Bond proposals fail

By EMORY DANIELS

The school board would have to be hard of hearing to miss the message given by voters at the polls Thursday. Although all three ballot propositions were defeated, the proposal to fund new classrooms went down by an overwhelming 6-1 margin.

Proposition I was defeated by a narrow difference of 555 votes and the third proposal asking for an earmarked half-mill lost by only 706 votes.

The vote on Proposal II, which would have financed a 40-classroom addition at the high school site and renovated Central Middle for use as a high school, received 5,953 "no" votes and only 1.129 "yes" votes.

Although the voter turnout was low at about 16.7 percent of the district's total 44,170 registered voters, the turnout still was 25 percent higher than the number voting in the last school election in June 1979 election.

WHILE THE school board and administration hasn't had a chance since Thursday's election to decide what the next step will be, it appears some kind of ballot proposal will be prepared for the June election when residents will vote on two trustee positions.

John M. Hoben, superintendent of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, said he probably will recommend a bond proposal similar to Proposition I - likely with some requests trimmed to lower the amount to be borrowed.

"I think there is a very significant indication in the Proposition II vote that the tenor of the community is against us becoming involved with new buildings. I think the community wants us to pursue other alternatives such as increasing the use of Extended School Year, renting buildings from other school districts, or shifting the grades," said Dr. Hoben.

Given present overcrowding at the high school site one of the alternatives first chosen by the school board is likely to be grade re-alignment woving ninth grade back to the middle school and sixth grade back to the elementary

Proposition II was packaged for those residents who believed the six through eighth grade alignment was essential to maintain the quality of the middle school programs. The fact the proposal was defeated in every single precinct suggests the grade six through eighth proponents were a minority.

1980 Suburban Communication Corporation. All Rights Reserved

West Middle School staff was among those leading the fight to retain the six through eight grade structure; yet, in the West voting precinct Proposition II went down 642-123 - the same as the districtwide margin of defeat. At Central Middle, Proposition II by a 7-1 margin and Central would have benefited with an added $2 million in reno-

A look at the returns show that strong "no" votes and large turnouts came from those precincts with older neighborhoods less likely to have children in school. Areas with school-age children, and areas in Canton experiencing growth, had almost normal voter turnouts.

The turnout, for instance, at Farrand for LakePointe residents in Plymouth Township was 32 percent higher than in June 1979. Other Plymouth/Plymouth Township precincts experienced turnouts from 25-40 percent higher than

The Canton precincts, however, experienced voter turnouts of only nine to 20 percent higher than June 1979.

The DPW is expected to move from its current location adjacent to the police station next summer when a new building on Sheldon south of Michigan is completed.

Members of the firefighters union have asked the township board to consider renovating the building for fire department purposes after the DPW

David Hamilton, president of the union, last week presented the board with a resolution unanimously approved by union members at a March 12 meeting. Fire Chief Mel Paulun said he supports the union's campaign for a third station in order to improve response time to southern Canton.

The department's present stations are located at Canton Center and Cherry Hill and at Warren and Haggerty.

> He estimates the cost of converting the building at $50,000 to $100,000. Paulun said an additional nine to 12 firefighters would have to be hired to staff the new station. The new hires would increase the department's operating budget by $160,000 to $220,000. "We're got to figure out what we're going to do with that building," Culbert said. "But I don't think there's any way we could spend that amount of money.

The township board has adopted a no-frills spending policy which will remain in effect until the state of the economy improves.

Culbert said Police Chief Jerry Cox is formulating his own proposal for use of the DPW building. Cox proposes using the facility for a dog pound and storage area for vehicles disabled in traffic accidents. Culbert said Cox's proposal will be cheaper undoubtedly than the fire-

Although firefighters have had no problems reaching southern Canton, Paulun said a third station could improve response time to that area. He would not hazard a guess on the length of time it takes firefighters to reach the southern end of the township.

"I'm looking at it from the point of view that if money is there, I'd like it," Paulun said of a third station. "But if it isn't there, we certainly can handle it."

HAMILTON SAID his union endorses funding the building's conversion with federal revenue-sharing monies. Approximately $287,000 in federal funds have not been allocated for any purpose by the township board. "The only thing we were trying to relate was, 'Look, there's an opportunity coming up," "Hamilton said. "I think you'll find more and more unions proposing things like this," Paulun said. "They just want to let the board know that they support it."

Wrong address on census forms worries officials

Murphy's Law took effect Friday in Canton with the arrival of the 1980 census questionnaires.

As township residents soon discovered, a majority of the forms arriving at their Canton homes had Plymouth printed on the address label instead of Canton.

It is the kind of mistake guaranteed to cause extreme anguish to Canton officials, who are shooting for an accurate count of the township's growing

The larger a community's population, the more federal revenue sharing money and other benefits it is eligible

Supervisor Noel Culbert said he had spoken to census bureau officials when the mistake was discovered. "They said they would keep an eye out for the Canton forms and would possibly be able to catch them," he said.

Just in case, however, Canton residents who have received questionnaires listing the wrong community are asked to cross out Plymouth and write Canton above the line on the address label. The forms are supposed to be mailed nomeowners are not the only ones counting pennies these days. Canton planner Jim Kosteva had to cancel his $106 reservation at a management seminar in Southfield last week, because township board members said the expense was too high. The board ruled against spending any money "unless it's absolutely necessary." Kosteva had already mailed a check to the Fred Pryor Institute, sponsor of the April 4 seminar. But Kosteva had to call the institute and ask for a refund. "Every dime is important," Trustee Robert Greenstein said of these tight economic times.

Church finds home

Construction of a building for the Faith Community Moravian Church should start on a three-acre parcel south of Warren and west of Canton Center in May. The Rev. Darryl Bell hopes to hold services in the building by Christmas. "It's like we're coming of age," Bell said of the construction plans. His congregation has been meeting in Pioneer Middle School in Plymouth Township for the last two years. Bell said most church members live in either Canton or Plymouth.

Funds for history

The Canton Historical Society has received a $10,000 grant from Canton Township to renovate the last building in Wayne County which was used as a one-room schoolhouse. The society plans to convert the building at Canton Center and Proctor into a museum. Township board members approved the grant despite their no-frills spending policy on the grounds that the building will continue deteriorating unless repairs are made immediately. Society member Bart Berg said the grant will fund about half the repairs needed at the building, which includes a new roof, foundation repairs and interior remodeling. The society is planning fund-raisers, including a May 17 flower sale. Persons may order flowers in advance by calling Berg, 495-0811; Mary Dingeldey, 495-0509; or Melissa Hauk, 495-0304.

His is the most revered name in Chinese history. He and his followers traveled far and wide, trying to persuade the feudal lords to carry out social reform.

His ethical teachings spread their influence over Japan and Korea, as well as China

His teachings are best summarized in his own words. Here are some of the things Confucius did say:

"The rule of life is to be found within yourself. Ask yourself constantly, 'What is the right thing to do?' Beware of doing that which you are likely, sooner or later, to repent for having done."

"It is better to believe in your neighbors, than to mistrust them." "The superior man does not wrangle. He is firm, but not quarrelsome. He is sociable, but not clannish. He sets a good example for his fellow beings. He is considerate of their feelings, and their

The Livonia Republican will become state Rep. Sylvia Skrel at 2 p.m. Tuesday. If she had been in office last Thursday, she might have cast a deciding vote against the $950,000 engineering funds.

The situation was this:

"MY CONSTITUENTS don't want it. That's a very strong consideration. I'd have to go with my constituency," representative-elect Skrel said the day after the House vote.

She cited Law's polls which showed overwhelming opposition to placing the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority's light rail line in the Woodward corridor underground from downtown to Six Mile Road.

Her campaign position paper called the SEMTA transit plan — of which the rail line was more than half - "an in-

KIRKSEY DENOUNCED the bargaining tactics of the leadership. Without naming names, either of Democrats or Republicans, Kirksey said he heard leaders promise legislators:

· 'How would you like to have no primary opposition and no Democratic opposition in November?"

· 'How would you like us to give $25,000 to your opposition if you vote

· 'You're planning to retire from the legislature next year. How would you like a judgeship?

· 'You've wanted X Highway widened since 1968. You got it."

Said Kirksey: "It was disgusting. I never came so close to just quitting. Asked if he were offered anything, Kirksey replied, "They don't come to me any more. I don't deal like that."

ONE SORE POINT in the weekslong debate was over state leaders' appointment of an "ad hoc" committee to seek a compromise. The committee, chaired by Brown, first met behind closed doors. But under pressure from the Lansing press corps, the meetings were eventually opened to other legislators and the public.

Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, said the ad hoc committee was unofficial and did not have to comply with the state Open Meetings Act.

Fessler, whose west Oakland constituents are more interested in building an M-275 freeway than a Woodward rapid transit line, called the ad hoc committee "a subterfuge to exclude not only the press but the people - the very ones that are going to pick up the deficit spending bill.'

Fessler complained that although the committee had been labelled unofficial, it was using a House sergeant-atarms to clear the room of non-members. "I would like to know how a nonofficial group can exclude others from public meeting rooms and committee rooms, within the Capitol Building of this state, which are paid for by the taxpayers if there's really not a meeting going on that's covered by the Open Meetings Act."

Panel of experts say

Energy— more precious than ever

By NANCY KOURTJIAN

A panel of energy experts speaking at Oakland Community College agreed on one point: In order to "cope," Americans must conserve.

Conservation was advocated repeatedly during a national issues forum Friday at OCC's Highland Lakes campus in Union Lake.

They predicted individuals and industries will use energy more efficient-strong desire to be efficient as the best methods While a utility spokesman called for continued nuclear power and an auto official favored oil shale development, all agreed that changes in lifestyle face the average American. The forum was the second in a series sponsored by OCC. Faculty member men," he said. Dennis Fiems was moderator.

PETER WALTERS of the Michigan Energy Administration called President Jimmy Carter's estimates of a 10-20 percent solar capacity by the year-2000 too optimistic.

He said Americans must use systems which realize a net energy gain such as low-head hydro, adding, "We have ex- ample of improved energy use: the cohausted 'easy energy' sources."

