Safety tops Mettetal goal list

The Mettetal Airport Advisory Board has put together a list of goals for the Canton facility. The list includes safety, community interaction and marketing.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

State and local officials are jumping right in to compile a list of goals for the state-owned Mettetal Airport in Canton.

"It's not finished yet. It's a start here with 100 or so things," said Ed Wendover, chairman of the Mettetal Airport Advisory Board at the monthly meeting Thursday.

The list is divided into four categories — safety, community interaction, marketing and physical layout. Some of the ideas, compiled by advisory board members, and state and local officials, include improved lighting, new or improved runway markings, landscaping, paved parking lot, improved administration building, promotion of public gatherings at Mettetal and safety improvements.

Acting Mettetal manager Randy Coller, state Bureau of Aeronautics licensing and enforcement manager, told board members that work is continuing on a layout plan of the airport, which will comprise part of the master plan for the facility.

"We want to clean the place up so it looks neat and is an asset to the community," Coller said.

Advisory board members will review the list of goals at their next regular meeting Dec. 2. "I think it is important we interact with the state and financial concerns before we go too much further with the list," said board member Mark Merlanti of Canton.

From the list, a determination can be made about which projects are more immediate than others, said Wendover.

A safety audit, meanwhile, will be underway as review of the goals list continues. Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro told the ad-

Phone book recycling hits snag

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Not until April. That's when Canton residents will get the regional West-Northwest telephone books from Ameritech.

But there's a problem with that. The Canton Beautification Committee, with the help of Bill Joyner, Canton Community Foundation executive director, and Close Up students, was working with Ameritech throughout October to collect and recycle phone books when the new ones came out.

Another problem: the only new phone books that came out in the area from Ameritech were the slim, yellow Plymouth directories. They are delivered primarily to the Plymouth area and part of northern Canton.

The Beautification Committee was hoping to recycle 10,000 telephone books. Through Ameritech's DirectoRecycle program, the committee would have been able to collect 10 cents for each book collected up to a maximum $1,000. The money would have been used to help finance the committee's coloring books for elementary students about the environment, recycling and conservation.

In other words, the committee was counting on new phone books in Canton so residents would donate their old ones to the fund-raising effort.

"We were well organized," said Joyner, who agreed to help the committee collect phone books. "We collected a little over 1,000 books. The system worked perfectly."

But that's about 9,000 shy of the number of books the beautification committee wanted to collect. And Joyner has about 400 boxes — gathered to collect telephone books — left over.

"It was a limited campaign," said Dawn Pauli in Ameritech's corporate communications office.

When the West-Northwest phone books are delivered in April, the beautification committee can try the recycling program again. "We're hoping to do it providing we have an end user (a company to recycle the books)," Pauli said.

Educators aim to 'humanize' high school

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton High School principal Tom MacKenzie will readily acknowledge that creating a quality education for every student at the Midwest's largest high school complex is extremely difficult.

At Plymouth-Canton Educational Park where enrollment is about 4,500, students are able to graduate without having acquired basic knowledge and learning skills, teachers say. CEP's hugeness alienates many students, and they sometimes fall through the cracks.

A humanized "School Within a School" (SWAS), that would be home to 500 students in ninth through 12th grades, is on the drawing board.

Teachers Cyndi Burnstein, Mary Beth Carroll and Jan Way presented the SWAS plan to school board members last week.

The school would feature team teaching, flexible scheduling, a multicultural and inter-disciplinary curriculum, parental involvement, high expectations and an atmosphere of community. Classes would be limited to 30 students. Participation would be voluntary for everyone.

Designed not for gifted students but for the general population, the

Advisory meeting

The Canton Homeowners Advisory Council will meet at 7 p.m. today in the Canton Township Hall board meeting room, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The agenda will include discussion of a previous meeting with township trustees. Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann will not be the guest speaker, despite notices sent to some associations announcing him. Homeowners association officers and residents are invited to the meeting.

EMU outing

The Canton Chamber of Commerce, Canton Community Foundation and former Tiger star Pat Sheridan are sponsoring a day at the Eastern Michigan University vs. Ohio football game Nov. 13.

Canton Day at EMU will begin with a tailgate party at 11:30 a.m. followed by the game at 1 p.m. Tickets are $10 each, including the game and tailgate party. For tickets, contact the chamber office at 453-4040.

Tour youth homes

The public is invited to tour the eight residential houses of Huron Services for Youth. The adolescents who live in the homes will meet with the public, give tours and offer refreshments.

One of the eight houses is in Canton at 49780 Hanford Road, and will be open to the public 1-3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 14.

Huron Services for Youth serves adolescents with residential treatment for small groups of six to eight youths, specialized foster care and adoption, as well as in-home treatment for families in crisis and supervised independent living. For more information, call the agency at 994-4224.

Fingerprinting available

The Allstate office of Pete Rose and the Canton Police Department are sponsoring a child identification program — fingerprints and photos — 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13, at the Kennedy Plaza, 45674 Ford Road, on the northwest corner of Ford and Canton Center roads.

Residents want to know who's in those planes

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Some Plymouth Township residents want to know who is flying over their houses.

"They seem to be flying over my subdivision," said Liz Brill, who lives east of I-275.

Residents asked if numbers could be painted on airplane bellies so they can be identified for noise problems.

The answer was no. The Federal Aviation Administration controls the numbering of planes. Numbers are usually on wings, said Randy Coller, Mettetal manager and state Bureau of Aeronautics licensing and enforcement manager.

Unlike the first meeting in October of the new Mettetal Airport Advisory Board, the second meeting Thursday drew out some of the airport's longtime critics.

Brill complained about noise over her house and wanted plane numbers to report the culprits. "Some are doing beautifully, she admitted, about those who fly overhead with minimal noise.

Signs will be placed by runways asking pilots to use noise abatement procedures. But Coller told residents pilots have the prerogative not to use noise abatement, particularly if more engine power is needed for their safety.

"I can't guarantee satisfaction. It's a free country and pilots are free to fly the skies," Coller said.

Nonetheless, residents are free to call the airport's administration office at 459-9096 to complain about noisy aircraft. If there is a complaint, Coller said he would talk to pilots.

"Please understand we are interested in hearing when there are problems," said Ed Wendover, advisory board chairman.

Another resident questioned the state's eight private planes, which state officials use to travel across the state. She told Coller that state officials should drive or use commercial aircraft. Coller said he couldn't respond to the question because the issue isn't within his authority.

"You are a component of it (the state) and I have an option of asking these questions," the woman shot back.

A pilot in the audience told the woman that most Michigan airports cannot handle commercial airplanes.

Meanwhile, the advisory board plans to schedule a special meeting to consider whether board member John Vergonna, a pilot, should sit on a panel to select the airport's new manager and fixed base operator, who can sell equipment and services. The state plans to offer one contract for both services.

Vergonna was selected by board members in October to sit on the panel. But the board decided to review that decision after receiving a letter from Dan Malone of Emerald Aviation, the current FBO, who is submitting a proposal — among some 70 others — to manage Mettetal and continue his current business.

"His character is not being challenged," Malone said of Vergonna. Malone said all he wants is fairness in the selection process. He said he is concerned because Vergonna was involved in controversy over Mettetal's future in the past few years.

"I felt there could be someone who would be less tied in," Malone said.

The board, however, wanted to wait for further discussion until Vergonna returns from out-of-town. Vergonna was unavailable for comment.

Proposals to manage Mettetal are due at the state Nov. 15. A decision is expected before the end of the year with the contract winner in place by spring. Desert-Sands, the former Mettetal owners, are currently managing the airport.

"He's raised the issues. We will address them," said board member Mark Merlanti of Canton.

visory board that he has instructed fire department officials to talk with other public safety officials near municipal airports.

The Canton Fire Marshal's division is conducting safety inspections of the airport. "Historically, the airport, as long as I've been here, has been low risk," said Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

Santomauro assured questioning residents that the airport must live under the same regulations as other businesses even though the facility is now state-owned. "If they are required by statute, they're going to do it," Santomauro said.

Coller also gave his assurances. "If it's related to safety, we would be foolish not to comply."

Santomauro also told the advisory board that should there be an accident or emergency at the airport, the police and fire departments would respond as a team. "I believe that if anything happens on the airport property, by and large, we can handle it on our own," Santomauro said. Canton also has mutual aid pacts with other municipalities.

■ 'We want to clean the place up so it looks neat and is an asset to the community.

acting Mettetal manager

An emergency plan will be developed for Mettetal, Coller said. "I believe there is no need to reinvent the wheel," Santomauro added, saying he would work with the plan. The public safety department will have a plan for Mettetal and also has a generic emergency response plan.

Santomauro said he expects to conduct a simulation program at the airport. "I'd rather come out here on a simulation and find out and fine-tune," he said.

Trio facing felony charges in credit card fraud at Meijer

Two men and a woman face felony charges in connection with the fraudulent use of a credit card at Meijer Nov. 2, according to Canton Township police.

Ali Fakih, 26, of Dearborn, Wyussef Ismail, 39, of Dearborn Heights, and Intissar Ismail, 34, of Dearborn Heights were arraigned Nov. 2 on credit card fraud before 35th District Court Magistrate Eric Colhurst. A $1,000 cash bond was set for each. A preliminary examination on the charges is scheduled for Nov. 12 in 35th District Court.

The three are accused of using stolen credit cards at Meijer at Ford and Canton Center roads, according to Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

Approximately $7.2 worth of goods were charged. On a return trip a few minutes later, the cashier decided to double-check identification. When the cashier asked a man and woman for identification, the couple fled and jumped in a car driven by a man. Shortly after, police stopped the car on Ford Road, east of Sheldon Road, Colling said.

Property destruction

The owner of the Super 8 Motel (9013 Lotz), reported to police that a patron, who never officially checked out and didn't return the key, damaged the room Oct. 27, according to a Canton police report.

A hole, 4-by-6 inches was found on one of the walls in the room. Dried blood also was found near the hole. A lamp and vase also were broken.

Window broken

A woman who lives on Old Michigan told Canton police that someone knocked on her bedroom window of her mobile home and a half-hour later smashed it Oct. 29, according to a Canton Township police report.

The woman said she heard someone knocking on her window. About a half-hour later as she was reading in her bedroom, she saw a wood stick smash through the window, splashing glass all over the bed.

Police found the stick outside the mobile home. They talked with a security guard, who said he saw four to six people running behind the mobile homes. Two of the people were recognized. When police spoke with them, one of them admitted smashing the window.

Hunters bag deer

The firearms season for deer is a week away, but bow hunters have been busy.

Richard Johnston of Canton shot a six-point buck while bow hunting on Oct. 26 near Onaway. "It was about 4:30 in the afternoon, I was watching turkeys, and I saw this 10-point come out; then a doe came out. I let that one go," Johnston said.

"The six-point was following the doe and I shot it; my son Greg helped me drag it back to the truck," said Johnston, who has been hunting 17 years.

Steven Kwictkowski of Canton, 15, bagged a 170-pound doe with a bow and arrow at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 23 in Presque Isle County. "He beats the old man every year," said hunter and Steven's stepdad Charles Bruning, who reported the kill.

Scott Bailey of Canton, 19, felled his first buck, a six-pointer, Halloween morning near Mt. Pleasant with a bow and arrow, his mom, Pat Bailey, reported.

Clinic helps workers get back on the job

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Vinlea Viergutz, an automotive trim specialist with Plymouth's Johnson Controls, was told by her doctor she should look into long-term disability after she injured her back last December.

"He told me he couldn't see me back at work. I'm 47, and I thought, 'Oh my God, I should have a few good years,'" said Viergutz.

Viergutz wrenched her back falling backward in a chair. "I didn't fall all the way to floor; I went to catch myself. All the muscles in my lower back were really in bad shape. I could not even move. It was the most horrible experience of my life," she said.

For months, the pain prevented her from sleeping, Viergutz said.

Less than enamored of the prospect of an operation to fuse discs in her spine, she was referred to the Hands On Center, a Plymouth rehabilitation agency that specializes in manual therapy. Physical therapists, massage therapists, physical therapy aides, an occupational therapist, vocational rehabilitation specialist and a biofeedback specialist are on staff.

"I've seen just about every one of the therapists. I know them all by their first names," said Viergutz, who is back to work and looking forward to cross country skiing. "Each one in their own way helps you. They specialize in their own little field. They did a lot with me and for me."

Different techniques

In addition to practicing traditional physical therapy, Hands On Center's licensed professionals use muscle energy techniques, myofascial release, cranial-sacral therapy, acupressure, joint mobilization and temporal mandibular joint management to alleviate pain and realign the body. Their patients range in age from their teens to their 80s. Many suffer from chronic, complex problems and have been referred by agencies such as the University of Michigan's Chronic Pain Clinic. Complaints range from neck and back pain to orthopedic injuries, headaches, work-related injuries and athletic injuries.

Hands On's well-appointed two-story facility at 470 Forest features private treatment rooms, whirlpools and a workout area with state-of-the-art exercise equipment.

The owners are a husband-and-wife team of physical therapy aides — Barbara Bixler and Harvey Brooks.

Scottish native Aileen Kernohan, a registered nurse, is the center's administrator. "Normally, physical therapists are expected to see six or seven patients an hour," Kernohan said. "Here, it's a maximum of 10 patients per day. It's a real caring environment with a real warm atmosphere."

Among Hands On's staff are two natives of the Netherlands, a country whose therapists are known for their manual therapy skills.

