Donahue will quit for health reasons soon

Treasurer Jim Donahue will definitely resign from office because of ill health as soon as the fate of Canton's proposed zoning ordinance is decided.

Donahue, 32, who has been ill since last fall, said he informed Supervisor Noel Culbert of his decision after visiting his doctor on Thursday.

The treasurer has been diagnosed for mononucleosis, an upper-respiratory infection and the beginning stages of an ulcer. His doctor has attributed all the health problems to stress.

"He said I've got to slow down or I'll kill myself," said Donahue, who holds a management position in a family-owned business in addition to the part-time treasurer job.

"While I'm saddened that I've got to leave office, I feel it's the only thing I can do. I haven't been in township hall much at all — not nearly as much as a treasurer should."

The township board is currently considering a new zoning ordinance which reserves some 5,000 acres west of Canton Center for agricultural purposes. Donahue said he will not leave elected office until the fate of the document is decided.

"The zoning ordinance is one of the things I felt most strongly about when I ran."

DONAHUE SAID deputy treasurer Maria Falkiewicz will take over his job until the township board names a replacement to fill the eight months that remain of his term.

Mrs. Falkiewicz, who ran against Donahue for the treasurer's job in the 1978 election, will probably be considered for the slot. Supervisor Culbert said last week that he may recommend Mrs. Falkiewicz for the job.

The deputy treasurer has sat on the township board with full voting power on several occasions when Donahue was absent.

She said last Friday that she would accept the treasurer's appointment if asked.

Mrs. Falkiewicz added, however, that she would ask the township board to make a determination on staffing problems in the treasurer's department. She endorses creation of a full-time assistant treasurer job.

Mrs. Falkiewicz had announced her resignation from the part-time deputy post last month because she was unhappy with department staffing levels.

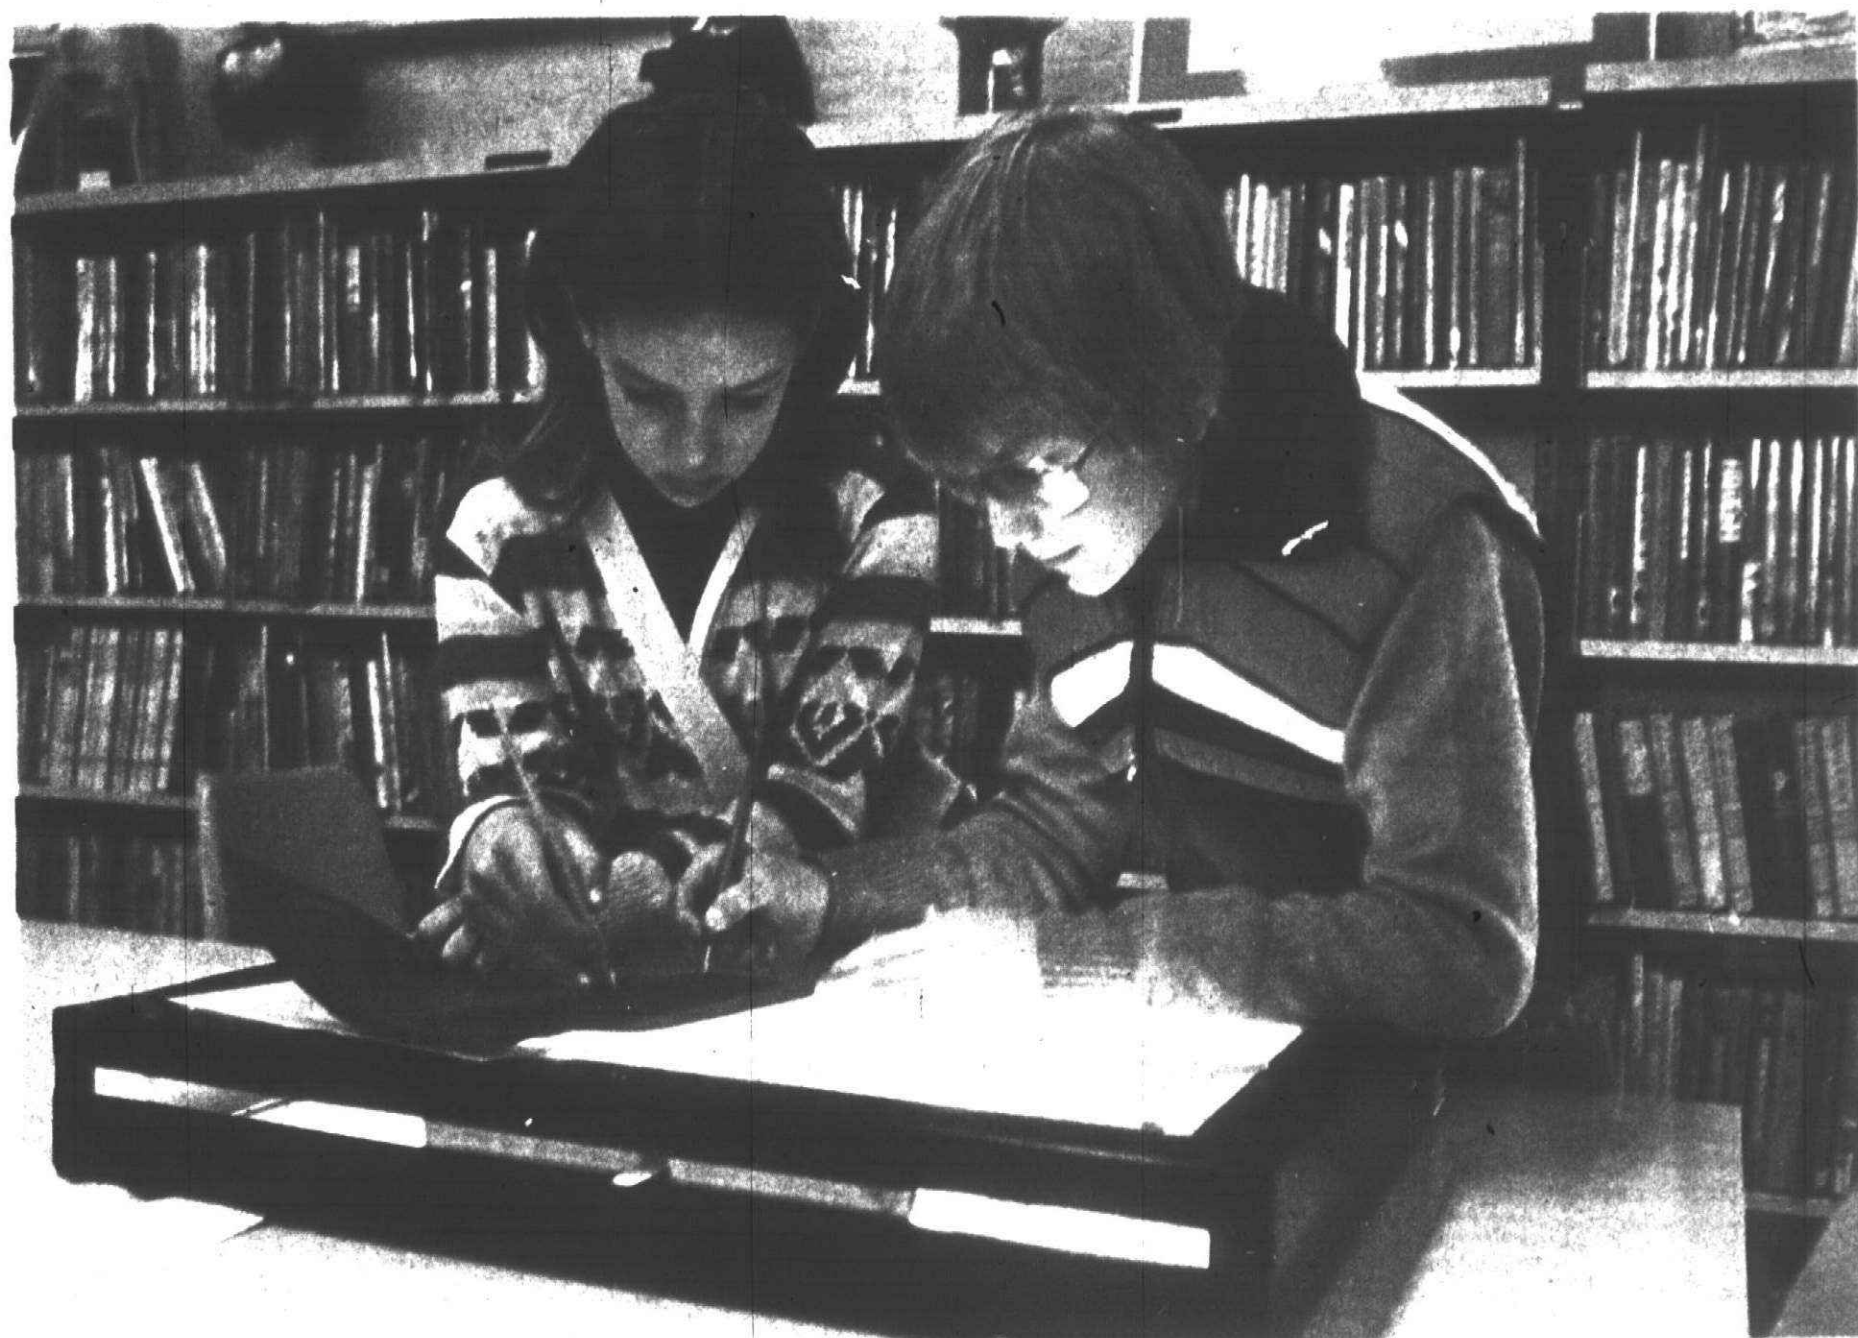

However, she has continued to work because of Donahue's health problems.

The township board recently voted to make the treasurer position a full-time job, effective next November.

MRS. FALKIEWICZ said she may decide to run for the treasurer position again next fall.

She ran as the Democratic nominee in the 1978 election, while Donahue ran on the Republican ticket. After the election, Donahue surprised most politicians.

From revenue sharing funds

$250,000 pledged for farm program

By CAROLINE PRICE

Farmland preservation has received a $250,000 commitment from the Canton Township Board of Trustees. The sum, however, does not yet actually exist in Canton's coffers.

The money, which would be used to purchase development rights to designated farmland in the township, is expected to arrive in the form of an increase in state revenue sharing funds.

According to Supervisor Noel Culbert, state Rep. Tom Brown has informed him the township's increased population will yield a revenue sharing allotment of at least $1.2 million as of Oct. 1, rising to $2.2 million by 1985. The figures are based on the state revenue sharing formula for a community with a population of 40,000.

Canton's population, which will be counted in the 1980 census, is estimated at between 40,000 and more than 50,000. The township currently receives between $150,000 and $250,000 based on population figures from an earlier census.

Culbert, in a memo to the board, said

Canton can also expect to receive $118,000 per year for the next four years, because of a delay in the use of the 1980 census figures, that was legislated to benefit communities losing population.

The supervisor added that another $1 million to $2 million will be gained from sale of township-owned property in the Haggerty Road area.

The supervisor has suggested that any revenue sharing money beyond the proposed $250,000 not be spent on farmland preservation without voter approval.

The agreement to commit the $250,000, with all board members but Trustee Eugene Daly casting positive votes, did not come without expression of concerns.

Board members, at the special Thursday night meeting, questioned whether the money will actually be received. Another concern focused on whether the election this fall involving all township elected offices could result in a new board that would not continue to commit the money.

Financial Director Mike Gorman said he had "checked with the state" at Trustee Carol Bodenmiller's request, and discovered that "we probably won't get a dime of the increase until June 1981, but it is effective as of October."

He added that Culbert's estimates are probably low and that the only potential problem with the increase would occur if the state revenue sharing formula is changed.

The decision to commit money to development rights purchase was supported by planning commission head Robert Padgett and former planning commissioner Bart Berg.

The two men distributed a letter to the board urging that half the money received from state revenue sharing, golf course profits, interest from uncommitted fund accounts and similar revenue be spent for development rights purchase. The letter said some $920,000 could be generated in this manner, with more coming from a potential one mill tax levy requested of voters. According to the rough figures given by Berg and Padgett, some $2 million could be generated for development rights purchase.

Although the board's $250,000 commitment was termed "a drop in the bucket" by Trustee Steven Larson, the earmarked money, if it is actually received, will mark the first major funding for the farm preservation project.

The fund commitment falls on the eve of passage of a zoning ordinance revision which designates some 5,000 acres in the western portion of Canton for agricultural use.

Zoning debate goes on tonight

Discussion ran late into the night, little was decided at a special Canton Board of Trustees meeting about proposed revisions to the zoning ordinance.

The board has instead decided to meet beginning 7 p.m. tonight in a joint session with the planning commission to thrash out changes in the ordinance addendum.

Actual passage of the ordinance update is not planned for Monday, although the board could schedule a meeting to do so later in the week or vote on it at the next regular meeting March 25.

Board members did indicate that they would uphold approved site plans, even for projects not in accordance with new zoning, for a period of one year after the site plan was approved.

Much of the evening's debate centered around several parcels of land in the Ford Road and Lilley area. Most of that property was given zoning for multiple-family (apartment) use in the master plan addendum and zoning revision.

Residents in nearby MacIntyre subdivision, however, said they preferred that the property be either zoned commercially or for single-family use.

The board appeared to be leaning toward giving most of the property an R-6 (detached townhouse) zoning, but decided to discuss the move instead with the planning commission.

Board fears retardation seminar indicates sanction

The format for an educational seminar on mental retardation may be changed to avoid any appearance that Canton officials endorse plans for foster care homes in the township.

The educational session will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the township administration building at Canton Center and Proctor roads.

Original plans for the meeting called for representatives from the Northville Residential Training Center (NRTC) and the Northwest Association of Retarded Citizens to speak on the needs of the retarded and the rationale behind a state drive to locate foster care homes in communities.

Proposals for three foster care homes in Canton are pending before the Michigan Department of Social Services.

Township board members are now insisting that persons opposed to the planned homes speak at the meeting as well. Supervisor Noel Culbert contacted persons of the opposition viewpoint last week to ask for their participation in the session.

BOARD MEMBERS lingered in township hall after a regular meeting last Tuesday to blast planner Jim Kosteva for drafting a letter on township stationery which urged residents to attend.

Board members said the letter gave the impression that the township was sponsoring the seminar and endorsing the foster care home plans. The letter, which is intended for homeowner association officers, was later rewritten by Culbert.

At least one board member objected to the scheduling of the meeting in a township building. The idea for the educational session was conceived by Kosteva and NRTC officials and later approved by Culbert.

"Would you let the Communist Party use this room?" asked Trustee Robert Greenstein.

Greenstein is opposed to three proposals to locate foster care homes in Canton on the grounds that the state is interfering with local zoning laws. The proposals meet a goal of the Michigan Mental Health Department to deinstitutionalize retarded citizens.

Short Takes

How do you strike a fish's fancy?

