Commission wants replies on sludge site

Representatives of a firm that plans to make sludge into fertilizer on a 140-acre site near Michigan and Morton Taylor will answer questions about their proposal at Monday's (today's) meeting of the Canton Planning Commission.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the township administration building at Canton Center and Proctor.

Although the meeting isn't a formal public hearing, planner Jim Kosteva said residents are welcome to attend and ask questions about the proposal submitted by By-Product Systems, Inc.

The planning commission is not expected to take action on the proposal at Monday's meeting. Kosteva said the township board, which will decide on the By-Products' proposal, will hold at least one public hearing on the plan shortly.

BY-PRODUCT SYSTEMS hopes to ship 600 tons of treated sludge from the Detroit wastewater treatment plant to a 140-acre parcel on the south side of Michigan east of Morton Taylor a day.

After composting in an open field for 51 days, the sludge will form into odorless soil addition that By-Product Systems plans to sell.

The proposal would help the Detroit Water and Sewage Department carry out a court order to cut the amount of waste that is being dumped into the Detroit River. The order stems from a lawsuit filed against Detroit by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

By-Product Systems expects to abandon the proposed Canton site once its three-year contract with Detroit for sludge disposal ends.

Canton Planning Commission members have compiled a long list of questions about the proposed sludge site and the composting process.

Kosteva said that the By-Product people felt it would be better to answer those questions personally rather than in writing.

The planners' concerns include:

- The metal content of the sludge. Soil additives made from sludge with high metal contents can contaminate food if the fertilizer is used in food production, according to some scientific research.

- The firm's plan to package and market the fertilizer.

- The proposed method to screen the compost piles.

- The type of inspections the EPA and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) would make at the site.

- The type of trucks that would transport the sludge from Detroit to the Canton site.

- The dangers of a traffic accident involving a sludge-laden truck on Michigan Avenue.

Ford Road debate: Strip or focused businesses?

By CAROLINE PRICE

Planning Commissioner Dan Richardson says he has a better idea for the future of Ford Road.

He has been a vocal supporter of the concept to cluster businesses rather than allowing them to spring up in a continuous strip along one of Canton major arteries.

For the most part, he has the backing of a majority in the township's planning commission, which is revising a Canton master plan first developed in 1976.

In a straw vote taken at last week's planning commission meeting, all members present informally agreed that strip development was not desirable.

The one commissioner who was absent, Frank McMurray, said he would not have voted, even informally, against strip zoning.

Master planning and zoning revisions that are presented to the township board for public hearing and an eventual vote will take the anti-strip development concept into account.

But the original 1976 master plan also discouraged strip commercial development and sought to avoid business location on Ford Road anywhere west of Canton Center Road.

Although the master plan specifically states that "strip commercial development along highways should be discouraged," it has little to say about actual ways to achieve that goal.

Richardson thinks the answer lies in a concept he calls "focus commercial."

HIS PLAN would involve reserving portions of the Ford Road frontage that have not yet given way to commercial establishments.

There are two areas, between Canton Center just east of Sheldon and from Lilley to the I-275 intersection, that would be reserved for primarily commercial use under focus zoning.

The areas in between the commercial strips, Richardson said, could be developed as single-family homes, apartment and condominium use, thus breaking up a solid strip of businesses.

New commercial development would be encouraged in the form of community (as opposed to regional) businesses centered around major intersections such as Warren and Canton Center, Cherry Hill and Sheldon and Joy and Morton-Taylor.

Community shopping caters primarily to persons living within the area, while regional commercial development draws people from outside the community.

Richardson's plan would also take into account whether a business is community oriented, such as the Kings Row shopping center or regionally oriented, like the Center Stage.

He believes regional businesses should be allowed around the I-275 interchange.

"The goals and objectives of many of the citizens and of the master plan are against strip zoning. I don't want Ford Road to look like it does in Garden City or Westland," he said.

Richardson is also concerned that strip development along Ford road east of Canton Center will result in further development of the stretch west of Canton Center.

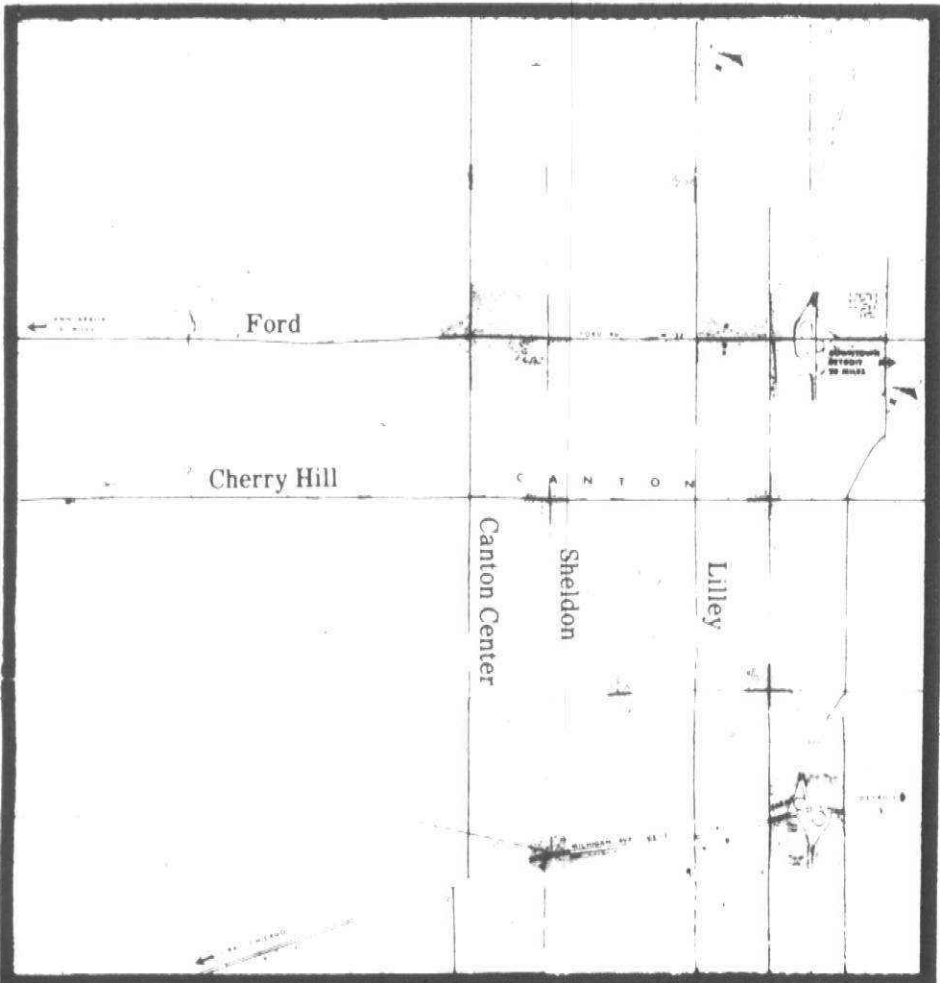

"I won't go so far as to say we could not stop strip development at Canton Center Road, but our ability to do so will be enhanced if we change to focus commercial," he said.

ALTHOUGH COMMISSIONERS informally agreed to oppose strip zoning, all are not in agreement with Richardson's focus commercial concept.

Commissioner Robert Shefferly opposed the focus plan when it was discussed at last week's meeting, but went along with the rest

Focused development, as proposed by Planning Commissioner Dan Richardson, would spread commercial development throughout the township rather than concentrate it in one area. The dotted areas above show where his plan would allow commercial development.

Strip development concentrates commercial ventures along major corridors such as Ford Road. The dotted areas show what strip development would look like in Canton.

Short takes

THIS IS the week for Canton residents with gripes. Monday night, Franklin-Palmer residents, Wayne County Road Commissioner representatives and County Commissioner Bill Joyner gather at 7:30 in the Canton Recreation Building to discuss the dismal state of Sheldon Road. The meeting was prompted by an informal Canton Observer contest asking what the worst road in Canton is. Although Sheldon is the main road of contention, residents with other road problems are invited to attend the meeting to air their views. Also meeting Monday night is the Plymouth Canton School Board, at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building on Harvey in Plymouth.

IF YOU didn't get to vent your spleen enough at either the Monday night road meeting or a Planning Commission meeting to discuss developing a sludge treatment site in Canton, read on.

Tuesday night, residents who experienced flooding and damage during the April 13 rainstorm have been allotted time on the agenda for the regular Canton Township Board meeting. The meeting begins at 7 p.m. at Canton Township Hall, Canton Center and Proctor roads. If you're more worried about signs than floods, the Township Board holds a special meeting Wednesday to discuss the proposed sign ordinance. The meeting begins at 7 p.m. in Township Hall.

A TREE grows in Canton: From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 28, the Township planning department will be giving tree seedlings to anyone who can prove residency. According to Planner Jim Kosteva, the seedlings are between six and 12 inches tall. Among the free seedlings are blue spruce, Norway white, flowering dogwood, autumn olive. The trees will be available at Township Hall.

A LOONEY story awaits you on page 3A of today's Observer. It's the tale of a kind-hearted township clerk, a troubled bird and the quest for freedom. We can't tell you any more than that because we don't want to spoil the ending.

League of Women Voters to mark 1st decade

The tenth anniversary of the Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi League of Women Voters will be observed April 28 in Plymouth.

Kari Miller, president of the League, will light ten candles on a birthday cake to celebrate the anniversary in the Hillside Inn.

Past presidents who expected to be present also include Beverly McAninch and Jane Stacey from Plymouth, Neva Carter from Canton, Ginny Orban, Jane Watts Annalee Mathes and Betty Rowley from Northville.

At the luncheon, which will begin 11:30 a.m., the "not ready for anytime players" will relive the past ten years in a revue called "We're Never Too Old."

New officers will be elected and members will approve the program for 1979-80.

ON APRIL 4, 1969, a group of ambitious women met to form the first League of Women Voters in their area.

They were concerned because they knew there were problems in the growing community which needed study before important decisions could be made.

School issues needed to be examined by private citizens, millage proposals needed to be studied and recommendations made. Opportunities to meet and hear candidates running for office needed to be given to the public.

These women also wanted to study state and national issues which concerned them, and gather dependable information in order to inform and make responsible decisions.

Betty Rowley and Jeanne Federspill from Northville, Bev McAninch and Janet McNamara from Plymouth formed the nucleus for the beginning league.

In 1973, when new suburbs began sprouting in corn fields in Novi, women there were attracted to the league as an organization to help solve their problems.

When developers started nibbling at the farmlands in Canton, women interested in the problems of a rapidly growing community looked to the league and in 1975 the group officially expanded its base of operation and became the LWV of Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi.

ALTHOUGH THE community is quiet transient, league membership has stayed slightly more than 100.

Careers run from attorneys to nuns. Using the league as an educational springboard, many members have been elected or appointed to public office. The league has provided the community with two mayors, two school board members, two township clerks, and many other public officials.

At the national convention in 1974 it was agreed that any interested men could join the league. Phillip Oglivie and Irving Benson from Northville are members of the local league.

Benson holds the International Relations portfolio. The League has considered changing its name to reflect male membership, but decided it would risk losing its hard-won identity.

The league has brought a group of illustrious speakers to the area — Mel Ravitz, then president of the Detroit City Council; Conrad Mallet, then director of Detroit Housing; Jerome P. Cavanaugh, then mayor of Detroit; and Dr. Allen Whiting, noted professor of political science at the University of Michigan and an expert on China.

AS A SERVICE to voters the league has given the public opportunities to sound out candidates ranging from senators to constables, and has provided factual information on election issues.

They have held voters' education classes in high schools, senior citizen homes, and at Mother Waddles' Perpetual Mission.

Members have registered voters everywhere from a rain-swept card table in Plymouth's Kellogg Park to a rock concert at Schoolcraft College.

During the presidential primary election of 1973 video tapes of candidates were made available to the community at Schoolcraft College.

The league made it possible for the public to hear and see debates on TV between Carter and Ford, and between candidates for the state senate in the Michigan primary election of 1978.

Tapes on voter information for the blind also are provided by the league.

The league also helps the TV networks come up with election night results two minutes after the polls close. Pat Guthrie of Plymouth has served as state coordinator for the LWV in its vote count in key precincts.

League members get election results as soon as possible and telephoned them in directly to ABC headquarters and Barbara Walters.

In 1976 the league entered Northville and Novi in the national "America's Votingest Cities" contest and both scored high.

DURING THE very sensitive school busing integration case, the league presented a simulated trial in Judge Roth's courtroom so the community could have factual information.

When Northville was in the throes of the extended school dilemma, the league opened a forum on the subject to the public.

Boys made French toast and ironed shirts, and girls made bread boards and paper towel holders in shop classes as a result of the league-backed equality in industrial arts and cooking in schools.

Lynne Goldsmith, Ann Spencer, and Mary Jane Bevelheimer prepared a slide presentation on the Rouge River and its effect on local communities and presented it to organizations in the community.

In its ten years the league has published many helpful booklets to inform voters — booklets on local legislators in Michigan and Washington, local "Know Your Town" booklets and maps. Recently, the league published a booklet for fourth and fifth graders on elections, which was prepared by Canton members.

AS THE LEAGUE took a firm foothold in the community, members suddenly became recognized for their devotion and expertise.

In Plymouth Mrs. McAninch was elected Woman of the Year. In Northville, Pat Wright, Carolann Ayers, Mrs. Watts and Mrs. Mathes have been elected women of the year.

On national issues, as early as 1969

the league was talking about trade with China.

League members cleaned out their basements for garage sales, and poured champagne at art open houses to support their financial commitment to the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in unratified states.

An active program supporting equality of housing with open housing laws for lower income families spearheaded by Shorn Blight kept league members busy.

The problems confronting communities on solid waste, land use, children services, courts, housing for the elderly, transportation, energy, and welfare are issues being studied by the league in preparation for action.

League members living in Canton who have been appointed or elected to public office include: Neva Carter, Citizens' Study Group on Land Use; Lynne Goldsmith, township board of trustees; Flossie Tonda, school board; and Kathy Prince, zoning board of appeals.

Plymouth LWV members in public office include: Marcia Borowski, school board; Mrs. McAninch, mayor and city commissioner; Mary Ellen McKercher, planning commission; Mrs. Miller, school goal based curriculum committee and senior citizen blue ribbon study committee.

Plymouth Township members in public office include: Esther Hulsing, former member, township clerk; Sally Posthill, board of canvassers; Nancy White, citizens' advisory group on consolidation; and Mrs. Stacey, citizens advisory group on millage.

Among the office-holders in nearby communities are Romaine Roethel as mayor in Novi, Betty Lennox as clerk in Northville Township, and Karen Wilkinson on the Northville Board of Education.

"As League members celebrate their tenth anniversary," said Mrs. Miller, "they look to the future with interest, concern, and a willingness to tackle the tough issues which face us locally as well as at the state and national levels."

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS

The International Pain Control Institute is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis. A consultation and report of findings will be given to all participants.

This is a public service program for participating volunteers. The doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Tax advisors ask for help

With a millage question on the June 11 school ballot a near certainty, the citizens election committee of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools has scheduled its organizational meeting.

The initial meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the library of Pioneer Middle School, 46081 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth.

Deanna Huff was named chairperson of the citizens election committee at a meeting on April 10 which was attended by about 25 residents.

Mrs. Huff is the parent of a preschooler at Canton Corners, a son at Smith Elementary, and a daughter at Plymouth Salem High School.

Elected treasurer of the committee was Tom Santer, also the parent of a high school student.

Loon lovers to the rescue

By DARLENE STINSON

No one knows what goes on in the mind of a loon.

But the speckled black and white bird that landed in the middle of Canton Center Road one morning last week looked as if it knew its hour of death was near.

The aquatic bird, which is unable to take flight from land or even walk on the ground without floundering, is probably on its way north right now thanks to the efforts of Canton resident Doug Dinkins and two township officials.

The bird was released in Newburgh Lake by township Clerk John Flodin and animal control officer John Swalley where it emitted the plaintive "loon" cries that has given the goose-sized creature its name.

Dinkins was only sorry that he couldn't see the bird attain freedom in the water after he moved the creature from the middle of Canton Center Road to a field near township hall where it sat quietly for 2½ hours.

FLODIN INSISTS that the bird would have died from starvation or oncoming traffic if not for the rescue.

Although loons can fly at speeds of 60 miles per hour, the birds can take flight only from water after flapping their wings and performing an unusual "walk-on-water" routine.

The birds navigate poorly on land, where they use feet and flapping wings to slowly inch forward. But in the water where the birds live on fish, loons can dive to depths of 200 feet and stay underwater for up to five minutes.

Flodin theorizes that the bird thought Canton Center Road was a river in the early morning light.

Dinkins, part owner of Community Reproductions at Ford and Canton Center, was on his way to work about 7 a.m. Thursday when he spotted the bird sitting in the middle of the road near township hall.

"It was a pretty bird," Dinkins said, "and people were driving around it."

Dinkins stopped his car and moved the bird to an open area in front of township hall. He later returned to the site where the loon still sat and informed Clerk Flodin of the creature's plight.

