New towers of power

Edison's beefing up

That new row of high voltage power lines isn't being installed through Canton's midsection because you fell asleep with the TV on.

And, contrary to many people's belief, it is not specifically being constructed because of the area's recent housing boom.

"The new tower line is an addition to southeastern Michigan's network of power transmission," explains Peter Georges, Detroit Edison's director of customer marketing service in Wayne County. "It is strengthening the backbone of our bulk power distribution system."

New customers in western Wayne County and over in Washtenaw County (served by Consumers Powers) had something to do with the need for more high voltage, but the electrical companies see things in a much larger scale than just western Wayne County or even metropolitan Detroit.

Power that is generated at a generating plant in Port Huron may be used immediately in the Monroe area, even though Monroe is the site of another electrical power plant.

The routing of bulk electricity is handled by a pool computer in Ann

Canton already has two rows of high voltage towers that will be on either side of the new row. The existing towers transmit bulk voltage of 120,000 volts and the new row of towers will support cables carrying 345,000 volts. The Wayne power station at Cherry Hill and Morton Taylor and Washtenaw County's Coventry station will be connected with the additional circuits.

WORKMEN WERE scheduled to finish stringing the line through Canton Township by the end of March. But company spokesmen now say the blizzard and bitter cold delayed construction so the end of April is now listed as the target date for completion of construction in Canton.

When the line is completed, the electricity will travel at a speed of 186,282 miles per second (the speed of light). Even power from Ontario, Canada will be able to be transmitted.

"Because of the excellent working relationship we have with Consumers and Ontario Hydro-electric, we are helping to conserve our coal reserves during the strike," Georges said. "In the respect that we are close to Canada here in southeastern Michigan, we are more fortunate than electrical companies in Indiana, say, and Ohio.'

Alternating current cannot be "stored" to conserve energy, Georges points out. And electrical demands fluctuates greatly during the day. Different areas need electricity at different times. So, the electricity is routed continually to various substations in the region. At the substations, the high voltage, bulk electrical current is converted into a lower distribution voltage of 13,200.

Although some large factories receive current at voltages as high as 120,000 volts, most industrial plants and shopping centers use between 4,800 and 13,000 volts. Homes use 120 volts in normal outlets and 240 volts for heavy equipment.

Edison worker Dave Patterson is stringing up high voltage lines that will whisk 345,000 volts of bulk electricity through the midsection of Canton Township. From the looks of things, he doesn't roll with the flow when someone calls him a live wire. (Staff photo by Gary

Food firm will build with aid

After six months of negotiation with township administrators, the president of Grosse Pointe Quality Food Company has announced he intends to build a distribution center at the southwest corner of Haggerty and Michigan Ave. with tax-free revenue bonds.

The company has already submitted its application to Canton's Economic Development Corporation (EDC), and has paid the required $750 filing fee.

Grosse Point Food's president, Frederick L. Hite, said the company, a division of Farm House Foods of Milwaukee, would like to take advantage of the 2-21/2 per cent sivings over convential financing available through an economic development corporation.

In correspondence to Supervisor Harold Stein, Hite shid he has not taken bids on the project yet, but estimates construction cost will be $4.4/2 million.

Industrial projects formed under an EDC program can receive up to $5 million in tax-free revenue bonds issued by a municipality's EDC, at no liability to that branch of goverment. Interest on the revenue bonds are exempt from all federal state and local income tax with certain limitations.

According to Internal Revenue Code, a project can be financed up to $1 million free of any restrictions on capital expenditures, or $5 million subject to the limitation that the company's capital expenditures in that one location does not exceed $5 million.

Once capital expenditures go over the $5 million mark, the revenue bonds issued by the EDC in a municipality lose their tax-exempt status.

THE BUILDING as planned would be 245,00 square feet, and contain groceries, frozen foods, processed meat and deli items to be shipped to southeastern Michigan and northern Ohio.

If the funding goes through, the plant would employ 185 people, "many will come from Canton Township and many of the employees now working for us . . . would relocate to Canton Township and western Wayne County." Hite projects the building to be completed by May 15, 1979.

A number of public hearings must be conducted before any project can receive tax-free bonds from the EDC. Hearings on the Grosse Pointe Foods proposal will be scheduled this spring. but no specific date has been set.

The township's EDC can approve more than one EDC project as long as the applicants are not related financially.

In fact, a smaller business, West Side Auto Parts also submitted a EDC project application last Thursday. Supervisor Harold Stein, a member of the EDC, encourages more businesses to apply for the tax incentive, saying the program could benefit business and expand Canton's commercial tax Stein noted that there will be no property tax break or exemption for companies in the EDC program.

The meeting was called to resolve the conflict. It was attended by Mrs. Pollack, Stein, Mrs. Hall, Frank McMurray, chairman of the citizen recreation committee, and Clerk John Flodin. Something for everyone

A shopping list for six years

Plymouth City Commission at its March 20 meeting will attempt to narrow down a six-year shopping list.

Monday night the city commission was presented with a Six Year Capital Improvement Program (1978-83).

The program was approved by the planning commission at its Feb. 8 meeting and presented to city commissioners Monday by William A. Leonard, chairman of the planning commission

The list includes several capital improvement projects which could be undertaken, without any prioritizing or cost estimates being developed.

City commissions will now review the list and discuss it at the March 20

AMONG THE PROPOSED projects listed in the six-year plan are:

Band shell replacement when needed; beautification of city parks; construction of left turn lanes at intersections such as Harvey and Ann Arbor Road, Penniman Avenue at Sheldon, and Ann Arbor Trail at Sheldon; city hall expansion, including an elevator or annex; continuation of crack sealing road program; equipment fund to set aside tunds each year for future equipment burchases; expansion of Tonquish Creek Manor; and expressway identification for the

Other items included were: a feasibility study for consolidation of services between city and Plymouth Township; library expansion; Main Street underpass at junction of C&O tracks and Main; Mill and Main intersection improvements; a mini-bus for senior citizens; continued redevelopment of Old Village; parking signs designating location of city lots; parking system improvements; purchase of aerial ladder truck; realign Church Street at Main.

Also: Sewer system evaluation study; recreational facilities; sidewalk ramp construction; sidewalk on Sheloon Road; smoke protector program; street reconstruction and improvement; traffic flow survey, after completion of M-14; traffic light signal at Ann Arbor Trail and Union; and, continuation of tree planting program.

By CRAIG PIECHURA

It is not true that people from Canton Township who show an affinity for fine art are banished to another country. It just looks that way.

Joseph DeLauro happens to head the School of Fine Arts at the University of Windsor in Ontario. But he spends his evenings at home with his family on Bricklan St. in Canton.

At the age of 62, DeLauro must be one of the area's most prolific sculpdissimiliar as Windsor's Hiram Walker Distillery (where he did an 11foot fountain figure of an Indian maiden riding on the back of a Canadian goose) to the modern, multi-colored altar screen that can be found

Locally, the statue of the Madonna in the courtyard of Livonia's Madonna College was done by DeLauro. But he doesn't like to admit it anymore.

According to DeLauro, the college administrators commissioned him to sculpt a Madonna for the school's grounds. He said he learned later that his statue was surrounded by sculptures of children, done by someone else. The addition distracts and detracts from his piece, DeLauro claims.

"IT HAD SOMETHING to do with Our Lady of Fatima," said the sculptor. "But it had no relation to the statue already there. I made me feel Intact examples of DeLauro's artistry can be found all over metropolitan Detroit.

Vistors to Detroit's main library view his "Dancing Girl" at the library's entrance on Cass. Tennis buffs see a companion piece, also entitled "Dancing Girl," in the lobby of the Dearborn Tennis Club.

However, the best place to find examples of DeLauro's artistry is a church, since most of the work he's been commissioned to do is of a religious nature. .

In fact, two of his largest commissioned works deal with Christ-one concerns Christ's crucifixion and the other has to do with His resurrection.

After being commissioned by the Des Plains Mausoleum to carve a Pieta in marble, DeLauro moved his family and studio to Italy for the 1974 year.

There, DeLauro picked out the chunk of white marble for his work at the mountainside and worked with a pneumatic drill on the statue in Florence, surrounded by some of the finest examples of Renaissance sculpture remaining.

THE PIETA is a popular theme in religious art, the most famous being Michaelangelo's version. DeLauro's interpretation shows Christ being embraced by His mother Mary and also Joseph of Armithea, the man who gave his tomb to the crucified King of the Jews.

"Over the years I've found I've enjoyed most of the things I've done," DeLauro said. "But the most difficult or demanding piece was the Pieta. Because you have to compose three figures that are interrelated into a whole.

"Joseph of Armithea was not a Christian," DeLauro explains, "but he had compassion and the understanding that they'd just crucified a very innocent man.

The highest compliment paid to his work, DeLauro said, came from a townsperson in Florence watching him complete the Pieta.

"He said it was like two mountains with Christ flowing like water between them. St. Thomas of Acquinas said we must use natural forms to express supernatural ideas, as Christ used parables. So, I try to use embracable forms in my work."

The Catholic concept of the Holy Trinity, where God is the union of three divine figures—the Father, Son and Holy Spirit-is evident in DeLauro's 12-foot bronze statue "The Resurrection."

In this work, Christ's robe forms three concentric circles and the hands and feet form a triangle.

DeLauro emphasizes that he is not just a religious artist, that he does not limit himself just to sculpture and enjoys teaching and working with modern materials such as fiberglass.

He admits he originally went into teaching art as insurance against artist's unemployment. But, after 18 years at the University of Windsorand Marygrove and the University of Detroit before that—he has no real regrets.

"Whatever commission I take on, whether it's a portrait or a dancing girl, one has to understand first what he's doing," DeLauro said. "Then, you give that project or pursuit that which you have to give. It doesn't have to be a religious ideal, it could be sensual in nature.

"But to understand and convey that quality is the task of the artist. If that's being religious, then I'm reli-

The only way to make sure you're getting the right piece of marble for a sculpture is to go to the mountain and pick it out, DeLauro says.

DeLauro's "Pieta" employs a third person, Joseph of Armithea, unlike Michaelangelo's "Pieta" which shows Mary cradling the crucified Christ. The Canton sculptor said the greatest compliment he ever received for this work came from a citizen of Florence, Italy.

The theme of the Holy Trinity, a mainstay of Catholicism, is represented by the three condentric circles in Christ's robe and in the triangle formed by

Get a job from Growth Works

A young unemployment program has been launched by Growth Works, Inc. and-Plymouth-Canton Community

The federally-funded program will provide paid work experience as well as career planning and life preparation instruction to 28 eligible youths.

The grant has been awarded through the Wayne County Office of Manpower, which also administers CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) funds to local municipalities.

THE PROGRAM, called Youth Community Conservation and Improvement Project (YCCIP), will employ 28 between the ages of 16 and 19.

It is part of a broad range of youth a employment demonstration projects throughout the country in an attempt to reduce the number of jobless youth.

The program will be administered directly by Growth Works-parent agency of the Youth Center and Our House. Supportive services, evaluation and consultation will be provided by the school district. The project is particularly aimed at dropouts, adjudicated youth, and those from economically disadvantaged families. In particular females and minorities are to be served to satisfy the legislative intent of the program.

Most of the 28 spots already have been filled through referrals from high school counselors or administrators. However, a few spots remain unfilled.

THE PROGRAM will be structured to provide developmental services along with practical work experience. The actual work experience will involve projects at park sites in the community, such as Griffin Park in Canton, West Point Park in Plymouth Township, and Tonquish Creek nature walkway in the City of Plymouth. Work will include landscaping, construction of benches, fences and shelters, and cement work. Skills needed for electrical and plumbing work also will be demonstrated.

Of the 28 enrollees, 70 per cent will be from low-income families, and 80 per cent must have dropped out of school or evidenced poor school per-

A total of 21/2 staff positions will be used. A youth coordinator will manage the learning activities, counseling, and perform advocacy functions. A technical advisor will supervisor actual work tasks, providing on-site guidance and instruction. A part-time person will supervise work experiences and assist in counseling.

