Building creates floods?

Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert says he believes one of the major reasons residents were plagued by flooded basements during two heavy rains may be traced to new homes under con-

According to Culbert, information gathered by an engineer, master plumber and other experts he had asked to investigate the problem, points to drains left open in basements of houses under construction as at least one of the contributors to the flooding.

The supervisor said at least 77 violations of a Canton ordinance that requires the drains to be kept closed during construction have been issued by the building department.

Crescendo builders received 31 of the violations, with the remainder going to other home builders throughout the township.

Culbert said open drains in the partly-built homes aggrevate the flooding problem because rainwater runs off the ungraded lots into the basements, where water can reach a height of sev-

Culbert says inspections of drains and sewers done during the last few weeks by township employees have led to the discovery of drains clogged with such debris as discarded Christmas trees and sanitary sewers with as much as five inches of sand inside.

Some of the recent findings will be discussed in a report presented to the Canton Township Board of Trustees at the Aug. 7 regular board meeting, scheduled for 7 p.m. in the township administration building.

Aussie Graham captures PGA

Australian David Graham embraces his caddy while accepting congratulations from Ben Crenshaw after winning the 61st PGA Championship at Oakland Hills Sunday in a sudden death playoff. It took Graham three extra holes to defeat Crenshaw. Graham nearly lost the championship by taking a double-bogey six on the 18th hole to set up the playoff. Over 145,000 persons attended the week-long event at Oakland Hills. For more photographs and complete details on the PGA see the back page of this section and the front of today's sports pages.

Teacher negotiations proceed at snail's pace of time had been wasted on trying to reach agreement on the procedural rules for bargaining.

"At past sessions both sides would initial tentative agreements as they were reached. This time, with the outside attorneys bargaining, the board team said they didn't want to initial anything until agreement was reached on an entire article.

"The board team wanted to have that big hammer to hold against us at the end, but we aren't going to bargain that way. Finally they agreed to initial individual paragraphs as agreement is reached. But a lot of time was wasted before that was ironed out."

McKinley also is upset because he feels the board negotiators lack authority to make decisions and must clear everything with the central administration before signing tentative agree-

> The board's negotiations this year are being handled by the law firm of Clark, Hardy, Lewis, Fine and Asher. The two attorneys who serve as spokesmen at the table are William Albertson and Stuart Slatkin.

Other members of the board's team are: Walt Bartnick, Kee's assistant in personnel; Dan White, director of finance; John Telford, secondary education director, and Barbara Bowman, elementary education director.

Members of the PCEA's team are McKinley, John Ryder, Candi Reece, Bill Bartlett, and Tim Cotner. All have served on the bargaining team before except for Cotner, who is chairman of the grievance committee for the McKinley is concerned about the money the board is spending for the law firm's services. He claims some $10,000 was budgeted for labor relations and that the firm is being paid $60 an hour for work at the table. If both attorneys are paid the hourly rate, Mc-Kinley adds, that's $120 an hour.

KEE DENIES $120 an hour is being paid for both attorneys. "We worked out an arrangement with the law firm. It's a package arrangement and is based on the team concept. They are being paid about $60 per hour - not $120. But who bargains for us is our concern, not the union's."

McKinley said he's concerned because a lot of time is wasted because of the arrangement.

"Almost every time we meet, the board team calls for a caucus right off the bat before we can get to the table. They need that caucus to consult with their attorneys who are out of town. We caucus before bargaining so we are ready when we get together."

Low-income denial prompts legal threat

The owner of land previously proposed as the site of a low-income apartment complex is considering litigation against Canton Township because of a sudden change in the parcel's zoning.

The Canton board denied site plans for the low-income complex proposed near the Pickwick subdivision on July 10 on the grounds that the land's zoning had reverted from multiple-family to single-family residential.

The action was based on the premise that the Pickwick Planned Unit Development (PUD) agreement had been broken, because a required sequence of construction had not been followed.

Ronald Ratner, vice president of Forest City Inc., said his company "cannot live" with the decision and the zoning change.

Forest City currently owns the 18acre parcel south of Warren and east of Lilley. But Amurcon Corp. has signed an agreement to purchase the land with the stipulation that its zoning remain multiple.

Amurcon had planned to build a 168-unit apartment complex on the site. Canton board members had promised irate Pickwick residents that they would do everything possible to stop construction of the complex, even if it meant going to court. "The overwhelming concern to our company is the change in use," Ratner said. "If the township board's decision is the final word, then it's a situation where our land value has probably been slashed by 25 percent."

Ratner said the land was zoned for multiple-family use when his firm purchased the parcel in 1972.

He said company attorneys are currently researching "what our options

Kim Wilkins, vice president of Amurcon Corp., said his firm would not enter the lawsuit if it is filed. He would not say whether Amurcon has abandoned its plan to construct the apartments near Pickwick.

"I don't know if we've given it up or not," he said. "But we certainly can't. pursue it without a site plan."

Self-serve gas?
Because of the skyrocketing price of gasoline, Canton Township board members are reconsidering the township's ban on self-service gasoline stations. An ordinance prohibiting self-serve pumps was passed under the administration of former Supervisor Robert Greenstein out of fear that people did not know how to handle the flammable fuel. But current Supervisor Noel Culbert says many residents have complained about the ordinance./

Welcome to Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert wants to replace the signs which welcome motorists to Canton. The supervisor thinks the current signs which welcome drivers to the "charter township of Canton - a planned community" are just a little wordy. He has proposed green signs that feature the township's tree symbol and the wording, "Canton welcomes you." A dozen of the new signs would cost the township about

'Aren't they cute?' proud caiman owner asks

By DARLENE STINSON

George and Chubbs are not what you'd call your ordinary cuddly house-

But their owners - Bill and Sharon Kane of Canton Township - are willing to go to court to keep the four-foot caiman in their townhouse basement where the alligator-type reptiles have lived for the past eight years.

The board of directors of the Canter- Chubbs are less dangerous than a dog. bury Mews apartment complex has threatened to file eviction proceedings against the Kanes unless George and Chubbs take up residence somewhere

Board attorney Frederick Bluford claims in a letter to the couple that the reptiles "pose a severe threat to the safety of cooperative members."

But Kane insists that George and

The reptiles, which look like alligators to those not versed on crocodilian forms, spend their days basking under heat lamps in a fenced-in basement

"How many alligators do you know that can open a padlock, climb a flight of stairs and open French doors," asked Kane, referring to the board's fears that George and Chubbs will take a walk through the apartment grounds.

KANE, A DETROIT schoolteacher. purchased the caiman on an impulsive shopping spree at Montgomery Ward eight years ago.

"I just thought they were cute," said Kane, as he proudly showed off photographs of the baby caiman, which were then a few inches long.

Over the next four years, howwever, the reptiles grew and grew and grew. Kane was forced to replace his pets' first home — an aquarium — with a small swimming pool. Two years ago, he enlisted the help of builder Frank Shephard to install miniature models of above-ground swimming pools in his basement.

The pet owner claims that the fenced-in, filtered pools meet all township building ordinances and can easily be removed - a requirement of the apartment by-laws.

The Canterbury Mews occupancy agreement prohibits tenants from harboring fur-bearing animals, but does not mention reptiles, Kane said.

The caiman owner claims that he told the former apartment pet director about George and Chubbs when they were first purchased eight years ago. He said his neighbors who live in the immediate vicinity of his home have never objected to the pets.

According to Canton ordinance officer Lloyd Young, no township ordinance or state law prohibits the keeping of caiman as pets.

KATHERINE LATINEN, assistant curator of the Detroit Zoo reptile house, backed up Kane's statement that caiman are relatively harmless.

"People just don't understand them because they're so different from themselves," she said. "But they're not agressive animals. If they did get out, they'd probably just hide.

She heaped praise on Kane for keeping the reptiles alive and healthy.

Most people who purchased caiman when they were common occupants of department stores some years ago could not keep the reptiles alive for more than a year, Ms. Latinen said.

Baby caiman, which eat insects and later fish in the wild, need specific nutritional requirements. Inadequate lighting often results in severe physical deformities.

According to Ms. Latinen, caiman can no longer be sold or transported from their native habitat in South America under international or U.S. law. Although caiman are not endangered, they are listed as an endangered species because they resemble other reptiles that are threatened with extinction. "You're talking about someone who's a very good caretaker," Ms. Latinen said of Kane. "He obviously knew what he was doing."

NONETHELESS, MEMBERS of the Canterbury Mews board of directors aren't exactly thrilled with George and

A letter written by board attorney Bluford to the Kanes in May asked the pet owners to remove the caiman from the apartment complex or face eviction proceedings.

Board member Susan Hitchcock said eviction plans have been temporarily shelved pending research into insurance matters.

Bluford said he personally believes that the apartments' occupancy agreements prohibits the keeping of caiman as pet, although the agreement only specifically mentions fur-bearing ani-

"I don't think it would be hard to tell a jury that the keeping of these animals is a dangerous hazard," he said.

Kane has retained attorney James P. Ryan to fight the eviction case, if it is filed. "There's no way they can touch me,"

Kane insisted. "I'm not in violation of "We're going to stay here, and we're presentaton directed at teachers. It focuses on developing good teacher attitudes as well as a student motivation.

Ulsaker points to several reasons why teachers need to learn to motivate children. His personal push is to change attitudes rather than using "fear" and "incentive" to motivate children toward learning.

Motivating children by changing their attitudes implies: "You to do it because it's good for you as a person,' rather than "If you do this I'll give you an M&M or I'll beat you if you don't."

Motivating children has become a task teachers should be conscious of in a world where yougnsters spend hours before a televison set daily, he says.

McKinley said the PCEA has been asking for additional bargaining sessions but the board team has refused, claiming they can't schedule any more time during the week. "Right now we are scheduled through Aug. 15. Time is running short.

Sweet tooths sour, candy sales dip

Candy is dandy, but maybe not as dandy as it used to be. Americans aren't eating as much of it any more.

Last year, says the U.S. Department of Commerce, we each consumed only 14.9 pounds of chocolate and other candies. That's down from 15.4 pounds per American in 1977

Nobody yet knows why we are consuming less, but the National Geographic News Service wonders whether:

· We think we are eating as much candy as ever, but are fooled by the ever-shrinking American candy bar.

 The American sweet tooth is going sour, victim of celery sticks and other health foods.

· Dieting fans and nutritionists are making their weight felt.

· Dentists are gradually getting their way, just as the nation's kids have always feared.

