Sewer fees to be paid under protest

The books of the Detroit Metropolitan Water Department (DMWD) may be opened to the public if some members of the Wayne County Board of Public Works have their way. Public Works Commissioners Freddie C. Burton and Michael Berry last week indicated they want the books opened to audit, and that they may express their displeasure with the 50 per cent hike in sewer rates in western Wayne County by paying the fees under protest when they become effecmeeting with the proposed rate hike, but at a public hearing last week the board reversed its position.

The hearing was attended by a small number of suburban representatives, including Canton Township Supervisor Robert Greenstein, who urged the board to change its position.

"I WAS ABLE to get personal assurances from Mr. Burton and Mr. Berry that they would oppose the rate hike questions on the necessity of such a large hike," Greenstein said.

The supervisor said the action by the public works board would help bring about an outside audit of DMWD books, something he said was necessary to prove the need for the rate hike.

Greenstein said the rules under which DMWD operates allow the charges to suburban customers to cover "reasonable costs of maintenance and treatment."

"We are faced with problems of inflation and additional requirements to meet EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) standards," Cedroni said.

The charges for the capital improvement fund were a necessary requirement of the bonding by which the water department funds improvements to the system, he added "They're part of the bond act and ordinances, and we'd be in violation of the Attempts by Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn to block the incrase with a court injunction have failed.

However, the courts have not made a decision on whether to hear arguments on why the DMWD should open their books to public scrutiny.

Cedroni said he doesn't think the issue will be heard by the courts. "The Michigan Supreme Court has heard this all before in 1949 and ruled that we were legitimate.'

Water weaponry used in dispute?

Is the Detroit Metropolitan Water Department using water as a political weapon to pressure suburban members of its board to approve a capital improvements budget?

Mayor Edward McNamara of Livonia, the western Wayne County representative on the board, thinks there is a possibility of that happening and wants other suburban officials to dis-

He has called a meeting scheduled to be held today (Monday) to discuss the problem of low water pressures and other water department prob-

INVITED were 30 cities and townships which get their water from Detroit. Area communities expected to send representatives are Westland, Garden City, Redford Township, Farmington, Farmington Hills, City of Plymouth and the townships of Plymouth and Canton.

McNamara said that while Livonia hasn't had any water pressure problems recently, its neighboring cities and townships have.

Westland reported its pressure dropped to as low as five pounds per square inch-with a normal pressure being 40 to 60 pounds.

McNamara indicated that the water department administration may have intentially reduced the water pressure to force the board, which has four Detroiters and three suburban members. to approve the capital improvements budget. He said the approval has been delayed because the suburban board members feel that the budget is too high and that too much of the surba-nan water revenues are being used to finance system improvements which would benefit only Detroit.

McNamara admitted that "I'm susp cious as hell about being brought to our knees.'

Officials at today's meeting will discuss the continuing problem of failure to get an independent audit of the department's books and review the existing rate structure, which McNamara feels has the suburbs supporting De

He added that although the City of Detroit doesn't own its own sanitary sewer system-it was sold during the 1960s to the water department—the water budgets are based partially on covering Detroit's investment in the sewer system.

THE MAYOR said that he will suggest today that a "war chest" or funds be donated by the 96 water department customers to retain a law firm to represent them.

McNamara said some issues the law firm would probably look into would be the ownership of the water and sewer departments, the auditing of books and the "equity in disbursements in spending dollars."

He added that the department's expansion program, which has new water mains installed in outlying and undeveloped areas, results in the existing water customers 'financing our own demise.'

McNamara said that new mains lead to new developments and help existing residents move farther out.

The suburbs now paying into the system are financing the bond issues that pay for those water main expansions.

Schools save on tax note

The Plymouth Schools will be spending less this year when borrowing $5.6 million to pay the bills until taxes are collected in December.

School board members approved a bid of 4.29 per cent interest on the note offered by National Bank of Detroit. This year's loan will cost the district $162,161, a substantial savings over last year's 6.64 per cent loan.

While the cost of borrowing the money over the next six months has been reduced over last year's figures, business manager Ray Hoedel explained the board would be receiving less interest income on its short-term investments while it is holding on to the

The loan is necessitated by the need for operating funds until taxes are paid in the middle of the school year.

Hoedel said he has discussed the loan rate with several bankers who remarked the interest rate is one of the lowest they have seen this year.

