Trailer tenants air grievances

By CAROLINE PRICE

The Michigan Mobile Home Commission will hold a public hearing Nov. 12 to hear complaints of local mobile home owners.

A site has not been selected as yet for the occasion.

The hearing is in response to the busloads of park residents who took their grievances to state officials in Lansing last week.

The residents arrived in the state capitol Thursday in chartered buses to attend a Michigan Mobile Home Commission meeting and present their problems.

Most of the mobile home owners making the trip were residents at the Royal Holiday or Holiday Estates parks in Canton.

The request for the commission hearing was one of a bevy of demands made by park residents and their sympathizers.

The tenants submitted a list of grievances and demands to the commission during the meeting.

THE MAJOR COMPLAINT appears to be about recent rent increases — as much as 40 percent in some cases — instituted by Sheldon Futurnick at his parks.

Futurnick is part-owner of both parks, as well as three others in the metropolitan area. He is also an owner of Nationwide Mobile Homes, Inc., a dealership.

Other grievances stem from allegations that families are forced to move from some parks when their children reach the age of 5 years.

The tenants called for a full-scale investigation of Futurnick and suspension of his license to operate a mobile home park.

The group also demanded that the state hold the parks in receivership until the investigation is completed and that a rent control board be established.

The tenants also requested that Futurnick, an attorney, be disbarred.

Gary Roberts, a candidate in 1978 for township trustee, recently became involved in the mobile home owner issue and was responsible for chartering the busses to Lansing.

FUTURNICK ATTENDED the mobile home commission meeting in Lansing. He said he believed the tenant activism was stirred up by Roberts and C.J. Marshall to further their political ambitions.

Roberts was an unsuccessful candidate for Canton Township Trustee. Marshall is president of Holiday Estates Mobile Home Owner's Association.

Futurnick said the charges levied by the group are unfounded.

President of the Michigan Mobile Home Owner's Association Robert Myers agreed, saying that political ambitions are behind much of the mobile home owner unrest. But he said that some of the complaints made about Futurnick were legitimate.

Myers, a former Canton trustee, has instigated two lawsuits against Futurnick.

One was decided against the park owner in circuit court, and is currently on appeal. That lawsuit concerned the practice of charging a $1,000 fee to persons who sold mobile homes that were to remain on the lot at the Royal Holiday park.

According to Futurnick, at one time trailers were not allowed to remain on the lot when they were sold. "We were thinking that rather than get the park outdated we would have new stuff in there," Futurnick said.

"But the first two people to sell their homes found they could get more money by leaving the home on the lot, so they offered us the money and we accepted."

Futurnick maintains that the money received in fees enabled him to keep rents low. He said the rent was not raised at Royal Holiday for about five years.

THE SECOND lawsuit, still in court, involved the practice of having the mobile home owner pay a $525 water and sewer hook-up fee that Canton Township charges on a one-time basis for each lot.

Futurnick said that by having the individual pay the fee, rents could be kept lower. He maintains that rents at his park, even after the hike, are lower than at comparable parks in the area.

The park owner refutes the claim that mobile homes are improperly installed on lots too small for them, as alleged by Marshall.

When fall colors reach their deepest hues, the ducks begin plans to make another journey south. These ducks settled down in Plymouth for a brief respite in the "frog pond" across Hines Drive from Wilcox Lake.

Fall's color artist brightens landscape

The brilliant color of autumn is ascending upon the Plymouth-Canton community for the annual performance of nature's landscape artist.

With the visit of Jack Frost just around the corner, residents will want to soak in the color soon before the reds, oranges, yellows and browns all turn to white.

On a recent Sunday afternoon Observer Photographer Gary Caskey took a color tour of his own through the Plymouth-Canton community to share some of the fall beauty he discovered with our readers. We hope it's enough to whet your appetite to take a drive of your own.

And there's lots of color to be seen through Edward Hines Park along Wilcox, Phoenix and Newburgh lakes. Or out in the country, up and down such roads as Proctor, Denton, Napier and Ridge in Canton Township and along Napier and Ridge in western Plymouth Township.

The rural tour adds the touch of bright orange pumpkins laying amongst dead vines, fields of corn stalks turned tan, orchards strewn with fallen apples, pheasants skirting for cover.

The special touch of fall the countryside provides can be accessed easily by taking Canton Road south to Proctor and heading west or by taking Ann Arbor Road or Ann Arbor Trail west of town to Napier, Ridge or Powell and then picking up N. Territorial Road for a picturesque drive through Salem Township or out to the Hudson Mills-Pinckney area.

And for a brand new experience, a ride you've never taken before, wait until this Wednesday when M-14 is scheduled to open and take a drive along the new freeway toward Ann Arbor, returning via Ann Arbor Road.

Easy access to M-14 can be gained either at Sheldon Road or where I-275 and the Jeffries intersect just north of Plymouth Road.

The landscape is ready for those who appreciate fall's beauty. But don't wait long. Nature is about to bring out her next canvas.

Staff photos by Gary Caskey

Mushrooms, red berries and fallen leaves found in the woods also would make a nice centerpiece for entertaining.

Ready, set, time to zip down new M-14 freeway

Trick or treat.

Well, hopefully there are no tricks involved. And it should be a treat for travelers when the new M-14 freeway opens two days from now — on Halloween.

The road, connecting Plymouth area communities to Ann Arbor, will be ready Wednesday for the spinning wheels to hit the pavement.

The opening will be marked by a traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony. Activities will begin at noon on the eastbound lanes of the M-14 and Beck Road interchange.

The freeway will be open to traffic about two hours later when barricades along the route are removed.

Construction on the project, which cost $34 million, was begun in 1976, although planning has spanned more than a decade. According to Warren Cox, senior district engineer to the Michigan Department of Transportation, one of the earliest and most comprehensive reports dates back to 1967.

The new freeway is just north of the existing M-14 highway. Completion of construction, which involved six separate contractors, has been long awaited by area residents looking for a more direct and quicker route west toward Ann Arbor.

The new route is expected to relieve traffic on Eight Mile and Ford roads and on I-94.

THE NEW freeway extends six miles on either side of the Washtenaw-Wayne County line, connecting with existing M-14 at Griswold Road on the west and I-275 northeast of Plymouth on the east.

It is six lanes wide between I-275 and the Beck Road interchange and four lanes along the remainder of the route. It has interchanges at Voorheis, Goffredson, Beck and Sheldon roads, as well as 23 bridge structures.

Federal, state and local officials have been invited to the Wednesday celebration, which is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

To add to the festivities, school children from Plymouth, Northville and Ann Arbor have been invited to share in the presentation. In the past few weeks, Plymouth schoolchildren have been asked to prepare projects that commemorate the event with a Halloween theme.

Welcoming visiting dignitaries will be Plymouth Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert, master of ceremonies. Rev. Sam Stout, of the First Methodist Church of Plymouth, will deliver the invocation.

The public is invited. Cox said the freeway's opening date was set back from earlier this year because of construction difficulties. A cement shortage and soil problems added to the delay.

COX SAID some "water problems" between Northville Road and Schoolcraft Road required massive soil replacement with sand to better accommodate the road bed. This additional grading work set back the job of the concrete contractor.

The stretch involved six different contractors including: the Holloway

Construction Co., C.A. Hull Co., Walter Toebe and Co., M&B Contracting Corp. and Eisenhour Construction Co.

Final touches, involving the placement of directional signs, were installed by the Spartan Sign Co.

Federal Highway Administration funds provided about 73 percent of the expense with the remainder coming from State Department of Transportation funds.

"A number of people are looking forward to this freeway," Cox said. "It will provide more access to developments in and around Ann Arbor from Plymouth, Northville and the Livonia area."

Greater access to the University of Michigan will be realized by more than football enthusiasts, he added, referring to those area residents who take advantage of the school's educational programming and cultural offerings.

Although the freeway runs about three or four miles from Canton Township, Cox also said it should provide relief to heavily congested Ford Road, which runs through the township.

Rape suspects arraigned

An 18-year-old woman's attempt to help people whom she thought were stranded motorists resulted in her abduction and rape last Wednesday night.

The Dearborn woman was rescued in Canton Township when police heard her screams. They were investigating a car parked in a subdivision under construction, north of Palmer and west of Liley, at the time.

Three Detroit men have been arrested and turned over to Dearborn police for arraignment in the incident.

Jose Santana, 23; Leon White, 19; and Edward Patrick, 27, were arraigned Friday in 19th District Court before Judge Virginia Sobotka on charges of kidnapping, armed robbery and first degree criminal sexual conduct.

All three are being held at Wayne County Jail on $100,000 cash bond pending preliminary examination Nov. 2.

According to Canton police, the woman said she stopped to help the men at Warren and Southfield. The men allegedly grabbed her and took her car, eventually arriving at the subdivision.

When Ptl. Dave LeBlanc and Ptl. John MacDiarmid pulled up to the parked car about 11:45 that night, they said two of the men jumped out of the car and began running; while the third sped away in the car with the woman still inside.

The driver was apprehended after a high speed chase through Canton. Ptl. Cathy Peteres was called to the scene and apprehended the men who escaped on foot.

Short Takes

Sweet safety

Trick or Treat can be loads of fun for youngsters, but parents will breathe easier knowing that all the goodies collected are safe to eat. With that in mind, the Canton Police Department is once again holding a candy check from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m., Oct. 31 at the Cherry Hill fire station. Officers will run candy through a metal detector to make sure nothing has been planted in the treats. A parent or guardian must be on hand to sign a permission slip before the candy can be checked. Police said no foreign objects were found in Halloween candy last year in Canton.

More Halloween treats

While out trick or treating this Wednesday, don't forget to take the kiddies by the home of Linda and Richard LaBell on Maidstone in the Sunflower subdivision. The LaBells will have their house decorated to please the most discriminating ghoulie. In addition, there will be a magic show. The whole idea of the party is to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. You make your contributions in a goldfish bowl on the LaBell's front porch.

Golfing bargains

Interested in picking up a used golf cart for a minimum of $300? How about a Toro three gang trim mower for a minimum of $500? This equipment and more is available from Canton Township, which is selling used items from the golf course. Anyone can submit a sealed bid to the clerk's office until Nov. 12 at noon. To get the exact number and specifications of the equipment, pick up a copy of the invitation to bid at township hall or call Maria Falkiewicz at 397-1000, ext. 202.

Army drop-boxes moved

The drop-boxes for contributions to the Plymouth Salvation Army, located for years in the Kroeger's parking lot, have been moved to the corps' parking lot at Fairground and Ann Arbor Trail. The move is being made to keep the area around the drop-boxes tidy and to reduce stealing. Contributed items are picked up and re-sold at Salvation Army Stores. The proceeds are used to support homeless men and the Army's adult rehabilitation program, a regional alcohol and substance abuse treatment effort for men and women. The proceeds also are used to house some 400 persons in the Detroit metropolitan area and to provide food, a monthly allowance, job training and counseling. Some proceeds also are used to help indigent families in the Plymouth-Canton community. Lt. Bill Harfoot, corps commander, advises anyone who wishes to donate valuable items to call the local Army headquarters and ask for pick up. (Staff photo)

Cardiovascular class is scheduled

The second session of fall classes offered by the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA will begin soon.

Among the special features, beyond the normal enrichment offerings, are cardiovascular fitness, tumbling and floor hockey.

The classes are three, four, six or seven weeks long. Nov. 1 is the earliest starting date.

Residents may register with the YMCA at its offices above Armbruster's Bootery on Main Street or by phoning 453-2904.

CARDIOVASCULAR fitness will meet from 7:30 to 9 p.m. each Thursday for six weeks starting Nov. 8.

Floor hockey for youngsters and a tumbling class are scheduled at various schools immediately after school on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. The four-week programs will begin Nov. 5.

In addition, a six week tumbling class, meeting at various times on Saturdays will begin Nov. 3.

The next session of Kreatives, the YMCA enrichment activity for preschoolers, will begin Nov. 5 and run for six weeks. Times will be from 9 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

DANCE CLASSES, meeting for seven weeks starting Nov. 5, include:

A trim class, 8:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays; pre-ballet at 10:30 a.m. or 1 p.m. on Wednesdays; ballet at various times Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays; tap dancing at various times on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays; jazz dancing at various times on Mondays and Wednesdays; and creative movement at various times Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Beginning ballroom will be offered from 8:45-9:45 p.m. on Wednesdays for three weeks starting Dec. 5. Disco lessons will be offered for four weeks from 8:45-9:45 p.m. on Wednesdays beginning Nov. 7.

Fitness Fun is being offered for six weeks at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. on Mondays and Fridays beginning Nov. 5.

Other six week activities are: baton at 5:30p.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Thursdays; basic drawing from 1-2 p.m. on Thursdays; and calligraphy from noon to 1 p.m. These classes begin Nov. 8. A six-week group piano class, 4:30-5:30 p.m.

Tuesdays, will begin Nov. 13.

A four-week mini macrame class will be offered from 4-5 p.m. on Thursdays starting Nov. 1.

Orville Tungate Deputy clerk

Stephen Boak, 37, took a position in government 12 years ago "because of the security involved."

"It's just not working that way in the county right now."

Boak is a man with a family, "substantial" house payments in Plymouth Township and car payments on two autos. What he doesn't have right now is a paycheck.

Boak holds a top position in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office. He's chief of operations, controlling the office's day-to-day activities.

Although he said his years of seniority will "probably" cushion the threat of layoff, he added: "They've said they'll layoff everyone and supervisors aren't exempt."

Boak said he's been dipping into savings to tide his family over, but said that will soon stop.

"I know I can do it now but if we go longer than the first of December it's going to be a bleak Christmas for all of us."

His wife, Sandra, recently took part-time teaching job.

"It was prompted by a combination of two things. Things started rumbling around here in August and this is the first year both kids are in school all day. The immediacy was prompted by the talk of payless paydays."

SINCE HE was not paid last Friday, Boak has looked into borrowing money (at 12 percent) from the Wayne County Credit Union.

"You don't have to pay it back until the checks start coming in," he explained. "But when they do start coming in you're still out that interest payment."

Boak is also bothered by the county's failure to pay employees' cost of living, which was expected this month.

"They talk of deferring that until next year. But Social Security will be taken out of that month, which also penalizes me. It's money I'll never recover."

Boak said no plans have surfaced as yet as to the effects of layoffs in the prosecutor's office. He said when 25 positions were cut last year the department filed suit against the board of commissioners and an appellate court has affirmed their stand.

As for today, however, entertainment expenses were the first to go in the family budget. That means Saturday nights are spent at home.

"The most depressing aspect of this is the political maneuverings going on. I don't see the situation getting any better next year. But I do see the same thing starting earlier next year. Instead of October, it'll begin in July."

Very few employees have had to face the task of working without pay — at least without any immediate hopes of getting a paycheck.

But thousands of Wayne County employees, including many in the Plymouth-Canton community, have faced payless paydays in recent weeks.

Some faced their first payless payday Friday. Others, who were not paid a couple weeks ago, learned Friday they would get reimbursed — with Medicaid monies owned the county by the state.

Because Wayne County is insolvent, employees face the prospect of working from day to day wondering if a paycheck will await them that week or the next.

To find out what it's like to face layoff and payless paydays, the Observer talked with residents of Plymouth and Canton who are employed — at all levels — by the County of Wayne.

And each one has a special story to tell. A single person will try to "hang on" for awhile because of a moral obligation felt towards patients at the county hospital. Married employees with a family, though, face serious economic problems.

Our reports have found some wives who have returned to work, families who are altering their life-styles, and employees who are draining savings from the credit union or are talking with their bankers about the home mortgage.

Wayne County — the third largest county in the U.S. — now becomes the first to miss a payday since the Great Depression a half century ago.

Asked if he has considered employment elsewhere, he said: "You always think of things like that in (a) crisis but it would be difficult for me to pick up and leave 12 years of seniority and a pension that is vested."

"Of course, sometimes one doesn't have a choice."

William Joyner County commissioner

Wayne County Commissioner Bill Joyner has been delegated to villain status in the eyes of many a county employee who saw a payless payday last week.

As a member of the board, he shares responsibility for the county's current financial mess.

But while attempting to solve the county's financial crisis, Joyner must cope with a personal financial crisis.

He isn't getting a paycheck either. Joyner is one of the few commissioners who relies solely on the salary of the elected position for income. Base pay is $16,200. Cost of living brings the annual income to about $19,500.

WHEN HE was elected a little more than a year ago, he vowed to resign from his position in the advertising and public relations field and devote his full-time efforts to the job of commissioner.

Now, he isn't sure if he can continue working without pay.

"We're living off my wife's income now," says Joyner. "She's a part-time schoolteacher with an annual salary of $7,000. I may very well be forced into seeking other employment."

The commissioner said he does not want to go back on his promise to devote full time to his elected office.

"The district I represent has 175,000 people. How can I do them justice if I'm working at something else?"

JOYNER ALSO is concerned about the effect on his volunteer work. Both he and wife, Paula, are members of the Jaycee and Jaycette organizations.

Both spend considerable time and money traveling throughout the state on weekends to work with chapters of the service clubs. Mrs. Joyner was recently appointed director of the walk for mankind that raises funds for Project Concern.

The couple receives minimal reimbursement for their expenses. Joyner says he has not even asked for reimbursement for the past nine months.

He also isn't receiving the $100 week reimbursement for commissioners' expenses.

"But I still drive 60 miles back and forth from downtown Detroit each day and pay for parking."

RESIGNING from office is a difficult alternative. As an elected official, he cannot receive unemployment compensation. Resigning most likely would damage his political career, because it could be construed as bailing out when the chips are down.

Major banks are considering the legal implications of giving county employees cash in exchange for promissory notes and collecting from the county later. But Joyner says he is unsure if the provision would apply to commissioners.

Andy Pruner · Sheriff's deputy

As of Friday, Wayne County Sheriff Deputy Andy Pruner wasn't sure if he was going to be paid or when he would be laid off.

These things worry him, to be sure, but they don't seem to dim his buoyant personality.

Pruner, 40, has been with the department for nine years and is assigned to Plymouth Township road patrol. The Plymouth Township resident is single, which puts him in a better position to deal with the paycheck uncertainties than some of his co-workers.

"Oh, I'll get by. I can use my savings and lose the interest on them or borrow money and pay interest — either way I'll be paying to keep my job."

Pruner isn't happy about that prospect, but says he has no intention of looking for another job. "First, I've got my age against me and second, I have all that time invested in the county."

He knows other deputies who may be forced to find any kind of work available in order to keep going. "There have been a lot of layoffs during the past two years. Some of the officers who were laid off and just hired back haven't had time to recover financially."

Although Pruner says he will be able to wait out the rough time expected to last through December, he foresees making some changes in his lifestyle.

