Slowing fast foods' spread is plan's goal

Fast-food burgers and fries will sizzle according to tastes of the Canton Board of Trustees under a recipe of township planners for the control of restaurant construction.

The proposal places a discretionary power in the hands of the township board to approve or deny site plans for fast-food developments. The chief ingredient of the plan calls for a special-use permit prior to the building of any fast-food restaurant.

At the current time, restaurants are a permitable use in commercial zoning districts with no strings attached. Board members must approve the site plans if all zoning requirements are met.

But planner Jim Kosteva, who concocted the proposal, said all that will change if his recommendation is incorporated into the township's proposed zoning ordinance.

He says the recipe will serve hundreds of Canton residents who cried out last year for a slow-down in the township's fast-food construction boom.

KOSTEVA PRESENTED his plan last week at a joint meeting of the township board and planning commission. Board members applauded the idea and directed planners to incorporate Kosteva's recommendation into Canton's proposed zoning ordinance.

A public hearing on the zoning document is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7 in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School. Planners have expressed hope that the township board will stamp final approval on the ordinance by the beginning of March.

Kosteva said he has been formulating a proposal for a handle on the township's fast-food construction boom since last February.

At that time, scores of residents labeled Ford Road "a fast-food strip" and demanded township board action to curb the rising tide of development.

At the current time, Kosteva counts six restaurants on a 1½-mile stretch of Ford between I-275 and Canton Center which fall under a fast-food definition. Several other restaurants, such as the Palace and Big Boy, dot the highway.

Kosteva says site plan proposals for other fast-food restaurants pour into his office at a regular pace. He insists that his zoning proposal can save areas of Ford and other roads from a glut of fast-food eateries.

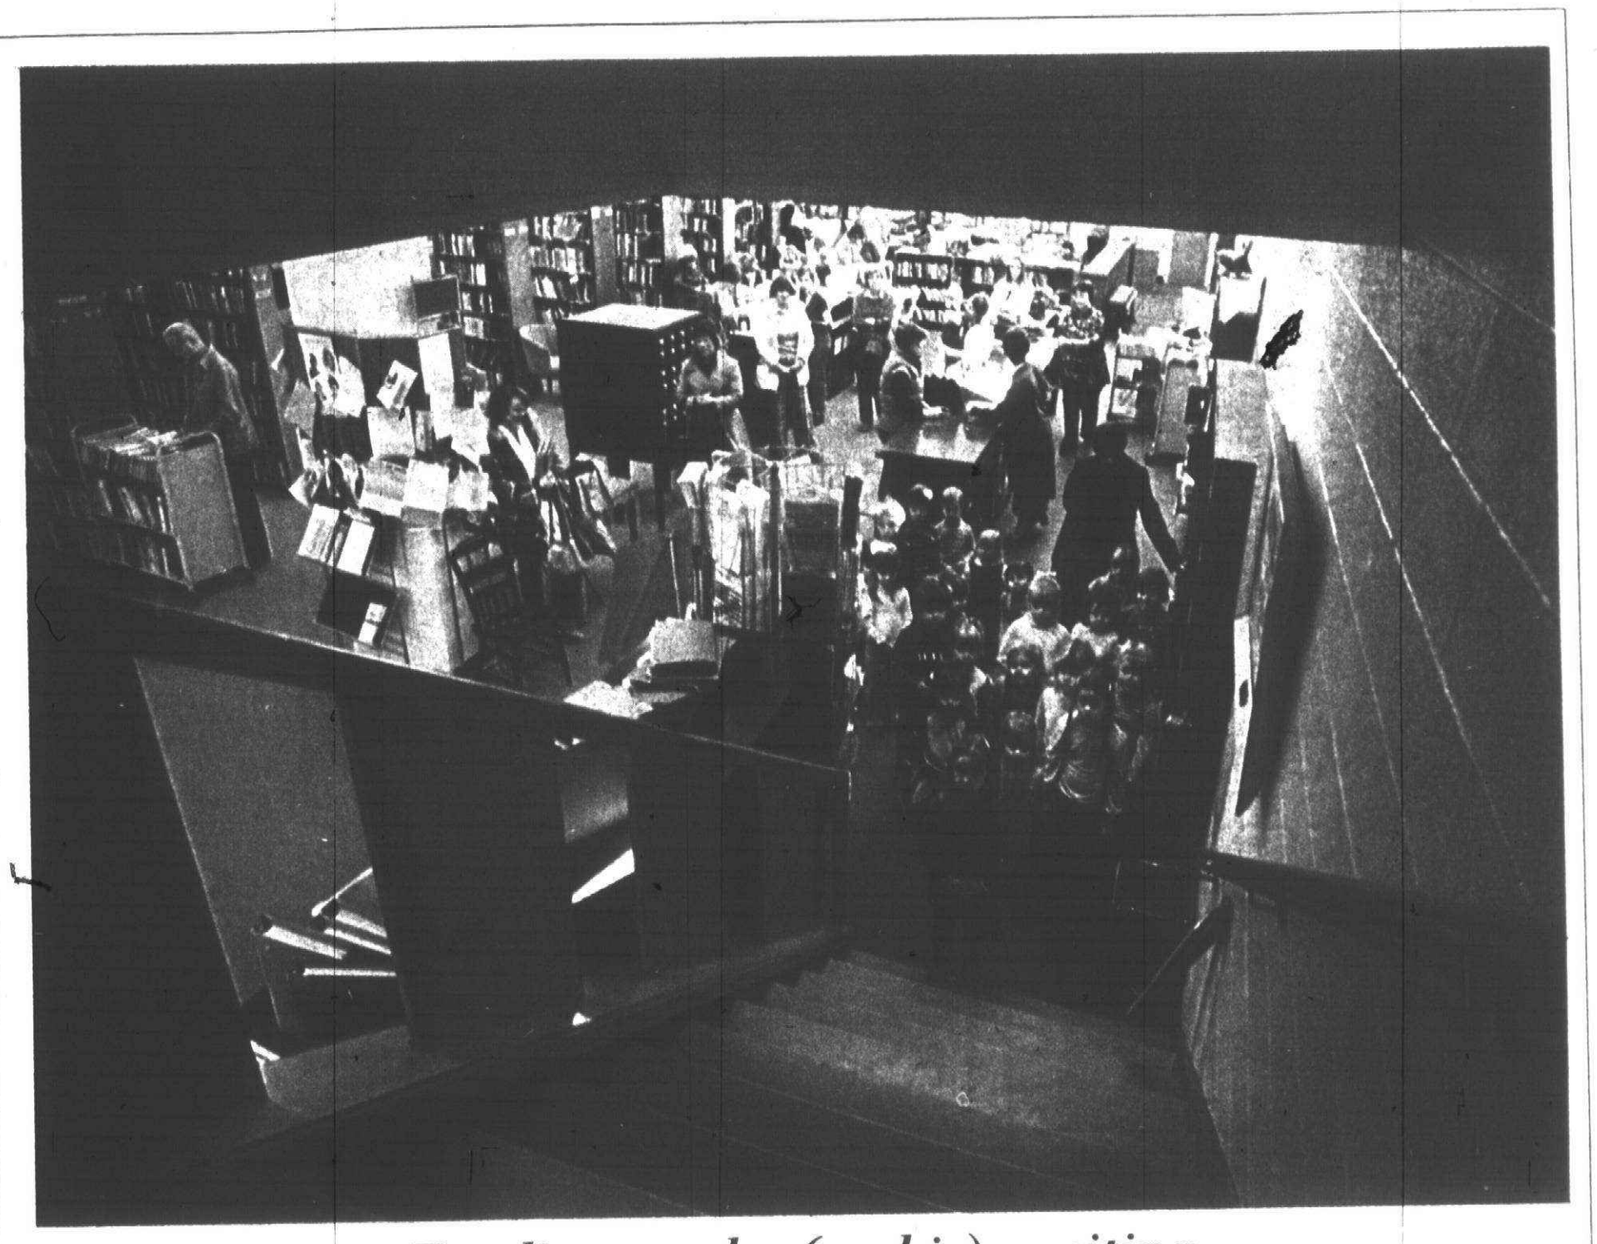

KOSTEVA HAS recommended inclusion of three restaurant classifications in the proposed zoning document.

He defines fast-food restaurants as businesses which strictly sell packaged, ready-to-eat foods to customers which eat inside or outside the establishment.

Other classifications include "standard" restaurants, which serve customers inside the building via menus or cafeteria lines, and "carry-out" restaurants with no seating facilities for customers.

The special use requirement would

Reading can be (and is) exciting

If reading is made exciting to youngsters at an early age then teachers should have an easier time in reading instruction when students enter school. That theory is held by the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth and explains why they put a great deal of stress on their reading clubs conducted year-round at the library.

Over the years a number of Plymouth-Canton youngsters have discovered the joy of reading and the excitement that awaits readers in books by participating in the reading club. For more photos and information, turn to Page 3A. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Burnout

Teachers' center seeks to minimize job stress

By DENNIS ROSENBLUM

Dennis Sparks' mission in life is to keep teachers from becoming burnouts. He says it's a big problem.

"Some of the teachers I see getting burned out are the best ones," he says. "It is getting recognized and talked about."

Sparks is director of the Northwest Staff Development Center, a federally funded teacher center in Livonia which serves seven area school districts, including Garden City, Wayne-Westland, Plymouth-Canton, and South Redford.

As a sideline, he runs workshops for teacher trainers in how to minimize the effects of job-related stress and what's known as burnout.

It's a subject that arises in every line of work, he says, but can be a special problem in education.

AS THE BABY boom has gone bust, school enrollments have declined and layoffs have increased. Younger teachers worry about their careers disappearing while older teachers find themselves stuck — without any mobility because of the tight job market in their field.

"It kind of wears you down to know you may be doing this for the rest of your life," Sparks says.

The symptoms of burnout are fatigue and a lack of enthusiasm, he says. They can have a disastrous effect on how we relate to others and how well we can do our jobs.

In education, stress can come not only from concern about layoffs, but from continuing problems with students and from uncaring administrations, Sparks says.

Children today seem to have less of a desire to learn and less respect for their teachers, making the teacher's job tougher, he says.

And if layoff time comes, an administrator can just hand a teacher a notice, leaving the teacher worrying about what will happen, or talk with the teacher, trying to explain why the move was necessary and helping figure out some options.

Sparks travels around the country to give workshops to teachers on stress and burnout. He's leading one this week at the Renaissance Center in Detroit, with participants from New York City and small towns in Oklahoma.

One of his recent workshops was in an Eskimo village in Alaska, where teachers live in their school and rarely get outdoors because of the weather and because there's nowhere to go.

"How do you keep your enthusiasm up?" he asks.

SPARKS' METHODS of dealing with the universal problems start with identifying strengths.

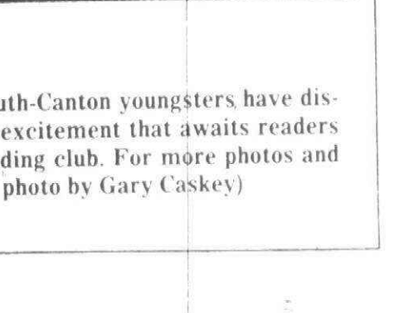

"Often people who are burned out can only see the negative things," he says.

He helps people identify their stresses — both bad ("distress") and good ("eustress"). One person's eustress can be another person's distress, he says.

"Stress, if used properly, can help. You want stress to work for you," Sparks says.

Then the subject has to figure out the

'Playing the money market'

Canton makes mint on investment

Canton Treasurer James Donahue says the township's income from investments made during the year may help stave off rising taxes for residents.

According to Donahue, investments made by his office have yielded almost $1 million in interest during 11 months of 1979.

Since Dec. 1, investments have brought an additional $80,000 to the township's bankbook.

"I can't predict how much, but I think the income will help keep the millage down," Donahue said.

The treasurer said the township's budget last year listed an expected income from investments of $100,000.

Last February, Donahue instituted what he called "a good, strong investment program, all done through banks.

"We (Donahue, Deputy Treasure Maria Falkiewicz and staff members) cycled investments so at all times we had available money in investments," Donahue said.

"The banks would call Wednesday morning and bid on interest."

Originally, Donahue said, the township would invest in certificates of deposit and even in "Chrysler commercial paper."

During the latter part of the year, however, the uncertain economic outlook caused Donahue to direct his office to make only those investments backed by federal treasury notes.

"Investments backed by the federal treasury are about as safe as anything can be," Donahue said.

The treasurer added that the law sets stringent standards on what kind of investments municipalities can make. "I can't call Merrill Lynch and invest in pork bellies.

"But we are playing the money market. I think we've go to," he said.

"Since our income is only about $1.6 million, we're doing pretty well to make almost a million in interest.

"We've managed to build up a nice little nest egg — which will, of course, be reinvested."

Short Takes

Famous fencer

Remember Bruce Davis, a man who teaches fencing and participates in a fencing club meeting at a Canton elementary school? The story was in this paper a few months ago. The reason we jog your memory is to announce that Davis last week was inducted into Wayne State University's Athletic Hall of Fame. The honor came as a result of Davis's prowess and awards in fencing. Davis was, however, one of the few inductees to actually accept his honor in person — a majority of the honors were made posthumously.

Questions and answers

Residents living in the vicinity of Canton Country Acres will be meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Canton Recreation Center at Michigan Avenue and Sheldon in order to discuss a home for six retarded adults proposed for location in the township. The home, which would be run jointly by the Northville Residential Training Center and Alternative Services, is planned for a colonial house in the subdivision. The proposal is now before the Michigan Department of Social Services. Tom Kennedy from Alternative Services, a non-profit corporation based in Royal Oak, is expected to be on hand to answer questions and hear residents' views.

And now for something completely predictable

The Canton Township Board of Trustees has its regular meeting scheduled beginning 7 p.m. Tuesday in the meeting room of the township administration building. Items on the agenda include a discussion of revenue sharing funds, discussion about a dual-meter water system that could save residents money on their tax bills, and a discussion of the lease for the proposed township library on the third floor of the administration building. As always, there is a 30-minute time span at the beginning of the meeting at which anyone and everyone can comment on any subject not already on the agenda.

Pursell gives Carter mixed grades on budget

U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, gave President Carter's new budget proposals mixed grades at a news conference last week in Washington, D.C.

Pursell, who's 2nd District includes Livonia, said the President's budget proposals deserve an A on seeking to balance the budget, a C on unemployment, and a D-minus on energy.

He identified inflation, unemployment and energy as the domestic issues most important to Michigan and other states in the Midwest-Northeast region.

PURSELL, A MEMBER of the House Appropriations Committee, is co-chairman of a special Budget Task Force of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition — a group of 213 congressmen representing states from Maine to Minnesota.

The comments were offered at a press conference called by Pursell and co-chairman Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., held to analyze the newly proposed budget from a regional perspective.

Carter has proposed a budget of $615.8 million for fiscal year 1981, which begins this October. He is projecting a deficit of $15.8 million, the lowest since 1974 and less than half the estimated deficit for this year.

Pursell praised Carter's effort to restrain federal spending, saying that controlling inflation may be the most important financial goal to aid people in the northern tier of states.

He added that the coalition's objective should be to seek changes in priorities instead of simply trying to add more spending.

ONE PRIORITY on which Pursell differed with Carter was energy.

"Energy costs are the biggest factor in inflation. Conser vation and development of alternative sources are the correct policies.

"But the President has not given energy the piority it deserves. We hear a great deal about added billions we must spend on sophisticated military hardware. Yet there's little recognition of the fact that no single event would improve our national security more than ending our dependence on foreign energy supplies.

"The President plans a sharp increase in defense spending but, when inflation is taken into account, he's actually proposing to reduce the energy budget."

Downey and Pursell agreed that the quality of U.S. defense depends much more on how the dollars are spent than on how many dollars are put into Pentagon programs.

Pursell took a wait-and-see attitude on Carter's unemploy ment programs, but noted the lack of a tax rate cut proposal to stimulate jobs and productivity.

"Our region tends to suffer the most when unemployment rises. The most important step to stimulate employment is a cut in tax rates.

"We also should put increased emphasis on the creation of private sector jobs. I particularly support the private sector employment program under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act and congratulate the President for increased support of this program.

"I'm waiting to see the details of his forthcoming youth employment efforts," Pursell concluded. "These also must stress permanent, private jobs rather than temporary, meanin gless, dead-end work which too often has been the case with government jobs programs.

"We have to assure that these programs emphasize education and skills which prepare people for solid careers in the private sector."

How to excite preschoolers about reading

Pam Rawlinson, librarian, (right) has to capture some 30 attentions during story time at Dunning-Hough library. The children (below) are interested enough so that the job's a breeze.

It isn't often that you see a roomful of 3-5-year-olds caught in raptured attention.

The trick is to find something that will interest them and then get them involved.

That's what the librarians at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth have done.

Every season the library presents a different approach to story time.

Children between the ages of 3½ and 5 are invited to listen to an assortment of stories along one theme line.

The sessions run six weeks and are open to residents of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township.

This season's theme is — what else? — the Winter Wonderland.

So far, the reading selection has included: The Snowy Day, the Big Snow Storm and the Happy Day.

Fortunately, or unfortunately, Librarian Pam Rawlinson has had to apologize for the less than winter wonderland conditions.

No matter. The children did appear to be interested in the stotry selection. Especially when one of the main characters was thrust in the midst of a snowball fight.

"Anything action packed gets a rise out of them," she says.

Mrs. Rowlinson said the intent of this service is to provide non-reading youngsters with a yen for "good literature" at an early age.

In addition to the readings, they become involved in such activities as singing songs, reciting rhymes and finger plays.

The sessions are held on Tuesdays and Wednesdays and are usually limited to about 30 children.

Recitation time gives the children a chance to speak up.

It's time to leave for Leah Michaelson, 4, and her mother Diane.

Karin, 4, is a bit impatient while mother Sandy Reahard checks out some books after story time.

Police department hypnotist takes subjects back in time

It's been little more than a year since Canton Police Lt. Larry Stewart learned hypnosis — but he's already found uses for the skill as well as a society to support it.

Stewart admits that his knowledge of hypnosis is limited to one specific use, last Friday attended the first meeting of the Michigan Society of Investigative and Forensic Hypnosis.

Stewert and Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox attended the meeting in Lansing along with 11 other police officers from around the state. When Stewart first attended a seminar on hypnosis in September 1978, he know of only three other police officers in Michigan with similar training.

The purpose of the newly formed society, Stewart said, is to insure that hypnosis in police work is performed only by trained individuals, to set up standards for ethical use of the technique in the law enforcement field and to support and justify the practice.

At the present, Michigan has no laws requiring certification of police hypnotists, but the society is planning to set up its own certification program.

Stewart, who received his training through one of the only two institutes he believes is offering it in the country, has already had the opportunity to try out the skill.

BUT USE of hypnotism in the Canton Police Department is limited to one aspect:

"We're basically talking about regression hypnotism," Stewart said.

"It's taking a person back to where an incident took place, to help a witness or victim remember. It's never used on suspects."

Stewart said he had one case where a witness who was to have been hypnotised "turned into a suspect.

"I stopped immediately."

Information that may be brought to the surface during hypnosis, however, is never used without further verification, Stewart said.

"If someone remembered a license number, we wouldn't rush out and arrest the driver without checking it out more."

Although the police officer said case law is tending to back up the use of information gathered through hypnotism as court evidence, the area is still being tested.

The state of Virginia has passed a law that forbids the use of hypnotism for a number of purposes, police investigation included. The American Society for Clinical Hypnotists has also passed a resolution barring its members from teaching the skill to lay persons, but amended the resolution so it could still be taught to police officers.

Stewart said his knowledge of hypnosis has allowed him to "cement some cases."

In the Canton Police Department, all interviews conducted with a hypnotized subject are taped. Stewart said other departments are videotaping the sessions as well.

"We would too, if we had a videotape machine."

The police officer said he could possibly offer post-hypnotic suggestions to subjects, but would not try. "I could tell someone to stop smoking, for example, but I wouldn't know what effect that might have. The subject could start eating too much or do some other thing worse than smoking.

"But then, no one ever actually hypnotizes anyone. You hypnotize yourself. All I do is talk."

