Canton to hire grant coordinator, negotiator

By RICHARD GOLD

Two additions to Canton's administrative staff in the near future should give the township's business offices an even more professional look.

According to Supervisor Robert Greenstein, the township board Tuesday will be presented with a nomination from the administration to fill the position of township labor negotiator.

Within two weeks, Greenstein said, the administration will be ready to hire an economic development coordinator.

First word that the administration was prepared to hire a professional negotiator came a month ago after several members of the township board attended the annual Michigan Townships Association convention where the idea was discussed at length in several seminars.

Shortly thereafter, the board gave the administration the green light to hire a professional negotiator and the hunt began.

"WE'VE TALKED to nine other municipalities, the American Arbitration Association and the Michigan Office of Economic Development about getting a negotiator," said Greenstein.

"We came up with a list of eight names and we've looked at all the candidates.

"Right now we are down to three."

Greenstein said he hoped the administration would have a choice by today (Thursday), and that the board would grant approval next Tuesday.

Originally, the board, on preliminary advice, had considered hiring a negotiator on a yearly retainer at a cost of $8,000 rather than on an hourly or daily basis. Board members said they feared it might be costlier to pay by the hour with three contracts to negotiate.

But Greenstein, at least, has changed his mind.

"We've been told again and again since we started investigating this that it's unwise to hire on a yearly basis. It's entirely possible that we may get a quick contract and that we'll end up paying between $3,000-$4,000."

Negotiations between the township and three unions, the firefighters, the DPW employes and the building inspectors have been dragging for months.

"I don't foresee any terrible problems," said Greenstein. "The fireman will have roughest contract to iron out, and the DPW and building inspector contracts should be quite similar. They are more stock items."

AFTER A NEGOTIATOR is hired, the administration will concentrate on hiring an economic expansion coordinator.

"We're looking for someone who can handle grants, attract industry and help monitor the economic growth of the township," said the supervisor.

"We have a list of men supplied by the Michigan Department of Commerce, an office intensely familiar with such people and we spent all last Friday interviewing candidates."

The township has been without any official to attract non-residential tax base since the Plymouth-Canton Development Commission, composed of representatives from Canton and Plymouth Townships, and the city of Plymouth, folded last year. That body was concerned with attracting industry into the Plymouth Community School District boundaries.

According to the supervisor, one man with five years experience in Van Buren Township and currently working in Oklahoma has the inside track on the job, which would cost the township anywhere from "$14,000 on up.

"HOW MUCH we pay would depend on experience and ability, so we can't really say how much it will cost right now," said Greenstein.

"But the money is there."

The supervisor said he hoped to hire the coordinator as soon as possible and that the first task of the man appointed would be to begin work on a farmer's market for the township.

"We need immediate help on grants," said Greenstein, "but the really heavy work of attracting industry probably won't begin until I-275 is completed."

The supervisor said if and when the appointment is filled, the Plymouth Community Schools will be approached about sharing the cost of the coordinator's salary.

Millage election slated for April 5

Voters in Plymouth Community School District may be asked to determine the fate of several school programs during the next two months if school officials decide to go ahead with a millage election April 5.

The decision to reserve that date for a property tax increase election was made unanimously Monday by the school board to meet the required 50-day notice for the Wayne County Election Scheduling Committee.

If the state aid formula remains unchanged, and the decision to go ahead with the election is made, it will be a building and site development election. Amount of the millage request and other details are currently unknown.

If the state aid formula, now under discussion in Lansing, is changed by that date, the election may be put off or changed to an operating levy request.

THE BUILDING and site development fund, maintained separately from the operating budget of the school district, could, if beefed up, take pressure off the already tight operating budget.

While revenue netted by such a tax hike would go to building maintenance and to capital outlay for new equipment, it could replace money currently used from the operating budget for such expenditures.

While no specifics of the election have been determined, the board's thinking behind is that money generated by a building and site development levy would not reduce state aid.

The district, already hampered by some $350,000 in state aid cuts, increased costs, and new buildings to open in 1976, would generate a zero net gain if an operating levy of 2.3 mills or less were passed.

Under the current state aid formula, under fire from many school administrators including Supt. Mike Hoben, any local money generated by an operating levy of up to 2.3 mills would merely reduce state aid by the same amount of dollars.

In effect, the first 2.3 mills of any operating levy passed in the district would go to the state.

But according to Hoben, any levy passed for building and site development would not affect state aid. "We would retain 100 per cent of the money raised in an election, and currently that is the only way I know of to guarantee that money will stay in the district," he said.

What is not clear, according to Hoben, is how much can be saved by transferring operating budget costs to the building and site development fund. "It's not clear how much we can get away with," he said.

Details of the request must be decided by the school board no later than 30 days prior to the election. The board would have to make its decision at its regular meeting of Feb. 23.

At that time the life of the millage and the amount would be revealed.

Speculation on the size of the millage has run anywhere from 0.5 mills to 1. A mill yields $1 in revenue for every $1,000 in state equalized valuation.

A levy of one mill would generate an extra $470,000 for the district, minus the cost of the election, estimated at between $3,000 and $4,00.

It's official (or almost)

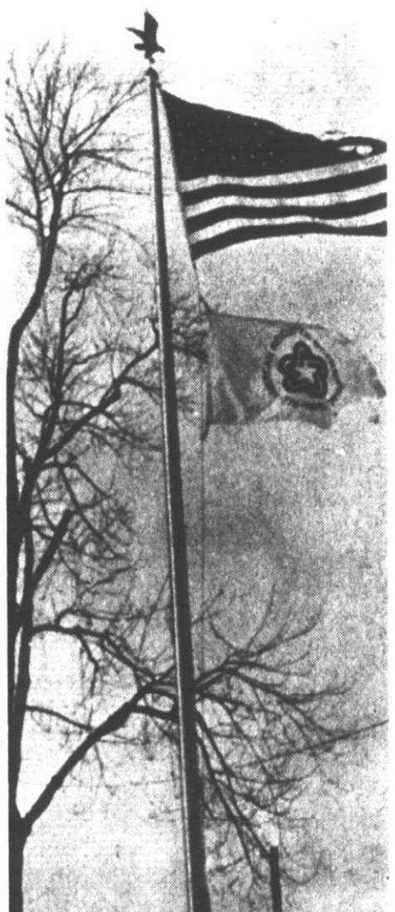

The Community Bicentennial Commission has received word that the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township fill all the requirements to be officially named bicentennial communities.

Commission Chairman Elizabeth Folger said that a letter from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration had arrived, stating the communities' eligibilities had been approved. An official document will be sent, within the next 30 days, making the designation official.

With the certification it will become legal to fly the official bicentennial national emblems on flagstaffs in the three communities.

Mrs. Folger admitted that she had been a little nervous because some persons have had them displayed—prematurely. As chairman of local bicentennial activities, she would be held responsible for this breach of etiquette. A very stiff fine and even a prison sentence is involved if ARBA approval has not been attained.

The Bicentennial Commission has been awaiting the decision from ARBA since last June when they first made application for the official recognition.

TCP hosts hearing

Total Citizens' Power (TCP), a non-profit apolitical township organization, will begin to fulfill its objective of informing the public when it hosts a hearing on the proposed master land-use plan Feb. 12 at the Plymouth Canton Cafetorium at 7:30 p.m.

The intent of the hearing, according to two officers of the organization, Bruce Young and Frank McMurray, is to compile a list of questions concerning the plan and aid residents in asking any questions they may have about it.

Professional help will be solicited to answer questions and assist in compiling a master list of questions on the plan.

All interested township residents are invited to attend.

The TCP officers said that more than just farmers will be affected by the plan, and that it is in every resident's best interest to attend.

"We hope to sort, gather and catalogue questions," said Young, "so that we can come up with a 'question bank'. Then later, we hope to provide answers for those questions, would be asked to join in the meeting for 'unbiased assistance."

"We want external help—non-residents, who won't be biased in any way—to look at the plan and help with the questions. We're asking people from Wayne State University, the Wayne County Board of Taxation, and Eastern Michigan University to attend."

Young said the hearing would probably be the first of several public gatherings hosted by TCP on the land-use plan, a matter he termed "possibly one of the most important issues of national concern."

MASTER LAND USE PLAN: PART I

Agricultural land is key to new plan

Editors note: This is the first in a series of articles on Canton's new master land use plan which will be open tor comment by the public at a hearing March 1. The first part deals with agricultural land in the township. On Monday, the Observer & Eccentric will take a look at residential growth in the township and what can be expected in the future under the proposed plan.

By RICHARD GOLD

The heart of Canton's new master land use plan, and that which has caused almost all associated with it to call it revolutionary, is an all out attempt to save almost 9,000 acres of farmland west of Canton Center Road.

Large chunks of land in particular, slated for eventual development under older plans, are now going to be saved for agricultural use, if the proposed land use plan is passed by the township planning commission.

Under the proposed plan, which will go before the public for comment March 1 at Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium, 38.3 per cent of the land in Canton will be set aside for farming.

Of that, 27.1 per cent or 6,300 acres will be retained in large parcels, no less than 40 acres and will be called agricultural-industrial land.

Smaller farms, no less than five acres, make up the other 11.2 per cent or 2,600 acres.

New in the plan, and apparently untried across the nation, is the agricultural-industrial classification. Those lands will be taxed at use-value, instead of future value—what the land would be worth when it is developed into commercial or residential property.

Officials hope scenes like this will remain with the passage of the new land use plan. (Staff photo by Maurie Walker)

"The greatest stumbling block in saving the farmland," explained planner Mike Manore, "was the tax structure we are faced with.

"Planners have wanted for many years to save farmland, but have never been able to. With this plan we hope to."

Supervisor Robert Greenstein, who has been in the forefront in the effort to retain agricultural land and open space, elaborated.

"Farmers are being taxed out of existence, even though right now there is no way that land west of Canton Center could be developed because of the lack of sewers and services.

"But taxes are based on comparable value, and when a neighbor sells out to a speculator or developer for $2,000 or $3,000 an acre, the state automatically assumes all the land is worth that much, and the farmers are taxed accordingly—even though current use is for farming and not development.

"Even the serious farmer is forced to speculate, because the taxing is prohibitive.

"When we came into office we knew what we wanted to do—but we didn't know

County 4-H honors won by 5 residents

Five members of the Plymouth Towne & Country 4-H Club earned county awards at the recent Wayne County 4-H Awards Celebration in the UAW Hall in Taylor.

About 200 members, parents and leaders attended the ceremonies and watched as five of the 11 county awards were presented to members of the Towne & Country 4-H Club of Plymouth.

THE TOP AWARD, for leadership, was earned by Jane Stuart, immediate past president of the local club and an active 4-H member for the past three years.

A senior at Plymouth Canton High, she also received honorable mention for her county horse project entry. During the past years, she also has received county awards for her projects.

Sandra Green, also a Plymouth Canton senior, received the county award for her project with geese. Although she also is active in horse and rabbit projects, one of her entries in the geese division won grand champion prize at the Wayne County 4-H Fair last August in Belleville.

TWO SISTERS and their brother, all students at Plymouth Salem High, each captured a county award.

The senior horse award went to Christie Burda, a 4-H member for seven years. A senior in high school, she also has won county awards in past years and is one of two members to achieve seven years of service in the local 4-H club.

Jeff Burda, a 10th grader and active in 4-H for six years, received the county award for his activities in horticulture. Cheryl Burda, the youngest member of the family and in 4-H for five years, earned her award in the foods area.

THE 4-H COUNTY AWARD is the recognition given to a member for demonstrating outstanding achievement in a particular project area—or in overall 4-H activities—at the county level in a single 4-H year.

The county award is especially important because it is the first step in the selection process to determine district, state and national 4-H award winners.

In Wayne County the award competition is open to all 4-H members 12 years and older. This year winners were selected from among 5,900 entries.

At its recent annual meeting, FISH of Plymouth revealed some of its inner workings and future needs. Chairman Charles Zoet explained that "although the number of volunteers has increased, it hasn't kept pace with the increase in population and the resultant calls for help. The steering committee has even discussed the possibility of not accepting calls from Canton until more volunteers from that area could be obtained. Residents interested in volunteering should contact Zoet, or Lt. Dallas Raby of the Salvation Army in Plymouth.

Canton debators end season

The Plymouth Canton High School debate team has ended its season on a winning note by placing fourth among 15 teams competing in the Wayne Novice Tournament. The team won five and lost one at the invitational.

For the year, in novice competition all over the state, Canton debators finished the season with a 41-20 record.

The team is represented by seniors Janet and Joanne Roths, juniors Lisa Rost and David Horn, and sophomore Patti Mrowka. During the season, the debate team never had a losing record at any novice league or tournament attended.

The topic argued by high school debators statewide this year was: "Resolved: That the development and allocation of scarce world resources should be controlled by an international organization."

The team is coached by Richard Kelley—a 1973 Centennial Educational Park graduate who is now a junior at Eastern Michigan University.

Budget adjustment process continues

Administrators and Plymouth Community school board members continued paring away and adjusting the operating budget for fiscal 1975-76 Monday night, although several critical issues were deferred for later decisions.

A new athletic budget prepared by Athletic Director John Sandmann was presented to and adopted by the board.

It reinstated several spring programs such as girls golf and coeducational tennis at the middle school level, while cutting awards, reconditioning and purchase of new equipment.

All coaches clinics were abolished, and despite increased salary costs of $800, the department managed to reduce the overall remaining budget $6,000

Board members agreed, however, that reconditioning of equipment was a delaying tactic, and the problem will have to be dealt with in the future.

Supt. John M. Hoben told the board the athletic department is seeking help from residents in transportation for spring sports, and all teams are currently involved in extra-curricular activities to raise money for equipment in the face of the current budget crunch.

TRANSPORTATION of ineligibles (students who do not legally have to be bused the district because they are within 1.5 miles of school) was given close attention, but no alterations were made. Most board members felt current busing of ineligibles is done for safety.

Board members were told that new schools opening next year will ease some of the financial strain of busing and that good sidewalks in many areas could relieve the safety problem in the future.

