Growth!

Our editorial opinion for today comments on the price to pay for unchecked growth while Daniels Den suggests it would be wise to delay construction of a third high school to accommodate anticipated growth. Editorial on page 12A and Daniels Den on page 9A.

Race is on

Father Time's successor

The first Canton Township baby born in Ann Arbor's St. Joseph Mercy Hospital is Robert Thomas Beckman. His parents, Dorothy and John Beckman, of 46104 Gainsborough, moved to Canton three weeks ago and friends of the family suspect that the move may be responsible for the baby arriving three weeks ahead of schedule. The Beckmans had planned a quiet New Year's Eve get-together with a few friends for pizza and games. The guests ended up babysitting the Beckman's four-year-old daughter, Sarah, while John and Dorothy headed for the hospital. Young Robert weighed in at 6 pounds, 7 ounces and was born at 12:58 a.m. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Growth could force $30 million bond

By EMORY DANIELS

The Plymouth Board of Education is looking at growth demands which might lead them to seek voter approval of a bond issue approaching $30 million.

If a $29-$30 million bond issue is put before voters and approved, it would be used to buy sites and build seven new schools, renovate Central Middle for possible use as a third high school or high school annex, and for repair of older buildings in the district.

Of the almost $30 million bond issue being contemplated, about $6 million would be used to repair and renovate existing buildings.

Of the seven buildings seen necessary to accommodate growth in the school district over the next five years, five would be elementary schools and two middle schools.

A REPORT on the proposed bond issue is expected to be finished today by Ray Hoedell, assistant superintendent for business, and distributed to board members.

The school board will meet Tuesday, Jan. 11, in a work study session to begin discussions on the size of the bond issue to put before voters.

The board and administration will continue to look at alternatives to new school buildings, such as employing the year-round schedule at other schools, using an extended 7-7 school day at the high schools, or adding portable buildings to existing school sites.

If a $30 million bond issue proves necessary, it will be the largest school bond sold in the history of the state. The highest bond sold to date for schools is $28½ million, according to Supt. John M. Hoben.

MONDAY NIGHT, at its regularly scheduled meeting, the school board is expected to set the date of April 26 for an election. The election will be to seek voter approval of five mill operating renewal plus a bond issue. Also on the ballot will be a millage request for Schoolcraft Community College.

The board will have about a month, after setting the date for the election,

Poole goes to court seeking full recount

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Former Canton trustee James Poole, who lost the November election to Eugene Daley by 11 votes, filed a lawsuit Tuesday attempting to overturn the decision of the county board of canvassers which denied a recount in Canton's absentee ballot precinct.

The first hearing in the lawsuit will be at 9 a.m. Thursday Jan. 13 before Wayne Circuit Court Judge Joseph B. Sullivan.

Poole will be represented by Peter Bundarin, who himself was one of three unsuccessful candidates denied a recount in Precinct 10, the absentee ballot precinct. Former supervisor Robert Greenstein was the third petitioner for a recount and, like Bundarin, is also a lawyer. He said earlier this week that he supports the intent of the lawsuit but is not officially involved.

On Tuesday the lawsuit papers were served on the four-member county board of canvassers through Joe Martina, Wayne County director of elections. The two Republicans on the board are Chairman Denzil Hammond and Bertha Chatterton. Democrats on the canvassing board are Preston Harris and Virginia Bauman.

Poole's lawyer, Bundarin, argues in the lawsuit that the only reason for denying a recount in an absentee ballot counting board precinct is if the ballots were left unsealed or if the seal has been broken.

In Canton's case, the ballot boxes (or canisters) were sealed but the ballot bags inside the canisters were not. Canton Clerk John Flodin explained that because 10 per cent of Canton's voters voted absentee, he was left unprepared for the sheer volume of paper ballots. Flodin had to cram the ballots inside sealed canisters without sealing the bags. The unsealed bags were placed on top of the ballots inside the properly-sealed canisters.

The fact that the bags were left unsealed was one of the irregularities cited by the county board of canvassers in denying the recount request.

MORE IMPORTANTLY, the canvassers noted that the number of ballots did not match the number on the machines which were used to tally the paper vote totals in Precinct 10.

Because 15 pollworkers at the absentee precinct entered their own votes on the machines without using paper ballots, there are 15 more people listed on the pollbook and machine totals than the number of names of absentee voters.

Michigan law allows township pollworkers to vote at the precinct in which they work. In recounting the nine machine precincts, the pollworker's own votes caused no problem because county election inspectors who did the recount only had to examine the totals on the machine under each candidate. But in recounting the absentee precinct, paper ballots are examined and challenged and the total tally on the machine could be in error. Hammond, the chairman of the county board of canvassers, said there is no way of subtracting the number of valid recounted votes from that original total to determine how the 15 pollworkers voted through a process of elimination. And any attempt to count just the 1,308 paper ballots would disenfranchise 15 of the 1,323 voters in Precinct 10, Hammond claims.

"Humpty Dumpty fell off the wall and we'd like to put him back together again but we don't know how to get a better count than the count we received election night," Hammond said. "I wish to hell we could do (the recount in Precinct 10) it."

Hammond said it is possible the judge could "break new ground" and order them to recount the precinct in an instance not covered by the law.

"BUT I WOULD hope that if the judge orders us to recount the precinct, he will also instruct us on how to do it," Hammond said.

Bundarin responded to Hammond's remark saying: "Hammond has no right to ask, 'How do I do it?' He's not there to interpret the law, he's there to conduct a recount."

Bundarin said that when the canvassers denied the recount request in Precinct 10, they cited Michigan Compiled Laws Annotated section 169.871. But Bundarin claims that the last paragraph in that section of the state statutes supports his client's request for a recount.

"Nothing in this section shall prevent the recounting of absentee voters ballots tallied in a counting board precinct or in a precinct in which one or more machines are recountable if the ballots are securely packaged and sealed," reads the last paragraph of the section.

Bundarin argues that the difference between the number of voters on the tally machines and the number of absentee voters in the pollbook is not a problem because the difference or discrepancy can be accounted for "by the fact that the 15 election inspectors

This teen-age entrepreneur fights age-ism at the bank

By DARLENE STINSON

At 18, Plymouth resident Norm Matern is a "young entrepreneur."

While most persons his age pump gas or study for freshman college courses, Matern is owner and manager of Norm's Hobby Shop and Matern Upholstery in Canton's King's Row Shopping Center.

Business ownership means shouldering responsibilities seldom assumed by other persons his age. But Matern says he does not mind putting in 12 to 18 hours seven days a week on the job or sifting through piles of paperwork.

"A lot of people have dreams and continually wish for them to come true," the blue jean-clad businessman said philosophically, flicking a cigaret in a back office of Norm's Hobby Shop. "I have a dream too, but nothing can be accomplished without ambition."

MATERN'S DREAM parallels that of many businessmen twice his age—eventual ownership of a conglomeration of businesses.

"I've pretty much known what I've wanted to do all my life," he confessed, "and I've wanted to get a store since I was 15. But this is only a beginning. I'm going to keep investing my profits in other businesses. Hopefully, by the time I'm 30, I can sit back, collect and pay taxes."

Although a $25,000 investment was needed to establish the hobby store and adjoining custom upholstery shop, Matern says he does not come from a rich family.

A man Matern met while working at an upholstery shop provided much of the cash needed for the business investment. Matern, who began earning money washing cars on an auto lot when he was six, said he saved the rest.

Age, capital, was the main obstacle Matern encountered when he first tried to establish the business.

Many real estate agents, Matern explained, could not believe an 18-year-old was capable of owning a business. After buying out his parents' store—Yogi Hobby Hut in the City of Plymouth—Matern search for a new location for his store.

He finally decided on the King's Row location, after examining expensive commercial buildings in Plymouth. His parents' hobby store was torn down to make way for the recently-constructed First National Bank of Plymouth.

"The reaction I got from real estate agents was 'Look, what do you want, kid?' Matern recalled with some annoyance. "They all thought I was too young, and they thought I couldn't do it."

"A lot of people just can't believe an 18-year-old could own his business. People are very startled when they come in the store, and I tell them I'm the owner. But I just couldn't wait until I was 23 or 24 to do something like this."

MATERN IS NOT the only young person who works in the hobby store, which specializes in radio-controlled model airplanes and trains. His 13-year-old brother, John, helps out each day after school.

Like his older brother, John hopes to become a successful businessman one day. The eighth grader at East Middle School hopes to buy the hobby store from his brother by the time he's 17.

"John takes care of the front of the store, while I work back here in the upholstery shop," said Matern, as he proudly patted his younger brother on

Kadish is candidate for state senate post

Paul Kadish, Schoolcraft College board of trustees chairman, is the first Democrat to announce his candidacy for a special state senate election. The vote in early spring will be held to elect a replacement for Sen. Carl Pursell, the new 2d District congressman.

Kadish, a Livonia resident for 14 years, is president of Associated Group Underwriters, Inc., a Livonia-based insurance firm. He ran for the senate seat in 1970, losing to Pursell.

The candidate, 40, of 18687 Purlingbrook, is active in numerous Democratic Party and community activities.

He is in the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Livonia Optimists, Livonia Elected Officials Compensation Commission, former member of the Livonia Jaycees and is in the Independent Agents of Metropolitan Detroit and Michigan Association of Professional Insurance Agents.

KADISH'S POLITICAL background includes being former chairman of the Livonia Democratic Party, Democratic State Central Committee delegate; and member of the 2d and 19th District executive committees.

The candidate opened his campaign by saying he is convinced voters in the 14th senate district, which includes Livonia, Plymouth, Redford Township, Northville and four precincts in the north section of Westland, will elect a candidate, regardless of political party, "who best illustrates that he or she understands the issues that most concern the people of the district."

Kadish added that the candidate "should also have the willingness and ability to work well with people of all philosophical and political persuasions in order to get things done."

The candidate said he would releasing "issues papers" during the campaign on the need for reform of the state's no-fault auto insurance law to better protect the consumer, reform of the state single business tax to protect the interests of small businessmen, better methods of financing public education, welfare systems, rights of senior citizens, and a method to improve fiscal responsibility and efficiency of the state government through a "sunset law," which would have specific agencies dropped unless the legislature renews them.

Kadish is married and his wife, Estelle, a licensed property and casualty insurance agent, have two sons and a daughter, all enrolled in Livonia public schools.

JANE K. MOEHLE

Announces candidacy

Jane Moehle eyes Senate seat

Republican Jane L. Moehle of Plymouth announced Monday she will be a candidate for the state senate seat vacated by Carl Pursell upon his election to U.S. Congress in the 2d District.

Mrs. Moehle, a leader in many area organizations, said she has been encouraged to run by many who are less than enthusiastic about the other announced candidates.

She says she will "give high priority to opening the doors of political participation at the grass roots level with greater people involvement, concerned and committed to better, more effective state government."

TO SEEK THE nomination, she took a leave of absence from the state department of education where she has been coordinator of community college affairs, serving the state board for public community and junior colleges and all of the state's 29 community colleges.

She comments she has spent much more of her time in Lansing than any of the other candidates and is recognized as the author of the statewide community college districting proposal introduced into the legislature in 1976 which the governor supported in concept in his '76 annual message.

She was a founding board member of Schoolcraft College and was its chairwoman and vice-chairwoman for 11 years. It was during that time the present campus buildings were planned, built and financed.

She has been a resident of the 15th Senate District, which includes Livonia, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Redford and part of Westland, for 18 years, having lived in Redford Township and Plymouth.

MOEHLE WAS ELECTED to the Schoolcraft Board in the first election as the top vote-getter in a field of 14 candidates.

She represented the college on SEMCOG in the formative days of that organization and was appointed by SEMCOG directors to serve on its advisory planning council, thus knowing "the problems and advantages of regional planning as it relates to local governmental units."

The candidate received a Ford Motor Company civic award in 1969, and in 1974 the Women of Wayne State University chose her for one of its coveted Headliner Awards. The annual AAUW scholarship given to Schoolcraft College is named the Jane K. Moehle Scholarship. She earned her doctor's degree in 1973 from WSU where she held a Kellogg Fellowship.

BEFORE HER marriage, the candidate was an associate dean of women at the University of Illinois, director of residences at Kent State University, and an administrator at the Jewish Hospital School of Nursing in Cincinnati.

She welcomes the Open Information Act of '76 because she pressed for and succeeded in having open "study" meetings at Schoolcraft long before most other political bodies routinely did so.

John Marshall of NBD ends 12 years on job

After 12 years as the chief custodian and "floor manager" at the National Bank of Detroit on Main Street in Plymouth, John Marshall could no longer resist the call of the fish up north and has retired.

The high esteem in which he was held by all the employees—and he can remember when there were 60 in the office—was evident Wednesday night when they turned out to pay tribute to him at a dinner in the Sherwood Inn.

For the past 35 years Marshall and his wife have lived on Warren Road in Canton. Now, attracted by the good fishing country, he is moving to Farwell to spend his retirement. His son, Charles, and three grandchildren will remain in Plymouth.

Farrand pipes freeze

Water pipes at Farrand Elementary School froze up during the holiday break, causing damage estimated at some $18,000.

On Dec. 27, a power failure in the Farrand area resulted in the cutoff of a circulation pump, which didn't begin operating again when power was restored. When the water stopped circulating, the pipes froze.

The pipes and valves were replaced, however, as soon as the problem was discovered and the school was ready for operation when students returned from their holiday break on Jan. 3.

LAWRENCE A. WROBLEWSKI of Plymouth has been named product information director for the Dodge car and truck national and dealer advertising association accounts for Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc. (BBD&O), public relations firm in Troy.

He comes to the agency from Campbell-Ewald Co., Detroit, where he was a product information supervisor on the Chevrolet passenger car account for four years.

A native of Detroit and a 1959 journalism graduate of Michigan State University, Wroblewski joined the sports department of the Port Huron Times Herald immediately after graduation. He subsequently worked on employee publications with Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, for two years and for one year he was Detroit regional news editor for Automotive Industries Magazine.

Wroblewski also has been an advertising and promotion writer for Lynch Corp., Gar Wood Industries, and the Jam Handy Organization.

Long election lines spur reform ideas

By TIM RICHARD
(Second of two articles)

No one questions the need for a system whereby persons who can't physically get to the polls can use absentee voter (AV) ballots.

No one suggests that persons age 60 or over, the ill, the disabled, the person who must be out of town on business on election day, the person on vacation be denied the right to vote.

But a survey by Observer Newspapers reporters and editors shows clearly that use of the costly AV ballot soars during presidential elections. It has nothing to do with the weather, vacations, the number of persons age 60 or over, or anything else increasing.

It's simply that the lines at the polls are so long.

City and township clerks have a number of ideas about how to shorten the lines.

MOST FREQUENTLY mentioned is the length of the ballot.

People refer to the November balloting as the "presidential" election, but there are many other offices and proposals on the ballot.

There are the U.S. senator, the U.S.

representative, the state representative, the county commissioner, a half-dozen county administrators (sheriff, drain commissioner, etc.), local officials (in townships), State Board of Education and the governing boards of three major universities—and that's just the partisan ballot.

On the nonpartisan ballot are justices of the Michigan Supreme Court, judges of the Court of Appeals, Wayne County Circuit judges (full terms), Wayne County Circuit judges (to fill vacancies), probate judges and district judges. Detroiters have it worse: All of the above except district judges, plus recorder's judges and common pleas judges.

Statewide, there were four ballot proposals on such matters as non-returnable bottles and graduated income taxes. Local units may also have ballot proposals—Detroit had several city charter amendments and a school millage, for example.

SHORTEN THE BALLOT, said Garden City Clerk William Oppen.

Plymouth City Clerk Paul Brumfield specifically proposed eliminating judges from the same election as partisan offices.

Plymouth Township Clerk Helen Richardson would eliminate judges and go a step further: Eliminate such partisan educational posts as the University of Michigan Board of Regents, the Michigan State University Board of Trustees and the Wayne State University Board of Governors.

Clerks in Oakland County communities suggested using the presidential election only for federal offices. They would have the governor and all state and local partisan offices elected for four-year terms in off-years.

