Q&F

Renewal passes, 2 more mills fail

The final verdict has been reached on school taxes for 1978-79.

The voters spoke Monday and administrators and school trustees plan to act on that election mandate.

There will not be another election scheduled on the additional millage, stress school spokesmen. The administration will proceed to make cuts as indicated before Monday's balloting.

With 29 per cent of the electorate turning out, voters Monday approved the three-mill renewal but turned down the two proposals for additional millage.

Elected to the school board were Elaine Kirchgatter of Canton and Carol Davis of Plymouth Township.

PROPOSITION I to renew three mills of existing millage for five years through 1982 was approved by a vote of 5,285 to 3,692.

Proposition II for 1½ additional mills for five years was defeated 5,613 to 3,785.

Proposition III for a ½-mill for building improvement and maintenance to be levied 10 years was defeated by a similar margin, 5,385 to 3,961.

For trustee, Mrs. Kirchgatter was the leading vote-getter with 5,496. Running a strong second was Mrs. Davis with 5,368 votes. Both were elected to four-year terms. William Johnson finished with 2,906 votes.

SUPT. JOHN M. HOBEN said Tuesday that the administration would proceed with plans to cut the budget by almost $1 million.

"There's been no discussion about another election on the requests for additional millage, and at this time it is not my intention to recommend another vote to the board. That decision, of course, is up to the board, but I know of no sentiment for another election.

"I was pleased that the renewal was approved and was dissappointed the additional millage didn't go through. So now we will proceed to reduce almost $1 million from the operating budget.

"The mandate of voters Monday was pretty clear. We'll adjust our budget to whatever funds the voters provide us with."

Thomas Yack, board president, also confirmed there were no plans to hold another election on the request for additional millage.

"There was never any discussion among trustees that we would come back if the proposals failed this time. To my knowledge, no single trustee has made any comments that would indicate they'd support another vote. In fact, I'm sure a majority of the board would not favor another election.

"Consider the April election when there were fewer choices available to voters. This time, people could pick and choose and they did just that, discriminating between the renewal and the two requests for additional millage.

"Unless something very drastic happened in the future, I think it would be insane and irresponsible to come back with the same package again."

AMONG THE MAJOR changes which will go into effect during the coming school year will be beginning the elementary school day about one hour later one day per week.

A $49,000 cut in the athletic budget will result in elimination of seventh and ninth grade sports along with reductions in other categories.

Only 14 teachers will be hired to accommodate the added student growth, instead of the 36 needed to maintain current class sizes.

School supplies will be cut, with an average reduction of $6.50 per pupil. One-half of the newspaper, debate, drama and club funds will be cut.

Sixth grade camp will continue but fees paid by parents will be increased. On the transporation side, double tripping will continue.

THE SECOND TIME around, the renewal request passed easily with all but one precinct giving a majority of "yes" votes.

Starkweather (Precinct 4) was the only area to vote against the renewal and did so by 292 to 246. Voters at Central Middle approved the renewal, but by only one vote—424 to 423.

In all other precincts the renewal received strong voter support, with the winning margin differing from 2-1 to 3-1 and with little difference in degree of support between Canton and Plymouth residents.

An entirely different pattern, however, emerged with the requests for additional millage. Only two precincts—both in Canton—gave a "yes" vote to Proposals II and III.

Eriksson and Field were the only precincts supporting the 1½ additional mills for operation. Miller and Field were the only two giving a "yes" vote to the additional ½-mill, with a tie vote of 207-207 at Eriksson.

Farm rights costly but feasible

By DARLENE STINSON

An environmental advisor for the Michigan Agricultural Department believes Canton's proposal to preserve farmland through the public purchase of development rights is the best way to save agricultural land from urban sprawl.

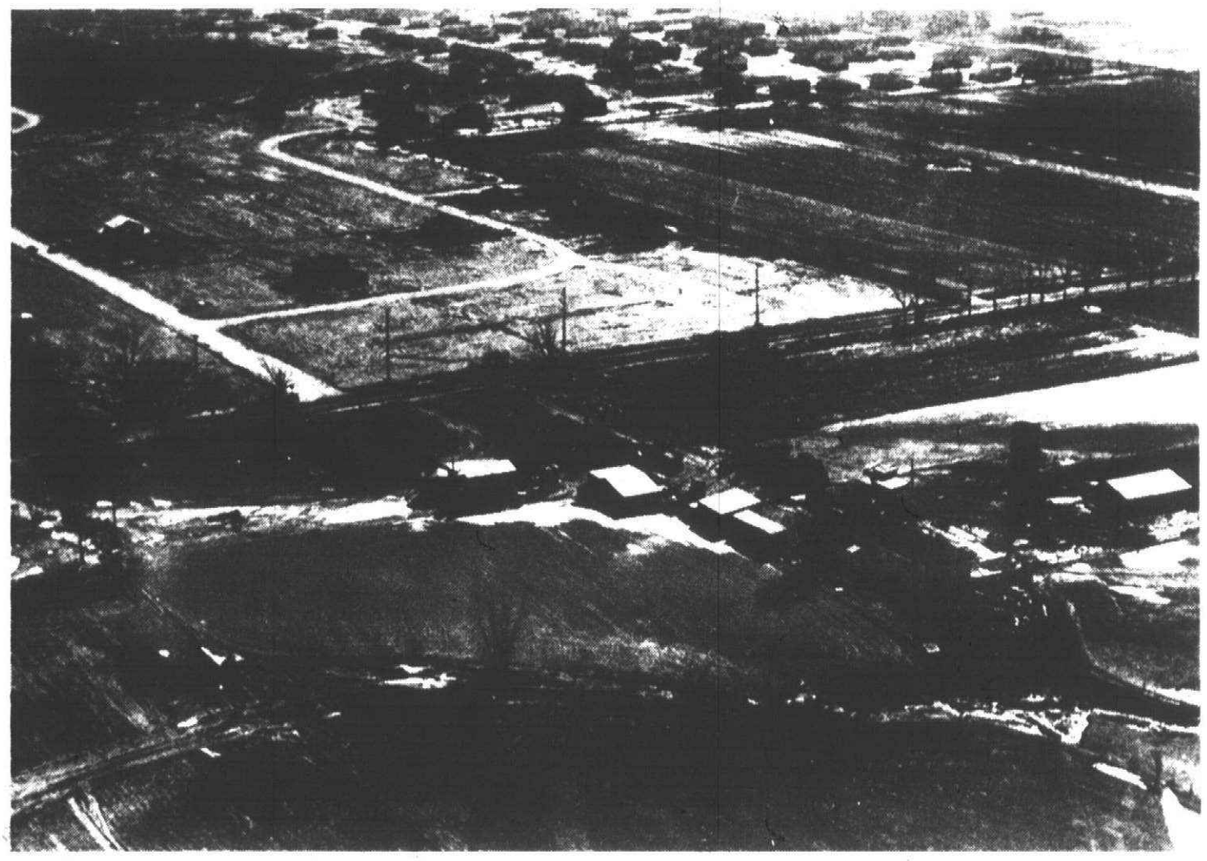

Dr. Emmanuel Van Nierop says the agricultural department proposed a development rights program similar to Canton's for use throughout the state in 1972.

But the idea was quickly dropped, he said, because of its high expense and the introduction of the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act in the Michigan Legislature.

Van Nierop called the farmland bill—approved by the legislature as Public Act 116 in 1974—a "stopgap measure" that is not effective in preserving farmland from encroaching urban development.

The Act 116 program offers an income tax credit to farmers who agree to keep put their development rights in escrow for 10 years.

No farmer in Canton Township is currently participating in the program.

A state environmental advisor thinks Canton's on the right track with its plan to purchase farmer's development rights to save diminishing farmland. But, he said, residents should be prepared to pick up an expensive tab. (Staff photo)

"IF YOU'RE REALLY serious about preserving agricultural land, that is the way to go," Van Nierop said of Canton's proposal. The plan calls for the township to spend $15.2 million for the development rights of the owners of 4,750 acres in the southwestern portion of the township.

Canton board members are expected to place the development rights issue on the ballot, possibly in November.

Both Van Nierop and Dennis Hall of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) said state officials are closely watching the progress of Canton's development rights proposal for possible use throughout the state.

Both expressed doubt, however, that the Michigan Legislature would approve such a statewide measure in the near future because of the high costs involved. They said state funds are not available at the present time to help Canton launch the pilot development rights program.

"Our idea (to purchase development rights) went on the wayside because Public Act 116 was passed," Van Nierop explained.

"Our program didn't go anywhere. Part of the reason was the high expense. We were told to keep quiet about it, because there was fear that it and Public Act 116 would just confuse people."

VAN NIEROP said Public Act 116 was passed to slow the development of Michigan's best farmland—primarily located in the southern portion of the Lower Peninsula.

But four years after the program was started, the owners of only 500,000 acres have signed papers to participate in the Public Act 116 preservation project, Van Nierop said. There are 12 million acres of farmland in Michigan.

According to Hall, the owners of only 562 acres in Wayne County are currently participating in the Act 116 program. Participants live in Plymouth Township, Romulus, Van Buren Township and Rockwood.

Under the Act 116 program, farmers receive a state income tax credit that's based on a ratio of their property taxes and farm income.

Farmers enrolled in the program must sign statements indicating that they will not sell their farmland to developers for 10 years. If the agreement is broken or not renewed after the initial 10-year period, farmers must pay the state a portion of the income tax they saved.

"THERE'S NOT a great deal of acreage enrolled in (the (Act 116) program," Van Nierop admitted. "Farmers can still sell to developers, so it's really just a stopgap measure.

"Act 116 is kind of sketchy," he added. "In one county, you may have a lot of farmers signed up. If one farmer sells out, the market value of all farmland in the area goes up and taxes increase. What you really need is a large block of land."

Van Nierop believes that the state must draw up a master land use plan indicating agricultural areas to make any farmland preservation program effective on a statewide basis.

If a state development rights plan was ever adopted, the state could purchase development rights only on farmland located close to rapidly developing areas, he said.

"This is such a vital issue that we should look at all the alternatives. I know there are some people in the legislature who favor this approach," Van Nierop said of Canton's proposal. "But because of the cost, it's kind of a sensitive thing."

Builders' rep responds to buyers' gripes

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan has pledged to put pressure on Canton builders who have been sluggish in repairing defects in residents' new homes.

The attorney for the association—Irvin Yackness—made the pledge to about 80 irate homeowners who stormed the township meeting hall with complaints about their builders Tuesday night.

The public protest was engineered by Gary Roberts, a Repubican candidate for township trustee. Roberts spearheaded a similar protest before the township board last fall.

THE HOMEOWNERS complained of defects in their homes that builders had failed to fix or failed to repair properly. They said a building complaint procedure formulated by the township board last fall was ineffective in forcing builders to make the repairs.

The residents had all purchased their homes before last fall, when the township board mandated that all Canton builders offer the 10-year Homeowners Warranty program (HOW) sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders.

"But it doesn't matter if it's a one- or a 10-year warranty," shouted one resident who attended Tuesday's meeting. "We can't get service on any warranty."

Yackness, who had been invited to the meeting by Supervisor Harold Stein, quietly sat through the residents' complaints. After every homeowner who wanted to tell of leaky pipes, cracked cement and muddy streets had his say, Stein invited Yackness to the podium.

"We want satisfied homeowners, and obviously you're not," Yackness told the angry homeowners.

"I don't know what the facts are on your individual complaints, but I can promise you that our association will do everything in its power to help your municipal officials straighten this out."

YACKNESS ADMITTED, however, that the builders association has no legal power to force builders to repair new-home defects. The association cannot suspend a builder's license or take him to court.

The association can only threaten to suspend a builder's membership in the organization. Yackness said most of the builders residents are complaining about are members of the builders association.

"I can assure you that membership in our association is desirable," he said.

Yackness commended Stein for calling a meeting with builders last week to ask them to clean up muddy streets and repair new-home defects more quickly.

Roberts criticized the supervisor for not inviting him to the meeting as "a representative of the homeowners."

Land preservation education OKd

A massive educational campaign on the pros and cons of buying development rights from farmers should get underway by the end of this month.

Canton board members have unanimously approved formation of a committee to educate residents on the development rights issue in hopes of placing the matter on the November ballot.

The committee will sponsor public hearings and debates on a proposal to purchase $15.2 million in development rights from the owners of 4,750 acres in the southwestern portion of the township.

A citizens study committee recommended the public purchase of development rights last year as a way to preserve the township's dwindling agricultural land from encroaching urban sprawl.

THE BALLOT QUESTION must be worded by Sept. 5 if it is to appear on the November ballot. Township board members have not yet decided on a definite method to finance the development rights purchase.

Robert Padget, chairman of the planning commission, recommended formation of the committee as a tool to educate residents on the ramifications of the proposal by November.

"If immediate action is taken to create a goal-directed committee, I feel the educational process can be completed in time for the November election," Padget told township board members.

"If it doesn't proceed like it should, the matter could be abandoned for the November election."

Padget, who will serve as the committee's chairperson, has been empowered by the township board to appoint committee members himself.

As chairperson, he envisions a seven-member committee composed of himself, two persons in favor of the development rights issue, two persons opposed to the proposal and two newspaper representatives. Padget said he will not appoint candidates for public office or strong candidate supporters to the non-political committee.

The committee will draw up its own budget—which could run as high as $15,000, and submit the budget proposal to the township board for approval.

Donahue decides to go GOP

Treasurer candidate Jim Donahue has made a "reluctant" choice between the Republican and Democratic parties.

After submitting nominating petitions for both the Republican and Democratic treasurer's race, Donahue withdrew the Democratic petition by last Friday's deadline.

He will run unopposed in the Republican primary for the treasurer's slot. Donahue will face the winner of the Democratic treasurer primary—incumbent Anne Bradley or Maria Falkiewicz—this November.

ALTHOUGH DONAHUE was undecided about his party affiliation before the June 6 filing deadline, he insists that a quirk of fate forced him to submit petitions for both parties.

Donahue said he sprained his ankle on June 4 before he had gathered the necessary number of signatures on his filing petitions. Some supporters who circulated petitions gathered signatures from Democrats. Others compiled Republican petitions.

"I looked at them and said, 'Gee, I have enough signatures to file both ways," said Donahue. "I didn't want to tell these people that I was going to throw some of the petitions away.

"I also thought it would be a benefit to me to see which way the race was going."

Donahue said he does not view himself as either a Republican or a Democrat. He said he is opposed to local partisan politics.

"I've always been an independent," he said. "I've always voted for the individual—not the party."

Senate to vote on dredging 3 local lakes

By TIM RICHARD

Cleaning up the weedy Middle Rouge chain of lakes, a project that has been on the shelf since 1975, was due for a jolt of new life in the legislature this week.

The Michigan Senate was to vote on a $15,000 study item in the Department of Natural Resources budget that will revive attempts to dredge Newburgh, Wilcox and Phoenix lakes.

"It's in the bill," said Sen. Bill S. Huffman (D-Madison Heights), a member of the powerful appropriations committee. Huffman inserted the funds at the request of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) an associate of Huffman's during his own senate days.

"We're going to take some of the money that's been going outstate," said Huffman. "By golly, we have some problems here in Wayne County and the metropolitan area."

ON THE HOUSE side, the appropriation is being guided by State Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia), who has succeeded Pursell as legislative leader of restoring the Rouge lakes.

"I've talked to the house appropriations guys, and they have no problem with it at all," said Law.

In a nutshell, the Rouge lakes have become infested with weeds nourished by bacteria from pollution. As old weeds die, they decompose and provide more nutrition. Old weeds and new silt combine to fill up the lake, making it shallower and weedier than ever.

The decomposition process and the warming of the water means there is less dissolved oxygen in the water for fish. Valuable gamefish, which require high oxygen levels, can't survive or, like sunfish, become stunted. Carp, however, flourish.

THE STATE, along with Wayne County, which has jurisdiction over the parks bordering the Rouge, teamed up in the early '70s with a vast improvement program. Its total price tag was to run $800,000 in state funds.

A couple of things got done. One was a $50,000 report by John R. Snell Engineers, Inc., called "Study of the Engineering and Limnological Aspects of Rehabilitating Phoenix, Wilcox and Newburgh Lakes."

The study needs to be updated, experts agree. The $15,000 appropriation Huffman and Law are guiding through the legislature would fund that. "It should take one to two months once the funds are allocated," said Law.

Another part of the project that got done was that fishing docks were built on Newburgh and Phoenix lakes, and Phoenix's channel was re-routed to improve stream flow.

The big money—$400,000 or so—was to go for dredging. When the oil embargo recession struck in 1975, Gov. William G. Milliken had to make cuts in order to meet a constitutional requirement of balanced budget. Major capital items were prime targets. The Rouge program was nipped at that point.

The Rouge was not entirely forgotten. With existing funds, DNR has stocked Newburgh Lake with fish. Bill Deephouse, fisheries biologist in the district DNR office, said 15,000 largemouth black bass were stocked in 1975 and 3,400 in 1976. It was one reason for excellent catches of bass in the June 3 kids fishing derby at Newburgh.

PURSELL AND LAW view a three-pronged, federal-state-county effort.

Edwin Mika, who heads the county's parks and recreation program, said the county is doing its share by preparing an updated master plan for recreation. Target date is Dec. 31. This plan will include not only water improvements but shorelines, land acquisition, comfort stations and bicycle paths.

The state will commission the water study—probably dealing with the Snell firm of Lansing again—and superintend water quality efforts.

In Washington, Pursell will seek funds from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, which, as a matter of policy, waits for projects to be suggested by state-local units rather than intruding on others' turfs.

DREDGING IS a massive project. The Snell report of 1974-5, however, calls it the only cost-effective way to control weeds.

"Dredging accomplished control of weeds in several ways:

"1.) It deepens the lake to the point where the sun's rays are, for all practical purposes, totally absorbed before reaching the bottom, and some light is needed to start weeds growing from the bottom.

"2.) The rich bottom deposits are removed, leaving a much more barren soil, thus further discouraging weed growth.

"3.) A deeper lake is a cooler lake, and weed growth is further discouraged."

Snell proposed that Newburgh Lake, the largest, be given priority, followed by Wilcox and Phoenix.

Snell suggested three priorities, depending on the amount of available funds: Deepening upper Newburgh Lake to 10 feet; deepening upper Newburgh to 12 feet; and deepening upper Newburgh to 12 feet and as much of the lower portion to 10 feet as possible.

To avoid recurrence of the silting problem, Snell says, "It is well to leave an extra deep area or siltation basin at the entrance to each lake so that the heavier sand coming in (with the Rouge's swift current) will not wash further into the lake, but will be trapped at this point where it can later be removed by draglines and hauled away."

The Flip Side
by craig piechura

Epiphany among the palm trees

The mental picture I have of it is crystal clear.

It's high up in the Hollywood Hills, and you park your car—preferably a convertible—on the precipice that overlooks the glittering lights of Los Angeles.

I wanted to duplicate the mental image so badly. But the closest I got to it in spirit was a glimpse of the ramshackle "Hollywood" sign through the sulphur smog.

I spent a good part of two evenings winding my way through residential neighborhoods of Beverly Hills, running into dead ends and classy cul-de-sacs. A friend of mine who didn't have a vision humored me and went along for the unrequited ride.

