Striking local farmers vow not to plow

By PATRICK TOUHEY

Angry local farmers demonstrated Tuesday against prices they are paid for their produce by staging a mass rally, lighting a huge bonfire and driving their farm vehicles through downtown Plymouth.

More than 40 farmers from within a 50-mile radius of Plymouth and Canton joined the motorcade down Main Street. Some of the larger combines and tractors took up two lanes of the road and slowed traffic in the central business district to a crawl.

After circling Kellogg Park, the farmers drove their vehicles back out to an open field west of Napier at Ann Arbor Road, the site where the rally and bonfire had been held earlier.

The rally and motorcade were staged as part of a national protest to call attention to the lack of "parity" between what farmers are paid for their goods and what they are sold for on the supermarket shelves.

"It's really a rip-off for the independent farmer," said an angry Maryl Hesse, one of the organizers of the demonstration and the wife of Ron Hesse, a Superior Township farmer and the owner of the land where the farmers gathered. "The clerk who rings up the sale at the grocery store is making more money than the farmer."

ALL MORNING LONG farmers from Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville, and the surrounding area made the pilgrimage to the Hesse property. At noon they lighted a huge pile of Christmas trees on fire.

As the trees blazed, the farmers threw their hats into the flames. Several of those present pulled stalks of wheat from from the ground and threw them into the fire.

To replace the burned hats, the farmers were given new ones, bearing the legend "American Agriculture Strike 77."

The farmers taking part in the demonstration were members of American Agriculture, a loosely-knit group of independent farmers from all over the country.

The group—or movement as Mrs. Hesse prefers to call it—was started last spring by six people in Colorado. Since then, she said, it has grown to "the largest association of farmers in history."

Its goal is to bring about a balance between the price farmers are paid for their goods and what it costs them to produce those goods—or parity, a price set by the federal government.

"We only get 3½ cents for a 65 cent loaf of bread," said Mrs. Hesse. "The farmer has to sell the wheat cheap and then turn around and pay the high price for the bread. There's no way he can win."

Currently the prices farmers are paid for their crops are set by the Chicago Trade Commission, and those prices are subject to daily fluctuations.

"You can call Anderson Grain Elevator in Ohio," said Canton farmer Duane Bordine, "and ask them what soy beans are selling for today. Three hours later when you get down there the prices have changed.

"It's all governed by the Chicago market. I'd like to know how much I'm going to make an hour, like the people who work on the line at General Motors."

According to Hesse, the federal government could guarantee parity for farmers with "a stroke of the pen. They could do it tomorrow if they wanted to," he said.

"We're getting about as much for our crops as we did in the depression while everything else has gone sky-high. Hell, a farmer is a consumer too."

Hesse said the government could increase the market price for farmers without raising the cost of retail food supplies. "Let the government put its damn thumb on the middle man for a change. They are all getting their profit. It's the farmers who don't know from one day to the next."

Police in brawl at Bundarin's

Woman calls local cops 'inept'

A woman involved in a fight with a boyfriend last week, that grew into a brawl with police, claims Canton officers who tried to arrest the man "made an ugly situation get worse" by their "unprofessional" and "unqualified" conduct.

Maureen Filarecki, 21, criticized the police before the Canton Board of Trustees Tuesday night after her date, Robert Lee Simmers III, 28, who listed a Livonia address, was charged with forcible assault on a police officer in a Dec. 29 fracas at 39564 Bart in Canton's Holiday Park subdivision.

The home is owned by Peter Bundarin, a local attorney who ran an unsuccessful campaign for township supervisor in 1976. Bundarin, a witness, said police showed "maturity and restraint" during the incident. Ms. Filarecki had been a house guest at the Bundarin home for about a month but was asked to leave after the Dec. 29 incident by her "landlord" Bundarin.

Simmers was released on $1,000 personal bond last Friday at a holiday hearing before 18th District Judge Evan Callanan. He faces pre-trial examination on the high misdemeanor charge next Monday in 35th District Court. The offense carries a maximum two year penalty.

According to Canton Police, two officers were injured by Simmers in a scuffle outside the home. One officer, Leonard Bush, required six stitches to close a head wound after Simmers reportedly struck the officer with a police flashlight.

POLICE SAID at about 9:40 p.m. officers Kathy Petres and Sam Natoli responded to the Bart address on a "family trouble" call.

Bundarin, who said he heard the commotion of the couple fighting in the living room while he was sitting in his family room, called police when he observed Simmers "physically abusing" Ms. Filarecki by "kicking, punching and spitting" on her.

Police said Simmers tried to drive away in his van when the two officers arrived. When the officers first tried to speak to Simmers, according to police, "he was in an incoherent state."

But Ms. Filarecki claims the officers aggravated the incident which would have been avoided, she said, if they had let Simmers drive away.

She claims the police started the fight, and, for that reason, won't sign a complaint against Simmers.

"Kathy (Petres) and Sam (Natoli) aggravated him by trying to pull him out of the van," Ms. Filarecki said. "He had his keys and was ready to leave. I told them, 'Let him go and take his license number'.

"There was a circus outside the house. I feel it is my duty as a citizen to let people of Canton know they have no police department. They have security guards with guns."

Police said Ms. Filarecki came out of the house telling officers to let Simmers go, Simmers, meanwhile, began backing his van up and pinned Ptl. Petres between her patrol car and the van door. She was given a chest X-ray later at Wayne County General Hospital which showed no broken bones.

According to police, Simmers then tried to attack Ptl. Natoli, and attempted to wrestle Natoli's pistol out of his holster. Simmers then struck Petres in the stomach, according to police, knocking her to the ground and reportedly causing her to black out.

Still intent on getting Natoli's gun, the police report states, Simmers ripped the stitching on the officer's holster.

UNABLE TO GET the gun, police claim Simmers managed to grab Petres' police flashlight and "attempted to hit both officers."

Officers Bush and George Sharp arrived on the scene after a call for more help was made by Bundarin. Ms. Filarecki said she has dated Ptl. Bush recently.

Bush was struck on the head with the flashlight when he stepped into the fray, according to Canton Ptl. Kurt Johnston.

It took four of the Canton officers to "subdue" Simmers, police said. Police also said that Simmers refused treatment for "bruises" when he was taken to Wayne County General Hospital by police.

Ms. Filarecki told township Trustees Tuesday that Petres and Natoli, whom she described as elderly and overweight, aggravated the situation by not being able to immediately arrest her ex-boyfriend.

Bundarin said he was a witness to most of the scuffle, while his houseguest cried in a bedroom.

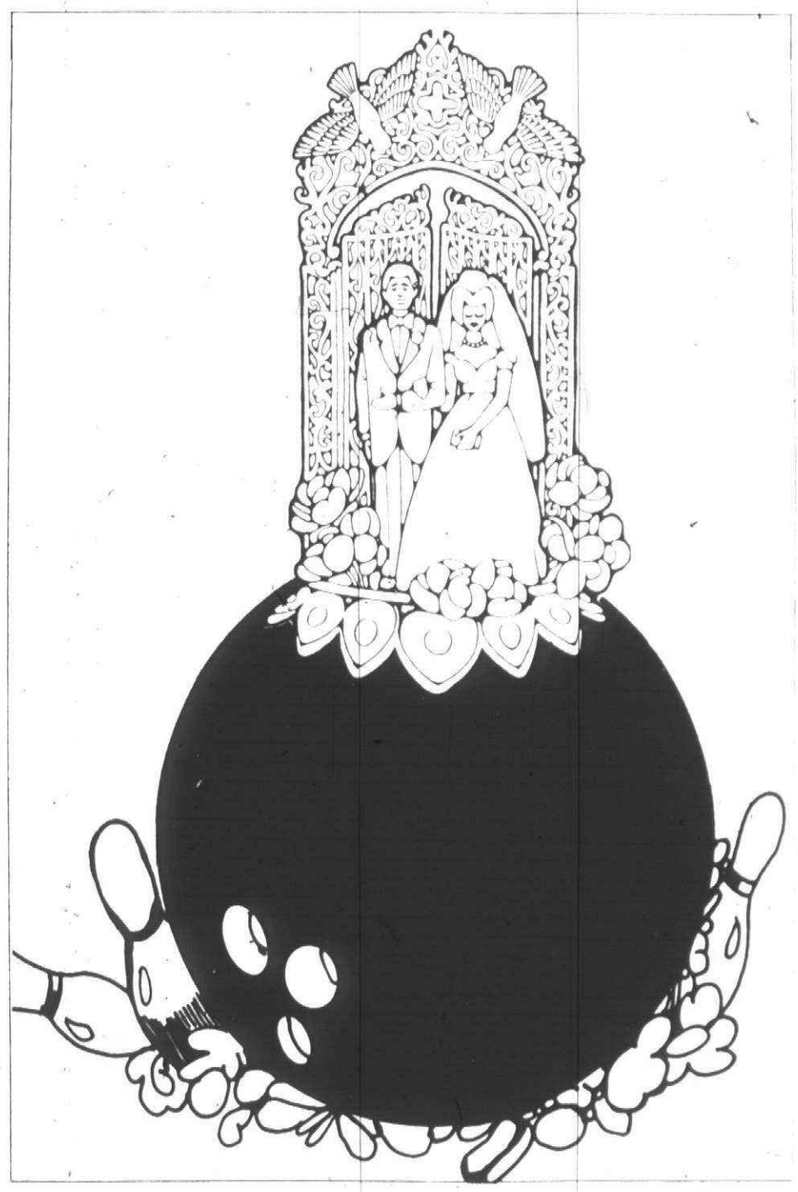

"The Canton Police showed a great deal of restraint in the matter," Bundarin said. "Her attitude was that the Canton Police should have shot the guy for bothering her. A man would have been shot if the Canton police hadn't shown maturity and restraint."

BUNDARIN SAID the young woman is a "friend of a friend" who needed a place to stay after she had a disagreement with her mother. Bundarin said he had an open room at his house and allowed the young woman to stay and clean up around the house for about a month until the woman could locate another place. After last Thursday's incident, though he said he told her to find another place to stay.

Ms. Filarecki is employed as a waitress at the Rusty Nail Lounge in Canton.

After hearing the police report of the scuffle, Simmers' attorney, George Constantine, said he finds two examples where the police version of the event conflicts with the statements of two witnesses. He refused to elaborate, only saying that "it appears that police force needs a little help."

"As I understand it, there's quite a problem out there."

9 cops tapped for full training

Nine uncertified members of the Canton Police Department will go back to school next Monday for training that could lead to certification as a police officer and a potentially better chance to win full-time jobs with the force.

Sending the officers to the eight-week police training school at Madonna College was approved by Canton board members Tuesday night at the recommendation of Police Chief Walter MacGregor, who said the additional training would improve the quality of the entire department.

In approving the training, board members authorized MacGregor to send whichever officers he deems most qualified to the Criminal Justice Institute (CJI) whenever he sees fit.

The nine officers who will attend CJI under MacGregor's recommendation are Tillman, Donald LaFramboise, John Longridge, Gerald Niezgoda, Gordon Stevens, John Sherwin, James Hanna, William Britcher and Vincent Chan.

Until now, MacGregor was not empowered to seek additional training for his officers without board approval. The training is funded by the Michigan Law Enforcement Officer Training Council with no cost to the township.

TRUSTEE BRIAN SCHWALL made the motion that will allow MacGregor to use his own judgment in sending additional uncertified officers to the training classes in the future.

"When we hired this guy we hired him because we thought he had judgment," Schwall said. "And, dammit, let him use it."

Although each police training student must sign a statement recognizing that police certification may not win him a full-time job with the Canton Police Department, at least one member of the township board—Treasurer Anne Bradley—said certification would better officers' chances to win one of the 10 full-time jobs opening this spring.

Bert Burgoyne, an attorney for the township, and James Garber, attorney for the Canton Police Officers Association (CPOA), are now negotiating an agreement that will spell out which Canton police officers should be tested for the full-time positions.

The agreement could qualify certified and uncertified officers for the

CPOA chief plays odds

The Canton Police Officers Association (CPOA) is reportedly close to an agreement with the township on a hiring policy that will draw new officers from present ranks. Nobody could be happier than CPOA President John Longridge, who has a personal stake in how Canton will hire additional cops.

Longridge works as a planner-scheduler at Ford Motor Co.'s Livonia Transmission plant during the day and about one night a week he moonlights as a "regularly-employed" Canton reserve police officer. He is also one of nine officers who have been tapped to attend the Criminal Justice Institute for full state-certified police training.

Longridge is trying to get a community service leave of absence from the car company while he attends the 10-week police academy in Detroit. But, he says, the Ford front office is cool to the leave request, and, if necessary, he will quit his job at Ford to receive training that will not guarantee him a job on the about to be expanded Canton police force.

According to people on both sides of the bargaining table, it appears that Canton will open up 10 full-time patrol officer jobs to competitive testing among present officers. Those who achieved state certification in December 1976 and those who will be attending certification school this month will undoubtedly have an advantage over less-trained employees.

Neither Longridge and CPOA attorney George Garber or Police Commissioner John Flodin and the township's attorney Bert Burgoyne will say what the hiring settlement will be yet, but both sides admit that it appears that present Canton officers will have first crack at jobs.

The CPOA reportedly agreed to take competitive tests administered by the Michigan Municipal League (MML) in the compromise agreement. But nothing has been signed yet and neither party will make a definitive statment on how the hiring will be conducted.

Before the negotiations started, the township's position was that the 10 patrol officers jobs would be open to anyone who lived in the township and the CPOA position was that certified officers were tested at CJI, so no further testing from the Michigan Municipal League was needed.

Longridge said the township has bargained with the fraternal association

Bowling alley turns into a Lovers' Lane

You might say that for Ron Pellegrino and his new bride, Jo Ann, it was love at first strike.

"It was only natural," said Ron. "We met there and Jo Ann works there. In fact, she had to work the night we were married."

And not only was his wife on duty behind the counter, but he was bowling in league competition.

"I was bowling in a Scotch Doubles," said Ron. "I finished up at about 11:45 p.m. and Jo Ann got 45 minutes off for the ceremony. After it was over, she went back to work and I went back to bowling."

Judge Dunbar Davis, of Plymouth's 35th District Court, performed the ceremony, and a local band which was on hand to provide music for the New Year's partying provided the music.

U-M Dearborn growth slows

Enrollment growth at the University of Michigan-Dearborn has begun slowing down, according to 1977 fall semester enrollment figures released by the U of M-Dearborn registrar's office.

A total of 5,480 undergraduate and graduate students are enrolled for the fall semester, up 205 over last fall. This is the seventh consecutive year U of M-Dearborn has experienced an increase in enrollment, but the rate of growth has been decreasing during the past two years.

U of M-Dearborn exprienced its most rapid growth immediately after the university admitted its first freshman class in 1971. A university spokesman attributed the slower growth rate in recent years to a decrease in state funding for new students.

TOM RIORDAN

Riordan leads O&E news team

Thomas A. Riordan, former managing editor of the Jackson (Mich.) Citizen-Patriot, this week became executive editor of the 12 Observer & Eccentric newspapers.

The appointment was announced by general manager John Reddy, who was promoted from the editor's post several months ago.

"In Tom Riordan we are getting an outstanding, highly experienced newsman whose background over the last 30 years makes him ideally suited to head up O&E editorial operations," said Reddy.

In addition to a decade in daily newspapers, Riordan has owned and published non-daily papers in Michigan and Ohio.

A 1947 GRADUATE of Michigan State University—where he was editor of the campus newspaper, the Michigan State News—Riordan broke into the professional field as city hall reporter for the Oakland Press, then called the Pontiac Press.

After a year, he joined Detroit Edison as assistant editor of its employee magazine, and in 1950 returned to newspaper work as editor and publisher of the Greenwich (Ohio) Enterprise-Review, a weekly of 1,200 circulation.

Six years later, Riordan became general manager of the Marysville (Ohio) Printing Co., which published three weeklies, but left in 1957 to become editor and co-publisher of the Tecumseh (Mich.) Herald.

He filled that niche until 1967, when he sold his Tecumseh interests to his partner, and then spent a year as assistant journalism professor at Hillsdale College.

IN 1968, Riordan joined the Citizen-Patriot as a columnist and photographer.

In little more than a year he advanced to picture editor and then managing editor of the 39,000 daily, a position he held eight years until resigning last March.

At that point Riordan formed a Jackson-based newspaper management seminar firm called TARCO, which produced seminars in Michigan, Ohio and Illinois for newspapers, press associations and news executives.

Riordan and his wife, Marilyn, have moved to Farmington, the center of the O&E twice-weekly circulation area—Birmingham, Troy, Rochester, West Bloomfield, Southfield, Farmington, Livonia, Redford, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Canton.

Plymouth-Canton OBITUARIES

FRANK KOSS

Funeral services for Mr. Koss, 92, of Joy Road, Plymouth Township, were held recently in Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, Plymouth, with the Rev. Fr. Kenneth MacKinnon officiating. Burial was at Holy Sepulchre, Southfield. Pallbearers were Foster Kisabeth, Joe Wilhelmi, Joe Graye, Dennis Koss, Al Koss and Robert Koss.

Tr. Koss, who died Dec. 27 in Nightingale Convalescent Home, Westland, was a longtime Plymouth resident. He was a carpenter in the building trades, a member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, and of the Plymouth Knights of Columbus No. 3292. Survivors include his sister, Mrs. Marie Sattler of Plymouth.

ANNIE LOUISE PLANCHON

Mrs. Planchon, 78 of Cherry Hill Road, Ypsilanti, died Sunday evening, Dec. 18, in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Mrs. Planchon was born in London, Eng., Nov. 18, 1899 and came to this area in 1950 following 25 years residence in France. She married John Planchon in 1929 and he died in April 1974. The Planchons owned a poultry farm on Geddes Road in Canton. Mrs. Planchon had been a longtime secretary of the board of the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church and also was secretary of the combined womens circle of that church.

She is survived by: son, Edward who is director of sales and marketing of Chrysler International in London, Eng.; four grandchildren; sisters, Mrs. Clara Dorey of Canton and Mrs. Amby Hewett of London, Eng.; five nieces; one nephew; 13 grandnieces and grandnephews.

The memorial service for Mrs. Planchon will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 7, from the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church with the Rev. Bert Hosking officiating. Burial of the funeral urn is to take place privately in the church cemetery. In lieu of flowers, the family would appreciate memorial contributions in Mrs. Planchon's name to be made to the Annie Louise Planchon Fund at the church. Geer Funeral Home in Ypsilanti are in charge of arrangements.

Fritz Lobenthel of Canton throws another log in the bonfire at a rally held on the farm in Superior Township owned by Ron Hesse, protest leader. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey).

Hats were thrown into the bonfire by farmers who then each donned caps bearing the same message: "American Agriculture Strike-77."

