Stein slate sweeps township

By RICHARD GOLD

A seeming coalition of differing backgrounds deposed one Democratic slate of candidates Tuesday to narrowly elect another in what some township observers labeled a relatively light turnout.

An estimated 35 per cent of the voters defeated incumbents Supervisor Robert' Greenstein, Treasurer Carl Parsell, and Trustee Jerry Cheske, replacing them with a Democratic slate of Harold Stein for supervisor. Anna Bradley for treasurer, and Gene Daley for trustee.

Independent Lynne Goldsmith was the only Democratic winner not aligned with a slate. She placed first in a closely contested race for trustee with 1,391 votes. Only two incumbents survived the reversal and they were both unopposed-Clerk

John Flodin and Republican Trustee Jim Poole.

Flodin, a new member of the Greenstein team, is dean of the township board with 20 years service.

Other Republicans seeking election in the November contest are George Hall for trustee. Patricia Dombecki for clerk, Bart Berg for treasurer, and Peter Bundarin, the top GOP vote-getter in the township with 340 votes, for supervisor. All Republicans ran uncontested.

THE VICTORY FOR Stein's team, although new to township politics, came as little surprise to Greenstein, who had maintained that a small turnout would be his death knell.

While Stein cited a strong grass roots effort as the determining factor in his victory, others were quick to note the very heavy Republican crossover vote. Democratic ballots outnumbered Republican ballots by a 5-1 margin.

Some interpreted the results as a strong anti-Greenstein statement rather than a positive vote for Stein.

It was a last-stand effort for the farm interests of Canton, as the southwest quadrant of the township went heavily for Stein offsetting Greenstein's margin in precinct seven, a subdivision stronghold.

Precinct two, which covers the entire southwest quarter of the township went 2-1 for Stein. Those voters would be most affected by Greenstein's land use plan, and farmers have publicly challenged the supervisor over his failure to guarantee them equity for their lands.

Stein, who outpolled Greenstein 1,725-1,593, was quiet and confident in victory. Sitting in the corner of his basement in a small office while hordes of well wishers and campaign workers celebrated, Stein said the victory was the result of hard

"IT WAS A door-to-door campaign and we relied on personal contact. The true winners of this election are citizens of Canton both east and west of Canton Center."

Looking haggard, and still not fully recovered from a knee operation several months ago Stein said he was not surprised by his victory even though this is his first attempt at political office.

"Actually," he said. "I expected to win by a bigger margin.

Alternately biting, then gracious but calm throughout in defeat, Supervisor Robert Greenstein didn't let on to any personal hurt caused by his rejection at the polls

Speaking quietly of the accomplishments of his short-lived tenure as Canton's chief admininstrator, Greenstein did not act surprised by the primary results. "It's been my pleasure serving you," he said, as he talked to supporters in the

WHILE GREENSTEIN'S defeat casts his personal future in doubt, it leaves many more questions as to the future of Canton

The reserves, the sign ordinance, and more important, the controversial land use plan are now smothered with question marks.

The first fire, reported to the Canton fire department at 12:12 a.m. was set in the basement and first floor of the 16-unit building. The second, on morning was set in the basement.

One rough estimate put property damage at about $600. Greg Rose, resident manager of the building, said most damage occured as a result of the smoke. Mel Paulun, Canton fire chief, ordered residents of the complex out of apartments because of possible wiring damage.

"It was a fairly, large fire in the basement, and we didn't know if there would be shorts in the wiring, so we advised that the building be evacuated." he said.

"I don't know why it happened, but everything's back to normal again." he Sheriff's officers refused to speculate on the reason for the arson attempts.

Anyone who casually dropped in at Canton's King Custard for an ice cream cone Friday night was greeted with a surprise.

The ice cream parlor was packed to capacity with hordes of toddlers, elementaryschool kids, teenagers and adults patiently wiling the hour's wait in line with friendly jokes, chit-chat and play.

But, to the casual passer-by, it was not the crowd or the wait that brought the biggest surprise. It was the pajamas!

There were kids in pajamas, parents in pajamas and grandparents in pajamas. Even Stan Hammerstein, owner of the ice cream parlor at Harvard Square Shopping Center, filled cones and sundae dishes in his sleepwear

Friday was "pajama party" night at King Custard, and anyone dressed in pajamas could purchase ice cream at half the usual price.

The party brought an estimated 1,500 customers to the shop during a three-hour period, according to Hammerstein, and practically everyone was dressed in pajamas.

"It was about three times the success I thought it would be," said a happy Hammerstein after the party was over. "It was a lot of fun. We all had a great time.

Hammerstein conceived the pajama party concept to add "a little novelty" to his business. Despite fears that "no one would come" to his party, the store owner luckily ondered extra ice cream, cones, and sundae toppings for the festive event.

Five minutes before the party was scheduled to begin. Hammerstein changed his street clothes for pajamas. But waitresses Young Ran Cho of Canton and Mary Farion never got the chance because of the customers who jammed the store.

"Two of my friends just happened to be here." Hammerstein recalled with a chuckle. "The crowds were so heavy, I grabbed them and put them to work." Hundreds of ice cream cones and sundaes later. Hammerstein looked at his depl-

He was a Virginian named Edward Steptoe Evans. One of the best-known businessmen in Michigan prior to his death in September. 1945. he arrived in Detroit from the south in 1915.

He began his rise to industrial success by selling soft pine blocks to the infant automobile industry which used them to brace the wheels of autos shipped in freight cars.

Evans was nearly broke and had to get around on crutches because of leg trouble when first arrived in Michigan. He died a self-made millionaire, attributing his fortune to a decision reached the day he called on the old King Motor Car Company to make his first sale.

That was the day he decided to learn more about loading automobiles in freight cars than any man living.

IN 1918, Evans hired a railroad yard engine, three freight cars, several old automobiles, an operating crew, and a stretch of railroad track. He instructed the crew to bang the engine into the cars until he told them to stop.

He varied the loading conditions, the speed of impact, and other factors which cause automobiles to shift in freight cars. By the time he was done. Evans had the first calibration ever made of impacts and the damage they do to autos in transit.

With that knowledge, he was able to sell "loading engineering" with a zealous conviction born of actual experience.

The practical side of this tall, handsome. distinguished industrialistis apparent in a brief look at his achievements in business. During the 1920's, he was either president. director, or financial backer of more than 20 business enterprises

He became president of five airplane companies, one of which was the first to put brakes on airplanes. Another installed the first retractable landing gear. For most of the middle 1920's. Evans' personal earnings were reported to be more than $1 million a year.

In 1919, he founded the E.S. Evans & Company, later renamed Evans Products Company. The firm's first offices were in qhe old Dime Bank building near city hall in Detroit

The plant was on Fullerton Avenue. In the 1920's, as the company's president. chief inventor, and supersalesman. Evans showed the auto companies how to ship four autos instead of the usual two. in a freight car.

He designed wooden boxes for exporting automobiles that doubled the safety, yet used 50 per cent less lumber

Lost collie needs shots

Honey Bear, a small yellow collie with no tail, was hit by a car last Friday near the Clark station at the corner of Ford and Sheldon roads in Canton Township.

She had been riding in a van with her owner and was not missed until the van neared Saginaw.

Owners of the gasoline station said the dog had been struck by a car and rescued by a young man and two girls in a '61 white Ford. They had discussed taking the dog home with them, but said pets were not allowed in their Whitmore Lake condominium

Shirley London, owner of the dog, said Honey Bear needs medication and asks that anyone having information about the small, tailless collie call 453-4704 or 453-

PLYMOUTH-Sam Hudson 3

IN THE LATE twenties, he entered the battery separator field, acquiring a plant at Coos Bay, Oregon. His company soon became the top producer in that industry. In the 1930's, with the help of a retired architect. Samuel Butterworth, Evans invented the "auto loader." a tubular steel mechanism installed in the roofs of freight cars. The automobile manufacturers loved it. The device cut damage to autos in transit from $5 to nine cents a car and saved 90 per cent of loading and unloading costs. In the late thirties. Evans began making automotive heaters, soon becoming number one supplier of truck heaters to the independent truck manufacturers.

During the forties. Evans developed the "utility loader," used by the U.S. Army and Navy during World War II to carry loads ranging from biscuits to bombs. The U.S. Naval Ordinance equipped its freight cars with the device to handle ammunition and explosives. It cut the time of loading shells at federal arsenals by 25 per cent.

During World War II, Evans machine gun mounts helped the U.S and British war effort. Evans tank heaters, flown to Leningrad, helped the Russians stem the final German attack when the German tanks stalled in the cold.

Evans ambulance planes with removal stretchers, the first of their kind, caught the attention of General Douglas Mac-Arthur who ordered the first completed plane to hurry the wounded out of the Phil-

ALSO IN THE forties, Evans broke into the plywood manufacturing field on the west coast. He constructed a plant at Lebanon. Oregon. For many years it was the largest plywood plant in the world.