"I like to go to movies, but at the current prices, unless I can come across some theater-goer special, I'll be staying home more or just going to visit friends. I guess we'll be spending more time watching TV at home and having a beer than going out to the bar."

Pruner, with a grin, added, "I'll have more time to read the latest news in the Observer, which I usually read before the News or Free Press."

The county's financial problems have meant more to Pruner than simply not knowing from where the next paycheck will come.

"This really set me back. All the time I worked for the government, I always thought it was the maximum in job security."

"As it turns out, after 183 years of serving the people, the county has gone broke. It's kind of shattering."

DEPUTY ANDY PRUNER

Maurice Roache · Planning head

Maurice Roache doesn't know if his job will even exist after Wayne County's financial mess is finally straightened out.

Like other Wayne County employees, Roache did not receive his two-week paycheck on Oct. 19 for work he performs as head of the Wayne County Planning department. He does not know if his name will be included on a layoff list which the county is compiling.

But unlike many other county employees, Roache is faced with the possibility that his job will be eliminated.

County auditors have recommended the elimination of the entire planning department as a cost-cutting measure.

Roache, 45, of Plymouth Township, joined the county's planning staff 12 years ago.

As the major breadwinner for a wife and three children, Roache is understandably concerned about the recommendation and the number of paychecks he will miss.

BUT FOR NOW, Roache is taking life one day at a time. He continues to come to work each weekday morning like the other six members of department.

Roache said he has considered looking for another job, but hasn't actively sought another position yet.

Although his wife, Margo, substitute teaches in Plymouth-Canton Schools, Roache said her paychecks are sporadic. She has talked about seeking a temporary job.

"We're almost totally dependent

A lonely swan

Wonder why there now is only one swan in residence on Phoenix Lake these days? The lone swan lost his mate in August when she was shot and killed by someone with a .22 rifle. His first mate suffered the same fate two years ago. At that time Hargrave Garrison, who lives on the hill overlooking the lake, found another swan. Swans will mate a second time if they know their first mate is dead, says Garrison. When the ice freezes over the small body of water, the swan will be safe in winter quarters until spring when he may return for a lone-some sojourn through the summer. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Baptist school closing sought

By TERI BANAS

A state fire marshal is pursuing civil charges to shut down Plymouth's Central Baptist Temple School while its administrator-pastor is awaiting trial on criminal charges.

Dr. Stanley Jenkins, who runs the kindergarten through 12th grade school for 36 students on Church Street, will appear Nov. 8 before Judge Dunbar Davis in Plymouth's 35th District Court.

Jenkins, who was charged with a two count violation of the state building code, pleaded not guilty at an Oct. 22 arraignment before Davis.

Since the one-room school facility opened its doors to K-12 instruction for the first time this fall, Jenkins has been charged with the misdemeanor, which carries a $500 fine and/or 90 days imprisonment.

The misdemeanor cites the school's failure to obtain prior approval for its opening from the state school superintendent and the state fire marshal.

The charge also cites a failure to provide fire resistant material for the building's floors and roof.

A warrant was issued by the Wayne County Prosecutor's office Oct. 19. Jenkins, while not arrested, appeared for arraignment the following Monday and was released without bond.

MEANWHILE, State Fire Marshal Sgt. Walter Davenport said he has the authority under the same State School Building Law Act 306 to instigate a closing of the school on civil infractions.

Under such civil actions, the property owners could be named in the proceedings along with the church's officers (Jenkins).

Davenport added he will contact the county prosecutor this week to "get this thing moving."

"It doesn't make sense to prosecute this man and let it (the school) run," he added.

Jenkins has secured legal counsel from the Gibbs and Craze Law firm in Cleveland. The partnership represents Christian schools throughout the country.

Jenkins has maintained that his congregation and he are just as concerned about safety for the students as state officials. However, Jenkins doesn't believe state building codes should apply to privately run schools.

He said he is ready to "test the Constitution of the United States" to maintain his ministry's right to provide education to children without state strings.

The school's curriculum is based on national Christian school programming and is instilled with the teachings of the Bible in all courses. Only two of the four teachers have received state certification.

Wayne County Prosecutor Robert Sage filed the warrant against Jenkins after the school had been operating for some six weeks because he wanted to give the administrator a chance to bring the school up to code.

Mobile home owners get hearing has not charged Futurnick with any violations, although several complaints are under investigation.

Futurnick insists the rent hikes are the result of economic necessity, not a retaliation against tenants and the Michigan Mobile Home Association for making complaints and filing lawsuits.

MYERS SAID the hikes are retaliatory. "I think the increase is unjustifiable in terms of inflation. A raise of 40 percent or more is price gouging," Myers said.

Myers said the hike should have been made on a gradual basis, especially in Royal Holiday Park, where residents are predominantly senior citizens.

He does not support the rent control board suggested by the tenant group. "I would rather see the legislation suggested by Attorney General Frank Kelley, which says a landlord must bargain collectively with a tenant's association for rent increases," he said.

Meanwhile, the Canton Township

Board of Trustees has already scheduled a special meeting on the issue at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the township hall. The Board may set up a task force to investigate.

The commission hearing follows a series of meetings among the various mobile home interests. For example, Marshall's group met with township officials two weeks ago in a private session to discuss the charges. Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert has also met with Futurnick to discuss what could be done to solve the tenant complaints.

Pleased with Pursell

Editor:

Congratulations to Carl Pursell for formally soliciting the opinions of women on "women's issues" at a recent local gathering.

We are pleased that Carl is in the forefront of elected representatives to the U.S. Congress who are at least attempting to assess the needs of 51.6 percent of their constituency, and then, hopefully, to push legislation to meet those needs.

Double kudos to Margaret Miller who made Carl's meetings in the tri-county area he serves the subject of her Oct. 18 editorial.

Because credit should be given where credit is due, let it be noted that the stimulus for Pursell's meetings (as well as those of state Sen. Doug Ross in a neighboring district) came from the National Organization (NOW) which has been lobbying for a Homemaker's (Women's) Bill of Rights for several years now, before a committee of the U.S. House of Representatives about the need for legislation protecting displaced homemakers, women in midlife, women in poverty, etc. It is expected that the 96th Congress will consider the legislation proposed.

Anyone interested in securing a copy of Ellie's testimony and the suggested Bill of Rights may secure it from our local NOW chapter.

Gene Darrow Hospital storeroom manager

"It's a difficult thing to work without pay. But the county has been good to me in the past, and I feel a moral obligation towards the patients, so I'll hang in there as long as I can," said Gene Darrow, 44 of Canton.

Darrow moved into a new home in Franklin-Palmer Estates last August. He faced his first payless payday last Friday and was looking towards an expected layoff recall.

"I can get by for awhile because I'm single, but it's very hard for younger employees with families who have to put food on the table," h Darrow said. "I agree with the governor that the county needs reorganizing — the county's been mismanaged for years. But this is hurting the little man — the employee and the taxpayer who is going to lose some services."

DARROW HAS worked for the county for 16 years.

Although he has never been laid off, during a county financial pinch a couple years ago he was "bumped" out of his job in the commissary at Wayne County General Hospital (Eloise) in Westland.

Now Darrow is running the store-room at the county hospital.

"I went to work for the county in 1964. It's almost funny, but at the time I considered working in the automotive field. But I figured working for the auto companies would be bad because of the continual layoffs. So I decided to work for the county where I'd earn less money but have job security."

Although Darrow says he'll "get by" for awhile, he is worried about other employees who can't.

"A bread-winner who is the only one in the family working just can't agree to work on promissory notes. He's better off to go on unemployment."

"I know of one lady who wants to work and is concerned about the patients. But she lives on the east side of Detroit and drives to work each day. You can imagine that takes a lot of gasoline. And you can't put gas in your car when you aren't getting a paycheck," he commented.

WHEN LOOKING AT the near future, Darrow said reorganization must come.

"Right now the county is being run by 27 people downtown and nobody has to answer to a single person. The commissioners can't even agree on an agenda for a meeting, let alone a plan for reorganization."

"I've got a pretty good understanding of why this happened to the county, and I'm not resentful," Roache said. "I think the people I associate with share that attitude."

"The personal travail of having to juggle my own expenses is something I'd prefer not doing. But those are the facts, and we'll just have to get along."

ROACHE IS hoping that the Wayne County Board of Commissioners will not accept the recommendation of auditors to eliminate the planning department.

According to Roache, the department is responsible for the review of township zoning matters, the review of federal grant applications and the creation of countywide plans for parks, industry and other on my paycheck," Roache said of his family, which includes three children, ages 15, 13 and 5.

But the promissory notes which the county is issuing cannot pay the bills.

Roache considers himself lucky that the two family cars are paid off. But there are still the home mortgage and utility bills.

"I'm going to have to live off my savings and juggle my bills to the best of my ability. It's quite obvious that this Christmas will be a very slim one, if this continues," he said.

Despite the uncertain status of the planning department and the first round of payless paydays, Roache said the morale of his workers is not that poor. He reports no problem

Six chairs are arranged around the raised platform in Field Elementary's media center for the UNICEF Readathon. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Scott Dixon, 7, reads about hot rods during his stint.

Every 15 minutes readers rotate on the chairs with the student who just finishes placing a token in the goldfish bowl. Field hopes to raise $360 for UNICEF through the readathon, as well as encourage students to take a great interest in reading.

Readathon for UNICEF is staged by Field School

Skatathons and walkathons in recent years have become popular events to raise money for needy causes.

Now a new twist has been added to that method.

Field Elementary School is conducting a "Readathon" to raise funds for UNICEF — the United Nations children's fund.

The readathon is a 15-day fundraiser which will end at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

As in similar methods, participants in the readathon go out and get sponsors who will agree to pay one penny for each minute a student spends in a chair reading.

Some six chairs have been set up in the middle of the school and all six are kept warm with readers for all 6½ hours of the school day.

Each chair, if kept warm by readers all day, will earn $4 a day and all six chairs will earn $360 over the 15-day period, which started on Oct. 10.

The readathon is being conducted in the media center at Field. And not only students are participating. Adults also are taking turns on the chair to demonstrate, as a role model, that reading is enjoyable for all ages.

Five chairs are being occupied by students in grades one through five in Tracks A, C and D. The sixth chair is for all students on Track B plus teachers, cafeteria workers, custodians and parent volunteers.

Each reader, whether student or adult, pledges to read (silently) for 15 minutes at a time. The books read are either from the school library or ones brought in from home.

The total money raised by the readathon will be announced Halloween day in a school assembly.

Luan Brownlee, a learning specialist at Field, is optimistic the goal of $360 will be reached as the enthusiasm of the students is working to make sure readers are reading at all times.

And that's all it will take as the sponsors all have been lined up to contribute if the students do their part. The following Canton businesses have agreed to sponsor a chair for $60 apiece: The Rusty Nail, McMurray Insurance Co., Parkway Veterinary Clinic, Schwartz Greenhouse, Roman Forum, and Super Bowl.

"We at Field believe this is a super activity to use to celebrate the International Year of the Child," says Ms. Brownlee.

Among the purposes of the readathon, according to Ms. Brownlee and Principal Larry Miller, are:

- To promote independent, recreational reading of library books;
- To model independent reading — children and adults modeling for other children and adults;
- To promote in Field students the spirit of the International Year of the Child by earning funds for UNICEF to help children of the world community;
- To infuse the spirit of working and giving by joining together to work on a project to help others;
- And to keep with Field's philosophy of promoting self-worth among students.

Plymouth's Family services, a community counseling center, is sponsoring a "Literary Contest" for students of the Centennial Education Park. Students of all ages are challenged to be "creative and imaginative" in an effort to describe family life. The theme involves the above picture, questioning — "Can a family that looks so happy have problems?" Students can submit poems, short stories, essays, cartoons or research papers. Entries should be submitted to Gerald Ostoin's office at Plymouth-Salem High by Dec. 1. Prizes are: $25 for first place, $15 for second place, $10 for third place and $5 for fourth place.

Senior discount plan expanding

Very few employees have had to face the task of working without pay — at least without any immediate hopes of getting a paycheck.

But thousands of Wayne County employees, including many in the Plymouth-Canton community, have faced payless paydays in recent weeks.

Some faced their first payless payday Friday. Others, who were not paid a couple weeks ago, learned Friday they would get reimbursed — with Medicaid monies owned the county by the state.

Because Wayne County is insolvent, employees face the prospect of working from day to day wondering if a paycheck will await them that week or the next.

To find out what it's like to face layoff and payless paydays, the Observer talked with residents of Plymouth and Canton who are employed — at all levels — by the County of Wayne.

And each one has a special story to tell. A single person will try to "hang on" for awhile because of a moral obligation felt towards patients at the county hospital. Married employees with a family, though, face serious economic problems.

Our reports have found some wives who have returned to work, families who are altering their life-styles, and employees who are draining savings from the credit union or are talking with their bankers about the home mortgage.

Wayne County — the third largest county in the U.S. — now becomes the first to miss a payday since the Great Depression a half century ago.

The governor is insisting upon a reorganization so the county can be administered by a full-time executive. The 27 elected county commissioners still are debating how that reform should be accomplished.

Budget hearing set tomorrow

A public hearing on the proposed general budget for Plymouth Township will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at township hall, 4235 E. Ann Arbor Road.

The proposed $1,674,820 budget, as submitted by Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert with adjustments at previous budget hearings, is for the fiscal year for charter townships which begins Dec. 1.

In adjusting for the new fiscal year arrangement, the township has been operating under an interim budget. Previously, under general charter township law, its budget year ran from April 1 to March 31.

The Observer & Eccentric's 1978 Plymouth/Canton Gift Guide was recently awarded first place as "Best Special Shopping Area Promotion Section." Chosen from entries from across the nation, the Plymouth-Canton Gift Guide was considered the very best by Suburban Newspapers of America (SNA)

We couldn't agree more with SNA. Plymouth/Canton is a very special place to shop — during the holidays and all year 'round. We're proud that we put together an attractive, award-winning showcase for the discerning business people who advertise with us. We're pleased to give our readers local, human interest stories that they've come to expect from us.

But we aren't going to rest on our accomplishments of last year — we're already planning another prize-winning section filled with gift ideas and local holiday happenings.

If you are a Plymouth or Canton merchant and haven't arranged for your space in this fine section, Audrey Roof, our Plymouth advertising coordinator and John Muir, who does the same for Canton, want very much to hear from you. And they can offer you circulation into the neighboring communities of Livonia and Northville.

Give them a call today. They'll be glad you did. You'll be glad you did. But, most of all, our readers will be glad you did.

Edsel Ford motors to league crown

Salem loses tough battle, 12-7

By BRAD EMONS

Junior quarterback Dan Betz scored a touchdown on a one-yard run with 11:37 to play in the game to give Dearborn Edsel Ford a come-from-behind, 12-7 victory Friday night over Plymouth Salem in a football game which determined the Suburban Eight League championship.

The Thunderbirds upped their unbeaten record to 8-0 and finished league play with a 5-0 mark. Salem's record is 6-2 overall and 4-1 in the league.

The victory sets up Edsel Ford's showdown Friday with city rival Dearborn Fordson — also unbeaten. A Region IV playoff berth is also at stake. The loss virtually eliminated Salem from Region II, post-season, Class A playoff contention.

Breaks determined the Edsel Ford victory. All three touchdowns were tallied as a result of turnovers.

The Thunderbirds consumed 7:04 of the clock to score the winning TD. Edsel Ford started its drive with 6:41 to go in the third quarter from its own 25-yard line.

The key play occurred when a Plymouth Salem defender was called for pass interference, giving the Thunderbirds the ball at the 50-yard line.

On a key, fourth-down play in the series, Edsel Ford fullback Barry Nabozny ran seven yards to pick up a vital first down.

ON ANOTHER big play in the series, Betz connected on a 13-yard pass with Rob Waldron, just inches from a first down. On the next play, Pat Brackett got the first down as he was tripped up on the Salem 15.

Betz followed with a 14-yard strike to wide receiver Rodney Armstrong down to the Salem one, setting up the one-yard plunge.

Edsel Ford attempted the two-point conversion, but failed.

Salem was stymied by the tough Edsel Ford defense the rest of the way, losing five yards on the ground in the entire fourth quarter on seven attempts.

Despite that, Salem still had a chance to win it when linebacker Phil Anderson recovered an Edsel Ford fumble at the opponent's 45 with 2:08 to go.

On the first play, Salem quarterback Jim Anderson threw an incomplete pass. On the second play, wide receiver Ron Schultz sprinted toward the end zone behind two Ford defenders, but Anderson's pass fell short and Waldron stepped inside and intercepted it, ending Salem's rally.

"He was open," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer, "the ball just got their too late. No. 28 (Waldron) played it well."

"I thought we played them as tough as anybody. I'm proud of the kids. We have too good a character to go down the tubes now."

Salem will end its season Friday night at home against once-beaten Farmington Harrison.

"THE KEY was our defense," said a happy Edsel Ford coach, Jon Davis. "We put one good drive together and made some key third down plays."

"We have tremendous respect for Salem. That's the best defense we've seen all year."

The Thunderbirds' defense completely shut down Salem's wishbone attack.

"That's their (Salem's) offense, and I thought we took it away from them," said Davis, whose team went into the game with four straight shutouts.

"We just did not move the ball," said Moshimer. "Their line was just too big."

"We wanted to establish the inside running game early, but they just took that away from us."

On Salem's first possession of the game, fullback Anderson ran 43 yards on a simple trap play down to the Edsel Ford 28.

On a fourth down situation in the same series, Anderson connected for six yards and an apparent first down.

The ball, however, was spotted just inches short of the flag stick and Edsel Ford took over.

At the start of the second quarter, Phil Anderson handled a high snap, but his punt was partially blocked, giving Edsel Ford excellent field position at Plymouth's 42.

Five plays later, Chuck Davis hooked up with Armstrong for a 21-yard TD pass with 9:31 to go in the first half.

EDSEL FORD faked the extra point, but was stopped when running back Mark Whitcomb, the holder, overthrew the intended receiver near the goal line.

Salem took the lead with 6:59 to play in the half when Anderson recovered his first of two fumbles at the Edsel Ford 29.

Jim Anderson then ran 11 yards to the Edsel Ford 18 and then tossed a 15-yard dump pass to Jeff Spencer.

On the next play, senior halfback Craig Stack hurdled four yards into the end zone at 5:42, knotting the score at 6.

Brian Lewandowski kicked the extra point and Salem went into the dressing room leading, 7-6.

Edsel Ford outgained Salem in total yardage, 209-89, and in first downs, 12-3.

Betz and Davis hit nine of 18 passes for 101 yards. Armstrong made six catches for 73 yards. Halfback Matt Mattern led the Edsel Ford rushers with 52 yards in 13 carries. Nabozny, who fumbled twice, had 49 yards in 18 attempts.

