Canton Township may be in the used helicopter business soon, although not to the extent Supervisor Harold Stein

The township board Tuesday approved the purchase of three used. government surplus helicopters for possible use by the police department.

Stein had urged board members to buy at least six of the aircraft, although he said that the township has no immediate plans to put any of them into operation.

According to Stein, the helicopters are a bargain and could be resold at a profit if the township fails to get federal subsidies to set up an air patrol.

The two-passenger helicopters are selling for $500 each. They are supposed to be in operable or

She contended that neighboring communities, such as Detroit and Warren, will offer the use of their copters in an emergency

Stein took the position that it pays to be prepared, in case the township gets some kind of federal grant to support such a program.

Canton Police Chief Walter McGregor came to Stein's defense. McGregor said he had observed the performance of helicopter units in other police departments and thought they "give the city its money's worth and more.

"Whether it would work in Canton, I can't tell you, but I think it has an application, whether today or 20 years from now," McGregor said.

The lone trustee to vote against the purchase was Lynne Goldsmith.

The board stipulated that two agents for the township, one of them a helicopter expert, be sent to Arizona, where the helicopters are stored, to examine the 300 aircraft available and buy three in good condition.

Stein said the township can back out of the purchase if none of the helicopters are deemed fit.

Board may offer to lease jr. high

By EMORY DANIELS

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, faced with a rising enrollment, may make an offer to buy Lowell Junior High from the Livonia School District.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will meet in a study session Monday to consider making a bid for Lowell, on Hix Road, just south of Joy, to test whether Livonia is willing to sell the building. The board may direct Superintendent John Hoben to begin negotiations with Livonia Superintendent George Garver.

Because of declining enrollment, Livonia has offered a number of vacant and soon-to-be-vacant school buildings for purchase or lease to several school districts. Lowell, however, is not on the list, and Livonia doesn't plan to close the

A Saxton undertaking

Family traced 20 years pre-Pilgrims

By W.W.EDGAR

Few persons have a more interesting hobby than Mrs. Dean Saxton and she is working at it most every minute since she and her husband took up residence on Coolidge in Plymouth several months ago.

Mrs. Saxton has taken up the task of tracing their family backgrounds and thus far has found that some of the family forefathers came to America as early as 1598-some 20 years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth,

"They came from England and were on Dean's side in a family named Stark," she said, then added, "I can trace my family, on my father's side, to John and Priscilla Alden-and that's going back a long way."

MRS. SAXTON became interested in genealogy when her mother, who was a professional photographer, flooded her with pictures of her youth and those of her husband.

"I had so many pictures I just didn't know what to do, so I started a series of books, (scrapbooks are not to be mentioned with Mrs. Saxton's work) and now I am preparing a complete family history for each of my four children.'

Because of her outstanding work in tracing the family history, Mrs. Saxton has been honored by the Mayflower Society.

She was invited to join the Mayflower group after displaying her work at one of the society's meetings some years ago in Palm Beach, Fla.

Aside from her books, which she refers to as pictorial genealogy books. Mrs. Saxton has developed a most interesting chart which marks every person in the long line of descendants. It is called a "fan chart.

On this chart, the main person (the one studying the family line) is located in the middle at the bottom of the chart. On the left is the father and the mother is on the right. Then the various families and generations are fanned out until every one is registered. For instance, she has what she calls seven lines on the Stark family on her husband's side. She hasn't missed anyone.

In telling of her forebears, she likes to recall that her grandfather on her mother's side was William Stocking, who then represented the Detroit Board of Commerce and often was referred to as Mr. Detroit. And her father was at one time editor of a paper called the Detroit News

IN HER TRACING of the family background through pictures she likes to show one of Fred Saxton, Dean's father, who was manager of the first feed store in Northville.

It was there that young Dean was introduced to the feed business and later took over the store. He not only ran the Northville store, but opened one in Redford and then came to Plymouth where it became the Saxton Garden Center.

Mrs. Saxton has been working on the pictorial history for more than a decade and now is busily engaged in preparing a book for each of her children. She started by giving each of them-Mollie Carrie of Westland, Dean Frederick, Jr., of Tucson, Ariz., William Edward of Plymouth and Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Dykstra of Hastings, Mich.—the pictorial covers of the book.

Like any other senior citizens who research the family background, Mrs. Saxton goes one step further. She not only writes a continuing history, but makes them almost priceless possessions by adding the pictures.

New administrators hire

Three administrative positions were filled Monday night by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The persons approved to be hired are filling existing vacancies—a purchasing agent, and assistant principals at Eriksson and Field elementaries.

Judith Ireson was approved as assistant principal for Eriksson, Samuel Barresi as assistant principal at Field, and Thomas Rose for purchasing agent.

MS. IRESON has been fulfilling the role of administrative intern at Eriksson for the past year.

She graduated from DePauw University, Indiana, In 1963 with a BA in elementary education, and earned her MA from Wayne State University in 1975 in elementary education.

League to meet

The League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi will hold a membership kick-off meeting Wednesday, Sept. 20, at Mead's Mill Elementary School.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the school which is located at Six Mile and Bradner Roads in Northville.

All aspects of the organization's activities will be explained by Kari Miller, president. A slide presentation entitled "What's in US for You" will be snown to prospective members.

League members will explain how the LWV aids at election time by preparing impartial guides of candidates and sponsoring candidates' nights.

She was a classroom teacher for five years at Miller Elementary School, and had previous teaching experience in Illinois and Cheshire, England.

Barresi is presently employed as an assistant principal at Westwood Community School District, a position he has held for the past two years.

He graduated in 1971 from University of Detroit with a BA in history, earned an MA in educational leadership in 1974 from Eastern Michigan University, and earned a specialist degree in the same field this year from EMU. Before joining Westwood, Barresi had been a classroom teacher four years in Fraser and one year in Grosse Pointe Park

Rose also was employed for a time as a substitute teacher for Farmington Public Schools, and worked in the trust department as an investment research analyst with National Bank of Detroit in conjunction with a workstudy program of University of Michigan.

Smooth start at high schools despite switch

It was back to school for the throng of Plymouth and Canton youngsters who saw their summers come to a quick end last week.

At Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools, officials report one of the smoothest starts in several years. Compared to previous years, few students were seen wandering the halls and lined outside counselor offices confused over their class

The switch from modular to traditional scheduling, however, did create increased traffic both in the parking lot and in lunch lines but principals say the situation has been taken care of. It seems that traditional schedules require all students to start school at 7:15 a.m., causing traffic jams at both school and at the intersection of Joy and Canton Center Roads.

In past years, under modular scheduling, students came to school at various times and were often driven by their parents. Police in Canton Township and Wayne County have been asked to help ease the congestion.

The new scheduling also forces the high schools to feed 4,500 students in less than two hours instead of spreading the feeding periods over several hours-the practice the past seven years under modular scheduling.

After rather long waits in line the first couple of days of school, the delays have been eliminated and students now spend most of their 40-minute lunch periods chatting at their tables instead of waiting in line.

Modular scheduling was dropped in favor of traditional because of the increased enrollment this fall at both high schools. Traditional allows for greater use of classrooms over a school day.

Bus drivers reply

Editor

We, the Plymouth-Canton School District bus drivers, would like to answer the charges made by a certain Sunflower sub-division resident, Jerry Gibbons (see story in Sept. 11 Canton Observer)

The article states "School officials are calling it a mistake. An angry parent is calling it neglect. We call it lack of supervision. In the article, our boss, Robert Houghton, asked one very important question, "Where are the parents?" Elementaryschool age children need supervision at their bus stops. They should be at their bus stop five minutes before the bus's scheduled arrival.

Children of that age tend to get very squiggly and haven't as wet acquired the discipline and patience to just stand and wait for their bus. They start playing games and run around. That's why drivers approach elementary stops with such extreme caution. The children need the guidance and supervision an adult presence provides.

We heartily suggest that Mr. Gibbons would graciously offer and consent to watch the children at the stop on the corner of Chicester and Maidstone.

We appreciate the support of our boss, Mr. Houghton, and his fairness in finding our both sides of this incident. Lets work together to keep our children safe. SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS

HEADACHES

While headache is one of the most distressing of human discomforts, it is not a disease, but a sign that something is wrong. Nearly every adult will at some time or other suffer simple headaches from body abuse, such as lack of sleep, sudden anxiety, or perhaps too many cocktails. More than 30 million Americans experience the painful chronic, recurring headache—a most unpleasant and serious health problem.

Chiropractic and medical research have shown that about 90% of chronic headaches are caused by mechanical irritation of the nerve roots in the neck, usually dating back to some previous trauma. Injury to the neck produces a mechanical derangement of the bony structure which causes the irritation of the nerve roots. The many nerves and vessels in the neck exert their function on the painful areas of the scalp, face and brain, and when the body is placed under stress, headaches develop. No therapeutic method even remotely approaches the value of CHIROPRACTIC in the correction of neck abnormalities that are the cause of a great percentage of chronic headaches.

Main busier than often thought

By W.W. EDGAR

Several years ago a circuit judge caused a furor among old-time Plymouth residents by referring to the city as a sleepy little city in the western suburbs.

If he were to return today he would find it far from being a sleepy little place. Instead he would find it one of the busiest and he would have to look no further than Main Street.

IT MAY COME as a suprise-even to old-timers-to learn that a recent count showed 7,397 cars traveled southbound from the C&O Railroad on Main Street in a 24-hour period. At the same time, about 9,303 autos traveled southbound at the intersection of Byron and Main Street.

These figures were made official in a traffic count taken recently by the city engineer. The count was taken as a matter of curiosity after a long line of cars was held up at the Main Street railroad crossing.

As the line strung out, with motors running, the question arose as to how many cars pass by each day and how much gas is wasted each time the crossing is blocked.

Several interesting facts were brought out in the traffic count. On this particular day (Aug. 17) some 712 cars passed southbound from the rail crossing between 4-5 p.m. It was the heaviest traffic flow of the day. It dropped back to 598 between 5-6 p.m.

Strangely, the heaviest flow on the southbound lanes at Byron came at the noon hour between 12-1 p.m. when 710 cars were checked. On the other hand, the low point came between 4-5 a.m. when only 23 cars passed on the southbound course from the rail crossing and only 24 on the northbound route at the Byron intersection.

Another interesting fact uncovered by the traffic count between 9-10 a.m. showed that there were 300 cars southbound from the railroad and 295 northbound, compared to 499 southbound from Byron and 408 on the northbound lanes.

And much to the suprise of many, the traffic over a 24-hour period is heavier at Byron and Main than it is at the railroad crossing and Main Street. The southbound lanes served 9,303 and the northbound 8,373 compared to the 24-hour period at Main and the railroad where 7,397 travelled southbound and 7,160 were counted in the northbound lanes

This means an average of 30 cars an hour travel southbound at the C&O and Main during a full swing of the hands around the clock and 39 on the southbound lanes at the Byron intersection.

This is proof that Plymouth no longer can be called a sleepy little city—even by a circuit judge.

Starting school extra painful this year

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI Starting school may be more painful than many children expect.

