Is present sign law invalid? Daley says yes

For the past 31 years, Canton businesspersons have complained that prospective customers have been driving past their shops because of a township prohibition on freestanding signs.

Now, in the midst of a controversy over a proposed relaxation of the law. Trustee Eugene Daley has said that the ordinance prohibiting business signs along the roadside is invalid.

Daley based his charge on publication errors he said were made in two local newspapers prior to adoption of the current ordinance in March

By law, all township ordinances must be published in a newspaper of general circulation before they are adopted. Notification of public hearings must also be published.

CANTON CLERK John Flodin, who is responsible for publishing townshiprelated matters, said he has not had time to research Daley's allegations. The clerk is also responsible for supervising township elections-a task that Flodin said has taken most of his time during the last few weeks.

But if Daley's allegations are correct and the current sign law is invalid, township planner Jim Kosteva said the status of business signs will have to be researched by Canton attorneys.

Kosteva said, however, that township officials probably will not issue permits for signs that might violate provisions of the current ordinance until the present law can be amended.

Changes in the current ordinance that would allow erection of freestanding signs have already been proposed by the Canton Planning Commission.

The township board appeared ready to adopt the ordinance when opponents of the proposed law discovered that the planning commission had inaccurately published notification of public hearings.

The technicality will stall enactment of the revised ordinance until mid December, if it is enacted at all. Four new township board members who will be inaugurated Nov. 20 are opposed to the proposed ordinance in its present

DALEY SAID the technicality spurred his decision to research the publication of the ordinance adopted by the previous township board in 1975

Daley said the current ordinance was never published in full after it was introduced and tabled for publication by the Canton board on March 11, 1975 He said that only a portion of the ordinance was published in the March 24 edition of the Canton Observer.

The ordinance was approved by the township board on March 25

The trustee also maintained that another newspaper chain inaccurately published notification of a public hearing on the ordinance before it was adopted. Daley said the notification was published in an edition of the newspaper that did not circulate in Canton Township.

Something's funny somewhere. said Daley, one of three township board members who will retain their seats after Nov. 20

Site OK granted for Burger Chef

Plans for a Burger Chef restaurant on Ford Road just east of I-275 will go ahead as planned now that the township board has approved the site plan.

The board Tuesday approved, 5-1, the newest fast-food restaurant request, with only Trustee Robert Meyers dissenting.

The request for site plan approval had been tabled from the Nov. 8 board meeting because a colored rendering of the proposed building was not

The drawing was presented Tuesday. The architectural firm for the restaurant, Happley-Johns and Associates, has also requested that requirements for a five-foot sidewalk in front of the new Burger Chief be waived until the board decides there is enough pedestrian traffic to warrant

The site plan approval came with little discussion or controversy. The first time Burger Chef representatives made the request for site plan approval, members of the audience raised objections to allowing another fast-food establishment to be built along Ford Road.

Protesters included Canton's newly elected officials, such as Supervisorelect Noel Culbert and Treasurer-elect James Donahue. Lame duck Supervisor Harold Stein and Treasurer Anne Bradley did not attend the Nov. 8

Both Bradley and Stein voted in favor of the site plan Tuesday. Clerk John Flodin, who voted in favor of tabling the request Nov. 8, was not present Tuesday.

At the first discussion of the site plan, Canton planner Jim Kosteva said he doubted the township board could legally deny fast-food site plan approvals if the plans meet the criteria of the township's current zoning ordinance.

The site plan approval marked one of the last decisions made by the present township board.

New officials will by sworn into office Monday, Nov. 20, and will conduct the next board meeting Nov. 28.

Myers clears beer bash rap

The Wayne County prosecutor's He thought the UAW hall was covered office will not file misdemeanor by a blanket liquor permit. charges against Canton Trustee Robert Myers for serving beer at a campaign party last summer without a one-day liquor permit.

Myers, who ran an unsuccessful campaign for a 27th District Wayne County Board of Commissioners seat in the August primary, planned the party at the UAW Hall on Michigan' Avenue last July to raise funds for his campaign.

The event-which turned into a "private party" for about 25 of Myers' friends-was visited by Canton police who asked the prosecuting attorney's office to issue a warrant for Myers'

At first, a prosecuting attorney recommended issuing the warrant because Myers had not obtained a liquor permit. But under pressure from Myers' attorney, prosecutors agreed to withhold the warrant pending further investigation.

LAST THURSDAY, the prosecutor's office decided to drop the entire case.

"We thought this was an unreasonable thing they pulled on him," said Robert Sage, deputy chief of the outcounty prosecuting attorney's office. "The man has no criminal record. And we're not here to make criminals. Myers has maintained that the bust of his campaign party was politically motivated. He blames Supervisor Harold Stein, Treasurer Anne Bradley, Trustee Eugene Daley and Police Chief Walter MacGregor for the political aggravation.

The three township board trustees have denied any connections with the bust, and MacGregor insists that his department's action against Myers was not politically motivated. Myers admits that he did not obtain a one-day liquor permit for the party.

"I admit I was wrong in not obtaining that license," said Myers, whose term on the Canton board expires Monday. "I also admit that I was naive, because I thought the hall was covered by a blanket liquor license.

"But how many weddings and parties have been held in that hall? The UAW holds meetings in that hall, and they often serve beer. I've never heard of a bust of UAW members.

MYERS MAINTAINS that the Wayne County Sheriff's Department informed township police of the "beer bash" and the candidate's failure to obtain a liquor permit.

Myers said MacGregor informed him on the morning of the event that township police would be forced to bust the party because Myers had failed to obtain the liquor license.

The trustee said he telephoned everyone who had purchased tickets to tell them that the fundraiser had been cancelled. He refunded the $10 supporters had paid and invited about 25 of his close friends to attend a "private"

Between lost campaign funds and the cost of furnishing beer, food and entertainment, Myers figures he lost about $1,600 on the eyent that was planned as a fundraiser.

"I'm very bitter about the whole thing," Myers said. "I think it's very unfortunate that the chief (MacGregor) chose to get involved in politics."

MacGregor would not comment on Myers' charge beyond saying that the bust of Myers' party was not politically motivated.

"I did what I thought I had to do." the police chief said. "I don't see any reason to continue throwing the ball back and forth across the net

Committee tapped to develop bond issues for schools

A citizens advisory committee has been appointed to make recommendations on developing a bond issue program for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Appointment of the advisory group was approved Monday night by a 6-0 vote of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

In discussing formation of the study group, board president Thomas Yack and vice-president Richard Arlen urged members to take an independent look at construction needs and form its own opinions.

Rapid growth in pupil population and several years of deferred building maintenance have resulted in major bonding needs in the school district.

A central administration budget committee is now studying the need for two bond issues, an operating renewal and a request for additional operating taxes. The administration findings are still in the preliminary stage and won't come before the school board for action until after the citizens' committee submits a c recommendation.

THE BOND ISSUE Advisory Committee will review available data on building needs. Members also may request additional information or investigate any area related to the bond issue.

The committee's assignment is to consider the size and distribution of a bond proposal and assess community attitudes on a school bond issue. Written recommendations will be given to the school board in mid-February 1979.

Members of the advisory group will seek maximum community input and involvement, according to the school board instructions. Members will have contact with resources including the administrative budget and boundary committee, Plymouth-Canton Education Association, Parent-Teacher organizations, public forums, PACTS (citizen involvement organization), surveys and consultants.

Yack will schedule the first meeting of the committee-possibly as early as this Monday. The committee then will elect its own chairperson.

MEMBERS OF the committee are: Larry Bowerman of Hanford, Canton, an attorney and member of the Canton Township Merit Commission.

· Charles W. Heidt of Charnwood, Plymouth, chairman of the board of First National Bank of Plymouth and president of Document Processing Systems Inc.

· Catherine M. Prince of Leeann, Canton, of the Canton Township Zoning Board of Appeals and former chairperson of the land use study group of the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi.

· Leslie C. Cavell of Carol Street. Plymouth, superintendent of maintenance of Fisher Body Livonia plant.

· Ned Stirton of Charnwood, Plymouth, managing director of Detroit Tooling Association, which manages large pension funds, and a member of the 1976 Governor's Committee to Evaluate the Single Business

· Ted Thrasher of Old Salem, Plymouth, assistant vice-president and trust officer of National Bank of Detroit and past president of the Detroit chapter, American Institute of Banking.

· Leonard D. Evans of Ridge Road,

Plymouth, plant engineering manager of Sheldon Road plant of Ford Motor Co. and a director of the Plymouth Community Fund.

 James G. Stebbins of N. Beck Road, Plymouth, manager in Ernst and Ernst management consultant group, former director of corporate planning for Premier Corp. and also former director of financial planning and control for Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.

· Gary L. Nielsen of Copeland Circle, Canton, supervisor of accessories market planning of Ford Motor Co. parts and service division, cochairperson of two election committees for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

· Glenn Schroeder of Pino, Plymouth, controller of Wayne Assembly Plant, Ford Motor Co.

The committee members were selected after school trustees submitted 66 possible names, and then narrowed them down to the final 10.

Yack commented that the school board has had informal discussions on naming a citizens' committee for the past 8-12 weeks. Yack added that Supt.

John M. Hoben will be the administrative liaison with the committee. "The administrative recommendations on bonding are not already edged in concrete, but is just an information bank available to the committee which can either accept or reject it." Yack

"Krazy" (disc jockey Don Korzeniewski) presides over the dance floor at Mr. Magoo's.

Teachers leave books to spread disco fever

By CAROLINE PRICE

They used to provide the three R's-reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic.

Now they're providing the three D's—disco, drink and dancing.

Brothers John, Glen and Dale Cabautan and partner Terrille Nickels have come a long way from the days when they all taught school.

The four men have recently opened their second disco in the area. Mr. Magoo's on Michigan Avenue in Canton They owned The Connection in Flat Rock for about two years.

Although the new disco has only been open two months, the partners say the place is packed on weekends.

They are already expanding their disco fare. According to Glen, Mr. Magoo's will sponsor its first teen disco from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 19.

We won't have any liquor—just soft drinks and snacks. The says.

There will be a $2 admission charge for the teens (Glen says they're trying to reach the 15-17 age bracket), which will include free disco dance lessons.

If all works out, the partners hope to expand the teen disco sessions to Saturday afternoons as well.

THERE ARE other plans in store for Mr. Magoo's.

According to Terry Nickels, the partners are exploring the possibility of setting up an "American Bandstand kind of thing" that would be televised on a local station.

The television venture would probably be in conjunction with the teen disco.

Terry says the teen disco isn't a response to the recently passed proposal setting the drinking age at 21 once again.

The average crowd at Mr. Magoo's, he says, tends to be comprised of people 21 and up. About the only prerequisite for attending the disco seems to be a willingness to have a good time. "The people who come here aren't plastic people. We have some who come all dressed up and some who don't. They all just come to enjoy themselves."

For some, enjoyment means dancing. And the new club has enough equipment to please even the most hardened disco fan.

There is the standard disc jockey (in fact there are three DJ's who alternate between Mr. Magoo's and The Connection).

There is $70,000 worth of sound and light equipment to surround patrons with music and color.

There is even a fog machine that belches out white clouds around those on the dance floor.

Several celebrity acts featuring such entertainers as Steve Dahl and Jim Harper have been sponsored at Mr. Magoo's since it opened. But the recorded disco sound remains the big

Those sounds are subject to change. Don "Krazy" Korzeniewski, DJ coordinator for both Mr. Magoo's and The Connection, says he doesn't even play Bee Gee songs anymore.

He says the most requested songs now are "McArthur's Park," "In the Bush" and "Instant Replay."

The four partners may even open more discos in the future. For now, with two successful operations, no one is complaining.

Not bad for four former school teachers, none over 30.

Their secret, Glen says, is providing a friendly atmosphere and good music. He adds, "And there's something new going on all the time."

The brothers Cabautan and friend Terry Nickels opened Mr. Magoo's, the area's newest disco two

Wayne-Westland Schools to consider tax hike

A task force of 14 Wayne-Westland district administrators has been appointed to study the need for a millage increase and how to present that need to the public

The last operating millage increase was 12 years ago, and voters may be asked to approve an increase sometime next year

Deputy Supt. Dennis O'Neill is heading the task force

We're going to meet next week to review program costs. I think there's no sense kidding ourselves. Some millage increase is going to be required. but there's some question as to how much," said O'Neill.

A final decision on whether to schedule a millage election and, if so, how much to ask for, will be made by the board by the end of this year.

In the meantime, the task force will split into four groups, based on junior high attendance areas. (Part of Canton Township is included in the Wayne-Wstland district). The task force will regroup and present its report to Supt. Timothy Dyer the first week in Dyer then will make his recommendations to the board.

"We are investigating the necessity of going for added millage as early as possible in order to prepare reports for you." Dyer told the board Monday

Declining enrollment is the beginning of the "numbers game," in which the district will probably lose another 800 to 900 students by the time school opens next fall

The district used broadened continuing education programs to bolster its sagging state aid funding. But that method of compensating for declining enrollments can't "go on forever and ever," according to Dyer.

The numbers game is expected to continue in the next funding year, said Dyer. The "inflationary spiral" and, possibly, the recently approved tax limitation amendment, will force the state Legislature to continue the same "style of funding education.

That style, said Dyer, is a formula that bases state aid on the volume of students in a school system.

The new tax limitation amendment could be reflected in the operating funds the district receives from state aid and property taxes. Both will be limited to the rate of growth of personal income mills for Wayne, Westland and Canton Township. That means residents pay $34.16 for every $1.000 of assessed valuation, which is half the market value of the property.

Operating millage currently is 34.16

Westland residents this year will pay a total of $8.6 million in school taxes. For Canton residents the figure is $939,463 and in Wayne the amount of property tax is nearly $5.4 million this

State aid funding is expected to be more than $21 million this year for that portion based on student

Voters in the district can, however, provide for a property tax increase above the one-year rate of growth by approving a millage request Faced with an already "austere" budget for the 1978-79 school year, district administrators are wary of the 1979-80 budget

Administrators know that this year's budget must include money to make up a projected $400,000 deficit from the 1977-78 budget year. The actual deficit figure won't be known until the audit is completed.

When the budget was adopted last month. Dyer told the board that about $1.5 million was eliminated from the budget by dropping field trips, in service training, new teaching materials and custodial overtime. This year's budget totals about $43 million

Dyer emphasized that school programs remained "intact" in this year's budget. The future of those programs, however, could depend on an increased millage

Township firefighters say staff Canton UF fund drive successful

Canton's United Foundation fund drive has already yielded $1,354.60, with foundation members expecting more to come.

According to Mary Jo Ochylski, one of the local co-chairwomen, the amount collected is more than $300 ahead of last year's figure for Canton contributions. This is the first year Canton has had its own fund.

"We feel we could have done much better if we had been able to get more area leaders and they in turn could have had more doorbell ringers," Mrs. Ochylski says.

She adds that people wishing to contribute can still do so by having a payroll deduction designated to the Canton United Foundation fund.