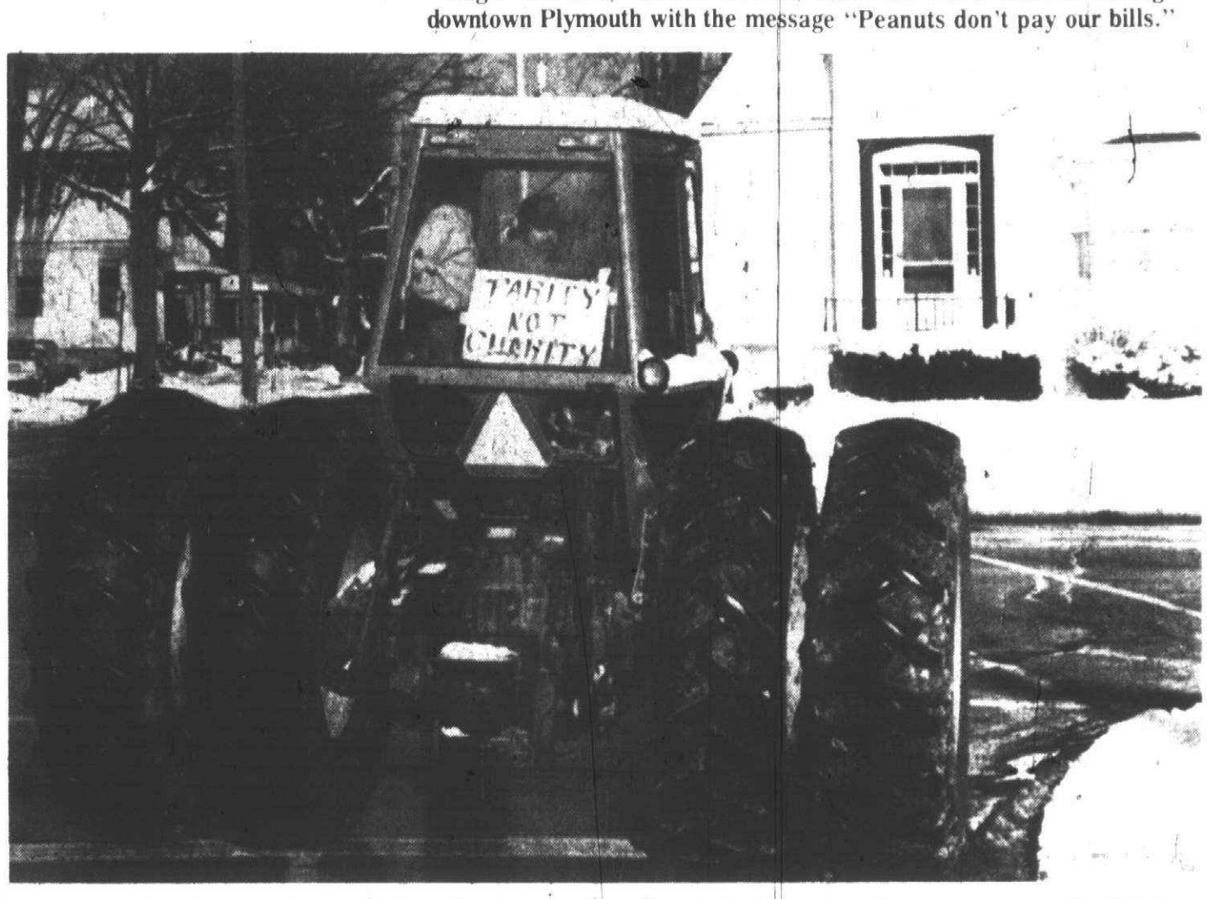

Roger Bordine, Canton farmer, rides his Ford tractor through downtown Plymouth with the message "Peanuts don't pay our bills."

'Hell no, we won't grow'

Traffic was tied up for a while Tuesday afternoon in Plymouth as this caravan of farm equipment drove down Main Street, circled Kellogg Park, drove down Penniman to Harvey, and then headed out to the Hesse farm in Superior Township.

The Stroller

The era of miracles

By W. W. EDGAR

Like countless others, the Stroller has been going through life at a leisurely pace, taking things for granted.

Naturally, he was thrilled when he sat up until the wee hours of the morning to watch the first astronauts step on the moon. But after the first, the others seemed matter-of-fact and, like many others, he felt that if you saw one landing you had seen them all.

When the big, new Concorde jet was launched and cut the scheduled time to cross the Atlantic in half, he read about it in the public prints and sighed, "So what?"

From time to time, he has read accounts of the great things being done in the medical profession. He was thrilled to learn that great strides are being made to combat cancer, and there are equally great advances being made in the replacement of kidneys in human bodies. But great as they seemed, they were more or less taken for granted.

THEN, OF A SUDDEN, they struck home, and The Stroller now is convinced we are living in an era of miracles . . . and the end is not yet in sight.

The great awakening came when Leona, the Stroller's helpmate, who had been suffering from arthritis for close to two decades, could stand the pain in her knee no longer.

In the midst of tears one morning, she sobbed, "I can't take it any longer. I am going to get a new knee."

In other days and in other times, this would have been an idle statement, brought on by the pangs of great pain. But not now.

So with the courage of someone going off to war, she entered the hospital with great confidence, and in due time, she had her old knee replaced with a new one.

"Look," she said, "I haven't straightened my leg in years, and now it is as straight as can be. And I can bend it to."

To The Stroller, it was a miracle. No longer could he take things for granted. Here it was performed in his own family, and it came like manna from heaven.

IN DUE TIME, Leona will be walking out in the yard again enjoying the shrubs and flowers and possibly walking better than the Stroller, all because of the modern miracles.

It was ironic that on the day she was given her new knee, the Stroller received a letter from an old friend back home. He hadn't heard from the friend in more than a year.

"I haven't written to you," the letter started, "because I have experienced a great thing. I tired of the constant pain in my hip and last February when I no longer could stand it, I decided to have it replaced. And what a job those doctors and surgeons did at the University of Pennsylvania hospital!

"I walked on crutches for a month, then walked with a cane for several more, and now I am walking a mile and a half every day with no support except my new hips. It is marvelous what strides have been made in the medical world."

WITH THE LETTER still in his hand, the Stroller couldn't help recalling an experience he had at the last annual "stag" dinner sponsored by Meadowbrook Country Club when Rob Lytle, the Michigan football star, was being honored.

He was seated next to Bob Calihan, the former University of Detroit athletic director, whom he knew as a sufferer from arthritic pain.

In the middle of the meal, Bob, one of the finest fellows one could meet, arose and with the trace of a tear said, "I've got to leave. My pain is just too much."

One had to pity him as he ambled out to the car. But today there are no tears of pain in Bob Calihan's eyes because of his arthritic hips. He has two artificial hips. What's more, he now is considering having one of his knees replaced.

ess; and, to make project economically viable MSHDA usually requires the greatest amount of units be placed on a small site.

Another alternative, rated fifth, was use of local bonding for senior citizen housing. Using local bonding ability, it would cost $5.5 to $6.2 million to construct 100 units which would cost each individual in the city about $7 a year in taxes. Besides the high costs to the city, there also is no guarantee of operating or rent subsidy, or residential preference in tenant selection.

A final alternative mentioned was the "Do-Nothing Option." "The do-nothing option consists of not providing any senior housing. This course of action should be considered because of the fact that it is an option. This decision must be arrived at consciously and must be viewed as the end-product of weighing all the alternatives."

If 100 units of cooperative-type housing is constructed or otherwise provided, in-home support services are very important, the committee stressed. Among such services would be outdoor maintenance, indoor maintenance, and services such as assistance with shopping, meal preparation, laundry, personal hygiene and grooming. A central body, such as a Council on Aging, could provide the coordination needed to eliminate duplication of services.

FOR TRANSPORATION, the committee a dial-a-ride system plus a coordinated-ride system.

The coordinated-ride system would be run with volunteer drivers with senior citizens making an appointment with a clearinghouse and receiving door-site-door transportation.

The report notes that dial-a-ride service may be available in 1978, would serve 430 persons at a cost of about 50 cents to the user.

The volunteer program would serve about 300 persons with the expense being shared by the volunteer and the user.

The report notes that transportation services now are being provided by the YMCA, Salvation Army, and Fish but these services aren't capable of meeting present demand.

FOR HEALTH CARE, the committee advised more comprehensive clinics for screening and referral.

Whese clinics are sponsored in communities by the Wayne County Health Department and financed with federal funds. The clinics screen such things as blood pressure, breast cancer, and refer senior citizens for treatment.

Because the demand is so great for the county-administered clinics, the committee also recommends consideration be given to establishing a local clinic to operate on the same basis as the county program.

The committee also advises an outreach and sensitivity program aimed at local physicians to "serve the purpose of expressing the problem voiced by older residents that they couldn't find a doctor to accept them as a patient. It would hopefully make doctors more sensitive to the medical need of the elderly in Plymouth."

FOR LEISURE TIME activities, the committee advised publicizing existing services such as the large print books now available through Plymouth library.

Because more females than males participate in existing programs, the committee feels additional programming should concentrate on serving male seniors.

Activities recommended, based on survey responses, included: senior bowling leagues; senior ice skating time; senior baseball leagues; woodworking or handicraft classes; and, finding space in the city for gardening.

THE BLUE RIBBON committee noted that the steering committee to organize a Council On Aging has become inactive and is no longer prepared to act immediately.

"Therefore, we now feel that in the interest of speed and to take advantage of the work of the Blue Ribbon Committee; that a group of said committee who have expressed their desire to form an organizational committee be encouraged to do so."

The report also noted that the Plymouth Housing Commission sees its role as being "primarily engaged in the operation and management of Tonquish Creek Manor."

"We recommend that the Plymouth Housing Commission become more aggressive; assert their potential power, under the law, and concern themselves with the toal housing needs of the city's elderly, other than Tonquish Creek Manor. To assail the city commission, if the situation demands it, to expediate proper housing suitable to Plymouth's needs and at the same time guard against exploitation in this area."

Anchor Inn will be sold

The deadline for filing an appeal to last month's Liquor Control Commission ruling that revoked the license of the Anchor Inn has passed and the attorney for the two bar owners has indicated his clients are negotiating with parties interested in buying the bar.

The Dexter bar lost its license Dec. 12 for selling liquor to seven minors—six of which lost their lives July 23 in a car crash—and allowing those seven minors to consume alcohol on the bar's premises.

The LCC ruling allows the bar to reopen under new ownership if the license is "transferred to person or persons approved by the commission" within 90 days of the license revocation. Robert Welch and John Wuestenberg, according to their attorney Carl Ranno, decided not to appeal the LCC decision.

"The bar will be sold," Ranno said. "Numerous people have called about buying it after learning of the order."

Ranno said there has been "no decision" on who will be the new owners of the bar and the license that goes with it.

WELCH AND WUESTENBERG are being sued in two separate lawsuits filed by parents of youths killed in the car crash.

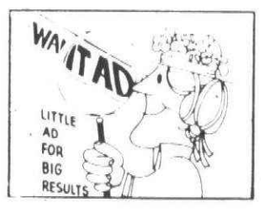

One lawsuit, filed by Jack Cook, father of the late Bill Cook, have sued both bar owners and the parents of the car's driver, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, whose son Brad was killed in the crash. That suit seeks $1 million in damages from the Wilsons and $1 million from the bar owners.

A second lawsuit, filed in Washtenaw County by Paul Radgens, father of Steven Radgens, who was killed in the crash, seeks $1 million from the bar licensees, $1 million from the Wilsons and $1 million from Washtenaw County Road Commission for improper upkeep of the Dexter-Pinckney intersection.

Success, frustration, challenge in '77 for schools

By JOHN M. HOBEN
Superintendent
Plymouth-Canton Schools

During the last year, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have enjoyed a number of outstanding programs and successes, coupled with a great deal of frustration caused by rather rapid growth and restricted facilities.

The most recent accomplishment was the performance of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Symphony Band at the Midwest National Band and Trchestra Clinic in Chicago.

The two-hour performance put on by this group of young musicians was lauded by the 2,000 in attendance as being one of the more outstanding performances by a high school band in recent years. The director of music at Northwestern University confided in me that it was one of the most outstanding groups he had seen in 25 years of participation in the clinic.

IN ADDITION, we have had other successes.

Our Plymouth Salem football team and Plymouth Canton girls' basketball team went undefeated in regular season play. Many other performing groups at the upper-secondary level also have achieved recognition.

Many awards have been given to the architects and to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education for the design of the three new elementary schools. These buildings will be featured at the February meeting of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlanta, Ga. The "Design Michigan" award was given to the architect and owners for the design of the building. The Wayne County Chapter of the A.I.A. awarded the Tarapata, MacMahon and Paulsen firm on the basis of the design of the three buildings, and the National Concrete Association is giving a similar award in January to the school board.

ON THE ACADEMIC side, the assessment tests this year continue to show improvement in the reading and mathematical skills of fourth and seventh graders. Plymouth-Canton Community Schools score substantially above the state averages in both areas of the test and at both grade levels.

Major accomplishments were achieved through the implementation of an expanded Extended School Year (ESY) program to include five elementary and one middle school.

JOHN M. HOBEN

We have seen the building of an instructional department, which is in the process of implementing a goal-based curriculum Program for Plymouth-Canton schools, which will aid in establishing improved continuity of program in terms of planning, developing, and organizing the finest available in the curriculum content area with the 12 disciplines included in the goal-based model. In this instructional area, considerable work has be done toward the implementation of an alternative education program at the high school level, hopefully to be implemented in the 1978-79 school year. The gifted and talented program is under way, and work is being done to revise the elementary physical education program and a number of other areas in the curriculum structure.

WE ARE BLESSED in the Plymouth-Canton community to have staff excellence.

Qualfied and dedicated teachers and administrators are working very diligently to provide programs and services that will enhance the education of your children.

The board of education has spent long and dedicated hours on district workshop tasks and personally sacrificed many hours to meet on a regular basis every Monday for the past 18 months. We are indeed fortunate to have people who will give of themselves for the betterment of the community.

In central administration, we have implemented a management by results program for appraisal of administrative performance and have recently formed a core committee on strategic planning, looking into the future of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

IN LOOKING TOWARD 1978-79, there are a number of problems which confront Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The most serious is growth, which is anticipated to increase at about a seven to ten per cent level for the next three to five years. Coupled with the implementation of ESY, there has been a rather serious transportation problem which we are working very diligently to overcome. This has been compounded by a bus schedule which changes in the district every 15 days due to implementation of year-round school.

It should be noted that the existing facilities are in dire need of maintenance. It will be necessary to come to the voters with a bond issue to achieve the dollars available to maintain the existing capital stock. The most serious of the problems relative to these buildings are roofs that need to be replenished, repaired, or replaced, as well as problems associated with energy conservation, boiler conversion, etc.

The problem of inflation confronts all businesses. No less affected are the schools. Inflation has been constantly moving up and putting pressure on a rather strained operational budget.

WE ALSO HAVE TO deal with a rather unstable state-funding picture because the state-aid formula for next year is still undecided. Furthermore, we have two unsettled contracts with negotiating units—administrators and secretaries.

Overall, the financial state of Plymouth-Canton schools financially is good at this point in time, however, our needs in the future do not reflect a negative trend, one which will have to be addressed in future millage and bond issues.

IN SUMMARY, I would like to state that the direction the district is taking is a commendable one to save taxpayers' dollars in a period of rather rapid growth and increasing needs.

We are sensitive to this particular problem and will use, to its greatest advantage, the current ESY program in effect. However, it should be noted that the ESY is not the total answer to the Plymouth-Canton community problems of rapid growth and that it will be necessary to either come up with other alternatives or provide some buildings in the near future.

It is estimated that Extended School Year can only sustain us through the next two years, when, once again, most of our buildings will be overcrowed. The greatest press for space appears, at this point in time, to be at the high school and at the elementary school levels.

Chamber expands services

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce added some new services to its long list of existing programs during 1977.

"Your Chamber of Commerce has had a busy and productive year in 1977 working for its membership and for the total community," said Chris Kresta, manager.

In a report to members, Mrs. Kresta listed the office activities offered by the Plymouth Chamber. These services include the following:

REFERRAL SERVICES—For senior citizens a handbook referring them to medical, social, housing and counseling organizations was compiled with the assistance of Madonna College.

Referrals are made by phone to local businesses who are members and through the distribution of a classified membership listing.

Referrals also are given in reference to special events, recreation, schools, churches, media, etc.

A newsletter with the latest chamber announcements and information is mailed monthly to members.

The chamber maintains information lists of apartments, businesses, industry, churches, etc.

The chamber also offers assistance in locating individuals or businesses by the use of such publications as the cross index.

Solicitation control and a bad check alert are two activities handled by chamber staff to reduce the possibility of local business losing dollars needlessly.

BUSINESS REPUTATION Assistance—The Chamber frequently answers questions on the reputation of a local business. At the same time it will take complaints on local businesses if they arise to avoid county or federal agencies having to become involved.

Organization listings: the presidents of local service clubs and organizations is compiled by the staff and is available at the chamber office.

Newcomer and transfer information packets are available and include promotional material for persons considering moving to Plymouth.

A display of travel brochures is within the office as well as reference guides of things to do and see within the area and state.

The community map, state and metro park maps are available in the chamber office for residents or merchants.

INFORMATIVE MEETINGS for members include discussions on such topics as freight rates and boundaries, barrier-free design, energy saving in business, and reports from legislators.

To promote its membership, the chamber publicizes a listing by classification of all member businesses, making it possible to find at a glance a business or service which is needed. The listing is distributed by Plymouth Newcomers and Welcome Wagon, over the counter, and through the mail in answer to inquiries.

The new Plymouth community map, 50 cents each, has been printed and distributed.

In 1977 an insurance program went into effect allowing group rates for chamber members.

The education committee of the chamber in 1977 established a speakers' bureau designed to provide speakers for community groups and students.

Events sponsored by the chamber's retail committee included the Second Annual Chicken Flying Contest, the Sidewalk and Midnight Madness sales, the Christmas parade, the tree lighting ceremony, and Santa's arrival.

In 1977 the Chamber sponsored its golf outing and dinner, and its circus in the spring—both annual events.

"These events, along with the activities of the central business district development committee, industrial development committee and the legislative committee have made a very busy and productive year for our chamber," said Mrs. Kresta.

Masters entertains

Traveling Plymouth puppeteers Ray Masters and Don Watkins entertained a sold-out audience of youngsters and oldsters alike at the Cultural Center Thursday with Master's adaptation of "The Firebird."

Spectators thrilled to the delicately orchestrated movements of a fiery eight-headed dragon and a brightly-costumed Princess and Ivan.

All of the puppets and their costumes were hand made by Masters in his studio on Union Street.

For the last several months, he and Watkins have been on the road, performing the puppet drama for school children in Pensylvania, Ohio and West Virginia for Theatre of West Virginia.

The one-day performance was sponsored by the Plymouth Theatre Guild.

Fire at Meeting House

A fire broke out 10:45 a.m. New Year's Eve day, Dec. 31, at the Mayflower Meeting House. All City of Plymouth fire units responded and found that the wood floor under one of the gas stoves was on fire. Firefighters smashed through a concrete slab under the stove and doused the flames with water from a fire truck on the street, extinguishing the fire in about three minutes. Fire Chief George Schoenneman said a thermostat on the stove failed to shut off and the stove had heated up the concrete slab which ignited the floor underneath. Both the chief and Kirk Lorenz, Meeting House manager, estimate damage at $500-mostly from leaked water. No one was injured and everything was back to normal within 30 minutes, in plenty of time for the New Year's celebrators booked for the Meeting House. (Staff photo).

What's in store for city

Housing, parking, U.S. grants to dominate 1978

By THOMAS TURNER
Mayor
City of Plymouth

The Blue Ribbon Study Committee reports should soon be finished and will be forwarded to the city commission for its consideration.

The commission will probably consider action in several areas being reported upon by the Blue Ribbon Study Committee. One item of particular importance would be the further attempts to solve the problem of senior citizen housing.

CONTINUED DISCUSSIONS will be held with the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) toward the provision of small bus service on a regularly-scheduled basis for elderly and handicapped individuals in the city.

1978 also will see our senior and lower income citizens begin to benefit from the rental subsidies that the city has obtained for 35 units under the Community Development grant.

A master plan will be compiled for the orderly development of additional recreational facilities and programs. This document, when completed, should serve as a guide for the next several years.

A Municipal Parking Commission was established during 1977. Hopefully, it will be able to develop solutions to our central business district parking problems during 1978 thus permitting us to expand our commercial taxbase.

1978 will be the year in which the Old Village Redevelopment Project, financed through Community Development Block Grant funds, will be completed. This plan already under construction calls for complete renovation of Cannon Park, the construction of Garden Square Park and resurfacing of areas between the two parks for pedestrian traffic. This project, when combined with the lighting placed around the Old Village commercial area, also to be completed in 1978, will serve as the focus for the City of Plymouth Community Development efforts in the Old Village area.