Phil Anderson led the Salem rushers with 43 yards in nine carries. Jim Anderson hit three of 11 passes for 25 yards.

"Their backs ran hard," praised Moshimer. "We had them tackled in the backfield for losses on third down, but they got away."

Rock swim squad snaps losing streak

The Plymouth Salem girls' swim team snapped a three-meet losing skid with a 93-79 Suburban Eight League win against Trenton.

The Rocks are 1-2 in the league and 6-4 overall. Senior co-captain Sharon Ross led the way for Salem with individual firsts in the 200-yard individual medley (2:26.3) and 500-yard freestyle (5:47.9).

Ross was also a member of the victorious 400-yard freestyle relay which posted a winning time of 4:19.5. Other members of the relay included Julie Cabadas, Nancy Lazarus and Renee Lakatos.

Sophomore Terri Eudy won the 50-yard freestyle for Salem with a time of :26.4. Other Salem firsts were recorded by diver Natalie McClumpha (207.95) and Linda Wochna in the 100-yard backstroke (1:09.9).

Lakatos, the other Salem co-captain, garnered valuable points by gaining second place in the 200-yard freestyle (2:17.5) and 100-yard backstroke (1:11.4). Sue Evans took second in the 100-yard butterfly (1:16.4) while Lazarus also gained a runner-up berth in the 100-yard freestyle (1:04.5).

Wochna, Corinne Cabadas, Evans and Eudy swam to a second place in the 200-yard medley relay (2:07.5).

"The meet was close for awhile," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "I'm happy we kept the times the same."

"The water there was really warm — about 10 degrees higher than normal. It makes a big difference."

Salem won every event on points with the exception of two. The Rocks led at the halfway mark, 41-37.

Third-place finishers for Salem included Kelly Brandt, 200-yard freestyle, 2:24.0; Corinne Cabadas, 50-yard freestyle, :29.4; Eudy, 100-yard breaststroke, 1:17.5; Cabadas, 100-yard freestyle, 1:05.8; Brandt, 500-yard freestyle, 6:33.1.

Salem will travel to Livonia Stevenson Tuesday at 7 p.m. Stevenson is one of the top teams in the area.

Canton-Harrison

Plymouth Canton slipped to 2-2 in the league after dropping a 103-69 girls' swim decision to Western Six League foe Farmington Harrison.

Canton is now 3-5 overall. Transfer student Tarja Tuominen of Canton placed first in the 200-yard individual medley (2:29.3) and 500-yard freestyle (5:46.0).

Kim Massey took first in the 200-yard freestyle with a clocking of 2:11.0.

Despite a second-place finish, Canton diver Chris Wennerberg broke her own school record by totaling 195.05 points.

The 400-yard freestyle relay team of Missey McMurray, Janet Powell, Massey and Tuominen grabbed first place with a time of 4:12.0.

Kris Burns, Brownwyn Fitzgerald, Mary Reardon and McMurray placed second in the 200-yard medley relay.

Third place finishers for the Chiefs included McMurray, 50-yard freestyle; Massey, 100-yard butterfly; Powell, 100-yard freestyle;

Chiefs continue victory string

Canton cagers batter Western

By BRAD EMONS

The Plymouth Canton girls' basketball team started its winning streak, now at eight games, back on the bleak night of Sept. 27 at Walled Lake Western.

That night, Canton coach Mike McCauley lost two players because of slippery floor conditions — Jill Pedersen (out for the year with a broken leg) and Reggie Ruggiero (sprained ankle).

The Chiefs managed to beat Western, 54-33, that night. They continued their victory string Thursday night at home with a 54-46 win over Western again.

Canton is now 10-3 overall and 6-0 in the Western Six League. The Chiefs appear to have the league title locked up, barring any upsets.

Although it wasn't a masterpiece, McCauley has got to be pleased that his team has rebounded from trying circumstances in September.

"You play what the competition is," said McCauley. "We didn't play with any momentum — just a couple of minutes tonight."

"We weren't that aggressive."

But it looked like the same Canton club that McCauley has patented. The Chiefs were all over the floor — pressing, diving for loose balls and running the fast break.

"They hit you hard with defense," said Western coach Tom Szocinski.

"CANTON COMES out and intimidates you," he said. "They are well coached and play a boys' type of game. Canton is a good team that is traditionally strong."

The Chiefs took control of a close game in the third quarter, outscoring the Warriors, 18-5, after leading only 25-23 at halftime.

Western missed eight straight free throws in a three-minute span to knock itself out of contention.

"We usually shoot about 45 percent from the line," said Szocinski. "We seem to get the shots, but just can't get them to drop. We're not a good shooting team."

"We're young and we seem to be playing harder every game. I thought we controlled the boards tonight and we had the opportunities."

The Warriors shot a dismal 22 percent from the free throw line (4 of 18).

Canton forward Cindy Sovine, connecting on her third straight shot, gave the Chiefs a 33-25 lead with 3:37 to go in the third quarter.

Guard Jean Timlin then hit three shots in a row, powering Canton to a 41-27 advantage with 1:09 left in the third.

A layup by Sovine, who scored 12 points, lifted Canton to a 47-30 lead with 7:04 remaining. After that, the aggressive Chiefs held off Western the rest of the way.

TIMLIN led all scorers with 14 points: Sovine had 12 while seniors Vicky Cavallaro and Diane Durocher tallied eight and seven, respectively. Sue Reiter paced Western with 13. Tracy Grubb and Kris Mellema each added 10.

Cavallaro, who sets the tempo for the Chiefs, played a fine floor game. Durocher, a workhorse on the boards, fouled out with 4:13 to play in the third period.

The loss dropped Western to 2-11 overall and 0-6 in the league.

The Warriors came out of the gate quickly in the first quarter, building a 13-6 lead.

Canton, however, tied it up at the end of the period when Cavallaro, a senior, converted a left-hand layup with 32 seconds left.

Westland John Glenn, a member of the Northwest Suburban League, will invade the Canton gym Tuesday at 7:45 p.m.

Salem girls bounce back

Blohm rejoices over league win

Plymouth Salem blasted off to a 22-10 first-quarter lead and went on to post an easy 57-39 girls' basketball victory Thursday over Dearborn in a Suburban Eight League game.

The Rocks increased their league mark to 5-1 and 10-3 overall. Dearborn slipped to 4-6 overall.

Salem senior center Patty Weidman paced all scorers with 18 points. She also collected 17 rebounds, 10 of which came on the defensive boards.

Senior forward Cheryl Sobkow aided the Rocks' cause with 10 points and 12 rebounds. Guard Nan Horwood added nine and six boards. She also had three assists. Sophomore guard Eileen Moore chipped in with eight points.

"This was a good game for us," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "I was happy because the kids played hard when they were tired."

"I expected the worst, but we had good officiating and I'm very pleased."

Blohm was satisfied with his team's effort after coming off a draining loss Tuesday night against No. 1 ranked Flint Northern (76-45).

"I would have to say this is one of our best total team efforts of the season," said the second-year Salem coach.

"We were a little leg weary with only one day rest," he said. "I thought we really got good inside play. I can't remember them (Dearborn) scoring on a second shot."

SALEM USED its man-to-man pressure defense in the first quarter to thwart the Pioneers.

"Our guards did a good job handling their people up front," said Blohm, "and Patty and Cheryl did a nice job inside."

The Rocks enjoyed a 31-22 halftime lead.

Salem then jumped out to a 43-31 advantage at the end of three quarters.

"We scrambled people around in the second half," explained Blohm. "We mixed our defenses up too."

Sue Cliff led Dearborn with 13 points. Sharon Scala added 10.

Salem will entertain Garden City East, a member of the Northwest Suburban League, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

RU playoff hopes jolted

And then there were three.

Redford Union was all but eliminated from the state football playoff picture Friday when Walled Lake Western stunned the Panthers and 5,000 fans at Howard Kraft Field with a 34-22 victory.

Now Dearborn Fordson, Edsel Ford and Catholic Central will fight it out for the two playoff spots in the designated Region Four. So hold on to your computers.

Warrior quarterback Rob King was a one-man show. He scored four touchdowns, and gained 114 yards on only five carries. In all Western jaunted for 360 yards offense on the Panthers' highly-touted defense.

King started the show with a 10-yard run in the first quarter. Then the Warrior's Frank Tozzi blocked a punt and returned it 30 yards for another first-quarter score. A two-point conversion gave Western a 15-0 lead before many of the fans were settled in their seats.

RU came blazing back. Bob Utych closed the first quarter gap with a 10-yard run. RU got a two-pointer to cut the margin to 15-8.

The Panthers even took a brief lead in the second quarter on Utych's second touchdown, this time from 17 yards out. RU led 16-15 after another two-point conversion.

Then King gave Western a 21-16 halftime lead with a five-yard run. Shocking yes, but RU had faced adversity before.

This time, though, things went sour. Perhaps the Panthers were looking forward to the Adrian game too much. King banged in from seven yards out to start the second half and the Warriors had all the points they needed.

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

The Michigan Majors Bowling Association tournaments rapidly are becoming the left handers paradise.

This was proven again last weekend when nine of the 12 finalists were southpaws and Dick Beattie, the area's top left hander, won the event with a 246 average at the Bowling Bar in Saginaw.

It was Beattie's 10th title and made him the top money winner of the season with $3665. He also became the all-time money winner with $14,020 for the 13-year history of the association.

JOHN HURLEY, who has been piling up a string of 700 series at Westland Bowl during the past year, answered his critics last Tuesday night.

They claimed he had "pet" lanes at Westland. So he moved over to Wonderland and turned in a 713 in the senior house league. To get it, he put together games of 256, 250 and 207.

Two other 700 series sprang up in unexpected places during the week.

Carol Martin, a member of the Luxury Lanes team in the all star league, contributed a 704 in the Bowlerettes circuit on her home lanes. In fact, she earned two awards as she had a 299 game in the series and missed a perfect game when the No. 4 pin stood on her final ball.

The other 700 came in the men's trio league at Woodland Lanes when Walt Smith linked counts of 205, 244 and 268 for a 717.

THERE WERE no 700 series in the Wonderland Classic, but the Big Boy team, captained by Lew Anfaro, put on quite a show. The team opened with a 1055, followed with 986 and closed with 1074 for a 3115.

Even this big score was only 17 pins better than George Stefan's B&H Machine squad that linked games of 1058, 1017 and 1023 for 3098.

In the individual competition John Watkins was high with 689 and Denni Feloni was next with 665.

IN THE LADIES CLASSIC at Wonderland Denise Rathven opened with a 234 for 638 and was followed by Marilyn Leemon with 623 and Shirley Gray with 602. In the Sunday mixed league May Schonitzer showed the way with a 603.

MARTY CAPALDI did some fancy shooting at Westland to lead the Harlow Trio group with a 675. To get the big total he laced games of 247, 222 and 206.

In the ladies classic, Jane Martin was high with a closing 235 in 640. Next to her came Cyndi Edwards with 594 and Bobbi Parkas with 589.

ONE OF THE outstanding performances of the week was turned in by Andy Peppo in the Franklin High School

Rock netters place 8th in state

Plymouth Salem tied regional rival Ann Arbor Huron for eighth place overall last weekend in the Class A state girls' tennis finals held in Holland and Lansing.

Grosse Pointe South claimed the team championship followed by Portage Northern and Port Huron Northern, which finished second and third respectively.

Both Salem and Huron collected 11 points. Huron edged out Salem two weeks ago for the regional crown by one point.

At No. 1 singles, Salem senior Kathy Horton lost in the semifinals to eventual state champ Liz Wachter of Grosse Pointe South, 6-4, 6-2. Wachter went on to defeat Mary McTaggart of Port Huron Northern in the finals, 6-4, 7-5.

Carol Hathaway (No. 2 singles) of Salem was defeated in the first round by quarterfinalist Pam Neville. Teammate Betsy Moon (No. 3 singles) was also downed in the opening round.

Salem's Renee Braun reached the quarterfinals at No. 4 singles before falling to Laura Westbrook of Midland Dow, 6-4, 6-4.

Westbrook then lost to nationally-ranked Lisa Micou of Grosse Pointe South for the title. Micou, a junior, has been state champion in three different singles flights during her career.

At No. 1 doubles, Salem's Carol Gillespie and Vickie Sterling gained a berth in the second round before dropping a straight set match to the No. 2 seeded duo from Muskegon Mona Shores.

SALEM'S NO.2 and No. 3 doubles teams each made it to the quarterfinals before being eliminated.

Sandra Hathaway and Kathy Weber lost to an East Lansing duo while Lynn Hathaway and Beth Baker of Salem fell victim to a team from Port Huron Northern.

The state tournament ended an outstanding season for coach Judy Braun and her Salem team. The Rocks posted a 9-1 dual-meet mark and won the Suburban Eight League championship.

Area grads power Hurons

Three area high school graduates have contributed this fall to their respective sports teams at Eastern Michigan University.

Freshman Rich Hanschu, a 1979 graduate of Plymouth Salem and a former All-Observer grid choice, has taken over the regular kicking duties for the Hurons' football team.

Hansch, a non-scholarship player, is currently ranked fourth on EMU's scoring list with 11 points.

He has made three of four extra points and two of four field goals, including a 41-yarder against the University of Akron. The Salem grad also handles kickoffs for coach Mike Stock.

Plymouth Canton graduate Chris Boyd, a senior goalkeeper, was instrumental in EMU's recent 2-1 girls' field hockey upset over Bowling Green of Ohio.

"Chris had an excellent game," said EMU coach Anne Johnson. "She was the key player in our victory."

Plymouth Salem grad Walt White recently placed 11th with a clocking of 33:16 in EMU's 20-43 men's cross country victory over Northern Illinois at the Bowen course.

White has helped the Hurons to a 4-2-1 dual-meet mark.

Mooney picked all-league

Champion Livonia Churchill and runner-up Farmington Harrison dominate this year's Western Six All-League football team.

On defense, the first team includes Walt Tadday, Churchill, end; Carlo Castiglione, Western, end; Bob O'Neil, Churchill, lineman; Steve Weise, Harrison, lineman; Scott Parrish, Western, lineman; Steve Clemens, Churchill, linebacker; Jim Miller, Harrison, linebacker; Randy Shell, Western, linebacker; Ron Schueneman, Churchill, defensive back; Bob Anderson, Churchill, defensive back; Rob King, Western, defensive back; Mark Alcantera, Harrison, kicker. O'Neil, Shell and Castiglione were the lone juniors selected on defense.

MILLER, Mooney and Parrish are the only players on the All-League team that tip the scales over 200 pounds.

Churchill players who received honorable mention include Rich Grodek, defensive end; Bob Hutter, offensive guard; Frank Kenney, center; Gary Vendittelli, defensive back.

Harrison players gaining honorable mention include Bill Cullen, defensive end; Jeff Hagan, defensive back; Eric Kerastas, tackle; Jamey May, offensive guard; Bruce Morrison, quarterback; John Pesci, linebacker; John Turner, defensive tackle; Reggie Upshaw, flanker; Bruce Yeager, linebacker.

Sophomore Dan Howard leads the Canton list of honorable mention picks. The nose guard is joined by linebacker Cris Koch, halfback John Tarr and offensive tackle Ted Toll.

Clarenceville cagers win

RU edges Thurston

A good start and especially a good finish carried Clarenceville to a 34-23 victory last week over Oak Park in a Metro West Conference girls' basketball game.

The Trojans, who had trouble getting untracked earlier this season, jumped out to an 8-3 advantage in the first quarter.

However, Clarenceville found itself on the short end of an 18-17 score going into the final period. Coach Laurie Stasiak's troops then erupted for 17 points and limited Oak Park to five to coast home.

Angie Coppola collected 12 points for the Trojans, Cheryl Ranta six.

"We just started playing offense better," said Stasiak. "We played very good defense, I thought, the entire game. We tried a new defense (1-3-1 zone with half-court pickup) and it worked."

The win improved Clarenceville's league record to 2-1. The Trojans are 3-7 overall.

REDFORD UNION climbed into a first-place tie with Redford Thurston in the Northwest Suburban League with a 55-47 overtime victory over the Eagles.

Both teams now sport 5-1 conference records.

Thurston's Barb Beebe sank a free throw to send the game into overtime, but RU scored all eight points during the extra three minutes of play.

Salem hosts

Plymouth Salem will host the Suburban Eight League girls' swim meet Nov. 15-16.

The finals will be held at the Salem pool Friday, Nov. 16, at 7 p.m.

Stevenson nips Glenn in overtime

By DAVE SCHWARTZ

Comedian Steve Martin would have called it "a wild and crazy game."

But Walter Camp would have been proud of the example of spirited football in Westland.

Livonia Stevenson had to go into overtime to keep its playoff hopes alive by beating a fired-up Westland John Glenn gang, 20-17.

It was a game that had more breaks than Evel Knievel's legs. If Richard Parks didn't take a pitchout and score from four yards out in overtime, the boys would probably still be playing.

The first half was uneventful. It was a half of tipped passes and fumbles. In fact, a fumbled snap from center was Stevenson's best play.

Quarterback David Hall picked up one fumble on the Spartans' second possession and rambled 19 yards for a first down. Two plays later, Hall picked up another misfired snap and coolly tossed a 16-yard touchdown pass to end Cap Pethers. Hall's extra-point kick completed the only scoring of the first half.

As a matter of fact, that was quite a Pethers in Stevenson's Cap. Pethers was in on almost every play, making well over a dozen tackles in the game.

But you could sense that this was a fired-up Glenn squad. They shut down all-state candidate Hall's vaunted passing attack with two interceptions.

To be fair though, Stevenson's offense was hardly ever on the field. Coach Chuck Gordon's ball-control offense was on the field seemingly the entire game.

In the third quarter, Glenn used up 10:11 on the clock to tie it up on a 75-yard drive. The key play was a 13-yard pass from quarterback Rick Discher to flanker Anthony Cabrera off Dave Hall's hands that gave Glenn the ball at Stevenson's three. On third down, Discher rolled out and lobbed a TD pass to end Bill Dye. John Johnston's kick knotted it up at 7-7.

After all that, it took Stevenson only 98 seconds to go ahead. Don Hauck took a handoff, broke tackles all the way down the field and twisted 47 yards for a score.

If you think that would break Rocket backs, you're dead wrong. The determined Glenn gridders had nothing to lose and everything to gain. They breezed 60 yards for a fourth quarter equalizer.

The Rockets found the knack of making big third down plays.

Reardon, 500-yard freestyle; Burns, 100-yard backstroke.

Karen Mullen, Beth Greenleaf, Julie Stratton and Powell took a third in the 200-yard medley relay. Stratton dropped her time by two seconds on her 50-yard backstroke leg.