Evans' humble beginnings taught him the value of a dollar, as his twin sons, Edward and Robert (who ran the company on in Plymouth after his father died) had reason to know.

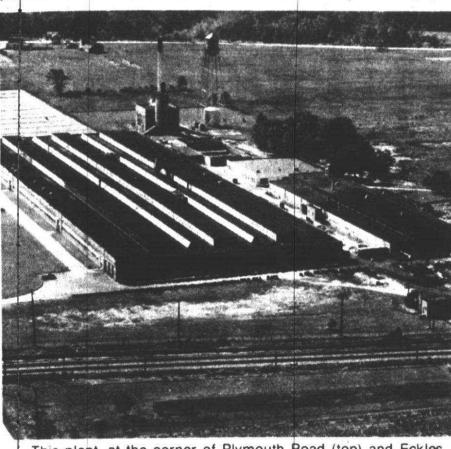

On one occasion, while they were studying at the University of Lausanne in Switzerland, they cabled their father that forstudy was a waste of time and money. They wanted to return home.

His reply read, "Stay. Waste all the time you want, but don't waste money.

Although he abhorred waste, whether it was of money or of natural resources. Evans, a master salesman, knew the value of appearances

In 1924, as soon as he could afford it, he moved from a $10,000 house in Detroit to a $225,000 mansion in Grosse Pointe. He joined the best clubs in Detroit, New York, Chicago, and Richmond, Virginia, where he was born.

Dale Mason crosses the plate in the sixth inning of the first game with Griffin's only run last weekend in an Adray League playoff doubleheader. Griffin lost the second contest, 3-0, after falling in the first by a five-run margin.

B&G's victory secures title tie

With a 6-3 victory over McNish-Dennehy last weekend. Brian & Gregory clinched at least a tie for the championship of the Garden City Class A Invitational Baseball League

B & G played over three errors to gain the decision. McNish didn't help its cause by stranding 11 runners on the basepaths during the contest

A line drive over the fence in center field by Pat Lourdes enabled B & G to take a 1-0 lead in the second inning.

The advantage didn't last long, though, as McNish came up with a pair of runs in the bottom of the second. Mark Hankins walked and Brian Skinner advanced Hankins to third with a single. A pick-off attempt at third was wild, scoring Hankins and moving Skinner to second.

Skinner took third on a passed ball Walks to Joe Koterba and Gary Nieckarz loaded the bases, and after a force out at the plate. Koterba scored on a single by Jim Bazzy. McNish added another run in the fourth inning on a solo home run by Ken Sadek. The towering fly ball cleared the fence in

B & G went back to work in the fifth stanza. Jim Loughren singled, went to second on a wild pick-off throw and advanced to third on a passed ball.

Rick Yuskowatz doubled into the left field corner, sending Loughren across the plate. Jim Kaleniecki singled and Mike Harrison singled, scoring Yuskowatz, Kaleniecki also came home on the play when Harrison's single rolled past the McNish Two insurance runs were added by B & G in the seventh. Kaleniecki was safe on an error and scored on a double by Harrison into right field. Harrison then stole third and scored on a passed ball. Both pitchers went all the way. Al Anderson, the winner, gave up six hits, walked seven and struck out seven Dan Davis was touched for eight hits. He issued two walks and fanned eight. Neal's Safety Sewer and Mic Mac each collected four hits in the other weekend league game, but Neal's counted one error less and one run more than its foe in registering an 8-7 win. Only two of the 15 runs tallied during the battle were earned, as Mic Mac committed four fielding miscues and Neal's, Neal's scored the tying and winning runs in the last inning of the back-and-forth contest. Tom Bisiallon walked, moved to second on a passed ball and stole third. Jack Van Germert drew a base-on-balls and both Bisiallon and Van Germert scored on a Mic Mac error on a ball hit by Glenn Davis. Davis took second and third on a passed ball and throwing error by Mic Mac's catcher and crossed the plate with the deciding run on a single by Jerry Jeff Sikes and Mark Waterstradt each collected a pair of singles. Pete Lazar and Gordie Graham each tripled, the latter's coming with the bases loaded.

Ed Collins, who went the distance for Neal's, received credit for the victory. He fanned 10 and walked four. Phil Norville. in relief of starter Lee Wyscaver, took the

B & G can clinch the league title outright by defeating Mic Mac at 6 p.m. Aug. 8 at Garden City Park. Neal's will collide with McNish at 8:30 p.m. at the same site. The Observer Eccentric

Adray playoffs won by Redford

Pitching ruled the day Sunday in a pair of "must win" games for Redford Adray, as the contingent led by John Colley whipped Griffin Sport Shop, 6-1 and 3-0, to capture the championship of the Livonia Adray League baseball playoffs.

The victory sends Redford up against the winner of the Ann Arbor Adray League tournament 5:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at Eastern Michigan University in the first game of a best-of-three regional playoff.

The winner of that series advances to the Adray League national championships in Johnstown, Pa. Brian McMahon, who had pitched seven innings and had earned a decision over Griffin just 48 hours earlier, went the distance on the mound again for Redford in the title game. He blanked Griffin on six hits, struck out five and walked two.

Ted Ackerman went all the way for Redford in the first test Sunday and permitted only one run on seven hits. He whiffed five and walked only one

While holding Griffin scoreless in the showdown contest, Redford scratched for two runs in the fourth inning and another in the fifth.

Bruce Robertson initiated the fourthframe rally by drawing a walk. Ted Musto forced Robertson at second, but advanced to second himself on a single by McMahon. Art Mezigian poked a single to send Musto across the plate with what turned out to be the winning run.

McMahon scooted all the way to third on Mezigian's single. A gamble then paid off for Redford on a double-steal attempt, as McMahon scored and Mezigian was safe at second. Mezigian was stranded at second when the rally died.

Redford carved another run in the fifth on a single by George Willard, an error and a single by Dennis Kuschel.

Willard and Kuschel for Redford and Jim Snyder and Russ Hodges for Griffin all rapped two hits.

A big six-run third inning proved to be too much for Griffin to surmount in the first game. Ten Redford batters took part in that offensive assault.

Robertson singled, Musto singled, Ackerman knocked- in Robertson with a single.

Mezigian sent Musto home with a single. Kuschel scored Ackerman with a single and Willard pushed Kuschel across with a

Mike Donahue then singled, but for a change, no one scored. However, on a Steve Schultz single. Willard came home and Donahue followed on the same play when the ball was kicked around.

Griffin tallied its only run in the sixth on singles by Dale Mason. Tom Schulz and Larry Lipa.

Griffin. a Cinderella team during the early stages of the playoffs, earlier downed league champion Ann Arbor Adray and Redford before falling twice to Redford last weekend.

In fact, Griffin barely sneaked into the fourth and final playoff spot by winning a qualifying game against Wendy's Ham-

Warren Wallis took the pitching loss for Griffin in the first game Sunday and Rick Britz absorbed the defeat in the second.

Redford Adray hurler Ted Ackerman tamed Griffin in the first game of the Adray League playoff doubleheader last weekend.

The lefty limited Griffin to seven hits in rolling to a 6-1 victory.

The eighth annual Observer & Eccentric Open Golf Tournament, a 36-hole medal play affair, will be contested the weekend after Labor Day, Sept. 11-12, at Livonia's Whispering Willows Golf Course.

All amatuer golfers in the O & E circulation area may participate in the tourney.

As in past years, the tournament will be organized into flights based on handicaps so that players of varying abilities may participate on more competitive plateaus. Last year's champions were Dave Wall, a Plymouth resident who shot an actual 147 in the Championship Flight; Don Nippa, a Livonian, who scored 154 in Flight 1; Gary Hees, also a Livonia resident, who recorded 172 in Flight 2; and S.L. Luvisch, who notched 183 in Flight 3.

Upwards of 160 contestants participated in last year's tournament. Gary Whitener. club pro at Whispering Willows and tournament director again this year, is looking for an even bigger turnout in September. "This has developed into a very popular Physical exams for all, middle school and high school athletes in the Plymouth Community School District will be held 6:30 p.m. Tuesday (Aug. 10) for boys and 6:30 p.m. Wednesday (Aug. 11) for girls.

All athletes are requested to report to the second floor commons at Salem High. The fee for the physical is $2.

John Sandmann, Plymouth athletic director, emphasized that the physicals are for athletes only. Prospective participants in all sports throughout the school year , should appear for the physical on the assigned day.

Two years ago, the tourney was open to Oakland County residents for the first time. Even more participants are expected from the Farmington, Birmingham and Rochester areas this year.