The Great Lakes Basin Commission shows Michigan's only large-scale hydropower on the St. Lawrence River. But there are 640 dams on inland rivers which could generate electricity on a small scale, Walters said.

Walters said Michigan's growing population will demand 4.5 million quads (quadrillion BTUs) of energy by the end of the century. Only 4.1 million ly, but only if they can make free eco- can be supplied, and "tough trade-offs" must fill the gap.

He prefers mandatory restraint They saw economic incentives and a measures such as speed limits and travel restrictions to gasoline ration-

Rationing could be equitable, Walters commented, but would encourage black marketing and be very hard to administer. "Michigan will not enforce gas rationing with uniformed

Walters also predicted a "conservation ethic" that will reduce our dependence on imported oil. Since petroleum now supplies 36 percent of Michigan's energy needs, he called conservation a "good investment."

DETROIT EDISON Co. spokesman Clayborne Mitchell cited a major ex-generation project in Monroe which is 60-70 percent efficient. It makes steam and electricity and recovers heat that is normally lost.

A General Motors Corp. energy recovery project in Maryland solves two problems at once: It burns trash and reduces landfill volume. According to GM representative Russell Stebar, it also creates energy and saves GM mon-

Recovering energy from garbage incineration is also being considered by Oakland County, Mitchell said.

Downsizing cars and reducing weight with plastic and aluminum parts has helped GM meet miles per gallon standards, Stebar continued. Diesel engines allow full-size cars to meet mileage standards.

However, diesels are noisy and need more maintenance than standard gasoline engines. Air pollution from diesels is low in hydrocarbons and carbon dioxide, but higher in oxides nitrogen

RUSSEL GOSSMAN gave the United Auto Workers energy position - alternative sources and conservation have top priority. The union supports solar development because it promises more jobs. One form of solar, biomass, which Gossman defined as "an organic material that contains energy," can be burned for heat or processed into methane gas or tethanol to make gasohol.

The audience challenged the panel with many questions including the costeffectiveness of gasohol and oil from

The oil shale process uses tremendous amounts of water causing a severe problem for the arid West, Edison's Mitchell replied. He discussed the difficulty of disposing of large amounts of residue from "the flaky stuff...that fluffs up" during shale oil production.

Though more expensive to make than petroleum, oil shale or coal, gasohol can be economical if usable byproducts are made, the UAW's Goss-

The panel answered queries on photovoltaic cells which make electricity directly from the sun (still too expensive,) and nuclear wastes (Europe recycles them in breeder reactors.)

Construction is expected to start this fall on a $1.5 million medical care facility at the intersection of Canton Center and Warren roads.

In making the announcement of the appointments, hospital President Gerald Fitzgerald said, "It will help communicate information in respect to the center's planned role, objectives, programs, services and facilities to the community and aid in interpreting the community's reaction to the operation of the center.'

"In addition, the committee will be asked to discuss with the hospital matters of mutual concern and interest to the community and the center."

Services at the center will include primary family medical care; maternal and child health services; emergency care; and functions such as pharmacy, radiology and laboratory.

Oakwood has offered outpatient services at the hospital since 1661. It has operated a family medical center in Sumpter Township since 1972.

School district bond proposals defeated

Of the five precincts which carried Proposal I, three are in Canton and two in Plymouth. The two precincts voting in favor of Proposal III both are in Plymouth.

A partner in a Livonia law firm who served as an attorney for Canton Township died suddenly while playing racquetball last Thursday night.

Frank C. Barresi Jr., 34, was pronounced dead on arrival at Wayne County General Hospital after being rushed there from the Coliseum raquetball courts in Westland.

The cause of death was apparently heart failure.

Barresi and partner Judd Hemming had attended University of Detroit law school at the same time and opened an office in Livonia in 1976.

The partners had recently been doing work for Canton Township, whose supervisor Noel Culbert had also attended law school with the two men.

"It was a terrible shock, " Culbert said. "Frank will be deeply missed."

Monday's Commentary

Health care cost is behind 'debedding' fight

How much is your health worth to you?

That's a question health care consumers and providers must grapple with as the Comprehensive Health Planning Council (CHPC) of Southeast Michigan prepares a plan to reduce costs by eliminating hospital beds. CHPC must submit to the state a revised version of the original plan by March 31.

The plan was mandated by the state. Called the "debedding" plan, it was developed because of concern over rising health care costs.

Consider these facts compiled by CHPC: In the three years from 1975-78, in-patient hospital costs in southeastern Michigan rose 43 percent to $1.4 billion. During that same time period, the number of hospital beds in the area rose by .3 percent to 21,631. The total number of patient days, however, declined by 2.6 percent to 6.2 million.

CHPC ESTIMATES that nearly $739 million could be saved if the number of hospital beds in the area were reduced by its recommendations. Sources used by CHPC in compiling these figures were the Michigan departments of public and mental health and Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

While the figures may be accurate, they fail to take into account the feverish inflation that's forcing the cost of everything upward.

Dr. Martin Rosenfeld, chairman of the Michigan Community Hospital Association, argues that demand for more health care has caused the rising

"Let's put the responsibility on you and me, the users," he told the commission. "If you cut demand, you cut costs.

Understanding health care needs and costs is crucial to any health plan for southeastern Michigan. Community groups should be telling the CHPC, and state legislators who drew up the mandate for cutting beds, what community needs are. Balancing those needs is the ability of the community to pay for health care.

That should have been done before the plan was developed, but it's still not too late.

THE CURRENT debedding plan has created an uproar

Hospital and community groups argue the plan fails to meet its cost-savings goal, that it's inequitable and that it would lower the current level of health care.

"It's a mess" was the succinct way Dr. James Fryfogle used to describe the plan. Dr. Fryfogle is a former member of the debedding commission and chairman of the seven-county Health Planning Commission which advises the CHPC.

Other speakers at plan hearings hosted by CHPC have acknowledged the need for health planning and cost containment, but they insist that the current plan misses its mark. Here are some of their questions:

 Why force hospitals like Providence and Beaumont to reduce beds when they're at the population center of the metropolitan area?

 Why close beds at hospitals such as St. Mary in Livonia or Cottage in Grosse Pointe, where occupancy rates run from 90 to 100 percent? CHPC argues that not all hospitals are necessary. But why didn't the plan close down hospitals which run at much lower occupancy rates?

· How effective is the plan in really gauging the service hospitals provide? Did it consider past cost containment efforts and merger plans of multi-institutional arrangements?

· And what will happen to emergency medical service that has developed over the past 30 years?

These questions demand answers. CHPC officials are quick to point out that the debedding plan is only one part of an overall health delivery plan. But announcing the debedding plan without first developing an alternate health delivery system is like amputating a limb to stop a cut from bleeding. It causes more trouble than the original problem did.

The state Legislature and CHPC must develop such a plan before slicing off hospital beds.

FOUR STEPS are needed to insure a balance of health care at the lowest possible cost in this area:

A moratorium must be called to halt implementation of the current plan. The state act mandating the plan, therefore, must be changed.

A comprehensive plan that projects Michigan's future health care needs should be developed. This plan should protect consumers' rights to choose types of health care and delivery plans, such as health maintenance versus traditional plans, and osteopathic versus allopathic care. Southeastern Michigan needs a three-tiered, comprehensive plan with primary, intermediate and specialized care. One was proposed by Della Goodwin, president of CHPC. Primary care would be given in a doctor's own offices, intermediate care would be given at community hospitals, and specialized care would be administered at larger, university-type hospitals.

The plan also will have to consider what to do with buildings in the downtown medical center, which some are now calling a "white elephant," in the Wayne County General complex and as planned by the University of Michigan. For instance, U-M may not need to build a large, new facility if it shifted some of its work to the 40 percent vacant Wayne County General, with which it already is af-

A systems approach to health care, as suggested by Frank Brock, director of planning at Providence, should be implemented.

"There needs to be an increase in other programs such as long-term, ambulatory and home care," Brock told the commission. Reducing bed levels, and therefore service, without providing alternate means of care is a "potential threat" to health care consumers, he added.

While such services are being developed, insurers ought to plan reimbursement schedules that motivate doctors and hospitals to hold down costs.

The Blues have such a plan that has worked effectively for more than a year now.

Finally, all groups involved in the delivery of health care should listen to a call from New Detroit vice-president Paul Hubbard for a "genuine committment . . . to make the process of change work for the good of the people.

How much is good health worth? There are no easy ways to calculate that — especially by March

Ezra fondly recalls days riding the ole street car

Many a time during the years that he has been traveling along the journalistic trail in Plymouth, The Stroller has been given a helping hand by some of the old-timers.

First there was Karl Starkweather, then Harold Hamill and later Frank Henderson and Ezra Rotnour. They have all gone to their reward but Ezra, who holds the distinction of being the city's first

So it wasn't surprising the other day when the phone rang and it was Ezra on the other end of the line. The Stroller hadn't heard from him in some time, so the minute he heard Ezra's voice over the phone The Stroller knew that he was about to hear of some twist in the news.

"I was delighted to read the piece in the Observer," he said, "about the old street car line. But I was surprised that neither Don Sutherland nor Earl West was certain (of) the route taken to go from Main Street to Northville Road.'

Ezra, who served for years on various commissions in the city and is one of the best known of the old timers in the area, explained that the left turn from Main Street was onto Mill Street and then up toward Northville Road.

NEVER AT a loss for words when speaking of the old days in Plymouth, Ezra then let his memory come tumbling through the years as he recounted some of the days when the street car was the best mode of transportation.

"They talk about giving us mass transportation these days," he said, "and few of the folks handling

Did you know that our neighbor city of Warren had several different names before its present name? Among them were Cottageville, Hickory and Alba. The present name honors Gen. Joseph Warren, who was killed in the Revolutionary War battle of Bunker Hill.

the plan realize that we once had the best transportation not only in Michigan but in the entire coun-

"Would you believe it," he said "that you could travel from Plymouth to Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Detroit; Northville and over to Farmington, Orchard Lake and Pontiac, to say nothing of traveling up state to Mt. Clemens, and Port Huron. And it all started in Detroit. Now, you can't reach any of these places unless you have a car.'

