Angry police chief threatens to resign

By DARLENE STINSON

Police Chief Walter MacGregor has drafted a letter of resignation in the wake of a dispute over the swearing-in of a new trustee.

However, it is unclear whether MacGregor actually resigned. The letter has disappeared, and the police chief is not available for comment.

MacGregor apparently considered resigning Friday after refusing to follow an order given by former Supervisor Harold Stein to block Monday's swearing-in of newly-elected Trustee Robert Greenstein.

Police Sgt. Jerry Cox said MacGregor drafted a letter of resignation after Stein issued an order to stop Greenstein's inauguration, apparently on the basis of a federal law that prohibits public employees from taking elective office.

Greenstein, who was Canton's supervisor from 1974-76, works as a certified reserve officer with the Canton Police Department and receives an annual salary of $1.

Greenstein said reserve police officers are not bound by the federal stipulations under a 1976 Michigan attorney general's opinion.

Township officials do not have MacGregor's letter, and are unable to verify his plans to resign.

After talking with Stein on Friday, MacGregor immediatly left on a two-week vacation, according to Cox.

Cox is serving as acting police chief in MacGregor's absence.

The chief's wife, Pat, said her husband was not at home and was unavailable for comment. She would not confirm or deny MacGregor's plans to resign.

Stein was also unavailble for comment.

NEWLY-INAUGURATED Supervisor Noel Culbert is working on the premise that MacGregor has resigned. Culbert said he will discuss the matter with MacGregor when he returns from his vacation.

"I'd prefer to have him stay on," the new supervisor said of the police chief. "But I won't bend over backward to get him to stay if he really wants to go.

"I can make a 90-day temporary replacement if he really does resign. Then we'll have to go through civil service to hire a new police chief."

Cox said MacGregor wrote the letter in an outburst of anger.

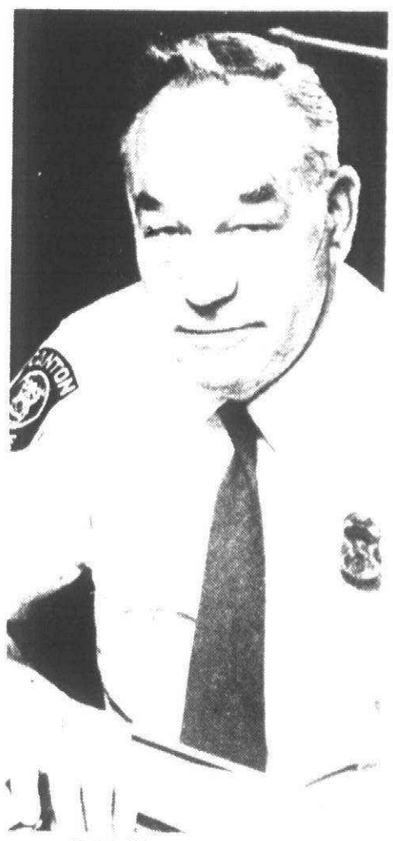

"I have no reason to believe he's not coming back," Cox said. "I think Canton Township needs a man of his caliber."

Greenstein maintains that he and other reserve police officers do not fall under stipulations of a federal law that prohibits public employees from taking elective office.

The newly-elected trustee took a leave of absence from the Canton Police Department Reserves to run for the township board.

Greenstein said MacGregor contacted him after talking with Stein on Friday.

"I know Stein shot his mouth off. But that's Harold," Greenstein said. "The whole thing was just a last-minute dirty trick."

Conflict brews on bill for subdivision sidewalk

About 200 feet of sidewalk has been completed on either side of Gallimore School in Canton, but the fight continues about who will get the bill for the job.

Bruce Phillips of the Canton Building Department said the sidewalk should have been put in by Barnes Manufacturing of Ohio, the company developing the Forest Trails subdivision by the school.

"The plat agreement (with Barnes) definitely shows a walkway. The developer has a PUD (plan unit development) agreement with the township.

The agreement states that the developer is responsible for all sidewalks along major thoroughfares," Phillips said.

Phillips said he met with a representative for the developer, who told him he didn't care what the agreement said, and that the children could walk through the mud to get to school.

Gallimore is discontinuing bus service to the subdivision.

The walks were put in last week by Cervi Homebuilders, a company that has constructed a number of homes in the subdivision.

According to Phillips, the construction company representatives don't feel they should have to pay for the cost of the sidewalk either.

Phillips said he told the Barnes representative, Leonard List, that he would check the matter and, if necessary, take it to court.

"I went to Clerk John Flodin after I talked to List, and and the Barnes representatives were in his office. We discussed the issue, and List said the builders were responsible for the sidewalks."

List could not be reached for comment.

A Barnes representative did respond to Phillip's claims when the building department employee mentioned the dispute at a recent township board meeting.

The representative said as far as he knew, no decision had been made as to whose responsibility the sidewalks are, and that was the only problem he knew of.

Harold Stein, who was presiding over his last meeting as supervisor, told Phillips he had been to the Forest Trails subdivision and didn't see where sidewalks could be put in.

"The houses are too close to have walks, with kids running that closely by them," Stein said.

"There's still an agreement," Phillips answered.

The sidewalks were put in the designated area several days after the meeting.

Board members take office oath

It's now Supervisor Noel Culbert and private citizen Harold Stein.

Culbert and four other newly-elected members of the Canton board were officially sworn into office at 11 a.m. Monday by 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis.

A second inauguration ceremony was held in township hall Monday night for the benefit of Canton residents who wished to meet their new elected officials.

The township board now includes Supervisor Culbert, Treasurer Jim Donahue, Trustee Robert Greenstein and Trustee Carol Bodenmiller.

Long-time Clerk John Flodin was sworn into another two-year term in office, while veteran Trustees Lynne Goldsmith and Eugene Daley will complete the seven-member township board.

After Monday morning's inauguration ceremonies, Culbert was fumbling with the keys of his new office and searching for the files that had been moved from the supervisor's chambers.

Culbert admitted that he will face many problems during his two-year term in office. But on Monday morning, the main problem Culbert faced was bringing food into township hall for the feast that followed the evening inauguration ceremonies.

Canton restaurants Golden Jade City, Ming K Garden, Maria's Bakery, the Roman Forum, Big Boy and Cypress Gardens donated the food for the event that was open to the public. The evening inauguration and feast was Culbert's idea.

A turkey trauma

Gobble, gobble, gobble, gulp!

By W.W. EDGAR

Preparing a turkey for the market no longer is a slip-shod affair but has been reduced to a science. Thanks to automation turkey processing is a far cry from the old days when much of the treatment on the way from the pen could be regarded as cruel.

Back in the days when our parents or grandparents did the job of preparing the turkey they either rang its neck or tossed it over the clothes line in the yard and cut off its head.

It is now done scientifically in the modern world and, of all things, an old-fashioned funnel has helped to take the gruesomeness out of the activity.

"We now stick the turkey's head in to the funnel," explained Mrs. Loyd Sharland of the Gottschalk Turkey Farm on North Territorial Road in Plymouth Township.

"With the turkey's head stuffed into the funnel it is rather easy to stick it, meaning that we cut the throat. From the funnel they are brought over to a scalder. This is a large kettle and the water is kept at a temperature of 145 degrees.

"Once in the scalder, which is run by electricity, the turkey is whirled around and around. This part of the preparation softens the feathers and gets them ready for the next step."

THE BIG ADVANCE, thanks to automation, comes with the picking of the feathers. It used to take a long time for human hands to do it. Now it is done ever so simply.

Several years ago some one came up with the idea of an automatic picker. This is a large round tub that is lined with rubber "fingers." Once the turkey is in the picker it is whirled around and the feathers are picked in a matter of less than a minute. Sometimes there are a few "pins" left on the turkey's body, but they are quickly removed.

The fourth step in the preparation comes when the turkey is placed in a tub of cold water to cool off. Here is the only place where the old-fashioned methods are still in vogue.

The final walk is taken by these two toms at the Gottshaulk Turkey Farm on North Territorial Road, Plymouth Township.

While the turkeys are in the cold water women are hired at the Gottschalk farm to take them to the dressing room. Here the heads and necks are cut off and the insides are drawn.

"We save the heart, neck, liver and gizzard. Next the bird, now well on its way, is taken to the wash room. Here it is given a good washing. That done, the neck, liver, heart and gizzard are placed back in the body and carried to the cooler."

WHEN THE TURKEY gets this far it is now packaged and placed in a plastic bag just about ready for the market. The last move is to weigh and sort them according to weight. Then the job is done.

Mrs. Sharland, who has been supervising this system for some years, confided that she had a work force of at least 16 persons in the four days prior to Thanksgiving and she smilingly says, "It's got to be a real science."

What happens to all the feathers when the flock of more than 200 turkeys are marketed this year?

"They are dumped out in the back, placed on a manure spreader and then scattered over the farm land for fertilizer. The rest of the "leavings" (the innards) are left for the garbage man."

This year's crop will be rated one of the best in a while.

"You can tell by the hens," Mrs. Sharland will tell you. "From what we can see thus far we will have hens averaging as much as 18 pounds."

The Sharlands no longer attempt to operate a large turkey farm. They just raise about 200 birds for their long-time customers.

"We just like to take care of these old friends, and the modern methods of preparing the birds for market makes it all the more interesting."

History remembered:

Thanksgiving customs add meaning

By W.W. EDGAR

Observance of Thanksgiving Day has undergone many changes since that day, more than 350 years ago, when the Pilgrims sat down with the Indians in Plymouth, Mass., to feast on wild turkey and deer.

From this outdoor observance they moved into the church and became more and more solemn as the thought of prayer brought hope for bigger and better crops.

In those days it became the custom to decorate the church with huge piles of corn stalks, pumpkins and hundreds of ears of what became known as Indian corn.

This custom has been carried down through the years in the smaller towns and it is the touch of Thanksgiving Day that Dr. Henry Walch of Plymouth, the retired Presbyterian minister, misses most at this season of the year.

"You'll only find this custom in the small towns now, and it is too bad for the very sight of the husks and the pumpkins and corn gave more significance to the Thanksgiving Day services.

"Now, these services are almost unknown in the larger cities and it is just because the congregations become too large."

Dr. Walch paused here to tell the difference he has witnessed through the years.

"When I was just starting out in the small town of Oakfield, N.Y., we had the old-fashioned service on Thanksgiving Day.

"The church was decorated with the corn stalks, the pumpkins and the corn and most everyone knew each other.

"Now the congregations in the cities have become large and much of that hominess is forgotten.

"When I came to Plymouth the congregation numbered 1,400 and much of the old-time enthusiasm of decorating the church was missing.

"And another thing I miss is the old-fashioned Harvest Home services when we gathered to celebrate the year's crops. But things are different now."

Dr. Walch had other ideas about Thanksgiving Day when he was younger. He had a desire to become a football player and take part in the big games at the Thanksgiving time of year.

As he tells it, he transferred from Chicago to the University of Rochester, N.Y. As a transfer student, he was not eligible for the varsity, but he longed for the thrill of scrimmaging.

Then one afternoon in a huge pile-up during practice a big fellow got up and spit out most of his front teeth.

"That was enough for me. I figured if I was to become a preacher I wanted all my teeth and right there and then I went back to the religious service for Thanksgiving Day.

An early chance to succeed

Christine Park, 4, very carefully measures out the sugar while helping make a pie.

There was a time when handicapped children had little chance for an education or to acquire skills which would enable them to become contributing members of society.

But seven years ago a big change was signalled when Michigan passed the Mandatory Special Education Act of 1971.

This law, Public Act 198, mandated special education for all handicapped individuals from birth through age 25.

One of the many important results is that now no child needs to wait until age five to receive special education services.

THE INFANT and Preschool Special Education Program (IPSEP) was started in 1975 in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools to meet the needs of handicapped preschoolers.

At that time service mainly was given in the home.

Services expanded in 1976 and by 1977 the program delivery system included a home program model, a classroom component, and individual therapy.

Last year the school district received a three-year grant from the U.S. Bureau of Education for the Handicapped. The IPSEP program, now located at Farrand Elementary School, is beginning its second year of operation under this grant.

Director Mary Campbell explains that the program is designed to help handicapped children develop to their maximum academic, physical and social capabilities.

Because of the age of the children involved, the program is developmentally based. Each child is assessed and his functioning levels evaluated within the six broad categories of language, social, self care, cognitive, and gross and fine motor skills.

The staff working with the children to help develop their skills related to their needs is made up of a classroom teacher and an aide, an occupational therapist, a physical therapsit, a nurse, speech pathologist, a team leader, and three home programmers.

IPSEP NOW IS composed of four distinct components to meet the needs of a variety of preschool handicapped children.

- Cross-categorical classroom which provides grouping children with diversified handicaps or problems. This approach allows individuals to learn from each other and uses strengths rather than weaknesses to serve as positive models for all.
- A home-based program which helps parents to become the primary deliverers of service by teaching them to carry out developmental activities designed to promote physical and mental growth.
- An infant/toddler group which is available for children ages 0-3. Here the occupational therapist, physical therapist and speech pathologist work in a group situation with mothers and children to teach skills to enhance their development.
- The fourth is individual center-based therapy which is provided by either the occupational therapist, physical therapist or speech pathologist.

ONE OF THE basic and most important parts of the program is working with parents, says Mrs. Campbell. In all components of the program this aspect receives emphasis.

The main purpose of IPSEP is to facilitate the child's preparation for kindergarten by direct intervention to bring the child to his maximum potential for his age within his own limitations and, if possible, to mainstream these children into their neighborhood schools.

("Mainstreaming" is the practice of placing special education children into general classrooms provided the child can learn in a regular setting.)

Anyone who has a child who is mentally or emotionally impaired, has a hearing or visual impairment, is physically handicapped, learning disabled, or speech and language impaired may contact IPSEP at 420-0363.

The center is at Farrent School which is located at 41400 Greenbriar Lane in LakePointe Subivision, Plymouth Township.

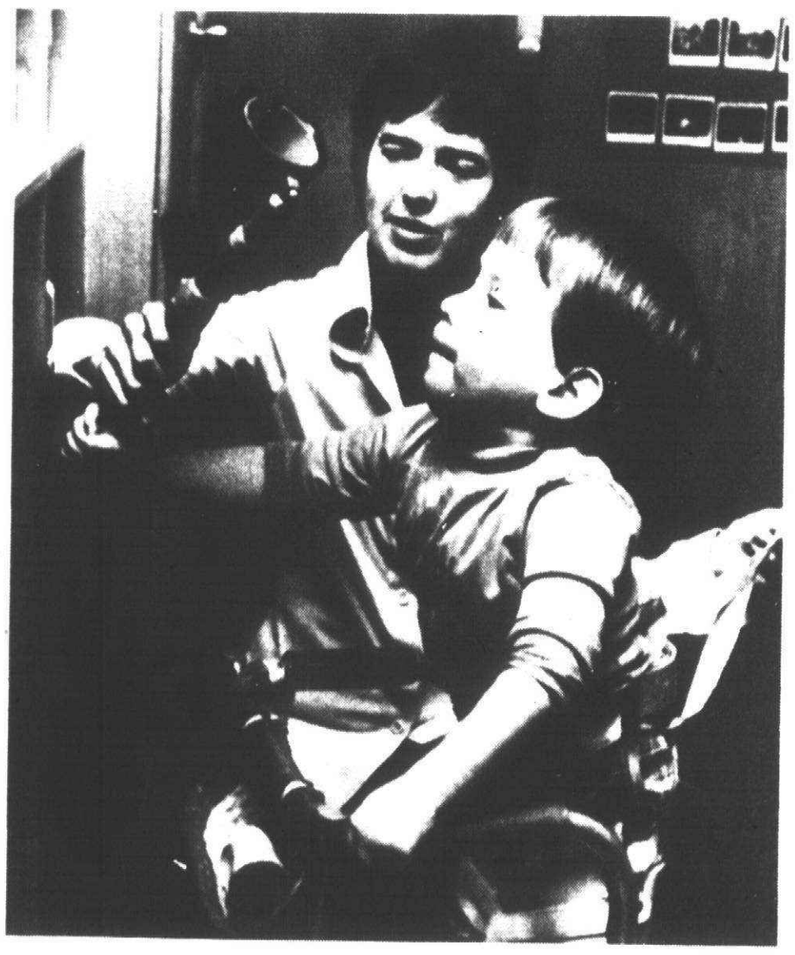

The IPSEP staff includes: Mary Campbell, supervisor; Brenda Arthur, home programmer; Roseann Balmas, educational aide; Martha Cain, home program team leader; Eileen Cook, occupational therapist assistant; Joan Curreri, clerk/secretary; Carol Doolin, home programmer; Marilyn Daoust, clerk/typist; Joan Farmer, educational aide; Loretta Franzen, occupational therapist; Mary Herr, classroom teacher; Barbara Powell, home programmer; Marilyn Thams, nurse; Phoebe Vance, physical therapist; and Linda Young, speech pathologist.

Mary Kay Herr, classroom teacher, uses pie making as a learning experience.

Residents shun campaign to kick the tobacco habit

By PATRICIA LaCROIX

It may have been the second annual Great American Smoke-out Day across the country, but few Plymouth residents were willing to give up their packs for even a couple of hours Thursday, let alone a full day.

The day—set aside by the American Cancer Society — was supposed to be a time of abstinence for people who regularly depend on cigarettes and other forms of tobacco to get them through the day.

But smoke still curled lazily from cigarettse propped in ashtrays. Air in bars and restaurants was thick with the smell, and people did not seem the least bit embarrased that they were caught with the evidence right in their hands.

Literally.

Many of the people questioned, in fact, didn't even know that smoking was a no-no that day.

"I didn't know a thing about it and even if I had, I would not have quit smoking," said Randy Browning, 21. "But the funny thing is that I don't even like the things. I've tried to quit 100 times during the last year, and I can't. I'm simply addicted to them."

He said he has been smoking for six years.

DAWN SMITH, 19, sitting with Browning in a loacl restaurant, said she has been smoking for four years.

"Why do I smoke? Because I like it. When I don't like it anymore, I'll quit," she said.

But some people, after hearing that the day had been specially designated as a no-smoking day, said they would observe it.

Joseph Braus, 28, said he has been smoking for two years, and that he smoked because he "enjoys it."

"I haven't really heard anything about it," he admitted. "But it sounds like a good idea. Yes, I'll support it. Do you want me to put it out now?"

Other smokers had seemingly plausible reasons for smoking.

"Working with Art (Art Secord, the cook at another local restaurant and bar) makes me a nervous wreck. Stick around for a while and see what I mean," said Dee Bradley, a waitress at the establishment. "I've smoked for 13 years."

Secord, the boss that makes Ms. Bradley so jittery, said he has seen her smoke "at least four packs a day."

"You should listen to her cough," he suggested.

Coughing, as a matter of fact, is what convinced Secord to kick the habit.

"IT WAS getting to the point that it was embarrassing," he said. "It got so that I was coughing so hard, and getting all red in the face. I thought it (quitting smoking) would be difficult, but it really wasn't. I quit just like that, he added, snapping his fingers.

But smoking is a "pleasure and a privilege" for Jack Vernier, 56.

"I've not had any bad physical effects at all," he said. "Of course, one of these days, I'll drop dead."

Vernier said he has been smoking since he was 18 years old. During his career as a stockbroker, he said he found the habit reassuring.

"There is so much tension in that profession. Things have to be done immediately and accurately. And mistakes cost a lot of money," he said.

Vernier compared the smoking habit to the mother-child dependency.

"It is a security for insecure people. I am one. But I don't think that insecurity is necessarily a bad thing," he said.

Ten years ago, Vernier said he quit smoking. But when one of his children poked a hole in the family above-ground swimming pool, the pressure was too much for him to handle without a cigarette.

"There we were, with water flowing all over the place and into the neighbors' flower garden. The first thing I did was ask my wife for a cigarette," he said.

But while cigarette smoking didn't seem to slow down, sales of cigarettes was a different matter.

Joyce Tomlinson, sales clerk at a local store, said she sold very few packs to adults. But sales to high school-aged people were better than average, she said, probably because most local schools had half-day of classes.

"It's really a shame, too, because I guess that is the age group that they are trying to reach the most," she said.

This "no smoking" poster was done by Barbara Dekun, seventh grader at West Middle School.

Occupational therapy aides landing jobs

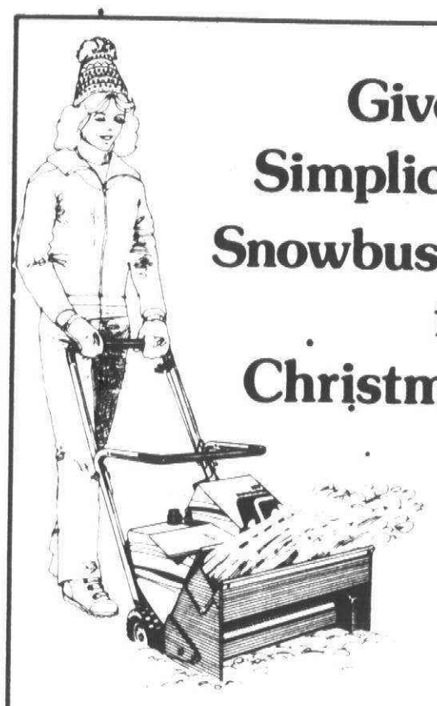

Twenty-five occupational therapy assistants from Schoolcraft College have successfully completed new national certification examinations.

"This new certification process gives the occupational therapy assistant professional added national credibility," said Masline Horton, OTA instructor.

Testing was initiated this year and administered in January and July by the American Occupational Therapy Association. Previously, graduates applied to the a association for certification on merit of the college certificates, and no exam was required.

Ms. Horton said Schoolcraft has been successful in placing all recent graduates in the metropolitan job market. Some graduates, however, sought and located positions as far away as California.

After 10 years as a certificate program, OTA was expanded at Schoolcraft this fall. It is now an associate degree program. Currently, 20 students are enrolled in it.

Students push contracts to encourage smoking ban

Seventh grade students at West Middle School got into the action during Great American Smoke-out day last Thursday by distributing anti-smoking contracts to all the smoking people they knew.

Ideally, people who signed the contracts were promising not to smoke at all during the day or night, which was formally designated by the American Cancer Society as cold-turkey day for the millions of smokers throughout the U.S.

"Realizing the health-related issues of smoking, this contract hereby certifies that I will participate in the 1978 Great American Smoke-out on Thursday, Nov. 16, by not smoking tobacco of any type that day," the contract states.

The paper was to be signed by the smoker, the student that arranged the deal and contained the date the agreement was closed.

While all of the above was printed plainly, some of it even in all capital letters, the clincher was discreetly buried in the lower right hand corner:

"Contract fulfilled: yes no."

Miss Marilyn Woodruff, a student teacher from Eastern Michigan University, and Mrs. Betty Szilagyi, home economics teacher at the school, arranged the day.

About 35 contracts were returned — signed — by the students.

"We were really pleased with the response," Miss Woodruff said Friday. "We really didn't know what kind of response to expect."