MICHIGAN USED to have a spring election under the state constitution that was in effect from 1908 to 1964. Township offices, the supreme court, the educational posts and the state highway commissioner were elected then.

One reason it was eliminated was that turnouts were so low. Democrats, in particular, disliked that election because Democratic voters tend to have a higher "fall-off" than Republican voters after the presidency is decided.

The three big universities—U.M., MSU and WSU—vigorously resist any attempt to eliminate election of their elective boards because they enjoy the constitutional status. They have the lobbying clout to keep that status with the legislature.

But among clerks, there is some general sympathy for restoring the spring election, at least for the judiciary.

BETTER VOTING by voters themselves could shorten lines and, thus, eliminate the desire to beat the line by voting AV.

A state law limits a voter to two minutes in the booth, far more than is really necessary to vote provided the citizen knows whom he wants to vote for.

But it's human nature for many voters to refuse to do their homework and to stand in front of the machine, looking for familiar or ethnic names while making up their minds. And there is no known instance of an election worker kicking out a voter who used up his two minutes—or even four or six minutes.

Distribute more sample ballots? The persons who fail to do their homework now still wouldn't look at them.

Garden City Clerk Oppen suggests voters who can avoid peak voting times such as early morning and evening.

WEEKEND VOTING has some support and some opposition among clerks. Several European and South American countries do this.

Livonia Clerk Addison Bacon said it would be a convenience to voters as well as election workers. Returns could be tabulated faster and more accurately because two separate staffs of workers would be used rather than one staff putting in an extremely long day.

But Oppen opposed a two-day election because it would increase costs. He added that election workers are hard enough to recruit as it is, and a two-day stint would discourage them.

(An Oakland County clerk suggested voters be drafted for election duty just as jurors are drafted.)

One idea is to make election day a national holiday. Bacon pointed out that many municipal unions have paid holidays on election days.

But he added that serious voters will get to the polls no matter what the difficulties, and others would use a holiday as just another day off and not vote anyway.

OTHER RANDOM PROPOSALS: Allow persons who are going to be out of town to cast AV ballots in city hall on a machine rather than on a paper ballot that a clerk must later tally on a machine.

But Oakland County Clerk Lynn Allen said that solution would present serious machine security problems. Machines would have to be open for several days.

Buy more voting machines. The problem is that many would be used only once in four years for the heavy presidential turnout and then stand unused for the 12 to 16 state, local, school, community college and special millage elections in between.

Livonia Clerk Bacon felt too little known technology is being used for elections. He suggested a federal study to seek better ways for people to cast ballots. As Bacon summed it up:

"If we can put a man on the moon, we should have easier and better means of casting ballots on election day."

Old nursery could be hall site

By DARLENE STINSON

Should we provide office space here? Or do we need a closet there?

Like excited families planning the layout of a new home, Canton officials are poring over blueprints of a new three-story administration building, proposed for a site on Canton Center north of Cherry Hill or an alternative site on Canton Center near Proctor.

Faced with an April groundbreaking deadline, Canton officials and employees of the Livonia architectural firm of Ralls, Hammill, Becker and Carne must complete details of the building's 30,000-square-foot floor plan within the next three months.

UNDER GUIDELINES of the federal grant program expected to fund the project, construction of the building must begin within 90 days after final approval of the township's grant application.

Township officials have already learned of the $2.7 million grant's tentative approval. Deputy treasurer Mike Gorman expects the Economic Development Administration, a branch of the U.S. Department of Commerce, to stamp final approval on the grant application by Jan. 23.

That means blueprints must be completed, a site must be picked, and construction must begin by April 23 at the latest.

"We have to allow one day for putting the shovel in the ground," said Gorman, "so we have 89 days for the blueprint."

Township officials had originally proposed construction of the building on a 7½-acre parcel north of the township's recreation site on Canton Center near Cherry Hill. But, according to Gorman, township officials may instead choose the site of the former Folker's Nursery on Canton Center near Proctor for the new administration building.

The township has already purchased the Folker property on land contract terms, Gorman explained, while purchase of the parcel near the recreation site is still being negotiated.

FLOOR PLANS of the proposed administration building must provide office space for township administrators who currently work in the present township hall on Geddes near Michigan. The floor plan must be flexible enough to accommodate future departments and employees, to be added to the township's payroll as Canton grows.

Movable partitions will provide that flexibility.

Supervisor Harold Stein called the partitions an example of "office landscaping. We don't want to be tied down to one office plan for the next 50 years," he explained.

Blueprints of the proposed administration building call for construction of offices for the township supervisor, clerk and treasurer on the first floor, according to Gorman.

The entrance to a 200-seat meeting hall with a two-story ceiling is also proposed for the first floor as are restrooms and an employee lounge.

ON THE SECOND FLOOR, office space for the township's water, building and recreation departments is planned. Several conference rooms and workrooms for the township planner and engineer are proposed.

"Here in township hall, we now stick them back in the building department," Gorman said of the planner and engineer, who are now employees of a private firm and hired on a contractual basis. "We're looking toward the future in case we have a planner or engineer of our own someday."

On the third floor, a large activity room for senior citizens is planned. Township officials, according to Gorman, are considering construction of a temporary library on the third floor.

In addition, the blueprint will reserve some basement space for future construction of a small courtroom and temporary holding facility for prisoners, Gorman said. The township may one day request the 35th District Court judge to hold proceedings in Canton.

Parking for the administration building is planned at the rear of the building, according to Gorman. A landscape plan has not yet been drawn up.

Gorman expects completion of the building within 18 months after construction is started.

Doughnut stop leads to arrest

Three men wanted for an alleged armed robbery in Wixom were apprehended early Tuesday morning in Plymouth Township by the owner of a doughnut shop and an off-duty railroad detective.

According to Phil Haddad, owner of Dawn Donuts on Ann Arbor Road, the circumstances which lead to the arrest started about 4:30 a.m. when a man came into the shop with a butcher knife in his belt. Also in the store was Larry Adkison, an off-duty Michigan Railroad police officer.

Adkison asked the man why he was carrying the knife. He then identified himself as a police officer and told the man to give him the knife. The man refused, and Adkison reached out and grabbed it. When the man resisted, a fight took place.

"He got the knife away from him," said Haddad, "but he was having trouble putting handcuffs on him. So I went around the counter and helped him."

"Once we got him handcuffed, I called the Michigan State Police," he added that during the entire struggle, the man's two companions stayed outside in the car.

TROOPER NORMAN MAXWELL, of the State Police said when the officers arrived at the doughnut shop, they found men in the car fit the description of a vehicle which was suspected in an armed robbery in Wixom.

"A young lady was robbed at a bar on Grand River in Wixom at about 12:30 a.m.," Maxwell stated, "and an alert was put out for the vehicle. When the officers got there, they found out it was the same car."

Maxwell said all three men were arrested and taken to the Michigan State Police post in Northville.

State Police Sgt. James Collins said the men were turned over to the Wixom police Tuesday and are being held while investigation continues.

"The Wixom police are going to have a lineup to get positive identification," said Collins, "and if they get that, they will seek a warrant for armed robbery." He also indicated the State Police were planning to seek a warrant on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon against the man with the knife.

The names of the three men, who are residents of New Hudson, were not available at press time.

Newly-remodeled twp. hall could be fire truck garage

Optic yellow fire trucks may one day replace the subdued gold decor of Canton Township Hall's recently remodeled front office.

With plans to build a new administration building almost finalized, Canton officials are considering conversion of the current township hall into a fire station when the new administration building opens in 1979. Although future use of township hall is still in the discussion stages, deputy treasurer Mike Gorman said township officials may convert the hall's front office into a garage for fire trucks.

The back of township hall, where clerk, supervisor and other offices are currently located, may be converted into sleeping quarters for fire department personnel.

Township hall, notes Supervisor Harold Stein, was once used as a fire station, and kitchen facilities still exist.

The trailer at the rear of township hall, presently used by the building department, may become headquarters of the Canton Police Department, Gorman said, once the building department moves into the new administration building. Canton police officers currently work in township hall.

The DPW department will remain in the building next to the current township hall on Geddes near Michigan.

Another township building—the recreation hall at Michigan and Sheldon—also will be vacated by Canton employees when the new administration building opens. The recreation department is scheduled to move to the new building, and an activity room is planned for the new facility's third floor.

Stein said township officials probably will not renew the lease on the recreation hall, when it expires in about two years.

The recreation hall, like township offices, was recently remodeled. Township officials used a $33,000 federal grant to construct kitchen facilities and remodel an activity room in the

Canton builder fined and sentenced to jail

Albert Haskins, Jr., 38, of Brook Drive, Canton Township, was sentenced in U.S. District Court Monday to a year in prison on a charge of federal income tax evasion.

Haskins, a building contractor, attempted to evade his taxes for 1970, 1971 and 1972 and did not report income from the government for work done on HUD-owned properties, according to the federal indictment. He was prosecuted only on the 1972 charge.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert E. DeMascio also fined Haskins $1,000, due within 60 days. Haskins' bond was canceled and he began serving his sentence this week, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Loren Keenan.

Keenan said Haskins must still satisfy tax obligations owed from 1970, 1971 and 1972, including any interest and civil penalties that re assessed. But criminal charges filed against Haskins for 1970 and 1971 will be dropped, according to Keenan, now that Haskins has been sentenced on the 1972 charge.

Another building contractor, Eugene Ellefson, of 4492 Vassar, Dearborn Heights, was sentenced to serve six months in prison and fined $5,000 on Oct. 5. The U.S. attorney states that like Haskins, Ellefson did not report "substantial income" paid to him by the government for work done on HUD homes.

Gypsy family linked to con

Con artists, who have posed as utility company representatives in efforts to con money from senior citizens in the Plymouth-Canton area, may be members of a "gypsy" family living in Toledo, Ohio.

So believes Stuart H. Leach, acting administrative assistant of Detroit Edison's security department, who has investigated numerous reports of con men using his company's name throughout southeastern Michigan during the last year.

The Southgate Police Department recently arrested one of the gypsies—Dewey Miller, 36—for attempting a con job and then turned him over to the Taylor Police Department, which held an outstanding warrant for his arrest.

Det. Pat Suiter of the Taylor Police Department says Miller is charged with unarmed robbery. The Toledo man allegedly stole $600 from an elderly Taylor couple, after posing as a utility company representative.

LEACH AND SUITER believe the con tactics allegedly used by Miller in conning off the elderly couple match the trickery used in the Plymouth-Canton area. They believe Miller or members of his family were involved in the con jobs.

Rip-off artists stole more than $500 from an 83-year-old Canton woman last summer and at least $50 from an elderly Canton couple last fall. At least four cases of attempted con jobs were reported in the City of Plymouth, and a spokesman for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department said complaints have been filed in Plymouth Township.

In each case, the thieves posed as representatives of Consumers Power Co. or Detroit Edison and informed senior citizens of a "cash rebate" they had coming.

Although details of the con jobs vary from case to case, the thieves typically pull out a $100 bill for a "rebate" of $50 and ask senior citizens for the change. After observing residents and noticing the place they keep their money, one of the thieves takes the couple's cash and valuables, while his co-worker shows residents their "faulty" meter.

Leach said he began suspecting the Miller family of committing the con jobs after an elderly South Lyon victim reported seeing one of the thief's Ohio drivers license. The Miller family, which claims to be real "gypsies," has allegedly pulled similar con jobs in the State of Ohio.

"I believe they're responsible for all these con jobs," Leach said, "but proving it is a different matter."

Leach urges all senior citizens to ask utility company representatives for identification if they request entrance into their homes.

"We haven't suffered any actual loss from these con jobs," Leach said of Detroit Edison, "but our image has. You go to these elderly people and say you're from Detroit Edison or Consumers Power, and they welcome you with open arms. That's good. I suppose, but we don't want anyone to be ripped off because of it."

Con jobs reported in the Plymouth-Canton area are still under investigation.

Flu virus is forever changing its form

When influenza strikes, the lining of the respiratory tract is affected. That is why the American Lung Association is particularly interested in the flu and why it recently published an informational pamphlet about this respiratory disease.

The association labels flu a highly contagious disease caused by a virus that is constantly changing. Many have called it the gripe.

If you have the flu one year, your body builds up an immunity to the viral strain that infected you. But the following year, the virus may have altered. Your body's defenses are less effective against the new strain, sometimes not effective enough to fight it off. Year after year, susceptible people get the flu.

The pamphlet points out that every 10 years or so, the influenza virus changes dramatically. When this major change occurs, a worldwide epidemic, called a pandemic, almost inevitably follows. Few people have defenses that are effective against the new virus.

IN A SEVERE epidemic, normal life can be totally disrupted. Whole families become ill. Business may have to close down. Vital services are stopped.

The lung association indicates that major viral changes, and pandemic followups, happened in 1946, 1957 and 1968. When the Asian flu attacked the U.S. in the fall and winter of 1957-58, 45 million people caught it. Nearly 70,000 of them died.

The Hong Kong-68 flu is another example. One out of every four men, women and children in America came down with it in the winter of 1968-69, and many died.

A variant of this strain is A-Victoria-75, which was responsible for epidemic illness in the fall and winter of 1975-76 and was expected to return in 1976-77.

All these flu virus strains are A-type, one of the two major families of influenza virus. A-type epidemics generally occur more often and are more severe than B-type. But both A and B types include strains that can cause disease ranging from mild to fatal.

The pamphlet then turns its attention to the most recent and kind of flu, swine flu, known as A-New Jersey-76, which was identified at Fort Dix, N.J.

Once again, it says a major change in the flu virus has taken place, a change that leaves most people defenseless in a pandemic. Tests showed that at least 500 people attached to Fort Dix were infected with the same virus.

TESTS ALSO showed the virus to be one known for many years as the cause of illness in pigs (swine). Swine have usually passed it on to other swine. On rare occasions it has been caught to people in contact with pigs.

But until the Fort Dix incident, this viral strain had not been known to be transmittable from one person to another. In fact, Fort Dix is the first known example in the U.S. since the swine flu virus was identified, of its person-to-person transmission.

Why is swine virus thought to be dangerous to people, asks the pamphlet. It answers the question by first talking about antibodies, which are produced in response to a specific bacterium or virus. They are the way the body fights against a particular germ.

Almost everyone living in 1918 has antibodies to a swine virus. Because of these widespread antibodies, scientists have concluded that it was a swine virus that caused the pandemic of 1918.

This was the influenza epidemic that swept through the world, leaving in its wake more than 20 million dead. Some 500,000 died in this country alone from this disease, whereas World War I, ending in 1918 resulted in less than 117,000 dead Americans.

THE LUNG ASSOCIATION brochure asserts that today is radically different from the way it was back then. Now flu virus can be isolated, and the illness prevented.

How, you ask. By vaccination. Once a virus is identified, a special vaccine can be produced to combat it. This was the intent of the $135 million appropriated by Congress for a national influenza immunization program in 1976-77.

The American Lung Association recommends vaccination against that certain high risk groups get vaccinated against the flu.

It points out that flu particularly threatens anyone with a chronic lung disease, such as asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis or tuberculosis.

Anyone with heart disease and chronic kidney disease is in the high risk group, as is anyone with diabetes or other chronic metabolic disorder, and anyone over 65 years of age.

The pamphlet also notes that an unusually large number of pregnant women die in flu pandemics.

Most of flu's complications are bacterial infections which can usually be treated by antibiotics. But there is a less common but very serious development, a type of pneumonia caused directly by the flu virus itself. It cannot be treated by antibiotics.

The lung association recommends that highly susceptible people be vaccinated yearly against flu. Every year a vaccine is prepared for them based on the viral strains then in circulation. That vaccine gives the best protection possible for the coming flu season.

SOME PEOPLE, though, should not be vaccinated. They are very young children who might have severe side effects and people who are allergic to egg protein and might have a bad reaction to the vaccine.

Recount is in court had signed the poll list when they voted.

Bundarin recommends that the county recount the absentee ballot using only the 1,308 paper ballots and ignore the 15 non-paper votes entered by the pollworkers.

Hammond claims that not counting those 15 votes would be disenfranchising 15 voters.

