Study groups even study study groups

If the first meeting is any indication of things to come, it appears that the new Canton board will heavily promote the use of study groups.

Five different study groups were set up under the direction of the board Tuesday night.

One of the study groups is designed to study a study group. The existing Citizen's Advisory Commission (CAC) will be studied, or as Supervisor Harold Stein promised, "reorganized," to represent all groups in the community.

Subjects of the five study groups are police, land use, citizen's advisory committee, sign and permit regulations and commercial and industrial expansion.

While board members voted to establish all five study groups, some officials opposed specific groups. Clerk John Flodin did not think there was a need to have a committee look into the makeup of the CAC. Trustee Robert Myers didn't see any reason for studying or changing the present sign and permit ordinances.

In the audience, Peter Bundarin, unsuccessful Republican candidate for supervisor, said he felt professionals or experts, in each of the five areas should do the fact-finding, not untrained citizens.

"It'll take these citizen groups three months just to set up the times they meet," Bundarin said. "I'm afraid what you have much of the time with citizen's groups is pooled misconceptions. I want fact-finding and intensive research and cost breakdowns, not just what someone's opinion is."

Bundarin told the board that the land use committee must take a serious look at the growth rate of the community to see if the township can provide adequate services for new residents.

"I don't quite understand some of the apprehension," Stein told the audience. "My intention is to establish these committees not to appoint people to them at this meeting."

Trustee Lynne Goldsmith suggested that the farming community be well represented on the land use committee.

WHEN THE POINT was raised about studying the make-up of the Citizen's Advisory Committee (CAC), Bob Quinn, CAC president, said he felt his fellow committee members would resent "Big Brother looking over them." Stein told Quinn that he misinterpreted the board's intent.

When members of the audience stood to ask why senior citizens, mobile home organizations, renters, and children were not represented on the CAC, Quinn replied that some interest groups such as the senior citizens "never asked" to be included. He said they would be added, if they ask.

"My problem with this whole thing is, 'Why appoint a committee to study a study committee?'" said Quinn. "Are you investigating us? If so, why? Why must you come up with something new? Why not let the CAC do your study to determine if all groups are not being represented?"

Clerk to tape meetings

By CRAIG PIECHURA

While it is the new policy of the Canton Township board to keep an official tape recording of its meetings, Canton Clerk John Flodin still has some "nagging questions" about the practice.

Flodin said he wonders how long he should store tapes for public perusal.

"Before, when we taped meetings, I'd reuse the tape the next meeting," Flodin said. "Now how many million tapes will I be required to store and for how long?"

Flodin is also concerned about how to supervise the tape-listening without taking time away from his job or that of his employees.

"The Tuesday night meeting lasted three hours," Flodin said. "What if I give the tape recorder and tapes to someone and he pushes the wrong button erasing the tape? Do I have to put a capable person in the room with them all the while they're listening? Because if something happens to those tapes, I know who'll take the blame. Me."

A RECENT ruling by Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley said home rule cities in Michigan must allow members of the public to hear tape recordings of city council meetings if those tapes have not been destroyed.

Kelley was asked by State Senator Joseph Snyder (D-St. Clair Shores) to rule on the City of East Detroit's refusal to allow a resident listen to a tape recording of a city council meeting. East Detroit officials offered to show the resident the printed minutes but refused to allow him to listen to the recording which was used to prepare the minutes.

The attorney for East Detroit held the opinion that only the minutes were the public record of the meeting. Kelley disagreed, citing a court case involving the Board of Pharmacy of Michigan. According to a spokesman for the attorney general, in that previous instance the judge ruled that information used to prepare formal minutes were part of the public record.

Kelley also cited a Utah case where untranscribed notes were judged to be "public writings" and required to be accessible to the public upon request.

"What public bodies do in open meetings is the public's business," Kelley said. "It follows that records of any type made during the meetings should be open to public scrutiny."

FLODIN SAID he does not know if Kelley's ruling, which mentions home rule cities, is applicable to townships.

Flodin has opposed taping of board meetings in the past saying that he felt off-hand remarks made by board members could be taken out of context and used against the board in court.

On Oct. 28, Flodin voted to rescind the ban against any board member making a tape of the proceedings. Flodin explained at the time that he "reluctantly" voted to rescind the ban after hearing an opinion from Michigan Township Association Attorney John Bauckham. Bauckham stated that any member of the board had the same right as any citizen to tape a public meeting.

At the time Flodin said he didn't like it, but he'd comply because he didn't want to break the law.

"I still am opposed to taping anyway," Flodin said Friday. "But that's just my personal opinion. I want to do what's right, so I'm in the process of writing a letter to Bauckham to clear up some of these very questions."

Goodfellows find costs increasing

Canton Goodfellows this year hope to raise enough funds from their annual newspaper sale Dec. 11 at shopping centers throughout the township to give all needy township residents a Christmas.

Ralph Burch, a member of the Canton Goodfellows for 26 years, says the number of needy township families has risen in recent years, while proceeds from the annual newspaper sale have remained about the same.

WE REALLY HAVEN'T set a goal this year," the veteran Goodfellow explained. "It would really be an impossibility. It seems our needs are outweighing our income. We hope that we don't have as many (needy family) cases this year or that we manage to get more donations."

Last year, the organization spent about $3,500 to give 75 township families a turkey, the makings of a holiday dinner, fruits and nuts, clothing certificates and some toys.

In sharp contrast, the Goodfellows raised only about $2,000 from their newspaper sale. The difference between income and expenditures, Burch explained, came from the Goodfellows' reserve fund.

"We did have that much in the reserve fund—then," Burch said. "But this year's a different matter."

Burch hopes Canton residents will show more generosity in their donations for the needy this year.

"There are an increasing number of people in the township who are in need," Burch said. "but I think there are many residents who are turned off by this type of thing."

Last year, a lot of people would deliberately walk on by when we were selling our papers or give us a dirty look. A couple of us got contributions of a penny."

ALTHOUGH DONATIONS have stayed about the same, Burch says the number of families requesting Goodfellow Christmas packages has risen each year.

In 1973, for example, the Goodfellows helped about 35 families, while the organization helped about 55 in 1974. The number of Christmas package recipients jumped to about 75 families last year.

Burch attributes the rise to the township's growing population. Last year, most Christmas package recipients were ADC families.

"There's been quite a substantial increase," he said, "but, unfortunately, our paper sales haven't kept pace."

"Most names of needy families are turned in by relatives, churches or friends," he added. "Some people turn their own names in. Each case is investigated, and we check with neighbors or other people about their financial status."

To compound the Goodfellows' financial problems, Burch says the cost of putting out the organization's Christmas newspaper has risen in recent years.

While members of the organization used to write, lay out, proofread and gather advertising for the newspaper themselves, Burch says a drop in the Goodfellows' membership forced the organization to contract the work out.

"The trouble was, doing it ourselves involved a lot of work. We just haven't had the manpower to continue that way," he explained.

Persons willing to help the Goodfellows conduct their newspaper drive are asked to contact the organization's president, Ken Witt, at the township firehall (981-1113). To submit names of needy families, residents should contact Witt or call the Canton Township business offices at 397-1000.

Special classes for seniors

A Canton resident and the Plymouth Kiwanis Club have joined forces to provide senior citizens in the Plymouth community with an opportunity to go back to school to learn about nutrition, wills, and the psychology of living and dying.

The classes will be held from noon to 4 p.m. on Dec. 11 at West Middle School and will bring together experts from a wide variety of fields to talk to senior citizens.

Jane Brown, a graduate student at the University of Michigan, supplied the idea and got the ball rolling. Sanford Burr, chairman of the Kiwanis Club's greater years committee, arranged for the financial backing for the program, which both parties hope will be just the beginning.

"This project grew out of a similar one at the University of Nebraska," said Mrs. Brown. "It is the first time it's been tried here, so we really have no idea what kind of response we will get from Plymouth-Canton senior citizens."

"We think that this is an opportunity for them to learn some valuable and useful things about subjects which greatly affect their lives. And if there is enough community interest, we would like to have a continuing series of seminars aimed at whatever the seniors think they would like to know."

Prisoner 'abuse' disputed by the director of Dehoco

By PATRICK TOUHEY

The Detroit office of the FBI and the State Department of Corrections are continuing their investigations into allegations of prisoner mistreatment at the Detroit House of Corrections (DeHoCo). William Rucks, director of DeHoCo, lashed the charges "grossly over-stated and completely groundless."

Complaints were filed last week with both the FBI and the Department of Corrections that two inmates were handcuffed to the doors of their cells and made to stand barefoot in human excrement.

Rucks told the Observer that the men were "restrained" so that nurses could give them a sedative. "Look, we are talking about two very violent mental patients," Rucks said. "These guys are big—about 200 pounds—and it usually takes six or eight men to control them. We handcuffed them to the cell door because it was the only way we could get close enough to them to give them a shot."

"What else are you going to do? You don't want to hurt the guy, and you don't want to let him hurt the employees. And I am telling you these guys are crazy."

Rucks said that the men had been confined in the hospital ward but had been moved into the isolation unit because of violent behavior.

"One of the guys broke down a door in the hospital and terrified the nurses," stated Rucks. "We had to put him in an isolation cell to protect people."

WHY WERE MEN with emotional problems in DeHoCo rather than a mental hospital?

"You tell me. They pick these guys up off the street and bring them out here, and we have to handle them," Rucks said.

"We have tried to get them committed, but every time they take the sanity test they get better real quick. Do you know what I mean? As it stands right now, they are not committable."

In response to the allegation that the men were forced to stand in human waste, Rucks said that one of the inmates had deliberately plugged up the toilet in his cell, so that it overflowed onto the floor. Whenever an employee went into the cell to clean it up, the inmate would throw the waste at the person, Ruck said.

"If the guards had used too much restraint, I would have heard about it and disciplined the people involved," Rucks stated. "But I am convinced that there has been no mistreatment here."

AN FBI SPOKESMAN said the bureau had received a complaint and are in the process of investigation," he said.

He emphasized that it was not an in-depth FBI investigation because the only person who can authorize that is the assistant attorney general in charge of civil rights at the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C.

Jeffrey Eubank, administrator of the Office of Jail Services in Lansing, said Friday that the Department of Corrections was continuing its inquiry with on-site investigation and requests for written material.

