Fertility god?

When Ellie Graham tried in The View to find out what this object was, she received many answers, including speculation it could be an ancient fertility god. To find out what it really is, or at least believed to be, read The View today on Page 1B.

Bobby who?

The departure of Lem Barney from the Lions' den got Daniels Den to thinking about earlier youth movements and departing veterans—particularly the Lions of the mid-1950s, who romped the field under the leadership of Bobby Layne. Page 10A.

Trustees tight on tax rate

The school tax bill Plymouth and Canton residents will receive in December will be about a half-mill higher than 1977.

Monday night the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education set the 1978 tax levy at 38.62 mills. The total levy is 0.62 mills higher than last year but 1.03 mills lower than the local school tax collected in 1976.

The difference is the debt retirement levy. In 1978, 5.17 mills will be collected; in 1977 the amount was 4.24 mills; and in 1976, 6.19 mills. The debt retirement levy varies each year according to the amount of building construction loans due that year.

The total levy of 38.62 mills ($38.62 per $1,000 state equalized valuation) will cost about $772 for the owner of a $40,000 home and some $1,160 for a $60,000 homeowner.

THE REAL DECISION to be made by the school board Monday night was how much to collect for operating expenses.

The voted operating millage levy is 33.76 and the school board had to approve a levy less than what voters had authorized as a maximum—either 33.43 or 33.45 mills.

After some discussion, the board decided to reduce the operating portion of the total levy by 0.31 mills instead of by 0.33 mills (one third of a mill).

The board's concern was that a reduction in operating millage of 0.33 could have resulted in lower state aid payments later in the year. The board figured the lower operating millage rate will avoid the loss of state funds later.

The difference between an operating reduction of 0.33 and 0.31 is $6.20 a year for the owner of a $40,000 home and $9.30 for the $60,000 homeowner. For the school district, the 0.02 mills difference represents only about $11,000 in total revenue from local property taxes.

"But that's a difference of one teaching position, and I think we ought to play it safe," commented Stephen Harper, school board treasurer.

The gamble is on what the school district's final student enrollment will be when the official Fourth Friday count is taken in September. Because state aid is computed using a formula involving taxbase and student enrollment, the actual tax levy needed won't be known until Sept. 22. But by state law the millage rate has to be set before Labor Day.

Supt. John M. Hoben told trustees Monday night there was little substantiative difference between a total levy of 38.6 or 38.62, but a conservative approach to minimize state aid loss would be to set the levy at 38.62.

The present enrollment projection is 15,900, counting special education and headcount credits for adult education programs.

"Why should we suffer if we don't hit our enrollment projections right on the head?" commented trustee Richard Arlen. "If we are wrong, let's make the error on the side which will give us the most money and set the rate at 38.62."

A Saturday morning jockey

Samantha Bitoni has been taking horseriding lessons every Saturday morning at a special school in Plymouth Township. The Plymouth Community Civitan Club and Wayne County 4-H is cooperating in establishing a special riding program for the handicapped. After a special four-week pilot this summer, the Civitans plan to start up the program again this fall. For the story and additional photos, see Page 3A. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

School's advisors prepare to regroup

With the opening of school, interest has renewed in PACTS—the community participation process of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

PACTS stands for Parents, Administrators, Citizens, Teachers and Students.

Representatives of each of these groups are included in the year-long series of meetings to aid the school board and administration in long-range planning.

THE PACTS Assembly met with the school board March 22 to discuss its recommendations.

Issues studied by the '78 Assembly were curriculum continuity, planning for growth, communication, maintenance and transportation.

Response to many of the PACTS suggestions will come from the school board later during this school year, after plans and budgets for next year are under way.

At least two recommendations have been dropped because of the defeat of the two additional millages in the June election. The curriculum continuity committee asked for district-wide pre-kindergarten testing which was allocated in a budget which included the defeated 1.5 additional operating mills.

Many of the long-range plans proposed by the maintenance committee depended on the defeated special maintenance levy of one-half mill.

NEARLY ALL recommendations of the transportation committee were adopted, according to the report given at the school board workshop on Aug. 21.

Improvements in busing in line with PACTS points included standardization of bus routes, stop locations and stop times.

In most cases, students now have the same bus driver morning and afternoon—as suggested by PACTS. A manual traffic light has been placed at Joy and Canton Center roads to ease traffic congestion. Bus radios have been put into full operation.

The communication committee's advice also has been heeded by the board. In a special workshop on Aug. 7, the school board looked at ways to improve its decision-making process and credibility. The committee also favored publications, surveys and continuing the PACTS process, all of which are expected this year.

Curriculum continuity and planning for growth proposals are mostly in the study steps. Detailed reports in all areas will be published as the board sets policy in each area.

Jaycees pursue flag for Canton

The Canton Jaycees want to do a little old fashioned flag waving.

But there's one big problem. Canton Township doesn't have an official flag to wave.

However, the civic group has a plan to remedy that situation. The members are sponsoring a Canton flag contest.

The basic idea is to encourage artistically-minded residents to come up with a design for a flag.

A committee made up of representatives from the community will judge all the entries and select a winner. The winning design will then be taken to a flag-maker. And the winning designer will win a $100 bond.

"We are providing people with the opportunity to have some community pride and a sense of identity," said Fred Burger, Jaycee president.

The Jaycees took their plans to the township board and got support for the project.

"I'm in favor of it," said Supervisor Harold Stein. "They have my blessing. Maybe it'll pull out some community support."

Stein also said there was a possibility of the winning flag being adopted as a symbol of the township. However, he pointed out that it would take a vote of the full township board before it could happen.

Anyone interested in submitting a flag design can contact, Russ Turner, project chairman, at 455-9353.

Resident tells how to tap 'the force within you'

By SUSAN ROGERS

"May the force be with you."

So proclaimed the immensely popular film "Star Wars," which featured "the force" in a starring role. The force, defined as the energy generated from all living things, is gaining increasing interest among both researchers and common folk alike.

Don Wilson of Plymouth Township is teaching a new YMCA course dealing with the electric energy that flows through human beings. The author of a new book, "The Force in Your Life and How to Master—What is It and How to Master It," said the course, also called "The Force in Your Life," deals with how to utilize and master your own energy.

"It's what you could call a course for the times," said Wilson, who also teaches history at Taylor High School. "You can actually learn to conserve energy and generate more when you are low," he said. "There's an energy shortage in humans, too."

Wilson said that Dr. Leonard Ravitz, working with Dr. Harold Burr at Yale University Medical School in New Haven, Conn., proved the human body generates an electrical force and gives out charges that he measured with sensitive voltmeters.

"They did more than 500,000 tests on about 500 subjects," said Wilson. "They proved that when a person has a high electrical charge, he feels high. When the charge is low, it usually indicates the person is sick, diseased or on the verge on illness."

THESE DISCOVERIES aren't new, according to Wilson.

Dr. Webster Edgerly reached the same conclusion more than 100 years ago. "He actually worked out a system to master the electric forces of life and taught them to Sir William Gladstone, prime minister of England; Henry Ward Beecher, famed minister and orator; and Alexander Melville Graham, father of the inventor of the telephone," he said.

Wilson said Edgerly found that people could reach the peak of electric vitality by adopting certain living habits and eliminating those that drain away the electricity of life.

"It has been discovered that people waste tremendous amounts of energy every day," said Wilson. "They can lose it through abuses of the body, nerves or mind due to depression, anxiety or stress."

He indicated that a person sitting perfectly still uses enough energy to light a 100 watt bulb. A person's energy is actually measured in volts.

There is another reason the study of human energy is attracting more attention. Kirlian photography, a type of electric photography invented by two Russians in 1939, reveals an electric "glow" around living things.

"Some people call it an 'aura', and it emanates from people and changes according to the condition of the body, mind or emotions at the time the photo is taken," said Wilson.

He said the the International Kirlian Research Association, a group composed of scientists, doctors and medical researchers, has more evidence that an aura can tell about a person's physical condition—and is being used experimentally to tell doctors if a person has cancer.

"It may even be able to detect mental conditions such as schizophrenia," he said.

KIRLIAN PHOTOGRAPHY will be demonstrated and used somewhat during Wilson's course, which will meet 8-9 p.m. Mondays beginning Sept. 18, at West Middle School in Plymouth.

The cost is $12 for Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA members and $16 for non-members. Anyone aged 12 and up is welcome to join, said Wilson.

"It really works," he said about the force idea. "I feel 20 years younger than before I got interested in this."

Wilson said he is a great reader and collector of books. He came across a book called "Life Energy" several years ago, became interested and put the book aside. "Then I ran into the Kirlian group and picked it up again. I started more reading and studying and wrote the book."

The force book is Wilson's third published effort. He is currently working on an extensive study of the English language that he hopes will someday be used in school.

"I've categorized all words in the language into 1,500 word families," he said. "It enables you to know the history of a word; words die and are born all the time, like people."

He said the 10-volume set is "just one of the pots I've got cooking on the stove right now."

For more information on the course that will give participants the secret to living a more electrifying life, call the YMCA at 453-2904.

Contract woes continue at Schoolcraft

By TIM RICHARD

Classes resumed for more than 8,000 Schoolcraft College students today although two major unions are working without contracts.

The Faculty Forum, representing 160 fulltime instructors and 150-200 part-timers, had its previous two-year contract expire Friday, Aug. 25. Both Faculty Forum President William Nickels and college President C. Nelson Grote agree little progress has been made in writing a new pact.

The Schoolcraft College Association of Office Personnel, representing 62 clerks and secretaries, has been without a contract for 14 months. Two major issues—salaries and insurance—are yet to be resolved, said President Dorothy Irving.

Both unions agree one will not sign a contract until the other has settled, too. Both hint darkly at "pressure" or "other alternatives" but decline to say what those tactics might be.

THE COLLEGE, meanwhile, has taken steps to thwart one possible tactic. In the event of any unusual absenteeism, absent employees will be required to submit proof of illness or injury before they can collect sick pay.

There are complicated formulas for determining unusual absenteeism, but generally "these levels are three times normal absenteeism," said Gerald Munro, Schoolcraft's manager of personnel services.

Two years ago during prolonged faculty contract negotiations, one-third of the faculty called in sick on three succeeding days.

Educational unions have lacked substantial power to strike since the Crestwood School District court decisions of 1974-5.

A cloud over everything is the lack of a state appropriation for community colleges for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Gov. William Milliken vetoed a legislative bill for $120 million, not because of the money level but because it went too far in earmarking how local districts must spend money.

College officials say Milliken acted under intense pressure from the Michigan Education Association, which is the parent organization of both the Faculty Forum and the secretaries. The college says state teachers' union wants to bargain for the entire pot of college money, without having portions earmarked for specific purposes.

THE SECRETARIES said many terms of a new contract have been resolved but the board refuses to implement them. College officials say its standard operating procedure not to implement portions of a new contract until the entire package is agreed to.

Mrs. Irving of the secretaries union said, "The board has offered a three per cent increase for each year of a two-year contract," or less than half the cost of living increase.

The college replied that "The board has offered improvements in salary and fringe benefits that total 14 per cent of new money for a two-year contract. Again, the union refuses to recognize monies spent on fringe benefits or monies spent on 'step increases' (seniority) in their accounting methodology."

The secretaries and the board are unable to agree on a board proposal that employees pick up part of the increase in health, major medical and dental insurance benefits.

Although the college in January stopped automatic union dues checkoffs, Mrs. Irving said dues collections have held up, and only three members would accept the board's offer.

WHILE BOTH the faculty and college agree their negotiations are unusually slow, they differ on who is to blame.

Larry Chunovich, an state teachers' union consultant, told a recent membership meeting the board team seemed "to lack the authority to make decisions at the table." Forum team members said Munro and John Graves, college director of labor relations, appeared to have to check every step with President Grote, who is being labelled the "heavy" in union circles.

Nickels said that although the old contract expired Aug. 25, the college has yet to make an economic offer.

Grote said the Forum's own offer wasn't made until Aug. 22, or three days before the old contract expired. The college has hardly had time to analyze it, let alone make a counteroffer, before the contract expired.

Grote said the Forum's demands would cost an additional $1.4 million. The present budget is $11.6 million.

Grote said the college team has been unusually well-prepared for bargaining this year, adding: "There's not a single board member spoiling for a fight."

AMONG FORUM demands are:

- Maximum class size of 28 students generally and 23 for English composition.
- A "professional growth fund" of $150 per year per person for travel, professional commitments and memberships.
- Giving an instructor facing layoff due to insufficient enrollment priority in eligibility for sabbatical leave.
- Faculty participation in hiring new part-time faculty, formulation of departmental budgets and election of departmental chairpersons.
- A college-paid optical plan, increased life insurance, increased severance pay, an improvement factor in wages, an automatic cost-of-living alowance and increased incentives for early retirement, but no required retirement until age 70.

Booklet explains complaining

"It's your right to complain to a business when you have a consumer complaint; it's also your responsibility."

That's the message of a new brochure released by the Michigan Consumers Council. "How to Complain" offers consumers advice on how to effectively handle their own complaints.

"Consumers may feel helpless when faced with a product which won't work or a service which wasn't delivered," said Executive Director Linda Joy. "Often times they don't realize they have influence in the market place or, more impottantly, know how to use it.

"Many complaints can be solved simply by explainin! the situation to the store's owner or manager and mentioning how you would like the problem solved," she added. "Most businesses are eager to correct a problem if they're aware of it."

Not only does the brochure emphasize talking to the store's management, it also explains how to document a complaint and what steps are available if the business doesn't respond in a reasonable time.

In addition, "How to Complain" gives the addresses and telephone numbers of several federal and state agencies which handle various consumer complaints.

The council also has brochures on "How to Sue Someone in Small Claims Court," "What to Do When You Can't Pay Your Bills," and the "Consumer Protection Act."

For free copies of the brochures, write the Michigan Consumers Council, 414 Hollister Building, 106 W. Allegan, Lansing, Mi. 48933 or call (517) 373-0947.

For handicapped kids

Horseriding school is a big hit

The Plymouth Civitans have plans to conduct a horseriding school for the handicapped this fall, based on the success of a pilot effort conducted this summer.

The pilot program had four young students and lasted for weeks.

The school was held at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. H. Van Dyke on Joy Road beyond Gottfredson in Plymouth Township.

The instructor for the riding class was Jane Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Stuart of Plymouth. Ms. Stuart was active in horseriding activities as a member of the Plymouth Towne and Country 4-H Club.

THE IDEA OF riding for the handicapped is relatively new in this area, although therapeutic riding was established in England in 1953.

England now has 90 centers solely to teach horse riding to the handicapped and there are an additional 100 centers elsewhere in Europe.

In the United States, the first such school opened was the Cheff Center in 1970 at Augusta, Mich.

In 1973 the Michigan 4-H staff expressed an interest in riding schools for the handicapped and initiated a pilot program in Genesee County. The next year the State 4-H sponsored an instructor training session at Cheff Center which Ms. Stuart attended.

Because of a subsequent grant from Kellogg Foundation and Mott Foundation an extension director was hired through Michigan State University and there are now some 27 such programs in Michigan involving 2,000 handicapped persons and 3,000 volunteers.

The most recent center to be established here is the one here being undertaken by the Civitans in cooperation with Wayne County 4-H and the MSU Extension Service.

THE THERAPEUTIC RIDING program has as its purposes:

1. To use riding as therapy to provide needed exercise, improve balance, develop coordination and good posture for the handicapped.
2. To develop riding skills to the limit of the students ability.
3. To make riding as enjoyable as possible for the student to develop good attitudes, confidence and a sense of self-worth.

Because horses respond to the riders wishes the handicapped person receives a needed emotional stimulus not found in other programs. For many severely handicapped people riding a horse is performing as a normal person.

Under the program's guidelines, the instructor and all volunteers are trained and all horses used must be trained before the classes can begin. Special safety equipment is used and, as a result, there has not been one accident resulting in injury during the past 3 years at the 27 county programs in Michigan.

The Plymouth Civitan Club is seeking volunteers as well as financial contributions. Interested persons may contact Tim Doyle of the Civitans at 459-0022 or Ms. Stuart at 453-3465.

The Civitans, who have helped sponsor the Special Olympics for the handicapped each year, also hope to include horseriding competition in future Special Olympics.

The program being established here is for residents of Plymouth, Canton, and other communities in western Wayne County.

With the help of wooden stairs, mounting the horse is not too difficult for the handicapped. Vicki Sklarski waits for her riding lesson (top) as Jane Stuart prepares the safety belt. Vicki is ready for the big moment (bottom) as she is about to start her ride.

W-W hopes to have cure for sub woes

By JOSEPH SULLIVAN

Wayne-Westland school officials think they have an aspirin that will take away one of the district's biggest headaches—hiring and keeping substitute teachers.

This fall, for the first time in the district, 40 teachers will be offered a guaranteed minimum of 160 days work substituting for teachers who are ill or on leave.

The 160-day guarantee—only 23 days fewer that the 183 working days of a full-time teacher—offers the substitute core near full-time employment. To sweeten the pot, substitute teachers' pay will be increased from $28 to $35 a day.

Gary Matsche, the school board's executive director of the substitution guarantees will assure the district of 40 regular substitutes to cover the absences of the 1,150 full-time teachers. The plan calls for 15 secondary, 15 elementary and 10 special education teachers.

"(Substitute shortage) is a problem in virtually every school district in the area," said Matsche, who authored the new plan. "But we feel that with a guarantee of 160 days work and higher pay, we can attract some of those subs leaving the area looking for full-time employment."

The shortage of qualified substitute teachers was felt throughout the tri-county area last year. In Westland—despite a list of more than 200 registered substitutes—school officials were forced to conduct a mid-year search from the lists of December education graduates at several Michigan universities.

According to Matsche, the list was inadequate because many substitutes were registered in more than one district and not always available for Wayne-Westland assignments.

"There are two kinds of substitutes," explained Matsche. "A small number are retired teachers and those who quite to raise families, who are interested in subbing periodically. The majority are recent college graduates, who want to sub in a growing district where they have a chance to obtain full-time employment."

Current demographic shifts indicate the population is moving northward and the teachers are following. The new Westland proposal is expected to offset this teacher drain.

School closings, along with a projected decline of 1,007 students over last year's 23,061 enrollment, make full-time teaching prospects slimmer.

Five Wayne-Westland schools—Nankin Mills Junior High, and Jackson, Wilson, Cady and Tonquish elementary schools— closed in June because of shrinking enrollment. The district expects, however, to reassign those teachers to the same schools where their students are going.

The district can keep 40 substitutes busy nearly full-time, according to Matsche.

He anticipates no problem with filling the 160 day guarantee for the 40 substitutes. If necessary, the substitutes could be used in related activities such as helping with field trips.

"We will also keep the regular substitutes list," Matsche added. "Absences are not uniform and are generally higher during the winter months and flu season."

Substitutes on the regular list will receive the same pay as the 40 regular substitutes, but will not have any minimum work guarantee, Matsche said.

Robert Kowalczyk, executive director of the Wayne-Westland Education Association (WWEA), the teachers' union, expressed guarded approval for the new substitute plan.

"We're concerned with having a sub in the class and this program is worth a try in securing more subs," Kowalczyk said.

"The development of a cadre of subs is a good idea, but I don't know that 40 will be enough or that the pay will be enough to sway the teachers from entering private industry."

Another possible solution to the substitute shortage was raised at the spring convention of the Michigan Education Association (MEA) the state-wide union with which the WWEA is affiliated.

The MEA proposal calls for organizing a hiring hall for substitutes at the county level.

Kowalczyk termed the hiring hall proposal an internal organizing matter, which is still being discussed.

The hiring hall is being used in parts of Macomb County, where substitute shortages have been serious.

Arthur Elander, executive director of personel for Wayne-Westland schools, said the hiring hall may improve the situation for some districts, but there are no plans for the Wayne-Westland district to join a hiring pool at this time.

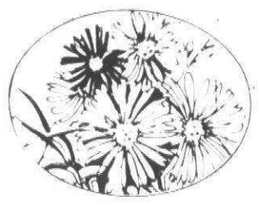

"We prefer to employ and develop our own substitute core," Elander said. "That way we can avoid the contracting of a third party."

Plans for a hiring hall in Wayne-Westland may go on the back burner as the WWEA takes a look-see approach to the new plan.

"I think the board's approach is a positive one," Kowalczyk said. "We hope it will be effective."

Happy head doll can be made from an apple

Witch Watch by GUNDELLA

When a friend of mine returned from a trip to the British Isles, he brought me a souvenir—a little witch doll. Her head was made from a dried apple.

American Seneca Indians made good luck happy head dolls out of dried apples more than 300 years ago. They believed these dolls had certain magical powers, and that when the moon was right, they would whisper prophecies.

