Saving farms could curb tax

The longer you live in Canton Township, the more money you'll save if the farmland in the western part of the township remains undeveloped.

The savings would be the result of fewer municipal services that would be needed if the land were to remain

That is the conclusion of an estimated $30,000 study on the financial impact of buying development rights from owners of 4,750 acres of agricultural land in the western portion of the township.

The study was conducted by the Seidman & Seidman accounting firm and Wade, Trim planning consultants following a recommendation of the citizens' land use study committee last

The study committee pushed for the preservation of the farmland in the southwestern quarter of the township. The current use of the land would be maintained through the public purchase of development rights, agricultural zoning and a reduced tax rate for farmers. A spokesman for the consultants said after 10 years the residents would actually be saving money if the farmland is retained.

TAXPAYERS WILL ultimately decide the fate of the land at the ballot box, possibly as soon as November.

Although board members have not decided on a method to finance the purchase of development rights, Supervisor Harold Stein said the township will probably opt for a bond issue.

The board plans to educate residents on the ramifications of preserving the farmland by distributing copies of the final summary report presented by accountant John Busch of the Seidman & Seidman firm Tuesday night.

The report concludes that it would be cheaper over the long run to purchase the $15.2 million development

For example, the owner of a home assessed at $26,000 would pay an additional $143 in taxes over the next seven years if farmers' development rights were purchased.

But after 15 years, that same taxpayer would ward off an additional tax burden necessitated by development of the farmland. He would recoup the $143 he spent over a seven-year period to finance the public purchase of development rights and avoid an estimated tax increase of $637 to finance municipal services to developed farm-

The financial impact report does not take into account the effect that a farmland preservation program would have on the school tax rate.

IN PRESENTING the report Tuesday night, Busch outlined the pros and cons of saving Canton's agricultural land.

"This is a unique program that's never been undertaken before," Busch said. "There's no precedent, so future legal problems could arise that we really can't deal with right now."

But by preserving farmland, township residents would reap esthetic benefits of large open spaces and economic benefits of local farm markets,

Students get job in conservation

when there was work to be done? If Joyce Willis has anything to do with it, and she does, the Youth Conservation Corps will not fit that stereo-

A group of 12 young men and 12 young women from Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools will be paid minimum wage ($2.65 an hour) for eight weeks this summer to do maximum work at three area sites-Griffin Park, Folker's Nursery (bought by Canton Township in 1976) and Miller Woods Nature Trail.

A total of $29,750 has been allocated to the area by a grant from the state Department of Natural Resources.

Canton Township and the Plymouth-Canton School District submitted a joint application for the grant; one of only 47 in the state.

Under terms of the grant, Canton must supply students with hand tools, gloves and supervisory direction but no hard cash. In grantsmanship, it is known as a "soft matching grant."

More than 100 students at Centennial Education Park (CEP) applied for the youth corps duty and only 24 were selected. But Mrs. Willis, job coordinator at the high school, said more students will be picked to participate in other projects throughout the state.

"Already, I know of one, Lois Carrie, who was picked to do conservation work in a residential camp in the Upper Peninsula," she said.

YOUTH CORPS members will not work with any power equipment in the program as part of the grant agree-

"The DNR required us to very rigidly define what work we'd do at the job site," Mrs. Willis explained.

At the township-owned nursery, for example, students will spray, prune, ball and burlap shade trees that will be planted in Griffin Park. Since the program is only funded from June 26 to Aug. 18, the students will not be around for the fall planting.

There are 150 shade trees, 50 ever-(Continued on Page 4A)

Ford Road boulevard plan ditched

To avoid a delay in the widening of Ford Road, Canton board members have withdrawn support for a boulevard on the main thoroughfare.

Although Supervisor Harold Stein endorses the construction of a center island on Ford Road, he recommended to the board Tuesday night that the township request a seven-lane expansion project from Canton Center Road to Haggerty instead.

The board accepted Stein's recommendation by a 5-2 vote. Trustees Lynne Goldsmith and Robert Myers dissented.

THE MICHIGAN STATE Highway Department has asked the board to submit a proposal for the Ford Road widening project by the end of this

Members of the state highway department have warned the township, however, that a request for the construction of a boulevard could delay any improvements to Ford Road until

The Ford Road widening project is currently scheduled to begin in June

"I am strongly in favor of the boulevard concept through Canton Township," Stein said in a letter to the township board. "But the decision that we must make is whether the people of Canton Township are willing to wait until 1983 for any type of road improvement on Ford Road. The cost of constructing a boulevard on Ford from Canton Center to Haggerty is estimated at $5.4 million, Stein said. The cost of widening the road to seven lanes is pegged at $2.5 million "The state highway department has the ultimate authority to decide what type of improvements will be done on Ford Road," the supervisor added

"It is very questionable that the Michigan State Highway Department can justify spending $5.4 million for a boulevard system when the necessary improvements, according to the state. can be made for $2.5 million.

"If we wait five years for any improvements, there is no guarantee that we will have a boulevard," Stein

Move to town suits tailor fine

By W.W. EDGAR

Abed Nasibeh, the Arab tailor who has just set up shop on Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth, took his cue from the ancient story of Mohammed and the mountain.

If you recall, when the mountain wouldn't come to Mohammed, he went to the mountain.

For the past seven years, Nasibeh has conducted his tailor shop in Ann Arbor, near the University of Michigan campus. Now that the school year is drawing to a close, many of his customers are leaving and there were visions of a dull summer.

"Aside from the students, many of my customers were from Plymouth, so I decided to come to them. I hope it is better that way."

ALTHOUGH HE IS only 36 years old, Nasibeh has spent 23 summers in a tailor shop, and learned the business from the eyes of an errand boy to a full-fledged tailor back in his homeland of Jordan in Amnan.

While he specializes in alterations, he also is a custom tailor and can make a suit to measure in material of any kind.

In fact, Nasibeh has known nothing but tailoring all his lifet

Asked how he got involved in the craft, he explained that as a boy looking for work back in the Middle East. he ventured into a tailor shop, liked it and remained in the business.

"It landed about 2 o'clock in the morning! My brother was there to meet us. He hustled us to his home and again we didn't see anything of America but darkness and the inside of the airport."

FIGURING THAT being close to the University of Michigan would be a good place to start, he set up shop near the campus.

"I specialized in alterations and built up quite a business. But I think it is better for a person to purchase a custom-made suit. If you do that you never are bothered with alterations. With a ready made suit you always are bothered with alterations until it fits you properly.

An old World War II halftrack, used by the DPW department at one time to haul heavy equipment through muddy fields, was claimed by a bid of $1,250 from a military collector.

An auctioneer's job is to stir the crowd into fits of auction fever. Rollo Juckette did his best Saturday, earning a seven per cent commission on $17,749 worth of surplus township equipment.

Paul Wojtylko and Ray Johnson also bought a soft spot to sit during the bartering when they purchased a pile of tires.

What can you get for four bucks these days?

A lucky person who attended last Saturday's Canton Township auction walked away with three sinks and a toilet for the four dollars that would have bought a pound of coffee anywhere else.

All told, the approximate 200 bargain-seekers who swarmed the DPW building spent a whopping $17,749 for an assortment of equipment and supplies that the township no longer needed.

After they departed for homes all over southeastern Michigan, not one saleable nut or bolt remained.

"SOME PEOPLE call me a pennypincher," Treasurer Anne Bradley said of the valuable and not-so-valuable supplies that she placed on the auctioneer's list.

"But when you get a dollar for this and two dollars for that, it all adds up. After all, what's one man's junk is another man's treasure. We would have thrown most of this stuff away."

If Mrs. Bradley was pleased with the outcome of the sale, then some of the people who won the bidding must have been ecstatic.

One person bought a 1969 Ford pickup for $80, while another purchased an old Dodge truck for $25. A 1973 Ford Econoline van went for $880. a 1974 Ford for $625 and an abandoned 10-speed bicycle for $37.50.

A collector named Paul Williams spent $1,250 for a 1950 Army halftrack, used by the DPW to haul heavy equipment. He'll add it to his collection of military supplies.

A man from Monroe got an unexpected bonus when he spent $10 for a pile of old Army coats that were stashed away in surplus miltary vehicles the township purchased long

When he inspected one of the coats, a rodent jumped out of the garment and scurried away.

"I don't know if it was a mouse or a rat," Mrs. Bradley confessed. "I didn't get close enough to find out."

ALTHOUGH MRS. Bradley hasn't completed the paperwork for the auction, she figures the township will net about $15,000 from the sale. Auctioneer Rollo Juckette got a seven per cent commission that amounted to $1,250. Other expenses included pay for auction clerk Frank Hawley and advertis-

The proceeds will be divided among the township departments which contributed items for the sale

Mrs. Bradley says Saturday's auction was the first the township has held in at least 22 years. But the treasurer says it won't be the last if she can help

"Maybe we'll get together with other townships next year and hold a big one," she said.

A peek inside the inner sanctum

I wanted to write "I stubbed my toe on the way to the bathroom." But in the paper, it came out "I stubbed my the on the way toe the bathroom."

Paul Hart, the Observer & Eccentric's electronic whiz, explained to me that happened because the computer code for the "H" and the "O" are very similar. If the scanner is just a little off, it will read "O" for "H" and vice versa.

That satisfies me but try to explain all that to the people who read about "toe problems confronting Wayne County" instead of "the prob-

At this newspaper we are using an outdated computerized printing process known as the optical character recognition (OCR) system. The system is on its way out.

We type our stories on typewriters equipped with an IBM Selectric ball that prints a supermarket code underneath each letter. This is read by a computer scanner. Lately, that scanner doesn't know the difference between an "O" and an "H." And try to write a story without ohs or

But people don't realize all this fragile technology is responsible for typographical errors (called "typos"). They just figure the reporter had one too many 16-ounce Stroh's when he sat down to

MY NAGGING problems with Os and Hs should be eliminated later this year when the company brings in new state-of-the-art video display terminals (VDTs) for us to type on. With a VDT, a reporter types stories that appear on a TV screen above the keyboard, and when he's finished he beams that story up to Scotty on the copy desk.

The job of the copy editor is to add something to the story that makes it easier to read but erroneous. (Only kidding guys, heh, heh).

From the standpoint of efficiency, you can't beat the VDTs-normally. If you write a lousy lead, you don't have to hit the carriage return, yank the paper out, crumble it up with a mumble and insert another sheet of paper. All you have to do is hit a key that zaps the line away forever and start all

However, I am not so naive to believe that the VDTs will eliminate typos, the bane of every reporter's existence.

As anyone who receives utility bills knows, computers can and do go awry. Often. When I worked on a VDT at the Detroit News on a part-time basis, I was just putting the finishing touches on a story about the hot slag that terroo rized the citizens of Delray when the VDT screen went blank.

THE COMPUTERS were down and so was I. With no raw copy to fall back on, I had to rethink and redo the entire story. Just as I was about to put the big "30" on the end of the story, the horizontal hold went berserk on the TV screen. Again, the story was lost.

To guard against this happening a third time, I typed out the story on an old Underwood and transcribed it to the computer. I earned my freelance rate that night

Two weeks later I was called in to write a nottoo-exciting account of a not-too-exciting regional school meeting. I rushed to the meeting without stopping to eat after I finished my full-time job driving a van.

Soft pieces of potatoes, noodles and carrots were lodged between the keys as I tried to discreetly sop up the broth with paper. The screen lit up with capital Zs in outrage.

But the amazing thing about the whole affair was that nobody in the newsroom noticed this catastrophe. They kept pecking away at their

I put a legal size note pad in front of my crotch and told the night news editor I had to research the story further. He gave me a funny look.

When I returned, there was an out of order sign on the terminal and I acted like I was disappointed I couldn't use my favorite machine.

About a month later I saw a News repairman unhinge the top of another VDT in the office. A thick goop completely coated the circuitry.

Someone had spilled a jar of rubber cement inside the sophisticated machinery. The repairman shook his head back and forth like a man who lived to see Sodom and Gomorrah. He said it was the second instance of computer sabotage he'd seen in a month.

For some strange reason, I had a craving for alphabet soup.

BOMB strikes Central Middle

There's a BOMB in Central Middle School

But don't panic, it's not the exploding kind. It's the cleaning kind.

BOMB is simply the acronymn the students and staff have chosen for a school-wide cleanup 'campaign dubbed Beautify Our Messy Building. And so far it's working.

"The administration was a little concerned about the, how shall I put it . . . the rundown shape of the building," explained Patricia Martin, a guidance counselor.

"Instead of coming down on the kids with some heavy discipline, I thought it would be a better idea to give them a chance to work for a cause-something they could all rally around."

So the movement was given a name and the rules were set up.

Each homeroom is in competetion with all the others to accumulate points for various cleaning, painting or fixing projects.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL checks out each project before it is begun and makes the decision on how many points it is worth.

After the task is completed, the homeroom students return to the council to have their work checked and receive the fruit of their labor-the points.

At the end of the campaign, the homeroom at each grade level-seventh, eighth and ninth-which has accumulated the most points will be awarded a prize.

But, as of now, no one knows exactly what that will be.

"We considered a number of things," said Ms. Martin. "But we are working with zero dollars right now, so we haven't come up with anything definite yet.'

She said she inquired about tickets to Bob-Lo Island but rapidly shelved that idea when she discovered the cost would exceed $500.

However, help may be on the way.

The student council came up with a scheme to raise a few scheckles and have some fun, too. The members are going to sponsor a dance marathon for other students and faculty.

"I thought it was a pretty fair way to come up with some money-and it lets the students participate even more in the process.'

Although, the beautification effort is less than a week old, the kids have demonstrated some singular creativity in coming up with cleaning sugges-

One homeroom is planning on doing wall murals-the art teachers will judge the quality of that work. Other homeroom groups are washing walls, scrubbing floors, decorating offices, classrooms and lounges.

