April 5 tax vote may be cancelled

The Plymouth Board of Education is expected to take action tonight (Monday) to cancel its April 5 election date and wait until June before putting a proposal before

At the same meeting, the board is expected to take further steps to reduce the operating-fund imbalance in the 1975-76 operating budget. Among the considerations will be eliminating the positions of five media specialists and using those employees as permanent substitutes.

The meeting, open to the public, begins at 7:30 p.m. in the cafetorium of Plymouth Canton High School, 8415 Canton Center

BASED ON RECENTLY acquired information on state-equalized-valuation (SEV) figures and proposed state-aid formulas, Supt. John M. Hoben will ask the school board to cancel the April 5 election date requested by earlier board resolution.

Hoben believes it is now possible that operating millage is within the grasp of the district to meet its financial needs, and that an operational millage request might better serve the district than a buildingand-site sinking-fund election April 5.

"Based upon this information, I am recommending to the board of education that we inform the Wayne County Election Scheduling Committee of our intent to remove from the calendar the April 5, 1976 election," says Hoben.

The effect is the district can save the cost of an April election and might find it can request additional operating millage without being penalized by the state-aid

Depending upon later information, and what happens in the June election if a ballot proposal is drawn up, the district will have time to come back in the fall with either a operating-millage request or a building-and-site sinking-fund proposal.

THE ADMINISTRATION is likely to recommend tonight that five media special ists (librarians) be reassigned as substitute teachers to save $11,000 in expenditures for the balance of the fiscal year.

Hoben has indicated, however, that he might make a substitute recommendation to save that $11,000 which could allow the five librarians to remain in their present

Administrative staffs at the middle, elementary and high school levels have been given the challenge of coming up with cuts totalling $11,000. If this is done, Hoben said he will offer these cuts as a substitute.

With other adjustments which had occurred by the middle of last week, the potential operating deficit of $215,000 had been reduced by $76,200 which leaves the district with a fund-equity expenditure of about $138,000.

In looking at early figures for the budget next year, 1976-77, it is expected the operational budget will have a deficit of $1 million without any increased tax levy or changes in state-aid funding.

IN OTHER action tonight, the board will hear a report on the CASTLES in-service training project from its directors. Gordon Hill and Mac McDonald and receive in interim report on the 45-15 (year-round school) program at Miller Elementary.

The board also is expected to take action on a proposed cost-savings incentive plan. award furniture bids for the three new elementary schools, and act on a request from WSDP-FM-the student-operated radio station at Plymouth Salem-to broadcast board meetings.

Audit reveals surplus in Detroit Water Dept.

By EMORY DANIELS

The revelation this week of a $5 million surplus in the 1975 operating budget of the Detroit Water Department may be enough ammunition to thwart an increase in water rates until at least July 1.

It has been learned that the preliminary draft of the audit report of Arthur Young Associates. Certified Public Accountants. indicates the water department ended its 1974-75 fiscal year with a $5 million surplus, and is operating under a "balanced" budget for fiscal year 1975-76 which ends June 30, 1976.

Members of the water board were unaware of the $5 million surplus from 1975 until Arthur Young Associates issued its preliminary report, says John Lamerato, Oakland County's representative on the water board.

"We adopted a balanced budget for fiscal year 1975-76 without any knowledge that we ended 1975 with a $5 million surplus. The obvious question which must be answered now is why is a rate increase needed during the present fiscal year based on the figures we have just received from Arthur Young Associates?'

The water department had told board members the system would end the 1975-76 fiscal year with a deficit of $2.6 million, necessitating a rate increase effective May 1. 1976. "That rate increase would apply to water consumption in April, May and June-the last quarter of our present fiscal year. With our latest figures, I personally look askance at the projected deficit and need for a rate increase before June 30.

"Although there may be a need for a rate increase for the 1976-77 fiscal year. starting July 1, I see no need for a rate increase before the present fiscal year ends this June. There is a need for some kind of a rate increase, but not 39 per cent."

THE AUDITING firm was hired to do an independent audit and was to have issued its final report by Dec. 31.

