in Plymouth.

Luckily, not too much of the plane's skin needed to be replaced and what did was handled by YAF members. They spent 10 months rebuilding and painting the plane's vertical fin, then spent hundreds of hours hand-polishing the plane's aluminum skin.

Age was not kind to the plane's wiring, so with Dean Green supervising, members installed 3½ miles of new wiring throughout the plane.

Old with the new

Menacing looking replica 50-caliber machine guns poke out of a waist, chin, ball and tail turrets. Antennas, however, dot the top of the plane where the top turret should be, one of the several bits of modern avionics needed to how fly the aircraft.

The radio room sports authentic World War II radio gear — even the fire extinguisher is authentic, found in the basement of Vance's home — but across the narrow catwalk that spans the bomb bay the cockpit is soundly in the 1990s with its equipment. About the only things missing are the oxygen masks.

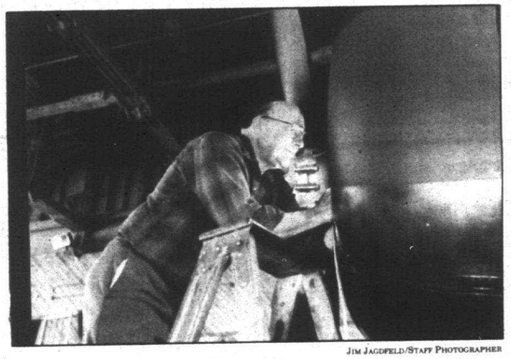
"You have to have oxygen over 10,000 feet, so we'll fly this below that," Ellickson explained. "We do that with other two planes ("Yankee Doodle Dandy," and "Gallant Warrior," a B-25D World War II bomber best remembered for the carrier-launched Doolittle raid against Japan)."

While YAF members were working on the "Lady," Louise Greenwald of Livonia labored under the wings of the "Dandy" or "Warrior" at air shows, selling those things found in the YAF gift shop. A Wayne County General Hospital retiree, she got involved when she was asked to work in the gift shop temporarily 12 years ago.

"This type of airplane is in big demand for air shows," said Greenwald. "In fact, air shows are the second largest attendance activity in the United States, especially those with the old warbirds."

And, according to Lookwood, B-17s are in big demand for air shows this year because of the 50th anniversary of World War II. In fact, following its inaugural flight and a static display open to the public Saturday and Sunday, July 22-23 at Willow Run Airport, it will take to the air show circuit. On the list is the "granddaddy" of U.S. air shows in Oshkosh, Wis., later this month.

"We're getting antsy to fly this thing," said Lockwood. "I like to call this living history . . . or is it a malfunction in the junction?"



Jim Jagdfeld/Staff Photographer

Cable wars

Competition good for viewers

It's interesting what competition will do. Just as Ameritech launched a new $8 million cable system for Canton, Plymouth and Northville, Omnicom started work on upgrading its existing system.

For Canton residents that means better and more cable service, but above all it means choice. Cable viewers for too long have been limited to one service.

Paving the way for the competition was a decision by the Canton Township Board to grant Ameritech a 15-year cable contract. The move was considered historic because of the competition factor. The board made a good decision.

Governmental units have long been on the hook when it came to cable. Canton and other communities have been under pressure from residents complaining about cable service. There really wasn't much government could do. Canton has a cable television committee, but with the long operating agreement with Omnicom, not much could really be done until that contract was up.

Negotiations with Omnicom, which provides most service in Canton, are continuing. Omnicom can upgrade its system, which it is doing, without a new agreement. The improvements include fiber-optic cable that will reduce service interruptions for customers and it's switching customers' converter boxes to an addressable system that will allow communication between the customer and Omnicom.

Ameritech will also be wiring Canton with a fiber-optic system that will offer about 80 cable channels and interactive television services.

Canton Township did the right thing by allowing Ameritech to set up shop in the community and push Omnicom with competition. Cable viewers and the township are winners on this one.

Back to basics a good move

Getting back to the basics in education means more than just getting tough with kids; it involves raising expectations.

And that's just what the Plymouth Canton schools have done by making graduation requirements tougher for the class of 1999.

All students will need three science credits and three math credits to graduate. Until now, the requirement has been two credits each in math and science.

And some of the courses being used to satisfy the requirements have been questionable. For example, the schools had been allowing students to use photography to meet the science credit. With to the schools' recent action, that loophole has been plugged.

To his credit, Superintendent Charles Little has acknowledged that too few upperclassmen are taking math, science, social studies and foreign languages. He wants 60 percent of the students enrolled in those core subjects during their 11th grade.

"We can accept some of the reasons why some people aren't on a high track. The avenues are open with vocational technology and formal four-year colleges. But in both cases, kids need to meet higher standards."

Such an attitude on the part of Plymouth Canton educators is taking on new importance in light of rules being made in Lansing by the State Board of Education. They are about to set a policy that would give local schools more of a hand in decision making.

If that decision is implemented, Plymouth Canton schools will be setting their own standards. And with the message being sent by Little, residents will be assured that their children will be getting a top-notch education.

Raise speed limit to 65 mph

In recent weeks police have been engaged in selective speed limit enforcements, primarily on I-696 but also along I-275.

The special effort resulted in more points on the records of individual motorists and an increase in ticket revenue. But that's the limit of any good that came out of the enforcement.

The enforcement effort certainly wasn't valuable as an educational tool because everyone knows that 55 mph is the limit set for urban freeways such as I-696, I-96 and I-275. But the fact is, precious few motorists drive that speed or close to it.

The 55 mph limit was imposed nationwide in the 1970s during an alleged energy "crisis." Whether the crisis was real or engineered, the fact is that the lower speed limit was ineffective in lowering energy consumption. The lower speed actually caused trucks, buses, and heavy vehicles to burn more gasoline than when driving at 65 mph. And most motorists didn't respect the 55 limit, especially once the energy crisis lost its credibility, and so energy savings were not realized.

Statistics do point to the fact that speed, in general, kills. But statistics have not been produced to show that more motorists get killed driving at 65 mph than 55 mph. Driving 75, 80 or 85 mph can kill and driving 45 mph in a 25-mph zone can kill. And driver error, at any speed, kills. But it's stretching the point to suggest that driving 65 in a 55 kills.

Traffic safety engineers deem it safe for motorists to drive 45 mph on roads such as Seven Mile, Cherry Hill, Newburgh and Ann Arbor Road. These roads have intersections with traffic lights, and side streets and driveways with access. How can it not be safe to drive 65 mph on a multi-lane freeway with limited access?

It is safe, which is why a few years ago the state of Michigan raised the freeway limit back to 65 for rural areas. The state erred by not raising the limit in urban areas as well.

There certainly are freeways where a 55 speed limit makes sense, like the Lodge or Ford in Detroit. And in these locations motorists will drive 50, 55 or 60 regardless of the posted speed because congested conditions obviously warrant that. State, county and local officials can post 55 limits on any stretch of freeway when daily conditions warrant it, just as slower limits are imposed for sharp curves. But we should not be arbitrary and slap on a 55 just because the freeway happens to be within city limits.

The law should be changed to set the speed at 65 mph in urban areas as well as rural. Motorists can then safely drive what is a natural speed for freeways without fear of being ticketed. Such a change will only make the law match what the reality is — every day, on all our freeways.

If we don't, then selected speed enforcements, such as has been experienced in recent weeks, will continue. That kind of random enforcement is unfair, unjust, and discriminatory because only a few get ticketed while the vast majority of motorists continue to drive unchecked.

That should not continue.

Mailbox stolen

Our 22-month-old son loves the fire engine mailbox that his grandpa made for him when he moved to his new house. It's bright red with wood ladders on each side and a grill that opens to accept the mail. Everyday we walk to the box, ring the bell on the front and find out what the "postman" has left us.

Those precious moments ended for us Saturday, July 15, when we woke to find the fire engine mailbox had been stolen. Someone took the entire fire engine off the post, simultaneously pulling the post halfway out of the ground. Immediately upon walking out the front door that morning our son noticed the theft of the mailbox, made especially for him by "Poppy." He sobbed uncontrollably. Unfortunately, at this young age, he was forced to realize that there are "dumb people" in our community who take things that do not belong to them and make us feel sad.

Why did he have to learn this lesson now? Why with "Poppy's mailbox"? How do we explain to him that we do not know where it is and cannot find it?

It might be thought that far more expensive things are stolen in Plymouth ever day. It might be thought, "Why are they so concerned about a mailbox?" We think that this is the insidious type of theft and vandalism that adds up quickly and hurts the whole community. A mailbox, a flag, a lawn mower, a stop sign. Rapidly the theft of these items accounts for large sums of money, and for some, emotional upset. More importantly, it also begins to color our vision of where we live.

We refuse to sit idle, accepting that this happened. These supposed "petty thefts" need to be stopped. One way to help in this effort is through knowledge. People in the Plymouth community need to be aware that these types of crimes are happening frequently and that they affect others. The community needs to realize that we are all responsible for what happens after dark. We need to take action to protect our belongings but also to watch out for others' property and be aware of what is going on around us.

Someone knows where our mailbox is. Perhaps someone was driving down our street early Saturday and saw it being taken, found it in their front yard, or overhead someone talking about taking it. We think that it is probably in one piece. Perhaps it is waiting to be placed in front of someone else's home. If you have seen it and you are reading this, it is incumbent upon you to tell someone about it. Please call the Plymouth Township Police and inform them of where it is. Or bring it back to our house. It would restore our faith in the honesty of people.

Mary Starr, Plymouth

Burning issue

Mr. Goodbred writes that "we need to find a way to protect the American flag." I question that need because I do not feel that the flag needs protection. Documented flag burnings are extremely rare, indicating that a problem does not exist; therefore, why fix something that is not broke? A good way to cause a rash of flag burnings is to pass a law against burning the flag.

The flag is a symbol. If one is burned, millions can take its place. The constitution is our only law of the land and has been that since the beginning. To tamper with it in a foolhardy way is to truly desecrate it forever, as John Conyers has said, and the flag burning law is truly without need or sense and therefore foolhardy. I should also point out the money, time and energy that would be wasted in passing a law that is not needed. Don't we have real issues that need attention?

As far as the "free speech" issue, the narrow interpretation Mr. Goodbred uses by quoting the dictionary limits the right only to the spoken word. This narrow interpretation would then eliminate the freedom of the press provision since the press writes and does not speak. Also people who cannot speak and only write would also be denied the freedom of speech protection. The Supreme Court has defined free speech in a much more broader sense and for good reason; expression of thought can take on many forms and many of these forms do not include verbal speaking.

I think conservatives should heed the advice of there ultra conservate Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia who considers flag burning as a form of expression and therefore protected under the constitution and quite insulting to the intelligence of the American public.

Trip to busy library brings back memories

Guest Columnist

Randy Eaton

I have a feeling Margaret Hough and other Plymouth ladies like her, who have passed beyond the Great Mystery, are angeling around wherever they are.

I always loved Margaret Hough. Petite, dark haired, Bridge Club mate of my mom's. Margaret, and her housekeeper "Annie," always opened the back door of the Hough Mansion for me on rainy days on my way home from Bird Elementary. Once dryly ensconced they would ply me with cookies and milk until the rain stopped, and I could tromp on home.

When my folks would have to go away during school months I would move in with "Aunt" Margaret and use her son Kit's bedroom. Elaborate model airplanes hanging over my bed, images of his famous father (Cass Hough, former Daisy Air Rifle CEO) framed in his World War II leather jacket, standing next to none other than General Jimmy Dolittle. Rumor had it that on his way home from the war, Cass radioed ahead to Willow Run that his plane was full of war memorabilia, and that the Daisy company should send trucks out to the runway.

Apparently, Cass landed, but never turned off the plane's engines, unloaded, then flew off to New York for his "scheduled" landing-return from Europe. All I know for sure is that in my inherited gun collection there was a beautifully, engraved Belgian shotgun, a gift from Uncle Cass.

I am thinking of "Aunt" Margaret Hough because I am sitting here in The Dunning-Hough Library writing this. The computer I am using is doing for my words what Kraft did to cheese. And, it's free. The rows, stacks, and shelves of books, knowledge, data and other useful library facilities all here. . . free. Thanks to the Houghs and one other local treasure, Margaret Dunning. Plymouth's two Margarets. There is word around that the library is being torn down, to be enhanced, changed, made better. For this local lad it's great just as it is.

Out the door there goes local optometrist Jim Carney, picking up some employer data; and, just after him is Plymouth Planning Commissioner Denny Campbell, pursuing a further edition of Armistad Maupin "Tales of The City."

In the computer cubicle on my left is University of Minnesota student Jeff Halverson catching up on some school work while he visits his girlfriend, Amber Mandry, here in Plymouth; and on my right is Plymouth's Brett Lyman, doing some research before leaving for Columbia College in Chicago. A regular beehive of activity this local library of ours.

What sparked my thoughts on the Dunning Hough Library? Yesterday, my wife and I took a rest from our biking tour in Plymouth's Hough Park. While lounging beneath one of the beautiful maple trees there, a huge dog led his owner by on their daily walk. The dog, Bentley, lives in the Hough mansion where I used to be an occasional boarder. He growled that Kit's model airplanes are gone, Annie's no longer there, but the love, feeling spirit and quality of life kindled by Margaret Hough still prevails.

I have a feeling Margaret Hough and other Plymouth ladies like her, who have passed beyond the Great Mystery, are angeling around wherever they are. Whatever decisions are made concerning the library here, their influence will be felt.

1998 gubernatorial issue: Who gets money?

Tim Richard

There is a more important question than who succeeds John Engler as head of the Michigan Republican Party and 1998 gubernatorial candidate.

The bigger question is: Which side of the state will he or she be from?

Prior to Engler, three of the last four GOP nominees were from southeastern Michigan — Bill Lucas, Dick Headlee and George Romney. The fourth, Bill Milliken, sought to be an exceptionally good friend of metro Detroit.

Grand Rapids has been feeling its oats. Editorially, the Grand Rapids Press views the state treasury as being a giant funnel sending a green stream southeastward on I-96 to "Detroit."

The Grand Rapids notion is that the west side of the state deserves something, too. Read the Press' listing of concerts, and you'll be forced to admit that something more than klompen dancing goes on. They have a symphony and a minor league baseball team. They have the Gerald R. Ford Museum. The area has a state university and a couple of sectarian colleges that local folks are proud of.

The Grand Rapids delegation has been working furiously to shift the flow of cultural cash from the southeast to the west. It was a big player in the highly justified lawsuit to get state funding for courts some place besides Wayne County. In the new Court of Appeals district, Grand Rapids candidates gobbled up all four new seats, leaving Kalamazoo and Ann Arbor sucking air.

In the Legislature, the Grand Rapids delegation holds most of the aces — Senate majority leader, House speaker and three-fourths of the leadership positions in the House. The big news of 1995 was not the Republican ascendancy but the Grand Rapids domination of the Legislature. The GOP's big money-raisers, national committeeman Chuck Yob and committeewoman Betsy DeVos, are from the Grand Rapids area.

What we are viewing, whether anyone likes it or not, is an open geographic division of interests within the Grand Old Party.

This will impact on gubernatorial politics in 1998, when Engler voluntarily won't seek re-election. (Under the term limits amendment, which didn't kick in until 1994, he could legally seek a third term.)

Dick Posthumus, the Senate majority leader from an eastern Kent County farm, is itching to run for governor. So eager is he that his minions were spreading the word in 1991 that Engler might run for the U.S. Senate in '94 leaving Posthumus in line for governor. Wishful thinking.

Posthumus has tried to cultivate friends in southeastern Michigan. But he has a distinct disadvantage: He's in bed politically with the Religious Right. Posthumus denies it and once spent a half-hour trying to sell me the notion that the RR is from the east side of the state. No sale. When the parochiaid issue comes out into the open, we'll find Posthumus in bed with the RR, trying to pry open the treasury on behalf of church-related schools in the name of "choice."

Another ambitious chap from that area is House Speaker Paul Hillegonds, R-Holland. He's not quite as far right as Posthumus — I think; so far. His style is a chairman-of-the-board kind of leadership, somewhat less domineering than Engler's and Posthumus', more consensus-building than strong-arming. I can't illustrate that conclusion with concrete examples; it's an impression.

But I can't conceive of Posthumus and Hillegonds running against each other for the big nomination in '98. The Grand Rapids delegation can't risk splitting itself and letting an (ugh!) southeastern type take control of the candy store.

What southeastern type might take a shot at governor in '98? L. Brooks Patterson, that's who. The Oakland County executive has run some divisive primary campaigns in the past for U.S. Senate (1978) and governor (1982) but may have learned his lesson. And he is interested.

It would be fascinating to see the GOP arts supporters from Oakland and the Wayne County suburbs lining up behind Patterson as their savior, but it could happen.

By never understanding, we lost war in Vietnam

Philip Power

Like most people who came to political consciousness in the 1960s, I have many, ambivalent memories of that conflict.

President Bill Clinton's decision last week to grant diplomatic recognition to Vietnam provoked a lot of memories around this newspaper.

Some of our staffers fought bravely in that war so long ago, while others protested in the streets and in their hearts. An editor served as a member of a private contact group, making several visits to Vietnam over the years, providing a channel for humanitarian aid.

Like most people who came to political consciousness in the 1960s, I have many, ambivalent memories of that conflict. I did not serve in Vietnam. I thought the war was the wrong war, fought in the wrong place and for the wrong reasons. But I would have gone to fight had I been drafted because, well, because that's how I was brought up and that's what you do.

The war was really heating up when I came back to the United States in 1964, having been a Marshall Scholar at Oxford's University College, the same place where Bill Clinton, a few years later, neither inhaled marijuana nor sat for his final degree examinations.

I was lucky enough to get a job as administrative assistant for a U. S. congressman, which is perhaps how I wound up at Camp David one warm June afternoon in 1966. I was sitting on one side of President Lyndon Johnson and Bob McNamara, then the secretary of defense and an old family friend, was on the other.

We started discussing — debating? — the war, with the president listening, his huge head with enormous purple prescription sunglasses swinging back and forth as he gazed intently at us in turn.

We flew back to Washington that night in the helicopter, landing in blazing white lamps on the south lawn of the White House. I remember thinking about the power and might of the system that could pick up a president and transport him from his mountain resort to his office in just a few minutes, without for even one second losing telecommunications touch with a great army sweating and grunting in the forests of a far-off land.

The call to come down to see the president came a couple of weeks later. I wound up spending an entire day with him in the White House, sitting on perimeter of the Cabinet Room while meetings went on and then being asked to come into the Oval Office for a quieter visit.

The president showed me a position paper on the war — evidently the latest one after a series of rejections — from the State Department. He asked me what I thought of it. I tried to summon up something crisp and logical, but in the middle of it I blurted out:

"What this paper misses — what the entire war misses — is this: Just what drives those little men in black pajamas to keep on coming? Through bombs, through napalm, through firepower . . . they just keep on coming!"

I will never forget that look as the president leaned back in the chair, his face lined and his forehead receding. He took off his glasses and laid them on the desk. He rubbed his eyes. For a long, long time.

"I don't know, either. And until we understand that, we'll never win this war."

Looking back at those days, 30 years later, I'd have to say we never did understand. And, never understanding, we lost that war.

I'm sorry we lost, because I'm an American and I don't like to see our side lose. But I'm glad we are normalizing relations with our old enemy, also because I'm an American.

(For the record, later that afternoon the president — or rather, Bill Moyers, then the press secretary — asked me to come on board as a special assistant. I replied that he could have me if he wanted me after I had finished managing the congressman's campaign for re-election, but that I couldn't just dump the man I had pledged to serve. I never heard anything after that.)

Car thieves gain skill since 1970s — study

A new study by the National Insurance Crime Bureau indicates that thieves of the '90s are more sophisticated in selling and disguising stolen vehicles and parts compared to thieves of the '70s.

The NICB study revealed that not only are stolen vehicles less likely to be recovered in 1994 compared to 1970, the condition of these located vehicles has steadily decreased.

In 1994, of the recovered stolen vehicles analyzed in the study, 31 percent were stripped, 31 percent were vandalized or had missing parts, 16 percent were wrecked and 4 percent were burned or flooded.

Only 18 percent showed no apparent damage.

These numbers compare to 1970, when approximately 75 percent of vehicles stolen were used for transportation — only 25 percent were taken for resale, stripping for parts or for use in another crime.

The study implies that 25 years ago, most cars were stolen by neighborhood joyriders who often abandoned the cars at the roadside when they were finished with them.

Today, vehicle theft has become a big business, often operated by ring masters and usually employing middlemen, brokers and coordinators.

"You don't often find abandoned cars in good condition anymore," said NICB president John Di Liberto in a press release. "More and more, these stolen vehicles are shipped, stripped, burned or buried. The intricacy of some of the schemes is truly amazing and sometimes unbelievable."

The study also found that if your car is stolen today, there is a 50/50 chance you'll get it back within one week — 54 percent of all vehicles reported stolen are located within the first week of being reported stolen. After one week, the odds of recovery drop dramatically.

Hundreds of thousands of stolen U.S. vehicles are shipped overseas or driven across U.S. borders each year.

Many vehicles are stripped by chop shops and sold piece by piece to disreputable auto repair and body shops.

Some are hidden or destroyed by the owner to collect insurance money.

Others are retagged and resold to unsuspecting customers.

"Today's vehicle thief may be more sophisticated than ever before, but the NICB is investing in new information and investigative services to outsmart these thieves," said Di Liberto.

This renewed commitment to crackdown on vehicle theft and insurance fraud is witnessed through some recent NICB initiatives:

High Tech

Introduced in 1995, NICB Online is the most comprehensive insurance claims and vehicle-related information resource available.

Accessed by more than 10,000 law enforcement and insurance claims investigators, NICB Online provides immediate vehicle related information and can assist in identifying fraudulent theft claims.

Field Support

The insurance industry and the NICB provide law enforcement with the additional resources needed in organized vehicle theft ring investigations nationwide.

In 1994, the NICB assisted in more than 4,200 prosecutable actions against alleged insurance criminals.

Over the Border

The NICB's International Office in Dallas assists in the identification and recovery of stolen American vehicles that have been exported to foreign lands.

In 1994 the NICB returned nearly 2,000 U.S. vehicles from Mexico, worth approximately $21 million.

One good scrape deserves another

Currently, our house is undergoing some home improvement. Now I have to admit, I am speaking optimistically here because right now it looks rather like a home unimprovement — a great big, messy mess.

And here's the deal. I'm the one at the bottom of this mess, literally and figuratively speaking. You see, I came up with this home improvement project the idea of it. And I'm the one doing it. I offered to, which is probably a fine thing on paper, but in reality, not such a fine thing.

First of all, the project I dreamed up was painting the front porch and I've never really painted a front porch before. As a matter of fact, I've never really painted much of anything before. I'm not allowed. That's because, historically, I've streaked, dripped, globbed and ran.

But my husband, Ron — now he paints. And he's very good. So good, he paints and improves homes for a living, which takes up a lot of time and sort of precludes painting our own front porch. And so my generous, yet not so fine, offer to take this task on.

With brows furrowed and a slight grimace on his face, Ron agreed.

So my children and I began the project. And since the porch ceiling had a few spots of peeling paint, we decided we'd better scrape and make

Cooley's Cardinals 'flock' to reunion

■ Each year Jack Lennox has a mission to attract as many of his former classmates to Rotary Park in Livonia for the annual Detroit Cooley High School reunion picnic. His efforts are paying off with more than 600 expected to attend this year.

By Barbara Wilson
Staff Writer

Reunion planners: Cooley High grads Dave McCoy of Westland (from left), Jim Scott of Farmington Hills, Fred Peterson of Auburn Hills, Jack Lennox of Livonia, Virginia Fetterly of Novi and Joe Schulte of Bloomfield Hills are involved in the fifth annual reunion picnic, which will honor the more than 200 Cooley alumni who lost their lives in World War II.

Everywhere they turn, the planners of the Detroit Cooley High School Memorial Picnic find someone else linked to their alma mater.

For the past five years, a corps of loyal Cooley High graduates from throughout the metropolitan area has gathered to plan the event. (This year's picnic honors the 207 Cooley High School graduates who were killed in World War II, more than any other high school in the United States.)

Livonia resident Jack Lennox leads his regiment of picnic planners each year. He plans the entertainment for the picnic and sends out reminders to the more than 800 people on his alumni list. This includes only those students who graduated between 1929 and 1954.

"He really does a lot," said Novi resident Virginia Fetterly, class of '32. "The postcards are all written by hand and that really catches your attention when you see them."

The list includes former Cooley Cardinals who now live in Israel, Hawaii, Alaska, California, Arizona and the U.S. Virgin Islands, according to Fred Peterson, class of '45 and a Auburn Hills resident.

"The picnic really gets everyone back together again because we care about Cooley and to honor those who fought in the war," Peterson said.

Last year more than 600 people attended the picnic and this year planners are hoping for even more participation and good weather.

This year's picnic has special significance as it marks the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II. Astronaut Jack Lousma will be the keynote speaker at the Aug. 9 event. Joe Rodriguez, who was present when the U.S. Marines raised the flag on Mount Suribachi, Iwo Jima, also will address the gathering.