Happy heads were carved and given to each newborn Seneca baby for luck.

Recently, at an art fair, I saw some of the most beautiful apple heads I have ever seen. They were intricately carved, even to teeth and eyebrows.

Then each head was coated with a preservative lacquer, so that they appeared to be made of ceramics.

I have also seen very expressive natural apple heads which were carved by fifth and sixth graders.

MAKING a happy head takes about five to six weeks, for it must dry between steps.

Apple dolls are their own people, because no matter how you choose to carve them, each one changes and takes on its own character as it dries. No two are ever alike.

To make a happy head, begin with a nice, firm red apple. The larger the better, because it will shrink considerably as it dries.

Peel the apple as smoothly as possible, so there are no ridges or bumps.

Then begin to shape a face. Carve eyes, nose, mouth, cheeks and chin.

Next, stick your knife into the apple and make simple cuts, short but deep in the back and sides of the head. This will allow it to dry faster.

Now, using a long steel needle, run a thread through the apple, top to bottom (not crosswise). String it like a bead, and hang it in a cool, well ventilated place to dry.

Check it every two or three days. Using a toothpick, clean out and define the eyes, nose and other features, so that they dry distinctly.

WHEN IT IS completely dry (about a month), you may leave it natural or varnish or lacquer it, if you like.

Then glue on hair to fit the face. You may use cornsilk, cotton, wool, or real hair, trimmed from a wig or your own last hair cut.

Bodies on which to mount your happy heads may be made from pinecones, wood, a small bottle, or any other substance, and dressed in any type of garb or costume.

Properly cared for, your happy head will last for years. Handle it with care, as you would any valuable piece of art. Dust it regularly with a soft brush, and avoid squeezing or fingering it.

Sharon and Baron, a pair of particularly polite shepherd-spaniel mixes, are six weeks old and raring to go—but where? That's where you come in. Memphis convention may affect Dems

It won't nominate a presidential candidate, but there's a Democratic "mini-convention" in Memphis in December that may produce a lot of political changes in Michigan.

"It will take the first steps to establish rules for the 1980 convention," said Bernard Lennon, chairman of the 18th Congressional District Democratic organization and one of the mini-convention delegates.

Jerry Raymond, Livonia councilman and 2d Congressional District replacement delegate, said it could lead to the end of Michigan's "open" presidential primary, which allows Republicans to cross over and support a George Wallace while Democrats can cross over to support a Ronald Reagan.

IT'S ONLY speculation until the Democratic National Committee sets the agenda, but Lennon and Raymond outlined these possibilities:

• A convention site could be discussed. "We'll push hard for Detroit. Detroit hasn't had a national convention as long as I can remember," said Lennon, "and Detroit is prepared. I'd like to do it (select Detroit) before the Republicans do." (The GOP state convention a day earlier resolved to seek its 1980 national convention for Detroit.)

• The party platform could come out of the mini-convention, said Raymond. A presidential nominating convention in an election year is a bad place and time to write a platform because it could cause the candidates problems.

• The convention could require that delegates to a national convention not be seated if they come from "open" primary states. Most states with presidential primaries require voters to register by party in order to prevent cross-overs—Michigan being an exception, Raymond said.

• The convention could ask that state presidential primaries be clustered together regionally, said Raymond. This would end the non-system whereby states two-thirds of the way across the country from each other have primaries the same day. It could also end New Hampshire's winter primary, which drags the election process out a full year.

• There could be "feelers" from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy about a presidential bid, Raymond speculated.

MICHIGAN WILL send 49 delegates to that mini-convention, according to Shirley Gray of the state central committee staff. Eleven will be elected at-large by the state central committee.

Thirty-eight were elected at last weekend's state convention in Lansing. Observer & Eccentric area delegates are:

17th District—Paul Massaron and Marie Weigold, both of Detroit, delegates; Allen J. Sipher of Farmington Hills and Susan Moiseev of Southfield, replacements.

Dems attack punch cards

A Democratic Party platform denouncing punch card voting was blunted Sunday when state convention delegates from the 17th Congressional District got the language softened.

"We recommend that the deficiencies in the punch card system of voting be eliminated," said the final platform, which was approved by a 3-1 margin.

Redford Township, Farmington Hills and Southfield delegates, all in the 17th District, argued it would be expensive to replace the punch card systems in their communities.

Instead, they sent platform committee members John Shepherd of Southfield and Gerri Feder of Detroit to the full committee meeting with instructions to get a modification. They won.

The original platform language, according to delegate Aldo Vagnozzi of Farmington Hills, called for complete elimination of punch card voting. It was put forward by State Sen. Jack Faxon of Detroit.

Detroit uses punch cards for absentee voting. Vagnozzi said there was merit to Faxon's arguments. Voters could inadvertently vote in both parties' primaries, thus invalidating their ballots, or perhaps over-vote—cast ballots for three candidates when only two votes are permitted. Elderly voters had problems reading small type on some punch cards.

Delegates from the Royal Oak area denounced punch cards, claiming hundreds of votes were "lost" in some races.

But punch card advocates said the system, in combination with computers, can spot missing votes far easier than voting machines, which can develop malfunctions.

In supreme court bid

Ferency finds few new friends

By TIM RICHARD

If Zolton Ferency again lost a Democratic State Supreme Court nomination to a man who had been a candidate for only one day, it wasn't the fault of suburban Democrats.

Four suburban congressional district delegations gave the party's happy radical majorities at Sunday's state convention.

Ferency, 56, a former party state chairman who split from the party in 1972 and rejoined the fold in 1976, lost the supreme court nomination to Saginaw Circuit Judge Gary McDonald.

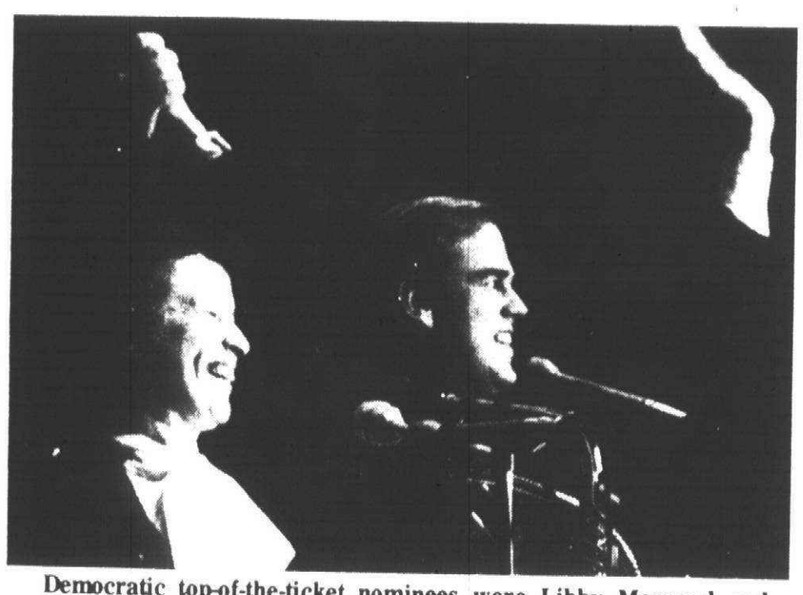

McDonald, 38, had been recruited by party leaders only a day earlier after State Sen. Anthony Derezinski of Muskegon bowed out.

Ferency had run fourth second in the Aug. 7 gubernatorial primary. Derezinski had run fourth in the U.S. senatorial primary.

"I THANK you for the trust you've put in me without knowing me," said McDonald as he accepted the nomination. He will be the running mate for the non-partisan high court of incumbent Justice G. Mennen Williams, nominated without opposition.

U.S. Rep. J. Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) told the convention it should prefer "a respected sitting jurist with impeccable credentials—someone with a confirmed judicial philosophy and record. Gary McDonald may not be a household name. Neither was Cardinal Luciani yesterday," he said, referring to the new Pope John Paul I.

Ferency, a professor of criminal justice at Michigan State University, had returned to the Democratic Party in 1976 after four years in the now-defunct Human Rights Party. He sought a supreme court nomination at the 1976 convention but lost.

McDonald defeated Ferency 1,776 to 1,102.

But Ferency carried the 2nd District (northwestern Wayne, Washtenaw and Monroe) 72-69; the 12th (part of Rochester and most of Macomb), 83-69; the 16th (downriver), 84-77; and the 17th (Redford, Farmington and Southfield), 91-65.

The 15th (western Wayne) preferred McDonald 118-43; the 18th backed McDonald 107-42. The 19th District (western Oakland) was unable to report its tally in time.

In general, labor-oriented districts backed the Saginaw judge; liberal suburban areas and those with univerisity orientations tended toward Ferency.

IT WAS A DAY when the suburbs of metropolitan Detroit had little impact on a Democratic convention in terms of candidates.

Gubernatorial nominee William Fitzgerald of Detroit picked Olivia (Libby) Maynard, the party's 42-year-old state vice-chairman from Midland, as his running mate for lieutenant governor. Ms. Maynard was nominated by acclamation.

Secretary of State Richard Austin was applauded into a try for a third term without opposition.

Sylvia Hart, a Detroit lawyer who lives in Southfield, placed in nomination the name of Attorney Gen. Frank Kelley for a seventh term, though the nomination was hardly in doubt. Mrs. Hart has had chairmanships in several Jefferson-Jackson-day dinners, the party's major annual fundraising event.

She praised Michigan as "the first state to establish a consumer protection division in the attorney general's office," adding: "Companies have received record fines and penalties" for violating consumer laws enforced by Kelley.

ANNETTA MILLER of Huntington Woods was unopposed for a second eight-year term on the State Board of Education.

Her running mate will be Malcolm G. Dade Jr., a former party deputy chairman and an administrative assistant to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

Dade's nominating speech was made by Philip H. Power, owner of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Power noted the eight-member board has no member from Detroit.

The 2nd and 12th districts gave slight edges to Michigan State University Prof. Gladys Beckwith over Dade. But the 15th, 17th, 18th and 19th districts gave strong support to the Detroiter, who won 1,638 to 1,077.

University of Michigan Regents Paul Brown and James Waters were nominated for new terms by acclamation.

For the Michigan State University board, Democrats tapped Carole Lick, a teacher in the Kalamazoo suburb of Portage, and Barbara Sawyer.

Wayne State University Governors Leon Atchison and Max Pincus were nominated without opposition.

Isbister gets position in Washington, D.C.

James D. Isbister, formerly of Plymouth, has been named associate director for management of the International Communication Agency (ICA) in Washington, D.C.

The U.S. Senate confirmed the nomination Aug. 18 following the conclusion of hearings by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Isbister, 41, was born in Mt. Clemens and grew up in Plymouth where his mother, Mrs. Russell Isbister, still lives. Russell Isbister was a longtime superintendent of schools here. Isbister Elementary was named after him.

Isbister came to the ICA from the Orkand Corporation—a consulting firm in Silver Spring, Maryland—where he had been vice-president responsible for general management and technical direction of corporate activities. HE is expected to begin work at the ICA within a few weeks.

The ICA is a new federal agency which replaces and carries on the activities of the U.S. Information Agency and the Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. ICA's mission is to promote mutual understanding between Americans and people of other countries.

Isbister graduated from University of Michigan and earned an M.A. in business and public administration from George Washington University.

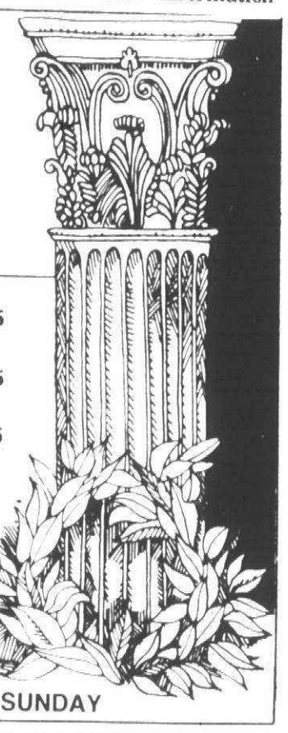

During his subsequent career in public service, Isbister worked in management at the National Institutes of Health, the Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW), the National Library of Medicine, and the National Institute of Mental Health. He also was a guest lecturer and scholar at the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Before joining Orkand Corp., Isbister served from 1974-77 as the administrator and chief executive of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration, an agency of HEW.

Would you pay $1,000 for $1,884?

We pay 8.00% annual interest on an Eight-Year Certificate Savings Account; no bank or savings association pays a higher annual rate of interest, and many places (possibly the one where you're saving) are not allowed to pay as much.

To earn this high interest—which is an effective annual rate of 8.24%—just deposit $1,000 or more and leave it in the account for the full eight years. When you do, your $1,000 will grow to $1,884.54.

As you can see in the chart, this account is just one of many certificate savings plans we offer, all designed to help you have more money than you started with. Any of these accounts—even more than one—can be opened in addition to your First Federal Regular Savings Account. In fact, our Regular Savings Account is how many people get the minimum deposit for the certificate account.

Type of Account	Minimum Amount	Annual Rate	Effective Annual Rate	How and When Paid
8-Year Certificate	$1,000	8.00%	8.24%	Paid and compounded quarterly.
6-Year Certificate	$1,000	7.75%	7.98%	Paid and compounded quarterly.
4-Year Certificate	$1,000	7.50%	7.71%	Paid and compounded quarterly.
2½-Year Certificate	$1,000	6.75%	6.92%	Paid and compounded quarterly.
One-Year Certificate	$1,000	6.50%	6.66%	Paid and compounded quarterly.
Six-Month (26-Week) Investment Certificate	$10,000	Interest rate is the 6-Month Treasury Bill rate (discount basis) in effect on the date the account is opened plus ¼% per annum.		Paid at maturity.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate savings accounts.

Come and talk with us about your savings goals. We'll help you plan how much to put where and for how long. We'll even explain how to get a check each month for the interest you earn. If you already have a regular savings account or a maturing certificate somewhere else, just bring your passbook with you and we'll have the funds transferred to First Federal. You'll find it pays to do that.

We know what money is for.

Meetings to continue in Plymouth

The meetings of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will continue to be held in the central administration building at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

In recent years the school board met at the central office during the summer months when attendance by the public was lighter, and then would switch regular meeting places to Plymouth Canton High School beginning in the fall.

The administration had recommended that meetings be switched to the Canton High Little Theatre beginning Sept. 11, but the board voted to 5-2 not to switch. Voting to switch were Tom Yack and Carol Davis.

TRUSTEES EXPRESSED a preference for the central office site because they were physically located closer to the audience and to each other than in the Little Theatre.

In the Little Theatre the board is seated behind a long table on the stage, with the audience in the theater seats. Another consideration was that the student radio station (WSDP) is set up to broadcast school board meetings from Canton High.

Members of the audience who regularly attend board meetings said Monday night there was little difference between the two meeting places. "I like meeting here (central office) because we are closer to the board and can hear better, but the seats are more comfortable in the Little Theatre," commented Loretta Olson.

The room used in the central office has a seating capacity of about 50 persons, and most meetings don't draw more than 40 spectators.

"If we get a large crowd we'll just have to move to another site—probably East, Central or West middle schools," commented Supt. John M. Hoben. "But we can make contingency plans."

The board also learned that WSDP could broadcast meetings from the central office with a telephone hook-up installation which would only cost about $50.

Stephen Harper, trustee, commented it was difficult to follow activity at the board table in the Little Theatre where trustees were spread further apart.

Elaine Kirchgatter, trustee, added that administrative records were kept in the central office and this aided the decision-making process—sometimes allowing a decision to be made two weeks earlier than if meetings were in Canton High.

And so the Sept. 11 meeting, and all subsequent meetings will be held in the upstairs conference room of the central administration building.

Pursell foe loses write-in ballot bid

Earl Greene, Ann Arbor city councilman, lost a key battle Tuesday night in his campaign to get on the Nov. 7 ballot for as the Democratic nominee in the 2d Congressional District race.

The state Board of Canvassers, meeting in Lansing, refused to certify Greene's write-in votes cast in the Aug. 8 primary, thereby keeping his name off the printed Nov. 7 ballots.

The board's unanimous decision, made after a closed door caucus, was reported by Jan Cook, Greene's press secretary who said that the Democrat is planning to continue his battle for a ballot spot in the courts.

Ms. Cook said that an attorney will be picked soon.

The board action was a setback for Greene, whose spokesman said he received 600 to 1,000 write-in votes, mostly from Washtenaw County.

The 2d District includes Livonia and Plymouth plus most of Washtenaw and Monroe Counties.

Ms. Cook said Greene was disappointed in the canvassing board's decision since the candidate earlier received a favorable legal opinion from Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley the week before the primary.

Kelley said that a write-in candidate is required only to get only a minimum of 10 votes and a majority of those write-in votes in a primary to qualify for the general election.

Before the Kelley opinion, Greene would have been forced to receive from 6,000 to 7,000 write-in votes in the parimary, based on an interpretation of the state election law.

Greene felt that the Kelley opinion, which has the force of law unless overruled by a court, made it easier for him to get on the printed Nov. 7 ballot.

The state canvassing board action was the second setback for the Democrat in the congressional campaign. He filed nominating petitions by the June 6 deadline but election officials ruled that there were procedural flaws and that Greene failed to file the required number of valid petitions.

MS. COOK told The Observer that Greene, a Willow Run High School music teacher, continues to plan an active campaign while the legal battle is initiated for the ballot designation.

EMERY DANIELS

Another football season is about to begin, but this fall it will be without Lem Barney and Charlie Sanders.

Barney ended his 11-year career with the Detroit Lions by noting that he joined the Lions in 1967 in the midst of a rebuilding program with youth coming in and veterans leaving. Now he's leaving under the same conditions, another rebuilding program—this one orchestrated by Monte Clark.

It doesn't seem like 11 years ago when Barney, Sanders and others joined the Lions youth movement which never did produce anything but younger players who got older as the years passed.

I had lost interest in professional football about that time. At least my interest wasn't as intent as it had been in the mid-1950s when another group of veterans was moving out.

MY INTEREST IN the Lions started when Bobby Layne was quarterback under Buddy Parker's regime.

Bobby was a team leader, as Joe Schmidt was in his role as middle linebacker on defense. More than that, Bobby Layne was one of the most exciting quarterbacks the Lions have ever had.

Fullback Leon Hart was always good to plug through the middle of the line for two or three yards. If memory serves me right, Hart came out of Notre Dame as a tight end and was converted to fullback. He played alongside Doak Walker.

While Layne was still leading the team, Parker drafted halfback Howard "Hopalong" Cassidy out of Ohio State to scamper around the backfield. Then he brought in John Henry Johnson from the San Francisco 49ers and Dick "Night Train" Lane from the St. Louis Cardinals to add more excitement.

Charlie Ane played center, or rather he held his position on the line and dared anyone to move him. I also remember Lou Creekmur as being a pretty good lineman, but can't remember whether he played offense or defense.

I do remember, however, the day when Layne was quarterbacking against the rival Chicago Bears. Bobby had dropped back for a pass and had just let the ball go to one of his favorite receivers—either Jim Doran or Doren Dibble. Defensive end Ed Meadows came sweeping in from the left side and slammed Bobby to the ground. That late sack ended Layne's career, and I hated Meadows for years afterwards.

WHEN BOBBY LEFT the game, the Lions brought in Tobin Rote, a journeyman quarterback whom I believe they had picked up from Green Bay because Layne was aging. (But Tobin was up in years also).

Rote was the brother of Kyle Rote—then quarterback for the New York Giants and now father of Kyle Rote Jr. who's quite a soccer player for the Dallas Tornado team.

The remarkable thing about Tobin Rote was his long passes. Rote could throw the ball much further than Layne ever could. The only problem was there seldom was anyone far enough downfield to catch his passes. At the time, I throught it was because Doran and Dibble had slown down with age and Rote would fare better when they brought in some young kids who could run faster.

So Terry Barr came in from University of Michigan and Terry couldn't catch Rote's passes neither.

BESIDES BOBBY LAYNE my other favorite player then was Yale Lary who played defensive safety alongside Jack Christensen.

Jim Martin did the kickoffs and field goals (after Doak Walker fell victim of the youth movement) and played on the defensive line. Martin was still kicking when Wayne Walker came along to replace Schmidt and Alex Karras stepped out of the cornfields of Iowa. Until the Lions become a winner again, there can be a lot of arguments about which was the best team in recent years. But for me, one of the most exciting teams were those led by Bobby Layne. Without Layne, the Lions are just another football team—rebuilding, regrouping, doing anything and everything, hoping to become a winner but never making it. If you can't win, the next best thing is to lose with excitement.