New Canton citizen group seeks strength in unity

A new citizen group in Canton Township is trying to add punch to democracy and unify efforts of government and the people.

"Everyone is struggling." said Bruce Young, organizer of Total Citizens' Power of Canton Township, "but no one is struggling together. What power does a citizen have? He doesn't have much as an individual, but he certainly does tied together.'

Young expects membership of the new group to reach 200 to 500 persons. About 17 persons committed themselves to membership at the group's first meeting, held a few weeks ago. Since that time, about 100 persons have contacted Young about the new

Total Citizens' Power has tentatively scheduled its next meeting for Aug. 13 at Plymouth Canton High School. A special committee, headed by Canton resident Betty Hamann, is expected to present a proposed constitution and by-laws for ratification at that time.

The group, as envisioned by Young. will investigate all aspects of township issues and residents' concerns and present both sides of the issues to members. The group will sponsor public hearings and attitudinal elections and present its findings to the board of trustees.

"We're trying to establish an open forum and an investigative committee to determine truth of both sides," explained Young. "After all the facts have been presented, we'll allow the citizen to pass judgment on them. How the citizen feels must be taken into consideration.

"It's the philosophy on which our country was founded," Young maintains. "We're reversing back to the theory of how the community can aid and assist and demand how they want

The group will provide better inroads to government affairs than township-sponsored public hearings, Young

"A public hearing in township hall is like going before a traffic court judge-you feel you don't stand a chance. It shouldn't be like that, but it

Total Citizens' Power will represent members of all interest groups, he explained, and present sound information on which government officials can base their decisions.

"As it is, the only way I could sit in a trustee's chair is to vote by ear," Young said. "I wouldn't have a score before me. The only input a government official has is from individuals of special interest groups. The official may doubt if what he's getting is the true opinion of the group."

Young first envisioned formation of the group a few months ago, when the township board proposed establishment of a consumer protection

"I felt before we initiate such a program, we should investigate its effects," Young said. "It belongs in the hands of the people.

"I dreamed about this group, and I suddenly realized we had to have a meeting. I was listening to various people complaining about things and expressing interests, and I said, 'We've got to do something.'

"We are suffering from a social sickness of apathy," Young said. "This would restore interest. We want the youth, and we want a restoration of interest among older people."

For information about Total Citizens' Power, persons should contact Young at Bruce's Used Car Liquidators, 44844 Michigan, Canton Township.

Dangerous Canton corner may receive traffic lights

Canton Township officials are trying to make the "accident-prone" corner at Canton Center and Cherry Hill a bit safer for residents.

"It's one of the darkest and busiest corners we have," said township Treasurer Carl Parsell. "There are accidents there all the time. I think safety has got to come in here someplace.'

Township Supervisor Robert Greenstein met with county officials last week in efforts to replace the intersection's flashing yellow light with a three-color stop light. Parsell pledges to place a street lamp at the corner.

The intersection was the scene of last week's traffic accident between a Wayne County Sheriff's Department patrol car and a 1974 Ford, driven by Doris Ritchie, secretary of the Plymouth Township Planning Commis-

According to Parsell, five accidents occurred at the corner during the preceding week. Five persons have died in traffic accidents at the intersection during the last three or four years.

"Last week's accident just brought it to a head," Parsell said. "It's probably going to happen again. We ask people to come to the firehall (located at the corner) for public meetings, and there are accidents all the time." Although last week's accident occurred during daylight hours, Parsell attributes many of the accidents to darkness of the intersection at night.

"One way or another, the township is going to light that corner up," he promised. "I'm going to demand that a street light is put up there somehow, so people can cross the street under safe conditions."

Parsell said he will broach the street lamp topic at the township board's next meeting, scheduled for Aug. 12.

Teacher strike bill 'a small miracle,' Keith says

By MARTHA MAHAN

Gov. William Milliken has promised to veto the recently passed school strike bill, and one area legislator predicts "it will be 10 years before another bill will hit the floor of the legislature, and that will be a dirty shame."

Seven Republicans joined with 53 Democrats when the House July 30 voted 60-43 to accept the Senate version of the bill which would penalize teachers with a loss of pay after the second week of an up-to-four-weeks authorized strike. Ten Democrats and 33 Republicans voted to reject it.