And David Snead, general superintendent for Detroit Public Schools, will also be on hand.

The military theme will be carried out with a parade, led by the Shrine Highlander Pipe Band, under the direction of Roger Brown, and the U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard from the Broadhead Armory. Twelve-year-old trumpeter Todd

Michigan Metro Council honors 4 adult Girl Scouts

Four western Wayne County women have been recognized for their work with the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council at the 1995 Volunteer Recognition Event, held at the Ward Conference Center at University of Detroit Mercy in Detroit recently.

Denise Marable of Livonia and Gail Colby of Westland received the council's Appreciation Pin. The pin is given for volunteer service that is outstanding and beyond expectation and benefiting one or more communities while contributing to the achievement of the council's goals and objectives.

Marable has been an adult Girl Scout for 12 years. She currently serves the Livonia area as a troop leader, a member of the neighborhood events staff and chair of the holiday gift wrapping booth at Wonderland Mall.

Colby has been an adult Girl Scout for eight years. She serves as a coach and mentor for girls who are working toward their Gold Award, the highest recognition a girl can earn in Girl Scouting. She has actively assisted middle and high school girls for several years.

Debbie Cordray of Livonia received the Thanks Badge II, given to volunteers who have previously received the Thanks Badge and who continue to contribute outstanding service that benefits the total council or the entire Girl Scout movement.

Cordray has been an adult Girl Scout for 19 years. Her current involvement includes being a member of the council's board of directors, chair of the council's annual meeting, chair of the council's assembly coordinating committee, member of the nominating committee, member of the volunteer recognition task group and member of the ED's Roundtable.

The Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council provides leadership, cultural and personal development opportunities for more than 31,000 girls in Wayne and southern Oakland counties.

Karkanen has been an adult Girl Scout for 29 years. Her current involvement includes being a troop leader, a member of the Silver/Gold Award Committee, a program workshop trainer and member of the ED's Roundtable.

smooth the surface to be painted. Well, now scraping . . . that's an interesting thing. It's sort of like the very first time I pealed onions. I was seven and at Brownie Scout day camp. And before lunch one day, the Scout leader handed me four onions and said, "Peel them."

Now, up to that point, the only things I'd ever really peeled were bananas. And with bananas you know exactly when you're done peeling. The banana peel and the banana are two entirely separate things. Onions, though, are different. And when you're seven, the difference is confusing. So when I handed my Scout leader the result of my hard, teary, sniffily work, she wasn't very happy. The four grape-sized onion centers just wouldn't do for our Day Camp Stew.

Anyway, scraping paint is sort of like that. When exactly are you done? When the old paint is entirely gone? Or just when the loose, flaky stuff is off?

I think I'm going to go with "just when the loose, flaky stuff is off" because the porch has been growing while we're not watching. I'm serious. What was originally an ordinary sized porch has turned into what seems to be the mile-long one (or however long that is) at Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel. There's just no end to it.

Perhaps it's our lack of expertise. We couldn't even find the right scrapers that first day. There were big flat scrapers, and there were little tiny screw-on-the-end of a pole type scrapers. And Joe thought the ice scraper might be just the thing. And then there were the rusty scrapers tucked in the back corner in the Reject Tool Pile.

We eventually found instruments that functioned the way we hoped they'd function. And work began.

Standing on the white wicker porch chairs to scrape the ceiling worked fine for me, but Tony, who stands just at 5 feet fall, couldn't reach the ceiling well enough to make contact with the flakes and the peels. He disappeared. I kept at the flakes and peels.

As I worked and scraped and strained my neck backwards, I thought of poor Michelangelo, painting the Sistine Chapel. How did he ever, ever do that? And to think, I'd only been at this porch scraping for 10 minutes. I felt small. Completely unfamous. I could see already that this was going to be ugly, hard work, and there would be absolutely no glory in this. And little, if any, success either.

Tony suddenly reappeared. He'd found a ladder. He quickly set it up and in an instant I heard his scraper making contact. We were on our way. We had tools, we had spirit, we had flakes and peels to conquer.

We've worked sporadically for a few days now. The terrible storms and the wicked heat and that pesky way the porch keeps getting bigger every time we turn around all have slowed our progress. But we're not quilters. We'll finish this, I know we will.

Just this morning one of Carmen's friends came to the front door, picking her way through the flakes and chips and hunks of scraped-off paint laying on the porch floor. She said, "Boy, Carmen, this is a big mess."

Carmen replied, "I know, but before it's nice, it has to be real messy like this."

Her friend said, "Well, I guess your porch is probably gonna be the nicest one in the whole town then."

I'm pretty sure that was a compliment. I'm going to think of it as one anyway.

Smith of Farmington will play taps as veterans provide a 21-gun salute.

American Legion Post 32 in Livonia, the 70th Division Sergeant's Drill Team, Lawrence Schweigern of the 101st Airborne, and Ted Haggman of the American Legion will round out the dedication ceremonies.

"It's a lot about camaraderie; we're a family that gets together once a year for a big reunion," said Joe Schulte, a Bloomfield Hills businessman and 1948 Cooley graduate. "We were closer together it seemed because of the war years and the Depression years.

"It was a great city, Detroit. We all grew up there, and we're still kicking."

Peterson talks of the connections so many people have to Cooley. Being one of the newer school buildings in the area, in those days, other schools like Redford and McKenzie used the facilities for graduation ceremonies and sporting events.

"We had great times together as kids in the city," he said.

Lennox remembers fondly the snake dances that would wind their way through the city streets and through the trolley cars all over the neighborhoods.

"We would get to the end of the line and then have to find rides home because we had gotten further away than we thought," he recalled.

The memorial picnic will begin at noon Aug. 9 at the Rotary Park on Six Mile Road in Livonia. Entertainment will include The Renaissance Choir with Don Bohnemeyer directing, a barbershop quartet and the Livonia Stevenson High School Jazz Band, led by David Booker.

Canton man named to church panel

A Canton Township resident has been elected to a three-year term on the credentials committee of the National Association of Congregational Churches.

Wayne Tolnia was elected to the post during the recent annual meeting of the Congregational Christian Churches in America, held in Dearborn in June. Tolnia and his wife Lillian represented Mt. Hope Congregational Church of Livonia at the meeting.

This was the 40th year the group has met and was marked by the unveiling of a painting by Massachusetts artist Karen Rinaldo, "The First Thanksgiving." A gift to the American people, the painting is scheduled to be displayed at the White House this year before finding a permanent home at Plimouth Plantation in Plymouth, Mass.

The painting represents in accurate historical detail the first meal of "thanksgiving" between the Congregational Pilgrim ancestors at the Plymouth Colony in 1621 and the local Native Americans who offered them hospitality and survival assistance.

Actor Michael Hall from the Plimouth Plantation Historic Village Museum participated in the painting's unveiling and throughout the conference, costumed and in character as Jonathan Brewster, son of Pilgrim stalwart William Brewster.

The national association was during at meeting at the Fort Shelby Hotel in Detroit in 1956. This year, 1,200 Congregational delegates, participants and youth shared four days of meetings, worship services, seminars and special events, including a service of communion at Detroit's historic First Congregational Church. Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer participated in the service.

The National Association of Congregational Christian Churches is an association of 425 autonomous Congregational churches throughout the United States whose roots go back to the early Pilgrims who left England on the Mayflower in 1620 to find religious freedom.

Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital...
Often imitated - never duplicated.

Many places claim to be birthing centers, but the Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital has the credentials. It is the only center in Michigan accredited by The Commission for Accreditation of Freestanding Birth Centers, a division of the National Association of Childbearing Centers.

The Family Birthing Center is a unique alternative for childbearing families. The staff is committed to providing each family with a birth experience which meets their individual needs in a safe environment. Our philosophy is based on the belief that birth is a normal process, and routine medical intervention is not needed for most labors and births. We provide a partnership with families that encourages education, participation in decision making and more control over the birth experience. Extended families, including siblings, can participate in the birth event, and mothers and babies are not separated after birth. Your care may be provided by an obstetrician, family practice physician or certified nurse midwife with privileges at Providence Hospital.

In addition to our home-like atmosphere, the Family Birthing Center offers the safety of nearby Providence Hospital with its quality high-risk services in case of a problem.

We offer a comprehensive program of childbirth education, including your choice of normal birth or Christian birth classes, breast-feeding education and support, preparation for early discharge and sibling classes. Our services also include one-to-one nursing care, early discharge with extensive follow-up and a home visit by one of our nurses. Homemaker assistance is also available as part of our program.

We are located in the Fisher Center attached to Providence on Nine Mile Road in Southfield. Come visit us and see for yourself. We want to help make the birth of your child the personal experience it should be. There is a difference.

Resource Center holds golf outing

Schoolcraft College's Women's Resource Center spends its time and its money helping women in need. Now the center has a need — sponsors for its first annual Women's Golf Outing.

Slated for Friday, Sept. 8, at the Cattails Golf Club in South Lyon, the outing will raise money for scholarships for women — displaced homemakers, single parents — who need to upgrade their work skills to get a job.

The cost of the outing is $65 per person or $260 per foursome, with $25 per person tax deductible. The cost covers 18 holes of golf, an electric cart, small bucket of range balls for practice or warmup, hot dog, chips and beverage after nine holes, dinner and prizes.

Individuals and businesses also can help by sponsoring a hole for $100, placing a $50 advertisement in the Golf Day program, or donating a prize.

During 1993-94, more than 100 women received some sort of financial assistance to attend Schoolcraft College and the need for scholarship assistance is growing as more and more women face the reality that they must work outside the home, said Nancy Swanborg, director of the Women's Resource Center.

In addition to financial assistance, the WRC provides the atmosphere and support for exploring educational, financial, professional and personal plans for members of the community and Schoolcraft campus.

People interested in making a donation or participating in the golf outing, can call the Women's Resource Center at 462-4443.

Writer is in search of perfection

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

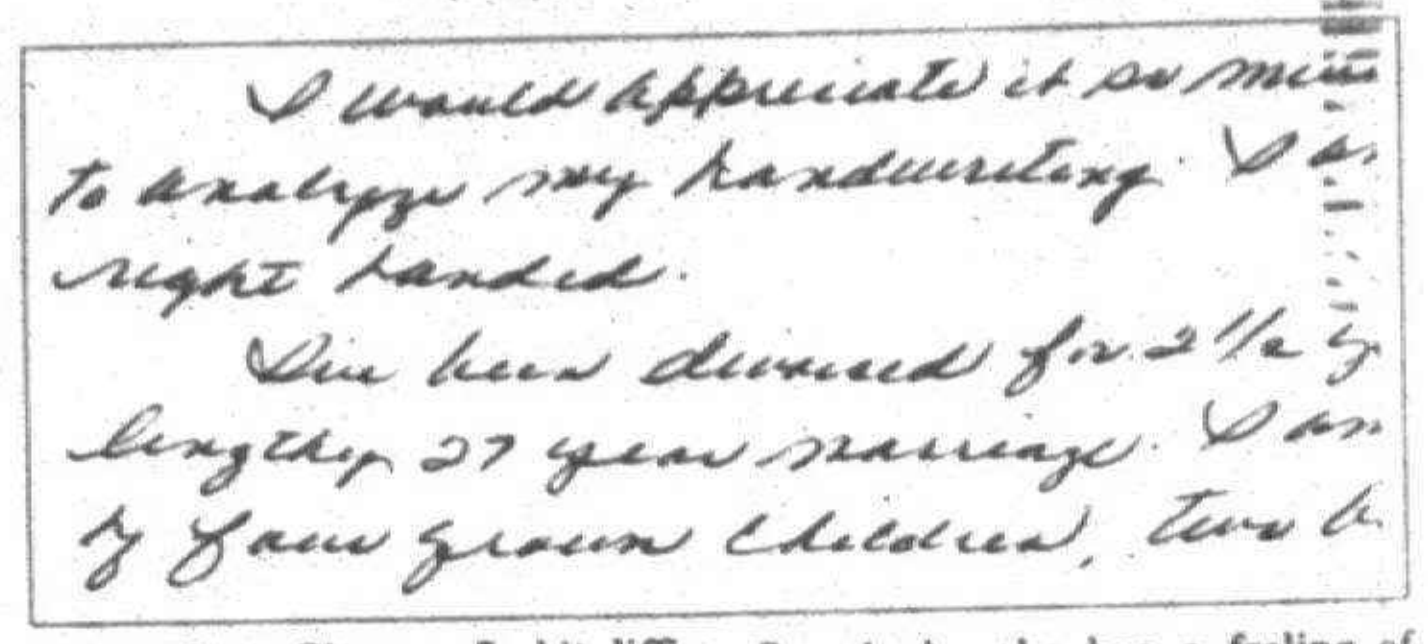
I would appreciate it so much if you were to analyze my handwriting. I am 48 and right handed.

I've been divorced for 2½ years after a lengthy marriage. I am the mother of four children.

For the past 8 months, I've been with a man 8 years younger than myself. Although I am crazy about him, I entertain no thoughts of marriage. The future does scare me though — the struggle of making it on my own. Is it even possible?

Any comments or suggestions will be very much appreciated.

J.G., Westland



Permeating this handwriting is a woman in search of perfection. She can become tense about things being done exactly as required. She values accuracy, precision and quality work. Augmenting this is self-motivation and conscientiousness. She finds it difficult to relax until all her work is completed. She loves order and neatness in her surroundings.

Control is another strong trait of hers. Often she restrains her true personality and a lack of spontaneity is the result.

This woman is well-acquainted with discipline and organization. After spending time to lay out her plans, it disturbs her to have to make last-minute revisions in her schedule.

Many of her goals are set at a high level and necessitate challenges on her part. Others are even loftier and may be daydreams at this time.

She can take a direct route to problem-solving. This may be more true in her work than in her personal life where emotions often get in her way. At times, she gets carried away with her feelings.

There is a tendency on the part of this writer to see things just one way. She is a rather serious person, often with a little tendency to worry. So it is good to see a tad of humor here to help put perspective into her daily living.

Our writer has a strong sense for aesthetics. She puts this into practice in many areas of her life. She also has a desire for exposure to culture.

Ostensibly, she is never at a loss for ways to express herself. Sometimes, her persuasive charms are used. Other times, she is frank and open, possibly a little too much so. She may find it difficult to keep a confidence. When she feels threatened she can be swift with her retort. This is probably when sarcasm comes into play. She seems to be on the defense against slights or hurts.

The rigidity in her handwriting suggests one who is somewhat inflexible and lacks adaptability in the face of changing circumstances. She is more comfortable with the familiar and may possess a dislike for unexpected changes or have a fear of the unknown.

A wide left margin and very few lead-in strokes on her words suggest she may be moving away from some of the things that afforded her security in the past.

Seemingly, she has a feeling of dissatisfaction with some things as they are.

Our writer enjoys people and is compassionate and caring in her relationships with them. She seems to like having her own way, and may be a little selective regarding with whom she wishes to socialize.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

County fair offers plenty for just $6

By Barbara Wilson
Staff Writer

You'll get plenty of bang for your buck at the 1995 Wayne County Fair, organizers promise.

Rodeos, demolition derbies, livestock, carnival rides, food, arts and crafts, and much more will be on hand for just $6 per person, said Karen Slebodnik, the fair's community arts supervisor.

The 49th Wayne County Fair kicks off July 25 and continues until July 30 at the fairgrounds, Quirk Road, off the I-94 North Service Drive just west of the Belleville Road exit.

"It's a great time for families without spending a lot of money," Slebodnik said. "The one fee even covers the price of rides because we wanted to make it easier for families to come and enjoy themselves without constantly digging into their pockets."

All of the traditional things associated with a county fair will be available to guests. Young people will be entering their horses, pigs, cows, rabbits and other livestock for competition. The livestock will then be auctioned publicly at 7 p.m. July 26 on the fairgrounds.

Many adult artisans and crafters from the area also enter their work for judging, according to Slebodnick, who coordinates the adult craft building. The deadline to submit items is July 22.

"Three or four years ago our attendance was really down," she said. "But we've been growing a little bit ever since as long as the weather works in our favor."

Last year, about 35,000 people attended the fair. And entries in adult crafts have climbed from 300 in 1992 to 900 entries.

The following is a partial list of fair activities:

■ July 25 — Senior Day; no midway rides, gate admission is $3 per car, $5 per bus. Pony pulls at the grandstand, 10 a.m. continental breakfast, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. bingo and performer Johnny Chase.
■ July 26 — Agriculture Day; midway opens at 1 p.m., USA Figure 8 racing at the grandstand.
■ July 27 — Kids Day; midway opens at 11 a.m., Wagon Wheel Pro Rodeo in the grandstand.
■ July 28 — Mother Nature Day; midway opens at 1 p.m., Wagon Wheel Pro Rodeo in the grandstand.
■ July 29 — Family Day; midway opens at 11 a.m., Davis Daniel and Noah Gordon perform on stage, antique and farm tractor pulls in the grandstand.
■ July 30 — Armed Forces Day; midway opens at 1 p.m., Demolition Derby in the grandstand.

Thuderfest to showcase classic cars

Classic cars, trucks and street rods will converge at the Canton K mart store Saturday, Aug. 12, for the third annual Thunderfest Saturday!

The classic car and street rod charity show will be 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at K mart in the New Town Shopping Center at Ford and Sheldon roads. It will benefit Community Hospice Services.

Classic cars, trucks, and street rods will be displayed and judged throughout the day, with 66 class prizes to be awarded. Last year nearly 1,500 people viewed the 140 vehicles that were displayed.

A car enthusiast himself, Canton K mart store manager Chuck Wagner will show his rarely driven 1993 Mustang Cobra, a 1967 Chevelle SS and his customized 1990 Ford Ranger truck.

"Our goal is to raise $4,000 for Community Hospice Services," said Wagner. "Each K mart manager decides (which charity to support), but I think it's important to give to hospice where the money will go to help people in need. We also have several people employed here who have dealt with hospice and they have always been treated nicely."

This show will be the fifth time that Wagner has sponsored the event. He began the show when he managed the Westland K mart and brought it to the Canton K mart when he was transferred there. Wagner hopes to have a minimum of 150 cars entered in the show and will give dash plaques to the first 150 cars registered.

In addition, the WYST-STAR 97 FM remote will be broadcasting live from the car show.

"We are accepting reservations to display cars right up to the start of the show," said Diane O'Hara, personnel manager at the Canton K mart. "Cost to show a vehicle is $7, if preregistered, or $10 the day of the show. We are planning quite a special day. In addition to the WYST-STAR 97 FM broadcast, we will have some terrific door prizes, bake sale, and all the merchants in the plaza will have sidewalk sales."

"We're so pleased that K mart manager Chuck Wagner and his store associates are interested in helping Community Hospice Services," said Maureen Butrico, CHS executive director. "While they will award many prizes to the show participants, the real winners are the patients and families which we serve. Proceeds from the show will go directly to help our patients and families."

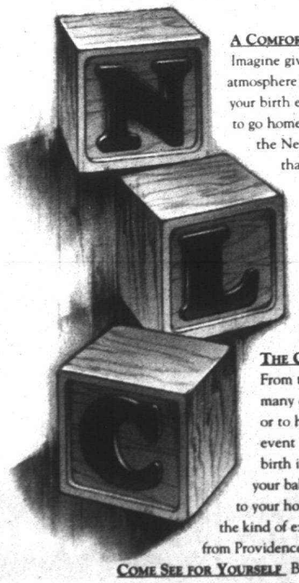
INTRODUCING
The New Life Center at Providence Park
Where families are born...close to home



A Comfortable Atmosphere
Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A Unique Approach
It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

The Choices are Many
From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

Come See for Yourself But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

*Only pregnant women who have been pre-screened and assessed as low risk by a Providence physician are eligible to deliver at the Providence Park New Life Center.

Knot expert will showcase talents

Clifford Lawrence of Livonia will be a featured artist at the 1995 Michigan State University Museum Festival of Michigan Folklife.

Clifford Lawrence

Lawrence's experience as a Navy boatswain's mate helps explore this year's theme, "Creativity at Work."

Lawrence served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean War. He spent most of his duty at sea where he learned the skills of marlinespike seamanship as part of the job.

He learned to make fenders, large knotted ropes used to protect the ship from chafing against the dock. He also maintained the tradition of decorating the ship with fancy knot work and making lanyards for his uniform.

Today Lawrence uses his nine years experience to teach knot tying to young people, especially Boy Scout troops and the Civil Air Patrol. He has made a color-coded knot board to illustrate various knots and assist in his teaching. His active retirement also includes local cable television programming and senior citizen activities.

The Festival of Michigan Folklife will be 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 5-6, at Landon Field. Admission is $17 in advance or $20 at the door, with day passes at $5 each. Children younger than 10 are free. Advance tickets are available from the student bookstore, Breslin Center box office, MSU Museum Store, or from AAA Michigan full-service branch offices.

The ninth annual MSU Museum Festival of Michigan Folklife uses its theme to celebrate the role of creativity in traditional occupations. It features imagination in cooking, including Italian-American candy making, Chinese-American cooking, and occupational folklore of Great Lakes chefs.

A special area features building restoration work, including ornamental iron work, brick masonry, stone foundation construction, stained glass, and stone carving.

Other special features include African-American gospel costume designers, MSU Extension employees, office xerographic lore, musical traditions and oral histories from Idlewild, Michigan's historic resort community for African Americans.

Birmingham sizzles with sultry sounds of jazz

By Mitch Genova • Special Writer

Birmingham will be hot! July 27-30, and not because of the weather. For the third year in a row, The Community House in Birmingham is presenting Jazzfest, a four-day festival taking place throughout downtown Birmingham.

This year's festival opens 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 27, with a free concert in Shain Park featuring Alexander Zonjic & Friends. Many downtown Birmingham restaurants, and the Townsend Hotel, will also be presenting live jazz.

Two special concerts will be offered July 28-29 in the Wallace Ballroom of the Community House, 380 South Bates Street.

Columbia recording star vocalist Nnenna Freelon is appearing 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Friday, July 28, with her trio, and saxophonist Rick Margitza.

Detroit's own premier vocalist Harvey Thompson and trumpeter Rayse Biggs, recording stars in their own right, head a lineup 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturday, July 29, that includes pianist-composer Pamela Wise and her Latin jazz ensemble, with special guest, percussionist Milton Cardona.

Tickets for the July 28-29 concerts are $20 each, and available at all Ticketmaster outlets, (810) 645-6666 or the Community House, (810) 644-5832.

Songwriter/vocalist Freelon carries on the jazz tradition of Sarah Vaughan, Carmen McRae and Ella Fitzgerald. She has just released her third CD, "Listen."

Her first Columbia CD, "Nnenna Freelon," was released in 1992. The latest CD focuses on her songs and lyrics. She also wrote lyrics to two exotic jazz classics, McCoy Tyner's "Aisha," and Wayne Shorter's "Footprints," which will establish these instrumental classics firmly in the vocal jazz repertoire.

"I really wanted to focus on my song writing to add some new songs to the jazz literature," she said. "I feel that one way for me to branch out and make an imprint in an individual way is through writing."

Freelon was born in Cambridge, Mass., and grew up listening to Stevie Wonder, the Chi-Lites, Stylistics, and Spinners. Her parents introduced her to the music of Odetta, Miriam Makeba, Nina Simone, Abbey Lincoln, Ella Fitzgerald, and Sarah Vaughan.

"I was struck by the stories in the songs, and I just put the needle on over and over so I could get the lyrics."

While perfecting her vocal craft, Freelon graduated from college, got married, moved to Durham, N.C., worked as a hospital administrator and raised three children. She was already a local celebrity when she came to the attention of Ellis Marsalis (Wynton's father) who convinced Columbia Records to listen to her.

For her Jazzfest appearance, Freelon will be

Community House salutes Louis Armstrong, Michigan Jazz Masters

This year's Birmingham Jazzfest honors Michigan Jazz Masters who continue to carry the jazz tradition forward.

During the festival's salute to the jazz tradition, the Community House in Birmingham will display a photo collection and other memorabilia of jazz pioneer Louis Armstrong, known as "Satchmo" to generations of jazz fans.

Also as part of the salute to tradition, the Community House will present a concert and interactive jazz clinic Saturday, July 29, in Shain Park. The clinic, featuring five Michigan Jazz Masters will follow a concert by the musicians at 11 a.m.

The Jazz Masters, given their title by Arts Midwest, includes pianist Harold McKinney, trumpeter Marcus Belgrave, drummer and percussionist Roy Brooks, clarinetist Wendell Harrison and pianist and saxophonist Dr. Teddy Harris Jr.

These musicians are well known for their performances as well as for their efforts to pass along the jazz tradition to the younger generation.

McKinney and Harrison have released their own tribute to "Satchmo" and the New Orleans roots of jazz called, "Something for Pops."

"Since jazz is now such an important element in other types of American music, jazz has become the education media for many other forms of music," McKinney said.

Belgrave established the Jazz Development Workshop to help young musicians develop their improvisational skills.

Harrison is also the author of "The Be Bopper's Method Book."

The Shain Park concert offers an opportunity to hear jazz played by Michigan's best and a chance for young musicians to pick up valuable tips on technique and gain invaluable insight into the creative process.