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS

The International Pain Control Institute is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress paterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

This is a public service program for participating volunteers. The doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Founders' graves in disrepair

Abandoned cemetery was started by pioneer

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
by
Sam Hudson

(Part II)

The abandoned cemetery on North Territorial Road in Plymouth Township was established in 1832 by one of Plymouth's earliest settlers—John Tibbits.

Tibbits arrived here in the spring of 1825, several months after the arrival of the first settlers—William and Allen Tibbits.

JOHN TIBBITS

established his farm on North Territorial Road, just west of Beck.

The first tax roll taken in Plymouth Township in 1827 shows that Tibbits owned 428 acres. His taxes that year were $4.04. Unitl recently, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Garber had their residence on part of the old Tibbits' property. It is now a real estate development.

Tibbits' barn was the place where the first meeting of Plymouth Township was held and the name Plymouth adopted in 1827. At the meeting, Tibbits was elected township clerk. For the remainder of his life he was active in township affairs—Poor Director from 1830-47, school inspector 1848-52, and township supervisor from 1853-56.

Tibbits is mentioned in a memoir of the pioneer days written by A.B. Markham in 1877. Markham, one of the first to arrive in the area, included a list of "ci"firsts" in his recollections. He noted Tibbits owned the first pony brought to the Plymouth area, and that a daughter of the Tibbits was the second girl married in Plymouth. With engaging insight, Markham goes on to say, "these items may appear to be trifles, but they are pioneer history."

THE GRAVESTONES OF Mr. and Mrs. John Tibbits were among those that Dr. Robert Bowen found and recorded when he visited the cemetery in 1956 as a young student.

Mrs. Tibbits died Oct. 3, 1856, at age 73. She was born in 1783, the year the treaty ending the Revolutionary War was signed with Britain.

John Tibbits, who was born the same year as his wife, died Aug. 27, 1860, at age 77—six months before the Civil War began.

The Tibbits were not the first to be buried in the cemetery they established. Beginning in 1839, at least eight burials took place at the site before Mrs. Tibbits was buried there. Their names, and the others Dr. Bowen recorded, all will be published in Part III of this article.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hathaway Purdy—the first wife of another township supervisor—was among those buried in the old cemetery. Born in 1789, she died Oct. 13, 1840, at age 51. Her husband, James Purdy, served as school trustee in 182?9, ?poor director in 1830, townshi?P suPeryisor in 19?831, ?nd ?ssessor in 1837.

The Purdys were married in 1806 and first settled on a farm in Romulus. Purdy sold that farm and moved to a farm in Plymouth in 1828, four years after the first settlers arrived. He was among those instrumental in organizing the Presbyterian Church in Plymouth. He and Ira Bronson were named first elders of the church.

A tribute to Elizabeth Hathaway Purdy is contained in a manuscript written by her brother-in-law in 1853. He writes that her death was a great loss, "for a better woman as a companion, a housekeeper, a mother and kind neighbor could hardly be found."

THE SHEARER GRAVESTONES which Dr. Bowen found belonged to the wife and daughter of State Senator Jonathan Shearer, who lived on a farm not far from the cemetery.

Also represented by a stone in the cemetery was Shearer's wife, Christina Duvall, a native of Newport, Rhode Island. Dr. Bowen was not able to read details of her birth and death. Mrs. Shearer, of French descent, was a teacher at one of Plymouth's earliest schools—the Miller District. A log school house, it was located on the Marcus Miller farm on North Territorial Road.

The Shearers were married in 1822 in Phelps, N.Y. They arrived in Plymouth in 1836, 11 years after the community was founded. They came here from Coleraine, Mass. Shearer, born Aug. 23, 1796, was 40 when he settled in Plymouth Township.

When Plymouth's first railroad line was built in 1871, it went through a hill north of the cemetery which an old photo identifies as Shearer's Cut. A street in the township, running east off Sheldon Road opposite the Western Electric plant, was named Shearer Drive. (It disappeared recently when the Jeffries Freeway was under construction).

Shearer lost no time in getting established. The year after he arrived here he was elected supervisor of Plymouth Township, a position he also held in 1847 and 1848. From 1838 to 1841 he was chairman of the Wayne County Commission.

(Part III will continue the story of Senator Shearer, and will include a complete list of the names onthe 21 gravestones)

How else would a four-year-old explain the results of her mommy's Observer & Eccentric classified ad?

Daddy's pretty glad, though, because mommy promised him she'd use the money to buy him a new chair to match her living room furniture. But daddy didn't expect results so soon!

Seek federal sewer $$

Editor:

At the special meeting held at the Plymouth Township Hall August 16 David Sprow of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources stated that federal funds are available for the construction of sanitary sewers where there is a "demonstrated need" (health hazard, etc.) which has been in existence since before 1972.

In view of the results of the two sewer referendums, combined with the evidently muddled status of the sewer problem in the courts we, as concerned citizens, believe the elected officials of Plymouth Township should proceed without delay to initiate whatever procedure is needed to obtain such federal — and perhaps state — funds so that the sewer extensions to serve Plymouth Hills subdivision and the problem area in Lake Pointe can be funded and constructed as soon as possible.

Obviously, the use of such available government funds would significantly reduce both the immediate cost to the township residents and the size of possible future bond issues needed to finance further sewer construction projects.

Farm committee is anti-farmland?

Editor:

Recently the Canton Township Board of Trustees appointed a committee to educate the people in Canton Township about a controversial farmland retention program, namely township purchase of developmental rights from landowners in the western sections of the township. Educating the public is essential to the success of any new program.

But I pray that Canton residents become aware of the membership of this committee. Find out what interests these people have and you'll know how impartial they will be when educating the public. One is a skeptic to say the least and the other four all have spoken openly against the plan to preserve farmland.

I worked on the land use study committee and taped every meeting. I sincerely hope that when the new administration and trustees take office in November, they immediately disband this group of anti-farmland people. There is no way these people could be impartial or objective when they live on the land proposed for farmland preservation.

I am as prejudiced for preserving farmland as these committee members are opposed to the whole concept. I was not asked to serve on this committee. No one personally involved in the issue should have been on the committee. The people in Canton deserve to know the pros and cons and I believe the newspaper is the only source that will attempt to be impartial.

Editor:

I would like to impose on the Observer one more time to express my appreciation to all of my friends for their thoughtful help and encouragement during the recent primary election. And I would especially like to thank the people in Lake Pointe for their great support. All of these things combined made it well worth the effort.

We in Plymouth Township have been blessed with one of the better forms of government—a government which has truly been by the people and for the people. We can only hope the new board will continue that tradition.

That fast?

Crooks and careless drivers will have to be faster than greased lightning to stay ahead of the Plymouth Police. Or rather to stay ahead of the department's new LEIN machine. The Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN) is an Orwellian computer which gives police access to all kinds of information about you. "We can have a person's complete criminal or driving history in a matter of seconds," said Chief Tim Ford. "Really about one-tenth the time it used to take us." Not only can the LEIN lay bare your past life, it can also tell the police how to best deploy squad cars and which intersections have the most accidents. The computer in the city hall is linked directly to the Michigan State Police computer in Lansing. And through that computer, the Plymouth LEIN "can talk to any computer in the United States."

GOP war horse unsaddled in state school board race

By TIM RICHARD

"It's too bad. It shouldn't have happened to Jim that way," said a long-time suburban Republican, shaking his head.

He referred to the beating that former two-term State Board of Education member James F. O'Neil of Livonia took from newcomer Silverenia Q. Kanoyton (sounds like "annointin' ") at last weekend's GOP state convention in Detroit.

After losing for the state board in 1974 and '76, O'Neil launched a third bid for a comeback.

What the Republican friend of O'Neil's said "shouldn't have happened" was that top party leaders waited until O'Neil had begun campaigning to come up with Ms. Kanoyton, 30, a black, to oppose him.

MS. KANOYTON'S campaign was managed by her immediate boss, former State Sen. William Ballenger, who now heads the state's department of licensing and regulation.

It was aided by "honorary co-chairpersons" Peter Fletcher Jr. and Ranny Riecker, who happen to be Michigan's Republican National Committee members.

In Oakland County, her drive was pushed by Florence (Jo) Saltzman of Franklin, O'Neil's running mate for the state board in both '74 and '76.

While Mrs. Saltzman, whose husband Art is 19th District GOP chairman, had nothing derogatory to say about O'Neil, other party sources said there was bad blood between her and O'Neil about how the '76 campaign was run.

Moreover, O'Neil, while serving on the state board (1967-74), had been in Washington testifying against cross-district school busing and had missed a board vote on a hot Royal Oak school boundary case. O'Neil frankly told an Oakland County delegation from the 18th Congressional District he thought he had his priorities right. The 18th district disagreed, supporting Ms. Kanoyton 48-24 on the first ballot.

A BITTER O'Neil the next day sent a two-page statement to reporters covering the Democratic State Convention in Lansing denouncing Gov. William Milliken for "bossism of the worst kind."

O'Neil accused Milliken of cutting a deal with the "teachers' union family in which Milliken has agreed to give control of education to the teachers. Ms. Kanoyton is a former teacher, and there are presently six other educators or former educators on the eight-member state board." In return, he said, Milliken expects support for his gubernatorial race and his national political ambitions.

O'Neil is a Ford Motor Co. administrator.

Besides being a savage attack on Milliken, it marked the first time a prominent Michigan Republican had said for publication that Milliken may be entertaining national ambitions.

Mrs. Saltzman, speaking to GOP delegates, endorsed incumbent board member Barbara DuMouchelle, who received the first nomination without opposition, and Ms. Kanoyton. Mrs. Saltzman concentrated on Ms. Kanoyton's quick mind, ability as a social sciences teacher and workshop developer, and state experience.

MS. KANOYTON beat O'Neil on the second ballot, 811-696.

In suburbia, O'Neil led 78-5 in his home 2d Congressional District and 41-9 in the 15th, covering western Wayne County.

Ms. Kanoyton carried the 12th (Macomb and a portion of Oakland), 46-27; the 17th (Redford, Southfield, Farmington), 40-31; the 18th (eastern Oakland), 45-27; and the 19th (western Oakland), 66-35.

In predominantly black districts, they split, O'Neil carrying the 1st by 13-0 and Ms. Kanoyton the 13th, 9-3.

The state board battle was the hottest race the Republicans had that afternoon, but it wasn't the only one.

SUBURBAN Republicans split all over the map on two battles for two Michigan State University trustee nominations.

Paul V. Gadola, Flint attorney and trustee of Mott Community College, won the first nomination, defeating Mary Sharp of East Lansing and Douglas Dent, a Northville High School teacher.

Gadola was nominated by Oakland County GOP Chairman Art Elliott of Troy. Dent was nominated by State Rep. Mel Larsen of Oxford, who earlier won the GOP nomination for secretary of state, and got a supporting speech from State Sen. R. Robert Geake of Northville.

The vote was 1,080 for Gadola, 397 for Mrs. Sharp and 38 for Dent.

The second nomination went to Mrs. Sharp, who defeated Thomas Klunzinger, Robert W. McKay and J. Bernard Demido.

Klunzinger's candidacy got a seconding speech from State Rep. Jack Kirksey of Livonia. Klunzinger is now on the Republican staff in the State House of Representatives and he was the GOP nominee for Congress is the 17th District in 1970.

He gained fame of a sort when he told the world in 1970 that Detroit's voter registration system was defective, illustrating it by registering to vote three times in the same election. Instead of making a case against the Detroit city clerk's office, however, he was nearly charged with vote fraud. There was no prosecution, because an embarrassed clerk's office destroyed his two invalid registrations.

Retiring State Sen. Gilbert Bursley of Ann Arbor and Detroit attorney John R. Axe were nominated without opposition to the University of Michigan Board of Regents.

Harper Woods Councilman James R. Haley and Laura Reyes Kopack, a leader in GOP Hispanic and ethnic groups, were nominated to the Wayne State University Board of Governors.

James F. O'Neil, state board of education candidate, was on the defensive as he spoke to this 18th Congressional District delegation at the GOP state convention. O'Neil lost the district and the nomination. (staff photo)

MSU vows help

Any student who needs financial aid to go to Michigan State University can get some form of assistance, says Henry Dykema, director of MSU's financial aids office.

"Once a student has been accepted by the university and has filed a financial aid form," Dykema says, "we can put together a financial aid package that can help defray part of the cost of going to college."

A package consists of a combination of grants, scholarships, loans and work-study, he says.

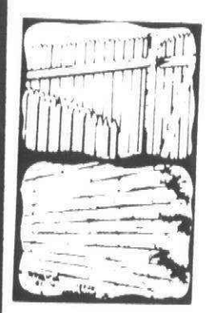

"Most of our students opt to work 10 to 12 hours a week through our work-study program," Dykema adds.

College work-study, financed through funds issued by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), places students in jobs on and off campus. The financial aids office pays 80 per cent of the student's wages and the rest is paid by the campus department or off-campus organization.

"Students can be placed in any department on campus from the computer center to the physical plant facilities," Dykema explains.

Students also may apply for either the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL) or the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) programs.

GOP offers rising star, in effort to unseat Austin

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

For months, state Rep. Mel Larsen (R-Oxford) has been straining to take on Democratic Secretary of State Richard Austin one on one.

Michigan Republicans made it official last weekend, naming the rising Oakland County Republican star their candidate by acclamation.

Larsen was off and running even before his comrades cloaked him with the nomination at the state convention in Detroit. Even before Republicans met in district caucuses, "Elect Michigan's Mel Larsen Secretary of State" signs dotted metropolitan freeways.

It didn't take Larsen long to fire the opening salvo of his official campaign.

"Speaking before the Michigan AFL-CIO convention in Dearborn, Dick Austin said as long as he's secretary of state, voter registration will be his highest priority," Larsen said.

"If Mel Larsen is elected secretary of state, he'll give the saving of lives—especially teenage lives—on the highways of Michigan the highest priority."

TRAFFIC SAFETY has been long overlooked, Larsen contends. Since 1972, he said, the number of teen fatalities has doubled and the number of accidents has increased significantly.

"We have to have an overall policy to reduce the fatalities, the accidents and save Michigan's drivers money," he says.

"We have got to take a look at driver education. There has to be greater attention to programs. There has to be work on skills and attitude."

The secretary of state, Larsen said, is in the best position to effectuate change. The secretary of state chairs a special safety commission whose membership is drawn from the office of education, the highway commission and the state police.

HIS EMPHASIS ON traffic safety and a no-nonsense acceptance speech struck a responsive chord with his supporters. Those supporters—black, white, young, old, metro Detroiters and outstaters—rallied and demonstrated for 15 minutes, giving an orderly Republican State Convention its only hoopla.

Larsen, 41, with touches of gray hair lending to an already distinguished appearance, is regarded as one of the party's most charismatic figures. He and Silverinia Q. Kanoyton, who won a nomination for the State Board of Education, captured the hearts of delegates.

A former principal and football coach at Pontiac Catholic High School, Larsen has been able to excite and involve newly-enfranchised voters and pre-voting teens.

"He's very open and sincere," said 18-year-old Carol Ann Michel of Birmingham, explaining her support for Larsen. "Whatever he says you can take in full belief. He doesn't beat around the bush like most politicians do."

"His sincerity comes through in whatever he's doing," said Republican delegate Jo Anne Van Tassel, an Orion Township trustee who delivered one of Larsen's seconding speeches.

"He just has unusual rapport with people," she said.

SOME PEOPLE have questioned his decision to scrap with the established Dick Austin. Some have tabbed him a sacrificial lamb.

Larsen's supporters, however, argue he is hardly a lamb and is anything but sacrificial.

"Dick Austin can be beaten," Larsen says confidently. "It's going to take organization, effort and ability to provide alternative."

Of his decision to tangle with Austin, he said, "I wanted to see if I can be a statewide candidate. This is an opportunity for me to put it together for myself."

Larsen's candidacy rounds out the top of the statewide ticket. The top spots on the slate were long reserved for incumbents Gov. William Milliken and U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin, as well as former Lt. Gov. James Brickley, who was brought back to the political arena after serving as president of Eastern Michigan University.

If there is a "sacrificial lamb," Republicans quietly concede it is attorney general candidate Steve Barnsdorfer of Grand Rapids. Barnsdorfer, Milliken's choice to balance the ticket, is chairman of the state civil service commission and is a past State Bar Association president.

Barnsdorfer will square off against 17-year incumbent Frank Kelley.

Detroit Piston head coach Dick Vitale (foreground) was the center of attention last week at an Observer & Eccentric advertising seminar. The vibrant, first-year basketball coach spoke to Eccentric sports reporters afterwards. From left to right, John Bozzo, sports editor for the West Bloomfield and Birmingham papers, Marty Budner, sports editor for the Rochester and Troy papers, and writers Greg Zott and Brad Emons listen while Vitale answers a few questions. Never at a loss for words, the dynamic coach talked about his future in the NBA.

Vibrant Vitale

Luncheon speaker conquers world with enthusiastic approach to job

By JOHN BOZZO

Everyone has heard Dick Vitale the fiery Detroit Piston basketball coach.

Few people know Dick Vitale the business luncheon speaker.

Off-court, Vitale displays the same hard-driving personality that is evident during a game.

At least that's the way he appeared as he spoke to the Observer & Eccentric advertising sales staff at a recent seminar at the Michigan Inn in Southfield.

O&E advertising director George Hagen arranged for Vitale's luncheon appearance at the seminar.

"I thought it would be interesting to have the sales staff of the paper listen to a guy who brought the third-rate University of Detroit basketball team to a number one position. The uphill climb he faced is similar to situations we face in sales," Hagen said.

Vitale the business speaker opened his talk with a few jokes. He kidded Hagen for being nervous about the seminar.

"If you're not nervous, why did I see you walking out of the women's rest room?" Vitale quipped.

Then he chided the Eccentric sports staff.

"I didn't know you guys were going to be taking notes," Vitale said. "I didn't even know you guys could write; I get misquoted so often. By the way Bozzo, I need more publicity and front page photos in your newspaper. Nobody in West Bloomfield knows I'm a celebrity."

VITALE'S MAIN message to the advertising staff was to maintain a positive attitude.

"Talk positive about what you have to offer," Vitale said. "You can find something positive in anything. Don't let anyone from outside tear that positive down. Believe in yourself and what you're saying.

"I can't guarantee the Pistons will win a championship," Vitale said, "but I can guarantee an honest effort. Take a long look in the mirror. No matter what your boss says, no matter what anyone says, tell yourself, 'I'm going to do my best.' You can con everyone, but you can't con the mirror."

An all-American is just an ordinary American with an extraordinary desire to achieve, Vitale said.

Selling advertising, Vitale said, is comparable to his trying to sell a young basketball player on attending the University of Detroit.

"People told me I couldn't recruit the good basketball player here," Vitale said. "People said you have no league affiliation, no national television. I told them the University of Detroit is a great school. Kids don't go to school to live on a campus with a lot of trees.

"Kids who play at the University of Detroit get exposure in the Detroit media," Vitale said. "When they go out for a job, people have seen their names before. They're more than just a stranger."

VITALE REPORTS that his health is excellent. Last year when he resigned from the University of Detroit head coaching duties for health reasons he was afraid of having stomach cancer. Two years ago he was in the intensive care unit of a hospital for a similar stomach problem.

The problem turned out to be a blood vessel which burst and is now healed, Vitale said.

He ended by stressing that people should display the four Ds—desire, dedication, discipline and determination in every endeavor.

"Remember," Vitale said, "that genius is one per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration."

From promotions to Pistons, Vitale speaks out

Dick Vitale.

Six years ago, the enthusiastic New Jerseyite promised to pilot the University of Detroit basketball program to national prominence. He did.

Now, Vitale, who is probably one of the most well-known figures on the metropolitan Detroit sports scene, threatens to rebuild the Detroit Pistons in the same manner as he did U-D.

Vitale and the Pistons have a new home in the Pontiac Silverdome, and the struggling franchise will attempt to create a new breed of suburban followers. Vitale is trying to create a new image.

In the following interview which he granted to a team of Observer & Eccentric sports writers, Vitale talks about new marketing adventures, former U-D players, playing in the Silverdome and many other topics.

You continually talk about marketing, and what the Pistons are trying to do to sell their program in Pontiac. You said before that you added an entire advertising department. What about that?

When we started out there, they (the Pistons) never had full-time marketing people. But in a matter of three months we added two people—Tom Wilson and Harry Hutt to head our marketing program. Tom is director of sales, and Harry is director of promotion. And underneath them they have 10 young college people who are working full-time. They went out to the corporate people and they have sold the Pistons on the basis that we're going to be an exciting product in terms of making it more than just a basketball game. We're going to have high school games as preliminary games, and I'm sure a number of areas out here are going to be involved. We are just now in the process of signing a contract with the greatest ballhandler in the world. We talked to the man and we are close to signing with "Crazy" George. He may sign an exclusive contract and work with the Pistons for eight months doing halftime shows, going out to shopping centers and marketing malls. The guy is incredible.