ONE FATHER said he never really had a resaon to quit smoking, but the contract presented to him by his son provided reason enough, at least for the one day, Miss Woodruff said.

In addition to circulating the contracts, the students also have also been studying the dangersof smoking in their health class.

In one class project, students talked to smokers and asked when and why they began the habit. The students also asked the smoker if they had ever tried to quit smoking.

Cigarette advertisements also were checked for the "hidden messages" they often contain, Miss Woodruff said. Popularity is often one of the hidden promises guaranteed to potential smokers through the pictures and wording in the ads, she said.

Several government officials have noted the work of the students, including Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano and Rep. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth).

Czubaj tells of response

Carnegie now full-time here

Saturday, Nov. 25, will mark the third anniversary of a decision which has affected the lives of some 480 persons. It was on Nov. 25, 1975 that John Czubaj of Canton provided his first Dale Carnegie class in Plymouth in the Mayflower Meeting House.

At that time, Czubaj had planned on offering about one class a year. But the demand was greater than expected, and during the past three years Czubaj has led some 12 classes for about 480 area residents.

The training in personal growth has now reached the point where Czubaj leads four classes a year in the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

CZUBAJ MOVED to Canton seven years ago and, after a stint in business, held his first Dale Carnegie class on Jan. 6, 1974, for the Ralph Nichols Corporation in Southfield.

"I was working out of our Southfield office and arranging for Carnegie classes. That was quite a drive, from Canton to Southfield, and so I decided to line up instruction in Plymouth and spend a year here. And I've never left.

"The demand for Dale Carnegie training here is so great that it's become a fulltime effort. Although I started with the idea of holding one class a year in Plymouth, I've now reached 13--as of Nov. 15.

"This suggests to me that people in this area are very interested in personal growth. Quite a few years ago, the normal thing was for Carnegie training to be offered in an area maybe once every three to five years. So there has to be a lot of interest to command enough persons to support four classes a year."

Although a lot of the students signing up for Czubaj's classes are from Plymouth and Canton, a good number are from nearby communities such as Livonia, Westland, Redford, Northville, Novi, South Lyons. And people come to the Plymouth Hilton from as far away as Warren, Union Lake, Highland Park, Allen Park, and West Bloomfield.

"So you see, there's a lot of alumni out there—people who have spent four hours a night once a week for 14 weeks because they want to move closer to their full potential, because they are not satisfied with standing still."

While talking about his alumnus of almost 500 strong, Czubaj pointed to the symbol "5x" on his wristwatch. "I wear this '5x' on my watch as a daily reminder to me. And '5x' has a very special meaning to anyone who has taken Carnegie training with me.

"Anyone who has taken Carnegie training should remember what 5x means. But anyone who sees the 5x on a wristwatch can recognize someone who took Carnegie training with me. It's a special feature used only in the Carnegie classes offered in Plymouth."

ONE OF THE reasons Czubaj gives for success in Carnegie training is that decision to offer the training here.

"There were a lot of people before interested in taking Carnegie training, but didn't want to make that drive to Southfield. Holding classes here has made all the difference."

Another important difference that decision has made for Czubaj is that it has allowed him to be part of the community. "What I like best about the job now is to be able to be so well accepted by leaders in local business, industry and in the professions. I plan to stay here, and others appreciate the fact that I will stay in the community and not travel around the country teaching Dale Carnegie.

"In this business, in the past, an instructor might come into town, form a class, and them move out afterwards. But I will still be here.

"Because of that I can serve smaller companies in the area which cannot afford to contract with a large consulting or training firms. I act like an employee for small business. And the product of service is needed in today's business community."

PERSONS WHO sign up for Carnegie human relations and effective speaking training learn techniques for living happier, more successful, worry-free lives.

In the 65 years of its existence some two million graduates—from housewives to business people, politicians and corporation presidents—have tapped their potential.

Basically, Czubaj explains, the Carnegie philosphy is following the golden rule. Doing such things as taking a sincere interest in other people's ideas and giving honest appreciation are encouraged. A person following these techniques is generous with praise and stingy with criticism.

"The number one fear is speaking before other people," says Czubaj. "This often holds people back. People who aren't afraid will advance."

Czubaj uses energy and enthusiam to encourage class members to avoid old habits and "expand their comfort zone" as they reach out for personal growth. "Sometimes a new pair of shoes will pinch at first. New experiences are like that, too.

"People can grow and change. It all starts with a desire and a positive mental attitude."

Alumni of that first class in Plymouth on Nov. 25, 1975, include Janet Curlee, John Gibson, Karen Saxton, Ben Stahl and Jerry Loiselle.

Other local graduates of include Jim McKeon, Margaret Wall, Dennis Knapp, Roger Haslick, Dunnie Mauer, Dr. Gary Hall, John Rakov, and the entire Loiselle family.

The impact of Carnegie training on students is summed up by Czubaj when he recites the motto used in his classes: "You don't take the Dale Carnegie Course—You live it!"

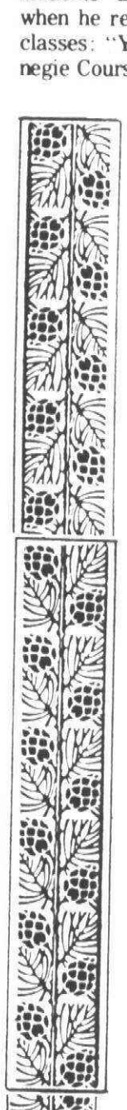

John Czubaj shows the "5x" on his watch which has special meaning for anyone who has taken Carnegie management training at the Plymouth Hilton. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Detroit struggling against EPA's deadline

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI and TIM RICHARD

Federal District Judge John Feikens has appointed a monitor to watch over the operation of the Detroit sewage treatment plant in the next month as the city tries to meet cleanup deadlines.

Feikens appeared ready to consider removing the City of Detroit as manager of the water and sewer system, which serves most of the tri-county region. That move was proposed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in the event the city can't get the sewage treatment plant operating properly in 30 days.

"The EPA suggested a change in management. Is that the remedy? I want to know," Feikens said at the end of a court hearing Monday.

Feikens did not comment, however, on an Oakland County suggestion that Detroit's policy of hiring only Detroit residents be relaxed.

EPA CHARGED the Detroit Water and Sewer Department (DWSD) has fallen behind in meeting provisions of a 1½ year old consent judgment to bring down the level of wastes dumped into the Detroit River.

Feikens agreed, hinting he felt the city had consciously disobeyed the consent judgment.

The judge brushed aside an argument from Darryl Alexander, assistant Detroit corporation counsel, that a court-appointed monitor was unnecessary. Alexander then proposed the city's own private engineering and consulting firm—Camp, Dresser and McKee—be appointed the monitor.

"I will not yield one inch to the city's suggestions," Feikens said. He said Alexander had "submarined" his own proposal in suggesting the court make Camp, Dresser and McKee its monitor.

"What you need is to get those vacuum filters going, to get those pumps going, to get the sludge removed from those drums, to get some more skilled personnel, and to get some more people who aren't weighted down by paper," Feikens said.

THE MONITOR will be University of Michigan engineering Prof. Jonathan Bulkley. He had been a member of Feikens' three-man panel of "masters" to study Detroit's sewage treatment rates.

Feikens said he wanted a report from Bulkley by Dec. 30. The judge made it clear he could take other, more serious actions after receiving Bulkley's report.

Feikens refused to levy a series of fines, proposed by EPA, which would have cost the city as much as $10,000 a day for failing to meet federal effluent guidelines.

He said fines, levied when the city was preparing to issue $46 million in revenue bonds to finance much-needed capital improvements, would be counter-productive.

THE SUGGESTION that the City of Detroit be removed as manager of the DWSD came last Friday from Charles P. Kalil, assistant U.S. attorney prosecuting the case for the EPA.

Kalil said EPA would agree to help select the governing board.

He asked the court to order Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young to designate a person in his office who would give DWSD compliance "highest priority." This would entail getting cooperation from the personnel, finance and other city departments to assure DWSD meets cleanup deadlines.

Kalil proposed the city be fined, if it failed to meet deadlines, $5,000 for the first day, $6,000 for the second and so on until the daily fine reached $10,000.

WILLIAM HAMPTON, attorney for Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn, said he had "no objection" to appointing an outside management board. Hampton proposed the court order Detroit to relax its requirement that all employees of the DWSD be city residents. "The residency requirement should be abolished or relaxed in the technical and supervisory areas. There are 44 technical and supervisory jobs budgeted, but only 18 have been filled.

"In these technical areas, they (the city) just have not been able to find them in the city. They don't have the type of staff to get these things done."

Hampton said a consultant hired by Detroit had recommended the residency requirement be relaxed, but Mayor Young had personally asked that that recommendation be removed.

IN RESPONSE, Alexander said he had never heard of Young's deleting such a recommendation.

Alexander said that the residency for DWSD employees had never been an issue in the original EPA case. It had been raised before the group of masters appointed by Feikens to rule on Detroit's sewage treatment rates, but the suggestion of easing the residency rule was dropped.

Outside the courtroom Friday, DWSD Director John Kanters expressed confidence the city could meet the 30-day cleanup deadline.

"In April, May and June of 1978, we were ahead of schedule on effluent standards. We've met more deadlines than we've missed."

Kanters wouldn't comment on the suburbs' request that the residency requirement be relaxed. He said nonresidents of Detroit were employed by DWSD at the Port Huron water plant and the Allen Park sewage treatment plant but not at the main W. Jefferson treatment plant.

Church folk music retreats

By PATRICIA LaCROIX

Folk music, which created a big splash in churches a decade ago, has become little more than a ripple on the surface of today's Plymouth area waters.

Many churches still provide some sort of folk service for those who want it, but church music directors say they have shifted to a more conservative overall approach in their music.

"It got to the point that people were singing hymns praising God to the tune of the Coca-Cola commercial," said Bert Lord, the music director at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church in Plymouth. "For the first week or so it sounded good, but the idea did not wear well under time.

"We have always tried to praise God with the highest form of human perfection," Lord said. "Many of the folk songs were simply not well-crafted."

But even with the swing back to more traditional music, Our Lady of Good Counsel still schedules one folk mass per weekend.

Jon Case, the music director for the Calvary Baptist Church of Plymouth, said the trends in the music depend on the particular denomination involved.

Some churches, he said, are very conservative while others are more open to new ideas.

"THERE IS no doubt that the whole music question has exploded in the last five years, and even more so in the last ten," he said.

Because of this explosion, some unusual appearances have taken place in his church. Going what Case called the "big Band" route, he said that trombones and drums have been included in church services at various times.

Even so, Case said he personally is "walking a cautious line" in picking music for the sevrices.

"Music is one of the most controversial issues in any church today," he said. "If you get too innovative, you alienate the older established members, bacause they don't like it and they don't care for it. But, on the other hand, you don't want to turn off the youth members—some of them walk into the church and all they see is a dead liturgical service. Young people want to be around something that is hip."

Pleasing both audiences is part of his job, he said. One way he is doing this is by scheduling different types of services at different times.

For Christmas, for example, the morning service on Dec. 17 will include the traditional "Hallelujah Chorus." In the evening, a trombone, bass and drum group will play.

Part of the trick, Case explained, is to get quality people involved in the music program. In some cases, the more modern music's chances have been ruined by "sloppy music," he said.

TWO FORMER band directors are involved in the group, and the lead trumpet player performs regularly with the University of Michigan jazz band.

There is also a great deal of variety in the music at the First Baptist Church of Plymouth, said music director Cheryl Kaye.

"People mostly think of Baptists as having only gospel music, but we have been very free to use many different kinds of music, and the people have been very receptive," Mrs. Kaye said.

Classical, gospel and modern are some of the music types used by the church, but she said they have not "swung too far either way."

The controversy of what type of music to play in church was avoided by most Lutheran sects, said Leonard Proever, music director at Plymouth's St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Proever said they have never deviated from the traditional music.

"We felt that once we opened the door, any song could be—and would be—played. We are very concious of the religious meaning of the words," he said.

"So many churches have neglected the real role of the church—that is, preaching the gospel," he said. "The emphasis should be on instruction, not entertainment."

Information service is started for elderly

An information and referral service for senior citizens has been started by the Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc.

The service, primarily for area senior citizens, will provide information and referral to agencies and programs which help seniors.

A director has been hired under a federal grant administered by the Child and Family Service Agency of Washtenaw County.

The information and referral service previously was operated by Growth Works, Inc. The service, although now a council on aging project, will continue to be housed in Growth Works' Our House Crises and Counseling Center at 185 S. Harvey.

The service helps individuals find appropriate human service providers to meet their needs, including information-giving and referral.

1The service also includes the provision of adequate information about the referral resources so that the individual can make his or her own contact directly.

The director will train volunteers, update and expand the service. At this time the phone service will be available from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday, except holidays. The phone number is 455-4907.

College gives tentative approval for capture of growth tax monies

By TIM RICHARD

Schoolcraft College trustees are giving a tentative nod of approval to a downtown Northville redevelopment plan that will allow the city to "capture" property taxes on new development for 15 years.

The plan is the same type the City of Detroit used to "capture" most of the taxes on the Renaissance Center for its redevelopment work.

City Manager Steven Walters told college trustees last week the state enabling act requires the city to give notice and a chance to comment to area governments which would be affected by loss of tax revenue from new downtown Northville investments.

These include Schoolcraft College, Wayne County Intermediate School District, Wayne County general government and the Northville School District.

"It sounds like a great idea," said Schoolcraft Treasurer Nancie Blatt. We're not giving up anything we weren't going to get anyway."

Other trustees agreed.

A PUBLIC hearing has been scheduled before the city council at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 4 in the Northville Municipal Building, 215 W. Main. Council plans to adopt the enabling ordinance by Dec. 14 and complete the city construction portion of the program during 1979.

In a nutshell, here is what the city's "Mainstreet 78" plan would do to reverse the decline in downtown valuations:

- Spend some $1.4 million on parking lot, town square, sidewalks and general improvements.
- Finance the work with $125,000 in federal community development funds and a $1.3 million, 15-year bond issue. The bond issue would be paid from one-third city funds and two-thirds from all property taxes on new development.

Schoolcraft and county agencies would lose no taxes on existing property. Only taxes on new development in the defined downtown — three blocks of Main Street a distance of one to two blocks either direction — would be "captured" to pay off the bond issue.

ONLY CAPTURED taxes needed to cover the bond issue would be kept, Walters said. If downtown Northville's decline is reversed as expected, some of the new tax money would be returned to Schoolcraft and the county agencies.

The Downtown Development Authority's plan argues that "in reality, they (other units) will not realize these tax increases, and they may continue to lose tax base in the (downtown), if the development project is not undertaken."

Downtown Northville's tax base grew from $2.6 million in 1973 to $3.9 million in 1978, but there has been a decline since 1975, the DDA said.

Two unusual cases accounted for what increase there was.

One was the conversion of a Methodist church to the Drawbridge Restaurant. But the restaurant failed, and the building is a church again.

The other was construction in 1973 of the Northville Square indoor shopping center on the east side of downtwown. That project, however, suffered "tenant problems within the first year." The upper level was closed off in 1977, the DDA's report said. Its $1.1 million assessment was cut to less than $750,000.

A survey of merchants indicated only 7.5 per cent anticipated or planned any business expansion, DDA said.

IF DDA'S PLANS are implemented, here is what would happen to the $1.4 million:

- The Dunlap parking lot, located behind shops on the north side of E. Main, would be renovated with underground utilities, lighting, landscaping and accessibility to the rears of stores.
- A small parking lot on the south side of E. Main would become a town square for such activities as a farmers' market, fashion shows, concerts and celebrations.
- A parking lot south of E. Main, on Mary Alexander Court, would be improved and reorganized for better traffic flow.
- Main and Center streets would get wider sidewalks, landscaping improvements, decorative use of brick, benches and lighting.

So far, Walters told Schoolcraft trustees, only Detroit has used Michigan Act 197 of 1975 to establish a DDA and tax capturing. But he said some older cities are considering it, including Dearborn, Port Huron, Dowagiac and Buchanan.

En route to court

SC faculty divided on wages

A divided Schoolcraft College faculty is scheduled to go to Wayne Circuit Court next week because it dislikes a state fact-finder's proposed salary settlement.

"The Faculty Forum voted by a narrow margin not to accept the fact-finder's report," said union President William Nickels following a Sunday night meeting.

"The leadership sees it's being told to get Judge (Thomas) Roumell to re-enter the case."

About 100 persons attended the meeting. Voting was by secret ballot. Nickels said there is an "attitude of discouragement" among part-time faculty. "The part-time people say they are so disgusted they may just quit teaching at Schoolcraft College," he said.

FACT-FINDER George Roumell Jr. recommended a two-year contract with full-time instructors getting annual raises of 7 and 6 per cent. But he recommended a raise for part-timers that figures out to 4.5 per cent the first year and nothing the second year, according to the faculty.

Nickels said the board of trustees' bargaining team was asked to sweeten the offer to part-timers but refused.

"Not true," replied college President C. Nelson Grote. "The team has latitude to make movements as long as they stay within" a fixed dollar amount.

To pay part-timers more than recommended by the fact-finder, Grote said, would require paying full-timers less than the recommendations.

"They (the Forum team) won't buy any movement of money from full-time to part-time faculty. They want us to add dollars," Grote said.

GETTING MORE money to part-timers had actually been the highest priority in the board's strategy, Grote said.

"We recognized that our rates (for part-timers) are low and wanted to improve them. But as we put money on the table, how those dollars are spent is negotiable."

If the college had been able to decide unilaterally how much to pay, the president added, part-timers would have been given a better package.

In fact, he said, the fact-finder tried to improve the situation by giving part-timers the entire amount of raises in a single year rather than stretching them over two years. That is why there appears to be no raise the second year of the proposed two-year pact, Grote said.

NOR IS the problem as simple as part-timers versus full-timers, he said.

Part-time money includes salaries of persons who teach only a course or two, but it also includes supplements and "overload" pay for regular full-time faculty.

Thus, the Faculty Forum appears torn not just between the 160 full-timers and 190 part-timers, but within the ranks of the full-timers.

Rumors circulated that some faculty members would petition for a new vote because only 100 of the 350 eligible persons attended the Forum's Sunday night meeting.

JUDGE ROUMELL was on vacation this week, union chief Nickels said, and wouldn't be available before next Monday.

The judge got into the case after an illegal eight-day strike by faculty and secretaries late in September. He ordered non-binding fact-finding as one of the terms for the two unions' return to work.

Judge Roumell vowed to re-enter the case if fact-finding failed—as it apparently has.

The secretaries union has reached tentative agreement with the college on the basis of the fact-finder's report. But it has pledged not to ratify a contract until the Faculty Forum has a tentative agreement, too.

Grote said the college had planned to pay retroactive salary increases in the checks of Dec. 8 and 22 if new contracts could have been ratified in time.

The new contracts are worth a total of $102,000 in benefits to both unions the first year of the contract in fiscal 1978-79 and $24,000 next year, he said.

5th anniversary marked

Is 55-speed limit a life-saver?

By PATRICIA LaCROIX

This week marks the fifth anniversary of the 55 mph speed limit for highways, and different people are celebrating the occasion in different ways.

State police traffic division spokesmen, citing the lower traffic accident fatality figures, are hoping for many more such anniversaries, but others aren't so sure that the limit has been effective.

As always, the biggest problem is enforcing the law.

"To do it right, we'd have to have a policeman in every car," said Sgt. Waldon Grieger of the state police's Safety and Traffic Division in Northville. "Enforcement is a horrendous problem."

There is even some question about the effect of the 55 mph limit on the number of traffic deaths. In 1973, when the plan was first implemented, the death rate of accidents dropped significantly.

But since then, the rate has been steadily creeping back up to the levels in early 1970.

In 1972, almost 2,260 people were killed on Michigan freeways in accidents. In 1973, the number dropped to just over 2,210; and by 1975, the number of deaths had decreased to 1,811.

However, the number of deaths had jumped to 1,955 in 1976. The following year, there was a very slight decrease.

THIS YEAR, though, the number will "come mighty close" to 2,000, Grieger said.

State figures show that the number of deaths in the state is already higher than the number last year. With the snow and holiday season approaching — traditionally the worst driving times of the year — the number should jump even higher.

Grieger said other factors have to be considered when analyzing the laws' effectiveness, such as the number of vehicle registrations and the number of miles driven. Measures taken to make cars safer must also be considered.

Even with the contradictory statistics, Grieger remains staunch in his support of the law.

"It's always been my feeling that the 55 mph limit has had some effect. Just think what this effect would be if the limit were even lower — say 50 mph," he said.

George Halverson, former director of the Michigan State Police, was "nearly crucified" when he suggested 65 mph as a safe limit, Grieger said.

"The press really jumped on him when he said that."

Despite the press attack, Grieger said others have criticized the 55 mph limit. Truckers, saying their income is dependent on how much they can haul and therefor on how fast they go, maintain the 55 mph limit is too low.

OTHER DRIVERS staged their own protest by simply not obeying the limits, and, for the most part, getting away with it.

"We just don't have the kind of manpower that the situation demands," said Sgt. William Mongrain of the Wayne County Sheriff traffic department. "We can't send a man out to sit in a certain spot each day with the radar turned on, with all the other calls we get."

Mongrain said people generally travel in a "15-mile range" of the 55 mph limit, meaning up to 70 mph. Most drivers, he said, travel between 65 and 70 mph.

"If you drive I-275, you can see that they aren't adhering to the law. Some days they go by you and blow your doors off," he said.

After initial reservations about the law when it was proposed, the AAA has endorsed the measure.

"We just weren't sure that it could be enforced. Of course, it was first proposed as a gas-saving measure, but now it is apparent that it has contributed to lower death rates," said Tom Freel, spokesman for the AAA.

Freel cited a Michigan State University study showing that when the speed limit was 70 mph, 90 people were injured for every 100 traffic accidents. When it was lowered to 55 mph, 50 people were injured per 100 accidents.

S'craft eyes special millage vote

A special election in February or March to raise about $5 million in building capital is being considered by Schoolcraft College trustees.

A straw poll of trustees at last week's meeting indicated they are leaning toward a sinking fund rather than a bond issue to raise the capital.

The same poll showed trustees are split, however, on whether to plan the election as a board or to appoint a special board committee.

The consensus is that Schoolcraft's only chance of winning voter approval on a money question is to conduct a separate special election at which no K-12 district would have a money question on the ballot.

Missing from the board's thinking, for the first time, are plans for a fine arts auditorium and teaching facility.

W. KENNETH LINDNER, vice-president for administration, estimated a half-mill increase in the property tax could raise $5 million in five years.

"The advantage of bonding is that funds would be available immediately. The disadvantage is that you would pay 2½ times the face amount in interest over 15 or so years," Lindner said.

"A sinking fund is short-term. The funds are available later," he said, but without the cost of interest.

"Both require a vote of the people."

Trustees' reaction was strongly in favor of a sinking fund. A formal decision will be made in December or January.

The college currently levies 1.77 mills ($1.77 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation).