Actors give students a 'Jumpstart'

By Keely Wygonik

"Jesus Christ Superstar," 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, July 20-22; July 27-29; 3 p.m. Sundays, July 23 & July 30, Louis E. Schmidt Auditorium, 20155 Middlebelt Road, Livonia. They learned about theater in a baptism of fire through Jumpstart the Arts' summer program, and will be put to the test July 20 when the curtain rises on "Jesus Christ Superstar."

After opening night, they will rejoice, for this production, to be presented for two consecutive weekends at Clarenceville High School's Louis E. Schmidt Auditorium in Livonia, truly is a miracle.

It's the gospel truth - experience is the best teacher. That's how this project, which involves six Broadway professionals and high school students evolved.

"We've always talked about having our own theater company," said Dan Cooney, a professional actor who grew up in Westland and graduated from John Glenn High School. His friend, Kent Dalian of Plymouth, a professional actor who shares Cooney's passion for theater, and desire to help aspiring performers is directing the show.

"When Kent and I started in New York it took us years to accomplish things that could have taken months, had we known better. If people weren't helping us, we wouldn't have gotten anywhere," said Cooney.

Their purpose is to inspire young artists in a healthy, safe environment where they feel comfortable expressing themselves.

"We can't possibly lose if the kids walk out here feeling good. There's nothing more exciting than to see someone come out of their shell as an artist."

Jumpstart the Arts is a two-part program - the first consists of a two-week training workshop where students, chosen by audition, receive training from Cooney, Dalian and other Broadway pros.

"Jesus Christ Superstar," is the finale. The cast of 50 includes Kirk Mouser, who starred in "Phantom of the Opera," as Jesus, Cooney as Judas, and Amy Law, a student at Plymouth-Canton High School as Mary Magdalene.

Susan Mouser is the choreographer, and Randy Blouse is musical joined by saxophonist Rick Margitza, a New Orleans native who attended the Jazz Studies program at Wayne State University. Margitza has toured with Maynard Ferguson, and performed briefly with Miles Davis. He has three CDs on the Blue Note label — "Color," "Hope," and "This is New."

The Saturday evening concert headlines several stars in the local firmament. Vocalist Harvey Thompson, whose CD, "Jazz Is (Anything You Want it to Be)" has received considerable air play, carries the torch of male vocalists such as Joe Williams, Mel Torme and Johnny Hartman. Thompson has appeared at the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival several times, and performed in Europe and Japan.

Trumpeter Rayse Biggs has performed at many local venues including Orchestra Hall, and the Montreux Jazz Festival. A product of Marcus Belgrave's Jazz Development Workshop, and Oakland University, Biggs has toured and recorded with the group "Was Not Was," and appeared with them on "Saturday Night Live." An actor, as well as musician, Biggs received the Theater Excellence Award for his portrayal of "Levee" in "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom."

director. There are 35 high school students cast in the show from 16 local high schools including Plymouth-Canton, West Bloomfield, Westland John Glenn, Livonia Franklin, Farmington, Livonia Churchill, Garden City, Clarenceville, Harrison in Farmington Hills, Mercy, North Farmington, and Detroit Country Day.

Michael J. Sawaya of Garden City, who grew up across the street from Cooney, is the producer. A Wayne County Deputy Sheriff, he and his wife, Melissa, have a 3-year-old son, Andrew.

While Cooney and Dalian were on the road appearing in shows, Sawaya was home arranging auditions at 18 local high schools, and helping start Jumpstart the Arts, an independently financed project.

"When we were kids we were constantly play acting," said Sawaya about Cooney. "When he offered me the challenge in February, I accepted. After the first phone call we incorporated, started booking the theater, set up auditions, and began getting the information out to high schools. Over 100 people auditioned this year. Next year we hope to audition 300." His wife, Melissa, monitored auditions and helped organize the troops. She also works in the office and answers phones.

Cooney and Dalian have come a long way from the $75 to $125 a week they earned doing dinner theater. Cooney starred in two productions at the Fisher Theater in Detroit — Che Guevera, "Evita" and Perchik in "Fiddler on the Roof." Dalian just finished the national tour of "Blood Brothers," and recently appeared in "Hair" at the Fox.

They met after a year of college and shared an apartment in New York for eight years. Dalian will be moving to L.A. this fall, and Cooney's heading back to New York.

"Jesus Christ Superstar" is one of their favorite shows — they've each done it five times. "I love it," said Cooney. "It's a popular story, and a great show. We're running this show like a professional theater company."

"Along with the training, we're trying to show them how show business works," adds Dalian. "Jim Bonnie, one of the best acting teachers in New York, is working with the students in the training program. A lot of people will discourage students from going into this business. They should be encouraging them. It's a big fight to succeed, support is important."

Ben Hurvitz, 17, of West Bloomfield, a student at West Bloomfield High School, attended the two-week training workshop, and is cast in the show.

"I play Simon the zealot," said Hurvitz. "So far it's been the most incredible experience I've been a part of. To be involved with Broadway professionals on stage has been a great experience. The students who were involved were treated like professionals. We're all very excited and nervous about opening night."

Restroom Poets — Restroom Poets

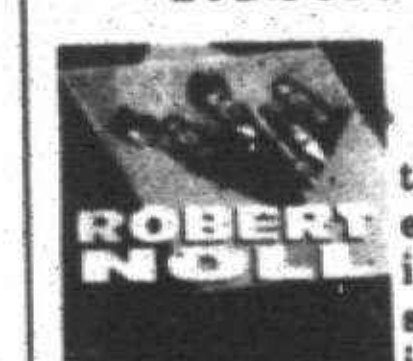
What you hear on the Restroom Poets self-titled debut CD (Harmonie Park Productions) is what you get. The Ann Arbor quartet of drummer Ben Lorenz, bassist Brian Poore, vocalist/guitarist Jason Magee, and guitarist Brad Skinner have done what most bands are unable to do — capture the intensity of their live show and slap it on a recording.

The 12-song CD weaves in and out of Magee's mind telling stories of his ideal love ("Sensible Woman"), personal struggles ("Decadence"), and his struggle to understand social ills ("Death in Canada"). The straight-ahead rock of "Death in Canada" has made the song a crowd favorite at shows, and comes across equally as well on "Restroom Poets." The sultry blend of country and blues on the Jeff Healey-like "Out of Style" is striking both musically and lyrically.

The fluidity of Magee's vocals on quiet, emotional songs like "Out of Style" and on rockers "Sensible Woman," coupled with the Restroom Poets' tight performance make the band one to watch this year.

Restroom Poets plays at 9 p.m. Thursday, July 27, at Magic Bag Theatre Cafe, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Cover is $3 and the show is open to those 18 and older. Call (810) 544-3030 for more information. The band also plays a free, all-ages show at 9 p.m. Friday, July 28, at Planet Ant Coffeehouse, 2357 Caniff, Hamtramck, (313) 365-4948.

Happy Bluesday — Robert Noll Blues Mission



There are those who might say that blues guitarist/vocalist Robert Noll's most endearing quality is his ability to spark controversy. Of course, it isn't, but depending on who you speak to, he's either too loud and rock-oriented, or he's the King of the Blues in Detroit.

He's certainly the biggest blues draw in town, and as long as he keeps folks talking and standing in lines to see him wherever he plays, from Sisko's to the Q Club, he does more for what the late Bobo Jenkins used to thank his audiences for — "keeping the blues alive" — than anyone else in town has in many years.

This is a disc that touches on all aspects of the public perception of Noll. It leans on a rock hybridized volume knob here and there, and it sits in honey sweet pure and natural blues in others. Just the Allman Brothers-styled instrumental, "Mountain Top," alone should convince any doubting rockers of the vitality of the blues and prove to the blues hard-liners that there is much to be said for the discriminate use of rock energies.

Robert Noll keeps folks talking, certainly. This proves that there's plenty to talk about.

Robert Noll performs at 9 p.m. Saturday, July 22, at Buddy's Barbecue, 6676 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield. For more information, call (810) 851-4250.

A Spanner in the Works — Rod Stewart

By now, everyone knows the drill: old Rod good, new Rod bad. Critics lamented his gigantic sales in the late '70s with hits like "Da Ya Think I'm Sexy" and genuinely missed the homespun feel and self-deprecating humor of the early Mercury hits with cohort Ron Wood. Others saw the satin pants and California tan and wrote him off. The worst part of it was, save for the occasional flash of brilliance like 1985's "People Get Ready," both groups were right to reject the New Rod Stewart. As more and more gloss was applied to his image, the more bloated and watery his work became.

The '90s found Stewart pandering to adult contemporary radio for lightweight hits and rock stations simply playing "Stay With Me" one more time. Worst of all, the Mod himself was guilted into slagging his '70s output in interviews, calling it a "betrayal of his talent." Meanwhile, we die-hard fans swallowed the new material and kept praying for Rod's rejuvenation, a complete return to that once-familiar musical swagger and new life for that raw rasp of a voice.

And again, we have to settle for second best. It's genuinely frustrating to hear the handful of tantilizing cuts on "A Spanner in the Works" (Warner Bros.) yield to what ultimately becomes yet another lite rock soundtrack, ready to ooze out of countless dentists' offices this summer. It's heartening that the album is sequenced and paced like an honest-to-goodness album, beginning slow and moody and climaxing with several grooving, uptempo cuts, but when the quiet numbers are as watery and weak as the openers "Windy Town" and "The Downtown Lights," hope dies fast. An attempt at the mid-80s raunch-rocker, "Delicious," falls similarly flat. The gems of this collection are few and far between. —Todd Wicks

Catherine Wheel finds its worth

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Catherine Wheel vocalist/guitarist Rob Dickinson is a sight to behold as he walks over to the 89X tent at the radio station's birthday party concert in Pontiac. With his Caesar haircut, sleek, wrap-around black sunglasses, heavy black boots, retro-style shirt and black jeans, it's hard to believe that Dickinson and his band ever had an ego problem.

■ 'We all of a sudden after touring for two years had the confidence to do exactly what we pleased.'
Rob Dickinson

Up until Catherine Wheel's last tour, Dickinson said that he wasn't sure of his band's worth. After consecutive nights of touring, a lightbulb went off in his head and he realized "the band is finally worth something."

"We all of a sudden after touring for two years had the confidence to do exactly what we pleased," said Dickinson during an interview in his dressing room at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre Saturday, June 24.

"We were released from the shackles of our influences. By touring so much, we were able to become our own entity."

"Happy Days," Catherine Wheel's latest album, is the result of the band's new-found "healthy arrogance." Overall, the CD is much more aggressive than Catherine Wheel's previous efforts — 1991's "Ferment" and 1993's "Chrome." If you listen to them as a collection, however, "Ferment" and "Chrome" are musical stepping stones to "Happy Days" (Mercury/Fontana).

"If you don't get it (the musical progression), it's not our problem. Our healthy arrogance came by naturally and positively. Any record which can have (the rocking) 'God Inside My Head' and (the acoustic-influenced) 'Fizzy Love' on it is a bit of an achievement. It encompasses the full spectrum of what moves us."

"This is the first album that shows the fullest breadth of this band's ability."

Dickinson describes the album as "aggressive, melodic, delicate, and sometimes it's uplifting." Underneath all those elements is Catherine Wheel's trademark "tension under the guitars."

The swooping vocals of "Heal," the answer to the band's first U.S. hit single "Black Metallic" both in style and length, shows Catherine Wheel's softer side. The aggressiveness of the first single "Waydown" allowed Catherine Wheel to break into whole new market — hard rock.

"Judy Staring At The Sun" is a straight-ahead pop song that features the angelic vocals of Belly lead singer/songwriter Tanya Donelly.

"We'd bumped into her touring," Dickinson said of the collaboration. "Gil Norton (who produced "Happy Days" and "Chrome") knew her from his production of Throwing Muses, and Belly as well, so he introduced me to her at the London Finsbury Park XFM Festival we were both playing at. We got along really well, and I knew I wanted a female voice to sing on that song."

"I could hear a lot of country in her voice, that sort of twang and warble, and I thought she would be perfect for this track."

The heavy beat-laden "Hole" was written in response to the suicide of Nirvana singer Kurt Cobain.

"On the seventh day of pre-production for this album, Kurt took his own life. It obviously had an effect on us, and that song is our reaction," he said.

Dickinson, guitarist Brian Futter, bassist Dave Hawes and drummer Neil Sims formed Catherine Wheel in 1990 in the seaside town of Neil Sims. Named after a gruesome torture device that dates back to the 4th century St. Catherine, came about its record deal quickly. "Black Metallic," "I Want To Touch You," and "Crank" soon became radio hits.

To push "Happy Days," Catherine Wheel played a stream of radio station-sponsored gigs, including the 89X Birthday Bash at the Phoenix Plaza. Dickinson, the cousin of Bruce Dickinson, said although radio shows are "a technical headache," he likes playing them.

"I like the perversion of playing to people who may not be there to see you," he said with a sly snicker.

Dickinson and the rest of Catherine Wheel are returning to Detroit to play St. Andrew's Hall on Monday, July 24. When asked if Dickinson was going to play cult favorites like "I Want To Touch You," he replied:

"It is difficult to pick from three records. But people won't go away disappointed."

Catherine Wheel, Wax and Gwen Mars perform at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Monday, July 24. Doors open at 8 p.m. for the 18 and older show. Tickets are $8.50 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Vancouver singer arrives in happier mood

STAFF WRITER

Vancouver singer/songwriter Mae Moore was concerned that her name wasn't listed in ads or on the marquee as the opening act for Billy Bragg and the Barenaked Ladies show at Meadow Brook Music Theatre in Rochester earlier this month.

Will Billy Bragg fans be disappointed when she instead of he comes out at 8 p.m.? Will people know who she is?

Her question was answered quickly when she announces that "I'll be giving away prizes after the next song. They go to whoever knows my name," she said with a laugh.

The song ended and the scant crowd yells her name. She tosses out stickers of her latest album cover and the rush is so strong to the stage that a female usher ducked down and covered her head.

She's found her "pleasure ground."

Moore is touring in support of her latest album "Dragonfly" (Tri-Star/Sony) which follows her break-through album "Bohemia." Although she is more well-known in Canada, "Bohemia" boosted her popularity in the United States. Her whispery, sultry vocals on the title track and "Because of Love" helped her sell more than 50,000 copies of the album.

She hopes to have the same success with "Dragonfly," which she recorded after a "year of reassessing a lot of things in my life."

"It's happier. A bit more optimistic. 'Bohemia' is dark and moody and more brooding. 'Dragonfly' deals with issues of death and longing but it's elevating," Moore said.

After her father died in January, she found herself reassessing her friendships and finding out what's really important in life. She values honesty in relationships "not material things that give you sustenance. . . . things that speak to the heart."

"Pleasure Ground," although upbeat in tempo, is a song from "Dragonfly" which speaks to the heart. Describing the loss of a relationship, Moore sings, "Just for once let me feel my worth/And stand beside you on this earth/I've always wanted to/Where are we now/In circles we go around/Dragging our love/Through these pleasure grounds."

■ 'The band I'm with right now is very supportive. When it's just myself and an acoustic guitar, then I tend to draw back inside and get quite introverted. Now that I'm with a band that really rock, a lot of the elements are fun and really buoyant.'
Mae Moore
singer/songwriter

Sometimes, she admits, it's hard to sing emotional songs like "Love Won't Find Us Here" and "Evolution (The Same Way)" at some shows.

"It depends on the situation. The band I'm with right now is very supportive. When it's just myself and an acoustic guitar, then I tend to draw back inside and get quite introverted."

"Now that I'm with a band that really rock, a lot of the elements are fun and really buoyant."

Her band, all of whom played at Meadow Brook and on "Dragonfly," reads like an all-star lineup of Canadian musicians — Paul Brennan formerly of the Odds plays drums; Ginger's Vincent Jones plays keyboards and piano; Rick May plays bass; and Neil Clarke, who played with Lloyd Cole, is on guitar.

She'll return to the United States in the fall. Right now she's concentrating on another aspect of her life that gives her sustenance — painting.

"I'm having a show at a small gallery" near her Vancouver Island home. "I have one painting to finish and some framing to do."

Reassessing relationship: After the death of her father, Mae Moore reassessed her friendships and other relationships. Ironically, her latest album "Dragonfly" has a happier feel. Moore recently performed with Billy Bragg and Bare Naked Ladies at Meadow Brook Music Theater.

Troy Players offer spirited 'Secret Garden'

BY BENITA GREEN
SPECIAL WRITER

REVIEW

"The Secret Garden" is being presented by the Troy Players July 21-23, 28-29. Shows are at 8 p.m. with 2 p.m. matinees on Sundays. Tickets are $10, $9 for senior citizens and $9 for students younger than 18.

Usual opening-night jitters aside, the Troy Players' first performance of "The Secret Garden" was a spirited one.

Based on the novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett, with music by Lucy Simon and book and lyrics by Marsha Norman, "The Secret Garden" follows the self-discovery of Mary Lennox (played by Brooke Andres), a bitter, lonely girl, who, orphaned after a cholera epidemic in Colonial India, is shipped off to the English countryside manor of her unreceptive uncle, Archibald Craven (Phil Paonessa).

Mary soon finds out that the manor is haunted by the spirit of her Aunt Lily (Jennifer Combs), as well as the overwhelming sorrow of her uncle, and his conniving brother, Dr. Neville Craven (Kevin Edwards), who both resent Mary's disturbing resemblance to the well-loved Lily.

There are many good voices in this musical production, and the rapport among the actors gives sparkle to what might otherwise be a tedious show, as much of the action drifts between reality and the dream-state of Mary's mind as she remembers her parents in India and discovers the secrets of her new family in England.

Phil Paoness makes a strong impression as the reclusive, invalid, Archibald. He plays the heavy-hearted widower with soulfulness, and "Where in the World," a song about Archibald's attempt to forget Lily, left many in the audience sniffling. Parker Plague, of Canton, who plays Archibald's sickly young son, Colin, has a sweet light voice, and scenes between himself and Andres, of Livonia, are alive with a refreshing, innocent honesty.

The supporting cast is fine as well; Kimberly Cruchon is cool and spooky as Mrs. Medlock, the intimidating housekeeper of Misselthwaite Manor, while both Doug Clark (Dickon), and Jodie Kuhn (Martha), as the Yorkshire servants who befriend Mary, lighten the dark story with their cheerful singing. Jennifer Combs (Lily), Emily Raymond (Rose Lennox), and Kevin Finke (Captain Albert Lennox) also make fine appearances in this production.

The only distraction was the various attempts at British accents, which wandered from Australian to Michiganian to American Southern, and occasionally settled on England.

A few sour notes drifted in occasionally from the orchestra pit, which also tended to drown out voices, due to an inadequate sound system.

The director, Michael A. Gravame, made the most of the small stage and constant scene changes, with chorus members doubling as stage hands.

The show, although meant for audiences of all ages, may be especially delightful for young children, as they watch the protagonist, Mary, metamorphose from a sullen, unhappy child into a life-affirming teenager.

Dearborn Players stage family favorite

BY CARL BOOKSTEIN
SPECIAL WRITER

REVIEW

"Cheaper by the Dozen" is playing at the Dearborn Players Guild, July 20-22 at 8 p.m.. All tickets are $8.

"Cheaper by the Dozen," currently being performed by the Dearborn Players Guild, is the story of a 1920s family of 12 children and their parents, and the struggles and changes they go through together. In this solid production by 20-year-old, first-time director Tony Lawry, the children shine brightly.

The play opens with the brother and sister narration team of Frank and Ernestine who are engaging from the outset — their easy tone and bright energy welcome you into the family home, and their follow through keeps you caring about and relating to the cast. Frank, played by Jim Meade, is genuinely likable and real, yet it is Ernestine, played by Marcea Mitchell Urbaniak, whose star shines brightest. This red-headed "Ern" is attractive, charming and charismatic and gives a natural performance as the endearing Ernestine.

Director Tony Lawry, the youngest director in Dearborn Guild history, also succeeds with pacing and choreography that flow well with the development of the story. As the family's zealously organized Dad blows his whistle and times how quickly his children congregate, Lawry keeps the production zippy as well.

It is actually the father, played by Brian Townsend and his manic attention to organization and structure, that is at the source of the family's struggles. He seeks a family that functions like a finely tuned factory, and when his eldest daughters start taking interest in boys and dating, he becomes a bit unglued and handles things poorly. Matt Tobey is hilarious as the cheerleader Joe Scales, the eldest daughter's parentally ruined first date.

The family and children come together well as a unit to give this 1920s story a timeless quality still applicable today and the production remains entertaining throughout. Tension effectively builds and then subsides as the story develops and our understanding of the family grows. The kids and their assorted antics keep you smiling from young Jackie, Emily Tar's terrific comic lecture of the family dog to Ernestine's excitement over a motorcycle driving young suitor.

"Cheaper by the Dozen" is above all the story of a family of children growing up, and because these young actors fully and naturally invest themselves in their roles, the play succeeds with young charm and a lot of heart.

WELDED ART FOR SALE IN ANN ARBOR

Larry Wolcott, a retired middle school science teacher from Wayne-Westland Community Schools, enjoys working with his hands.

Washtenaw Community College welding students, of whom Wolcott is one, will exhibit handcrafted items in an effort to raise money for student scholarships at the 36th annual Ann Arbor Art Fair July 20-22. This is their fourth year at the fair.

The idea for the project was Wolcott's, who again is working on the effort this year.

Popular garden/flower pot decorations will be offered for sale. They are taking the form of crickets, grasshoppers, whales and pigs. Also returning is the popular dancing cat.

Necklaces, rings, and candle stands will also be available for sale.

The items, which are designed and created by welding students and their instructors, were in such demand last year they sold out. Approximately $1,000 was raised for student welding scholarships.

Ann Arbor Art Fair hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

'Ruby in Paradise' makes a point without sentiment

PASS THE POPCORN

LeANNE ROGERS

Not to be confused with a weak new comedy of a similar name, "Ruby in Paradise" is an unsentimental look at a young woman's efforts to make her way and a better life for herself in a new home.

The first sight of Ruby is as she is flooring her car as she leaves her boyfriend and rural Tennessee hometown in the rearview mirror. Played by Ashley Judd, Ruby heads for a Florida resort town. She doesn't know anyone there but visited once as a child on the only vacation she can remember.

Her timing isn't very good as she arrives looking for a job during the off-season when the weather is turning cold and the beach is deserted. She manages to land a job working at a gift shop — she's had experience working at her uncle's store. Ruby becomes friendly with another clerk, a college student who will be returning to school. As she explains to her new friend, Ruby managed to get out of her hometown without getting pregnant or beaten up. "And that's saying something," she says.

The store owner has one hard and fast rule — employees can't date her son. And Ruby's new co-worker warns her about the owner's son, too. But the next thing you know Ruby is dating him. It's just one of those things you have to learn the hard way and a mistake that will come back to haunt her later.

Judd gives a fine performance as Ruby, a smart young woman who learns from her mistakes and gains confidence. She starts out scared and alone in her tiny apartment. It gradually becomes home as she adds homey touches to the sparsely furnished apartment.

"Ruby in Paradise" isn't a sentimental tale. Ruby makes mistakes and with only basic skills and education finds she has a hard way to go. Her co-worker encourages her to set her sights higher than working at the shop. Reading, which she had only done when it was required, starts to open new horizons for Ruby. She's observant about the relationships she gets involved in and the situations of women around her. She becomes more assertive and independent. One of the nice things about Ruby's character is that she isn't a stereotype of movie "feisty" characters. She's more like a real person, one who is awfully young to be on her own.

The performances are all good including Dorothy Lyman as the shop owner who develops a relationship with Ruby. The older woman clings to her hopes that her troublesome son will straighten up someday.

'Apollo 13' mission a success

JOHN MONAGHAN

The superstitious say the project was doomed from the get-go. Scheduled to walk on the moon on the 13th hour of the 13th day of April, 1970, the crew of the 13th Apollo space mission experienced a ship malfunction that almost stranded them between the earth and the moon.

Many predicted a similar fate for director Ron Howard. His recent "Far And Away" was an epic disappointment while the last high profile movie about the space program, Philip Kaufman's "The Right Stuff," wowed critics but kept audiences away in droves.

Kaufman approached his subject like Ken Burns did baseball and the Civil War in his sweeping 19-hour dramatization. Howard, recognizing the drama of this single mission, has cast some of Hollywood's most likable performers in an amazingly suspenseful and entertaining film.

Tom Hanks infuses astronaut James Lovell with a passion for walking on the moon. Even though the American public has lost some of the interest peaked by Armstrong's historic "giant leap for mankind," Lovell and his two-man crew approach the follow-up mission as the realization of the American dream.

Fellow astronauts Fred Haise (Bill Paxton) and Jack Swigert (Kevin Bacon) have never been in space. Lovell has private doubts about Swigert, a last-minute replacement for crack pilot Ken Mattingly (Gary Sinise), grounded by Mission Control because he may or may not have the measles.

The script, based on Lovell's autobiographical "Lost Moon," opens the possibility that Swigert's careless flick of a switch before taking proper instrument readings led the oxygen tanks to blow, resulting in an explosion that blew off a side of their ship.