"As I stated before, every time they disallow a name or ballot they're disenfranchising a voter, so that's nothing new. I saw them disenfranchise eight write-in voters when they were conducting the recount in precincts one through nine. The only example that comes to mind is the person who wrote 'Cheesopie' down when he meant to write in (Gerald) Cheske. They saw no problem disenfranchising these voters.

"If the reverse situation were true—if there were 15 more ballots than the number on the poll list—then the administrative code directs the canvassers to burn 15 ballots. So the code provides for disenfranchising voters.

"The issue is are we allowed a recount?" Bundarin said.

Although Bundarin is representing ex-trustee Poole, any favorable recount decision would also force the county to recount the votes cast for supervisor candidates Bundarin, Greenstein and the declared winner, Harold Stein.

Poole said that while he doubts the recount will give him 12 more votes to unseat Daley, he pursued the lawsuit "as a matter of principle."

WHO DID THE people vote for? Poole asked. "Almost cent of the people in the township voted absentee and they're telling us we can't take a look. Those ballots have been secured. They're still under lock and key in Flodin's office, so I'd hope the court clears the air once and for all.

"I don't think there were names being played with this election, contrary to all the rumors and allegations of discrepancy and tampering. But unless there's a recount, people will be positive there was something improper."

CPOA officers reject wage cut

Officials of the Canton Police Officers Association (CPOA) say they're "back to the drawing board" following Sunday's rejection of a plan to voluntarily cut their own salaries so seven more reserves could attain certification status.

The voluntary pay cut was recommended by Robert van Lith, the CPOA vice-president. The new group has no president.

Van Lith explained that a new class at the Criminal Justice Institute begins Jan. 31 and the organization would like to see seven Canton reserves attend the upcoming class.

To pay the seven people a higher wage after certification and still stay within the budget set by the administration, van Lith recommended that certified officers agree to a pay cut "to increase professionalism in the department."

"The whole idea behind the recommendation was let's give to get," explained van Lith. "One of our basic goals as an organization is to get more CJI training for our officers. A lot of us benefitted from the training and we'd like to see more benefit, especially since the training is free to the township."

All costs of CJI training is underwritten by the Law Enforcement Assistance Act (LEAA), providing that the trainees are sent by a municipality and are guaranteed a job upon graduation.

Canton certified police officers currently earn $3.82 an hour. Reserves earn minimum wage—$2.30 an hour.

Interim Police Chief Carl Silvers said earlier in the week that he would like to see seven reserves attend the upcoming CJI class.

"If we get seven more people certified, then we'll have a new department that can boast it has have over 20 people with more than 400 hours of police training. How many departments can say that?"

Silvers also stated that Supervisor Harold Stein could be "playing the (police) budget too tight."

ALTHOUGH MATERN employees five persons far older than himself, he says the age difference has never been a problem. Two women work in the hobby store, while three men custom upholster home and auto furniture in the backroom shop.

"We don't boss our employees around," explained the young businessman. "We feel if people aren't happy here, it'll show in their workmanship."

In equipment replacement

Equity sought for older schools

An attempt to realize more equity in distribution of equipment among school buildings is being made in the Plymouth Community School District.

The attempt at equipment equity is part of an overall goal of the school board at seeking equity for all school buildings.

The problem in distribution of equipment, explains Supt. John M. Hoben, is that buildings were allocated funds for equipment in the past on the basis of a $5 per pupil allotment. Thus, a new school with little need for equipment was due to receive a large equipment replacement budget in comparison to an older school with a smaller enrollment.

The board felt there was a relationship between the age of a building and the need to replace equipment. On that basis, older buildings should be receiving larger replacement budgets even though their enrollments might be smaller than some of the newer schools," Hoben explained.

Ray Hoedell, assistant superintendent for business, established a formula which seeks to distribute equipment replacement monies on an equitable basis using both age of building and student enrollment as measurements by which to pro rate funds.

FOR THE 1976-77 school year, some $70,000 is budgeted for equipment replacement but the funds have been on a hold status until an equity system of distribution could be devised.

Although the system is being refined, the general outline was approved informally by the school board Monday night in a work study session. The board instructed the administration to release the funds to the individual schools based on the building age-student enrollment pro rata formula.

The allotment for individual elementaries roughly will be: Allen, $5,320; Bird, $3,300; Farrand, $3,720; Fiegel, $1,716; Smith, $4,300; Tanger, $700; Isbister, $1,660; Starkweather, $3,930; Miller, $1,620; and Gallimore, $4,088. Some funds will be redistributed with possibly Tanger, Farrand, and Starkweather receiving a bit more.

A probable allotment for middle schools and high schools could be: East Middle, $5,470; West Middle, $3,700; Pioneer Middle, $2,940; Central Middle, $7,870; and the two high schools, $11,950.

OF THE 19 school buildings, the three opened this year won't receive equipment replacement allotments—Hulsing, Eriksson and Field elementaries.

Hulsing has 554 pupils, Eriksson 696, and Field has 669 pupils.

The building age and enrollments of the other school buildings are: Miller, four years old, 966 pupils; Isbister, six, 554; Canton High, six, 1,651; Pioneer, seven, 981; Salem High, seven, 2,335; Fiegel, nine, 572; Tanger, nine, 234; West Middle, 15, 740; Farrand, 19, 465; Gallimore, 20, 511; East Middle, 20, 684; Allen, 23, 623; Bird, 26, 623; Smith, 27, 430; Starkweather, 49, 262; and Central Middle, 57 years old and 846 pupils.

Under the equity system, buildings built earlier than 1950 will receive $15 per pupil, those from 1950-54 $10 per pupil, those between 1955-58 $8 per pupil, and all others $3 per pupil.

THE ITEMS to be replaced were prioritized by principals after discussions with staff members at the local school level.

Among items requested for replacement at the elementary level are drapes, books and periodical shelves, phonographs and audio-visual equipment, carpeting, classroom and office furniture and equipment. Replacement requests at the secondary level included sewing machines, drapes, typewriters, industrial education tools, audio-visual equipment, music instruments, classroom furniture and office equipment.

Plymouth's a leader in '76 voting

The City of Plymouth was awarded a Certificate of Excellence in the national bicentennial "Votingest City" competition at an awards ceremony held recently in Alameda, Calif.

Plymouth was recognized for having 74.23 per cent of its registered voters voting in the November Presidential election.

The contest was sponsored by Alameda-Vote '76, a nonpartisan community group formed to encourage city voting competition as a bicentennial project. The project has been underway for two years and is recognized by city, county, state, and national bicentennial commissions.

In all, 268 communities, representing 45 states and the District of Columbia, entered the contest, which compared cities of similar size on voter turnout, voter registration, and increase in each of these over 1974 levels.

The League of Women Voters of Plymouth-Northville, Canton and Novi collected the voting statistics for each of the three cities and entered them in the competition.

"The League had been active in getting people to register," said Annalee Mathes, president, "so we decided to enter our cities in the contest."

The City of Northville received an award in the two categories of highest voter registration and greatest increase in registration. Novi was recognized in the category of greatest increase in registration.

Business is up for large chains

Retail business is improving, but it's improving more for the large chain and department stores than for other businesses.

That was the sum of a top S.S. Kresge official's comments when he spoke to the Detroit Economic Club's annual economic outlook luncheon.

Walter H. Teninga, vice-chairman of the Kresge board, predicted 1977 would see a five per cent real growth in the gross national product on top of a five per cent increase in prices. "Assuming for the moment there will be no tax rebate or tax reduction for the year, we would anticipate retail sales in total to increase approximately 8.6 per cent or to a level of $700 billion in 1977 current dollars."

CURRENT SALES for October and November, he said, show large chain and department stores running "substantially better than are the results for our sector of the retailing industry in general."

In October, Kresge showed a sales increase of 27.9 per cent compared to October 1975. Dayton-Hudson was up 14.7 per cent in the same time span. Sears up 16.9 per cent, and J.C. Penney up 14.4 per cent.

The Kresge Co. is quite delighted with our results, but they (results) are not indicative of what is happening to retail sales in general. Our sector of the retail market—general merchandise, apparel, and furniture and home furnishings, or "GAF"—was up approximately 6.6 per cent in October (compared to October of '75), which was below the year-to-date of 8.7 per cent.

"The chains are evidently doing a better job of merchandising than is the industry in total."

TURNING TO the economy in general, Teninga said:

"Of course, what the country really needs, to secure a trend of controlled, long-term growth, is a permanent tax reduction for both individuals and corporations, with special incentives to spur business fixed investment and perhaps housing, rather than a quick fix that deludes us into thinking things are really picking up. However, I see little evidence that this will happen."

Teninga noted that the Detroit Economic Club's 1972 retail speaker was Kresge Chairman Robert Dewar, who spoke of the ill effects price controls were having at the time on profits and the ability of retailers to generate sales.

"It is a rather sad fact that in spite of all the havoc these controls heaped upon the economy," Teninga said, "we appear to have learned very little. We still read and hear that controls could well be an important instrument in the new (Carter) Administration's economic policy formulation. That possibility does tend to dampen one's enthusiasm for 1977 and beyond."

Teninga, 48, has degrees from the University of Michigan and Michigan State University. He was in the real estate business in Chicago before joining Kresge in 1959. He came to Detroit in 1966 in charge of corporate growth.

Outdoor ice dangers already claim 3 lives

Ice breakthrough accidents have already claimed the lives of three children in Michigan in recent weeks. At least another break incident involved a man who fortunately survived his mishap by clinging to a buoyant fishing box.

These accident reports were cited by State Police Director George L. Halverson while issuing a warning about ice dangers outside.

HALVERSON SAID winter ice sometimes may look stronger than it is. Outdoor enthusiasts are advised that ice thickness should be tested for safety where any doubt exists. Provisions for rescue also should be at hand.

Be wary of areas where moving water under ice may keep the ice surface dangerously thin. These unsafe spots would generally be on rivers or streams or over well spring areas of ponds. Halverson urged parents to be especially vigilant about cautioning children concerning outdoor ice dangers.

To safely withstand weight of individuals or small groups of persons, outdoor ice on lakes, rivers, and ponds should be from two to four inches thick. For heavier weights, such as snowmobiles, thickness should range from five inches and up for protection purposes.

Provisional records in the state police records division through Dec. 1, 1976, show there have been 219 non-boating accidents in Michigan resulting in 169 deaths and 57 injuries.

The deaths included 106 swimmers, 45 who fell from banks, bridges, docks, etc., six who fell through ice, five scuba divers, five who tried to rescue others, and three miscellaneous.

The Mackinac Bridge (which connects the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan) was completed in 1957 after four years of labor by 10,000 men.

The four-lane span stretches for five miles over the Straits of Mackinac and is considered to be the longest suspension bridge of its type in the world, according to the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce.

Money motive in choosing 'light-rail' transit plan

By TIM RICHARD

Two motives are behind the Wayne and Oakland County Road Commissions' proposal that a "light rail" transit system be built in the tri-county area rather than the more expensive and heavy rapid rail system visualized for Detroit by federal and regional officials.

The road commissions Tuesday unveiled their alternative suggestion to a skeptical, almost hostile board of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

The differences between the two road commissions' plan and the SEMTA plan are more than just the kind of hardware, for they reflect fundamentally different views about the future of the tri-county area known as metropolitan Detroit.

ONE MOTIVE, in the words of John Grubba, managing director of the Oakland County Road Commission (OCRC), is that the road agencies are worried about "the impact of a regional transit system on road needs."

In plain words, the SEMTA plan will cost $1.2 billion and the road commissions' plan $247 million, or two-thirds as much. The difference would represent a loss of road funds and power to the road commissions. The road agencies don't try to hide their fear of that prospect.

THE OTHER motive is that the road commissions see a continued decline in jobs in downtown Detroit and population in Detroit proper.

Grubba accused SEMTA and its parent agency, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), of "rationalizing" their desire for a high-level transit system by exaggerating Detroit's future population and the potential ridership of a SEMTA rapid transit system.

SEMTA officials say the road commissions are designing a system to serve continued sprawl into the suburbs and outlying rural areas. SEMTA's view is that transit patronage is only one purpose of all the federal and state spending; the others are "urban revitalization and economic development," particularly in Detroit, where 90 per cent of SEMTA's new transit dollars would go.

In addition, SEMTA board member Joseph P. Bianco Jr. of Bloomfield Hills said a political motivation in the road commissions' 11th hour proposal: "They're losing work. The Wayne County Road Commission has many planners and engineers on its payroll with nothing to do."

THOMAS O'ROURKE, managing director of the Wayne County Road Commission (WCRC), disclaimed any interest in "obstructing" SEMTA's plans, adding:

"We have no intention of operating this or any other public transit system and, given a choice, would prefer not to."

But the road commissions asked that SEMTA forward their plans to UMTA, the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration, for review.

Anticipating the charge they would be considered guilty of poking their noses into SEMTA's business, WCRC Chairman Freddie Burton noted his agency has long operated Detroit Metropolitan Airport and will soon take over Willow Run Airport from the University of Michigan.

And John Gnau Jr. of West Bloomfield, vice-chairman of the OCRC, noted that both federal and state highway agencies have expanded their interests into the broad field of transportation.

THE GUTS of the road commission proposal is that SEMTA drop its "preliminary proposal" for two rapid transit lines totaling 20 miles from downtown Detroit to Eight Mile, one in the Woodward corridor and one in the Gratiot corridor.

Instead, they proposed three light rail lines totaling 55.2 miles running in existing railroad or public rights of way:

1. In the Woodward corridor alongside the Grand Trunk Western Railway tracks from Renaissance Center to Pontiac, a distance of 25.1 miles to be covered in 39 minutes with 20 stops.

2. In the Michigan Ave. corridor along the Penn Central right of way from a Ford plant in Wayne to Cass Avenue, a distance of 18.6 miles to be covered in 30 minutes with 14 stops.

3. In the Gratiot corridor, following Woodward to East Grand Blvd., then following the rail tracks to 12 Mile and Groesbeck Highway in Macomb County, some 13.5 miles in 20 minutes with 10 stops.

THE "LIGHT RAIL" system proposed by the road commissions would consist of single cars rather than trains, although two cars could be coupled as demand developed.

"All three light rail lines tie into a central business district loop in downtown Detroit to distribute and collect passengers at eight conveniently located stops during the 11-minute circuit," said Grubba.

"Since this downtown Detroit loop is nearly identical to the route proposed by SEMTA for a 'people mover,' commuters could enjoy the same convenience without having to transfer from their commuter vehicle."

This light rail loop downtown could be constructed for less than $4 million, compared to the $53 million people mover that is a pet project of Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young.

THE ROAD officials said they began their planning work with an origin and destination survey in late September and early October. This is about the same time SEMTA was making its "preliminary proposal" to UMTA for $600 million in federal funds.

That survey was made by Market Opinion Research, the election polling firm that works for The Detroit News.

The actual transit plan was developed by Transportation Planning Associates, headed by Russell Thielman of Bloomfield Hills.

This prompted SEMTA board member Marilyn Thayer of Ann Arbor to say she was "offended to have this come so late" in SEMTA's own alternatives analysis of transit routes and hardware.

After the meeting, Mrs. Thayer also snapped: "Have you ever heard of an origin and destination survey conducted in two weeks?"

Bianco said SEMTA's own analysis is considering every kind of hardware proposed by the road commissions.

Where transit money will go

By this newspaper's calculations, SEMTA's $1.125 billion "preliminary proposal" would pump $1.03 billion (91.5 per cent) into Detroit and $43.02 million (4.7 per cent) into the suburbs. Here is the breakdown:

Rapid transit: $945.03 million, all in Detroit.

Bus rapid transit: $34.3 million—$25.15 million in Detroit and $9.15 million in the suburbs. This allotment is based on the number of route miles in each community, with the Eight Mile route being split 50-50.

Detroit "people mover": $51.36 million, all in Detroit.

Commuter rail: $41.91 million—$8.04 million in Detroit, $33.87 million in suburbs. Again, this allotment is based on the number of route miles in each area.

Regional bus: $52.4 million—no breakdown of route miles available from SEMTA.

Hearing's Monday on Weidman lot

The city commission Monday postponed a committee-of-the-whole meeting to discuss adding a deck to the Weidman parking lot on Main Street.