The other chairwomen for the drive are Margo Whiting and Esther Wilcox.

Crossing guard cost issue may hit courts

By EMORY DANIELS

Plymouth Township will again be receiving a communication asking it to share in the cost of providing crossing guards for school children.

The request is being sent by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, who share half-and-half with Canton and the City of Plymouth in providing crossing guards.

But despite that sharing with two governmental units, the schools expect to receive a "no thank you" message from Plymouth Township in return.

That's because the school board has asked the township before to share half the cost of crossing guards, and each time the township has declined. The township still has received bills for the service, and now is about four years and $25,000 in arrears.

A recent development, prompting another request, is a ruling in Oakland County Circuit Court that the expense of providing crossing guards is one which belongs to a municipality. That decision is being appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

But the court ruling adds ammunition to Supt. John M. Hoben's belief that the school district is correct in asking Plymouth Township to pick up half the bill for crossing guards at school sites and major intersections in the township.

Re-entering college? SC has workshop

An orientation session for mature persons considering entering or returning to college is being offered by Schoolcraft College's Women Resources Center.

It is scheduled from 9-11:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 7 in room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Individuals may register by calling the college at 591-6400 ext. 430.

The program will include information about courses offered at Schoolcraft and a discussion of admission and registration procedures.

An informal question-and-answer period will feature a panel of students who have coped successfully with "re-entry."

A tour of the campus will follow a luncheon in the Waterman Campus Center.

If the township declines again, Hoben is expected to consult with school district attorneys to see whether the issue shouldn't be raised again in the courts.

A couple of years ago the City of Plymouth threatened to discontinue paying for crossing guards in the city unless Plymouth Township agreed to begin sharing the expense.

AFTER THE TOWNSHIPrefused to pay its half, the school district stopped providing crossing guards in Plymouth Township. Local attorney James McCarthy then filed a lawsuit, and Wayne Circuit Court issued an injunction ordering the school district to reinstate the guards.

At that point the court ruled the crossing guards should be provided, and stated it would decide at a later date how the guards would be paid. But the court then ignored the payment issued, which remains unresolved.

Hoben told the school board Monday night he has directed Ray Hoedel, Assistant Supt. for Business, to bill the township for crossing guards. If payment isn't made, Hoben added, he will ask the district's attorney. Ed Draugelis, about making a request to Wayne Circuit Court to order the township to pay.

In Oakland County some municipalities pay the entire expense, but most share with the school districts, Hoben noted. In Wayne County the common practice is for municipalities to share crossing guard expenses with school districts.

Plymouth Township has maintained that it is a school decision whether to provide crossing guards, and that the schools maintain supervision over, and set policy for, crossing guards. Therefore, the township argues, it is a school responsibility to finance crossing guards.

At one point the school district also requested an attorney general's opinion, but the ruling, when issued, was indecisive and left the decision up to the discretion of the township and school board.

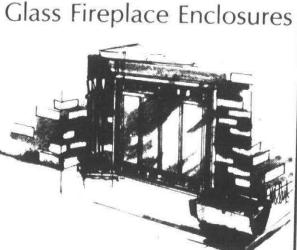

Assertiveness training set

An eight-week course in assertiveness training for men and women will be offered by Henry Ford Community College beginning Monday, Nov. 20. The 7:05-8:45 p.m. course teaches group members to assert themselves and to differentiate between assertive, aggressive and non-assertive behavior.

Gene Brazell will lead the group in discussions, readings and behavior rehearsals. Students who complete the course will earn one credit hour toward graduation.

The class will meet in the Eshleman Library conference room. The cost is $26. To enroll, call 271-2750, ext. 281.

Two horribly annoying reasons to introduce Mobil Super Unleaded Gasoline.

A car should be seen and not heard

That's why we're introducing new Mobil Super Unleaded Gasoline with a higher octane level.

Not only does it help knock the knocks and pings out of your engine, it could also give your car more power than most other gasolines. (In fact, millions of cars on the road today are being cheated of peak engine performance.)

And what's more, if your car is properly tuned, and still shakes, sputters and backfires after super Unleaded you turn the key off, using Mobil Super Unleaded may help eliminate all that. And that's whether your car is new or old.

And even if you've been using leaded premium gasoline you'll be glad to know that Mobil Super Unleaded's high octane level is high enough to meet anti-knock requirements of most cars today.

Mobil Super Unleaded. Because when you're driving, one of the nicest sounds in the world is the sound of absolutely nothing.

Local senior citizens to get new wheels soon

Plymouth senior citizens will have new wheels this December, while seniors in the entire Plymouth-Plymouth Township area may have use of a new van late next year.

The City of Plymouth is purchasing a van, hopefully to be equipped with special hoists, for use by both senior citizens and the handicapped in the

With about $16,000 from the special needs category of Community Development program funding and a driver from Wayne County's Office on Aging, the city hopes to have the program operational some time next month.

Although a firm schedule has not been made, some of the van's time will be allotted to getting the elderly to the nutrition program at Tonquish Creek Manor, says Sharon Thomas, executive secretary of the housing project.

Because only 15 per cent of the nutrition program's meals can be sent home, more seniors provided for at the manor will allow home meals for those who cannot get out, she explains.

And the van will be used to shuttle the elderly and handicapped to Wayne County's J Building in Westland for low-cost prescriptions, health facilities, doctors' appointments, and other needs in the

"We're just thrilled to death about this," Ms. Thomas says, adding that Tonquish Creek is expanding also. The 60-unit senior citizen housing project will open a 48-unit addition hopefully in May, 1980. Currently 35 units receive federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) subsidies.

MEANWHILE, the Plymouth Community Council on Aging is attempting to get grant approval for a van for use by senior citizens in the area.

The Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) recently endorsed the council's application for a 16-passenger specially equipped van under the federal and state grants.

"It's in the pipeline," says council president Walter Fletcher., commenting on the application's advancement. The council is awaiting approval from the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA) and the Michigan State Department of Highways and Transportation for a 16 B-2 grant, which provides federal and state funding of the project.

However, because the Plymouth area is not specifically rural which the grant program requires, the council's proposed van may get a low priority,

However, SEMCOG'S endorsement was a plus, they say. The van would supplement other senior citizen transportation in the area, now provided by the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA and Salvation Army, which lends its 50-passenger bus for senior trips.

The council's grant application calls for a 16-passenger van, with special hoist, with full purchase funding to be shared by federal and county sources. Council spokespersons are hoping to get a driver with Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds through Wayne County.

But both the council and the City of Plymouth will be seeking additional funding for maintenance of equipment and gasoline, they agree. Hopefully, some community agencies will help out in the cause, Ms. Thomas says.

Cheerios inspire projects

By LYNN ORR

What do feathers. Cheerios, dried corn, glitter and candy bar wrappers have in common?

All the items were transformed into turkey collages by Smith Elementary School second and third grade students—with a little help from mom. dad sisters and brothers.

The family Thanksgiving projects were the joint venture of teachers Roxanne Sparkman and Suzanne Steele, who asked parents and siblings to join the primary grade students in constructing the colorful turkey art work

Each family cited one reason to be thankful underneath the collages. While "good health" was the most popular choice, "each other," "the freedoms associated with living in America." "our new house" and "pure water" were other reasons for thanks in the Smith homes

The Patterson family is thankful for a baby coming in November," was the caption under Rochanne Patterson's collage, constructed of a Rice Crispies and beads tail, fake fur and plenty of

Although Smith principal William Lutz noted that all the projects were different. Jim Riemenschneider came up with a completely original turkey-a variety of candy bar wrappers for the tail with a cloth body, button eye and macaroni

"Everything was my idea except for one thingthe feet." Jim explained, admitting that empty wrappers from Halloween inspired his design.

"I had to to it by myself because my whole family was sick," Jim added, also admitting that his sister helped "a little

LINDA Ettinger got some help from her mother and sister. Ruth, in making her turkey out of feathers and burlap, while Kevin Kelley's entire family pitched in on a sparkles and felt bird.

"My Dad collected the leaves," Kevin said proudly, explaining that the leaves were used for the full turkey plumage.

Grandparents, cousins, aunts and uncles were coaxed by Smith children into helping out, Lutz added. And everyone seemed to like the idea of family, at-home projects, he says.

Some of the parents were thrilled with the philosophy of a family getting together to do these.

Everything from pieces of paper to yarn and string were used by the families, who turned in their finished products last week. Now the corridors outside Lutz' office are graced with the bedecked birds, which attract smiles from the second and third graders who proudly seek out their projects as they pass through the hall.

The Riemenschneider family is thankful for plenty of food on the table. But from the looks of this turkey, Jim Riemenschneider, 8, likely is thankful also for the bounty he collected Halloween night.

Families participating in the turkey art project at Smith were asked to attach to the turkey a message of what they are thankful for during the past year. The Patterson family is thankful for a baby expected in

Railroad depot location regretted

By SAM HUDSON (Part III)

George Starkweather held public office in Plymouth during two wars . . . the Civil War and the Spanish-Ameri-

He was township supervisor in 1862 when Company C, 24th Infantry Regiment of the celebrated "Iron Brigade," was organized in Plymouth. It was the Iron Brigade that suffered many casualties at Fredericksburg when the Union forces were repulsed by the Confederates.

Twenty-eight per cent of the entire population of the community was in uniform when Starkweather was supervisor. Men from Plymouth distinguished themselves at the Battle of Gettysburg During the first day's fighting, the 24th suffered 80 per cent casualties

Other Plymouthites fought at Gettysburg under General George A. Custer, who commanded the Michigan Cavalry Brigade. Still others, in the 4th Michigan Cavalry, captured Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States of America, near the end of the war.

Thirty-three years after the Civil Var ended. George Starkweather was in office again. This time, at age 72, he was president of the village when the nation was involved in the Spanish-American War Starkweather's counterpart today as township supervisor. Tom Notebaert, saw military service during World War II.

He was 19 when the United States declared war on Japan and Germany and was in the military three years. seeing action with the 104th Infantry Division of the First Army in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany

PLYMOUTH-PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

NINE YEARS BEFOREbefore the the Civil War began, Starkweather made a personal decision that he may have regretted in later years. It had to do with the coming of the railroads to

As noted earlier, the advent of the railroads in 1871 helped Plymouth Township to attract industry, as Starkweather expected. But he erred in believing that locating the depot in the northern section of the town would cause the focal point in Plymouth to shift from Kellogg Park to the station

To capitalize on his hunch that the depot would become the hub of the community. Starkweather opened a road through his property in what has been called Lower Town, North Village and, most recently, Old Village. (North Village is the more appropriate name because the section is neither lower, nor older, than the Kellogg Park area)

The road Starkweather opened in 1870 led north from Main Street, and he called it Oak Street. Sometime after his death, the village council renamed it Starkweather Avenue. His name also is commemorated by Starkweather School in North Village.

Starkweather did more than attempt to develop his property. He built a brick building at the corner of what now is Starkweather and Liberty streets. He moved his general store from the Kellogg Park area into this new building. It is to be doubted that the trade he got at the new location was any better, or even equal to, that which he enjoyed at what continued to remain the center of town.

As previously indicated, Starkweather led the unsuccessful effort to convince Northville that it should remain in Plymouth Township. His problem, in 1898, was a matter of secession.

BY CONTRAST, the problem facing Plymouth Township supervisors in recent years has been annexation-a problem brought on by the city's periodic attempt to break out of its 2.06 square mile confine.

In May 1955 the city did manage to annex 85 acres of the township when it absorbed the Cassady property at the corner of Sheldon and North Territorial roads. In the same year, it made an unsuccessful attempt to annex the entire township. And it has failed thus far in an effort to acquire the Burroughs plant property in the township on Plymouth Road at Haggerty.

In May 1974 a drive to merge city and township governments was rejected by township voters 2,706 to 763. Soon thereafter, the city commission attempted, without success, to annex the Hillside Inn property on Plymouth Road, the Burroughs Corporation parking lot across from the Inn. and the township in its entirety.

In recent times, the city has been less aggressive in attempts at annexation. Instead, effort has focussed on the desirablity of consolidating city and township services. It is claimed that such a move would save money for the taxpayers of both governmental bodies within the realm of possibility, but will the city and the township, as political entities, ever combine?

Asked this question recently, Tom Notebaert answered "perhaps." But not, he added, until "the people of the township decide that they are willing to pay for additional services.

He noted that the township now levies on 3.5 mills per thousand, while the city levies 16.45 per thousand. He also pointed out that, as recently as August 1976, township voters turned down by a substantial margin a proposal to increase their taxes by two mills to provide the township with its own police force.

One thing has not changed in the township since the days when George Starkweather was supervisor-that is the law governing the reimbursement of a citizen whose livestock is killed by dogs

The law still requires that the township supervisor investigate the incident and validate the owner's claim before he is reimbursed by the county. It was enacted in an era when local farmers raised sheep, and the Plymouth Carding Mill served woolgrowers thoughout southeastern Michigan. The rate paid for a sheep killed by dogs, in Starweather's day, was $3 per head.

While no cases of sheep-killing have been reported in recent times, Notebaert says that last year the owner of a turkey farm on North Territorail Road was reimbursed when 11 of his birds were destroyed by stray dogs. Less fortunate was the owner of a pet goat, attacked by a dog on McClumpha Road in 1976. He attempted to collect $35 to pay for veterinary fees, but was turned down by the township board.

By NANCY AUSTIN

I feel guilty. I went on a chocolate-chip cookie eating marathon last night and suffered all the guilt pangs one does after a binge.

But I finally got a grip on myself. Guilt does not erase weight. Willpower does. Anyone have an extra dose to go around? Such a constant battle, isn't it? Well, a little confession is good for the soul-and now I've confessed.

Some really great holiday recipes and ideas have come my way which I am anxious to share with you. So down to the nitty-gritty of holiday diet ideas.

ALLOW ME to introduce to you Gloria Pitzer, the Private Investigator of Secret Recipes.

Gloria is the delightful gal who has unlocked so many of the famous fastfood recipes and published them in her cookbooks. The enterprising sleuth has published three cookbooks full of famous restaurant recipes and home-spun philosophy. She also publishes the National Home News, Magazine, available monthly by subscription. (She has more than 12,000 subscribers internationally.)

Anyway. Gloria often features lo-cal recipes in her newsletter as well as recipes for special dietary problems, etc. And now, she has published a special Christmas supplement called "Christmas At Home." It contains more than 150 recipes, a portion of which are specifically for dieters. Many are lusclous sounding and I highly recommend the purchase of this 24-page

Included in the recipe selection are such delights as lo-cal mushroom caps, Christmas mousse, coleslaw, pineapply dessert, carrot cookies, roast turkey. diet dressings, and many more. Gloria says, it's like getting together once a month for coffee with friends. And it is. To obtain a copy of your booklet, send $2 to Gloria Pitzer. Noel-Pot-Pouri, Box 152, St. Clair, Mich.