"As I understand it," said Eubank, "one man was highly disruptive and was handcuffed to keep him from doing harm to himself and others."

"We have not been able to substantiate the other man's role or if there was mistreatment involved."

Greenstein buys back $654 antiques desk

Robert Greenstein may be out of the supervisor's office, but he'll take a piece of it with him.

A $654 desk, which was antiqued during his term, bought by Greenstein after a special item was added to last Tuesday's board agenda at his request.

Supervisor Harold Stein said he'd talked to Greenstein and agreed to sell the desk for the price the township paid plus the $354 antiquing cost.

Greenstein suggested that he receive a bit of a discount since the antiquing job wasn't done right.

I would hope you'll wait until I find a replacement desk before you take it home," Stein said. A kidding Greenstein said he'd rent the desk out.

The motion to allow Greenstein to buy the desk back was passed unanimously. When Clerk John Flodin called the vote roll, he made the inevitable opening night slip of the tongue by calling Stein "Greenstein." The audience roared.

During the meeting when Stein encountered a little trouble with Robert's Rules of Order, Canton reporter Maureen Rademacher quipped, "What we're seeing tonight is a green Stein."

45-15 is topic of workshop

Plymouth School Board members will hold a workshop on Miller Elementary School's year-round program tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. at Plymouth Canton High School.

Board members will discuss the pilot 45-15 program, implemented at Miller in July, 1974, and weigh the merits of continuing the program another year.

Under the 45-15 program, tracks of Miller students attend classes for nine weeks and receive three weeks off.

The public is invited to tonight's workshop.

Recount on Wednesday for all three petitioners in Canton local election

The recount demanded by two unsuccessful supervisor candidates and one trustee candidate will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday, according to county election officials.

All 10 precincts are scheduled for inspection by the county elections office. Their time will be charged to the township.

Republican supervisor candidate Peter Bundarin, who placed third behind Democrat Harold Stein and Robert Greenstein, who ran a second-place write-in effort, both hope the recount reveals more write-in votes than before.

Bundarin said he will challenge "a few" write-in sticker votes because he believes that they were done improperly. Bundarin believes that to make a write-in sticker vote legal, voters must also mark an 'X' next to the name on the sticker.

Revolutionary discoveries are revealed about aging

Dr. Howard McClusky, professor emeritus at the University of Michigan, addressed the Plymouth Rotary Club Friday on the topic of "Life Long Learning: New Opportunities." The presentation was part of the club's year-long Seminar On Aging.

McClusky's message to the audience was that professional educators were re-thinking some traditional ideas about the nature of the educational process.

"There is a revolution going on in respect to the time, place, and age that education can take place," McClusky stated. "We used to think that the best time to learn was between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. from September to June, and that the best place was in the classroom."

"We also used to believe that childhood and early youth were the ages when learning was the easiest. But all that is not true. We are beginning to accept the value of life long learning."

McClusky said that because of those beliefs a number of myths about the process of education were in existence. He informed the audience that he wanted to explode some of those myths.

"First," he said, "let's take the notion that childhood is the best time to learn. It is true that learning takes place very easily then, but it doesn't take into account that as a person gets older and encounters the problems of life, he gains experience and gets the motivation to learn."

McClusky added that it was impossible to learn enough in the few years of formal education to last a lifetime. "There are new discoveries being made everyday. To keep growing, a person must keep learning."

He also attacked the notion that older people lose the mental capacity necessary to learn new information. "There was a time when it was commonly thought the peak years for mental activity were those between 25 and 30. But new research has shown that if a person is in fairly decent health and has been fairly active, he does not decrease in mental ability as he grows older."

IN SUPPORT OF his argument, McClusky gave examples of significant achievement by older people.

In particular he told about one man who retired from his job at age 65 and started college. Three years later, he graduated and became active in local politics. And McClusky said that the last he heard, the man had a very good chance of becoming the mayor of Adrian.

He also cited many examples of universities and colleges which were developing new classes and programs to encourage the elderly to get involved in life long learning.

"In my judgement, the time will come when we will recognize that the later years are the golden years for learning, without the fear of failure, without the motivation of financial success, but just for the sheer joy of it."

Copter touches down; Santa comes to town

By CRAIG PIECHURA

It may have been raining on Friday. The sky may have been gray. But things were far from gloomy at the Canton Recreation Field when the jolly old fatman himself touched down via helicopter before a throng of about 300 wide-eyed youngsters and believing adults.

Lately, Canton Township has become a busier stop for Santa on Christmas Eve, so the red-suited philanthropist officially honored the township on his first pre-holiday promotion tour. Arrangements were handled by the Canton Township Chamber of Commerce.

The helicopter circled the field and more than a few giggles went up when Santa could be seen waving behind the glass door of the copter.

Stepping out onto the field, Santa was greeted by a chorus of "Jingle Bells." It seemed to please him, even though he's heard the song many times.

KRISTIN BIRD, and Chris Ewald, both age six, presented Santa with the keys to the hearts of the little boys and girls of the community. The keys were arrows complete with pierced hearts.

Frank McMurray introduced new Supervisor Harold Stein over a squeaky public address megaphone for the presentation of the official key to the township.

As soon as the grown-ups were through with their introductions the boys and girls swarmed around Santa to receive a candy cane and say hello to Santa.

Four-year-old Steven Burger thought he'd give Santa something in return for all the gifts he gives out. Steven took what he called a "Chinese marble" out of his mouth to show what he'd give Santa. Markie, 6, was a little disappointed that Santa hadn't arrived by sleigh, then one of his friends told him that the sleigh wouldn't operate without snow on the ground.

Actually, the reindeer's labor contract only allows them to pull a sleigh once a year. Three of Santa's deer can be fed and petted, however, on weekends at the Harvard Square Shopping Center where Santa is taking toy orders.

DANIELLE AND TOMMY Dickerson came to town to see Santa arrive and summed up a lot of kids' feelings when they said they thought "Santa is OK, he's nice because he brings presents."

Other children stonewalled the question. Instead they chose to bury their head between Dad's knees until the news reporter left.

Johanna Anderson, 4, was impressed with Santa because "he got red on." Her sister Holly, 6, was getting ready to ask Santa for some new "girls' toys."

Mrs. Linda Anderson explained that her daughter Johanna told her the week before that Santa is a lot like God. "He comes down from heaven but with reindeer."

A couple of the little kids mentioned that Christmas had something to do with "the baby Jesus" after their parents prodded them.

Santa led a parade in a red Cadillac convertible that ended up in front of Santa's house in the Harvard Square Shopping Center. The Javaceerected the building.

Inside Santa's house, waited six of his helpers who were dressed in green pixie outfits. The elves were all young dancers at a dance studio in the shopping center.

One of the helpers explained their role. "We're supposed to talk to the little kids and ask if they're good, ask 'em what they want for Christmas so that when they get up to see Santa they're prepared and they're not scared," said Teresa Horvath, a Santa helper from Taylor Junior High.

Santa will be receiving visitors at the Harvard Square Shopping Center on Fridays from noon to 9 p.m., Saturdays 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays from noon to 6 p.m. Santa will be in Canton through Dec. 19 when he has to head north.

Santa received a special heart-shaped key which, as legend has it, unlocks the hearts of all the good boys and girls with Christmas spirit. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Two elves, named Pam Reid and Carol Dingeldey, helped the Fire Fighters' Ladies Auxiliary by serving Christmas cookies to people who watched Santa land and needed to warm up with a cup of coffee and a cookie.

Three-year-old Krista Gniazdowski was a little bit apprehensive about sitting on Santa's lap. So, she found solace at the side of her mother, Vonnie, and talked to Santa standing up. Crisis avoided. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

The helicopter pilot made a swing around the recreation field before landing so Santa could wave to the people below from behind the window. The children in the crowd interrupted the second chorus of "Jingle Bells" to squeal with delight at the first glimpse of the superstar. They finished singing the song just as Santa poked his head out of the copter.

Karl Gorham's winter ensemble won't win any fashion show, but the boots and headwear are priceless on bitter winter winds. Canton's DPW workers, such as Gorham, work outside all during the winter.

The temperatures will dip lower and lower in the weeks to come, and the crisp winds of autumn will turn into icy blasts. Drifts of snow will pile on your sidewalk, while scales of ice stubbornly grow on the windshield of your car.

You can sit home and pray it'll never happen this year—that January weather will miraculously turn into spring after dreams of a white Christmas come true.

If you really hate winter, you could turn hermit and spend the frigid months huddled around the warmth of a fireside hearth or follow the lead of birds and go South for the winter.

If those alternatives seem unrealistic, you could follow the advice of people who must work outdoors the whole winter through and somehow manage to see the beauty that Michigan winters offer.

PERHAPS THE BEST piece of advice on how to stay warm comes from a deliverer of the U.S. mail, who must walk her Canton Township beat in rain and snow, ice and sleet.

"Dress for comfort and warmth," she advises, "and certainly not for appearance's sake."

"If I was worried about my hairdo, like so many women are, and refused to wear a hat, I'd catch some fatal disease before the winter was half over. I see so many women walking around in the snow in pretty little open-heeled shoes. That's just plain stupid. No wonder they don't like winter!"

Similar common-sense advice comes from Canton's DPW workers, who, according to DPW general foreman Jake Dungeley, must work outdoors all but three or four days a year.

Wear warm clothing, hats, boots and gloves was the advice of the DPW crew, who Wednesday dug ditches and worked on water taps in Canton's Carriage Hills Subdivision. Most important of all, they said, keep moving.

"I stay moving as much as possible," said DPW worker Ronald Leonard. "And I talk a lot."

Despite weather in the mid-40s—a hot day compared to some of winter's frigid hours, Leonard wore insulated underwear, a shirt, sweater, canvas coat, hat and gloves.

"And I'm growing a beard," he quipped.

"Sure, it'll keep me warm. The hair on my head does."

BEFORE DRESSING for a cold winter day, Leonard's co-worker Karl Gorham said people should consider the type of activity they'll be doing. Heavy work coupled with heavy clothing can produce perspiration and resulting chills on even the coldest day.

"It all depends on what you're doing," Gorham said. "If you're working a lot, you'll get hot no matter how cold it is."