Canton coach Mark Griffith was pleased with the performance of Kelly Salyer in the 100-yard freestyle.

Canton will host Dearborn Fordson Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Churchill keeps grid hopes alive

There are football games, then there are hard-hitting, bone crunching football games.

Livonia Churchill and Livonia Franklin locked together in the latter Friday. The host Chargers survived with a 14-7 victory.

Churchill will battle Livonia Stevenson 7:30 p.m. Friday at Stevenson. Both teams sport 7-1 records. The winner of that clash has a chance of qualifying for the Class A state playoffs.

The Chargers drew first blood against Franklin when Bill Keller completed a 31-yard scoring pass to Ron Schueneman in the second period. Darrel Copley's kick for extra point sailed wide.

Franklin took possession at its own 40-yard line when Churchill's kickoff to start the second half went out of bounds. The Patriots proceeded to march 60 yards. Jon McCarthy tossed a 12-yard scoring pass to Tim Przysiecki on a fourth-down play.

McCarthy then kicked the PAT to give Franklin the lead.

The Chargers produced the winning touchdown with 7½ minutes remaining in the contest. Keller carried the ball in himself around right end from the eight yard line. Copley completed a pass to Ken Bloch from kick formation for the two-point conversion.

A crucial play during Churchill's second TD-drive, which covered approximately 45 yards, was a pass completion from Keller to Schueneman on fourth down.

The Chargers netted 101 yards, rushing and 133 yards passing. Keller completed nine of 16 passes and ran for another 63 yards.

The Patriots accumulated 120 yards on the ground and 22 through the air. Ron Gunter led Franklin with 53 yards on 11 carries.

"Our defense came alive," said Churchill coach Ken Kaestner. "It was a very hard-hitting football game on both sides. I have big regard for Franklin football. You have to give them their due."

To say that the game was hard-hitting would be an understatement. Franklin's Steve Droz broke a hand and Dave Rettig was forced to the sidelines with an injury. "I think we put four of their kids out, too," said Armand Vigna, coach of the Patriots.

If the injuries on the field weren't enough, Franklin's Jack Williams pulled a muscle warming up and was unable to play in the second half.

"I'll tell you, I just want to give credit to these kids," said Vigna. "They never quit. I'm very proud of our kids. They've played the whole season under adversity (injuries)."

Vigna especially praised the work of Chris Whalen and Brian Beer.

NOW chapter praises Pursell for leadership

Editor: Congratulations to Carl Pursell for formally soliciting the opinions of women on "women's issues" at a recent local gathering. We are pleased that Carl is in the forefront of elected representatives to the U.S. Congress who are at least attempting to assess the needs of 51.6 percent of their constituency, and then, hopefully, to push legislation to meet those needs. Double kudos to Margaret Miller who made Carl's meetings in the tri-county area he serves the subject of her Oct. 18 editorial. Because credit should be given where credit is due, let it be noted that the stimulus for Pursell's meetings (as well as those of state Sen. Doug Ross in a neighboring district) came from the National Organization (NOW) which has been lobbying for a Homemaker's (Women's) Bill of Rights for several years now. before a committee of the U.S. House of Representatives about the need for legislation protecting displaced homemakers, women in midlife, women in poverty, etc. It is expected that the 96th Congress will consider the legislation proposed. Anyone interested in securing a copy of Ellie's testimony and the suggested Bill of Rights may secure it from our local NOW chapter. ELIZBETH C. KELLEY Northwest Wayne County Chapter NOW

Lottery foul-up isn't isolated

Editor: The recent foul-ups in the televised drawings of the State Lottery are not the only strange things going on at that organization. In support of this statement I should like to submit the following fact: A friend of mine was notified two months ago that he had qualified for the grand drawing of Instant Lottery No. 2. He was informed that his "name" had been entered into the grand elimination drawing to be held after the announced end of game. Well, the sale of tickets terminated even weeks ago. Actually, Instant No. 2 tickets have been sold at all licensed agencies for the past six weeks. Yet the drawing of Instant No. 1 has not been conducted. How come? Are the qualifiers forced to await the leisure and convenience of the lottery director until he returns from another of his many sojourns to Acapulco at state expense? Perhaps he is hoping the whole thing will be forgotten. Strangely enough, or perhaps not too strangely, there has not been one word of explanation reported in the press about this unwarranted delay. It is becoming apparent that the numerous full-page advertisements authorized by the lottery management was a bare-faced payoff to the press to keep quiet about this despicably fraudulent scheme. It is now very doubtful that the aforementioned drawing will ever be conducted. The innocent suckers who, in good faith, play the lottery have been bilked again. This is a flagrant rip-off. Do we need any further reason to abolish the Michigan Lottery? It should be put out of business immediately and its officers prosecuted.

(The grand drawing was held on Thursday, Oct. 25. Winners of $50 in the last instant game qualified for the grand elimination drawing. After all $50 claims were made, and checks mailed out, the elimination draw was held. Only 10 names selected in the elimination go on to the grand drawing. Those not selected in the elimination are not notified — Editor)

Wanted: retired tradesmen

Retired tradesmen, handyman, and other persons with skills still are needed by the Plymouth community Council on Aging, Inc. The council is in the process of establishing a Skill Bank for the older adults in the community. Skill Bank will be a clearing house for the retired tradesmen who desire jobs in their spare time to maintain their skills while earning some additional income. The Skill Bank will operate a telephone center where return calls requesting needed service will be received and passed on to the listed retired tradesman. The worker and homeowner requesting work will then negotiate directly to ascertain the work to be performed at reasonable rates. Before the program gets started, though, the council needs to hear from volunteers willing to participate. Retired persons willing to offer their skills or volunteer for the phone center may do so by calling 455-4907, 453-2186, or 453-4844. The council and its committees are all unpaid volunteers, working in the interests of senior citizens, and is dependent on local contributions for its funding. The council is not, at this time, affiliated with any federal, state, county or city programs but function as independent advocates for senior services. Among the projects undertaken by the council are the Vial of Life and Merchants Senior Discount Program — both ongoing efforts.

Senate majority leader Faust is named in slander lawsuit

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

Senate Majority Leader William Faust, recently honored as one of the outstanding legislators in the country, has been charged with slander in a suit filed in Wayne County Circuit Court.

State Sen. Faust, D-Westland, is accused of making slanderous statements in an interview with a local newspaper.

Faust said he "categorically" denies all allegations in the suit.

The suit was filed Sept. 12 by attorneys for Dennis Dettmer, who represented two Westland residents in a recent suit which had charged four city council members with violating the state's open meetings statute. Faust said he was served with the suit Oct. 6.

The suit says that Faust made slanderous statements last July to the Westland Eagle after Circuit Judge Charles Farmer ruled that the four city council members had violated the open meetings act.

Dettmer told the Observer that although Faust's statement doesn't name him specifically, he believes he is "identifiable" and that the statement has "no factual basis."

According to the suit, the Eagle quoted Faust as saying: "I think the reason for the decision is the fraternity between lawyers and judges. To find councilmen in violation of the act was the only way to get the litigants' attorney paid."

Dettmer is the litigants' attorney.

ALTHOUGH A specific figure isn't mentioned, the suit asks for "exemplary and punitive damages," interest, costs and attorney fees be paid by Faust. The suit does say that the "amount in the controversy" amounts to more than $10,000.

By including that statement in the suit, Dettmer could file his charges in circuit court rather than Westland's 18th District Court.

Dettmer is being represented by a Traverse City law firm of Robb, Dettmer and Phillips, which includes his brother, Michael. Dean Robb will actually be representing Dettmer. Faust said he has yet to appoint an attorney to represent him.

The suit claims that Faust's statement inferred a "conspiracy" between Judge Farmer and Dettmer. It adds that Faust made his statements "maliciously," knowing that they were untrue. In doing so, the suit charges that Faust "injured" Dettmer's name and professional reputation.

According to the suit, Faust's statements will result in a "loss of clients" for Dettmer. Dettmer said that he hadn't lost any clients yet.

Both the suit and Faust say that Dettmer and his attorneys have asked for retractions of the statements. Faust said he has refused to issue a retraction. Dettmer said that Faust didn't

"respond" to the requests.

"Sen. Faust has had every opportunity to respond. Under Michigan statute, there is a procedure giving an opportunity to retract slanderous statements on demand. If the statements aren't retracted, then punitive damages can be awarded," said Dettmer.

A court date for a hearing on the case is still unscheduled.

FAUST LABELED the conspiracy charge as "ridiculous," and said he is being singled out because he is a "political person."

Cozy Cafe is robbed 4th time

Plymouth police are investigating the fourth break-in in less than a month at the Cozy Cafe, 15 Forest.

The most recent incident occurred last Wednesday morning when a store safe containing some $200 was lifted along with three silver vases used as coffee urns, an adding machine and a pocket calculator.

Det. Sgt. Ralph White, of the Plymouth Police Department, said police believe this incident was probably not related to the previous break-ins because of different "MOs" (methods of operation) used by the thieves.

Police estimate Wednesday's break-in happened sometime after 3:30 a.m. Store employee Susan Porter reported it to police when she opened the store for business and discovered a broken first floor window on the building's west end.

In the three other break-ins, entry was gained from a second store window which was not broken. White said in those cases, the suspect used gloves and was probably alone.

He added that the fourth break-in differed because in the first three cases only money was stolen.

FRANK RAMIREK, 19, of Plymouth, was arrested on the roof of that business Oct. 18 after he was discovered by Plymouth police.

He was charged with that incident and released on $5,000 conditional bond. He awaits a pre-trial hearing in Wayne County Circuit Court. Police said $125 was discovered missing in that case but hasn't been recovered.

White said police have "some definite leads and a definite suspect or suspects" in the fourth case but refused to elaborate.

Asked if he thought it was unusual that a local business should be plagued with four such break-ins within a month, he said, "Well, it does sort of raise the eyebrows."

NOW chapter praises Pursell for leadership

Editor: Congratulations to Carl Pursell for formally soliciting the opinions of women on "women's issues" at a recent local gathering.

We are pleased that Carl is in the forefront of elected representatives to the U.S. Congress who are at least attempting to assess the needs of 51.6 percent of their constituency, and then, hopefully, to push legislation to meet those needs.

Double kudos to Margaret Miller who made Carl's meetings in the tri-county area he serves the subject of her Oct. 18 editorial.

Because credit should be given where credit is due, let it be noted that the stimulus for Pursell's meetings (as well as those of state Sen. Doug Ross in a neighboring district) came from the National Organization (NOW) which has been lobbying for a Homemaker's (Women's) Bill of Rights for several years now. before a committee of the U.S. House of Representatives about the need for legislation protecting displaced homemakers, women in midlife, women in poverty, etc. It is expected that the 96th Congress will consider the legislation proposed.

Anyone interested in securing a copy of Ellie's testimony and the suggested Bill of Rights may secure it from our local NOW chapter.

Lottery foul-up isn't isolated

Editor: The recent foul-ups in the televised drawings of the State Lottery are not the only strange things going on at that organization. In support of this statement I should like to submit the following fact:

A friend of mind was notified two months ago that he had qualified for the grand drawing of Instant Lottery No. 2. He was informed that his "name" had been entered into the grand elimination drawing to be held after the announced end of game."

Well, the sale of tickets terminated seven weeks ago. Actually, Instant No. 3 tickets have been sold at all licensed agencies for the past six weeks. Yet the drawing of Instant No. 1 has not been conducted. How come?

Are the qualifiers forced to await the pleasure and convenience of the lottery director until he returns from another of his many sojourns to Acapulco at state expense? Perhaps he is hoping the whole thing will be forgotten.

Strangely enough, or perhaps not too strangely, there has not been one word of explanation reported in the press about this unwarranted delay.

It is becoming apparent that the numerous full-page advertisements authorized by the lottery management was a bare-faced payoff to the press to keep quiet about this despicably fraudulent scheme.

It is now very doubtful that the aforementioned drawing will ever be conducted. The innocent suckers who, in good faith, play the lottery have been bilked again.

This is a flagrant rip-off. Do we need any further reason to abolish the Michigan Lottery? It should be put out of business immediately and its officers prosecuted.

(The grand drawing was held on Thursday, Oct. 25. Winners of $50 in the last instant game qualified for the grand elimination drawing. After all $50 claims were made, and checks mailed out, the elimination draw was held. Only 10 names selected in the elimination go on to the grand drawing. Those not selected in the elimination are not notified — Editor)

Wanted: retired tradesmen

Retired tradesmen, handymen, and other persons with skills still are needed by the Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc.

The council is in the process of establishing a Skill Bank for the older adults in the community.

Skill Bank will be a clearing house for the retired tradesmen who desire jobs in their spare time to maintain their skills while earning some additional income.

The Skill Bank will operate a telephone center where return calls requesting needed service will be received and passed on to the listed retired tradesman.

The worker and homeowner requesting work will then negotiate directly to ascertain the work to be performed at reasonable rates.

Before the program gets started, though, the council needs to hear from volunteers willing to participate. Retired persons willing to offer their skills or volunteer for the phone center may do so by calling 455-4907, 453-2186, or 453-4844.

The council and its committees are all unpaid volunteers, working in the interests of senior citizens, and is dependent on local contributions for its funding. The council is not, at this time, affiliated with any federal, state, county or city programs but function as independent advocates for senior services.

Among the projects undertaken by the council are the Vial of Life and Merchants Senior Discount Program — both ongoing efforts.

Senate majority leader Faust is named in slander lawsuit

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

Senate Majority Leader William Faust, recently honored as one of the outstanding legislators in the country, has been charged with slander in a suit filed in Wayne County Circuit Court.

State Sen. Faust, D-Westland, is accused of making slanderous statements in an interview with a local newspaper.

Faust said he "categorically" denies all allegations in the suit.

The suit was filed Sept. 12 by attorneys for Dennis Dettmer, who represented two Westland residents in a recent suit which had charged four city council members with violating the state's open meetings statute. Faust said he was served with the suit Oct. 6.

The suit says that Faust made slanderous statements last July to the Westland Eagle after Circuit Judge Charles Farmer ruled that the four city council members had violated the open meetings act.

Dettmer told the Observer that although Faust's statement doesn't name him specifically, he believes he is "identifiable" and that the statement has "no factual basis."

According to the suit, the Eagle quoted Faust as saying: "I think the reason for the decision is the fraternity between lawyers and judges. To find councilmen in violation of the act was the only way to get the litigants' attorney paid."

Dettmer is the litigants' attorney.

By including that statement in the suit, Dettmer could file his charges in circuit court rather than Westland's 18th District Court.

Dettmer is being represented by a Traverse City law firm of Robb, Dettmer and Phillips, which includes his brother, Michael. Dean Robb will actually be representing Dettmer. Faust said he has yet to appoint an attorney to represent him.

The suit claims that Faust's statement inferred a "conspiracy" between Judge Farmer and Dettmer. It adds that Faust made his statements "maliciously," knowing that they were untrue. In doing so, the suit charges that Faust "injured" Dettmer's name and professional reputation.

According to the suit, Faust's statements will result in a "loss of clients" for Dettmer. Dettmer said that he hadn't lost any clients yet.

Both the suit and Faust say that Dettmer and his attorneys have asked for retractions of the statements. Faust said he has refused to issue a retraction. Dettmer said that Faust didn't

"respond" to the requests.

"Sen. Faust has had every opportunity to respond. Under Michigan statute, there is a procedure giving an opportunity to retract slanderous statements on demand. If the statements aren't retracted, then punitive damages can be awarded," said Dettmer.

A court date for a hearing on the case is still unscheduled.

FAUST LABELED the conspiracy charge as "ridiculous," and said he is being singled out because he is a "political person."

The Flip Side by craig piechura

Out of the institutions

If my brother Paul could talk, he'd be singing today.

After living for 17 years in various institutions, he is finally being placed in a new group home for the retarded on Chata Street in West Bloomfield.

He's leaving the Oakdale Center in Lapeer. He learned a great deal from some fine people at that institution, but it is still an institution.

Paul's new neighbors don't seem to mind him moving in. But that's not always the case.

Opposition to the retarded living in a residential setting is one of the reasons it took so long for my brother to leave the institution. The opponents use legal tactics and genuine ammunition to keep out the retarded in some communities.

Paul Michael Piechura is 28 years old. He was born with cerebral palsy and is unable to hear or reproduce speech. He didn't learn to walk until he was 5. The palsy still prevents him from nodding his head to say "Yes."

He can laugh, cry, type, write, draw, and do sign language. He even learned to ride a two-wheel bike without training wheels a few years ago. He earns a minimum wage working at a sheltered workshop.

All this is remarkable only when you learn that doctors told my parents he would be bedridden all his life. They refused to accept that diagnosis.

Paul has an amazing memory and above-average mathematical and mechanical aptitude. After asking you to write down your birthday, he can tell you if it will fall on a Tuesday in 1990. Paul has the calendar cycle down pat.

DATES MEAN a great deal to people in institutions. The biggest date is the date you get out. I saw him a week ago and he printed out on a sheet of paper: PAUL PIECHURA 28 LAPEER OUT WEST BLOOMFIELD IN.

If you didn't know my brother, initially you might be afraid of him. He walks with an uncoordinated gait. Since he can't talk, he makes noises of approval or disapproval that sound strange to people who first meet him.

The retarded have no time for pretense. If Paul's happy to see someone he might do a somersault. If given a gift he considers childish, he'll give it the thumbs-down sign or hold his nose in the P.U. position.

If Paul can be faulted for excess, he could be criticized for being stubborn and paying too much attention to money, television and cars, in that order. Many "normal" people succumb to those vices as well.

His table manners could stand improvement. If a piece of meat is too hot to eat, he dips it in a glass of ice water he keeps next to his plate.

But that kind of behavior is hardly enough to lower property values, as we keep hearing from opponents of residential homes for the retarded.

As a reporter, I've had to cover protests by neighborhood groups opposed to locating the retarded in single-family homes on their street.

I've tried my best to be "objective" in printing their concerns about what they see as a violation of zoning law that permits a group of unrelated people to live under one roof in a single-family home.

Privately, however, I can't help hoping the other side wins the struggle.

The retarded don't know property values and deed restrictions.

But all but the severely impaired understand things like being able to walk to the store to buy a bottle of pop with money they earned.

They appreciate having their own bedroom instead of a dorm filled with a dozen beds. Those who can hear want to wake up to an alarm clock, not a nurse.

Paul would rather help dry dishes in the kitchen than leave his tray for the cafeteria employees at the institution.

Some "normal" people would rather not have to confront the retarded. It bothers them to see these imperfect people walking down the sidewalk.

It's so much easier to offer pity to unseen unfortunates warehoused in institutions. It's too unsettling to think that the retarded might want, let alone deserve, something better.