I've seen that spot in pictures. It's been depicted on record albums. I've seen couples in more than one horror movie park up there on a lover's lane and gaze languidly down on the lights of L.A. while a stalker lurks in the shadows.

So where is this place? It's probably on the back lot of Universal Studios and I, like a turkey, fell for it.

To add to my disappointment, the radio was playing a new rock song called "Hollywood Nights" by Bob Seger. The rollicking record talks about a midwestern guy (Bob Seger) looking down on the lights of L.A. "wondering if he could ever go home." There's a line in the song that the Hollywood Hills were giving him chills. Well, they burned me. If Bob Seger can have his west coast epiphany, why can't I have mine?

DESPITE THIS disappointment, and the fact that you people have to be subjected to the obligatory "How I spent my summer vacation" column, California wasn't as repulsive as I imagined it.

I was afraid because I'm allergic to slick, trendy lifestyles. I break out in a rash at the mere mention of meditation, hot tubs, Hurrache sandals and Perrier mineral water. It was all there. I was right in the thick of it. Yet, in spite of myself, I managed to have a good time.

Sure, there were crazies out there. But that's to be expected in the state that brought you Patty Hearst and Richard Nixon.

There was the guy on the Frisco bus with three gold rings in his ear, telling anybody who was listening what a great town San Francisco was. It was a great town, he raved on, because it had nine hospitals and eight of them had emergency rooms. He spoke from personal experience.

On the same bus was an older street survivor who held more than 50 unsealed envelopes in his lap. Each envelope was filled with assorted papers—newspaper clippings, candy wrappers and important-looking documents. As he sat down, he flipped through the envelopes in a very deliberate fashion until he came to a certain one. He then placed the bus transfer inside its special envelope.

First bum I ever saw with a filing system.

ON THE BERKELEY campus I came across an LSD casualty who was walking along, talking very loudly to himself about the "counter prooductive collective consciousness that is pervading the community and draining people's energies."

Each sentence this man uttered had about 15 buzzwords like "consciousness" in it. He had an Ace bandage wrapped around his feet and a baseball cap on his head.

But most of the people of California are relatively normal. They may own more foreign cars than we do, but they drive on the same side of the street.

They probably jog or play tennis instead of racquetball or bowling, but they're even more concerned about property values and community standards than the normal people of Michigan.

The middle class might cost a little more in California but it's still thriving.

And I don't exclude myself from that contingent. I didn't wear an Instamatic camera around my neck or bring the family dog on the plane with me, but I drove around California in a rented, air-conditioned Monte Carlo. And what could be more middle class than that?

THERE WAS A DINGY bar we frequented that most suburbanites would have avoided, but most of the trip was filled with predictable Americana. I made the mandatory stops at Fisherman's Wharf, Disneyland, the San Diego Zoo and Big Sur. I hung onto the Rice-a-Roni cable car straps.

Oh, but you'd rather hear about the Tijuana bar. Everbody would.

I don't have the heart to tell them it's not the steamy, seamy strip everyone envisions. At least not from my experience.

Most of Tijuana's offerings are not somebody's "seester" but rather leather coats, leather purses, leather bowling bags and onyx chess sets. I bought a bottle of Pernod down there but my buddy nearly went broke trying to take advantage of the south of the border bargains. He now owns a leather jacket, a Mexican blanket, an onyx chess set and a leatherette Backgammon board. Luckily, he bought these required items or I don't think the customs people would have let us back in the states.

But you still want to hear about the Tijuana bar. It reeked of bug spray in a valiant effort to keep la cucaracha (the cockroach) out. The ambience of the place didn't encourage one to linger long. We were the only gringos in the bar and everybody else at the rail was seriously involved with a quart of Tecate brand beer. We sipped on a pequena Carta Blanca.

A TV set was the center of attention because Mexico was playing Italy in the soccer finals. Mexico was losing 3-0, which made my friend nervous. I gulped my beer from the bottle and talked to a short guy next to me in rudimentary English.

I would've used some of my high school Spanish on him but the opportunity to say "No senor, Pepe no es mi hermano, es mi primo," didn't present itself. I don't have a cousin named Pepe.

I may be back in Michigan behind the typewriter, but, as Mose Allison once said, my mind is on vacation and my mouth is working overtime.

Tom Sullivan advances at EMU

On or off campus, Tom Sullivan is committed and involved at Eastern Michigan University.

Sullivan, former Plymouth resident now residing in Canton, has been with the university since 1971. He started as a resident area coordinator but has been advanced to director of housing, a department with an annual revenue of $3½ to $4 million.

MANY MIGHT THINK that a director of housing is mostly concerned with fresh paint on the walls, and plumbing that doesn't leak.

Sullivan concedes the importance of such mundane items, but his concern goes much deeper. "I have a deep personal belief in residence hall living. We need to provide students with clean, well-mainted facilities. We have a moral responsibility to provide them with the opportunity to develop.

"We have text after text of basic goals for student development and we plan activities to meet those goals. To the degree we succeed, I am satisfied."

Sullivan believes residence hall living is an important part, academically and socially, of a college education. "People generally perform better academically in residence halls. I like to think that's not accidental. But there's nothing magic in the halls. There are peer-group tutors and mutual support.

TOM SULLIVAN

If you have a hard time with trigonometry, maybe someone down the hall knows trig."

And Sullivan carries that concern into his personal life as well. Although Sullivan and wife Barbara recently moved to Canton Township, the family had lived in Plymouth Township for more than six years.

Sullivan began his political career when he ran for constable in 1972 and for township trustee in 1974. He lost both elections by a few hundred votes out of thousands cast.

In late 1974 he began serving on the township planning commission and was elected secretary of that body. He was forced to resign when he moved to Canton.

SULLIVAN'S EXPLANATION for his political involvement is simple.

"I have been very involved because, as a youngster, my dad admonished me that if I criticized anybody, I should be ready to do it better. I saw that some things could be better."

As a result of Sullivan's community involvement, he was nominated in 1977 by the Plymouth Jaycees as one of the outstanding young men of the community. Sullivan isn't a member of the Jaycees and was suprised when "a Jaycee friend of mine called and asked, 'What have you been doing since 1972?' I had no idea he was filling out a form. I thought it was a joke. I did not receive the award but was very honored to receive the nomination."

Although for the time being Sullivan is concentrating on moving into the family's new home, he has no doubt that eventually he will get involved in Canton politics. And he has been asked to work on campaigns for other candidates.

Sullivan earned a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Dayton in 1969 and taught for a while. He then attended Kent State University for a master's degree and was a building director during the confrontations there.

"The National Guard helicopters were flying over at night with a huge searchlight. The students in my building had no idea there was any danger and were yelling and waving to see if the helicopter could spot them. I burst out the door and picked up the first guy and threw him in the building. The kids all wondered what I was so mad about. They had no comprehension."

Eventually he and his wife had to be evacuated in a National Guard bus and were told to lie on the floor of the bus—in case of snipers.

Sullivan had a chance to stay at Kent State after receiving his degree, but decided there were too many bad memories.

Percolated punch

If you thought your glass coffee percolater only made great coffee, wait until you taste hot spiced punch in the same pot. Just put whole spices in the percolator basket and fruit juices or wine in the bottom glass container. Let perk a few minutes until spiced to your taste.

McNamara to head up SEMTA

In a note of political irony, Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara is on his way to becoming chairman of the board of the seven-county Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

McNamara was tapped by the board's nominating committee to succeed Thomas F. Turner, a Detroit representative and president of the metropolitan AFL-CIO.

The irony is that McNamara was once removed as a member of the Detroit Water and Sewer Board by Mayor Coleman A. Young, who resented the way the suburbanite probed into water board operations.

A further irony is that McNamara is leap-frogging over the head of Dwight Havens, currently first vice-chairman and the man in line to succeed Turner. Havens, of Grosse Pointe, is head of the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce and tends to hold Young's points of view on rapid transit needs.

McNamara was tapped for chairman over Havens last week in a secret ballot 4-1 vote of the nominating committee. In order to present a united front, the nominating committee issued a unanimous report.

Election of the chairman will take place in July. It's possible that other nominations could be made from the floor, though it is almost never done.

McNamara has been on the SEMTA board one year. He was appointed by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The SEMTA board has 15 members—five from Detroit (picked by Young), three from the Wayne County suburbs, three from Oakland County, two from Macomb and two from the outlying counties picked by the governor.

The current board is considered to have an 8-7 pro-Detroit balance. The majority consists of the five Detroit members, two Grosse Pointers with downtown business interests and a gubernatorial appointee with downtown interests.

That will change next month when J.A. (Art) Mullen, one of the Grosse Pointers, steps down and is succeeded by DeWitt Henry, a former Grosse Ile Township supervisor and head of a downriver economic development group.

The nominating committee chose R.J. Alexander of Bloomfield Township for first vice-chairman and Dauris Jackson of Detroit for second vice-chairman.

The SEMTA board is scheduled to vote July 25 on a final alternative for a rapid transit system.

Godre files, then withdraws

Barbara Godre may have the distinction of mounting the briefest campaign for Plymouth Township Clerk in the history of the office.

The 31-year-old mother of two and part-time law student filed her nominating petitions last Tuesday morning and withdrew her candidacy Friday afternoon.

"I came to the conclusion that Esther Hulsing and myself have basically the same ideas and would be cutting into each other's vote," she said in explanation of the move.

"I'm comfortable with the decision, and I think it's a wise one. It will give me another two years to work on my own name in the community." She added she would throw her support behind Mrs. Hulsing.

Helen Richardson is retiring from the office this year.

There are things you can do to control the cost of your phone bill.
We are constantly searching for ways to help you economize on your phone service, but here are just a few ideas on how you can help yourself:
Call when it's least expensive. For example, when you're calling long distance, dial direct and plan your calls for times when the rates are lowest.
Budget Service that's really low budget! Look into the availability of Budget Service if you don't make a lot of phone calls every month. It's the least expensive one-or-two party phone service we offer.
Plan to have all your service installed in one visit. For instance, if you move, plan carefully so the installer doesn't have to make extra trips, for which you may have to pay additional charges. And while you're planning for new service, make sure it's going to be the kind most suited to your needs.
Sometimes, little tips can save you a surprising amount over the long haul. We'll keep trying to help you save.

QAE

You can go fishing without digging bait

By W.W. EDGAR

If you are a fisherman, or just have the desire to go fishing, you no longer need to go digging worms for bait.

You can now purchase worms from a vending machine, just as you would purchase a package of cigarettes.

This you may not believe unless you saw it. But the machine that dispenses worms can be seen at the McAllister party store on Northville Road—and it is one of the oddest components of the market that has catered to the public from the same location for years on end.

"I thought the man, Howard Neuberts of Westland, was kidding me," Bill McAllister said, "when he came in here to sell me on the idea of a worm vending machine. I was stopped, speechless, right in my tracks. Then he showed me the machine and I was sold on it.

It is an oddity. But it's an asset to the store."

THE MACHINE dispenses two members of the worm family—the night crawler and the red worm, or what used to be commonly called the angle worm.

They are packaged in small milk containers and kept alive by being refrigerated at all times. They are sold in $1 quantities and the machine will take all denominations of coins except pennies.

The sales are listed as 12 night crawlers for $1 and 55 red worms for $1.

Most of the purchasers are folks who stop off on the way to Phoenix or Wilcox lakes and their coming depends to a great extent on the weather or which way the wind blows.

McAllister, who smiles every time he thinks of worms being sold from a vending machine, says he can tell the days when sales will be good. He just watches the weather or the wind and sits back to wait for the rush for worms.

"Many people come out here all the way from Detroit to fish these two lakes. Now, with the machines, they don't have to go digging worms. They always can be assured of a sufficient quantity for any of their fishing trips.

"During the current season, most of the fishing is done early in the morning and in the early evenings after work. And many of the fishermen are father and son combinations."

ONE OF THE QUIRKS of the worm business that he learned since the vending machine was installed is that women purchase quantities of the worms to use in their flower beds and pots.

They claim the worms aerate the soil and thus give the needed strength to the plants and flowers.

The worm vending machine has brought many a smile to the folks who frequent the store, but Mrs. Lois McAllister provided the greatest laugh when she told the story of one of her customers who took a carton of the worms to use for her plants and placed them in the refrigerator until she was ready for her garden work.

Meanwhile, her mother-in-law went to the refrigerator to get a bit of milk. She opened the carton, saw the worms, and let out a scream, "That's a fine way to treat your mother-in-law."

Progress has provided many strange things in recent years, but few stranger than a worm vending machine to eliminate the need for digging them to go fishing.

What limits shall we place on ourselves?

California officials still are in an uproar trying to figure out how to balance their budgets and still stay within the revenue limit now a part of that state's constitution.

Interestingly enough, while the balancing act is going on out west, a speaker was in Plymouth Monday night to push a similar proposal for Michigan.

The proposals are different, but each has the same basic goal—to put a halt to rising taxes.

The Michigan proposal has been made by a citizens' group headed by Richard Headlee, president of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. The citizens group is currently engaged in a petition drive to place a constitutional amendment on the November ballot.

THE PROPOSAL is complicated. It deals with mathematical formulas to limit state spending according to a base year's personal income. It provides for spending growth to meet inflation, based on the consumer price index in any given year.

I'm still trying to learn more about the specifics of how the proposal would work, if approved by voters. And so I withhold judgment on whether the tax limit should be enacted.

The general question of limiting taxes by a constitution, however, is an interesting one which can be explored now. In looking at the general queston, though, I want to make clear that I am not discussing the specific proposal which is the subject of a petition drive.

A CLICHE often bandied about is that the power to tax is the power to destroy.

And that is true. But what the cliche really states is that the power to govern is the power to destroy. And government does not have power of any kind without the ability to tax.

If you strip government of revenue, then government is left powerless. If you provide unlimited revenue—which translates to unlimited ability to tax—than government has unlimited power. And if you limit taxes, you limit government power.

And so any consideration of limiting taxes should include the following basic premise of government: Government is effective only to the extent it has available revenue with which to finance programs; and revenue is generated by taxation.

If you place a ceiling on taxes, you really are defining the maximum amount of revenue for government services to its citizens.

And so a decision on limiting taxes is really a decision on limiting government services. The basic question, then, becomes whether government is doing too much for its citizens and whether it should be told to do less.

If we are to make a rational decision, we ought to consider what government is doing that we want it to discontinue doing. What services should be eliminated? What possible future service needs are we willing to forego?

If we can all come to an agreement on what future services to forego and what present services to eliminate, then it will be much easier to decide what the actual tax limitation should be. Frankly, I'm not overly optimistic. The reason government spending has been increasing is that there are so many demands being made for services. There are too many divergent groups in the state making separate demands upon government.

I HAVE ONE other major concern, but I need more information before knowing how real this concern is.

Regardless of the limits we place on state taxation, Michigan will remain a part of the Republic (unless we secede also).

As a part of the union, Michigan will be subject to the laws of Congress. That means every program the federal government mandates, the Michigan Legislature must fund. And there's ...ning Michigan voters alone can do to limit the federal government's actions.

The Michigan Legislature also is subject to orders of the Michigan Supreme Court and the federal courts. If a court order requires expenditure of public funds, the money must be spent—regardless of any constitutional limit on taxation.

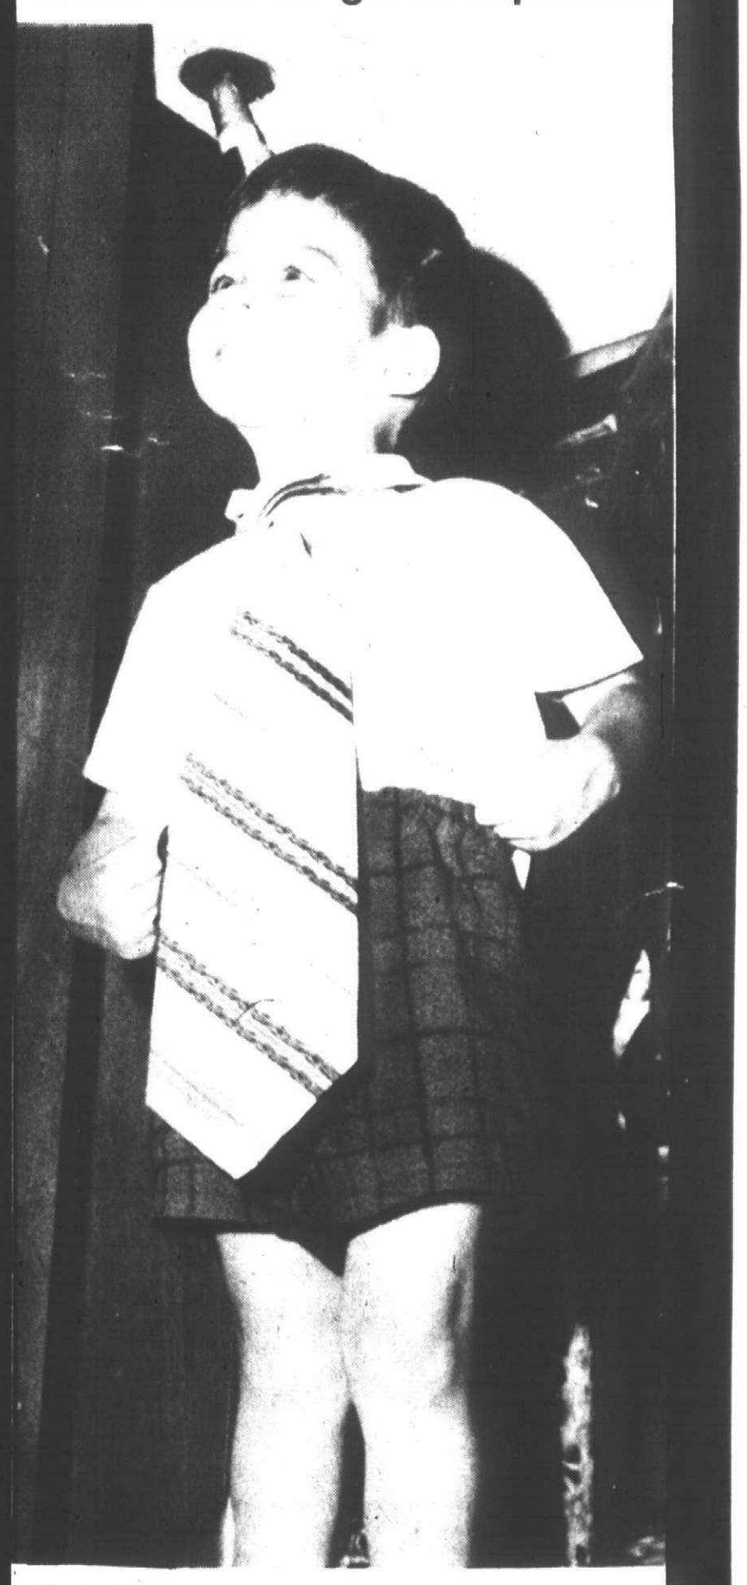

IN THE FINAL analysis, we aren't free to decide what services will be provided and which will be eliminated. If we agree on services and then set our tax limit, what will happen when Congress or the courts mandate an expenditure? What will happen, with tax limitation, is that some of services we agreed were desirable enough to be kept will go out the window.