Whitener said he believes the tournament is so popular because it is run in a first-class manner. "The highlights are the interest in the thing and the compliments we receive from the participants." the pro

Crowe belts foe in Mack contest

Crowe & Associates, a victim of several one-run defeats during the regular Connie Mack baseball season, last weekend left no doubt about the outcome of its initial city league playoff encounter.

Manager Richard DeVries' charges, who compiled a .307 team batting average during the campaign, struck for four and nine runs, respectively, in the first and second innings and went on to demolish the Yankees. 15-4.

Crowe's start was not unlike that of a bucking bronco exiting the shoot at a

In the opening inning. Ron Cross singled. Pat O'Connor walked and Dan Dinsmore sent both scurrying across the plate with a triple. Brian Butcher drew a walk and stole second. Dinsmore scored on a groundout by Mike Robbins and Butcher romped home on an error.

Three Yankees errors and six Crowe hits accounted for nine more runs for the winners in the very next inning.

Bill Burgess was safe on an error. Cross singled and O'Connor was safe on an error, which loaded the bases. Dinsmore singled home both Burgess and Cross. Butcher singled home O'Connor.

A walk to Robbins reloaded the bases. Russ Hodges cracked a single, scorii both Dinsmore and Butcher Burgess, who started the rally when he was safe on an error, singled his second time at the plate in the second inning, scoring Robbins and moving Hodges to third.

Cross tripled for his second hit of the inning and collected two R3Is. On a wild pick-off play. Cross touched the plate with the ninth run of the frame.

Just for good measure. Crowe added two more runs in the sixth inning.

Hodges and Bob Thibault walked, Bill Moser singled, scoring Hodges, and Moser eventually scored on an error. The Yankees scored single runs in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Dennis Rosiewski and Frank Lane put together a double and a single, respectively. in the second; Tom DePriest and Mickey Grech cracked doubles in the fourth; Lane and Mike Laird singled, with a stolen base sandwiched in between in the fifth; and Grech and Lane singled and John Girgosian doubled in the sixth for the Yankees

Kevin Schultz fanned six and didn't walk any in going the distance on the hill for Crowe. Mike Greis, who worked the first two innings for the Yankees, was rapped for the defeat. Jack Lang finished up on the mound in relief of Greis.

The ABC is having eight lanes installed at its headquarters office in Greendale, Wis., for the sole purpose of doing its own testing of all equipment.

In other years, this work was done in the commercial houses with the co-operation of the proprietor. While it worked well, there were times when the work held up the league play during the regular season and all hands were disgruntled.

It is to end this type of problem that the ABC, in co-operation with the Women's Ihternational Bowling Congress, is having the eight lanes constructed.

It marks the first time any such program has been initiated in any sport. CORRECTION In this space last edition it was reported that the new 40-lanes establishment in Canton Center, was to be known as Superior Bowl. This was just

All-stars split twin bill

The Canton Recreation Department sponsored an All-Star double-header last Sunday, pairing the "B" Division All-Stars against champion Little Caesar, and the "A" Division All-Stars against the champion McMurray Insurance squad.

Little Caesar couldn't handle the 'B' All-Stars, managed by Bill Grady of Clark Block, as the All-Stars prevailed, 139. Ron Stepek, manager of Meijer Thrifty Acres, pitched and batted the All-Stars to victory. Ron had four hits in four trips, in-

The following inning saw the All-Stars plate three more runs as Brown doubled. Shaw singled, Doug Reynolds of Clark Block doubled for one run, and Rick Paulun of Clark Block singled to drive in two Caesar picked up two runs in the fourth on a two-run single by pinch hitter Al New and three runs in the sixth, as Randy Williams doubled off the fence for one run, and Mike Walker singled him home and scored on a fielder's choice.

The ALL-Stars put it away in the sixth when Stepek drove in Doug Ryan of Star Furniture and Joe Shanabrook of Meijer's with his homer.

Jim Gatti homered in the seventh for Caesar's last tally

In the second game, McMurray Insurance. "A" Division champs, humiliated the "A" All-Stars, 21-2. The all-star games proved what everyone thought all year long, that the "B" Division was much more balanced than the "A" Division. The "A" All-Stars, managed by Don Vol-ger of Smith Realty, could manage only one run in the first and one in the fifth. Carl Rich of Plymouth Equipment drove in Mark DeRoche of Massey with a sacrifice fly in the first, and DeRoche drove in Pete Curvin of Plymouth Equipment with a single in the fifth. Meanwhile, McMurray had the hot bats-as they did all year. Their big inning was the second, when they picked up 12 runs on 10 hits. Carl Vasquez. Mike Eves and Bob Blaine each had three hits, and pinch hitter Rosco Nash hit a two-run homer to lead McMurray's attack.

It was a fitting finish this year for McMurray, as they have shown many times they are by far the best team in the area. winning the "A' Division with a 14-2 won-loss record, winning the Plymouth-Canton Tournament, and winning the postseason All-Star Game. Their next move is to the MRPA state tournament in Mt. Pleasant later this month.

Biological services report available

One of the nation's most innovative programs aimed at protecting fish and wildlife and their habitats, while allowing for accelerated land and water development projects, has issued its first report, Director Lynn A. Greenwalt of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service

The report, the first of the agency's new Biological Services program, provides an excellent overview of the possible environmental implications associated with energy development and also summarizes various research projects that were begun last year.

"Our primary purpose." Greenwalt said, "is to collect scientific information on national fish and wildlife resources and their habitats and make it available to decisionmakers at all levels of government. This information is essential if they are to accurately anticipate and minimize problems related to major land and water changes. It is precisely because this kind of ecological expertise was not available in the past that decisions were made which resulted in the permanent destruction of prime habitat and unnecessary degradation of the environment.'

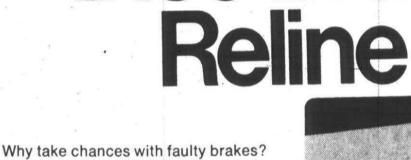

The program attempts to narrow the traditional conflicts between "progress vs. environment" controversy. It does this by first identifying critical areas which would experience severe impact, then describing those options and alternatives which would be least harmful, and finally by recommending safeguards and stipulations necessary to protect fish and wildlife resources.

In its first year, the program focused major attention on the environmental implications of the nation's accelerating energy development. Over 40 projects were initiated in the areas of coal extraction and processing, oil shale and geothermal energy development, powerplants, and Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas devel-

At the same time, a significant effort was devoted to more traditional land and water development issues: stream alteration, coastal ecosystems, western water allocation, and an inventory of the nation's wetlands.

Another study begun, and one of particular concern, is the identification of biological indicators, such as herons and other wading birds in coastal zones, which could alert scientists to a changing ecology before its effects have reached gross proportion or irreparable damage.

Since the goal of the program is to provide scientific information on which to recognize and weigh ecological alternatives, a substantial effort was also made to contact potential users of of this information and make it easily available to them.

Although summer won't officially be over until Sept. 22, with August here, it seems like the season is almost over. But. there's at least a month of camping, picnicking and stargazing left before the early bedtimes of the school year. And, August night skies will provide one of the strongest meteor showers of the year.

The Perseids meteor shower will reach its peak Aug. 11. Up to 50 meteors per hour have been spotted from this shower. but fewer will probably be seen this month because the moon will still be very bright on the 11th. It's best to watch for the Perseids with the naked eye after midnight and away from city lights.

using binoculars to the upper left of Venus.

VENUS, IF YOU carefully scan the western horizon just after sunset, has just returned to the evening sky. Often referred to as the "evening" or "morning star," depending on when it is seen. Venus is actually a planet about the size of earth. It shines by reflected sunlight.

Lower than Mars but more difficult to see is the planet Mercury. Jupiter, the largest planet of our solar system, can easily be seen in the eastern morning sky. just south of the famous star cluster called the Pleides, or the Seven Sisters.

And, during the last half of August, the ringed planet Saturn will return to the morning sky, rising just before the sun.

AS FOR summer constellations, they still dominate the evening sky in August, but a few of the autumn groups are creeping up over the eastern horizon.

Canton ballot results have wide implications

Just as the defeat of Marda Benson a month ago caught many political observers of the Plymouth-Canton community by surprise, so does the defeat of Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein in Tuesday's primary.

Once viewed as a shoo-in, Greenstein was leveled by a low key man named Harold Stein who came out of nowhere to reduce the supervisor's ambitions and plans to nothing more than mere

But while the election in no uncertain terms drastically alters the course of Canton (for better or for worse), it has a wider impact.

Canton, attempting to come to grips with the tremendous growth pressures it has faced in the last half decade, will again undergo a change of direction in planning.

Stein, who really has said little concrete in terms of land planning, seems to believe that Canton's growth will be controlled by a lack of sewer capacity.

If he wins in November, and after Tuesday's stunning victory he's hard to bet against, he will order a complete restudy of Canton plans.