For those of you out there who have plans to do a little fishing when the weather improves, there's a way to get prepared. Canton's Parks and Recreation Department is offering a fly-tying and fly-fishing course beginning March 31 at the township meeting hall, corner of Canton Center and Cherry Hill roads. The class, limited to 12 members, will be taught by William Semion, contributing editor for Michigan Living/Motor News magazine. The nine weeks of classes begin at 7 p.m. each Monday except for April 7. Semion will offer individualized instruction in many types of fly-tying, rod building and fly-casting. Call 397-1000 for more information.

He changed his mind

Remember how Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert was going to cut off the front money for the Chamber of Commerce's CETA employee? Culbert was piqued because Chamber President Frank McMurray is involved in a group studying the possibility of hiring a township superintendent (rather like a city manager). Culbert said the township could be more efficient (one of the rationales given for having a superintendent) by not paying the salary, which is later reimbursed by the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act. Turns out Culbert never actually informed payroll to cut off the funds. He said he thought better of the idea. It seems he just lost his temper.

Wedding bells

We can't name any names just yet, but it seems one of the township's more confirmed bachelors is finally going to enter the state of matrimonial bliss. The date, we are told, for this happy event has been set on April 5. Just the immediate family will be present. In the meantime, we hear, the gentleman is busily registering his china pattern and looking for Something Borrowed. Stay tuned for further developments.

Consortium topic tonight

A proposal to form a CETA consortium is among the items to be discussed at tonight's meeting of the Plymouth City Commission.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the commission chambers, upstairs in city hall, 201 S. Main.

The Wayne County Office of Manpower is urging the city to join with Canton, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township to pool administrative funds and hire employees and training specialists under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), a federally-funded program.

The advantages of doing so will be discussed during a public hearing on the topic during tonight's meetings. Residents are invited to come and express their opinions.

The city commission also will be conducting a public hearing tonight to receive suggestions on how to spend its 1980 allocation of federal revenue sharing funds.

The city expects to get about $122,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Elementary journalists are budding at Bird

It's called the Bird School Hot Line, and to the 608 students who attend the elementary school in Plymouth Township, it's the most looked-forward-to newspaper of the month.

Compiled by 71 fifth graders, it supplies the school's youngsters with tidbits and short stories about happenings in their classrooms. As one parent put it:

"It really isn't the Observer — but to us it is."

Almost every page in the once-a-month edition highlights the work of student-writers as well as cartoonists. The children even decide where the stories and pictures should be placed, with bylines for writers and credit to artists.

Most of the work is done on students' free time, which in itself should be applauded, as they have "never missed a deadline," says parent-sponsor Ann Sheardown.

This month's edition explored some of the events happening in various Girl Scout and Cub Scout packs in the school.

You learned about who planned a roller skating party — and where. And you also heard about what the packs were doing in preparing for their Blue and Gold banquets.

THERE WAS also a piece, written by a young reporter, who compiled answers from a second grade class to the following question: What do you think a man who wants to be president should be able to do?

Among the answers, students thought it would be a good idea if a president could "pass a test, read books, have neat handwriting, and even have experience in the Army."

Oh yes, the students also suggested "you must be a man, and you have to be a lawyer."

According to Mrs. Sheardown, the students have brushed up on reporting skills since starting the effort and have even learned to "quote people."

With the help of another parent, Mike Arnholt, a professional journalist, the children were introduced to the "Who, what, where, why and how" of reporting.

"They really take a genuine interest in it and are anxious to get it going," Mrs. Sheardown adds.

And with the aid of parent volunteers — Joan Postell, Kay Rednour and Diane Bodell — the student newspaper has a circulation of 700.

Other teachers involved in the effort are Derald McKinley, John Ryder, Evelyn Marchio, Malcolm Pierce and Janet Stafford.

The Bird Hotline is the first of its kind in the district. While most elementary schools have newsletters sent to parents' homes, none are compiled with such massive student input.

And before the papers reach the homes of the students, they are carefully scrutinized.

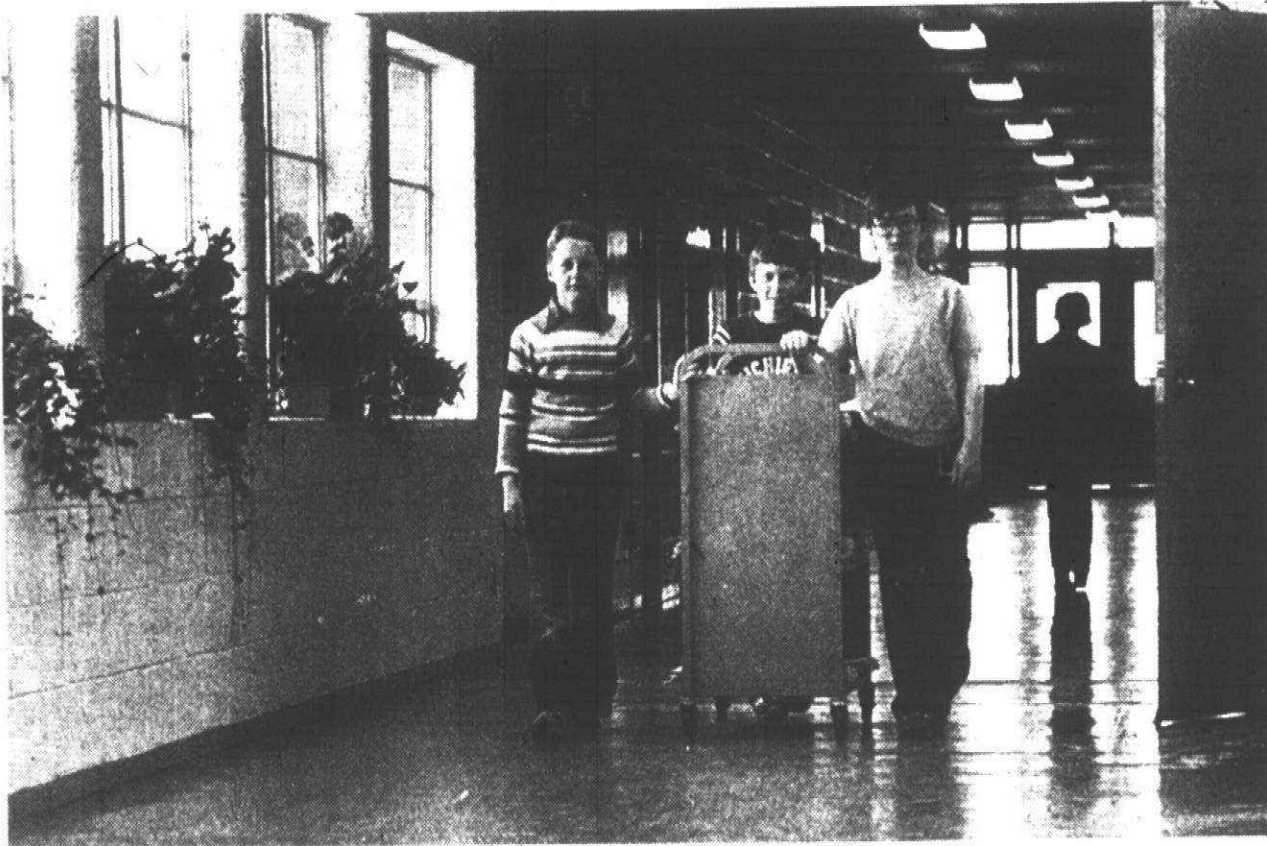

One month, some 300 papers were "recalled" and sent back to the production line when it was discovered an entire page was printed upside down.

The collating department assembles and staples the pages together in Derald McKinley's fifth grade classroom.

Karen Finnegan is interviewed by Chris Crews (center) and Jeff Delbeke in Ronald Hembree's fourth-grade classroom.

Design firm finds home in old Sheldon School

Drafting tables for grown-ups have replaced children's desks and chairs in what used to be known as Sheldon School in the southern part of Canton Township.

DEC International Inc., a designer of material handling systems, is converting the former school at 45081 Geddes into an office building.

The company purchased the facility from the Wayne-Westland School District last June for $225,000, according to Manny Lentine, the schools' purchasing director. The building had been vacant for about a year following the transfer of Sheldon's lower elementary grades to Walker School.

Canton officials had briefly discussed the idea of buying the school for conversion into a recreational facility.

Although company personnel moved into the building last September, site plans for the remodeling work was approved by the Canton Township board just last week.

The school's four classrooms have already been transformed into a large engineering area. DEC president N. Bali said the former gymnasium — housed in a building separate from the school — will be used for the construction of handling-system models.

Bali, who has lived in Canton since 1973, said he purchased the former school "sight unseen" last summer. The company had three months to find a new location before its lease agreement expired in September.

Bali said the company's former facility in Oak Park was too small.

"Bali, a mechanical engineer, founded DEC International 3½ years ago. The company designs conveyers and other material handling systems. The firm recently designed a ship-unloading system for a South Carolina-based subsidiary of Alcoa Aluminum.

The firm employs 12 regular workers and 18 consultants.

Donahue resignation official ical observers when he named the opposition candidate his deputy.

Despite his health problems, Donahue said he may consider entering Canton politics again. He feels he is unable to handle the administrative tasks of a treasurer, but says he would like to sit on the township board as a trustee.

The seven-member board consists of three officials — the supervisor, clerk and treasurer — who are charged with administrative responsibilities in addition to legislative tasks.

The four trustees on the board deal primarily in legislative work.

"I might run, but I'm really not planning on it," Donahue said. "I want to get my own house in order first."

Attorneys get wage increase

Attorneys contracted by Plymouth Township won their case before the township board of trustees last week when they were granted a pay hike.

The board last week granted the increases to members of the Kerr, Russell and Weber law firm of Detroit.

Presently, partners receive $65 an hour for township work and their associates receive $53 an hour. There's a monthly retainer fee of $106.50.

The new wage hike, effective April 1, will include a $120 monthly retainer fee. Partners will get $75 an hour and associates will get $60 an hour.

Subway plan will benefit western Wayne County

The Michigan House of Representatives should stop playing Byzantine political games and pass the engineering money for the SEMTA rapid transit project.

For weeks the bill has been held up. Legislators who campaigned as if they were statesmen try to sabotage the subway portion of the Woodward Avenue rail line.

THE LATEST maneuver is the planned appointment of a special committee to seek a "compromise" on how much rapid transit is to be built.

Here we have a transportation plan that was molded a decade ago by the Transportation and Land Use Study, modified by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, studied exhaustively by the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority itself, subjected to rounds of public hearings — and now the good ol' boys in Lansing are going to take still another crack at it.

That's nonsense.

SEMTA is a creature of the Michigan Legislature. It was created to unify the existing bus systems and provide public transportation for a seven-county economic region as it moves into the 21st century.

The kind of back-biting, second-guessing, jealous, tin-horn politics to which the antisubway legislators have subjected SEMTA is unworthy of Michigan's tradition of grass-roots government.

SEMTA AND ITS legislative supporters need to stand firm for their plan, which calls for building the rapid transit line underground from downtown Detroit to McNichols (Six Mile Road) and then at grade into Oakland County.

Any legislator still talking about a half-baked aerial or at-grade plan should disabuse himself of that notion by driving Woodward from Grand Boulevard to McNichols.

Woodward is just too narrow to accommodate a resurrection of the streetcar in that segment. An aerial line, as Highland Park officials have objected, would be too disruptive of that community's fragile commercial base.

Just a look at the accompanying schemata sketch should convince any objective viewer that a light rail line should go underground.

We hear much that the plan is "too costly." Actually, the greater danger is that we will spend too little on a cheap plan that is a poor return on our investment.

WESTERN WAYNE County has a stake in the

Tim Richard

Woodward corridor rapid transit system, even though we aren't direct beneficiaries.

SEMTA's plan must be understood as Phase I of a multi-artery rapid transit system that will one day incorporate western Wayne County. The sooner we get on with the Woodward corridor, the sooner it will be our turn.

There is also the gasoline consideration. America's consumption of gasoline must continue to be cut. The pot has limits.

If we can reduce consumption of gasoline with an electrified transit line, then life indirectly becomes more tolerable for us gasoline users who are some distance from the Woodward corridor.

Consider this point of view from the Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council:

"The Michigan Department of Natural Resources recently reported a 9 percent drop in attendance at Michigan state parks last summer — 20 percent in the Upper Peninsula. Judging by a recent Michigan Department of Transportation report, 'The people of southeast Michigan enlarged their share of the state's gasoline supply at the expense of tourism, leisure industries and the people of northern Michigan,'" according to EMEAC.

Said EMEAC board member James Bush, "It is obvious that people are saving their gasoline so they can drive to work."

"If we had a good mass transit system in place today, those within it — or even within part of it — would again have the fuel to spend on day, weekend and longer vacation trips."

It's plainly within western Wayne County's interests that its legislators support the SEMTA transit plan.

An aerial transit line along northern Woodward Avenue through Highland Park would be a bad investment.

Justice — of sorts — for B.K.

A small justice has been won in the name of B.K.

It is justice that five University of Michigan fraternity students were taken to court and convicted for their parts in the torture and murder of a small gray cat known as B.K.

It is only a small justice in that the punishment is but a slap on the wrist in comparison to the crime.

Douglas Hamlin, David Froiken, Brian Dunstan, Michael Anderson and Jeffrey Abrahamson, all former members of U-M fraternity Alpha Delta Phi, have been ordered by 15th District Court Judge S.J. Elden to pay $360 each and serve 200 hours of volunteer animal aid work to discharge their debt to B.K.

THIS IS WHAT they did to the cat: B.K.'s paws were chopped off and it was hung from a tree and set ablaze. The cat apparently had failed to use its litter box on occasion.

One wonders why the punishment to an animal for a minor indiscretion was so severe; yet the punishment to five college educated, upper-crust "men" is so minor.

In fact, if the money is paid and the volunteer service is performed within a year, the misdemeanor (that's all cat torture is apparently worth) will be stricken from their records.

After all, swell fellas such as these, with nice University of Michigan degrees and the world at their feet, wouldn't want to have their careers jeopardized by this insignificant little event, would they?

The poor boys had already been kicked out of their fraternity house, which had also been the residence of B.K. Hamlin, by the way, had been president of the fraternity.

It is surprising B.K. was avenged at all. Few acts of cruelty to animals are ever prosecuted.

Still, it is a strange form of justice to put persons who have no respect for the lives of animals in charge of caring for animals. It seems akin to putting a rapist in charge of a home for orphaned girls.

A better punishment (although prosecution under a city ordinance, as this case was, would probably not allow it) would be to hit the men harder — in the pocketbooks. Rather than sending them to jail or kicking them out of the university, let them continue toward their goals. Then require them to pay hefty, hefty sums each year to such operations as animal shelters and humane societies.

And never, never strike the account of this crime from their records.

There are a few praises to sing in this sad case, most notably for the Humane Society of Huron Valley, which insisted the men be prosecuted. This was no boyish prank. It was cold-blooded and intolerable cruelty.

We can't predict the future of these five men, who may or may not be sorry for their actions. Maybe they are genuinely sorry or maybe they are just sorry they were caught. It took a police investigation to make some of them 'fess up.

But perhaps, for the rest of their lives, the men will be haunted by the ghost of a small gray cat that will occasionally claw at their consciences.