CANDY MAKERS, far from being tongue-in-cheek about any of this, don't sound worried. The country's 15,000 chocolate candy stores report their best-ever sales for Christmas, St. Valentine's Day, Easter and Mother's Beyond that, candy makers hope they may soon be able to announce that "Chocolate is good for your teeth."

Volunteers in Boston are munching away in the interest of science, checking out test-tube research suggesting there is something in chocolate — a heat-resistant, water-soluble protein which in the language of toothpaste, "fights dental decay."

If it's true, candy makers speculate, perhaps this wonder substance could be added to non-chocolate candy to help protect against cavities. Candy makers, incidentally, spend each working day alternately tasting batches of their production and brushing or rinsing their teeth.

MEANWHILE, candy lovers everywhere keep demonstrating "how sweet is is." World's champion candy eaters are the British, who are fond of gobbling toffees, licorice bootlaces, bulls' eyes, sherbet dabs, and jelly babies.

"Behind their mythologically stiff upper lips," a dentist wrote the London Times about his fellow Englishmen, "hang some of the sweetest, rottenest teeth in the world.'

The Bottom Line

Deductions lost

By DANIEL HERRIMAN

(The author, Daniel Herriman of Plymouth, is a partner in a consulting service firm for small businesses.)

The Internal Revenue Service recently has ruled that two types of medical expenses are not deductible, and that a third group of expenses may be considered medical in nature and, therefore, therefore, deductible

The two areas which the IRS said deductions may not be claimed by a taxpayer concern the cost of programs to help individuals stop smoking or lose weight.

In both cases the programs were used by the taxpayer on the recommendation or suggestion of his physician.

While no specific ailment or disease was cited as the reason for the weight loss or the cessation of smoking, such action would improve the individual's general health and sense of well-being.

IRS ruled that because weight loss and the cessation of smoking only lead to general good health, neither program would be deductible.

BECAUSE THE IRS's decision, in both cases, argues the fine point that the program was used for general health, we would recommend that if you planned to participate in this type of program, your physician should recommend it for specific health ailments.

Your physician should be able to point to specific medical reasons why you should lose weight or stop smoking. Under these circumstances, we feel that the deduction would be legiti-

Be aware, however, that the IRS may challenge such a deduction if they audit your return. Though you are likely to prevail, such a course is not without some risk.

If an employer tells an employee to shape up or ship out, it is likely that the deduction for the weight reducing program can be taken as a business expense.

THE FINAL medical condition which IRS recently has expounded upon concerns lead paint poisoning.

With the increased migration of people back to older buildings in cities, this ruling could prove a boon to those persons rehabilitating older structures.

In essence what IRS said is that the cost of scraping lead paint areas accessible to children would be deductible as a medical expense. The repair of surfaces not readily accessible to a child would not be deductible.

If you suspect that areas of your home have, in the past, been painted with a lead base paint, you should confirm this suspicion with the assistance of your local health department.

With confirmation in hand you can proceed to scrape and remove the old lead paint and refinish. Because this hazard exists only in older housing which is likely to need repainting anyway, keep this situation in mind as a future deductible

Ben Crenshaw grimaces after missing a putt during PGA action. Crenshaw didn't miss many putts as his outstanding golf kept him in contention from the opening day of the championship. Crenshaw lost the championship in a playoff with David Graham. Crenshaw fired 69, 67, 69, 67 - 272 for eight under par at Oakland Hills.

Among some 800 volunteers on the tournament crew was Becky MacIntyre of Birmingham. She served as one of the persons reporting scores by field telephone from each green as players holed out. This data kept scoreboards around the course and the Burroughs computer up to the minute with the status of each competitor. (Staff photo by Dick Kelley)

145,102 see PGA

The "Monster" may have been tamed during PGA week, but that didn't hurt the attendance or revenue for Oakland Hills.

PGA officials yesterday afternoon said Oakland Hills attendance set a tournmaent record—despite inclement weather—for a golf event. Reports released Sunday indicated that 145,102 persons came to Oakland Hills during the week. The previous record was 114,252 for the 1972 PGA on the same course.

Spectators by day were: 3,572 Monday; 7,061 Tuesday; 18,742 Wednesday; 20,264 Thursday; 25,526 Friday; 34,368 Saturday, and 35,569 Sunday.

And those figures translate to added income via programs, hot dogs and beer sold during the week. Don Graham, director of Oakland Hills' Finance Committee, said, "This PGA will be more profitable than the 1972."

Proceeds from the 1972 PGA were used to build an addition to the club house.

Graham estimated that Oakland Hills would gross $2.25 million from the event. This amount comes from tickets, advertising in the program and parking.

Major expenses because of the tournament will come from making repairs to the north course, where cars were parked, according to Graham. Graham also said that extensive maintenance work must be done to the south course, where the championship was held.

Graham said it was too early to estimate how much money Oakland Hills would gain from the championship.

From bum to a hero

The crowd was growing impatient as it waited for the final threesome that included leader David Graham to approach the 18th green. This man had drawn the ire of the crowd as he stood up and got in their way. A few minutes later he returned with a case of beer cans and delighted the crowd by passing out every can in the case. The crowd went wild. All was forgiven.

Just how safe are the creams and lotions and eye beautifiers that women line up on their shelves? A federal Food and Drug Administration representative offers some answers. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Baby soft not enough, FDA says

By SHERRY KAHAN

You may be content if your cosmetics "make you feel baby soft all over." But that doesn't satisfy the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Its staff must make sure they are also safe, said Diane Place of the consumer affairs department of the Detroit FDA office.

"Cosmetics should be prepared from appropriate ingredients," she said. "If we investigate a cosmetic plant and find that lye is being put in the products, we would consider it an inappropriate ingredient."

Finding such an ingredient would galvanize FDA into a number of actions, from asking for a recall to going so far as to prosecute the manufacturer in federal court.

Her speech on cosmetics was addressed to members of the Wayne County Association of Extension Homemakers in the First United Methodist Church of Garden City. It covered both cosmetics and over-the-counter drugs, both of which are more connected that most people suppose, she said.

"Cosmetics must be safe and made of appropriate ingredients. Drugs sold without prescription must be safe and effective for their intended use. If they say it cures a headache, it must fulfill this therapeutic claim," she said.

way of sexiness, skin as soft as a baby's bottom or shining hair. But if a product claims to grow eyelashes, the product becomes a drug and must be able to back up its promises. THE FDA WORRIES about two aspects of cosmetic safety, the ingredients and how clean they can be kept. "Some hair dyes contain coal tar," said Ms. Place. "FDA has no jurisdiction over coal tar. It doesn't have to be safe, and it is not safe. It has been regarded as a possible cancer cause if absorbed by the skin. But all the products have to have a special warning.' All other hair dyes are regulated. Two substances recently were removed from them to make them safer. Congress is now considering laws that would allow the FDA to regulate coal

The most dangerous cosmetic in terms of contaminants is mascara, opined the speaker.

'When you take it from a tube with a brush, the brush touches the eyelashes, which are full of baceteria," she said. That's why the eyelashes are there, to keep bacteria out of the eyes.

'The bacteria on the brush is immediately transmitted from the brush back to the mascara. You should throw your mascara out after six months."

She said that one can get a disease from contaminated mascara that can cause almost total blindness. However, that is rare, she said.

"Cosmetics should be kept clean," she said with emphasis. "Every time your hand goes into your cream, unless the hand is scrubbed, you are introducing bacteria to the cream.

'Keep your hands clean and keep the cream out of the light and heat."

Tubes, she thinks, are the ideal containers. She also likes a spout.

Ms. Place also warned her listeners about carrying mascara eye pencils in their handbags. The tips come off, making them more dangerous. She added that eye doctors regard as unsafe a new fad of penciling in a line above the

MAKE YOUR OWN cosmetics, she suggested. "You can find a cheap face cream in Crisco or Spry," she said, adding, "I wouldn't prefer it."

"You can use vegetable oil, mineral oil or olive oil. The moisturizer is water. The cream is used to hold the water in. The heavier the cream, the better it holds it in.

"Vaseline is a fine cream. It's the cheapest, a great lubricant and a great sun cream.

A member of the audience shared her interest in "making" cosmetics at home. She said: "My face looked like a steamroller in the morning until I started giving it a good rub with Lava

Ms. -Place decided that particular method was based on the principle of abrasion. "If it works, fine," she said. She was also questioned about the use of paraffin in removing wrinkles. "It won't do a thing," she answered. "Some wrinkles a plastic surgeon couldn't

She recommended keeping the skin lubricated, in the fight against wrinkles. Also keep out of the sun. "It is hard on the skin and will age you faster than anything," she added.

She told her audience that buying mouthwash was a big waste of money. that toothpaste is less abrasive on the teeth than tooth powder, and "there is no such thing as a hypo-allergenic cosmetic." Formulas to define the latter have been thrown out of court.

At one time, a manufacturer had to prove that his hypo-allergenic product triggered significantly fewer reactions than another product "which did not claim to be hypo-allergenic, and had at least 10 percent of market sales." A judge rejected this confusing formula saying it was hard to comply with and hard for the FDA to enforce.

SHE REGARDS the listing of ingredients on cosmetics as helpful in several ways.

"It helps a person who is allergic avoid a product containing a substance which troubles them. It also allows consumers to compare contents of similar products, and pick the one that is least expensive, providing they like the perfume equally.

She warned against the use of cosmetics with aerosol sprays. "Remember it is putting particles in the air which you are breathing," she said. "You are also paying extra for the spraying when you might be able to dispense the cosmetic in a more economical way."

Permanent waves can be dangerous, she said, because of a possible reaction from the chemicals used.

"You can use a brand for years but because of some change in your body, you have a reaction," she stated. Occasionally a manufacturer may change to a different formula, which may give a

THE OVERSIGHT of thousands of over-the counter drugs has been so formidable that FDA recently established 17 committees to write an official recipe for various drug categories. Thus, to be acceptable, an ingredient must be safe and effective as an antacid, pain killer or anticeptic. "Any other ingredients are out," she said.

She pointed out that all the panels have turned in their report except for the one dealing with miscellaneous external and internal non-prescription drugs. She hopes this will be completed soon because it deals with the more 'far out" kinds of products, such as weight pills, thumb sucking remedies, wrinkle removers and hair straight-

"These are the categories where you are most likely to find ineffective or quack products," she said.