As he described the route from Detroit, Ezra repeated that the trolleys came out Michigan Avenue to Wayne, then made a right turn on Newburgh Road and traveled north to Ann Arbor Trail. Once on Ann Arbor Trail the trolleys followed the east side of Kellogg Park, made a right turn at Main Street and made a stop for a switch at a spot close to what is now the Schrader Funeral Home.

"Do you know how the trolleys crossed the railroad tracks?" he asked. Then without waiting for answer, he explained that on reaching the edge of the railroad track the motorman and the conductor made use of three levers - one on each side of the railroad track and the other in the center. They maneuvered the trolley across and then did the same thing when they reached the railroad tracks on Main Street, at what now is the Plymouth Landing restaurant.

"It is an odd thing," Ezra explained, "but the trolley didn't cross the tracks on Northville Road. They went around them. And even went under them at one point."

As he continued to enlighten The Stroller on the travel in the old days, Ezra insisted that the present plans for mass transit in the area will have a difficult time beating what Plymouth had in the days of

"Just thought you'd like to know these things." Ezra said to The Stroller over the phone.

Now you know why The Stroller always has been pleased to meet these Plymouth pioneers. They've helped to steer him along the right turns on the journalistic trail for years.

On-the-job 'training'?

The dismal state of the economy may prevent many young people from experiencing the joys of the part-time job.

It's not that these jobs no longer exist; it's just that they're filled by people who once would have curled their lips in distaste at the thought of such posi-

You know the kind of job: frying burgers in a fast food joint, washing cars, bagging groceries or serving as a

It's not that these are terrible jobs, but the average teenager certainly gets a lesson in humility from them. My first real job was for a guy who ran a fried chicken carry-out place. My best friend and I were both hired, which we thought was pretty neat. The conditions of employment involved coming in each day after school and working until about 9 p.m., for $1.30 per hour.

Ted (the chicken man) had us come in and learn the ropes, a training period for which we would not be paid. We bounced in eagerly after school to coleslaw and run the custard machine. We found ourselves being "trained" in these arts for a week, with no mention made of when we could become honest-to-God employees with honestto-God paychecks.

Becky and I finally muttered something about the Better Business Bureau, which served as a subtle hint to Ted that it was time to flash the cash.

AND SO OFFICIAL employment be-

To this day, I will not vist a fast-food chicken establishment. I still have visions of sitting in the back room taking clammy chicken parts and swishing them around in a bowl of breading. There's an art to this, according to Ted You have to be sure the leg or whatever is evenly coated, then whack the part against the side of the bowl to remove the extra breading. There was a little trick of breaking a bone in the thigh, which Ted said made the chicken cook better in the pressure cooker.

After an hour of chicken-breading, learn how to bread chicken parts, make our hands, hair, faces and clothes would be covered with the mixture, but we would have a tidy pile of chicken ready to go to the pot.

> We had a machine that would cut the potatoes to go along with the chicken, but the coleslaw was strictly a grate-ityourself job. It is impossible to grate coleslaw without grating one's knuckles at least part of the time.

> Ted had a rousing business, so in addition to actually preparing the food, we had to answer the phone orders, serve walk-in customers, make change and fold boxes for the meals.

> We seldom got breaks, but we did get free meals. Eating the same chicken dinner every night got a little trying after a while, however.

> I don't remember what we did with the money we earned from this venture. I suppose we bought clothes, makeup and other assorted garbage.

> We did learn that trite little lesson about how hard it is to earn money and > that work is seldom a bunch of laughs. If we hadn't learned it then, we would have learned it later.

Aging office director is seeking suburban help

Dante DiVitto, director of the Wayne County Office on Aging, is attempting to muster suburban support for an out-county area agency on aging run by Divitto last week held a public hearing to get comments on the county's intention to file an application for an area agency with the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging (OSA). An area agency allocates state and federal money to a variety of programs for the elderly.

The OSA March 21 had agreed to allow the city of Detroit to split off from the existing Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging in order to form its own funding office for senior citizen pro-

That decision in effect made the existing AAA obsolete, leaving the remainder of Wayne County in need of an agency. Governmental units of at least a 50,000 population may file an application by April 1 to operate an area agency. Thus far, the city of Livonia, in behalf of itself and a consortium of surrounding communities, has filed an application to form an out-county agency.

Wayne County has not yet filed. According to DiVitto, the county board of commissioners did not wish to encourage the agency split between Detroit and the other communities by jumping on the bandwagon before the break became official. DiVitto said he has received a letter of support for the county's plan from the city of Wyandotte, "and other letters are trickling in.'

Livonia's efforts to form an agency have also gained support from out-county communities.

DiVitto said he did not know what the county commission's position will be on the issue.

Smoking ban unenforced?

As a student at Plymouth Canton High School, I'm very upset with the situation here. To enter the building in the morning I use the doors at the end of the science wing. Usually there is a group of students smoking outside of the building.

Lately the group has moved inside the building, making it very difficult to get through the crowd and to breath. I reported this to an area coordinator who told me that they (the administration) were doing all they could.

The next morning I entered upon the same situation, I reported to the same area coordinator. It seemed that he thought I meant they were smoking outside of the building. After I said the word inside he said that he would call Rick, a security officer here at CEP.

A few day later I walked into Canton and found about 40 people sm)king at the end of the science wing. I was furious. I held the door open until a path was cleared so that I could get through without being pushed and shoved. I went straight to the

Answer given on hunt ban

In response to Ms. Levitte's opinion on the hunting ban for Plymouth Township (3-24-80).

Is it "illogical" that I propose whatever it takes to ban hunting in the township, since I have had hunters' guns pointed at me?

Yes, I agree that enforcement is a key issue; yet there is no feasible way of enforcing the no tresspassing law which presently is in existance, especially after the damage has been done.

This law has been in effect for years and obviously has not done the job. Again, let us learn from our mistakes.

What it boils down to is simply this: Since hunters cannot obey the present laws, their privileges should be taken away. Just as if a speeder cannot obey the speed limit, his driver's license should be taken away. Essentially that is the way the traffic laws are, so why should hunting laws be any less Plymouth Township residents' lives are endangered by this sport. Present laws are not enough. With the township population growing every day, there is a grave danger in letting this continue.

I believe I have gotten the facts first-hand as much as anyone who is concerned with this issue. I have developed my view about hunting through experience, which I believe is as good as or better than looking at the situation through papers and office only to find two security officers lazing around the office.

I went to see Kent Buikema, the principal of Canton, who was at a meeting with two area coordinators. I told them of the situation at the end of the science wing and that they had two security officers in the office. Mr. Buikema went straight to Rick and told him there was a problem in the science wing. I assume that Rick went down there.

Today as I entered the building I was happy to find a security officer patroling the area. Then I looked straight ahead and saw a boy smoking a cigaret in the hall. As soon as he neared the security officer he was told to go outside to smoke. He was not taken to the office or reprimanded in any way.

Maybe the problem here is that our security officers are not directing their attentions where they should be. It seems that what we need here is not more security officers, but better utilization of what we already have.

Wrong name irks reader

Listen don't you bozo's know anything. Whats amatter you guy's got an IQ of one-half. You guys cant tell a B from a D.

In a recent article you did on the play The Velveteen Rabbit, you spelled Deveny Deck as Deveny

Newspapers are suppose to know a D from a B. Also in other articles you spelled wrong. STOP Guesing how to spell ask them how to spell there

I think you should put an apology artile in your newspaper. Apologing to Deveny and to Mrs. Weiner, because this play was too good to have actors names spelled wrong in the paper.

Talk to Tell him to go to grade school and to tell a D from a B.

If you will please answer me back and tell whats going on I would apreciate it.

Humane treatment bill needs backing

Editor:

I am a concerned individual of animal preservation and feel a great injustice is taking place by some of our legislators who are supposedly a mouthpiece for the people.

I have been informed recently that a house bill, number 4895, which is to outlaw compression chamber killings of animals, has been put aside in a typical stagnant form as most bureaucratic systems work.

I feel that high altitude compression chamber killings of animals is a very inhumane method of killing animals and shows only our barbaric and nonintelligent mannerisms toward ani-

Chamber killings work in a fashion as to collapse the ear track of the animal thus being very painful and eventually collapses the brain and other central organs of the body. These are used in many veterinarian clinics for he disposal of animals.

The old adage — "If you at first don't succeed try, try again" - becomes the model for compression killings due to the fact that more often than not the animal is not killed within one attempt at putting the animal to

Sodium phenobarbital is a more jumane non-suffering method to kill the animal. It is administered through a vein and according to the weight of the animal and works in less than three

I feel this method is a more humanistic non-barbaric method of putting an animal to rest. It shows that homosapiens are the more intelligent species on earth and thus can better the environment by being more concerned with those not so fortunate.

House Bill 4895 which would outlaw the use of compression chambers is one of the most humane and intelligent bills ever presented in my mind. If this bill is not passed these killings will continue so as to make ourselves as human beings a more nondesirable species to live with.

If we allow legislators such as some of the people that seem to be pushing this bill to rule our lives where will be end up in the future when we become not to perfect ourselves with ailments such as cancer, the flu and other such

For those of you who feel that the bill is very worthy and just legislation, please contact State Rep. Thomas Brown at (517) 373-1760 to inform him about your backing of the Michigan Humane Society-backed bill and thus showing you are just as humane and intelligent as the person who initiated

Please call Tom Brown by Monday because the bill dies in committee as of

Petersen, Albert pace All-Area tank squad

By BRAD EMONS and DOUG FUNKE

This year's All-Area swimming and diving team reflects standout individual performances in the prep ranks.

Though overall team performances were somewhat off from a year ago, that does not detract from the quality of the 1979-80 squad.

Livonia Bentley was one of the strongest teams in the area. The Bulldogs finished second in the tough Suburban Eight League behind powerful Belleville.

Redford Catholic Central went unbeaten in dual meets and finished second overall in the Catholic League championships.