Some particularly ambitious ninth graders have volunteered to paint the bleachers in the school gymnasium, while another group is in the process of washing off the outside of all the portable classrooms.

"I think the kids are really getting into it," said Kim Pikaitis, a seventhgrader. "If somebody just came up and told them to do this, they probably wouldn't.'

Why couple opened home for retarded boys

By LOUISE OKRUTSKY

A man and woman who refuse to acknowledge the limitations of clinical lables are helping four young retarded men achieve some degree of independ-

When Martha and Wade Dickerson of Farmington decided four years ago to begin a second family, they opened their home to retarded boys from the Macomb-Oakland Regional Training Center of Lapeer.

The choice was a logical one for the Dickersons, who have been married 35 vears. Mrs. Dickeerson works with the retarded and their families as a social worker affiliated with the University of Michigan. She has counseled families of the retarded residents of Opportunity House in Plymouth.

'We really do love kids," said Mrs. Dickerson. "Our own children had grown and we have one grandchild. We thought about the severely retarded from the point we knew we wanted to become foster parents."

That point was reached when her husband Wade, a self-employed businessman, decided to opt for an early retirement. It was Dickerson who managed the daily routine in the family and taught the boys new skills.

HE WAS instrumental in selecting which boys would become part of their foster family. Once they became part of the Dickerson home, he stubbornly refused to accept all the limitations they were said to have.

"My husband doesn't give a damn about labels," said Mrs. Dickerson.

"Those boys can do the things they do today because a middle-aged man would not support the limits of a label," she said with fierce pride.

"I know two of those boys would not have made it if it wasn't for this man," she said.

When the first of their four boys, ranging in age from 15 to 19, arrived, the Dickersons had some second thoughts about their plan.

One of the original two boys was afraid to go out of the house. He was afraid of the animals in the Detroit Zoo. The 11-year-old also was fearful in front of new people.

Today, he shakes hands on the first meeting and rides his bike down the short street behind the Dickerson

"Wade chose him because he seemed to have lots of fight. He needed someone to care about him," she said.

ONE OF the reasons the boy managed to overcome his apprehension about new experiences was his great need to be like other youngsters, according to Mrs. Dickerson.

"He wants to be accepted. But he's anxious and it's difficult to live with him," she said.

Another boy arrived at the Dickersons with the habit of screaming to obtain attention. He called everyone by the same name although he knew the difference between people, according to Mrs. Dickerson.

The first two objectives with the boy were to teach him everyone's name and to speak quietly.

All four boys were faced with a transition from institutional life to family living. They made the change from keeping their belongings in a small nook to scattering their possessions around à house.

In an institution where the first boy at the closet is the best dressed, there was little chance to acquire a sense of

At the Dickerson's, they began to accumulate their own clothing and possessions. The first day they were in Farmington, Dickerson bought lunch boxes for them. For the next six months, the lunch boxes were carefully tucked in with them at night. The boys were afraid the boxes would be taken from them.

" NOW, things are strewn all over the place, the way it's supposed to be," said Mrs. Dickerson.

The four also have discovered ways to compensate for things they are unable to do. One boy is unable to comprehend numbers beyond two. When asked to fetch something for the family, he will give each object the name of a family member and come up with the correct number.

Another boy is unable to read. Instead, he uses his memory to match objects. Mrs. Dickerson will show him a can she want ans he will pick out the correct item by matching the pictures on the package.

Lacking a grasp of numbers, one boy relates the days of the week to activities he will participate in during

The oldest boy, 19, is learning simple language now. Using an audio-visual machine, he is learning to recognize 50 of the most essential words, such as "stop" and "help." The voices on the machine are those of Mr. and Mrs. Dickerson

Although he is just learning to print his name, the oldest boy enjoys hooking rugs to be used as wall hangings.

His latest project is a wall hanging for his sister's wedding present.

THEIR RECREATIONAL activites are geared to games they will look natural playing when they are 35 or 40 years old. Basketball, biking, swimming and pool are among the games they play.

Pool has been helpful in teaching the boys coordination and numbers.

"A lot of lessons have been taught at that pool table," Mrs. Dickerson said.

"They think it's so grown up and so macho. They think it's so cool to play pool," she smiled.

When they play against Dickerson, he has to hold his own against them.

"Now they play to kill. There's no messing around. And they're delighted when they skunk him," she said.

After four years, the Dickersons are a family. Once they leave the ramble ing structure that housed three generations of Dickersons in Farmington. the boys probably will enter into semiindependent apartment living or a sheltered workshop.

"There aren't a hell of a lot of options," admitted Mrs. Dickerson.

After Dickerson began to manage the house and the boys, Mrs. Dickerson noticed that many of the techniques he was using at home were seeping into her own work.

SHE began to use her husband's experience to guide her clients. Syracuse Press has published a book she wrote about her family, "Our Four

The Dickerson's attitude toward their boys and all retarded persons is reflected in the title

"It was suggested to us that we include the word retarded in the title. Then they wanted to have pictures of the boys in the book.

"We fought it."

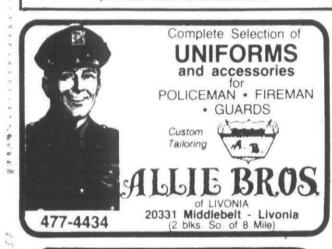

The boys should be allowed to live as normal a life as possible without being singled out as different, the Dickersons argue.

Claims Nazi spokesman

Suburbanites supportive of National Socialists

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Secret suburban support for the Nazis?

The Nazis say so. So does the coalition which is protesting the opening of a new National Socialist bookstore in northwest Detroit's Brightmoor area.

"We have reports that they've been operating secretly in Livonia," says Paul Boatin, chairman of the Labor, Community, Inter-faith Council Against Nazis. The coalition also protested the Nazis' first bookstore on W. Vernor in southwest Detroit.

A NAZI WHO calls himself Mark, one of three who stayed at the new bookstore through a weekend of protesting and rock-throwing, said they were receiving some "moral and financial support" from suburban residents. He would not elaborate, how-

As an example of the extent of suburban support, he told of a recent Nazi excursion to Cincinnati, Ohio. He said 30 Nazis and supporters made the trip to support Nazi activity there.

Of the 30, half were suburban residents, Mark said.

Furthermore, in the bookstore's first two days at the new location, the Nazis took five membership applications. Three were from Detroiters and two from Mt. Clemens men.

A SUBURBAN BRANCH is a possibility, as well, he said.

"There are a lot of people in Dearborn who are upset about blacks moving in," Mark said.

He tempered his predictions, saying the suburbs would probably react just as Detroit neighborhoods had reacted-with pickets, protests and legal action.

"Of course, they'd want to keep their image up," he said. "They keep accusing us of ruining their neighborhoods.'

THE NEW BOOKSTORE opened May 20 in a neighborhood which one Detroit policeman described as the "Appalachia of Detroit. It is on Fenkell (Five Mile) near Burt Road.

Since the opening, Detroit Police have stood guard around the bookstore. In an attempt to prevent the rock and bottle throwing disturbances which erupted Sunday, they keep sweeping the area free of the crowds of gawkers which congregate across the street from the store.

There have been official protests by the Council Against Nazis and agitated Brightmoor residents. Many of the "official" protesters have been between the ages of 8 and $5, by most police estimates.

Police say the residents are protesting because it's something to do and not something that they oppose.

One of the protesters' chants "Hitler rose. Hitler fell. Vicious Nazis go to hell."-has become an inside joke to the officers assigned to Brightmoor.

"They're so young, they don't know who or what the Nazis are. They don't even know what 'hell' is, '' said one officer from Detroit's Tactical Police

Hostility greets Nazi bookstore in otherwise tranquil Brightmoor

Now, there is a startling contrast between the hostile, raucous atmosphere outside on Fenkel and the quiet confines of the new business on the block, the relocated Nazi bookstore.

Why the "Light Bill" became the "Electric Bill."

It's simple. Back in the 1930s lights accounted for nearly all of the electricity used in your home. But as times changed and convenient, modern appliances were invented, lights became a much smaller part of your total electric costs. And today, with frost-free refrigerators, air conditioners, furnace blowers and ranges, lights actually account for less than 20% of the electricity you use. That's why proper use and maintenance of major appliancés is so important. The more efficiently these big energy users operate, the more economical they'll be. And that can save a lot of money and a lot of energy. Detroit Edison can tell you how to get the most out of the major appliances in your home. So call or stop in at any Detroit Edison customer office for helpful information. Save where it really counts.

The power is in your hands.

Recession coming in 2 years, predicts Friedman

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman could have opened his address to the Detroit Economic Club last week saying, "I've got some good news and I've got some bad news."

His bad news is there will be a recession between now and 1980. Worse still, the later it comes, the worse it will be. Topping it off, he added, inflation will continue.

For the good news, he said business and big labor cannot be blamed.

Friedman, who won the 1976 Nobel good news, bad news

Prize in economics, currently serves as senior research fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. He also is a columnist and contributing editor for Newsweek magazine.

FRIEDMAN, LONG an advocate for an economy without government restraint, told more than 1,000 businessmen in Detroit's Cobo Hall: "Inflation is created in Washington and nowhere else.

Speaking in simple terms far removed from academia, he said, "Labor unions do a great deal of harm, but they and businesses don't cause inflation—they don't have print-Ing presses for the money.

Inflation comes about, he said, "when the public wants government to provide more services and spend more and more, but it does not want the government to raise taxes.

THE ECONOMIST'S address was a no-holds-barred attack on big government and an appeal for support for a Michigan state constitutional amendment that would limit state taxes. A proposal that backers are now trying to get on the November ballot would hold government spending to a fixed

According to Friedman, there was a dramatic change in American social philosophy in the 20th Century which led to the nearly uncontrolled growth of government.

"The individual was no longer considered responsible for himself," Friedman said. "The individual is seen as a product of society and government is big brother. If there's something wrong, have government step in and solve it.

Friedman, in contrast, advocates as little government regulation and intervention as possible. Government, at local and federal levels, he said, should be responsible for only national defense, police protection, the courts and the printing of money.

All else, he maintains, should be left to open competition and the reign of natural market forces. Public schools, for example, would not exist. Instead, education would be private and competitive. Schools, he says, would be more efficient and effective.

THE WORLD WHICH Friedman advocates, however, is hardly possible. And he knows it. The next best thing, he said, is tax limitation.

"You have to remember, nobody spends somebody else's money as carefully as he spends his own. And nobody can spend somebody else's money unless he takes it away from him.'

He endorsed "giving government at every level a budget.

Friedman, who was introduced by Paul McCracken, former chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisors, as as "the most influential economist of this era," has been a staunch supporter of tax limitation efforts in other states, especially California.

Judge Chuck Thurston, entertainment writer for the Free Press, noted: "While the exact relation of the opening T.E. Hulme quote is not too clear. it sets the mood for Hallman's lively review of 'First Love.' He has a viewpoint and isn't shy about expressing it. It is refreshing to read in one so young that the tiresome movie sex scene is not a way of life, but a predictable cliche, a 'ritual' ar lis not taken in by filmdom's con job. It reads well and would turn me away from the picture. If one person could take two prizes, second would go to his review of 'An Unmarried Woman.

Manning wants two-mill tax for cops, courts

Wayne County Commissioner Richard Manning wants public response to his idea of a two-mill property tax for county law enforcement programs.

Manning (D-Redford-Livonia) last week suggested the question be put on the Aug. 8 primary election ballot. He said the proposal is an alternative to asking voter renewal of an expiring, five-year one-mill levy for funding general county services.

Two mills would generate some $26 million per year to fund prosecutor, sheriff and court programs.

Under his proposal, Manning said. money would be available to continue several sheriff's programs which face reduction or elimination due to the budget crisis, including township patrols in western Wayne County, the metropolitan narcotics squad and the county organized crime task force.

He urged that citizens phone his

Clerk Helen Richardson told the board of trustees Tuesday that a petition drive seeking a referendum on a $2.8 million bond to finance the sewer construction had been successful.

More than 1,600 township residents had signed the petitions, which were circulated by a small township homeowner's group, the Community Improvement Association (CIA).

Only 1,100 signatures were necessary to put the bond issue on the bal-

According to Mrs. Richardson, the question will be added to the Aug. 8 primary ballot, pending final approval from the Wayne County Elections

The township board approved the sewer projects last March and had authorized the county department of public works to sell the bonds. If the voters defeat the bond, the board's approval will be overruled.

The CIA opposes the sewer extensions because they will open the entire western section to development. The homeowner's group was instrumental in defeating a similar sewer bond issue five years ago.

Letter's for teens only

By NANCY AUSTIN

Dear Parents

Please excuse me this week while I turn by back to you and talk to your teenage daughters and sons. You are invited, of course to listen, but this message is truly for them.

Dear Teens:

I have been watching you try to lose weight now for a number of years. I also have noticed that many of you have been having a lot of trouble losing and are terribly discouraged. It's tough to diet and nobody understands what it's like to be an overweight teenager. What's worse is that it's summer time and the problems get worse during the summer.

Hang on! I understand. I was once an overweight teen myself. I also was heavy as a child, and eventually turned into a heavy adult. I don't want to see you turn into a heavy adult. I'd rather see you get a handle on your problems, right now.

I've watched you in your cheerleading outfits at the high school football games, and I've watched you in the Hudson's Thanksgiving Day parades. I always suffer along with you. I know how I'd feel if I had had to put on those skimpy outfits,"then parade down Woodward Avenue. I'd be so self-conscious, I'd want to crawl into the nearest crack in the pavement. Problem is, I wouldn't have fit.

Oh, yes, school gym class. I dreaded it. We had to wear a blue, short-skirted uniform. I was embarrassed because my thighs were always so huge. I was sure I had the largest thighs in the entire school.

Then we'd watch boys' basketball games. I always felt sorry for the pudgy sophomore huffing and puffing his way around the basketball court. He looked a little sad. I know his weight bothered him and his "friends" made it worse by teasing

WHAT DO YOU DO about all the weight you have gained?