Also in anticipation of the holiday season. Weight Watchers has prepared a special packet of recipes containing Yuletide entrees. vegetables, desserts, etc. Included are a baked ham with cumberland sauce, whipped potatoes with horseradish, baked carrots and zuechini and a mouth-watering baked bananas with strawberry sauce. For your free packet, write to Marge Robbins, Weight Watchers. P.O. Box 125LV. Southfield 48076.

WE ALL KNOW the hectic pace is going to catch up to us. The hustle and bustle will rack our nerves (I'm already feeling it). While rushing around shopping, a fit of hunger will descend and it may be difficult to pick up a meal on the run that is lo-cal. Prepare before you go on your shopping trip. Prepare mentally to find a restaurant nearby that offers a good salad selection. A hearty salad containing meat, cheese. and vegetables will give you a satisfied feeling as well as providing the needed energy to keep going

Recently, while eating at Bode's in Plymouth (next to the famous railroad tracks) I enjoyed the Bode salad special. I was especially pleased to discover they have added a lo-cal ranch dressing which is zesty, light and flavorful and only 11 calories per teaspoon. The salad itself contains lettuce, carrots, celery, radishes, tomato, American cheese and corned beef. It's filling, delicious, and lo-cal. It seems that many of our restaurant owners are complying with our wishes for lo-cal yet tasty offerings. Now show them that you support their effort by ordering from the lo-cal side of the menu.

If part of your family is off hunting in the wilds while you are home for the holidays, and if you have a hunch they'll bring home some fresh game then the Michigan United Conservation Clubs can help you.

This non-profit conservation association has assembled an unusual book of nearly 400 game and fish recipes called "Wildlife Chef." Many of the recipes can be cooked right at the campsite, but all of them may be prepared in your own kitchen. And, if they didn't have any hunting luck, and you feel predisposed to buying some of the more unusual game from the supermarket, the recipes will work just as well. And what a nice break from

beef! To obtain vour

copy of "Wildlife Chef," mail $3.95 to Michigan United Conservation Clubs, Box 30235, Lansing 48909.

Just when your soaring spirits are beginning to sag, here's a quick lo-cal. liquid refresher to take the edge off your nerves: Rosy Cooler

1 cup low sugar Hawaiian punch, chilled 2 Tbs. orange juice 112 tsp. instant tea powder

Pineapple spear garnish Combine punch, juice, and tea in tall glass. Add ice. Garnish with pineapple. Enjoy.

Until next week. Happy Dieting!

Schoolcraft is still without a contract

Schoolcraft College faculty and office personnel may have well-stuffed Christmas stockings by mid-

It won't be gifts, however. It will be retroactive pay-if the two unions ratify contracts with the community college by then.

The bargaining team for the 350member Faculty Forum spent two hours Monday putting the report of court-appointed fact-finder George T. Roumell Jr. into contract language Roumell recommended retroactive pay to Aug. 24, when the new contract would take effect.

A FACULTY union spokesman said, however, that the Forum hasn't agreed to one major Roumell proposal: that part-time instructors get an increase of 4.5 per cent the first year and nothing the second year of a two-year pact.

DOUGLAS R. MORRIS

That suggestion has apparently upset many part-time instructors. The union is seeking an improvement. Roumell's report is not binding on either Roumell recommended raises for the 160-plus full-time instructors of seven per cent and six per cent, respectively, for the two years.

Roumell was appointed after the unions went on strike for eight days. The strike was ended Sept. 27 by circuit court order. The fact-finding process took about a month.

MATTERS ARE more routine in negotiations with the 62-member Schoolcraft College Association of Office Personnel (SCAOP), bargaining agent for secretaries and clerks.

SCAOP's bargaining team met last Friday to discuss implementing the fact-finder's report, according to union president Dorothy Irving.

"We made some wording changes. Then we have to have it typed out," said Mrs. Irving. She expects a ratification vote about Nov. 29.

By that schedule, the board of trustees would be able to ratify the two contracts sometime in December. A regular board meeting is scheduled for Dec. 13, but a college spokesman said President C. Nelson Grote is hoping to arrange a Dec. 6 ratification meeting.

"The feeling is good," said Mrs. Irving of the SCAOP negotiations. SCAOP's old contract expired in June of 1977, and the office personnel have worked since then without a contract.

No dollar figure was immediately available on how much retroactive pay the combined 412 college employees will receive. But if there are no major snags in negotiations, they should have their money by Christmas.

The life of a seminarian

By LEONORE BECHTEL

Like most college students, Tom Bolster wears jeans and a knit shirt to Like most college students, he has added his own personal touches to his dormitory room-a lounge chair inherited from a graduate and the usual stereo turntable and receiver.

Like most students. Tom is budgetconscious. An evening away from his studies is likely to include a $1.25 movie at either Northville or Plymouth, topped off by a pizza before he returns to campus.

But unlike most college students. Tom pays no tuition for his 15 hours a semester of graduate study, nor does he foot the bill for his room and board. He doesn't have to worry about finding a job because when he graduates, a job will be waiting for him.

IN RETURN FOR these fringes, Tom will dedicate his life to helping other people. A student at St. John's Seminary, he is studying to be a

He does not view his vocational choice as sacrificial.

I feel called by Jesus Christ, That's the reason for my being here. I feel this is what I can do to help other people, and in so doing my own life will move toward completion.

Tom lives and attends school in the massive red-brick seminary on the southeast corner of Sheldon and Five Mile Roads Located on 179 acres which boast a nine-hole golf course. tennis courts and an orchard, the impressive edifice features a multitude of arched windows tpical of its Umbrian design, an Italian architectural style.

As guest master. Tom is comfortable directing visitors through the long, quiet hallways, past the octagonal stone pillars in the foyer, under the ceiling's bas-relief flowers and filigrees

He made his decision to become a priest while an undergraduate at University of Florida, where he started out majoring in political science but ended up earning a degree in religious

DURING THOSE undergraduate years, he didn't always go to church in that period of "search for greater meaning

Even though born into a devout Catholic family, he did not attend Catholic school as a child.

"I have always seen God as part of my life, so it was not such a drastic leap of faith to consider the priesthood. I believe everybody is called to live and witness Christ in their lives. no matter what their vocationspoliceman, lawyers or priests."

Before being admitted to study for the priesthoody seminarians must have college degrees, but their majors are unimportant. One St. John's student has an engineering degree. Another middle-aged seminarian was away from college life for many years, working as a department store manager, before deciding to pursue his master of divinity degree.

A TYPICAL DAY for seminarians begins at 7 a.m. There's no mad scramble for the shower because each student has his own in a private bathroom attached to his room.

Tom attributes this luxurious dormitory touch to the seminary's founder. Edward Cardinal Mooney, former archbishop of Detroit.

When the seminary was built in 1949. life for future priests was more restrictive than it is today. In those days students were cloistered and were not allowed to have cars, to smoke or drink or even to have phones in their rooms.

Because students were not allowed to leave the premises, Cardinal Mooney wanted special comforts provided for them. Among these accommodations are a gymnasium, racquetball courts, a weight room and a bowling alley.

Classes begin at 8:10 a.m. This semester Tom is studying homiletics. the art of preaching. Each student gives a homily once a week and receives comments about techniques and content.

His other classes include Christian anthropology. Hinduism, a scripture class dealing with St. Paul's epistles. and a moral theology class dealing with sex in marriage.

While studying at St. John's, he also is receiving credit toward a master of religious studies from University of

"All you can do with a master of divinity degree is be a priest. If I decided not to go into the priesthood. the master of religious studies would be more valuable.

A FEW STUDENTS who begin at St. John's decide to drop out, and a few others are sometimes asked to take leaves to reconsider their decisions for the priesthood.

After the morning class, the student body sometimes gathers for a colloquim with the formation team-three priests and a sister who talk on various topics and then divide students into small groups for discussions.

Formation team members are the Rev. Monsignor Clement Kern, Sister Elizabeth Pickens, Fr. Tom Moore and Fr. Ken Untener, rector at St. John's. They help form students spiritually and pastorally to be prepared for the priesthood. One team member is assigned as a student's contact person and another as his spiritual director. Tom meets his contact person and spiritual director every three weeks.

On Mondays and Thursdays students gather for mass, which the public is welcome to attend. On Tuesdays and Fridays the mass is at 8:30 a.m., on Wednesdays at 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays at 4 p.m. On Sundays seminarians go to other parishes.

The chapel's ornate door is flanked by statues of St. John Vianney, venerated as a model parish priest, and St. Charles Borromea, an Italian cardinal who led the church to clerical reform.

The arched, stained-glass windows extending down both sides of the tall. narrow sanctuary depict the 12 disciples and the order of the priesthood as they were in the Middle Ages. Most orders in the intricately-pieced panels are no longer used by the Catholic church.

One window shows a future priest having his hair clipped off, another shows a porter ringing a bell to summon people to the celebration of the Eucharist and another shows an exorcist in action.

Two of the orders-now called ministries-still exist in the church: that of the lector, who reads the Bible at mass, and that of the acolyte, who assists at mass.

Under the windows are 14 stations of the cross, Italian carvings beginning with Jesus's being sentenced and given the cross, and ending with His body being cleansed and made ready for the tomb.

THE SEMINARIANS ADDED a casual touch to the chapel's formal atmosphere.

Like Tom, many were in blue jeans and sport shirts. Several sported long hair or fros and beards. Only the few being installed as lectors and acolytes wore coats and ties. Some of their parents were present, along with a group of retired nuns who live on the

As a guitarist strummed and sang. the congregation joined in with the students' harmony echoing through the chapel. At one point the service stopped while the congregation shook hands and exchanged greetings. Then they lined up to receive the bread and wine of holy communion.

Tom explained that most non-Catholies expect a much more formal service, as was the case before church reform when the Vatican II Council brought sweeping changes in the 1960s.

clear there is not a hierarchy in the church. We are all servants-everyone. The church is trying to involve lay people now," Tom said.

After the service the seminarians flocked to the dining room, serving their own salad and soup and finding sandwiches on tables set for six. One group discussed the probability of women being ordained to the

"It will happen," Tom predicted. "Sometime between 10 and 500 years from now.

He admitted the celibacy requirement is one thing which has caused decreasing numbers in the priesthood. such as evidenced at St. John's which has only 70 students although its facilities could house 200.

"There is tremendous pressure in society for marriage," he said, explaining that he views celibacy as a gift. "The same way a surgeon needs nimble fingers, a priest needs celibacy. It's the gift of his profession."

Most students have another class after lunch, followed by free time until dinner. During this time involvement in outside work is encouraged.

LAST YEAR Tom taught a course called "Church in the Modern World" at St. Edith Catholic School in Livonia.

"It was very rewarding. Young people are very responsive to the call to be witnesses. They are burdened by expectations from their peers and their parents, and they are responsive to the gospel message. An authentic experience of our own humanity is more the exception than the rule

This year he visits prisoners at Wayne County Jail. "It's a fascinating ministry. I have had my mind opened to the criminal justice system.

He now agreed with wardens who have said that only 15 per cent of the people in prison belong there, using as an example a 73-year-old man who killed a friend in a feud when they were both drinking heavily. He thinks probation would serve both society and the individual in this case.

Although seminarians are not required to take their meals on the premises, most are generally there for the 5:45 p.m. dinner, often followed by a 7:30 p.m. class.

Sometimes there's basketball, with competition against the Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit, St. Mary's Seminary in Orchard Lake or a Baptist church team in Ann Arbor.

Much studying must be worked into the busy days, and much time spent in the library which has 4,400 volumes "The Vatican II Council made it and stocks 400 current periodicals."

County service cut back Dec. 1

"People will have to get used to slower services-from the marriage license counter to park maintenance along Edward Hines Drive," said Jarrette Simmons (D-Detroit), chairwoman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The slower services will be the result of another in a series of crisis budgets which will go into effect Dec.

The $349 million budget adopted last month calls for laying off 121 county employees outside the courts, including 24 assistant prosecutors, plus the elimination of more than 100 vacant non-court jobs.

IN AN EFFORT to stave off the cuts, Mrs. Simmons and other commissioners have been trying to coax more state funds from Lansing. The Wayne County contingent is asking that the state increase funding for programs which it has mandated.

"The increasing burden of stateordered costs in the face of stringent revenue limits has broken the county's financial back," Mrs. Simmons said.

"The cost of the court system alone has doubled in the last five years. The burden of protecting the public safety in the nation's third largest county requires a greater degree of state participation," she said.

The county is asking the state to pick up the tab for $8 million for the probation departments in the Circuit Court and Recorders Court and $9 million to cover the costs of hospital care for medically-indigent adults.

The county is also trying to collect $4.2 million from the state for services last year at the Wayne County Psychiatric Hospital.

County officials contend that if the state does not come across with more than $20 million, they will have to go ahead with the planned layoffs beginning Dec. 1.

THE NEW budget is about $26 million less than last year's. It also contains $15 million in cutbacks. The itemized cuts include:

· A $1 million cut in Wayne County General Hospital's budget.

• $4.3 million cut from the operations of the courts and related

Benefit disco dance slated Nov. 25 by VFWs

A benefit disco dance will be held Saturday, Nov. 25, in Garden City under the sponsorship of VFW posts from Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and Wayne.

The dance is being held to raise funds for a special Christmas party for some 240 retarded children at Northville State Hospital and at the Southgate Regional Center for Development Disabilities.

The disco dance will be held from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Garden City VFW Post at 33011 Ford Road just west of Volunteer members of Veterans of Foreign Wars posts are working together to help make this party for retarded youngsters possible. Sponsoring posts include Garden City 7575. Plymouth 6695, Wayne 3323 and West-

"Disco Danny" Thompson, a member of Westland VFW Post 6986, will host the benefit dance. Also appearing will be Ron Ferris of WDEE and Ron-Saunders of TV 2.

All area residents are invited to the benefit. Money raised by the admission donation of $1, plus from the sale of refreshments, will go towards covering the cost of the special Christmas party.

The party was originally planned to reach children at Northville whose conditions prohibited them from ever leaving that facility. Because of that, these children always missed out on the Christmas trips to Garden City's VFW post.

The project, however, was extended this year to include children at the Southgate mental health facility at the suggestion of the administrative staff of Northville.

Music by Disco Danny will range from the 1930s to the present day sound. There will be a cash bar for adults, soft drinks for children and light dinners served. Prizes available to those attending will include CB radios, airplane rides and other donations from local merchants.

The party planned at Northville State Hospital includes a visit from Santa Claus and Christmas Carol, presents and food, and a three-hour show. The disco party for the approximately 60 residents of the Northville Center will be presented on Dec. 9.

In New Zealand

Beauty greets visitors

By W.W. EDGAR

If there is a country with more beautiful and friendly people than you find in New Zealand, Lou LaRiche, an auto dealer in Plymouth, would like to know where it is.

LaRiche and his wife, Gail, have just returned from a 10-day stay in the South Pacific Islands, and he tells you that mere words can't do justice to what they saw and how they were treated no matter where they went.