Despite the DPW crew's continual work outdoors, Dungeley says his workers are a pretty healthy lot.

"I've been here 11 years, and I've never taken one sick day. When it gets cold, I just tell them to work faster," he laughed.

Intergovernmental unit stalls

By EMORY DANIELS

The changing of the guard prompted by local elections has almost doomed the Intergovernmental Committee—a group which once had high hopes of fostering co-operation between the governmental units of Plymouth, Canton, Salem, Superior and Northville townships, and the Plymouth Community School District.

It has been the changing of personnel at the local government levels which, more than anything else, has placed the Intergovernmental Committee on the inactive shelf. The committee has been in limbo since last spring and there's no immediate prospect of it being reconstituted.

GOVERNMENT LEADERS generally credit the Intergovernmental Committee with playing a useful role in the controversy over the sale and use of Mettetal Airport.

Since then the committee has floundered in its search for another issue of community-wide concern with which it could seek governmental consensus after holding public forums.

The committee began in 1976 with a workshop attended by representatives from the member governmental units. Brainstorming sessions were held during which leaders sought to agree on needs for the greater Plymouth-Canton community and then assign priorities.

The committee then decided that a common issue which deserved attention was that of providing and paying for crossing guards in the school district. The committee sponsored a public forum on that topic, and hasn't been heard from since.

The committee hasn't met since last winter and there's no indications it will meet in the near future. Some members feel the committee is still needed, but nobody knows how or when a meeting might be called.

THE BASIC problem is that school board and township elections have changed the membership of the committee and left it "leaderless."

Furthermore, the committee doesn't have a chairman now and so there is no one to accept the responsibility of calling a meeting.

The committee was in its strongest position when the membership included: Robert Greenstein, former Canton supervisor; Marda Benson, former president of the school board; Richard Gornick, Plymouth Township trustee; Norbert Battermann, Plymouth city commissioner; Richard Innes of Superior Township; and Harvey Barclay of Salem Township.

The first crack in the tidy ship of intergovernmental cooperation came when Greenstein resigned from the committee to devote more time to other township responsibilities.

That left Ms. Benson as the chairman and key mover of the committee. Her role was important because it was the chairman who would establish agendas for the next meeting and call the meetings.

But as 1976 began Ms. Benson also decided to step down from the committee because of pressing demands of her work and activities in the school district. She had indicated an interest in returning after the June 1976 school elections but was defeated at the polls.

Tom Yack took over as the school board's representative, after having served as alternate, and was elected chairman. Jerry Cheske, Canton trustee, was appointed as representative in Greenstein's place.

Yack served as chairman after the brainstorming session was held at the beginning of the year and until the public forum on crossing guards.

But, following the June school elections Yack told the school board he wouldn't serve on the committee and newly-elected trustee Flossie Tonda was appointed in his place.

IN JUNE the Intergovernmental Committee found itself in the peculiar position of being a committee without a chairman as Yack had stepped down and there was no one to call a meeting to select a new chairman.

There are 5 more of these inside The New Chevrolet than there are inside our nearest sales competitor's older style full-size cars. That's based on the U.S. Government's estimates of vehicle interior size, as reported in the 1977 EPA Guide for New Car Buyers.

Sale of Evans Products depends on land split

A subcommittee formed to study Evans Products' land split request presented a progress report to the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees Tuesday, indicating the request may be denied.

In other action, the board strongly supported House Bill 6432, which, if passed, would prevent strip annexation of charter townships.

THE RELUCTANCE to approve Evans Products' petition for land split stems from a very complicated utilities arrangement on the property along Eckles Road.

The water is supplied by the City of Livonia, while the sanitary and storm water systems are privately owned by Evans. And as long as Evans is the sole owner of the property, the utility situation poses no problem to the board. However, the land split has been asked for so that Evans can sell portions of the property to separate buyers.

According to state law, as soon as two or more people hook into one sewer, the sewer has to become public. So if the board approves the land split request, the township will have to accept responsibility for the sanitary and storm utilities.

However, the board does not wish to do this before it has assurance that the sewer is in decent shape. According to Norman L. Dietrich, township engineer, the sewer was built in the 1930s and has a number of irregularities in its construction.

The board is concerned it will be committing the township to large repair and maintenance expenses if it accepts the dedication of the sewer.

The township planning commission recommended granting the request if the board is able to resolve the utilities problem. On Oct. 26, the board appointed a four-man subcommittee to study the situation.

The subcommittee is comprised of two trustees, Richard Gornick and Maurice Breen, engineer Dietrich, and John Goulet, chairman of the planning commission.

In Tuesday's report, the first since the committee was formed, three recommendations were given to the board.

Gornick told the board the most logical way to develop the property would be to plat the acreage as an industrial subdivision. He said this would insure orderly growth. He also said the township should never accept the sewer as proposed by Evans, and added that he doubted Wayne County would accept it either.

He then told the board it should insist Evans tie into township water and build a better traffic circulation pattern on the property, including roadways and a vehicle turn-around.

Trustee Breen said, "The township has been trying for a long time to get the sewers up to par and dedicated to the public, but we have had no cooperation. Now

Evans wants us to waive requirements to let them slide on a situation they created."

Breen said this would be a mistake and that the board should not "bail them out" of their difficulty.

The progress report was accepted by the board, and a motion was passed for the subcommittee to continue its investigation and negotiations.

The report bodes ill for Evans, because Timothy Mast, attorney for the company, said Evans has been trying for some time to sell all of the property to a developer who was interested in building an industrial park, but had not been able to find an interested buyer.

He said there presently was a buyer for a small section of the land, but if the land split was not granted, the sale would fall through.

IN LATER discussion, the board agreed to send individual postcards to Governor Milliken urging him to sign HB 6432, which would outlaw strip annexation of charter townships.

The action came as the result of a request from Robert M. Edwards, director of legislative affairs of the Michigan Townships Association. The association is trying to get all townships to cooperate in supporting the bill.

Supervisor Tom Notebaert directed the board members to send their cards as private citizens rather than government officials because he felt such action would have more chance of persuading the governor to sign the bill.

Conflict issue again faces SC board

Community college boards and lawmakers are again wrestling with the question of whether a student may serve on the board of trustees of the college where he or she studies.

Schoolcraft College trustees—at least those who are vocal on the question—tend to favor allowing students to run.

Currently, an state attorney general's opinion prohibits community college students from being trustees, but a state law allows students at a four-year college offering baccalaureate degrees to serve on the boards there.

IN THE LEGISLATURE is House Bill 4156 which would extend the right of serving on boards to community college students. The house and senate, however, passed the bill in different forms, and the bill is now in conference committee.

At present, community colleges are bound by an opinion from Michigan Attorney General Frank J. Kelley: "In the absence of such enabling legislation, a community college student may not serve as a member of the governing board because there is a substantial contractual relationship between the student and the institution that is prohibited."

The Michigan Community College Association (MCCA), however, believes the only reason students at two-year schools are prohibited from serving on boards is that they were simply left out of the law allowing students at four-year colleges to be trustees.

MARK McQUESTEN, a Schoolcraft trustee, supports the change. McQuesten is a former full time Schoolcraft student and is currently taking one class—a situation which the college's attorney has ruled is no substantial conflict of interest.

"I support this bill, not because of myself or any other student. Students, like anyone else, should have the right to run," he said.

He likened the bill to Proposal B, recently defeated by Michigan voters. The proposal would have allowed voters in the 18-20 age group to run for the Michigan Legislature.

Trustee Gerald Cox also supports the bill. "It is a good thing for students to want to be elected and go through the political process and a political campaign," said Dr. Cox.

Other trustees voiced endorsement of the bill. Trustee Nancie Blatt said, "I will support it. This is an important bill."

Trustee Leroy Bennett summed it up: "The question is—what constitutes a student?"

College President C. Nelson Grote said the bill is likely to die in conference committee. The house attached amendment requiring a primary election if the number of candidates in a community college election is more than double the number of vacancies. The amendment was prompted by a Macomb County Community College incident where there were dozens of candidates running.

Salem High students of French planning spring trip to Canada

Plans are now being made for the annual trip to French Canada, during Easter vacation, for students interested in France and the French language.

The trip has been sponsored annually since 1969 by John R. Hopkins, French teacher at Plymouth Salem High School.

Hopkins presently is signing up students for the trip, completing details for travel, lodging and sightseeing, and conducting fund-raising projects to help cover the expense.

"Although students in my French classes are planning to attend, the trip is open to French students at either Plymouth Canton or Plymouth Salem high schools," he explained. "Or for that matter, anyone with a sincere interest in France or the French language could make the trip by contacting me to make arrangements."

IN YEARS PAST, Hopkins led study trips to Paris, France, with stops in London, England. But he stopped the practice of travelling abroad in 1973 when the cost reached upwards of $500 per student.

"That cost wasn't reasonable for a high school student. Too many were being deprived of what might be a life-long experience. It became obvious that the only viable and logical alternative would be to continue where we had begun some years previous—French Canada, Quebec, the birthplace of the French civilization in North America."

"This spring we intend to continue that tradition begun in 1970 by again offering a class trip to the scene of our initial success—Montreal, Quebec City, and provincial Quebec."

The planned itinerary calls for the group to depart Windsor Saturday, April 9, and arrive in Quebec City at noon to spend three nights in the Chateau Frontenac. On April 12, the travellers will depart for Montreal via Canadian National Railways and stay in the Hotel Jacques Viger in the heart of Montreal's subway system and the French Quarter. After three nights in Montreal, the students will return to Windsor April 15 aboard Air Canada or Nordair jet.

SOME OF THE highlights of the trip include:

In Quebec City, Plains of Abraham, the citadel, cable car ride, Laval University, walking tour of "le Vieux Quebec," Jacques Cartier's ship, visit to Talon Vaults, Laurier shopping center, open-air art gallery, Parliament Building, wine cellars at Place Royale, Notre Dame-des-Victoires, and the Promenade des Gouverneurs.

In Montreal: The Metro with miles of underground shops, clubs and restaurants, Mount Royal, the site of the 1976 Olympics, Chinatown, Place Jacques Cartier, Notre-Dame Cathedral, Man & His World (Expo '67), Canadiens Hockey, the Dupuis

Freres—largest French department store outside of Paris; St. Lawrence Seaway, Old Montreal, Radio Canada studios, the Jazz cellar, discotheque, "indoor" outdoor cafes, Dow Planetarium, Royal Canadian Mounted Police Museum, Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Creperie Bretonne, Ben's Jewish Delicatessen, and the Underground City.