What that means is anybody's guess. His opponent in the November contest is Republican Peter Bundarin, a proponent of the Petaluma plan to control growth.

The major tenet of that program is to issue a limited number of building permits and thereby control and direct the growth of the township.

Assuming it can be legally applied to Canton, and administered fairly, it still is a great deviation from the controversial Greenstein concept to save western Canton for agricultural use. And it means to all residents of the Plymouth Community School District that another look at the future growth of the district is warranted.

Either way you cut it, and with either candidate, it can be assumed that Canton will be developed in a different fashion and probably more fully.

So where does it all leave the school district?

Up in the air, no doubt. Already the school system is feeling the tremendous impact of Canton's growth. Three new schools will open in the fall to service Canton's needs, and the budgetary pressure compounded by other fiscal problems has been enormous.

Canton's leaders in the next few years are going to have their work cut out for them.

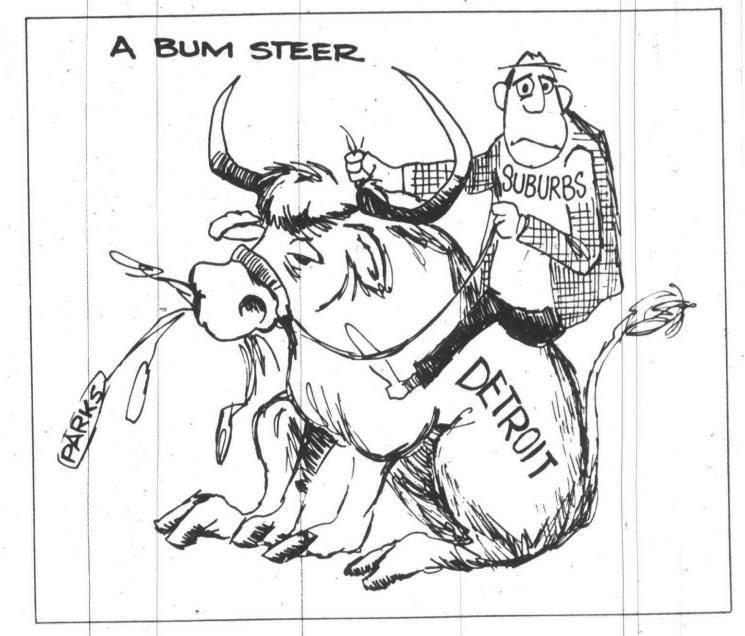

Single family homes are not a tax plus, and until the township attracts needed commercial and industrial tax base, it looks like the school system is going to be under a great deal of fiscal pressure.

If Canton's newest batch of leaders are to devote themselves to any single purpose in the next two years, they had best pay close attention to land use planning.

So had Canton's neighbors in the communities of Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Because the decisions made, either under Stein's direction or Bundarin's, will be choices that not only Cantonites, but neighbors sharing the school system will have to live with for a good long time to come.

Detroit'll give up Rouge

Will post office kiss & tell? but take federal funds

To the dismay of larger charitable organizations. Congress is seeking ways to tell you things you always wanted to know about the finance of charities but didn't know how to find out.

The House post office committee is working on legislation requiring charities using the mails to disclose in every solicitation some of their most sensitive financial information-the amount they spend to raise money and pay other operating

The theory is that contributors should know what they are getting or not getting for their money. The legislation will provide some benchmarks for the the public to prudently judge various organizations which are competing for the charitable dollar.

EXECUTIVES OF A number of well-known charities are wary. They feel that the legislation will hinder operations by raising costs and confusing the public, while failing to stop fast-buck artists who flaunt the law anyway.

The sponsors of the bill claim it wouldn't impose a vast new set of regulations on charities and wouldn't create a new bureaucracy. The proposed laws would be enforced by the United States Postal Service and would simply require charities to report in each solicitation how much of their contribution is acutally spent on charitable work and how much on other fund-raising

Nothing in the measure sets a limit on how much charities can spend for expenses, but its sponsors expect the charities with the lowest ratio of expenses to contributions would probably enjoy the greatest public support.

CONGRESS HAS WORRIED for a number of years how to police charitable contributions. Americans contribute $26 billion a year to philanthropic causes. While much of that is given to local institutions such as churches and schools, billions of dollars are raised each year by broad appeals through the mail, on television and on radio.

by HANK HOGAN

A Senate investigation in 1974 disclosed a number of cases in which donors and beneficiairies appear to have been short-changed.

One group raised $10 million over 10 years to help asthmatic children, but spent only 15 cents of each dollar on the children's behalf.

There was also a group of missionary fathers in Baltimore who raised millions of dollars through nationwide fund-raising sweepstakes but apparently very little was spent for overseas missions.

THE CHARITIES retort that they should be required to supply the information only to those who are really interested. To do more would increase the cost of raising money.

They also claim that some fund-raising techniques are appropriate for one organization but are entirely innappropriate for another.

A massive broad appeal is more expensive than door-to-door solicitation by volunteers, but it is difficult to raise money for problems like alcoholism, epilepsy and venereal disease on a doorto-door basis

What it boils down to is that some charitable organizations are designed to help the less fortunate but others exist to give their staffs jobs.

If the cost of raising money is more than half of that collected, the wrong charity is benefitting.

It looks as though Congress is on the right track

What business is it of a smart-aleck suburbanite, you may ask, if Detroit wants to practically give away one-third of that lovely Rouge It's their park, isn't it? If they want a federal solar institute there, isn't that Detroit's decision?

No, frankly it isn't Detroit's decision to make alone. We suburbanites, both as regional citizens and Americans, have sound reasons to squawk at the Rouge Park shenanigans of Mayor Coleman Young's administration.

The politics of it all is byzantine, so get ready.

DETROIT, ITS mayor and council are offering 328 acres of Rouge Park to the federal government for $1 to induce the feds to build a $20 million solar research institute in the area.

Meanwhile, with the other hand, the Detroiters are asking the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for $4 million to buy 30 acres of riverfront property. The purpose is to make a chain park along the Detroit River from Belle Isle to the Renaissance Center.

The economics of it is pure hayseed. Detroit buys parkland in one part of the city and tries to give it away in another part. That imbecility would be purely Detroit's business if it were buying the riverfront land with its own property tax money.

But it's not using its own money. It wants to use federal money to buy the riverfront land, and that's where all the rest of us Americans come in. We must object.

DETROIT, we have been told at great length, is in tough shape, losing business and good residents and spawning nothing out problems. Everybody else ought to help out-so the theory goes.

The theory, unfortunately, doesn't work, and Detroit's thinking on parks is an elaborate case in Detroit for decades wanted no part of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA) parks in its bailiwick. So HCMA collected property taxes from Detroit and five counties, and proceeded to develop 10 metroparks in the hinterlands of the region.

In recent years, Detroit has changed its mind and has begun complaining that HCMA is siphoning tax money out of the big city and transplanting it to the boondocks. Bills appeared in the Michigan Legislature to force HCMA TO develop something in Detroit.

HCMA's response was an offer to take over the operation of Belle Isle, there being no sizable chunks of land available to develop a new park and Belle Isle being a regional facility anyway.

TO MAKE A LONG story short, Detroit said no to the Belle Isle plan, just give us money.

HCMA isn't about to give away our tax money, so under pressure from the legislature it started negotiations on the riverfront park idea.

Again Detroit's response was negative. Just write us a check, and we'll spend it, Detroit said. And Detroit went on to offer one-third of Rouge Park for $1 and ask for $4 million to acquire riverfront parkland.

It's pretty obvious Detroit's administration and council are less interested in parkland and high finance than they are in controlling money and controlling jobs-our money and their own municipal union's jobs. As I said, the politics of it is byzantine; the economics is hayseed; and as for municipal management-well, Detroit's a nice place to visit but I wouldn't want to live there any more.

Traditional business districts keep pace with times

One of the most important but least recognized factors that affects the character of individual suburbs in which we live is the kind and texture of commercial development.

Livonia, for example, is substantially affected in its basic character as a city by the fact that its two main commercial areas are shopping centers. Rochester, on the other hand, has a thriving main street and the atmosphere of a small, intimate

Two outstanding examples of excellence in commercial development in this area are the downtown shopping districts of Plymouth and Birming-

Both are based on the classical model of the downtown of a small town. Both are planned for diversity, intimacy and a wide range of humanscaled shopping and browsing activities. Both have as their core lovely parks, Kellogg in Plymouth and Shain in Birmingham.

by PHILIP H. POWER

And both downtown business merchant communities contribute much more than is commonly recognized to their parent cities' tax base. In Birmingham, for example, downtown businesses contribute an estimated 35 per cent of the total city tax revenue.