The discussion was originally to take place after the regular commission meeting on Monday. But because of lack of "interested citizen attendance" the meeting was rescheduled for Monday, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Kirk Lorenz, of the Mayflower Hotel, told the commissioners that business owners in the central business district were under the impression the discussion of the proposed expansion was not until Jan. 17.

"I made several phone calls before I came down," he said, "but nobody was planning on talking about this tonight." He added there were about 20 people who were interested in speaking to the commission about the addition.

Commissioner Mary Childs said the commission was interested in getting all the information possible and suggested delaying the discussion to allow full turnout.

After some discussion of the alternatives, the commissioners agreed to hold a special meeting on the following Monday.

The Stroller:

Colorless Commercials

By W. W. EDGAR

Like millions of others across the land, The Stroller spent much of his time during the holiday season with his eyes glued to the television set. He, like lots of others, had hoped to see his favorites triumph on the white striped gridirons and suffered with them when he watched the futile attempts of the Maize and Blue of Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

But the dismal performance of the Wolverines was not the only shock. The real disappointment came when The Stroller turned his attention to the commercials and found that they were just as lackluster as the Michigan passing attack.

There was the hope that on a big football day when the eyes of the nation would be on the screen that the lads in the advertising departments would let their imaginations run rampant and they would have a field day.

Instead they treated the viewers to lines of perfumes, shaving creams and countless other items until the commercials became just as boring as the football games.

As he sat there, his eyes almost bloodshot by the by the long stretches of viewing, The Stroller got to wishing his old friend, Tom Schroder, was still around.

Tom couldn't pass a football across the street. He couldn't run either. But he was a genius when it came to using the paint brush in his role as a cartoonist in the advertising department of the old Detroit Times before it passed out of existence almost two decades ago.

Tom was a tall, slender fellow with a tiny mustache and he spent most of his time trying to laugh his way through life and make it pleasurable for others, too.

But his chief success came during the period he was the advertising manager for Square Deal Miller, the one-time famous jeweler who made a fortune in his tiny store a block off Washington Boulevard in Detroit.

TOM'S FORTE was putting imagination into his work and some of the ads he wrote and designed were acclaimed throughout the business world.

For example, when white gold rings came into prominence years ago Tom arranged a large exhibit of the new rings in the main window of the store and the only wording he used was:

"Your face doesn't show your age—why should your ring?" Would you believe that Square Deal Miller couldn't keep up with the demand. And Tom just sat by and laughed.

On another occasion, the city of Detroit was tearing up some of the trolley tracks and it so happened that the edge of the street was covered with broken cement and bricks.

Sighting this from his window in the Times—just across the street, Tom quickly made his way to Square Deal Miller's store.

Quicker than you could say "jack rabbit," he had a poster out on the mound of debris that read: "The biggest little jewelry store in town is right behind this pile of bricks."

For most of the days that followed the folks who traveled by trolley were commenting about the sign at Square Deal Millers. And all the while Tom was having a laugh across the street in his office.

SO FASCINATING were his ads that they became a topic throughout the business world. And, one time, when The Stroller had his hometown jeweler out here as a guest and asked him what he wanted to see most, he answered, "I've got to see Square Deal Miller's before I leave."

The ad the Stroller remembers best was one that, to his knowledge, never was published.

Tom was visited one day by an ad writer from England who represented the Campbell Vinegar Co. He explained to Tom that he was sent to see him to get some fresh ideas. He told Tom that he had exhausted his efforts and that business was booming. But he needed some fresh ideas if business was to keep up the pace. Tom listened carefully and told his visitor that he would see him at lunch time with a sample.

Anxiously waiting with the English visitor, The Stroller noted a sly look on Tom's face when he entered with a huge cardboard sign under his arm.

When he displayed it, it was a drawing of Christ on the cross shaking his head negatively when he was handed the drink of vinegar and saying: "Take it away. It isn't Campbell's."

Our English friend grabbed it and raced for the door. He hasn't been seen since. But Tom Schroder never will be forgotten.

What a time he would be having with present day commercials.

Let's settle election and upgrade our police

Two of the most over-discussed and editorialized issues in Canton have been the recount and the police department.

So what is this editorial about? The police department and the recount. Recent developments concerning both have been noteworthy enough as to ignore worries about overplaying the two issues.

James Poole has filed suit through his attorney, Peter Bundarin, trying to reverse the decision of the county board of canvassers. Last month the canvassers ruled that the absentee ballot precinct could not be recounted because of problems in the precinct which prevent the board from reconstructing the vote.

Because of the fine legal points both sides are resting their cases on, it is difficult to predict the outcome of Poole's lawsuit. If there is a way to recount the much-maligned, problem-plagued absentee ballot precinct, then it should be done to clear up suspicions of impropriety that are currently circulating. Poole lost the election to Eugene Daley by a mere 11 votes. It is very possible that pollworkers could have committed 11 mistakes when they were handling 1,334 absentee ballots.

Poole's legal point appears sound—he says the county canvassers based their decision on a section of the law which prohibits a recount when the ballots were not secured or sealed.

Joe Martina, Wayne County's director of elections, examined the vote canisters which contained the absentee ballots and said at the time that there was no way anyone could have opened that canister without disturbing the outer seal.

The problem, according to the canvassers, is that 15 pollworkers in the paper ballot absentee vote precinct ignored using paper ballots when they themselves voted at the precinct. Therefore, those 15 votes can never be traced or checked during a recount, reasoned the canvassing board.

But, since the candidates did not commit an error and the people who voted absentee did not err, we hope the judge will find a legal way to satisfy this unique dilemma.

THE POLICE DEPARTMENT has a different problem. It's trying to send six or seven reserve police officers to the Criminal Justice Institute (CJI) to receive certification and join the ranks of the regular, part-time police. Supervisor Harold Stein says the department will exceed its budget if the force sends seven more officers to CJI and has to pay them $1.52 more an hour than they presently receive as reserve officers. Neither the reserves nor the regular police receive whopping salaries. In fact, the Canton police could very well be the lowest paid police officers in the state at the wages of $2.30 for reserves and $3.82 an hour for certified "regular" officers.

That's why it was surprising to hear Robert van Lith, vice-president of the Canton Police Officers Association, suggesting a voluntary pay cut to accommodate the extra cost of paying seven more certified officers.

Van Lith's proposal was defeated Sunday by the CPOA membership. But the deadline for application to the next CJI class is rapidly approaching and Stein says the only way he'll agree to send the officers to CJI is if the CPOA can show him that the budget won't be over-extended.

The easier solution would be to have Stein revise the budget after the first quarter and appropriate a little more than the $48,000 currently in the police budget.

There is room for adjustment in Canton's budget.

And if more of Canton's reserves receive certification and training, then we will have made significant steps toward improving the professionalism and training of the department.

Freedom of Information Act

New law gives better access to records

"What's the big deal?" the layman might ask when informed that the Michigan Legislature has finally passed a Freedom of Information Act. A person looking up his birth certificate or a homeowner looking for a deed usually has little trouble getting hold of public records.

And that's true. As long as you're looking for the mundane and routine, you can get it.

The catch comes when you want something out of the ordinary or potentially embarrassing to the governmental agency involved.

THE NEW LAW, effective April 1, is the work of PIRGIM (pronounced "purge 'em"), which is the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan, and State Rep. Perry Bullard (D-Ann Arbor), chairman of the house civil rights committee. PIRGIM cited these war stories in urging passage of Bullard's bill:

An environmentalist was denied a copy of the highway department's budget request to the governor on the flimsy ground it was only "preliminary."

A newspaper reporter was denied access to Washtenaw County Health Department reports on local restaurants on the ridiculous grounds the public might "misinterpret" those reports.

The mental health department refused information to a Detroit-based consumer group, insisting it had to know the group's funding, membership and goals before making public information available.

The Mylai massacre... the report on high level federal industries they were regulating... how the CIA trained local police departments in bugging and surveillance—all were ferreted out of federal records that someone tried to keep secret.

MICHIGAN'S NEW law says a person "has a right to inspect, copy or receive copies of a public record of a public body, except as otherwise expressly provided."

State and local governments are required to furnish reasonable opportunity for inspecting records during business hours. Public record is defined as "a writing prepared, owned, used, in the possession of, or retained by a public body in the performance of an official function, from the time it is created."

Requested documents must be produced within five days, and the price the government charges you for reproducing a record is limited to the government's actual cost.

One excellent feature: If the governmental agency turns down your request, you may appeal to the county prosecutor (if the matter involves local government) or the state attorney general

(if it involves state government), and the prosecutor or attorney general must respond within five business days. Moreover, the burden is on the governmental agency to justify its denial—not on you, the citizen, to prove why you need the record.

THE LIST OF exemptions is fairly long. Such lists usually are. Among the exceptions:

• "Personal" information where disclosure could be an invasion of someone's privacy.

• Law enforcement records if disclosure would reveal an unknown informant, prematurely release information to be used in a law enforcement action, or reveal an investigative technique. (Actually, police departments which have always been nasty about giving out information will continue to be nasty, and those which are open will continue to be open. Cops tend to be very personality conscious.)

• Trade secrets or commercial information voluntarily provided to an agency.

• Bids—until they are publicly opened.

• Test questions and answers.

The average citizen will probably go most of a lifetime not caring about governmental secrecy, never appreciating the PIRGIMs and the reporters who fight to open up government, until he or she gets involved in a zoning dispute, tax assessment dispute, environmental impact dispute, utility rate increase.

In the meantime, be content to know that a few good souls are working the public interest side of the street.

View from Rose Bowl: Many M fans, but weather's bad

Random thoughts about a trip to the West Coast for the Rose Bowl.

It seems like a long way to go for a football game, but it was well worth it even if the results of the game were disappointing for Michigan fans. There can be no excuses; Southern Cal outplayed us. It wasn't an exciting game because it was all defense, which isn't as colorful.

More than a quarter of the spectators were rooting for Michigan (attendance was more than 106,100). I'm sure there would have been more Michigan fans there if more football tickets were available. Pride in the school and the team was strong even in defeat.

It looked like half the spectators were local Los Angeles people not affiliated with either school. Michigan seemed to have as many screaming followers as University of Southern California.

The Michigan Marching Band is the best in the country. While USC has a fine band, Michigan won the half-time with the precision and talent of its musical men and women in blue, even after marching five miles in the parade that morning.

The Rose Bowl parade was a thing of beauty. You have to see it in person to believe it. Every float was made up of real flowers, nothing artificial. It's amazing that they could bring together so many flowers in one place. Every float was perfection.

There were 124 floats and bands in the parade, which lasted three hours.

MORE THAN A million people watched the parade in person along the five-mile parade route. If you think getting out of the Silverdome after a Lions game is slow, try driving around Pasadena on New Year's Day.

California has had one of the driest years in its history, but this last week helped re-fill the reservoirs. I don't think my shoes will ever dry out. It rained and rained.

Fortunately the sun came out New Year's Day

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

and it was beautiful for the parade and game, but the rains came back the day after the game.

We tend to think the far west is wide open and spacious, but the major cities in California are crowded. The high cost of real estate has put even the most luxurious home on a very small plot of land.

The people on the west coast are very friendly, but they take out their aggression on the freeways.

THE WEATHER, while warmer than here in Michigan, can be very unpleasant, with smog, fog and rain. We sometimes ask ourselves, "Why do we live in Michigan?" on those slushy, wintry days, but the Los Angeles area is no better.

The airlines should all show a profit this year. Every plane over the holidays seemed to be full (and late). The Los Angeles airport Sunday night was so crowded that it took 45 minutes just to circle the parking area around the terminal.

Have you ever noticed that hotel maids always knock on your door at 8 a.m. after a big night on the town, especially on a Sunday morning, wanting to clean up your room?

The Rose Bowl festivities are unique. The parade and game, with their beauty and pageantry, are overwhelming. It could have been perfect with a win for the Maize and Blue, but maybe next year.

'The Mayor's Revenge'

Socking the bureaucracy

Business people, local government officials and anyone who has ever dealt with the paper-pushing federal bureaucracy will appreciate this tale called "A Mayor's Revenge."

We don't know how authentic it is, but it's attributed to Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. of Midland, Tex., who once went through the ordeal of applying for a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for a 10-month period.

The story goes that Angelo received from HUD's Dallas office a request for reserved parking space at Midland's municipal airport. The mayor replied:

"1. YOU MUST OBTAIN from the U.S. Government Printing Office, or the National Archives, or the Library of Congress, or someplace, a supply of application form COM-1975. You must submit three executed and 14 conformed copies of this application."

"2. With the application, submit the make and model of the proposed vehicle together with the certified assurances that everyone connected with the manufacture, servicing and operation of same was paid according to a wage scale that complies with the requirements of the Davis-Bacon Act."

"3. Submit a genealogical table for everyone who will operate said vehicle so that we can ascertain that there will be a precisely exact equal percentage of whites, blacks and other minorities, as well as women and the elderly."

"4. Submit certified assurances that this plan has been discussed at length with EEOC and submit that commission's certification that requirement 3 above has been fully complied with.

"5. Submit certified assurances that all operators of said vehicle and any filling station personnel that service same will be equipped with steel-toed boots, safety goggles and crash helmets and that the vehicle will be equipped with at least safety belts and an air bag to show compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act."

"6. SUBMIT AN Environmental Impact Statement... The statement should show the number of times the vehicle will be operated, times of day, the name of the operator of the vehicle, the number of other vehicles that might be coming into or leaving the parking lot at the same time, as well as the number and type of aircraft that might be landing or taking off at the airport at the same time and an exact conclusion as to the effect this will have on the atmosphere in West Texas."

"7. In order to obtain approval of a negative Environmental Impact Statement, you will not be able to: (a) operate the car on gasoline produced from domestic oil because that would require that someone discover it, process it and deliver it... (b) operate the car from energy produced by coal because this might require digging a hole in the ground..."

"Upon receipt of the foregoing, rest assured that the application will be promptly referred to someone for approval. We cannot state at this time who that someone will be because whatever department he or she is in will be undergoing... reorganization."

A second platoon for Bo?

The University of Michigan, back in the '40s, was one of the first football teams to use the two-platoon system—that is, one entire squad of 11 players for offense and another for defense.

The time is ripe for Michigan to carry this excellent idea to its logical conclusion and institute two-platoon coaching.

For several years it has been abundantly clear that Bo Schembechler can mow down weak teams and pile up massive scores against them with "three yards and a cloud of dust" or, more recently, four yards and a rug burn. But the big ones—the bowl games and most of the Ohio State jousts—have been losses.

Bo can give the sports writers a complex maze of reasons, but the unvarnished truth is that Bo hates the forward pass and, on the rare occasions, when he uses it, never employs the element of surprise. No surprise, no explosives, no big games.

The logical conclusion, then, is to let Bo coach nine or 10 games a season and then remove him to a secluded, comfortable place. Then another coach who has some post-1920 ideas could provide some more explosive plays for the Wolverine attack.

If all this seems like kicking a man when he's down, so be it. But prior to the Rose Bowl humiliation, few would listen to such radicalism. So remember where you read it first. Two-platoon coaching.

'Help me cope,' is runaways' plea

BY SHERRY KAHAN

"When a young person comes to Counterpoint, we consider it a cry for help," said Mrs. Barbara Bergman, community education coordinator for the newly opened center for runaways in Inkster.

"Here we look at running away as a last healthy, desperate act. When someone comes to us he is saying 'help me cope'."

To a musician, counterpoint means a contrasting but parallel musical theme. To a runaway, the place called Counterpoint means a chance to restore harmony to his life.

Located in the former convent of St. Norbert Parish at 715 Inkster Rd., Counterpoint opens its doors seven days a week, 24 hours a day, to suburban Wayne County young people who are experiencing bad vibes at home.

In a recent talk on the runaway teenager for the open forum sponsored by the Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College, Mrs. Bergman explained the purpose of Counterpoint.

"We offer a safe, therapeutic environment for a young person while he or she works toward the resolution of problems, thus making a return home possible," she said.

When a return home is not deemed the answer to the individual's problem, the institution makes an effort to locate a foster home.

Admission is voluntary. An alternative to incarceration or a detention home for a runaway, Counterpoint does not harbor delinquents or drug-related runaways.