Flodin immediately contacted animal control officer Swalley and devised the rescue scheme.

"I think he knows we're trying to help him," said Flodin as he gently lifted the bird into a cardboard box.

Except for a few pecks at Flodin's gloved hands, the bird did not object to the treatment.

A few minutes later, the loon was diving in Newburgh Lake where Swalley and Flodin theorize it took to the air after quickly swimming out of sight.

No wolf at the door for landscape artists

By MATHEW BRZEZINSKI

Painter Tom LaGault doesn't project the image of a starving artist.

LaGault, who works out of his Village Squire apartment in Canton, makes his living painting outdoor and floral scenes. It appears to be a good living.

According to LaGault, "a lot of good artists are dying because they don't know how to display their work."

He should know. LaGault, 23, has just returned from a successful art show tour of Florida, in which he sold out his paintings the first day and had to restock his inventory.

Recently, LaGault was commissioned by Merrill Chase, the largest fine arts dealer in the Midwest. He works for eight other art promotion agencies and to date has sold over 10,000 of his and his wife Nancy's (who is also an artist) paintings in the U.S. and Canada.

About half of the work in becoming a successful artist is through the promotion and marketing of your work, according to LaGault.

In Florida, he expected that seascapes would sell well there but was surprised when the big demand was for his paintings of Michigan barns. LaGault says that in the past seven years that he has been doing shows, he has never had a bad one.

He likes to concentrate his shows in the Midwest in cities such as Chicago, Cleveland and Indianapolis.

LaGault has participated in the Ann Arbor Street Show and often sells off most of his work in the first couple of days.

He says sometimes customers will go through his paintings as he is unloading them at the show.

When he is not doing shows, LaGault puts on painting parties and says that they have been successful.

The parties, says LaGault, are an informal affair and are held in the homes with friends and guests.

He says that this keeps him in contact with the community and brings art to the public, instead of the public having to come to the art.

"It is my desire for people to share in the warmth and peacefulness that I've enjoyed putting into my paintings," says LaGault.

He taught an art class at his gallery in Plymouth but had to close it because the demand was so great it left little time for his own work.

"Plymouth is a good art center," says LaGault. He feels that a growing community creates a high demand for art work.

He will not resume operation of his gallery until he completes the book he is working on with Jack Wilcox of Plymouth.

LaGault says the book will explore the ideas, benefits, and attitudes involved with art and will show how to paint in a simple way.

LaGault feels that doing a painting should not become a big project with lots of brushes and accessories. Anyone can learn to paint, as long as they know the simple techniques involved in the creation of a painting.

It's not the painting that takes the time or energy, says LaGault. Preparing the shows and parties is what takes the real work.

Displays must be planned and set up, the paintings loaded and unloaded and then the displays taken down when the show is over, he said.

He is always refining his displays and has recently added an audio-visual portion to his shows and parties.

When not doing shows or parties, LaGault goes on photo tours to get reference material for future paintings, or tours art museums in the cities he visits.

LaGault's next show will be on May 6 at the University of Michigan-Dearborn Fieldhouse across from the Fairlane Town Center between 12 and 5 p.m.

There are 900 shows a month that he could participate in. He generally chooses ones with large prizes that can show his work to its best advantage.

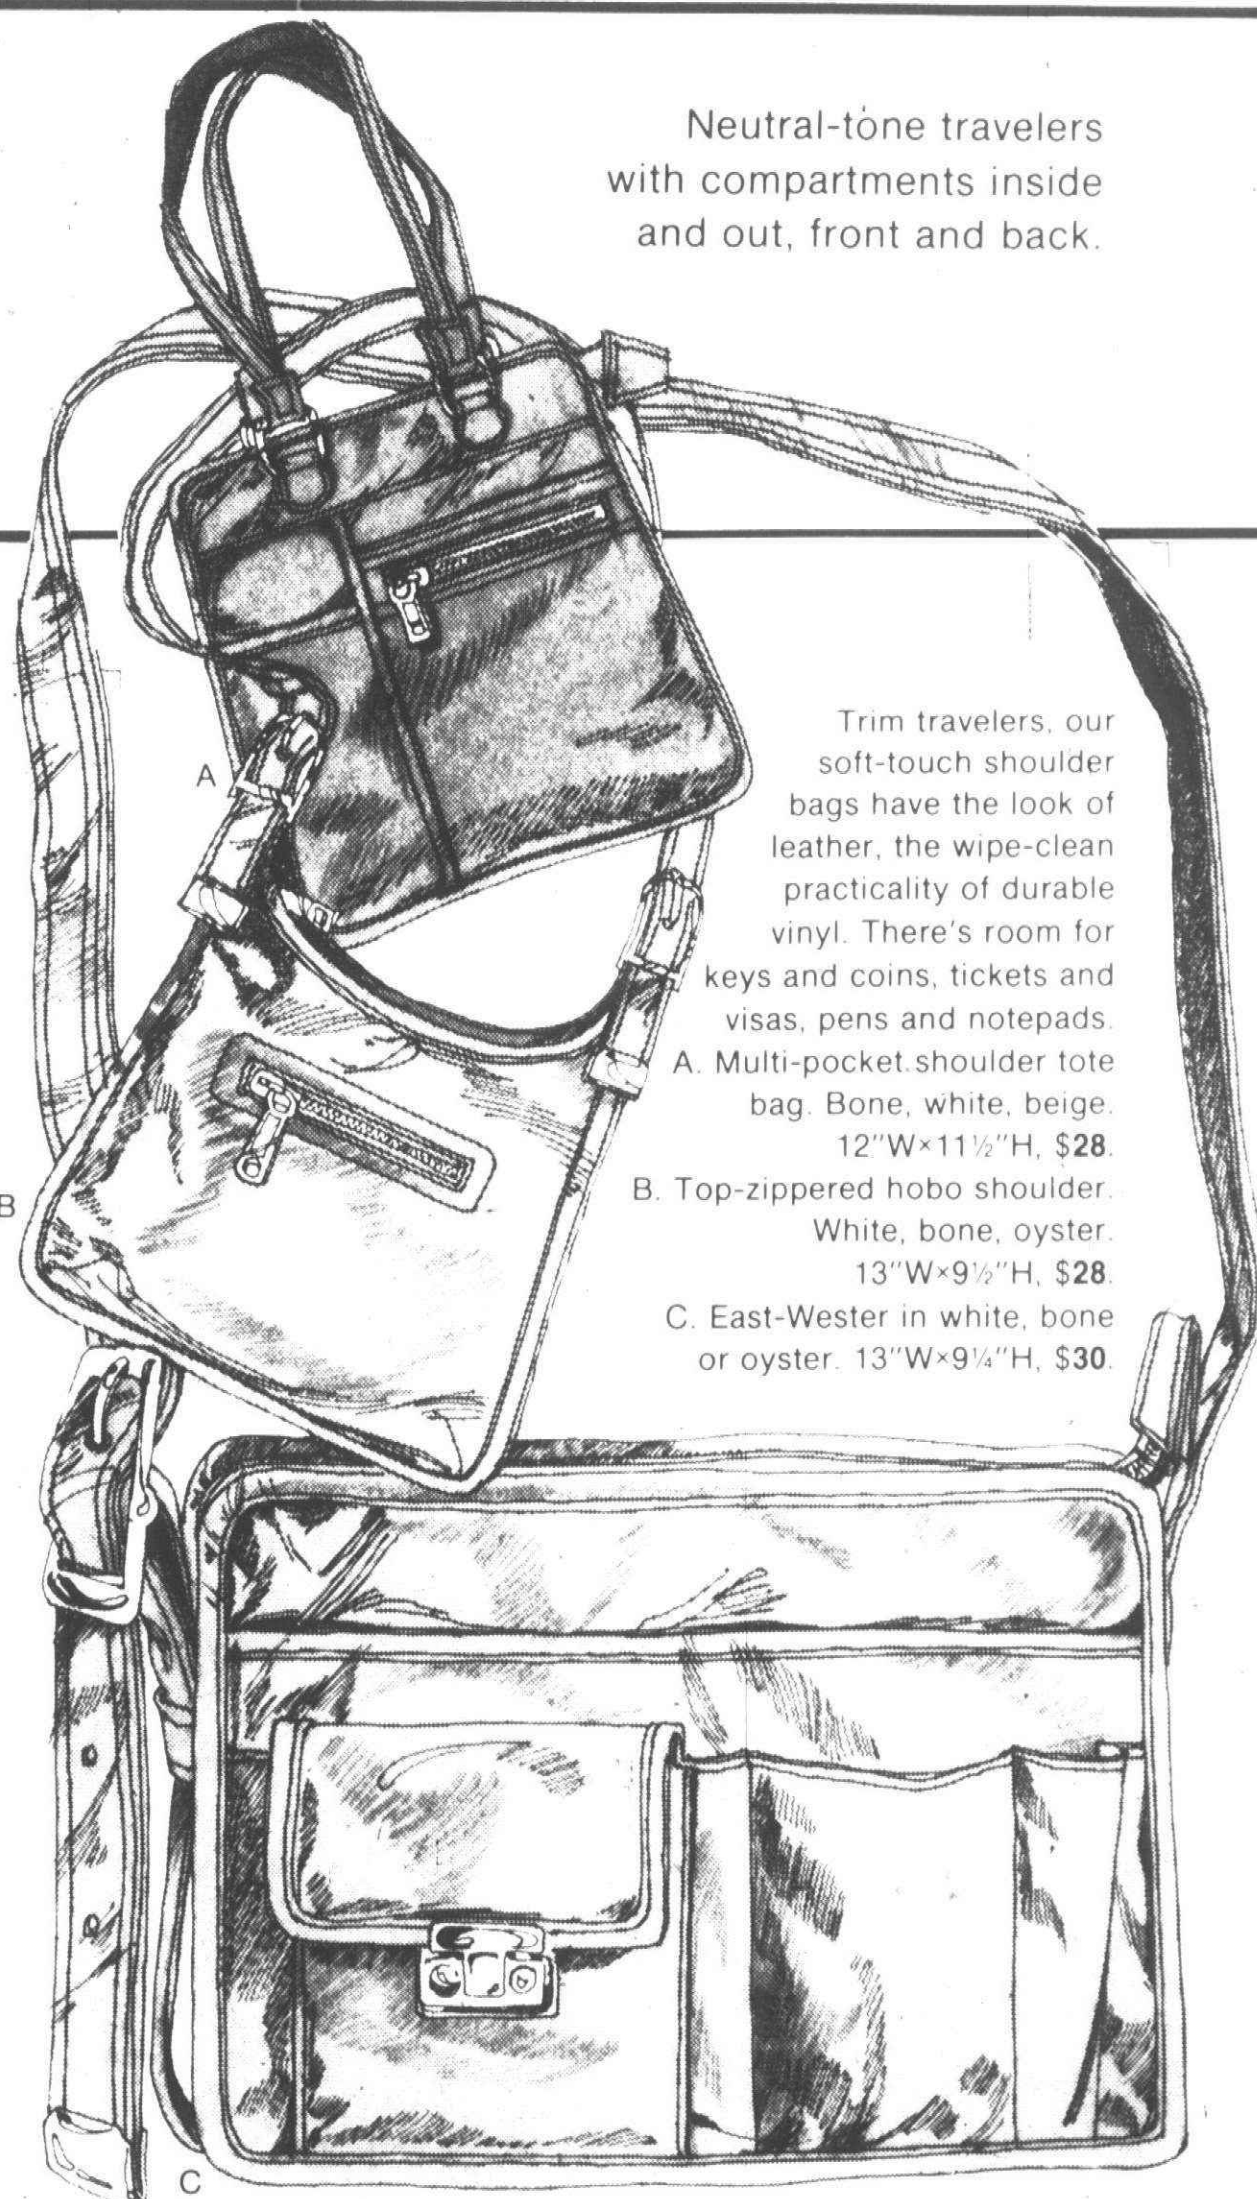

LaGault has a permanent display of his work at his mother's gift shop, LaGault's of Canton, that has recently moved to a new and bigger storefront at the Harvard Square shopping mall at Ford Road and Sheldon.

Those who wish to find out more about the painting parties or just want more information on Tom LaGault, can contact him by mail at 9326 Rocker, Plymouth.

He graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1974. Joyce Hood gave him some of his early art training and he finished his formal training at the Society of Arts and Crafts in Detroit.

School budget is meeting topic

With little more than two months of its budget year remaining, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools has spent almost $1 million of its accumulated surplus funds.

The school district started the current budget year with a fund balance of almost $1.5 million and that amount is expected to shrink to $516,000 by June 30, 1979 — a decrease of $975,000.

The condition of surplus funds is one of the key figures watched by school trustees as status budget reports are presented by the administration.

Another updated budget status report will be presented at today's meeting of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at the administration offices, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

The board is expected to approve a bid for remodeling at Plymouth Canton High and to approve requested transfers of two elementary principals.

RAY HOEDEL, assistant superintendent for business, said that the district's total income is about $4 million short through March compared to revenue projected in the budget.

The district has thus far been able to hold expenses down by some $3.7 million under budget, which has kept the operating deficit at about $400,000.

An income loss of concern to the board is a reduction of some $172,000 in special education monies the district had expected to receive from the county.

Transportation expenses are running at a deficit of about $50,000, Hoedel reports, primarily because of driver salary costs and higher anticipated operation costs related to gasoline prices and about 10 percent higher than anticipated daily mileage logged.

As of March, the district's cafeteria fund was experiencing a deficit of some $29,500, and the substitute teacher account appears in danger of ending the year in a deficit situation.

One favorable report is that the district has earned some $62,000 more than budgeted in interest return on investments.

The district invested operating funds totalling some $13 million for periods ranging from 31 to 55 days and earned $139,595 in interest at rates varying from 5.5 to 10.5 percent.

Unspent funds from past bond issues have been invested for interest returns of some $62,770 with rates varying from five to 10.87 percent. The debt funds invested total about $2.8 million.

THE BOARD will be asked to approve a low bid for purchase of a moveable wall for Room 128 of Plymouth Canton High.

The portable wall is among the renovations planned for the Centennial High Educational Park (CEP) to make room for the added high school population expected this fall.

Budget estimates were $8,000 for the wall and the low bid came in at about $5,300.

In other action, the board will be asked to approve the transfer of principals between Eriksson and Smith elementaries. William Lutz will become principal of Eriksson and Ron South will become principal of Smith, effective July 1.

Ford Road future depends on plan of the commission on the informal vote to oppose strip commercial development.

Commissioner Frank McMurray, who was not at the meeting, doesn't buy Richardson's concept.

"From Dan's (Richardson) point of view, he's interpreted the master plan as saying to avoid strip zoning. But nowhere in the master plan are the dimensions or length of strip zoning outlined," McMurray said.

"There's no way Canton can develop like Westland or Garden City. Those communities have small lots right up to the road, while Canton is divided into larger parcels of land along Ford road."

McMurray says a service drive would solve the problems that might be caused by too many curb cuts along the corridor.

UNLIKE RICHARDSON, McMurray doesn't see the narrow, fairly deep configuration of lots along Ford as a problem. "Those deep lots are developable," he said.

McMurray said it's unfair to rezone commercial property back to residential if the property was bought by the owner while it was commercial. He contends that the area along Ford is not suitable for single family homes beyond those already in existence.

Although the Michigan State Highway Department has not yet determined whether Ford Road should be converted to a five or seven lane highway (or boulevard as promoted by the township board), McMurray said the traffic would prove dangerous to children playing in the area.

McMurray, who operates an insurance agency and serves as president of the Chamber of Commerce, does not rule out extending commercial zoning on Ford Road east of Canton Center — providing there are sewers available to accommodate such development.

Richardson said his main concern is "creating a settlement pattern people can live with."

Phone Center opens

In an effort to have customers buy more modular phones from them, Michigan Bell has opened a new PhoneCenter for Canton-area residents.

The center, which opens today (Apr. 9), offers modular phones and related equipment to customers who have plug-in wall outlets.

Haze Wilson, local Michigan Bell manager said, "At this and every other PhoneCenter, customers can browse, inspect our phones, obtain advice from service representatives and pick up additional directories."

Wilson said the service is a new marketing concept and that customers do not have to make appointments and wait for installation.

According to Wilson, customers can avoid all but a minimum service connection charge, a PhoneCenter phone would only be $17.96, a $10 to $30 savings.

The groundwork for the PhoneCenter Stores was laid in 1975 when Michigan Bell began rewiring residence phones for modular equipment — telephone kits with base, housing, faceplate and cords that plug into each other and into pre-wired wall sockets, he added.

About 40 percent of Plymouth-Canton residences have been wired to modularly to date and statewide Michigan Bell has converted more than 2.3 million out of its 4.5 million residential phones to the modular system, Wilson said.

He said that the company is now making modular connections exclusively.

The PhoneCenter, at 44630 Ford Road, is one of 38 the company has in operation.

Plymouth — Past & Present

Women's rise to power

By Sam Hudson

Apparently a firm believer in Proverbs 24:16, Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple, Plymouth's first woman mayor, once told an interviewer:

"The trouble with most people who run for public office is that they get discouraged after three or four defeats and give up. Why, I was defeated five times for practically everything before I finally got elected to something."