The program started Feb. 15 and will run through Sept. 30, 1978. Enrollees will engage in 20 hours of program participation until the end of the school year and during September. Each participant will be paid $2.65 an hour for instruction and work expe-

The program will require participants to master basic areas like checkbook balancing, obtaining loans, purchasing automobiles, basic legal rights, and home health care.

The staff also will provide tutorial and small group instruction in basic skills-math, reading and writingand offer an opportunity for a General Educational Development (GED) high school diploma.

No sign of compromise

Local business people are still haggling with the Canton Township Planning Commission over what constitutes a reasonable business sign

And there's no sign of a compromise that is acceptable to the more militant members of the planning body and the members of the business community.

At Monday night's planning commission meeting, commissioners voted down a resolution that would have allowed 24-square-foot signs in a neighoborhood-type commercial site, 50square-foot signs in regular commercial business zones and 50-squarefoot signs plus an additional two-foot for every foot of frontage to provide for visibility.

That proposal, supported by Frank McMurray, Richard Kirchgatter and Bart Berg, was defeated 4-3 but another proposal is expected to be introduced at next Monday's meeting.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce has recommended that a 64-squarefoot sign be allowed in neighborhood commercial centers, or C-1 zones.

Shooting probe goes on

Last month's fatal shooting of a Plymouth Township man by two Wayne County sheriff's deputies is being "routinely investigated" by the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

Deputies Wallace Dixon and George Supernois are still working on the road patrol during the investigation, according to Wayne County Det. Alex Robertson.

"If there were any question about the shooting, they might've been given a desk job during the investigation," Robertson said. "But, our own investigation shows they did a good job.'

Vester Holland, 54, of Elmhurst Street in Plymouth Township was shot eight times Feb. 19 when deputies fired off 10 rounds at him. Police said Holland pointed a shotgun at one of the officers and appeared ready to fire at a deputy stationed at his side door.

Deputy Dixon was the first to fire, according to Det. Patterson. Supernois, heard the blast and thought Dixon had been

So Supernois reportedly fired four shots in addition to the six shots that police say were fired by Dixon. Another officer at the scene, Robert Walker, did not fire any shots, according to Robertson. Holland died at 5:51 a.m., five hours after he was shot.

Police said it appeared that Holland had been drinking heavily, and said his wife had complained to police previously about her husband's violent behavior.

Golf leagues forming

Three separate golf leagues-for men, women and senior citizens-are forming this spring under the direction of the Canton Township Recreation Department.

A meeting to organize the Canton Men's Golf League is scheduled for 7 p.m., April 12. New members in the league must be Canton residents, according to Chuck Sheets, golf coor-

Registration fee is $10 and the league will play Monday evenings at Fox Hills Country Club in Salem Township.

The first 40 members to register and pay the entry fee will be in the league. Games are scheduled to start the "first or second Monday in May," according to Sheets, and will run for 17

The Canton Township Women's Golf League will play on Friday mornings at the township's own course, Fellow's Creek. Registration fee is $5 per person and applications will be taken at the league meeting, 7 p.m. May 10. Games should start in late May or early June, according to Sheets.

Seniors golf leagues are also forming. This league will play Wednesday mornings at Fellows Creek. Call the recreation department at 397-2777 this month or next to register.

Asked why the men's league will not be playing at the township's own golf course, Fellow's Creek, Sheets explained that the recreation department signed a two-year contract with Fox Hills management last year.

"We went to Fox Hills last year because the course was in a lot better shape than Fellow's Creek," Sheets said. "The greens were bad at Fellow's Creek and the upkeep was bad."

This year the City of Plymouth has applied for community development funds for part of the cost of widening the Mill and Main Street intersection, paying for new radios for the fire department, a study of Old Village to see if it qualifies as a low-income neighborhood, cosmetic improvements to Old Village, a fair housing seminar, a citywide sewer survey, and part of the total price for a new fire engine. The estimated amount of this year's block grant is $100,000.

Plymouth Township expects to receive slightly more than $120,000 and plans to use the money to separate the sanitary and storm sewer lines in one of the township's subdivisions.

Canton Township also expects to receive $120,000 this year. The projects it wants to finance include renovating homes in a low-income subdivision, establishing the Folker house as a building for social service agencies and making the township fire station, which is used for governmental meetings, barrier-free in architectural design.

What makes spell work? First you project idea

Forty years ago, when I was a child learning to cast spells, I asked my arandmother what made a spell work. Her answer was simple: "Magic," she

If someone asked me what made a cake rise, I would probably answer "baking powder. I really have no idea why a cake uses, or what chemical action takes place as it bakes. I only know that if you put baking powder in the batter, the cake does rise, and if you leave it out, it doesn't.

Grandma's answer was much the same. She knew that if she followed he directions, the formula, or the prescribed ritual, her spell would work; if not, it didn't.

-She simply called this magic. It worked, and she never questioned

TODAY, WE ARE a more sophisficated generation, and this answer no longer satisfies us. Again and again, I am asked, "Do spells really work, and Kes, spells work. Call it magic if you tke, thut there is a perfectly understandable reason why they do.

All people are susceptible to the power of suggestion. For instance, if someone tells you that the person next to you has head lice, your head will begin to itch, and you will imagine that you have "caught them" from your neighbor, even if there were no lice to begin with.

by being told that they exist. . . When told it is very cold, they will begin to shiver, even if the temperature is near 80 degrees F.

ADVERTISERS USE this power of suggestion to sell their products. People who have never had dandruff in their lives will buy and use dandruff shampoos. Television commercials about food can drive people with full stomachs out to their kitchens to find something to eat.

In spell-casting, ideas are planted in other peoples' minds by sending messages telepathically

The rituals and props used in spells help the person casting the spell to see more clearly in his mind's eye exactly what he wants to happen. This is essential, so that he may project that thought into the minds of others.

The success of any spell depends on the purposeful sending and the subconscious receiving of thought waves.

Bike days are planned on Hines Dr.

There may be several inches of snow and ice on the ground, but it's never too early to start thinking about the annual Hines Drive bicycle days.

State Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia) is asking permission from the Wayne County Road Commissions and communities who have the drive in their boundaries to approve the dates.

Law said the county has given tentative approval to the dates of May 13, June 10, Sept. 9, and Oct. 14, all Satur-

It is expected that the bike days will follow the past pattern in which the drive is closed to auto traffic between 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. between Ford and Haggerty. Law said that there will alsobe community activities scheduled as part of the bike days.

The bike days were started several years ago by State Rep. John Markes, who then represented the 36th House

Positive image needed

Hines Park not a war zone, says Law

Promoting a positive image is the key to getting more people to use Hines Park, according to State Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia)

Law has been the driving force behind the Hines Park Task Force, an ad hoc committee of western Wayne County law enforcement and political figures concerned about the park's checkered reputation.

"It's not a war zone. It's not Central Park, but the overall image is a negative one," said Law.

The park in recent years has been described as a gathering place for drug dealers, teenage prostitutes and rowdy, beer-drinking youths. Law said the park, to many people in western Wayne County, is no longer a attractive place to go.

"We're trying to persuade them that Hines Park is a desireble place to go. We're trying to encourage them to go back into the park," he said.

The Hines Park Task Force has come up with a comprehensive, inexpensive plan to beef up security in the park. This plan, Law said, would, put "security personnel" on duty and help discourage potential trouble-

He said each community bordering the park has agreed to "donate" a Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employee to the new security force.

The proposed force will not have police powers but will be under the direction of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

In all, 15 CETA employees will patrol the park in addition to the 26 deputies already assigned there.

Use of CETA employes means financially-strained Wayne County, which has trimmed a number of sheriff's programs over the past three years, would have to spend very little for the new security patrol.

The new force would operate out of an old Wayne County Road Commission building at the corner of Newburgh Road and Hines Drive. The road commission has already agreed to transfer the building to the sheriff's department, Law said. The sheriff's department would also provide all the necessary communication equipment.

Law also raised the possibility of beefing up sheriff's patrols in the park. He said the task force will propose that five sheriff's deputies be assigned to weekend road patrols in the park during the summer.

According to Law, the union representing the deputies has agreed to waive the overtime provisions of the deputies' contract in this instance. This means that the sheriff's depart ment, instead of hiring new officers, will assign five, two-man patrol cars to the park from Thursday through Sunday during the summer, And instead of paying overtime wages, the county will pay the officers straight wages plus compensatory time.

The union has come to the realization that the county is very short of money," said Jim Akhtar, president of the Wayne County Sheriff's Local 502

Cindy Kolke...marketing manager...head of a department of nine salesmen...college graduate (the hard way, through 9 years of hight school) ... a very decisive young lady who knows how to watch for the right opportunity and take advantage

So when Cindy decided to buy a new car, she started by shopping carefully. Not just for the car...but also for the money to buy it. That was the begining of another smart move . . . for Cindy and us. Because, just about the time Cindy was starting her shopping, we were starting our New Car Money Sale.

We're Cindy's bank. Manufacturers Bank. And (like the other banks of Manufacturers National Corporation listed below) we just made a substantial reduction in the interest rates on our autoloans. For example, with the required 20% down payment the interest on a 36 month loan has been reduced from 11.96% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE to 9.76% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE. For Cindy, this meant a savings of over $100. An opportunity that was too good to pass up.

So she borrowed her new car money from us. And that's the whole idea. We figure if we make life better for young people like Cindy now...they'll make life better for us later on. Maybe our New Car Money Sale can do the same thing for you. Check the chart on the left to see how much you can save. Then ask us, or your dealer for the money to buy your new car. But hurry. Sale ends March 31st.

As he sat at his desk, explaining the type of work he has done for the past six years. Hopfner admitted that being a locksmith was a far cry from the tasks he had performed until he reached retirement age.
"It may sound odd, but I was a member of the Detroit Fire Department, and when I started on that job, I never dreamed I'd wind up being a locksmith in Plymouth. The big change in his life came when the time drew near for retirement and he had to think about what he would do. He didn't want to sit around and wait for old age to overtake him.

It so happened there was a locksmith shop near his home close by the City Airport at Connors and Gratiot Avenues. He dropped in one day, became interested, and, before he knew it, was on the way to a new

"The owner wouldn't take me on until I learned a bit so I spent a lot of time studying and then calling on people in trouble. After about six months I was given a part-time job. Then when the day came that I retired from the fire department, I had some activity to turn to for a livelihood."

ADMITTING IT IS a long way from the Detroit City Airport to Plymouth, Hopfner explained that he was attracted to Plymouth by several

"First, it is a growing area and secondly, the people seem so friendly and nice that I decided Plymouth was the place to settle down.

He had been taken in as a partner in the locksmith business in the city and later purchased the company. Now, he has taken his son in with him. The only thing missing to make the new set-up perfect is that he is having a difficult time finding a home in which to settle down for his retirement years.

In his new shop, Hopfner spends most of his time making keys and he is amazed that more people, when moving into new quarters, don't demand that all the locks be changed.

With this idea in mind he tells you that he'd much rather fix an old lock than sell a new one.

He was quick to point out that when a new house is purchased few persons realize all the workmen on the job-or most of them-have keys.

"It isn't necessary to replace the locks, but the points in the lock can be changed at a greatly reduced cost than purchasing new ones.

THERE IS A HUMOROUS side to being a locksmith, as he told of the oddest case he ever had, and that one iust recently

A short time ago he was called to the new I-275 expressway where a man with a truck had stopped at a gas station to have his gas tank refilled. He had a dog in the rear of the driver's seat and when he got down from the cab he left the motor running.

Then, like most dogs do, when the animal saw his master he leaped over the front seat and, arcidently, pushed down on the button aid locked the car.

"It was all I could do to keep from laughing," Hopfnet said, "but here was a dog that locked his owner out of his own truck.

One of the biggest troubles he finds these days has to do with aluminum keys. "People buy them because they are cheap. But the keys don't last and often break off in the locks.