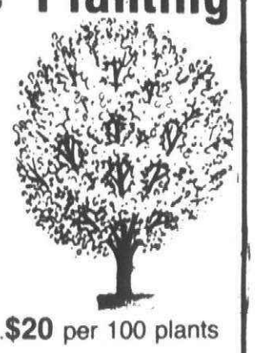

I don't know about you, but I'm not ready yet for Michigan to secede from the union. And as long as we remain in the Republic, I want to maintain state control by making sure the state can generate the income it needs to provide the services it must. I'm sure there must be a way to do that and still maintain a reasonable tax burden.

JCs reveal plans for race & parade

Plans were announced this week on how residents or groups may enter the final Fourth of July parade or marathon race sponsored by the Plymouth Area Jaycees.

Both the parade and the marathon will be conducted in Plymouth on Tuesday, July 4.

Deadline to enter the marathon is June 30 and deadline for parade entries is July 1.

THIS YEAR the marathon will be a five-mile run from Northville to Plymouth.

Runners will register at 8:45 a.m. in the preferred parking lot of Northville Downs, Sheldon and Seven Mile, on the morning of the race.

The course for this year's race will be along the bicycle path of Edward Hines Park to Plymouth Point Park.

Trophies will be awarded for the first man and for the first woman to cross the finish line.

Persons wanting to enter the marathon should send their name, address, age and phone number, along with $1, to Plymouth Jaycee Marathon, 233 Blunk, Plymouth 48170. Checks should be made payable to Plymouth Jaycees.

Anyone who doesn't register by June 30 must be at Northville Downs to sign up between 8:30 and 9 a.m. July 4.

ANYONE WANTING to enter the Fourth of July Parade sponsored by the Jaycees has until July 1 to enter.

Entry blanks are available at both branches of First National Bank of Plymouth, at the front desk of the Mayflower Hotel, and in the Plymouth Township supervisor's office.

The theme of this year's parade is "America—A Future as Great as its Past."

The parade will form at the Plymouth Cultural Center and begin at 1 p.m. at the corners of Main and Theodore. The parade will then proceed down Main Street to Hartsough and to the disassembly point at East Middle School.

The Jaycees also are planning to present a fireworks display at the Massey Ball Diamond on Plymouth Road. Cars will park in the Burroughs Parking Lot.

Private college tuition bill OK'd

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Parents sending their children to private schools and colleges may be getting a tax break.

The U.S. House of Representatives last week approved a bill providing tuition tax credits of up to $250 for college students and $100 for private high school and elementary school children.

The house approved the tax credit for lower school students, including those in parochial schools, by a 209-194 vote. The total package passed, 237-158.

THE MEASURE awaits Senate action. If approved as is, it faces a presidential veto, since the Carter administration is pushing expanding the federal college loan and grants program to include more students from middle class families.

Congressmen from the Observer & Eccentric area split on the final bill but voted overwhelmingly against including high school and elementary students in the tax credit plan.

Reps. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), James Blanchard (D-Pleasant Ridge) and William Broomfield (R-Birmingham) supported the final bill.

Opposed were David Bonior (D-Mt. Clemens), William Ford (D-Taylor) and William Brodhead (D-Detroit).

Only Broomfield supported including tax credits for lower school students.

A SPOKESMAN for Broomfield said this week, "A lot of families have been asking to be able to make a choice. This bill helps provide the ability to choose.

"The middle income groups have always found themselves in an unjust position. Taxes are really becoming a burden." He added that the House approved bill would also remove the federal government from deciding who would receive federally-sponsored grants and loans.

The administration's idea to expand existing college aid programs to include more of the middle class, picked up some support from Observer & Eccentric area repreesentatives.

BRODHEAD, WHO called the tax credit plan "a very, very expensive backdoor spending program," and Blanchard are pushing the President Jimmy Carter's plan.

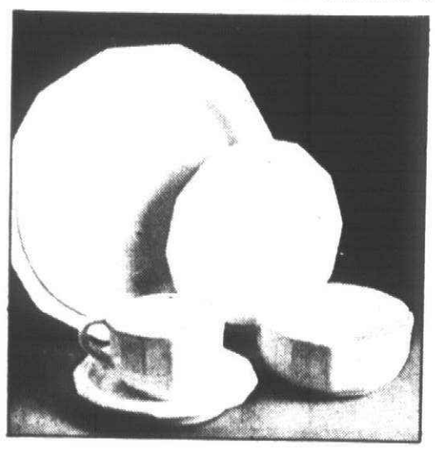

Blanchard said expanding the existing programs would aid middle-income families more than the "token" tax credit system. He favors removing all income requirements for a federal loan and would raise the income ceiling to qualify for federal scholarships to $25,000.

"It's not that unreasonable to expand the loan programs," Blanchard said. "The bureaucracy is already in place. It would target the grant programs to those of more need."

Van puts business on wheels

By W.W. EDGAR

"I am not a woman's libber, but it sure is nice having my husband working for me."

With this preamble Lori Roberts of Embassy Drive in Canton Township has set herself up in an unusual business—the Canton Township Vacuum Cleaner and Sewing Machine Co.

Some years ago she worked for a company in California that dealt in all degress of the vacuum cleaner business. It was there that she gained the knowledge that she now hopes will enable her to make a success of the unusual venture.

IT WAS DURING her stay in California that she met her husband Gary, a resident of Michigan. He travelled back and forth from the coast as a business representative.

All the while she worked on the coast, Mrs. Roberts had the urge to someday have a business of her own. The more she thought of it, the more she was sure that her best chance would be to follow the line of work she was already in—except that she would own the company.

For a long time this was just a dream. But when they moved to Canton Township in December, 1976, and saw all the new developments and the number of homes that would be potential customers, she was certain she had found the area in which to get started.

She wanted to be different in setting up the business. The Roberts couldn't wait until they had a store or a site in which to start, so the business is set up in their home—and work done from a van. They got the township's approval on June 1, 1978.

"In other words, we do repair work on the scene. That saves the customer the trouble of bringing the vacuum cleaner to us for repairs and then calling for it when it is finished. That's where my husband comes in. A well-trained mechanic on the machines, he travels in the van, does the work on the spot and saves time and trouble all around."

In the year the Mrs. Roberts has been in business she has built up a great clientele. Most of the work is now done at the shopping centers and malls.

IN THE SHORT TIME they have been in business the van has made trips to Eastland, the Oakland Mall, the Tel-Twelve Mall and many of the other business centers.

One of her biggest jobs now, according to Mrs. Roberts, is to set up a schedule that will eliminate any double tracking in the van. She points out that it would be unprofitable to go to Eastland, return home, and then head for Oakland Mall. So she sets up trips and schedules that enables her husband to make a curcuit touching all special points.

To make certain the work her husband does in the van is correct, she goes along on the trips, not only to inspect the repairs but to adjust the machines and set them up in working order.

While Mrs. Roberts admits it is an unusual set-up, she still is very proud of it and now is looking forward to the day when she and her husband will have their own store.

"We've been shopping around. But the rents being asked are too high at the moment. We are looking at a piece of ground and if we can get it at a reasonable f[illegible]re we will build our own store. Anc[illegible] will be in Canton."

Whether or not they get the store she has realized her goal of having her own business, and having her husband working for her.

Vets office at college saves trip downtown

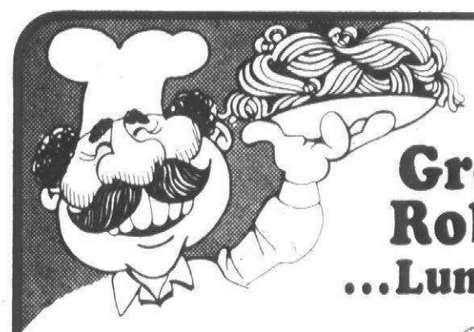

Schoolcraft College's office of veterans affairs has services and information which can save a veteran a trip downtown.

That's the word from coordinator John Borenski, who adds: "In addition to answering questions and processing paperwork required for educational assistance under the GI Bill, our office has other information on all VA-related topics."

The office is located in room 500 of the Forum on the main campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

"OUR SERVICES are designed to assist Schoolcraft students, but they are also available to all veterans and their families within the college community," Borenski said.

His office works with administrators of CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act), unemployment offices and neighborhood services departments providing a referral service. Information and directions which many veterans believe are available only at the downtown VA Building are obtainable through the Schoolcraft veterans office.

Job market great for oil tech grads

Only eight students have reached second-year status in Schoolcraft College's petroleum technology program, but their job prospects are good.

Geology instructor John Bedford, who helped develop and now heads the two-year-old program, said four graduates have taken jobs at pay rates of $1,000 to $1,200 a month, plus fringes.

Two have gone on to advanced studies, and two are completing the program this summer at Schoolcraft.

"OPPORTUNITIES in the field are growing," said Bedford. "We could have placed more in jobs if graduates had been available this spring."

Three graduates took jobs in Oklahoma. Bruce Ellis and Doug Wait were hired by Phillips Petroleum, and Pat Mancinelli joined Cleary Oil. Rick Stearns took a job with Magcobar in Pennsylvania.

Schoolcraft's program was developed in cooperation with the National Science industry.

It requires 73 to 75 credit hours of study, with emphasis on geology. Graduates earn an associate in science

THE SCHOOLCRAFT program and one at Northwestern Michigan College were featured in the May 19 issue of Oil and Gas News, a weekly state petroleum industry magazine.

It described both as "springboards" for young men and women to become part of the Niagaran oil boom in the northern part of the state.

Tipping the Scales

Irritating grab-bag on dieting

By NANCY AUSTIN

Things that are irritating about dieting or dieters (or thoughts at large or large thoughts about dieting):

Lo-cal fruit recipes that add several hundred calories to the fruit.
People who predominate the conversation about their diet.
People who know and have all the answers.
The liquid protein diet.
Fad diets.
Food products that don't have the calorie counts—even no-no's.
People who watch your plate at a party or dinner gathering.
Slick magazine writers who have all the diet answers.
Self-proclaimed diet experts.
Twiggies who tell you they are going on a diet.
D-I-E-T. It's a four-letter word.
Feeling guilty about eating.
Physicians who prescribe diet pills.
Physicians who prescribed liquid protein.
Physicians who hand you a 1,000-calorie diet plan promoted by a pharmaceutical company.
"Over the counter" diet pills.
People who blame all their fat on large bones or glandular problems (only five per cent of obesity is due to glandular problems.)
People who remind you that you are on a diet.
People who remind you that you should be on a diet.
People who say, "This one little piece won't hurt."
People who say they'll begin their diets tomorrow.
Products that cost more because the sugar hasn't been added.

Food commercials.
Pre-sweetened cereals.
Manufacturers that add sugar to almost everything in our cupboards.

Being told you are chubby—then receiving a friendly pat in the chubby area.

Doctor's weight charts that always say you are overweight by 20 pounds.

Cookie jars with noisy lids.
People who say they like you fat.
The expression "Fat and sassy."
Feeling guilty while standing in the Dairy Queen line.

Putting on a bathing suit for the first summer swim.

People who offer food as reward or punishment.

Hosts or hostesses who feel insulted if you don't have seconds and even thirds at their dinner party.

Magazine ads for products promising instant weight losses without dieting.

Skinny people who smugly ask how to put on weight.

Worrying about running into someone I know while buying a no-no.

Restaurants that offer lo-cal meals that aren't.

Restaurants whose imaginations don't go beyond a scoop of cottage cheese, a slice of tomato, and a piece of melba toast for their lo-cal offering.

Feeling fat when you are.
Feeling fat when you aren't.
Bakery window displays.
Family members who sabatoge your efforts.
Garments that shrink too fast.

Weight Watchers use of the word "legal" in referring to OK foods.

Dieting honestly and seriously and not losing weight.

Overeaters who openly complain in restaurants that the portions aren't big enough.

Overeaters who have second and third helpings at smorgasbords.

Fat people who say they only eat a little bit.

Want to register your complaint in this column? I'm sure there are a lot of thoughts that I've left out. Sure, some of these are tongue-in-cheek, but there is always an element of truth there.

Send your tidbit to me at P.O. Box 223, Plymouth Mich. 48170. If yours is suitable for printing, you will win a free issue of "Tipping the Scales," the national dieter's newsletter. Canvasser named

The Plymouth Township Board of Canvassers has a new member.

Patricia Beck was appointed by the township supervisor to replace Chester Hill who is moving out of state.

Mrs. Beck has been an elections inspector since 1970 and expressed an interest in sitting on the board should a vacancy occur, according to Clerk Helen Richardson.

Hill was appointed to the board of canvassers in 1972.

Retirement comes soon

Males 45 years and older have left the labor force in large numbers during the last 15 years, according to a national business and consumer research organization.

The trend seems likely to continue but at a much slower pace, says a report published in the May issue of "Finance Facts," a monthly newsletter on consumer credit.

Currently, men 45 and up comprise only ⅓ of the male civilian labor market, down from nearly 40 per cent 10 years ago. By 1990, they are expected to make up only 30 per cent of the work force.

Legislative, economic and social changes appear to be causing the voluntary and involuntary retirement boom, the report read.

Mentally retarded adults can be productive workers

Mentally retarded adults are capable of holding down productive and complicated jobs, a University of Michigan research study shows.

And the mere fact of working appears to significantly increase their feelings of self-esteem and self-confidence.

These and other findings from a three-year federally funded project seem to mandate a complete rethinking of programming for the mentally retarded, according to the study.

"Mental health workers who have spent their time taking retarded adults to zoos and bowling alleys could be far better occupied supervising them in factories or sheltered workshops," says Kevin P. Lynch, a research scientist at the U-M Institute for the Study of Mental Retardation and Related Disabilities (ISMRRD).

"They want to work and they can work—often at a pace approximating that of the non-handicapped population."

The project provided comprehensive vocational evaluation and training to some 35 adult clients during the three year period. The training was carried on at a simulated workshop at the institute, where the clients learned to operate specialized equipment and assemble 15 and 20-piece industrial items.

"Many of the clients' parents and social workers were amazed at their accomplishments. These are severely handicapped workers," reminds Lynch. "Most of them had multiple physical and emotional handicaps in addition to being mentally retarded.

"They grew up before special education became mandatory for the handicapped," he adds. "Some had even been institutionalized. They had never been exposed to the concept of doing a job for a designated period of time each day and seeing it through to completion.

"Programs for the severely mentally retarded have instead consisted almost exclusively of social/recreational activities, like those designed for preschoolers," Lynch says.

"These have only served to emphasize to retarded adults what they are already acutely aware of—that they are different from other people. And what sets them apart is not their appearance or behavior, but the fact that they don't work in a work-oriented society.

"The few vocational programs that do exist for the handicapped have been designed to determine work capability," he adds. The ISMRRD project presumed at the onset that all people are capable, and proceeded to train them.

"We've learned a tremendous amount about training methods," Lynch observes. "For example, we have developed an entirely positive teaching approach. Words like 'don't and 'can't' are removed from the vocabulary. All of their lives, the mentally retarded have been reminded of their inferiorities. We stress what they can do instead.

"Our clients have learned to drive tractors, operate pneumatic screwdrivers and assemble 26-piece flush valve units. It has been traditionally assumed that the mentally retarded are capable of only simple, monotonous tasks, like sanding wood blocks or stringing beads. Our experience has shown that they are capable of very complicated tasks, as long as the environment is kept simple."

A third phase of the project, job placement, has met with more limited success. Although nearly all of the 35 clients were trained for some degree of outside employment, only seven are currently working in the community.

"We found in the course of the project that 'sheltered workshops'—supervised assembly work designed specifically for the handicapped—are practically non-existent," Lynch says.

"This is disturbing because, due to the new federal legislation mandating special education, we will be graduating large numbers of handicapped adults into communities which are in no way ready to employ them."

Lynch expresses optimism for the long run, however. "There are alternatives to placement in the traditional job settings," he notes. "For example, entire businesses in areas like grounds maintenance or snow removal could be staffed by adults who are mentally retarded.

"We have consulted with over 350 agencies throughout the United States and already see evidence of many changes in approaches to basic programming for the handicapped," he adds.

"This project has conclusively dispelled the notion that retarded persons are somehow unconscious or uncaring about the differences between them and other persons. They are aware they have limitations, but they are equally aware, as a result of this project, that they are capable of things that are difficult and important."

Off the Walls

Farewell to a friend

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

Lately I've been straining my limited supply of brain cells trying to define those elusive qualities that a person must have before they are considered to be a really "good friend". I've come to the obvious conclusion that there just isn't a standard set of bylaws, but for me a really good friend means:

Someone who can sympathize and empathize with you when you're having a fat attack. She oohs and ahs when you've dropped three pounds as if you'd accomplished something so colossal as to deserve an award. She knows how dreadfully hard it is to say no to "Sara Lee".

She also knows that it would be too tacky to mention, if it becomes obvious that you've regained five pounds to replace the three. When you tell her you've just eaten half the contents of the refrigerator because you were bored, she says, "I know what you mean," and tactfully goes on to more pleasant topics.

I can also really respect a lady who hasn't cleaned her oven in over a year. Someone whose refrigerator top is never dusty, because there are so many items of miscellanea stored there that there just isn't room for dust. A friend is someone who just sighs wistfully when one of my kids rubs his jelly-covered fingers over her cupboard doors, because it blends in with the designs her own children have left there. And she doesn't even flinch when an entire glass of milk is spilled on her kitchen floor; she just grabs a paper towel and soaks it up without even losing her train of thought as she's telling me about the interesting guest they had on the Phil Donahue Show that morning.

Friends like that are hard to find. Friends who know that when you complain about some really jerky thing your husband just did, you aren't saying that you think your husband is a jerk. Even if you are, chances are you won't feel that way tomorrow. So she listens, agrees that you were absolutely right and he was 100 per cent wrong, and still somehow manages not to criticize him.

She's someone you can call to discuss world problems with or, ask how to get broken Popsicle sticks out of the garbage disposal. If you feel sad, glad, intelligent, or incredibly dumb, she understands because she's been there too.

And if she happens to call while you're taking a nap, she quickly says, "I'll call back later," because she also suffers from sleep deprivation.

She's someone who thinks your column is funny and your new hat isn't.

You really couldn't ask for much more than that.

Commendable women

The Knights of Columbus in Plymouth recently presented certificates of commendation to these women for the effort they have contributed during the past year to K-C projects, including selling Tootsie Rolls on a bitter cold day to help raise funds for the benefit of retarded children. Mandatory belt bill introduced

Roy Smith (R-Saline) has introduced legislation which would make the installation and use of seatbelts and shoulder belts mandatory under certain circumstances.

"I realize this is a hot subject. I can't even say that I support the concept, but when constituents seek help for a problem through their elected officials, they should have the opportunity to have legislation introduced and considered," said Smith, whose 52nd District includes Plymouth and part of Plymouth Township.

Smith said he had no idea if this kind of proposal had any support in the legislature or the general public, but said this is a good way to find out.

"Whether this proposal has any merit or any widespread support or not, this should provide the forum to get opinions pro and con from the general public. I certainly would hope that those who support the concept or oppose it will let their state representatives know their views on the issue."