Defending farm preservation

Editor:

This is the first letter to the editor I have written in some years. I have felt prompted to write to you because of the allegations being made by certain people who are and have been for many years the avowed enemies of the Canton Township farmland preservation program including, unfortunately, a particular newspaper reporter who seems to have no difficulty whatsoever changing facts to fantasy to fit his particular articles.

I have personally spent many hundreds of hours during the past year endlessly working toward the concept that the farm preservation program in Canton could be accomplished without undue hardship and perhaps without any financial hardship whatsoever upon the taxpayers of my township.

Presentation after presentation has been made to Congress and to individual members of Congress in support of the current federal legislation which would, in effect, pay fifty percent of the development rights purchase plan now in effect in this township. Many, many other avenues of financing, both in total and in part have been investigated and are now being pursued.

The criticism seems to come from those people who have traditionally felt it is against the business interest in this township not to fully develop because it would mean fewer customers for the commercial people and less profit. It seems that these people either don't know, or don't care that full development in this township would mean tragically higher taxes for every homeowner since the cost of government goes up on a per capita basis. Although farmland preservation is not specifically growth control, by definition, it certainly has the same effect of reducing the ultimate population of the township, perhaps by one hundred thousand (100,000) people.

The implementation of the farm preservation program in this township, for which I have been working for the past seven years, would allow the homeowners of Canton Township to be the only homeowners in the State of Michigan to be able to sell their homes with the promise that taxes in this township would not go up at an ever-increasing rate except for an offset for inflation, since the size of the township would be restricted because farmland would be totally preserved.

The criticism seems to be based upon the fact that almost all my efforts have been on a state and national basis and that no vast educational program in Canton either for the homeowners or for the farmers have been acted upon. This is correct. It has been my feeling that my chief obligation is to get the funds to make the program work from any avenue possible outside of local taxation. I believe that local millage should be a last, absolute last resort. I am not convinced that outside funds are impossible and until I have exhausted every possible avenue of acquiring said funds, I think it is improper to ask the people of Canton Township to pay through a millage or to go to the farmers and homeowners with an educational program where funding is still a large, large question mark.

If we are able to obtain outside funding for the farmland preservation program, then education of the township, homeowners and farmers, is easy.

It is my hope that you will support me in my efforts to save the farmland in Canton Township, reduce your taxes substantially, make your property more valuable and more salable and fund as much as possible from outside sources. When you read future criticisms about no local activity with reference to farmland preservation, please understand that the local activity everyone is talking about is local taxes. I intend to keep away from local taxes until I am certain there is no other recourse.

ROBERT E. GREENSTEIN,
Canton Township Trustee and
Farmland Preservation Director

Fast food may need special order

apply only to fast-food businesses, Kosteva said.

Restaurant developers would be required to obtain a special use permit in addition to site plan approval. Present zoning ordinance criteria for special use permits includes the compatibility of the business with surrounding development and the impact of the establishment on the community as a whole.

According to Kosteva, planning commissioners are formulating specific criteria for the special approval of fast-food businesses.

"The board has more discretionary power under this plan," Kosteva said. "Right now, they pretty much have to approve site plans if all ordinance requirements are met."

Teachers' stress concerns center

alternatives for dealing with the problems. You can change your mental attitude, you can just decide you have to live with it, you can find a new job, or you can try to change the way the place is run.

"Changing institutions is hard — you need to know that," Sparks says.

He also suggests using relaxation techniques, such as transcendental meditation, to deal with stress. He shows how a thermometer held in a hand will show a rise in body temperature as a subject relaxes.

"As you relax, your hands heat up," he says.

And in some cases, a change in personal habits — rest, diet and exercise — can help, he says.

SPARKS MAINTAINS that many teachers who are losing their excitement for their work still do a good job because of their professional dedication.

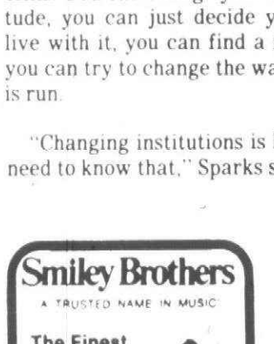

But, he adds, "People who are proud of what they do do better work."

SEMTA considering park-and-ride lot for local site near I-275 Xway

Area residents heading into downtown Detroit during the working week may not have to drive as far as they now do.

That's if a proposal for a park-and-ride lot in Plymouth Township gets off the ground and is built at the northeast corner of the I-275-Ann Arbor Road intersection.

It would be the second such lot sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) in Plymouth Township. The first is at the Sheldon Road Ford assembly plant.

Local officials got a peek at the proposal last week at a joint session of the township board and planning commission.

Presently, the land is owned by the State Highway Department which gives a regional authority such as SEMTA first crack at any land purchase.

According to SEMTA, the 2-acre site could hold some 189 parking spaces plus six more for handicapped motorists. There'd be no charge for motorists who would park there and hop on a SEMTA bus or join a car pool.

In conjunction with the park-and-ride plan, SEMTA also is considering a bus route to stop at the lot during weekdays between 6:30-8:30 a.m. and 3:30-5:30 p.m. There's no plans for weekend bus service.

According to SEMTA estimates, the lot would be cleared of most cars traffic by 6 p.m.

BUT SEMTA is not the only one interested in that property in Plymouth Township that abuts a Livonia residential subdivision.

Plymouth Township officials, who describe it as prime commercial property, also have looked at this available state-owned land along with some other 10 sites within its borders.

As yet, however, no other proposals for the land have appeared.

Meanwhile, township officials will be contacting SEMTA to tell officials there that SEMTA must proceed along the usual channels for its proposal.

One step needed is a rezoning approval for a small strip of that parcel which is now zoned as residential land. While most of it has a commercial classification, a small eastern strip abutting Livonia, about 226 feet long and 95 feet wide, is zoned residential.

One concern raised by township officials is that a park-and-ride facility there would disturb homeowners in the Livonia sub.

In answer to that concern, SEMTA officials said they would provide a barrier along that border to lessen any disturbance. It also would be responsible for the lot's maintenance.

Deadline for taxpayers is Feb. 29

Plymouth Township taxpayers have until Feb. 29 to make sure their property taxes are paid on time at Plymouth Township Hall, 42350 Ann Arbor Road.

The deadline is a two-week extension on the original payment date of Feb. 14, says Township Treasurer Joe West. The extension was granted by the township board last week.

Payments can be mailed to the township hall or personally delivered there between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. each weekday.

There's a 4 percent penalty charge on unpaid taxes plus a three-fourths of one percent delinquent charge for each month it's late, he adds.

Following the local deadline, the payments must be made at the county level.

West says many people take advantage of the extended deadline and have come to expect it.

MOVING AHEAD — POLLUTION CONTROL

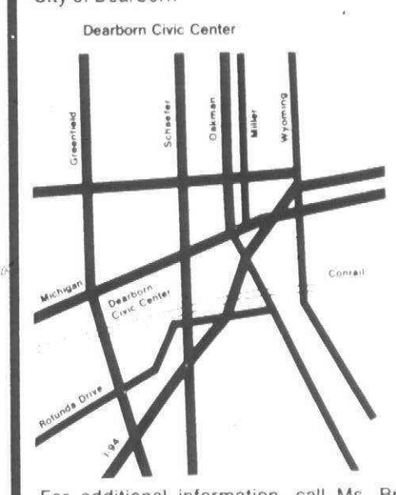

Everyone living in the Southeastern Michigan area is affected and will continue to be affected by the pollution of our environment. The Detroit Water and Sewerage Department (DWSD) is currently involved in preparing a Final Facilities Plan (FFP) — a study of the extent of the pollution and facilities required to control it. The FFP recommendations, when implemented, will upgrade the capacity and capability of the wastewater treatment system and alleviate water pollution by reducing the amount of untreated wastewater that flows directly into our rivers.

The estimated cost to implement these recommendations for pollution control could range from $1.5 to $2.5 billion and will be funded through a combination of federal, state and local funds.

DWSD will sponsor the second series of public meetings to explore the issues of environmental conditions, current and future demands on the treatment plant, and options being considered for ultimate solids disposal and combined sewer overflows. These meetings are designed to receive public comments, so take time to attend one of the meetings and voice your opinions. The meetings are scheduled for:

Cable TV won't give you an excuse to leave home

That fellow George Orwell was wrong.

In his novel "1984" Orwell surmised we would have Big Brother in our living rooms watching our every move via a television screen.

With the advent of television back in the '40s, the doomsayers were in their glory. They predicted that the old boob tube would be the death of a free society.

Television, indeed, will have a gigantic impact in the '80s. But Big Brother watching won't be the problem. The real challenge will be for Americans to adjust their lifestyles.

Education, entertainment, social relationships and working all will be affected by the television revolution.

Cable television will be responsible for a big chunk of that change.

For the last six months, cable television outfits have been invading suburban Detroit communities seeking franchises to set up their profitable outlets.

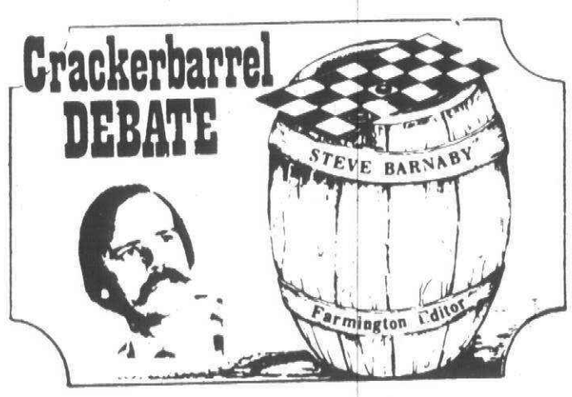

Major communication outfits are getting in on the act throughout the country — Time, General Electric and even American Express. Other corporations are being formed just for cable television.

So it's only fair you get a peek at what's in store. Most of the cable outfits will be firmly established in this area in two to three years.

FOR STARTERS, imagine having 36 to 120 stations from which to chose. The old TV Guide will look like the phone book.

A guy named Ted Turner has launched a station which will provide a 24 hour all-news station. Bureaus have been set up in 20 cities around the country.

The entertainment and sports network will provide coverage of just about any sport the mind can imagine — even high school sports. It has been referred to as a video Sports Illustrated.

Cinemerica will provide programming especially attuned to persons over the age of 50. Nickelodeon will counter with a network just for the kids.

Another network will run all those boring British Broadcasting Corporation programs we're used to seeing public television.

But that's just the beginning.

In Florida, the Knight-Ridder outfit (they own the Free Press) is experimenting with a system where viewers call into the television to find out about such things as weather, news and airline schedules.

Down Ohio way, a system allows viewers to vote for their favorite programs, pick talent contest winners and, believe it or not, do their shopping.

IN OTHER WORDS, by the end of the decade it will be possible for the average family to simply stay at home. Forget the gas crunch. You can save those gas rationing coupons for that big vacation.

Forget the traffic jams at the Silverdome. You'll be able to sit home and watch the Lions lose. No more long lines at the supermarket.

But than, psychologists will probably make a fortune off people going nuts because they can't find an excuse to get out of the house.

Daniel's Den

Watching the TV market wiggle

Cable television programming in this area is at least six months away, but already the competition is starting to react.

Omnicom of Michigan has obtained franchise agreements in the city of Plymouth, Plymouth and Canton Townshihps, Northville and Northville Township.

It is in the process of arranging for installation of cables along existing telephone and electrical poles and hopes to offer service to residents sometime between mid-summer and fall.

Obviously, cable's direct competitors are not waiting until mid-summer or fall to react. There already are movements within the market from the Pay TV people and from commercial television.

THE PAY TV package in this area is offered by National Subscription Television (NST) through local station Channel 20.

Last week the NST people hit the Plymouth-Canton market with a heavy mail campaign, hoping to sign up customers before Omnicom is ready to offer its package.

Channel 20 uses a scrambling device to offer special programming to its customers after 8 p.m. (Before 8 p.m. Channel 20 broadcasts to everyone as a regular commercial station.)

First-run movies are offered, and an additional pitch made by NST is that it has signed contracts with local universities, such as U-M, to telecast local sports contests.

The local sports offerings are important to NST because it is the major competitive edge it has to offer at this point. Cable also will be offering first run movies, a lot of sports programming, and much more. The difference, claims the Ch. 20 pitch, is that Pay TV will concentrate on the local university teams.

Some kind of competitive edge is needed because Pay TV cannot compete, or at least has not competed price-wise. Pay TV subscribers pay a $50 installation fee, a $50 refundable security deposit, and $22.50 a month.

Omnicom has a $25 installation fee (waived to those who sign up early), no security deposit, and a $15 a month charge for a package which includes 35 channels and the first-run movie service.

With the price difference, you can see why Pay TV is signing up subscribers now and why it must offer something different. Supposedly that different package will be telecasts of at least some games of U-M, MSU, U-D, and the Detroit Tigers, Red Wings, Express and Lightning.

Omnicom says it might obtain contracts for such local sports telecasts, and also says it doesn't really consider Pay TV as competition. But Pay TV obviously sees cable as competition.

NOT MUCH HAS been heard yet from the commercial television stations or public TV.

But commercial television has responded, although the pitch was so quiet many may have missed it. I almost did.

I was reading the morning paper Friday over my second cup of coffee. I had turned to the TV page and noticing that Gary Deeb was spread across the top of the page my eyes immediately dropped towards the bottom.

In the lower right corner was an advertisement on a movie, "An Unmarried Woman," being shown that night. My eyes took in the large type, "First Time On Television," ". . . witty, warm, honest," etc., starring Jill Clayburgh, Alan Bates, Michael Murphy, Cliff Gorman.

I was about ready to turn to the next page when a line in small, light-face type caught my eye. It read, "Another outstanding move on free television." (I added the bold-face print for "free television" because that wording made me go back over the line a second and third time.

That line was the first competitive reaction to cable I have seen from commercial television. Or maybe it was a reaction to Pay TV, or both. Commercial television always has been free to viewers, so the fact it is being stressed now is because of what's happening in the marketplace.

That small line was one small movement in the market.

Watch for others because the movement will speed up, and become more apparent, after the maple syrup runs and before the leaves drop in the fall.

Energy and transportation are at the crossroads here

Jackie Klein

It seems like we've been hearing about an energy crisis in one form or another for eons.

I remember gas rationing and coupons during World War II, but I was too interested in boys and college, in that order, to understand or even care about the implications.

For the last several years, many of us poohpoohed news of an energy crisis, insisted it was political propoganda and an insidious ploy by major oil companies to skyrocket the price of gas.

A lot of us were not only skeptical but downright resentful when we were cautioned to dial down the thermostat, turn off the lights, take cold showers and join a car pool. We had nothing but contempt for the doom and gloom mongers, the government, the rich oil magnets and society in general.

I'm one of those former doubters who is becoming more and more aware that energy and transportation in this country are at the crossroads. And if we don't get our act together, we're going to have problems more serious than we ever dreamed.

I covered a conference on energy sponsored by the American Petroleum Institute Fuels and Lubricants Committee. I was impressed with the candor and sincerity of W.J. Price, vice president of Chevron USA, Inc., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. He wasn't hyping the oil company but telling it like it is in language even I could understand.

G.H. UNZELMAN of Ethel Corp. was more technical when he spoke about the fuel supply for the 1980s. But I left knowing a lot more about the energy crisis than I did when I came in, and that was very sketchy.

Price hit home when he said we're living in an era of rapid change beyond our individual control. But we have a lot at stake and collectively we may be able to help convince the powers that be to produce abundant, cheap energy at home. The key word is "self-reliance."

Synthetic fuels, according to Price, won't make a significant contribution. Oil from shale is being produced in laboratories and there's a chance the product will be commercialized by 1988 or 1990. But the cost is staggering. It costs several billions of dollars to produce 100,000 barrells a day.

Solar energy is costly to produce. There's a place for gasahol as an energy extender. It's a tall order to manufacture most synthetics from scratch. Oil companies are anxious to develop conventional energy sources and research other fuels. But they say government regulations are strangling innovation.

In the mid 1950s, according to Unzelman, nobody worried about crude oil. But the 1970 clean air act set emission standards destined to waste the oil which used to produce octane at the lowest cost.

Unzelman claims 1970 was the last year of the country's independence from foreign oil. The quality of available crude oil was compromised, he said.

The United States imports one-half of its petroleum supply. But world oil production won't meet the country's demands because oil from the mid-east will decline and Russia's needs will be met, he said.

EXPERTS SEE crude oil as a bargaining tool, Unzelman said. No way are synthetic oils a part of the country's goal of thousands of barrels of oil a day because the cost of production is about $2 billion, he said.

Environmental hurdles are unbelievable, Unzelman contended, and it's up to the federal government to clear the way so there will be more oil.

Crude oil is in short supply in the U.S. marketplace and distribution is difficult. Crude oil mixed with other elements causes upsets in refining, according to Unzelman. If there were plenty of crude oil, the quality would be better. The loss of it means the loss of 800,000 barrels of gas a day, he contended.

Emission control conflicts with the the effort to get more miles per gallon of gas as well as auto designs, he claimed. And the long-term loss of crude oil will have insidious effects. It may even take cars off the road, he maintained.

Energy and transportation are at the crossroads. The price went up when the oil barrels were full. For the first time, said Unzleman, we're looking into empty barrels and there is an energy shortage.

You can take Unzleman's views for whatever you think they're worth, but there's no denying oil is becoming harder to get. We'll find out how good we are when all the oil supply gets really tight. When we want it, we'll have to punch holes in the ground. But that's self-reliance and ultimately less costly fuel bills for us and our families.

Those ugly-looking oysters can be pretty rough to shell

Sandwiched between stories on Russia and the threatened boycott of the Olympic Games in the morning paper was one that caused The Stroller to smile a bit while sipping his breakfast coffee.

It was the story of Mike Beasly, the 19-year-old who became the oyster shucking champion of Michigan by opening 11 oysters in 90 seconds. It brought back a flood of memories to The Stroller, whose career once was headed in that direction.

When he was a young lad his father opened what he termed a lunch counter back home in the Dutch Country. It was supposed to be a medium not only for starting The Stroller on the way to the life of an expert oyster shucker, but it was supposed to provide support for the family.

AS HE SIPPED coffee and read the story of the new champion came the mental picture of the first morning he was assigned the task of oyster shucking, a fancy word for opening these jewels of the sea. It was the start of the school year and in those days oysters were available only during months containing the letter "R."

There is nothing more hideous looking than an oyster in the shell. Usually they still have a bit of seaweed attached to them and they are not too pleasant a sight.

So it wasn't with too much enthusiasm that the young Stroller took a special type knife from his dad who told him to start opening them.

"Just find a place along the outer rim of the shell" he said "and then stab them. It should be easy."

It wasn't. The first jab he took with this special knife missed the slight opening in the shell and he almost dug a hole in his hand. He finally found a few of these openings, but never without the possibility of severely injuring his left hand.

Finally came a switch in technique. Noticing that The Stroller never would win any prizes as an oyster shucker, Dad went to the nearby blacksmith shop and had a huge piece of angle iron made that would serve as a sort of anvil.

Once this was available, The Stroller was told to hold the oyster on its side on the top part of the angle and then strike a blow with the knife.

"This ought to open the shell," Dad said, "and then the job will be easier."

WITH THE NEW method The Stroller had better luck. At least his left hand no longer was in danger.

But he had to learn the proper method to get the succulent bivalves separated from the shell. He mastered it, but at a much slower pace than shucking. And each morning he had to open 100 oysters before he went to school. It was a task. And not an easy one, at that but the oysters were opened without too much damage to the body of the oyster.

Then one morning Dad walked while The Stroller was struggling to free the oyster from the shell. He watched for a few minutes, then he called a halt.

"I have a better job for you," he said, and pointed toward the back room where there stood the only commercial pool table in town.

"I'm going to teach you to play the game and I think you will like that better than opening oysters."

What do you suppose happened? The Stroller not only learned to play "pool," he became the "house" man, and by the time he was 12 years old, he was the pool playing champion of Lehigh Valley.

No wonder there was a smile when he read the story of the state's new oyster shucking champion. He's welcome to the honor.