Hopkins said he expects the tour package can be assembled at a cost of about $295 per student. "The only profit" derived will be the educational experience such a trip will afford to students, most of whom have never been to a foreign country.

SINCE THE SPRING trip tradition began in 1970, Hopkins added, there have been no accidents or injuries or no situations which have reflected poorly on the students.

"We have, in fact, received letters of commendation from various quarters asking us for our continued patronage."

Hopkins said one of the highlights of the trip will be the main meal each day. "By seeking out budget-category restaurants and cafeterias for breakfast and lunch, we can eat nutritionally and well, yet still retain a great share of our daily allocation for a really sumptuous, gourmet-class dinner at some of French Canada's finest, most unique restaurants. Students will have the chance of choosing from more than 400 eateries, he said, including Jewish, Russian, Chinese, German, Vietnamese, Scandinavian, Polish, and Italian specialty dining places.

A parent-student night will be set up by Hopkins in the near future to discuss guidelines and more exact plans for the tour. Anyone wishing to attend may call Salem at 453-3100 and leave a message for Hopkins with the operator.

State denies recount bid by Pierce

Dr. Ed Pierce, Ann Arbor Democrat, lost another important battle in his efforts to get a recount of the Nov. 2 votes in the 2d Congressional district.

Pierce lost to Republican State Sen. Carl Pursell of Plymouth by only 344 votes out of more than 190,000.

Mike Farrell, an attorney in the office of Lansing lawyer Tom Downs, said that Pierce filed a petition and a $620 for the recount.

But Bernard Apel, state elections director in the secretary of state office, said the secretary of state "lacks the authority" to hold a recount in a general congressional election, Farrell said.

Downs was retained by Pierce shortly after the election to research the legal aspects of a congressional recount.

Farrell said that the petition was retained by Apel but that the elections director returned the check to Pierce. The money would have covered the cost of recounting selected precincts and absentee ballots in parts of Wayne, Monroe and Washtenaw Counties which make up the district.

Farrell said that Apel didn't specify why he rejected the recount request.

Friday was the deadline for Pierce to act on a recount request.

Farrell said that Downs and Pierce "are considering other options" in the election aftermath.

If Pierce is unsuccessful in reversing the Nov. 2 vote, Pursell will be sworn in as the district's new congressman in early January.

If there is no change in Pursell's lead, he will resign from the senate and a special primary and general election will be held to fill his vacancy.

His senate district includes Plymouth, Livonia, Redford Township and Northville.

EARLIER IN THE week, George Hastings, the candidate's press secretary during the campaign, said Pierce will initiate a court suit if the election director rejects the recount petition.

He said that one problem is raising money to cover the legal expenses of a recount and possible lawsuit.

Hastings added that Pierce and his workers have analyzed the election returns and feel that a recount in some selected precincts would be worthwhile.

He stressed that the recount "wouldn't just be a shot in the dark."

Hastings said that "we want to get this (the recount and possible court suit) done as quickly as possible and avoid going to the House of Representatives."

The House has the last word on who will be among its members and it could hear a challenge of Pursell's formal credentials from Pierce.

But Hastings said that "we hope we don't have to make that decision," of challenging Pursell's apparent victory to the House membership.

45-15 is topic of workshop

Plymouth School Board members will hold a workshop on Miller Elementary School's year-round program tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. at Plymouth Canton High School.

Board members will discuss the pilot 45-15 program, implemented at Miller in July, 1974, and weigh the merits of continuing the program another year.

Under the 45-15 program, tracks of Miller students attend classes for nine weeks and receive three weeks off.

The public is invited to tonight's workshop.

Tanger preparing for Fantasy Fair

Christmas season for Tanger Elementary School began in mid-November when fourth and fifth graders participated in a number of workshops, handcrafting holiday items for sale at the Fantasy Fair to be held Dec. 6-10.

Under the sponsorship of the PTO and the Fair chairmanship of Debbie Borenski, parent volunteers have contributed hours of time and abundance of talent to foster closer Tanger community spirit and cooperation.

Fair items to be sold include such hand-crafted goods as wreaths, kissing balls, door and Christmas decorations, tree ornaments, knitted and crocheted items, jewelry and toys. Other features at the Fair include a candy corner, dried-flower arrangements and fresh holly and plants.

Elementary pupils are being encouraged to do their Christmas shopping for family and friends during school hours Wednesday through Friday. Others are invited to Tanger's Christmas Fantasy Fair from 7-8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

The Fair will be in Room 6 of Tanger which is located at 40260 Five Mile, Plymouth.

1964 JC project ends

What may go down on record as one of the longest Jaycee projects is finally completed.

District Six Jaycees, including Livonia, Redford, Garden City, Westland, and Plymouth, started a project and collected $10,000 in 1964 to construct an outdoor swimming pool at the Plymouth State Home, now the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Before construction could begin, the state legislature unexpectedly approved a substantial grant for the construction of a full scale recreational building, explained Jaycee project director Patrick Duggan of Livonia.

It was decided to use the collected funds as efficiently as possible for the benefit of the children's recreational needs.

"It was determined that all expenditures should be agreed upon by the Jaycees, the administration at the Plymouth Center, and the parents association of the center," Duggan said.

Over the last 12 years, as needs were determined and were approved by the three groups, funds were spent. Recently, 40 bikes designed for the children's use exhausted the fund that had collected interest and additional contributions of more than $18,000.

A "moon walk," a water spray pad for children unable to use the swimming pool, and trailers for a trackless train have been bought.

A plaque has been installed at the day camp acknowledging the contributions of the major donors, and a sign erected outside the facility acknowledges the contributions of the parents association of more than $2,000 and a lot of time and effort, and the Jaycees of Western Wayne County.

Adam Aldrin, second grader, hammers nails into a small loom during a workshop session in which items were made for sale at the Fantasy Fair Dec. 6-10.

The Stroller... Rose Bowl tales

Ever since the referee's whistle blew down in Columbus to put the final official stamp on Michigan's victory over Ohio State and assured the lads from Ann Arbor of a trip to the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, the air has filled with stories concerning the Wolverines.

The yarns they are spinning relate competitions that go all the way back to 1902 when Fielding H. "Hurricane" Yost took a squad of 15 players out to the coast and beat Stanford in the first of the Rose Bowl games, 49-0.

It was the first time the fans on the coast ever had seen the legendary point-a-minute team in action. They were mystified with the power of such stalwarts as Willie Heston and Germany Schultz, whose names will live forever in the sports annals of the Maize and Blue.

And the very mention of that game—and The Stroller doubts that there is a man living today who saw the uneven game—recalls another famous yarn.

It happened in the administration of Fritz Crisler as the head coach of the Wolverines in the 1940s. He took his famous team of "magicians" out to the coast to meet Stanford in the most prestigious of all bowls.

When the final gun sounded, Michigan had duplicated the feat of Yost's great team and beat Stanford, 49-0.

So the story goes, when the Michigan coach and his team walked off the field, one of the spectators, who had imbibed a bit too freely, walked up to Crisler and, in his whiskey tones, said: "You haven't improved a 'g. d. bit'."

One of the chief yarn spinners is Wally Weber, the fullback on the 1925 team that Yost always referred to as the "best team I ever coached."

Wally was in the Plymouth area several weeks ago and got to spinning some of his famous yarns. He related how Bennie Oosterbaan, "the blonde kid from Muskegon," got into the lineup in 1925 and went on to become a three-time All-American.

"He was sent in the game," Weber explained, "not as a logical substitute for our end, but as a messenger. Mr. Yost (even his oldest stars still refer to the legendary coach as Mr. Yost) noticed that Tom Edwards, one of our tackles, was a bit out of position. He sent Bennie in to tell him what to do. It was a logical move. But Tom Edwards became so mad he played better than he ever did before and was named on many America teams at the close of the season."

It was a great break for Bennie, too, as he went on to stardom.

Not only did Bennie make the All-American team, but he did it three years in a row. More than that, he has been named to the All-Time All-American team.

While Wally, popularly known as "The Wizard of Words," was regaling his listeners with tales of the Wolverines, Ralph Lorenz, the inn-keeper at the Mayflower, cut in to ask, "Do you remember the time the team stopped here and you ordered 100 poached eggs for the team's breakfast?"

Weber remembered as Ralph recalled the order that had the chef stumped. "The team was staying here for the night before the game and Wally, one of the coaches, placed the order for 100 poached eggs."

"If you ever have attempted to poach eggs you know what a job it is," Ralph said. "I was stumped for a minute. So was the chef. Then I got an idea. I got out the pan in which we made small muffins. There were about a dozen spaces in each tin, just big enough to hold an egg. So, I ordered the chef to pour hot water in each one of them."

"Then we dropped the eggs into the spaces in the tins and before you knew it, we had the 100 poached eggs."

Both Weber and Lorenz chuckled at the recollection of the incident and Lorenz remarked, "The next week, when the team was on the road, I got a call from the hotel asking how-in-hell I ever served 100 poached eggs at one breakfast sitting. Now all the hotels do it—but the stunt originated right here in the Mayflower."

It's yarns like these that will be filling the air until the big game on New Year's Day.

SC trustee fights for job

By JANAN GHANNAM

Recent attempts by the Detroit Region 8 School Board to fire Garden City resident Gerald L. Cox from his teaching position proved fruitless.

Cox, 50, is a 20-year veteran of Detroit Public Schools and presently serves as a Schoolcraft College Trustee and governor of the Schoolcraft College Foundation.

Cox was dismissed by the regional school board last February, but the Michigan Teacher Tenure Commission, in a decision made public Monday, has blocked the discharge because no action was taken against him by the Detroit Central Board of Education.

Under state law, the commission ruled, only the central Detroit school board is authorized to hire or fire teachers.

A teacher must also be warned in writing of unsatisfactory work and then be given an opportunity to improve while under observation, the commission said.

If a dismissal follows, teachers have a right to a hearing before the school board, it added.