Mrs. Whipple's three terms as mayor, her battle to keep Plymouth dry in the face of efforts of those she called "a certain element" or "the hotel crowd," her opposition to gambling and the part she played in the recall of the entire city commission in the summer of 1949 are covered in detail in my book on the history of Plymouth, and will not be repeated here.

RUTH HUSTON WHIPPLE retired from politics in 1950. After a year's illness, she died on January 4, 1955, at the age of 59.

To the women of the community, Mrs. Whipple was a champion. No woman in Plymouth fought more vigorously, or with more ability, for the rights of her sex and for what she believed was right.

To some men of the community, including her fellow commissioners, she was an irritant. But, as I said in my book, Plymouth has had few citizens comparable to Mrs. Ruth Whipple.

In the year Mrs. Whipple died, Plymouth elected Mrs. Eleanor Hammond to the city commission. She was the second woman in Plymouth to become a commissioner. During her tenure, 1951-52, Mrs. Hammond was mayor pro-tem and served as a member of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors.

IN THE FALL of 1971, when Beverly McAninch decided she wanted to be the third woman to be elected to the commission, she had the help of her husband and children.

Among other things, they passed out flyers on election day. Her favorite organization, the League of Women Voters, couldn't help. It has a strict prohibition against giving support for any candidate for office — it supports issues, not candidates.

Prior to running for office, Mrs. McAninch had been a league observer at city commission meetings. After watching the commissioners in action it gradually began to dawn on her that she "could do as well as they did."

In November 1971, at age 45, Mrs. Beverly McAninch led the field of candidates for the city commission by a wide margin. She got 917 votes, 145 more than her nearest competitor and was elected for a four-year term.

Her second four-year term expires in November of this year, after which she will not be eligible for re-election. The city charter limits commissioner's terms to two years.

"I certainly didn't intend to run as a woman's candidate," she said after the campaign, "but of course, that's how it worked out."

"I was amazed at the number of women, older women who never would have been big supporters of the women's lib movement, who made a point of saying they thought it was time to have a feminine voice on the city commission."

In 1973, Mrs. McAninch became Plymouth's first woman mayor in more than 30 years and the second in its history.

When she began her two years as mayor, Mrs. McAninch told a reporter that one of her goals was to maintain "the agreeable combination of country and city, the quaint yet contemporary atmosphere" that characterizes Plymouth.

In pursuit of that goal, she has found herself at odds with those in the community who favor high-rise buildings. She believes proliferation of high-rise buildings will do harm to Plymouth's small-town image.

As commissioner, she has also taken issue with those who want the city to pay half the cost of a proposed parking structure in the downtown area.

She believes those businesses that will benefit most from the structure should shoulder a greater share of the cost.

In July 1972, Commissioner McAninch opposed a park ordinance which had the backing of the chief of police. Drafted as a result of vandalism in and around Kellogg Park, it aroused Mrs. McAninch's ire because, she said, "it was directed against young people, and it required that citizens obtain permits from the city manager for many park activities."

Mrs. McAninch was chairman of the housing committee of SEMCOG from 1974 to 1977 and vice chairman of its council on regional development. She was given the SEMCOG regional ambassador award in 1975 for her efforts on behalf of regional cooperation.

In 1972, Beverly McAninch received the Plymouth Jaycees Woman of the Year Award, being chosen from ten nominees in the woman's category. During the same year, she received the Ford Motor Company Award for outstanding community service. In 1975, the Council of Catholic Women, Archdiocese of Detroit, gave her its Woman in Government award.

The resemblance between Beverly A. McAninch and Ruth Huston Whipple goes beyond being mayors of Plymouth. Both were small, vivacious, articulate, educated women. Both were club women and sensitive to the rights of their sex.

Beverly McAninch receives the "regional ambassador" award from Conrad Mallet, chairman of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) in 1976.

Mayor Ruth Huston Whipple is shown with C.H. Elliott, then city manager, in city hall in 1941.

Patricia Gibbons earns fellowship

Patricia Gibbons, assistant principal at Pioneer Middle School, has been awarded an IDEA fellowship — an honor given yearly to only a few school administrators and school trustees across the country.

Mrs. Gibbons' fellowship is for the summer of 1980 and pays for all expenses while she studies current problems in education at Colorado College in Colorado Springs.

She earned an AB and MA degree from the University of Michigan and also has completed much of the classwork for a Ph.D. She has taught elementary, middle and high school courses in English, social studies, speech and reading.

She was a speech fellow at U-M and taught speech and communication at Michigan and Eastern Michigan University just before coming to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools as a reading specialist.

The IDEA (Institute for Development of Educational Activities, Inc.) Fellows institutes were started in 1966 to keep educators abreast of educational change.

Closed for repair

The railroad tracks on Mill Street south of Ann Arbor Trail were closed for repairs last week as the C&O continues its program of improving railroad crossings in Plymouth. The tracks were closed only to prevent cars from crossing, though, as the trains still ran on schedule. The repairs did, however, result in some rerouting of traffic as Mill was closed at both ends with only local traffic allowed in from Ann Arbor Road. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Brainpower to invade Plymouth

What do people with high I.Q. do when they get together? Match wits, words and fun, that's what. And that is exactly what they'll be doing when they gather for a regional conference April 27-29 at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. They'll take computers, city planning, energy and jazz, hear some humorous stories, studies and proposals; compete in building and sailing paper airplanes; have stocks of cheddar and bountiful bottles to slake the thirst of erstwhile oenologists in two-story hospitality suites — "one level for those who do and one for those who don't." They call themselves Mensans — members of an international high I.Q. society named Mensa.

MENSA IS THE Latin word for table, and its members view themselves as a round table society where "no one has special precedence." "We fill a void for many intelligent people otherwise cut off from contact with other good minds," says Phelps Hines, a member from Northville. Hosting the weekend conference will be the Southeast Michigan Chapter of Mensa. Some 125 members are expected to attend. This "Southeast Michigan Mensa Antics" weekend is one of a series of conferences held by various local American Mensa chapters across the country throughout the year. Kicking off Saturday morning's program will be a double barrel presentation — one by Dr. Mitchell Rycus, with a workshop on "Wiff 'n Proof" learning games; the other a presentation by four representatives of the Moraine Elementary ISEP communications lab in Northville. The four are Beth Flack, Clinton Bennett, William Custer and Julia Burns. The luncheon talk will be given by Irv Rozian of Plymouth, who will reveal the findings of his still confidential research. Rozian is a former member of the State Boundary Commission and he and his wife have been active supporters of the Talented and Gifted (TAG) program in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Alex Pollock, city planner for Detroit, will discuss "Detroit: Rebuilding a Great City" early Saturday afternoon, along with Herbert Schroeder's discourse on "The Politics of Sex" — an examination of the equality of the sexes. Later in the afternoon, Weldon Petz of Farmington, renown Lincoln scholar, will talk about his favorite president while Northville City Manager Steven Walters will speak on "The Minority We Left Behind" — a left-handed blow at right-handed bigots. Dr. Petz will return for the evening dinner program, discussing another of his favorite subjects — the early days of Jazz. A special feature will be presented by Kenneth Haller. He calls it the le Grande Concurrence d'Aeroplan Papier, and he's offering prizes for the best appearance, longest flight, and flight of most endurance. Also a game room will be provided, with chess, backgammon, bridge, gin rummy "and maybe even Dungeons and Dragons." Also planned is an art show of paintings, drawings, graphics and photographs. Two special guests for the weekend will be Gabriel Werba, American Mensa's chairman, and Roy C. Saper, second national vice-chairman. Those attending the conference will be coming from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. MENSA PRESENTLY has about 28,000 active members in 14 countries. The Southeast Michigan chapter has 600 members with less than 30 members from Plymouth, Northville, Livonia, Novi and Walled Lake. They are: Plymouth — Alfred Wooll, Jerry Walsh, Richard Anderson and Thomas Blunt; Northville — Phelps and Mernie Hines, Marguerite Loy, Mark Whittlesey and Joseph Lukomski; Livonia — John Alf, Julia Asta, William Bogen, Douglas Hewitt, John Krajacic, Philip Lafata, Charles Rasko, James Silvi, Charles Tasim, Mark Anthony Virag and Ralph Williams; Novi — James and Patricia Hughes, Barbara Lafond, Holly Mackinder, Robert Overmars and Florence Ritchie; Walled Lake — Richard Truzzi. Persons wishing to learn more about Mensa are invited to call the Southeast Michigan Mensa chapter president, Charlotte Jermyn, at 561-7663.

FEELING GREAT!

I was suffering from a number of ailments including HEADACHES, NECK PAINS and RECURRING BACK PAINS. These pains would get so bad at times that I would be unable to continue my regular daily routine. I needed help, and fast. My parents had told me about Dr. Grassam's Chiropractic Life Center, so I decided to give it a try. I had nothing to lose and everything to gain. Am I ever glad that I gave chiropractic a chance! Dr. Grassman was very understanding and he explained my problems in simple, down-to-earth terms that were easy to understand. He used x-rays to determine my problems and then he performed a couple of gentle adjustments to my spine. After a couple of these adjustments I began to notice a tremendous improvement. The pains in my neck and back were gone and the headaches never did return. I HAVEN'T FELT THIS GOOD IN YEARS. Needless to say, our whole family is involved with chiropractic health care and the success that my daughter has achieved is a whole story in itself. We heartily recommend chiropractic care in general and Dr. Grassam in particular. He and his staff are friendly, courteous and they really care about getting your health back.

THEY MADE ME AND MY FAMILY FEEL GREAT!

Crissey wins 100th*Chiefs scalp 2 opponents

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Canton baseball coach Fred Crissey believes the key to winning games once again this year is pitching and defense.

It was no more evident than in Wednesday's 3-1 victory over Livonia Franklin.

Without a hit, the Chiefs used three different to methods to score.

Franklin came into the game fresh from a 9-1 win over Plymouth Salem while the Chiefs disposed of Wayne Memorial 5-1.

Senior standout Scott Dawson started for the Chiefs. Crissey had originally planned to go just two or three innings with the tall righthander.

However, Dawson looked strong and did not allow a hit until the fifth inning when Franklin outfielder John Mazurek beat out an infield single, scoring teammate Gary DeYonker from second base.

Dawson was scheduled to pitch only a few innings because of a recent illness.

"Scott (Dawson) was strong. He felt fine and threw only 57 pitches for the game," said Crissey.

"I take this victory," he said. "Defense is what did it."

For the entire afternoon, Canton was flawless in the field, not committing a single error.

"I think that's pretty good for the first time out," he said.

THE CHIEFS threatened in the first inning off Franklin starter Jeff Aguzzi. The Franklin lefty hit second baseman Steve Gray to start off. Dawson then ripped a sharp grounder to third base which Franklin's Doug White stabbed and threw out the Canton pitcher at first.

Rusty Mandle then followed with a single to right-centerfield, sending Gray to third.

Aguzzi got tough ended the Canton threat with a strike out.

Canton then scored two runs in the second inning without a hit.

Catcher Frank McMurray reached base on an error and moved to second on a wild pitch.

McMurray scored from second base when a Franklin first-base pick-off play went awry.

Dave Meador, who had walked and moved to third base, scored on a balk and Canton led 2-0.

Franklin staged a threat in the fourth inning with a man on base. Outfielder Chris Baker, who went three-for-four including a homer in the Salem game, ripped a long shot to the warning track which leftfielder Dave Weise hauled in with a fine running grab.

Canton added an insurance run in the fifth with the help of four walks. Aguzzi was replaced by another left, Jeff Sergison, who retired three Canton batters, sandwiched by two walks with the bases loaded.

Dawson was replaced by junior lefty Dan Funkhouser who managed to get Franklin out with two runners on in the sixth.

AFTER WALKING THE first two hitters, Funkhouser caught a pop bunt and turned it into a double play.

Dawson replaced Funkhouser after another walk and got the final out on a sharp grounder to shortstop which Al Lipinski handled easily.

Each team collected two hits. Franklin was guilty of two errors.

"We hit the ball but seemed to hit it right at somebody," said Franklin coach Gerry Cullin.

"We have a good hitting team but you have to make your own breaks," he said.

CANTON-WAYNE

The Plymouth Canton baseball team started its season off on the right foot Wednesday, outclassing a sloppy

Wayne Memorial team, 5-1, on the Chiefs' home field.

It took the Chiefs five innings to get untracked but three runs in the sixth inning insured Coach Fred Crissey of his 100th win as a Canton coach. Crissey was awarded the game ball following the victory.

"It took us awhile to hit," said Crissey, "but we got going and opened it up in the sixth."

Catcher Rusty Mandle started out the sixth inning with a long fly ball to deep centerfield that Wayne's Skip Walker lost it the sun. Mandle ended up at second base. Dave Weise followed with a perfect bunt single moving Mandle to third. Junior Al Lipinski got his second hit of the afternoon, an RBI single to rightfield, driving in Mandle from third with still no one out.

Designated hitter Frank McMurray got Cantons' fourth straight hit, another bunt, to load up the bases. Dave Meador, pinch-hitting for Mike Pathe, knocked home Weise from third with a sacrifice bunt, increasing the Chiefs lead to 4-0. Scott Racers' ground ball scored Lipinski from third to end the Chiefs' scoring.

Brian James went the distance for Canton giving up only one run, which came on Skip Walkers' leadoff homerun in the top of the last inning.

"I thought Brian did an outstanding job today we weren't going to use him this much but, with Scott (Dawson) having been sick the past ten days we had to," said Crissey.

Except for the fifth inning, James had no trouble with the Zebra hitters.

No one had reached further than second base against James through the first four innings. In the fifth however, Walker led off with a single followed by a single from Bill Spaw. With men on first and second and none out, James got the next Wayne batter, Larry Reid, to fly out. After Joe Guetta grounded out, Dan Perusse singled to load up the bases only to have James routinely retire the Zebras' next batter on a ground ball to second base.

Beat Wayne, 8-5*Rocks split doubleheader

By BRAD EMONS

The weather finally cooperated and Plymouth Salem opened up its baseball season splitting two games.

The Rocks lost their Wednesday opener, 9-1, against the Livonia Franklin. They rebounded in the second game, downing Wayne Memorial, 8-5.

Against Wayne, Salem got a strong pitching effort from senior Barry Owens who hurled 5½ innings to pick up the victory. He allowed just one hit, struck out eight and walked six.

"Barry got tired in the sixth but was in control and did a good job," said Salem manager Brian Gilles.

"Owens gave us what we wanted," he said.

The Rocks, whose bats were silent in the first game against Franklin, scored twice in the first inning.

Matt Etienne started the inning with a walk. He went to second on a wild pitch.

Cleanup hitter Bubba Wilcox drove Etienne home with a two-run homer, clearing the left field fence.

Wayne, who had lost earlier to Plymouth Canton, 5-1, tied the game in the third inning, collecting two runs.

Salem's big inning came in the fourth, when the Rocks pushed home four runs.

Shortstop Chris Hannan started the inning by striking out but reached first base when the Wayne catcher failed to hold on to the ball.

SECOND BASEMAN Paul Dillon followed with a single but was thrown out at second trying to stretch out the hit.

Hannan scored on the play. Paul Woodard then walked and Etienne reached first base on a force out. Wilcox singled and Jim Anderson walked, loading the bases.

Sam Merrill knocked in two runs with a single and Anderson scored when Woodard, batting for the second time, lashed a single.

Anderson started the fifth with a single. He then advanced home on two wild pitches, scoring Salem's seventh run.

Wayne tallied one run in the sixth as did Salem.

Woodard walked and Etienne sacrificed him to second. Wilcox collected his third rbi with a single, scoring Woodard.

David Runge went the final 1½ innings. He gave up two runs and struck out two.

Salem had eight runs, nine hits and one error. Wayne collected five runs on four hits and three errors.

FRANKLIN-SALEM

The Patriots scored seven runs in the second inning, coasting to an easy 9-1 triumph.

Franklin righthander Ken Webster went all the way against the Rocks and he allowed just one hit, a fourth-inning single by Bubba Wilcox.

Centerfielder Chris Baker staked Franklin to an early 1-0 lead with a line-shot homer to left field into a stiff wind.

An outfield error and four walks led to the other six runs, sending Salem starter Matt Etienne to the dugout.

Franklin had just three hits in the inning, two by the power-swinging Baker.

John Holdsworth relieved Etienne and went 3½ innings. He gave up a single run and struck out three. David Runge pitched the last inning for Salem. He allowed one run in the sixth. The other run was charged to Holdsworth.

Salem pitchers were guilty of four wild pitches and three errors.

Wilcox scored the lone Salem run on a two-base outfield error in the final inning, ruining Webster's shutout bid.

"Webster got off to a slow start but pitched a fine ball game," said Franklin manager Gerry Cullin.

"Pitching is our strong point, but we hit well against Salem," he said.

The Patriots collected eight hits as Baker had three.

Webster struck out six and walked four in gaining his first win.

