Second school millage try set for Sept. 2

The second millage election this year for Plymouth Community School District will be held on Thursday, Sept. 2.

The paperwork was filed Tuesday for a Sept. 2 election after tentative approval was given for that date by the Wayne County Election Commission. Formal confirmation will be made by the county before Saturday.

The verbal request for a Sept. 2 election date was made Tuesday morning at the direction of the Plymouth Board of Education the night before.

At its regular meeting Monday night, the school board instructed the administration to request a millage election at the earliest possible legal date. In its motion, the board's first choice was Sept. 2, with other preferences being Sept. 4 and Sept. 7. in that order.

THE AMOUNT OF MILLAGE on the ballot will be decided by the board July 26.

At Monday's meeting, a motion to hold the election on Sept. 7 was made by E.J. McClendon and supported by Dick Arlen.

holding the election on the preceding Saturday. Sept. 4. Joe Gray questioned the ability of the district to get a large voter turnout because that Saturday was in the middle of Labor Day weekend and a lot of people would be out of town.

Marcia Borowski backed Arlen's suggestion for a Saturday election. "I realize that weekend will be summer's last fling, but we are faced with enormous scheduling problems and decisions on staffing, and we don't have the luxury of holding an election on the traditional Monday and Tuesday days.

"Absentee ballots will be available for residents who know they will be out of town that weekend, and voting absentee is often more convenient anyhow. But a Sept. 7 election, with school to open the next day, poses very serious problems.

"How can you teach a course with just one day's notice? This would be robbing the students.

George Lawton, supported by Ms. Borowski, then made a motion to amend McClendon's motion to allow the election date to be either Sept. 2 or 4 if approved by the election commission. The amendment and original motion passed 7-0.

Although the board hasn't passed a formal motion, the assumption is that the district will again request 4.75 ($4.75 per $1,000 state equalized valuation) additional operating mills.

Discussions on cuts to be made in case of millage defeat in September have all centered on the need to cut $2.6 million, would be restored in the budget by 4.75 mills.

Florence Beier, adminstrative assistant who was co-leader of the June millage effort, commented Tuesday: "It is very important for residents to make plans now for the Sept. 2 millage election. I'm sure most realize, after June's result, that every vote indeed does count. I hope people will either apply for absentee ballots or arrange their schedules to be in town Sept. 2 to vote.

THE PUBLIC HEARING was the second held on the special assessment for fire protection. After the hearing was completed, the board voted to levy 11/2 mills for the coming year-a process which will be repeated next year.

Supervisor Robert Greenstein began the public hearing by noting the cost estimates are $429,100 to construct, equip and operate the new station for the first year. A resident from Windsor Park asked why the 11/2 mills wasn't placed on the ballot as the specific amount of tax needed for the fire hall

Greenstein said the state law allowing special assessment districts for fire protection required that the ballot wording call for a levy of up to 10 mills.

Trustee James Poole, noting that the township intended to levy only 11/2 mills, said the 10 mills was for capital expenses only and that if necessary more than 10 mills could be levied for operational ex-

Parsell added that it was difficult to specify the millage rate on the ballot because by the time exact cost estimates were known the millage would have been on the August ballot instead of on the May primary. "If we waited until the August election, there was a good possibility we wouldn't have time to collect the tax during the next fiscal year"

Greenstein commented that the special

The fate of Canton's first class of police reserves will be decided tonight (Thursday) by the board of directors of the Michigan Police Reserve Training Council. The action follows a series of incidents that led to the publication of a letter in three area newspapers by Supervisor Robert Greenstein explaining that Canton's reserves will receive only 100 hours of training at the reserve academy. That letter, which appeared several weeks ago, came at the prompting of Albert Stewart, executive director of the re-

According to Stewart, letters in several newspapers written by Canton reservists answering criticisms of the force indicated the reserves would be getting 150 hours of training at the academy. A newsletter sent out with the water bills indicated the same

"GREENSTEIN explained to us that it was not a deliberate misrepresentation of the facts, and that what was intended was that the reserves will get additional training outside of the academy adding up to 150 additional hours.'

When Stewart met with Greenstein, the supervisor was presented with a letter which said the Canton reserves would face expulsion from the school if the clarification was not made publicly in print. According to Stewart, that letter was not forwarded to the school's advisory board when it was agreed that Greenstein would make the correction.

"I think he has met what we asked of him," Stewart said, "but I don't know how the other board members feel. Stewart added, however, that he doubted the Canton reserves would be expelled.

WHILE STEWART said he thought Greenstein had clarified the matter concerning number of hours training, he had some legal questions as to the scope of the reserves, power.

Answering a letter sent to him by Gene Daley, a candidate for trustee running against Greenstein's slate, and also a lieutenant in the sheriff's department, Stewart said, "the training provided does not qualify the reserve or auxiliary officer to perform the police functions except in the accompaniment of full-time police officers.

"Based on the opinion of the attorney general of the state of Michigan, reserve and auxiliary officers have peace officer power and authority only while on duty and functioning under the supervision of full-time police personnel.

Professional cops to join reserves

A group of certified police officers will join Canton's reserve police force next month, when members of the voluntary agency are scheduled to begin their law enforcement tasks. Canton officials, originally against the use of professional policemen on the reserve force, have now changed their stance to welcome residents who earn their livings as police officers. According to Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein, officials' fears over the use of professional policemen on the force revolved around fears of the officers' ability to shed their certified police powers while working with the reserve agency.

But, after talking to certified officers during the last six months, Greenstein, township Treasurer Carl Parsell and reserve force coordinator Carl Silver agreed their fears were unjustified.

"WE WERE worried that the certified policeman would go out and still be a regular cop," Greenstein explained. "But, after talking to many regular police officers, we were all assured that they'd have no difficulty adjusting."

According to Greenstein, the certified officers will guide and supervise the other

"We'll have men certified by the state with the experience to guide and supervise our regular reserves. I think they will add confidence in the minds of the citizens. Ultimately, they will certainly add greater professionalism to the force. Greenstein eventually hopes to add 10 or 15 certified police officers to the present reserve force of 30, scheduled to graduate next week from the Michigan Police Reserve Training Council. Ideally, the supervisor says, one certified police officer would ride with an uncertified volunteer in each reserve car.

SO FAR, Canton officials have accepted three certified officers into the reserve force, but, Greenstein says, many other policemen who live in Canton have applied. Policeman Al McKewen is the most recent addition to the force. If union agrees, Miller to open on time

Miller Elementary will begin the next semester in its year-round schedule on time Monday, provided an agreement is reached this week with the teachers'

The Plymouth Board of Education voted 7-0 Monday night to allow a full program for pupils at Miller completing their current 1975-76 school year

The vote became unanimous after the board learned that to offer the full program would require temporary contracts for only two teachers, instead of nearly six, which was the previous information given the board.

To offer a full program to pupils finishing up the 1975-76 school year, the district must first negotiate a special agreement with the Plymouth Education Association on the two teachers. The agreement basically would allow for a special contract for the two instructors to be employed at Miller only until the September millage elec-

If the millage fails, the two would be laid off and Miller would receive the same budget reductions which would be made for all elementaries in the district. If the millage passes, the two would be offered permanent contracts, as would music, art, physical education and humanities specialists throughout the district.

The school board's labor attorney. Charles Fine, has strongly recommended against any temporary agreements to facilitate a full program at Miller until September unless the PEA agrees.

The board's motion Monday was to offer a full program, beginning July 19, providing the PEA signs a letter of intent to approve the special arrangement. If the union balks, and agreement isn't reached this week, then Miller would begin its next track Monday, with cuts in effect, unless the board were to call a special meeting to take alternative action.

THE DECISION to allow a full program at Miller until September was a deviation from Budget E-the list of cuts which would be made if the miltage failed in

The rationale of the board was that Miller pupils in the same school year as those from other schools closing in June should not be penalized by the millage defeat. To maintain equity, the board decided that cuts would be effected at Miller until at least the September millage election.

Trustee George Lawton argued that, in making cuts totalling $2.6 million, the board should avoid any reductions which would affect educational programs which take effect before the second millage vote. Lawton said this category included the Miller program, fall athletics, and the expense of dual scheduling to leave open the opportunity of offering course electives at

When asked about the PEA's stance on a special agreement for two teachers at Miller. Supt. John M. Hoben said the union leadership is willing to cooperate, but was not yet in a position to offer any guaranthe high schools in case the millage is ap-

Hoben added that labor law, and advice of legal counsel, precludes the district from retaining the three teachers at Miller who had taught there last year. The two teachers hired on a temporary basis until Semtember, he added, will be called on the basis of seniority from the list of pinkslipped teachers.

By opening Miller July 19 with a full program, the district is facing a cost liability of about $28,000, Hoben told the board.

AFTER SOME discussion of other budget ramifications, Lawton made a motion supported by Marcia Borowski to allow a full program for Miller through the summer, to allow for football this fall, and to pay the expense of running dual class schedules for the high schools through the computer so a full day of classes could be offered in case the millage passes. McClendon said he could support the full program for Miller, as only two teachers were involved instead of six, but was opposed to dual scheduling because he felt the district would be faced with very serious legal liabilities. Lawton stated that the 45-15 year-round school program at Miller was imposed on parents by the district, and it would be unfair to penalize those pupils with cuts because of the timing of the June millage defeat. He also argued that he believes the community wants an opportunity for unlimited course selections at the high schools. and failure to offer both would seriously hurt chances of the millage passing in Sep-

Dick Arlen supported McClendon's position, stating he favored the Miller portion of Lawton's motion but would like to vote on athletics and dual scheduling separate-

In arguing for separation of the motion, McClendon said: "I have been in favor of flexible modular scheduling at the two high schools for some time, but we cannot buy what we cannot pay for.

"We must start Miller July 19, and so must make a decision; but we can give further thought to athletics and dual sched-

Answering a question from Trustee Tom Yack, Personnel Director Norm Kee said running a full program at Miller through the summer would require two teachers.

The six teachers, he added, are those needed for a full program all year in case the second millage attempt is successful.

McClendon then made a motion to delete athletics and dual scheduling from Lawton's motion on Miller School. McClendon added it was his preference that the deleted items be dealt with at a subsequent meeting. The motion to delete athletics and dual scheduling passed 5-2, with Lawton and Ms. Borowski voting "no.

When asked for a clarification on what the remaining portion of Lawton's motion meant to the administration. Hoben said he saw it as a direction to operate Miller until Aug. 29 with a full school day and with art, music and physical education spe-

Farmers refused answer on equity question

A motion to offer "fair and equitable compensation" to Canton farmers financially harmed by the new master plan was tabled by a 4-2 vote of the township board Tuesday night.

The motion, made by James Poole and supported by Bob Myers, asked that fair and equitable compensation be made based on land value which existed prior to disclosure of the new master plan. Voting to table were Bob Greenstein, Carl Parsell, John Flodin and Jerry Cheske with Brian Schwall absent.

The motion was introduced after a request by farmer Jim Ammermann that the board take a position on compensation prior to enactment of the zoning ordinance which would lock most land west of Canton Center Road into agricultural use.

The administration argued the request was premature as it shouldn't be considered until after enactment of the zoning ordinance, and that action taken now would "absolutely destroy" the master plan.

AMMERMAN TOLD the board that fair payment should be made to landowners for land value lost as a result of the master plan.

"The payment should be fair and agreeable to both sides as is done when government condemns land for public use," he argued. "Transfer of land value by zoning shouldn't be an exception to excuse government from this obligation.

"The county planning commission has stated farmers should get equity, some board members have said we will be treated with equity. We'd like the board to define equity and who's entitled to receive it. I don't think it's premature to make the request now. In fact, I think the board has the cart before the horse when it plans to adopt the zoning ordinance and afterwards contemplate how it will compensate land-

"The farmers ask that upon implementation of the plan that prompt payment be made to landowners, based on the value of the land prior to disclosure of the master plan," Ammerman concluded.

GREENSTEIN CAUTIONED the board not to take such action now because the legalities of the issue were complex.

He referred to one dounty in the U.S. which enacted a similar plan to Canton's and had to sell a bond issue of $65 million to purchase development rights from farm-

"There are some areas involved which should be classified as hardship cases because the farmers have owned their land for many years and aren't speculators,"

"But for the land west of Ridge Road; where there is no sewer or water service, the land won't be developable for 7-10 years," he added, "and so there is no value being lost until at least seven years becauce of the master plan or zoning.

"About 90 per cent of the land west of Canton Center Road is zoned agriculatural today and has always been zoned agricultural. The township is not responsible for people's hopes and expectations. There are some areas where the township does have a responsibility, but we must adopt the zoning first to determine those areas. By then we may know if and how much federal money will be available to purchase development rights.

U.S. Rep. James O'Hara (D-Utica) has said he is trying to get the Canton master plan accepded as a pilot program for the U.S. to preserve farmland and, if this were done, federal monies would be available.

"This township has the right and duty to take action in the best interests of our citizens," Greenstein prodlaimed. "We will do our best to protect the property interests of farmers, but farmers have no legal right to any zoning. All zoning is subject to change, based on the best interests of the entire township.

"This board has a legal obligation to treat any property owner fairly and if we don't the courts can make a ruling on AMMERMAN COUNTERED that, regardless of government's intent, unfair things do occur and it would be cumbersome and time-consuming to go to court.

"We would rather be assured by formal action by this board that your intent is to compensate the land owners adequately."

Parsell asked if it was really necessary for the board to adopt a resolution that it intended to be fair to farmers, or anyone. "We can't put in any specific dollar amounts now. What kind of resolution can we adopt?"

Poole commented that the total price tag to compensate for lands "confiscated" could be $10-$12 million and could be as high as $35 million. "Let's say it were $10 million. Based on our present population, that would cost each taxpayer $5,000 if every farmer were to be compensated."

Greenstein accused Poole of making his motion only for public relations purposes. "You may make the farmers happy by making that motion but you know quite well the rest of the board won't support it. If your motion passes, what would happen is that Canton would have a lottery bigger than the state lottery. Your motion would absolutely cripple the master plan and destroy any chance Canton has of getting federal money.

"If you tell the federal government what rules it has to play by, by determining compensation now, they won't play."

After hearing heated comments from some farmers in the audience, Greenstein snapped: "We will do everything possible to treat you equitably, but I don't like being called a liar and other names. I'm not seeking any money for myself and won't receive a dollar from this plan. You are the ones who want the dollars.

"Well, you didn't 'pay' for your present zoning and you won't pay for any future zoning. If farmers, or any other landowner, sell and make a profit they don't pay the township any share of that profit. The township doesn't pay for losses just as it doesn't collect for land sale profits."

CHESKE DECLARED he intends to be fair whenever possible but that the board had to study the issue of compensation before making any decisions.

"I don't understand the legal ramifications on this, and I don't think Poole does

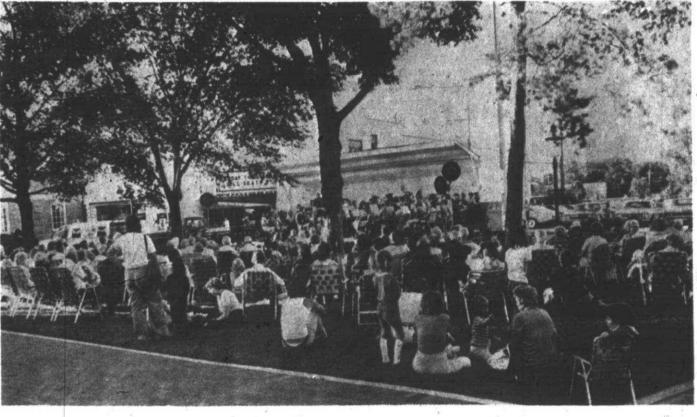

"I want to be fair to the farmers," Cheske added, "although I don't care about the speculators.

Poole argued that his motion only called for fair and equitable compensation.

Greenstein countered that the motion called for every landowner west of Canton Center Road be compensated. "We have never said we'd purchase the development rights of every single acre involved.

Parsell poted that Poole is in the real estate business and asked him what price he would consider fair valee for the total 55,000 aeres involved. "I have no idea," Poole answered.

