Citizens petition against sludge dumping

A petition drive to stop the dumping and composting of sludge in Canton Township has been launched by two residents who fear metals contained in the waste may be dangerous to human health.

Lynn LaBell and Hilda Matzo believe the petitions will show township-wide opposition to a proposed sludge composting operation on Michigan Avenue and a two-month-old practice of dumping the waste at a Canton landfill.

Bi-Product Systems of Michigan has proposed the composting operation on a 140-acre site near Michigan Avenue and Morton Taylor to meet terms of a three-year contract with the City of Detroit for sludge disposal.

The firm has been dumping 300 to 400 tons of sludge a day at Woodland Meadows Sanitary Landfill on Hannan south of Michigan until a composting site can be put into operation.

The township planning commission is expected to review site plans for the compost site on June 11.

MRS. LaBELL and Mrs. Matzo live miles away from both waste disposal sites in Sunflower Village Subdivision. They insist, however, that approval of a composting operation would affect all residents of the township.

One set of petitions which they began circulating last Friday asks the township board to disapprove site plans for the composting operation. Other petitions ask township officials to take legal action that would stop the dumping of sludge at Woodland Meadows.

"We realize they have to have places like this," Mrs. LaBell said of the waste disposal sites. "But we feel they should go in low-populated areas."

"There are just too many unanswered questions," she said of the potentially dangerous metals that are contained in the sludge. "I'd like them to guarantee us that those metals won't go into our water. I fear for our children very much."

Mrs. LaBell said 20 to 30 opponents of the sludge plan are distributing petitions throughout Canton Township to get a "sample" of residents' views. She expects a particularly strong response from homeowners who live near Walker Elementary School, which is located a half-mile from the landfill area.

ACCORDING TO WALKER principal James Edwards, the smell of sludge has bothered children in the school on two occasions during the past month when the wind has blown from the southeast.

Edwards said children suffered from red, watery eyes and some complained of queasy stomachs.

Mrs. LaBell said no one has refused to sign the petitions against the sludge disposal sites.

"When you mention sludge to people, you don't have to explain it either," she said. "Most all the people are against it (the dumping)."

Mrs. LaBell said the petitions will be circulated until May 29. Besides gathering signatures from Canton residents, workers are also asking township businesspersons and residents from surrounding communities to sign the anti-sludge petitions.

Teenager leads police on subdivision chase

A 17-year-old Canton youth led four police cars and a helicopter on a wild chase through subdivision streets and farming areas Sunday night after a Wayne County Sheriff's deputy attempted to stop the youth for running a stop sign.

The Wayne County Prosecutor's Office has issued a warrant charging Bryant Dale Charney of 45716 Bartlett with reckless driving and fleeing from a police officer. Arraignment was tentatively scheduled for Wednesday in Canton's 35th District Court.

The fleeing charge is a high misdemeanor which carries a maximum $1,000 fine and one year in jail.

After leading police on the midnight chase through north-central Canton, Charney was finally apprehended in a corn field near Beck and Warren by Canton patrol officer Kathy Petres.

But before the approximate 40-minute chase had ended, two Sheriff patrol cars had been damaged, one residential lawn had been ripped up and a recently-planted corn crop had been destroyed.

The chase began at approximately 11:50 p.m. after a patrolling sheriff deputy allegedly saw Charney run a stop sign at the exit of the Kmart shopping center at Ford and Sheldon.

According to police, Charney almost hit the patrol car. Officer Edwin Rasmussen signaled the youth to stop at Sheldon and Westminster, but Charney allegedly turned onto the residential street instead.

A chase through Carriage Hills and Nottingham Forest subdivision subdivisions followed.

A police helicopter, two additional Sheriff patrol cars and a Canton police car joined in the pursuit that led to other residential areas south of Ford and west of Sheldon.

According to police, Charney was traveling at speeds of 50 to 70 miles an hour.

One sheriff patrol car ran into a ditch at Warren and Canton Center after chasing Charney through a field. According to a Sheriff Department spokesman, one patrol car lost a muffler in the pursuit and another suffered body damage from hitting Charney's 1970 Dodge in an effort to stop the vehicle.

A corn crop recently planted by farmer Dwight Wilkin in the field near Warren and Beck where the chase finally ended was destroyed, police said.

Det. Walter Holowka of the Sheriff's Department said Charney was upset at the time of the chase following a quarrel with a girlfriend.

Residents of the area reported hearing screeching tires, police sirens and helicopters overhead.

"I jumped out of bed and looked out the window," said one resident of Windsor Park who was awakened by the commotion. "It sounded like a plane was crashing."

Subs like anti-crime program

Representatives from many Canton homeowners' associations are hoping a program similar to one in Redford Township may help them fight crime.

The concept of beginning a neighborhood watch program has drawn the support of Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert, who says he will try to get Township Board approval to set up a local Canton version.

The neighborhood watch program was explained to members of the Westbrooke subdivision homeowners' association at a Monday night meeting to which representatives from other subdivisions were invited.

On hand for the presentation were Township Board members Culbert, James Donahue, John Flodin and Eugene Daley. Officer Chris Horn, of the Redford Township crime prevention bureau, described how the program works and showed a movie about home protection.

According to Horn, Redford's neighborhood watch program has been extremely effective since it was instituted four years ago.

"In four years, only 10 of our neighborhood watch homes have been broken into," Horn said.

Horn said Redford's program involves assigning code numbers to each home in a block. If people in neighborhood watch blocks see anything suspicious going on, they can call the police and identify themselves only by code number.

"No one but the crime prevention bureau and the block captain knows who is assigned to the code number. We don't even tell the regular police. If they want information, we will call the person and relay it back," Horn said.

The officer said people are more inclined to call if they do not have to identify themselves. He said the crime prevention bureau, separate from the regular police department, calls back people who report incidents to let them know what happened.

The neighborhood watch program also involves instruction in home protection. Horn said the block members meet with the crime prevention bureau every five months to see a new program and brush up on crime protection.

Horn said a similar program in Canton would work well because the town-

Take a tiger by the tail

By LYNN ORR

Cindy Richards' mother is a little worried about her daughter's coed rooming situation.

Sylvester and Jenny may be all right, but the two leopards are something to meow about.

Ms. Richards, 19, will attend a one-month seminar to learn all about training wild animals this August. Sylvester and Jenny (affectionate names for two wolves) and the leopards are slated as her roommates at the Howling Wolf Lodge in Leggett, Calif.

"I don't know if they're going to be in cages," she said. But she's not worried.

"My mom's afraid I'm going to get mauled by a lion, but you can get killed in a car too. I'd rather get eaten by a lion," she explained.

DAVID AND MILANNE Richards of Plymouth Township have one consolation. Pat Derby, a 20-year veteran of the business, will be on hand to supervise.

And Christopher can testify to her expertise.

He's the big cat that sells Cougars for Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division. Ms. Richards knows all about him.

Throughout her childhood she told her father, a Ford employee, that she wanted to "train that kitty."

This summer she'll get her chance.

A knee injury from a skiing accident last winter derailed the '77 Plymouth-Salem High grad's course. After two years at Grand Valley State, majoring in business marketing and advertising, she was planning to enter the University of Michigan for the winter term.

"But I was going through the motions and decided not to waste my time. For three months, I couldn't move and had nothing to do, except make telephone calls.

"I decided to try and find out who trained those animals. I called around to different ad agencies, and finally called the auto show."

At that point she connected with Ms. Derby, who promised to send information about her summer seminars at her orphanage for wild animals.

After two months of correspondence, Ms. Richards was set on her westward course. Other than the plane ticket, the seminar is free. In exchange for working at the lodge, waiting on tables and taking care of the animals, she'll attend classes for about five hours a day, learning all about affection training.

MS. DERBY doesn't use electric shocks or other devices to coax her animals into performing.

CINDY RICHARDS

"She basically shows people how she and the animals get along. She wrestles with them."

That's not as difficult as it sounds, according to Ms. Richards. Ms. Derby simply sits behind Christopher and tickles his tail to get him to flick it for the commercial.

For that ferocious pawing action, she simply plays with the big cat.

"It's all a game," Ms. Richards explained. "But you always have to remember that they're wild animals. If you forget that, you get into trouble."

Her goal is to work with Christopher or his twin at the end of the summer. During the last week of the seminar, interns are required to handle an animal of their choice, including unloading the animal, presenting it to the audience and perhaps getting a little performance.

Although the wild animal orphanage includes elephants, great apes, wolves and hyenas, the big cats — leopards, cheetahs, lions and tigers — are Ms. Richards' favorites.

Not quite household pets like her bunny and kitty, but cats just the same, many of them were brought to the orphanage because their owners discovered they need a bit more care than Kitty Litter and scratching posts.

Ms. Derby doesn't believe in taking wild animals out of their environment.

"She tries to make it a little better for the ones that have been captured," a philosophy Ms. Richards shares.

Looking a little further down the career road doesn't exactly show a whole lot of promise.

Symphony head to retire

Wayne Dunlap, conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra for 28 years, has announced that he will take an early retirement and will move to Texas sometime during the summer months.

He has also resigned from his position as director of fine arts at Grand Valley State Colleges in Grand Rapids. Dunlap commuted from Grand Rapids to Plymouth for orchestra rehearsals and concerts.

He told the Board of Directors of the Plymouth Symphony Society of his decision at a recent meeting. Concert dates and plans for the 1979-80 season had been formulated. A committee to find a new director was appointed.

Fran Lang, president of the society board, said they plan to go with guest conductors until a replacement is found.

THE COMMUNITY'S reaction to Dunlap's retirement was typified by William Beitner, charter member of the symphony.

"This is a real shocker," said Beitner. "I enjoyed playing under him — a marvelous conductor and a marvelous friend. He came to the orchestra at a crucial time, the orchestra was just five years old and Paul Wagner was leaving."

"Wayne attracted musicians that have stayed for years. He has done so much for orchestra personnel. His programming was excellent. I know there is no other orchestra in which I could have read such good music."

"He always said that when the grandchildren of the original players joined the orchestra, it would be time for him to retire. We've had the children of some of the originals, but we haven't had the grandchildren."

"He is a fabulous individual."

Norma Cassidy has been a supporter of the orchestra since it was founded 34 years ago. She was a symphony booster back in the days when a barn was used for a rehearsal hall.

"I can't say enough in praise of Wayne," she said. "He's meant a lot to me and to Plymouth."

"But these times come. We have been blessed by all the good things he's done for us so we can't help but be happy for him. I wish him every possible good thing and I will continue to support the orchestra."

WAYNE DUNLAP was born in Cameron, Mo. He graduated from Texas Christian University and the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester, N.Y.

He served in the U.S. Army and Air Force 1942-46 and was on the faculty of American Army University Centers in Shreveport, England and Biarritz, France, 1945-46. On his return to the United States, he was on the faculty of the University of Michigan until 1953.

He began conducting the Plymouth Symphony in 1951 and moved to Plymouth in 1954. During the summers he studied at the L'Ecole Montaux and was awarded a Fulbright grant for study in Austria in 1955.

He and his family spent the year in Vienna while he attended the Akademie fur Musik und Darstellende.

DUNLAP founded the Grosse Pointe Symphony. He conducted the Detroit Women's Symphony and the Saginaw, Muskegon and Grand Rapids symphonies. He directed the orchestra and opera workshops at the University of Michigan for seven years.

He is past president of the Michigan Civic Orchestra Association and was a

School publication earns state honor

Coupons for improvement of teaching in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have won first prize in a statewide publications contest.

Michigan School Public Relations Association has announced the award for "EPIC" coupon booklet, the product of Elementary Professional staff involved in Curriculum.

Coupon book editors were Dr. Barbara Bowman, executive director of elementary education, and Luan Brownlee and Barbara Schoolmeesters, learning specialists.

The booklet was developed to publicize a series of teacher inservice programs from Jan. 16 through March 19 of this year.

Prizes, reservations, refreshments, and practical tips were available to teachers for only $1 and their time after school. Ideas for EPIC were developed by all the elementary school learning specialists.

"Elements of Fiction — Character, Plot, Setting," "Enriching a Child's Creative Writing," "Young Illustrators" Workshop, and "Refining the product: Editing" were among the topics presented to the large group of teachers who attended the EPIC sessions at the district's elementary schools.

The prize-winning booklet is written in a lively and personal style. Training sessions, for instance, are called "pep rallies."

When Judy Ireson, Field Elementary assistant principal, taught about motivating children to write, the title was "Write the Crest of the Wave."

Different color pages and a coupon-sized format helped to make the EPIC book unusual. Line drawings illustrate the booklet, which was distributed to all elementary teachers.

EPIC building representatives were: Vada Starr, Allen Elementary; Terry Secord, Bird Elementary; Ann Neiswander, Eriksson Elementary; Irene Finkbeiner, Farrand Elementary; Sandy Lanese, Fiegel Elementary; Ms. Brownlee, Field Elementary; Ms. Schoolmeesters, Gallimore Elementary; Cheryl Monthei, Hulsing Elementary; Jackie Whiting, Isbister Elementary; Connie Peterson, Miller Elementary; Tina Powell, Smith Elementary; Kilo Phillippi, Starkweather Elementary; and Paula Holmes, Tanger Elementary.

Energy waste

Editor:

We would like to inform Canton taxpayers of a wasteful practice being implemented by some of our township officials.

Would you leave your car running while attending a meeting for five or 10 minutes, even half an hour or more, so that when you return to your car it would be cool or warm, whichever the case may be depending on the weather?

It has come to our attention that some of our township officials do this on a regular basis while using a township car and gas.

The following people receive complimentary cars from the township: the township supervisor, clerk, finance director, building inspectors, and ordinance inspectors.

If some of these people have so little regard for how they spend our tax dollars that they can consciously waste fuel that is becoming so scarce and costly, maybe it is time that they use their own car and pay for their own gas.

We are sure that if this were the case they would quickly become aware of this costly waste and they would also become more energy conscious and not so free with the dollar.

ship's subdivisions have fewer access roads than Redford neighborhoods. "Plus, our homeowners' associations are not as active as yours."

Horn said a crime prevention bureau could be started up with two officers at a cost of $60,000 to $70,000 a year. He said the Redford program first began as a combined program with Dearborn Heights under a federal Law Enforcement Administration Agency grant.

He suggested Canton look into similar grants and begin a program with one person, then work up to a larger staff as the need grows.

Dunlap retires

director of the Michigan Council for the Arts.

When Schoolcraft Community College was built, he was the first director of music and head of the fine arts department. He went from there to Grand Valley.

Outstanding guest soloists who performed with the Plymouth Symphony revealed the feeling of mutual esteem between the conductor and the musician.

When violinist Mischa Mischakoff appeared with the orchestra, there was almost 40 years of friendship, affection and high regard between the men.

The former concertmaster of the Detroit Symphony the NBC, Chicago and New York symphonies expressed his respect for Dunlap: "I am extremely fond of Wayne. He is an outstanding conductor and I have a high regard for his talent and also the kind of man he is."

Wayne and Lenore Dunlap are looking forward to their retirement years on a small Texas farm where he says, "I may become a gentleman farmer."

Grants available

Canton Township is again inviting interested, eligible residents to apply for direct grants under the housing rehabilitation program.

Improvements to bring a house up to code, such as new roofs, furnace replacement or repair, porch repair and electrical or plumbing installation will be eligible under this program.

The grants are offered by the township in cooperation with Wayne County.

The following family income maximums, representing 60 percent of the Detroit area's median income, will be used to determine eligibility:

One person, $11,550; two persons, $12,750; three persons, $14,350; four persons, $15,900; five persons, $16,900; six persons, $17,900; seven persons, $18,900; and eight persons or more, $19,900.

Canton residents wishing to apply should contact the housing grant administrator at Canton Township Hall, 1150 South Canton Center Road, 397-1000. Only Canton residents of certain areas in the township are eligible.

John S. Hall of Plymouth won $5,000 in the new "Home Run" instant Michigan lottery game.

On the average, one ticket in four will win a prize in the instant game. Prizes range from a free ticket to $5,000, Hall's winning sum.

Commissioners ask township for flood talks

Plymouth city commissioners may draw attention to nagging flooding problems along Tonquish Creek by slapping a lawsuit on the township board.

Commissioners Tuesday adjourned their public session to discuss the matter privately with City Attorney Charles Lowe. The commissioners were visibly upset by what some charged is stalling on the part of township trustees, who repeatedly have been asked to deal with the chronic flooding problems — problems which overflow into city residents' basements and businesses.

The city commission, at the township's suggestion, appointed a three-person committee to meet with the township's flood plain study group.

But city officials, displeased because the township says there is no reason to meet until a county-commissioned engineering study of the problem area is finished in four weeks, threatened legal action.

CITY OFFICIALS urgently requested township trustees meet with them after downtown businesses again suffered water damage, after heavy rains April 13.

The township responded by proposing a city commission-appointed committee to meet with it's committee — a suggestion which didn't sit well with at least two commissioners, Beverly McAnich and Mary Childs.

At the city commission's informal session prior to the regular meeting Tuesday, they charged township trustees are stalling.

The township appointed McAnich, fellow commissioner David Pugh and West to its committee which is to meet with the township's flood plain group. Later, the commission closed its doors for an executive session with attorney Lowe.

"I don't believe having the city form a citizens committee to meet with the township's committee will help because the detailed aspects of the solution is very technical," said Mayor Tom Turner. "It will be far better for our engineer, a professional, to meet with their committee."

"The commission wanted to meet with trustees to discuss the broader issues of the problem, not the specific details involved in the solution. Apparently, that wasn't understood by the township," the mayor added.

IN RELATED ACTIONS, the city applied for federal Community Development Act funds to finance two anti-flooding measures.

One step involves placing grates over drain tiles — similar to the grate now at the Harvey Street drain — at locations on Evergreen and Sheldon which are upstream from the downtown business area. Placement of the grates may prevent debris from blocking the drains.

The commission also is seeking federal money to install an early warning system to alert residents and merchants when it appears flooding may occur. The system would involve a float device which, at high water times, would activate an alarm in the police or fire departments.

West is exploring the possibility of storing sandbags in the city's main downtown parking lot so they will be available if flooding occurs.

Further, West discovered a private drain on Lutheran Church property on Penniman Avenue that doesn't meet state requirements. He has turned information about the faulty drain over to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which has enforcement responsibility.

your summer place

Even with fold-up, take-along furniture, Englander's wouldn't settle for anything less than heavy, anodized frames with weather-resistant arms and mar-preventing leg glides. And carefree vinyl straps in colorful combinations that will last for years.

And at these prices, you don't have to settle for anything less, either. (And you take it home to enjoy right away!)

But that's just what you'd expect from the place with the largest selection of better patio furniture (Woodard, Ficks Reed, Tropitone and more), at better prices.

So why spend more somewhere else. And get less.

by GUNDELLA

Could you adjust in a future life?

Dear Gundella: What do you believe about cryogenics? To me it sounds like science fiction. Do you think it can possibly work? Do you consider it immoral?

Hilda, Garden City

DEAR HILDA: Cryogenics is the name given to the process of freezing the human body upon the occurrence of death or mercy freezing just prior to death.

The body is then preserved in this frozen state until such time as medical science perfects a cure for whatever was killing that person.

Hopefully, if this plan works, the cryogenics people will then revive the frozen body and administer the cure.

This would allow the subject to live on and enjoy — or at least experience — a few more years of life in his old, familiar body.

YOU ASKED HOW I feel about it. Well, I am not well enough acquainted with the scientific aspects of it to comment on whether it would be possible to accomplish this physically. But many people have believed strongly enough to raise enormous sums of money to finance this work.

Several bodies do lie in a frozen state at this time, awaiting revival at some future date.

Assuming this could be successfully accomplished, it would seem to me the poor patient undergoing such an ordeal might soon wish he had remained dead.

Imagine the loneliness you would experience in such a situation. All the people you had known and loved in this lifetime would be dead and gone, or reincarnated into new forms to play roles in life different from the what they did in this one.

They would have new lives, new outlooks and be fully oriented to that new time and place.

YOU, HOWEVER, would be in your old body, with your old memories, and a brain that cannot begin to comprehend the events that occurred during the hundred or so years you were lying comatose in an icebox.

Prisoners of war often commit suicide after they are freed to return home because they cannot cope with the changes that 10 or 12 years have brought.

Prisoners released from penal institutions will sometimes break the law deliberately, hoping to be caught and sent back to prison because they have been away so long that they cannot adjust to present society.

I PERSONALLY expect to be alive 200 years from now, in a human form. I believe in reincarnation, and I believe I will be born again into new lifetimes where I can learn and grow in those times.

I would not go so far as to say that cryogenics is immoral. That is not for me to judge. But even if I did not believe in reincarnation, I would not personally choose to be canned, dried, frozen, freeze-dried, or preserved in any form.

You might say I believe in recycling, for am in accord with the text of Ecclesiastes 12:7:

"Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it."

That way, we are ready for whatever naturally comes next.

State house to hear '79 school aid bill

An amendment that could mean more state aid for Plymouth-Canton schools will have rough going before the full house, as members consider the $1.5 billion 1979-80 school aid bill.

That's the prediction of State Rep. Robert Law, R-Livonia, a member of the house appropriations subcommittee on education.

Up 9.5 percent, $73 million over last year's budget, the bill also is $26 million higher than Governor William Milliken's recommendation. Among other provisions, the bills includes an amendment that could provide an extra $350,000 for districts like Plymouth-Canton that are increasing in enrollment.

Law said the amendment will be difficult to keep in the bill, but he was encouraged by strong support from area legislators.

The committee also defeated a motion to delete $23 million earmarked for schools with declining enrollment, according to Law.

THE SCHOOL aid formula provides a basic $320 payment per student with a guaranteed yield of $43 for every mill levied up to 30 mills and an additional $43 for every two mills levied above that.

The current formula is based on a $274 payment, plus $40 for each mill up to 30, he explained.

"For those districts which may be forced to roll back their millage rates under the new Headlee amendment, the bill contains a guaranteed support level. It would provide 105 percent of last year's per pupil allowance."

The guarantee differs from the governor's recommendation that payments be made as if rollbacks did not occur.

"For instance, if a district levying up to 30 mills had to roll back to 29 mills, the schools would be paid as if the district were still at the 30 mill rate," Law adds.

Plymouth-Canton officials are awaiting final legislation on the Headlee amendment to calculate any effect on the district.

The bill to be considered by the full house includes $131 million for special education, a $9 million increase over last year; $102 million for transportation, up from $93 million; $29.5 million for vocational education, up $3 million; $4.5 million for bilingual education, up $500,000; and $23 million for declining enrollment, up $2 million.

Downtown's jogging dentist drills for marathon

By W.W. EDGAR

Dr. Thomas Morse, the Main Street dentist, has a peculiar way of relaxing after looking down people's mouths all day. He dons a pair of running shoes and then jogs between 10 and 15 miles before calling it a day.

Usually he runs to Northville and back, taking Northville Road one way and returning via Hines Park. On some days — just for a change — he'll jog back over Sheldon Road.

This isn't just social jogging. Morse does it because one day he hopes to qualify for the Boston Marathon and finish up with the leaders.

Morse, 36, is fanatical about fitness and says jogging is one of the best ways to stay in shape.

"It helps your heart, and you can soon tell whether you are in condition. When you are in good condition, you can breathe easy, and jogging can be fun."

MORSE EXPLAINS that people used to do a lot of walking. But walking doesn't build up your heart, he says.

The doctor smiles when he says that he is eyeing the Boston Marathon, which he hopes to enter next year. Very proudly, he tells you that he has attempted the marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards several times.

Among the events he has competed in are the marathons held in New York City, Chicago, Toledo and Saginaw. He says he enjoyed running in New York more than any other places.