The auditors were unable to meet that deadline, however, because it found it impossible to conduct a budget analysis because actual expenditures in the water department lacked a direct relationship to the line items in the budget adopted by the

In its preliminary report, Arthur Young reports it cannot conduct a budget analysis but is able to verify that the transactions were legal and can confirm total budget

"Because of the accounting system used in the water department it is impossible to analyze line-figure expenditures with the budget. We can tell if the water department lives within the total budget but have know way of knowing if, for instance, it overspends in one category such as salaries." adds Lamerato.

ONCE THE auditors issue the final report, the suburban opponents of the waterrate hike may be able to use that report to delay any rate increase until at least July

Another delaying tactic the suburbs will use is a recent legal opinion from Attorney General Frank Kelley that any water-rate adjustment in Detroit must be approved by the Detroit Common Council.

After meeting recently in Livonia at a meeting called by Mayor Edward McNas mara, the suburbs agreed to create a legal fund to be generated by each member community contributing monies on a per capita basis-five cents per person living in the community. Some 99 communities are expected to join in a lawsuit against the Detroit Water Board.

In discussing the financial condition of the water system, one suburban official has pointed out that the water department books hadn't been audited for 18 months.

"It is my understanding that Arthur Young has told the water department it cannot come up with a meaningful audit because the department doesn't follow its own budget procedures. Once the waterboard passes a budget, the department

Senate vote evaporates hopes for $5 million

Township administrator's attempts at getting almost $5 million worth of public improvements through federal monies went up in smoke Thursday when the U.S. Senate failed to override President Ford's veto on a $6.1 billion public works jobs bill by three votes.

The bill, intended to create 600,000 jobs, provided for 100 per cent federal financing of new state and local public works projects on which work could have begun within 90 days of project approval.

IN ANTICIPATION of the Senate's ability to override the president's veto. Supervisor Robert Greenstein asked both Michigan Senators, Robert Griffin and Philip Hart for assistance in obtaining applications for projects last Tuesday.

Greenstein wrote the senators listing public works projects that "appeared to fit the and fire house •And $135,000 for 27,000 feet of bicycle paths at the township park and along the Detroit Edison easement.

GREENSTEIN also asked for $2 million for a new township office complex.

The supervisor said all the projects seemed to fit the intent of the act and would provide jobs for the unemployed in Wayne County as well as Canton. He added that presently the county is registering 13 per cent unemployed, even though figures from the township's middecade census showed that Canton had five per cent of its work force unem-

In all cases, the supervisor said the projects could begin within 90 days. Despite the Senate's inability to override Ford's veto, Greenstein was optimistic.

"I think it's a shame they couldn't do it. As far as I know, we were first in line for the money in the state. I think we had a very good shot at it.

"But I called Washington and I am given to understand that both Republicans and Democrats will reintroduce a similar measure in the near future. "If that passes, our applications will still be good. "It's a shame though—just another example of rotten politics. If you look at the vote, all those that voted against it aren't up for election this year.

The group members, whose main concern is modular scheduling at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP), have decided to seek to obtain a slate of candidates to run in June in an effort to defeat the two incumbents up for re-election-Marda Benson and Flossie Tonda.

The applicants don't have to be members of Concerned Parents, exblains its president George Merchant, but merely persons who feel the citizens should have more of a choice on administrative activities of the school board.

Residents interested in running for the board of education with the support of Concerned Parents are urged to submit written resumes to: Concerned Parents, Post Office Box 577. Plymouth 48170.

The group was considering recalling at least two members not up for election in June in addition to attempting to defeat the two incumbents up for re-election-the strategy being to gain a majority of four votes on the board.

Ms. Benson, board president, hasn't decided yet whether she will seek re-election. but indications are that she might so those voters who don't agree with the basic positions of Concerned Parents will have a candidate to support. Late books are costly Increasing concern about overdue li brary materials has led media specialists to take stronger measures at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

Overdue notices, personal reminders and telephone calls home have long been the standard procedure, with some success. Some students, however, persist in abusing the checkout priveleges and neglect to return materials.