Daniel's Den

A burden of love

My son Lyle is an all-American boy in a number of ways.

He's full of energy, mischief and is jam-packed with a curiosity for life.

But Lyle is different from many other seven-year-old boys his age. Lyle is handicapped — a learning disabled child.

The casual onlooker wouldn't know about his handicap because Lyle looks just like any other all-American boy.

A little tall he is, a bit skinny, blond hair, blue eyes, quite a tease, and a smile that immediately telegraphs that all his well in his world.

Lyle is of normal intelligence, and possesses a terrific memory. His handicap has been described as "invisible" because it's not perceptible to the trained eye. Yet it exists in a very real way.

THE FIRST CLUE to the casual observer meeting Lyle for the first time would be a damp area on his shirt, just beneath his chin.

That's caused by the saliva dripping down his chin. Lyle cannot swallow saliva as an automatic reflex response as you and I do. He cannot "feel" the muscles of the lips and tongue as others can. And so he slobbers.

The next clue the casual observer would see would come by watching Lyle "walk." He walks off-balance, leaning forward, and his gait is somewhere between walking and jogging. As a result, he often falls forward.

Lyle has problems with visual perception. Combined with his lack of balance, he often bumps into walls. Almost any week of the year, you will find bruises on his arms, legs or forehead.

At one time, he couldn't close his eyes except when sleeping. The problem was he couldn't close them on command. If you asked Lyle to close his eyes, he'd bury his little fists over his eyes to block out all light. This is because he couldn't "feel" the muscles on his eyelids and, therefore, couldn't voluntarily close them.

Like many learning disabled children, Lyle has problems gripping a pencil or crayon and drawing straight lines or forming letters. Often he will write numbers or letters backwards because that's how his mind sees them. Your mind and mine automatically make a correction.

But he's been in a contained classroom and has received a lot of help from very skilled professionals dedicated to helping young children with problems like Lyle's. As a result, he can write his name, write sentences, and now even read complete stories.

Lyle is especially proud of being able to read, and his mother and I share in that pride. In fact, we might even be prouder because we understand better than Lyle does what a real accomplishment that was.

BUT BEING ABLE to read, even if it's just a little bit, is one small step forward toward an uncertain future.

There have been other small steps too. He now can close his eyes on command, he falls less often, and can walk down the hallway at school without having to place his hands against the wall to maintain balance.

Lyle's mother and I also are proud of those advances, but we still worry about what will happen tomorrow, and the next day, and 20 years from now.

Just last summer, for instance, Lyle was outside playing with the other kids on the block. He never really "saw" the baseball bat the other boy was swinging in a scrub softball game. The bat ripped his forehead wide open — requiring 23 stitches — and left a permanent scar. That incident explains why we worry sometimes.

I'm sharing these thoughts and experiences with a couple of mothers of handicapped children who read the Observer regularly. They were upset by an article on the special program for handicapped youngsters at Farrand Elementary. They were particularly sensitive about the headline which conveyed the message that the future is a burden for handicapped children.

If the article or headline offended anyone, I am certainly sorry and apologize for any discomfort caused. But I wanted to share this part of my life to suggest that I do have sensitivity toward the handicapped.

As the father of a handicapped child I can, of course, speak only for myself. I am Lyle's father — no one else is. But being blessed with a son like Lyle certainly has instilled a special understanding of what it's like for a child to be different.

And I would quickly add, without hesitation, that being the father of a handicapped child is a burden. It's an emotional burden to worry whether Lyle will get bashed on the head again by a baseball bat, or run across the street in front of a car, or fall off a bicycle and break his leg.

It's also a financial burden because special needs require special care. Right now I'm paying quite a few bucks a month for private occupational therapy, and about every two or three months there's the cost of a new pair of glasses to replace the ones broken by a fall. And there are other costs.

Lyle also is a burden because he demands more of our attention than does our daughter. His mother and I constantly try to divide our time between Bridgette and Lyle in a way that's fair. But it's tough. And it's also a real burden.

We also are concerned about the future. Will Lyle ever be independent? Will he ever find a vocation to become economically self-sufficient? Will he live with us forever? Will he be a burden for the rest of our lives?

I don't have any trouble talking about my son being a burden. One reason is that he is. I must be honest with myself about that reality to remain mentally healthy and to create a family life and environment to reduce and control the human frustrations we face — so we can, to the extent possible, lessen the burden.

Besides being Lyle's father, though, I also am editor of the Plymouth Observer. I happened to write the headline which offended some people. And I edited the feature story about the program at Farrand. As an editor, I thought the story was an accurate reflection of the problems and feelings of parents of handicapped children. It related to my experiences and I was not offended by the word "burden."

I was not offended because the thought never entered my mind that you can't love a burden. There is no relationship between a child being a burden and a child being loved. I've loved a burden for seven years now and my love will be unchanged, even if he becomes a lifetime burden.

As the father of a child with special needs, I have needed special help to cope with my attitudes, emotions and lifestyle. And that was the focus of much of the feature story — the help being given to other parents to deal with the burdens they love.

Meant for St. Pat's parade, the green suit never showed

This is St. Patrick's Day — the day when tribute is paid to the man who supposedly chased all the snakes from Ireland and most everyone, regardless of his nationality, becomes an Irishman for the day.

In past years it was one of the most jovial holidays of the year. Everyone dressed with some tinge of green in his wardrobe, smoked the old-fashioned clay pipes and those who wanted to quench their thirst drank green beer.

The day isn't carried to extremes anymore. Outside of New York, few cities mark the day with a monstrous parade. No longer does one see the old clay pipe that the Irish immigrants brought to the country at the turn of the century.

But never does the day go by that The Stroller isn't reminded of the only green suit he ever owned and the unusual experience he had the first time he wore it.

IT WAS BACK in the days of his young manhood and the time had come for him to replenish his wardrobe.

He went shopping with his mother, and no sooner had they arrived at the clothing store in the city when his mother spotted a green suit in the window.

The sight of it gave her an idea. With her boy wearing a green suit (realizing that he was Pennsylvania Dutch with only a trace of Irish blood in him), he could be one of the features of the St. Patrick's Day parade in our little town.

The suit was an unforgettable bit of wearing apparel with a belted back and high pointed lapels. With these features it was a striking garment.

With the purchase, his mother was in glee as the Irish holiday was a few days away. But Mother's hopes of seeing her son walking in the parade with his green suit were dashed in a most unusual way.

On the evening of the purchase, The Stroller received a phone call from the mother of a girl he had known quite well. She sadly informed him that Prudence (her full name was Prudence Hamilton Kleibschneider) had died very suddenly. And in imparting that news she asked that he arrange for the pall bearers from the group with which he had been friendly.

There were no funeral parlors in those days, so Prudence was buried from her home and the grave was in the old church yard eight miles away.

On the day of the funeral, The Stroller's mother said she never expected him to wear the green suit for the first time while acting as a pall bearer. But the tragedy continued.

IT HAD BEEN a rather mild winter. There was no snow on the ground as we started for the cemetery. On the way we encountered a torrential rain storm. And being driven by horse and carriage made the trip rather long.

It was still pouring rain when we reached the cemetery. No time was lost as the pall bearers lined up along each side of the grave to handle the canvas straps to lower casket.

No one noticed that the men who dug the grave had forgotten to place the planks alongside, and the pall bearers were forced to stand on the bare ground.

Little by little the casket was lowered. Just as it hit bottom, catastrophe struck. The grave gave way and the pall bearers, all six of them, slid into the grave on top of the casket.

Imagine that. And The Stroller with a green suit in the yellow clay. We managed to scramble out of the grave, a horrible sight of mud-covered young men. But for The Stroller it was a double tragedy. Not only did he land on top of a girl friend in her grave, but the green suit was a mess.

Came St. Patrick's Day and the suit was in a basket on the porch waiting to go to the cleaners. And The Stroller didn't even go to the St. Patrick's Day parade. No wonder he remembers.

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $40; worth $1,800

NILES, Ill.—The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light.

In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of the Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison, Wis., woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate . . . which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,800. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on what to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the exchange.

To obtain a copy without cost or obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code before Saturday of next week to: The Bradford Exchange, Dept. A39812, 9301 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, IL 60648. A postcard will do.

Stevenson bows out at 20-4

Shamrocks' zone trips Spartans

By DOUG FUNKE

Barry Spencer and Greg Wendt continue to prove themselves to be a potent one-two basketball punch.

The duo, which has carried the scoring load for Detroit Catholic Central all season long, totaled 47 points Friday to spark the Shamrocks' to a 78-61 victory over Livonia Stevenson.

The win, before a crowd of nearly 2,500 in the regional final at Livonia Franklin, sends CC to the Class A state quarterfinals 5 p.m. Wednesday against Highland Park.

That game will be played in Calihan Hall at the University of Detroit (McNichols and Livernois).

The game Friday was billed as a duel between the traditionally-strong Shamrocks and Stevenson, one of the better metro west teams this winter.

Many in the packed crowd were also anticipating the duel between CC's Barry Spencer and Stevenson's Dave Hall.

The game was close only through the first quarter and the personal confrontation never really materialized with each team using zone defenses.

The Shamrocks scored the first six points of the game — all by Spencer — and never trailed. Spencer finished with 27 points.

CC, meanwhile, contained Hall most of the game with a collapsing zone defense. Joe Chops, Dan Bartels and Spencer prevented the Spartans from getting the ball inside to Hall.

"We did not want them to get any easy baskets," said Bernie Holowicki, coach of the Shamrocks. "I thought we were aggressive in the zone."

CC led 18-13 after the first eight minutes.

The Shamrocks shut down Stevenson entirely from the field during the second quarter. All nine of the Spartans' points came on foul shots, as CC pulled away to a 36-22 lead at the intermission.

Stevenson coach George Van Wagoner said that his team never before this season went a complete quarter without making at least one field goal.

The problem? The shots just wouldn't fall much of the time, similar to what happened to Detroit Mackenzie earlier in the week when the Stags lost to the Spartans.

CC's tight zone also kept Stevenson from getting inside for the easier shot.

"I think if a few had dropped, it would have helped," said Stevenson coach George Van Wagoner. "We didn't score enough at all."

"It's evident that Spencer is a fine, fine athlete. They put one on one side (Spencer) and the other one (Wendt) on the other," Van Wagoner added. "They really complemented each other."

Wendt, a forward, scored 20 points. As a team, CC shot 57 percent from the field — 33 of 58.

CC, sensing a chance to knock the Spartans completely out of the game early in the second half, went to a run-and-gun offense. The Shamrocks had three three-point plays that quarter — one each by Bartels, Chops and Spencer.

CC led 63-38 after three quarters.

Van Wagoner substituted frequently during the fourth and the Spartans outpointed CC 8-4 during the first 2½ minutes, but there was no making up the huge deficit.

Herzog and Chops each added 11 points to the Shamrocks' offensive cause.

Evan Lyall netted 15, Hall 13 and Bill Keyes 10 for Stevenson.

"We won, but it was a tough 20-point win," said Holowicki. "I thought we played well and they're a good team, well coached."

"Barry dominated. I thought he rose well to the occasion. He's a class player, a class kid and he set the tone for the game," said Holowicki.

Van Wagoner was philosophical in defeat.

"Our kids did super," he said. "I would have liked to see them win, but 20-4 (season record) is not bad. CC has a fine ball club."

As an almost fitting climax to the game, CC's Dave Rodriguez launched a ball toward the hoop from midcourt as time was running out. The ball bounced off the backboard and through the basket. Unfortunately, time had expired.

But the Shamrocks march on to the quarterfinals.

Chief forward paces cage All-Leaguers

Plymouth Canton senior forward Dave Visser tops this year's All-Western Six League basketball squad selected recently by the coaches.

He is joined on the first team by Waterford Mott's Tom Schaefer, Brian Burgess of Farmington Harrison and Brian Kersten of Livonia Churchill. All four players are seniors.

The lone junior picked was Northville center Dave Ward.

Canton's Scott Adler and Brad Westin head the second team along with Keith Hart and Dave Miller of Mott. Also selected was Walled Lake Western's Scott Parrish. Hart is the lone junior.

Gaining honorable mention were Sean Houle of Canton, Mike Wagner of Northville, Mike Cleary of Harrison and Mike Xenos of Western.

Small schools deserve hard look

Kids these days who aspire to excel in sports dream of making it some day in the big time college atmosphere.

Influenced by the almighty television and big-city newspapers, kids grow up today watching the cream of the crop. Nationally televised college games are often more than not showing the name schools — Notre Dame, USC, UCLA, Michigan, MSU, LSU, Penn State, Purdue, Indiana, Texas and Oklahoma. And the list goes on.

These schools are the superpowers in sports. They also are big business types which can support its own program and go even further. They draw the huge crowds and produce the big buck. They are moneymakers for television and that's what kids relate to every week-end.

It's an honor for high school athletes to be offered full-ride athletic scholarships from these fine institutions. But some dreams are fulfilled, others are shattered.

A lot of the sports fans today scoff the caliber play below the Big 10, Pac 10, Southwest Conference and the SEC.

A good example was the recent hiring of Frank "Muddy" Waters as head football coach at Michigan State. Some called his hiring a joke. Others questioned his ability to coach on the major college level at 56 years of age.

WATERS TOILED for 25 years in relative obscurity at Hillsdale College and Saginaw Valley State. The doubters feel he cannot make the transition from small college to the sharks lurking in the big time.

Bunk! To become a head coach these days, it seems that you have to be a top assistant in a winning program on the major college level. It is argued that the talent differential between small programs and big ones is so great that it means the coach is taking a giant step and can't handle it.

The only difference between the two levels is the number of fans, number of reporters in the locker room after the game and the travel (you go by airplane instead of bus).

The bottom line for any coach is his knowledge of the game, his relationship with his players, and his ability to motivate and get the most out of what he has to work with. Pressure is everywhere.

Coaches on the small college level have that too. The big-timers are not the only ones who have a monopoly on it.

It's true that the small sports programs have less talent to deal with. But that doesn't mean it's weak.

A number of professional athletes have made it big coming from parts unknown. And just because you come from a small college doesn't mean that you can't play.

I recently returned from the 32-team NAIA National Basketball Tournament in Kansas City and found the caliber of play to be surprisingly tough.

I COUNTED 15 pro scouts in the stands during one day of play. The NAIA tournament has produced some outstanding talent over the years —

Willis Reed and Dick Barnett of the Knicks, Jack Sikma of Seattle, Fouts Walker and Elmore Smith of Cleveland. And the list goes on.

High school athletes should investigate these small colleges and find out what they have to offer. Saginaw Valley, where Waters served as head football coach and Athletic Director, won the District 23 championship this year and represented Michigan in the NAIA tourney.

During the state high school basketball tournament, I've seen scouts in the stands from Hillsdale, Lake Superior State, Wayne State and Alma.

The Great Lakes Conference (Wayne, Hillsdale, Northwood, Oakland, Grand Valley, Michigan Tech, Saginaw, Ferris

State and Lake Superior) play a top brand of football and basketball. So do the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) which consists of Albion, Calvin, Hope, Alma, Kalamazoo, Adrian and Olivet. Other schools which offer a chance to play include Orchard Lake St. Mary's, UM-Dearborn, Mercy, Aquinas, Nazareth, Siena Heights, John Wesley, and Northern Michigan.