RECENT events, moreover, give strong indication that the downtowns of both Plymouth and Birmingham will continue to evolve with the

In Plymouth, former mayor and city commissioner Harold Guenther earlier this week announced plans to rehabilitate the old brick building next to the railroad tracks on North Main into a modern restaurant mall, with the added possibility of a summer theater.

"The only hope for the future of Plymouth is to develop unusual businesses and shops that will attract people from all sections and put the city on the map again," Guenther said.

Plymouth contains only two square miles, with little room to develop an industrial tax base. What's worse, Plymouth's main industry, Daisy Air Rifle, moved to Arkansas some years ago.

"There was a time when Plymouth was known around the globe," Guenther explained, "when the Daisy Air Rifle was manufactured here. Now we must do something to bring back that sort of "So we have to turn to business. And I am hoping that in the proposed mall we will have the type of shops that advertise in national magazines and attract people-and mail-to us," Guenther

The Plymouth industrialist explained that he got the overall idea for his development strategy on a recent trip.

On our recent trip to Williamsburg, Va., Mrs. Guenther talked me into going miles off the beaten path just to pick up an article she saw adver-tised in one of the specialty magazines. We could have such things right here in our city," Guenther said.

DOWNTOWN Birmingham has long been regarded as one of the finest, most diversified shopping areas in the entire state.

Recently, however, local merchants have become aware that further progress was necessary to continue to compete effectively with other developing shopping areas.

Working in the finest tradition of local self-help, a group of downtown Birmingham businessmen started meeting informally to develop ideas and begin the process of getting wide community sup-

Improvement of parking, more flexible zoning regulations, and imaginative development of underused parcels of land, and a host of other ideas are on their minds.

Sparkplugged by Meyer Kershenbaum, whose family owns the Kay Baum shops, the group has already reached out and established linkage with the chamber of commerce, through its new executive director, James Zeder

While nothing is in the formal stages, long-time Birmingham observers say the group represents one of the most positive forces seen in Birmingham in many years.

THE VIGOR and vitality of America has traditionally come from the business community in many important ways. In two suburbs, much alike yet very different, we have two examples of the foresight and imagination of local businessmen, working to make their community better. It's enormously encouraging, and I wish these men-and others like them throughout these suburbs-all the success they deserve.

To be safe, don't give the evil eye a look-see

The phenomemon of the evil eye is known in all countries the world over. Today, our best known encylopedias such as World Book and Britanica describe the evil eyes as a supersition.

The evil eye is the power to do harm or bring misfortune to someone simply by looking at him. There are people who possess this power. It is not a power with which one is born, but an acquired power.

However, it is not a power I would recommend working on, since I believe that it does as much harm to the person who uses it as it does to the one upon whom it is

IN THIS COLUMN, I have ofted discussed the power of positive thinking and the sending out of good energies.

The evil eye is the direct opposite of this. It is the power of negative thinking and sending out energies for negative pur-

INSTEAD OF TRYING to get even with someone like this, feel sorry for them and practice your power to think positively and to love enough to overcome those bad influences with your good ones.

Many people wear little Italian horns, gold crosses or other amulets to protect them from the evil eye. These do work to some extent—if you believe in them.

If you believe in these objects enough so that you really feel protected, continue to be joyous and optimistic and send off good vibes no matter what hatred or evil thoughts are cast your way, then you will be protected by them.

One of the most fascinating things when a fellow sits down at his typewriter to put one word after the other for appearance in the public prints is the fact that he never knows where they will go or what reactions they will cause-even in the most unusual places.

Often it has been said that there is nothing older than yesterday's newspaper. So it isn't surprising that oftimes the printed word lands in the trash can or, in some cases, is preserved in someone's scrapbook to be passed on to posterity

Seldom does the composer of the words hear of the final resting place unless some critic, in his wild reaction, tosses the paper on the floor for emphasis.

Sometimes though, there are some heart-warming reactions that make the writer feel his job has been worthwhile.

One of the best examples came a few years ago, near the Christmas season, when the Stroller composed a piece about the old Moravian custom of building a putz for the Christmas tree back home.

While the printed word was being prepared for the press, many of the Stroller's co-workers laughed at the thought of a putz. They never had heard of such a

THEN ONE afternoon he was called to the phone. On the other end was an excited woman, who admitted that she was in tears, and called to thank him for helping her over a case of homesickness at the Yule Season

"I am a new bride," she said, "and just came out here from the places in Pennsylvania vou wrote about was telling my neighbors that I was building a Christmas putz and they laughed. They thought I was trying to kid them.

"But like any other young bride, I guess. I am a bit homesicke and didn't know what to do. Then, along came your story in the paper and it helped a lot. Now my neighbors are interested and they think it would be fun to build a putz for their tree. So thanks a lot.

You can imagine The Stroller's feelings after a conversation like that. It not only brightened his day, but made him feel that he had done his goodly act of bringing joy to someone at the Christmas season.

On another occasion. The Stroller expressed a yearning for a piece of the time honored Dutch treat-shoe-fly pie. He went into detail to describe its appearance and taste. He told of the many times that they feasted on shoo-fly pie down in the Dutch Country and that no day was complete with a taste of this delicacy.

For a few days nothing was heard, and there was no reason to believe that the glorifying of the shoo-fly pie had any ef-

What a treat that was-shoo-fly pie for lunch from an unknown reader.

But one of the most unusual reactions came last week when The Stroller moaned the fact that the red beet seeds he planted with such high hope last spring had failed to break through the ground. He also bemoaned the fact that now his yearning for another Dutch treat-red beet eggs-would go for naught

On the day the paper appeared, The Stroller was having dinner when his wife called. "there is some one coming to the back door.

Sure enough, there stood a fellow, all smiles, andwith a large brown bag in his arms "I just read your column in the paper," he said. "and I didn't want you to be without red beets. I am your neighbor, over on Six Mile Road." Then, he left, still laugh-

It was no laughing matter to The Stroller who was so taken aback that he didn't even have time to say. "Thanks."

IF THE STROLLER'S neighbor only knew what happened.

The beets were delicious, but once they were boiled the little lady in our house who claimed she never had prepared red beet eggs, resurrected an old Dutch cook book, and there found the recipe. Now. The Stroller's yearning for red beet eggs has been satisfied, for the time being. But even more important to him is the fact that the words he placed one after the other about his red beet failure had a great reaction. His neighbor had the chance to do a good turn, the little lady had the rich experience of preparing the red beet eggs. The Stroller had his wants fulfilled- and more than that he had the satisfaction that his work was being read. A fellow can't ask for much more.

CHILD ABUSE

Everybody shares its responsibility and feels its tragedy

"If we are willing to take an honest look at our lives," says novelist Patte Wheat, "we find that child abuse is a personal issue with every one of us."

By MARGARET MILLER

Child abuse isn't an isolated problem that affects a few unfortunate youngsters and happens to other classes of society.

Rather, it's a part of every strata of society—probably every family to some degree—and it may be the primary reason for the escalating crime in this country.

That's the message being taken around the country by two representatives of Parents Anonymous, a nationwide organization to combat such abuse. They are novelist Patte Wheat and clinical social worker Leonard L. Lieber. PA's national administrator. They stopped at the Plymouth Hilton hotel during a brief visit for radio and television appearances in the Detroit metropolitan area.

"We're all capable of abuses, given a situation of sufficient stress," said Ms. Wheat, who has just written "By Sanction of the Victim," a novel depicting an extreme abuse case placed in a family set-

"I don't know any parents who have not on occasion been abusive." she added. Lieber looked at the matter from a little different angle.

"We've already lost a president to child abuse." he stated

"Lee Harvey Oswald was an abused child. So are many others who have come into the news for other killings, and ta large percentage of the 17-year-olds in street gangs knew abuse as seven-year-olds."

IN THEIR VISIT here, Ms. Wheat and Lieber also talked about recent governmental recognition of the enormity of the problem and the funding of Parents Anonymous work, of visits around the country with units of PA and of incidents in visits to many cities that show the problem is coming into the open.

coming into the open.

That wasn't the case, the writer said, when she first began recognizing the problem about 1965, five years before Lieber, the counselor, and Jolly K., a prisoner held in a child's death, began the organization of Parents Anonymous.

Mrs. Wheat said it was when her own three children were aged 10, eight and three, that she read an account in Time magazine about a teen-aged girl who was left by her parents with a woman who "diciplined" her to death.

"I guess even then, as I read the story treated as an isolated murder, I had a feeling on the gut level that there was in this country a great hypocrisy, on the one hand child worship and on the other hand a history of doing very little for children.

"My research went on, and I collected more news stories and heard of more incidents. I learned, although the term 'child abuse' wasn't in common usage then, that it represents a pattern, with the parent who has been hurt as a child unable to treat his own children any differently.

"More and more, I realized that as parents we are no better nor worse than the parenting we received, unless therapy intervenes."