TOP PRIORITY on Schoolcraft's list is raising local funds for a culinary arts addition to the Waterman Campus Center.

The state agreed to pick up some $633,000 of the $1.5 million project, and the community college already has some $500,000 "in the bank" for it, Lindner said. The problem is how to raise the remaining $395,000.

It would be top priority in any new capital outlay program, according to Lindner's discussion paper and board consensus. The culinary arts program has a long waiting list, and the local college's program is nationally recognized.

The addition would enable Schoolcraft to double the program's enrollment.

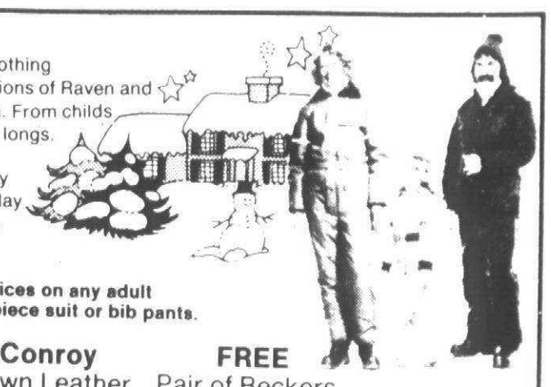

OTHER HIGH priority capital items include:

- Road development, $80,000. This is for a road from Six Mile to the eastern side of the campus.
- Major maintenance, $1.25 million. The board in the past has set up a major maintenance fund to take care of aging buildings, but has had to cut it to get operating money.
- New and replacement equipment, $1.25 million.
- A new instructional resource center, $1.8 million. This is the college's half-share of a $3.6 million project.

Two horribly annoying reasons to introduce Mobil Super Unleaded Gasoline.

A car should be seen and not heard.

That's why we're introducing new Mobil Super Unleaded Gasoline with a higher octane level.

Not only does it help knock the knocks and pings out of your engine, it could also give your car more power than most other gasolines. (In fact, millions of cars on the road today are being cheated of peak engine performance.)

And what's more, if your car is properly tuned, and still shakes, sputters and backfires after you turn the key off, using Mobil Super Unleaded may help eliminate all that. And that's whether your car is new or old.

And even if you've been using leaded premium gasoline you'll be glad to know that Mobil Super Unleaded's high octane level is high enough to meet anti-knock requirements of most cars today.

Mobil Super Unleaded. Because when you're driving, one of the nicest sounds in the world is the sound of absolutely nothing.

Park penalties are stiffened

Area legislators and commissioners read the adage, "rules are made to be broken," and shake their heads ominously.

They say rules—especially county park rules—are not made to be broken.

A new law, to be considered by the State Senate, would make the violation of park rules a high misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500, or 90 days in jail, or an assignment to clean up the parks.

The bill, which won overwhelming approval in the State House of Representatives, was introduced by seven western Wayne County legislators—State Reps. Robert Law (R-Livonia), Thomas Brown (D-Westland), Jack Kirksey (R-Livonia), John Bennett (D-Redford), William Keith (R-Garden City), Roy Smith (R-Ypsilanti) and Richard Young (D-Dearborn Heights).

THE STRICTER law was a priority for western Wayne County representatives because local officials have had security problems for years, particularly in Hines Park, which extends 27 miles along Edward Hines Drive from Dearborn Heights to Northville.

Oakland officials also support the bill.

"The judges are having serious problems with young violators who virtually laugh at them and don't bother to pay the present $50 fine," said Wayne County Commissioner Alex Pilch (D-Dearborn). "This legislation would put real teeth into the park rules," he said.

It's obvious Wayne County officials are anticipating that a large number of persons convicted of violating park rules will be sentenced to cleanup details in the parks. "The concept of making those who messed it up, clean it up comes at an ideal time," said Commissioner Norbert Wisniewski (D-Harper Woods) pointing to the county's new budget.

Beginning Dec. 1, Wayne County will lay off 12 of 140 permanent park attendents. The new budget also eliminates 75 of 102 seasonal parks jobs.

FOR OAKLAND OFFICIALS, the new bill's provisions are "all positive."

"It just fortifies enforcement of park ordinances," said Oakland Parks and Recreation Manager Eric Reickel.

He said that because the parks system developed parks where visitors were forced to enter and exit at one point they've escaped many of the problems that have plagued Wayne's parks system.

Very few of Wayne's 4,300 park acres are so secured. Hines Park, which also extends through Westland, Livonia and Plymouth, is one example.

"You just can't control something like that," Reickel said. "There are probably 50 different access points. Troublemakers can just pop in and pop out."

He said the parks and recreation commission's concern for security led to the decision to make the Red Oaks Park in Madison Heights a golf course. "It was a long linear park, and we wanted to have some way of controling how people came and went," Reickel said.

"If we would have made it general pincic grounds, we would have had the same problems Wayne County is having.

"A golf course was perfect," he added.

editorial opinion

A changing family gathers

Every so often we notice that our suburbs are aging. There are fewer kids in school, more senior citizens. We write about how these affect public expenditures.

But we must confess we hadn't thought much about how growing up affects families. One person who has is Vicki Henderson, a former circulation department clerk for Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Now a University of Michigan journalism student, Miss Henderson shared with us her insights on how a growing-up family regroups at Thanksgiving time.

"THEY SAY the family is a fading American convention. They say the unity is diminishing. But when times are tough and the going gets rough, you know they'll be there.

"The family will always be a family, but not in the same sense. Brothers and sisters will always be brothers and sisters, no matter what happens. Parents will always be parents, but different from the days when they made you eat your vegetables and wash behind your ears. And the house will always be home.

"It's hard to imagine family members going their own ways, slowly beginning to trickle away to pursue their own interests and dreams.

"And it's difficult to come to know that the family who lived in one house as one unit has now become separated and have their different places, away from where they learned the basics.

"YOU ALWAYS remember fights over the bathroom, who was going to do the dishes and feeling like you had nothing you could call your own. Understanding why your brother got to stay out later 'because he's a boy' was inconceivable.

"But now we worry if they're doing all right and wondering if they think about you as often as they come to your own mind.

"Phone calls were always a pleasant surprise. Lack of letter writing was often excused because 'they're probably busy.' Packages always seemed to come at the right time to brighten a gloomy day or put a smile on a face with the blues.

"And there always has been eager anticipation during the days before everyone came home.

"THANKSGIVING used to mean getting a few days off school, having a big dinner and company. But this year it's different. It means being a family again, maybe only for a few days, but all that wonder and worry will fade away when they walk through the door.

"This holiday is a tradition in the U.S., but how many people actually stop stuffing the turkey and cleaning the house for guests to think about what it really means and how much they have to celebrate.

"Thanksgiving is a family time when you realize that those trivial arguments weren't as traumatic as they seemed at the time.

"And when you stop to think, doing the dishes can't take more than a half-hour that you probably would have wasted, and what's the difference whether your sister wants to wear a shirt that you never wear anyway?

"So this Thanksgiving, instead of going through the motions of what it's all about, take a few minutes between bastings and celebrate in your own mind what the holiday means for you."

We told you so

When this newspaper opposed Proposal E, the Headlee amendment, on the Nov. 7 ballot, we warned that one result of "tax" limitation would be an increase in government fees.

Well, the voters approved Headlee, and last week the Michigan Judges Association was lobbying to increase the costs of using circuit courts. The judges want to hike the fee for filing a civil lawsuit from $30 to $45.

It's what we anticipated.

At this writing, the bill is encountering stiff resistance: The chief justice of the state Supreme Court says he doesn't like "court fees being used to finance the court system."

A spokesman for the State Bar of Michigan calls it "putting a price on the constitutionally guaranteed right to use the courts."

They're right.

The idea of government is to use a uniform system of raising money—namely taxation—to pay for services that either cannot or should not be performed by private enterprise. The whole trend toward slapping higher and higher fees on specific government services is illogical and bad.

In the past, government raised fees because politicians feared voters' wrath if they raised taxes. Now that we're stuck with tax limitation, government can't raise taxes.

The raising of government fees started long before anyone ever heard of Proposal E. We predict, unhappily, that the trend will accelerate.

One loud, long cheer for bands and twirlers

As the 1978 football season winds down, let's take time to pay tribute to some very special people who have added significantly once again to the joys of autumn for thousands and thousands of high school and college spectators.

This tip of the hat is to the marching bands, their drum majors, the baton twirlers, the flag and rifle drill teams, the pom-pon girls, cheerleaders, field commanders, and the adults who hone them through as many tedious hours of practice as the gridders themselves put in.

They are given too little credit for adding to football's national popularity. Even as devout a fan as myself will concede that many a ticket is sold at the box office more for the appeal of the sideshow than the main attraction.

Such thoughts came to mind Saturday while sitting in on Michigan's annihilation of Purdue's Rose Bowl dream. One of the loudest cheers from the 105,410 spectators was for Dr. George Cavender, Michigan bandmaster for whom this was the final home game prior to retirement.

A CHECK OF the roster of the marching band at Ann Arbor shows 42 names from the Observer & Eccentric area. This is that list:

BIRMINGHAM: Willaim Benedict (saxophone), Robert Biskup (trumpet), Paul Burnett (trombone), Thomas Hitchman (trumpet), Mark Luther (clarinet), Brian Minty (clarinet), Frank Schimid (trumpet), Julie Smith (trumpet).

BLOOMFIELD HILLS: Edward McGeogh (flag), Don Stevenson (euphonium), John Stout (saxophone).

WEST BLOOMFIELD: Laura Reed (trumpet), Deb Snyder (cornet), Therese Vincent (clarinet), Gordon White (clarinet).

ORCHARD LAKE: Peter Cooper (trumpet), David Smith (tuba).

ROCHESTER: Ellen Bochenke (clarinet), Pamela Maker (flag).

TROY: Jeffrey Masters (trombone), Debra Meacham (flag), Sydney Seiler (trombone).

SOUTHFIELD: Kenneth Levine (percussion), Jordan Selburn (clarinet), Daniel Weinstein (euphonium).

FARMINGTON: Tammie VanSickle (clarinet).

FARMINGTON HILLS: Thomas Benesh (trumpet), Peggy DeCooke (piccolo), Robert Kielpinski (trombone), Todd Langen (trumpet), Stephen Markovich (trumpet), Steven Potocki (saxophone), Mark Steinhelper (euphonium).

REDFORD: Stuart Holmes (euphonium), Mark Janssen (twirler).

WESTLAND: James Zimmerman (saxophone).

PLYMOUTH: Ann Segura (piccolo), William Sweeney (percussion).

LIVONIA: Evon Goyer (twirler), Audrey Melenyk (percussion), Jeff Mexicotte (clarinet), Carlos Obregon (clarinet).

through bifocals

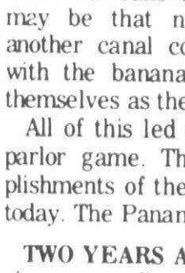

THEY DON'T necessarily perform any better, or work any harder, than their counterparts at Michigan State, Notre Dame, Ohio State or any other college, but they do play to the largest crowds in the United States.

What we should remember is that all of these students who add to the color of the sport on any campus started on this road during their high school days, maybe even earlier.

In my book, the bandmaster deserves the same sort of accolade usually reserved for a winning coach.

Some who come immediately to mind are Jim Griffith in Plymouth, Paul Lipa at Southfield, Norm Logan of John Glenn, Lincoln Naumoff of Redford Union, Tony Aiuto at Lathrup, Paul Barber of Harrison, Robert Kutcher at Seaholm, Sandy Urso of Troy Athens, Doug MacQueen of North Farmington, Stevenson's Richard Neal, Marshall Brown at Franklin, Richard Kitzman of Garden City West and Nick Pulice at Farmington High.

They're all champs, and so are the kids who play for them.

Tim Richard

'It can't be done again'

There was a cartoon of a frustrated and defeated-looking man tinkering at a workbench. He was muttering to himself:

"They said it couldn't be done—and it can't."

The cartoon came to mind during the Panama Canal treaties debate last summer. Time magazine's "news" coverage was overwhoppingly pro-treaties. It said it was unrealistic to consider building another Atlantic-Pacific canal somewhere else in Central America because the feat of the early 1900s couldn't be accomplished again.

I'm not certain why not. One guess would be construction costs, kicked up not only by labor costs but insurance costs due to the modern propensity to file lawsuits over everything. Another reason may be that no country capable of building another canal could negotiate acceptable terms with the banana republics which now think of themselves as the "Third World."

All of this led to my invention of a low-budget parlor game. The object is to think of accomplishments of the past that couldn't be duplicated today. The Panama Canal is one example.

TWO YEARS AGO, The New York Times ran a piece contending the last mile of subway in America may already have been built.

The reasoning was about the same: soaring labor costs; the constant threat of lawsuits; supercaution on safety standards and sky-high insurance.

If true, it was good news to the Oakland County Road Commission, of which the idea of rapid transit is the automobile. Certainly, the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority has only enough money to start an underground line and is unlikely to get, during the Carter Administration, enough to finish one, even if it wanted to. I for one fear The Times is correct.

The pyramids and the Taj Mahal? It's doubtful anyone or any institution today would put up enough money for such monuments. And then there's the most breakthtaking structure I've ever visited—the Alhambra. Theoretically, that could be done again—but it won't be.

A COLLEAGUE who is big on Charlie Chaplin suggests that if the writer-performer were 35 again today, he couldn't find anyone to produce or market his films. Too intellectually high-toned.

I don't know that much about Chaplin, but I do know that Hollywood hasn't made a movie of a James Fenimore Cooper novel for a good 30 years. Western Indians only, the theory seems to be. (That "Last of the Mohicans" you saw on the tube a couple of years ago was done by the British.)

It's too bad Hollywood refuses to recognize there were Indians east of the Mississippi because it will never make a yarn about America's greatest general—Chief Pontiac of the Ottawas.

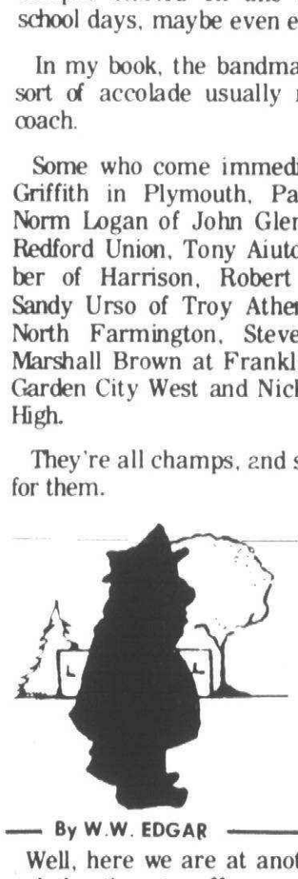

MANY OF US were introduced to Frederic Chopin and Franz Liszt, as humans as well as to their music, in movies of the 1940s and '50s. Today, classical music is taboo in Hollywood. A recent movie on Tchaikovsky was an artistic flop and a box office disaster. The Lone Ranger, produced from scratch today, would be backgrounded by electronic rock instead of "William Tell," "Les Preludes" and "Polovtsian Dances."

The Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, producers of the metroparks, was created and funded by voters in 1940. If southeast Michigan had to try it again, I'd gamble the City of Detroit, and Macomb and Livingston counties would veto it.

As a gag, high school students have been known to take portions of the U.S. Constitution, put them on petitions and ask people to sign them. Usually they get turned down with glares.

Our Constitution was uniquely a product of the classical minds of the 18th century. On today's ballot it would be in deep trouble, and the first amendment freedoms of religion, the press and assembly would be dumped 2-1.

Fun game, eh? And you didn't have to pay $15.95 at the department store.

The Stroller

Many, many blessings

By W.W. EDGAR

Well, here we are at another Thanksgiving Day and the time to offer our thanks for the many blessings that have been bestowed upon us. It is a holiday that The Stroller takes more seriously than any other on the calendar for he has been bestowed with many blessings on his journey along life's highway.

First, he is thankful that he has been able to celebrate another birthday—his 81st only last Sunday—and that he has been allowed to retain all of his faculties and keep step with those many years his junior in the competitive world.

Second, he is ever thankful that the Good Lord has allowed him to retain his good health over the four score years and that his visitations to the medical centers have been confined for the most part to friendly visits.

On this day, he can not offer enough thanks for having a happy home and a helpmate, in Leona, who has been at The Stroller's side for nigh unto a half century.

HE IS ALSO thankful for the teachings of his widowed mother years ago who instilled into him the thought that he couldn't have what other boys had, but that there would be plenty of happiness in life if The Stroller just made the most of what he had.

No Thanksgiving Day ever comes that The Stroller doesn't take time out to offer thanks for the good fortune he had in meeting Charlie Weiser, his first editor, who sent him on the journalistic trail.

It was old Charlie, last of the brown derby era, who guided The Stroller on the path away from the muck and grease of the machine shops to a colorful life in which he walked and talked with the kings and queens of the sports world and some of the country's top celebrities.

And on this Thanksgiving Day, he is going to offer thanks again to Edgar A. Guest, the late poet of the Detroit Free Press, who brought him from the Pennsylvanis Dutch Country to Detroit and the whole new world that was opened to him.

HE IS THANKFUL he has had the good fortune to see the world put on wheels through the building of the automobile and thankful, too, that he has witnessed the coming of the airplane and the space age where men have been sent to the moon.

And most of all, The Stroller is thankful that he is able, long after retirement age, to do his weekly chores for the Observer chain of newspapers, and only a few blocks from home.

Yes, on this Thanksgiving Day, The Stroller has a great deal for which to be thankful.

Thanks for promotion

Editor:

The "Vial of Life" chairwomen would like to first of all thank the Observer for all the help in publicizing this program.

The articles on the countywide project by Betty Masson, and the many articles and pictures sure helped our attempt turn into reality for the Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc.

My personal thanks to Mary Ellan McKercher, Mildred Kingsley, Bud and Doris Curtis, Lynn Wilson, Scott Leveley, Walter Fletcher, Gordon and Marion Arthur, and the various senior clubs which gave me time to prove to the seniors that the Plymouth Community Council on Aging Inc. is deeply interested in serving those that ask for assistance.

My special thanks to the American Association of Retired Persons, Sixty-Plus, Plymouth Senior Citizens Club, St. Kenneth's Parish Club, and St. Kenneth's Blood Pressure Group, and Happy Hour Club.

We are hoping there are still groups which will continue to avail themselves of securing the vial packets. There is a great need for the placement of the vials in every household. It is a life saving project and the assurance to the family in case of emergency.

The project could not have been a success without the success of Mr. Schonneman and Mr. Groth of Plymouth Fire Department and Mr. Notebaert of the Plymouth Township Hall and the township fire department. There are "Vial of Life" packets available at both fire halls.

The Council on Aging Inc. will help anyone who would like to expand the program. There is a continued need for every age, travelling men and women, people with mobile homes and campers.

The Plymouth Community Council on Aging Inc. will serve anyone in need of vials through its new office at Growth Works Crises Center, 185 S. Harvey. Phone 455-4907 Monday through Thursday, except holidays, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Editor:

I would like to express my many thanks to everyone who contributed in organizing Plymouth Salem High's 1978-79 homecoming.

Thanks to Sue Sparling, co-chairperson; Gary Faber and Richard McCoy, our advisors who had all the answers to all our questions and who were fun to work with; Moira Foley, our public relations person; Marcia Roe, who made the court's sashes and scored the class points during our spirit week; Deborah Teichman and the Rockettes for planning the parade; Julie Englehart for planning the elections; and to everyone else who put forth their time and effort.

It's amazing that three months of planning was over in just one week but it was worth it. It was fun and exciting to plan such an active activity for our school.

Congratulations to our Homecoming King and Queen, Paul Dillion and Karen Haut, and I feel it goes without saying, congratulations to the team and band for their excellent performances.

This was a week I'll never forget or regret.

'Nursing home patients care upgraded' — Geake

Nursing homes patients will be assured adequate and humane care under the recently approved Nursing Home Reform Act, State Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) told members of the Dearborn-based "Council for Action on Aging" last week.

The act, which was four years in the making, is aimed at insuring that Michigan nursing homes operate honestly and provide care for their residents.

It contains provisions which guarantees residents basic rights, establishes professional training and staffing standards, requires public disclosure of financial transactions involving nursing homes, and provides stiff penalties for violators.

Geake predicted that the act will have little impact upon the level of care provided by the nursing homes in Michigan which are honest and reputable, but emphasized that it will force the few sub-standard nursing homes to improve their services or be put out of business.

"The need for this legislation arose not from the actions of the vast majority of nursing homes which have long sought to provide their residents with the best possible care and traat treatment, but from the actions of a small number of homes which were not operating up to par," Geake explained.

"I see these few sub-standard homes, where residents are not being treated adequately and humanely, taking actions to improve their level of care or losing their licenses," he said. "By the same token, I see care remaining at its present high level in the vast majority of nursing homes operating in Michigan."

Geake, a member of the Senate Committee on Health, Social Services and Retirement which reviewed the bill, noted that legislature's work on the measure is not yet complete despite its passage.

"It will soon be the legislature's obligation to make sure that the rules, to be promulgated by the Department of Public Health to enforce this act, are in line with the legislative intent behind the bill," he added.

"Properly written, these rules will implement the bill in such a manner as to assure adequate care for the residents of all nursing homes in Michigan. At the same time, it will guarantee a workable policy for nursing home owners and operators."

Geake's district includes Livonia, Plymouth, Redford Township and Westland.

Reviewing the history of the Methodists in the area for the sesquicentennial year have been (from left) the Rev. Frank Lyman, associate minister; Karen Ahlgren, chairperson of the history and records committee; and Sanford Burr, lay minister.

The new church on North Territorial was consecrated March 5, 1972. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

First Methodist marks sesquicentennial

The theme of Sunday morning's sermon at First United Methodist Church of Plymouth will be "Podunk to Joppa to Plymouth" as the Methodists mark their 150th anniversary in the area.

The sesquicentennial will be a time of looking back and contemplating the future.

Among the 1,100 members of the church are descendants of those original settlers who awaited visits of a circuit rider for weddings, christenings and an opportunity to worship together.

There also are people who are new to the community and an encouraging number of young families.

The church now has three ministers, the Rev. Samuel Stout, senior minister; the Rev. Frank Lyman, associate minister; and the Rev. Frederick Vosburg, parish minister.

The big church was built in the early '70s on 15 acres of rolling land on North Territorial in Plymouth Township. The tall white steeple dominates the property that has a natural woods and a meandering creek.

"I have a good feeling about the people here," Lyman said as he discussed the history of the church. "They are caring and committed to the betterment of their community. In looking forward to the next 100 years, they leave a fitting heritage for those who will follow."

THE YOUNG associate minister had just returned from a weekend retreat with some of the young people of the church.

There are the junior high students who take advantage of the field on the church property to play soccer at their weekly supper meetings. There is the senior high group which meets Sunday evenings, and the Mariners Club, a group of young adults, as well as the Methodists Couples Club and the United Methodist Women.

The 60 Plus Club at the church was the first senior citizens group organized in the community.