All these schools provide quality education.

Then, of course, Michigan provides an opportunity to perform at numerous junior colleges.

High school athletes wishing to continue their sports careers should go see a game and judge for themselves, whether they are too good for that level.

Small college coaches recruit all year, but sometimes settle for what's left over from the Mid-American and Big 10.

Television and media-hype should not influence the decision of a high school athlete. It's nice to play before thousands and have friends see you play on the tube, but that shouldn't deter an athlete from testing the water.

Recreation cage race ends in tie

McAllister's and the Plymouth 76'ers ended the regular season in the Plymouth Adult Recreation Basketball League last week in a tie for first place.

A special playoff was held Saturday at Central Middle School to determine the state qualifier. Results of that game will be published Thursday.

McAllister's had a shot of winning the title outright, but fell to Team No. 6 in an upset, 66-56. Chris DeBear paced the winners with 18 points. Teammate Pat McKendry added 13.

The 76'ers took advantage of McAllister's defeat by whipping Sonny's Metro Sports handily, 79-52, as Mark Lisowski and Dave Pelly led the assault with 22 and 20 points respectively. Mark Loden had 20 in a losing cause.

Paul McKendry hit for 14 as Sonny's downed Rusty Nail No. 1, 71-44. Kurt Herbert tied McKendry team scoring honors with 14 in the romp.

Earlier, the 76'ers kept pace by drubbing Three Kegs Round, 81-67, as Ernie Thornberry tallied 20.

Three Kegs suffered its second loss of the week despite Mike Wilson's 42, dropping a 71-67 decision to The Arsenal. Bill Wenson powered The Arsenal with 20 points. Ron Bawulski and Tim Bollin collected 18 and 16 respectively for the winners.

The Arsenal moved into third place all alone with a 71-53 win over Rusty Nail No. 1. Bawulski and Bollin again powered the winners with 27 and 24 respectively.

Ramcharger hockey squad claims title

The Crestwood Dodge Ramchargers recently captured the Michigan Amateur Squirt A hockey championship by whipping Jackson in the final, 6-1.

Crestwood went undefeated to win the tournament. The Ramchargers opened the event by tying Jackson, 3-3. The area pucksters then downed Southfield (2-0), Adray Nationals (7-2) and Livonia (7-4) to reach the final.

The Ramchargers tallied 25 goals in five games during the three-day tourney. Eight different players scored with 13 getting at least one point.

The tourney win capped an outstanding season by the team, which was formed just before the year.

Neil Carnes, along with assistant Joe Bonnett, directed the squad as coaches.

Members of the team include Kevin Ruskin, Joe Murray, Gus Battaglia, Neil Carnes, Joe Bonnett and Dave Strang from Plymouth. Other members included Doug Abraham, Eric Shurin and Bill Baffy, all from the Livonia. Redford was represented by Dave Burke and Richard Kendall.

Representing Westland were Scott Hill and Lance Robson. Rounding out the squad were Chris Tamer of Dearborn Heights and Mike Helton of Romulus.

Top marathon runner to speak at area seminar

Bill Rodgers, three-time Boston marathon winner and America's premier long-distance runner, will visit the Detroit area at 7 p.m. March 24.

Rodgers, who set an American Marathon record in Boston last year with a time of 2:09:27, — the third fastest marathon in history — will be the featured speaker at a seminar on long-distance running sponsored by Total Runner, the Southfield running specialty store. Sharing the stage with him will be Ellison Goodall, one of the country's leading women runners.

The program will take place at Hamilton Place, a health club and fitness center located at 30333 Southfield Road in Southfield. The seminar is being co-sponsored by the Michigan

Runner magazine and Adidas.

RODGERS HAS become one of this country's most popular sports heroes in recent years. In five years, he has won the Boston crown three times. Last year Rodgers capped that achievement by winning the New York marathon for the fourth time with a finishing time of 2:11:42.

Ms. Goodall, 24, is a former world record-holder for the half-marathon and recently won the 1980 San Blas, Puerto Rico, half-marathon race. Last week, she competed in the invitational International Amateur Athletic Cross-Country Championship in Paris.

Charlie Blanchard, owner of Total Runner and a Boston-qualified marathoner himself, said he invited the pair to Detroit because of the growing interest in running in the area.

"Detroit was late in catching on to running, but we're catching up fast," Blanchard said. "This area is just reaching the crest as far as running is concerned. Literally thousands of Detroit-area people are out there running every day for fitness and for health, participation in competitive events has increased exponentially in recent years, and I don't see it stopping soon. Exposure to world-class athletes like Bill and Ellison can only add new impetus to that boom."

Tickets are available at Hamilton Place or Total Runner, 29207 Northwestern Highway in Southfield. For ticket information, call 646-8990.

John Hurley's dream of establishing a record for consecutive 600 series and having his name listed in the American Bowling Congress record book turned into a nightmare Wednesday morning at Westland Bowl.

With a string of 49, he was aiming at the record of 52 held by Ron Thompson of Columbus, Ohio and hoped to move a step closer when he took his turn in the morning men's league.

It was not to be, however. He opened with a 182 and followed with 209. Taking count he learned that he needed another 209.

But Lady Luck frowned on him and he had to be content with a 170 for 561. It was the first time he had missed 600 since the halfway stage of last season.

If it is any consolation, his 49 in a row gives him second place in the book of records.

BOB HITT, the former milkman from Livonia, is lending credence to the old saying that old bowlers never quit.

It has been some years since Bob bowled regularly in the all star leagues. But this past week, he bowled in the Wonderland Class and came up with a 694 series.

It wasn't good enough to pace the classic, but it proved that he still could bowl with the best.

While Bob was spilling the pins, Jim Anderson, a few lanes away, put together games of 206, 248 and 268 for 702.

Good as this score was, it only beat Paul Isken by four pins when he registered the most consistent series of the night with games of 234, 232 and 232.

ILDRED McCANDLESS hit the high point of her bowling career at Plymouth Bowl when she actually tried and succeeded in converting the 7-10 split. She looked at the pins then spun her ball toward the No.7 pin. It hit the target hard enough to cause it to slide over and topple the 10 pin.

With a 133 average, she was bowling in the Early Birds loop and had games of 150, 151 and 169 for 470.

IT TOOK PATIENCE but Cele Staffan finally bowled her first 500 series. In the Belles League at Woodland Lanes, she rolled games of 151, 162 and 187 for the goal she had been seeking.

In the other leagues, Floyd Radley, the oldest man in the loop, posted a 233 and Joann Halrek had a 204 in the Keglerettes.

Kim Handley, with a 135 average, had games of 210, 189 and 121.

In the junior house league, Jim Radford was top man with 569.

PAUL HORIE continued his high scoring in the Canton Classic with games of 243 and 232 in 656.

Behind him came Jerry Cole Jr. with 642, Lee Snow with 639, and three others — Mike Hayes, Jim Barka and Mark Hefner — tied at 605.

IN OTHER performances, Jake Tolanci had 617 in the St. Collett league at Plaza Lanes and Pat Ghi had a 631 in the Business and Industrial League. In the senior house league at Merri-Bowl, Larry Ostler was tops with 655 and Carl Hunt posted a 289.

Harry Totalian showed the way in the Vinco League at Garden Lanes with a 248 in 675, and Steve Kaninski topped the senior citizens with 593 and Fran Derkatch took top honors in the ladies classic at Westland with a series of 202, 202 and 199 for 603.

Mrs. Kevin Landacre moved into the spotlight at Bel-Aire Lanes with the best performance of her career. A 168-average bowler, she found the range for a 278 game in a 655 series.

Meanwhile, two more members were added to the Bel-Aire 700 club.

Both new members broke the 700 barrier in the Classic. Last week, Dan Kinjorski qualified when he had a 257 in 714 and last Thursday night Ivan Craycraft gained his entry by linking games of 267, 224 and 212 for a 703.

Each class is limited. All interested participants should register early. Registration will be held at the Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 South Canton Center Road. For more information call 397-1000.

Lions play hoop benefit

The Civitan Club of Westland is sponsoring a benefit basketball game between the Westland Sparks wheelchair team and the Detroit Lions at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 25 at Wayne Memorial High School.

The Sparks, six-time national champs, will take on the Lions, who have never played in wheelchairs before.

Ticket prices for the game are $2.50 for adults, $1.25 for students and 75 cents for senior citizens. Wheelchair patrons will be admitted free.

Tickets can be purchased in advance by contacting Mike Mushett, Vice President of the Sparks at 722-7620, or by calling Jerry Smith of the Westland Civitans at 326-3400. Tickets will also be available through the junior and senior high schools in Wayne-Westland beginning March 21. The doors will open for public sale the night of the game starting at 6:30 p.m. This is the 15th season that the Detroit Lions will be involved in playing a benefit game on behalf of various local charities and organizations.

This year's team consists of Lior players Al "Bubba" Baker, Dexter Bussey, Gary Danielson, David Hill, James Hunter, Rick Kane, Jeff Komlo, Ed O'Neil, Freddie Scott and Charlie Weaver.

The Lions will be on hand to participate in an autograph and photo sessions for the fans prior to the game. Autograph gifts, furnished by the Lions, will also be given away during halftime.

Proceeds from the game will go to the support of the club's numerous community programs, according to President Ron Kulas.

The Civitan Club of Westland is dedicated to providing various services to the City of Westland.

Kelliher lifts Nazareth

Kevin Kelliher, a 1979 graduate of Plymouth Salem, is one of 10 letter winners this season for the Nazareth College basketball squad.

The freshman forward helped Nazareth to a 14-6 overall mark with 179 points for a 8.9 average to rank fourth on the squad. He also averaged three rebounds and three assists per game.

Kelliher was an All-Observer third team choice last year for the Rocks. He is the son of Tom and Shirley Kelliher, 45232 Woodleigh Court, Plymouth.

Rice hangs on to beat Southfield

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

You could write the same script over and over and over again.

Birmingham Brother Rice's basketball team battles closely, but faces defeat for the first three quarters. But in the end, a clutch free throw here, or a timely pass there and the Warriors finish with another victory.

It happened against Bloomfield Hills Lahser, it happened in the first Detroit Catholic Central game, it happened against Detroit East Catholic.

And, in the midst of state tournament play, that same script was rewritten, as the steady but not awesome Warriors reached the quarterfinal round with a hard-earned 60-57 victory over spirited Southfield High Friday night before 2,700 fans at Southfield-Lathrup.

Rice, 20-5 overall, now takes its Birmingham Seaholm District and Southfield-Lathrup Regional crowns into Wednesday's quarterfinal game against once-beaten Utica Eisenhower. The quarterfinal battle starts at 8 p.m. at U-D's Calihan Hall.

IT WAS A typical Rice victory. The Warriors never had the lead in the first half, although the score was tied 29-29 at the intermission. They held the lead only twice in the early moments of the third quarter, as the Blue Jays (19-6) continued to control the game's tempo with its quick transition game, holding a one-point lead, 45-44, going into the final eight minutes of action.

Then came the knockout punch. Brian Brennan, who later fouled out along with sophomore teammate Paul Jokisch, hit a jumper 54 seconds into the quarter and Rice never trailed after that.

The Warriors immediately went into a delay game, slowing down the pace, controlling the tempo and converting eight of 10 free throws down the stretch.

"I didn't want to take the chance. . . Southfield is the type of team that can blow us out," Rice coach Bill Norton said about going to the delay so early in the quarter.

"Paul Jokisch wasn't shooting as well as he normally does, so I felt it would be a better offense, making the free throws or getting shots off the four corners (offense). We aren't that good of a shooting team."

"I think we played their (the Warriors) game too much," Southfield coach Greg Sliwka. "We slowed it down a little too much, but, again, their size — their guards pressured ours and we had to shoot over their big guys."

"They are a well-conditioned ball club, and they play that spread well."

BROTHER RICE also followed its usual script in the scoring column, as a balanced, team attack highlighted the victory.

Rob Manilla led the Rice scorers with 12 points. Sophomore John Shaskey, a 6-10 center added 11, while Brennan, Tom O'Leary, Judd Hart and Paul Jokisch scored eight points each.

It was the play of Manilla and eighth-man, O'Leary, in particular, which led the fourth-quarter surge, saving Norton from additional gray hair when Brennan and Jokisch fouled out.

Manilla scored six points in the fourth quarter and held Blue Jay leading scorer Vince Bean at bay in the closing minutes. The 6-4 forward also finished the game with eight assists and three rebounds.

O'Leary came in and kept Southfield's Dave Sucher off the boards in the last quarter, while grabbing six rebounds himself.

Sucher still finished with 17 rebounds — eight offensive and nine defensive — along with 14 points. Bean and teammate John Piper, a senior co-captain, led all scorers with 17 each.

"I wasn't really worried about our offense," Norton said. "We were getting our shots, it was a matter of making them. I was really worried about our defense because of Sucher."

"He got motivated and he started playing with the bigger people," Sliwka said about the improved Sucher. "He was a little hesitant at the beginning of the year. He has tremendous moves. I'm really proud of him, and the ways he's played."

SHASKEY ALSO PLAYED an instrumental part in the Warrior victory with his play in the second quarter. Shaskey came off the bench when Jokisch got his third personal foul only 1:09 into the second period and dominated the boards the rest of the half.

He scored nine of his 11 points in that quarter — seven from the free throw line — leading Rice to the halftime tie.

Southfield led from the start, taking a 16-11 first-quarter lead and extending it to 22-14 early in the second quarter before the Warrior comeback.

The Southeastern Michigan Association co-champions continued to hold the uphinder in the third quarter behind Sucher's play.

Southfield outrebounded Rice 35-34. Jokisch pulled down 11 and Shaskey had seven for the winners.

Rice hit 21 of 52 field goals for 40 percent, but made 18 of 26 free throws. The Blue Jays scored three more buckets, hitting 24 of 59 shots for 41 percent. They hit only nine of 16 free throws.

Delay may be allowed in hospital bed cutback

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

The state may soon receive a revised plan and a plea for more time from area hospital officials before a planned reduction of excess hospital bedding in southeastern Michigan.

That request will follow in the wake of complaints from representatives of area hospitals affected by the plan.

First to suggest the moratorium or time extension at a public hearing Friday was Dr. James Fryfogle, a former member of the so-called debedding commission and chairman of the seven county Health Planning Commission which advises the CHPC.

"I want you to use your influence to stop the clock," Dr. Fryfogle told the commission. "As it is today, it (the plan) is a mess."

The plan is mandated by a state act which calls for a reduction in hospital beds to hold down the rising cost of health care.

Deadline is March 31 for the Comprehensive Health Planning Council (CHPC) of Southeast Michigan, which is responsible for developing the plan to submit it to the state.

CHPC's board of directors will vote on suggested revisions to the original plan on March 26 (see chart).

The plan originally was submitted to the state last December. The CHPC was allowed a time extension to revise the plan, however, after outraged health care providers and consumers protested the plan at a public hearing earlier that month.