Hopfner has come a long way in the locksmith business since the day he sauntered into the shop in the east side of Detroit, looking for something to do when he retired from the Detroit Fire Department

He not only owns his own business, but is vice-president of the Michigan Locksmith's Association and a high ranking member of the national asso-

He proudly tells you that one must qualify to gain membership in these organization by doing field work for at least a year and a half.

And as he looks at all of the new homes being built in the Plymouth-Canton area, he feels that this will be his home-if he can find a suitable dwelling. But he doesn't expect any more dogs to come to his aid by locking their owners in their own cars.

WETRY HARDER

Science fiction earns scholarly recognition

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

A whoosh, a roar and a burst of dazzling lights. >

They used to be the staple of science-fiction novels. But things are changing. The action and excitement are still there, but pyrotechnics have been upstaged by serious social commentary. And drugstore pulp has entered the halls of academe.

"Sci-fi" has arrived as a literary form. High schools throughout the Detroit metropolitan area offer at least one science fiction elective. School officials in Birmingham and Livonia say science fiction is their most popular course.

One Detroit public high school offers 26 sections in science fiction—all are filled. Wayne State University and the University of Detroit offer high-level courses in the subject.

MARSHALL TYMN

BUT WHY the new-found popularity?

According to Marshall Tymn, professor of English literature at Eastern Michigan University, the answer is simple: Science fiction is exciting; entertaining and relevant to young Tymn should know. He is a coordinator of the nation's largest annual gathering of teachers of science fiction. More than 200 teachers are expected on the EMU campus this spring for the conference's third meeting.

"Mainstream literature just is not furnishing any answers to younger readers about where we're heading," said Tymn.

"Science fiction literature is attractive. It's alive with mind-boggling con-

"It's probably more entertaining than mainstream literature. And younger readers are turned off by literature that doesn't entertain."

TYMN SAID today's science fiction readers, far from being lost in daydreams, want to know what their alternatives are for the future.

"Science fiction deals with those alternative futures. Science fiction is giving the broad picture of the direction in which we may be heading. It deals with corruption, ecology, mismangement in government. The emphasis is away from hard science."

The sci-fi of the 1970s, Tymn said, has come a long way from Flash Gordon, Buck Rogers and the monster invasions of the grade B Japanese

Instead science fiction has gone "serious."

"Today's writers are not concerned with gadgets, monsters and computers coming to life," he said.

"Logan's Run" and "Soylent Green," were two recent science fiction films Tymn pointed to as examples of the new emphasis on contemporary and future social problems.

"Logan's Run wasn't a bad movie. It tried to portray what the future might be like," he said. That movie depicted a society in which no one was allowed to live past the age of 30-a "youth culture" gone berserk.

"Soylent Green' tried to portray a vastly over-populated world suffering from other ecological problems," he However, Star Wars," the biggest box office hit ever, wins no interstellar points from Tymn. "It was a highly entertaining movie, but it stressed special effects. It created a negative effect. It reinforces all the streotypes. All it did was set science fiction back," he said.

NEVERTHELESS, Tymn acknowledges the media-hype surrounding "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters" has helped to extend the popularity of literature which had for a long time only a cult following. "Its no longer a stigma to write science fiction. And the market is a lot easier to break into for a writer," Tymn said.

"And our writers are accessible. That's not always the case with mainstream writers," said Tymn. "We can see the Issac Asimovs, Peter B. Clarkes and Ray Bradburys.'

"There are scores of conventions, and the writers never fail to make the

CHARLES BUELL, an English teacher at Birmingham's Seaholm High School, agreed with Tymn.

"The real value of science fiction is that it points to the changing role of the individual in the future," he said. After some consideration, he corrected himself, "It deal deals with the changing role of the future." "It also lets the kids look at contemporary problems from new perspectives. It teaches them an awareness of some of the problems we now face," Buell said. He added that many of things they read about in the "Martian Chronicles" and the "Science Fiction Hall of Fame" are not all that far-fetched

"Look at some of the things they're doing at the University of Michigansplitting DNA (the molecular blueprint for life). It was unheard of.'

And at Eastern Michigan University, the physics department is even trying to promote interest in its specialty by teaching its own science fiction

CANTON TOWNSHIP 43450 Ford Road near Shellon, BINGHAM FARMS OFFICE PLAZA 30400 Telegraph Road just horth of 12 Mile Bishop, whose district includes the lakes country of western Oakland County, had just come from a hearing, last week, with the Senate conservation committee on his bill to regulate public access sites for boaters on inland lakes.

Bishop says his SB 1343 would "set" criteria.

The State Department of Natural Resources says of the local property owners and townships: *They're just trying to keep the public off."

Committee Chairman Joe Mack (D. Ironwood) told Bishop and the DNR to get together and see if they can work out their disagreements.

So far, the only thing they can agree on is that Bishop and other lakes legislators, notably Rep. Rick Fessler (R-Union Lake) have introduced the same bill before.

KEITH WILSON, director of DNR's waterways division, denies there's even a problem with a glut of new access sites. "We haven't bought a parcel of property down there since 1967, and only three after 1949. Our acquisition program poses no threat to riparian owners in that county.

Bishop's bill would limit DNR to acquiring access sites only on lakes of 160 acres or more where less than 75 per cent of the frontage is in residential use.

DNR's Wilson says: "In Oakland County, the only lakes (eligible) would be those with a huge swamp or where we already own property. That takes it out of Oakland County"-that is, no Oakland lakes would meet that crite-

Bishop wants access sites only where there is a major or secondary road that is not presently overloaded with traffic.

Wilson calls that provision vague. "It doesn't say whether the road must be overloaded all year long or only one day of the year," he said.

WILSON SEES one provision as causing too much delay in site acquisition if the bill is passed. Presently it takes 100 days to go through the legal and Natural Resources Commission procedures to acquire a site, "And that's only if everything goes exactly

He says Bishop's bill would add 120 days to the procedure. That adds up to 220 days, or 57 per cent of a year. A seller would be reluctant to grant DNR an option to buy his property if he had to wait 220 days to close the deal, Wilson said.

Bishop's bill would require one foot of access site frontage for every acre of lake. Thus, for a 175-acre lake, the access site would have to have 175 feet of frontage.

"You only need the width of a boat, town by their own electorate if this ramp plus 20 feet on either side for frontage," said Wilson. "We try to acquire a minimum of 100 feet."

A KEY RESTRICTION which Wilson says would backfire on the bill's sponsors would require one auto parking space in the access site for every five acres of lake surface.

"On the 175-acre lake we were talking about, this would mean 35 parking spaces. Under our (present) criteria, we would provide only 20 parking units. The sponsors would be run out of

If some lakes are crowded, it could be because there are too many boats, but it could also be because boats are traveling too fast.

"Speed limits can be placed on a lake. There is a procedure under the Marine Safety Act for doing that," said Wilson.

He added: "The owners say in effect, 'If you don't put in an access site, we don't have a problem.' That's just garbage. They're just trying to keep the public off.

Energy cost help available

April 30 is the deadline to apply for help in paying utility bills under the Energy Assistance Act.

In January the Michigan Legislature approved the bill, which expires Sept. 30, 1978, and appropriated $38 million. Under the bill's provisions, there are two types of payments made to those who qualify. For persons directly responsible for paying utility bills an initial payment of up to $130 will be made, depending upon income. A second payment of up to $70 will be made for those qualified, based on actual gas, oil, and electrical energy usage for November, December and January. The total of the two payments cannot exceed $200

Roll Call Report

Pursell, Ford back House pothole repair bill

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 16 through Feb. 22.

HOUSE

POTHOLES-Passed, 274 for and 137 against, a bill (HR 10979) to give the states $250 million for repairing potholes on their roads. The money would be allocated according to such factors as a state's climate, miles of paved roads and the number of vehicle-miles travelled within the state. Each state capable of demonstrating "emergency" conditions, including those with tropical climates, would receive no less than one-half of one per cent of the $250 million. The bill was sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert Young (D-Mo.), a supporter, said: "This is a record-setting winter, and I believe that it demands some precedent-setting legislation. The bill. . . is a one-time emergency measure. It does not imply that the federal government will assist the states in road repair every winter."

Rep. Butler Derrick (D-S.C.), an opponent, said: "The resources of the federal government are not infinite. We simply cannot assume every new responsibility even when it may be a worthy one...The federal government cannot be all things to all people and at the same time maintain a sound budget and a strong national Members voting "yea" favored the sign million appropriation for pothole repairs.

HUMPHREY INSTITUTE-Passed, 356 for and 53 against, a bill (HR 10606) authorizing a once-only expenditure of $5 million to help establish the proposed Humbert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota. The facility would provide college-level and adult-education instruction in government, and serve as a repository of the public papers of the former senator and vice president. The Senate has not yet acted on the bill

Rep. Albert Quie (R-Minn.), a supporter, said "the greatest memorial to (Humphrey's) life will be the preparation of future generations of leaders. Let us insure that today.'

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), an opponent, said his opposition "in no way denigrates" Humphrey's public record but expresses his concern that "if we are in fact to spend taxpayers' money in the amount of $5 million for any one of the many who are prominent, one has to raise the question of exactly where the line is to be drawn." Members voting "yea" favored the expenditure. Bonior, Ford, Brodhead, Blanchard, Broomfield and Pursell voted "yea."

B-1/BOMBER-Voted, 234 for and 182 against, to terminate the B-1 bomber program. This vote rescinced a previous $462 million appropriation for two more B-1 prototypes, and was regarded as the final congressional action needed to kill the B-1 program in accordance with President Carter's request of last year. The B-1 once was regarded as the "bomber of the future" and four prototypes were built. But Carter and Congress have now decided that B-52s outfitted with Cruise missiles will serve as the next generation of manned bomber.

Rep. Jack Edwards (R-Ala.), a supporter of killing the program, said: "I guess I am looked upon as something of a superhawk. . . And yet I cannot go along with the construction of (two more B-1 prototypes). . . For goodness sake, think of the folks back home who are paying the taxes."

Rep. Samuel Stratton (D-N.Y.), an opponent, said: "We Americans prided ourselves on keeping our military technology ahead of that of the Soviet Union. Certainly, in our vital nuclear Triad, we cannot do anything less than use the latest technology, which is, of course, the B-1 bomber.

Bonior, Ford, Brodhead, Blanchard and Pursell voted "yea." Broomfield voted "nay."

Members voting "yea" opposed the PANAMA CANAL—Tabled, 67 for and 30 against, a motion aimed at undercutting Senate support for the proposed Panama Canal treaties. The motion sought to reverse the order by which the Senate will consider the two treaties, so that the treaty transferring control of the canal zone to Panama would be voted on before the treaty guaranteeing the canal's neutrality. Adoption of this tabling motion means that the neutrality treaty will be brought up first. The order is important because many senators will vote for transfer only if the neutrality treaty is first amended to guarantee U.S. defense interests.

Reuther Center may close doors to the aged soon

A new method of financing the Reuther Extended Care facility in Westland must be discovered by March 15 or the center may close its doors to its 178 patients

That's the deadline set by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners at a recent meeting

After approving a $545,820 supplemental appropriation to keep the facility operating through March 12, the commissioners adopted an amendment setting March 15 as the deadline for finding state or federal funds to keep the facility open and "self-supporting.

If the deadline passes without success in finding financing, the board is expected to propose a phase-out plan, which would have to be approved by federal district court Judge Ralph

In response to lawsuits filed to stop the closing of the Reuther facility, the courts have ruled that the county has the right to close it. But Freeman also has said the county must have an "orderly transition" plan.

If Reuther hospital closes, its patients would be transferred to some of the 110 licensed nursing homes in Wayne County. About 15,000 patients now are housed in those nursing facil-

Faced with a $13 million deficit, the county board of commissioners adopted the recommendation of the board of auditors that the Reuther facility be closed due to the county's $3.5 million annual operating deficit.

"The future of the Reuther facility is in the hands of the state and federal authorities," John Barr, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, said. "The county cannot afford to subsidize the facility when we are mandated by law to pay for skyrocketing criminal justice needs.