Johan Comuth said his hands-on training has equipped him to work with people who have injuries or deficiencies in their neuromuscular structures, treating them with ultrasound, hot and cold packs, massage and exercise. Radar and laser also are used in physical therapy.

Muscle energy

Comuth utilizes muscle energy techniques to restore balance within muscles.

"If your spine is out of alignment, we can use certain muscles to get your spine back where it belongs," he said.

Therapists help patients stretch and contract muscles, creating "general relaxation and improvement in muscle length," said physical therapist Mark Mijnsbergen.

Physical therapy manipulation is more localized than chiropractic, Comuth said. "You feel where something is wrong and try to push it back, instead of using gross movements."

Mijnsbergen defines physical therapy as "the art of healing by means of manipulation on the body, not inside the body."

Techniques he uses include interferential, or electrical, stimulus of the skin to lessen nerve and muscle pain.

Therapists also work with the fascia, the weblike sheath of connective tissue coating the muscles. "Myofascial release is a non-invasive technique that alleviates pain, restrictions and thickening in the fascia that inhibit mobility, strength and energy flow," said Mijnsbergen.

Stretching techniques and tension on the skin promote increased muscle length and elasticity, he said.

Disharmony

Hands On's Victoria Devinney specializes in cranial-sacral therapy. "Pathology creates a change in the rhythm in the cranium bones of the skull. If there's disharmony in the system, it may be slower, faster, or asymmetrical," said Kernohan.

Cranial-sacral therapy uses a soft-touch technique to relieve restrictions throughout the body.

Acupressure, a technique based on acupuncture, uses pressure points on the body instead of needles to alleviate pain and enhance circulation. The ancient Chinese technique allows a practitioner to detect weak areas in the body that can lead to disease, and detect surpluses or deficiencies in the body's energy flow, said Mijnsbergen.

Hands On's biofeedback specialist assesses muscle tension to enhance patients' awareness of problems with their working, standing, or driving postures that may be causing headaches, muscular pain or discomfort. "We try to use everything in one treatment. The more you can offer, the higher the chance is of a good result," said Mijnsbergen.

Visits cost between $80 and $120 and are covered by some insurance, including Blue Cross and Medicare. Patients need a physician's referral.

Plymouth scraps festival

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

There will be no "A Plymouth Thanksgiving" event this year.

After three consecutive years of staging the event in Kellogg Park complete with an original Thanksgiving dinner re-creation, Native American dance demonstrations, penned turkeys and storytelling — organizers say it won't be happening this year.

"I think it was just in its infancy; it had a chance to really go," said downtown businessman and Downtown Development Authority member Fred Hill. He, along with Sideways owner Sharon Pugh and former downtown business owner Nancy Sheehan, organized the Thanksgiving celebrations.

While the event drew crowds to Kellogg Park on the Friday and Saturday after Thanksgiving, Hill said several downtown business owners were not very supportive.

"The retail people didn't like it," Pugh said, as it got in the way of Christmas shopping promotions at stores.

Pugh said they tried to get a chamber of commerce committee interested in taking on the event, but that didn't happen.

Downtown development authority director Steve Guile said, proposed curriculum would include four years of math, science, English and social studies. The current requirement is for two years of math and two years of science. Students also would study geography and life skills. Time in the six-hour day would be available for at least two, possibly four years of foreign language, electives and physical education.

Teachers would teach one class outside SWAS, and students would be in SWAS for four hours a day.

"This may be a way to create a niche for kids who don't naturally gravitate to band, theater or sports. We also want to preserve access to diversity at the park," said Burnstein. "We want our students to be part of CEP; to be part of clubs and activities, to ride the bus with other students and eat together. We don't want them to be isolated."

There would be no change in grading or the granting of credits. The program would start next year with ninth graders. A 10th grade would be added the following year, 11th grade the next, and finally a 12th grade. SWAS classrooms would be housed in one area, possibly at Salem High School.

Serving SWAS would be one administrator, one counselor, one special education teacher, one media specialist, one attendance person and one maintenance person.

"Getting to know these people on a daily basis would help build respect that would grow over four years," Way said. With team teaching, "we can provide a little more direction because we are seeing the same kids hour after hour," she added.

"I can't make 150 calls to parents, but I can make 30."

Carroll envisions SWAS as a hospitable place where teachers and students could get in touch during the summer and meet informally in small groups and for "Breakfasts of Champions" to honor academic achievement.

She also foresees SWAS taking field trips, performing community service and possibly publishing its own newspaper or yearbook.

To launch SWAS would cost an estimated $160,000 over four years.

Enrollment in SWAS would be done through a lottery.

SWAS would seek no special treatment, but instead apply for grants and hold fund-raisers, Carroll said.

School board members were receptive.

"I'm perfectly willing to entertain this," said Dean Swartzwelter. "You may have 500 kids who want this."

School board president Roland Thomas asked for specifics on how physical education requirements would be met and computer skills taught. He also asked for a detailed four-year budget.

Parent Betty Bloch asked why innovations such as the Breakfasts of Champions aren't already part of life at CEP.

Chuck Portelli, president of the teachers' union, said class size is a big concern.

"Teachers want the class averages to be the same. If you do that, that will help alleviate some of the criticism."

Kevin McMahan, a sophomore and student senator at Canton High School, has mixed views on SWAS.

"I think team teaching is a really good idea. When you have four teachers throughout the day, it gives you perspective on what they want and how to do better on tests. It's a one-on-one situation, whereas if you have teachers separate all the time you have to learn what they expect and what kind of tests they give.

"I don't know about the School Within a School. If 120 kids go to school with each other and graduate together, they will know kids in their own class but they won't meet anyone. I have more friends now than I ever thought I would when I went to high school. It's the greatest thing. Meeting a lot more people allows you to become more socially active. I think that helps when you get out into the business world."

Having one counselor one administrator for SWAS would be a strength, McMahan said. "Canton has at least 500 kids in each graduating class. It kind of makes it tough for the area coordinators (administrators). They have to pull up records. They don't remember your name or what's going on."

Critics knock Engler school plan

By Jill Halpin
Special Writer

It was an emotion-filled two-hour meeting with state legislators and when it was over, the message to Lansing was clear: It's time to stop playing politics and get serious about the Michigan education system.

"Education is like an investment. If you don't put anything into it, you won't get anything out of it. I don't want to see the education system set up on what is popular at the time," said Mary Anne Murray, a Canton resident.

Murray was one of 50 area residents — parents, teachers, students and business owners alike — who gathered last week to air their views on Gov. John Engler's proposed school finance bill. The gathering Wednesday evening at Canton Township Hall was one of a series of open forums sponsored by State Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton Township, to discuss the controversial bill. Also attending were State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, and State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Residents were varied on their concerns about the bill, from cuts in adult education funding to proposed limits on millage increases, and inequities in school funding throughout the state.

"I'm here to find out about what they intend to do about inequities across the districts. Why aren't we going to be allowed to increase our millage like other districts?" asked Wanda Eichner of Canton. All districts should be given the same amount of money, Eichner said. She is concerned that the proposed bill will cause the school system to deteriorate.

But Whyman, vice chairwoman of the House Education Committee, believes that the proposed bill is a good starting point. "Gov. Engler's initiative gave us a good starting point. It's now time to shape it into a practical strategy that prepares our children for life in the 21st century," she said.

However, Murray is concerned that Michigan's education system is being used as a pawn in a serious political game.

"I am unhappy with a lot of things about the schools. But what the politicians are suggesting won't help. They are using this to get votes," said Murray, who has two children in the school district. She is concerned that policy makers will be swayed by narrow interest groups, particularly those clamoring for lower property taxes.

"Everyone has to put something into education. It can't be a case of, 'I want to own a home but I don't want to pay taxes,' " Murray said.

Westland resident Rosemary Chapman is also concerned about the proposed bill, which in its current form would reduce funding for adult and continuing education programs.

Chapman, a Plymouth-Canton Schools transportation employee, finished her GED last spring through the adult education program with one of the highest scores on her program. She is currently attending additional classes through the program.

"I had been out of school for 30 years when I went back. Adult education provides a very valuable service to all members of the community," she said, adding that there are many who want to finish their education but are unable to due to the cost. "This program provides day care. There are a lot of single mothers out there who need this."

Her praise for the school's adult education program was echoed by another resident who tearfully told the group of returning to school to finish her schooling through the adult education program.

"It was always my dream to get my diploma. It took so much for me to start back, but I jumped at the first chance I had to get my education," she said, breaking up at one point. The adult education program is "for people like me, so we don't get lost in the shuffle."

Concerns about cuts in funding for adult and continuing education were widespread, and the hall was filled with people detailing their own experiences with the program.

Vorva congratulated students for returning to school and noted that he favors the use of a competitive grant system for funding adult education.

Canton resident Dale Engel voiced his frustrations with the school finance bill. The owner of businesses in Taylor and Livonia, he believes that high taxes are forcing people to turn away from the state.

"I don't hear enough about attacking the high costs of running the school system. There are no significant changes in this bill, we are not spending less. We are just shifting the high costs around," he said.

Livonia teacher Martha Trafford disagreed with Engler that school operating budgets should be cut any further. "Quality education cannot be bought cheap," she said.

Library offers computer event

If you are puzzled by terms such as FTP, Gophers, Telnet, Real-time, Global networking or IP address or if you have a personal computer with a model and have been thinking about venturing out onto the super highway of the electronic world, the Canton Public Library has something for you.

Mark Davis-Craig, a computer systems consultant for the University of Michigan will speak at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 10, at the library, 1200 S. Canton Center Road. Davis-Craig will talk about Internet and introduce some of the basic services through Internet. He will be available for questions.

Register for the program by calling the library at 397-0999.

Police need help finding armed robber

Canton police need help in locating a car driven by an unidentified armed man who robbed an employee at the Ultra Car Wash on Joy Road Nov. 1.

"We need information from anyone who saw a car parked there, car leaving or leaving quickly," said Canton Detective Jerry Hardesty. "The person would have been looking to get out of there fast."

Anyone who may have seen a car parked at or leaving the Ultra Car Wash, 42000 Joy, sometime around 6:20 p.m., is asked to call Hardesty at 397-5341 or the detective bureau at 397-5337.

At about 6:20 p.m., a man described as wearing a Richard Nixon mask entered the car wash bay area while the employee was in a back room. The employee was met by the man who pointed a 9 mm gun at him. "Give me your money," the robber told the employee, according to Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

The man took money off the employee and was last seen escaping through an open window. The employee was not injured, Colling said.

The robber was described as a white man in his 20s, 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighing 170 pounds.

"What I heard from some of the business people is that by delaying their exposure in terms of Christmas decorations and other accessories by one weekend, they thought other towns had a leg up."

"While the malls are proceeding with Christmas, we are holding back," said Larry Bird, co-owner of Country Charm on Main Street.

"There had been some suggestions to move to the weekend before," Guile said. "It's definitely something that needs to be taken a look at again; it was a very successful way to start the celebration of the holiday season," he added.

"I think the unique thing about it was it was totally a Plymouth celebration and the participation from the community groups was just an amazing thing, all the way from the high schools to the American Indian displays," Guile said.

In the future, he said, "I'm almost positive we'll be able to do something."

Guile said a committee of five could take on the celebration. Hill suggested that it might be fitting for the Plymouth Historical Society eventually to continue the event.

"Maybe somebody will want to pick it up and sponsor it," Pugh said. "It would be great. But my gut tells me it's probably gone."

Besides a lack of support from the business community, Pugh said organizers had to cope with some vandalism of hay bales, pumpkins and cornstalks placed around town to mark the event.

But beautification committee members would have liked to have known that only Plymouth books were delivered in October. They had been in contact with Ameritech for the recycling program and say they weren't told otherwise.

The Plymouth books are not delivered throughout Canton. And Canton doesn't have its own directory. "The books are scoped by sales," Pauli said.

Legislators massage money for area school allotments

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Usually, money bills are simple for state legislators to deal with. Just split the difference, give everyone something, cut deals 'til you get a majority, then go home.

Not so with next year's school aid bill in the Michigan Senate. All sorts of rock-solid principles are involved — subsidies to church-related schools, "reform" measures, tax bills.

"It's a very partisan bill," complained Democratic Sen. Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills.

"We've added $800 million to the bill. We're adding costs like they're going out of style," complained Sen. Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph, appropriations chair.

The school aid bill — which senators will continue debating this week — will be a landmark law. For the first time in modern history, state government will bear most of the $9-billion cost of public schools. And lawmakers are working on it 11 months in advance of the date it takes effect — instead of ramming it through at the last possible minute.

What happens may set precedents. Four issues were debated recently.

'Subsidies' fight

Hottest issue was what Democrats called "siphoning" — allowing students in a parochial school to take a course like physics or gym in public schools.

"It's a subsidy of a private school," said Faxon, arguing parochial students would take courses with the most expensive equipment. "It would be advantageous for non-public schools to locate in public school district facilities so they can use them for free."

"It really is a subsidy to let private education slide in on the expensive classes," agreed Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor.

"It's a solid part of the Republican agenda — the destruction of public schools," said Virgil Smith, D-Detroit. He called GOP plans for vouchers, choice and charter schools part of the "sleight-of-hand trick of siphoning."

To Republicans, it was simple justice — continuing the practice of letting non-public students use facilities their parents helped pay for.

DiNello's amendment was adopted 23-7, with eight not voting. Among area senators, Faxon voted no.