■ REVIEW

Forced to leave the main ship, they have to pilot the lunar module home while preserving precious fuel and oxygen.

Howard captures perfectly the claustrophobia of the astronauts and their vital link to Mission Control, which scrambles to come up with a solution to get them home. After "Crimson Tide," which showed how mayhem must result before anything can get done in the modern military, the effects crew shows the liftoff from NASA team can accomplish nothing without teamwork.

At one point, the astronauts are being smothered by their own carbon dioxide levels. They must piece together, with the help of Mission Control and only minutes to spare, a filter system with plastic bags, duct tape, and even a sock.

Instead of using countless stock footage, the "Apollo 13" special virtually every angle. Howard displays his own ingenuity while filming in "space," sometimes from outside with faces visible in the windows or as astronauts float from one part of the ship to another.

Hanks, often called the '90s answer to Jimmy Stewart, could play this part (nice guy in an impossible situation) in his sleep. Others (especially Sinise and Bacon) log some of their finest and subtlest performances on screen.

Familiar faces pop up throughout the film, including Ed Harris (he played John Glenn in "The Right Stuff") as the head of Mission Control and Howard family members mom and brother Clint. You'll even spot Roger Corman, who gave Andy Griffith's boy Opie the chance to direct his first movie in the 1970s.

For Howard, "Apollo 13" goes beyond mere entertainment. With savvy he has rekindled the geewhiz enthusiasm of the space program of 25 years go. He has the added pleasure of watching this hard-sell project shoot to the moon in box office receipts and become the most popular movie this summer.

Musashi reaches out to non-Japanese

By Ethel Simmons
Staff Writer

It was his first visit to the Musashi Japanese restaurant in Southfield, but Peter Hwang of Bloomfield Hills, who was having lunch with family members, said, "It's very wonderful. I think this is the best Japanese restaurant I have stopped by."

Hwang, who is Korean, also admired "the view outside and inside." He was referring both to the table's window view of the atrium at the 2000 Town Center building, and to the attractiveness of the restaurant itself.

"When I started 10 years ago, it (the clientele) was 90 percent Japanese," said owner Koji Watanabe. Now, he noted, "Maybe its 65-70 percent Japanese. They like to have traditional Japanese food."

The rest of the customers are non-Japanese and may include "People who like to have Japanese food, in business." He explained he offers dishes such as chicken teriyaki and salmon teriyaki to appeal to a wider variety of tastes. Americans prefer things sweeter than the Japanese do, he said.

Watanabe and his wife Kyoto, whom he calls "the boss," both work at the restaurant. The Musashi celebrated its 10th anniversary with a big party Sunday, July 16.

What to drink

Drinks accompanying Japanese food can include American cocktails, or Japanese beer or a selection of high-quality sake (Japanese rice wine). Japanese tea is a popular nonalcoholic beverage choice.

The proprietor likes to keep his standards high. He orders Japanese beef direct from Japan. He said that about 10 years ago, New York was the only American city that served Japanese steak. Musashi was the second U.S. restaurant to offer Japanese steak.

What makes this steak so different from an American steak (besides the price tag — it's the $75 item on the menu) is its taste, Watanabe said. "The Japanese beef has more marbling. It's more tasty and tender. The American beef is leaner, with less fat but not too much flavor. It's very tough."

He orders his fish locally from Noble Fish and also gets Japanese snapper fresh once a week direct from Japan. Other meat comes from Allied Provisions.

For his sushi bar, the chefs use real crabmeat in the California rolls. That's why this popular choice is priced at $9 on the sushi bar menu. It's more expensive than at other restaurants, which usually use the imitation called Krab, he said.

Although most Americans think of sushi as raw fish, "Seventy-five to 80 per cent is cooked or boiled, and 20 percent is raw," Watanabe said. Within a couple of years, he expects just about all sushi will be pre-cooked because of demands of the federal government.

Desserts (mostly for Americans) include Japanese ice cream in flavors of green tea or Japanese sweet bean paste. Fresh fruit is another dessert selection.

Slurping noodles

At lunchtime, customers' favorites include noodle dishes on the menu. Watanabe ordered one for himself, and when it was served, he explained he would make a noise while eating a mouthful. It is purposefully served really hot, and the slurping sound is to cool it off.

The extensive menu — there are separate ones for lunch and dinner — lists appetizers, various entrees, sushi, noodle dishes, Wagyu — the world's most refined beef, and Nabemono — where you cook the meat, poultry, fish or vegetables at your table.

At dinner, noodle dishes or rice dishes are traditionally eaten after the main course, to cleanse the palate. Desserts (mostly for Americans) include Japanese ice cream in flavors of green tea or Japanese sweet bean paste. Fresh fruit is another dessert selection.

The dinner menu also includes combination dinners with soup, salad, rice and tea ($19.75-$23.25). Or, for a minimum of two orders, each $50 and up, you can order Omaskase — a seven-course dinner that the chef will select to meet your preferences.

At lunchtime, Makunouchi Bento, at $25 and up, is an assortment of Japanese food in a lacquer box, served with rice, soup and green tea. That's what the group of customers, who were mentioned at the beginning of this article, had enjoyed.

The main dining room is for smokers, and in another room there are cute little secluded booths for non-smokers.

National qualifier

Ian Bedford, who will begin his senior year at Plymouth Canton this fall, turned in a pair of excellent performances at the USATF Track and Field Regional Meet July 8-9 at the University of Kentucky in Lexington to qualify for the USATF National Championships July 25-30 in San Jose, Calif.

Bedford advanced to the regional meet by winning his events at the state meet last June in Melvindale. That earned him the trip to Lexington, where Bedford finished second in the 5,000-meter run (16:27.38) and third in the 2,000-meter steeplechase (6:46.22) in the young men's (17-18 years old) division.

Award-winner

Adam Sonnanstine, a member of the Plymouth-Canton Cruisers swim club, was one of several Cruisers to compete at a long-course swim meet (in a 50-meter pool) in Ohio, and he placed second for total points scored in his age division (10 and under boys).

The top three finishers in each age group were presented with special awards.

Sonnanstine earned his reward by placing first in the 50-meter and 100-meter breaststroke; second in the 100 backstroke; third in the 50, 100 and 200 freestyle, the 50 back, the 100 butterfly and the 200 individual medley; and fourth in the 50 fly.

Marauders closing in

Neither the oppressive heat nor the opposition could sidetrack the Marauders last week, who remained unbeaten with a pair of wins in Great Lakes Men's Soccer League play.

The Marauders survived 90-degree heat to dismantle the Ann Arbor Hattricks 7-1 Friday at Livonia's Jaycee Park. On Sunday, both the heat and the goal-scoring diminished — but the Marauders were still winners, this time by a 3-1 count over Ann Arbor United, again at Jaycee Park.

The two wins lifted the Marauders' league-leading record to 7-0. They have a home-and-home series this weekend against Flint's Bud Light, hosting Bud Light at 7 p.m. Friday at Jaycee, then playing Bud Light at 3 p.m. Sunday at Southwest Academy in Flint.

In last Sunday's win over Ann Arbor United, the Marauders got two goals from Lars Richters (a Livonia Stevenson graduate) and another from Brian Thiel (Livonia/Redford Catholic Central). Kal Kaliszewski (Livonia Churchill) was in goal.

The victory over the Hattricks required extra breaks in play due to the heat. It didn't slow down the Marauder offense, however: Bob Hayes (Livonia Franklin) and Rob Ludwig scored two goals apiece, with John Gentile, Mike Gentile (both from Churchill) and Scott Weiger adding one goal each.

Kaliszewski was again in goal for the Marauders.

The Marauders close their regular season at 7 p.m. next Wednesday against Ann Arbor United at Fuller Park in Ann Arbor.

The Marauders' playoff run begins at 6:30 p.m. Friday (July 28) at Jaycee Park against the winner of the Dearborn International-A.F. Brittania match. The winner of the July 28 game advances to the playoff semifinals, which will be 3 p.m. Sunday (July 30) at Jaycee Park.

Ace report

On the second hole, Andrew Coppola of Plymouth got something he'd never had before — a hole-in-one.

Coppola got his initial ace on the 171-yard second hole at Brookside Golf Course, located in Gowen, just outside Greenville. He used a six-iron. For the round, Coppola shot 80.

Jim Grosh, also from Plymouth, got the first ace of his life when he drove his seven-iron the required 158 yards on the 12th hole at the Legend of Shanty Creek Golf Course June 16.

Grosh, who is 46, works for General Motors and has played golf for 29 years without ever getting an ace — until now.

Cleary College scramble

Cleary College, a college of business with campuses in Ypsilanti and Howell, will present its second annual Cleary Classic, which will include the "Drive for the Chrysler" hole-in-one contest, on Monday, Aug. 21 at Travis Pointe Country Club in Ann Arbor.

Registration for the golf outing is restricted to 144 amateurs, at a cost of $150 each. Included will be lunch and dinner, power carts, contests, awards, door prizes, pool and locker room access.

Also featured will be the Cleary Classic Fantasy Getaway Raffle, in which two winners will each collect airfare for two for a three-night, four-day getaway to any one of 50 locations in the U.S. Raffle tickets are $10 apiece, three for $25.

For more information, call Cleary College's Advancement Office at (800) 686-1883, ext. 3354. All proceeds will benefit the Cleary College Endowment Fund.

Wolves' rally salvages tie

It was there, within reach — a victory, the first of the season for the Broncos. But the three-goal lead they built in the opening minutes of the third period melted down the stretch, forcing them to settle for a tie with the Wolverines.

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

It may seem improbable, and quite an accomplishment for the winless Broncos, to play the Wolverines — one of the top teams in the Metro Summer Hockey League — to a 5-5 tie.

Which they did Tuesday night at Plymouth Ice Arena. But the credit for the tie really goes to the Wolverines, who trailed by three goals with 11:11 left in the game before rallying to tie.

Brian Hannigan was instrumental in the Wolves' comeback. Eddie Switkowski (from Canton) had staked the Broncos to a 5-2 lead with his goal with 11:11 remaining in the game.

Kirk Gurney got the Wolverines (now 5-2-1) turned around with a goal with 9:49 left, on an assist from Hannigan, trimming the deficit to 5-3. Hannigan's goal with 7:01 left made it 5-4; Kevin Matejko then tied it at 5-all with 4:02 to go, Hannigan again assisting (with Bob Nagy).

Hannigan finished with two goals and two assists. Matejko had a goal and two assists. Kevin Mankowski also scored a goal.

The Broncos (0-6-1) were staked to a 2-0 lead by Dave Weaver (Plymouth), who scored twice in a less than two-minute span of the opening period. Goals by Hannigan and Mankowski tied it for the Wolves, but the Broncos retaliated with consecutive scores by Paul Goleniak, Scott Goleniak (both from Westland) and Switkowski.

Weaver totaled two goals and two assists to pace the Broncos. Scott Goleniak had a goal and two assists, and both Paul Goleniak and Switkowski had a goal and an assist.

Opener: Paolo DeCina of Canton got the Spartans started in their win over the Bulldogs Tuesday with this first-period goal.

Spartans 11, Bulldogs 7: It figured that the Spartans, playing their third game in as many nights, would be the team to tire out by the time the final period rolled around.

Think again. They outscored the Bulldogs (1-6-1) 5-2 in the last period to pull away from a one-goal lead after two periods to an easy win Tuesday at Plymouth.

The win was the Spartans' second in their three-game stretch, evening their record at 4-4.

Bobby Jones led the winners with three goals and an assist. Kevin Haggarty had two goals, and Vic DeCina (Canton) netted a goal and five assists. Both Jeff Lupu and Cory Almas (Westland) had a goal and three assists apiece, with Brady Priest (Livonia) and Mike Petit adding a goal and one assist each.

Double-header should decide 1st place

Decision Consultants and Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury are on a collision course for a season-ending first-place showdown in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Decision (17-6) and Hines Park (15-5) will meet in a double-header Friday. The first game is 5 p.m. at Madonna University Park and the second follows at 8 p.m. at Ford Field. (The regular season ends Sunday.)

On Monday, Decision's Luke Bonner, an All-Stater hurler from Dearborn Divine Child and bound for the University of Michigan, ran his record to 3-0 with a three-hit shutout in a 1-0 win over Little Caesars at Ford Field.

Bonner, drafted in the 34th round by the Tigers, struck out seven and walked only one in seven innings. He retired the final nine batters, outdueling Caesars starter Scott Kapla (Eastern Michigan/Redford Catholic Central) and reliever Dave Susalla (University of Detroit/CC).

Greg Kiempisty, who led Decision with two hits, doubled in the second inning and scored on Josh Reeber's single up the middle for the game's only run.

On Sunday, Dearborn Adray upset Decision at Ford Field, 3-2, on Jason Mitchell's single in the seventh inning over an drawn-in outfield. Mitchell's hit brought Matt Hansen home with the game-winner.

Hansen had two hits, while first baseman Aaron Babicz (Hillsdale/CC) gave Adray a 2-1 lead in the sixth with a two-run homer.

Ted Riethal (Macomb CC) was the winning pitcher. He scattered seven hits.

Steve Williams, who relieved Eric Butler and starter Tim Holland, took the loss.

Adray also won a Sunday against Little Caesars, the LCBL's first forfeit of the year.

Both Hines Park games Sunday were rained out.

Friday at Ford Field, Hines Park took five innings to mercy Adray, 11-1, as right-hander Craig Benedict (Madonna/Plymouth Canton) was the winning pitcher.

Jeff Lance (Henry Ford CC/Redford Thurston) collected three hits to pace Hines Park.

Adray right-hander Matt Fournier (Wayne State/Livonia Franklin) took the loss. Brian Crumley (Franklin) and Brett Cote finished up.

Adray also lost Monday to third-place Michigan Honig's, 3-0, at Ford Field.

All three Honig runs were unearned as Joel Biggs was the hard-luck losing pitcher.

Taormina still in pursuit of her Olympic dream

By Chris McCosky
Staff Writer

Sometimes fate bats you through life like a pinball, in the end leaving you without a clue as to how you got where you are. Other times your destiny appears before your eyes, illuminated by spotlights and accompanying fireworks, as if to say, "Hey, this could be you."

Sheila Taormina knows this all too well. After a wave of so-called accidents — "Believe me, I didn't plan any of this" — carried her from All-American swimming and academic careers at Livonia Stevenson and the University of Georgia to a berth on the U.S. National team, destiny tapped her on the shoulder one night in Indianapolis.

It was 1992. Taormina, trying to win a spot on the U.S. Olympic team, swam the best times of her life at the trials and still missed the cut by eight spots. Well, she figured, that's it, career's over. Time to get on with my life.

That night, Taormina went back to the natatorium in Indianapolis for the ceremonial introduction of the Olympic team. The place was packed. The lights dimmed. Spotlights circled and crisscrossed. Fireworks were ignited. A huge American flag was draped over the pool. And amidst the din, the team was introduced.

Jim Jacofeld/Staff Photographer

Sheila Taormina: 'I don't know why this means so much to me.'

Taormina, awestruck, knew right then that her swimming career was far from over. In fact, it had just begun.

"I wish I could describe the feeling," said Taormina, who at 26 is back with the Clarenceville Swim Club and coach Greg Phill setting Master's-level world records and positioning herself for a spot on one of two U.S. National teams this summer and, ultimately, a spot on the 1996 Olympic team.

"As I was watching that team get introduced, I just got this strong burning desire. I knew those people, they weren't different than me. Even though the people on that team were friends of mine and I was happy for them, I was really bothered that I wasn't with them. I felt like I belonged there."

Canton duo are top bass fishers

BILL PARKER

Not even the scorching heat Saturday could deter some 96 bass anglers from competing in the inaugural Tournament for Toys on Cass Lake. Sponsored by the Oakland Bass Masters of Michigan, the tournament raised $1,133 in cash to be used for the purchase of toys and an additional $65 worth of toys, all of which will be donated to the pediatric patients at William Beaumont Hospital.

With temperatures hovering around 101 degrees and a heat index closing in on 120 degrees, fishing success was limited as the bass headed for the deeper, cool water of the lake. Only 20 of the 48 registered teams brought fish to the scale.

"It was a tough day," admitted tournament director Roy Randolph. "Temperatures in the low 100's really didn't help us at all. Twenty boats brought fish in to the weigh-in, but there were several others that had one or two fish, but knew they wouldn't place in the money, so they let them go rather than stress them out."

The winner is

Canton's Mary Ashteneau and her grandson Mike Lewis won the tournament with five fish weighing 8.19 pounds. Fishing the weedbeds in the main lake, the pair achieved their success with soft plastic and Ping-A-T lures. They pocketed $1,037.85 for their efforts.

Don and Larry Aubry won the Jan's Sport Shop Big Bass Award for bringing in a largemouth that tipped the scale at 3.85 pounds. They earned #$75 in cash and a $50 gift certificate to Jan's Sport Shop in Goodrich.

Second place and $589.05 went to Livonia's Mark Stackpoole and Eric Saerman (7.94 pounds). They were followed by Dallas and Dennis Maybee of Flint and Grand Blanc, respectively (6.77 pounds); Patricia Thompson and Billie Long of Westland (6.28 pounds); Jim and Laura Baker of Royal Oak (5.48 pounds); Ralph South of Belleville and Jack Edwards of Ferndale (5.33 pounds) and Darren Lear of Canton and Albert Dailey of Livonia (4.87 pounds).

Oakland Bass Masters will sponsor an open tournament on Sunday, july 29, on Orchard Lake. Entry fee is $75 per boat and the entry deadline is 10 p.m. Saturday, July 28th. Call (810) 542-5254 for more information.

Natural site completed

Ever wanted to just get away from suburbia for an hour or so. Well, now you can and you don't have to drive a hundred miles to do so.

Southfield Parks and Recreation is celebrating the completion of a 40-acre natural site at the eastern edge of the Southfield Civic Center. This wild area consists of signed woodland trails, meadows and marsh and is open to the public for exploration.

"We want people to be aware that Southfield offers a convenient opportunity to leave behind suburbia for a few minutes and experience southern Michigan the way it was more than a century ago," said Jef Farland, director of the Southfield Parks and Recreation Department. "We've improved a mile-and-a-half of trails through natural areas that can give people the serenity and beauty of a wilderness setting and encourage them to learn at the same time."

Dozens of native plant species were either donated by private citizens or transplanted to the area from other public lands.

Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

There are a pair of softball tournaments scheduled for this weekend at the Canton Softball Center, with openings remaining for teams.

Those senior bowlers just keep on rolling — and winning.

In the latest National Seniors Bowling Association competition, Scotty Laughland of Windsor won his fourth title by defeating Farmington Hills' Hall-of-Famer Fred Vitali, 217-211. En route to victory, Laughland also knocked off Tom Heenan of Farmington Hills, 242-211.

In the best match of the day, Vitali and Chuck Staples of Westland tied at 223 to force a ninth and 10th frame roll-off. That came down to the final ball, with Vitali squeaking by with a 60-59 score in the two extra frames.

Vitali then defeated Robert Chuba of Garden City. Laughland collected the $750 top prize while Vitali settled for runner-up and $375. All in all, not a bad day's work.

The upcoming schedule of tournaments: Aug. 12 at Rose Bowl in Roseville; Sept. 9 at Cherry Hill Lanes in Westland; Oct. 7 at Troy Lanes. For information on the NSBA, call (810) 626-8886 or (810) 358-3740.

Enough said about the seniors — how about the kids?

The ninth Michigan Masters Junior Bowling Association was held at the Monroe Sport Center June 23-25. Dan Ottman of Troy, the executive director and co-founder of MJBA, made his pledge for tougher championship conditions a reality: It took a 181 average to qualify for match play.

Now that Tamika Glenn of Farmington Hills has graduated to adult competition, there are no top competitors left from our O&E cities. We need some good youth bowlers to join this scholarship program and make headlines for our local cities. For information on MJMA, call (810) 689-8696.

To sanction or not to sanction?

That is the perennial question which seems to perplex many leagues. Sure, a league may bowl as an unsanctioned organization and still have a good time, but there are countless benefits to becoming affiliated for the few dollars involved.

First, supplies are given out at the three league officers' schools. Each sanctioned bowler is then registered with name and average in the annual yearbook. This is of some importance if a bowler intends to enter any kind of a tournament.

By joining, you become a member of the largest sports organization in the world (ABC/WIBC), with about 5 million members, an organization which will celebrate its 100th anniversary in September.

The rules: ABC gives each league captain a rulebook which can help settle any arguments which may (and usually do) occur. The local association checks all lane conditions regularly to see that they conform to ABC guidelines.

And sanctioned leagues receive a variety of awards, from rings for honor scores to patches for other achievements. City champions also receive jackets and/or trophies.

So the investment seems a worthwhile one.

Bowl One Lanes of Troy is hosting a Sam's Town Ladies Pro Tour Regional Tournament to coincide with Bowling Expo '95 Aug. 25-27. The event kicks off on Friday, Aug. 25 with the Pro-Am, open to both men and women.

There will be two squads (6:30 and 9:30 p.m.). The nine-pin "no-tap" competition carries an entry fee of $50 and a chance to bowl with three LPBT stars.

All entrants will receive a souvenir package and a chance at the $500 top prize. Admission to all events during the weekend is free. For more information, call (810) 588-4850.

Wes Blevins (Westland) also had a goal.

For the 'Dogs, Kris Cantu totaled two goals and three assists; Edward Kruschka (Livonia) had two goals and an assist; John Brodhun (Livonia) had a goal and two assists; Dan Sluca had three assists; and Jack McCoy (Livonia) had a goal.

Wildcats 5, Spartans 4:A late flurry in the third period got the Spartans close, but they never did catch the Wildcats Tuesday in a game played at Plymouth.

The Wildcats improved to 7-1.

Ron Pietila, Kevin Pietila and Mark Pietila each scored a goal and assisted on another for the Wildcats. Other goals were scored by Eric Frantti and Jake Wiegand (Plymouth).

The Spartans, who trailed 4-1 with less than 13 minutes remaining, put together a final rush, scoring three goals in the final 10 minutes — two by Vic DeCina (Canton). But Mark Pietila's goal with 4:11 left restored the Wildcats' lead to two (5-3) and made DeCina's final score inconsequential.

Brady Priest and Cory Almas also had goals for the Spartans. Mike Petit had two assists.

Falcons 10, Huskies 3:So far, no problem.

The Falcons have simply cruised through their competition in the MSHL thus far, winning every game without much of a challenge. Indeed, with the season more than half over, only the Falcons have not lost, with the Wildcats next with one loss — that coming against the Falcons by a four-goal margin.

Sunday's game against the Huskies was no different. The Falcons improved their record to 7-0 with the win at Plymouth Ice Arena, in a game in which they led from start to finish.

Darren Hands led the offensive assault for the Falcons, scoring four goals and assisting on another. Scott Hands added three goals and an assist.

Other major contributors: Dan Hunt (Livonia), a goal and three assists; Jesse Hubenschmidt and Jim Hubenschmidt (both from Redford), each with four assists; Robert Poupard, a goal and an assist; Paul Schloss (Livonia), three assists; and Mike Kneiding (Livonia), a goal.

Tony McGee scored one goal and assisted on another for the Huskies (2-5). Jason Weber (Livonia) and Brian Halas (Canton) also scored goals, with Dustin Sventy gathering two assists.

na, call her the fossil. She just laughs.

"I don't know what they think about me," she said. "I get mad at them sometimes when I see all the things that they should be doing. When I see them slacking off I tell them, 'Hey, you better do the right things now or you'll end up like me, still doing this at 26.'"

Truth is, they would love to end up like Taormina. In the last year alone she has shattered world records in five events in Master's competition: 1,500-meter freestyle, 400 free, 100 free, 200 free and 100 butterfly.

Greg Phill, who coached Taormina at Stevenson and welcomed the call to train her again last fall, just shakes his head in amazement.

"She is in the best shape of her life right now," he said. "And she is swimming the best times of her life. Does she have a realistic shot at making the Olympic team? Yes, I truly believe she does."

Taormina's target is a spot on the newly created 800-meter freestyle relay team. The U.S. Olympic team will carry six 200-freestylers for the event.

"There will be 20 to 25 swimmers with the physical capabilities to win one of those six spots," Taormina said. "And it will all come down to one day of competition (the Olympic Trials next March, ironically, back in Indy). Whoever is best on that day makes the team. So it's really a test of mental toughness."

Advantage Taormina. She's 26. She's already been through NCAA Nationals, U.S. Nationals and the Olympic Trials. Been there, done that, got the T-shirt.

"I have stood next to Janet Evans so many times now, it's not intimidating," Taormina said. "She is just a regular person, just like everybody else who is trying to make the team. They are beatable. I don't look at her or anybody else as an icon. They are all just swimmers, like me."

The road to Atlanta

Focus Atlanta. That's where the 1996 Summer Olympics will be held and that's where Taormina hopes the next eight months will take her.

"I don't know why this means so much to me," she said. "It's not like it's really important in the overall scope of things. But, I found myself giving up things and making sacrifices. I had a wonderful full-time job (customer quality rep for an auto industry firm) and I took a leave of absence to commit myself full time to training. I put my life on hold, sort of, so it must mean something."