The Smith measure would require the installation of lap and shoulder belts in all passenger vehicles and would require that both the driver and passenger in the vehicle wear them. Under terms of the measure, this rule would apply unless use is not possible, safe or unreasonable. Passengers or drivers could be exempted for medical, physical or occupational reasons.

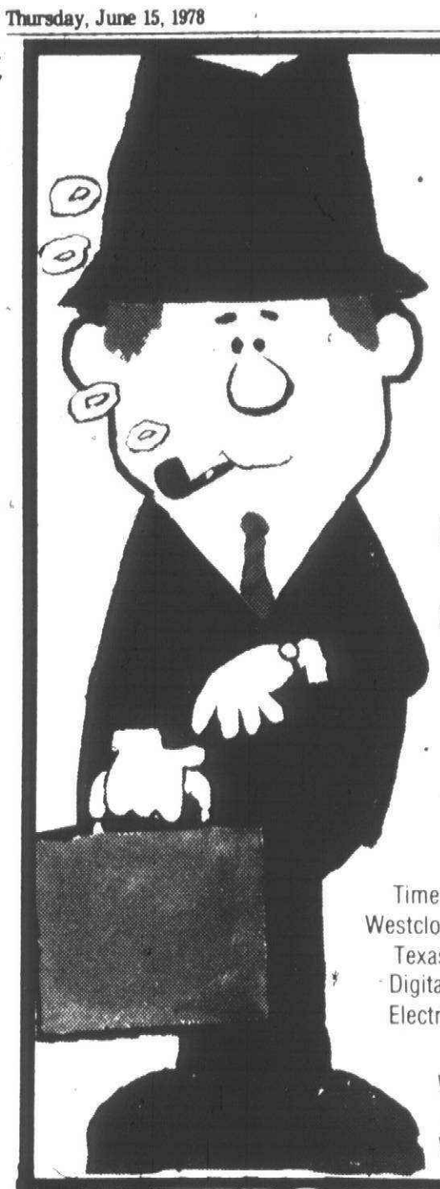

Houk represents seniors in D.C.

James C. Houk of Plymouth, a member of the Detroit and Wayne County area agency on aging represented older Americans from this area at the 14th constitutional convention of the National Council of Senior Citizens (NCSC) in Washington D.C. recently.

The theme of the convention was "Strength Through Organization" expressing the NCSC goal of increased political power at the polls through expansion of local senior citizen clubs.

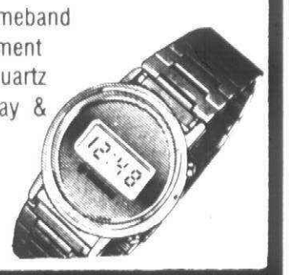

President Jimmy Carter, keynote speaker for the convention, discussed the major problems facing elderly people living on small fixed incomes.

Judgeship out of order

The Michigan Legislature continues to work in mysterious ways, its wonders to behold.

The most recent example was passage of a bill creating the second judgeship for the 35th District Court, which includes City of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships, the City Northville and Northville Township.

It had been apparent for some time that population was growing in Canton and Northville townships to the extent that a second judge was needed. Judge Dunbar Davis handles a heavier caseload than almost any district judge in the state.

And so the need for the second judge is clear. Unfortunately, the state moved with too much haste when it created the position. The enabling legislation provided the position would be filled in the general election of November 1978, with the winner taking office Jan. 1, 1979.

AND WHILE THE caseload on Jan. 1, 1979 can keep two judges busy, the question is where the second judge will be located.

The state moved with such haste that it didn't ask the municipalities in the 35th District where office space was available for the second judge.

And so the local governments must hurriedly come up with a plan to find temporary office space for the second judge and his (or her) staff.

The better approach would have been to create the position, but delay until November 1980 to elect the second judge. Then local governments would have had sufficient time to plan in an orderly way to supply the needed office and courtroom space.

But the decision has been made, and the search for space must be concluded by January 1979.

THIS MONTH the Plymouth City Commission will hold a study session to discuss plans to expand city hall.

The discussions on expanding city hall began because present court facilities in city hall are inadequate. The city's planning, however, included a guestimate that the second judgeship would be created until 1981.

Whatever decision seems in the city's interest, however, isn't likely to be implemented in time for the arrival of the second judge—unless a temporary, modular-type building is decided upon.

On the other hand, Canton Township has federal money it is using to build a new township hall. Canton has been planning to convert a courtroom facility its present meeting hall at Cherry Hill and Canton Center Roads.

That facility is large enough for a courtroom and for office space for the judge and his immediate staff. But the availability of that space depends on completion of the new township hall.

Canton expects to receive bids and begin construction in July. Given the most favorable conditions, the new township hall will be available by winter. The present township meeting hall, though, must be renovated before it can be used as a courtroom. So it's doubtful, at this point, that the Canton facility can be ready by Jan. 1.

Northville presently supplies courtroom space for Judge Davis to use while hearing cases involving litigants there. But it's likely physical expansion would be needed there, too, to find office space for the second judge.

The answer is weeks or months away.

IT IS TOO LATE to advise the state. The bill has been signed into law by the governor.

The only thing left is to compensate for the state's short-sightedness by trying to make the wisest choice within the time given to act.

And that will require very close cooperation and coordination among city and township officials within the judicial district. The best solution cannot be found if each government involved acts on its own. Concerted exploration is called for.

Still protected

Before those few newspaper-hating cops get too gleeful about the U.S. Supreme Court's decision upholding use of a search warrant on the Stanford Daily newspaper, we must point out that the high court wrote some good protections into its decision. Said the court's opinion:

"Properly administered, the preconditions for a warrant—probable cause, specificity with respect to the place to be searched and the things to be seized, and overall reasonableness—should afford sufficient protection against the harms that are assertedly threatened by warrants for searching newspaper offices."

The Supreme Court's ruling is, however, bad law. It is based on a specific case—a radical paper covering a radical and violent 1971 demonstration from within the group of demonstrators. The paper had an announced policy that it would destroy any evidence against the demonstrators, so police felt they had to get a search warrant rather than use the conventional, gentlemanly approach of asking politely for photos or getting a subpoena.

The result is that the Supreme Court is punishing the entire newspaper industry for the attitude of one paper. It's law, but it isn't fair.

Why Headlee's ears were glowing

Tom Riordan
Executive Editor

Richard H. Headlee of Farmington Hills would have loved being in Washington last week.

Especially on Thursday.

He would have enjoyed sitting in the office of Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.) as he conducted a press conference.

A half-dozen newsmen, all representing Michigan newspapers with Washington bureaus, were there. Add to that number one drop-in from Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

The topic getting the most attention was the resounding victory for Proposition 13 in California. It will roll back state taxing powers and real estate property valuations there.

It already had put politicians from Sacramento to Washington on alert. The newsmen were asking Griffin, What about Michigan?

"PEOPLE ARE FED UP to here with government spending and taxes," Sen. Griffin was saying.

Had the Farmington Hills insurance executive been there, he really would have beamed.

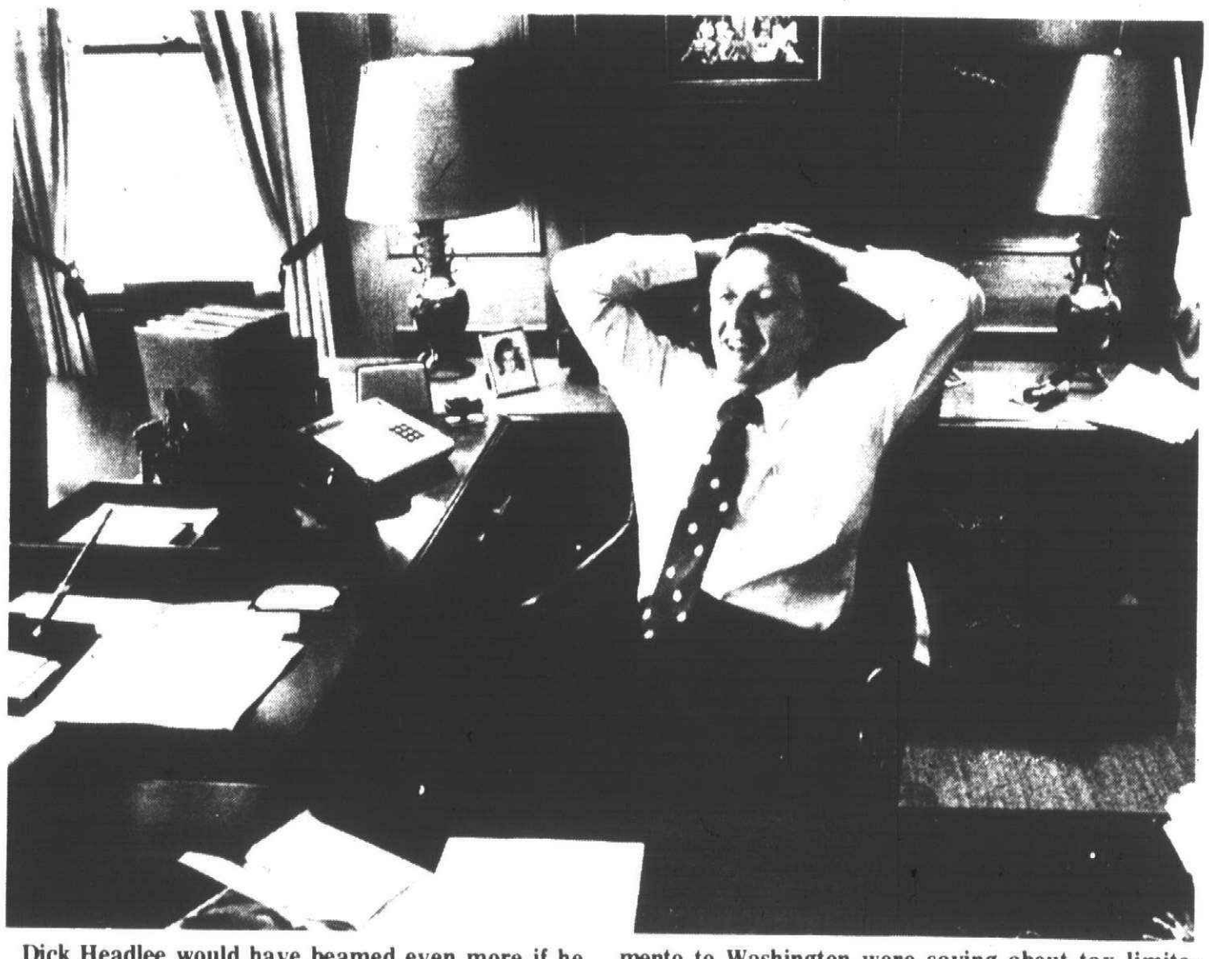

For months, Headlee has been telling anyone who would listen exactly that. Through his Taxpayers United for Tax Limitations, signatures are being collected to get a similar proposal on Michigan's November ballot.

California's stunning 2-to-1 margin for Proposition 13 prompted Griffin to expand:

"It's an interesting indication of some of the thinking of people and consistent with what I'm finding in Michigan."

Griffin said he had been in his home state the previous week to give a high school commencement address. What he found, besides eager graduates, were a lot of property owners suffering from taxpayer unrest.

Dick Headlee would have grinned broadly.

Dick Headlee would have beamed even more if he could have heard what the politicians from Sacramento to Washington were saying about tax limitation. (Staff photo by Harry Mauthe)

"PEOPLE ARE FEELING pinched and squeezed." the senator continued.

"Real estate values are running far ahead of the cost of living. People have a feeling that the Great Society programs aren't working anyway.

"There is a feeling of frustration, that we ought to get back to the essentials."

As Griffin spoke, an aide passed out photocopies of the Headlee group brochure entitled, "Michigan needs a limit on taxes. . . make it happen."

Did Griffin support the Headlee campaign?

He did. But he added a word of caution:

"There is a limit on how much we can give ourselves in tax reductions. But it's apparent from citizen protests we need to do something."

IN EARLY AFTERNOON, should Headlee have wandered into the United States Senate Restaurant in the Capitol, he would have had another treat.

At the next table was Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, the feisty GOP Californian. He's the ex-college president who pulled the string on campus rowdies in the 1960s, all on television's evening news shows.

From that adventure, voters in his state propelled him into the nation's most exclusive club.

When Sen. Hayakawa rose to leave the dining room Thursday, the O&E newsman asked if he'd mind answering a few questions on the Proposition 13 vote.

The replies would have charmed Headlee.

O&E: "Did you support the tax revolt movement?"

Hayakawa (with a smile): "In an exercise of great leadership, I came out for the issue two weeks ago, maybe three."

He pointed out that the vote probably reflected feelings of taxpayers all across the country.

"The problem is not just government spending, but inflation," he continued. "Higher taxes (are generated by) higher property valuations."

SEN. HAYAKAWA SAID his home is in picturesque Marin County. It's quiet, attractive, spacious, basically a great place to live. Many people on fixed incomes have settled there. Some now are being forced to leave, he said, because of increased property taxes.

The senator mentioned an inside joke among his office staff. It seems that Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr. is presently rushing around the state. He's trying to catch up with Howard Jarvis. Jarvis, 75, labored countless years to get Proposition 13 on the ballot.

Until it passed, the youthful governor had turned thumbs down on the idea.

Passage, according to the gag, has sent him hustling to locate Jarvis. As the joke goes, "Brown is trying to get his picture taken with Jarvis."

It would seem as though the 48-year-old Headlee is Michigan's Howard Jarvis.

Harry's incredibly difficult choice

through bifocals
Fred DeLano

Students, today let us consider the curious bent of the human mind. Strictly as a clinical exercise, we will assume you have your choice between attending next week's four games between the Tigers and Yankees or a horse show running in direct competition.

In either case, your seats would be the best in the house. Which tickets would you use?

We'll also assume you understand that the series in Tiger Stadium will have some bearing on the American League race. What you may not realize, in considering the alternative, is that this is not just any ol' barnyard horse show.

Rather, among the aficiandos, it ranks among the best on the North American circuit.

If you opt for attending the Detroit Horse Show at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club you won't be alone, baseball frenzy to the contrary. Therein lies a tale.

ONE SUCH PERSON who will be doing exactly that is Harry Nederlander, and just between you and me he has a lot more reason to go to the ball park for those games than most of us.

You see, Harry owns a piece of the Yankees. Not a big slice to be sure. Certainly nothing to compare to the interest of majority stockholder George Steinbrenner's, and not enough to boss Billy Martin around.

But from where I sit, any piece of the Yankees has to be one of the most coveted certificates in the sports kingdom.

At the same time, in the manner that typifies the multi-faceted pursuits of the Nederlander clan, Harry is rounding out at least a decade as general chairman of the Bloomfield Open Hunt extravaganza. It's actually three shows rolled into one and after being in progress since June 9, will run through Sunday, June 25.

Being a Nederlander, there's nothing neanderthal about Harry's sense of showmanship.

Box office salesmanship runs in the family. If you're not aware and need proof of this, consider that among their operations are Detroit's Fisher Theatre and Pine Knob, the Mississippi River Festival outside St. Louis, Meriweather Post Pavilion near Washington, the Greek Theater in Los Angeles, seven legitimate houses in New York and assorted others across the land.

THOSE FANTASTIC crowd pleasers, the hunters and jumpers, will thrill onlookers these coming days as the whole thing builds toward the climactic $10,000 North American Grand Prix for open jumpers on the final afternoon.

At least once in your life, you owe it to yourself to see such action. You'll find the site on Long Lake Road, just a few furlongs east of Woodward in Bloomfield Hills.

Bound to catch your eye is a dashing young Virginian, Rodney Jenkins, one of the world's most capable men in a saddle. None of us who were there ever will forget his spectacular winning ride over the jumps with the great horse Idle Dice to cap the '74 show in which he won an unprecedented 30 blue ribbons.

But this is not a one-man show, competitively or in the staging.

Jenkins will have many classy rivals in the ring, and of both sexes. Behind the scenes, making it all tick with more than 700 horses to handle, is a corps of BOH volunteers whose dedication knows no limits.

Among them are BOH president Dick Janes, unit chairmen Bob Brown, John Ivory and Chuck Walby, course designer Chrystine Jones Hogan, the indefatigable pair of Mrs. Charles Haynes and Mrs. Zang Schrebnick, and scads more.

Harry Nederlander would be the first to say they have made his job an easy one. That being the case, why didn't he do something about the American League schedule? Damn Yankees!

The Stroller

By W.W. EDGAR

Father's Day thoughts

With another Father's Day approaching, The Stroller sat in his easy chair the other evening, closed his eyes and relived some of the pleasant times and lessons he learned from his dad many years ago.

Unlike most young fellows who enjoyed their fathers for years, The Stroller was denied the privilege of a comforting companionship by the untimely death of his father, who fell victim to what was called "hasty consumption." At the time, The Stroller was only 10 years old. Yet the lessons he was taught have stood him well through the years, and much of the success he enjoyed can be traced to the days when he and his dad were companions.

The Stroller well remembers the first lesson he was taught.

BECAUSE OF HIS ailment, Dad could not work in the factories, so, along with Mother, decided to open a small lunch counter in our little town. The menu featured seafood and home made pie.

One morning when The Stroller was a mere 6 years old and waiting to start school, Dad took him down to the little shop and taught him to open oysters and clams with the admonition that if you wanted to get anything out of this world, you had to work for it. So every morning from then on, The Stroller spent his time opening oysters before school.

Later on, he was taught how to handle customers and, of all things, taught how to play pocket billiards—"pool," as they called it.

To help keep the cash register ringing when the lunch counter wasn't busy, Dad had installed a billiard table. So that no chance was missed to keep the cash register ringing, The Stroller became so proficient that he played for the house—much like "hustlers" of modern times do.

"Our family must be a team affair," Dad impressed, "and you can do your part."

IN THE MONTHS that followed, the young Stroller was taught how to make oyster stew, serve customers and become a handy little fellow around the place.

Because our little lunchroom was the only one in town, it also became sports headquarters. Long before the days of radio and television, we had a deal with Western Union to provide us with the major league baseball scores every evening. These were posted on a board, and many men walked downtown in the evening to get the scores and stop long enough to get a piece of pie and a glass of milk.

One evening the young Stroller took the scores, wrote them on the bulletin board and placed it outside for all to see. Quick as a flash, Dad was out, grabbed the sign and said, "Nobody will ever buy a piece of pie out there."

This was The Stroller's first lesson in promotion. He never forgot it.

THE ONE LESSON that has stuck with him all his life came in fall when the county fairs were in full swing. One year, The Stroller's dad took him to the fair. He walked him up and down the midway. He stopped and had a Pennsylvania Dutch sauerkraut dinner along the way. Then they spent the afternoon at the harness races where The Stroller saw the famous Dan Patch, the wonder horse of the era, racing. It was a never-to-be-forgotten thrill.

The next year The Stroller's dad claimed he was too busy to take him, but gave him a dollar to spend aside from car fare and sent him to the fair alone. What a day he had! But he returned home on time.

As he told all the things he had seen and done, his dad asked, "What did you bring home for your sisters?" When The Stroller dropped his head and said "nothing," his father countered, "So that's the kind of a greedy boy you are going to be." The Stroller's tears came rolling down his cheeks.

But he has never taken a trip from that day to this that he didn't bring back a gift for the lady he left at home. What a lesson!