"I understand your position on this all along-you haven't been in favor of the master plan," Parsell told Poole. "There are legal and political implications here and so I propose that we table the motion until we can get a legal opinion on the whole issue. This board is in no position to

Officers elected legally, Gray is new president

The Plymouth Board of Education elected its officers for the coming year Monday night, with no change from a similar attempt July 1.

By a voice vote for each office, the board elected Joe Gray president. E.J. McClendon vice-president, Dick Arlen treasurer, and Flossie Tonda secretary.

The election had to be repeated because the board had improperly suspended bylaws and voted by secret ballot on July 1. An attempt to elect officers July 6 was unsuccessful when George Lawton voted "no" on a motion to hold the balloting, a motion which required a unanimous vote.

THE MEETING began Monday with Supt. John M. Hoben assuming the chair to conduct election of president. An item was on the agenda to suspend bylaws and allow a secret ballot, but no one made that request, and the election was conducted by voice vote.

In the balloting for president, Gray, Arlen, McClendon and Mrs. Tonda voted for Gray while Tom Yack, Lawton and Marcia Borowski voted for Ms. Borowski. McClendon was elected vice-president 5-1-1 with Ms. Borowski voting "no" and McClendon abstaining. The vote was unanimous, 7-0, for Arlen and Mrs. Tonda. No other nominations were made for the offices of vice-president, secretary and treas-

Yack then offered an explanation of his nomination to the audience: "It is my interpretation of our election process that the board, when it elects officers, identifies individuals it feels can conduct business in such a way as to lead this board through the many obstacles it will face during the coming year. I identify myself with those members with whom I have the

"The presidency carries heavy responsibilities," Yack continued, "and the board should identify that member capable of conducting effective meetings and leading it through parliamentary pitfalls, some of which you have seen the board stumble through in the most recent past.

"We need a president who can commit hundreds of hours to meet the duties of the presidency. The job calls for a person capable of keeping this board on course. Marcia Borowski has demonstrated over the past two years that she has this ability, although I have not always agreed with what she has said or with how she has said it. But she's qualified for the office and committed to those things that are good

McCLENDON, in making nominating remarks for Gray, said it was critical to elect a president who represented the thinking of the community.

"I think it is evident that Joe Gray has the confidence of the community. Although I hear talk of the philosophy of individual board members as somehow being a factor in their qualification for president, I stress that no one person's individual philosophy shall prevail at this board.

"A good sense for the democratic process and a regard for others are among the qualifications Joe Gray has." McClendon added, concluding: "I have every confidence Joe Gray will rise to the challenge of the office."

The election Monday marks a complete change in the slate of officers from last year. The board officers who ended their tenure at the end of June were: Marda Benson, president, who was defeated in a bid for re-election in June; Ms. Borowski, vice-president; Lawton, secretary; and

No promises made —

Harold Stein, running against Robert Greenstein in the August primary as a Democrat for township supervisor, denied Tuesday he had made any promises to Jim Akhtar, president of the Wayne County Sheriff's local 502; that if elected supervisor he would contract with the sheriff if the township lost its suit that sheriff's services be provided by the county.

The Observer & Eccentric reported last week that Stein had promised Akhtar he would contract with the sheriff if the lawsuit was lost.

"All I did when I met with him was show him my position paper," the challenger for supervisor said. "It's the position I held when I started this campaign and it's the same that I hold now."

In that position statement, Stein said "I feel all necessary services for the township should be solicited on a competitive basis, especially police protection. Rather than make large capital expenditures for our own special departments, I feel these positions should be contracted for.

Homeowners deny flyer

Members of the Stonegate Civic Association Inc. deny they had anything to do with a flyer circulated in Canton this week that attacks the slate of Supervisor Robert Greenstein.

The flyer, allegedly circulated by the Stonegate Homeowners Citizens Group, purports to be an endorsement of Greenstein but alleges personal misconduct on his part and fiscal improprieties by his present administration.

In a statement read by Carol Bodenmiller, a resident in the Stonegate subdivision, members of the civic association said, "any flyers or other form of communication of a political nature which seem to come from either the Stonegate Civic Association, Inc. or Stonegate Homeowners Association are neither supported nor en-

"The opinions of the officers of either association are not representative of group endorsement. We strongly dissapprove of any abusive use of our good names to further any political interests."

Mrs. Bodenmiller said the associations are prohibited by their own bylaws from partisan politics.

"If we are to have quality police protection, I want well qualified professional people, as well as a police chief.

"Other cities have tried to maintain their own police departments, but have found it to be too expensive, and have reverted back to the Wayne Coutny Sheriff's Department for professional protection.

"I feel we should retain the sheriff's department. Stein said he couldn't make a committment for the township because he is not sueprvisor.

"I'm not elected, so I can't make any promises. All I said was that I was open to negotiations.'

Akhtar confirmed Stein's statements and said the candidate's position paper without a firm commitment to contract was sufficient for his union to endorse Stein.

Both noted, however, that even if a promise had been made to the union, it would not have been a contract with the sheriff. "People shouldn't confuse the sheriff with the union," Stein said.

Absentee ballots are now available

Applications for absentee voter ballots for the Aug. 3 primary election are now available at Plymouth City Hall, Canton Township offices and Plymouth Township

The applications will be available at all three locations until July 31 at 2 p.m. Registered voters must return their absentee ballots to their city or township clerks by the time the polls close on election day.

According to state law, registered voters may submit absentee ballots if they expect to be absent from their resident municipality on election day; if they cannot attend the polls because of tenants of their religion; if they are precinct workers at a precinct other than where they must vote; if they are 60 years of age or older; or if they are confined to jail.

Canton Clerk John Flodin says many residents of his municipality vote by absentee ballot.

"The numbers depend on the interest in the election," he said, "but a lot of people vote that way. It's particularly difficult for older people to come to vote, so many of them vote by absentee ballot."

to receive their second weaponry certifica-tion from the National Rifle Association next week. Members of the Canton Board of Trustees have already approved the addition of 25 or 30 more uncertified officers to the corps of 30, scheduled to graduate next week. The applicants will take written examinations and oral interviews as part of the screening process.

Football salvaged amidst school budget cuts

Football season will begin on schedule this fall at Plymouth Salem and will begin on time for Plymouth Canton High providing a coaching staff can be hired.

That confirmation was made by the Plymouth Board of Education Monday night when it voted $2.6 million in budget cuts which will be made if millage is denied Sept. 2.

The board voted 4-3 against a motion to eliminate all contract riders, including those for football coaches, pending a successful millage election.

The vote to deny elimination of contract riders means football teams will begin practices as normally scheduled. Voting against elimination of contract riders were Dick Arlen, Joe Gray, E.J. McClendon and Flossie Tonda.

REGARDING FOOTBALL, the only factor which could delay opening of the season is hiring of a coaching staff for Plymouth Canton High.

A few months ago the head coach, Jim Muneio, and his assistants resigned in protest of what they described as meddling in the Canton football program by Gray. Since then, two of Muneio's assistants have joined the football staff at Salem.

The Canton coaching positions have been posted for two months now and there hasn't been a single application from within the district for those jobs. In a letter to the board at the time of Muneio's resignation, the coaching staff of the district indicated they would not fill those positions if the resignations were allowed.

Supt. John M. Hoben says the district is searching for coaches from outside the district to run the Canton football program. They will be given contract riders only to coach football and won't be offered teaching contracts.'

THE VOTE to eliminate contract riders for all sports and extra-curricular activities followed a motion to do so by Tom

Yack was relying on a May 10 resolution of intent by the school board which stated all contract riders "could be" eliminated if the millage were defeated with some of the savings used to restore four reading support specialists.

Gray explained that his understanding of the May 10 resolution was that a vote of the board was required to eliminate contract riders because of the "could be" lan-

Budget E. the list of what would be cut if the millage were defeated, is the board's commitment on specific cuts. Any other cuts would have to be by amendment, with the board voting to do so.'

Answering a question from George Lawton, Hoben said the football squads must begin practice three weeks before the season starts by state law in order to play the first game. Because of this requirement, he added, football was the only fall sport which couldn't have a full schedule if the millage passed in September.

Hoben added that the administration's recommendation was to approve the budget E cuts and then reduce the total athletic budget by another 25 per cent with the savings used to restore reading support specialists. This option, if approved, would allow the football teams to begin their schedules with cuts being made for other sports in case of millage defeat. The other fall sports, which could be eliminated or reduced in case of millage defeat, include cross country, golf, basketball, tennis and swimming. Of the six fall sports, three are for boys and three for girls. The cost of running a reduced fall athletic program is estimated at $36,000.

Hoben said the administration recommended the 25 per cent cut, instead of elimination of all riders, as a compromise between the two factions on the board and 'so we don't have a generation of students completely devoid of the opportunity for any of these programs."

MARCIA BOROWSKI asked the status of cheerleaders, pompon girls, and the Water Waves which, by earlier board action, was cut out of the athletic budget with the provision that the activities would be picked up in the instructional or activities budget.

Kent Buikema, principal of Plymouth Canton, said these items have not been budgeted in the acitivities fund and that he hopes the central administration could find some place in the budget to pick them up. Buikema pointed out that Water Waves don't begin until the spring, but cheerleaders and pompon girls would start their programs in the fall.

Paul Cummings, a coach at Salem, told the board that normally football teams would begin practice Aug. 23 and that the first football game this season was scheduled for Sept. 27.

Yack suggested cancelling the first scheduled football games, if necessary, at both schools since they were non-league games and could be dropped without en-assessment approach was better for the public because each year the board would have to conduct public hearings and justify the tax levy for the coming year.

"The traditional method is to levy a tax for 10 or 20 years and it's collected for that period whether needed or not. I think it's better for residents to have a public hearing each year when they can challenge the necessity for the amount of mil-lage proposed."

ANOTHER RESIDENT asked what would happen if the actual expenses exceeded the amount of revenue that will be raised by 11/2 mills. It was explained that any shortage would be made up by a loan from the general fund. Whatever amount was borrowed from the general fund in one year would have a bearing on how much millage was levied the following year, explained Par-

Fire Chief Mel Paulun said the fire department has enough vehicles now to meet the needs of the second department for

The motion to approve the 11/2 mills was made by Parsell, supported by Clerk John Flodin, and passed 6-0 with Trustee Brian Parsell commented just before the vote that it would be a year before the station was ready to be occupied and, at that ime, the administration would be in a posiion to better determine exact operating cost for the fiscal year and would then know how much, if any, would be bor-rowed from the general fund.

dangering league commitments. Cummings said the first league game was a Salern contest on Sept. 24 which, to be held, would require that practice begin

Sept. 8. When asked what constituted a legal practice. Hoben said there would have to be an adult supervisor to oversee a practice being held for the purpose of physical conditioning and team organization.

Lawton commerted that he has always viewed athletics as an important extension of the educational process, and he was against having football penalized by being unable to start its season even with a successful millage vote.

Yack argued that practice could be held even if contract riders were eliminated because coaches could volunteer to coach without pay as was done in the last teachers' strike.

"By taking this action, we commit ourselves to a full athletic program only after we know how much money we have as a result of the September vote. The league games wouldn't be interrupted, if residents voted 'yes,' and a seems quite likely the non-league games also would be played," added Yack.

McClendon argued that Yack's motion tied the board's hand when it didn't have a need to act.

"We need a master contract yet with the teachers," he said, "and need to explore our options. I think it extremely unwise to box ourselves in now on football and Yack countered that no new information would come before the board between now and September which will have any bearing on athletics and the marching band. "By not acting now, we are impairing our millage chances.

Gray disagreed, stating that completely eliminating sports and marching band would definately hurt the district's chances of getting the millage passed.

During the meeting. Hoben interjected that it would be very difficult for the administration to ask the new Canton football coaches, being offered a contract rider only, to volunteer their services without pay pending the millage result.

The only danger to the marching band before the Sept.2 millage vote. Hoben added, was the band camp which is paid for by parents of band members. The only question would be a stipend of about $600 for the band director, he added, and possibly arrangements could be worked out to cover that. The marching band also was among those activities which were included in the contract riders which could be eliminated if the millage failed.

Yack commented that the "could be" language was constructed only because some board members were unwilling to vote on the sports and band issue and opted for another delay

"I seriously doubt if the time will ever come when we have a vote on fall athlet-

Reacting on the vote against eliminating contract riders, Ms. Borowski commented: 'We are talking about losing 40 elementary teachers, 18 special education personnel, 261/2 middle school and 23 high school classroom teachers. Just a few seconds ago, the board voted to approve the hiring of a Canton football staff-none of whom will be teachers in our district. I cannot believe you mean to do this."

McClendon countered that if he felt any brogram could be saved by elimination of athletics he would consider it, but that the $36,000 for fall sports would restore very few teachers.

"Many people may regard athletics as a larger issue than the dollar amount might make it appear to be," answered Yack. "If we are serious about priorities, now is not the time to fund athletics."

Lawton answered that "McClendon's comments are interesting, but not accurate. It would take a maximum of $20,000 to pay for dual scheduling to protect the high school programs in case the millage passes. This compares with $36,000 for the fall athletic program. I fail to see that there's not a relationship.

McClendon said spending money to run the dual schedule on the computer isn't the same as having the money to implement the schedule. "We need money and I think it's improper to spend $20,000 for a schedule that exists only on paper.

Arlen commented that $20,000 was enough to buy the services of one teacher and said he was against spending the money for dual class schedules.

TAX REDUCTION?

Wayne-Westland School District, one of the most heavily taxed districts in the state, may gain some tax relief. Supt. Timothy Dyer said the recently passed state aid bill provides benefits for high millage districts in the third year of the bill. Previously, districts received no state money for any additional millage beyond 30 mills. SCHOOL LAWSUIT

The Redford Union Board of Education Monday voted to join with other member districts of the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB) in fighting a lawsuit brought about by a Romeo teacher who claimed she was denied pregnancy disability benefits. If the schools lose, other teachers could claim benefits totaling $40 million, according to RU School Supt. Robert Juhnke.

HOUSING PLANS

The Livonia Planning Commission took action on two housing developments, one for senior citizens and one for expensive single-family houses. The housing for the elderly will be on the north side of Lyndon, west of Farmington Road, while the single-family houses will be on the south side of Six Mile, west of Newburgh, part of the $50 million Laurel Park development. The commission endorsed a rezoning plan which would eliminate a proposed 192-units for senior citizens to make room for the 25 new homes, to be in the $50,000-60,000 price

NTC ROLLS AGAIN

The Nankin Transit Commission, which provided mini-bus tranportation for senior citizens and handicapped persons in Garden City, Westland and Wayne, now includes Inkster. After suffering through the final stages of incorporation last week, the NTC is back in business this week. The mini-bus runs daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The NTC board, presently studying a survey of riders, is planning to expand the program to include possible Saturday service for NTC patrons.

CONTRACTS RATIFIED

After more than two years of negotia-tions, Canton Township Tuesday ratified union contracts with three group of township employees: DPW workers, building inspectors, and firefighters. The union contracts were the first for all three groups. According to township administrators, the lenghty bargaining was necessary because the contracts were the first for all parties OLD VET DIES

The Plymouth Board of Education has set a Sept. 2 election date for new operating millage, after a request for 4.75 additional mills was defeated by one vote June 14. To balance its budget, the board has approved cuts of some $21/2 million, although it voted against making the starting of football season contingent upon a successfull millage vote. The $21/2 million cuts include the layoffs of some 83 teachers.

CANTON APPROVES 1.5-MILL LEVY

Canton Township board members Tuesday approved a 1.5-mill fire levy for construction, staffing and and equipping of a second township fire station. The levy was set by the board after township voters approved a special fire assessment district May 18. The station is expected to be completed sometime next year.

Your vote can count in 1 of 3 ways

The ballot for the Aug. 3 primary election is going to be different than any previously seen in Michigan.