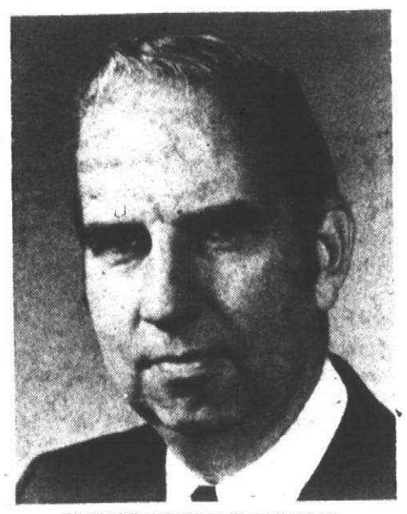

IT IS PROJECTED that next year will see the completion of the renovation of the Central Parking Lot with resurfacing, drainage and new markings.

These monies were appropriated during 1977 as a part of our capital improvement program. During 1978, the city will near the completion of a street paving program begun in 1970. When the program was initiated; 30 per cent of the city's streets were unpaved; whereas by the end of 1978 only 1.25 per cent will remain unimproved.

The tree-planting program will continue with concentration in a second section of town. Under this program, residents are contacted and asked whether they wish to participate in the purchase of a tree to be planted in front of their homes between the sidewalk and the curb. The homeowners pays a cost of $25 per tree, about one-fourth of the actual cost of the tree.

The city anticipates beginning a program for the trimming back of trees from stop signs and other traffic-control devices. In addition, under this program, trees will be trimmed so as to increase pedestrian access by cutting away low-hanging limbs.

ATTENTION SHOULD BE given to reviewing the drastically overcrowded situation in the facilities used by the district court, police and fire departments.

Each department is in need of additional space. The District Court lacks an adequate place for jury selection, conferences between attorneys and clients, proper office and waiting space. The police department houses several employees in its investification and service bureau located in a house behind city hall. The fire department is in desperate need of improved sleeping quarters, has no training facilities, lacks adequate locker space and needs improved kitchen facilities.

In addition, firefighters are currently sharing shower and clean up facilities with prisoners. The city hall building also should have an elevator to improve accessibility for our elderly and handicapped citizens.

Attempts will be made to improve refuse collection by replacing many small dumpsters with large dumpsters in the commercial a8d multi-residential areas, thereby improving the appearance of these areas.

DURING 1977 we were able to reduce the city tax rate by nine-tenths of a mill through the utilization of surpluses built up during the last several years.

With the limited expansion potential in our taxbase, however, and with inflation continuing to run at record levels, the city will face a very difficult task in formulating the 1978-79 fiscal budget. Because most of the surplus will have been depleted, it will be very difficult to maintain the present tax rate without reducing city services. This represents, in my opinion, our greatest challenge during 1978.

In 1977 Plymouth has experienced a revitalization of its downtown and Old Village areas with many new stores and the rejuvenation of others. Hopefully in 1978 that enthusiasm, confidence and cooperation will continue.

Couple bowled over- it's wedding bells

But even though the couple was in favor of the location, it almost didn't come off. Pellegrino said he had more than a little difficulty finding a like-minded official.

"I called Contact 10, and they couldn't do anything for me. Then I called a whole bunch of ministers, but none of them would go along with the plan.

"Finally, I called Judge Davis, and he said he'd do it. After that, it was just a matter of going ahead and doing it."

Pellegrino, who works at Plymouth Glass, said he and Jo Ann met "about a year ago," when he was bowling in a Tuesday night men's league.

Frank Moceri, owner of the lanes, was Ron's best man, and his accountant served as the maid of honor.

But lest you think the whole affair was conducted without due respect for the venerable institution of matrimony, Ron did "dress" for the ceremony.

Right before the historic moment, he changed into a three-piece white leisure suit because, "Jo Ann wouldn't let me get married in my bowling shirt."

GI Bill extended for sick

If certain health problems prevented a veteran from beginning or completing education under the GI Bill, a new law may make it possible to turn back the clock and enroll again.

Frank J. Kilcullen, director of the regional office of the Veterans Administration in Detroit, said the new program is available to veterans, spouses or surviving spouses whose eligibility for GI Bill education benefits expired on June 1, 1976 or later, but who had not used all their schooling entitlement when mental or physical disability interfered with their training.

The Michigan VA director said the disability must not have resulted from an individual's willful misconduct. He cautioned potential applicants they must provide medical evidence that mental illness or physical disability was responsible for their being unable to begin or complete schooling before the exporation of their eligibility.

Until passage of the new law, those veterans who had not used all their GI Bill education benefits by the end of their ten-year period lost it forever.

Veterans who think they may be eligible for the extended benefits should contact the regional office in Detroit and have the necessary medical evidence for presentation.

Consumer rights topic

Lane Breidenstein, president of the Detroit Better Business Bureau, will discuss consumer beefs and consumer rights in talks at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10, and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 12, at the Garden City Library.

The two sessions, to be held in the library's basement room, will be sponsored by the Michigan State University cooperative Extension Service. The library is located at 2012 Middle Belt south of Ford Road.

THOMAS NOTEBAERT

1977 a milestone for Plymouth Township

By THOMAS NOTEBAERT
Supervisor
Plymouth Township

The year 1977 was a milestone for Plymouth Township in that it celebrated its 150th anniversary.

We celebrated the event at our recreation park with an ice cream social. The officials of the near past and present were there along with many of the residents.

IF WE LOOK BACK at the first meeting of the township which was held May 25, 1827, at John Tibbitt's bar located on the land now known as the Walnut Creek Subdivision, a tax of $154.40 was levied to be paid by 140 taxpayers.

We have come a long way. Today our tax levy for 1977 was almost $9.6 million to be paid by 20,450 taxpayers. Distribution of tax payments were as follows: 72.92 per cent to local schools; 14.52 per cent to the county; 6.43 per cent to the township for our operations; 6.13 per cent to the operation of community colleges and special education.

THE TOWNSHIP is operating within its budget and in the black.

Our constant attention to the planning and the development of our township has helped us attain a well balanced growth of residential, commercial and industrial development. Residential subdivisions now under way are Mayflower, Quail Hollow, Walnut Creek and Beacon Estates No. 4 and 5.

Commercial properties new t Plymouth Township are Don Massey Cadillac, Manufacturers National Bank, Friendly Ice Cream, Denny's Restaurant, Elias Brothers Big Boy, and Standard Federal Savings now in construction. Three new industrial plants have been built in the Gould Industrial Subdivision. The outlook for the new year is encouraging with plans to complete two condominium projects and the beginning of another industrial building.

THROUGH THE Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) we were able to hire people for training in our water and sewer department, building and engineering areas, bookkeeping and accounting departments.

We had a summer job program provided by the State of Michigan. We were able to complete many projects at our golf course and parks and provide summer maintenance to our recreation facilities under this program. We hope the same opportunity will be available to us in the next year.

Through a grant to Growth Works, a park will be developed at the western intersection of Ann Arbor Road and Ann Arbor Trail. Many of the local service clubs including Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and garden clubs have shown an interest in the beautification of the park to be known as West Pointe Park.

PRESENTLY my assistant, Mrs. Barbara Prey, and myself are pareparing the next year's budget.

The department heads, Clerk Helen Richardson, Treasurer Joseph West, Chief Building Inspector James Briggs, Fire Chief James Gignac and our Water and Sewer Superintendent Web Kincade will be providing us with the information necessary to prepare the budget presentation to our board of trustees—Lee Fidge, Frank Millington, Richard Gornick and Maurice Breen for their final approval.

The 1977 taxes were comparable to 1976. Any increases were due to a five per cent equalization factor levied by the State of Michigan. We are in hopes that the 1978 taxes will reflect the same frugality of the past.

Our planning commission, under the direction of John Goulet, will soon have completed the update of our future land use maps. The commission has spent many months in preparation and study of this project as this is vital to the continued and well planned growth of Plymouth Township.

For those of you who live in Plymouth Hills and LakePointe Village, I hope that the long awaited Byron-Tonquish-Sly sanitary sewer will become a reality early in 1978.

I am looking forward to the next year with optimism and enthusiasm. I hope it will be a happy and prosperous time for the Plymouth community.

Progress in '77 seen by Canton

By HAROLD STEIN
Supervisor
Canton Township

This past year has been one of progress in Canton Township. It included groundbreaking of the new township administration building with construction of this building now well under way. During the new year we will be moving all township operations to this location.

Also in 1977, I felt it time to do something about Canton's own library. The Canton Library Fund was established and the response from you, the resident, has been very encouraging. I will be working very closely with the library fund committee during the coming year in the hopes of making our own library a reality.

Tax base is an important factor for all of us in Canton. To this end we have established an Economic Development Corporation to which I have been appointed chairman. My hopes during 1978 are to be able to bring more industry into Canton.

HAROLD STEIN

During 1977 I became a member of the Southeastrern Michigan Beautification Council and I also established a Canton Beautiful Committee. Our Canton Beautiful Committee has just recentlyu had its first meeting to set its goals and objectives. During the next year we hope to make Conton residents more aware of their community and to instill civic pride.

We have upgraded our fire department with the purchase of two rescue vehicles, a fire truck, Jaws of Life rescue tool for accident victims pinned in cars, and most important, Fire Station No. 2 to better service the residents.

For our senior citizens I worked very closely with Nankin Transit and we now have Dial-a-Ride service for our senior citizens and handicapped residents. Also our senior citizens have a hot lunch program available to them at the Recreation Hall every day of the week.

We recently hired two senior citizen coordinators to help our seniors plan programs and various activities.

Canton has led the state with being the first community to establish a homeowners warranty to protect new homeowners in the we receive.

My one objective is for proper community identity. "A Canton Plan for Canton People." To reach this goal will take some planning and several years to implement, but can be accomplished through community input. We have started. This next year can see us making further advancement to this goal.

May your holidays and the new year be filled with happiness.

YMCA announces winter program

A wide variety of recreational activities, seminars and leisure-time classes are being offered in the winter program schedule of the Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA.

The winter program begins the week of Jan. 16. Residents may register by dropping by the YMCA office at 292 S. Main (above Fisher Shoe Store), Plymouth, or obtain more information by calling the 'Y' at 453-2904.

Advance registration is required for classes and activities. Lower fees are charged YMCA members so residents may want to consider purchasing a membership before registering. The membership fee shedule is: $2 for senior citizens; $10 for individual membership; $15 family membership; $25 sustaining membership; $50 meritorious membership; $100 century club; $200 second century club; $23 Indian Guides, Maidens, Princess and Trailblazers.

THE ADULT PROGRAMS includes a session entitled "Being a Winner" on decisions people make earlr in their lives and the impact of those decisions.

Fred Prezioso, pastor of Epiphany Lutheran Church, will lead the three-week session which begins Jan. 26 on Thursday evenings. Other sessions will begin Feb. 13 and April 3.

Gaining Control of Your Life is a four-week session on self knowledge and how it can be used for goal setting, problem solving and self discovery. Jean Campau, MA in guidance and counseling, is the discussion leader for this session which begins Jan. 25, Feb. 22 and March 22. The discussions will be from 1-3 p.m. in the Plymouth Community Credit Union.

A Pre-Retirement Seminar, led by Ms. Campau, will meet from 7:30 to 9 p.m. for four weeks beginning Jan. 26 in West Middle School. Emphasis is placed on income planning, housing, hobbies, social options, societal views on aging and disucssion. Other sessions will begin Feb. 23 and March 23.

GRA-Y is an afterschool activities time for boys and girls featuring active play, arts and crafts, stories, and beginning track skills.

GRA-Y, for grades three through five, starts the week of Feb. 6 at Allen, Bird, Eriksson, Fiegel, Field, Hulsing, Miller, Smith and Tanger elementary schools. Times are from 3:30 to 5 p.m. or from 4 to 5:30 p.m.

After School 'Y' is a program specifically geared to give youth a constructive outlet through fitness-building, sports, arts and crafts, socialization and development of leadership potential. This program, offered from 3:30-5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, is geared to help the working and busy parent.

Youth enrolled in After School 'Y' are picked up by the YMCA van at their respective schools and transported to Starkweather Elementary or the credit union. Youth are asked to bring their own refreshments or 35 cents per day. Sessions are for four weeks with the first beginning Jan. 23. Teachers are Mike Tiano and Kathleen O'Niel.

CLASSES OFFERED in the YMCA's winter program includes:

Beginning modern dance, 16-years and older, beginning Jan. 17 in Dance Unlimited with Roberta Otten as instructor; jazz dancing for all ages starting Jan. 16 in Dance Unlimited with Renee Dubry as instructor;

A wine and cheese tasting dinner party is a new offering which includes a complete dinner as well as wine and cheese. Sign up for all four dinners and pay for each two weeks in advance. The dinners will be in the Hillside Inn at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays on Feb. 7 (imported wines featured), March 7 (California wines), April 4 (New York wines), and May 2 (Michigan wines featured).

'Variety is...' slated Jan. 13

Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (PCEP) bands will present the 13th annual "Variety Is. . . " stage show Friday, Jan. 13, and Saturday, Jan. 14.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. both nights in the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

The Salem and Canton varsity and concert bands, along with the PCEP symphony, stage and marching bands, will be featured. Student variety acts will be performed between band performances.

Anyone interested in taking part in the show should contact James Griffith, director of bands at the park, and should be prepared to audition next week.

In the past, "Variety Is. . . " has attempted to provide something for everyone. A family type show, it has included specialty acts ranging from magic to harp solos.

Tickets may be purchased from PCEP band member. They are $1 for senior citizens $1.50 for students, $2 for adults. A family ticket that will admit as many as six people from one family is $6.

Suburbs will survive, thrive despite attacks

We note, with tired amusement, the new attacks on suburban living conveyed to us by the field of sociology through the medium of the daily newspapers.

It reminds us of the engineer who studied the bumblebee's weight, wing size, wing speed, shape and other aerodynamic factors and concluded it was really impossible for the bee to fly. No one ever told that to the bee, however, and as of the last warm weather, bees were still flying.

And people are still moving to the suburbs.

THE SUBURBS, according to some sociologists, are supposed to be terrible places to raise kids.

Kids don't get to see the place where the family breadwinner works and so are supposed to be insulated from the economy. Kids don't get to the cultural facilities that the big cities have. There is no balance of ethnic and age groups such as the real world contains. Kids are supposedly dulled by over-exposure to the middle class.

There is no need to trot out sophisticated arguments to deal with such anti-suburban sophistry. It's quite enough to say that if so many folks want to live here, there must be something right with the suburbs. Despite the great numbers who profess to detect a "rat race" here, the bottom line shows growth, popularity and satisfaction with the suburban lifestyle.

WHAT CRITICS can and do overlook is the pioneering spirit of suburban communities—the only places, it seems, where there is such a spirit observable.

When a new lawn goes in, there is a spirit of helpfulness much like the barn-raising spirit of the 19th century settlers. Many suburban institutions are of such a tender age that participants still have a chance to form them, without the chains of tradition.

Suburban kids in metropolitan Detroit are actually closer to more jobs than big city kids simply because there are more jobs here in the suburbs. And suburban schools are making heroic efforts at career training, as this newspaper's tour guides can attest.

The ethnic imbalance charge comes the closest of any to the truth. While there is certainly racial imbalance, the lines between other ethnic groups are blurring. A member of an ethnic group commonly need not feel as defensive as he would in a large city.

Looking at voting patterns, we would even venture to say that white suburbanite are less worried about the race than are Detroiters—just look at the votes piled up in 1974 by Secretary of State Austin and Wayne County Sheriff Lucas in suburban precincts.

THE AIR in the northern and western suburbs is the cleanest of any place in the metropolitan area.

If we are starting to witness such "big city" problems as drugs and porn and prostitution in the suburbs lately—well, we still have a sense of indignation about them.

But as we said at the beginning, there is no need to defend the suburban lifestyle from the attacks of authors. Any community attitudes survey we've ever seen indicates people are realistic enough to know their community isn't perfect, but they like it just the same.

Conventional wisdom says the suburbs are all right—just like the bees.

Know your candidate

Michigan's attorney general, that guy Frank, with the curly hair, is going to be a candidate for reelection.

The reason we know this and announce it so confidently is that he has resumed his weekly column called "Know Your Michigan Law." The last time we saw such a column was four years ago, just before he sought reelection.

If the pattern holds, we may expect a flurry of announcements from the attorney general's office between now and Nov. 7 instead of the once-in-six-months pronouncement.

Let's see, here's the mail: The attorney general will oppose the rate hike request of Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. . . .the attorney general charges Pauley Oil Co. of Coldwater, its president, officers and agents with numerous violations of the Michigan Uniform Securities Act. . .he announces (a week after everyone else) that General Motors will offer $200 and a three-year, 36,000 mile extended warranty to any Michigan citizen who purchased a 1977 Olds, Pontiac or Buick before April 10, 1977 but received a car with a Chevy engine. . . the attorney general and the director of DNR announce that Dow Corning Corp. of Midland has agreed to pay 10 per cent of the total cost of the cleanup of the Ankersen Incinerator site in Pontiac.

My, my, what an active attorney general we have all of a sudden.

Consensus: Voc-tech, yes; Fine arts, no

"Man does not live by voc-tech alone," Leroy Bennett was wont to say when he served on the Schoolcraft College board of Trustees. He would use that line when advocating a fine arts auditorium that has been on the community college's drawing boards for many years.

"Man had better learn to live by voc-tech," say residents of the college district. They told pollsters they wanted no part of such a performing arts center in a survey during the week of Nov. 28.

There's now solid reason to believe plans for a fine arts auditorium helped sink the 1976 and '77 millage proposals. "The fine arts auditorium is a dead duck," reluctantly concluded Harry Greenleaf, who had replaced Bennett both as a trustee and as the board's leading advocate of the arts.

I HAVE to concur with Greenleaf. There is no sense in jeopardizing everything else on campus for the sake of one program the public won't support.

It was a nice dream while it lasted.

Even with freeways, it's a half-hour haul to Ford Auditorium, plus the gasoline mileage and outrageous parking fees.

It's another half-hour to Hill Auditorium, the Power Center and the Lydia Mendelssohn Theater in Ann Arbor, plus another 15 or 20 minutes looking for parking, along with another quarter-hour getting out when the performance is over.

Tim Richard

The Schoolcraft College District has about 250,000 persons, which is a greater population than Grand Rapids, Flint, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and a bunch of other outstate cities.

On top of that, the Schoolcraft district has some of the highest family incomes in the nation and some incredibly high levels of education. Looking at the numbers, one would think Schoolcraft would be a leader, or at least a follower, in the arts rather than a never-got-started.

A COLLEGE has to be the kingpin in good music, theater and the dance for a couple of reasons.

There is just no way private donations can support the arts any more, if they ever did. Government must get into the act if we are to avoid sinking to the level of WRIF.

Government can get into the act two ways—through the Michigan Council for the Arts' contributions to civic groups and through college involvement.

By far the best way would appear to be college involvement, although the arts council shouldn't be eliminated. A college can offer the kinds of buildings, faculty members, money and collecting point for people that are needed.

THE LATE H.L. Mencken used to say, "Democracy is the theory that the people know what they want and deserve to get it—good and hard."

On that theory, the Schoolcraft board will be quite in order if it drops the fine arts auditorium from its building plans before it asks the voters for millage support Feb. 27.

Yet the public should not be confused by one point: There is a distinction between an auditorium and classroom facilities. Let the auditorium be dropped, but don't throw out adequate space for the instructional side of the program.

There are some grand things going on in Schoolcraft's fine arts classrooms—surprising for a two-year college.

As for performances—well, Leontyne Price will be in Hill Auditorium Jan. 25. . . "Romeo and Juliet" starts Jan. 7 at the Hilberry. . . "Barber of Seville" is Jan. 15 at the Power Center. . .

The name of 'The Plymouth Mail' has returned to its rightful owner

Speaking for the record

By BILL SLIGER

A funny thing happened in attorney Robert Delaney's office in Plymouth last week.

I bought The Plymouth Mail, Inc., from the president of the Community Crier and attorney Delaney for $2,810.

It's funny, in a way, because about 10 years ago I nearly acquired The Mail (and Farmington Enterprise) for $300,000.

It would seem that last Thursday I got a real bargain. Or would it?

BEFORE RELATING the details of this curious transaction let me set the stage by introducing the cast of characters and circumstances leading up to the event.

In the early 1950s I was general manager of the old Plymouth Mail. It was, in my opinion, a community weekly newspaper in the finest tradition.