"You are only running against yourself, and if you are in condition, you can chat with the people along the way. In New York, the streets are wider and it really is enjoyable running over the bridges and along the wider streets."

While he doesn't expect to win the Boston Marathon even if he does qualify some year, he hopes to improve his times.

UNDER THE RULES of the Boston Marathon, a runner must better two hours, 59 minutes over an officially recognized marathon course to qualify for a start in the famous race.

"Right now, I am doing a little over three hours, or about seven minutes a mile. If I can run in a few other events this year, I hope to meet the qualifying standards."

Born in Toledo, Morse attended Finlay College before entering the University of Michigan, where he received his degree. Following graduation, he spent a year and a half in the office of Dr. Robert Evans on Ann Arbor Trail before opening his own office.

He became interested in dentistry while still in high school, because he had a close friend who was a dentist. And he has been at it since.

When he decided to settle in Plymouth in 1968, Morse says there were about 20 dentists in the area. Now, according to his count, there are at least 50.

One of them is Dr. Si Cook on Ann Arbor Road, who also happens to be a jogger with marathon ambitions.

Right. It is Dr. Thomas Morse, whose one ambition is to finish in the first 25 percent of the field of several thousand who engage in the Boston Marathon each year.

Dr. Tom Morse stretches his muscles before taking off on another jogging jaunt — in preparation of his goal of trying to qualify for the Boston Marathon.

Plymouth — Past & Present

By Sam Hudson

Part V
The following paragraph was left out of my last column. Joanne Hulce, who organized the Plymouth Community Arts Council, also was one of the organizers of the Plymouth Symphony League. She also organized and was chairman of its first antique mart. She was a member of the Michigan State Council for the Arts (1973-74), and chaired the popular Art Train project which attracted many visitors to Plymouth in 1973.

AAUW

Among the women's organizations which have made their mark on the Plymouth community is the local branch of the American Association of University Women.

The organizational meeting, called by Mrs. Marian Morrow on Oct. 19, 1950, was held at the home of Mrs. Warren Worth. Twenty-one women attended, including Edna Allen, Mrs. Anne Nichol, Mrs. Geraldine Walch, Mrs. Esther Hulsing, and Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple.

Mrs. Austin Pino was the group's first president, Mrs. Whipple its first parliamentarian.

The announced goals of the AAUW are to improve educational standards, to secure broader opportunities for women, and to raise the standards of civic life in the community.

Among the organization's best-known fund-raising events are its annual used book sale, the Listening Post series, and the Children's Adventure programs. The monies raised have been used for fellowships, for Schoolcraft College scholarships, and for other civic purposes.

WOMEN AUTHORS

A number of women authors have lived or worked in Plymouth.

Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple wrote two books on debating in the 1920s.

The Penniman-Allen Theatre (the tallest structure) during the fire in 1922. It was the center of a Sunday movie controversy in 1922.

At the request of the Women's Club, Mrs. Nettie Dibble wrote and published a pamphlet-sized history of Plymouth in 1931.

Dr. Mary Jane Eberhard, daughter of Earl and Chloe West of Plymouth, has co-authored a book on her specialty — insects. She now lives in Colombia, South America, with her husband and their three children.

Mrs. Marian Sober, local arts and crafts instructor, has written several booklets on basketry, chair weaving, and related arts.

Mrs. Betty Urquhart wrote a book in 1973 about her father, a Methodist minister in the south.

The most prolific and best known women author with Plymouth ties was not born here. Helen Rose Hull spent her summers here in the 1920s, visiting her aunt, Anna McGill, who lived on Harvey Street.

Miss Hull's father, Professor Warren C. Hull of Michigan State University, retired in Plymouth. It was he who encouraged local citizens to form the Plymouth Historical Society, and he was among those present at the organizational meeting in 1948.

Miss Hull was a professor of fiction for almost 50 years. She taught at Wellesley, Barnard, and Columbia. One of her students, the author Paul Gallico, rated her with John Erskine and Walter Pitkin as one of the great short story teachers of her time. In 1940, a New York Times book reviewer rated her with Edith Wharton and Willa Cather as a writer.

Miss Hull wrote 20 novels and 60 short stories. Some had Michigan settings.

A few years ago her brother, who lives in California, presented a set of her novels to the Plymouth Historical Museum in memory of the days she spent in Plymouth.

WOMEN IN COMMERCE

She was born and died at 1160 Penniman Avenue. Her father, a local merchant, land developer and banker, was the first man Plymouth sent to the U.S. Congress. Her husband, Will, also came of a wealthy family. She was Kate Penniman Allen, social leader, clubwoman and a prominent business woman in Plymouth during the 1920s.

Mrs. Allen, whose home was where the Catholic manse is now located on Penniman Avenue, was a key figure in minstrels and plays presented for charity in the 1890s.

In the 1920s she built a theatre on Penniman Avenue, almost opposite the post office. She named it The Penniman-Allen after her father and her husband. Next to it, she built a ballroom. Both structures were heavily damaged during a fire that originated in an adjoining restaurant in 1922, and were eventually razed.

In 1922, Mrs. Allen announced that her theatre would begin showing movies on Sunday. The announcement split the community into two camps. "Kate Allen vs. the church people" is the way one resident remembers the conflict.

On one side of the controversy were church-goers and conservatives. On the other were local merchants and liberals (controversies often make strange bedfellows).

Those opposed to the showing of movies on Sunday included: S. Conger Hathaway, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church; Mrs. Charles Bennett, whose husband was president of the Daisy Manufacturing Company; and George A. Smith who was Superintendent of Schools.

Smith told a reporter he had 800 reasons — all pupils — why movies should not be shown on Sunday.

The Rev. Hathaway declared that Sunday movies would "lure our children from Sunday vespers, and if we allow them it would be but a step to Sunday baseball, and other public entertainment."

William Pettingill, a local grocer, took an opposing viewpoint. "If they close the show house," he said, "they might as well hang crepe on that traffic sign."

Ficano backs 'satellites' for Schoolcraft

Robert A. Ficano indicated his support for the "satellite campus concept" as a means of attracting more students to Schoolcraft Community College. Ficano, seeking a six-year-term on the college board, spoke at a campaign appearance at the home of Amy Juntunen, 32215 Meadowbrook, Livonia.

Ficano discussed the history of satellite campuses and noted that the out-campus facility in Garden City was successful in attracting additional students for Schoolcraft in that area.

"Schoolcraft College encompasses a large area of five school districts, which covers approximately 100 square miles," Ficano noted. "Students are like consumers of any product, in that they would rather have school, like business, close and convenient."

Ficano, an attorney from Livonia, suggested a building use study be conducted of surrounding school districts. "Some districts are suffering declining enrollment and would be ideal to supply buildings," Ficano said. In addition to convenience, Ficano said a comprehensive satellite campus plan should be attractive to potential students concerned with high gasoline expense.

Ficano is a member of numerous professional, political and civic groups. It is his first attempt at elected public office.

Women's political corps thinning

By KATIE KERWIN

A pile of laundry awaiting ironing and a stack of dirty dishes used to be the main competition the League of Women Voters faced in vying for a member's time.

But lately a career and a paycheck have been luring away many women who used to devote time to volunteer political participation.

The organization must learn to adapt itself to a changing membership. Fay O'Hare told representatives to the league's state convention Saturday at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

"Many women in their early child-rearing days are looking forward to going back to school or to their career," said Ms. O'Hare, a league state board member.

"It's no secret that membership has dropped in all kinds of volunteer organizations — men's organizations too," she said. "Our membership is down, though it's not drastic."

The league's goals and projects are much the same as when the group was founded almost 60 years ago, Ms. O'Hare said. Formed after women gained suffrage in 1920, the league has always proposed legislation and policy, provided voter information services, and lobbied, publicized and petitioned for its stands. Only the scope of interests has changed, broadening with the concerns of its members, she said.

But while the league's programs remain the same, the membership has altered in recent years.

"NOW MORE AND more women are working, going to school and finding opportunities in all kinds of fields that were closed to them before," Ms. O'Hare said. She is quick to add that discouraging such a trend is the last thing on the league's mind.

"Adapting to the times is a positive thing, not a problem in itself." But the increasing number of women deciding to go back to work causes league officials concern, she said.

"We won't have the reservoirs of women who joined because they were going batty at home and felt the need to get out once in a while to something with some intellectual stimulation," Ms. O'Hare commented. "A certain number of them would become hooked on it."

The league may still draw in the working woman, but she usually has less time for volunteer activities, Ms. O'Hare continued. League operations have traditionally included time-consuming studies of policy areas, she noted. Members often attended several meetings per month and spent additional time on research.

"That's hard sometimes for women who are working, keeping house and doing all the other things women feel obligated to do," Ms. O'Hare said. "We have fewer members now who want to attend more than one meeting a month."

Finding leaders is also becoming tougher, she said. Almost none of the league offices are paid positions. "It's hard for local organizations to get officers, because it does require a large amount of time and effort."

Changes in membership that the league is now promoting also increase the proportion of working members, Ms. O'Hare said. Participation in the formerly all-women's group is now open to men. "We're expanding our minority membership," she added.

"The minority member is more likely to be a working member, and so is the male member."

Diversifying its recruiting is one way to ease the crunch, she suggested. "We're trying to get more students and retired senior citizen members who have more time to participate."

Retired women may also have more to contribute from their working experience, Ms. O'Hare said. "They have a good breadth of vision and a grasp of issues because they have been out in the employment world."

CHANGING MEMBERSHIP trends have already had an impact on league work, Ms. O'Hare said.

"I don't think it has affected quality as much as quantity. Traditionally, each local group has devoted time to each state and national program and some local ones. Now they're opting to drop some of them."

She urged local chapters to streamline projects and get the best use out of members' time. State leaders recently held a retreat seminar to consider the league's future. Ms. O'Hare said she hoped to stimulate similar discussion on the local level across the state.

"Local leagues may want to have their own retreat day or future seminar," she said. Discussion might include "which of our many roles are more important to ourselves and to the community," she said.

"Some say, 'Maybe we want less programs, fewer issues,'" Ms. O'Hare added. "I think, though, having a broader program allows them to pick and choose."

Adapting to changing membership needs can mean simple adjustments, Ms. O'Hare said. Groups can plan more evening meetings, business lunches, or breakfast meetings to accommodate members' work schedules.

"Other possibilities include setting up study committees in different ways from the past — maybe making them smaller," she said. Seeking more federal grants so the league can pay assistants is another option, she added.

Ms. O'Hare said she thinks the league can adapt to suit its membership without losing its identity as a participation and service-oriented organization.

"I don't think we will ever turn into the type of membership organization where you just turn in your dues and there's nothing else to do. And it won't become a single-issue organization — the league is much broader than that."

"But I think we're going to be looking more and more to a different kind of member."

Personnel director needs duties to perform

It's customary for a person applying for a job to be told what his or her duties will be. It's more unusual for the prospective employee to have to tell the employer what the job should entail.

In the Canton Township Merit Commission's zeal to hire a personnel director who would not be exposed to political pressure, members apparently forgot that the person has to be allowed to do the job.

That, combined with the ignorance of the commission and the Township Board on what a personnel director does, succeeded in making one candidate for the job think twice before accepting.

The entire concept of removing a personnel director from any kind of political influence is nonsense. The facts that some members of the board opposed the appointment of a director as outlined and other members supported the merit commission's stand made the job the focus of political controversy.

Politics can't be avoided in any kind of governmental situation, but a competent person knows how to perform without making alliances on any side.

Canton needs a personnel director, but it needs a person who can sit in on negotiations (all employees belong to unions now).

It needs a person who can deal with union grievances. It needs a person who can establish solid management procedures and employee hiring practices.

It needs a person who can deal with elected officials, department heads and general employees so that all three groups can pull together.

What Canton will get, if the merit commission has its way and anyone is crazy enough to take the job, is a file clerk for the commission with authority limited to writing job descriptions.

That wouldn't give the director much to do after the initial catching-up stage. People with little to do are far more inclined to occupy their time with township hall politics than people who are trying to get a job done.

Personnel directors in other communities seem to have no problem functioning to full capacity in the midst of day to day political goings-on.

If the director can't perform in that atmosphere, he or she does not belong in the position.

The person who was appointed to the Canton personnel director job may change his mind and take the position if a realistic description of his duties can ever be agreed upon.

But he'll still have a first impression of Canton as the kind of place where people don't know what they're doing.

To replace Dunlap

Cultural entrepreneur is needed

By TIM RICHARD

In the TV commercial, a dignified gentleman waves a baton at the sounds of an orchestra and pretends to be a conductor.

In real life, a symphony conductor does far more than give the musicians a beat to follow. He needs to have the wheeling-dealing talents of an LBJ, the tenacious attention to detail of a Colombo and the PR instincts of a Kennedy.

A conductor needs to display the group leadership of a Schembechler, the nutritional insights of an Adelle Davis and the civic pride of a Nathan Hale.

As well as being a thorough musician.

It's that kind of cultural entrepreneur the Plymouth Symphony Society will be seeking as it works to replace Wayne Dunlap, who is retiring as musical director and conductor after nearly three decades.

THE PUBLIC saw Dunlap for two hours on a Sunday afternoon, and the 90-plus members of the orchestra for a dozen hours during rehearsals.

There was more to it. Take, for example, last fall's opening concert when little Plymouth landed an international star as its soloist.

"I set about trying to find someone with a name whose fee would come within the parameters set by the board, whose reputation would be sufficient to attract the average concert-goer," he recalled.

Here the wheeler-dealer in him came out. He had gone to Eastman School of Music with William Warfield, star of the films Showboat and Porgy and Bess. Warfield now teaches at the University of Illinois.

Dunlap pored through the American Artists Directory to learn that Warfield's manager is Larny Goodkind in New York. Negotiations. Contact with Warfield. Social preliminaries. The program discussion.

Warfield wanted three scenes from Boris Goudonov, in the original Russian, which he had just done in Atlanta. Dunlap in turn asked for Old American Songs by Copland. Some lighter works: two songs from Porgy. And naturally: "Old Man River."

THE REST of the program had to be built around that.

For an opening, rousing fanfare, he came up with Handel's Water Music. "It had the advantage of featuring the orchestra's excellent horn section and giving a baroque contrast to Mr. Warfield's music," Dunlap explained.

"The program now needed a substantial work for the full orchestra, one that would contrast with the serious, melancholy quality of Boris," he calculated.

His choice: the "witty, somewhat impudent" Sinfonietta 1945 of Francis Poulenc, the contemporary French composer.

Dunlap is big on 20th century French works, though not everyone in his Plymouth audience is with him. But Poulenc, like broccoli at dinner, is good for you. With the right roast, baked potato and apple pie, Poulenc can be fun.

There also is the matter of the orchestra. Strauss waltzes, and Tchaikovsky's 1812 might draw an audience, but eight dozen musicians would find themselves in a rut — and another place to play.

THE MUSIC had to be procured.

Works in the public domain, such as Water Music and Boris, could be obtained from Luck's Music Library in Detroit.

The Gershwin and Copland scores he obtained from New York — no simple task because the sources are constantly changing as new publishing conglomerates are formed. The Poulenc work turned up in St. Louis. It cost only $100 because the performing group is a member of one of the professional associations. "Otherwise the fee is double," said Dunlap.

There is a special rehearsal for strings. There are full orchestra rehearsals. The soloist is from out of town, so efforts must be doubled when he is finally available.

Meanwhile, the conductor deals with the board of directors and the Women's Symphony League.

There may be volunteer publicists of stature, but the conductor himself is the first and best press agent for the orchestra. Dunlap is excellent "copy."

AND THAT IS only a part-time job.

Dunlap is director of fine arts at the still-young Grand Valley State Colleges; he must work in time for private practice, study and travel; he has a family.

And at 61 he has decided to retire. His health isn't the best.

Will things in Plymouth screech to a halt? Will one of Michigan's best community orchestras take a nosedive?

That is unlikely, for Wayne Dunlap has a couple of other significant talents. He has the teaching charisma of a Socrates and the talent-scouting skills of a corporate headhunter. For example, the music faculty he hired in the 1960s is still at Schoolcraft College and ranks as one of the two best in the state.

He has planned the next season's programs. The symphony society board will undoubtedly will listen to his advice in picking his successor.

It means that even after Wayne Dunlap is gone, good music in Plymouth will remain in fine shape.

Wayne Dunlap always enjoyed rehearsals with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra during the 28 years he was director.

NAACP sparks new talk of school integration need

How about that for a Sunday morning eye-opener? The feds and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) are checking out cross-district busing for metro-Detroit.

Most suburban residents thought that whole mess was behind them. But the week of May 20, 1979, the week that cross-district busing once again became news, may be remembered for years to come.

Such talk certainly does conjure up loads of memories: Irene McCabe walking to Washington; a young lawyer named Brooks Patterson; Federal District Judge Stephen Roth and burning busses.

ACTUALLY, THE cross-district busing issue revival in metro Detroit was a foregone conclusion. Reading the U.S. Supreme Court decision on the Detroit case in 1974 should have shown us that.

It warned that interdistrict busing might "be in order where racially discriminatory acts of one or more school districts caused racial segregation in an adjacent district, or where district lines have been deliberately drawn on the basis of race."

Obviously little has changed in the way of integrating school populations since 1974. Certainly, the federal investigators could see that when they came to town earlier this year.

What they also saw were myriads of near lily white school districts resting around Detroit's predominantly black district. They also saw that white residents have moved farther and farther out, leaving the closer in suburbs with rapidly declining enrollments.

Remember the name of the game is integration. Whether it improves, worsens or does nothing for education is another matter.

IT WOULD be wise for those who oppose integrating their school districts to readjust their thinking. It is long past the time for suburban communities to hold out their hands to the area's black population so that each community is integrated in a peaceful and orderly manner. But it is unlikely.

I recall one school board president echoing the alleged sentiments of many suburbanites during the stormy times when the busing controversy was at its height.

"We believe in neighborhood schools. Anyone who wishes to live in our neighborhood is welcome to do so. They also would be welcome to send their children to our schools."

Today, five years later, that community's black population hasn't risen by even one percentage point.

And because many suburban school district residents have chosen to bury their heads in the sand, social unrest and upheaval faces us all once again.

THREE ALTERNATIVES are being examined: busing; boundary changes and consolidation of school districts.

The spectre of actually busing children long distances is just about nil. The rising cost of gasoline has taken care of that.

This area is ripe for both boundary changes and consolidation. The declining enrollment situation is reason enough. Many school district student populations have dwindled to half the size in the last five or six years.

It nearly is financial suicide for these districts to continue as separate governing entities. With ever-increasing inflation, it makes economic sense to either consolidate districts or redraw district lines to better utilize facilities and tax dollars.

Also changed is the option of moving to escape from such integration moves. The days of driving 120 miles round trip to work quickly are coming to a halt.

Serious thought should be given to peaceful integration. In that way, neighborhood schools will be preserved, community resources will be better utilized and sanity will prevail in metropolitan Detroit.

Details, disillusionment

The mess over 'Headlee'

A year ago about this time, I had my first argument with someone over the Headlee amendment. The other guy was for it.

I argued the principle that a constitution should be a broad framework for government; that Headlee's tax limitation was too detailed for a referendum; and that the proposal was not a proper subject for the state constitution.

The voters decided otherwise last November. Collectively, voters don't make many mistakes, but they did with Headlee. Michigan is now paying the price of their mistake in both public disillusionment and governmental frustration.

THE LEGISLATURE is tied up in knots over how to implement the tax limitation amendment.

One argument was over whether tax rate limitation applied to actual property tax rates of home rule cities or to the limits in their city charters. You could argue it either way, in fairness.

Another argument was over the exact formula for rolling back tax rates when the tax base (the total assessments of property) increased faster than consumer prices. It's incredibly messy. You have not only those factors but the amount of new construction, the amount of the tax rate needed for debt retirement and other factors to consider.

Still another has to do with state aid to local governments. The tax limitation amendment says such aid can't be reduced to local units "taken as a group." The horns' nest is punctured when you start carving the pie between growing and shrinking school districts, different kinds of cities, various forms of counties and diverse sorts of townships. Casting a shadow over these machinations is the immense political power of Detroit, with its dwindling population.

There will be future arguments. One will come when the state or a court orders local governments to provide a service such as bilingual education, or something of that sort, that must be fully paid for by the state.

MANY PROPERTY owners are disillusioned because, despite newspaper explanations, they erroneously believed their individual tax bills would be limited.

The Headlee amendment applies to taxing jurisdictions — entire cities and entire townships. There is a lot of room for assessments to rise and fall within a city or township, and thus a lot of room for the individual's tax bill to rise or fall.

People, unfortunately, believe what they want to believe. They wanted to believe their individual tax bills would be stabilized or cut, even though Headlee himself didn't promise that. And so they are disillusioned.

Tim Richard

One state senator, Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, has introduced a bill to guarantee that taxes on individual property would not exceed increases in the consumer price index. Welborn is a very emotional man. I have seen him in a senate committee and on the senate floor. Frankly, his passion exceeds his effectiveness.

DICK HEADLEE seems like such a nice, sincere fellow to many folks that you wonder: How could the tax limitation amendment have put us in such a mess in Lansing and in local government?

Headlee, the Farmington Hills insurance wizard, pointed out that he didn't write the amendment himself. It was the work of a committee.

Looking over its roster, you can see insurance types, Jaycees types, the board chairman of Amway, chamber of commerce types, a distinguished professor — but no one with any legislative experience. There were no public hearings.

A piece of tax legislation — for that is what the Headlee tax limitation amendment is — should have been worked out in a legislative committee. There should have been public hearings so that common taxpayers could have had a shot at it.

There should have been an opportunity for persons with county, school district, city and township experience to work it over.

Headlee's reply was that government was out of control, neither party could be trusted, and lobbyists were too powerful.

Well, that's life. It's how democracy works. The mere fact that the legislature doesn't produce a bill that satisfies Dick Headlee or me doesn't mean we should abandon the legislative process. But we did abandon it.

THE HEADLEE TAX limitation amendment was hatched like Topsy, full-grown. Once the petitions were signed, no one could change a comma or clarify a thing.

That's a poor way to write tax legislation, people. It's an even poorer way to dicker with a constitution.

That's what I tried to tell my friend a year ago when we had that argument.

When Mac the Milkman was in a betting mood

When warm weather arrives and kid softball action pops up on vacant lots, Mac the Milkman comes to mind.

Older readers easily recall those friendly fellows who home-delivered dairy products from horse-drawn wagons. And those loyal steeds seemed to know exactly where each customer's home was located, and that's where they'd automatically stop.

MY HERO in the northwest Detroit neighborhood where I was raised was Mac. That's all the name any of us ever knew.

He ran a route for Borden's Dairy, which had a stable and milk storage area along Linwood Avenue, somewhere around West Grand Boulevard.

Originally Mac didn't deliver to our house. We were a customer of Detroit Creamery. But eventually I won our account for Mac, as did most of the neighborhood kids.

It all had to do with vacant softball lot.

There was a makeshift diamond a block from our house, at Leslie and LaSalle. Almost every day when the sun shone, and often when it didn't, Marty Reddy, Danny Ashlin, Leonard Corcoran, Bob McGrath, Joe Durber, the Menzie brothers and I would play softball the way it should be played: No uniforms, no chalk base lines, no adult coaches.

What if the bat had been cracked several times and was miraculously held firm with black friction tape? What if the stuffing in the battered ball was often showing? (Many was the time I borrowed Mom's turkey needle to sew the tired and tattered seams of a softball.)

We just stepped onto that sandy lot and started to play.

We'd begin about 8:30 in the morning and go until noon.