Then we're going to do other things which we think are great in marketing, yet we're helping other causes. We formed a Pistons softball team where we have played throughout the entire Detroit metropolitan area. For example, up in Ypsilanti we played for muscular dystrophy against a celebrity team. Bob Lanier, myself, John Long, Ben Poquette and our office staff, our owners—Bill Davidson and Oscar Feldman. We played, and I threw basketballs up into the stands and created all kinds of excitement. We're reaching out to the people. I've always been a people guy.

What is your relationship with Bill Davidson?

A golden opportunity created by Bill Davidson helped Dick Vitale get where he's at today. I have great respect for him. I'll tell you, I've been working for three months with the man, and after working with him, and having him as he's been doing . . .conducting our weekly meetings the way he has conducted them, I have found out why this man is a business tycoon. He is a giant in the business world because of his tremendous expertise. We have implemented so many ideas that just excite people. You know, I'd be a liar if I told you we are a great basketball team. I'd be a liar if I told you we are a championship quality team. We're not. But from seven to 11, we got a long way to go. But why can't we do what the Red Wings did? Why can't we, as they did, play an aggressive game and excite everybody? They were a little bit less than .500, but yet they got in the playoffs and they turned this whole place upside down because of two words—aggressive hockey. Well, we're taking the theme, "honest effort." If you give people an honest effort, hey, they don't care what a guy makes. When Niel Diamond goes to perform at Pine Knob, he gives an honest effort. You don't care about the $15 you spent on a ticket. You don't care what he makes because you're entertained. Our whole theory is if we give an honest effort to the fans in the metro Detroit area—and they're beautiful people—they are going to respond. And, dammit, I'm a people guy. I get the greatest thrill of my life signing autographs, shirts, extending myself to little kids, because I know what it was like.

'There's no greater substitute than dealing with people who have character. Character to me represents perseverance, respect, intelligence, desire and enthusiasm. If they (the players) don't have all the things I talk about, then I think we made a mistake in the 11 players we have wearing our uniform.'
–Dick Vitale

What about your background. You have never played in the National Basketball Association (NBA), but yet you're one of 22 professional coaches. Will the fact that you haven't played professionally hinder you or the players?

Here's a great quote for you. I say this to that question: "Does a doctor that performs heart surgery have to have a heart attack?" Does he? Well, same with a coach. Do I have to play the game in the NBA to motivate people. . .to get people to function as a team? No, the answer is absolutely no. I'm proud to be there.

What about Dave Bing? Would he still have a place on the Detroit Piston roster?

I can tell you right now, I have great respect for Dave Bing. He's a class person, and he represents all the qualities I talk about. But yet, the man's pushing 35 years of age, and with the 11-man roster being what it is, it would mean I would have to cut a young kid, and I would probably prefer now in the revitalizing stage—or restructuring stage—we're going with the youth instead of someone who should be with a contender. David Bing should be with a contender.

If you could put together a "dream team" with all the qualities that you would want, what would those qualities be?

I think there's no greater substitute than dealing with people who have a great character. Character to me represents perseverence, respect, intelligence, desire and enthusiasm. If they (the players) don't have all the things I talk about—if that's the case—then I think we made a mistake in the 11 players wearing our uniform. I'll tell you something. As long as I'm coach, I'm going to go out and find a complement of 11 guys that know more and have respect and care for people. If they don't care for people, if they don't believe that the fan is paying their salary, if they don't believe that they have to contribute something to the team, then they've made a mistake. That's why I love Bob Lanier. Bob Lanier did 51 clinics this summer. Now some guys can say he did that and he got a few dollars here and there, but Bob Lanier doesn't do that for money. Bob Lanier doesn't need money. Bob Lanier is doing that because he genuinely loves people. Bob Lanier is one of the most misrepresented athletes in America. Because he's 6-11, he comes out looking tough, 265, and guys get immediately intimidated. Bob Lanier is a soft teddy bear. He is a gentle, gentle man. I'm a great admirer of his because he represents what I want on my team.

Does Bill Walton have those qualities?

Bill Walton is a great player. I don't know Bill Walton except from what I read in the newspapers. We contacted him because we thought we owed it to the fans to try and get a player like him. I'm not going to judge anyone by what I read in the newspapers, or hear and see in the media. If I did that, Eric Money would not have a chance with me. One thing about Bill Walton—he comes to play. When I talked to Portland about compensation they mentioned Bob Lanier plus. We were out of the picture at that point. I don't know whether Bill Walton would just take off some day and groove on the trees and grass somewhere.

Some coaches use fear to motivate players. What kind of motivator will Dick Vitale be?

I'm going to be Dick Vitale. If I win, everyone will say my methods are the greatest. If I lose, I can see the headlines now: "Coach Vitale's college rah-rah tactics fail." But you know something, you're not going to get a chance to write that story. At the the rookie camp we had hungry people, I think people found that our camp was very disciplined. In veterans' camp—will they respond? Well, I'll tell you one thing: I'm not going to have crazy rules. I'm going to treat them like men. I looked over the list from last year. They had a $5 fine for this and $20 for that. We'll have fines if they don't do the things we want them to, but it will be big money. I'm not going to run around with a clipboard and keep track of every little thing. That's a pain to them and to me. I'm dealing with men. I give them respect and they give me respect.

Is there anyone on the team who is not tradeable?

Basically, everyone is tradeable. But, I'm not going to give up a player like Eric Money for a Volkswagen. Eric Money is a Mercedes. The young kids will push anyone on the squad. If we just keep our top three draft choices, with the 11-man squad, that means we'll have about a 30 per cent turnover. If our top three draft choices don't stick with the team, then we've done a bad job of evaluating college basketball talent.

Will you have another free-agent camp?

Our free-agent camp was a great way to test people. We found out about some people who we normally wouldn't have seen. We got a lot of good media exposure, and whether the players made the team or not, they got known. It gave players like Kevin Casetta a chance to go to Europe (Casetta, a former U-D player, is now on the European circuit in France).

The Detroit Pistons will be playing in a new division (East instead of Midwest) next year. Will that make a difference?

Divisions don't matter. We play 82 games, and play every team four times, except for two teams who we play only twice. If you win 50 per cent of your games, you make the playoffs. That's what it's all about. But it's tough to do that in pro ball. Divisions would matter if you played only those teams in your divisions, or the standings were based only on games played against teams in your division.

What will be the key to the success of the Detroit Pistons this year?

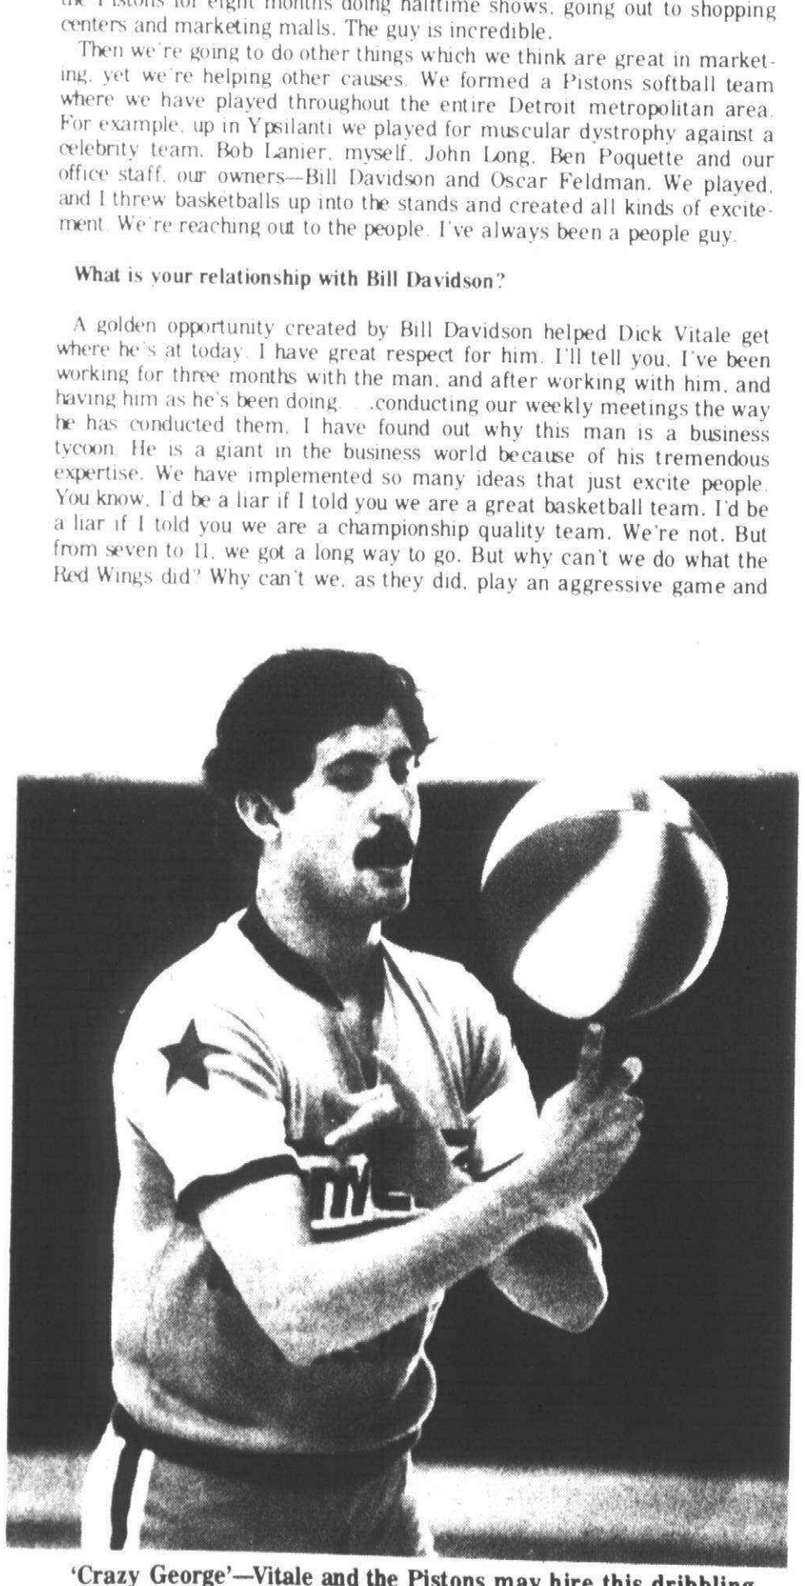

Staying healthy. Lanier is coming off a knee surgery. Offensively and defensively, the effectiveness of basketball begins in the middle of the floor and flows outward. Lanier is now the best center in the game. I think he is in about the time in his career when he will make his mark as one of the best centers to play the game.

What are the problem areas for the Detroit Pistons?

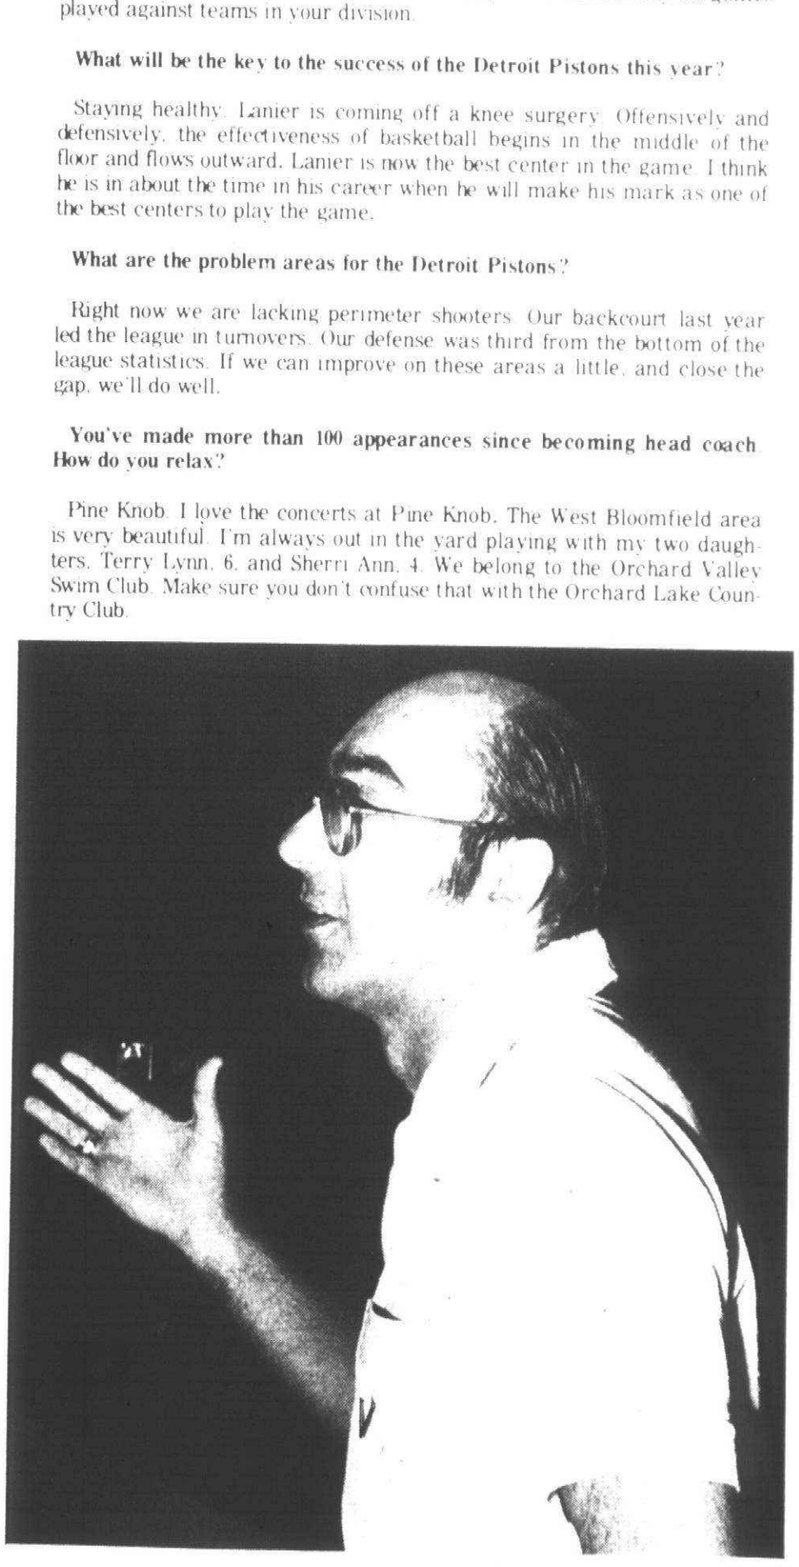

Right now we are lacking perimeter shooters. Our backcourt last year led the league in turnovers. Our defense was third from the bottom of the league statistics. If we can improve on these areas a little, and close the gap, we'll do well.

You've made more than 100 appearances since becoming head coach. How do you relax?

Pine Knob. I love the concerts at Pine Knob. The West Bloomfield area is very beautiful. I'm always out in the yard playing with my two daughters, Terry Lynn, 6, and Sherri Ann, 4. We belong to the Orchard Valley Swim Club. Make sure you don't confuse that with the Orchard Lake Country Club.

'Crazy George'—Vitale and the Pistons may hire this dribbling wizard to perform publicity promotions.

Dick Vitale says the fans will never know what he's going to do during a basketball game at the Silverdome this year.

Rape advice hard to heed

Proponents of rape prevention warn women against stopping, walking or traveling alone.

It's good advice, but sometimes hard to follow and definitely not foolproof.

Last week, for example, three women were driving together around Oakland County when a man sideswiped their car.

When the women got out of their car to investigate the damage, the man forced them back into their car at knifepoint. The assailant then had them drive to a secluded area and raped two of them.

There was no power in numbers for those women. They were helpless to a young man armed with a knife. Happening right in the middle of Oakland County, coupled with memories of recent sexual assualts in other communities, makes fear an only recourse.

Police caution us against getting caught up in fear. They say it causes irrational behavior that impairs our ability to react safely in emergencies.

But then we ask, what is a safe reaction? Should we run, try to hurt our assailant or submit to his perverse actions in hopes we will walk away unharmed?

POLICE CAN only advise a woman to act in her best judgment when a rapist strikes. That means nothing. Since most women never see the rapist before the attack, they must assume that he is playing with half a deck, and probably reacts spontaneously.

It may be more advisable to submit than resist and sustain great injury or death, police say. But there are no guarantees.

Submitting may make the assailant even more violent.

Screaming may drive the rapist away, or it may anger him. If you decide to fight, do so vehemently. Put out his eyes, scream, gouge, strike at his Adam's apple, temple or bridge of his nose. Use your fists, elbows or knees.

Police say studies show that using resistance is more likely to prevent rape, but it also makes the victim more likely to be injured. Women must ask themselves if they would rather be injured than penetrated.

The answers are baffling. A woman's only weapon is awareness. Rape is a vicious crime that occurs too often.

STUDIES INDICATE that it's not the type of clothing a woman wears that attracts a rapist, but rather her clothing is used against her.

A scarf tied around the neck can be pulled causing the woman to choke. If a woman is wearing clogs or high heels, she isn't able to run fast.

If you're unaware of what to do when a rapist strikes, get a bunch of your friends together and contact your local police department. Ask them where you can go to spend a few hours learning about rape prevention.

It might help save you from this ugly crime.

Back to yeccch days

It's bad enough that Halloween advertising starts right after Labor Day, that Christmas advertising starts right after Halloween and that St. Valentine's Day advertising starts right after Christmas.

But it sure must be depressing to a kid to see "back to school" advertising hurled at him a full month before the onslaught teachers, blackboards and books.

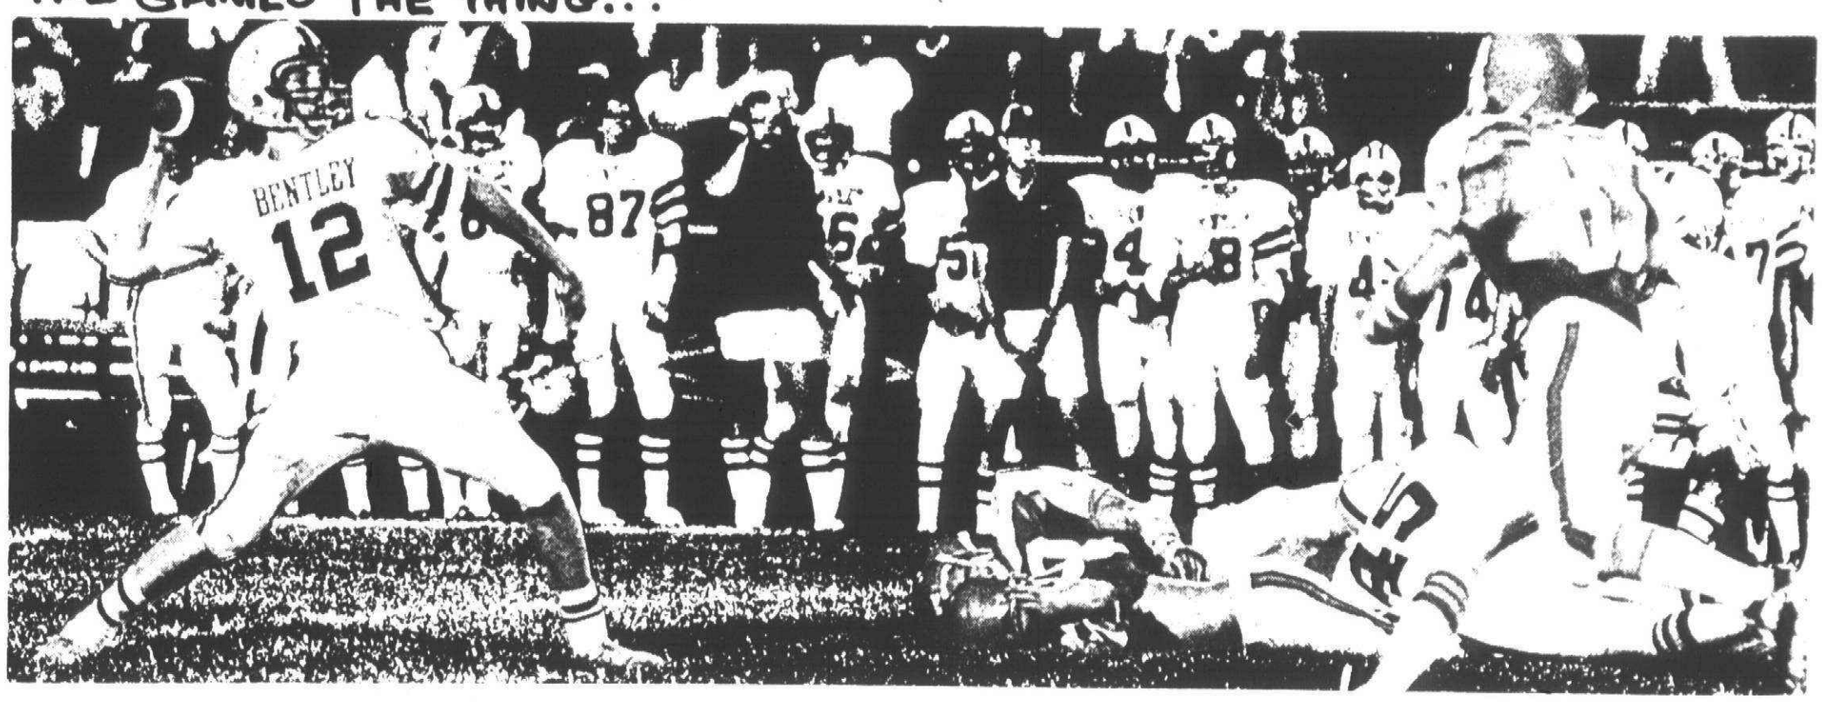

Indeed, the back to school message runs in commercial messages for a period as long as most adults' vacations. Families who head for the north country in August are bombarded with back to school ads before they even reach Bay City.