Opting out of sex ed

The Senate also adopted DiNello's amendment to let parents and guardians "opt out" of sex education for their children. DiNello said it was necessary for "parental rights and parental control."

Faxon deplored it. "Children are required to be educated on how not to get communicable diseases like AIDS," he said, arguing the amendment allowed parents deliberately to choose ignorance.

DiNello's amendment was passed 15-12 with 10 abstaining in an unrecorded vote.

No tie to taxes

Democrats lost their effort to tie-bar the school aid bill to voter approval next Feb. 8 of a constitutional amendment that would, among other things, hike the 4-percent sales tax to 6 percent. In a tie-bar, both measures must be adopted for either to take effect.

"Reject this," said Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, the Senate's school-aid guru. "If it (the ballot proposal) fails, I don't want to have the state school aid bill tied up," he said.

Retorted Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing: "It's absolutely critical that we tie this together as a package.

"Somewhere down the line," Faxon told DeGrow, "you (Republicans) are going to ask for our support (it takes a two-thirds vote of each chamber to put a proposal on the ballot). The school districts I represent do less well under this bill (than in the past). Why should anyone vote to raise taxes for a formula as flawed as this?"

The Democratic tie-bar was rejected as 21 Republicans overwhelmed 13 Democrats and Republican Fred Dillingham of Fowlerville.

'Floor' raised

On a vote that split the parties, the Senate raised the per-pupil foundation grant — the so-called "floor" for the poorest districts — to $4,800 from $4,500.

The amendment was sponsored by the state's three northernmost senators.

Hospice seeks local volunteers

The Hospice of Southeastern Michigan offers free grief support groups for individuals recovering from the loss of a loved one.

In western Wayne County a group meets 10-11:30 a.m. the first and third Tuesdays of each month in St. Hilary Education Center, 23901 Elmira, Redford Township.

The hospice is looking for the following types of volunteers.

■ Patient care volunteers who help patients by running errands and lending support. With additional training, volunteers may perform simple health care tasks like giving baths.

■ On-call volunteers are called whenever a patient or family needs their services. Services include driving, barbering, hairdressing, lawn care, snow shoveling and simple home maintenance.

■ Office volunteers provide clerical support. Volunteers with computer skills who are available three to four hours a week are in great demand.

Anyone over the age of 16 is welcome to volunteer. Volunteers are asked to work at least two hours a week for at least a year. Call 559-9209.

Agency helps direct holiday donations

Folks who want to donate something to a charity for the upcoming winter holidays should call United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit.

Just tell UCS staff what you want to donate (it doesn't have to be money) and you'll be steered to the agency that can best benefit from your gift.

The number to call is 226-9888.

Some of the suggested donations are diapers, boots, winter clothing, new toys, wrapped toiletries and cooking utensils.

Specialty shops are one-of-a-kind

It's always fun to find those intriguing one-of-a-kind shops in the neighborhood. Though I regret robbing you of the chance to make these discoveries on your own, I just couldn't keep these gems to myself.

If you're looking for an artful, hand-crafted Jewish ritual object, call Alicia Nelson (557-0109). Her home-based business, Tradition! Tradition!, 17235 Sherwilla Place in Southfield, is a local source for collectible Judaica.

Nelson's basement is a fine art gallery displaying ketubah (wedding documents), mezuzahs, Seder plates and menorahs. Her menorah collection includes exclusive hand-painted ceramic sculptures by Robert Lipnick and a fused glass interpretation by Israeli Dani Katesir, a resident of West Bloomfield ($400).

Dreidel collectors will love the extensive selection, including sterling silver and glass renderings. Nelson developed the idea for a glass and silver mezuzah mounted on stained glass. The result is stunning. Also displayed are Leona Fein's potichomania, the art of preserving sacred documents under glass. Mickey Mackey selected two silver bridal shower gifts on the day that I visited. "Alicia has such great, unusual things," she exclaimed. My favorite of her objets d'art is a blue glass wedding cup, given as a gift to the bride and groom. By custom, the glass is broken during the ceremony and the pieces are collected and sent to the artist, a glass blower who fashions them into a paperweight etched with the couple's name and wedding date.

Visit Tradition! Tradition! by appointment only.

Pretty papers

Tim Markaity opened his imported decorative paper gallery, Sheets, as a source and creative outlet for photographic artists, bookbinders, calligraphers and others who work with distinctive papers. He envisions the shop as a sort of library/workspace where people can come in and brainstorm and create — thus the comfortable chairs and table lined with notebooks containing samples of the 300 plus sheets of paper in stock.

The papers include crinkled tissue-like unryu from Thailand, gold and silver-swirled Shimizu from Japan, French marbles and archival quality 17th century lost link paste papers.

Each paper is described and delineated by usage. For example, some are perfect for gift wrap, note paper or business cards, while others are used for bookbinding, invitations or architectural drawings. "Some people underestimate the importance of paper," said calligrapher Diane Stum Fekete of Canton as she admired the array of sheets. "In visual arts, paper can be the inspiration for a project." .....Kelley Heath, a calligrapher from Dearborn Heights is glad that she will no longer have to mail order large quantities of supplies from a black and white catalog. Now she can see and feel each paper, and can get as little as a half sheet of each design. "I can use one paper for writing, one as an accent, and a third to weave through," she says.

Though Sheets has a special appeal to a niche audience, look for silk screened Christmas cards, hand-painted bookmarks, journals, Retro 51 pens, Japanese erasers, handmade paper portfolios and lots of how-to and design books.

The shop is soon to offer bookbinding, calligraphy, paper making and origami classes. Sheets, 501 S. Washington, Royal Oak. .....Linda Bachrack is a Birmingham resident. You can leave her column ideas at 953-2047, or fax them to her at 644-1314.

Jacobson's marks 125 retail years

Jacobson's celebrates 125 years in the retail business this week with special events at its Birmingham, Livonia and Rochester Hills stores. Reflecting on this success, CEO Mark Rosenfeld discusses where Jacobson's has come from and where it's going.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Rosenfeld

"My mom always shopped at Jacobson's, or Jake's, as she called it," recalled Amanda Riley, while browsing the table linens at the downtown Birmingham store last week. "I learned early that good things come in the silver box. I like the unique merchandise. I like the service. I like the quality, so I guess I've become a Jake's shopper, too."

Consistency. That's the ticket. "We've stuck to our guns, stayed consistent with our values and basic principles through the years," said Mark Rosenfeld, Jacobson's president. "We're consistent in our approach to retailing. Our customers understand what we stand for and so do our employees."

Rosenfeld's father, Nathan Rosenfeld, bought the Jacobson's store in 1939 from the Jacobson family. The company started as a woman's apparel shop in Reed City, Mich., in 1868. Today, Jacobson's operates 25 stores in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Florida and, soon, Louisville, Ky.

In 1992, the company reported sales figures of $412 million, and this year, Rosenfeld said the "increases are trending up." However, he admitted the company's cosmetic and designer gown business has been hurt by Neiman Marcus and other upscale retailers that opened last year in the Somerset Collection in Troy.

"There are certainly more Estee Lauder doors open to shoppers and more Chanel counters, but I'm certain Jacobson's will rebound," he said.

It's that ol' consistency thing. Rosenfeld points out that Jacobson's is planning to expand these departments and fight back with greater selections and better customer service. A computerized bridal registry is on the way to do battle with Hudson's, which currently has 80 percent of the registry trade.

"We're going after the brides," Rosenfeld said. "The minute they come in for a gown, (we're still one of the few department stores with a bridal salon), we're going to direct them to our stationery department for invitations, our brisal registry for china, silver and crystal, then our linens department for housewares. They need to know they can pick up gifts for their bridal party at Jacobson's and purchase tuxedos. It's all here. One-stop shopping."

Jacobson's was the first department store in the nation to eliminate annual white sales and furniture sales, according to Rosenfeld. This marketing plan was based on consistency of price, so shoppers wouldn't feel they had to wait for sales to buy things they needed.

"Our prices are fair," he said. "They don't change on a seasonal basis except, of course, in the fashion departments where clearance sales are held twice each year to clear out styles and dated merchandise. Our customers can confidently purchase an item from Jacobson's knowing it's not going on sale next week, not feeling shafted."

Rosenfeld made no apologies for being an "upscale retailer." He said that is the company's market niche. He said while the company does have top lines like Chanel and Valentino, Jacobson's also sells quality moderate lines, items for the discriminating shopper.

He sidestepped the touchy issue of Jacobson's, traditionally a main street retailer, moving into malls. Recently the company moved its aged downtown Ann Arbor store to bright.

New children's class teaches mini-manners

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Eavesdropping on the tables of little ones enjoying a snack during their manners class at Jacobson's in Laurel Park Place one Saturday morning was pure delight.

"We don't need manners when we eat at Pizza Hut," Tim Nagrocki, 5, of Farmington Hills told his buddy, John Sachs, 6, also of Farmington Hills.

"Yes, you do," Sachs replied. "You haveta use your napkin."

"Oh, yea," Nagrocki conceded. "That pizza is leaky."

"And what do we do with our napkin when we're done eating?" instructor Pam McCarthy quizzed.

"You put it down next to your plate on the right side," Monica Krystyniak, 8, of Livonia answered.

"And where does your napkin go when you have to go to the bathroom in the middle of dinner?" McCarthy continued to quiz.

"ON YOUR CHAIR!" the room exploded.

McCarthy quickly reminded the

YWCA honors area women

GUY WARREN/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

State Rep. Lyn Bankes and Marcia Anderson, founder and president of Personalized Nursing Corp. in Detroit and LIGHT House Corp. in Plymouth, were among those honored at the YWCA of Western Wayne County's annual Women of Achievement luncheon last Friday.

Bankes, R-Redford, was honored in the government and law category; Anderson in business and industry.

"State Rep. Bankes has been instrumental in bringing funding for child-related causes," said YWCA's Corinne Vincent who organized the awards project.

Bankes, whose district includes part of Livonia, is a member of the House Policy Committee and chairs the House Child Care Task Force. She is a strong supporter of the DARE program and introduced the BABES program to this area.

"BABES is for kids in child-care centers and it teaches self-esteem," Bankes said. "It's not enough to just tell them to say no to drugs. It takes a lot of inner strength."

Bankes has published six booklets on child care and started the annual Michigan Child Care Challenge.

"A lot of people think helping the very young is a nice idea, but other issues, like taxes and school funding, are sexier and have higher visibility," she said. "Working for young children is something you peck away at. You have to be satisfied with very small successes."

Anderson, the first person to earn a Ph.D. in nursing from the University of Michigan and a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing, was honored for her innovative work with chemically addicted men and women.

"I'm really excited about this," Anderson said. "I am thrilled that the community recognizes the good work my colleagues and I are doing."

Personalized Nursing Corp. (1983) and LIGHT House (1990) were founded with a unique approach to the treatment of the chemically dependent.

"Basically, we believe that addiction is the dark side of creativity and we try to get these highly creative people back on their creative paths," Anderson said. "We really do value people here and we help them do in life what they were put here to do. What we are doing is nursing outside the medical system. We are using nursing to create a healing environment."

Other women honored as part of the awards program included:

- Education: Callie Hester, retired Inkster public school administrator and community advocate.
- Community volunteer service: Lynda Baker, consultant for the Wayne County Public Health Department.
- Teen achievement: DeAdre Wynell Dawkins, Inkster High School senior.
- Arts and communication: Jackie Kaiser, Cablevision Industries, Dearborn.

The awards are given to women who, "demonstrate qualities of outstanding leadership and excellence in both their professional and personal endeavors for the betterment of western Wayne County."

Among those nominated were Joan Morrison of Garden City and Unisys Corp. in Plymouth (business and industry), Elizabeth Johnson of Plymouth and Partners in Education (government and law), Judge Karen Khalil, 17th District Court in Redford Township (government and law), Arlene Funke of Redford (community service) and Julie Paddison of Livonia (community service).

new headquarters at the nearby Briarwood Mall with great success.

Some feared the Birmingham stores would be next to relocate. When asked if Jacobson's might move out of Birmingham and into the announced Somerset North Collection in Troy with Nordstrom and Hudson's, Rosenfeld had this to say:

"We're always looking at every new vehicle, new format, new situation. But we have a lot of value in our Birmingham location. (Jacobson's owns these buildings.) We're very committed to downtown Birmingham."

Rosenfeld said the company will be "tweaking our ad stance. We're looking at how we select media for advertising. We'll be trying some new approaches."

He also said the East Lansing and Birmingham stores will be updated and several others will get new lighting and display fixturing.

As for the recent decision to get out of the furniture business, Rosenfeld said those employees will be offered other jobs in the company. Meanwhile, the East Lansing furniture store will be sold, the Birmingham store will be used for other classifications of merchandise, and the Livonia store will see an expanded men's sportswear division. The cosmetic, fashion accessory, decorative accessory and artwork departments will be also be expanded within these stores.

Will Jackson-based Jacobson's remain a family business? Rosenfeld, the father of three, just laughed.

"It's hard to tell," he said. "But I will say that it's a terrific business. I just read something by Bob Sakowitz, who wrote that in the retail business, you really have the chance to be a Renaissance man. You enjoy personal dealings with a lot of different concepts, businesses and people. There's a variety of ideas and cultures. It's never dull."

class about the raising your hand rule.

Last month, at the request of customers, Jacobson's premiered "The Magic of Manners," a complimentary program for kids 5-8 years old. The response for reservations was overwhelming and the classes booked through one year within weeks.