"If the Medicaid payments could be raised to reflect the unique and higher level of skilled nursing care offered at the Reuther center, it could be selfsupporting and there would be no reason to close it. Nearly 85 per cent of the patients are Medicare recipients,"

he said. Barr said Medicaid reimburses the county $60 per day for a Medicaid patient compared with an actual cost of $108 per day. There is some doubt, however, that the Department of Social Services could increase payments to the Reuther facility without increasing payments to other nursing facilities as well.

Don't miss chance to appeal tax bill

Who'd have thought that Canton Township taxpayers would miss an opportunity to gripe about their tax bills?

Supervisor Harold Stein's secretary, Rose Bretzlaff, said last week that the number of persons requesting an appeal before the tax board of review has been surprisingly low. So, in a rare plea for complaints, Mrs. Bretzlaff is extending the deadline to allow anyone the opportunity to meet with the tax board of review now through March 17.

Call the Canton Township Hall at 397-2777, to reserve an appointment to make your plea.

The board of review is composed of three residents-Richard Palmer, Jack Blumenshine and Jerry Williams-who are local taxpayers themselves who can respond to valid complaints by reducing property assessments.

But to get your assessment lowered, you must have a better reason than just believing that taxes are too high. Normally, assessments are hiked every year by the application of an "equalization factor," which is governed by inflation. You can find out what your new property assessment is by calling the Canton treasurer's office.

As most taxpayers know, all local millage rates (school, township, county) are levied against the state equalized valuation (SEV) of property.

The SEV is supposed to represent 50 per cent of the market value of the property. The equalization factor then is applied to bring local assessments up to state equalized values when the state decides that the local assessments are too low.

Thus, a local assessment of $10,000 would be multiplied by a factor of 1.15 if the state thought local assessments were 15 per cent too low.

In the example above, it would simply be a matter of determining whether $11,500 is half of a what a homeowner's property is worth. If a person thinks the home is worth more, he has no complaint. But if he thinks his property is worth less, he should take his complaint to the board of review and appeal for a reduction. Good luck.

Bravo for business

Supervisor Harold Stein could still stand a refresher course in Norman Vincent Peale's "How to Win Friends and Influence People," but he's been making liars out of people who pooh-poohed his plans to bring industrial development to Can-

His justifiable concern is that Canton could fall into the trap that besets so many other suburban communities—lack of a diversified tax base.

Maybe he's going in the office at 7 a.m. to work, not just to impress his co-workers. Because there's an impressive application to build a food distribution center in the works, and a fabricating company is taking advantage of plant rehabilitation funds.

He has taken steps to improve water pressure in the industrial corridor along Michigan Avenue to attract large industry in the southern end of the township.

Stein is out there stumping for business in a way we can support. Not by bending over to give them breaks, but by making business contribute to the good of the whole community.

Advantages of gray

One shouldn't have to remind folks to do something that is to their advantage. It should be selfevident, for example, that it's good business to hire older workers. The state really shouldn't have to observe Employ the Older Worker Week March 12-18 and put on a campaign to help persons over 45 find jobs.

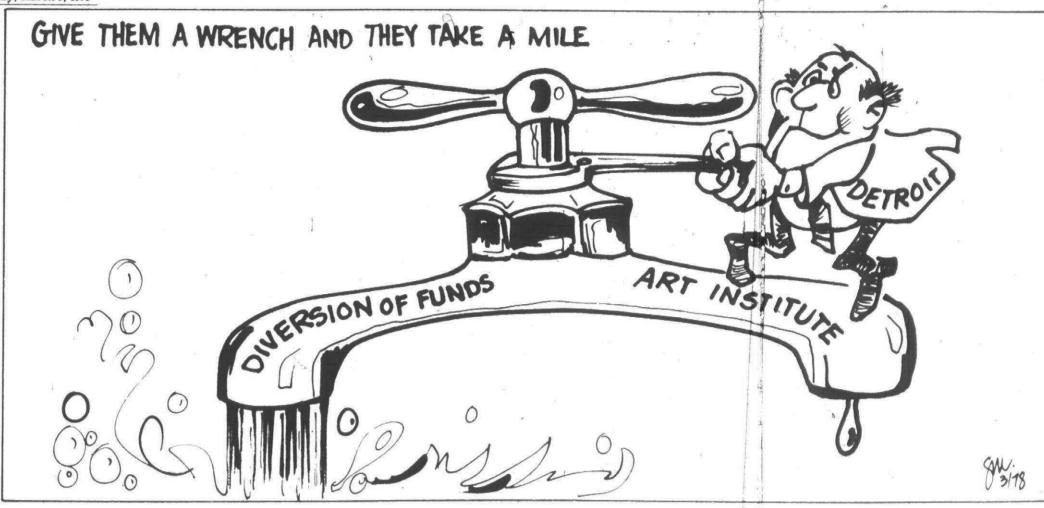

Maybe it's necessary, though, because we forget a few things.

One is that fewer persons will be entering the work force in the next three years. The post-World War II baby boom persons are already in the work force. There should be reduced pressure to force workers to retire at 65.

Second thing is that our Social Security system is under financial pressure. Eliminating mandatory retirement will help build up the fund and stop the drain.

A third thing is that older workers tend to be the most skilled workers. They tend to take less sick leave and have fewer job turnovers and jobrelated accidents than younger workers, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commis-

Mandatory retirement of older workers takes the life out of many of them. That's a charitable reason for not forcing older workers to retire. But there are more practical, solid, business reasons for keeping "gray power" on the payroll.

Detroit skims aid to art institute

The truth about the Detroit aid package is starting to come out.

Just six weeks after Gov. William G. Milliken announced his budget would boost aid to the Detroit Institute of Arts by 60 per cent (to $7.1 million), there appeared a fly in the ointment.

Detroit Budget Director Walter Stecher proposed that the art institute reimburse $250,000 toward the city's overall power bill.

Art Institute Director Frederick Cummings is denouncing the budget machination as a "step backwards." He said it will disrupt the art institute's ambitious program, perhaps forcing it to shelve one or more major exhibitions such as "Peru's Golden Treasures."

So you now get the scenario: Detroit has a cultural institution it can't support; the state deems the art institute to have statewide cultural significance; the state kicks in two-thirds of the operating budget; and the city creams off some of that aid for other purposes.

THE ART INSTITUTE isn't the only institution in line for state aid.

The Milliken budget asks $6.5 million for the Detroit Public Library and $742,000 for the Detroit Historical Museum.

For several years, the state has been pumping more than $9 million annually into the Detroit Department of Transportation to subsidize pension liabilities of the city's bus system.

Floating around the legislature is an "urban grants" program designed to help cities that levy income taxes. Few cities do so, and only Detroit has a two per cent tax rate (the others charge one per cent), so Detroit will come up with $8 million of the $12 million in that kitty.

Then we stumble across this gem in the bottom of a long, gray article in the daily papers: "Detroit's school system would gain an additional $3 million in municipal overburden funds (this year) because of changes in the funding formula providing reimbursement to cities that levy utility

I'll give you one guess how many, and which, cities tax utilities. Just one guess.

One. Detroit alone has power to tax utilities and collect a $3 million state reward... But I

THIS IS NOT to argue that the Detroit Institute

Arts isn't a cultural asset for all of southeast

Michigan, or even for the state. Rather, the argument is that it's foolish for the state to fund a city institution without acquiring some control over that institution. The Detroit Institute of Arts is owned and operated by the City of Detroit. Theoretically, we smaft-aleck suburbanites shouldn't have anything to say about how Detroit runs its affairs. But we're paying for it. Well, you say, it's only $250,000 out of a budget of $10.6 million. Ah, but the city financial experts have other siphons in mind. Budget Director Stecher is quoted as saying there are plans to charge the art institute for water and sewer services next

Now, the rest of us, as customers of Detroit's water and sewer department, have found out how futile it is to challenge what Detroit wants to charge us for water and sewer services. It took a federal court case just to get an outside audit of that department.

So who is there to protest if the City of Detroit warts to charge sky-high water rates to the Institute of Arts? No one, really, has the freedom to do it because the art institute is controlled by the City of Detroit.

And the rest of the state pays for it, or at least $7.1 million out of a $10.6 million budget.

The truth about the Detroit aid package is starting to come out.

Old 'protection' law stifles banking

Banking is one of the most regulated industries in our country. Banks are watched over by the Federal Reserve Boards, the comptroller of the currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the state financial institutions department, among

The general purpose of all the regulations is to protect the consumer's money.

However, there is always the problem that if . there is too much regulation, instead of protecting the consumer, there becomes a restriction of competition among banks, and the consumer is, in fact, hurt rather than protected.

In the 1930s, banks closed. In the 1940s, there were banking scandals in Michigan. As a result, under the banner of protection, strict banking laws were passed in this state.

Under the state constitution, all banking legislation requires a two-thirds vote of the legislature instead of the simple majority vote for other bills. This makes new laws harder to pass, entrenches old laws that may not be appropriate today, and helps suffocate innovation.

ONE OF THE LAWS passed in the 1940s, as a result of the banking scandals, was the branch banking law. It said no bank could put a branch more than 25 miles away from its home office.

It also said no bank could put a branch in a city where another bank or another bank's branch was already located. This latter portion of the law assured a virtual monopoly once a bank was in a city unless people wanted to start a brand new bank. The whole 25-mile limitation is inappropriate today because the suburbs have grown substantially beyond the 25-mile parameter. The outer edges of suburbs are limited to new banks. The backers of the branch banking law back in the '40s were the large Detroit banks. The law allowed them to surround the largest metropolitan area in the state, branch into the best communities and keep out competition. The problem was that the consumer was forgotten. Everyone got the same service, which was little. Savings accounts were paid 1.5 per cent interest. No business was conducted on Saturdays. Local loans of a substantial size had to be sent downtown for review.

THE STODDARD family of Michigan National Bank figured out a way to get around the old law. They started several new banks such as the Troy National Bank, Oakland National Bank in Southfield, Livonia National Bank and several others.

This allowed them to move into cities that were previously monopolized by one bank

When the new banks were formed, all of a sudden savings account interest soared, Saturday banking reappeared, no service charge banking was innovated, and banks began to compete by offering more services.

Then under the new Bank Holding Company Act. Michigan National put the ownership under one umbrella, the Michigan National Corp., and changed all the banks' names to Michigan National Bank—something.

They allowed customers to deposit funds to, or withdraw funds from their accounts at any location, even though legally they were separate banks This allowed companies to have statewide banking and consumers easy access to banking services, wherever they were.

LAST WEEK FEDERAL Judge Ralph Guy ordered Michigan National to stop this practice because it violated the branch banking law. The effect of the decision will be to push banking back to the '40s when retailers had their only outlets downtown, and regional shopping centers were dreams of the future and suburbs sleepy little vil-

We won't see changes in the law to update it because the large banks like it the way it is and have strong lobbying power.

The little banks also like their monopolistic positions in small towns and now have less fear that competition will come in and change their ways.

While the judge may be legally right, he is helping perpetuate the anti-competitive nature of our banking laws which help the banks but not the people who use them.

It wasn't brought about by technology. Automation had nothing to do with it. But The Stroller has come tothe conclusion that one of the greatest changes in our life style in recent years has to do with the "pleasure" of

On almost every side these days, when food prices are part of the inflationary spiral, one hears it is much cheaper to dine out than to pay the high price in the market and then toil in the kitchen to prepare a meal.

Well, The Stroller spent many years of his life without knowing what it was to dine out. Coming from a poor family and loving home cooking, he wouldn't trade any of his mother's meals for anything that could be purchased on the outside-with one

ONCE EACH YEAR when The Stroller was a young lad, he would join a group that journeyed by horse and buggy to a country hotel about eight miles away and feast on what the farmer's wife enthusiastically described as the best chicken and waffle dinner that could be found any-

When you sat down to the table, they passed around large platters filled with stewed chicken, another large plate with golden waffles, and then a large pitcher of chicken gravy. And you were not confined to one helping. What a feast! But it happened only once a year.