Tell 'whole truth' of price hike

Editor:

On the front page of a recent copy of the Plymouth Observer you had a picture of an Observer paper boy collecting and the caption, "$1.50 Please." (The picture and caption ran in all 12 editions of the Observer & Eccentric newspapers.)

Under the heading you cite that "As a young business person, your carrier is faced by the problems of rising costs, and the extra 25 cents will help to increase his/her earnings and incentive to continue to give good delivery to you." While this is a fact, it is not the whole truth.

Of that 25 cent increase, the Observer receives 19 cents and the carrier receives 6 cents. Thus, it is a profit increase for both the Observer and the carrier. I am sure that most of your readers are unaware that the carrier receives only 1 cent for each paper delivered (plus a $2 bonus if they deliver in a rural route) and 25 percent of all collections. If a subscriber does not pay the paperboy, in reality he/she only receives the 1 cent delivery (hardly worth the trip).

By your caption you have made it appear that the delivery person is receiving the entire 25 cents and now the paperperson is confronted with not only collecting a high rate but having to defend the fact that they are not receiving the entire 25 cents. I really believe that a reasonable piece of journalism would have outlined accurately the real facts.

Jobs are at stake

Auto plant needs pollution permit, but state can't act

By TIM RICHARD

Michigan's failure to pass an auto inspection/maintenance law could cost the metropolitan area thousands of jobs this year.

"The train has left the station," Michael M. Glusac, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, told the SEMCOG Executive Committee last week.

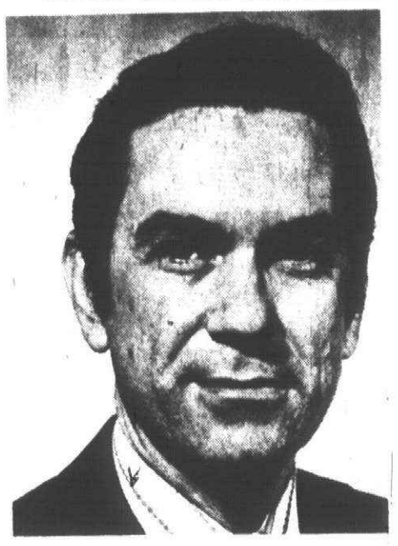

"I was in Lansing Jan. 23 to testify before the House urban affairs committee on the Clodfelter bill," Glusac said, referring to HB 5367, a mandatory motor vehicle emissions inspection and maintenance program sponsored by Rep. Mark Clodfelter, D-Flint.

"A representative of the Michigan Department of Commerce testified that we need a bill by the end of March or it could affect as many as 10,000 jobs in southeast Michigan.

"HE GAVE no clues as to where," Glusac said, "but we know General Motors has already announced an engine plant in Pontiac that would require a permit."

Under the federal Clean Air Act, he said, a plant emitting more than 100 tons of air pollutants a year would require a state permit from the air pollution control division of the Department of Natural Resources.

"The state can't issue permits unless it complies with the Clean Air Act," Glusac continued. "So the state must pass an I/M act.

MICHAEL M. GLUSAC
'We knew all along'

"We need a law that applies at least to southeast Michigan by the end of March because that is when the construction season is to start."

THEN GLUSAC got visibly excited.

"We knew. We knew all along. We told everybody last year that we had to have an I/M law.

"Why did it take so damn long to initiate debate on a federal law that was passed in 1977? We've waited until the winter of 1980."

Passing an I/M law is no simple matter like lowering a speed limit, Glusac said. The Clodfelter bill defines vehicles (excluding farm implements), air quality standards, referee lanes, inspections, reinspections, tampering, testing stations and vehicle emission standards.

It involves coordination by the Michigan departments of State, Natural Resources and Transportation and rule-making by State.

Excluded would be vehicles more than eight model-years old. The state could deal with private contractors to perform inspections. Fees for inspections are limited to $10.

A MAJOR BONE of contention is whether the law should be written to apply only to the seven counties of southeast Michigan or to the entire state.

Glusac and SEMCOG argue it should apply to the entire state. One reason is equity in attracting business investment. Another is that vehicles everywhere emit pollutants.

Testifying in Lansing, Glusac criticized state monitoring techniques which led to talk of applying the law only in the southeast part of the state.

"There were only 14 ozone monitors in the entire state of Michigan," he said. "There was one each in the counties of Marquette, Muskegon, Kent, Ingham, Genesee, Bay, Oakland, Macomb and St. Clair while there were five in Wayne County alone. Thus, in the SEMCOG region, there were eight of the 14."

He quoted state documents as saying that "present air monitoring sites in several urban areas are poorly located. . . The "peak" ozone concentrations are not likely to be monitored."

$340 in coins missing

A nighttime break-in at the Troy Packaging Products in Plymouth resulted in the theft of hundreds of dollars in coins, according to local police records.

The plant, at 350 S. Mill St., was broken into sometime in the late hours between Monday night and Tuesday morning of last week.

According to police, it appears the culprit or culprits entered through the back loading dock doorway and then got into the main office area.

Once inside, a bag of $340 in change was taken from a file cabinet.

Chief cagers stay alive in Western 6 race

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Canton kept its hopes alive in the race for the Western Six League basketball crown with a 68-64 win Friday night at Northville.

The victory hurdled Canton over the .500 mark (7-6). The Chiefs are 4-2 in the league, trailing unbeaten Waterford Mott by two games. Mott squeaked by Livonia Churchill 57-50.

Canton used a man-to-man defense to stymie the Mustangs to go along with the hot hand of 6-foot guard Scott Adler, who led scorers with 24 points.

Canton and Northville traded baskets in the first quarter, 16-all, but the Chiefs came out blazing in the second period to take control.

Adler connected on three straight shots, all outside jumpers, in the last two minutes before intermission to give the Chiefs a 38-30 lead. He had 16 points at halftime.

Coach Craig Bell had ordered his team to switch to a man-to-man defense in the second period which resulted in numerous Mustang turnovers.

"They had their small lineup in and they shot well against our zone," explained Bell. "We went to our man defense and it was sound. We had a lot of hand deflections and we matched up better."

Adler rips Mustangs

IN THE THIRD quarter Canton maintained its lead despite some anxious moments from Northville.

Adler, fighting for position inside, collected a rebound and put it back in to give Canton a 58-49 lead with 5:09 to go.

Dave Visser, coming back from an illness which kept him out of Tuesday's 87-55 victory over Thurston, followed with three straight points as Canton maintained its eight point bulge. Visser finished with 14.

Northville made a run, but had too little, too late in the final four minutes. Center Dave Ward, who led Northville with 16 points, hit two straight baskets to cut the Canton advantage to 61-57 with 3:06 left.

Adler, however, canned two free throws with 2:06 remaining to ice it for the Chiefs. Canton went into a semi-stall in the final three minutes to keep Northville at bay.

"We held together at the end," said Bell. "They made a run at us, but we held our poise and caused some turnovers late in the game."

The Chiefs hit 29 of 71 shots from the floor for 40 percent compared with Northville's 29 of 54 for 54 percent. Adler led Canton hitting 11 of 21. He also had five assists.

Forward Brad Westin, who scored points, led Canton with six rebounds. The Chiefs also got a lift from senior Dan McGlinn, who scored four points.

Canton will travel to Livonia Stevenson (10-2) Tuesday at 8 p.m. The Spartans won an earlier game, 61-59.

"We're trying to put a string together," Bell said. "Stevenson is a fine team and we have a lot of respect for them. We're going to be ready."

Monk nets 36 as Rocks slam Edsel Ford, 73-56

Howard Monk scored 36 points to lift Plymouth Salem to a 73-56 Suburban Eight League basketball win Friday night over Dearborn Edsel Ford.

The victory gives Salem a 6-0 mark in the league and 12-1 overall.

Monk scored 16 of his 38 points in the second quarter. The 6-foot-6 senior center also snared 16 rebounds.

Using its standard man-to-man defense, Salem raced out to an 18-10 first quarter lead as guard Rob Neu hit a jumper followed by eight straight points from sophomore forward Scott Bublin.

"We got some outside shooting early and it opened things up inside," explained Salem Coach Fred Thomann. "I was encouraged by our shooting."

Edsel Ford elected to contain Salem with a zone defense the whole way.

"This was a key win for us because it was on the road and we've been in two tight games before this," said Thomann, whose team is ranked No. 9 in Class A by the Detroit Free Press.

"Edsel Ford is one of the most physical teams we've played," he said. "They had 28 offensive rebounds against us."

The Rocks, however, held their own on the glass as Neu and Bublin each collected nine.

Neu, a senior, played a fine floor game scoring nine points and coming up with six steals.

MIKE McBRIDE and senior starter Jim Anderson had six and five assists, respectively, for Salem.

Salem held a 39-23 lead at halftime. The Thunderbirds hit the first two baskets at the outset of the third quarter, cutting the Salem margin to 39-27. The Dearborn squad, however, could not slice the deficit any further.

Salem led 55-39 at the end of three quarter and coasted the rest of way.

The Rocks hit 24 of 56 shots from the floor for 42 percent, but capitalized from the free throw line, canning 25 of 31 for 81 percent. Monk hit 10 of 12.

Salem will travel to Westland John Glenn of the Northwest Suburban League Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Canton gymnasts fall to Livonia as flu bug hits

The flu bug hit Plymouth Canton which resulted in a 74.75-70.65 girls' gymnastics loss to Livonia Clarenceville Wednesday night.

Four of Canton's six top gymnasts did not compete in the meet. Most notably absent was No. 1 performer Laurie Beale along with teammates Kelly Harvey, Sheryl Korsnes and Maureen Morahan.

"I wish we would have done as well as the Canton basketball team did when Visser was out," cracked Canton Coach John Cunningham, referring to the Canton cagers' 87-55 win over Thurston, without the services of Dave Visser, the team's leading scorer.

"Even though we lost I thought it was a good meet," he said. "I was real pleased. We had four freshman and two juniors out there. They did a good job."

Veterans Laura Michalik and Katy Heaton almost pulled Canton through.

Michalik won the vault with a score of 7.4 and the floor exercise (7.75). She also took third in the balance beam (6.25) and fourth in the uneven parallel bars (5.25).

Her score of 26.35 captured all-around honors.

Heaton took second in the vault (7.35) and placed third in both the uneven bars (6.0) and floor exercise (6.8). She was also fourth in the balance beam (5.65). Her all-around score was 25.80, good enough for second place.

May DeWolfe of Clarenceville won the uneven bars (6.85) while teammate Cindy Miller took the balance beam (6.6).

Canton's Dayna Wasiak gained fifth in the uneven bars (3.1) and teammate Kim Brown took sixth in the vault (6.1).

Canton will travel to Ypsilanti Monday at 7 p.m. The Chiefs are now 2-3 overall.

SALEM-WAYNE MEMORIAL

Natalie Kozorosky on all four events to lead Wayne Memorial to an 86.1-51.2 girls' gymnastics victory over Plymouth Salem Wednesday night.

Kozorosky won the vault with a score of 7.9, uneven bars (7.5), balance beam (8.1) and floor exercise (8.7). Her all-around score was 32.15.

Salem sophomore Sue Nitz turned in a good performance for coach Carol Michaels, placing third in all-around (18.45).

"Sue has made a definite improvement," said the Salem coach. "She performed well. She was one point better tonight on the beam and floor exercise."

The top Rock performers in the vault were Kris Fenske (4.4), Kathy Rice (4.1) and Donna Ankofski (4.0).

In the balance beam Nitz scored a 3.6 followed by teammates Cindy McSurely (3.4) and LeAnne Albright (3.2).

Nitz scored a 5.65 in the balance beam followed by Ankofski and Germaine Mason (4.2 each) and Dana Flower (3.8).

Nitz had a score of 5.25 in the floor exercise with Mason getting a 4.85 and Tracy Riedel a 4.6.

As a team it was Salem's second best score of the year.

The Rocks will host Dearborn Edsel Ford Monday at 7 p.m.

Salem spikers downed

A lack of experience and youth were two of the reasons why Plymouth Salem lost to Livonia Bentley Wednesday night, 15-13, 15-3, in a Suburban Eight League volleyball match.

The Salem squad, with only one senior, provided the league leader with a stiff challenge in the first game, but quickly folded in the second.

Salem enjoyed a 13-11 lead in the opening game, but lost its momentum when regular Mary VanDusen was forced to leave after having her glasses shattered during an exchange at the net.

Bentley then wasted little time and won the next four points to take the first game.

"We replaced Mary and that meant we had two sophomores out there without much playing experience positioned right next to each other," said Salem Coach Cathy Himes.

"Because of our lack of experience, Bentley was able to capitalize on kills since our block coverage and quickness there wasn't that great," she explained.

Salem suffered a letdown in the second game as Bentley jumped out to a 12-1 lead.

"We lost our concentration in the second game while we were serving," said the Salem coach.

Himes praised the play of junior Cheryl Sobkow and sophomore Linda Lybarger for their serving in the first game. Himes said freshman Sandy Faussett also played well.

The Salem coach also saluted the play of senior captain Dana Harter for her setting skills and aggressiveness on block coverage.

The Rocks, 4-3 overall and 2-3 in the Suburban Eight, will play at Livonia Stevenson in a 7 p.m. match.

Canton wrestlers trim Mott

The Plymouth Canton wrestling team took another big step in quest of its first ever Western Six League championship with a 34-30 victory over Waterford Mott in the Corsairs' gym.

The Chiefs have put together the longest undefeated dual match streak in the school's history (nine matches). Their record now stands at 11-3-1 overall and 3-1-1 in the league. Mott tumbled to 2-3.

"It was a good win for us," said Canton coach Dan Chrenko. "This is the first time we have ever beaten Mott. It seems like every year they do a great job against us and they almost did it (beat Canton) Thursday."

Freshman Todd Bartlett (100 pounds) ran into some trouble early and was defeated by John Humphries, 9-3. John Surlock (107) picked up a forfeit victory for the Chiefs.

Tom Harreld (1) won his 26th match of the season with a first period pin of Kurt Swagle and Brett Haarala (121) followed suit with a 9-0 major decision over Harry Muxlow.

"Brett has really been on a tear," said Chrenko. "He has come on very strong lately."

At 128 pounds, Steve Parks of Mott surprised Kevin Santilli with a first period fall at 1:41. Tim Racer (134), hampered by a sore shoulder, still managed to pull out a victory over last year's runnerup at the league meet, Ken Land, 13-11.

DAVE BENNETT, 140, wrestling with a slight shoulder separation, was pinned by Charlie Bratton.

Sophomore Steve Hamblin came from behind to defeat Chris Fergusson 7-6 in the 7-pound weight class. Bob Mullen of Canton was decisioned by Tom Zembovic at 157 pounds.

Dave Vaughn (169) and Paul Mooney (187) pinned their opponents to secure the victory for Canton.

"They (Mott) wrestled very well," said Chrenko, "but it was another good night for us and we were fortunate to come away with a win.

"This match just shows how even our league is. It's gonna be a great league meet."

Chrenko thought that his team's layoff helped them and is looking forward to another four-day rest.

"A few of the kids aren't feeling very well," said Chrenko, "and I think that the rest we have coming is well deserved and will help us come league meet time."

Rocks roll Bulldogs; stay perfect

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Salem's wrestling team held a pin party Thursday night.

The Rocks had Livonia Bentley on its backs most of the night, scoring an easy 72-2 victory in a Suburban Eight League dual. Salem is now 9-0 overall to go along with seven consecutive invitational titles.

"Bentley is a young team and we wanted them to wrestle against our varsity kids," explained Salem Coach Ron Krueger. "If they have some kids that are good enough to beat us, then I want them to wrestle our best."

But the undermanned Bulldog team was virtually no match for Salem. The Rocks had nine pins including heavyweight Greg Gattoni, who tied teammate Jeff Dunson with a school record pin in just nine seconds over John Simon.

Salem wrestlers opened the meet with four straight pins.

Freshman Jeff Vojcek, who holds the school record for freshman wins, pinned Bentley's Tim Scott in 2:16 at 100 pounds.

Jim Schultz, now 34-2 overall, won easily by pinning Bill Novak of Bentley in 55 seconds at 107 pounds. Dunson followed suit with a pin of his own in 3:53 over Fred Rothley.

Salem's fourth pin came when Jeff Brown (1) put Bentley's Kurt Boyer on his back in 1:30. Brown is 28-7 overall.

AT 128 pounds Mark Ross decisioned Bentley's Bruce Younge, 5-0, to raise his individual mark to 34-4-1. Teammate Bruce Bachman then pinned Dan Brodine in 3:08 at 134 pounds.

Jerry Valchine dominated Bulldog foe Mike Smith at 140 pounds with a major decision, 15-3.

Al Porter scored Bentley's only two points of the night when he tied Salem's Rob Price at 145 pounds, 9-9.

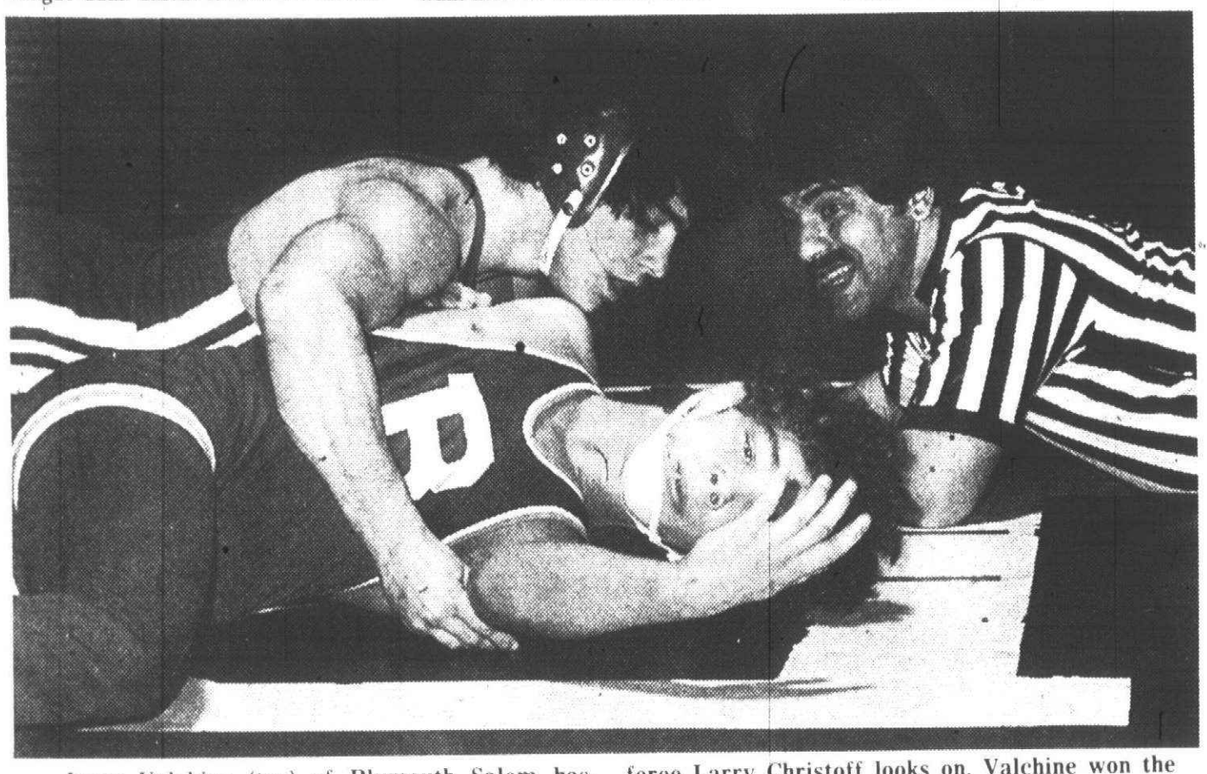

Price trailed until the third period, but could not overcome Porter in the final minute.

Scott Piper (157) wasted little time for the Rocks when he pinned Mike Scott in 50 seconds. Steve Szilagyi (169) took care of Bob Holmstrom with a pin in 3:57.