You don't learn lessons like that in school.

READERS' FORUM

Reader is satisfied with Dembs' work

Editor:

This letter is regarding your article printed on the front page of the Plymouth and Canton Observers on June 1 about the problems Ronald and Janie Clemons feel they are having getting a new home completed for them by Dembs Building Co.

For whatever it is worth, we would like you to know that not everyone who is having a home built by Dembs shares the Clemons' view.

We purchased a new home from Dembs in September 1977. Our home is being constructed in the Dembs Subdivision in Plymouth (Westbriar). Although we too are very anxious to get into our new home and have been waiting a long time just to get it started, we are not at all unhappy with Dembs Building Co.

WE FEEL we have been treated with honesty and fairness by all of the Dembs people with whom we've had contact.

We were told from the very beginning by the salesman, Gary Coogan, that our home would probably not be completed until sometime this spring or summer, depending on many factors. These factors include shortage of building materials, the possibility of a strike by the trades, etc.—most of which the builder has little or no control over.

We were told the builders would at least like to get our basement in by last fall, and this didn't happen. The hole was dug for the basement, but from the time that was done until late this spring, the weather (again something over which the builder has no control) has been just terrible.

We can certainly all testify to how cold it was and how cold it stayed right through late spring. Then the thaw, the rains and the mud made it impossible to move in heavy equipment. From the time the weather has made it possible to work through now, we feel Dembs has been very diligent to get our home completed.

Dembs has made every effort to please us regarding the changes we wanted to make in the plans for our home. They have always been forthright in "telling it like it is." We don't feel that anyone has ever tried to deceive us or be less than honest with us.

SINCE WE had the same salesman, Mr. Coogan, that the Clemons would have had, we find it hard to believe that they were given specific dates, etc.

We feel this way despite the fact that our mortgage commitment has already expired and we have had to renew at a higher interest rate. MR. AND MRS. ROBIE RUSHTON

She agrees —sneezing is a snafu

Editor:

Have had your article, "Study sneezing for a safer America," (April 20) sitting amid the clutter on my sewing-typing desk for some time, because I thought it deserved serious comment. You're right—sneezing IS a traffic hazard.

Just in case you should get that federal subsidy to study this phenomonon, here's a big of heretofore undocumented proof:

About 28 years ago on a dismal, drizzly day in going-home rush hour traffic heading north on Yonge St. in Toronto (they were just starting construction on the subway), we were inching along in stop-and-go fashion when my husband was seized by a tremendous sneeze.

Just as his eyes closed, the car in front of us stopped. Simultaneous with the "kerchoo" came a slight jolt, followed by the sound pieces of headlight glass make when they fall to the pavement. (I shudder to think what could happen at today's speeds, "barreling down the expressway.")

WE WERE lucky. When we got out (embarrassed as hell) to investigate the damage, our car was the only one that sustained any. The other driver, after ascertaining that his bumper had indeed done the job it was designed for, shook his head and drove on.

When I read your article, I thought "hear, hear" and "amen," because my husband is the classic sneezer you described. He has tried everything to no avail to stop the sneezes, but has rather cleverly learned to take his foot off the gas, grip the steering wheel tightly, brace himself and KEEP HIS EYES OPEN when he feels one coming on while he's driving.

At any rate, now you can tell Rochester Chief Robert Werth that you have documented proof that it has happened—so there.

I always enjoy your "Through Bifocals" column, and Tim Richard always has something interesting to say, too. That same day he proposed a terrific idea—that they should "Teach photography on TV," which I will think of every time I get back a packet of shots that I thought would be terrific and turned out from somewhat less. Pass along a "hear, hear" and "amen" to Tim for me on that one, will you?

Kite coverage is rated high

Editor:

Thank you for the excellent coverage of the kite contest held at Isbister Elementary School on May 1.

Your paper does a superb job showing citizens that there's more learning than the three R's going on in the classrooms in Plymouth and Canton.

We look forward to having you at our school again.

Amused by views on ban

Editor:

I was somewhat amused by a recent Daniel's Den column in which you vented your feelings about the "no parking" signs posted in many municipalities and, in particular, about an incident you had in Mount Pleasant.

I, too, had a similar incident, only much closer to home—right here in Plymouth.

I had been driving from Plymouth Township into the City of Plymouth, almost daily for ten years. I was greeted daily by the same managerie of road signs at the city boundaries, as you suggested you were.

In January, our family moved into the City of Plymouth at the height of the famous crippling blizzard. To avoid getting stuck in the rut in our gravel driveway I, too, parked at the curb in front of the house and left my car there overnight.

The next morning I was both greeted and suprised by a parking violation fastened under my windshield washer.

Was I entrapped, the same as you suggested you had been? I'm not sure. But I must admit, I was more fortunate. At least my car had not been towed away and the violation was considerably less costly.

Relatively speaking, I suppose the other guy's problems are worse—or are the Plymouth Police the nice guys I've always been told they are? I choose to believe the latter.

Clinic report drew response

Editor:

On behalf of the Plymouth Jaycettes and the babysitting clinic committee, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the excellent coverage of the clinic.

Because of your support, we ran not only an April session but also a May session due to the large response for these classes.

Without the support of our local media, we would not be able to let the public know of our community projects.

Again, thank you so much for your time and effort to help us make the Plymouth community a little happier and a lot safer.

Roll Call Report

Tuition credit gets green light from House

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 1 through June 7.

HOUSE

TUITION TAX CREDIT: Passed, 237 for and 158 against, a bill providing federal income tax credits for certain tuition payments. The bill (HR 12050) was sent to the Senate.

It enables a person to reduce federal income taxes by an amount equal to 25 per cent of the tuition paid for college or other post-secondary education, to a per student maximum of $100 this year and $250 in 1980. The bill also gives parents a credit against tuition to private or parochial elementary and secondary schools, in the amount of 25 per cent of tuition per pupil to a maximum of $50 this year and $100 in 1980 (see vote below).

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., a supporter, called tax credits "the most effective and least complicated means to provide students and parents financial relief from the soaring costs of education."

Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., an opponent, said: "The hard facts are that a tax credit or a forgiveness of tax is not going to solve the real problems that parents with children in higher education institutions have, and that is that they have a cash shortage."

Members voting "yea" favored the tax credit.

Reps. James Blanchard (D-Pl. Ridge), William Broomfield (R-Birm.) and Carl Pursell (R-Ply), voted "yea."

Reps. David Bonior (D-Mt. Clemens), William Ford (D-Taylor), and William Brodhead (D-Detroit), voted "nay."

GUN CONTROL?: Rejected, 80 for and 314 against, an amendment in favor of proposed Treasury Department regulations requiring that new guns carry a serial number and manufacturers, distributors and dealers file reports with the government on transactions involving guns. The regulations prohibited the names of gun purchasers from being recorded. The amendment sought to restore language, deleted in committee, to set up the gun tracing program. It was proposed to HR 12930, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., the sponsor, said that National Rifle Association opposition to the regulations is misguided. He added: "It seems to me that this is all in the interest of law enforcement. . .of reducing criminal activities."

Rep. John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., an opponent, said: "I have no doubt that these regulations amount to unlegislated gun control."

Members voting "yea" favored the regulations.

Bonior and Brodhead voted "yea."

Ford, Blanchard, Broomfield and Pursell voted "nay."

TUITION TAX CREDIT: Adopted, 209 for and 194 against, an amendment broadening the tuition tax credit bill (see vote above) so that it covers tuition to private and parochial elementary and secondary education schools. The bill (HR 12050) was passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., a supporter, said: "Families with children attending non-public elementary and secondary schools end up paying twice for their children's education, once for the tuition and again when they pay local property taxes."

Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ala., an opponent, said that "because sending a child to private school is voluntary, it is. . .unfair for taxpayers to be required to pay for public schools and then again to subsidize private schools through tuition tax credits."

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Broomfield voted "yea."

Bonior, Ford, Brodhead, Blanchard and Pursell voted "nay."

SENATE

FILIBUSTERS: Failed, 42 for and 47 against, to get the two-thirds majority required to stop a filibuster against a major labor bill (HR 8410). The legislation, already passed by the House, is the first sweeping revision of the 1935 Labor Relations (Wagner) Act. It would, in part, strengthen the rights of unions seeking to organize, expand the membership of the National Labor Relations Board and increase penalties for violations of the 1935 law. It is favored by organized labor and the Administration, opposed by the business community.

Virtually all senators voting "yea" plan to vote for the bill if there is a vote on final passage.

Sen. Donald Riegle, (D) voted "yea."

Sen. Robert Griffin (R), voted "nay."

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

by ELLIE GRAHAM

ST. KENNETH'S Fun Festival the other weekend was a big success. There were games, food, sports celebrities, and clowns, but one of the big attractions was the helicopter rides Saturday afternoon.

Fr. Tony, parish priest at St. Kenneth's, told of the first person to take a ride in the helicopter. He called at 10 a.m. to find out when the rides started. He arrived well in advance of 2 p.m. and waited "rather impatiently" in a lawn chair for the helicopter.

As he was leaving, immediately after his trip, Fr. Tony asked him how he liked it.

"I loved it but it was too short. I could have stayed up another 10 minutes. I'm sorry I waited 82 years to do it."

When Fr. Tony repeated this story, one of his parishioners spoke up. Mrs. Theresa McLellan said, "You didn't mention me. I went up too, and I'm 81."

He discovered later that a good many members of St. Kenneth's senior citizens club had gone aloft for a bird's-eye view of the community.

PLYMOUTH JAYCETTES are beginning to be a little concerned about their Let's Lick Litter poster contest. There is just one more week to submit posters to 11242 Haggerty Road, Plymouth. Last day is June 26. Winners will be announced during the Fourth of July festivities. First prize is a $25 savings bond and posters will be on display in the Detroit Edison office window June 28 through July 5. For more information call 459-9893.

MARTHA DAVIS has shared her knowledge of rocks and minerals with many school children in the community.

She is full of enthusiasm and encourages the young people to touch and pick up the specimens she takes along for display.

This week, she had a new experience. She took her five cases of rocks and minerals to Camp Howell near Brighton for four lectures. Her audience was students from the special education classes at Harrison School in Livonia who were spending a few days at the camp.

Each child made a keepsake of the rock talk. Martha showed them how to spray an ordinary rock with acrylic. After pasting a nature picture on each rock, they sprayed them again to preserve the picture—mementoes of their days at camp and the lady who told them all about rocks.

THERE'S A NEW cookbook on the market that deserves a five-star recommendation. The title is "Allen School Family Favorites" and besides some very good recipes, it is entertaining reading.

They were on sale for 50 cents at Allen's Ice Cream Social. Because the lines waiting for ice cream were so long, I settled for a cookbook instead. And we've had many a chuckle over the Just About Kids section in the book.

For instance, guess what this is:

"You burn the bottom of the bread, them turn it over and burn the other. Then you put cheese inside the burned bread."

The above is Billy Steakan's recipe for grilled cheese.

Here's another:

"Beat up an egg with a squirt of milk. Mush in two pieces of bread. Cook in a greasy frying pan. Put it on a plate and pour Mrs. Butterworth all over it."

You guessed it. A recipe for French toast by Theresa O'Connor.

Karen Holmes' directions for making cupcakes are equally interesting: "You take a pan with holes in it. Put chocolate icing in it. Then you bake it in the oven. When it's done you put toothpicks in it. If it's clean it's done, if it's dirty it's not done. Then you cool them. You make any kind of icing you want. Then you wait until the icing is dry and cooled off. Then you eat it."

These and other entertaining recipes were submitted by the kindergarten children at Allen. Art teacher Ann Depa was responsible for the artwork on the cover and section fronts.

Other categories in the book include hors d'oeuvres, main dishes, salads, teachers' cookbook, and desserts.

Plymouth Registered Nurses Association has elected officers for the new season.

They are June Somylo, president; Romaine Kling, vice president; Sheila Place, secretary-treasurer; Sue Delonis, membership chairman with Joan Funkhouser as co-chairman; Jan Greene, program chairman with Lois Kilish as co-chairman; Joy Wall, civil defense chairman with Pat Lawrenz as co-chairman; and Margaret Hall, historian.

They're making music before they can read

A new sound has been added to the Suzuki classes at West Middle School.

The youngsters with the miniature violins have developed their repertoire and performing skills to the point where they have appeared in concert with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. Now Suzuki piano has come to the area, nurturing the same reverence of instrument and pride of accomplishment.

The Suzuki method is based on the premise that a child can learn to play an instrument the same way he learns to talk—by listening. Its founder, Dr. Shinichi Suzuki, compares traditional instruction to teaching a child to read before he can talk.

"Suzuki piano is still in its infant stage in the United States," said Joy Grapentine who teaches the classes. "It has been popular in Japan for 20 years but just got rolling here eight years ago."

Suzuki piano got rolling in the Plymouth-Canton area early this year. Joy and Robert Grapentine moved from Dayton Ohio to their Canton home on Hanford just before Christmas. Mrs. Grapentine began teaching in January.

SHE TAUGHT traditional piano before attending the University of Wisconsin to learn the Suzuki method.

"I'd never go back to teaching traditional. This is a most rewarding and natural method. They learn by listening."

Her students range in age from 3 to 17. They do learn to read music. But by the time they reach that stage, they are playing more difficult music than they can read.

"It takes piano students right through to the college level. And they do not have the frustrations that cause many young people to give up piano after two years of instruction.

"IT IS BASED on a different premise," Mrs. Grapentine explained. "It gives a child a better self image. They are success-oriented and constructive praise serves as an impetus."

She told of a 4-year-old who started his piano lessons a month ago. "He couldn't organize his thinking to complete a piece of music and simply said, 'I can't do it.' When he did do it, you could just feel how that child went up in his own esteem. It is so rewarding."

Her own 3½-year-old-son goes to the piano a dozen times a day. "If he is unhappy, he plays until he is pleased with himself."

THERE ARE several Suzuki centers in this country where teachers can learn the method. "Wisconsin and Memphis are the best known. And, there is one in Kingston, Ontario."

Robert Grapentine made the wooden risers which elevate the young pianists to a comfortable height at the keyboard. Stacked on the floor, they provide stability as a footrest.

Joy Grapentine, and violin teachers Vicki Vorreiter and Cathy Keresztesi are teaching disciples of Suzuki, a music educator, philosopher, and president and founder of the Talent Education School in Japan.

Now in his 80s, he continues to teach. Ms. Keresztesi attended one of his seminars in Hawaii three years ago.

Kristin Urevig displayed the Suzuki student's reverence for instrument as she removed her violin from its case.

Encounter weekend puts back spark

By SHERRY KAHAN

Hand-holding was rampant as John and Joann Holman spoke about their experience on a marriage encounter weekend. Ditto with Larry and Gloria Henrich.

To hear them talk, the Westland quartet has hardly moved off Cloud Nine since the weekend, which the Holman's participated in last December. The Henrich's "marriage encounter" was three years ago.

"If you ever heard of any kind of marriage weekend, forget it," said Mrs. Holman. "This is nothing like anything you've ever heard about."

Her husband added: "It's almost impossible to describe what it is. It's a very personal experience."

According to Gloria Henrich, the weekend, "is not counseling. For a bad marriage it's better to go to a counselor. This is to make good marriages better. It really puts back that spark that's there the first year."

Henrich emphasized that the weekend is, "an experience, not a teaching, whereby you establish communication lines with your spouse that are not just on the surface.

"Through the years I had stopped listening to my wife what with all the interruptions of family life. During the weekend I learned to listen to her, and not just be concerned with my own wants."

THE COUPLES COMPARED the weekend experience to a honeymoon and a fairy tale. "I came out of it high on love," says Mrs. Holman.

Marriage Encounter is a non-profit group. Its disciples are all volunteers promoting their cause much like Lamaze groups advocate a new birth experience and environmentalists shout about clean air.

The couples appear to be realistic, feet-on-the-ground types. The Heinrichs have been married 17 years and have eight children; the Homans, 10 years with four children.

Marriage Encounter (ME) was started by a priest 20 years ago in Spain and spread to the U.S. Here it is an interdenominational program for all ages. About 7,000 couples in the Detroit area have participated in the group.

"It's a very active group," Holman said. "We get together once a month or so in an ME social group."

The encounter weekends are conducted by couples who have been through the program. The Holmans are expecting to be group leaders in the near future.

HOW DID THE COUPLES get started?

"When my brother and sister-in-law came back from a weekend, they told us we had to go," Mrs. Holman said. Her husband decided to go along for the ride.

"I was very, very curious," he said. "I wondered what was so great. I recognized after 10 years of marriage we had lost the old spark. So I decided what the heck, we might get it back."

Henrich said, "we had a real good marriage. But after 17 years, our line of communication had deteriorated and we had a disagreement. Gloria had heard about Marriage Encounter. Rather than buy her a box of candy to make up, I decided to make up by going with her on the weekend."

Henrich said his marriage was remade by a weekend.

"It was a direct turnaround," he said. "I found out that in 17 years we had grown apart, and in 44 hours came back together. It was like starting all over again. In effect, I felt more married after the weekend than at my marriage."

He added that the weekend helped him as a parent.

"My daughter, Jackie, told us we were more loving and more accepting of them after the weekend," he said. "We were less demanding and much better parents."

His son also noticed changes. "It sure changed Dad," said Joe. "He's a nicer person."

Henrich added: "We get a lot more hugs and kisses from our kids than we got before, a lot more positive strokes. I believe it's because they get a lot more strokes from us."

THE HOLMANS HAD barely unpacked their suitcases when they noticed a change in two-year-old baby John.

"He responded almost the same day we got back," said Holman. "He went from being a normal crabby two-year-old to a mostly happy baby."

Mrs. Holman observed that she agreed with the person who said that the best present parents can give to their children is to love each other.

Mrs. Henrich says the weekend is a combination of listening to short presentations by other couples about Marriage Encounter, than returning to their room to discuss what they had learned.

"Before, we talked alot about children, clothing, furniture and the color of the walls," she said. "Now we can talk about what we are doing with our lives. We discuss life, death and who I really am and what makes me tick. It gave us more understanding of each other."

The Holmans and Henrichs are eager to direct other couples to the weekend experience.

It costs $10 to register. Participants are told the cost of the weekend, and asked to contribute what they consider its worth to them.

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

I've been calling people all day. Maybe you were one of the people I talked to or maybe you were one of the many I never got a hold of.

I have come to one great big conclusion. There's absolutely nothing going on in this township this week. Do you believe that? Well neither do I.

There were actually a few things I was going to write about but before I had a chance to take pen in hand I was reading my news in Monday's paper. So much for scoop ace reporter. (ane more illusion bites the dust.)

I started to wonder if you would like to hear about my Spanish class. "Muy interesante." No, I don't think you'd like to read about that.

MAYBE YOU'D like to hear about Pedro. Now this is a really interesting item. There I am held captive everyday at U-M's Modern Language building. This experience makes one do strange things. One day I meet Pedro.

My nose is always stuck in my Spanish book. Naturally everyone assumes I am studing this language. Again, naturally, conversation evolves around Spanish.

Anyone who has ever heard me speak about this particular class knows it is definitely not one of my favorite subjects. Pedro soon hears my views about Spanish. One week of ranting and raving and never saying one good thing about this language, I discover Pedro is a Spanish teacher. (Someone more alert probably would have guessed that when they had first heard his name not I.) With my luck he'll probably be my instructor in the fall.