THAT'S WHY I want to punch my fist through the wall or shake somebody by the lapel when I hear about setbacks like last Wednesday's incident in Troy.

It appears that another house in Troy that was being converted into a residential home for the retarded was victimized by someone intent on terrorizing the retarded.

A home at 2870 Hyline street burned Wednesday night. Arson is suspected.

Thursday morning, this newspaper and two others received anonymous phone calls from a man who mentioned the fire. He said "This is what'll happen every time those people try to move into Troy."

It's not the first time there's been violence. On May 4, shots were fired through the window of a group home at 1675 Castleton in Troy before residents moved in.

Thursday's anonymous caller doesn't think the retarded have enough sense to conduct themselves responsibly in the community.

That just may qualify as the definitive example of irony.

Hors d'oeuvre by Lynn Orr

Glitter is what you pay for Driving south on the John Lodge, Prudential Town Center's glittering facade overwhelms the urban Southfield landscape. You actually feel like you're in a city after driving miles through two-story northwest suburbia.

Those highrises act like a beacon to city lovers escaping the pastorate.

Looking for a parking spot near the golden towers unfortunately takes all the fun out of urbanity.

Try to slip a small gas-saver into most of the Prudential lots. It's impossible. Cars jam the fire lane. (City hall, take note. Better yet, where were you guys when the site plans were going down?)

In my first excursion to the new landmark I ended up stuck behind the "Movies" entrance, unknowingly even farther away from my destination — the new office of the family ophthalmologist.

In making the appointment, I had carefully asked the receptionist where the new office was. She had cheerfully given the information.

FIRST MISTAKE. I should have trusted my instincts and looked up the site plan at city hall.

This is no dumb suburban kid. As a working mother I know you either get the first or last appointment of the day to avoid long waits. Getting through a new highrise complex is like stalking your way through a new mall. Both require fortitude and a map.

As I quickly discovered, the receptionist had erred. I fell into my best Lewis and Clark frame of mind for the sojourn ahead.

That prompted a brief history lesson my son would rather have avoided. But exhilarated because he missed morning math, he put up with it.

We rummaged through two buildings, checking out the glass directories, before meeting a security guard with a precious directory of the other buildings.

She volunteered the information that our doctor is in the new four-story building and pointed out the path to it. However, that path was blocked by construction.

WE WENT outside and walked around the complex until we found the professional center. We hurdled a couple sawhorses, much to the surprise of a few construction workers.

Once in the office, art propped against the wall, I casually told the receptionist she might better inform patients of the precise location of the new quarters and where to park.

"Do you know how many people I have to talk to in one day?" she offered.

So much for communication.

My son and I parked ourselves on a leatherette sofa and began the wait. A Punch magazine on the table should have warned me that the doctor had outgrown my budget, but my instincts at that point were fogged by all the sawdust in the air.

The doctor came out brusquely to announce the name of the next patient. This is the kind of guy that will cancel the appointment if you fail to make it across the reception area in 10 seconds. He mentioned in passing to the receptionist that 27 patients failed to show up the day before.

I had an inkling of why that might have happened but restrained further comment. My son often finds me embarrassing.

FINALLY, it was our turn. As in most doctors' visits, I've often felt the conveyor companies were missing out on potential clients. Two minutes, drops in the eyes, wait in the reception room again, another two minute visit with the doctor. But the news that glasses weren't needed yet picked up our spirits.

On the way out, I stopped to pay the bill. "$50," was the receptionist's only comment to me. I gathered she was still smarting from the earlier conversation.

"Haven't your prices (excuse me, fees) gotten a little steep?" I asked in my best imitation of astonishment — grammar departs in shock.

"I just write it up," she mumbled.

I wrote the check with a shaking hand and we left prepared to make our way back through the maze.

Unfortunately, the $50 tab meant we had to bypass "Bookpeople" and a fancy little restaurant for brunch.

It was time for another lesson — this time in economics: He who goes to doctor newly ensconced in fancy setting should be prepared to pay for privilege.

All that glitters requires gold.

Daniel's Den

Play courteously or not at all

The game of chess reached a high point in popularity a few years back when Bobby Fisher was battling for the world title.

That's too bad, in a way, because Fisher never represented the classic chess player in mannerism. He certainly did in his play, though.

The Fisher behavior did, however, break a lot of stereotypes about chess players being stuffy intellectuals, who could only be lured into excitement if someone knocked over their chess board.

After a burst of activity when it seemed as if everyone was learning to play chess, interest died. Many people packed away their chess boards and took up cribbage, backgammon, racquetball, soccer or jogging.

BUT THERE IS still a corps of chess enthusiasts around who meet each week to do battle at the board.

Some are those who learned the game in the days when Bobby Fisher was a national legend. Others were playing long before Bobby picked up his first pawn.

But in spite of their tenure in the game, they are avid players. They meet every Tuesday from 7:30-11 p.m. in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

For 45 minutes intensity mounts as strategy is matched with counter-strategy and, just like football, time becomes the real enemy.

One major test of a good chess player is when he or she is ready to play a timed game. Almost anyone can eventually wear down an opponent and gain a checkmate if given three to four hours. But set the timer for 90 minutes, or an hour, and the better player will come out on top. Chess is a game in which courtesy is of high importance. This is one reason Fisher lost some marks with many chess players.

One of the highest courtesies of the game, for instance, is that the king is never captured. Instead, it is only checkmated — put in a position where capture cannot be avoided on the next move. The next move, however, never comes.

In a similar vein, a sneak attack on the king is never allowed. Whenever the king is in danger of capture on the next move, the player must warn his opponent by calling "check" — an abbreviation for "check the king."

In fact, this courtesy is of such ultimate priority that the game could never be played without the "check" being issued when called for.

Another courteous feature, which most players evoke, is to avoid drawing out a game when the result is inevitable. The players usually concede. A concession results in a victory, with no advantage for winner or loser.

COURTESY PREVAILS throughout the game.

In a timed game, both players will remain at the board until the game is completed. Only in a prolonged game, when the clock is not running, will a player walk away from the table while the game is in progress.

A player will not chatter endlessly while his opponent is pondering a move. Instead, he or she will wait until the move is made and then talk, before concentrating on the next move.

Serious chess players also will not banter an opponent about taking too much time studying the next move. Silence is observed between moves, especially when a player is concentrating.

If the players are really serious about chess, the loser will shake hands with the victor — the handshake being a recognition of the checkmate.

Not all courtesies are extended, in team play competition. In my younger days, in team play, I purposely created some minor little disturbances (such as scraping my chair on the floor, jerking my body suddenly, or coughing at the right moment) to unglue my opponent.

But I would never think of behaving that way in a friendly match. In fact, today I would never behave that way in team competition. Courtesy is one lesson young chess players must learn beyond acquiring game skills.

That's one lesson I will have to get around to with my daughter Bridgette who has been pestering me recently, to teach her to play chess.

She knows all the moves, and is picking up a bit on defense. She's about ready for offensive strategy, but first a little courtesy. The game, after all, must be played properly or it really isn't chess.

The Stroller The missing treat

The once green lawns were covered with leaves that had turned golden with the coming of autumn.

Up and down the wooded drive on which The Stroller lives the folks were busy raking leaves toward the street. The arduous task of getting rid of them and piling them into high mounds was nearing completion as the golden sun starting passing from view.

It was a pleasant sight as the neighbors called to one another with the hope that the city's trucks would soon come along and gobble them up and avoid blowing them back on the lawn.

As The Stroller stood there enjoying the entire activity he suddenly felt there was something missing. It suddenly dawned on him that the leaves no longer were set on fire and that he missed the smell of the burning leaves.

Prior to the ban on the burning of these golden bits of Mother Nature's discarded dress, it always was fun to pile the leaves in big heaps and ignite them with a bit of flaming newspaper. But above the fun was the wonderful smell that helped make autumn stand apart from the rest of the year.

AS THE AIR filled with this pleasing odor it became known, seriously, as the high point of the smelling season.

But, in the name of progress, the ecologists gathered enough strength to have the fires banned. They argued that the fires sort of poisoned the air we breathe and that it was not healthy to have one's lungs filled with the smell and smoke.

They won their point. But they deprived the rest of us of the magnificent odor of the burning leaves. And The Stroller feels the loss more and more each year.

His only recourse, now, after the leaves are raked into the big piles, is to return to his living room. There he selects one of his best liked recordings, "Autumn Leaves," and listens to it as he peers out of the window to watch the leaves come tumbling by.

The burning leaves are just one of the things that are now missing from what folks down in the Dutch country referred to as the "smelling season."

It was during the autumn months that our mothers used to spend many hours over a hot stove in the kitchen preparing for the winter. And there was a different smell most every day.

The moment The Stroller returned from work and started to cross the back porch he could tell by the smell that she had been making ketchup during the day. The boiling of the tomatoes and the other ingredients had an odor all its own.

IT WAS the same when she was baking bread. The smell was so pleasing as it wafted its way out of the kitchen, through the entire house and into the backyard.

The closest thing to those days now is a trip down Grand River on the way to downtown Detroit and pass the Wonder Bakery. There the odor of baking bread is another throwback to the days of the smelling season.

There never was any guesswork in those days. The odor coming from the kettles atop the old wood stoves couldn't be mistaken. There was the odor of sauerkraut when Mother used to prepare that with a bit of pork for dinner. And there was a much different odor when she was making jams or jellies.

Those days were pushed into the limbo of forgotten things with the arrival of the supermarkets. Mothers no longer spend long hours in the kitchen.

That is understandable. It's what folks call progress. But when it comes to getting rid of the golden autumn leaves The Stroller feels he is being denied one of the real treats of the season when he is not allowed to burn them.

Of tricks or treats, worthwhile eats

I love to go to festivals in other countries, especially when the local people dress in bizarre costumes and carry on in a wild and fun-loving fashion. I am totally unprepared for tourists who come from other countries to witness our cultural peculiarities.

One of those cultural oddities is Halloween, which is rooted in ancient pagan tradition but is now a festival common only in the United States and Canada.

I have invited many people from around the world to my home on Halloween, and watched with fascination while they handed out candy to the children.

FOREIGN VISITORS are much more interested in that little local event than they are in more prestigious tourist events, because it reflects a home-based tradition that they would not normally experience.

The closest foreign holiday to Halloween is Guy Fawkes Day, which is celebrated on Nov. 5 in England. Guy Fawkes Day commemorates the foiling of the Gunpowder Plot, in which rebels were prevented from blowing up the English House of Parliament in 1605.

The fate of those rebels is described in chilling historical descriptions that includes phrases like "hung face down from the tail of a horse," "drawn and quartered," et cetera.

It is celebrated in England by the children, who dress up in costumes, blow off firecrackers and dance around straw dummies of the infamous Mr. Fawkes. Sometimes they burn him in effigy.

A MORE ELEGANT and close-to-home commemoration of Guy Fawkes Day will be held at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Saturday, Nov. 3, when the second annual Cranbrook-Guy Fawkes Ball will be hosted by the Women's Committee of the Academy.

The only chilling thing about this event is the price, $125 a couple for dinner and dancing or $35 a couple for younger-than-35s to come and disco after dinner, but it qualifies as a festival in many ways.

The visual hullabaloo that surrounds a celebration is half the fun, and they will use trumpeters, banners, a torch-lit entrance and a giant bonfire-with-effigy, in true festival tradition.

They will also serve food that Guy Fawkes probably never was invited to taste, although it is a true part of medieval eating: Tart de Bry (cheese in pie crust), Saumon Ysod (poached salmon), A Roast with Oysters Sawse Madame (tenderloin stuffed with oysters), Rapes (lentil crisps), Salat, and Circletes (rolls).

The money from the event will go to the scholarship fund at Cranbrook.

IF YOU WOULD rather festival in the Caribbean, a Canadian organization called Villa Vacations has extended its service to Jamaica, Barbados and St. Lucia. One- or two-week charter packages leave from Toronto and include villa, cottage or apartment accommodations as well as air fare and car rental.

Prices vary, depending on the number of people in your party and the kind of accommodations, but range in Jamaica from $325 per person (if six people share) to $830 a person if two people share, for a week. There is enough variety in price to make it a reasonable vacation for most people.

Call the Canadian Government Office of Tourism in Detroit or write to World Wide Villa Vacations, a division of Vincent Travel and Tour Associates Ltd., 175 Bloor St. East, Toronto, Ontario, Canada M4W 1C8. Telephone 416-923-3334.

World Wide Villas also offers this unusual accommodation package in places like Mexico, Florida, Hawaii, Vermont, California and throughout Canada, as well as yacht vacations in the Caribbean and special villa arrangements in Europe.

TRAVEL LOG of Iris Jones

One more for the coach

UNITED AIRLINE FLIGHT 118, Hawaii to Chicago — We are eating braised tenderloin tips with red wine, but many of the passengers in the forward compartment brought their own lunch.

Economy fare is a tradition in the Honolulu market, although it is almost unknown in the rest of the United States.

Continental and United airlines have recently introduced it on flights between Denver and Chicago.

I am a coach-fare passenger. I have three meal choices, and a choice of red or white wine, all free with my coach fare. I pay for cocktails and for headsets to watch the movie.

In the forward compartment, between coach and first class, 40 economy passengers are flying at a rate that saves them about $8 on the fare between Hawaii and Los Angeles and about $15 between Hawaii and Chicago.

They can buy a meal for $3 and wine for $1.50 a split, but most of them bring their own lunch. They carry a picnic lunch of cold meat, cheese and fruit or buy a box of Kentucky Fried Chicken and eat it cold.

No movie is shown in the economy section. You make standard advance plane reservations but you cannot ask for advance seat reservations as you can in other classes.

Those are the public rules, but there are other rules that the average passenger might not know about.

IF ECONOMY CLASS is fully booked, and there are extra seats in coach, you will be seated in coach and have access to the movie. But don't count on it.

That's the good news. The bad news is that it is illegal to bring your own liquor aboard a commercial airplane, so you'll have to buy it or do without.

Finally, the state of Hawaii does not allow you to bring certain agricultural products into the islands, so plan to eat your entire carry-on lunch on the plane.

Hawaii may be one of our American states but in one respect travelers must act as if they are in a foreign country.

All agricultural products must be registered on a customs-like form going into the islands, and your luggage is searched for offending agricultural contents when you leave the island for the mainland.

The purpose is to prevent the spread of plant disease in either direction.

They said, 'Build us a bridge' and that's just what he's doing

A perfect relationship between a man and a town will produce, by mid-1980, an enduring monument to Americana, known in days gone by as a kissing bridge.

Milton S. Graton, nationally known as a builder of covered highway bridges, and Frankenmuth, Mich., a village dedicated to the preservation of the past, have joined to create a 239-foot replica of an authentic 19th century covered bridge, to be known as Zehnder's Holz-Brücke, which will span the Cass River in downtown Frankenmuth.

Graton, a bridge builder for 50 of his 70 years, has been exclusively concerned for the last 23 years with the design, restoration, and construction of wooden highway covered bridges in his home state of New Hampshire, the United States and in Canada. He is an authority on these durable, if not romantic, reminders of horse and buggy days.

Working side by side with his son, Arnold, 42, who has been a bridge builder since he graduated from high school, Graton builds with complete authenticity, using time-honored plans of more than a century ago.

The pair will do most of the work themselves, because "you have to keep it down to a small operation to control the quality of the work," Graton said.

GRATON CAME TO bridge building by a roundabout route.

In 1936, after a stint of more than five years hauling logs with a lumber gang, Graton was initiated into the kind of engineering that drew him into an on-going love affair with covered bridges.

"In '36, the Pemigewasset River overflowed and washed a house in Holderness off its foundation and left it in the middle of the road. I was asked if I could move it and I figured I'd give it a try." He succeeded.

By 1947, Graton was operating his own moving and rigging business. In 1959, he got his first request to move a covered bridge.

"We moved some bridges for the Army Corps of Engineers in Vermont, and while doing some light repairs to make them serviceable in their new location, we noticed the workmanship was very good," he said. "When it came along time that one was going to be wrecked because nobody could save it, then we worked along with the guy who wanted to save it, because of all the good work that went into them," he said.

He taught himself bridge building by studying and reconstructing the work of the old master carpenters and bridge builders.

THE FRANKENMUTH BRIDGE will be the third of the town lattice type that Graton has designed and built from scratch. Two others are located in Woodstock, Vt., and Henniker, N.H.

Graton has built or completely restored a total of 23 bridges. "You can get one a year. Some are small, but then you get a big one that ties you up longer," he said.

When asked how long the bridge could be expected to last, Graton said, Milton Graton (at bottom of picture) and company put their special touches to a covered bridge they are building in Frankenmuth. Graton has been building bridges for 50 of his 70 years.

"If it's taken care of, this bridge is a 500-year proposition. Of the bridges we've worked on, over a hundred years old, you can take your jackknife and still bring up fresh wood."

The Graton's started work on the Frankenmuth bridge in the spring of 1979, and expect the essential work to be completed by mid-January 1980.

Graton uses wood almost exclusively in the construction and restoration of covered bridges.

"The amount of metal we use is almost negligible. When you have to use that kind of stuff, it's a job for someone else. If metal has to go into it, we go out of it," he said.

Trunnels (originating from the combination of tree nails) are the huge wooden dowels that are used to tie together the lattice-work sides. The roof shingles are fashioned of half-inch white cedar, cut locally, and the truss-work and floor joists are made from Douglas fir from Oregon.

Graton said he gets tremendous satisfaction from his work, and as long as his health stays good, he'll keep on building bridges.

"To pay out money to play golf, just to be doing something, I might as well be pounding trunnels as pelting a golf ball. This way I can see where I hit."

Pack it tight, pack it right

The ultimate in traveling light is a carry-on suitcase. Coupled with a hanging garment bag, the underseat bag is favored by many business travelers surveyed by Western International Hotels.

In addition to being easy to tote, the combination streamlines the airport procedures. With no baggage to check, there is no waiting for bags at the luggage claim.

Even if you are on vacation and going to stay at one resort for two weeks, resist the temptation to pack your steamer trunk.

Check airline regulations before you fly, to find out if there is an extra charge for sports equipment.

And remember that part of the fun of vacationing may be to buy a swimsuit in Hawaii or a sports outfit in Mexico. Leave an empty corner in your suitcase to bring back these souvenirs.

Bach in the Thumb

Three days towards November's end will find Michigan residents of the Thumb area participating in and enjoying the music of J.S. Bach.

Noted musicians from throughout the United States will be hosted for the Thanksgiving weekend, Nov. 23-25, in rural Cass City for rehearsals and performances under the baton of conductor Don Th. Jaeger.

Concerts will take place at the Presbyterian Church, a historical building housing a Henry Erban Tracker organ (1865), an instrument well suited to Bach's music.