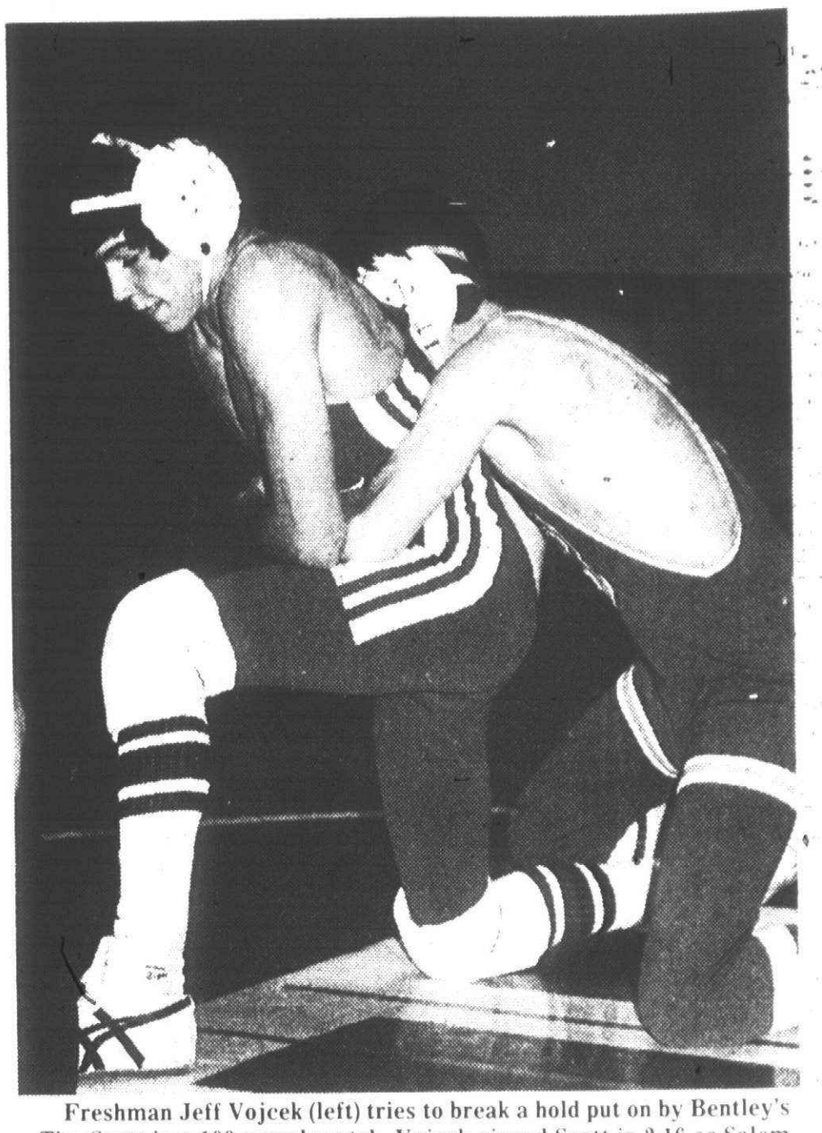

At 189 pounds senior Jeff Powers won by void.

Stan Snider (200) gave Salem another fast pin by downing Mark Hill in 1:05.

Gattoni then capped the evening by tying the school mark.

Canton tankers win

It was the Chiefs' fourth straight win.

Senior captain Paul Petersen won both the 100-yard butterfly (:53.9) and 100-yard breast stroke (1:02.4). It was his best time this season in the butterfly where he leads all area performers.

He was also a member of the first place 200-yard medley relay team along with Jeff Seippel, Ron Hurley and Mike Sherwood. They posted a time of 1:47.3.

Senior Keith Greenleaf and teammate Troy Haarala finished first and second respectively in the 200-yard freestyle with times of 1:59.5 and 2:01.1.

Haarala won the 500-yard freestyle with a clocking of 5:26.6. Teammate Pete Stern captured the 100-yard freestyle (:53.8) with Dave Smith gaining third (:55.9).

Seippel took the 100-yard backstroke (1:03.2) while John Simone also grabbed first in the 200-yard individual medley (2:21.8). Sherwood took the 50-yard freestyle with a time of :23.9.

In the 400-yard freestyle relay the team of Sherwood, Haarala, Stern and Hurley claimed first with a clocking of 3:33.3. Dave and Ryan Smith slong with Greenleaf and Jeff Rice took second with a time of 3:44.2.

Salem swimmers dunk Thunderbirds

Plymouth Salem came up with a big Suburban Eight League swim victory Thursday night over Dearborn Edsel Ford, 96-76.

It was the Rocks first league win against two losses. Salem is 5-4 overall in dual meets.

"I'll take it," said Salem Coach Chuck Olson. "Our times weren't real fast, but it's a tough place to swim with the narrow lanes. If you're not careful you can get into problems."

The Rocks did not have any problems dominating the relay events.

In the opening event Salem finished 1-2 in the 200-yard medley relay. The team of Bruce Harwood, Jeff Stella, Jeff Kleinsmith and Russ Shaffer took first with a time of 1:50.6. Right behind were teammates Paul Neschich, Steve McKenna, Mark Roehrig and Dave Hopper with a clocking of 1:52.5.

In the 400-yard freestyle Salem's quartet of Doug and Jeff Kleinsmith, McKenna and senior co-captain Kirk Alberrt grabbed first spot with a time of 3:37.0.

Paul Perkowski, Jim Kindree, Tim Jones and Hopper placed third with a time of 3:53.6.

"It was a lot closer meet than the score indicated," said Olson. "We were only ahead by six points after the 500-yard freestyle which they swept."

The Rocks managed to stay above water in individual events.

SOPHOMORE RUSS Shaffer won both the 200-yard IM (2:12.5) and 100-yard freestyle (:53.1). Other Salem firsts were recorded by Joe Rudelic in diving (210.75) and senior Jeff Stella in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:07.4).

Second place finishers for the Rocks included Albert, 200-yard freestyle, 1:56.8; Tim Harwood, 200-yard IM, 2:.7; Hopper, 50-yard freestyle, :24.5; Jeff Kleinsmith, 100-yard butterfly, 1:02.3; Doug Kleinsmith, 100-yard freestyle, :54.1; Bruce Harwood, 100-yard backstroke, 1:02.4; Gary Workman, 100-yard breaststroke, 1:09.3.

Gaining third place for the Rocks were Mike Stella, 50-yard freestyle, :25.2; Roehrig, 100-yard butterfly, 1:05.5; Tim Harwood, 100-yard backstroke, 1:04.8.

"Edsel Ford is not a bad team and we hung in the individual events," said Olson. "It shows what kind of depth we have."

Salem will host Livonia Bentley Thursday at 7 p.m.

Schoolcraft cagers drub Washtenaw

Linda Mix set a Schoolcraft College women's single-game scoring record with 31 points last week during the Ocelots' 84-29 basketball trouncing of Washtenaw Community College.

Mix, a guard, is a Livonia Churchill graduate.

Cindy Stapleton, a Garden City East alum, contributed 17 points and Stephanie Salyer, from Livonia Stevenson, added nine.

"We played a good fast-break offense and really ran the ball well," said Phyllis Cunningham, first-year coach at Schoolcraft. "We relaxed and really played a good ball game."

Only six Washtenaw players were available for the game.

The win improved the Ocelots' season record to 3-7.

$25,000 art collection is donated to Schoolcraft

Art work valued at nearly $25,000, one of the largest donations ever received by Schoolcraft College, was accepted by the Board of Trustees last week.

The art includes an album of 17 original color lithographs titled "Cats," an album of seven lithographs called "Windows" and four untitled silkscreens.

The gift was the largest of 13 accepted by the college, which carry a total value of nearly $28,800. The gifts are tax deductible.

THE ART was donated to the Schoolcraft Art Department, through the London Arts Group of Detroit, by three men who requested to remain anonymous.

Jeanne Angelastra, gallery coordinator of the London Arts Group, would only say the donors were from "the metropolitan area."

She said the men wanted to make a donation to a local college.

The London Arts Group finds colleges and universities for private art donors, Ms. Angelastra said.

The collection will be the most valuable art work on the Schoolcraft campus. "No question about it," said Richard Saunders, director of the art department, who added that the works will be displayed by early spring.

Saunders said "great security" will be needed for the collection, "and that's always been a problem on campus."

The lithographs and silk screens are all recent works by artists Ilya Bolotowsky, a Russian native now living in New York, Pierre Alechinsky of France and Karel Appel, a Dutch artist.

THE SCHOOLCRAFT geology department has received nealy 800 fossil samples that are valued at $2,617.

The donation was made by Thomas Witherspoon of Dearborn. According to geology instructor Vera Dorr, Witherspoon collects fossils as a hobby and has a garage full of them.

The fossils range from "quite a few shells," said Ms. Dorr, to "some clams, snails, corrals and mammal bones and vertebrae collected out west." Many are insects, sheadded, including two dozen whole specimans of a trilobite, which became extinct 250 million years ago.

A trilobite "pretty much looks like an overgrown centipede," Ms. Dorr said.

OTHER DONATIONS recently received by Schoolcraft include:

- Aluminum (750 pounds) and steel (385 pounds) valued at $1,072 from the Tronic-Ware Co., Garden City, for the welding program.
- $1,050 to a scholarship and loan fund for senior adults from Jan and Nelly Reef.
- Three instron tensile testers, valued at $1,000 from Ford Motor Co., for the college metallurgy department.
- A $300 combined gift from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woltz, Plymouth, and Marathon Oil Co. for the Woltz-Marathon Scholarship Fund. The Woltzes donated $100 which was doubled by Marathon, his employer. Woltz and Marathon determine how the scholarship money will be spent.
- $173 from the occupational therapy alumni association for audio-visual materials.
- A piano cover worth $65 from Mitchell Madis of Plymouth.

Editor:

On Jan. 22, 1980 at the regular Plymouth Township Board of Trustees meeting Maurice Breen proposed a resolution which was supported by myself and by roll call vote passed unanimously and therefore was adopted.

The board authorized Supervisor Thomas Notebaert to negotiate with City Manager Henry Graper. This resolution established a procedure to be followed for joint discussions between the Charter Township of Plymouth and the city of Plymouth. The language was proposed and adopted at a PUBLIC MEETING.

The confidential letter of Jan. 24, 1980 from Mr. Notebaert proposes an entirely different procedure. As stated in the letter, "on a matter of procedure we should follow during the forthcoming study of unified services. The city and Maurice Breen and I concur, that while a particularl subject of unified services, such as police, is being negotiated, (this would be a small group situation and not subject to the Open Meeting Meetings Act anyway) the participants from the township and city will not divulge the details on a public basis. Once the study group has reached points of tentative agreement, a press release would be prepared by Chuck Lowe and Don Morgan. The release jointly issued by city and township, and then public deliberation would follow."

The questions that I wish to have answered publicly are: First, what procedure is going to be followed, the one adopted publicly or the one passed to board members in a confidential communication from the supervisor? These are contradictory.

Secondly, again I question what is meant by "tentative agreement" as it is used in Mr. Notebaert's letter?

Because the majority of the board (Mr. Notebaert, Esther Hulsing, Joe West and Barbara Lynch) rejected my request to discuss these matters at the last regular meeting, Jan. 29, I have requested that this item be placed on the agenda for the Feb. 5 meeting along with a resolution that I will propose. However, there is no certainty that it will remain on the agenda. (The board approves the agenda and items may be deleted or added by majority vote).

In any event I oppose any policy, procedure or other action by the board of trustees which I believe is proposed to circumvent the public. Not only do I philosophically oppose it, but I will publicly expose it, fight against the implementation of it, and work to abolish it.

I believe that the "matter of procedure" Mr. Notebaert addressed in his letter implies circumvention of the Open Meetings Act as well as the standing policies of this board.

I hope that the board will see fit to discuss this openly, publicly so my questions will be answered as a matter of record.

When frustrated re-evaluate aims

tipping the scales

Nancy Austin

The caller on the other end of the phone line was obviously frustrated.

"I don't know what to do any more," she said. "I just don't have any motivation. I've tried everything I know and nothing works."

"Everyone I talk to is having the same problem," she went on. "I am so tired of dieting, I am just sick of it. I can stay with it for a while, then I go off of it and gain back all the weight I lost."

The caller continued to lament her lifelong struggle with the calorie counter. She talked of how she has tried every magazine diet, of how much she hates the scales and of how guilty she feels when she fails and how disgusted with herself the whole scene leaves her.

What she wanted to know was how people help themselves when they reach total frustration.

IF YOU FEEL as she does, it's time to re-evaluate your opinion of yourself and your lifestyle. This is a good time of year to do it. You may be suffering from the holiday letdown. The weather tends to be gloomy and that can influence your attitude.

Do some soul searching. It can uplift, give you direction, and freshen your determination and enthusiasm.

When you begin the process of re-evaluation, consider first your emotions.

Guilt is a feeling experienced by everyone. Those who continually fail at dieting feel it profoundly.

Listen closely, friends. Guilt is non-productive. It is not going to help you lose weight. It just makes you feel worse. If you need an emotional flogging, then go ahead and wallow in guilt. But If you want to be productive, you'll have to work at getting rid of it. Tell yourself, "This isn't helping me lose weight or feel good about myself." Think about it, digest it, then move on to something else more productive.

THINK ABOUT your personal appearance. Good grooming and a high opinion of yourself usually go hand in hand. So go stand in front of a mirror and really take a look, a long, hard, critical look. How's your hair style? Frumpy? Take a look at your clothes. Buttons missing? Held together at the waist with a safety pin? Seams ripped? Stained? Wrinkled?

Are you laughing on the outside and crying on the inside and spending your life trying to please others?

There is a tie-in between guilt and unhappiness. Women are particularly vulnerable to this. Women feel guilty if they spend time on themselves to make themselves feel and/or look better. They have been programmed into thinking they should sacrifice themselves for the good of their families.

That idea is a lot of hogwash.

You must be happy with yourself before you can make other people happy.

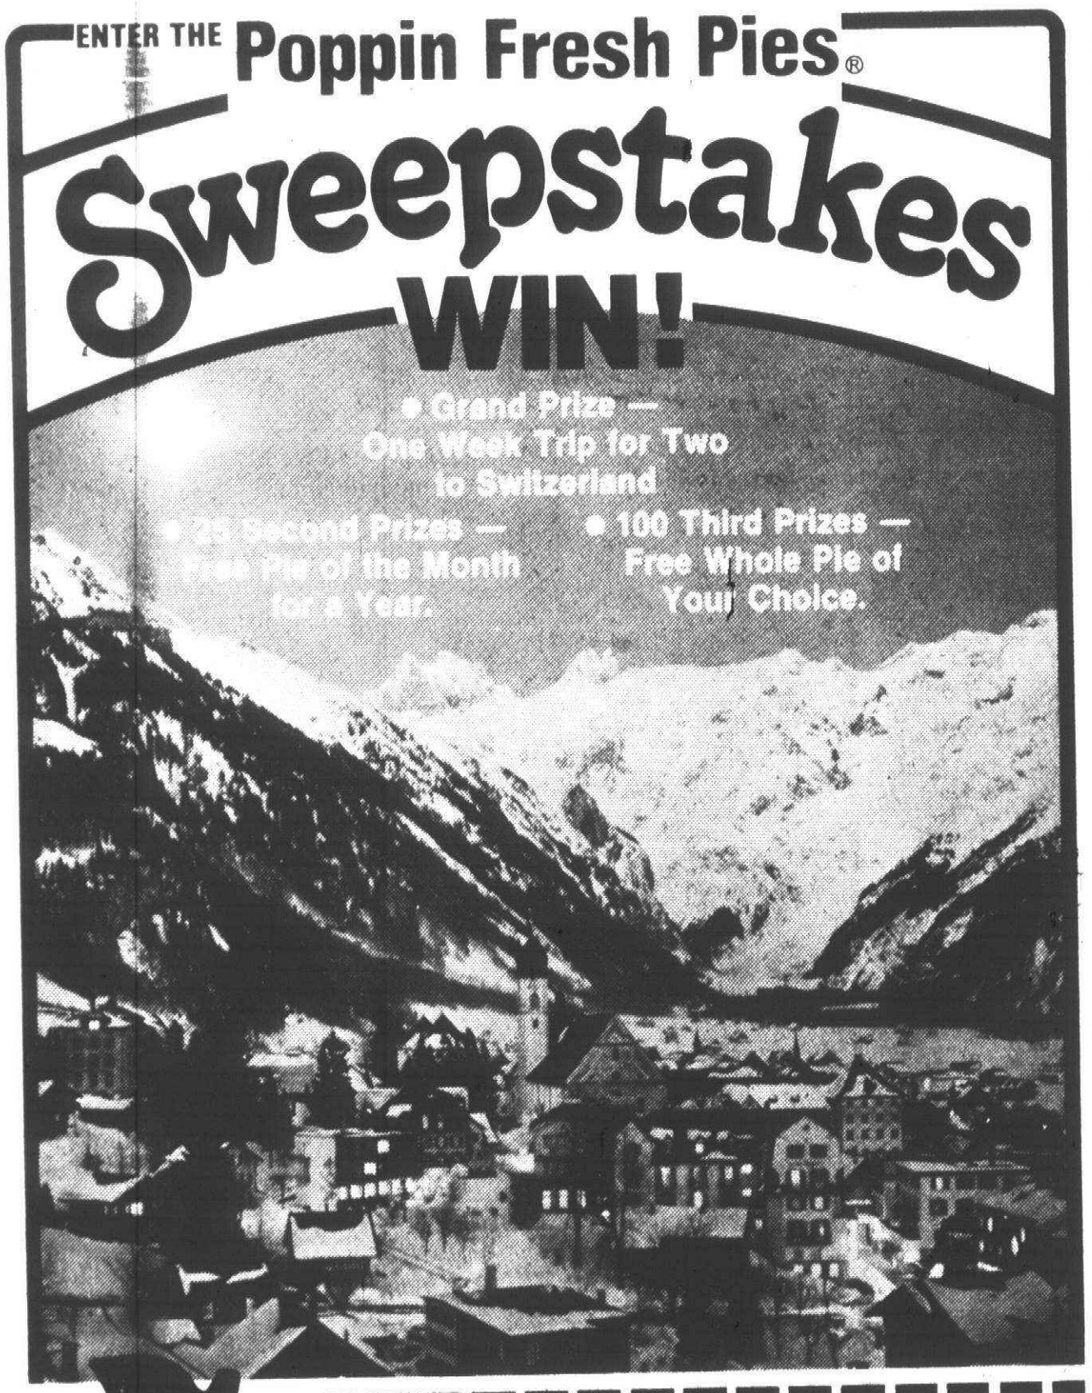

Think about that for awhile. It makes more sense than you may realize, and it is the philosophy on which I finally based my successful weight loss program.

The Warming Oven

by Emily Watson

Hearts and flowers belong on the refreshment table at any sentimental occasion.

Two of the nicest choices for the salad at a reception-type party are still the classic chicken salad or crab salad, delicately seasoned and blended with mayonnaise.

For such great occasions as anniversaries, showers, birthdays and St. Valentine's Day itself, serve either of these salads in individual tomato aspic hearts.

Or, if the party is more casual, here are two variations on the chicken salad theme to be served simply in lettuce cups. One salad includes crisp apples, the other carrot strips and crunchy almonds.

And have you noticed the price of chicken lately? It's the biggest bargain around.

RECEPTION SALAD

3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold water
4 cups tomato juice
1 tsp. salt
4 peppercorns
1 bay leaf
2 stalks celery, chopped
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tsp. onion juice
1 recipe crab or chicken salad
Iceberg lettuce or salad greens

Sprinkle gelatin on cold water to soften. Mix tomato juice, salt, peppercorns, bay leaf and celery in saucepan. Bring to boil and simmer for 10 minutes. Strain. Add softened gelatin to hot liquid and stir until completely dissolved.

Mix lemon juice and onion juice and add to tomato mixture. Pour into 12 (½-cup) heart-shaped molds. Chill until firm. Unmold onto serving plate. Spoon crab or chicken salad on top of each. Garnish with salad greens. Makes 12 servings.

NOTE: If heart-shaped molds are not available, pour mixture into two 9-inch square pans. Chill, then cut with heart-shaped cutter.