MS. WHEAT also talked of "institutionalized" child abuse, which she said results from "apathy and government greed," in the way prisons put young delinquents into the company of older and more hardened criminals.

"As long as brutality in any sector of our society is accepted, we will have child abuse," she added.

The period of study of child abuse and her eventual joining forces with the PA group as editor of its monthly newsletter also became a time of looking closely at her own life. Ms. Wheat said.

"I had a mother I always could talk to, and that part of my background was good," she said, "but I also had a father who walked out of our lives, and left that feeling of abusive neglect in me.

"I found that in dealing with my own children, I sometimes fell apart under stress, and then I became so fearful of this anger that I would withdraw from them.

"I know I have grown a great deal over the past 10 years and can handle this far . better. I'm still growing and my relationships with my own children is far more open now."

BOTH VISITORS said a large part of their mission is to emphasize that child abuse is not just beating and physical harm. "You can wreck someone's self-esteem without laying a hand on him," the novelist said. "There's verbal and social abuse, and patterns of sexual abuse are just com-

"People don't like to recognize that kind of abuse, but it is very much part of the scene."

WHILE IN THE Detroit area, Ms. Wheat and Lieber met with Jill Mauch of Plymouth, a regional representative of Parents Anonymous.

Mrs. Mauch told them about the work that is being done here with a $25,000 grant, part of money appropriated in 1974 by the U. S. department of Health, Education and Welfare's office of child development.

"We now have an office in Lincoln Park." Mrs. Mauch said, "and parents interested can reach us by calling 381-5307 or 381-5308. We also have an emergency number for parents in stress situations, and that's in operation 24 hours a day in the office of Downriver Guidance, 383-9000."

She also said PA has an increasing number of units functioning in the metropolitan area, and further growth will become possible as more leaders volunteer services.

that is getting major attention in the appearences he and Ms. Wheat make around the country.

"This grant is a major breakthrough of recognition of this problem," Lieber said.

"We hope to have it renewed when it runs out in another nine months.
"We want it known that this three-quar-

"We want it known that this three-quarters of a million dollars is being matched all over the country by hours of volunteer work of equal value, and the impact is beginning to be felt.

"The reality of child abuse in its many forms is now out in the open. That's the right kind of use of government funds.

THE TOUR also is aimed at publicizing Ms. Wheat's new book, which already has 125,000 advance orders and has been nominated for a Pulitzer Prize.

It is. Ms. Wheat said, a fictionalized account of that first case of child abuse that caught her attention, and it was written because over the years the question that kept haunting her was how did it feel to be that young girl.

Lieber, in his preface, called the book one that "should become part of the growing recognized public awareness of our mutually shared responsibility—to make safe the formative years of all our families, our most important natural resource."

Program for families

Home getting set to help

The Methodist Children's Home, 22645 Six Mile. Redford Township, is now taking the first steps toward setting up a comprehensive program to aid abused children and their families.

Providing foster care homes for children under six is the initial goal of the program.

"We are still accepting applications from people wishing to be foster care parents for an abused child," said Jeri McKeon, case worker in charge of the project. "We need to have half a dozen specialized homes of this kind for children who can relate to others in a family setting.

"We will give supportive help to these foster parents to help them deal with the child's behavior."

Miss McKeon explained that a case worker would be assigned to each child and family to offer suggestions.

"We have a child care staff whose members will also be working with foster parents. If, for example, the parents on a certain certain day are overwhelmed, a child care worker can come in to give relief so they can get away."

TRAINING SEMINARS for foster parents will also be instituted by the Methodist Children's Home to offer explicit suggestions on behavior problems.

"Our goal is to return the child to its parents." declared Miss McKeon. "It's a short term care program. Hopefully the child won't be in the foster home more than six months or a year."

While the parents are separated from their children they will receive counseling from the children's home staff whose emphasis will be on family therapy.

Other aspects of the three-part program which the facility hopes to launch in the future are the establishment of a human resource center to work with 12 families and a residential treatment program for children who have been severely abused on a long standing basis so they have to be removed from the home.

For the latter program, the children will live under supervision in a cottage on the grounds of the children's home.

"THE RESOURCE CENTER will deal with families with whom abuse is not chronic." noted Miss McKeon. "The children will continue to live at home, and their parents will come to the center for counseling. We will work with families with young children to bring about changes in the abusive pattern."

These two programs are as yet ununded.

Staff members of Methodist Children's Home turned their thoughts toward creating a program to ease the child abuse situation because of requests by the Michigan Department of Social Services and other agencies dealing with juveniles.

"Rather than just providing services for abused children, they want to get to the core of the problem," said Miss McKeon. "They want to work with parents to try to alter the abusive pattern."

Parents wishing to help these children and their families by becoming foster parents may contact Miss McKeon at 531-1816.

These tips can help make camping fun

A camping trip can be an unforgettable experience for the entire family. Unforgettable as a relaxing back-to-nature vacation or unforgettable as a disasterous weekend in the wilderness. Barbara Tickner, project manager in the loss control department of CNA Insurance, offers assurances that the good times can outweigh the mishaps if campers will observe simple health and safety rules.

Ms. Tickner, a veteran camper, offers the following suggestions as ways to lessen the risks of accidents during a camping

• ★When pulling a utility or camping trailer, limit the load to one-half the car's weight to decrease the possibility of accidents or auto breakdown.

Bloodmobile will visit Plymouth

Because of the on-going need for blood donors, the Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Plymouth Wednesday, Aug. 18. From 3-9 p.m. it will be located at the Church of the Nazarene, 41550 Ann Arbor Trail. For information call 453-1525.

Because whole blood lasts only 21 days, the Southeastern Michigan Red Cross must collect 4,500 pints of blood per week to meet the needs of Detroit area hospitals.

Donors may also visit the Livonia Donor Center, 15425 Middle Belt, from 2-8 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday and

To help bridge the gap between needs of the elderly and services presently rendered to them by various persons and agencies, Madonna will begin an interdisciplinary program introducing gerontology to all students.

"SMALL COLLEGES recognize and valve the leadership of larger institutions in new areas of study such as gerontology," said Sister Mary Francilene, "but small colleges have the facility to adapt quickly to surfacing needs."

"Our long-established sociology, nursing, home economics and family life departments gave us a natural lead-in to this developing and expanding career field," she said. She cited a report by the Institute of Gerontology indicating a need for more than 21,000 workers with the elderly in the Detroit area alone.

The popular training program, Volunteers to Assist the Aging, which in two years has developed a new awareness and understanding of the aging in over 350 persons, will be repeated beginning in November, she said.

Eddie joins the pastor for ministerial team

By LYNN ORR

A minister that speaks "out of both sides of his mouth" might have been run out of town in years past. But Dwight Wymer has incorporated his talent of ventriloquism into a part of his ministry to the extent that "Eddie" could almost be considered an associate minister.

"Eddie" is a three-feet hand-carved ventriloquial figure with a mop of hair and a wise-cracking manner.

"Using Eddie is a good way of getting people interested in Bible studies." said Pastor Wymer, minister of music and youth at the Merriman Road Baptist Church in Garden City.

He works with the educational program of his church, especially Sunday school and Bible schools. He has used Eddie in revivals, pastoral meetings, retreats, camps, and banquets.

"Eddie tells Bible stories and is sometimes just for fun-telling jokes and singing songs," he explained. Eddie has become so much a part of the youth groups that the children ask where he is if I don't bring him along." "We have a special service for the children geared to their level, and, using Eddie, the children respond very well."

PASTOR WYMER first was introduced to ventriloquism when he watched Paul Winchell and Jerry Mahoney on television and began practicing as a child with a play puppet of Jerry Mahoney. After graduating from Blue Mountain College in Mississippi, he entered Golden Gate Seminary in San Francisco and purchased Eddie his first year in seminary. He was inspired to use Eddie in his ministry when a visiting pastor used a puppet in evening studies where "everyone is usu-

Everyone came alive when he pulled out the puppet, but he missed the boat by not using the puppet in his actual talk, said Pastor Wymer. "I decided I wanted to use Eddie more effectively and have found that people really respond to him."

AFTER MINISTERING at the 19th Avenue Baptist Church in San Francisco parttime, he returned to his home state, and got his present position at Merriman Road Baptist Church, were he has been for two

"The national average is 18 months to two years for this type of position, but once you get through the second year, you know everybody," says Pastor Wymer. "I want to stay at a church long enough to grow a ministry and five years is really the minimum to put together a youth pro-

"The older ones were set in their ways when I came here, but the seventh and eighth grade group developing now are really dynamos in this church," he noted of the group of 45, which he expects to double within a year. Working with Eddie at the Allan Dee Residential Center on Van Born and Merriman once a week, Pastor Wymer has found that adults even respond more to Eddie than children.