It goes back to that night in Indy, no doubt. And it probably also has something to do with a lifetime of competing in a sport and trying to attain its ultimate goal.

She and Phill will leave July 29 to compete in the U.S. Swimming Nationals in Pasadena, Calif. The top performers will be placed on one of two U.S. National teams: One to compete at the Pan-Pacific Games in Atlanta (Aug. 9-13), another to compete at the World University Games in Japan (Aug. 23-27).

"I have already qualified for the Olympic Trials (March of 1996), so making those teams isn't do or die," Taormina said. "It just puts you in a little better position."

Actually, Taormina is in the best position of all. She can't lose.

"I am more relaxed and enjoying swimming more than I ever have in my life," she said. "I owe that to Greg. I know if it weren't for him, I wouldn't still be swimming. He's not looking for any glory for himself, he just wants what's best for me. In the past, with other coaches, I've had the pressure of trying to maintain the reputation of the team or the club. I never enjoyed that. With Greg, it's for the love of swimming. He always says, 'Smile before you swim.'"

An Olympic medal may be swimming's ultimate prize, but it's not the ultimate measure of success. That Sheila Taormina at age 26 can dive into a swimming pool with the same joy and enthusiasm she had at age 6, and continue to improve seemingly every day — that is the true measure of success.

Smile Sheila.

Sensible asset management a must for early retirees

BY GREGORY WRIGHT
SPECIAL WRITER

For a fortunate few early retirement is still a self-determined goal achieved through careful financial planning and wise investing.

In today's corporate cost-cutting environment, however, it's quite likely that your employer may take the initiative, extending an early retirement offer to you as part of an effort to trim overhead and increase profitability.

The increase in early retirement programs has caused the average retirement age to decline from 65 in 1970 to 61 today.

With today's longer life expectancy, your retirement years may account for up to one-third of your total lifespan.

Whether you choose early retirement on your own or accept a company offer, your top priority is to assess carefully your own financial needs and resources.

While some of your expenses will decline or disappear after you stop working, the rule of thumb says you will still need approximately 75 percent of your pre-retirement income to maintain your lifestyle. And don't forget that taxes and inflation will continue to take their bite.

Even if inflation stays around 4 percent, you'll need $1,480 in 10 years to match the purchasing power of $1,000 today.

An early retirement offer will require you to make many decisions sooner than you planned. To encourage people to accept this offer, most employers provide certain incentives that expire in 30 to 90 days.

As an extra inducement, companies with defined benefit pension plans may also add as many as five years to your current age and to your length of service for the benefit calculation, thereby increasing your income considerably.

Besides pension benefits, companies may offer a severance payment that can be based on length of service or a flat percentage of salary. While the extra cash may help you through the transition period, remember that it will probably be taxed as ordinary income.

Because of the legal issues involved, these offers can be complicated, so it's wise to seek help from your accountant or financial adviser who can help you with the various "what-if" scenarios.

You'll first need to weigh the value of the incentives against what you would get if you continued to work. Giving up a regular paycheck means you also give up the future salary increases that create larger pension benefits down the road.

You also forego the opportunity to accumulate assets in your company savings plan. But, you may prefer to take a sure thing now rather than face any uncertainty about your future or your company's future.

Most importantly, however, you need to be sure you'll have enough money to afford the lifestyle you choose after retirement, whether it be complete retirement, working part-time, or perhaps, beginning a new career or starting your own business.

Early retirement will also affect the amount you will ultimately receive from Social Security, which is based on your average earnings over 30-35 years of work.

And, while you may be able to begin collecting at age 62, you will have to sacrifice about 20 percent of what you would have received if you waited until 65. For help in estimating what your Social Security income will be, you can call (800) 772-1213. Some early retirement packages offer lump sum or monthly payments to help bridge that gap until Social Security begins.

The way your employer will handle your health insurance is another important factor to consider. The most generous plans continue subsidized major medical coverage until age 65 when you're eligible for Medicare, but with the continued escalation in health care costs, these benefits are becoming increasingly rare.

Some companies may keep you in their group plan but require that you assume more of the premium costs, which may amount to as much as $2,000 a year (but that's probably less than what you would pay for a new policy). Few employers continue coverage for dental and optical care.

If you decide to accept an early retirement offer, the next decision you have to make is what to do with your pension benefit. Before you make such a decision, you should seek the advice of a tax adviser who can help you with the finer details of the tax laws, and an investment executive who can help you develop an investment plan suitable to your retirement needs.

Self-serve premium fell 1.9 cents to $1.381, up 6.2 cents from a year ago.

Full-serve prices also fell this month. Regular unleaded averages $1.446 per gallon, down 1.7 cents from last month and 4.8 cents more than a year ago.

At Providence, we know that no two births are exactly alike. That's why we offer so many birthing options. In fact, we're known as "the baby hospital," and it's no wonder. We've delivered more than 200,000 babies through eight generations. And our obstetrical program is one of the largest and best in Michigan.

Choose from a wide range of birthing options at Providence. Our medical staff is committed to listening to and understanding women's needs and wants concerning childbirth. That's why we offer more family-centered birthing options than any other hospital. Giving birth in our Family Birthing Center, the only one of its kind in Michigan, is almost like having your baby at home. In our New Life Center at Providence in Southfield, 12 comfortable labor/delivery/recovery rooms are a direct response to women's requests for a more homelike atmosphere, backed by personal nursing care and all the high technology a major metropolitan hospital can offer. For those women who may require a cesarean delivery or other medical intervention, we also offer traditional birthing suites. Last year we opened an innovative, first-of-its-kind facility for low-risk mothers: the beautiful New Life Center at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, Novi, where women give birth and return home within 24 hours.

Prenatal and postnatal educational services. At Providence, we're committed to helping families feel capable, before and after birth. That's why we offer health education classes. Expectant mothers and their partners may take advantage of classes such as preparation for childbirth, childbirth refresher, cesarean birth, brothers and sisters, breastfeeding and infant CPR.

Schedule a Providence tour. If you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence and find out about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or call us at 1-800-968-5595 to schedule a tour. To schedule a tour of our Family Birthing Center, call (810) 424-3919. Our friendly and capable staff will be happy to answer your questions.

When it comes to small packages, we deliver.

Our maternal-fetal specialists and facilities provide women with high-risk pregnancies the safest delivery possible. And it's comforting to know that should the need arise, Providence has a level III regional neonatal ICU for ill or premature newborns.

Providence is proud of its staff members who provide care in obstetrics and gynecology to women in the metro Detroit area.

Aces with vases

Flower power: As floral gardens come alive with a celebration of color and scents, you can enjoy these outdoor delights indoors with a collection of vases that look just as striking without flowers. The vases, by Blenko, are available in a variety of colors, shapes and sizes. Samples shown here are a clear vase with royal blue coil, perfect for a single blossom; a tall, wide-mouth violet vase with amber base, for a bunch of flowers; and a cobalt, free-form vase to highlight any arrangement. Available at Wells Freight & Cargo, 820 S. Woodward, Birmingham. Call (810) 642-4642.

Water watch

Plant sitter: Whether you're accommodating local watering restrictions or simply going on vacation, Soil Moist will act as your full-time plant sitter. It is made of a special polymer that, when placed in the soil and soaked, absorbs the water that would normally flow through the dirt. As the potting system dries, the polymer time-releases its water reservoir, penetrating deep at the plant root and moisturizing the soil. Soil Moist Plus time-releases fertilizer as well as water. Available at English Gardens, 6370 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

NAOMI STONE LEVY

The distasteful subject of remuneration demands attention. One is perfectly willing to pay a fee to an attorney or to a physician or an architect. What is different about an interior designer, who has trained for this work by virtue of a degree from a university or a certified design school? A prodigious amount of study has prepared them for their career, and your job.

In my own opinion there is that oft-heard phrase, "I can get that for you at 10 percent above cost," and a gullible client only thinks, "Oh, good, why should I pay more?" They lose track of the lack of knowledge, or the lack of taste of the offender. Worse than that is the lack of integrity of the 10 percenter, who adds, "I think I have good taste, why pay any additional?" Sadly, they don't know what they don't know. How unfortunate for you. Keep in mind my repetitious phrase KNOWLEDGE and SKILL, and to which you must now add INTEGRITY.

There are many other ways to be compensated besides a fee. Some designers choose to work in the same manner as a shop would, the difference between wholesale and retail on all furnishings. As an example, a table on the showroom floor of a local store could cost them $100 and the price tag reads $195. The difference of $95 is their profit. However they incur many, many expenses, such as rent, lighting, heat, salesperson's commission, and on and on.

Many others charge a flat percentage over cost, plus out-of-pocket expenses. Still others are paid by the foregoing. You must conclude these factors before proceeding. You are entitled to investigate their financial reputation as well. Sadly, I have known clients to be defrauded of deposits, which are essential to conducting business. There must be an understanding between you that there cannot be cancellations after an order is placed and signed for.

If there are drawings involved, or other architectural plans submitted, of course there are pre-explained charges. A preponderance of my design work is custom, planned and executed exclusively for this client, and thus there is nothing to compare it to in price. (Remember integrity?) I assure you it is "less expensive, more exclusive and much more exciting."

On occasion the client would like a rendering, a perspective illustration in color. This should eliminate any of their mental reservations. I attach actual clippings of the fabrics to be used to the board. The client without imagination thus knows exactly what is forthcoming. This is helpful on extensive jobs, especially commercial, when many of the upper echelon of the staff should be apprised of and included in decisions.

I trust that you are more cognizant of what is involved in the interchange between client and designer. You are embarking on many hours of pleasure while assembling all the wondrous componenta, and the joy of living in the fabulous interior you have created. It is a reflection of your personality!

Naomi Stone Levy, a Franklin resident, is an interior designer and a former secretary of the American Society of Interior Designers. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1897. Her fax number is (810) 644-1314.

Use common sense when traveling with pets

Planning a vacation can be stressful for a family, particularly when deciding whether to include the family pet on the trip. The Pet Practice, a leading network of veterinary hospitals, advises travelers to think things through before taking a pet on a vacation, to ensure stress-free travel.

Pet owners must decide if their pet is suitable for travel, and then abide by safety guidelines before and during travel. The pet's size, age, capabilities and temperament are factors to consider. The type of vacation and setting should also be reviewed for appropriateness.

"For example, a Labrador would be fun to hike with, whereas a poodle would not be," said Ken Genova, Michigan area vice president for The Pet Practice. "A vacation that is spent primarily indoors would not be right for an outdoor dog."

Genova advises using common sense when deciding if your pet's lifestyle is appropriate for the vacation.

Pet owners need to ensure their pets remain safe when traveling. The Pet Practice suggests adhering to the following guidelines:

■ If the trip involves air travel, check regulations. Different airlines have restrictions that should be investigated well before the trip. Reservations also need to be made in advance. Opt for a non-stop flight, if possible.

■ Road trips shouldn't be completely new to a pet. The animal should be conditioned to the car. Drive around the neighborhood so your pet becomes comfortable when it comes time for the trip.

■ Travel carriers should be used for road travel, besides air travel. The National Highway Safety Commission recommends anchoring pet carriers within the vehicle seat belt. Bring the carrier into the house and let the animal get acquainted with it. Throw the pet's favorite toy inside and let it retrieve it. If the pet is comfortable with the carrier, it can represent comfort and security.

■ While traveling in a car, allow the pet to be unleashed. Leashes can get caught around the pet's neck and may cause strangulation. Never allow pets to hang their heads out of a window.

"If the pet's head can fit through the space, then the whole body can squeeze through as well," Genova said.

■ Make sure pets are securely leashed before exiting a car. Pet owners should make sure that their pets are secured before opening a car door where pets could dash out onto a busy street. Also, never leave a pet in a hot car, even when the window is open for ventilation. Heat stroke can occur in a mater of minutes.

■ Make sure pets have proper identification. Pets should have proper identification on their collar so that ownership information is available if the pet gets lost. The tag should include the owner's name, address and telephone number. A current rabies tag with the pet's veterinarian's address on it is also beneficial. Pets should be examined for updated vaccinations before a trip, as well. Several states and countries have pet entry regulations that require proof of up-to-date vaccinations.

■ Pet owners must decide if their pet is suitable for travel, and then abide by safety guidelines before and during travel. The pet's size, age, capabilities and temperament are factors to consider. The type of vacation and setting should also be reviewed for appropriateness.

■ Prepare for pet motion sickness. The Pet Practice advises pet owners to avoid feeding their pets less than six hours prior to trip departure to help prevent motion sickness. Unless there is a medical reason, don't give pets water for at least one hour before leaving.

"Most cats appreciate a snack and water by the fifth hour of driving, but dogs can wait until the day's end, as long as they are provided with about one cup of water every hour."

Pet owners should limit daily travel to eight hours with their pets. Dogs should be walked every two hours when traveling and cats can usually handle up to six hours without a bathroom break, although The Pet Practice advises keeping a litter box in the travel carrier, just in case.

■ Organize a travel medicine kit for pets. Pet medicine kits should include any medications that the pet is currently taking (along with the written prescription, in case of loss), and for treatments of motion sickness and diarrhea. As always, The Pet Practice suggests asking a veterinarian for recommended brands and appropriate dosages for medications.

■ Comforting words and affection help calm a traveling pet's nerves. The Pet Practice recommends comforting pets with affection and assurance when they appear nervous. Tranquilizers are discouraged, as they can leave pets confused.

Canada geese can become a nuisance

I live near a pond and find the Canada geese congregating in my yard and becoming a nuisance. How can I keep them off my property?

Throughout the metro Detroit area, the giant Canada geese are common especially around golf courses and lakefront communities. Although many people find them beautiful and enjoy their presence, they can become bothersome when they congregate on your property. The most basic way to discourage them is to not feed the geese. If this fails there are several ways to deter them:

1. Because they are grass eaters and prefer short-clipped, fertilized grass, let the grass near the water's edge grow up to 10 inches high to provide rough cover, which the birds don't like.

2. Place perimeter fencing about two feet high along the water's edge or use panels in beach areas.

3. Allow the geese to occupy space that you don't care about, thereby keeping them out of other areas.

4. Apply ReJex-it, a grape extract whose taste repels birds, to the grass. ReJex-it isn't available in stores, but can be ordered by calling (800) HAD-BIRD.

If all else fails, contact a professional agency.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

A clothes washer tells about a life of abuse

JOE GAGNON

I was born around 1900 in an area surrounded by creeks and scrub boards that people sometimes used as a musical instrument. I was made of aluminum or tin and usually round in construction with a handle on both sides. Homeowners used to boil water and dump it into me along with shavings from a big bar of soap.

Clothes would soak for a while and then the scrub board placed inside. A lot of energy was exerted by the person in charge and by those who took the clothes down to the creek for rinsing. That was the beginning of my life as a washing machine, and now, 95 years later, I am still being abused by the homeowner. Oh no, they don't kick me around anymore, or use me to bathe the kids. They just take all of the energy they used to consume and deposit it on my shoulders and expect me to do the job for the next 20 years without dying of total exhaustion. The extent of a consumers fatigue today when doing the laundry is carrying the laundry basket.

I remember in the mid '20s when they put a lid on me and an agitator in the center of my tub and added these two rollers which would turn with the use of a crank. They put a small gasoline engine underneath me which would turn the agitator. The appliance sales person would drive out to local farms with me on the back of a Ford model A pickup truck. While the farmer's wife was doing her laundry just outside the rear door on the lawn, the sales person would kick start the gasoline engine and begin to do her laundry for her. I remember in most cases that I would be unloaded right then and there and placed on a solid floor in the back shed.

I would lead a life of tender love and care for many years to come. Those were good years because that woman sometimes loved me more then she did her own children. That was evidenced by the fact that once in while some little one got their arm stuck in my rollers. It would only happen once to a child and some of them still bear the scars today. Just to show you how much a woman really appreciated me and the new method of washing clothes, they sometimes fell in love with the appliance salesman who demonstrated the machine. I wonder if that still happens today?

With the passing of time, everyone had a wringer washer and people were just starting to get spoiled when they turned me into an automatic machine. Then people really went off the deep end and I've been suffering ever since. They buy a car and put 80,000 on it and drive it nice and easy so it will last longer. Not me though, they put 40 pounds of clothes in me when I should only have 18 and they expect me to do the job. Half the people who use me walk around with itches, sneezing and allergies created by improper rinsing of their clothes. If they only knew that the less clothes and the more water you have in me, the better job I can do. The end result of their abuse is that some guy with dirty fingernails begins to take my insides apart. They pay in the end though, especially if they don't do any research on which doctor they call.

Some of the bad ones out there have been known to really gouge them.

To sum up my point here let me say that I want to live to be 20 years old and I just can't because of the way people are treating me these days. There are millions of five-year-old washing machines thrown into the scrap yards every year. This has to stop, when will people start treating me gently? If God had created me and wanted me to last 20 years and wanted consumers to know how to treat me and get their clothes washed properly he would have incorporated this following list of instructions into a short alphabet for learning in preschool.

rated this following list of instructions into a short alphabet for learning in preschool.

A. Always put in less clothes than even recommended by the manufacturer. The more water you have in the tub gives you a greater wash and rinse action. The difference is night and day.

B. Rinse me out with near boiling water and 2 gallons of white vinegar twice a year. Turn the hot water tank all the way up, even boil some water and add it to the full level in my tub. Agitate me for 10 minutes and let me sit still overnight. The next day turn me on and let me go through a cycle. The scale build of water minerals between my two tubs which can be as thick as an inch will boom boom boom, right down the drain.

C. You can't wash dirty clothes in the warm setting. I need 140 degree temperature water to do the job. If your water heater is not set to deliver that, then forget it and wear your dirty clothes. Don't expect me to do the job if you can't deliver hot water, 140 percent.

D. Warm water settings do OK for sslightly dirty clothes, but only when you have the fill hoses adjusted to deliver exactly 100 degree water. In the winter and summer, you must adjust the fill hose valves because in winter the cold water is much colder than summer.

E. Cold water wash doesn't wash worth prunes. I don't care what the soap producers say. Ever wash your hands in cold water? Doesn't make much sense, does it?

F. Bleach — don't use it until the last 4 minutes of the wash cycle. Why? because the minute bleach contacts your soap it kills the brightening agents in the soap. Let your soap do its work first and then add the bleach.

G. Stop trying to be so cheap with your water bill and start treating me with respect. You save $20 a year in water usage and you end up spending $500 for a new washer in five years time. Learn to love me and I'll do a terrific job for you. In a future column I'll tell you about the girl I married in the '40s. She goes by the name Dryer.

LET'S REMODEL

Beware, change orders could prove costly

This column is prepared by the Michigan Remodeling Association.

NARI
MICHIGAN REMODELING ASSOCIATION

Q: I am currently building a large addition on the back of my house. My husband and I are thinking of making a few changes to the blue prints, but we have already started construction. Our remodeling contractor says that he does not like to write change orders, and they will cost me. What is the proper way to handle the change orders?

A: First of all, it is important to understand what change orders are. Despite hard work between homeowner and contractor to finalize all details prior to the start of a job changes are likely. It is always important to ask a contractor for his policy on change orders in writing before starting the job. Many reputable contractors have their own preprinted change order forms. Other important questions to ask include: Is there a charge for a change order? Does every change need to be on a change order and is there a limit to the number of changes? How is payment handled? Change orders interrupt the rhythm of the project and can slow down construction dramatically due to the intricate scheduling of the subcontractors and the stages of the work to be done. Change orders should be numbered one, two, etc. and dated. The form should document specifically what the change is and the cost. It is also good to have each change order total what the resulting contract total is. There are instances where after several changes, the homeowner has lost track of what the final bill will be. It is important to have a well thought out plan before you start the construction process. Your ability to communicate to your remodeler from the beginning will save you a big headache, lots of time and plenty of money.

Q: What is the difference between standard size and high-efficiency gutters and downspouts?

A:When replacing gutters, most homes only require a standard size. This is normally a 5-inch gutter with 2- by 3-inch downspouts. "High efficiency" or larger gutters are recommended in areas where there are many trees because leaves can clog the gutters. These high-efficiency units are normally 6-inch gutters and 3- by 4-inch downspouts. The larger size also is less likely to be bent out of alignment by freezing ice and snow.

If there is a long stretch or run of gutter with room for enough standard-size downspouts, larger downspouts may be used to handle the water flow. These larger downspouts are also useful when one run of gutter empties into another run and they share a single downspout. High-efficiency gutters and downspouts cost more than the standard size. You should discuss with your contractor the best combination of sizes for your home. New gutters should control the water flow correctly by using the proper combinations of sizes. Understanding which size is best for which area of your home will help you get the most value for your money.

IT'S A CLASSIC

Beethoven's 5th burns with passion, ideas

HUGH GALLAGHER

The first four notes of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony are perhaps the best known opening in all of music. The notes form a major theme that runs through the great work, rising and falling, receding and then returning in triumph.

During World War II it was noted by some quick ear that the notes were analogous to the Morse code for the letter V — three dots and a dash. This coincidence combined with the symphonies stirring dynamics and Beethoven's lifelong passion for liberty turned the Fifth into the Allies' Victory Symphony.

On Friday, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will perform "Beethoven's Big Five's" at the Meadow Brook Music Festival beginning at 8 p.m. In addition to the Fifth Symphony, the Orchestra will perform the Egmont Overture and Piano Concerto No. 5, called "The Emperor." Pianist Stephen Prutsman will be the guest artist for the concerto.

The Fifth Symphony, composed in 1808, has been recorded more than any other symphonic work. It is known even to those who don't listen to classical music. It is abused for advertising purposes and "sampled" in film scores. But its stirring themes still drive the imagination.

Two DSO members offer different perspectives on the Symphony's importance. Paul Ganson, a bassoonist from Dearborn, emphasizes the universality of Beethoven's passion, while violinist Derek Francis of Grosse Pointe discusses the technical advances that this work continued.

"I think it was one of the earliest, and people will differ on this, symphonies that made such a bold thematic statement," said Ganson.

Ganson said Beethoven wrestled with the music, developing something intensely personal.

"It was intensely personal, intensely Beethoven but touching a chord in each listener which is the reason it has survived so long and so strongly," he said.

Francis noted that Beethoven's music had already made major advances in form with his Third or "Eroica" Symphony, which was notable for its length and complexity. But the Fifth continued this musical version of pushing the envelope.

"From a musical point of view there are significant things. It was the first time trombones were used in a symphony. Mozart had used them in his operas and shorter pieces but this was the first time in a symphony," Francis said.

Beethoven also experimented by using piccolos and double bassoons and giving the double basses equal footing with the violins in one section. Beethoven also used unusual key changes moving from C minor to C major in the finale.

"The first movement is dramatic, relentless. That was a hallmark of Beethoven, Mozart didn't write that way," Francis said.

Ganson recalled a scene in the novel "Howard's End" in which the characters discuss the meaning of the Fifth without ever being able to put it in words.

"Trying to be too verbal doesn't do justice to the Fifth Symphony. We become too distanced from it," Ganson said. "What the Fifth meant to Beethoven we can hear in the music. There was a fire burning in Beethoven and he nurtured that flame. When we hear it, we nurture the flame. When symphony members play it, they nurture the flame."

The symphony is not particularly challenging, according to Francis. He said the Ninth or Choral Symphony is a greater challenge.

"I don't think the challenge is technical so much as the character that the conductor gives it," Francis said.

Ganson said that working with DSO music director Neeme Jarvi on this work has been a wonderful experience, finding a fresh approach to a very familiar composition.

"Quite honestly, when it becomes routine, we no longer deserve to be in the performing arts," Ganson said.

The Piano Concerto No. 5 is another example of Beethoven's innovation and passion.

"It's a majestic piece," Francis said. "The Emperor is a large scale piece. The piano has a cadenza at the beginning. Beethoven was always trying new things. He was always expanding things, pushing things in all directions."

Ganson said it was a fitting tribute to Beethoven that his symphony was appropriated by the Allies in their war against his native Germany and in the name of the freedom that he raged for all his life.

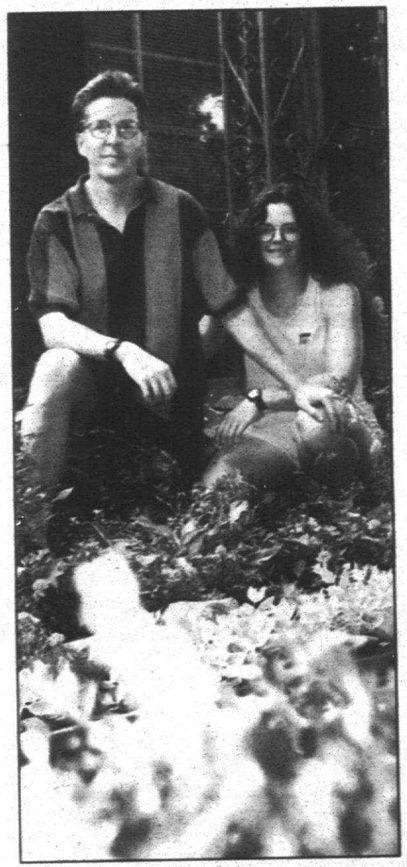
LAWN GONE...