We'd finish one game, switch players and begin more action.

Pangs of hunger were about the only thing that really broke up those titanic battles.

Or the appearance of Mac the Milkman.

ONE OF US WOULD SPOT the Borden's wagon rolling into view and sound the alarm.

We'd keep playing. But our eyes weren't on the ball. We'd be watching until Mac, his horse and wagon rolled up and stopped at Williamson's directly across from the diamond.

"Hi, Mac," we'd shout, delighted in the knowledge we could call an adult by his nickname.

"Hi, kids," the milkman would holler back as he hustled to his customers.

We waited breathlessly to learn if this was the day that Mac would be in a betting mood.

WHEN HE WAS — wow! — that was living.

"Say, you guys," Mac would say when he was willing to wager, as he sauntered toward home plate (a jagged chunk of concrete we carefully had buried near the sidewalk.)

"If you let me keep batting, I bet you a quart of chocolate milk I can hit a home every time I swing."

"Oh, yeah?" we'd jeer, immediately accepting.

Funny, Mac never mentioned what we'd have to ante up should he indeed complete such a feat. But we knew we weren't going to lose.

As Mac grabbed the bat, we scattered to our defensive posts. Lefty Bob McGrath would go into his underhand pitch. Wham, the ball would sail over the alley, between Leslie and Glendale, into the weed patch beyond. Marty Reddy would be in hot pursuit.

The Reddy relay to Joe Durber, to Dan Ashlin wasn't even close.

ANOTHER MCGRATH SLANT, another long blast by Mac.

This went on two or three more times.

Mac would sprint those sandy paths each time, but with each homer his pace seemed to slow.

Then would come the dribbler off Mac's bat, with Jim Menzie's jubilant tag of Mac as he struggled to reach second base.

"OK, you guys are too good for me," Mac would pant, and we'd break for his wagon.

We'd all be sweating, hot and excited. Mac would extract a quart of chocolate milk from the cool confines of his wagon.

Off would come the circular cardboard cap. The bottle would be seized first by one, then another of us, delicious gulps taken in between. In moments the quart was drained dry.

What a guy Mac was.

Could any mother refuse when a 10-year-old would plead, "Mom, can we get our milk from Borden's?"

WHAT PROMPTS ALL THIS was a phone call earlier this week.

Marty Reddy and I chatted. He's now vice president in charge of the administration department at the Campbell Ewald advertising agency. Marty lives in Beverly Hills.

With several others, Marty is masterminding a reunion. No, it's not that old gang of softball enthusiasts, but I sort of wish it were.

It's Marty's Class of 1939 at Detroit Visitation High School. The gathering will be at 7 p.m. June 15 in the Danish Club, Grand River at Lahser.

That's number 40 for Marty's bunch, which numbered 76 at diploma time. He's not certain how many old grads are coming, but the word is out that five Dominican nuns who taught at Visitation will be on hand.

But probably not half as much as one of those sandlot softball games. Especially the days when Mac felt like betting.

Why a $50 crown for a 'baby' tooth?

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: Our 6-year-old had a cavity in a molar. The dentist said she should have a silver crown ($50). Was this necessary in a baby tooth? Why couldn't it just be pulled or filled?

Also, how often should a child be X-rayed by a dentist?

J.W.

DEAR J.W.: Decay in a baby tooth should be taken care of right away. After all, a youngster uses his baby tooth for chewing for quite a few years. Decay may spread from one tooth to another.

Baby teeth should be extracted (pulled) only as a last resort. The space left can cause other teeth to drift, thus changing the child's bite and perhaps actually necessitating orthodontic work (braces) later.

By having preventive dentistry done now,

you may save much higher repair costs in the future.

Dentists use prefabricated silver crowns on baby teeth that are usually lost between the ages of 10 and 14 years. This assures that the teeth on either side do not close up the space.

X-rays can be administered as many times as required. Modern methods and safeguards pose no danger to the child's health.

Your dentist has been trained to prevent unnecessary radiation. Least exposure possible is used. The radiation used is less than that received from natural sources, such as cosmic (sun) rays.

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: When should tooth-straightening (orthodontia) be started?

W.S.

Dear W.S.: Usually about the age of 12 or 13 — sometimes earlier.

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: What toothpaste should I use?

A.F.

Dear A.F.: You can make your choice on the basis of flavor and price. There is no significant difference between pastes, powders or liquid dentrifices.

Dr. Dr. DeFrancesco: What kind of mouthwash should I use?

P.H.

Dear P.H.: Since the effect of a mouthwash is primarily that of a mechanical cleanser of the teeth and mouth, it makes little difference.

Livonia CAP holds training

Civil Air Patrol cadets from the Livonia Squadron 11-2 recently participated in flight activities sponsored by CAP Royal Oak Group XI.

As part of the CAP aerospace program, the cadets made pre-flight safety inspections of aircraft, learned the purpose and operation of aircraft instruments while in actual flight, and performed aircraft maneuvers under senior member pilot supervision.

The Livonia cadets are Dan Brodine, Ross Dickenson and Alex Giese. The squadron is holding open membership for teens 13-17 in the cadet program. CAP also offers a senior program to adults 18 and older.

County awaits takeover of its medical facility

Wayne County officials expect the legislature to act soon to approve state takeover of the Reuther Long Term Care Facility in Westland.

The county decided nearly two years ago to sell Reuther to the state. Patients and employees sued to keep the facility open and the state and county agreed to look for federal funds for continued operation.

When federal funding couldn't be obtained last year, the state agreed to reimburse the county $3.5 million to continue operations.

THAT MONEY will be approved if the legislature enacts pending House Bill 4011.

County assistant legislative agent Jackie Moss said the bill should be passed in a couple of weeks.

The law would provide for state ownership of Reuther. The $3.5 million allows for county operation of Reuther to July 15.

The state plans to continue Reuther as a long-term care facility for the mentally ill.

Ronald Grant, of the state Department of Mental Health, said Reuther is "not going to be a psychiatric institute," but will continue to provide the same kinds of care, except with different patients.

The state plans to place 200 patients from psychiatric hospitals in Reuther. There will be 400 employees at Reuther, Grant said.

THE STATE needs to free beds in its psychiatric hospitals, Grant said, so it will move those patients who "have more of a medical problem" to Reuther.

The Reuther facility has provided care for people of all ages that have ambulatory or severe health problems.

The county is under a court order to give the present 135 Reuther patients at least 45 days notice of any planned transfer. Ms. Moss said the patients have been notified.

Grant said the state has no timetable to begin using Reuther but probably would do so by the end of the year. The state will sell bonds to buy the facility if the legislature approves the takeover.

The price tag, according to Herbert DeYoung of the state Office of Management and Budget, is $12.2 million.

The six-floor Reuther facility, built in the early 1970s, has been used only five years. Three floors have never been used.

Rock thinclads gain 4th

By BRAD EMONS

It seems weekends are made for the Plymouth Salem boys' track team.

The Rocks, blasted by Dearborn Edsel Ford last Wednesday, 90-42, pulled another surprise with a fourth place finish in the Class A regional at Adrian Saturday.

Ann Arbor Huron won the meet with 68 points. Rival Ann Arbor Pioneer was second with 63. Ypsilanti came in third with 62 and the Rocks piled up 55.

"We seem to be a big meet team," said Salem coach Gary Balconi. "There's no doubt we gear up for the weekend meets."

"We have the individual talent," he said.

Salem is sending five athletes to the state finals.

Three Rock pole vaulters will make the trip to Flint Northwestern, June 2.

Senior Dennis Ogden edged teammate Jack Wellman for first place with fewer misses, clearing the bar at 13-3. Sophomore Dave Skone of Salem placed third by clearing the opening height, 12-3.

On his sixth jump, senior Rich Hanschu advanced to state by winning the long jump with a leap of 21-5½. The Salem standout gained fifth place with a :15.2 clocking in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Salem's other individual winner was a complete surprise.

"BOB IS steadily improving," said Balconi. "He threw 139-0 in the Edsel Ford meet."

"He's been working real hard," said the Salem coach.

Balconi calls Pittaway a "strong young man."

The Salem sophomore is a national bowling champ and will bowl 25 games in one night. Pittaway also saw action this season as a sprinter.

In the field events alone, Salem came out with 43 points.

"Three firsts is a great accomplishment," Balconi said. "We're pleased we can take three pole vaulters."

Sophomore Lee Langkabel, racing in the slow heat, just missed going to the state meet as he finished fourth overall in the 440-yard dash. He recorded a time of :52.4.

Two Salem sprinters reached the finals of the 100-yard dash.

Greg Lipka took sixth with a clocking of :10.5 while Salem teammate Greg Stevens placed eighth (:10.9).

Stevens and Lipka teamed with Hanschu and Craig Stack to grab fourth place in the 440-yard relay with a time of :44.7.

Hanschu, running in the mile relay for the first time, combined with Ogden, Langkabel and Chris Kappler to place fifth with a clocking of 3:34.4.

"I have to be real pleased. This is the best showing for Salem ever in the regional," said Balconi.

Canton junior Dan McGlinn qualified for the state meet in the 330-yard low hurdles with a school record time of :39.7, a third place finish.

The Chiefs placed 14th out of 22 teams, scoring 12 points.

Senior Rich Fleischer just missed making the state meet. He was nosed out for third place in the 220-yard dash. He was clocked in :23.5.

Canton wins 1st track dual ever

The Plymouth Canton boys' track team pulled off a first in a dual track meet Monday against Redford Thurston.

The Chiefs took 12 of 16 events to rout the Eagles, 92-40, in rescheduled meet.

Canton coach Mike Spitz was ecstatic over the first track win in the school's history.

"It meant a lot to the guys running," he said. "Everybody gave a good effort. They were a happy bunch on the way home."

The meet was held on Thurston's new all-weather metric track.

Junior Dan McGlinn spearheaded the Canton victory with wins in the 110-meter high hurdles (:16.3) and 300-meter low hurdles (:39.9).

McGlinn was also a member of the first place 800-meter relay team along with Daryl Goldsmith, Rich Fleischer and John Tarr. The group posted a first place time of 1:36.1.

Canton also captured the 400 and 1600 meter relays.

Alan Olszewski, Randy Lee, Tarr and Goldsmith combined to win the 400-meter relay with a time of :48.0.

Rob and Rich Fleischer, Tarr and Dave Talaga teamed up to capture the 1600-meter event (3:41.79).

Senior (Dave) Talaga helped with Chiefs with victories in the high jump (5-10) and 400-meter dash (:55.5).

OTHER CANTON victors included Lee, pole vault, 10-0; Mark Kowalczyk, long jump, 18-4; Mike Talaga, mile run, 4:40.1; Dan Inloes, 800-meter run, 2:05.5; Dave Spitz, two mile, 10:36.5.

Rich Fleischer placed second in both the 100 and 200 meter races. He was clocked in :11.5 and :23.0 respectively.

Chief bats come alive in Midland tournament

By SCOTT ADLER

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs had a very nice weekend up in Midland.

The Chiefs won their seventh straight baseball game Saturday evening with a championship clinching victory over Midland, 8-1, in the Midland Invitational Tournament.

The Chiefs had it all together the entire tournament, but this was their finest effort. While the Chiefs were collecting 11 hits, Dan Funkhouser was pitching a five-hitter for his third victory of the season.

Steve Gray started it off for the Chiefs, with one of his nine walks that were issued to him throughout the tournament. Following Gray, Don Dreher laid down a fine bunt single to advance Gray into scoring position. Scott Dawson then proceeded to drive in Canton's first run of the game.

With Midland trailing, 1-0, heading into their half of the first inning, Funkhouser retired the Dynamos first batter then walked three straight batters to load up the bases. Midlands' scoring opportunity was halted immediately when Funkhouser promptly struck out the next two batters he faced.

Canton got three more runs in the second on an RBI double by sophomore Dave Carter, scoring David Meador from first. Then with two out, Dawson drove home two more runs with his second hit in as many at bats, this time a double produced the runs.

The Chiefs got a lone run in the fourth on line drive single by Dave Weise scoring Gray from second base. It was Gray's third run scored in the game.

The Dynamos finally got on the score board after putting together a single and a double for their only run of the contest.

"Funky (Funkhouser) is getting better every time out," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "It was a weird game for him. He walked five (three in the first inning) but his control really wasn't that bad."

The Chiefs defeated second-rated Alma to advance to the finals of the tournament, 5-1, on Scott Dawson's two hit gem. It was win number five for Dawson.

Once again the Canton squad drew first blood in the opening inning, scoring two runs on a single by Rusty Mandle following a sacrifice by Dawson.

Alma tied it up in the top of the third with an opposite field home run by Scott Miller, but the Chiefs countered with some power of their own on a home run of by Dave Weise.

Weise came through in the fifth with RBI number two of the game, driving home Mandle on a single to left.

Sophomore Keith Stone scored the final run of the day from second base on a single by Don Dreher.

"Scotty (Dawson) pitched a super game," said Crissey of his University of Michigan bound senior. "This was one of the best teams we've faced all year long, even though they are a (class) B school."

Canton started the productive weekend off with an 8-2 win over fourth ranked Alpena, with Brian James picking up his fifth win in the process.

Gray walked to start off the game, and Mandle drove him in with a single to left center after two were out. The game remain ed 1-0 throughout the first 4½ innings, with James working on a no-hitter.

But in the bottom of the fifth with one out, and a man on first, ohn Stevens rocketed a two-run homer to put Alpena in the lead, 2-1, for the first time.

The Chiefs put an end to that immediately with five runs in the top of the sixth and two more in the top of the seventh.

"We had super pitching the entire tourney," said Crissey. "I'm really pleased. We're really coming on, we've now won seven in a row (15-5 overall) and we're doing just about every thing right."

James pitched a two hitter against Alpena and also struck out eight in going the distance.

Offensive standouts for the Chiefs in the tourney were Dave Weise (6 for 11 and six RBIs), Scott Dawson (4 for 10 and six RBIs) and Rusty Mandle (5 for 11 and four RBIs). "I went with my strong arms (pitchers) because we decided that we wanted to this tournament, mainly because it is a prestigious tournament," said Crissey.

Canton golfers suffer 1st loss

A five-stroke margin did in the Plymouth Canton girls' golf team.

The Canton girls suffered their first loss of the year to Saline, 196-201, Monday afternoon.

Despite the loss, Canton's Cathy Andersen earned medalist honors by shooting a 41 on the par-35 course. Karen Johnston of Saline was next, carding a 45.

Other Canton scores included senior Peggy Visser (49), junior Janis McGlone (50) and sophomore Karen Mullen (61).

"I don't think that we were mentally set to play in a match," said Canton coach Ann Buie.

"Having the league title all tied up and winning the regional on Friday, the team wasn't fired up about playing since our main goals for the season have been accomplished," she said.

"Now all we're thinking about is the state tournament."

Besides Johnston's 45, Saline received a 47 from Kathy Corona, a 51 from Judy Johnston and a 53 from Val Esch.

Earlier in the season, Canton beat Saline at Brookside Golf Course, 209-227.

The Chiefs overall record is now 11-1. They slipped to 7-1 in the league with one match yet to play.

CANTON MEETS Brighton today (Thursday) at Hilltop. In a previous match, Canton beat Brighton, 219-237. Tee off time is p.m.

Both Canton and Salem will be participating in the Central Six League meet, Wednesday at Burroughs Farm in Brighton.

Canton and Salem, who both qualified for the state finals after placing one-two in the regionals, are scheduled to play, Monday June 4.

Collins likes college game

Missouri freshman makes fast transition

Plymouth Canton's Scott Collins was relatively unknown in Big Eight Conference baseball circles before the season started.

He isn't now. The Missouri freshman quickly established himself as one of the top players in his class. The Canton graduate just finished the year with a .311 batting average, fourth best in the league.

"I feel good with most of the year," said Collins while on break during the Big Eight Conference playoffs.

"I was happy with my hitting, especially the first part of the year."

The only black mark on Collins' freshman year came during the Big Eight tourney.

He and his Missouri teammates went into the playoffs favorites after capturing the east division of the Big Eight.

Collins, used at designated hitter the latter half of the season, experienced a slump during the playoffs at All Sport Stadium at Oklahoma City, the tournament center.

The Canton infielder went hitless in 13 trips to the plate before collecting two against Nebraska in the Tigers' final game.

Missouri won its first-round game of the double elimination tournament, beating Oklahoma State, 5-4. Missouri then fell to the losers bracket as the eventual tourney winner, Oklahoma, beat Collins' team, 10-7.

MISSOURI MET Nebraska next. An at-large NCAA bid was at stake.

Nebraska rocked the Missouri pitching staff in a record-setting 22-6 victory. Collins, however, snapped his slump despite the disheartening loss. He went two for five and scored two runs.

Thus, Missouri was eliminated from NCAA contention despite an impressive 45-12 mark. Nebraska received the at-large bid with a 48-13 record.

Missouri coaches Gene McArtor and Bob Todd had nothing but praise for Collins' first year in the Big Eight.

"From our standpoint, he really helped our ball club," said Todd, an assistant coach. "Scott did an outstanding job at the plate."

Collins started the first half of the season at his normal shortstop position. He was later moved to the designated hitter spot and third in the batting order.

He was replaced by Lindy Duncan at shortstop, a decision the coaches made to help the team.

"Scott has all the goods defensively," said Todd. "He needs to refine them, however."

"He'll play shortstop this summer in the Cape Cod League."

An eighth-round draft pick of the Baltimore Orioles last summer, Collins will sharpen his defensive skills at Chatham, Mass.

It's a college level league affiliated with the NCAA. Players from all over the country will play in the summer league.

"I'M GOING TO play short this summer, because I want to be there next year at Missouri," said Collins. "I can make the hard play at short, but on the easy ones, I need more concentration."

Collins is "happy" being a part of the Missouri environment. He's planning a major in forestry.

"There were a number of factors why Scott chose Missouri," Todd said. "He liked the academics and wanted an education. He liked the atmosphere and the players and saw a chance to play with an All-American shortstop (Greg Cypret) graduating.

"The weather was another factor." Collins' statistics, indeed, prove he was one of the top freshman in the Big Eight. He was third high on the team with 57 hits and was second in RBIs with 35. He hit six doubles and three triples in 49 games, starting in 47.

"I slapped the ball around a lot," said Collins. "In the third position, I was hitting behind a lot of speed. In the summer, I seem to hit the long ball."

Collins was somewhat disappointed he did not make either the first or second all-Big Eight team. He was picked as honorable mention.

With all the games he has already played, Collins still thirsts for more baseball.

"I love to play a lot of games," he said. "I don't get bored with it. I've seen a lot of places and it's a fun brand of baseball in this league."

Scott Collins

"I like seeing all the places, but I don't always like living out of a suitcase."

Canton girls rip Waterford twice

Taking both ends of a double-header against Waterford Mott proved little trouble for the Plymouth Canton varsity softball team Monday. The Chiefs won the first game 22-1, and the second 19-5.

To start the first game, Canton managed to pull seven runs out of the Waterford defense. Shutout in the second inning, Canton calmed down in the third inning to score only three runs but rallied for five more in the fourth inning.

Sophomore pitcher MariAnn Pink held Mott scoreless until the fifth inning. Giving up a single to center field, one of three walks and another base hit, this one to left center, Mott managed to bring its only run of the game.

Canton scored one run in the fifth inning, four runs in the sixth and the final two in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Coach Max Sommerville said that he was pleased with the win, although Mott's pitcher was slow and didn't have much control.

Sommerville also complimented junior Marlene McKinley on a triple over the center fielder's head to drive in two runs. First baseman Cindy Stevens and Pink were the two Canton scorers.

In the second game, Canton collected five runs before allowing Mott its first. The Chiefs scored three runs in the first inning and two more in the second.

Mott scored its five runs with a run in the third inning, one in the sixth and tried to catch the Chiefs with three runs in the seventh inning.

Canton kept on rallying and scored one run in the third inning, six in the fourth, two in the fifth and five in the sixth inning.

Freshman pitcher Cindy Sovine, who was moved up to the varsity squad from junior varsity when the Chiefs pitching staff was hurt by the benching of senior Lucy Howe because of a sore shoulder, gave up five hits and one walk.

"The pitching next year will be excellent," said Sommerville. "With good pitchers and most of the team returning, next year should be some season."

Sommerville was also pleased with some good junior varsity prospects, including first baseman Pearly Cunningham, short stop Rhonda Stoner and second baseman Susie Pierce.

The varsity now holds an overall season record of 8-4 and a Western Six League record of 8-2.

Chiefs lock up 2nd place finish

By SCOTT ADLER

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs made it eight in a row Monday with a 5-2 thrashing of Western Six League rival Waterford Mott, on the road.

The Chiefs, now 16-5 overall and 7-2 in the league with one game remaining against Northville, jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the second inning, on an RBI triple by Dave Meador.

"Dave (Meador) is really coming on," said Coach Fred Crissey. "His shoulder is feeling better and it shows."

Meador had a shoulder operation late last year.

The Corsairs countered with their only two runs in the second inning on a two run double off starting pitcher Guy Kananen.

Brian James took over with one down in the third and blanked Mott for his seventh win in eight outings. James fanned eight batters and gave up two hits in four innings.

The Chiefs got two more runs in the third to stay on top for good.

Steve Gray singled and was sacrificed to second by Don Dreher. After Scott Dawson struck out, Rusty Mandle and Dave Weise put together back-to-back singles to score Gray. Mandle scored on the single by Weise when the centerfielder bobbled the ball and was unable to make the throw.

Dreher drove home Frank McMurray after McMurray had doubled to start off the fourth inning.

Canton banged up losing pitcher Jim Hunter for nine hits.

Once again the Chiefs were flawless in the field committing no errors. They only have one in the last four games.

Jarvis, Baker grab doubles

Rocks tie for 3rd in net regional

By BRAD EMONS

Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem each gathered 15 points during Class A regional tennis tournament play Saturday, but their efforts were only good enough for third place.

Ann Arbor Huron dominated the tournament, played at Salem, scoring 25 points. Ann Arbor Pioneer finished second with 16. The two Ann Arbor schools qualified for the state finals competition in Midland next weekend.

Other teams scoring were: Westland John Glenn (7), Northville (6), Ypsilanti (6), Livonia Bentley (5), Plymouth Canton (3), Brighton (3), Livonia Franklin (1), Livonia Churchill (1) and Howell (1).

Salem and Stevenson each had three finalists in the regional meet.

Salem's number two doubles team of Bob Jarvis and Craig Baker captured the title with a 7-5, 6-7, 6-3 victory over Huron's John Restukia and Paul Kozma.

"MY DOUBLES teams performed really well," said Salem coach Jim Stevens. "Jarvis and Baker played their best tennis of the season."

Salem's number one doubles team of Craig Stevens and Mark Thomas (13-2) lost to Huron's Tom Kumasaka and Fred Shepherd, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, in the finals.

The Rocks' other finalist was sophomore Scott Crespo at number four singles. Mike Psarouthakis defeated him, 7-5, 6-3.

At number three singles, Stevenson's Glen Gwarda was defeated by another Huron player, John Turcotte, 6-3, 6-4.

Stevenson's number three doubles duo of Dave Stranquist and Ron Fedraw were downed by Pioneer's Todd Noden and Mike Weed for the championship, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Rod Carpenter of Stevenson was the other finalist at number two singles. He lost to John Lozar of Huron, 6-3, 6-2.

"Stevenson and Salem kept knocking each other off," explained Stevens. "I'm sure either Stevenson or Salem could beat Pioneer in a dual match."

Both Salem and Stevenson reached the state tourney last year.

In a rematch of an earlier duel,

Canton's Bob Young defeated Franklin's Jim Thompson in a three set first round match. Young won the final set, 7-6, in a tiebreaker.