Fred Martin, personnel director of Detroit Public Schools declined to comment on specific charges against Cox but said "obviously the issue was the region's concern about Cox's level of performance."

Although Cox was never presented with formal charges nor given a hearing, he did receive a procedural letter referring to two unsatisfactory ratings.

Principals of Kettering High School, Martin Luther King Junior High, the Region 8 superintendent and the division of improvement of instruction observed Cox.

"This is a procedural letter to rid the district of unsatisfactory or unwanted teachers," said Cox. "Actually, the school board cannot find a job for a person with my credentials."

Cox has a doctorate in education from the University of Michigan.

Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers said, "The region board took measures for which it had no authority and refused to listen to advice either from the region superintendent or the union representative at that time," she said.

Region boards cannot dismiss an employee on their own, she said. "In certain circumstances, they can hire or fire, but they must follow a series of procedures to give that employee due process."

Martin said that Region 8 does have some authority in personnel decisions, but that the dispute is whether all procedures have been followed and whether Cox has received due process.

In a letter dated Nov. 22 to State Rep. Bill Keith (D-Garden City), vice-president of the house education committee, Cox stated that the actions of members of Region 8 have violated his constitutional rights.

"My right to adequate notice, my right to a statement of charges, my right to a fair hearing, my right to exercise contractual grievance procedures, my right to appeal, have all been violated," said Cox.

What to read when all else fails

The city council in Belvedere, Calif., recently passed a law stating, "No dog shall be in a public place without its owner on a leash."

If those words throw you, check out this language in a Texas law suggesting that when two trains meet at a crossing each shall come to a full stop, "and neither shall proceed until the other has gone."

Other silly laws include one in Idaho which makes it illegal for a man to give his sweetheart a box of candy weighing less than 50 pounds.

In New York it is against the law to shoot at a hare or jack-rabbit from a trolley car in transit. In Alaska it's against the law to look at a mouse from an airplane. And it's illegal to mispronounce the name of the state of Arkansas in that state.

In Memphis, Tenn., it is illegal for a woman to drive a car unless there is a man either running or walking in front of the car waving a red flag to warn approaching motorists and pedestrians. Kentucky state law requires every resident to take a bath at least once a year.

In Chaseville, N.Y., it is illegal to drive a goat past a church on Sunday "in ridiculous fashion." And try this section in Arkansas law: "No person shall be permitted under any pretext whatever, to come nearer than 50 feet of any door or window of any polling room, from the opening of the polls until the completion of the count and the certification of the returns." (Wonder what their voter turnout is.)

THIS SAMPLE of legal nonsense was taken from the 1977 edition of The Old Farmer's Almanac which first began to make its appearance in 1792. In case you've forgotten, or have never tried, the almanac offers easy, entertaining and informative reading.

Another example is a report on postal rates in earlier days. We've often heard people complain about paying 13 cents to mail a letter—I've done it myself—and recall about how cheap it was to mail a letter in the old days.

That's why my eye was attracted to a report on postal rates in 1031 when the pony express was used. In that year, a letter two pages long would cost 25 cents to be sent 150 miles by horseback, and 75 cents if it were three sheets. Newspapers were mailed at one cent for the first 100 miles but magazines and pamphlets were mailed on a per sheet basis—1½ cents per sheet for the first 100 miles and 2½ cents thereafter.

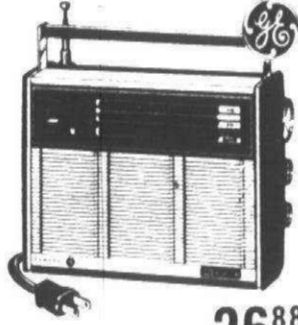

BUT WHAT'S REALLY useful for passing the time of day is to scan through the classified section of the almanac for unusual bargains.

Like renting books with an option to buy, or a chance to earn $20,000 a year raising bullfrogs, or $300-$700 monthly raising rabbits. Or if you are really ambitious you can purchase 1,000 earthworms for just $7.95. One of the most unusual ways advertised, though, to make a buck is raising ginseng roots. With an investment of only $2 for a seed sample, you can earn up to $24,000 per acre of yield with the roots selling for more than $40 per pound.

Other items which can be ordered are instructions to a log cabin or greenhouse, or customprinted bumper stickers. Or try ordering eyeglasses by mail—as cheap as $3.95 a pair—or government lands as cheap as $7.50 an acre, or land near the Canadian border at $5 an acre. Another firm from Holland, Mich., is offering government lands at $2.50 an acre with the chance to choose from more than 450 million acres, including campsites, farms and homesites. Why not?

SC forum views corporate wife

Problems that women face in connection with their husbands' careers will get a hearing in an open forum, "The Corporate Wife," scheduled 8-10 p.m. Tuesday at Schoolcraft College.

Sponsored by the SC women's resource center, the forum will present Audrey Brosnan, wife of a corporation executive, who has made a study of the difficulties women may encounter when husbands work long hours or have to move frequently.

"This is a transient area," said Mrs. Brosnan, "and I know there are many families that have been transferred, not once but several times, in connection with the husband's job."

"This can present many problems for women and children, psychological matters like depression and practical ones like transferring records."

"And many people feel that they are alone when they find they have trouble dealing with these things. They think they should be able to handle them easily, and they don't realize what a major adjustment a transfer can be."

Wives who aren't transferred but have husbands who work long hours also can face difficulties they don't understand, Mrs. Brosnan said.

"For them, there often are feelings of loneliness and resentment at having to assume a major share of child-rearing and sometimes feelings of inadequacy," she explained.

"This forum is aimed at being a sharing of ideas rather than a matter of counseling. We will consider ways of helping women become more a part of their husbands' careers and find ways of dealing with their situations realistically in a self-helpful way."

Mrs. Brosnan, who has four children ranging in age from 1 to 5, said that because of her husband's career moves, "I've had each baby in a different city."

"I feel fortunate that I've been able to make a good adjustment," she said, "but I've also done a lot of research and I know peer group discussion can be most helpful."

She will draw from the Robert Seidenberg book, "Corporate Wives, Corporate Casualties," as well as from her own experience.

The free forum will be held in room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the Schoolcraft main campus, Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile roads.

Rock defense shines in 1st win, 76-50

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

The basketball opener might have been delayed for three days but that didn't seem to bother the Plymouth Salem Rocks.

An impressive display of team defense, along with a potent offensive attack in the second and fourth quarters, led the Rocks to a 76-50 victory over Walled Lake Central before a "homecoming" crowd at the Plymouth gym Friday night.

This first game of the season was originally scheduled for last Tuesday night, but due to some repairs of the bubbling, bumping Plymouth gym floor, this contest was moved up three days.

With the game being played on Thanksgiving Friday night, many of the recent alumni were home on college vacations and were in attendance watching the Rocks perform.

But what this alumni crowd saw was not the typical Fred Thomann (Salem coach) team of the past four years. There wasn't that one big dominating player that one could focus upon to see all the action.

What the crowd saw in this first battle was 13 (not five or six) shorter and scrappier players that put on a great hustling defensive show.

Thomann did not hesitate one bit in freely substituting all evening, changing combinations of players so often that it turned into a scorekeeper's nightmare.

"This typified the kind of ballclub we have," Thomann said. "I feel the club has enough depth to do it (play 13). The bottom five play just as good as the top."

"I've got to believe we have to give all the kids an opportunity to play."

Steve Horton was the only Rock player who didn't see action as he was on vacation for the holidays.

But the other 12 Salem eagles were in the game by the end of the first quarter, as Thomann continued to rotate his "balanced" personal.

THE DIFFERENCE in the ballgame was a 29-12 second quarter scoring advantage for the Rocks. This tally, combined with a 12-8 first quarter lead, gave Salem a comfortable 41-22 margin at halftime.

Both teams started the game with the sloppy turnovers and poor shooting that is expected for the first game of the year.

The Rocks converted on only five of 20 shots from the floor in the first eight minutes, while Central was worse with a one for 10 clip.

The only sharp outside shooting in the quarter was by Salem's captain Chris DeBear who sunk two 18-footers. Central couldn't penetrate the stingy Rock man-to-man defense for any inside scoring.

An example of Thomann's new philosophy was shown in the second period when nine of the 12 players reached the scoring column.

Central quickly closed the gap to 15-14 after the first two minutes of play, but the Rocks quickly connected for seven straight points to grab a 22-14 advantage.

Thomann surprisingly called a time out and put a fresh five in the game despite the hot streak. But the new players responded for the next three minutes of action by increasing the margin.

Thomann then sprinkled a few more new players into the line up for the closing minutes of the period, and the Rocks surged ahead by 19.

Sophomore guard Rich Hewlett scored six of his nine points in that quarter to lead the way. Kevin Roose and DeBear each pumped in four, while Pat McKendry, John Broderick and Tom Ellinghausen added three.

The defense took over in the third period, as both teams went back to their cold shooting habits of the first period.

After the Rocks hit four points and Central added two in the first minute of action, no field goals were scored in the next six minutes as the scoreboard was stuck on a 45-24 score.

"Our defense carried us through the cold shooting spells," Thomann said.

The Rocks scored nine points in that quarter, but Central managed only eight, helping the Rocks maintain their secure lead.

Both offenses loosened up in the final quarter with Salem outgunning Central 26-20.

All but one of the Rocks scored with DeBear leading the balanced attack at 12. Broderick and Ellinghausen each added 10 and Hewlett popped in nine. Center Bruce Gerish and Pat McKendry added seven each. Despite equal height on both sides, the Rocks clearly outrebounded Central 46-17.

Salem hits the road for the first time tomorrow night against Livonia Franklin for another non-league meeting which begins at 8 p.m.

Rock gals honored

Suburban Eight League champions, Plymouth Salem, placed two girls on the all-league basketball team selected by coaches last week.

Heading the first team were the Rocks' two co-captains Peggy Moore and Kathy Dillon.

Moore was the team's leading scorer this season, while Dillon was the floor leader on the court. Moore completed her senior season; Dillon is a junior.

Sophomore center Diane Goodrich was an honorable mention selection in the loop. The Rocks finished as conference champions with a perfect 14-0 record. Salem also won the crown with a spotless mark last year.

The closest contender to the Rocks this season was an 11-3 Bentley squad. Edsel Ford finished third and Redford Union fourth.