Artists replace sod with garden of delight

Story by Special Writer Linda Chomin
Photos by Guy Warren, Staff Photographer



Neighbors shook their heads as Marian Mudie and James Pujdowski ripped up the front lawn of their Redford Township home. Many asked, now what? Quite frankly, Mudie and Pujdowski were unsure but little by little began replacing the lawn with rocks and patches of perennials. Since both are artists, creative problem solving came easy. The husband and wife team tucked irises and other plants into raised beds, the largest of which is 40 by 20 feet.

Pujdowski and Mudie didn't tear up the lawn because of the latest trend on the West Coast to trade sod for wildflowers. Tired of the roots eating lawnmower blades and their parents tripping over the monstrous roots of this stately maple, one weekend the duo took axes to the roots only to find the tangled system grew down more than 18 inches into the earth. That's when they called in professionals. Several hours and $100 later a clean canvas awaited. Railroad ties contributed by his mother, and bricks recycled from her father became the foundation for a garden of delight.

"We started putting in the path then decided we're going to have a rock garden. We brought the rocks back from Marian's parent's cottage in White Rock and each one represents a journey," said Pujdowski, an art teacher at University Liggett School in Grosse Pointe Woods.

But first they had to do something about all the grubs left behind. They decided not to use Diazinon because of Bantu, their Basenji hound. Instead, Pujdowski used a recipe from one of master gardener Jerry Baker's books to make a mixture of tobacco juice, dishwashing soap and Listerine. Once the bugs were gone, Pujdowski layered sand, pea gravel and slag for the path before installing the brick in a half-basket pattern. Then Pujdowski laid the cedar framework for the large rectangular raised beds before shoveling in 1/4 cubic yards of topsoil.

Brown-eyed susans and marigolds in scattered plantings paint bursts of yellow throughout the main bed. Pujdowski's sister donated three yuccas that became the focal point. Their bell-shaped white flowers tower over the rest of the garden in mid-July. Grape ivy provides a glossy dark green ground cover. Rug junipers bought at the end of the season and several variations of hosta and sedum add to the sea of green. Red salvias, impatiens and ivy leaf geranium play against the green to create a Fauve-like painting.

"We always plant a few annuals for color. We used a lot of red this year to punch up the color," said Mudie, a construction worker and electrician's apprentice.

"We're trying to tier it as far as the heights of plants. As things die or have to be moved, we change things. It's trial and error."

"We call it a work in progress," Pujdowski said.

Rocks of lava, granite and quartz produce a backdrop of colors ranging from pink to black. Most recently Mudie built beds around the huge old maple that stands between the sidewalk and street. A family of squirrels living up in the tree loves the new habitat as do Pujdowski and Mudie, who spend many evenings sitting on the front porch. Maintenance is minimal since few if any weeds are able to penetrate the thick cover of plantings. Pujdowski uses Baker's special recipe annually to rid the garden of destructive insects like earwigs that like to eat the hosta.

"I'm not really a green thumb," Mudie said. "If people really want to try what we did but can't afford it they should look to family and friends for plants."

HOME ELECTRONICS

When power stops — you need a generator

BARRY JENSEN

■ Before you buy a generator, decide how long a power outage you want to prepare for. The longer the outage you want to be protected from, the bigger the generator will be and the more expensive it will be.

The essence of electronics is electrical power, either alternating current from the wall or direct current from a battery.

But what if the electricity stops? This can be especially tough if you run a home-based business.

The most reasonable solution to a temporary loss of power is a gasoline-powered generator.

Few people buy a generator large enough to replace all the power that is no longer coming from the wall — such generators cost too much for the average homeowner.

But if you run a business from your home that must have power available at all times, you probably can write off part of the cost of a gasoline-powered generator.

Before you buy a generator, decide how long a power outage you want to prepare for. The longer the outage you want to be protected from, the bigger the generator will be and the more expensive it will be.

Three days is a reasonable number. If the outage were going to be longer, you would have time to move yourself and your home business.

Once you have decided how long, how much power you will need?

A home freezer will keep food frozen for three days if you don't open it.

But a refrigerator will not keep foods cold for three days, especially if you open it.

Some changes in your way of life can accommodate a temporary lack of power: You could heat water over a flame to make instant coffee. A towel could replace a 1,200-watt hairdryer. Paper plates and plastic knives and forks can make running a dishwasher unnecessary for several days.

If you own a battery-powered radio or battery-powered television, you don't need to generate power for them.

You likely will want enough gasoline-generated power to replace:

Sump pump
Garage door opener
A couple of lamps
Portable fans
Portable telephone
Answering machine
Refrigerator (run at night)
A security system
Electric blanket
Computer (home business)
Printer (home business)
Fax (home business)

To find out how large a generator you need, add up the watts needed by each item you want to provide for. The wattage is listed on the back of most appliances.

When you have totaled up the number of watts, add 10 percent to take care of start-up of the mechanical motors, such as the one on the refrigerator. This is the number of watts you need to replace.

Once you have decided on the size of the generator you want, you'll have to look at the amount of gasoline it would use over, say, three days.

Store the gasoline outside, NOT inside, the house. Unless you regularly use this gasoline, you will need to add preservatives to it to prevent the formation of lacquers.

Barry Jensen welcomes your comments and suggestions for topics for future columns. His telephone number is 313-953-2125. This number has voice mail attached, so you can call at any time.

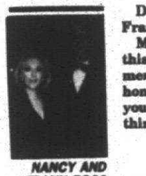
TREASURE SEARCH

This chair has a special place in history



NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear Nancy and Frank:

My parents gave this chair to me. I remember it in our home as a child. Can you tell me something about it?

Carol, Troy

Dear Carol:

What you have is called a "corner" or "roundabout" chair, which is a chair with a square seat, four legs and a back extending around two adjacent sides of the chair. The form first appeared in England and then made its appearance in Colonial America around the end of the 17th century. It is also referred to as an "easy" chair because it became the first form of chair in America affording some ease and comfort, other than the wing chair.

The wing chair, very comfortable, was relegated to the bedroom hearth or used for the comfort of the aged or infirmed only. The form-fitting, rounded back of this corner chair type provided support and comfort and started the change in the prevalent American attitude that one shouldn't be relaxed while seated.

The resulting wider portion of the seat very nicely accommodated the larger and more elaborate ladies' skirts of the day, especially the hoop skirts of the 18th century. However, it also presented problems in that the form of the seat, extending between the legs, necessitated a less than graceful and somewhat more masculine posture while seated. Thankfully, skirts were long.

In the early 18th century this form of chair began to make its appearance as a bedroom commode chair. The seat would lift and there would be glides and a cutout board to accommodate a wastebowl. If your chair were designated to serve as a commode, it would have a much deeper skirt (the skirt or apron being the wood banding immediately below the seat and above the legs) in order to completely hide the commode bowl from a viewer. The commode chairs aren't considered the most desirable as the deep skirt creates an ungainly and out of proportion appearance.

The most desirable corner chairs have nicely carved backsplats and four matching legs, second best have three matching legs in front and one different in back, and so on down the line. Your chair, which is higher style because of the nice carvings, if period (of the time) could range between $6,000 and $8,000 at retail, and up to $60,000 if the provenance or history is important. It would be nice to "chair a meeting" in this one.

Nancy and Frank Boos are with the Frank H. Boos Gallery, an appraisal firm and auction house at 420 Enterprise Court in Bloomfield Hills that has been in the auction business for more than 30 years. Do you have an item you would like to know about? Send in a good photo of it, along with its description (including size, working parts, etc.) and any known provenance (history) to Treasure Search, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. GARDEN SPOT

We have high hopes for sunflower contest

MARTY FIGLEY

I hope you are planning to enter our second High Hopes sunflower contest this year. The prizes are bigger than ever and the following businesses have been VERY GENEROUS with donations: Goldner Walsh Nursery Inc. of Pontiac, Bordines Better Blooms of Rochester and Clarkston, Telly's Greenhouse and Garden Center of Troy, and English Gardens of West Bloomfield.

Here are some growing tips that our last year's winners shared: The plants need to be watered regularly; Stern's Miracle-Gro and Rapid Grow, and other fertilizers, composted grass and leaves and manure ensure they get their "vitamins." We are looking for the tallest sunflower and the one with the largest seed head.

Sunflowers belong to the Compositae (Daisy) family; the genus name is Helianthus, which comes from two Greek words, helios ("sun") and anthos ("flower").

Sunflowers were planted in the 19th century by American settlers as protection against malaria and all parts of the plant were used for various purposes. For instance, leaves and stalks for fodder, fibers from the stalks to make cloth, leaves dried and smoked like tobacco. The seed husks were ground and made into a beverage and young sprouts and seeds were eaten, while the oil from the seeds was used to make soap and used in cooking. The ray flowers of the blossom produced a yellow dye.

Nearer to home, American Indians cultivated sunflowers along Lake Huron, and they ground seeds for flour and used the oil from the seeds for mixing paints, cooking and a hair dressing.

Sunflower sprouts

Speaking of sprouting, you might like to try your hand at this with black sunflower seeds and use the sprouts in salads. It is easy to do. You'll need a large-mouthed jar with a cover that has holes or a cheesecloth covering to keep the seeds from spilling out when you rinse the seeds. You can also use a bowl.

Put about an inch of seeds in the jar and rinse with cold water, drain, add lukewarm water to cover generously, and soak the seeds for 12 to 16 hours. The seeds will swell, so be sure to use enough water. Now drain and rinse with lukewarm water and drain again, thoroughly. Place the jar on its side to distribute the seeds evenly and set in a dark place at room temperature. Two to four times each day rinse the seeds and again drain them well. Be patient, it may take up to six days to see the sprouts!

HIGH HOPES CONTEST

We're looking for the tallest sunflower, and for the sunflower with the largest seed head, grown in the 1995 season through Sept 1. The sunflower's height is to be measured from the soil level to the base of the head where the stem attaches to the flower. The head is to be measured diagonally. If you're raising a super sunflower, let us know. Call 313-953-2047, Ext. 1859, or 810-901-2569; fax 810-644-1314; or write the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. ly fastened cheesecloth or black landscape fabric. The heads can be harvested when two-thirds of the seeds are mature. Covered seed heads are ready to harvest when the back of the head is brown and no traces of green remain. If you don't cover the head, a cloth on the ground will catch the seeds.

Cut the stalk, leaving a two-foot stem, and hang in a warm, ventilated place. When the backs are really brown and papery, brush the seed out with your hands or a stiff brush. Don't wash them — they may mold. Store the harvested seeds in the refrigerator in an air-tight container for several months; they can be roasted for a nutritious snack.

On the other hand, if you want the birds to have a treat, just leave the seedhead on the stalk and enjoy the show!

■ When birds start to visit your flower, cover the head by encasing it in securely fastened cheesecloth or black landscape fabric. The heads can be harvested when two-thirds of the seeds are mature.

The flower garden needs some cooling colors to thwart, at least psychologically, summer's heat.

The reds and yellows of spring and early summer were welcome after a winter of gray and brown, but it's time to calm things down.

Blue is cool, and the purer it is, the cooler it is. Not many flowers, though, have a color as pure blue as a bluebird or the sky on a crisp, cloudless morning.

Many bluish flowers — among them delphinium, cornflower, campanula and veronica — come close, but the red lurking in these blues heats them up a bit.

The ultimate in pure blue flowers is the blue poppy (Meconopsis). But this plant is not an easy one to grow.

The seed is very slow to germinate, and once up, the plants require cool, moist summers and mild winters — not the kind of weather found over most of the country. If you are up to the challenge, the 6-foot-high plants, capped with sky-blue, 3-inch flowers, would be well worth the effort.

Some of the purest blues also are found on gentians, specifically Gentiana anqustifolia, G. verna, G. septemfida and G. oregana. Like blue poppies, gentians generally are difficult to grow.

Besides the extra-special soil conditions demanded by some species (some like alkaline soil, others like acidic soil), virtually all resent blistery summer heat and require a soil with perfect drainage. Seeds are small and slow to germinate, and seedlings do not bloom until their third year.

But just imagine the feeling of accomplishment once you get one of these to flower after three years of nurturing it.

So much for the difficult blues. There is at least one blue flower that is not only fairly pure in color but also easy to grow morning glory, of course. Morning glory comes in colors other than blue, but the one to grow for blue is the appropriately named "Heavenly Blue."

One of the best places to plant morning glory is against an east wall. There, the flowers unfurl as soon as they are touched by the first rays of morning sun.

INVITING IDEAS

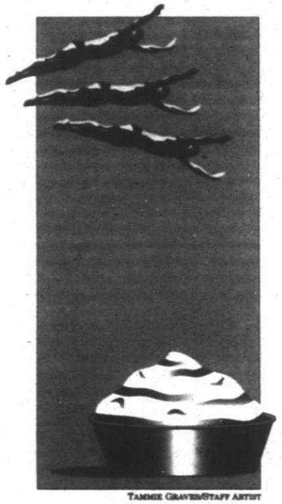
Take a tasty dip into these poolside treats

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

My new and gracious next-door neighbors sent us and other friends notification by mail: Pool 95-Friends Night — An open invitation on Wednesdays, Summer '95, 5-8 p.m. for pool time; grill space and ice available. Translation: BYOS (Bring Your Own Stuff).

These two angels are even taking CPR classes to ensure the safety of the children who may come to swim. What a neat idea, and how delightful for those of us without the luxury, or headache, of a built-in pool.

But how does one reciprocate to this generosity? How about offering some pool dips — some delicious pool side cuisine. Like, for starters, a Middle Eastern delight called Hummus, which you can find now in restaurants, grocery stores and specialty food shops.



TAMMIE GRAVER/STAFF ARTIST

HUMMUS

- 2 19-ounce cans garbanzo beans (chick peas), drained and rinsed
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled
- ½ cup Tahini sauce (sesame seed paste)
- Salt and cayenne pepper to taste
- ½ to ¾ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
- Olive oil (optional)

Place garbanzo beans and garlic in a food processor bowl fitted with steel blade. Process until well-chopped then add the Tahini sauce and process until smooth.

Add salt, cayenne pepper and lemon juice to taste then process until smooth and flavors are well-mixed. Remove from food processor bowl and garnish with parsley and drizzle with olive oil if so desired. Serve with wedges of pita bread (toasted or steamed).

Or serve up some Caviar Peppar Pies, which were the rage during the early 1980s. Give them a twist by using flavors of peppers from the Carolyn Collins collection.

CAVIAR PEPPAR PIE

- 6 hard boiled eggs coarsely chopped
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- ½ small onion chopped fine
- 1 4-oz. container Caviar Peppar
- 1 pint sour cream or Labne (Laban, heavy strained yogurt)

Mix chopped eggs, onion and mayo in a bowl. Spread the mixture evenly on the bottom of a 9-inch pie plate (ceramic if possible). Place Caviar Peppar over egg mixture. Cover the caviar with sour cream or Labne. Refrigerate for several hours until chilled and firm. Garnish with fresh cilantro and slices of jalapeno pepper. Serve with blue corn chips.

The Caviar Peppar is available from Carolyn Collins American/Freshwater Caviar, 925 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago 60607. Or call (312) 226-0342, or fax (312) 226-2114. Prices, excluding shipping and handling, range from $8 to $25.

If that doesn't work for you, try this one:

SMOKED TURKEY PATE

- 1½ tablespoons of butter or margarine
- ¾ cup chopped onion (Vidalia preferred)
- ½ pound low-fat smoked turkey, sliced thin
- 1½ cups low-fat or no-fat cottage cheese
- 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
- ½ tablespoon dried tarragon
- 1 package chicken broth or spoonful of chicken soup base
- White pepper

In a heated skillet over medium heat, saute the onion until golden brown (don't burn). Place smoked turkey slices, cottage cheese, vinegar, tarragon, chicken broth or base, and white pepper in a blender or a food processor fitted with steel blade. Process until smooth and ingredients are well-blended.

Place pate in a glass bowl or glass dish. Refrigerate for four hours or until firm. Garnish with dried Michigan cherries. Serve with water biscuits or with a crudite of fresh raw seasonal vegetables.

One last taste of east Mediterranean fare: Tzatziki. Traditionally made with yogurt, cucumber, garlic and salt, you can use the cucumber as an optional ingredient. Fresh chopped mint or dill can be added for a change in flavor.

TZATZIKI

- 1 large container of Labne (Laban, heavy strained yogurt)
- Minced garlic
- Salt

Mix yogurt, garlic and salt to taste. For this recipe, I use the garlic in a jar, the only time I buy prepared garlic. Add a heaping tablespoon of the minced garlic without draining it from the oil and a dash of salt. Mix thoroughly with a rubber spatula. Don't place it in a food processor or blender if you want to keep the consistency thick. If you prefer it thin, like a dressing or dip, use the processor.

Serve with crusty Greek bread or pita, or a crudite of raw seasonal vegetables.

Plain dishes made delectable by fresh herbs

A space of 35-square-feet is all that is needed to grow nine of the most commonly used herbs — parsley, basil, chives, sage, oregano, mint, thyme, dill and rosemary. The plants generally require little care once they are established.

AP — Fresh herbs can easily transform a plain dish into something delectable — and there is special satisfaction in growing your own.

Dried herbs are more concentrated in flavor, Neal Barrett wrote in an article in the current issue of Popular Mechanics, but fresh herbs make a lively and savory addition to any dish. The pungency of these herbs is even more intense when they are freshly picked from your own garden.

If space is limited, herbs can be grown in pots distributed around the yard or patio, or in window boxes on the sunny side of the house.

A space of 35-square-feet is all that is needed to grow nine of the most commonly used herbs — parsley, basil, chives, sage, oregano, mint, thyme, dill and rosemary.

The plants generally require little care once they are established — merely cutting off selected stems for cooking use is sufficient to keep them healthy and attractive.

The best spot for herbs is one that gets at least six hours of full sunlight each day, is sheltered from strong winds and has moderately good soil.

The primary requirement for the soil is good drainage. If your soil has a high clay content, add sand to help promote drainage. Herbs generally do not require extremely rich soil, but a moderate amount of organic matter dug into the soil will supply all the required nutrients for the plants.

Begin preparing the bed in autumn. If your garden is located where a lawn presently grows, the sod should be removed and the soil dug up with a shovel or pitchfork.

In the spring, wait until after the last frost to begin planting. The beginning gardener will find it easier to purchase seedlings, rather than start from seed.

Look for healthy plant stock — strong plants have rich, green foliage with no yellowing leaves. As a rule, it is better to use plants that have already been successfully transplanted into pots, rather than using plants that are still in starter flats.

Before planting, test the soil for proper drainage by spraying the bed with water. If the water pools and does not appear to drain well, add sand and compost, then turn the soil over, loosening the soil to a depth of 10-to-12 inches. Rake out the garden bed, removing any rocks or roots that come to the surface.

Space the plants with the mature size of each in mind. Planting too close will inhibit the growth of each plant and leave them competing for moisture, sunlight and nutrients.

With some herbs, it is useful to sink a large pot into the garden and plant the hurbs in the pot. Rosemary, for example, is a tender perennial that needs to come inside during harsh winter months. To reduce transplant shock, you can dig up the pot and bring it inside.

Mint also works well with this treatment. Members of the mint family are rather aggressive and will spread underground, taking over a garden if not controlled. By planting the herb in a sunken pot, the roots are limited and will not spread.

Once the plants are well established, you can begin to use leaves for cooking.

At the end of the growing season, annual plants can be pulled up by their roots and hung upside down to dry for winter use. Perennial herbs can be cut back almost to the ground and their leaves dried in the same manner.

Telephoto lenses reach out to new horizons

MONTE NAGLER

By definition, a telephoto lens is one whose focal length is greater than that of a normal lens. The longer the focal length of the lens, the greater the degree of magnification.

The magnification is mathematically related to focal length. For example, a 100mm lens produces an image exactly twice that of a normal lens. A 400mm lens gives you an image size eight times your normal lens.

As the lens lengthens, some interesting things happen. The lens' angle of view becomes narrower and depth-of-field becomes shallower. A narrow angle of view enables you to isolate a detail in a distant building or eliminate a cluttered foreground. A shallow depth-of-field is great for blurring distracting backgrounds so that attention is directed toward your subject such as an outdoor portrait.

By far, the most useful telephoto lenses are those with medium focal lengths — between 85mm and 200mm. Because they minimize facial distortion and allow a comfortable distance between photographer and subject, medium telephotos are ideally suited for portraits. In addition, they are perfect for many other situations in which you have to keep a moderate distance from your subject, such as candid street shots or animals at the zoo.

Telephoto lenses of 300mm or longer are usually for specialized demands and would be too powerful for ordinary usage. However, if you have a keen interest in wildlife photography or prefer huge suns in your sunset shots, then these and longer lenses may be for you. For the occasional "long reach," a teleextender combined with your telephoto will work just fine.

Remember, because the magnification of telephoto lenses accentuates the effect of camera movement, faster shutter speeds are required. To obtain a sharp picture, the rule of thumb is to use a shutter speed closest to the focal length of the lens. For a 135mm lens, handhold at no slower than 1/125 second. With a 200mm lens, you should be at 1/250 second. If slower shutter speeds are needed because of low light or small aperture requirements, better get out your tripod.

So "reach out" to new and exciting photographic horizons — with telephoto lenses!

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

You could say that, up until just a few weeks ago, Lathrup Village author, Thomas Sullivan ("The Phases of Harry Moon," "Born Burning"), was a hunted man.

A newly established, Hollywood-based film group called Vista Entertainment was seeking him out, in a true grit sort of way.

He was between agents at the time, and Vista couldn't get much help at his former publisher, E.P. Dutton, a route often followed in these matters. Due to a major shake-up there, most of the staff who had known and kept up with Sullivan in past years had gone on to other places of employment.

The telephone was a dead end as well. Vista had called just about every Thomas Sullivan in every Michigan directory, but with no luck. (Later, they would learn he was there all along, but, for reasons of privacy, under a fictitious name.)

Not to be discouraged easily, however, they kept collective noses to the ground, pursuing every lead. Unfortunately, over a period of about two years, every lead concluded in a very dead end. Maybe it was time, someone eventually suggested, to hire a private detective.

And then one day, a Vista rep. strolled into a small book- store somewhere in Manhattan, and struck up a conversation with the owner. Somehow, the conversation got around to Sullivan. As luck would have it, the owner of the bookstore happened to know Sullivan's former agent. The former agent knew Sullivan's whereabouts. One thing led to another, and you can guess the rest. What did Vista Entertainment want with one Thomas "Sully" Sullivan, novelist, short story writer, journalist, ex-teacher, former athlete, proud father, and self-proclaimed "child of the universe"?

They wanted to purchase film rights to his 1989 novel, 'Born Burning,' a unique tale of terror set in Michigan, with a small boy as its hero, and one of the darkest characters you could ever hope to meet as its villain.

With three years to find backing for the film, Vista looks forward to seeing "Born Burning" made into a major motion picture.

Sullivan thinks that might be very nice (and yes, he's even gone so far as to imagine maybe Jack Nicholson in the role of the villain), but right now, he's just getting his real kicks from the fact that Vista went to all the trouble, and finally "got their man." (Sullivan, by the way, was never avoiding discovery, but simply didn't know of the search until he came home on that fateful day to see the little red light blinking on his answering machine.)

The whole experience, he noted one recent afternoon over a quick lunch, has certainly injected some fun into a life that had contained some pretty heavy stuff in recent years, including a painful divorce, and a complicated custody suit for his son, Sean. With two new books pretty much completed, he now has his eye on a full-fledged re-emergence in his literary career, much of which was put on hold during the extended legal battles.

"I could spend the option money (from Vista) in one afternoon at Baskin-Robbins," he said, stressing candidly that Vista hasn't made him a millionaire overnight. "But if it gets made, the film would allow me to commit death by chocolate every afternoon for eternity.

"(If) it all turns into a pleasant but fading memory for me, I'll count myself out nothing. Tying up satellites with calls from the left and right coasts has been tremendously entertaining. The dream machine offers previews worth the price of admission."

Amid the telephone conversations studded with names like Spielberg, Paramount, and Disney, Vista heads Eileen Kimball (wife of noted cinematographer, Jeff Kimball), Tobey Belsky, and others have touched on the subject of Sullivan possibly writing the screenplay adaptation of his novel. Having relatively little experience in screenwriting, he said he doesn't to expect to ultimately be the person named to the job. He'd like to try it, though and, in fact, has already put together a "treatment" (as they say in Hollywood)! Just like in the movies, anything could happen.

Herbicides useful in controlling weeds

AP — Q: What is the best way to control weeds and lawn pests?

A: You can remove a few weeds by hand, but judicious use of herbicides is in order if there are lots of weeds. The leaf structure of the weed determines the type of herbicide you use. Broadleaf weeds, such as dandelions and blindweed, are treated with a broadleaf herbicide applied after the plant is up and growing.

Grasslike weeds, such as crabgrass, foxtail and goosegrass are best treated with a pre-emergent that is applied in the early spring, before the weeds have a chance to sprout. Grassy weeds can also be treated after sprouting with a liquid crabgrass killer — but only when the plants are very young.