Only one area Democrat, Rep. John Bennett of Redford, voted to reject

Democrats in the Observer & Eccentric area favoring the measure were Reps. Thomas Brown of Westland, Joseph Forbes of Oak Park, William Keith of Garden City and John Markes of Westland.

"A full, complete, uninterrupted education is a fundamental right of all Michigan children and their parents. Any legislation that does not take all reasonable steps to protect that right will be vetoed by me.'

Hospital plan OK'd

LANSING-The way has been cleared for the 81-bed Redford Community Hospital, 25210 Grand River, to spend $932,000 in remodeling. The state has approved the project.

Local health planners, the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan, have approved the hospital's proposal in principle but not for Certificate of Need purposes.

The reversal by the state of decisions of local health planners, although infrequent, sometimes does occur because the final authority in approving certificates rests with the

The plan for the project includes the replacement of the operating and recovery room duties and the intensive and coronary care unit, the expansion of the emergency and outpatient facilities, and the remodeling of Building-A to correct certain licensing deficiencies.

Keith headed a special House-Senate committee to write a teacher strike control bill. His amendments, co-sponsored by Sen. David Plawecki in the Senate, were favored by Milliken but not adopted by either house.

'It represents a small miracle to get a bill of this magnitude on the governor's desk and it would be a real shame for it to go down the drain for a difference of five days.

He referred to the governor's preference for authorized strikes of up to three weeks with a loss of income after the first week.

"THE BILL represents 21/2 years of effort to effect a resolution to a real tacky problem." Keith continued.

"and it has a lot of pluses that aren't come incentives to strike. The Senate after the bloodbath we've gone given attention because of the five a strike couldn't go beyond Sept. 16,

Total Woman: Banned, debunked and condemned

By ELINOR GRAHAM

Banned at Schoolcraft College, thoroughly debunked in McCall's Magazine, and condemned by the feminists. 'Total Woman' is coming to Plymouth.

Stephanie Hamlin, instructor for Total Woman Inc., will conduct a three-part lecture series in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer Street, beginning at 7 p.m., Monday, Aug. 11.

Plymouth bookstores report the hardcover copies of Maribel Morgan's "Total Woman" have been, and continue to be, a good seller.

BETH SIMESCUE, of Plymouth's

Dunning Hough Library says, "The book has had the longest waiting list of any publication-and it has been constant, for a year now." It has has not been on the library shelves yet. When it is returned it goes under the desk for the next person on the wait-

Plymouth women who have traveled to Southfield or Birmingham for the course report favorably. Yes, they would recommend it to their friendsbut, no names mentioned please.

Mrs. Hamlin says the course is not all tips on sex play and the "I crave your body" bit that has been so widely publicized.

She says organization and wise use of time are stressed. Love is stressed but it embraces the whole family, children and parents.

IT REMINDS me of Gram Keith. Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" was a best seller, and I loaned Gram our copy. There was great

A message from your dog to you

Because dogs don't speak people language and I do; and because most humans don't understand dog language and I do, I was asked by YOUR DOG to give you the following

I know you love me because most of the time you are so good to me; but then, there are times when you do things that I just don't understand.

Take vesterday, for instance, when you were going to the store and said I could go along-I was SO happy and jumped in the car fast as I could. It was great!!! The air conditioner was so cool, and you even permitted me to stick my nose out the window a bit to sniff the air. We were there in no time, then you gathered up your purse and things, slammed the door and disappeared into the market.

Right away the car began to get hot and I got uncomfortable; the hotter it got, the more uncomfortable I got. Finally I decided to try the back seat but it was no better there so I jumped in front again and stuck my nose out the window. The sun was so hot I pulled it right back. I didn't know what to do so I began to bark but I guess you didn't hear me because you didn't come. It grew hotter and hotter and I began to get frantic-thought surely I would suffocate.

About that time a lady came out of the store and near me-thought maybe she would let me out, but she just looked at me kindly and said. 'You poor little thing," and hurried back in the store. Maybe she thought I might bite her or run away, but I would have licked her hand and kissed her feet if only she had let me out

She came out two or three times looking very distressed and talked to several people, but they just shook their heads and went on. I think she was trying to find you, but couldn't.

It got worse and worse, and I thought I was going to die, and know for sure I would have if you hadn't come right then.

Why, oh why, did you leave me in that furnace???? Please, please don't do it again, ever. Next time, leave me at home where it is cooler. Thank you Love-YOUR DOG.