In addition to the usual drudgery of homework and getting to bed early. more than 17,000 new school children in 35 Wayne County school districts may have to bring their immunization records up to date. That means a series of vaccinations for many

The school entrance inmunization law requires that children entering Michigan schools for the first time be immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, polio, measles and German measles or rubella. New students in out-Wayne County schools must produce written evidence of having received vaccines against those

School children whose records are not up to date on Oct. 17 face being excluded from classes until their parents show the vaccines are being administered.

THE EXCLUSION program is in its second year in Wayne County school

Last year more than 4,150 out-Wayne County school children, about 24 per cent of all new students, were not adequately immunized. In several districts, said Dr. Perry Stearns, director of the Wayne County Health Department, more than half of all new school children were not fully immunized.

Last year, 415 students were excluded on Nov. 7, the first exclusion date. By the second exclusion date, Feb. 1, 246 students were excluded. And by the final May 1 exclusion date only 95 students had to be turned out of

According to Stearns, all but 15 returned to school.

Similar success, he said, is expected this year.

THERE IS A special stress on proper immunization this year. Wayne County health officials said.

Last winter's epidemic-level measles outbreaks in Wayne County and the rest of Michigan has stirred county health department into action.

More than 1,000 cases of measles were reported in out-Wayne County during the 1977-78 school year. Many of the persons afflicted with the diseases. he said, were in high school and

According to Stearns, the incidence of measles and rubella has been decreasing in the United States, but has jumped sharply in Michigan. While Michigan led the nation in the occurance of measles and rubella last year, Wayne County and Detroit accounted for a sizeble portion of the state total.

"They weren't properly immunized to begin with," Stearns said of the county residents who came down with the disease

That is a situation health department officials are trying to avoid by insuring that all Michigan students are properly immunized before starting school

THE NEEDED vaccines may be obtained either from private physicians and following Wayne County Health Department walk-in clinics: The Wayne County Health Department Eloise Clinic at the Merriman-Michigan intersection. The clinic is open from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Or. Wednesdays the clinic is open from 1 until 8 p.m.

I to 3:30 p.m. through October. For information regarding other clinic sites around Wayne County, call the health department at 729-2211, ext.

Stratford an idea of very unlikely pair

By SAM HUDSON

In the summer of 1953, as we drove through a small town in Canada, we saw a banner announcing the appearance of Alec Guinness in "Richard

As Shakespeare and Guinness buffs, we were tempted to try for tickets. But we shoved on and later learned that we missed the birth of the most critically acclaimed repertory theater in North America-the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Ontario.

ITS EXISTENCE was due to the work of an unlikely pair-Tom Patterson, who conceived the idea, and Tyrone Guthrie, who knew how to deliver it

Patterson, a "gentle little person" five-foot, six-inches tall, wrote for a Toronto trade journal. He was said to be an authority on municipal sewers.

Guthrie, a towering figure at sixfoot, four-inches, was an English-born Irish-Scot with icy blue eyes. A cousin of the late movie actor, Tyrone Power, he had a reputation as a director of Shakespeare.

Patterson, as a soldier, had seen opera in Italy and classical theater in England. A native of Stratford, he thought that a place so-named, with a river called Avon, and a street named Romeo, was a natural for an open-air Shakespearian festival. Promoting the idea, he bugged everyone he knew in local and national government.

He was thought to be out of his mind.

The Stratford Jaycees gave Patterson $50 to go to New York to approach Laurence Olivier. He could get nowhere near the great man.

A committee was formed in Stratford, and Patterson was authorized to phone Guthrie at his home in Ireland. The director agreed to visit Stratford to give his advice.

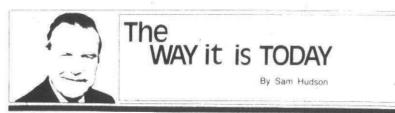

Guthrie told the committee he would direct the festival if the idea of an open air presentation was abandoned. "Open air performance," he wrote, "is only suitable for the kind of entertainment which can be absorbed with one ear, half and eye and almost no exertion of the intellectual faculties."

Guthrie recommended that a star and experienced theater personnel be employed. The production should take place on the sort of stage for which Shakespeare wrote his plays-a thrust platform with the audience almost surrounding the actors.

ALEC GUINNESS, who had worked with Guthrie on "HAMLET" in 1938. agreed to come from England to head the first cast.

His young son was ill, and Guinness thought a summer in a Canadian boy's camp would be good for the boy. The Guinness name helped make the first vear a success.

In the absence of a suitable building, Guthrie recommended a tent. Built in Chicago, and large enough to hold 1,500 spectators, it helped add glamour to the Festival.

The Festival's artistic creed-quality first-came from Guthrie. "We are not in the business of selling film stars with big tits," he told one writer.

At the beginning, there were those who thought the project would fail. Two members resigned from the committee. Most of the people in town were neutral.

"I do not suppose," Guthrie later observed, "that in the greatest Athenian glory, the majority, even of Athenian citizens, regarded the works of Phidias, Euripides or Plato as anything like so important and interesting as the current price of fruit."

The committee kept on. Not every decision was momentous. "We spent hours deciding whether or not popcorn was going to be sold in the theater," recalled one member.

Everyone was relieved on the night Alec Guinness stepped forth as Richard. "Now is the winter of our discontent Made glorious summer by this sun of Guthrie recalled that the committee's treasurer "was reported to be eating once more and only occasionally walking in his sleep.'

THAT WAS 25 years ago. This summer, we revisited Stratford to see the plays, and to observe the changes brought on by the passage of time and the success of Patterson's idea.

The tent was dismantled at the end of the 1956 season. It was succeeded by a magnificent auditorium in a beautifully landscaped park overlooking Lake Victoria. The Elizabethan balcony in the theater favored by Guthrie still is in use, but it has been made mobile. The theater seats more than 2,200 people. No spectator is more than 65 feet from the stage.

Guthrie, who left Stratford after the 1965 season, was knighted in 1961. He founded the Tyrone Guthrie Repertory Theatre in Minneapolis in 1963, and died at his home in Ireland in 1971 at

Two additional theaters have been opened. The Avon, a converted cinema, has been used since 1956. The Third Stage, on the same side of the lake as the big theater, opened in 1971.

The Festival has provided employment for many at the theaters and in the businesses which serve visitors. The Festival staff has grown to 120 permanent employees, a number which increase to more than 600 during the height of the season, June to mid-October.

Some 68,000 spectators attended in 1953; in 1977 the figure exceeded a half-million. There were only two productions in 1953, both by Shakespeare. In 1978, there were 17, including many not written by the Bard of Avon.

The city, with a population of 19,000 in 1953, now has 25,000. The same attractive old residences, adorned with perforated fretwork around the rooflines, grace maple-lined streets.

Accommodations have mushroomed. In 1953, there were two hotels and a motel with five rooms. It was difficult to get rooms in private homes. Today, in addition to the hotels, there are 14 motels; and private homes welcome guests with open arms.

There are many arts, crafts, and antique shops. The big British department store chain, Marks and Spencer.

now has a Stratford branch. The Stratford Country Club, within walking distance of the Festival Theatre, has grown from nine to 18 holes. So have the greens fees, now at $9 a round for weekdays.

The Park, the Avon River and Lake Victoria are as attractive as ever.

Most of the lake's 28 white and six black swans, said to be the most photographed birds on the continent came from the United States. In 1977 a small island in the lake was named for Tom Patterson, who started it all.

Some in the community may wish he hadn't. The majority are probably pleased that the idea Patterson refused to give up on has made their town world-famous.

Typical suburbanite except she's a compulsive eater

By NANCY AUSTIN

Joan (not her real name) is married, has three children and lives in a comfortable home in the suburbs. Her husband has a management-level position in a large corporation and his income provides Joan and the children with a comfortable life.

Tim, her husband, works from 8-5, and when home evenings likes to putter around the house or spend time with his children. Joan and Tim spend time caring for their finely furnished home, and their lawn is a carpet of green velvet.

By all standards, except for the minor ups and downs of everyday life, they are an ideal, average American family — with one exception. Joan is a compulsive eater.

YOU WOULDN'T KNOW this by observing Joan's eating pattern at a party, restaurant or perhaps while visiting a friend

The portions of food she chooses seem to be like those of a normal weight person or even a thin person; salads, vegetables, and a modest serving of meat. No desert or maybe a thin slice. Yet Joan weighs 250 lbs.

Behind a closed door in the privacy of her own home, Joan demonstrates a facet of her personality never visible to others, except the obvious results of a larger girth. For it is here that a hunger binge is born from a seemingly unimportant incident, frustration, or emotional quandry

Joan can't pinpoint what triggers her binges. All she knows is that in a short length of time she gorges herself on potato chips, cookies, peanuts, cake or ice cream-whatever is immediately available for eating. In a half an hour, she feels sickeningly full, overwrought with guilt and depressed about the additional weight which is now inevitable. She slumps into a chair, cries in despair, and wonders if she will ever be able to eradicate these self-destructive binges.

While this is not a report of a patient from medical annals or journals, it is a portrait of thousands of people, men and women, who act out this scene repeatedly in the course of a month or even weekly. The answers and hope for people living this nightmare has until now remained medically elusive.

But the fog is beginning to clear as researchers feverishly search for the answers which are hidden in the complex array of systems which sprawl through the human body. One such ray of hope is the discovery of the use of a drug called phenytoin. The results of its usage to help reduce the number of binges in a group of obese patients was encouraging. But until more thorough testing is completed only limited experimental usage of the drug will be permitted.

IN THE MEANTIME, there are steps that you can take to help prevent binging.

· Set up your environment so that binging is impossible by not buying the foods on which you binge.

· Trigger foods, such as potato chips, pretzels, and the like, should be avoided at all cost

· If you feel a binge coming on, talk to yourself about the harm it will do to you and how terrible it will make you feel after its over.

· Submerge yourself in some activity so completely that there is no room for thoughts of food.

· Finally, and most importantly, learn to identify what circumstances and emotions you were experiencing prior to the binge, WRITE IT DOWN: A pattern will emerge which will help you identify an impending crisis. You can then learn to cope with the offending irritant, if it cannot be removed Professional help may be necessary If

Looking like a bandaged pear

Good Grief. It's September already. And already I've started thinking about those months that follow, the cold ones when that white stuff keeps falling out of the sky and piling up everywhere. Contemplating dressing two preschoolers in their winter ensemble of coats, boots, leggings, scarves, mittens, etc., every time they want to go outside for 15 minutes has me walking around the house with a perpetual frown on my face.

Where has the summer gone? I was just getting tan enough to look almost presentable in my bathing suit (actually, I look sort of like a skinny pear wearing two bandages). But suddenly I see television commercials bombarding me with the news of halfoff sales on winter snuggies and how important it is to insulate your home. How dare they insist that I think about insulating my home while I'm sitting around in a tank top and cutoffs. Can't they just let me enjoy these last few days of warmth in peace without feeling the need to remind me to check my antifreeze?

It's not only the television set that is going against my campaign to keep summer around a little longer. Even Mother Nature is getting in her digs with little unpleasantries that cause me to find myself almost looking forward to cooler weather

NANCY WALLS SMITH

If this hay fever gets any worse, I'm going to have to have myself declared legally deaf due to chronic head stuffiness. days of summer so unpleasant and the first weeks of fall so lovely that we are lured into a false feeling of contentment with the way things are going. We don't come to our senses until we find ourselves in the middle of a bleak February, considering committing hari kari with our knitting needles. Or at least renting out one of the kids until the thaw.