Canton's Dave Keen, at third singles, and the number three doubles team of Kurt Crocker and Mark Roberts also won first round matches.

Northville's Barry Ouellette was the only local player to qualify for further state tournament play. Ouellette bowed to Huron's Jon Kamisar in the first singles competition, 6-3, 6-1, but earned a berth in the state finals by placing second.

Kamisar had a rough time downing Stevenson's Jim Pfeffer in the semifinals, 7-5, 2-6, 6-1. The Huron netter also beat Bentley's Pete Fayroian in an earlier round, 6-2, 6-1.

Salem netters blast Northville

Plymouth Salem upped its dual tennis record to 9-2 overall with a 6-1 victory over Northville in a non-league match Tuesday.

The only match Salem lost was at No. 1 singles. Northville's Barry Ouellette, headed for the state tourney after a runnerup finish in last week's regional, downed Salem's Bob Braun, 6-1, 7-5.

At No. 2 singles, Ed Thomas of Salem disposed of Lance Carter, 6-2, 2-6, 6-1. Teammate Dick Cook had an easy time blitzing Dave Fisher of the Mustangs, 6-0, 6-1. Scott Crespo did likewise for Salem as he blasted Brian Shake.

In a three set match at no. 1 doubles, Salem's Craig Stevens and Mark Thomas came back strong to conquer Greg Bach and Dave Herbel, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Regional champs Bob Jarvis and Craig Baker of Salem handled Andy Orlando and Ian Wild, 6-2, 6-2, at No. 2 doubles.

At no. 3 doubles, Blake Lundberg and Jack Thomas bested Jim Herbel and Mark Swayne of Northville, 8-6, 6-3.

Salem entertains Trenton in a Suburban Eight League match Thursday. The Rocks lost to Trenton early in the season, 5-2.

2 Salem girls join state trip; Rocks lose dual

Plymouth Salem's Anne Meixner and Ruth Sample both qualified for the girls' state class A track meet, June 2, at Brighton, as a result of their performances Saturday in the regionals at Temperance-Bedford.

Meixner qualified with a pair of third place finishes in the 110-yard high hurdles (:15.9) and 220-yard low hurdles (:32.0).

Sample took third in the two mile run with her best time of the season (12:13).

As a team, Salem placed eighth with 25½ points. "I happy we scored 25 points because we only scored six last year," said Salem coach Scott Kurtz. "Over we did well."

Other Salem competitors who placed in the regional included Carin Ford, shot put, 33-6; Erin Lucas, 220-yard hurdles, :32.6; Lucas, 110-yard hurdles, :16.3; Diane Perpich, high jump, 5-0½.

SALEM-TRENTON

Salem dropped to 0-4 in the Suburban Eight League as Trenton drubbed the Rock girls, 76-47, Monday afternoon.

"I was generally pleased with our effort," said Kurtz. "Trenton is a good team."

Gaining first place finishes for Salem included Linda Lybarger, 440-yard dash, 1:05.3; Rochelle Baltes, 880-yard dash, 2:34.0; Beth Hoerner, two mile run, 12:49.

Salem won the final event — mile relay. Meixner, Baltes, Lybarger and Lori Grissom combined to post a first place time of 4:32.

Salem competitors who gained second place finishes included Sharon Radionoff, discus, 86-10½; Lucas, high jump, 5-1; Carin Ford, shot put, 32-9; Meixner, 220-yard hurdles, :32.0; Grissom, 880-yard run, 2:39.0; Carol Hay, 220-yard dash, :29.4.

Lucas' performance in the high jump was her best of the season.

Junior Chiefs use mercy rule

By BETTY DeLANO

Putting the mercy rule into action for the second time this season, the Plymouth Canton junior varsity softball team smeared Waterford Mott Monday, 15-2.

Leading off for Canton in the first inning, Shelly Potter set the tempo with a home run to left field. Taking advantage of a weak Waterford pitcher and a clumsy center fielder, Canton scored another eight runs before the end of the inning.

After sending 11 batters to the plate, Canton's only base hits that were not assisted by a Waterford error were Karen Nicholas with a single to right field, Debbie Dickenson with a single to center field and Chris Hoffman with a single to right field.

Canton pitcher Debbie Dickenson put Mott away in the first inning with a pop up to the mound, a throw out at first base from short stop Rhonda Stoner and a strike out.

Mott scored one of its runs in the second inning and the other in the fourth inning.

The Chiefs rallied for three runs in the second inning as Stoner, Nicholas and Julie Stratton scored.

Mott pitcher Julie Maxim put the Chiefs away after two pitches in the third inning and six in the fourth, but couldn't hold them from collecting three runs in the fifth and final inning.

Stratton lead off the fifth with a single past shortstop. Dickenson was tossed out at first base as was Hoffman. Potter added another home run to her list bringing in Stratton and two more Canton runs.

The Chief's season record is 9-1.

Salem golfers win

A season nine-hole low score of 203 by the Plymouth Salem girls' golf team was good for a six stroke victory over Pinckney in Central Six League action Monday.

Leading the Salem attack was junior Meg McGee with a 46. McGee was only one shot off sharing medalist honors with Pinckney's Lisa LeClere who shot a 45 at the par-36 Lakeland Country Club.

Adding to the Salem win was senior Beth Maggio and freshman Carol Ross who each shot 51 and sophomore Nancy Stevens at 55. The Rock total moved their season record to 5-4 in the Central Six and 7-4 overall.

A pair of 53's from Pinckney's Kim Kremmer and Leslie Sherrnside and a 55 from Cindy Wines was added to LeClere's 45 for Pinckney's final four-player total.

"This was the lowest score of the season so far," said Salem coach Bob Waters. "It was a good win and a good score. We're getting ready for the biggies right in time."

The "biggies" Waters referred to are the league meet scheduled for next Wednesday at Burroughs Farm and the state finals on June 4.

The Rocks play one more league match today (Thursday) against Willow Run before closing the regular dual-match schedule. The match is at Hilltop and starts at 3 p.m.

Fox Hills duo tough

Bruce Watt and Bill Lindley swept all five points in their match against Jerry Yuchas and Ron Hoffman to move into first place in the Canton Township Recreation Department Fox Hills Golf League in action last week.

Tony Valenti carded a 38 for nine holes and Paul Oberhelman shot 39, the two lowest rounds of the day. Other golfers shooting low scores included Jack Blumenshine (41), Dick Kraft (42) and Glen Ponte (42).

It has been a long time since the-Detroit area has boasted an all events champion in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament. But, if his luck holds out, Bob Basatchi, a member of the all-star Goebel team, will be at the head of the parade in the regular all events when the firing ceases.

At the moment, his name is at the top of the list in the regular division with a 2097 count posted several weeks ago. To get that peak score, he rolled 681 in the team event, 709 in the doubles and 707 in the singles.

Should he wind up on top, it will be quite a feat for the young bowler who has been competing in the all star ranks only a short time.

SPEAKING of the Goebel team, it staged another very successful exhibition last Saturday night in New Baltimore when more than $5,000 was raised for the leader dog program.

It was the final event on the list of exhibitions and it is felt now that the grand total for the season will be high enough to provide at least seven blind persons with the seeing-eye dogs before the summer ends.

BILL WILSON, who does most of his bowling at Westland Bowl, will have good reason never to forget his recent appearance in the famed Peterson Classic in Chicago.

Bowling over the past weekend, he needed only 380 in his last two games to take the lead and make sure of a sizable chunk of prize money.

Then, as they say along the tenpin front, Rover bit him. At any rate he choked and came up with counts of only 135 and 158 to finish with a 1,559.

This will get him a sizable check, but it will be far from the winner's check that seemed to be in his grasp until those two final games.

More fortunate was Toni Smith. Bowling in the ladies division of the Peterson she rolled a 1,581 which was 205 pins over her average and gave her a place high up on the standings board.

Back home Toni set the pace in the 14-team Confusion League in its first outing of the summer season with a 202 in 535. At that figure she beat Joyce Urban by three pins, though Joyce had a 204 for high game.

In the Monday men's league, Dan Pintar was high with a 663 that gave him a five-pin margin over Jerry Maisano. Bob Slater wound up in third place with 637 and Jim Mijal had a 227 in 727 for fourth place.

DIANE BRADY, who bowls in the junior house league at Wonderland Lanes, captured the title in the 14th annual Queens tournament. She rolled games of 191, 233 and 187 and was given a spot of 28 pins a game for a grand total of 695.

Connie Smedley took over the runner-up position with a 670.

IN THE KINGS AND QUEENS event at Merri Bowl, Edward Barann paced the men with a 721 and Norm Taszko followed with 714 to qualify for the finals at Arb Continental next month.

On the Queens side Carol Bodner set the pace with a 743 to finish 15 pins head of Grace Kendall as both qualified for the big battle on June 24, where they will be shooting for the $1,000 top prize.

RUMORS ATE FLYING thick and fast that there will be many changes in the all-star lineups before another league season rolls around.

Ken Bloom, a graduate of Plymouth Salem, helped Oakland University gain an NCAA Division national tennis bid. He lost just two singles matches all year.

Salem graduate loads OU netters

By BRAD EMONS

Paced by Plymouth Salem graduate Ken Bloom, the Oakland University tennis squad enjoyed a record-setting season.

The Oakland team, coached by Lee Frederick, went through the year with an undefeated record (14-0).

For the first time in the school's history, Oakland won the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship, held May 4-5.

Bloom and his Oakland teammates were rewarded with an NCAA Division II tourney bid. Oakland was one of three schools selected to participate from the Midwest.

The NCAA tourney, held last week in Fairfield Bay, Ark., drew the top 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams from across the country.

Bloom was one of five singles players from Oakland to play in the tourney. He also entered the doubles competition at the number two spot along with teammate Terry Fuerst of Flossmoor Ill.

Bloom, at number two, lost his first round singles match to Chuck DeSalvo of Rollins College (Fla.), 7-6, 6-4.

Fuerst and Bloom were eliminated in the first round of the doubles tourney, losing to a duo from Valdosta State University (Ga.), 7-5, 7-6.

In its first appearance ever in the tourney, Oakland failed to win a first round match.

"THE LOSSES in the tournament cannot dim the season," said Oakland coach Lee Frederick. "We had an outstanding season."

On Bloom's singles match against DeSalvo, Frederick said: "Ken played very well. He was highly competitive against the number five seed (DeSalvo)."

"I was delighted with Ken's play this season. We brought him in as a number two player and he made us a good team. I was delighted he came."

Bloom transferred to Oakland from Henry Ford Community College where he played for two years. He is a 1976 graduate of Salem.

"Ken is a quiet guy with an excellent attitude," Frederick said. "He's serious and works hard at his game. His development this year was excellent."

The Oakland coach said Bloom was primarily a baseline stroker until this year.

"He's highly effective on the baseline but he served and volleyed more as the season wore on."

"Ken is an awfully good doubles player and should have a heckuva year, next year."

Frederick stepped down as Oakland's coach at the end of the season after a three-year stint. He was recently named head basketball coach and will devote all his time to that sport.

"I really enjoyed coaching Ken and the rest of the players," Frederick said. "They should do well next year."

Bloom, a junior, has one year left of eligibility.

Are athletic injuries on rise? Experts differ

Second of two parts
By KEN VOYLES

Are athletic-related injuries on the rise? That question has been the center of a major controversy in the sports world the past few years.

Even experts in the field — coaches, doctors and trainers — disagree and debate the question.

When the question of injuries comes up, the reference is usually to high school, college and professional sports. There is also the so-called "weekend athlete" to consider.

Even though the medical profession has recently developed sports injuries into a specific area of study, and even though technology has made vast strides in treating injuries, those injuries still occur.

All athletes are susceptible to injury of varying degrees. For some it may happen once, for others it may happen three or four times. For some, it may never happen.

The increase in the number of people participating in some sports is a key factor in determining whether or not injuries are increasing.

"I think what is happening is that we aren't seeing any more injuries than before, maybe even less, but then you have to add in Title IX and the rise in girls sports and girls injuries," said Dr. Warren Schildberg, an osteopathic physician and team doctor for the Detroit Express soccer team. He is also the team physician for several of the area high schools.

"There are more people getting into sports than ever before," he said, "but the ratio of injuries seems to be staying the same. The number of injuries is directly related to the number of people involved in sports."

Dr. David Hough, team physician for the Michigan State University sports program, thinks injuries might be on the upswing.

"Through what I've seen and from what I've been reading, it does seem to indicate that injuries are increasing," Hough said. "The reason might be that more people are getting out and playing sports, but then again there are a lot of other elements to consider."

"There are a lot of recreational athletes and the high school programs are increasing," he said. "There are always going to be injuries."

Hough works out of the university's sports center, where in the past year he has seen and treated 5,000-6,000 athletes. Not all have been college players.

"We get a fairly large number of high school athletes, more than I would expect, and that's another reason why I think injuries are increasing," Hough said. "We are also seeing an increase in women's injuries."

Bob Atkins has a different perspective on the view of athletic injuries. Atkins has been a baseball and football coach for many years and is now athletic director at Redford Union. He has seen a lot of injuries in those years.

"I would say overall that injuries are going down. If you just look at the statistics, the number of injuries is obviously going up. The only problem with the statistics is that they are very misleading."

"That's because sports programs on all levels have doubled in the past five to 10 years," Atkins said.

"Today's athlete is a sharp contrast to the athlete of previous years. The change began in the 60s, when everybody started getting involved in conditioning. Athletes today are in far better shape and condition than in the past."

Atkins also said that the whole concept of athletic training has changed over the years. Before, it wasn't a year-round thing. Now, the athlete is an athlete from January to December.

"I don't think we have as many injuries today for the simple reason that the athlete is in better condition," Atkins said.

Another person close to the area scene is Jack Reardon, head football coach for Livonia Stevenson for more than a decade.

"No I don't think injuries are on the rise. I haven't noticed that at Stevenson or with any of the other area teams we play," he said. "I think the reason may be that the conditioning is better and the equipment is better. We've also advanced a lot of our training methods."

Lindsay McLean is another person with knowledge in the sports injury field. McLean has been the head athletic trainer for the University of Michigan during the past 18 years.

"In sheer numbers, injuries have been increasing. But you really have to qualify the question of injuries because it has such a wide range," McLean said. "I really couldn't say whether or not injuries are increasing because there has not been sufficient information or in-depth studies done to show that."

McLean added that everything said about sports injuries has to be of the speculative kind.

"We notice more injuries because more people are involved," McLean said.

HIGH SCHOOL and college athletes are at an advantage because of the facilities available for his or her rehabilitation.

But what about the weekend athlete, the sometimes golfer or tennis player who strains or injures himself while just out for a little pleasure?

The weekend athlete doesn't have a coach or team trainer to turn to. That's where Dick Milder, who runs the Physical Therapy and Sports Medicine Center in Livonia, and Dr. Schildberg of the Detroit Express come in.

Schildberg said that the most common injuries suffered by the weekend athlete are in the elbow, the knees, the shoulder and the feet. Tennis elbow, in fact, is a constantly growing concern, according to Milder.

"Sometimes all you have to do for tennis elbow is rest. The problem with that is if you resume playing it can and usually will come right back," said Milder. "Simple hand and arm exercises are usually very helpful. They give the arm strength and keep the problem from coming back."

"That's not a sure-fire cure of course, but it can help the condition most of the time."

Milder is concerned that physicians have not come to realize the growing area of sports medicine. He feels that not enough is done to prevent injuries both on and off the field.

"I think an important thing for the older athlete to remember is that he or she should see a physician for a full physical before really getting into a sport or activity," Milder said.

As for those weekend athletes, Schildberg said there are at least 20 million joggers in this country alone. That doesn't include the softball players, the basketball players and the other sometimes athletes in the country.

"We see a lot of men and a lot of joggers," said Schildberg. "Jogging is a very demanding sport. Just by increasing your running time, for example, you increase the pounding the lower half of your body takes," Schildberg said. "The weekend athletes usually come in with minor injuries."

Another minor injury, ankle sprains, can often be prevented or treated by doing several exercises to strengthen and stretch the leg muscles, Milder said. These include:

- Standing arm's length from the wall, place hands on wall, keep feet flat and knees straight and lean forward as far as possible.

- Standing on the outside edges of feet, shoulder width apart, walk ten yards.

Chiefs lose, 5-2

Waterford Mott avenged an early season 7-0 loss to Plymouth Canton, scoring an upset 5-2 victory Monday afternoon.

"We didn't get the performances we had hoped for," said Canton tennis coach Jim Hayes.

"For the first time this season, we didn't perform up to our potential."

Canton is now 4-5 in Western Six League play and 6-6 overall.

The Chiefs' Bob Adams and Peter Lee picked up a point with a victory at number three doubles. The Canton duo had little trouble toppling Mark Adamczek and Jon Devine, 6-4, 6-1.

In singles, Canton picked up its other point when Mike Tegge defeated Mark Alsos, 6-4, 6-2.

The Durocher brothers of Waterford Mott gave the Chiefs plenty to think about.

At number one singles, Paul Durocher beat Bob Young, 6-3, 6-4, while at number two singles, brother Mark beat Dave Keen of Canton in three sets, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

John completed the perfect day for the Durocher brothers with a 6-4, 6-7, 6-3 win over Canton's Dan Schmidt (number three).

Canton's Kurt Crocker and Mark Roberts, winners in the first round of the regional Saturday, lost to Brad Boyle and Rich Hendeshot of Mott, 7-5, 6-1, at number two doubles.

At the number one doubles spot, Jamie Trenter and Steve Jones of Canton lost another three-setter, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, to Mark Beauary and Dan Haddad.

Canton finished its regular season schedule yesterday (Wednesday) against Northville in a Western Six match.

The Chiefs will play their final match Wednesday, June 30, in the league meet.

Canton girls defeated

Despite just 11 competitors, Plymouth Canton managed to capture four first places in an 83-40 girls' track meet loss to Livonia Bentley Tuesday afternoon.

The Chiefs are 2-7 overall and face Northville on the road Thursday in a Western Six League meet.

Michelle Perrot led Canton with first places in the mile (5:40.2) and two mile (12:15.7) runs.

In the two mile, Perrot broke the school record by :20.0.

Brenda Bigelow of the Chiefs took the high jump (5-0) while teammate Liz Gorecki won the discus (97-5) with her best toss of the season.

"We ran pretty well for 11 people," said Canton coach John Dunn.

"With the personnel we have, we're doing pretty well," he said.

Other Canton competitors who gained second place finishes included Jill Pederson, long jump, 13-2; Sue Coll, 100-yard dash, :12.6; Lori Shufeldt, 440-yard run, 1:05.1; Pederson, 220-yard low hurdles, :34.8; Kathy Brophy, 880-yard run, 2:38.0.

Reserves aid Rocks

Plymouth Salem used its reserve strength to beat Allen Park Tuesday afternoon in a Suburban Eight League boys' track meet, 100-32.

"We ran a lot of new people and some freshman for the first time," said Salem coach Gary Balconi. "We mixed up some things and it was a fun day."

Sophomore Lee Langkabel won the 220-yard dash with a time of :24.6. He was also a member of two winning relay efforts.

He teamed with Greg Stevens, Bob Pittaway and Rich Hanschu to win the 880-yard relay (1:37.8).

Langkabel, Dan Smith, Steve Shafer and Lance Willsey combined to win the mile relay (3:50.7) for the Rocks.

Shafer was victorious in the 330-yard low hurdles (:42.9).

Other Salem first places came from Pat Tortorra, discus, 102-3; Howard Monk, high jump, 5-8; Todd Maguran, pole vault, 10-6; Phil Anderson, 120-yard high hurdles, :16.1; Bob Kersten, long jump, :17.8.

The team of Greg Lipka, Craig Stack, Stevens and Hanschu captured the 440-yard relay (:46.5).

Second place finishes for the Rocks came from Mark Coprowicz, discus, 100-8; Chris Carl, shot put, 37-8; Dave Argonis, long jump 17-4; Scott Fuller, high jump, 5-6; Bill Ickes, pole vault, 8-0; Rob Hanschu, 120-yard high hurdles, :16.9; Jim Spooner, 100-yard dash, :11.3; Greg Stafford, 330-yard low hurdles, :44.6; Mike Wooley, 880-yard dash, 2:18.9; Argonis, 220-yard dash, :24.9; Chris Whittaker, two mile run, 10:44.

Jack Bologna Writes

Productivity lag?

(The author of this column, Jack Bologna, is a Plymouth resident and president of a management consulting firm headquartered in Plymouth.)

The productivity of American labor continues to drop in relation to the nation's real gross national product (GNP).

Average GNP over the past five years has gone up at a greater rate than labor productivity.

Economists are alarmed about this development. They allege the productivity lag adds to our inflation rate because it now takes more units of labor to produce the same amount of goods and services and, of course, these higher labor costs are being passed onto consumers by way of higher prices.

WHEN ONE BEGINS to search for the underlying causes of the productivity lag, however, the problem gets more complex.

Here, there are no universal nor simple solutions.

The causal factors for the decrease in productivity cover the whole spectrum of economic, political, sociological and psychological thought.

For example, economists point to these causal factors: 1. Our capital equipment is aging; 2. tax incentives for investments in new plants and machinery are inadequate; 3. Management is too short-sighted and prefers short-term profit over long-term growth; 4. Management has lost its zest for innovations in production and distribution techniques; 5. Management is too conservative and unwilling to take even modest risks; 6. Industry is so busy complying with new government regulations like OSHA, EPA, and EEO that there is no time to innovate new and better production methods; and, 7. that our industrial base is shifting from manufacturing to personal services which are more labor-intensive.

SOCIOLOGISTS POINT to the fact that our current labor force has a higher concentration of people who are new to work or are relatively unskilled, i.e.

married women, youth and sunbelt residents.

They also claim people don't value hard work as highly as they formerly did and that people are becoming more self-centered and hedonistic (pleasure seekers).

Psychologists complain that employers are not providing a work environment which promotes personal growth and achievement, that too few opportunities for promotion exist, that many jobs are boring, dull and routine, and that workers aren't involved in decision-making about their own work.

Politicians, depending on their political stripe, complain that industry is too oligopolistic (control in the hands of a few giants) or that labor union wages demands are unreasonable.

ONE THING no one seems to be complaining about on the issue of productivity is the measurement itself.

Productivity is determined by dividing the real gross national product by the total civilian labor force. Perhaps we should examine that method of measurement and some "hard" data about productivity.

The character of work itself and the composition of the labor force have changed. We have moved from a labor intensive agricultural-industrial economy to a service oriented economy.

We have fewer manual laborers today and considerably more service industry workers. Automation has eliminated many of the dull, routine and mechanistic jobs that unskilled laborers used to fill.

Computers operate machinery which formerly was operated by semi-skilled workers. Computers now do many jobs which were done by skilled employees, i.e. bookkeeping, production scheduling, inventory controls, payroll accounting, etc.

If automation and electronic data processing (EDP) have replaced the menial and repetitive jobs, one might conclude that work is more challenging, satisfying and less routine.

And, as we move from a product-based economy to a service-based economy, more data than paper is flowing — data to provide instructions for computers and for those who operate computers, data to monitor and control machinery, data which identifies problems and discrepancies.

With the movement to EDP, we are transmitting data at near the speed of light, so how do we improve on that?

PERHAPS THE REAL problem is that the measurement of productivity is wrong.

Measuring the relationship between labor input and product output is not a true representation of the new value created in the production process.

If we have, in fact, improved the lot of the working men and women of America, by making their jobs less dull, routine and physically exhausting and more safe, satisfying and challenging, then why don't economists crank those things into their productivity measurement?