"I look to the future with optimism," said Lyman.

ANNIVERSRY services will be at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Nov. 26. There will be an anniversary cake for members of both congregations.

The hymns will be the same ones sung at the church's centennial services 50 years ago.

The centennial marked the anniversary of the building of the first church in Plymouth. The sesquicentennial will honor the first organized methodist church services in the farming community.

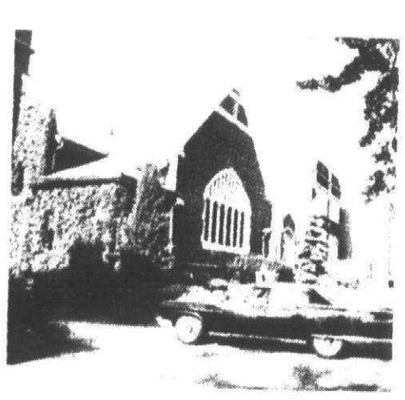

The hymns will be "We Would be Building," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Oh Young and Fearless Prophet."

Old pictures and ledgers will be on display. Some remnant of the first church, which burned in 1916, remains. Candlesticks and offeratory plates were carved from pieces of beams which escaped the blaze.

The late George Burr read the names of those persons who had been members of the church for 50 years or more at the centennial services.

His son, Sanford Burr, lay minister will present the 50-year members at the sesquicentennial services.

First Methodist church was built on Church Street in 1848. When it burned in 1916 it was replaced by the red brick building (right) beside Central Middle School.

Looking back over 150 years

In a time when many are looking to the roots of their beginnings, so shall we.

Cicero said, "Not to know what has been transacted in former times is to be always a child. If no use is made of the labors of past ages, the world must remain always in the infancy of knowledge."

The experiences of those men and women who dreamed and worked and sacrificed and prayed have brought this church to the present.

Thirty years before the first church building was erected in Plymouth, the Methodist Episcopal Church, in fact the first Protestant church building in Michigan, was built of logs in 1818 and was located about three miles southeast of what is now Dearborn. As early as 1810, however, Plymouth was included in the New York Conference and has been part of the Ohio Conference and variously in the Detroit, Ann Arbor and Huron districts.

In 1828, for ministering to the Huron District, the Rev. Benjamin Cooper received $100 a year. Preaching services for Plymouth were held in the Waterford schoolhouse, private residences in Plymouth and in the Plymouth schoolhouse. By 1834, the congregation of 411 was larger than that of Detroit and in time, the need for their own house of worship became ever more apparent. It was not to be until 14 years later.

WHILE THE Plymouth congregation in 1848 was purchasing the site on Church Street for $75 from E. J. Penniman, gold was discovered in California; General Zachary Taylor defeated Lewis Cass of Michigan for the presidency; the first Women's Rights Convention in the country took place at Seneca Falls, N.Y., and the potato revolt engulfed Ireland.

As the lumber was hauled from four miles east of Plymouth and the building began, prospective members seriously considered their stand on slavery for it was part of the Methodist Doctrine that: "We declare that no slaveholders shall be eligible to any official station in our church hereafter."

The Rev. Marcius Swift was one who withdrew from the Methodist Episcopal Church due to the slavery controversy in the church.

The original building remained unchanged until 1874 when it was remodeled by the addition of rooms at the rear of the church, a tower on the corner, and various other improvements costing $3,800. Forty years later, in 1914, at a cost of $9,000, Sunday school rooms were added on the west along with other necessities.

With a debt of about $3,000 remaining, the congregation suffered a devastating blow March 20, 1916. A fire started in the school adjacent to the church, spreading first to the belfry and finally to the main body of the church. Only a small portion of the contents was saved.

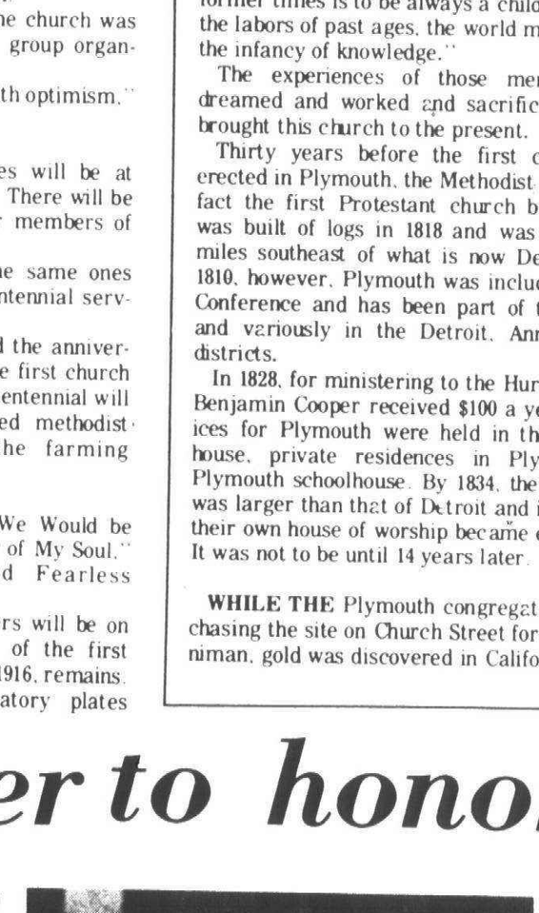

THE FOLLOWING describes in stronger language than we might wish, the trying times as reported years later in The Plymouth Mail:

"Had it not been for the fight put up by I.N. Dickerson

Area regents gather to honor DAR chapter

The Rev. Elizabeth Etz of Northville received a gift of appreciation from the Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter for her 10 years as chaplain.

Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter Daughters of the American Revolution celebrated its 52d birthday Monday with a luncheon at Hillside Inn.

Forty-five members and guests were welcomed by chapter regent Mrs. Albert Heindryckx, who presided at the meeting.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Clare Wiedlea, honorary state regent of Michigan, from Sturgis. Her topic traced the history of the National Society.

Ten guest regents from chapters in the metropolitan Detroit area attended the anniversary luncheon. They were Mrs. James J. Reeves, Ezra Parker Chapter, Royal Oak; Mrs. Kephart N. Walker, Fort Ponchartrain Chapter, Highland Park; Mrs. John S. Buchanan, General Josiah Harmar Chapter, Grosse Pointe Park; Miss Alice Serrell, General Richardson Chapter, Pontiac; Mrs. Robert Siegmund, John Sackett Chapter, Redford; Mrs. Robert W. Sawyer Jr., Louisa St. Clair Chapter, Detroit; Mrs. Paul Trimmer, Piety Hill Chapter, Birmingham; Mrs. John A. Schmidt, Sarah Caswell Angell Chapter, Ann Arbor; and Mrs. Robert Kirsten, Three Flags Chapter, Lathrup Village.

IT WAS DEC. 13, 1926 that eight DAR members-at-large and six new members met at the home of Mrs. Frederick A. Lendrum to organize a new DAR chapter in Plymouth. At the February 1927 meeting, members decided to invite women of Northville who were eligible to join the chapter. There were 25 members when the charter was granted in March 1928. One of the original charter members, Ruth Shattuck Garlett, is still an active member.

The chapter has grown to 90 women from Northville, Plymouth, Novi, Livonia and Canton Township.

A gift of appreciation was presented to the Rev. Elizabeth Etz of Northville who joined the chapter in 1964 and has served as chaplain for 10 years.

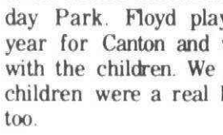

Members of the chapter who served on committees planning the luncheon were: Joyce and Ramona Greenler, decorations; Elizabeth Etz, Mrs. Theodore Kampf, Mrs. Thomas Stinson and Mrs. John C. Burkman, hostesses, and Mrs. D.H. Baumhart, tickets.

Membership in the DAR is open to all women 18 years of age or older who can trace their ancestry to a man or woman who served in or aided the cause of the Revolutionary War. The objectives of the national society are historic preservation, promotion of education, and patriotic endeavor.

Anyone wishing more information may contact the membership chairwoman, Mrs. Thomas L. Stinson, 397-3009.

Santa to take up residence; chamber party a gala affair

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

Everyone knows what the Thanksgiving holiday means. The smallest child will tell us about the day when the Pilgrims sat down to a feast and gave thanks for their crops. They gave thanks for being able to make a new life in a new land.

The majority of us sitting down for our Thanksgiving dinner this year probably will not be giving thanks for our crops or for making it in a new land. What will we be giving thanks for?

We can say thanks for the food on our tables and for our families who will be gathered around. We can give thanks that our country this year is not at war. We can just look at our children and be thankful. And we can be thankful for our friends.

I give thanks for all the new friends I've met in the last year, but I truly give thanks for my old friends who stay with me through all the ups and downs. Happy Thanksgiving to all of you and to all of your friends.

SANTA CLAUS is coming to town. The Canton Chamber of Commerce will be welcoming the Canton Santa at Griffin Park Friday at 1 p.m.

Santa will arrive via helicopter. Welcoming ceremonies will greet the jolly elf to our township. Five-year-olds Amy Tortora and Reed Chakrabarty will say welcome to Santa from all the children in Canton.

A reception will follow Santa's arrival at the fire hall where hot chocolate, coffee and doughnuts will be served. The Fire Fighters Ladies Auxiliary will host the reception.

Santa will be greeting visitors at Griffin Park until 4 p.m. on Friday. He then will be stationed on Saturdays from noon to 4 p.m. at Harvard Square and on Sundays from 1-4 p.m. at New Towne Plaza.

Canton's Santa is Floyd Vickery, one of our senior citizens from Royal Holiday Park. Floyd played Santa last year for Canton and was a real hit with the children. We understand the children were a real hit with Floyd, too.

THE FIFTH annual dinner dance for the Canton Chamber of Commerce was held at the Meadowbrook Country Club Nov. 11. More than 150 members and guests attended the event.

The chamber decided not to have speakers for the dinner dance making the evening a strictly social affair. Master of ceremony was Michael Callahan who entertained the audience with impersonations ranging from Coleman Young to Jimmy Carter. He was a crowd-pleaser.

Many door prizes were given out during the evening. A basket of cheer was won by Bill Tesen, whom, we understand, refused to share his prize with anyone.

THE PLYMOUTH Canton Hockey Association will have an instructional hockey clinic starting Nov. 25 in the Cultural Center. The time is 7 a.m. on the first Saturday and 9 a.m. the following Saturdays. Cost is $2 per session.

This program offers hockey and skating instruction to mini-mites, mites, squirts or anyone else interested in improving their hockey skills. You can participate even if your child is on a team. Call Jack Erps, 453-1763, or Ken Ingle, 455-7292, for additional information.

WE HEAR Janice Goleniak has been all excited about taking yoga classes through the Canton Parks and Recreation program. Last Wednesday evening was to be the first lesson in a series of 10. She went to the store Wednesday afternoon and purchased leotards and even went so far as to purchase a yoga mat. Upon arriving home she learned the classes had to be postponed until four more people signed up for lessons.

The beginning yoga classes will be from 7-9 p.m. Wednesdays at Sheldon School. Cost is $20. You may sign up at the new township hall. Four people in Canton should be interested in these classes, aren't you?

How about for Janice who's all ready to become physically fit. How about for me who has also signed up to become fit? Let's all take yoga for health and beauty!

Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony and Sing-A-Long
Friday , November 24, 1978, 7:30 p.m.
Kellogg Park

Join us in an "Old Fashioned Christmas" celebration! Our traditional tree lighting ceremony and then an old-fashioned sing-a-long—singing our favorite Christmas carols and Christmas songs with Fred Nelson, Plymouth-Salem High's vocal director, and his brass and choral groups.

Immediately following these activities, the participating Plymouth merchants invite you into their shops for their annual "Christmas Cordial"—refreshments and Christmas greetings!

And DON'T MISS THE SANTA PARADE ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25, AT 12 NOON. It will begin at Plymouth City Hall and proceed south to Kellogg Park.

Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce

Christmas cooking aroma fills Greenfield Village

Brisk breezes and frigid frosts of November may be the harkening call to an upcoming winter, but for visitors to Greenfield Village it is also a call to the hearth-warming cooking weekends offered during the month.

Visitors can warm up to some special cooking adventures by visiting four historic houses and watching period meals being prepared—each authentic right down to the aroma of herbs and spices mingling in the crisp, late autumn air.

On the remaining Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays during November, visitors to the village may savor aromas from pickled fruits to plump turkeys, each prepared in a classic American manner.

In the setting of a 1650s' Susquehanna House, a plantation home from Maryland, a meal of roast turkey and stuffing will be prepared on an open hearth

At the nearby small, colonial Massachusetts home, Plympton House, a similar meal will be prepared using food common in the northern colonies.

The lucious smell of two old stalwarts, apple pie and pumpkin pie, will be the first thing to greet visitors to the Ford birthplace in Greenfield Village.

At the H. J. Heinz House, birthplace of the Heinz condiment empire, demonstrations of special piccalilli (vegetable relish) recipes will take place.

The November cornucopia of cooking weekends is open to visitors to the village at no additional charge beyond the regular admission charges.

Methodists compile history

following the fire back in 1916, the congregation might be merged with the Presbyterians today. He was the sole objector to the plan from the Methodist Church Official Board."

"The board went so far as to present the idea to the Presbyterian Church and it was received with mingled approval and opposition. His fight, however, killed the idea for the Methodist Church and negotiations were terminated by the board.

"Mr. Dickerson must surely have been a spirited individual for the congregation acted likewise when his oppostion halted the Presbyterian merger."

Note the following: "Probably no church organization in any community or city in this country can equal in spirit and determination the Methodists of Plymouth in 1916.

"MEMBERS OF THE church began construction in the park across the street of a temporary church house while the big timbers used in the frame of the church were still smouldering." (The congregation later weathered heavy criticism from the townspeople for using public property.)

Within one week from the day the church was burned to the ground, the Methodists had erected a temporary tabernacle big enough to seat almost 300 persons. Not a single church service was missed. Members of the church, with hammers and saws, worked like bees from early morning until dark to finish the tabernacle in time for regular services on the following Sunday. The seemingly impossible task was accomplished to the surprise of the entire community.

As the workers drove nails and sawed boards, a community was busy setting about to raise funds for the building of a great, new church that would be a credit to such a fine community as Plymouth as well as the Methodist Church.

The church then appointed a building committee consisting of George W. Richwine, Everet Jolliffe, Charles Mather and the Rev. Frank M. Field. John H. Patterson, resident of Plymouth, was the contractor and W.E.N. Hunter of Detroit the architect.

AFTER THE CHURCH Street building had been completed and was in use, the hastily built tabernacle was moved to the farm of Sam Spicer on Ann Arbor Trail.

Worship began and dedication of the new structure was on Easter Sunday, April 8, 1917 after a cost of $20,000. Later years saw the addition of a pipe organ in 1923 and a gymnasium in 1924. Remodelling of the chancel occurred in 1951 and the gymnasium was remodeled into a Fellowship Hall and church school rooms in 1956.

Under the ministry of the Rev. Hugh White in 1963, a planning committee was formed to study the future of the church. After lengthy consideration, the decision to relocate was made in 1966.

The purchase of 10 acres from the Gerst family and five acres from the Stecker family on the south side of North Territorial Road was accomplished that same year at a cost of $3,000 per acre. James Morrison was the architect and after groundbreaking ceremonies Dec. 6, 1970, Stewart Oldford & Sons of Plymouth began construction. Six months later, on June 13, 1971, the cornerstone was put into place.

By August 1971, construction was complete enough for the raising of the steeple with the first service following Feb. 27, 1972 officiated by the Rev. Paul Cargo. Consecration by the bishop and an open house was held the next Sunday, March 5, 1972.

LATER THAT year, an organ built by Zimmer and Sons of North Carolina, with 1,449 pipes, was installed and dedicated. Another rank was added in 1975. This beautiful house of worship which serves about 1,200 members and its furnishings, in total have cost approximately $800,000, far exceeding that of the first building in 1848. The plant now has an estimated value of $1.6 million.

There is much more that can be written. The newly formed History and Records Committee has the task before it, to compile and record that history in the years and months to come.

Acknowledgement as sources for this article must be given to previous printed histories, information on hand at the Plymouth Historical Society, Sanford Burr, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fillmore.

This year, 1978, marks the 130th anniversary of the Methodist Church building in the community and the 150th anniversary of an organized Methodist congregation in the community. Each day, the personal contributuions of its members became a part of the church's history.

Mormons establishing new home in Westland

Standing proudly before the new Mormon Stake Center in Westland is LeRoy Walker, who, as stake president, had an important role in the planning and completion of the building. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will be giving special thanks this Sunday when they hold their first Sunday service in their new meeting house located at 7575 Hix, Westland.

Attending will be members of the Westland Michigan Stake, which includes Mormons living in the Livonia, Plymouth, Oakwood, Dearborn, Park View and Monroe wards and the soon-to-be formed Westland ward.

The occasion will be their quarterly stake conference. Non-members are also invited to attend the event which will start at 10 a.m.

The new facility is the high point of a building program inaugurated several years ago by stake president Leroy S. Walker of Garden City. The $1,200,000 center has 26,000 square feet of floor space and is designed to house three wards as well as stake offices. Initially, the Plymouth Ward led by Bishop Don Jacobson will be the only local unit occupying the building.

THE STRUCTURE, which is located on five acres of landscaped ground and bordered on two sides by wood lots, is a blend of modern and traditional design topped by a free-standing spire.

Many energy-efficient features have been included in the building in keeping with Latter-Day Saints teachings encouraging the wise use of money, talent and time.

These include double door entrances to cut down on the amount of cold air entering and windows which are smaller than normally expected in a building of this size.

The building is zoned for heating. If the west wing is in use, a switch can be flipped on to heat that area without raising the heat in the remaining portions. The heat of all zones will be automatically lowered at 10 p.m. every night.

The Stake Center includes a chapel which will accomodate 600 worshipers. It contains a grand piano and a Rogers organ. The building also has a full-sized gym or cultural hall to provide room for athletic activities such as basketball, volley ball and other indoor sports.

One side is a stage where musicals, dramas and talent shows will be performed. The gym is separated from the chapel by two sets of partitions which can be opened to accommodate large audiences in the chapel.

THERE ARE ALSO numerous rooms where Sunday school will be taught. In this area the primary board will teach children three through 11 and the mutual improvement association will hold sessions one evening each week for young men and women 12 through 18.

The organzation of church women, the Relief Society, will schedule its weekly lessons for women 18 and above here. Men of the church will receive their instruction Sunday morning at weekly priesthood meetings.

All members attend Sunday school and sacrament meetings on Sunday as a family.

The mortgage free facility will be dedicated to the use of the Lord early in 1979.

International party-planner lists taboos

By SHERRY KAHAN

Party-giver Clive David doesn't really want to turn prospective hostesses into nerveous wrecks by throwing out too many do's and don'ts in the matter of entertaining.

Nevertheless, he has acquired a headful of data the hard way—throwing social galas in Israel, Venice, Madison Square Garden and Columbus.

And he couldn't resist throwing out a few personal taboos when he came to address the Livonia Town Hall.

Don't mess with surprise parties, he said, and don't schedule a party right after work. You don't have to get your guests bombed, and you don't have to hide them behind huge floral arrangements.

Elaborating on these suggestions, he mentioned the disastrous occasion when friends tried to throw a surprise bash for a woman author.

"She wasn't expecting it," he said, "and she doesn't have much personal security, so she became upset and nauseous when everybody arrived unexpectedly. I think that for the elderly a surprise party could also be a shock or create a problem."

In the matters of timing and priming, David suggested having guests come about 7 p.m. and feeding them half an hour later after they have had one tall drink.

"Take into consideration that people need an intermission between work and partying," he said. "And a good double drink in a tall glass should take care of them in the 20 minutes before dinner."

Flowers are great for parties, he added, but they should be judiciously placed. "Have you ever been to a party where you spend the whole time peering through the dried flowers to someone on the other side?" he asked.

On the other hand, single blooms in tiny vases tend to get lost, David said. He opted for a big arrangement, where people sit and talk rather than where they eat.

DAVID SAID party-givers should stress finding ways to make a social evening unforgettable.

"Always look around to see what you can use to good advantage in your house," he suggested. He once had guests all ranged up a lovely staircase when the guest of honor arrived.

In this day of booming stereo music, David insisted that music be in the background and not intrude on the conversations. He even recommended hiding speakers.

Be thoughtful of strangers was another David dictum. "Do something about them," he said. "Many people don't like to walk around introducing themselves. So make sure they have someone looking after them. Try to have them meet someone whose interests are compatable with theirs."

'There is nothing worse if you have a weak stomach to sit near a candle smelling of strawberries when eating a fish salad.'
–Clive David

Unless it is a buffet dinner, make sure everyone is not seated at small tables.

"If there are four small tables, with the host sitting at one, the hostess at another, the remaining guests will feel they don't rate," he said. "Believe me, people feel that way. Using small tables is all right if it's a buffet because then guests will take their own seats.

David was very positive about the use of candles.

"I am crazy about candlelight," he said. "But you want height in candles, about 24 inches. With tall ones, they won't burn themselves out before the evening is over."

But don't ever seat him next to your bayberry candles. He avoids the ones that are scented.

"There is nothing worse if you have a weak stomach to sit near a candle smelling of strawberries when eating a fish salad," he said.

HE LIKES TO LIGHT up your life with a combination of candle and artificial lighting. It's heavy on the lighting when guests arrive. Soon after, however, use inexpensive dimmers to lower the lamps so their intensity equals that of the candles.

"You'll have everyone in a lovely glow," he said. "You won't have a wrinkle showing."

Try this for placecards. Instead of having ordinary ones written so badly that guest have to don bifocals to pick out their names, go to the store and pick out some beautiful note paper.

While you're out you may as well also pick up a sheet of alphabet lettering. You are about to print your own cards.

Dragoon a family member 13 or over to trace each guest's name on each side of the paper, so that when a tent is made of it the name will be on both sides. Fasten on a tiny decoration, or maybe a dried flower to complete the job.

"It will give your table a marvelous look," said David, "and you will find you have a calligrapher in your family."

Dinner he sees starting with soup and salad, maybe a spinach salad with raw mushrooms. (The Mayflower Meeting House evidently has a similar philosophy. At the celebrity lunch that followed the lecture, it produced a soup and spinach salad with some raw mushrooms).

Following the entree he would pick a fresh fruit salad as "the king of desserts."

IF GIFTS HAVE to be opened at a party, David thinks they should be simple ones, based on some interest of the birthday celebrant. "Be creative," David said.

As a party giver, David has found life full of risks, not the least of which was being stopped by immigration service on his return to this country. He was asked if he knew any Communists. It all boiled down to the fact that he had given his occupation as "partygiver."

Another risk was the rain that fell on the jet set extravaganza he planned in a Venetian palace. He remembed that the man dressed in a suit of armor found it filling up with water.

"It was a marvelous party," he said.

A party tossed by Clive David can cost between $18,000 and $70,000, "depending on what I have to do." A just completed project in Columbus to celebrate the Ohio Theater took him two years.