Dearborn headed the second division in fifth place, followed by Trenton, Allen Park and Belleville.

Coach Debbie Hatcher's squad finished the regular season with a 17-0 record, losing in the district finals against Walled Lake Western.

Comeback falls short

Chiefs nipped in OT

Anytime a basketball team loses a game in overtime, it has to be a heart breaker for the players, coaches and fans.

For Plymouth Canton, the same sadness prevailed after Tuesday night's 71-67 extra period loss to the Dearborn Pioneers. But despite the opening loss, one can't help but think that the Chiefs are in for a good basketball season.

Canton came back from a nine-point deficit in the final period to tie a Pioneer squad that, not only is five inches taller per man across the front line, but also are one of the favorite teams to battle for the Suburban Eight League title.

The Chiefs opened the final eight minutes by sinking three consecutive baskets by Mike Albright, Rob Mandle and Butch King.

With the lead cut to three, the scrappy Chiefs continued to nip away at the Dearborn lead and finally went ahead with four minutes left in the game.

Go-captain Mandle then fouled out with three minutes remaining, hurting the Chiefs' ability to put the game away.

With seconds remaining, Chief guard Butch King hit his game-high 23rd and 24th points on a basket from the top of the key to send the game into the three-minute overtime period.

Both squads traded baskets on two occasions to keep the game knotted at 67-67, with one minute left.

But Dearborn's overall height proved to be the difference as the Chiefs were forced to commit costly personal fouls which the Pioneer's converted on the charity line for the winning four points of the game.

CANTON OPENED THE game rather sluggishly on defense allowing 24 first-quarter points. The Chiefs' offense could only mount 14, and Canton was faced with some catching up after the first period.

The teams played evenly in the second period as Canton closed the Dearborn advantage by only three points, trailing 39-32 at halftime.

Junior guard Keith Fuelling fouled out late in the third period when the Chiefs fell behind by nine. Senior guard Kevin Raudazzo also suffered from foul trouble early in the second period.

Mandle followed the junior King with Canton's second highest point total of 14 points. Albright added 10.

Mandle also helped on the boards with nine rebounds from his guard position while Albright added seven.

Nine of the 15-member squad played for the Chiefs.

Canton is idle Tuesday night, but hits the road against Farmington High School Friday at 8:15 p.m. for its second non-league contest.

Canton wrestlers place 2d

"It was exciting—tremendous. It seems all this hard work is finally paying off."

Those were the words of a very happy Plymouth Canton wrestling coach Dan Chrenko, after his Chiefs placed second in the season-opening Garden City West Quad-rangle held last Tuesday night.

The host team from West won the Invitational with 160½ points followed by Canton's 132. Bishop Borgess was third with 98½ and Franklin finished last with 68.

But the aspect of this meet that pleased Chrenko so much was his squad's ability to win the big match under pressure.

The Chiefs placed nine of 10 wrestlers entered in third place or higher. And, of the six championship matches Canton participated in, the Chiefs came away with six first-place finishes.

"It's a good feeling," Chrenko said. "Just tremendous. The kids were so gunned up."

Canton showed its usual strengths in the lower weights and added a few surprises in the middle categories.

But the still lingering problem of no heavy wrestlers caused Chrenko to enter only 10 in the 13 weight classes.

Freshman Danny March lost his first varsity match ever in the 97-pound category but rebounded for an 8-5 decision victory and a third-place finish in that class.

Senior captain Bill Heedum had an expected easy time winning the 105 weight with two powerful pins. Heedum's first victory came on an unbelievable 34-second pin.

Craig Lee drew a first round bye at 112 and won his only match on a third-period pin to grab first in his weight class.

Mark Bartlett had a bad draw at 119 and was forced to wrestle the eventual winner in the first round. He finished in third place.

Jeff Rey was another third-place grappler at 126, while Rich Svopa ended fourth at 132.

Terry Clifton surprised a few people with a victory at 138 thanks to 5-4 and 15-5 decisions.

Scott Collins handily won the 145 competition with a 15-2 decision in the championship. Collins was ahead 18-2 in his first round match before recording a pin in the third period.

Kyle Heaton came out of nowhere to win the 155 class. The junior grappler pinned the Bishop Borgess co-captain in the second period for the victory.

Dennis Howell was a Chief 165 victor with a 3-26 pin over Steve Rose from Franklin.

The Chiefs did not compete in the 178, 191 or heavyweight matches.

THE CHIEF JUNIOR VARSITY also reaped success with an overwhelming victory in team competition. The younger Chiefs, mainly freshmen, whipped the West squad 149½-87. Borgess finished third at 76 and Franklin was fourth at 76.

Canton coach Dan Riggs "was extremely proud of his student's performance" as not one grappler lost two matches.

First-place finishers included Tom Harrell, Brian Olk, Matt Major, Dave Durkin, Greg Procter, Dave March and George Hamblin.

Ken Knight and Bill Rodman placed second and Jay Lee took a third.

Stanwood qualifies in 4 events

With the regular season for girl swimmers coming to an end, area tankers look forward to the annual state meet held in Mt. Pleasant this weekend.

While Livonia Stevenson and East Lansing teams are among the favorites to win the state title, Plymouth Salem has six girls who could provide some surprises.

Heading the list of Rock state qualifiers is junior Marion Stanwood, whose excellent free style stroke paved the way for possible performances in the 50, 100, 200 and 500 yard events.

According to state rules, girls can swim in no more than two individual events and one relay.

Salem coach Chuck Olson has decided to swim Marion in the 200 and 100 events where her chances for a state medal are most likely.

Currently, Stanwood ranks second in the state in the 200 free with a 1:59.4 clocking. She also is among the top four in the 100 free with a 55.7 time.

Stanwood also qualified for the 50 free at 26.0 seconds and the 500 in 5:29.0. She swam the 200 and 500 free in the state meet last year as a sophomore.

Olson has six girls to choose from in the squad's 400 yard free style relay team which qualified for the state competition.

The Rocks lowest time this season was 3:58.6. Jill McCann, Ilona Schmidt, Sharon Ross, Madeline Lakata and Marion and Sue Stanwood are among the girls Olson will select for the four-member relay.

Salem's top two divers, Amy McClumphia and Lisa Lukens qualified for the regional competition held this week at Livonia Churchill High School. McClumphia and Lukens qualified for the regionals with second and sixth place finishes in the Suburban Eight League meet.

As a team, the Rocks won the Sub-8 title with a perfect dual meet record and a first place finish in the season-ending league meet.

PLYMOUTH CANTON girls team did not qualify any girls for the state meet, but diver Wendy Gray will compete in the regionals.

Gray is a sophomore who earned the regional berth with a second place finish in the Western Six League meet.

Chief tankers finished last in the league meet but coach Ann Massey was very optimistic about her young team's performance, predicting a better season next year.

"There was no way we could have placed higher," Massey said. "The girls weren't doing poorly—we did our best and broke some records."

"It looks like we will be strong next year."

LADYWOOD—LUTHERAN WEST

Overcoming a very cold shooting performance from the field, Ladywood last week up-ended previously undefeated Detroit Lutheran West, 52-47, to claim the Dearborn Heights Robichaud Class B District girls' basketball championship.

"It was a very loose, wild game," assessed Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh. "We were very cold shooting—only 26 per cent for the whole night."

The game turned around late in the second quarter when Ladywood incorporated a one-to-one pressing defense with its usual 2-1-2 zone.

Kavanaugh explained that his girls pressed while Lutheran West tried to bring the ball upcourt, then switched to a zone if West moved into scoring range.

"We forced a lot of turnovers and had a lot of steals," Kavanaugh said of the strategy.

Lutheran West led 8-7 after the first quarter, but Ladywood held the upper hand every period after—23-16 at the half, 40-30 after three and 52-47 at game's end.

Diane White tossed in 18 points for Ladywood. Teammate Mary Clare Swabon tallied 12. Jan Pawlak hauled down 13 rebounds, and Marty Wallace and Liz O'Brien each grabbed 11 caroms. Pawlak, Wallace and O'Brien all scored six points.

"White was outstanding the whole game," Kavanaugh praised. "She had six steals and really got the press going."

Prior to its victory over Lutheran West, White, Pawlak and Kathy Stacey scored 12, 10 and eight points, respectively, to lead Ladywood to a 48-31 win over Dearborn Divine Child.

Jockey Maple rides

The local jockey ranks have been depleted as of late due to the desertion to warmer climates by some of the more successful. But DRC regulars received a welcome surprise recently when Sam Maple reported for riding chores.

Maple, who won the Michigan Mile and One-Eighth this year at the DRC on Sharp Gary, as well as four other $100,000 races, has returned from Chicago to ride out the balance of the meeting.

"I wanted to come back to take care of some things on my farm in Ortonville, so I thought that while I was here I might as well go ahead and ride to make a little more Christmas money," the personable 23-year-old said. "Sure I've had a good year, but I can always use the money, my wife Jill is expecting in January."

Maple rejoins his younger brother Mark, a fledgling 19-year-old apprentice who has made great strides at the DRC in his first stint of regular riding. Mark has improved steadily, and no doubt, due to the help and advice given to him by Sam, who is already into his seventh year of riding professionally.

With the reappearance of the elder Maple, for the first time in recent memory two brothers will be in the top 10 rider standings at the DRC. Maple, with 40 wins, will be reinsited to the fourth spot behind Ramon Perez 75, Richard Strauss 62, and Larry Kuntake 49, while Mark stands in 10th place with 16 wins.

The weather may be on the freezing side, but Larry Kuntake is the hottest thing going around the Livonia mile oval. The 16-year-old Hawaii-born rider recently rode two four baggers.

The four winners pushed Kuntake over the 1,000 career victory mark. "Kuni" capped off a great week by winning with all four of his mounts, the only perfect day of the meeting for a jockey at the DRC.

Despite a diminishing supply of horses due to the exodus south, entries have been closing right on time with short fields evident only in the allowance ranks. The last time Right Pocket started, only four others dared to enter against the speedy gelding who had 10 seasonal scores to his credit. Surprisingly, Right Pocket finished third.

Mikgib has just about locked up the Distance Series first prize award for his trainer, Al Barron with a recent victory in the two and one-half-mile event, giving the gelding three victories and 20 points in the series.