Among the many performers participating in the festival will be Norman Paulu, first violinist of the Pro Arte Quartet at the University of Wisconsin; Catherine Paulu, oboist; Doris Ornstein, harpsichordist at the Cleveland Institute and Aspen Festival; William Preucil Jr., violinist from Indiana University; and Doris Preucil, violinist from Iowa City, Iowa.

Encompassing the three-day festival will be lectures by Rosella Duerksen, noted church music specialist from Iowa City, Iowa; organ recitals; and two major concerts performed by the Festival Orchestra and soloists and conducted by Jaeger.

Jaeger is conductor of the Midland and Northwestern Michigan symphony orchestras, the Northwest Symphony and numerous other orchestras throughout Michigan and the United States.

The setting for the first Village Bach Festival is not unlike northern Germany with its small communities and old churches with fine old organs, for which Bach composed so much of his great music.

Travel writers' association readies its 17th film fest

The Michigan Outdoor Writers Association (MOWA) has invited producers and distributors of outdoor and travel movies to compete in its 17th annual National Outdoor Travel Film Festival.

Top films will receive Teddy statuette-plaques in honor of conservation-minded President Theodore Roosevelt, and 16mm sound film strips proclaiming them winners.

Any film not entered in the contest previously can compete.

There are 11 prize categories: fishing, hunting, boating and water sports, travel-outdoor-recreation, outdoor documentary, how-to-do-it, most unusual treatment of outdoor subjects, best ecology documentary, junior sportsman, most unusual travel film, and best air travel film.

Government agencies, business firms, film producers and individuals are eligible for prizes to be awarded at MOWA's Feb. 9 awards banquet. Winning films will be viewed by MOWA members attending the weekend meeting at the Gull Lake Conference Center of Michigan State University at Hickory Corners.

Entry deadline is Dec. 7. Details and contest rules can be obtained from Len Barnes, MOWA contest chairman, at Michigan Living — AAA Motor News, Auto Club Drive, Dearborn 48126.

Films will be returned after judging.

'Apocalypse Now' exciting to the eye but story murky

"Apocalypse Now" (R) is a great beast of a film: Provocative in its moral thrust, fascinating in its literary interpretation, mesmerizing in its visual effects and intimidating in its size.

Its deficiencies are no less imposing. They are the obverse of its merits. The moral position becomes murky, caught between an abhorrence for war and an admiration for military heroics. The literary content, adapted from Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness," never achieves a cinematic force equal to its impact as a novel.

Finally, the size of the film in terms of running time (just under three hours), is a handicap that tests the viewer's patience.

Only the visuals are true to their promise. Stunning scenes of an air-cavalry strike mounted to Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries," of a battle at a bridge realized in hallucinogenic colors and sounds, and an eerie tableau of painted warriors in their canoes are highlights of the dazzling cinematography.

THESE EXTREMES testify to the scope of the film. They virtually assure the existence of sizable problems, even though director, Francis Ford Coppola, has proven himself a master of epics with "Godfather" I and II.

However, in Apocalypse Now," he eschews those very qualities which vitalized the Godfather films — the close scrutiny of characters, the piling up of details of speech, dress and manner; and, most important, the narrative drive that invigorates the storyteller's art.

Instead, Coppola appears more intent on creating a psychological reality rather than a material one.

To integrate the experience of Vietnam with the haunting power of Conrad's novel seems like a smashing idea. Simply put, the Conrad novel chronicles a journey from civilization and reason to jungle savagery and the dark forces of the id.

Replacing Conrad's narrator, we have Capt. Willard (Martin Sheen).

Willard, an intelligence office, is ordered to proceed upriver to the jungle compound of the renegade Green Beret officer Colonel Kurtz (Marlon Brando) and to "terminate" his command. The irony of the mission is not lost on Willard, who reflects that "accusing someone of murder in Vietnam is like handing out speeding tickets at the Indy 500."

Willard's continued voice-over narration and persistent presence might be expected to give unity to the film. They don't. The two stories never mesh. Conrad's moral horror, difficult to convey, is not the same thing as war's moral anarchy.

Premiering

Alex Karras and Susan Clark await the next scene of "Jimmy B. and Andre," a made-for-TV movie filmed entirely in Detroit last summer. The world premiere of the movie will be presented Friday, Nov. 2, at the Detroit Plaza Hotel. The event, featuring Alex Karras, is sponsored by the Michigan Chapter, American Society of Interior Designers, for the benefit of the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan. The film also introduces Curtis Yates, a young Detroit actor, as Andre, the ghetto youth who in real life was befriended by Jimmy Butsicaris, owner of the downtown Detroit Lindell AC. Tickets are $50 and $35, with reservations available from the American Lung Association by calling 961-1697.

Glimpses

NEW RELEASES

THE AMITYVILLE HORROR (R). James Brolin and Margot Kidder look for a "dream house" and find a nightmare.

AMERICATHON (PG). Wild, but maybe not too wild, tale of giant telethon to erase the national debt as U.S. goes broke in 1998.

AND JUSTICE FOR ALL (R). Al Pacino is a young trial lawyer dedicated to his profession and profoundly troubled by the legal system.

APOCALYPSE NOW (R). Francis Ford Coppola's epic film of the Vietnam war interwoven with the characters and stunning impact of Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness."

BEYOND THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE (PG). Sequel about the upended ship with adventurers after the "spoils," while more passengers are found wandering about. Can you believe it?

THE CONCORDE — AIRPORT '79 (PG). Latest entry in "Airport" series is the silliest yet. All-star cast can't save this.

THE DEER HUNTER (R). An emotionally gripping and violent film about the lives of three friends from a small steeltown as they are affected by the Vietnam war.

DRACULA (R). A scary and very sensual remake with Frank Langella in the title role he played on Broadway.

ESCAPE FROM ALCATRAZ (PG). Clint Eastwood and director Don Siegel team up again to create a tense, taut drama from the conventions of the prison escape film.

HOT STUFF (PG). Dom DeLuise directed and stars in slick comedy about an undercover police fencing operation.

THE IN-LAWS (PG). Hilarious comedy with Peter Falk and Alan Arkin as near-relatives who not only plan a wedding but ripoff the U.S. Mint.

LOST AND FOUND (PG). George Segal and Glenda Jackson are paired again in romantic comedy about a fractured couple who meet in the Swiss Alps and decide to yodel on through life together.

LUNA (R). Uneasy and self-conscious film of widowed opera singer (Jill Clayburgh) and her incestuous relationship with her teenage son.

THE MAIN EVENT (PG). Barbra Streisand is a perfume manufacturer who manages a retired boxer, Ryan O'Neal, in comedy about the fight game.

A MAN, A WOMAN AND A BANK (PG). Caper movie doesn't cut much of a caper as engineer and computer expert team up to rob a bank.

MANNHATTAN (R). The inhabitants are somewhat frayed, but the Big Apple looks glorious in Woody Allen's witty peek at the pairings and partings among New York literati.

METEOR (PG). Disaster movies aren't big this year, but this is a big disaster movie about a five-mile wide meteor on a collision course with Earth. Sean Connery, Natalie Wood, Karl Malden and many others in the large, competent cast.

MONTE PYTHON'S LIFE OF BRIAN (R). Totally irreverent, completely zany story tracing the life of Brian Cohen, a peasant born at the same time as Christ.

MOONRAKER (PG). James Bond (Roger Moore) in space adventure with Lois Chiles for company and Richard Kiel (the metalmouthed "Jaws") for challenge in most spectacular of the 007 films.

MORE AMERICAN GRAFFITI (PG). George Lucas' very successful continuation of "American Graffiti" examines the lives of seven of the original characters and their problems in the troubled '60s.

MR. MIKE'S MONDO VIDEO (R). TV film is collection of bizarre events in continuing, exploitive, downgraded rip-off of "Mondo Cane."

THE MUPPET MOVIE (G). Anyone who doesn't like this movie is probably in need of immediate CPR. A host of stars make cameo appearances but none outshines Jim Henson's laughable, lovable muppets as they head for Hollywood.

NIGHTWING (PG). Some scary moments in the shocker about vampire bats on a Hopi Indian reservation.

NORTH DALLAS FORTY (R). Fine performances from Nick Nolte and Mac Davis as pro-football players in film that takes hard look at the commercialism of the game.

THE ONION FIELD (R). Joseph Wambaugh's powerful drama of a shoot-out and the consequences for the policeman involved.

PEPPERMINT SODA (PG). Charming account of two adolescent sisters growing up in Paris in 1936.

RICH KIDS (PG). Tender, funny film about the effects of divorce on children and about the friendship of two intelligent 12-year-olds.

ROCKY II (PG). Sylvester Stallone as Rocky Balboa, the over-the-hill boxer, returns for a rematch with the heavyweight champ.

THE SEDUCTION OF JOE TYNNAN (R). Familiar story about the pressures on a "decent" politician, Alan Alda. Hackneyed situations are redeemed by the acting of Barbara Harris, Meryl Streep and Rip Torn.

SKATETOWN U.S.A. (PG). The roller-disco craze gets its due in film about a championship derby and the hot rollers participating.

STARTING OVER (R). Romantic comedy with toned down Burt Reynolds torn between his ex-wife, Candice Bergen, who records a hit song, and his new love, Jill Clayburgh, an independent schoolteacher.

SUNBURN (PG). Poorly written, edited and directed detective-comedy that should leave the participants red-faced.

10 (R). Comedy with Dudley Moore who tosses out his tenured roommate, Julie Andrews, in his search for the perfect "10."

UNIDENTIFIED FLYING ODDBALL (G). Lagging Disney comedy about Cape Kennedy engineer who gets launched into Round Table days. Based on Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court."

Angus Wilson: Living the life of a satirist

Angus Wilson's novels are like a gracefully executed pratfall: Each is simultaneously funny and painful.

The 66-year-old Wilson, acknowledged as one of the greatest contemporary writers of satire, says he "was brought up in hotels filled with a lot of washed-up people who wouldn't talk to anyone, but for some reason told me all of their intimate stories."

"I had to make some sense of this," says Wilson, writer-in-residence at the University of Michigan this fall.

The sense that he makes out of his experiences abounds with outlandish characters — from nymphomaniacs to rice geneticists — that evoke in the reader both empathy and amusement. As guests in Wilson's childhood home never escaped "without being done (kidded)," neither are his characters safe from his zany, yet incisively ordered British humor.

Not even the critics can manage a clean getaway. In his novel "Late Call," Wilson concocts a character who, although physically deformed, is apparently intellectually agile: she quotes literary classics profusely — from Pushkin to Byron — in relationship to her own life.

THE CRITICS congratulated Wilson for his allusions to the works of these great artist-philosophers, Wilson recalls. "Not one of them realized that I had made up all of the quotations," he adds.

Although Wilson may strip characters of their pretensions, he does leave them their dignity, as the following anecdote illustrates: "The only time I was ever shocked in America," he says, "even though I'd been told lots of things were unfair here, was when I was walking down the street in New York City with a friend and along came these funny women with brown paper bags with bottles or something in them, I suppose, and my friend said 'Have a good laugh. Here come the bag ladies.' To think that human beings could be reduced to this!"

Wilson is perhaps most blasphemous about his own work. Even though he sees his transformation from superintendent of the British Museum's Library reading room into a full-time writer at age 55 as "sort of a Cinderella thing," that doesn't deter him from describing it on occasion as a kind of pumpkin.

Elated over completing his first short story, Wilson recalls, he had the following encounter with his housekeeper: "She came in to bring my tea at 4 o'clock and I said, 'Oh, Mrs. Baker, I wrote a short story.' She replied, 'Oh Lord, how ever could you stay inside on a nice day like this!'"

FORTUNATELY, another of Wilson's friends, who was also an artist, reacted more enthusiastically. He took Wilson's story to the widow of George Orwell, who was instrumental in getting it into the magazine "Horizon." Shortly after "Raspberry Jam" — "a story about a little boy and two old madwomen," Wilson says — appeared, his current publisher, an old school chum, approached him and lamented, "If you had a dozen or so of these stories, I'd publish them in a book."

"Oh, I have 15!" Wilson countered. His first volume of stories, "The Wrong Set" (1949), was the result. His other works include: "Such Darling Dodos," another collection of short stories published in 1950; a critical study of "Emile Zola" (1952); "Hemlock and After," a novel (1952); "Anglo-Saxon Attitudes," a Book Society Choice (1956); "A Bit Off the Map," short stories (1957); "The Middle Age of Mrs. Eliot," a novel, winner of the James Tait Black prize and the Prix du Meilleur Roman Etranger (1958); "The Old Men at the Zoo," a novel (1961); "Late Call," a novel produced by BBC Television (1964); "The Wild Garden," based on the Ewing Lectures presented at the University of California, Los Angeles (1963); "No Laughing Matter," a novel (1967); "The World of Charles Dickens," a biographical study, winner of the Yorkshire Post Prize (1970); "As If by Magic," a novel (1973); and "The Strange Ride of Rudyard Kipling," a biographical study (1977).

WILSON also is sought after as a teacher. He is professor emeritus at the 'Old friends who knew me before I started to write find it difficult to accept me as a writer.'

University of East Anglia at Norfolk, England, and has had temporary appointments at several institutions in this country and in England. Among his other credits are the titles Commander of the Order of the British Empire and a Chevalier of the Order des Arts et des Lettres (France). He holds several honorary degrees, as well as a degree in history from Merton College in Oxford, England. During World War II, Wilson was an intelligence officer.

Yet, despite his still accumulating professional plaudits, Wilson maintains — as in the case of his housekeeper — that he "never ought to expect my family nor friends to say the right thing" about his vocation. One relative, to whom Wilson had dedicated a novel, thanked the author for so distinguishing him and his wife, who interrupted, remarking that people were "saying strange things about the book" — could Wilson, the couple inquired, "find a way to undedicate it?"

"Old friends who knew me before I started to write find it difficult to accept me as a writer," Wilson reflects. They tend to regard him, he says, "rather as if I'd grown two extra legs!"

As for the viewpoint of the rest of the world, Wilson says that when people see him sitting outside working, as is his habit, "They either say 'He's a writer!' and hush themselves reverently, or they think I'm crazy and keep away."

"Sometimes I'll get these calls from Italian girls — students who are writing their dissertation on me, and they'll say 'Are you the author of 'Anglo-Saxon Attitudes'?' I'll say yes, and they'll say 'Why?'"

"I've often wondered why myself," he adds and laughs.

'Lion and Jewel' opens U-M theater this week

African playwright Wole Soyinka's "The Lion and the Jewel" opens the University of Michigan Showcase Season starting Wednesday.

The season will consist of four contemporary, full-length plays, all directed by doctoral students. All performances will take place in the Trueblood Theater in Ann Arbor's Frieze Building.

The play combines music, dance, mime and African ceremony to tell a humorous folk tale about the courting of a young girl by both the village chief and his rival, the "westernized" school teacher.

Tickets for Showcase productions are available at the Professional Theater Program ticket office in the Michigan League building. Hours are 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2-5 p.m. Monday-Friday. For more information call 764-0450.

Second offering of the season will be "Tango" by Slawomir Mrozek, running Nov. 14-17, to be directed by Laura Gardner Salazar. The major social and philosophical issues of this century are confronted in the context of an absurdly drawn eastern European family. This tragicomedy is Mrozek's best-known play to western audiences.

RUNNING FEB. 6-9 will be S. N. Behrman's "End of Summer," directed by Martin Friedman.

Attic hosts 'Buried Child'

Don Craig, Ron Martell and Harlan Mover (from back to foreground) star in "Buried Child," Sam Shepard's Pulitzer Prize winning play about three generations of an unusual American farm family. The Attic Theatre will feature the play through Dec. 1. For ticket information, call 963-7789.

Nuke survivors surveyed

"The People of Three Mile Island," the story of the people who live and work close to the nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., will be presented at 10 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 56.

This hour-long special is a look at the response of people directly affected by the accident. Though their lives go on much as before, they will be studied for years to come.

A young mother of two worries about her children's future. A farmer says life and livestock have been adversely affected. And there is a couple in their 50s who say they'll move if the plant reopens.

In addition, flashbacks recall a Catholic priest who talks about administering General Absolution to his congregation the Sunday following the accident and Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh, who reflects on his decision not to order a general evacuation despite pressure to do so.

The Warming Oven by Emily Watson

First of all, in response to the reader who couldn't find quinces, there is a source.

A friend planned to have some brought up from her mother's place in Ohio this past weekend. They are $10 a bushel but you probably wouldn't need the whole bushel for a few batches of jelly.

Give me a call at 459-2700 and I'll tell you how to contact Carol and the quinces.

AND FOR the mother who called to say she wasn't interested in gourmet recipes, this is for you. I know exactly what you meant when you said you preferred something a little more practical.

Back when I was cooking for six, baked potatoes and beef 'n biscuit was one of our favorites menus. You can put them both in the oven and relax.

If your family enjoys hot biscuits, they'll love beef and biscuit. (They even taste good cold).

BEEF N' BISCUIT

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tbsp. margarine
- 1 tsp. salt
- Dash of pepper
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 1 cup milk
- Rich biscuit dough
- 1 10 1/2-oz. can tomato soup (optional)

Brown meat, onion, and green pepper in margarine. Season with salt and pepper. Add flour, blend; add milk and cook. Stir all the while until thickened.

Roll dough 1/2 inch thickness in rectangle (about 8x12 inches) and brush with butter. Spread cooled meat mixture on dough, then roll jelly-roll fashion, sealing edge. Slice in about 3/4-inch slices. Place cut side down on greased cookie pan. Bake in 450-degree oven for 20-25 minutes.

The heated, full-strength tomato soup sauce is optional. The kids probably would prefer catsup. When I dug this recipe out of the archives, I discovered the rich biscuit recipe was not included. You can use a biscuit mix, two cups will be the right amount but add a couple of rounded tablespoons of shortening before adding liquid.

ITALIAN MEAT SAUCE STARTER

- 1 cup oil or cooking fat
- 3 cloves garlic
- 3 green peppers, chopped
- 3 large onions sliced fine
- 3 lbs. ground beef
- 3 cans tomato paste
- 3 cans tomato sauce
- 3 cups boiling water
- 1 tsp. celery salt
- 1 tsp. garlic salt
- 1 tsp. chili powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tbsp. paprika
- 2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tbsp. A-1 sauce
- 3 tbsp. chili sauce

Heat oil in large heavy kettle. Add crushed garlic, green pepper and onions. Cook over low heat five minutes. Add meat; mix well and cook on high heat until lightly browned. Add tomato paste, tomato sauce and water. Cook over low heat for two hours. Add seasonings. Cool quickly. Package and freeze in pint containers. Yield: 10 pints.