Measuring inputs and outputs without consideration for the quality of the thrusts doesn't make sense in this this day of systems science.

What we need from economists today are not efficiency measurements but effectiveness measurements. Human labor cannot be considered as a mere input in the production process.

The quantity of labor may be a valid input factor but the quality of that labor should be considered a thrust factor and weighed in terms of its impact on output and value added.

WORKERS TODAY are better paid, have better fringe benefits, work fewer hours, have safer work places, are treated more humanely and work at less monotonous tasks.

The products they produce are safer cause less pollution, use less energy and are better values in terms of the totality of these new features.

Let's not argue about whether these values were added by the enlightened self-interest of industry or because of governmental dictates.

The fact is, our output of goods is much improved in an ecological sense and we all benefit from it.

Belleville Lake boat dock may be ready for holiday

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

A decent boat launch on Belleville Lake?

That's what it said in an announcement from the state Department of Natural Resources this week:

"Maintenance and construction crews are in full force now. Construction crews . . . are currently installing the boat launching ramp at Belleville Lake in Wayne County."

It adds: "The Belleville site should be open to the public the week before Memorial Day."

Belleville is one of the most popular boating lakes around, and it's not bad for fishing, either, except for the wake kicked up by power boaters.

Belleville continually pops up on the crappie fishing lists, and it has received a stock of DNR walleyes in past years. In 1978 it even got a stock of tiger muskies.

But the boat launch has been notorious for its poor state of repair, its mud and its ruts. And although Wayne County has 30 percent of the state's population, Belleville has the county's only state boat launch.

The hang up appears to have been a dispute between the state and local officials about easements and rights of way. That was the story. The truth is probably the long-standing battle between lakefront owners and the public for access to the lake.

Other boat launches under construction: on the Huron River at Ann Arbor, on Lake Fenton in Genesee County and on Saginaw Bay in Huron County.

AREA FISHING roundup:

Good brown trout are being caught on Paint Creek at Gunn Road in Oakland County.

Good catches of crappies, both in size and numbers, on Maceday and Lotus lakes, also in Oakland County.

Last week's warm weather will start bringing the bluegills onto the spawning beds. A friend and I found some nice-sized gills on the edge of lily pads in shallow water on a favorite lake, but they hadn't yet moved onto the sandy bottom area to scoop out their saucer-shaped nests.

FOUR NATURE programs are on tap at nearby Huron-Clinton metropolitan parks. In each case, the programs are free, but you should call the park number to register in advance. The offerings:

• "Aquatic Adventure" at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 19. Naturalist Dave Moilanen will help explore the strategies by which Canada geese, ducks, fish, frogs, toads and small aquatic creatures survive. Call 685-1561 (Milford).

• "Wildflowers" at 9 a.m. Sunday, May 20 at Kensington. Naturalist Steve Horn will discuss identification, ecology, folklore and practical uses of spring wildflowers in a 1½ hour hike on the nature trail. Same number.

• "Wildflower II" at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 20 at Oakwoods metropark near Flat Rock. Naturalist Bob Wittersheim will talk about plant folklore, edible and poisonous wild plants. Trilliums, cinquefoil, baneberry, dogwood and other plants will be spotted along the trail. Call 782-1255.

• "Nature's Night Shift" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 22 at Kensington. Learn more about deer, raccoons, owls and other night creatures during this two-hour hike. Bring flashlights.

Nature programs are free, but you need to pay park admission of $2 a car or $7 for a season pass.

IF THE PRICE of gasoline hasn't kept you close to home, consider the last in a series of spring bird walks at Michigan State University's Hidden Lake Gardens near Tipton in north-central Lenawee County.

Birds of all sizes and species, from titmouse to swan, inhabit the 670-acre arboretum on M-50 between Cambridge Junction and Tecumseh in the Irish Hills.

The last bird walk is at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 19, rain or shine. Wear warm, water-resistant, shedable clothing, and bring your own binoculars.

Max Adler, curator of greenhouse collections at Eastern Michigan University, conducts the classes. There's a class admission charge. But you can tour the arboretum on your own for 25 cents.

THE FURRY and feathered friends we study on nature walks are often pests to telephone repairmen for Ma Bell.

Squirrels, gophers, woodpeckers and other creatures munch through cables and wires, putting the bite on the telephone company for $1 million a year nationwide in repairs, according to the National Geographic Society.

Gray squirrels have a particular liking for lead-sheathed cables. Why they prefer lead to other cables is unexplained. "It may have something to do with the consistency of the metal or the taste, like some people prefer Juicy Fruit over spearmint gum," speculated a phone company spokesman.

Field technicians think the hum of dial tones from conductors on the cables lead woodpeckers to believe insects are hidden in the wire.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

ALICE AND LOYD Sharland stopped in at Meijers last Thursday evening to pick up a loaf of bread and a can of orange juice. Their mission accomplished, they headed for their car. What followed was a kind of nightmare in which Alice almost lost her life.

She stumbled and fell, breaking her knee. The broken bone severed an artery. The Sharlands credit the quick action of a man who was walking behind Alice and the Canton Township Fire Dept. with saving her life.

As she lay there, in pain and losing a tremendous amount of blood, the stranger applied a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood. The fire department was there in a very few minutes to rush her to Wayne County General Hospital.

The eight hours that followed were described as "touch and go." She was in surgery that length of time while the doctors replaced three inches of ruptured artery and placed a pin in the broken knee. The whole operation was complicated by her condition due to the great loss of blood.

Greg Wiza, who lives on Rayburn in Livonia, applied the pressure to stop the bleeding. He apologized for not acting quickly enough to catch Alice before she fell.

Her leg is encased in a cast from hip to toe and she will be in the hospital for another month. She has feeling in her toes and according to her son, Randy, she is in good spirits.

Her room number is 472, Wayne County General Hospital, Merriman Road, Wayne Mich. 48184.

KIM FLORA chauffeured Evel Knievel around Hillcrest Country Club in a golf cart last weekend. After two days of the Dodge Dealers celebrity golf classic, Kim's assessment of the daredevil driver was something of a revelation.

Kim was at the benefit golf match as an entry in the upcoming Miss Venus Michigan pageant. She was assigned to driving Knievel's golf cart on Saturday. She thought her Sunday assignment would be selling tickets in the clubhouse but he requested that he have the same driver.

"He's really a nice man and a good golfer," said Kim. "Some of the celebrities were rude to the kids who asked for autographs. He always took time to sign autographs and talk to them."

She explained, "You know his real name is Robert. He talked a lot about his wife and two sons in Butte, Montana. He spends his spare time painting — mostly landscapes."

During the celebrity auction in which footballs autographed by the Detroit Lions, golf bags and a host of other items were sold, Knievel's painting received the highest bid.

"The Evel is the last four letters of his last name," said Kim. "Some people think it is evil."

She described him as a very natural person. He did discuss his plan to jump out of a plane into a haystack. Knievel disagreed with the authorities who banned the stunt because youths might attempt the jump and get hurt. "What teenager is going to have enough money to hire a 747 and arrange a stack of straw that big?"

When her celebrity became bored with the golf match, he made side bets with the two young men who followed him around the course in another cart. "I think they were his bodyguards," said Kim. "Jim, who travels with him and looks after his money and accommodations, is 22 and a neighbor of his family."

Robert Knievel, landscape painter and family man impressed the Plymouth girl as being a really nice celebrity.

M.J. WILLETTE had that perfect 29-point hand that all cribbage players dream about.

She was playing a two-handed game last weekend at Torch Lake when was dealt three fives and a jack. When another five, same suit as her jack, was turned up, she had the perfect hand.

EVELYN BECK and John Drenniak had high scores at last Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

KATHERINE PETROFF, a resident of Plymouth Township, received the Spirit of Detroit Award at Sunday's Heritage Day ceremonies in Detroit. The award is given to a naturalized citizen by the International Institute in recognition of exceptional achievement, outstanding leadership and dedication to improving the quality of life.

Guest speaker was Senator Carl Levin and the award was presented by Detroit Councilman Nicholas Hood.

Katherine is 87 years old. She enjoys gardening, reading and baking. Many of her family live nearby in Plymouth. She is one of the founders of St. Clemens Eastern Orthodox Church of Dearborn.

Spring planting

The Point Park at the junction of Mill and Starkweather is the most attractive entrance to the city of Plymouth. City employees and everyone else works at keeping it trim. Each spring, members of the Plymouth branch Woman's National Farm and Garden Association do their part to add summer color to the plantings.

The tulips still were in bloom this week when they set out flats of colorful petunias.

$4,500 bonus!

League lives up to its reputation

The Plymouth Symphony League topped off a successful season with the surprise presentation of a bonus check of $4,500 to the Plymouth Symphony Society.

Jan Quick, president of the league, made the presentation to society president Fran Lang at the league luncheon in the Round Table Club of the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Quick reviewed the season's activities, which helped them meet their budgeted contribution of $6,000 to the society. She credited the "extra projects" with putting them over the top and making the bonus possible.

"During the sidewalk sales, when most organizations had ceased their activities for the summer, we were sitting in front of Beitner Jewelry selling our Symphony of Values coupon books. We earned $72 during those two days. We continued to sell the books throughout the year bringing a total profit for these books to $2,109."

Because the coupon books were a last season project, just $463 was included in this year's earnings.

THE BAKE sale following the Dec. 10 concert earned $225.50.

"It was at this time that our popular symphony scarves first appeared," said Mrs. Quick. "The total profit for the scarves was $715.49."

She brought chuckles from the league members when she said, "We also offered our antique symphony cookbooks throughout the year and sold 260 at $1 each. Thank you for your time, your baking, your purchases, your sales and your advertising."

The cookbooks were left over from an even older project.

Profitable projects included:

- The round robin bridge which was handled by the Vivace group co-chaired by Linda West and Carolyn Jacobs. Estimated profits are $1,130.
- The antique mart netted $2,658.27, an increase of about $94 over the previous year. It was co-chaired by Fran Lang and Joyce Kelly with Sharon Davy and Helen Merrill serving as the dealer committee and Jean Sigmon as treasurer.

• Darlene Spooner and Barb Brewer and the Allegro group planned the fall luncheon and fashion show at Meadowbrook Country Club. Profit was $1817.96.

• The Crescendo group, with Theresa Johnson chairing the event, was responsible for the Symphony Ball which earned more than $375.

New venture this season was the Kitchen Cabaret in the spring. Under the direction of Janet Repp, the cabaret added $1,633 to the league coffers.

JUDY MORGAN and Judy Dahlberg will be co-chairpersons of the 1979 antique mart.

Jan Quick thanked her board members, the group chairpersons, and Ruth McMahon, who arranged for the Girl Scouts who served as babysitters during the symphony concerts.

The new board was elected unanimously. They are Clara Camp, president; Janet Repp, vice president; Barb King, treasurer; and Ruth McMahon, secretary.

The new president took over with the statement that she had a difficult act to follow.

She thanked members of the string trio, Janet Holl, Janita Hawk and Jean Braun who had performed with flautist Phyllis Taylor at the luncheon.

Resource people needed for schools

School volunteers are people like you.

In cooperation with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, the Plymouth branch of AAUW, American Association of University Women, is setting up a coordinated volunteer program for the school district. They are in the process of expanding, updating and coordinating existing school resource lists.

A resource person is one who enriches the curriculum by sharing skills, talents, hobbies, or experiences with students through a one time presentation or in a limited number of mini-classes.

A person on the resource list is not making a definite time commitment, but simply indicating a willingness to go into the school several times a year.

In a recent survey, teachers listed over 50 specific areas in which they would like resource people. These might include people knowledgeable in weather, plants, Africa, computers and poetry. Do you have slides of a trip? Are you interested in ecology? The possibilities are limitless.

Being a volunteer benefits students by providing experiences not usually available in the classroom. A volunteer benefits by having the opportunity to see what is going on in our schools and by receiving that special kind of fulfillment that comes from direct involvement with children.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or for more information may call Marj Croll, 453-1038 or Donna Huff, 453-5312.

THE NEWLY elected board of the Canton Newcomers has selected its committee heads for the 1979-80 year.

They are: membership, Pat Wise; interest groups, Connie Tiane; reservations, Nancy Burns; couples, Karen Wollig; newsletter, Penny Luddecke; publicity, Shirley Gruetzmacher; hospitality, Debbie Druce and welcoming, Anna Roberts.

The Newcomers board will be installed at the June 6 dinner meeting.

The last meeting of the year will be at Mitch Housey's restaurant in Livonia.

Members wishing to attend this meeting must make a paid reservation with Judi Thomas by May 30.

INTERESTED in golf lessons? Arbor Joy Golf Range in Plymouth, 10675 Ann Arbor Road, is offering group lessons.

The pro there will take six persons to a group for a 40-minute lesson for $4, plus the cost of a bucket of balls.

The group can decide on one or any number of lessons. Individual lessons would be $8 for 40 minutes. If you are interested in group or individual lessons the person to call is Dave Wall at 455-0483.

If anyone is interested in couples golf, Hilltop has a couples league that plays Friday evenings. Just call Hilltop Golf Course for more information.

PLYMOUTH-CANTON Community Schools has released its listing for summer activities program. Summer classes are for everyone. There are classes for children of all ages as well as adult instruction.

The program includes summer school classes, enrichment activities and recreational classes.

Just a few of the many things offered this summer are: dance classes, golf instruction, volleyball techniques, instrumental music, diver education, math and reading tutorial program, safety town, arts and crafts, modeling workshop, creative drama, and swimming and tennis lessons; plus a whole lot more.

You may pick up a schedule from the Plymouth Community Education office, 8415 Canton Center Road, in Canton High School.

Other agencies offering summer activities include, Canton Parks and Recreation, YMCA, City Parks and Recreation, Growth Works, City Library, and the Community Arts Council. There is no reason for anyone to have a lazy unproductive summer in Canton, unless, of course, that is your choice.

New voices

Rick and Shila Hall of Adams Street, Plymouth announce the birth of twin sons, Jeffrey Charles and Scott Richard, May 14 in Garden City Osteopathic Hospital. They have an older daughter, Sara, 2.

Grandparents are Robert and Mary Tooze of Wayne and Johanna Hall of Plymouth. Great-grandparents are Tracie and Joe Biggerstaff of Wayne and Helen Tooze of Ypsilanti.

Joseph and Bridgett Bledsoe announce the birth of their daughter, Katherine Ann, April 19, 1979 in Gunnison, Colo.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dwan C. Buie of Penniman Avenue, Plymouth and Mr. and Mrs. Troy Bledsoe. Great-grandmother is Mrs. Esther Preston of South Lyon, a former Plymouth resident.

Using Solar Energy...

Come see how Detroit Edison is using the sun's energy to heat space and water in its experimental Jubilee Solar Home.

Visit the Jubilee Solar Home and see how Detroit Edison is experimenting with the sun's natural energy to help keep your future bright.

Fortunately, Detroit Edison customers have plenty of electric power available. Today, and many years into the future. It's a result of a lot of planning, development and investment and the fact that more than 84 percent of Detroit Edison's power is generated from coal, our nation's most abundant fuel. The balance is generated by other fossil fuels.

Looking far ahead, Detroit Edison is conducting research on other energy sources that may prove to be practical in our geographic area. While it may be some time before solar energy developments make possible economical applications for people's homes, the Jubilee Solar Home already will have begun to determine if the sun's energy may someday be a useful replacement for the oil and natural gas now used for heating so that these fuels may be saved for other uses where only they will do.

The Jubilee Solar Home looks like a traditional house. But if you walk around to the back you'll see the solar collectors on the roof. Heat from the sun is captured by the collectors, stored in the water, then distributed by air to heat the home. Solar-heated water also warms water for bathing, laundering and cleaning. Solar energy is expected to fulfill 20 to 30 percent of the space heating requirements and 80 to 90 percent of the water heating requirements.

On days when the sun doesn't shine or when more heat is needed, an energy-efficient heat pump moves the natural heat, always present in the outdoor air, inside the home. Electric elements provide additional heat as required. In warm weather, the heat pump reverses automatically for energy-efficient air conditioning.

The Jubilee Solar Home is exceptionally well insulated to keep heat inside in winter and to make air conditioning more efficient in summer. All doors and windows, and even the fireplace, are designed to be energy efficient.

When you visit the Jubilee Solar Home, be sure to examine some of the new ideas in electric appliances and lighting selected for energy efficiency, convenience and safety. And note the interior lighting and outdoor security lighting system, designed to use little electricity.

Detroit Edison's Jubilee Solar Home was built by Fred Greenspan Development Corporation in cooperation with the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Keeping plenty of power in your hands.

Arts council awards 8 scholarships

Glen Carlos, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, is winner of the Joanne Winkleman Hulce Award, presented each spring by the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC). The prize of $500 was established in honor of the arts council's founder.

Its purpose is to give financial encouragement to deserving students who wish to pursue a career in the arts. Carlos is a singer, composer and musician — he plays piano and guitar. He also was awarded a tuition scholarship by Schoolcraft Community College. The $250 per term grant is renewable.

Carlos received the JWH award at the annual luncheon meeting of the PCAC in First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

SEVEN MIDDLE school students, winners of the PCAC fine arts awards, and their parents were luncheon guests.

Top prize of $150 went to April Richeson of West. Her field is drama.

Kathleen Bombback of West, creative writing, and Steven Culver of Pioneer, art, each received $75.

Cash awards of $50 were presented to Janine Bologna of Our Lady of Good Counsel, art; Cecilia Haro, Pioneer, piano; Junaid Mazhar, East, art; and Chris Theodore, West, art.

The cash awards are to be used to further study in their particular fields of interest.

Officers for the new season include Nancy Sharp, who will continue as president. Joan Englehart is vice president; Jan Carney is secretary and Mary Rose Hausman is treasurer.

New members of the board of directors are Jan Gattoni and Ellison Seaver.

Arts club members and guests had an opportunity to see home movies of the successful follies sponsored by the club. Glen Carlos and his group, "Friends," entertained after the luncheon.

Margaret Moon presented the Joanne Winkleman Hulce Award to Glen Carlos.

Judy and Dominic Cirino of Canton Township attended the FISH dinner meeting. He is chairman of the group.

Local FISH group serves 3 communities

The FISH organization for Plymouth, Canton Township and Plymouth Township has been in existence for seven years. Members of the organization finally got together for a general meeting and dinner Monday evening in the Mayflower Meeting House.

The general consensus of opinion was: "You meet some wonderful people when you are driving for FISH."

The old Christian symbol of a fish was chosen as a name for this volunteer organization which lends a helping hand to persons with problems.

Members are expected to be called on just once a month to give two or three hours of their time.

They may provide transportation to a hospital or doctor's office. They may babysit with a small child while the mother has a doctor's appointment.

A FISH member may read to a blind person or those with typing skills may put them to work on the file card system. Someone has to promise to spend a day at home to check the answering service to see if there are any calls.

DON CIRINO, president of the group, brought along a thank you message from one of their people.

She had kept track of all dates and the names of the persons who had driven her for the past year. All were inscribed on the back of a piece of Christmas wrapping paper.

What made the messages very special to the FISH people was the fact that they knew she was so crippled with arthritis that even writing her name was a painful chore.

"And she is the one who went out and shoveled all the snow from her sidewalk so I wouldn't fall when I went to pick her up one day. They are wonderful people," said Cirino.

He knows the value of FISH from a personal standpoint. He depended on the Fish drivers for a three-month period when he was paralyzed. They took him to the hospital for therapy several times a week.

THE 70 MEMBERS who met for the dinner emphasized the fact that men are most welcome in FISH.

The Currys, Mel and Dorothy, find FISH a rewarding experience. He is a retired newspaperman.

Earl Wise helps recruit new volunteers. Wanda Nash, outgoing secretary of the local group, has been a dedicated worker. The only reason she is giving up the job is because she and her family are moving out of the area.

Last year, they handled between 800 and 900 calls. They do drive to Detroit and to Ann Arbor. FISH is financed by the three communities it serves. They make referrals to persons who do not know where to turn for help.

"And there are those who would take advantage of our services," said Cirino. "We have had calls asking to send someone over every day so a mother can go to work. We consider our work is to respond to emergency situations."

Persons who would like to become a FISH volunteer can call Don Cirino, 459-1384. He will be happy to explain the workings of the volunteer organization and welcome them to the very special group.

Road, bridge work to halt

All road and bridge construction on the 2,486 miles of roads under jurisdiction of the Oakland County Road Commission will cease Memorial weekend.

Cora Davies heads dental auxiliary

Cora Davies of Sheldon Road, Plymouth is the newly-elected president of the Auxiliary to the Washtenaw Dental Society. Officers for the 1979-80 season were installed at the auxiliary's annual luncheon meeting at Barton Hills Country Club in Ann Arbor.

Serving with Mrs. Davies are: Gail Morawa of Ann Arbor, president-elect; Joyce Foust of Plymouth, recording secretary; Margaret Brustad of Ann Arbor, corresponding secretary; Mary Richards of Ann Arbor, treasurer; and Barbara Balbach of Ann Arbor, assistant treasurer.

How you can submit news

When you submit information for an article in the Southfield Eccentric, or any of the 11 other Observer & Eccentric newspapers, keep in mind the following hints. These recommendations will help avoid errors and help insure that material submitted for publication can be fully considered.

First, be certain to give us complete information. It is better to submit too much news than too little.

When an individual's name is used in an article, be sure to give us the first and last name. For example, you and members of your church may know that Rev. Smith's first name is John, but other readers may not.

Send your materials to: The Southfield Eccentric, 22170 W. Nine Mile, Southfield 48034. Send items at least one week before the date of the intended publication.

Funerals can be more helpful

By MARGARET MILLER

Funerals are for the living.

That's the conviction of a man who has made it his business to help those who deal with death do it in a way to assist those who are still alive.

"There is absolutely only one reason for a funeral, and that is if somebody gets helped," said Bill Bates, who was brought from Oregon by Livonia funeral director Leonard Turowski to lead a seminar at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

Bates, who used to own a funeral home and went into his present work because "people weren't being helped," sees the funeral and its cast of characters in a light quite different from that of many of his counterparts.

Our society, he explained, has "taught us to avoid our feelings and escape them through Valium, alcohol and cigarettes." So when we meet death, he added, we deny the anger we feel and prepare for a funeral with the determination to keep up a front and get it over with quickly.

"The funeral directors need to recognize this anger," Bates said. "Instead, they buy into it and nobody gets helped."

BATES FOUR-DAY sessions form a "Life Appreciation Series," designed to help funeral directors understand grief, its processes and the need to help people accept and work through their individual responses.

The program is based on research he

'You get a more compassionate human being, and that's the bottom line.'

— Funeral workshop leader Bill Bates in cooperation with the University of Oregon. The research addresses itself, he said, to the question of "how a funeral can address itself directly to what has happened."

In the sessions, Bates spends time on understanding grief, preparing a "Life-line" which takes each participant back over the times in his own life he has known and reacted to grief, and finally a "Death Lab," which the leader described as "a very intense confrontation with our feelings about our own death."

"It is a course that makes many people angry," he said, "and very few go through it without shedding a lot of tears."

"But you get a more compassionate human being, and that's the bottom line."

A by-product of a different way of looking at funerals may bring some changes in the way they are conducted.

"Ritual can make sense out of chaos," Bates said, "but if the ritual is not in keeping with my value system it does not do that for me. The funeral service needs to be meaningful to the individual, and the aim is to modify but not revolutionize."

TUROWSKI, A PARTNER in Maney, Burrell and Turowski Funeral

Directors of Livonia, said he had gone through Bates' workshop and was anxious for his associates to do so. Funeral directors from several neighboring areas also were participating in the sessions.

"Bill's program makes us much more aware," he said. "We change, not only professionally but personally."