Sterling Eaton was publisher. In those days he had just taken over the reins from his father, Elton R. Eaton. The elder Mr. and Mrs. Eaton lived in an apartment above The Mail offices and plant on Main Street, now the Youth Center.

When I look at the condition of the building today, I am saddened. I remember it as a hub of business activity, well-maintained and proudly displaying the Plymouth Mail Pilgrim masthead in the Plymouth colonial theme. An eight-page flatbed press ground out thousands of editions of The Mail. And job shop presses printed millions of Daisy Air Rifle targets.

We completed the paper Wednesday for mail delivery on Thursday. Wednesday nights were usually reserved for celebration—another publication had rolled off the press.

STERLING WROTE A weekly column called "Chips Off the Rock."

Normally it was a folksy, newsy type column about someone or something in the community. He stewed over this assignment. Occasionally he'd tackle a controversial subject. And on those Wednesdays you could be sure that a late-night bracer or two would be necessary to prepare for Thursday responses.

In about May 1956 Sterling sold The Mail and its sister publication, The Livonian, to Paul Chandler. In August of the same year I left Plymouth to buy the Northville Record and Novi News.

I never really left Plymouth entirely. Many of the local merchants were among my best advertising customers at the Record. I retained a host of friends in the community. I had always wanted to own The Mail.

The price tag on The Mail and Livonian proved to be more than the business could afford. So Chandler elected to keep the Livonia newspaper—renamed the Livonia Observer—and give The Mail back to Eaton.

The same week Chandler started the Plymouth Observer. And suddenly Observer Newspapers were delivered to every home in Livonia and Plymouth. Eaton faced stiff competition. He really didn't want to get back into the newspaper business, but he picked up the pieces and tried to return The Mail to its old status.

IN A COUPLE years Eaton sold The Mail to the owner of the Farmington Enterprise, an industrial executive named Russell Strickland.

I became well acquainted with Strickland. In fact, we entered into a central offset press business together in Novi. Our press plant there printed a community newspapers, including our own, plus a variety of other publications.

Meanwhile my good friend Paul Chandler died (in his mid-40s) on the eve of becoming a state senator. He had been a state representative before being elected to the senate. Later his widow would sell the then-successful Observer group to a newcomer in the local publishing business, Philip H. Power.

Strickland was somewhat uneasy in the newspaper business. It was not his bag. There are a few people around who know that I came within a whisker of buying both The Mail and the Enterprise, including the old Mail building. But just when it seemed that all negotiations had been settled, Strickland announced he had sold to his competitor in Farmington and Plymouth, Phil Power.

So Power bought the rights to the name, history and tradition of The Plymouth Mail (and Farmington Enterprise).

ALTHOUGH WE WERE competing for many of the same advertising dollars, Power and I always maintained an open line of communication. I remember offering him some unsolicited advice: Don't drop The Mail name; don't move out of the old Mail building.

Economics dictated otherwise. The Mail building was donated to the City of Plymouth for a youth center and later sold at a reduced price to Growth Works for its youth activities. Mail offices were moved to a new plant in Livonia and The Mail and Enterprise newspapers became part of the Observer group.

We have now arrived at the early 1970s. About this time there was a young reporter employed by the Observer in Plymouth. He recognized a void had been created in Plymouth when the local newspaper office was vacated and The Mail name dropped.

So Ed Wendover left the Observer and helped establish the Community Crier.

From my position as a neighboring publisher, I believe I enjoyed a good relationship with both Power and Wendover. From early struggles to meet the payroll at the Record, we had grown into a small-chain operation with community newspapers in Northville, Novi, South Lyon and Brighton. In each instance we had acquired existing publications, maintained their names, and attempted to improve them.

PHILOSPHICALLY, I guess you could say my sympathies are "establishment" oriented. Still it is easy to understand Wendover's frustrations. If he felt the established product in Plymouth could not be influenced by his suggestions, then he would set out on his own.

From my viewpoint Wendover has done well. I fully understand the frustrations of attempting to establish a quality product with severely limited economic resources.

But I do reserve certain ground rules under which I compete, and they do not include taking possession of something to which I do not believe I am entitled, even though it is legally accomplished.

That brings us back to today and why I paid $2,810 for The Plymouth Mail, Inc.

I AM TOLD BY Wendover that his wife, an attorney, learned early in 1977 that the Observer organization had failed to file a renewal with the county to protect its ownership of the assumed name, The Plymouth Mail. So she did so.

Attorney Delaney was then retained to form a corporation—Plymouth Mail, Inc.

I did not learn of these circumstances until last week. It seems that for many months attorneys for the Observer have corresponded with Delaney and Wendover on the matter. The Observer's legal advisers still maintain that the rights to the name could be regained through the courts.

But with Observer approval, I discussed the issue directly with Wendover. And I learned more interesting facts.

After having secured what they considered a solid lock on the Plymouth Mail name, Wendover and Delaney pondered how it might be used to the Crier's competitive advantage. Both favored displaying The Mail masthead, particularly Delaney.

But the Community Crier has an advisory board of local businessmen. Many, I believe, are investors in the newspaper. Some of them I have known for many years and I respect their integrity and business ability.

The majority of these advisers opposed use of The Plymouth Mail name by the Crier. Neither Wendover nor Delaney explained why. But that wasn't necessary, I know why.

So Wendover and Delaney owned a name they were hesitant to use. If they didn't use it, what good was it? For that matter, if they didn't use it, how could it hurt the Observer organization?

BUT MINDS CAN change—and publications sold—and here's a guy (Sliger) telling them they have no right to the name, that it properly belongs to the Observer organization which legally purchased the rights.

So maybe there were still some advantages to be realized from the seizure.

Wendover said he would part with the name under certain conditions. First, he wanted Delaney's legal fees paid; second, he didn't want anyone to ever use The Mail name again; and third, he wanted some "token" payment for the stock.

I agreed to pay off Delaney, although I didn't know what that might be. The "token" stock purchase seemed reasonable, although no figure was mentioned.

But I balked at the idea of buying a name that could never be used. It's true, the Observer may never again use The Mail masthead, and acquiring the rights may have been only to prevent anyone else from using the name. But it's bad enough to agree to buy something you morally believe you already own without the insult of sacrificing rights to its use.

I proposed a five-year ban; Wendover said 10; we settled on 7½ years.

Then Wendover said there were 101 shares of Plymouth Mail, Inc stock. He said he'd take $10 a share. Wendover owned 100 shares and Delaney one.

I said I didn't think it was worth $1 a share, but maybe $5 would be fair. Then Delaney insisted the stock was worth at least $25 a share. Wendover talked to his other legal adviser, his wife. He said she also thought it was worth $25 a share.

Meanwhile, I discovered that Delaney's legal fees amounted to $1,720 and that there was another $300 outstanding to Morrison and Stanwood, P.C., certified public accountants, for a conference with Wendover and Delaney "regarding incorporation and tax consequences of incorporating including preparation of Michigan Annual Report."

Attorney Delaney's $1,720 tab, which he reduced to $1,500, included $450 to prepare and file the articles of incorporation and $650 to prepare the agreement of sale we finally reached last Thursday afternoon.

Add to that the $2,525 Wendover wanted for the stock and the bill amounts to $4,325.

I told Wendover I thought his original asking price of $10 per share ($1,010) was high, but it had been his proposal and I would accept it.

He agreed and asked to be excused because he was late for another commitment. Delaney and I wrapped up the details.

IT SHOULD BE NOTED HERE that about a year ago, after 20 years as owner and publisher of Sliger Home Newspapers, I sold all my publications to Phil Power.

I remain publisher of the Northville Record, Novi and Walled Lake News, South Lyon Herald and Brighton Argus. We operate our own plant and our own advertising and editorial offices in the communities we serve as an independent subsidiary of Suburban Communications Corp.

So while I finally "bought" the Plymouth Mail, I did so on behalf of the Observer organization.

The Observer owns the name. But it is an old friend of mine and there is no one else—either at the Crier or the Observer—who has had its ink on their hands or heard the rumbling of its presses on Wednesday nights.

It is important to me that the people of the community of Plymouth should be familiar with this history, just in case there are any rumors flying around about the latest "sale" of The Mail.

Furthermore—with offices and staff once again located in Plymouth—the Observer has taken giant strides towards recapturing the community image of the old Mail days.

Need exists to shelter household assault victims

Readers' forum

Editor:

I would like to comment on the article entitled "Domestic assault victims need shelter" which appeared in the December 1, 1977 issue of the Observer.

First, I would like to commend Ms. Pinkerton and the Rev. Hodges on the task force project they are initiating to demonstrate the need for temporary shelter for victims of household assault. Fortunately, this task force also encompasses the Plymouth area—yes, it happens here too.

Although not a direct victim of household assault, I have witnessed and become involved in the subject within my own neighborhood.

A RECENT EPISODE and, unfortunately, only one of many numerous episodes which have occurred over the past few years within the same household, brought this problem sharply to my attention. The following is a chronology of subsequent events:

•It is Saturday night and two neighborhood children come screaming out of their house and run down the street in the darkness. I could hear their mother still inside the house yelling for the children to run and for someone to please help her because "he" was killing her.

•The police were called and the children were found and brought to my house together with the mother.

•The police were called again (time lapse between the first call and the arrival time of the police was about 30 to 45 minutes).

•The police interview the wife. They are told that this episode started sometime the previous day. They informed the wife she could sign a complaint on Monday but it probably wouldn't do any good as all the husband would get would be a possible fine.

•Police interview the husband and leave the scene. The police were informed that the wife and children would not be returning to the home that night, but made no effort to escort her back into the house to obtain clothing or other essentials she might need.

•The following two or more weeks were spent in attempts to find some type of temporary shelter-assistance for the mother and children. Our House was called and suggested calling the Salvation Army and one or two other places. Some of these places did not answer the telephone, others would shelter the children, but not the mother and one would give temporary shelter in Detroit some 25 to 30 miles from Plymouth.

•The wife has filed for divorce—asking for some protection—support legally. She was informed this would be accomplished when the divorce petition was filed and the husband had been served Notice. However, the husband is entitled to remain in the house, at least until the divorce is final.

•As a consequence, the wife, because she is not self-supporting and because she will not leave her children, has returned to the home.

•Even though the divorce petition has a restraining order, this woman must still live under the threat of abuse—she still has no protection.

IT WAS VERY informative of Westland City Attorney C. Charles Bokos to inform us of the definition of the degrees of assault, as outlined by law. However, I must point out that, while these definitions apparently apply to the general population, wives seem to be excluded when it comes to receiving any type of protection from these types of assault.

I also must take issue with Robert Sage of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, when he states "Getting the woman to prosecute is the biggest problem. If she will stand fast, it will help her more in the long run."

I agree that getting a woman to prosecute is a big problem, but to advise her to "stand fast" can be likened to throwing a non-swimmer into a lake and saying "swim!"

A woman that has never been self-supporting, that has no current job skills, no money, no place to house and feed herself and her children; has suffered years of physical and psychological abuse to the point that she doesn't have any confidence in her own abilities and has been so constantly bombarded with her "supposed worthlessness," has not "one chance in hell" of "standing fast!"

It is past time for our communities to wake up to the fact that "household assault" or plain old "wife beating" does in fact exist and is a serious social problem; not to be made light of as in comedy sketches and bad jokes.

Certainly, a woman, just because she also happens to be a wife, is entitled to the same protection from bodily harm to which any other citizen is entitled. Or is she still considered a "second class citizen" and expected to tkae physical and psychological abuse as a part of her "wifely duties?"

IT ALSO IS IMPERATIVE that easily accessible shelters be made available in our communities for these women and their children—a woman must be able to leave with her children at the first signs of impending abuse; first, to protect herself and second, to keep the situation from escalating. Counseling and support can and should be offered, not only to the woman, but also the man if he will accept it.

Certainly, these shelters, together with some type of temporary financial aid if needed; counseling and other forms of assistance would, in the long run, be more beneficial to our society as a whole than our current refusal to acknowledge the existence of 'household assault" as a fact. Perhaps by so doing, women will not be driven to violent means themselves, such as shooting or burning their partners, as witnessed in Michigan recently.

Because of the nature of this letter, and because the identity of the people involved should be protected, I request that my name be withheld.

A happy new year is in the cards for you

It has long been traditional, at New Years, for people to try to foretell the events of the next 365 days that lie ahead.

All possible means of divination have been used for this purpose, from cards and tea leaves, to dominoes and rune stones, and even the bubbles on a champagne glass.

As my regular readers well know, I believe we each control our own future, and one of the dangers of fortunetelling is that predictions are often suggestions. The power of suggestion is strong, and the prediction becomes self-fulfilling.

Therefore, I would like to choose four good cards from my tarot deck, and interpret them for you. My wish for each and every one of you in the coming year is that you will be influenced by the thoughts put forth, and make them all come true in your own life, giving you a truly happy new year.

Here are the cards I have chosen:

The Eight of Pentacles

This card illustrates a worker carving out a pentacle. Other pentacles are hung on a post nearby, attesting to his industry.

This card symbolizes worthwhile work with which to fill your time, a job to do, and a skill to do it.

Whether is be a means of earning a living, or something you do strictly for pleasure, such as hooking a rug, baking cookies, or building a bird house, work of one kind or another is necessary to happiness.

A truly happy person has more things they want to do than they have time for. An unhappy person is one who has nothing they really enjoy doing to fill the long hours.

So, my first wish for you in the new year is that you will have work to do.

The Four of Wands

Pictured here are two rejoicing people, flowers held high in their hands. In the foreground stand four wands hung with garlands, while in the background stands a strong and beautiful castle.

This card is indicative of perfected work, a job well done. Rest and recreation after labor is my second wish to you, my friends, for 1978.

The Three of Cups

This card depicts three young people dancing in a beautiful garden, their cups held high as if they were toasting each other.

The symbolism here is that of happiness shared, hospitality, and pleasure.

In the coming year, I wish you friends and loved ones with whom to share your emotions, and a warm hand to hold in your own.

The Star

Pictured here, we see a beautiful maiden, kneeling, with one foot on the land and one foot in the water. In each hand she holds a pitcher from which she is pouring water, both onto the earth, and into the pool.

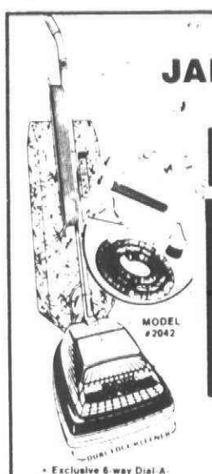

The sky above is filled with radiant stars, symbolizing cosmic energy.

This card depicts the flow of energy that brings together the spiritual and material, and unites the soul and body.

It represents insight, inspiration, gifts of the spirit, and divine love.

This is my final and most important wish for you in 1978. For along with work, play, and human love, recognition and worhsip of the divine power (God), is necessary for true peace and joy in all our souls.

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

"SHE'S PROBABLY the only person in captivity who picked all four of the college bowl winners over the weekend," said one of the better football handicappers, shaking his head.

Jimmy the Greek move over. Make way for Lee Fidge, Plymouth Township trustee, who predicted wins for Alabama, Notre Dame, Washington and Arkansas.

Big loser was Lee's husband Tom, who has to keep the Fidge birdfeeders full of seed all winter. "He has to feed all the wildlife for the rest of the year," said Lee.

She also had a couple of bets with fellow trustee, Maurie Breen.

"Maurie was actually feeling sorry for me. He offered to flip a coin to give me a second chance. We settled on a double or nothing wager—two big Jim Dandies at the Friendly."

The Fidges' bowl game wagers have become an annual tradition. First stake was a pair of shoes. The prize varies.

by ELLIE GRAHAM

In case of a 2-2 tie, total points count.

Even before the Rose Bowl and the Orange Bowl, Lee had a very comfortable cushion of 57 points.

THE THURSDAY afternoon party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center were uninterrupted by the the holidays.

Last week's winners were Anna Swithers and Don Hickman. The week before, Floyd Swartz and Ann Prevost had high scores.

A LARGE CONTINGENT of Plymouth and Canton residents headed southwest for the Rose Bowl Game.

Jean Schultheiss was in New York for the holidays. She spent Christmas with her son, Mark, and packed in as many shows as possible during her visit.

The Harvey Troutmans vacationed on the island of Cozumel off the Yucatan peninsula.

WAYNE DUNLAP, conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, is on sabbatical . He will be back for "The Mikado" in April.

Clark Suttle will direct the orchestra for the January and March concerts. Dunlap heads the fine arts department at Grand Valley State Colleges.

CONNIE FLYNN sends out an invitation: "We need Canton Township kids who are interested in seeing lions, tigers, clowns and other stars under the Big Top."

Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring two trips to the Shrine Circus Feb. 8 and 15.

On Feb. 8 they will leave Eriksson Elementary School at 12:30 p.m. and return by 5:30. On Feb. 18, they will leave Field Elementary School at the same time. Cost of bus trip and admission to circus will be $2.35 for each child.

"So come one, come all," says Connie. "We need you to make this a great day at the circus."

For more information, call 397-2777.

BARBARA CARPENTER will head this year's March of Dimes Mothers March in Plymouth. She will organize the annual neighbor-to-neighbor campaign which will run Jan. 21-31.

"January is a good time to to sit back and assess how lucky we are," said Mrs. Carpenter. "I urge all residents of Plymouth to add one more resolution to their New Year's list: Help protect the unborn and the newborn. That's the aim of the March of Dimes. It supports programs of medical services, research, community service, and public health education to help accomplish this goal."

Anyone who can volunteer time for the Mothers March is asked to call 863-3000.

BRUCE TOWLE, a representative of Gideons International, will be guest speaker 11 a.m. Jan. 8 in Plymouth Wesleyan Church.

THOSE WHOSE Christmas gifts included a wok, crepe maker, microwave oven or food processor can find out how to get maximum use of their latest kitchen toys in one of the classes scheduled at the Gourmet Gallerie on Ann Arbor Trail.

KAY HOKETT, coordinator of the WISER program at Schoolcraft College, says turnouts for meetings average 45 to 80 persons.

WISER is for widowed persons only. The next meeting will be from 8-10 p.m. Jan. 10 in Room 200-210 of the Liberal Arts Building at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road.

"Does insurance guarantee assurance?" will be the topic.

Those attending the meeting are requested to use the south parking lot.

Annual Fasching party is Jan. 21

The Plymouth German-American Club's fourth annual fasching party will begin at 8 p.m. Jan. 21 in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Residents of all ethnic backgrounds join the pre-Lenten festivities with their good German food, drink, music—and costumes.

The Melodias will return this year to supply the music for dancing. The band is well-known in the metropolitan Detroit area. It performs regularly on radio and was chosen for the Vienna Ball in Cobo Hall.

Food will include German beer and wines, knackwurst, bratwurst, potato salad, rolls, sauerkraut and pickles. Price of admission is $7 per couple and tickets are available from Bob Fitzner, 453-7078, and Edith Scherer, 453-6000.

For many members of the club, the fasching party and fassnacht bring back memories of childhood. The fasching celebration actually begins the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month. The prince and princess for each community are chosen at that time. They and their attendants must not be married.

The fasching furor quiets down over the Christmas season and picks up steam after the new year. The royal couple and their court visit local clubs and are greeted with great ceremony.

FASCHING PARTIES date back to the early 16th century in Germany. In the north, they are festivals. In the south—Bavaria and the Black Forest—it is fasching.

It is a time for spoofing politicians. Government officials are the butts of jokes and comedy acts on television and at local community parties. None is spared. The Monday before Ash Wednesday is a holiday and the big city parades are televised.

There are large floats and tons of candy and pretzels are tossed to children lining the parade routes. It all ends Tuesday night, fassnacht, with large parties.

Everyone wears a costume to the fassnacht ball. At midnight, they unmask. Those you don't wish to remove their masks know they must just leave voluntarily.

In some communities, a person in clown costume is placed in a coffin and carried out to mark the end of the celebration.

The children have their own balls and parties the Sunday before fassnacht. Maria Mulzer of Canton Township has fond memories of the first parade following World War II. "They threw oranges. And they carried the pretzels on long sticks."