CRAB SALAD

For enough crab salad to top 12 aspic hearts, clean and flake ½ pound cooked crab meat or two 5½ to 7½-ounce cans crab meat. Mix with one cup finely chopped celery, two tablespoons minced parsley, and ½ cup mayonnaise. Chill until serving time.

CHICKEN SALAD

Toss together two cups diced, cooked chicken, ¾ cup diced celery, and ½ cup peas. Then mix one tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon grated onion, ½ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper into ½ cup of mayonnaise. Chill well.

Just before serving, toss ⅓ cup walnuts through salad.

CHICKEN AND CARROT SALAD

1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise
2 cups diced, cooked chicken
1 cup shredded carrot
¾ cup sliced celery
½ cup slivered almonds
2 tbsp. chopped onion
Salt to taste
Iceberg lettuce

Stir lemon juice into mayonnaise. Toss chicken, carrot, celery, almonds, onion, and salt with mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce. Makes four servings.

APPLE AND CHICKEN SALAD

1½ cups diced, cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup chopped unpared apple
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tsp. lemon juice
½ cup chopped nuts
Iceberg lettuce

Mix together chicken, celery, salt and apple. Mix mayonnaise and lemon juice; toss lightly with chicken mixture. Mix in nuts. Serve in lettuce cups. Makes four ½-cup servings.

A SALUTE TO GREAT LOVERS

Roses may be the flower synonymous with romance, but down through the centuries, the gifts of love have more often been food, prepared affectionately by the giver.

Contemporary lovers have expanded this culinary tradition by expressing their romantic feelings over a shared repast in a favorite restaurant. The Magic Pan restaurants throughout the country are saluting great lovers during the month of February.

Inspired by St. Valentine's Day, special tribute is being paid to George and Martha Washington (country beef crepe accompanied by a mixed green salad and a traditional Cherries Royale Almondine dessert crepe.) For Napoleon and Josephine ,it is Potage St. Germain, Orange Almond Salad and a Shrimp Bonaparte crepe.

But for those whom the personal touch is the most desirable way to express loving feelings, the following Magic Pan menu can be created at home and served in a romantic setting of one's choosing

The menu honors two of the most famous lovers of all—Romeo and Juliet. Both the main course and the dessert feature delicate crepes. The Chicken Verona crepe is stuffed with a luscious combination of chicken, green or white grapes and almonds bound in a delicate cream sauce, lightly laced with sherry. The spinach salad has a sweet and sour dressing and the crowning touch is a Chantilly crepe.

BASIC CREPES

1 cup sifted flour
Pinch salt
3 eggs
1-1/2 cups milk
Oil, melted butter or margarine for frying

Resift flour with salt into mixing bowl. Beat in eggs to form a thick paste. Gradually beat in milk until mixture is smooth. (Batter will be consistency of heavy cream.) Let stand, covered, at room temperature 1 hour. Heat 7-inch crepe pan; brush lightly with oil or butter. Add 2 tablespoons batter and tilt pan quickly to spread a thin layer. Cook over medium low heat until browned, about 1 minute; turn and brown second side. Repeat with remaining batter, brushing pan with additional oil as needed.

Makes 18 to 20 (7-inch) crepes.

CHICKEN VERONA CREPES

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1-1/4 cups milk
3 tablespoons dry sherry
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup (about 1 ounce) grated Cheddar cheese
2 cups diced cooked chicken
1 cup sour cream
1 can (8 ounces) white grapes, drained or 1 cup seedless grapes
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1/2 cup sliced natural (unblanched) almonds, toasted
6 baked (7-inch) crepes
6 parsley sprigs

In 2-quart saucepan melt butter over medium heat. Stir in flour; cook 1 minute. Gradually whisk in milk and sherry. Cook and stir about 5 minutes until mixture is smooth and thickened. Stir in bouillon, salt and cheese; cook and stir 2 minutes. Stir in chicken; heat through. Stir in 1/2 cup of the sour cream to blend thoroughly. Stir in grapes and 2 tablespoons of the chopped parsley; heat through. Remove from heat; stir in almonds. On lightly buttered baking sheet spoon 1/2 cup hot chicken mixture across center of each crepe; fold over sides to enclose filling. Heat in 375 degree oven about 10 minutes until edges begin to curl. With large spatula transfer to heated individual serving plates. Dollop with remaining sour cream; sprinkle with remaining chopped parsley. Garnish with parsley sprigs. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 filled crepes.

CHANTILLY CREPES

1 cup apricot preserves
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon aromatic bitters
6 bananas, sliced
6 baked (7-inch) crepes
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
1/2 cup slivered almonds, toasted
Powdered sugar

In small bowl combine preserves, brown sugar, lemon juice and bitters; set aside (or refrigerate, covered, up to 2 days). Just before serving, gently toss bananas (reserving 12 slices for garnish) with 1 cup of the preserves mixture. Place crepes on individual serving plates. Spoon banana mixture across centers of crepes; top each with about 3 tablespoons of the whipped cream. Fold sides of crepes over to enclose filling. Dollop remaining whipped cream across centers of filled crepes; drizzle with remaining preserves mixture. Garnish with reserved banana slices. Sprinkle with almonds and dust with powdered sugar. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 filled crepes.

FRESH SPINACH SALAD

6 cups lightly packed torn spinach, crisped
3/4 cup Magic Pan's Sweet and Sour Dressing (recipe follows)
12 strips bacon, cooked crisp and crumbled
3 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped

Place spinach in large bowl. Toss with Magic Pan's Sweet and Sour Dressing just before serving. Spoon onto individual serving plates; top with bacon and eggs.

Makes 6 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR DRESSING

1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup white wine tarragon vinegar
1-1/2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon tarragon
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Dash liquid hot pepper sauce

In small bowl whisk together all ingredients until mixture is creamy and thoroughly combined. Refrigerate at least 20 minutes to blend flavors. Mix again just before serving.

Makes 3/4 cup.

A Question of Taste

Hillary Keating Callaghan

Super recipe for the novice bread-baker

A certain mystique clings to the notion of bread-baking. It is mistakenly thought to be an extremely temperamental and time-consuming process.

In order to put this slanderous notion to rest, I would like to submit this recipe for Whole Wheat French Bread. It's the simplest and most versatile yeast bread you will ever encounter.

This is an ideal initiation for the novice bread-baker. It is almost impossible to go wrong with this recipe. A few considerations, however, should be kept in mind.

The first is that yeast is alive. It can even die of old age. The individual packets of yeast sold in grocery stores are stamped with an expiration date. Take this information literally. If it is past the expiration date, assume that the yeast has expired. It is dead, and no amount of careful handling on your part will revive it.

You must also beware of killing the yeast with too much heat. Some bread recipes even specify a temperature range for the liquid to be added. This seems impractical as well as intimidating.

ASSUMING THAT you are not going to take the temperature of the water, a good rule of thumb is that any liquid being added to yeast should be warm, never hot. If you feel unsure of how to gauge the temperature, just be sure to err in the direction of too cool rather than too hot.

Even if the liquid is only lukewarm, the worst consequence is a slow first rising.

For anyone who does a lot of yeast baking, it is less expensive to buy yeast in the bulk form available in health food stores rather than in individual packets. Just be careful not to confuse baking yeast with nutritional or brewer's yeast. They are not the same items.

The flours you will need for bread-baking are available in most grocery stores. If a recipe calls for all-purpose flour, use unbleached rather than bleached flour for better body. With the addition of whole grain flours, loaves improve in flavor, texture and nutrition. Try to purchase the stone ground varieties. Stone-grinding results in a coarser flour with a longer shelf life. Since whole grain flours contain natural oils, they are susceptible to spoilage and should be kept refrigerated.

ANOTHER POINT to keep in mind is that the amount of flour needed to form a stiff dough will vary from one time to the next, even using the same recipe. Just keep stirring flour into the dough until it no longer is absorbed. Turn the dough out of the bowl and begin to knead it. You will know immediately when to add more flour. If the dough sticks to your hands in gooey globs, add more flour. If the dough forms a manageable ball, it contains enough flour.

Kneading is accomplished by partially rotating this ball and pushing down on it with the heels of your hands. Ten minutes of kneading are generally sufficient. Kneading, if done with sufficient vigor, is considered to provide a therapeutic release of tensions and aggressions.

Once the kneading is completed, the dough is set aside to rise in a warm, draft-free place. This direction, like that involving water temperature, can be intimidating. How warm? The answer here is the same as for liquid temperatures — better too cool than too warm. Don't for example, put the dough in a warm oven. It will kill the yeast.

ON THE OTHER hand, you may wish to place the dough in the refrigerator. It can stay there, rising slowly, for several hours or even overnight. This can be a great convenience if you are interrupted in preparing bread, or if you would like to serve freshly baked bread early in the day.

One final caution — this bread will keep well for several days, but will then begin to dry out. At this point, it can be put to several good uses: made into fresh bread crumbs by spinning chunks of the dried bread in a blender (vastly superior to the packaged bread crumbs), cubed to make croutons for soups and salads, or spread with garlic butter and crusted with cheese to make the best garlic toast you will ever eat.

WHOLE WHEAT FRENCH BREAD

2 tbsp. active dry yeast (or two envelopes yeast)
3¼ cups warm water
1 tbsp. salt
2½ cups whole wheat flour
5½ cups unbleached flour
1 egg, slightly beaten (optional)

1. Sprinkle yeast into the warm water in a large mixing bowl. Stir until the yeast dissolves.

2. At low speed on an electric mixer, beat in the salt, whole wheat flour and two cups of the unbleached flour; beat until smooth. Gradually stir in about 3 more cups of the unbleached flour to make a soft dough.

3. Turn out onto a board which has been sprinkled with the remaining ½ cup unbleached flour. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 5 to 10 minutes, using only as much additional flour as is needed to keep the dough from sticking.

4. Place the dough in a large, greased bowl; cover with a clean, dry cloth. Let rise, in a warm, draft-free place, until doubled in bulk, about 4-5 minutes.

5. Punch the dough down, and knead 1 minute. Divide in half and roll each half into a rectangle, approximately 15x10 inches. Roll each up, jelly-roll fashion, starting at a long edge. Place each loaf diagonally on a large baking sheet which has been greased and sprinkled with cornmeal. (If you just grease the sheet where the bread will be placed, it will simplify cleanups).

Let the dough rise again until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes. You may wish to place one loaf in the refrigerator during the 30 minutes to slow down the action of the yeast. This will allow you to bake the two loaves consecutively. Cooking them at the same time interfers with air circulation in the oven and may cause burning.

6. Brush both loaves with the egg for a shiny glaze, if desired. Make diagonal cutouts ¼ inches deep in the loaves with a sharp knife.

7. Bake for 25 minutes in the center of a preheated 400 degree oven; quickly brush with cold water. Bake for an additional 5 to 10 minutes. Remove from the baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

GARLIC FRENCH BREAD

½ cups softened butter
2 cloves garlic, finely minced
¼ tsp. salt
1 loaf French bread
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

In a small bowl, beat together the butter, garlic and salt until light and fluffy. Slice the French bread diagonally into ¾-inch slices. Spread one side of each piece of bread generously with the garlic butter. Place on ungreased baking sheets and sprinkle each with a thick coating of the Parmesan cheese. Broil until golden brown, watching carefully to avoid burning.

NOTE: Please grate your own Parmesan cheese from a chunk. If you don't have any fresh Parmesan on hand, substitute a cheddar or Swiss cheese. Do not, under any circumstances, use the pre-grated Parmesan sold in grocery stores. Also, please use only fresh garlic rather than garlic salt or powder. These last two products are vastly inferior to the real thing, and real garlic is convenient to use, with the aid of a garlic press, an inexpensive items well worth the minimal investment.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

Go ahead, be mushy

Valentine's Day is the time to dye your heart red and pin it on your sleeve. Go ahead, be mushy. Your lover, spouse, partner (or whatever label fits the person you feel most romantic about) will love it. Pampering will get them every time, whether it is a man or a woman.

Plan now to bake something in the traditional red and white colors of the day. Like Cherry Coconut Bars. Phyllis Tarnowski, a homemaker who also works part-time for a Southfield law firm, sent along the recipe and after sampling, I can tell you they are wonderful.

CHERRY COCONUT BARS

1 cup flour
3 tbsp. confectioners sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
¼ cup flour
¼ tsp. salt
¾ cup chopped nuts
½ cup quartered maraschino cherries
½ stick butter or oleo
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup coconut

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Measure flour by dipping method or by sifting. With hands, mix 1 cup flour, butter and confectioners sugar until smooth. Spread thin with fingers in ungreased pan 8x8x2. Bake about 25 minutes.

Stir rest of ingredients into eggs. Spread over top of baked pastry, no need to cool. Bake about 25 minutes. Cool. Cut into bars. Makes 18 bars.

Note: If you use self-rising flour, omit baking powder and salt.

THINK ABOUT THOSE evenings you have arrived home from a hard day at the office or elsewhere and been greeted before you could get your coat off with little voices demanding, "I want my dinner NOW!"

It is one of those times when we all reach for convenience foods. In half an hour the rotini with sauce and garlic bread below can be ready. Just add salad or coleslaw and a glass of milk for a balanced meal that kids will love.

But have a glass of wine with yours. You deserve it.

MIKE'S ROTINI WITH SAUCE

1 lb. hamburger
15 ½ oz. jar Ragu Spaghetti sauce
1 tsp. dried basil
1 tsp. dried parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
1 lb. box of rotini

Brown the meat and pour off fat. Add spaghetti sauce, salt, pepper, basil and parsley. Simmer approximately 10 minutes. Cook rotini separately to package directions. Drain. Serve on a platter with sauce spooned over the top.

JON'S PARMESAN GARLIC BREAD

Slice Italian bread ¾-inch to 1-inch thick. Spread evenly with softened butter. Sprinkle to taste with finely chopped fresh garlic (or garlic salt), paprika and grated parmesan cheese. Broil in a conventional oven until toasted golden, watching carefully so as not to burn. Or, pop into a toaster oven, at setting for medium-dark toast. Serve at once.

AN EASY WAY:

People who prefer all-natural peanut butter sometimes complain about the oil separating and rising to the top. To make a simple job of mixing it together again, push an iced-tea spoon through the peanut butter to the bottom of the jar. Grasp the jar in one hand and slowly rotate the spoon handle until the peanut butter has mixed and softened enough to stir.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

by ELLIE GRAHAM

I WAS WONDERING how the Goldsmiths were getting along in Los Angeles so I asked Ollie Wagner the other day. Ollie is choir director at Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton Township and Jeff Goldsmith was the first pastor of that church. Lynn served on member of the Canton Township Board of Trustees.

Ollie gave me some quotes from the Goldsmith's Christmas letter as a means of getting up to date.

"Jennifer and Scott are both happily adjusted to the move and their new school with its more traditional teaching style. Kids at this age really are flexible. They miss their friends a lot, but have been very busy with soccer."

Jeff is coaching Scott's team and both he and his sister made the all-star team. Jeff coached soccer for five years when they lived here. Lynn has been working as a teacher's aide 15 hours a week and says she enjoys the kids tremendously.

She adds, "As far as politics are concerned, I'm finding it hard enough just to stay informed!" She was an active member of the League of Women Voters here.

"St. Stephen Church has been an exciting challenge for Jeff. He is optimistic that things have begun to turn around as worship attendance has increased dramatically."

Both Jeff and Lynn are natives of California and they enjoy being closer to their families. "After six months, it is beginning to feel like home. There are many differences between our Michigan and L.A. living. The most significant to us is the lack of a 'community' feeling or central focus. The city is just too big and spread out."

They wrote that "It is a great place to entertain out-of-towners and we've thoroughly enjoyed having company every chance we get."

They were really active members of this community and we miss them.

MARK CHATTERLY, a 1975 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, is a ceramist in the master's program at Michigan State University. He earned his bachelor's degree from MSU in 1979.

Mark's works will be included in "Visionary Meditations," an art show and sale in MSU's Union Art Gallery Feb. 18 through March 15. He has been in several juried art shows and his work is currently displayed at the Freeman Gallery in Lansing. He specializes in unique sculptural forms in his pottery.

Mark also devised a new delicate look to his ceramic pieces and painterly coloring in raku has been termed revolutionary. You may have seen his work at the '78 and '79 Arts Council shows during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

His mentors during his high school years were Jessie Hudson and Richard Saunders, teachers at Plymouth Salem. His parents are Dr. and Mrs. Dan Chatterly of Plymouth Township.

The artists will be on hand to meet visitors to the gallery from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 24. The gallery is open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

According to his compatriots, Fred has difficulty drawing a stick person. The real artist was another teacher at Central Middle School, Joe Borg. Sorry Joe.

PAM TOUHEY of Plymouth Township was demonstrating yoga last week at Hudson's Westland store.

It was all part of Physical Fitness Week sponsored by Hudson's. Pam teaches yoga to pregnant women at the Childbirth and Family Resource Center on Penniman Avenue. She had one of her pregnant ladies along to prove that yoga is for everyone, children of both sexes to senior citizens.

Pam was working with Denise Horvath of the Wayne-Westland Y. Mrs. Touhey has been doing her student teaching with Susie Rosenfeld, a teacher at Schoolcraft College. She also said there is a central telephone number where persons can find out where yoga is being taught in their area. The number is 557-0047.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB of Plymouth continues to give financial support to worthy community organizations.

Martha Bentley chaired the civic committee which decided where the profits from the club's spring benefit would go. Mary Childs and Mable Patain served on her committee. The Plymouth Historical Museum's educational fund, FISH, the Salvation Army, the Plymouth Goodfellows and Opportunity House each received $100. The Plymouth Community Chorus received $35 toward the puchase of music.

Old patent models boggle the mind

Canton Observer Suburban Life
Monday, February 4, 1980 (C)5C

By BETTY MASSON

History buffs, the mechanically-minded and those who like to work on airplane models and miniatures will enjoy the newest display at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

The exhibit is of patent models from the collection of Plymouth antique dealers Charles and Mary Kehoe.

Not only is each patent model itself unique, but owning one is unusual because the U.S. Patent Office quit requiring inventors to submit models with their applications for patents in 1888.

The products of American ingenuity and inventiveness were simply taking up too much space.

The inventors must have heaved a sigh of relief, because the models, which had to be perfect in every detail, cost anywhere from $25 to $1,000. This was at a time when a good working wage was under $5 a week.

Today's collectors rejoice in them, though, and very few come on the market now, reported Kehoe.

THE COLLECTION is contained in showcases in the lower level of the museum, which is open to the public Thursday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons, from 1 to 4. The museum is at 155 S. Main.

Teachers in the area are invited to bring student groups to view this exhibit, which has been arranged by Rita Maly and her exhibit committee.

At the same time, they can learn more about the role Plymouth residents and soldiers played in the Civil War in a special exhibit in the upper level. Interested teachers may call the museum, 455-8940, to make arrangements for guided tours weekdays for their students.

INCLUDED IN the model collection is a trunk which is so impractical it is almost in the Rube Goldberg class. Back in 1843, most homes and hotels did not have closets. As a result, travelers had no place to hang their clothes; worse still, clothes were frequently stolen.

J. W. Beackley of Philadelphia, Pa., came up with the idea for a telescoping trunk which could not only hold a lot of clothes, but could also be locked.

The only problem was that it was made of wood. The model itself weighs about 20 pounds. It's a safe guess that the full-sized trunk filled with clothes would weigh a couple of hundred pounds. Any would-be tourist would have had to hire a couple of burly furniture movers to accompany him on his travels.

Another trunk in the collection was designed by a Detroit woman, Julia DeQuindre, in 1877. Its special feature is a laced-up partition to keep clothes flat.

There are five trunks in the Kehoe collection. Mrs. Kehoe is herself a specialist in refinishing old trunks, and estimates that she has worked on about 400 on the past six years. "But I've never seen one like any of the models," she commented.

THE KEHOES are also interested in collecting fire-related items. There are five of these in their collection. Some are not on display because they are enclosed and there is really nothing to see, but museum visitors can admire a finely-detailed wood miniature of two sides of a building with an adjustable standpipe and ladder of brass. In a full-size building, it would likely be an extremely costly way to fight fires. There is also a fire-proof curtain. Not a thing of beauty, it possibly would have been practical back in the days of lamps and wooden houses.