Plymouth Canton, Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem all enjoyed productive seasons. Canton took its second straight Western Six League title. Area coaches recently met to select the top swimmers in each event to go along with five at-large berths.

Swimmers were limited to one individual event each for All-Area honors.

FIRST TEAM

Mark Winter, Livonia Bentley. 500-vard freestyle. The Bulldog senior capped an outstanding year by winning the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 4:39.86.

The Bentley co-captain was recently selected most valuable player for the third straight year. A holder of three varsity records, Winter won the 200yard individual medley and 100-yard breaststroke events three consecutive years in the Suburban Eight League

A Detroit News All-State selection this year, Winter has qualified for the State Class A finals three straight

He is nationally ranked in junior olympic competition (fourth in the 200yard breaststroke in 1979).

Larry Hein, Livonia Stevenson, 100-yard backstroke. The Spartan senior was very versatile this season. He capped his fine three-year career with a fourth-place finish (Class A) in the 100-yard backstroke. He was first in the 100-yard butterfly and backstroke at the prestigious Andover Invitational. Hein holds school records in the 50yard freestyle and 100-yard back-

"Larry can swim any stroke very well and didn't get beaten very many times in his three-year career," said his coach, Lois McDonald. "He co-captained the team this year and showed good leadership ability."

Paul Petersen, Plymouth Canton, 100-yard butterfly. The Chief senior finished an outstanding career with a fifth-place finish in the 100-yard breaststroke (Class A) and seventhplace in the 100-yard butterfly.

KIRK ALBERT Plymouth Salem

His best time this season in the butterfly was 53.2. As a junior he was Class A champ in both the butterfly and breaststroke as he gained national All-American status.

He placed first in the prestigious Detroit News Invitational (butterfly) and third in the 200-yard IM.

Petersen was Canton's top performer all season long. He holds several Chief records.

Tim Weber, Livonia Franklin,

50-yard freestyle. The Patriot senior co-captain was a standout sprinter all year as he placed fourth in the state final 50-yard freestyle with a time of 22.18. He also took 12th in the 100 yard freestyle (Class A) with a clocking of Weber won the Northwest Suburban League 50-yard freestyle and captured second in the 100-yard freestyle. He was second in both the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events at the Western Wayne Swim Invitational.

"He (Tim) was a consistent winner all three years of high school," said his coach, Larry Teahan.

Greg Dawkins, Westland John Glenn, 200-yard freestyle. Just a sophomore, Dawkins quickly established himself as the best swimmer ever at Glenn.

In the state meet he place sixth in the 200-yard freestyle (1:45.4) and seventh in the 100-yard freestyle (48.35). He won two individual Northwest Suburban League titles and was a member of the second-place 400-yard freestyle

A holder already of six school marks, Dawkins is also a fine student.

Paul Dudley, Livonia Bentley, 100-yard freestyle. The Bulldog junior was noted as the team's most versatile freestyler.

He holds two varsity records (100and 200-yard freestyle) and was a member of the school's record-setting, 400-yard freestyle relay squad.

champ (200- and 500-yard freestyle), Dudley has been a state qualifier for two consecutive years. He was named first team All-Observer last season.

John Schoenle, Livonia Stevenson, 100-yard breaststroke. Known as a dedicated and hard worker, Schoenle placed 12th in the state (Class A) and holds the school record in the 100-yard

Schoenle also was effective stroking in the 200-yard individual medley and freestyle events.

"John is serious about swimming in college and would like to attend Central Michigan University," said McDonald of the three-year regular.

Matt Cashin, Redford Catholic Central, 200-yard IM. One of the major reasons for CC's success this year, Cashin took 12th in the state meet in the 200-IM with a time of 2:03.1. He also swam the 200-yard medley relay, posting an outstanding time of 1:42.7.

Cahsin won the Catholic League's 100-yard breaststroke with a clocking

relay. This group was a consistent force all year. Sugrue was Catholic League champ in the 50-yard freestyle (22.8) and was a member along with Cowley, Cashin and Hurley in the league champion 200-yard medley re-

Mike Ward, Peter Klebba, Ron Bonatz and Brian Hurley, Redford Catholic Central, 400-yard freestyle relay. This team placed 12th in Class A with a time of 3:19.0. Hurley was league butterfly champ (54.5). Bonatz and Klebba swam effectively for the unbeaten Shamrocks in 1979-80.

Mark Heiden, Livonia Stevenson. diving. Showing remarkable improvement, Heiden jumped from 16th in Class A as a junior to eighth this year. He took third in the Detroit News

Swim Invitational at Schoolcraft College in January. 'Mark has won most of his dual meets all three years of high school," said coach Lois McDonald. "He learned to set his goals this year and to discipline himself to accomplish them."

Kirk Albert, Plymouth Salem, at-large. The Rock senior co-captain placed third in the Suburban Eight League 100-yard butterfly and 12th in Class A. He led Salem in total points and was honored recently as the team's most valuable swimmer. "Kirk is a versatile swimmer in that he has competed in every event except the breaststroke," said coach Chuck Ol-

Clarenceville

He holds school records in the 100yard butterfly and 500-yard freestyle and was Northwest Suburban League champ in the butterfly. He was also a member of the winning 200-yard medley relay squad.

"Don is an outstanding student and workout swimmer," said coach Ron

at-large. Northwest Suburban League champ in the 200-yard IM and 500-yard freestyle for two straight years, Miller holds three Eagle swim marks.

He placed seventh in the Detroit News meet competing in the 200-yard

He was a state qualifier (Class A) two consecutive years in the 200-yard

Don Wynne, Livonia Bentley,

at-large. A three-year letterman for coach Keith Wright, Wynne concluded his senior year with a 14th-place finish in Class A as a diver.

He was a league finalist (Suburban Eight) two straight years and qualified this season in the Detroit News meet.

Wynne is a varsity record holder.

Mike Larson, Livonia Clarenceville, at-large. Many hours of hard work went down the drain as the Clarenceville standout missed the Class B finals due to a prolonged illness.

Larson, however, was Clarenceville's most accomplished tanker as he set school records in the 50- and 500-yard freestyles, 200-yard IM and 100-yard Undefeated in dual meet competition, Larson took Metro West League titles in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events. He also holds league marks in the 50- and 500-yard freestyle and breaststroke.

Young vets fuel optimism

Rock track team awaits opener

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Salem girls' track coach Scott Kurtz refuses to make any predictions, but will admit "we're much better than last year.'

A year ago the Rocks won their first dual meet and then proceeded to lose seven straight.

Bolstered by a "good looking freshmen group," Kurtz is looking forward to his fourth year of coaching the Rock

"Potentially this could be my best team," he said. "We have some good people, but it's too early to tell.

Carman Salvino, the veteran Chicago pro, caused a lot of tongue wagging among the area's regular league bowlers during the past week in Sterling Heights.

After establishing a record for the pro bowlers association by averaging better than 250 for the first 16 games of the national tournament, he dropped back to 206.

"It's my own fault," he said, "I should have changed balls to meet the lane conditions. I didn't. I stuck with my old ball and look what happened.' What do you suppose that statement did to the regular league bowlers who have only one bowling ball? It gives them a good excuse to complain to the proprietor that the lanes are not being conditioned properly. No doubt you will hear more of this as the pros pile up big scores. But there is nothing new in the conditioning of the lanes. Dick Beattie had six different balls with him when he won the recent master's title at Bowlero.

THREE NEW members were admitted to the 700 club at Wonderland Lanes during the week and one of them came from a very strange place.

While Steve Miller and Phil Horowitz were breaking the 700 barrier in the classic Bud Gignac, rolled a 735 in the Saturday night

Miller had games of 241 and 235 for his 700 and Horowitz opened with a 247 for his 700

STRANGELY, there was only one 700 series bowled at Westland Bowl and it, too, wasn't bowled in the regular classic. Tom Wright turned the trick with a 756 in the Tri-City men's loop. To get the big count, he linked games of 256, 289 and 211.

Meanwhile, in the ladies classic, Jackie Richards set the pace with a 230 in 630. In order behind her came Joyce Hamilton with 607, Sandy Marsh with 606 and Betty New with

THERE HAS been some high scoring at Country Lanes in recent

For instance, the Amtek team in the Farmington Elks league fired a 3011. This was highlighted by Dennis Durocher's 656. Others who did well in the league included George Berlings with 685 and Vern Watts with a 686. This score was bettered when John Lomik turned in a 695 with a starting game of 257 in the Open league.

The suburban proprietors did some fancy shooting, too. Lou Brandt had a 248 in 709 and Bill Patterson a 257 in 697. Even in the Queen Bees loop the pins took a licking as Patti Krause had a 232.

IN THE men's senior house league at Merri-Bowl, Bill Nagle tuned in the high single with a 269 in 625. In the Toast and Coffee league, Marie Collins was high with a 234 in 559 and her average is 142.

IN OTHER good performances Pat Pipper, a 155 average bowler, rolled a 554 in the Coffee and Donuts league at Garden Lanes and Chris Jones, with a 129 average, fired a 503.

At Woodland Lanes, Jean Cleland, with a 130 average, had a 215 and Dick Hay, with a 169 average, had a

In the Morning Stars, Betty Kocki fired a 242 and Rita Giese had a 214 in 605. Katherine Rice fired a high single of 232 in the Thursday ladies

At Plaza Lanes, the Waterford men turned in some of their highest single games. Bob Gramlich had a 254, Jack Armstrong a 255 and James Siemase, a 253. Meanwhile, Jerry Zalewski paced the Business and Industrial League with 605.

At Super Bowl, Mike Hayes topped the Canton classic with 660 and Walt Stoddard had high game of 245. In the Superettes, Paul Bernette was high with a 235 in 567.

Jim Timmerman was well on his way to a 700 series with games of 237 and 234 in the Bel-Aire Classic settled for a 664 series.

Little Alec Ramsay (Kelly Reno) kisses his beloved horse, The Black, in "The Black Stallion."