When you stop to think about it, what's the purpose of winter anyway? People in California don't have it, and as far as I can tell, they don't seem at all deprived. Snow is a lovely thing on two days of the year-Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Any more than that just seems superfluous.

I suppose I wouldn't mind maybe a week or two of snow. Just enough so the kids could make a couple of snowmen and fall on their faces a few times. After that, when the novelty has completely worn off. I think it would be quite decent of the weatherman to let us go immediately into late spring.

Barriers approved

Following pressure from more than 330 residents who signed a petition, State Sen. Robert Geake, the Plymouth-Canton Community School Board and the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees, the state has agreed to erect a safety barrier at the M-14-Robinwood overpass in Plymouth Township. Highway officials said the barrier would be a high-priority item. Residents feared that children playing on the bridge railing might fall or otherwise injure themselves.

Of the many ballot proposals we will face in November, the one which deserves very close scrutiny before voting is Proposition H-the so-called voucher proposal.

The constitutional amendment, if approved, would result in all parents being alloted a certain amount of money which they could spend to send their children to public, private or parochial schools.

A very basic impact of the proposal is that it would virtually eliminate all use of property taxes for school financing. The funds, of course, would be generated by an increase in other taxes, although it's not known for certain now which taxes would go up.

Before commenting on Proposal H, it should first be noted that the barrage of ballot proposals can result in havoc depending upon which proposals receive voter approval.

On the one hand, the Headlee amendment seeks to limit taxation while the Tisch amendment wants to cut property taxes in half. Both Headlee and Tisch seek to at least stop the spiral in government costs. Proposal H, on the other hand, would increase the amount of tax dollars now spent by Michigan residents on education. Current figures indicate there are now some 200,000 students in the state attending private and parochial schools. The cost to the state, under the voucher plan, to educate these students would be some $300 million.

So what would happen if Headlee and the voucher plan both passed? The voucher plan would require taxpayers to come up with an additional $300 million from someplace, while Headlee would be limiting total state spending in a way so that it could not increase greater than the cost-of-living. Obviously, millions of bucks would have to be cut out of other programs to finance the voucher plan.

The stickler is that both are constitutional amendments and, if approved, both would carry equal weight and would have to be enforced-inspite of any conflict of

BUT I HAVE more to worry about the voucher plan than how it might conflict with Tisch or Headlee.

What concerns me is that the voucher plan, in my opinion, is a serious frontal attack on public education in Michigan.

Furthermore, it's a misuse of public tax funds you and I pay under the pretense that it will be spent for public

The voucher plan is parochiaid in disguise. And most of us can remember what an emotional battle was fought a few years ago when state voters turned down the parochiaid

Unfortunately, the voucher plan could generate the same peak of emotion that we experienced in the past. The reason is that the issue gets clouded by those who argue for or against the use of public tax funds for church-supported schools. I don't believe that the church-state separation argument is the most central issue involved with the voucher plan.

There are many excellent private schools which offer an alternative education for parents whose children, for one reason or another, are not having their individual needs met by the public schools. Some of these excellent schools are church supported; many, however, are not.

The voucher proposal aims to benefit parents whose children attend private schools, irregardless of any relationship to a religious organization. It makes no difference whether the school is private or parochial-the financial support would be made

Thus the distinction which should be made is public versus non-public. And the question becomes whether public funds should be used to support nonpublic schools? Or, put more succinctly, should public funds be spent for non-public purposes?

THE ARGUMENT, of course, is that the public funds are not going directly to the non-public schools but to parents who decide against enrolling their children in public schools.

Thus, the argument goes, the public funds are being spent to benefit children who are citizens of the state and have the same claim to public funds as other children. The argument suggests that children attending non-public schools are being discriminated against because their parents do not receive the same kind of return in services for their taxes as other

Well, I just cannot buy that argument. In fact, I think it is totally lacking in logic and is constructed only in a weak attempt to justify the voucher

The basic constitutional requirement we all live under, and have since Michigan became a state, is that the state is required to provide a public education to all its children. That is the only legal basis for spending tax funds on education.

Whenever parents, for whatever good reason, decide against enrolling their children in a public school they walk out from underneath the umbrella of the constitutional requirement. They also make a deliberate choice to become ineligible to receive public tax funds. And there's nothing unjust about that

I make a decision to become ineligible for certain public tax funds (unemployment payments) when I decide to continue working. I become ineligible for certain other public funds when my income reaches a point where I don't qualify for free school lunches or subsidized interest on a house mortgage. I become ineligible for state transportation funds if I choose to purchase a home within 1.5 miles of the school my child attends.

There are dozens of choices you and I make which determine whether we are eligible or not for certain public funds. And one of those choices is whether our children attend a public or non-public school.

Yes, it is a financial burden to pay tuition for a non-public school and still pay property taxes to support public schools. But it's also a financial burden to pay taxes to support jails, mental institutions, and social services we may never make use of or for buses we may never ride or for state parks 200 miles away we may never visit,

And, yes, some parents cannot afford the tuition payments in the first place. But money is a key ingredient in the decision-making process we all undergo. If we can't afford a three bedroom home, we settle for a two bedroom, even if two of the children have to share a bedroom. If we can't afford a private school which we think offers the most for our children, then we settle for public school.

After all, we make the same choice when voting on school millage proposals. We vote on what we think we can afford, and decide to forego some quality which might be desirable, but not worth the higher cost. And that same choice must be made by those who desire non-public education.

To use public funds for non-public purposes would be a breach of contract between government and taxpayer. It could destroy public education, as we know it today, and would unquestionably result in an overall tax increase for all Michigan taxpayers. We need to take a close, cool, look at Proposal H.

Helping in politics can advance legal career

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

(First of two articles) You're interested in a successful career as a lawyer? In Wayne and Oakland counties, it might cost you some cold cash above and beyond the law school tuition. It's not bribery, but some lawyers and judges say it works just as well.

The system is simple. The season is any election year. The transactions are campaign contributions. The recipients are judges. And the contributors are some of the same lawyers who practice before the judges regularly.

If you contribute, some members of the legal community say, good fortune will smile upon you and your clients. If you don't, you're in for some tough legal sledding.

In return for campaign contributions, critics claim, judges can deliver favorable rulings and dole out lucrative court assignments.

There are, of course, those who say "Bah, Humbug" and "Hogwash."

Members of the legal establishemnt, said West Bloomfield attorney Stuart Brickner, are reluctant to correct the system even though "everyone knows what's going on.'

"No one wants to kill the goose that lays the golden egg," says Brickner, who has devoted years to studying the

He has run for Oakland County Circuit Court three times and has tried to raise the judge-lawyer money pipeline as an issue in each unsuccessful try for the bench. He says Oakland County's legal establishment and 'powerbrokers' have worked against his campaigns in the past.

NO ONE DENIES that lawyers pump vast amounts of money into judicial campaigns—especially the reelection drives of incumbents.

In the judicial elections of 1974 and 1976, for example, attorneys Bruce Leitman, Stanley W. Kurzman and Richard A. Campbell contributed more than $3,000 to a number of

In the elections of 1972 and 1974, attorneys Walter R. Denison, Daniel C. Devine, Gerald R. Bartush and Charles J. Porter threw nearly $2,500 to candidates for Oakland County Circuit Court, Probate Court, the state Appeals Court and Supreme Court.

Oakland Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert, of Birmingham, raised nearly $60,000 for her primary and general election campaigns in 1976. Much of that money came from attorneys.

No studies, however, have been done establishing any definite connections between campaign contributions and preferential treatment.

"In an election year, I and a lot of other attorneys spend thousands of dollars," said Judith Dennehy Doran, a candidate for the Oakland County Circuit Court bench in November. "I'm not sure they (the contributions) are at all helpful to my practice.'

She estimates that she sends between $1,200 and $2,000 to various judicial candidates in any one election

LAWYERS AND JUDGES say there's nothing wrong with the system. They say very few people take any interest in judicial races and it's up to them to put the best and the brightest on the bench.

Most lawyers uniformly discount the claim that they have to grease the palms of judges they deal with.

That opinion is not universal, though. A group of lawyers and judges, including Brickner and Mrs. Doran, is trying to implement a system to end the stumping for campaign money which accompanies every judicial race. Even members of the "Fair Committee," however, say the abuses are few and far between.

Their main concern is the judiciary's public image.

"SUPPOSE YOUR LAWYER had made no contributions (to a judge hearing your case)" suggests Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Victor J. Baum, of Livonia, chairman of the ad hoc Fair Committee.

"Say the other lawyer made a contribution of $350. Say all the judge's calls were pretty much against you. Or say the decision went against you. What would you think?

"What does it do to the public's confidence?"

A judge may not overtly throw a case, warns Baum, a 21-year veteran of the Wayne County Circuit Court

STUART H. BRICKNER No golden egg?

Very subtly, he says, a judge can make life easier for a lawyer who has helped grease his election skids.

"Suppose there's a lawyer who's just great at final arguments. That's his strength and everybody knows it. Then there's another lawyer, who happened to contribute to the relection campaign. This lawyer's just so-so at oral argument.

"The judge decides that there'll only be four or five minutes for final arguments. Why, that's not enough time for the dynamite speaker to get warmed up. It'd be a definite advantage to the campaign contributor," he says.

Baum likes to speak in suppositions. He believes there are actually very few abuses. Most of them, he says, have occurred in Detroit's and Wayne County's courts.

BRICKNER IS MORE direct. He says point blank that judges "reward" lawyers who contribute to their campaign warchests.

"What happens," he says, "is the incumbents have the lawyers to use as a base. They have patronage to dole out. It works the same way as government does."

The "patronage," Brickner argues, is in the form of assignments. Judges can appoint lawyers to handle divorce cases, affairs for business which have gone into receivership, certain probate estates as well as the customary appointments to handle indigent cases.

Judges can also determine how much money in fees the lawver will receive. In some cases, Brickner says, judges can even "order fees above the statutory limit."

"For an incumbent judge to raise campaign money is as easy as falling off a log," Baum says. "If a man is a trial lawyer, he has a very difficult time saying 'no.'

"They're fearful of incurring the ill will of sitting judges," he says.

"I know. I felt the pressure when I was practicing law many years back," he adds.

No deals are cut, Baum and others say. It's all implied.

ONCE AGAIN, established lawyers and judges discount such charges. "Brickner is wrong," one Oakland County lawyer said flatly. "If a business is in financial trouble and a receiver is appointed-there's darn good fees in that," he said. "But I doubt if a judge would have enough cases of that type to reward their contributors.

As for assignments to indigent defendents in criminal cases, Oakland County Circuit Court Chief Judge Steven Andrews said they are not that frequent and pay only about $200 an assignment.

According to Andrews and his secretary, any lawyer who wants to receive criminal assignments contacts the court. Their names, they say, are put on a revolving list.

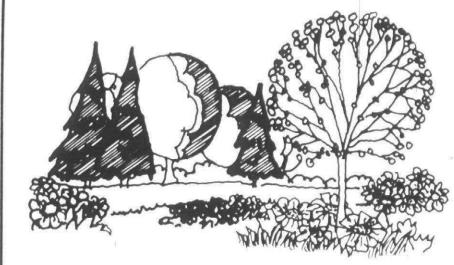

THERE MAY BE FEW abuses, but Baum, Brickner and others say judges, reelection committees and influential legal groups can and do strongarm attorneys into campaign contributions.