This is all the dog's message, but I would like to add some words of my own. Dear friends, heat builds up in a metal car even if the sun isn't shining; but when it is shining, the buildup is terrific. Leaving windows open a few inches helps very little, and the car soon becomes an oven.

Some dogs have died this way and many more have not died, but have suffered terribly. We all are appalled at the cruelty to defenseless children, and well we should be; but please remember that domestic animals are defenseless also. They are completely dependent on YOU for their well-being, so please, please don't subject them to thoughtless or unnecessary cruelty.

Laws should not be for the chosen few

I would like to invite those of us (so-called middle-class working people) who are being abused by the police and the courts to speak up!

If a law or an ordinance of the city does not apply to everyone then it should apply to no one. Why should they apply to a chosen few.

My husband just got a ticket for what is referred to as "anti-blight." because he did not have a tarp covering the tree branches he hauled to the dump. He always makes sure he has plywood or something on top of the load so that nothing blows off from down in the truck. Then he takes chains and binders and secures the entire load. This is done in such a way as to assure that nothing will be bounced out.

He has never lost anything off his truck on the way to the dump. The officer issuing the ticket said,

'We only ticket those who are a public eyesore." How can one dump truck hauling branches be a public eyesore and not the others hauling the Northville Township issued the ticket, while at the very same time the City of Northville had trucks hauling the same type of rubbish to the same dump-without chains, ropes, or any other type of cover or means of securing the load.

They even leave the tailgates down on the trucks and have been seen losing debris on the roads.

Why should a hard-working family man have to miss a full day's work, for which he is not compensated, go to court, and end up paying a fine? Shouldn't the City of Northville do as they expect those driving through it to

Barbecue tips for tastier meat

Getting ready for a backyard barbecue? If you've got steaks or other meat to put on the grill, follow these · Have meat at room temperature. · Trim fat from outer edges.

· Slash edge from outside and through tendon but not into meat to prevent meat from cupping and cur-

· Don't pick meat with fork or it will lose juices. Turn with tongs.

· Salt meat after cooking. · Be careful of scorching when using any sugar-based barbecue

With a gas grill, you're apt to go into more expensive cuts of meat, such as tenderloin, because you have perfect control.

Franklin, who provided the tips, also suggests you try a "pocket dinner," with the entire meal wrapped in aluminum foil. Any foil-packaged grill easy with no clean up.

FISH MEAL IN FOIL (4 servings) 112 pounds fish fillets, divided into 4 with butter. Bring edges of foil togeth-

Apollo: What's next?

By W. W. EDGAR

The Apollo had just splashed down in the far away Pacific and the safety of the astronauts was assured when a companion in front of the TV turned and said:

What next? What will we get out of all of this?"

It was a good question and permitted one to allow his imagination to run wild in attempting to come up with an answer

NEW From the Quality Water People

Henry Ford produced the 'Tin Lizzie' that it was the first step in putting the world on wheels.

When one looks at the original model in Greenfield Village these days he is prone to wonder how it ever came about. But that "contraption" was the forerunner of the automobile age and the big, fancy cars that glutted the highways over the next half century.

Now, we are in the process of turning full cycle, and who knows, the car of the future may not be much larger than the original Ford. So, one never can tell.

When the Wright brothers proved that man could fly- even though their first flight was little more than 20 feet -- one would have been deemed a bit daffy had he claimed it was the start of an entire new industry that would relegate the country's railroads to the sidelines.

And if you ever chance to see 'The Spirit of St. Louis' suspended over the entrance to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C., you'd shake your head in wonderment. Looking at that plane you'd never believe it was the 'crate' in which Col. Charles Lindberg made his famed solo flight to Paris.

And mind you that was less than 50

IT WAS MUCH the same when Edward S. Evans, founder of Evans Products Company, set a record for air travel around the world in the

No one ever dreamed that a flight such as this was paving the way for an industry that would fill the sky with monstrous jets, carrying as many as 300 passengers. Or the big freighter planes that make a mockery of shipping by rail in many cases.

When we were sitting up until the wee hours of the morning in the early '20s trying to get the call letters of the first radio stations on our homemade crystal sets, there was little thought given to the possibility that the day was not too distant when we would get music in our own home and the news of the day every hour. To say nothing that radio was the forerunner of television that now permits us to see the news and look at major sports events right in our own living room.