Magic of Manners joins New Dimensions, a four-week grooming and fitness program for girls 10-13 years old, and the venerable Teen Board, a program where high school boys and girls have learned merchandising and volunteered their help during promotions for the past 25 years.

"We are thrilled with the response to the manners program for children," said Linda Gundersen, promotions manager at the Laurel Park Place store in Livonia. "The program will be offered again in February and then sometime in the spring. It's an hour-long on Saturday mornings for five weeks. The program was created by our corporate staff and they really did a great job."

After graduating from the program in a ceremony where they must set a correct table for mom, dad or grandma, the children will have learned contemporary rules for being polite when a friend comes over, when they answer the telephone, when they meet new people. Practice games are played at each session.

ART ON THE EDGE

Wildly flashy: Fantasy is the name of the game for Raphael when it comes to designing fashions from hair.

He fashions hot looks to spice nights

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

The medium is hair, the style, fantasy. Raphael weaves both of these artistic elements into fashion designs for the flamboyant.

It all comes quite naturally to him because he works with hair all day long. By day he styles hair in his shop, Raphael's of West Bloomfield. At night his fantasies take shape to dress daring, fashion conscious femmes.

Braided creations with fringed shoulder pads, voluminous satin-like drapings all crafted from hair, these brash spicy not-for-everyone fashions shout mischief. Wear any one of Raphael's designs, then just try to remain anonymous.

"I fantasize all the time. I like unusual things, exotic and take it further beyond what anyone else would," said the young designer in an interview at the salon which first opened in 1985.

"It's an unusual idea, priceless. You invent new material, a museum piece, for someone to stop traffic."

What's hot on the fashion scene this fall? What's in vogue and up-to-the-minute? Long skirts, short hair, vibrant red lipstick? Well maybe, but for sure these dresses made from hair.

If you're looking for something a little different in a wedding dress or simply don't want to look like anyone else, Raphael's hair wear will make you a stand out in any crowd.

Using tangle-free processed hair, Raphael literally hand crafts the material with which he will shape the dresses into woven and spiked designs. He's very hush-hush however about where he purchases the hair, saying shorn tresses from the clientele seen in his shop don't meet length requirement necessary for the fantasy apparel.

Raphael's idea for the fantasy fashions evolved rather naturally 12 years ago while creating fantasy hair designs for evening wear.

I cut hair everyday. The fantasy is my hobby. I was doing basket weave and jewelry to match the hairdos. The hair moved down from there," Raphael said.

Producing his own line of hair and skin products provides Raphael with the binding to hold the dresses together.

Fashioned in sections, Raphael's apparel must be stored flat in boxes. Hanging them in a closet would cause the weave to loosen and separate.

Raphael has drawn since he was a little boy. Back home in the Middle East, he began cutting hair at age 12, by 14 he had his own shop. Today when he sketches it's to design fashions with an eye to the future.

"Everytime I create something, I get excited about it. So I like to create something better and better all the time."

The release date for Raphael's new perfume, "Giving," has been targeted to arrive just in time for holiday gift giving.

Raphael will donate $5 from each purchase made to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

"I wanted something that smelled clean like giving," he said of the new scent.

Coincidentally, Raphael showed his fantasy fashions for the first time in public at a fund-raiser in late October for St. Mary Hospital. Since then he's showed the apparel at a hair convention in Memphis.

"He makes hair an art, the fantasy hair and clothing," said Carol Cassie of Livonia who produced the "Hollywood Nights" event which raised $70,000 for the hospital.

"They're fabulous, not within the format of everyday fashions. You know it's a fantasy."

Concrete Blonde has its 'Moon'

■ Concrete Blonde decided to take its time with the recording of its new album "Mexican Moon." The result is a diverse sound but not one that they take on the road with them.

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

The last time Concrete Blonde was in town, lead singer Johnette Napolitano learned a hard lesson about the Detroit Pistons.

In introducing the Jimi Hendrix song "Castles in the Sand," Napolitano talked about a good-looking Piston she met named "Joey" while working out at The Palace of Auburn Hills' gym. The audience responded by chanting "Du-uuuuumars." Napolitano, unfamiliar with the tradition, chided the audience for booing.

Frustrated, she went into the song.

A year later, she's happy to hear that Pistons' fans aren't as nasty to their own players as they are to others.

"I was freaked out; I couldn't figure out why they were booing him," a hoarse Napolitano said laughing hysterically. "That completely flipped me out. Thank god that whole mystery's solved."

It was good comic relief for Napolitano who at the time was laid up in a hotel room suffering from a long bout with the flu. Although she was too ill to go to sound check, she's more than willing to talk about her new record "Mexican Moon" and her own remedies for a cold.

"I had yesterday off and all I did was lay around and eat soup. I just rest until I go on, take a shot of Tequila. The best remedy is Tabasco sauce. I'm taking some right now," she said without so much of a pause.

She may have been ill but it barely quieted her trademark powerful voice. During soundchecks her voice fills empty venues like Pine Knob Music Theatre. Critics and fans adore Napolitano for her loud yet sultry voice in songs like "Walking in London" and "Joey." Sometimes her bandmates aren't too fond of it.

"There's a down side; I happen to have a naturally loud voice. It's bad if I'm too close to someone in the hotel, they can hear me all the way down the hallway. Sometimes Jim (Mankey, guitarist) will say, 'I heard you talking on the phone last night.

Back again: Concrete Blonde members Jim Mankey, Johnette Napolitano and Harry Rushakoff are back in the metropolitan area to play at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor on Wednesday, Nov. 10.

I couldn't sleep.' It's like Foghorn Leghorn or something," Napolitano said.

This time around, Concrete Blonde is filling the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor to promote the self-produced Spanish-themed "Mexican Moon." The recording of the album, their first for Capitol Records, marks the first time Concrete Blonde took their time with the process. They chose cheaper studios to work in so they were able to record at a slower pace. Napolitano said the vigorous schedule of recording an album, touring, then recording the next album and touring, was wearing on the band.

"We felt like we deserved to take a little bit of time with this one," she said.

Concrete Blonde — which also includes drummer Harry Rushakoff — widened its sound as well. Bassist/singer Napolitano picked up the guitar for a few songs and played piano on others. For "Mexican Moon" she didn't feel she had to limit herself to what she could do live.

"When you're young, you want to capture that live feel of the band (on record). Now it's two different mediums. I didn't censor myself in that way," she said. "We wanted to savor the process . . . we didn't chose from a certain palette of colors."

As a result, Napolitano is happier with this album than she has been with others.

"We pushed ourselves harder than anybody's pushed us before. We spent the better part of the year working on it and there's nothing I want to correct or change."

Concrete Blonde with special guests the Oblivious perform at the Michigan Theatre, 603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor on Wednesday, Nov. 10. Tickets are $17.50. For more information, call 668-8397 or 645-6666.

Native look: Jay Kay, lead singer of Jamiroquai, uses the American Indian's medicine man as a trademark. He brings his acid jazz sound and a nine-piece band to Industry on Wednesday, Nov. 10.

Jamiroquai: Band that's no Wonder

Jason Kay, lead singer of the English acid jazz phenom Jamiroquai, has battled endless vocal comparisons to Stevie Wonder since the release of his debut album "Emergency on Planet Earth."

Although flattering, it's one that Kay disagrees with.

"That's an insult to the man; it's like saying two plus two equals five," Kay said.

The outspoken Kay wants it made clear that the comparisons didn't begin with him. It was the media.

"It's not like when I hear Stevie-I sing it back to myself and say, 'God, I've got to get it closer.' "

Earlier this year, he found himself face-to-face with his Motown influences. In what Kay calls a bizarre contest, an English radio station chose a lucky listener to fly to Detroit with Kay to visit the Motown Museum in April.

"It was wild, well, not that wild. We were on the 14th floor of the Westin, or wherever we were; we met up with George Clinton's keyboardist and he took us around," Kay said. "We went to the Motown Museum and ate soul food. It was kind of good."

Good, but depressing. Kay now wishes he could use the same recording techniques that his idols used.

"It was amazing to be in that little room with that little eight track. I'd rather go on that eight track. It definitely would get better sound than what we're using."

According to the British and U.S. press, Jamiroquai's sound is fine. His band's album "Emergency on Planet Earth" has been an unexpected hit in the United Kingdom. In the United

Repression returns in 'Remains'

■ MOVIES

By John Monaghan
Special Writer

That kiss on the wrist in "The Age of Innocence" is going to seem pretty steamy compared to "The Remains of the Day," where Anthony Hopkins' repressed butler gets little more than a handshake after loving housekeeper Emma Thompson for nearly 30 years.

Not to say that the drama, based on a novel by Kazuo Ishiguro and playing jointly at the Maple and Main theatres, is anything but wonderful. This very genteel, subtle, and literary film is more puregold from the filmmaking team that brought us the popular "Room with a View" and "Howard's End."

Fans of the latter film have been hungry to see Oscar-winners Thompson and Hopkins reunited in roles that put them in the forefront. He plays the meticulous Stevens, a true "gentleman's gentleman" on an English estate in the 1930s, who softens slightly in the presence of the equally competent, but also warm, housekeeper Ms. Kenton.

They wrangle at first. She speaks her mind when it comes to Stevens' father, a butler all his life who now works at Darlington Hall. Well beyond his years of useless service, he makes mistakes that Ms. Kenton doesn't want to see repeated - for the old man's sake as well as the estate's.

After all, Darlington Hall has lately been the sight of major political events, with Lord Darlington urging English diplomats to accept Germany's military buildup. He invites high- ranking Nazis to lavish parties, full of speeches about Hitler's desire for peace, a gesture that will later brand Darlington a traitor.

Even years later, the ever-loyal Stevens believes that Darlington was a noble man, a gentleman, and only misled by his own desire for peace. The movie backs up this sentiment but also leads you to believe that Stevens, educated solely in the proper placement of a table setting, would have been loyal in the service of Hitler himself.

A wonderful scene toward the end finds Stevens in a country pub, where the locals assume that because of his manners and talk, the butler must be a wealthy gentleman. He doesn't refute it, instead reluctantly offering that he does indeed know Winston Churchill, though he fails to mention in what capacity.

The village doctor, however, sees right through him. He adds to the butler's doubts about what was going on in the house before the war and what his obligation was to stop it -- or at least have some opinions on the matter.

Producer Ishmail Merchant and director James Ivory are well-known for creating sumptuous films on limited budgets and "The Remains of the Day" is no exception. There is exquisite period detail inthe spotless yet comfortably lived-in Darlington Hall, contrasted by the utilitarian servants' quarters.

Most of the action takes place here, except for Stevens' journey in the late 1950s to meet with Ms. Kenton in the hopes that she'll return to her former position. The symbolic car journey allows himto recall the glory days of Darlington Hall, where he now serves a new master.

Which brings us to Christopher Reeve, the pleasant looking but hopelessly dull actor who plays an American representative in "The Remains of the Day." He makes a lofty speech about the well-meaning amateur politics of the English elite and prophetically suggests that this will drag Europe and America fully into war.

Later, almost as a reward for his wisdom, he will own Darlington Hall, chucking some of the formality by placing a ping pong table in the dining room. Sadly Reeve, even after all the experience he'sgained on Broadway since his "Superman" debut, still hasn't developed into much of an actor.

He looks especially shabby next to the two leads, true professionals and arguably the best and most effortlessly classical film actors working today. More than its sometimes sappy story of loyal service and repressed love, "The Remains of the Day" is a celebration of flawless acting.

States, however, his band's slow to catch on.

Susan Schweidler, manager of Royal Oak's Repeat the Beat record store, had a few reasons why.

"It's not crap, to tell you the truth. Most of the things that get big have a bland bit to them. It sells head over fist. Also, with Jamiroquai, you can't put that anywhere, it has pop, R&B and jazz aspects to it. It's hard to say his name. This CD is actually talent," she said.

Aside from that, the socially conscious lyrics share Kay's reverence for the earth and the spirit of the Iroquois - hence the medicine man "shadow" in every available photo of Kay. Kay said that he wasn't about to compromise his beliefs and write about love or something to sell more records.

"A lot of things annoy me. ... I find it difficult to write about anything else."

■ 'They (Sony) know how to play the game. I wanted no compromises. They wanted a producer for the album. We wanted to do it ourselves, thank you very much.'

Jay Kay
lead singer for Jamiroquai

"I think it all relates from the lose Native American connection to the medicine man. There's so much crap ... it's because we have government running things."

To help promote the album, Repeat The Beat and Columbia Records (Jamiroquai's label) hosted Greenpeace in the store last Saturday. In exchange for recyclable materials, participants received a CD single of "When You Gonna Learn." Those who bought the album, received two tickets to Jamiroquai's show this Wednesday at Industry in Pontiac.

The album, "Emergency on Planet Earth," is Jamiroquai's first of eight he signed to do for Sony Music - a contract deal unheard of for a previously unknown act.

"They're smart cookies," Kay said with a laugh.

For the album, he recruited extras like the Brand New Heavies' Simon Bartholomew and Andrew Levy. Reminiscent of the Heavies, he lays his poignant lyrics on top of horn-flavored jazz/soul base.

"I feel confident with what I do. ... We're a bunch of white guys doing the stuff we like. People watch that and wonder who the hell we are. We're just doing what we like."