It's all a working man or woman can do to think of the office or plant two days before the actual return to work. What suffering must our beloved offspring endure when they have to view bombardments of ads for school clothing, books, supplies and gimmicks weeks in advance of the dreaded date.

Christmas advertising isn't quite so horrible because Christmas is a nice season. But yeccch! Back to school!

Surely, our local chamber of commerce could tap the creativity of American business by sponsoring a contest to give a new name to back to school advertising. Call it autumnal equinox sales. Call it colorful fall bargains. Call it growing up days. Call it anything but back to school. Have mercy on the little darlings, whether they deserve it or not.

"THE GAME'S THE THING..."

The game, not standings, draws crowd

through bifocals

Fred DeLano

Normally, one would write about Bill Veeck in relation only to baseball. Not me. I'm going to parlay him with football, high school football at that. After awhile I'll explain why.

The most informative special section devoted exclusively to football ever prepared by Observer & Eccentric writers will accompany all of our editions Thursday, Sept. 7. That will be the day before the 1978 prep season opens in Michigan.

Schedules of all 34 high schools which our sports staff covers will be one of the features, but far from the only one. Roundups on the prospects in every league in which these teams compete will give you coaches' pre-season thinking as to the title races.

The so-called "road to the Silverdome," the point system by which teams reach the state playoffs in all four classes, will be explained. Personal columns by John Bozzo and W. W. Edgar will take the reader behind the scenes of the gridiron world.

Margaret Miller's article on the color which our hard-working high school bands add to the football spectacle, and Ellie Graham's piece on cheerleaders are "must" reading. And don't overlook the spectacular cover by photographer Dick Kelley and artist Glenny Merillat.

To those several names add the bylines of Doug Funke, Ken Voyles, Dennis (Doc) O'Connor, Marty Budner, Brad Emons, Dave Saunders, Chuck Risak and Tom Baer—experts all—as the backbone of this section.

SO WHERE DOES that man named Veeck, who was reared on baseball in a Chicago of long ago, fit into the picture? Not specifically as principal owner of the White Sox, I grant. Nor as former No. 1 man of the old St. Louis Browns or, later on, the Cleveland Indians.

It's more as Veeck the showman, Veeck the philosopher, Veeck the realist.

The last time the White Sox were over here to play the Tigers, a Free Press reporter wrote of an interview with the 64-year-old Veeck which finally got around to Bill's basic box office philosophy in about the 17th paragraph.

The main point to Bill's thinking is that the game is the thing—today's game—and that the world's fate isn't determined by the won-and-lost columns.

"Position in the standings has absolutely nothing to do on a particular day with whether that game is good or not. And that's the thing I'm afraid we all tend to lose sight of," was one of the quotes attributed to Veeck in the "morning friendly."

Those words should be emblazoned in bronze and hung in every newspaper, radio and television sports office, and maybe on every sports scoreboard at all competitive levels—little league, high school, semi-pro, sandlot, college and professional.

Some of the greatest duds in sports history have been supposedly climactic battles for the championship in a league (and you can pick your sport), or even for a national championship.

Yet some of the finest contests for sheer suspense have been tooth-and-nail struggles between combatants who couldn't even spell title, let alone win one.

THUS, AS WE APPROACH a new high school grid campaign, don't put the knock on a family suggestion that you go out on a weekend and take in the spectacle. Forget that grandstand quarterback second guessing and applaud the kids for their effort—win, lose or draw.

There's no way to shut the founts of glory for the winners, nor should there be. It's fun to win. But it's also fun just to be in the contest, even the band, or leading cheers, whether it's in a victorious cause or not.

And Veeck is right; the game is the thing—today's game. As any oldtimer would say, "After owning the St. Louis Browns, how could he preach anything else?"

But it's just as true for a Brother Rice which went undefeated in its march to the 1977 state Class A grid championship as for a Plymouth Canton, which was 0-9. If one waits long enough, the won-lost pendulum will swing your way.

How to measure Milliken's coattails

Tim Richard

Normally, political ads aren't a reliable source of voter information. But it will be interesting to watch certain Republican outpourings in 1978. They will be a major clue to the future intentions of Gov. William Milliken.

Let's start at the beginning.

Everyone was shocked when Milliken persuaded James Brickley, his former lieutenant governor now on leave from the Eastern Michigan University presidency, to rejoin him in the No. 2 slot. Brickley wanted a bigger job with more money. What would induce him to be lieutenant governor four more years?

The key words are "four more years." It's entirely possible Milliken wouldn't serve out his term if re-elected. Where would he go?

ONE LINE of reasoning says Bob Griffin, if re-elected to the U.S. Senate, won't serve out his term either. Gov. Milliken could appoint Lt. Gov. Brickley to the senate. Or Milliken could resign as governor, and Gov. Brickley could appoint Milliken senator.

That seems like a lot of fuss and bother.

I think moderate Republicans, if they have any sense, should be looking to Milliken for a spot on the national ticket.

Today Milliken is 56 and looks closer to 40. If re-elected, he will have won the governorship of a major industrial state three times, in an era when one industrial state after another was falling to Democrats.

WHAT PUZZLES me is why no one is talking about it.

I put the question point-blank to Peter Fletcher, Republican national committeeman and a Milliken political confidant.

The governor, he said, "doesn't have the all-consuming drive" to go for the presidency—the months of primaries and politicking.

Milliken might might be a compromise presidential choice if the 1980 convention deadlocks.

More likely, Fletcher said, Milliken could be a vice-presidential choice. A senator from a non-industrial state might enjoy having an industrial state governor—one of the senior governors in the nation—as his political partner.

In a tight convention, a Michigan delegation committed to favorite son Milliken could bargain for the vice-presidency or even a cabinet appointment.

ALL OF THIS pre-supposes two things: That Milliken is re-elected and that he brings some other Republicans into office on his coattails.

Whether he can and will be re-elected I leave to the tender efforts of Democratic nominees Bill Fitzgerald and Libby Maynard and to the voters.

The question, if you recall the opening stanza of these prognostications, is what kind of effort the Grand Old Party will make to elect other Republicans—in other words, how far will the governor extend his coattails?

At the 1977 state convention, Bill McLaughlin, Milliken's choice as state chairman, almost got dumped by delegates angry that so much money went to help the top of the ticket and so little to the legislative candidates.

McLaughlin survived, but his acceptance speech indicated he got "the message." Hereafter, it would be a team effort.

In 1966, Gov. George Romney extended his coattails and helped elect a young senator named Griffin, six congressmen and a bunch of legislators. It made Romney the presidential front-runner for a year.

In 1954, Gov. G. Mennen Williams led a Democratic sweep and made himself a national power for several years afterward.

Fletcher said many Republicans will be helped in 1978; the governor can raise only $250,000 of his own money under campaign finance laws, and the rest can be forwarded to other candidates.

And that's why it will be interesting to see how many GOP candidates get the coattails treatment this year.

The Stroller

Gar's famous Yankee trick

By W.W. EDGAR

During a leisurely ride across the Belle Isle bridge the other afternoon, the Stroller looked down on the Detroit River flowing peacefully under the span.

There wasn't a ripple, and it had the appearance of a strip of blue ribbon. And as he looked down on the peaceful scene, he just couldn't make himself believe that 47 years have passed since that same strip of water provided the setting for one of the wildest times the old river ever has known.

It was the final heat of the 1931 Harmsworth Trophy race in which Gar Wood, confessing he used a "Yankee Trick," upset Kaye Don, the British challenger. Wood kept the trophy in America and caused what amounted to an international problem and a bit of hard feelings between the two countries.

The Stroller saw in his mind's eye the scene that thrilled close to a million people who squeezed into every point of vantage along the course.

AT THE TIME the country was in the waning days of the depression. People were badly in need of something that would take their minds off their economic troubles. Gar Wood, the "Gray Fox of Algonac," gave it to them.

The scene came back to The Stroller because he had a part in the wild afternoon and was right in the middle of the controversy that followed Don's being dumped in the churning waters of the river.

As the speedboat editor of the Detroit Free Press, he was close to almost every move made by Gar and his rival from across the sea.

He knew that Gar had the utmost respect for his challenger and wondered if his boat would be able to successfully answer the challenge.

Gar had never tasted defeat in any of his major races, so it came as a shock to him and his myriad of followers when Don took the lead in the first lap on the Saturday prior to Labor Day and Gar couldn't catch him.

The race is decided in the best two of three heats, and there were visions of the "famed bit of bronze," as the trophy was called, going back to England. In fact, for the first time, the trophy was brought out on the Detroit Yacht Club dock to be there for the presentation to Don.

AN HOUR before the race on Labor Day, The Stroller encountered Gar on the Yacht Club dock and asked: "Gar, will you be back on the dock when the race is over?"

"So you're another one who thinks that trophy is going over to England," he answered. "Well, don't be too sure. But I don't think I will be back."

A bit later the real drama started to unfold when Gar, discovering a leak in the gas tank of Miss America IX, asked for a postponement of a half-hour.

Don refused, stating Gar had two boats and if one was unable to compete, he could use the other.

The Stroller was standing at the dock telephone and he heard Gar shout, "All right. Tell Don we'll be there and we'll be on time."

As the clock ticked off the last seconds before the starting time, a shout went up, "Here comes Gar!"

He came right from his home. He didn't come close to the dock side of the course. He took Don by surprise. In haste, the British challenger whirled his boat around and headed for the line. In the wild dash, both went over before the starting gun sounded.

That wasn't the big moment. That came at the Belle Isle bridge turn where Gar cut across, threw a big wash at Don and upset him.

Both boats were disqualified. But Gar's brother, George, driving Miss America VIII, finished the course and the Gar Wood team scored the victory.

Bedlam broke loose in those minutes and the old river never has seen such a wild scene. Later it was learned that Gar had spotted a weakness in the British boat, claiming it couldn't take a wash. That's why he raced for the starting line. He wanted to beat Don at the start, never thinking they'd be disqualified. He wanted to be in front when they hit the Belle Isle bridge turn where he could cross the course, throw a heavy wash at the challenger and possibly upset it.

That was the "Yankee Trick." It succeeded. But it brought about a scene that was as wild as any ever will be, and the finish was argued about for months.

House cuts off additional funds for new Senate 'legislative palace'

Here's how area members of congress were recorded on major roll call votes Aug. 17 through Aug. 23. The house began its summer recess Aug. 18 but the Senate continued working toward an Aug. 27 recess date.

Roll Call Report

HOUSE

NEW SENATE BUILDING Refused, 133 for and 245 against, to appropriate an additional $54.8 million for a new senate office building. The senate has approved the money, which will advance construction of its third office building. The house and senate disagreement over whether the project should go forward held up final congressional approval of HR 13467, an appropriations bill.

Blueprints for the new building call for a gymnasium, tennis court, rooftop restaurant, high-ceilinged offices, wood-panelling and other features that have drawn widespread criticism. Cost estimates range from $135 million to $210 million.

With this vote, the house broke the half-century-old tradition of "comity" under which neither house disapproves funds the other wants to conduct internal business.

Rep. George Mahon (D-Tex.), a supporter, said: "We ought not interfere" with the tradition of comity.

Rep. Mickey Edwards (R-Okla.), an opponent, called the building "a new legislative palace," and said: "We are trying to match the palaces and coliseums of Rome, but the old Roman empire is gone—because it knew no restraints, because it had no willpower, because it could not say 'no'."

Members voting "yea" favored continuing construction of the senate office building.

Reps. William Ford (D-Taylor), and James Blanchard (Pleasant Ridge) voted "yea." Reps. David Bonior, (Mt. Clemens), William Brodhead, (D-Detroit) and William Broomfield, (R-Bloomfield), voted "nay." Rep. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), did not vote.

SENATE

BALANCED BUDGET Voted, 68 for and 22 against, to table and thus kill a proposed constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. The vote came during debate on HJ Res 554, which calls for a constitutional amendment awarding congressmen to the District of Columbia.

Sen. Robert Byrd (D-W. Va.), a supporter of tabling, said the balanced budget proposal "would put the federal government in a straitjacket" and deny Congress the policy tools it needs "to deal with recession, with depression, with inflation, with unemployment, and with many other problems."

Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.), an opponent of tabling, said "deficit spending, travelling under the guise of economic stimulation, has become a way of life. To continue to borrow and inflate puts an unconscionable burden on generations of Americans yet unborn."

Senators voting "nay" favored enactment of a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

Sens. Robert Griffin (R.) and Donald Reigle (D.) voted "yea."

CONGRESSMEN FOR D.C.? Approved, 67 for and 32 against, a proposed constitutional amendment (HJ Res 554) to give the District of Columbia two senators and one or more representatives in congress. The house had already approved the measure. It now must be ratified by at least 38 state legislatures within seven years.

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.), a supporter, said: "The District of Columbia has more people than seven states, pays more taxes than 11 states, had more deaths in Vietnam than 10 states. It is a matter of simple justice. I cannot imagine any Vermonter, denied this type of basic representation, who would not be prepared to lead a revolution against such a situation."

Sen. John Stennis, (D-Miss.), an opponent, said: "This is an innovation in this bill, the idea of giving power and privileges and strength to any unit of government without corresponding responsibilities. It is unsound, in my humble opinion, and it will not work and will bring about trouble."

Virtually all senators voting "yea" favor the granting of congressmen to D.C.

Griffin and Riegle voted "yea."

HIGHWAYS Defeated, 10 for and 75 against, a proposal to eliminate the Highway Trust Fund. The fund takes in about $8 billion a year in fuel and tire taxes, which are used primarily for road construction and repair. The measure was offered as an amendment to a bill (S 3073) authorizing funds for the federal highway aid program in fiscal 1979-80.

Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), a sponsor of the amendment, said the fund: "Is one sacred cow which has been milked too long by highway interests . . . Purely and simply today, it is insane, it is illogical, and it is a payoff to the lobbying groups. It certainly cannot be explained in terms of supplying a logical transportation system to the United States of America."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, (D-Tex.), an opponent, said: "To abolish the trust fund would be to gut the highway program . . . Perhaps the strongest argument in favor of retaining the trust fund is that it is urgently needed to finance outstanding highway needs . . . To abolish the trust fund would be to replace a proven, effective program with uncertainty—uncertainty that we can ill afford."

Members voting "yea" want to eliminate the Highway Trust Fund.

Reigle voted "nay."

Griffin did not vote.

GOP casualty

Damman is applauded but out of job

There was a wry joke about "the twists and turns of politics." Otherwise, James Damman showed no bitterness as he said goodbye to the Republican State Convention Saturday in Detroit.

After one term as lieutenant governor, Damman, formerly of Troy, had been maneuvered out of no less than two jobs by Gov. William Milliken.

After Damman announced he would seek the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Robert Griffin last winter, Milliken filled Damman's slot by persuading Eastern Michigan University President James Brickley to be his running mate, and then persuaded Griffin to run again.

JAMES J. DAMMAN
Out—for a while?

Nevertheless, Damman was all smiles as he spoke briefly to the convention. He got a standing ovation.

AFTERWARDS, he said he is pondering his own economic future.

Would he return to the family hardware business? "That's a possibility," he answered.

"I have all sorts of options, but it will probably be somewhere in the business world. I expect to make up my mind in 60-90 days."

Damman is now a resident of Eaton County in the 3d Congressional District. Republican Garry Brown has been in office there 12 years and has openly talked of retiring, but not this year.

If Damman is interested in Congress there, he hasn't made a move in that direction. He admits he isn't active politically in his new community.

"I suppose I might again be a candidate for statewide office," he said. "But I don't know under what circumstances. I have a lot of good friends out there," he added, nodding at the convention floor.

The Milliken-Damman ticket won the 1974 election, but Damman became a political liability when evidence was uncovered of his land dealings, through a Lincoln Investment Co., that was the topic of planned changes by Troy city officials—one of whom was Damman. There were no legal charges, but the ethical conflict-of-interest cloud made it a certainty Damman would never again be Milliken's running mate.

OTHER REPUBLICANS had been left out in the cold by Milliken's and Griffin's maneuvers.

U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe of Houghton declared for the senate, but withdrew when Griffin changed his mind about quitting. Ruppe denounced the party leaders. Democrats approached Ruppe about a change in parties, but Ruppe hasn't indicated an interest. Ruppe didn't attend the convention.

Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson refused to drop out of the senate race. Griffin handily beat him by an 80-20 margin in the Aug. 8 primary.

Patterson in effect burned his bridges behind him. Had he withdrawn from the senate race, the attorney general's nomination might have been his for the asking. Among rank-and-file Republicans, Patterson was one of the most popular figures—but not after he denounced Milliken for bossism.

Patterson didn't attend the convention either.

James F. O'Neil, former State Board of Education member from Livonia, declared his candidacy for that nomination, then found himself out in the cold when Milliken's lieutenants recruited a black woman to run for the job. O'Neil, too, raised the bossism charge in one of the angriest outbursts a fellow Republican has ever fired at the two-term governor.

But Damman was all smiles, all graciousness. At 44, he was down but not out.

Oakland U. gives gavel to tax critic

Richard Headlee, the man who has spear-headed the drive to set a constitutional limit on state taxes, has been named chairman of the board of trustees of Oakland University for the coming year.

The 48-year-old Farmington Hills insurance executive has been on the board since 1976 when he was appointed by Gov. William Milliken.

Headlee has gained prominence as chairman of Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation. The organization sponsored a successful petition drive to put a tax ceiling on the November ballot.