It is so depressing now that summer time is here. It's time for beaches and bathing suits. Of course, you want to go swimming, but you'd rather talk your parents into buying a backyard pool so your friends won't see you. But you have to be realistic. That is an expensive request. You'll have to settle for Kensington Park.

Another problem, too, is all the free time you have to go down with the gang to get a hamburger, shake, and fries. Did you know there are almost 1,000 calories right there? Mowing Dad's lawn will only burn up 265 calories per hour.

Bike riding, while excellent exercise, is embarrassing too. Chances are you have a very large seat which must fit on a very small seat

When you go to buy your summer wardrobe and discover you have to buy the next larger size, you're depressed. It's tough, too, to ask Mother to cook something less fattening for you. After all, her kitchen isn't a restaurant (or is it?). Brothers and sisters tease you unmercifully about the gravy on your mashed potatoes, and Mother and Dad may nag you not to have the piece of cake, lest you turn into the likes of a blimp. Another put-down!

What's left to do? Lying in a hammock, under the oak tree, reading Tiger Beat with a box of popcorn and a cola at your side seems to be the only asswer. Right? Wrong!

C'MON AND JOIN in a special programdesigned just for you, by me, under the auspices of the Plymouth, Canton, Northville YMCA.

Once a week for three weeks, right after school is dismissed for summer, I'll be getting together with teens like yourselves to try to help you control your weight problems. You are invited to attend these sessions where you'll be able to talk out your problems (or just listen if you wish) give and get encouragement and lose weight in the process. We'll talk about your diet problems, and how to solve them.

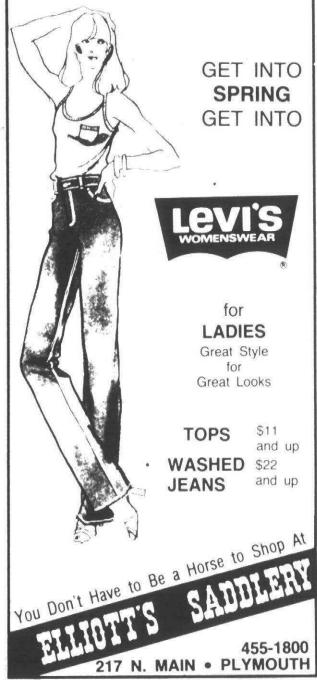

Building up will power and resistence to goodies will be discussed as well as how to handle your family and friends. You will be given practical suggestions that work. You'll be weighed in total privacy, but you'll want to shout your success to the world at the end of the program. You are assured of strong support from teens and from myself.

And don't worry about being embarrassed. You'll have lots of company. Just about everyone has a weight problem. The difference is that you are willing to admit it and do something about it.

To sign up for the summer workshop call the Y office at 453-2904 or register in person. The office is above Fisher's Shoes on Main Street in Plymouth.

Man bucks institutions for groups of interest

By JACK BOLOGNA

(Part 1) Sociologists have been telling us for years that man is a social animal.

Psychologists say that man has å fundamental need to relate, affiliate and create with other

And yet there is evidence to suggest that modern man (or at least modern American man) is withdrawing from human contact and relationship at an alarming

Church membershipthe historical means by which most people satisfied their need to relate and affiliate with others-is down (depending on whose data you read)

Political party membership and activity—the second most common unifying force—is down even more.

While total union membership has remained stable, the percentage of the work force which belongs to labor unions is diminishing And union members can't be depended upon to follow the direction of their leaders, whether the direction involves ratification of a contract or the endorsement of political candidates.

Even service and fraternal organizations complain about membership losses and the growing lethargy of the few members who remain

EVERYWHERE THERE IS discontent with institutional authorities.

Respect or regard for these authorities whether in government, industry, organized labor or religion, is at its low-

Doctors, lawyers and teachers also are falling from their once mighty perch. Trust and reverence for authority are values which may be holding on, but the objects of trust and reverence have certainly

The only group which has managed to survive the onslaught of low trust seems to be the celebrities in sports and entertainment (but not the owners or executives, as witness the disdain the public holds for people like Charles Finley of the Oakland A's)

We still seem to venerate celebrities in sports and entertainment. The stars have never been paid more for doing less. Attendance at games, concerts, and movies (if you include TV movies) has never been higher.

But these are passive or spectator activities. What are the "active" people doing? They don't seem to be flocking to churches, political rallies or union meetings.

It appears that the "actives" are doing "their own thing" now: 4-wheeling, C-B'ing, snowmobiling, trail biking, hiking, motor cycling, motor homing, skiing, camping, jogging, tennis playing, rad quet balling, boating, golfing, etc. It seems as though everyone is taking up a new hobby or two or three.

Those less physically active are into collecting of all sorts: coins, stamps, match books, antiques, beer cans, old cars, glass bottles, Hummel figures, oriental rugs, guns, comic books,

And then there is the dance-set: square dancing, disco dancing, belly dancing, ballet. You also can add the passive combatant sports like judo. karate, tai chi and weightlifting, the board games like scrabble, chess, parchesi, monopoly, the many war and battle strategy games; the card games: bridge, mah jong, poker, and

SO THE QUESTION seems to be "if people aren't joining churches. political parties, unions, service clubs and fraternal organizations, what are they joining to satisfy their needs for relationship and affiliation?"

pinochle, and on and on.

What is the common bond, the glue that holds society together? What are the unifying forces that cause people to coalesce? Is the unifying force a common sharing of boredom or a set of common fears?

It seems obvious to me that the recitation of leisure activities above shows at least an inclination to coalesce around a common hobby or interest. Each hobby or interest group forms its own assocation to promote participation.

The sharing of a common fear seems to provide a cause around which some people will join together, too. High taxes, inflation, high crime, inferior schools, racial injustice, high unemployment and the poisoning of the environment have all been used to rally people. But of the groups enumerated, those concerned with the environment took a different approach. Direct action was their major strategy for change, not political action. And strangely (perhaps not so strangely) these groups have been more successful in achieving their goals than the others who mainly developed protest strategies directed at political leaders.

In the South, black leaders also discovered that direct action accomplished more than peaceful demonstrations. The thing that worked best in the South was not the legal actions brought against government and school authorities, but the economic boycott of white-owned businesses.

They hit the power structure where it hurt the most-in the pocketbook-by a passive but direct action. So I believe we can conclude that direct action against the vested interests is a more successful strategy than legal maneuvering,

either through the courts

or through legislatures.

Perhaps that is one reason why our reverence for political leaders and legislators is down. Perhaps we don't need them as much as we formerly did. After all, the "POLS" and experts have been toying with the problems of inflation, education, taxation, unemployment and health care for many years but their record of achievement is min-iscule. Why should we authority, respect or power to them? "More power to the people," is the new rally cry.

Well, I think we can safely predict that religion and politics will not provide the unifying influence they once did (Some authorities insist religion and politics caused more devisiveness than unification because of their tendancy toward exclusivity.)

Somehow we have learned to get along despite our differences. Pluralism seems to be here to stay. The "melting pot" notion took hold, at least in terms of religion and politics.

We are not becoming non-religious nor nonpolitical: What we are becoming is more open minded about our differences, less opinionated and less directed by those in authority. In short, we are becoming ourselves. For many of us, that liberation is not all bad either.

No matter how small or large your building plans are we have the materials to do the job. Our staff will help you select the proper materials for your job.

Job computer network is funded

Wayne County has received a $245,000 federal grant for a computerized career and job information network in 38 suburban communities.

The network will consist of 50 computer terminals, scattered throughout suburban Wayne County, which are hooked up to a computer at the Wayne County Intermediate School District offices in Wayne. The new system is designed primarily to help youth find summer and permanent employment opportunities and career information.

The computer will feed current job information from the Michigan Occupational Information System (MOIS) in Lansing to anyone keying in questions at one of the terminals.

Data on more than 350 occupations including educational and skill requirements, job availability in Southeaster Michigan and pay scaleswill be available.

County officials expect all terminals to be installed within the next few weeks in schools, libraries, employment offices and other selected sites where vocational counseling can be provided.

Host school districts which will receive one computer terminal include Cherry Hill, Garden City, Inkster (public library at Milton Center and Henry Ruff Road) and South Redford.

Plymouth-Canton School District will have three terminals and Wayne-Westland, four, with one at John Glenn Migh School.

The county's Office of Manpower also will establish a career resource center in Wayne-Westland Schools. The center will provide tutoring and job placement.

editorial opinion Give retarded an alternative

State law now makes it illegal for the protectors of propriety to use trumped-up zoning law to keep community houses for the retarded out of residential neighborhoods.

But some selfish residents and public officials in Southfield, Redford Township and St. Clair Shores are demonstrating very clearly that they resent this attempt at legislating social responsibility.

All the old, tired arguments are being brought out by opponents of the community houses for the retarded.

One St. Clair Shores woman spoke up at a city council hearing on the matter, informing the assembly that she has "nothing against mental retardation, but . . .

Another opponent of the St. Clair Shores home said he worked hard to live in a nice, clean, quiet neighborhood and such a structure would disrupt the serenity of the subdivision. In other words, the neighborhood is nice now, so don't bring in the retarded who aren't "nice." The retarded might clash with his landscaping.

These are the very same people who put on the longest face when they deplore the inhumane treatment of the retarded in state institutions. When presented with an alternative, they admit it's a good idea as long as it doesn't happen to their neighborhood.

AND THEN THEY raise the old bugaboo called property values. More crimes are committed in the suburbs in the name of property values than any other excuse. We cannot continue to control the racial complexion and mental composition of our neighborhoods on this basis. This fear of declining property values simply has not been the case in the vicinity of Opportunity House of Plymouth. If anything, the modern twostory house has increased the value of the property in the neighborhood.

Jan Plas, a member of the Opportunity House board of directors, admits that some home buyers may balk at moving into a neighborhood that has welcomed the retarded. But that doesn't mean that everyone will feel that way. A person who wants to buy a house in that neighborhood will pay the going rate, not a cut-rate just because 16 wellbehaved retarded men and women live on the

Even the neighbors who squawked loudest when the Opportunity House was proposed now admit that the retarded make "good neigbbors."

Mrs. Edna Taylor, who lives across the street from Opportunity House, said she opposed the plan after first being told that the retarded residents would "wander around" and "be on your steps all the time." That hasn't happened. In fact, the residents of Opportunity House are busier than most of us-working at sheltered workshops, going to school, gardening and going on trips.

THE LESSON learned by the Opportunity House's neighbors should be heard by obstructionists in St. Clair Shores, Redford Township and Southfield. Is it a radical idea to accept the less fortunate into our communities?

Too many people are confusing mental retardation with mental illness. When they hear the word "retarded" they conjure up images of hunchbacked monsters prone to violent outbursts.

Like any other misconception, that image is based on ignorance. People familiar with the retarded know them to be kind, unpretentious people who want to live their lives with dignity and

Let's give them that chance. Only when we institutionalize our retarded do we find disturbing examples of institutionalized behavior.

CRAIG PIECHURA

In memoriam

The approach of Memorial Day reminded us of an old Abe Lincoln story told by artist F.B. Carpenter, who painted "The Signing of the Emancipation Proclamation." Carpenter's reminiscences of the 16th president were published shortly after Lincoln's death.

A woman's husband and three sons enlisted in the Civil War, and the husband was killed. She visited Lincoln to ask the discharge of her oldest son. Satisfied her story was true, Lincoln promptly wrote the discharge order.

"On reaching the army," the story goes, "she found that this son had been in a recent engagement, was wounded, and taken to an hospital. She found the hospital, but the boy was dead, or died while she was there. The surgeon in charge made a memorandum of the facts upon the back of the president's order. . . .' The woman went to see Lincoln again. He said, "I know what you wish me to do, and I shall do it without your asking; I shall release your second son." The tearful woman blessed Lincoln pro-

The point of retelling that tale today is to remind ourselves that Memorial Day is more than a day off work with pay. It is even more than a parade. It is a time when we can reflect individually on the men and women who gave "the last full measure of their devotion," in Lincoln's words. It is a time to reflect on the immense cost of war itself in comparison to the benefits.

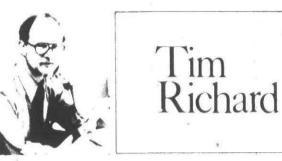

RenCen: Bigger drain than Silverdome?

This is a tale of two cities. It has two different plots and probably two different endings.

Pontiac, the seat of Oakland County, owns and operates Silverdome, a stadium of national caliber. The city has some troubles because the stadium has run up an operating deficit of some $3.7

There has been talk that Pontiac would seek help, possibly from Oakland County, in covering the deficit. So far, County Executive Daniel T. Murphy tells me the city has not approached him.

And he doesn't expect it to. Murphy says city officials and the stadium authority "have a good thing going" with box seats for themselves. Moreover, Pontiac's city manager is Philip O. Mastine the man Murphy defeated for county executive in 1976, so it would be a terrible political embarrassment for the city to ask for county help.

Much has been made in Detroit circles of the Silverdome deficit, but the truth is that such deficits were expected in the early years of Silverdome's Silverdome annually receives an $800,000 subsidy from the Michigan Legislature. Much has been made in Detroit circles about this, too.

DETROIT POLITICOS, however, have little reason to point the finger at Pontiac.

In the same bill by which Pontiac gets its $800,000 each year, Detroit gets $28 million or

Detroit this year will get some $7 million-plus for operation of the Institute of Arts alone. That's about nine times the Silverdome's subsidy

While Pontiac is pumping $3 million or more into Silverdome, with the local subsidies due to decrease. Detroit has all but stopped putting city money into the Institute of Arts. For all practical purposes, the city is financially out of the art Detroit is in the process of planning a riverfront arena. It will get federal help-Mayor Coleman A. Young is certain of that.

The contrasts don't stop there.