Boxing hits Center Stage

By BRAD EMONS

It's time to throw away the disco lights and the huge rock-and-roll amplifiers for one night as professional boxing will make its first appearance at the Center Stage in Canton Township.

The May 8 boxing card will feature Melvindale's Mickey (Sneaky Pea) Goodwin in the first-ever sports event at the Canton Township nightclub.

Goodwin, unbeaten in 16 fights as a middleweight, will face an opponent yet to be named in a scheduled 10-rounder.

"We've got a couple guys in the fire but have yet to sign anybody," said promoter Bruce Lahti.

The card is being co-promoted by Brass Ring Productions and Olympia Stadium.

Also scheduled to box on the card are a pair of light-heavyweights Jimmy Olzewski of Wyandotte and Dave McCann of Detroit.

Opponents for Rico Hoye, a middleweight, and Helmer Kenty, a lightweight, have yet to be named.

Both Hoye (27-2-1) and Kenty (10-0) are have fought on previous Olympia cards.

Lahti said three 10-round bouts have been scheduled along with a six-rounder and four-rounder.

"THE CENTER STAGE is a beautiful place for boxing and we plan to use it once a month for our smaller cards," said Lahti.

"We've run some first-class shows at Olympia and we want to run our smaller shows out here," he said.

"We feel it's time to bring boxing out to the suburbs," Lahti said, "and I'm pretty optimistic we can draw out here. The thing is you have to present good fights."

Goodwin was featured on a boxing card a month ago at Wyandotte's Yack Areen which drew 2,200 fans. "After the AAU nationals, there will be a lot of guys turning pro. Cards such as these will give those young fighters a chance," said the Olympia promoter.

Goodwin's April 19 bout at Olympia with Ted Mann of Vineland, N.J. was cancelled.

"Mickey needs an opponent and that's why we're featuring him at Center Stage," said Lahti.

The Canton nightclub, located on 39940 Ford Road, opened last Feb. 20 and has booked entertainment performers such as the Lettermen, Stephen Stills, Mitch Ryder and Maynard Ferguson.

The club has nearly 20,000 square feet of floor space and can seat 1,400 for boxing on the balcony and the two-tier main floor, according to Lahti.

"We are an entertainment place and this is going to be something we're going to try," said Center Stage box office manager Cheryl Nichols.

"WE OFFER a wide variety of entertainment, so we're going to see what happens with boxing," she said.

The location of the ring has yet to be determined and the "final details must be worked out," said Nichols.

Tickets for the "Olympia Fights at Center Stage" will go on sale next week at the Center Stage box office, Olympia Stadium box office, Olympia Travel, in Birmingham and Warehouse Records and Tapes.

Prices for the bouts are tentatively priced at $15 and $10.

Because it is a nightclub, Center Stage will not permit persons under 18 to attend. Persons under 21 will not be served alcohol beverages.

Etienne's 3-run homer helps Salem nip Thurston

BRAD EMONS

Senior centerfielder Matt Etienne's three-run homer highlighted a four-run sixth inning, powering Plymouth Salem past Redford Thurston in a non-league baseball game Thursday afternoon.

Thurston lefty Larry Armstrong was cruising along with a shutout until the sixth. The Eagles had grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

In the bottom of the sixth, Salem's Sam Merrill hit a sacrifice grounder and catcher Bubba Wilcox followed with a sharp single to left field.

Etienne then tagged a high fly ball to right field which just cleared the fence, scoring three runs.

Salem's Barry Owens then followed with a walk. Junior third baseman

Mike Woodard knocked in Salem's final run when he laced a double up the gap in left-centerfield.

Armstrong had hand-cuffed the Rocks on just one hit through the first five innings.

After a rough start, Salem senior hurler John Holdsworth settled down and threw five scoreless innings until the seventh when Thurston threatened.

After striking out the first batter in the top of the seventh, Holdsworth walked the next two Thurston batters and then loaded the bases after a hit batsman.

SALEM MANAGER Brian Gilles then summoned senior reliever David Runge from the bullpen.

Runge, making his third straight appearance, got the final two batters out with a strike out and a ground out.

"David (Runge) looks like he's going to be our reliever now," said Gilles. "He's got confidence and has been a nice surprise."

Runge is helpful addition to the Salem pitching staff since he threw very little before this season.

"Good pitching eliminates mistakes," Gilles said. "Holdsworth did a good job for us."

"Once we get our bats going, we'll be in good shape," he said.

Salem did not commit an error. "Our defense was good," said the Salem manager.

The Rocks, 2-1 overall, host Allen Park in a single game Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Area round-up

Tennis courts available

Now that old man winter has decided to leave the area and let spring make its entrance, area tennis facilities are opening up for both the beginner and the experienced player.

It's just a matter of time before all of the courts in Westland, Garden City, Livonia, Redford and Plymouth will be in complete use from sunup to sundown by tennis enthusiasts.

There are many facilities to choose from. One can play at an area high school or at courts in city parks. Whichever place is chosen, the season is bound to be in full swing by early May.

Westland has eight tennis courts, four indoors and four outdoors. The indoor courts are at the Multipurpose Arena, 6210 Wildwood, and can only be obtained through rental. Hours are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays and 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekends.

For rental details, phone the arena at 729-5460.

The outdoor courts are at two locations, Stottlemeyer Park and Voss Park. Stottlemeyer is located on Dancy behind Fraser Elementary, while Voss is situated at Henry Ruff and Palmer. All of the outdoor courts are open from sunrise to sunset and are free of charge.

Besides the courts at both East and West High Schools, Garden City has four courts at Moeller Park on Moeller and Block. The courts are open every day until dark and, again, there is no charge.

Livonia has the greatest amount of courts in the area with 46 in operation. All of the courts are open until dark and are free. Besides the city-run courts, there are facilities at all four Livonia high schools.

The municipal courts include eight at Bicentennial Park on Seven Mile, six at Rotary Park on Six Mile and three courts each at Ford Field, Algonquin Park, Devonaire Park and Wilson Acres.

There are two tennis courts each at Blue Grass Park on Hix north of Five Mile, Compton Park on Lyndon, Castle Gardens also on Lyndon, and Country Home Park on Yale South of Plymouth Road.

Shelden Park has eight courts and there are also four courts at Five Mile and Newburgh next to the shopping center.

The Livonia courts are busy every day during season, especially on Sundays.

The four high schools — Stevenson, Bentley, Churchill and Franklin — each have a set of courts and those are lighted for night play.

Redford Township has courts at three locations: Capital Park, at Hemingway and Capital (four), Phoenix Park (two) and Kraft Park (two).

Also in Redford but under county supervision are the four courts at Belle Creek Park, Five Mile and Inkster. The courts are open all day and have no fee to use.

Plymouth has no municipal courts, but tennis buffs can either play at the eight courts at Central Middle School or the 14 courts at the Salem-Canton High location. Those 14 courts are well lighted for night play and, again, there is no charge.

Edward Hines Parkway also has 20 public courts. At most locations there is a posted rule board and playing time is limited to one hour per group.

There are four courts at the Northville Recreation area, six at the Haggerty area, four at Inkster Road, and two each at Nankin Mills, Beech Daly and Warren Dale Drive.

The parkway courts are under county supervision.

Salem golfers defend title

The Plymouth Salem girls' golf team last year finished third in their league with a 5-3 record, but that didn't hold them back as they gained a third-place finish in the regional tourney which qualified the squad for the state finals.

Once at the state tourney, the Rocks placed 10th overall and fourth out of all participating Class A schools.

Although a slow start this season may be in the offing, Salem coach Bob Waters finds no reason why his team can't finish where they left off.

"We'll have a slow start because we're so young in the lack of playing experience, but we will definitely be a contender in league action as well as the regional tourney," said Waters.

"Hopefully we'll be back at the state," he said.

Only two golfers on this year's team return as starters — co-captains Beth Maggio and junior Meg McGee. Both have averaged around the 50-mark for nine holes in their career.

"Both McGee and Maggio should give solid performances this season," Waters predicted. "Both have worked hard on their game during the summer months and have improved a lot since last year."

Other returning team members include sophomores Nancy Stevens and Ellen Kenny. Neither started last season but are expected to hold down the number three and four positions respectively.

SALEM HAS 13 matches on its dual meet schedule this season.

New players expected to contribute this season include juniors Lisa Page and Cindy Welch along with freshman Carol Ross.

Ross is slated for duty in the number five spot while the number six position is up for grabs.

"I'm very eager to get the season underway and to get outside," said Waters. The potential of this team is good if not better than any team I've coached in the past," claimed Waters.

Salem opens its regular dual match schedule tomorrow (Tuesday) against Brighton at Brighton.

Salem is a member of the Central Six League and will compete against Willow Run, defending league champ Saline, Plymouth Canton, Brighton and Pinckney.

Salem's first home match is Thursday against rival Canton. Both Salem and Canton use Hilltop Golf Course as their home base. All home matches start at 3 p.m.

Michigan All-Stars destroy Yugoslavs

By BRAD EMONS

The rough and tough Yugoslavs didn't live up to their reputation Friday night at Schoolcraft College as the Michigan prep all-star cagers posted an easy triumph.

Michigan coaches Don Adams and Willie Norwood went into the game fearing the size and strength of the Yugoslavian Junior National team. The Michigan cagers however turned their foreign competitors inside and out with a deadly fast break and some muscle of their own.

"We pressed them and they didn't adapt," said Adams. "Our main goal was to be a cohesive unit and I thought we moved the ball well."

"We ran well and adjusted to the international style of play," he said.

Led by the strong inside play of Birmingham Brother Rice's Tim Andree and River Rouge Derek Perry along with the outside shooting of the Grand Rapids Creston's Melvin McLaughlin, the Michigan cagers established themselves as the better unit right from the start.

The Michigan team took command just five minutes into the game as McLaughlin hit three rainbow jumpers in a row, propelling his squad into a 17-8 lead.

Detroit MacKenzie's Steve Caldwell also hit for six points in a three-minute stand as the Michigan cagers widened the margin to 16 points, 29-13, with 10:14 to go in the first half.

THE YUGOSLAVS' sloppy ball-handling led to numerous fast break opportunities for the Michigan stars.

The only offense for the Yugoslavs was 6-4 guard Djordano Bakovic whose hard-nosed play kept kept his team from being totally embarrassed.

Driving with reckless abandon toward the basket, Bakovic scored 17 of his teams' 37 points in the first half.

The Michigan team substituted freely in the first half and built a 53-37 advantage.

The highlight of the 20-minute period was a running slam dunk by the 6-6 Perry with 3:14 left.

The Michigan team continued to show no mercy in the second half as Andree, a 6-10 center, and Perry, relentlessly dominated the boards.

"They were not as strong physically as I thought they would be," said Adams. "I didn't see the Russians play here last year but I understand they were more physical."

The Russians indeed were stronger, handing Michigan's all-stars an 18-point loss.

Yugoslav head coach Josip Gjergja was disappointed in his team's performance for the second straight time.

An Ohio all-star squad handed his team a 25-point defeat Wednesday night at the University of Toledo's Centennial Hall. "IT'S JUST SIMPLE," said Gjergja. "They had the best players, best fast break and best defense."

"They dominated an played the complete game. To win, we have to play our game and play it well," he said.

In the preliminary game, the Wayne County all-stars erased a one-point halftime deficit with a strong second half and took 103-97 victory over the Oakland County all-stars.

Livonia Bentley's 6-5 Eric Thorderson paced the Oakland County team in the first with 12 points.

The Wayne team took control in the second half thanks to the sudden arrival of Detroit Southwestern's 6-8 Lamar Jackson who scored all 10 of his points.

Harvey Hale of Highland Park led all scorers with 24 points. Donald Bell added 17 for Wayne County. Hale was voted most valuable player in the game.

Jeff DeYoung of Milford Lakeland and Thorderson paced Oakland County with 19 and 18 points respectively. Eric Griffin of Southfield added 12 while Rochester's Jim Jagels netted nine. Jack Dakesian of Southfield-Lathrup had seven. Andree was voted the MVP in the main event.

The battle for recognition as the highest scoring house in the western suburbs that has been going on all season between Westland Bowl and Wonderland Lanes is reaching an exciting climax.

This week Wonderland bowlers produced three series that broke the 700 barrier compared to only one at Westland. And, as you might know, it was John Hurley, bowling in the Monday morning league, who kept his house in the fight. John put together games of 269, 249 and 220 for a 738. It was officially his twenty-third 700 series of the season.

At Wonderland, it was the Classic bowlers who took a real stand when Bill Poe fired games of 223, 258 and 268 for a 749. Right behind him came Larry Brandt with a 278 middle game in 714.

Then, not to be outdone by the Classic bowlers, Bob Beitski, taking his turn in the junior house league, opened with a 269 and followed with games of 225 and 223 for a 717.

While all of this was going on Hugh O'Neil rolled the second perfect game of the season in the classic when he opened with a 177 then found the range for 12 straight strikes and closed with 223 for a 717.

In the Wonderland Bowlerettes Irene Ridge laced games of 202, 211 and 198 for a 616 to pace the league.

WHILE ROLLING his big series Hurley had to share the spotlight with Pat Mayles.

Bowling in the Ladies Classic, she started with a 268 and followed with counts of 225 and 169 for a 662 which is only one pin short of the league high rolled earlier by May Porter.

Other high scores among the ladies included Judy Griewicki with 235 in 595 and Ruth Worley with a 585.

THE WOMEN bowlers of the entire area are mourning the death of Jean Roth of Farmington who became a victim of a long illness last Tuesday.

Jean was one of the pioneers in the ladies all-star leagues and helped boost them to a place among the strongest in the nation.

In recent years she had been bowling as a member of the Purity Dairy team in both the Bowlerettes and the Ladies Major loop.

Doug Funke writes:

Non-competitive sports for satisfaction, fun

Once upon a time, the game was played for fun. In summer, the neighborhood gang would get together in the morning after breakfast, choose teams, then beat an old baseball around the field until lunchtime.

The games were usually high scoring, everyone had a chance to play and hit the ball and everyone seemed to have a good time.

There were no uniforms, no umpires, no standings, no championship games, no trophies and, most of all, no parents lousing up the fun with their involvement.

In the fall after school, the neighborhood gang would change into their play clothes, meet at the appointed place and time and match skills playing football.

Tackle football was the order of the day and there seemed to be very few injuries, considering the lack of equipment.

Just as in baseball, if one team got too far ahead of the other, the game was stopped, new teams were chosen and another game began.

There were no fiery pep talks by coaches, no manicured, well-lined fields, no lighted stadiums, no press accounts, no scoreboards, no referees, and, most of all, no parents lousing up the fun with their involvement.

EVERY SEASON had its game and there was no overlap. A kid had a chance to be a kid.

Where and why do we get off the track as we get older? Why do screaming parents put on ridiculous shows at sporting events?

Why does a kid think it's more fun to wear a real uniform and sit on the bench than it would be to play with his ragamuffin friends?

When and why does winning become more important than just participating?

As the athlete gets older, he or she gets a chance to perform before larger crowds. However, there is a price to pay.

The stakes are higher. For every winner, there must be a loser. Wins and losses are publicized. Year-round training programs and summer clinics are in vogue.

But, when can a teen be a teen and when can a coach be with his or her family?

THE ATHLETIC process seems to mirror life. Competition is the key word. We are all in competition from birth to death. A newborn baby is compared with others in the hospital nursery. The numbers and kinds of people at one's funeral are compared with turnouts at others.

Are athletics any different?

Just as people's interests and goals change through life, so does their perception of sports. However, are we glorifying amateur athletics too much?

Some advocate the establishment of a national sports center, similar to that in the Soviet Union, to bring out the best in our premier athletes.

Are we on the way to becoming a nation of super athletes? If so, will there be a place in sports for the average person with average skills, who doesn't want to dedicate his or her life to athletics?

10 reasons why no other rustproofing, including your car dealer, can duplicate the exclusive Ziebart System

Reason No. 2: RESILIENT SEALANT

A unique rustproofing sealant, it withstands extreme heat and cold, and stays resilient enough to absorb small stone bruises and other abrasions.

The Ziebart sealant is extremely resistant to breaking away from metal surfaces. Even when abraded by stones, or subjected to temperature extremes, a residual amount of sealant clings tenaciously to the surface. Its superior resilience - and corrosion protection - has been demonstrated in salt spray tests. Your new car needs all the protection it can get to lengthen its life and increase its trade-in value. So get Ziebart. Ask your Ziebart Dealer to show you the 10 exclusives of the Ziebart Rustproofing System that no car dealer can duplicate.

Remember - for positive protection, there's only one Ziebart!

THE DASTARDLY DEED

or the Chauffeur's Vindication

wherein the Chauffeur discovers which newspaper provides the best vehicle for selling the dim, dark, dismal, and decrepit mansion.

Lady Lavinia Loveless: "EEEEEEEEEEEEK! Save Us!"

Livermore, the Butler: "Dolt! How dare you take Lady Loveless' Classified Ad to one of the daily newspapers! How could you expect her to be able to sell this dim, dismal, dark, and decrepit mansion without advertising in the Observer and Eccentric classified home section?"

Lady Lavinia Loveless: "EEEEEEEEEEEEK! Pray do not strike him.
He is the only one who knows how to drive the automobile!"