Jamiroquai will perform Wednesday, Nov. 10, at Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac. Must be 18 or older to enter. Doors open at 8 p.m. There is no opening band. Tickets are $8.50 in advance. For more information, call 334-1999.

POINTS OF VIEW

Suggestion could result in school mayhem

Beavis and Butthead may stand for senseless violence on television, but in Michigan government, they represent the senseless mayhem of Gov. John Engler and some of his juvenile acting legislators. When it comes to education, most of them just don't know which end is up.

Take for instance the comment made by Plymouth State Rep. Jerry Vorva to Richard Wilson, executive director of the In-Formula School District caucus. Mr. Vorva didn't like Mr. Wilson's statement about charter schools; so, the "Dennis the Menace" of the Legislature attempted to downplay Mr. Wilson's opinion by saying, "Sir, you are the south end of a horse running north."

Such playground name calling. But then again, what else should the citizens expect? For such behavior has been modeled for the legislators by Engler, who has called the educational establishment everything from a "gulag" (Siberian prison camp) to the "Berlin Wall." (Public schools are really an oasis in a desert currently overrun with destructive, predatory, "political" locusts.)

Vorva went on to say that the governor's proposed charter schools should be able to hire non-certified teachers, including individuals such as himself. He listed his own following credentials: graduating from college with honors, 10 years as a police officer, a production scheduler, a real estate salesman and member of the Plymouth City Commission.

After reflecting on this resume, I'm still trying to decide what these experiences might qualify Mr. Vorva to teach — ancient history? Physics? Calculus? English literature? Computers?

Am I missing something here? We now have certified auto mechanics in Michigan to work on our cars, but the governor and legislators propose uncertified teachers to instruct the people behind the wheel . . . Hmmm.

The bottom line, Mr. Vorva, is that if you think you have something to offer the children of this state, as a teacher, please show us what you can do. Call Plymouth Salem or Canton High and offer to come in and teach a few classes for a day.

An ideal time to do this would be American Education Week, Nov. 14-20. This would be a golden opportunity for you to experience firsthand what you've been missing by being so far removed from education up there in Lansing. Better yet, ask all the legislators to join you in their respective districts. We'll call it "Michigan, Get Up Off Your Buttocks Day."

You also stated, "We are not going to listen to people like you who say things won't get better unless we get more . . . money."

That's precisely what's wrong with the current muddle occurring in Lansing. Most of you are refusing to listen to the very people who work within the educational field. We are not "butt-inskis." We are the experts who have invested our hearts, our souls, our careers and considerable time, trying to meet the challenges of education in a changing society. We will not be shut out — we will be heard.

All elected officials are supposed to be listening to what their constituents have to say; all their constituents, no ifs, ands, or buts.

To paraphrase what Voltaire said: I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it. Remember, a public office is a public trust not a public truss.

Tell the governor and all the other legislators to visit our schools during American Education Week, Nov. 14-20, to see first hand all the great things that are happening in our schools.

Remind them, too, that they can expect us to be royal pains in the derriere, until they listen to what we have to say.

Martha A. Trafford is a Canton resident and a teacher in the Livonia public school system.

This education model stresses mastery of subjects

QUESTION: Outcome Based Education seems to be a hot issue in many states across the country, according to newspaper accounts. Is this something new? How does it differ from what has been going on in schools?

ANSWER: In theory, the Outcome Based Education (OBE) movement is very sound. An OBE curriculum basically states specific measurable learned outcomes in all subject areas, outcomes that a child is expected to master. Those who promote the theory believe education can no longer rely on the concept of a child's education being based solely on "time spent in class or school" (e.g., two years of math completed, three years of social studies.)

The model OBE program does not rely on typical symbols, such as S (Satisfactory), AA (above average) or NI (Needs Improvement) in the elementary nor grades (ABCDE) in high school. An authentic Outcome Based program will have a testing (assessment) program that is aligned to the district's stated outcomes in each subject area. It measures whether or not a child has mastered a specific skill or objective, such as subtracting mixed fractions. The child is usually expected to answer correctly three of four questions for mastery of the objective.

Outcome Based Educators would say the S (Satisfactory) on our historical report card (above) doesn't identify the specific skills the child missed under math concepts. However, an NM (Not Mastered) on the OBE report card (above) after a specific math skill immediately tells the teacher, the principal and the parent that this child can't subtract mixed fractions.

A classic OBE report card would list every skill in the content (subject) area and consider mastery of a skill only when a child answers at least three of four questions measuring a particular skill.

DOC DOYLE

Gov. Engler, of course, was moving into the mastery learning concept (OBE) when he announced that high school students will pass an essential (used to be called basic) skills state proficiency test in 1997 or not graduate. Frankly, I see nothing wrong with a state proficiency test. And if teachers think I'm laying it on them, they are wrong. When those moms and dads who have dumped their kids on the system find out that their kid isn't going to graduate, let's hope they show up for a teacher/parent conference and pay attention for a change.

Educational leaders have different opinions on OBE. A nationally known friend of mine, Dr. Bill Spady, director of the International Center for Outcome Based Education says, "A unit of credit has nothing to do with what a child has absorbed or can demonstrate. With different outcomes expected in different classes and different standards in different buildings and in different districts, too many children graduate without the skills they need. And this is true!

Conversely, Dr. Michael Apple, professor of education at the University of Wisconsin says, "While Outcome Based Education has some good points, I am deeply worried about its hidden dangers.

"We're at a time when the conservative agenda is very powerful in education. More and more schools are being treated like factories where "inputs and output" are measured against each other.

So here we go again. Educators never seem to be able to agree! Dr. Spady wants measured outcomes while the warm, kindly professor, Dr. Apple, wants the Gestalt theory in place, that is, looking at person in totality and not only as a learner but a social, psychological human being with other needs.

In any case, Michigan educators, like it or not, are being forced into a quasi Outcome Based Education model by Engler's graduation proficiency test. Let's give it a try. What have we got to lose!

Cars wrecked

Injuries: A Canton man, 34, who was driving a 1984 Olds Cutlass, was in stable condition Friday with multiple fractures at St. Jopseph Mercy Hospital following a car crash at about 11 p.m. Tuesday. Treated and released from the hospital was a passenger in his car, a 23-year-old Plymouth woman, and the driver of the other car, a 44-year-old Leslie, Mich., man. The driver of the second car said the Olds driver did not stop for a stop sign. Police are investigating the accident.

Haunted Halloween gathering draws kudos from all involved

More than 200 children and adults filled the Plymouth Historical Museum on Saturday, Oct. 31, for a Tom Rice and Craig Roney children's Halloween concert put on by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Three local organizations, the Plymouth Community Arts Council, Plymouth Historical Museum and the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees, all called the event a success after combining efforts for a family Halloween treat.

"The Plymouth Community Arts Council was excited to join with the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees and the museum," said Christine Ilas, executive director of the council. "With this cooperative spirit, Plymouth is sure to see more quality events like this, and very possibly more often."

The fun started with a visit through the museum's Baby Boomer toy collection. Local real estate agent Gerald Ash greeted the young concert-goers with a hug from everyone's favorite large purple dinosaur. Tom Rice and Craig Roney entertained the crowd with an hour of silly and slightly scary ghost stories and music.

Following the concert, the group headed for a "not too scary" haunting of the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees haunted house. The high school students, many of them from the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, who had been volunteering their scary services for the haunted house, turned out to happily haunt the youngsters. "This was a really terrific way for the Jaycees to be more involved with other non-profit groups in the community," said Don McDurmon, president of the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees.

Beth Stewart, director of the Plymouth Historical Museum, said, "It was great to see families enjoying the toy collection together, and the concert was just wonderful."

"I really liked the idea of the three organizations working together to offer something really special to the community," said Stewart. "We would be open to doing future children's concerts with the arts council here at the museum. It's a great place for families to gather."

Two corporate sponsors also made the event possible, American Speedy Printing of Plymouth and The Plymouth Landing Restaurant. In addition to supporting the program, the Plymouth Landing offered a special $1.95 children's lunch. Response to the program was so positive that the Plymouth Landing Restaurant will honor the price on a child's lunch to anyone still holding "A Haunting We Will Go!" tickets throughout the month of November.

PREPARING FOR THE HOLIDAYS
If you have arthritis, now is not too soon to consider the holiday season.
If you give it no forethought, you may drift into worry and upset as others about you undertake the activities associated with Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day.
No one needs tell you that having fun and being joyous takes work; the good time comes only after effort and attention to detail. If you are to avoid joint strain, and take on responsibilities you can discharge, you must prepare with organization and follow with resolve.
Questions that call for answers at this time include: Will you entertain or take the role of guest, will you be visiting out of your house or even out of state. Who needs gifts, and what is appropriate, given not only your finances but your mobility in a holiday shopping crowd?
Will you host a party or supper and if so, who is available to help buy food, set the table, or even bring a dish for the meal? Can you drive without apprehension in winter conditions and for how long. If you have a flare is their someone available to take the role of chauffer?
Once you have answered these questions, and likely a number more, set your schedule and stick to it.
As you see, treating arthritis is as much a mental discipline as it is of one's medical choice.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Momma's mashed potatoes can't be beat

Mention "comfort food" and without a doubt, mashed potatoes will surface as one of the classics.

The Janes Gang was raised on a steady diet of mashed potatoes. Anyone could buy a 10-pound bag at Jack Cinnamon's produce store for just a snicker over two bits back in the late 1950s. It was a wise budgetary decision to include potatoes in just about every meal.

Momma must have earned all "A's" in Potatoes 101. Her hash browns were nothing short of decadent, especially when fried in oleomargarine in her gigantic 12-inch cast iron fry pan.

You've heard me revel, and I've secretly printed, Momma's "nothing short of stellar" potato salad during the summer. There's something about Momma's always-nothing-short-of-spectacular mashed potatoes that brings back childhood memories. None could, and to this day none can, make mashed potatoes as good as Momma.

Aunt Phyllis made mashed potatoes with an electric hand mixer. I remember Grandma Lory making mashed potatoes with a ricer that still lurks in the fruit cellar. But Momma's mashed potatoes were special. They were special for three reasons.

Special potatoes

■ Reason number one: they weren't just boiled potatoes. Momma would secretly cut up a few parsnips or a small rutabaga and throw them into the pot of boiling potatoes. If you did this you wouldn't notice that much of a difference in flavor. If your palate was clean and not shaded by the taste of gravy or alcohol, you might notice a sweetness that could be confused with a pinch of sugar. The mashed potatoes made with mashed rutabaga would be slightly denser because of the density of the rutabaga.

■ Reason number two: Momma would never even consider using anything to mash her potatoes other than her favorite hand masher tool. Ma always said potatoes mashed with an electric mixer were gluey from being over mixed. Her hand held masher, not the kind with pencil wide holes that resembles a plunger but the old fashioned kind with two rows of stainless ribbons making an "M" pattern is what she swears by.

■ Reason number three should be reason number one if you look at this in true logical sequence. When boiling the potatoes, keep just enough water to cover the potatoes and keep them at a gentle boil rather than a vicious one. The secret being that when properly cooked, the potatoes should be able to slide off a metal fork after being pierced without falling apart. Momma always said that Aunt Edna's mashed potatoes "were boiled to death" and now I know why.

Contest

Being a lover of comfort food, the thought of making mashed potatoes on par with Momma proved a challenge that couldn't be passed. Armed with a copy of this month's "Cook's" magazine with a whole section on perfect mashed potatoes, the sites were set on Wyandotte.

The rules were simple; Momma makes her mashed potatoes and I make mine. The judge's decision is final as dad's word usually is. Momma cut open a fresh bag of Michigan all-purpose potatoes she bought on sale at the grand opening of a new Farmer Jack store. She reached for her old trusty two-quart Metalcrafter saucepan and a lid that she reminded dad to tighten when she was finished.

Armed with the magazine, a bag of Yukon Gold potatoes that cost as much as a tank of gas, and a Calphalon saucepot with matching lid, my head was swelling knowing darned well that victory was a rolling simmer away.

Of course, Momma felt the same. This was comfort food in the making.

We peeled potatoes, we pinched salt, we simmered all the while drinking coffee that was drip perked on the stove top as it has been done ever since I remember. She laughed at me and my newfangled gadgets, I laughed at her paring her potatoes with a knife she bought from E.J. Korvette 20 years ago while the Wustoph-Tridents sat untouched.

We both mashed by hand with our favorite mashers. She added oleo while butter made it's way into mine. We agreed on whole milk only because that was our only choice. She would have preferred buttermilk, while skim would have been my healthier pick. Dad heated a two-inch slab of meatloaf in the microwave much to my surprise, and donned the judge's hat for what would be one of the toughest decisions of his life.

You be the judge. See recipes inside. To leave a message for Chef Larry, dial 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then mailbox number 1886.

Take comfort in food that Soothes

Soup's on: The Rev. Ernest Porcari fills a bowl with his hearty Pasta a Fagiola, (Italian Bean Soup.) According to friends, he can perform culinary miracles with garlic, olive oil and pasta.

As cold winds begin to blow, warm up with comfort foods. Casseroles, soups, mashed potatoes and other stick-to-your-ribs culinary wonders that warm our souls and fill our stomachs. Families share stories and recipes about their favorite comfort foods.

Vacation funds are spent, after-school activities are in full swing, and the holiday season looms menacingly on the horizon. In other words, stress levels are about to reach the acute stage. The remedy? Comfort food.