Also in the collection are two early (1859 and 1872) washing machines and a clothes dryer. Invented in 1867 — a popular year for inventions — the latter looks much like those with folding "arms" still sold today for use in tiny backyards.

There is also a handsome wooden "refrigerator" invented in 1857 by J. C. Schooley of Cincinnati.

Mechanical inventions include a brick press and tile machine, a paper tube machine, a machine for punching holes in hair brushes, a machine for sticking nails in heel blanks and a governor and cutoff for steam engines.

THE OLDEST items in the collection is a trunk, bearing the patent number 520, dating back to 1837. The most recent is an "Apparatus for Liquoring Sugar in Centrifugal Machines," invented in 1879, and with patent number 221,893.

Besides Mrs. DeQuindre, Michigan inventors are represented by George Tiffnay of Palymyra and Henry Ingraham of Tecumseh, who invented the tile machine; J. F. Ganweiler and Stewart Stengel of Cronton, a fire alarm; John and Roscoe Bean of Hudson, a fileter; and Franklin Mankin of Hopkins Station, a fire alarm.

ALL OF THE items in the collection were purchased two years ago by the Kehoes at a special sale "in the east." Since the, going by the patent numbers which were still attached to the items, the Kehoes have been able to obtain "patent papers," (a description of each invention and what it was supposed to do) from the U.S. Patent Office.

Kehoe has done considerable research on the subject, and reports that when the U.S. Patent Office opened in 1790, one of the rules imposed on inventors was that they must submit a small working model of their invention.

As the U.S. became an industrial nation, the models poured in, and, like the traveler's clothes, where to put them all became a problem. It was temporarily solved in 1837, when most of the models were destroyed by fire.

As a result of trying to straighten out the mess, the Patent Office instituted a serial number system for patents.

The models got a new home, at Seventh and F Streets. According to Kehoe, it was, "A Greek temple to the gods of innovation."

Here, "They became fruitful and multiplied." By 1877, there were 243,000 models jammed into the building.

There was another fire, and some 86,000 models were destroyed.

In spite of this, according to Kehoe, the models continued to arrive until they were everywhere, "on desks, in closets, in the halls, on the stairs and more coming in the door every day."

FINALLY in 1888, came the decision that models would no longer be required. Not only was storage a problem, but also patent attorneys questioned whether or not the creation of a model actually proved that the full scale invention itself would work.

Two exceptions were made. The office still required models for perpetual motion and flying machines.

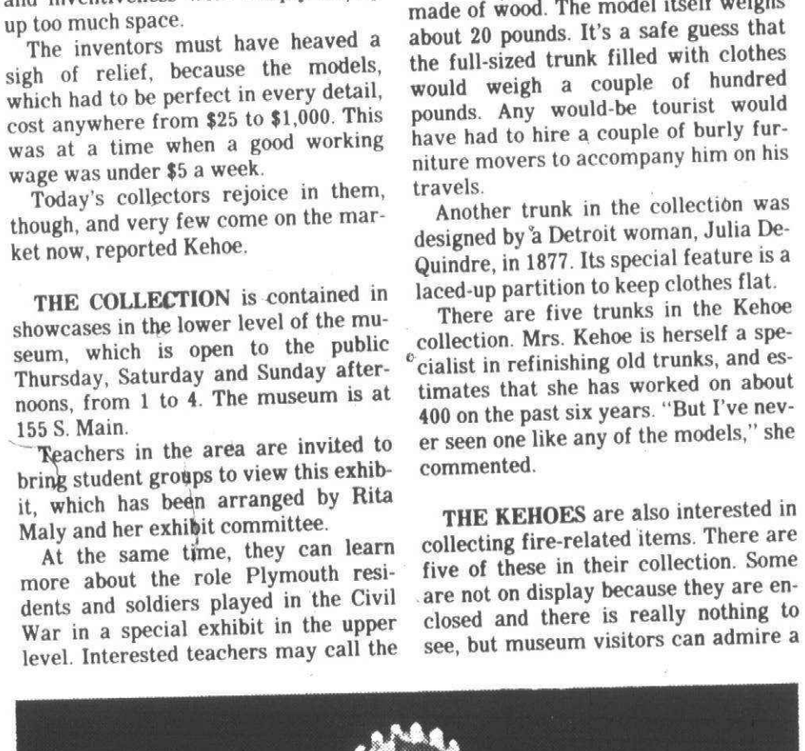

But the old models remained. The government resolved the problem of clutter by cutting off funds for storage areas. Some 155,000 models were packed into crates. Many were tucked into an unused tunnel near the House Office Building.

During the frugal Coolidge years, it was decided to save even the cost of dead storage by getting rid of the models.

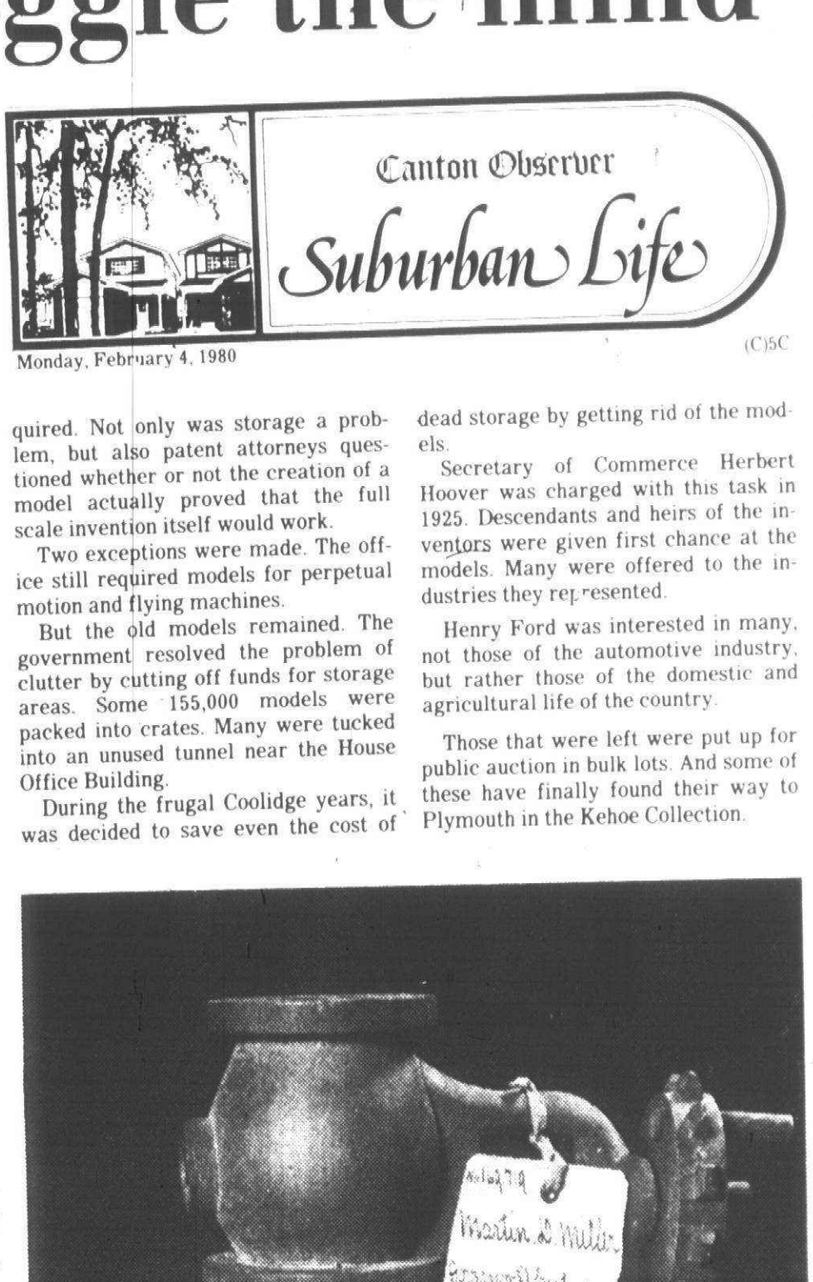

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover was charged with this task in 1925. Descendants and heirs of the inventors were given first chance at the models. Many were offered to the industries they represented.

Henry Ford was interested in many, not those of the automotive industry, but rather those of the domestic and agricultural life of the country.

Those that were left were put up for public auction in bulk lots. And some of these have finally found their way to Plymouth in the Kehoe Collection.

This wondrous washing machine even shaved a cake of soap for soap suds.

The governor and cut-off for steam engines was a centrifugal method of speeding up or slowing down a steam engine.

Group will discuss marital separation

To recover completely from the pain of a broken marriage usually takes two to four years. So says sociologist Robert Weiss.

The first year is the most painful. For this reason, the Plymouth Family Service is offering a program on "Marital Separation."

Susan Pierson, certified social worker, will conduct the program for eight weeks in the Plymouth office, 880 Wing. Sessions will be held from 7 to 9 p.m., every Wednesday evening, beginning Feb. 6. Cost is $40.

Discussions will be based on Weiss's book "Marital Separation." According to Weiss, it takes two to four years to "come back to being comfortable after a divorce," said Mrs. Pierson.

WHILE SOCIAL workers at the Family Service regularly counsel those who are divorced or contemplating divorce, Mrs. Pierson believes that it is helpful to have group counseling.

"It's an advantage to know that other people have gone through the same kind of thing, and have had the same kinds of feelings," she said.

"Right at the beginning, there is a sense of almost going crazy," she said. "Divorce means not just the ending of the marriage, but there are all sorts of disruptions."

Even after the end of the most unhappy marriage, there is bound to be a feeling of loss. Mrs. Pierson likened this to the feelings a battered child has when he is taken from his parents. He will still miss them.

Those taking part in the course will discuss these feelings, as well as legalities, in-laws, friends, children and dating.

ONE OF THE BIG problems a divorced person has to face is no longer being part of the "couple" society, said Mrs. Pierson. Friends who rally around in the beginning may find it uncomfortable later to have a single person around, leaving the divorced person even more lonely. But work and old friends are still the most important sources of new relationships, she has found.

Right at the beginning, most people do not seek remarriage, but they would like to date, she said.

Legalities include picking a lawyer whose goals in the divorce are the same as your own. In a previous class, Mrs. Pierson said, one woman was advised to appear in court when her divorce took place, so that she would really know that the marriage was ended.

Children, too, often have emotional difficulties in coping with divorce, said Mrs. Person. They need "good parenting." Again, talking with others helps.

While people seek divorces for a great variety of reasons, said Mrs. Pierson, they have to come to terms with it, to see if the same thing is apt to happen again.

Interested persons should call the Plymouth Family Service at 453-0890. Enrollment is limited to six men and women.

Igolochkay expert here

Gail Bird, an expert at the 17th century Russian needle art called igolochkay, will be in Plymouth this week. This will be her second appearance here. Her first was during the Plymouth Fall Festival in September when she demonstrated the "little needle" form of peasant embroidery at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

She will be in Westchester Mall on Forest Street from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 6 and at the Needle's Friend on Joppa Place Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 7-9.

Ms. Bird is the east coast igolochkay expert. The Russian peasant needle art was re-discovered about 10 years ago by Jean Cook. The artist, accompanied her Russian-speaking roommate to an Oregon settlement of Russian Old believers. These are religious zealots who adhere to the original Russian Orthodox tenets and live a stark existence comparable to the Amish. Several thousand Old Believers immigrated to the U.S. in the late '60s.

The raised embroidered floral patterns are applied to clothing Ms. Cook learned the technique and later taught others. The stitch calls for one, three or six-strand embroidery floss and a woven material stretched taut by an embroidery hoop. The needle is pushed through the back of the fabric and leaves a raised loop on the right side. If the loops are clipped, the finished piece resembles velvet.

Civitan Club honors clergy

The Civitan Club of Plymouth will honor clergymen in the Plymouth-Canton area at a dinner at the Plymouth Landing at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 7.

All area clergymen have been asked to be guests of the club. Fred Prezioso, a pastor and transactional analysis counselor, will be the guest speaker.

The event is part of Clergy Week, Feb. 3-9. Clergy Week began as a Civitan project in 1961 to commemorate the heroic deaths of four Army chaplains during World War II.

In 1943, a priest, a rabbi and two ministers surrendered their life jackets to soldiers who had none when the USS Dorchester was sunk.

The first week of February was proclaimed Clergy Week, and Civitans all over the world are honoring the memory of the four chaplains by showing their appreciation to local clergymen.

Central musicians receive high ratings

Thirty-nine seventh and eighth graders from Central Middle School participated in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association solo and ensemble festival Jan. 26.

Band teacher Cheryl Waldenmyer was enthusiastic about the ratings achieved by the young musicians.

'Breaking Away' still deserves '79 top honors

Each year in tallying my ledger of film experiences, I am chastened by the glut of opportunities I have missed. Take the matter of superlatives for instance.

Last August, in an expansive moment, I referred to "Breaking Away" as the best film of the summer and the year, an opinion I still hold. However, compared to the hyperbole I see in other reviews, this is faint praise.

Film criticism is not a medium for restraint. One should be bold, it seems, even rash, as when Rex Reed endorses "Yanks" — "In every decade, a truly memorable motion picture comes along." Or as Andrew Sarris pontificates about "Manhattan," "The one truly great American film of the '70s."

And descriptions of "Apocalypse Now" constitute a movie script in themselves.

"APOCALYPSE NOW" appeared on the screens as a significant event about two significant events: the Vietnam war and the making of "Apocalypse Now." The eerie sequence of a bridge demolition in a watercolor fog and the Wagnerian bombast of Robert Duvall and his troops taking a beach for surfing stand out as remarkable film achievements.

But my enthusiastic recollections are checked by the sobering thought that 1,200 gallons of gasloine were used in the bridge destruction and another 1,200 in a simulated napalm attack.

Putting this epic aside, 1979 appears as a year without any heavyweight contenders for top awards, but with some interesting and entertaining films. I would like to enumerate them. Belated through my list may be, I hate to miss still another critical opportunity.

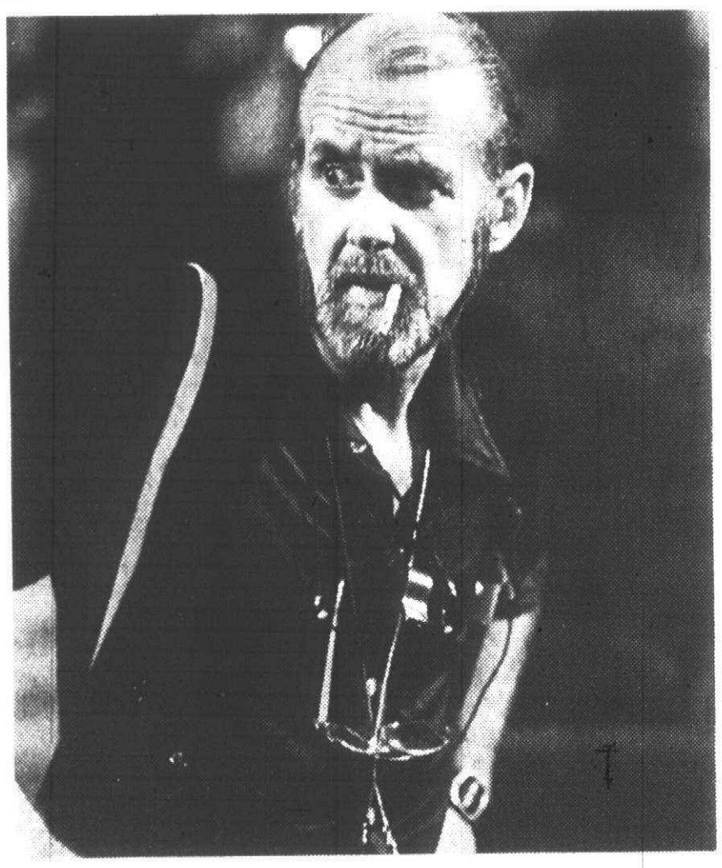

First, the explanation of a few omissions. I omit "Hair," which has won some accolades, because, saints preserve us, I didn't see it. I omit consideration of "Being There" and "All That Jazz" for the same reason. Finally, I omit foreign films because they are not always accessible to movie audiences.

This leaves me with a group of 1979 films, in no special order, anyone's "all time greats" list, but on a scale of 1 to 10, they are about seven and a half.

"THE INLAWS," for the inspired comical pairing of Alan Arkin and Peter Falk; "Time After Time," for its wit and intelligence; "The Great Train Robbery," also for its wit and its stylishness; "The China Syndrome," for Jack Lemmon's performance and for knockout timing; "The Life of Brian," for its irreverance, "Kramer vs. Kramer," for solid acting and acute observations of parent-child relationships; "Star Trek," for reuniting the characters in a worthy way; "Norma Rae," for a gutsy story and topnotch acting by Sally Fields and Pat Hingle; "Manhattan," for Woody Allen's uniquely personal, comic interpretations of universal concerns.

Finally, "Breaking Away" still strikes me as the best film of '79 for many reasons: its original story and locale, its ability to convey youthful enthusiasm and exuberance, its use of fresh faces, its brisk direction, its non-patronizing attitude toward baffled parents, and its wry recognition of social distinctions in middle-class, middle America.

Along with "Manhattan," it's the only film on the list I could sit through twice.

Bob Fosse's film

Director Bob Fosse (above) casts a critical eye during production of "All That Jazz," a film that strips show business of all its glitter. (Below) Ann Reinking as Joe Gideon's mistress performs a routine with his young daughter Michelle, played by Erzsebet Foldi, in "All That Jazz." The film, rated R, is a 20th Century-Fox release, opening Feb. 22 at Detroit-area theaters.

Moliere on TV

French playwright Moliere marries the daughter of his mistress in the final episode of "Moliere," at 8 p.m. Wednesday on Channel 56. The two are played by Philippe Caubere and Brigitte Catillon.

what's at the movies

NEW RELEASES

ALL THAT JAZZ (R). Bob Fosse's rowdy, autobiographical musical about hard-working, hard-driving choreographer.

AND JUSTICE FOR ALL (R). Al Pacino is a young trial lawyer dedicated to his profession and profoundly troubled by the legal system.

APOCALYPSE NOW (R). Francis Ford Coppola's epic film of the Vietnam war interwoven with the characters and stunning impact of Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness."

AVALANCHE EXPRESS (PG). Adventure-suspense drama about KGB agent defecting to the West. Filmed in Italy and Germany; climactic scene is, you guessed it, avalanche.

BEING THERE. Peter Sellers is a TV-educated economist in satire that pokes fun at our political and social conceits.

BLACK HOLE (PG). Disney's expensive entry into sci-fi, space adventure with strong cast and action story.

CHAPTER TWO (PG). Autobiographical Neil Simon story about a man starting over after death of his wife.

CUBA (R). Sean Connery and Brooke Adams in romantic adventure during last days of Battista regime in Cuba.

THE DEER HUNTER (R). An emotionally gripping and violent film about the lives of three friends from a small steeltown as they are affected by the Vietnam war.

ELECTRIC HORSEMAN (PG). Jane Fonda is a reporter and Robert Redford an ex-rodeo champion in satirical romance.

THE EUROPEANS (PG). Exquisite period film of Henry James' witty novel. Lee Remick is seductive adventuress who returns to New England to seek a secure marriage.

GOING IN STYLE (PG). Offbeat comedy about three pensioners who decide to "go in style."

THE JERK (R). Steve Martin in comedy about a white boy raised by black sharecroppers.

KRAMER VS. KRAMER (PG). Perceptive, well-acted drama about a broken marriage and a custody battle. Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep star.

THE MAIN EVENT (PG). Barbra Streisand is a perfume manufacturer who manages a retired boxer, Ryan O'Neil, in comedy about the fight game.

MANHATTAN (R). The inhabitants are somewhat frayed, but the Big Apple looks glorious in Woody Allen's witty peek at the pairings and partings among New York literati.

1941 (PG). John Belushi and host of others in comedy about mythical Japanese attack on Los Angeles.

PROMISES IN THE DARK (PG). Well-acted film with Marsha Mason as a doctor dealing with a terminally ill, young patient.