Our American ingenuity is an amazing thing. You can rest assured that the flight of the Apollo and its teaming with the Russian space ship, will lead to something that will stretch our present imagination.

It has in the past.

"I just think that the closeness of these two games shows the quality of the league," said Redford coach Bob Atkins. Atkins has led his team to the prestigious trip to Johnstown, where the best 19-and-under baseball talent is annually displayed, in each of the 11 years since the league has been

Redford, traditionally the bully of the league, ran across hard times early this season and at one point had a 3-7 record.

According to Atkins, the team decided to start taking the games one at a time at that point and has rebound to a 20-9 record and another title.

"It's always good to win but I especially savored this one. There were other significant factors that make this title especially important to me," he said.

Redford had to fight back from deficits in every game which it won in the tournament this year.

"The team never gave-up. It fought back all the way," said Atkins.

Redford did not fight back far enough in the first game of the tournament. In that game, Westland took a 4-0 lead after two innings and held on to force the second game. Westland had lost to Redford in opening round action of the two-game knockout tournament, 8-3 and thus needed to sweep both games while Redford need only a Scarpace then followed with his second single of the night and Redwood's ensuing basehit then scored Beyrand. Scarpace then came home on an error by Redford secondbaseman Dan Burke.

REDFORD GOT one run back in the fourth when, with two out, Wasilewski doubled and Mark Yourchock was safe on an error. Redford scored two more in the sixth to pull within one run, 4-3. Wasi-

PHA, high school hockey conflict hits Plymouth

By TOM SCHRAM Sports Editor

Monday, August 4, 1975

Several untimely factors have sparked a "bidding war" for prime high school hockey talent in the city of Plymouth and made the immediate future of the newly instituted high school hockey program cloudy.

The "bidding war." which involves officials of the new high school program and the Plymouth Hockey Association, has arisen becuase both the high schools and the PHA are interested in the same aged-group athletes. That war is being won by the PHA due to several contributing factors.

Primary among those is the PHA's planned trip for one and possibly two midget (high school aged) teams to Sweden in late November. That trip was planned prior to the completion of plans to institute hockey in the city late this spring.

Other factors contributing to the PHA's predominence among the better high school players include the fact that the sport was not given approval in time for either Plymouth Salem or Plymouth Canton high schools to be scheduled for league play this year, making their schedules virtually exhibitions

Also, the only time the Plymouth school board found available for practice was early morning. Despite the fact that the ice rink in the Plymouth Cultural Center sits on school board property, the board made no special provisions to attain privileges for the high school teams.

High School hockey tas been in the planning stages in Plymouth for several years, and this lack of foresight by the school board means that both high school teams must practice together at 5:30 a.m. a few mornings per week

"I THINK a bidding war has aleady taken place to an extent," said Dick Randazzo, board member for the

'We knew there would be problems, and we have to sit down and solve them," he said.

Randazzo said the PHA has gone on record as supporting hockey at the high school level and that he was in favor of bringing both parties together to work out the problems which are going to arise because of the conflict.

Randazzo also said that although he had had little personal contact with the high-school-aged players himself, it was his understanding that most of the better players had already committed themselves to the PHA.

"It's a simple choice of whether a player who will be a senior wants to play one year of exhibition hockey games or whether he wants to play for a travel team which will go to Sweden," he said.

The view that the better players would opt for the PHA has been backed up by several players who have publicly stated that they are planning to go to Sweden, thus passing up the chance to play high school hockey.

ic director for the high schools, is confident that the program will succeed

(P-10A,R-7A,W,G-8A) * 11A

We will have high school hockey in Plymouth this year," Sandman said.

'The problem with the PHA certainly concerns us, and we have certain aprehensions. We would like to have the better players play for the high schools, but what do you tell a kid who has a chance to take a trip to

PART OF THE problem in establishing the high school teams stems from the lack of enough qualified players to support all the teams.

"I think that eventually we will have enough players to support two midget teams and two high school teams, but I don't believe we're there yet in the number of boys who can skate," Randazzo said.

As a result, the high school teams will have to draw from the lower aged groups, primarily sophomores, and marginal midget aged players.

That this will doom the high school teams to mediocrity at best and possible sub-competence against the better high school teams which have had a long history of hockey seems to be accepted by Sandmann.

"We're establishing a program, and it might take a while before we get to the level that we want. But that happens any time you try to establish a new program," he said.