'Black Stallion' appeals despite unmelded styles

Many years ago Hollywood director Charles Brackett is reputed to have summed up the difference between European and American films with this example:

"In Europe, you can open a picture with clouds, dissolve slowly to clouds, and dissolve again to more clouds. In America, you open with clouds, dissolve to an airplane, and in the next shot the airplane's gotta explode.

Judged by this example, "The Black Stallion" (G) seems to reflect both stylistic approaches, though it never melds them. The first half of the film, with a boy and a horse shipwrecked on a deserted island, has qualities, positive qualities, which relate to the European cinema.

Not because the film is slow; it isn't. But because the director is confident enough in the material he is working with to allow a patient unfolding. There is almost no dialogue; the magical quality of the images and the rhapsodic rhythm of the island sequences make words superfluous.

THESE BREATHTAKING scenes show off to advantage the striking features of the location, Sardinia, and the stunning camera work of Caleb Deschanel. Deschanel (who should have received an Oscar nomination for his work) often illuminates scenes in a dramatic, baroque way with dark backgrounds and raking light.

Further adding to the visual excitement are the nervous overtures of friendship between the boy, played by 11-year-old Kelly Reno, and the wild Black Stallion, played by an Arabian show

Reno looks and sounds like a young boy, not a young actor. Consequently, we never tire of him or, for that matter, of the horse, a superbly trained and handsome animal.

ACTUALLY SEVERAL horses were used because of the rigorous demands of the story. It begins with the boy and his father aboard a steamship somewhere off the coast of North Africa. A fire breaks out during a terrible storm. The boy is tossed into the rolling ocean and is miraculously carried to shore by the wild horse which he befriended aboard ship.

Daybreak finds the two of them, the lone survivors, on a rocky, deserted island. Ballard lets the camera tell the story - of how the boy despairs, of how his spirits are lifted when he sees the horse, of how the two of them gingerly approach each other; and, finally, of how they become horse and rider as the two race flat out along the rugged coast

WHAT HAPPENS next is an abrupt shifting of gears with a rescue and return home leading to the second half of the film. Reno, the Black Stallion and Deschanel's photography provide slim threads of continuity, but in an entirely new disign.

Now we have an apple-pie-American story and the addition of another important character, a grizzled ex-jockey played by Mickey Rooney. The boy and the old jockey plot to train the stallion and enter him as a mystery horse in a prestigious race. There is no discounting the excellence of the acting or the high production values, but the changes in atmosphere and tempo make this half seem like a different movie. It builds to a crescendo and the director then attempts to join motifs through concluding flash-

The plan doesn't work, but it does give us another chance to look at some singular images of beauty and courage.

Mickey Rooney is Henry Dailey, an aging horse trainer who turns a wild black horse into a disciplined racehorse.

APRIL SHOWERS? Actually, early spring is one of the most dangerous times of the year for fires.

"Grass fire season begins with just a few days of warm temperatures and a little wind after the snow disappears," says Richard Bradley, fire supervisor for the state Department of Natural Re-

"Ground moisture does not have too much effect on the standing grass," he explains. "Fire will travel fast even when the ground appears to be wet. These conditions exist until the grass acquires living moisture and begins to green up."

The moral: Even if the ground is damp, be supercareful with fire at this time of the year.

Smaller hospitals continue 'debedding' fight

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

Community hospitals are organizing to fight plans calling for a decrease in hospital beds to lower health care costs. The Michigan Association of Community Hospitals and Physicians is planning meetings throughout the metropolitan area as part of that fight.

One such meeting last week at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia gathered hospital administrators and staff, state legislators and community leaders to share information about the so-called debedding plan and opposition to it.

"We were shocked when we learned of the problems coming out of the Comprehensive Health Planning Council," State Rep. Wilbur Brotherton, R-Farmington, told the group. "In the legislation we passed, we included language to make sure that smaller hospitals and people who work there would be pro-

Concern over CHPC plans prompted a joint administrative rules committee of the state Legislature to call for a moratorium on implementing debedding, to form a committee to study the CHPC and to reject 1980 guidelines and Using federal funding, the CHPC is a non-profit group formed to plan health care for southeastern Michigan. The private group approved a debedding plan last Wednesday in order to meet a March 31 deadline set by the state for coming up with the plan.

"The thing that shocked us most was what we thought we were up to was a plan that said lets identify hospitals with unused beds, taking them out of service and bringing down costs," said Brotherton. "Some said the only solution is to close small hospitals. The point is that's the kind of psychology we're struggling with.

"The problem is mainly in southeast Michigan, but it is evident that there is concern elsewhere," he added.

The hospital group asked concerned residents to write to Brotherton at 2201/2 Capitol Building, Lansing 48909, or to State Sen. Robert Geake at 2221/2 Capitol Building, Lansing 48909.

Geake, R-Northville, said that debedding was one of three areas identified for cost savings programs in health care. Others are limiting the number of licensed specialties in the field and limiting third party payers, such as insurance groups.

Geake, whose district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Redford Township, said the legislature hoped to limit the increasing number of health care subspecialties and to force consumers to make sure costs are reasonable by limiting third parties paying for health Debedding has presented a dilemma for hospitals, according to Geake.

"We told hospitals to look at the beds in use. If beds weren't fully utilized, then they didn't need them. If beds were full on weekends when only minimal care is given, then we told hospitals they were wasting money," explained Geake. "This lead to disappointment and bitterness."

Lack of beds is actually a problem at St. Mary Hospital and Garden City Ostraining at Lackland Air Force Base in teopathic, according to Dr. Richard Horsch, vice president of the community hospital group and chief anesthesiologist at St. Mary. He said those hospitals have a three-week waiting list for surgical-medical beds.

"We're not here to preserve any system of hospitals. We're here to preserve the right to patients of choice, to preserve high quality hospitals and to provide a reasonable number of physicians in reasonable areas," said Dr.

He added that if hospitals in western Wayne County were forced to close beds, patients would be required to go to the more expensive Wayne County General, University of Michigan or Detroit Medical Center hospitals.

"We need a balanced system of community and referral hospitals," Dr. Horsch continued. "We don't quarrel with the intent of the plan. If beds are empty, lets get rid of them."

Expressing frustration with the debedding plan was Richard Sobota, president of the hospital association and associate administrator of Saratoga Hospital. Sobota said that some empty beds must be kept available in case of emergencies and that the CHPC "presumes" that there are people who don't belong in hospitals.

"It's dangerous to say that people don't have legitimate diseases, that we're manufacturing sick people," said Sobota. "They've told us that we use too many services, but what they haven't told us is how to eliminate illness.

"Community hospitals aren't recognized for their value, service and economics," Sobota added.

Using statistics from the American Hospital Association, Sobota said that large referral hospitals have grown while the number of community hospitals has actually declined. He said that it costs more to treat routine illnesses in referral-type institutions.

According to Allan Breakie, administrator of Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, that facility as well as Annapolis and St. Mary hospitals all meet or exceed the 85 percent occupany rate demanded by the CHPC.

"These hospitals were built int he last 25 years to meet needs and demands in this area. They weren't overbuilt. Take a look at them - they're extremely competitive in their costs per day for patients," he said.

Breakie added that Garden City Osteopathic has had to restrict its emergency room care during 24 of the last 85 days because of lack of beds. "A bed reduction of 17.8 percent would be disastrous," he continued.

1 tbsp. prepared mustard

Place meat, fat side up, on rack in roaster (121/4x85/8x21/4-inch). Insert meat thermometer into center of thickest part of meat, being sure that point doesn't touch bone. Bake at 350 degrees for 11/2 to 2 hours or until internal temperature reaches 130 to 140 degrees. Approximately 40 minutes before cooking time is completed, remove meat from oven. With a sharp knife, remove skin from meat, leaving a collar of skin at bone. Score fat into diamond pattern; insert cloves. For glaze, spoon combined sugar, juice concentrate and prepared mustard over ham several times during the last 35 to 40 minutes of cooking. To serve, transfer to platter, garnish with curly endive or chicory and orange slices. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

CHEESE AND SPINACH STRATA

- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded 2 pkgs. (10 oz. each) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
- ²/₃ cup chopped onion
- 18 thin sliced firm-type bread slices (about one 1-lb. loaf)
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 4 cups milk
- 1 tbsp. prepared mustard 2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper

Toss together 2 cups cheese, spinach and onion. Spread bread slices lightly on both sides with butter; place 6 bread slices onto bottom of greased oblong baking dish (13x9x1¾-inch). Top bread slices evenly with 1/2 cheese mixture, 6 bread slices and remaining 1/2 cheese mixture. Cut remaining 6 bread slices d diagonally into quarters; top casserole with overlapping bread friangles and remaining shredded cheese. Beat together eggs, milk, mustard and seasonings; pour carefully over casserole. Cover; refrigerate at least 1 hour or overnight. Bake at 350 degrees about 60 to 65 minutes, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Let stand 15 minutes. Place in server and cut into squares. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

EASTER BREAD

- 1 pkg. (1334 oz.) hot roll mix
- 1/3 cup warm water 1/3 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 4 eggs, slightly beaten

Dissolve yeast (included in mix) in water; stir in sugar, butter and eggs. Add mix, mixing until well blended. Spoon batter into greased 11/2-quart round casserole or 2-quart souffle dish. Let rise, uncovered, in warm place about 1 hour and 10 minutes or until double in size. Bake at 325 degrees about 35 to 40 minutes or until golden brown. Cool 5 minutes; loosen edge with knife and turn out of casserole. Serve warm. Spread with butter or margarine, if desired. Makes 1 loaf.

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM TORTE

- 1 pkg. (15 oz.) Plain Chocolate Candies
- 1/4 cup vegetable shortening
- 3 pints chocolate ice cream, or chocolate frozen yogurt, softened Toasted coconut, if desired
- Peanut Chocolate Candies, if desired

Line bottom and sides (2 inches high) of 11/2-quart round cake dish or 9-inch springform pan with heavy aluminum foil. Melt together plain candies and shortening in 2- or 3-quart casserole or heavy saucepan over very low heat, stirring constantly with wooden spoon and pressing candies with back of spoon to break up. (Chocolate will be melted and small pieces of color coating will remain in mixture). Spoon onto bottom of pan, spreading thick ridge of chocolate mixture around edge of pan with back of spoon. Chill in refrigerator 15 minutes. Remove from refrigerator; spread the slightly chilled and thickened ridge of chocolate up onto sides of pan about 11/2 inches high with metal spatula, creating chocolate shell. Freeze at least 20 minutes or until firm. To serve, remove from freezer. Remove torte from pan using foil rim to lift out. Peel off foil; place on 12-inch w tray or other flat serving dish. Garnish with t toasted coconut and o peanut chocolate candies, as desired. Makes one 8- to 9-inch torte.