Museum given large grant

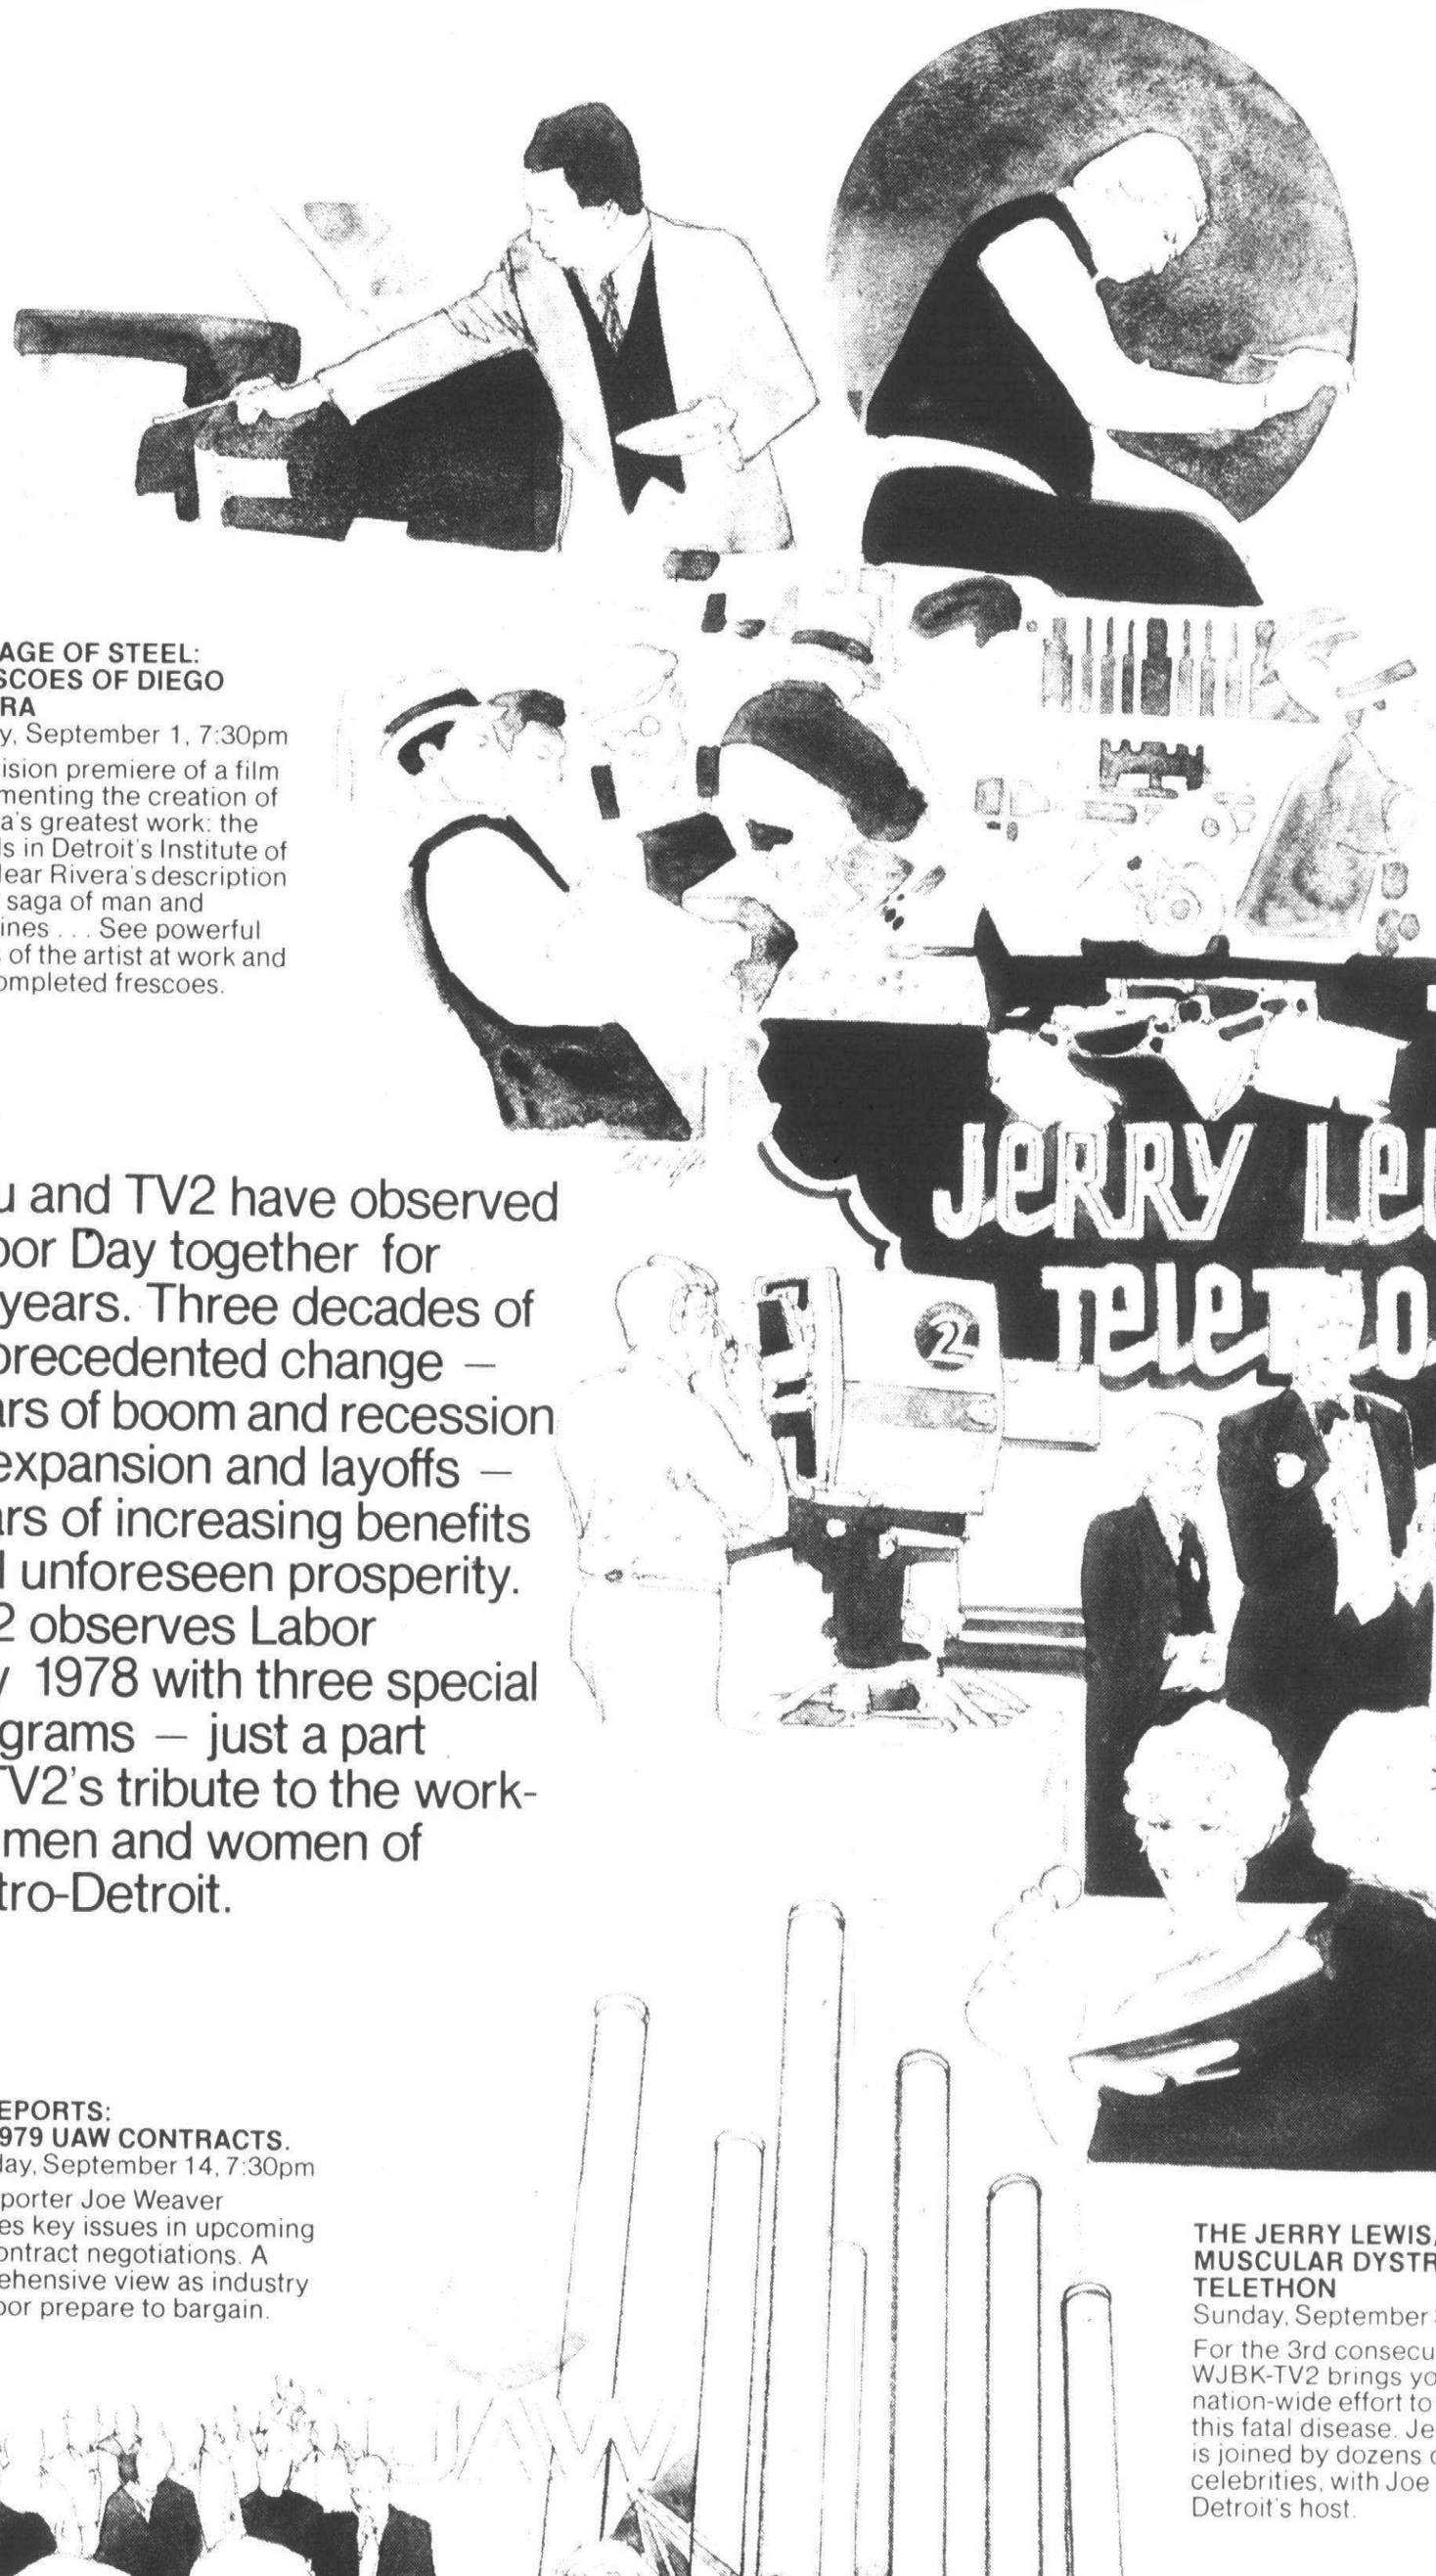

The City of Detroit has received a grant of $7,100,000 from the State of Michigan to support operations and capital improvements at the Detroit Institute of Arts during the current fiscal year.

Governor William G. Milliken recently signed the "Grants and Transfers" bill authorizing that sum among other grants to cities and institutions throughout Michigan. The total annual operations, improvement and acquisitions budget of the Art Institute is $14,000,000.

Differences between state aid and the total cost are made up by the city, which expends nearly $650,000 annually for bond debt retirement and water-sewer services, and the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts. A private body the society generates $6,000,000 for operations, capital improvements and the purchase of works of art.

Director Frederick J. Cummings said, "This year's grant will enable us to make major improvements to the museum building and will hurry to Detroit several great exhibitions.

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

Never have so many people been so wrong. But they did show a good deal of imagination.

That rusty "tent stake, Ankh statue, pre-Columbian fertility god, hinge, thing-you-put-in-a-vampire's heart" turned out to be a guard from a mowing machine.

Gordie Smith of Saxton's was the first to set us straight. He dug a pair out of the trash to prove what they they were like in their original state. He said they are in pairs on a smaller mower. A six-foot sickle bar, the type used on a county mower or a combine, has the larger single guards.

Jack Kenyon dropped off a "This is what it is" note complete with diagrams. We could see how the oscillating cutter bar with its row of triangular blades moved back and forth and created the cutting action.

Bill Coulson called. "I was a farmer," he said. "I replaced more than my share of those."

by ELLIE GRAHAM

Wayman Easterwood said he was a southern farmer and those mower guards had been used as long as he could remember, even on the old horse-drawn mowers. Clare Fritinger of Middlefield, Ohio was visiting his daughter in Canton Township. He had her call to identify the guard. Mike Zeleji, a Canton farmer, called as did C.G. Ash.

Ruth Ackman said her father was a blacksmith and there were many of those broken guards around his shop. "We used to paste faces on them, dressed them, and played with them as dolls," she said.

Loyd Sharland said, "They've been using those as long as I can remember on old farm mowers and harvesters." Jesse and Louise Tritten brought in a whole cigar box of the guards in different sizes—also one of the blades from the oscillating arm.

We are grateful to everyone who took the time to pass along the information. Thank you.

RUTH AND SANDY Burr went down to Granberry, Tex. to see their son, Charles, perform in repertory theater.

Charlie, a senior majoring in drama at Eastern Michigan University, has had major roles in the four summer theater offerings at the Granberry Opera House. He has been singing, dancing and doing straight drama.

The Opera House has presented "Call Me Madame," "Can Can," "Irene" and "George M." He also worked up a revue that has been playing in the private club sponsored by Joanne Miller, owner of the Opera House. Ms. Miller is a former vocalist with the old Tommy Dorsey band.

Granberry is near Fort Worth. The Army Corps of Engineers created a manmade lake near the old town several yaers ago. It is now a resort community. The limestone buildings in the downtown area have been refurbished and the summer theater has become a major attraction. It is a "dry" town and the private club is a way of getting around the local option law. Charlie said playing to a club audience as opposed to a theater audience was a learning experience.

He makes his final performance Labor Day, flies home the next day, and will be back at school Tuesday. Local playgoers will have an opportunity to see Charlie in action at Quirk Auditorium at EMU during his senior year.

ANNE TRINITY and Howard Griffore had high scores last Thursday at the party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. Carl Peters and Cele Hayhurst were winners Aug. 17.

There will be no game Sept. 7 because the bridge room in the Cultural Center will be taken over by the Plymouth Symphony League's Antique Mart for the duration of the Fall Festival. Play will resume Sept. 14.

MICHAEL MANDZUIK of Canton Township will be among the 80 artists and craftsmen exhibiting at the Lafayette Park Art Fair Sept. 9-10.

Michael, a printmaker, will demonstrate and sell his work along with woodcarvers, furniture makers, artists and sculptors and musicians. A mime group will perform and food will be available.

The juried fair is in the Towers Shopping Plaza on Lafayette, two blocks east of the Chrysler freeway in downtown Detroit. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days. The annual art auction will be at 3 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Michael's silk-screened prints will be matted and framed. He specializes in color forms and they are limited editions. He works in the graphic arts department of Ford Motor Co.

O&E

Jan Dersey hooks a fine rug.

Old crafts come alive at museum

The early Americana theme of Plymouth's Fall Festival will come to life in the Plymouth Historical Museum when artisans demonstrate the old crafts of the 18th and 19th centuries.

Persons who visit the museum will be able to watch doll makers, broom makers, a tinsmith, woodcarvers, quilters, spinners and weavers, and rugmakers. Craftsmen who have mastered the old skills will be at work from from noon to 7 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 9, and from noon until 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10.

Pat Scott, director of exhibits at the museum, is enthusiastic about the quality and and variety of the working exhibit.

Among the rugmakers will be Jan Dersey of Plymouth. Mrs. Dersey's hooked rugs have the texture of velvet and the fine shading of a painting. She dyes her own wool flannel and cuts it in very narrow strips—1/16th of an inch—before she begins hooking. The subtle hues are due to the dying process and the way she works them into the pattern.

Jo Krause will demonstrate the old art of rug-braiding. New this year will be Shirley Hart of Whitmore Lake. She makes shag rag rugs. She uses a frame and a hook. Pioneer women used bits and pieces of material too small for braided rugs or quilts to make these thick shaggy mats.

Another artisan who is new to the harvest exhibit is Anita Horwood of Plymouth. Her specialties are tole painting and rose malling. The latter is a Norwegian folk art. Four basic colors are used to paint designs, many with a floral motif.

The broommakers will be there Sunday only. Joel Ellis is bringing his whole family from Hillsdale. Ellis, his wiffe and children will make both round and flat brooms.

MEL HUMPHREY, a tinsmith from Ypsilanti will be back this year. He makes everything from pierced tin colonial lanterns to match holders and candle holders.

Mary Rush of Dexter will return. Her corn husk dolls, each with a personality of its own, were favorites last year.

Marjorie Shorek, who teaches the art of making cloth dolls at Greenfield Village, will be in Plymouth for the first time. Her dolls are "different" according to Pat Scott. Her method has evolved from studying early cloth dolls and they have painted faces.

Ann Featherstone of Plymouth Township has demonstrated the making and dressing of dolls at the museum on several occasions. She also teaches at Greenfield Village. Her dolls have bisque heads and cloth bodies. They range from Puritan children to elegant French lady dolls.

Emma Timmerman is in charge of rounding up a bevy of quilters who will be at work on the lower level of the museum.

ELLICE KULIK and her daughter, Teresa, will be spinning and weaving.

Leslie Saari and Dolores White will demonstrate the making of fine lace. Doris Richard will do bargello embroidery and Betty Tarpinian and her daughter Laura will be working on needlepoint and crewel work.

Jean Riggs, the herb lady from Wixom will be there. She has an herb farm, the Sunshine Farm, near Wixom. She will demonstrate the many uses of herbs.

Marion Sober's baskets will be small reproductions of a Shaker cheese basket and a Victorian fruit basket.

Marion Sober will demonstrate how to make a Shaker cheese basket—a miniature version of the old ones used to make a wheel of cheese. The small basket is suitable for serving hot biscuits. She also will show how to make an old-fashioned Victorian fruit basket.

Mrs. Sober is preparing an exhibit of miniature baskets for the show. "Like Star Wars, the baskets will be an excursion into fantasy," she said. Inspired by American Indian ceremonial baskets, there will be baskets dedicated to the gods. One, to the Moon Goddess, is made of sweet grass and decorated with downy white feathers and iridescent tortoise shell buttons. Its cover is topped with a waving plume from a great blue heron, supplied by former Plymouth resident, Mrs. Lou Balch. It was dropped by her pet heron, Groucho, in Florida. This is a basket for storing moonbeams.

FOR STORING thunderbolts, there is a sturdy little basket of rye straw, bristling with black feathers. On its cover is a shimmering red-pink feather dropped by a roseate spoon bill, also a resident of Florida. The Rain God will have a cryst— al jewel enclosed in silver wire and the Sun God's basket will be a solar sphere with pendants of beads.

Still in the world of fantasy, there will be a small replica of Red Ridding Hood's basket, a Moses in the bullrushes cradle, a nest of baskets for assorted sizes of raindrops, a hangar for clouds, and the little green and yellow basket from a-tisket a-tasket nursery ryhme.

"Dustcatchers all," said Mrs. Sober, "But fun to make and to look at. The serious side of the exhibit is to show how, after learning the traditional techniques, one can take off and fantasize, creatively and imaginatively."

SANDRA RICHARDS another instructor from Greenfield Village, will demonstrate chair caning. Susan Mynatt of Northville will show how to weave chair seats from Shaker tape.

Several woodcarvers will be carving small figures and birds.

Museum visitors also will have an opportunity to see the new special exhibit of pewter and silver. The pewter, from a private collection, is very old—mostly 18th century and a few pieces of early 19th century.

Pat Scott describes the silver as "gorgeous Georgian and Victorian with some very unusal pieces." These will be on loan to the museum until Nov. 1.

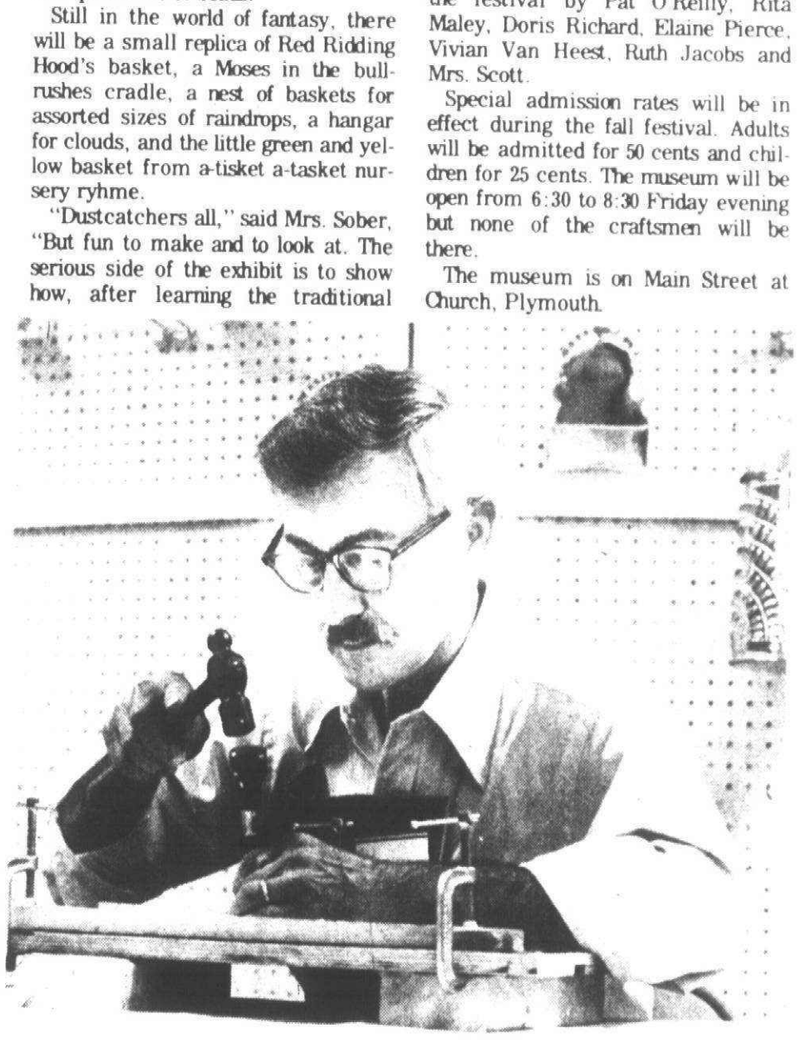

The new exhibits were arranged for the festival by Pat O'Reilly, Rita Maley, Doris Richard, Elaine Pierce, Vivian Van Heest, Ruth Jacobs and Mrs. Scott.