The LaRiches were members of a group of Chevrolet dealers from all parts of America who won sales contests. More than 100 of them, along with their wives, made the trip in a 747 for what LaRiche called "the time of our lives.

TAKING OFF FROM Metro airport, the party landed in San Francisco and then flew to Hawaii and to New

When we were told that we were flying over New Zealand and about to land, "LaRiche explained, "I looked down and the country looked like on big golf course. It was just beautiful.

But that was as nothing compared to the friendliness of the people after we landed. No one could have treated us better, from the employees in the hotels to the caretakers in the museums or even the casual folks we met along the way.

One of the things that struck them rather funny was the fact that there are three million people there and 63 million sheep.

He smiles when he tells you that he never knew that there were so many kinds of sheep. "I thought there were just two-male and female-but we learned over there that there are 16 varieties, and the wool is one of the country's greatest commodities. It was a treat to see one of the sheep ranchers shear one of the larger sheep in just 30 seconds," LaRiche said.

Another thing that left its imprint is that the residents seemed so eager to talk and learn about the United States.

"Everywhere we went we were asked about America, and many of the people we spoke with would like to come to America but can't afford it." LaRiche said.

According to what the visiting dealers were told, the man who earns $125 a week in New Zealand is making big

The low wages are evident in the shopping area, where milk is eight cents a pint, butter 34 cents a pound and where a loaf of bread weighing one and one half pounds sells for 20

"But they are happy with it all," LaRiche said.

ANOTHER THING the American group noticed was that the New Zealanders observe the five-day work week. The stores are closed on Saturdays and Sundays. The unemployment rate is only two per cent.

One of the beauty spots they visited was the Aukland Museum, which was fascinating because it portrayed the culture of the Maoris-the early settlers of the country. Another fascinating trip was to a winery.

LaRiche and his group learned that wine making is an infant industry in New Zealand. For years the residents drank only beer, but now, with the raising of grapes, the wineries are changing the old-time custom.

At Hellensville the group was treated to an outside barbecue by the Lions Club and later were guests at a rugby game, and then at a series of lawn bowling matches.

After you are there a while, LaRiche said, you realize that you are off by yourself, as New Zealand is 1,900 miles from Australia, and because you never are more than 110 miles from the

With all the beauty and the friendliness. LaRiche confides that he would not want to live there.

"Their laws are different and, because of the small population, there is not much chance of doing business

"But for beauty and the friendliness of the people, the place cannot be

SEMTA's Park-and-ride blooms in western suburbs

By TIM RICHARD

It started strong, and it should get better as the word goes around.

It's the new park-and-ride express bus service from Farmington, Livonia and Redford Township to downtown Detroit

"All our park-and-ride business was up 70 per cent last year," said John Saunders, manager of marketing for the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

"The Plymouth-Livonia run started last year with four buses, and we're up to six. The whole corridor is a very good one," Saunders said.

THE NEW RUN actually began Oct. 30, but it was formally dedicated in ceremonies Wednesday morning.

Among officials on hand were to be Mayors Richard L. Tupper of Farmington, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills and Edward H. McNamara of Livonia (who doubles as SEMTA board chairman); state Rep. Wilbur V. Brotherton (R-Farmington), a supporter of SEMTA funding bills; and SEMTA General Manager Larry E. Salci.

Rods

The new service features three round-trip buses from the suburbs to the Renaissance Center on the Detroit riverfront each weekday.

Saunders said riders work for Ford Motor Co. in Ren Cen. for Michigan Bell Telephone Co. at Michigan and Cass and "generally sprinkled around the downtown.

"There are lots of younger ridersin the 21-35 age group. There are stock brokers, computer programmers, secretaries and people in advertising." the marketing man said.

THE IDEA for the run—and all SEMTA runs-comes from "inquiries," Saunders said.

They may just be calls from the public. They may come from local public officials who get calls from their constituents. SEMTA is in close touch with personnel managers of large companies, he added.

In the first week, Saunders said, ridership on the new run grew from 52 on Monday, Oct. 30, to 116 by Thursday. Nov. 3, the last day for which figures were immediately

The run begins at the American Legion hall on Grand River at Lakeway, just east of downtown Farmington. Ten minutes later, it stops at Livonia Mall, Seven Mile at Middlebelt. In another 10 minutes, it stops at Forest City. Middlebelt at Schoolcraft. And in five minutes, it's at the Jeffries Freeway (1-96) and Seminole in Redford Township

From there, it's 28 minutes to the corner of Michigan and Cass, the first downtown Detroit stop. Last stop is

Runs leave Farmington in the morning at 6:40. 7 and 7:20. They leave RenCen in the evening at 4.40, 4.55

Price from Farmington is 95 cents

"You can also buy a Semta card for a month for $28.50," said Saunders. "You can take any route, any day of the week with that

The buses are the new SEMTA Advanced Design RTS vehicles, worth about $110,000 each.

Vienna in review

Schubert Fest was musical victory

By GRETCHEN McHUGH

One of the characteristics of Detroit's Schubert/Vienna Festival has been the variety of concerts, and composers represented.

It hasn't been just Schubert, just symphony, just solo or just chamber

To illustrate, let's look at three of last week's concerts. On Monday, the Marlborough Trio-Charles Libove, violin; Mitchell . ..drews, piano; and Charles McCracken, Cello-played Schubert's E Flat and B Flat piano

Tuesday found us in Ford Auditorium listening to three types of pieces-straight orchestra, songs with orchestra, and the Berg Violin Concerto, a 1935 composition played by Itzhak Perlman. Thursday, back in Orchestra Hall, pianist Murray Perahia performed another all-Schubert program.

THE MARLBOROUGH Trio concert was such a fine performance that to 'review'' it really could best be accomplished by saying, "I'm sorry you weren't there." Since the audience was absolutely soundless for the performance's hour and 50 minutes, the following musical refinements could be heard.

Beginning the development section of the first movement of the E Flat Trio, there is a long crescendo. It begins "triple piano," which in Orchestra Hall means triple piano-as quiet as you can get.

Through the strings' arpeggios could be heard the piano, Mitchell Andrews articulating melodic material with the beautiful clarity his playing showed all evening. His Schubert "touch" indeed, was sublime, another example being the repeated notes, and octaves, of the B Flat Trio's Rondo.

He produced a lush effect seemingly effortlessly in passages of great difficulty. At another spot, in the last movement of the E Flat Trio, he played some molten scales that never dominated the strings.

String playing by Libove and McCracken, too, showed nobility and finesse as in contrasts between tenderness and sforzando, and between brave unison passages and singing of solo lines such as the cello passage in the B Flat Trio's Rondo

The tender four-note theme of this trio's Andante movement-simplicity itself-contained 100 million sweet sounds to give the most ardent Schubert lover a wintersworth of memory.

Maestro Dorati himself attended this concert, taking the time from his whirlwind of concerts, rehearsals and appearances to enjoy the gemutlicheit of Orchestra Hall

Dorati's conducting of Schubert, Schwertsik, Wolf, Schoenberg, Webern and Berg in Ford Auditorium the following night likewise was of the best quality. The program, however, wasn't of such sustained beauty. The purely orchestral works, such as Schubert's Rosamunde Overture and D Minor Minuet, came off rather as filler

They were restrained, even elegant, but relatively uninteresting compared to the solo-featured works of the evening. These were lied by Schubert and Wolf, and the Dove's song from Schoenberg's "Gurrelieder," all sung by contralto Maureen Forrester, as well as the Berg Violin Concerto.

IN MASTERFUL PROGRAMMING, Dorati included not only Romantic songs, with their beautiful melodies, but also to quote the program notes, "The apotheosis of all Romantic elements . . . all in the best Wagnerian tradition" in the form of the song from "Gurrelieder," and finally a Schubert work which is the antithesis of melody because it uses the 12 tone system-the Berg concerto. All of this in one night was something like a music history class, and it made an intelligent reprieve, if that was needed, from pure Schubert. Only Elisabeth Soderstrom's lieder recital and last Sunday's "Concert Eleven" vaired, also, from all-Schubert evenings.

Miss Forrester's sensitive contralto voice and heart-felt interpretations lent dignity to "Du bist die Ruh" " and passion to "Tauben von Gurre." However, Ford Auditorium's accoustics swallowed the sorrow and passion of a lady whose refrain is "I flew far, I sought / And I found heavy sorrow." The interpretation as a whole was rather more sedate than magic.

Alban Berg's violin concerto combines the most gothic sort of programmatic romanticism-"The death of a beautiful maiden," as Edgar Allen Poe would say-with the most abstract of all music composition types, the dodecaphonic system. This is taking all 12 notes in a chromatic scale, setting them down in what sounds like any old accidental order, and using the resulting pattern in various ways.

ITZHAK PERLMAN DID MORE than play this incredibly complex work-he communicated it. With the timing, technique and tone that have made him famous, he gave a stunning reading of one of the world's most difficult violin works.

In some beautiful solo playing of his own, concertmaster Gordon Staples complemented the virtuosity of the formidable Perlman. It was a powerful and moving performance with Dorati and the rest of the orchestra, too, at their best.

In orchestra Hall Thursday, pianist Murray Perahia played four Schubert impromptus and the A Major Sonata. Perahia is an irrestible performer. With a noble profile, a shock of black hair and a mystical air about him, he comes on as a highly individualistic player, much as Liszt was said to have

Not as fiery as Liszt, who regularly caused ladies to swoon (whoever thought that started with Elvis?), Perahia is, however, essentially a passionate musician, complete with elaborate gestures at the end of phrases and a kind of concentration that spells immersion, a "gestalt" approach, and romanticism. His playing, however, was controlled, disciplined and beautifully crafted.

OF THE IMPROMPTUS, the G Flat Major was perhaps the weakest, coming across without too much flexibility in the melodic line. This is supposed to float dreamily out over shimmering arpeggio accompaniment. But when Perahia came to the A Flat Impromptu, a piece played by most pianists, the melody soared, the inner section rang and the whole piece conveyed Schubert at his most ravishing.

Something happens in Orchestra Hall where a sensitive performer can hear clearly the results of his musical intentions. Listening to the crystalline clarity of his own sounds, he surpasses himself. It's a kind of magic, given the humdrum accoustics of many modern halls, and it happened in this recital.

Plymouth Symphony hosts cellist Sunday for Dvorak, Schubert

The unabashed romanticism of the 19th century will dominate the program of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra at 4 p.m. Sunday in the auditorium of Plymouth-Salem High School, Joy west of Canton Center

The second concert of the season will feature cellist Ross Harbaugh in one of the major solo works for the baritone of the string section—Antonin Dvorak's Concerto in B minor for Cello and Orchestra.

Franz Schubert's Symphony No. 5 and Arnold Bax's "The Garden of Fand" will open the program.

IN STATURE, the Dvorak concerto is to the cello what Tchaikovsky's First Concerto is to the piano and Mendelssohn's is to the violin. It's an epic work for an instrument of great sonority and dizzving tonal range.

While Dvorak was coached and encouraged by Johannes Brahms, the inspiration for the cello concerto came from a cellist best known to us today as composer of light opera-Victor Herbert. He and Dvorak were New York neighbors when the concerto was

But I'm constantly amazed at the freshness of his music. His Symphony No. 5 is a little one—for one of those evenings with a small orchestra. But it's one of his most tuneful."

Theater guild readies musical for next week

For "I Do! I Do!." the musical story of 50 years of marriage, the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford has assembled three directors and a cast of two who have almost 100 years of amateur and professional theatre experience among them.

Howard Egan (Michael) of Fa-rmington Hills has been a mainstay at TGLR since its inception and has directed comedies, dramas and musicals for the guild. His award-winning performances in theatre competitions include "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "The Lion in Winter" and "I Never Sang for My Father." His most musical appearances were in "Pieces of Eight" and as Noah in Kay L. Grismer (Agnes) of Detroit directed the guild's first show this season, "An Almost Perfect Person." She is completing her doctorate in theater at Wayne State University, where she has appeared as Amy in "Company" and Cunegonde in 'Candide' at the Bonstelle Theatre. Local audiences will remember her performances in "See Saw." "Luv" and "Pieces of Eight.

DIRECTOR Marc McCullouch of Detroit first worked with the guild on stage as Rutledge in the Livonia Arts Commission-sponsored production of "1776" He has directed "Passionella" at the Attic Theatre, and "Relatively Speaking" and " My Three Angels" for TGLR.

Jack Pierson of Livonia, who is instrumental music director at Edsel Ford High School in Dearborn, has directed the music for almost 40 shows and served as vice-president for jazz activities for the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Associaton for several years.

He has directed Egan and Grismer in previous shows. "They are truly professional in ability and attitude, which makes it a pleasure to work with them," he says.

Choreographer Chris ZeVan of Southfield recently moved to Michigan from Minneapolis. She has performed as a singer and dancer in a number of Broadway shows including the original production of "Sweet Charity." Her extensive choreographic experience includes dinner theater, regional theater, television, industrial shows and conducting workshops in dance as related to musi-

Ms. ZeVan is also an actress and has appeared on stage in many leading roles and on television in several commercials. She says. "I love it here and am looking forward to becoming even more involved in the many excellent theater and dancerelated activities available in the Detroit area."

The Stroller Bike paths Group collects for Indians Joe Louis's money lengthen

By W. W. EDGAR.

When the celebrities of stage, screen and the boxing world gathered in Las Vegas the other evening to pay an emotional tribute to Joe Louis, they innocently focused attention to the off asked question

'What became of Joe Louis's fortune?" "Who stole his money?"

Ever since the Brown Bomber, a product of Paradise Valley on Detroit's lower east side, was felled by illness some years ago and wound up an almost helpless cripple in a wheel chair in Las Vegas, these questions have been asked.

Unfortunately, the people who are loudest in asking the questions know little of the boxing game, and how the big purses are divided. All they know is that the champion was paid an enormous sum (to them, at least) and they wonder just how he could spend

WELL, TO SET the record straight, the champion, no matter who he happens to be, does not get to keep the entire purse. It has to be divided with his managers, and this often poses a question.

In many cases, the managers take one-third of the purse and make the fighter pay all expenses, including the heavily populated training camp, from his share. This often runs into the thousands of dollars

In the Louis camp, things were run on a different plan. Under the guidance of John Roxborough, who befriended Louis from his amateur days, the purse was split in what he called a more equitable fashion.

It was agreed by all concerned that the Louis camp should run like a corporation. In this policy, all expenses were paid out of the original purse. It was Roxborough's belief that the manager was equally responsible for the

NOW, IF YOU look at the records. Louis's total purses for all of his title defenses amounted to less than $5 million over the 12 years he was chamnion. So, in reality, he wasn't paid a "fortune" compared to what the champions and challengers get today.

Of that $5 million, it is reasonable to suppose that 'e expenses ran close to, if not more than, $1 million. Joe never ran a cheap training camp. It was always of the best, with a private chef, a bodyguard, a trainer, a doctor and a lawyer, aside from his sparring partners.