"My wife noticed a real change in me."

He noted that he was seeing differences in his work. He had just completed a funeral for the father of a priest and included several innovations that seemed natural to the people involved.

"The priest wrote his own service," said Turowski, "and that is quite unusual. He also brought in a family photo album full of pictures of his father, and that was very meaningful to friends and relatives as well as to him."

"That's the kind of helpful thing I am talking about," Bates said.

The visiting educator also noted that there is "no economic incentive" for participation in his workshop.

"We don't come cheap, and those who get this training can't charge any more for their services," he said. "They just are better equipped to do their jobs, and funeral directors talk to more hurting people than any professional group in the world."

BETTER UNDERSTANDING of grief, death and life are the foundations of the workshop Bates leads.

"Grief is like no other emotion," he said. "We can choose to become angry, or happy, or depressed. But grief is something that happens to us. It's the healing process which makes us well."

Grief's components, he added, are shock, denial, bargaining, anger and the feeling of being cheated. "We get those factors all at once in an overpowering load."

"Some react to loss with the feeling that they're going crazy," he noted.

The purpose for pushing participants to think intensively about their own death is to help them appreciate life, Bates said.

"The truth I'm trying to bring them is that we all are dying, even though we don't accept it intellectually," he added. "But when we accept the fact that death will come, then we appreciate life in a new way and we are more aware of other people."

Bates' workshops have in recent years taken him to 150 cities in the United States, Canada and Australia. They are open to all who deal with people who face death — social workers, psychologists and clergymen as well as funeral directors.

Those interested in learning more about his program may call Turowski, 427-3400.

CHURCH BULLETIN

HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH, 39020 Five Mile, Livonia,

will host the congregation of All Saints Lutheran Church, also of Livonia, in an Ascension celebration at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 24.

The service for the two congregations will include the extinguishing of the Paschal Candle, which has burned since Easter, and it marks the visible departure of Christ following his resurrection.

David Paap, pastor of All Saints, and Robert Seltz and James Spilos of Holy Trinity will co-celebrate the Eucharistic service, and special music will be provided by the Holy Trinity adult choir directed by Margaret Koltz. Amy Stult will be the organist.

Holy Trinity also plans a camp out for about 20 of its families over the Memorial Day weekend at Myers Lake Resort near Byron.

The weekend will include games, movies and potlucks, and will be highlighted with a communion service under the trees Sunday morning. The church has been sponsoring spring and fall family camp outs for several years.

BETHEL BAPTIST TEMPLE, 29475 W. Six Mile, Livonia, plans a homecoming day Sunday, May 27.

The Rev. H.L. Petty, pastor, said he hopes that everyone who has ever attended the church will come for one of Sunday's services, scheduled at 10 and 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. A potluck dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m.

CALVARY MISSIONARY CHURCH, 29850 W. Six Mile, Livonia, will show an evangelistic film, "If I Should Die," at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 27.

In the film, respected Christian doctors, psychologists and theologians come together to examine death and dying in connection with the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The public is invited to view the film.

ST. RICHARD CATHOLIC CHURCH, 35851 Cherry Hill, Westland, will have a special liturgy and procession to honor Mary beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 31.

Children who have been part of 1978-79 sacramental programs are invited to join in the procession along with all parishioners. A social time will follow the procession.

Drakes have anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Drake of Shady-side Street in Livonia were honored at a 50th wedding anniversary party given by their children May 20 in the Moon Lake Club House in West Bloomfield.

Married on May 21, 1929, in St. Francis D'Assisi in Detroit, the couple have two children. They are Mrs. David Jaseck and Mrs. Joseph Kolpacke, both of Livonia. They also have six grandchildren.

Among the events marking their anniversary are a mass of celebration in St. Michael's Church of Livonia and a papal blessing sent to them by Pope John Paul II.

The Drakes are members of the Livonia Senior Citizens and enjoy gardening as a hobby.

Rose Kennedy 90 years old

Rose Kennedy, a former resident of Detroit, celebrated her 90th birthday recently in the Dorvin Convalescent and Nursing Center in Livonia. The event was attended by four generations of the family.

Mrs. Kennedy, who taught Catholic religious instruction for 37 years, had eight children, including Pat McHenry of Redford Township and Gregory Kennedy of Southfield. Other children are Everett Kennedy of Pine Lake; Dr. Eugene Kennedy of Monroe; Rosemary Dwyer of Detroit; Richard Kennedy of Warren; Loraine Phillips of Cape Coral, Fla.; and the late Thomas Kennedy of Detroit.

She has 31 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren. During World War II, she was an air raid warden. She was married to the late Joseph Kennedy.

Bible studiers

The Rev. and Mrs. Kelvin Kronmeyer (left) and Shirley Meendering of Good Shepherd Reformed Church of Westland recently attended a two-week orientation clinic of the Bethel series, an international Bible study program sponsored by the Adult Christian Education Foundation of Madison, Wis. They will use their training to begin adult study programs in their church. The three are shown here with a poster from the first Old Testament lesson of the series, "Creation and its Concepts."

NOW leaders muster for ERA

By ARLENE VANDERLEUN

Last year some 100,000 women in flowing white dresses marched with their male supporters in Washington, to show support for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

In the next few weeks, some of these supporters will be mustering several ERA "action teams." These will carry a message to senior citizens, students and "mid-life women" who face eco-

Ott-Harbin

Lawrence John and Mary Ott of Stonehouse Street, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Lee, to Brian Harold Harbin, son of Raymond and Isabel Harbin of Montana Street, Canton.

The bride-to-be is a 1975 graduate of Churchill High School and earned a degree this year from Eastern Michigan University. Her fiancé graduated from Churchill in 1974 and from EMU in 1978. He is employed in credit analysis by Bank of the Commonwealth.

They plan a June 9 wedding in St. Colette Catholic Church of Livonia.

nomic hardship in the event of divorce or widowhood.

Their message will tell these women loud and clear: "You need the Equal Rights Amendment."

While 35 states (including Michigan) have already ratified the amendment, three more are needed before it becomes part of the U.S. Constitution.

Congress earlier this year extended the original March 1979 deadline to June 1982. The amendment would take effect two years after ratification.

"WE ARE GOING to bring the message to increasing numbers of people," said Eleanor Smeal, national president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), which spearheaded the drive to extend the ratification deadline.

"We are not going to go away until women have equal rights under the law. Polls show that not many people know what (ERA) is about."

Mrs. Smeal envisions a time in the future when homemakers will have unemployment benefits, health insurance and Social Security benefits in their own names — a time when laws will be applied equally between sexes.

Mrs. Smeal is a petite, brown-eyed, 39-year-old homemaker from Pittsburgh. She sees her metallurgist husband and two children between lobbying trips and speaking engagements around the country.

She spoke with the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers during a recent area meeting to map strategy. Among those attending the meeting were persons from NOW chapters in western Wayne County and Oakland County.

They talked about how supporters of ERA can speak their mind to persons in unratified states. Mrs. Smeal urged ERA supporters to write letters, make phone calls and donate money. She also suggested that they refrain from traveling in unratified states.

NORTHWEST WAYNE County NOW, which draws members from Livonia, Westland, Canton Township and Plymouth, still hasn't completed its plans. But Noreen Dinnebiel, president of that chapter, did call on women in administrative and middle management jobs to "pay their dues" to the women's movement.

"Without the women's movement, they would be locked into menial jobs," said Ms. Dinnebiel.

Midwest Wayne County NOW, which has members from Wayne and Westland, will continue to focus attention on fund-raising events and educational programs on the ERA, said chapter president Jody Kaufman, of Dearborn.

In Oakland County, NOW has an outreach program that will culminate in a four-hour workshop June 16 in the Birmingham Continuum Center for Education on Purdy in Birmingham. Workshops will focus on the ERA, history of the women's movement, economic concerns for women and childbearing.

Speakers will be Helen Milliken, wife of the governor, and state Rep. Ruth MacNamee. Both are strong supporters of the ERA.

"We want to reach mainstream women," said Beth Erskine, of Birmingham.

Indiana in 1977 was the last state to ratify. States such as Illinois and Florida have recently defeated it. Mrs. Smeal says many people simply "don't understand what the ERA is about."

IN MRS. SMEAL'S view, what the ERA is "about" is getting language in the constitution to fight laws which discriminate on the basis of sex.

She said she considers the ERA "simplistic" in language. The simple, 24-word declaration states that, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

"We want to put women into the constitution so discrimination can be changed," she said.

Legal experts say the ERA would help end discrimination against women in public employment, where some jobs have been off-limits for women. It also would strike down thousands of federal, state and local laws which treat men and women differently.

Mrs. Smeal cited a study released this year by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. That study found 800 federal discriminatory laws.

Female students are denied equal access to education because "there are few athletic scholarships (for women)," said Mrs. Smeal.

"This is not an academic subject," added Mrs. Smeal. "This has a financial effect on every family."

Under financial considerations, Mrs. Smeal said that NOW is working on a plan to testify before Congress in favor of a "Homemaker's Bill of Rights," which would guarantee American homemakers access to education, unemployment and social security benefits and credit. This bill of rights, she said, would help the 14 million divorced and widowed women in "mid-life" who may be forced by economic necessity to take jobs after years of being out of the workforce.

LAURA CALLOW of Livonia, co-chairman of ERAmerica and a member of Northwest Wayne County NOW, said her organizations viewed the proposal "as giving recognition for non-monetary contributions of the homemaker."

One who has given hundreds of speeches in favor of the ERA, Mrs. Callow added that a 1975 study requested by the Michigan Commissioner of Insurance revealed 44 discriminatory practices used by insurance companies.

For example, women found it more difficult and more costly to buy disability insurance, she said.

"They (insurance companies) thought women were malingers (pretend to be sick to avoid work)," said Mrs. Callow.

"We're still trying to reach new groups," added Mrs. Callow. "We feel equality is a matter of time."

People "don't have time not to be involved," said Ms. Smeal.

Recruit more at Schoolcraft — Ficano

Candidate Robert A. Ficano called for "major new programs" to stop declining enrollment at Schoolcraft College. Ficano, seeking a six-year term, spoke at a recent meeting in the Garden City home of Steve Kuhlman.

"This past winter semester, Schoolcraft College suffered a decline of 716 students from the previous winter semester, a drop of approximately nine percent," the Livonia attorney said.

"While this decline might be expected since public schools in the district are also experiencing reduced enrollment, other community colleges in the Detroit metropolitan area are enjoying some growth in their student populations."

Ficano said enrollments at Henry Ford Community College are up four percent from spring 1978 to spring 1979, while both Macomb and Washtenaw Community Colleges have increased enrollments by two percent over the same period.

In addition, Oakland Community College has maintained enrollment at the same level over last year.

"Major studies by the National Center for Education Statistics and the Carnegie Council of Policy Studies in Higher Education have predicted that while enrollments at universities and four-year colleges will continue to decrease until 1980, two-year colleges will be the one category of higher education that should experience growth," Ficano said.

Hill Creek receives charter

Ann Adams (above left) and Betty Manthey were responsible for the yearbook which won first prize for the Trailwood branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association. The club also was awarded second place for contents at a recent state meeting of the association.

The covers were made of natural materials — a wood veneer for the background with an arrangement of dried crabapple blossoms, the club's flower. A woodburner was used to inscribe the "Trailwood" on each cover. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Friends of retarded gain a new friend

By SHERRY KAHAN

Margaret Olesnavage wants everyone to know where to find the new headquarters of the Association for Retarded Citizens, Northwest Communities.

She also wants everyone to know what the group does.

She is the first executive director of the association, which serves residents of Garden City, Livonia, Redford Township, Plymouth and Northville and she is inviting interested residents of those communities to visit the group's new headquarters in the Redford Community Center, formerly Mann School, at 12121 Hemingway, north of Plymouth Road in Redford Township.

The new headquarters houses the group's records, which used to be stored in the president's basement and provides an office for the organization's first paid executive.

Those who visit Mrs. Olesnavage will meet a director taking on responsibilities that have been too much for dedicated volunteers.

MRS. OLESNAGAVE will explain that the ARC office is set up to serve its five communities in any possible area involving retarded residents.

"If anyone in these communities has a child or adult with a mental impairment, we can refer him to the appropriate agency for training, education and activity programs," she said.

Prior to this job she was a child care worker at the Methodist Children's Village in Redford; a counselor for the pre-release program for women at the Detroit House of Correction; and an associate director with Project START, a community-based program for Wayne County probationers and parolees.

Yet, when her brother's child was diagnosed as learning-disabled, she was unable to point the family in any specific direction for help.

"Unless hit directly by this problem, you remain totally oblivious to it," she said.

Her brother and his wife, she said, "finally got in touch with an organization similar to ARC."

"They learned what was available for him and were assured the problem was not their fault," she said. "He has made real progress"

OLESNAGAVE regrets that she didn't have earlier information to give friends of her family, whose 49-year-old son is retarded.

"It never occurred to me he had to make up his own activities every day," she said.

"He lived in a supportive family so he did things on his own."

"But he didn't get Social Security until he was 47, despite being entitled to it at the age of 18. For 30 years he was in no organized program. His family assumed total responsibility, medical, social, the whole shot."

"Services were available to that family for years and they didn't know about them. He could probably be functioning better today if he had been able to avail himself of them."

"If the community accepts these children and there are appropriate programs for them, parents can keep them at home. The support provided to parents by our association makes it possible for them to do this."

"And when the time comes that parents wonder if they are doing the right thing, they are able to talk to other parents about it."

One of Mrs. Olesnavage's main jobs is to expand programs the association can offer these youngsters, activities like Brownie and Cub Scout troops, dancing and cooking classes and increased recreation opportunities.

"If there are appropriate programs for the mentally-impaired, then a lot of emotional problems can be eliminated through their being busy," she added.

OLESNAGAVE is turning her attention to retarded more than 26 years of age, for whom mandatory education has ceased.

A pre-employment and social interaction skills program, operated by the ARC and known as the Northwest Community Adult Activities Center, will close in September because its state-provided funds are exhausted.

But ARC members feel the project is valuable and plan to fund its own workshop for adults more than 26 years of age with proceeds from its Wednesday night bingo games at Roma Hall.

Mrs. Olesnavage said a survey indicates there are 129 retarded adults in this area who need work activities.

Taylor-Morris

Dr. and Mrs. William Q. Taylor of Charnwood Drive, Plymouth, announce the engagement of their daughter, Beverly Joanne, to Ronald Patrick Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris of Madison Heights. The bride-elect is a 1973 graduate of Plymouth High School. She graduated from Alma College in 1977. Her fiancé graduated from Lamphere High School in 1973 and Wayne State University in 1977.

They plan a July wedding in First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Stirring up some fun

Connie Wagenschutz (left) and Gail Lang stir up a batch of homemade soap — just one of the old-fashioned crafts that will be demonstrated at the Livonia Historical Society's annual Heritage Fair on Sunday, June 3, from noon to 5 p.m. at Greenmead, Livonia's historical site on Eight Mile, west of Newburgh Road. Admission is free and the public is invited. Other highlights include a flea market, antique auction, art show by area artists and special group activities by Civil War and Revolutionary War units that will hold an encampment on the site during the weekend. Mrs. Wagenschutz and Mrs. Lang are members of the historical society.

LOW COST CONTOUR ANALYSIS EXAMINATION FOR VICTIMS OF CHRONIC OR ACUTE PAIN

A low cost Contour Analysis examination is being offered for people with acute or chronic pain by the chiropractic offices listed below. People who suffer with backache, bursitis, arthritis, neuralgia, nerve pain, muscle pain, bone pain, etc...are invited to receive this low cost examination.

Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortion, and scoliosis.

This analysis, including consultation with the doctor is being offered to the public at a low cost for the next 30 days. Anyone wishing to receive this low cost examination may telephone the participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Furniture center officially opens

Plymouth Mayor Thomas H. Turner helped kick off Michigan Week in the city at 1 p.m. Sunday by cutting the ribbon to Plymouth Furniture's new home at 360 S. Main, just north of Ann Arbor Trail.

Besides its line of furniture, the business also includes Candle Lite II — an interior design group which, for the first time, will offer consulting services to customers as well as designing furniture displays.

After 27 years on Plymouth Road west of Evergreen on Detroit's west side, partners Oscar Hertz and Gerald (Buddy) Shapiro have relocated their store to its "namesake" community.

Facing Main Street, the spacious building is no longer recognizable as a former S.S. Kresge dime store location.

Centrally situated across from Kellogg Park, the building has been completely refurbished inside and out to create one of the Detroit area's most modern furniture outlet with 50 individual room settings.

"Last year we made a survey of our customers' residence areas," explains Shapiro. "When we found most had moved west, we determined that Plymouth would be the ideal place to relocate."

Plymouth Commissioner Jim Houk, a former Plymouth mayor and business neighbor on Plymouth Road, suggested the new site to Hertz and Shapiro.

"Once we found the building," said Hertz, "we hired Norman L. Dietrich Associates of Plymouth to handle the exterior design work and Jon Greenberg and Associates of Southfield to transform it into a fashionable furniture store."

The floor plan consists of a series of "complete rooms" of furniture arranged diagonally across the rectangular store. "The layout makes going through the store a real adventure," explained Jeff Fontana, a Detroit interior designer responsible for the store's unusual interior.

"After designing homes, offices and retail space, I really was excited to take on this design project. This is the first place in this part of the country to be so complete in displaying furniture the way it should be shown — as you have it in your house."

The 50 rooms feature a wide variety of contemporary and traditional settings, with walls painted in any of 29 complementary colors.

Hertz said the new quarters, with 14,000 square feet of display space, gives them 3,000 square feet of additional room over the previous location.

Hertz and Shairo are especially pleased about being able to offer a full-service interior decorating service within their store. Harriet Brandt, who has operated Candle Lite for 20 years, is joined by Pauline Varilone, a former designer at Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., Southfield, in this venture.

Ms. Brandt founded Candle Lite Interiors in 1959 and has been associated with Plymouth Furniture for 18 years — the past 10 years with an office in their store.

When her original partner retired at the end of 1978, Ms. Brandt invited Ms. Varilone, who had been doing some free-lance design for Plymouth Furniture, to join the new team which she dubbed "Candle Lite II."

"Plymouth Furniture has been a supplier to more model homes than just about any store in the country," said Ms. Brandt. "At one point their pieces were in 80 model homes we decorated for nine different builders."

A new look on Main Street is provided by Plymouth Furniture which now is open for business in the former SS Kresge dime store building.

Sure you can save money on an eye examination when you decide to get new glasses. Nowadays, you can get a "quickie" eye examination that may not detect a disease, or a vision complication, or even determine your correct prescription.

A thorough eye examination may take up to an hour or more to do all the necessary tests. But some commercial establishments who rely on volume cannot afford to spend the time on each individual patient.

Clothing search is frustrating

This has nothing to do with diet and everything to do with diet. It has nothing to do with disco and everything to do with disco. It has everything to do with clothing, shopping, and the frustration of a dieter trying to weather the elements of fashion.

Due to a proliferation of family events since January, I have had to shop for clothes. Such ventures usually find me in the women's and juniors' clothing departments. And I seem to go to just about every major department store and small shop in existence in my quest for satisfaction.

Recently, I have been to Fairlane Center, Westland Center, and a number of small shops in Plymouth.

Everytime I am faced with the would-be pleasure, I am filled instead with dread and premature frustration.

First, a plea to the clothing designers and manufacturers.

I AM 5 foot 3 inches, average weight, average measurements, maybe a little hippy, but not an unusual build. I am NOT a 5 feet 10 inch tall willowy, lithe, mannequin.

So why do you insist on designing dresses that bulge my shoulders out football style. Why must they be so long as to hang over my calves. I look ugly in such "creations."

I have shopped for clothing appropriate for weddings, baby and bridal showers, graduations and office wear. I have tried just about every type of garment imaginable. All with the same results. It looks like you cut a piece of fabric straight up and down, strung some elastic around the middle and called it a dress.

Sorry, folks. They all look like elastized sacks.

I must, however, give credit where credit is due. Some shops are beginning to answer the needs of shorter people. I usually find one rack of petite sized clothes — for people 5 feet 4 and under.

JOSEPHINE'S AT Fairlane specializes in petite clothing. Even there, however, I still find things baggy, and sometimes too long. At least they try.

One dear sales lady in a local Plymouth dress shop helped me tremendously by pointing out that I could probably take a much smaller size than I had been used to wearing. This helped. I shrunk from a size 9 to a size 6-7 in one magic minute. (Dieting has never been easier.) She'll be my friend for life.

Now a plea to shop owners. I am not old, nor fat. So I am not limited to the half size department. Because of my size, I am forced into the junior department. I don't want to look like a teeny-bopper. I know I am not the only person my age who must shop in juniors.

But why must you blast your music at me? I despise hard rock. And while I love disco, why must you blast every pulsating beat at me, quadraphonically, at the noise polluting level of 80-90 decibels? I don't want to dance in your store. All I want to do is buy a dress. Turn your music down, or I may disco out your door.

I AM not fat (used to be), old fashioned, old, a teen-ager, or a mannequin. I like to look well groomed, tastefully dressed, up-to-date, am independent, love to converse with people, and smile a lot.

But shopping frustrates me to the point where my smile disappears. My conversation becomes edgy, the loud music interferes with my concentration. Every dress I put on makes me look 15 years older — or teeny-bopper age — and 20 pounds heavier.

The frustrations make me want to massage my grief with a jar full of cookies.

I won't. I can't ruin my diet efforts. But you are dresses. I'm slim and I want to look that way.

Ban smoking in schools - Geake bill

Citing on an earlier commitment, State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, has introduced a bill in the Michigan Senate to prohibit smoking by both minors and adults in public schools.

Geake introduced his bill after discussing the proposal with Albert Zack, principal of Livonia Bentley High School, who spearheaded the successful effort to discourage smoking by minors in Livonia schools. The program has received wide recognition for changing the image of smokers among young people.

"Smoking has been identified by the American Cancer Society as the single most preventable cause of illness and death," Geake said. "The time has come for us to take this definitive step toward eliminating our schools as the place where children find the adults they look up to teaching, by unconscious example, that smoking is OK."

Specifically, the Geake bill prohibits the use of tobacco in public schools by pupils, teachers, school officials, school employees and any other persons, except in the course of classroom instruction. Violators would be subject to misdemeanor penalties of between $25 and $100.

"Our nuclear personnel learn their jobs thoroughly. Then they learn everyone else's."

Lance Hubbard
Plant Training Supervisor

I supervise training at Consumers Power's Midland nuclear plant. Every employee who'll eventually be working in the plant passes through my department. And you should know that we've taken the same care in designing our training program as we take in engineering the plant's physical equipment. At Consumers Power we know how important the skill and reliability of people are to the safe operation of a nuclear power plant.

That's why our training program for non-licensed personnel is as wide as it is deep. We don't just teach people their specific jobs at our skill centers in Bay City and Muskegon. We also train them in overall plant operation so they understand exactly how their performance affects everyone else's performance. They learn their jobs in the plant with absolute thoroughness — and how each job fits into the total operation. Not just the specific, but the overall. Not just facts, but concepts. We don't just teach them how to lap a valve — we teach them the Midland Plant.

At Schoolcraft College

Jazz joins summer music fest

By DENNIS ROSENBLUM

From the middle of a hallway at Schoolcraft College this summer, things could sound a bit discordant.

From one room, students will be playing works by the likes of Bach and Beethoven.

And right across the hall, others will be practicing the jazz compositions of people like Maynard Ferguson and Duke Ellington.

This year, the Schoolcraft Summer Music Festival will include jazz studies in a program formerly reserved for symphonic music.