UNDER A STRANGE new state law, Detroit is setting up an economic development corporation and an economic development district, which is basically the downtown inside all the freeways.

If the city goes through, as expected, with the development district, all new property tax revenues will be "captured," to use the city assessor's jargon, by the city for development corporation.

The gimmick is that the $337 million Renaissance Center will go on the tax rolls for general purposes at something like $29 million—its early 1977 assessment.

As the assessment rises into the hundreds of millions, all those new RenCen taxes will go to the city development corporation. Wayne County, which is broke, will get zilch. Detroit schools will get zilch. Wayne County Intermediate School District, Wayne County Community College, the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority-tough luck. The city "captures" all the new taxes

DETROIT SCHOOL Supt. Arthur Jefferson is understandably unhappy. In five years, his schools will lose $10 million in revenue because of the city's creaming off the RenCen pot of gold.

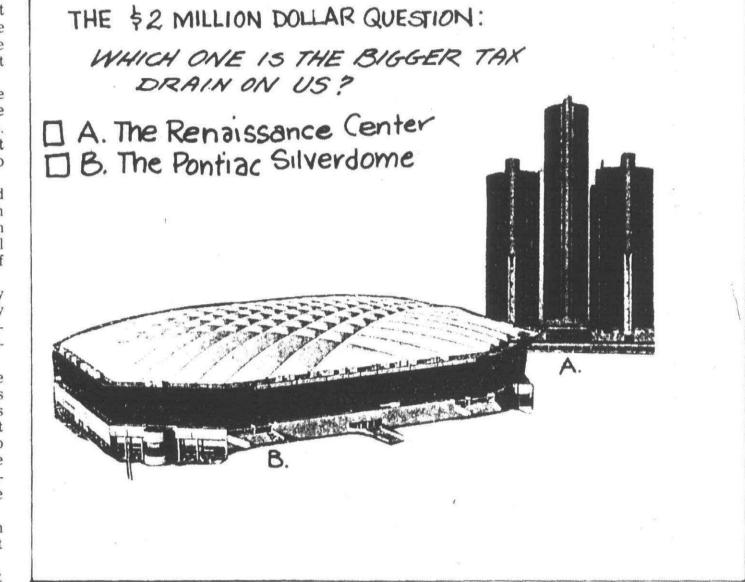

Jefferson will ask the Michigan Legislature to make up that $2 million a year loss.

Now, let us contrast and compare.

Pontiac is absorbing (so far) the operating deficit of Silverdome and is getting an $800,000 state subsidy for its stadium authority

Renaissance Center is privately-owned, but its taxes won't be doing the schools, county and other local governments any good. The Detroit school district will seek-and no doubt get-an extra $2 million a year from the state, 212 times the Silverdome subsidy, and all the rest of us will have to pay Detroit schools the taxes they won't get from Adding it up, RenCen is likely to be a far bigger drain on the Michigan taxpayer than Silverdome.

Jobless rate no index of human misery

Since the Great Depression, programs to minimize unemployment or protect working people from its effects have had the highest peacetime

For several years, the reported rate of unemployment has been uncommonly high. Nearly seven million Americans now are, at least statistically, unemployed.

But the unemployment figure is no longer a reliable evidence of human emergency. Today's army of unemployed is quite different from the one which shivered in breadlines or sold apples on street corners and molded national attitudes about unemployment in the 1930s.

Of the 7.5 million unemployed whose plight was at the top of the national agenda last year, seven million were receiving unemployment insurance. Another 15 million Americans were on welfare, and 19 million were receiving food stamps. The Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported that nearly one-third of today's unemployed has turned down at least one job offer.

This is not to say unemployment is not a problem any more, but it is an altogether different problem from the one that shaped our present policies and attitudes.

ONLY A GENERATION ago, unemployment was a near fatal catastrophe. Today generous levels of unemployment compensation have made it, for some, a desirable and sought-after condition. Thousands of persons have their unemployment checks mailed to Florida.

The unemployment problem has outgrown its official definition. We are measuring the job-creating capacity of our system with a yardstick that has lost most of its meaning.

Last October the official rate was seven per cent. The figure broke down this way:

One per cent were looking for work for the first •Two per cent were re-entering the job market having voluntarily withdrawn for a while.

One per cent had quit their jobs.

 One per cent had been laid off temporarily. Two per cent had been fired.

So less than half of the unemployed have been laid off, and one-third of these were simply waiting to be recalled. The rest could, on the average, find jobs in six to seven weeks.

For example, it includes a lot more women than

by HANK HOGAN

it used to, and a lot more teenagers. Women and teenagers tend to move in and out of the labor force voluntarily. If they don't find jobs the instant they begin to look, they show up officially as

Analysts estimate that the number of women and teenagers now in the labor force probably inflates the unemployment figure by as much as

At the same time, many who will be suffering serious hardships are not included in the official figure because it only includes people who say they are looking for work. It excludes some unknown number who have given up looking.

In other words, the official figure tends to leave out the very people who conform most closely to the unemployed stereotype-people who are distressed, discouraged, demoralized. So as a measure of hardship, it is worse than useless. People in the most distress are least likely to be included, and people the least distressed are most likely to be included.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT rate can be almost anything anyone wants to make it.

For instance, if you chose to limit the definition to full-time workers, it is 6.6 per cent. If you want to limit it to breadwinners or what the government calls "heads of households," the rate is 4.6 per cent. If you want to limit unemployment to people who have been laid off or fired, it is 3.2 per cent. If you want to limit it to people who have been out of work for more than 15 weeks, it is 1.9 per cent.

Since our official unemployment figures don't mean what they used to mean and certainly don't mean what most people think they mean, many experts think they don't mean much at all.

The Stroller

If Johnny can't read. . .

By W.W. EDGAR

It was just happenstance that The Stroller was seated across the table from the 86-year-old lady who had been his wife Leona's teacher when he accompanied her to the 54th reunion of the 1924 class of Marine City High School last weekend.

Over the years, he had been told of the wonderful teacher Florence Duddy was and how she helped her students develop their minds, though she was a strict disciplinarian. It seemed she was the favorite of all the students in that 1924 class

Once before, at these annual gatherings, he had the chance to meet this jovial woman who has as much fun at these reunions—talking about old times-as any members of the class.

BUT THIS TIME it was different.

He now had the opportunity to chat with her and realize an ambition he had nursed for a long time. It was the chance to discuss the present problems in our school system and compare them with the days of our youth. And who could compare them better than the smiling lady who was helping to set some kind of a mark by attending the 54th reunion of one of her clas-

What did she think of the present

Without flinching she looked straight like what was going on.

"A student doesn't have to take arithmetic any more-they have computers. And they now have typelearn writing either.

"The schools are making a mistake because they are not teaching 'thinking'. It is just as important today as it was back when this class was in school that a student learn to think. They are not getting that today."

What did she think of the present system where students are being graduated even though they can neither read nor write?

Her answer was surprising. She said these students shouldn't be allowed to graduate but should be directed along a route that best suits their talents. even if it means terminating their school days.

TO PROVE HER POINT, this wise old school teacher told the story of a boy in one of her classes years ago who just couldn't make the grade

"I counseled him. I watched over him. And I even put him on a special course for six months. I worked hard to get him on the right track. But he just didn't have it.

"There was only one thing I could do. I advised the boy to quit school (this would be an unpardonable sin today) and take up boat building as a career. He had come from a boat building family. He took my advice and became an outstanding boat builder and a real success in life. Yet

"This could happen in a lot of present-day cases. Instead of being kept in school when he can't read or write, he couldn't make the grade in school.

writers, so a student doesn't have to the student should be advised to leave school and take up a career in the thing he is best qualified to do.

> This opinion, coming from a teacher who had handled all sorts of students up in the St. Clair River country, was rather shocking, at first. But as the thought sank in. The Stroller came to realize that it would be much fairer to the student if the cards were laid on the table and he were advised to leave school and take up a trade

> AS MRS. DUDDY SPOKE. The Stroller was reminded of the famous case involving Joe Louis, the Golden Gloves boxer, who went on to win the heavyweight championship of the world.

As the story goes, Joe couldn't make it in the grade schools in what was then Paradise Valley, on Detroit's lower east side.

So one morning his teacher gave him a note and sent him to another school. He followed instructions and when the new teacher opened the note it read: "Please teach this boy to do something with his hands. He will never do anything with his brain."

So Joe used his hands and became one of the most popular of all the heavyweight champions.

Mrs. Duddy liked that story. It was another example of what she thinks modern educators should do when they come across a student who can't make

McClendon urges 'yes' on school tax

I am writing in regard to the school millage proposals on the June school election ballot

At the onset, let me try to make my position clear. I am no longer on the school board. My term ended almost a year ago; since some citizens still call me about school matters, I gather all do not know this

Secondly, my wife is a special education teacher at Central Middle School, but we understand her position is not one of those threatened by millage failure. This is said to try to remove my comments from the selfish interest category.

I am one of the community's older citizens. My youngest child graduates from college this year, and I will be looking to retirement in less than a decade, but I strongly favor all the millage proposals. Why?

1. Good schools make a community strong. They make positive use of our youth's time today and help to equip them for an uncertain future.

2. Our schools have a good record. While much of the country has been deeply concerned about declining student performance, our youth have continued to do well.

3. We are a growth community. While schools all over the nation have had dropping enrollments, ours have increased. This is in part because we have good schools which attract new residents

4. Good schools help keep property values up. In this period of severe inflation our property values have stayed ahead of inflation rates. Study will show this not to be true in some areas with poor schools.

5. Schools are my investment in the future. Because the people who had no children in school helped to pay for my children's education. I owe it to them and to the future to do the same for those who are in school today.

6. We must keep the buildings repaired. The buildings are a part of our community. As we use them more months of the year (in many of them, throughout the year) the need to repair them to offset heavy wear becomes even greater. The cost of repair is greater too, but we dare not let them run down.

Property taxes are too high. Schools should not be dependent on property taxes for their support. Only our legislature and governor can change this. Voting against local millages will not change it. Contacting our representatives in Lansing can.

Increased property valuations help very little, if at all. The state's "so called" equal yield formula provides that when local valuations go up, state aid goes down. This is one more reason why local property tax should not be the basis for school financing. In four years on the board, I saw no evidence that the schools were wasteful.

The small increase that is requested seems like little indeed to try to cope with growing numbers of students and rampant inflation.

Each is entitled to his or her view on such matters as random selection, alternative schools, year-round school, the reading program, open classrooms, and the special education services. These issues will continue to be with us, but without adequate funds the opportunity to develop other approaches and better options will be

I hope my fellow citizens will join me on June 12 in voting yes on all three issues—they merit our support.

DR. E.J. McCLENDON,

READERS' FORUM

Life with dignity is positive need

Editor:

In the interest of unbiased communication, let me offer a rebuttal to your May 11 article entitled "Living will could ease dying." In this article, the reader obtains only one side of the issue, namely State Rep. David Hollister's opinion.

Rep. Hollister mentions several groups who support his bill, the Medical Treatment Decision Act, and gives the erroneous impression that the only dissenting group is the Right to Life group. Within the Right to Life groups, who do indeed oppose this bill, are citizens belonging to all the groups mentioned by Hollister as favoring the bill. Doctors, lawyers, nurses, senior citizens, and the clergy (Protestant, Catholic and Jewish) all have united under the Right to Life banner to refute this dangerous legislation. At a recent public hearing held in Detroit on the MTDA most of those testifying were

I disagree with Rep. Hollister that "this bill is not about death and dying." Obviously there would be no reason for the existence of the bill if medical treatment were going to be continued with the intention of saving the patient.

The intention of this bill is to withdraw treatment and the result to the patient is death. The bill in its present form would permit an agent appointed by the patient to withdraw lifesaving teatment if the patient were unable to do so himself.

Even if the patient could be saved, a doctor would be obliged to adhere to the directives of the agent, thereby negating the judgement of trained medical, personnel in favor of an untrained layman.

It has always been acceptable medical practice for an incurably ill patient to request the withdrawal of artificial life support systems. No legislation is needed to reaffirm this. However, the passage of this "death with dignity" bill will open the door to euthansia.

Since the California "Right to Die" bill passed, more than 100 amendments have been proposed to provide that the death decision be made by others in the event that the patient be incompetent to make the decision himself.

Michigan does not need this "death with dignity" law. Instead, let us find positive rather than negative solutions to our most painful problems, so that we all may have life with dignity.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

What has a Week in May to do with Financial Aid and a College Education?

If you haven't yet made plans for college because of finances, or because of indecision about what your life's work should be, DON'T DELAY! We have scholarships, loans and jobs available to assist you. In fact, 100% of your need — as computed by state and federal scholarship agencies — can be met, so it may be easier than you think to attend college this Fall. You needn't be concerned, either, about not knowing what you want to study. Over 30% of college freshmen, generally, haven't made this decision. You can start with the basic subjects and not waste time, and besides, college is the place to find the answers. Often, waiting until "I can afford it," or until "I'm set on a major," can turn into a lifetime of waiting. At Northern we have programs ranging from Pre-med to Art & Design, and vocational training from Aviation Tech to Welding. Northern has a one, two. or four-year program that can lead you to a richer and fuller life.

CALL US ON OUR HOT-LINE 1-800-682-9797

Use our toll-free line (within Michigan) to discuss financial aid and get answers to all your questions. Because the daytime use of the line is so busy, we've set a special week ... May 22-26 ...to have the line available from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. We look forward to your call.

When the curtain goes up on a Metropolitan Opera production, it means more than the start of the opera. It represents an attempt to present the perfect opera.

"The Met is a well defined and successful attempt at combining all forces of theater and music into one force that would make an absolutely perfect opera," said Barry Mann, public relations coordinator for the Detroit Grand Opera Association. "The standards of the Met are terrifically high."