It prompted Michigan State Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Levin to write: "The pressure that some judges have brought to bear on lawyers to raise money and to contribute to their campaigns has reached such scandalous proportions in the populous counties of southeastern Michigan as to require that safeguards be erected in the interest of sound administration of justice for the protection of the profession and public

"I am convinced," he added, "that nothing short of a complete ban on any solicitation by a lawyer of funds for a judicial campaign can alleviate the pressure on lawyers to raise money for incumbents from other lawyers and other persons.

Bright future exists for Plymouth specialty shops

By JACK BOLOGNA

A recent article in the Harvard Business Review, "The Next Revolution of the Retailing Wheel," should gladden the hearts of many local retailers.

The authors, Malcolm P. McNair and Eleanor G. May, suggest that specialty shops which offer personal service, fashion, prestige and ego-enhancement, have a bright future indeed.

The authors conclude that the "automobile age" will shortly be displaced by the "electroncic age." In the future, shopping for staples will be done by telecommunication.

THIS SCENARIO may sound like science-fiction to you now, but in 10 years it may become an accepted practice, according to the authors.

Mrs. Jones, about to retire for the evening, suddenly remembers she must do the family grocery shopping for the next week.

Does she get on her coat, hat, purse, car keys and trudge out into the cold night? No. she doesn't. She proceeds to the kitcher, removes the cover from her cole, -screer mini-computer terminal, pushes an entry key and in an instant, a display of fresh fruits and vegetables pops into view.

She likes the looks and price of the pears or apples or whatever and next enters her order. She does the same for meats, dairy items, baked and canned goods and sundries. When her order is completed, she notifies the store's computer of her bank account number to transfer funds for payment and indicates she will pick up the order at 9:30 a.m. Total elapsed time: 10 minutes.

The next morning her order is waiting at curbside—no looking for empty shopping carts, no weighing up of fruit, no bread squeezing, and long, long check-out lines.

THE TRUST OF the McNair-May article deals with the authors' perception that shopping for staples is a "chore" for many consumers.

It takes time which they increasingly begrudge; time which could be better used for more enjoyable pursuits, like hobbies, sports, community activities and shopping in specialty

The good news for Plymouth retailers is that specialty shopping is not perceived as a chore by consumers.

Specialty shopping is considered fun. The consumer's ego is involved in specialty shopping. Buying that new high fashion dress, a unique gift, that new tennis outfit or a rare wine for home entertainment is not a bore. Time for this sort of shopping is not begrudged. When you couple that with knowledgeable, friendly, helpful salespeople-a warm, personal relationship-shopping becomes a job. So take heart, those of you who labor in the specialty store vineyards, better times may be coming.

Detroit water audit mandated by law

Suburban customers of the Detroit water and sewer system will have a clearer picture of the system's financial affairs under a new state law.

The law was sponsored by State Rep. John Bennett (D-Redford) and signed by Gov. Milliken.

Another bill sponsored by Bennett to give suburban customers a voice in the operation of the water system was approved by the house but has been stalled in committee in the state

THE NEW LAW requires the Detroit Water and Sewer Department be audited annually by certified public accountants selected by the state legislative auditor general. The results of the audit will be made public and submitted to the governing body of each local unit of government served by the system before Dec. 1 each year.

The new law further requires that there be at least one public hearing 120 days before any proposed rate increase is scheduled to take effect. Each local unit will have to be notified of the hearing by mail.

"The new law will ensure that local units served by the Detroit water system have reliable information about the financial operation of the water department," Bennett said. "In the past, these communities have often had difficulty in obtaining information justifying rate increases and the financing of proposed capital improvement programs.

The required public hearings will provide suburban customers with some input into the rate-setting process and, together with the independent audit. They will help to expose deficiencies in the management of the department, Bennett said.

THE OTHER BILL which is stalled in a senate committee would restructure the water board to nine members, with four appointed by suburban customers and five appointed by the mayor of Detroit, who currently appoints all seven members.

Although the bill cleared the house more than a year ago, it has been stalled in the senate municipalities and elections committee. Bennett said he will try once more in the fall session to get the bill reported out and passed.

Bennett added, "Since the suburban water customers provide about 80 per cent of the operating revenues of the water system, it is imperative that the suburbs have a strong voice in its operation to make sure that the system is operated in an efficient manner for the benefit of all its customers."

Hang on to farmland

There are some things that can't be replaced. One of those things is farmland. Canton's agricultural acres are at the heart of a controversial question slated to appear on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

The question asks, in essence, if Canton should purchase development rights to its farmland to form a permanent agricultural district.

Although it means Canton residents will pay four more mills during a 20-year period if they choose to approve the proposal, studies say the move will keep taxes lower in the long run.

There are no guarantees, however.

Yes, there will be problems if the proposal is

But look around you at some of the older Detroit area suburbs and you will see why we support this

There is a pattern to the rise and fall of a suburban community. First, there is an exodus from one place to another. It happened during the 1950s when such communities as Redford Township and Garden City grew. It is happening in Canton now.

People moved into these new suburbs from Detroit in search of their own patch of green, in search of a quiet place to raise their children, in search of a life style they couldn't find in an older city setting

As more people made the move out of the city, schools in the new suburbs sprouted and communities struggled with the problems of rapid growth. Canton residents know all about these problems, because they face them now.

Schools are full to capacity. There aren't enough sewer lines to accommodate new homes. Subdivisions and shopping centers spring up overnight. Rural becomes urban.

There is a time when a suburb seems to strike a perfect balance, when it is a vigorous, healthy happy community.

It seems like everyone wants to get in on a good thing, so the community grows and grows until it can't grow any more.

Since no one tries to control that growth, it goes with little direction.

League's work cut out

Our friends in the League of Women Voters have their work cut out for them this year. Michigan's Nov. 7 ballot will have 11 state proposals to confuse the voter

The league, you will recall, is the nonpartisan group that researches public issues and works to inform all voters about them. The 4,000 Michigan members decided last year to make a two-year project of studying the financing of government services

It's not theoretical study. No less than six ballot proposals-including two tax limitation amendments—have fiscal implications. Most of the 11 ballot proposals were put there by special interest groups with something to gain, and so it will be refreshing to have the League of Women Voters shed its impartial light.

The league was founded in 1920 as an outgrowth of the old National American Women's Suffrage Association. Once the women got suffrage, the organization kept going in order to help inform 20 million new voters. In the process, it has helped enlighten more than a few men, too

We have a selfish interest in seeing the league probe into these thorny issues with us. We've worked on many projects together. Our unselfish motive in raising this topic is to remind everyone that Sept. 10-16 is League of Women Voters Week. Happy 58th anniversary!

People are fickle. When they get boxed into their subdivisions, they think again of the pleasures of open spaces. The ones who can afford it move on. The ones who can't stay and become senior citizens with limited budgets.

Schools close. Businesses move on to greener pastures. It happens over and over again.

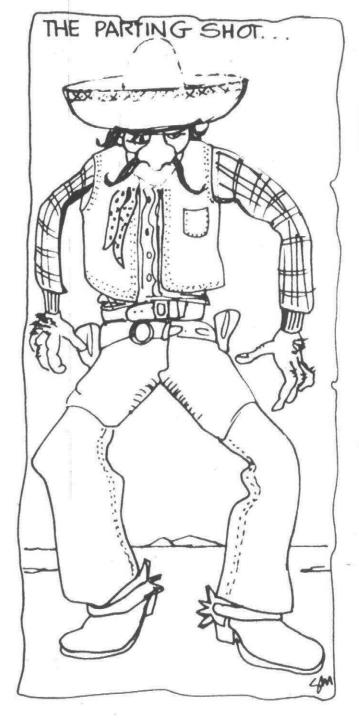

There is little reason to expect the pattern to change if Canton trades in its future for present gratification.

Maybe the energy crisis will prevent the constant moving further out from Detroit. Maybe some of the substantial houses springing up in Canton will become too big to heat and too roomy for smaller families.

But most likely, the way to keep Canton vibrant is to keep it the same kind of community that made it desirable in the first place.

We must realize that maintaining an agricultural district brings with it a passel of problems. After all, small farms aren't economically feasible

But worse problems come from uncontrolled growth. We don't need to predict the future. We only need to look around us.

An untouchable tax-raiser

It is fashionable, in the Headlee and Tisch antitax circles, to rant at "politicians" and "bureaucrats" as the perpetrators of excessive taxing and spending.

Students of statecraft, however, know the real world is considerably more baffling to deal with. Politicians and bureaucrats aren't entirely to blame.

A case in point is an arbitrator's award to Local 502 of the National Union of Police Officers. That local represents 650 deputies in the Wayne County sheriff's department.

So incensed are the folks who have to pay the bill—the Wayne County Board of Commissioners that they have voted to appeal the arbitrator's decision to the State Supreme Court.

In their view, the arbitrator is the bad guy. The board is 26-1 Democratic, and the object of their disaffection is William Haber, PhD, revered expert on labor economics, former dean at the University of Michigan, former head of the Michigan Democratic Party's Haber Commission on party reform, and so on.

THE COUNTY, you must understand, is reeling under a $12 million deficit. Vice-chairman Richard Manning (D-Redford) says the wage and fringe improvements in Haber's award would cost the county nearly $2.5 million this year and more than $3.8 million next year.

The real blow, however, is that the county figures it will have to lay off 600 regular and 300 federally-subsidized CETA workers. In other words, 900 workers-15 per cent of the total general government work force of 5,600-may get the axe in order to pay off the deputies.

(If it strikes you as odd that the improvements for 650 deputies are the equivalent of the total costs for 900 other workers, the explanation is that many of the other workers are paid only partly by county funds and largely by federal funds.)

The county can't lay off the deputies to cut costs. The arbitrator's award says it is "mandatory that the sheriff maintain a minimum standard of personnel safety, and that the number of budgeted positions in each division, as of July 1, 1974, shall be maintained. The detective bureau shall be maintained at its budgeted strength as of July 1,

The deputies are to get wage increases of 7.7, 5 and 5 per cent over three years, dental insurance, a group plan for insuring their personal automobiles, a cost-of-living increase for retirees, removal of the ceiling on cost-of-living allowances, use of 25 per cent of the county's computer time for processing of union grievances-and on and on.

TOUGH LUCK for the politicians, you say? Think again. If deputies can't be laid off, then senior citizens services, hospital services, public health services and the like may go. You may have to stand in longer lines to do business with the county. The suburban goal of an out-county service center may go down the tube.

The people elected the county commissioners. Yet they don't have the freedom to balance and juggle between essential services. An arbitrator has thrown a cloak of sanctity over one gorup group of employees, and other services can go Haber isn't one of those elected politicians or bureaucrats Headlee and Tisch talk about. Yet he may wind up having more to say about the course of county government than any single politician, bureaucrat or group of voters.

Arbitrators and courts are running up the costs of government all over the place. Haber isn't the only one running amok.