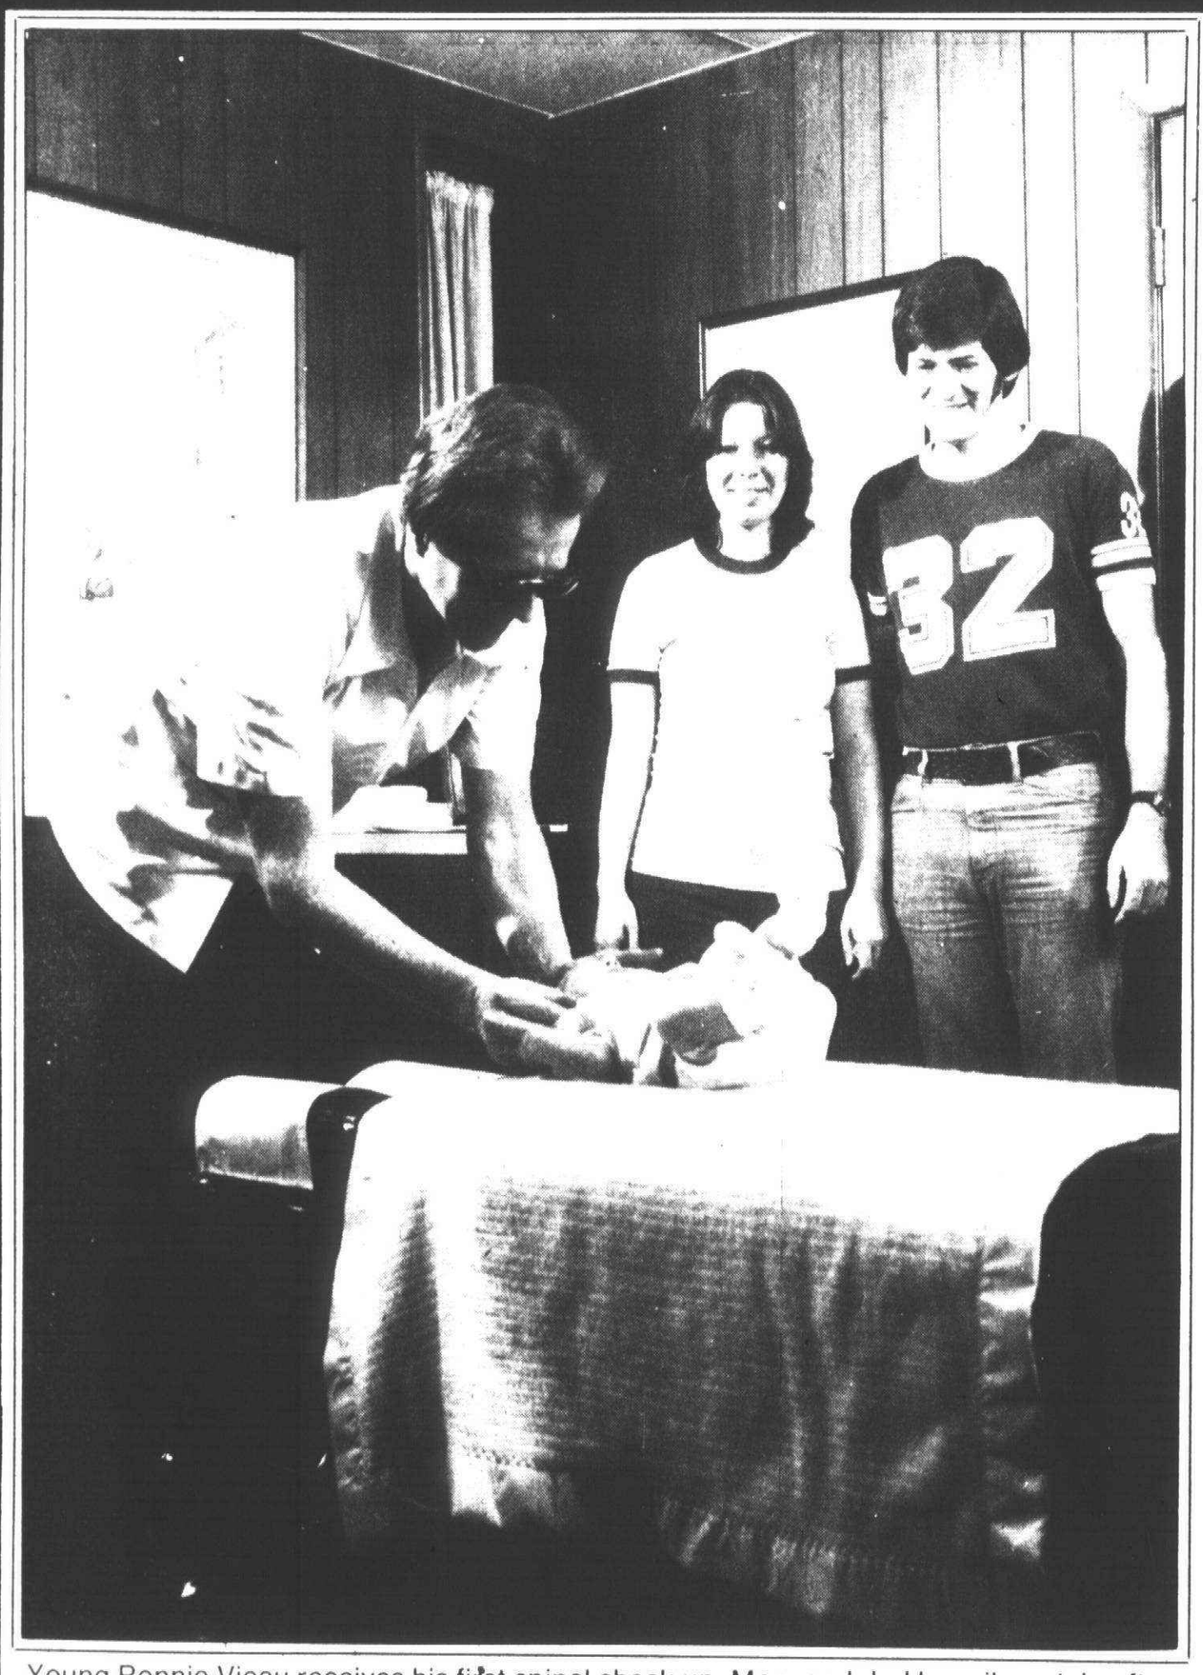

"It involved the entire community, a parade of 40,000 people, 3,000 formally dressed people in the theater, and eventually a TV special hosted by Bob Hope. This will be aired by NBC on Dec. 3.

About 90 per cent of David parties are fundraisers. "Fund raising is now the third largest business in the country," he claimed.

THERE ARE MANY PEOPLE hungry to learn new ideas for partygiving, and David is spending a good chunk of his time lately lecturing to them. From Livonia he was going to Colorado, and planning to begin the job of addressing 2,000 Christmas cards on the way.

Because he roams the world he has found it easier to do without a secretary or staff. He has two homes, one in Beverly Hills, another is Majorca and an apartment in New York.

"But I'm usually in a Holiday Inn somewhere," he said.

Young Ronnie Vieau receives his first spinal check up. Mom and dad happily watch, after waiting many years for their real reason to celebrate Thanksgiving.

A REAL REASON FOR THANKSGIVING

My wife Nancy and I started going to Dr. Grassam just about seven years ago.
Prior to that, we had tried just about everything to have children. We wanted a family very badly and were extremely disappointed that none of our earlier attempts had been successful.
We went to a number of doctors, took a number of tests and even tried adoption, but, the answer was always the same-no luck.
Dr. Grassam explained that it would take time. After a number of adjustments which restored our bodies to their naturally healthy state, my wife became pregnant. We now have our wonderful son, Ronnie.
During this time, we were also building a business, the Vieau Janitorial Service. We service the Grassam Chiropractic Life Center and a number of other offices in the area. As you might guess, building a family and building a business is quite an operation. We are so thankful that we have been blessed with the good health that enables us to reap the rewards of both.
Chiropractic has given us something to be truly thankful for.

Ron, Nancy and Ronnie Vieau

"Hey Doc, What About My Family?"

That's a question that we have heard for years and we have now devised a plan to enable your whole family to enjoy the many benefits of good health.

Many times in the past, after being restored to good health through chiropractic care, our patients have asked about care for their entire family. "I just can't afford to have the entire family treated at the regular office fee," they say Even though our $10 office call is the very lowest in the area, we realize that it can be a burden to large families

So, to serve the needs of patients who do not have full family health care insurance, we are proud to announce the Family Health Care Plan which will make good health a family affair.

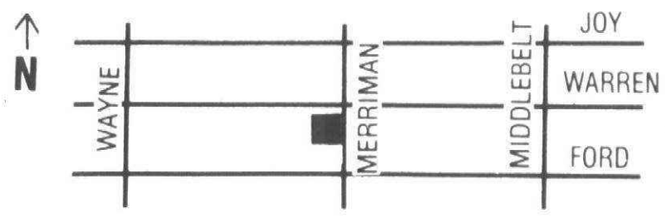

Under our new plan, which is in effect whenever two or more family members who do not have full family insurance visit us on the same day, the first member pays only $8. The second family member would pay only $3 and the third is only $1. All members after three, no additional charge. In other words the maximum cost for the family would be $12.

We have designed this plan to extend good health to everyone. There is a genuine concern that families should stay healthy together. Good health is, indeed, a family affair and it is an affair to be remembered.

Take advantage of our new plan today. Call now — 422-7800 and ask about our Family plan.

BASIC OFFICE CALL	$10
FAMILY PLAN
FIRST MEMBER	$8
SECOND MEMBER	$3
THIRD MEMBER OR MORE	$1
FAMILY MAXIMUM	$12

All insurance plans pay for Chiropractic services, including: Blue Shield, Aetna, Metropolitan, Teamsters, auto insurance, workmen's compensation, Medicare and Medicaid.

Salem tips RU, 50-44

Rocks hang on for 19th win

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Plymouth Salem proved equal to its toughest test of the season when it kept its unblemished record in tact with a 50-44 road victory over Redford Union Monday night.

The Rocks, coached by Bob Blohm, scored 19 points in the second quarter enroute to a 10 point lead at halftime, and held off a late Panther rally to secure their 19th victory of the season. The Suburban Eight League champions close out their season this afternoon at Dearborn before entering state district action.

For the Panthers, directed by Ken Dersey, it was a disheartening setback. Redford Union put a 14-game winning streak on the line against the Rocks but failed to extend it as countless turnovers in crucial situations led to its downfall. RU won the Northwest Suburban League last week and hadn't lost since it fell to Salem earlier in the season.

The Panthers finished the regular season with a 16-4 record and will compete in Southfield next week in the districts.

Despite Doris Hoelscher's three first quarter fouls, Erin Moore's first quarter ankle sprain, and Diane Goodrich's limited action because of a gimpy knee, the Rocks broke an 18-18 second quarter tie by reeling off 14 points to only four for the Panthers in the last 3:41 of the first half to gain control of the game, 32-22.

The Rocks extended the lead to 12 points with an opening third quarter basket before RU slowly but surely inched its way back into the game.

The Panthers actually had three chances to pull within three points with four minutes left in the game, but failed to capitalize on their opportunities.

"For all practical purposes, they (RU) had control in the second half," said Salem's Blohm. "But they committed too many turnovers at crucial times. We played super. We switched defenses, and we showed we have depth.

"Our guards (Nan Horwood and Eileen Moore) played super and our little people inside held their own."

Coach Dersey said, "We had to make up 10 points in the first half and Salem hit the first one in the second half to make it 12. We just couldn't make up the difference, but it was a good game.

"If we could have gotten into our running game earlier, it might have been a different story. We have to rely on our quickness, but the key was when Salem hit those four baskets in the second quarter.

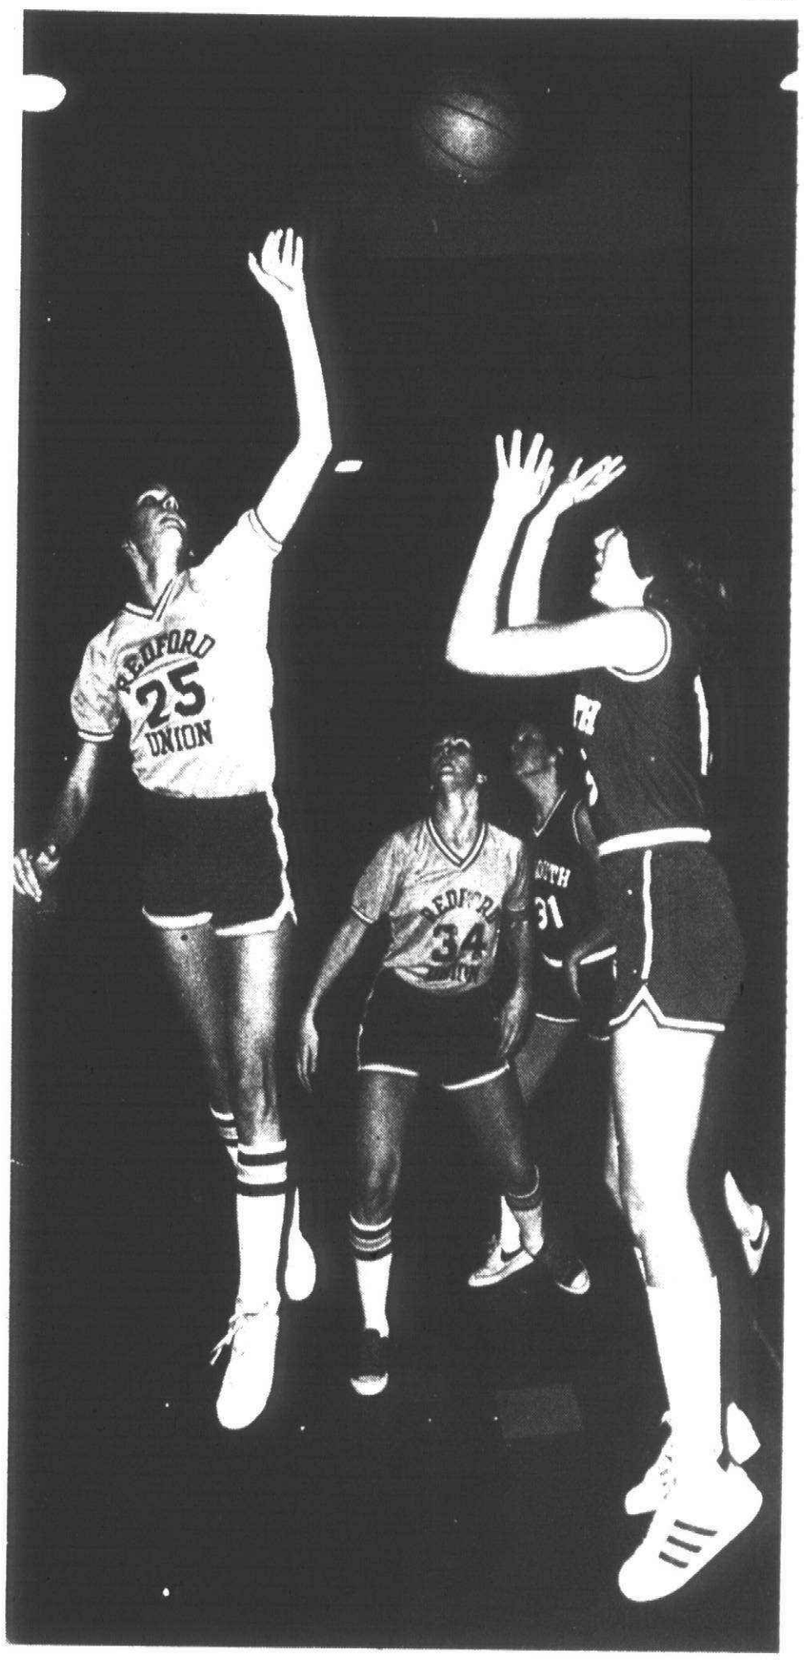

"It just wasn't one of our better games," Dersey said.

Salem's Horwood played one of her finest games of the year, as the junior co-captain took scoring honors with 15 points. Weidman and Goodrich added seven and six, respectively, despite their limited action.

Hoelscher was a key factor in the contest, finishing with eights points, six of which came at the free throw line. Freshman Eileen Moore scored only four points but played her usual cool game by running things on the court.

Redford Union was led by its guards Mickey McLalin and Betty Owens, who scored 13 and 10 points, respectively. Both girls kept the Panthers in the game with their fine outside shooting over the Salem zone in the third quarter.

Juniors Nancy Lawson and Lori Pastula were held to only eight and six points inside. Terry Gonda scored seven.

The Plymouth Salem girls swim team retired a Suburban Eight League trophy with its third consecutive league meet and conference titles Friday at the Plymouth pool.

Coach Chuck Olson and his Rocks fought off a late charge by the Dearborn Pioneers for a 251-221 league meet victory. The Rocks won the outright title with his triumphant effort in the league meet. Going into the final competition, the Rocks had an unbeaten dual meet record in the conference.

Not only was it the Rocks' third straight crown, but it also marked the third straight season Salem has not been defeated by a Sub-8 squad—in either the league or dual meet competitions.

Livonia Bentley, behind the strong swimming of Julia Westhaus, placed third in the league meet and third overall with 199 points. Edsel Ford was fourth at 170, Trenton fifth at 162 and Belleville sixth with 117.

Allen Park does not have a girls swim program, and Redford Union does not compete in the league anymore.

Dearborn was ahead early in the competition, but the Rocks controlled the meet at the end behind the strength of two league meet winning performances by sophomore Sarah Stanwood.

Stanwood was one of only two double winners at the league meet, breaking a loop record in the 100-yard freestyle in :56.12, and also placing first in the 200-yard individual medley in 2:25.0.

Edsel Ford's Pennie Currie was the other league meet double winner, taking both the 200-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle races. She broke a league meet record in the 500-free in 5:12.0. The only other new league meet record which was set by Edsel Ford's Karen Enneking in the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:11.9.

Bentley's Westhaus won the 100-yard butterfly competition with a time of 1:03.0. Salem's Jill McCann took league meet honors with a first-place finish in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:06.1. Westhaus placed second in the back event.

Salem also won the 400-yard freestyle race thanks to Stanwood, Sharon Ross, Kim Coates and McCann. The winning time was 3:59.1 Bentley placed second in this final relay race.

The complete results of this this year's league meet are as follows:

Chief tankers grab 3d at meet

Finishing first in eight of the 11 events and establishing new conference records in four races enabled Northville to win the Western Six League Girls' Swim Meet last week at Livonia Churchill.

The Mustangs, which claimed the conference championship for the fourth time in five years, out-distanced runner-up Farmington Harrison by 52 points.

Plymouth Canton placed third, Walled Lake Western fourth and Churchill fifth. Waterford Mott does not compete in girls' swimming.

Allison Farquhar figured in three of the four records which were shattered by Northville tankers.

She won the 200-yard individual medley, 2:14.9, the 100-yard breaststroke, 1:08.6, and teamed with Sue Cahill, Tammy Selfridge and Janet Shaw to triumph in the 200-yard medley relay, 1:58.3.

Cahill also established a new conference record while winning the 200-yard freestyle with an effort of 1:56.8.

Sue Humphries, from Harrison, accounted for the other record that was set during the league get-together. She compiled 355.95 points in diving.

Like Farquhar, Cahill and teammate Kyle Roggenbuck were individual double winners during the competition.

In addition to setting the pace in the 200-yard freestyle, Cahill finished first in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 1:01.2.

Roggenbuck prevailed in the 100-yard freestyle, 55.6 seconds, and in the 50-yard freestyle, 25.3 seconds.

Harrison's Cathy Rudel earned league laurels by claiming victory in the 500-yard freestyle with a swim of 5:23.2.

Churchill had a league titlist in Jackie Rudolph, who paced the field in

Girls' district pairings announced

The winter sports season officially begins next Tuesday with boys basketball and wrestling competition.

As for girls basketball, however, the long, hard fall season is nowhere near an end, as state basketball tournament action also starts next week with district play at many sites around Michigan.

Locally, the Plymouth-Canton community hosts its first girls basketball district tournament when Plymouth Salem hosts three other Observerland schools.

At the official draw for pairings Monday afternoon, it was decided that Plymouth Canton will battle Livonia Churchill in one of the semifinal games, while host Salem faces Westland John Glenn in the other bracket.

Both semifinal games will be played Monday, Nov. 27, at Salem. The Canton-Churchill game starts at 7 p.m., and the Salem-Glenn contest begins immediately afterwards at approximately 8:45 p.m.

The winners will face each other for the district championship three days later, Thursday, Nov. 30, at Salem beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The district champion will then advance to the Ann Arbor Huron Regional the following week to battle three other district victors from Monroe, Lansing Sexton, and Huron.

The regional winner advances to the state quarterfinals in Kalamazoo the following week.

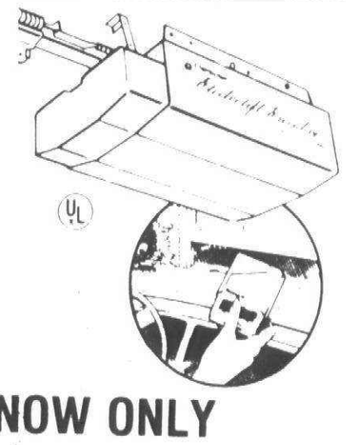

Admission for the Plymouth Salem district is $1.50. All tickets go on sale at the door the night of the games. One ticket will allow fans to see both semifinal games Monday night.

The Canton-Churchill semifinal battle will pit two Western Six League teams facing each other for the third time this season. The Chiefs from Canton won the previous two games enroute to their second straight Western Six crown.

The Salem-Glenn battle will feature the Suburban Eight League champion Rocks against the lowly Rockets from Glenn. The Westland squad is a second-division team in the Northwest Suburban League.

As for a prediction on the district results? You'll have to wait until Monday for that.

More than 500 bowlers are expected to compete in the annual Old Timers tournament Saturday at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park and enjoy an afternoon and evening of toppling the pins and some reminiscing of the old days.

The tournament will be conducted in four divisions and the field will include bowlers who range in age from 55 to 92.

There will be a division for each 10 years of age and the competition will be keen among these old fellows who used to dominate the league play in the entire metropolitan area.

Following the bowling, they will have their annual banquet and the election of officers and it promises to be a day long to be remembered.

SPEAKING of old timers, Julius Balogh is setting a fast pace in the Livonia Lanes group. In his last appearance, he had games of 212 and 204 for an even 600. It was his 13th series of the year above the 500 mark.

On the women's side, Dolores Ervin had a 203 in 519 and it was her third series over 500.

These old timers take their game seriously enough to bowl twice each week as members of the Monday and Thursday leagues.

WHEN ANITA CANTALINE'S Jac-Ro team rolled its 3,190 series last Wednesday night at Crown Lanes, it not only set a new high for the season in women's two all-star leagues—the Bowlerettes and the Ladies Major—but joined the top 10 in the nation.