The standards touch each aspect of an opera—to the singers on stage, the orchestra members in the pit, the crew preparing the stage, the make-up personnel and even to the man in charge of the 40,000 librettos, the books interpreting the foreign lyrics, which he sells on tour.

The meshing of every person's job into perfect theater is what a Met production is all about. What the audience sees when the curtain rises is a beautiful set and well-trained singers in lavish costumes.

What they don't see is the backstage activity that Mann described as "a well- coordinated Chinese fire drill"

The Met's 20th opening night performance at Detroit's Masonic Auditorium was Monday. ONE HOUR before the performance, Justino Diaz was singing in his dressing room. He sang the principal role of Palemon in the performance of Jules Massenet's opera "Thais."

Within the room of hospital-green walls, grimy windows, bare light bulbs and a hard metal chair, Diaz chatted easily as he began his tranformation from a young to old man.

He isn't particularly excited about opening night.

"When you're on tour for 7½ weeks, every city is an opening night," he said. "Instead of getting stage fright or becoming excited, you think about all the things you have to think about for the performance."

While Diaz, dressed in a blue and white kimono dressing gown, was filling the table with his beard, wig and make-up brushes, Harry Lasley brought Diaz his pay check.

The scene could have taken place in any business office, as they reviewed Diaz's working schedule and the money he should be receiving.

On the other side of the stage, Beverly Sills was sitting, fully costumed, in her dressing room. Ms. Sills sings the feminine lead, Thais. Her name was barely visible on the door and inside she was surrounded by a dressing table, a spinit piano and a place to sit—nothing to salute her star status.

"THE AURA surrounding opera is much more practical today," said Mann. It's a hard business and a complicated job. It's as difficult as being a stock broker. Sometime's the sun's up; sometime's it's down."

For Betsy Norden, the sun is shining on her career. Born in Cincinnati, she grew up in New York where she began her career in musical

As she applied her lipstick and attached chiffon "jobbies" from her costume to her arms, she talked about life with the Met.

"You have to be pretty lucky to be with the Met. I was in the chorus my first three seasons and then got promoted to soloist. In each of the five years as soloist, the roles got better and better.

"If you love to sing, there's nothing better than being with the Met."

The 5-foot 2-inch, 112-pound woman sang the principal role of the slave Crobyl in "Thais."

Just as concerned with their makeup were chorus members Anna-Marie White and Ann Sessions. Sitting next to each other at long wood tables under sparse flourescent light, they enlarged their eyes with makeup and put on their wigs while Rose Murphy checked each female chorus member's costume, trying each zipper.

The 80 crew members, some on tour with the Met, some hired locally, drank coffee and smoked cigarettes off stage. They'd done their work for the opening curtain hours before.

BUT WHEN THE CRY warning of the scene change is heard, everyone prepares for changing the sets for the second act. They only had a half hour to do it.

Stanley Levine, Met stage manager, yelled command after command. The stage hands rushed to their places, moving set pieces that takes the strength of 10 men to handle.

"These are mammoth sets," said Robert Johnston Jr. of Livonia. He was working back stage, hired through his union.

Mann said the sets for "Thais" are borrowed from the San Francisco Opera Company and that sets for other operas taken on tour are adaptations of the New York Met's house sets. The auditorium there is taller, deeper and wider than any auditorium the opera company visits on tour.

Once the second act began, the tension eased. Chorus members stood in the wings, waiting for their cues.

There are no prima donnas there, even among the leading characters waiting for their entrances.

They were all just waiting to do their job.

BUT FOR VINCE ZERILLE of Detroit and Harold Daitch of Southfield, being back stage has a different meaning. They are both "supers"—local people who get non-speaking parts in the operas.

"I get to meet all the great singers," said Zerille, who's been a super for 10 years. "My biggest thrill was being on stage in 'Aida' with Franco Corelli when I was an Egyptian soldier. "I was on stage in 'Tosca' with Richard Tucker, Robert Merrill and Renata Tebaldi."

Supers get paid $3 per opera.

"I would do this for nothing," Zerille added. This season Zerilli will be a super in six operas. Daitch will be in three. He's been a super for nine years.

While he waited in the wings, he said hello to Met members he's known over the years.

For almost eight weeks on the road, giving eight performances in six days like they're doing in Detroit, the Met people give all they've got to satisfy their audiences. When working out of their own theater in New York, they do it all again, even while they are learning roles and making sets and programs for next season's operas.

Justino Diaz uses his dressing room to warm up his voice.

"When I go to the opera, I'm like a surfer looking for a perfect wave," said Mann. "Every once in a while it happens. The perfect wave comes along. You get smacked against the shore, and then start looking for it again."

That's what the Met, with the efforts of those behind stage, those on the stage and those in the orchestra pit, try to create every time the curtain rises.

They'll try to do this Thursday, May 25, in the 8 p.m. production of Gaetano Donizetti's opera "La Favorita." And in Friday night's performance of Giuseppe Verdi's "Rigoletto." And in the two productions Saturday.

Wolfgag Amadeus Mozart's "Don Giovanni" will be the matinee performance. At night, the Met will perform "Madama Butterfly" by Giacomo Puccini.

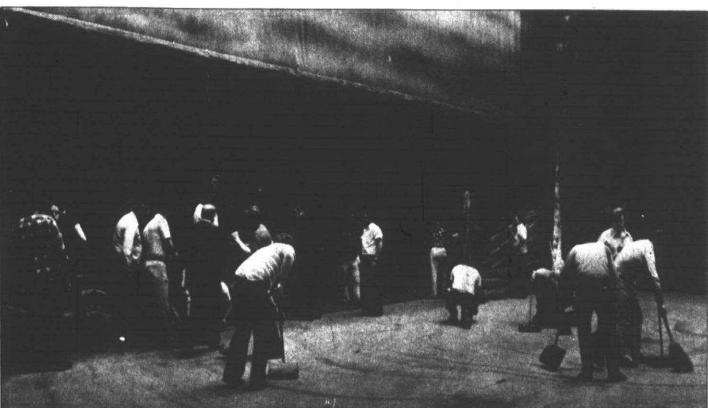

"You have to be pretty lucky to be in the Met," said Betsy Norden.

For 10 Metropolitan Opera seasons, Kenna Christi (above) has applied her own makeup before going on stage. Working in less than ideal lighting conditions and setting up her own makeup tables all across the country are all a part of the job. While the singers get themselves ready visually and vocally, the stage crew (left) transforms the stage for the next act. It takes 80 people to move the massive scenery into place, under the guidance of at least two stage managers.

I have a small bush in my backyard that I planted last summer. Standing at my family room window for the last two months, staring at is from afar, the poor thing did not look very healthy. As a matter of fact, I thought it was dead. I was making plans to give it a decent burial.

The thought of replacing it was not a happy one. Recalling the great care I took in its selection was even more depressing. I had spent hours walking through rows and rows of bushes at the nursery reading directions on care, soil nourishment, foliage, height and expectations of each plant. Then I found it, my kind of bush. It would be six to eight feet tall, could sustain growth in poor soil and clay, required little care and even less water. And it was pretty.

I carried that bush to my car, lugged it to my yard, dug the proper depth hole and placed it correctly. How dare it die on me!

NOW I KNOW we've had a really bad winter. Friends told me it was my fault the bush had died. I should have covered it last fall for its protection. No one covered me for my protection, and I made it through the winter. Only the strong survive around here and I expected that bush to live.

Last weekend when the rains stopped and I made my way down to the end of the yard to weed, there was my bush. Green leaves had sprouted from its stick-like stems. It had survived, it was growing! I felt like telling it I was sorry for having had such bad thoughts towards it. I'm sorry for ever having doubted it. It is a good little bush.

The sun is shining, the grass is green. Did it finally happen? Have we reached a new season, one of growth and green and sunshine? It was happening before, we just couldn't see it with the rain blocking our vision.

How can people who live in California or Florida relate to our happiness over the sunshine? How could they understand the survival of a bush? Do we dare put our snow shovel away? Do we dare take our winter coats to the cleaners? Why not-let's live dangerously.

THE NEW 1978-79 board members for Canton Newcomers Club have been selected. The positions are membership, Carol Dugan; publicity, May Moore; reservations, Judi Thomas; couples program, Linda Lupo and Christy Skorka; telephoning and hospitality, Sharlene Totten; nursery and welcoming, Kathy Freece; interest groups, Eileen Dunn; newsletter and roster, Mary Hodge; advisor, Karen Cifrodella.

There will be a short ceremony for the new board members at the newcomers June luncheon. Elected positions of president, Sam Nichols; vicepresident, Helen Wesner; secretary, Diane Cuper; and treasurer, Norma Huetteman, also will be congratulated and welcomed by old board members. Good luck to all, and have fun.

THE CANTON Newcomers Club has made a decision for its charitable donations this year. Thanks to everyone who bought a cookbook or worked at the bake sale.

About $400 will go to the Canton Fire Department for two electronic blood pressure gauges. One-hundred dollars will be put into a fund at the high school for students needing financial assistance for eye glasses. Pioneer Middle School will be given $150 for a new microphone. The Newcomers have used Pioneer for many of their general meetings and many craft nights at no cost to them. This is their way of saying thank you.

I'm sure Pioneer, the Canton Fire Department and some student who will need glasses this year thanks the Newcomers.

By the year 2025, it's likely that people will marry two, three or more times for maximum satisfaction from each relationship. "When people start living to as old as 125, it will be harder to stay with one partner for a lifetime," predicts Dr. Vera Borosage, professor of family and child sciences at Michigan State University.

Dr. Borosage, who conducts a class on the future of the family, adds that divorce in times of longer lifespan "will no longer be regarded as a societal problem, but a solution."

Looking 25-50 years in the future, the MSU professor also predicts that the family will flourish-but not the family as we know it today.

"Men and women will still depend on each other for support, and will marry and have one or two children," she said.

HOWEVER, the energy crunch medical science, technology and women's liberation will simply make for different and expanded settings for the family scene.

Basing her predictions on today's trends in these areas, Dr. Borosage says that a part of their long-term effects will be less or no embarrass-

"Women who want to be homemakers won't feel guilty of they don't have careers outside the home." Health care improvements resulting in the longer life expectancy that could encourage "serial monogamy" will also lead to another phe-

Madonna will hold business institute for high school girls

High school girls will have an opportunity this summer to explore the relationship of liberal arts studies to the business world at a National Business Career Institute for College-Bound Young Women to be held at Madonna College, Livonia

The Institute, which will meet Sunday through Friday, June 18 to 23, is jointly sponsored by the Madonna College business administration department, the Business/Education Alliance of Metropolitan Detroit, and the U.S. Office of Education, through the Madonna College Career Resource

The young women will hear presentations by successful female executives from fields such as accounting, finance, marketing, computers, corporate law, training and development, and research.

They will discuss their own abilities and prepare career paths for upward mobility, use a decision-making game, play computer games, and have access to the Michigan Occupational Information System.

They also will tour the Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. headquarters and meet in small group sessions with personnel directors of other companiés.

The institute will be directed by Charlotte Neuhauser, chairperson of Madonna's business administration department. She will be assisted by Ethel Toepel, project director of the Business and Education Alliance of Others scheduled to participate in the program include Cludette Hill, contract compliance administrator for the national Defense Contract Administration, and Kathleen Herschelmann, assistant principal at Grosse Pointe North High School.

The/registrastion fee of $80 includes housing and meals in the College dormitory where supervision and recreational activities will be provided. Enrollees may also commute and pay a fee of $55 for registration and meals. Madonna College will provide an additional $40 tuition scholarship for each enrollee to cover costs.

Applications for enrollment may be obtained by calling or writing the Career Resource Center, Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, Michigan, 48150. The telephone is 591-6331. Enrollment is limited to 200 young women.

Dodgers feted at garden party

More than 400 persons attended the Saturday evening garden party honoring Scott and Suzanne Dodge, who are moving to California later this month.

The grounds of the old Bennett-Peck house on S. Main were designed for the elegant lawn parties of a gracious age. It seemed almost a revival of another era as guests were greeted to the strains of chamber music supplied by Suite Strings, a string quartet.

The skies cleared in late afternoon and by 5 p.m. the sun shone. Party planners Mike and Bev Corp, and Ed and Bev Niedbalski said the weather had been their one big concern. "The rains just emphasized the sweet smells of the flowers in the gardens," said Bev Copps.

Bar tables were set up in the carriage house on either side of an .enormous hors d'oeuvres table. Round tables were placed in the gardens and -long tables on the brick patio in front of the carriage house. Upstairs, chairs were available in the game room for those who wanted an overview of the party.

MANY GUESTS toured the house. which was last owned by the late Pauline Peck Among the guests were Bob and Mickie Beyer, Bob and Dorothy Sincock, Bill and Teresa Covington, Carl and Betty Ann Lampton, Jerry and Phyllis Loiselle and Jerry and Sandra graph of a garden party at the Bennett House. He explained that at one time he was the youngest member of the Plymouth Rotary Club and Charlie Bennett was the oldest.

Judge and Mrs. Dunbar Davis, the John Thomases, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bowles were there. Also the E.J. McClendons, the Norbert Battermanns and Tom Notebaerts.

Jack Wilcox had composed one of his famous poems for the occasion. Colleen Tripp's cake drew much attention. The large double layer cake was decorated with a pale blue map of Michigan bearing one sparkling snowflake. The sun wore a striped cap and muffler. Then there was the California side with bright sands and sun. Inscribed on the cake were the words: "Farewell Suzanne and Scott-Snow and cold to sun and fun."

THE STRING QUARTET was replaced by strolling guitarist Mike Meyer. And as the evening drew to a close, there were a few dancers on the terrace. The Halliburtons and the Gerigks from Alphabet Gallery were there as well as Bob and Maggie Bake, Helen Gilbert, John and Marilyn Stathakis, Eric and Pat Carne, Sharon and Dave Pugh, Paul Van Hull of Goodyear and so many others.