"It's sometimes difficult to work to a children's audience because the types of jokes and routines you use are sometimes over their heads and they don't catch the humor," he explained, but added, "It's all part of the challenge.

USING EDDIE at a recent Pastors' Conference. Pastor Wymer enjoyed a good response from the audience, and also finds Eddie works well with older youth in camp

"People will listen and accept things from Eddie that they don't accept from me," he said.

Being able to admonish people in a nice way is only part of the appeal. "With drinking, smoking, and swearing, Eddie can really get all over people, and they hear him but they don't get mad at him," he explained. Pastor Wymer has also discovered some of the pitfalls of working with a ventriloquial figure.

One of the girls at a children's meeting was acting up so Eddie called her up to the stage and challenged her to stay quiet while he tried to get her to talk. "It didn't quite work out as beneficially as I thought it might because all the children wanted to misbehave so they could talk to Eddie," Pastor Wymer explained with a laugh. He and his wife Vivian live at 31525 John Hauk, and as the father of four, he has found time to work with Eddie at Marquette school with an entertainment type program that he'd like to do more

"IN A SECULAR setting you can use more of the routines written down therough the years which makes it easier for me," said the pastor. He finds writing skits the most difficult aspect of working with Eddie.

"My son has a play Danny O'Day puppet and he always wants me to write skits for Danny and Eddie. Coming up with new ideas can be hard," he added.

Recently selected one of the Outstanding Young Men of America, which is sponsored by the United States Jaycees. Pastor Wymer wants to expand his work with Eddie to include more adult audiences.

"It's an exciting thing being able to become two people," said the innovative pastor. "Everyone comes alive when Eddie's around and that's a fun thing to be part Pastor Dwight Wymer and Eddie make a team at meetings, revivals, camps and banquets in this area. The clergyman (he's on the right) is minister of youth and music at Merriman Road Baptist Church, Garden City. (Staff photo by Christopher Chag-

There were many upsets and suprises for candidates running for national office in districts including western Wayne County. The area totals reflected statewide results in the Democraticsenatorial race where U.S. Rep. Donald Riegle (D-Flint) pulled a stunning upset over challenger Sec. of State Richard Austin, the generally acknowledged front runner. The area also supported U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) in his bid for the Republican senatorial nomination. Dr. Edward Pierce trounced Livonia lawyer Marvin Stempien, a former state representative, for the Democratic nomination in the 2d Congressional District. State

Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) carried western Wayne County and the district to win the Republican nomination for the face-off with Pierce. The 15th Congressional races were uncontested and U.S. Rep. William Ford (D-Taylor) will challenge James Walaskay in the November election. Incumbent U.S. Rep. William Brodhead (D-Detroit) handily beat Harry Teachout for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 17th district. A Redford resident, Teachout lost to Brodhead in his own district. Brodhead will face James Burdick in the November presidential election.

Mrs. Joyner heads school board group

Geraldine Joyner, a member of the boards of education of Livonia and the Wayne County Intermediate School District, has been elected president of the County Association of Wayne Boards.

Della Haakana of the South Redford School District is the organization's new recording secretary

The county school boards' association is composed of members of the 36 local school districts in the county.

Other officers for the 1976-77 school year are Robert D. Frazee, Lincoln Park, vice president; Clara Rutherford, Detroit, corresponding secretary; and Clyde Inks of Taylor, treasurer

Sarah Power chairs U.S. commission

Sarah Goddard Power has been elected chairwoman of the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO. Mrs. Power replaces Rosemary Ginn, recently appointed by President Ford as American ambassador to Luxembourg.

The commission is a 100-member body of individuals and non-governmental organizations created by Congress in 1946 to advise the U.S. government on UNESCO's programs and budget and to carry out programs in the fields of education, science and culture.

Mrs. Power is married to Philip H. Power, chairman of the board of Suburban Communications Corp. and co-publisher of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. They reside in Ann Arbor.

She is a regent of the University of Michigan. Graduated from Vassar College and New York University, her previous professional experience includes work for Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller when he was governor of New York. She also worked for former New York City Mayor John Lindsay and with the New York City Commission for the United Nations and for the Consular Corps.

Mrs. Power has been a member of the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO since June 1973 and a vice-chairwoman since December 1975. She is a director of the United Nations Association of the United States of America and a director of the Associate Alumnae of Vassar College

Latin music sweeps Meadow Brook

By CRAIG REYNOLDS

Latin America sweeps through two hemispheres, with contrasts and wonders so vast that the voice of its symphonies ought to be as rich as the landscapes of cultures and nations

That was the expectation before attending the Meadow Brook Music Festival concert Saturday night, an expectation disappointed by programmatic music which evoked more images of Saturday movie matinees than the plains and forests south of the Rio Grande.

Condcutor Eduardo Mata from the National Symphony in Mexico City led the Detroit Symphony Orchestra through five compositions by three South Americans and one emigrant Spaniard. Each composer had taken small musical ideas and blown them out of philharmonic proportions to stultifying effect.

The first warning note was sounded as Mata led the orchestra through four national anthems. This was an honorable gesture, but it also showed how very ordinary and uninteresting an overload of such music can be.

FIRST UP came Alberto Ginastera's Pampeana No. 3, the Argentina composer's orchestral rendering of Pampa, the grassy plain which stretches flat and treeless from the Atlantic Ocean to the Andes.

Ginastera's "musical treatment added very little to that simple topography, his minor chordings sounding much like experiments by Charles Ives.

Julian Orbon's Tres Versiones Sinfonicas at least evoked some symphonic energy, the middle of the three versions exhibiting a pleasing extension from a 12thcentury French theme into a distinctive but somewhat hackneyed Latinic style.

The versions before and after sounded intent on pressing their way into Western musical consciousness through the Hollywood Bowl.

In the second walf of the Meadow Brook concert, some strong, serious music was put out in three works by Carlos Chavez of Mexico, and Heitor Villa-Lobos of Brazil.

CHAVEZ EL SOL was wisely relocated to the penultimate spot on the program. A short choral work. El Sol is higly chromatic, often bellowed paean to the "round, red sun, bright as a copper pitcher." This work did have a primitive Indian flair. though it was difficult to sort out the choral from the symphonic harmonies as they blew through the festival amphitheater.

The main attraction for the concert was a Villa-Lobos entry, not his larger Choros No. 10 for Chorus and Orchestra, but the compact, moody first half of Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5 for Soprano and Eight

Here was a work that combined excellently a very fmailiar but freshly extended melodic line from the classical tradition with an undercurrent of sulky, half-wild rhythms. Topped by the excellent sporano voice of Irene Gubrud, the Bachianas Brasileiros No. 5 was the aromatic treat of the evening

The concert closed with the Villa-Lobos Choros No. 10, a selection that demanded attention, with themes handed off from French horns to the violins and returned over the smoky forestral sound of the

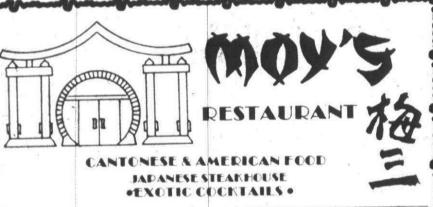

The Meadow Brook Festival Chorus performed vailantly for both the Chavez and Villa-Lobos works.

MATA CONDUCTED energeticvally. even brashly, bringing out an unbounded sound from the less distinctive works as if intending to fling the mustc straight uphill to the last patron on the Meadow Brook

For Villa-Lobos. Mata's efforts brought forth a very mature sound: closing phrasing in the Choros No. 10 often sounded agreeably like the great, sighing resonances of a fine cathedral organ.

'Seascape' scene

Harper Jane McAdoo and Michael Cullen (foreground) find themselves being watched by a pair of sea creatures, played by George C. Kapaz (left) and Deborah A. Pietruska, in the Wayne State University Summer Festival production of Edward Albee's "Seascape." Winner of the 1975 Pulitzer and Tony Awards, "Seascape" will run through Aug. 14 in the Studio Theater, downstairs at the Hilberry. For ticket information, contact the box office at 577-2972.

Theaters' seasons span 15 plays and 5 centuries

Fifteen plays representing five centuries of drama will be presented by Wayne State University at the Hilberry and Bonstelle theatres during the 1976-77 season, according to an announcement by Leonard Leone, director of the WSU Theatre.

This includes seven Hilberry repertory plays, the Bonstell series of six, and two 'firsts' -the debut of a new Black Theatre touring company and the first annual Blakely scholarship benefit.

The combined seasons, playing from October to June, will draw from the classics, modern drama, commedia dell'arte, black theater. French farce, musicals, and stage adaptations of narrative literature. Shakespeare, Moliere, Goldoni, Turgeniev. Feydeau, Shaw, Melville, Rodgers and Hart, Orson Welles and more recent playwrights are represented.