The previous high in the city was a 3,020 rolled by the Motown team at Luxury Lanes in October.

PENNY BEHN and her Detroit Express team are doing quite well this year in the men's Thursday Night all-star classic at Orchard Lanes.

They are bowling at a 966 clip and have boasted 12 victories in the winter season thus far.

Penny and Cora Feibig share leadership averages on the team with 199, while Gerry Ritter has a 195, Leona Obuchowski a 190, Jan Pavella a 186 and Kathy Haislip, 185.

THE BOWLERS are being asked to join another drive for charity. This time it is to enter Hutzel Hospital's first annual doubles tournament on Dec. 2-3 at Oak Park Lanes. The top prize will be $2,000.

ANSWERING THE MAIL: The highest score rolled in ABC sanctioned competition last season was a 3,782 series by the 20th Century Lanes team of Portland, Or. It had games of 1,247, 1,243 and 1,292.

Right behind this team came the Detroit Stroh's with 3,691, rolled on games of 1,224, 1,299 and 1,168. This was rolled on Feb. 21, 1978.

Stroh also had the fourth highest series in the nation with a 3,589 rolled one week later. No team in the country has been able to match this back-to-back series.

The average bowling establishment in the United States now has 24 lanes according to the latest figures issued by the American Bowling Congress. Also, there were 8,638 bowling centers in the country last season.

The metropolitan Detroit area boasts two houses well above the national average. Thunderbowl in Allen Park boasts 94 lanes in a line, while Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights has 84 lanes—42 lanes back to back.

Marino wins

Nunzio Marino of East Middle School was the winner of the First-Annual Middle School Golf Tournament recently played at the Hilltop Golf Course. Nunzio shot a score of 87 for 18 holes.

Nunzio's cousin, Lisa Marino of West Middle School, was the runner-up of the tourney with an 89.

All four middle schools have golfers involved in the golf program. There are no separate golf teams from each school. All the players are under the direction of Jim Stevens.

Marks shines

Bill Marks, former diver and 1975 graduate of the Plymouth Salem boys swim team, is preparing for yet another season of diving competition at the University of Wyoming.

Marks is receiving a four-year scholarship at Wyoming as a diver.

Turkey's here

The fifth-annual Turkey Bowl, featuring 1975 Plymouth Canton High School graduates, will be held at noon Friday at the Central Middle School football field.

Each Thanksgiving vacation, the Canton graduates have united for a touch football game.

Should Blue thank MSU?

By W.W. EDGAR

There is an unusual twist to Michigan's invasion of Columbus, Ohio on Saturday to engage Ohio State for the Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

If the Wolverines win—and they are favored—they can thank the Spartans of Michigan State, the only team that conquered them in the regular season, for their coveted position.

It was the loss to Michigan State that caused Michigan's coach, Bo Schembechler, to change the Wolverine offense and steer them to victory in their succeeding games.

If you recall Schembechler sort of scoffed at the threat of Michigan State's passing attack and vowed that he would stop Eddie Smith, State's quarterback, and his mates.

Bo planned to do this by having his defensive line drop back to guard against the pass. This was just what the Spartans wanted and they went on to score a decisive victory.

It was then that Michigan changed its strategy. Bo admitted he was wrong and decided that the best defense against the pass was to run at the opposition. "Go get em" became his motto. The reversal of his idea has enabled Michigan to march through all opposition and only last Saturday, made Purdue, unbeaten until then, look like an oridinary team.

That will be the game plan on Saturday when Michigan and Ohio State battle for the ninth time in the last 10 years for at least a share of the Big Ten title.

It will be Rick Leach's final bid for the Heisman Trophy, too, and that will make the game even more important. But whatever success Michigan has, credit will have to be given to Michigan State for causing a change in tactics.

Basketball marathon successful

Plymouth Canton cagers held a 24-hour basketball marathon last Friday night through Saturday night to help raise funds for the program. The junior varsity and varsity players, who all gathered pledges to raise money, were broken into six different teams and alternated playing time in a 24-hour period, which started at 8 p.m. Friday. The final score—Canton defeated Canton, 2,209-2,193. It was close all the way. (Staff photos)

Plymouth runners blanked from all-area squad

By KEN VOYLES and DENNIS O'CONNOR

All in all, the 1978 edition of boys cross country in the area was a far cry from outstanding. In fact, according to the area coaches, it was a just plain bad year for the high school teams from Livonia, Garden City, Redford, Plymouth and Westland.

Most squads compiled a fairly solid dual meet record but when it came to the regionals and state finals, the results were a poor showing in comparison to other schools.

Even though it was an admittingly poor season overall, there were still some fine harriers competing during the fall events. Those runners stood out among the crowd and earned the praise of all the area coaches.

Just to show how outstanding those individual few were, area coaches were able to select the 1978 all-Observer cross country team in no time at all when they met last week.

FIRST TEAM

Larry Fruit, Garden City West. Fruit was a three year starter for the Tigers and became the team captain in his final season.

He was chosen for the Tri-River League all-conference team and led the West contingent during the entire season by being the Tigers' first finisher in 10 of 15 meets.

Fruit also ran in the prestigious Redford Union Invitationals and finished 13th with an effort of 16:50.

At the regional cross country meet, Fruit was 15th and qualified for the state meet. In the state event, he was 51st with a time of 16:13, one of his best for the year.

Mike Stapleton, Garden City East. Stapleton is a hard working runner who improved in every race this season.

Being only a sophomore, Stapleton has great room for further imporvement and should come on even stronger in the next couple of seasons. At the Cass Benton course he clocked a time of 17:02.

Stapleton was eighth at the regionals, second in the Northwest Suburban League meet and 48th at the state competition.

John McCormick, Livonia Stevenson. The talented senior was the number one runner on the Stevenson squad this season. His best time at Cass Benton was 16:28.

McCormick was also chosen as a member of the Inter-Lakes League all-conference team.

McCormick was ninth at the Redford Union Invitational, 12th at the Schoolcraft College Invitational and seventh at the regional meet.

In the state competition, McCormick placed 25th with a time of 15:47. That finish was one of the highest by an area runner at the state meet.

John Bowie, Livonia Stevenson. Bowie is the other premier runner on the Stevenson squad. The junior's best time at the Cass Benton course was 16:59.

Bowie also made the Inter-Lakes all-conference squad along with McCormick.

At the regional meet, Bowie gave a strong showing in 14th postion. His time for the course was 16:13. Bowie qualified for the state meet with that finish.

Bowie finsihed just in front of Stapleton at the state competition in 47th place.

Bob Stansberry, Livonia Churchill. Stansberry completed his third year of cross country at Churchill. He was the team's co-captain for 1978.

Stansberry has won several honors this fall. He was chosen for the Schoolcraft all-Invitational team. He was the Livonia city champion and clocked a best time at Cass Benton of 16:34.

He ran in the 16:30s three times early in the season before illness struck him midway in the year. From that point on, Stansberry never regained top form.

"Bob is a good student and a quiet leader. He was chosen as the team's most valuable runner this year," said Churchill coach Dave Westover.

Dave Dawson, Livonia Franklin. Dawson also completed his third season of cross country for an area team. He was picked to lead the Patriot team this season as co-captain.

Dawson was fifth at the Northwest Suburban League meet with a time of 16:36. His best time on the Cass Benton course was 16:40.

He was also chosen for the Northwest Suburban League all-league team.

Paul Coburn, Livonia Franklin. Coburn is a sophomore with great potential. He is almost expected to led the Franklin team in the next two years.

He was fourth at the Northwest Suburban meet with a time of 16:29 and qualified for the state competition by finishing 12th at the regionals. His time was 16:08.

At the state meet, Coburn was 59th with an effort of 16:19. He too, like his teammate, Dawson was chosen for the Northwest Suburban all-league contingent.

Jim Kanclerz, Westland John Glenn. Kanclerz is only a junior on the Rocket team but he proved to be both a fine runner and an able leader as captain.

Kanclerz was third in the Northwest Suburban League meet and 10th in the regional competition. He was chosen for the all-league team this year. He also won that honor as a sophomore.

He was picked by his teammates as this year's most valuable runner. His best time at Cass Benton was 16:40.

"He is an extremely dedicated runner. He loves the sport and has done a real good job here," said Glenn coach Gerald Szukaitis.

An example of his dedication is the fact that Kanclerz has run 1,000 miles in the past two summers to train for the upcoming seasons.

Andy Dillon, Detroit Catholic Central. Last but not least, Dillon proved to be one of the toughest runners in the whole state.

He was the West Bloomfield Invitational champion with a time of 14:40. He was the Holly Invitational champion with an effort of 14:51 and he was the Catholic League champion.

Dillon went on to win the regionals with a time of 15:58. But diasater struck him at the state competition where he collasped and was unable to complete the course.

Dillon is only a junior and will be back again to cornerstone the Shamrocks' squad.

Besides being an outstanding cross country runner, Dillon was the regionals two mile champion last year on the CC track team. He clocked a time of 9:29 in the event.

"Andy is an excellent runner, obivously. He ran some very nice races for us all year long," said CC coach Anthony Magni. "He is just a super runner."

HIGHLIGHTS

For what seems the 175th year, the Big Ten championship and Rose Bowl representative will be decided in Columbus as Ohio State hosts Michigan. Actually, Michigan State, by beating Iowa Saturday, will co-champion the conference with the winner. However, the Spartans are on NCAA probation and ineligible for the Rose Bowl. The Wolverines won the annual title game last year, 14-6, and were then up-ended by Washington in the Rose Bowl, 27-20. It's been ten years since any team other than Michigan or the Buckeyes has represented the conference in Pasadena on New Year's Day. Purdue had a good shot at it this year, but Michigan wiped out that possibility last Saturday, 24-6. The Wolves were beaten only by Michigan State this fall while Ohio State lost to Purdue and Penn State, and was tied by Southern Methodist. Enough history. Michigan will win it again this year by 12 points.

If Alabama beats Auburn on Saturday, December 2nd, the Tide will win the Southeast Conference title. And, typical of all top college powers this year — with the exception of Penn State — Alabama has one blot on its season record, an early loss to Southern California. The Auburn Tigers tied Georgia last week, 22-22, so they are in rather a strong position to give the Crimson Tide trouble. Alabama is favored by 18 points.

The Harmon crystal ball had another shiny week two weeks ago moving the average up a few more notches. Including all games through November 11th, the forecasting average has climbed to .748 based on 1,514 smiles and 511 frowns.

Southern California has already been crowned champion of the Pac-10 Conference and will host the Ohio State-Michigan winner in the Rose Bowl. However, the Trojans have another hosting task first. Saturday night, they entertain the Irish of Notre Dame in the 50th renewal of this intersectional rivalry. It should be a typical Southern Cal-Notre Dame "pull-out-all-the-stops" show with the Trojans winning by three points.

Finally, top-ranked Penn State is the home team in its final regular season game against cross-state rival Pittsburgh. Last year, the Lions barely edged the Panthers, 15-13, to close out a fine 10 and 1 year. On Friday night, by beating Pitt (the spread favoring the Lions is 14 points), Penn State will close out an even finer 11 and 0 season.

Howard Egan and Kay Grismer pose in a scene from "I Do! I Do!," opening this weekend at the playhouse of the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford, 15138 Beech Daly, south of Five Mile. The musical comedy traces the 50 years of married life of one couple. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday through Dec. 9; 2:30 p.m. this Sunday; and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3. Tickets are $4 or $3 for senior citizens and students on opening night and the Sunday matinee. Couples who have celebrated their golden anniversary can attend these two performances free. Paradise jazz opens Sunday

Save Orchestra Hall has announced plans for its Night at the Paradise jazz concert series, which will present national and local musical, singing, dancing and comedy stars along with classic films in the legendary Paradise Theatre, as Orchestra Hall was known during the 1940s.

The series will include two events with two shows each—this Sunday, Nov. 26, at 4 and 8 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 17, at the same times.

The series, presented with the support of the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency, will be mounted on stage at Orchestra Hall The Paradise Theatre, which has been restored and renovated since it was rescued from the wrecker's ball by the non-profit Save Orchestra Hall several years ago.

This Sunday's concerts include:

•Cab Calloway—"Mr. Hi-De-Ho," an entertainment legend and the swinging symbol of the jazz age.

•Paradise Theatre Orchestra—Sixteen pieces, under the direction of Jimmy Wilkins.

•Kim Weston—Detroit's first lady of song.

•Marcus Belgrave—trumpet star.

•Candy Johnson—Rock 'n roll tenor saxophonist.

•The Leonard Brothers—Fast-stepping dance team.

•Flash Beaver—Master of ceremonies, also known as The Last of the Red-Hot Tap Dancers.

•Antares—Jazz combo.

•On screen—"Black & Tan," a short featuring Duke Ellington, plus the full-length feature "Man in the Saddle," starring Randolph Scott.

Tickets for the series and for each of the concerts are available at the Orchestra Hall box office, Hudson's, Peaches, and the Michigan Union box office in Ann Arbor.

The Night at the Paradise project is the first concert series presented by the Save Orchestra Hall, Inc. organization, which has focused on restoring, maintaining and making the Orchestra Hall Paradise Theatre facility available to music organizations in the Detroit area.

The guild also seeks a producer, stage manager and a variety of backstage positions.

The play will be presented in February. Director is Scott Lee Hammar.

The expert on Tut brings a business approach to arts

By CORINNE ABATT

While the myth about the curse of King Tut's treasures has been debunked, it would seem now, they came packed with a latent blessing.

For without any number of people in the right place at the right time, the exhibit might not have made its successful American tour.

One of these persons was Thomas Hoving, then director of New York City's number one tourist attraction—the Metropolitan Museum of Art—for a decade beginning in 1967.

HOVING, author of the best seller, "Tutankhamun: The Untold Story," was in the metropolitan Detroit area recently to promote the book. It fell into place when in his research on the discovery of the treasures, he sensed the complete story hadn't been told. Hoving was able to provide the missing links between the various stories "because most of the previous writers didn't understand the buzz words."

He recognized some of the key words and phrases used in earlier accounts, terms or names that had since been replaced. With these pieces to work from, Hoving set out on his own information treasure hunt.

"They (other researchers) didn't recognize the words. I did. That's how research goes sometimes when you have tunnel vision."

He used files from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, personal accounts and newspaper stories and one file mysteriously led to another as the buzz words established relationships.

Along with the book, which contains some new thoughts on an old, but still dramatic, discovery, the fact that the treasures made it here is just short of a miracle.

THE FIRST seeds for an American tour were planted when former President Nixon posed the question to Anwar Sadat in Egypt in 1974.

Feelers were then made to Hoving to see if he would be interested, he assumed at first, in having the treasures at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. His answer was a quick, "Sure, definitely," not aware that he would eventually be handling many of the arrangements for the entire tour.

Still, the Egyptians were reluctant to go ahead because they didn't trust the Americans for the quality of presentation the treasures would be given or the facilities for caring for them.

"Negotiations were delicate," Hoving said. "It was a completely different political climate and the Egyptians were very nervous about it. They had just gotton rid of the Soviets and they were nervous about the ethnic groups' reaction to it here."

He added, "I deeply appreciated that and I was sensitive to it and they sensed this."

Money was another major concern for the Egyptians. When they learned there couldn't be an admission charge at the National Gallery in Washington D.C., they became disenchanted because admission charges traditionally are the resouce for the originating country.

Hoving convinced them that large amounts of income could be returned to Egypt through a product line to make replicas of the treasures to sell.

He arranged for the sale of rights to other businesses, and the profits returned to Egypt were far greater than anticipated.

With a less businesswise museum director, the entire project could have been scrapped. But one of Hoving's strongest areas is his businesslike approach to the marketing of the fine arts. He has been criticized for it, but there is is no denying the solid black figures in the Metropolitan Museum of Art's budget sheets.

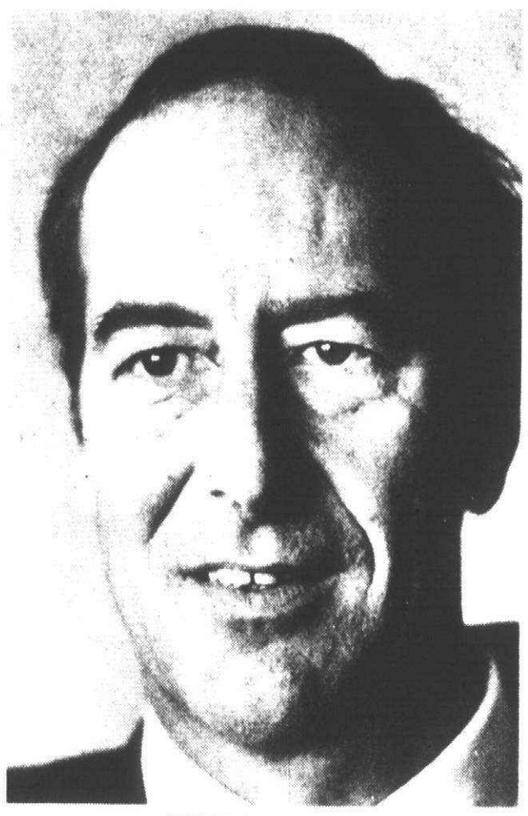

One of his most sweeping changes while in the now-named "Hoving era" at the Metropolitan Museum started with head-hunting for top business people to work for the museum.

"We went after businessmen to help us run our business. We went out and recruited and paid top dollar."

These changes, he said, were easily justified when a study showed the museum was the number one tourist attraction in New York City.

When close to the end of his 10 years, his duties became largely administrative, Hoving decided it was time to move on. With this book well-received, he's already well into another. He considers the tour to hype the book as part of the package and has found it enjoyable—if at times hectic.

HE IS A consultant for about half-a-dozen museums around the world. He is also involved in a company that makes museum reproductions and will be appearing regularly on the ABC evening news.

THOMAS HOVING
'Untold story'

Tut and Tom at Schoolcraft

Did you miss the King Tut exhibit?

You can see something maybe even better at Schoolcraft College at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 28.

Thomas Hoving will bring Tut's treasures, some never seen before, on slides and present them with the story of their discovery.

Tickets for Tut and Tom are priced at $2.50 and are available in advance at the Schoolcraft College bookstore. It is located at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

The author takes the audience on a tour beginning in 1922, when archeologist Howard Carter found "a little blue faience cup" two years later with discovery of the magnificent solid gold funeral mask and sarcophagus.

The tomb of the young king contained some 5,000 objects, ranging from art and artifacts, to chariots and furniture, bedclothes and cups. The ancient Egyptians believed in an afterlife for which they had to be well provided.

Once past the basics of interviewing and being a TV personality, Hoving said he finds the directness of that media challenging.

But this giant in the international art world, who oversaw many of the major acquisitions for the Metropolitan Museum, has no art collection of his own.

"When I was spending $4-$5 million collecting professionally and all of my time was spent collecting in this giant scale, I couldn't collect on my own."

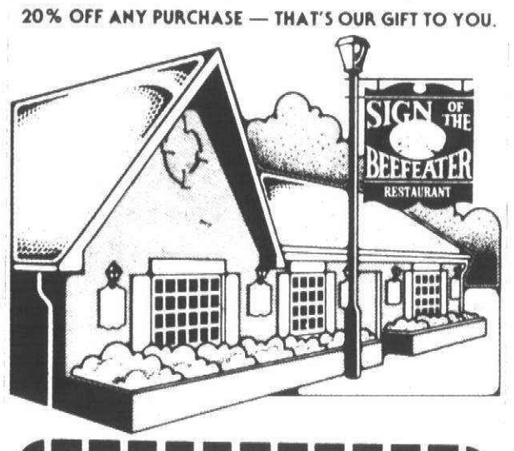

A high energy individual who was checking off media appearances in his notebook as a housewife would a grocery list, he replied in one word when asked what he wanted for lunch: "Spaghetti." He smiled and explained he needed the carbohydrates to pep him up.

Having accomplished more in the past 10 years than most people ever dream of in a lifetime, he still runs a fast track. But, now there's a bonus, "I like being my own boss."

He will be choosing his projects from the many offers that pour in, seizing the opportunities that look golden and spreading his doctrine of a businesslike approach to the marking of the world's great art.

A good reason to move your money.

CHECK THE EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELD PAID BY OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS ON MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATES.