In such an atmosphere of adjudicated expenditures, we should be wary about bowing to the altar of "tax limitation" for our governmental salvation. Our collective bargaining and arbitration laws, rather, demand some scrutiny.

he Stroller How not to sell politics for state office. It was an attractive brochure. It was well laid out, and the type was easy on the eye. But it was

It contained very few words about the candidate. It didn't reveal his plans or promises. It mentioned little about his background or what brought him to Instead, it contained nothing but criticism of his opponent in the Nov. 7 election. He went into great detail to explain the alleged shortcomings of the man he hopes to defeat.

As The Stroller read it, he couldn't believe the game of politics had fallen so low, for the criticism bordered on character assassination. And he couldn't help wondering if salesmanship had become a lost art.

SITTING THERE with brochure in hand, The Stroller recalled an episode in his life that dealt with the purchase of an automobile.

One evening a friend called with the hope of selling him a Chevrolet. At the time, The Stroller was driving one of the early Model A Fords.

The salesman friend started his pitch by denouncing the Ford car. He called attention to almost every part of the car and attempted to show it didn't compare in quality with the Chevrolet. He didn't point out the features of his product. He did nothing but condemn the Ford. The Stroller didn't respond to the sales talk. He kept the Ford. Later on, due to a switch in sentiment, The Stroller and his wife came into possession of a Chevrolet.

Would you believe it? The same old friendly salesman called one evening. This time his sales pitch was different. He was now selling Ford cars... When he started to talk, he immediately dwelt on the good points of the Ford. Here The Stroller stopped him.

"I remember the night," The Stroller said, "when you told me the Ford could not compete with the Chevrolet. How come you have changed your mind?"

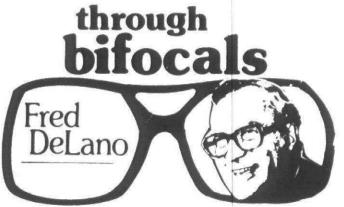

The salesman was silent. He had learned a lesson. He had learned you can't sell Fords by knocking Chevrolets. It is a lesson our political candidate could learn, too.

THE STROLLER also recalls the experience he had with a good sporting goods salesman. The salesman had been a bit down on his luck, and he asked The Stroller to intercede for him in getting an order from the football coach.

"Don't go in to see him and beg for an order," The Stroller told him. "Take the positive approach. Take that frown off your face. Walk in smiling and offer him the opportunity to buy from

He did just that. He got the order and went on to become the top sporting goods salesman in

The Stroller looked at the political brochure again and wondered if the present generation has lost the art of selling its own product.

A judge who was explicit in sentencing

Chances are extremely slim that any of you ever had the pleasure of knowing personally one Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales. He made it to the big leagues in only one sense, and then only indirectly as the motivating force behind a literary Cosmopolites probably would have nicknamed him Joe. To our Jewish friends he might have been Manny. The Irish probably would have dubbed him Mike. In a priest's confessional, Xavier would have fit to some degree.

It took an Irishman, Foley by name—who admits there's a bit of Scotch in his blood (water on the side, please)—to bring Senor Gonzales to my attention.

OF ALL THE Foleys in the phone directory, the one referred to happens to go by Thomas J. Foley. Although it is his nature to smile and laugh more than frown and growl, this strapping six-foot-plus ex-footballer wears black so often one might think him a professional mourner.

He isn't, of course. In real life, Tom is a judge of the Third Judicial Circuit of Michigan, headquartered in Detroit's City-County Building.

IN NO WAY can this be interpreted as a campaign plug for Tom. He doesn't need it, for like nine other incumbents on the Wayne County Circuit Court bench, he is unopposed for re-election.

What it is, instead, is an explanation of how I came to know of Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales.

Like every Irishman I've ever known, Tom enjoys a chuckle. Oldtime football fans may remember him as Red Foley, an outstanding end first at Southeastern High School and then the University of Detroit under Gus Dorais.

He had to be tough both places, just as he did as a Navy lieutenant on the USS Sangamon, which was one of our ships blown out of the water at

From the Detroit legal firm of Goetz, Goetz & Foley, specializing in corporate law, Tom jumped to the bench in the election of '66. His unopposed re-election in '72 has kept him there to this day, commuting from the home he has occupied for 25 years in Plymouth Township.

NOT TOO LONG AGO, Michigan's Supreme Court instructed all circuit judges that their records be absolutely explicit at the time of sentencing. Red Foley asked the chief justice if such as the following would be explicit enough. It is a verbatim transcript of a sentence imposed upon a defendant in the Federal District Court of the Territory of New Mexico in 1881. He thought I might enjoy it too. So may you:

"Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales, in a few short weeks it will be spring. The snows of winter will flee away, the ice will vanish, and the air will become soft and balmy. In short, Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales, the annual miracle of the years will awaken and come to pass, but you won't

"From every tree top some wild woods songster will carol his mating song, butterflies will sport in the sunshine, the busy bee will hum happy as it pursues its accustomed vacation. The gentle breeze will tease the tassles of the wild grasses. and all nature, Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales, will be glad, but you.

"You won't be here to enjoy it because I command the sheriff or some other officers of the country to lead you out to some remote spot, swing you by the neck from a knotting bough of some sturdy oak, and let you hang until you are dead.

"And then, Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales, I further command that such officers retire quickly from your dangling corpse, that vultures may descend from the heavens upon your filthy body until nothing shall remain but bare, bleached bones of a cold-blooded, copper-colored, bloodthirsty, throat-cutting, chili-eating, sheep-herding, murdering son-of-a-bitch."

MUCH THE SAME yarn is told in H. Allen Smith's "Lost in the Horse Latitudes," but Smith went on to quote what the accused then told the judge. In part, it allegedly went like this:

"That I have taken human life I do not deny, but it was under circumstances of the greatest provocation. So determined was this court to add another to its already long list of slaughtered victims that I early foresaw my doom was sealed.

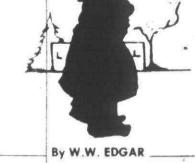

"You and your blood-thirsty jury remind me more of a lot of buzzards hovering an expected victim than of a body of men supposed to guard and honor the principles of human justice. Hear me, you half-starved hyena! You cannot break my

"As I gaze into your bloated, whiskey-fogged face, I find no surprise at your conduct. With mock solemnity and cruel sarcasm, you have consigned me to an ignominious death.

"Very well, you disheveled barbarian, you wild-eyed, dirty-nosed, pot-gutted, carnivorous offspring of a cross-eyed maggot. I want you to understand that your words hold no terror for me.

"As for hanging by the neck until I am dead may God blast your dirty old soul." Was that the end of it? Not quite. Legend has it that Jose Manuel Miguel Xavier Gonzales broke jail a couple of days later, escaped into the hills, and was never recaptured.

In the flood of junk mail that finds its way into The Stroller's mailbox almost every morning, there came a brochure from one of the candidates one of the strangest bits of campaign literature The Stroller has ever received.

mentions Tanzania as the place where they posed. Tanzania is the country in east Africa which provides the Serengeti and other national parks. Tanzania also is an east African country which hasn't banned the professional hunting of wildlife, let alone made any attempt to crack down on poaching and the black market.

I suppose a society that takes pleasure (or at the very least, doesn't take umbrage) at the flaunting of fox tails on a shawl, and opossum paws on a collar and mink in all kinds of ghastly lengths, wouldn't be too concerned about the fact that the very last place on earth that might house the last of our big and wild animals is the very place making money on the slaughtering of those animals.

You can find a wastebasket or umbrella stand of elephant feet, but it's getting harder to find elephants. You can find dik-dik horns and hooves going for an incredible amount of money because they are labelled "aphrodisiac," but you aren't seeing many dik-diks. You are seeing samples of wild animals at various zoos and roadside parks, but the animals managing to reproduce in such caged and captive places are smaller, less agile, and increasingly unlike their ancestors.

As a matter of fact, "storybook" may be a good term for Fred Bear's long and bloody life—he's comfortable with the idea that his bow and arrow were no match against an unarmed creature, and that luck and a certain amount of skill are the only things that saved him from a horrible death.

No animal would have charged all the way from Tanzania to stomp Fred Bear or any of his fellow "sports" men-where does the "sports" aspect enter into any of this? Where men are defined by their blood lust and women by the dead animals on their backs (and elsewhere), the "sports" aspect is indeed a storybook life.

Shorter day irks parent

Your news article with headline "Shortened school day irks working parents" irked me. I am not a working parent, but am still very upset about the 45 minutes of school that my child

I am irked, not because she is home longer in the morning one day a week, but because out of the 37-week school year she will lose the equivalent of a whole week of school. Education is too important for a child to miss that much schooling.

Supt. John Hoben claims this cut is absolutely necessary, along with several others. Yet as soon as the millage failed they were all voted salary increases. When the people see cuts made at the administrative levels and the assistant to the assistant of the assistant position totally eliminated and not merely transferred to another assistant, then the millages will pass.

I voted for the millages for the only reason that I am tired of seeing the children being punished because the board did not get its way and threw a temper tantrum.

Taxpayers are fed up

City officials may be in a dilemma because of the likely passage of the Headlee constitutional amendment in November, but taxpayers are in a spot every time government spends money and then raises taxes to pay the bill. Not withstanding the merits of Plymouth's street bonding needs, citizens should have a voice when government spends more than authorized

With the stroke of a pen, state and local government have been able to increase revenues without a vote of the people. The Headlee tax limitation proposal was introduced to help the taxpayer leve within his budget-by asking government to do the same.

Voters can intelligently render decisions on tax issues, and the Headlee amendment gives citizens representation when state and municipal spending exceeds authorized levels

The widespread interest in both the Tisch and Headlee amendments is an encouraging sign that taxpayers are fed up with leaving taxing powers in the hands of a few legislators and administrators. Rather than a cloud. tax limitation clears the air for fiscal responsibility.

Lest some public official tell us how irresponsible voters are, remember the words of Thomas Jefferson: "Hell has no fury like vested interest parading as a moral virtue

Geake announces support for Headlee tax limit

State Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) recently endorsed the proposed Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment before a group of teachers, members of a profession traditionally opposed to the concept.

At the same time, the 42-year-old legislator blasted the proposed Tisch and School Voucher plans calling them "contrary to the best interests of education and the people of Michigan."

During a speech to South Redford teachers, Geake supported the Headlee proposal which he, as co-founder of Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation, helped write. Geake is a member of the group's legislative advisory committee.

"I firmly believe that the Headlee proposal represents a sound and logical approach to halting the rapid growth in state spending," he said. "It would allow the overall state budget to grow in line with available revenues, safeguard the right of local communities to determine their own spending priorities and give voters control over new taxes."

"It would not result in drastic cutbacks in funding for vital state services, such as education." he said "It would simply force the legislature to do what it should have been doing all along-set priorities and live within our taxpayers' means.

If approved by the voters this November, the Headlee proposal would freeze state spending at its current level, which is about 9.4 per cent of the combined personal incomes in Michigan.

It would also require the state to back up with financial support any state-mandated programs, limit reve-

Three planned Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation road construction and improvement projects will be of particular interest to western Wayne County residents. Bids will be taken on these projects as well as 57 nues from local property taxes to the rate of inflation and require voter approval of increases in local taxes.

In comparison, Geake said the Tisch proposal would have a "devastating effect on governmental services."