Future meetings of the Wayne County Association of Extension Homemakers will involve updating wardrobes, and furniture refinishing and antiquing. Wardrobe updating will be from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 28, with June Grossbart of Wayne State Univer-

On May, 12 at the same time, John Bertalan of Greenfield Village will discuss furniture. Both talks will be in the First United Presbyterian Church, 6443 Merriman, Garden City

Here's how to use cosmetics safely

Women have been patting on makeup and coloring their hair ever since they discovered the juice of the berry could be used for purposes other than food. Today cosmetics is a $5.4 billion business in this country. It is regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which has some practical suggestions about cosmetic safety.

•Read the label carefully and follow directions exactly. This is especially important when using antiperspirants, hair-removing preparations, hair dyes and color, home permanents and skin

•To determine if you are allergic to a cosmetic, apply a small amount to the inside of your forearm. Leave it for 24 hours. If you see any adverse effect such as redness or blisters, don't use it. For hair preparations, do a patch test, using as directed, on one small area of the hair and scalp to check for adverse ·Wash your hands before applying a" cosmetic. This prevents contamination from your hands spreading to the cosmetic, and possibly to a sensitive part of your body. Close containers after each use. Many bacteria grow more rapidly when exposed. Never borrow anyone's cosmetics. They may be contaminated, and there is no way to tell if this is the case just by looking,

 Don't spit into your cosmetics. Germs in saliva grow rapidly in new environments outside the mouth.

.Don't expect a product to do the impossible. For instance, a sunscreen preparation cannot protect you indefinitely from harmful effects of the sun. Even if you don't burn, you can become quite sick from overexposure to the •Remember no product is foolproof against allergies. Hypoallergenic means there is less likelihood of allergic reaction. But there is no way to forlate a product to which someone somewhere may not be allergic.

·Aerosol products should be used as directed on the label in well-ventilated rooms to avoid inhalation

.Don't allow children to play for unusually long periods in bubble baths. Although bubble baths have been reformulated to be less irritating, some ingredients used to form voluminous bubbles are more irritating than soap. Follow directions exactly on amounts to be used. It may be wise to rinse children off after they have bathed in bubblebath.

•Keep cosmetics away from children. Unsteady hands, sensitive skin and creative minds can cause injury.

•When you plan to be out in direct summer sunlight, don't use colognes, perfumes or aftershaves. They can make your skin particularly light-sensitive in the applied areas and lead to blotching and irritation.

•Be extremely cautious when using cosmetics around the eyes. Use only those labeled for eye areas and be sure the products are kept clean and covered. If irritation develops, see a doctor immediately. Make sure any instrument you place in the eye area is clean. Don't allow eye makeup to become covered with dust or contaminated with dirt or soil. Wipe off the container with a damp cloth if dust or dirt is

•Don't use old containers of eye cosmetics. If you haven't used the product for several months, it's better to discard it and buy a new one. Avoid using eye cosmetics if you have an eye infection or the skin around the eye is inflamed. Wait until the area is healed.

•Take particular care in using eye cosmetics if you have any allergies. When removing eye cosmetics, be careful not to scratch the eyeball or some other sensitive area.

•Report any adverse effects of cosmetics to the manufacturer and to the FDA. You will be doing

Cosmetologist blasts merger

By MARGARET MILLER

Strong opposition to a proposal that would merge licensing boards of barbers and cosmetologists is being voiced by a Livonian who has served as vice president of the Michigan Cosmetology Association.

Marcus Bass, a hairdresser who has worked in area salons since coming to this country from England in 1932, is lobbying against the move recommended by-William Ballinger, licensing and regulation director, in the interest of saving money and eliminating government activity. Such action, said Bass, would be unfair to some 69,000 cosmetologists and a disservice to the public that uses their services. "The board of licensing for our profession was second only to the real estate board in the number of licenes issued," said Bass. "It brought three quarters of a million into the state general fund. When I speak to legislators and quote those figures, they are amazed."

Bass said he can understand the wish on the part of state officials to institute some "sunset legislation" measures and move toward more economical practic-

"I know there are some boards that do not pay their own way from the standpoint of bringing in fees that cover the cost of board operation," he add-

"But this certainly is not true in the case of the cosmetologist.

HE ALSO MAINTAINS "it is wrong to merge two different professions under the same board of licensing.

"We are professional people," he stated, "and through the training we keep giving our members and the constant upgrading of our requirements, we feel we have a better knowledge of many facets of our business."

While both barbers and hairdressers' deal with hair, he pointed out, there are differences in emphasis that need to be considered in the state boards of licenswith female customers and have developed techniques that are better understood by examining boards with a cosmetology background.

"There are differences in the way we and the barbers conduct ourselves professionally, and we would like to keep it that way."

SOME DIFFERENCES have developed between the two groups in recent years, Bass noted. One was the matter of cosmetologists' cutting men's hair. That was settled when the state legislature passed in July 1978 a provision that a cosmetologist can cut the hair of persons of either sex.

Another difference has been affiliation in this area with Local 552 of the AFL-CIO Barber and Beauticians

Most Detroit-area barbers are affiliated but very few cosmetologists are, But both are agreed, he said, in wanting to be considered professionals. "We are classified in the state licens-

Bass went on. "So are accountants, and they are mad as hell. They want to be professionals and we do too.' Bass said he had written to Licensing and Regulation Director Ballenger protesting his proposal after it was publi-

"I received a letter from him stating there was no intention to deregulate in any way," he added. "He said he just proposed to combine the boards. But we intend to fight that all the way." BASS WAS INVOLVED as vice president of the cosmetology association in working on its special legislative committee and helping to upgrade the licensing laws. Illness forced him to give up some of his duties as vice president, but he has continued his legislative committee work and activity pushing the cause of the cosmetologist in Lansing.

"We feel," he insisted, "it's essential to keep our own board to maintain our professional integrity. We want to keep on friendly terms but keep our own

Fitzpatrick-Elmblad

Catherine M. Elmblad and Richard T. Fitzgerald Jr. exchanged marriage vows June 23 in Zion Lutheran Church, Skanee, Mich. Pastor Russel Creydt officiated.

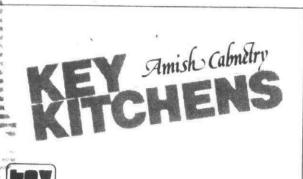

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Elmblad of Skanee. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Fitzpatrick of N. Umberland in Canton Township.

The bride carried a bouquet of pink rose buds, baby's breath, and ivy. Her old-fashioned gown had a lace bodice and a high ruffled neckline. Her chapel length train was edged in lace. Rita Elmblad, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Dearing, Kathy Michaelson, Diane Stears, Dee Fitzpatrick and Peggy Elmblad. They wore pink taffeta and chiffon gowns and carried white Spanish fans trimmed with ribbons.

Larry Bibicoff was best man. Ushers were Leif Albertson and Brother Elmblad. Groomsmen were Fred Elmblad, Bryan Fitzpatrick, Derrick Albertson and Mike Dearing. Holly Schultz was flower girl and Donnie Elmblad was ring bearer.

Following a wedding reception in the Skanee Town Hall, the couple vacationed in the Upper Peninsula. They will live in Dearborn.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan Technological University. She is employed as a pharmaceutical sales representative by Merck, Sharp and Dohme. Her husband is studying business administration at Schoolcraft College. He is employed as a sales representative by C.J. Edwards Co.

House of horror scares up yawns. instead of frights

This is supposed to be the summer for scary movies - "Alien," "Dracula," "Prophecy," "Nightwing" and the like.

Perhaps such a generous supply of suspense, sci-fi and the supernatural is just too much of a good thing. Perhaps it just conditions one to shocks. Or, maybe, "The Amityville Horror" (R) simply doesn't have any. I've faced greater terror at the checkout stand at the supermarket.

People who dote on spooky events may be satisfied best with Jay Anson's fast-selling book, a fictional-factual concoction about demonic forces lurking inside a house where a family was murdered.

The factual part is that George and Kathleen Lutz moved into a house on Long Island in which Ronald De Feo, one year earlier, murdered his parents, brothers and sisters. ("You won't find another house like this on the market," the real estate saleswoman says.)

The Lutzes say they spent 28 days in the house before making a hasty exit and telling their story to Ahson who wrote the book on which the movie is based. William Weber, De Feo's attorney, claims the Lutzes' stories were developed "over many bottles of wine."

BELIEVE WHAT YOU WILL. What you see are two hours of predictable hocus-pocus as the strange events of each day unfold:

Mysterious noises and shadows, a vibrating chandelier, doors that open and close by themselves, swarms of flies, slime or blood oozing down a stairway, a well with black gunk, and so on. (Thank goodness they didn't stay in the house a year; the two-hour film is more than enough.)

As Kathleen Lutz, Margot Kidder - Lois Lane of the "Superman" movie - seems to be looking for some super-help which never comes. Husband George, as played by James Brolin, has three moods - morose, Kathleen seems to spend a lot of time in the kitchen without ever cooking anything, and George seems to spend a lot of time chopping wood and sharpening his axe. For those who don't catch on quickly, numerous close-ups emphasize the ominous nature of this activity.

Although they have just moved in, no one ever runs a vacuum or moves a dustcloth around. You would think after visitors enter the house, sniff and run out to throw up, someone might get the idea to clean the place up a bit. Instead, Kathleen looks up old newspaper accounts of the murders, and George goes to the library where he steals a book about the

Information about the evil nature of the place leads to the smashing climax, which occurs at night during a raging thunderstorm. Would you expect anything else?

To add authenticity, an ending note informs the audience that the Lutzes really burnt rubber getting out and left all their personal posses-

What I would like to know is, did anyone ever return the library book?

Institute has free afternoon movies

Beginning Aug. 7 and continuing through mid-November, the Detroit Institute of Arts will present a 14-week series of free mid-day movies entitled "Film Panorama."

Each of the films will be shown for one week, at 2 p.m. Tuesdays-Sundays, in the museum's 400-seat Lecture/Recital Hall.

Focusing on the works of both commercial and independent European filmmakers of the 1920s, the series will trace the growth of this medium through early experimentation of such noted directors as Alfred Hitchcock, Fritz Lang, Sergei Eisenstein, G.W. Pabst and Jean Vigo.

Printed film notes will be provided without charge, giving biographical material about each director and his view of this emerging discipline. All films are silent.

Included in the series will be:

Aug. 7-12 "The Man with the Movie Camera" (USSR, 1929) Ddziga Vertov director, 67 minutes.

Aug. 14-19 "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" (Germany, 1919) Robert Weine director 53 minutes.