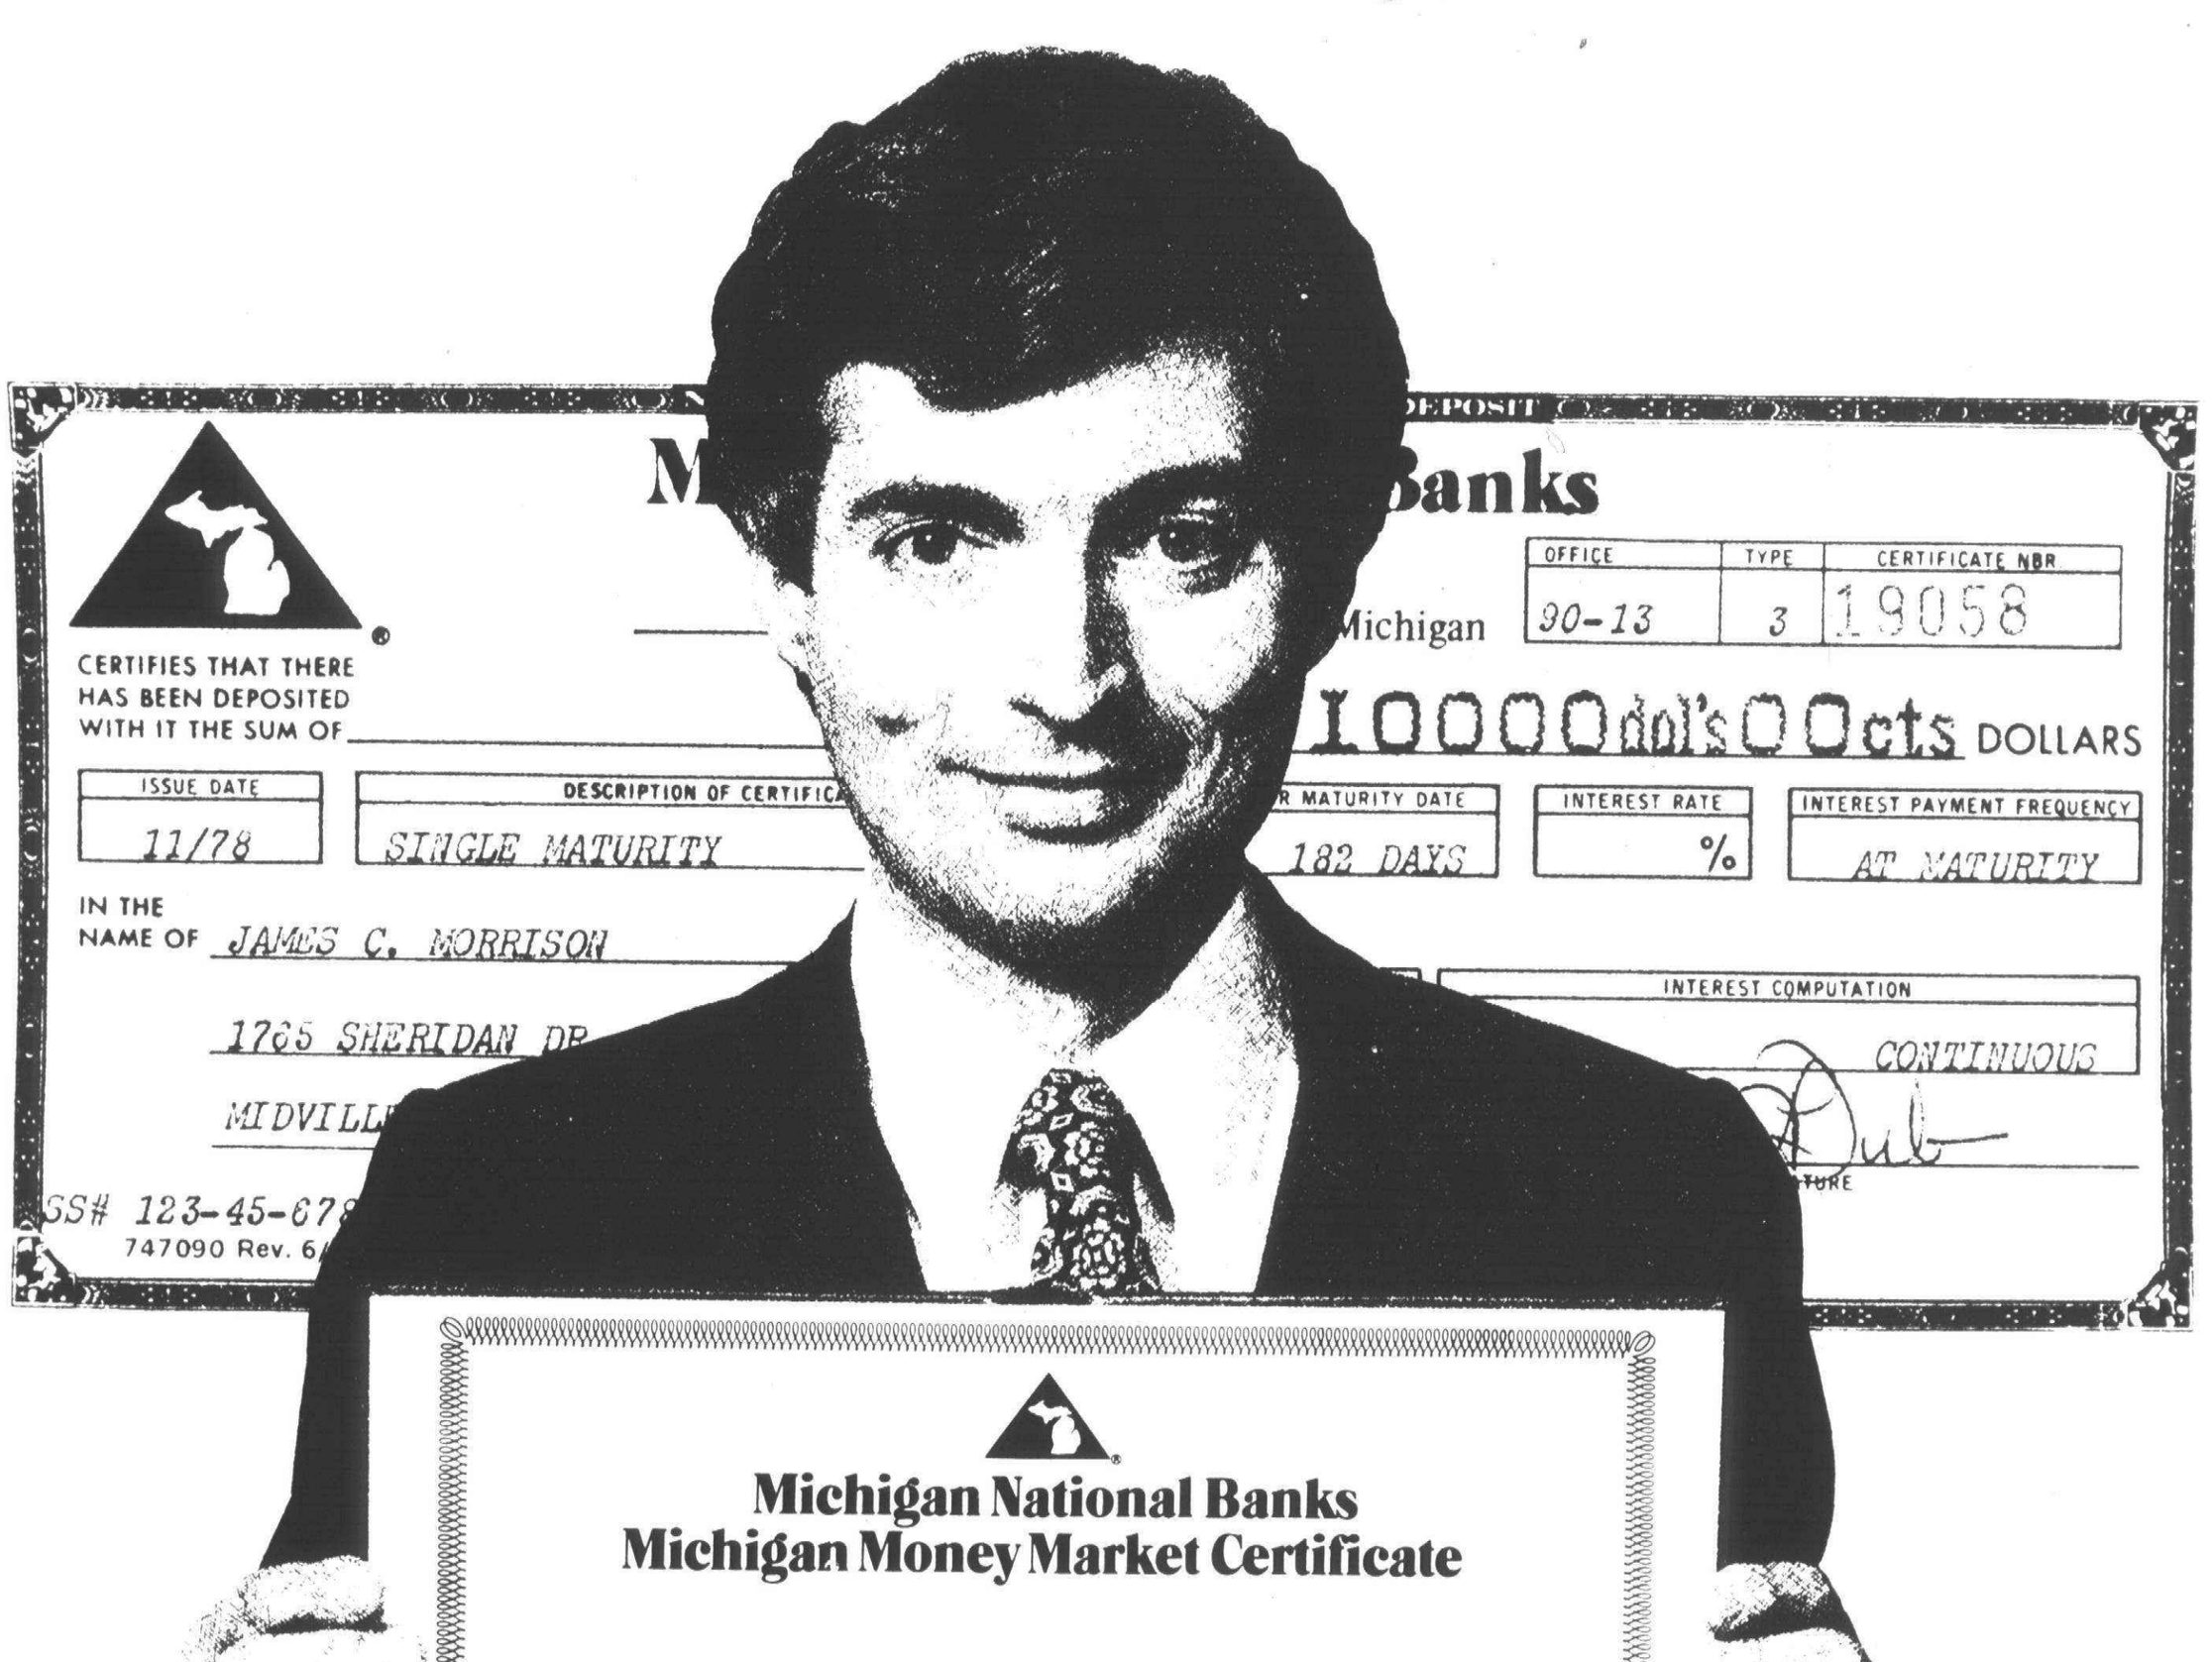

THEN, CHECK MICHIGAN NATIONAL BANKS.

Many banks and savings and loans are offering six-month money market certificates. And while the savings and loans can legally pay a higher annual interest rate than banks, that fact alone doesn't necessarily put more money in your pocket. The amount of money you'll actually earn depends upon the effective annual yield you obtain—and that depends upon the way your interest is compounded.

At the Michigan National Banks, we compound interest continuously on Michigan Money Market Certificates to pay you the highest effective annual yield we are legally permitted to pay. And that simply means that you'll earn more money at the Michigan National Banks than you will at a lot of other banks and savings and loans.

Michigan Money Market Certificates require a minimum deposit of $10,000. The interest rate—and effective annual yield—changes weekly. The rate at which the certificates are bought is fixed for the 26-week life of the certificate and subject to change at renewal.

$10,000 Earns you $458.47 in just six months.

Give Santa a Hand!

His elves seem to be getting Santa into his boots, coat and hat alright, but we think the dear old gent could use some help in the gift selection and delivery department. That's why we're publishing our Christmas Gift Spotter on the classified pages of your hometown newspaper again this year.

Look for it beginning Wednesday, November 22 and check the wondrous array of gifts. Something for Aunt Minnie, the kids—all the people on your list. (Christmas list)

Oh yes - if you have merchandise that you want all of the "Santas" who never miss reading their hometown newspaper to see - just call one of our friendly Ad Takers and tell her you want to place a Gift Spotter Ad - she'll do the rest and wish you a Happy Holiday!

THANKS-GIVING MESSAGE FROM OUR FAMILY AT ONE WAY TO YOUR FAMILY

Thanks-giving is a special family time when we can nationally reflect on our family's blessings, benefits and security. America, even with its problems, is the best country in the world. Where else is capitalism and democracy mixed with the spirit of individualism, seasoned with challenge and opportunity and garnished with independence, yet loaded with compassion? Where else! Let us jointly agree to make it work for us and not us work for it. Sincerely, Richard Helme-Kangas, President One Way Realty.

Glitterbugging

Slitted or slashed— both are 'in' fashion

By RUSTLE SHAND

Slitted, slashed and slimmed-down best describe the holiday attitude toward fashionable dressing. Careful planning and investment buying are the keys to getting your holiday look together, according to fashion director Ken Dewey of Saks Fifth Avenue.

For the woman who likes to mix and match evening separates, Dewey recommends the designs of Anthony Muto, in drop dead, sequined black. You start with a short, skinny bias-cut slip dress topped with a baseball blouson open-wear, all over sequined top. Add black-seamed stockings, barely-there sandals and a cocktail hat.

For a truly glitterbugging holiday evening, Dewey recommends the gold slink of Halston's lame gown which is really a toga that ties over one shoulder. With this gown, skip any jewelry except earrings and by all means wear beige stockings and gold strippy sandals.

FOR THE WOMAN who wants to brighten up the holidays for herself and everyone around her, Dewey further recommends "Here I am red." Stephen Burrow's bright red jersey dress is split to the hip bone on both sides. Burrows has used the new chiffon weight jersey and created a very light body dress which is a forecast of what you will be seeing next spring.

More red from Kasper for Joan Leslie—this time in a poly/crepe three-piece. Skinny pants go under a short sarong skirt and it's all topped off with a deep cowl-collared shell blouse.

For fashion elegance with a price tag of $1,000, there's Dimitri whose fashions combine chic and elegance, quality and texture. He has used the finest silks and wools to create what Dewey called the "refined" look for holiday evenings.

Dimitri combines a claret silk crepe long skirt with a pleated front blouse and gold and claret scarf. He then adds a hip-bone length double-breasted blazer in claret silk on one side and gold silk on the other.

A shorter version of the Dimitri design combines a green windowpane wool tweed skirt with a claret silk crepe high shawl collar blouse. He tops this with a reversible full length coat of claret silk on one side and green silk on the other.

TIPS FOR SUCCESSFUL holiday dressing from Dewey include the warning not to wear black stockings. They're too harsh—wear smoke instead.

Although the right accessories are an important factor in getting your holiday look together, "keep them down," Dewey warns. "Most clothes this holiday season will do better with a minimum of accessories. Add one piece of junk jewelry or bigger earrings, or a satin disco bag, slung diagonally across the body. "But not all three together," he said.

"Get into a lean pant or narrow skirt look for the holidays," Dewey suggests. "The new narrower skirt should be either shorter or slit—or both," he said, adding that the new narrowing "calls for shorter lengths. It's all a matter of logical proportions."

"Avoid splurging on gimmicky holiday clothes that you can't wear more than once. Select things that will work together with other things in your wardrobe, long after the holiday season ends."

The sexy, bare and high-heeled sandal is still "in," Dewey said. But don't overlook the newer high-heeled sling back pump.

HOLIDAY UPDATES for an existing fall wardrobe includes the little black cocktail

For the woman who wants to make the "Here I Am, Red" statement, there's Stephen Burrow's mere breath of a dress or Kasper's three-piece evening pant.

Ultra-chic for the home

Give gift that makes 'scents'

By RUSTLE SHAND

Holiday gift giving should be a pleasure, not a chore. To this end, we searched out innovative gifts so luxuriously de rigueur that you'll be tempted to receive rather than give.

The holidays also mean parties and throughtful hostess gifts. But with today's emphasis on slim, healthy bodies, it is no longer fashionable to take nuts, candies and other such high calorie foods to your favorite hostess.

And, with the holiday rush, it's almost impossible to shop for and send a thoughtful gift of thanks—after the fact.

We found the perfect solution to the hostess gift at Hattie's in Birmingham. Even if your hostess is not the ultra-chic type, she's bound to absolutely adore any one of the variety of Rigaud perfumed candles, soaps, potpourri, room spray or burning sticks.

THE RIGAUD CANDLE (made famous by Jackie O who brought one home from Paris) is elegantly set in semi-crystal glass with silver-finished base and top. The cypress fragranced candle, particularly appropriate for the Christmas season, burns—filling the atmosphere with the delicate spicy aroma while cigarette and unpleasant odors vanish from the room.

The large candle with its own silver base and top is $35. A mini candle with a silver top is $10. Both are also available in a wildflower fragrance.

Scented tapers by Rigaud add beauty and fragrance wherever little candlelight does a lot—$10 a pair in blue, vanilla or gold.

The famous Rigaud soaps, by the slice or in bulk with an accompanying do-it-yourself knife, are certainly original gifts, from $7.50.

A BOX OF delightful Rigaud potpourri for freshening and perfuming the air in any room is also available from this Paris house of perfume.

If your hostess is really a nature buff, consider the Agraria potpourri. It combines the spicy fragrance of cinnamon, orange, herbs and wildflowers. Beautifully packaged boxes start at $8 and go as high as $35 for a large handwoven straw box filled with the dried fragrance.

For $5, you can delight the hostess who has a penchant for dried flowers and cattails. Agraria offers a package of perfumed burning sticks with the appearance of miniature cattails. They freshen up the air with a spicy orange perfume while clearing the air of party smoke.

Bazaars abound this time of the year and they serve a two-fold purpose. They help organizations raise funds and they help shoppers who have limited time for gift-buying find thoughtful and personalized gifts—often moderately priced. Above, "dough" persons are an old favorite on the bazaar circuit — but now they have a new twist: sports figures. (Staff photos)

Crafty folks supply personal touch to gifts

If you're crafty, you can make this a one-of-a kind Christmas.

Holiday time, more than any other is a time to try to be different, to make a stab at uniqueness. Those who have time and talent have a head start in decorating the home or office and in making gifts that are really a part of themselves.

Many of the bazaars and crafts shows that display wares before the holdiays recognizing this, invite people who do quality work to take part in their exhibitions.

"WE TRY TO use people who put together high quality work but at a moderate cost," said Peggy Raben, who worked on the Creative Council's craft show this fall in Southfield's Tel-Twelve Mall. "People have enough trouble keeping food on the table these days to expend a great deal for holiday crafts."

Typical of many crafts shows, the council's display showed off the wares of 25 council artists and 10 invited artists from the tri-county area.

Shoppers looking ahead to Christmas could purchase hand crafted products of all kinds such as weavings, clay sculptures, Christmas decorations, dried flowers, pewter, and candles of all shapes and sizes.

There were paintings, ceramics, stained glass and jewelry for a special gift.

For those whose talent is choosing the wares of others, shopping for Christmas is a matter of time, energy and discrimination.

For those with limited time, a thoughtful, modest gift can be personalized by hand-embroidering, adding a whimsical decal or some other personal touch. Dried flowers or plants can be purchased and arranged by the giver.

If you're not a weaver, painter or flower arranger, a home baked cannister of cookies or fudge can say "I love you" sweetly.

'Jock' bikinis, satchets latest in sleep wear

It won't be a long, cold winter for the lucky lady who finds this spruce green teddy bear of a robe pictured at the right under the tree on Christmas morning.

Made of deep, deep pile Borg, it is the soft, plush robe that dreams are made of. Completely lined in a soft knit, the robe has a self-sash tie and a fashionable shawl collar. It's at Lingerique in Birmingham for $42.

For combining the mystique of silk, sachet and sleep, Lore has introduced a barely-there sleepwear fashion. Obviously intended to be worn under an electric blanket, the brief bikini comes with a matching "sleep sachet" to tie around the neck. The pure silk bikinis are $20, matching satchets are $15.

For the sports-minded gal on your list, Lingerique offers a unique avocation symbol—jock bikinis. For $8, you can select a stocking gift of the little cotton-nothing panties—printed in her favorite sport—complete with wide satin diaper ties.

While you're in Lingerique, take a look at the loungewear from a different point of view. This is the shop that stocks boudoir wear that is often seen at holiday parties disguised as evening wear.

hat, the feather boa, satin disco bags and seamed stockings.

For the PBs (perfect bodies), there are black lycra stretch jeans, best worn with over-sized tops. Or add a beaded holiday sweater over your black slip dress or skinny pants.

Color key your hosiery and shoes to your costume. For example, black calls for "smoke"—a deep grey— stockings with black shoes. Gold and silver are best worn with a neutral leg. Plums and other deep colors look newest when blended monochromatically from head to toe. Although pastels are not considered important this season, if you wear them, keep the leg and shoe in neutral (beige) tones.

crowded and the young trees don't have room to grow and reach maturity.

"Right now there are millions of tons of wood rotting in forests that nobody is using," she said.

The family's fireplace isn't missed, according to Mrs. Virag.

"The stove is just so much more efficient. While a fireplace sits back in the wall and draws most of the warmth right out the chimney, the woodburning stove sits out in the room and the heat radiates from it."

The Virags keep a small summer fan in the family room with the stove in order to circulate the warm air in the room through out the rest of the house. They said the heat from the stove is a dry, comfortable heat.

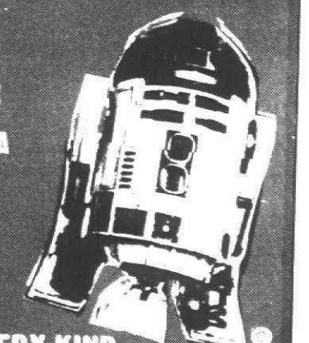

BOTH THE VIRAGS were raised on farms in rural Ontario, where woodburning stoves were a way of everyday life.

Fireplaces:

Converting them can lower fuel bills

By SUSAN ROGERS

Another piece of history is rapidly catching on in Michigan, as woodburning stoves are making a comeback in homes across the state.

People are discovering the big black cast iron stoves that were once found in nearly every early American home are a tremendous energy conservation device as well as a decorative addition to a room.

Tony and Bonnie Virag of Livonia have begun their third season love affair with their woodburning stove, and they say they would never consider returning to the conventional way of heating their home.

"BURNING WOOD IN A stove is new to most people, and some aren't aware of how safe and efficient it is," said Mrs. Virag. "I'd never go back to the old way of heating."

Although the Virags claim their stove, which was converted from a fireplace, is warm and cozy, they admit that efficiency is the name of the game.

"Since we installed our stove two years ago, we have cut our monthly fuel bills by as much as 80 per cent," said Mrs. Virag. "Our November 1977 gas bill was $17 and our December only $5.01."

The Virags keep their moderate-size ranch house at 70-74 degrees. They keep their thermostate set at 60 degrees, turning it to 64 degrees when they retire for the night.

"The furnace usually cycles early in the morning when the log in the stove is burning low" said Mrs. Virag. "When Tony gets up in the morning, he stirs up the embers and has another roaring fire going before breakfast."

IN ADDITION TO THE stove being efficient, the Virags also say that woodburning is a very clean fuel because it is burned slowly and completely by the stove.

"What the stove actually does is to speed up the natural decomposure of the wood as it is slowly burning," said Mr. Virag.

"The burning of the wood puts back into nature precisely what it takes out of it, only at a faster process.

"Wood smoke is compatible to the environment—not like coal that gives off poison sulfur dioxide. Wood is a timely, up-to-date and renewable source of energy."

Ecology-minded Americans do worry about the depletion of their remaining forests. The Virags say woodburning stoves are a help to the forests, rather than a hindrance.

"THE TRUTH IS, RIGHT now there is an overabundance of fuel wood," said Mrs. Virag.

"If spread around effectively, it would be enough to heat all the houses in the nation year in and year out, without depleting the forests."

She added that now the forests are over-

Christmas is...

By HELEN FURCEAN

I was eight years old that Christmas and my sister, Kathleen, was five. We had gone through the usual buying and hiding of gifts for each other and our parents (and, of course, telling each other the secrets we just couldn't keep).

The turkey has been bought, freshly plucked and cleaned. In those days hardly anyone had a freezer large enough for frozen birds. The pumpkin pies were baked and the cream was in the "fridge" ready to be whipped.

All in all, Christmas dinner was a replay of Thanksgiving except the turkey would be cooked Christmas Eve and there were be hot turkey sandwiches and fresh shortbread right after Mom and Dad returned from midnight mass and woke up us to see what Santa had left.

THERE WAS ONE sour note. It was only two days until Christmas and we still didn't have a tree.

Now my dad was an almost perfect father. He played with us, sang to us, took us on innumerable picnics and outings and always had a hug or kiss ready. But he did have one or two minor faults.

One was that he could not abide the State Fair with all the livestock and animals, so us kids never went until we were old enough to go on our own.