The difference is that voters will be offered an opportunity to vote for a minor political party in order to allow that party's candidates to appear on the general election ballot. This alternative has never been on the primary ballot before. It is the direct result of a fear of election officials that voting machines could not handle the 10 or more parties which might be on the Novernber ballot. Voting machines cannot handle more than nine parties, if 10 were approved it would force a return to paper

Minor parties will qualify for the presidential election ballot if they receive a vote totalling more than 0.3 per cent of the total number of ballots cast in the primary

VOTERS WILL have the choice of voting in one-and only one-section of a threesectioned ballot: 1) Democratic Party candidates; 2) Republican Party candidates; and 3) a listing of minor parties which qualified for the ballot under a law signed by Gov. William Milliken in April this

The wording of the third section, either in a row or a column, will be: "I desire that the party indicated below shall have its name, party vignette and candidates listed on the next general election ballot."

Minor parties appearing on the Oakland County ballot, for example, are: Socialist Worker, Socialist Labor, Communist Labor, Libertarian and U.S. Labor.

Democrats and Republicans were 'grandfathered" on the November ballot because of their previous capture of the vote, as are the Human Rights and American Independent parties. The American Independent Party (AIP) has split into two parties, each with a separate slate, and the court will have to decide which party is going to be considered the AIP.

The important thing to remember about the primary ballot is that a voter may only vote in one party, as in all primary elections in Michigan. Voters may not vote for candidates in either the Democratic or Republican parties and vote to see one of the minor parties on the November ballot. Voting in more than one section of the ballot will invalidate the ballot.

County schools schedule hearing

A public hearing on the $3.9 million 1976-77 budget of the Wayne County Intermediate School District will be at 9:30 a.m., July 21 at the Education Center, 33500 Van Born, Wayne.

The county school budget already has been approved by the county's 36 local school districts.

The five-member county board of education will aslo hold its organizational meeting on that date

The members of the intermediate district boad are: Ralph Johnson, president; Helen Field, vice-presidetn; Carl Morris secretary; Geraldine Joyner, treasurer; and the Rev. Darneau Stewart, trustee. Members are elected by a vote of the local

The intermediate school district serves as a liaison agent between the state department of education and local school districts and is charged with generating and auditing a variety of school reports. It also provides a large number of consultative services and professional assistance to local districts. It also coordinates all special eucation services in the county the city, had requested permission to run plant sewage through the city's disposal plant. On April 22, 1937, the city commission agreed to the request.

In 1938, the city commission passed a dance ordinance setting up "certain regulations for the public good." The law was prompted by a petition circulated by residents who objected to dances held in the Grange Hall and in the Jewell and Blaich

In the 1940-41 fiscal year, the commission adopted a trailer ordinance.

"It became apparent, due to the larger employment in defense industries in the vicinity of Plymouth," Elliott wrote, "that the property owner would lose a considerable valuation of his property by having vacant lots throughout the city used for trailer purposes. Wisely, the commission passed the ordinance before the influx."

One of the local defense plants Elliott may have had in mind was put up on Eckles Road during Lend-Lease days by the British government before the United States entered World War II. It was the machine gun factory run by Kelsey-Hayes in the building later occupied by Evans Products Company.

DURING THE 1941-41 period, about 60 years after Pasteur discovered his method of preventing fermentation in milk, the milk ordinance in Plymouth was amended making it mandatory that milk sold within the city be pasteurized.

In June 1942, when the nation was involved in World War II, and the Detroit area was a prime producer of war material, the Plymouth City Commission decided to be on the safe side by adopting a black-out ordinance.

At about that time, the commission approved Elliott's recommendation, "as a war economy," to have all residential rubbish picked up at the curb, rather than making it necessary for city employees to make pick-ups at the rear of homes. Like temporary taxes, this temporary war-time policy inevitably became a permanent

Kalamazoo Assessing his tenure here, a resident who worked for him says Elliott impressed her as being an efficient city manager. Another citizen, who felt that Ruth Whipple in or out of office wielded too much power at city hall, says Elliott was unduly influenced by Plymouth's first woman

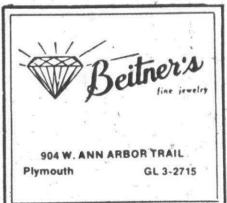

The man who succeeded Elliott as city manager of Plymouth was certainly not under Mrs. Whipple's or anyone else's thumb, and he had a turbulent three years

Harold Cheek, who assumed the position in June 1946, had been city manager of Big Stone Gap, Va. He arrived here, however. after two year's service in the U.S. Navy from which he was discharged as a lieutenant, senior grade. Generally conceded to be an efficient administrator, even by his opponents. Cheek had difficulty establishing rapport with a large part of the population. Many resented what one characterized as Cheek's "my-word-is-law" attitude, perhaps picked up during his service in the Navy. Cheek left Plymouth in September 1949 after precipitating a major controversy which led to the recall of four of the five members of the city comission. The struggle between the pro-Cheek and anti-Cheek forces in Plymouth during the summer of 1949 is described in detail in chapter eight of my book on the history of 995-0087 or 995-8625.

More on Bird

William J. Johns, Manager

Like many other former baseball writers who have covered the national pastime in the press boxes across the country for more years than they care to remember. The Stroller has been letting his memory run rampant to learn if there ever was anything to match the astounding career of

The Bird. Ever since the Tigers turned him loose on the mound a few months ago. Mark Fridych has become the idol of the thousands of fans from one ocean to the other. And folks are quick to comment "There never has been anything like him

This is high praise for a youngster who has yet to finish a half season in the major leagues and it may be a long time before we have another rookie honored with the starting assignment in the all-star game.

The Stroller

He has become a real character-the young player who has writers trailing him day and night as he spends his time in the

OVER THE YEARS there have ben many other characters in the game and many of them are still the subject of wild tales when the old time writers get together, especially at all-star game or World Series time.

Long before he ever visited any of the nation's major league ball parks. The Stroller had heard of the legendary "Rube" Wadeell of the old Philadelphia Athletics managed by the venerable Connie Mack.

He was a fire buff and no matter what city he happened to be in he would visit the fire halls. Many are the times that he rode to the ball park on a fire truck. He is the pitcher who called in the outfielders, telling them they weren't needed, and then retired the side

One of the best stories about Waddell. however, is the tale they tell of Ossie Schreck, his old battery and room mate. One year when it came time to sign his contract, Ossie balked. He told Mack that the finanacial terms were OK, but there was one thing he wanted in the contract.

"If you are going to make me room with Waddell again," he said to the Athletics owner, "I want a clause in his contract forbidding him to eat crackers in bed." And

THERE HAVE BEEN many others through the years-Casey Stengel, for instance when he carried a pigeon under his cap when he went to the plate to take his turn at bat

And no one fractured the English language more than Yogie Berra, now a coach with the Yankees. Introduced to Emil DeVallera, the Brooklyn man who later became a high official in Ireland, Yogi remarked, "It could happen only in America."

Yogi also is the charcter who, explaining that Detroit was on daylight savings time, said, "It gets late, here early."

The character that comes closest to matching The Bird within The Stroller's memory is the late, lamented Paul "Dizzy" Trout, the rookie from Sandcut, Ind., who took the Tiger camp by storm in

On being introduced to Mickey Cochraneby The Stroller, he calmly said, "Mike, your worries are over. I'll take care of the pitching for you.

Being hounded by the writers of his time, Dizzy told all who would listen that his red bandana pitch would carry him

After begging Cochrane to get a starting assignment in the spring exhibition season, he finally got his wish. The first thing he did was bet Coachrane the opposition wouldn't get a hit off him. And they didn't. He went along for four games in which he pitched three innings in each one, without allowing a hit. He was the talk of the

Then came an Easter Sunday in Daytona Beach, Fla., where the Tigers met the St. Louis Cardinals in a replay of the 1934 World Series. It was a day never to be for-

Dizzy, now a cocky kid by this time, walked passed the Cards dugout and asked, "How do you hillbillies feel with shoes on"" That was the wrong thing to say to the Gas House Gang as the Cards were known in those days.

So when Dizzy took the mound in the fourth inning. The Cards started to ride him. They shouted at him, "Is that the best you have." They left the dugout and screamed at him with the result that Dizzy got mad, walked six batters and was taken from the game.

Arriving back at the bench he shouted at Coachrane, within ear shot of the writers. What in hell did you take me out for" I walked nine batters one time down at Sandcut and we won the game.

But he never was the same charcater on the field after that.

Im the mid-'40s he became one of the Tigers best hurlers but that spring of 1937 down at Lakeland in the training camp and the Grapefruit League, he was a fabulous character.

But, unlike The Bird, he never got to start an all star game.

Biologists discover how Vitamin C helps fish

Scientists have known for yuear that fish use viatmin C. for proper bone growth and to increase their tolerance to invironemental stresses. Yet they never knew exactly how this occurred. Now they do, and the discovery may help biologists in combating the efffects of pollution on fish, the Department of the Interior an-

Biologists at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Fish Pesticide Laboratory in Columbia, Mo., first learned of the mechanism while studying catfish that were affected by the insecticide toxaphene. This pesticide is widely used on cotton crops in the South where channel catfish are also commercially raised.

About six years ago, biolgists notices that the channel catish grown on fish farms in that area were developing a curvature of the spine that, in extreme cases, broke the fish's back and stunted growth as much as one-third. Last year, Fish and Wildlife scientists linked this syndrome to toxaphene residues in the water. Concentrations as low as 37 parts per trillion in the water were found to have serious long-term effects on catfish. Earlier this year, they documented for the first time the specific role vitamin C plays in this process, and the implications of fish in the wild, the discovery of its importance in fish metabolism has been quite beneficial to the multi-million dollar fish farming business of the South, where up to five per cent of pond-cultured catfish showed the symptom. Vitamin C is now included in many commercially prepared fish foods, and its inclusion in the diet of farmed catfish is helping to eliminate the "broken back syndrome.

However, the discovery of vitamin C's importance in fish metabolism is equally beneficial to biologists studying the chronic effects of pollutants. Biologists believe that the mechanism which fish use in detoxifying toxaphene is the same used to neutralize the effects of other pollutants,

The Bigger Better

Government is the exception that proves the rule. Ron Trowbridge knows that.

Government is growing by leaps and bounds and the cost of it all eats away at our paycheck. Somewhere it has to end. We should tighten the eligibility requirements for welfare so only the truly needy get the benefits. We can reduce the size of government and reduce the cost to the taxpayer. Now that's better.

Open meetings bill stalls in the state senate until fall

The Michigan Senate will wait until September to take up an open meetings bill passed earlier by the house and amended slightly in a conference committee.

On the closing day of the session, the senate rejected the conference report 19-8. with 20 votes needed for passage.

Supporting it were Senators Daniel Cooper (D-Oak Park) and William Faust (D-Westland). Opposed were Senators Donald Bishop (R-Rochester) and Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth). Absent was Sen. Bill S. Huffman (D-Madison Heights).

"I CAN'T TELL whether it was a good or bad bill," said Pursell.

'I served on 13 conference commmittees, and I was absolutely exhausted. I was upset at Dave (Plawecki of Dearborn Heights) for trying to ram it through on the last day of the session."

The vote came during the final hours before the legislature began its summer recess, according to a Democratic statement, and was conducted with a number of senators absent.

State Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland), chairman of the house towns and counties committee which drafted the bill, said conferees from the senate and the house worked three hours the night before ad-

The conference report made a number of amendments, mostly in technical language, without damaging the strong "openness" of the bill, said Brown.

ONE CHANGE senators insisted on, said Brown, was to remove the section calling for automatic removal from office of any public official convicted of intentionally violating the act twice within the same term.

This stiff penalty was replaced by a provision making a second violation a high misdemeanor with a possible fine or jail

Most vocal critics. Brown said, were the Michigan Municipal League, an organization of cities and villages; some community colleges, and public hospitals

The house version of the bill requires public officials to conduct nearly all business at public meetings, making exceptions for early real estate negotiations and such matters as personnel and student conduct problems.

"Any public official who could not live and operate within the provisions of this act, as it passed the house, or even more so as it emerged from conference committee, should not be allowed to hold public office and serve the people of this state," Brown said, adding:

"Most persons running for office promise the voters that theywill open things up and stay in touch with the people when elected or appointed. Yet, when the time came for these same people to cast their voices for strong legislation to protect the public from secret meetings and closeddoor dealings, they choose to run to their lobbyists and fight the bill every step of seeking the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate, said he still wants Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin to return campaign contributions he received from his license plate branch managers.

Elsman said fast week he would continue with a court suit to force return of money already collected. Austin, front runner in the senate primary, announced earlier last week he would end the kick-back system and collect no further funds by that method, but he would not return past

Elsman, who has never held public office, had been running fourth in the polls. which showed him getting one per cent of the Aug. 3 vote to U.S. Rep. Donald Riegle (D-Flint) and 11 for U.S. Rep. James O'Hara (D-Utica)

Elsman said he "felt like David slaying Goliath" after Austin announced he would end the system. And Elsman indicated he expected an improved showing in the

He said he began criticizing Austin on the issue as far back as May 13. Major attention was given the issue in recent weeks by a Detroit daily newspaper and some outstate newspapers.

THE SECRETARY of state has maintained that the contributions received from branch managers were voluntary. Austin has collected some $50,000 through the system since April. Since 1971, he and other Democrats have garnered more than $700,000 in contributions.

For decades, branch managers have been appointed by the secretary of state's office and have been solicited for contribu-

After Austin's announcement that the system would end, Elsman said, "It appears he will benefit from it this year. He's keeping all the money he's collected Elsman charged contributions may still be channeled to the Democratic Party and that Austin would benefit if he wins the party's senate nomination.

ANOTHER SENATE hopeful. Riegle, also criticized Austin for not returning past contributions.

January by asking Michigan television stations not to broadcast public service commercials on license plates that ended with an appearance by Austin. Most stations immediately cut the film footage on Austin. The other Democratic senate hopeful

Canton Clerk John Fledin says many residents of his municipality vote by absentee ballot.

"The numbers depend on the interest in the election," he said, "but a lot of people vote that way. It's particularly difficult for older people to come to vote, so many of them vote by absentee ballot.'

Hickory stick best medicine

New Savings Certificates

This is an open letter to all school boards, parents, and teachers of Michigan. If the wilful, deliberate, destructive students were made to pay for their destrucliveness, or the parents were made to pay, and a physical punishment inflicted upon student from teacher and parent, the cost of overall maintenance would drop and need of more school tax would drop.

It is my firm conviction that the oldfashioned hickory stick from teacher and parent is the best medicine of curative powers, of cooperation of student, teacher, parent and school board, and of school tax. True enough, we just might need more schoolrooms, but not so elaborate.

With respect to all teachers, parents and school boards.

Ghosts of presidents haunt White House

THE STATE OF THE PROPERTY OF T

It is true that the office of president is a difficult one. Those who occupy that office, and their loved ones, are under constant pressure. Perhaps a disbeliever might atribute the large number of ghosts seen by presidents and their families to their minds' playing tricks on them as a result of those pressures.

I, however, feel these reports are too numerous and too consistent to be so easily

It is well-known that Lincoln was quite clairvoyant. According to the Encyclopedia Brittanica, "He was occasionally subject to hours of deep silence and introspection that approached the condition of a trance.'

Shortly before his assassination, he dreamed of his own death and viewed his own body laying in state in the White

Lincoln's ghost has been reportedly seen in the White House by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, Eleanor Roosevelt, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Theordore Roosevelt, Herbert Hoover, Winston Churchill, Harry S. Truman and numerous servants and secretaries.

THE GHOST of Abigail Ad., wife of the second president, has frequently been seen doing her laundry in the East Room, especially during the Taft administration.

When the second Mrs. Woodrow Wilson ordered gardeners to remove Dolly Madison's rose garden, Dolly herself appeared and, in no uncertain terms, forbade them to unearth a single rose bush. Today, that rose garden remains where it has been since Mrs. Madison direted its planting.

While in the While House. President Garfield saw and talked with his father's ANDREW JACKSON is said to haunt the Rose Room. Through the years, many White House staff members have reported strange experiences in that room.

Animal ghosts also have been reportedin the house and on the grounds, FDR's little Scottie dog Fala, among others.

As yet, I have not heard of anyone seeing the ghost of Roosevelt or Kennedy, our two most recent presidents to die in office. However, times being what they are, present White House inhabitants have enough to haunt them without seeing ghosts. And they would probably think twice about reporting it if they did see one, especially in an election year.