NOW COMMENTS from Friday's public hearing on the revised plan are expected to prompt a request for another time extension, a moratorium or repeal of the state act itself.

In calling for the moratorium, Dr. Fryfogle said that the only purpose of his group is "to serve the CHPC."

Fryfogle said that doctors in his group object to the plan, and he warned that the Michigan State Medical Society is about to take action opposing the plan.

That would place representatives of all physicians in the state on record in

A special commission has been charged with developing a plan to stem the rising cost of health care by reducing the number of excess beds in area hospitals.

In developing that plan, the debedding commission divided the southeastern Michigan area in regional sub-areas. Hospitals in those areas were ranked under a controversial scale and placed in one of three groups, with one being the lowest and three the highest in meeting guidelines on the scale.

The following chart shows how hospitals in the area you live were ranked. The chart shows the group in which they were placed, their occupancy rates, an adjusted bed capacity after "excess" beds are eliminated, the percentage of beds to be eliminated from current capacity and the corresponding number of beds to be eliminated.

Hospital	Grp.	Occ.		Reduction required	Beds
		Rate	Cap.	%
Annapolis	II	91	292	17.6	52
Garden City Osteopathic	II	82	360	17.6	63
Metropolitan West	—	46	—	—	—
St. Mary-Livonia	II	92	304	17.6	54
Wayne County General	II	59	388	17.6	68

opposition to the plan.

Dr. Fryfogle called the plan inadequate and inequitable.

"I'm talking as a planner. I'm distressed when I think of how hard the CHPC has worked . . . I shudder when I think that you have to push this plan under a time gun when everyone is against it," he explained.

"I propose an alternate. This (moratorium) gets CHPC out from under the gun when it has only two weeks left," he continued. "I want the aroused community to make a regional plan."

"There's no question everyone is talking about it. Now we can logically come up with a plan," he said.

Agreeing with the need for more time is Della Goodwin, president of the CHPC.

"If we just had more time — I feel the need and I believe the Legislature believes we need more time," said Ms. Goodwin. "It's unfortunate that we are in mid-stream. We are a long way from a mutual understanding."

"I would stop short of a moratorium," she cautioned. "The time could get to be lengthy and go on without ever reducing beds."

Ms. Goodwin said she thinks the CHPC has "shown sufficient progress" in making changes in the plan during the last six weeks that would justify an extension.

"More time would allow us to benefit from what we've learned, and we've learned a lot about planning," she added.

"I still believe it's necessary to reduce beds, but I'm convinced that we need to take another look at what criteria should be used to evaluate hospitals," Ms. Goodwin said. "The commission has heard things that it's had no time to contemplate."

In supporting the revised plan, Paul Hubbard, vice president of New Detroit Inc., said the revisions "go along way to meet" community concerns.

He also called for a commitment from hospitals and their staffs to make the plan work, a cross-section of community leadership to plan for consolidation, and a pledge from CHPC that "all pieces are in place" before hospitals are closed or consolidated.

WHILE MOST speakers at the hearing affirmed the need to cut unused beds, one group representative objected to the concept. Dr. Martin Rosenfeld, chairman of the Michigan Association of Community Hospitals, argued that reducing the number of a beds in a hospital would actually increase the cost of health care delivery.

The community hospital group, which includes St. Mary's in Livonia, will sponsor its own hearing on the plan at 7:30 p.m. March 25 at the hospital, on Five Mile at Levan in Livonia.

"I'm not criticizing the commission. It had guidelines under which it had to work," he said. "The law (state act) must be repealed."

"We're not insensitive to rising costs, but let's put the responsibility where it belongs on you and I, the users," he added. "The more we demand care the more hospitals will respond to that demand."

"If you cut demand, you cut costs," he said.

Echoing Dr. Rosenfeld's objection to cutting beds was Tom Luchi who represented the Detroit Medical Society. In calling for "thoughtful revisions to the plan," Luchi said asking hospitals to cut beds is like telling car makers to "eliminate back seats to ensure a decline in pregnancies."

ALSO OBJECTING to the plan were numerous representatives of osteopathic physicians and hospitals, such as Bostford in Farmington and Garden City Osteopathic.

A representative of the Michigan Osteopathic Hospital Association criticized what he called "the serious disparity" in bed reductions demanded of osteopathic versus allopathic hospitals.

He said that osteopathic hospitals were required to eliminate 22 percent of the beds while allopathic hospitals were required to make only 14 percent reductions.

He said that was unfair because there are fewer osteopathic hospital beds than allopathic ones, adding that the move would seriously affect the training of osteopathic physicians in the state, most of whom practice primary care.

The debedding plan would "destroy" emergency medical service, according to Warren Vernier, who represented the southeastern Michigan fire chiefs association. Vernier said the plan would lengthen the time it takes to get a victim to a trauma hospital.

"Ambulances are diverted to different hospitals en route on an increasing basis because there is no room. You cannot realize the trauma to a patient and to the person responsible for that life when that happens," he explained. "Eighty to 85 percent of emergency medical delivery systems is based on quick response . . . We've worked 30 years to perfect this."

Learning about the states

Thirty-one states went on display this week at Eriksson Elementary School.

Booths on the states were prepared by students after conducting research in class and while on break.

Because of all the information they obtained, the students now refer to themselves as a junior chamber of commerce.

The booths and presentations also made an impression on the Plymouth VFW, which went out to the school this week to present class members an American flag in recognition of their time and talents.

The study started in January when James DeKiere's fourth and fifth graders started a social studies unit. They decided that each student would pick a state of their choice and do a report on it.

All 31 students picked a particular state, either because they had vacationed there, had once lived there or had relatives living there.

Information was gathered by writing to tourist bureaus, chambers of commerce and to friends or relatives. The writing part of the project was started at the end of January.

BECAUSE THE students are on Track C of the Extended School Year calendar, they went on break in February and continued compiling data during this time. Upon returning to school, many students collected additional information with the help of the school librarian, Jean Lawrence.

In all, each student invested a minimum of 10 hours drawing and coloring maps, planning and building his display and arranging his report.

The reports included history of the state, the present governor, main industry, capital city, state bird, state flower, state animal, state insect, state nicknames, state songs, flags and seals and tourist attractions.

The displays were also viewed by parents as well, and those who inspected them were treated to a three-minute oral presentation from each student.

STUDENTS INVOLVED, and the states they selected, were: Mike Kosh, Georgia; Tom Pierz, New York; Keith Larson, Florida; Bill Mannion, North Carolina; Marci McComas, Kansas; Brett Bennett, Kentucky; Sue Pletzer, Tennessee; Don Siddall, Hawaii; Jenny Bicknell, New Mexico; Lisa Theeck, Oregon; Derick Adkins, Delaware; Christine Zavagnin, Virginia; Colleen Campbell, Ohio; Marie Blendea, Michigan;

Also: Kerri Flynn, California; Kim Davis, Colorado; Adam Mashike, Alaska; Jenny Cordon, Nevada; Shaun Scott, Pennsylvania; Brent Kinzel, Illinois; Jeff Tsacoumangas, Massachusetts; Cherry Weaver, West Virginia; Nicky Vassallo, New Jersey; James Swiecki, Nebraska; Gail Carter, Wisconsin; Jon Grenillo, District of Columbia; Shannon Martin, Maine; Claudine Kelchak, Arizona; Romolo Maura, Rhode Island; Patti Condon, Texas, and Gary Golchuk, Mississippi.

CAN DR. GRASSAM HELP?

READ WHAT PATIENTS SAY!

I Had to Make my Beds on my Hands and Knees

I read about chiropractic in the newspapers. I was in pain. My husband said I should give it a try, but I was afraid.

Well my condition finally forced me to seek help. I decided I had suffered too long.

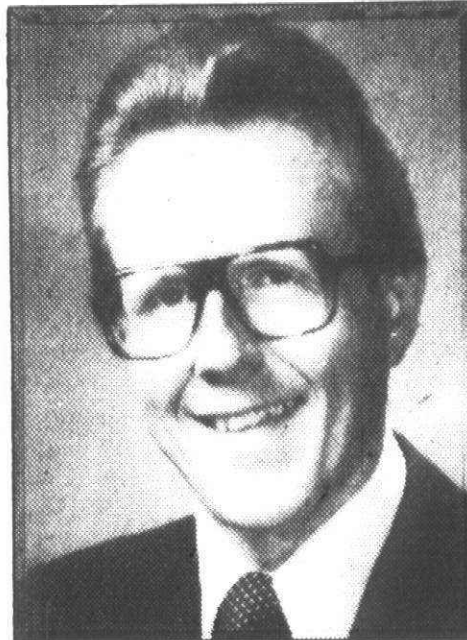

When I first came to Dr. Grassam I had hurt my back. I could hardly crawl up on the table. I had to make my beds on my hands and knees.

Within one week I was doing all of the things I had been doing previously.

Now if I have a problem I go straight to Dr. Grassam and within days I am feeling much better.

I am happy to recommend chiropractic to everyone I meet who is in pain.

*Thank-you!

SUPER LENTEN SUPPERS

Today's recipes aren't limited to families who carry on the "meatless meals on Friday" tradition during Lent. Everyone looking for flavorful ways to feed a family can combine the incredible egg and canned salmon for terrific and nutritional meals.

With a carton or two of eggs in your refrigerator and canned salmon on the shelf, you can create marvelous meatless meals. These relatively low-calorie foods are packed with protein, vitamins and minerals. And egg and salmon dishes are easy to prepare quickly. A boon to the busy chef.

The easy salmon quiche can be a sensational supper for the family or a company brunch or lunch. The omelet filled with salmon and topped with cucumber sauce is ideal for the family whose members have to eat at different times or when preparation time is of the essence. The super salmon strata can be prepared ahead of time.

The salmon egg loaf is as easy to prepare as an ordinary meat loaf and the souffle is really quite spectacular. The salmon provides the flavor while the eggs add excitement.

To hard-cook eggs, put eggs in a single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least one inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring to just boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand covered in hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (About 3 minutes less for smaller.)

Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled.

The yolks will not turn green and they are easier to remove from the shell more easily. Use this method for the ones you are going to dye for Easter, too.

EASY SALMON QUICHE

6 servings

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1 (9 inch) pie shell*, unbaked | 3/4 teaspoon celery salt |
| 6 eggs, beaten | 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard |
| 1 can (7 1/4 oz.) salmon | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |
| Milk | Watercress or parsley, |
| 1 tablespoon lemon juice | optional |
| 2 teaspoons instant minced onion | |

Brush pie shell with small amount of the beaten eggs. Prick bottom and sides with fork. If using a pie plate, bake shell in preheated 425°F. oven until golden brown, about 5 minutes. If using a metal pie pan, bake shell at 450°F. Cool on wire rack. Reduce oven temperature to 350°F. for pie plate, 375°F. for metal pie pan.

Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid in a measuring cup. Add enough milk to make 1-1/2 cups. Combine with beaten eggs and seasonings. Sprinkle salmon in pie shell. Pour in egg-milk mixture. Bake in preheated oven 35 to 40 minutes or until knife inserted off center comes out clean. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving. Garnish with watercress or parsley.

*You may use a thawed, frozen deep-dish pie shell. Pre-bake shell in preheated 425°F. oven. Bake quiche at 375°F.

SALMON OMELETS WITH CUCUMBER SAUCE

4 servings

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1/2 cup (4 oz.) dairy sour cream | 8 eggs |
| 1/2 cup chopped peeled cucumber | 1/2 cup water |
| 1 tablespoon minced green onions | 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| with tops | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |
| 1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed | 1/4 cup butter, divided |
| 1 can (7 1/4 oz.) salmon, undrained | Fresh dill weed, |
| and flaked | optional |

Combine sour cream, cucumber, onion and dill weed. Cover and refrigerate while preparing omelets. In a small saucepan over medium heat, heat salmon and keep hot. Mix eggs, water, salt and pepper with fork. For each omelet: Heat 1 tablespoon butter in 8-inch omelet pan over medium-high heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in 1/2 cup egg mixture. Mixture should set at edges at once. With pancake turner turned over, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt pan as necessary so uncooked eggs can flow. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture in motion and sliding freely. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, fill with about 1/4 cup hot salmon. With pancake turner, fold in half or roll, turning out onto plate with a quick flip of the wrist. Keep warm while preparing remaining omelets. Top each omelet with about 1/4 cup chilled cucumber sauce. Garnish with fresh dill, if desired.

SKY-HIGH SALMON SOUFFLE

- | | |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------|
| Butter | 2 tablespoons grated |
| Grated Parmesan cheese | Parmesan cheese |
| 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed cream | 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel |
| of onion soup, undiluted | 6 eggs, separated |
| 1 can (7 1/4 oz.) salmon, | 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar |
| well-drained and flaked | |

Butter bottom and sides of 2-quart souffle dish or casserole. Dust with Parmesan cheese. In medium saucepan, combine soup, salmon, 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese and lemon peel. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture is hot. Remove from heat.

In small mixing bowl, beat egg yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-colored, about 5 minutes. Wash and dry beaters. Blend a small amount of hot salmon mixture into yolks, then stir warmed yolk mixture into salmon mixture.

In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar at high speed until stiff but not dry, just until whites no longer slip when bowl is tilted. Gently but thoroughly fold yolk mixture into whites. Carefully pour into prepared dish. For a "top hat", hold a spoon upright and circle mixture to make ring about 1 inch from side of dish and 1 inch deep.

Bake in a preheated 350°F. oven until puffy, delicately browned and souffle shakes slightly when oven rack is gently moved back and forth, 35 to 40 minutes. Serve immediately.

SUPER SALMON STRATA

8 servings

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1 can (15 1/2 oz.) salmon | 6 eggs, beaten |
| 14 slices cocktail rye bread | 1 teaspoon lemon juice |
| 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Swiss | 3/4 teaspoon salt |
| cheese | 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard |
| 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped | 1-8 teaspoon hot pepper |
| broccoli, thawed and drained | sauce |
| Milk | |

Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid in a measuring cup. Cut bread slices into triangles or halves. Grease a 2-quart baking dish and cover bottom with half the bread slices. Top with 1/3 of the cheese, then all of the salmon and broccoli and 1/2 of the remaining cheese. Arrange remaining bread triangles over top. Add enough milk to reserved salmon liquid to make 1-1/2 cups. Combine with beaten eggs and seasonings. Pour egg mixture over salmon-broccoli mixture. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate at least 1 hour or overnight. Uncover and bake in preheated 325°F. oven 45 minutes. Top with remaining cheese and return to oven for 15 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving.

SALMON EGG LOAF

- | | |
|---------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1 can (15 1/2 oz.) salmon | 1 tablespoon instant minced onion |
| 3 eggs, beaten | 1 tablespoon snipped parsley |
| 2 cups soft bread crumbs | 1 tablespoon lemon juice |
| 1/4 cup chopped pimiento- | 3 hard-cooked eggs* |
| stuffed green olives | Egg-Parsley Sauce |

Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid in a measuring cup for Egg-Parsley Sauce. In medium bowl, combine salmon with beaten eggs, crumbs, olives, onion, parsley and lemon juice. Spread 1/3 mixture in 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch well-greased loaf pan. Place hard-cooked eggs end-to-end on top of mixture, pressing lightly. Gently but firmly pat remaining salmon mixture over and around eggs. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven 35 to 40 minutes. Unmold to serve. Top with Egg-Parsley Sauce.