Guests signed their names on a plaque designed and made by Wilma Halliburton—a special gift for the

A NOTE FROM Granbury, Texas, gives an update on the summer activities of three local actors.

These are the kids who starred in high school productions locally and earned drama scholarships to Eastern Michigan University

News releases from EMU gave them top billing as they acted, sang and danced their way to lead roles.

Linda Dwyer has been hired by Opryland U.S.A. in Nashville, Tenn. She will be appearing in their revue, "I Hear America Singing.

Dennis Cockrum will be working at the True Grist Ltd. Playhouse in Homer, Mich. He will play Noah in the musical, "Two by Two," and detective Rough in "Gaslight.

Charles Burr has been in Granbury since May 15 working for the Granbury Opera House. He is cast in the musical, "Call Me Madam," and soon will be auditioning for three more musicals, "George M," "Irene," and "Can-Can.

Linda is the daughter of Marilyn Dwyer of Penniman Avenue. Dennis' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Denver Cockrum of North Territorial and Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Burr of Ann Arbor Road.

A VERITABLE baby bonanzathree new grandchildren in eight days-has left Gilbert and Melva Wasalaski "thrilled but exhausted" to quote Melva

It all started at 5:04 p.m. May 14, Mother's Day. Their daughter, Linda, and her husband, Edward Wall, had their first child. Brie Danielle, weighed in at 8 pounds, 4 ounces, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Larry and Liz (Shinn) Walaski had their first at 10:28 a.m. May 21 in St. -Mary Hospital, Livonia. Their daughler, Kristen Ann, weighed 6 pounds, 12 ounces. Gil and Melva were at the hospital with the new parents during a very long wait which ended in a caesarean section.

"We were there all day with Linda," said Melva. "About 5 a.m. we went down for coffee. A nurse said, 'My, you're here early.' We told her we had been there a long time.

It seemed Melva had just settled down after taking a sleeping pill when the phone rang. It was their son, Terry. He was taking his wife, the former Deborah Hamilton, to St. Mary. They went back to the hospital to await arrival of their first grandson. Jay Marshall Wasalski was born at 12:26 p.m., May 22. He weighed 5 pounds, 13 ounces.

The little cousins, Jay and Kristen, were placed side-by-side in the nur-

"It was really great," said the grandmother. "We saw them when they were eight minutes old.

While awaiting Jay's arrival, they were in the cafeteria at 5 a.m. for coffee the second morning in a row. They met the same nurse who, after a startled look, said, "Are you still here?"

The other grandparents, who had the excitement of just one new grandchild, are Minnie Wall of Plymouth, Jack and Jenny Shinn of Plymouth and Earl and Jean Hamilton of Mt. Clemens.

Melva Wasalaski was taking it all in stride. As she was preparing to take Jay's sister, Jenny Ann, to a doctor's appointment, she described the new babies: "Ed and Linda's baby is a blond, Kristen Ann has black hair, and Jay's is red, even though Terry says it

Elected women advise:

Get involved politically — how and why

By SUSAN ROGERS

"Today is a far cry from the time when women were fighting for the vote," said state Rep. Ruth McNamee (R-Birmingham).

"The momentum is good for women now. Now that we've got the attention, let's use it."

Her remarks stemmed from being a political involvement workshop panel member for the recent Women's Issues conference at Schoolcraft Col-

And in saying it's a good time for women in politics, she agreed with other panelists, including Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard; Lynn Goldsmith, a Canton township trustee: Beverly McAninch, member of the Plymouth City Council; and state Rep. Mary Brown (D-Detroit.)

"We all must be involved," said McNamee. "First, decide what the barriers are to your goals. Then listen, make decisions and communicate them to your representatives. Gather information-you can be effective."

But she indicated there still is progress to be made

"I look forward," she stated, "to a free and open society-one in which women are no longer an issue. "

BROWN suggested that women have special qualifications for life in poli-

"Take the art of compromise," she said. "How many of you have ever been a den mother, or a room mother, or had to decide who gets the car on Saturday night? Women have so much experience on which to draw.

'And have you ever headed a mother-daughter banquet? Then you know what it is to organize. Women have had to play many roles in life."

She also pointed out experience in traditional women's activities had been helpful in her own current position as the first woman on the state legislature taxation committee.

"Women know what it's like to run a budget," was how she put it.

BEARD suggested women have another special contribution to make to the political scene.

"We have our own philosophy of life in general," she said. "We're sensitive. After more women are involved, I think we'll see less of the Watergate stuff-women won't let that go on.'

Beard began her political career as a mother interested in education, and she told the women that joining special interest groups seemed the easiest way to become involved.

Practice interviewing at Madonna

Practice interviews will be conducted by personnel from Ford Motor Co., Awrey Bakeries and the Cadillac Division of General Motors at a workshop from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, June 10 at Madonna College, Livonia.

The interviews will show good interviewing skills and help individuals explore ways to get the job they want. They will hear what the employer thinks, be videotaped—if they wish—in a simulated interview, and learn how to write resumes.

There is no charge. Those interested should send their name, address, phone number, name of school if attending, and whether or not they wish to be videotaped, to the Madonna College career resource center, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

"Politics should be for all of us," she continued. "We're in a group societylarge interest groups are involved in just about all legislation. After you're involved in one group, it opens you up to many issues. It's an opportunity to have your voice heard.'

She said political fleglings should "look at those who represent you, then deal with those people on various

"Become involved in campaigns," she added. "That's a good place to get your feet wet."

BEING INFORMED is the route to political involvement, agreed Goldsmith and McAninch.

In office just a year and a half, Ms. Goldsmith feels local politics offers the best start because "you can be heard more here.

Rutter-Pepper

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Rutter of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Ann, to Raymond E. Pepper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger E. Pepper of Livonia.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and employed by the Plymouth Hilton Inn. Her fiance graduated from Stevenson High School and works for Dameron Chrysler of Livonia

A September wedding is planned.

478-6010

"Be an active citizen; run for office," she advised. "Many organizations can help you get involved."

There's more than one way to get to know local leaders, she suggested.

"If you can't get up at meetings and speak, then call and let the officials know what you think," was her advice. "Exercise self-control, and know what you're talking about. Men may say you're letting your emotions speak, so that's very important.

NOW!

"Mainly, don't be overwhelmed. Take one step at a time and don't be discouraged by male chauvenism-it's McAninch voiced accord.

"Go to the meetings and speak up." she urged. "Know what's happening and the rules of the game of politics. Know the most effective way to get your point across.'

CYO camps ready for kids on June 24

The Catholic Youth Organization's summer camps, which have served more than 45,000 youths since 1946, will open June 24 for the first of four two-week periods.

Applications are still being accepted for all periods at the Boys Camp and the Girls Camp on the shores of Lake Huron. The camp periods are June 24-July 8, July 8-July 22, July 22-Aug. 5, and Aug. 5-Aug. 19. Applications for preferred periods are on a first come. first serve basis.

The camps are on wooded tracts near Port Sanilac. The 27-acre Boys Camp is four miles south of Port Sanilac, the 17-acre Girls Camp, four miles north.

Fees are $138 for regular campers and $150 for pioneers for a 14-day period. Round trip transportation by chartered bus is available for $10. Boys from 7 to 16 are accepted, girls from 7 to 15. All campers must be 8 years old by Dec. 31, 1978.

Calling single parents

The problems of heading a family when there's one parent instead of two will be probed in a seminar to be sponsored Saturday, June 3, by St. Paul Presbyterian Church of Livonia and the Voyagers singles club.

The club, which meets regularly at the church, will join with the St. Paul Church and society committee in putting on the program for single heads of households, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The church is at 27475 Five Mile, just west of Inkster, and reservations must be made by May 26 by telephoning the church at 422-1470.

A fee of $3 covers registration, program and lunch.

Speakers include the Rev. Carl Gunderson, formerly a Livonia pastor and now a family counselor, the Rev. Fred Prezioso of Epiphany Lutheran Church of PLymouth and Lucille Cantoni, director of family life education for Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County.

They will lead three of the nine workshops offered, and participants will be able to choose any three of the topics offered.

The Rev. Gunderson's workshop will be titled "Single Again-A Crisis of Identity," and it will deal with the need to recognize and overcome feelings of guilt, loneliness, bitterness, grief and meaninglessness.

The Rev. Prezioso, a certified leader in Transactional Analysis, will lead a session on "I'm OK-You're OK," and Mrs. Cantoni's workshop will be for women only, examining feelings about men and how to relate to them.

Other workshops will include remarriage, with Levon and Gloria King, attorney and educator, the law, with attorney Richard Coe, and parentchild communication, with the Rev.

REV. CARL GUNDERSON LUCILLE CANTONI

James P. Russell of Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church.

Robert Weikart, supervisor of clinical pastoral education at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital, will lead a workshop on coping with grief, and the Rev. Charles M. Webster of St. Paul will discuss patterns of communication and the ways people handle stress.

A workshop for men only, examining feelings about women and how to relate to them, will be directed by the Rev. Raymond W. Lumley of Monteith Presbyterian Church of Detroit.

The program will open with registration and coffee until 9:45 a.m. to be followed by a panel discussion explaining the purpose of the day.

Luncheon and an opportunity to look over literature and exhibits to be displayed will be from 11:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Workshops are scheduled at 10:15 a.m. and 12:30 and 1:45 p.m.

Training in CPR offered

The Livonia Jewish Congregation, 31840 W. Seven Mile, Livonia, will offer a class in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 28, in the synagogue building.

Developer predicts future building trends

"Learning and understanding is the key. Then familiarize yourself with your customer's needs.

That's where Abbey Homes' partner Robert Schmier believes real estate salespersons should begin when talking about residential construction.

Schmier recently addressed a gathering of more than 300 members of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors. Real estate agents must devote time and effort to learning as much as they can about residential construction, he said.

He also offered his insights into what the future holds for housing trends:

THE KEY factors in housing value are location, quality and design. These become important in the re-sale potential of the home.'

Since he takes an active role in floor plan designing along with his partners David Johnson and Robert Katzman, Schmier claims that they are able to maintain innovative designs in their customer built houses.

"Due to our active and direct involvement in the business, we have a good feel for what homebuyers are looking for," he told the real estate

"The best design has simple, clean lines, no gingerbread and a functional floor plan. The house should also be energy efficient and not dated in terms of design."

Schmier pointed out that the appreciation potential on a house has to be evaluated carefully.

Will a $2,000 sauna add $2,000 in value (plus 8-10 per cent per year in appreciation) to the house? Will extra insulation add value? The homeowner should know before considering the improvements.

"You can spend extra money on exterior design which is really not as useable in a day-to-day sense as a sauna, but it may add many times its coun added value," Schmier said.

"Likewise, in considering installation of a humidifier, it not only adds to your personal comfort, but it aids in control of the shrinkage and expansion of the wood components of a house. It helps prevent warping of interior wood doors and drywall cracks," he added.

IN DISCUSSING future building trends, Schmier predicted more open floor plans for houses.

"We'll see a more efficient use of space, fewer, but wider hallways, rooms that can be combined with other rooms for large entertainment areas. The importance is that every square foot should have a useable

"Houses of the future will be more energy efficient, with new types of furnances, possibly solar converters. The home will offer more amenities, threecar garages and fancier appliances," he explained.

Schmier added that future homeowners will be concerned with eliminating maintenance upkeep. They'll look for a development where maintenance is provided for by the homeowner association for a monthly fee.

"With today's mobile lifestyle and added emphasis on leisure activites. buyers want to lock their homes and leave, resting assured that snow will be sholved, grass cut, in essence, that general maintenance will be taken care of," he said

Abbey Homes is involved in numerous developments in Oakland County.

Among those are Chestnut Hills, Echo Ridge and the Hills of Bloomfield, all with homesites ranging from from 34-11/2 acres. The three developments comprise some of the last remaining property in Bloomfield

Plans for a $400,000 Tudor manor home with a central fover and circular staircase spiraling upwards to the second floor balcony are underway at the Echo Ridge development.

Abbey purchased the property in 1977 and it's now 70 per cent sold out.

Tired of high fuel bills?

3M product cuts heat loss

Are you tired of paying high fuel bills due to air escaping through your home's windows?

Are you ready to reduce your winter heat loss by up to 50 per cent next year and tackle this season's air conditioning loss? An interior storm window, developed by the 3M Co., claims to reduce air infiltration by 60 per cent, eliminate drafty, dusty windows, increase room comfort, reduce outside noise and is easy to clean.

Availabyle exculsively through Solar Sales, Inc., in Southfield, the "Thermal-View" window of vinyl framing is mounted 112-2 inches inside of the existing primary window in the sill and jamb.

Removable glass panels from the inside allow for easy cleaning and full access to open and close the primary

Solar Sales President Seymour Zate is the dealer for the windows in southeastern Michigan. The typical aluminium window, which is on most homes, is cold during the winter and has frost condensation and air infiltration from the window's mouldings,

By mounting the traditional exterior storm window, air entering the home may be minimized, but the condensation still appears on the frame.

ZATE SAYS that with the Thermal View, the condensation is eliminated because of the air space between the storm and the primary window. The window is sealed around the edges, eliminating escaping air.

Another feature is the sliding interior storm window, which allows for it is mounted on the inside, cleaning is simplified.

A minimum sill space is necessary for a Thermal View storm window to be mounted. If an existing sill doesn't have the full three inches, an insert may be pinned on but it would remain stationary and the window could not be opened.

Cost vary according to window size and sill type.

"Replacement windows may run from $250-350 and up. A comparable price for this window would be $75-85." Zates said.

Delivery is four to six weeks after an interior storm is ordered. Installation takes 45 minutes per window.

First-hand experience proved the winter fuel cost savings to Zate during the past cold months.

"I put the windows on my own house. Last year, during January and February, my bill was $114. This year during the same period, my bill was $82," he said.

Installed primarily on existing houses, Thermal View interior storms are making headway into the new housing market as an option.