Padden wants 'more equitable' juries

Michigan courts may have the largest and most representative crop of juror prospects in this century if a downriver lawmaker is successful with legislation he recently introduced in the state house. Rep. Jeffrey D. Padden (D-Wyandotte) recently introduced a five-bill package for reform of the state jury system. The jury reform package has bipartisan sponsorship from 21 representatives, eight of whom are members of the judiciary committee.

"With citizens' inconvenience eliminated," Padden maintains, "it is possible to get on with needed improvements for more equitable practices

Padden's proposals would allow for generous deferrals, as is customary in the recently streamlined courts of Wayne County, but the only conditions which would disqualify a person from jury service are those which are currently in effect.

An area still concerning Padden is the number of existing exemptions which narrow the pool of juiror prospects.

"We have found that most jury pools are heavily weighted with women. This is because certain exempted occupation fields are male-dominated."

Digitals' accuracy depends on sand

Digital watches are among the most sophisticated of consumer products, but just a few grains of sand are responsible for their accuracy, explains Lawrence Giacoletto, professor of electrical engineering and systems science at Michigan State Uni-

Digital watches depend on silicon, the stuff of beach sand, for the quartz crystals and miniature transistors that keep the new time pieces running with an accuracy as fine as five to 10 seconds per month.

The solid-state digital watch, Giacoletto says, is basically an American invention, with much of the technology and development capital coming from our computer

"Other countries simply have not been able to keep pace with American solid state and integrated circuit expertise," Giacoletto says

WITH DIGITAL WATCH prices falling from about $125 to $20 in 15 months. there's not much incentive for new manufacturers to get into production.

Horology, the science of time and time pieces, took a giant step about 10 years ago when engineers built small quartz crystals that could vibrate about 32,900 times per second.

To mark the passing of each second, a miniature transistorized circuit containing as many as 2,000 transistors simply counts the vibrations. For each 32,000 vibrations, the circuit sends a signal to a display device that records the time.

BUT DIGITAL watches have their prob-

They are bulky because of the electric battery required to keep the crystal vibrating and the display device visible.

The battery has to be replaced about once each year at a cost of a few dollars. which is not necessary with a conventional wrist watch.

Visibility of the display is another problem. Digital watch displays come in two basic varieties. Each has its own peculiar-

THE LIGHT-EMITTING diode (LED) display is even easy to see in the dark, but it drains a relatively large amount of current from the battery. LED watch circuits are designed to shut off power to the LED until a button is pushed. But if both hands are full you'll have to use your nose or go without the correct time.

To get around push buttons, some manufacturers use liquid crystals to produce digital displays. Liquid crystal displays have a lower current drain, so they can be left operating all the time. They do not give off their own light and can't be seen in the dark the way an LED display can.

WHAT'S IN store for the watch-wearer of the future?

"The quartz crystal, integrated circuit, digital watch is here to stay," Giacoletto says. "and the problems with digital watches may be solved in some novel ways."

Engineers at some companies are studying the idea of a solar-powered watch that could use sunlight or artificial light to charge a permanent battery.

The possibility of using the daily fluctuations in barometric pressure to operate a miniature electric generator is also under editorial opinion

What are 'the basics,' football or reading?

There is a lot of truth to comments made during the recent school board campaign that it's time to reprioritize goals of the Plymouth Community School District. With action taken Monday night, the current board has made it painfully clear that the present list of priorities has little bearing on the running of the district.

An item which is especially open to question is the call for a return to "the basics." Candidates, plus trustees who weren't up for election, have mouthed platitudes that the district must "get back to the basics." In cutting $2.6 million from the budget, this school of thought maintained, the board must preserve the basics and make whatever cuts are necessary elsewhere.

ALTHOUGH A CLEAR definition of basics has never been given, residents assumed that the basics included the 3 Rs-reading, 'riting, and

The board vote Monday raises doubt about its commitment to reading as one of the "basics" which ought to be preserved. The board refused to make a decision to allow varsity athletics in the fall only if a successful millage vote is obtained in September. Football will begin regardless of the millage outcome.

The intent of the motion, offered by Tom Yack, was basically an announcement that athletics aren't any more important than reading, libraries, music programs or 83 teaching positions to be eliminated. But the motion failed with no votes cast by Richard Arlen, Joe Gray, E.J. McClendon and Flossie Tonda.

Another consequence of Monday's meeting is that at both high schools, students will be limited to five courses per semester regardless of the outcome of the September millage vote. With seven hours in the school day, and only five courses allowed, basic 'rithmetic suggests the school day may have to be shortened. And so 3,000 high school students will suffer regardless of the millage outcome.

THE ARGUMENT made against eliminating fall sports is that the athletic budget already has been reduced and elimination would save only $36,000-a paltry sum compared to the $2.6 million which must be cut.

But Yack's motion would have allowed a complete fall schedule of varsity athletics-if voters approve the millage Sept. 2. There would have been no athletic cuts imposed-if voters say yes

What the board has said is that there will be football this fall-even if voters say no on Sept. 2.

The choice was to offer athletics if voters want to pay the cost. Four members of the board didn't want to place athletics' fate on the wishes of the electorate.

THE SET OF priorities of the district now on paper gives the basics a higher rating than athletics. Based on the decision Monday, the board should redraw those priorities.

The community has a right to know what's really important to the school board in designing an educational program with limited funds.

Is reading to be taught only in the classroom with a ratio of 35-1? If Johnny has reading problems and his lone teacher can't solve them, are we ready to deny him an opportunity for remedial help? Can children increase their reading abilities by spending less time in libraries? Is football more important than reading?

What is meant by the call for a "return to the basics?" Apparently the assumption that "the basics" somehow equates to the 3 Rs is incorrect. If so, the board should declare what is meant.

Say hello to punk politics

The politics of Canton have been and probably, will continue to be as sticky and tacky as those of any community in the Detroit Metropolitan area.

In the last few years, we have come to expect spirited debate, personal insults, and even some mudslinging.

But at least one township political faction has reached the depths of despair-circulating a campaign flyer that is filled with partial truths, cheap shots and bilge.

Unfortunately we don't know what group is behind it. We are referring to a flyer allegedly circulated by the "Stonegate Homeowners Citizens

No such organization exists, and the Stonegate Civic Association Inc., the subdivision's real homeowners' association has denied it has anything to do with the circular. By its own by-laws it is nonpolitical.

IT IS ONE thing to campaign against a candidate and take him to task over his stand on the issues. That is fine.

It is another thing to sling mud-but it is absolutely galling to sling mud and then not have the guts to stand behind it. But to sign someone else's name to a flyer so repugnant is ultimate cow-

The flyer, at first an apparent endorsement of Supervisor Robert Greenstein's slate, is, in fact, an attack on his stands and his private life.

Not only is it filled with partial truths and lies, but it takes personal cheap shots at the supervisor, alleging among other things sexual relations between the supervisor and another member

There are enough issues in Canton on which to decide an election.

It just seems that those who are not bright enough to discern the issues must resort to this sort of vulgar, medieval campaign tactic.

We condemn it and the people behind it-if only they had the fortitude to stand up and sign their

RICHARD GOLD

Stadium good setting for youth, rock concert wondered why 60,000 persons would want to jam themselves into a football stadium to hear a balding, over-30-year-old rock musician.

My kids wanted to attend, but they are used to the over-amplification of sound which they call music these days, and a rock concert is sort of an informal gathering of their peer group.

Out of curiosity, both as to the presentation of the music and to see if all the weird tales of what youngsters do at concerts are true, I spent Sunday night at Pontiac Stadium listening to Elton

1 came away from the experience with a very good feeling.

ONE PROBLEM of rock concerts has been their lack of control.

In order to justify the performer's enormous fees, large crowds have to be attracted. In most cases, this has been done outdoors in large spaces, which allowed everyone to do what they wanted to do, whether illegal or legal, socially acceptable or not.

A rock concert in a place like Pontiac Stadium is a setting where most of the bad things can be eliminated. It is big enough to accommodate a large crowd, but it is small enough to be policed, thereby eliminating antisocial acts.

Acoustically, the stadium is better because it has walls. You can hear the music better than at art outdoor performance.

And believe it or not, even for the older generation, the rock beat gets into one's system and makes one want to get up and dance.

PONTIAC STADIUM has improved tremendously since the football season. We had no trouble getting into the parking lot, and while we waited awhile after the performance, we had no trouble getting out of the lot.

There has been some concern as to whether the new domed stadium in Pontiac would be a white elephant, providing a home for Bill Ford's Detroit Lions but being a drag on the taxpayers of Pontiac because of inability to use the structure in non-football seasons.

A rock concert has to be a tremendous surprise for the promoters of the stadium. When you can get 64,800 people at $10 a head on a Sunday night, it is bound to help the cash flow in paying off the stadium bonds.

BUT MORE IMPORTANT than that, teenagers get into trouble when they are bored and have nothing to do. To create a place and an atmosphere that is totally theirs, yet where their youthful exuberance can be controlled, can help to solve many social problems of the area.

I was impressed by what happened at the stadium Sunday night. I even have to admit that the spirit of the occasion led me to be one of the people doing the bumps up in the press box. Those awful things they say about rock concerts just didn't happen, and I am sure there is a future for rock concerts in our area.

BACK TO THE DRAWING BOARD "THE KEY TO THIS PROBLEM IS THINK REGIONALLY

The Bills should listen: Suburbs don't hate transit

Bill Milliken and Bill Ryan don't listen so good. Gov. Milliken, reflecting on the House of Representatives' massive defeat of a rapid transit bill embodying his and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young's ideas, said the legislators had "no excuse." He called the bill's defeat "extremely un-

Rep. Ryan (D-Detroit), former House speaker and still the most powerful man there, deplored a "societal attitude that anything that helps a city called Detroit is wrong.

The house smashed Ryan's version of the rapid transit bill 28-65, a margin that should have humiliated the man. The vote was taken after a full morning of debate, and as I said, Milliken and Ryan didn't listen so good.

As governor, Milliken had other things to do and couldn't attend. Ryan was there but didn't pay much attention to what opponents of his bill were saying or he would never have made that

THERE ARE, to be sure, some outstate legislators who hate Detroit, just as there are some Detroit politicians who think everything west of Novi Road is tree stumps. But that group can't put together 65 votes in the House-no way.

Had Milliken and Ryan been listening, they would have heard Rep. Ruth McNamee (R-Birmingham) say she "would like to support it." She wasn't bothered that Detroit proper would be first to benefit from the system "because you have to start somewhere."

And you would have heard her say that the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) board shouldn't be restructured until Detroit's bus system is merged with SEMTA's—a change Detroit has been resisting. They would have heard Rep. Sandy Brotherton (R-Farmington) say he supports the concept of mass transit but that the proposed taxes were "unfair and unequitable to Oakland County." He's right, when you consider the hard facts: Oakland would pay 50 per cent more per capita than the average in Ryan's bill. Western Wayne County would probably get nicked almost as hard but not get a transit line until sometime after the year

Those are just samples of thoughtful suburban Republicans and Democrats who want to see the southeast Michigan region get a rapid transit system but who couldn't stomach the gerrymandering of the SEMTA board, the lack of good faith shown by Detroit's administration and the weird effects of some of the proposed tax systems. The plain truth is that Ryan's bill is as full of rusty

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE between helping out the metropolitan area with a transit system and doing Mayor Young a big, fat political favor. Milliken and Ryan need to learn the difference.

Ryan's bill confused the two. To be against Ryan's version of a transit bill is not the same as being against rapid transit. Milliken and Ryan were unfair in their criticism of the whopping maiority that buried Ryan's bill.

So it's back to the drawing boards in Lansing. In September the lawmakers will try again. This time, the powers that be should listen to those thoughtful, regionally minded legislators who are trying to help the cause.

Those 65 votes against Ryan's fishhooks didn't come from tree stumps.

Convention at peace

Dems' biggest problems: Getting tickets

NEW YORK-It was like Muzak wafting soft Mozart over a happy, noisy, rock party.

While Walter Cronkite and the other national TV pundits tried desperately to find ways to fill holes in the action at this, the most peaceful (or boring, if you prefer) Democratic National Convention in my memory, life went on down on the floor and in the Michigan delegation with all its rococco human frenzy.

One Michigan delegate read a book on Victorian literature while Ohio's Sen. John Glenn tried unsuccessfully to get the attention of the crowd during his keynote speech.

Other delegates speculated on where the good parties might be, while endless welcoming speeches rolled on. And delegates, press and hangers-on wandered, caucused, gossiped, laughed. chatted and formed and reformed into small knots in the narrow aisles of Madison Square Gar-

The Michigan delegation met in caucus Monday morning to consider the only big fight of the convention: Whether the rules for the 1980 convention would give women equal representation in delegates. The discussion went on for exactly 81/2 minutes of friendly, restrained comment.

Then the delegation broke into a 35-minute argument about how guest passes for friends and relatives were to be drawn. "At last we've got something to fight about!" grinned Troy's Morley Winograd, state party chairman.

THE ONLY time the delegates were stirred was Texas Rep. Barbara Jordan's keynote

As she said, "Our nation's greatest danger is that we will cease to be one nation and become instead a collection of interest groups, each seeking to fulfill private dreams, each seeking to satisfy its private wants," the entire convention broke into applause.

Otherwise, Michigan's delegates seemed content. They gossiped about who Jimmy Carter's choice for vice-president might be, but nobody could imagine a floor fight over the selection. Redford Tewnship's Frank Bosak Jr. eemplained about the prices ($2 for two eggs, 90 cents for a pack of cigarettes in the Garden). Livonia Mayor Ed McNamara went sight-seeing with his wife, Lucille. Orchard Lake's Gene Kuthy stood happily in the aisles as speeches washed around THE SECURITY system, much better than the tight-fisted failures of the past, caused much comment and a certain amount of jockeying for top place in the pecking order. In order to get to various places in Madison Square Garden, you have to get daily a four-byseven inch colored cardboard pass which you string around your neck with an elastic band.

Delegates, the kings of the roost, got blue cards Monday, which enabled them to go virtually anywhere. A few super-delegates (suburban Congressman James O'Hara, running for the U.S. Senate in Michigan, was one) got red passes designating them convention officers.

Minor press types get yellow "perimeter" cards, enabling them to get into the Garden but virtually no place else. Daily or weekly newspaper reporters receive orange or rose cards, which allow them into the press work area but not on the floor.

Most sought after, other than a delegate's card, is the violet floor pass, which gets the bearer almost anywhere.

Guards are everywhere, but they are courteous and, by and large, helpful. At the 1968 Chicago convention, I watched a television reporter being beaten up on the floor by security guards. Monday night in New York, I saw a guard literally leading a lost reporter by the hand into his place in the press section, while the rest of his colleagues dozed.

It's that kind of a convention.

Wayne County Cooperative Extension Services has provided consumers with helpful hints since 1916 when Congress awarded Michigan State University a land grant in order to extend the teaching and knowledge of the university to the people.

This was the birth of the county cooperative extension services. There are 72 in Michigan and 3100 in the United States.

Why is Akhtar so bitter?

In reply to Richard Gold's article about the Canton reserve police, I can't figure out why another policeman, Jim Akhtar, is so bitter toward other law-abiding citizens' trying to protect people and property.

I can't refer to ourselves as police because this would infuriate him more, since he refers to us as untrained cowboys and says we should communicate with our garbage trucks when we get calls.

Our class has attended the Michigan Police Reserve Training Council since Jan. 3. Many of us have gone without supper to get to class, as we are only allowed three absences in 30 weeks of training and we are not allowed to be tardy.

In all, we will have a minimum of 130 hours training, and many have had much more training then this.

One question I would like to ask is, "How many hours training do the sheriff's deputies get?

Each reserve has not only given his time voluntarily for training but will be giving his time, for free, to protect people and property against crime

One is safety-safety for those of course using the trails under the tension wires, but more important in my estimation, for the residentswhose property abuts the

These people will be burdened with the reality of litter, vandalism and crime which is already in existence in other areas near public parks.