Following revivals of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" and Moliere's "The Miser." held over-from last year and reopening Oct. 8 and 15, the Hilberry Graduate Repertory Comapny will open its new season with "Journey of the Fifth Horse," by Ronald Ribman, adaptecd from Turgeniev's "Diary of a Superflous Man."

It will be presented for Theatre Spopnsors at the President's Preview on Nov. 12. and will officially open the following Wednesday, Nov. 17, at 8:30 p.m.

Other plays to be added to the repertory and their official opening dates are: "The Lion in Winter" by James Goldman. Dec. 15. Shakespeare's "Othello." Feb. 2. Orson Welles' "Moby Dick-Rehearsed." an adaptation of Melville's novel, March 2, an G.B. Shaw's "You Never Can Tell." April 20.

Following the repertory season, the theater's new Black Theatre Touring Company will introduce its first production. "The Sty of the Blind Pig." at the Hilberry. Performances of the Phillip Hayes Dean play are sheduled for June 1 through 4. It will be availabe for tour bookings during 1977-

The Bonstelle Theatre series begins Oct. 15 with "The First Breeze of Summer" by Leslie Lee. This is followed by Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." opening Nov. 26; Rodgers and Hart's "Pal Joey," Feb. 4: Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters," March 11; "Five on the Black Hand Side" by Charlie L. Russel, April 22, and "Hotel Paradiso" by Georges Feyedeau and Maurice Desvallieres on May 27. Bonstelle plays run for two week-ends, the musical, "Pal Joey," for three.
The Studio Theatre, downstairs at the Hilberry, is offering the theater's first annual scholarship benefit production. Lanford Wilson's off-Broadway success "Hot I Baltimore," Oct. 21-23 and 28-30. Proceeds will go to the Blakely Scholarship Fund. es. tablished this past season in memory of the late Professor Don Blakely, who was an assistant director of the WSU Theatre, and director of its BFA training program.

Brochures will complete the play schedules, ticket information will be available in September, and may be requested by calling 577-2972, or by writing to Wayne State Unviersity Theatre Box Office. Detroit

Historical museum offers family fun

The first of four "Wonderful Wednesdays" of free, family entertainment will be from 7-9 p.m. Aug. 4 in the Detroit Historical Museum, Woodward and Kirby. No advance registrations are necessary.

Featured each Wednesday in the series will be an 1840 Columbian Hand Press. printing "Wonderful Wednesday" mementos; quill pens which can be dipped and used: 18th century craft demonstrations; a vintage camera, snapping visitors' pictures in costume reproductions (at cost); visits to the French Habitant Cabin to learn to make pomander balls and syllabub, and a look at the rethreading process on a six-harness floor loom.

Lemonade and cookies, silent movies and barbershop quartets will be there for a change of pace.

EACH WEDNESDAY also will have its own special features. Mary G. Wilbert, Detroit Edison consumer services advisor. will give tips on home freezing and canning at 7 p.m. Aug. 4, Just for fun, the museum staff has assembled some recipes from "Mrs. Glass' 1770 Cook Book," including "catsup that keeps for 20 years" and how to pickle beet root

American bumpkin foils oily English villain in play

The Greenfield Village Players have revived the celebrated early American comedy. "Our American Cousin," on the stage of the Henry Ford Museum Theater. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. each Friday and Saturday evening through Sept. 4.

Written by Tom Taylor, this 19th-century farce depicts the adventures of a Yankee-Asa Trenchard-abroad on a visit to the home of his English cousin. As one might expect, Trenchard's typical American outspokenness not only shatters the quiet of the countryside, but manages to upset the smooth decorum of the English drawing room as well.

Predictably, however, Trenchard's bumbling awkwardness eventually works to his advantage, and he succeeds in defeating the deeds of an oily English villain.

PLAYING A supporting role in the drama is a 19-year-old Eastern Michigan University student from Westland, Jeanne Gurski. In addition to playing the role of Augusta, Miss Gurski, a vocal music major at EMU, readied the props and helped build sets for the play.

Hit group returning

Who'd believe that four fellows from Lauel, Miss. and a sidekick from Franklin. Pa., could set Motown on its ear with the likes of "Mammy," "Dixie," "Suwannee" and "It's a Grand Old Flag?" And the leader with a master's degree in musical com-

UM-D theater seeks director

The University of Michigan-Dearborn theater arts discipline is looking for an experienced, technical director for the fall production of "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" by Mark Medoff.

The award-winning play is a contmeporary American drama which was first produced off-Broadway several years

Participation in the play is open to the public. The technical directorship is the only paid position; however, other nonpaying positions also are open.

Auditions will be on the UM-D campus in September. The cast includes five men of varying ages and three women, two about 20 and one in her late 30s.

Persons interested in applying for the technical directorship should contact Dr. Susan Flierl, the play's director and instructor of theater arts, at 271-2300, ext.

For this season's production, Kenneth Wilson takes the role of Asa Trenchard. His cousin Florence is portrayed by Deborah DeCecco. The play is directed by Dr. Joseph French, manager of theater arts at Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

This is the fifth revival of "Our American Cousin" by Greenfield Village Players. Other productions for modern audiences were in 1964, 1966, 1967 and 1970. "Our American Cousin" was first performed at the Laura Keene Theater in New York City on Oct. 19, 1858. Its theme is typical of many theatrical productions of the day when audiences delighted watching as the homespun, but nonetheless wise. Yankee farmer managed to outwit his foppish European counterpart.

FOLLOWING ITS first performance, the play continued as a popular cornedy for several decades.

In fact, it was while watching a benefit performance of "Our American Cousin" on the evening of April 14, 1865, in Ford's Theatre in Washington D.C., that President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. The chair in which he was seated that night, together with his shawl and theater playbill, are preserved in the Abraham Lincoln Courthouse at Greenfield Village.

In keeping with theatrical traditions of an earlier America, the cast serenades audience members as they sip lemonade in the torch-lit courtyard during intermission. Actors and actresses thenb lead the audience back into the museum theater for the second half of the play.

ALL SEATS for for the play are reserved. Tickets may be obtained at the theater box office in the evenings of the performances or at The Dearborn Inn, 20301 Oakwood, Dearborn, and the Hyatt Regency-Dearborn, Michigan Avenue and the Southfield Freeway.

A combination package which includes dinner in the museum's Heritage Hall Restaurat and theater tickets is available on some evenings for groups, individuals or families. For information or to make reservations, telephone the travel and convention department, 271-1620, ext. 264.

All the Democratic incumbents in Wayne County government heaved a sigh of relief when they easily received their party's nod for a return to office in November. Livonia Republican Mary Dumas, one of the few Republicans in county government, faced no one in her party for a return bid to her county commissioner's seat. She will face Democrat Elizabeth Tavarozzi in November. William Lucas, James Killen and Forest Youngblood faced no serious challenges for their nominations. The western Wayne County totals generally reflected countywide totals.

Corporation could aid group

A new, nonprofit corporation has been named to serve as an advisory group for the Solar Energy Research Institute (SERI), should Michigan be chosen as the site for the institute.

SERI is a federally funded agency being désigned by the Energy Research and Development Administration to develop economical, efficient solar energy conversion systems that can be used by industry.

SERCOM's board of trustees will serve as an advisory group assisting the Bendix Corp., which would be operator-manager of a Michigan-based SERI.

Bendix, with corporate offices in Southfield, is a worldwide manufacturer serving the automotive, aerospace, industrial energy and shelter markets. The company, a member of the Michigan team which developed a bid for SERI, has pledged personnel and research facilities to the SERI project.

"SERCOM brings together talents of our country's top leaders in the business, energy, labor and educational fields," Milliken said. "No other state can equal this kind of backing and leadership for SERI. The expertise and corporate support these persons carry could insure SERI's suc-

Incumbents retained their parties nomination Tuesday for the legislative seats open in the November presidential election. In the 33d district, William Keith maintained his lead in his home city of Garden City to sweep the Democratic nomination with a total of 2,336 votes. His closest challenger was Patrick O'Neil who got 1,517 votes followed by Edwin Markowicz with 864 and Arnold Lutz with 149. Redford's state representative John Bennett won a total of 9,004 votes, compared with his Democratic opponent, David Malhalab, who got 1,838. Bennett will face William Hopp in November for the legislative seat in the 34th district. Incumbent Robert Geake won a total of 3,563 votes and will take on Democrat Jerome Harris, who won 2,026 vtoes, in the general election. The 36th district seat of John Markes was uncontested. Markes will challenge Republican Robert Law. In the 37th district, incumbent Thomas Brown defeated Brian Walker with 4,334 votes to 2,334 votes for the Democratic nomination. Brown will face perennial challenger Brian Kidston in November. State Rep. Roy Smith (R-Ypsilanti) ran an uncontested race and will run against Sally Roach in the general election.