Easter brunch or Easter dinner, these dishes are traditional, with a new twist.

When the last snowdrift melts away and there's frost at night but it's warm by day, suddenly you know - somewhere they're sugaring off.

They tell me it's all plastic hoses and automatic evaporators now. In memory, it's a sugar shanty set deep in woods, weathered to a soft silver gray. And there's the smell of wood smoke and sweet steaming sap.

And there was that wonderful Sunday at the end of the season when everyone came to grandmother's - aunts, uncles, cousins, friends and neighbors. Turkey platters filled with clear amber "taffy" were set outdoors to speed their cooling. There were maple sugar cakes in fancy iron molds.

The old-fashioned glamour of the syrup season may have gone, but if you are lucky enough to have some pure maple syrup, there are many ways to use it other than on pancakes or waffles.

MAPLE SYRUP PIE

- 1 cup maple syrup 1/2 cup water
- 3 tbsp. cornstarch 2 tbsp. cold water
- 2 tbsp. butter

1/4 cup chopped nuts Pastry for 2-crust pie.

Boil the maple syrup with the 1/2-cup water for five minutes. Blend the cornstarch with the 2 tablespoons of water and add to the syrup. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture is smooth and transparent. Add butter and chopped nuts and let cool. Bake between two crusts in a 400-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes.

SUGAR SHANTY COOKIES

1/2 cup shortening

- 1 cup maple syrup
- 1 egg 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 tsp. salt 2 tsp. baking powder 1/2 cup raisins
- 1 1/2 cups oatmeal
- 1 tsp. nutmeg 4 c. milk
- 4 cup chopped nuts

Toasting the oatmeal in the oven adds to the flavor of these cookies. Place the shortening, maple syrup and egg in a bowl and beat until creamy. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder. Add oatmeal, raisins and nutmeg. Add the milk and the nuts. Blend this mixture thoroughly with the creamed mixture. Drop by teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet and bake in 375-degree oven for 15 minutes. Makes four to five dozen cookies. MAPLE FUDGE

- 1 cup maple syrup
- 3 cups light brown sugar 1 cup white sugar
- 2 tbsp. baking powder
- 2 cups half and half
- Pinch of salt 1 tbsp. butter
- 2 tbsp. vanilla
- Chopped nuts (optional) Place all ingredients except the last three in a large saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly. The syrup will swell at the beginning but will go down.

Cook until soft ball stage or until candy thermometer reaches 240 degrees. Let the fudge cool, then add the butter, vanilla and the nuts. Spread into a buttered pan. This will make two pounds.

Symbolism of the egg goes back to mythology

At sunset there is a blazing fire and the Phoenix, in a nest of spices, is consumed by the flames, a victim of selfimmolation. It leaves behind, however, a single egg from which it is reborn.

This dramatic, mythological representation of death and rebirth is one source of the Christian identification of the egg with resurrection.

The Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring had as her emblems both the egg and the hare. It is possible that the very word "Easter" was derived from the name of this goddess, Eostre. Again, the egg was a pagan symbol of fertility and new life and again the symbol was co-opted by the Christians and identified with their own spring celebration,

Even the hare remains associated with the feast, albeit in a secular fashion, as the Easter Bunny.

THE EGG became even more closely associated with Easter when its consumption during Lent was forbidden by strict fasting laws of the early Church. This prohibition, along with the natural scarcity of food in winter, made the Easter egg a special treat.

Lenten fasting regulations have relaxed considerably and the egg is no longer forbidden in this period of preparation for Easter.

By the same token, people are no longer familiar with the mythology which invests the egg with such rich symbolism

Despite the loss of these connections with the past, the egg continues to be a central part of our Easter celebration. Decorated eggs nestle in grass-filled baskets, surrounded by the candies left by the Easter Bunny.

Eggs also appear as part of festive Easter brunches. The following menu features the egg in its most impressive form, the souffle. In an inversion of the Easter basket, this unusual dish features spring greens (lettuce here rather than grass) nestled inside the eggs.

The only trick is to have everyone seated and ready when the souffle emerges from the oven. High, puffy and golden, it is a visual treat not to be

Your best home-made biscuits would make an appropriate accompaniment as would a chilled citrus salad, assembled the night before.

If you would like something sweet to finish the meal, Italian Easter Bread would be perfect. This fanciful coffee cake should be baked a day ahead and refrigerated, in deference to the eggs tucked into the braid.

ROMAINE SOUFFLE

- 1 head romaine lettuce 4 tbsp. butter, divided
- 3 chopped green onions 3 tbsp. flour
- 1 cup extra-rich milk, heated
- 4 eggs, separated 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 tsp. salt

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce 2 or 3 dashes Tabasco Grated Parmesan cheese

Cut off the bottom of the lettuce. Wash thoroughly and chop coarsely. Put into a heavy saucepan with a little water and cook until wilted. Drain well and chop finely. Melt 1 tbsp. butter in a skillet and cook the green onions until soft but not brown. Add romaine and cook, stirring, until moisture has evap-

In a saucepan, melt the remaining 3 tbsp. butter; mix in 3 tbsp. flour and cook for 2 to 3 minutes, stirring. Add the milk and cook until thickened. Beat the egg yolks into the sauce, one at a time, then add the Cheddar cheese and cook until smooth. Stir in romaine mixture until well blended. Season wth the salt, Worcestershire sauce and Ta-

Pour into the souffle dish and smooth the top. Sprinkle with a little Parmesan cheese and put into a preheated 400 degree oven. Immediately reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake for 25 to 35 minutes. Makes about 4 small servings.

FRUIT CUP

- 1 pink grapefruit 1 white grapefruit
- 4 oranges 1 can (1 lb., 4 oz.) pineapple chunks in
- unsweetened juice, undrained 2 cups orange juice

Peel grapefruit and oranges. Segment and cut into chunks, removing membrane and seeds. Place in a large bowl. Add pineapple chunks with their juice and the orange juice. Mix gently. Cover and chill. Makes 6-8 servings.

Combine fruits, nuts and anise seed. Punch dough down and turn out onto lightly-floured surface. Knead in fruit mixture. Keep fruit mixture dusted with flour until pieces are worked into dough. Divide dough in half. Roll each piece into a 24-inch rope. Twist ropes together loosely and form into a ring on an oiled baking sheet, pinching the ends together. Brush with melted butter.

Carefully make a nesting place for each raw egg by spreading ropes apart and pushing eggs down into the dough as far as possible.

Cover dough with waxed paper. Allow to rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake about 30, to 35 minutes, or until a wooden pick inserted in bread comes out clean and dry. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack

Combine frosting ingredients. Carefully drizzle over cooled bread and beween the eggs. Makes one 12-inch circular loaf. NOTE: If the licorice-flavored anise seeds are not to your taste, you might substitute cinnamon or grated lemon peel.

WITH MILDRED Field back in town for a birthday celebration at Field Elementary School, it figured her former staff at Starkweather would consider her presence enough was cause for a get-together. Sure enough, a call to Marian Breed proved the point.

Miss Field arrived Thursday morning. Her plans included a visit to Starkweather, where she had been principal for many years, and lunch in the library with old friends.

Some of them are still at the school John Howe, who followed Miss Field as principal, Helen Kelly, Andea Roderick, Dick Johnson, Barbara Lockwood, Debbie Beardsley, Phil Radant and Peggy Anderson. Marian Owens, secretary, and aides Betty Fisher and Helen Bennett were invited to the Miss Field and Millicent Smith came from their retirement home in South Haven for the occasion. Miss Field is in good health and is not idle. As well as her regular activities, she is a volunteer at the South Haven Hospital.

Mildred Field returns for a birthday party

Not many students have an opportunity to meet the person after whom their school was named. Students at Field Elementary School not only met Mildred Field last week, they celebrated her birthday with her. The longtime teacher and principal of Starkweather Elementary School came from her retirement home in South Haven for the occasion and was right at home visiting the classrooms to meet the children and teachers. She signed special citizen awards, and went home carrying birthday wishes from the students. Above, she talked to first and second graders in Shirlee Jacobson's class. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Parents advised on the art of coping

By BETTY MASSON

"What can I do today to mess up Mommy's mind?"

Although one mother was convinced that question was her child's daily goal, 4-year-olds aren't really trying to create instant insanity, according to one

'Ignore the behavior, but not the child," advises Angela Laycock, contemporary parenting instructor.

Mrs. Laycock headed a recent child management discussion in Field School in Canton Township. She is an instructor in the contemporary parenting program at Eastern Michigan University, now in its second year. The talk was sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton PLUS Program, Title I-Head Start.

Mrs. Laycock began her talk by acknowledging, "It is much easier to talk about parenting than it is to do it.

"Acting up by other kids doesn't bother you, because you don't feel the same sense of responsibility. Sometimes your own children are not easy to deal with, even in very simple kinds of situations," said Mrs. Laycock, who has been married 25 years and is the mother of two sons.

She believes there are factors in contemporary life that make parenting more difficult.

"We didn't get into trouble when we were young, because everyone in the neighborhood knew us, and would tell our parents. But today, we don't have a lot of contact with our neighbors."

Television and increased mobility also make life more difficult for parents today, she said.

THE PROBLEMS, however, sounded

Temper tantrums, whining and 4year-olds seemed most threatening to a mother's emotional balance from the comments and questions from the audi-

One mother confessed she hid herself in the bathroom to try to recover from the strain of dealing with an overly-dependent, whining child. But it was hard to find serenity through transcendental meditation with three children batter-

In tantrums, as in most problem areas, Mrs. Laycock advised looking for the cause. It could be fatigue, a reaction to a new environment or boredom, especially in a shopping center where the most interesting thing a small child can see usually is the floor.