The second and probably most important reason, the astronomical cost to the taxpayers for preparing the corridor. The preparation would involve cleaning out trees, weeds, etc. Fences would have to be installed around each electrical tower, already estimated at the cost of about $160 per tower.

There is also the cost of asphalt or cement for a trail, and presumably some kind of protective barrier so that residents will not have to worry about people who are using the corridor to trespass on their private property.

I am urging the taxpayers of Canton to sympathize with the residents along the Edison corridor who have so much at stake.

Detroit must re-attract suburbanites

Just think: an entertainment center with an outdoor amphitheater, sports facilities, marina dinner clubs and perhaps a casino; 3,000 units of low- and high-rise housing; an industrial park, a shady park and promenade and all of it stretching out along Detroit's riverfront.

No, the vision isn't Rennaissance Center. It's a major redevelopment proposal for the city's riverfront area just to the east of the Renaissance Center designed by graduate students in the University of Michigan's urban planning program.

Prof. Gerald Crane, chairman of the program, says if Detroit is to survive as a city, it must find ways to re-attract residents and industries now fleeing to the sub-

Kelley files suit against 6 agencies

Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley announced that he has filed suit to collect over $500,000 in unpaid taxes from six of the nation's largest insurance companies.

Michigan law requires all out-of-state insurers to pay a tax on the premiums collected from their customers. In addition, a 1965 attorney general's opinion requires the companies to include the cost of insurance benefits to company employees in the gross premiums.

Kelley's suit, filed in Ingham County Circuit Court, charged that none of the six company employees in the gross premium companies had included their employees' benefits since he issued that opinion 11 years ago. He also asked the court to collect interest and penalties.

The listed firms include: Guardian Life Insurance Co., Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., Prudential Insurance Co., Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Equitable Life Assurance Co., and New York Life Insur-

Comment of the state of the sta

A new hand is at Madonna's helm

Sr. Francilene was graduated just 11 years ago

It took Sister Mary Francilene just 11 years to move from graduate of Madonna College to president of Madonna College. And her school had seen many changes during those years-1965 to 1976. But there are constants, even on rapidlygrowing college campuses, and a dozen of the Felician Sisters who were her teachers when she was an undergraduate still are members of the Madonna faculty.

"It makes for a very supportive situation," said the young administrator, already taking over the reins of Madonna's leadership although her presidency begins officially Aug. 15.

"There's no difficulty at all." The reason, Sister Francilene firmly believes, is the feeling of support and help that she has always found among the Felician Sisters, the order that founded and operates the Livonia school.

"Among members of our order there is a deep dedication to all our apostolates, our service-oriented careers," she said We here at Madonna regard higher education as a most important apostolate, and we all support each other in advancing it."

SISTER FRANCILENE has been "interning" for two years in the Madonna top administration, so it was no surprise when she was appointed by Mother Mary Columbine when Sister Mary Danatha announced her resignation as president in May. But, lookiack, she confesses to be a rather amazed music teacher when she first received word that she would be serving the college as administrative assistant and then as academic dean, with a view to preparation for the school's top position. "It's a lot different than music." she said. "but I consider it a great honor and challenge.

HER PREPARATION, in addition to working closely with Sister Danatha and Sister Mary Lauriana, vice-president for planning and development, has included earning a doctorated in educational administration from Wayne State University. She has completed the course work and hopes to have her dissertation done by Sep-

The dissertation is on guidelines and principles for budgeting and decision-making in the area of student services in a small college.

Sister Mary Francilene is the young president of growing Madonna College.

"It's a study," Sister Francillene explained, "of what it costs to give student services like admission and registration, financial aid, housing, health, placement and counseling.

Research involved studying 47 small colleges, some larger than Madonna and some of lesser size. She is sure her study will be of value as Madonna continues the growth and development that advanced a long distance under the administration of Sister Danatha and Sister Lauriana, who took office just as Sister Francilene was graduating.

LOOKING AHEAD to her own administration, she sees a continued strong emphasis on Madonna's Christian and Catholic heritage, along with a new push toward integrating it into the programs that have brought the college its changed profile.

Then she speaks with enthusiasm of ongoing development of a couple of those programs in particular-training people to work with the elderly and "integrating" the Madonna campus to include those in the deaf studies curriculum.

The campus, the new president said, has an "exciting difference with its increasing community orientation."

"But I'm happy that the liberal arts concept never has been sacrificed as a basic philosophy," she said.

"In this age of secularism, we do ask our students to maintain a Christian philosophy, and a religious study course is a requirement in all degree programs."

But while strengthening the liberal arts concept, a new thrust at Madonna is to redirect it.

"Members of the humanities faculty are going throuh an intensive study with the object the devising of a series of classes that are closely linked with specific study fields." Sister Francilene said.

By way of example, she mentioned the possibility of an ethics course-covering history and practical sutdy of justice-in the criminal justice curriculum that is one of the main reasons for the big increase in Madonna's male enrollment.

EDUCATION FOR the deaf and special training for persons who work with the elderly are two programs in which Sister Francilene already has been closely involved in her role as administrative assist-akmd academic de Both are marked for expansion.

The former program is made possible through a $85,000 grant from the Fund for Improvement of Post-secondary Education (FIPSE), and Sister Francilene hopes to see it lead to a bringing together of the deaf, the hearing impaired and the hearing on the Madonna campus.

"What that means is that all the hearing persons on campus the staff, faculty and students- will have the opportunity to take classes in manual communication, or hand-signing," she said. "Tuition will be waived for those classes.

"We're saying we feel that if you bring a new group of people onto the campus you need to be able to communicate with

"This has to be a learning process on both sides, and I believe Madonna will be the first campus in the country to be taking this integrating step."

religious life. The oldest of six children in an east side Detroit family, young Patricia Van de Vyver decided early to become a nun. As a teen-ager, she made her decision to join the Felician Sisters "because we are governed by the rule of St. Francis." 'My parents both are members of the third order of St. Francis, a discipline for lay persons," she said, "and living by that rule was what I wanted."

She entered the order and took as her religious name a form of Francis as she was beginning her studies at Madonna.

Her home during student days was the Felician Motherhouse close to the campus. Not only those who had taken their vows lived there then; it was before the campus dormitories had been built.

Sister Francilene made music education and piano her major studies, and after graduation taught first in elementary schools in the Detroit area and then at Ladywood High School

And after a few years it was back to Madonna, to train for leadership.

and programs they have individually discovered in their search for help for their children "I always wondered what happened when you donated to Easter Seals and found an Easter Seal day camp for handicapped children that is marvellous," said Mrs. Driesbach.

Using AASK resources, both families discovered an innovative orthotist (bracemaker) Jim Tyo, who designed plastic and aluminum leg braces for Jimmy that weigh about two pounds instead of the traditional 12 pounds. "He can even wear tennis shoes with these braces," said Mrs. Driesbach.

One of the big problems for physically handicapped children is the lack of toys. especially those that allow them to be outdoors with some mobility "Most equipment is over the $80 mark in price, and we'd like to find bikes or equipment that would allow the children to be as mobile as possible within their Tmits; explained Mrs. Driesbach.

Agencies are also trying to reduce fees on harder-to-place children, but both mothers emphasize that you don't have to be wealthy to adopt "special kids" Pro-ving you can afford to feed another child and arrange for care is sufficient.

SINCE BOTH Danny Prince and Jimmy Driesbach are polio victims, their parents are anxious to encourage parents to have their children immunized. "There could be another polio epidemic, because aren't aware of the threat."

Having adopted four children Mrs. Driesbach believes she can alleviate some of the worries of prospective adoptive par-

Proposed health care act viewed of 'highest priority'

Wilbur J. Cohen, dean of The University of Michigan School of Education, has lent strong support to the proposed Maternal and Child Health Care Act, calling it "the highest priority in health and medical care in the nation.

Moreover, the former U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said he is convinced that the program can be implemented efficiently and economically, at a very small net cost to the taxpayer and to the economy in general.

The bill, H.R. 12937, would establish a program of comprehensive health care for all children up to 18 years of age and maternity benefits for all women.

"Under the proposed bill, part of the cost is levied as a percentage of payroll," Cohen told the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the U.S. House of Rep-

"While Blue Cross-Blue Shield premiums are deducted on a flat rate basis, this legislation provides that employee contributions would vary according to salary level. The new plan is more progressive and less burdensome for the lower-paid worker."

HE ESTIMATED the federal government's contributions of approximately $2.2 billion toward children's medical care (in fiscal year 1974) and the additional $1.4 billion from state and local governments could be held at approximately the existing level, except for price increases.

"One of the key benefits," Cohen said, 'lies in the possibility of reducing poverty through an effective family planning program as part of a comprehensive maternal and child health care plan.

"About two-thirds of all the children living in poverty in the United States are in families of more than four persons," he explained. "Family planning services should be available to every person who wishes them, and reimbursement for such services should be included under the pro-

COHEN EXPRESSED strong support for the inclusion of dental services for children and for reimbursement for specified drugs. But he recommended that a separate effective date be set for implementing those phases of the program.

"I favor a comprehensive national health plan covering everyone in the nation," Cohen told the committee. "However, to inplemen such a colossal undertaking all at once might well tax the man-American enterprise. he maternal and child Hence, I favor health care proposal as a constructive and cost-effective starting point

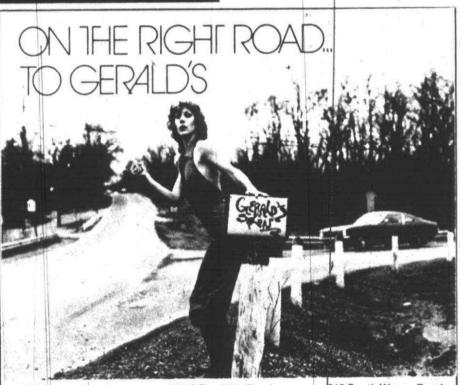

"Recent cost increases in medical services have been lowest in the child age population," he noted "and that age group is not likely to increase substantially in the immediate years thead, I believe that the financing of maternal and child health care costs through a public system is likely to be more equitable than it is at pre-

"The possibility of overutilization, abuse, fraud and errors is probably least among providers and patients of maternal and child care," he added.

"THERE ARE PRESENTLY about 20 million children in the age group up to six years, about 22 million aged 6 to 12, and about 25 million up to age 18. Adding the three million births per year and their three million mothers, this legislation would affect 73 hilliion persons.'

Quoting from the Congressional findings, Cohen concluded, 'adequate medical care for pregnant women and children has the greatest potential for improving the health status of the general population.

Alcohol forum prepares program

3277 Franklin Road Franklin, MI 48025

To raise the awareness of women of Michigan concerning alcohol, the Michigan Forum on Women and Alcohol is pre-paring a series of video tape cassettes showing women in alcoholic situations. An announcem ent will be made when the tapes are ready to be shown to church groups and civid clubs around the state. One of the tages, "Helpers," concerns a woman with a drinking problem. She is encouraged by the people in her life, her best friend, her doctor, a policeman, a clergyman, even her husband to ignore the problem instead of dealing with it.

All of these people are not willing to confront her with her own potential alcoholism, but are unintentionally driving her deeper into an alcoholic state of mind

In a tape called "Loneliness," the everyday inconveniences and distractions of a housewife are how as possibly contributing to her potential alcololism.

The third tape deals with the potential fe-male alcoholic in a work situation. It highlights the trap people may fall into on the tapes are not designed to give an

"If you don't have anything yet to write about this week, how about my rummage sale. I sure could use the publicity?"

I figured the query showed a certain amount of business acumen and promotional knowledge on the part of our youngest, so I agreed to take the matter under consideration, even while pointing out that a classified ad in another section of the paper was going to do her a lot more good.

With everyone else otherwise employed, she seems to have inherited our family's share of the kind of small business that makes surburbia an entertaining place to live in the summer.

WE'VE JOINED in this phenomenon of the '70s a few times, and if the cleanup hasn't been tremendous from a financial point of view, at least it's done wonders for our closets and drawers.

We don't have garage sales because our garage is full of cars, but we call it a front lawn sale, add some kitchen goodies to the attic oldies and hope for good weather. We don't always get it

Several years ago, when our oldest decided on a sale to help support her goingto-college habit, I remember she made several batches of cookies and candy (which sold quite well) and several dashes for plastic sheets to cover the used items

STILL, BUSINESS was good enough to try a couple of repeats, and this year we decided was a good one for the closet-

We unearthed a few long-lost treasures in the process and piled up the things to sell. We almost included a few things that were supposed to go into the laundry.

We delegated to our youngest the job of sorting and marking with the promise that that job also carried with it the profits from the sale.

After considerable prodding, many roles of tape and boxes of pins and a lot of decision-making, she came up with a tableful of saleable (?) items ready to move out onto the lawn-if it doesn't rain.

By next week, she should have enough pocket money for her stay at music camp.

Aged, disabled get legal protection

A new Michigan law is aimed at curbing abuse or exploitation of aged, blind and disabled persons now have legal under-

Public Act 136, given immediate effect by the Legislature and signed by Governor Milliken, gives the state's Department of Social Services responsibility to "provide protective services for adults who are in danger of exploitation, abandonment, cruelty or abuse by children, guardians, custodians or other

DSS officials said that although abuse and neglect is generally linked in the public mind with children, thousands of adults may face similar danger.

Now that the needed legislation has been passed, the Department of Social Services will begin drafting rules and procedures for carrying out the legal mandate. Those rules must answer a number of questions about what legal services will be needed to translate hew law into reality, and how those services may be obtained.

As a first step toward meeting these and other issues, the Michigan Department of Social Services is asking each county Social Services office to look at community resources and determine what particular approaches will work and what community agencies should be involved.

In addition, DSS Basic Adult Services workers around the state will be introduced to the new law during a series of two-day training sessions.

Hire septic tank cleaner with care

A polite but firm "no" is your best answer if someone comes to your door offering septic tank cleaning services.

Jim Boyd, Michigan State University Extension housing specialist, said that doorto-door solicitation for septic tank pumping is occuring in some Michigan counties. Reputable, licensed deaners do not solicit business in this way, he stated, and the Michigan Septic Tank Association has declared door-to-door solicitation an unethical practice.

Before hiring a cleaner to pump a septic tank, be sure he has a Department of Health number and check with dhe local health department to be sure the operator is legitimate.

Beware of a septic tank cleaner who charges by the pound removed, Boid warned. Charging by the pound would involve a weight certificate with before and after weights determined by a state-certified scale. Check with your local health department to see how charges should be fig-

Don't wait until cold weather to have your septic tank cleaned, Boyd concluded. The material is usually removed from the tank and plowed into the ground. If the ground is frozen, arrangements must be made with a municipal sewage plant to take the material.

Muskegon dares pro or novice

The sounds of spinning logs floating downstream to mill towns which once dominated life on the Muskegon River have been replaced by the hushed tones of canoes gliding on the calm waters.

The Muskegon (West Michigan's greatest logging river during the 1800s) is an outstanding recreational facility, providing Michigan residents with many pleasurable hours of canoeing, fishing and wildlife

Although human activity prevents the Muskegon from being a true wilderness river, several species of birds and animals are commonly sighted, and the solitude which graces this safe, shallow stream combine to make it an excellent choice for a canoe trip.

A PICNIC basket and camera are musts for short ventures, while overnight supplies are essential for longer journeys.

According to the Automobile Club of Michigan, outdoor enthusiasts will find 10 liveries, 15-campgrounds and such fish as salmon, rainbow, walleye, pike and bass in the river. Naturalists will be entertained by an abundance of whitetail deer, beaver, muskrat, blue heron and other rare and beautiful birds.

The river's two-foot average depth provides an excellent testing ground for novice canoeists while its 227-mile-long length is a hearty challenge for experienced paddlers. Auto Club advises allotting up to 14 days for canoeing its length.

MEANDERING THROUGH portions of northern and central lower Michigan, the Muskegon begins at Houghton Lake and passes through seven west Michigan counties before emptying into Lake Muskegon.