I COULD go on and on with similar stories of this kind but I'm sure you're not excited about this. I did learn one thing today with all my telephoning. This information comes from Ginny Koon. Do you know the definition of an expert? "Ex" means former and "spert" is a drip under pressure. So, an expert is a former drip under pressure. So here goes an expert writing this column.

ERIKSSON Elementary held its fun fair June 3. Much enthusiasm and involvement made this year's fair a huge success.

Along with all the games and usual fun things to do at a school fair, this year Eriksson had an animal walk. This was like a cake walk except this prizes were stuffed animals. The profits from this activity will be used to adopt an animal at the Detroit Zoo. The children will vote on the type of animal they wish to support.

The co-chairpersons for the fair were Carol Brown and Candi Gulkewicz. A big thank you is extended to all the committee which included Dianne Neihengen, Doreen Cater, Cathy Rickert, Dee Bashor, Barb Oldford, JoAnn Denstedt, Nancy Stelmaszek, Tom Blackburn, Carol Riddering and Linda Wilk. And of course a thank you to Ron South, principal of Eriksson.

MILLER CUB Scout Pack 854 held its annual boys and dads camping trip June 3 and 4. Charles Howell Scout Ranch in Howell was the place where 101 cubs and dads enjoyed hiking, fishing and baseball among other camping activities. They had planned to swim but found it a little cold to be so daring.

Golden rule days

It was readin' and writin' and 'rithmetic, taught to the tune of a hickory stick for Kathleen Allen's second graders last week. The Tanger Elementary School children spent the day at Miller School in Greenfield Village. They dressed in fitting turn-of-the-century clothing. They made their costumes with the help of one of their mothers, Shirley Auchincloss, who brought her sewing machine to school and sewed the seams. (Staff photos)

Blast off! The Farrand fifth graders witness another successful take-off. (Staff photos)

Muzzle loaders' festival scheduled

Revived military units and muzzle loader clubs will recreate the sights and sounds of the Civil War era with the crackle of gunfire, the melodies of the nineteenth century martial music, and, for the first time here, an all-women shooting demonstration during Greenfield Village's Muzzle Loaders Festival, June 17 and 18.

More than 4000 sharpshooters and other participants will gather amid parades, the assembly and inspection of military units, Indian and frontier costume judging, Civil War campsites, and rifle and cannon shooting competition.

On Saturday afternoon, June 17, women will demonstrate their skills as sharpshooters. Throughout both days, men will shoot at standard bull's eyes and breakable targets. Each afternoon, there will be a Gatling gun demonstration and cannon competition. gunsmithing, knife making, horn and ivory carving, bullet molding, and miniature soldier carving will be practiced.

In addition, four revived military bands, each adopting the dress and music of the 19th century, will perform.

There is no additional charge for the Muzzle Loaders Festival beyond the regular admission of $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children ages 6-12. Children under six are admitted free. Village hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Rockets away!

"If you teach what you enjoy, you can put a lot of enthusiasm into it," said Jim Grinenko. "And I've always been fascinated by model planes. I still identify with certain aircraft I made when I was a boy—they were my planes."

His fifth graders from Farrand Elementary School shared his enthusiasm when they launched their model rockets last week in a field between Haggerty Road and I-275 expressway. It was the culmination of a flight unit segment in their science class.

"We discussed propellor, jet and turbo jet aircraft. They learn about electricity too, because we use an electro-launch for the rockets."

Each of the students built a model rocket. Assmbling them took about four periods of work. Once the engine was complete, they made the parachutes. They had to wait for the glue to dry before painting them and, finally, applying the decals.

"WE USED SMALLER engines this year," said Grinenko, whose students call him Mr. Gee.

"We did use the larger C-65s but the recovery area could extend three or four miles, depending on the wind and atmosphere."

Even with the smaller A-83, which sent them up 100 yards, or the B-64, which blasted them about 200 yards, they were almost out of sight before the red and white parachutes opened and they drifted back to earth.

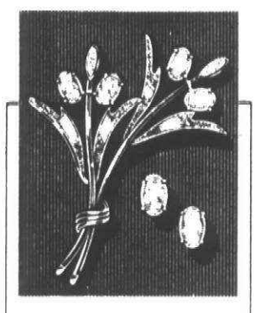

For 15 years, Mr. Gee's fifth graders have been launching rockets each spring. He has been at Farrand for almost 20 years, his first teaching job after he graduated from college in 1959.

"At first, there were fields all around us. But Lake Pointe grew and we had to go farther afield for our launchimg area."

Their science unit also included the study of internal combustion engines. They took apart a three horse power lawn mower motor and reassembled it.

"They know how a four-cycle engine works," said Grinenko. Their next exciting project was attempting to start the motor after putting it together.

While the rockets are one of the highlights of the spring term, carving duck decoys is a major fall project. And the parents who receive them as Christmas gifts are as proud of them as Mr. Gee's students.

Vacation Bible schools begin in 8 churches

Children in this area are set to shift attention from public school to vacation Bible school with at least eight churches launching vacation Bible school (VBS) classes Monday, June 19.

These church-run programs and others to get under way later in the vacation season offer classes for children in pre-school and elementary school age ranges for one or two weeks.

Some of the churches, like Covenant Community of Redford Township and Kenwood Church of Christ in Livonia, also have events for junior high and senior high students as well as adults in their vacation Bible school programs.

Volunteers staff most vacation schools, and the daily activities range from Bible study to craft activities, sports, music and refreshments.

VBS programs beginning June 19 also include Hosanna Tabor Lutheran and Rice Memorial United Methodist of Redford Township and Sword of the Spirit Lutheran, Clarenceville United Methodist, Ward United Presbyterian and Livonia Wesleyan, all of Livonia.

Other vacation Bible schools ready to go later are Bethel Baptist of Livonia and Garden City Presbyterian, scheduled the week of June 26, and Christ Our Savior Lutheran of Livonia and First United Methodist of Plymouth, planning classes the week of July 10-14.

COVENANT Community Church, located at 25800 Student in Redford, will use the theme "Hall of Faith" for its classes that study Biblical characters.

Classes for children in grades one through six will be held 9 a.m. to noon, June 19-23.

Bible stories, songs, fun, games and cookies and lunch will be part of each day's program.

The church also will hold a 7:30-9:30 p.m. VBS for junior and senior high school students the same week. The junior high students will study Biblical characters in a course titled "Great Men of God" and will have social programs and games each evening, too. For the senior highs, a study program "A Walk through the Old Testament" will be conbined with outings for miniature golf, swimming and volleyball and a June 24 trip to Cedar Point.

Covenant also plans a VBS for adults 7:30-9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, June 26-29.

Classes on "The Joy of Discovery," "Jubilee Economics," "Cultivating a Mutual Concern in the Family" and "The Epistle of James," will be included, along with the showing of several Moody science films.

"COME FIND God's Secret" is the theme for the vacation Bible school to run June 19 through June 28 in Ward United Presbyterian Church, Farmington Road and Six Mile, Livonia.

Daily activities for children from kindergarten through sixth grade will feature music, mystery guests, crafts and recreation, with classes running 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. An evening program to conclude the scheduled Wednesday, June 28, will feature the Music Machine. Dan Bower, director of children's and family ministries at Ward, is in charge of the school.

Hosanna Tabor Lutheran Church, 9600 Laverne, Redford Township, is inviting youngsters three years of age through grade seven to participate in Bible stories, singing, filmstrip and recreation programs 9:30-11:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, June 19-23.

There is a $1 registration fee but advance registration is unnecessary.

Livonia Wesleyan, 14560 Merriman, will conduct its vacation Bible school for children 3-12 from 9:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday. Freda Hayton will direct the program which will use the theme "Song a New Song."

TWO WEEKS of VBS classes featuring arts and crafts, singing, stories, picnics, pot lucks and special programs for students, parents and friends are planned June 19-30 by Rice Memorial United Methodist, 20201 Beech Daly, Redford Township.

The classes, following the theme "Sing a New Song" will be under the direction of Jeannette Williams and will be held 9 a.m. to noon for children four years of age through those entering sixth grade in September.

Registration information is available by calling the church at 534-4907

Another two-week program, with "Forever Love" as its theme will be held by Clarenceville United Methodist Church, 20300 Middlebelt, Livonia, from 9 a.m. to noon June 19-29.

A musical titled "Music Machine" will be presented by the VBS children at 7:30 p.m. the final day, Thursday, June 29.

A youth singing program, puppets and costumed characters are some of the special features planned, and all in the area are welcome to participate.

SWORD OF THE SPIRIT Lutheran Church, 34563 Seven Mile, Livonia, urges children in the community to join in the classes scheduled 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday. Those interested in registering for the program may call Sue Dickinson, 464-6635.

"Jesus Is God's Wonderful Gift" is the theme for vacation Bible school at Kenwood Church of Christ, 20200 Merriman, Livonia.

Agnes Regnaud and her frog puppets will visit the classes meeting 8:55-11:45 a.m. Monday through Friday for children in kindergarten through sixth grade.

A program for those in grades seven through 12 will be held 7-10 a.m., with Great Lakes Bible College students Dave Purdue and Mike Washburn leading the discussion.

One of the churches planning later VBS programs, First United Methodist of Plymouth, is taking registrations now for its July 10-14 classes. The fee is $2 for each child with $6 the top amount any family may pay, and those interested in enrolling children may stop by the church on North Territorial west of Sheldon.

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Neil Simon's "The Sunshine Boys" has just a few more weeks to go at Somerset Dinner Theatre, where the show runs through June 30. It's a comedy that deserves to be seen, in this well-acted production costarring Paul Winter and Robert Casemore.

As Uncle Willie, Paul Winter has a role that allows him to be as outrageous as possible, and he carries it off in style. As Al Lewis, Willie's ex-vaudeville partner, Robert Casemore is called upon to exercise more control, and he does this with appealing humor.

The real charm of this tightly written play is that, although the two men portray aging, ex-vaudeville comedians, the message they impart is one we can all identify with.

In their struggles against the aging process, to retain their dignity and identity, we see lifelong goals of self-growth developed. Of course, we recognize the problems younger though mature adults have with their elderly parents, and vice versa.

AS WILLIE'S NEPHEW Ben Silverman, Roger Hilborn is a properly practical catalyst, playing the agent who gets the Sunshine Boys together once again to reenact their famous doctor sketch.

Winter's Willie and Casemore's Al are delightful counterpoints, reviving the arguments they pursued during a 43-year career on the vaudeville stage.

Al does things like stand close to Willie and spray him with spit during an on-stage sketch, and he also jabs Willie in the chest.

Nobody would say Willie is easy to get along with, however. "Difficult" would be a modestly descriptive word. By comparison, Al is a sensible sort of fellow, who looks at life realistically, even accepting the fact that he has to grow old living with his daughter's family in New Jersey.

Willie remains a New York hotel dweller, and his lifestyle is a cacophonous contrast to Al's bucolic one. Naturally, they battle each other on this score also.

REHEARSING THE doctor's sketch brings out the worst in both of them, struggling for supremacy on the question of exactly where the chairs are supposed to be placed at the table.

Willie has never forgiven Al for retiring 12 years ago, thus forcing him to retire before his time. And although Willie's nephew has tried to get his uncle TV commercial jobs, recalcitrant Willie has muffed them all— Until the doctor's sketch, which will be presented on TV as a bit of nostalgia and earn its stars $5,000.

Rehearsing the sketch in the TV studio proves to be the pair's downfall, however, when Willie becomes ill. But not before the men have recreated the doctor-nurse-patient dialogue.

Surprisingly, it's a hilarious sequence, with Winter and Casemore keeping up the show's fast pace and getting lots of laughs from the still-zany material. Throughout "The Sunshine Boys," the two leads display good timing and rapport.

TWO SUPPORTING roles, both as nurses, are nicely performed by Sandra Carter, a curvaceous blond who appears in the doctor's sketch, and Peggy Thorp, a plain, efficient R.N., who takes care of Willie when he is temporarily bedridden.

Supporters fight to keep Will-O-Way open

By ETHEL SIMMONS

A benefit performance of "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide/When the Rainbow Is Enuf," Saturday at Detroit's Fisher Theatre may be just what it takes to save Will -O-Way Apprentice Theatre from closing.

Will-O-Way, licensed in 1949 as a trade school of the theater in Michigan, is expected to continue its summer classes despite a threatened foreclosure on the Bloomfield Township property.

Although payment of $20,000 on a note held by private investors comes due today, Will-O-Way will go on, according to Celia Merrill Turner, director.

A fund drive to raise $40,000 for theater expenses was started in the last few weeks. So far, $1,000 in personal contributions has been raised.

BUT THE BENEFIT matinee performance at the Fisher hopefully will net $25,000 for Will-O-Way. The benefit will include the 2 p.m. Saturday show of "For Colored Girls" (which closes its run at the Fisher on Sunday) and a champagne reception at the Hotel St. Regis.

"The Saturday matinee is sold out, except for our tickets," said Ken Turner, Will-O-Way Apprentice Theatre general manager.

Benefit tickets are priced at $50 apiece and may be obtained by calling Will-O-Way at 644-4418. "Just give us a call, and we'll get the tickets to you," Turner said.

Will-O-Way Director Celia Turner, who is the wife of Ken Turner, said that ABC Television stars are being lined up to perform at the reception following the benefit performance.

Among the ABC-TV personalities will be 19-year-old Michael Binder of Birmingham, who is now living and working on the West Coast.

BINDER MAY become a household name and as big a star as others on the network after his TV series debuts this fall.

Entitled "Apple Pie," the comedy produced by Norman Lear will be televised Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. Rue McClanahan, who played the best friend on "Maude," stars in "Apple Pie," about an oddball family whose members have been recruited through want ads.

Binder, a comedian who performs at the Comedy Store in Los Angeles, is a former Will-O-Way student.

The play "For Colored Girls" is coproduced by Joseph Papp and Woodie King Jr. King, who also studied at Will-O-Way, has been helping to organize support among well-known New York and Hollywood performers to whom Will-O-Way gave early theatrical training.

Mrs. Turner said the apprentice theater has received permission to put an extension on the note due today, "to come up with something," She said that $21,500 will get a one-year extension on the note.

The play "For Colored Girls" is a collage of writings by Ntozake Shange, arranged by director Oz Scott and choreographed by Paula Moss. The National Company of the New York Shakespeare Festival production is performing at the Fisher.

Mrs. Turner said a steering committee representing community groups has met at her home near the theater and taken blocks of tickets to their organizations.

Among the performers who studied at Will-O-Way are Martha Henry of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival and New York character actor Paul Price, who was a scholarship student in 1951. Both are writing letters in support of Will-O-Way, Mrs. Turner said.

Will-O-Way has been asking ex-students to send letters telling the benefits they gained personally and professionally from taking classes there.

"We can plan on taking the letters to Bloomfield Township," Mrs. Turner said. "David (Schartman of the Pontiac Arts Council who has been acting as business manager) thinks there may be a rebate on taxes."

FOR YEARS Will-O-Way has paid taxes to Bloomfield Township without asking for a tax-exempt status available to educational institutions, she said.

"I think we are going to be able to continue with the theater. It involves reorganization to get grants."

The story of Will-O-Way's financial plight has been released nationally, and many former students, including the famous, have rallied 'round.

Comic Michael Binder read about the problems, in a California paper, and called twice to volunteer his services.

By chance, the Turners' daughter Christine (Tine), 15, was visiting Stratford, Ont., with a group of fellow students from the drama department of Roeper School in Bloomfield Hills, and talked with Martha Henry.

"Tine talked about the difficulties, and Martha was very concerned and is writing a letter," said Mrs. Turner. More than 50 letters of support have been sent to Will-O-Way.

A woman who worked as a teacher at the apprentice theater in 1947 wrote a poignant letter, offering to send $10 each month from her Social Security money.

"I said no."

A LETTER from the mother of one of the school's present students said she had tried to find a place for her child to study and of four theater schools listed in the phone book, Will-O-Way was the only one she could reach that offered the kind of training she sought.

Mrs. Turner, who is from a theatrical family, said another letter came from a man who studied with her mother, Treesa Way Merrill, and that he remembered Celia when she assisted her mother.

Superumbrella keeps fair dry

Come rain or shine, "Superumbrella" will make its debut this summer at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, July 19-22.

Developed by University of Michigan architecture professor Kent Hubbell with a $10,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, the 1,200-square-foot stretched membrane structure will replace several of the makeshift tarpaulin coverings which have sheltered the exhibition in the past.

"Superumbrella," which weighs 150 pounds and covers a circular area 34 feet in diameter, was developed in Hubbells "tensile structure" design studio at the U-M College of Architecture and Urban Planning.

Last year a tensile fabric structure known as the "Graceful Arch," also designed by Hubbell and his U-M architecture class, enclosed the performance area of the art fair near the U-M's Physics and Astronomy Building.This one was used for Birmingham's Art-in-the-Park last summer.

This year, a prototype Superumbrella will be fabricated and tested as a covering for the AnnArbor Potter's Guild exhibition area at the corner of South University and EastUniversity avenues.

Superumbrella rises 14 feet from the ground on an aluminumshaft, which supports a urethane-coated ployester fabric canopy stretched across fiberglass ribs.

"In a tensile structure," said Hubbell, "the stretching of the fabric canopy creates a doubly-curved surface, stablilizing the structure against external forces such as wind and rain."

Another design feature developed by Hubbell is a drainage system whereby waterflows through the central aluminum shaft rather than over the edges of the umbrella canopy. At the bottom of the shaft, said Hubbell, rain may be divertedto a storm drain, avoiding the possibility of wet or muddy exhibit areas.

"The National Endowment grant was for the design of a portable enclosure system for short-term public events," Hubell said. "Keeping cost to a minimum was a major consideration since the structure is to be used at art fairs and other events with limited budgets."

Hubbell has already received requests from other art fairs for outdoor pavilion structures.

The initial Superumbrella would cost about $5,000, although as more of the structures are produced, Hubbell expects this figure to be nearly halved.

"Our overall design objective was to preserve some of the vitality of the ad hoc art fairs, and at the same time to provide protection from the sun, rain and wind," said Hubbell

"In our umbrella design, a shaded walkway will be created, with no need for stakes, guywires, or any obstructions, since each Superumbrella is supported bya single central shaft. In addition, the Superumbrella will have one high and one low edge, providing overlap for a continous membrane covering.

"The base of the Superumbrella will sleeve into a casing installed in the ground. When not erected, the umbrella fits into a duffel bag that can be carried by two people."

Hubbell said the first Superumbrella will be donated to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. Local groups are also seeking funds for the purchase of additional umbrellas.

Phone numbers given out

Detroit telephone customers were the first in the nation to be assigned individual telephone numbers to aid operators in handling a large volume of calls.

Today, Michigan ranks seventh in the U.S. with nearly six million telephones in service.

Canton heads backs to Wayandotte for state finals

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

While most high school baseball teams have already turned in their uniforms, Plymouth Canton is still very busy on the practice field as it prepares for state championship competition in Wyandotte Saturday.