The negligent users had assumed distressing proportions by the close of the first term of this school year. Some 1,290 books were overdue at the two libraries. This represented a total dollar investment of $8,700. In time of stringent budgets this has been an intolerable and costly situa-

And so report cards were pulled for those having long overdue materials with rewarding results. As of Feb. 10, 66 per cent of the outstanding items have been cleared up at the Plymouth Canton library, representing $1,848 in resources. and 60 per cent of the overdue books at Plymouth Salem have been taken care of with a dollar value of $5,588.

Correction

The shop classes in the high schools and middle schools of the Plymouth Community School District are inspected to see if they meet requirements of the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Act (MIOSHA).

The MIOSHA inspection teams, however, arrive unannounced. A typographical error in the last edition of the Observer & Eccentric indicated such inspections are announced, which is not the case. The error is regretted.

Expanded program readies officers

By MAURIE WALKER

The reserve police officer has come a long way since the day of the posse and the deputy appointed on the spot.

Today the reservists is getting the same basic course as a regular policeman, but in a modified version.

It all started three years ago in Redford when reserve Capt. Al Stewart and Police Chief Edwin Gleza decided formal schooling was needed for the men who were accepted as police reservists.

In the current class held every Thursday evening at Schoolcraft College, there are 150 men from departments in Canton, Garden City. Redford, Northville. Livonia as well as Farmington Hills.

Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein is one of 32 persons from Canton, including two women, who are attending the 30week, 100 hour course.

Stewart said that the first school in Redford in 1973, had 265 officers graduate. When word of the school spread throughout the area, applications for the course grew so numerous that arrangements were made with Schoolcraft College to hold the

The course includes road patrol duties and functions, arrest procedure, commu-

Weapons training is another facet of the course. The students receive a complete NRA (National Rifle Association) basic pistol course and a police combat course conducted on a firing range.

"All must pass this phase of the test or they aren't graduated," Stewart said. All weapons teachers are NRA police fire-arms instructors.

The training council is recognized by the Michigan Law Enforcement Officer Training Council and is accredited throughout the state by various police organizations.

Even though Swartz Creek followed current procedure by placing an advertisement in the local newspaper, the court found the statute unconstitutional because it failed to provide for notice to a property owner who did not live in the city where the property in question was located.

School budget hearing is set

Although the Plymouth Board of Education is still struggling to keep its 1975-76 operating budget balanced, the process has started to establish a budget for school year 1976-77.

The school district will conduct its first public hearing on the 1976-77 budget on Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the library of Central Middle School. This will be the first in a series of public hearings on next year's budget.

Although administrators don't have the information on next year's income yet. they would like to receive public input on the budget and encourage residents to attend to offer their ideas.

AT ITS LAST meeting, the Plymouth City Commission voted 7-0 to approve the five-cent per capita assessment for the city's share of the legal fund. The initial expense is expected to be about $600. "That cost is likely to rise as we hire attorneys, auditors, and other experts," commented City Manager Fred Yockey, "but I'm sure the savings to our residents will compensate for what we spend now."

Yockey said one of his greatest objections is the inequity of the proposed 39 per cent increase. "The proposal is to raise water rates 39 per cent for both suburban and Detroit customers. But the suburbs are already paying more per cubic foot to cover the expense of installing the system has already been covered and it's unfair to charge us 39 per cent now.

Yockey pointed out that the effect of the proposed 39 per cent hike would be to raise the cost to Detroit users from $1 to $1.39 per cubic foot while the increase for the City of Plymouth customers would be from $1.91 to $2.65 per cubic foot. "That's a 74 cent increase for Plymouth residents and a 39 cent increase for Detroit users. Here's the inequity.

'Grand River fever' hit settlers

(Part II

"The Life of Lettie Teeple," in the fall 1974 issue of Michigan History, includes her recollection of the "ague," or malaria, which afflicted her when she was a young girl at Cooper's Corners in the 1830s.

Lettie had the ague for a year, and it left her "a near skeleton." "Some days," she wrote, "we would all be sick with it at the same lame."