Then as he grew to manhood, The Stroller learned dining out meant going to one of the hotels over in the city on a Saturday evening where food was given to you as a lure to purchase drinks. The drinks meant nothing to him because he was still a minor.

But he still an visualize the chef opening the door from the kitchen and walking behind a steam table that held a large roast pig. He carved it to your order. And you could have seconds if you wanted. What feasts they were. This dining out was a pleasure.

With memories of those days in mind, he decided to join the trend and dine out on a recent Saturday evening.

DISREGARDING the fast food places where he often had stopped for a snack or a cup of soup, he had his mate select one of the popular dining rooms in the area. And what a shock he got!

The hostess greeted us at the door and directed us to a nice table. But before we could sit down, the waitress smiled broadly and asked: "What can I bring you from the bar?" Mind you, we had not taken our seats, let alone placed an orde for food.

Finally, after a longer wait than had been expected, we were given menus. The order was placed, and the wastress gaily walked away. After a while, she returned and said: "Your order will take a little while. Now can I get you something from the bar?" Being a non-drinker, The Stroller just stared a

Then, as he sat there waiting, he was reminded of the remark of a friend in the food business: "The waitresses run our business-and if you don't believe it, you should just watch them dilly-dally if the customer is a non-drinker. They see chances of a larger tip fading away

BY THIS TIME the waitress returned. "Are you sure you don't want anything from the bar, before I bring your food?

"No," The Stroller answered. "I came here to eat.

At that moment, the waitress at the next table informed her customer, "We have just the right wine to go with that fish. Undaunted, the customer, without even looking at the waitress, shot back: "I came here to enjoy a piece of fish. Not to drink wine-and I don't care what kind it is." At last our food was served. It was a grand meal, served in nice surroundings. The atmosphere was suitable for young lovers

But as for enjoying the meal, he didn't enjoy it any more than the chicken and waffle dinners his wife Leona prepares with one hand resting on a walker in these days of her convalesence. And she doesn't keep ask-

Small is beautiful

I think small is beautiful-at least where neighborhoods, communities, and local governments are concerned.

A merger of the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township would do much more than save some money by eliminating some duplication of effort and equipment. It would destroy two small governments which have distinctive jobs to perform.

The benefits of size are measured in dollars and cents. The benefits of a small community cannot be figured in decimals, but how many of us really believe any more that bigger is automatically better?

The City of Plymouth is a true community with the different kinds of people and diverse activities that this entails. And, it is limited to a managable size where people can deal with each other as individuals rather than members of large opposing groups.

The city and township have different problems; the city to preserve and develop its distinctive character as an alternative to the huge shopping center and suburban sprawl, the township to direct and control growth. I think the way to do a quality job in both cases is to specialize, not to dilute each effort by merging.

Where city and township can find mutual advantage in cooperation on specific projects, let's do it. But let's think long and hard before we risk destroying advantages we may not appreciate until they are gone-by once again falling for the obvious, but limited advantages of bigness. Remember, we would get the disadvantages along with the advantages.

Jaycee individuals backed him, Joyner stresses

I wanted to take this opportunity to write and express my sincere appreciation for the coverage given my appointment to the county board of commissioners. The response from the community immediately following was most gratifying.

I would like to note that in the article you talked of Jaycee support for my appointment. While it is true that I have served the Michigan Jaycees in a leadership capacity, the Jaycees as an organization does not and should not endorse candidates.

I was very fortunate to have the president of the Michigan Jaycess and several local Jaycee members as individuals offer their support for my nomination. This is the way it should be . . . individual community leaders supporting candidates.

To all of those that have called offering their assistance in this transition period, I offer my thanks.

Bigger isn't always better

Enclosed is an exerpt from Ellie Graham's column, The View from 461 S. Main, on Feb. 20, 1978. It points out (ironically, perhaps) the virtues of a small school district.

Isn't it about time for Plymouth to have its own schools again? Think of how many of our school problems that would automatically be solved.

Bigger is not necessarily better.

Please reprint the enclosed for those who may have missed it:

"DISCUSSION OF the middle school concept and a home for the alternative high school at last week's school board meeting raised some questions.

"Trustee Richard Arlen recalled for a good many years, kindergarten through 12th grade was housed in what is now Central Middle School. This was before there was such a thing as a middle school concept. There were about 1,200 students K-12 at Central plus those in the one and two-room country schools. That was the whole school population and it included a group from Livonia which was then a township.

"How had those students weathered the proximity of older students? Could they recall any bad experiences?

"People like U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell and Russell Kirk, author, syndicated columnist and arch conservative, were two of the underprivileged who were not available for questioning. Golf pro Tyler Caplin was not contacted in California nor was Kenny Fisher, director of the Post-Education Convening Authority of the Institute for Educational Leadership in Washington.

"They seemed to have overcome the ill effects of spending their middle school years next door to the older stu-

"Those interviewed have stayed in their hometown area . . . ' (Column continues with experiences of those who found the experience beneficial).

Winter blahs, flu blues

The topic for today is depression.

The kids and I have had variations of the flu for almost a month now. My husband has to go out of town on business, leaving me alone to fend for myself against the Romper Room Set all day and listen to the house settle all night. And I think I've gained five pounds

If anyone can come up with a better reason than that for cultivating a textbook case of the winter blahs, you have all my sympathy.

Right now I have this image of us, come spring, emerging from the house with white pasty faces, black circles around our eyes, squinting at the bright sunlight like bears leaving their winter caves. It's bad enough being cooped in like this, but when it's topped off by generous doses of dysentery, well, I don't mind saying this is really the pits!

It's terrible what the flu can do to one's morale in the middle of a bleak February. My moods begin to take on the complexion of the gray, gray sky. I contemplate throwing the patio doors open to the elements, even though it is five below outside, because I'm starved for fresh air. I start daydreaming about picnics and beaches and even yearn to see a mosquito.

Even though my poor little body is racked by aches and pains and a general feeling of winter malaise, it's still "business as usual" for those of us who have chosen housewifery as our career. Our contracts have no allowances for sick days.

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

Oh, we have days when we are sick alright; it's just that no one acknowledges them.

If I could only get a doctor's certificate stating that changing one more stinky diaper could bring on terminal

Being sick used to be fun when I "worked" for a living. A simple call to the office and the day was spent reading magazines, gazing dreamily over my box of tissues at silly game shows and vintage Bette Davis movies. The thrill of an oncoming cold is gone now that I know it only means I'll have to hold my breath whenever I'm around the kids so as not to contaminate them. Which doesn't give me a whole heck of a lot of breathing time.

Stuck in the midst of this gloomy winter, it's make the best of a bad situation, or go bonkers. Take your pick.

Today I thought I'd give myself a treat and try to watch the afternoon movie on television. The boys were napping and the house was clean enough to pass general inspection (it never gets much cleaner than that). After watching about 15 minutes of "Caged", "the gripping drama of a women's prison in which Eleanor Parker runs the gamut from a young innocent to a hard and bitter convict." I felt like running over to our picture window, pressing my face against the glass and screaming "Let me out! I promise I'll go straight! Please let me

Perhaps it should be made law that only Doris Day movies are allowed to be shown in February. Or maybe we could just pass a resolution to forget February altogether, erase it off the calendar and just go right into March. Late March would be nice.

Managers, as group, happier than blue collar work force

The compatibility suggests a lessening in conflicts and stress between the generations on the job. The "company family" is somehow coming together or at least reconciling past differences after a long period of alienation. The prodigal sons and daughters may be returning to the fold. Let's hope so.

We've really missed them.

By JACK BOLOGNA George Odiorne Associates

The current crop of management literature is loaded with books and articles which seem to suggest that today's managers are overworked, overcommitted to their career roles and emotionally undernourished in terms of job satisfaction.

You might even assume that anyone in a supervisory or executive position, if given the choice, would opt for the simple life of the clerk or factory hand and give back his-her trappings of office, status, salaries, fringe benefits, etc. But the truth seems to be oppo-

Recent surveys conducted by the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan suggest that managers, as a group, are happier and more contented with their lives, families and jobs than are blue-collar and non-management white-collar work-

Even the long-term trend is optimistic. Managers today feel no more frustrated than their counterparts of 20 years ago. But they may be operating at a higher need level of satisfaction than their predecessors because their basic human needs (food, shelter, clothing) are better satisfied today.

The fundamental differences between the managers of old and the new breed are differences in style and value priorities. The typical manager of the '20s and '30s tended to be more authoritarian while today's manager tends to be more democratic or participative in style.

Value priority differences involve a movement or direction away from materialistic values (sustenance and safety needs) to the non-material needs like self-esteem, belonging, creativity and self-realization, i.e. quality of work, good interpersonal relationships and involvement in decisions.

The most interesting implication of the above study is that the new direction in style and values of managers runs parallel to the style and value preferences of most recent college graduates.

Waisting Aweigh

Sharp apparel a diet aid

By NANCY AUSTIN

Traditionally for myself, and I'm sure for many of you, February and March are long, dismal months, which seem to drag out unendingly, holding spring at bay. Often our mood coincides with the gloom and we wonder if both our's and the weather's moodiness ever will end.

Unfortunately, our gloom frequently is reflected in our mode of thinking and ultimately in our personal appearance. If our mode of dress is dingy and dowdy, very often so is our attitude. When we dress smartly and take care to present ourselves fashionably, pay attention to hair style and, above all, cleanliness, our mood and attitude will again be reflected for all to see. Others perceive you as you perceive yourself.

MEN AND WOMEN who have a weight problem seem to exemplify these mood swings more than anyone

Perhaps it is a vicious circle. Have you let your appearance deteriorate because of your weight, or is it because of your weight that you let your appearance suffer? Ask yourself what has precipitated your "I don't care" attitude.

Take a good look at yourself in a full-length mirror. Do you like what you see? Would you rather not look? Ask yourself some pointed questions, and answer them honestly. Do you have a fashionable hair style, or is it just pushed off your face and hooked back with bobby pins? Is it clean and fluffy, or limp and dull?

Are the seams of your clothes split? Have buttons popped off of blouses and shirts? Do the zippers refuse to close? If this is true, next time you launder, toss these clothes into a mending pile and don't wear them until they are repaired. You say then, that your whole wardrobe will be in the mending pile? Then it is time to get down to the business of mending and making yourself look presentable again.

What about that wardrobe? What wardrobe you ask? Look through your closet. You own exactly two outfits? Of course. You keep saying you will not buy a third because you refuse to spend any weight. It is time to be rea-

Maybe your meager apparel is a contributing factor to your not losing weight. You look dowdy, feel dowdy, and bored with your clothing. You eventually feed these negative emotions with food. The food makes you fat, the fat depresses you, you eat more, your size enlarges and so does the vicious cycle of depression.

Break the habit!

Spruce up your wearing apparél. You'll not only look better, your selfesteem will escalate and your elevated attitude will give you a fresh and optimistic outlook on life.

Do you apply make-up properly to highlight your good features and minimize your bad ones? All your features look bad, you say? Nothing will help? Make yourself shake that negative image. There are thousands of round faces with very pretty features. Perhaps just a little knowhow with cosmetics can bring out the best in you. Most major department stores have experts to help you learn. A new look is bound to contribute to an uplifted

Now put it all together. Wash your hair and try a new, more becoming style. Put on a new blouse or perhaps a necklace to perk up the old one. Apply a touch of make-up to add a little color to your face.

Then take a brisk walk in the winter air to bring a little natural color into your cheeks. A five-minute walk will do. A brisk walk will provide that all important exercise, too. And who knows, maybe you'll meet that new neighbor who moved in down the

When you come home, you'll be delighted with yourself. You should feel refreshed and renewed. Now look into that mirror again. The beginning of a new you? I hope so.

When you look better, you'll feel better. When your attitude towards yourself improves, it should make dieting just a bit easier

SUNDAY NIGHT dinner-theater makes its Plymouth debut March 12 in the Mayflower Meeting House.