"Funding for vitually every state service, including education, would have to be slashed unbearably," he said. "There's nothing I would rather see than the fat cut out of our state budget. The Tisch proposal, however, would go much further than that. It would delve into the muscle, right to the bone in many cases.

"California is just now beginning to feel the impact of passage of its tax cut proposal, which was similar to the propsoed Tisch amendment. I hope our voters will have the foresight to leave California's severe financial problems right where they are," Geake added.

The Tisch plan calls for a 50 per cent cut in property taxes and a limitation on annual property tax increases to $2^{1/2}$ per cent.

It would allow an increase of one per cent in the state income tax and permit local income taxes to be levied, if approved by the voters.

Geake also declared that the proposed school voucher amendment poses a serious threat to both public and non-public education as we know it in our state today.

The school voucher plan would eliminate property taxes as a means of financing schools and leave it up to the legislature to raise the state income tax and the single business tax to compensate for the lost funding

"With total funding for education appropriated and disbursed by the state, it is entirely conceivable that local control over public education would be eliminated." he said.

Rocks bomb WL Western on 4th quarter blitz

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Plymouth Salem outscored Walled Lake Western 21-2 in the final period enroute to a ridiculously easy 64-33 victory as the girls basketball season opened in the Salem gymnasium Tuesday night.

It was a sweet debut for coach Bob Blohm, whose Rocks were in control the entire game despite typical firstgame errors by both teams.

"We were pleased to win," the new Salem coach said. "We are always glad to take the first game, but Western came in here with a new coach and young team and they played their

Salem jumped to a quick 9-2 lead midway in the first quarter but found itself in a struggle the rest of the first half before blowing out the Warriors in the final two periods of play.

The Rocks' awesome front line of Erin Moore, Diane Goodrich and junior Patty Weidman was clearly the dominate factor in the game, outrebounding the smaller Walled Lake squad, 53-15, while scoring the majority of the points.

Moore led the charges with 17 points, while Weidman and Goodrich added 12 and 11 points respectively. All Blohm used all 13 players in the game, as 11 girls registered in the scoring column.

Perhaps the brightest spot in the back court for the Rocks was the play of freshman Eileen Moore, Erin's younger sister, who displayed solid ball-handling skil and an the ability to run the offense.

ALTHOUGH THE ROCKS held an early lead, Western's full-court pressure forced several Rock turnovers. The Rocks held an 11-6 first quarter lead but watched the Warriors pull within three points, 22-19, with only three minutes left in the half.

Salem scored the final three baskets of the first half, however, to take a 28-19 lead at halftime. Western never came closer after that, and the Rocks held a 43-31 lead after three quarters

Blohm was fairly pleased with the way his Rocks handled the Western 2-3 zone defense, but he was not happy with the way the full-court pressure bothered his team.

"We played together as a team but we didn't coordinate well," Blohm said. "What concerned me was not setting the tempo of the game. They flustered us early in the game with the

The Plymouth Salem girls' swim team, under the coaching of Chuck Olson, is aiming for its third consecutive Suburban Eight League championship. Salem has not lost a league title since Olson took over as head coach.

Again this season, Jim Shinn will assist Olson. He has been the diving coach since 1972. Barb Butts, a student teacher at Central Middle School, will also work with the swimmers.

In two years, Olson has compiled an impressive 22-2 win ; loss record. Last year, Salem went 11-1, losing only to Livonia Stevenson. The high point of the season was winning the Redford Union Relays. Participants in the RU relays are 11 of the most respected teams in southeast Michigan. The girls topped off their season by winning the Sub-8 meet by an astonishing 111 for the first time win dual meet victories over Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison.

Despite the successful dual meet season, the Chiefs were able to rank just fifth in the Western Six League.

Hopes for even more improvement this season rest with Cindy Shelansky and Kim Massey, who return to the line-up after outstanding seasons last Shelansky, a senior co-captain, was an all-state backstroker as a junior. Massey, only a sophomore, was the first-ever Canton freshman to qualify for the state meet in freestyle sprints.

Other Canton swimmers who will be important factors this season include sophomores Lisa Forsythe (individual medley), Mary Reardon (all strokes), Julie Stratton (backstroke-freestyle), and Karen Miller (breaststroke-freestyle). Reardon competed in AAU swimming over the summer for added training.

Returning junior Sue Knight is also a mainstay at breaststroke, while sophomore divers Jamie Zuverink and Chris Wennerburg return for another

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR Sports Editor

Gridders better than expected

A most successful opening week for both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem football teams also resulted in one of the most disastrous starts the Good Doctor has ever experienced in his predicting career.

Say what you will about those Livonia Bentley injuries, but the fact still remains Canton shut out the Bulldogs, 12-0, Friday night for its firstever opening season victory

I could say it was just a typographical error when last week's paper read "Bentley by 12" rather than "Canton by 12," but I must admit the only error was made by the predicter. himself.

It wasn't one of the strongest Bentley squads in recent years, but one can't take away from the fact that the Chiefs came out ready to play, hit some people on the interior line, and played with the kind of inspiration that makes a team a winner.

Coach Dave Schuele says he played conservatively in the final quarter. and didn't open up the offense because of the 12-point lead at halftime. But it was apparent, no matter what style of play was exhibited, that the Chiefs throughly dominated the entire game.

And this has to be a positive sign for any fan who has followed the Chiefs in the short six-year history of the school. This was only the 10th victory for the Canton football program and the third since Schuele took over the squad in

The thing which excites me the most is knowing that the Chiefs are actually capable of playing good football. This is a feeling which I haven't had for the past four years. I definitely saw some talented athletes on the Bentley gridiron last Friday night. The prospect of the Chiefs winning more games this season isn' all that unrealistic.

I said last week that if Canton beat Bentley (and I didn't think they would), there was a chance for the Chiefs to win three games this year.

Well, let's revise that a bit. I think a realistic goal for all the Canton football players and fans is to finish with a better than 500 record, simply put, a 5-4 overall mark.

After what I saw last week, I think the Chiefs are capable of winning five games-if they keep their heads on straight and maintain a solid attitude.

The mere thought of Canton winning five games is not only exciting for me. but should be something the players should strive for.

What a boost it would be for a program which has been down for so long.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

The Chiefs host Dearborn Hts. Annapolis Friday night at 8 p.m., and there isn't a better time than now for Canton to reach step two in that quest for a 5-4

The Cougars come off a resounding 31-0 defeat to Inkster Cherry Hill, where they showed signs of not being a very good football team. While Annapolis is physically bigger than Canton. which isn't much of a surprise since no team can be smaller than the Chiefs. Canton showed signs of being a tougher team up front than most people expected in that win over

It, by no means, will be an easy game against Annapolis, but if Canton doesn't get a case of "fumbleitis," it may enjoy its first-ever two-game winning streak in the school's history. Canton by 5.

PLYMOUTH SALEM may be inexperienced but it too is a better football team than most expected, including myself. While Livonia Franklin didn't have one of its strongest teams in recent years, everyone has to be surprised with the ease of the Rocks' first victory.

The defense, especially, was extremely tough against what was considered a decent Patriot offense. And what more can you say about Rich Hewlett and his powerful wishbone offensive machine.

It hard to call a game "pivotal" after only one week of the prep season. but Salem's Centennial Park encounter with Dearborn Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. is just that.

This game should tell us how good the Rocks really are. I still don't think they are contenders for the Suburban Eight League title, especially after seeing what Dearborn Edsel Ford and Trenton did to their opponents last week, but the Rocks could be a factor in the race, and possibly aim for third place if they get the best of Dearborn.

If Salem loses to Dearborn, expect them to be just one of those "run of the mill" teams who will place fourth or fifth in the league race.

The Pioneers are very big and strong but oh, so slow. Salem is small but has a lot of quickness. I pick speed over size this time-but only by a touchdown. Salem by 7.

Plymouth squads eye 2d victories

By DENNIS O'CONNOR Sports Editor

It may only be the second week of the prep football season but Plymouth-Canton fans can proudly visit the Centennial Park gridiron this weekend knowing that both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem are still undefeated.

The Chiefs of Canton, enjoying their first-ever opening season victory over Livonia Bentley, 12-0, last week, will try to make it an unprecedented two wins in a row when they open their home schedule with a non-league battle against Dearborn Heights Annapolis Friday night at 8 p.m.

The Salem Rocks, fresh off a convincing 28-19 triumph of Livonia Franklin, open their defense of the Suburban Eight League crown Saturday night when they entertain Dearborn High School starting at 7:30 p.m.

CANTON HEAD COACH Dave Schuele had every reason to rest and sip champagne after his Chiefs' blank-ing of the battered Bulldogs. But it was back to the practice field Monday afternoon, as he hopes to raise Canton's record to a modest 2-0 before entering Western Six League competition next week.

"We're back to work," Scheule said "I believe we can take them (Annapolis) if we go out and play good

The Canton mentor had nothing but praise for his Chiefs after the unexpected Bentley victory.

"I thought we displayed enthusiasm and very definitely made progress." Schuele said. "One positive thing is that we went out and hit from the start and didn't wait until the second half.

"You've got to give them credit. I thought the kids played a super

Annapolis beat Canton last season thanks to eight Chief fumbles. It was one of the worst performances Canton displayed in its winless 0-9 season. Schuele said this problem is his greatest concern going into Friday's game. The Chiefs fumbled twice last week and could have scored at least one more touchdown against the Bulldogs without these mistakes, according to Annapolis suffered an embarrassing 31-0 loss to Inkster Cherry Hill last week. The Cougars have scrapped the option and now play power football under a new coaching staff. They have good size on the interior line, but Schuele says they looked disorganized against Cherry Hill.

SALEM HEAD COACH Tom Moshimer is also smiling after his Rocks dominated Franklin in their season opener. Salem held a commanding 28-7 lead in the fourth period until the Patriots scored two touchdowns against the reserves.

"I'm very, very happy with the attitude of all the kids," the Salem mentor said. "We've made progress but we still have a long way to go.

"I think the mistakes we are making are fundamental errors. But the kids

are very receptive and don't make any excuses or alibis."

The Rocks face a big, strong Dearborn squad this week, which comes off a 13-0 victory over Class B Southgate. Although the Pioneers lost star quarterback Dennis Scala to graduation. they still have a majority of their team returning from a 6-3 season. The big name in the Dearborn lineup is Mike Casanowski, who doubles as a fullback and linebacker, and has the strength to overpower his opponents.

Salem's interior line gives up a lot of size and weight to Dearborn's 200pound-plus gridders. Moshimer feels the key for Salem is to rely on its overall quickness which was a big factor in in the Franklin victory.

"We're giving up a lot of pounds (to Dearborn) but we're quick up front. Moshimer said. "The only way to beat them is with quickness. We have to play like fast ants this week. Our line of scrimmage must be quicker because they are too strong."

Plymouth's Wall loses playoff

By DOUG FUNKE

If a lesson can be learned from the outcome of the men's 10th Observer & Eccentric Golf Tournament last weekend at Whispering Willows, it would be not to play a course until one actually gets into the competition.

Three of the four flight titlists-Mike Kerr, Livonia, Championship Flight, John Ruggiero III, Livonia, Flight 2, and Najib Yazbak, Bloomfield Hills, Flight 3-never set eyes on the Livonia course until they teed off Saturday.