ONE PLYMOUTH coach was critical of the present school board for not obtaining a better deal from the city, to whom the ice rink property is leased on a long-term basis.

"If I was on the school board, I would sit down with the city officials and try to work out a deal. Hell, the rink is on school board property, and they should be able to set it up so the schools don't suffer," said Wayne Sparkman, who coached the Salem baseball team to the state Class A baseball title this spring.

"It was a definite blunder on their part," said Sparkman of the scheduling which offers the early morning practice and only late Monday night home games.

High school hockey is firmly established in cities such as Livonia, but the Livonia Hockey Association has never quite offered a prize such as a trip to Sweden. Still, the great majority of the better high school aged players opt for the LHA.

AN EXCEPTION to that was last year's Livonia Churchill team which skated through its regular season with only one loss. All-Area coach of the year Adam Mitchell of Churchill was optimistic about the future of the sport. "I think the hockey associations have finally realized that we are here to stay. We offer exposure to the colleges that isn't available elsewhere. Our best player last year, Kevin

Kardos, has accepted a scholarship to

New York.

"If he had played anywhere else, he wouldn't have gotten that offer." said

Mitchell also said he has received good cooperation from the LHA.

"Whenever one of my players has asked for a release from the hockey association, he's had no trouble getting it," said Mitchell.

Despite this, an air of antagonism between the high schools and the LHA has long existed.

WHAT THE relationship between the Plymouth high schools and the of cooperation with no visible signs that any communication is forthcom-

"I think it's feasible to have both groups exist. We came out to support the high school program and, as an individual, I believe that we ought to live up to that commitment.

"The midget travel team coach is going to be upset. But so what?" said Randazzo.

Sandmann was not positive that the PHA was sincere in its efforts to support the high school program. "Time will tell if the PHA is cooper-least not right now," he said. While Sandmann said he would be happy to sit down and talk with the PHA, he said he had no plans to contact them. Similarly, while Ranzadoo stressed the neccessity of ironing out the problems between the two groups as soon as possible, he said he was not aware of any immediate plans on the PHA's part o meet with Sandmann. Although Randazzo, an admitted pes-

In four years the Plymouth Community Arts Council arts and crafts show has become one of the most popular features of Plymouth's annual fall festival.

They're No. 2. The Rotary Club chicken barbecue remains the top attraction and that's the way it should be, because the Rotarians started the whole thing.

PCAC members began planning for 1975 shortly after last year's show when Esther Hulsing was named general chairman and Nancy Sharp, her assistant.

Committee heads were assigned. In the months that followed the groundwork was laid for the two-day show which last year attracted 5,000 visitors.

Mrs. Hulsing invited her co-workers to a luncheon meeting recently for final status reports from committee chairmen.

Family picnic planned for forgotten' children

By SHERRY KAHAN

About 160 children and young people will pour out of Binet Hall of Plymouth Home for Human Development on Aug. 21 and head for the picnic area with a feeling of anticipation.

These retarded youngsters have had picnics before but this one will have an exciting new ingredient. Joining them will be their parents or stand-in parents.

"This is the first time we've invited parents," said Peter Schweitzer, director of community relations. "We've had open houses before for people from the community. But we've never before involved parents and children in an activity.

"The picnic is the kind of normal event that hasn't been enjoyed by many of these children. Sitting down with a family at a picnic is completely new to them."

BUT TO MAKE the event a happy one for all the children, some help from the community is needed. Paul Napier, program director for Binet Hall, explained why.

Some of the children, he said, will be with their natural parents. These are the fortunate ones whose families make regular visits to the child who cannot be cared for at home.

"But half the children participating are what we call forgotten," Napier continued. "This means they have not had any contact with their families or any person outside the institution for more than a year."

So, Napier said, volunteers are needed to serve as parents so these forgotten ones can share in the happiness.

ORIENTATION for those who volunteer will be Thursday, Aug. 7, at 7:30 p.m. Any adult taking a young person to the picnic must attend the orientation. To volunteer, call Pat Jones of the social service department at the

"We are hoping to get adults who know the value of the family experience and would like to share some extra love with a child not as fortunate as their own," said Mrs. Jones.

Sam Cordaro, who is in charge of volunteers at the center, noted that many community organizations sponsor a forgotten child.