The remaining $4 million was split, which meant that Joe was given $2 million over a 14 year period. This is an average of little more than $140,000

Quite a sum, but it must be remembered that Joe took good care of his family. First he paid back all the welfare money his mother received. He bought her a home

His sister wanted an education and thought a trip around the world would do it. So Joe sent her on the trip. He set up another in a high class beauty shop in Paradise Valley. And he bought his brothers a chicken farm in Wyandotte, and he paid income tax into many thousands of dollars.

ALWAYS A FREE spender, he also purchased a row of apartment houses in Chicago which he gave to his wife. Marva, in settlement of their divorce. And he got to be a gambler on the golf course, playing for as much as $100 a hole with some of the same celebrities who honored him the other evening.

Joe was not a businessman. He knew not the value of money. The Stroller, who was confidant during the Brown Bomber's heydey, recalls one of the oddest business deals he ever witnessed. As Joe was coming to the end of his career, he was advised to open a restarurant like Dempsey in New York and Jack Sharkey in Boston. He demurred until his friends painted an enticing picture of what they called "Joe Louis' Chicken Shack" on E.

Joe listened for a time. Then he said, "OK, you can go ahead. I don't want none of the profits, but I will pay all the losses.

Suburban friends of northern Michigan Indians have three trips scheduled soon to take food and toys to impoverished areas.

'This Saturday, we're going to the Traverse Bay Indian Center with 500 toys, and then to Harbor Springs with food and candy," said Hank Chrusial, chairman of the Indian affairs committee of the Western Wayne County Conservation Association.

At Harbor Springs is the Holy Childhood Indian Mission School, where Sr. Helen watches over a flock of 45 youngsters.

AMONG THE committee's helpers have been: Perry Drug Stores, which donated the toys; Faith Community, United Presbyterian Church of Novi. which provided $50; Mrs. Rex Moorhead of Livonia, $25; and Cub Pack 279 of Grandview Elementary School, Clarenceville, which is taking up a canned food collection.

Chruscial operates out of his home at 19345 Brentwood, Livonia. Although canned food and new toys donations are still coming in, he admits the level of help isn't what it was three or more years ago.

In the early 1970s, the committee met goals of 3,000 cans of food. Things have been down since then.

Yet some work gets done. A week ago, a truck from the St. Catherine mission near the upper peninsula village of L'Anse picked up 685 toys and seven boxes of clothing from Chruscial's collection. Rev. Elmer Stoffel is the priest in charge there

THE WESTERN Wayne Indian Affairs Committee has scheduled two trips northward next month for which it is collecting new toys, new clothing and canned food.

On Dec. 2, it will visit the Woodland Indians of the tri-county area around Muskegon. A kids Christmas party is scheduled for that Saturday, and a senior citizens party for Sunday. "We could use gifts for the elderlylap covers, lamps, cribbage boards. playing cards and electrical kitchen utensils," said Chruscial.

Deadline for gifts for that trip is Nov. 30.

Master plan is a priority

The campaign hoopla and election antics are over for another year.

Next week, victorious candidates will be taking their places as Canton Township's elected officials.

They've had a week to sit back and relax from the frantic pace they've been maintaining. Now it's time to take stock and plan for the future.

We hope that all those campaign promises are kept. Some of those promises won't be easy to ful-

The defeat of the farmland preservation tax proposal makes it pecessary for new officials to come up with ways to keep Canton's farmland without having the money to buy development rights. Judging from the initial question asking residents whether farmland should be preserved, and the close outcome of the most recent request for millage (in a year of the taxpayer revolt), we would conclude people want that land preserved.

Officials will have to move quickly, ahead of the developers, to keep the agricultural district.

Perhaps they will ask for a lower amount of millage in a special election, or explore the possibility of using zoning restraints.

Before they can do any of these things, our new officials must act on a master plan for Canton that will be strictly adhered to.

WITHOUT something as basic as a master plan, Canton will be torn apart by the colliding selfinterests of farmers, developers, residents and businesses.

Without a master plan, the township board is almost forced into acting on various zoning questions by whim rather than planning.

But a master plan is only as good as the people who enforce it. If our new officials develop a plan, perhaps based on the one developed during Robert Greenstein's term as supervisor, they must be willing to follow it.

There was nothing wrong with the original master plan; but no one bothered to follow it.

Township board members are going to have to make a commitment when the time comes to consider a new master plan for Canton.

These plans cost money—money that goes down the drain if the results of the plan are blithely

CANTON CITIZENS have always been vocal about the things they want for their community. They elected the new township officers to get what they want.

They want a decent place to live that still has a few open spaces. They want an asthetically pleasing community with an atmosphere conducive to raising families.

They want places to shop, but not too many and not too ugly; and they want places to work-but once again, not ugly ones.

It's up to the new elected officials to try to get these things.

Ebenezer's example

After Ebenezer Scrooge was visited by the three spirits, it was said that he reformed and learned to keep Christmas in his heart all year long.

American merchants are following the reformed Scrooge's example by making the Christmas shopping season last longer and longer

At one time, Thanksgiving Day was a day of thanksgiving. Some years ago, it was elevated to the position of kicking off the arrival of Santa

At the beginning of this decade, the Christmas shopping message began the day after Halloween.

This year we heard our first Christmas message right after Labor Day

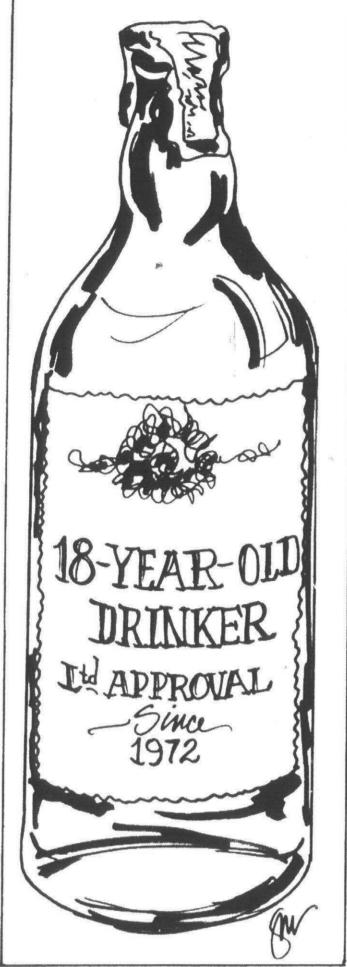

In the same way the fall football season has been extended both directions and now runs from late June to mid-February, so, too, is the Christmas season running longer and longer.

"You Better Watch Out, You Better Not Cry" is good advice any season of the year, not just the days prior to Santa's arrival.

Christmas shopping season is a good stimulus for employment. Just think how many jobs could be created if we kept Christmas on our minds 12 months of the year instead of only four or five!

We're getting the message, Ebenezer.

The young don't change; they've learned by 18

It was just 18 years ago last weekend when I held this particular bit of Heaven in my arms for the first time. God called it a daughter.

Some years later, He might have wondered at His definition had He heard a sixth grader in a sandlot football game exclaim in wonderment as he dragged the explosive ball carrier to earth in the end zone, "Hey, guys, it's a girl!

A southpaw, she can fling the pigskin with the accuracy of a Frankie Albert. She was born with a golf swing that would make Sam Snead proud to be her daddy. She can make a saxophone weep. We like her-the we being my chauvinistic concession to the indubitable fact that Mother Goose was in on Her beauty comes from her mother, her writing skill (which is considerable) from her Aunt Martha, her stubborness from both sides of the family, and her common sense from the Lord himself. We call her Betty.

WHAT DO a father and mother tell their only daughter as she turns 18 in today's society? Older brother Bob and his friends saw to a considerable amount of her growing-up education, and they did it well. We couldn't quarrel. We respected them.

She's a freshman at Eastern Michigan University and busy, busy, busy

She thinks you probably would have joined her, had both of you had the right to yote last week in Michigan, in opposing Proposal D.

I DON'T mean to turn this into a political column. But it's as stupid to try and legislate the moral question of legal drinking age as it is of pregnancy or fatherhood.

Figuratively speaking, did you ever live in Meredith Willson's River City? Do you remember Professor Harold Hill singing in "The Music

"Trouble, oh, we've got trouble, right here in River City, right here in River City. With a capital T and that rhymes with P and that stands for pool. We've surely got trouble. Right here in River City. Gotta figger out a way t'keep the young ones moral after school."

River City was said by Willson to have had a population of 2,212 Iowans when Professor Hill arrived there in 1912. At the same point in time, real-life communities like Birmingham, Rochester, Farmington and Plymouth weren't too much larger. Quite likely their citizens were just as moral as the Iowans Willson's big hit from that sparkling musical, "Ya Got Trouble," included such lines as the following.

"NOW I KNOW all you folks are the right kind a" parents. I'm going to be perfectly frank. Would you like to know what kind a' conversation goes on while they're loafin' around that pool hall?

"They're tryin' out Bevo, tryin' out Cubebs, tryin' out Tailor Mades like cigarette feends. And braggin' all about how they're gonna cover up a tell-tale breath with Sen Sen.

"One fine night they leave the pool hall, headin" fer the dance at the Arm'ry. Libertine men and scarlet women! And ragtime, shameless music that'll grab your son and your daughter with the arms of a jungle animal instinct. Massteria! Friends, the idle brain is the Devil's Playground.

"Mothers of River City! Heed the warning before it's too late. Watch for the tell-tale signs of corruption!

"The moment your son leaves the house, does he rebuckle his knickerbockers below the knee? Is there a nicotine stain on his index finger? A dime novel hidden in the corn crib?

"Is he memorizing jokes out of Capt Billy's Whiz Bang? Are certain words creeping into his conversation? Words like 'swell' and 'so's your old man'?

"If so, ya got trouble etc. etc. etc."

Times change, don't they, Grandpop? Morals change. The people don't-and knock 'em as you may, I'm proud of our young 'uns. Happy Birth-

Truck stops make issue of fuel tax hike

As if we hadn't had enough of taxpayer petitions. another one is brewing. This time it concerns the two cents a gallon hike in motor fuel and hike in license fees recently enacted by our heroes in the Michigan Legislature

State Sens. John Welborn (R-Kalamazoo) and Harry DeMaso (R-Battle Creek) were opposed to the increase. Their goal is to get enough petition signatures by the end of the year and put the guestions on the 1980 ballot. Welborn is an "aginner." In Gerald Ford's home state, Welborn was 1976 chairman for Ronald Reagan. DeMaso is different. He's to the right of center but non-doctrinaire, a problem solver and an expert on the nuts and bolts of taxation.

So we shouldn't write off their petition drive as a sorehead thing.

BOTH SENATORS come from the south-central part of the state. In their districts are stations that sell fuel to truckers.

As I listened to the floor debate in the senate, it was the diesel fuel tax more than the overall tax increase that was bothering some senators. They argued that Michigan would lose 30 to 40 per cent of its diesel fuel tax revenue, along with a lot of truck stop business, if the diesel fuel hike were put through.

The situation is that neighboring states collect seven to eight cents a gallon tax on diesel fuel. If Michigan raises its diesel tax to nine cents, truckers will gas up across the border. With their large tanks, they will be able to make deliveries in almost any part of the state and return across the border before they have to refuel.

It's obvious political nonsense to raise the gasoline tax two cents a gallon and not the diesel fuel tax. Trucks, as well as autos, use the roads, too. We must either raise all fuel taxes, as the majority in the legislature voted to do, or none, as Welborn and DeMaso propose.

Tim Richard

THE MUCH-HERALDED "tax revolt" turned out to be less of a concern in Michigan Nov. 7 than the politicians-including Richard Headlee and

Robert Tisch—had supposed. Headlee's pitch was based on a distorted set of figures, and his tax limitation plan barely passed although polls had showed it leading. Tisch's version of California's Proposition 13 went bust. So did the voucher plan, which contained a property tax

And incumbent legislators of both parties tended notable exception of Sen. Robert Griffin, Michiganians liked their local lawmakers pretty much the way they are.

It has been nine years since Michigan has seen a statewide increase in passenger and commercial vehicle registration fees and five years since any increase in fuel taxes. The notion that we're being taxed to death for roads is simply untrue.

AND YET we bump up against the reality that Michigan businesses will lose income and the state will lose tax revenue if truckers fill up across the border. Michigan cannot afford to disregard competition.

The fault in our thinking is the concept of the "user" tax-that taxes on automotive products should support roads, taxes on hunters should purchase hunting lands, taxes on sales and property should support schools.

Michigan's transportation system-roads, rails. buses, airports, ports and the rest-needs more revenue. I have stronger and stronger doubts about levying specific taxes for that fund. The personal income and single business taxes should have been the logical alternative.

Ask your bank who pays higher interest on savings them or us.

The answer: We do! They'll hate admitting it, but it's true. American pays a higher interest rate on regular savings than any bank in Michigan. More on comparable certificate accounts, too.* One quarter percent more, and that adds up to more for you at the end of the year no matter how the banks compound their interest. So if you're not getting all the interest you're entitled to, make the move to American before you lose another cent.

Step taken to fill Whitman plant

By LYNN ORR

Plymouth Township trustees took the first step Tuesday towards a tax break for industrial newcomer Otto Durr. Inc.

The board, in a 4-2 decision, created an industrial district for the vacant Whitman Barnes property on Plymouth Road, east of Haggerty. Durr, now located in Livonia, plans to purchase the property for nearly $1 1/2

Trustees Maurice Breen and Lee Fidge opposed the creation of the industrial district, which the company requested under the state industrial development laws.

The manufacturing company has received permission from Livonia to relocate in the township under state requirements for eligibility in the development program.

The firm plans to remodel the building with about $1.4 million borrowed from the state and financed with the sale of tax-free bonds. The state's industrial program is designed to encourage business and industry to locate or remain in Michigan

OTTO DURR, INC. is seeking a 50 per cent tax break from the township on the proposed remodeling of the building. Without the tax break, the firm would pay taxes on approximately one-half the value of the nearly $1.5 million remodeling.

Under the industrial development district, Durr will ask for a 50 per cent reduction in taxes on the new construction of the property for a 12-year

The property tax paid on the assessed value of the property is maintained and increased according to assessed valuation.

Supervisor Thomas Notebaert explained that future tax estimates for the property include about $39,000 in property tax on the assessed value of $735,000, and about $18,508 in taxes on the assessed value of the new construction at half of its market value of

Total estimated revenues for 1979 would be about $73,379, about six per cent of which would accrue to the township. The Plymouth-Canton Community School District receives the

ALTHOUGH confirming that the state's program was good for Lansing, Breen failed to see the benefits for the township.

"For the local community, I don't think it does you any good." he said. adding that there's no promise that about 60 additional employees over the next two years will be Plymouth Township residents.

"The dollars you're getting out of this would not support an increased load on the schools or cover the services provided by the community.'

Ben Roberts, of the Office of Economic Development in Michigan, explained that the employment assets have a ripple effect in the community and attempted to allay fears that a large number of firms would seek the industrial development tax breaks.