Dave Provine, a Livonia resident and Flight 1 champ, had much more experience with the course than his counterparts. Provine played Whispering Willows for the first time four days before the tourney began.

Kerr and Dave Wall, a Plymouth resident and a former low actual Championship Flight winner, waged a neck-and-neck battle both days of the competition.

The two finished tied at 139 after the regulation 36 holes and needed a twohole sudden death playoff to determine the champion. Both carded pars on the 460-yard, par-five first hole during the playoff. Wall missed a five-foot putt for a birdie that would have ended the duel.

and Kerr sank a three-foot putt to save par and force another extra hole. Kerr used a two iron off the tee on the narrow 337-yard, par-4 second hole and landed in the fairway. Wall, using a driver, put the ball in the woods. Wall made an excellent recovery and placed the ball with his second shot on the green, 12 feet from the pin. Kerr hit a wedge shot a foot from the pin and easily canned the birdie putt. Wall missed his putt and that ended the playoff. "I wasn't too disappointed," said Wall, "I really had my chance on the first extra hole but Mike "closed the door on me with a great second (wedge) shot. This was the best I ever shot in the tourney.'

Wall posted a round of 69 Sunday after opening with a 70 on Saturday. He eagled the 360-yard, par-4, 17th hole to pick up two strokes on Kerr in the late goings and force the playoff.

Kerr, who finished with two consecutive birdies Sunday and who collected seven birdies in all during that round, carded a 67. His opening score was 72.

"I had a great start with birdies on five of the first seven holes," said Kerr. "That really got me pumped up and ready to go. I was hitting close for a while (to the pin on approaches), then my putting came around.

"Those greens were probably the best I've ever putted on a public course," Kerr added. "Any time you shoot a 67, you really love the course. Those rounds don't come often."

John Van Vleck, a Farmington Hills resident who had won the Championship Flight title the past two years, took himself out of contention Sunday when he skied to a round of 84 after opening with a 71.

Provine, who just moved to Livonia in May, carded 154 on rounds of 78 and 76 to pace the field in Flight 1. "On Saturday, I was putting well and today (Sunday), I putted poorly but got to the green."

Manny Agabashian, from Livonia, won a five-way playoff with Rich Wheeler of Westland, Dan McNamara of Livonia, Mike Vaught of Canton and Dennis Perry of Farmington, for second place in that flight.

Agabashian birdied the first extra hole and all the others scored pars.

Ruggiero put together rounds of 80 and 79 for a 159 total to edge Tom Blazer, also a Livonian, by two strokes for the Flight 2 championship.

Ruggiero recorded four birdies Sunday and three Saturday during a couple of scrambly rounds.

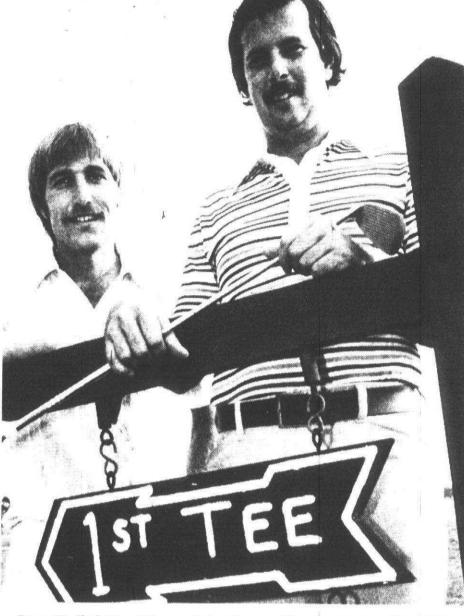

Yazbak, who has only been golfing three years, used a good driving performance to total 181, four shots better than Angelo Fratarcangeli, a lefthander from Canton, for low actual in Flight 3.

The low net (handicap) winners in the various flights were Mike Cordon, Garden City, Championship Flight, 137; Provine, Flight 1, 136; Ruggerio, Flight 2, 129; and Yazbak, Flight 3,

Canton linkers split after win on extra hole

The Plymouth Canton boys golf team split its opening two matches of the season, taking the first from Western Six League rival Livonia Churchill on a sudden-death playoff before falling to nonleague foe Livonia Bentley, 158-165, Tuesday

On the extra hole of Brae Burn, Canton's home course, Chiefs Dave Visser and Scott Adler, coming off the best rounds of the day with 37 and 38 respectively, both parred the sudden-death 18th green to help defeat Churchill.

John Matthews added a much needed birdie three in sudden death after a nine-hole round of 45, while sophomore John Moffatt bogeyed after a round of 44. Junior Kirk Rassmussen carded a 48 to round out the scoring. Canton and Churchill were tied at 212-212 after the front nine. Tom Vettese led the Chargers with a 41, followed by Bob Keller and Mark Bowen with

It was a different story at Bentley's home course, Idyl Wyld, where the Chiefs lost by seven strokes despite a team-leading score of 38 by Visser. Matthews and Adler followed with 41 and 42 respectively, while Moffatt added a 44

The Plymouth Salem girls' tennis team opened its season with a resounding 6-1 non-league victory over Livonia Churchill Monday afternoon.

All four Rock singles players were victorious in their respective matches, as Becky Crespo, Kathy Horton, Betsy Moon and Renee Braun opened the year with triumphs.

Salem is scheduled to face Redford Thurston this afternoon. The match was originally set at Thurston but has been switched to the Centennial Park courts, starting at 3:45 p.m.

Will U-M be over-confident?

By W.W. EDGAR

While "Bo" Schembechler, the Michigan football coach, is trying his darnedest to take the emphasis off the Notre Dame game, scheduled at South Bend on Sept. 16, he isn't fooling the public or his squad:

In his everyday preachments, "Bo" is emphasizing the fact that the game with the Irish is not as important as conference game.

'Suppose we lose to Illinois in our opener and then beat Notre Dame" he said at a recent press breakfast. "Where are we? Our big task is to win the Big Ten title and go to a bowl."

He admitted later that the Notre Dame game is important only as the best of the non-conference games.

But he hasn't fooled the players. It has been learned that in an unoffical poll taken among the players, they have picked out three games for which they must point.

In the order named these games are with Michigan State, Ohio State and Notre Dame.

While no one would talk officially it was not difficult to agree with the players choices. They will point for Michigan State because they can't afford to be rated as the No. 2 team in the state. And it is natural that they will point ?for Ohio State in that this game probably will decide the Big Ten title and bring an invitation to the Rose Bowl.

Meanwhile "80" is concentrating on the opener against Illinois, knowing that his players possibly might be looking forward to the trip to South Bend and the struggle with the defending national champions. He fears there may be a bit of over confidence.

Dearborn millage passes; sports saved

The Dearborn school millage was full schedule of athletics and other extra curricular activities for the students in that area.

The millage approval was equally satisfying for the three Observer-area Suburban Eight League schools. Plymouth Salem, Redford Union and Livonia Bentley, for it eliminates any anticipated changes in the athletic schedules.

Redford Union and Livonia Bentley approved late Friday night, assuring a had scheduled non-league football games with Great Lakes Eight League squads, in the event that Dearborn and Dearborn Edsel Ford were not able to compete in athletics. Plymouth Salem. scheduled to face Dearborn Saturday night at Salem, planned to play Allen Park if the millage failed. Allen Park and Salem would have then battled two weeks in a row, since their regularly scheduled game was set for the third week of the season.

There still is hope that the National Bowling Hall of Fame and Museum will be located in Detroit.

When the selection committee met last week in Milwaukee the list of cities bidding for the hall was reduced from 25 to 8 and Detroit was among the survivors.

The other eligible cities include Akron. Ohio. Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Oklahoma City, St. Louis, Toledo and Springfield, Ill. The final selection will be made in February

HIGH SCORING marked the opening of the Bonanza All-Star league and when the final pin fell, the Michigan Machine Co team had a 3364 series on games of 1089, 1096 and 1179. It was one of the highest series ever bowled on opening night.

Father, son to team in ministry

By MARGARET MILLER

Philip Krist never intended to be a pastor. And even after he decided on that calling, his plans didn't include working with his pastor father.

David Krist certainly would not have urged his son to go into the ministry. His beliefs as an Assemblies of God pastor hold that man just cannot do

But in the coming year, the two will be working together at United Assembly of God in Plymouth, the father as senior minister for the congregation of some 200 families and the son as assistant pastor in charge of the youth program.

And both see the hand of God working in the way things have turned out.

Phil, who will be joined in his youth ministry by his bride, Becky, is a 1974 graduate of Churchill High School and earned a bachelor degree this spring from Southeastern College in Lake-

When he began college, he said, he was going to major in education.

He had grown up the son and grandson of pastors, and he had watched his father move from responsibilities in Bronson, Dundee and Holland, Mich. coming finally to the Parkdale Assembly of God in Livonia. That congregation merged five years ago with the Plymouth Assembly of God to form United Assembly of God.

"WHEN YOU SEE so closely the work of a pastor and the burden he carries 24 hours a day, you tend to pull away from that kind of responsibility," he said.

"But the Holy Spirit entered my dormitory room

He explained that after a mission meeting on campus he suddenly found himself thinking seriously about the ministry. "I opened my Bible," he said, "and found myself reading the third chapter of Eziekel, in which God tells the prophet he has not sent him to people far away but to his own people, who may be stubborn and rebellious but need to hear his word."

Phil said he changed his major after that experience, and soon was involved in campus activities in that area, being named to coordinate student ministry for some 600 students.

But the idea of working under his father's direction still did not find much favor with a young man determined to be independent. He planned on enrolling in seminary this fall.

However, after he and Becky were married, they kept thinking about their future plans and, as he put it, "the young people of this church kept coming before us.

"There were needs there, and no one was filling them," he explained.

So the son returned to the father to tell him he would like to share his ministry for the coming year.

HOW DID Pastor David Krist react? "I feel a father in any profession who sees his son follow in his footsteps has to be complimented," he said. "But it is our belief that the ministry is not a profession you can choose. In that, God has to do the choosing.'

He has decided, though, that working with a son should be a successful

"A couple of fellow pastors have told me their sons have been their best assistants," he said.

"I have always admired my father's work, and I intend to learn as much as I can" he stated. "Even if he were not my father, I would have picked him for a role model.'

While David Krist will continue to do most of the preaching and ministry to adults and Philip will be involved mainly with young people and children, there are some parts of the United Assembly of God program they will share. One is the daily 15-minute broadcast from the pastor's study on WYFC-AM in Ypsilanti.

"It's called 'Moments of Meditation' and I have been doing it for two years," the senior pastor said. "Now we'll work in some dialogue, and Phil will take over on his own some days.'

The younger Krist, who plans to head next year for Fuller Theological Seminary at Pasadena, has more than one family ministerial example to Both his grandfathers are Assemblies of God ministers too.

The Rev. Harvey Krist is retired from the Ypsilanti Assemblies of God and now is an elder at United, teaching occasional Bible classes. And David's wife, Shirley, is the daughter of the Rev. Everett Cooley, the denomination's former district superintendent for Michigan

"The important thing about a ministerial team is that the two feel their work in the same way. That's more possible for a father and son.