EGG-PARSLEY SAUCE

(about 1 1/2 cups)

- | | |
|------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 2 tablespoons butter | 1 egg, beaten |
| 2 tablespoons flour | 2 tablespoons snipped parsley |
| Reserved salmon liquid | 2 tablespoons lemon juice |
| Chicken broth | |

In small saucepan, melt butter. Blend in flour. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until smooth and bubbly. Add enough chicken broth to reserved salmon liquid to make 1-1/3 cups. Stir into flour mixture. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Blend small amount of hot sauce into beaten egg, then stir egg into sauce. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, 1 minute. Stir in parsley and lemon juice.

The Warming Oven by Emily Watson

We've had a rash of birthdays in the past few weeks, and I have never been more grateful for cousin Jean Keith's frosting recipe.

First it was Pete Trudell, followed by son, Don; daughter-in-law, Becky; and last weekend, Doreen Jackson, a friend. On each occasion, there was no time to bake a cake. The beauty of Jean's recipe is that you can start with a store-bought angel food cake.

The creamy yellow frosting has a spring-like air that can be accented by a small bouquet of flowers in its center. For Pete's, we used flowers; for Don's, it was a single yellow silk rose with some greenery and candles; for Becky's, it was candles; and for Doreen's, a single tall candle.

For Easter, it could be daffodils and, if you wish, a circle of coconut and jelly beans around the base. The cake is light and the frosting is not overly sweet.

JEAN'S FROSTING

- 1 can crushed pineapple
- 1 pkg. vanilla pie or pudding mix
- 1 carton dairy whip
- 1 angel food cake

First, an explanation about sizes of the can of crushed pineapple and the carton of whip. If it's a small angel food, get a small can of pineapple and a small carton of the whip. I always use the same size package of pudding mix, the size that requires cooking with two cups of milk. Don't use the larger family size. And in this recipe, you do not use milk.

Empty crushed pineapple, juice and all into a saucepan. Stir in the package of pudding mix and cook, stirring, until mixture is clear and thickened. Cool.

And while it is cooling, slice the cake into three layers. A bread knife is best for this.

Fold the whip into the cooled pineapple mixture. Use frosting, generously, as a filling between layers then on top, side, and center hole. It's nice to have all that frosting to work with and it is very manageable.

Store in a cool place until served. The frosting does stand up well, and the cake is a perfectly presentable centerpiece.

MY APOLOGIES to all the lovely people who called about the Banana Tea Cake recipe. How the one cup of milk became 1/2 teaspoon of salt in the list of ingredients, I will never know.

Fortunately, readers realized it was a mistake and called before they made it.

And to the gentleman who was searching for crab roe: I hope you found them. I have asked about them and no one could come up with a source.

It seems more and more men are cooking and they're not just scrambling eggs. They are really into it.

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

Anatomy of a torte — the chemistry of pastry making

Clad in simple, white bakers' smocks, Yvonne Gill and Chef Dennis stood in stark contrast to the sybaritic displays of pastries lining the shelf behind them. For the next two hours, the proprietor of Tweeny's Cafe, Birmingham, and her assistant presented what amounted to an anatomy of a torte, Part I.

The second of a four-part seminar at Hudson's Oakland store, this class was billed as "Pastry I: A repertoire of crusts and layers that will enable you to invent desserts ad infinitum."

Using a lecture-demonstration format, Ms. Gill concentrated on the basic techniques and even some of the chemistry involved in pastry-making.

In demonstrating the use of air as a raising agent, the two chefs prepared three varieties of meringue layers. As a first step, Chef Dennis separated the eggs in an impressive display of manual dexterity. Cracking the egg with one hand, he deposited the contents into his other hand, allowing the whites to run between his slightly spread fingers as he gently jiggled the yolk.

THE NEXT STEP consisted of a parallel demonstration in which Ms. Gill whipped egg whites in a large copper bowl, finishing the task at the same time as Chef Dennis, who used an electric mixer.

The advantage of hand-mixing, which I had always thought to be an exercise in masochism, was explained to be the slower incorporation of air, resulting in smaller, tighter air bubbles which provide greater stability in the finished product. An electric mixer, by contrast, incorporates air quickly, resulting in larger air pockets and a product that will deflate more quickly. This can be minimized by running the mixer at medium speed for a few moments before switching to a high speed.

Regarding the advantage of a copper bowl in beating egg whites, Ms. Gill estimated that it might take her "about two seconds" longer if she used a stainless steel bowl.

Tilting the bowl was recommended as a test of whether the proper consistency has been achieved. Underbeaten or overbeaten whites will slide out while those correctly beaten will remain in the bowl. In cooking school, students perform this test with the bowls over their heads.

THE SECOND half of the parallel demonstration ended in disaster as Ms. Gill's "roughly-handled, over-mixed" batter behaved as well as her partner's "correct" version. Terming it, "the least successful demonstration I have ever done," she speculated that years of conditioning had rendered her incapable of truly mishandling the ingredients.

The Nut Layer made in class contained almonds, but it was pointed out that hazelnuts, walnuts or pecans could be substituted. The latter two types of nuts tend to be more oily, however, and a pinch of baking powder might be needed to dry them out. Any of the nuts might require the addition of a little flour for drying if ground in a food processor, which tends to release the oils. A heavy-duty grinder was recommended as being better suited for the task.

The recipe for Grated Chocolate Layer came about when a man from Vienna suggested the use of grated chocolate in preparing a Sachertorte rather than the usual melted. The resultant, lighter cake is what Ms. Gill proudly refers to as "Yvonne's Sachertorte," a name which she does not officially apply to her creation in order to avoid disputes about the authenticity of her version.

THE CHOCOLATE does take a long time to distribute in this batter, requiring about 10 minutes of beating at medium speed in an electric mixer. You can't overbeat this one.

In making the Chocolate Meringue Layer, the chefs re-emphasized how important it is that all ingredients be evenly distributed. In this case, the cocoa and sugar must be thoroughly combined before being added to the other ingredients.

It was suggested that all three of these layers be combined in creating tortes. The possibilities for spectacular desserts are dizzying when these layers are combined with any one or combinations of suggested fillings — whipped cream, buttercream, praline, chocolate mousses, raspberry filling, chestnut cream, fresh strawberries.

NUT LAYER

12 eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups sugar
Zest of 2 lemons, grated
3 cups finely-ground almonds

Beat egg yolks until light and lemon-colored. Gradually beat in sugar. Fold in grated lemon rind. In separate bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks. Pile half of egg whites onto yolk mixture and sprinkle with half of the almonds. Fold mixture. Repeat with last part of whites and almonds. Turn batter into 2 buttered and flour 9-inch pans. Bake in 375 degree oven for 20 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 350 and continue baking 25 to 30 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly.

late is well blended. Sift flour and baking powder together. Beat egg whites until firm and shiny. Fold half of the egg whites sprinkled with flour and baking powder into the chocolate mixture; then fold in remaining egg whites. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Divide batter evenly between two buttered and sugared 9-inch cake pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean.

CHOCOLATE MERINGUE LAYER

3 1/4 tbsp. cocoa
1 cup powdered sugar
5 egg whites
2/3 cup granulated sugar

Sift together cocoa and powdered sugar. In a separate bowl, beat egg whites until three-quarters stiff, then add some sugar, then all. Fold in sugar and cocoa. Butter floured parchment. Bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour to 1 hour 10 minutes. Yields 3 layers.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

She came up with the perfect California quiche

Ten years ago, Mary Ellen House turned a lifelong interest in good food into a part-time catering business.

"My daughters were still quite young then," she said, "and I wasn't willing to leave them to the extent necessary to build a full-time business."

Now, however, she's expanding Mary's Pantree. The last week in January, she began marketing frozen quiches. Bud Phelps put six of them into his store, Long Lake Market at Long Lake and Telegraph, Bloomfield Hills.

His customers know a good thing when they taste it and in two months his quiche order has grown to three dozen a week. Two unusual flavors, spinach with dill and a Mexican food lovers favorite, California quiche (see below) are frequently requested.

"Food is a passion with me," Mary said, describing as "fun" the experimentation necessary to find just the right amounts of ingredients for a perfect California quiche.

A couple of weeks ago, Mary introduced her special homemade chocolate chip, oatmeal raisin and butter cookies. Another success. She's now thinking of opening her own store.

Mary's first cooking instructor was her mother, an excellent baker, but her own interest led her to develop expertise in the kitchen. Now she uses that expertise toward creating interesting and different dishes for her customers, such as this unusual quiche.

I tried this recipe using a frozen pie shell, which turned out to be a mistake as the crust was, well, uninteresting is the kindest description that comes to mind.

CALIFORNIA QUICHE

(6 servings)

2 cups grated Monterey Jack cheese
1/2 lb. lean bacon, crisply cooked, well drained and crumbled
1 4-oz. can of mild diced green chilies, well drained

3 - 4 green onions, thinly sliced
1 1/2 cups half and half
4 eggs, medium
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. chili powder
1 9-inch deep dish pie shell (2-inches deep)

PIE SHELL

1 1/2 cups flour 1/2 cup shortening

Carrots with rice

This casserole is a great accompaniment with roast pork. Just add a tossed salad and dinner entertainment is made easy.

WHITE AND WILD RICE WITH CARROTS

2 cups sliced raw carrots
2 cups water
1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
1 pkg. (6 3/4 oz.) long grain and wild rice mix

Cook carrots in saucepan with water until tender, about 8 to 10 minutes. Drain, reserving liquid. Place soup in saucepan. Pour reserved liquid into empty soup can and add additional water, if necessary, to fill.

Add measured liquid and contents of seasoning packet to soup in saucepan. Bring to a full boil. Add rice and carrots. Remove from heat; cover and let stand 15 minutes. Makes 4 3/4 cups or 6 servings.

1/2 tsp. salt 4 to 5 tbsp. water
Combine flour and salt, add shortening, cut in with pastry blender until mixture resembles small peas. Add water and gather mixture together into a ball. Roll out on pastry cloth, to fit pan, gently ease into pie plate, do not stretch. Flute edge and bake in 450-degree oven for five minutes. Do not prick pie shell.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

JIM ISBISTER says "hello" to all his good friends in this area. Bearer of the greetings is Jack Bologna of Plymouth. Jack was in Washington, D.C. on business — training, career planning and guidance for personnel in the office of the State Department.

When it was time to kick off the series, Jack was introduced by former Plymouth resident, Jim Isbister. Jim is director of management for the International Communication Agency in Washington.

He is the son of Clara Isbister and the late Russell Isbister, former superintendent of schools for Plymouth and Canton. Isbister Elementary School was named after him, as was the Isbister Collection of student art works.

JULIE ERVIN of Canton was one of the wives honored recently at a wives' appreciation dinner. She told us all about it.

by
ELLIE GRAHAM

The men of People's Church of Canton planned the event which took place in a sister church, Good Shepherd Reformed Church of Westland.

"The wives were each presented with a pink carnation; a piano player provided lyrical mood music for the evening and the meal, which was totally prepared by the men, was delicious," reported Julie.

Appetizers of shrimp cocktail and sauteed mushrooms were prepared by Tom Meadows and Chuck Rowell. Jerry Hazel provided the punch.

Larry Kovacs and Jim Tromeur tossed a crisp green salad. Ed Ervin and Mike Sprecher prepared the entree — chicken cordon bleu. Tom Dykstra was in charge of readying the broccoli. Dessert, prepared by Randy Barr and Jerry Hazel, was ice cream sundaes with all the trimmings.

There were a few tears and some chuckles as each husband gave a short testimonial explaining why he appreciated his wife.

While the women had an after-dinner chat, the kitchen was cleaned up and the dishes washed by Dan Schripsema, Jim Tromeur, Phil West, Hugh Trimble and the Rev. Harvey Heneveld, pastor of People's Church.

"This was the part of the evening many of the wives enjoyed most," said Julie.

The pampered (for the evening) wives were Kathy Barr, Louise Dykstra, Julie, JoAnn Hazel, Elaine Heneveld, Pat Meadows, Carla Rowell, Bonnie Schripsema, Marty Sprecher, Ruthann Tromeur, Norma West and Rose Trimble. Other guests were the Rev. and Mrs. Kel Kronmeyer, pastor of Good Shepherd, and Paul Hanson, ministerial intern at People's Church, and his wife, Ruth.

HIGH SCORING honors at the Thursday afternoon party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center last Thursday went to Ruth Sherman and Elsie Jeffery.

SEVERAL AREA craftspersons are participating in the Holy Names Academy Springfest. The Professional demonstrating art and craft show will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 29, at the academy, 23601 Ann Arbor Trail, Dearborn Heights.

Master pewterer John Q. Groot, Walsh and Jablonski, tinsmiths; Barbara Grant who makes acrylic butterflies; and Kathleen DeMara, whose specialty is wheat weaving, will represent Plymouth. Molly Pemberton of Canton will be there with her wood carvings.

Admission will be 50 cents with children under 12 and senior citizens admitted free. There is plenty of free parking and lunch and refreshments will be available.

Seventy-five artists and craftspeople will exhibit and demonstrate their crafts during the day.

AND OVER AT Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, there is a textile show which will be in the lobby of the library (Center of Educational Resources) through March 28.

The textile works are those of EMU Professor Emeritus Dorothy Lamming and 11 of her former students. Two of the exhibitors are Kathryn Touhey and Jessie Hudson, former art teachers in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Most of the textile pieces are for sale. Price lists are available at the library assistance desk in the lobby or at the library's main office. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

MOTHERS OF TWINS, triplets and quads (and their husbands) from all over the state of Michigan will be gathering the weekend of May 2-3 at the Michigan Inn, Southfield.

The occasion will be the 16th annual convention of the Michigan Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs, Inc.

Reservations for the conventions should be made by April 3. Persons wishing more information can call the local club president, Barbara Hahn, 453-0671.

The organization assists in medical research, helps organize new clubs, strengthens the bond of fellowship between mothers of multiple births, and tries to solve the unusual problems of multiple births within families. Information is exchanged pertaining to the rearing, development and encouragement of individuality of twins, as it is forthcoming from parents, doctors, educators and other sources.

Canton Observer Suburban Life

Double whammy of twindom is well worth it

Observer staff writer Sherry Kahan had a special interest in this assignment. She is the mother of twins, Josh and Jeff, who recently graduated from Livonia Franklin High School. And this week, she is on vacation helping daughter Janet begin life with twins Sylvia and Aaron, born March 3.

By SHERRY KAHAN

The twins lie there cheek by jowl during those prenatal months, treating their mother's abdominal area like a football field. End around runs at midnight; a kick for an extra point at morning coffee.

Then they make their big entrance. The minutes between their arrival should be noted carefully. They will be important later on, especially to the one who came first.

Now they are the impersonal twins no longer. They acquire names, and immediately set about establishing identities of their own. Before long they are turning the living room into a football field or Doll City. Cheeks and jowls are smeared with cereal or peanut butter.