The more things change, the more this inn stays the same

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

When the door is closed it means the room is occupied. Furnishings include four-posters and samplers. (Photo by Iris Sanderson Jones)

You would not be surprised to see the Golden Lamb hotel in a setting like Greenfield Village or Williamsburg. In either place, it would seem perfectly natural to peer across a retaining rope into an historically perfect bedroom full of antiques.

You don't expect to find it on the main street of Lebanon, Ohio, within a half-hour drive of Cincinatti, and with a sign on the wall that tells you not to open any closed doors along the hall.

A closed door means that the bedroom is occupied, for the Golden Lamb's regular rate is $26 single and $32 double a night.

The Golden Lamb is the oldest inn in Ohio but it is not a place of musty carpets and cabbage odors in the hall. Nor is it a place of history and silence.

The 20th century motorists who stamp their feet against the cold in the lobby daily are headed for one of the five dining rooms on the main floor, or for one of the four small banquet rooms on the second floor.

THIS PLACE has been popular and at the center of town life since the first log-cabin hostelry was built on this spot in 1802. Local politicians knew the hazards of fording streams and riding muddy trails on horseback during those post-revolutionary days, so it was here they talked about the first great highway across the continent, now U.S. 40.

The Shakers came to town to build nearby Union Village, the First Division Ohio Militia gathered at the inn during the War of 1812, opera singers and roving minstrels presented theater in the Grand Ballroom. Townfolk celebrated the 1815 Battle of New Orleans in the dining room of "Mr. Henry Share's Hotel."

Everything that happened to 19th century America happened in some way in the Golden Lamb: the canal builders checked in, the stage coach stopped at the door, the first trains brought their passengers for dinner.

And most of the famous people who traveled in those hard-to-travel days left their names behind on one of the bedroom doors: Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and even Charles Dickens.

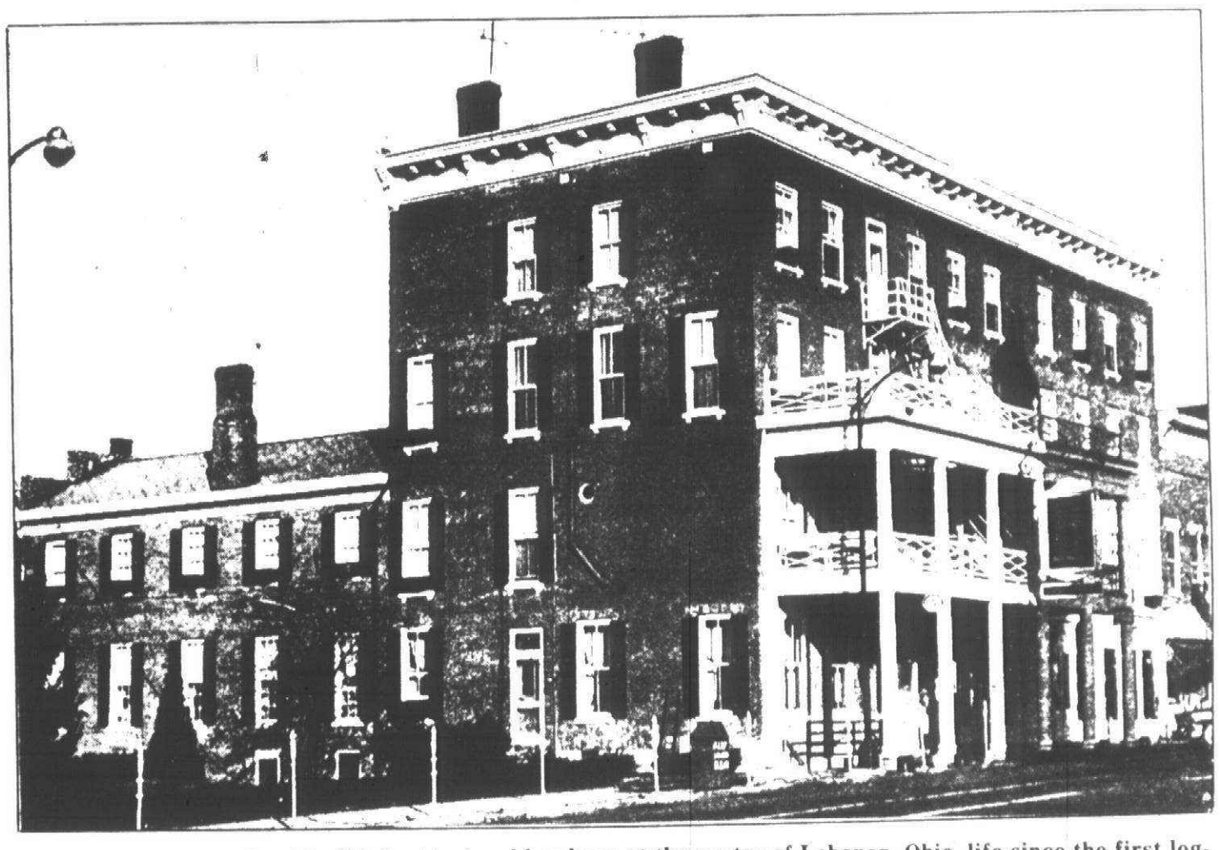

Not everybody liked it, of course. Dickens was furious because it was a temperence hotel and he wanted a drink:

"We dine soon after with the boarders in the house, and have nothing to drink but tea and coffee. As they are both very bad, and the water is worse, I ask for brandy; but it is a temperence hotel, and spirtis were not to be had for love or money.

This preposterous forcing of unpleasant drinks down the reluctant throats of travelers is not uncommon in America, but I never discovered that the scruples of such wincing landlords induced them to preserve any unusually nice balance between the quality of their fare and their scale of charges . . . perhaps the plainest course for persons of such tender conscience would be a total abstinence from tavern keeping."

Despite this low rating, the Dickens Room is the only bedroom in the inn preserved for looking and not for sleeping.

APPROACH THE Golden Lamb along Ohio State Highway 63. It is half way betweeen I-75 and I-71, near the intersection of Highway 48.

The Golden Lamb Hotel is Ohio's oldest and has been at the center of Lebanon, Ohio, life since the first log-cabin hostelry was built on the spot in 1802. It is considered a Shaker museum, with crafts and furniture scattered up staircases and throughout the inn's rooms.

You can easily drive past the four-story red brick building with the white pillars unless you watch carefully for the small old-fashioned tavern sign that reads Golden Lamb.

Closer to the door you will see other signs: National Historic Register, and one verifying it as the oldest hotel in Ohio by the Turtle Creek Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

A contemporary traveler with a thermos bottle in her hand waits on the scarred antique bench in the lobby, where antiques and historic curios are displayed against a reproduction of 19th century stenciled wallpaper.

The inn is rightfully considered a Shaker museum, and you will find authentic Shaker furniture and crafts in all of the dining rooms on the main floor. They are also scattered judiciously up the staircases and throughout the bedrooms on the second, third and fouth floors.

The first two questions most travelers ask are: "Can you really sleep in those four-poster beds, amid all that valuable furniture, without worrying about damaging things?" and "Don't the guests steal things."

According to assistant manger Fred Compton who grew up in a neighboring town and has spent all of his working life so far at the Golden Lamb, guests neither damage nor steal.

"People have a great deal of respect for authentic old furniture like this, so they are careful of it and they don't steal it," he said.

"We have all kinds of guests, from regular weekenders to the overflow crowds from Kings Island. We never have any problem."

THE BEDROOM furniture is not original to the inn, nor was it acquired for historic purposes. Robert H. Jones, who has owned the inn since 1926, bought the furniture cheap from second-hand stores after a fire in the hotel several years ago.

The Golden Lamb has been operated for the last 11 years by the Comisar family, a name famous among restaurant-lovers in Cincinnati. Grandfather Comisar came from Russia more than 50 years ago, and his family have run a traditional French restaurant called the Maisonette there, an award-winning five-star restaurant known among gourmets.

Fortunately, they knew a good thing when they saw one, and have never attempted to change the purely early American character of the Golden Lamb or its dining rooms.

Lunch runs from roast lamb with glazed carrots ($4.35) to chicken salad sandwich with fruit cup ($3.85). Dinner ranges from roast turkey ($7.95) and Long Island duckling ($9.95) to filet mignon ($10.75).

But it isn't the building or the menu or the antiques that make a fine house now, any more than they made a fine house 178 years ago when Jonas Seaman built his log-cabin tavern here in 1802.

THE DIFFERENCE between an inn in a restored village and a living inn like this is in the sound of people's voices and the clink of glasses at the bar and in the dining room.

The difference between an old hotel and a fine inn is impeccable housekeeping, modern Stern and Foster mattresses made for the different shape and size of the non-standard bed, and a generous glass of drinkable wine at the table.

If you are not turned on by Americana, the girls at the desk will gladly point you to a chain hotel down the highway.

You won't have to tolerate three-quarter beds and samplers. There'll be two modern pictures, exactly the same, over two king-sized beds, and the floors won't slope. But you won't find a crystal bowl full of fruit punch waiting for thirsty travelers beside the front door either.

Travelers stamp their feet against the cold or sit for a moment's brief respite in the Lamb's comfortable antique-furnished lobby. (Photo by Iris Sanderson Jones)

Take a break, learn a skill, or plan a springtime fling

In Pine Mountain, Ga., where spring workshops are in full swing by February, they have already started talking about flowers. If you drive down Interstate 75 into the sun, you might want to stop and smell the gardens. Don't forget to send me a postcard.

Calloway Gardens workshops run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and cost about $10. You can learn landscaping Feb. 11, garden planning Feb. 14, flowering trees Feb. 20, vegetable gardening, Feb. 22, and map reading for field trips Feb. 28.

If you want to know more, contact the gardens at Pine Mountain, Ga. 31822. It's too painful for us chilly snowbirds to talk about it further.

BY THE TIME you get to Florida, Cypress Gardens will be in the middle of its rose festival, a salute to the flower of love, friendship and peace, featuring special lectures by several of their top horticulturists. Cypress Gardens is an All-American Rose Selection test site for future rose winners.

IF YOU INSIST on punishing yourself with these warm weather thoughts, and you must stay home, there are two other spring and summer events you might want to plan for: the second annual Houston Festival, which opened with quite a bang last year, will be held March 20-30; and the New Mexico D.H. Florence Festival will take place in Santa Fe July 16 and 20.

Let me know, if you want more information on those.

COLD WEATHER CAN be fun, too, remember. Michigan Tech's Winter Carnival is in full swing through Feb. 10 at Houghton, and the Mardi Gras de Snow will be held Jan. 18-20 in Paradise. (Yes, but is it warmer in Hell?)

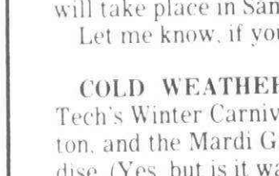

Grayling's Winter Sports Carnival is scheduled for Feb. 8-10 and Feb. 15-17. Write for a "Winter Calendar of Travel Events" to the Michigan Travel Bureau, P.O. Box 30226, Lansing 48909. Call toll free 1-800-292-2520 for ski and snowmobile conditions.

"Winterfun in Southeast Michigan" describes all the exciting winter activities in southeast Michigan. Write to the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association, American Center Building, Suite 350, Southfield 48034.

If that's not enough snow activity for you, the Brockway Mountain Ski Race takes place in Copper Harbor March 1 and the Heikki Luntta Snow Festival in Delaware, Mich., March 15.

I like snow, but I like it best when I see the first tiny little crocus coming up through its whiteness in spring.

In the meantime, don't forget the Snow Train that runs Saturdays and Sundays, through March 30, out of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Tours leave the train depot at 8:30 a.m. every Saturday and Sunday and returns at 4:30 p.m. after a trip up into Ontario snow country. Reserve in advance by telephone: 1-705-254-4331. Adults $17 and children 5 years old through high school, $9. Younger than 5, free.

It's cold outside! Want to know a good way to warm up? Start planning your Caribbean Holiday now! Call the Observer & Eccentric Travel Desk at 591-2300 Ext. 244 for details.

Truck show opens at 'dome

Trucking America, the largest of the custom truck and van shows, opens Friday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

More than 275 street vans and pcikup trucks, custom cars, diesel rigs and antique trucks will be on display. In addition, a number of TV stars will make personal appearances and sign autographs.

The show begins at 5 p.m. and continues until 11 p.m. Friday. Hours Saturday and Sunday are noon to 11 p.m. Tickets at the door cost $4.50 for adults and $1.50 for children 6-12. Children under 6 accompanied by an adult will be admitted free.

Not all of the trucks and vans in Truckin America will be individual entries competing for points and awards. Some will be professionally built "feature" trucks and bans that are included because they often represent the ultimate in the automotive art of customizing.

This year's feature vehicles include the futuristic van Starship One. A stretched and chopped bvan equipped with gullwing doors and new rear end quarter panels, the Startship One has 40 coats of acrylic lacquer in multi colors of blue and orange with hand-painted murals inspired by the movie "Star Wars."

Among the human stars will be Michal Young, the 27-year-old host of TV's "Kids are People Too," and Peter BArton, who plays SHirley Jones' oldest son in her TV series "Shirley."

Also on hand will be Spiderman, Spider woman, Captain America and the Thing.

Sterling silver vanishing in wedding gift array

By NANCY AUSTIN

If today's bride dreams of receiving the start of an heirloom silver collection, that dream may never come true.

With the price of silver soaring and the availability shrinking, even one place setting looks more and more elusive. At approximately $700 for a four-piece place setting of silver, few brides will receive a place setting.

J.L. Hudson's bridal registry sees fewer and fewer brides registering for the commodity. "We get maybe one or two brides a year who register," stated Lillian Yaksich, bridal consultant at Hudson's Westland store.

"Instead, most of the brides are asking for stainless," she said. "If they do want to register, we can't give them a price."

"We can't give out prices on silver," stated Virginia Parsons, Hudson's silver department manager. "We could get a price list today, and it could change tomorrow. If a customer wants to buy silver, they have to wait until our department gets a corporate release. Then they then can order. But we aren't selling any silver right now," she added.

And so the brides are turning to other alternatives which include silver plate and pewter. Some, are registering for two sets of stainless, and not even asking for silver plate.

Lynn Morrison, sales promotion manager of Jacobson's in Birmingham, said that the brides registering at that store are turning their attention to silver plate instead of silver flatware. Occasionally they have an interest in holloware pieces, but again that is in silver plate or pewter. "Usually the only way a bride receives sterling today," stated Ms. Morrison, is if there is sterling in the family and a piece is given to augment the set."

The absence of silver gifts for wedding and shower gifts marks the most significant change in gifting trends.

Other trends, however, become apparent as the economy affects the buying power of the consumer.

Ms. Morrison observed that the brides' selections have changed from fine china to stoneware. "It's guaranteed to last a long time. She may even start the set when it's on sale, and then get the rest for gifts," she said.

Here comes the bride of the '80s

Traditional and romantic describe the bride of the 1980s.

That's the word from the salons that package weddings, the people who provide the essentials from invitation to the last flower.

"The traditional wedding is back," says Jeff Atkins, general manager of the Boulevard Bridal Salon in Birmingham.

"The '80s will bring a strong return to traditional and formal weddings," echoes Lynn Morrison, Jacobson's Birmingham store fashion coordinator.

"This is a reaction to the iconoclastic '70s when it was fashionable for young people to write their own ceremonies, wear Indian gauze and get married on water skis."

Ruth Seligson of Alvin's in Birmingham sees romance on the rise.

"Today's young people are beginning to realize that marriage is the link between the past and the future. The traditional wedding, which lost face somewhat during the '60s and early '70s is back full force in the '80s.

"And, while informal at-home weddings complete with garden parties are gaining in favor, locally the traditional "Get me to the church on time" wedding is still the favorite."

Sue Gordon, who has her own salon in Birmingham, joins the chorus, predicting that the bride of the coming decade "will continue in that pattern which was bent but remains unbroken."

"That is the classic wedding in the less formal sanctuary of a church or synagogue. Or the less formal warmth of the home, garden or country club setting."

PLACING the idea in perspective is Robert Rudofker, president of After Six Formals:

"What is most important is establishing the mood which should prevail through the ceremony and festivities," he said at a recent showing of what the well-dressed bridegroom and groomsman will wear.

"So many couples today share an intimacy that was not discussed decades ago. Exchanging their vows before family and peers becomes the final step in formalizing their relationship."

Rudofker said couples more and more "want all the trappings to make the day more meaningful.

"We see developing a trend for weddings that are formal in every aspect, including a request to guests to opt for black tie dress. When this happens, the stage is set for a gala event, a truly memorable occasion."

SPRING 1980 fashions for the bride provide a choice of gowns ranging from simple elegance to the most formal, flowing creation.

Bridal fashion experts agree that figures are in and silhouettes are varied. The Scarlett O'Hara gown with nipped-in waist will be the choice of the very romantic bride.

Fabrics vary from organza and chiffon to opulent lace, sometimes re-embroidered with floral motifs.

But lightweight sheers are favored by many.

"The bride who seems to float effortlessly down the aisle," said Atkins, "is doing just that, thanks to today's beautiful lightweight fabrics."

For attendants and the mothers in the wedding party, the favorite choices are those designs which can do double duty, going from the traditional ceremony to a disco-type reception.

Pale pastel colors are favorites, and look for small floral prints in flowing jersey.

With opulence, elegance and Victorian romanticism prevailing for the bride and her attendants, it's only reasonable that the bridegroom and his men should contrast handsomely in formal wear designs stripped of fashion trickery.

Gone are the big, floppy bows for men in the wedding party. Gone are the gobs and gobs of satin and velvet. Gone are the bright colors.

Lucky friends and relatives invited to a black tie wedding will choose their most flattering gowns and black tuxedos.

During the dog days of summer, the men may well pick the classic white dinner jacket teamed with black formal trousers.

So once the inevitable "Will you marry me?" has been answered with a resounding "Yes," the days and weeks and months become filled with myriad questions and decisions that only two people in love can possibly survive.

And the betting is that in answering those questions, most brides of the '80s will go back to the time-honored traditions that have served well for the many generations before them.

'We see developing a trend for weddings that are formal in every aspect...When this happens, the stage is set for a gala event, a truly memorable occasion.'
—Robert Rudofker
president of After Six Formals

Traditional and romantic is the bride of the new decade. This one fits the description perfectly in a gown of white featuring a Queen Ann neckline highlighted with beaded and sequinned English netting that sets off the bodice of alencon lace. The gown is in the price range of $795 and was designed by Illissa. (Staff photo by Santa Fabio)

Practical bride of the

By LORAINE McCLISH

If she is a typical bride in the 1980s, she is a consumer-wise shopper. She probably won't know exactly what she wants until she see it, and she will wind up choosing her colors from the deep rich hues.

She might opt to have her bridesmaids carry a single flower. She likes gardenias and she is very likely to wear her mother's wedding gown.

She will choose a symbol of her ethnic background to include in her wedding preparations, and if it's her second wedding, she will order dozens of corsages; not a friend or relative will be forgotten.

She will have flower arrangements to be placed on the tiers of her cake, and will order a loosely-tied cluster of flowers for the mothers to pin on their purses.

She could opt for a sprig of baby's breath in lieu of elaborate headpieces for the bridal attendants. She might very well be paying for the wedding herself.

Her shopping list probably will include a glass dome that will be used as an accessory for her new home, preserving while showing off her keepsake bouquet that is fashioned of silk and dried flowers.

Or, she wil order several domes, giving them as her gifts to her bridesmaids for them to preserve their bouquets of silk and dried flowers.

OUR COMPOSITE bride comes

Think about the marriage as you plan the wedding

By ARLENE VANDERLEUN

Both the bride and groom are resplendent in their wedding attire. Both beam proudly as they meet together in ceremony before their guests.

Flowers and candle wax flavor the air. Piles of gifts await the happy couple. A bountiful buffet supper will follow.

Everything is perfect. But this couple may be in for a rude shock when they settle down to life together.

Will they fight over where to spend their vacations — or their money? How will household chores be divided? These problems may be unexpected, unless a couple has spent some of their courtship time talking or receiving counseling about such matters.