SOME COSTUMES for the fasching parties are very valuable. They are handed down from generation to generation. Some have elaborately carved wooden masks.

Persons attending the the Jan. 21 party in the Cultural Center are not required to wear costumes but the imaginative garb of the celebrants adds to the spirit of the affair. There is a grand march and prizes are awarded.

The German-American Club of Plymouth has members from surrounding communities—Northville, Livonia, Westland, Plymouth and Westland. It is a social and cultural club which meets the third Thursday of each month in the Plymouth Cultural Center on Farmer Street.

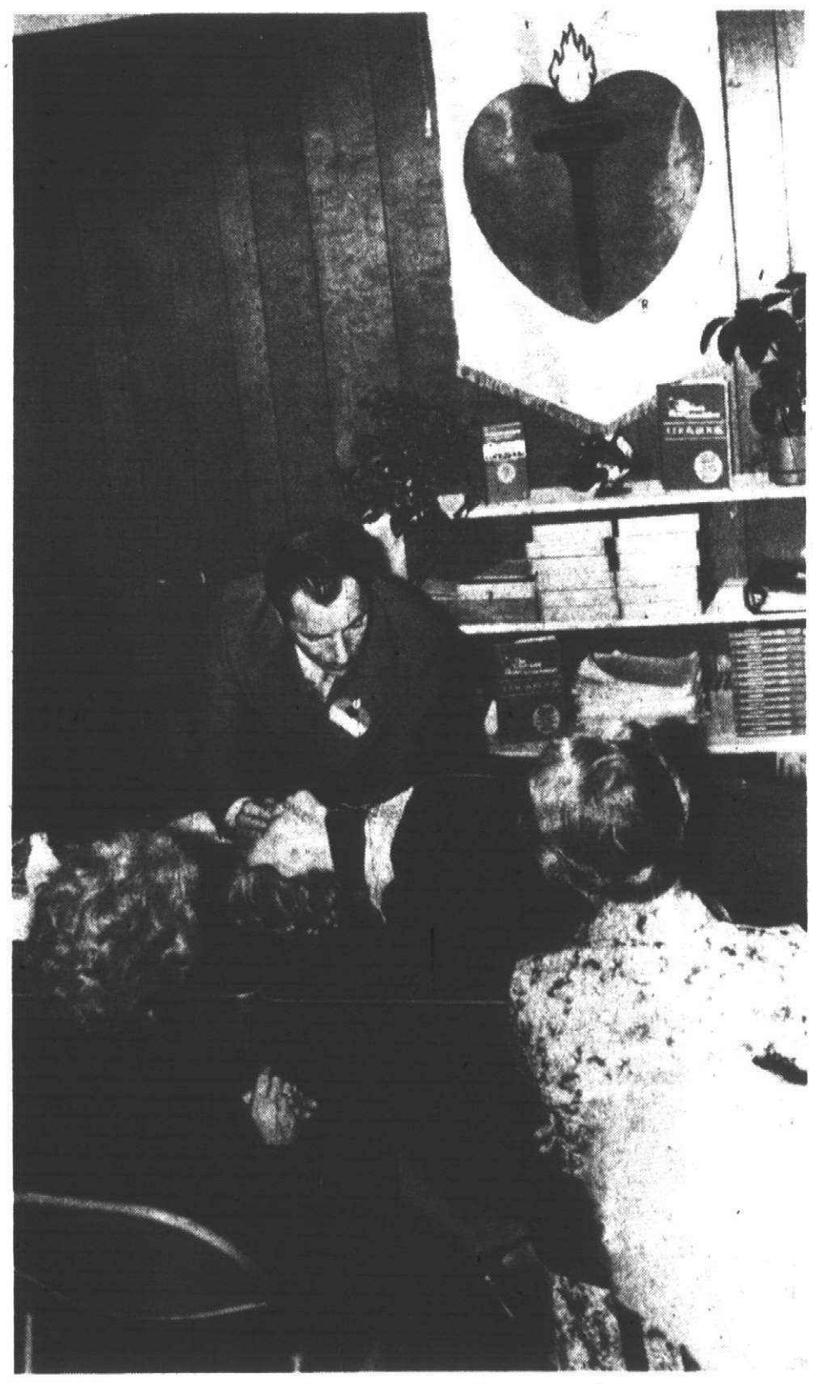

Charles Ploughman is president of the group which welcomes new members.

"Those interested in joining should just come to one of the meetings," said Edith Scherer.

The fasching parties' reputation has spread and the last two have been sell-outs.

That's good old Resusci Annie lying on the desk in the heart unit in Livonia. She's a dummy who gives her all to demonstrations of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation techniques. Demonstrating is Keith MacLacklin.

This center could save a life—maybe yours

It is no accident that Mary Longsdorf of Garden City is a member of the cardio-pulmonary resuscitation committee of the Western Wayne County Heart Unit of the Michigan Heart Association.

Her father died of a heart attack. A nurse in coronary care at Wayne County General Hospital, she did her best to save his life during the attack, but failed because it was too massive.

As part of her job, she has used CPR techniques as often as once a week, and on one occasion worked on three cardiac arrests in one night.

Because she knows so intimately how effective quick response to heart arrest can be, she is one of the volunteers at the heart unit now open in the southwest corner of the Wonderland Shopping Center in Livonia. It is designed to serve residents of Garden City, Westland, Reford Township, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton.

Now resuming its work after the holidays, the center is offering to the public the chance to sign up for classes in this life-saving technique. Businesses may also request that instruction in CPR be scheduled for their offices. A class takes about three hours. Those interested may call the center at 425-2333.

Free blood pressure screenings will resume Monday, Jan. 9. They are given each Monday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. with no appointment necessary. Each screening takes only a few minutes.

"IF SOMEONE HAS high blood pressure, we ask if he is under a doctor's care, and if he is taking the medication prescribed," said Mrs. Longsdorf.

"If not under the care of a doctor, we encourage him to see one. We also encourage people to come back. They can return every Monday if they want."

She indicated that there are 24 million Americans who have high blood pressure. "One of out of six adults has it," she said, "and a lot of them don't know they have it."

The reasons to be concerned about elevated blood pressure: heart attack and stroke are much more likely to occur.

The heart office also schedules post coronary classes for victims of heart attacks and their spouses. The next one is planned for the spring.

Also on the heart center agenda for the future is a fund-raising swim in the Schoolcraft College pool Feb. 12.

In an effort to fight heart disease on many front, the office has on hand cookbooks for those on low cholestrol diets, and booklets on high blood pressure, stroke and children with heart defects.

The office is manned by volunteers and supported by the United Fund and donations.

ACCORDING TO MRS. LONGSDORF, CPR techniques are very effective if started the first 60 seconds after a heart attack.

"After one minute the percentage of success starts to drop," she explained. "After four to six minutes the victim will develop permanent brain damage."

The first problem is to get oxygen into the individual. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation provides the bellows action to restore the flame of life.

"Sometimes the victim passes out because of an obstructed airpassage," she continued. "The tongue can obstruct the air. But when you tip the head back, the air passage opens.

"Then, if the person is not breathing, start mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external cardiac massage. When you do it, you put between 80-100 pounds of pressure directly on the chest. You compress the heart between the breast bone and the back bone, forcing blood out of the heart.

"This causes oxygenated blood to circulate about 35 per cent as effectively as the heart can circulate it. But it is enough to sustain life until the victim can get to the hospital. We try to maintain a certain level so they don't get brain damage."

KEITH MACLACKLIN, fire inspector for Dearborn Heights, recently demonstrated CPR technique to a class in the Livonia heart center.

"There is no charge for this demonstration or class," he assured his listeners. "Learning to do this you can keep someone alive until help comes. I hope you never have to use it."

Roy Schlick of Livonia, attending with his wife, Doris, agreed that, "it sure wouldn't hurt to know CPR, you never know when you might need it."

"I'd like to continue the training," said Marcia Graham of Inkster, a volunteer with the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program.

Mrs. Addie Kelly, who has volunteered 10,000 hours to the heart program, reported that it was her whole life.

"I really enjoy it," she added. "I have no intention of quitting."

In addition to the Monday hours, the center is open each Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The unit formerly was located in the Westland Senior Citizen and Community Center.

"We hope to have better visability in this location in Livonia," noted Mrs. Longsdorf, pointing out that cardiovascular disease in the nation's number one killer. "We want to reach out to all age groups."

Pat Tiesworth brings hope to alcoholics through one-day-a-week telephone counseling. See story on Page 3B.

SCOPE needs homes

Agencies search for foster parents

"Sadly, many potential candidates for foster parenting never hear how much they are needed," wrote a Wyandotte woman recently, describing the advantages of being a foster mother.

Yvonne Freeman then raised the question of how those friendly or possibly lonely people out there could be informed of the pleasures to be gained by foster parenting.

The answer is through the work of an organization called SCOPE, which stands for Serving Children Outside Parental Environment. Its membership includes all the agencies in the tri-county area which serve children unable to live with their parents.

These are groups such as Children's Aid Society, the Wayne County Department of Social Services, Jewish Family Service and others.

SCOPE says it needs homes for teenagers, babies, mentally and physically handicapped youngsters, and just plain kids.

A date has been picked for an orientation session for those who might be interested in becoming a foster parent. It is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 24 at the Out Wayne County Coalition office, 29424 Ford, Garden City.

"Foster parents are continually in demand in our area, and the need to recruit and license new homes is constant," reported Barbara Bergman of the Out Wayne County Youth Services Coalition in a statement issued jointly with Dottie Blacklock of Children and Youth Services of the Department of Social Services.

"So we are trying something new, a combined effort by many of the agencies which need these homes to explain to the community about the idea of foster parenting."

"Fostering a child has made me more thankful for who I am," wrote Mrs. Freeman. "I have learned the real pleasure again of seeing a baby's first step, sharing a cookie, hearing the funny way a word can be mispronounced.

"Then there is the smile on a teen's face who just wants to survive in a world that seems against him. And then there is the friendship with a natural mother which sometimes develops as you prepare together for the big trip home.

"You can know that as a baby grown into an adult he may not remember you, but he will know that his beginning was safe, and he was loved."

Those interested in becoming foster parents may call the Livonia Office of Volunteer Energies (LOVE) at 421-2000, ext. 351.

Children's coloring book pictures Polish culture

It bothered Catherine Macaro that she could find no suitable materials to introduce children to Polish culture.

"I was adverse to bumper stickers and to 'Kiss me, I'm Polish' badges," said the 38-year-old Michigan mother of two youngsters. "I didn't care for the plastic Eagle-type of approach to culture."

In the meantime, she noticed her own 4-year-old daughter, Mary Jo, frequently at play with crayons and coloring book.

The question popped: Why not a coloring book of Polish customs and traditions?

"This was the approach with dignity that I was looking for," Mrs. Macaro said.

TWO MONTHS AGO the book came off the press—entitled "Poland," in a red-and-white cover resembling the Polish flag, with 61 pages of illustrations for kids to color, three more pages of footnotes and a brief bibliography for study and research.

"The response has been far beyond my expectation," Mrs. Macaro said.

Priced at $1.50, the book is moving briskly at the Center for Polish Studies and Culture at St. Mary College, Orchard Lake.

Director Robert Geryk, whom Mrs. Macaro praised for "his support, encouragement and direction," says that many schools have ordered the book for their students.

He added that many people think the book makes the ideal Christmas gift.

Mrs. Macaro reported that a pastor in Toledo bought copies for every child from kindergarten through the eighth grade in his parish school.

She said that one woman, after seeing the book, was going to do something in a similar vein about Denmark and Finland.

"I wanted something inexpensive which would be readily available, cultural, authentic, and yet interesting enough to appeal both to kids who would color and to adults who would have to explain the customs and traditions to the child," Mrs. Macaro said.

But the book had to "reach the child." That was important to her.

MRS. MACARO, an art major from the University of Toledo, had taught high school in Gary, Ind., and elementary grades in Lakewood, Ohio.

"The visual approach, especially to children, on any subject is always the most attractive," Mrs. Macaro said.

On the subject of culture, "You have to start with the young," she said. "It can't be done too well later in life."

A native of Toledo, Mrs. Macaro (nee Katafiasz) grew up in a Polish neighborhood.

The family practiced many of the Polish customs at home, but it wasn't until her brother, Carl, attended St. Mary College, that her interest in ethnicity, particularly Polish, became really aroused.

Carl, who graduated this past spring from St. Mary with a major in Polish, did the research on Poland's geography, history traditions, customs, and costumes. He is currently a graduate student at the University of Toledo.

Mrs. Macaro said the book resembles a "mini-encyclopedia of the glory that is Poland."

It took her about two months to do the illustrations, which she calls "authentic" and "interesting."

The combination of illustrations and system of footnotes is the "step in the right direction for cultural pursuit," according to Mrs. Macaro.

Flushed with the success that has greeted her book, Mrs. Macaro is currently working on a sequel, which will probably come out next spring, and has designed greeting cards based on "wycinanki," Polish paper cut-outs.

Special gym program arranged by MACLD

The Plymouth-Canton-Northville chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities has announced the formation of a perceptual-motor development gym program.

Classes for the winter session will be from 5-6 p.m. every Thursday, Jan. 12 through March 23, in the Burger Junior High School gymnasium, Garden City.

Applications are being accepted. For more information, call Ken or Linda Rowe, 455-1093.

The instructor, James Glasgow, has been conducting similar programs in surrounding areas for the past six years.

Lessons taught in his physical education classes help children in the areas of visual and auditory perception, left and right discrimination, coordination, attention span, awareness in space and self-image.

For alcoholics

Telephone counseling has hope

By MARGARET MILLER

Pat Tiesworth has a message for the many persons who have been involved with the problem of alcoholism—and, for that matter, for those who think they haven't.

She's passing it along now through one-day-a-week telephone counseling from the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College, and later she hopes to bring it to a support group for members of alcoholics' families.

Her message is simple. Alcoholism is a sickness that touches everyone, and it should not carry blame any more than diabetes and cancer do. It involves families but should not bring them shame.

And finally and most importantly, her message says there is hope.

All these things Livonian Pat Tiesworth has reason to know well. The widow of a recovered alcoholic, she had her time on what she calls "the merry-go-round of alcoholism," and then she participated with her late husband in a program on alcoholism at St. Mary Hospital.

And in volunteering to begin the counseling service, she feels she is both helping fill a huge need and moving herself toward the kind of career she considers her special contribution.

"When you become aware of the depth of the illness and the great problems, then to just sit on that awareness and not use it would be a great loss," she said.

"I know what people are going through, and because I've been there, I can tell them they can go under or they can fight or survive."

MRS. TIESWORTH'S plan is to start classes at Schoolcraft, probably in the field of psychology, and then to determine what kind of study program will be needed to bring her to a counseling profession.

Meanwhile, she'll be at the end of a special telephone line in the resource center from 3-4:30 p.m. every Tuesday, answering calls from anyone who wants to talk about alcoholism-related problems and laying plans for the support group that will begin meetings in February in Newman House on the Schoolcraft campus.

From the knowledge her own life has brought her, she has a couple of chilling observations.

One is that "everyone has somewhere in the family some kind of alcohol sickness, whether or not it's recognized."

Another is that the alcoholic and his or her spouse really have only three choices each. "For the alcoholic," said Mrs. Tiesworth, "the choices are death, insanity or recovery, because it's known that alcoholism damages brain cells. For the spouse, it's widowhood, a caretaker role or being a helpmate."

BUT WHILE information like this is not generally known with regard to alcoholism, Mrs. Tiesworth has found plenty of myths and misinformation floating around.

Probably the most prevalent is what she called "the accepted picture of an alcoholic as a skid-row bum."

"But the fact is that many on skid row are not alcoholics," Mrs. Tiesworth said, "and that the disease does not pick and choose its victims. Every field and profession and way of life is invaded."

Then there's the notion that cirrhosis is a sure sign of alcoholism. "But only one alcoholic in 12 develops cirrhosis," she stated, "while 14 in 12 have brain damage."

The picture of the male alcoholic is the cliche, she also pointed out, whereas in fact alcoholism among women is increasing, whether they move out into the martini lunch world or are lonely at home.

PAT TIESWORTH believes that the route she traveled gives her the understanding and knowledge for the counseling she proposes.

"My husband and I were fortunate enough to be exposed to the fine program on alcoholism at St. Mary Hospital," she recalled. "That program is many people's survival, believe me.

"We were both involved, going to the lectures and participating in the support group interaction. I still go back to their sessions because I need more and more information to do the work I want to do and also to keep an awareness of the alcoholics' and their spouses' dilemma."

Of her late husband, Richard, she said: "He recovered completely but we still lost him last April. He was really a super guy and he left us with a lot."

Her six children, ranging in age from 4 to 17, she called "very supportive of what I want to do."

There often is a continuing question on the part of family members dealing with an alcoholic, Mrs. Tiesworth said.

Spouses and children of alcoholics often find themselves asking the continuing question about whether they are crazy to stay with the situation, Mrs. Tiesworth said.

"But you have a stake in helping someone close to you find a way to a healthy life," she said. "You don't have to feel ashamed, and you don't have to think the situation is hopeless.

"There are things you can do and learn and changes you can make."

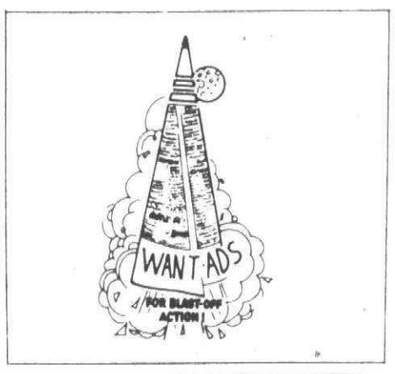

MRS. TIESWORTH said her beginning steps into her chosen field, participating in group sessions and a talk before the catechism students at St. Edith Catholic Church, had been most satisfying.

"I really love those people," she said of the alcoholics' family members she has met. "They have so much depth, and and they can be so truthful. They've been to hell and back, and you can deal with them on a gut level."

The students she called "fastastic" in their acceptance of her message.

"I gave them some new insight," she said. "They are at the age of peer pressure, and they need to become aware of the responsibility that drinking entails."

Pat Teisworth's telephone number in the Schoolcraft Women's Resource Center is 591-6400, ext. 368, and she can be reached Tuesdays from 3-4:30 p.m.

Horror and forgiveness—a mother's story

By SHERRY KAHAN

It was a frightening tale that Mrs. Marietta Jaeger told about the kidnapping and death of her daughter, Susie. But it was also a story of forgiveness.

Speaking in a quiet, undramatic voice, in Our Lady of Loretto Church, Redford Township, the Farmington Hills housewife related the story to inspire her listeners to have faith in God and His divine plan.

When she finished she found herself so spiritually and physically drained that she was trembling and needed the support of a chair. Many women in the audience rushed to her side, hugging her and expressing their sympathy for her terrible ordeal.

"In 1973 my family decided to go to Montana," began Mrs. Jaeger. "We thought it would be our last opportunity for a vacation together, and the five kids were excited.

"We asked God for a special blessing on the morning of our departure, asking him to show us His will in regard to our going to Montana."

CAMPING OUT once they reached Montana, the youngest children were assigned to the tent.

"When they went to bed I kissed them goodnight," continued the speaker. "When I kissed Susie gently on the cheek, she said, 'No, not like that.'

"She crawled out of the tent and gave me a great big kiss, saying, 'There, that's the way it should be.' It was Jesus' way of making sure I had no regrets about the goodnight. It was the last time I saw her."

At 4:30 a.m. one of the children woke her with the news that Susie was not in her sleeping bag.

It was the start of an agonizing drama that would call on the deepest strengths of the Jaeger family, test Mrs. Yaeger's faith in God, and bring on a mystical experience in which she felt her doubts dispelled and her faith strengthened.

The ordeal started when no one was able to find the child. Police authorities were called in, and Boy Scouts, ranchers and farmers joined searching teams to scour the area. But they could not find Susie.

"A week later the wife of one of the sheriff's deputies received a call from a man who said he had Susie," went on the speaker. "He said he wanted a ransom. He identified her by her humpy fingernails which we had neglected to mention to the police.