Board member Flossie Tonda, a member of the safety committee, said, "There is no room for reducing busing. It is justified for safety's sake."

Deferred decisions included the closing of Geer School, a reduction in custodial staff and closing gyms after school to non-students.

THE CLOSING of Geer—the district's last one-room school—received the most discussion.

Board members were confronted by parents of students at Geer, led by John Van Dyke, who argued that Geer was in fact the second cheapest elementary next to Truesdale to operate.

Parents also argued that although the school is slated to reopen in the future, it could be difficult or impossible to do so once the 150-year old school closes its doors.

Van Dyke and Supt. Hoben agreed to meet later to discuss the per pupil cost of operating Geer to determine if, as administrative officials had claimed earlier, it is the most expensive elementary in the district to operate.

Future of Mettetal Airport is still up in the air

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

(Part II)

The most dramatic event involving Mettetal Airport occurred on June 7, 1975, when a man, later identified as Morris Colosky, chartered a Hi-Lift helicopter from the Mettetal field for a flight to Lansing on business.

When in the air, the passenger asked the pilot, Richard Jackson, to change his course and head for Jackson. As the 'copter flew over Jackson Prison, the highjacker put a knife to the pilot's throat and forced him to land in the prison yard where they picked up convict Dale Remling. Later, the pilot landed Remling and the highjacker in a field 15 miles from the prison.

Acting on information provided by the pilot, the police soon captured Remling in a bar 13 miles from the prison. Colosky and several female accomplices also were caught and convicted.

PRIOR TO the 1950s, the Mettetals had competition from several small airports nearby.

One of the nearest, Triangle Airport, was located partly in Plymouth Township and partly in Livonia. It was on the triangle of land west of Hix Road, where Ann Arbor Trail crosses Ann Arbor Road. Cunningham's now has a drug store not far from the site. One of the oldest airports in Michigan, Triangle closed in the mid-50s when a subdivision was built on the property.

Mettetal Airport, located 700 feet above sea level, is classified as a private, Class B airport. It has a hard-surfaced half-mile runway and a hangar capacity for more than 100 planes. It can hangar planes up to large twin-motor in size. Marvin Mettetal says, "It is relatively small, but large in terms of traffic. Five years ago, it was the third busiest airport in the entire state of Michigan."

Those who use the airport come largely from Livonia, Plymouth and Detroit. Cass Hough, of Daisy, who now lives in Arkansas, used to hangar his plane there, as did Doug Bathey of the Bathey Manufacturing Company, who now lives in Naples, Fla. Associated Spring once had a plane there, and the twin-engined Grumman Mallard used by Ed and Bob Evans of Evans Products Company also employed the field.

WHEN HE WAS Governor of Michigan (1947-48), Kim Sigler, who loved to travel, would fly to Mettetal Airport to participate in Plymouth's Fourth of July parades.

The colorful Sigler, who made the headlines in the '40s as special prosecutor in the legislative bribery grand-jury investigation, traveled in a small, private plane. He would be accompanied to Mettetal by an escort of P-51s, which peeled off and went elsewhere as he landed here.

Marvin Mettetal says the cost of a single-engine private plane today ranges from $25,000 to $60,000. The cheapest twin-engine plane sells for $75,000.

The Mettetals say the use of private planes is increasing and that most flyers today are instrument-rated. They believe the future of small airports is assured.

"Big airports don't like to have small planes land. They say they delay the landing and take-off of large, commercial planes."

AS TO THE FUTURE of Mettetal Airport, the Mettetals say they would like to see it remain as an airport, but wouldn't turn down a good offer for the property. If sold, the decision of whether the property would still be used as an airport would remain with the new owners.

Some residents of the area believe the airport is an asset and attempts have been made to assure its continued operation by having one or more of the governmental bodies adjacent to the property acquire Mettetal for use as a municipal airport. In 1956, the Commissioners of the City of Plymouth indicated their willingness to sponsor the acquisition of Mettetal for use as the Plymouth City Airport.

At a general primary election on Aug. 7, 1956, the electors were asked to vote on the proposition of borrowing $500,000 and issuing general obligation of bonds of the city for the purpose of paying the cost of "acquiring, constructing, owning, improving, enlarging and extending the airport." The airport bond issue was rejected by the voters 797 to 196.

CANTON TOWNSHIP has also considered and rejected the idea of acquiring the airport.

As recently as June 12, 1975, the Observer & Eccentric reported that Canton Township officials "heeded the voice of the people when they unanimously agreed to forego the purchase and expansion of Mettetal Airport."

Michigan State law, Act 338, of December, 1974, enables a governing body to form an economic development corporation to finance projects deemed to be in the public interest. It permits, under certain conditions, the floating of tax-free bonds, not to exceed $5 million, to finance such projects.

The Mettetals' understanding is that a corporation formed in compliance with this act could buy the Mettetal Airport for use as a municipal airport, or could convert the property to an industrial park, a recreation facility, a golf course, or similar project for public use, providing local agreement is reached under the provisions of the act.

Whatever happens to Mettetal Airport, the odds are that the property will never return to the pickle-vine status in which the Branta Flying Club discovered it almost 40 years ago.

Mettetal Airport property looked like this in the late 1940s. The planes landed on sod before 1959. The Mettetal farmhouse is between the hangars and Lilley Road. Across Lilley Road is the barn and the Mettetal Greenhouse. (Photo courtesy of Sam Hudson)

Key to new land plan is retaining farmlands

how to go about it. So we went to the state tax tribunal and then the county.

"We were told that land must be taxed at its market value and its use—but there was never an effort made to separate the two.

"So even though the farmers were raising soybeans, they were being taxed as if there were condominiums on the land."

"We were told it was legal to assess on use if you can prove that the land will in fact stay agricultural. That use must be maintained."

The supervisor said the master land use plan and the comprehensive zoning ordinance that implements the plan is proof that farmland will stay farmland.

"We went back to Wayne County and showed them the ordinace and the plan in May," explained Greenstein, "and while they didn't have the manpower to reassess the land, they gave us the go-ahead."

"We will begin this year through our own tax board of review to reassess farm property. We'll lower the taxes value 40 per cent this year and next year, we'll assess the land at between $500 and $750 an acre, what the land would be worth if it were sold just for farming."

Cost of reducing taxes on land zoned agricultural-industrial (named because commercial farming is a form of industry), will be minimal to the township both Manore and Greenstein claim.

The biggest loser, they say, will be the schools, and under the state aid formula, most of that money will be recouped in state aid.

According to Manore, the net loss would be:

- $7,817 to the Plymouth Community School District.
- $3,161 to the Van Buren School District.
- $13,362 to Wayne County.
- $9,450 to Canton.
- $3,780 to Schoolcraft Community College.

These immediate losses, however, will be offset in the future by reduced growth in the township, growth that would have called for greater township services and more schools.

Under the old master land use plan, prepared by Parkins and Rogers in 1967, no agricultural land would have been saved, and the ultimate population of the township would have been 205,000.

The new plan calls for approximately 100,000 when the township is fully developed in 1995.

"Economically, is just isn't feasible to develop the western half of the township," said Greenstein. "It would have been composed of homes probably less than $50,000 and they wouldn't carry their own weight in taxes.

"If the western half of the township were developed, the school millage would go to 60 mills, because of all the new schools."

Manore added "We estimated that if the western half were turned into subdivisions, there would be an additional 15,000 children thrown into the school system."

"With farms," said Greenstein, "the area becomes a tax plus, because they wouldn't require the municipal services required by urbanization.

"Look at Livonia. They are industry rich, and with 110,000 people they have a $6 million budget for fire and police protection.

"If Canton were 205,000 our budget for those services alone would be $8 million at least, not even counting other services like the DPW. The economic pressure would be staggering."

He added "If you discount all the aesthetics, the food needs, the ecology and clean air, making the western half of the township agricultural alone saves us from economic disaster."

If there is a hitch in the plan, according to Greenstein, it is that experts in the field say that at least 10,000 acres of commercial farmland are necessary to attract the farm maintenance business necessary to make farming economically viable.

Canton has set aside only 6,300 acres for commercial farming.

But the supervisor maintains that with a very large farmer's market planned for in the near future and with neighboring Superior Township showing great interest in retaining its eastern-most farm land, the plan should be viable.

"We've talked to people in Superior, and the interest has been intense. They want to save their farmland too, but they are facing development pressures from Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti."

Manore added "If they join in with us, the Detroit to Ann Arbor urban sprawl will be stopped, and it makes sense.

"Planning theory has always said that people should be clustered in a serviceable area.

"By controlling urban sprawl, services can be concentrated. It would take only one police car to cover all of the western part of the township, if it stays agricultural."

Both the planner and Greenstein mentioned the need to retain farm land for its food value.

"The state agricultural department has said that Michigan must retain at least 8 million acres by the year 2000 to meet the ever growing food needs of the nation and the world," said Greenstein.

"Yet projections show that if development continues at the current rate, there will only be three million acres left by 2,000."

One other facet of the plan considered revolutionary is to buy the development rights, like mineral rights to the land.

According to the supervisor, some 15 years down the road, when the land is firmly established as agricultural, government will purchase the development rights ensuring that it stays agricultural while reimbursing the farmer to some degree for what he might have received had the land been sold for future development.

The farmer could stay and use the land, but the development rights would belong to the government.

"It has always been the philosophy of government to pay for the public good. Retaining farmland is for the public good, and thereforethe public should pay for it," said Greenstein.

Of course, there is also the legal issue to be dealt with. As Canton's plan is considered a first, there is no legal precedent to go by. But the supervisor thinks the test won't come for another 15 years, until the east side of the township is fully developed.

"Until then," said the supervisor, "it is not feasible to even think about developing the western half of Canton."

Yockey talks at EMU

Plymouth's city manager Fred Yockey will be one of the speakers at a seminar on public service from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., March 17, in the Tower Room of McKenny Union at Eastern Michigan University.

The seminar, called "A Bicentennial Assessment: The Public Service and the Challenge of the Future," is one of five free lectures sponsored by the EMU Bicentennial Committee and political science department. Museum to open next Saturday

A last-minute flurry of activity is under way in the Plymouth Historical Museum as Director Mark Hunt and volunteers prepare for the Saturday, Feb. 14 opening.

Pat Whitsell is completing the display of early photographs of the area which may been seen in the lobby.

Betty Zimmerman and Lou Moore are preparing old quilts for exhibit. Each quilt is backed with sheeting which has a strip of Velcro sewn along each side. They will be hung in frames, supported by the Velcro.

The collection is an oustanding example of early craftmanship. There is a log cabin quilt with patches less than one inch in width. Another is made of hexagonal pieces in an all-over pattern. It is tied and filled with sheep's wool.

DOT BUSHONG and Hunt have been collaborating on the three Victorian rooms. The parlor is complete except for the dark red velvet draperies. The kitchen—with its cast iron cook stove, woodbox filled with stove lengths and kindling—is authentic to the last utensil.

The range lacked a lid-lifter until the January meeting of the Historical Society. Lloyd Fillmore said he had one and donated it to the museum.

Clarence Moore will have the pump installed in the dry sink, and Mrs. Bushong and Hunt will have the bedroom furniture arranged before the opening.

Pat Scott is putting the finishing touches on the interior of the flower shop on the Main Street of stores and offices. The room is sponsored by the Plymouth Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

MRS. SCOTT and her committee of Lorraine Gould, Mabel Lorenz, Stephanie La-Gosh and Evelyn Gilbert have been working on the shop since last fall.

Mrs. La Gosh and Mrs. Scott papered the wall above the high wainscoating with a flocked, striped wallpaper in shades of soft green and gold.

Bruce Scott built the shelves and made the beamed ceiling. Dried herbs and flowers hang from the beams—bayberry, statice and honesty. Mrs. Gould provided the gaslight ceiling fixture. Garden club members Gertrude Tefford and Hyacinth Wilske are responsible for the old wicker flower baskets and the china on the shelves.

They have used pampas grass and peacock feathers in authentic 18th century arrangents. All flowers are real except for a large framed floral wreath which is made of natural grains, seeds and pine cones.

"WE ARE VERY excited," said Hunt. "The opening is just the beginning, not the end. The museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 14 and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15.

Volunteer guides will greet and aid visitors as they tour the building Opening days visitors will have an opportunity to meet those who contributed much of their time, talents and financial support to the museum.

Dr. Sam Hudson will be on hand to autographh copies of his new book, "Plymouth: Past and Present," and a new edition of "Pictures of Plymouth Past and Present." Both books will be on sale in the gift shop with all proceeds going to the museum.

A tour of Main Street depicts Plymouth just before the turn of the century. The period rooms show the lifestyle of residents in the 1880s and '90s.

Members of the archives committee will conduct a special tour of their department. Delicate manuscripts and books housed there will be available for serious researchers on Thursdays and Saturdays during regular museum hours. So will a number of records preserved on microfilm.

On the lower level, individual exhibits will be in place in the galery areas: •

An exhibit that explores Indians and Indian life in the area. This will be a special project for this semester's anthropology class at Plymouth Salem High School. •

A collection of pioneer artifacts—some brought from the east coast by Plymouth area settlers. •

A farm shed display showing many farm tools vital to an early farm community. •

A homecrafts area that will include a demonstration of quilting by the Plymouth Crediteers and the quilt display. •

Reproduction of a blacksmith shop that lacks only the horse. •

An agricultural area with large farm implements used in this area.

•

A display of horse bits collected by a local man. •

The Alter car manufactured in Plymouth in the early 1900s and two antique autos on loan. •

A special exhibit on loan from the Depression Glass Society.

ADMISSION fee will be $1 for adults, 50 cents for ages 12 to 18, and 25 cents for ages five to 12.

"We are a privately-funded organization and are dependent upon entrance fees, donations and gift shop sales for funding," said Hunt.

On weekends in February following the opening, museum hours will be Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sundays 1 to 5 p.m.

In March, regular hours will be extended to Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The archives will be open on Thursdays and Saturdays only.

Chief promulgator of the museum is Margaret Dunning, who has supplied the building and has dedicated months toward its completion.