Mrs. Laycock is an advocate or rewarding children for good behavior. Rewards might consist of time, love, affection and attention.

"Children honestly love people more than things; the time you spend with children is very important," she said.

She also stressed patience. "It may not work the first time you change from a yelling mom to a patient one. It will take time."

who is having a temper tantrum.

"Being out of control is scary, and physical closeness is very important.

She counseled staying close to a child Above all, the mother shouldn't get out of control, too.'

Some of the mothers told Mrs. Laycock that they had success in controlling whining and tantrums by awarding their child a colorful seal for a certain number of hours without incidents.

Breast-feeding might also create a calmer child, said Mrs. Laycock. "There is a lot of evidence that chilquil and better behaved. Researchers believe that this is because hearing the mother's heartbeat is reassuring to the

A FATHER in the audience called for reasonableness.

If parents reward themselves at the supermarket with wine and cigarets, he said, it's reasonable for a child to expect something too.

The Joneses produce new work

Christ's passion and death as seen from the point of view of the women around him is the basis of new musical work to be presented April 20 by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and the Schoolcraft Community Choir

A lot of Joneses will be involved. Robert W. Jones of Schoolcraft College is the composer. Dr. Marilyn Jones will guest conduct the symphony, and is regular conductor of the choir.

Bob's wife, Anne, wrote 10 poems for the work based on the Gospel of St. Matthew from the Last Supper through the burial of Christ in the tomb of Joseph of Aramathia:

Dave, Marilyn's husband, did the copying, and Christopher, Bob and Anne's 17-year-old son, will be playing string bass with the orchestra.

JONES' WORK, entitled "Passion," was conceived more than a year ago as a piece for a community chorus.

Putting it all together has taken a tremendously coordinated effort, said

"I discussed it with Marilyn Jones, and with Wayne Dunlap, then conductor of the Plymouth Symphony.

"Next came funding which we secured through a grant through Dean Ron Griffith of the college's communi-"Finally, the writing, with the heavy

"I've learned my lesson with 'Passion,' no more biggies while school is in

JONES JOINED Schoolcraft as a resident composer in 1969. He has produced 30 pieces since then including "Mass in Motion" in 1974; "Pilgrimage," a Bicentennial opera in 1976; and a ballet, "Burning Tree," written with Schoolcraft English instructor Ralph

Kelley in 1976 for the Plymouth Sym-

A faculty recital this summer will consist solely of Jones compositions, including a new violin sonata he is writ-

A native of Chicago, Jones earned bachelor's and master's degrees in music at California's University of the Redlands. He also took post-graduate courses at the University of Minnesota where he was a teaching fellow.

But according to him, Schoolcraft really has been his only teaching post, and generally he likes the combination of teaching and composing.

With roots from a larger city, Bob and Anne enjoy living in Detroit's Rosedale Park. Their daughter, Gwyneth, 15, like her older brother, attends Waldorf High in Indian Village.

"We weren't sure either of the children would be attracted to music, but they've both gotten interested within the past two years," Jones said. "Gwyn is a violinist, and Christopher, of course, plays string bass."

WIFE ANNE is also a musician and joined her husband in a recent performance to benefit the college's new grand piano fund. She prefers prose writing, according to Jones, and currently is a features editor of a weekly suburban newspaper.

Jones himself has little time for anything other than music. Even his hobby as a model railroader has had to be shunted aside.

Besides composing, teaching and performing, he is organist at First United Presbyterian Church of Plym-

Jones is hoping for a sabbatical leave for the winter semester in 1981. "I plan to use the time to clean up some shorter musical works and to complete a music appreciation textbook for community colleges," he said. To date, he has done practically every kind of composition work there is jazz, motion picture score, symphonic ballet and opera. "I guess the best I can see ahead is perhaps bigger and better versions of each," he concluded.

Robert Jones (right) collaborated with script writer Ralph Kelley when he composed the music for the folk ballet "Burning Tree," a bicentennial production by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. (Staff

Moravian Church sunrise services are traditional

Sunrise on Easter morning will find a group of local residents celebrating the meaning of the day in a way reminiscent of the early disciples of Jesus.

Members and friends of Faith Community Moravian Church will go to the "tomb" at dawn to offer praise for the resurrection of Christ. The celebration will begin at 5:45 a.m. at the Canton Township Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

After a service there, worshippers will go to Kenyon Cemetery at Gyde and Ridge Roads for the conclusion of the service.

It will feature music by a brass quartet of Canton High School musicians, Brian Azelborn, Karen Lattin, John Upton and Carl Battishill, music instructor at the school.

They will accompany singing both indoors and at the cemetery.

Following the service, worshippers will eat breakfast together at a local restaurant. Members of the community are invited to attend this unusual service, which is one of the Easter traditions of the Moravian Church, the of oldest or organized Protestant denomi-

The Rev. Darryl Bell, pastor of the New Faith Community congregation, said, "The Moravian Church's teachings and practices are not unlike those of most Protestant denominations, but some of its special traditions around the holidays, such as this service, are especially moving.

Bell describes the experience as "something very special by going to the actual place of resurrection. By being there, close to nature, witnessing the sunrise, one feels a strong sense of affirmation and assurance that Christ's resurrection does indeed touch life today and give it meaning.

For those inclined to sleep a little longer on Easter morning, the church will hold its regular Sunday School at 9:15 and a family pnc worship celebration at 10:30 at Pioneer Middle School, 46081 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth.

This is the temporary home as it prepares to construct a new building on Warren Road near Canton Center. Groundbreaking is scheduled for early

Service answers cancer questions

Mrs. M., a 65-year-old widow, was so upset when her physician told her she had a suspicious lump in her breast that by the time she got home, she had forgotten much of what the doctor had

She called the Public Response Program at the Michigan Cancer Foundation (MCF) and her questions were soon answered.

Jim S. had been given several of his uncle's suits after the uncle died of lung cancer. Jim needed the suits, but wondered whether he could contact cancer from them. He called the Torch Drive agency's Public Response Program and was assured that cancer is not contagious and cannot be "caught" by contact with another person, nor from a patient's clothing.

Linda C. was determined to give up cigarettes, but felt she needed help to quit. She called the program and was given the names and schedules of the nearest stop-smoking clinics.

MORE THAN 6,470 Detroiters called the toll-free Public Response Program, at 1-800-462-9191, during 1979. And, in the first four weeks of 1980, 606 calls were answered, the bulk of which followed Channel 56's showing of the "Joan Robinson" documentary, which chronicled one woman's cancer

The service was established in July 1978 as part of the Metropolitan Detroit Cancer Control Program (MDCCP), a $10 million, federally cosponsored program to coordinate local cancer control activities. Detroit's Public Response Program will become one of 31 Cancer Information Services, officically designated by the National Cancer Institute.

The telephone service then will be extended to cover all of Michigan, and will provide consultation service for health professionals as well as the general public.

Currently, the program provides information on the following issues: specific types of cancer, ways cancer is detected, methods of diagnosing cancer, local screening and detection centers, types of cancer treatments, finding a doctor, local treatments and rehabilitation programs, emotional counseling programs for patients and families, home care, local transportation, financial aid, cancer quackery and research and carcinogens.

Operators do not recommend treatments or give medical aid. They help the caller to translate a physician's technical explanation into everyday language, and help provide a link between the caller and the doctor or community resource.

AN MCF EVALUATION Unit sample survey profiles the typical caller to be a married female homemaker between 29 and 49 years old.

However, nearly one-quarter of the callers are men; 20.9 percent of all callers are single; 14.1 percent are employed in service occupations; and 12.3 percent are physicians, lawyers, teachers and other professionals.

About half of the callers are between the ages of 20 and 39, and about 40 percent are between 40 and 69.

Almost 50 percent of the callers request general cancer information or information on a specific condition, and 17.5 percent ask for literature to be sent to them. Another 27.8 percent ask for referrals to service organizations or other medical agencies; 4.2 percent want referrals for specific medical conditions; and 4.7 percent of the callers seek emotional support.

Staff and volunteer operators answer calls from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays-Fridays. At other times, a tape-recorded message refers callers to a toll-free number operated by the National Cancer Institute.

often greater than with adults," agreed Mrs. Laycock.

Another parent suggested that listening to children is important. When her son arrived home from school in a temper, she learned that during the day the following events had taken place:

- · His lunchbox was used as a football by the other kids.
- · His banana was mashed. · His cupcake frosting was stuck to
- the wrapper. · He had a substitute teacher who hadn't been at all sympathetic.

HELPING HIM handle his feelings fell into one of Mrs. Laycock's three goals of parenting: helping a child develop appropriate behaviors; keeping a child safe (without being overprotective); and helping a child learn to deal with his emotions.

Parents are advised to emphasize each child's uniqueness. Building a child's self-image is very important, although sometimes a parent has to be a real Sherlock Holmes to seek out an area in which the child can excel.

Letting a child help around the house also builds his self-esteem, she said. "The child, in helping, probably won't come up to your expectations of the way the job should be done.

Fort Jefferson

Built for war, used as prison, now Gibraltar of the Gulf

Millions of Americans saw Fort Jefferson on television last week during the three-hour showing of "The Ordeal of Dr. Samuel Mudd" on CBS. Few viewers realize that Fort Jefferson is now a national monument and a possible travel destination. Here is a report from two journalists who recently flew there.

By RICHARD and MARY MAGRUDER

Our tiny Conch plane hangs suspended between a sky dotted with cotton clouds and a sea green with islands. Behind us are the Marquesas, coral reefs famous among rum runners and dope smugglers. Ahead is the great six-sided fortress known as Fort Jefferson, on a tiny coral atoll in the middle of an endless sea.

Fort Jefferson was the largest of the coastal forts built from Texas to Maine during the 19th century. It was never converted to a Union prison, and its most famous inmate was Dr. Samuel Mudd.