The other fault was that intensely disliked shopping for and putting up the Christmas tree. Nowadays, Dad has a small, artificial tree, completely decorated that he simply stashes away in the attic between holidays. But in those days, hardly anyone had an artificial tree.

THE MINUTE DAD CAME home from work, Kathleen and I were at him. "Please, Daddy, please. Can we get our tree today?"

"Maybe after dinner," he said, stretching out on the couch to rest his eyes.

But after dinner, poor Dad was still beat from a hard day at work. What was worse was that our two older brothers also had disappeared to do those mysterious things that 12 and 14-year-old brothers do.

We, of course, began to pester Dad again until, finally, he stuck his hand in his pocket and drew out $3.

"If you girls can't wait until tomorrow," he said, "you go buy a tree." He winked at Mother behind our backs and turned to his Detroit Times once again. He figured we'd go out in the cold and come right back in. He was wrong.

OFF KATHLEEN AND I went. It was starting to get dark, but in those days, no one worried about being safe after dark. We walked down Wildemere until we reached Fenkell. Then we turned toward Linwood. When we got as far as the St. Francis Home we saw just what we wanted across Fenkell — a tree lot.

It didn't take us long to pick out the tree we wanted. It was gorgeous!

We followed the man around as he waited on another customer. When he had completed the sale, I tugged at sleeve.

"Hey, mister, how much is this one?" I asked pointing to a beautiful balsam.

He hesitated a moment as a fellow salesman passed by, saying: "One more day, Fred."

Fred shrugged and turned to me. "How much have you got, girlie?"

"Three dollars," I answered.

"MY GOODNESS," HE said. "That's just how much it costs."

I couldn't believe my luck. Fred took the $3 and tied the branches of the tree together. It looked awfully long lying there on the ground.

Fred looked at the tree and then at us.

"Are you sure you want THIS one?" he asked.

We were sure.

He took the tree by the trunk and dragged it across busy Fenkell for us. Then I stationed myself in front and wrapped my arms around the huge trunk.

"You hold the rope," I told my sister.

"It picks me," she complained.

"Shut up and let's go," I ordered.

The first two blocks weren't too bad, even if it had started snowing. The third block was very long — much longer than I remembered it ever being before. I decided that a shortcut through the alley would be the best route.

BY THIS TIME, Kathleen was not only complaining about being picked, but she was crying because she was tired and the snow was wet and freezing all at the same time.

"Quit crying," I ordered. "Your tears will freeze on your face."

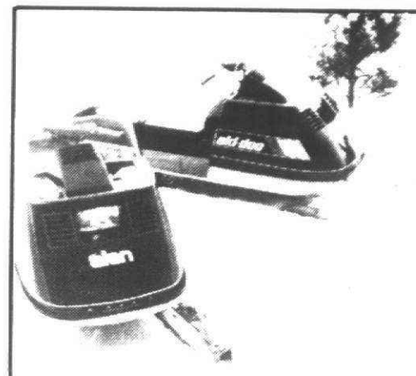

I wasn't about to let her know I was on the verge of tears myself. The tree was getting heavier and heavier and my mittens were frozen to the trunk.

We made it all the way home, but the tree got stuck in the alley gate. Dad heard me calling and ran out to help.

"My God," he exclaimed in his best Scottish brogue. "That thing's too big to get in the house."

And indeed it was. He ended up cutting four feet off the bottom and the tree still touched our eight-foot ceiling.

We've had many Christmases since then, but never have we had a better tree than our 12-foot monster that two little girls dragged home that cold night 30 years ago.

Knotty hobby rates mention in 'Strings' to time," she said, "to see how they will go. The wine holders seem to be pretty popular this year."

The hobby that started somewhat by accident about five years ago has turned profitable for Mrs. Dyer, both from the teaching and selling standpoint.

In fact, it brought her a mention in the book "Pulling Your Own Strings," recently published by her brother-in-law, Wayne Dyer, author of "Your Erroneous Zones."

She proudly pointed out the paragraph on Page 219.

"Marilyn was into macrame," the author wrote in a description of several off-beat businesses, "and she did it as a hobby until she saw the business opportunity available. Her friends wanted special items made, and they were willing to pay her. After a year she had turned it into a full-time job and was making a very nice income."

MACRAME AND Marilyn Dyer joined forces several years after the art form of the Phoenician sailors became popular on the west coast and then moved eastward.

"I got into it kind of late," she said. "It was while we were at the cottage and the weather wasn't too good. After three rainy days with the kids I went into town and bought a kit to make a plant hanger."

That venture was so enjoyable she decided she wanted to take a class to learn to do it well. Before long she was studying macrame patterns and devising more projects than she could afford or complete.

She heard that the Livonia continuing education program needed a macrame instructor and decided to try the job although she never had any teaching experience.

"I really enjoy the teaching now," she said, "and what I earn helps pay for the other projects I'd like to try.

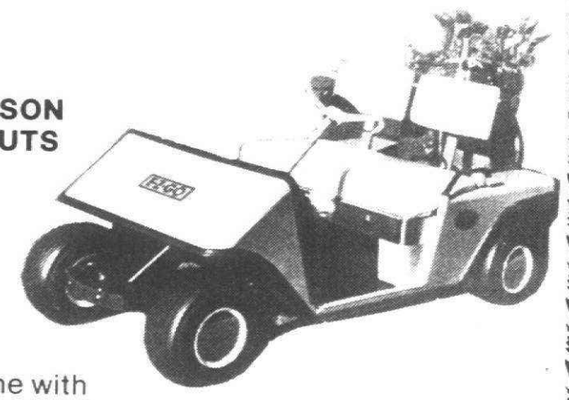

"And I can always tell when my students are hooked. They come in with four or five projects completed between two classes, and tell me they aren't getting any cooking or cleaning done. It's great to see other people enjoy macrame as much as I have."

HER OWN Christmas present list doesn't include many macrame items "because I've made things in other years for a lot of people." But there is one very special Christmas present slowly taking shape in her basement workshop.

And there are several wine holders and wreaths reaching the stage of completion. Also stacks of pattern books showing projects Mrs. Dyer would like to try someday. After Christmas.

Toys: Close encounters of the $$ kind

By JAN EARL

The shimmering star atop the tree won't be the only celestial body in the home this Christmas. It will be invaded by revolving space stations, viper launchers, death stars and hosts of intergalactic creatures.

Space is the rage and a trip to your favorite toy store will convince you that toy manufacturers have capitalized on its popularity. Aisles of toys have been developed so that virtually every adventure seen in Star Wars and Battlestar Galactica can be recreated at home.

The space toys take the form of traditional toys—dolls, tanks and board games—but that is where the likenesses stop. The toys' names and design are strictly for cosmic adventure.

FOR A TRUE SPACE Christmas, there is Galaxy IV, an engine-powered space craft that hovers and skims on a cushion of air. If this seems tame, there's Shoot out In Space, a ray gun which dissolves enemy rockets with a mysterious beam of light, or Star Wars, an electronic battleship, and Battlestar Galactica, a viper launch station.

Extras may be needed for a total space trek. Micronauts has a complete line of crafts and creatures that can be added indiscriminately to any space combat. These range from galactic warriors to hydrocopters and space gliders.

For a more structured space adventure, UFO is a board game of close encounters where players are told they are not alone and they must determine if aliens are invading the earth. Another Close Encounters of the Third Kind instructs players that aliens have landed and they must board the mother ship to win.

Cuddly toys have not escaped the space craze. The R2D2 stuffed animal may replace the traditionzl teddy bear.

IF YOUR IMAGINATION is left undaunted by the new space toys, all the old favorite toys can still be found. There are stoves and refrigerators for the young miss. Extra features have been added, of course. The refrigerator now comes equipped with a drink dispenser and a radio and 8-track. The stove has a microwave oven.

Superstar Barbie and Super Joe (formerly GI Joe) remain, only the super has been added to each name. A new doll has appeared, Pulsar, the ultimate man of adventure, complete with a life system center for reorganizing and reprogramming.

Baby dolls are cuter than ever and still very popular. Two dolls have been added for the up and coming nurse. Baby Wet and Care not only wets but develops diaper rash and you must make her well. Baby Heart Beat allows you to listen to her heartbeat through a special stethoscope and has you take her temperature.

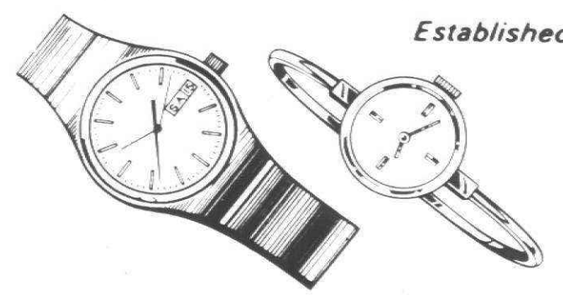

If the new toys don't dazzle you, the prices will leave you stunned. You may wish to avoid it all with a simple "Beam me up, Scotty."

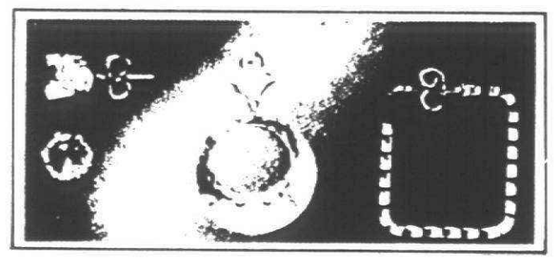

The doll maker is a popular attraction for youngsters who visit Henry Ford Museum during the Christmas season.

Cross country

You make choice: Restful or strenuous

By LINDA RUSSEAU

I am not an athletic, jock, rah-rah type person.

I do enjoy various summertime "activities": Basking in the sun on the beach, sitting on the porch on hot humid nights sipping frozen strawberry daiquiris, cruising through the park on the back of a motorcycle. Occasionally, I drag my 10-speed out of the basement and do a little inspired pedaling.

Winters usually find me inside. And complaining. Which can become tiresome considering the longevity of Michigan winters.

Last year a friend of mine, due to the encouragement of her "one and only," took up a new sport: cross-country skiing. Nearly every weekend I was heralded with enthusiastic reports of the joys of this just-discovered way to deal with winter.

This year, since the "one and only" in my friend's life has been relegated to the ranks of the discarded, I have been informed that I am the most likely candidate to accompany her on these weekend treks.

Hmmmmmmmm.

My dubious nature is enhanced by my conviction that I hate being cold, and compounded by the fact that I realize I should at least try to do something about all those excess calories that accumulate during the long, winter months. I want to find the best way to attempt this thing at the least possible expense to myself (who can predict that I'll end up loving it?!).

There are various area ski shops which offer competitive brands and prices, advice, instruction, and equipment rentals as part of their customer service. When I walked into The Peak on Carpenter Road in Ann Arbor and related my basic ignorance but sincere interest, I was greeted with a knowing smile by one of their competent and friendly salespeople, Carol. "That sounds like me, 3 years ago," she laughed.

We were joined by Tim, and together they elaborated the details of questions I had.

Cross-country skiing is a great way for a non-athletic type (such as myself) to get excellent exercise while having a good time. (That doesn't sound like it hurts too much!) If you can walk, I was told, you can cross-country ski. And to demonstrate, Carol had me pull on woolen socks and a pair of boots, stuck my feet into a couple of skis, gave me a pole for each hand, and set me off on their indoor track, complete with inclines. I immediately became more enthused, shuffling around and getting the feel of skis-and-poles rhythm. Tim suggested no-wax skis for the recreational or taken down, untrimmed and covered with plastic to spend the summer in a storeroom. Here they remain until they are taken out and freshened up for another year.

Hudson's removes its deocrations a litle more slowly than some stores.

"AFTER CHRISTMAS is such a letdown, we take our things down slowly the first week after Christmas so there won't be such a dramatic change. We just take our time with it.

"It's the biggest thing we do," said Kohler, as he yelled to a worker that his wreath was too high. "Every department gets a trim."

Another area department store, Montgomery Ward at the Tel-Twelve mall in Southfield, has just recently completed its trimming.

Visual merchandiser Thomas R. Wolocko said things began to roll around the end of October, with the task completed by the week before Thanksgiving.

"We don't start any earlier—it's standard procedure to get it all up just before Thanksgiving," he said.

WARDS' CHICAGO offices do the planning, sending the information out to the 14 stores.

"We all do pretty much the same thing," said Wolocko," "so the impact hits at the same time."

Chicago also buys the decorations for the stores, which are used for about four years. The major Christmas "themes" are sent out by Chicago, but the stores do have a certain amount of leeway.

"We can do each department the way we want to," said Wolocko "If we feel we need a certain atmosphere somewhere we can buy the materials locally and do it ourselves."

Wolocko works closely with his display crew of about three.

"WE USE A LOT of snow puff material here in Southfield," he said. "This is the white fluffy stuff that looks so nice around boxes and mannequins. We also have our own drawings that we think really add a special touch to the store."

Although the actual decorating only takes about three weeks at Wards, the planning begins in July.

Wolocko says Wards puts its decorations up early to get people thinking about Christmas so they won't wait til the last minute to do their shopping.

"If people shop early, they can take advantage of the special layaway sales we have going in the fall," he said.

When Christmas is over, decorations are too, Wolocko said he comes in the store at SEARS ROEBUCK at Oakland Mall in Troy completed its tree trimming and wreath hanging about a week ago.

"We're usually set for the week before Thanksgiving, which is traditionally the kick-off for Christmas," said Tom Novak, group display manager of the Detroit area Sears stores.

Novak indicated he sends a "Christmas flex" book to all the Detroit area Sears that advises what should be done and when.

"The book has about 60 pages and 450 points that must be accomplished. It's all storewide and everyone has a hand—display doesn' do it all."

'Most stores put up their decorations early to get people thinking about Christmas so they won't wait until the last minute to do their shopping. If people shop early, they can take advantage of the special layaway sales we have going in the fall.'

The decorating takes about five-six weeks to complete, according to Novak. It involves fixture changes and the expansion of some departments and reduction of others to make room for the Christmas merchandise.

"DEPARTMENTS SUCH as cosmetics enlarge, while the lawn and garden shop is condensed to make room for the toy department and tree trimming shop," said Novak.

Sears keeps its decorations about three years, depending on the market, said Novak. The territorial offices in Chicago purchase the trim, offering each store two new trims per year if the supply needs replenishing.

Sears likes to stay traditional and old-fashioned for Christmas.

"We prefer the greens, holly, reds, etc.," said Novak. "We're not into fancy chrome—we like the old-fashioned decorations and think people like it that way."

Novak feels the trees, lights, garlands and wreaths help get people in the Christmas spirit and gets them thinking.

"We have a great program that does great business in October and November."

Sears' decorations come down the week after Christmas when the clearance sales begin.

Curtain up

It's beginning to look like Christmas

Some of the most familiar sights of Christmas are the gaily decorated department stores that greet us on the frantic search for that perfect gift.

Most of those holly-decked halls officially ushered in the Christmas season earlier this month, while a few were already decked before the first frost was on the pumpkins.

While the actual decorating takes anywhere from two to six weeks, the planning began while most of us were basking in the sun. Christmas the farthest thing from our minds.

It's the retailing industry's busiest season, and everything must be perfect.

ONE OF THE EARLIEST decorated department stores in the area was J.L. Hudson's at Westland, where they completed the tinsel tying and garland hanging the week before Halloween.

And there was a special reason why, according to Hudson's Westland display manager, George Kohler.

"We were chosen as the prototype Hudson's store this year," he said. "This means we had to have the store decorated early so all Hudson's management could come and see our efforts, and so that other Hudson's could get ideas about how to do thier own decorating."

He explained that one store is chosen each year on a rotation basis because of the time and expense involved in being the prototype store.

Shoppers were greeted by the green boughs covered with shiny pink, red and gold balls and tall green trees heavily laden with silver bows and glittering ornaments that took Hudson's about a month to put up.

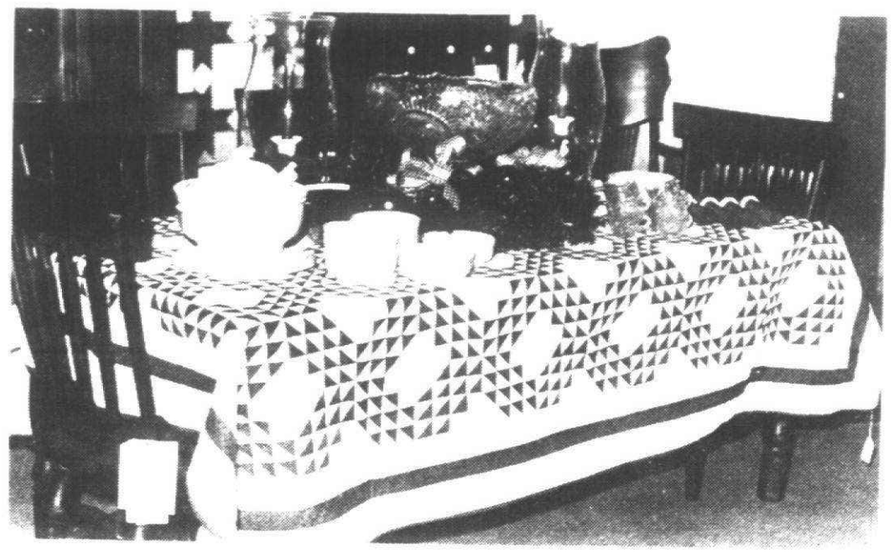

SHOPPERS SEE the glittering results rather than the toil that takes place behind the scenes, said Kohler.

"We do most of our decorating in stock rooms before putting the trees and garlands on trucks and bringing them out for display. And when we decorate for Christmas, everyone helps."

And Kohler does mean everyone. While most department stores use primarily their display staff to decorate, Hudson's employees of all types gather for the hanging of the greens.

"Everyone wants to put the frosting on the cake," said Kohler. "We hire staff from other Hudson's stores and in turn hire ours out to help them. It's all a corporate effort, even the salespeople and managers take the time to help."

Kohler said this type of activity helps promote a "Christmas togetherness feeling" and is great for the motivation of the employees.

Decorations at most area stores stick to the traditional red and green combination. Hudson's furniture department carries the traditional one step further with this early American setting that features a quilt for a tablecloth.

THE VOLUNTEER workers came out one Saturday night after the store had closed in October ready to transform the store into a shining showcase of ribbons and tinsel, reminding shoppers that Christmas is coming.

"We had about 50 people helping us trim this year," said Kohler. "If anyone came over here and saw how it was done, they wouldn't be able to believe it."

A common complaint heard around October and November is that retailers put the decorations up earlier each year. Kohler says Hudson's stores are fairly consistant.

"We all sit down together and decide when and what is going up" he said. "We pretty much have the idea now and we know our things usually go up around the second week of November."

He explained Christmas trimming is always a big effort, but that this year, as prototype store, his workers had the same amount of work to do in a shorter period of time.

"This has been our best year so far," he said.

HUDSON'S LIKES to stick with the traditional Christmas colors and trims, said Kohler.

The decorations you see each year that look so different are most likely the same ones that were used the previous year. Kohler said Hudson's generally keeps its decorations for three to four years, "continually freshening them up."

Although Hudson's Westland has been decorated longer than most other stores, Kohler hasn't heard many complaints from the community.

After Christmas, the decorations are

Raclette cheese parties latest craze

By TERESA BANAS

If you're a gourmet cook, or just someone who enjoys puttering around in the kitchen, a look at what's in store for holiday baking could send sugar plums dancing in your head.

Imagine the scent of acorns roasting over an open fire or the aroma of steamed pudding covered with a rum sauce. They may be old fashioned memories for some, but holiday treats for creative cooks today.

The Kitchen Glamor Shop in Redford Township and Rochester has a list of gift ideas for the most lavish cook and also for the cook that just wants to have fun.

One item is a steel potted acorn roaster that's designed for use over a crackling fire, as well as a gas burner. It sells for just more than $5.

Chris Patsalis, the store owner, says the attraction for such items near Christmas time is a desire to "do things the old way, naturally."

Another holiday item is a pudding steamer. A baked fruit cake is put in this metal container and then placed in a larger steamer. The dessert softens after three or four hours and is then served with rum sauce. The entire dish is garnished with red and green cherries. Depending on size, the cost of this item ranges under $10.

PATSALIS SAYS THAT many of these items are only used near the holiday season because it's a time when folks have more time to entertain and bake at home.

The "latest craze," says Patsalis, is a gadget called a raclette. It's a machine that uses an electrical heat lamp to melt cheese —raclette cheese. It's then served over hot potatoes or warm bread.

Patsalis says this item has been popular on the East Coast. People there even host "raclettee parties" as they would "fondue parties."

Several new items appeal to those interested in stocking up on pastries and baked goods over the holidays.

Foreign pastries such as krumkakes, pizzelles and ebleskivers can be made by those who have never visited such European countries.

A krumkake iron can be used over a gas or electric burner. Within seconds, a waffle is baked which can be filled with creme or just dusted with powder sugar. It costs about $15.

A crispy thin Italian waffle can be made with a pizzelle. An ebleskiver iron, which originated in Scandinavia, makes donuts with fruit filling. It runs between eight and $11.

If one is really interested in impressing guests with holiday gimmicks, there's always molding ones own chocolate in the shape of tiny reindeers. Christmas trees or Santa Clauses.

It's a somewhat complicated process that takes grating hard chocolate, melting it, then pouring it into plastic molds.

To top it off, one can also display a holiday message in clothes for the kitchen. Canvass aprons with such greetings as "ho, ho, ho" or "bah, hum bug" can be found.

Homemade candy— easy to make and better for you

By SUE ROSIEK

Christmas comes but once a year, but Mary Denning's homemade candy is something to be enjoyed year round.

Mrs. Denning has been mixing up batches of her lucious confections for the last five years.

"It's more economical than store bought candy and it's better quality. I know I'm not getting a lot of preservatives either—the chocolate's real and I use only fresh nuts," says Mrs. Denning.

The Garden City homemaker started her candymaking after taking a class in the art at East High School. As she puts it: "After that, things just snowballed."

She has taught candymaking classes at Churchill High School in Livonia and the YWCA in Redford Township. Her next seminar is set for Dec. 7 at the Redford Y.

Holidays are a special time for candymakers. Every Yuletide Mrs. Denning and a group of neighbors pool their ingredients and turn out a taste tempting array of chocolate Santas, marzipan, peanut butter cups and chocolate covered nuts. Last season, she went home with 400 pieces of candy.

Much of the candy ends up of as gifts for mail the local mail carrier, neighbors, newspaper carrier and other friends.

In past years, Mrs. Denning has volunteered her time and candymaking talent to help Garden City First United Methodist church youth group

Old-fashioned goodness

The savory smells of holiday cookery emanate from many kitchens around Greenfield Village during the Christmas season. Here, at the Stephen Foster Birthplace, for instance, hot mincemeat tarts will again be baked on an old-fashioned stove. In other kitchens, taffy bubbles on the burner and beef stew simmers over an open fire.