Mark Hunt, director of the Plymouth Historical Museum, demonstrates fire-tending technique in the the cast iron range in the museum's Victorian kitchen.

Light guaranteed

It took awhile, but at last Canton officials have a firm commitment from the Department of State Highways and Transportation that a full-phase three-signal traffic light will be installed at Haggerty and Ford roads.

In a letter dated Jan. 21, G. J. McCarthy, deputy director of highways, told supervisor Robert Greenstein, that the "necessary preliminary engineering" for the installation of the light has begun.

The one hangup, according to McCarthy, is that Haggerty must be widened to 40 feet to accommodate two approach lanes on each leg of the intersection. Those 200 feet approaches have to be paved.

Wayne County has jurisdiction over Haggerty, and the signal cannot be installed until paving is completed.

According to Greenstein, Haggerty is not on the priority list for this year and the only way it may be paved is if the county takes money from the miscellaneous fund.

Greenstein wrote Fred G. Burton, chairman of the commission saying, "You are most certainly aware of the construction which has already been accomplished between Michigan Avenue and Ford Road and Haggerty Road and of the great volume of traffic on Haggerty due to the construction of the I-275 freeway as well as the intersection of Haggerty and Ford making it almost impossible to make a left turn from that intersection either east or west and making right turns especially dangerous because of the substantial and constant traffic flows.

"Please help us in making these immediate paving changes so as to allow our citizens as well as those frequenting our community the benefit of a traffic control device at that problem intersection."

According to township officials, if the county does agree to pave Haggerty, it won't be until spring. "But we have yet to hear from the county," said Clerk John Flodin.

Youth summer labor applications offered

Applications for youths wanting to participate in this summer's Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) program have been distributed to schools through out the state. The program will run from June 14 through Aug. 27.

Individual applications available at schools must be returned to the Lansing YCC office by March 15. Mailing address for applications is Youth Conservation Corps, Information and Education Division, Department of Natural Resources, Lansing 48926.

Last year, 572 young people were chosen from 5,000 who applied. This year, more than 550 youths will be employed in four residential camps and at 16 non-residential projects operated by the U.S. Department of Interior and the U.S. Forest Service.

IN RESIDENTIAL camps, young people are required to live on the premises with lodging ranging from tents to college dormitories. At non-residential projects, youths live at home and commute to their place of employment.

The program is open to boys and girls who will be 15 years old by June 14 and will not reach 19 years of age by Aug. 27. The only other requirement is that they be physically able to work in the outdoors.

"Work projects may include trail construction, lake and stream improvement, tree pruning and planting, fire control, or other development and maintenance of public lands," says Rod Smith, administrator of the Michigan program for the Department of Natural Resources.

"THOSE EMPLOYED are paid the current minimum wage on the basis of 30 hours per week and an additional 10 hours weekly are spent in directed environmental education. Room and board, if furnished, are deducted from wages."

The U.S. Forest Service will have four residential camps located at Golden Lake, Clear Lake and Trout Lake in the Upper Peninsula and at Sprinkler Lake in Alcona County. Small five-person non-resident projects will be operated in Forest Service Ranger Districts in the Ottawa, Hiawatha and Huron-Manistee National Forests.

The Department of Interior will run non-resident projects at the Seney Wildlife Refuge in the Upper Peninsula and at Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore near Traverse City.

Applications for the YCC program are being handled by the DNR with selection made on a random basis through a cross-section of eligible Michigan youths.

Kadish, Raymond are backup

SC names bargaining team

After some sharp discussion, the Schoolcraft College board has put together the bargaining team and "backup committee" that will negotiate with the Faculty Forum, the bargaining agent for instructors.

Objections to proposed bargainers came from board members and the union president, and the board went into a secret session before confirming the bargaining team.

Board President Paul Y. Kadish and trustee Rosina Raymond were named to the "backup" group, which consists of college President C. Nelson Grote and other administrators.

The vote was 6-1, with trustee Ron Cowden abstaining. Trustee Leroy Bennett voted against the motion because of Mrs. Raymond. He said that when she was on the group two years ago she was too willing to give in to the union.

Ironically, said Bennett, the amount Mrs. Raymond wanted to yield was $50,000; and at the Jan. 28 meeting, she voted against a tuition increase that would yield $41,000 and balance the budget.

FACULTY FORUM President Richard Arlen told the board, "I don't care who you put in there as long as it's someone who can make decisions."

He referred to two proposed members of the bargaining team as "fourth echelon" and said it was "like negotiating with a foreman."

Arlen referred to Barbara Geil, director of admissions, and Lawrence Ordowski, director of liberal arts, whom President Grote recommended for the bargaining team.

Chief negotiator will be Gerald Munro, director of personnel. Fourth regular member of the team will be E.F. Petersen, director of business services. In addition, the management team will have two "floating" chairs for persons with expertise on specific issues.

IN OPEN SESSION, Trustee Arch Vallier said he was "not satisfied two years ago with our negotiating team. They were not taking back (to the faculty) the true feeling of the board of trustees. I'm going to be darn critical if this happens again this year."

Trustee Mark McQuesten questioned the propriety of sending in Miss Geil and Ordowski—both members of other bargaining units—as administration negotiators. "This is trend-setting negotiations," he said.

Vallier replied the attorney general has ruled in a case with some similarities that there is no conflict of interest as long as persons on the management team aren't members of the same union local.

After several minutes of open discussion, the board voted 6-2 to go into secret session to discuss the negotiating team. Kadish and Mrs. Raymond voted against the secret session. After 45 minutes, the board reconvened—at 12:45 a.m.—and confirmed the proposed members of the bargaining team.

A two-year contract with the Faculty Forum expires Aug. 23, just before classes start in fall. The Forum, affiliated with the Michigan Education Association, represents about 160 full time faculty members. It may represent another 190 part-time instructors if they vote Feb. 23 to join the union.

Dr. Grote said negotiations would begin in late March or early April, and preparations begin early in February.

Part-timers to vote on union at SC

Some 250 present and former part-time instructors at Schoolcraft College will be eligible to vote Feb. 23 on whether they wish to be represented for collective bargaining by the Faculty Forum, an affiliate of the Michigan Education Association.

The college administration and the union agreed by stipulation with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission to conduct the election after at least 30 per cent of the part-time instructors signed authorization cards.

Persons who taught either in the fall or winter semesters, or both, are eligible. Thus, said Forum President Richard Arlen, there are presently 190 part-timers teaching this semester and another 60 who taught last fall, but aren't on campus this winter. The turnover is about 35 per cent a semester, Arlen said.

Eligible are persons who taught one to eight credit hours. Excluded are executives, supervisors, full timers, substitutes, community service personnel, part-time clinical staffers, part-time temporary help, seasonal help and part-time coaches.

The Forum has argued that the college has employed part-timers as a means of cutting costs, avoiding fringe benefits and holding down the number of unionists on campus.

The administration says it sees the policy as a method of tapping community talent and making the best use of individuals' available time.

Westland site proposed

Commissioners balk at jail plan

A plan to house 264 jail inmates in a building on the grounds of Wayne County General Hospital encountered stiff opposition when presented at a county commissioners meeting.

Commissioners from the area around the hospital, located at Michigan Avenue and Merriman in Westland, adamantly opposed the proposal, contending that residents do not want a jail in their area.

Other commissioners balked at the $4.5 million cost of the proposal at a time when the county has less than $3,000 to meet any new expenses without cutting back services and laying off employees.

THERE ALSO were calls for a panel of three circuit judges to approve plans for a new downtown jail rather than force a multi-million dollar expenditure for temporary facilities.

Members of the hospital governing board, the five-member Board of Institutions, also strongly opposed the plan. They charged that it could affect the peace-of-mind of the hospital patients and jeopardize the hospital's national accreditation.

The hospital board members urged that several now-vacant buildings which front on Michigan Avenue and used to house mental patients and which are farther from the medical hospital would be more suitable.

A panel of the three circuit judges found Sheriff William Lucas in contempt of court for failing to obey the panel's order to reduce the jail population to no more than 720 prisoners and gave the Sheriff until Feb. 4 to do so.

THE SHERIFF and County Buildings Supt. M. H. Ashley presented a plan for renovating part of "N" Building, a sprawling brick structure, for use as a medium security jail. "N" Building was the hospital's nursing care facility until a new ultra-modern facility was opened two years ago.

Ashley estimated the cost of installing wire mesh cells and other renovations at $1,358,248.

Lucas estimated the cost of operation at $3.5 million, including the salaries of 166 police officers and 42 civilians.

The plan was presented with the blessing of the State Department of Corrections at a joint meeting of the county public works and the public safety and judiciary committees.

AFTER LONG and heated discussion, the two committees directed that the Sheriff and Ashley inspect the other buildings suggested for use by the hospital spokesmen.

Lucas told commissioners he intended to obey the court order. He referred to the "awesome contempt power of the court" and said: "It is not, and will not be my intention to violate the lawful orders of any court."

Lucas said "there is good reason to suppose that 'wholesale' release of prisoners and his refusal to accept prisoners beyond the 720 limit would result in an unconscionable commission of crimes against the citizens of Wayne County."

The jail population has exceeded 900 in recent months.

THOMAS PRESNELL, recently appointed commissioner from Westland, said residents of the area are "very strongly opposed" to a jail facility on the hospital grounds.

"One of the buildings out there is a senior citizens center and is in use every day. They are strongly against this."

Commissioner Royce E. Smith of Belleville declared: "No way am I going to vote $4.5 million for something temporary. As one of the commissioners who represent that area, I'm telling you that the people out there do not want a jail at the hospital."

Four of the five hospital board members later met and voted on the issue. Cylkowski, Commissioner William G. Suzore of Lincoln Park and County Auditor Leonard D. Proctor voted against use of "N" Building. County Auditor Richard T. Kelly abstained, saying he wanted the report on possible use of the other buildings before taking a position.

Proctor said the board of auditors had not been consulted regarding the "N" Building proposal. He said the hospital administration had long-range plans for the building.

"N" Building now houses out-patient clinics, administrative offices and a branch office of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

Commissioner Clemens E. Bykowski of West Side Detroit proposed that an unused school building close to the downtown courts be used as a temporary jail.

"If we must resort to deficit spending, we should spend it for the taxpayers, not for the prisoners," he declared.

Three super reasons why so many young families live in 'New American Homes'

The Jamestowne

One.
Your own lakes & parks for sailing, ice skating, picnics and exploring.

The New England

The Williamsburg

All the other happy young families for you and your youngsters to grow up with!

Now, if you need more good reasons, pick one of these beauties. You can choose the Jamestowne if you want a spacious, low-cost ranch that is versatile enough for you to expand as your family and income grows.

Or you may want a unique bi-level with a huge unfinished area for an extra hobby, family or living room. That's the New England model.

If you want to go all out, you'll insist on the Williamsburg. A graciously designed colonial that shows that "you've arrived." Now that you've seen the many reasons so many families call this "home", come visit them this weekend.

Movie shows how communities can save lives

Herb, a school janitor, was sweeping a hallway when struck with a heart attack. Within minutes a Harrison Township life support unit arrived, administered treatment and stabilized the victim.

Then, Herb got up and watched the incident on video tape.

Fortunately, Herb's "heart attack" was only staged. Students in a television production class used this dramatization as part of their final examination tape at Madonna College, Livonia. The tape, titled "Life Support Unit - Macomb County," illustrates the need for community life support systems.

"The tape will be shown to homeowners groups, city councils and other organizations in communities that don't have this type of system to encourage them to get into it," said student director Robert Markus of Harrison Township.

Markus is chairman of the operations committee of the Macomb County Emergency Medical Service Council.

Markus enrolled in the Madonna College course specifically to learn production of public relations and training tapes. He wrote the script for this final examination and involved other class members in its production.

Nurses, teachers, and safety engineers are among those who have taken the course to produce their own instructional tapes.

In addition to the heart attack dramatization the 30-minute tape features a talk by Bill Broadwick, chairman of the public information committee of the Macomb County EMS Council.

Broadwick explains the Macomb County life support system and the benefits such a system can provide for a community. Other aspects of the life support system are discussed with Bruce James, Macomb County EMS coordinator, and firefighter Ken Dembacher of Harrison Township.

Students involved in the production were: director, Robert Markus, Harrison Township; technical director, Robert McLaughlin, Lincoln Park; audio, Pat Derry, Dexter; narrator, Kay Marie Lark, Southfield; camera, Pat Kavanagh, Detroit, Barbara Di Manno, Livonia, Alfreda Kowalczyk, Garden city, Kay Lark and Robert Markus.

Other cast members included Capt. Paul Remillard and firefighter Roger Cramer of Harrison Township Fire Department; Ted Mansfield, Lathrup Village; Fred Beck, Harrison Township; Roberta Markus, Harrison Township; Ilene Rosemeck and Mario Di Manno, both of Livonia.

The Madonna course was taught by Charles Derry, a director at WXYZ-TV.

Schoolcraft tuition upped for spring

By TIM RICHARD

With the Student Senate acquiescing, the Schoolcraft College board voted 7-1 to raise tuition and to take the first step toward placing a "cap" on non-resident student enrollment.

Trustee Rosina Raymond dissented on the tuition increase. Trustee Mark McQuesten dissented on the non-resident issue.

Board members applauded when Student Senate President Jeff Stabenau announced at the onening of the Jan. 28 board meeting that the 10-member student group saw no alternative to the administration's proposed tuition increase.

The student leader also asked trustees to place a 0.5 mill property tax increase for operations on the ballot. There has been open talk in Schoolcraft circles of placing a tax hike on the June 8 ballot, but it hasn't come formally before the board.

In return, Stabenau asked for a board and administration commitment to help students form a coalition of community college student governments in order to lobby with legislators.

TUITION WILL rise with the spring semester, at the end of April, and will bring in $41,000 this fiscal year. In 1976-77 the additional revenue will be worth nearly $400,000.

For residents of the Schoolcraft College district, the price will go up $2, to $13 per credit hour. For out-of-district Michigan residents, the price will rise $4, to $26 an hour. For non-Michiganians, tuition will be up $6, to $39.