I'm talking mashed potatoes, tender pasta, juicy casseroles - those dreamy, creamy concoctions that are just a few steps from mother's milk. I'm talking caloric comforters that warm our souls and make us forget about the big bad world outside.

My mother's bread pudding comes to mind. With the generous help of milk, eggs, sugar and raisins, a stale loaf of bread becomes - ah comfort food.

When asked about the connection between food and comfort, Alyce Humphrey of Plymouth, automatically replied, "Mom!"

Humphrey, a former teacher who works with her mother in a family-owned greenhouse business, thought for a moment, then added - "Comfort food just has to have that little big of something - flavor or texture - that makes it more than it seems. It's that which makes it all better."

Sounds like a metaphor for mothers.

Humphrey has served her Creamy Mashed Potatoes many times at family gatherings, and to her husband and two daughters. She simply halves the recipe.

"To me, comfort food means just sitting down and having a family meal," said Mary Grom, a busy homemaker from Livonia who owns two overworked breadmaking machines and a dehydrator.

There's a lot of coming and going in the Grom household. With a husband and two sons on different work schedules and a daughter who makes frequent "homesick" visits from college, Grom has learned to provide comfort through inventive casseroles.

"I try to make foods that you can keep going in the oven until someone else comes in to eat," she said.

Both Grom's creativity and her oven's endurance will be tested once again beginning this Thanksgiving. That's when her husband's cousin's family arrives for their annual month-long stay. They own a Christmas tree farm near Cheboygan and sell their trees on a Livonia lot.

The Rev. Ernest Porcari, a former Canton resident, and the new pastor of Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville, knows all about inventiveness when it comes to cooking. According to his friends, he can perform culinary miracles on garlic, olive oil and pasta.

"It's wonderful," said Dee O'Flynn, who worked for Porcari when he was pastor of St. Thomas A'Becket Church in Canton. "He was famous for his pasta. He once made his soup for our annual spring festival and it all sold out, faster than the hot dogs. Sometimes he would include recipes in his column for the church bulletin."

The first time I called Porcari for an interview, he couldn't come to the phone. He was in the church kitchen making sauce for some parish activity. I made an appointment.

Over cups of coffee in his small, comfortable office a few days later, I explained my mission. After all, who should know more about comfort and food than a priest who cooks. He smiled and said, "I wasn't ordained to cook." He could have fooled me.

For the next hour he told me about his mother's recipes, his own recipes, and that the secret to cooking pasta is "plenty, plenty of boiling water. He also told me to only use freshly grated cheese and not "that sawdust in the store." He sounded like my mother.

Just before I left, Porcari gave me some parting advice, some words to - well, chew on: "Remember, the bigger the body, the bigger the soul, because the soul is in every part of the body. Therefore, the fattest go to heaven."

Comforting words for comfort food lovers.

Smart cookies bake now, freeze for later

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Delight in the holidays, don't dread them. Start your ovens now, and bake a little at a time so you won't feel overwhelmed.

Cookies, except those with custard or cream fillings, freeze well. "It's a lot to try to bake and decorate cookies in one day," said Jackie Sheehan, senior editor of Pillsbury's "The Complete Book of Baking," (Viking, $25, hardcover). "Don't decorate until just before you're ready to use them."

Sheehan and I talked about baking holiday cookies Thursday while she was visiting metro Detroit to promote the cookbook.

When you're making cookies, take time to measure accurately, and don't substitute diet or whipped margarine for butter and regular margarine in recipes.

"Whipped margarine contains air, and diet margarines have water in them. They don't work," said Sheehan. Be careful when reducing the amount of sugar in a recipe too.

"Sugar adds sweetness, it helps the product brown, and adds to the tenderness, it plays a very significant role," said Sheehan. "It's safe to cut the amount of sugar in a recipe back to ¼ to ⅓."

For more advice on holiday baking from home economists, call the Land O'Lakes Holiday Bakeline toll-free number, 1-800-782-9606 through Dec. 24, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

All bakeline callers will receive a free "Bake a Holiday Tradition" recipe leaflet, filled with traditional favorites from around the world plus helpful baking tips.

"Each year, we receive calls from people who have lost a family recipe for need help preparing family favorites. We're here to lend a helping hand," said Lydia Botham, director of consumer affairs and test kitchens at Land O'Lakes, Inc.

Pillsbury also offers a toll-free hot-line to help consumers with baking questions. Look for it on all Pillsbury products.

Take time to check expiration dates on your baking supplies before you fire up the oven, and get out the cookie cutters.

QUAKER OATS

Streusel bars: A simple oatmeal cookie dough forms the crunchy base and buttery streusel topping for Berry Berry Streusel Bars. In-between is a layer of plump, juicy blueberries lightly glossed with raspberry or strawberry preserves.

COOKIE CLUES

Here are some guidelines for freezing cookies. You can freeze unfrosted cookies for up to 12 months, frosted cookies for two months. Thaw in the container at room temperature or in the refrigerator.

- Cool cookies completely before wrapping and freezing.
- To protect flavor and prevent cookies from drying out, wrap tightly in heavy duty aluminum foil or use freezer wrap, bags or containers with tight-fitting lids.
- Freeze each type of cookie in a separate container. Use layers of waxed paper to separate very soft fragile, frosted or decorated cookies.

County Cooperative Extension Service, offered these guidelines.

■ Baking powder — Keep no more than six months. To test if your baking powder is still good, measure one teaspoon of baking powder and put into ⅓ cup hot water. It should fizz and bubble.

■ Baking Soda — Up to 18 months.

■ Flour — Refrigerate whole wheat flour, toss white flour that's more than a year old.

■ Sugar — Is fine as long as it hasn't solidified. Here are a couple of ways to loosen brown sugar — put the box in a microwave oven with a cup of water on the side. Microwave on high for two minutes. Or, put the brown sugar in a Tupperware container with a piece of bread or slice of apple. It will loosen up in a couple of days.

■ Vanilla and other extracts — Won't spoil, but will start to lose their flavor in three to four months.

■ Vegetable shortening — Toss after a year.

■ Butter — Keeps frozen for six to nine months, refrigerated a few weeks beyond expiration date on the box.

■ Margarine — Keeps refrigerated four to five months.

■ Chocolate chips — Dark chocolate is good up to a year, milk chocolate six months.

■ Eggs — Toss three to four weeks after expiration date on the carton.

■ Nuts — If you're not going to use them soon, store in the freezer for up to a year.

FATHER PORCARI'S PASTA A FAGIOLA (ITALIAN BEAN SOUP)

2 cups Ditali (small tubular pasta)
3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
One small onion, chopped in small pieces
¾ cup celery, tender inside stalks, chopped (optional)
1 large, 19-ounce can Cannellinni beans (undrained)
1 tablespoon tomato paste or 3-4 tablespoons finely chopped tomato
Salt and pepper to taste

Boil water and add pasta. Cook until tender but still resistant (al dente). Partially drain, leave enough water to cover pasta. This is the base of the soup's broth.

Saute onion and celery in olive oil until soft. Add beans, tomato paste or fresh tomato, and salt and pepper. Pour mixture into pasta and let stand for five minutes to develop flavor. Serve with freshly grated parmesan cheese if desired. Serves 4.

Note: Father Porcari suggests adding another can of Cannelinni beans if you want to make the soup extra comforting.

MARY GROM'S POOR MAN'S STUFFED CABBAGE

1 small head of cabbage, coarsely chopped
1 pound ground chuck
1 egg, beaten
½ package onion soup mix
¾ cup chopped green pepper (optional)
½ to ¾ cup quick-cooking rice, uncooked
1 10½-ounce can tomato soup
½ cup water
Salt and pepper to taste

Combine chuck, egg, onion soup mix, green pepper, rice and salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly.

Spread one half of chopped cabbage in a greased 2-quart casserole. Pat meat mixture on top of cabbage, covering completely. Cover with remaining cabbage.

Combine tomato soup with ½ cup water and pour over cabbage-meat mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ to 2 hours. Serves 4 to 6.

MARY GROM'S ON-THE-RUN DEEP-DISH PASTIE

One package pre-folded pie crusts (available in dairy section)
2 pounds ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
2 medium potatoes, diced
4-5 carrots, diced
beef bouillon
½ to 1 teaspoon Kitchen Bouquet

Saute ground beef in large skillet, drain fat and add onion. Cook a bit longer. Add pototoes, carrots and enough bouillon to retain moisture. Add salt and pepper and Kitchen Bouquet. Cover and set aside.

Stretch and roll one pie crust to fit bottom of a 9 by 13-inch baking pan. Spread meat mixture on top and cover with remaining crust. Slit top in a few places and bake at 325 degrees for 1½ hours. Serve with a dab of butter or margarine or ketchup. Serves 4 to 6.

Note: Mary says ground venison works great in this recipe.

ALYCE HUMPHREY'S CREAMY MASHED POTATOES

5 pounds all-purpose potatoes, peeled and quartered
2 teaspoons salt
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese with chives, softened
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups heavy cream
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Paprika

Cover pototoes with water, add 2 teaspoons salt, and cook until tender. Drain and mash. Add cream cheese, butter, garlic salt, and pepper. Mix well. Gradually add whipping cream and mash once again, using an electric mixer if desired.

Spread in greased 9 by 13-inch glass baking dish. Dot with remaining 2 tablespoons butter and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes, then at 375 degrees for an additional 30 minutes. Serves 10-12.

MARGARET CARTIER'S OLD-FASHIONED BREAD PUDDING

4 cups whole milk (scalded)
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup light brown sugar, well packed
2-3 tablespoons maple syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ to ½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
6 cups day-old coarse white bread, cubed
3 or 4 eggs, well beaten
1 cup gold raisins
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
¼ cup chopped Maraschino or dried cherries

Put bread into a large bowl. Set aside. Scald milk and add butter, sugar, syrup and vanilla. Pour over bread cubes, mixing gently. Add spices, raisins, walnuts and cherries. Mix gently.

Fold in beaten eggs. Pour into buttered 2-quart souffle dish. Sprinkle cinnamon sugar on top if desired.

Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serve plain or with cream.

Note: The secret for this comforting pudding is the bread. It must be dense in texture. Margaret uses Chamberlain Bakery's raisin bread which is available at Byrd's Meat Market in Livonia. She still adds the extra raisins.

Toss up pasta, scallops quick

AP — Do others rely on you for meals? When you're pressed for time, serve scallops with pasta and spinach. You make the sauce while the pasta cooks. Toss the sauce and the pasta with cooked scallops. Toss with coarsely chopped feta cheese and you're ready to put a meal on the table.

SCALLOPS WITH PASTA AND SPINACH

1 recipe Savory Onion Sauce Base (recipe below)
¾ pound spaghetti, linguine, penne, curly pasta or curly noodles
5 cups clean, shredded, loosely packed spinach, or 10-ounce package frozen spinach, thawed
1 to 1½ pounds cooked scallops
⅓ cup coarsely chopped feta cheese

To prepare Savory Onion Sauce Base, heat 2 to 3 tablespoons olive oil in a 12-inch heavy skillet on medium-low heat until hot.

Add 1 cup slivered red peppers, 2 tablespoons minced garlic and ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper. Cook 5 minutes. Add 1½ cups finely chopped onion. Cook, uncovered, until onion and red peppers are tender, stirring, 8 to 10 minutes. Add ⅓ cup fresh lemon juice, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1 tablespoon minced lemon zest, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon black pepper. Heat 1 minute.

While preparing the sauce base, cook pasta according to package directions. About 1 minute before pasta is cooked, add the spinach. Drain pasta and place in a large, warm serving bowl. Add sauce base and toss to coat. Taste and adjust seasonings.

Sprinkle cooked and warmed scallops over sauce-coated pasta; toss with the chopped feta cheese. Makes 4 servings.

MOM'S MASHED POTATOES

2 pounds potatoes
1 small rutabaga (about ¾ pound)
5 cups boiling water
1½ teaspoons salt, divided
4 tablespoons oleomargarine
½ cup buttermilk

Wash, peel and cut potatoes into ½-inch cubes and place in bowl of cold water. Wash, peel and dice rutabaga to make about 2 cups.

Place in bowl of water with potatoes. Meanwhile, bring 5 cups of water to a boil. Add ½ teaspoon salt. Drain potatoes and rutabaga and add to boiling water. Reduce heat to a medium boil and boil partially covered for about 30 minutes or until a fork inserted comes out easily. Drain off all water and mash slightly by hand using a potato masher.

Add salt, oleomargarine and ½ cup of buttermilk. Mash by hand for 1 minute. Add remaining buttermilk if necessary and continue mashing for no more than 30 seconds. Potatoes should still be somewhat lumpy. Serve immediately. Makes 8 servings at ½ cup each.

THE CHEF'S MASHED POTATOES

3 pounds Yukon Gold potatoes (about 6-8 potatoes)
5 cups water
2 teaspoons salt (divided)
3 tablespoons butter
⅛ teaspoon fresh ground white pepper
¼ cup warm milk

Wash and peel potatoes. Dice the potatoes into uniform size, about the size of dice. Place in a bowl of cold water for 15 minutes. Bring 5 cups of water to a boil. Add 1 teaspoon of salt. Drain potatoes and add them to the boiling, salted water. Lower heat to medium high and continue boiling potatoes until tender, about 25-35 minutes or until a knife inserted in the center of a potato comes out easily.