The Chiefs, one of only four class A teams left in the single-elimination tourney, will face Flint Southwestern in a semifinal battle at 10 a.m. Hazel Park and East Kentwood square off in the other semifinal at 12:30 p.m. The winners of these two games meet for the state title at 3:30 p.m.

Canton reached the final four with its regional victory last weekend, also at Wyandotte. In that competition, the Chiefs edged Taylor Truman, 5-2, in nine innings and then shutout Westland John Glenn in the finale, 3-0, for the regional crown.

And as far as Canton coach Fred Crissey is concerned, the Chiefs' first opponent, Flint Southwestern, is the team to beat.

Southwestern, 30-3 overall, recently was ranked best in the state in the last coaches' poll. The Chiefs, 25-4 overall and champions of the Western Six League, had held that rating prior to the final poll. They are now second.

So the challenge is there, for both clubs, to show which is the best team in the state.

"Southwestern is big, strong, and physical," said Crissey. "Hey, they're the number one team in the state.

"But this is the kind of challenge you like to have, and we've got the kind of kids who will go after it.

"We've got a group of hell-fighters, here," Crissey said about the Chiefs. "And we're going after the title. There's no playing conservative at this time. If we beat the best, fine. If we get beat by the best, fine.

"If we beat those guys (Southwestern), the second game could be anti-climactic. But how can a game for the state title be anti-climactic? We'll just have to be careful of that."

Crissey will have to be careful about Hazel Park, the number-three ranked team in the state and a perennial state contender. And East Kentwood is supposedly the best team in the western part of the state.

The Canton coach feels the competition will be even this weekend and fans should expect close games.

"When you get this far in a tournament, I don't think any club will get ripped out of town," Crissey said. "The pitching is just too good."

AS USUAL, the Chiefs had trouble hitting the ball but relied on strong pitching and sound execution to survive the regionals.

Canton registered only two hits off Westland John Glenn hurler Jim Blalock in its 3-0 victory over the Rockets. The Chiefs' Scott Dawson was equal to the test, however, scattering three hits for the shut out.

"Dawson was in control all the way," Crissey said. "And that (Glenn) is a good hitting ball club.

"I thought we hit the ball well. We only got two strike outs, but there were great defensive plays on both sides."

The real spine-tinger was in the semi-final. The Chiefs had lady-luck on their side in a 5-2 overtime victory against Taylor Truman.

Both teams scored initial runs in the first inning but the score remained tied after eight innings—although both sides had numerous scoring opportunities. In fact, Truman almost scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh but a perfect throw from leftfielder Dave Weise cut down the potential tally at the plate.

Canton catcher Jeff Campbell tags out the potential winning run for Taylor Truman in semifinal regional action last weekend. This was the play of the game. Leftfielder Dave Weise threw a perfect strike to third baseman Craig Lee, who relayed the ball to Campbell for the game-saving tag at the plate in the bottom of the seventh. Plymouth Massey favored in tourney

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

The fourth-annual Plymouth-Canton Men's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament will be held this weekend at four different sites in community.

The tourney is co-sponsored by the Plymouth and Canton Parks and Recreation Departments.

Sixteen softball teams, 11 from the Plymouth league and five from Canton, will compete in this double-elimination event. Action starts Friday night with 12 first and second round games at the four sites.

The contests will be held at the two Canton Township diamonds on Canton Center Road just north of Cherry Hill Road, the Plymouth Canton High School diamond on Canton Center Road south of Joy Road, and the Massey diamond on Plymouth Road at Haggerty across from the Burroughs Plant.

Tournament play continues at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and last throughout the day. The championship game takes place Sunday at Massey beginning at 1 p.m.

The initial draw for the 16 teams finds eight first round games on Friday beginning at 6:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The 6:15 p.m. games feature Manley, Bennett, McDonald vs. Little Caesar, Beautiful People vs. Wagner Electric, R & J vs. McMurray, and Massey of Canton vs. Massey of Plymouth.

The 7:30 p.m. games include Robot Printing vs. Bathey, H.A.F. Industries vs. Canton Jaycees, Adistra vs. Puckett Plumbing, and Finlan Insurance vs. Century Farms.

The best first round game of the evening will be at the Massey field at 6:15 p.m. when two arch-rivals, Massey of Plymouth and Massey of Canton battle try to stay out of the losers' bracket.

Massey of Plymouth, last year's champion, is favored by the Good Doctor to once against win the tourney.

McMurray Insurance, the best team in Canton and champions of the 1975 and 1976 tourneys, should finish as runners-up—giving the powerful Massey squad its toughest competition.

Here is a rundown on how all 16 teams look in this weekend's tourney:

Century Farms— Class B team in Canton should be sent back to the farm—minor leagues, that is.

Finlan Insurance— Last year's runners-up but don't take out an insurance policy on them finishing in the top three this year.

Commentary

Puckett Plumbing— Flushed down in three games (but they're still my favorite team for personal reasons).

Adistra— Top team in Division B of the Plymouth League but they can't play with the big boys.

Bathey Manufacturing— Definitely a two-game team in this double-elimination tourney—unless they upset the Jaycettes, oops, Jaycees in the loser's bracket.

Robot Printing— Electric Sunshine, Oasis Golf Center, Big Bills, or Robot Printing. Whichever sponsor they have this weekend, it doesn't really matter. They always choke at tournament time.

Massey of Canton— Second-best team in Canton but not good enough to beat the best squad in Plymouth.

Massey of Plymouth— New manager, same results. Get a truck to bring home the hardware.

McMurray Insurance— Good bet for Sunday action but suffered a bad draw. Should take home second-place trophies.

R & J By my surveying, they will be out in two games.

Wagner Electric— They'll be M.A.S.H.ed by Saturday afternoon.

Beautiful People— Too bad they don't play beautiful ball, but they could last until Saturday night.

Little Caesar— Not a bad ball club, but don't compare them to the professional Caesars.

Manley, Bennett, McDonald— Too long a name to get on a trophy. Besides, someone still has 19 more to go.

Salem netters win Sub-8 as Dearborn fails to play

Chalk up another Suburban Eight League title for Plymouth Salem.

This one is in tennis, and believe it or not, the Rocks won the title Tuesday afternoon—by default.

For the second time this season, Dearborn High School failed to show up for its scheduled match with Salem at the Centennial Park courts.

The Rocks, coached by Jim Stevens, went into this match assured of at least a tie for the title with their 9-2 Sub-8 record. Salem's only two losses were to Edsel Ford. The Thunderbirds, however, finished the season with an 8-3 record, tied with Allen Park.

If Salem had lost to Dearborn, it would have finished in a three-way tie for the crown. But this victory gives the Rocks the outright title and a 13-2 overall record.

The extended tennis season became even longer when Dearborn initially failed to show up for a match on Monday, June 5 because of transportation problems.

Plymouth Athletic Director John Sandmann met with Dearborn officials and rescheduled the match for last Monday, June 12. But rain moved the match back to Tuesday, June 13.

The Pioneers once again failed to show Tuesday. Stevens said the Dearborn coach couldn't make the trip.

He said, "Dearborn failed to come on two scheduled match days. As a result, we win by default. The hell with them (Dearborn). We win the title."

"I feel its been a super season working with these fine, young men," the Salem mentor said. "It will be a pleasure to see many of them return next year."

Salem only loses Curt Schultz and Jeff Bearup, first singles and first doubles players respectively, to graduation.

Robinson qualifies

The 1968 Plymouth High School graduate has tried for years to get his professional golf tour card—the dream every potential linker hopes will come true.

Robinson will try again this fall for the card, and if plays like he did last week in Chicago, his lifetime goal will no longer be just a dream.

You see, Robinson not only qualified for the United States Open last week—for the second time in his career—but he finished as the top qualifier of the day with two fine rounds of 71 and 72 for a 143 total.

Those two rounds earned the 28-year-old a trip to Denver for the Open where he begins play today at the Cherry Hill Country Club with the rest of the big names on the tour.

After graduating from Eastern Michigan University in 1972 with All-American status as captain of the Huron squad, Robinson began his career at the Oasis Golf Center in Livonia as an assistant pro.

He lived in Plymouth during the summer months, but was active on the mini golf tour in Florida during the winter season.

The handsome golfer, who was a captain of the Plymouth High team his senior year, qualified for his first U.S. Open in 1975 but has recently struggled with his game.

Last year, he worked as an assistant pro at the Tamoshanter Country Club in Bloomfield Hills. Now, he is an assistant pro at the Greenridge Country Club in the Grand Rapids area—constantly working on his game with hopes of someday joining the tour on a regular basis.

His hard work paid off with the two hot rounds in Chicago. He was the only Michigan player to qualify for the major tourney—even beating out Len Jansen, the pro Robinson works under at Greenridge.

For Gary's parents, Gordie and Betty Robinson of 482 Invin in Plymouth, this week is a proud moment for them as their son takes another giant step in his career.

As a youngster, Robinson was also active in little league baseball. He first golfed at Hilltop Glenn in Plymouth Township, teeing off as a 10-year old under the direction of Chris Burkhardt, who owned the course at that time.

Gary continued playing golf in the fall and baseball in the spring during his high school career. He played second base and pitched a little for the Rocks, but golf was always his love.

"Golf was always Gary's love," said Mrs. Robinson. "You can only play baseball for a little while, but you can always play golf. Besides, it's hard to mix sports.

"He seems to be getting it (his golf game) together, now."

If Gary stays hot and plays like he did in Chicago last week, that tiresome struggle to become a tour player could end in a hurry.

Gary Robinson shows the form which earned the 1968 Plymouth High School graduate a trip to the United States Open in Denver this weekend. Robinson hopes to get his tour card in the fall.

Now that the area women's all-star leagues are finished for the season, the girls are making a name for themselves in other parts of the country.

The latest group, under the leadership of Helen Weston, invaded Mansfield, Ohio, last weekend and walked off with most of the honors.

Showing the way to the group was a team captained by Rosemary Preuter, of Plymouth, which posted a 2,826 series. Rosemary was high with a 611.

In second place was the Livonia Bowling Sales team, captained during the regular season by Marge Kropacek. This combination struck down the pins for a 2,773. Nancy Mischuk was the top scorer with a 640, which gave her second place for the entire tournament.

Next week, the group will move on to Cincinnati for the Hoinke Classic.

A RIVALRY that kept competition at a high peak during the regular bowling season has now carried over to the summer leagues with Mary Mohacsi, Kathy Haislip and Penny Behn waging a struggle for top place in the all-star mixed traveling circuit

At the moment Mary is showing the way with a 199 average. One pin behind is Kathy and Penny is third with a 191. Though she is trailing her two rivals, Penny holds high game with a 245 and high series with 646.

SCORING SEEMS to be reaching a new high at Westland Bowl, especially for the summer months.

The latest example happened in the Classic Trio league where Rick Lang put together games of 201, 230 and 269 for a 700 series and yet only won high honors by four pins.

Chasing him all the way Ray Kreuter opened witha 246, came back with a 236 and closed with 214 for 696. Bob Schanke used a 243 finish for a 679 and third place. Rick Capaldi closed with a 234 for 668, but all it got him was fourth place.

On the women's side, Marion Saunders had games of 244 and 212 for 603 and Jean Martin had a 234 game in a 530 series.

THE SENIOR CITIZENS still are going strong at Plymouth Bowl and the leader this week was Elmer Jankowsky, who fashioned a 257 game in a 611 series.

Behind him came Frank Schulte with a 211 in 518 and Ed Rahn with a a 249, but the best he could do was a 498 series.

THE WOMEN'S STATE tournament will be held in Flint in 1980.

'Execution in the clutch'— secret to Chiefs' success

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

"EXECUTION"

It was Sunday morning—the day after Plymouth Canton won the state regional in Wyandotte. The phone rang at my house.

It was Fred Crissey, the Canton mentor, making his weekly call to discuss the past week's action.

Now, I've said in the past how proud Crissey is of this year's version of the Chiefs. But that pride showed through even more Sunday morning.

The accolades continued to come out of his mouth quicker than my pen could write them down.

Although he wouldn't say it, Crissey knows, along with others, that physically, this just isn't one of his biggest or mightiest Canton squads. They have strong pitching, but don't hit the ball very well.

Scott Collins, the All-State shortstop, is really the only superstar on the club. He usually is the only one to get on base consistently.

And yet, to my amazement, the Chiefs have won 25 of 29 games this season and now compete for the state title in Wyandotte Saturday.

Crissey always says in a single-elimination competition, such as the state tournament, a team has got to have luck as well as talent to win the championship.

Canton had a little of this luck in the dramatic, breath-taking regional semifinal against Truman, when it came within one inch of losing the game in the bottom of the seventh. They got out of that one, and rebounded with three runs on no hits in the ninth to pull out the victory.

Despite Canton's fortunes in this game, one had to admire the "execution in the clutch," as Crissey said, which the Plymouth squad displayed in this game.

There were many ups-and-downs in this contest, as both squads had many numerous scoring opportunities. But when it counted, Canton did the things it had to do to win the game.

This is the mark of a real champion—the mark which may take the Chiefs to the state title this weekend.

"I just felt when we had to play, we played," the proud Crissey said. "There were three or four times they (Truman) tried to force us into mistakes. There were many times we could have just packed up and said it was too tough to win—but we didn't. When we had the opportunities, we took advantage of them.

"Your belly must have been jumping in that first game. But our kids just kept on scrapping and fighting. I'm just extremely proud of our kids."

EVERYONE CONTRIBUTED

I believe in full participation in prep athletics, by Saturday was definitely something to behold.

Crissey has always preached that everyone wearing the red uniform is part of the team and should participate in cheering from the bench. It's one of the ways the Canton coach keeps his players feeling they're part of the action.

But it still boggles my mind when I saw sophomores Steve Gray, Steve Eddy, and Al Lipinski come into the Truman game in clutch situations. This is not a rap against these players. It's just that they were called up from the junior varsity and have little varsity experience. Yet, Crissey didn't hestitate using them.

Crissey used all but two players, 15 in all, in the Truman game.

That certainly shows confidence in the players who are part of your program—even if they are members of the junior varsity.

Even Dave Meador, the injured first baseman, had a part in the Truman victory. Meador injured his shoulder back at pre-district time against Farmington Harrison. He hasn't seen action since, but has dressed and sat on the bench with his teammates.

Last Saturday, Meador stole the steal signs from the Truman team, helping the Chiefs cut down the Taylor running attack. Catcher Jeff Campbell called two pitchouts and nailed a pair of Truman runners at second base because of Meador's sign-stealing antics. It may have saved two runs from scoring.

FANS WANTED

I'm very happy to say that of the four teams at last week's regional, the Plymouth fans constituted the biggest crowd. It was learned that the Plymouth fans, alone, helped triple the Wyandotte gate compared to district action a week earlier.

I think even more Plymouth-Canton community fans will come to Wyandotte this weekend to support the Chiefs in their quest for the state championship. It's great for the community, as a whole, to have a team in the state baseball finales—regardless of the outcome.

Wyandotte's diamond is only about 50 minutes from this area. Travel south on the Southfield Expressway. The expressway ends, but continue south on Southfield Road. Then turn right on Fort Street and travel about 15 miles to Pennslyvania Avenue. Turn left on Pennsylvania and travel about six blocks. You can park in the behind the outfield fence.

SIMILARITIES

One quick thought. The last time Wyandotte hosted the state championships was in 1975—the year Plymouth Salem won the title behind the pitching of Tom Willette. Now, three years later, the competition is back in Wyandotte. Will history repeat itself with another PLymouth team winning the championship?

CANTON GIRLS DESERVE CREDIT

With all this hullabaloo about the Canton boys, I don't want to forget the Canton girls and mention what a great job they did in Trenton.

The Cinderella team lived up to its name, winning the regional semifinals over Wyandotte, 14-13, before losing in the championship game to a 23-3 Waterford club, 7-4.

Despite the loss, the Chiefs finished as one of the last eight teams in the state tourney—the farthest any Class A school went in the Observerland area. (Clarenceville, Class B, advanced to the finals in Grand Rapids with a regional victory).

Finishing as one of the last eight in the tourney is a tremendous feat for a team which finished the regular season with a 6-7 overall record and a 3-7 mark in the Western Six League.

Canton girls deserve a pat-on-the-back for their play this season. It wasn't easy for the Chiefs at the beginning of the season when many of the returning players decided not to compete this spring.

Defense—that was the key to the Chiefs' successes in the tourney. And that defense will be back next season. It was just a pleasure to watch Vickie Cavalloaro and Kathie Peck work so together at second base and shortstop during tournament play.

Grand Circuit is in full swing

The Roaring Grand Circuit, which features the best of harness racing's young trotters and pacers, handled by the top drivers in the country, is in full swing at Wolverine Harness Raceway, Schoolcraft at Middlebelt, in Livonia.

Thursday night, the nation's best 3-year-old trotting colts and geldings will test each other in the 68th running of the Matron Stakes. The 13-horse field will be competing for a purse of $43,249.

Post time is 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday during the remainder of Grand Circuit Week.

Local favorite It's Magic holds a Wolverine track mile record of 2:00.1 for 3-year-old trotters. The record makes him the season leader for 3-year-olds on a mile track.

The colt, trained and driven by Carl Allen, will face Speedy Somolli, 2-year-old trotter of the year in 1977. Speedy Somolli, driven by Howard Beissinger, earned more than $65,000 last year and has a sizzling 1:57.8 record time as a 2-year-old.

innings of the contest. He walked seven batters in although he has issued only 11 free passes all season long.

There were numerous times during the game when it looked like the Chiefs' journey hopes would be squelched, but, as Crissey said, "execution in the clutch" was the difference in the regionals.

The Chiefs were able to force Truman to make crucial mistakes, especially in the game-winning ninth inning.

Canton hadn't hit the ball all morning, but excellent bunting in the ninth resulted in three runs without the benefit of a hit.

Once again, Canton's defense prevailed in the bootom of the ninth, when Truman's last rally was stymied by a game-ending double play.

Wickham wins Rupert Classic

Mike Wickham won the fourth-annual Hank Rupert Golf Classic held last Saturday at the Hilltop Glen Golf Course in Plymouth Township. Wickham, a 1977 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and former member of the Rocks' golf team, won the event with a 18-hole round of 71.

Other trophy winnrs in the four flights were Doug Holloway with a 78, Pat McKendry at 79, Craig Bell at 99 and Mark Klucka at 112.

Holloway is a 1978 Salem graduate who competed in baseball and golf. McKendry, a 1977 graduate, was a Salem shortstop last season.

Bell, the head basketball coach at Plymouth Canton, also serves as a physical education teacher at the Centennial Park. Klucka, a 1975 Salem graduate, currently attends Notre Dame University.

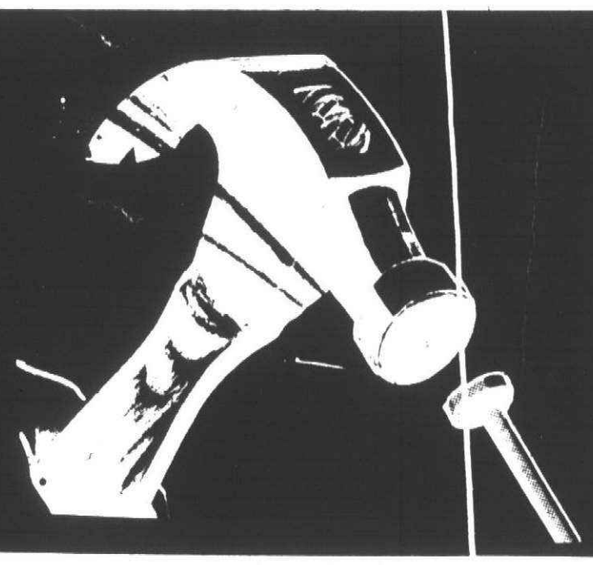

Bob Dasher, Salem's All-State football player, did not perform as well on the golf course, shooting a 121 as the classic's worst golfer.