When using a dry, or granular, broadleaf herbicide, wet the lawn before spreading. The herbicide will adhere to the leaves, and the plant will absorb it more readily. Allow several days before watering again. When applying a liquid herbicide, simply spray it on and then avoid watering it for several days.

Pre-emergent herbicides, by contrast, do their work below the surface. As such, you'll want to water the lawn immediately after treatment.

Not all damage is inflicted on turf grass by weather or careless cutting. Insects can damage turf grass, too. Treating insects varies from region to region, so we'll focus on the more common insects, such as the June bug.

It's common to find a few grubs while digging in your yard. Most cool-weather lawns have some. The experts say that less than 10 grubs per square foot is acceptable. More than that may do noticeable damage. Check for grubs by spading down and peeling back sections of lawn.

Grubs can only be killed when they are feeding heavily, and this occurs in mid-August. Don't apply today's short-lived pesticides earlier than August, because it is a waste and an unnecessary assault on other insects and birds.

A grub treatment should be watered-in well so that the pesticide can be carried several inches below the surface.

Q: My 20-year-old window-unit home air conditioner pooped out last fall, and I was told that it would not be economical to repair it. I was also told that the newer models require less power and so the reduced operating expenses would offset some of the high cost of replacement. What's the best way of picking the best replacement?

A: If you are shopping for a new air conditioner, jot down these facts: The size of the room to be air-conditioned, how many windows it has, if it's insulated and the available voltage (120 or 220 volts). Also, measure the exact size of the available window opening to be sure the new machine will fit in the window.

An air conditioner's Btu per hour rating tells you the amount of heat it can remove per hour. The larger the Btu rating, the more power it has. Remember, bigger isn't always better. Too much capacity forthe room will make it feel clammy and too little can't cool adequately.

An air conditioner also has an EER (Energy Efficient Ratio). This rates the amount of cooling it does in relation to the electricity it uses. The higher the EER, the greater the efficiency.

Buffalo grass needs little care

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Buffalo grass could be just the thing for those who want a lawn that requires minimum care, according to University of Nebraska-Lincoln researchers.

Although buffalo grass has a comparatively short green season it doesn't have to be mowed, fertilized or watered. It has become a major lawn grass in some southern cities, said Terry Riordan of UNL's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The university has been planting it around the Lincoln campus for 15 years or so, and city government and Lincoln Public Schools are testing some of the newer varieties.

One drawback is buffalo grass will not green up until around May 1, and it will turn dormant and brown around Sept. 15. However, during hot, dry spells it holds up better than fescue or bluegrass.

Riordan said buffalo grass is in short supply and also is more expensive that other varieties. Seed costs about $8 to $10 a pound compared with about 84 cents a pound for fescue seed, said Lincoln Public Schools' grounds superintendent Dan Wiltshire.

However, researchers said, buffalo grass will take hold with less seeding than some other grasses.

Lincoln city government and some golf courses also are giving buffalo grass a try. Lincoln city floriculturist Steve Nosal is using it on medians, finding it almost ideal since it requires little maintenance and has few weeds when fully established.

STUCK ON STAMPS

Stamps feature Pocahontas and friends

JOHN FOXWORTH

Pocahontas, the popular animated Indian beauty queen, and many of her friends now appear on postage stamps from the South American nation of Guyana. The world premiere of the classic Disney motion picture had just begun when Guyana released a sheetlet of eight stamps June 22. The film "Pocahontas" is now playing at about 21 local theaters.

The first stamp in the sheetlet depicts Pocahontas and her pet raccoon, Meeko. Next is Captain John Smith, a fearless English soldier whose attitudes toward the "savages" change after he meets Pocahontas. Chief Powhatan, father of Pocahontas and a wise and strong leader of his American Indian nation, appears on the third stamp. Next is Kocoum, at the upper right, a brave warrior ready to attack the settlers.

Governor John Ratcliffe and his pet dog, Percy, appear on the first stamp of the bottom row, followed by a stamp depicting Wiggins, his manservant. Nakoma, Pocahontas' best friend, and Thomas, a young, working class Englishman devoted to Smith, complete the sheetlet.

These stamps may be obtained from stamp dealers or by writing: Inter-Governmental Philatelic Corp., 460 W. 34th St., New York, N.Y. 10001, or by calling (212) 629-7979.

Free catalog

A full color, direct mail catalog offering new and recent U.S. stamps and envelopes to collectors is available free on request from the U.S. Postal Service.

Entitled "Stamps, etc.," the quarterly catalog shows and prices regular, commemorative and self-adhesive stamps in sheets, coils and booklet formats at face value. Books, first day covers, panels, posters and other collectable items are also available.

Request your free copy of the latest catalog by calling (800) STAMP24, Option 4; or by mailing your request, name, mailing address and ZIP code to: Philatelic Service Center, U.S. Postal Service, P.O. Box 419424, Kansas City, Mo. 64141-6424.

From Detroit

A slide film presentation entitled "Streets of Detroit" will be shown at the West Suburban Stamp Club meeting 8 p.m. Friday, July 21, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer, Plymouth. The annual program will present letters, cards and covers from Detroit's past and tell their story in their historical context. Ellen Howell, the club's Detroit historian, will also share her research during her popular program.

A mini stamp auction, door prizes and a room full of collectors will be on hand to welcome all visitors.

Here are ways to repair hardcover books

■ Ordinary white glue works well on a hardcover book's flexible joints and is good for most other repairs. You can also buy or make library paste for use on endpapers and cover.

(AP) — Don't throw away that favorite hardcover book just because it's damaged.

Depending on the problem, some easy-to-do repairs may restore the book to good condition.

Ordinary white glue works well on the book's flexible joints and is good for most other repairs. You can also buy or make library paste for use on endpapers and cover. To make paste, add 6 parts water to 1 part flour and heat to a boil, stirring constantly to eliminate lumps. Homemade paste is best used the same day.

You'll need a small brush to spread the glue. Depending on the repair, other tools that you may need are probably at hand. They include a knitting needle, table knife, clean cloth, waxed paper, onionskin paper, self-adhesive cloth tape and an elastic bandage.

To fix a wobbly cover, open the book and place it face down. Pull both covers straight out. Use a knitting needle to apply white glue along the joints inside the spine. Close the book and weight it. Allow it to dry for 24 hours.

If the part of the cover that goes over the binding has broken away, brush white glue along the spine's two long edges next to the front and back covers. Don't cover the entire spine. Align the loose cover flap with the edges and press it into place. Rub a flat instrument, such as a table knife, on the hinges to force out excess glue and use a dampened white cloth to wipe it away. Cover the spine with waxed paper and wrap an elastic bandage around the book. Let it dry for 24 hours.

To fix an endpaper cracked at the hinge, apply a thin bead of white glue and press it well into the crack. Cut a waxed paper strip a few inches longer than the book. Fold it lengthwise and position the fold over the glued area. (Excess glue will ooze onto the waxed paper, not the endpaper.) Close the book and weight it for 24 hours. Strip off the waxed paper. Then cut a piece of self-adhesive cloth tape (available in craft supply stores) just long enough to fit lengthwise and apply it over the hinge for added strength.

Mend a torn page by placing waxed paper under the page. Align the torn edges. Brush a thin bead of white glue on the tear. Cover it with onionskin paper, rub gently and weight the repaired section. When the glue is dry, peel off any excess paper.

To reattach a loose page, cut a narrow strip of paper the length of the book. Fold it lengthwise and brush white glue onto the back. Place one half on the loose page and the other half on the next page. Put waxed paper across the paper strip. Close the book and let the glue dry.

Here are other book-repair tips:

■ Dog-eared corners? Put a sheet of paper on top and press with a warm iron.

■ To avoid excess soiling, dust books with your vacuum dusting-brush attachment, a shaving brush or a soft paintbrush.

■ Clean stained leather bindings with saddle soap or neat's-foot oil. Apply sparingly and gently with your fingers or a piece of felt, cheesecloth or chamois. Wait several hours then repeat.

■ Run a dehumidifier in a damp room containing books. Wipe mold and mildew off the bindings and pages with a soft clean cloth. If the pages are moldy, wipe them with a white cloth dampened with alcohol, then fan out the pages to dry. Or sprinkle some cornstarch in the pages and brush it off after a few hours.

■ If water is spilled on a book's pages, put the book in your freezer to draw out moisture and loosen stuck pages.

Lawn watering ban still in effect through August

Detroit Water and Sewerage Department officials announced last week that the mandatory odd/even outdoor watering restriction for 123 communities, including all Observer areas, will remain in effect until Aug. 31.

Individuals with addresses ending in odd numbers should water outdoors only on days with odd numbers. Individuals having addresses ending in even numbers, should water outside only on even days.

Continued hot weather and below-average rainfall prompted the decision, which was made in order to avoid future water distribution problems, according to a DWSD press release.

The odd/even watering restriction has worked out well since it was put into effect June 19, said DWSD deputy director Kathleen Leavey. Wholesale customers of DWSD water asked that the restrictions remain in place as a preventive measure, DWSD said.

SC seeks speakers for groups

The Schoolcraft College Speakers Bureau is looking for individuals to share their expertise with area groups and organizations.

Presentations may be offered as a lecture, discussion, video, or slide format.

Speaking engagements are booked and performed free through the bureau.

However, many groups provide a meal or small stipend for services rendered by the speaker.

The bureau is a free service to the community.

For more information, call Sandy Gelman noon to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at (313) 462-4417.

Area host families sought for exchange teens in August

Nacel Cultural exchange seeks area host families for 48 teen-agers from Spain, Germany and France.

Ten girls and 38 boys will arrive July 31 and stay four weeks.

They all speak English, have spending money and carry accident and health insurance.

For more information, call Evelyn Prince at (810) 626-6641, or the main office at (800) 622-3553.

TOURBUS offers new Internet users guide to cyberspace

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

A year ago, several O&E Onliners subscribed to an E-mail correspondence workshop, known as Roadmap, on the Internet conducted by Patrick Crispen of the University of Alabama.

Now Crispen is offering another electronic workshop, only this time he has recruited some help from Dr. Bob Rankin, columnist for Boardwatch Magazine and author of "Accessing the Internet By E-mail," a classic on using E-mail for Gopher, FTP, Archie searches, Web access, etc. The joint workshop is known as TOURBUS.

"A ride on the TOURBUS promises to be a good time, with stops at dozens of 'must-see' Internet sites," said Crispen. "If you are new to the 'Net, you should consider the TOURBUS required riding. And even old-timers' will find this a valuable refresher course in what's hot, what's cool, and what's plain fun in cyberspace."

TOURBUS is a text-based tour of some of the coolest sites on the Internet with Crispen and Rankin as tour guides not only giving the specific site addresses but giving you an inside look at what makes each TOURBUS stop "cool." There will be several stops at FTP, Gopher and WWW sites but with Rankin as co-host you can be sure that each site also will be accessible via E-mail. Two lessons a week will arrive by E-mail, one by Crispen, the other by Rankin.

The first workshop was scheduled to begin July 20, with an anticipated 50,000 participants. I fully expect another tour will be offered so if you are interested subscribe to TOURBUS by sending an E-mail message to MAJORDOMO@COLOSSUS.NET and in the body of the message type "SUBSCRIBE TOURBUS." I suspect you will be placed on a waiting list. I would have let you know about this earlier but I didn't get word until July 2.

Yep goes online

My column on O&E Online users' home pages was too long for me to include mention of Len Roberts' webmanship which you can access at http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)lenr1.

Local users who spend any time in chat have likely talked to Len. He's a quiet person whose work is short and to the point. Many times his response is simply "yep." So Len has developed a reputation online for his "yep" response and decided to use that as a title for his home page, which is simply known as "Yep!" A neat way for Len to identify his page.

Len is an old DOS keyboard-klacker who avoided Windows, graphical interfaces and the mouse like the mumps. As a result Len, like many other O&E Onliners, relied on the text-only Lynx browser to access the World Wide Web. Len kept grumbling about the "image" messages that popped up whenever a home page had graphics. He really was very content pounding the keyboard and using DOS commands. But Len finally emerged from his comfort zone after hearing on-liners rave about SLIP, Mosaic, Netscape and the wonderful graphical impact of the World Wide Web.

So Len took the plunge and purchased a new IBM-compatible computer with a mouse and (gasp) Windows to replace his old 286. Len then signed up for a SLIP account and like almost everyone else struggled through the configuration blues. Finally, he got the configs all straightened out and became a full-time graphical surfer. I hadn't heard from Len for a while, just assumed he gave up on his config problems and returned to keyboard klacking. (Sorry, Len, for my lack of faith.) Well, out of the blue Len learns hypertext markup language (html), designs his own home page and joins the ranks of the local webmasters.

And what's interesting, to me and maybe you, is that Len self-taught on-line. "I never bought a book on the Internet. Everything I've learned about any of this has been online through my Observer & Eccentric account." That's a pretty good testimonial about how much you can learn online.

The page is really pretty good, too. Len built four pages, one where to you "learn" from the Internet, one to have a little "fun," one of sites with "useful" information, and one with the "latest" places to go. Amongst the site on his "learn" page is an art museum, astrology, comets, Digital Campus, FBI, html Writer, Ocean Planet, Smithsonian, South Pole, Virtual Library and Virtual Tourist. The "fun" page includes cathouse, country music, Dangerfield, Limbaugh, model railroads, Muds, Paramount Movies, random quote, UrouLette, Webaholics, and more. "Useful" contains links to browser help, careers, cooking, dogs, Farmer's Almanac, gardening, health, Michigan Magazine (loaded with Michigan links), U.S. Mail, Windows shareware, etc. The "latest" page includes Babes on the Web, Hubble, Mpeg Movies, Real Audio, Webmuseum Auditorium, and Windows 95.

My, my, Len, you sure have been a busy Webster lately. Hope you still keep in touch with your friends in chat. Nice job(s).

S'craft offers piano lessons for elementary youngsters

Schoolcraft College is accepting registrations for Project Piano for Youth, an 18-week piano preparatory program for the beginning, elementary school age (grades 1-4) student.

It offers a "group plus private" study format including weekly assignments, drills in rhythm and note recognition, fundamentals of music, and student performance on a regular basis.

A piano or keyboard is necessary for practice. Prospective new and transfer students must arrange an interview appointment with Linda Wotring at 313-261-0318.

Current semester orientation and registration are scheduled for noon Sept. 9 in Room 301 of Schoolcraft's Forum building. Six sections of project piano will be offered beginning Sept. 15 through 19. For information, call 313-462-4400, exts. 5218 or 5235.

Spiders featured in exhibit at Cranbrook through Sept. 24

"Spiders," an award-winning traveling exhibit, is at Cranbrook Institute of Science, Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills, through Sept. 24.

The exhibit, organized by the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History, explores spiders through hands-on activities, colorful displays, humorous videos and live specimens.

It was cited for excellence in two design competitions — by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Curator's Committee of the American Association of Museums.

The exhibit's specimens and displays give visitors a better understanding of basic spider biology and their role in the ecosystem. Four deadly spiders are represented: the brown recluse, black widow, Australian funnel-web spider and tropical wandering spider.

"Most people know very little about spiders, and they're not quite sure they want to know more," explains Dr. Dee Appleman, director of Cranbrook's Institute of Science.

Cranbrook Institute of Science is open Monday through Thursday from 10 to 5, Friday and Saturday from 10 to 10, and Sunday from 1-5. Admission is $5 for adults and $4 for children 3-17 and senior citizens 65 and older.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Area reps split along party lines on budget, spending bills

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending June

HOUSE

Balanced Budget: By a vote of 239 for and 194 against, the House passed a Republican-drafted blueprint (H Con Res 67) for balancing the budget by 2002. Specific bills now must be passed to make the plan stick, just as measures can be approved at any time to unravel it. The legislation allows up to $245 billion in personal and business tax cuts after Congress has passed the bills necessary to eliminate red ink. It curbs the growth of federal spending by $983 billion, including $270 billion from Medicare, $180 billion from Medicaid and $190 billion from discretionary spending other than defense.

A yes vote was to approve the GOP-authored budget. Area representatives voting yes were: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham. Voting no: Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield and Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor.

Roll Back: By a vote of 276 for and 151 against, the House sent the Senate a bill (HR 1944) that rolls back current fiscal year spending by $16.4 billion in programs from veterans' health care to national service. The bill waives certain rules to allow the logging of damaged timber in mainly Northwest forests. It increases spending for disaster relief and other programs by about $7 billion, for net savings of more than $9 billion. It was in line to become the first law of the new GOP Congress that significantly reduces spending, in contrast to the budget resolution (above) that only prescribes cuts.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Joseph Knollenberg. Voting no: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin and Lynn Rivers.

Veterans' Spending: Voting 192 for and 232 against, the House rejected a bid by Democrats to increase veterans' health care spending in HR 1944 (above) by $50 million and reduce spending for disaster relief by the same amount.

Supporter Chet Edwards, D-Tex., referred to House passage of a flag desecration constitutional amendment the day before, saying: "It's not enough to wrap yourself in the flag yesterday for our veterans and then turn your back on veterans tonight. It's time right now, right now to match our votes with our rhetoric."

Opponent Bob Livingston, R-La., said the proposed increases in veterans health spending "really are illusory. This money is not going to be used. It's for equipment and salary costs that that were not needed this year. You can talk about (veterans) but really, that's a non-issue."

A yes vote was to spend more for veterans and less for disaster relief. Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Levin and Rivers. Voting no: Knollenberg.

American Flag: By a vote of 312 for and 120 against, the House achieved the two-thirds majority needed to approve a constitutional amendment (HJ Res 79) allowing states to outlaw physical desecration of the American flag. If it clears the Senate, the 21-word measure will need ratification by three fourths of the states to become part of the Constitution. Recent Supreme Court decisions have struck down laws against flag desecration, holding the act to be protected speech.

Sponsor Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said: "What is at work here is something larger than the flag itself. It is a protest against the vulgarization, the trashing of our society. This amendment asserts that our flag is not just a piece of cloth but . . . represents certain unifying ideals most Americans hold sacred, ideals wonderfully expressed in the Declaration of Independence."

Opponent Anthony Beilenson, D-Calif., said the measure "would, for the first time in our nation's history, modify the Bill of Rights to limit the freedom of expression, and is thus wrong . . . as a matter of principle. This is unpopular expression, but it deserves protection no matter how much we may deplore it. That is the test of our commitment to freedom of expression . . ."

A yes vote approved the constitutional amendment. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee and Joseph Knollenberg. Voting no: Sander Levin and Lynn Rivers.

Defining Terms: By a vote of 63 for and 369 against, the House refused to establish uniform, nationwide definitions for the constitutional amendment against flag desecration (HJ Res 79, above). The effect of the vote was to allow states to set their own definitions of what is outlawed. This motion sought to define desecration as "burning, trampling, soiling or rending" the flag.

John Bryant, D-Tex., told flag amendment sponsor Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., that "your proposal allows 50 states to define the flag any way that they want to. You brought it out here so quickly, you overlooked that."

Solomon replied that Bryant "goes against the entire federalist system. He worries about what the states will do. I do not. I have faith in those states, all 50 of those states."

A yes vote was to define the terms flag and flag desecration in constitutional amendment. Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Levin. Voting no: Knollenberg and Rivers.

Aid To Haiti: The House voted 252 for and 164 to make aid to Haiti contingent upon its establishing democratic rule in this year's elections, as called for in the 1987 Haitian Constitution. The vote occurred during debate on a bill (HR 1868) appropriating $12 billion in fiscal 1996 foreign aid, including $90 million for Haiti.

A yes vote was to adopt the amendment. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Kildee, Levin and Rivers.

DETROIT NEWSPAPERS The Detroit News Detroit Free Press

An open letter to our community

By now, you've surely been exposed to a wide variety of news and opinion on why Detroit is having its first newspaper strike in 15 years. It may be tempting to view this as just another walkout caused by "greed" -- the company's or the unions', depending upon your point of view. But this is a very different labor dispute and we feel it is vital for you to understand the very deep and fundamental difference of opinion that has caused this unfortunate strike.

If these negotiations were simply about money, there would be no strike. Our wage offer, totaling 10.3 percent over three years, is far more lucrative than the average U.S. wage settlement this year. Moreover, we have offered to pay the full costs of medical, surgical, dental, optical and prescription drug benefits for all our employees who choose from several health maintenance organizations. We have also offered a variety of enhanced commission and incentive programs, and we have offered to share with the unions the savings we realize by converting to more efficient operating processes.

At the time the unions went on strike, we were far apart on economic issues with some of the unions. But if money were the primary issue, we would have had a settlement long ago. That's not what is driving this dispute.

The central issue is this: "Who runs Detroit's newspapers?" For years, the unions have dictated many of the practices in our workplace that are traditionally the responsibility of management, often requiring us to operate in extraordinarily wasteful, unproductive ways. For example:

♦ Our union contracts dictate how many people we must use to perform many jobs -- even when those staffing requirements exceed common sense and standard practices in our industry. In some production areas, the work pace is so leisurely that some workers actually find time to sleep on the job -- or to leave the premises during their shift.

♦ Sometimes when we have job openings, our contracts allow the unions to do the actual hiring. Those jobs get filled with the friends, neighbors and relatives of union leaders, regardless of whether they are suited for the job. And we can assure you these kinds of practices do not help develop a diversified workforce.

♦ The contracts give them a variety of ways to collect overtime pay for working their normal shifts, or to go home hours before the end of their shift and still get a full day's pay.

♦ Some employees can use their seniority to shift from job-to-job, disrupting operations and claiming jobs for which they may be totally unsuited.

♦ In the newsrooms, the union's long-standing insistence upon paying the same wage increase to each of its members -- regardless of whether that person is a clerk or a highly skilled journalist; a top performer or a laggard -- has rewarded mediocrity and cheated the best and the brightest among us. We have proposed a merit pay system, with raises based upon performance.

We have been determined in these negotiations to make reasonable progress toward re-gaining the right to manage our own operations, and to finally get a full day's work for the premium wages we pay. In doing so, we would be reducing staffing in some areas. But, at great expense, we proposed that there would be no layoffs of regular, full-time union personnel. All staff reductions would be accomplished through voluntary buyouts, retirements, attrition and transfers within the company. The unions have a problem with this that has nothing to do with their members: Fewer Teamsters means lower dues collections. "We're running a business, too," one Teamster official told us.

When we got down to the final hours before the July 13 strike deadline set by the unions, both sides met with Mayor Archer to try to find a solution. We indicated our willingness to bargain around the clock. But the unions said they would only extend their deadline if we were willing to reinstate their old, expired contracts -- which would have validated all of the wasteful practices of the old contracts.

We share your interest in solving this walkout quickly. Yet we are fully appreciative of the role our newspapers play in the political, social, economic and personal lives of so many people in our state. That is why we have continued to publish, in spite of the unions' taunts and violence.

We live in an increasingly competitive world, one that is unforgiving of a company that cannot keep its costs reasonable. Giving in to the temptation to accept the unions' wasteful demands would seriously compromise the future of two newspapers that have had only two profitable years in the past decade-and-a-half. We surely owe more to our employees, our advertisers and our readers.

The unions' walkout has been costly to us -- and could become more so. To the extent the unions succeed in their efforts to discourage readers and advertisers, we will lose revenue. And even after a strike, some of those customers might be slow to return. Because of that, as this strike continues, it will become increasingly difficult for us to justify the generous economic offer we have made.

We are willing to get back to the bargaining table. But we must be focused firmly on the future, and we are determined to exercise our right to manage this company, rather than allowing our unions to do so.

House GOP defeats Dems efforts to open more records

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Public access to public records became a partisan issue as House Republicans beat down three Democratic efforts to broaden the Freedom of Information Act.

"It will have a detrimental effect on companies doing business in the state," objected Rep. Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, as the House Judiciary Committee voted no on party lines. "It would have a chilling effect."

Rep. Laura Baird, D-Okemos, saw all three of her efforts go down in Republican flames. They would have:

■ Listed in the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) 20 other laws with 186 sections that close down public records. Among them are the Sex Offenders Registration Act, the Fire Prevention Code, the State Research Fund, the Workers Compensation Act, the Lottery Act (winners) and the Crime Victims Act.

Baird's amendment wouldn't have changed the exemptions — just required that they be listed in FOIA.

■ Required that functions which are "privatized" (performed by private contractors) continue to be subject to FOIA requests. Detroit News investigations during Mayor Coleman Young's administration showed that Detroit contracted with environmental firms, allowed them to control all records, and forbade the firms from talking with news media — effectively closing down public records.

■ Under FOIA, all public records are theoretically accessible, but Sec. 13 allows public bodies to exempt some records or portions for specific reasons. The public body must give a reason, in writing, for denying the record. The denial must be specific and not merely repeat the statute.

Rep. Karen Willard, D-Fair Haven, said the Engler administration had let Strategic Fund contracts without open bidding to out-of-state firms who kept their records secret.

Fitzgerald argued that opening the previously public records would allow competitors to learn the contractor's organization and financial secrets.

■ Limited shifting of records to the governor's office, which isn't subject to FOIA, records of the value of such entities as the Accident Fund, which the state ultimately sold.