Drain and mash the potatoes to crumble for about 30 seconds. Add butter, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper and 4 tablespoons of warm milk and mash by hand until creamy, adding a bit more milk if necessary. Serves 6-8

Group baking for 'Goodwill'

KEELY WYGONIK

You'll find plenty of good things to eat at the 46th annual Metro Detroit Junior Group Goodwill Antiques Show to be held Nov. 19-21 at the Michigan State Fair Grounds, Woodward at 8 Mile Road in Detroit.

In addition to antiques, there will be a pantry, bakery and boutique staffed by Junior Group members. All show proceeds benefit Goodwill Industries' educational and vocational training programs for people who are mentally, physically or emotionally disabled.

A month before show time, the baking team heats up the kitchen at St. James Church in Birmingham, baking the cookies and cakes that show goers look forward to every year.

This year they've added some low-fat delectables including low-fat apple oat bread and a marvelous cookie. All of the items were kitchen tested. This year, Peg Dasovic and Ruby Boechler of Bloomfield hills are serving as bakery chairman.

Members of the baking team include Ruth Coulson of Birmingham, Joyce Campbell, Bloomfield Hills and Jo Batherson, Royal Oak.

A special Patron's Preview will be held at the fairgrounds 7-10 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 18, tickets are $75 to $150, available by calling 644-8713. General admission tickets are $6 and can be purchased at the door, or through Jr. Group-Goodwill members. Doors open at 11 a.m. For information, call 626-3864 or 644-8779.

Here's one of the new recipes.

SUGAR-FREE APPLESAUCE COOKIES

1⅔ cups flour, sifted
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup diet margarine
Non-nutritive sweetener equal to 1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
½ cup white raisins
1 cup whole bran cereal

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Sift first 7 ingredients together. Beat margarine, sweetener, and egg until light and fluffy. Add flour mixture and applesauce alternately; mix well after each addition.

Fold in raisins and cereal. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto well greased cookie sheet, about 1 inch apart. Bake until golden brown about 15 minutes.

Exhanges per serving: 1 cookie equals ¼ bread, ¼ fat, ¼ fruit, calories per serving 35. Yield 4 dozen cookies.

Football fans will cheer zesty sandwich

AP — When the big game is on, "hand-held" fare is just the ticket. A sandwich with a zesty, robust flavor will suit the home team.

But make it something quick, too, so the host doesn't have to miss any of the action.

UNION 'N PEPPER BEEF STEAK SANDWICHES

2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 small onion, cut into ¼-inch wedges
1 medium jalapeno pepper, cut crosswise into rings
1 small clove garlic, crushed
8 ounces beef round tip steaks, cut ⅜ to ¼-inch thick
⅛ teaspoon salt, if desired
2 Kaiser rolls, split
¼ cup chopped tomato

Heat oil in large non-stick skillet over medium-high heat. Add onion, jalapeno pepper and garlic; stir-fry 3 to 4 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from skillet, reserve.

Add beef steaks to skillet; cook over medium-high heat 1 to 2 minutes, turning once. Do not overcook. Season with salt, if desired. Place equal amounts of beef on bottom half of each Kaiser roll. Top with equal amounts of reserved onion mixture and chopped tomato. Makes 2 servings.

Note: Recipe may be doubled. To reduce the heat of the jalapeno peppers, their ribs and seeds may be removed.

Recipe from: Meat Board Test Kitchens.

Russell scoring leader

Kalamazoo College's Jenny Russell concluded her college career as one of the highest-scoring players in NCAA women's soccer history.

The senior forward from Plymouth (Canton High School) ranks fourth on the all-time goal-scoring list, according to data from the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America.

The list ranks players according to average goals per games played, with Russell tallying 118 goals in 75 games for an average of 15.7 goals per contest.

Russell led Kalamazoo to its fifth consecutive Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship, leading the league in every scoring category: goals (26), assists (11) and points (63). She also set new MIAA career standards for goals (89), assists (39) and points (217).

More college soccer

A pair of freshmen contributed to Western Michigan University's 10-8 season. Mario Scicluna, from Redford (Catholic Central), scored a goal in the Broncos' 4-0 win over Spring Arbor. Owen Crosby, from Plymouth Canton, had a goal in WMU's 3-2 overtime loss to Dayton; he finished the season with two goals and an assist (five points).

■ The University of Detroit-Mercy women's team struggled a bit late in the regular season, losing its final two matches to take an 11-4-2 overall record and a 2-2-2 mark in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference into the MCC Tournament, which started last Thursday. Freshman keeper Jori Welchans (Plymouth Canton) helped keep the Lady Titans competitive; her 0.98 goals-against average was second in the MCC.

Pats hire Pritchard

Jean Pritchard was named last week as Livonia Franklin High's new boys swimming coach, according to school athletic director Dan Freeman.

Pritchard replaces John Gores.

"We look forward to her expertise as we work on building the Franklin swim team," Freeman said.

Last season, Franklin's boys program was dropped because it failed to meet minimum participation numbers as stipulated by the Livonia Public Schools' athletic council.

Pritchard, who lives in Canton Township, has an extensive coaching background in swimming.

She is the Plymouth-Canton Cruisers Club team coach for 13- to 14-year-olds, as well as seventh- and eighth-grade coach at Central Middle School in Plymouth.

Pritchard has also been an assistant for the Livonia Stevenson girls and USSM coach for the Livonia-Novi Spartan Aquatic Club. She is a graduate of Cornell (Iowa) College.

Titan baseball night

Former Tigers Hank Aguirre, Jim Northrup and Dave Bergman will be joined by master of ceremonies Bruce Gerish as the featured speakers for the University of Detroit-Mercy's baseball fund-raiser, beginning at 6:15 p.m. Thursday at the Polish Century Club.

The cost is $75 per person (includes open bar and dinner). Tables of 10 are available.

To order tickets, call UD-M head coach Bob Miller (535-6395), assistant coach Bob Atkins (626-4965) or the athletic department (993-1700).

WAGS semifinalist

The Livonia Y Michigan Hawks, an under-12 girls soccer team, recently gained the semifinals of the Washington Area Girls Soccer meet before losing to the Council Rock (Pa.) Outlaws on a penalty kick, 1-0.

The Hawks, coached by John Buchanan, defeated teams from Virginia, Ohio and New York to win their division.

Members of the Hawks include Susan Bear, Renee Kashawlic, Kristin Leszczynski, Deanna McGrath, Brianna Roy, Stacey Supanich, Megan Urbats and Michele Vettraino, all of Livonia; Megan Kelley and Stephanie Krieg, both of Redford; Christen Shull, Canton; Kristi Arrington, Novi; Laura Grode, Sterling Heights; Abby Shepherd, Milford; Andi Sied, Dearborn Heights; Carly Wadsworth, Williamston.

Player of the week

It's become somewhat of a common occurrence — a Madonna University volleyball player lauded as NAIA District 23 player of the week.

The honor was bestowed on Mo Paulin last week. A junior outside hitter, Paulin — from Livonia and Farmington Hills Mercy High School — helped lead Madonna to three wins by collecting 59 kills (a .465 kill percentage) in 12 games (4.9 per game), with 15 service aces and 68 digs.

Madonna, 39-5 overall and unbeaten in seven district matches, will host the district tournament this weekend. The Lady Crusaders were ranked seventh in the last NAIA national poll.

Rocks challenge top-seeded Chiefs

Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem won their first-round games in the Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball tournament Thursday and will meet Tuesday in the semifinals at Salem.

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem doesn't want a deja vu experience this week following its 58-47 victory over visiting Walled Lake Central Thursday in girls basketball.

With the hard-earned win in the first round of the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs, the Rocks advanced to play arch-rival Plymouth Canton, an easy 74-16 winner over Livonia Franklin.

Salem wants to end its three-game skid against the Chiefs when it hosts Canton in a semifinal contest at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The Chiefs hope to duplicate last year's feat when they beat the Rocks in the semifinals 46-35 after winning the only regular-season meeting.

Like last year, Canton slipped by Salem 40-33 early in the season as the Rocks shot only 27 percent from the floor. Since then, Canton has remained near the top of the state rankings, and the Rocks have steadily improved.

"We always look forward to playing them; they're our friends," said Salem guard Kelly Lukasik, who sparked the Rocks with 15 points Thursday. "It was a good game the first time we played them and we've improved since then. The game will bring out the best in us."

"It's been traditional over the years that we end up against Canton," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "It will be a good game."

Lukasik was a major reason why the No. 4-seeded Rocks (11-7) advanced. The Vikings (10-8) centered their game plan around stopping senior guard Lisa Craven, who burned Central for 16 points when the Rocks beat Central 53-36 last month. Lukasik, a junior guard, score 12 of her total in the second half to help Salem rebound from a 25-20 halftime deficit.

"Fred talked to us before the game about how Central would try to stop Lisa," Lukasik said. "We knew that we needed other players to score."

Central coach Ken Butler's plan worked as Craven was limited to seven points. But Lukasik (15), Shellye Sills (12), Karen Gundry (nine) and Liz Erickson (eight) picked up the slack.

"They had some kids step up and score and that was the key," Butler said. "We were worried about Craven, who killed us the first time we played them. But Sills scored on the inside, and we didn't expect her to do that; from the films we saw, Lukasik never hurt anybody."

After Central jumped out to a 4-0 lead, Salem went on a 9-0 run and led 13-9 at the end of the first quarter.

A layup by Sills gave Salem a 20-12 lead with 4:29 remaining in the second quarter, but the Rocks failed to put Central away.

The Vikings scored the final 13 points of the half to take a stunning 25-20 halftime lead. The rally was spurred by the outside shooting of Kathy Rabaut (nine points) and the inside play of sophomore center Jessica Regentin (12) and freshman forward Becky Cummings.

The Rocks rebounded in the third quarter and outscored the Vikings 22-8. Central managed only a triple by its only senior, Kerri Kobus (14 points), and five free throws. Salem

Spartans coast to 3rd straight WLAA title

SWIMMING

There was no doubt Livonia Stevenson had the best swimming/diving team in the Western Lakes Activities Association before running away with another title Friday.

Following an impressive performance, the only question was whether the 1993 Spartans are the best in school and WLAA history.

Stevenson scored a league-record 673 points and dominated the meet as expected at Plymouth Salem. The real contest was for second place, which went to Northville with 359½ points.

The Spartans have won the WLAA seven of a possible 11 times — the last three under coach Greg Phill (1991-93) and four straight under former coach Lois McDonald (1983-86).

"This is the best team I think we've seen in awhile," Phill said. "I can't speak for Lois McDonald's teams, but this is definitely the best team I've coached.

"We swam the best we have since we've been real good. We could have come in here and not swam fast, but the girls came through and did a great job."

The Spartans, who scored the most points since the WLAA began scoring 18 places several years ago, won 10 of the 12 events (including all three relays) and set a meet record in the medley relay.

Three double winners

Stevenson had three double winners in senior Mandi Falk, sophomore Tina Caranicolas and freshman Anne Aristeo, who set meet records in the individual medley and 100-yard freestyle.

Aristeo won the IM in 2:08.63, bettering the time of 2:09.27 set by Stevenson's Sheila Taormina in 1986. Aristeo went 53.23 in the freestyle, breaking former Livonia Churchill swimmer Ellen Lessig's 1991 record of 53.36.

"Anne is probably the best freshman I've ever coached," Phill said. "From what I saw early in the season, I thought she could come in here and do that well."

"I wanted to help the team; I tried my hardest, and that's what it came out to be," said Aristeo, who dropped 1.50 seconds from her preliminary time in the IM and 1.09 in the freestyle.

"I want to swim fast at the state meet. That's my biggest goal. I think I have a lot of energy left. I think I'm ready for the state meet."

Falk, a member of the last three Stevenson championship teams, won the 50 freestyle (25.44) and the breaststroke (1:06.87), finishing just short of the 1:06.71 record Stevenson's Mary Schoenle set in 1984.

"I can't talk enough about Mandi," Phill said. "She gave away a sure win. She gave up the 200 IM and took on the 50 free, so we could try to win every event.

"The 50 free was not a sure thing, that's why she's a class act. She did that for the team."

Caranicolas was first in the 200 freestyle (1:58.29) and the 500 freestyle (5:17.05), and Julie Gallagher won the backstroke (1:02.78). The Spartans also had three more state cuts from Gina Palmeri, Gallagher and Jamie Hilliard in the backstroke.

Falk, Kelly Carlisle, Lisa Morrison, Caranicolas and Aristeo were on two relay teams each. Gallagher and Helene Dallas were the other relay swimmers.

Gallagher, Falk, Carlisle and Morrison finished the medley relay in 1:52.58 and broke the mark (1:52.77) established by the Spartans in 1984.

"The most impressive record was the medley record," Phill said. "We weren't loaded. I pulled Anne off, and they beat some good kids. The kids

S'craft women lose playoff game in OT

SOCCER

It didn't ease the disappointment, realizing he was prophetic.

And it was small comfort being told his team was better.

Bottom line was, Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team lost in a regional playoff to Central College, from McPherson, Kansas, Saturday at SC. And it never should have happened.

The official final score will read Central 2, SC 1, in overtime. In fact, it came down to penalty kicks, with Central edging the Lady Ocelots 3-2.

SC coach Nick O'Shea had foreseen what turned out to be his team's downfall. "Our forwards have got to be goal-hungry," he said earlier last week.

They weren't. No one among the Ocelots was. They outplayed Central from start to finish. They had countless scoring opportunities. But they frittered them all away — and with them a trip to the NJCAA Tournament in Trenton, N.J.