Now in its 13th season, the summer festival uses performers from the Detroit Symphony along with its own music faculty to run the four-week symphonic studies program. And this year, five professional jazz musicians will come to campus each day to teach students in the two-week jazz studies session.

"It's my hope that both sets of students and faculties will learn from each other," says Richard Saunders, assistant dean for arts and sciences at the college and director of the summer school's symphonic orchestra for the past seven years.

Teaching the jazz program will be Jerry McKenzie, a former Stan Kenton drummer; Floyd "Candy" Johnson, a saxophonist with Duke Ellington and Count Basie; David Jones, a trumpeter who has appeared with Tex Beneke and Buddy Morrow; bassist Jeff Steinberg, who performed with the Glenn Miller Band and has composed and arranged for Maynard Ferguson and Count Basie; and Bess Bonnier, a pianist and musical director of the jazz series at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

In the symphonic session, eight of the 11 instructors will be members of the Detroit Symphony.

"The idea was to bring performing musicians and the most professional available," Saunders says. "Obviously, that was the Detroit Symphony Orchestra."

Both the symphonic and jazz programs are open to students of all ages. "It's not a matter of age; it's just a matter of enthusiasm and potential," Saunders says.

PUBLIC CONCERTS to be given this summer are:

- The symphonic faculty on July 10, 17 and 24, at 8 p.m. in the Liberal Arts Theater, with string and wind chamber groups. Admission is $2.

- The symphonic students on July 17 and 27, at 8 p.m. in the Waterman Center, with the symphonic orchestra and symphonic band. Admission is free.

- The jazz students on July 26, at 8 p.m. in the Waterman Center, with small and big band groups. Admission is free.

The jazz instructors are booked up in the evenings and are unavailable to get together for a concert of their own, unlike the DSO members, who regularly play only two nights a week in the summer.

Saunders says the public is also welcome to attend rehearsals during the day. "The whole thing is open to the public," he says.

FOR PERSONS interested in enrolling, auditions are held by appointment. Cost of the four-week symphonic program is $83 for Schoolcraft district residents and $125 for non-residents. The two-week jazz program is $52 for residents and $73 for non-residents.

Scholarships and college credit are available. For more information, contact Saunders at 591-6400, ext. 510.

Dunlap leaving local music posts

WAYNE DUNLAP

Wayne Dunlap, a fixture in local classical music circles, has announced his retirement and says he plans to move to Texas sometime this summer.

Dunlap, conductor and musical director of the Plymouth Symphony for the last 28 years, cited family reasons for the move.

His announcement caught some people at Schoolcraft College by surprise. Dunlap was to have returned this year to the summer music school and festival — which he organized in 1967 — as guest conductor for the symphonic student concerts, and the college had already begun publicizing his return.

Meanwhile, the Plymouth Symphony Society has already begun searching for Dunlap's replacement. Society president Fran Lang says she's "not really concerned" about finding a replacement.

Speculation on a replacement centers on two present members of the symphony — violinist Emil Raab, who filled in as conductor when Dunlap was recovering from a heart attack a couple years ago, and bassist Clark Suttle, who took over two seasons back when Dunlap was on a sabbatical.

Ms. Lang said the symphony board has contacted Raab, and she said a couple other interested people have made applications to the symphony.

"I'd prefer not having too much said right now," she said early this week. "We might go with several guest conductors."

The symphony board will have its next meeting in mid-June; the symphony season — which includes six regular season concerts and a pops concert — won't start until October.

Ms. Lang says she is hoping Dunlap will be willing to return as guest conductor for one concert in the coming season.

"He is so well respected, not only by local people but by orchestra members," she said. "He's just a nice person."

For punk rock's fans, riding the new wave is a way of life

By TERESA BANAS

Following the trail of live rock music can take you to places where you feel like you've moved backwards and forwards in the same step.

The music is loud, the musicians are intense, and the people are aching for something that's different.

Nothing new about that — that has been rock and roll from the start.

Today, there is a new generation that is trying to build on the foundations of rock but with a new twist. Call it what you like (labeling music isn't something musicians can be pinned down to). Some call it punk and some call it new wave. You'll even find those who call it another indication of the degeneration of youth.

Its lyrics are simplistic — no clever analogies or symbolism, just a lot of direct noise that yells of anger. It's boredom with lots of energy.

ONE DETROIT ROCK haven, the SilverBird in Redford, is working hard to get a name for attracting names like The Sillies, RUR and the Torpedoes. Formerly known as the West Side Six, which gained an image of tough-guy violence, it's now getting a young audience of new wavers.

On a weeknight, no less, the bands flood in early and stay late. Some of the new local groups are reminiscent of former rock and roll greats — incorporating their images through dress and performance in their acts.

Nonetheless, its energy leaves a ringing in your ears and sends some in motion, spiraling onto an impromptu dance floor at the sound of heaving jamming.

IF AN AUDIENCE is an indicator of changing times, this one is certainly worth the watch.

A young woman, answering to the new punk name of "547" these days, appears to be the embodiment of its public image. Dressed in a black make-shift dress clasped tightly to the side with safety pins, she explains it is her way of being an individual in the face of fashion-fed disco garb. Her stark young face wears heavy black eye make-up and is haloed by brown frizzy hair.

"I hate normal," she says. "So what if my clothes are ripped? I can put 'em together. It's punk."

And what of the music?

"It's original in its own way," she says. "It's not the same thing on the radio."

Another woman, known as Sheena, dressed in jeans and a six-year-old T-shirt with an appropriate sleeve rip, adds: "It's not more or less new wave, it's rock and roll and coming out better because it's free. It's natural, very natural. Whatever you feel like, you can do."

Both young women, aged 17 and 16, are transplants from Livonia and Novi. Recently their families were uprooted to Northville, where they met. They say they became punk groupies to rebel against what they viewed as strict conformity in that community.

"We felt like outcasts."

And punk to them means being different.

"I don't want to wear what everyone else wears. It's fun to be original," 547 explains. "We don't have to fit any image."

But what if punk becomes the vogue, a commercial success?

Even local musicians of what could be seen as punk scorn the successes of "top 40." They say commercialization would call for homogenizing their efforts.

DESTROY ALL MONSTERS is a Detroit-Ann Arbor band of four. Its most prominent recent single releases were "You're Gonna Die" and "I'm Bored."

When their road manager was asked if the group got into the heavy violence routine of some new wave groups, he responded: "They're so sweet. I'd say they mostly promote a good time."

This group's sound appears more polished than several others that play at the SilverBird. It's attributed to the sophisticated playing of two well known performers, Ron Asheton, former lead guitarist for Iggy Pop, and Mike Davis, former bassist for the MC-5. Drummer is Rob King.

But the most mystical performer in the group is vocalist Niagra, whose original name is anyone's guess. The frail, anemic-looking woman displays a nervous bird-like quality. She writes many of the lyrics played by the group, but most appear simple and straightforward.

"I'm Bored" was written as a tune of today. She says it's a song they're most noted for. "Everyone thinks it's about their hometown," she adds.

According to Asheton and Davis, their music is still on the "outside" of the norm. They work toward "strong emotion" and say it's "the power of their music that carries it away."

It's the kind of sound that's giving Detroit a revitalized reputation as a city of energy music. Destroy All Monsters work at physical rhythm.

The group's members say Detroit is picking up on having young performers who are producing and recording their own individual styles. Dave Keeps, their road manager, says that when Motown left, the city lost a lot of confidence in itself. Now, they say, Detroit is known as a center of innovative music and is recognized in Europe.

"Back then, rock and roll was a novelty," says Davis. "Now it's a force. It's a natural art. It's the poems and the theater and the music of now."

SCOTT PRICE, a promoter for several bands that frequent the SilverBird, is another believer in the rock and roll spirit of Detroit.

"Detroit's a very rock and roll town," he says. "If you're successful here and crowds like you, you know, it's a national indicator for talent."

He calls Detroit the biggest place in the Midwest for rock.

"Detroit had the MC-5, the Stooges, Seger (Bob) and Ted Nugent."

He calls punk a "major force in the revival of rock and roll" and "a lot of it is Detroit talent."

He admits that punk probably got a bad connotation to its meaning from such groups as the Sex Pistols and its member Sid Vicious. "But there's more to it than just the term," he says.

Price has organized a concert at the SilverBird for 9 p.m. this Sunday, featuring the Sillies (known for their tunes "Is There Lunch After Death?" and "Sex for the Handicapped"), RUR, the Torpedoes and Sweet Crystal.

A Memorial Day concert features the Ivories, the Cubes and Rox. Tuesday night, it's Cold Cock, Algebra Mothers and Jems.

And what kind of people frequent the SilverBird?

"They're all concert-goers," says Price. "A lot of regular people, 18-35. Hippies as well as secretaries. Long-haired as well as those with responsible jobs."

• OLDIES BUT GOODIES

It's the Memorial Day weekend, the symbolic start of summer. Most everyone will be cranking up the barbecue (if they haven't already) or heading up north (if they can afford and find the gas) or otherwise fending off the old dreaded maxim of all work and no play making Jack a dull boy.

And for some reason, this is a good weekend for antique shows. The Botsford Inn, Grand River at Eight Mile, is hosting a show noon to 10 p.m. Sunday and noon to 8 p.m. Monday. They'll have a variety of furniture, including primitive American, Oriental and Art Deco (gee, talk about eclectic...), some dolls and gold jewelry.

And the Davisburg Antique Market, open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the fourth Sunday each month, has an assortment of furniture, railroad brickwork, lamps, hooks, decoys and whatnots. To get there, take I-75 north to the Dixie-Waterford exit, go north 2 miles, then left on Davisburg Road and left on Andersonville Road.

Admission is free for both affairs.

• DIG FOR THE OYSTERS

...and dip for the clams, alomam left and doe-si-doe. The Detroit Country Dance Society has its own version of Saturday Night Fever this week with square dancing at St. Timothy's Church, Archdale (a couple blocks east of Southfield Road) and Puritan in Detroit. Burt Schwartz will be calling with the Ruffwater Stringband. It's 8-11 p.m. and admission is $2. No partners or experience are required, they say, and all dances will be taught.

• HOG ISLAND REVISITED

The Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle has an exhibit commemorating the 100th anniversary of Detroit's acquisition of the island, which has been known as Swan Island and Hog Island, and which served as a repository for rioters in 1943.

The swans, hogs and rioters are all gone but the belles remain. The museum, which includes the reconstructed interior of an ornate old boat, is a good place to learn about the history of shipping on the Detroit River and environs. And the whole island is a good place to just hang out for an afternoon. The aquarium, conservatory and nature center are also open daily.

• FURTHER UPRIVER

A Bob-Lo boat and island party starts from the dock in downtown Detroit at 7:30 and 8 p.m. on Friday, June 15. Tickets at $15 cover the boat ride, all rides on the island, and live music both on the island and the boat. Food and lots of drink are available. Tickets are available at the Royal Oak Music Theater, Peaches in Dearborn and the Record Outlet in Farmington.

• MALLING IT

An assortment of strange characters — including Disney characters Cruella De Vil and Nanny, dog-nappers Horace and Jasper, three Dalmatian puppets and an accordionist — are scheduled to go public at the Livonia Mall next Wednesday at 2 and 4 p.m. on the stage in front of Crowley's. The shows are free; the mall is at Seven Mile and Middlebelt.

• FREE PAMPHLET

The Southeast Michigan Travel & Tourist Association has published a handy little calendar of close-to-home events going on through September. If all the doom and gloom about gasoline shortages proves true, you may find yourself vacationing in Windsor this year instead of Walla Walla and this booklet may come in rather handy.

It's called Summer Fest '79. Write to Travel and Tourist Association, American Center Building, Suite 350, Southfield 48034, and an agent of the federal government will deliver it to your mailbox.

• MORE FILMS

"Chuquigato," a 1977 Bolivian film, opens the weekend fare at the Detroit Film Theater, 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday in the theater of the Detroit Institute of Arts (through the rear entrance). Alfred Hitchcock's thriller "North By Northwest" is shown the same times Saturday. And the Sunday night Orson Welles series continues at 7:30 p.m. only with a double feature — "The Immortal Story" and "F For Fake." Tickets are $2 for each, available at the door.

Know what's going on? Don't keep it to yourself. News about arts, entertainment, food, theater, recreation or general fun can be sent to Section 4, The Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. For scheduled events, give us a week's notice.

Room for Design

Proper use of lighting is a decorator's helper

This is the time of year when we're all outdoors and our main source of lighting is the good sun. But when the sun goes down, we are back to flicking switches to shed light.

Lighting can do more than just that, however. It's also a budget way to decorate and design a room. It can create a totally new atmosphere — emphasizing conversational areas of prized possessions and visually remodeling a room architecturally.

Light can expand or contract the look of a room, shorten or lengthen hallways, raise a too-low ceiling or lower one that's too high. The secret is in the placement and direction of the lighting.

In planning your remodeling with light, consider the overall color scheme of your home. Is it bright — pastel, monochromatic — is it contemporary or traditional? What are the shapes and sizes of your furniture pieces? What are the floor, wall and window treatments and textures? Traffic patterns of your family? Reading areas, certainly, are an important part of your "lighting plan."

Decide how each room is going to be used. For all of us, our homes are stages where our most personal roles are played out. As in the theater, the most complimentary setting should be provided with proper lighting.

Life style should be the first consideration in your overall plan. Is the living room used for convivial entertaining or quiet family gatherings? Will the dining room be the site of formal dinners or small intimate parties? The requirements of each room determine the lighting needs.

There should be allowances for low, medium and high levels of lighting to suit varying occasions. Flexibility is achieved with a two-dimmer system, one controlling chandeliers and fixtures and the other to regulate portable lamps.

The reflection factor of room surfaces must also figure in your lighting plans. With the "wet look" in walls and the current emphasis on metallic furniture and wallpapers, this is particularly timely. White, lacquered or mirrored walls return up to 90 percent reflection, while charcoal brown walls return only 2 percent reflection.

Wall colors reflect light in the following order — white, cream, yellow, leaf-green, sky-blue. Reflected light must be considered in your overall planning. Dark wall colors absorb the light dramatically, and require stronger wattage.

Balance must be taken into consideration. Furniture is usually grouped around the sources of illumination where people gather most. Dark room corners are almost invisible at night. If you install lighting in these areas, you will free floor space in other parts of the room and visually enlarge the appearance.

Careful selection of lighting has emotional aspects as well. Our eyes are immediately drawn to light and our senses respond spontaneously to the kind of light source as well as to the amount and quality of light dispersed.

Thus, a shimmering crystal chandelier in an elegant dining room brings out the formal in us. A rustic pine-paneled room brightened with wrought iron or Early American fixtures encourages hearty informality.

Redstone, Anderson donate art works

Two Michigan artists with Livonia ties, architect Louis Redstone and Janet M. Anderson, have donated drawings for the 1979 Michigan Cancer Foundation greeting card collection to be previewed in mid-July. Mrs. Frank Germack Jr., program chairperson, announced during this week's Michigan Week observance.

"The addition of two of our state's well-known artists helps us emphasize the work the Foundation does for all Michigan residents," said Mrs. Germack, a Michigan Cancer Foundation trustee.

"Studies being conducted at the Foundation's Breast Cancer Detection Center and its many laboratories have made significant contributions to the field of cancer research. They have elevated the Michigan Cancer Foundation to one of the top most research facilities in the United States," she said.

Both artists' selections are suitable for framing and gift-giving as well as mailing.

The Redstone offer includes a box of 14 cards containing an assortment of seven watercolor renderings.

Anderson's card is a watercolor lithograph of St. Anne's Cathedral in Detroit, the first established church in Michigan. It is the first card in a forthcoming series of church sketches.

Born in Royal Oak, Livonia resident Anderson began her formal art education early at Cranbrook and Dondero High. She has studied at the University of Michigan, Pratt Institute in New York, and the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

Her "Picture Detroit" sketches were inspired by photographs taken by her grandfather, a Bob-Lo boat captain. Her pen and ink drawings and watercolors are featured in the Robert Findahl Galleries at the Detroit Renaissance Center and the Odyssey Gallery in Novi.

Redstone, whose firm is based in Livonia, was first associated with the Foundation in 1974 when he designed the Meyer L. Prentiss Cancer Center. His architectural designs include the Michael Berry International Terminal in the Wayne County Airport, and the Manufacturer's National Bank Operation Center at Lafayette and Cass.

Redstone is editing his fourth architectural book, "Art in Public Places," scheduled for printing in 1980. His other publications are "Art in Architecture" (1968), "New Dimensions in Shopping Centers" (1973), and "The New Downtown" (1976).

In addition to the Michigan artists selection, the Foundation greeting card collection includes a card for Rosh Hashanah and a birthday card.

A total of nine cards will be previewed July 19 at the Detroit Golf Club where volunteers from the Michigan Cancer Foundation service centers and unit offices will kick off the 1979 sales campaign.

The Foundation is a Torch Drive-United Way agency.

Harper-Grace asks state ok

Harper-Grace Hospitals, 3990 John R, Detroit, has asked the State to approve expansion of the North Service Building, which will be located on the site of what was known as the Grace Hospital-Central Unit, and to install a computerized pharmacy information system.

Four of the floors in the North Service Building would house private physicians' offices and half of the fourth floor would be used to house the hospital's building and grounds department.

After Grace Hospital-Central Unit is demolished, the North Service Building, to be situated on that site, would be connected to the Webber Memorial Building.

At an estimated cost of $5,315,000, the project would be completed in October 1981.

The computerized pharmacy installation system would be installed in the Grace Division pharmacy and in the three pharmacy satellites, Central pharmacy and pharmacy storeroom of the Harper Division.

The project is expected to cost approximately $563,443 and would be completed in April 1980.

In keeping with state and federal regulations requiring State approval prior to construction and capital expenditure, Harper-Grace Hospitals has applied for a certificate of need. The application is on file with the Michigan Department of Public Health, division of Health Facility Planning and Construction.

An entire family is carving out its reputation in wooden ducks

The Bednarczyks of Oakland Township are having a family affair with wood.

Father Ed Bednarczyk is a wood carver, carrying on a tradition inlaid in the name Bednarczyk, which means barrel maker.

Sons Ed, Rob and Matthew are continuing their ancestors' love of wood, each developing his own carving interests.

Mother Dolores and sister Marie, while not woodworkers, are involved with the support and interest they show the men in the family.

Right now the two family members attracting attention for their woodwork skills are 22-year-old Ed and 20-year-old Rob. Though both are full-time students at Wayne State University, Rob in business school and Ed in medical school, and though both work full time each summer, they are professionally-ranked wood duck decoy carvers.

Their professional status came about when they won three blue ribbons in the Intermediate Class and Best of Show in the 1977 Midwest Duck Decoy Show sponsored every September by Michigan Wildfowl Decoy Association and Michigan Duck Hunters Association.

"When we were handed the blue ribbon for Best of Show," recalled Rob, "the judge said, 'We'll see you in the professional class in the 1978 show.'"

THE BROTHERS entered as professionals as told and took home two second place ribbons and a third place ribbon, all which hang next to their other prizes on the family den wall.

"We're out to take the world," said Ed. "We want to fill the whole den wall with blue ribbons."

Unfortunately, the brothers have a handicap in trying to make world champions. They can only make their decoys in the summer, when each is out of school. Between work and school, the carvers are kept busy.

The brothers don't hunt right now because of a lack of time. They used to hunt ducks and small game but school commitments don't permit it now.

Even if they did have the time, they wouldn't use their decoys.

The Bednarczyks view their decoys as more of an art form than actual hunting aids. Rob says they wouldn't put as much time into them if hunters were actually to use them.

Ed carves the hollowed-out decoys from bass wood. Rob spends his "free" time painting the wood, transforming it from a duck shape into a realistic-looking decoy.

The two brothers became wood duck decoy makers, they said, because of their father's influence.

He used to take his sons to decoy shows when they were very young. Bored at first, they soon started paying attention to the decoys and decided to try making their own.

They learned the craft through books and advice from the pros.

"ANYONE CAN learn to carve," said Ed. "The book 'Game Bird Carving' is available in most bookstores or in the library. It tells you step by step how to carve the anatomy of the bird.

"Then you get another book that tells you what to carve and other books take you on to more advanced carving and painting," he explained.

"You don't need any fancy tools to do this. The old timers use chisels and knives. And Rob, who paints the decoys, uses anything that paints. But since we can only make our ducks during the summer months, I use high-speed tools. We complete a half dozen ducks in the summer months.

The Bednarczyk brothers also credit their success to the help they've received from Jim Foote of Michigan, known in duck decoy circles as the Picasso of duck decoy carving.

Knowing what to carve and what colors to paint takes more than studying books and listening to professionals. It also means studying the ducks themselves.

Ed and Rob Bednarczyk have paired their talents to make prize-winning wood duck decoys.

Ed cuts a body and makes a head from separate wood pieces, then joins the two and carves the form. Rob adds textures with his paint brush.

What it takes to create an affair to remember.

First it takes outstanding experience. The kind Jim Joseff has, our new Director of Catering.

Jim has catered for many of the finest restaurants, clubs, and hotels in the Detroit area. And people usually remember the affairs he's catered. Because Jim is particular.

He'll create a very special customized menu based on your needs and your budget.

And he'll help you choose the room that's just right for you. Whether it's one of our 18 function rooms. Or our magnificent ballroom. In fact, Jim will attend to every detail. And that includes working closely with our new chef.

Chef Jean Cosperec is well-known for his creativity. His culinary specialties earned him the 1977 Chef of the Year Award from the Chef's Club of Detroit.

Now Chef Jean is here to prepare luncheons, dinners or buffets for your special occasions. Everything from weddings and receptions to dinner-dances and bar mitzvahs.

Your guests will taste an array of Chef Jean's original dishes. Creations you won't find anywhere else. Like Bastion de Crevettes à la Souveraine, a very tasty departure from shrimp cocktail.

It takes Jim Joseff and Jean Cosperec to create an affair to remember. And now they're here at the Sheraton-Southfield Hotel.

Call Jim Joseff about your next event.
He'll make it memorable. 557-4800.

Redford Theater

Movie series starts next week

The Motor City Theater Organ Society is searching the world over for 70mm prints of such films as the Peter O'Tool-Petula Clark version of "Good-bye, Mr. Chips."

And they've been successful — at least in the case of "Chips." They're still looking for several others, though. "Some of these prints might be in Argentina," said the society's Stuart Grigg. "Or some of the distributors might not even know that they have (them) in their own classics departments."

And so the search goes on. But one thing is certain — the society will present the following films at the following dates in its latest "Movies at the Redford" series:

June 1, 2 — "The Wizard of Oz."
June 15, 16 — "Naughty Marietta."
June 29, 30 — "National Velvet."
July 13, 14 — "Auntie Mame."
July 27, 28 — "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."
Aug. 10, 11 — "Topkapi."
Aug. 24, 25 — "Thoroughly Modern Millie."
Sept. 7, 8 — "Mutiny on the Bounty."

GRIGG SAID the society will do its best to secure as many 70mm prints of these films as it can, but he said he could make no promises as to how many may be found.

Nonetheless, each film in the series will be presented, and organ overtures and recitals during intermissions will be an added feature.

The Redford Theater, 17360 Lahser at Grand River, boasts a 1928 Barton theater pipe organ, the sort that is becoming "rarer and rarer to find," according to Grigg.

The theater also boasts a six-channel stereo set-up which, along with the 70mm projectors, were salvaged from Detroit's last Cinerama movie house, the Summit.

Tickets for the films are available at the Redford Theater box office, at Masters Candies, 17340 Lahser, or by mail from the theater: 17360 Lahser, Detroit 48219.

Tickets are $2 apiece. For additional information call 537-2560.