On special occasions, organization members send cards and gifts to "their" child. But as yet, few sponsors have actually met the child they are helping.

Cordaro hopes some of these sponsoring groups will send representatives to the picnic and devote some time to the sponsored child.

"I THINK the child will enjoy the attention received," he said. "The effect should be a favorable one. Anything that resembles a normal activity has a positive effect. The trend now in institutions is to try to provide more normal experiences for the inhabitants.

"The children will be with the parents for only two to three hours, but that is better than spending no time at all."

Napier said the retarded persons involved range in age from four to 18. All are ambulatory, can feed themselves and have a good receptive vocabulary.

Eighty per cent have a limited expressive vocabulary. Children will be selected so that stand-in parents won't have a child that poses a problem. In addition staff members will be on hand to answer questions and help.

"It should be an evening of fun and excitement," said Napier. "The Farmington Elks motorized drill team will perform and we may have some clowns from the Shrine Circus. We hope to have a band, and there will be games for the children."

All the children need now is some volunteer parents.

ALAN AND GAIL HERING of Canton Township and their children will be "family" for young Tommy, a resident of Binet Hall in the Plymouth Center for Human Development, in the family picnic planned by the center Aug.

21. They brought him a ball in anticipation of the big day. Around Tommy (from left) are Mrs. Hering and her husband, Elaine, David and Wendy Cole, a cousin. (Staff photo by Bob Wendring)

Can your garden harvest but use safe methods

BY MARGARET MILLER

Don't believe it for a minute when someone tells you it's possible to can food safely in the oven or in an open kettle or with aspirin or by any other short cut method.

That's the message Johne Criner of the Michigan State University cooperative extension service brought to recent gatherings of economy and ecology-minded homemakers in Plymouth and Redford Township.

And it's the word from Ms. Criner, who spoke in the Plymouth Credit Union Building and the Redford Township Library, and Kathy Bufton, who has a session scheduled in the Northville Square lower level conference room Wednesday, Aug. 13, at 1:30

The two home economists have been traveling all around Wayne County to fill several score requests for talks on preserving the harvests of this summer's small gardens.

Tips they are giving-in abundance and on just about any food preservation question asked-but they continue to emphasize the message that only the steam pressure method, which raises the temperature of food to 240 degrees, is adequate for low-acid foods like beans, beets, corn and meats.

MS. CRINER said men have attended some of the lectures she has given, and they are the ones who often press her to agree that other methods can be used safely.

"My answer to questions like that," she said, "is that I would not use such methods of canning and then feed the results to someone I loved."

The manual on canning that the home economists distribute with their talks puts the warning another way.

"Persons who use unreliable canning methods may have 'good luck' for years," the publication reads. "This is because heat-resistant bacteria are not always present. When these spoilage micro-organisims are absent, underprocessed foods may faulty canning of low-acid foods, Ms. Criner said. She added that the extension service is taking its lectures to as many groups as possible because that deadly poisoning increased last year in the United States and the consenus was that a major reason was the increase in home canning.

"And we know that this year even more people are canning the vegetables they have grown or purchased in an effort to cut food costs," she said.

"Our lecture requests have increased 170 per cent over last year." In the local lectures, she also told how to recognize possible spoilage in home-preserved foods.

There will be a cloudy appearance, and possibly an off odgr," she said. "If there is any reason to suspect spoilage, the food should be boiled for 10 minutes. This will not destroy the botulism, but it will increase the odor and make it certain that the food should not be eaten.

"If this happens, it's also important to sterilize-not just wash- the jar it

THE STEAM-PRESSURE method, Ms. Criner said, involves use of a heavy kettle with a lid that can be clamped or locked down to make it steam-tight.

If people make the investment of a pressure cooker for this kind of canning, she added, "we recommend that they look at the recipe book that comes with it and maybe use it for other kinds of cannings-soups, chili sauce and meats as well as just garden vegetables.'

The water-bath method, which processes food at 212 degrees, is safe for fruits, tomatoes and other high-acid foods, Ms. Criner said, because the boiling temerature destroys the bacteria, enzymes, molds and yeasts which can spoil such products.

The food preservation talks also covered jam and jelly making and the safety features involved, as well as freezing vegetables and fruits.

"We are not concerned much about food safety in freezing processes," Ms. Criner said. "In this case, it's a matter of loss of quality and nutrients if improper methods are used."