To thaw, put container under hot water until contents can be slipped out. Or, remove from freezer and let stand at room temperature several hours before using. Or, remove from freezer and let stand overnight in refrigerator.

MEAT SAUCE AND SPAGHETTI

- 2 pints meat sauce
- 1/2 cup tomato juice
- 1 8-oz. pkg. spaghetti
- 1 tsp. salt
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Thaw meat sauce and heat with tomato juice. Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Serve with meat sauce and cheese.

MEAT SAUCE WITH KIDNEY BEANS

- 1 pt. meat sauce
- 1 can red kidney beans
- 1/2 cup red wine

Combine all ingredients in a 1 1/2-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Recipes for creamy mallow cheesecake, ratatouille Pyrenees and herb sauced fish appear inside.

Pumpkin Muffins

- 1-1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 cup canned pumpkin
- 1/3 cup margarine
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup raisins

Combine dry ingredients. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Line plastic muffin tray or custard cups with paper liners. Spoon batter into six cups, filling each cup 1/2 full. Microcook 3 to 5 minutes or until tops are set, turning once each minute. Remove muffins from tray or cups immediately. Cool on wire rack. Repeat with remaining batter. Approximately 1 dozen

To Reheat: Microcook on paper towel until hot using the following times as guidelines. Serve immediately.

- 1 muffin — 10 to 15 seconds
- 2 muffins — 20 to 25 seconds
- 3 muffins — 25 to 30 seconds

Tip: Some muffins may be done before others. If so, remove; continue micro-cooking remaining muffins a few seconds.

Savory Scrambled Eggs

- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 6 eggs
- 1/3 cup milk
- 1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese, cubed
- Salt and pepper

Microcook margarine in 1-1/2-quart casserole 30 seconds or until melted. Add eggs and milk; mix well. Add cream cheese. Cover; microcook 3-1/2 to 4 minutes or until eggs are almost set, stirring after 2 minutes. Stir; let stand, covered, 2 minutes before serving. Season to taste. 4 servings

Variations: Add chopped parsley, chives, green onion slices or crisply cooked bacon, crumbled, to eggs with cream cheese.

Omit cream cheese. Microcook eggs as directed until almost set. Add 1/2 cup (2 ozs.) shredded Kraft sharp natural cheddar or Casino monterey jack cheese. Continue as directed.

The Happy Cooker

by Elayne Susan Stulberg

Early American chowder - the original one-dish meal

Early American settlers landing in Plymouth found their small food supply almost depleted by their long journey.

Thanks to friendly Indians, who introduced them to new and unfamiliar foods, they were able to survive. They were taught how to prepare pumpkins, sweet potatoes, squash, cranberries and corn.

However, their main food supply came directly from the sea with its unlimited fish and shellfish. Clams, oysters, mussels, lobsters (some weighing as much as 25 pounds) and more than 200 varieties of fish were the mainstay of the Early American diet.

Fish soups and chowders were the favorite means of using these "gifts from the sea."

Today, chowder has become an American tradition and is probably the original one-dish meal. The big, black, cast iron stewing pot, set on coals or hung over a fire, has been replaced by modern kitchen appliances. In most homes, ranges and ovens, refrigerators and freezers are the rule rather than the exception.

Consequently, we are not interested in emulating the colonial cook's method of preparation and serving. It is obvious that our needs are not remotely related.

Nevertheless, as our lifestyles become more mechanized and complicated, we are finding ourselves drawn toward the simple, honest sustenance from which early civilization flourished. Many of us are turning away from synthetically prepared, artificially preserved plastic packaged meals on aluminum plates. We are learning to preserve some of yesterday and are blending it with the best of today.

While we still enjoy preparing large quantities of items such as chowder, we no longer serve it several days in succession as the colonial homemaker did. We remove the desired amount from the soup kettle and freeze the remainder for future meals.

Try today's hearty and satisfying recipes. While savoring your repast, let us give a special thanks to the generous bounty of our land, the cultural contributions and the fascinating ingenuity of early American cuisine which has endured to the present.

Last, but not least, . . . a debt of gratitude to Chef Larry Pagliara, who is the executive corporate chef of the C.A. Muer Corp. Known as "Chef Larry," he has presided over all of the firm's 13 restaurant kitchens since 1964. A three-time winner in national salad contests, this master deserves a major portion of the credit for the success of the Muer restaurants in Ohio, Colorado, Pennsylvania, and, of course, right here in Michigan.

The recipe for Charley's Chowder, which Chef Larry has generously agreed to share with column readers, is served in all of the Muer restaurants. So, if you have enjoyed this taste treat as a diner at any of the Muer eateries, here is your chance to prepare it yourself.

CHARLEY'S CHOWDER SOUP

2 oz. of olive oil (by volume)
3 medium size cloves of garlic (smashed)
2 oz. onions, chopped fine (by weight)
3 oz. celery, chopped fine (by weight)
A titch each of basil, oregano and thyme
6 oz. stewed tomatoes, chopped very fine (by volume)
6 pts. water (by volume)
1 lb. boneless fish (pollack or turbot) (by weight)
2 oz. clam base (by weight)
Salt to taste
1 oz. parsley, chopped fine (by weight)

Place olive oil in large pot, heat on stove until very hot. Drop into the hot oil the smashed garlic cloves. Cook cloves until golden in color. It is important that you do not burn the garlic as this will ruin the taste. Remove the cloves from the oil. While oil is still hot, add the onions and cook for a minute or two. Add basil, oregano and thyme and cook for a minute. Add celery and cook until translucent. Add finely chopped tomatoes and cook for about 20-25 minutes, stirring to prevent sticking. Add water, fish, clam base and cook for an additional 15 minutes, uncovered, at full heat. REASON: To remove moisture and concentrated fish bacteria and to extract oils for flavoring the chowder. Add salt, cover the pot and keep cooking for another 20 minutes at low heat. Stir often to break up the fish and blend flavors. When served, add the chopped parsley. Serves 6.

NOTE: If clam base is not available, change liquid content from 6 pints water to 3 pints water and 3 pints clam or Clamato juice.

NEW ENGLAND FISH CHOWDER

1 1/2 lbs. fresh cod
3 cups water
1/4 cup dry white wine
1 tsp. salt
4 slices fat salt pork, diced
3-4 potatoes, peeled and sliced thin
2-3 medium onions, peeled and diced
4 cups half and half
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
Salt and pepper to taste (use white pepper if available)
1 tbsp. paprika

Put fish in large soup kettle; add water, wine and salt. Simmer, uncovered, until fish flakes easily with a fork. Do not allow it to become mushy. Remove from liquid and set aside, reserving all liquid. Fry salt pork until lightly browned. Add onions and cook over low heat for 10 minutes. While onions cook, place potatoes in soup kettle with reserved liquid and cook until soft but not mushy. Remove skin and bones from fish and discard. Add fish, in pieces, to kettle of undrained cooked potatoes. Add cooked pork and onions with all fat from frying pan. Add half and half and heat just to boiling point. Add butter, salt, pepper and paprika. Serves 6-8.

BUSY DAY CLAM SOUP

Place 1/2 cup canned minced clams in blender. Add 1 cup chicken broth (homemade or canned), 1 1/2 tsp. dry white wine, 2 tbsp. lemon juice and 3/4 cup heavy cream. Whirl in blender. Pour into saucepan; add 1 1/2 tbsp. butter or margarine and heat through. Serve with sprinkling of paprika and a few sprigs of fresh parsley. Serves 2-3.

LOBSTER CHOWDER

2 lbs. uncooked lobster tails
4 cups half and half
6 tbsp. butter or margarine
Salt and pepper to taste

Sprinkling of paprika

Bring 3 1/2 qts. of water to a boil in a large kettle. Add onions and lobster tails. Reduce heat and cook for 10 minutes or until lobster shell is bright red. Remove lobster and reserve. Strain liquid and return to kettle. Shell lobster, reserving meat. Add shells to liquid and bring to boil. Cook until liquid is reduced to 2 1/2 cups. Strain liquid and dice lobster meat. Discard shells. Heat half and half in large saucepan. Blend in butter, reduced liquid, lobster pieces, salt, pepper and paprika, and heat through. Do not boil. Serves 6-8.

OYSTER STEW

2 qts. shucked fresh oysters, cleaned
8 tbsp. butter or margarine
8 cups half and half, heated
Salt and pepper to taste
Oyster crackers
Parsley sprigs

Place oysters in a large saucepan. Add butter and cook until edges of oysters curl. Gradually add warmed half and half, salt and pepper and heat through. Do not boil. Sprinkle with oyster crackers and garnish with parsley. Serves 8.

NOTE: This is a thin soup. If thicker consistency is desired, make a roux with 3 tbsp. butter; blend in 3 tbsp. flour over very low heat and then add the 8 cups half and half, blending until smooth. Cook 5-10 minutes until thick and smooth and gradually add to the saucepan with oysters and butter.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

Ah, Indian summer days. Golden lustrous leaves lighting up the air around.

They float to the ground and rustle, windblown, into the next yard, and the next, then hurriedly across the street.

The leaves seem like children, escaped from a watchful mother, rushing about, reveling in their freedom.

In the city, they will be caught and bagged. They will sit curbside until they are tossed into a garbage truck and taken away.

Carrying those bags to the curb, you may feel a new and exhilarating chill in the fall breezes, a chill that conjures images of soup simmering in a large pot.

Soup warms the body from the inside out. When your thermostat is turned down this winter to conserve fuel, serving soup is another very practical way to help your family remain comfortable.

Soup is an ideal Sunday supper that can be light or heavy, depending on the mood. The family cook can spend a little time getting the soup-pot going, then relax and enjoy the day with the family.

A friend of mine puts a cleaned cut-up chicken into a pot with water to cover amply, boils it until the rising scum has been skimmed off. Washed, cut-up leeds are then added, along with peeled, diced potatoes and grindings of salt and pepper.

The soup is cooked until the meat and vegetables are tender. Parsley and a little tarragon are added during the final 10 or 15 minutes of cooking.

My mother lives on a farm in South Carolina. She makes a hearty vegetable soup during spring and summer using all fresh vegetables from her garden.

She starts with about two quarts of water and two or three cups of butter beans, a tender, darker green relative of the lima bean and highly prized in the southeast.

Frozen butter beans are occasionally available in some local stores. Dried, they are used interchangeably with dry limas. Green lima beans substitute easily in this soup.

Brunswick Stew appeases hearty appetites

The following are then added at the same time: 4 to 6 very ripe, medium-size tomatoes, peeled and quartered; 3 or 4 ears of corn, the kernels sliced off the cob; 3 or 4 pods of okra, sliced; 3 or 4 medium potatoes, peeled and cut up; salt and coarse ground black pepper to taste. A heavy hand with the pepper can make this a spicy soup.

The vegetables cook 30 to 45 minutes until the flavors mix agreeably.

This simple country soup may remind you of a well-known, hearty southern concoction, Brunswick Stew, but without the meats that go into the stew. Brunswick probably earned the title stew because of the mixture of meats and vegetables, but it is served in bowls and eaten with a spoon like soup.

BRUNSWICK STEW

Two 2½ lb. chickens, cut up, or 5 lbs. rabbit, cut up.
2 lbs. boneless chuck, whole
1 tsp. salt
Freshly ground black pepper
4 tbsp. vegetable oil
2 cups thinly sliced onions
2 cups coarsely chopped celery, include tops
1 ham bone, about 2 lbs., sawed into 2-inch pieces (optional)
1 medium-size bay leaf
1 tsp. basil
3 sprigs parsley
1 fresh hot red chili, washed, seeded and crushed
8 or 9 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and coarsely chopped
1 lb. (4 cups) fresh butter beans or wax beans, washed and trimmed

8 tbsp. (1 stick) unsalted butter, cut into bits
4 cups corn kernels, cut from about 8 large ears of corn or 4 cups frozen corn
3 or 4 medium size boiling potatoes, peeled, boiled and coarsely mashed (about 4 cups)
¼ cup finely chopped parsley

Season the chicken and chuck. Heat the oil to very hot in a large, 8- to 10-quart pot. Brown the chicken pieces, turning frequently, and remove to a platter. Brown the chuck and remove to a platter. Pour off all but a tablespoon of the oil and brown the onions and celery, stirring constantly over moderate heat. Return the chicken and meat to the pot and add ham bone, bay leaf, basil, parsley sprigs, chili (see note below) and tomatoes. Add cold water to cover, plus one inch.

Bring to a boil over high heat, lower the temperature and simmer, tightly covered, for 35 to 40 minutes, until chicken is tender. Remove the chicken. Cover and simmer for another hour, or until chuck is tender. Remove the meat. Add the beans to the pot and cook uncovered 10 to 15 minutes.

Remove the skin and bones from chicken and discard. Cut the chicken meat and chuck and any ham into 1-inch pieces and return to the pot. Add the butter and corn. Simmer uncovered for 5 minutes, then add mashed potatoes. Cook an additional 10 minutes, stirring frequently, until the potatoes have mixed and thickened the stew. Add the chopped parsley and taste for seasoning.

NOTE: Chilies must be handled carefully. They can cause hands and eyes to burn. Wear rubber gloves; do not touch the face or eyes. Wash hands thoroughly with soap and warm water.

To prepare, rinse and remove stems under cold water. Cut pods in half, brush out seeds with fingers. They may be used at once, or soaked in cold water to make them less hot.

New Englanders are fond of corn chowder. A very similar Chicken and Corn Chowder could work equally well as a filling, warming lunch dish or as a light supper.

CHICKEN AND CORN CHOWDER

(serves 6 to 8)

One 1-lb chicken breast, skinned and boned
1½ tsp. salt
Freshly ground black pepper
4 tbsp. butter
3 cups fresh corn kernels, or 3 cups frozen
2 oz. lean salt pork, rind removed, diced
¾ cup finely chopped onions
¾ cup finely chopped celery
2 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
1 qt. chicken stock, fresh or canned
1 cup heavy cream
2 tbsp. finely chopped fresh parsley
½ tsp. white pepper

Melt butter over moderate heat in 8- to 10-inch skillet. Season the chicken and cook in butter for about 10 minutes over low heat. Do not brown. Remove and cut into ½-inch cubes and set aside.

Puree two cups of the corn in a blender or food processor. Fry the pork, dice and discard the bits. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons of the fat, then add onions and celery and cook 8 to 10 minutes, until vegetables are soft and golden brown.

Stir in diced chicken, pureed corn, the remaining cup of whole corn kernels, the potatoes and the chicken stock. Bring to a boil over high heat, reduce heat and simmer, partially covered for about 15 minutes. Stir in the cream and parsley and simmer for 2 or 3 minutes. Season with remaining salt and white pepper. Serve at once.

Good crusty Italian bread goes down well with this easy clam soup. The garlic and tomato are excellent complements to the clams. When ready to serve, this dish looks more like clams in seasoned broth than like a true soup.

FRESH CLAM SOUP

(Zuppa di Vongole)

(serves 4)

6 tbsp. olive oil
1 tsp. finely chopped garlic
½ cup dry white wine
3 lbs. firm ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded, gently squeezed of excess juice, and coarsely chopped (about 3 to 4 cups)
2 doz. small hardshell clams in their shells
1 cup boiling water
4 tbsp. finely chopped fresh parsley,

preferably the flat-leaf Italian kind, if available

Heat the olive oil in a heavy 2- to 3-quart pan. Add the garlic and cook, stirring, over moderate heat for about 30 seconds. Pour in the wine, add the tomatoes and bring to a boil. Then reduce the heat and simmer the sauce, partially covered, for 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, scrub the clams thoroughly and drop them into about ¼ inch of boiling water (approximately 1 cup) in a heavy 12- to 14-inch skillet. Cover tightly and steam the clams over high heat for 5 to 10 minutes, or until they open. With tongs or a slotted spoon, transfer the clams, still in their shells, to 4 large heated soup plates. Strain all the clam juice in the skillet through a fine sieve lined with cheesecloth into the simmering tomato sauce. Cook for 1 to 2 minutes, then pour the soup over the clams and sprinkle chopped parsley on top. Serve at once.

If the amount of liquid called for in the ingredients sounds insufficient, do not worry. The shellfish produce their own liquid in the cooking.

The Warming Oven

EGG PLANT WITH MEAT SAUCE

1 pt. meat sauce
1 egg plant
4 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Peel and slice egg plant in ½-inch slices. Alternate slices of egg plant with meat sauce and cheese in 1½-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

SPANISH RICE

1½ cups quick-cooking rice
1½ cups water
½ tsp. salt
Grated Parmesan cheese

Combine rice, water and salt. Bring to a boil and let rice stand until ready. Combine meat sauce with rice in 1½-quart casserole. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes.

TAMALE PIE

2 pints meat sauce
½ pkg. corn muffin mix

Pour meat sauce in a two-quart casserole. Prepare corn muffin mix according to package instructions. Pour muffin mix over sauce. Bake at 425 degrees for 30 minutes.

This starter sauce can stretch three pounds of ground beef farther than any other I've seen.

Creamy Mallow Cheesecake

1 cup vanilla wafer crumbs
4 cups Kraft miniature marshmallows
1/3 cup milk

2 8-oz. pkgs. cream cheese
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Microcook margarine in small bowl 45 seconds or until melted. Blend in crumbs; reserve 1/4 cup for topping. Press remaining crumb mixture onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan.

Combine marshmallows and milk in large bowl; toss to coat marshmallows with milk. Microcook 1 to 1½ minutes or until smooth when stirred, stirring every 30 seconds. Chill until slightly thickened. Mix until well blended. Microcook cream cheese in bowl 30 to 45 seconds or until soft. Add lemon juice, rind and vanilla, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Beat in marshmallow mixture; fold in whipped cream. Pour over crust; sprinkle with reserved crumb mixture. Chill. Garnish with mandarin orange segments, strawberry halves or peach slices, if desired.

Ratatouille Pyrenees

2 medium zucchini, sliced
1 medium eggplant, peeled, cubed
1 medium onion, sliced

1 green pepper, cut into strips
3/4 cup French dressing
1 pt. cherry tomatoes, halved

Combine ingredients except tomatoes in 3-quart casserole; mix lightly. Cover; microcook 12 to 14 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender, stirring after 5 minutes. Add tomatoes. Cover; microcook 2 to 3 minutes or until hot. Serve hot or cold. 10 to 12 servings Ratatouille will keep in the refrigerator, covered, for several days and is delicious served cold.