Full time students carry 15 to 16 hours per semester. Thus, a resident carrying 15 hours will pay $195 a semester instead of $165.

President C. Nelson Grote said Schoolcraft is one of the few community colleges in the state that has not increased tuition recently. A tuition increase will help strengthen the community college's case for additonal state appropriations, he said.

"In addition, should we place a millage question before the voters, we will be in a more defensible position if they know we have passed on some of the increased costs directly to the students," Grote said.

"I SHOOK MY head when I heard the speaker from the Student Senate say they went along with this," said Mrs. Raymond as she announced her negative vote. "I wonder how many of the 9,000 students they represent."

She cited a 13 per cent unemployment rate, a rising rate of delinquency in student loans and some funds left in a working capital account as her reasons for opposing a permanent tuition increase. But she said she would have backed a temporary "surcharge."

"I don't know if the Student Senate speaks for the students," shot back trustee Arch Vallier, who was at odds with Mrs. Raymond all evening, "but I doubt if you speak for the students. We are in drab financail shape."

Trustee Gerald Cox, who teaches in Detroit, said "I don't know of any pockets of poverty" in the college district.

Trustee Mark McQuesten, who hinted two weeks ago he would prefer a temporary surcharge, went along with the tuition increase, but he criticized state action in manipulating the community college appropriation formula to practically force a tuition increase.

In response to a question, Student Senate leader Stabenau said he wanted college help in the form of information on whom to lobby with and what has been done in the past to persuade the legislature to boost appropriations. The state provides about 39 per cent of the college's operating funds, a proportion that has been shrinking in recent years.

TO CAP enrollment, the college will indicate the specific dates and times when non-residents will be eligible to register for classes, according to the newly adopted board policy.

Thus, preference will be given in limited programs to resident students. The policy took effect Jan. 29 and has no effect on non-residents already enrolled at Schoolcraft or on waiting lists.

It means non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis. Other steps could be taken later, Grote said.

McQuesten, the only trustee who has attended Schoolcraft, saw grave implications to limiting non-residents. "My real concern is that in the past we haven't been sectionalist. We should attempt to maintain a good balance between residents and non-residents.

"We have a responsibility to non-residents because we do get funds from the state. But it's not just a question of money; it's a question of the quality of education. (Capping) limits input from different socio-economic groups and different races."

Other trustees, however, argued that although the state had passed enabling legislation to create the college district, local voters were putting up the bulk of the money.

"We have to explain this to the residents," said Vallier.

Safe boating courses set

Area youths can learn safety in both winter and summer activities through courses offered by the Department of Natural Resources at local schools.

A snowmobile safety class will meet from 7-9 p.m. starting March 10 at Nankin Mills Junior High in Westland. The course will last three weeks.

For boating fans, boat safety classes for youths 12-15 will meet at several locations.

The classes will meet for the first session at the following places and times: Feb. 10, 3:45 p.m., at Redford Union High School; Feb. 9, 4 p.m., at Wayne Memorial High School; Feb. 19, 4 p.m., at Garden City West High School; March 1, 4-6 p.m., at Pierce Junior High; March 8, 7-9 p.m., at Franklin High School; and March 10, 7-9 p.m., at Livonia Bentley High School.

Ski hot line

A hot line for ski information in the Detroit metropolitan area is the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association's Snow-Line at 962-9010.

"You'll get the latest ski and snow conditions information, and even weather data," said Sidney L. Baker, association president. "We change the report every day on weekdays, and sometimes more than once a day if skiing conditions change."

Cantonites have work to do on a fire millage

In the face of figures released as part of the township's 1975 mid-decade census, the hope of many township officials and residents for a second fire station seem a little dimmer.

More than any other public service, township residents said they were satisfied with fire protection. By a margin of 2-1, township residents answering the census said they felt current fire protection was adequate.

Perhaps this response should come as no great surprise to advocates of a second fire station. Twice before at the polls, residents said they felt no need for additional fire protection, although the margins were hardly as substantial.

In August 1974, voters turned down an additional three-mill levy by 25 votes, and then again in November by 276 votes.

Although the response to the census may not be entirely representative of the entire township because only 40 per cent of those polled answered the optional part of the survey, it should provide at least some insight into the feelings of voters in Canton.

The census should tell township officials they have a tough row to hoe if they want a second fire station in the near future.

OF PARTICULAR significance was the phrasing in the optional portion of the census, which merely asked residents if they were satisfied with current fire protection service.

It did not ask if they would be willing to pay more taxes for additional services.

That might have tipped the scales even further in retaining present levels of service.

Perhaps it is premature at this date to write off any attempt for a fire millage.

Township administrators favoring a fire millage said the last two attempts were poorly marketed. They said voters were not informed sufficiently on the issue to make an educated voting decision.

Those two previous millage ballots did not specify where the money would go—only that three mills would go toward public safety, either police or fire protection. Perhaps a fire-only millage stands a better chance.

Of course, nothing will be done until the Citizens' Advisory Council reports on the issue. If it determines a need for a second fire station, then township officials will have their choice of three ballots on which to place the issue: May, August or November.

But if township officials are going to push for additional fire protection services, and we hope they do, they'd best get cracking soon. If the census sheds any light on the situation, they have a lot of work to do.

Cash register technology will favor the customers

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Ever go to a movie where the story line was presented through the eyes of three or four different people, and by the time it was over you could not tell what really happened because the versions were so different?

Well, the debate over computer pricing at grocery stores is just like that movie.

The basic idea is to pre-print each grocery item with a computer-scannable code. When you go through the check-out counter, the clerk passes the item over a scanner which automatically reads the item into a computer and prints out an itemized and priced bill on your check-out tape.

If such a procedure were adopted—and it has been in a few local stores on a test basis, including the Farmer Jack store at Winchester Mall in Avon Township—it would mean that individual items at the supermarket would not have the price marked directly on the can or the package. Instead, the price of the goods would be marked on the store's shelf.

The grocery industry, which is backing the experiment, says it is intended to use the technology of automation as a means of cutting costs. Where do the savings come from? In part because the labor of marking prices on individual items is saved, since the scannable codes on the packages are pre-printed. In addition, further cost savings come from increased speed at the check-out counters together with much faster and more accurate inventory control.

TO HEAR some people talk about the idea, however, you'd think it was nothing other than a vast plot to mulct the unwary consumer.

The worry expressed by opponents of the automated check-out system is that, with individual prices no longer marked on individual items, comparison shopping is no longer possible. Further, fears are expressed about the accuracy of the computer that translates the product price codes into prices at the cash register.

Concern about the system has gone so far as to result in a bill, presently under consideration by the Michigan State Senate, that would require all grocery stores to mark individual prices on each item in the store, automated check-out system or not.

Frankly, I don't think that any grocery store manager could survive much more than a day or two in this area's competitive grocery market if word got out that he was rigging his price computer. So let's lay that item to rest.

WHICH leaves the bulk of the argument revolving around the trade-off between comparison shopping with a can in the hand and reduced costs to the grocery stores.

There is no doubt that not having the price on each individual item in the store is an aggravation. You can't walk around with a can of soup in your hand, comparing its price with other brands.

However, nearly all grocery stores arrange their goods on the shelves by type of product. Soups are near soups, cereals next to other cereals, and so on. So as long as—and this is a critical step in the discussion—the prices of each item are clearly marked on the shelf, comparison shopping is still easily possible.

Food industry sources swear that they intend to make certain this happens. Competition, I suspect, will act as a spur, since not many shoppers are going to patronize a store which fails to post the prices of food clearly on the shelves.

Further, if you are bothered—as I am—by the un-itemized checkout tapes you get at the supermarket, with just a list of prices and no enumeration of the items, you'll be happy at a by-product of the new system. It will be a check-out tape with the name of each item and the price entered right next to it.

On balance, I think the argument is in favor of technology. Let's not tie the hands of the food people who can save something on their costs which ultimately may be passed on to their customers.

The bill to require prices on each item of food is an unreasonable hinderance to progress. If abuses develop in the food industry as a result of the automated system, they can be rectified when they happen.

But the industry deserves a chance to try to save some money and help all of us beat the high cost of living.

Unbelievable!

Mayor Young's headlines

Reading the political news these days is like seeing that Japanese movie "Rashomon," where the same story is told from the points of view of the outraged husband, the wronged wife and the bandits.

First cometh the Hon. Coleman A. Young, mayor of Detroit delivering his state of the city address: "The cost of city government this year will be about $810 million. That's almost $50 million more than we will receive in revenues. Not because our spending got out of control, by the way. It's because state and federal revenue sharing fell $12 million short (and) because new tax programs were never enacted in the state legislature."

Got that? Detroit's revenues are "$12 million short" because of federal and state revenue sharing shortfalls.

Now we consult the Hon. William G. Milliken, governor, revealing the state of the state. After proposing a share the wealth property tax sharing plan for southeastern Michigan, Milliken added:

"I want to emphasize that nothing could be further from the truth than suggestions that I, this year, will be turning a deaf ear on Detroit. First of all, Detroit clearly would be the major beneficiary of my tax-base sharing plan . . . Detroit in the next year would be getting an increase of $10 million dollars in state revenue sharing, and that's an increase of 15 per cent. Furthermore, my budget will contain some special provisions for Detroit. Detroit also would be a major beneficiary of the transportation program I referred to . . . So I would say, 'Don't be misled by the headlines.'"

And so a $12 million revenue-sharing shortage in Young's calculations (shortage from what?) actually turns out to be a $10 million, 15 per cent increase.

Headlines, shmeadlines! It's Coleman A. Young whom you can't believe.

No more wild tea parties; today folks just leave town

Tim Richard writes

The Boston Tea Party, unfortunately, is often seen as the American way of doing things—a brave, raucous, open act of defiance to an authority that is perceived as unjust.

Boston Tea Parties are rare, in fact. The typical way a modern American fights against government is to pack up quietly and leave.

Several cases come to mind from just the last week.

DETROIT DIDN'T blow up when its schools were integrated through the busing procedure. It may sound like 20-20 hindsight, but I never expected it would.

One reason is that the busing case has dragged on for several years, giving vast numbers of folks time to move out of town to Howell and Lapeer and Port Huron.

No one dressed like an Indian to raid Federal Judge DeMascio's courtroom and throw his gavel into the Detroit River. Nope, folks moved out by the hundreds of thousands—quietly.

GENERAL MOTORS, the friendly auto behemoth, announced it would not re-open its Adrian plant until it was sure the Michigan Legislature wouldn't pass a costly worker-compensation bill.

The chaps in Lansing are talking about a package that would cost industry $200 million or more—an increase of 40 per cent.

"Blackmail!" screeched the United Autop Workers' Leonard Woodcock and Irving Bluestone at GM's announcement.

Call it what you will, the fact is that the auto industry has found a couple of ways to beat high labor costs (which costs consist not only of high wages but, more importantly, of low productivity). The companies have put their investments in more automation, into other states and into other countries.

The American consumer didn't throw rocks through auto showrooms or tar and feather UAW pickets. Rather, the consumer shifted 20 per cent of his auto purchases to foreign-made cars, costing the UAW hundreds of thousands of jobs.

And the pitiful response of Leonard Woodcock is to call for import quotas.

THE MICHIGAN Department of Agriculture announced last week it is "updating its listing of pick-your-own farms and farm markets for 1976 publication."

Growers who wish to be listed are asked to send information by Feb. 10 to the Information Division, Michigan Department of Agriculture, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing, Mich. 48913.

They'll publish names of farms, addresses, directions, products and dates open.

What's happening is that farmers either cannot afford to hire migrant fruit and vegetable pickers or want to avoid the hassle of dealing with state inspectors.

Whatever the reason, the plain fact is that state laws with lofty intentions have cost pickers many jobs. The farmers didn't picket the Capitol or declare their farms to be free and independent states. They just quit hiring.

And now the pickers, instead of living in miserable farm shacks, are living in miserable city slums. Some reform.

A traveler's head swells

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

Travelers are funny animals.

You take a meek, mild mannered person with a fairly inconsequential job, give him a briefcase and put him on a train or plane and you'd never know him.

It is an escape from the hum-drum world of reality. By some mystic process, if he is an assistant sales manager, he becomes sales manager, and if he's a vice-president he becomes president of his company.

Apparently, when one is surrounded by strangers he never intends to see again, the need to be important blossoms.

AND WHEN this traveler arrives at his destination, whether it be motel or hotel, you would think he came directly from a palace with a full staff.

He stands around waiting to be waited on.

When he gets to his room he overtips the bellhop, hoping in his imaginative world that the word will get around that he must be someone special because he is a big tipper (with company funds).

Once he's alone he fills his suitcase with everything in the room that isn't nailed down: the postcards in the drawer, stationery, those little pads by the side of the phone and, of course, the individually wrapped soap for the kiddies.

IF THE TRAVELER doesn't have a fresh wrapped bar of soap every day the housekeeping department hears about it. Yet at home he probably uses the same old sliver of soap for weeks.

And bath towels, too. At home he probably uses the same towel for a week but in a hotel, if the towel is used once, it is dirty.

If he takes two showers in one day and there is only one bath towel, naturally he calls the housekeeping department for more towels and is quite irate about it.

When he goes out to dinner, whether with a customer or not, he eats the finest foods complemented by fine wines, yet he complains to his wife about the high cost of the food she serves the kids while he's away—which in many cases is plain hamburger.

WHEN THE TRAVELER is about to head home, he always tries to charge his bill on a credit card that takes at least 60 days for the bill to get to his home so he can collect from his company immediately and have the use of the money for a while.

The first morning back at the office, while preparing his expense account, he tries to figure out how to justify the large tips. Chances are they end up appearing as cab fare.

Yes, travelers are funny animals.

Congress stands up to Ford

By TIM RICHARD

Three times in a week, President Gerald R. Ford has been badly beaten in the U.S. House of Representatives by his former colleagues of 25 years.