It will be theater-in-the-round when members of the Plymouth Theater Guild present Jack Sharkey's "A Gentleman and a Scoundrel." The comedy, with a cast of three, is ideal for intimate theatre.

The play will be directed by Patricia Bray of Northville, president of the Plymouth Theatre Guild. She directed "Under the Yum Yum Tree" and "We Have Always Lived in the Castle" for PTG. She had the lead in "Hello Out There.

Plymouth Township resident Tom Hinks plays the dual role of the gentleman and the scoundrel. He has had major roles in theatre guild productions and directed "All My Sons" and "Portrait in Black." Hinks works for Burroughs Corp.

Carole McNulty of Livonia has the part of Jenny Corell, the ultra-liberated businesswoman who responds to the scoundrel more than good old Fred Dickson, the gentleman Michael Nelson, a graduate of Oakland University, completes the cast. Nelson now teaches English at Crestwood High School in Dearborn Heights. He is familiar to PTG audiences and during his college days, was assistant director of the musical, "Hair.

Sunday's will be the first of six dinner-theater productions in the Meeting House. The format will be repeated March 19, April 2, 9, 22 and 30.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. and the play will begin at 8. Seating is limited to 150 persons and reservations will be filled on a first call-first served basis. A complete dinner will be served with a choice of two entrees.

HOWARD GIFFORE made it three in a row when he had high score for the men in the Thursday afternoon party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center. For Ann Hickman, it was first time high for the women.

TICKETS FOR the April 16 production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" now are available at five local stores.

A professional group from New York will perform with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra in the last regular concert of the season. Curtain time will be 4 p.m. in Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium.

Admission will be $5 for adults and $2.50 for senior citizens and students. Plymouth Book World in Forest Place Mall, Audette's Office Supply on Ann Arbor Road at Sheldon, Beitner's Jewelry on Ann Arbor Trail, Heide's Flowers on Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey, and Arnoldt Williams on Canton Center Road at Ford have tickets.

Members of the Plymouth Symphony Society will be admitted with their season tickets.

Conductor Wayne Dunlap will be back for the concert. He has been on salbatical from the orchestra and his position as director of fine arts at Grand Valley State Colleges. Wayne has been soaking up the su8 i8 Arizona and California.

NANCY CHAPMAN called to say the Pilrim Garden Club is recruiting new members.

"So many people think you have to be a great gardener to belong to a garden club," said Nancy. "If you're interested, you can learn a lot. We have three interest groups-herbs, African violets and outdoor gardening. The speakers at our monthly meetings are always very interesting.

The club, a branch of Michigan Federated Garden Clubs, meets the last Thursday of each month in Hulsing Elementary School. Nancy Jones of Plymouth Nursery will speak at the March 24 meeting. Her subject will be constant color in the garden.

Anyone wishing more information about the club can call Debbie Slater, 459-0682, or Mrs. Chapman, 455-6117.

Members were dazzling in evening gowns at Friday's gala affair in the Plymouth Hilton as 118 members and spouses met for cocktails, dinner and entertainment.

Past presidents honored at the party were Betty Hoheisel, Betty Childs, Chris Witwer, M.J. Willette, Dorothy Becker, Fran Bauer, Margaret Daniel and Esther Hulsing.

Chris Witwer, a 40-year member, gave the invocation. She filled in for Nancy Tanger who was in the hospital. Esther Hulsing read the history of the club. Fran Lang provided a musical background on the piano as Ruth Burr read the collect.

M.J. Willette chaired the 85th anniversary planning committee. She was assisted by Elizabeth Holmes, Dorothy Oven, Margaret Kidston, Rosemary Norquist, Kay Wood, Barb Pray, Betty Koch and Mary Ellen Kenyon.

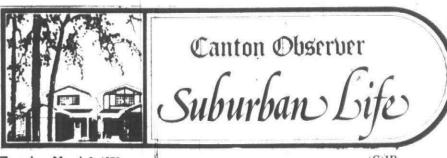

The Great Lakes Steel Male Chorus performed after the buffet dinner.

What have you been teaching your children lately? Beware. What you teach them today may be the cause of your demise tomorrow.

This week may be the last time I go out to save my reputation as super mom athlete of the year. Two hockey games are scheduled practically back-to-back, where my presence has been requested.

More than just my cheering from the sidelines is required. This week, not once but twice, I must sharpen my skates and practice my shooting to compete against my boys' hockey teams.

Now it is possible to decline such a challenge, and next year I'm asking for a little mercy for the one who has taught them practically everything they know.

No way would my children ever admit that I taught them anything, especially how to play hockey. I also am sure they would never give me credit for teaching them how to catch a baseball, swing a bat level, or dribble a basketball.

I AM NOT now, nor have I ever been a boy. Where did I learn all these feats of skill? It comes with the territory. In other words, just by being the mother of boys.

I will have to give a little credit to the coaches my boys have had, their father and even their grandpa. But I still insist I taught those boys even if they don't remember.

The many hours I've spent playing catch with them I could never count. When we erected a t-ball stand in the backyard I became their number-one fielder. We play basketball on the driveway, and they always accuse me of making up my own rules. It is necessary, of course, to play by my rules since I know nothing about the official game and I can only make a basket if I'm standing in a certain spot. Anyway, I'm bigger than they are and it's my driveway.

When did I ever teach them how to play hockey? Well, who was it that taught them how to skate? They don't remember, but I do. I remember when they were 2 years old and I held them up while they learned how to keep their balance. My arms were almost breaking off with their extra weight pulling me down.

When they both decided to put sticks in their hands and shoot a puck, who was their chief goalie? Now, they can't wait to get me out on the ice to do me in. Why did I ever teach them how to skate anyway?

LAST YEAR, when we went skiing, I had to hold their ski poles and pull both me and one of them up the tow ropes. I yelled instructions to them all day. This year the three of us stood at the top of an intermediate slope and they were both at the bottom before I decided I could make it.

Last summer we had a swimming race across the lake. They were sitting on the opposite shore making bets with each other on the time I would sink to the bottom and never be heard from again before I surfaced gasping for breath.

Oh yes, I have taught my boys well.

They can out-ski me, out-swim me and out-shoot me. When we ride bikes, I'm always two miles behind. When we jog around the park, they're sitting on the front porch munching popsicles before I round the last bend.

Even my tennis is becoming a little shaky against my oldest.

THIS WEEK I will have to point out to them my major disadvantages in playing hockey against them.

First, the only time I have every played this ridiculous game is once at the end of each season. I'm also skating in figure skates and shooting with a left-handed stick when I happen to shoot better right handed. Also, I can only do a hockey stop on my right side which gets me into a little trouble during a game. But nevertheless, I will give it a valiant attempt.

If I make it through my 8-year-old's game, I may recover before it's time to play my 10-year-old. Last year I only needed three stitches in my hand after the game.

My last cry in the dressing room before entering the arena will be "No checking mothers!"

To my own little darlings I'll just give them a wink and hope they remember who taught them practically everything they know.

Dottie had Las Vegas preview of permetrics

Dottie Conn came back from Las Vegas with a dazzling preview of the spring and summer of '78. Permetric hair styling, padded shoulders, layered skirts and floaty fabrics head the fashion forecast.

Pearls are making a comeback but fine chains—all lengths—will be perfectly proper for 1-5 wear.

"Silk dresses that glide over the body add a sensuality remarkable for

Winkler's technique is there

By TIM RICHARD

The smallest and one of the least enthusiastic audiences of the year heard one of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's best concerts of the season

While the 32d season hasn't been one of Plymouth's best performance years, guest conductor Clark E. Suttle and the group called up a lot of adrenal for the works of Debussy, Wieniawski and Mendelssohn.

THE JOYOUS number was Wieniawski's Violin Concerto No. 2 with the feline Kathleen Winkler as soloist. Miss Winkler crouches and springs on the more tortuous passages. She soars gracefully with the frequent lyrical

In the final movement, marked in the style of the Gypsy, she flicks her hand up the fingerboard to make the high notes zing.

Miss Winkler's tone isn't opulentthough perhaps I have been a little spoiled by the 10-inch recording young Isaac Stern made back in the Pleistocene Era. But her phrasing is exactly right, and with a composer as warmly Romantic as Wieniawski, phrasing is

All the required technique is there, too, for Wieniawski himself was one of the giant performers of his day and required technique in his composi-

On balance, it was an entirely satisfying performance of a concerto that has long been missing from the national repertoire and was performed for only the first time in Plymouth. It's full of melody, full of bravura and full of violinistic razzle-dazzle.

Miss Winkler, who at 27 is cracking out of the teaching and orchestral mold, will be a soloist on part of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's statewide tour this spring. It's likely outstate audiences won't take her for

The only sour sound was the program notes of William Weichlein, who huffily dismisses Wieniawski's short works as "generally well-written, often brilliant and ineffective, but of no particular importance as significant compositions." Musicologists are often piano snobs.

The big problem has been the violin sections, and young Suttle has been working them hard and giving them lots of attention. A few entrances are still rickety. And there was a passage between the first and second movements of the concerto that was embarrassingly tinny

But Suttle has been making great progress in his brief stint with the orchestra while Musical Director Wayne Dunlap is on sabbatical. Suttle conducted two Debussy nocturnes and

Plan science fair

Students at Tanger Elementary School on Five Mile Road are involved in last-minute preparations for their tirst science fair Saturday. Teachers Carolyn Powell, (from left) Robert Johns, Gail Nicholics and Kathy Allen have headed planning for the fair which has involved every student, kindergarten through fifth grade. The Parent-Teacher Organization is cooperating to make it a memorable occasion. A pancake breakfast will be served at the school, and whole families are expected to attend. Tanger PTO recently rewrote its bylaws with an eye to students rather than "things." All activities are geared toward involvement of the children, their families and the teaching staff. The pancake breakfast-science fair is the first major project resulting from the new philosophy. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Madonna spring registration set

Registration will be held at Madonna College, Livonia, March 13 through 18 for new courses and workshops offered in the spring-summer term. Some classes in this term begin May 2 and extend to July 25, while others begin in mid-June and meet for shorter blocks of time or on weekends. Many are scheduled for evenings.

Registration may be completed at the Student Service Center of the College on Schoolcraft Road at Levan (on I-96) from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday or from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday of registration week. A complete schedule of classes may be obtained by calling the admissions

For employed persons or upper division students in business administration, classes are scheduled in such areas as administration of health care institutions, special problems in international business, marketing research and analysis, and decision-making with statistics. Computer science and intermediate accounting also are scheduled.

Of special interest to in-service teachers are a four-weekend introduction to the metric system, musical experiences for the disabled child, art for the elementary school teacher, and introductory courses leading to certification to teach emotionally impaired students.

For professional development or pleasure, the college is offering a class in stained glass design, painting in watercolors and acrylics, piano instruction for the adult beginner, and a workshop in basic clothing

High school students who may wish to reinforce pre-college skills or earn dual credit may register for non-professional courses such as general psychology, world problems, American government, creative writing, or introduction to general chemistry. There is also a workshop in vocabulary building.

Madonna is a member of the Catholic College Consortium and students from other member colleges in the are may register for classes as visiting students. Other persons, including adults, are welcome to register as special students before formal admission. The college offers two- and four-year degree programs and is accredited by the North Central Association of Schools. Tuition is $39 per credit hour.

Clara Camp, chairwoman of the PCAC's third Newton, who is chairing the finance committee, and Donna Micelli, who is handling publicity. (Staff

There will be plenty of birthday cake and bargains next Wednesday on the second floor of Dunning Hough Library, Main Street, Plymouth.

The third annual birthday sale of original art and reproductions from the Plymouth Community Arts Council's art rental gallery will open at 9 a.m. March 15 and run until the library closes at 9 p.m.

Most reproductions will be offered at discount prices. An added attraction this year will be an open portfolio of unframed reproductions. Works of Raoul Duffy, Georges Braque, Picasso and two copies of Andrew Wyeth's "Shed Lantern" will be in the

AMONG THE ORIGINALS in the sale are: "Narrow Pathway" by Albert Decker, "Whoo" by Kay Lehman, "Still Day" by Alice Nichols, "Hurnming Bird" by Robert Kauffman, and 'Portrait of an Indian Girl' by Nancy Bundorf.