Under the law, industrial districts cannot exceed five per cent of the total tax base in a community, he explained.

IN A LETTER to the township, Otto

Durr president James Townley promoted the company's request, explaining that the relocation would help to increase employment, consumer spending and tax revenue in the township.

"As citizens of the community, Otto Durr, Inc. would be sponsoring and supporting community functions." Townley wrote.

Occupation of the vacant property would improve the appearance of the building as well as restrict vandalism, he said.

Proposed renovations include landscaping, exterior walls, stone work, painting and roof repair, while interior work will encompass repair of floors, ceilings, walls and lighting, he added. In 1977, property taxes of $92,755 and personal property taxes of $3,095 were paid on the property assessed at

$1,459,000, approximately half of the market value. In 1978, the assessed valuation was reduced for one year by the Board of

THE CAVELL CLAN gathered Saturday, Nov. 11, to celebrated the 90th birthday of James Cavell. The party was in the Hendry Convalescent Home where the guest of honor has been a resident for the past year and a half.

James Cavell was born in London, England, in 1888. He and his bride had been married only two weeks when they came to this country in 1913. They lived in the Flint area and he worked for General Motors until his retirement in 1955. They moved to Florida in 1959 He returned to Michigan after the death of his wife.

He is very alert and reads the newspaper without glasses. He is very interested in current events and keeps up with what is going on in the world. One of his retirement hobbies was building bird houses. He always had the ability to turn his hand to carpentry chores.

With new building going on at the Hendry home, he has been spending a good deal of his time watching the progress of the construction.

Mr. Cavell's three sons were here for the birthday party. They are Les Cavell of Carol Street, Plymouth; Norman Cavell of Bluffton, Ind.; and Raymond Cavell of Grand Blanc. He also has 13 grandchildren and one greatgrandchild.

Armistice Day has a special meaning for the Cavells. Their father was marking his 30th birthday back in 1918 when the Armistice was signed.

MEMBERS OF the Plymouth branch American Association of University Women are looking for storage space for their play costumes.

Over the years, the AAUW has assembled a considerable wardrobe of costumes for their annual children's play. The collection is irreplaceable. They are in cardboard warbrobe and storage boxes.

Space required for the boxes is estimated at about 10x12 feet. It should be heated and dry. The only time the members would require access to the costumes is during the months of January and February

For the second consecutive year, members and friends of the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi gathered at the handsome Victorian home of the Dumont Hixons on Dunlap Street, Northville, for the league's annual cheese and wine party.

Every window glowed with light as league members welcomed area officials and supporters last Friday evening. Reservation Chairman Sandra Walts reported 102 reservations had been made. League President Kari Miller of Plymouth said that all communities covered by the league were represented at the event which is the league's only social party of the year. The rest of the time the civic-minded women (and a few men members) concentrate on prime issues including land use.

School board members, attorneys and community officials circulated through rooms, sampling cheeses, dips, punch and wines. Apple wedges were included on cheese platters to fresnen tastes.

Mrs. Miller said that funds raised by the party ($7 minimum donation a couple) are used for various league purposes, primarily voter service and education. She added, however, that the party was more important as a "chance to talk with officials. to come and meet spouses of members," than a money-making venture.

Soo doughboys welcomed to Plymouth

By ELINOR GRAHAM

A battery of cameras, a VFW color guard, a fife and drum corps, representatives of three American Legion posts and a host of well-wishers greeted the 11 members of the Sault Ste. Marie Drum and Bugle Corps when the World War I veterans returned from their 10-day trip to

The group arrived at Metropolitan Airport Tuesday evening. After a quick run through customs, they were on their way by bus to Plymouth where they were to spend the night in the Mayflower Hotel.

The welcoming party, news and television cameras, prolonged their entrance to the warmth of the hotel. When concern was expressed, Oral "Moose" LaCombe, 82-year-old leader of the group, responded with true Upper Peninsula fortitude, "We're not going to freeze to death. We love it."

Jerry Halloran, president of Imacon Travel of Southfield, who had arranged the tour, said, "Their stamina is phenomenal. I don't think I saw any of them napping during the 12-hour flight from London."

SO THE PLYMOUTH Fife and Drum Corps played on. Tom Turner, mayor of Plymouth, read a proclamation prepared by the city for the occasion. Ernie Koi of the Passage-Gayde American Legion Post of Plymouth welcomed the returning heroes.

The crowd-members of the Plymouth Kiwanis Club who meet regularly in the hotel, relatives of the fife and drum corps members, officials, and casual passersby-cheered the Soo party.

LaCombe, bass drummer, thanked the young people in the fife and drum corps. "I've got to thank you all one at a time on behalf of the Sault Ste. Marie Drum and Bugle Corps which has been rejuvenated by the trip to Paris and London.'

added, "After 60 years, I've had the opportunity of shaking the hand of the President of France." Someone suggested that there would be speeches later on and they all hustled inside the building.

Among those who had waited several hours for their arrival was another World War I veteran, John Salvadore, 83, of Plymouth Township.

"I would have waited all night to see them," said Salvadore. He had been a member of the 163d Infantry from

THE VISIT TO the Mayflower had been arranged by Bill Rabe of Lake Superior State College in the Soo. He had written to Kirk Lorenz, manager of the hotel, that on their return, they would need some good old-fashioned American hospitality. He said he recalled the times he and his family had stopped at the Mayflower and Plymouth was added as the last stop on the journey. The Plymouth Rotary Club quickly decided to arrange a dinner for the veterans and their party. The whole town wanted some part in welcoming the Soo veterans.

The city of Sault Ste. Marie had raised $30,000 to send the group to Europe. In addition to the bandsmen, six of the members' wives went along, as well as a physician, two persons to handle the band equipment, and 22 others who heard about the trip and decided to go along.

They left Detroit Nov. 5 and spent three days in England, where they were interviewed on BBC radio and several television networks and by all of England's major newspapers.

Wearing their olive-drab World War I uniforms, they had a champagne breakfast aboard a naval cruiser on the Thames River, toured London by bus and visited retired British veterans in the Royal Chelsea Hospital.

THEY CROSSED the English Channel at 65 m.p.h. in a Hovercraft and continued by bus to Armentieres. They watched the Armistice Day parade along those French roads, I remembered all the names of towns as we came to them. They were still there the same towns I had gone through in a convoy more than 60 years ago. It was just like being in the Army again, it was 'fall in, fall out.

Asa's wife, Esther, had been unable to go with him because of arthritis. But she and their son, Paul, and his wife met him at the airport. They were going to Utica to see their grandchildren before heading north for the

"It was a wonderful trip, but I'm very tired," admitted Anthony Settember, another member of the Soo band. Jack Grego, 80, a drummer with the band, asked, "Did you know we visited my brother's grave? I didn't get home until July 1919 and I had been at the cemetery-it was just wooden crosses then-but I didn't know then that he was buried there. I didn't know he was dead until I got home." The Soo bandsmen interrupted their dinner at the Mayflower to give a brief rendition of "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," but soon headed for bed.

"It's three o'clock in the morning in the time we're used to," explained Julia Settember. "It's been a long

THE SOO VETS who made the trip were: LaCombe, 82; Louis Menard, 81; Settember, 83; John J. Wilson, 83; Jack Grego, 80; Brabant, 83; Frank Lee, 82; James Callon, 79; Frank Miller, 87; Sante Mirabelli, 86; and Orval Dietz, 82.

Members of the Plymouth Veterans of Foreign Wars Mayflower Post 6695 who formed the color guard were Dan Fowler, Bill Engel, Gerald Olson, Gene Leader (acting OD), Dave Richard, Leonard Maciejewski, and Joe Mayor Tom Turner welcomed Oral "Moose" LaCombe, and fellow World War I bandsmen from Sault Ste. Marie, to the city.

Members of the Soo drum and bugle corps and their wives pose for one more picture after their arrival from Metro Airport.

Moose LaCombe shows no sign of weariness after a 13-hour trip from France as he leaves the chartered bus in the Mayflower Hotel parking lot.

Here's how you can keep gourds bright

For bright colors and funny shapes, you just can't beat gourds.

Keep gourds firm and brightly colored for months by following these tips on proper curing from Michigan State University horticultur-

Harvest gourds when the rinds are hard and the stems have started to shrivel. Do not let the gourds be frosted or frozen. This damages the flesh and causes it to quickly decay.

Wipe gourds with a cloth dampened in rubbing alcohol. Dry them thoroughly. Discard bruised or nicked gourds-they will not keep.

To cure gourds, hang them in mesh bags in a cool, well-ventilated place where they will not be exposed to direct sun or artificial heat. A cool dry basement, garage or shed should do nicely. It should take one to two weeks for the outer skin to dry and the color to set, and one to six months for internal drying. You can hasten drying by drilling a hole or pushing a wire through the blossom end. This should cut drying time to a month or so. After the gourds have dried and hardened, give them a coat of transparent furniture wax.

With proper curing. the bright colors of ornamental gourds should last several months. Use pieces and as door decorations. Throw away

Shrubs planted in fall

develop strong root

By MARGE ALPERN

This time of year the soil is soft and moist, making it the ideal time to move. remove and plant evergreens, shrubs and trees. The ground is warm and more mellow than in the spring.

If you plant in the fall, the roots will have time to develop and establish themselves before the ground freezes. In the spring newly planted stock is frequently put in soil that is still too cold and perhaps

This condition discourages the adequate root development needed to help the plant withstand sudden rising temperatures and bright sunshine so typical of spring weather.

Unfortunately, most garden centers do not carry as much stock in the fall as they do in the spring. The recently held Nursery Day at Eastern Market was the perfect place to pick up a few replacements.

Prices were much lower than in the spring in the nurseries, and many of our finest flowers were there.

Speaking of replacements, I suggest you check the shrubs you planted last spring and make sure they're doing well. All four of the dwarf Alberta Spruce I planted last April are totally dead and will be returned to the garden center where I bought them. I'm sure they had been growing in containers that were too small, causing their root systems to be badly stunted before I ever put them into the ground. Replacement guarantees for spring planted material generally expire by Nov.1.

TAKE SPECIAL CARE of the shrubs you planted last spring so they'll get through their first winter. Extra watering during the fall is the best protective meas-

Evergreen and especially the boardleafs, such as rhododendron, azaleas and hollies, need additional watering. They continue to evaporate moisture through their leaves or needles even in the depths

It is important therefore to make sure the plant tissue goes into winter well supplied with reserve moisture. Once the ground freezes, roots can no longer extract in open, sunny or windy places may not look great, but it's only necessary the first year of a plant's life.

Snow fencing around boxwood hedges may not look great either, but if you want boxwood you have to protect both the sides and the top from the wind, sun and weight of the snow

Wilt-pruf is a commercial spray used to protect board-leaf evergreens from drying up. Follow the directions carefully. Many people report considerable success with this product.

ANOTHER HELPFUL PROCEDURE is heavy winter mulching, especially with oak leaves.

Pile up the ground or mulched leaves around the base and then lightly cover the small, low shrubs with unground leaves. Large flat oak leaves pushed down in among the branches work especially well.

In the spring, remove part of the heavy mulch and loosen the rest of the ground mulch. Allow it to remain and decompose. enrichening the soil.

Oak leaves are very high in acid content which evergreens especially like.

Cleaning the edge of the woods of small "weed trees" has become a simpler job since we purchased a "grub-ax."

This hefty tool gets right down under the runner-root system of cherry and other invasive scrub trees.

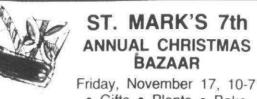

Many hyper vigorous wildings send out such root systems and these trees must not be just cut off at the base or more new strong shoots will pop up again next

Obviously what was acceptable underbrush on the edge of the woods last year benefitted from my watering of the nearby garden and grew into real trees.

If these "edge of the woods" trees are not dug up they create a screen, blocking the view into the woods and closing the property down into a smaller space.

Removing and clearing the woods opens it all up and one can look into and through the woods. It's a job, but worht the effort.

Fall is an exciting garden season. Not just because it gives me a jump ahead on spring work, but because I love being outdoors in the haze of an autumn morning, feeling the soil as I plant young shrubs, bury bulbs, and prepare my garden for the long winter sleep.

A good reason to move your money.

CHECK THE EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELD PAID BY OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS ON MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATES.

THEN, CHECK OURS.

Many banks and savings and loans are offering six-month money market certificates. And while the savings and loans can legally pay a higher annual interest rate than banks, that fact alone doesn't necessarily put more money in your pocket. The amount of money you'll actually earn depends upon the effective annual yield you obtain—and that depends upon the way your interest is compounded.

At the Michigan National Banks, we compound interest continuously on Michigan Money Market Certificates to pay you the highest effective annual yield we are legally permitted to pay. And that simply means that you'll earn more money at the Michigan National Banks than you will at a lot of other banks and savings and loans.

Michigan Money Market Certificates require a minimum deposit of $10,000. The interest rate—and effective annual yield—changes weekly. The rate at which the certificates are hought is fixed for the 26-week life of the certificate and subject to change at renewal.

$10,000 Earns you $480.92 in just six months.

Henry's better idea taken out of mothballs

Fair Lane power house again taps river's force

The private plant, garage and laboratory are probably the most elaborate and comprehensive of anything attempted on any private estate." noted the March 1916 issue of Architecture Magazine

The "estate" was Henry Ford's Fair Lane, a 56-room baronial mansion in Dearborn. The "power plant," a fourstory limestone structure completed in 1915 and described as "a most unique engineering development," supplied all electricity and water to Fair Lane for 36 years from the flow of the Rouge River.

Today, the Fair Lane power house, now part of The University of Michigan-Dearborn's campus, is the subject of an energetic restoration project being conducted by engineering students in U of M-Dearborn's School of Engineering.

The project to restore the hydroelectric power house was conceived in 1977 by Burt Burley, an electrical engineering student. Burley saw the historical and educational value of the landmark. He also saw the opportunity for U of M-D students to gain some practical engineering and work experience by renovating the deteriorating power

In its unique features and its relationship to Ford and Edison, the plant is one of the most valuable assets the University has," says Burley.

With some other students and the support of J. Robert Cairns, the school of engineering dean, and the university, he set out to determine the condition of the power house, shut down in 1950 after Mrs. Ford's death and operated only occasionally since that time.

Was such a renovation really feasible? The sutdents attacked the problem methodically. They rowed up and down the Rouge River to examine the head and tail races and the intakes. They evaluated the equipment-the boilers, generators, and turbines-and noted the condition. They made detailed drawings of the entire facility. What the engineering students found was an unusual hydroelectric power plant still intact; no major equipment had been removed or modified. However, in its state of disuse, the plant was inoperable.

After almost two years of hard work, the engineering students have succeeded in getting both turbines and generators operating. "We can generate about 15 kilowatts of power," says Burley, "enough to light an average home." They have built a test panel to harness this power for testing and demonstration purposes.

The students checked and overhauled both generators polishing the gleaming brass parts as they went. The governors on both were cleaned. re-oiled and adjusted.