"So we knew a man had taken her. I felt in my heart this was why God had allowed her to have these nails. There was some purpose in God's plan."

FOR THE YAEGERS it was an incredibly painful time. "I would find one of the kids hiding in a corner crying," said Mrs. Yaeger. "There was anguish in my husband's heart. I told him that even if the man brought Susie home that weekend, I would kill him for what he had done to my family.

"A voice within said, 'That's not the way I want you to feel.' So I asked for the grace to desire to do His will, and asked Him to help me to learn to forgive the man and to love him. Please allow me to be part of the resolution of all this, I asked."

But after a week the family had to leave for home. We are only a phone call away, they reasoned.

"God had blessed us with an FBI agent in Montana who knew every nook and cranny and all the people, and the agent assigned to us in Detroit was very kind and considerate," Mrs. Yaeger told her audience. "I did nothing but sit by the phone in hope the kidnapper would call and complete ransom arrangements."

But she was out of the house for 10 minutes when he called and talked to her son. The man said he would call again. So the Jaegers waited through Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years' Day.

"We were getting calls with leads, some of them horrible, some hopeful," recalled the speaker. "It was a very anguishing time."

At the beginning of the new year, Mrs. Yaeger realized she was at the end of herr endurance.

"I REMEMBERED THERE had been dogs in the camp, and people sleeping all around," she said. "The man had to walk by all the sleepers to get her. God could have stopped him and didn't. What kind of God is that, I asked myself. What had the family or Susie done to deserve this? Why had God allowed this to happen to an innocent child?

"Did He set us up to give us a kick in the teeth? Maybe there wasn't a God. Maybe He was a psychological crutch someone dreamed up a long time ago to keep the human race in line."

Mrs. Jaeger felt the painful doubts in her mind had to be settled.

"Did I believe in God?" she questioned. "I felt I was hanging on a cliff, being pulled down by Satan for all he was worth.

"But God gave me the grace, as we can count on Him to do. I felt as though I had been physically pulled off a cliff onto safe ground. It is difficult to put into words, but I almost physically felt the love of God. It was incredible. I felt utterly surrounded. I knew He was my father.

"He didn't give me an answer to my questions, but I had confidence he would handle the situation."

A year after the incident, an Associated Press reporter interviewed her about the case. She told him that God had given her grace and would resolve the situation.

"God took the words the reporter wrote and they touched the heart of the kidnapper, who called me at home," Mrs. Yaeger related. "He said she was alive and well and he had grown to love her as his own child, and she loved him.

"As we talked I was aware of a shower of love and forgiveness, which I knew was not coming from me, but from God. I was overwhelmed with a feeling of love, concern and forgiveness for this man.

"IN THIS ATMOSPHERE of love and concern, he began to talk about places he'd been and things he had done. He became so overwhelmed at how I treated him that he broke down. He begged me to help with his burden. I didn't know what burden. Finally the phone went dead."

The conversation had been recorded on tape. When played back to the FBI, the man was so open he inadvertently gave up information that a trained ear could detect.

The authorities began to feel strongly about one of the people in the Montana town near the camping ground, a man regarded as a loner. He had been a suspect in the murder of an 18-year-old girl who had disappeared earlier and whose remains had been discovered.

The man was approached and advised that he was a suspect in the kidnapping of Susie. "He got a lawyer and passed the polygraph test and the truth serum test," noted Mrs. Yaeger. "Later, because the man had opened up to me, the FBI asked that I go to Montana and talk to the suspect.

"I talked to him in the lawyer's office, and later got him to agree to talk to me alone," she went on. "The FBI thought he might hurt me, but I was totally free from fear. But, he would not let go. He maintained his innocence.

MRS. YAEGER, who had heard an opinion earlier that the murderer of the young woman was psychotic, urged the man to get the help he needed. But again she learned nothing.

MRS. MARIETTA JAEGER

Authorities felt they had considerable evidence against the suspect, but not enough for a good case. They watched his house. But one night he slipped out in the middle of the night, took a car and drove all night to Salt Lake City.

He called Mrs. Yaeger.

"He knew the call would be traced so he tried to make me believe he was not the man I had been talking to before," she said. "He was trying to throw everyone off the track.

"He said I could talk to Susie. I heard the sound of a voice saying, "I am sitting on his lap and he is a nice man.' But it was a different voice.

"I kept calling him David, and he began to react. Then he realized in his confusion that he was saying things that were incriminating. He was saying things we had talked about before his attorney.

"Then he told me 'You'll never see your little girl alive.' After that he got in his truck and made a mad dash back to Montana."

Mrs. Yaeger began to worry about the child whose voice she had heard on the telephone. She feared the kidnapper might hurt the child, and informed the authorities of her fear.

"IT WAS A HORRIBLE day for us," she stated. So it was a great relief to her to discover that it had been a recording made by a child for whom David had been babysitting.

Forgiveness

By then the FBI felt there was enough evidence to arrest him. At the same time bones of a female child were discovered in an area where she had been killed, and believed to be evidence of Susie's murder.

The man was arrested, and according to Mrs. Yaeger "irrefutable evidence was found in his home that he had killed." He then gave a complete confession to the murder of Susie and the 18-year-old girl, plus two other young boys.

Four hours later he committed suicide.

"It was not what I wanted," noted Mrs. Yaeger. "I felt as much grief at his suicide as I did as the loss of Susie. That's what God can do for you. I blessed Him that I had been part of the resolution of the situation through the phone calls."

Mrs. Jaeger then oulined what she believed was the reason for her child's death.

"SUSIE WAS LIKE a little lamb chosen to be sacrificed to disclose the identity of the man who had killed others," she declared. "He had even attempted to kidnap a Girl Scout. They found a map of the scout area on him.

"I felt that God had allowed this to happen to show that he would kill others. Susie was chosen to do this. God knew what would happen to His son, and he sent him anyway. Out of the love of people He gave up my daughter. But that's how God loves us."

She urged her audience to live the way God wants them to live. "As we do His work to restore wholeness to the world, we ourselves will be whole," was her explanation.

She concluded with the mention of a dream she had some time later.

"As the dream unfolded I saw what happened," she said. "I saw how she died, I saw her face. But I could do nothing.

"I woke in cold terror, sweating. Yet here I am today, not in a straight jacket. It couldn't have been worse. But I am telling you I loved that man.

"It was no credit to me. That is what God can do. He can do it for all of us."

New film gets 3 showings

"Shiokari Pass," a new film from World Wide Pictures based on a best-seller from Japan, will be shown by three area churches Sunday, Jan. 8.

The hour-long color feature is scheduled for screening at 6 p.m. in the Plymouth Church of the Nazarene, 41550 E. Ann Arbor Trail, and at 6:30 p.m. by the Detroit Church of the Nazarene, a congregation preparing to move to Livonia and currently meeting in Stevenson High School. The film will be shown in the auditorium of the school located on Six Mile west of Farmington Road.

The other showing will be in Calvary Missionary Church, 29850 Six Mile, Livonia, where the movie will share the spotlight with musician Babbie Oliver from Spring Arbor College in a 6 p.m. program.

CHURCH BULLETIN

CHRIST THE KING LUTHERAN CHURCH, 9300 Farmington Road, Livonia, will celebrate the festival of Epiphany with a choir concert at 8 p.m. Friday.

Epiphany scriptures, recounting the visit of the Wise Men to the manger, will be read, and familiar hymns and anthems will be sung.

Included in the program will be traditional favorites such as "Lo, How a Rose E're Blooming," and "Carol of the Drum" as well as the more recent "A Star Is Moving through the Sky" and the Epiphany carol "Take Time." The concert will begin with a procession of lights.

Visitors may attend, there is no admission charge.

ROSEDALE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Hubbard at West Chicago, Livonia, will present two musicians from the faculty of Central Michigan University in a recital at 7 p.m. Sunday.

They are Steven Egler, former Rosedale organist and now assistant professor of music at CMU, and Annette Johansson, lyric mezzo-soprano who is an assistant professor of voice at Central.

Egler is a pre-candidate for a doctorate in music at the University of Michigan. Ms. Johansson is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and the University of Hawaii. They will include in their performances works by Bach; Boulanger, Langlais, Vierne and Debussy.

LIVONIA CHRISTIAN CHURCH (Disciples of Christ), 36075 Seven Mile, will welcome to its pulpit the Rev. Earle Van Slyck, new regional minister for the denomination, at the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

Rev. Van Slyck assumed his present post Oct. 1 after serving a pastorate for a congregation in California.

CALVARY MISSIONARY CHURCH., 29850 West Six Mile, Livonia, will present Babbie Oliver, vocalist and pianist from Spring Arbor College, in concerts at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Oliver is a member of the musical ensemble Common Bond and recently recorded her first album. The evening service also will feature a showing of the film "Shiokara Pass" from World Wide Pictures.

OUR LADY OF GOOD COUNSEL CATHOLIC CHURCH of Plymouth has a few places left for those interested in its Breakaway Weekend scheduled Jan. 13-15 with Edward Decker in the Plymouth Hilton.

The weekend of marriage enrichment will cost $89.50 for couples who stay at the hotel and $24 for those who attend only the scheduled events.

Registrations for the event, scheduled by the OLGC parish adult education committee, may be made with Joe Daratonyat 453-3620 or with the Rev. Bob Keller at the rectory, 453-0326.

Christmas Eve will be Jan. 6.

The traditional holy supper will be served after the vesper service at 7:30 p.m. on Christmas Eve Friday, Jan. 6 in St. Mary Ukrainian Orthodox Church, 21931 Evergreen, Southfield.

The Ukrainian Orthodox Church in America still observes the birth of Jesus by the old Julian calendar, which makes the date 13 days later.

Planning the event are the choir conductor, choir members, the sisterhood and congregation members.

January in Michigan

Winter season's time for sports

One of the greatest things about winter is Michigan. The state where snow season is go season . . . on skies, snowmobile, dog sled and skates, by sleigh and toboggan or aboard an ice boat . . . all for the fun of it.

And indoors, shows and concerts, sports and events warm the interest and entertain every age and taste, according to the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce.

There's high-gear going in January on Michigan's snowmobile tracks with the running of the 250 Enduro Snowmobile Race, Jan. 7, at the fairgrounds, Cheboygan, the Motor State Classic III Races, Jan. 14-15, County Fairgrounds, Imlay City; the Thunder Bay 250, Jan. 14, Alpena, and the TC 250, Traverse City, Jan. 28.

On a more recreational note, a good list of good-time activities for snowmobilers and snowmobiling families. The Snow-Fari, Jan. 7, will have trail rides departing from three locations in the Cadillac Caberfae area with a chili and hot dog lunch and dinner dance in the evening.

A favorite annual outing, the Moose Jaw Safari, is set for Jan. 14, Harbor Springs. At Tawas City, Jan 20-22, you can join in the Winter Fun and Frolic snowmobile rally. White Cloud will hold its Snofari '78 Jan 21, and Baldwin invited snowmobilers to its Snow-In, Jan 27-28.

SOME FAST ACTION is scheduled for Michigan's ski slopes with the Boyne Mountain Challenge, Boyne Falls, Jan. 7-8; Ski Jumping Tournament, Iron Mountian, Jan. 8; and the Jim Wickham Memorial Ski Race, Jan. 15, Super Kids Ski Race, Jan. 21, and Open Slalom Ski Race, Jan. 29, at Caberfae, Cadillac. For cross-country skiers, a race at Ranch Rudolf, Jan. 28.

"Fun for all" may be a well-worn cliche, but it certainly applies to the frosted festivities on tap for January. The Winter Snow Festival, Jan. 14-15, at Royal Valley, Buchanan, promises crazy slalom racing, inner-tube racing, live entertainment, parade and costume contest topped off by a tasty German dinner.

Tip-Up-Town USA is probably the super star of Michigan's winter festivals. The village springs to life Jan. 21-22 and 28-29 at Houghton Lake. Some of the goings on will be family games with prizes, pony and helicopter rides, sky diving aerial acrobatics, golf on the ice, torch light parades, pie-eating contests and, of course, fishing contests. Snowmobile activities and events will highlight the second weekend's program.

Then there's the annual Winter Carnival at Michigan Tech. University in Houghton, Jan. 29 through Feb. 4. Ice sculpture, skiing events and high jinks are focal points of this popular affair.

Speed skaters will be vying for top honors Jan. 2 at the Farwell Field Speedskating Championships, Detroit; Central Speedskating Championships, Bay City, Jan. 7; in the Diamond Derby, Jan. 8, Saginaw; Northern Michigan Championships, Jan. 21-22, Petoskey and the Michigan Outdoor Speedskating Championships at Alpena, Jan. 28-29.

AND, SLED DOG races are scheduled Jan. 14-15 at Houghton Lake and Jan. 28-29 at the Iron County Fairgrounds, Alpena.

Indoors, and on a warmer note, the Camper/Trailer Show, Jan. 4-8, Civic Center, Lansing; Michigan International Boat Show, in the Silverdome, Pontiac, Jan. 7-15; and the Sports and Outdoor Show, L.C. Walker Arena, Muskegon, Jan. 31 through Feb. 4.

Some of the special interest shows coming up this month include the antique show, Jan. 6-8, Detroit Plaza Hotel; antiques fair, Jan. 9-14, Somerset Mall, Troy, and antique show, Eastland Mall, Burton, Jan. 19-21. For automotive aficionados, "Autorama," Jan. 6-8, Cobo Hall, Detroit; rod and custom car show, Jan. 27-29, IMA Auditorium, Flint; auto show, Cobo Hall, Detroit, Jan. 14-22; and the rod and custom auto show, Civic Center, Lansing, Jan. 13-15.

On stage, Arthur Fiedler will be the guest conductor with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Jan. 13 and 15, Ford Auditorium, Detroit. The Civic Theatre, Battle Creek, presents "Never Too Late," Jan. 13-15 and 19-21. The Hungarian Folk Ballet and Gypsy Orchestra will present a captivating performance Jan. 17, at the U of M Power Center for the Performing Arts, Ann Arbor.

To keep up on all that's happening, write for a free copy of the Michigan Calendar of Travel Events, available from the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce, Box 30226, Lansing 48909.

Detroit Concert Band releases album

Leonard Smith, music director of the Detroit Concert Band, announced the release of the sixth LP album in the band's continuing production of its "Sousa American Bicentennial Collection."

Volume VI (HL-80171-S) is titled "A Sousa Potpourri" and contains 12 marches: "Glory of the Yankee Navy," "Atlantic City Pageant," "Jack Tar," "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," "Who's Who in Navy Blue," "Hands Across the Sea," "High School Cadets," "Gallant Seventh," "Bride Elect," "Harmonica Wizard," "From Maine to Oregon" and "Rifle Regiment."

All albums in the collection, along with the recently released "Soloists of the Detroit Concert Band," are produced by H&L Record Co.

THE DETROIT Concert Band has received two grants—one of $5,000 from Ford Motor Co. Fund and one of $2,500 from Selmer Corp. of Elkhart, Ind.

Director Smith said, "Nationwide, there's an increasing awareness and appreciation of the Detroit Concert Band's vitally active role in assuring perpetuation of the professional concert band tradition in America."

The 60-member band (the only fully complemented all-professional concert band in the United States) is well on its way toward completion of its ambitious project begun in mid-1975—the recording of all 126 known John Philip Sousa marches.

The Movies

LOUISE SNIDER

Alien creatures visit earthlings

Extraordinary encounters take place in Columbia Pictures' "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." In one scene, Richard Dreyfuss as Roy Neary is on the verge of emotional collapse after having witnessed an unidentified flying object.

Until recently, most science-fiction films seemed to concentrate on technology or on extraterrestrial monsters invading earth. In "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" (PG), "Jaws" director Steven Spielberg eschews the old cliches.

The subject of the movie is UFOs (unidentified flying objects). Writer-director Spielberg treats that subject in a way which gives us the mystery of space without the menace of monsters. It isn't as slick as "Star Wars" or as thoughtful as "Planet of the Apes," but it is oddly inspiring and optimistic.

The first two-thirds of the movie establish the occurrence of strange phenomena throughout the world and display the reaction of witnesses. The phenomena are sightings of UFOs and odd manifestations associated with them.

Special effects invest these experiences with humor as well as grandeur. Electro-magnetic storms rage, brilliant lights illuminate the darkest night, a fleet of spaceships vroom by and one small one, like the littlest dwarf, trails after.

WITNESSES TO the UFO phenomena are obsessed by the extraordinary experience. Some are haunted by an implanted vision of a dark, towering rock. Others are fixated by five musical notes repeated over and over.

Roy Neary (Richard Dreyfuss) is a power repairman in Muncie, Ind., whose life is unalterably changed by the experience. He is possessed by the vision of the towering rock. A scrunched pillow, a pile of mashed potatoes—everything he sees assumes that compelling shape.

How can a normal wife (Teri Garr) and children compete against a vision, or even try to understand it? They can't. Neary becomes as alienated from his family as from the rest of the "normal" world. But he isn't the only one. From Indiana to India, people are drawn to the landform that they saw in their vision while others are occupied with the five-tone theme.

Officials are not oblivious to what is happening. Spielberg, however, never informs the viewer whether they are acting out of ignorance, obtuseness, or deceit. It is the one time in the movie when Spielberg hovers on political comment, but he quickly abandons that theme.

As Claude Lacombe, a scientist trying to piece together and interpret the data, French director Francois Truffaut plays a key role in "Close Encounters." Lacombe is important because he is a humanist as well as a scientist.

IF ROY REPRESENTS ordinary man's sense of awe and curiosity about the universe, Lacombe represents a Greek ideal of reason and imagination. He is able to meet new experiences with resourcefulness and composure. Lacombe has "deciphered" the tonal message and realizes the use of music as a communication tool.

The stage is set for the conclusive encounter with aliens. The concerted efforts of Spielberg, Vilmos Zsigmond who directed the photography, Douglas Trumbull who directed the special effects and John Williams who wrote the musical score make the last 40 minutes of this movie a spectacular space cantata.

In "Close Encounters," space beckons man, not with icy death or solar storms, but with gentle creatures, a hint of immortality and a glorious radiance that encourages the leap from planet Earth.

The joy of this movie is that you can walk out on a high, look at the night sky and smile at some distant star-child.

Glimpses

NEW RELEASES

THE CHOIRBOYS (R). Joseph Wambaugh's story of big-city policemen who relieve the pressures of their jobs in periodic drunken revelries.

EQUUS (R). Intense, realistic film of prize-winning play with Richard Burton as the self-doubting psychiatrist treating a boy (Peter Firth) who has blinded six horses.

THE GOODBYE GIRL (PG). Neil Simon comedy of set-up situation and laughs when an actor (Richard Dreyfuss) moves in with a twice-dumped, actor-hating hoofer (Marsha Mason.)

JULIA (PG). Jane Fonda and Vanessa Redgrave excel in Lillian Hellman's deeply moving story of the warm, courageous friendship of two women.

LOOKING FOR MR. GOODBAR (R). Judith Rossner's steamy best seller brought to the screen with stunning impact. Diane Keaton scores as woman who teaches children by day, picks up men by night.

MR. KLEIN (PG). Alain Delon in subtle suspense story about a man mistaken for a Jew in France, 1942.

PETE'S DRAGON (G). Combination of animation and live action in Disney adventure about desperate boy helped by friendly dragon. Helen Reddy and Mickey Rooney featured.

SATURDAY NIGHT FEVER (R). John Travolta (of Kotter's Sweathogs) is the main man in film with plenty of disco action.

STAR WARS (PG). Stereo-comic sci-fi adventure about a rebellion of solar systems in a distant galaxy. Good time movie with laughs and special effects. Two robots steal the show.

TELEFON (PG). Charles Bronson plays a Soviet agent in this thriller about good and bad Soviet spies.

THE TURNING POINT (PG). Outstanding acting by Anne Bancroft and Shirley MacLaine; outstanding dancing by Mikhail Baryshnikov and Leslie Browne in film about character, choices and ballet.

WHICH WAY IS UP? (R). Odd reworking of Lina Wertmuller's "The Seduction of Mimi" with Richard Pryor in three roles.