The malaria was transmitted by the swarms of mosquitoes that infested the swamps in Michigan. Lettie pointed out that mosquito netting was unknown to the early settlers, who relied on smudging to drive away the insects.

Lettie's sister, Jane, who was three years older, attended school at Cooper's Corners. The school "was about 20 rods from the Corners," wrote Lettie, who would run to meet Jane when she returned from school. "She would reward me for it with flowers, mosses, bright little stones or anything she thought would please me."

TOWARD THE END of her stay here, wrote Lettie:

"Our home was growing more beautiful all the while. Stumps were disappearing from the fields. A thrifty young orchard was growing; about 70 acres were cleared and well fenced; the rails were up to stay. Our farm lay on both sides of the road so we did not have very near neighbors. But the woodsman was slaying the timber in every direction. We could see through to our neighbors fields and dwelling."

It was then that Peter Teeple got, along with others in the area, what, in 1836, was jokingly called "Grand River fever." He decided to pick up stakes and move his family to the Grand River country in the wilds of Kent County in Western Michigan. Against the wishes of his wife, who did not want to leave the improved farm in Plymouth, he decided to move west because he wanted to enlarge his land ownership. He offered his Plymouth farm for sale and it was soon bought by a Mr. Gates.

Yzenbaard and Hoffman, who edited Lettie's manuscript, identify Gates as Captain Myron Gates, who commanded a military company during the Black Hawk War (1832) and the Toledo War (1835). Gates owned 80 acres in the northwest corner of Section 29 of Plymouth Township. If this was part of the property he bought from Peter Teeples, it would mean that Lettie lived near the corner of Ridge and North Territorial. This jibes with Lettie's remark that her home was a mile and a half from the Cooper's Corner's School. Her grandfather, William Teeple, may have lived near the corner of Beck and North Territorial Lettie's last view of Plymouth was on Jan. 1, 1837, when the family said goodbye to Grandpa and Grandma Teeple and headed for Ann Arbor and the Grand River country. Her father did return to Plymouth on several occasions; once to pick up some more household goods, once to get a load of fruit trees (which were still bearing fruit when Lettie wrote 50 years later), and once to buy a colt. When it died of the cold, he returned to Plymouth once more to trade a horse for a yoke of oxen.

ON ONE OCCASION, in the spring of 1827, two of Peter Teeple's horses left his 641-acre farm in Kent County, eight miles from Grand Rapids, and tried to find their way back to Plymouth. Teeple recovered one horse, but never found the other.

Among the songs that Lettie said were popular in her youth were "Jim Along Josey," Old Zip Coon," "Old Dan Tucker," "The Long Trailed Blue," "Such a Getting up Stairs" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

Before she married, Lettie taught school. When 20, she married and had a daughter by a young man who soon deserted her. In 1853, she married again, and had five more children. Her second husband, a hotel keeper and political figure in Michigan, died in 1886.

Lettie began to write the story of her life in 1885, when she was 56. In 1890, she abandoned the manuscript and left for Oregon where, at 61 and alone, she lived on a timber claim 11 miles from the nearest settlement. She died in Seattle, in 1911, at 82.

born at Cooper's Corners.

Mrs. Norma Cassady, a former merchant and a well-known resident of the city, was born on the Baker farm at the corner of Beck and Territorial in 1893, more than half a century after Lettie moved away.

In 1837, the year the Teeple's headed westward, Samuel Baker moved his family to Cooper's Corners from Richmond, New York. He acquired 80 acres at the east corner of Beck at North Territorial. Forty acres of the Baker farm were on each side of North Territorial.

Baker, who had been an orchardist back east, put many fruit trees out here. He also opened a cooper's shop on his farm for the production of apple barrels.

One of Baker's sons, Chauncey, was the father of Mrs. Cassady. Born in 1835, Chauncey Baker was postmaster here during the second administration of President Cleveland. As a boy, he attended Cooper's Corners School which was located east of Beck and south of North Territorial on the Baker property. A Civil War veteran, Chauncey was almost 60 when Mrs. Cassady was born.

sady was born.