Herb Sauced Fish

1/4 cup celery slices
1/4 cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed

Dash of pepper
1-1/4 cups milk
1 cup (4 ozs.) shredded natural monterey jack cheese
1 lb. fish fillets

Microcook vegetables and margarine in 2-quart casserole 4 to 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring after 2 minutes. Blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly. Cover; microcook 4 to 5 minutes or until sauce boils and thickens, stirring once each minute. Add cheese; stir until melted. Arrange fillets in 11-3/4 x 7-1/2-inch baking dish; top with cheese sauce. Cover; microcook 4-1/2 minutes, turning after 2 minutes. Let stand, covered, 2 to 3 minutes before serving or until fish flakes easily with fork. 4 servings Variation: Add 1 tablespoon sherry to cheese sauce.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

THE OCTOBER newsletter from True Grist dinner theatre in Homer arrived Friday with news of its latest offering, the Michigan premiere of "The Frogs."

The original Greek classic comedy was written by Aristophanes in 405 BC. True Grist's Shevelove-Sondheim version of the play opened Oct. 25. The dramatic hybrid originated in the Yale University Olympic swimming pool.

New to the company is Charles Burr of Plymouth in the role of Pluto, the god of the underworld. Burr spent the summer in repertory theater at the Boarshead Playhouse.

The Shevelove-Sondheim combination took a light-hearted look at ancient Rome in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." In "The Frogs," the collaborators do the same thing to ancient Greece.

by ELLIE
GRAHAM

In the updated version, Dionysus, god of drama, journeys to Hades to obtain the release of George Bernard Shaw to improve the state of theatre on earth. He meets up with a variety of characters from Greek mythology and the plot includes a literary contest between Shaw and Shakespeare.

The play will run through Nov. 25. Food in the old grist mill is excellent and it's not all that far to Homer.

TOM AND HEIDI Collins of Plymouth, England were in town last week. They traveled from Florida where they had been vacationing and he had developed a miserable case of sun poisoning.

The Collinses have a wide circle of friends here in Plymouth. They run the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, England and hosted the local group when it made the sister-city visit several years ago. Since that time, whenever anyone from here vacations in England, they head for the Mayflower on the Hoe. And the Collinses usually make an annual visit to Michigan.

George and Betty Hudson entertained them for lunch at their Burroughs Avenue home. They had dinner with Ralph and Mabel Lorenz and Roland and Mary Leist of Charnwood Drive. Roland and Heidi were schoolmates in Switzerland.

THE CONVERSATION got around to the Plymouth Community Fund drive during intermission at the Observer's public relations' seminar the other evening. Nancy Johnson said that Gene Kornegay, president of the Community Fund, has one major concern.

When persons receive United Fund pledge cards from their employers, there is no mention that the pledge can be designated to the Plymouth Community Fund. There just isn't a spot on the card where this can be mentioned.

Kornegay emphasizes that the payroll deduction can be diverted to your local fund. Just make your wishes known and it will be taken care of.

ANN PREVOST and Howard Griffore had high scores at Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. This week the group will have its annual buffet luncheon before play starts.

Margaret Swartz says they have more than 45 reservations for the catered smorgasbord.

DON'T FORGET the the annual Masterpiece Auction next Monday evening in East Middle School. There will be refreshments beginning at 6:30 p.m. Guests are invited to browse until the sale begins at 7 p.m.

Plymouth Children's Nursery, Inc. has the pre-holiday auction each November as its major fund-raiser. Months of work have gone into the preparation of quilted pillows, Christmas decorations, children's toys and accessories. All items are handmade. There will be a potpourri table with everything priced under $5.

CAROL DAVIS brought up an interesting point at last week's school board meeting. Ms. Davis is a school trustee and her remarks resulted from conversations with parents of students at the two local high schools.

The parents complained that lunch break was the only time students had an opportunity to socialize.

Why not have some after-school social activities?

The parents were thinking back to their own high school years with their weekly after-school sock-hops, mixers and other get-togethers that were inexpensive but gave the students a feeling of belonging.

"I know they wouldn't be called sock hops now," said Ms. Davis, "but I believe something could be arranged. Several parents have volunteered to help and act as chaperones. Admission would be free and they would be official school activities. Only expense would be a bottle of pop and some pretzels."

Interested parents can call her at 453-7432. Maybe something can be worked out.

Working at crafts is more fun than watching TV, and Ada Valentine (left) and Myrtle Williams, who live at West Trail Nursing Home, have something to show for their efforts . . . a couple of baby octopuses.

When they've finished their latest project, these residents of West Trail Nursing Home will have Christmas wreaths for themselves or for their

Melodrama!

'Love Rides the Rails' opens season

Four performances of "Love Rides the Rails," a melodrama with music, will be presented in Central Middle School, Main and Church Streets, Plymouth. Curtain times for the Plymouth Theater Guild production is 8 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays, Nov. 2, 3, 9 and 10.

David Ide and David Higginbotham have important roles in the production.

David Higginbotham has the role of Truman Pendennis, the hero, in Plymouth Theater Guild's first offering of the 1979-80 season.

David Ide is directing the melodrama which will open Friday evening in Central Middle School auditorium. Both Davids were involved in theater at the Centennial Educational Park.

Ide is the director and Higginbotham plays the role of Truman Pendennis, the hero. Both are recent graduates of Salem High School, where they studied theater arts with Gloria Logan. Both serve on the PTG board of directors.

Higginbotham is a voice student and, as the clean-cut leading man, he pursues his leading lady, Pat Thomas, in song.

"Love Rides the Rails" is set in and around Plymouth in 1892. The action revolves around the Standale Branch of the Grand River Valley-Pine Brush-and Muskegon Railway Line.

Others in the cast are Patricia Bray as Mrs. Hopewell, an aged, pious widow; Pat Thomas as her daughter Prudence; Chuck Miller, as Simon Darkway, the villain; Dick Merrill, as Harold Stanfast, the hero's best friend; Dave Dixon, as Dirk Sneath, the villain's sidekick; Carole McNulty as Carlotta Cortez, the owner of the Paradise Cafe; Patti Troth, as Fifi, a French maid; Buzz Buzzell as Fred Wheelwright, an elderly railroad worker; Dennis Schlicker, as Dan the bartender; Mary Cantine, as Beulah Belle, the dance hall hostess; and Chris Anderson, as a police officer.

Robin Galick is the producer. Clemie Cyburt is the associate director and costume coordinator.

Tickets will be on sale at the door or by calling Galick at 261-2875, or Irene Troth, 455-4755. Cost is $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for those under 18 and senior citizens. There are special rates for groups of 20 or more.

Time passes quickly in crafts workshops

By BETTY MASSON

"I would like to be around in the year 2000, just to see what happens," a student told Lynn Wilson recently. The student is in her 80's, is almost blind and has been crippled by a stroke.

"I know I won't be here," she said wistfully, "but I would like to be."

Her remarks are typical of those of students in Mrs. Wilson's current events classes in four area nursing homes, West Trail, Hendry, Whispering Willow and Wishing Well.

The classes have made the students much more interested in what is going on in the world around them, both locally and internationally.

Mrs. Wilson coordinates the nursing home program for the Plymouth-Canton Continuing Education department, as well as teaching.

Other courses offered in the two-year-old program are arts and crafts, taught by Joan Knoeri; music appreciation, taught by Fran Loiselle; and Bible literature and exercise and dance, taught by Frankie Moran.

"I'VE NOTICED THAT the current events course is really making our people aware of what is going on in the world," said West Trail secretary, Pat Vingsnes.

"Others really enjoy the arts and crafts," she said.

Recent current events classes included a discussion of police in the schools, and led from that to comments on what is wrong with kids today.

Mrs. Wilson's students were far from judgmental. "I think the times are different," said one. Another accused a fellow student of "living in the past."

A lively discussion about the 1929 depression followed news of the stock market decline. Mrs. Wilson's students could remember the effects of the crash only too well.

Castro's visit to the U.N. elicited some inside comments from a woman who had cleaned his motel room after a visit to Detroit years ago. Among the things he left behind were chicken feathers.

Mrs. Wilson keeps her students on their mental toes by making them competitive. At the end of each class, there is a quiz and she awards points for correct answers. Students with 100 points join the "100 Club" and win a prize. There is also a "500 Club."

Since her classes started, students in a couple of the nursing homes have begun to complain. . . they do not receive any daily newspaper.

CRAFTS PROVIDE a pleasant diversion for many, including some men. Students either keep their handicrafts or pass them on to grandchildren and great-grandchildren, reports Mrs. Knoeri. At Hendry, a large number of crafts are turned out in and out of class and are sold each year.

While some of the craft students haven't had much time for this sort of thing before, others are experts already. They arrive with their knitting or crocheting, and work on their own projects while Mrs. Knoeri is busy giving help and direction to the less skillful.

Although the program is underwritten by the continuing education program, with the help of state grants for students who earn high school completion credits, funds are limited.

Mrs. Knoeri could use craft materials, such as yarns, beads, rickrack and jewelry from donors.

Mrs. Wilson, who has three sons, is a resident of Plymouth Township. She has had extensive teaching experience in social studies and language arts.

She was teaching in nursing homes in Taylor when she was asked by continuing education director Larry Masteller to teach and coordinate Plymouth's program.

She is also a member of the Plymouth Council on Aging.

Mrs. Knoeri is a graduate of Wayne State University, where she majored in art. The nursing home setting is quite a change for her. She has six children between the ages of 11 and 18 at home.

NOT ONLY DO the teachers enjoy the classes, but nursing home owners and administrators are very happy with them.

"It's just fantastic," said Roland LaPierre, administrator of Northville's Wishing Well Manor. "Before, the only activities these people had were television, movies and a little bingo."

"This program has really made them alive," he said.

Mrs. Constance Nowka, owner of Wishing Well and Whispering Willow Manor in Canton, agrees. She told of the way the program has drawn residents out of their shells. One woman, who was very introverted and wouldn't try anything, is now clamoring for more activities.

"I think we live in a darn good country to have these things for people who are in need," said Mrs. Nowka.

Couple wed 50 years

Roland and Etta James of Shadywood Drive, Plymouth, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 6. A dinner party in their honor was hosted by their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon D. James of Glen Ellyn, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. S. Douglas James of New York City.

The couple and their family were piped into the Mayflower Meeting House by Lynda McLean of Winnipeg, Manitoba, a member of the Canadian Air Force Bagpipe Band. Their grandson, Kevin James, asked the blessing.

More than 100 friends and relatives attended the party. They came from New Brunswick, Manitoba and Ontario, Canada, as well as California, Florida, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Michigan.

The couple has five grandchildren.

Haley-Knupp

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haley of Plymouth and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knupp of Highland announce the engagement of their children, Louanne Gay Haley and Craig Byron Knupp.

The bride-elect is a 1979 graduate of Faithway Baptist High School. Her fiancé graduated from Central Baptist High School.

Madonna Campaign

Mothers, sons can join Indian Braves

A new parent/child program called Indian Braves now is being offered by the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA.

The new organization is for mothers and sons (children ages 5-9) rather than the more traditional pairings of father/sons or mother/daughters.

The purpose is to strengthen the family unit by reinforcing relationships between parents and children, explains Janet Luce, YMCA director.

Another aim is to open up new pathways of communication between all family members.

"The parent/child programs have been especially designed to create an atmosphere in which parents can come to understand their children better."

"As the name implies, the 'Y' Indian programs are based on the lore of the American Indian."

An Indian Brave tribe is made up of five to seven mothers and five to seven sons who take Indian names and hold meetings or events twice a month.

Indian crafts and lore are emphasized as a base for activities.

Branch-wide activities such as campouts, swim and track meets, ball games, miniature golf, bowling, gym night and banquets are held throughout the year.

Both parent and child must attend meetings and take part in activities together.

Parents who wish to be closer and enrich their family life are encouraged to join a tribe. There is a membership fee to join.

Other parent/child programs conducted by the YMCA include: Indian Guides, father-son, ages 5-9; Indian Princesses, father-daughter, ages 5-9; Indian Maidens, mother-daughter, ages 5-9; Trailblazers, father-son, ages 9 and older; and Trailettes, mother-daughter, ages 9 and older.

There still are openings until January for all of the YMCA parent/child programs. For more information, call the YMCA at 453-2904.

Young-Swanson

Susan Marie Swanson and David Alan Young exchanged wedding vows Oct. 19 in St. Johns Episcopal Church, Plymouth. The Rev. Robert Shank officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Herb and Jackie Swanson of Plymouth. The bridegroom's parents are Dale and Donna Young of Livonia.

The couple honeymooned in Toronto following a wedding reception in the Plymouth Cultural Center. They are living in Westland.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. She is a data entry supervisor at Burroughs Corp. in Plymouth. Her husband graduated from Plymouth Salem High in 1976. He is employed by King Bros. Collision in Redford.

A 4 a.m. visit — but who's the ghost?

The following is a letter I received from a reader last June. I have been saving it to share with you at Halloween.

"One night, about a year ago, something woke me from a sound sleep. The illuminated dial of my alarm clock showed it to be exactly 4 a.m.

"I lay there wondering what had wakened me. My husband lay beside me, sound asleep. There was no sound other than his deep, regular breathing. I soon drifted back to sleep.

"The next night, the same thing happened. Again, it was exactly four o'clock when I woke up. This started a pattern, and for the next several weeks, I awoke every night at exactly 4 a.m.

"Nothing ever seemed to be amiss, and after a few minutes, I would drift off to sleep again.

I got so I expected to wake at that hour, and I began to wonder if I was making myself do it. But then one night, something happened that changed everything.

"IT WAS IN the middle of winter and, as usual, I woke up exactly at 4. But something was different. I felt compelled to get up out of bed.

"Quietly, so as not to disturb my husband, I walked across the room and looked out of the window. It was snowing, big, fluffy flakes filled the air. The ground was completely covered with snow, and there was not a track of any kind to be seen.

Witch Watch

by GUNDELLA

"I felt strongly disturbed, and instead of going back to bed, I decided to go into the kitchen and fix myself a cup of hot chocolate.

"I walked into the kitchen and turned on the light. The room was entirely different. There was a hand pump in the sink. A big black wood stove took up one whole side of the room. On the floor was a linoleum carpet, and the bare wooden floor boards showed around the edges. A wooden ice box stood in the corner.

"THERE WAS AN oiled cloth covering on the round, wooden table, and seated around it, on straight-backed wooden chair, were three people I had never seen in my life.

"They were engaged in conversation, and appeared not to notice me. I felt like I was an intruder (a ghost?) in their home, rather than the other way around.

"I rushed back to my room, and woke my husband. I asked him to accompany me to the kitchen, but when we got there, nothing was amiss.

"My gleaming stove, dishwasher and refrigerator were all in their proper places on my beatifully carpeted floor. Three was no one in the room but my husband and I.

"I was fully awake when this happend. I did not dream it. After that night, I have never again awakened automatically at 4 a.m." Mary Sue L., Canton Twp.

Tag sale for bands on Nov. 3

The 155 in uniform are members of the symphony and marching bands of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park. It's their biggest fundraiser of the year.

The bands' Tag Sale is expected to help raise more than $10,000.

The $10,000-plus is needed to pay off a debt owed on new competition uniforms and to deduct about $100 from each symphony band member's expenses for a trip to California in January.

The Band Boosters have decided to make this the only fundraiser this year to avoid bothering residents with several door-to-door campaigns.

The Band Boosters hope that everyone will purchase one of the decals, being sold from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 3.

Contributions to the band are a tax-deductible donation. Checks should be made to the PCEP Bands.

To publicize the events, a loudspeaker sound system will be driven throughout the community playing symphony band recordings.

They have our number, do you?

No, we're not talking about our telephone number, although that's an important number too, we're talking about "736", the classification number for "Wanted to Buy" want ads.

Lots of people think the only way to use ads is to tell people what they have to sell. Not so. One little 736 ad will tell people what you want to buy. Looking for a cradle, scuba gear, a 1937 "Superman" comic book? Stick it in 736 and wait for people to call, it's that simple.

And if you've read this far and are thinking, "I really don't have any one special thing I want to buy....we have plenty of numbers for you, too...626...700...708...722. We invite you to try any of these because all of our numbers add up to a lot of satisfaction for you, whether you're in a buying or selling mood.

...and the wisest investment anyone can make is an Observer & Eccentric want ad.

I invested and sold all those nostalgia items I've been saving up in my attic.

Now, I have enough to buy that Corvette I've always wanted.

Americans drove more than 1.3 trillion miles last year.

With more than 107 million cars and 26 million trucks and buses in a population of 216 billion people, the United States is the most motorized nation on the earth, the National Geographic Society says.

Although Americans drive more miles with fewer accidents than most people, the American Automobile Association reports that 45,600 persons were killed and more than 1.8 million injured in traffic accidents last year.

Lower speed limits, improved highway systems, greater use of seat belts and more safety features designed into new cars are credited by authorities for a recent downward trend in auto deaths.

Today's automobiles and roads may be better than the motorists who use them, even though driver education is good in this country and keeps getting better.

American manufacturers believe that their customers rarely use — or learn how to use — more than a small percentage of the performance built into their cars.

SOME EXPERTS contend highways would be safer if drivers adopted a few of the techniques of race drivers. They refer to alertness and car handling, not speed.

One proponent of this view is race car driver Janet Guthrie. She advocates what she calls "sensitive driving," or finely tuning all five senses when behind the wheel of a car.

Miss Guthrie recommends, for example, extending sight to include observing what is developing five cars ahead, knowing where all the cars around you are, and using your peripheral vision to watch anything happening on sidewalks or in and between cars parked or stopped at the curb.

Similarly, a driver should listen to his or her car while driving, not only for warnings of possible breakdowns but for changes in the sound of the tires on the road that indicate a difference in the road surface, such as wet spots or loose gravel.

Touch is important in alerting the driver to changing road conditions. And the driver's "feel" for the car often provides the first clue on when to slow down.

SMELL ALSO plays its part in signaling overheating or other problems under the hood or behind the dashboard.

As for taste, Miss Guthrie points out that sometimes it's possible to "smell and almost taste rain, or a storm coming," and a prudent driver can begin watching for a good motel.

Miss Guthrie advises people to take their cars out once or twice to "a big, wet, empty parking lot" and try a few skids to learn when the car will skid, what it feels like, and how to steer out of a skid.

She said many drivers just brake and slide into accidents they could have steered around because they don't appreciate how maneuverable the average automobile is.

Slippery 88

The Delta 88 Royale Brougham joined the Oldsmobile lineup for 1980. A lower front end, small spoiler on the rear deck lid, curve differences on front fenders, wheel lips and rear quarters and flatter wheel covers reduce aerodynamic drag by eight percent over 1979 models. With the standard 3.8-liter engine, Eighty-Eights are expected to earn 18 miles per gallon in city driving.

The "invoice total" includes factory holdbacks and Advertising Association assessments and is not a net factory price cost to the dealer. The invoice may not also reflect the ultimate cost of the vehicle in view of the possibility of future rebates, allowances, discounts and incentive awards from the manufacturer to the dealer. Dealer installed options are not included and are extra.