The commonest mistake made in freezing, she added, is failure to blanch, the process by which the vegetables to be frozen are placed in boiling water for a few minutes and then

"When you blanch, you are stopping the ripening process," she explained. "This does not stop just by putting the vegetables in the freezer."

BESIDES DISTRIBUTING booklets on canning and freesing and recommending use of shelves of special book collections on the subject being offered in local libraries, Ms. Criner offered some tips to the women who attended her lectures.

She suggested that women forget the old adage that fruit slightly bruised or maybe past prime is "good enough for canning.'

"I can remember hearing that when I was a child," she said, "but the fact is that what you can is only as good as the fruit you start with."

Kosher salt is best for pickles, she said, because it doesn't contain the additives in table salt that might make the product cloudy.

Jam and jelly recipes should never be doubled, she stated because "it takes too big a pot and it just won't turn out right." Paraffin is the most economical way of sealing these, "but don't melt it over direct heat, and pour on just one thin layer."

She suggested that those interested in canning with artificial sugar look for recipes given by the manufacturers and try them, "but our experience has been that people are not too terribly happy with the results."

AND FINALLY, Ms. Criner offered a recipe for getting the most out of canning by doing it in small lots.

"Don't get so immersed in canning that you have bottles all over the house and it's a terrible chore." she said. "Try planning to process a few jars each day and see if you don't find it a really enjoyable part of homemaking.'

Part of our house had its face lifted this summer, and we found that living around a decorator was more traumatic than we had anticipated.

Not that he wasn't a fine gentleman, but it had been a long time since those walls had seen new coverings and we'd sort of forgotten all the problems we'd encounter.

At one point, as the old paper was coming up in great hunks, I began to wonder whether the cat would disappear under its piles.

She took care of that, though. She kept close supervision over the intruder into her house, but stayed well out of the way of the paste pot and descending paper.

THE FIRST REAL difficulty, other than climbing over scaffolding to go up or downstairs, was the disappearance for the full-length mirror we keep in the upper hall.

"I didn't realize how often I looked at myself," one of the girls commented. "I'm really not that vain, am

"I don't know about you," her sister answered, "but I sure am getting tired of going to look at the wall every time I get dressed.'

Our youngest came home from camp in the middle of all the mess. I guess the cultural shock was less for her-she'd been getting along on a little mirror anyway.

THEN THE DECORATOR moved to the living room and covered all our furniture with great drop-cloths.

"Do you think the television's still there?" someone asked. "I don't see The clock that normally stands in front of the huge mirror over the mantlepiece had to find temporary new quarters. So then all of us started looking at that mirror when we wanted to know the time. "I know," suggested our wise college student. "We'll take the clock upstairs and put it where the mirror was, and then when we want to know how we look we'll find out what time it is and.....

THE DECORATOR IS GONE and our quarters are more or less back in order. But it won't make anyone unhappy if we wait another long time before we go through it again.

THIS VERSATILE, wide-tracked work vehicle now is available from PPT of MICHIGAN, owned by Vern Converse III, president of Scans Associates Inc. of Livonia.

Tracked work vehicle designed to get there

An economical, heavy-duty, tracked work vehicle, ideal for transporting people and equipment to and from otherwise inaccessible industrial sites, is now available from PPT of MICHIGAN.

The company, a subsidiary of Grand Bay Inc. of Franklin, is owned by Vern Converse III, president of Scans Associates of Livonia. Known as the PasseParTout (PPT), the rugged workhorse is available in three different models built of high-strength steel and designed for trouble-free performance.

Small enough to fit in the back of a pickup truck, the PPT can carry up to 1,000 pounds in the three-by-four or -five foot cargo area behind the driver after removing two passenger seats.

SMALL SIZE and ability to turn on the center of one track permit maximum maneuverability in mud. sand. marshlike land.

deep snow or rough terrain. A low center of gravity, wide body and anti-skid traction assure safe operation on steep slopes. Optional roll bars offer extra protection.

Two endless tracks are made of tough rubber-coated three-ply nylon. Automotive-type clutches control the tracks individually, and disc brakes are standard. All types of mechanical and hydraulic attachments can be mounted to the body.

Medium speed, four-cycle, high torque engines with electric starters and a mechanical transmission with two forward speeds and reverse are standard. A two-cycle engine is available on the smallest model for light work at higher speeds.

	hunting clubs and ski re