THE PRIVATELY RUN organization, financed by federal funds, provides guidance and counseling for young persons and their families. It also offers medical and legal services, and, if necessary, referrals to agencies when help for those involved is needed on a continuing basis.

Typically Counterpoint's clients are 15, 16 and 17-year-olds, but they some are as young as 12. They are evenly balanced between the sexes.

Regarding itself as a crisis center, Counterpoint can keep those who come for as long as two weeks. During that time attempts are made to resolve the crisis.

But what is it that has brought more than 40 runaways to the institution since it opened in August?

Physical and emotional abuse are the biggest reasons teenagers turn up on their doorstep, according to Mrs. Bergman.

"One father made his son eat his report card when his grades weren't good enough," she said. "He was a wonderful kid, but nothing he did was right. Many parents have the expectation that their child will get an A. If the child doesn't, then the kid gets a you're-not-OK message.

"Some of them get to hate themselves. The ones who feel good about themselves won't leave home. Sometimes after being told at home they are no good, they also don't get along with their teacher and their counselor won't take them out of class."

"Trouble brews. They get bad grades, and soon find themselves in a situation where they can't cope."

KICK-OUTS are another category. The term, as used by Counterpoint, refers to the youngster who is told to leave home.

"Sometimes there is a remarriage and the new father is challenged by the kid," explained Mrs. Bergman. "He gets the kid out of the home with the agreement of the mother."

Some youngsters spit because their father doesn't like their friends. Another had a father who was a religious fanatic, and "no way could she get any credit from him."

"One woman badgered her son until he came to us," said Mrs. Bergman. "Then she badgered us. We couldn't take it, but we did. We began to know how he felt."

That Mrs. Bergman is a child advocate is obvious. It pleases her when a cynical and suspicious young adult calls up the center to ask how people there feel about emotional abuse, and finds the answer satisfactory enough to drop in to look around.

"Two of them came in and checked us out," smiled Mrs. Bergman. "They told us it was OK, and they would tell their friend about it."

BECAUSE SHE is so concerned with children, she is upset by the law that makes it a status offense to run away.

"At 15, a girl on the street without working papers is terribly vulnerable," she began. "She has to find food, shelter and a job. She can be exploited by pimps and drug addicts, or can turn to shop lifting and other crimes to stay alive."

In her opinion, the law never deters a single youngster from running away.

"Instead it keeps them from surfacing," she said. "They are afraid they'll be sent to a juvenile home. Since they are committing a status offense, they are taking a chance when they come up for help. They could be picked up and placed in secured custody, then face probation, or even remain in custody."

"They don't need this. Really bad things come from this situation. These laws impact dangerously on kids."

"When kids run away, they are crying for help, but they are not criminals."

WHEN A runaway comes to Counterpoint, a staff member first tries to get his parents' permission for him to remain. Then an attempt is made to see what's bothering him.

If possible, they try to counsel his parents, sometimes with a successful result.

"Counseling occasionally has produced a parent who says he really sees his kid differently now," said Mrs. Bergman. "He says his life is better now. Both parent and child feel better about themselves. Things have opened up, and the kid feels confident he can go home."

Sometimes Counterpoint negotiates a contract between parents and child on which they will base future relations. More than once a staff member has had to hurry out in the night to renegotiate this document.

BUT SOMETIMES nothing works. For this reason the institution is eager to find individuals who would be foster parents to these runaways.

Counterpoint can handle 10 runaways at a time. Each has his own bedroom, and there is ample recreation space. However, volunteers are needed to make recreation more meaningful in terms of learning skills and playing sports.

Runaways help with the upkeep, get their own breakfasts and bag their own lunches. But for dinner they and the staff all sit down together.

The center is currently spending considerable time carrying its message to police, social workers and school counselors, so they will know someone is in Inkster ready to aid the child who is out of cadence with his family.

They are also willing to conduct workshops and make presentations to junior and senior high school students and to parent, church and fraternal groups.

"I love my work," declared Mrs. Bergman. "Every time a kid comes to us instead of going onto the street, I really feel good."

BARBARA BERGMAN

Volunteers aid aged, earn college credits

Volunteers are being recruited for a program at Madonna College, Livonia, to assist elderly persons in nursing homes while earning college credit.

The program is partially funded through the Administration on Aging, Title III, Older Americans Act, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The 100 volunteers will attend seven Saturday seminars beginning Jan. 15 and earn four semester hours of credit upon completion of the program. Each volunteer will devote six hours per week to assist elderly residents of nursing homes as a field experience.

Madonna, which has a degree program in gerontology, will contribute tuition assistance to those who enroll. Previous volunteer programs at Madonna have identified and aided elderly persons in their own homes.

Volunteers may be men or women over 18 years of age, according to Sister Colleen Morris, director of the Madonna gerontology programs. Successful completion of high school is not a requirement. If they do not already have a contact with a nursing home, a placement for their field experience will be arranged for them, she said.

The Saturday seminars will draw upon the knowledge and skill of experts with current active experience with the elderly.

Guest lectures for the seminars are Dr. Roger Ajluni, speaking on psychology of aging; Charles Wolfe, administrator of Jewish Home for the Aged, psychology and sociology of aging; Teresa Thompson, clinical specialist on aging, Sinai Hospital, reality orientation; and Sharon Burns, consultant, Michigan Dietary Association, nutrition.

Others include Jean Wicker, occupational therapist, Beaumont Hospital; Helen Miller, rehabilitative nursing consultant, Sister Elizabeth Kenney Foundation, speaking on rehabilitation; Margaret Gregory and Peg Bishop, alcoholism and growing old; Sister Joyce DeSchoon, death and dying; Dory Shorr of Citizens for Better Care; Marjorie Gaunt of the American Red Cross; and Dr. John Burrows, Chief of Oncology, St. John Hospital.

Registration for the seminar may be completed at Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. between Jan. 3-10. For further information, call Sister Colleen Morris or Mrs. Sheila Damiano, workshop coordinator, at 425-8000, Ext. 36.

REV. KENNETH MacKINNON
Publicity Chairman

Bargaining should be done in public's eye says Benson

Editor:

There has been an ascendancy of three new classes of professionals in public education since the inception of collective negotiations. These consist of board negotiators, union staff, and third party neutrals.

These groups are becoming a dominant force in school politics. At the same time that the number of educational policy issues which are subject to negotiations has expanded, the power to debate and resolve these issues has increasingly shifted to a small number of professionals who are not necessarily accountable to the public itself.

The community should, and must, demand a stronger voice in educational decision-making within the present framework and bargaining process. Inherent in any discussion of community participation is the value judgment that those who will be affected by the decision should participate in the process.

MEANINGFUL participation in the future might mean:

- The board and union would know, before collective bargaining begins, precisely what issues the community groups wish to have on the table.

- The community groups would be given some idea of the priorities the union and board have established for themselves.

- The community groups would be informed of the implication of the possible agreements.

- The community groups should be afforded some concrete way to participate in the actual negotiation procedures once bargaining has begun.

I realize that these suggestions cannot be implemented this year. They are offered as suggestions for future negotiations. However, it is reasonable to expect that the community be continually informed about the current status of negotiations. The board is bargaining from a position of strength and money is not the only issue. There is, more importantly, an opportunity to make sound educational decisions for children.

It is my hope that good decisions are being made. However, because of the secrecy which has traditionally surrounded the bargaining table, I cannot be sure of that. Can you?

Jaycettes Tonie Jarmol, president; Mary Decker, vice president; and Jo Ellen Hincker, treasurer; add to the good life of their community.

Jaycettes add to good life of community

"The Good Life" was the theme of last Saturday's Parade of the Roses in Pasadena. It also might be the purpose which motivates a group of 20 women to lend their youth and enthusiasm to a variety of community projects.

For the Plymouth Jaycettes, contributing to the good life of their hometown is year 'round business.

The scope of their efforts ranges from major events like the Fourth of July Parade and the Plymouth Fall Festival to lesser known services—Caroling for Cans, Helping Hands, Project EDITH, and Calling Santa.

"Probably our most enjoyable project this past year was helping the Jaycees host the fall state board meeting," said Tonie Jarmol, president of the Jaycettes. She added that the gathering of more than 1,300 persons for the weekend had gone smoothly.

It was a first for the Plymouth club and the enthusiastic thank-you notes which poured in from all over the state marked the success of the party.

THE PLYMOUTH Jaycettes were organized almost 15 years ago, March 1962, as an auxiliary to the Jaycees.

Until two years ago, only the wives of JCs were eligible for membership.

"Now, we welcome all young women between the ages of 18 and 36," said MS. Jarmol.

Jaycettes agreed that the club had added new dimensions to their lives. "We're in the same age group, with young children and the same problems. You make a lot of friends, not only here but all over the state and country."

"I know if Bob and I had to move, and there was a Jaycee club there, we'd have no problems in a new community," added Mrs. Jarmol.

Jo Ellen Hincker, treasurer of the group, has been a Jaycette for nine years. She was president in 1972-73, and now is heading the cookbook project, collecting recipes for publication.

"I have enjoyed the friendships. I've gone out and done things for the community that I wouldn't have done on my own." Her husband, Doug, became involved in the political side of Jaycees at the state and national level. This broadened their activities.

Doug Hincker now is on the state "on to" committee and they will attend the national convention in June and the Jaycee World Congress in Missouri.

"It's fun," said Mrs. Hincker. "Our family picnic in Hines Park last summer was one of the best picnics I've ever attended."

"IT'S A FABULOUS group," was the assessment of Kathy Salla, club secretary and winner of the first "T-shirt of the month award."

According to President Jarmol, each month, "one member will be presented with a specially designed T-shirt in honor of something significant, klutzy, funny, thoughtful, etc. that she has done."

"Kathy's shirt was lettered 'Centerfold' in honor of her recent film accomplishment."

Hank and Kathy Salla had a son, Scott Evan, last Nov. 22. The new father went on a picture-taking spree which resulted in the award.

"I joined just a year ago this month," said Mrs. Salla. "I've enjoyed the involvement in the community. There have been lots of projects, and the members are real nice—they're a friendly group."

But it's not all fun and games.

"THROUGH THE YEARS, there have been changing times and needs," said Jo Ellen Hincker. "Working with our husbands on the Fall Festival have remained the same."

The Plymouth Jaycees serve a beef rib dinner in Kellogg Park on the Saturday night of the festival.

The Jaycettes meet before the event to fold the boxes for the dinner and place salt and pepper packages in each one. They make the cole slaw, shuck the corn and help serve the meal.

After helping with the cleanup, one of the members opens her home for the after-party.

For years, the Fourth of July Parade has been arranged by the Jaycees. The auxiliary's cooperation begins early.

It is the Jaycettes who type and run off all the letters and correspondence necessary in planning the parade and contacting marching units.

They run the errands, handle the judging of the bicycles, letter the signs for the dignitaries' cars, help with the fund-raising, help line up the parade and generally assist their spouses on the day of the parade.

They used to sell flags during the parade. This year they sold pop but were sold out in an hour.

When there is carnival over the July 4 holiday they help clean up after the games and midway move out. And after the fireworks display, someone hosts the after party.

BOTH THE PARADE and the rib dinner have earned first place awards for fund-raisers in Jaycee state competition.

Last year the Calling Santa project was a first place winner.

Operation EDITH (Exit drill in the home) was originally a Jaycette project but is now being taken over by the Jaycees.

Helping Hands, a community effort to offer shelter and safety to children, is being revitalized. The Jaycettes are hoping for the cooperation of PTO groups in the project.

The helping hands sticker in a window designates safety for a child who is lost, hurt, or being followed or harassed by strangers.

"Caroling for Cans" is an auxiliary project which resulted in a collection of canned food to add to the Salvation Army's Christmas stock.

Jaycette members have visited the residents at Our Lady of Providence

School. They have provided lunch, and the Jaycee clown team has entertained the youngsters.

THEY MADE ARRANGEMENTS for the Royal Oak band to play at the school and helped in a sing-along.

The Jaycette clinics have eased the minds of both parents and youth with the training and regulations set forth for baby-sitters.

The club is looking forward to joining forces with the JCs for a major fundraising event.

They are planning a Dance for Burns, a dance marathon with the proceeds going to the Ann Arbor Burn Center. The JCs had a canister drive early in the winter which netted more than $500 the center.

On Jan. 19 the two clubs will meet for their annual Distinguished Service Award dinner in the Mayflower Meeting House. Awards will be presented to a woman and a man who have given outstanding service to their community during the last year.

Last year's winner of the Jaycette award was Ann Lindamood who went on to win the district women-of-the-year award.

Betty J. Manthey is artist of the month of the Three Cities Art Club. A student of the late Franklin A. Bates, she has won ribbons in Ohio and Michigan. Examples of her floral collages, watercolors and coffee paintings may be seen throughout January in the Plymouth Credit Union on Harvey Street. The instant coffee paintings on fiber glass are numbered and collectors' items. All the paintings are for sale. (Staff photos)

Surgery aids fight against obesity for POP group

They describe themselves as "floating on air" because they've shed a lot of weight, yet they realize they've done it by a "last resort" means. They want other obese people to know their method as a viable one, yet they counsel caution in its use.

They're pleased with their new figures, and convinced they made the right decision to reduce, but they point out the decision "isn't for everyone."

They're members, in short, of Pounds Off Permanently, a newly-established organization for persons who have undergone or are considering intestinal by-pass surgery to reduce weight.

This procedure, known to the medical profession as "jejuno-ileal bypass," involves shortening, by about 20 feet, the amount of intestine that food travels in the body. Food absorption is lessened and elimination is hastened.

Ask Judy Rigg of Livonia, secretary of POP, about her reaction to the surgery, and you get the response of an ex-overeater who had tried everything else before opting for this procedure.

"Nothing worked," she said. "I even had my teeth wired so that I couldn't eat, but I gained back all the excess weight and then some as soon as the wires were taken off."

Her surgery, she said, took place seven months ago, and now, 71 pounds lighter, she's glad she took the step.

MRS. RIGG, along with Kathy Ingalls of Plymouth, loser of 150 pounds in a little more than a year, and other leaders of the newly-chartered club, will be on hand for the next meeting, Wednesday, Jan. 12.

It's going to be held, said Yvette Straub of Wayne, in the Wayne Civic Center at Howe and Annapolis, because the group is outgrowing its custom of meeting monthly in members' homes.

"We have members all over the metropolitan area," said Mrs. Rigg, "and we are adding more all the time. This operation has not been heard of much until recently, and most of its publicity has been bad."

"We want to be able to talk to those considering the procedure, to let them know there are plenty of reasons for caution but that there are people well satisfied. And that we are people who care about each other's problems and will try to give support."

Talking of the surgery, were Mrs. Rigg and Mrs. Ingalls, Mrs. Straub, down 98 pounds in a couple of years, Patt Sawchuk of Dearborn Heights, who has lost more than 50 pounds, and Sharon Rushlow of Belleville, a 146-pound loser and president of the new group.

They said that after the surgery there is nausea and diarrhea—for several months "but not forever"—plus the inability to eat large amounts and the need to keep checking closely with a physician for at least a year.

"I KEEP TELLING them, 'Be sure to get your checkup,'" Mrs. Rushlow said.

"That's important to remember, especially for those of us who have bounced right back and are feeling better than we ever did. But we also want to talk to the people who aren't feeling as well, because for many there's a time of depression and a time you wonder if you're every going to succeed in getting the weight down."

The five women, along with a physician who has performed the surgery about 40 times, emphasized that there are strict requirements for determining who may have by-pass surgery.

"I do not do it for everyone who comes to me," said the physician, who requested anonymity in keeping with medical ethics.

Those approved must be 80 to 100 pounds overweight and free from any physical condition that might cause obesity.

There also must be inability to follow prescribed diet, emotional stability, an understanding of the risks and possible complications and willingness to cooperate in a long-term follow-up program.

"We went into it understanding there are risks," said Mrs. Ruslow, "but there are risks, too, in being terribly overweight."

The physician put it this way: "I do not particularly recommend the surgery, but I feel that in some cases overweight creates worse problems—hypertension, psychological difficulties, states in which the patient trying to function under disability."