The settlement at Cooper's Corners may have begun because some of the earliest settlers staked claims in its vicinity. John, William and Allen Tibbits, who some consider to be the first settlers in Plymouth Township, owned property in that area.

John Tibbits' property, granted March 11, 1825, was at the northeast corner of Section 28. It extended from North Territorial Road through to Ann Arbor Road and encompassed the terrain later owned by the Durfees (which Ralph Garber later owned) and the property on which the Township Recreation Park is now located, adjacent to Hilltop Golf Course.

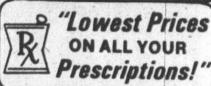

One can only speculate on why Cooper's Corners declined and disappeared, as Plymouth Corners continued to grow.

Canton falls to Harrison

By BILL COLLINS

Boasting the best defense in the Western Six conference, the Farmington Harrison Hawks stymied a hustling Plymouth Canton Chief team Friday evening, 71-59, to stay in contention for a possible league championship with Livonia Churchill.

Harrison opened up a 124 lead with the scoring spread around the starting five

The first quarter ended with Harrison on top 15-8 with Rob Mandle giving Canton some momentum when he canned a 45footer at the buzzer.

Canton, playing in spurts, picked up the hot hand for the next four minutes and cut the Harrison deficit to 23-21 with 2:14 left in the half.

Harrison took a 32-25 lead at halftime into the locker room with both teams playing even in the second stanza, scoring 17 points apiece.

Canton's Steve Salyer amazed the crowd as he sank a 35-foot shot to end the half.

MIKE STYLES plaed his first varsity contest against Plymouth Canton in two years, as he led both teams in rebounds.

The last Canton-Harrison encounter saw the Chiefs fritter away an eight-point lead in the final three minutes to give the Hawks a one-point win.

Chief tankers nipped by Hawks

By BILL COLLINS

Although the Plymouth Canton swim team has slumped to a 3-7 dual meet record, its pattern of consistency may be the factor that could lift the Chiefs into the upper bracket of the Western Six.

Coach William Faunce has been a swim instructor for 18 years, including eight years in Ohio and two years as an assistant at Florida State University before arriving on the Plymouth High School tank scene eight years ago.

"In all my years of coaching I've never had a team that has kept improving from meet to meet like this year's squad," said coach Faunce

Franklin wears another league crown

By DOUG FUNKE Sports Editor

Fighting back from an eight-point halftime deficit, Livonia Franklin tripped Garden City East, 68-62, on the basketball court last Friday, and with the victory, clinched the undisputed championship of the Northwest Suburban League.

"They (East) hit well in the first half. but not so well in the second," said Franklin coach Robert Visser. "Defensively, our to 21 for Franklin, but the Patriots made kids knuckled under in the second half and good on 26 of 32 free throw shooting opkept them shooting outside."

Indeed, East held the hot offensive hand in the opening half, leading after the opening period 17-12 and by 38-28 at the intermission. The Patriots bested the Panthers over the second 16 minutes, 40-26, to earn the victory.

East actually connected on 26 field goals portunities, many of those one and one situations. The Panthers, on the other hand, canned only 10 of 19 charity chances.

"They (Patriots) stood at the free throw line all night long," summarized East coach Billy Joe Young. The Panthers' mentor added that Greg Emery played only about 16 minutes before fouling out, Jim Riley eventually exited via the foul route and Mike Mitchell, although not fouling out, was in serious trouble. "The game got very physical," Young added.

Franklin held the upper hand in the rebounding department, collecting 28 to 24 for East. The Panthers turned the ball over 16 times, while the Patriots committed 14 ball-handling miscues.

Visser credited the title-clincher to allaround performance of all of his charges. "Everyone worked hard and just played fine ball," the coach stated. Dennis Wesley led Franklin with 18 points. Dan Pederson chipped in 17, Sam. Williams, 12, and John Elmore, 10. Mike Mitchell poured in 17 for the Panthers. while Emery and Dan Loacano added 13 and 11, respectively.

The Patriots now stand at 12-7 overall and the Panthers show a 10-8 mark.

Philip Morris just made the cigarette.