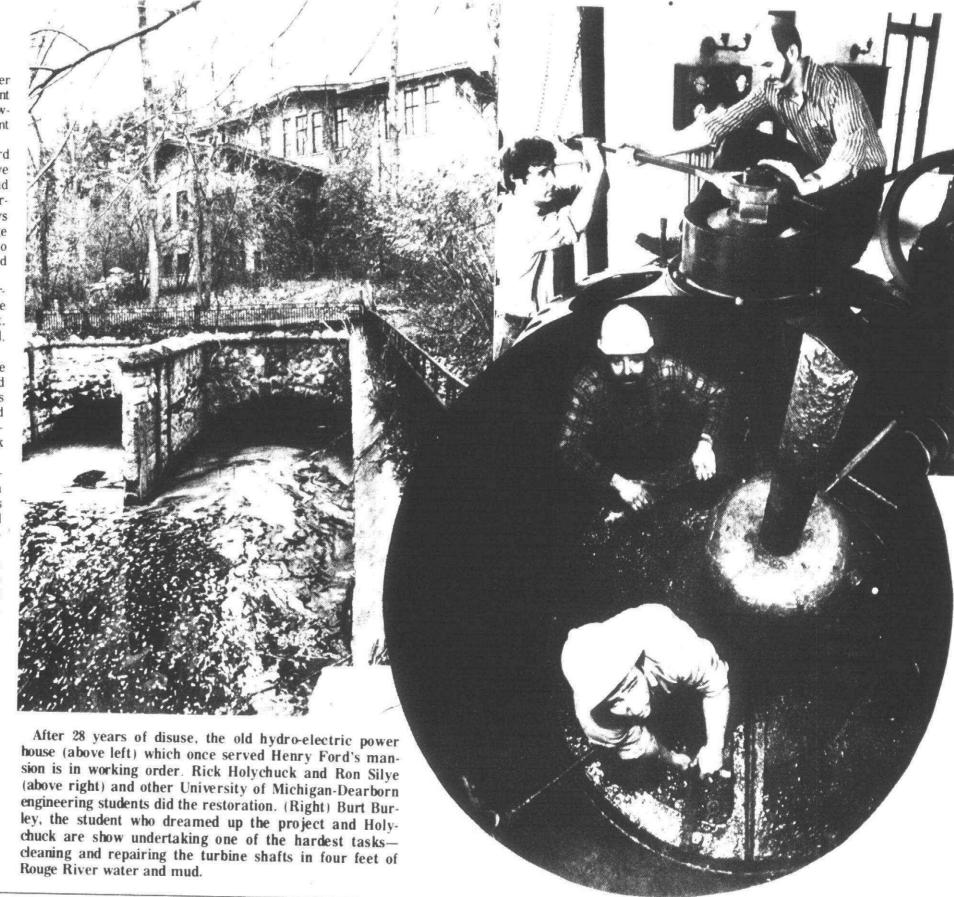

The turbines took a little more effort. Four feet of water and mud had to be pumped from the turbine shafts before they could be cleaned, repaired and greased. They also cleaned, polished and rewired the two-inch thick marble control panel.

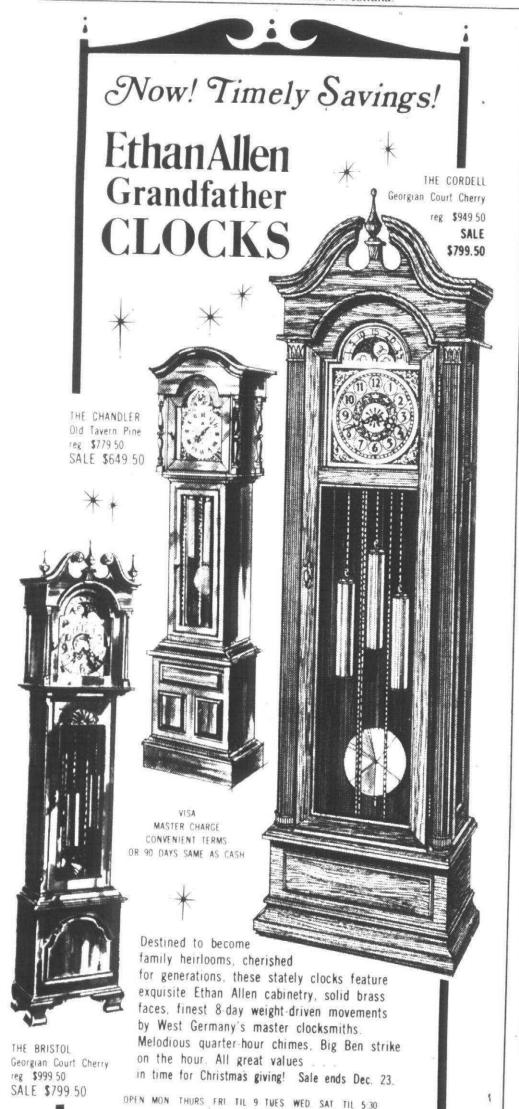

The students studied the accelerators and decided to leave them for a future time. The same decision was made with the mud in the head and tail races; it did not affect the operation of the turbines

"Safety was a prime consideration throughout," said Burley. The workers were equipped with hard hats and safety glasses at all times. A gas analyzer was used to test for oxygen and the presence of poisonous and explosive gases in the turbine shafts. Michigan Bell of Dearborn loaned air blowing equipment to the students to pump oxygen into the shafts while they were down in them working.

The research and repairs to the power house equipment to date have been costly. Expenses have been offset by approximately $3,000 collected from community and university

The engineering students have already been called on as consultants for restoration of other Henry Fordbuilt power plants, including Nankin Mills in Westland.

Biofeedback relieves ills caused by tension

A University of Michigan psychiatrist is teaching patients to cure themselves of the effects of anxiety illness by "revolting" against the disease by taking over control of their own bodies.

This overthrow of stress control, reported by Dr. Wiecher H. Van Houten does not emphasize psychotherapy or drugs, but instead employes biofeedback techniques at the University Hospital Psycho-Physiology Clinic.

A high degree of success has been achieved with a growing list of psychosomatic illnesses: hives, alcoholism. migraine, hypertension, difficulties in swallowing, chronic pain, severe anxieties, phobias, insomnia, "wry neck" and partial paralysis.

So far more than 100 persons have been treated over the past two years by biofeedback, according to Dr. Van Houten, who heads the Psycho-Physiology Clinic and is chief of the U-M Adult Outpatient Psychiatry Service.

He believes an even wider range of stress illness could respond to his treatment.

He explained that instead of the doctor giving and the patient receiving treatment, the clinic's method involves teaching and encouraging the patient to become an active participant in his own care. The patient is taught to utilize the body's own ability to turn off pain and turn down anxiety "instead of remaining the helpless victim of the dictates of his disease."

"NO MATTER HOW bad the condition, the patient can be helped to do something for himself," the psychiatrist said.

The key is teaching patients to achieve complete relaxation—at will.

"This is very important because anxiety and relaxation are mutually exclusive. You cannot be completely ralaxed and feel anxious, worried or tense at the same time," Van Houten

Since these patients don't know how to relax, they also don't know when they have achieved a state of relaxation, the physician added.

Biofeedback monitors therefore are used to tell the patient by means of an audible tone when he or she has achieved relaxation as detected by forehead muscle tension, temperature in the fingers, perspiration and alpha brain waves.

The forehead and finger sensors are used most often, Van Houten said, because they are the best indicators of overall body tension.

Good results have been achieved with migraine headache patients by teaching them to relax their body and to raise the temperature of their fingers, Van Houten said. "When the hands become warm, the headache often goes away," he noted, "because

The seventh annual antique photographic trade fair of the Michigan Photographic Historical Society will be held 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18, at the Metro Airport Ramada Inn, 8270 Wickham Road (near I-94 and Merriman). Romulus.

the pressure on brain blood vessels is reduced as arteries and capillaries elsewhere relax and expand."

ONE PATIENT had a severe case of hives which appeared at the same times each day. "All he had to do was look at his watch and if it was 'the' time, he broke out," Van Houten said. When the patient was taught to relax before the attacks, the hives stopped appearing.

Another patient suffered from torticollis or "wry neck." The chronic around with his head so far to one side that his left ear almost touched his shoulder blade. After learning to relax his whole body, the patient found he could loosen his neck muscles and pull his head erect. New patients at the clinic are given a health questionnaire, receive a brief physical checkup, and then rate themselves on psychological and anxiety scales for later followup.

spasm of the neck muscles so severe that, most of the time, he walked

Treatment consists of seating the patient in a comfortable chair, in a quiet room, attaching the biofeedback electrodes and instructing him in person, reinforced by pre-recorded voice tapes, in two methods of relaxation.

One is progressive relaxation of the body's main muscle groups, first by tensing them and then letting go. The second method (most prefer one or the other) is autogenic training. The patient is urged by a soft contralto voice on the tapes to recall a place in his childhood where he felt very safe and to imagine himself there now on a warm sunny day, "to breath softly and to inhale the warmth and let it suffuse his body."

LEARNING TO hold that thought and maintain a steady state of relaxation, whenever and wherever desired, takes most patients about 10 sessions at the U-M clinic bolstered by practice with tape-recorded lessons at home.

According to Van Houten, the very feeling of relaxation is completely foreign to most over-tense patients. After learning how to relax, he said, they describe a sensation "of floating out of the chair," "a loss of feeling in their hands or legs," and, often, a euphoric

For alcoholics, this natural "high" can be substituted for that which comes out of a bottle and assists them in resisting the temptation to drink

Because so many anxiety or stress disorders involve tension, this achievement of relaxation acts as a sort of psychic penicillin, the psychiatrist explained, whether the problem is a fear of flying or trouble sleeping

Tivoli Fair this weekend in Northville

For 17 hours this Saturday and Sunday, area residents can do a bit of early Christmas shopping at 100 booths at the annual Tivoli Fair sponsored by the Nothville Historical society.

Proceeds from the fair will help build an old-fashioned gazebo in Mill Race Village.

The fair will be at Northville High School at Eight Mile Road and Sheldon. Booths will be in the gymnasium from 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $1, or 50 cents for children and senior

This will be the historical society's second fundraiser for a Victorian gazebo or bandstand. The first was an auction last month.

In addition to crafts booths with artisans from the Northville-Plymouth-Novi area, there will be the society's Country Store with items made by society workers.

CO-CHAIRING the project are Carol MacDonell, Jill Anderson and Mary Craig. Carol Jean Stockhausen is general fair chairperson.

Shoppers at the Country Store will find the patchwork aprons that have become a tradition, baby blankets, dolls, tea cozies, hobby horses and beautifully embroidered Christmas stockings to hang up for Santa. Money also is being raised by the sale of tickets for special prizes.

Top prize is a room for two at the Detroit Plaza Hotel for one night. The hotel is adding dinner for two at the Summit to its donation.

Other prizes are dinner for two at Ah Wok Restaurant in Novi, dinner for two at Northville Downs during the Jackson-at-Northville meet, dinner for two in the Downs clubhouse during the Northville Downs winter meet, Sunday brunch for two at the Jolly Miller, Plymouth Hilton Inn, and Sunday brunch for two at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth.

Livonia Stevenson, 7-2, secured the Inter-Lakes League title.

Plymouth Salem and Westland John Glenn, both 8-1, also had excellent seasons, finishing second in the Suburban Eight and Northwest Suburban Leagues, respectively.

Plymouth Canton, 4-5, produced its winningest record ever and Redford Thurston, 5-4, rebounded after going through two consecutive winless campaigns. Detroit Catholic Central, the newest team in Observerland, forged a 7-2 record while competing in the tough Central Division of the Catholic

Girl cagers offer excitement

If you were one of the fortunate persons present at last Thursday's Plymouth-Salem-Livonia Bentley girls' basketball game, you probably saw one of the most exciting cage contests of the season between two excellent ball clubs.

The Rocks won this one by five points in overtime to maintain their unbeaten record this season and all but clinch the Suburban Eight Leegue title. But, boy, was it a struggle for Observerland's top team, as it was forced to play catch up the entire game before forcing the overtime and a victory

It was, no doubt, girls' basketball at its best.

Salem and Bentley have had a basketball rivalry brewing for both boys and girls in recent years. And Thursday's game helped intensify that battle for years to come

The girls' game actually reminded me of a similar situation which occurred with the two boys' squads last season.

The Rock boys, coached by Fred Thomann, entered the Bentley gym last season in danger of losing the Sub-8 title if they fell to the powerful Bulldogs. They weren't expected to win.

The Salem girls, coached by Bob Blohm, had beaten Bentley earlier in the season and held the upper hand in the league race this season. But they, too, were not expected to win last Thursday on Bentley's home court.

Many people underestimated the abilities of the John Brodericks. Doug Agnews. Rich Hewletts and

Tom Ellinghausens at that time but the Salem boys pulled out a close but solid victory over Bentley to share the championship last season. And last Thursday, it was the likes of the Cheryl Sobkows, Erin Moores. Patty Weidmans and Nan Horwoods who proved all the experts wrong with their convincing overtime victory.

And let's not forget the play of freshman Eileen Moore. Seldom has a freshman athlete performed with the coolness and maturity that Eileen demonstrated in running the Salem offense most of the game.

It was apparent from the outset that the sparkling freshman was the only Rock who could effectively bring the ball up the court. And when she fouled out, with 2:12 left and the game tied, it was a credit to the rest of her teammates to pull together and pull out the victory without this valuable member.

The Salem girls entered Tuesday night's game with a 16-0 recordthe only undefeated team in Observerland. They have four games left and with the Sub-8 title secured, the Rocks now can shoot for an undefeated season. Only a victory at Redford Union, a team which many think are playing the best basketball in the area at this time, stands between Salem and that perfect record. The Rocks should have no problems with their other three foes.

Whatever happens, however, there is no doubt that the girls will offer true excitement and emotion for their fans and followers the rest

Salem nears Sub-8 crown

Slow-starting Rocks whip Trenton

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

After an erratic first half, Plymouth Salem got its act together and rolled to a 63-27 girls Suburban Eight League victory over Trenton Tuesday night at the Salem gym.

The Rocks led by only four points at haltime, 22-18, as their sloppy play reflected an obvious letdown from last Thursday's emotional overtime victory at Livonia Bentley.

But in the third quarter, Salem outscored the visiting Trojans, 23-6, to gain control of the game-assuring at least a share of the Sub-8 crown. The Rocks must beat Allen Park tonight on their home court to secure the outright championship.

"All I said at halftime is we've got to have the Trenton game and we don't have it on ice now," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "We wanted to come out and play our game in the second half and we did it. We played good pressure defense and made good offensive cuts.

The Rocks didn't practice Friday or Saturday after the Bentley win and had a poor practice on Monday before the Trenton game. Blohm thinks this may have been the reason for the poor play of the first half.

The rest did us good after the Bentley game," the Salem mentor said. 'We needed it, and we wouldn't have gotten much done at practice anyway.