Naturalists will find wildlife and dense forests through the upper stretches of the river from Houghton Lake to M-115. The stream is free flowing through this area with only two portage points near its begin-

Dead Stream Swamp-one of the state's most extensive swamp areas-is situated between Houghton Lake and the Reedsburg Dam and features 30 square miles of unspoiled wilderness.

Fewer than 15 miles downstream at the Missaukee-Roscommon county line, a department of natural resources (DNR) deer farm may be visited. Situated about 200 yards from the river, the farm is a 160acre facility with deer roaming free and in

CANOEING REMAINS relatively easy until paddlers enter the Big Rapids area and encounter the first of four portage points in a 25-mile section to Croton Dam. Chief attraction here is the Paris fish ponds, north of Big Rapids, where about 600 rainbow and brown trout are contained in four ponds. Canoing in the Rogers, Hardy and Croton Dam areas is the most difficult part of the Muskegon, with portage points varying from 100 yards to nearly one-quarter mile. The backwaters of these dams are more like a lake than a free-flowing stream.

The final stretch of river from Croton Dam to Muskegon Lake is swifter since the river narrows once again, and good salmon runs occur in both.

MAJOR ATTRACTIONS include Fremont's Windmill Village and Oldtown, which are highlighted by beautiful gardens and the historic Ensley Tower Windmill.

At Muskegon, the Charles Hackley House, belonging to the city's first great benefactor, has been restored and has many artifacts of this dnetime lumber baron on display. Heritage Village is being developed near downtown Muskegon with an 1880-vintage firehouse open to the pub-

Canoe rentals along the river run $8 and up for a one-day trip, with varying rates for longer trips. Most liveries will place cars at various points on the river and pick up canoes.

Liveries along the river include: Happy River, near Houghtón Lake, campground included; White Birch, near Merritt, campground; Old Log, near Marion, campground; Curiosity, near Evart; Sport-N-Life, near Paris fish ponds, adjacent campground; Sawmill, near Big Rapids; Derks and Wisner, both near Newaygo; Vic's, near Grant, and Bert's, near Muskegon.

Private campgrounds without canoe liveries include: Sportsman, at Hardy Dam: Chinook, between Grant and Fremont; Brower, near Rogers Dam; Muskegon River, near Evart; Croton Township and Shaw Municipal, both near Newaygo; Riverside, near Evart, and two small canoe camps on the river, southeast of

Campers also will find Newaygo State Park located on the river with three miles of frontage on Hardy Dam Pond, and Muskegon State Park situated on Muskegon

The 110-mile-long Pine River originates in Mecosta County and meanders through five counties before merging with the Chip-pewa River south of Midland. The Pine is shallow and weedy in summer.

According to the Automobile Club of Michigan, four to seven days are required to canoe the river from Pine Lake to Midland. Those planning a trip on the western half must bring their own craft or rent one at Howard City. There are two cance liveries at Midland.

Canoeists can launch their craft at Pine Lake or at Milbrook. Other launch sites are at Elm Hall and at the Midland Na-

State closes 196 ramp at Freedom Road

The 196 westbound on-ramp from Freedom Road in Farmington is now barricaded and removal of the ramp is scheduled as soon as possible. It is located just east of Farmington Road and Nine Mile.

Motorists normally using this access are advised by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation to continue on Freedom for approximately two miles and enter westbound 196 at the Grand River Road interchange at 10 Mile. Removal of the ramp was requested by the Farmington City Council May 17.

State Highway and Transportation Director John P. Woodford said planning and engineering studies are underway to deter-mine future traffic needs in the area, including possible construction of an entirely new interchange at Farmington Road.

That section of 196 will be replaced by the new I-96/I-275 freeway presently under construction along Haggerty.

Washington arrives

On April 13, 1776, Gen. George Washington arrived in New York where the bulk of the Continental forces involved in the siege of Boston had settled.

the entire downtown area of Alma has been designated as an historic site by state and national bicentennial committees.

For a two-day canoe trip on the Pine, start at the dam in St. Louis and parallel Riverside Drive and Pine River Road into Midland. That scenic, 26-mile stretch is equally enjoyable for motorists.

A trip down the 75-mile Chippewa takes three to five days.

The main stream of the Chippewa is canoeable from the Winchester Dam at the Martiny Lake Wildlife Flooding Area, where the Chippewa merges with the Pine and the Tittabawassee.

A four- to five-hour trip can be made from Martiny Lake to Barryton. Day-long trips can be taken from Barryton to Lake Isabella, from Mount Pleasant west to Lake Isabella, or from Mount Pleasant to Midland.

Mount Pleasant's Island Park is the site of the Isabella County Bicentennial Fair Aug. 22-28.

LIKE THE PINE, the Chippewa River has plenty of open and wooded country, but no campgrounds are available west of

The north branch of the Chippewa River is navigable from the launch point at Evergreen Road in northeast Mecosta County to the main stream at Barryton.

The north branch has two dams to portage, the Winchester Dam at Martiny Lake and at Barryton, where the north and main branches merge. The main stream also has two dams, at Coldwater Lake and at Mount Pleasant.

The Tittabawassee River offers real variety, from the northwoods flavor of its northern extremities in Gladwin County, to the resort atmosphere of Secord, Wixom and Sanford lakes or the flat farmlands approaching Midland and that city's industri-al array. Midland has a boat launch site at Emerson Park,

Canoe trips on the Tittabawassee range from a scenic 30 miles, which takes one to two days, to a 130-mile, four- to seven-day journey extending from the river's northern reaches at Secord Lake to the city of Midland and on to Saginaw, where the Tittabawassee merges with the Saginaw

THE 30-MILE trip is easy and scenic canoeing, starting at Second Lake, with only short portages around Secord, Smallwood and McKimmey dams. There are several campgrounds along the way, including Se-cord Lake State Forest Campground and Wildwood State Forest Campground, both on the backwaters of the Tittabawassee.

For those canoeing the river's length, there are also dams at Edenville and the Dow Plant at Midland are the Wixom Marina, east of Gladwin, and D&G Rental at Sanford.

Canoe liveries serving the Tittabawassee

As a bicentennial project, the city of Midland has restored the Bradley mansion, home of a pioneer family, and added a carriage house. They are along the Tittabawasse at Cook Street.

The City of Saginaw and property owners along the Tittabawassee have launched a bicentennial project to turn the riverbanks into a scenic greenbelt.

Nightmares mar dream cruise

By ERIC PETERS

What would it be like to sail the blue waters of the Caribbean, spend Christmas in San Juan and drop anchor off Trinidad during the celebrated carnival?

It is the kind of adventure we read and dream about. It is what 18-year-old Mark Tomlinson did for nine months following his graduation from high school last June.

"An idea tossed around about sailing to the Caribbean," said Mark. My dad was reading Yachting magazine and said all of a sudden, 'Why don't you take Aquarius down there?' I thought about it. I brushed up on my sailing and navigation. I made plans for a trip. I had to get a crew: a neighbor, a school ohum and a guy from New York we got from an ad in Yacht-

Many factors worked against the success of such a venture. Two of the crew had never sailed before that summer. Tomlinson had to teach them what he knew while he learned celestial navigation and chart reading so he could adequately captain the 36-foot boat.

Space was another problem. In so small a boat, four men are continually in one another's way. "It's difficult living on a boat," explained Tomlinson. "Nothing is convenient. You have to go out of your way to do everything. It takes a certain kind of person to live like that and enjoy it."

AIMING AT a late August departure, "We spent the summer preparing the boat, beefing it up for ocean cruising. It took a lot of planning, stocking with food and outfitting for the ocean. We stopped work to make final preparation, installed a refrigerator and left on Aug. 22 from Grosse Ile "Yacht Club," said Tomlinson.

The boat crossed Lake Erie, went through the Welland Canal to Lake Ontario, east to Oswego, south on the canal system to the Hudson River and emerged at New York Harbor. "It was really something to sailing under the Statue of Liberty," said the captain.

Stopping to visit friends at Stamford, Conn., and at Mystic Sea Port, Conn., which is "a living museum with an old New England style boatyard." they continued along their way to Cape May off Dela-

"The wind was blowing to the nose at 30 knots and we lost our engine power a quarter of a mile off shore. We were tossing around in nine-foot seas with no control over the boat. Luckily one of the mates finally got the diesel going. It was pretty harried.

"Then, motoring up the Delaware River, the motor conked out again at a time when a freighter was approaching and a huge barge was coming up stern. We hoisted sail and just got out of the way of the barge by 50 feet."

SOMEWHERE in the Chesapeake Canal, the crewman from New York jumped ship for free passage on another boat. The trio of friends took their time, stopped at Annapolis, Yorktown and Norfolk. There they began the Virginia Cut, a series of canals in the intercoastal waterway to avoid the bad weather of Cape Hatteras.

Cape Hatteras is notorious for its treacherous sailing conditions, which are caused by the northward turning of the Gulf Stream and the opposing winds coming out of the north. The choppy water is difficult for sailing vessels.

The crew of Aquarius made it to Florida through Dismal Swamp, the Aligator River and a series of cuts, canals and sounds. Stopping along the route to visit a friend in Beaufort, the three took jobs with the railroad to replenish depleted funds. For three weeks, they worked on a trestle in "the hardest work I've ever done in my life," said Tomlinson.

Tomlinson planned the trek across 1,200 miles of sea to St. Thomas as the next leg of the journey. He phoned home to tell his parents about the plan and, suddenly, his father showed up "on business" and talked him out of it. So the trio continued south to Florida where the sailors put in at Cocoa

Beach, Fla., for Thanksgiving dinner with Mark's aunt.

BY THE TIME the Aquarius reached West Palm Beach, it had developed engine problems and had to be repaired before the 70-mile crossing to Grand Bahama Island. The repairs, low finances and a desire to return home caused Tomlinson's two friends to reconsider the situation. They decided to leave for Southfield.

Tomlinson made necessary repairs himself and found a new crew: A sailor called George and his two female companions. The Aquarius finally departed for the Bahamas, checked through customs, sailed north of the Eleuthera Islands to avoid the Trade Winds which only blow south of the 23d parallel, north latitude.

"We planned to go east 500 miles, then south 500 miles. We left at the start of a norther, a wind which clocks around and blows from different directions. It never blew under 30 knots all the time out for two-and-a-half days and we made incredible time.

"Then we ran into the doldrums and had engine trouble and water pump trouble. But I worked up another pump and we powered 50 miles until we began to pick up wind. The Trade Winds came out of the east and it took us only another two days to get to Puerto Rico. We got into San Juan on Christmas night. It was just incredible traveling, we made 1.000 in 6½ days."

IT WAS CLEAR sailing to St. Thomas where Mark met his parents for a two-week get-together. The two girls on the Aquarius flew off to Caracas. Venezuela for their own travels.

After spending the holidays sailing with their son, the Tomlinsons left again on Jan. 9. It was Mark's only attack of homesickness. He knew he would not see them again for several months.

From that point on Mark and George

From that point on, Mark, and George sailed through the network of islands catching tuna and barracuda and stopping off-the islands to explore. Climbing a 1.000-foot peak on Van Dyke Island, they could see all the Virgin Islands and plotted their course for the next week.

After many more stops and difficulties with engine and weather, the duo arrived in Trinidad to await George's grl friend's return from Venezuela. The three had happened along right at carnival time, an island version of the Mardi Gras, and an occasion not to be missed. During the celebrating, their boat was almost stolen, but the the attempt was thwarted.

Picking their way through the Grenadines, the crew acquired a new member at Martinique. He was an Englishman taking five years to travel around the worlds, "The Grenadines are quiet, primitive islands. They're mountainous, lush, green. Green as you've never seen green before," Tomlinson described.

BUT TIME WAS getting short, so the Aquarius shot on up to Puerto Rico once again and west along the Exuma Bank, a 12-foot-shallow stretch of water, to Nassau. The following day was a 200-mile day, according to the log entry. The boat arrived in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the next afternoon.

Waiting to greet him there was Mark's girlfriend, who had flown down on her Easter Vacation from high school. Yet, despite the homecoming. Tomlinson had to work on up the coast to get the boat home. Returning the way he had come, through the Dismal Swamp, the engine blew off its exhaust.

Aquarius limped along, building up diesel fumes in the hold until Tomlinson found someone along the way who could weld the exhaust pipe again. At Annapolis his crew departed and Tomlinson worked on the boat for a week, putting it into shape for sale by a broker. He returned home in time to take his girl to her senior prom.

What will the sailor do now that the adventure is over? He said he would work for the summer (the trip cost him about $5,000) and then, perhaps, go to Oakland University in the fall. If the Aquarius doesn't sell, he will bring her back in late summer.

New roles expected of Marian Librarian

By CORINNE ABATT

Remember the story about the kid who asked an expert a question and remarked he found out more than he ever wanted to know?

Librarians, those experts at cataloguing and disseminating massive amounts of materials, have begun to realize they sometimes have the same effect on inquisitive individuals.

James Lyons of the St. Louis, Mo. Public Library commented on this problem at a seminar he led recently at the Farmington Community Library.

The seminar was one of 25 held throughout the country to explain a pilot program. Learners' Advisory Service. The programs were sponsored by the College Entrance Examination Board of New York. The St. Louis library was one of 10 in the pilot project.

Lyons said that a person seeking information from the library to take an exam on the history of western civilization "could be just overwhelmed by the information available."

THE THREE-YEAR pilot program was designed to develop public libraries into community learning centers, train librarians to help adults design and implement their own independent learning projects, and eventually become test centers for college credit.

This examination for college credit is called CLEP, College Level Equivalency Program. It is possible to pick up sufficient credits for a degree through CLEP exams. There is no pass or fail on the CLEP exams, each college has a minimum score they will accept for granting credit.

The Learners' Advisory Service trains li-score they will accept for granting credit.

The Learners' Advisory Service trains librarians to interview a CLEP exam candidate, assess his background knowledge of the subject, decide what learning methods are best suited to his needs and suggest appropriate materials.

This is part of what Lyons called. "a new, in depth relationship between the librarian and the adult, self-directed learner."

James Michael of the St. Louis library staff told the 30-librarians at the seminar,

"We feel the librarian who points out all the books on Western Civilization to a person and then says 'you choose' is coping out.

"That way, the librarian doesn't have to to deal with the individual. Libraries don't grant college credits, but we have the resources to help people prepare for the exams."

In the seminar discussions, the self-di-

In the seminar discussions, the self-directed, adult learner was the prime concern.

For adults involved in non-traditional learning. Michael said, "Librarians must be involved as planners as well as reactors."

CLEP exams are one of many alternatives open to adult learners. There is a vast number of options available—night or daytime classes, credit and courses, television courses—the list is long and frequently baffling.

"In our area," Lyons said, "there are more than 1,000 non-credit courses available. There are so many alternatives people are overwhelmed. The libraries must become centers for learning the alternatives—places where people can become aware of the options. If the public doesn't know the options, then they are not free to

Michael added, "It may be the only thing you librarians will do is give options—but, that's all right."

Lyons admitted most high school counselors are unfamiliar with all options for students, but counselors can, at least, pass some on to the students.

"The adult, self-directed learner has no counselor at all," he said.

Honored by commission

The Rev. Kurt T. Lohrmann, retired pastor of St. Stephen Lutheran Church of Detroit and now a Westland resident, was honored recently by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners after giving the invocation to begin a board meeting. Mr. Lohrmann received a resolution honoring his years of service.

Rev. Beumler leaving

His Livonia ministry stretched to 19 years

By MARGARET MILLER

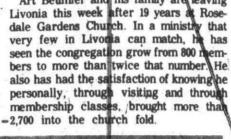

When the Rev. Arthur K. Beumler was a young pastor with just a couple of years service at Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church, he told his new boss he'd really like to stick around Livonia until his second child had been born.

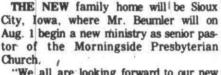

"I was an assistant pastor," he explained, "and the understanding in the Presbyterian ministry always has been that an assistant resigns when a new senior pastor is

Dr. Richard Dunkelberger said yes indeed he'd be glad to have a seasoned assistant as he began his new ministry.

"But I certainly didn't think I'd be staying this long," Rev. Beumler laughed 17 years later.