WORLD'S GREATEST LOVER (PG). Zany activities of Gene Wilder who goes to Hollywood to establish himself as Valentino's rival. Dom DeLuise is manic producer and Carol Kane is Wilder's wife.

Film looks at Vienna

"Enchanting Vienna" will begin the World Adventure Series 1978 color travel movies at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Detroit Institute of Arts Auditorium.

In the movie, New York world traveler Andre de la Varre covers all the highlights of the Austrian capital city where the waltz is king and cafes are a way of life.

For ticket information and a free illustrated brochure, phone the World Adventure Series at 832-7676 any day, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Albee audition announced

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford will hold call-backs and auditions Tuesday for its third production of the season, Edward Albee's "Seascape."

The fantasy-comedy revolves around the relationships between a happily married, middle-aged couple (human) and a lizard couple of the approximate same age or younger.

Auditions will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Guild Playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly (just south of Five Mile Road) in Redford.

Anyone interested in working on technical aspects of the production may also attend the audition session.

'Newsmakers' returning to 56

"Newsmakers," part of the nightly "Local Circuit" series produced by Channel 56, will return Fridays, at 10:30 p.m., starting Jan. 6, on Channel 56.

Produced and moderated by Lois Pincus, "Newsmakers" will be moving into its second year on Channel 56.

"Newsmakers" brings members of the electronic and print media together with city and state politicians and bureaucrats to explore the issues that face the people in the Detroit area.

Last year, Ms. Pincus had as her guests such people as Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, Sen. Don Riegle, City Councilman Carl Levin, Detroit Supt. of Schools Arthur Jefferson and Speaker of the Michigan House Bobby Crim.

Sam Hudson's history gets favorable review

Sam Hudson's history of Plymouth and Plymouth Township received a favorable review from "Michigan History," published by the Michigan Department of State.

The history was serialized in the Observer in a column written by Hudson, entitled "Plymouth: Past and Present." Hudson wrote the column until taking a leave of absence for a year's residence and study in France.

Hudson, a member and past president of Plymouth Rotary, is retired from the public relations business. He once served as trustee of Schoolcraft College. His wife, Jesse, is a retired teacher from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"MICHIGAN HISTORY" reports that Hudson's history "presents a well-rounded view of the community from 1825 when it was first settled, up to the middle of the 20th century.

"It contains many extras not usually found in other popularized local histories. For example, there are the detailed accounts of Indian-white man interaction, and accounts of the native wildlife the settler encountered and ultimately conquered."

The review cites the book as having many of the qualities of good fiction. "The reader becomes involved with the characters because of the careful attention to detail.

"With a strong literary style and an extensive amount of research, Hudson brings to light the unusual aspects of Plymouth's past. His overall style is lucid and quite readable."

Hudson also captured Plymouth's sociological development, the review says, by comparing "the early women's rights and prohibition movements with similar movements today. An interesting account is given of Mrs. Phoebe Patterson, the first woman to be an elected official of Plymouth Township, and the court case she had to win to assume her position.

"The book is organized into ten chapters with numerous subheadings. Six of the chapters divide Plymouth history into units of time, while the remaining chapters are devoted to economic developments, railroads, religion, education, culture, and the early firefighters. Twenty-five black and white illustrations compliment the text."

Hudson has donated proceeds from the sale of the book to the Plymouth Historical Society. Copies at $7.25 have been on sale at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main, since the museum opened. The museum is open 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Redheads: everyone's abused minority group

By GUNDELLA

The poor redheads of this world really have been discriminated against. Redheads were always a minority in any country, and like any other minority group, they were subjected to prejudice by insecure people simply because they looked different.

Nowadays, many natural blondes and brunettes choose to become redheads, and the prejudices seem to have disappeared.

But in the past, a person with red hair was sometimes considered bad luck, and they were avoided like the plague by many. Even today, you hear people say that "all redheads have terrible tempers," which is not at all true. They are no more temperamental than other groups of people.

HERE ARE A FEW other "hairy" beliefs:

Cut your hair when the moon is new, and it will grow back rapidly and luxuriously. Cut your hair when the moon is waning, and you will grow gray ey prematurely, or even lose your hair, and grow bald.

Children who eat their bread crusts will have curly hair.

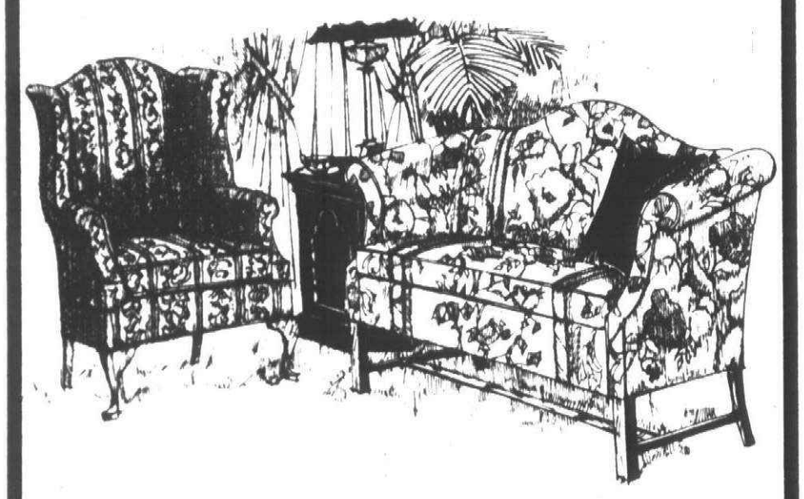

Never throw hair cuttings or combing out-of-doors. For, if a bird uses your hair to build its nest, you are likely to go insane (or at least suffer terrible headaches.)

Never comb your hair with a comb that has touched the head of a corpse, or your hair will fall out.

Never comb your hair while it is wet, or it will become coarse and wiry.

For glossy, attractive hair, cut off a lock and place it under a rock in a running stream.

SWATANTRA KACHHAL

Canton professor honored

Swatantra K. Kachhal of Canton is one of three faculty members at University of Michigan-Dearborn to receive Distinguished Teaching Awards during the university's annual commencement ceremonies on Dec. 11.

Kachhal, assistant professor of industrial and systems engineering, shared the award for non-tenured faculty which was presented to two winners for the first time.

A committee of UM-D faculty representatives selected the award recipients on the basis of "excellence in teaching, effective interaction with students outside the classroom in counseling and advising capacities, and other instructional activities which bring distinction to the university."

Faculty members were nominated for the third annual DTAs by fellow faculty members, administrators and students. The other junior faculty member honored was Elias Baumgarten, an assistant professor of philosophy. The other award recipient was Donald J. Proctor, professor of history and a senior faculty member.

Sachhal was honored for his "high standards and sense of professionalism in his teaching field."

Since he joined the UM-D faculty in 1973, Kachhal has taught introductory level courses as well as graduate courses in his specialization. Said one colleague: "Particularly noteworthy is the success he has made of the interdisciplinary course required of all engineering students. He even rewrote part of the text to update the material."

"He gives generously of his time," said another colleague. Kachhal serves as faculty advisor for the university chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers, a group he helped organize. He holds a BS degree from College of Saharanpur, India, a bachelor of engineering from University of Roorkee, India, and MS and PhD degrees from the University of Michigan.

Salem grapplers eye Schoolcraft crown

A host of powerful grapplers will clash on the mats tomorrow and Saturday at the eighth annual Schoolcraft College Wrestling Invitational.

Twenty-eight high school teams are expecterd to participate, including 17 from the Observer & Eccentric area.

The meet begins at noon tomorrow and is expected to continue until approximately 10 p.m. Saturday's first session is scheduled to run from noon to 5:30 p.m. Finals are slated for 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets, available at the door, are $1 for students and $1.50 for adults per session. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile. The invitational will be held in the main gymnasium with up to six matches in progress at one time.

Westland John Glenn defeated Wayne by a slim 5½ point margin for the team championship last year. That competition finished on a controversial note when Bill Meyer, wrestling in the 134-pound class for Glenn, was slammed to the mat by Wayne's Tim Clark in the finals. Bob Lusk, coach of the Rockets, said he was reluctant to let his dazed grappler continue.

According to high school rules, Meyer was awarded the victory and those points helped Glenn take the title.

Bitter rivals, the Rockets and Zebras will be back this weekend, along with other O&E-area teams Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Farmington, Farmington Harrison, North Farmington, Southfield, Southfield-Lathrup and Birmingham Groves.

Also battling will be Clarenceville, Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Bentley, Redford Union, Redford Thurston and Garden City West.

Farmington, which finished third behind Glenn and Wayne last year, will be led by the Stern brothers—Ron and Randy. Ron was individual champion at 100 pounds.

Lathrup's Rob Parent, who took the individual title at 121 pounds last year, will be on hand to defend his championship.

Clarenceville, a Class B school, placed fourth in last year's competition and will be led this weekend by Kevin Respecki, Eric Black and Mike Crilly.

Harrison, which finished sixth last season, has a pair of solid matmen in Kevin Suetterlin and Pat Palajac. Thurston, undefeated so far this season, has a handful of capable grapplers including Buddy Ault, Tom Arsenault and Brian Galdes.

Rene Leist and Bob Dasher are among Salem's quality performers, while Kyle Heaton and Tom Harreld are among Canton's best.

Other matmen who will be leading their teams into the arena are John and Jim Cotter, North Farmington; Glenn Taggert and Vince Flippo, Garden City West; and Jerome Robinson, Tim O'Neil and Greg Potulski, Glenn.

Rocks foil upset- minded Dearborn with late basket

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

It may not have been one of the most classic basketball victories of the season, but Plymouth Salem can still claim a spot among the ranks of the unbeaten—only by the skin of its teeth.

The Rocks' John Broderick tipped in a Rich Hewlett jump shot with only one second remaining to give Salem a narrow 46-44 victory over a stubborn Dearborn High School squad Tuesday night.

This Suburban Eight League contest, which was played at the Salem gym, was a make-up battle from a previous snowed-out game in mid-December.

The Rocks were orginally scheduled to battle Dearborn Fordson in a non-league battle that Tuesday. The contest has been rescheduled for February 14.

The way the Pioneers tussled with the Rocks, however, it may have been better to face Fordson instead.

The Pioneers pulled out all the stops against the perennial Sub-8 champions and almost gained the coveted upset.

Using a spread offense, Dearborn slowed down the game, kept the Rocks off-balance defensively, and almost went home with a victory.

"We are going to get into situations where people are going to do funny things to try to beat us," Salem coach Fred Thomann said.

"He (Dearborn coach Gene Shell) played it right. When you don't think you can win you have to play as close to the belt as possible. Obviously, they didn't think they could win."

A combination of poor shooting, offensively, and lack of patience, defensively, made the game close, however, as the Rocks needed another last second surge to keep their record clean against the lowly Pioneers—a second-division squad in the conference. Salem stands at 7-0, while Dearborn is 1-5 overall.

"I don't think we were flat tonight. We were ready to play," Thomann stated. "We were off-tempo and never got into the flow of the game.

"We kept trying to make the big steal on defense. We had good offensive situations and got good shots off. They didn't go in and we couldn't get the second shot. We got off the shots too early (to react to the rebound)."

The Pioneers gained control of the game early in the initial period, holding on to a 10-8 advantage after the first eight minutes.

Salem took control early in the second quarter but the Pioneers hung tough, trailing by only one point, 27-26, at halftime.

The Rocks held as much as a six-point advantage midway in the third period, 36-30. But Salem failed to score in the last 4:43 of the period as Dearborn rallied with 10 straight points to gain a 40-36 lead after three quarters.

Salem gained the lead once again in the fourth quarter, taking a 44-42 lead into the last 3:42 of the game.

The Rocks then went into their stall offense and dwindled the clock down to 1:13 before a turnover gave the Pioneers the tying basket with only 44 seconds left.

The Rocks controlled the ball the final minute of the game before Broderick's heroic tip-in—the only two points he recorded during game—decided the outcome.

Rich Hewlett, making his first start of the season, led the Rocks with 14 points nad six assists. Tom Ellinghausen and Mike Christie added 11 each.

Paul Kenrick led Dearborn with 14 points. Craig Wolter added 15.

3 injured in pre-game fight

Salem's Jeff Powers suffered a minor concussion and brother John Powers suffered a minor cut on his left hand. Both boys were transported by the Canton rescue squad to St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor and later released. The Powers are members of the Salem wrestling squad.

The injured Dearborn youth, Jim Shedd, a starting forward on the Pioneer varsity cage squad, had several teeth loosened during the fight. He was taken home from the gym by his mother and missed the varsity game which Salem won 46-44 at the buzzer.

The incident occurred when some members of the Dearborn varsity were sitting at the press table watching the jayvee game, according to the game's security guards.

Canton caught in OT, 76-72

Livonia Franklin cagers saw their 10-point first quarter lead dwindle to a tie at the end of regulation play but quickly regrouped and controlled action during the extra three minutes enroute to a 76-72 non-league victory over Plymouth Canton Tuesday night.

The victory raised the Patriots' record to 5-3 while Canton dropped to 2-4 for the season.

Franklin jumped into a quick 16-6 first-quarter advantage but was victimized by a Chief 28-point second period which tied the score, 34-34, at halftime.

The contest remained close throughout the second half with both squads trading baskets.

Franklin then controlled the play, outscoring the Chiefs 8-4 in the extra period.

John Zannis led all scorers with 35 points. Teammates Reich and Baker added 13 and 12, respectively.

Canton's top scorer Butch King was held to only 14 points but junior forward Kurt Herbert picked up the slack with 28 points. Russ Mandle scored 12 points and added 17 rebounds. Captain Randy Rienas sank nine points and grabbed 16 caroms.

"We're coming on now, and I'm real pleased with our progress," said Franklin coach Jim McIntyre. "We pressed them a little at the half court, and they weren't able to set up their offense in the first quarter."

A disappointed Canton coach Casey Cavell was not pleased with the officiating of the game at the Franklin gymnasium.

"I hate to blame the game on the officiating because Franklin played a good ball game," the Canton mentor said. "But the officating was erratic and changed the momentum of the game.

"After the first quarter, we decided to play defense and set up our offense and played a good game."

Sochacki reaps all-state honors

Plymouth Canton cager Kathy Sochacki was recently selected to an all-state girls basketball team chosen by Michigan Coaches of Women's Athletics.

Sochacki, a senior co-captain for the Chiefs, sparked her team to a perfect 19-0 regular season record, best in the Observerland area.

Other members of the all-state team include Davida Boozer (Cass Tech), Mel Durden (Kalamazoo Loy Norrix), Shelly Chapman (Marquette), Vicki Smith (Grand Blanc), Jean White (Escanaba), and Carolyn Wright (Pontiac Central).

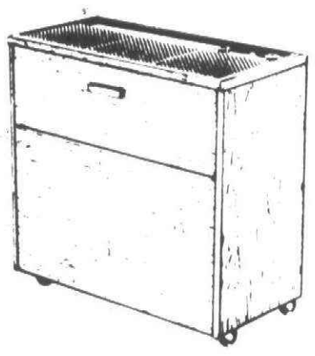

Sochacki is a three-year letter winner at Canton. She also plays volleyball and softball.

Rock spikers set to defend crown

The Plymouth Salem girls' volleyball team advanced to the quarter finals in the state tourney last year with a team made up of seven seniors, three of whom were in the starting lineup for each game.

This year, the Salem squad hopes to improve on that finish, but with only five seniors and four returning letter winners from last year's team.

Returning starters are Kathy Dillon, beginning her fourth season on the varsity; Karen Prikosovits, making this her third year at the varsity level; and Clarisse Hartnett who will start her second year on the varsity.

Also returning from last year's team is junior Doris Hoelscher for her second year on the varsity.

After losing so many seniors from last year, the Rocks have the problem of re-learning the moves of each teammate and being able to play together.

Coming up from the junior varsity of last winter are two-year JV veterans Sue Busha and Betty DeLano, both of whom are seniors this year. Juniors Cindy Leveille, Monette Recto and Patty Radzik, along with sophomore Krisann Mirroff, have also moved up to the varsity.

Senior Mary Klaes will also play on the varsity. Klaes played varsity for Aquinas High School in Southgate last year.

Also new to the varsity team this year is coach Cathy Himes. Himes took over the position of varsity coach for Brian Gilles, who resigned after three years. Himes was the junior varsity coach last year and finished the season with seven wins and 10 losses.

Himes would like to take the Rocks to a repeat of last year's Suburban Eight League championship but sees some stiff competition coming from both Dearborn High School and Dearborn Edsel Ford. Last year's league championship was shared with Dearborn High School.

"We have all the individual skills needed to do very well this year. It's working as a team that will either make us or break us. That means that everyone on the team must be knowledgeable of each teammate's skills and abilities," said Himes.

As far as goals are concerned, Himes said she would like to see the team play well together and to have an attitude that cares about each team member and the entire team; and that the season be a good and profitable one for everyone involved.

Salem will open against Livonia Churchill Tuesday, Jan. 10 at Churchill. Last year against Churchill, the Rocks came away with a victory in two straight games.

Tuesday's match will start at 7 p.m. with Salem's junior varsity, coached by Allie Suffety, meeting the Charger JV. Varsity competition follows.

This year, Salem will have its own student trainer, Lori Shannon. Shannon attended a clinic at Bowling Green University in Ohio last summer and is qualified to hold the position.

Changes this season include the elimination of tournament league play. League champions will be determined by the season record, not by the record combined with the league finals.

Suffety's junior varsity players look very promising with a good balance of talent. Suffety's goal is not to win

Bring Schuele to CEP

Your monthly critic of the Plymouth Canton football program has yet another suggestion to help improve the fortunes of the Chief gridders next fall.

Granted, the poor attitude of the Canton players, which helped (or should I say hurt) the squad tumble to an embarrassing 0-9 season last fall, is hard to remedy.

One thing which can help the program immensely, however, is bringing head coach Dave Schuele to the Centennial Park.

Schuele currently teaches at Highland Park and receives release time to come to Canton for football practice during the fall season. He taught at Highland Park when he was hired to the Canton coaching post 2½ years ago with hopes of eventually landing a teaching job in the Plymouth-Canton system.

The schools have yet to hire Schuele, and, as each year passes, the Canton football program is hurt because of it.

It is essential, for the sake of the program, that Schuele gets hired—as soon as possible.

Currently, not one member of Schuele's coaching staff teaches at the Centennial Park. Because of this, the Schuele's contact with the students is very limited.

The Canton mentor is never around when anyone needs him. This hurts his efforts to promote his program to the student body.

He is unable to create interest within the school because he is never there. The demands on a head football coach are numerous and Schuele has a hard time meeting his responsiblities because he isn't at the high school.

Thus, the program suffers, as well as the students who participate in it. And the pride in the school's football team is becoming non-existent.

Canton football has become a joke, not only in the community but at the school as well.

PLYMOUTH Athletic Director John Sandmann and Plymouth Canton High School Principal Kent Buikema know it's essential for Schuele to be at the high school to help build a concrete program.

I know Buikema is totally frustrated because of the failure in this program.

And yet, these administrators' hands are tied. Some people higher up in the school system are preventing Schuele from coming to the Plymouth system.

Schule is qualified to teach either in the industrial arts department or the physical education department.

The problem is money.

Since Schuele is at the top of the scale in his profession, it would cost the school district the same amount of money to hire Schuele as it would to hire two first-year teachers.

And the school district isn't willing to tamper with this kind of expense.

Once again, this shows how much the school district cares about athletics.

I understand that hiring Schuele will cost the school district extra money. In the long run, however, this extra expense will help the Canton football program and give students some pride and spirit in the school they attend.

Spending this extra money could prevent Canton football from once again being the laughing stock of the area and the entire state.

Experience aids Chiefs

Canton seeks volleyball title

By BETTY DELANO

After a league finish of 9-6 last year, and a third place finish in the Western Six League, Plymouth Canton girls' volleyball coach Cyndi Burnstein expects the Chiefs to do well again this winter.

"The girls have been playing together for three years and have the talent and knowledge of the game to be serious contenders for the league title," said Burnstein.