"Congress is re-establishing the independence of the legislative branch and halting the growing trend toward White House dominance," explained Rep. William D. Ford, a liberal Democrat from Michigan's 15th District. Bill Ford voted against President Ford all three times.

"It's based on issues. Congressmen are now asserting their individual opinions," said William Broomfield, moderate Republican from Michigan's 19th District. Broomfield voted against the president on two out of three issues.

Broomfield added he saw "no evidence of trying to run the House from the Democratic caucus," a charge Republicans often made in 1975.

The measures were the $6.2-billion public works (jobs) bill, which the president has threatened to veto; the bill to aid pro-western elements in Angola, which the House rejected; and a $45-billion health-welfare appropriation which Congress passed over the president's veto.

REPUBLICANS AND Democrats differ sharply on how to stimulate the economy and provide more jobs, as shown by arguments over the public works bill.

The House passed it 321-80. The president's objection is that jobs won't be permanent positions in the private sector of the economy.

Broomfield agreed philosophically, but he contended that Democrats, with nearly a 2-1 majority, "will do little for economic expansion of business" by giving tax credits for business investment.

"If Angola is to be an African Vietnam, the American people and Congress should know what we are doing and why. I think we have had enough under-the-table dealings and secret agreements.'

—U.S. Rep. William D. Ford

So Broomfield said he had no choice, under the political circumstances, but to support the public works bill. "It will mean $2.2 million for Oakland County and $2.7 million for Pontiac. Pontiac is still a big pocket of unemployment and I'm going to do what I can for these people," said Broomfield in a telephone interview.

Rep. Ford, in a newsletter to his western Wayne County district, said the bill would provide "counter-cyclical" funds in the public works area. He didn't comment on the administration's idea of stimulating private investment.

Ford charged the White House "has its priorities mixed" by wanting to spend money on Angola and not on the jobless.

FORD RIPPED the White House proposal to provide arms to pro-Western elements in the African nation.

"If Angola is to be an African Vietnam, the American people and Congress should know what we are doing and why. I think we have had enough under-the-table dealings and secret agreements," Ford said.

Broomfield, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, voted against Angolan aid for different reasons, charging the Soviet Union with violating the principles of detente.

"If the United States goes into Angola with $25 million compared to the Soviets' $200 million, we can't offset Soviet influence," Broomfield said.

"We need to re-examine the detente policy," Broomfield went on. "If the Soviets are going on with an expansionist policy—in the Mediterranean, Africa, the Far East—there's no point in going on with detente.

"The president would be better off to raise some serious questions with the Soviet Union about detente."

BROOMFIELD SOUGHT to pare $425 million from the labor-welfare appropriation bill to make it more acceptable to the administration, but his compromise amendment failed, and he voted to sustain the presidential veto.

Ford said the House "protected a wide range of domestic programs, ranging from health and education to job training, unemployment assistance and senior citizens benefits."

The House voted 310-113 to override the veto.

As Ford saw it, "The question now before us is: Do we want to endorse a policy ignoring the needs of average American citizens, the unemployed and the senior citizen? Or do we want to send our people a message and tell them that America can still afford to maintain our strength by helping our people at home?"

All area congressman, including Republicans Broomfield and Marvin Esch, voted against the Angola aid bill and for the public works jobs bill. Only Broomfield of Observer & Eccentric area representatives voted against the labor-health-welfare override.

Canham re-elected top county judge

Members of the 3rd Judicial Circuit Court (Wayne County) bench have re-elected James N. Canham of Redford as presiding judge and George T. Martin as presiding judge pro tem.

Judge Canham and Judge Martin were re-elected for their second terms.

The Wayne County Circuit Court has during the past year initiated many programs including:

•Initiating a one-day, one-jury system which allows a juror to be summoned to jury duty for only one day or to be a juror for one trial instead of having to serve for 30 days.

•Forcing indigent criminal defendants to pay later for the lawyers they receive from the county. The fees they pay after their trial or after their prison term are returned to the country treasury.

•Getting a rebate to the county treasury from the federal and state governments for forcing husbands of welfare recipients to make payments to the federal and state welfare agencies for their family's upkeep.

•Starting a new five-day, morning trial system which could cut back on the backlog of civil cases. The program will have all judges sitting in trial without being interrupted in the morning, five days a week. Judges will accept motions and other court procedures in the afternoon.

•The procedure for uncontested divorce cases without minor children was streamlined and delay was reduced so that these cases can be heard within 90-120 days.

•Counsel seeking appointment for the indigent accused were required to provide a professional resume and the number of cases assigned to any one attorney were limited to 18 per year, increasing the number of attorneys involved in the program and the quality of representation for the indigent.

Search records for tax deductions

By Samuel E. Vitale
President, The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Reconstructing evidence of all the deductible expenses incurred during the year can be the most time-consuming part of income tax preparation, but it's unavoidable—unless you use the standard deduction of 16 per cent of adjusted gross income up to $2,300.

And even if you decide to go with the standard deduction, you will probably have to add up all of your available deductions, anyway—to find out which method of filing is more profitable.

That is why it is wise, whether you use the long-form return or the short, whether you prepare your own return or have it done for you, to make a thorough search of your records first.

When you do, here are the types of deductible expenses to look for:

- Medical and dental
- Taxes paid
- Contributions
- Interest paid
- Casualty or theft losses
- Child care and disabled dependent care
- Alimony
- Unreimbursed business expenses

Deductible medical and dental expenses include more than doctor, dentist and hospital bills. They also take in prosthetic devices such as eyeglasses, dentures and hearing aids; special equipment such as wheelchairs; medical travel; special foods that may be required; and many other costs.

Put aside all receipts or canceled checks that may relate to health care and thus may be medical deductions, then refer to the tax instruction booklet or ask your tax preparer about them.

Drugs and medicines are deductible only to the extent that they exceed one per cent of adjusted gross income. After subtracting the one per cent, add drug and medicine costs to other medical bills, which then are subject to another exclusion of three per cent of adjusted gross income.

The only health expense not subject to the three per cent exclusion is one half of medical insurance premiums, up to $150.

Deductions for taxes are limited to those paid to local, state and foreign governments, and include taxes on income, real estate, personal property, sales and gasoline. Even if you expect a refund of any of these taxes later, take the tax as a deduction in the year paid and include it in income when you get the refund.

Do not deduct taxes paid to the federal government, custom duties, motor vehicle or drivers' license fees or taxes on alcohol or tobacco. Also leave out assessments for local improvements and transfer taxes on the sale of your home; they are not deductible.

Contributions are deductible only if made to qualified organizations, of which Internal Revenue maintains a current list in all its offices. Almost all of the better known charitable, religious, educational and service organizations are on the list.

If you claim a deduction for a non-cash contribution worth more than $200, you must attach a statement to your return describing the item, telling how you acquired it, stating the fair market value and the terms under which you donated it, and giving certain other information.

When computing the deduction for interest you have paid, do not overlook the interest charged on credit card accounts and time payment plans, or the "points" paid when buying a house.

Also include any penalty imposed for prepayment of a mortgage. Interest charged for an income tax deficiency is another deductible item.

Personal property casualty losses—from storms, fires, floods, etc.—and those caused by theft, are deductible only to the extent that they exceed insurance compensation plus $100 per loss.

The amount of loss can be figured either as the difference in value of the property before and after the event, or as the cost of restoring it to its previous condition.

If the loss was caused by theft, be able to show that the item was not lost or misplaced by obtaining a theft report from the police department.

To qualify for the maximum deduction of up to $400 a month for child-care or dependent-care costs, you must have incurred those costs so that you could hold a full-time job. Payments for the care of a child under 15 or an invalid dependent or spouse must have gone to someone other than a relative.

If your income, plus that of your spouse, exceeded $18,000, part of the deduction is lost, and when joint income reaches $27,000, it is entirely lost. (If you are in the over-$18,000 category—or could be if you were to take a job—look into the new, more generous provisions of the law for 1976.) Use IRS form 2441.

Alimony is a tax deduction to the payer and taxable income to the receiver. Child support is neither. If, after a divorce becomes final, the payer of alimony decides to be more generous, increases not ordered by the court are not deductible.

Major deductions for an employee's job-related expenses for travel, transportation, gifts and entertainment are taken as adjustments to income.

But costs of many other income-producing activities can be claimed as ordinary deductions; for example:

- Employment agency fees and other job-seeking costs, now deductible even if they fail to produce a new job
- Dues to unions or professional societies
- Books, subscriptions, tools and uniforms needed to perform your work or to supervise investments
- Safe deposit box rental for retention of securities, etc.
- Fees of tax and other financial advisers

As mentioned earlier, if a document points to even the possibility of a deduction, refer it to your professional tax adviser.

'How should Rouge flow?'

LWV asks communities

Observer & Eccentric
SUBURBAN LIFE
Thursday, February 5, 1976 *1B

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Letters from the League of Women Voters urging that municipalities in the Rouge River basin form a watershed council are on the desks of mayors, city managers and village presidents of these governmental units.

Included in the basin are Livonia, Birmingham, Plymouth, Southfield, Westland, Garden City, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Troy, Franklin, Lathrup Village, Bloomfield, Bloomfield Township, Dearborn and Detroit.

The letters were sent by the LWV's River Rouge Basin committee, which includes representatives of the Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi league, the Southfield-Lathrup Village league, the Birmingham-Bloomfield league, the West Bloomfield-Farmington league, the Dearborn-Dearborn Heights league as well as leagues in Livonia, Allen Park and Troy.

"The purpose of the council is to offer each governmental unit the opportunity to exchange information about all projects involving the river," said Mrs. Nancy Donaldson of Franklin, chairman of the LWV Rouge Basin committee.

"The league thinks that the Rouge should be looked upon as a single entity. Perhaps this way it can be saved from further desecration by many separate communities along it which do not always take the whole river into consideration.

"Anytime even a small tributary is piped and put underground, or the river is straightened and channelized in any way, the river is affected both above and below that particular section."

MRS. DONALDSON emphasized that piping or channelization shoots water downstream faster, and this can cause floods and destruction of river banks below the project.

In the letter sent to community officials under her name, Mrs. Donaldson noted "The Rouge is a great natural resource in our area—the most attractive parts of our communities are usually associated with the river and its valleys."

The letter, she said, points out that a watershed council is a voluntary association of governments in a watershed (river basin).

"It is advisory in nature and has no powers to act of itself. It gathers information and furnishes it to the participating communities to keep them abreast of planned changes within the basin."

The letter adds that successful watershed councils have been formed around the Huron, Clinton, Grand and Kalamazoo-Black rivers.

The league action was taken because of the recognition by its members as well as by many other citizens in the area, that the Rouge River is a valuable asset constantly being both wasted and desecrated.

The organization points to Edward Hines Park area of the Rouge andwell the Linden Park in Birmingham as the best and most sensible ways to handle the river.

Built on the river's natural flood plain these parks provide recreation for thousands. What's more they allow the river to do what it is supposed to do, flood when necessary.

"A flood is nature's way of taking care of excess water," said Florence Adamson of the Livonia league, a member of the basin committee.

"Allowing the river to flood returns the water to the land and builds up the local water table. When you put up barriers to prevent it from flooding, the water is carried down the river to flood other areas.

"Keeping the water allows trees and vegetation to live there. These then help keep the topsoil from being washed away and give us oxygen."

Nancy Johnson, who represents the Birmingham-Bloomfield league on the basin committee, thinks the residents of Birmingham regard the Rouge as an asset rather than a liability.

"The Rouge runs through the middle of Birmingham," she observed.

"The city has an extensive park system built along its flood plain. The people here are interested in keeping the river in good condition."

SPECIFIC PROJECTS the league regards as the wrong way to treat a river are the Pernick drain in Southfield and the "rape" of the Rouge in Dearborn by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at the request of the city of Dearborn.

This group straightened the river's attractive curves and channelized it for six dull miles from Michigan Avenue almost to the Detroit River.

Another of their fears is the possibility that the Wayne County Road Commission may extend Edward Hines Drive past Ford Road to Michigan Avenue. A four-lane highway has been mentioned and aimed through the Rouge River Nature Area just west of the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Early plans indicated intent to straighten the river to conform with the road.

ONE OF the more interesting aspects to league members about Southfield's projected Pernick drain is the fact that part of it is to measure 13 feet in diameter, or the height of one average-sized basketball player standing on the head of another average-sized basketball player.

"To have a drain that large is like having a water gun pointing at the lower part of the river," said Mrs. Donaldson.

Southfield resident Mrs. Verna Morse decried the tendency to chop up the river and put it underground. "We lose a beautiful asset and then all our cities look the same," she said.

Since 1970 Mrs. Morse has been studying state and federal information on river basins, attending workshops on water management, turning up at public hearings on projects involving the Rouge and learning who is who in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

A league member, she is also president of the Rouge Basin Coalition, a group made up of individuals as well as representatives of nine organizations.

"The river is not a luxury, it is there for a purpose," she said. "One of its main functions is drainage. But if you destroy it, you have to replace it at great expense."

ACCORDING to Kay Cushman of the Dearborn LWV the six mile straightening of the meandering Rouge below Michigan Avenue cost $41 million, with $30 million provided by the federal government and $11 million from the city of Dearborn.

"It also requires maintenance," reminded Mrs. Morse, adding that if the whole river is put in a pipe or channel, all that is left is a drain.

"You then lose it as a recreational asset. You lose it as a green belt, as a flyway for birds, and home of animals and beautiful trees."

Mrs. Cushman noted that in the wide swath made by the Corps of Engineers as they channelized the lower Rouge, many trees including "a beautiful 10-acre stand of old oak trees south of Rotunda Drive."

"They didn't even use the wood," she said. "They just chopped it into chips."

MRS. MORSE believes in educating the public about such unromantic subjects as drains and drainage. She first became involved with the Rouge when the Southfield league, under the leadership of its environmental quality chairman Mary Ann Cooper, fought for a good flood plain ordinance.

Recently, she said, the league and other Southfield residents have persuaded the city and George Kuhn, Oakland County drain commissioner, to have a study made to see if there aren't better ways to handle Southfield drainage than "by shooting it down the Pernick drain."