Broadway hit at Music Hall

"Your Arms Too Short to Box with God," with stars from the original Broadway cast, opens Tuesday, July 12 for a week at the Music Hall, downtown. The gospel musical has been nominated for Tony Awards for direction, book, choreography and music and lyrics. The setting is a church where the minister and congregation shed their robes to become Jesus, his followers and other characters. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, with 2 p.m. matinees Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are on sale at the Music Hall box office, 963-7680.

Black Sheep Theater in Manchester has 'Life' with dinner

The Black Sheep Repertory Theater of Manchester, Mich., has two people particularly interested in "A Life in the Theater."

They are Philip Bowman and Robert Beaupre, who star in that David Mamet, two-man play through Sunday.

Mamet, one of the new breed of "Chicago playwrights," came out with "Life" a couple of years ago in the Windy City. Since then it has played a long run in New York City, and has been at the Black Sheep since May 10.

The play concerns two actors — one old, the other young — who interact in a series of scenes that take place both on stage (in plays within the play) and "backstage."

Show times are 8:15 p.m. tonight through Saturday and 4 p.m. Sunday. Tickets range from $5-$6.

A dinner-theater package is offered in conjunction with the Black Sheep Tavern across the street from the theater. Dinners — on Friday and Saturday only — are $9 extra. The tavern is known for its wide variety of imported beers.

The 15-member Black Sheep repertory company is in its third season. The theater itself was built in 1867 and was recently renovated to resemble its original appearance.

Manchester is off M-52 about 20 minutes southwest of Ann Arbor.

Tickets are available by calling 428-9280 or 428-9287 for reservations.

Museum shows art by Women's Caucus

The Detroit Institute of Arts is presenting the work of women artists in the first showing of the Michigan Chapter of Women's Caucus for Art (WCA).

The exhibition was juried by Jackie Feigenson, of Feigenson-Rosenstein Gallery and Mary Jane Jacob, associate curator of modern art, The Detroit Institute of Arts, and Lee Ann Miller of the department of art and art history, Wayne State University, and national president of WCA.

The all media show will be in the Rental and Sales Gallery through June 10.

The Women's Caucus for Art is a national organization actively supporting the work of women in all areas of visual arts.

Exhibitors are all members of WCA. Membership forms may be obtained by contacting Elaine Godfrey, 87 Carriage Way, Ypsilanti, 48197, — 313-434-0539.

The Noguchi show

The Institute honors a versatile sculptor

By IRENE KUPFER

Detroit has a vast new playground in the recently completed Hart Plaza at the foot of Woodward. Detroit Institute of Arts is celebrating this with a one-man show honoring the designer, 74-year-old Japanese-American sculptor, Isamu Noguchi.

"Noguchi's Imaginary Landscapes" is a tribute to the artist's extraordinary versatility throughout an international career that is still going strong after 50 years.

Visitors to the museum will be able to trace the development of Noguchi's life-long interest in creating visually exciting and physically relaxing public environments.

SOME OF THE landscapes on display are called imaginary because they were never executed. One of these is Noguchi's 1947 proposal for a colossal monument to man, intended to be visible from Mars. Its form was to have been a human face sculpted from the earth, with a nose a mile high.

The exhibition also includes bronze models of innovative playground designs that Noguchi created as early as 1933. They were rejected at the time as, "too dangerous."

Other Noguchi projects that were successfully completed are called "imaginary landscapes" because they are so stimulating to the person who enters and observes them.

The artist considers these environments huge sculptures in themselves, although they frequently contain individual sculptures or groups of sculptural elements.

IN CREATING the Billy Rose Sculpture Garden of the National Museum in Jerusalem, Israel, Noguchi oversaw the sculpture of tons of earth from a six-acre mountainside. The garden is an outdoor setting for the impresario's international sculpture collection.

Noguchi included his own "Water Source Sculpture," carved of red granite from Elath, as his personal signature to the project. Rock forms have always been his greatest inspiration and carving his greatest pleasure.

In some gardens, Noguchi draws upon the beauty and diversity of nature, as in his Japanese-style garden at the UNESCO Building in Paris. Here he manipulated the materials of nature — water, plants, and rocks — to create a harmonious man-made world. Noguchi often juxtaposes highly finished forms with rough surfaces to emphasize their contrasts.

OTHER NOGUCHI gardens display a fondness for geometric forms that co-exists with his more romantic view of nature. The white marble garden he created for the Beinecke Rare Book Library at Yale University is a classic expression of the relationship of three geometric shapes — circle, pyramid, and cube.

In the Hart Plaza, Noguchi makes a more playful use of geometry, contrasting the pyramidal amphitheater, the circular ice arena and fountain, and the twisting pylon.

The Detroit project is the climax of his continuing interest in large public sculptural space. The stunning Dodge Fountain with its myriad possibilities of light-and-water-play is but the latest of many Noguchi fountains. Its nearest rival in splendor is the series of fountains he designed for three artificial lakes at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

Noguchi has always appreciated the vitality of water and its importance as the most kinetic of all sculptural possibilities.

His sunken rock garden at the Chase Manhattan Bank Plaza in New York is bathed by a constantly flowing, bubbling, and sparkling pool of water. The garden is a literal oasis in the cement-bound Wall Street district, soothing the ear as well as the eye.

Noguchi has also created interior environments. He began in 1935 when he designed his first stage set for Martha Graham, the pioneer of modern dance. The museum displays several of Noguchi's sets resulting from this fruitful collaboration.

PARTICULARLY notable is the charming rocking chair from "Appalachian Spring," which seems like a tangible fragment of American history. The exhibit includes a videotape of several dances performed by the Graham company.

The artist has also designed an interior environment expressly for this show. "Variable Landscape" is a theatrical environment with several sculptural props that can be used in different ways by performers. Various music, poetry, and dance groups are scheduled to perform in this space on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays throughout the exhibition.

Noguchi's talents are so prodigious that even if he had never designed a single public work, his reputation would be secure as a sculptor of the first rank. Many of his individual pieces evoke landscapes of the imagination, like his travertine "Mountain," or the granite piece "Shodo Shima," whose stone forms have the delicacy of an egg-filled bird's nest.

OTHER PIECES include carved marble of contrasting colors that have been laminated together. "The Spirit's Flight" is a twisting column of alternating serpentine and carrara marble blocks. It is a smaller version of the soaring steel "Pylon" at the Hart Plaza.

A horizontal version of the same theme is "Ground Wind II," made up of seven granite parts. Stone carving of this caliber is almost a lost art today.

The best vantage point for viewing these sculptures is from the travertine "Bench." This is the one piece in the entire exhibition that is meant to be touched and even sat upon.

DIA's traveling art exhibits proving popular

Seven traveling exhibitions from the Detroit Institute of Arts have been seen by 38,000 people in 86 Michigan communities, according to Christine Ruby, statewide services coordinator at the museum.

Twenty fine art lectures attracted another 1,000 art enthusiasts throughout the state, she said, and 108,000 children attended the live

Youtheater productions in 80 other cities.

These figures highlight the fourth year of the Art Institute's "Show on the Road" program which runs from September to August of each year.

"Since 'Show on the Road's' modest beginning in 1975," Ms. Ruby said, "each year has seen an increase in the quality of the presentations and in overall community response."

This fourth season has included works owned by Detroit collectors: "African Art," "To the Indus with Alexander the Great," "John Brown the Abolitionist" by Jacob Lawrence, "The Changing Face of the Sphinx," "The Parthenon: 2500 Years of Change," "African Art: A Photo-Essay," and "19th Century French Painting."

As of May, many of the exhibitions had completed their tours but some of them — "The Parthenon: 2500 Years of Change" and "Africa Art: A Photo-Essay" — will continue through August.

Because of its popularity, Ms. Ruby said "John Brown the Abolitionist" by Jacob Lawrence is booked around the state through January 1980.

Michael Farrell, popular Detroit Institute of Arts lecturer, continues as the principal lecturer of "Show on the Road." His talks during this forth season have been given for audiences as far away from Detroit as Escanaba, Menominee and Traverse City.

Youtheater, meanwhile, has dispatched 15 live productions, providing 201 performances in large and small Michigan communities.

The art institute also has offered school teaching packets, managed teacher workshops, provided professional advice and jurying, and provided help to small state museums through its conservation services laboratory.

INSTALLING A FENCE? BE SMART!! BUY OUR NORTHERN WHITE CEDAR FENCE

HABITANT INDIAN RIVER STOCKADE

8'x6' $28<sup>95</sup>

A pleasing blend of urban sophistication and rich natural beauty. All pickets are uniform in size and milled to a smooth, splinter-free surface. The tightly assembled pickets assure complete privacy and protection. Posts and rails are peeled to match the smooth perfection of the pickets.

HABITANT NANTUCKET TENON RAIL

8' Sect. $10<sup>97</sup>

Pleasingly simple in design, and amazingly inexpensive, this Suncraft style complements the personality of traditional or contemporary homes alike. Its quality features include extra heavy full-round rails, drilled posts and large, sturdy tenons for strength and durability.

Invest your money and hard work in Habitant Northern White Cedar Fence - a fence that will last 5 to 7 times as long as ordinary White Spruce fence*. Cedar Fence is NATURALLY preserved against rot by the chemicals inherent in the wood!

MORE GOOD NEWS! Our Cedar Stockade fence items cost only a little bit more than ordinary Spruce Fence. When you invest in Cedar you obtain tremendous additional value for each of your hard earned dollars.

CHECK OUR LOW PRICES on White Cedar Post & Rail styles as well as our 42" Cape Cod spaced picket.

YOU CAN HAVE THE BEST FOR LESS!!!

HABITANT CONCORD SPACED STOCKADE

8'x6' $21<sup>95</sup>

Lets breezes through the spaces between pickets, but still gives partial privacy. To maximize privacy, vines or shrubs can be planted or sections of Indian River solid stockade can be inserted at those points.

HABITANT CAPE COD PICKET

42"x8' $14<sup>39</sup>

This variation of a favorite style is more contemporary in appearance yet needs no paint or maintenance. The Michigan White Cedar weathers to silver grey for further enhancing its neat good looks. Construction features are identical to our spaced picket rustic fence, except that the equally spaced pickets are milled smooth. Popular heights.

Wolmanized

WHATEVER YOU'RE BUILDING OUTDOORS, YOU NEED

Anything you build will have extraordinarily long life... if you build it with ordinary lumber or plywood pressure-treated with Wolman preservative chemicals.

It won't rot, and termites won't bother it — even if you don't stain or paint it. Considering how long it lasts, Outdoor Wood is surprisingly inexpensive. And if you don't have a project in mind, ask us for a suggestion.

'Meeting of Minds' returns to 56

"Meeting of Minds," the series in which Steve Allen welcomes four historical figures as they meet in a mock forum to discuss their various viewpoints, will begin its third season on Channel 56 this Saturday, 8:00 p.m.

For the season premiere, Allen welcomes Greek philosopher and mathematician Aristotle (Bernard Behrens), the much maligned Niccolo Machiavelli (Alfred Ryder), 20th century Chinese revolutionary Dr. Sun Yat Sen (Keye Luke), and 19th century English poetess Elizabeth Barrett Browning (Jayne Meadows Allen). These guests also return the following week to discuss subjects as child labor, poetry, love and political pragmatism.

The series finally had its national premiere on PBS in 1977. It went on to win a Peabody Award.

Allen's creation of the series stemmed from his love of reading. "I find no subject more stimulating than philosophy and history," says Allen. "I see the literary tradition of our culture not so much as a storehouse of facts and ideas, but rather as an endless great debate."

Poet to read works in B'ham

Deborah Richardson will read her poetry at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 31, at the Little Professor Book Store, Birmingham.

Ms. Richardson has been widely published in literary journals including "Intellectual Digest," "The New York Quarterly," "College English," "Ball State Journal," "The Falcon," "Wayne Literary Review," "Moving Out" and others.

Her book, "Love Poem to a Dead Man and other Poems," was published by Fault Press, Los Angeles, Calif.

She has read poetry at many colleges and universities in Michigan, as well as serving in the poet-in-the schools program connected with the Michigan Council for the Arts, and CAMEO, a Livonia based program.

Ms. Richardson teaches two evening short-term courses at Oakland Community College, and Livonia Added Education. She will serve as one of the writers-in-residence for Schoolcraft Writers Conference this summer.

Quartet performs tonight

Featured artists for the Detroit Institute of Arts' Thursday evening Jazz At The Institute May 24 will be the Ron English Quartet. Two performances are scheduled, at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in the museum's candlelit Kresge Court.

Tickets at $3.50 may be obtained in advance through the museum ticket office (832-2730) or at the door on an availability basis. Reservations are advised.

Guitarist English will lead the quartet in performing original compositions.

Farmington ethnic fest is stuffed next week

By LORAIN McCLISH

A couple of previews have been planned by the International Ethnic Festival committee giving a taste of what's in store for the 10,000 persons expected to pass through Farmington Community Center's gates June 1-3.

On May 28, Finnish accordionists and dancers will don a brightly decorated float for the area's Memorial Day Parade. The float is designed to salute all men and women of all ethnic heritages who lost their lives in war.

Then, four groups of dancers will share their heritage with performances in Twelve Oaks Mall, in Novi, to herald the Farmington festivities.

Maria Durante, a Spanish dancer, will give two shows on Tuesday, May 29, at 6 and 7 p.m.

The Israeli Yemite Folk Dancers take to the stage at 6 p.m. Wednesday, May 30, followed by the Warszawianki Polish Dancers at 7 p.m.

The Agnes Prentice Highland Dancers join bagpiper John Goodnow at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 31, followed by the Irish Dancers from Butler Academy with a performance at 7 p.m.

JOAN LaVANWAY, committeeewoman who is heading up the ethnic food booths, reports 12 different nationalities will be offering their special recipes to tempt festival visitors with sight, taste, and aroma.

The 12 will join American favorite festival fare under one large tent with each booth decorated to reflect a specific nationality.

Mrs. LaVanway says, "The ethnic groups who are participating are not separated by weekends, days or locations. They are all under one roof and are able to exchange, reflect on, and meet other ethnic cultures.

"Some have been with us for the last four years and say they wouldn't miss our event."

She adds, "If your culture is not represented call us at the center, 477-8404. We'll find a spot for you."

All ages will be represented in the food booths.

"Many children are helping their parents with the cooking and serving. Church groups comprise many of the booths. Other groups are coming from educational or cultural centers," she said.

LEBANON will offer shish kebabs; Albania, honey doughnuts; Italy, pizza; Germany, black forest tortes, sauerkraut, knockwurst; and Chile, empanadas.

There will be salad, and souvlaki from Greece; pastries from Lithuania; samosa from East India; moussaka from Bulgaria.

Something new called doner kebab comes from Turkey, slivers of beef cooked on a revolving spit, served on pita bread.

Fort Wayne revives frontier

Historic Fort Wayne, Detroit's well-preserved, pre-Civil War fortress, will open for summer on Frontier Days, Saturday, June 2, and Sunday, June 3, complete with colonial crafts, demonstrations, music, and activities.

"The Ft. Lernout Militia will set up camp for the whole weekend," says Patricia Phenix, one of the organizers, "and will form the nucleus for the weekend's program. Among the crafts, for instance, there will be calligraphy, spinning and weaving, caning and corn husk doll making."

The entertainment will be authentic to the 19th century, too. Three bands will be playing and parading around, dance groups will strut their stuff and a medicine man will make his appearance. A photographer with an old-fashioned camera also will be on hand.

A colonial kitchen in which children may experience first-hand some long-lost kitchen skills such as apple peeling, butter churning and rug beating, will complete the program. Picnic areas will be provided and the fort's mess hall will be open.

Frontier Days last from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days. Subsequently, Fort Wayne will be open Wednesday through Sunday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., except Sundays, when the hours will be 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. The fort will remain open until Nov. 30.

Other events at the fort this summer include an Independence Eve Concert on Wednesday, July 3; the Brigade of the American Revolution Encampment, Saturday and Sunday, July 7-8, and a Civil War Living History Weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 4-5. The fort is located at Jefferson and Livernois streets in Detroit.

Institute showing book art

A second installment of "art/book/art" will be shown in the North Court gallery of the Detroit Institute of Arts Saturday, June 2 through Sunday, July 29.

The first phase of this popular exhibition was shown from Jan. 31 through April 1.

The new segment features a variety of books, postcards, broadsides and other materials by The Alternative Press of Grandstone City, celebrating its 10th year of artistic production. Many of the works were produced in collaboration with well-known artists from Detroit and other areas.

The "art/book/art" exhibitions, organized by the modern art department, display for the first time items recently acquired for the permanent collection through the Madalyn and Stanley Rosen fund.

Museum hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

16th Meadow Brook Festival opens on June 21

The June 21 opening of the 16th annual Meadow Brook Festival appropriately coincides with the advent of summer.

While there are many kinds of music offered at Baldwin Pavilion on the campus of Oakland University, Rochester, Thursday and Saturday evenings are traditionally reserved for classical. The Sunday evening pops concerts also attract serious music buffs who also take their classics laced with touches of a lighter repertoire.

For program and ticket information, call the festival box office, 377-2010.

Jupiter mission on silver screen

"Voyager Report I: Jupiter," Friday's program in the University of Michigan's Astronomical Film Festival, begins at 7:30 p.m. in Auditorium 3 of the Modern Languages Building.

Jim Loudon, staff astronomer for U-M's Exhibit Museum, will lecture with films and slides he brought back from the Voyager missions base in California.

"Time-lapse movies from Voyager I show the 200 mph winds that rage constantly in Jupiter's enormous atmosphere and a storm 2½ times the diameter of the earth," says Loudon.

Slides include the discovery picture of Jupiter's ring and the first lightning ever photographed on another planet.

REALTY WORLD WM. DECKER, INC.

"Our World Revolves Around You"

A SIMPLE ASSUMPTION
at 7 1/4% buys a super three bedroom ranch home with a family room and fireplace, full basement and extra sized lot in Carriage Hills. It's the BEST BUY of the week at $59,900.

THIS FAMILY ORIENTED
home is designed with three big bedrooms and a bath upstairs and the Master on the first floor, removed from the everyday hubbub. It has a gracious foyer and formal living areas plus a first floor den and a large screened and glassed porch ready for year around use. A fine Plymouth address and recent price adjustment give it special appeal. $101,000.

ANTIQUE NUT?
Then don't miss this house! Charm doesn't begin to describe the beautifully restored rooms - a perfect background for the collector who needs three bedrooms, 1 1/2 baths and an in-town location. $69,900.

NEW ON THE MARKET
In Northville Commons. In the Colonial tradition on a secluded court this 4 bedroom, 2 1/2 bath home offers a gigantic family room with a redwood deck adjoining, and a walk-out basement. A beautifully terraced yard, central air, superior condition, and immediate occupancy make it most desirable. $134,900

JUST LISTED! Large attractive country Tri-level overlooking beautiful Lake Shannon. 4 bedrooms, family room with fireplace, 22x10 deck, 123x400 lot, Hartland Schools. $86,800.

QUIET ATMOSPHERE. Immaculate 3 bedroom brick Ranch. 1 1/2 baths, family room with fireplace, formal dining, nicely landscaped lot with creek running through back. Novi schools. $66,500.

JUST LISTED! Maintenance-free 3 bedroom home with frontage on Wolverine Lake. Full walk-out basement, patio, sandy beach. $69,900.

JUST LISTED! Older 4 bedroom home with frontage on quiet bay of Wolverine Lake. Partial walk-out basement, gas heat, 14x25 covered patio, sandy beach. Enjoy Lake Living! $79,900.

HIGHLAND HILLS. 4 bedroom Bi-level with privileges on 4 lakes. 1 1/2 baths, family room with fireplace, garage, large fenced lot. $82,500.

ONE OF A KIND
and custom built, this stately Colonial home has a setting of mature trees and lasting privacy in an eminently regarded Plymouth area. There are five bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths and all the special qualities you would expect in a home of this caliber. $128,500.

NEATNESS COUNTS
and so does the Windsor Park location of this three bedroom Colonial. Boasting a big family room and country kitchen, central air, and lovely rear patio with a gas grill for your summer cook-outs, it shows the care of people who love it. $77,900.

AN OUTSTANDING
Colonial style home with four bedrooms, 1 1/2 baths, family room with full wall fireplace, and the superior condition so rarely found. Even the landscaping is special. Priced to please at $73,500.

TOWERING SHADE TREES
grace the quiet Plymouth street where this older, but better three bedroom Colonial is located. A delightful meld of old and new, it has a fireplace in the living room, spacious dining room and a livable family room tucked away off the kitchen. The present loan is assumable at 8 1/4%. $84,900.

Each office is independently owned.

506 Help Wanted Sales

We are looking for two exceptional people who have the desire and ability to double their earnings.

Or even triple their earnings. Life of Virginia has that kind of opportunity for two ambitious people. We offer you most of the advantages of being self-employed without the disadvantages. You need no capital investment. You will enjoy independence, and you will have the chance to earn as much as your initiative and talent merit. What you must offer us is an aptitude for the business (which we will help you determine) and the drive to succeed.

Let's talk!

Let's team up for a successful garage sale

It's that time of the year again when you get that Spring Clean-up bug and begin tossing unwanted items out of the house and into the garage. Into the garage! What a good idea for having a garage sale since they're out there anyway!!

Your hometown newspaper can help you to organize some important details that are necessary in having a profitable and successful sale. Here are a few timely tips we've put together for YOU!

WHAT TO SELL:

Anything that still has usability and some value is a good garage sale item. Search both high and low, you'd be surprised at how many articles you will have; old furniture, toys, musical instruments, sewing machines, garden tools and the like.

ADVERTISING:

Obviously the best way to advertise your sales is in the Observer & Eccentric classified advertising section. These ads are read avidly by people looking for bargains. Your ad can be fairly short and still effective by listing the most appealing items separately and then grouping others in categories, such as furniture, clothes, toys, antiques, etc. Of course you will want to place signs in and around the neighborhood—possibly in schools, supermarkets, beauty shops, etc.

PRICING:

Start by listing all items by category on an inventory sheet.

Antiques for example, should be listed separately from other items. Clothing should be priced at approximately one-eighth the original cost. Any clothing ten to fifteen years old may have nostalgic appeal and can be priced slightly higher. It might even be placed in the antiques category.

Electrical appliances that work should bring one-fourth the original cost. Most prices on articles will be influenced by their condition.

You might want to try color coding your items for easy price recognition.

DOUBLE SALE:

Many people have found it worthwhile to combine their garage sale with that of a friend or neighbor. This saves money on costs of advertising and provides a helpful hand in arranging items, pricing them, dealing with customers, besides providing welcome companionship.

Don't forget to keep separate inventories and different price color coding. Another advantage is a more impressive array of merchandise.

LENGTH OF SALE:

The most productive sales are those that run at least three days. Tests have revealed that Thursday is the best day to advertise, the logical start of a sale would be Friday. This gives you the entire weekend in which to conduct your business.

After a day or two the word will get around and supplement your advertising efforts.

When the most attractive items are gone, you may wish to reconsider and change prices on those articles which have been slow to move.

SETTING UP YOUR SALE:

A few days before your sale go to the bank and get plenty of small bills and various size coins. Set up a headquarters table, here you will keep your change, your adding machine, your inventory lists. Always have someone in attendance. You may want to set up a hat and coat rack and a mirror for use by those who may want to try on garments. Arrange sale items in neat rows and allow plenty of walking room between displays.

DON'T HESITATE TO ASK ADVICE:

Your hometown classified advertising department is always ready to advise you on your garage sale. So, never hesitate to ask one of our friendly ad takers so that your message will have maximum impact on the readers!