The Chiefs biggest hurdle in attaining a league championship may be Livonia Churchill. Churchill has earned the title the past three years and isn't ready to give it up.

"Everyone on the team has been able to spike the ball with a lot of power behind it. This is something we didn't have last year and should help us quite a bit. We're also going to work on a more powerful serve since that's were we lost some of our matches last year," said the coach.

The Chiefs season opener will be played today against Farmington Harrison at Harrison. Last year the Canton squad beat Harrison both times they met. Burnstein said Harrison has always been weak but if their two players a 6-1 have improved over last year, it could make a big difference in the outcome of the match.

With team members such as seniors Sue Rekuc and Laurie Beck as setters and junior Kelly Heaton working as the Chiefs' major spiker, Canton should be strong. Seniors Kathy Sochacki and Judy Freiman will also add to the Canton team.

Rekuc, Heaton, Beck, Sochacki and Freiman are all returning letter winners from last years' varsity line-up and are looking forward to an enjoyable season.

New to Canton varsity volleyball are juniors Amy Akers and Tina Decker and sophomores Claudia Williams and Jill Pedersen. All four played junior varsity last year.

Taking over the junior varsity coaching position for Lisa Williams will be Chris Boyd, an Eastern Michigan University physical education major who played on Canton's team in 1975. Boyd, a junior at Eastern, has been playing on the EMU volleyball team for two years.

Burnstein said Boyd is doing a fine job and putting out the best junior varsity team Canton has ever had.

The Chiefs will play on their home court seven times; nine games will be away. The Chiefs also will co-host the Plymouth Invitational with Plymouth Salem Feb. 11, and compete in the Schoolcraft Invitational Jan. 21.

The Western Six league tournament will have no effect on final standings in the league. Canton won the tourney last season.

Wolverines denied again

Second-guessers have fun with U-M

By W.W. EDGAR

There is something to be said for the Michigan football team that was denied victory in those knee-knocking closing seconds in the Rose Bowl.

This team has something for everybody; the students, the old grads who revel in the team's success during the season, the curbstone alumni, and now for the second guessers.

Ever since "Bo" Schembechler came to Michigan as head coach nine years ago he has been the target of the curbstone rooters who always have charged that his teams didn't pass enough, that maybe he didn't teach passing.

They criticised him for his stubbornness in wanting to do things his way, come hell or high water on the astroturf in the stadium.

They criticized him because his offense was brute strength and what, in the old days, they called "three downs and a cloud of dust."

Meanwhile, he went along on the theory that a good defense was the most important part of his system, claiming that if you can keep the other team from scoring, you can't lose.

So far it had worked out pretty well. At least the curbstone chapter of the alumni was quieted until the Ohio State game of several years ago. On that occasion, if you recall, with the outcome of the Ohio State game at stake, Bo called for four successive charges into the center of the line—and failed—from the one-yard line, standing in the stadium and shouting to the heavens the strains of "The Victors—Champions of the West." They were having their innings and down on the field the Maize and Blue was regarded as the best.

But now has come another defeat in the Rose Bowl and the second guessers are having their inning.

For instance, the first time the Wolverines got within a few yards of the Washington end zone, Bo, who was calling the plays from the sidelines, called for a series of smashes up the middle—right into the arms of the stacked Washington defense.

There was no thought of passing or not even the thought of using the "wide stuff" that Rick Leach, the heroic quarterback, has been using with success all seson. Had Michigan scored then, there might have been a different trend to the game.

Then came the last few seconds with the Wolverines staging a dramatic comeback after being down, 24-0. They were within sight of the goalposts and victory.

It was much like the drive earlier in

Although the new year is only a few days old, the bowlers already are setting new records.

The most important comes with the opening of the men's state tournament in Ann Arbor with the largest entry the event ever has had.

In sounds rather odd to mention it with snow on the ground but the state's male bowlers won't have their championships settled until summer.

It is the same with the annual ABC tournament that will open shortly in St. Louis, Mo. The entry was oversubscribed more than a month ago. The date for the closing also has been extended a week and there is no chance of any further additions.

So, for the first time, entries are being returned or held to fill in if an emergency arises.

EDDIE LUBANSKI, one of Detroit's top bowlers several years ago, had an odd thing happen to him during the holidays.

He returned to the top of the 10-year averages in the ABC but hasn't bowled in it for the past two years. While he moved to the top Bob Strampe, who was leading, dropped to third place. Eddie's average is 203.01 for 279 games over a 28-year period.

He will have to bowl in another ABC during the next five years or be declared an inactive bowler and will lose his ranking.

MARY MOHACSI is paying little attention to Father Time.

She started the new year just as she finished the old one—by sending the pins flying in all directions.

Last week, she rolled a 719 series in the Bowlerettes League and this week she came right back with a 267 game in a 663 series.

For her 719 series, she linked game of 258, 216 in the big count. Meanwhile, Jerry Ritter rolled the Ladies Major first 700 series with a 703 count.

THE PINS took a beating at Westland Bowl, too. Ruth Worley set a new high for the ladies classic when she laced games of 205, 268 and 205 for a 678. In the Wednesday Mixers, Carol Post had a 252 in 609.

Gary Johnson and Bob Jawor waged a great battle in the Little Caesar's league before Gary finished on top with a 278 in 686 to win by two pins. Jawor finished with a 259. The next place went to Jerry Cole Sr., who recorded a 254 game in a 653 series.

In the women's league, Virginia Lenk showed the way with a 237 in 587. Margy Brothers was next in line with a 217 in 560. Pam Whally contributed a 244 in 548 and Terry Kosowski had a 255 in 539.

GRACE MILLER got off to a good start for the new year by taking top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic with a 501-111—612 count by winning the third game with a 192-37—229.

In other games, Dot Fulton won the opener with 217-29—246 and Lois Merriman took the second with 181-24—205.

AT FARMINGTON LANES, Steven Hamlin, youngest son of the owners posted a 231 in 603 and he's only 14 years old. He had to yield honors for a single game when John Ponke rolled a 236.

ROGER HERBORT had an unusual experience bowling in the Michigan National Bank league at Woodlanes. He had 11 strikes in a 264 game. He started with four, left up the 2-7 in the fifth, missed it and then went on for his high game to put with his other games of 217 and 207 for a 688.

Dorothy Elenich paced the women. With a 149 average, she connected with games of 160, 230 and 189 for a 545. Vicky Barnes, with a 127 aYerage, rolled a 155 and 192 for a 470, while Karen Logan, with an average of 92, had games of 156, 128 and 133 for a 417. And in the midst of all the scoring, Robert Madden joined the ranks of those who toppled the 7-10 split.

TOM NOERSCH was high scorer of the week at Garden Lanes.

Bowling in the St. John Bosco League he had a 661 and his nearest rival was Paul Loredas with 612.

Harry Mitchell paced the Moose with a 652 and Frank Ostowski was high in the St. Norbert League with 613. Bob Reiman was next with a 608.

In the ladies competition, Gloria Howell was the leader with 646.

Jogging gains popularity

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Tramp, tramp, tramp. . .gasp. . .

Even though the temperature may slide to near the zero-degree mark, you're still likely to see an occasional solitary figure plodding through the early-morning streets.

Winter's chill may have forced some to enclosed tracks and others may have temporarily abandoned their Nikes and Adidas for cross-country skis. The popularity of long-distance running, what used to be called jogging, continues to rise, making it one of America's favorite pasttimes.

Long-distance running, marathoning, for some, got off to a bad start. History's first marathoner, a Greek by the name of Pedippedes, dropped dead running from Marathon to Athens while bringing news of the Greek win over the Persians in 490 B.C.

He discovered what happens when glycogen, the chemical which the body uses for energy, suddenly gives out at the 18-mile mark.

While the 18-mile barrier may be a tough one to break, more and more people are running farther and farther. Occassional runners and joggers are usually satisfied with trekking no more than five miles a week.

Serious runners, however, consider 25 miles a week a minimum. Some log between 100 and 200 miles weekly.

According to Runner's World, the Bible of the conscientious runner, "If you run because you want to lose weight or you don't want to die of a heart attack, you are a jogger. But if you run because you like to listen to the birds, think about a vacation trip or just to see how fast or how far you can go, then you are a runner."

Jerry Franchina, an Oakland County runner, echoed the magazine's sentiments. "Between school and work I get tense," he said. "I run to daydream, to think about the future, to work out problems, to clear my mind. It's better than sleep," he said.

"Some people are alcoholics—I run," he concluded.

Another runner said, "I wasn't fit. About two years ago I began running to stay in shape for skiing and tennis.

"But running became an end in itself. Last summer I played tennis only once. Even so, it didn't occur to me until now that running was my sport."

Wayne State University cross country coach Don Simms, said, "I go for the enjoyment—you know the wind in your face."

Performance or perseverence; habit or relaxation—running is fast overtaking tennis as the most popular athletic pasttime in urban and suburban areas.

According to research conducted by the Gallup Organization, which will be published in full in the October 1978 Gallup Report, the runner tends to be a young, single, college-educated male who lives in the Northeast or Far West and fall into the upper-income brackets.

That description, however, is deceiving because the running craze has swept up people from all backgrounds. The field for the 1977 Boston Marathon, for example, included 129 women.

The number of legitimate marathons and "mini-marathons" — six- and 13-mile runs—as well as the number of legitimate participants has ballooned in recent years.

Defense!

U-M fans bewildered

This time, on first down and eight yards to go for what could have meant at least a tie, he decided to call a pass. Leach dropped back, shot the ball to Stan Edwards, the freshman tailback. It hit his shoulder and slithered down his back before a Washington Huskie grabbed it to end all hope of U-M victory.

As soon as that happened, the second guessers went to work. The same people who screamed, in the early stages, "Why didn't he pass when he was only eight yards away," now were chastising him by asking, "Why did he want to pass in a situation like that when he has strength up the middle."

It was a great day for the second guessers. It was much like the Rose Bowl defeat of several years ago when Jim Plunkett, now the San Francisco 49er quarterback in the pro league, threw five straight passes down the middle to beat the Wolverines in the closing minutes.

On that oaccasion the second guessers cried, "Why didn't they tip the ball instead of trying to catch it? One tip would have brought Michigan a victory."

Now Michigan's modern day bowl record is 0-5. Bo has yet to win a bowl game.

But as one wise old coach once remarked, "You work all day in practice and far into the night studying offenses and setting up new plays, then on game day if the ball bounces right you are a hero. If it bounces the wrong way, you are a "bum" and the target of the second guessers."

When workshop time came, O&E sales people were broken into teams. Each was given an ad to revamp and make more effective. Apparently Team 3 hit the mark. With back to camera is Audrey Roof of display sales. Others from left are Brenda Boyce of copy layout, Mike Karagozian of display advertising, Rose Stemmermann of classified sales, and Ron Tabaczka, Cooperative Ad Coordinator.

Buffet trays of turkey, corned beef, potato salad, pickles and special breads from Ben & George's Delicatessen of Livonia were welcomed at noon. Vel Ellis of display sales ate heartily, as only hungry sales people can.

Putting on the session were Tom Riordan (left) and Bill Melms of TARCO, a newspaper management seminar firm of Jackson. Riordan has 30 years in the newspaper field, including 16 as a weekly publisher which put him in close touch with the ad field. Melms is a 37-year advertising veteran. He has been with Jacobson's 30 years as director of marketing and advertising.

How do the people who sell our advertising spend their Saturdays?

Well, sometimes they go to class to learn better ways to serve Observer & Eccentric advertisers.

Big Ten football action not withstanding, some 34 of our sales people hit the books, so to speak, on one recent Saturday.

From 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. they labored. They heard talks by two ad experts. They then put into action in workshop sessions what had just been discussed.

All work ground to a halt at noon. Heaping trays of food appeared and then disappeared. Yes, and later there were periodic radio checks on progress of Michigan and Michigan State gridiron clashes.

But for the better part of that day it was nose-to-the-grindstone, learning to create better ads and harder-hitting copy.

Participants also learned about photo ads and ways to help merchants take better advantage of their cooperative advertising programs.

The setting was exotic for Team 5, the publisher's office to be exact. But the group wasn't concerned about the decor. Instead it was turning an average ad into a great one. The three ladies at left are Glenny Merillat of the Livonia art staff, Jan Ryan of display advertising and Shirley West of classified. Their male teammates are Rick Ficorelli of classified and John Muir of display advertising.

Metropolitan revenue is topic

"Potential—Actual Public Revenue for Southeast Michigan" will be the fifth in a series of nine discussion papers sponsored by Metropolitan Fund, Inc. It will be delivered at 7:30 p.m. Friday in room 211 of the McKenny Union, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

Authors are Drs. Lawrence Schroeder of Syracuse University and David Sjoquist of Georgia State University. The series explores the economy of southeast Michigan, public services and revenues. Friday's paper will include an evaluation of local revenue sources.

A commenting panel will include Trenton Mayor Robert Bovitz; Will M. Caldwell of Ford Motor Co.; Leon S. Cohan of Detroit Edison Co.; Walter E. Douglas, president of New Detroit, Inc.; Dr. John E. Mogk of the Michigan Energy Resource and Research Assn.; and spokespersons for Sen. Donald Riegle and the League of Women Voters of Michigan.

Admission is free. The McKenny Union is at the intersection of Washtenaw and W. Cross streets. It is reached by taking the Washtenaw exit from US-23.

Swim times coming

Area high school swimming coaches—those who lead teams in Livonia, Plymouth, Canton, Redford, Garden City and Westland—are asked to contact Livonia Bentley coach Keith Wright at 422-3070 with their best times of the season to date.

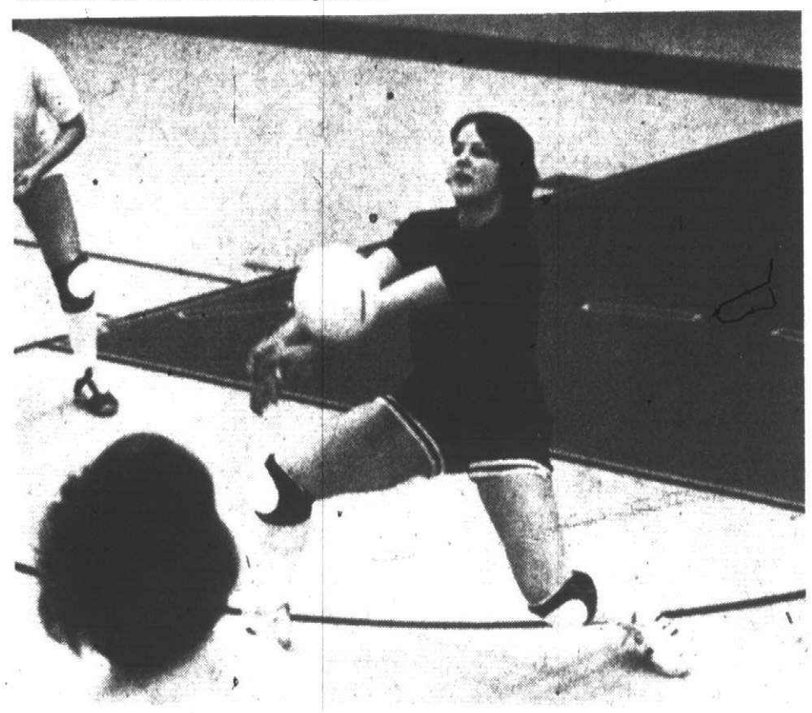

Wright has volunteered to chart the best times weekly for the Observer Newspapers, but he needs the assistance of his peers. The first listing of the season will appear next week.

Wright, who may be contacted at the above number mornings, suggests that coaches call him as soon as possible with their best times, then mornings after each meet to update the chart.

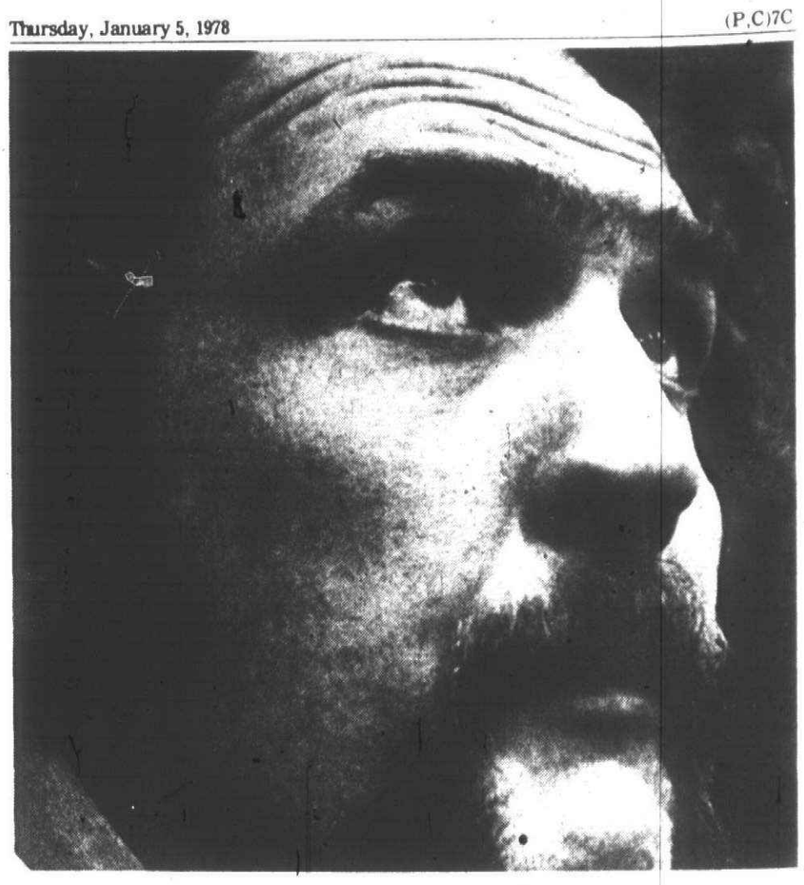

To kick things off, Wright is asking for times in the range or better than the following:

200-yard medley relay-1:50; 200-yard freestyle, 1:54; 200-yard individual medley, 2:14; 50-yard freestyle, 23.9 seconds; diving, 180 points; 100-yard butterfly, 1:00.

Also, 100-yard freestyle, 53 seconds; 500-yard freestyle, 5:20; 100-yard backstroke, 1:01; 100-yard breaststroke, 1:07; and 400-yard freestyle relay, 3:34.

every game but to have the team be able to see some improvement in themselves by the end of the season.

Salem will be at home seven times starting Jan. 16 against Ypsilanti, and will be on the road for nine games.

The Schoolcraft Invitational, Jan. 21, and the Plymouth Invitational, Feb. 11, will be the only tournaments that the Rocks will compete in. The regionals are set for March 11 and the state finals on March 18.

From I-275 to Canton Center Road

PUBLIC MEETING

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation will have representatives present at a public meeting from 4-8 P.M., Wednesday, January 11, 1978, in the Canton Township Meeting Hall, 128 Canton Center Road, Canton, Michigan.

The purpose of this meeting is to provide the opportunity for the public to drop in and discuss future improvements to M-153 from I-275 to Canton Center Road in Wayne County.

It is the intent of the Department to not only invite, but also to encourage, citizen involvement and participation in the M-153 study. It must be stressed that this is not a public hearing of the recommended highway improvements, as there have been none selected. The purpose of the meeting is to gain input, at the earliest stage of the study, from local residents and to stimulate communication and cooperation.

Brochures are available at the Canton Township Meeting Hall. Additional information may be obtained by contacting:

METROPOLITAN
TRAINING CLINIC

Sponsors of all phases of obedience training for all breeds of dogs. A dog worth owning is a dog worth training.

1. We train you to train your dog.
2. Your dog is trained for a better pet or dog obedience shows.
3. Your dog is a worthwhile citizen rather than a juvenile delinquent.

Classes for beginner, advanced, open and utility training. Trophies, ribbons, diploma upon graduation. Bring your dog the first night. Jan. 12, 6:30 - 7:30 pm.

We enroll the first two weeks only. Jan. 12, 19. Health certificates required. For further information call 851-5088, 422-7544, KE 8-0529 or 357-2182.