"The league suggested that a retention system could be managed," she said. "This would hold the water and allow it to return to the local water table."

A series of ponds is one retention method.

IN TRYING to explain the move to build new drains Mrs. Morse observed "If someone buys land for commercial purposes, they want to get a profit from it. That theory is a sacred cow in this country.

"If they are allowed to build by a river which floods or near wetlands, they want protection from the water. They want the swamp drained. When the land is covered with cement, some adjustment has to be made concerning the rainwater that would otherwise soak into the land.

"The league would like to have them try to do this by some means that doesn't destroy the river system."

Mrs. Cushman, who is state water resources chairman of the league, can remember the Rouge as it used to be, turning and twisting through the area in Dearborn now channelized and swept clean of vegetation.

"It had trees and bushes hanging over its banks and it looked beautiful," she recalled. "It was a lovely natural valley. Alternative plans could have been made to handle the flooding and the drainage."

But it's too late now. In that area the real Rouge is gone forever.

The League of Women Voters thinks this is a good example of what can happen if residents are not watchful and active politically. "Politics is our bag," is its motto.

Its members urge voters to contact their elected and appointed representatives about their feelings about the river. That may get the ball rolling to save the Rouge.

Which Rouge do you want, the one at the top or the bottom? The lower picture depicts the river at Rotunda Drive, just east of the Southfield expressway. Beneath the snow the river has been encased in slanted concrete by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as a flood project. The other picture is a scene of the river as it exists in Edward Hines Park near Merriman. (Staff photos by Sherry Kahan)

Lamaze aids parents after baby comes, too

Second of two-part series

By MARGARET MILLER

Sharon and David Evans of Livonia waited a long time for their first baby, so, when their son Christopher finally was on the way, they decided on the Lamaze route.

They took the classes in childbirth preparation—breathing, relaxation, understanding of the birth process—in the hope that their child's birth could be a natural one and with the idea of having David share in the experience all the way.

"After waiting 12 years," Sharon explained, "I wanted the best for this baby, and I believe that anything without drugs has to be better."

But when they went for the classes offered by the Livonia Childbirth Education Association, Inc., Sharon and David were divested of their ideas that Lamaze was strictly training for having a baby without drugs.

Or even strictly training for having a baby.

LAMAZE, THEY learned, is training aimed at helping parents have a good birth experience, whether or not some sedation is used eventually.

And they also came to know that Lamaze also is people—a great many of them in this area—who care a lot about parenting both before and after the baby is born.

Sharon Evans did give birth to Christopher without the aid of drugs, and it was David's encouragement at the end of long labor—as well as a lot of faithful practice—that helped her do it.

And very soon after the birth, Sharon and David began to understand better the wider scope of Lamaze, because they took their son back to a new Lamaze class to answer questions of those prospective parents.

"They really had more questions for my husband than for me," Sharon remembers. "They wanted to know if he was afraid—he was, at first—and if the blood bothered him—not particularly, he was too busy.

"The women asked me if the breathing works, and I said yes, but you have to practice."

THIS 'SHOW and tell' appearance for the Evans is just part of the focus begun by Lamaze classes for some 1,400 families in this area last year.

That's the number of couples who attended classes given by the Livonia Childbirth Preparation Association and its "big sister," the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association. And it's a mighty jump from the total for the year before—about 400.

Sharon also took Christopher to a first birthday party for the Livonia Lamaze group, where they met other mothers and babies with whom they had a lot in common.

Both that group and the Plymouth association involve many young mothers who find not only some good social contacts, but also the chance to support the spreading of the word on what they consider a most important event in their lives.

AND LATER Sharon and David may decided to enroll in a new project of the Livonia Lamaze Childbirth Education Association, a cooperative venture with the Livonia school district in sponsoring parent education classes.

That course is a four-week series designed to help new parents get some necessary information on caring for feelings they may experience when baby makes three.

"There is such a long time between the preparation for childbirth and the preschool classes that parents and children encounter later," said Karen Baker, Livonia association president.

"This series of classes is designed to fill that gap a bit."

The Plymouth association also has a bridge to offer. Jeanne McLaren, president of that group, said it has regular post-partum discussion groups for new mothers.

"They get together and talk about their babies and what to expect in the way of behavior and what to do when certain problems arise.

"It's the kind of support that means a great deal to many of our members."

A REGULAR NEWSLETTER mailed to all the mothers who have participated in the classes, and a chance to participate in such ventures as taking movies of a Lamaze birth to high school classes and working with the staffs of hospitals are other means of keeping the Plymouth Lamaze group together.

But, of course, the ongoing and ever-increasing class schedules are the major concerns of both Lamaze organizations.

As this year began, both had 10 teachers and had classes going in varied locations all over the area—churches, schools, store meeting rooms and hospitals—all attesting to the fact that Lamaze childbirth education is going and growing.

As Sharon Evans puts it:

"Even if you think you are not interested in natural childbirth, you should go and listen.

"It's an education."

3 CETA-funded services begin at Schoolcraft

Retirees, widows and volunteers benefit from three new services beginning through Schoolcraft College under a sub-grant of funds from CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) through the city of Livonia.

The $30,000 allocated to the college is funding a job-placement service for retirees, a widow-to-widow help program and expansion of volunteer activities at the college.

The placement service for retirees who have skills to offer local business and industry on a part-time or occasional basis is being coordinated by Yvonne Cassady, who is working at Schoolcraft's Northville Cooke Center.

THROUGH THE program she hopes to identify needs of local employers as well as retiress in the community who are interested in part-time work.

She will work to coordinate the placement service, the Michigan Employment Security Commission and local employment agencies.

Peggy Price is coordinator of the widow-to-widow program, which had its beginnings several months ago.

Her function is to enlist widowed persons who have adjusted successfullyto living alone so they may help newly-widowed individuals in locating community resources, understanding the grief process and building a life alone.

The program is located in the community services office in the main campus Administration Building.

VOLUNTEER activities at the college are expanding under the direction of Sharon Etelamaki, volunteer supervisor.

Volunteers currently work in the Women's Resource Center and through the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) at the college.

Ms. Etelamaki will supervise present volunteers and coordinate efforts with the Livonia Organization of Volunteer Energies (LOVE) and the RSVP program in Livonia. Her office is in the Community Services Center next to the south parking lot on the Haggerty campus.

By MARGARET MILLER

I never fancied myself in the role of a gasoline station attendant, but the price of that stuff that makes cars go does strange things even to staid types like me.

So there I was, on one of the coldest days of winter, trying to pump fuel into my beat-up gas-guzzler.

I'd been working up to this no-turning-back commitment gradually, of course. At first, I just looked for places a little cheaper and steered clear of anything that said self-service.

My knowledge of car anatomy, I should explain, was restricted to what appears on the dashboard, so I wasn't even sure how to locate the gas tank inlet, let alone how to get the cap off.

BUT YOUNGER DRIVERS in the family were more venturesome and started heading into self-serve stations. That gave me a new opportunity. I crossed their palms with green when they were going out and had them fill the tank for me.

There was a problem with that system, though. I couldn't always remember to run low on gasoline at a time when one of the girls would have the car.

So when a shiny, new self-service station opened, right on my beaten path and with a relatively low per-gallon price, I drove in one day when I had a daughter in the passenger seat.

She obligingly showed me how to lift the license plate and find the tank—not hard at all and the cap screwed off quite readily—and how to lift the lever on the pump to start the gas flowing. Seemed easy except that she got gas on her gloves.

SO THEN I CAME to the next fill-up time, and I was on my own. Into the station, as if I knew what I was doing. Gloves off, in spite of the cold. I didn't want them smelling of petrol.

Up to the pump. Lift the lever. Stretch the hose. It hardly reached; I should have pulled the car up farther.

Numbers raced by on the pump indicator, and I figured all was well. But then the car ahead of me drove up to the pay booth, and it turned out it was his numbers I was watching.

Pull the car up to make the hose reach; try again. Nothing happened. Then a voice came over the loudspeaker, suggesting I make sure the lever was up.

I clicked it firmly and found success at last. The hands were frozen, but there was a great feeling of accomplishment as I drove forward to pay for the gas I pumped.

I must say I'm glad I didn't choose to pump gasoline for a living. I'm sure those who operate the stations are even more glad.

But just maybe, when the weather gets warmer, I'll pluck up some more courage and go into one of those do-in-yourself car washes.

Day care hearing coming to Livonia

The Child Care Coordinating Council of Detroit and Wayne county will hold an open hearing on day care and child development Thursday, Feb. 12, from 1:30-3:30 p.m. in Pilgrim United Church of Christ, Seven Mile west of Farmington Road.

Parents, service providers, agency representatives, government representatives and all interested residents are invited to attend and express views if they wish.

The hearing is one of four in the metropolitan area designed to give persons connected with child care the opportunity to express concerns, share information on services, decide priorities for the coming year and set in motion the means of implementing action on child care issues.

Organizations with specific interests in child care will act as co-hosts. These include, in this area, the Livonia Council for Early Childhood Services and the west area unit of the Detroit Association for the Education of Young Children.

Sharon Elliott, chairperson of the council and director of the Wayne State University child care center in the Jeffries Housing Project, will preside at the Livonia hearing.

Council staff members Sally Brown, Ingrid Saunders and Joan Meisenhelder also will be present.

The council, known as 4-C, is a planning and coordinating agency, funded by federal, county and Detroit city governments through an agreement with the Michigan department of Social Services. It endeavors to identify needs and services, initiate action, stimulate interest and inform the public and the government on issues involved in services to children and families.

YW seminar set

Registration is now open at Northwest Branch YWCA for a four-week seminar entitled "Women's Changing Profile" which will begin Feb. 12, and meet Thursday evenings from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the branch building, 25940 Grand River, Redford Township.

The seminar will cover the areas concerning "What Do Women Have," "What Do Women Want," and "What Can A Woman Do." The first session, Feb. 12, will include a discussion led by Grace Kachaturoff, University of Michigan professor, on myths and realities about women's abilities, as well as a presentation on women's economic rights by attorney Jean King. Social Security act, credit and legal wills will be covered under this presentation.

The Feb. 19 session will center on assertive training for women and will be led by Leslie Sabboth, assistant director of counseling, U-M Dearborn campus. This subject will involve learning how to express opinions and claim one's own rights without infringing on others.

Rights of employed women will be one of the topics for the Feb. 26 session and will be led by Rosalie Sullivan from the Michigan Department of Civil Rights. The other subject covered will be day care centers and this section will be presented by Dr. Rosalind Saltz, professor of early childhood education, U-M Dearborn campus.

The final session on March 4 will consider meshing career and family plans. This session will be led by Dr. Elinor Waters, director of the Continuum Center of Oakland University.

The seminar is open to all women and girls in the community and YWCA Membership is not required. The registration fee of $5 covers the entire series. The registration fee for single sessions is $2.

'Decisions' series at YW

A "Great Decisions" discussion group will begin an eight-week series in the YWCA Family Center, 26279 Michigan, Inkster, on Monday, Feb. 9.

The discussion meetings, all scheduled from 1-3 p.m., will be led by Mrs. Frederick Weideman, national board member of the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Although the series begins Feb. 9, registrations will continue through Feb. 16. There is no charge for the series.

Weekly topics include Arabs and Israelis, Mediterranean commitments, Latin America and the U.S., Asia After the Vietnam War, the American Dream Among Nations, U.S. in the World Economy, India, and Re-thinking U.S. Foreign Policy.

The Western Wayne County YWCA public-affairs committee is sponsoring the series, and child care is available.

Glass gardens

"Garden Under Glass," a one-session workshop with Gayle Czubaj as teacher, will be offered by the Livonia Family Y, 14255 Stark, Livonia, on Thursday, Feb. 12, from 1-3 p.m.

Ms. Czubaj will demonstrate the successful way to build a terrarium by adding potting soil, peat moss, perlite, charcoal and house plants. The cost is $3 for members and $5 for non-members, and the project will require about $5 worth of supplies.

Teens to give dance for parents

Because the adults at the Rosedale Garden Presbyterian Church, West Chicago and Hubbard, Livonia, have always lent a helping hand to the senior high youth group, the group decided to do something for them.

When discussing for whom they should give their fund-raising Valentine Dance Saturday, Feb. 14, they decided it should be the adults.

Led by dance chairman Jim Beumler, the group has assigned its girls to be hostesses and its boys to be parking attendants and doormen. Sue Steinke is hostess chairman and Tom Elsey and Charles Allen are responsible for the parking attendants and doormen.

A photo booth is being set up where couples can have their pictures taken. Sound Advice will play music of past eras.

In charge of food are Cindy Rathbun and Jim Valrance.

Proceeds for the event will be used for the senior high summer-caravan trip. Last summer the group went on a work program to North Carolina.

Tickets are $8 per couple and may be purchased at the church.

Mothers' group sets March conference

Mothers on the Move, a group that sponsors home-based classes for mothers, has scheduled a bicentennial conference March 22 and 23 in Cobo Hall, Detroit.

Writer James Dobson will be the main speaker, and the conference also will include a number of small groups led by speakers on educational, psychological and religious topics and a banquet for couples for the evening of March 23.

Mothers on the Move was founded by Marilyn Van Wingerden, who has been teaching and training teachers for mothers' classes for eight years. There are 23 such classes operating in the area.

The organization, said Mary Lou Flowers, vice-president, "believes that America's basic foundation is the family.

"We desire to help strengthen the family by teaching a return to God's principles," she added. "We encourage women to build a secure family base."

Classes, she said, are based on "the practical application of scriptural principles as they relate to the wife and mother."

Dobson, main speaker for the conference that has as its theme "Freedom, Our Christian Heritage," is assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Southern California school of medicine and director of behavioral research in the development division of Los Angeles Children's Hospital.

He has written several books, including "Dare to Discipline," "Hide and Seek," and "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew about Women."

He has appeared on network television with Barbara Walters, Tom Snyder and Dinah Shore.