Detroit area racing fans will get their only touch of Sunday racing on Dec. 5, closing day at the DRC. A 10-race card is slated to get underway with a 2 p.m. post-time on that Sunday.

Cage league comes soon

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department will once again sponsor boy's intramural high school basketball beginning Jan. 7.

The entrance fee is $50 per team. Deadline for entrance is Dec. 27.

All games will be played at East Middle School. For more information, contact the Plymouth recreation department at 455-6620.

This might sound like a strange invitation, but we mean it. Come down and watch us work. It'll make a believer out of you.

Boosters to meet next week

Plymouth-Canton Athletic Boosters Club will meet at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 6 in the Canton High School cafeteria.

Residents interested in supporting the athletic programs at the Centennial Park are invited to discuss a new fund-raising idea.

Forecast: expensive weather.

October 1976 was colder than October 1975. An average of 5.5° colder each day. And November is following the same pattern. So there's no way of avoiding what's happening to your gas bill: When the mercury drops, the bill goes up.

This October, our customers used 27% more gas than the same period last year. 27% — that's how much more gas our customers had to pay for.

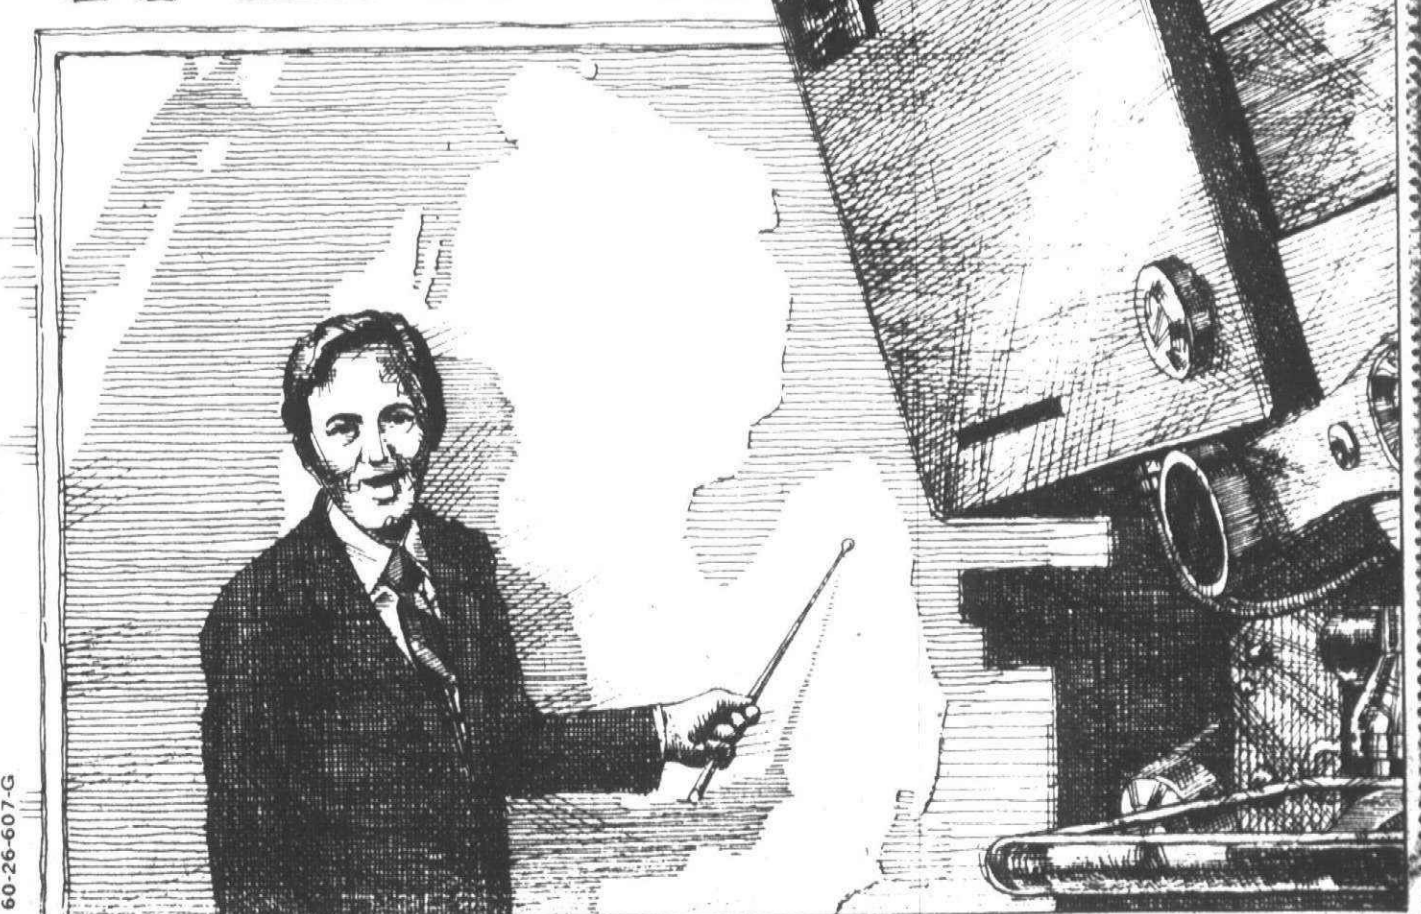

Expensive weather, so far. But don't confuse higher gas bills with higher gas rates. The basic rate we're charging is the same as last year, except for a slight increase for fuel supplies that we have to pass along to you.

Now, more than ever, you need to use gas wisely. Dial down. Turning your thermostat back from 72° to 68° can save you as much as 12 percent this year. Dialing down even further can save you even more. And so can insulation.

Expensive weather ahead — there's no way around it. So let's go through it — together. Our responsibility will be the gas you need. Your responsibility will be the gas you use.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

Well, the Metropolitan Detroit Women bowlers have done it again.

For the second time within the past month, they have juggled the national honor roll, and, today, they now hold three places in the ranks of the elite.

The latest shuffle came when the Bonanza team in the Bowlerettes league turned in a 3,002 count to set a new high for the Detroit area and take second place in the nation.

To get this big count, the Bonanza team, of which Rosemary Prueter of Plymouth is a member, put together games of 998, 1,120 and 884. The big middle game is the first series above 1,100 rolled in the nation.

Kellie Kraft was high for the team with a 667 and Penny Behn added a 634. Jan Marciniak was next with 587. Sharon Behrendt followed with 566 and Rosemary Prueter had a 548.

Earlier in the season, Caril Yurkus, of the same league, made the national list with 725 that put her in seventh place.

The great showing by the women followed on the heels of the Stroh team that holds top place in the men's national honor roll with a 3,509 series and 1,261 game.

ANOTHER PLYMOUTH bowler had a big weekend when Mitch Jabczewski landed in second place in the monthly tournament sponsored by the Michigan Majors at North Hill Lanes. He was beaten out by Bob Hart, who took top place, for the third time, by averaging 235 and winning 10 of his 12 matches.

Added to this, Bob also rolled a 300 to match Fred Vitali for single game honors.

BOWLING HISTORY will be written in the metropolitan area this weekend when the pros gather at Thunderbowl Lanes for the $100,000 Grand Prix. Among them will be Earl Anthony who needs to win only $242 to reach the $100,000 mark for the second straight year.

Inasmuch as last place pays $1,000, he just can't miss in the big event that runs from Wednesday-Saturday at Thunderbowl.

DELORES DOWHAN had a great time in the Livonia Ladies Classic, when she won the series with 551-96-647. This big count included a single game triumph of 208-32-240.

In other games, Marion Heath took the opener with 210-35-245 and Dot Fulton took the second with 186-42-228.

THE 700 CLUB gained another member when Harry Topalian paced the Garden Lanes Classic with a 702 series on games of 233, 256 and 213. His closest rival was Richard Setlock, who had a 623, one pin more than Richard Maciag.

In the senior citizens group, Clifford Larsch was high with 602 and Dawson Hedges took the runner-up spot with 582.

STEVE STEINBERG, a 16-year-old, put on a real show in the Parks and Recreation League at Merri-Bowl. Starting with two spares, he piled up 10 strikes in a row for a 278.

In the regular junior league, Lee Charns was high with a 203 in 335. John Moore topped the prep division with a 210 in 463 and Roger Bettinger was high in the Majors with 210. Other top scores included Jim Craig with 207 and Kevin Kosynia with 202.

AT COUNTRY LANES, Jerry Lane, a 167-average bowler, turned in games of 226, 208 and 171 for a 605.

USING A BIG middle game of 265, Earl Van Ness posted a 693 to pace the Wonderland Classic with a 693. Redford Bowling Sales was high with 3,086.

In the women's classic, Jane Martin showed the way with games of 223, 204 and 176 for a 603.

Grid award

Frank Soave, a two-way player for Clarenceville at offensive guard and defensive middle guard this football season, was that school's choice for the Vince Lombardi Award.

The award is presented to prep linemen who "exemplify the ideals of the late Lombardi—perseverance, integrity, and most important, good sportsmanship," said John R. Cullen, a member of the awards committee.

The award and dinner was sponsored by Elias Brothers Restaurants for the benefit of the American Cancer Society.

Soave played varsity football for two seasons and JV ball for two years.

Thomas Workman, principal of Allen Elementary School, carved the bird. He immediately appointed the class to positions on the official turkey-tasting committee. Once they gave their approval, he went on with the carving. (Staff photos)

Comparing notes on the stone soup were Jeff Panko, Ron Myers, Terri Hurson and Vada Starr.

Dr. Alice Gretzler complimented the class on their pumpkin bread.

Energy, time-saving tips shared on radio program

Just four minutes of listening time each week may mean money in your pocket and extra leisure time.

"Got a Minute to Save?" is aired Tuesdays and Thursdays at 2:05 p.m. and 5:03 p.m. over the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park radio station WSDP can be found at 89.3 on the FM radio dial.

One idea offered nutritional as well as money-saving advice.

It dealt with preparing baby and junior foods in a blender or small food mill. The mill can be carried with a parent. When eating in restaurants, parents can null portions of their servings on the spot for the infant's meal.

Another offered suggestions for extended use of both liquid detergents and cake soap.