Aug. 21-26 "Entr'acte" (French, 1924) Rene Claire director, 20 minutes. "Only the Hours" (French, 1927) Alberto Cavalcannti director, 45

Aug. 28-Sept. 2 "The Lodger" (English, 1926) Alfred Hitchcock director, 75 minutes.

Sept. 4-9 "Nosferatu" (Germany, 1927) F.W. Murnau director, 80 minutes.

Sept. 11-16 "Le Ballet Mecanique" (France, 1924) Fernand Leger director, 15 minutes. "Seashell and the Clergyman" (France, 1926) Germaine Dulac director, 43 minutes. "Emak Bakia" (U.S. 1927) Man Ray director, 17 minutes.

"This fifth season has more variety than ever," according to Frederick J. Cummings. "The shows have high educational and artistic value," he says, "and a local entertainment quotient that keeps the arts lively in Michigan."

"Show on the Road" opens Aug. 18 at the Kresge Art Center in East Lansing with "German Expressionist Art" organized by the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts. This is the first show put together by another state museum and then traveled throughout the state under art institute auspices. All the Expressionist art in the exhibition has been loaned by museums and private collectors in

The six other traveling exhibiltions during this coming season are "Oriental Ceramics," "Art/Book/Art," "Early Modern Art," "The Parthenon: 2500 Years of Change," "Ancient Arena: The Roman Colosseum," "Changing Face of the Sphinx," and "John Brown, Aboli-

Playhouse comedy stars Dick Shawn

For the fifth production of its 25th anniversary season, the Cherry County Playhouse will present Dick Shawn in his comedy spoof "The Second Greatest Entertainer in the Whole Wide World."

Shawn will appear at the Traverse City theater for two weeks, Tuesday, Aug. 7 through Sunday, Aug. 19.

The show probes the mind of a downon-his-luck comic who still has, and always will have, hopes of making it big. The first act finds Shawn in the dressing room of a second-rate night club rehearsing one liners until interrupted by the stage manager with his fiveminute curtain time.

The second act is a dream sequence in which Al Schenk (Shawn's character) has finally made it big in Las Vegas, until his fantasy is again interrupted by the stage manager.

Shawn carries the show almost alone accompanied only by the character of the stage manager and a myriad of special effects such as several large dummies which magically manage to

Michelangelo's city truly a cultural capital

Story and photos: IRIS SANDERSON JONES

FLORENCE, Italy — The small boy chases pigeons across the Piazza del Duomo. Tourists sit on the steps of the great cathedral facing the square while lovers embrace against the great bronze door on the baptistry. Four pigeons steal corn from the vendor's box placed in the plaza between the church and the baptistry.

The work of great artists is all around us, and we will savor it as the day warms, but the lifebeat of this plaza is people and pigeons, people and pigeons.

THE CITY HAS been here since 100 years before Christ, and the Statue of David stands in the Galleria dell'Accademia, a testimony to Michelangelo's genius.

Cathedral of Santa Maria del Fiora was built in the 13th century, but some things cross the boundaries of time and space. People and pigeons are two of them.

Travelers who rush in and out of this experience in the cathedral square will certainly miss it. They may see the great bell tower and Michelangelo's Pieta but they will miss everything else. To enjoy this great city, you must sit for a while on the cathedral steps and let the pigeons do the flying.

Florence, or Firenze as the Italians call it, straddles the Arno, a middle-sized river that empties into the sea near Pisa. As you approach Firenze by train, cream stucco buildings with red tile roofs crowd the landscape all the way into the tracked wilderness of the main railroad station.

There is a 20th century pandemonium on the streets as the morning crowds rush towards lunch. Cars and motorbikes race between crowds jamming the sidewalks near small beautiful shops, and outdoor cafes where Florentines linger over their morning coffee.

As you approach the Piazza del Duomo, you see a corner of Giotto's bell tower first as it rises in a square white shape above the city buildings. Soon a slice of the Duoma, literally the dome, fills the end of the street, growing larger as it fills the whole world of your vision with its splendor.

Camera bugs press back against doorways, trying to get far enough away to capture it all: the carved front of the church, the huge dome behind, the high tower beside and the octagonal shape of the baptistry, which faces the cathedral door across the plaza

People squat on the cathedral steps, crowd the great bronze baptistry doors and the horsecarriages, and delight themselves anew every day with the pigeons. The pigeon man, bored over his box of corn amid a sea of birds, pours corn into a woman's hand and raises it high. The pigeons flutter around her while her husband takes a picture.

IN THE GREAT, cool stillness of the cathedral, a service goes on between the arched pillars and crowds gather around the Pieta, an incomplete marble carving that Michelangelo intended for his own tomb.

Against the wall, video screens tell the story of the cathedral in four languages. Here you can plan your tour through the splendors of these buildings: a climb up the high dome so that you can overlook the city; another climb up Giotto's bell tower; a visit into as many nooks and crannies as you can see in one

Here you will see the works of great artists who had until now only been names to you: Donatello, Brunelleschi, Botticelli. Florence is the very heartbeat of great European art.

Pigeon lovers enjoy the art, as the artists themselves probably did, among the bustle of the city itself. Have canneloni or crepes with a little white Chianti in a restaurant near the square. Note the plaque, shoulder high, where the disastrous floods of 1966 rose above the priceless artifacts.

When you have chased the pigeons, and ridden around town in a carriage, walk three blocks up the Via Ricasoli to the Galleria dell'Accademia where Michelangelo's statue of David is waiting to take your breath away.

There are many concrete reproducof the David around the city, but nothing prepares you for the first sight of the real thing as it becomes visible down a long gallery of unfinished work by the old

Warning! Check the opening and closing times carefully and go at least one hour before the Academy closes. They stop selling tickets an hour before closing time, leaving many frustrated tourists fuming angrily at the door.

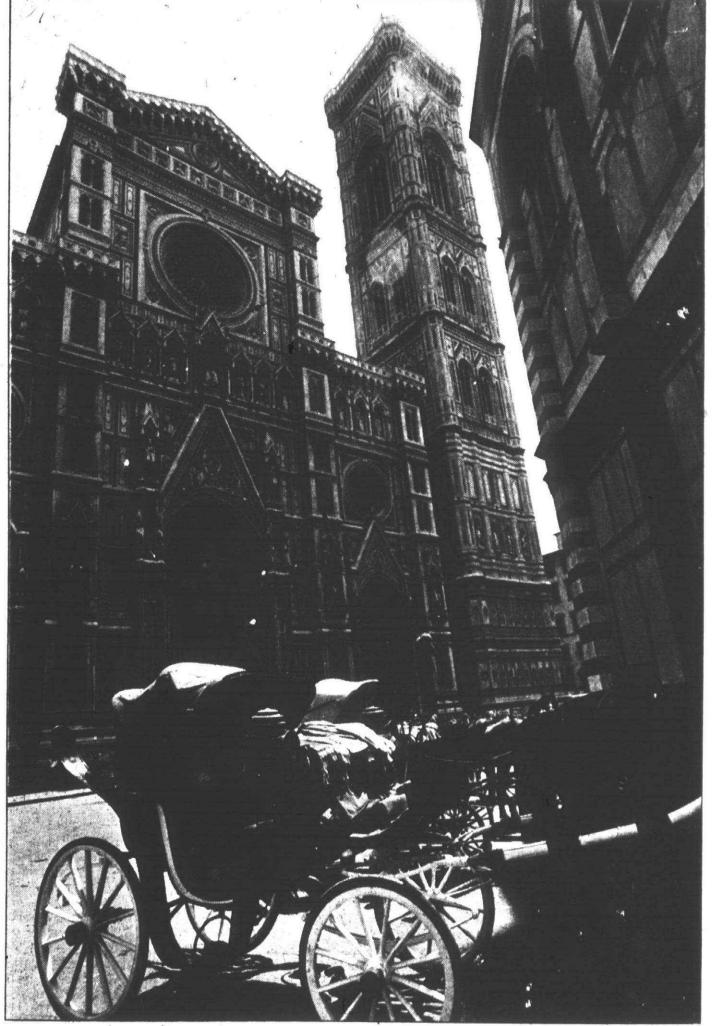

A few blocks on the other side of the Duomo is another pigeoned people place, the Piazza della Signoria. This is the site of the Palazzo Vecchio and the Uffizi gallery, a great sunlit open place surrounded by sidewalk cafes.

A couple of blocks away is the city market and the marvelous bronze boar with its nose rubbed shiny gold by passing children.

There are many things to do in Florence. Any guide book will tell you about the great churches, palaces and museums. If you like a touch of all that in a grand array of people experiences, walk through the sidewalk stalls from the Piazza della Signoria to the bank of the Arno and across the famous Ponte Vecchio, the bridge of jewelers.

A short taxi ride away, high up on a hill above the city, eat ice cream and watch the sun go down on the red, red roofs of Florence. The roof of the catherdral dominates it all, sitting there in sunset splendor with pigeons flying around its edges.

This high plaza is called the Piazzale Michelangelo. It's full of yellow balloons, people and pigeons.

defies even the widest of photographers' lenses. When you've seen the Duomo's pink and green marble exterior and stunning mosaics, you've visited the third

Santa Maria del Fiore, St. Mary of the Flowers, largest cathedral in Europe. And if you've also seen the two largest, your trio consists of Peter (in Rome) 'Paul (London) and Mary (Florence).

The fuel shortage is keeping travelers closer to home this year, so in-state festivals are a good way to spend a fuel-conscious summer weekend.

A booklet called "Michigan '79 Arts and Crafts Fairs and Festivals" is published every year by the Michigan Council for the Arts and can be obtained from their offices at 1200 Sixth Street in Detroit.

It's published early enough to satisfy crafts people who want to enter their creative work in these shows, and it covers enough ground to be useful to travelers right through the end of the year.

Hey diddle diddle, 3 days to fiddle

Sugarbush Campground will be the site for a Bluegrass Festival Aug. 10-12.

Events will include a band contest starting at 8 p.m. Friday, with a $200 cash prize to the winner, open workshops on Saturday for budding bluegrass musicians with instruments, and a gospel concert to start off Sunday

Bands playing on Saturday and Sunday include Don Reno and the Tennessee Cut-Ups, Frank Necessary, the Stone Mountain Boys, the Sunnysiders, Big John and the B.Js, Home Grown Grass, and the Croney Family.

At the campgrounds, there is plenty of camping space, free parking, some electrical hookups, concessions, and space for tents.

Admission price for all three days is $12 at the gate. For individual days, the prices are Friday $4, Saturday $6 and Sunday $5. Children younger than 12 will be admitted free.