Penelope Pattingale, her niece, a Sweet Young Thing: "Please, Livermore, perhaps he didn't know that the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers have a solid, thorough penetration that is both amazing and marvelous."

Livermore, the Butler: "But, Miss Penelope, surely everyone knows what an astounding, multitudinous variety of people this fine, hometown, family newspaper reaches."

Farthingale, the Chauffeur: "Please Sir! I will hasten to the Observer & Eccentric office and ask the Classified Hot Line to place the ad in the next issue. I must vindicate myself for that dastardly deed."

Lady Lavinia Loveless: "Lose no time! Dash off posthaste, with all due speed and dispatch! This ad must run immediately or we are doomed."

Penelope Pattingale, a Sweet Young Thing: "Oh yes, Farthingale, do! Please, Livermore, fling away that cruel weapon."

Livermore, the Butler: "I will! But if you fail in your mission you will receive the drubbing of your life"

Will Farthingale arrive in time to place Lady Loveless' ad in the next issue?

Jack Bologna Writes Unusual partnership

In 1973, I did something which most people would consider strange. I went into business with a man with whom I had little in common.

I was city bred, he was a farm boy. We shared differences in religious affiliations, political affiliations and employment backgrounds. His prior employment was largely in the business sector and my previous employment was largely in government.

Our ethnic backgrounds were different too. And yet a warm bond of friendship and respect developed between us. I saw him more as a friend and brother than a business partner.

For three years, we toiled together, traveled together, talked together, planned together, suffered together through a recession and mostly enjoyed many things together.

While our faiths, political ideologies, ethnic and work backgrounds were different, we shared many common values.

He had an enormous capacity for loving and helping others. His energy, enthusiasm and zest for living were so high, he could share them with a small army and still have a reserve supply.

He believed in excellence, honest effort and determination as vehicles for success in business. He believed in people, probably more than I did. He loved them all: the strong and powerful and the weak and the powerless.

He never lost faith in people. He had more patience in dealing with people than anyone I've ever known. No matter how scatter-brained, he listened to them attentively and courteously.

He valued their thoughts and offered them a safe refuge for half-baked notions. He took them all into his confidence and trust. His judgements were rarely hostile. His kindness was boundless.

He was widely read and enjoyed a whole spectrum of ideas. Nothing excited him more than a new theory whether it came out of the field of philosophy, physics, biology, psychology or cybernetics.

He never lost his youthful exuberance and wonder. He was interested in everything that might help mankind or produce happiness or satisfaction.

His death in 1975 left a large hole in my life which won't ever be filled again. He was one of a kind: generous with everything he owned, knew or created, respecting of all views, concerned for all people and an energetic activist for those in any sort of need or trouble. He never asked for much out of life except an opportunity to serve.

Gene Stermer, you are a tough act to follow.

Witch Watch

by GUNDELLA

Do names reflect, or govern person?

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose
By any other word would smell as sweet."

— Wm. Shakespeare
Romeo and Juliet

Upon her initiation into The Craft, a witch chooses for herself a new name, usually one associated with witchcraft or mythology.

My own name "Gundella" was chosen from an old German fairy tale. A name is a very special thing. When someone asks, "Who are you?" you answer with your name.

It is a part of you, a description of you, your identification.

Parents often go to great lengths to choose exactly the right name for their offspring. Others choose names which are crude jokes and cause their children no end of suffering.

I once knew a girl whose last name was Suer (pronounced sewer). Her parents had done her a great injustice by naming her "Storm." Can you imagine going through childhood with a name like "Storm Suer"?

ONE OF MY former students was named "O. Golly Richards." I asked Mrs. Richards what the "O" stood for, and she said that it stood for nothing at all. She had named her son O. Golly because that was the first thing her husband had said when he saw him.

Is it just a coincidence that every Barbara I have ever known has been a sweet generous person with a well-rounded figure, and that each of them could be described best with the word "cute"? I have also noticed that of the seven Barbaras I have known well, four have had a slight speech impediment.

Is it true that most girls named Nancy tend to marry young, whereas those named Vera marry later in life, if at all?

I have never known a brunette named Debbie.

NAMES THAT ARE stylish during one period of time are often unheard of in another. During the early 1900s it was the "in" thing to name girls after flowers or jewels. Rubies, Violets, Irises, Roses, and Opals were definitely in style in my mother's day.

Right now, Jennifer is the name most often given to newborn girls, whereas Jason and Jeffery are among the most popular boys' names at this time.

Daniel's Den

Unwritten story

By Emory Daniels

About the most complicated news stories to write are those dealing with governmental budgets.

That's because budgets deal with millage rates and taxbases.

And it's difficult to stay informed, let alone inform readers, about what is going on with tax rates and taxbases.

Which is why I didn't write a story about the lady on Byron Avenue who spoke up at the last city commission meeting because she believed her tax assessments were incorrectly raised.

Her story involved almost all the intricacies of tax assessments, and the more I listened, the more convinced I became that it would be too cumbersome to write as a news story.

And besides, it didn't seem to be precedent-setting material. However, later, I thought it would make an interesting column item — so here it is:

ALTHOUGH I HAD stopped taking notes, I think the lady said she moved into her home on Byron three years ago.

At that time, the home had central air conditioning, which had been in and operating for about seven years. Last year, the air conditioner broke down and the condenser unit was replaced.

A few months later, she gets a notice in the mail from the city assessor that the assessment was being raised because of the presence of the central air conditioning unit. However, the homeowner was out-of-state when the notice arrived and missed her chance to file an appeal with the local board of review.

She first asked how she could appeal the decision of the assessor but was told nothing could be done this year. Residents who disagree with the local assessor may appeal to the review board. If still unhappy after that, the homeowner can appeal to the state tax commission. But the commission won't hear an appeal unless the local board has issued a denial. So our homeowner on Byron, who was out-of-state when the appeals board met, was out of luck, too.

She then argued that a higher assessment should not be levied for a repair of an air conditioner — that the assessor mistakenly believed the conditioner was new.

The assessor got a chance to speak and explain how the higher assessment came about. Normally an assessment is raised because of an improvement to the property, such as a garage being built or a family room placed in the basement. The assessor picks up these improvements because copies of construction permits are sent to him by the building department.

But occasionally the assessor, who also doubles as city treasurer, drives out in the city for actual physical inspections. These are called field trips, and that's what happened to the lady on Byron.

The assessor was on a field trip and noticed that this particular house had an air conditioning unit. He pulled the "field card" and noticed an air conditioner was not included in the items assessed. So he made some notes and went on his way.

And so the assessment was hiked on this particular house, not because the air conditioner was repaired but because the assessor found out — for the first time — that the house had an air conditioner.

For 10 years the air conditioner should have been included in the assessment of this particular house on Byron, but wasn't. For 10 years this particular property was "under-assessed" by about $500-$600. But the assessor took a field trip and the error was corrected.

Unfortunately, the timing was bad. Not only was the identification 10 years late (from the layman's standpoint), but it came at a time when the lady had just shelled out a few bucks to repair the unit.

It has to be difficult for her to feel consoled by the fact that she was "under-assessed" for three years, and that previous homeowners got a free ride on the air conditioner for the seven years before she bought the home.

And the lengthy explanation wasn't particularly consoling, although it was correct in detail.

THE LADY WAS speaking out in the first place because of damage done to homes along Byron by the flood in May 1978 and was expressing concern about another flood in downtown Plymouth last week.

The discussion turned to the question of whether these particular residents might see their tax assessments lowered sometime in the future because their property might decrease in value because it's in a flood-prone area.

The assessor had explained that individual homes are assessed based on physical evidence alone — such as what is seen on field trips or what's read on building permits — and are not adjusted because of increased sale prices of other homes in the neighborhood being sold.

The talk changed when the assessor addressed the issue of assessments of homes in a flood-prone area. If sales prices over a period of time declined, the assessor explained, or didn't rise as fast as comparable homes in a non-flood-prone area, then he would conduct an analysis to see if assessments should be lowered.

That almost seems like double-talk, but it really isn't. Firstly, the assessor was talking about one home owned by one person — our lady of Byron Avenue. Secondly, he was talking about an area containing a number of homes — a neighborhood.

The fluctuations of real estate sales doesn't affect the assessment of an individual home, the assessor said, but fluctuating home prices can affect assessments of a neighborhood.

And it so happens that when a neighborhood is reassessed, a group of individual homes also are reassessed. That was the difference which seemed to get lost in the exchange between homeowner and assessor at the city commission meeting.

I FIND ALL this complicated enough. But budget stories also deal with total local assessed value, and state equalized value (SEV). And town's total SEV involves increases caused by general inflation of the market plus new growth.

Now Headlee budget stories are even more complicated. Now cost of living enters. When SEV rises faster than the price index, tax rates must be rolled-back. But is it the current rate or the city charter which must be rolled-back?

I know that readers just want to know if their taxes are going up or not. But that's hard to answer — in advance — without looking at such things as SEV, cost of living, millage rates and roll-backs.

If you get a little confused trying to reach such things, just think of the poor sucker having to write about them!

Off the Walls

Husband's duty

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

I'm a very sensitive soul. I've never been the one who could take criticism with a mere shrug and a sigh. I usually respond with a tear or a tantrum.

My mother, bless her little heart, shares a universal trait among mothers — that of being able to wither their offspring with the slightest of remarks. "Are you sure you want to go out in public dressed like that?" I'm used to it.

Now, husbands too, have a high rate of criticality (I think I made that word up). They feel, I suspect, that it's their duty to help their wives to someday reach that level of perfection that would make them into a combination of Eleanor Roosevelt and Cheryl Tiegs. He means well.

It's taken me years, but I think I've learned how to take a gentle barb without arching my back and hissing.

But now all of the sudden, out of left field, comes the voice of a critic for whom I wasn't prepared. My four-year-old has discovered that I am human, and subsequently, I err. It wouldn't be so hard to take if it weren't for the fact that he has taken it upon himself to inform everyone he meets of his mom's mishaps.

The neighbors all get to hear fascinating tales about how "my mom slipped and fell in the grocery store," or "my mom parked her car up on the curb again." I'm sure they're enthralled.

Even if he hadn't decided to become town crier of my foibles, it's still an irritant to have to listen to a running commentary of my every endeavor. All day long it's little goodies like, "Mom, you made a mistake again. You parked over the white lines." "Mom, you spilled a drop of milk on the counter." "Mom, you forgot to turn off the basement light again."

Did I ask for this? Unfortunately, I'm not the only one who serves as a target for his candor. With advancing age he has become perceptive enough to make observations about the world around him ("Mommy, look at the man with no hair!") and yet he's a little too young to realize when these fascinating tidbits of information might be socially unacceptable ("Mom, how come that lady is so fat?"). I think they usually get wise to their social graces at about age 22.

Meanwhile I must cringe when I am out in the world with this walking "mouth" lest he begin discussing some of the more amusing details of my anatomy in a crowded waiting room or decides that the checkout line in the supermarket is an ideal place to repeat what daddy said about the mechanic who fixed his car. It's like living with a little spy in our midst!

I no longer feel free to mutter about friends, family and foe in the privacy of my own kitchen when I know any opinion I may care to express may be held up for public scrutiny in the middle of Kmart's. ("Mom, do you really think Aunt Phoebe drinks too much?" Too much what, mom? Does she drink too much water? Huh, mom?")

It's taken me years to desensitize myself to personal criticism. I don't know if I'll ever get used to public embarrassment.

Everyone kept telling me motherhood was going to get harder. I foolishly thought nothing could be worse than those talcum years of yucky diapers and minimal amounts of sleep. At least when he was an infant I wasn't getting directives like, "You should never ever get mad at me because it makes me cry" or "You should never tell me to clean up my messes because cleaning makes me too tired."

It seems with the aid of advice from my mother, my husband, and now my son, I'm sure to become the perfect person.

Perfectly bonkers, that is.

Purify the party primary

While it only may be spring of 1979, even the casual political enthusiast can feel the presidential election spirit lurking in the shadows.

In Michigan, the traditional signal is the antics of State Democratic Chairman Morley Winograd.

At his worst a political gadfly, Winograd's better side shines when battling for the preservation of a sound political party system — a target of much undeserved public scorn these days.

Winograd has given the state Legislature until Oct. 1 to clean up the open primary political mess. Asking the slow-moving legislators to act so quickly is about like goading the tortoise into winning the Boston Marathon.

But with any luck, Winograd should prevail.

HIS BEEF is that he's sick and tired of having Michigan's Democratic presidential primary bushwhacked by crossovers.

Winograd wants voters to declare their party affiliation. He feels serious enough about it to have drafted a plan for selecting national convention delegates through a series of state caucuses in April and May of 1980, rather than waiting to do it through the May primary.

Opponents are screaming foul. Opponents, in this case, are mostly Republicans.

OPEN GOVERNMENT is an important concept, but an examination of the record shows that real openness has suffered because of Michigan's present primary system. And it has been the more conservative Republicans who have benefited.

Take a look at the 1972 presidential primary.

Recall that George Wallace swept the Democratic primary, garnering more than 809,000 votes against George McGovern's 425,000 and Hubert Humphrey's 249,000.

This was a classic case of Republicans ignoring their primary, in which Richard Nixon faced underdog Paul McCloskey, and muddying the Democratic primary results.

In 1976, Republicans didn't have the luxury of playing in the other kid's backyard. A death struggle was going on between President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan.

That year's Democratic primary totals showed that the majority of votes were divided between Jimmy Carter, 307,559 and Morris Udall's 305,134.

On the GOP side that year, Ford garnered 690,000 votes to Reagan's 364,000.

The total Republican vote for the 1972 GOP state presidential primary was only 330,000. Either a lot of Michigan voters decided to change parties between 1972 and 1976 or somebody was playing games and causing havoc in the other guy's camp.

It obviously was the latter.

STRONG PARTY politics is an important part of American government. It gives the voters a chance to affiliate themselves with a philosophy — a style of running government.

If voters are unsure of the candidates, they should at least have the confidence of a party vote.

Just ask disgruntled Democrats who are choking on the less-than-Democratic policies of the present chief executive.

Winograd definitely deserves support on this primary reform.

The Stroller

Surprise in the mail

By W.W. EDGAR

Scarcely a morning goes by that The Stroller doesn't let go with a stream of cuss words when he goes to the mailbox and finds it filled with what is now commonly called "junk" mail.

How his name found its way to so many mailing lists is a puzzle, but he receives queries from a host of real estate people asking if he is thinking of selling his home — a place that has been his pride and joy for more than forty years.

Others that quickly find their way to the trash can offer him all sorts of bargains, from kitchen ware to antique furniture. And there has been a flood of gardening books in the past week or two.

But the other morning came one letter that made him to chuckle, and he has been laughing ever since.

It was from a faraway-firm that was offering its help to The Stroller in finding a career.

It was a flowery bit of literature pointing out that the firm was ever willing to help a young fellow just starting work to find a vocation for which he was best suited.

THE LETTER went on say that The Stroller's name had been offered and that the firm was well equipped to guide young fellows in such things as electronics and nuclear energy and the other careers that have replaced some of the old-time trades, such as carpentry or mechanics or even engineers and assembly line workers.

The Stroller had no way of knowing who wrote the letter, but he couldn't help chuckling at the thought of how the writer would feel if he knew his letter was directed to a fellow who has been on the journalistic trail for nearly 60 years.

There was a time when he would have welcomed help in choosing a career. But that was long ago. When he was forced to leave school because of the economic problems encountered by his widowed mother there was only one avenue open — to learn the machinist trade in a large cement company back home.

His Dad had hoped to send him to Penn State University to take a course in culinary arts. But his death ended all that. So The Stroller had to take the tough road in the shops.

AT THE END of a hard working day one year, he wished that he had been given the opportunity to become a lawyer. And here's why.

In a case of mistaken identity, he was pushed from a street car and landed on his knees on the brick street. In the scramble he suffered a cut on his elbow and his arm stiffened.

That night his uncle took him to see the local attorney and asked what could be done. The Stroller had no thought of suing the transit company. But his uncle insisted and the lawyer agreed.

When The Stroller said that he was all right and would be at work the next day, the lawyer urged him to stay home. "You don't know how much harm has been done and, aside from that, there are other things to consider."

"There is the painful suffering," he said, "and the sleepless nights. You also must think of the embarrassment of being knocked to the street in front of your fellow workers, and certainly you had your clothes ripped and they will have to be replaced."

He smiled, then added, "The Transit Company surely will have to pay for this."

And it did — rather handsomely.

That was when The Stroller wished that he had been able to follow a career in law.

Del Black — a man of boundless energy, ambition

The wonderful thing about this country of ours is that each of us has at least a fighting chance of becoming whatever we want to become.

Desire bubbles more furiously in some than in others.

One of these perpetual-motion ambition machines is Plymouth shoe store entrepreneur, Del Black.

IN MY MIND he's a classic example of what an individual with energy, talent and desire can accomplish if he chooses to do so.

Many don't, of course. They prefer the unhassled, 8-5 life with free weekends and family vacations.