Also "Snowballs" by Nancy Steed. 'Mary" by Eleanor Nief, "Roses" by Mary Sue Compton, "Fea Time" by Judy Gresser, "Raing Forest" by Susanne Ebel, and "Young Woman in Moonlight," by Agnes Hodges.

The biceptennial collection will be featured at reduced rates.

"They have served their purpose in the community," said Bess Decker, special advisor to the gallery. "Now we must make room for new items.'

THE COLLECTION was purchased in celebration of the bicentennial.

Eleven area businessmen matched funds with a $500 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts to buy 21 reproductions of paintings by famous ' American artists.

Alyward's "Landing of the Pil-grims," Grant Wood's "Midnight Ride of Paul Revere," Trumbull's "The Battle of Bunker Hill," and others will be priced at $15 or $25 A few of the works included in the sale will be on display in the window of the Detroit Edison office on Main Street until March 14. THE RENTAL gallery opened in 1975. The gallery was made possible by a $1,150 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts with matching funds from the PCAC.

The gallery gives area residents an opportunity to rent pictures for their home or office for $2 a month. Dunning Hough Library has cooperated with the arts council in the ventureproviding a home for the gallery.

The gallery is open Wednesdays during regular library hours.

Clara Camp chairs the rental gallery committee. The current inventory of 139 pieces includes 65 reproductions and 74 originals

A reproduction of M.C. Escher's "Another World" (left) and a batik original by Kay Leman will be offered for sale March 15.

Working on a theological education extension program gave David Mesenbring (right) the chance to visit the homes of many Africans: Here he stops for a chat with Mhlabani Duneko.

Lutheran reports on Africa

By SHERRY KAHAN

David Mesenbring is experiencing a sense of relief now that he is home in Farmington, after a two-year stay in South Africa. But he also has a feeling of pain. "It is painful when friends of yours are picked up at 3 a.m. and detained by the government," he said. "So while it is a relief to get away from that kind of atmosphere, there is also the pain of leaving the people I was close to.

"I don't know which is worse, to get a phone call with the news of an arrest, or not hearing about it at all."

Mesenbring, who was in South Africa during a wave of oppression against blacks last fall, soon will talk on his experiences in two area churches. He also will discuss the role in African politics of his friend Steve Biko, who died in jail last September, and who many believe was murdered.

At 7 p.m. Sunday, Mesenbring will speak in Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia. At 10:15 a.m., March 19, he will relate his story in Hope Lutheran Church in Farmington, where his father, the Rev. Victor Mesenbring is pastor. The church is at 26715 Farmington Road, Farmington.

Mesenbring himself has a master's degree in theology from the University of Chicago, and found that working with South African religious groups was a good way to meet people in that troubled country.

"THERE WERE TWO MAJOR groups of Christians," he said. "There were the historical churches like the Anglican, Methodist and Catholic, and the African Independent Church. I tried to work in both.

"But I was disillusioned with the historical religions. I felt the grass roots Christians were in the independent churches. They took the traditional African culture and Christianized it in an authentic African way.

"In the west we have developed God's word, and we're weak in the spirit. In the independent churches I met people who had a profound understanding of God's spirit.

"I was not a teacher, but I could share with them what I knew about the word, and they offered me what they knew about the spirit."

MESENBRING MET STEVE BIKO through a mutual friend.

"My friend told me Biko and I would like each other," recalled the former North Farmington High School student. "Biko was one of the most unracist individuals I've encountered. He didn't see me as a white man, but judged me on my own terms.'

After the young black leader's death, Mesenbring was involved with helping collect papers about Biko, as well as Biko's own writings to be used in a soon-to-be-published biography.

"A man who was kicked out of the country asked me to do this for him," said Mesenbring. "So, I talked to groups who had the material he needed. I have to be vague about this because some of those who gave me information could get in trouble."

Biko's main contribution to blacks living in South Africa was to start a black consciousness movement. It was not a political movement but one designed to instill a mood, and to overcome black inferiority, Mesenbring pointed out.

"A number of different organizations sprang from it, such as medical clinics run by blacks, cottage industries and other programs to meet blacks' needs.

"No question that Biko was the genius behind it. He felt that even if the government cracked down on black organizations, black consciousness would continue."

Mesenbring then noted that last October, 17 black organizations were banned. But six weeks later, three new ones had already taken their place.

MESENBRING WENT TO South Africa to teach at St. Bede Anglican Seminary, but he purposefully found a variety of jobs. He thought different kinds of employment would take him into interesting corners of the country.

While writing a correspondence course on South African church history, he made his home in a fural area where he learned to speak Xhosa. Often called the click language, Xhosa uses three different click sounds in place of the letters C, Q and X.

"Learning the language is the only way to make contact with people," he said. "You can't understand their way of life unless you talk to them

With rural people I got the sense that they still had their sense of dignity, that they believe in their own way of life. Urban blacks have been broken down by being inundated by white values.

He also traveled to various areas with a religious education extension

In his second year, he lived in the home of a prominent Afrikaner journalist, a decendant of early Dutch settlers. Afrikaners, he says, basically run the country

"The Afrikaners were persecuted by the English back in the days of the Boer War, and it resulted in a build up in their national spirit," said Mesenbring. "Yet they don't seem to understand that their persecution of the blacks is building in the blacks that same kind of spirit.

Organ society to show musicals

The Motor City Theatre Organ Society. Inc. this weekend will launch a series of bi-weekly musical movies in the Redford Theater, 17360 Lahser. Detroit

The opener will be "The Sound of Music" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Overtures begin at 7:30 p.m. on the theater's 1928 vintage Barton theater pipe organ.

Other films and dates include: "Easter Parade" on March 24-25; "The King and I" on April 7-8; "Show Boat" on April 21-22; "Hello, Dolly!" May 5-6; "Carousel" May 10-20; "Singin in the Rain" June 2-3; and "Brigadoon" June 16-17.

Some films-including "The Sound of Music"-will be presented in 70 mm and six-channel stereo, methods known for picture clarity and realistic sound. Few theaters own such equipment. Redford's 70 mm projectors and sound system were acquired from the Summit, Detroit's last Cinerama movie house which fell under the wrecker's ball earlier this year.

Tickets are available at the box office but may be ordered by mail by writing to the organ society. Tickets are $2 each. If eight or more are purchased in advance for any combination of films, they may be purchased for $1.50 each.

The Motor City Theater Organ Society is a group of more than 400 area residents dedicated to the preservation of the theater pipe organ and the fostering of its music.

It's authentic bluegrass

The premier American performance of a four-piano concerto is a tale that begins in a discount department store in the suburbs, goes twice to England and will end nest week in Birming-

The work is "Variations on a Theme by Mozart" by the contemporary Englishman George Malcolm.

It will be performed at 4 p.m. Sunday, March 19 in Seaholm High School, W. Lincoln at Cranbrook, by members of the Birmingham Musicale and the Oakway Symphony Orchestra.

The tale began when Oakway Conductor Francesco DiBlasi, on a shopping trip in Korvette's, stumbled across an obsure London disc called "Music for Four Harpsichords." Most of the music is from the 18th century, but the Mozart variations were written by Malcolm, one of the performers.

DIBLASI LIKED it and sought the score in order to perform it. It turned out to be unpublished.

An Oakway board member tried to track down Malcolm on a trip to England and couldn't locate him.

AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

Then Michael Rasmussen, choir director of Antioch Lutheran Church in Farmington Hills, visited a friend who plays in the London Philharmonic and came up with Malcolm's address.

"I sent him a money order for $20," DiBlasi recalls, "and wrote out my credentials and asked for a copy of the score, expecting a Xerox copy. "By return mail, I got George Malcolm's own original, pencil score and his handwritten notes on how to perform it—four pages!"

DiBlasi wrote his own orchestral accompaniment to the work, turning it in effect into a concerto.

The trusting Malcolm turned out to be a pianist and conductor of some note who has performed in his own land, Canada, the United States, the Philippines, Japan and Israel. A Mozart specialist, Malcolm in recent years has concentrated on the harpsichord, a keyboard instrument in which the strings are mechanically plucked rather than hammered, as with the

Malcolm performed in a harpsichord recital early last year in New York. THE THEME is taken from the andante gracioso movement of Mozart's Duo for Violin and Viola (K. 424). The variations are true to the classical grace of the original theme. Guest artists in this work will be:

ham piano teacher with experience in the Pontiac Symphony and extensive, accompanying work on both piano and harpsichord.

Northville tops Canton swimmers in league meet

The Plymouth Canton swim team's hopes for a Western Six League crown were ruined by perennial loop champion Northville last Friday, as the Mustangs defeated the Plymouth squad 326-279 in conference meet action at Farmington Harrison.

The Chiefs entered the Western-6 meet with a 7-1 loop record tied with the Mustangs. Canton and Northville split dual meet decisions during the

The Chiefs, 11-1 overall with the best dual meet record in Observerland, was paced by sophomore Paul Petersen's two first-place honors at the league meet. Petersen won the 100-yard breaststroke and the 200-yard individual medley with times of 1:03.7 and 2:07.1 respectively.

Junior Dave Tanner won the 200yard freestyle event with a 1:52.1 clocking. Senior Steve Wood won the 100-yard butterfly with a superb time Canton's 400-yard freestyle relay won the last event of the meet as the combination of Wood, Dave Smith, Tanner and Mike Gaab excelled with a time of 3:27.3.

Tanner placed second in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of :50.5. Wood was second in the 500-yard freestyle sprint with a :23.4 clocking.

Bob Cline took two second-place finishes in the 200-yard individual medley and the 500-yard freestyle. Cline's styles of play. Glenn used a finesse, outside shooting attack with a zone defense, while the Rocks countered with a physical, inside and mediumrange oriented offense and a man-toman defense. Glenn shot at a torrid 60 per cent clip for the contest, making good on 27 of 45 attempts. The Rockets hit 10 of 12 from the field during the first quarter, but held only a 20-19 lead. Salem didn't do too badly in the shooting department itself, hitting 29 of 58 from the field during the tussle. Doug Martin came off the Rockets' bench in the third quarter after Ed Bates had accumulated his fourth personal foul and netted 10 points the rest of the way

Even though Salem was victimized by a cold spell during that third period, coach Fred Thomann's troops were far from finished

The Rocks held a 46-44 advantage going into the fourth quarter and it wasn't until midway through that period that Glenn took the lead for Three different times, Salem pulled within two points of the Rockets during the final two minutes with pressure-packed field goals.

However, the Rockets managed to stay one stride ahead of the Rocks with key baskets or free throws of their own.

Daran Armstrong spearheaded the balanced Glenn scoring attack with 14 points. Tom Jurewicz added 13, McBride and Mitch Preston, 12 apiece,

Rich Hewlett tossed in 22 points for Salem, Tom Ellinghausen 13.7

"We did shoot it, didn't we?" said an elated Glenn coach Gorden Davis. "We knew that's what we'd have to do to beat them. These kids refuse to believe they can't win. They always get themselves up for the bid one. "We just didn't handle their outside shooting like the last time (a 68-60 Salem win earlier this season)," said Thomann. "They shot extremely well, but we didn't put as much pressure on their shooters.

Ticket Information

The Plymouth Canton girls gymnastics team ran into some stiff competition at regional action last Saturday as none of the four Chief gymnasts qualified for the state meet.

Canton found itself at the Ludington regional where last year's top three teams in the state competed+Ludington, East Lansing and Monah Shores. Ludington successfully defended its regional crown on Saturday and was one of only two teams to qualify for state action this weekend. Ludington won six of the eight all-around events.