Livonia this week after 19 years at Rose-dale Gardens Church. In a ministry that very few in Livonia can match, he has seen the congregation grow from 800 nembers to more than twice that number He also has had the satisfaction of knowing he

"We all are looking forward to our new situation," said the clergyman, who served Rosedale as interim senior pastor for 20 months after Dr. Dunkelberger left and before the calling of the Rev. Robert Taylor. During that time, he added, he realized he was interested in the work of directing a full church program.

He said also he is extremely pleased to be going to Morningside because, the varis contacts that preceded the calling, included not only the pastor's wife, Joyce, but also their sons, Jim, Stephen and John. he boys were able to visits the schools and even enroll for fall, as well as making some friends in the young people's he added. groups "So they too can feel really good about the move, even though Livonia is the only home they've ever known." MR. BRUMLER said he is especially interested in directing a total church program because "I've always thought of the church's whole role as a cradle-to-grave thing." "It should offer programs so people can plug in according to their varied needs," he went on 'So when people are growing or perhaps hurting-the church takes on added importance in their lives.

"The gospel has a lot to say about ministering to specific needs that people have. I guess the problems for church leaders come in deciding how to translate the gospel to meet the problem at hand."

The son of a country doctor, Art Beum-ler was introduced early to the idea of a life of service, but he decided he really didn't want to be as much on call as his father had been at all hours of day and

"But I found that being a minister is quite similar." he said.

"I guess caring about people is my main concern, and I've learned that bringing them together is one of my main strengths.

AT ROSEDALE Gardens, he started as assistant in the area of Christian education and later, working with Dr. Dunkelberger, became an associate pastor in a role that' might be described as "the congregation's

"I did a large portion of the calling, both on members who needed some kind of help and on prospective members," he said.

"I also did the pre-marital counseling, no matter which of us performed the ceremony, and I've also done some marriage counseling."

He has served two terms as president of the Livonia Ministerial Association, and also was an early member of the Livonia Citizens' Committee for Better Human Re-

That group he found "a good cross-section of people in this area with liberal

"I guess I'm a little left of center." he said, describing his own political philosophy. 'I haven't carried a picket sign, though. I realize that is sometimes necessary, but it can get in the way of tor's work.

"I think pastors who do this sometimes don't realize where the people are in their thinking. I guess I perfer trying to persuade through one-to-one relationships."

THE ROSEDALE congregation bade farewell with a reception last week for the Beumler family. Mrs. Beumler has been an active member of the United Presbyterian Women's group, which recently gave her a special award. She also has served for a time as editor.

of the church newspaper, "The Epistle." The three boys have been active in the church's youth and music programs, and all have been associated with musical organizations in the Livonia Schools. Jim recently graduated from Franklin High School with high honors and plans to attend Wooster College in Ohio. Stephen is entering high school and John the ninth

THE BEUMLER installation in the fall will be the first big event in the 75th anniversary celebration of Morningside

He has asked Dr. Dunkleberger, now director of Presbyterian Village in Redford Township, to preach his installation sermon, and Dorothy Hopp, an elder at Rosedale and chairman of the church's evangelism committee, will be part of the administrative commission for installation

World hunger needs our attention

Americans are eating more and eeding it less, according to a Michigan State University professor who believes this country should be doing more to help feed the rest of the world.

Georg Borgstrom, giving the keynote address at the recent annual meeting of the American Home Economics Association in Minneapolis, said Americans could consame about a third of their present intake and still be in good health.

He told the 8,000 members attending that Americans have an average intake of 72 grams (more than 21/2 ounces) of animal protein per person per day, which is three times more than any nutritionist would consider needed.

"But people do not eat 'averages," and we have on the one hand detrimental excess intakes not only of protein but also of sugar and fat, and on the other hand about 40 million Americans who do not earn enough to buy a satisfactory daily diet, despite food stamps, school lunches and other programs."

to formulate a world food policy to accommodate the food needs of people everywhere, and to make this part of a comprehensive national nutritional program.

The Rev. Arthur Beumler stands beside the sign announcing his final sermon at Resedule Gardens

'We have not managed," he said, "to formulate guidelines that bring together the key areas of food, population, water and energy. Nor have we grasped the urgent need of coordinating agriculture and forestry with urbanization and industrial development. Our future as a nation and as a world partner hinges on our abandoning this fragmentation in our thinking."

The MSU professor of food science and geography cited trends in population, affluence, poverty and urbanization around the world, and said insufficient attention is being paid to these "highly upsetting" forces affecting the world scene and world food supplies and distribution

The population growth, he predicted, will add more than a billion persons in 10 years, with 85 per dent of the births in developing countries

The accelerating affluence of the indus-AMERICANS as a nation, he said, need trialized world, he said, is chiefly responsible for the growing use of fuels, metals.

forest products and other natural resources, at a rate of double or triple that of the increase in world population.

THE POOR of the world, he said, are the prime target victims "when the world is hitting harsh limits in land, water. energy and other resources."

Borgstrom identified the poor as "the multimillion and rapidly growing armies of destitute, homeless, penniless, jobless, landless, and hungry.

• Their true requirements are not recognized in any field "he said. "Our programs are based on purchasing power. Food production needs to triple or rather quadruple within this century to meet their nutritional needs, and keep up with population growth.'

The "rampant" urbanization, he said, will add more than 750 million to our cities, no less than 550 million of them in the poor world, the greater portion originating in a rural influx.

'Many major cities are growing up to four times faster than the growth of the countries containing them. All evidence points to collapse, not the least in food and water. No viable urban ecosystems are created, as best evidence in an enormous backlog of need in housing and sewage sys-

WHILE NORTH AMBRICA now accounts for 80 to 90 per cent of deliveries to the world cereal market, about two thirds of the grain flow is to Europe. Japan and the Soviet Union, not in order to starve off hunger, but to underpin their prodigality in feeding livestock rather than people. Borgstrom said.

"Currently, less than five per cent of the exported soybeans serves as human food and even less reaches the hungry world."

Keys to formulating food strategy, he said, must be food utilization, nutrition, disease and resources

"Global endeavors are needed" he continued. "to fight waste and spoilage, to recognize nutritional needs, to starve off paraand desease, to process and market foods, and to appraise available soil, water and other resources.'

L-R's '1776' no carbon copy; get thee to it

By ROBERT ORIS English-Speech Instructor Henry Ford Community College

On July 10, the Livonia Arts Commission gave area residents another reason to celebrate the bicentennial: a delightfully original production of the musical "1776." No attempt was made to present a carbon copy of the Broadway or Hollywood productions, and, for the most part, this production by the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford succeeded on its own interpretation.

No doubt the major contributor was director Ron Otulakowski, who made this a more thoughtful and serious production than the other six that this reviewer has

THE LAUGHS were abundant, but they were earned; there were no cheap shots for a quick laugh. Otulakowski added to his honors by playing the role of John Dick-

This is the third time this reviewer has seen him in this part, and it is to Otulakowski's credit as actor and director that he did not allow his professional acting and singing to dominate the other actors.

Indeed, it would be difficult to try to dominate the other actors since they are generally a well-rounded group, Ron Worsley's Ben Franklin, after a nervous first scene became a sprightly dirty old man with sclear and strong singing voice. Irene Jordan played a vitty and elegant

Abigail Adam's her voice was difficult to hear in the lower register but in the upper register it filled the theatre.

MARC McCULLOCGH avoided the temptation to overplay bowled Rutledge and consequently gave a supple menace to the role: his singing of "Molasses to Rum." as condemnation of New England slave traders, was an example of a singing actor in complete command of his material.

Equally in command of his material was Doug Kerr, in superb voice and extremely serious as Jefferson. Some good acting was done by Ron Wheeler as Richard Henry Lee and Bonnie Gill as Martha Jefferson, but the former seemed unsure of his singing tempo and the latter had diffi-culty being heard in her one number. The triumphs of the evening's acting.

however, belonged to Howard Egan, Paul Maisano and Doug Wisby. These three did far more with their roles than this reviewer has ever seen done in amateur or professional productions.

EGAN'S ADAMS gave the musical a more serious -- less sympathetic - star. His professional performance, his strong tive reactions to other actors made no compromise with Adams' obstinacy of pur-

Egan is his own man, his own actor. He has re-created the role of John Adams. and he has done it with consummate tal-

Paul Maisano played the featured role of the courier. He should star in "Candide." He has a rare sense of timing and professional discipline that an actor twice his age would envy. His glorious singing of "Momma, Look Sharp" held the audience spellbound. Such moments in the theatre -and such talents -- are to be treasured.

Doug Wisby also played a featured part. He was the secretary of congress, stuck in the deadly upstage-left area for the entire show and limited to reading missives from "G. Washington" and the roll-call for the signing of the Declaration. Watch him to learn how the slightest inflection of the voice and the sublest half-beat of timing can make or break a performance.

The musical direction of Andrew Henderson is to be commended in that the orchestra seldom drowns out the singers. If the singers could not be heard at times, it was because of their lack of projection and not the orchestra's competition. Especially effective were the contributions of the harpist and the drummer. Less effective were the slow tempos of most of the numbers and the underscoring of the finale.

WHAT WAS NOT slowed down was the staging of "The Egg" by choreographer Mitzi Carroll. This number bubbled across the apron of the stage with Kerr, Worsley and Egan sharing honors. Ms. Carroll did much to enliven the normally so-so "He Plays the Violin."

30-or-40 minute "non-musical" section of the first act that some tighter direction might alleviate. but basically this is a well-paced production and one well worth seeing. If you just saw the film version on television last week, see THIS production to see how else this musical can be done. If you have never seen "1776," then, as Adams says, "Get thee to it!"

"1776" will be performed Friday, July 16, and Saturday, July 17 at 8:30 p.m. in Churchill High School (air-conditioned) auditorium, 9800 Newburgh Rd., Livonia: Tickets may be reserved by calling Pierson Center at 477-8300 or by calling ticket chairman Sandy Raymond at 484-0736. Tickets are $4 and $2 for persons under 18

Chamber concert is off-beat treat

By TIM RICHARD

If you could bear missing The Bird make his all-star debut or the soul-stirring oratory from Carterland, Schoolcraft College was offering an off-beat chamber music concert Tuesday, the likes of which one rarely finds in a sun-bleached suburb.

The summer music school faculty performed an unusual dose of wind ensemble works and a violin-piano sonata featuring Derek Francis and Alexander Hanway, re-

.It was a program designed to display to connoissuers the rarely-heard works of modern, university-type American composers rather than to please a large crowd with hummable melodies. So only about 100 persons showed up, in contrast to the nearly 300 who heard the piano four-hands team a week earlier.

FRANCIS AND Hanway tested their skills with the virtuoso sonata of Easley Blackwood, a contemporary (he's 43) who makes his living with workshops, master classes and concerts.

The late Alvin Etler's Quintet for wind instruments featured Wendy Hohmeyer. flute; David Mariotti, oboe; Eugene Wade, born; Paul Ganson, bassoon; and Oliver Green, clarinet.

tune to tap our feet to, an ensemble of eight wind instruments treated us to a skillful, intriguing Serenade No. 12 by Mozart. Far more serious than the typical serenades and divertimenti of classical lore, Mozart's work stood in philosophical contrast to the biting wit of the Etler quintet.

FIVE MORE concerts will round out Schoolcraft's 1976 offering of something different in the way of music:

•Tonight at 8, flutist Kathy Kitzman will perform in the Liberal Arts Theater.

• Monday at 8, cellist Debra Fayroian, a young instrumentalist with a growing collection of zealous admirers in these parts, will headline a program that will include the irrepressible Bob Jones and his patient wife Ann in a duo for harpsichord and viola da gamba in the Waterman Center.

.. Friday at 8, the summer music school orchestra will be heard in the Liberal Arts

•Wednesday, July 21, at 8, there will be a student chamber recital in the Liberal

• Friday, July 23, at 8, the final concert will bring the student orchestra and band to the Waterman Center, and everyone will have a chance to see what the kids have learned. Considering the quality of staff, it's likely to be quite a bit.

Kostelanetz, Cleo starring

So you think the quest for high fidel-ity and stereo recordings must have originated with rock and modern jazz

Not so. In fact, just the opposite. The man generally credited with pioneering high quality sound in musical recordings would likely be considered a longhair in the out-of-it sense by the now generation. But had he never lived, they might not yet be enjoying stereo sound in recordings of their favorite groups.

His name is Andre Kostelanetz, and he will conduct one of his world-famous pops concerts, with the Detroit Symphony orchestra at the Meadow Brook Music Festival's Baldwin pavilion Sunday on the Oakland University

Both innovator and perfectionist, Kostelanetz recognized early in his career that recordings and live concerts are different ball games, requiring separate techniques. Accordingly, he rearranged his entire orchestra setup for recording sessions to produce the precise tonal dynamics he desired. He was the first conductor to provide recording engineers with a marked musical score - and to insist they use.

The marketplace has verified his wisdom. For the last 10 years, his Promenade semi-classical concerts at New York's Lincoln Center have played consistently to packed houses.

Heitman moves to RU

Harvey Heitman's 16 years of experience devising football strategy will be sternly tested this fall when the newly-appointed head varsity football coach at Redford Union takes his charges into battle in the strong Suburban Eight League.

However, the 37-year-old Heitman, who guided Redford St. Agatha to an 11-6 record during the past two seasons, does not fear the challenge that lies ahead.

"I had a long talk with Bob (former RU coach Bob Atkins) and he was quite excited about seven or eight sophomores he had last year

Even though the Panthers were outscored 239-31 in 1975. Heitman said he is confident that the team's learning experience will lead to a more successful campaign in 1976 The primary reason cited by Heitman in accepting the post is its challenge. "I thought the opportunity was too good to refuse." he said. "There are good kids in Redford and I believe we can do a job with them. The challenge, indeed, will be there, RU is a Class A school, and St. Agatha is Class C. While the Catholic League is generally acknowledged as a strong circuit, the Sub Eight enjoys a reputation as one of the finest leagues in southeastern Mich-

Howard Kraft, RU athletic director, said that Heitman was selected for the head coaching position both for his experience and manner. "I think he's very capable-he's certainly a pleasant person." Kraft said. "He handles young men well and has a considerable amount of experience behind him." Heitman began his prep coaching career in 1961 as the head man of Detroit Holy Redeemer's reserve team. He moved on to

Grosse Pointe St. Ambrose in 1964 and re-

Lions take to links

Bill Horste and Forest Youngblood placed first in the low actual and low handicap divisions, respectively, at a recent golf outing sponsored by the Westland Breakfast Lions Club.

Runners-up in the respective divisions were Bill Doyle and Mark Field.

Eighty golfers participated in the tournament, which was staged at Fox Hills Counmained through 1967 as an assistant varsity football coach. It was during that time that St. Ambrose was a Detroit area gridiron power, losing only one game in three seasons.

Heitman became head basketball and assistant football coach at Detroit Nativity in 1969, and returned to St. Ambrose as athletic director and head football and basketball coach in 1970.

He coached the club football team at Oakland Community College in 1972-73, and served as both head football and basketball coach at St. Agatha the last two Heitman, who describes himself as an offensively-oriented strategist, said that while he regrets leaving St. Agatha, he feels its program "is on the way.

Heitman said that he and RU prospects are currently at work on a conditioning program prior to the start of late-summer practice next month. Heitman replaces Atkins, who resigned this year after an 18-year association with the RU football program. He gave a variety of reasons for his resignation including loss of staff and a change in football scheduling (moving up the season a week) effective in the 1977 season

Heitman's appointment is the latest involving several changes in Redford schools since the first of the year Ron Gutkowskil former captain of the Michigan State University basketball team, was selected to head the Bishop Borgess varsity squad during the 1976-77 season. He replaces interim coach and athletic director Ralph Owen, who took over the final third of last season after Mike Guza had resigned.

GC Americans edge Nationals

Playing over five fielding miscues, the American All Stars last weekend clipped the Nationals, 5-4, in the Garden City Invitational Class A League's mid-season showcase of baseball talent.

The American All Stars consisted of players from the Mic Mac and Neal's Safety Sewer teams, while the Nationals consisted of the best from Brian & Gregory and McNish-Denneh The one-run defeat took some of the luster from a pair of outstanding individual performances by National players.