The small-group sessions include "Developing Emotional Stability," led by John Powell, Michigan State University faculty member; "Fulfilled Wife, Happy Husband," led by the Rev. Paul Bersche, pastor and counselor in Farmington; "School Pressures: Teaching Your Child to Cope," led by Jacquelyn Tilles, Wayne State University faculty member, and "Freedom to Influence the Family," led by Debbie Arnold.

JAMES DOBSON

Other topics are "Freedom to be Me," led by Peg Brown, "Freedom in a Prison of Circumstances," led by Malettor Cross, "Wives' Sexual Freedom in Your Marriage," led by Edith Gelaude, and "Teens: the Tender, Traumatic Years," led by Dorothy McHutchion.

For conference registration information, write Mothers On the Move, 25645 Kilreigh, Farmington, 48024.

Organ recital

Anne Parks, assistant professor of music history at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, will present a bicentennial organ recital at 8 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 9, at Christ Episcopal Church, Military Road at Cherry Hill, Dearborn.

Sponsor for the event is the UM-D Cultural Events Committee. It is free and open to the public.

Catholic schools' enrollment down

Recent news stories that have indicated parochial school enrollment is "booming" in the wake of the desegregation order for Detroit public schools are not true, according to a spokesman for the Archdiocese of Detroit.

The Rev. William Murphy, director of the department of education, said this year 91,379 students are enrolled in Catholic schools in the six counties which comprise the archdiocese, compared to 92,536 students last year.

For Catholic schools within the City of Detroit, 21,680 students are enrolled in elementary schools and 7,967 students in high schools this year as compared to 22,389 and 8,097 students, respectively, last year.

"The Archdiocese has a very strong policy that Catholic schools will not be allowed to serve as havens for those who are trying to avoid a desegregation plan," explained Fr. Murphy.

"Only those students whose parents have previously enrolled them in Catholic schools are to be enrolled," he added. "If a family is moving to the Detroit area from outside, the children may be enrolled in Catholic schools if they were previously enrolled in Catholic schools in another community."

"Local Catholic schools may not, at this time, increase class size, open additional classrooms or hire additional teachers," he emphasized.

Fr. Murphy noted that enrollment at certain schools had increased. He noted, for example, that when St. Philomena school on Detroit's East side closed last June, many of its students were absorbed into neighboring Catholic schools, thereby increasing their enrollments.

He added that principals had been very responsible in implementing diocesan policy. He said the archdiocese had monitored enrollments in sensitive areas of the city in response to accusations of increased parochial school enrollment and that "not a single case was found in which a public school transfer student was actually enrolled in a Catholic school at the second semester."

"In addition, there simply is not room available in most schools for any significant influx at this time," he explained. "Catholic school enrollments are traditionally taken on an annual basis. Parents who enrolled their first child, did so in the fall."

Neighborhood good will is theme of meet

"Creating Neighborhoods of Good Will" is the theme of the annual Border Cities Conference on Rearing Children of Good Will, scheduled Thursday, Feb. 19, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Mercy College, Southfield expressway at Outer Drive, Detroit.

The Detroit Round Table, National Conference of Christians and Jews, is sponsoring the meet, with the backing of more than 50 community, religious and school-related organizations in the metropolitan area.

Among the persons working on arrangements are Mrs. Muriel Israel, program chairman of the American Jewish Congress; Mrs. Leo Ardin, president of the League of Jewish Women's Organizations, and Gloria Ruskin, Jewish Community Council. All are Southfield residents.

Principal speakers include the Rev. William Cunningham of Focus: Hope; Elizabeth Hood, executive director of Education Consultants, Inc., and Mrs. June Shada of the Detroit school district.

The theme was chosen by the planning committee because its members believed the key to rearing children of good will is having the kind of neighborhoods in which such children can live.

The conference will explore reasons for past difficulties in creating stable, integrated neighborhoods, and the steps that can be taken to create them in Detroit and the suburbs.

Registration, including lunch, is $5, or $3 for students. Call Joseph Radelet at the Round Table headquarters, 150 W. Boston Blvd, Detroit, to register.

Barb McClennan duly recorded the best of New York on film. Her photos appear on this page and regularly on the fashion page of The Observer & Eccentric.

New York fashion reports— for local tastes

Practically all the fashion news in the country originates from New York City and is distributed across the nation by various news and photo services. For a minute-by-minute report of the latest announcements from the world of fashion, nothing could be more factual than these reports are.

But fashion editor Chris Walden wanted more than just the facts. She felt that style-conscious readers of The Observer & Eccentric deserve an in-depth, personalized report of what New York designers have to offer for the upcoming season. To insure this complete coverage, Chris went to New York herself and talked directly with the people responsible for spring looks. She and photographer Barb McClennan saw the best of the best with their own eyes and carefully recorded it to bring home to you. As a result, The Observer & Eccentric delivers you the latest word in fashion, copy that is alive and fresh, because it is direct from the fashion capital of the nation.

Of course, such on the spot coverage took extra time and effort, but Chris and Barb felt it was worthwhile. It's part of the attitude that no amount of work is too much when it is necessary to bring you the finest newspaper in your area.

The Observer & Eccentric is continually looking for better ways to bring you all the news from your community, as well as features and specials that are of interest to you and your family.

While in New York City, Chris Walden spoke directly with the people responsible for this year's spring looks.

2 nominated for military academies

Two local residents have been nominated by U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.) to compete for 17 appointments to the nation's military service academies.

Among the 60 nominees from Michigan nominated by Griffin are: Paul Russell Schnoes of Beech, Plymouth, nominated to the U.S. Air Force Academy; and Joseph Edward Skinner of Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, nominated to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

The 60 nominees from Michigan were selected from about 560 applicants on the basis of academic achievement, extra-curricular activities, character, leadership potential, and the recommendations of high school principals and teachers.

"I want to emphasize that these are nominations only—not admissions," said Griffin in releasing the names. Final selections from among those recommended will be made by the selection board at each academy.

The nominees included seven of the first women every nominated. Griffin nominated four women among 10 for at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.; one woman among 20 candidates for the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.; one woman among 20 candidates for the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs; one woman among 10 nominees for the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y.

Griffin points out that under legislation enacted by Congress last year "Our bicentennial year marks the first time that women ever have been eligible for appointment to the service academies.

Folk ballet sets tryouts

Open auditions for "Burning Tree," a folk ballet to be staged by the Plymouth Symphony Society, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday in the Physical Education Building at Schoolcraft College, Livonia.

This commissioned work is funded by the Council of Arts of the State of Michigan to develop local talent in the arts. It will present a glimpse of the Shaker societies through their dances and music.

Dancers auditioning need not have extensive training in classical dance. They should come prepared to be led through various combinations of dances.

Dancers need not be young because the script asks for mature persons as well as the young. There is a special need for male dancers.

Michelle Wolfe, director of dance at Schoolcraft College, will assist Ralph B. Kelley in the interviews which will be held in the lower level classrooms.

Ebb Tides at Pontch

A group named Ebb Tides comes to Michigan for the first time this week, playing Top O' The Pontch, through Feb. 14, Tuesdays through Saturdays.

"We aim to be entertaining, playing about half show tunes and half dance numbers that appeal to our listeners," says Larry Fitzhugh, manager of the four-piece group. "That's more important to us than trying to impose our own thing on the audience."

Fitzhugh put the group together two years ago after hearing vocalist Debbie Keeton. She was a teenager leading a 60-piece religious choir called United Youth and also played piano, organ and guitar.

Ebb Tides comes from a one-year stand at Dominic's in Dayton and has played other clubs in Ohio and Arizona.

In addition to Debbie, who also plays flute, the group is composed of Michael Markell on organ, piano and vocals; Steve Chenoweth on bass, guitar, trumpet and vocals, and Kenny Hall on percussion.

Top O' The Pontch is located on the 25th floor of Hotel Pontchartrain in Detroit's Civic Center and features a view of downtown Detroit, the river and Canada. There is no cover charge.

Rocks pummel tough RU for 14th win

By FRED DeLANO

In what could well be the pivotal weekend in the chase for the Suburban Eight basketball title, Plymouth Salem's unbeaten defending champs, fresh from a hard-nosed win over Redford Union, will invade Trenton Friday night while RU itself bids for an upset at home over Belleville.

These are the league's four top clubs with Salem, which is 14-0 overall, out in front of the pack at 8-0 in loop competition. Trenton and Belleville are deadlocked for second at 6-2 with RU next at 4-4. Trailing are Edsel Ford, Dearborn, Allen Park and Livonia Bentley.

The combination of a victory for Plymouth coupled with a win for RU's scrappy Panthers would make the Rocks well nigh uncatchable as they streak down the stretch in quest of a third straight undisputed championship.

In a cat and dog physical battle with Redford Union last weekend, Salem notched its 26th successive home court victory, 57-46, despite going without a basket through the final four minutes of the first half and then trailing, 28-26, two minutes into the third stanza.

Jim Ellinghausen, Brian Wolcott and Mike Primeau were top scorers for the Rocks with 23, 12 and 11 points respectively. Redford was paced by 18 from Tom Sweeney and 12 by Steve Schultz. Ellinghausen also hauled in 19 rebounds and blocked 12 Panther shots, most of them off the hands of Sweeney who matches Ellinghausen in height at 6-8.

An 11-point burst which carried Plymouth from its 28-26 deficit to a 37-28 lead was the game's turning point. Young Tom Ellinghausen, a 6-3 sophomore who was in the starting lineup for the first time, contributed five of the markers, Primeau four and Jim Ellinghausen two to put the Rocks in front for keeps.

JUGGLING OF THE Salem starting unit came about following the defection of senior guard Howard Inch who had turned in his uniform the day before the RU game as the climax of a personality clash with his teammates.

Coach Fred Thomann now is going with a lineup which includes all-state candidate Jim Ellinghausen at center, Tom Ellinghausen and Primeau at forward and the tandem of Bob Evans and Wolcott at guard. All except Tom Ellinghausen are seniors.

Evans, who had previously been running at one of the forward posts, suffered his first scoreless night of the season against RU but made up for it by leading the club in assists with eight.

This has been a week of adjustment and reschooling for the state-ranked Rocks, a fact which adds to the impact of the upcoming test at Trenton. The Trojans have lost only three games overall but are unbeaten on their home court.

"When we got it going, we did all right," said Thomann of the performance against Redford Union in which the Rocks outscored RU in the first period, 11-6, but then were on the short end of a 14-11 count in the second quarter. Plymouth's lead at halftime was a slim 22-20.

"WE ADJUSTED some things during the intermission and shot much better after that," added Thomann. The statistics bore him out, showing eight Salem field goals in the third period compared to only five in the first quarter and three in the second.

"Redford matches up with us pretty well in size and there was lots of contact out there. Ellinghausen (Jim) played well and finally got the best of Sweeney. Jim has to make his points in traffic because everyone is out to stop him. Don't forget, too, that he has blocked more than 30 shots in just his last three ball games."

In what in many ways was a textbook defensive battle in contrast to the 79-70 offensive shootout which Salem won at RU in December, those dozen blocks by Eli and Plymouth's constant hounding of the Panthers were vital.

Notable was the fact that this was the seventh time in 14 starts that saw the Rocks hold their opponent to fewer than 50 points.

Offensively, the 14-game statistics show that Thomann's rebuilt starting quintet has a combined shooting average from the floor of 55.7 per cent, an awesome figure in prep basketball.

Jim Ellinghausen, the school's all-time leading scorer and rebounder, has canned 180 field goals in 305 tries for 59 per cent. Primeau is 38 of 66 for 58 per cent, Wolcott 63 of 117 for 54 per cent, Tom Ellinghausen 32 of 64 for 50 per cent and Evans 31 of 65 for 48 per cent.

The end result of the defensive and offensive prowess is a blend which, in the eyes of many critics, stamps Salem as a prime candidate for the state Class A championship. That's all the more reason why Trenton's Trojans will be pulling all stops in the bid for an upset Friday.

The Rocks won their first meeting, at Plymouth Dec. 12, 79-61.

Spartans pin Chiefs

Facing the Livonia Stevenson Spartans, the Plymouth Canton grapplers were downed 42-21.

Coming within one of the record of 15 wins made last year by Greg Burke, the Chiefs' Bill Heedum started off the meet sticking Jim Hough in 4:50.

Heedum wrestling at 100 pounds and in this his junior year, has eight falls to his credit.

Next, having moved up from the JV squad, sophomore Dave Durkin, at 107 pounds, replaced injured Mark Bartlett. Durkin, in his first varsity competition, followed Heedum's example to pin the Spartans' Mark Hilpeat in a flat 5:00.

Taking a gamble, Chief coach Dan Chrenko used a bit of defensive strategy pitting Craig Lee against Tom Parent, one of Stevenson's best.

In the 114-pound match, Lee was only behind Parent by three points before being pinned. Coach Chrenko praised Lee's efforts. "I'm pleased for two reasons: one for sacrificing for the team by moving up, and then doing a good job against a tough wrestler."

At heavyweight, registering his tenth win this year, Canton's Bob Yauck pinned Kent Basset in :58.

Three of Yauck's eight pins have been clocked under the one-minute mark.

Salem girls are victorious, Chiefs fall in volleyball

The Plymouth Salem girls' volleyball team was victorious over Ypsilanti 2-0 in a non-league match, Monday, Feb. 2.

The Rocks took the first game of the match, 15-11. Jean Sellman led the Rocks with six points in the first game and Karen Prikosivits had four spikes.

Polly Richards took the second game for the Rocks by serving 15 straight points, a first in the history of volleyball for Salem.

Coach Brian Gilles was happy with the Rocks' performance Monday night. "We played more like a team, which we lacked earlier in the season. If we continue we will improve with each game," said Gilles.

The Salem JV's won their first match 2-1.

The Rocks took the first game, 15-10. They were defeated in the second game, 15-13, and they came back to win the third game, 15-11.

Livonia Churchill, co-holders with Plymouth Canton of last year's Western Six Volleyball title defeated the Chiefs, 2-1, in tough league action Jan. 28 at the Salem gym.

The strong spikes of Dorothy McCulloch led the Chiefs to victory in the first game of the match, 15-7.