The golf event, hosted by Hank Rupert, the head custodian of the Centennial Park, is held at the end of each school year. The classic brings together current students, teachers and alumni from Salem High School.

The tourney was originally held for the 1975 Salem graduates four years ago. Once again, the 1975 grads had the best representation at the classic as 14 alumni participated in the field of 40 golfers.

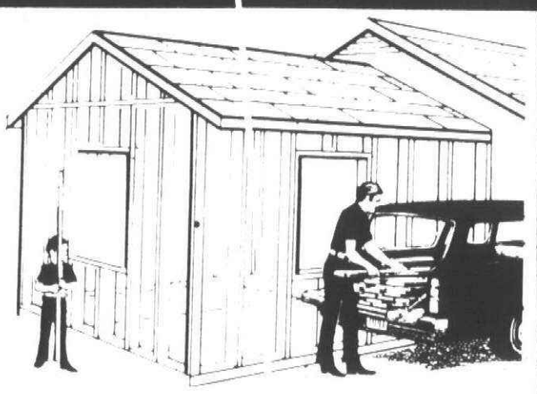

"This is the best turnout we've had for this yet," Rupert said.

Paul Sincock, 1975 Salem graduate, once again served as the Tournament Director. Sincock is a senior at Central Michigan University.

PRESERVATIVE PRESSURE TREATED LUMBER

WHATEVER YOU'RE BUILDING OUTDOORS, YOU NEED

Anything you build will have extraordinarily long life if you build it with ordinary lumber or plywood pressure treated with preservative chemicals. It won't rot, and termites won't bother it even if you don't stain or paint it. Considering how long it lasts, Preservative pressure treated wood is surprisingly inexpensive. And if you don't have a project in mind, ask us for a suggestion.

Observer honors elude Plymouth gal runners

By DOUG FUNKE and DENNIS O'CONNOR

The times keep getting a little faster, the distances a little longer and the heights a little higher for area girls' track and field competitors.

Westland John Glenn successfully defended its Northwest Suburban League championship this spring and Ladywood and Redford Bishop Borgess each won Catholic League sectional titles.

Livonia Stevenson reigned as Inter-Lakes League champ, Livonia Churchill won its first ever Western Six League title and Redford Union barely missed wearing the Suburban Eight League crown after defeating all six conference squads in dual competition.

Several teams, most notably Redford Thurston and Livonia Bentley, although not winning championships, had their best record in years.

Area coaches met recently to select the all-Observer girls' track teams. Girls were limited to one individual event each for first-team recognition.

FIRST TEAM

Nadia Awad, Livonia Franklin, shot put. A junior, Awad has never been defeated in the shot during a dual meet in her two-year career.

Rockhound fever—Schoolcraft had it

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

Rockhounding is infectious. Try it. Wander a beach along Lake Superior anywhere from Munising to the Wisconsin border with your head bent over, and soon others will get the fever and join you.

It even infected our practical pioneers. In 1820, territorial Gov. Lewis Cass put together a canoe expedition to explore the Great Lakes and Northwest Territory. As mineralogist he brought along Henry Rowe Schoolcraft.

You know the name of Schoolcraft: A county, a village, a road and a community college have all been named for him. He later became the Indian agent, collecting Chippewa tales that were to inspire Longfellow's "Song o Hiawatha" as well as less famous delightful works.

SCHOOLCRAFT'S "Narrative Journal of Travels," the unofficial report of that great exploration, tells of his work along the Portage, the neck of water that separates th narrow Keewenaw Peninsula from the rest of the Upper Peninsula.

A head wind held them up, so Schoolcraft searched the beaches, coming up with carnelian, a two-pound copper rock, zeolite, quartz, jasper, opal agate and sardonyx. And he reports:

"The very interesting character of the mineralogy at this place arrested the attention of several of our party, who had before felt no interest in this study, and from the spirit of imitation, several of the soldiers and voyageurs also turned collectors of specimens."

The infectiousness of rockhounding didn't stop there: "But a greater novelty ensued, the Indians attached to the expedition, on being shewn the substances we were anxious to procure, also undertook the search, and with such good success, that I am indebted to them for some of the finest specimens I have from that locality.

"This is not the first attention they had manifested in the subject, for on a former occasion, they assisted me in chizzeling organic relics from the rock, and seemed to take a delight in being serviceable that way, although unable to comprehend the object of these collections. . .

"There is a general impression among the Indians that we possess the skill of turning all minerals either into money or medicine."

The Indians gave Schoolcraft a nickname: "Paw-gwa-be-can-e-ga," a synonym for mineralogist.

AND IT HAS been like that ever since.

Rockhounds belie the old saying that people who keep their eyes to the ground are pessimists. They're uniformly cheerful while on their treasure hunts or just talking about them.

Michigan is supposed to be second, only to California, in numbers of folks who collect rocks, fossils and minerals, says Steven Wilson, a geologist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Besides the UP's copper country, rockhounds roam the Lake Michigan shoreline from Traverse City north and the Lake Huron shoreline around Alpena.

Wilson has prepared a DNR Geological Survey Division booklet called "Collecting Rocks, Minerals and Fossils in Michigan." It's a good starting point for those who got hooked, accidentally or otherwise, on rockhounding. The 26-cent booklet includes brief descriptions of geological materials in the state, tips on safety during stone quarry field trips, a field equipment checklist, a rock collector's code of ethics and other advice.

You can get the booklet and a pamphlet on the design and construction of a wind-driven rock tumbler for stone polishing by writing: DNR Information Services Center, Seventh Floor, Mason Building, Box 30028 Lansing 48909.

Don't overlook the local library and night school courses, either.

Lapidaries like to cut and polish their rock finds and may expand into jewelry making.

Some fossil and mineral collectors specialize further by study and identification of rock formations under a microscope.

The Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills, is a mecca for advanced collectors, says Wilson. The institute has an outstanding collection of geological materials and several experts in the field.

Each October, some 12,000 persons visit the Detroit rock and mineral show, one of the largest exhibits of its kind. Both retail and wholesale rock dealers fill the hall, selling and swapping rocks with other devotees.

Or perhaps I should say addicts. Schoolcraft would agree.

Festivals aplenty...

For Michigan residents, summer was made to be enjoyed. It is a time to get out, putter in the garden, go to the beach or just to a park, play golf, tennis, baseball, or take the family down to Tiger Stadium or the Detroit Zoo or to one of the many ethnic festivals downtown.

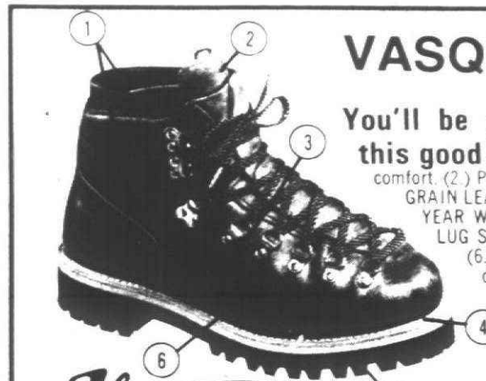

For weekends when you want to escape, weekends when visitors are not expected, the lawn is mowed, the garden watered, house is painted, screens are installed, the floor is mopped, maybe one or many of the following will be of interest.

ETHNIC FESTIVALS: Bavarian Festival at Frankenmuth, through June 17; Slovak, Detroit, June 16-18; Far East, Detroit, June 23-25; American Indian Center's Pow Wow, Wyandotte, June 17-18; International Freedom Festival, Detroit-Windsor, June 30 through July 4; Polka Festival, East Jordan, July 1; Irish Festival, Bellaire, July 1-2; Irish Festival, Wyandotte, July 7-9; Italian Festival, Detroit, July 7-9; Czechoslovakian, Wyandotte, July 14-16; Captive Nations, Detroit, July 14-16; Sauerkraut Festival, Auburn, July 14-16; Alpenfest, Gaylord, July 18-23; Arab Festival, Detroit, July 21-23; Polish Festival Days, Bronson, July 27-29; Afro-American Festival, Detroit, July 28-30; Polish Festival, Wyandotte, Aug. 4-6; Mexican Festival, Detroit, Aug. 4-6; Polish Festival, Detroit, Aug. 11-13; Danish Festival, Greenville, Aug. 18-19; Yugoslavian Festival, Detroit, Aug. 18-20; Ukranian Festival, Detroit, Aug. 25-27; Latin American, Detroit, Sept. 1-4; Scandinavian, Detroit, Sept. 8-10; Slovak, Detroit, 15-17; Octoberfest, Copper Harbor, Sept. 16-17; India Fest, Detroit, Sept. 22-24; American Festival, Detroit, Sept. 29-Oct. 1.

Boat ramp fees, facilities

Watercraft users at the metroparks are required to have a 1978 boat permit (annual/regular $5, senior citizen $3, daily $1) plus a vehicle entry permit (annual/regular $5, senior citizen $3, daily $1).

Boaters using the metroparks must comply with the Marine Safety Act of 1976, plus local watercraft ordinances and Huron-Clinton Metropark rules. There is a 10-m.p.h. speed limit on the lakes and no water skiing is permitted at Stony Creek Lake and Kent Lake.

METRO BEACH has launching ramps that accommodate up to eight boats simultaneously located along the Black Creek, which provides access to Lake St. Clair. Parking is available for 210 boat trailers and cars, and additional parking is available in the main parking lot. Vehicles remaining in the park overnight are charged $1 in addition to the boating permit fees.

Due to high water along the Black Creek and Lake St. Clair, the No Wake ordinance will be enforced.

Ramps are open 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

STONY CREEK Metropark has ramps that permit up to 10 simultaneous launchings and parking for up to 150 cars and trailers at the south end of the lake. Trailers, cars and boats are not permitted to remain overnight at the launch site (except for those in the land storage area, which have been rented for the season).

The launch site has a building and restrooms, lounge area, vending machines for food service and a snack bar on weekends.

KENSINGTON Metropark has two large boat launching sites on Kent Lake. At the east boat launching site, six boats may be launched at one time, with space for 60 cars and trailers and additional spaces for car parking only.

The west launching site has space for 125 cars and boat trailers, with six to eight launchings available at the 120-foot ramp.

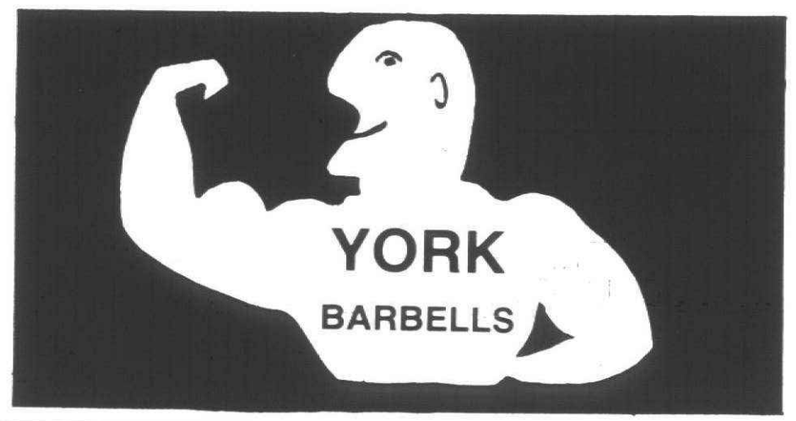

Launching hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Trailers, cars and boats are not permitted to remain overnight.

Down-sized RVs in big demand

The recreational vehicle market has rebounded from the severe decline of the mid-1970s and is on track for record-breaking sales performances in the years ahead.

It is predicted that sales of RVs this year will total 580,000, more than three per cent ahead of the previous industry record of 564,200 set in 1972, and 96 per cent more than the 1974 showing of 295,800.

It is expected that large motorhomes and travel trailers should sell well, but the more efficient tent campers, trailers and minihome sales should show dramatic sales gains through the mid-1980s.

Federal regulation, changing life styles and a steady growth rate in the total number of consumers between 25 and 34 will have an affect on RV market trends, as will fuel-economy standards.

Robert Honke, Ford Division recreation vehicle sales manager, said that use of trucks and vans is expected to climb as Americans rely more and more on trucks to handle their heavy-duty trailer towing requirements.

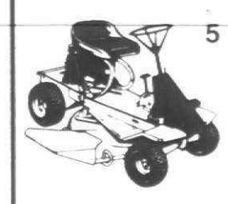

He said that a recent owners' survey showed that 87 per cent of the pickups sold today were used for personal transportation, and nearly 55 per cent of those surveyed used their pickups for camping, hunting or fishing trips. Forty-five per cent used them for vacation travel.

"Younger, more budget-conscious buyers will demand smaller, more efficient trailering equipment and campers to match their life styles and the downsized capabilities of their cars and light trucks.

Tent America

Travelers' home away from home

The shrinking dollar has meant a curtailment of vacation plans for many American families in the past couple of years but now a new program for economical, fun-filled travel makes it possible to have that family vacation and save money too.

Called Tent America, the program provides roomy rental tents already set up with four comfortable cots or air mattresses, at more than 120 Kampgrounds of America facilities along major highways coast to coast.

And the overnight fee for the tent sleeping four people is only $9 or less. The tents are spacious enough for extra members of the family to sleep on the floor on their own air mattresses for $1 more.

Campers must furnish their own sleeping bags or bring along sheets, blankets and pillows. They'll also need such basic equipment as a lantern or flashlight, an ice chest for food or beverages and a cooler for drinking water.

Families can economize even further by preparing their own meals at the campside. All KOAs participating in the tent rental program have barbecue grills and picnic tables at the sites. A cookware set, usually available for less than $20, will complete the list of basic equipment to bring from home.

Vacationers will find KOAs offering tent rentals located about every 300 miles along major interstate routes across the United States, many of them close to such attractions as Williamsburg, Disney World, Nashville's Opryland and metropolitan areas such as Boston, Atlanta, New Orleans, Denver or Las Vegas.

The network of rental tents at KOA campgrounds extends into the Canadian provinces where it is called Tent Canada. Roomy, modern-day teepees replace tents in the Canadian system.

A free leaflet showing locations of Tent America and Tent Canada campgrounds and giving helpful hints for campers is available from Kampgrounds of America, P.O. Bos 30558, Billings, Mont. 59114. For a copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Run for fun–help MD

Marathon runners prepare now. The Frankenmuth People's Race is July 4, which gives you 2½ weeks to limber up the muscles for the 10 or 20 kilometer courses.

This is the third year of the participation marathon run, and the invitation to participate is extended to all runners aged 6 to 60.

There will be 26 divisions, giving each runner a race that best suits her or his style. Traditional hand-lettered German steins, trophies and medals will be given to runners who finish in qualifying positions. In addition, race shirts will be supplied to each entrant.

Runners should register before June 20 to insure a place in the lineup.

Registrations will be accepted from 6-11 p.m., July 3, and from 6:30-8 a.m., July 4. The $5 entry fee must be postmarked before midnight June 20. After that date, the entry fee will be $7 and accepted on a space available basis.

Ballooning classes forming

Got the fever for hot air ballooning?

Ground training necessary to qualify as a pilot will be offered by the Oakland University Division of Continuing Education in a non-degree course to be held on Saturdays, beginning June 17.

The course, preparation for taking the Federal Aviation Administration written exam, will be conducted by a licensed commercial balloon flight instructor from 9 a.m. to noon, for 10 weeks on the OU campus in Rochester. Complete theory of aerostation will be covered, including balloon terminology, meteorology, FAA regulations, and navigation.

Tuition is $70.

To be licensed by the FAA, an examination in ground training as well as flight training must be passed successfully.

For course details, call the OU continuing education office at 377-3120.

Greenfield Village offers new twist to an old favorite

Groups now can have a picnic flavored with Early America and a gathering with a turn-of-the-century pace at Greenfield Village.

Three programs—A Day at Our Park, An Early Evening at Our Park, and An Evening at Our Park—run through September, offering various combinations of attractions for groups of 150 or more.

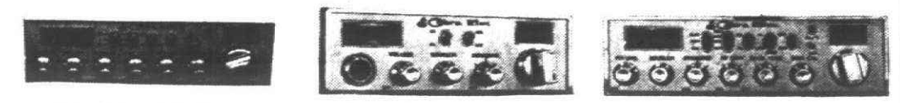

Main attractions in all three programs are the picnic-style supper at Suwanee Park and the turn-of-the-century trappings of the park itself, complete with an antique merry-go-round and a nostalgic arcade with old-time games. Nearby are more than 80 historic village buildings.

Another highlight during July and August is the Old Time Summer Festival, which includes strolling minstrels, a musical revue, a medicine show and historic vignettes.

The Henry ford Museum staff is available to work with representative of any interested group in planning events. For further informaton, call 271-1620, ext. 412.

Super wagon

Ford Division is introducing new longer versions of its popular Econoline van and club wagon series this spring. Called Super Van and Super Wagon (shown here), the new models offer seating for up to 15 passengers and a 14-foot long cargo floor.

Pool Buying Tips

Buying a home swimming pool this year can be compared in many respects to buying a new car. Sizes and price ranges are about the same, each can be custom equipped with a variety of accessories, and the buyer has a number of places to shop for the best deal.

Unlike the car, however, the swimming pool will appreciate in value over the years and more favorable financing is generally available.

Prices for an above-ground pool large enough for family splashing and fun begin around several hundred dollars. Large pools of this type with decking attached along with the smaller in-ground pools are generally comparable to the price of an economy car. Larger, more elaborate in-ground pools can be considerably more expensive, matching more closely the price of a luxury automobile today.

But the National Swimming Pool Institute stresses that, like most autos, most pools built are in the mid-range price. The latest industry figures, for example, indicated that the average in-ground pool, depending upon equipment and deck, cost between $12 and $15 per square foot of water area. Such factors as excavation site difficulties and pool design will also affect cost.

The biggest cost saver, according to the Institute, is adequate prior planning. NSPI advises that anticipated uses of the pool ranging from family frolicking to serious swimming should be first anticipated before pool size, design and location are considered.

Next in rank for cost savings is shopping to narrow the field of pool contractors to two or three which seem right for your project. Make sure each contractor offers a pool which meets or exceeds the suggested minimum design and construction standards for residential pools formulated by the National Swimming Pool Institute.

Most pools today are constructed of various forms of concrete, with vinyl liners or with fiberglass. Each type has certain advantages in particular applications and differs somewhat in costs. The pool contractors will be able to assist the family in making wise decisions about the pool size and design and guide homeowners as to the costs associated with each type of pool construction.

Additionally, if you have plans for a garden pool, spa, or waterfall in your backyard, check in the beginning with the pool contractor. It will be less expensive in the long run to get all the work done at one time and you can finance it along with the pool.