Second baseman Nev Coffman went four for four at the plate, all singles, and pitcher Ron Taylor faced the minimum nine batters during his three-inning stint on the mound. He gave up only one hit, struck out three and walked none. The Americans broke into the scoring column first with a pair of runs in the second inning. Mike Mottesheard came home on a passed ball after initially getting on base with a single and Tom Bisiallon knocked in the other run with a groundout

The Nationals quickly retaliated with three runs the very next inning to take the lead. After a wak to Mike Harrison and a single by Bob Cross, Frank Hanson cracked a towering home run over the center field fence.

The Americans reclaimed the lead in their half of the third.

Bob Kupras stored on a wild pitch, Mark Waterstrad singled home the fourth run and Bob Konopp produced the Americans' fifth run with an RBI-double down the left field line

The Nationals scored their final run in the seventh inning on three American

Jack Van Gemert, the last of four American pitchers, was credited with the victory. Dan Davis, the National pitcher who was roughed up in the third frame, was tagged with the defeat.

The Americans committed five errors during the contest, while the Nationals had only one bobble

Swimmers strive for spots in World Games for Deaf

John Wieck is a well-known swimming coach. His Birmingham Groves teams always seem to be at or near the top of the team standings of the Class A high school swim finals.

But every four years, Wieck coaches another group of winners—the United States swimming team, which participates in the World Games for the Deaf.

Last weekend, at the Southfield Civic Center pool, 56 swimmers competed for places on the U.S. team, which will take part in the 13th World Games in Bucharest. Romania next summer. Twenty-two events, 11 each for men and women, were held in last weekend's Southfield trials. The top three finishers in each event made the U.S. team. The swimmers ranged from 13 to 22 years of age. "It'll be our best team ever." Wieck, who has coached the squad since 1965. "This group is the finest we've ever had in terms of dedication and training for the sport. It's getting tougher and tougher to make this team, and it requires a lot of dedication on their part." Lack of hearing hasn't stopped these athletes from excelling in swimming, according to Wieck.

We've never had a deaf person on a hearing Olympic team," he said. "These kids aren't going to Montreal, but they're not too far behind the people who are. I have quite a few good swimmers on my

TWO OF THE best are Jeff Float and Laura Barber. Float, of Sacramento, Calif., won eight of the men's events and established five world deaf swimming records. Miss Barber, of Allison Park, Pa ... won six events, and set four world records.

Both athletes were at a dinner-dance at the Southfield Ramada Inn following the Civic Center trials

"They each broke nine world records, counting preliminaries and finals." Wieck said. "They're both tremendous athletes."

Deaf athletes have problems training because of difficulties in communication, according to Wieck. If you want to teach them something, you have to look right at them," he said. "They always have to be looking at the person who is coaching them.

-Finances are another problem for the U.S. Deaf Swim Team. Each swimmer has to raise the money to cover the cost of the trip to the World Games.

They give these students at least one year to raise the money," Wieck said. 'That's why they pick the squad a year before the games. The swimmers use various means of making money. In a big city like Los Angeles, where seven or eight of the kids are on the team, they'll hold a swim-a-thon. In past years, the kids have held dinner dances and sold candy.'

Weick praised Southfield's Civic Center pool, calling it "the finest we've ever competed in.'

"We've been in 50-meter pools before, but they haven't been as nice as this one. And the people there-especially Ray Tremblay, the manager-were very kind to us. They were very hospitable, and they did a great job overall. We got the pool for free, and they don't do that too often."

GRAND OPENING

In The Pocket

While nothing much is being said out in the open, there is a growing feeling along the bowling front that some sort of change should be made in the bandicap system now being used in most of the major tour-

When the handicap system started some years ago to attract more entries into the various events, the men's handicap was established at 70 per cent. To give the ladies a break, theirs was 80 per cent.

For a time this method was satisfactory. Entries actually swamped many of the tournament managers. The so-called low average bowler was competing with the best on what was considered equal terms.

But like everything else, there came a time when the bowlers in the lower brackets derhanded more. Now, the precentages have climbed, and in some of the events during the past season the bowlers were given 100 per cent. This was fine for the low bowler but it placed a hardship on the stronger teams. As a result, many of the higher average teams are now balking at competing in the

It was this complaint on the part of the stronger teams that many tournaments now offer two sets of trophies and establish championships in two categories—the handicap score and actual pinfall.

Set football registration

Garden City Little League Football officials have scheduled the final registration day for those interested in participating during the 1976 season.

July 17 is the day, and the site is the Log Cabin in Garden City Park. Hours are 9

Boys nine to 13 years of age who wish to play in the city's Little League football program must bring a birth certificate and a parent or guardian to the registration. A will be charged.

Girls between the ages of 81/2 and 12 may also sign up to be cheerleaders at the same time and place as the players. No fee will be assessed, and it is not necessary that parents accompany prospective cheerleaders to the registration.

Even this hasn't been as successful as had been anticipated and the time may not be too far away when some sort of change will be made.

Most of the establishments will have five leagues each day, with two during the day and three at night, starting at 5:30 p.m.

There was a time before the advent of the automatic pinspotter when two leagues a day at 30 lines per lane was the breakevent point. In some cases it was the number of lines required to be successful.

Those days are long gone and now five leagues is the standard by which the owners experience profit or loss.

Automation-the automatic pin spotter and the electric eye at the foul line, along with the automatic scorer-has changed the entire game and the need for more and more bowlers to break even.

Dreamers, Daly score close wins

In two of the most action-filled games of the Women's Fastpitch League softball season, the Dreamers and Daly Restaurant last week each squeezed out one-run victories, 13-12 and 9-8, respectively.

Throwing and fielding errors spotlighted the Dreamers-Ms's (Michigan Answering Service) contest. The Dreamers' win was their first of the season.

Linda Jarve, the Dreamers' winning pitcher, also contributed a pair of hits. Shira Schiff, Beth Wouters and Kathy Hawkins also collected two hits apiece for the winners

Patti Bryans and Sharon Dreyer both punched two hits for Ms's.

The Americans, the youngest team in the circuit with an average age of 16.8 years, had league-leader Daly Restaurant pinned with its first loss of the year in the late stages of that duel.

However, Nancy Greeley and Mary Jimenez hit back-to-back home runs with two out in the last inning to complete a dramatic game-saving rally.

Daly, which led through most of the contest, temporarily crumbled in the sixth and seventh innings.

During those two stanzas, the Americans put together five hits, a like number of walks and some shoddy defensive play by Daly to forge to an 8-5 advantage.

Daly's seventh-inning resurgence was triggered by Linda Reid, a nine-year veteran who started the rally with a single. Lois Flannigan followed with another single, then Greeley tied the proceedings with her three-run shot.

Just as the excitement had abated after Greeley's poke, Jimenez ripped a shot to right field past the fallen fielder for the winning run.

Livonian Ruhle: A young Tiger grows

now lives in Livonia, described his experiences during the nightmarish campaign. "Last year was a time and place for myself and some of the other kids to start," Ruhle said. "We were concerned about making the team and showing what we could do. Now, we have jobs, so we can concentrate on winning and nothing else." Ruhle, who was 11-12 with a 4.03 earned run average in 1975 pretty fair stats for a rookie with a last-place team-is considered by many to be among the most promising right-handers in the American League.

So far, the 1976 season has been a disappointing one for Ruhle. He possesses a 5-3 record, a 4.03 ERA and has completed only one game in 10 starts.

B&G extends its league lead

Following the circuit's all star contest last weekend, Brian & Gregory downed McNish-Dennehy, 9-4, to strengthen its first-place grip in the Garden City. Invitational Class 'A baseball League. Mic Mac, winner of only one game prior to Sunday play, routed Neal's Safety Sewer, 13-1, in the loop's second contest.

Jim Kaleniecki, Gary Carmichael and Frank Hanson all collected two hits to pace the Brian & Gregory offensive attack. The winners notched two runs in the second inning, one in the third, four in the fourth and two in the sixth.

McNish-Dennehy, led by Ken Sadek, who punched two hits, counted its runs in the third, fifth and sixth frames.

Al Anderson relinquished six hits and four walks while striking out seven on the mound for Brian & Gregory. He pitched the entire game. Dan Davis, who left the game in the second inning with arm trouble, was the losing hurler. Lee Wyscaver held Neal's Safety Sewer in check during the second game, and his teammates proved ample hitting support to propel Mic Mac to a 13-1 victory. Stew Anderson absorbed the pitching loss.

The next scheduled games, set for Sun-day (July 18), feature Neal's against McNish-Dennehy at 6 p.m. and Mic Mac against Brian & Gregory at 8:30 p.m. Both games will be played at Garden City Park.

I've struggled from the start this year," Ruhle confessed, noting that he went the distance nine times last season. For the most part, Ruhle has seemed to pitch well for the first five or six innings, only to wilt

"I'm basically a control-pitcher," the hurler said. "I feel my 65 walks in 190 innings were too many last year. I'd like to get my walks down to around 40 for every 200 innings I pitch.

"I should also strike out at least twice as many as I walk," he continued. "So, I'd like to improve on my 67 of last year.'

During Ruhle's first 87 innings of work this season, he has fanned 47, a marked improvement over 1975. However, his 26 walks average out to an almost identical rate as last year.

Ruhle, born in Midland and raised in Coleman, moved to Livonia after he married. "My wife's family lives here, so she's not alone when I'm on the road."

During spring training, Ruhle said he figured that manager Ralph Houk would start with a four-man rotation, then add a fifth starter in the middle of May. Ruhle speculated that the starting four would be Joe Coleman, Ray Bare, Dave Roberts and himself.

Coleman, showing no improvement from two sub-par years, was subsequently sold to the Chicago Cubs. Bare, also ineffective, was moved to the bullpen.

The Tigers eventually were forced to junk their plans for a five-man rotation because they couldn't get five effective pitchers together. Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, a non-roster player during spring training, has not only made the starting rotation but is its ace. He now teams with fellow rookie Frank MacCormack, Roberts and Ruhle to form the starting staff.

"We'll be a much better ball club this year," Ruhle predicted, "now that we have a year of experience under our belts. We'll surprise a lot of people.'

New school aid legislation may offer W-W tax relief

By MARILYN FITCHETT

Wayne-Westland Schools Supt. Timothy Dyer hinted at the possibility of property tax relief for W-W residents thanks to the new school aid bill.

The district, according to Dyer has been fighting a traditional school aid provision of capping state funding beyond the 30-mill mark, causing high-millage districts such as Wyane-Westland to receive no additional compensation for the higher mills lev-

But the new state aid bill calls for no capping of funding in the third year of the

"This is a major legislative victory for us," Dyer told a board of education audience Monday. "Within a few years, barring any problems with declining enrollments, we may be able to grant some property tax relief.

Under the new formula, districts will receive no extra funding beyond 28 mills. The second year of the bill, funding will be capped at the 29-mill mark. Wayne-Westland levies 36.85 mills for operating expenses-tops in the state.

ASIDE FROM THE over-30 mill provision, the bill will mean no unexpected windfalls for th district. But Dyer is counting his blessings the district was spared any substantial cuts.

While Gov. William Milliken has hinted he will sign the bill. Dyer said he has the authority to make line item vetoes of some sections to the bill which was passed in Lansing last week.

One provision the governor cannot erase is adult education funding.

"We have totally survived in the field of adult education." Dyer said. "Because we operate the fourth largest adult education program in the state, we were especially wary of any cuts in this

"But under the bill, we are agoing to receive $1 million to $1.2 million in adult education funds. This has a double effect on us because we've been unable to offset de-

Another provision which Dyer is smiling about is a modification of a business inventory tax. Under last year's formula, the district lost taxes of $33 million worth of inventory. Dyer said the new bill appeared to have changed the formula, but it was too early to determine how this would affect the district's funding.

ALTHOUGH THE BILL will help the district in adult education, inventory tax and the over-30 mill provision, Dyer contended there was little else in the bill which favored Wayne-Westland.

"The actual money is not all that great," he said. "There were no additions in special education and very little in trans-

One provision which will not help Wayne-Westlansd as much as other districts is a decliping enrollment feature.

The legislature has appropriated $2.8 million to help districts losing students, but to qualify districts have to lose two per cent more students than they did last year. Thanks to its adult education program, the district diod not figure any student losses, "The declining enrollment clause will not be that great a benefit to us." Dver said. "We've chosen to fight that battle in other ways such as increasing adult and special education enrollments.

Rep. Bill Keith (D-Garden City), whose district includes part of Westland, was cosponsor of the bill. He noted early passage of the bill will allow distircts to firm up their school plans.

"There was a general feeling in the legislature this year of belt-tightening," Keith said. "It didn't want to fund any new programs no matter how important. That was that was the attitude in Lansing.

-"I'm happy we approved almost $90 million more than the governor recommended for the state school aid bill. That's good news for most districts.

UNDER THE PRESENT structure, the state will provide $43.90 in basic state aid per pupil based on the first 20 mills levied by the local district. For the next eight mills, the state will pay out $39.60 per

The legislature has put a ceiling on additional fundings. If more than the expected number of student losses are experienced statewide next year, the appropriated declining enrollment funds will be pro-rated to the districts seeking aid.

Wayne-Westland expects to lose 400 students in September. The district educates about 23,000 students.

W-W seeks grant to curb dropouts

Wayne-Westland School District will be seeking a $100,000 federal grant in hopes of decreasing the district's higher than national average dropout rate.

In a public hearing Monday, federal programs coordinator Jim Linderman outlined a program aimed at ninth and 10th grade students in the district's evening youth program. These are students who have already experienced difficulty with regular day classes.

'We don't have the career education facilities we'd like to." Linderman said. "We want our program to incorporate career counseling with a classroom component and on the job training.

If the grant application is successful, the district will offer the program to 30 students the first fear and 60 the next. Teacher-pupil ratio in the program will feels better about himself, perhaps he won't drop out," Linderman said.

PART OF THE psychology of the on the job training is for the student to meet with successful business people, giving he stu-dent an outlook he does not receive from his peers. Linderman said.

The grant would net the district $100,000 for the first year with a two year renewal

Linderman added most of the funds would be used for start-up costs such as training teachers to counsel dropouts. "After three years, the development of staff would be turned into the system and we would be able to carry on the program without extra funds. The W-W dropout rate is 7.85 per cent with the national average pegged at 7 per cent. But of the students who choose the alternative evening youth program, 25-30 percent drop out a second time.

Discrimination on price good?

Discrimination is a good thing, if you're talking about price, says a Michigan State University marketing

"Price discrimination is an essential lubricant for keeping the wheels of a competitive system turning, says Dr. Eli P. Cox professor of marketing, in "MSU Business Topics." a quarterly published by the Graduate School of Business Administration.

Cox suggests, however, that price discrimination may be falling into a "condemnation by-label category" because the word discrimination connotes bias and unfairness, although the word once was synonymous with

PRICE DISCRIMINATION probably is practiced in some form by every institution which sells goods or services and explains the two types of price discrimination. "Economic price discrimination exists when the vendor receives a different net return (stated price per unit, less cost of selling and delivering) per unit in sales to different

"Pragmatic price discrimination exists when a vendor sells to two or more buyers at different prices, with differences based primarily on relative demand elasticities rather than on precise differences in costs of sales and delivery.

According to Cox, price discrimination may be the most common and pervasive element of the marketing mix as economic enterprises strive for institutional advantage. Tampering with it is dangerous, he says, and should not be done on a wholesale scale or on the basis of categorical

HE BELIEVES eliminating economic price discrimination, if it were possible, would result in reduced demand, higher fixed costs per unit, and higher prices per unit to all con-sumers. It's not practical in the real

"To determine the prices necessary to achieve zero economic price discrimination would require a separate cost-accounting project for each transaction or transaction class.

"This would not only bog down a firm with paper work, but because cost accounting procedures are so imprecise, it would be a rarity for two accountants to agree on cost allocations," Cox adds.

On the other hand, it would be simpler to eliminate pragmatic price discrimination, "at least until the system broke down." It would mean that each seller would set a single price and then sell only to those customerclasses that could be served profitably at that price.