Mudd set the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of Abraham Lincoln, and was sentenced to life imprisonment on this island for conspiracy. He was pardoned after four years because of his part in fighting a yellow fever epidemic.

WE ARE FLYING with Nick Dunn of Air Tortugas, who makes this flight daily from the Key West airport.

"There it is, dead ahead, Fort Jefferson," Dunn said. "It's miles from nowhere, taking up all but the tiniest bit of Garden Key."

We nose down towards the little cluster of atolls that make up the Dry Tortugas. They were named by Ponce de Leon, with the appendage dry added generations later to warn seamen of the lack of natural water on the travel log

Thousands of frigate birds, sooties, terns and gulls wheel below us, like thick clots of summer bugs around a lantern. We make half a dozen circles over Garden Key, where the great six-sided fort stretches to every edge.

Dunn aims for a series of markers forming a watery runway offshore, and then for the amphib ramp off to one side of the fort. We clamber out and stared at the most imposing fortress of its period that we have seen, from New England down past the Carolinas, beyond Alabama and Mississippi to Texas.

THE FORT WAS started in 1846 and was built over 31 years. Construction was halted by the Civil War. Federal troops occupied it in 1861 to keep it out of the hands of secessionists from Florida, but it saw no combat except for a few short-fall shots between the mortars and Confederate gunboats that came too close for comfort.

Only about 500 men ever occupied Fort Jefferson when it was in use as a fort. As a prison, it housed mostly those who were regarded as incorrigible or as threats to the newly won Federation.

Our pilot leads us around a corner of the massive old building. Each wall extends for the length of two football fields and rises to 50 feet above the surrounding moat.

The guard towers on each point rise 65 feet above the sandy little coral reef. The fort is made of a hard rust-red brick, and it is a remarkable, lonely old ruin.

Its very location, almost 70 miles beyond the nearest road, assures the uniqueness of this fort as a destination for visitors, whether they come by air or sea. That placement assures that it will never become a popular waystop on anybody's tour to anywhere

A few charter craft make it out to Fort Jefferson was started in 1846, built over 31 years. First a fort, federal troops occupied it in 1861. As a prison, it housed those regarded as incorrigible or a threat to the federation. Today its towers guard deserted gun rooms never used, crumbling stairways and locked door-ways.

the fort, as do occasional private sailboats and power boats. Dunn comes every day in his little plane. Otherwise, the fort stands alone.

We wander in and out of the gun emplacements, the old kitchens, the officers' quarters (now occupied by the U.S. Park Service men who maintain the fort as a National Monument.) We visit the lonely cells of prisoners, now long gone.

A squat little outdoor structure that looks like it might have been a solitary confinement hell hole, turns out to be a bread oven. Another strangely shaped outbuilding, with thick firebrick walls, was where lead bullets were made.

Here were the foundations of the barracks, long since torn down. Here the commandant's house, the armory and the enormous gap-roofed building where powder was stored.

We stroll for more than an hour down the long, arched corridors of the second level, through connecting gun rooms that were never used in battle and through the main cell block where most of the prisoners

"AND THIS WAS Dr. Mudd's cell," Dunn says. It is a sad quiet
"He cut that trench all around the walls and across the parapet to drain the condensation from the walls. He cut that trench with a spoon handle to get rid of what he once described to his wife as this most unendurable humidity.

"Imagine."

We can only imagine. The gusty air of the Gulf is welcome as we go up a crumbling stairway through a partially bricked-up door. Here we can see it all, from the black iron fighthouse tower added as a precaution decades ago, across angled roofs to the sea. Weeds and small bushes grow out of little soil-filled pickets in the brick.

The only noise, other than our occasional murmured remarks, is the cry of frigate birds wheeling insistently overhead.

We sit atop the mortars, staring out to sea. We do a final silent turn around the quadrangle, exit through the tunnel into the sun and board the plane.

Nobody says a word. We are airborne and climbing through angelsthree before Dunn begins to mod his head. "It got to you too, right" he asks.

"Yes."
"It gets to everybody. It even gets to me, and I come here every day. There is something sad and special about that old place."

"It's been called the Gibraltar of the Gulf for a long time now. It stands out there on that little coral reef, beautiful, proud, lonely, sad and a little obsured. But it was well worth

oh yes, we agree. It's an anachronism, but old Fort Jefferson is one of the most rewarding one-day excursions we've taken anywhere in the

If you'd like Nick Dunn to do his number on you, he can be reached at Air Tortugas, Key West Airport, or by phoning 1-305-872-2003. You can also reach the fort by charter boat or by your own boat. Camping is allowed, but take your own water.

Hard rust-red brick walls standing stark beneath a scorching sun rise 50 feet above the moat that surrounds the fortress/prison.

"If you die in the South and go to heaven, you'll change planes at Atlanta." I heard that old joke several times during the 12 hours between missing and flight and catching another here at Atlanta. I wasn't

Ah, what a life next joke, please missing one flight and catching another here at Atlanta. I wasn't the only stranded traveler. Everyone in Atlanta International Airport was swapping stories about planes missed and flights rescheduled.

▶ Iris Sanderson Jones

We were on an Eastern Airline flight from Detroit to Atlanta on the first leg of a trip to Mexico City, when we heard the joke first.

We were 20 minutes out of Atlanta when the pilot said "Ladies and gentlemen, Atlanta is foggy and the planes are stacked up waiting to land. We don't have enough fuel to circle for an hour so we are diverting to Huntsville, Alabama."

"Typical Friday morning traffic jam," somebody said. "If you die in the South and go to heaven, you must change planes in Atlanta."

That's exactly what I wanted to do change planes in Atlanta.

That's exactly what I wanted to do, change planes in Atlanta. All I could think of as I sat bolt upright in my seat was my connecting flight to Mexico City, due to leave in one hour, and the carefully planned itinerary that was riding on it.

Two friends were waiting for us on that plane, and a car-and-driver were waiting to take us straight out of Mexico City.

IF YOU LOOK on an airline map, you will see that all the air routes in the south cross here, making Atlanta look like the center of a flying ball of string that spreads out in every direction.

We landed two hours late, and literally pressed our noses against the window to watch our Mexico City flight take off without us. Our friends were aboard. Our driver was waiting.

We retired to Eastern Airlines Ionosphere Lounge, as inabsentia guests of our flown-away friends, who brave this airport often enough to make it worthwhile spending $40 a year for a membership.

Rescheduled for an 8 p.m. flight to Mexico, we took a taxi into Atlanta and it was rainy. When we returned, the airport was jammed with people trying to fly out. The flights could take off, but they had to come in first and half the planes in the U.S. airline industry were circling overhead.

Two businessmen sat down nearby. "I've been here since 2 p.m." one of them said.

"Hell, I've been here since 10 this morning."

"I'm on standy-by for the 8:15 and the 11:15, and if I don't get on one of those, I'm going to sleep somewhere." "I'd stay overnight, but I don't have any underwear."

PEOPLE WERE talking about the new Atlanta terminal which is supposed to open in September. Others were talking bout how this happens twice a week in Atlanta.

A voice on the loud speaker announced "Flight 102 is on the ground and will depart in 30 minutes. Flight 703 has been delayed another 40 minutes."

And a voice behind us said cheerfully, "If you die in the South and go to heaven, you have to change planes in Atlanta."

We finally changed planes in Atlanta. The 8:15 flight left at 10 p.m. Our car and driver were gone from Mexico City. We took a second-class bus full of Saturday afternoon celebrating rancheros to our destination, San Miguel De Allende.

And I wrote a lot of post cards to the people who always tell me how romantic it is to be a travel writer.

COMES THE SPRING and with it an addition to the bookshelf.

Now available from Icarus Press in Indiana is "The Book of Festivals in the Midwest," a timely ticket to festivals and fairs, numbering more than 500, in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, and Kentucky.

Included in the comprehensive, paperbacked, 197-page listing are festivals and fairs around the Midwest, maps, dates and locations, contact people and concessions available, admittance fees, accommodations, attractions, campground and RV park guide, and a two-year calendar of events.

The book is available for $6.95 from Icarus Press, Box 1225, South Bend, Ind. 46624; or call 1-219-291-3200.

Missing from the Michigan entries, Palmer Park, Ann Arbor, and Lafayette art fair dates, and the Ann Arbor Film Festival, for people ahead of the game and planning the year's agenda. For that same group, however, the Stroh's International Frisbee Tournament at Atlantic Mine near Houghton is July 4-6; the National Cherry Festival in Traverse City is July 6-12; Abbott's Magic Get-Together in Colon is Aug. 13-16; the Paw Paw Grape Wine Festival in Paw Paw is Sept, 19-21; and the Plymouth Chicken Flying Contest Oct. 5.

CHICAGOING SOON? A Chicago Holidays brochure from the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau has 37 plans with which to take in the Windy City's ammenities. Prices range from $49.90, double occupancy, for two nights for the Ascot House "Hideaway Holiday," to the Ritz-Carlton's "Deluxe Interlude" at $295 per couple, double occupancy, for two nights.

Putting on the Ritz includes room for two, bottle of champagne on arrival, pre-theater dinner for two, two tickets to the Drury Lane Theater, breakfast for two in the room or in the cafe, use of the spa and swimming pool, two-nights' parking, and taxes and gratuities.

For information, write the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau, Department J, 332 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60604. Include 25 cents for postage and handling.

CONNECTICUT may be your destination this year. If so, take advantage of the free "Your 1980/81 Connecticut Vacation Guide."

The 48-page book comes complete with points of interest listed by subject and community, a recreation map showing tourist attractions, also events, golf courses, campgrounds, theater and music festivals, and swimming facilities and lodgings.

For a copy write Travel, Department of Economic Development, 210 Washington St., Hartford, Conn. 06106; or call 1-203-566-3948. The publication will be available after May 1.

"AFRICAN FURNITURE and Household Objects" will begin a stay at the Indianapolis Museum of Art April 9. There will be 260 pieces in the exibit containers, baskets, pottery, beds, stools, games, lis. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays-Sundays, closed Mondays. From Indianapolis, the show heads to Kansas City, San Francisco, Memphis, and New York.