MERIT. Only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

· Yet MERIT delivers astonishing flavor. Flavor verified

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

New Enriched Flavor Discovery

By isolating certain "key" flavor ingredients of tobacco in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have developed a way to pack extra flavor into tobacco without the usual increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor'.

It's extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through.

We packed 'Enriched Flavor' into MERIT. And began a series of extensive taste tests. The results were amazing.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, all tested at home!

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new Enriched Flavor MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette.

BPW members and guests were an appreciative audience.

"And they were coasting down the hill in the grain scoop, barefooted," Mariah Baker told her friends.

Cassady Players re-enact Plymouth life in 1830s

"Lady born, lady bred, dresses her feet before her head," Mariah Baker scolded her daughter Maryette. In spite of their pioneer home in the Michigan Territory, Mrs. William Baker was going to raise her daughters properly.

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club were given an intimate view of area life in the 1830s as they watched the premiere performance of "Yesteryears in Plymouth." The one-act play was written and directed by Norma Cassady who played the role of her paternal grandmother. Mariah Baker.

The setting was in the Baker home at Coopers Corners which used to stand at the intersection of Beck and Sutton roads. Sutton was the old name for North Territorial. Coopers Corners was larger than the Starkweather settlement (Podunk) in what is now downtown Plymouth, or the Holbrook nucleus (Joppa) in the Old Village area.

The neighborhood women gathered for an exchange of community news, their hands busy with needlework as they chatted and took an occasional pinch of snuff. The snuffbox used in the play belonged to Mrs. Cassady's grandfather. It had been made by a neighbor out of a maple burl.

They discussed their children, new neighbors, the Indians, churches, and the first postmaster, Guideon Benton, who carried the mail tied in a handkerchief on his

THEY AGREED boys were especially mischievous. There were stories of stealing eggs, suspending a younger brother by his heals so he could reach the barrel of maple syrup in the cellar.

"And that sugar has to last us the whole year," the mother added.

Mrs. Baker suggested a good whack on the head with a thimble as a disciplinary measure. But, there was concern in her voice as she spoke of her sons sleeping in the loft with the snow sifting through the shingles on the roof. She told of them coasting down the hillside in the grain scoop—barefooted— their shoes outgrown and worn out.

News that the Presbyterians had paid the enormous sum of $400 for a church brought oohs and ahs from the ladies. The fact that they were going to pay their minister $100 every six months caused more shaking of heads.

Phoebe Root said the Indians went by her house on their way to Detroit to collect their government money. She reminded them of the trail blazed through the woods by the Indians which they had followed to their new homes.

NEVER MISSING an opportunity to display daughter Caroline's talents, Mrs. Baker asked her to tell the ladies how the Indians first got their name. Caroline's father was teaching her to fiddle and she had already given a rendition of "Turkey in the Straw."

The conversation got around to the Berringers, an Irish family who had moved into a place near the schoolhouse.

The schoolmaster had complained that Mrs. Berringer would open the door and shout, "Jonah, the beans are done!" The Berringer children would leave en masse, without his pemission, and return to class when they had consumed the beans.

The ladies wondered how Mrs. Thompson managed with her 10 children. Mariah had been over to visit. The three little boys "hid behind the stove all the time I was there—they're so shy," she said. They were proud of the fact that Michigan was to become a state and lamented over their lack of the privilege to vote. They agreed that as long as they told the menfolk how to vote their status wasn't all that bad.

ALL THE INCIDENTS related in the play were real, as were the characters. Mrs. Cassady had heard the stories as a child during family get-togethers. In the days when "children were seen and not heard," they did a lot of listening to adults' conversation and reminiscence.

Ellice Kulick has her spinning and weaving studio in the old Root house. Her daughter, Terese Whitten played the part of Maryette Baker. Mrs. Kulick's costume was a two-piece dress of creamy silk with many tucks and underskirts. It has a whale-boned waistline and is over 100 years old.

The play was written for the BPW's bicentermial program and presented at the regular February dinner-meeting.

Ann Depa pottery in Scarab Club exhibit

Ann Depa, a Westland resident and art teacher in Allen and Smith elementary schools in Plymouth, has had her Raku pottery selected for the all-Michigan Scarab Club silver medal exhibition.