Special admission rates will be in effect during the fall festival. Adults will be admitted for 50 cents and children for 25 cents. The museum will be open from 6:30 to 8:30 Friday evening but none of the craftsmen will be there.

The museum is on Main Street at Church, Plymouth.

Mel Humphrey, tinsmith, will return to the museum again this year.

Everyone has fun at Civitan summer party

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cliff and Mable Blunk were early arrivals at the party in the Mayflower Meeting House. (Staff photos)

The Plymouth Civitan Club decided early this summer that they would like to put on a party for the senior citizens. It was planned for Aug. 16 in the Mayflower Meeting House.

Mike Caffery chaired the party and he and other members of the club collected an a wide assortment of prizes from local merchants for a bingo game. With the price of the tickets kept at a minimum—$1.75—there couldn't be many frills. But they promised a light supper, bingo and live music for dancing.

The tickets sold like the proverbial hotcakes and and it was soon a sell-out. Party-goers estimated a turnout of about 300 persons. The new elevator was in working order so no one had the excuse they could not climb the stairs to the second-story meeting room.

Festivities started with bingo, all for free, and guests could play as many cards as they could handle. Dave Henry, a member of the club, played the electric organ for dancing. Persons sitting at the back of room said they thought Dave's music was a recording or a six-piece band.

Old friends were greeted, there was much conversation, the bingo prizes were admired, and some took advantage of the music and danced.

Only complaint from some of the guests was hunger. They had expected to eat before 8 p.m. and it had been a long time since lunch. The waiting lines at the buffet table was long, too.

But all in all, they declared it a fine party and thanked Civitans for their hospitality.

Trip to Plymouth is graduation present

It's a long way from Belfast, Northern Ireland (by way of London, England and Washington, D.C.) but teenagers in the two cities are not far apart in their likes and dislikes.

Two Irish visitors, the O'Neill sisters, Erin and Denise, discovered they enjoy the same record albums, the same blue jeans and the same food as their American counterparts. But they were quick to point out that the records and the jeans cost half as much here as they do across the Atlantic.

Their taste for pizza and waffles is newly acquired. There are no pizzerias in Belfast and they don't "iron" their pancakes.

The girls are the guests of Bill and Dottie Mayberry of Palmer Street. The trip to America was a graduation gift for Erin, 19, who completed Upper Sixth Form of grammar school early this summer. She will attend college this fall.

The O'Neills and the Mayberrys were neighbors in Lurgan, Ireland for 2 ½ years when Bill Mayberry, an engineer at Ford Motor Co., was assigned to the Autolite plant in Belfast. They returned to the United States 11 years ago but maintained contact with the O'Neills.

"They were just 6 and 8 when we left Ireland," mused Dottie Mayberry. They've grown up.

WHEN THE TRIP to America was suggested, Denise wrote to the Mayberrys.

"The letter got lost," said Erin. "It took two months to get here. We wrote in April and it didn't get here until the end of June."

The Mayberrys replied that they would love to have them and the girls arrived Aug. 8.

One of the highlights of their visit has been an eight-day bus trip arranged by the Mayberrys. The two traveled by Greyhound bus from Southfield to Detroit, through Canada to Buffalo.

They had a stopover at Niagara Falls where they rode on the Maid of the Mist. They saw the falls at night, with all the colored lights.

Their four days in New York included a boat trip around Manhattan Island and a trip to the Statue of Liberty. But the O'Neills say the best part was the theater. They saw the "King and I" and "Grease."

"We were the youngest on the tour and everyone was very kind to us. The tour guide looked after us and we saw several films that weren't on the schedule."

They weren't too impressed with Philadelphia, a stop on the return trip. "Just historic buildings," was their assessment. They visited a chocolate factory in Hershey, Pa. and a tire plant in Akron, Ohio, but in their estimation nothing can compare with New York City.

ERIN AND DENISE'S father is an architect. He designed their sprawling white house with its red slate roof and attached two-car garage.

Lurgan is about 25 miles from Belfast. The lots are spacious and rolling. They have an old stone house at the back of their property which serves as a stable for their ponies.

Erin said many new houses are being built on the outskirts of Belfast.

"They'll build 200 houses in a section—each identical and all the same color."

Summers in Ireland are never as warm and humid as Michigan's current one, they said. And when asked about the fighting in Northern Ireland, they noted stories of events in the north don't even make the front pages of their newspapers. They are buried inside.

WHEN SHE GOES to college, Erin will be out of uniform and into blue jeans for the first time since she started school when she was 4.

She plans to study medicine and become a doctor. Doctors still make house calls in Ireland and she was a little unbelieving when Mark Mayberry told her that was a thing of the past over here.

Erin has had five years of Latin, three years of Irish, as well as French.

For Denise, 17, it will be back to grammar school and uniforms. The school is coeducational. Denise said she is going to settle for one year of Latin but she will have the required years of Irish.

"MOST OF THE students do not consider marriage until after they complete their education," said Erin. During her grammar school years, only six girls were married "and they hadn't planned on attending college."

The O'Neill girls already have planned their next trip to America. They want to see California.

Before they leave for home next Tuesday, Mark Mayberry promised them a visit to East Lansing to see his school, Michigan State University. He also promised them "some of the best pizza in the state."

Two pairs of blue eyes smiled at him—just the way Irish eyes are supposed to smile.

Ray endowment eases museum money worries

With the final settlement of the estate of Minnie Elizabeth Ray, the Plymouth Historical Society soon will have a regular income from an endowment. Attorney Charles Lowe turned over stocks, bonds and savings amounting to $113,000 to society president Sanford Burr Tuesday afternoon.

When the endowment is set up, interest income will do much to solve financial problems of the society and the historical museum.

Minnie Ray and her husband, Irving Ray, were members of the Plymouth Historical Society. He was born and raised in Plymouth in the old Ray home on the corner of Hamilton and Maple streets. His wife lived in Salem Township until they were married and moved into their new house on Fairground Street, Plymouth.

Both were longtime Ford Motor Co. employees. They had no family. They were active in the Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges and Mrs. Ray was a member of the Plymouth Grange.

Irving Ray died in 1973. Minnie died four years later, Feb. 10, 1977. She had been waiting for some time to get into Presbyterian Village and had been accepted a short time before her death. She never did move from the house she had moved into as a bride.

The Rays gave several pieces of furniture to the historical museum—valuable antiques that had been in their families for years. When Mrs. Ray's will was read, except for a few personal bequests, the estate was to go to the historical society and the museum.

The house on Fairground and its contents were auctioned off. Proceeds from the sale amounted to about $36,000 and this amounted was invested and an endowment set up.

The amount of this week's final settlement came as something of a surprise to society members. The Rays had lived simply in their small house and been frugal.

Lowe turned over stocks and bonds—AT&T, Ford Motor Co., General Motors, Bordens, Comsumers Power and Detroit Edison worth $113,000. This brings the total bequest to about $150,000, the first the society and the museum has received.

Help the widow through grief stages

The newly widowed (or "widower-ed") progresses through several emotional stages during mourning. If you recognize these as "stages," it may enable you to help her work through her grieving more fully and effectively.

Sorrow is a basic emotional stage of mourning and very common, often accompanied by self-pity and/or feelings of guilt.

Anger is another stage, a resentment against a "cruel world" which has taken one's mate prematurely.

Fears for the future "without him" as companion and breadwinner are not unusual to a new widow.

Anxiety makes her wonder "who will provide for the family" and "how will I manage my finances alone?" The widow's confidence in her own abilities needs to be strengthened so her re-entry into the world of reality may be achieved more smoothly. As a widow, if she recognizes these stages as natural and common to all, the social adjusting she does will be easier, faster, more effective.

Bible school children given 'tour' of Africa

By SUSAN ROGERS

"Jesus loves the little children of the world," sang the roomful of Bible schoolers at Good Shepherd Reformed Church in Westland.

Armed with wide eyes and Bibles, they were about to embark on a journey through the jungles of Africa with "Uncle Walt" Kronemeyer, a 14-year veteran of missionary visits to the Liberian rainforest of western Africa.

"Jesus loves the little children in Africa," Kronemeyer told his captive audience, "and he told us to go out into the world and tell about him." Kronemeyer, who happens to be the real life uncle of Good Shepherd's pastor, Kalvin L. Kronemeyer, was at the church telling the children of his adventures to a place most of them had only read about.

"We each must carry a machete into the rain forest because it grows so fast it must be cut down," he said, flashing a shiny silver blade. He explained that they would take the elephant trails back until they heard the beating of the drums which would indicate they had reached a village.

"When we came back to Africa the second time, the people were so glad to see us they brought us a gift," Kronemeyer told the children. "They gave us a little native girl whose mother they had killed and eaten. And they were not ashamed.

"My little girls talked us into keeping her, and they taught her to use a fork and play some games," he continued. "We were allowed to bring her back to America when we came because we love her very much."

He told the children the little native girl can't talk but learned to use sign language. They nodded enthusiastically when asked if they would like to see her picture. There, in black and white, looking out at them with wide brown eyes, was a little native girl monkey.

KRONEMEYER continued showing the group beautiful, brightly colored skins of animals he had killed. He also showed bowls, weapons, mattresses and toothbrushes the African people had made themselves.

"They can't go to the store like you and I," he said. "They are very intelligent and learn to make the things they need. But they don't have a Bible, and that's what we have to think about."

He showed the children how the iron ore is melted and crushed to form blades and axes. "It takes a long time," he said, "but they don't have clocks there that tell them to hurry, so they have all the time they need."

The African money seemed to fascinate the children. Kronemeyer explained they make money out of anything they find, and the piece he showed was shaped in links. "They can't carry money in their pockets because they don't wear clothes," he said.

The children came to the front of the room to touch the stiff python skin on the table and feel the wooden elephant Kronemeyer was carving out of wood before they skipped out for punch and cookies.

Kronemeyer, who is associated with African School Assemblies outside Grand Rapids, primarily gives talks on the country and its people to schools, camps and Bible schools.

"I like talking to the kids," he said. "I think it's important for them to learn about how other people live, and also about the Bible."

He spent the years 1945-59 in Africa with his family. "We picked up the language and way of life without too much trouble because there weren't two ways from which to choose. We also taught the people to speak English and write their own language."

HE EXPLAINED he was never afraid of the animals, although his wife had a few frights with snakes in the house. "The only time I was really afraid was when I was almost killed in the middle of an impending tribal war."

"The people were very friendly—they could sense that we were friends and picked up on that right away. I learned to love them and appreciate their ingenuity. I also learned to appreciate what we take for granted here in this country."

He said he was born religious, but wasn't "saved" until he was 20.

He and his family accomplished much, he feels. They were responsible for starting a church, a school and a dispensary. "We didn't force our Western culture on them," he said. "We taught them that there is one god and that He is the truth. The church is indigenous—they run it their own way."

Sisterhood schedules tea

The sisterhood of the Livonia Jewish Congregation is planning its annual membership tea 1-3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10, in the home of Thelma Goldstein, 36071 Sherwood, Livonia.

Back to school

Talking over plans for the school year that will begin Sept. 6 are Ron Brutlag, the principal of St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church School and three students. From left are Mark and Dan Hartman and Brent Brutlag. The Livonia school at 17810 Farmington, which has classes from kindergarten through eighth grade, is starting its 31st year. Ward plans daytime preschool

Ward United Presbyterian Church of Livonia, Farmington Road and Six Mile, will add a licensed daytime preschool program to its ministry this fall.

Coordinated by Susan Hitchens and staffed by professionals in the preschool field, the school will be housed in a new and specially designed early childhood wing of the church.

Morning sessions Monday through Friday will be offered for children 3 to 5 years of age.

Parents registering children may elect a three-day-a-week program, which costs $40 per month, or one that meets two days a week for $27 per month. The goal of the program, Mrs. Hitchens said, is to provide an environment in which children can grow physically, emotionally, socially and spiritually.

Curtain falls

Can a play be in two places at once? Sure

In Dearborn

By JEFF SCHORR

Theatre of the Arts director Michael J. Klier said before the presentation of "The Fantasticks" that he enjoyed "putting my own creative touch on the things I direct."

And this he did with the delightful dinner theater production currently enjoying Friday-Saturday exposure at Mac's Stables at Fairlane Towers in Dearborn.

A major—but by no means disruptive—change in the casting was the substitution of mothers in the place of fathers of the teenage sweethearts in this musical charmer with its bittersweet examination of life.

"The Fantasticks," which broke on the theater world in the late '50s, is a tale of scheming parents, innocent youth, a mercilessly wicked world "out there" and the chances of finding happiness from this equation.

The story, utilizing a minimum of props, is explained by El Gallo, a somewhat cynical though basically good-hearted rouge who alternately stands outside the story to talk to the audience as "one of us" and then slips into the production to prove his points as if the slice-of-life play were his own laboratory exhibit.

Tom Emmott brings off the dual-purpose El Gallo with the necessary and appropriate control, off-handedness and self-confidence. As storyteller and predictor of what will be, he seems to be the creator of his own thespian universe, showing us what will happen as a result of our character foibles, and then letting us see the inevitability of it all.

PAWNS IN everybody's hands, but the focal point of the story, are the youngish Luisa (Jennifer Meyers) and Matt (Paul Kerr) who both provide strong capable voices while exhibiting youthful innocence. They combine in one of the best from "The Fantasticks," the pretty favorite "Soon It's Gonna Rain" and again in "Love, You are Love" at play's end.

The familiar and haunting signature song of the production, "Try To Remember," is sung by El Gallo as a preface and a reprise. His rendering is clear and professional, sincere and more emotional than his character.

Hucklebee and Bellamy, the mothers (played by Rochelle Rosenthal and Joanne Anderson), really get into their parts. They enjoy and the audience enjoys. They fake a fued to drive their children together. It works, for awhile.

Though at first skeptical of Klier's "sex change act" in substituting meddling mothers for meddling fathers, it not only felt comfortable but seemed quite appropriate. Neither sex has a lock on radish planting, hedge trimming or manipulating children's lives.

Henry and Mortimer (Greg Tatum and Dean Unick) round out the speaking cast and provide some of the slapstick and black comedy sketches as Matt and Luisa are exposed to the dictum, "True love never runs smooth." Their parts are perfect for the pratfalls and costumed and exaggerated role-playing, which they do well.

THE TWIN PIANO efforts of Rebecca Wheeler and Linda Stum with percussion assistance from Paul Anderson provide the music.

The Mute, in leotard and pancake make-up (Linda Klier), doesn't miss a stroke or a cue in impassively helping build walls, open boxes and paint body movement pictures.

She also proves that, on stage at least, director Klier's wife takes direction well.

A pleasing note on the victual portion of the bill of fare: The food was spendid and serving dessert between acts an excellent idea.

In Southfield

By GAY ZIEGER

Southfield's Sussex House Dinner Theatre is featuring on Fridays and Saturdays "The Fantasticks," a lyrical comedy-drama which is still in New York after 18 years—7,608 performances. Strangely, the play seems better suited to suburban ambiance than that which one is apt to find in a traditional theatre in the Big Apple.

It is not taxing, in no way does it set the thought processes in gear. But, it is soft and mellow, rather like a rich after-dinner drink. And, after all, that is what dinner theatre is all about.

Consciences need not be raised, lessons need not be learned. So it was last Saturday night.

Basically, the play deals with love discovered, love lost, and love refound. During the action, the two young principals have dealings with their fathers, a bandit, an old actor and his sidekick. The story is old but the approach, or twist, is new.

OPENING LYRICS, sung hauntingly by William Kirk, implore the audience to try to remeber a September when "life was so tender that no one wept except the willow." That particular kind of September was never part of my experience but Kirk made me willing to pretend. His stage presence, his mastery of the art of eye contact, his Shakespearean intonations, his eloquent use of hands gave a professonal air to the presentation.

The magic was sustained by Debra Lamb as the young romantic. Her whole body portrayed youthful enthusiasm. She seemed to lean, to meld, at just the right times, to appear almost pigeon-toed when it was appropriate. The operatic quality of her voice gave greater import to the songs than perhaps they deserved. Hers was a total performance.

Her couterpart, Douglas Sills, was about as callow as the part could call for. He was dreamy-eyed and strong-voiced. His duet with Ms. Lamb brought to mind the music of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald.

The real teamwork, though, was done by Fran Loud and Richard Charlton. They bounded off each other beautifully, each seeming to echo the other. They were natural, whether sparring or linking arms to do an old soft shoe.

AN EQUALLY competent duo was Dike Dwelley and John Unruh. Dwelley's tonal qualities and, indeed, stance were reminiscent of John Carradine's. His performance was graceful and of high quality. Unruh was delightfully crazed. His demonically expressive face makes him a candidate for "Monty Python's Flying Circus"—or at least a Marty Feldman production.

While things kept changing in the play—romance under the moon, reality in the sun—Ann Gratch remained constant as The Mute. She moved well and always stayed in character. During one long segment, the role called for her to sit and stare, and she did just that, scarcely blinking her eyes. This control gave greater impact to her part as a silent, white-faced figure.

So, even though life is not so sweet nor so dramtic—not even the lovely parts, or the tragic ones—still one can accept the premise of this play, namely: we must die a little before we grow, for "without a hurt the heart is hollow."

The presentation was preceded by an excellent dinner. The bill of fare allowed for prime rib or white fish with potatoes, salad with house dressing, peas, rolls, lots of coffee and a light dessert. The atmosphere was friendly and the service was grand.

Next weekend: Marshall's home tour

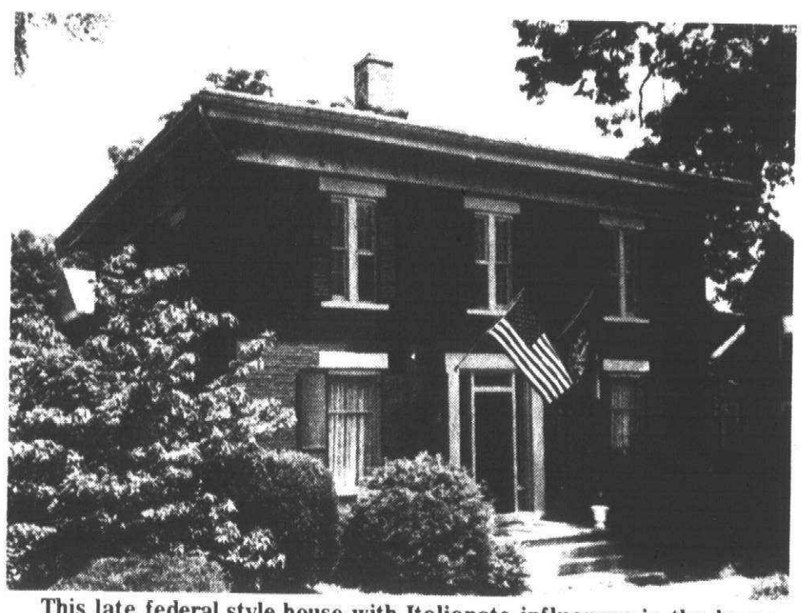

"Fifty Years of Pride and Preservation" is the theme for Marshall's 15th Historic Home Tour, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9-10. Sponsored by the Marshall Historical Society, the tour annually attracts visitors from throughout the United States and Canada.