"I was thrilled to death when I heard I was going to have twins," said Jean Stanchina of Redford Township recalling an event that occurred many years ago. Her Denise and Debbie are now 18-year-old students at Redford Union High School.

"I was shocked, but excited," said Eileen Simon of Canton Township, who heard about her twins' impending arrival more recently. David and Kristen are 2½ months old.

"There was so much action I thought something was up," laughed Sandy Taylor of Garden City, whose Brian and David are 8. "I thought it was great. I always wanted to have twins. I still like it."

But the double whammy of twindom fell on Sudonnia Groff of Westland. "I didn't know I was having twins until they were delivered," she said. "I can't even tell you how surprised I was. I was as surprised as the doctor."

NONE OF THE women thought raising twins was easy. But they were happy to contribute useful suggestions that might make dealing with twins easier for others. In their discussions they talked about breast-feeding twins, whether help was needed, the equipment they found useful, the advisability of having visitors and how twins like to be treated.

All are experts, because of their experiences. But like many experts, they sometimes disagree.

In addition to the three already mentioned, there were words of wisdom from Pam Touhey of Plymouth, Liz Mills of Livonia and former Westland resident Kathy Simpson, mother of triplets and president of the Western Wayne County Mother of Twins Club.

That group meets at 8 p.m. the third Monday of each month in Holy Cross Evangelical Lutheran Church, 30650 Six Mile, Livonia.

Mrs. Groff has found the organization a source of twin equipment, information and support.

"The people are more than willing to help you," she said, adding that one mother of twins had given her information that solved a diaper rash problem.

"They have outings and conventions," she said. "I think it's great."

Others who want to reach the club can call Mrs. Simpson at 534-7573.

SANDY TAYLOR had some good basic advice for mothers of twins.

"Relax," she stressed. "A lot of women seem so nervous. They're afraid they'll do something wrong. Babies aren't as frail as they look. Don't worry about having a clean house. Don't get upset if a little cereal gets on the baby's shirt. Enjoy them. Hold them. Play with them. The time goes quickly, and you wish you could do it all over again."

"Follow your own instincts with your twins, rather than doing what everyone tells you," suggested Pam Touhey, busy raising Sean and Justin, who are almost 2. Mrs. Touhey and Mrs. Mills were the two women in the group who nursed their twins.

Mrs. Touhey said she couldn't have managed the double nursing without the help of her husband, Patrick, who took over many other household tasks and for weeks came home regularly at noon to help.

"New babies usually nurse every two hours," she said, "so I was nursing pretty much all of the time. I had to prepare myself for it psychologically, and you have to prepare yourself for doing nothing else. It takes a lot of energy to produce that much milk. But I am really glad I did it."

With nursing, one twin must wait for the other to finish eating. Mrs. Touhey and Mrs. Mills found a pacifier helped the waiting baby over this period. Mrs. Touhey also pressed into service a wind-up baby swing.

These two opted for nursing because of the close feeling it gives mother and child and because they regard it as healthier for the babies. But money also can be a factor.

Mrs. Simon is feeling "outraged" at the cost of the ready-to-use formula her infants drink. One container costs $1.24. She figures her weekly formula bill at $13.02. That is a monthly cost of about $48.

MRS. TOUHEY WARNED about too many visitors. They were wonderful to see, but "totally exhausting." The hospital visits are welcome, but they too "tire you out."

She said: "You pay for it later if you overdo. I read in a book about nursing that a tired mother means a fussy baby. With twins that's double trouble."

Mrs. Stanchina also found that visitors can be "overpowering."

But Mrs. Taylor said for her, company was "an advantage." She added: "I was tired anyway, so I felt I might as well have company."

One advantage the non-nursing mother has is that she can press visitors into service, having them give a baby his or her bottle.

Mrs. Taylor advises telling friends in advance to stay away from the house for at least a week. Then the visits should be brief. In addition to her other problems, the mother shouldn't have to entertain and keep the house clean. Another mother suggested waiting as long as a month and then having visitors call for permission to drop in.

Mrs. Stanchina added that if gifts are brought, don't forget the older children in the family. They may feel overlooked by all the attention given the twins.

MOST OF THE women favored having some kind of help, though not all of them had it themselves.

"It would be nice," said Mrs. Mills, whose mother broke her leg before the twins were due. She had a Caesarean delivery, spent 10 days in the hospital and did everything for her three children once she was home.

"You learn to organize when you have to," she said. "But remember, twins come before housework."

"Get help to do the shopping, washing and making formula," said Mrs. Taylor, whose sister stayed with her. "It leaves you time for the babies."

Anyone who visits the infant section of a department store knows that a big industry flourishes around baby furniture and equipment. But what to buy for the new babies? The answer is to buy much of the same stuff you'd buy for one. Most of the women suggested a changing table. Some of these tables also include a bathinette.

Mrs. Mills had an interesting contribution about bathing babies. "Splash a little water on their face, and they won't grow up scared of the water," she counseled.

It worked for her. Stephen and Peter were placed in a swimming pool at 4 months and proceeded to swim to their mom. By the end of the summer, they could swim 10 feet.

INFANT SEATS were popular with the women. These recliners can be set on the dining room table, where they make a wonderful table decoration and conversation piece. The women advised holding one baby during a feeding and using the infant seat for the other. They also suggested contacting the local Jaycee Auxiliary (Jaycettes) about renting car seats. The organization makes GM loveseats available to parents.

Mrs. Mills liked having a playpen around as a safe repository for infants. Several mentioned that it is possible to purchase two strollers and then buy a bracket to link them together, converting them to vehicles built for two. Others have found a vehicle in which you can put the twins as infants and sit them up when they are older. Some could also accommodate an older child.

Mrs. Touhey and Mrs. Taylor used one bed for their new babies for the first few months. "We'd put them crossways at each end," said Mrs. Touhey. "Later we noticed they had somehow moved together so they were touching. They seemed to be comforted by this."

But one crib made Denise and Debbie Stanchina too restless, their mother thought.

Mrs. Touhey also liked the cloth carrier that holds the baby close to the chest. She favors simple clothes. Feet pajamas with snaps or long gowns with a drawstring at the bottom were particular favorites. Rubberized pads on beds can cut down on the frequency of sheet changes. So can a diaper fixed to the sheet under the face.

THE MOTHERS ALL were against trying to dress their twins alike, except for perhaps a rare social event. Again and again they emphasized raising the children as individuals.

"Remember they are two separate beings. If one does something, they both don't have to," said Mrs. Taylor.

She also knows that twins don't like to be compared. Her son Brian grew up taller than his twin, David. One day on the street with their mother they met a man who asked David why he wasn't as tall as his brother. The man ran on and on about why the two weren't the same. At 3, David didn't know he ought to argue the matter intellectually, so he kicked the man in the leg.

"Adults can sometimes be cruel," said David's mom.

Teachers also make the same mistake. Even though teaching textbooks warn against comparing siblings, teachers still do it.

"It's a good idea to have them in separate classes," said Mrs. Stanchina. Her twins strongly disliked being addressed by the other twin's name. In fact, they refused to respond when it happened.

"Most people thought they should answer," said Mrs. Stanchina, "but they didn't think so."

As a twin, Denise Stanchina finds there are many advantages.

"We can do things together," she said, "and wear each other's clothes." She also confessed to occasionally switching classes in school. Not identical twins, they look much alike. She said her mother could tell them apart as babies because Debbie twisted her nose and Denise twisted her hair.

The two both plan to attend Wayne State University this fall.

Moms seemed to have found raising twins a pretty busy time, especially at first.

But they would probably all agree with Mrs. Groff, who is raising 5-month-old twins, Kyle and Kyla, with the help of her husband and her mother.

"I like it," she said. "It's a joy."

Sign of Spring

The Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee of First United Presbyterian Church beams at his harbingers of spring, Leigh Nowicki, 4, (left) and Margaret Cardinal, 2½. The children were making a trial run of their Sunday performance, a little ceremony that is becoming a tradition at the church.

When the Rev. Magee said he had an announcement to make, one of the girls walked from the back of the church and handed a bouquet of forsythia to the minister. This was followed by the announcement, "The first day of spring will be Thursday, March 20 20."

Leigh, daughter of Michael and Penny Nowicki, delivered the flowers at the 9:30 a.m. services and Margaret, daughter of Jeff and Liz Cardinal, presented the flowers at the 11 a.m. services.

The forsythia, picked some time ago, was forced into bloom by Dotie Magee, the pastor's wife. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Dean and Mary Munger of Cavalier Street, Canton Township announce the birth of their daughter, Amanda Christine, March 5, 1980 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor.

The Mungers have two older daughters, Julie, 5, and Melissa, 18 months.

Kenneth and Deborah Walker, former Plymouth residents who now live in Stockbridge, announce the birth of their daughter, Rachelle Leigh, March 4, 1980 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor.

"Stopping Sexual Harassment" at the April 2 session. Ms. Good co-chairs the state task force on sexual harassment. She will tell how to recognize harassment, how to prevent or stop it, and will offer help to the harassed.

THE APRIL 9 topic will be "Patients' Rights/Self-Health Care." The speakers will be Alice Slate, ombudsman at Sinai Hospital, and Jackie Stefko of the Feminist Women's Health Center. Ms. Slate will outline the patient's "Bill of Rights," and Ms. Stefko will discuss physical self-examination and illness prevention.

"Equal Rights for Women: Threat or promise?" is the topic for April 16. Dr. Daryl Hafter, professor of history at Eastern Michigan University, will moderate a panel discussion of women's equity in the '80s.

The final, April 23 forum will explore "Establishing Credit as an Individual." Mary Perna, branch manager, Security Bank and Trust of Canton Township, will examine various aspects of consumer credit.

For more information on the open forum series, call the Women's Resource Center, 591-6400, extension 430. Schoolcraft College is on Haggerty Road just south of Seven Mile in Livonia.

Anne Archer is the girl across the hall with whom our hero, Captain Avenger, falls in love.

the movies

Affable manner makes hero role an appealing one

For better or worse, we do need our heroes. That's the premise of "Hero at Large" (PG), a romantic comedy that mixes ample portions of sentiment and idealism to create a schmaltzy but appealing film.

Much of the credit for pulling this off goes to John Ritter. His affable manner and boyish charm create a convincing innocence that gives the film the punch it needs to deck any skeptics.

Ritter is in the modest hero tradition of Hank Fonda or Jimmy Stewart. He plays the part of a struggling young actor who becomes serious about his role as a comic book hero, Captain Avenger. He believes that individuals do make a difference in our society; they can make things happen.

In striking contrast to Ritter's naturalness is the grating style of co-star Anne Archer. Archer plays the girl across the hall with whom our hero falls in love. She is a practical, no-nonsense person who can't understand why anyone wants to put himself in danger to help others. Her performance and character are both irritating to the point of cooling audience interest in this love match.

FORTUNATELY, the romance is subordinate to the main plot of the young actor's commitment to the principles of Captain Avenger. Wearing his Captain Avenger costume, he gets involved in two crime-fighting escapades. His deeds make front-page headlines, and soon the mysterious champion of justice is the talk and hero of New York City.

This also makes him a valuable property. Consequently, a smooth-talking publicist snookers him into boosting the mayor's flagging re-election campaign. What began as an act of conscience and good will becomes usurped into a publicity stunt.

Nevertheless, Captain Avenger is sincere when he addresses an admiring crowd and tells them that he is not important; it's the idea that is important. Everyone can be a hero, he tells them, just by caring about other people and doing things for others.

"HERO AT LARGE" won't take up space in any history of the cinema, but it is a cheerful, optimistic film that cuts across interest levels to appeal to all age groups.

Its message is not profound; still, when the actor appeals to the crowd as individuals with the same capability he has for action, the movie does touch on an interesting argument about the nature of heroism.

Bertolt Brecht addressed the issue in his play "Galileo." In one passage, the scientist's assistant Andrea, disappointed by Galileo's capitulation before the inquisitors of the Holy Office, says, "Unhappy is the land that breeds no hero," and Galileo responds, "Unhappy is the land that needs a hero."

Accompanied by PR man Eddie (Harry Bellaver), Steve, dressed as Captain Avenger, helps promote a New York movie opening.

what's at the movies

ALL THAT JAZZ (R). Tour de force by writer-director Bob Fosse. Roy Scheider plays hard-driving, fast-living choreographer (Fosse) in "behind the scenes" story of unusual imagination and energy.

AMERICAN GIGOLO (R). Seamy tale about rich widows, dirty politics and a stud who gets framed for murder.

AND JUSTICE FOR ALL (R). Al Pacino is a young trial lawyer dedicated to his profession and profoundly troubled by the legal system.

BEING THERE (PG). Peter Sellers is a TV-educated economist in satire that pokes fun at our political and social conceits.

BLACK HOLE (PG). Disney's expensive entry into sci-fi, space adventure with strong cast and action story.

BLACK STALLION (G). Story about a boy and a horse told in rich visual images. Terrific performance by Mickey Rooney as an ex-jockey who befriends the boy.

CHAPTER TWO (PG). Autobiographical Neil Simon story about a man starting over after death of his wife.

COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER (PG). Sissy Spacek is outstanding as Loretta Lynn in movie bio of country singer's grueling early years and troubled success.

CRUISING (R). Heavy leather story of police undercover agent (Al Pacino) looking for psychotic killer in homosexual community.

ELECTRIC HORSEMAN (PG). Jane Fonda is a reporter and Robert Redford an ex-rodeo champion in satirical romance.

THE FOG (R). Horror film from John Carpenter, who directed "Halloween." Supernatural fog, associated with legend of mariners rising from their graves and seeking vengeance, creates havoc in coastal village.

FOXES (R). Four teen-aged girls in California coping with the adult world and parental neglect.

GOING IN STYLE (PG). Offbeat comedy about three pensioners who decide to "go in style."

HERO AT LARGE (PG). A struggling actor (John Ritter) tries to live up to image of his role as Captain Avenger.

THE IN-LAWS (PG). Hilarious comedy with Peter Falk and Alan Arkin as near-relatives who not only plan a wedding but rip off the U.S. Mint.

THE JERK (R). Steve Martin in comedy about a white boy raised by black sharecroppers.

KRAMER VS. KRAMER (PG). Perceptive, well-acted drama about a broken marriage and a custody battle. Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep star.

THE LAST MARRIED COUPLE IN AMERICA (R). George Segal and Natalie Wood in sometimes abrasive comedy about problems of staying married in the midst of friends who are divorcing.

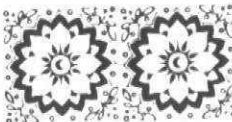

1941 (PG). John Belushi and host of others in comedy about mythical Japanese attack on Los Angeles.

Edison's office open to visitors

A little more than a century ago, Thomas Edison was advised by New Yorkers — who were providing the financial backing for his manufacture of incandescent lamps — that he needed a dignified office in which to receive visitors.

"What is the matter with my office on the ground floor of my laboratory?" asked Edison, referring to a small, cluttered room where he would often curl up for afternoon naps. "That is large enough for my purpose, and I can cram all the electrical books on a few shelves there and have plenty of room left."