For information, call 517-439-9525, 313-282-7814 or 565-9215. From Detroit, follow I-94 west to U.S. 12 west, to South Sand Lake Road, which is two niles west of Jonesville. Sugar Bush Park is 51/2 miles west of U.S. 12.

The Bay County Fair and Youth Exposition started today, in Bay City and will run through Aug. 11. Right on its heels is the Decatur Day and Ethnic Festival in downtown Decatur, Aug. 10 and 11.

The Holland Friends of Art and the Holland Recreation Department are sponsoring Art in the Park in Centennial Park, Holland, Aug. 11. Closer to home, the Keatington Art Festival will be held in Keatington Antique Village in Lake Orion Aug. 11

If you are going into the Upper Peninsula, the Sault Area Arts Council will hold the Sault Summer Arts Festival in Sault Ste. Marie Aug. 14 and 15.

Some of the arts and craft displays are shown at county fairs such as the one held at Mt. Morris in Genesee County, Aug. 14-19. Others are as ethnic as the Danish Festival Arts and Crafts show on Main Street in Greenville Aug. 17-18.

Still others honor a single bit of Michigan produce like the Montrose Blueberry Festival Arts and Carfts Fair in the Village Park at Montrose Aug. 18 and 19. You may not know that Michigan is known nationwide for its blueberries.

The Dowagiac Chamber of Commerce and the Dowagiac Artist Guild are the contacts for the Dowagiac Artist Guild Arts and Crafts Show in the city park in Dowagiac Aug. 18. The Kalamazoo Valley Art Association sponsors the Milham Park Art Show on the same date in Kalamazoo, with Aug. 25 listed as a rain date just in case.

The biggest fair of them all is just down the road from us Aug.24 to Sept. 3 when the Michigan State Fair comes to town.

You'll find these arts and crafts shows going on all over the state through the fall. August candidates include the Arts Fete at Dodge Park in Lansing Aug. 25-26; Art at the Center in Fenton Community Center Sept. 1 and 2; the Algonac Art Fair in the city park on the river in Algonac, Sept. 1 and 2; and Big Rapids Labor Day Arts Festival in Hemlock Park Sept. 3.

And the Lafayette Park Art Fair grandly takes over the shopping mall at the corner of Lafayette and Orleans in Detroit Sept. 8-9.

And that's just the arts and crafts fairs, not to mention the other kinds of festivals that can brighten up your life as you travel through Michigan this year.

Pigeons are a plentiful lot in this city on the Arno River, and this child energetically passes the time away chasing them in the Piazza del Duomo.

Mandate on thermostats adds degree of comfort

In the good old days, summer was hot and winter was cold.

Then, along came efficient furnaces and air conditioning and people developed a whole new way of

It became a welcome relief from a blazing summer day to walk into a shopping mall and be confronted by the icy breath of an air conditioner.

And winter's chill faded quickly when one ducked into a toasty, warm restaurant.

Somewhere along the line, a cold building that would have become unacceptable in the winter seemed refreshing in the summer.

And overheated buildings which would be called sweltering in the summer are cozy in the winter.

Now the federal government has spoiled all that by requiring that all public buildings set thermostats at no less than 78 degrees in the summer and no more than 65 in the winter.

Once again summer is hot and winter is cold. This is a natural state, at least in this meridian.

Nevertheless, people are complaining that they can't work in such heat or that they can't bend their fingers around a pencil in 65 degree termperatures.

We have never understood the parodox of having to take a sweater along when the temperature is 90 degrees in order to combat the overzealous air conditioner; or why a warm building in winter is more comfortable than a warm building in summer.

Possibly the population at large has become conditioned to radical temperature changes whenever they enter a building.

Frankly, we have grown tired of shivering in restaurants and government buildings; of having to shed bulky winter coats while shopping; and of alternately freezing and sweating when traveling from one environment to another.

We welcome a return to normalcy. Contrary to popular belief, you won't be able to fry an egg on your desk if the office is kept at 78 degrees. You may not be able to wear as many layers of clothings to work as you used to, which should be duly noted by the powers who institute dress codes.

Now we can save the jackets and sweaters for the winter, where such garments rightly belong.

Should these words serve as no comfort for those who liked things the way they were before, we offer this suggestion. Tape pictures of winter scenes over the windows this summer and everyone will welcome the building's warmth.

You can change the pictures to beach scenes in the winter, at which point everyone will comment on how refreshing it is to have air conditioning.

One evening years ago, during the darkest hour of our family's history, The Stroller's mother took him aside for a serious chat on the problems we

At the time The Stroller was a young lad only a few months into his first year in high school and was looking forward to further study with the hope of someday attending a university.

Unfortunately The Stroller's father, who had painted great mental pictures for him as a college graduate, had succumbed to a long illness and left Mother with the task of raising a family of five with The Stroller as the old-

She tried hard to make a success of the little lunch room we had. But it was not to be. And in this dark hour, she yielded to the pressure and closed the

When she sat down with The Stroller that night she tearfully informed him that he would have to leave school, even though he was head of his class, and find a job to help raise his sisters. "Just because you won't be going to school," she said, doesn't mean that you have to stop learning. Learn a trade of some kind and remember what you have in your head no one can steal

Then she added, "Whatever choice you make, strive to be the best even if it's ditch digging or pulling weeds."

Little did he think at the time that the day would come when many of his waking hours would be spent battling

While on his knees the other morning waging what seemed like an almost hopeless battle, he recalled that evening when his mother told him to strive to be the best — even if it was pulling weeds. The Stroller never was associated with ditch digging, but since early spring he has spent hour after hour in the garden pulling and tugging at the unwanted vegetation that has a habit of growing in the most undesirable places. At first it was a bit of fun. The Stroller was innocent enough to think that once he had a section of the garden weeded it would be clear for the rest of the summer. He soon was to find out that nature doesn't do things that way.

NO SOONER HAD he cleared one garden and moved to the next than the original garden began to sprout a new crop — and the weeds even grew in the cracks in the driveway and the squares in the patio.

For a time, The Stroller was on the verge of quitting and letting the weeds take over. But the pride of ownership got to him and he began the battle in earnest and enjoyed a few laughs along

One of those moments came when a neighbor asked the name of the particular weed on which The Stroller was pulling.

" I don't know what the horticulture people call it, but you couldn't print the name I have for it." She walked away

With it all there is a humorous side to weed pulling. Maybe it is just imaginary but The Stroller sometimes feels that the weeds are not destroyed but move to another section and come up again. At least they look the same.

Then a few days ago, when the rain followed the hot spell the Stroller looked about the garden and it had all the appearance of a family reunion of weeds. Either that, or a class reunion. They were coming up in profusion. That's why The Stroller has been spending a great deal of his waking hours pulling weeds.

And his dear old Mother, long since gone to that Valhalla where all good mothers go, must be looking down and

Maybe, as she wished, The Stroller isn't the best weed puller in the world but he's trying.

RUNNING around the area on the dozens of chores my presidency and my children generated, I noticed several times that there was no flag flying on the large pole at the Huntington Woods City

For weeks I watched and became more irritated. A large flagpole at the seat of government in my city — and no flag.

One morning I phoned the city and asked if they had a flag. They did. Then I said: "Then I want to be put on the agenda of tomorrow's council meeting." That was all right with the secretary. But after making the arrangements, I got a quick call back from the city manager.

He wanted to know what it was I wanted to speak about. And I told him about my distress that the city

City officials explained that they simply had no one person to stick with the job of raising the flag each morning. But I told them they had better find someone — and soon.

They did. And ever since, the American flag flies proudly every day in Huntington Woods. And they have a standing offer that my auxiliary will replace the flag when it wears out. For the first few weeks after my encounter with city officials, every time we got in the car, Bruce, Lauren and Elaine, then 6, 7, and 8, would insist we go by the city offices.

"THERE IT IS," they would exult, when they spotted the flag. "Mom's flag. There it is."

And if we had any else in the car with us, the children would explain my patriotic campaign to have that flag flown. And when I went to the city offices for anything for months afterward, I'd hear the whispers about myself and the knowing grins, too. Recently, I was reminded of my previous championing of Old Glory. And I realized my love affair with the stars and stripes is far from over.

The paper sent me to Grand Rapids to accept the Golden Press Award from the American Legion Auxiliary of Michigan. I felt very much at home back in the company of stalwarts of the veteran's Grace Ventland, the awards chairman took me into the large room where more than 400 auxiliary members and guests were assembled.

And there on the dais was a huge mass of American flags, more than 50 flags across a long expanse in back of the stage.

It was a scene of pure Americana, one seldom seen today except in the halls of patriotic organizations like the Legion. The moment was emotional for me. Surely, red, white and blue are the brightest and best of colors?

Being a part of that gathering gave me a warm feeling and a more complete understanding that mainstream America loves the flag as I do.

After we got home, I found myself glancing up to make sure "Mom's flag" was flying when we went by the city offices.

Why this fisherman is optimistic

If it's not raining today, while you are reading this, I will be sitting in a boat, with a can of night crawlers nearby, drifting atop the waves of Indian Lake near Manistique.

I left Saturday morning for my annual voyage to the U.P. in quest of the walleye and expect to have much better luck this year, even though the "keeper" size was raised to 15 inches last year.

I'm optimistic for two reasons: First, the gasoline scare is keeping tourists out of northern Michigan and the U.P. The fewer boats on the lake, the better my chances of getting a good catch.

Another reason is a discussion I had last week with Joe Ratke from the Motor Club. Joe also goes up to the U.P. each summer after the walleye. In fact, his hunting grounds are just a few miles to the east of Indian Lake- Manistique Lake up near Newberry.

Joe, like a lot of other fishermen, believes the middle of July is the best time for walleye because the water is well warmed by then and they go down into the deep holes for feeding.

I opt for the first part of August, partly because I think the seasonal changes in Michigan are such that we can count on a late spring, late summer each year and are more likely to find mid-July conditions in early August.

But Joe seems to have more luck than I, so he may be right. This year, though, the walleve fishing was a bit slow in July. He had just returned from a couple weeks' fishing when I was talking to him and said most of his catches were the 12-13 inch variety. (Wonder if they'll grow two inches in a

So Joe was going to try his luck on the St. Clair River, also an excellent spot for walleye. But I'll be thinking of Joe today while waiting for some

AND PATIENCE is the key to waiting for some action!

The best way to fish for walleyes is to drift over a deep hole with a night crawler harness. The shiny little spoons on the harness attracts their attention, but it doesn't guarantee success.