He added, that while there have been no serious complications among his patients, the operation is still too new to have any real evaluation of long-term effects.

He also pointed out that the intestine is not removed, but folded in the abdomen, so that the operation can be reversed if complications develop.

BUT FOR THE women sitting around a table, occasionally nibbling cheese and cracker snacks instead of gobbling them, the word was enthusiasm.

Kathy Ingalls and Sharon Rushlow talked of job discrimination they felt they had suffered as fat people; Yvette Straub pointed out that while fat people are supposed to be jolly, she felt far more cheerful now.

Patt Sawchuk said her marriage had improved as the pounds went down.

And Judy Rigg summed it up: "I was so tired of being so miserable; now I can live with myself."

Those who want more information about the Pounds Off Permanently organization, or the Jan. 12 meeting, may call Mrs. Rigg at 464-0258.

Griswold-McCord

Martha Susan McCord and Jeffrey Harris Griswold were united in marriage in a candlelight service Nov. 27. The Rev. Robert S. Shank performed the ceremony in St. John Episcopal Church of Plymouth.

The bride wore a gown of candlelight chiffon and lace fashioned with angel sleeves and full length train. Her veil was of matching chiffon and held in place by a cap of seed pearls and lace. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis. Her attendants were Nancy Sutherland; Donna Phelps; Patricia Cooper, cousin of the bride; Linda Golbesky, sister of the bridegroom; and Laura Golbesky, the bridegroom's niece. They wore identical hooded gowns of persimmon, pumpkin and spice, and carried lighted hurricane lamps surrounded by dried autumn flowers.

The bridegroom was attended by Frank Kuszak, Patrick McCord of New York, Andrew and William McCord, and Thomas Stribley of Grand Rapids.

Following a reception in the Plymouth Hilton Inn, the couple honeymooned in Florida. They are living at Mandon Lake. The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denver McCord of Plymouth, is employed by me and mr jones. The bridegroom, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Griswold of Augusta, Ga., formerly of Plymouth, works for Ford Motor Company.

Canton chatter

By SHARON STARON

All the parties are over, the tree and the lights put away, the flurry of activities subsided, we return to routines of the day. Families and friends have returned home, the wreaths taken down from the door. Memories of the holidays linger. It was fun seeing everyone once more.

Trudi and Kris Malhotra rang the new year in surrounded by friends in their home on Greenwood Court.

Their daughter Page was spending some time with relatives in Wisconsin returning home yesterday. She made out the invitations before leaving on her trip inviting everyone to the party so her parents would not be lonely without her. Page is nine and a student at Gallimore Elementary.

Laura Baddeley and Ron Rind were among the couples seen munching at the snack table along with Paul and Mary Jo Plante and Richard and Marie Kepsky.

Trudi's famous lasagne was the main course served before midnight along with garlic bread, salad and vegetable. Helen Cunniff, and Ernest Eiback were among those lined up to fill their plates at the buffet along with Dorothy and Matt Rauscher. Three deserts were served with coffee.

Right before the final minute of 1976 party hats and noise makers were passed out to welcome in the new year. Judy and Dave Branson and Rae and Jim Seward also were on hand for the celebration.

Rae begins Eastern University as a junior this week and she was also celebrating her grades that she had just received from Schoolcraft. Good luck at Eastern, Rae.

The party continued long after the last horn was blown with lively conversation and reminiscences of the year past with grand plans for the year that has just begun.

Some others who were holding parties and get together last Friday were Al and Helen Dembeck of Berwick. Mostly family members were in attendance this year but since Helen comes from a family of nine, that's all that's needed for a real fun time.

Greg and Mary Ann Allen of Cranford Avenue held a celebration for neighbors and friends, while Mary and Bob Sandel of Lancaster Court danced and made merry with their neighbors Bob and Kathy Kosmina.

Bill and Mary Naples of Hillsboro hosted Mary's parents Dr. and Mrs. Martin Conti, of Youngstown, Ohio, during the holidays, and Friday evening entertained Bill and Faye Brennen and Jim and Margie Chmielewski.

While the Naples received guests from Youngstown, Ohio, their next-door neighbors Richard and Jeri DeTata and children Sherry and Darren traveled to Youngstown to visit family and friends over the New Year's holiday.

Both the Naples and DeTatas were surprised when they first learned they all had hailed from the same home town.

Laurie and Don Pocock of Carlisle Court held a New Year's Eve party inviting most of the neighbors to the festivities.

Gail and George McDowell and children Kim and Brian returned home, after spending Christmas with relatives in Pennsylvania, in time to attend the party Friday evening in Plymouth at Bill and Linda Estey's.

Stan and Dennise Owens attended the party with the McDowells. They had just returned from Greenville, S.C., where they spent the holidays along with their children Stacy and Brandy. Stans' parents, Gen. Robert G. and Fran Owens were delighted to see them.

Dean and Gail DeMattio and son Ryan returned from South Carolina with the Owens and are their house guests for a week. The DeMattios once lived in Ypsilanti and are enjoying their stay visiting with old friends.

Chuck and Janet Newsome, Dick and Nancy Laimbeer, and Steve and Phyllis Redfern were the couples from Canton in attendance at a New Year's Eve party at Foreman's Cider Mill in Northville.

Irv and Trudi Feldman and daughter Kathy of Brandywine have returned home from Florida after spending the holidays soaking up the sunshine.

Bob and Kathy Spencer held a New Year's Day open house to enjoy the big football game. Greg and Mary Ann Allen, Linda and Mike Becker, Mike and Ginny Koon and Hank and Sandy Naasko were among the many watching at the Spencer's as Michigan went down in defeat. Better luck next year, Bo.

Epstein at Autorama

The 25th Annual Autorama Custom Car Show will open its doors Jan. 6, and will be celebrating its silver anniversary of customizing the motor city's major products at the same time. Autorama, which will run through Jan. 9, will be in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

On display for the past 10 years have been more than 400 custom vehicles. They include chopped, channeled, chromed, rolled and plated street mobiles as well as show-condition hot rods, vans, dragsters, pickup trucks, and classic antiques, dating from the early 1900s.

In addition to the custom vehicles, there will be other activities and displays in the show. They will include three feature cars, plus speed equipment and accessories, a Soap Box Derby display and information booth, a model car builder's competition with more than 800 plastic models, the winning drawings from the fifth annual Autorama Automotive Design Contest, television celebrities, and a rock band.

Feature cars will include the James Garner Special, a four-seater Indy-type racing car built for "Rockford Files" star James Garner; the Dick Tracy Kop-Ter Rod, a combination helicopter and hot rod equipped with the latest in crime fighting tools; and the Pizza Car, an 800-horsepower, fiberglass pizza delivery wagon.

EPSTEIN

TV stars appearing will be two of the sweatshops from "Welcome Back Kotter"—Washington (Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs), and Epstein (Robert Hegyes), plus "Planet of the Apes" stars William Blake (Cornelius) and Paula Crist (Zira).

Also on hand will be Mark "the Bird" Firdrych, and the California rock group Rain, which will perform a "Tribute to the Beatles."

Autorama opens today at 5 p.m. and runs until 11 p.m. Hours Friday through Sunday will be noon to 11 p.m.

Admission is $4 Thursday and Friday; $4.50 Saturday and Sunday and $1 for children under 12 at all times.

Winter fun spotlighted

Winter is an exhilarating time, with possibly as much to see and do outdoors and indoors as summer, according to the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourism Association.

To back up its claim, the association is making available free a copy of its latest Calendar of Events covering the December-March season.

"We have listed more than 100 special celebrations taking place," said Sidney L. Baker, association president. "They range from concerts, theater, lectures and indoor sporting events to skating and hockey, outdoor shows and track meets," Baker said.

Prepared by the staff of the association, the new calendar describes the date, nature and location of the event and includes names and special phone numbers of the sponsoring organizations if further information is desired.

Also listed are special daily scheduled events and their sponsors and phone numbers.

To obtain a free copy, write the association at Suite 312 State of Michigan Plaza Building, Detroit, 48226. SMTA is the official travel and tourism promotion agency for the nine-county southeast Michigan region.

Mediocre rehash

'A Star is Born'

"A Star Is Born" (R) contains enough close-ups, medium close-ups and extra close-ups of Barbra Streisand to satisfy the most devoted fan for the next 17 years, and then some.

In addition to the famous Streisand profile, there also are numerous shots of the Streisand bosom, pendulous, and the Streisand buttocks. "cute" they tell us several times in the movie.

While, Barbra worked hard on this picture as executive producer, overseeing everything and everyone, if she demanded so much camera time as leading lady, perhaps she should have spend an hour a day at Vic Tanny's. The pudginess under her chin and around her shoulders make her look like an inflated rubber doll.

At the lean extreme is Kris Kristofferson, who drapes his manly body around the contours of a guitar, or occasionally, Barbra. His favorite prop, however, is either a beer can or a whiskey bottle. He clutches one or the other throughout most of the movie, as if he would lose his balance without it.

Ms. Streisand's wardrobe is a mixed lot, reputedly from her own closet. The costumes range from harem finery to Salvation Army basic to Louis the Hatter. Someone couldn't make up her mind here.

What do Streisand and Kristofferson have in common with Judy Garland and James Mason? Not much, except that "A Star Is Born" is the fourth remake of a movie that was last brought to the screen in 1953 with Garland and Mason playing the leads.

Briefly, the original story is that of an aspiring actress who is discovered and nurtured by an actor who's already been a star. He's been drinking for years, and his career is starting to falter. They fall in love, marry, and he is responsible for her initial development and success as an actress.

As she achieves stardom, his career skids to oblivion. He realizes that he's become a handicap to her, so he removes himself from her life. The final scene shows her bravely facing an audience in the best "show must go on" tradition.

Streisand doesn't evince the poignancy that Garland did, schmaltzy though that production was, and Kristofferson can't effect a drunk who also elicits some sympathy or shows some dignity the way Mason did.

The shallowness of plot and character development leaves us with the music—which ranges from mediocre to very good. All the creative energy seems to have been directed toward the concert scenes; everything else falls flat in comparison.

Frankly, this is a dumb movie. It was dumb when Mason and Garland played it in 1953, but we had Mason's crisp accent and Garland's pathos to entertain us. It was dumb when Fredric March and Janet Gaynor played it in 1937, but during the depression years, sentiment was entertainment.

IT WAS DUMB when George Cukor first directed it in 1931 (called "What Price Hollywood?"), but at least then it was novel. And if someone ever produces a fifth remake, it will still be a dumb movie.

I just wonder why anyone wanted to bother with a remake at all. The producers may have been inspired by the original theme of "A Star Is Born," but with a few more changes, they could have freed themselves from the old mold and struck out in more interesting directions.

GLIMPSES

NEW RELEASES

CARRIE (R). Sissy Spacek plays Carrie, a teenage girl with the power of telekinesis—the ability to move objects by psychic power.

THE ENFORCER (R). Violence and gun play in the "Dirty Harry" manner as Clint Eastwood shoots it out with a terrorist gang in San Francisco in this third film in the series.

KING KONG (PG). The big ape is back again with his same old destructive but sensitive personality. Jessica Lange plays the love in his life. Revised version with some tongue-in-cheek dialogue.

NETWORK (R). Fierce satire attacking the television industry and mass media generally. Top performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway and William Holden in fast-paced, grimly humorous film.

NICKELODEON (PG). Director Bogdanovich recalls the madcap early days of movie making. Ryan and Tatum O'Neal, Burt Reynolds, Stella Stevens and Jane Hitchcock survive the perils and have some fun.

THE PINK PANTHER STRIKES AGAIN (PG). More clowning with Inspector Clouseau (Peter Sellers) who fumbles his way to victory. This time against the demented ex-chief inspector who would destroy the world unless he's given Clouseau, dead or alive.

THE SEVEN PER CENT SOLUTION (PG). Sherlock Holmes and Sigmund Freud join forces, but the result is less than stimulating. However, location photography in Vienna and Robert Duvall's performance as Dr. Watson are excellent.

THE SHAGGY D.A. (G). If you're looking for a "G" film, this is about the only one in town. A Disney movie about a politician with an unusual affliction.

SILVER STREAK (PG). Gene Wilder, Richard Pryor, Patrick McGeehan and Jill Clayburgh make tracks in this comedy-thriller about murder and mayhem on a train, and sometimes off.

Experts discuss computer's role

Could a doctor in California conceivably treat you in an emergency on the basis of information stored in Michigan? The answer is probably, "Yes, someday."

This and other potential use of computerized information will be discussed in a free public lecture at Madonna College, Livonia, on Monday, Jan. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Dealing with the use and misuse of the electronic computer, the discussion, "Information and the Public," will be led by Dr. Charlotte Neuhauser, chairman of the business administration department at Madonna.

A graduate of DePauw University, she earned graduate degrees at Wayne State University—and has had extensive experience in systems design and programming.

Dr. Neuhauser will discuss what the computer can and cannot do and comment on the misuse of the computer as an invasion of privacy, in larceny and computer fraud.

A panel of experts will join her to discuss the potential of the computer as tool of the medical profession, the business world, and in criminal justice systems.

Guest panelists will be Robert Coffey, director of data processing at St. John Hospital; William McMillan, director of data processing at Northwest United Realty Company; and Robert Snell, chief of the Bloomfield Township Police Department.

The lecture is one in a series presented by Madonna College in cooperation with the Michigan Council for the Humanities, dealing with "People Power in Public Decisions."

The lecture will be held in the science lecture hall on the Madonna campus at 36600 Schoolcraft.

Discussions planned

St. Valentine receives GIFT

Birth control, remarriage for the divorced, and suburban support of inner city churches are a few of the topics Catholics of St. Valentine's parish in Redford Township will be asked to examine.

It will be part of a new program called Growth in Faith Together (GIFT), which will be launched from the pulpit Sunday.

GIFT aims to stimulate church members to unveil their concerns about their church and its relationship with world issues.

To give its members a chance to register feelings before discussions begin, St. Valentine will mail out this week a survey to about 1,200 parishioners. They will be asked personal opinions about such matters as their relationship with God and the church, as well as their feelings about the thinking of the Catholic church on such world issues as birth control and abortion.

"We hope everyone will get the survey by Monday and send it back within a week," said the Rev. Bill Auth, associate pastor of St. Valentine, who called for research, reflection and response.

"During the reflection phase, the people will be divided into small groups of about 10 each," he continued. "We hope to have at least 30 groups. They will meet once a week for five weeks, to talk about all the issues raised in the survey."

DURING THE PERIOD of response, the main points will be put on a ballot.

"On the afternoon of Sunday, March 20, the whole parish will come together in the church for a meeting," reported Fr. Auth. "We will vote on the 10 most important issues to be addressed."

Fr. Auth admitted it is unusual to be voting in church, but pointed out it would take place at a meeting rather than a mass, and would not be "a specifically religious meeting."

"The purpose of GIFT is to reinvigorate people," he said. "Our members can grow in their faith. They can become more enthused about their faith and updated on what it means to be a Christian and Roman Catholic today."

Three men are co-chairing the program: the Rev. Alfred H. Sagler, St. Valentine pastor; Fr. Auth and James Browne.

IN THE SURVEY, parishioners are asked to agree, strongly agree, disagree or strongly disagree on a wide variety of subjects.

"God is personally concerned about me and all mankind," is one of the survey questions.

"Changes in the mass have harmed rather than helped me to worship" is another. Others are "Confession means less to me now than it did 10 years ago," "I would prefer to take communion in my hands," and "I feel that devotion to Our Lady is being down-graded."

St. Valentine also is asking whether suburban parishes should help support financially inner city parishes, and if priests should be permitted to marry and still function as priests.

"The Catholic Church is rich and does not need my financial support" is another statement in the survey. Parishioners will also be asked if "Catholics, Protestants and Jews should work together religiously and socially in community projects and problems."

Another issue to be faced by the parishioners is whether "it can be morally right for a married couple to use artificial means to prevent conception, and if it is against God's law for a divorced person to remarry while his or her first spouse lives."

Area residents honored

Inducted as honorary members of the Orchard Lake Schools Alumni Association were a number of area residents, who had a record of meritorious service to the Orchard Lake Schools.