And the beauty of today's society is that we recognize and accept almost any lifestyle as an expression of that person's "thing" and we're less likely to define "success" in terms of money or position.

But I'm still fascinated by the old Frank Merriwell stories and I guess I put Del Black in that class. He won't appreciate this column. He's quietly proud of what he has accomplished; but he's terribly sensitive about emphasis on self importance.

Yet I think young people should be reminded that there's a direct relationship between effort and results.

It reminds me of the response attributed to Julius Boros, the golf professional, when a fellow golf pro

Speaking for the record

By BILL SLIGER

remarked that Arnold Palmer (in his heyday) was extremely lucky.

"That's true," said Boros. "And the more he practices, the luckier he gets."

AS A HIGH school youngster, Del Black worked in the old Gladstone's Shoe Store in Northville.

When he graduated, he worked in the plant at Guernsey Dairy. Later he transferred to Twin Pines, where he remained for 10 years from 1953-63.

During that time he saved his money, bought vacant lots, constructed houses on them, and sold them at a profit. Then he purchased a Twin Pines milk route in Northville and saved more money.

Then he decided that Northville could use a good shoe store. Gladstone's had closed for lack of business.

Nearly everyone he asked told Black he was foolish. Nevertheless, Del's Shoes number one opened in Northville in July 1963 with Del and wife Ila and two part-time high school youths on duty.

Less than 16 years later Del's has grown into 12 stores in two states. And right now things are looking pretty rosy.

He just opened his 12th store at University Park Mall recently in Mishawaka, Ind. It's called "Del's Red Cross Store."

There are Del's Shoe Stores Plymouth, Brighton, South Lyon, Wayne, Elrt, South Bend, Indianapolis. Ironically, Del purchased a shoe store in Metro Mall in Wayne from his former boss, Bill Gladstone, and converted it to a Del's Shoe Store.

BUT THERE WERE days when "rosy" would not be the term Del would have applied to his business.

For nearly two years during the recession period of 1973-75 Del Black chained himself to his desk. He admits now that he learned during this profitless period how to manage, bear down, apply himself and make time count. He was strung out with heavy commitments in several new centers and no business.

Good times returned in the spring of 1975 and Del could breathe again. But he never unlocked the chains.

Del served on the city council for four years during the early 1960s. He also was a member of the appeals board and of the planning commission. He gave freely of his time to both community and church.

But he failed in his bid for re-election to the council. And for a young man with his intensity and ambition this was a cruel blow. His business crisis might have been a blessing. For years he rarely emerged from his basement office into the daylight of Mainstreet, Northville.

Del Black doesn't own an airplane, yacht, summer cottage or winter condo.

But he has a wife who is his Michigan manager; a son, who is his Indiana operations manager; another son who manages a store in Indiana; and a daughter who is in charge of his Northville store. His two daughters-in-law also are active in the business.

A payroll which amounted to $24 for two part-time employees has grown to nearly $500,000 per year for more than 70 employees. And the annual volume of business has jumped from $72,000 to several million.

Del Black keeps a low profile in his community today. He attends church regularly, reads the Scriptures and dedicates himself to doing the very best job he can do in his chosen profession.

He says he's having fun. . . and just beginning.

And the harder Del Black works, the luckier he seems to get.

Marta Heflin is Sheila, one half of "A Perfect Couple," Robert Altman's latest film about a computer-matched pair.

Robert Altman loses again with 'Perfect Couple'

"A Perfect Couple" (PG) joins the ever-growing list of Robert Altman's more imperfect, less important films.

Altman is a prolific producer/director who just might be making more films in less time than anyone else, but the pace is beginning to show.

The last three productions, "A Wedding," "Quintet" and now "A Perfect Couple," have lost the sparkle and insight of previous films. It's almost as if Altman feels challenged to show that he can transform any random idea spawned by him or his colleagues into a motion picture. Not all ideas are cinematic material and not all of these are suitable to the low-pressure, rambling style associated with Altman.

The cultural clash that is at the core of "A Perfect Couple" provides ample material for a decent comedy and a comment on social customs. But watching this film is like waiting for the other shoe to drop. The comic possibilities are introduced and mostly abandoned.

PAUL DOOLEY and Marta Heflin, who both appeared in "A Wedding," are computer-matched dates who would seem to be oddly matched. He is a member of a large, strait-laced, wealthy Greek family ruled by the grandfather who is patriarch and tyrant.

The family, including married children and spouses, live in a huge, richly furnished house and work in the family-owned business. They take their meals together and spend their leisure time together. Evenings they listen to recorded classical music as Grandfather Theodopoulos (Titos Vandis) follows the score and conducts.

Dooley's date is an easy-going, uninhibited singer who belongs to a soft-rock group called Keepin' 'Em Off the Streets. The group is her nuclear family. They share living quarters in a loft, travel together and work together. Teddy (Ted Nelly), the leader, is as demanding and stern as the grandfather.

Heflin and Dooley, both tied to family, both involved with music and both having difficulty in establishing their own independence, ultimately, don't seem so mismatched after all.

THE COURSE of their love, however, doesn't run smooth. Indeed, one of the running gags in this film is the couple's inability to consummate their love because of an absence of privacy. The other running gag involves another couple who seem to be close and end up distant. Neither gag is slap-your-knee funny, particularly when drawn out over two hours.

The musical performances by the rock group are too many and too long, they relegate the story to the status of a subplot. The proportions seem all wrong. Eliminate the music and you've got about 15 minutes of film, or so it seems.

Like its predecessors, the Mississippi Queen paddleboat is tethered to the shore at Natchez. (Photo by Micky Jones)

Life on the Mississippi aboard a grand Queen

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

NATCHEZ, Miss. — From this landing place under the old city of Natchez, the Mississippi River looks as it did centuries ago.

The river bends sharply below a high cliff, and across the water is the same low river bottom land that nourished cotton fields before the Civil War.

As you walk up the landing ramp, you can see the old city on the side of the cliff above you, although you cannot yet see the modern city of Natchez, which is around a bend on the top of the bluff.

Two things bring the scene into the 20th century. Behind, on the river, is the Mississippi Queen, a paddleboat too large and luxurious for that bygone age. Behind that, a steel bridge spans the river.

The Mississippi Queen is a familiar sight on the river, as she carries modern travelers to the sound of calliope and dance music on regular runs from New Orleans.

Her smaller, older sister, the Delta Queen, needs special dispensation from the state to stay in business, because of her historic but flammable wooden hull.

The Mississippi Queen, though, is as spacious and luxurious as any Caribbean cruise ship, despite her 19th-century decor and paddlewheel.

The river traffic differs from Mark Twain's day. Oil tankers, freighters and a few pleasure boats cross wakes, often within sight of oil refineries.

One colorful tradition remains. When the Queen is ahead of schedule, she gets tied to a tree in exactly the same way as paddlewheelers were tied in the days of Twain.

Passengers often are too busy with the musical entertainment, or with a midnight snack that looks like Christmas dinner, to notice the ship's nighttime mooring.

A crewman leaps to the bank and climbs up a tree. A rope is tied front and back. In the dark, it is not hard to imagine back 200 years.

The look and feel of history is on the bank, where you still see a few houses straight out of "Gone With the Wind." It is especially true in Natchez, where so much river history happened.

The earliest French explorers paddled past this bend in the Ole Miss. Ocean-going ships were literally hauled by hand upriver to this spot.

Northerners, mostly from Kentucky, floated rafts of lumber and other goods downriver to Natchez, and walked home along the Natchez Trace. The Trace, now operated by the National Park Service, is only a few miles away by road.

This town was the essence of the deep South: cotton fields, slaves, riverboats, grand houses. Its development literally stopped when the fathers and grandfathers and sons of the town were killed during the Civil War.

LOCAL HISTORIANS say that much of the town remains as it was then because the women and freed slaves were unable to continue the old life and unable to build a new one.

In recent years, a new developmental force has improved tourism here as it has done throughout the South. Local garden clubs and other organizations have worked to restore the historic buildings and to promote their tourist value through a special annual celebration.

The buildings of the old city are being restored at the lip of the hill. Atop the hill, an 18th century tavern stands in almost original condition.

On these floors, travelers slept wrapped in blankets. At these hollowed-out wooden tables, they ate as they passed through the bustling port.

In the center of town, and on its edges, old mansions have been restored to antebellum grandeur.

A COMBINATION of history and modern living is found all along this water route. In Baton Rouge, where you can find a skyscraper view over historic legislative buildings and oil refineries, the University of Louisiana operates the Rural Life Museum.

In a section of land used for agricultural experiments on the edge of town, the university has recreated a small village showing Cajun life in 19th century Louisiana.

It is a tiny southern version of Greenfield Village, although the university is not anxious to invite you in. The public is welcome to the Rural Life Museum, but its main purpose is the documenting of historical artifacts and lifestyles.

A river view of the deep South is quite different from a roadside view. The Mississippi Queen carries you past the landmarks of history, but her main goal is to entertain you.

Riverboat gamblers play card tricks while the old red paddlewheel turns around in the background. Entertainment includes a masquerade ball, in which passengers are encouraged to make costumes from anything at hand.

A room for two includes two single beds and a private bathroom with shower. Meals are served in a large dining room, and buffered with mid-afternoon and midnight snack tables, loaded with everything from shrimp to pineapple.

This is definitely not the way the early settlers and the slaves saw this land for the first time, but it is a pleasant, if expensive, way to have fun and discover Dixie.

TRAVEL LOG of Iris Jones

Barriers slowly coming down

One of the most talked-about subjects in the travel industry these days is travel for the handicapped. Airlines, hotels and other travel service businesses are slowly becoming aware of the difficulties faced by travelers whose mobility is impaired in some way.

The "Travel Michigan Handicapper's Mini-Guide," which has been prepared by the Michigan Travel Commission, will help you choose accommodations in Michigan that meet certain requirements.

Although the listing is outdated, and many more barrier-free accommodations have probably been added since its publication, the listing would still be of great help to physically handicapped travelers.

The guide reports information culled from National Barrier Free Design Accommodations criteria and comments on the following:

- Parking, which is considered accessible when it is level and has reserved spaces.
- Entrances which have wide doorways and non-skid flooring.
- Accessible interiors, connected by level floors or ramps, that are generally uncluttered and spacious.
- Floors covered with low pile carpet or non-skid floors.
- Restaurants which are easily reached, have wide clear aisles and table heights at least 29 inches from the floor.
- Elevators that service all floors and have automatic opening devices for emergencies.
- Conference facilities serviced by level, ramp or elevator routes.
- Public rest rooms easily reached, with adequate turnaround space.
- Guest rooms designed and designated for use by wheelchair users, including doorways at least 30 inches wide.
- Guest bathrooms with grab bars, wide doorways and at least 5 by 5 foot space for movement.

THE BOOKLET also has a tip for the hearing impaired. When alone in a hotel, notify the desk to slip your phone messages under the door and contact you personally in case of emergency.

You can get this booklet, listing hotel and motel accommodations throughout Michigan, from the Michigan Travel Commission, P.O. Box 30226, Lansing 48909, or from your regional travel association. This include the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association, at Suite 350-American Center, Southfield 48706.

UNITED AIRLINES which claims to have permitted seeing eye dogs to fly on planes for the first time in the 1930s, also has a booklet called "Travel for the Handicapped." It is not very comprehensive but it reminds you that you can get wheelchair service, special diets, as well as therapeutic oxygen and aerostretcher service, if you let the airline know ahead of time.

Some communities are even being creative about their service to the handicapped. The University of Maryland developed a series of maps for the blind, with raised and textured symbols as well as Braille labels to indicate paths, landmarks and hazards.

ONE OF MY FAVORITE travel stories comes from Sheila Holden of Farmington Hills. Sheila calls herself the bionic woman because she has surgical metal in one hip and leg.

She loves to build up a story about what happens when she walks through the metal detector at the airport. Of course, the machine goes off even though she apparently has no metal on her person.

She carries a letter from her doctor, but she can't resist teasing them a bit before she hands it over.

CANTON Township residents will be able to take advantage of one of the most sophisticated physical fitness programs available in the United States.

A group of Livonia educators who have taken the course give it a high rating. The participants say that although they are mentally exhausted at the end of the day, by the time the class is over the juices are flowing and they are ready to start the day over.

So for those whose most physical activities during the day are going to lunch, or walking to the bathroom and back to their desk, this is for you. For those who have just enough energy to sit in front of the TV with a beer, life has more to offer.

The Detroit Metropolitan YMCA, in cooperation with the Canton Parks and Recreation, is offering physical fitness in classes built around a cardio-vascular program for men and women.

by
ELLIE GRAHAM

THERE ARE three phases to the program:

Candidates are screened for risk. Body weight, age and smoking are factors that must be considered for a fitness evaluation. This is done by professionals. Body fat is measured with a caliper. A bicycle ergometer is used in the test.

With these statistics in hand, the instructor is ready to sit down with the prospect and tell them where they are on the physical fitness scale.

"They may be okay," said Shirley Ritter of the Livonia Family Y, who is setting up the course. "They may be told how many inches and how many pounds they should lose. Their options for physical fitness are prescribed."

Miss Ritter said doctors are contacted for clearance in cases where the person is 40 years of age and smokes, has high cholesterol count, or has high blood pressure-hypertension.

Once the individual's state of fitness is determined, he or she is ready for the exercises.

A TYPICAL class begins with a warm-up followed by a cardio-vascular non-stop movement routine. It ends with a cool-down—a slowing of the body processes.

The goal is to exercise to the point of 80 percent of the maximum heart rate. This figure is reached by starting with 220 (the pulse-heart rate of an infant) and subtracting a person's age. Eighty percent of this number is the individual's goal.

"The classes start out with 70 percent and gradually build up to 80. At that point the person is physically OK and using his or her heart more efficiently," said Miss Ritter.

Classes will start April 30 in Township Hall, 1150 Canton Center Road. Registration for the classes will be limited. Fee for the seven-week course is $10 for persons who are members of the Livonia, Wayne-Westland, or Detroit Y. For non-members, fee for the 10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday classes is $25. For the Monday and Wednesday 7 p.m. classes, the fee is $20.

Persons can register by calling 261-2161 and asking for the physical education director of the Livonia Family Y.

The program will follow the guidelines and rules set by the National YMCA.

"Mike Gouin and Canton Parks and Recreation have been most cooperative in helping set up the program for Canton residents," said Miss Ritter.

THERE WAS a call from a Canton lady (who wished to remain anonymous) with a story about three other Canton ladies (who also wished to remain anonymous).

But the caller was touched by the actions of two women who discovered a neighbor in dire financial straits. Too young to apply for social security, too sick to go to work, and too proud to let her true condition be known, she was on her own. She was out of food and just about out of hope.

The two neighbors became aware of her plight by chance. They set out on a grocery shopping spree to end all shopping sprees. Everything was delivered in time for Easter.

By the tone of her voice, my caller's Easter was happier because of their actions. And she was sure the recipient of the bags of groceries realized, as she said, "There are people who care."

CANTON ARTISTS and their works will be very much in evidence at the Three Cities Art Club's third annual juried show April 27 through May 5 in First National Bank of Plymouth, 535 South Main.

Among the exhibitors will be Lorene Vives who lives on Kingsbridge and Doreen Lawton who lives on Joy Road. Nicanor Lopez and David Lamb are another talented Canton pair whose works will be in the exhibit. All are members of the Three Cities Art Club.

Packages for Center

State's top stamp show opens Friday

Members of the West Suburban Stamp Club are preparing for their 10th annual stamp show and bourse this weekend in Central Middle School, Main Street at Church.

The biggest stamp show in Michigan has prompted Governor William Milliken to declare April 23-30 Michigan Stamp Week.

The declaration reads, in part: "Through a collection of stamps one can tour the world, this great nation and our state. One can learn of the outdoors, the arts and our history."

"Michigan proudly boasts of numerous stamp clubs located in cities throughout our two peninsulas. These clubs will gather in Plymouth on April 28 and 29 for the annual convention of the Peninsular State Philatelic Society."

"Also during that time, the West Suburban Stamp Club will celebrate its 10th anniversary and hold its 10th annual exhibition and bourse. More than 200 collectors in the club will provide displays and other information following the theme, 'Michigan Postal History.'

THE CLUB WILL continue its cachet program, "Birth of the Nation." The U.S. show pictorial cancellation will feature the flagships Bonhomme and Serapis locked in battle. The two ca-chets picture John Paul Jones and Continental Currency. The set of two serviced covers is $1 plus a SASE (self-addressed stamped envelope). They can be ordered from Richard Chellevoid, 40 S. Staebler, Ann Arbor 48103.

There will be 200 frames of open competition. A separate classification will feature the grand award winners from the previous shows.

Judges will be John E. Foxworth Jr., president of the American Philatelic Society; Dr. James J. Matejka Jr. of Chicago; Dr. Peter Smith and Alex Sissons of the Detroit area.

The Plymouth show is a familiar one to Matejka. Although he has earned a world-wide reputation in philatelic circles, he has expressed his pleasure over being invited to the WSSC bourse.