HIGH-RISE apartment owners also INTERIOR are becoming familiar with the increased value of the interior storm

"I've been talking with apartment building owners who pay for the tenants' heat. The high costs have caused TRACK FRAME them to raise their rents," Zate said. "They have found that exterior storms don't look nice and are turning to us for interior storms to save money.

Tamper-proof lock helps prevent crime

With the advent of the sliding glass patio door wall being offered on scores of modern homes came an increase in the number of burglaries credited to the easy illegal entry those doors pro-

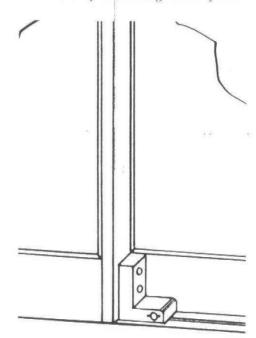

But the Karniotis Sales Co. in Detroit has developed a new sliding door wall locking device that several local police departments are talking about in their crime prevention pro-

With many doorwalls, a tool can be forced between the door and the frame, easily snapping off the lock. Or the door can be lifted from the frame, -disengaging the lock.

Many homeowners put a board or dowel in the sliding door track or install dock lock bars to prevent the sliding door from being forced open. But the burglar merely makes his entry through the nonsliding side of the door wall.

With the Karniotis' invention, it is impossible to lift the door to disengage the lock. The device is called the "Slide Lok." This is how it works: By mounting the Slide Lok at the bottom of the doorwall on the inside flange and drilling a hole into the dead door, neither the sliding nor the dead door can be moved upwards or sideways.

It is a fool-proof lock and is constructed so that any homeowner can install it himself in 20 minutes. The lock cost $7, or the company will install it for $15.

The Karniotis Sales Co. offers a new sliding door lock that claims to be tamper proof, preventing burglars from entering through sliding doors or doorwalls-it's a lock that mounts to the door

By SUZIE MARKS

Remember sweltering through last summer wishing your home was air conditioned? How about recalling those frequent visits to shopping malls and restaurants just to catch your breath in a cool place?

Now that winter has finally shed its coat, homeowners can prepare for the long hot summer ahead by installing central air conditioning. It may be a small price to pay to alleviate frustrations and tensions caused by perspiration and fatigue

If ordered now, complete central air conditioning may be installed in an existing structure within ten days by most dealers, says Harold S. Laven, owner of Central Heating in Southfield.

"After we get a call, we are normally there in 48 hours. Once we give an estimate and the homeowner says OK, and if the house needs a standard unit, we can have it installed and operating within five to seven working days," he adds.

ing system. Home improvements such as adding insulation or new rooms makes every air conditioning case individual, says Dick Lampy, of D & G Heating and Cooling in Livonia.

"OLD RULES of thumb do not apply for every dwelling," he adds

An attic unit with a forced air system needs a furnace with an air duct and blower in order to accommodate the cooling devise, Laven says.

"If a house has an old furnace, the furnace should be changed, too," he contends.

Most homes over 10 years old that are heated electrically need additional work to raise the amps to meet government codes.

"Many older homes only have 60 amps. An air conditioning contractor has to build to 100 amps of electrical service which may cost an additional $300," Laven says.

Hot water and steam heated dwellings without forced air can be air conditioned with a Space-Pak cooling system. This method works for homes that are hydraulically or electrically using a four inch diameter flexible pipe tucked in the ceiling with a four inch terminater from which the cool air will flow," vard and there is a blower in the attic.

IN A COLONIAL home, the cool air flows through the closets to terminaters in the ceiling of the first floor rooms. This is a relatively new system. Laven continued, which works very successfully

Cost for the Space-Pak depends on the number of tons of cool air required, which is figured on the house's square footage

For example, Laven explains. "The minimum cost would be $1,200 per ton. So if a house requires three tons of cooling it would cost about $3,600. The homeowner can figure his tonage requirements by taking the square footage of the home and dividing it by Abbey Homes constructs with energy efficiency in mind. This model is made of wood siding with all wood windows and doorwall frames among other energy saving features.

Abbey thinks efficiency

In all of its new home construction, Abbey Homes uses a combination of standard features designed to help homeowners reduce soaring

An example of this energy-conscious construction is in models with siding where wood is used exclusively. Every Abbey house is built with all-wood window and doorwall frames. Aluminum siding and metal frames allow greater heat or cooling loss, resulting in higher fuel bills. Wood is initially more expensive, but it is superior in efficiency, qual-

Impact readies to expand

Dallas Nagy, marketing director for Impact Marketing, a Farmington-based new house national firm, will expand into at least four-and possibly six-new developments this year in the Detroit area.

The company now represents 30 builders in five major developments: Ramblewood in Farmington Hills, Whisperwood in Northville, Turtle Creek in Novi, Georgetown in Rochester and Beacon Hill in Plymouth.

Nagy claims that by combining on one development, they are able to improve the quality of their merchandising such as lead-in signs, brochures, sales office tools and other items at considerably less

Impact is called in to work with the developer at the feasibility stage if the property meets their standards, he said.

Impact will then arrange the sale of lots to a group of builders on a pooled basis and marketing the homes constructed by the builders.

Impact specializes in upper middle income markets with an average home price of $90,000.

Schoolcraft summer festival music auditions nearing

Final student auditions for the 12th annual Summer Music School and Festival will be held Saturday, June 3, at Schoolcraft College.

The music school and festival run concurently during July, with classes in session daily. Students are accepted by audition.

Audition appointments are scheduled by contacting Richard Saunders, assistant dean of arts and sciences, at 591-6400, ext. 510. Students unable to meet the June 3 date may also audition on the first day of classes by special arrangement with Saunders.

The summer music school is open to junior and senior high school students and to college students. College credit is available.

The faculty is composed of Detroit Symphony Orchestra personnel as well as Schoolcraft music department staff members. Instruction includes orchestra, band and chamber music ensembles in addition to music history and theory. Classes are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. every day except Wednesday, when classes end at 11:30

Tuition and fees range from $64 to $125 depending on admission status, residence and whether instruction is being taken for credit or not.

The summer music festival is comprised of three Tuesday evening concerts presented by the summer music school faculty and guest artists. This season, the performances will be given Liberal Arts Theater on the Schoolcraft campus.

The performing emsembles include a string trio and quartet, woodwind quintet and trio, percussion duo and several other small ensembles. In addition, the Detroit Brass Society's brass quintet will be featured on the first two performance dates. Ceneral admission for faculty concerts 15 $2. College and public school students will be admitted for $1, while children 5 and under and senior citizens 65 and older will be admitted free. Tickets will be available at the door.

DIA jazzing up Thursday nights

The Detroit Institute of Arts "Thursday Jazz at the Art Institute" summer series will open June 1, with pianist Marian McPartland.

Two performances will be given, at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in the museum's Kresge Court. Tickets may be obtained at the museum ticket office. Esteemed as one of the top jazz musicians in the world, British-born McPartland has performed in the U.S. since 1946. Her recent credits include guest performances at festivals at Newport-New York, Monterey, Detroit, Salt Lake City and Nice.

Her tour calendar has covered a series of concerts in South America with Earl Hines, Teddy Wilson and Ellis Larkins, as well as an extensive schedule of performances with John at 8 p.m. on July 11, 18 and 25 in the Lewis and Hank Jones in Japan.

FOLLOWING THE McPartland performances, the jazz series will continue every Thursday evening for 13 weeks through Aug. 31, offering a cross-section of jazz artists who make Detroit their home, blended with former Detroit musicians who have earned national reputations.

Included will be Thad Jones, Hal McKinney, Hank Jones, George Benson, Bess Bonnier, Barry Harris, Kenny Burrell, Roland Hanna, Charles McPherson and others.

Wine, beer, soft drinks and snacks wil be available. Reserved seating will be provided. For reservations and a complete schedule of "Thursday Jazz at the Art Institute," write or telephone the Detroit Institute of Arts ticket office at 832-2730

Pine Knob opening next week

The Pine Knob Music Theatre will begin its seventh season June 2 with the musical group America.

Attractions during the first week also will include the Marshall Tucker Band on June 4 and Jefferson Starship on June 5 and 6. Tickets for all attractions at the Knob this season will be limited in number due to the heavy advanced sale of the four subscription series. Interested persons should call the Pine Knob Hotline, 647-7790, as to the availability of tickets and the outlets with tickets available to purchase.

AMERICA, June, 2 and 3 at 7:30 p.m.: Dan Peek, Dewey Bunnell and Gerry Beckley return to Pine Knob for the sixth time. Since the first best-selling record "A Horse With No Name," the boys proved their versatility and established their own sound. It is highly distinctive and easily recognizable. Their Pine Knob concerts sell out every year.

A tad bit o' the Irish and little bit of folk is a good way to describe singer Jim Perkins, appearing Sundays and Mondays at Alden's Alley in Royal

Perkins sings mostly Irish folk songs on Mondays and a mixture of ethnic and American folk songs as well as original music on Sunday nights. He performs 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Royal Oak pub located on Main Street, three blocks south of Eleven Mile

He is featured on Mondays through May. On June 8 he and Larry Larson, another Detroit-area Irish entertainer, will begin regular Thursday night performances, marking a reunion of the two singers on stage.

Professionally singing for the last 12 years, the 29-year-old Detroit resident has specialized in Irish music for the last six years. It was a logical step, he says, from the folk repertoire he had developed on the coffee house circuit. He also performs regularly at the Tipperary Pub in Detoit and has for the last four years.

"SINGING IS what I grew up doing," says Perkins, who is formerly from Farmington Township and is a graduate of Lutheran High School

West. He started out singing on Plum Street in Detroit. Among coffee houses where he has performed are the Cellar, the Crystal Wind and the Chess

He will be a strolling minstrel at Greenfield Village this summer.

Perkins is proficient on the guitar, dulcimer, banjo, penny whistle and harmonica. Often he plays one of the stringed instruments while accompanying himself on the harmonica.

Although he loves performing his own songs, he enjoys playing the traditional folk songs because, "I don't want them forgotten." He feels they are the songs of the people, but often people aren't interested in keeping their culture alive. By singing the songs, he is keeping them alive for a few, he says.

AMERICANS HAVE a sense of humor, Perkins says with a twinkle in his eye, and casually suggests that because of this maybe they shouldn't have a national anthem as lofty as the "Star Spangled Banner." With a smile on his face he offers a suggestion: "Turkey in the Straw.

Salem ousted from tourney on Recker's two-hitter

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

It was a classic pitching duel, pitting two of the area's best hurlers, Mark Recker of Farmington Harrison (5-1) and Bruce Piper of Plymouth Salem

In the end, Recker outlasted Piper to give the Hawks a 1-0 victory in a prequalifying state tournament game at the dustbowl diamond in Farmington Saturday afternoon.

Harrison, 11-5 after the victory, now advances to the pre-districts where it gets another shot at Western Six League rival Plymouth Canton. Harrison will host the number-one team in the state this Saturday beginning at "Canton!" exclaimed Harrison coach John Harrington. "We get another shot at Canton. Recker pitched an excellent game under the pressure. Salem is a good hitting ball club. He will pitch against Canton next week."

For Salem, it was an abrupt and disappointing way to end their state tournament chances. The loss also cancelled the long-awaited battle between the two Plymouth teams.

Salem had a team batting average of .340 going into this game, and coach Brian Gilles was at a loss to explain why his squad registered only two hits against the Hawks.

"It's never a good time not to hit the ball, and we picked a terrible time to do it. Piper could very easily be 9-0.

"Hell, what are you going to do with only two hits? We had opportunities but left men on base. I don't know what the answer is.

"It's a big disappointment not to get by the first round. We were looking forward to next week (against Canton) and now its out the window."

Salem is still leading the Suburban Eight League with four games left on the schedule.

The only run off Piper came in the fourth inning when Hawk third baseman Kevin Collar singled for one of the five Harrison hits. He promptly stole second when Salem catcher Bubba Wilcox couldn't get the ball out of his mitt. Collar then scored on a single to left by Al Goniwich for the Salem had its chances in the last two innings. Leadoff doubles by Paul Dillon in the sixth, and Matt Etienne in the seventh looked like they could be the start of scoring rallies. But Recker settled down and got the next three hitters in each innings to preserve his

Trio fails 12-foot mark

Rock pole vaulters zapped

In what Plymouth Salem boys track coach Gary Balconi called "the biggest tragedy" of his coaching and sports career, the Rocks' pole vault trio of Scott Kappler, Dennis Ogden and Mark Choma failed to qualify for the state meet-even though the winning regional height was only 12-11.

The Rock trio was practicing two hours before the Farmington regional at heights of 13-6. All three cleared that mark with ease. Kappler holds top height in Class A with a 14-834 vault

But when it cam time for the competition, the vault pit was switched to a spot against the wind-rather than with the wind where the Salem thinclads were practicing.

Consequently, none of the three Rock stars could even clear the 12-foot height, ruining their chances for state meet qualification.

"It's the most disasterous and disappointing day I've ever had in sports-along with the Portage Central football game," Balconi, also an assistant football coach, said." (Salem lost a state quaterfinal grid game to (Continued on page 2C)

Rocks nip Trenton; hold 1st place in Sub-8 race

Plymouth Salem rebounded from tis state tournament setback to Farmington Harrson on Saturday to edge Suburban Eight League rival Trenton, 3-2, Tuesday afternoon at the Trojans' diamond.

The Salem triumph kept the Plymouth squad one game ahead in the loop race with an 8-3 record (not including yesterday's contest with Allen Park). Salem's overall record stands at 15-6.

Although Salem continued to slump at the plate, another outstanding pitching performance by Doug Holloway saved the game. Holloway won his fourth game in six decisions, allowing five hits, striking out 12 and walking three.

Trenton scored both runs in the second inning against the Salem righthander.