Canton's four regional qualifiers, Leslie Bublin, Wendy Gray, Leedah Schrader, and Katie Heaton, had poor performances at Ludington. Nonetheless, Canton coach Barb Winn was pleased that her girls advanced to this

"It was good that we went to the regionals because we saw good competition," Winn said

MASONITE* $

"We did well for a first-year sport. I thought with the people we had, we would go to state but it just wasn't -

To qualify for the regionals, the girls had to score better than 7.1 in floor exercise, 6.4 on the bars and beam, and 6.8 in vaulting on four different occasions during the regular season.

Bublin and Gray qualified in all four events, while Heaton and Schrader qualified in all but the bars.

As a team, the Chiefs qualified for the regionals after scoring more than 80 points in a dual meet on four different occasions this year.

Plymouth Salem, coached by Gretchen Parcell, did not qualify anyone for the regionals as the young team finished with an 0-8 record. Plymouth Canton ended the season with a 6-2 dual-meet mark.

For years, the members of the bowling fraternity have been noted for their generosity. They live by these two slogans:

Bowlers never forget

Bowlers take care of their own.

Never has this generosity been so spontaneous or come at a more opportune time than last week at Garden Lanes when Joe Gammit, the 46-yearold clerk, suffered a heart attack and died right on the job.

Word spread fast, not only along the lanes at the time, but to the other leagues that bowled at Garden Lanes. Within 48 hours, the bowlers had raised a fund of $1,000 and presented it

It really showed that bowlers have a heart.

TWO OF THE AREA VETERANS proved that they still can knock over the maples even in the stiffest kind of competition.

They were Dick Preston and Hal Jolley, old timers in the classic leagues, who took over first place in the regular doubles in the ABC tournament in St. Louis over the past weekend with a 1300 series.

Dick put together games of 226, 182 and 268 for 676 and Jolly contributed counts of 195, 227 and 202 for 624. It was Preston's 24th ABC and the 20th year for Jolley. With their 1300, they hold a lead of 25 pins.

CHUCK CARDEN finally reached the goal he long has sought when he posted a 712 in the J&J League at Garden Lanes.

One of the leaders in the other leagues came close to that score when Bob Hawk hit 697 in the St. Linus League. Bill Shonce left his rivals behind in the junior house league when he fashioned a 641 and George Triplett had a 644 in the St. Norbert League.

DAVE TRICKETT wishes he had another chance to roll the final ball in his series in the Waye-Westland Tournament at Wayne Bowl.

After stringing a line of 11 strikes, his final ball went a bit wild and he left up the 3-5-6 and had to settle for a 297 in a 636 series.

A FINISHING GAME of 267 enabled Bob Goike Jr. to set the pace in the Little Caesar's Classic at Westland

The big count came after identical games of 213. Bob Jawor was right behind when a 268 middle game helped him to a 664. Rick Capaldi and Jerry

Rizzo with games of 233 and 253 in 670 and Kathy Johnson had 212 and 225 in

THOUGH SHE DIDN,T win any of the individual games, Madelyn Donehue walked off with series honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic when she registered a 515-111-626.

In the individual games, Betty Markwardt won the first with 191-32-223. Betty Moeller took the second with 220-34-254 and Delores Dowham captured the third with 201-32-233.

GREG HATTER came back to the winners circle when he paced the Thursday Classic at Farmington Lanes. To get there, he rolled a 244 in 655. His nearest rival was Neil Beckman with a 245 in 636.

In the Friday Noon Clsssic, Jan Missle took the top honor with a 222 in GAIL GRIWICKI came into her own again Monday evening when she found the range for a 256 closing game and a 673 that was high for the night in the Bowlerettes League. Her 256 missed being high single by one pin when Sue (Lynch) Horvath came up with a 257.

THE CITY OF LIVONIA Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring a senior citizens tournament at Livonia Lanes starting April 1 and running week days for the entire month.

All senior citizens are invited to enter. One of the most prominent entries will be Selma Nedel, the 88-year-old competitor who recently rolled a 203 game to go 108 pins over her average. On the same squad, Al Laramee went 125 pins over with 623 series.

THE SENIORS had a good time throughout the area

Wally Austin paced the Good Timers at Plaza Bowl with a 239 in 574, and Louis Csordas rolled a 242, high for the league at Plymouth Bowl. Nick Lopez was right behind him with 234.

STEVE RAY was high in the Franklin High School league # Woodland Lanes when he fashioned a 200 in 553. He is a 138 average bowler. Joe Smith, with a 145 average, posted a 525.

Dasher named all-American

Plymouth Salem senior gridder Bob Dasher was recently named an honorable mention "All-American football player.

The 6-3, 235 pound lineman was an All-State selection and the ninth mc+ sought after player for the colleg ranks in the state.

The blue chipper signed a four-year scholarship to attend the University of Alabama two weeks ago.

Swimmers eye state meet

By ANDY MELIN

The Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem boys' swim teams will be represented by three individual qualifiers and their respective 200-yard medley relay and 400-yard freestyle relay teams this weekend at the state swimming and diving championships.

Canton finished second in the Western Six League with a best ever 7-1 record and 11-1 overall mark this year. Salem ended its campaign with a 5-6-1 overall record and 2-4-1 mark in Suburban Eight League competition. The Rocks finished fourth in the Sub-8 league meet.

Sophomore swimmer Paul Petersen was the only individual state meet qualifier for the Chiefs. His 100-yard butterfly time of :54.6 and 100-yard breaststroke time of 1:01.7 rank among the best in the area and in the state.

The Canton 200-yard medley relay team of Petersen, senior tri-captain Steve Wood, and junior tri-captains Bob Cline and Dave Tanner enter the state meet with a 1:44.6 clocking.

The 400-yard freestyle relay foursome of Cline, Wood, Tanner and junior Mike Gaab had a season low time of 3:24.6.

The Rocks placed two individual qualifiers.

Senior tri-captain Tom Rubadue qualified in both the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard freestyle.

Tankers have great seasons

Some of the areas top swimmers will compete in the annual state meet on the Michigan State University campus in East Lansing this weekend.

With all the excitement of the state basketball tournament encompassing the area, I'd like to take time out and not forget to congratulate all the Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem tankers whose times qualified them for the state competition.

A pat on the back should go to Chief swim coach Bill Faunce and Rock mentor Chuck Olson for the great jobs they did this season.

Canton finished with a dual meet record of 11-1, which is the best in the Observer area. The Chiefs finished second to Northville in the Western Six League meet last weekend but defeated the Mustangs in dual meet action for the first time in the school's history three weeks ago.

The successful Canton season is a great reward for the hard work and dedication Faunce and his swimmers have given to the program. I talked with Faunce at the beginning of the season and he was very pessimistic of the upcoming year because he had lost so many swimmers to graduation and decisions to work rather than swim.

But it's a credit to Faunce's program that he rebounded with some talented swimmers and a hard-working team which excelled against its toughest competition of the seeson.

The Rocks finished the season with a less spectacular record but placed fourth in the Suburban Eight League meet last weekend. For coach Chuck Olson's crew to finish in the first division of the Sub-8 in an accomplishmemt in itself. I feel the Sub-8 is the toughest swim league in the state with teams like Dearborn, Dearborn Edsel Ford and Belleville among the best squads around.

Olson's crew had to overcome some displinary problems at the beginning of the season and the flu bug toward the end of the year and still finished fourth in the conference.

Mackenzie ousts Bishop Borgess

A hot-shooting Detroit Mackenzie truintet that canned 57 per cent of its field-goal attempts and 20 of 25 from the free-throw line eliminated Redford Bishop Borgess from the Livonia "Franklin Class A basketball regional Tuesday, 62-50.

Borgess never led in the contest, as Mackenzie scored its first basket only six seconds after the opening tip-off and out-pointed the Spartans during every quarter.

Keith Smith, a 5-11 all-PSL guard for the Stags, failed to net any points during the first eight minutes, but had collected 20 by the end of the contest.

The Stags led 16-11 after the first period. The Spartans, trailing by as many as nine points at one point of the second quarter, came back to within three, 26-23. But two turnovers, a "missed one-and-one opportunity and a foul sent Mackenzie into the lockerroom at the intermission up 30-23.

Dave Agardy scored Borgess' first three field goals of the third quarter, as the Spartans again pulled to within three, 32-29, but a three-point play by Smith shortly thereafter built a more secure Mackenzie advantage.

Borgess, which committed 21 turnovers during the contest, started throwing the ball around regularly in the third period and began fouling in an effort to catch up. Mackenzie was in the bonus situation five-and-a-half minutes into the third period.

The Stags canned 14 of 17 from the charity stripe during the second half. The Spartans committed three consecutive turnovers late in the third period to enable Mackenzie to increase its lead to 47-37 going into the fourth. The Stags notched five unanswered points in less than a minute at the start of the final quarter to put the game out of reach.

Borgess coach Ron Gutkowski suggested that his Spartans may have been a little drained by their tough Ferndale District.

"I didn't think we had much intensity. We had three games last week and it's really an experience for us to beat Ferndale," said Gutkowski. "We just didn't come back with the same effort tonight.

"We just weren't aggressive attacking their defense (mostly zone, with occasional pressing). It was not necessarily their good defense, but rather our inept offensive play," Gutkowski

Campers show sense

By LEM MESEE Outdoors writer

The recent camper and RV show at the W. Eight Mile Armory showed the industry is finally coming to its envi-Fronmental senses.

For years, we watched campers and RVs repeat the errors of the automobile industry in the 1950s and '60s-bigger and bigger, more and more elabo-Trate, higher and higher pricetags. The trend in the auto industry was reversed by the energy crisis that began in 1974.

But the camper and RV people "didn't catch on until this year.

Most pop-up campers have been in the 1,400 pound and up class. The 1978 show came up with a couple of models which could be pulled by compact and "sub-compact autos at great gasoline

One nifty little model tips the scales at less than 800 pounds. It stands 40 Inches high, which means that you can see over the top in your rear-view mir-

. The only bad note was a continpuation of the trend to sell lots of poptions on campers and cheat on some of the basics. Last year I was annoyed to find beds of 44 and 46-inch widths being touted as capable of sleeping two persons. Standard is 52 inches. This year, I found a 42-inch-wide bed -touted as a double.

Such a bed could handle two 3-year-Tolds, but not two adults, not even if they cuddle. Take a tape measure along when you shop.

CAMPING FEES are up this year in Michigan state parks. The new sched-

• $5 a night per site in all campgrounds with modern facilities, including electrical service, whether or not you use the electricity.

•$4 a night at sites with either flush -toilets and no electricity, or vault toilets and electricity.

ALMOST HALF of all Americans hunted, fished or took part in some wildlife-related recreation as of 1975, according to the U.S. Interior Depart-

The every-five-years survey found 96 million Americans age 9 and older were active outdoors.

This included 20.6 million hunters, 53.9 million anglers and more than 49 million who observed wildlife.

The last category is new. The environmental movement has brought forth many outdoors lovers who aren't hunters or anglers.

The estimates were based on telephone interviews with 106,000 households in 50 states, and detailed questionnaires were completed by more than 20,000 persons.

Hunters numbered 11 per cent of the population (down from 12 in the 1970 survey). Anglers remained constant at 29 per cent.

Hunters spent $5.8 billion ang anglers $15.2 billion to pursue their

The most significant change was a threefold increase in the number of persons who photograph wildlifefrom five million in 1970 to 15 million

Delectable

Your kitchen can look just as "delicious" as the foods you prepare there. With a little imagination and help from the experts, the beautification process is easy.

"Start your kitchen decorating with wallcoverings," says Sue Barna, national decorating consultant for Sherwin-Williams.

Today's wallcoverings have visual verve, and many are scrubbable for easy redecorating."

Wallcoverings are inexpensive, too. "Since many kitchens have limited wall space, you can easily decorate with wallcoverings for less than $20," Barna says.

A new collection of wall-coverings that has all the ingredients for this kitchen decorating exclusively at more than 1,500 Sherwin-Williams Decorating Centers nationwide. Called "Kitchens & Baths" by Style Perfect, the line was specially designed by the makers of Sanitas wallcoverings. The new The contains and strippable and come moderately priced at $9.95 per single roll (36 square feet). Prices are slightly higher on the West Coast.