"GOT A MINUTE to Save?" is sponsored by the Plymouth chapter of the American Association of University Women and WSDP.

The local AAUW chapter last year made an in-depth study on "Economic Facts of Life—Living with Less." Mary Ann Hausman was coordinator of the group.

Six to 24 members attended the monthly meetings on the subject last year. The second year of the project was intended to spreading the word on the results of their findings.

Mrs. Hausman suggested using the high school radio station as vehicle to reach the community. Another AAUW member, Peggy Fisher, had worked with the staff at the station in video taping a history of the Plymouth community.

And Jeff Cardinal, a communications teacher at Plymouth Salem High School, had voiced the wish that WSDP find ways of serving the community.

With Mrs. Hausman supplying the energy-saving suggestions, Mrs. Fisher writing the script, and the radio station cooperating, all they needed was a voice to read the one-minute spots.

They found her.

DORETTA ADCOCK was a new AAUW member.

She was a former English and speech teacher—and her voice was right.

They were on the air. Mary Beth Hausman has continued her research.

"Many of the suggestions are old ones," she said. "Some may have skipped a generation in a family. And there are many publications available."

"The Center for Science and Public Interest (CSPI) has a publication, 'Simple Life Style,' with suggestions on how it can be incorporated into a personal life style."

"We don't want to encourage people to go on a guilt trip."

"Each person must make his own choice on how to save time and energy and share skills. It must be a positive effort. If it's not easy, if you're not comfortable with it, don't do it," she said.

Mrs. Hausman said that since she has looked into the topic, she has found "many ways of saving energy."

COMING UP on the tapes will be holiday ideas for Christmas gifts and wrapping paper.

"We hope we can influence people in their choice of Christmas and wedding gifts," she said. "Some of the appliances are monster energy consumers and unnecessary."

They also will give instructions on the construction of luminaries for mellow Christmas lighting without burning electricity.

The AAUW members welcome tips from the community.

"We had some good suggestions from the people in our group," said Peggy Fisher.

"One woman said she and a neighbor cooperate in their cooking. Each has a family of four. One day each week one cooks dinner for eight and shares it with her neighbor. The other provides dinners for both families another evening."

Persons with suggestions should send them to the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park, Joy Road, Plymouth 48170, Attention: WSDP. II

'Turkey testers' applaud their culinary efforts

"This is the turkey testers special committee," said Tom Workman, principal of Allen Elementary School on Haggerty Road.

A group of eight second and third graders watched attentively as Workman carved their turkey and popped a succulent morsel into each waiting mouth, including his own.

"Where's the stuffing?" asked one youngster.

"It's in there some place." "We made that stuffing, Mr. Workman," added one of the students.

They discussed the whole loaf of wheat bread they had torn up for the stuffing and how the onion peeler and cutters helped shed many tears in the process.

"We put in some green stuff, too." "It was sage," said Cathy Teahan, teacher of the special education class.

IT WAS MRS. TEAHAN'S sixth class Thanksgiving.

The children had made the pumpkin bread, cranberry muffins, corn meal muffins, apple sauce and stone soup.

When asked which they enjoyed most, the consensus of opinion was churning the butter.

"We shook cream in a jar until it was butter," they explained.

The students had invited guests to share their turkey dinner.

They were: John M. Hoben, superintendent of schools; Dr. Edwin Page and Dr. Alice Gretzler of pupil personnel services;

Tom Garrett, physical education teacher; Ed Scott who teaches unified arts; Mickey Edell, speech therapist; Barbara Hukka, vocal music teacher; Ellie Goebel, teacher aide and office worker at Allan; Ann Depa, art teacher; Louise Andes, school secretary; Ron Myers, teacher consultant; Vada Starr, learning specialist; and Joan Fee, teacher aide, who had helped organize and coordinate the preparations.

Mrs. Teahan warned the diners not to break a tooth on the stones. They were not little pebbles but good-sized rocks, so no one had difficulty identifying and removing them.

The rest of the food was served buffet-style and many went back a second time for refills.

Workman thanked the children for their hospitality and the fine Thanksgiving dinner.

The pleased chefs were Charles Abner, Novella Boeck, Tony Callaway, Ken Danielski, Donald Howard, Terri Hurson, Timothy Moll and Jeff Panko.

FIRST ON THE MENU was a vegetable beef stone soup.

The young cooks had carefully washed the stones before adding them to the broth.

Donald Howard enjoyed his own cooking.

by Donut Scene after the arrival of Santa Claus in Canton Township last Friday. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Canton welcomes Santa

The Canton Chamber of Commerce has taken on the monumental task of planning Santa Claus' first prolonged visit to the Canton community. The chamber's effort is being facilitated by scores of individuals and organizations.

First, the businesspersons of Harvard Square Shopping Center happily provided space for a Christmas workshop. Then, the Canton Jaycees stepped in to build the new accommodations.

Bill Ott, Dave Dickie, Frank Hlavin and Paul Wilson helped erect the 15 by 20-foot structure. The day was cold, and as the snow flew, Drew Rentz, Don Schilling and Earl Humphreys hammered away.

Bruce Roth was responsible for organizing the hard-working crew. Al Daly and Frank McMurray, from the Chamber, also braved the weather to help.

Transportation arrangements were next on the list.

METTAL AIRPORT agreed to provide the helicopter. Thus, St. Nick was transported Friday to the Canton Recreational Park on Cherry Hill Road.

He arrived at 1 p.m. amid cheers and applause from the crowd. Larry Hamner's Boy Scout Troop 743 distinguished themselves as Santa's Honor guard.

Those on hand for the ceremony appreciated the thoughtfulness of the Canton Firefighters Ladies Auxiliary.

President Shirley Hamilton and her group provided hot drinks, Christmas cookies and doughnuts to the shivering crowd at the fire hall.

Santa stayed about half an hour. Mr. Claus' chauffeur, Bill Brown, then whisked his special passenger to the workshop—in a bright red convertible. They were escorted by members of the Canton Reserve Police and the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

The short ride ended in a surprise for the jolly fellow. Prancer, Dancer and the rest of the reindeer family already had arrived.

Bill Mayers, owner of the deer, will make sure they are in top shape for their upcoming journey. Feed will be on sale so children can help with the reindeer's care.

SANTA APPRECIATED all the work involved in creating his workshop.

Frank and Jan McMurray, Al and Cathy Thompson, and Bob and Darlene Ewald devoted a lot of time to the decorations. Jake and Mary Dingledey, Al Daley and Mike Pimion also turned their hands to brightening up the place.

Thelma and Charles Hudson of Hudson's Bait Shop donated four trees to area shopping centers including the one for Santa-land. Unfortunately, vandals stole the 10-foot Harvard Square tree before it was set up.

Plenty of helping elves have signed up to work for the event.

Among them are Heather Hertzog, Jaye Gumbowski, Chris Mooney, Mary Smith and Margaret Dobrick.

Others taking part are Mary and Teresa Dingledey, Sandy Atkins and Sandy Allenback.

FROM NOW UNTIL Sunday, Dec. 19, those who wish to discuss the toy situation or their deepest Christmas desires may meet with Santa any weekend. He will be at work between noon and 9 p.m. Fridays, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturdays, and noon to 6 p.m. Sundays.

Bob Stork of Stork Photo will be on hand to capture the occasion on film. Times will be posted at the workshop.

By the way, Santa Claus has an alias some Canton residents may recognize. Does the name Phillip Woods ring a bell?

THE CANTON JAYCEES recently hosted Jaycee State President Mike Chaffin of Bay City.

According to Bruce Roth, chapter officer, his support of their activities was most helpful. The donation of a commercial dishwasher to the half-way house at the Northville Training Center was lauded by Chaffin.

"The center's goal is to create a normal life atmosphere for residents which will aid in their adjustment to the community outside," said Roth. "Use of the dishwasher contributes to the self-help idea."

Because the unit is of commercial design, it may provide future job skills. With financial help from the district, the gift will be a $850 contribution from the Jaycees.

The Jaycees also have plans for a nature center at the new Hulsing school.

The school's principal has been contacted and his response was enthusiastic. Board of education approval is expected to be forthcoming.

Cantonites may be familiar with a similar Jaycee project at Gallimore school Sheldon Road south of Joy. The nature center has a number of trails and amphitheater areas for environmental study. The center took five years of time and energy to complete.

Students were involved in many facets of the undertaking.

The swearing in of new members Earl Humphreys, Ed Rasmussen and Doug Ritter was the highlight of the last meeting.

Anyone wishing to become a part of the activities can call Don Schilling, president, at 455-5431, or Drew Rentz, chairman of the board, 453-4702.

SWINE FLU A/New Jersey/76

FLU is a respiratory disease. It is highly contagious. It is caused by a virus that is constantly changing. If you have the flu one year, your body can build up an immunity to that strain. However, the virus changes and your body's defenses are not as effective against the new strain.

HISTORY of viral changes shows periodic major changes which result in flu epidemics. This occurred in 1946, 1957, and 1968.

IN 1957-8, the Asian flu made 45 million Americans sick and nearly 70,000 died. One out of four Americans came down with the Hong Kong 68 flu in the Winter of 1968-9.

A NEW STRAIN, A/New Jersey/76 was identified at Fort Dix, New Jersey as 500 people attached to the base were infected with the virus according to the American Lung Association.

WHY IS IT CALLED SWINE FLU??? Tests have shown that the virus is the same virus that for many years has caused illness in pigs. No one ever caught swine flu from another person. But at Fort Dix, the swine flu was transmitted PERSON TO PERSON.

TODAY we have the knowledge to produce a specific vaccine once the virus is identified. Enough A/New Jersey/76 vaccine has been prepared to vaccinate almost our whole population.

HIGH RISK individuals are in the most urgent need of vaccination. If you have a chronic heart or lung disease, you bear a high risk. Diabetics and the elderly and anyone bearing a high risk from catching the flu for any reason, should check into getting a vaccination. Each year, a vaccine is prepared based on the viral strains in circulation. This year, the new strain is predicted to cause a flu epidemic unless combatted with mass vaccination.

SWINE FLU AND YOU. Look for information in your local newspaper on where and when you can get a vaccination -- or check with your family doctor for your questions or concerns.

WE AT MEIJER are happy to present this article in the interest of all of us.