The Rocks registered only six hits on the day, also scoring twice in the second stanza before getting the winning run in the

Paul Dillon started the fifth inning with a walk. He moved to third base on a wild pitch when the ball got lost in the high grass of the backstop. Sam Merrill then hit a fly ball to centerfield which scored

The pole vault "tradegy" wasn't the only disappointment for Salem last weekend. Balconi said the missed pole vault times took a lot out of the other performances by Rock teammates.

Chris Ritchey was another Rock who felt the wrath of bad luck. Clearly one of the fastest runners in the state at the 220-yard dash, Ritchey was disqualified in this race when one judge ruled he touched the lane markers more than three times during his race—even though he was 15 yards ahead of the rest of the heat.

But that wasn't all. The Rock 880-yard relay combination of Dave Booker. Curt Lewis. Tom Carl and Ritchey were seeded first in the race but dropped the first exchange. The relay team was 75 yards behind the rest of the field and eventually made up 50 yards of the defecit but couldn't pull the win off.

If the Rocks had won the first three spots in the pole vault, the 880-yard relay and the 220-yard dash, they could have overtaken regional champion Livonia Churchill. Instead, the Rocks placed eighth with 17 points.

"I really thought we were the stronger individually than Churchill," Balconi said. "I thought we could win the regional. I felt we were the best team in the area.

Salem still qualified seven thinclads for the state meet. The 440-yard relay team of Greg Stevens, Booker, Mike Christie and Ritchie placed third at :45.8. Bob Dasher placed fifth in the discus, but qualified with a third place spot in the shot put with his best heave of the season at 53-21/2.

Greg Davis qualified by placing third in the 100-yard dash with a :10.8

Tom Rubadue gave a "gutty" performance to qualify in the 880-yard run, placing third with a 1:58.2 time. His best time prior to this race was two minutes flat.

Plymouth Canton's Rich Fleischer won the 220-yard run outright with a :23.0 clocking. He was the lone bright spot and state qualifer for coach Mike Tiano's squad. Fleischer, only a sophomore, has, dominated this event all season long the Chiefs was the 890-yard relay combination of Brent Eckles, John Tarr, Dan McGlinn and Fleischer which placed fourth with a 1:33.1 clocking.

GIRLS TRACK REGIONALS

Plymouth Salem girls produced three medalists and one state qualifier in its regional competition also at Farmington.

Karen Ford was Salem's lone state qualifier as she placed third in the shot put with a school record toss of 35-0. Her previous best throw was 32-10.

Kathy Sample improved on her best mile clocking by almost 25 seconds, placing fifth with a 5:29.7 time-also a school record.

The Rocks' third school record went to sophomore Diane Perpich in the high jump when she leaped 5-2 for a fourth-place finish. Her height actually tied her for third place, but she had one more attempt than her closest opponent.

Salem coach Scott Kurtz was pleased with his crew's performace, especially the job turned by these three girls.

"I'm just overjoyed with our improvement," Kurtz said. "It's the best we've done at a regional in a long Salem finished tied for ninth place with Southfield Lathrup. Each team scored six points. Farmington Mercy took the regional crown.

"I'm disappointed we didn't get more girls to go to state," Kurtz said. "But that's not as important as the progress we've made.

"We've choked at the regionals in the last few years, but this was just an outstanding job. They did what I asked and more. It seems to make the whole season worthwhile.

Erin Lucas was the other Salem bright spot, finishig sixth in the hur-

Plymouth Canton scored only one point and didn't send anyone to the state meet, as it used the regional for a warm-up to the Western Six League meet next week.

Kelly Heaton was the Chiefs' lone medalist with a fifth-place finish in the shot put at 33-8.

Other improvements for the Chiefs included Geri Schufeldt's seventh place finish in the two-mile run. Lynne Rudolph ran under the six-minute mark in the mile race. And freshman Kathy Brophy was sixth in the 80-yard run at 2:30.4.

Anderson's 83 sparks Canton

Plymouth Canton golfer Cathy Anderson shot a school record 83 for 18 holes to lead the Chiefs to an impressive second-place finish in the Central Five League meet held Monday afternoon at Lake-In-the-Woods in Ypsi-

Anderson, the league meet medalist, shot a 42-41 combination to gain the top spot among the Central-5 golfers.

Canton finished with a team score of 400, 20 strokes behind league champion

Plymouth Salem, which was tied with Canton for second place after the dual meet competition, placed third in the match with a 410. Willow Run finished fourth at 467, and Brighton was last at 476.

The league meet results were a surprising turnabout compared to the regionals for the two Plymouth squads.

Canton shot poorly at the regional last Friday and failed to qualify for the state meet. But they rebounded with the solid league meet performance which topped Salem.

The Rocks gelled at the regionals, placing third and qualifying for the state meet. Salem let down, at the league meet, however, finishing third. Salem was the league champion last season, while Canton finished last.

Saline golfers took the second, third and fourth individual spots behind Anderson. Terri Larson, Alison Neff, and Karen Johnston shot 91, 94, and 95 respectively. Saline had a 8-0 dual meet record.

Other all-league performers included fifth place golfer Beth Williams of Brigton who carded a 96.

Salem's top golfer and sixth-place finisher Betty DeLano was the last to gain all-league honors with a 49-49-98

Behind Anderson in Canton's scoring were Linda Nurmi, 47-53-100, Janis McGlone, 57-45-102, and Peggy Visser. 62-53-115.

Behind DeLano in Salem's scoring were June Delaney, 55-47-102, Beth Maggio, 56-48-104, and Meg McGee,

Canton batsmen bow in Midland

The top-ranked Plymouth Canton baseball team took its lumps in Midland last weekend, losing two one-run ball games in the eight-team tourney. It marked only the second and third losses of the season for the Western-6 champs.

The home run ball proved to be Canton's nemesis in the first game as Alpena edged the Chiefs, 5-4, on Friday. An ill-timed rain shower cost Canton the second game against Livonia Franklin, 4-3, on Saturday.

In the nightcap, Canton held a comfortable 3-1 lead through the first five innings on the strength of two Scott Collins' home runs.

The Patriots came storming back in the bottom of the sixth, however, as Collins' three-base fielding error at shortstop allowed three Patroit runners to score-after Franklin had loaded the bases with only one out.

Canton came back to tie the score in the top of the seventh when Collins and Brian James led off the inning with back-to-back walks. Scott Dawson's double scored Collins to tie the score, and the Chiefs had runners on second and third with no outs when the rain

The game was discontinued at that point and the score reverted back to the last complete inning, nullifying the Canton rally and giving Franklin the 4-

Friday's contest against Alpena saw Chief starter Doug Smith give up a three-run homer in the first inning. He settled down after that, allowing only one more run, another solo homer in

Canton battled back, however, and

Dawson then came into relieve Smith in the seventh inning and

Chiefs trip Churchill

The Plymouth Canton softball team won its third straight game with a convincing 9-3 victory over Western Six League contender Livonia Churchill. It was only the second league victory in nine contests for the Chiefs, whose overall record stands at 5-7. Canton has already qualified for district action on June 3.

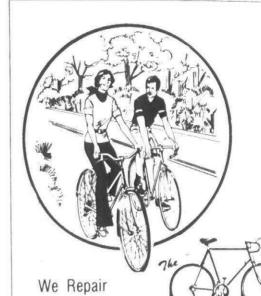

"We're starting to beat people and gaining a lot of confidence," said Canton coach Joan Ryan. "We're starting to put it together."

Lucy Howe, a junior, pitched another strong game against Churchill, allowing only one run in the first inning and two more in the third.

Ryan said Howe pitches stronger with less rest. The Chiefs' recent heavy schedule, because of make-up games, has aided Howe's perform-

Offensively, the Chiefs were very impressive, scoring at least one run in all but the seventh inning. Canton scored once in the first, once in the second, twice in the third, once in the fourth, once in the fifth, and three more times in the sixth to put the game out of reach.

The Chiefs' 12-hit attack was paced by sophomore first baseman Cindy Stevens who had a three-for-four day. Senior centerfielder Judy Frieman added two hits and two runs batted in, while third baseman Val Harben also registered two singles.

Stevenson, Salem netters qualify for state meet

Livonia Stevenson, undefeated this season in dual meet action, proved its dominance in the Observer area with an easy victory in regional tennis competition at Plymouth last weekend.

The Spartans, coached by Kent Shoemaker, easily defeated secondplace Plymouth Salem, 23-16, for the title. The Rocks, with their runners-up finish, also qualified for the state meet in Midland Actually, the Plymouth regional was a four-team contest-even though 14 squads participated. Northville placed third with 15 points, missing statemeet qualification by a single tally. Westland John Glenn was fourth with 13 points.

The fifth-place team was Garden City West, which had seven points. Three squads tied for sixth as Livonia Bentley, Wayne Memorial and Livonia Churchill tallied six points each.

"We've been having a real good season," Shoemaker said. I didn't expect to have won (the regional) as easily as we did. We wrapped it up in the semi-

Salem coach Jim Stevens, the tournament director, was equally pleased with his squad's performance, calling it "a total team effort."

Salem's first singles Curt Schultz defeated Stevenson's Dan Horvath, 6-3, 6-4, in the championship match to highlight the Rocks' efforts. Schultz edged first-seed Ted Beyer from Wayne Memorial in a split set decision, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, in the semifinals.

The Rocks other regional medal came at the third doubles spot where unseeded Larry Kummer and Mark Thomas defeated top-seeded John Downs and Eric Babler of John Glenn, Stevenson won three different spots in the regionals—third singles, fourth singles, and first doubles.

Spartan Rod Carpenter whipped Phil Gwizdz of Garden City West, 6-2, 6-0 in the third singles finale to take the crown. Fourth singles Steve Garver, a senior, edged first-seeded freshman Scott Crespo of Salem, 7-5, 6-3, to take the crown in that position. It marked the first loss for Crespo this season after 14 victories.

Stevenson's first doubles team of Ken Carpenter and Glenn Gwarda were surprise winners in this spot, as the unseeded pair defeated Steve Laffler and Steve Pyett of Northville, 6-1, 6-2 in the championship round. Carpenter and Gwarda had to win fourth matches for this title.

Stevenson's Jim Pfeffer lost in the second singles finale to Doug Castillo of Northville, 6-1, 7-6. The Spartans second double combination of Doug Holmes and Ken Hunt also finished as runners-up to Glenn's Scott Healy and Jerry Green, 6-4, 6-4.

The state meet will be held next weekend, Friday, June 2 and Saturday, June 3.

Canton JV wins again

Another victory for the Plymouth Canton junior varsity softball team gave the Chiefs a 7-1 season record after defeating Waterford Mott Thursday, 27-6.

The Chiefs were victorious over Mott earlier in the season, 10-3.

Freshman Mariann Pink was the winning pitcher for the Chiefs as she struck out the last Mott batter in the seventh inning with the bases loaded.

Canton coach Cathy Himes commented that everyone on the squad played extremely well and together as a team. The Chiefs will play Plymouth Salem on Thursday to try and get revenge on their only loss of the season.

Sophomore Marlene McKinley had a grand slam home run for Canton in the

Alpena scored the eventual winning run on a bunt single, a walk, an error and a sacrifice fly

Dawson started the Franklin game after only one inning of relief work against Alpena. He was tagged with both losses, as his record dropped to 6-2 for the year.

Junior centerfielder Russ Mandle was one of Canton's top hitter in the tourney, along with Collins.

"I was pleased with the way our kids came fighting back in both games," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. 'They gave a positive effort all the

Ladywood loses

Detroit Divine Child scored eight runs in the third inning and went on to defeat Ladywood last week in a Catholic League softball contest, 11-7.

Divine Child scored its other runs in the fourth and sixth frames, while Ladywood scored five runs in the first inning and two in the seventh.

Liz O'Brien was the losing pitcher. " She stayed on the mound all seven innings.

"The Alpena game was a helluva game," the Canton mentor said. "It was a knock-down, drag-out game. It was just one of those days when the ball didn't bounce right for us. We had the base loaded in the bottom of the seventh and (Craig) Lee and (Tom) Norton lined out to end the game. "There's no way we should have lost to Franklin. I just hate to count that as a game," Crissey said. "But that's the Grapplers wash cars

The Plymouth Salem wrestling team will hold a car wash May 27 behind the Plymouth Elks Club, one-half mile east of Main Street. Rock coach Ron Krueger and his grapplers will wash cars for donations between 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tickets for the wash may be purchased in advance from any Salem wrestler

The money raised will be used to buy equipment and send athletes to summer camps.

Baseball's best Area baseball coaches are reminded to call Plymouth Canton coach Fred

Crissey with their best batting and pitching averages every Monday night between 7-9 p.m. Crissey's phone number is 453-7180. BEST HITTERS

We think AUTOVEST makes so much sense for so many people, that it's the wave of the FUTURE, With LaRiche, and AUTOVEST, You can afford that new car or truck that seemed out of reach. The future is Here-Now!!

All AutoVest payments quoted are based on 25 equal payments at the completion of your agreement you'll have 3 options. 1) Trade the car in or sell it and keep all equity. 2) If you love the car keep it. AutoVest is obligated to let you buy it for the price they established today regardless of how high the value may have climbed. 3) If you don't want the car or don't want to trade or sell it, just bring it back and that's that. No obligation on your part. Just make your 25 payments and return it in reasonable condition. Plates & title included. AutoVest Lease/Purchase Plan.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

And the tortoise thought he won the race

What the tortoise didn't know is that I finished shopping first by using The Observer & Eccentric Classified ads—all in the comfort of my hutch.

Have you browsed through the offers waiting for you in The Observer & Eccentric Classifieds lately? It's fun. It's almost like having a department store in your own home ... and you save time, effort and money, too.

So don't race all over town looking for something you want. Be smart. Like me. Put your feet up, relax and shop one of the busiest market places there is—the classified section of your, hometown newspaper. Chances are you'll find just what you've been looking for.

That's all, folks ...