Just because you pass over a deep spot without a hit, it doesn't mean there's no fish there. It may take several passes to lure a walleye into action. Walleye are a smart fish, unlike their cousin — the pike.

A pike will strike fast if hungry, as soon as anything dangles by his long nose. But a walleye, even if hungry, will play around with your bait. You have to "feel" his presence near your

One trouble with walleye fishing, in fact, is that you always run across pike instead. I've caught many northern pike, and thrown 'em all back, while walleye fishing

Pike are a very bony fish, hard to fillet, and rather flat in taste. But it's easy to come up with a boneless filet from a walleye, which also is one of the tastiest fish you can catch in Michigan

Actually, yesterday was my first day of fishing up here but today should be The Day. The first day is a time to explore the lake, dabbling here and there to check out the holes, because in a year's time it's easy to forget where

Indian Lake is a big lake, almost like a small bay. Probably 80 percent of the lake is shallow, sandy bottom. But there are some deep holes to drift over and the fishing is good with a southwest wind — if it doesn't rain. A rainstorm will stir up the lake bottom and you might as well write off fishing for two

That gives me two days to drive around the U.P., taking in all the scenic beauty which still is in an unspoiled, natural condition.

So today I'm riding the waves in a small boat hoping it doesn't rain until Thursday — the day of our big fish fry.

Fuming about gas crisis

At cocktail parties lately, Larry Troy has been badgered worse than funeral directors about his chosen line of work.

Troy, of Troy, owns one of the highest volume gas stations in the state. It's in Southfield, on the corner of Eight Mile and the Southfield expressway Bucking the current trend, Troy's Shell station is usually open 24 hours a day and even has a service bay. Remember those? Last year Troy sold 2.5 million gallons of gas from the station and took in more than $2 million in cash.

Over the years he's been shot at and robbed. He's got a '78 Bronco pockmarked with buckshot to prove it. He figures the only thing that saved him was that he happened to drop a bank satchel on the ground and was stooping to pick it up when the shot

It wasn't the first time. An employee of his was gunned down on the driveway in 1975 during a robbery attempt. A tow truck driver was beaten with a chain by a man who was mad because his car wouldn't start.

HE HAS TO put up with people "who all claim to be loyal customers" bringing in "a kid's rotten old

"I end up putting six patches on it and then I hear 'Are you going to charge me for this Larry? I buy all my gas from you.' Oh, boy, that's terrific. A million people drive on Eight Mile each way every day. I gotta lotta loyal customers. More than I can

Troy's used to being reamed out by customers who blame him for the failure of a headlamp. After all, they brought the car in for a tune-up the day

But lately Troy's been on the receiving end of a heavy verbal barrage. It comes from customers who aren't happy about filling up their tank and getting a five back in change from a twenty.

No aggravation holds a candle to the heat Troy receives about the high price of gas.

It's not that he doesn't appreciate the business. It's just that he's a little touchy about being blamed for the oil price crisis and the scanty allocations. He's just as mad, maybe more, at the oil companies and federal government over the allocation set-up. After all, it's affecting his livelihood.

IN FACT, Troy nearly filed suit against the Department of Energy last week in an effort to force the feds to release some of the gas set aside for

The suit was dropped last week when the feds released 3 percent of the 1974 statewide allocation and ordered equal distribution to the state's service station owners. For Troy, 3 percent equals 8,000 more gallons monthly. "It means I'm open Until the threat of a lawsuit, 5 percent was being set aside for emergencies and dealers had to fill out federal forms to get more than their allocation. Now 2 percent of the 1974 state allocation is being held in reserve for emergency sale to police and fire departments in the state. Before that action, Troy made a good case for fraud on the part of jobbers. Dealers in the metropolitan Detroit area got suspicious about areas where gas was plentiful, Troy said, and demanded access to public records of gas transactions.

Troy said they discovered one small independent gas station chain in Detroit bought a large purchase from a Flint jobber earlier this year.

Troy says much of the 5 percent that was being set aside for emergencies was ending up in the possession of independent gas suppliers or "jobbers' who made a quick profit on the gas. By claiming their area dealers were experiencing a hardship supplying public service agencies. Troy says jobbers would receive an increased allocation and end up with more gas than they could sell at the The jobber makes 4.5 cents per gallon of gas sold to dealers, Troy said. With an excess 100,000 gallons, they've made a quick $4,500 bucks in the name of energy conservation. Because there are only two officials in the Lansing office of the Department of Energy, Troy said the phone number is always busy. Besides, he figures the feds were probably swamped with work and too busy to check out the legitimacy of hardship He feels the new set-up is fair and "is working a lot better." But Troy is still trying to convince the Department of Energy to establish a system that guarantees at least one dealer in a large city is open on weekends "so the consumer knows somebody'll be out there.

So far he's gotten nowhere on that suggestion. Government officials tell him the mechanics of such a plan would be too unweildy. Troy laughs and holds up reams of required paperwork and asks how a grocer would like posting a sign on his shelf stating how much he could charge for a can of peas.

Bluegrass festival to be held Aug. 19

Those who drop in for a day of fun and outstanding music at the third annual Folk and Bluegrass Festival on Aug. 19 will be helping to fight a dreaded disease

The festival in Northville is a benefit to raise funds for Huntington's

The all-day festival will run from 1 p.m. until dark at the Northville High School football field on Eight Mile west of Center Street (Sheldon

Featured performers will include Josh White, Jr., The Michigan Consolidated Grass, Home Grown Grass, Phoenix and many more.

Proceeds will be donated towards researching a cure for Huntington's disease — an illness which strikes down people in the prime of life.

The event is being sponsored by Tom Rice, a Northville businessman who lost a sister to Huntington's disease. "During the first two years of our festival, we have raised more than $5,000," says Rice, "and we hope to do even better this year." Rice stressed the festival is not just for the young, although young people are encouraged to attend. "We had many senior citizens and people of all age groups enjoy the outstanding talent along with the younger generation last year. We invite everyone to bring their family and friends for a day of enjoyment for a very worthy cause.

"Bring a picnic lunch and Frisbee and make it a day." Donations will be accepted at the gate. The minimum donation is $3

John Roberts at the Village

John A. Roberts of Plymouth, who has appeared several times with the Plymouth Theatre Guild, now is appearing at the Greenfield Village Museum Theatre.

Roberts portrays the role of Uncle Willie in Philip Berry's play, "The Philadelphia Story," each Friday and Saturday evening through Sept. 8. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. An optional dinner is served in Heritage Hall beginning at 6:30 p.m. For reservations or more information call 271-1620, ext. 417.

The play's setting is fashionable Philadelphia in the late 1930s, just before the second wedding of Tracy Lord, a divorced "married maiden."

Except for the groom, the play ends happily for everyone including the ex-husband. Uncle Willie is a "loveable character who has a zest for life and a penchant for pinching young ladies' bottoms," says Roberts.

Working with such a talented cast and crew is made even more enjoyable because of air conditioning and knowing that the audience can relax in comfortably upholstered seats while the temperature outside soar near the 90 degree mark."

Roberts has a studio for music instruction and promotion at 44737 Lynn Drive in Plymouth.

Plymouth gains split in Pontiac Mack Regional

By BRAD EMONS

Lefthander Tim Birtsas, with relief help from Al Kochanski, scattered seven hits to power Birmingham Lynch & Sons to a 7-3 win over the Plymouth Elks Friday morning in the Connie Mack baseball regional at Pontiac's Jaycee Park.

It was a pivotal victory for Lynch who upped its tourney record to 2-0. It was Plymouth's opener. In a second game Friday, Lynch got past Livonia Optimist, 4-2, while Plymouth stayed alive with a 4-2 victory over Pontiac Buzz Crozier.

"That was a game we had to win," said Lynch manager Floyd Lasser. "We felt this game was important."

The final score was not indicative of the closeness of the game.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, Lynch broke away from a narrow 2-1 lead by scoring five runs.

Rightfielder Ed Lynch opened the inning with a walk. After reaching second base on a wild pitch, Lynch scored on Tom Dieters' single who later came home on Chris Kuhn's sacrifice fly.

Scott Lasser then followed with a double and then scored on a Plymouth outfield error. Second baseman Bruno Petrella then belted a long homer over the leftfield fence, sending Elks' starter Matt Etienne to the showers as Lynch mounted a 7-1 lead.

In the top of the seventh, Plymouth's Paul Woodard singled and teammate

Plymouth cut the margin to 2-1 in the fourth when first baseman Jim Anderson singled and later scored on Paul Dillon's infield single.

"Matt (Etienne) pitched a strong game," said Elks interim manager Gary Temple. "We could have been out of the inning with a few breaks here

Both teams collected seven hits. Lynch made two errors. Plymouth stranded 12 runners.

Birtsas, who pitched for the Michigan State varsity this past spring, was effective in changing speeds against the Plymouth swingers. The tall lefty used an effective curve in the later innings to stymie the Elks.

PLYMOUTH-PONTIAC

Etienne's three hits sparked the Elks to a 4-2 victory, sending Plymouth against Livonia Optimist (Saturday) in the loser's bracket of the Mack tour-

James hurled five innings to gain the victory. He walk five and struck out four. He got relief help from Barry Owens in the sixth and Doug Holloway in the seventh.

Pinch hitting, Dawson came up the a key single to break a 2-2 deadlock in the sixth inning.

With one out, Etienne successfully laid down a sacrifice bunt as did Mike Woodard. Dawson, batting for James, ripped a single to center, giving Plymouth the lead, 3-2.

and with two out, Dillon drove home Woodard with a single.

Plymouth earlier collected a run in the first inning when Paul Woodard scored on an on a Pontiac infield error. Pontiac however tied the game up in the bottom half of the inning.

Anderson doubled home Merrill in the third to give Plymouth a 2-1 advantage, but Pontiac came back with a run off James in the fourth

In the Pontiac seventh, with one out, Holloway came on for Owens and retired the final two batters.

Plymouth came up with 10 hits as Pontiac had just two.

"In a tournament you have to make more decisions," said Temple. "We got some good pitching from James.

"I thought we were a little sluggish Shortstop Chris Hannan then walked all day. We left too many runners on.

Canton was to have played its third game Saturday in the third round. All games in the eight-team tourney are being played in the enclosed Clippers Stadium, an AAA minor league complex affiliated with the New York Yankees chain. Walks and errors led to Canton's opening round loss.