Salem maintained a slight lead in the first quarter until two Trenton baskets in the final minute tied the score

Trenton went ahead only one time in the game when it held a slight onepoint advantage. 17-16, early in the second quarter.

But two quick Salem baskets helped the Rocks regain a three-point leadan advantage they never relinquished the rest of the way.

The Rocks outscored Trenton, 10-2, in the first three minutes of the third quarter to take a commanding 32-20 lead. The rout continued, as Salem held a 45-24 margin after three quarters, which allowed Blohm to play everyone in the final period.

Junior center Patty Weidman, playing perhaps her best inside offensive game of the season, totally outclassed Trenton's giant center Kim Nash enroute to a solid 16 points. She took game scoring honors with her consistent play

Senior Peggy Somers scored 10 points in the fourth quarter to finish with a 14-point scoring night. Sophomore Cheryl Sobkow continued her improvement with 12 points, eight of which came in the third quarter. The Rocks pressure defense was at its best in the third quarter when their full-court press and half-court trap plays forced 13 Trenton turnovers. Salem now stands at 17-0 overall this season-the only unbeaten team in Observerland.

Chiefs win Western-6 title

The Chiefs from Plymouth Canton won its second straight Western Six League girls basketball title with an easy 70-24 road victory over Northville Tuesday night

"We've got the outright title but now our goal is to go undefeated in the league for the second year in a row." said Canton coach Mike McCauley.

Canton, 16-2 overall, takes its 9-0 Western-6 record into tonight's game at Walled Lake Western in hopes of fulfilling McCauley's goal. The Chiefs close the season next Tuesday at home against Farmington High before entering state district competition.

Canton has never had problems with Northville in the past, as the lowly Mustangs once again were no match against the Chiefs' stingy, aggressive defensive play. The Chiefs took an 18-7 first quarter lead and extended it to 30-15 at halftime.

Canton put an end to any Mustang upset hopes in the third quarter, outscoring Northville, 18-1, to take a 48-16 lead into the final period of action.

Everyone saw action for Canton in this contest, as senior four-year starter Kathie Peck led the balanced scoring attack with 12 points. She was followed by Jill Pedersen with 10 points, and eight each from freshman Reggie Ruggiero and senior co-captains Kelly Heaton and Evie Pasek.

Doug Rowe, 1978 graduate of Plymouth Salem's 9-0 football team last season, is continuing his football successes at Michigan Tech University. One of the leading tacklers on the Tech squad, Rowe, pictured here wearing number 35 in white, has been a valuable member as a defensive end. Not only is Rowe one of only five freshmen on the squad, but he has also been named Defensive Lineman of the Week twice this season in games against Southwest and Mankato. Rowe is the son of George and Shirley Rowe of Plymouth Township.

By W.W. EDGAR

It has been 40 years since the University of Michigan could boast of having the winner of the Heisman Trophy, the most coveted award in college football.

Back in 1938, Tom Harmon, the legendary halfback, won the high honor and became one of the most famous of all Wolverine football heroes.

Now, after this long wait. Michigan has another candidate for the honor, and all eyes will be on Rick Leach when Michigan entertains Purdue before another sellout crowd Saturday afternoon.

The struggle to keep Leach in the running for the Heisman Trophy will make the battle with Purdue a two-pronged affair, as the Wolverines also must gain a victory to remain in the race for the Big Ten title and another trip to the Rose Bowl.

Thus far Leach has set three records. He has rushed for 34 touchdowns, one more than Tom Harmon; giate figured in 75 regular season touchdowns to beat the mark set by Danny White, of Arizona State, and gaining 5,968 yards in total offense to beat the mark held by Mike Phipps of Purdue. Leach has also become only the sixth quarterback in college history to rush for more than 2,000 yards.

It must be remembered, however, that Harmon and the others played only three years and this is Leach's fourth in the Maize and Blue.

Michigan is coming off easy victories over Iowa and Northwestern, and now it is a question of whether they can reach the peak of precision necessary to beat Purdue in a game that is a "must" for the both teams. Purdue proved vulnerable last Saturday against Wisconsin, but perhaps the Boilermakers were looking forward to Michigan. At any rate, Saturday's two-pronged battle should go a long way toward deciding the Big Ten title.

Swimmers stay perfect in league

By M. DAVID CAMPBELL

The Plymouth Salem girls swim team closed out its regular season on a good note, skinning Dearborn in a close meet 42-41 last Thursday. This kept the Rocks' record unblemished in league play, but their overall record stands at 8-4.

When it came down to the 400-yard freestyle relay, Salem was behind 38-35. The Rocks had to place first and third to win. The team of Kelly Brandt, Sharon Ross, Linda Wochna and Renee Lakatus timed 1:13.0, good enough for first place. Terry Eudy, Julie Cabadas, Nancy Lazurus and Linda Frazee combined their talents to put Salem on top with a third place finish.

"We haven't lost a league meet in three years, and we weren't about to lose now." commented co-captain Sue Sparling.

Salems' 200-yard medley relay team of Lakatos, Sue Evans, Sarah Stanwood and Jill McCann placed second to start the meet. Their time was 2:03.4. Salem came back to in 200-yard freestyle, placing first and third. Ross and Kim Coates can be thanked for that contribution, with times of 2:08.8 and 2:19.0, respectably.

Dazzling the fans in the 200-individual medly, Stanwood burned her competitors, with a first place time of 2:21.9. McCann took second in the 50-yard freestyle with a :27.4.

Diver Natilie McClumpha proved to her competitors that she was of regional quality, placing her usual first. She collected a total of 185 points. Teammate Patty Larson placed fourth with 157.

Ross placed first in the 100-yard butterfly, clocking 1:07.5. Stanwood placed first in the 100-yard freestyle, timing :57.3. Seniors Coates and Sparling took second and fourth in the 500yard freestyle, timing 6:09.9, and 6:30.0, respectively. McCann took first in the 100-yard backstroke timing 1:07.6.

Rice, Raiders set for showdown yard dash.

By JOHN BOZZO

Over 8,000 fans. An intra-city opponent. A state championship game.

Birmingham Brother Rice won a tremendous 21-7 victory over Birmingham Groves last Saturday in the quarterfinals of the state playoffs.

It was a victory to be savored and enjoyed. But after the shouting was over Rice players quickly forgot about their conquest.

Looming ahead was still another foe—North Farmington. The Raiders, who like Rice are 10-0, invade Groves Field 1:30 p.m., Saturday for the semi-finals of state tournament action.

"It's surprising how the players soon forget and prepare for the next encounter," said Rice coach Al Fracassa. "The game is over and we've got another one. They've forgotten about that Groves game already.

"We're playing teams that want to beat us really bad," Fracassa said. "Every game we have played has been like a championship ball game from the beginning of the season up to now. We know how badly teams want to beat us.

"THE KIDS HAVE BEEN under pressure two years with many things, like trying to keep the number one rating going," Fracassa said. "It's amazing how these kids are responding to Coaches also are involved in the extensive pre-game preparations. One of the main activities is watching films of the opposition.

"I watch films all the time." Fracassa said. "I look for weaknesses. Sometimes I don't find a weakness until I see a game three or four times. I keep watching and sometimes get an idea, a little idea, that could make the difference between winning and Brother Rice has benefitted from that film watching to the tune of 24 consecutive wins over three years. Rice is the defending Class A state champion.

Shining stars throughout those victories have been quarterback Jon English and wide receiver Marty Martinez.

English has completed 82 of 132 passes for 1,172 yards and 13 touchdowns. An average of 63 per cent of his passes are caught by Rice receivers.

Exactly 50 per cent of those passes,

Exactly 50 per cent of those passes, 41, have been snagged by Martinez. Those 41 receptions have accounted for 685 yards and eight touchdowns. Martinez averages a 16-yard gain every time he catches the football.

Rice's opponent this Saturday, North Farmington, is a strong, well-balanced football team.

Kellogg Community College in Battle Creek, ranked second among the nation's junior colleges, captured the double-elimination tournament by spiking the Ocelots twice.

Schoolcraft, coached by Tom Teeters, easily got by its first-round opponent, Kalamazoo Community College, 15-1, 15-2.

The Ocelots then disposed of Lansing Community College, 15-11, 15-4.

Kellogg put Schoolcraft into the loser's bracket with a convincing match win, 15-4, 15-12.

The Ocelot girls rebounded to stay alive in the tourney by edging Lake Michigan Community College. 14-16. 15-8, 16-14.

This is the week the league bowlers carry on one of the oldest traditions in the world of sport.

It is the week when they bowl for turkeys. In most every establishment there will be a turkey as the prize for high score on each lane.

This tradition was established years ago when someone started the fad of calling three strikes in a row a turkey.

Why?

No one knows. But the fad has become permanent.

So the turkey and bowling have become partners in a tradition that is unique in sports.

ONE OF THE HAPPIEST bowlers in the area for the holiday season is Ann Setlock, day manager at Garden Lanes.

A former bowling "queen" who has taken it easy for the past year, now is back in the thick of things and bowling at a 200 clip.

Last Friday night she posted a 606 series in the Garden Classic and came back with a 604 Monday night in Bowlerettes league at Luxury Lanes.

THERE WAS ANOTHER close race in the Little Casear's Classic at Westland Bowl where Bob Schonce rolled games of 236 and 247 in 677 to beat Hal Jolley by three pins. Jolly had counts of 245 and 229 in his 673. Third place went to Doyle Hudson with a 254 in 663. High game for the night went to Frank Mugger with a 261.

On the women's side, Alita Rzepecki, the rising young star, again showed the way with a 214 in 588, while Cindy Borucki had a 537.

CHERYL MERTZ is making a habit of leading the Merri-Bowl invitational doubles. She paced the field again this week with a 235 game in a 601 series. Right behind her came Rose Aprahamian with a 245 in 597, with Peggy Jackson taking third place with 592.

In the Legion League, Don Luts was the top man with a 238.

LENNY GAUTHIER survived a torrid battle with Larry Elandt to take top place in the J & J league at Garden Lanes. He posted a 628 which was only four pins better than Elandt. Steve Olszewski was next in line with a 606. In the Iron and Hammer league, Jim Daly was tops with a 609.

THERE WAS SOME fancy bowling in the junior house league at Farmington Lanes. When the last pin fell, Gary Broyles was out in front with a 265 in 678. With that count, he beat Joe Pigeon by 18 pins. Pigeon had a 236 in his 660.

In the mixed classic, Ron Sexton was high with a 614, Gary Vanderwill was next in line with a 246 in 609 and Neil Beckman landed third with a 608, his third 600 series in a row.

John Ponke paced the high school league with a 210 in 608

MARILYN HUNTER, who carries a 139 average, found the range in the Early Birds League at Woodland Lanes. With games of 153, 180 and 212 she posted a 555 to take top place. Judy Porter was next with a 541 and Fran Carlson had an even 500 series.

In the Bowlerettes loop, top honors went to Carol Witklanski with a 223 in 557.

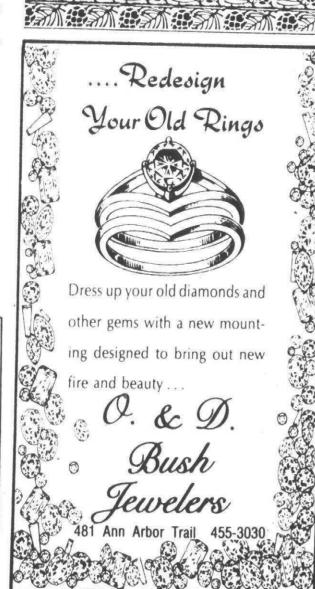

IN OTHER GOOD performances throughout the area, Lynn Reid paced the Good Timers at Plymouth Bowl with a 234 in 579. Jim Teppen, a 15-year-old with a 167 average, showed the way in the Strikes and Spares league at Super Bowl with a 251 and Ford Micheles rolled a 640 series in the men's league. He had games of 215, 203 and 222.

THANK YOU

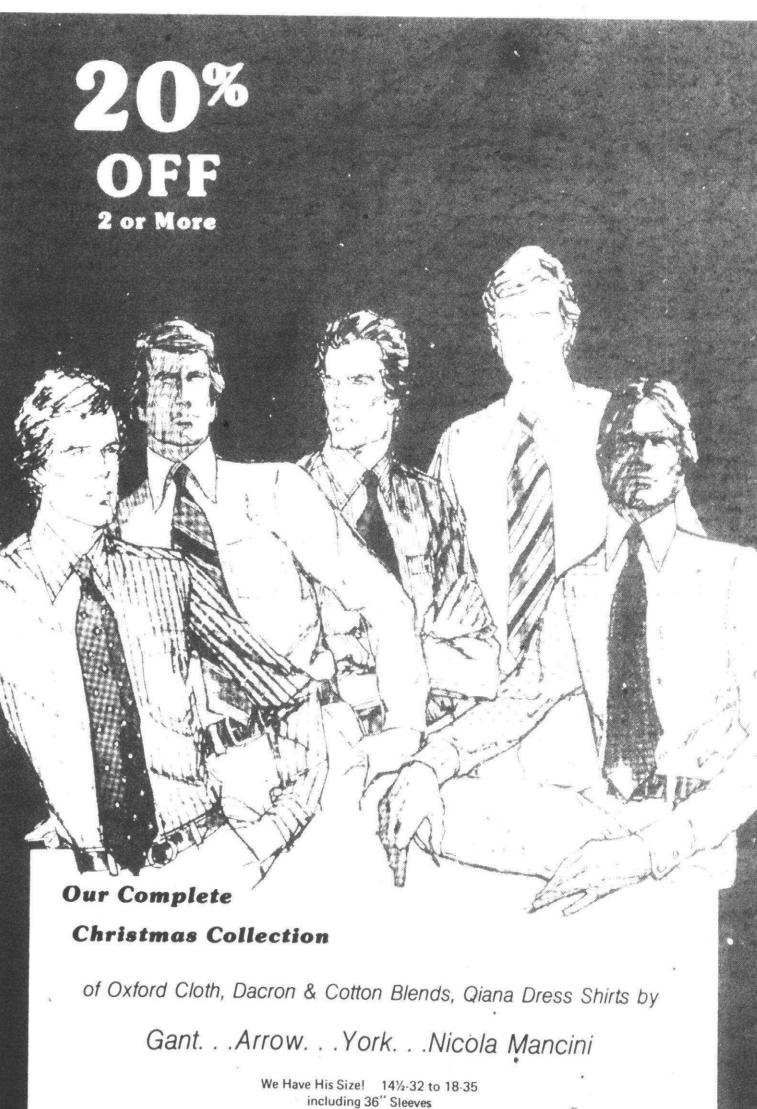

I am using this means to express my appreciation to all of my friends who worked and voted for me in the campaign for the 35th Judicial District Court Judgeship.

While the campaign was unsuccessful it was indeed heartwarming to learn that I had so many friends that were willing to devote countless hours in support of my campaign and to cast their ballot for my candidacy.