The show will be through March 7 in the club on Farnsworth at John R, across from the Detroit Institute of Art.

Raku is a Japanese method of making pottery which requires a special clay to withstand extreme changes in temper-

Ms. Depa's pieces were fired in her own backyard kiln which she constructed from a 55-gallon drum. She lined the interior with ½-inch of insulating material used in the aerospace program. It is a mixture of fiber glass and other materials.

The pots are heated to 1,900 degrees with propane gas then removed to a bed of saw-dust. More sawdust is piled on. The clay continues to burn without air, removing the oxides from the glaze.

While still very hot, the pots are plunged into ice-cold water or a snowbank.

Ms. Depa says the heavy snowfalls this winter have been ideal for cooling. Also, the snow method is more dramatic for her students.

"They love to see it steam and sizzle."
The chromium, copper, tin and iron oxides used in the process result in lustrous colors of gold, blue and green when the oxide is removed. Depth of color depends on the amount of oxygen left in the glaze.

Crackled surface and luster are trademarks of the Raku process. "I love the cracks," the said.

Ann Depa's Raku pottery has been selected for the all-Michigan Scarab Club silver medal show which will run through March 7 in the club, opposite the Detroit Institute of Arts. (Staff photo by Maurie Walker)

DANCING INSTRUCTION FOR YOUTH & ADULTS

YMCA-CREDIT UNION CREDITEERS, SENIOR CITIZENS GROUP

• Did You Know That The CNP-Y Program Began in 1962?

Actually, a formal charter was obtained in 1961 and the Y incorporated after a group of Plymouth citizens initiated the idea. The first community Y program was started in 1962 with the Y Indian Guides for fathers and sons and Hi-Y for high school youth. A fulltime director was hired in 1971 and more classes started. It became the Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA in 1973. This year there are up to 16 different classes being offered daily in CNP-Y programs.

• What Is The CNP-Y Doing?

These programs include classes in creative movement for preschoolers, women's slim and trim fitness and aerobic dancing; yoga, Scottish folk dancing, conversational French, quilling, dried flower arranging, greenhouse classes, beginning photography, guitar, creative dance, soft sculpture, creative stitchery, beginning art and nature, beginning drawing, craft variety, water color painting; tapestry weaving, quilting, selfawareness, racketball, paddleball, basketball skills, men's gym night, youth ballet and karate.

In addition, the CNP-Y is conducting these community services: Hypertension Screening; SEMTA Van Service; The Indian Programs.

• Where Is The CNP-Y Going?

The Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA is presently limited to what it can offer because it is dependent upon schools, churches and other organizations such as the Plymouth Community Credit Union for space for classes. The CNP-Y would like a permanent site perhaps just a large room or building to start. There is a need to provide a larger variety of classes in the future, including swimming and tennis. There is a need for a place where the whole family can go to take advantage of what the Y can offer. And there is, we believe, a need in the community to promote the goals of YMCA: to strengthen family relationships; enrich individual lives, provide physical fitness, offer opportunities for growth and Christian fellowship.

Won't You Help the CNP-Y Attain Its Goal?

You can by joining the CNP-Y and taking part in its programs. Or if you believe in the Christian concepts and enrichment goals of YMCA and just want to help financially-you can do that, too! All gifts are tax deductible.

Tips to save taxes

Any motorist itemizing deductions on 1975 federal income tax forms is entitled to list certain auto-related expenses.

A comprehensive guide detailing those expenses. "Automobile Income Tax Deductions," has been prepared by AAA. It lists and explains allowable personal and business-related deductions such as state gasoline taxes, depreciation and accidental losses not covered by insurance.

The extent of federal income tax deductions allowed a motorist depends upon whether vehicle use is personal or business-related.

Automobile deductions allowed even if the car is not used for business are:

• The cost of operating an automobile in connection with charitable activities or medical activities, such as driving to a doctor's office. Such deductions are subject to the "in excess of three per cent" rule for medical deductions

·State gasoline taxes paid, nine cents per gallon in Michigan.