In the first inning, Dave Meador led off for Canton with a walk. Steve Gray and Frank McMurray followed with singles to load the bases. Outfielder David Carter then lashed a triple near the base of the 380-foot sign, scoring all Glenwood, a 2-1 loser to Grove City, Ohio on Thursday night, regained the lead, 2-1, with a single run in the third.

Final results Thursday

IN THE FIFTH, Schumacher led off with a single and Stone walked. With two out, Meador, a first baseman, singled home the tying run.

Canton got the game-winner in the top of the sixth as Dave Malek sparked things with a walk. He went all the way to third base on a sacrifice bunt by Greg Wendt. Racer then walked and Stone brought Malek home with a sharp single, scoring the go-ahead run.

Glenwood fought back in the bottom half of the inning as Chuck Klein singled with one out. He then stole second base as Racer, the Canton catcher, threw wildly past second. Klein headed for third but Carter gunned him down with a perfect throw.

Dan Funkhouser of the Canton Elks tossed a three-hitter in Friday's NABF World Series win over Glenwood of Long Island, N.Y. down in Columbus, Ohio. The lanky lefthander has won five straight.

A protest provoked the first outbreak of emotions in a game between Redford Travel and the A's of PAL. A manager and two players were reportedly ejected from the PAL team.

The Redford Travel manager allegedly had his fog lights on his car knocked out by a baseball bat. The home plate umpire was also reportedly surrounded in his car when he tried to leave after the game.

DeVries was scheduled to file a report on the incidents.

"I've already received a complaint," said PAL baseball director Sgt. Frank Freeburn. "Ninety-nine percent is caused by the managers and it filters down to the kids."

"I HAVEN'T had problems with any PAL teams in four years. I know the one coach and I can't believe his behavior at the Salem field.

Wendy's opened the scoring with two runs in the third inning. After the first two batters had been retired, Dave Croskey was safe on an error, stole second and came home when Mike Martin singled. Martin scored when Griffin's catcher, attempting to throw him out at second base on the hit, overthrew the ball into center

Griffin scored all three of its runs in the seventh inning. With one out, Ken Scarpace walked, Craig Walker singled and Jeff Maher tripled scoring both runners. Maher crossed the plate on a wild pitch.

Martin was the only batter in the game with two hits.

LIVONIA ADRAY and Redford Adray battled through 12 rain-soaked innings before Livonia finally won.

"It was quite a long, hard battle," said Livonia coach Ron Hellier. Livonia tallied seven runs on 14 hits and committed two errors. Redford had six runs, six hits and three errors. Scott Dawson, Livonia's third pitcher enth inning. It was definitely a pitch- of the game, was the winner. He came ford went for a double play but only got ond on a single by Frey and to third on on in the 10th inning.

Scott Riley was the starter for Livonia. He lasted six innings before Joe Emery relieved and hurled until the 10th when Dawson took to the mound.

Redford also used three pitchers. Kirk Hunter recorded the loss. He entered the game in the 10th inning in relief of Tom Harrington, who had come on in the fifth inning. Corey Drew started the contest for Redford but withdrew because of illness.

Livonia opened the scoring with two runs in the third inning. Dave Frey walked and Jim Wilson sacrificed. Frey scored when Tom Deacon was safe on an error. Deacon scored on a triple by Otis Manning.

Redford came back with one run in the fourth frame when Craig Lee singled, Gregg Alcala sacrificed and Hunter was safe on an error with Lee crossing the plate on the play.

It was Livonia's turn again in the fifth and sixth innings.

In the fifth, Malcolm McLean sinsafe on an error. On the next play, Redone out. Mclean crossed the plate.

Griffin, Adray grab playoff wins In the sixth inning, Frey singled and scored on Wilson's double.

> Redford rallied to tie the game in the seventh inning at four apiece with three runs. Hunter started the rally with a double. Chris Pellertio then walked and John Kalil hit an infield single to load the bases. Harrington then walked scoring one run and Darryl MacDonald singled scoring two

> The 4-4 tie continued until the 10th inning when each team picked up two Livonia scored when Emery tripled and Steve Popp singled. Popp moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on a fielder's choice play.

Lee and Alcala walked to start Redford's final rally of the day. Dave Waite then singled in one run and Hunter scored the other on a fielder's McLean knocked in the winning run for Livonia in the 12th inning when he gled, Deacon singled and Manning was singled home Popp. Popp had reached first base on a walk, advanced to seca sacrifice by Wilson.

Most everyone wants to start at 7 a.m. in order to be off the lanes by 10 p.m. and reach home at a decent hour. As a result, many of the establishments are having trouble filling their late spots on the schedule.

Much of the trouble is caused by the slow bowling that has been prevalent in the area the past several seasons.

Because of that, many of the 7 p.m. leagues don't get started until 7:30 p.m., and 9 p.m. leagues can't take over until close to 10.

This means a finish after midnight - a most undesirable time for a fellow who works the next day in the shops.

IN THE BOWLING schools sponsored by the men's and women's groups this season, the stress is on a remedy for slow bowling.

Tom McKay, executive secretary of the Greater Detroit Associaton, stresses that a bowler should rise from his seat as soon as the man before him releases the ball

He then should be ready to bowl in a matter of a few seconds. As McKay points out, five seconds saved here means close to an hour for the league.

In the old days, leagues were scheduled at intervals of two hours. If this were followed today, the late leagues would finish at 11 p.m. and no one

WHILE HE HASN'T broken the 700 barrier as frequently as last fall, John Hurley is setting a hot pace in the men's Monday morning trio classic at Westland Bowl. On his last appearance, he paced the loop with a 663 on games of 234, 215 and 214. This lifted his average to 210 for the first five weeks of the season which got away to an early start.

Others who posted double-century figures included Larry Williams with 211 and 255 in 648, John Patterson with 220 and 212 in 612, George Simpson with 206 and 234 in 612 and Frank Salbana with a 231 in 600.

HIGH SCORES again marked the firing in the men's trio league at Wonderland Lanes.

When the final pin fell, Paul Ellerholz was out in front with a 687. It was an unusual series. He started with 259, then came back with 197 and then jumped to a 225 in the final.

But the most unusual series of the summer was the work of Ed Miu, who opened with a 289, came back with 200 and slumped to 167 in the final for a

HOUSE

AMTRAK - The House rejected, 197 for and 214 against, an amendment to continue the full 27,500-mile Amtrak passenger train network for another year. The amendment was proposed to HR 3996, a bill authorizing Amtrak operations in fiscal 1980 and beyond. As later passed and sent to Amtrak to 22,000 miles of rail in order to stem its massive financial losses.

Rep. Albett Gore, Jr., D-Tenn., the sponsor, said that due to shortages of gasoline, passenger train service should be kept intact for at least another year.

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., an opponent, said that in preserving Amtrak's least-productive routes the House invites the failure of the entire system.

Members voting "yea" wanted to keep Amtrak at its present size during the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Reps. David Bonior, D-Mount Clemens, William Ford, D-Taylor, William Brodhead, D-Detroit and James Blanchard, D-Pleasant Ridge voted "yea".

Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth voted "nay." Rep. William Broomfield, R-Bloomfield Twp.

Graham tames 'Monster' for PGA crown

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

The "Monster" has finally been conquered, but not before giving PGA champion David Graham one last licking

Graham won the 61st-annual PGA championship at Bloomfield Township's Oakland Hills Country Club yesterday by sinking a nine-foot birdie putt to defeat a frustrated Ben Crenshaw on the third hole of a suddendeath playoff.

Graham earned $60,000 for his firstplace finish. Crenshaw took home $40,000

The 33-year-old Australian made a mockery of the mushy, wet greens and short rough at Oakland Hills until the final hole. He breezed along in course-record fashion with seven birdies on his final round before double-bogeying the par-4, 459-yard 18th to force the playoffs.

Graham and Crenshaw finished regulation play with identical eight-underpar scores of 272. This was the third straight year the PGA Championship has been decided by a playoff. It marked the first time in Oakland Hills' history, though, that the winning score of the four-round tournament was under par.

Graham sunk pressure-packed putts of 17 and eight feet on the first two playoff holes to stay alive in the championship. He then saw Crenshaw bogey the par-3, 202-yard third hole before calmly sinking his birdie putt for his first major title and only his fourth victory since joining the PGA tour in 1971.

"I felt like I played the first 16 holes of the golf course as well as I've played," Graham said. "I knew at the beginning it was going to be a long day. I knew I had to make a lot of birdies, and I knew it would be tough when Ben birdied the first three holes.

"I thought I was in the tournament when I started. I knew when I birdied the first two holes that I was in the thick of it."

Crenshaw, a 27-year-old Texan, seems to be making a habit of finishing second in recent action. He has finished runner-up in his last four of six tournaments.

I was fortunate to get in the playoff in the first place," Crenshaw said. "Hats off to David — when you double-bogey at 18 and still end up with a 65 in a major championship, that's one great round.

"I don't like second place worth a damn."

Graham started the final round at three under par, four strokes behind the third-round leader and eventual third-place finisher, Rex Caldwell. In addition to his first two birdies, Graham birdied the seventh, eighth, 10th, 11th and 15th holes. He missed another birdie by two inches on the ninth hole.

Crenshaw, the second-round leader, entered the final round in second place only, two strokes behind Caldwell. Crenshaw was erratic all day, finishing with six birdies and three bogeys for a 67.

Caldwell, the Cinderella golfer of the tournament, played steady golf all day but never threatened Graham and Crenshaw after the two playoff participants passed him on the leader board. Caldwell finished the final round with a one-over-par 71 for a four-round total of 273 — seven under par and one stroke off the lead. Caldwell's third-place finish earned the Texan $25,000.

which lead to his victory in the 1951 U.S. Open — wasn't the challenge to the professionals as many thought it would be.

Nine players finished with sub-par rounds. No player has ever finished with sub-par rounds in the five previous major championships at Oakland (F-1C)★1C

In fact, many PGA officials were very upset over the numerous sub-par round turned in — an uncharacteristic feature of Oakland Hills or any PGA championship course. The wet greens, plagued by constant rain all week long, played much slower than usual. The rough was also very short for a major championship.

Tournament officials were not upset with the local turnout, however, as a new, all-time PGA attendance record of 145,102 fans — including 35,569 yesterday and 34,368 Saturday — was set, surpassing the old mark set in 1972 at Oakland Hills.

Local favorites Al Mergert and D.A. Weibring both failed to make the cut after the first two rounds were completed on Friday.