"You guys outplayed us, but . . . " the Lady Tigers coach, Derin Fowler, told O'Shea afterward. There was no need for him to finish.

Fittingly, the game-winning penalty shot came from a keeper: Central's Lisa Boski pounded a hard drive just to the right of SC keeper Stephanie Sutton to give her team the decisive goal.

With that, the Lady Tigers — quickly defrosting in the sub-freezing conditions — rushed onto the field, mobbing Boski. "We're going to Jersy," they chanted.

The Ocelots could only watch and wonder what happened.

What happened was a mental block in front of the Tigers' net. There's no other way to explain such inability to put one in.

The only SC goal came after Central's Jeannetta Lang deflected an Ocelot shot inside the penalty area with both hands. Kara Kramer converted the penalty kick, and SC had a 1-0 lead in the 25th minute.

That was the high point. The Ocelots had already missed a half-dozen very good scoring chances.

In the 70th minute, SC got an opportunity to pad its lead when Tara Shook was dragged down in the penalty box. Kelly Greaves lined up the penalty kick this time — O'Shea opted not to used Kramer again, fearing the Tigers would have her style figured out — and lined her shot directly at Boski.

Five minutes later, the ball was crossed in front of the Central net and three Ocelots had a chance to poke it in. They failed.

"When you miss a penalty kick, when you miss a wide-open goal from two yards away, you don't deserve to win," said a frustrated O'Shea. What irked him even more was their reaction to the second miss.

"They were laughing," he said. "That may be who set the record were all superstars."

The Spartans have been pointing toward the Class A championships from the start of the season and appear ready for that challenge.

"None of my state kids were shaved or rested," Phill said. "I think we're going to go up there and have a great state meet and let the points fall where they may. If we win it, we do. If we swim great, that's all you can ask."

Falk would like to finish her high school career with an individual and team victory in the state meet. She hopes to win the breaststroke and place first or second in the IM.

"If everyone swims the way they can, we can get first," she said.

Simply the best

Plymouth Salem coach Chuck Olson believes the '93 Spartans are the best the WLAA has produced and will be rooting for them to win the state title.

"I think we could have an all-WLAA team (competing against Stevenson), and they would be way short," he said. "We could put the best against them and they're still better.

"They proved it at the league meet. They have to prove it at the state meet now. They had some good state meets but never won it."

The only non-Stevenson winners were North Farmington senior Mandy Terrell, who shattered the WLAA diving record, and Plymouth Canton senior Jill Mellis in the butterfly (1:00.85).

Terrell, who won her second straight diving title, scored 465.60 points to break the record of 427.55 by Salem's Cindy McSurely in 1982. Terrell won with 424.65 points last year.

"She has been real dedicated to the sport," North swim coach Pat Duthie said. "She had some ability and developed it well. A lot of college coaches are interested in her, and I think she's going to be an outstanding collegiate diver."

Canton coach Hooker Wellman blamed himself for not resting his swimmers more after the Chiefs finished third. Canton beat Northville in a dual meet at Northville, but the Mustangs used their superior depth to their advantage in the league meet.

"It's funny how things work out," he said. "We got caught in their (five-lane) pool a number of times when we had better depth. This year we have the strength up front. If we swam (the dual) in our pool, they probably would have beaten us on depth."

Livonia Churchill swimmers had a 100-percent drop in their times Friday. Of the 25 swims, all were faster. The Chargers dropped a total of 35 seconds, according to coach Ken Stark. Churchill's Mary Corazza and Kim Gruska also qualified for state with second-place swims.

received three-pointers from Lukasik and Gundry, who scored eight in the quarter.

"I thought our girls did a good job on defense in the third and played with a lot of intensity," Thomann said. "They blocked out and rebounded and began making their shots.

"Every time we play Central it's a close game and usually a high-scoring game. When it's that type of game, you better make your shots."

Salem opened a 46-33 lead before a Kobus triple started a Central rally. Two free throws each by Kobus and Regentin closed the margin to 50-46 with 1:51 left. But a 12-footer by Nicole Van Hees, a Craven layup and three free throws by Lukasik held off Central.

After shooting 50 percent from the floor in the first half, Central dipped to 32 percent for the game as it made only four of 23 shots in the second half. The Rocks shot only 34 percent (23-for-66) but were 9-for-16 in the decisive third quarter.

"They shot well and we missed some reads," Butler said. "We missed some coverages and left Sills and Lukasik open.

"We're still young and we'll get better. We had four sophomores and one freshman out there at times. We wanted to play Canton, but this type of game is good for us and prepares us for districts."

■ CANTON 74, FRANKLIN 16: The top-seeded Chiefs breezed into the semifinals of the WLAA girls basketball tournament with an easy win over the visiting Patriots.

Britta Anderson scored 22 points to lead No. 3-rated Canton (17-1). Amicie Crayton added 11 and Jackie Nicastri nine.

Kristi Fiorenzi pulled down six rebounds, and Crayton, Erica Anderson and Sarah Warnke had five apiece.

"I was pleased we were able to get through the game and get into the second round," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "We made a lot of shots early, and that was the key to the game."

Canton is the defending WLAA champion but will have to get past rival Plymouth Salem in the semifinals Tuesday.

"Salem is one of the most improved teams in the conference, if not the most improved," Blohm said. "It will be one of those wire-to-wire games.

"Like always we're looking for some good competition with them, and we'll see how it comes out."

Mary Bagazinski scored six points for Franklin (8-10).

■ DEPORRES 54, PLY. CHRIST. 24: Detroit DePorres led 24-12 at halftime and outscored the visiting Eagles 24-7 in the third quarter Friday.

Alicia Jones had nine points and nine rebounds for Plymouth Christian (8-10). Geanie Hill scored 17 points to lead DePorres (9-9).

Ocelots foiled again

Another year, another trip to the Inter-regional Tournament, and — unfortunately — another disappointment.

The fortunes of Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team seem to follow that pattern. The Ocelots traveled to McHenry College in Crystal Lake, Ill., with high hopes last weekend. Those hopes took a downward turn Friday and ended Saturday with a 3-2 overtime loss to College of DuPage.

The game went to a shootout. SC lost in the sixth round when Tim McCarley banged his penalty kick off the crossbar and DuPage converted.

The Ocelots, unbeaten in 19 previous matches this season and ranked fifth nationally, never led. DuPage's Jacob Sylvia scored in the third minute of play; SC tied it before halftime on a goal by Andy Cosenza.

DuPage recaptured the lead 10 minutes into the second half on a disputed penalty kick by Scott Graham. "They had a penalty shot that definitely wasn't a penalty," insisted SC coach Van Dimitriou. "We scored our goals legitimately. They had to have help."

But the Ocelots rallied, knotting it at 2-2 when Fadi Bazzi drilled in a misdirected shot by Vince Troiani five minutes later.

The loss capped a weekend of mistakes for SC. Dimitriou thought the Ocelots would play Bethany Lutheran, a much easier foe than DuPage, in Saturday's first round. He found out differently when the team arrived at McHenry Friday, a mistake he blamed on the secretary of the school's athletic director, who gave him the tourney pairings.

how they react to frustration, but championship teams don't do that."

The turning point came — well, perhaps last Wednesday. That's when Jenny Emmett, SC's starting keeper, was hospitalized with a sinus infection. Emmett, recovering from leukemia, is prone to such problems because her treatment keeps her immunity low.

Which is why Sutton was in the net when Central got one of its few breaks. She had not been seriously challenged until Debby Crum rolled in toward goal with three minutes left in regulation. Sutton stopped a shot right at her but fumbled the rebound; Crum pounced on it and the game was tied, 1-1.

The Ocelots led 1-0 after the first round of penalty kicks on Dee Lorenz's goal, but Central put in shots by Crum and Deborah Guerra to go up 2-1 after three rounds.

Neither team capitalized in the fourth round, leaving one last shot. Kramer tied it for SC, but Boski followed with the game winner.

"We were basically outplayed," said Fowler, whose team will take a 10-3-2 record to the NJCAA Tournament. "I'd say (SC) had three times as many shots as we did.

"But I'm not ashamed."

SC — which finishes 4-7-3 — should be.

When you give to the United Way, your money is distributed to almost 140 charitable organizations in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Which saves a great deal of duplication of effort. And fund-raising costs. In fact, our fund-raising costs are among the lowest of any charity—just 10.7%. So nearly 90% of your donation gets to the people who really need it—the elderly, troubled youth and families in need of counseling, to name a few. This year, more people need your help than ever before. So, please, won't you give more? Because, of all the needs we face in the tri-county area, the biggest one of all is your support.

Shore and his chillin' mop; 'Exposure' Alaska really Washington

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am highly interested in Pauly Shore, the actor who starred in "Son-in-Law." Could you please tell me a little bit about him? Also, could I have an address where I can write to him? –S.M., McCook, Neb.

A: Shore, a popular MTV personality, was born and raised in Hollywood, Calif. According to MTV publicity, "he stands 5' 9 1/2" tall and weighs 145 pounds with a mop chillin' on top." Comedy is in his blood: His mother owns the Comedy Store nightclubs in San Diego, Las Vegas and Hollywood; and his father, comedian Sammy Shore, opened for Elvis Presley in the '60s and '70s. "I remember one time sitting on Elvis' knee," Pauly recalls. "That's how I got the scar on the side of my eye. Elvis was bouncing me. I said, 'Hey, Elvis, chill dude, your sideburns are twigging my eye area.'" The 19-year-old's first comedy album, "The Future of America," is due out soon, and will be the first of a four-album deal with CBS/WTG Records. Write to him in care of MTV, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Q: I enjoy the game show "Caesar's Challenge." Where can I write to Ahmad Rashad, host of the show, and his sidekick, Dan Dordie? –Barbara Poindexter, Harvey, Ill.

A: Write Rashad and Dordie in care of the show, NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: I'm a big fan of "Days of Our Lives" and have been enthralled by the Carly story. I heard she has left the show for good. Please say it isn't true! –Angela Wilpula, Ashtabula, Ohio.

A: Weary of the rigors of acting, Crystal Chappell, who plays Carly, has indeed left the show. Whether or not she will return to acting is uncertain at this time.

Musician turns detective in CBS' 'South of Sunset'

By Sara Bennett

"South of Sunset," which premiered Oct. 27 and airs Wednesdays on CBS, presents Glenn Frey with his first opportunity to win over those who shudder at the thought of musicians taking to the screen as actors.

Frey made his television debut in an episode of "Miami Vice" in 1985 but hasn't done much acting in the interim. "South of Sunset," which takes place in and around Los Angeles, represents the first series role for the veteran musician. Frey, who helped found the Eagles and has had much success as a solo artist since the breakup of the band, admits he has little left to do on the musical front.

"I don't have a lot to prove in the music business," Frey says. "I have a tremendous amount to accomplish and improve myself in this sort of work."

Frey, however, wrote and recorded the "South of Sunset" theme song, and work is under way to attract a varied group of musicians to score the episodes.

"Joe Walsh said he would score an episode," Frey says. "I think that would be a very interesting guitar sound that we could get on the show."

Series co-creator and eecutive producer Stan Rogow emphasizes "the continuing motif is going to be guitar." Tom Petty, Jeff "Skunk" Baxter, Tony Braxton and Tag Team can all be expected to contribute during the season.

Aside from the music, which can be heard as a backdrop in many scenes, a better-than-average series emerges to beef up CBS' lineup. Frey portrays Cody McMahon, a former chief of security at a Hollywood studio who fell out of favor after busting his company's CEO. Now Cody, a good guy from the get-go, makes his living (far below his former standards) as a private investigator who isn't content to stop there. He gets over-involved in his cases and clients' lives, but he does it with style, humor and the help of a crackpot staff.

Cody works out of a mini-mall office with a suspect Beverly Hills address. Upon entering the small office, clients often say, utterly confused, "Your ad in the yellow pages says you're in Beverly Hills." Cody responds dryly, "We're on the town line." The investigator employs Ziggy Duane (played by comic Aries Spears) a 20-year-old jokster from South Central Los Angeles who prefers his rap music to a Don Henley song Cody plays to broaden the kid's horizons.

"What you're looking at are his first days at being in front of the camera," Rogow says of the 18-year-old Spears. "There's a fair amount of improvisation that goes into his work. You can't teach someone to do that."

Cody and Ziggy chase the bad guys and rescue the children, while Gina (Maria Pitillo, "Chaplain") tends to the office between movie auditions. The men protect the aspiring actress like a sister, and even (in a pinch) assign her to cases that shouldn't involve too much danger. (Of course, they always do.)

The mismatched trio has about as much collective experience acting as their characters have sleuthing. Perhaps this is why they pull it off.

"If people say, 'I want to see what Cody and Ziggy and Gina are up to this week,' that's as important as them saying, 'I want to see what mystery they're solving this week.' That was our intent," Rogow says.

Although it can be difficult to maintain all aspects of the comedy/action/drama series genre, "South of Sunset" comes as close as possible, wit few lapses. Spears' character in particular makes numerous comparisons to real-life musicians and movies, which forces the humor at times. The funniest moments occur in situations affecting all the characters. In one scene, an angry client demands that Gina stay away from the cheating husband the woman orders Cody and Ziggy to follow. She adds "...or I'll revoke your license!" Whether the private eyes see the humor in the moment is unclear, but viewers may laugh at the idea of these guys actually being licensed.

"Hopefully," Rogow says, "it's just the chemistry of the people who make it (the show) believable."