These include a complex of academic institutions northwest of Detroit consisting of SS. Cyril and Methodius Seminary, St. Mary College and St. Mary Preparatory.

Honored were Watson Zdrodowski, a Birmingham attorney; Dr. Michael Bonczak, a West Bloomfield physician; Eugene Novak of Garden City, employed by Sperry Vickers in its marketing and service department, and Robert Slavsky Jr. of Farmington Hills, director of purchasing at Shaw and Slavsky, Inc.

Also inducted as honorary members were three Orchard Lake residents. They were John Beitler, group director of finance and administration of Florist Transworld Delivery Association; the Rev. Eugene Edyk, director of the Orchard Lake Polish American Liturgical Center, and the Rev. Joseph Szewczyk, a member of the faculty of SS. Cyril and Methodius Seminary.

Make water temperature work for you

When the proper laundering steps are followed, hot, warm, or cold water can each give good cleaning results.

But for energy-conserving homemakers, cold water for washing will save the most energy. It's important, however, for good cleaning results, to know that special pre-treatment of soils and stains is necessary when using cold water.

Use a liquid detergent or make a paste of detergent and water to pre-treat the soiled area. Rub gently and then wash as usual.

Heavy duty liquid detergents are recommended for cold water washing. Powdered detergents do not dissolve easily in cold water, so if you use this type, dissolve it in warm water first and then add it to your cold wash water.

Chiefs romp past Patriots

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Plymouth Canton played its best basketball of the season Tuesday night, and the result was an 83-40 demolition of the Livonia Franklin Patriots in a non-league battle at the Plymouth gym.

This contest proved to be the exact reverse of last year's Canton-Franklin battle where the Patriots easily defeated the Chiefs.

But this initial confrontation of 1977 belonged to Canton from the start as the Chiefs recorded their second victory in seven tries this season.

The Chiefs have been plagued with the reputation of blowing close games in clutch situations, but in this meeting, Canton never let the game get close.

And for the first time all season, Canton mentor Casey Cavell was able to use all 14 members of his team. All but one eager reached the scoring column.

"EVERYBODY WAS ready to play the whole ballgame," Cavell said. "We went in and played a good ballgame. It was great. I hope we can do it again."

"The kids really want to win as bad as I do. They want to show everybody that they can win."

"What we need is a string (of victories) that will build our confidence."

"That task will be a difficult one for the Chiefs because they hit the road for four consecutive away games in Northville, Dearborn, Riverside, Waterford Mott and Dearborn Annapolis before returning home to face Farmington Harrison.

THE PATRIOTS saw their record drop to 2-4 overall with this setback. The loss of top rebounder Mike Kaseta and team leader Ken Scarpace because of injuries definitely took its toll.

But coach Bob Visser wasn't about to make any excuses for his team's lowly performance.

"We were not prepared to play tonight," Visser said. "I could tell when we went out on the court."

"Obviously, Canton came to play and ran us off the court. We had a complete breakdown."

"I offer no excuses. When you play hustling ball things will happen, but we didn't hustle."

Franklin will have time to get things back together before it resumes Northwest Suburban League action one week from tomorrow.

Canton's senior captain Rob Mandle played an excellent game, taking scoring honors with 19 points. Mandle managed to stay out of foul trouble for the first time all season and effectively used his penetrating skills to score easy layups.

Juni forward Randy Rienas followed Mandle with 11 points and was a decisive factor in the rebounding category. Sophomore Butch King added 10, and Keith Fuelling chipped in with nine.

Cavell freely substituted everyone and had most of his starters on the bench by the middle of the third quarter.

Franklin's John Zannis was the only Patriot to reach double figures with 15 points. Nine of Zannis' total came in the second period.

JEFF PHILLIPS scored the first bucket of the game to give Franklin a 2-0 lead, but it was all Canton after that. The Chiefs went onto reel off 10 straight points in the next three minutes before the Patriots were forced into a slowdown offense.

But this Franklin tactic also failed to work, as the aggressive Canton defense forged bad passes and numerous steals that resulted in fast break points.

Salem tankers sunk

The top two swim teams in Observeland clashed in a dual meet Tuesday night with an outcome that wasn't clear until the final relay as Livonia Franklin nipped Plymouth Salem 86-80 in non-league competition at the Patriots' pool.

Both squads were the top Observeland teams at the Redford Union Relays two weeks ago, and this first meet of the new year proved to be as close as had been expected.

The deciding race, the 400-yard free relay, saw Franklin's Steve Christie hold on to edge Salem's Ron Finley by five-tenths of a second to give the Patriots the victory. Finley started his leg of relay more than two body lengths behind Christie and barely failed to make up that difference.

The deciding factor in the meet was the 10 points Franklin received in the diving competition because the Rocks failed to have anyone compete.

Franklin won five of the nine individual events with both squads splitting relay victories.

The most notable race was the 200-yard individual medley where Finley broke a school and pool record with a 2:06.4 clocking. Christie also swam that race and placed second with a Franklin school record time of 2:07.0.

Finley was the only double individual winner in the meet with top times in the 100 freestyle as well as the 200 I.M. Franklin's Mike Balnaves and Christie led the Patriot attack with one first place and one second place individual times each.

Rocks clash with Bentley

By FRED DeLANO

It will be Plymouth Salem's "fluid flow" offense against Livonia Bentley's aggressive 1-3-1 zone defense Friday night when the only two undefeated high school basketball teams in the neighborhood clash—with first place in the rough, tough Suburban Eight loop hanging in the balance.

These long-time rivals will battle it out at about 8 p.m. in the Salem gym on Joy Road just west of Canton Center following the JV encounter, and if this attraction doesn't fill the house nothing will.

Bentley, which is coming off a 7-14 overall record and a last-place league mark of 2-12, has the most improved team in the Sub 8 and is 5-0 this winter overall.

Salem has won the league title three years in a row, finishing 20-2 last season (including 13-1 in the league), and now is 7-0 for 1976-77. The Rocks have won 31 of their last 32 home games.

Currently, Bentley and Salem are tied for the Sub 8 lead with identical 3-0 marks, with 11 games left. The key here is that, as Salem coach Fred Thomann puts it, "Although this isn't a do or die ball game, still it will go a long way toward shaping the league race. The team that wins will have a bulge toward leading the pack after the first round."

BENTLEY HAS allowed only one of its five opponents to score more than 48 points as coach Larry Jackson has put together a veteran combination of seniors with the player who quite likely is the area's most impressive star even though it will be his only season hereabouts.

This is the 17-year-old, 6-7, 207-pound Florian Homm, who came to Livonia as a foreign exchange student from West Germany. Not only did Homm play on West Germany's junior national team but he now leads Bentley in scoring and rebounding with an average of 22 points and 12 rebounds per game.

Trailing Homm only slightly in the stats is Craig Fuelling, his 6-3 running mate at forward. Other Bulldog starters are center Ed Snow, 6-5, and guards Rick Ehrst, 6-2, and the ball-hawking 5-9 Steve Dinsmore.

In reserve are such giants as 6-6 Dick Doumanian and 6-4 Dave Stone to pad Bentley's rebounding strength.

"We use a controlled fast break on offense, the 1-3-1 zone defense most of the time because the kids believe in it, we have a little speed, good size, good height in reserve, and real good rebounding on the defensive boards," conceded Jackson.

STARTERS FOR Plymouth will be 6-5 Bruce Gerish at center, 6-4 Tom Ellinghausen and 6-3 Chris DeBear at forwards, with 6-1 Doug Agnew and 6-0 Rich Hewlett at the guard spots.

Thomann's teams have beaten Bentley eight of the nine times they have played in his tenure as Salem coach. This is his fifth season, and after his current club reached 7-0, he had this to say:

"I'm real pleased with the progress we have shown. Particularly we are playing much better defensive basketball than I anticipated so early in the season. We're also getting a lot—an awfully lot—out of our bench. Those guys are doing a super, super job."

"But Bentley is much bigger and Homm is an awfully good shooter. We'll try to make a contest of it as long as we can."

Coaches reap area honors

Plymouth Salem's girls' basketball coach Debbie Hatcher was named the coach of the year in her sport by the Observer sport sections last week.

But a host of other coaches from around the area received similar recognition for jobs well done.

Coach of the year honors in football were shared by Livonia Stevenson's Jack Reardon and Westland John Glenn's Jerry Lutri. Both mentors guided their respective clubs to perfect 9-0 records which proved best in Observeland.

Paul Holmberg of Stevenson was awarded coach of the year honors for his work with both the boys' and girls' cross country teams this past fall. The Spartan boys placed fifth in the Class A state meet and the girls won an unofficial state championship.

Stevenson's Lois McDonald claimed girls' swim honors in guiding her squad to a Class A state championship. Salem's Chuck Olson also received high consideration for his efforts in leading the Rocks to a perfect record in Suburban Eight League competition.

Gymnasts prepare

Plymouth's Gymnastics Club, under the direction of John Cunningham, has begun another season of competition with hopes and anticipations for another successful year.

Last season, the Plymouth gymnasts were considered one of the top teams in the state and most of these same girls are back for another season.

"Jill Moorehead, Wendy Gray and Denise Ceravolo are our top performers this year," Cunningham said. "We also have Mary Deveraux and Annette Kubiske back. Annette was first in vaulting and second in floor exercise last year and was a state champion in diving for the Ypsilanti girls swim team."

Moorehead led Plymouth in awards last season and should improve on scores this year. She is a junior at Plymouth Canton High School.

Gray participated on Canton's swim team this past fall as a sophomore and Ceravolo is a new member from Dearborn Heights' Riverside High School.

The gymnasts have been practicing since the beginning of the school year and will start regular league competition this weekend. Plymouth participates in both the Southern Michigan Compulsory League (SMCL) and the Michigan Girls Gymnastics Conference (MGGC).

Gray and Ceravolo both competed in the Midwest Open in November. The meet was held at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle. Both girls placed in the top 30 in the floor exercise and vaulting competition.

Dana Worsnop, 1976 graduate of Plymouth Salem, also participated for Plymouth. She presently attends Northwestern University.

Moorehead, Gray and Ceravolo represented Plymouth in December as part of a Michigan All-Star team which competed against the Marvateens in Grand Rapids. These three girls made up 25 per cent of the 12-member all-star squad.

The Marvateens are one of the top five teams in the country.

Why did the Roses shrivel for U-M?

By DOUG FUNKE

Football fans who have followed the fortunes of the University of Michigan gridiron team since Bo Schembechler took over in the 1969 season should not really be too disappointed about the Wolverines' performance in the recent Rose Bowl.

The 14-6 defeat merely magnified the state of the U-M football program during the past eight years, specifically:

- Michigan's lack of even a semblance of a passing attack.
- Michigan's inability to develop a pass defense, despite all assurances to the contrary.
- Michigan's penchant to go conservative and fail to make adjustments when things go wrong in the big game.

•Michigan's kicking game going haywire at the most inopportune times.

Make no mistake about it—Michigan is a good team.

However, it will never be a great team—a team that deserves to be ranked number one in the country—until it demonstrates its proficiency with the forward pass, a maneuver which has been legal for several decades now.

A balanced offensive attack is usually needed to defeat an opponent which matches or exceeds one's strength. Michigan doesn't have it.

Rick Leach looked pathetic trying to throw the ball late in the contest. All season long, the sophomore had enough difficulty setting up and throwing a pass when things were going Michigan's way, let alone trying to do so in crucial situations.

One wonders who taught him how to pass or who, if anyone, coaches him in that aspect of the game now. Most of his tosses in the Rose Bowl were either hard and low or soft and long—the same problems he experienced when he misfired on 12 or 13 in a row the year before in the Orange Bowl.

Even when Michigan chooses to pass, the patterns seem woefully simple and easy to defend against. Again, coaches devise plays and instruct the players and the head coach selects his own assistants.

It may be hard to blame Leach for the passing fiasco because he has had little experience with an airborne attack—it certainly isn't all that difficult to note his generally poor performance on New Year's Day.

He didn't exactly play like the poised veteran we have heard so much about this year. When he did pass, his style was atrocious—he tended to pitch out on the option play in dangerous situations and he carried the ball like a loaf of bread when he kept the ball on the option play.

All of those shortcomings came to light during the confrontation with USC and all have been seen before in less pressure-packed contests during the season.

Maybe the Wolverines' pass defense is so bad because it never practices against a decent passing offense.

Bob Thornbladh, a graduate assistant at Michigan who played at Plymouth High, assured us at press day last August that the Big Blue defense would be equal to the task during the campaign.

How many times did USC have third down and long yardage (10-15 yards) to go and pass for the first down, making it only by a yard or two every occasion?

How did Purdue upset Michigan earlier this year? With a balanced offensive attack that included a liberal dose of short passes, that's how.

And, how did Stanford trip the Wolverines in the 1972 Rose Bowl?—Short passes to the running backs circling out of the backfield.

Michigan, under Schembechler, has either been unable or too stubborn to adjust both offensively and defensively to the realities of a stiff challenge.

Survival of the fittest does not deal only with physical, brute strength. Adaptation of strategies is also paramount.

Finally, a big question concerning a minor irritant—Why does Michigan's kicking game—extra points and field goals—go to pot during the big games, just like the rest of the Wolverines' efforts?

Bo will probably be back next year telling everyone that he'll pass more and that the defensive secondary will be strong.

One hundred thousand people will fill the stadium on Saturdays and watch the Wolverines pound the likes of Duke, Navy and Northwestern. Will anything really change?

Area matmen meet at Schoolcraft

By JEFF KUEHN

With the arrival of the new year comes the seventh annual Schoolcraft Wrestling Invitational. Thirty-two high school wrestling teams will be participating in the match, with 19 of those teams from this area.

The local schools are Clarenceville, West Bloomfield, Birmingham Groves, Westland John Glenn, Wayne

Memorial Farmington, North Farmington and Harrison. Livonia will be represented by Stevenson, Franklin and Churchill. Both Garden City East and Garden City West will be there.

Redford Union and Redford Thurston and the two Plymouth schools, Canton and Salem, will be in attendance as will Southfield and Southfield Lathrup.

"It's hard to say who the favored teams are this year, but Wayne Memorial is the defending champion," commented Marvin Gans, director of physical education and athletics at Schoolcraft Community College. "We're going to have some real good teams and a lot of talented wrestlers."

John Glenn edged Wayne Memorial in the Western Wayne Invitational tournament, and about a week later Wayne Memorial defeated John Glenn in dual competition. Both teams will be hoping to break the tie this weekend.

Thurston wrestling coach Jim Urlick is quickly rebuilding his Eagles into a good team and has said that he is looking forward to this tournament.

"Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place teams," added Gans. "Individual medals will be given to the top five finishers in each weight class."

Trophies will also be given to the wrestlers and teams with the most pins in the tournament. The action will get underway tomorrow, beginning at noon and ending around 10 p.m. Saturday the meet will resume at noon with the semi-finals and end around 5:30 p.m. The finals will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Admission prices per session are $1 for students and $1.50 for adults.

"We started this tournament in 1970 with only 16 teams," stated Gans. "Since then we have built the tournament up to the largest in the amount of participants in Michigan, except for the state tournament."

Plymouth tourney will be a gem
for all the fans and wrestlers too

Wrestling is once again in the spotlight at the Centennial Park as Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton co-host the second annual Plymouth Wrestling Invitational on Saturday, Jan. 15.

Despite the fact that this tourney is only in its second year of existence, the hard work of coaches Dan Chrenko (Canton) and Ron Krueger (Salem) has made this invitational one of the most respected in the Observerland area and around the state.

In fact, the coach from Dearborn Heights Annapolis turned down an invitation to the highly-rated annual 33-team Schoolcraft Invitational but decided to come to the Plymouth tourney on the following Saturday.

This year's Plymouth tourney expands from eight to 12 teams. Last season's tournament winner, Westland John Glenn, heads the field. Annapolis, North Farmington, Farmington, Thurston and Novi join Salem and Canton as the returning teams that will try to take the crown away from Glenn. The four new squads that will participate include Livonia Stevenson, Allen Park, Livonia Franklin and Southfield.

More than 60 medals and three trophies will be awarded to individuals and teams. Wrestlers placing in the top five slots for each weight class will win medals. The team champion and the runners-up squad will receive trophies. The Most Outstanding Wrestler, as chosen by the coaches, will also get a trophy.