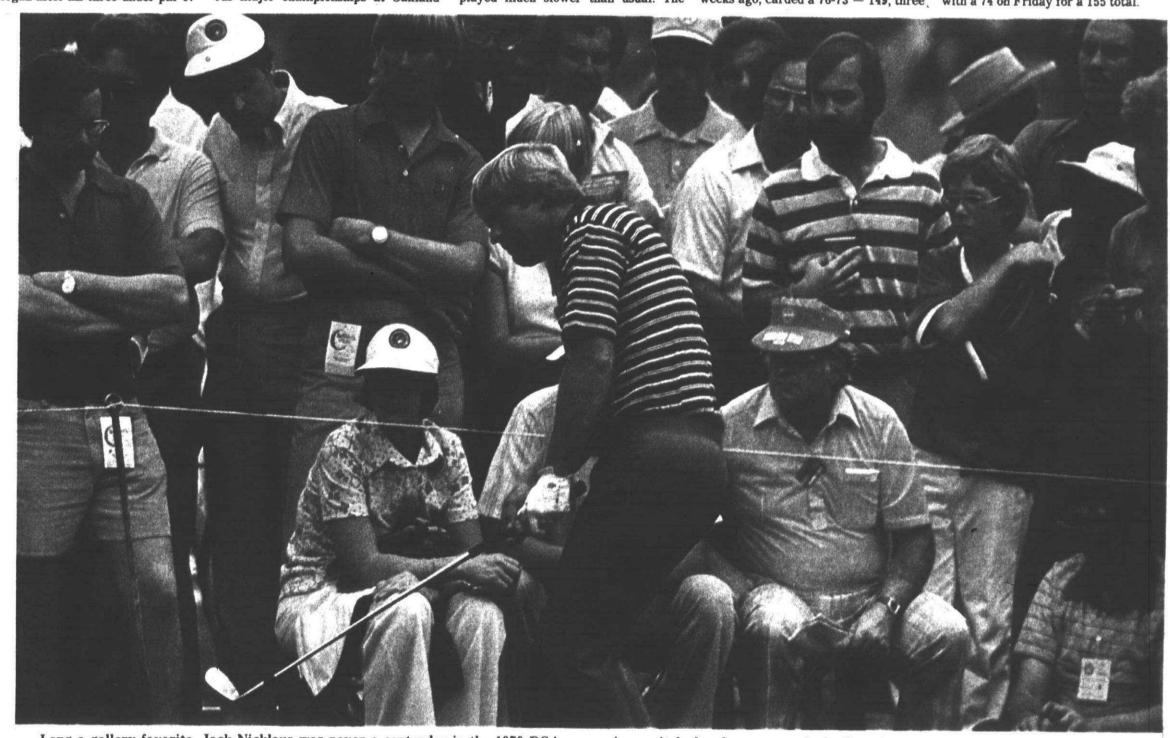

Birmingham's Mengert, the host pro at Oakland Hills, shot a 76 on Thursday but came back with a one-over-par 71 on Friday, missing the cut of 146 by only one stroke. Weibring, a former assistant at the Red Run Golf Club and winner of the Quad Cities Open two weeks ago, carded a 76-73 — 149, three strokes from the cut.

Tom Watson, the tour's leading money winner this year with $387,386, established himself as one of the championship favorites after his opening-round 66. He entered yesterday's action four strokes off the pace. He shot himself out of the tournament, however, when he triple-bogeyed the par-4, 413-yard 11th hole.

Jack Nicklaus, a pre-tournament favorite, turned into the forgotten man of this major event. He made the cut by three stokes, but shot an eight-over-par 78 Saturday. He finished well back with a 14-over-par 294.

Arnold Palmer experienced a horrendous first round, shooting an 11over-par 81, which all but knocked him out of the championship. He came back with a 74 on Friday for a 155 total.

Long a gallery favorite, Jack Nicklaus was never a contender in the 1979 PGA championship. But the crowds still watched in awe as the long-time big money winner pitched a short approach. On Saturday, when Nicklaus shot a 78 and was barely part of the action, his presence still drew intense attention. (Staff photo by Steve Cantrell)

Graham gets reprieve

Friends battle in playoff thriller broil like

By MARTY BUDNER

Ben Crenshaw is an ardent admirer of David Graham.

Crenshaw, who lost the PGA Championship to Graham in a sudden-death playoff yesterday afternoon at Oakland Hills, is used to playing with the 33-year-old Australian.

"We're very good friends. I've played a lot of practice rounds with David," said Crenshaw, who has now finished second in four of his last five outings. "We've helped each other out a lot. It really seemed strange that we were walking down the course together in the playoff."

Crenshaw was awarded the opportunity to play for the championship when Graham double-bogeyed the 18th green. Graham went on to the last hole in regulation action with a two-stroke lead.

However, Graham's tee-shot went off the fairway, and his second shot landed in the gallery over the green. Graham missed his chip shot to the hole and eventually scored a double-bogey — his worst single-hole tally of the tournament.

In playoff action both players parred the first hole and birdied the second. It was Graham's consistent putter which kept the playoff alive when he canned two long, pressure puts.

The par 3, 202-yard third hole finally determined the champion.

Crenshaw's first shot landed in a bunker and the second stayed on the green, but slithered well beyond the hole. His first putt circled off the hole and Crenshaw finished with a bogey Meanwhile, Graham's first shot landed on the green just a few feet from the hole. He easily sank his next shot for his first major professional golf championship victory in eight years on the tour.

"I THOUGHT I had him on the first hole and the second, but he (Graham) just made the putts," said Crenshaw. "Finally, I just hit a bad shot on the third hole and that was it.

"I felt like I had it, but he had a good feel for the putter all day," he said.

It was Graham's fourth PGA tour triumph. He had previously won the Cleveland Open (1972) in a playoff over Bruce Devlin, and the Westchester Classic and American Golf Classic in 1976

With his $60,000 victory in the PGA, his money total for 1979 now stands at $133,209. He has won $658,302 as a professional

"The turning point was when I birdied seven and eight, then again at number 10," said Graham, a Del Ray Beach, Fla., resident, "I was in control of everything I was doing. I don't think the whole situation really hit me until I walked onto the 18th tee.

"The tee shot from the 18th was absolutely the worst shot I had all week. I had no idea where the ball finished up. I had a good lie, but I didn't know exactly how far it was to the green. And there were so many people out there I couldn't get a good angle to the green.

"I used a 6-iron, but I should have used a 7. I tried to get too cute and carry the ball on to the green. I should have just hit it short of the green. When I hit it I thought the ball was going into the clubbours?"

As it turned out, Graham went into the clubhouse a winner.

Golf fans broil like lobsters

By BOB GROSS

Golf fans are like lobsters — they tend to cluster at certain points, turn red when the heat hits them, then usually end up with their tails either broiled or steamed.

But unlike lobsters, golf fans have the collective temperment of Job they put up with more inconveniences for viewing sake than any other group of sports fans.

Why did 145,102 persons attend the PGA last week and put up with so many inconveniences when they could have stayed home and watched the championship on televi-

"It's the thrill of being there," said Walter Brooks of Lansing. "You know you can watch any sport better on the tube — it's just the thrill of being there.

"We got pretty close to Jack Nicklaus," he added, "and that's worth it."

Golf personalities are a big part of a tournament's lure. Sue Atwood of Franklin said, "If you play golf and enjoy the game, it's the experience of being here and seeing the people involved . . . being here and seeing them firsthand."

Atwood said her favorite players were Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Andy Bean.

Steve Thomas of Birmingham said, "I don't think the feel of a tournament is as vibrant when you're sitting there in the living room.

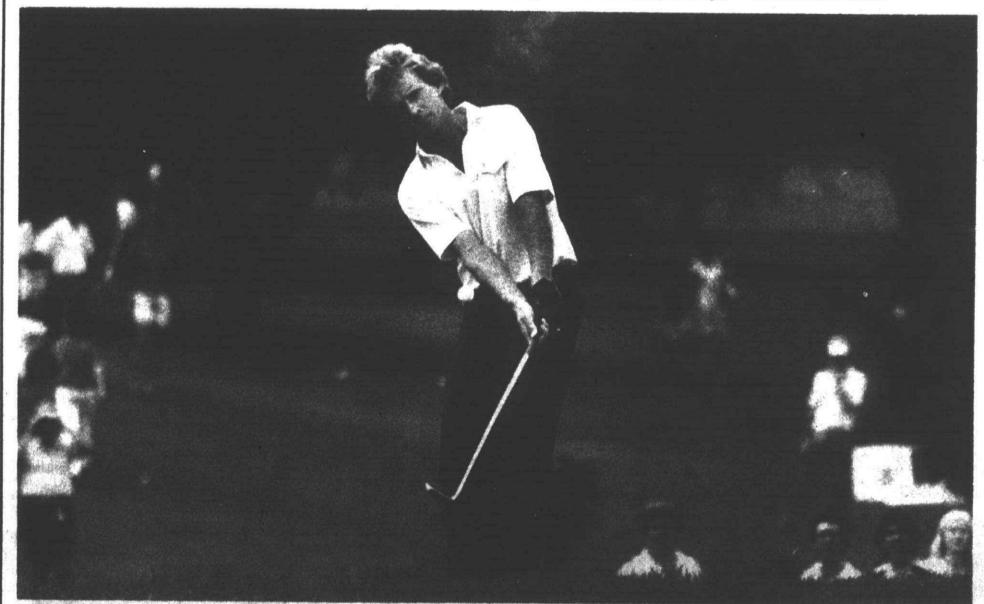

"This is the first time I've been to a golf tournament," he continued. "It's real exciting — I think I'm hooked."

While most fans put up with minor inconveniences, such as people standing in front of them, sunburn and rain, at least 60 encountered more serious problems.

Dr. Paul Trimmer of Bloomfield Hills, in charge of the first-aid trailer, said his crew treated 60 patients starting with Monday's practice round. Injuries included allergic reactions to insect bites, blisters and a fractured dislocation of an elbow.

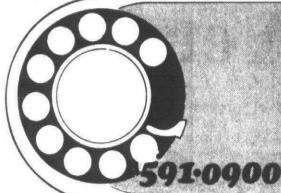

"We haven't had any real bad injuries," said Dr. Trimmer. He noted that his staff treated 14

He noted that his staff treated 14 people for lacerations resulting from having been struck by golf balls.

Texan Rex Caldwell chips the ball up to the green during PGA action yesterday. Caldewll was the third-round leader, but his 71 in the final round dropped him to third place behind champion David Graham and runner-up Ben Crenshaw. (Staff photo by Steve Cantrell)