Phil Krist agrees, and says further that he expects to learn a lot in the and son ministry in the United Assembly of God in Plymouth. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

6:00 p.m. SOUND OF SUNDAY NIGHT,

Calling all itchy feet: A dance is born

She looks like a Cleopatra, she has the determination of a Horatio Algeri character, and she has a dance that sounds like a Rube Goldberg dream.

Her name is Scorpiona, and she hopes to revolutionize disco fever by throwing in some belly dancing and slinky Egyptian movements. She asks experienced dancers to show up at the New Trend (the former Poison Apple), 38418 Ford Road in Westland, Monday night at 7 p.m. to learn the moves and spread them to the gyrating masses.

Scorpiona, who has been a dance teacher for a few years as Marlene Nehlsen, is seeking a personal partner and plans to form a dance unit. A song has already been written for the premiere of the new step-which also seeks a new name—and the great plan is to have it all ready to spread like wildfire by mid-October.

"She's very intent on getting this thing off the ground," says Bill Garwood, a publicist for the club. "Dance crazes start in odd places, and why not Detroit, for Pete's sake?"

The sessions are expected to run for the next three Mondays at the club and are free to "serious students of the dance," according to Garwood. "They're not going to get tapped for booze or anything like that."

A conference focusing on all phases of dance will take place at Marygrove College, Sept. 21-24.

One highlight of "Producing Dancers and Dance" will be a performance by the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre and a personal appearance by Ailey.

Michigan, often called the dance capital of the Midwest with more than 75 local performing troupes, will average two dance concerts a week in the coming season. There has been a 300 per cent increase in dance students. especially adults, in the last few years. Attendance of up to 500 is expected during the conference, which includes panels, master workshops, talks and dance events.

Contact Alana Barter, Marygrove College, 8425 West McNichols, Detroit 48221 or phone 862-800, ext. 283 for information.

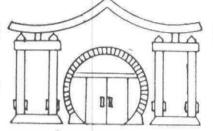

Music groups seeking members

There's no friend like music, someone once said, and two area music groups are looking to meet some new friends The Garden City Concert Band sends out a welcome to adult musicians from Garden City and surrounding communities to join. The band meets 8-10 p.m. Tuesdays at Radcliff Junior High School, 1751 Radcliff. For more information, call 427-2163. And a new vocal chamber ensemble at the University of Michigan-Dearborn is recruiting persons to perform a madrigal and chanson repertoire. Rehearsals will be held on campus 1:30-2:30 Mondays and Wednesdays. Those interested are asked to contact ensemble director John Constant at 593-5014 for an audition. The group is open to students and community residents.

Irene Papas will star in the 1977 Greek film 'Iphigenia' on Friday at the Detroit Institute of Arts Detroit Film Theatre. Two showings are scheduled, at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the museum

Under the direction of Michael Cacoyannis, Papas portrays the loyal daughter of Agamemnon, sacrificed to the gods for favorable sailing winds.

A faithful adaptation of Euripides' tragedy, 'Iphigenia" is presented in the traditional style of the ancient Greek theater excepting only that female roles are played by women. The musical score was composed by Mikis Theodorakis who wrote the award-winning scores for "Zorba the Greek" and "Z."

During its New York run earlier this year, the picture received rave reviews from film critics. The New York Daily Times called "Iphigenia" "A visually dynamic, emotionally shattering film."

Tickets priced for general admission and for senior citizens and Detroit Film Theatre's 10-ticket discount book may be purchased in advance at the Art Institute ticket office, and at the door

THE BEST THING about working in community journalism is the people, people working together

The mass effort of the fall festival is probably the greatest single example. There you have hundreds-maybe thousands-of persons pitching in to earn money that will be given away. Not a red cent is for personal profit.

Yet students, business people, professionals and senior citizens labor under conditions that wouldn't be tolerated by a foundry worker. The result is the biggest wing-ding and fundraiser in the area.

Neighborly behavior was a tradition in small towns and rural communities. The fact that it still exists is reassuring.

AND THE spirit of neighborliness is not a once-a-year happening. There's a golf tournament coming up Sept. 24 that was generated by the same motivation.

There are so many people helping. it's unbelievable," said Jim Elias, instigator of the event.

He insists that a lot of others deserve the credit. He names Mike Patrick, John Gilles, John Bida, Mike Kisabeth and Dave Cook who attended the first planning meeting. And there's Kal Jabara, who carried the word to the Rotary Club.

"They're a bunch of super people," said Jim. "The whole thing has snowballed. Harold Guenther helped; Bill Hall sold tickets at Lent's. Everyone has done a wonderful job."

The golf benefit was planned for a good friend. Randy Williams has been ill and unable to work. Elias, Patrick, Gilles, Bida, Kisabeth and Cook decided a recovery golf tournament would give them and everybody else an opportunity to express their support. Randy, 30, is a 1966 graduate of Plymouth High School.

The tournament will be at Rolling Meadows Country Club on Sutton Road near Whitmore Lake.

'The owners of the course were great. They are turning the whole uling over to us for the day, said Jim. It is a new 18-hole course three miles east of U.S. 23, north of North Territo-

Participants will register between 6:30 and 8 a.m., with play beginning at 8. It will be a shotgun start-four-man scramble. The $50 donation includes golf, beer, prizes, trophies and a buffet

There are a few tickets left. Just to show the spirit behind the tournament, several persons have purchased tickets with no intention of playing golf. They will go out and help run the Jim says fewer than 100 golfers will participate in the tournament. Those wishing more information can call Jim. 455-6757.

IT'S GOOD to have Janet and Charles Repp back home where they belong out on Brewster Court in Plymouth Township

They just locked up their house last August and moved to Menlo Park, Calif. Charles, a Ford Motor Co. employee, was attending Stanford University in Palo Alto.

"It was a wonderful year, but we are glad to be back," said Janet who was back in the swing of things, helping out at the Symphony League's antique mart during the festival.

She said the house was just as they left it, except for the addition of some dust and dead flies. They were away almost a year.

THERE'S A correction in the credits for store window decorators for the fall festival contest.

Fox Photo window was the work of Mary Kehoe of Charles and Mary Kehoe Antiques, Penniman Avenue. The theme was The Attic.

It was announced that it had been decorated by the owner of Things in the Attic on Penniman Avenue.

MARGARET SWARTZ called with winners from the Thursday afternoon party bridge game at the Plymouth Cultural Center. For the first time, a husband and wife had top scores. They were Jane and John Drewniak.

She said they had lost one of their longtime players. Pete Peterson died Sunday morning. The Petersons live in the Bradbury condominiums in Plymouth Township.

SOMETIMES a classified ad arouses curiosity. Couldn't resist responding to the one that offered $25 for a 1952 or 1953 Plythean-the old Plymouth High School yearbook

A call to 459-9471 revealed that, so far, there had been no response to the ad. Mary Lou Bach, a 1953 graduate of PHS, is the one looking for the year book. She now lives in California.

THOSE BUCKEYES never give up. The fall festival barbecue pits received a fresh coat of maize and blue paint-the colors of one of Michigan's outstanding institutions of

230 newcomers open new season

The fast-growing Canton Newcomers Club began its fall season at Pioneer Middle School Sept. 6. Enthusiasm was the key as many new faces were greeted by Kathy Freece and her welcoming committee at the front door. Registration for membership was organized by treasurer Norma Huetteman, Doris Brown and additional helpers who collected dues and issued receipts. Inside the gymnasium, Judi Thomas and Helen Wesner dispensed a cordial hello and handed out name tags to the veterans as well as new members.

Eileen Dunn had her interst group chairpersons lined up at a U-shaped table in the rear, ready and eager to dispense information about craft projects; book pass and discussion groups; gourmet club; dining out for couples; bowling, raquetball, volley ball, tennis, dancing lessons. Other activities include bridge, pinochle and roundrobin bridge for the card players. Luncheon In and Luncheon Out groups, needlepoint, ribbon wreaths, pattern fitting, and a fall door arrangement all are scheduled for September and early October.

Nancy Nichols, new president, opened the meeting with a welcome to more than 260 persons and outlined some of the purposes and proposed goals of the club. New board members were introduced. Helen Wesner, vice president, in charge of programs has Peggy Ventura, an interior decorator lined up as speaker for the Oct. 4 meeting. She also outlined plans for a dinner and fashion show in November.

DIANE CUPER, secretary, and Norma Huetteman, each gave short reports. Mary Moore, publicity, took snapshots of members, officers and guests for the scrapbook and sold cookbooks. Sharlene Totten, hospitality, saw to it that fresh cookies, punch or coffee were in abundant supply while Carol Dugan circulated membership forms and explained the requests for information which will be compiled for the yearly roster books.

Linda Lupo and Christy Skorka, couples co-chairwomen, were on hand to collect money for the hayride square dance party which will be Sept. 16 at the Real Life Camp, Michigan and Geddes Road, from 8-11:30 p.m. Call Judi Thomas for reservations.

Mary Hodge, editor of the newsletter, requested all information for the monthly mailout be in her hands at least one week after each general meeting.

Karen Cifrodella, advisor and past president, read a Community Service Award presented to the Canton Newcomers Club from the Plymouth Center for Human Development, which was given to the new president, "Sam" Nichols.

Cookbooks still are available and a call to Sam Nichols will get you a useful tool for new ideas to try in your own kitchen. It is also an excellent and inexpensive gift-a nice way to say thanks to that good neighbor for watering your grass, caring for flowers and taking in the mail.

Sue Smith won the centerpiece of white and yellow daisies.

MR. AND MRS. MIKE Dugan were host and hostess to the new Canton Newcomers board and respective spouses Friday evening, Sept. 1. This gave everyone an evening of fun and relaxation and a chance to meet the people with whom they will be associating all year on work committees and activities for the Newcomers.

The first ladies day out is being planned for Friday, Sept. 29. The ladies will be taking a tour of Old Village in Plymouth and lunching at the Hillside Inn. Jan Knecht, 981-0554 would like to have early reservations for this activity.

A "GET BACK to the Farm Picnic" will be from 1-10 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17. The event will take place at the Children's Riding Farm, 2350 Denton

The menu includes barbecued chicken and corn on the cob. There will be horseback riding and havrides. Tickets are $3.25. For more information and to order your tickets call 453-

The picnic is sponsored by the Committee to Elect Gary Roberts Canton

Fashions and dance combined for show

Members of Plymouth Canton High School's class of 1980 are looking ahead to their junior prom. A fundraising fashion show is planned for Sunday, Sept. 17 in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

A committee has been working on the show during the summer months with the cooperation of teachers from Dance Unlimited, a Y-sponsored dance

Thursday, September 14, 1978

Commentator and master of ceremonies for the afternoon will be Karen Savelly, disc jockey from WABX radio station

Refreshments will be sold during intermission and prizes will be awarded at the conclusion of the show.

There will be no presale of tickets Admission will be a donation at the door. The show will begin at 2:30 p.m. and will last two hours.

This year, there was skulduggery afoot in downtown Plymouth. In the dark hours of the morning-sometime between 2 and 4 a.m.-Ohio State University supporters stealthily invaded the festival area. They painted the pits scarlet and gray

Fred Hill was observed, paint brush in hand, about 2 a.m. His innocent mien completely disarmed the guard who assumed he had legitimate business in the park.