Restored in 1928, Marshall's vintage Town Hall sets the keynote for this year's two-day event. It represents a major preservation effort by the community and one of its leading citizens. The reclamation from its former state as a livery stable marked the beginning of an ongoing effort to preserve and rejuvenate Marshall's priceless architectural heritage.

Billed as "The Grand Old Tour," the extravaganza will feature 15 attractions this year. Nine private homes, the largest number ever on tour, will be open. One has never before been included on the tour. Also, four buildings adapted for use as museums are on the itinerary.

An outstanding highlight for 1978 tourists will be Trinity Episcopal Parish (1861). Its Victorian Gothic architecture has been preserved by the same congregation that originated the home tour.

A related tour event, "Downtown Diversions," will focus on Michigan Avenue businesses that reflect the town's concern for historic preservation and a current downtown revitalization project. Several recently restored enterprises will be open both days to tour visitors. The project is being partially funded by the U.S. Department of the Interior through the Michigan History Division.

This late federal style house with Italianate influences is the home of the president of the Historical Society of Michigan. It is part of the Marshall Historic Home Tour for the first time.

The nine private homes on tour range in age of construction from 1840 for the Greek Revival cottage owned by Judson Blakslee, to 1887 for Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kinney's Queen Anne.

Italianate styles are predominant tour atttractions this year. They include the homes of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Burris (1870); Mr. and Mrs. Harold Minick (1858); Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kingsnorth (1871); Misses Virginia and Elizabeth Cronin (1873) and Mr. and Mrs. John Collins (1850); and a converted home, Sherman Realtors' office (1?73).

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morgan's Gothic Revival home (1871) has been entirely refurbished since it was on tour in 1974.

The Honolulu House (1860), Capitol Hill School (1860), the Governor's Mansion (1839), and G.A.R. Hall (1902) are the museums on tour. The hall, newest historical society acquisition, will be an exhibit center for antique collectibles such as stamps, guns and campaign souvenirs.

The event is again being held for two days so visitors may enjoy the unstructored tour along Marshall's tree-shaded streets at their leisure. Hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 9, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10.

The tour recreates the pleasures and color of 19th Century life with such events and attractions as roving minstrels, antique sales, ice cream socials, old-fashioned salad and soup smorgasbords, band concerts, a Civil War encampment and full-scale "Battle of Capitol Hill," barbershop quartet singing and numerous other activities recalling the customs and pleasures of 100 years ago.

The Grand Parade will be held both days of the tour and on Sunday will feature the Fifth Regiment Band from Howell. This band was started as a bicentennial project and continues to be an outstanding unit, complete with an 85-piece Civil War Bank, historic color guard, folk dancers, banjo bank, fife and drum corps, totaling 160 people.

Marshall is located at the intersection of interstate highways I-94 and I-96. Large free parking areas have been designated for visitors and free shuttle buses make continuous trips from parking areas to all structures and activities on tour.

Home tour proceeds have been used for many restoration and beautification projects in Marshall, plus 14 historical markers to remind citizens and visitors of the city's heritage.

For additional information on the tour, write: Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, P.O. Box 15-E, Marshall, MI 49068.

'Green' Rock gridders short on experience

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

It was just nine months ago when head coach Tom Moshimer led his Plymouth Salem football team to that snowy, cold quarterfinal playoff game at Brighton.

The Rocks lost the game to Portage Central, the eventual state runners-up. But nothing could ruin the memories of a 9-0 regular season record and a Suburban Eight League championship.

Ah—the memories were great but now they've all passed by. Nine players from the 28 graduating seniors are now playing college football—the most ever produced by a Moshimer squad.

A new challenge faces Moshimer this fall as only two regular starters—both on offense—return from last year's championship team. And there are 46 other players who are a mystery to everyone since they either saw minimal action on the varsity, or competed on the junior varsity squad last year.

The Rocks have a solid foundation to work on, however, with the return of senior co-captains Rich Hewlett and Paul Dillon.

Hewlett, nicknamed 'Deuce' after his uniform number, was the premier quarterback in the Observer area last season. He gained unanimous Suburban Eight League first team honors and was named to the first-team All-Observer and all-state teams.

The 6-1, 195-pound senior has been recruited by almost every major college in America. He is the heart of the Rocks' wishbone option offense, gaining over 900 yards in only seven games last season.

Dillon, a 5-10, 168-pound halfback-quarterback, replaced Hewlett as the signal caller for the final two games of the season and performed admirably. (Hewlett broke his collar bone against Dearborn High School in the eighth game of the season and was sidelined for the rest of the year).

Although Dillon doesn't have the strength of a Hewlett, he is a smart quarterback who can also run the complex wishbone offense. He is a crafty runner who will play mostly at halfback but will seen some action at quarterback. He is also a mainstay in the Rocks' defensive secondary.

THE BIG QUESTION is whether the other 46 players can complement the one-two punch of Hewlett and Dillon. Moshimer has to revamp the entire offensive interior line, the rest of the backfield and split ends, as well as the entire defensive unit.

Moshimer admits it won't be easy, but he is excited about the progress of the Rocks' so far this year.

"We don't have the big, strong kids of a year ago, although we're better than I thought," Moshimer said. "They've worked extremely hard—three times a day at camp and two-a-days at practice.

"We're weaker up front because we're so green but the kids still worked hard in bad heat. The kids have never quit working and I'm pleased with that.

"Still, we have a long way to go. We still have a lot of work to do on our technique."

Moshimer is encouraged with the strong turnout this year whic which includes the 48 varsity members and over 50 junior varsity players. He hopes this kind of response will continue the winning tradition his program has developed over the years.

"When you've part of a winner, no one wants to be the team that stops winning," Moshimer said. "The kids want to win and that's important.

"Based on what we lost last year and who we play, it is easy to say that we won't be good this year.

"But if the attitude keeps up and we keep improving, we'll be better than people figure—maybe. But we haven't played anybody yet."

Moshimer compares this year's team to the 7-2 squad of 1973 which didn't have the big lineman but featured many small, quick players in the trenches. The Rocks don't have one interior lineman over 195 pounds.

There are nine players vying for interior positions on offense and defense. Dave 'Bubba' Wilcox heads this list. He was the only interior line man to see any action last year. Senior Dan Smith is the starting center. He will be flanked by Wilcox, Jeff Bruner, Jeff Powers, Chris Papa, Scott Piper, Kyle Baker Bob LaVeck and Scott Maguran.

The same type of competition exist in the offensive backfield where Jim Anderson, Craig Stack, Dave MacKenzie, Bill Bournias, Jim Daratony, Jim O'Brien, Sam Merrill, Kris Kappler and Phil Anderson (no relation to Jim) will battle to join Dillon and Hewlett in the starting lineup. These same players will also battle for defensive secondary positions.

The Rocks have inexperienced players at tight end and defensive end, as Jim Cooper, Lance Willsey, Jeff Spencer and Mike Prchlik are among the leaders for these two positions.

The split ends are also inexperienced as Dennis Ogden, Dave Casler, Ron Schultz and Mark Basierbe vie for a spot. Rich Hanschu is another split end possibility who will also handle most of the punting and place kicking assignments.

Kappler and Wilcox head the list of possible linebackers, along with Phil Anderson, Craig Flower, and Spencer.

Hewlett will play defense this year, as he teams with Dillon in the secondary.

Chiefs eye success after winless season

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Coach Dave Schuele's Plymouth Canton football team can only look for improvement this fall, as the Chiefs try to regroup and lick their wounds from last year's disastrous 0-9 season.

Schuele, beginning his third season as Canton's head grid coach, has won only one game in the past two seasons. With a core of 18 seniors on the 1978 squad, however, Schuele is optimistic that things will be different. This is the biggest number of seniors to play under the Canton coach, and, if the attitude is right, Schuele feels the Chiefs can have a respectable season.

"The biggest thing is for us to keep a positive attitude and play with enthusiasm," the Canton mentor said. "We're small, but what are you going to do? We're just going to have to go out and step on some toes.

"I think, overall, we're stronger as a team. We've come a long way in attitude and the main thing is to maintain it."

One of the reasons the Chiefs are stronger this season is because of quarterback Scott Dawson, a transfer student from Inkster Cherry Hill last spring. At Cherry Hill, Dawson was a drop-back passer who threw the football effectively.

At Canton, Dawson must adjust to Schuele's option football. The Canton coach plans to throw the ball more, simply because of Dawson, but he still wants to run the triple option.

This year, however, the Chiefs have scrapped the wishbone offense which was ineffective last season. Canton will run a veer-type option with two setbacks instead.

But Schuele has no reservations about Dawson's ability to handle the option.

"Dawson makes us stronger all over," Schuele said. "He's a strong, steady kid. He plays football, and he's starting to read (the option better). People said Dawson was too slow to run the option, but I think he runs the ball well."

SCHUELE FEELS switching to the veer will help the Chiefs' quickness with both the inside and outside running games.

Canton's two strongest running backs are seniors Rusty Mandle and Joe Mallare. Mandle, last year's wishbone quarterback at the end of the season, has all the moves and the strength to be a solid runner. Mallare is equally strong with the ability to break open a long run.

The biggest problem with the Chiefs this season is the interior line, both offensively and defensively. While the backfield looks solid, Canton's perennial lack of size up front could make for another long season.

The Chiefs' biggest loss to graduation was Mike Nyhus, a 6-3, 195-pound lineman who served as co-captain last year. Canton's answer to Nyhus this season is Steve Eddy, a junior tackle who stands 6-3, 180 pounds—the biggest player on the team.

Senior Russ Shuman and junior Paul Mooney return for another season and will vie for the center position. Dave Tanner, Charlie Nyhus (Mike's younger brother), junior Doug Ward and Al Oszlewski will compete for guard positions. Along with Eddy at tackle are George Hamlin, sophomore Craig Gearns, Gerald Van Berkle and Ken Van Kirk.

Bill VanHoose heads the list of possible tight ends, along with Mike Kitti, Mike Schwisher and Mike Pathe.

Randy Rienas, a split end and safety for the Chiefs last season, is another graduation loss that will hurt Canton this year—especially with Dawson's ability to throw the ball. Seniors Jay McKinley and Dennis Howell will try to fill Rienas' shoes at that offensive position.

Canton has a host of running backs who hope to crack the starting offensive team with Mandle and Mallare. Junior John Tarr heads the list, along with Steve Gray, Bob Hamlin and Jamie Koch. Junior Greg Mallare and first-year senior Chris Lockhart are Dawson's back-ups at quarterback.

Canton football staff features 2 new members

Two new varsity assistant coaches have been hired to the Canton football staff this season.

Allie Suffety and John Gravlin, both health education teachers at Canton High School, will join head coach Dave Schuele and assistant Dave Thomann on the varsity.

Gravlin, a freshmen girls' basketball coach and junior varsity baseball coach at Canton last season, enters his second year in the system. Suffety also starts his second year of teaching after serving at the Plymouth Salem junior varsity girls volleyball coach and volunteer aide for the Salem football program last year.

Along with his head coaching duties, Schuele will coordinate the offense and work with the offensive backfield. Thomann is the defensive coordinator and defensive line coach.

Gravlin will coach the defensive backfield and the offensive ends, while Suffety's duties include linebackers and offensive line.

TWO ADDITIONAL coaches have been hired by the Salem and Canton football teams but will work on a volunteer basis.

Tom Garrett, a teacher at East Middle School and former member of the Canton varsity staff under Jim Muneio three years ago, will assist the Salem junior varsity program. Bob Khoenle, a new physical education teacher at Canton High School, will assist the Canton varsity team.

New team; same cause

The opponent may be different, but the benefit softball game sponsored by the Michigan State Police Crime Lab (Northville Post) will still be played.

The crime lab team will battle radio station WDRQ-FM tonight at the Plymouth Massey diamond, Plymouth Road west of Haggerty across from the Burroughs plant, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. All proceeds will go to the muscular dystrophy fund.

Originally, the crime lab team was scheduled to play radio station WWWW, but the radio station team cancelled at the last minute.

Canton gridders seek improvement after dismal performance last fall

DEFENSIVELY, the Chiefs' strength lies at linebacker, where Koch and Mandle anchor the 5-2 formation. Three-year player Tanner help provide depth at the position, along with Greg Santilli. Mandle could also play in the defensive backfield.

Canton also looks solid at noseguard, where Oszlewski, Koch or Joe Mallare can play. Eddy will play defensive end, but the tackle positions look questionable. Senior Frank Kellogg, VanHoose, Hamblin, Mooney and Shuman will battle for starting spots there. Gearns, Nyhus and sophomore Chris Koch are other possibilities at end.

Howell, Gray, George Trudell and Greg Mallare vie for the monster position. McKinley, Lockhart and Dawson are at safety, while Mike Phillips, Schwisher and Wayne Washburn work in the defensive backfield.

Schuele sees Waterford Mott and Northville as the favorites in the Western Six League, but he also said to watch out for Churchill and Farmington Harrison, although both teams are expected to have weak seasons.

But the main thing in Schuele's mind right now is getting his Chiefs off to a good start against Livonia Bentley on Friday, Sept. 8. Canton has not beaten the Bulldogs in the previous three opening games, and the Canton coach feels it's important to get his squad in a winning frame of mind.

O & E golf tourney is near

Entries to date have been returned at a faster rate than ever before for the upcoming Observer & Eccentric Open Golf Tournaments.

Co-sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Whispering Willows Golf Course in Livonia, the 36-hole men's event will be contested Sept. 9 and 10, with the women taking to the course for their 18-hole tourney Sept. 12.

Amateur golfers who reside in the O&E circulation area may participate.

"We're now over the 100 mark (registrants) by a good number and that doesn't even include the mail of the last couple of days," said Gary Whitener, pro at Whispering Willows and the tournament director.

"We've had a tremendous mailing response.

"I had 200 entry forms made up, 100 for here and 100 for Idyl Wyld (Livonia's other municipal course) and I only have about 30 left," Whitener continued.

"A lot of people have picked them up and will be bringing them back with their checks."

Entry fee for the men's tournament is $24, $10 for the women's get-together.

"Every year during the last three or four days (of registration), we get about 50 entries," Whitener added. "I know we'll get a good response over the Labor Day weekend."

Registration deadline for men is Sept. 5 or when 225 golfers have registered. The women's deadline is Sept. 7.

Whitener said that as of last weekend he had received nearly 40 entries for both the men's Championship Flight (zero through eight handicap) and Flight 1 (nine through 14 handicap).

Thirty-eight women had signed to compete.

Bill Curtis, from Farmington, a former Championship Flight winner, has registered as has Meg Park, a Redford resident, who has won the women's Championship Flight the past two years.

Andrea Hodel, a Birmingham resident who was runner-up to Park last year and Flight 1 titlist in 1976, has also registered.

Whitener said that he does not expect John Van Vleck, from Farmington Hills who has worn the men's Championship Flight crown the last two years, to compete next month.

Van Vleck is attending college in Tennessee, Whitener said.

Millage vote affects schedules

These schedules are only tenative lists of competition for the Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High School fall sports teams. On Friday, Sept. 8, Dearborn voters will go to the polls to vote on a millage proposal concerning extra-curricular activities. If the millage passes, the Dearborn public schools will continue with their athletic programs at Dearborn, Edsel Ford and Fordson High Schools—and the schedules will remain the same. If the millage fails, the Dearborn schools will not have athletic programs, and all Dearborn-area teams will be dropped from the Salem and Canton schedules schedules. They will be replaced by any available non-league teams at a later date.

Swim club seeks members

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Swim Club, nicknamed the Cruisers, will hold its first meeting of the fall season on Tuesday, Sept. 19 to organize for the upcoming year.

The Cruisers, coached by Mark and Steve Finley, includes any Plymouth-Canton area boy or girl, ages 5-14, interested in competitive swimming. Plymouth-Canton is a member of the Super Six League which includes Belleville, Chelsea, Milan, Willow Run, and Ypsilanti.

The squad, co-sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Continuing Education Department and a separate parents group, includes competition in four different age levels.

Anyone interested in attending the meeting may call 459-0946 for further information.

Coaches wanted

The Western Suburban Soccer League is in need of soccer coaches for the upcoming fall season. Anyone interested in volunteering any kind of coaching service to the league should contact the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department at 455-6620.

Men's football

Any team interested in playing men's recreation touch football in Plymouth should call the recreation department at 455-6620 for more information. Deadline for application is tomorrow. Anyone who resides in the Plymouth-Canton community is eligible to compete in the league.

Aces fired

Norm Lombard, from Livonia, and Emil Panowicz, a Northville resident, each recorded a hole-in-one recently at Whispering Willows Golf Course in Livonia.

Lombard used a four iron to ace the 217-yard sixth hole and Panowicz holed an eight-iron shot on the 125-yard 16th hole.

The hole-in-one was Lombard's sixth in 30 years of golfing and Panowicz' first in 19 years on the links.

Wildlife art winners display exhibits

By LEM MESEE

One of the finest wildlife art exhibits of the year will be playing for one short stint in this metropolitan area.

The exhibit is by winners of the student wildlife art contest sponsored by the Cranbrook Institute of Science in Bloomfield Hills.

The public, however, will be able to see the exhibit locally Sept. 3-24 only in the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark. From the western Wayne suburbs, you can reach Oakwoods by taking I-275 south to the S. Huron Road intersection in Huron Township, or by taking Telegraph south to Van Born Road.

Afterwards, the exhibit will be visible only in far outstate galleries.

Top three winners—all stunning—were printed in the September edition of the Michigan Natural Resources Magazine. They were "Snowy Egret with Young" by Paul Fuss of Grand Blanc, "A Family of Common Loons" by Nathan Greene of Cedar Lake Academy and "Head of a Coyote" by Simone Quaine of Rogers City.

In addition, there were 35 runnersup.

The competition is held every two years.

A PAIR OF mallards was the winning entry in the Michigan waterfowl stamp contest sponsored by the state Department of Natural Resources. Richard Timm, a commercial artist from Trenton, was first prize winner.

It will be printed on the state's official waterfowl stamp purchased by 100,000 hunters.

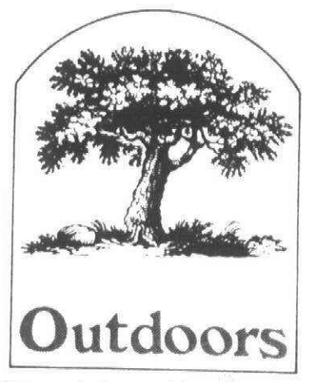

Bob Miller, mechanical illustrator from Southfield, and Lawrence Cory, commercial artist from Troy, were among the nine runners-up.

Six of the 10 winners chose mallards as their subjects. Other subjects were scaup, Canada geese, green-winged teal and goldeneyes.

THE TELEVISION commercial, about as reliable as most TV commercials, shows an Indian observing the white man's litter. A tear rolls down the Indian's cheek.

Real life is considerably different. In Michigan, it's the Indian who is being accused of destroying a natural resource—in this case, lake trout and salmon.

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) is out to collect 70,000 petition signatures by Oct. 10 to present to Federal Judge Noel Fox, who is hearing the U.S. government's lawsuit on behalf of Indians against the state. The Indians and the feds seek to prevent the state from enforcing state fishing regulations against Indians.

MUCC and the state contend that uncontrolled and unregulated Indian gill net fishing could wipe out stocks of lake trout and deplete other species. Bay Mills and upper peninsula Indians say their 19th century treaty rights exempt them from state regulations governing seasons, catch limits and equipment.

The MUCC petitions to Judge Fox will ask him to restrain Indians from gill netting until the controversy is settled by the courts.

MUCC will need lots of luck. Noel Fox is the federal judge who made some extremely unpopular school busing rulings in western Michigan. He is by reputation a hard-nosed legalist and rigidly doctrinaire. Petitions don't move him.

LYNNE K. KING is the new interpreter at Haven Hill Environmental Education Center located in the state's Highland Recreation Area of Oakland County.

She succeeds the popular Hartley Thornton, who has retired.

Ms. King earned a bachelor's degree in environmental interpretation at Michigan State University. She has worked at the Aloha, Ludington and Traverse City state parks.

CRACKDOWN! That's what's happening at Pte. Mouillee State Game Area. DNR announced it has made 65 arrests for violations of rules banning ground fires, alcoholic beverages and use of the park between 11 p.m. and 4 a.m.

Pte. Mouillee, at the mouth of the Huron River, is one of a growing list of state parks and recreation areas where alcohol is banned because of rowdy partying.

KENSINGTON Metropark on I-96 west of here has several special events on tap in the days ahead.

The "Island Queen" will take a star cruise at 9 p.m. Friday, Sept. 1. Naturalist Steve Horn will tell how to identify star constellations.