"I think so many become so immersed in the frills (of planning a wedding) that the essentials are passed by," says Myron Hornyak, a clinical social worker with Associated Counseling Services in Plymouth. "It's critical that people look at their value systems. Counseling is a worthwhile investment."

COUNSELING OPTIONS range from discussions with a pastor to in-depth goal-setting sessions and weekend encounter excursions.

For example, the Rev. Dean Beckwith, paster of Good Hope Lutheran Church in Garden City, has married scores of couples in his 15 years as a clergyman.

In those years, Rev. Beckwith has developed a questionnaire which he requires couples to fill out and discuss.

The questionnaire — printed on pink paper for the bride and blue for the groom — is designed to "find areas where they disagree so they're not surprised afterward." The questionnaires discuss sexuality, in-laws, money management, and attitudes about children.

"I don't think it's aimed to get people to agree on everything," he adds. "Many people appreciate it, but the vast majority aren't excited about it."

HORNYAK AND THE REV. Beckwith agree that age isn't necessarily an indication of maturity and realistic expectations of marriage.

"I refuse to make any prediction in my own mind," says the Rev. Beckwith. "I have had two couples who filled out the questionnaire and afterward they called and decided not to get married."

Mary Jane Ayotte of Westland has had similar experiences.

Mrs. Ayotte and her husband, Louis, for the past five years have helped coordinate pre-marriage classes at St. Theodore Catholic Church in Westland.

Married 10 years, the couple are deeply committed to marriage as an exciting lifestyle.

Mrs. Ayotte says her first choice for an engaged couple would be to go away for a weekend session of intense counseling, goal-setting and communication. The weekend encounter sessions are offered through the Archdiocese of Detroit.

But the one-day workshops at St. Theodore and other churches are a good second choice, she adds.

DURING THE SESSIONS, married couples discuss major areas where disagreement can occur. Then the couples are separated to fill out questionnaires.

They then are reunited to discuss their feelings and answers.

"We believe marriage is a permanent relationship and we have to stick with it," says Mrs. Ayotte. "People think divorce is quite simple (and) easier than making the marriage work."

This cream silk wedding gown trimmed with Valenciennes lace was worn by a bride in 1893. It will be included in the "Brides of Yesteryear"exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum April 21-July 31. Interestingly, it wasn't until the 1880s that white bridal gowns became popular. The museum is on the corner of Main and Church and is open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. '80s will pick an enduring bouquet from the observations of Florence Turner, who works out of Floral Boutique in Farmington Hills and Jean Trombley, in Plymouth's Baskets and Bows.

Both women left flourishing careers in other fields about four and five years ago to turn designers-arrangers when brides turned to choosing permanent flowers for their wedding day.

"Mother Nature had a lot to do with the trend," said Ms. Turner. "If it is a January-February wedding, the Rose Bowl will have wiped us out of roses. Some tropical flowers are sleeping from July to September. A bad windstorm in California can destroy a lot of flowers as well as a lot of plans."

"If the wedding takes place on a very hot day," Mrs. Trombley adds, "fresh flowers might wilt before the I-dos are said. These bouquets are permanent. The bonus is the keepsake that will literally last forever."

Both women expect to receive swatches of the bridesmaids gowns so they can match colors on hand, but both will dye raw silk flowers for a perfect match. And both women ask for a decent leeway timewise.

Mrs. Trombley does from one to two weddings a week and is working on July and August weddings now doing bouquets, corsages, boutonnieres, cake tops and the cluster that is made specifically to be thrown away.

Ms. Turner does two or three weddings a month, but in addition to making all of those flower designs, adds all of the flowers for the church and reception in her offering of a complete wedding service.

"I am at the church long before the bridal party setting up all the flower arrangement there," she said, "and when the last girl is on her way down the aisle I am on my way to the reception. I even once decorated a porch for pictures."

DRIED AND SILK flower arrangements for home accessories, or any special occasion is the mainstay of Baskets and Bows at 4 Forest Place, in Plymouth, decorated in an old world country motiff.

Floral Boutique, 35115 Grand River, is an attractive and comfortable shop that offers both fresh and dried arrangements.

But both women spend a lot of their working time away from their shops running to markets and trade shows keeping up with the new trends.

Both women have worked many an 80-hour week, giving special attention to every petal and every flower head, fastened with care around ribbons and bows.

"But don't tie me down to a specific design," Ms. Turner says. "I promise you, you will be much happier if you don't."

Mrs. Trombley echoes this feeling by saying, "The best the most of my brides can do is give me a general idea of what they want. Then I convince them to leave the rest of it up to me.

"It's their special day. They know I am going to do my very best to make them pleased with what I make for them."

Wedding cakes are

By SHERRY KAHAN

Susan Kelley of Troy, Ruby McCourt of Livonia and Pearl Thouin of Rochester are all in a delicious business. They work in bakeries that specialize in wedding cakes.

Styles change in wedding cakes just as they do in bridal clothes, they say, but maybe not as fast.

"Wedding cakes used to be white, with fruit cake inside," said Mrs. Kelley who spends her days at Mrs. Maddox Cake Shop, 16201 Seven Mile, Detroit. The shop was founded by her grandmother 50 years ago.

Pearl Maddox made a name for herself by baking a wedding cake for Charles Lindbergh. It was shipped to Washington, D.C. and arrived in one piece, said Mrs. Kelley.

Mrs. Thouin can take back the wedding cake tradition much farther. Her research has revealed that the first wedding cakes in Europe many many years ago were biscuits thrown at the bride. Later sweets appeared in the form of individually decorated little cakes like petit fours. Possibly they were baked by brides in self-defense.

She believes the big cake is an American custom.

Mrs. Thouin is manager of three Machus Pastry Shops. Two are in Birmingham, one at 160 W. Maple, the other at 633 S. Adams. The third store is at 6676 Telegraph, Bloomfield Township.

Ms. McCourt whips up pastries for brides and bridegrooms, along with cheese cakes at Thomas Wedding Cakes, 29410 Five Mile, Livonia. She knows how far wedding cakes have traveled from the old fruit cake center.

In the cakes she makes from scratch, she offers her customers six choices, chocolate, banana nut, marble, cherry nut, yellow and white. "Sometimes each layer is different," she said.

Machus goes one step further and includes a carrot cake in its repertoire.

No longer does a pure white frosting have to top the wedding cake. They are being frosted in white, yellow or peach at Thomas Cakes.

THE DECORATING of a cake is regarded as something of an art. It was not until Ms. McCourt took cake decorating courses in an area high school that she felt ready to leave her job as chef in Huck's Bavarian Village, and take on the running of a store.

Fifty years ago when Mrs. Maddox opened her shop, roses and perhaps calla lillies were allowed to grace the wedding cake, according to Mrs. Kelley, who started her career as an eighth grader wrapping dainty tea sandwiches that the store then and now still specializes in making.

But like the frosting, these early decorative efforts were white as the driven snow. Brides wore white and so did cakes. Color was out.

But somewhere a courageous innovator brought a hint of color to the decorative flowers. "About 20 years ago the colors were very pale," noted Mrs. Kelley. "Today, customers ask for bright ones. We also do other flowers. Morning glories are very popular."

She thinks it takes skill to bedeck a cake with flowers and other decorative touches. "Luckily mistakes are easy to correct," she noted. "You just take them off and start over. There is no reason a cake has to leave a shop with a mistake."

Thelma McCourt of Farmington helps her sister with the decorating at Thomas Cakes, regarding it as the best part of the wedding cake business.

Where to honeymoon?

Hawaii

A recreational vehicle tour of the Big Island of Hawaii is a practical way for honeymooners to enjoy an exotic setting.

The two glamorous resort areas of Hilo and Kona are available for special celebrations, and the many camp sites on the island are available for low-cost travel on a more private level.

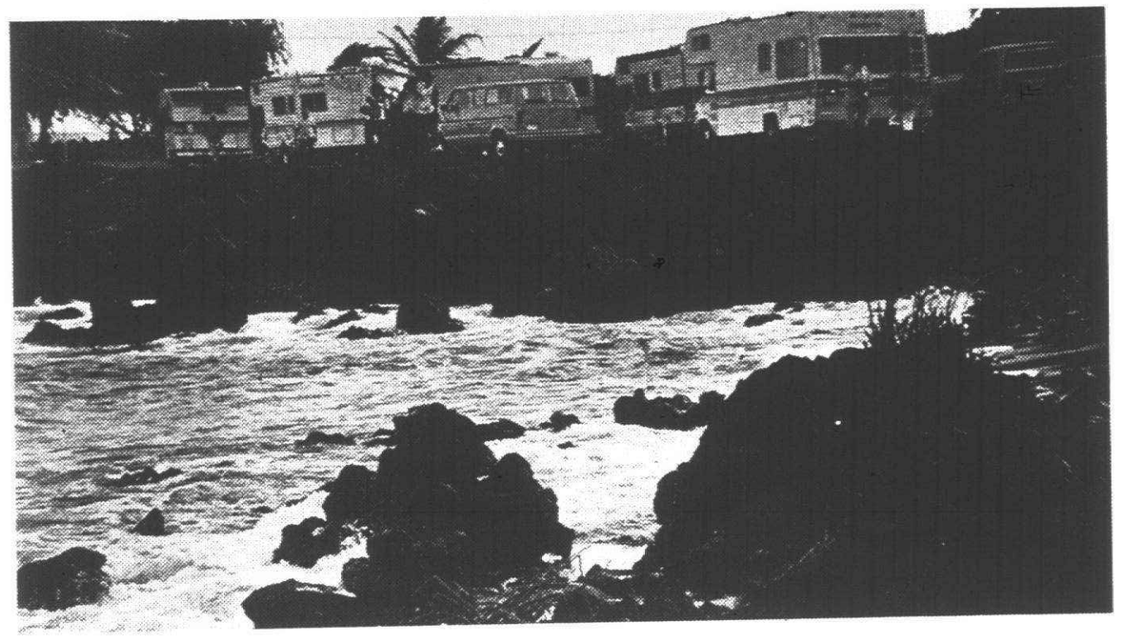

Mini-homes and compact cabovers are available from Aloha Camper Rentals and Beach Boy Campers, but the biggest outfit with a wide assortment of campers is Holo-Holo Campers, run by the Gordon Morse family.

Morse will include a map of the island and information about county, state and national parks. Campgrounds on the Big Island are more primitive than on the mainland. You don't need reservations and you'll get only very basic facilities.

What you will get is the authentic, romantic Big Island at your doorstep. Campgrounds are available on the coast near Hawaii Volcanos National Park, in the lush country north of Hilo, in the historic north Kona side of the island, and on the very slope of Mauna Kea.

The island of Hawaii is not like Oahu or Maui. Don't expect tropical foliage everywhere. It is the top of a very high volcanic mountain and its sights range from cattle ranches, orchid farms and nut factories to live volcanic action.

For information contact Hawaii Visitor's Bureau, 180 Kinoole Street, Hilo, Hawaii 96720.

Montebello

It's on 100 square miles of wilderness once known as a seigneury, land given to a Canadian by the Bourbon kings of France centuries ago. It once was the very private Seigneury Club, where diplomats had to show their membership cards at the gate.

Now it is a public hotel with a unique combination of elegance and casual fun.

The Chateau Montebello is between the cites of Ottawa, Ontario and Montreal, Quebec, on the northern side of the Ottawa River in Canada.

It has a six-story fireplace dominating a huge lobby, and three wings of rooms on the first and second floors. The huge log cabin was designed as a summer cottage, and the feeling of luxury in the wilderness persists.

Sports include golf, skeet and trap shooting, riding, swimming, tennis, archery, boating, curling, hunting and fishing in remote cabins, and winter activities such as cross-country skiing.

An annual cross-country marathon, which is held late every February on a track that runs the 100 miles from Ottawa to Montreal, designates the Chateau Montebello as its half-way point.

After casual sports and woods activity during the daytime there is gourmet dining in the evening. There's an early and a late dinner sitting, and a black-tie maitre d' to give it a little class. The food is excellent.

For information contact Canadian Pacific Hotels toll-free at 1-800-828-7447, or write to the Chateau Montebello, Montebello, Quebec.

San Antonio

Imagine dinner by candlelight on a boat floating down the San Antonio River. The mariachis sing softly at the stern and lights shine dimly through high trees overhead.

This is the same river that flows through the Alamo, and you can visit the famous fort a few streets away from the river. You can also climb the Tower of the Americas, built for the 1968 HemisFair, or tour the 17th century Spanish missions that line Mission Trail out of town.

There are many such practical, tourist-oriented things to do in this southern Texas city, but those associated with the river may be what you remember best.

If you visit San Antonio in April, you can enjoy the fun and games of the fiesta, which has all the markings of a springtime Mardi Gras. For four nights, there is food and beer and dancing and entertainment during Nights in Old San Antonio.

Flowered floats glide on the river during the river festival. During fiesta, or on any ordinary spring night, you may stroll down the Paseo del Rio past the ships, restaurants, night clubs and outdoor cafes that line the narrow river.

This river was once described derisively as a "sewer running through the warehouse district." But it is now a traveler's delight, and new hotels are sprouting on its banks.

For information on San Antonio, contact the San Antonio Convention and Visitor's Bureau, P.O. Box 2277, San Antonio, Texas 78298 or call 1-800-531-7500 toll-free.

tasteful and tasty

"Some people ask for what they want," she said. "But some let you do your own thing. That's fun."

(Family participating also occurs at Mrs. Maddox Cake Shop. Also on the payroll is Mrs. Kelley's sister, Marian O'Niel of Canton, and their father, Jack Still of Birmingham.

Ms. McCourt demonstrated how to make the eye-catching flowers that go on the cakes. She puts frosting in a plastic bag. She snips off the tip of the bag and squeezes out the frosting as needed. In her other hand she holds a nail with a top placed on it the size of a 50-cent piece. While slowly turning the nail, she queezes out the frosting onto the top. Voila! A rose.

A knife or spatula is used to transfer it to the cake.

Mrs. Thouin believes that cake decorating lately is swinging away from bright colors. "It is becoming less ornate and more elegant," she said, adding "pastels are more in favor."

She has no trouble maintaining a steady hand in this work. Many years ago she got an exacting training in a Woolworth store in Cheyboygan.

"I decorated cakes at a counter to customer specifications," she recalled. "We always had a big crowd. They were fascinated with cake decorating."

BUT OF ALL the recent innovation in wedding cakes, probably the most revoluntionary and visible is the removal by some of the tiny bride and groom from the top of the cake. Dried silk or fresh flowers are turning up instead. Also bells, birds and other decorative objects are having their moment at the top of the heap.

Another rather spectacular sight is a fountain with running water that can be added to the center of the big cakes that feed 700 guests. A cake like that would cost $200 and up.

On the smaller level cakes cost from about $20-$30 depending on the wishes of the customer.

Crowning touch is a hairstyle that's natural

Under a wedding veil, your hair, as well as your face, will be the center of attention. Natural, shining hair is the hallmark of the '80s bride.

"Simple, elegant hairstyles will be the look of the '80s bride," said Jorge Enrique, who recently joined Saks Fifth Avenue Troy beauty salon as hair designs director.

Enrique's forte in hair design is his special knack for giving each client a contemporary style that is uniquely hers. "I am opposed to a hairdresser dictating and to cookie-cutter styling," he said.

Generally, he favors hair that looks controlled but which is actually soft, free and feminine. "I aim," he said, "for easy manageability and versatility so that the style can be changed for special occasions or simply for variety.

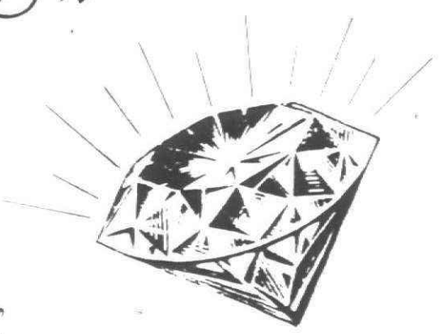

The spring-summer bride should begin to plan now with her hairdresser for a hairstyle that will complement her wedding gown and headpiece as well as work well for the honeymoon, Enrique said.

"Above all," he added, "a bride's hair should look shiny, healthy and full."

Many area florists can suit your flower fancy

By JILL MULDER

Whether couples choose traditional or innovative weddings. florists vow to accommodate all.

If, of course, you give them enough notice. Like all wedding arrangments, choosing flowers takes time amd consideration.

Most florists require reservations two to three months prior to the "big day." Some also ask for a deposit that will be applied toward the balance.

Local florists agreed traditional brides opt for rose bouquets with stephanotis, various greens and baby's breath, while choosing bouquets of sweetheart roses and carnations with spring flowers for their bridesmaids.

Traditional boutonnieres are made with one flower that is in the bride's bouquets. Boutonnieres are also popular with dads, ushers and grandfathers

But flowers are flowers, right? The same flower can be purchased anywhere, so the goal turns into finding a florist who can satisfy each bride's needs. Slogans suggest each florist is unique because of their personal service.

Most shops deliver flowers to the church the day of the wedding. They usually take care of setting up the altar flowers, pew bows, runner and any church decorations. Some also pin flowers on wedding participants and even offer their services until the bride walks down the aisle. Service may include a delivery to the reception.

Couples searching for invitations and a photographer may elect to do their shopping at GiGi Floral Fashion in Birmingham.

Heide's of Plymouth will go to local dress shops to make sure the bouquet they are will complement the dresses.

Bell Greenhouses in Birmingham will adorn the wedding cake with real flowers just before the reception.

TO GET THE BEST service from the florist picked, there are specific preparations a bridal couple can make.

Before picking flowers, area florists recommend, have a reserved date, church and reception hall, and have all dresses and tuxedos chosen. If possible, bring in pictures and materiala swatches of the dresses, especially the bride's.

Almost any kind of bouquet is possible, the floral designers agree. They ask that couples allot sufficient time to the choice, do it early enough so that supplies can be ordered and then allow the designer to use creativity.

"Each bouquet I make is special because it's custom designed," said Kathy Harrigan, assistant manager of Merri-Craft Florist in Livonia. "It's fun to make unusual bouquets because it offers new challenges."

The professionals don't compare their work to gardening, but rather think of it as an art form. Their problems arise when brides change their minds at the last minute, and occasionally have to change all plans if specialty flowers or feathers haven't been delivered on time.

"It doesn't happen often," they reassured.

AN ADVENTUROUS florist, Greg Petty of Birmingham, said most people don't realize what an extensive variety of flowers is available.

"Seventy-five percent of all brides carry the same flowers," he said. "I encourage my customers to be unique."

Petty has been the manager of two flowers shops in the Detroit area and is now the owner of his own shop, Greg Petty Floral Design Group in Birmingham, which opens in February.

"I once made a bride's bouquet from phalanopsis and cecropic leaves, complemented with ostrich feathers. Her bridesmaids carried bouquets of cypripedium and cecropia leaves, topped off with pheasant feathers.

"I was especially proud of these because the couple received a lot of compliments," he said.

Future plans for Petty are to make a wedding bouquet from a wreath. "By adding natural twigs and white blossoms," he said, "you could offer a fresh look for a winter wedding."

Perfume for bride

By RUSTLE SHAND

On your most romantic day, whether your wedding is traditional or modern in mood and attire, surround yourself with cherished customs.

One such custom, which has its origins in ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome, is that of wearing a wedding perfume. Perfume played a very important role in a young maiden's wedding ritual. One the morning of her wedding day, she was carefully anointed with fragrant unguents, and precious fragrances were a prized portion of her wedding dowry.

Early in the '20s, shortly after the launch of Chanel No. 5, Chanel envisioned a modern fragrance that would capture life's more romantic moods.

She said she wanted to create a fragrance that would express all that's captivatingly feminine without the overbearing sweetness characteristic of most fragrances of the day.

Determined to bottle the essence feminity and romance, Chanel once again went to work with her friend and colleague, the famous perfumer Ernest Beaux. Together, they created a bridal fragrance and christened it Chanel No. 22.

The romantic creation is a delicate blend of essences of all white blossoms — jasmine, white roses, lily of the valley, narcissus and tuberose.

Whatever scent you choose, select it with the same discriminating care as the rest of your wedding finery.