THE PRELIMINARY MATCHES start at 11:30 a.m. with all the action at the Salem High School gym. Three mats will be used during this competition.

After a break, the evening session is tentatively scheduled for 7:30 p.m. with the consolation matches for third, fourth and fifth and sixth places. The championship matches follow the consolation.

Admission for the afternoon session is $.50 for students and $1 for adults. The night session is $.75 for students and $1.50 for adults. An all day pass for both sessions will be sold at a reduced rate of $1 for students and $2 for adults.

And for the quality of wrestling featured at this tourney, these prices are a steal.

The help and cooperation of both Salem and Canton parent groups will once again help this tourney be one of the smoothest run events around. The parent groups will be in charge of a concession stand and will also help Krueger and Chrenko at the scorer's tables.

Financial help will once again come from the Plymouth Elks Club—$150 worth, plus medals and trophies.

This tournament proved to be a success last year—but watch for bigger and better things the second time around.

Levielle levels spike

Salem senior Cheri Levielle practices her spiking technique during drill sessions Monday afternoon. Levielle is one of many seniors on this year's Rock volleyball squad which hopes to win its first Suburban Eight League title under coach Brian Gilles. (Staff photo)

But Salem and Bentley remain unblemished

Observerland cage teams can't seem to win

By DOUG FUNKE

The 1976-77 boys' prep basketball season is now approximately a third over for most area squads and a look at their overall records raises an interesting point.

With only four of the 14 area squads playing 500 ball or better, one wonders whether the teams are more balanced and are taking turns beating each other, or are just generally weaker overall.

Plymouth Salem (7-0) and Livonia Bentley (5-0), both in the Suburban Eight League, possess the only unblemished records in the area.

That situation will change quickly, however, as the two are scheduled to collide at Salem Jan. 7. The contest will be the first for both teams since the holiday break, so how both react to the long layoff is an important angle.

Salem, although losing several key players to graduation including all-state honoree Jim Ellinghausen, continues to win, although not by the lopsided margins of last year.

Bentley, with the tallest squad in the area, has been living on defense during the first part of the season. The Bulldogs have relinquished an average of only 45.5 points per game. In fact, defense has saved Bentley since it has had a difficult time getting its offense rolling.

Three of the Bulldogs' five wins have been by five points or less.

Flo Homun, a 6-6 foreign exchange student from West Germany, has fit in with such players as Craig Fuelling, Ken Duckworth and Jeff Bennett, each 6-3 or taller.

Westland John Glenn (7-2) leads the Northwest Suburban League with a 2-0 mark and faces a stern test Jan. 7 when it hosts North Farmington, the only other unbeaten team in the conference.

The Rockets have been among the area's more productive offensive units, averaging 72 points per contest. Glenn, when it is on its game—which is most of the time—is very, very good.

Its margins of victory have been 29, 20 and 18 points. In both of the Rockets' losses—19 points to Taylor Center and 20 points to Inkster Cherry Hill—total breakdowns for brief but fatal periods have been the difference.

Livonia Stevenson (5-2), with an excellent collection of starters back from last year's team including Dave Gilland, Steve Gabrian and Ron Colone, is one of those area squads which is hard to figure.

The Spartans started off strong by whipping Southfield and Redford Union, were upset by Garden City East by three points, routed Milford Lakeland, nipped Farmington by two points, then lost to Redford Thurston by five and rapped Livonia Churchill by 13.

Stevenson finished second to Pontiac Northern last season in the Inter-Lakes League race. Northern compiled a 10-0 conference record and the Spartans were 8-2, their only two losses coming to the Pontiac contingent.

Both teams currently sport 2-0 marks and it looks like a two-team race again. Northern has been awesome so far this winter, while Stevenson's inconsistency has been puzzling.

The protagonists will square off in their first of two meetings Jan. 14 at Northern. That game should give some indication of exactly how good the Spartans really are.

In spite of owning a share of the Western Six League lead with a 2-0 conference record, Livonia Churchill (3-4) may be fortunate to finish .500 overall this season.

The Chargers must yet face Farmington Harrison and Walled Lake Western, both with 2-0 league records, twice each, and non-league foes Livonia Bentley, Livonia Franklin and Garden City East.

Churchill, in a rebuilding season, has been victimized by inconsistency, although there seems to be little question about its desire. Tom Bay's season reflects his team's.

The senior set a new scoring record with 34 points against Ann Arbor Pioneer but the next time out, was limited to four by a weak Garden City West. One just doesn't know what to expect from Churchill on any given night.

At least the Chargers will have the home-court advantage for seven of their first nine games after the holidays before hitting the road again for their final four.

Redford Thurston (3-4) started off strong with a pair of convincing victories, then lost three close battles in a row after one of its starting guards, Mike Nagle, was injured.

However, the Eagles then downed Livonia Stevenson in the first round of the Churchill Holiday Tournament before falling to Salem by two points in the finals.

Thurston may be back, but with two losses already in Northwest Suburban League play, the Eagles can't really afford many more if they realistically expect to challenge for the league championship.

Three tough non-conference road games await the Eagles in weeks ahead—Redford Bishop Borgess, Bentley and Southfield—not to mention some traditionally difficult league tussles.

Playing in one of the strongest leagues in the state might prove to be a good learning experience, but it doesn't always turn out so well in the won-loss record.

Redford Bishop Borgess (3-2) has already lost to highly-ranked Detroit Catholic Central, and must meet the Shamrocks again, and powerhouse Birmingham Brother Rice twice in Catholic League competition.

First-year coach Ron Gutkowski, a Catholic Central graduate and no stranger to the rough-and-tumble Central Division, has a fine cast of returning lettermen around which to orchestrate a game plan. Dan DeCoster and Dave Priebe are the backbones of the Spartan attack.

While Borgess can more than hold its own with the likes of UD High, Harper Woods Notre Dame and Detroit DeLaSalle, it may take a while longer to develop the traditions of a CC or a Brother Rice.

So far, the Spartans have proven that they're capable of meeting suburban competition by manhandling Garden City East and nipping Southfield in overtime.

Livonia Franklin's (2-3) biggest problem to date has been health.

Dennis Smith, the team captain, has yet to suit up due to mononucleosis. Ken Scarpace, one of the better shooters on the team, tore a tendon in a freak accident and will be lost for several weeks, and Mike Kaseta, another starter, is playing part-time on a bum knee.

The Patriots got off to a notoriously slow start last season but still won the Northwest Suburban League championship and the district championship and advanced all the way to the regional finals.

If Franklin gets all its starters back at 100 per cent and comes back like it did last season, it can again make things very sticky for league and non-league foes alike.

It took Redford St. Agatha (2-4) two games to get accustomed to new coach Tom McDonald and his methods. The Aggies were bombed by Detroit Benedictine and Riverview Gabriel Richard, then blasted Allen Park Cabrini and downed Hamtramck St. Florian.

As expected, Agatha was routed by Detroit St. Andrew, but then came the unexpected—a loss to Clarenceville. Are the Aggies starting to backslide after a couple of tastes of success? Only time will tell whether St. Agatha will be mediocre like last season or make a start on the path of respectability.

Garden City East (2-4) plays the most difficult schedule of any area team, and in this rebuilding season, its record may reflect that. The Panthers, however, have already upset Livonia Stevenson and Southfield-Lathrup and may surprise others in the weeks ahead.

There is no better coach in the area than East's Billy Joe Young to contend with the rebuilding job and the murderous schedule facing the Panthers.

With just one starter, Dan Loacano, back from last year, East has produced two upsets and lost a pair of others by two and six points. Yet on the schedule are re-matches with Borgess and Lathrup and a date at Dearborn Fordson.

Whatever may happen the rest of the campaign, no one can accuse the Panthers of trying to develop their teeth on a mushy schedule.

Redford Union (2-4) finally found some offense in its fourth outing of the year after coming up with only 31, 42 and 45 points, respectively, during its first three games.

The Panthers, under coach Carl Andrews, can probably claim the title for the best foul-shooting team in the area if their most recent performances are indicative of things to come.

Since RU has only been giving up an average of 60 points per game, a little offense would go a long way in reversing its losing trend.

Clarenceville (1-4), plagued by turnovers at the start of this season, just like last, broke into the win column before the holiday break by tripping Redford St. Agatha.

Last year, the Trojans came on strong at the end of the season and were playing their best basketball of the campaign at tournament time. Coach Bob Wolf would like nothing better than to repeat that performance, but perhaps starting a little earlier this year.

Bill Peterson has been one of the area's best all-around players, especially a terror at the offensive end of the court.

The hard-luck team of the area so far this season has been Plymouth Canton (1-5), which has lost all of its games by four points or fewer and two in overtime. The Chiefs have had a penchant from snatching defeat from the jaws of victory.

Canton coach Casey Cavell is optimistic about the remainder of the campaign. "I hope we play basketball like I play poker," he said, "lose at the beginning and win at the end."

The 1976-77 season must be a trying one for coach Chris Babler and his Garden City West Tigers (0-8). Babler, who has never coached a West team to worse than a second-place finish in the Tri-River League, seems destined for the conference basement.

How things can change in a year. The Tigers compiled a perfect 20-0 regular season record last year but lost almost every-one from that squad to graduation.

Everyone has teed off on the rebuilding Tigers so far this year and Babler has consistently juggled his personnel in an effort to find a combination that clicks, so far, without success.

How things can change in a year. The West coach has sounded discouraged after recent losses but maintained his sense of humor by saying that at least he wouldn't lose again until 1977.

Hard work and concentration will be the watch-words around the West camp, as the Tigers try to salvage what they can from a disastrous start.

Fuelling fires in free throw

Canton junior forward Keith Fuelling pops in a free throw from the charity line in action against Livonia Franklin on Tuesday night. Fuelling started and scored nine points in helping the Chiefs romp past the Patriots 83-40. It was Canton's second victory of the season, both coming in non-league play. (Staff photo).

Getting set for the service return are some of this year's Salem senior volleyball players. Pictured from left are Cheri Leveille, Polly Richards, Carol Simonetti, Sandy Ezzo, Mindy Morris, and Peggy

Livonia, Swedes split

Livonia hockey teams split their two games with visiting contingents from Vasterhaninge, Sweden Monday evening at the Eddie Edgar (Ford) Arena.

The Livonia midget representative blanked VIF, 3-0, and the Livonia bantam contingent was tripped by VIF, 8-2.

In the midget tussle, Mark Wilson scored a pair of goals for Livonia, with Chris Michniak assisting on the first. The second was a solo effort by Wilson. Alan Harvey also tallied an unassisted goal for Livonia.

Jeff Nabozny and Craig Greeley shared the goaltending duties in recording the shutout.

Things didn't go quite as well for Livonia in the bantam match.

Brian McPhee scored an unassisted goal and Chris McCrory scored from Brendon Dunne for the locals' only markers of the contest.

Brian Balcolf and Tom Burke both tried their luck in the nets for Livonia.

The Vasterhaninge teams, which have been playing in the metro Detroit and northern Ohio areas since Dec. 30, leave for home Saturday.

Salem spikers rely on seniors

By BETTY DeLANO

A second-place finish in the Suburban Eight behind Livonia Bentley was the achievement of the 1976 Plymouth Salem girls' volleyball team coached by Brian Gilles. The team finished 6-1 in the league and 10-5 for the entire season.

This year, Gilles hopes to take the Rocks to a league championship and wants to place extremely high in the regionals as well—hopefully going on to the state finals.

"To make it all the way, you have to have a senior club, and that's what we've got," said Gilles. "We've only lost four seniors from last year's team and those four spots have been well replaced."

THIS YEAR'S varsity squad has nine returning letter winners from last year's and has the experience to do quite well," the Salem mentor said.

Out of the Suburban Eight, Gilles feels that the most competition for Salem will be coming from Bentley and Dearborn. He isn't sure about Belleville, Allen Park and Redford Union due to new coaches.

Salem will open its season against Livonia Churchill Monday, Jan.

10 at home. The last time the Rocks played Churchill, they gained the victory in two straight games.

Monday's match will start at 7 p.m. with Salem's junior varsity, coached by Cathy Himes, meeting the Charger JV followed by the varsity competition.

THE VARSITY squad includes seven seniors, three juniors and two sophomores.

All making this their third year on the varsity are seniors Peggy Moore, Cheri Leveille, Sandy Ezzo, Lynne Stone, Mindy Morris, Carol Simonetti and Polly Richards.

Juniors returning from last year's team are Karen Prikosovits, and Kathy Dillon who also is starting her third season as a varsity member. New to the varsity this year are junior Clarisse Hartnett and sophomores Doris Hoelscher and Erin Moore. All three played on the JV team last winter.

The Rocks will be on the road seven times this season and will play the remaining six matches at home. Salem also will co-host the Plymouth Invitational with Plymouth Canton Feb. 5 and participate in the Schoolcraft Invitational Feb. 12.

Swedes play here

Plymouth's Midget and Bantam hockey teams will be hosting their Swedish visitors in a contest Friday night at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The Bantam game begins at 7:30 p.m. with the Midget battle following at 9 p.m.

The public is welcome to attend. Proceeds will benefit the hockey programs.

The Swedish teams have been staying at the homes of Plymouth-Canton residents since Dec. 27. These games will mark the end of the Europeans' trip to the United States.

The Swedes come from the community of Vasterhamig which the Plymouth pucksters visited last year during the holidays.

The Swedes' trip to Plymouth has included sight-seeing trips and hockey games with squads from Livonia, Trenton, Ann Arbor and Bowling Green, Ohio.

Following the example of the racquetball and ice rink operators several of the bowling proprietors in the area are switching to renting the lanes on a time basis instead of the time-honored charge per game.

This often has been talked about but wasn't put into practice until this week when Paul Horie, manager of the Livonia Lanes, initiated the new plan. In so doing, though, he explained that, for the time being, it would effect the open bowlers only. Leagues will pay by the game as always.

The reason for the switch to "time" charges is the lack of concern of the bowlers on the approaches. Many of them are never ready when it comes their turn to bowl. Others are so-called "posers" who want everyone to see them perform. Others are just time wasters and now, with the charge by the hour, it is hoped that much of this is eliminated.

FRED HAMLIN, genial owner of Farmington Lanes, is having a very enjoyable time these days—and much of the joy is the result of performances of the young bowlers who recently graduated from the junior ranks.

The team of youngsters is seven games out in front in the mixed classic and going strong. This week, for instance, Brian Derovac paced the team with a 237 in a 701 series.

The other members of the team are Bill Stephenson, Barbara Hamlin and Renee Gunderlock.

Good scoring marked the performances in the other leagues, too. Kevin Holmstrom fired a 225 in 610 to lead the Teen Classic and Don McNutt had a 245 in 700 in the men's junior house league.

LOIS MERRIMAN got off to a good start in the new year in the Livonia Ladies Classic. She won the series with 564-75-639 and that included a victory in the third game with 211-25-236.

In the other games, Madelyn Donahue won the first with 187-36-223 and Caroline Neiderkorn won the second with 178-37-215.

BETTY LOU SCHNEIDER bowled one of her best series in the Plymouth Ladies League at Plymouth Bowl. She opened with 198, followed with 179 and closed with 230 for 607.

In the senior citizens loop, Art Harrett was top man with a 257 single.

Over at Plaza Bowl, Frank Sherman, a 165 bowler, came through with a 674 series gained on games of 237, 223 and 214 in the business industrial circuit.

ANOTHER WOMAN went to the top of the Honor Roll at Westland when June Marquis posted a 245 in the Coffee and Donuts League.

Observerland coaches must contact Wolf

Bob Wolf, head basketball coach at Clarenceville has volunteered to keep track of the top scorers of area high school basketball teams.

Coaches, to report your top scorers, call Wolf at Clarenceville between 1:30-2 p.m. The number is 476-2270.

The schools that Wolf will keep track of are, Plymouth Salem, and Canton, Redford Union, Thurston, Bishop Borgess, and St. Agatha, Westland John Glenn, Livonia Stevenson, Bentley, Franklin, and Churchill, Clarenceville, and Garden City East and West.