In a long, tough battle for the second game, Churchill pulled ahead and when time ran out, Churchill was ahead 13-9.

Churchill came back strong and won the third game 15-2. This gave Churchill the match.

"We can still win the league," said Canton coach Cyndi Burnstien. "We are the strongest team in the league, and we have a lot of talent. We just have to keep up our confidence," she added.

In JV action, the Chiefs were defeated 15-6 in the first game and 15-10 in the second game.

Coach Burnstein was pleased with the performance of her JV squad against Churchill. "They played really well, there were long rallies and good setting. They are getting better," said Ms. Burnstein.

RU beats JV Rocks

By THOMAS ZAIBEK

Outscored 26-9 in the fourth quarter, the Rocks blew a 14 point lead, to lose their second game of the year, 58-55. Both losses came at the hands of Redford Union.

Both teams were tight in the opening period, with Redford Union taking a 10-6 lead.

Plymouth found the range in the second quarter, taking a slim 24-22 halftime lead.

Mitch Haas opened the third period with a jumper then Rick Hewlett dumped one. It was John Broderick, then Doug Agnew, and another by Haas.

Plymouth opened its lead by 14 points, 46-32.

The momentum was with Plymouth. It looked as if the Rocks would avenge their early loss with ease.

Redford Union would not play dead.

They came back strong in the fourth period, causing Plymouth turnovers. Slowly they kept pecking at the lead.

With 20 seconds left in the game, Dan Brightbill went to the foul line and put Plymouth ahead 55 to 54. Redford Union took the ball down court with seven seconds left, popped one in to go ahead 56-55.

Rich Hewlett's shot with seconds left bounced off the rim and he was also called for traveling.

Redford Union's last two points came on foul shots.

Doug Agnew and John Broderick led the scoring with 14 points each.

Plymouth takes its impressive 12-2 record to Trenton Friday, February 6. In an early meeting, Plymouth won that game 63 to 40.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

While no records are kept on the density of the bowling population there is little doubt that the western suburbs—from Plymouth to Redford and from Farmington to Garden City— rank with the top in the state if not in the country.

With the construction of the new 40-lane establishment in Canton which is to be open late this summer, there are 16 establishments with 520 lanes.

Using the rule of thumb that each establishment will have at least three shifts each day, there are 7,800 bowlers taking their turn on the approaches every 24 hours.

Only a quarter century ago the eight-lane establishment operated by the Plymouth Elks in what is now the Meeting House and Livonia Lanes were the only establishments in the western suburbs. No other area has grown so fast.

THE HOTTEST bowler in the area at the moment is Steve Laine, who bowls in the Allar Manufacturing League at Country Lanes.

This week he linked games of 248, 235 and 244 for 727. It was the the latest in a string of series above 600 and it was the second time in that stretch that he has broken the 700 barrier.

Nothing delights Fred Hamlin, owner of Farmington Lanes, more than to see one of his junior bowlers developing into a high scorer.

His latest "find" is 11-year-old Ken Thery, who bowls with the Flanders team in the after school league. This week the young fellow who just started this season came through with a 221 game. This is the highest game ever bowled in the 13-year existence of the after school league.

IT WAS A LONG time coming but when Dave Cramer rolled his first 600 series at Plaza Lanes he didn't fool about it. Starved for a big score, he finally found the range and opened with a 276.

With this start he added a 184 and 186 for 646. And that's thrill for a fellow with a 145 average.

GREG NICORA added his name to those who have broken the 700 barrier at Wonderland Lanes. He did it with games of 228, 246 and 263 for a 737 to pace the Classic.

The high scoring carried over into the team event where John Grindrod's Redford Bowling Sales No. 2 group posted a 3245 on games of 1161,962 and 1122. High man on the team was Jeff Missisci with a 681.

Only 12 pins seperated the top three finishers in the Ladies Classic.

With the aid of a 203 opener Judy Fitzpatrick showed the way with a 590. Three pins back came Barb Hausch with games of 210 and 226 in 587 and Jean Essa landed third with a 208 in 578. Judy Marsh missed the top three by slipping after games of 211 and 213.

WELL, SHE'S STILL doing it.

Mary Mohacsi, one time bowling queen, continued her string of 600 series this week when she posted a 616 in the Ladies Major Wednesday night at Pine Tree Bowl.

DESPITE ALL THE GOOD shooting of the juniors in the metropolitan area, the record for toppling the pins belongs to Dale Strike, of Saginaw.

He rolled games of 235, 248 and 211 for 694 at State Lanes to establish a new all time mark in the state. What makes the score all the more surprising is that Dale in only 12 years old and carries a 192 average according to the records of the Michigan Youth Bowling Association.

WHEN IT COMES to close finishes the senior house league at Bel-Aire Lanes is hard to beat. This week only 10 pins seperated the top four, with Danny Four setting the pace with a 648.

Bulldog cagers dump Thurston

Livonia Bentley held the Redford Thurston cagers to a total of nine points during the middle two quarters Tuesday night after trailing the Eagles 13-8 following the opening eight minutes to come away with a 49-33 nonleague basketball victory.

"Our patience and the way the kids handled the ball were the keys to victory," summarized Bentley coach Larry Jackson. Both teams used a control style of play, Thurston so much so that the Eagles attempted only 11 shots during the second half.

The Eagles connected for only 12 field goals during the contest compared to 17 for the Bulldogs.

The relatively feeble Thurston effort could probably be attributed somewhat to the fact that starter Randy Rodriguez did not play due to an ankle injury, and Gary Abundis played only a fragment of the game until he was hurt and left the lineup.

Dave Beebe had 17 points to provide the bulk of the Eagles' punch, while Bentley was led by Jim Rhodes, with 12, and Ed Snow's nine.

Warriors sock Chief wrestlers

When meeting a tough and seasoned wrestling squad as Walled Lake Western, Western Six League titlists last year, a team doesn't need two matmen out with injuries and a void at a weight division.

The result was a lopsided score of 51-10 over the Plymouth Canton Chiefs.

Just the day before the match during their regular practice, the Chiefs' lightweight Bill Heedum, while jostling around, suffered an ankle injury when heavyweight Chuck Walker tripped and fell on top of him.

Mark Bartlett, at 114 pounds, already had been out for a week with a wrenched thumb.

Coach Dan Chrenko commented, "I would like to see both boys back this coming week, especially for our districts."

In 1:14 the Chiefs' Craig Lee pinned John Aubrey to take the 107-pound class to even out the record of 8-8 for his sophomore year.

Scott Collins, another promising sophomore for Chrenko's crew was the other victorious grappler as he notched his 11th win in 23 contests.

Collins dominated the 140 division match with a 14-6 decision over Bob Cummings for a four-point major team score.

• Did You Know That The CNP-Y Program Began in 1962?

Actually, a formal charter was obtained in 1961 and the Y incorporated after a group of Plymouth citizens initiated the idea. The first community Y program was started in 1962 with the Y Indian Guides for fathers and sons and Hi-Y for high school youth. A fulltime director was hired in 1971 and more classes started. It became the Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA in 1973. This year there are up to 16 different classes being offered daily in CNP-Y programs.

• What Is The CNP-Y Doing?

These programs include classes in creative movement for preschoolers, women's slim and trim fitness and aerobic dancing; yoga, Scottish folk dancing, conversational French, quilling, dried flower arranging, greenhouse classes, beginning photography, guitar, creative dance, soft sculpture, creative stitchery, beginning art and nature, beginning drawing, craft variety, water color painting; tapestry weaving, quilting, self-awareness, racketball, paddleball, basketball skills, men's gym night, youth ballet and karate.

In addition, the CNP-Y is conducting these community services: Hypertension Screening; SEMTA Van Service; The Indian Programs.

• Where Is The CNP-Y Going?

The Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA is presently limited to what it can offer because it is dependent upon schools, churches and other organizations such as the Plymouth Community Credit Union for space for classes. The CNP-Y would like a permanent site—perhaps just a large room or building to start. There is a need to provide a larger variety of classes in the future, including swimming and tennis. There is a need for a place where the whole family can go to take advantage of what the Y can offer. And there is, we believe, a need in the community to promote the goals of YMCA: to strengthen family relationships; enrich individual lives, provide physical fitness, offer opportunities for growth and Christian fellowship.

Won't You Help the CNP-Y Attain Its Goal?

You can by joining the CNP-Y and taking part in its programs. Or if you believe in the Christian concepts and enrichment goals of YMCA and just want to help financially—you can do that, too! All gifts are tax deductible.

Hockey weekend is way of life

The coffee urns were steaming and trays of fresh doughnuts were in ready when the cry "Here they are!" was sounded.

A group of 9- and 10-year-olds headed for the Plymouth Cultural Center parking lot to greet the newcomers alighting from a chartered bus. The midget and squirt teams from South London, Ontario had arrived for a weekend of hockey.

In a few minutes the coffee cups were filled and the reception arranged by the mothers in the Plymouth Hockey Association was in full swing.

The Plymouth Squirts had been in London the weekend before. They had been billeted in the homes of their Canadian counterparts—they call them Atoms over there. They were hosting their friends this weekend. The midgets (15- and 16-year-olds) were staying with the parents in the Plymouth Hilton, and most of them had brought their bathing suits along.

THE CONVERSATION revolved around the long trip back to Plymouth in an ice storm the previous Sunday night.

The London group said they had had a four-hour drive, and it seemed they had made better time last year.

They had played in Goderich the night before and the players hadn't gone to bed until 2:30 a.m. The parents were concerned about how the lack of sleep would affect the team.

The Canadians expressed amazement at the $2 per player, per practice that the Plymouth pucksters were charged. Their original registration fee is higher, but ice-time is much cheaper and included in the fee.

Two games were scheduled for Saturday and two for Sunday. The Squirts lined up at their respective bluelines as "O Canada" and the "Star-Spangled Banner" were played over the arena PA system, and a weekend of international hockey was under way.

The Plymouth Squirts won 5-0 on Saturday and tied 3-3 on Sunday. The Midgets played to a 3-3 tie on Saturday and the London team won by a 3-1 score on Sunday.

3 swimming marks set by acquatic club

Area swimmers contributed to three new Michigan Amateur Athletic Union records last weekend at a marathon three-day meet sponsored by the Bulldog Aquatic Club in the Schoolcraft College pool.

The swimming club, based in Livonia, set two records and finished second overall behind a team from Windsor, Ont. More than 4,000 entrants took part in the competition.

The 11-12 boys 400-yard freestyle relay team, with an effort of 3:55.8, whacked more than two seconds off the former state record for the event. The quartet consisted of Ron Hurley, Plymouth; Art James, Northville; Mike Schultz, Livonia; and Greg Dawkins, Westland.

The Bulldog girls also got into the record-shattering act, as the 15-18 800-yard freestyle relay crew swam the distance in 8:15.4. Mary Reid, of Livonia, Liz Hatfield, Livonia, Marion Stanwood, Plymouth, and Karen Rudel, Farmington, made up the foursome.

The other area team to set a new state mark was the 15-18 girls 400-yard medley relay team representing Garden City Parks and Recreation. With a time of 4:14.7, Lori Loomis, of Garden City, Vicki Brown, Garden City, Cindy Brown, Garden City, and Kari Kanto, Livonia, broke the old standard for the event by a little more than a second.

Salem tankers drown RU, 137-42

Plymouth Salem rolled to field-besting performances in 10 of 11 events last week en route to a 137-42 drowning of Redford Union in a Suburban Eight League swimming meet.

The Rocks, who hosted the proceedings, were paced by junior Ron Finley, who set a new Salem varsity record with a time of 56.7 seconds in the 100-yard backstroke. Finley also garnered an individual first-place finish in the 200-yard freestyle.

The time which Finley beat for the new mark was set by high school and collegiate All-American Dick Michaels 14 years ago.

Wayne, Glenn take novice mat tourney

While defending champion Wayne Memorial ran away with the team title of the Garden City West Novice Wrestling Tournament Saturday, two area squads turned in creditable performances.

Westland John Glenn, a powerhouse in recent years, finished right behind Wayne for second place in a field of 16 and Redford Thurston, standing in fifth spot, showed three individual champions.

Since the tourney was for novice or beginning wrestlers, most of the couple hundred competitors were in ninth or tenth grade and will be the future leaders of their respective teams.

"The meet was very successful," said West coach Stan Worrell, who hosted the meet. "Things ran smooth and the cooperation of everyone was beautiful."

Trophies were presented to the two top teams and the tourney's outstanding wrestler, Whitenburg of Bedford High. Medals were awarded to the first four finishers in each weight class.

The defending champs collected 131½ points to best John Glenn, the runner up, by a whopping 40 points. Bedford had 86½, Farmington, 73½, Redford Thurston 65, Belleville, 64½, North Farmington, 54, Dearborn Heights Robichaud, 37½, and Southfield-Lathrup, 37½.

Following behind were Dearborn Heights Annapolis, 35, Garden City West, 33½, Livonia Franklin, 30½, Redford Union, 20½, Livonia Churchill, 19½, Southgate Aquinas, 5, and Plymouth Canton, 2.

Luxurious Living Rooms... more impressive than ever because...

Here's yet another reason why Pennsylvania House is such an incredible value.

Pennsylvania House is so exquisitely crafted that it seems to grow more beautiful with time. The woods mellow to a soft patina. Each design is a masterpiece to be handed down as a precious heirloom.

Take our Philadelphia collection of upholstery (shown on this page). Every piece is crafted with 8-way, hand-tied springs and many hand-tailored details. We show only a few pieces, but the entire collection is now 20% off!

On the opposite page, our pre-coordinated Concord collection of upholstery lets you pick any fabric and you'll find a whole family of fabrics to go with it—makes decorating easy. Many fabrics are of Herculon® olefin fiber for built-in stain release and long wear. Here again, the entire collection is now priced at 20% off!

Finish off the look with the beauty of our Independence Hall accents (shown on this page and top photo, opposite page). Or discover the drama of our new Wheatland accents (shown in bottom photo, opposite page)—it's rustic styling with an exciting new look. Every piece shown is 20% off!