Despite Edison's reluctance, the financial backers won. The resulting office today is painstakingly reproduced in Thomas Edison's original Menlo Park Compound, where it has been open to Greenfield Village visitors.

The office, which served the Edison Electric Light Co., has elegant counters and woodwork of polished cherry. All original, the desk include a roll-top variety that was frequently used by Edison. On one desk is a typical computing machine of the time, Edmondson's Circular Calculating Machine.

The building's original coal-burning stove, known as the Argand Stove and made by Perry and Co. of Albany and Chicago, stands in the center of the room. Above hang gas jets, which are converted for electric lighting. Thick uninsulated wire, spread four inches apart, carry the electricity along the ceiling of the office.

The original building was an important scene in the development of electric lighting. Along with other buildings in the Menlo Park area, such as the machine shop and nearby Sarah Jordan Boarding House, it was illuminated with the first public demonstration of incandescent light on New Year's Eve, 1897, an event that will be repeated this year in Greenfield Village on New Year's Eve in honor of the centennial anniversary of incandescent lighting.

Its design was calculated to reassure learned visitors and financiers that Edison's enterprise, contrary to the claims of perennial critics and rivals, was a solid undertaking.

"In fact," wrote Francis Jehl, one of Edison's assistants, "the library and office building from the start produced an imposing impression on all who entered there." The wealthy board members of the Edison Electric Light Company often held their meetings there.

After Edison refined his invention, he carried his work to New York and throughout the world. The Menlo Park office fell into ruin, and only the foundation, some woodwork, a few bricks were left when Henry Ford, a lifelong admirer of Edison, began to rebuild the Menlo Park complex in Greenfield Village during the late 1920s.

With the help of photographs, Ford had the office and upstairs library reproduced. Bricks were made in the same brickyard where the original bricks were made. A section of one of the original shutters was found, and a piece from it was placed in each new shutter.

We interrupt your hometown newspaper to bring you a bit of excitement, delight and joyful color. We could have used this picture in many ways; we could have told you all about ballooning; we could have printed the photographer's autobiography; we could have fiddled around with the word "inflation" and told you to fight it by selling or buying with one of our classified ads. But the more we looked at the balloon the more we realized that we would be complicating a beautiful, free thing. Too many things are complicated these days and not much is free anymore. So, if this picture has made you smile, lifted your spirits, or made you just a tiny bit happier, it's served its purpose.

Sure an' it was a wee bit o' sod they covered two-wheeling in Ireland

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

Some people pack everything but the kitchen sink when they travel. Others just look like they are taking the kitchen sink, flattened and boxed and dragged across airport floors to the check-in counters.

Chances are the box doesn't contain plumbing but a dismantled bicycle ready for a trip abroad.

Biking abroad is a simple, inexpensive way to see the real world from the slow lane, as two Birmingham mother-daughter teams discovered in Ireland last year.

Frederica (Teddy) Lawrence, 49, and Barbara Van Dusen, 51, were just two typical mothers who knew nothing much about bicycles until they were invited to travel with their college-aged daughters, Diana Lawrence and Katy Van Dusen.

"Our daughters decided that mothers never get a chance to do anything that is really fun," Mrs. Lawrence said. "We had both traveled a bit with our husbands, but never with the freedom and flexibility of the young."

"Our daughters decided it was time that we had a chance to travel as they did. They invited us to Ireland on condition that each of us paid our own way. That meant it was necessarily a low-budget trip."

These Oakland County bicycle travelers are two of many Americans who take their bikes abroad.

"You can rent bikes in Ireland, but they are almost never 10-speed, and that's what we needed to get up and down those hills."

THE TWO MOTHERS didn't even own bicycles, so they bought them and signed up for a bicycle course and an exercise class.

The bicycle course was a winter Cranbrook P.M. offering on bicycle repair and maintenance at Cranbrook Schools in Bloomfield Hills. The class was under the guidance of volunteer teacher Dennis Hayes of the Pine Lake Bike Shop in the Pine Lake Mall in West Bloomfield.

Hayes helped outfit the women with the right bikes and other necessary gear. Both women chose 25-pound bikes suited to their 5-foot-3-inch heights.

In preparation, they read books about Ireland, wrote to American Youth Hostels (but decided not to join) and picked up many experienced brains as possible about the science of traveling on two wheels abroad.

Barbara Van Dusen and Teddy Lawrence took to the road for a three-week bike tour of Ireland with daughters Katy Van Dusen and Diana Lawrence. The college-aged women decided their mothers should experience the travel freedom and flexibility that accompanies touring by 10-speed. (Photo by Dick Kelley)

"All the airlines we talked to take bicycles aboard," Mrs. Lawrence said. "Some provide boxes, some are satisfied with plastic bags. Aer Lingus (the Irish national airline) takes bikes along with luggage at no extra charge if they are in boxes (available at any bike shop)."

"All airlines want the pedals unscrewed and the handle bars loosened and turned around."

Ireland was in the middle of a mail and phone strike last summer, so the four women landed on the old sod with nothing but a bicycle wrench in their hands. They collected a list of bed-and-breakfast accommodations from the Irish Tourist Board, which has offices in the airport and in all good-sized towns.

The board provides maps marked with geographic configurations like hills and valleys. It warned the four women to go slowly the first few days until they got their wind.

THEY HAD NO itinerary. "We arrived at Shannon airport, took out our trusty wrenches, put together our bicycles right there, asked a few people which way to go, and went."

Their three-week trip took them along the west coast to Sligo, where they rented a car for a three-day tour of Donegal. They took the train from Sligo to Dublin and south into Wicklow, where they stayed another three days before biking back to the airport at Shannon.

What kind of accommodations did they find along the way?

"All the bed-and-breakfast places had some form of hot water and bath or shower-by-arrangements. All the proprietors were friendly, and all the breakfasts huge."

"All the inns cost between $6-$8 a person, including breakfast. We ate picnic lunches. Dinner was usually in as good a restaurant as the area offered and cost about $8 each, including wine and a tip."

"You can spend lots less. In Dublin and in the castles of Ireland, you can spend much more. Food was excellent."

Round-trip airfare at the time cost them $400 each. They spent about $20-$25 a day "and I'm being generous (with those figures)," said Mrs. Lawrence.

Here are some tips from the Lawrence and Van Dusen trip for anyone considering such a trip to Ireland:

- "Irish mist is real, but not very wet. A rain jacket is enough."
- There's not much petrol (gasoline) and not many cars on country roads. "Cities are not much good for bicycles anyway."
- "Trains will take bicycles for a charge. Buses say they won't, but if you look forlorn, they give in. Taxis the same."

THE GEAR THEY carried included bicycle saddle bags over the back wheels and small handlebar pouches for wallets, cameras, bike locks and picnic.

travel log

Iris Sanderson Jones

Energy crunch fueling travel industry woes

I recently chaired a program in which public relations executives from the travel industry were asked to name their greatest on-the-job problem. They answered: energy.

The problem was not just the shortage of fuel and its increased price, it was also the response of the press and the government to the energy shortage, and the effect that response had upon travelers.

These cries of anguish came from the airline and hotel industry, from state tourist bureaus and parks, and from amusement sites and restored villages as diverse as Opryland and Greenfield Village.

THE GIST OF their complaint was that the press responded to the energy shortage by advising people to stay home. The government responded with legislation that basically had the same effect.

It would be easier to dismiss these complaints if the travel industry were not such an important part of our state and national economy.

Despite this, there is a noticeable difference between our response to a troubled auto industry than to the way we react to a troubled travel industry. I think that different response is based on an instilled puritan ethic and the way it affects our viewpoint about work.

We see the auto industry as solid and respectable. We see travel as play. Play is not only a slightly suspect word in our vocabulary, but it is certainly the first thing we cut in a crunch.

What we don't always see is that travel is also an industry. It affects millions of jobs and provides millions of dollars to the nation's well being. In some areas it is a main source of income. This is true in Hawaii and it is largely true in the Upper Peninsula.

ARE WE JUSTIFIED in using precious energy to travel for recreation? First of all, let's put that in perspective. Less than 3 percent of our energy resources are used nationwide for recreational travel.

Secondly, the Department of Transportation confirms that the real test relates to waste and not to use. A full car is a better use of energy than a half-empty train; that's one of the reasons that Amtrak cut down or eliminated seldom-taken scheduled runs while retaining popular ones.

A single driver in a car may waste energy. A half-empty plane wastes energy. But you are likely to waste more energy by jumping in the car for an unnecessary trip to the shopping center once a week than you are by traveling for recreational purposes in an energy-conscious way.

We should also encourage the development of travel modes and entertainments that don't use a lot of energy. This week, we tell about four local women who traveled around Ireland on their bicycles. In future stories, we will also tell you about putting public transportation to use in your travels.

Some of you are miles ahead of me. You have already explored ways of saving energy while continuing to enjoy travel. Hopefully this means more than the usual suggestions about staying closer to home.

Share your energy-conscious and budget-conscious travel ideas with us. Help us to tell others how to go on exploring the world, without using up all the world's energy resources.

If you have a story idea or a travel suggestion along this line, write to me in care of this newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, Mich. 48150.

Total luggage per person was 25 pounds. They carried a skirt for dinner, slacks or culottes for riding.

The women traveled 30-35 miles a day but didn't total up the miles ridden. They watched a lot of people go faster, but they could never understand why. The scenery along the west coast was a beautiful world of high cliffs, crashing seas, deserted white beaches and flowers.

Mrs. Lawrence said they "stopped at almost everything we could find. Along the west coast, though, there wasn't much entertainment."

They found people of all ages on the bicycle route, including elderly couples on regular and even tandem bikes.

The only warning the travelers have is about the friendly Irish folk who will offer to help you fix your bike.

"Everyone in Ireland thinks he knows all about bicycles, but none of them know anything at all about 10-speeds! They all want to be helpful, but try to avoid their help if you can."

Touring Europe in nylon and down

To the travel desk last week came a colorful brochure geared to people aged 18-30 who find their travel expectations and needs often unmet by the standard tours.

"Adventure World '80" is the product of Continental Coach Tours (London) Ltd. (CCT) and British Airways and it contains "a series of imaginative camping and hotel trips throughout Europe."

Prices range from $1,520 to $440 (depending on time of year and tour length) and feature a two-person tent with fly cover and ground sheet, airbeds, cooking and auxiliary equipment, bus transportation between stops, breakfast and evening meals, and camping at Europe's finest campsites. You must furnish your own sleeping bag and round-trip transportation to and from London.

Tours are limited to 40 people and those who like to travel alone are welcome. Nowhere is the phrase "Prices are based on double occupancy," although a twin-room supplement is required in the two- or three-week Ski Austria holiday packages.

Tours last from 20-60 days. The 60-day Apollo tour follows a course from Paris to Barcelona to the French Riviera, Florence, Rome, Capri, Athens, Istanbul, Dubrovnik, Vienna, Munich, Cologne, Amsterdam, and London. Others are a 40- or 22-day tour of Europe, 20 days in Great Britain, 30 days in Greece, 46-day or 25-day tour of the U.S.S.R., 45 days following the shores of the Mediterranean, or a 25-day Scandinavian tour.

Taking the Artrain

The Michigan Artrain will be making tracks to a dozen communities statewide from April through July.

A snazzy 415 feet long, the train includes three gallery cars, a generator car, studio car with art in progress, a turn of the century caboose.

On Artrain '80, there will be the works of such masters as Picasso, Matisse and Chagall, a photo documentation of major Michigan public sculptures, including Nevelson and Calder pieces, and a post-World War II exhibit gathered from Michigan museums and private collections.

ONE OF ARTRAIN'S most popular features is the studio car. It's equipped with work areas, potters wheel, kiln and more to accommodate resident artists who travel with the train, demonstrating and chatting with visitors about their work.

Local artists are also invited to participate. Artists in residence may range from potters and painters to taxidermists and violin makers.

Local committees have devoted a considerable number of hours getting ready for the train's arrival and at most stops, arts fairs and other special activities have been planned in conjunction with Artrain's stop.

THERE IS no admission charge to this far-from-ordinary approach to getting people together with the art and artists of the past and the future.

Since its opening in 1971, Artrain has visited more than 100 Michigan communities, attracted more than 2 million visitors, and been on national tour to 19 states in the Rocky Mountain states, upper Midwest and southeast regions. Plans are under way for another out-of-state tour in 1981.

Sporty Cordoba

A sporty new model — Cordoba LS — is being added to the Chrysler Cordoba line. The Cordoba LS has a new soft plastic nose, a bold grille and a special price — the manufacturer's suggested retail price is $6,745. The 360 cubic inch displacement V8 engine with dual exhausts is an optional engine for the Cordoba LS. (This photograph appeared without identification in last week's paper)

Things you can do

The high price of gasoline has set America on its ear. And most of us feel there's nothing we can do about it.

But the U.S. Department of Energy figures that sensible driving measures could save the typical consumer 26 cents on each gallon. That's like getting your gas at for less than $1 per gallon at the pump. For details, send for a free copy of How to Save Gasoline . . . and Money from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 514H, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

These savings apply to you if you're the typical American driver who's averaging 15 miles per gallon, driving 11,000 miles a year and paying more than $700 each year for gasoline. Your gasoline bill could be cut drastically without much inconvenience if you just adjust your driving habits. Here's how:

Save up to five cents per gallon by driving more efficiently. For instance, warm up the engine by driving slowly. Never idle for more than one minute to warm up or while waiting in line.

Drive at a moderate but steady pace. Don't pump the accelerator and continually speed up and slow down. Anticipate the flow of traffic ahead and adjust speed accordingly. Don't spend the money to race up to a stop light or traffic snarl.

Use the most efficient speeds of 35 to 45 where allowed. Fifty-five may be necessary on the highway or freeway, but going just 10 miles per hour faster wastes 18 percent more gasoline.

Save up to 13 cents a gallon by planning ahead to combine or eliminate trips. Carpool to and from work or shopping. Combine several errands into one trip to cut down on expensive stop-and-go driving. And replace some trips altogether by using the telephone and mail services for banking and shopping.

Save up to eight cents a gallon by keeping your car in good shape. Tires should be kept inflated to the highest recommended pressure. (If they're down just four pounds, you lose a couple of pennies per gallon.)

You'll save another two cents a gallon by using one of those "high mileage" motor oils. And you can save an average four cents per gallon more by getting a tune-up, wheel alignment or other mechanical adjustments when they're needed.

These and other steps can add up to money in your pocket, as much as 26 cents per gallon. It's not impossible. In fact, you can save even more.

When it's time to trade in your current car, get one that averages just 10 more miles per gallon and add radial tires. You could save the equivalent of another 20 cents per gallon over your current gas bill.

One of every two cars in American is at least six years old, according to industry sources. If you're driving an older car, here's what owning a 1980 model could give you:

- 51 percent better gasoline mileage. The average new 1974 car got less than 14 miles per gallon. The average 1980 car gets 21 miles per gallon.

- A saving of $300-$450 a year in gas alone. This assumes you drive 10,000-12,000 miles a year and gasoline costs less than $1.50 per gallon.