He was named high commissioner to PRAGA '78, the international philatelic exhibition in Prague, Czechoslovakia, last September. Matejka represented the American Philatelic Society, the official representative of the International Federation of Philately, under whose auspices PRAGA '78 was staged.

CENTRAL MIDDLE School will be the Mecca for several thousand stamp collectors this weekend. The Prague exhibition attracted more than 300,000. Before the show opened, 100,000 tickets were sold.

On Sunday, people began lining up at 7 a.m. Triple lines, two to three blocks long, queued up for daily tickets for the show which opened at 9 a.m. That day 65,000 were admitted.

Twenty-two pounds of pure gold, and 110 pounds of pure silver were used in preparing medals for the exhibition. Matejka was awarded one of the 35 crystal vases presented to those who exhibited in the Honours Court. He also received a large gold medal for Czechoslovak collection.

Matejka is co-founder of COMPEX (Combined Philatelic Exhibition of Chicagoland) which began in 1958. He was awards chairman at INTERPHIL '76, and commissioner to the Brussels, Belgium, show in '68 and Amsterdam, The Netherlands, in '67.

DEALERS FROM Alabama, Iowa, Florida, Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Ontario will have booths at the Plymouth Show.

A United Nations sales agency, United States Post Office Substation, Canadian Post Office and Swedish Postal representative will set up shop for the two-day show.

General co-chairmen are Joseph Willis Jr. and Ted Kilish. Emily Anderson of Livonia is exhibition chairperson. Parking is free and refreshments will be available. Admission is free.

The junior club members will have their new "pic-a-winner" barrel where everyone is a winner.

The club will continue its support of stamps for the Shriners/Crippled Children's Hospitals rehabilitation program. Donors of stamps will receive a special souvenir card.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, April 29, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, April 30.

Co-op nursery plans 1978-79 roundups

Plymouth Children's Co-op Nursery, one of the oldest in the area, has scheduled spring roundups for 1979-80 school semesters. Parents interested in enrolling their 3 or 4-year-olds in a nursery school will have an opportunity to visit the school and meet the teachers and other parents.

Roundup days are 1-2:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 2; Sunday, May 6; and Wednesday, May 16. The school is on the corner of Warren and Haggerty in Canton Township.

It was in March 1961 that eight mothers gathered to discuss the possibility of a cooperative nursery in Plymouth. A year later, the Plymouth Community Cooperative Nursery opened with 22 children. There was one three-day session in the Salvation Army Citadel on Fairground Street. First president was Mimi Settles.

THE NURSERY moved to the Community Center on Union Street in the fall of 1962 and began its first full year. The name was changed to Plymouth Children's Nursery, Inc. It was registered as a non-profit organization and was a member of the Huron Valley Conference of Cooperative Nurseries.

In January 1963, a second two-day session was added. The tradition of Dad's Day, field trips, birthday parties and visiting speakers had been initiated.

The building back of city hall was torn down two years ago. But at that time, it was the center of many community activities. The nursery shared quarters with the local rifle club. Mothers had to haul out school equipment each day and shove it back when the nursery school sessions ended.

When their storage area was turned over to the archery club, the search for a new building was on. The old Hough School on Warren was ideal but the school district used it for storage.

During the summer of 1963, nursery school president, Mrs. Hilding Olson, searched for a corresponding amount of storage space. She finally found it in the Eckles Building. The schools moved out, the Plymouth Co-op Nursery moved in.

Due to the effort of the parents and gallons of red paint, Plymouth Children's Nursery changed its image from a white building to the little red schoolhouse it is today. The transformation took place in the fall of 1968.

Two years later a once-a-week class for 3-year-olds was added, bringing the complement of preschoolers to 105 per semester. That attendance figure has been maintained over the years.

THE SCHOOL has two large rooms equipped with furniture, art materials, work bench, play house and toys geared to the age of the children.

Five sessions meet during the week:

- 1) Monday and Thursday, 9-11:15 a.m. — 3 & 4-year-olds
- 2) Tuesday and Friday, 9-11:15 — 3 & 4-year-olds
- 3) Wednesday, 9-11:15 — 3-year-olds
- 4) Monday & Thursday, 12:45-2:45 p.m. — 4-year-olds
- 5) Tuesday & Friday, 12:45-2:45 p.m. — 4-year-olds

The tuition is $79 for the one-day a week class and $150 for the two-day a week classes. Parents are expected to assist at the school approximately 12 times a year for the two-day session.

For more information about the co-op nursery, call Betsy Mazurkiewicz, 459-3039.

Deadline is May 4 for awards applications

Applications are available in all middle schools' principals' offices for the annual students fine arts awards. These are awarded each year by the Plymouth Community Arts Council to students at the middle school level.

The purpose of the awards is to encourage further study in a student's particular area of interest such as drama, vocal music, music composition, sculpture, creative writing, painting, crafts, dance or photography.

The awards of $150, $100 and $75 will be distributed to those judged most qualified. Finalists may be asked to submit an example of their work or to perform. All applications must be submitted by Friday, May 4.

Las Vegas night

Pam Carlson, (from left) Dan LeBlond and Stephanie Cooley, members of the board of directors for Growth Works, are planning a millionaire's party which will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, April 27 in the Plymouth Hilton Inn on Northville Road. Admission is $5 at the door, from Growth Works, 261 S. Main Street, from the Pendleton Shop in Forest Place mall, or from LeBlond by calling 455-0600. There will be free hors d'oeuvres and everyone will start out with $1 million in chips. Proceeds will go to the youth center, Growth Works. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

'Play It Again, Sam' opens Friday

Plymouth Theatre Guild will present Woody Allen's "Play It Again, Sam" April 27, 28, and May 4, 5. Curtain time will be 8 p.m. for all four performances of the three-act comedy drama in Central Middle School auditorium, Main street at Church, Plymouth.

"Play It Again, Sam" is the result of Allen's fascination with Humphrey Bogart. When he was growing up in the '50s, Bogey was his hero. In the play, Allan Felix is the star-struck character representing the author. The role is portrayed by Tom Butki in the PTG production.

Allen Felix is the only character who can see Bogey, his advisor on life and love. Lance Arp plays Bogey.

Both male leads have long associations with community theater. Butki's performances with the PTG include roles in "It's Never Too Late" and "Once Upon a Time."

ARP'S CREDITS include appearances in Schoolcraft College's "6 RMS RIV VU" and PTG's "Lion in Winter."

One of Bogart's most enthusiastic fans, Lance Arp views America's favorite tough guy as one of the most talented and most misunderstood actors of his time. He has a collection of Bogart books, clippings and posters.

He has been interested in the stage since childhood and relishes the opportunity to bring Bogart back to the stage.

Mark Brzezinski has the role of Dick Christie. Working backstage in Schoolcraft's production of "Murder at the Vicarage" gave Brzezinski theater fever. Since then, he has done lighting for PTG's "Tom Sawyer," played the court jester during the 1978 Ann Arbor Medieval Festival, and portrayed Fred and Christmas Future in the Garden City Civic Theater's "A Christmas Carol." A semi-professional musician, he played bass guitar with Deep Six and performed at the Plymouth Fall Festival. He is a stand-up comedian at the Comedy castle.

KATHLEEN O'Mara of Plymouth plays Linda Christie. She has been associated with the local theater guild for more than a year. She played Aunt Polly in "Tom Sawyer" and was the woman in 4A and assistant director of 6RMS RIV VU." Being active in musicals, plays and her own radio show in high school, stimulated her interest to sign a recording contract in the near future. This is her first chance to portray a woman her own age, 21, and get out of the over-40 bracket.

Sherri Morse is Nancy in the play. She is a pianist and a soprano soloist at Plymouth Church of the Nazarene. She is a member of National Thespians. While a student at Plymouth Salem High School she played the wicked witch in "The Wizard of Oz" and Rosemary in "How to Succeed in Business." She is a secretary and book-keeper for Ball Drug Service.

CINDI HOGAN plays Sharon Lake. As a senior at Livonia Stevenson High School, she played a southern call girl in "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch" and was sound person for "You Can't Take it With You." She writes and sketches and hopes to write a novel someday.

Fran Cyburt, who plays Gina, has been interested in theater arts since she was 4. She has played Merricat in "We've Always Lived in the Castle" and Abigail in "Ransom of Red Wolf." She was musical director for "Tom Sawyer" and assistant musical director for "Chaeper by the Dozen." She is a senior at Dearborn Divine Child High School and plans to enter Eastern Michigan University on a scholarship in the fall.

Kelly Hannah, as Sharon and Go-Go girl, makes her first appearance with the guild. Robin Holley, a high school junior, plays Barbara. Mary Cantine is the Intellectual Girl and Margie Neihoff is Vanessa.

ROBIN GALICK is producing the show. She has worked on house, program, costumes and publicity for PTG. Patricia Bray, president of the guild

Cast, directors and producers of the Plymouth Theatre Guild's production of Woody Allen's "Play It Again, Sam" have a discussion after rehearsal in Central Middle School's auditorium.

Mark Brzezinski and Kathleen O'Mara have roles in the three-act comedy drama which opens Friday night.

WHEN SHOULD I PRE-PLAN MY FUNERAL?

A sage of old once said, "A man cannot say to the Angel of Death: 'I wish to arrange my affairs before I go with you.'" Since we cannot know the exact time of our own death, we are well-advised to prepare for it — spiritually, ethically, practically. So it is that arranging one's affairs — including the preparations for one's funeral in advance of need — provides the satisfaction and peace of mind in having done it. In so doing, we've spared our family some measure of grief and distress.

YOUR OWN CHOICES

We have arranged services for many people around here and have several plans for your consideration. You may provide for a funeral service costing neither less nor more than you wish it to be. Your decisions will be calm and rational, without stress of strain. Can you imagine your family faced with all the burdens of arranging a funeral when their grief and emotions are at their peak?

It is wise and practical to have professional counseling on this pre-planning with plenty of time for deliberation and discussion. You may call us for an appointment to get all the details and discussion you need.

AMC makes army trucks

AM General, a subsidiary of American Motors Corp., will produce 6,550 trucks for the U.S. Army, including this dump truck. The South Bend, Ind. plant will eventually produce 20 of the 25-32 ton construction vehicles a day. The $300 million contract also calls for tractors and concrete mixers.

Mazda imports 1 million

The makers of Mazda have exported more than 1 million vehicles to the United States in the 10 years they have been in the market.

Besides cars with the Mazda name, the manufacturers, Toyo Kogyo, also make Ford Courier pickup trucks.

More than 591,000 Mazdas have been shipped over. Twenty percent of those were GLCs, introduced two years ago. Mazda also imports the 626 sport coupe and sedan, B2000 pickup and the rotary powered RX-7 sports car.

In 1970, the first year of the imports, 6,112 Mazdas were shipped. Last year, 83,206 came across.

Today there are 710 Mazda dealers in the states.

The car's trip across the Pacific from Hiroshima, Japan to Los Angeles, by the way, took 13 days.

Redwood soak in rain or snow

A redwood hot tub can bring year-round outdoor living and contemporary landscaping to your home this year, whatever the weather, lot size or house style.

Customized with a redwood deck, privacy fence and gazebo shelter, a hot tub haven invites a solitary soaking, family togetherness or relaxed socializing almost any time of day, night or year.

Originally recycled from old redwood wine tanks and commercial tanks, today's hot tubs are outfitted for soothing, sanitary water-massage that's helpful, therapeutic, even doctor-prescribed for some ailments. Chilly night air, rain and even snow can enhance your enjoyment of water heated to 108-110 degrees. In hot weather, an unheated tub provides a cooling soak.

Usually measuring four-to-eight-feet in diameter, and three or four feet deep, a hot tub can fit into stamp-size yardspace off a bedroom, bathroom or anywhere else available. An average package around $3,000 includes tub, benches, pump, filter and heater to hook up to house electrical or gas lines, or connect directly to an existing hot water system.

A TUB MAY add $10 to $20 to monthly utility bills, less with solar heating equipment or a redwood tub lid. Filled with a garden hose, a tub uses about 500 gallons of recirculating water, and within the first two weeks, initial leaks should stop as wood swells watertight.

Local building codes and permits should be checked carefully before installation of any backyard structure. A hot tub should rest on its own posts and joists independent of deck supports. A tub can be recessed into a deck, convenient for bathing to reach drinks or towels, or it can protrude above the deck surface as a central design element that's comparatively fail-safe.

Redwood hot tub maintenance is minimal: checking chlorine levels with a color-coded water sampling kit, recharging the filter when necessary, and draining and cleaning the tub once or twice a year. Before buying, be sure to check out hot tub dealer service facilities and warranties for all parts.

REDWOOD GARDEN grades require no finishes, although applying water repellent with a mildewcide ensures top performance against dirt and weather. Bleaching oil produces a driftwood gray effect, while a wide variety of stains and paints can be applied over water repellent to produce different color tones.

Also recommended, top quality hot-dipped galvanized, stainless steel or aluminum nails and fastenings outlast electro-plated and un-galvanized hardware without staining wood.

Her own touch developed a new species, the Barnhaven Primrose, that became the mainstay of Florence Bellis's business and later Robert Goplerud's. "Now we're the only distributor of Barnhaven Primroses," Mrs. Smith said, "but over the years we've also branched into the rare flowers."

She plants trays of primrose seeds each winter for sale as seedlings in this area. Another non-seed product of the Far North Gardens is the tuber, like the Double Bloodroot that grows in the fields behind the greenhouse on the Auburndale property.

"Those we dig up in the fall and then ship them out," Mrs. Smith said.

SOME RECENT national recognition of the small firm has meant super-busy days for this young manager who prepared for her role by completing a course of study at DuPage Horticultural School in Chicago.

Last year an article in Family Circle magazine offered a free package of Edelweiss seed and a catalogue for 50 cents. That brought in some 100,000 replies — and business was booming at Far North Gardens.

"It's been our biggest year," understated Mrs. Smith. More recently, an article on Barnhaven Primroses in the January issue of the magazine Horticulture brought more attention — and more orders.

The mailing list is constantly being updated, Mrs. Smith said. So is the firm's catalogue, a volume made more interesting by use of lithographs from an old English book on gardening and by tiny line drawings Karen does. Mrs. Smith makes of the various flowers. It costs 75 cents and is available to those who send an order to Far North Gardens, 15621 Auburndale, Livonia, 48154.

It offers spring dreaming of faraway places, from a business close at hand.

Seed swap

firm keeps in touch with some 500 growers all over the world. These garden buffs buy seed from the lists of offerings in the catalogue.

When the flowers come up, they collect some of the seeds and ship them back to Far North Gardens, getting reimbursed by money or in trade.

Then Far North cleans and packages and the cycle begins again.

That's a simplified description for a business that ranges its rare wares from Acanthus mollis (Bears Breaches) to Zauschneria latifolia (Humming Birds Trumpet).

But it seems to work well. Mrs. Smith said,

"We list nearly 2,000 different genuses and species," she said, "and an amazing number of them grow well all over the world when given the right care."

THE PROCESS of seeding a wide market involves several careful processes and a few part-time helpers for Mrs. Smith. "We have hundreds of collectors who grow plants for us and harvest the seed," she said. "When the seeds arrive we clean them if that's needed (sometimes bits of soil or other parts of the plant cling) and then they go into a plastic box with silica to dry."

The next step is to package the various varieties in large envelopes and then store them under refrigeration to keep well-preserved.

Then they are packaged in small, air-tight envelopes to be ready to ship out again. That step is largely the responsibility of Barbara Iavasile, who comes in during the mornings to package. Janet Czapski and Mrs. Smith's sister, Jo Ann Kru-sinski, help sort and file orders and type labels.

ROBERT GOPLERUD'S business started largely with primroses, and his mentor with that bloom was a woman named Florence Bellis, whose story appears at the beginning of the Far North catalogue.

She retreated from cares of the Great Depression era to a barn and apple orchard in Oregon, the story goes, and in that haven began to grow flowers, especially primroses that she grew from seeds ordered from England.

Janet Czapski checks orders that come to Far North Gardens. Some recent national recognition has meant some super-busy days for the order filler. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Update

Scenery from scratch

Do you remember this picture that ran in last spring's Observer & Eccentric Home and Garden section? It's an exterior view of a green room—rather than a greenhouse—Mike and Mary Pulick added to their home. But that was only half the story of the couple's do-it-yourself efforts. The green room is revisited on page 24.

Expertise

Dried accents

Dried flower arrangements are a specialty with DOROTHY RUTYNA (see story on page 16-18). So is retrieving wild flowers whenever possible. She managed to save a patch of painted trillium from the bulldozer's jaws at one of Livonia's few remaining wooded areas. The protected species is now alive and well at Greenmead, Livonia's historical site.

Profile

Marvelous Minis

One of the first things RON BRENTON does when he comes home after teaching shorthand and typing at Detroit's McKenzie High School is to head out back to his potting shed where over 250 varieties of Marvelous Minis are waiting for him. Brenton, who has been an artificial light gardener (see story on page 12) for several years, has been hooked on minis for a long time. Only they weren't always flowers. First it was dwarf rabbits (hence the shed) and then it was pigeons. And now Brenton sees the cycle starting all over again. His young sons have been bugging him for some dwarf rabbits.