Said Fitzgerald: "Had we made public those records, we would have advertised to the entire world their value. It would have undercut the ability of the state to get (high) bids."

Baird attempted to tack her amendments onto a relatively non-controversial bill by Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, to set up an appeals procedure when governmental agencies deny FOIA requests for public records.

"It gives citizens another tool," Kaza said. His House Bill 4849 would allow a person whose FOIA request was denied to appeal higher up in the administrative chain, a process not formerly available.

"If they are denied, citizens could still go to circuit court," said Kaza, adding that the administrative procedure was patterned after the federal FOIA law.

The panel reported out (sent to the House floor) Kaza's bill on a unanimous vote. Absent were Reps. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, and James Ryan, R-Redford.

But Rep. Roland Jersevic, R-Saginaw, said clarification is needed to assure that an appeal doesn't go to the same person who denied the request in the first place.

Under FOIA, all public records are theoretically accessible, but Sec. 13 allows public bodies to exempt some records or portions for specific reasons. The public body must give a reason, in writing, for denying the record. The denial must be specific and not merely repeat the statute.

Kaza's bill would require the head of the public body to respond to a written appeal in 10 days, either reversing the denial, sending notice to the requestor that the denial is upheld or reversing in part.

Type O blood supply low here

The supply of type O negative blood is low at the Southeastern Michigan Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross, according to agency officials.

Local blood needs are being supplemented by importing blood from other Red Cross regions in the country that collect more than they need.

However, the number of donations is down across the country, making it more important that southeast Michigan meet its own needs.

To avoid an all-out emergency appeal, the Red Cross is seeking organizations to sponsor blood drives and asking those that have drives scheduled to increase recruitment efforts.

Additionally, area residents are urged to donate blood at one of 10 Red Cross sites.

Type O blood donors will be aggressively recruited until the levels are satisfactory.

Although the 56 hospitals served by the Southeastern Michigan Blood Services Region maintain a supply of blood on-site, the current situation does not leave room to handle emergencies.

Blood donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh more than 110 pounds and be in good general health.

The donation process takes a little more than an hour.

Spending Issues: By a vote of 90 for and 329 against, the House refused to kill the Overseas Private Investment Corporation by eliminating its fiscal 1996 funding of about $104 million. The vote occurred during debate on HR 1868 (above). OPIC, a federal agency, provides loans and loan guarantees to help American companies do business in emerging, risky markets in Latin America, Africa and elsewhere.

A yes vote was to eliminate OPIC funding. Area representatives voting no were: Kildee, Knollenberg, Levin, Rivers.

■ SENATE

Securities Suits: Voting 70 for and 29 against, the Senate passed a bill (S 240) making it more difficult to bring class-action suits alleging securities fraud. The bill imposes court sanctions on lawyers who bring frivolous suits; shortens the period for bringing suits; requires plaintiffs to specify alleged fraud when they file their action; limits the liability of accountants and lawyers for their employers' misdeeds, and gives plaintiffs less standing to sue based on a company's misleading financial forecast. The bill must be meshed with a House measure that is part of the GOP "Contract With America."

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, voted no. Spencer Abraham voted yes.

Anti-Deficit Plan: By a vote of 54 for and 46 against, the Senate gave final Congressional approval of a Republican plan (H Con Res 67) to reach a balanced federal budget by 2002 while curbing spending growth by $983 billion and cutting taxes by $245 billion (see House issue above).

A yes vote was to approve the GOP budget blueprint. Michigan Senators Carl Levin voted no. Spencer Abraham voted yes.

Fraud Issue: By a vote of 39 for and 60 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to increase the liability of lawyers, accountants and other professionals who did work for a company sued for securities fraud. Under S 240 (above), these advisors are generally protected against lawsuits unless they have signed their name to certain documents. The amendment sought to remove that insulation and thus keep the law as it is presently written.

A yes vote supported the amendment. Michigan Senators Levin voted yes. Abraham voted no.

Area volunteers plan dinner-dance to aid hospital

"Motown Magic" is the theme of a "cool" fun-filled fall evening to benefit the Garden City Hospital Emergency Services Department.

The fund-raiser, being planned this summer by a committee comprised of area residents is set for Saturday, Oct. 14 at the Crowne Plaza Holiday Inn at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The benefit will feature the music of the Contours, a Motown music group.

Tickets for the fund-raiser are $100 per person which includes "cruising" the drive-in through five food stations and dancing to the music of Motown artists.

Guests will be invited to top off the evening with a late-night coney.

■ "Motown Magic" is set for Saturday, Oct. 14 at the Crowne Plaza Holiday Inn at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The benefit will feature the music of the Contours. Tickets for the fund-raiser are $100 per person which includes "cruising" the drive-in through five food stations and dancing to the music of Motown artists. Guests will be invited to top off the evening with a late-night coney.

Residents plan

Area residents planning the fund-raiser include Joyce Pappas of Garden City, Barbara Boetsch of Redford Township, Pat Bechtel of Westland, John Santeiu Jr. of Garden City, Greg Mann, D.O. of Farmington, Barb Kapla of Plymouth, Debbie Ley of Plymouth Township, Bob Stevenson of Ann Arbor, Denise Ealey of Livonia and Margaret Woodruff of Livonia.

Funds raised from "Motown Magic" will be used to renovate the Garden City Hospital emergency service facility.

Hospital officials say the expansion is needed to meet an ever-increasing demand for emergency services in the 323-bed teaching hospital located on Inkster Road in Garden City.

"Although the department has undergone a number of minor face lifts throughout its existence, we continually find ourselves limited in space and equipment capabilities," said a hospital spokesman.

Patient load climbs

Hospital officials said the emergency department's volume will exceed 35,000 patients this fical year. That means 96 patients per day with a department which was originally equipped to handle 68 patients per day.

In five years, hospital officials estimate nearly 40,000 emergency room visits annually.

The new emergency department will include:

■ An expanded Fast Track Service which provides quick and efficient services to those patients whose illness is not severe enough to use the main emergency department. The current Fast Track area will be more than doubled in size.

■ Enhanced radiology services within the emergency department. Radiology services now are provided in an adjacent department. Having the staff and technology available in the department will assist in early diagnosis of patients, according to hospital spokesmen.

■ Improved access for ambulance traffic, walk-in patients and visitors. The new department provides for four ambulance bays which will be adjacent to the major trauma rooms.

■ Enhanced cardiac rooms will be provided with the latest technology to assist those critically ill.

Construction is expected to begin in November and completed in May 1997.

Sponsors needed

Corporations and businesses are being asked to join the fund-raising effort and be recognized as a platinum ($750 and more), gold ($500) or silver ($250) record sponsors.

Individuals will be recognized as musical note sponsors with donation of $100 (whole note), $50 (half note) or $25 (quarter note).

For ticket or sponsor information, call the hospital's Development Department at 458-4331.

Garden City Hospital was established 50 years ago by a small group of osteopathic physicians in western Wayne County who rented the second floor of a building on Ford Road in Garden City.

Originally constructed by the volunteer services of local churches to house wayward boys it became known as the Garden City Maternity Center.

In 1947, the physicians changed it from a maternal center to a general acute care facility, offering medical, surgical, pediatric and obstetrical services.

Earlier this summer, the hospital opened its newly-designed center for the care of maternity patients. The birthing center features the newest concept of labor, delivery and post-partum care.

A series of fund-raisers helped to pay for the renovation, according to hospital officials.

Garfield's vision: A house that traces back more than 150 years would be incorporated into the left end of a 3,000-square-foot upgrade proposed by a Livonia broker.

Historic home is stuck in time

Sometimes, the best of intentions and simplest of plans just don't work out. A broker's vision involving a bit of history remains stuck in dream mode.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Real estate can be a topsy-turvey experience.

All William R. Garfield wanted to do was acquire the oldest existing house in Novi, restore it and use it as a magnet to build six other brand new houses featuring similar architecture in that community.

But it's been one problem after another for the Livonia broker since he bought the Sally Thornton House, erected in 1839, and moved the dilapidated structure to its current site off 11 Mile between Lannys and Taft several years ago.

The city of Novi bought land adjacent to his parcel that he thought would be available to him. Garfield said he had to spend more money than anticipated and a business partner backed out.

Garfield subsequently received permission to build two large single-family houses on a 3/4-acre parcel. He's sold the vacant 1/4-acre parcel but still hasn't found a buyer for the Thornton House and its two acres.

Garfield's current asking price is $159,000 for the land and house as is.

If a purchaser follows through with Garfield's plan to incorporate the Thornton House into a home of 3,067 square feet with three bedrooms, two full baths, two half baths, library, living room, family room, dining room, laundry room and three-car attached garage, the cost is $395,000.

Few prospects, apparently, share his view of historical preservation when it comes to return on housing dollar. He's had no offers under either parameter.

"I've had it happen 30 times," Garfield said. "Someone will love the place, admire its old character, but two things will happen.

"They say, 'I don't have time to wait; I have to move in now.' Or, they don't want to spend $400,000 to be near other houses less expensive."

Garfield has planted pine trees in an effort to screen nearby properties.

Greg Presley, Garfield's architect, said half of his practice involves preservations and renovations.

"Preservation of resources extends to preservation of historic structures. Europeans do it. Why don't we? Replacing boards is not a big deal. It takes time and costs, but it's a labor of love. I live in the historic district of Northville. A lot of buyers are like that," Presley said.

Some prospects have been turned off by freeway noise, but Garfield hears good access to jobs, entertainment and shopping.

"There's not going to be another place that combines all these amenities _ privacy, space, proximity to the good schools of Novi and proximity to Twelve Oaks Mall," he said.

Garfield acknowledges that it probably would be cheaper to knock down the Thornton House and build from the ground up.

But he's hoping that someone who shares his sense of history will save the rough framing, windows, shutters and hardwood floors.

"The person I think will buy it will be a family person who thinks long range, who wants to live in luxuriousness and spaciousness of the last century."

"As far as the inside of the house goes, they can work with an architect and adjust it any way they want. There's no restrictions with the inside.

"The outside of the house, especially the front, has to stay the way it is. That's my restriction. If you want to tear it down and build brand new, you can do that as long as you build a classical-style home.

"I have refrained from doing that out of respect for the uniqueness of the house," Garfield added.

Ken Howell, who bought the lot from Garfield next to the Thornton House, figures he'll spend upwards of $500,000 on a 3,600-square-foot Georgian-style house with three bedrooms, piano room, oversized holiday dining room, an in-law suite in the basement and three-car garage.

That figure includes landscaping and the lot.

"There's no substitute for nature," Howell said of what attracted him to the site. "As far as grounds go, you're not going to beat this."

History wasn't the big draw for him. "You can get history through new materials today," Howell said.

"I guess the thing I've learned is very few people like historic houses," Garfield said.

"I would never have gotten the house if I had known it would take this long. Or the emotional struggle, I never would have bought it."

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Our condo fees in Farmington Hills include outside maintenance, snow removal and trash pick up. My son, who lived in Farmington for some years, was advised that Farmington has their trash pick up and their streets plowed as a service in regard to their taxes. Can you tell me why condominium owners, such as myself, who pay substantial taxes for their ownership, must pay for their own trash pick up and snow removal on their streets. It does not seem fair to me.

A. You have brought up a very serious question, which is being discussed by many community associations, namely that some municipalities provide services to homeowners who happen to live in subdivisions where the streets are dedicated, but do not provide similar services to the condominium association if the streets are private.

In some instances, some municipalities provide free trash pick up and in others, it is a charge to the individual co-owner of the association. There is obviously no similarity of services being provided among communities, and this is the subject matter of discussions by United Condominium Owners of Michigan with representatives of the legislature, in regard to this apparent disparity.

There has also been some discussion about the commencement of legal proceedings against a given municipality to try to rectify what apparently is a discriminatory procedure that should be rectified.

Q. Two parties entered into a land contract for the sale of residential property. The contract provided for an interest rate of 11% per annum for the first two years, followed by a rate of 12% per annum for the remainder of the contract. Several years later, the land contract purchaser notified the land contract seller that the 12% rate was usurious.

The purchasers then recalculated the term of the contract and applied the excessive payments to the principal and claimed that the contract was paid in full. The contract seller now wants to sue seeking a declaration regarding the legality of the 12% interest rate, and if the 12% interest rate were found to be illegal seeking reformation of the contract to reflect that 11% interest rate for the entire length of the contract.

What would be the result in such a circumstance?

A. Chances are that the following result would occur. The usury statutes in the state provide that a lender who charges a usurious rate of interest is barred from recovering any interest.

Prior usurious interest payments must be applied to the extinguish the principal due under the contract. Therefore, the trial court would probably deny the seller's equitable request for reforming the contract.

Generally speaking, when a statute provides a remedy, the court cannot fashion an equitable remedy. Since in this case the seller would seek to enforce the original contract, he will be barred from recovering the 11% interest payment in the alternative.

Therefore, chances are the deed payments would be deemed to be satisfied and the seller would be requested to deliver a warranty deed.

Try these tips to make your house sell sooner for more

For sale signs are sprouting up around the country as summer gets into full swing.

Traditionally, June, July and August are hot selling periods for real estate. And, with interest rates hovering between 7½ and 8½ percent, some Realtors have seen an increase of house shoppers.

Sellers who want to take advantage of this influx of buyers should consider a few simple marketing tips.

Curb appeal is the primary factor affecting a buyer's first impression of a house, said Stephen Snodgrass, a vice president with Electronic Realty Associates.

"By giving a home extra attention, sellers can increase the value without incurring a lot of expenses," he said.

Here are five important marketing tips to remember while selling a house offered by ERA.

■ Present a tidy exterior appearance by trimming trees and bushes, keeping the lawn mowed and planting some flowers.

A major overhaul isn't necessary. Keeping the yard neat will dramatically increase curb appeal.

■ Stay flexible. Allow prospects to view the house at convenient times.

■ Clean storage places like closets, attics and garages.

■ Create a bright, spacious atmosphere within the house by removing cluttered furniture and painting inside walls with light colors.

■ Remain realistic in pricing the house. Ask a real estate professional in your community to help determine fair market value.

By following these steps, ERA says, sellers are more likely to attract the right buyer quickly.

For additional information on buying or selling a house, ERA offers the ANSWERS book, a reference guide addressing the most frequently asked questions about residential real estate.

A free copy is available to consumers through their local ERA member broker or by calling (800) 862-7537.

Founded in 1971, ERA is comprised of more than 2,500 independently owned and operated offices in all 50 states, Mexico, South Africa, Europe and the Asian Pacific Rim.

We'll Show You Just How Rewarding Home Ownership Has Been.

Office market is doing just fine so far in 1995

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

The office market in metro Detroit continued to strengthen during the first half of this year, according to Grubb & Ellis, a commercial real estate/property management firm in Southfield.

As of June 30, vacancy rates in all classes of office space in O&E communities ranged from 7 percent in Bloomfield Hills and Livonia to 19 percent in Southfield, Grubb & Ellis reported.

The vacancy rate was 8 percent in Farmington Hills, 9 percent in Birmingham and 13 percent in Troy and West Bloomfield.

"This market hasn't seen vacancy rates in the single digits since the early '80s," said Dennis Burnside, senior vice president for Grubb & Ellis here.

"Overall rental rates are up slightly over fourth quarter results in 1994 and are expected to increase throughout the remaining half of 1995, assuming current market conditions continue," Burnside added.

Even though nearly one in five square feet of office space in Southfield is still vacant, the good news is that some 191,000 square feet of space has been absorbed since the first of the year.

"We speculate increased absorption activity in the Southfield submarket is mainly due to the fact that it maintains competitive rental rates while currently containing the largest availabilities of Class A office space in the tri-county market area," Burnside said.

"In fact, Southfield is currently one of the few southeastern Michigan submarkets which can accommodate space requirements of 25,000 or more contiguous square feet of Class A office space," he said.

Bloomfield Hills was described as the strongest submarket here in terms of prime, newer, upscale space.

"Class A space in this market is all but sold out," Burnside said. "If current absorption activity maintains, the remaining space will be fully leased in less than one year.

"We expect rental rates to increase and concessions to disappear in this submarket heading in 1996," he said.

Average asking rental rates at the mid-year point ranged from $23.01 per square foot in Bloomfield Hills to $17.27 in Southfield, Grubb & Ellis reported.

In Birmingham, it was $20.79; Troy, $18.47; Farmington Hills, $17.91; Livonia, $17.64; and West Bloomfield, $17.38.

Overbuilding of speculative office structures and an economic downturn during the 1980s led to a glut of space on the market from which many landlords are still recovering.

Tax breaks ease pain of storms

Catastrophes such as floods, hurricanes and tornadoes may do more than wreak havoc on your house. They can also throw you into a financial turmoil. To help put victims of catastrophes on the road to recovery, Congress offers some valuable tax breaks.

The Michigan Association of CPAs explains that you may qualify for an itemized deduction on your tax return if the damage to your property was caused by a sudden, unexpected or unusual event, such as lightning, storms, fires and even car accidents. For example, if during a storm a tree falls on your roof, the damage would be considered a deductible casualty loss because the event was sudden.

Deductions are not allowed, however, for damage that results from normal wear and tear or conditions that occur steadily over a period of time, such as rust or corrosion. So, for example, if your 20-year-old roof started to leak on a typical rainy day, the cost incurred to repair or replace the roof would not be considered a deductible casualty loss because the damage to the roof doesn't meet the suddenness requirement. The damage in this case would be viewed as the result of gradual and progressive deterioration.

The tax law also disallows casualty losses for items such as jewelry or money that you simply misplace. Also, you cannot claim a casualty loss for investment losses resulting from a drop in the value of securities you own.

Casualty losses are allowed in the event of a bank failure. If your bank is insolvent or bankrupt and you lose money because your deposits weren't insured, you can choose to treat the loss as a casualty loss in the year when the loss amount can be reasonably estimated.

Even if you qualify for a casualty loss deduction, you can't write off your entire loss. You must first reduce your loss by any reimbursement you receive from your insurance company. The amount of any uninsured loss must then be reduced by $100. If you're unfortunate enough to be hit by more than one flood or casualty during the year, keep in mind that the $100 rule applies to each separate casualty event.

You then can deduct only losses for the year that exceed 10 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI). For example, suppose your roof and windows are destroyed in a storm and it costs you $5,000 to replace them. For tax purposes, you would first reduce the $5,000 by $100. If your AGI is $40,000, you can then deduct only that portion of the loss exceeding 10 percent of your AGI, or $4,000. In this case, you may deduct $900. The 10-percent rule applies to your total losses during the year, after each one has been trimmed by $100.

In estimating the damage to your property, don't automatically assume that you can deduct its replacement cost. For tax purposes, the amount of your loss is the lesser of the difference between the fair market value of the property immediately before and after the casualty, or the adjusted basis of the property before the casualty.

Here's an example. A fire in your house destroyed computer equipment you had bought for your children. You spent $6,000 on the computer system six years ago. However, its fair market value before the casualty was only $3,000. You are therefore entitled to a deduction of $3,000 less $100, assuming this amount exceeds 10 percent of your AGI.

Generally, you must claim your loss on your tax return for the year in which the loss occurred. However, if you suffer property damage in a federally-declared disaster area, you may obtain an immediate tax refund by amending the previous year's tax return.

Finally, the MACPA points out that it's your responsibility to prove the extent of your loss in the event of an IRS audit. Before and after photographs of the property, repair bills, insurance reports and written appraisals should be carefully filed.

NEW HOMES

Buyer can choose from 15 plans in new subdivision

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Two builders — Ritchie Construction and Kimron Construction — offer buyers a choice of 15 different floor plans in Knollwood Commons, 66 lots off 14 Mile Road just east of Haggerty in West Bloomfield.

Kimron has 10 plans ranging from a 2,400-square-foot two-story with four bedrooms and 2½ baths for $259,500 to a 3,700-square-foot two-story with similar bed and bath elements for $355,000.

Ritchie has five plans, all two stories, ranging from 2,570 square feet with four bedrooms and 2½ baths for $293,500 to 3,150 square feet with four bedrooms and 2½ baths for $336,000.

Standard features in all of Ritchie's plans include three-car garage, first floor laundry, fireplace, air conditioning, basement and dishwasher and range.

Kimron offers as standard two-car garage, first floor laundry, fireplace, basement, oven/cooktop/microwave and dishwasher.

"I think this sub is very nice from the respect of lot sizes, trees," said Barry Ritchie.

"One hundred foot wide lots — that's one thing I think makes us stand out from other builders in the area," said Byron Block, sales rep for Ritchie. "Lots are bigger, but not so big that you don't have neighborhood."

Good freeway access, easy accessibility to shopping and wooded lots were mentioned as major selling points by Rose Marie Thomadsen, marketing coordinator for Kimron.

"People are looking for some place kids can go without chauffering them," she said.

"Shopping centers and the school district are within walking distance," Ritchie noted. "The typical buyer probably is someone moving up from a '60s-style house in Farmington who wants to get further out, who wants a more modern home with modern conveniences . . . angled walls, first floor laundry, side-entry garage and size," Block said. "We might even have some people, older people, downsizing from 5,000 square feet," he added.

Thomadsen figures that the Golfridge II plan, a 3,400-square-foot two-story priced at $310,000, will be a hot seller for Kimron in Knollwood Commons.

The model features a living room, dining room, library, kitchen/eating nook with island and family room with cathedral ceiling, fireplace and wet bar on the main level.

All four bedrooms are upstairs. The master has a dual sink vanity, separate whirlpool tub and shower and walk-in closet. All three secondary bedrooms have ceiling light fixtures.

"It's a lot of house for the money," Tomadsen said. "We customize the kitchen. People get a choice where they want things. We appeal to the cook."

Block believes that the Bush plan offered by Ritchie — 2,990 square feet with living room, dining room, kitchen/nook, study and great room with fireplace downstairs, four bedrooms up priced at $317,890 — will especially appeal to prospects.

The Clinton plan with a separate dining room and fireplaces in both the living room and family room, and the Perot, with a unique roof line, also will attract interest.

"All three have a lot to offer," Block said.

Both Ritchie and Kimron offer plans with the master suite on the main floor. Exterior materials on all products is brick and wood siding.

Knollwood Commons is serviced by city water and sewers. It's within the Walled Lake school district.

The property tax rate is now about $28.30 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owner of a $310,000 house would pay about $4,400 the first year.

Sanjay Sethi ordered a Golf II model from Kimron.

"We kind of shopped around to several builders and models," he said. We went to Wincliff (a Kimron building site in West Bloomfield). We were there six hours. Workmanship was unbelievable.

"The main thing that interested us in Knollwood was development of M-5," he said. "It's very convenient to area expressways."

Wetlands at Knollwood also impressed Sethi.

The Ritchie on-site sales office, (810) 553-6618, is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Until its model is ready in a few months, Kimron will take inquiries at its Oxford Estate office, (810) 442-0444, 1-6 p.m. daily except Thursdays.

Media mortgage surveys can mislead buyers

DAVID C. MULLY

Home mortgage interest rate updates can be checked in several ways. You can check the newspaper, listen to the radio or watch TV.

Most people will call the lenders direct for the rate updates. This is the most accurate way.

When you check the newspaper or other media sources for mortgage rates, you may not be comparing lenders accurately.

When each lender gives his current mortgage rates to whomever is doing the survey for the media (or if it is an advertisement for a specific lender), it could be made at different times of the day or even on different days.

This is important because most lenders change the interest rates daily according to the market and depending on the policy of the lender at that time of the day as well.

New rates usually are announced between 10 a.m. and noon. Before the daily change comes out (if they change at all), the lender will usually quote the previous days rates.

So for obvious reasons the timing of your call can make one lender's rates seem lower than anothers if the others rates changed and were quoting a different days rates. What if the market changed in that time from one day to the next and therefore rates changed.

For example let's say you call ABC lender at 9 a.m., and they tell you their interest rate is 7.5% with 0 points for a 30-year fixed rate, and then you call XYZ lender at 11 a.m. the same day and they say the rate 7.75% with 0 points for the same program.

■ A good question to ask the lenders when you call would be 'Can I lock in the rate you're telling me today? And for how long are you going to be offering this rate?'

If you did not call back the ABC lender, you would be left with the impression that XYZ had the better rate. But what you would not know is that XYZ's rate may have changed shortly after you called them.

A good question to ask the lenders when you call would be "Can I lock in the rate you're telling me today? And for how long are you going to be offering this rate?"

The best thing to do is to compare rates the day you plan on applying for your loan and locking in your interest rate.

If, for some reason, you apply for your loan but decide to "float the rate," you should compare once again the day you decide to lock in your rate to make sure the lender you selected is still competitive with other lenders.

Just because a particular lender has the lowest rate today does not mean they will have the best rate tomorrow. Lenders generally flip flop in who has the best rate in any given day of the week.

The days of rates not changing for days or weeks at a time are gone. However, the rate changes I'm talking about are usually not very dramatic, more like one eighth to one quarter change in rate in any given day.

But this small difference can translate into significant dollars depending on your loan size.

If you have any questions on shopping for a mortgage, you can call Dave Mully at 800-554-5244. Mully has been assisting area homeowners with their mortgage needs for the last several years.