Personality

Blooming friendships

One of the advantages of having your own greenhouse is that you can have perky flowers and fresh blooms all through the house all year round. The other nice thing is that you can give friends plant gifts whenever you want to for whatever reason. That's what LIZ DOUGHERTY (see story pages 4-6) does. Guests usually get some kind of floral memento. Her only request is that if the plant dies, please to return the pot.

Turnabout is fare play

Story by MARIE MCGEE

Liz Dougherty likes to do needlepoint and grow things. She doesn't necessarily like to cook. Her husband, Bob, likes to cook — gourmet-type fare — as well as plain, everyday hamburger quiche or chicken casserole.

Both like to give parties.

TO ACCOMMODATE their lifestyle, the couple decided to make some changes in their typical four-bedroom Livonia colonial-styled house. The end result was a home environment that functions beautifully for the way the family lives and also reflects the personalities of its owners. One major change made two years ago — and since copied by a relative and several neighbors — was simple but effective.

To give the couple more room to entertain at the sit-down dinners which Bob loves to cook, they switched the house's generous-sized living room into a dining room.

The smaller dining room then became a cozy conversational area where friends can sit comfortably close to each other for a barrier-free flow of conversation.

Further dressing-down came with Bob's installation of a ceiling-high shelf for accessories that runs around the entire room.

Naturally, the whole house has an abundance of needlepoint and flowers. And that involves another addition the couple made about four years ago: a greenhouse.

With the help of a few friends, Bob installed the 9-by-12-foot greenhouse that is connected to the house by a doorway that was once a window in the former dining room area.

"IT WAS LIKE putting together a giant erector set," he recalled. The project took longer than it was supposed to because the company failed to include all the necessary parts.

"We'd get so far and then find something was missing. We'd call the company in Cleveland and have to wait a week for the part."

In the kitchen Bob operates — with the help of 32 cookbooks — from a 450-pound maple butcher block that he retrieved from a Detroit inner-city resale shop handling used store equipment.

Bob Dougherty (above) mixes a drink from the vintage kitchen cabinet that doubles as a bar in the family room. At the right, he rules the roost in the kitchen where the focal point is a 450-pound maple butcher's block from whence many a gourmet dinner comes about.

Liz Dougherty sets the table in the living room turned dining room.

Far North Gardens

Primrose path to rare wares

By MARGARET MILLER

If your passion is for growing and showing rare flowers — maybe the famed Edelweiss from the Alps — you're likely to order the seeds from a Livonia firm known as Far North Gardens.

Of course, those seeds may have been grown in California or Holland or even Switzerland, but they are packaged and mailed out by the unusual firm that serves as clearing house for the growing of several thousand species of garden plants.

Far North Gardens, located at 15621 Auburndale, doesn't cater to walk-in business. But local gardeners, like those in far corners of the world, avail themselves of the opportunity to order all sorts of rare seeds listed in its 49-page catalogue.

Far North Gardens is a business that was organized about 15 years ago by Livonian Robert Goplerud. He now is seriously ill, but the work of collecting, sorting and selling seeds and shoots goes on under the direction of Karen Jean Smith, the young woman who he first hired when she was a neighbor girl and who went on in botanical study to become his partner.

It was black with grease until Bob took it out on the driveway

ABOVE: An old-fashioned ice box helps solve the storage problem in the Dougherty dining room. RIGHT: One of the first accent pieces guests see when they enter the dining room is this charming old-style commode. Liz did the needlepoint, "God Bless Our Home," — and the shamrock, of course.

The couple meet regularly with four other couples for gourmet affairs. Bob, incidentally, is the only male cook in the group. He learned to cook in the army and that's why "crowds don't bother me," he adds.

It's the Doughertys turn next month to be dinner hosts. Bob is already gearing up for the feast. On the menu will be wild turkey (which he shot himself) with all the trimmings. "It'll be Thanksgiving Day in May," he smiles.

If her husband is king in the kitchen, Liz Dougherty is queen of the greenhouse the couple added to her home. A leaded glass door found in her mother-in-law's attic makes a perfect complement. The greenhouse is in full view of the living-room-turned-dining-room used for entertaining.

Beat garden blahs with new varieties

Even the most dedicated gardener gets bored with the same old tomatoes and beans year after year. If your garden is in a rut, Extension specialists at Michigan State University suggest trying some new crops, or at least some new varieties of your old favorites.

For instance, gardeners who like Oriental foods may want to try growing some of the ingredients. Chinese cabbage, mustard cabbage, Chinese kale, vegetable soybeans and white radishes are among the possibilities.

Edible podded peas are another. Pods picked before they start to bulge with peas are sweet and crunchy. They can be planted as early as you can work the soil. They mature in about two months, so they're one of the first crops to be ready for harvest.

THIS YEAR THERE'S a new wrinkle in edible podded peas. Sugar snap, an all-America gold medal winner for 1979, as billed as an edible podded snap pea that can be eaten even when it's filled with peas. It also offers an advantage over ordinary shelled peas: it provides about twice as much edible matter per foot of row. Sugar snap can be steamed, stir-fried or snapped and eaten raw in salads. It freezes well but cannot be canned. Canning, like overcooking,

One of the newer variety of seeds is this butterfly squash (Burpee) that needs only one-quarter of the space needed for the usual vining types

Any seed catalog is full of ideas for the adventurous. MSU Extension specialists advise a degree of restraint, however. Stuck with varieties you know you can depend on for the bulk of your food production. Try new crops or varieties on a limited trial basis. Abandon tried-and-true performers only when you know you've found something better.

Lawns need attention

If April is here, can spring be far behind? To get ready for it, Michigan State University Extension specialists suggest the following lawn and garden activities.

Dethatch your lawn in early April to remove matted grass and other debris. Seed bare spots with a blend of bluegrass varieties or bluegrass and red fescue (for shaded areas). Loosen the soil surface before seeding. Then rake the seed in and firm the soil. Keep newly seeded areas moist until grass is well established. Rake lawns to remove twigs, leaves and other debris.

Roll severely frost-heaved lawns to level the turf. If rolling is necessary, do it before the turf dries out. Rolling after the lawn dries will do little good.

If you didn't take your lawnmower in for an overhaul and sharpening last fall, do it now. Hold off fertilizing your bluegrass lawn this spring until the second half of May, especially if you applied a complete fertilizer or nitrogen in late fall. Early spring fertilizing and quick spring green-up have been linked to the development of Fusarium blight in susceptible bluegrass varieties. Wait to fertilize until the lawn begins to lose its dark green color.

If you had a crabgrass problem last year, take steps to prevent it from returning.

Plan new gardens and tree and shrub plantings, and order plants soon. Move or plant ornamental trees and shrubs before the leaves come out. Leave the moving of large trees to your local nurseryman, who is trained and equipped to do the job efficiently and safely.

Prune the old fruiting canes of red raspberries and thin out the weaker new canes. Cut self-supporting plants back to about 4 1/2 feet. Prune trees and grape vines. Do not prune spring-flowering shrubs like lilacs and forsythia unless they have been damaged. Pruning now would remove the buds for this year's flowers. Uncover, prune and fertilize established roses in late March. Be sure to remove all winter-damaged canes.

Love in bloom First rose, then lily, now it's iris

By SUSAN ROGERS

"Nothing can touch them for sheer elegance," says William (Bill) Simon of Westland. His eyes shine as he speaks of his favorite subject, the iris.

The tall, stately flowers that bloom in nearly every color of the rainbow (even their name means rainbow) constitute most of Simon's yard. The rest of the yard contains Simon's other love, the daylily or hemerocallis.

Simon, who began seriously breeding irises and daylilies when he retired several years ago, began growing irises 30 years ago, and daylilies several years after that.

"It's very hard work," he said. "I do it out of sheer love for the flowers — the reward is so great."

SIMON IS REPUTED to have one of the finest collections of daylilies in the area. And his iris garden — with its more than 300 varieties — has drawn nationwide attention.

There is little grass in the Simon yard. His many irregular shaped beds of irises and daylilies take up most of the area. He even has a plot of land across the street from his home where he plants the seedlings he gets after crossing the different varieties.

In late May til mid-July, Simon's "yard" literally lights up with color. From the brightest purples and blues and pinks of the irises, to the delicate yellows, pinks and oranges of the daylilies, it is a vast sea of color.

THE RATHER SHORT blooming season of the iris is followed by the more lengthy blooming season of the daylily after a period of about two weeks. Simon doesn't mind that so much time and work goes into just a few short weeks of glory.

"When the season is over, I'm ready to hang it up," he said. Although irises and daylilies really don't have anything in common, Simon said, a great many iris growers also grow daylilies.

"They're compatible because of the growing seasons. The daylilies give your garden one more shot at blooming before fall."

YOU COULD SAY Simon grew up with a green thumb. His parents ran a greenhouse when he was a boy, and he became familiar with the ways of the grower.

At age 25, he took the sweepstakes prize at the Detroit Rose Show. His first love was roses before the tall, beautiful irises caught his eye.

Hybridizing began to take a great deal of Simon's time when he retired. Two of his iris creations were selected by judges for a "H.C." — high commendation, which means they are worthy of introduction to the American Iris Society, Simon explained. Simon feels great strides have been made in the breeding of irises over the years. He said they are far superior to the irises of 25 years ago, and they keep getting better.

"The petals are wider now. We have ruffling of the petals and there are far many more colors. Twenty-five years ago there were pink shades in irises."

IRISES, WHICH ARE best at a height of about 30 inches, said Simon, do not have a true red shade now. Iris growers also are currently striving for a white iris with a blue beard (the fuzzy part inside the petals).

Growers also try for good branching and substance in the flowers. Branching refers to how well the plant displays or holds its bloom and substance is how hardy the actual bloom is.

The daylily, which has multiple buds on three-foot-18-inch stems, have long slender leaves similar to a spider plant. The beautiful delicate blooms only last one day, being put into them. There are curhence the name. But there are more blooms standing by to take its place each day.

Simon said great strides are being made in daylilies today because more time and effort is being put into them. There are cur-

"Then I could say I was the one who did it. Growing these flowers is more than a hobby," he said.

"Only my family is more important than my flowers. I even dream about them at night."

Think big as in RenCen

By SUZIE ROLLINS

Sophistication has hit residential plant owners. The days are over when they settled for small greenery throughout their homes. Today, they demand large, high quality, one-of-a-kind specimens.

That's the word from Steve George, 30, co-owner of PlanTerra, a tropical greenhouse in Troy. George, and his partner Larry Pliska, 32, are credited with doing the "interior scaping" of Detroit's Renaissance Center and Plaza Hotel, Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi, the Northfield Hilton and Sheffield Office Plaza in Troy, Eastland, Northland and numerous residences.

The pair, both natives of Birmingham, have been in business five years, and George says that his residential accounts which encompass 25 percent of his total business has changed drastically. "People are more aware of all the different types of plants available. They are getting away from the kinky-dink small stuff," George notes. "A resident will usually spend about $200 for one plant, and then buy some smaller plants to go along with it."

Commercial businesses have also changed their outlook on greenery, George explains. Although they will usually spend a little less for a major plant, around $85 he says, they are filling their offices with lush foliage.

"Architects have also changed the commercial business. Today they are designing buildings with plants in mind. They put in skylights and atriums, which is a change over the last few years where they designed the buildings then just scattered the plants around," he explains.

RENCE HAS been PlanTerra's largest account, totaling nearly $500,000 when the job was finally completed. They contracted the work in March 1977 and finished it in March 1979.

benjamins, 10,000 ivies, two dozen kentias and 800 flowering mums in the gigantic office structure. During the first year, 25 trees died, and during the second year six trees were lost.

George attributes the minimal loss, 10 percent and average, he says, to the trees' inability to adjust to their interior environment. Some of the ivy, however, has experienced tremendous growth, reaching 25 feet in the two years.

"Most of the mistakes made in the building as far as the plants are concerned were architectural," George says. "When we first planted, there weren't any drainage or irrigation systems built in, but they are there now."

Calling their greenhouse, "the most exotic in the Midwest," George prides himself on their specially hand-picked plants. "We go down to Florida ourselves and pick the plants," he adds.

Coleus: good shady friend

If you've lived quite while in the same house, you are probably wondering how to brighten shady spots in your yard near big trees that were saplings a few years ago. You can turn these shady area into assets although at first you may only consider them problems.

How? The solution, according to Jeannette Low, a seed company horticulturist, is by choosing suitable varieties of flowers and foliage plants to brighten these oases of shade. Try to raise sun-lovers...zinnias, marigolds, petunias and you'll have weak, spindly plants with little or no bloom. Instead grow coleus, impatiens and vinca rosea in subdued light areas of your yard for care-free, attractive, summer-to-fall color.

COLEUS GAINS immediate attention with its kaleidoscopic foliage in many different leaf patterns and color combinations. It's fun to grow your own plants from seed and watch the intriguing designs and shades develop.

The first pair of leaves is solid green, but locked in the coleus shapes.

"computer" are hundreds of different color and pattern forms that start showing with the second pair of leaves...rich salmon, bright rose, velvety crimson and glowing gold shades interlaced or edged with green and other tints.

Use coleus for an eye-catching border along the shady side of a building or property line; in shady areas near trees; in pots or planter boxes on shady patios; in the hollowed-out stump of a tree in a woody place. If some shady spots merge into sunshine, coleus is versatile enough to thrive in either.

THERE ARE many kinds of coleus to choose from, either separate colors of flamboyant mixtures. Carefree stays dwarf and busy all season and has interesting, finely divided and lobed, oak-like foliage.

A new mixture, Paisly Patches, is a flashy blend of some of the most modern and best kinds of coleus, not only for pastel to brilliant color combinations, but also for a variety of different leaf shapes.

Sometimes

By SHERRY KAHAN

The wild flowers that peek up from the hill behind the Adamson house in Livonia are not all there through the work of Mother Nature.

King and Florence Adamson helped a lot. Not always a careful housekeeper, Mother Nature had neglected to control the rampant growth of witchhazel, blackberry branches and a riot of ragweed.

"Once the competing plants were taken out, the wild flowers spread enormously," said Mrs. Adamson. "We protect them. We don't pick them, and we make sure they are surrounded by trees."

"All these plants want sun in the spring before the trees come out. But in summer they have to have shade."

To the evergreens, sugar maples, black oak, ironwood and black cherry trees already overlooking a water runoff ravine running into Bell Creek, the Adamsons made additions. They planted hemlock, white fir, white pine, crabapples and dogwood.

Their bank of the ravine starts to come into its own in April and May. Then the wildflowers already there when the couple moved in in 1947 find their place in the sun. Bloodroot, trillium, spring beauty, adder's tongue and hepatica all spring up to say hello. With what the "y" Adamsons have contributed, it adds up to 50-60 different varieties of wild flowers and plants.

"Florence likes to keep it as natural as possible," commented Adamson. "She likes to let a branch stay where it falls."

However, she does like to print up the names of many of the flowers, place them on sticks and push them in the ground. In this way those who come for a look have help in identifying the various varieties.

Ma Nature needs a little bit of help

IT IS HARD TO BELIEVE that their beautiful, quiet haven is only a few yards from busy Inkster Road.

It was not always that beautiful. They still remember the amount of junk in the ravine that greeted them when they moved in 33 years ago.

"It was used as a dump," recalled Adamson. "We must have taken a couple tons of junk out of there in the first two or three years."

And once the debris was gone, the hard-working Adamson began pulling out the heavy growth that was smothering the wild flowers. But now many years later things are a little easier. There are still a few weeds to pull, but not very many.

New treasures are added from time to time.

"Friends give me new plants to put in," she said. "One day I went with a friend to an area where a subdivision was being started. They were bulldozing the wild flowers by the yard full. We rescued a lot of them."

"It does something for you when you can do that. And it is nice to be able to restore an area."

But like many gardeners, Mrs. Adamson sometimes has a hard time getting a plant to take. "I'm having trouble getting one of my mine."

favorite to spread," she noted. "It's the rue anemone. It has tiny white flowers on four-inch stems with lacey foliage."

To those who might be interested in starting their own wild flower patch, Mrs. Adamson suggests they consult seed and plant catalogs. "I don't know of a local place that sells them," she said.

Leave the leaves on the ground of the area to be planted, she advised. They add fertilizer to the soil and keep it cool and damp.

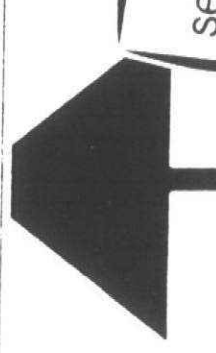

"But don't dump it in high piles," she added. "Keep the weeds out. Once you begin to get interested in growing wild flowers, you will get more and more interested."

"I like just to sit and look at mine."

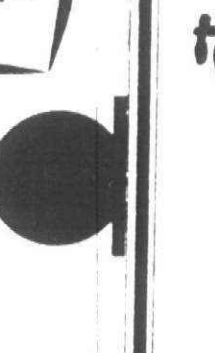

Waiting for spring to pull her wild flowers Livonia. Their identification markers await them also. (Staff photo by Sherry Kahan).
