On-again, off-again treasurer perplexes board

By DARLENE STINSON

The on-again, off-again resignation of Treasurer Jim Donahue has caught Canton Township officials in a dilemma that they'd rather do without in an election year.

Donahue has withdrawn his intention to resign, placing that decision along with solutions for staffing problems in the treasury department on the shoulders of township board members.

Donahue, 32, announced that he would resign last month because of a myriad of health problems, including an ulcer. He has now suggested staying on board and relegating his administrative duties to Deputy Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz. He would continue performing his legislative duties on the township board.

In an April 2 letter, Donahue called his suggestion "an option" for township board members to consider. He left for a two-week vacation in Florida after saying that he would return a portion of his $7,500 salary if the township board accepts his suggestion.

BUT THE FIVE board members who attended Tuesday's meeting balked at assuming any responsibility for Donahue's decision.

"We didn't put him up here," said Trustee Steve Larson. "And we can't demand his resignation. That's up to the people of Canton."

Several board members hinted that Donahue should resign if he cannot perform the duties for which he was elected. His term expires in November.

But they also admitted that

Donahue's proposal may be the only way to avoid digging a gaping hole in treasury department operations.

Not knowing what else to do, they voted 3-2 to increase Mrs. Falkiewicz's salary of $135 a week to the "living wage" of $18,000 annually. Mrs. Falkiewicz, who announced her own intention to resign in February, has told board members that she cannot shoulder full-time responsibilities for the department at her former wage.

She has been carrying all of Donahue's administrative responsibilities since last December, according to several sources inside Township Hall. She withdrew her resignation, which apparently was prompted by the workload, when Donahue said he would resign last month.

Township board members are adamant about keeping Mrs. Falkiewicz on board. She masterminded a program for investing township tax dollars which netted Canton $900,000 last year.

Board members say the township would lose money if Mrs. Falkiewicz left the treasurer's office — the only department in Township Hall which lacks a full-time manager.

THE BOARD'S action Tuesday night in effect gives Mrs. Falkiewicz that supervisory position. The part-time treasurer's job will become full time after next November's election.

But Supervisor Noel Culbert says that Donahue's indecision has placed the township board in a "terrible dilemma." Board members have expressed distaste for the proposed arrangement under which Donahue and Mrs. Falkiewicz would share the treasurer's duties.

"It's like Maria (Falkiewicz) doing all the work, and Donahue doing the voting," said Trustee Eugene Daley. "This situation has been going on for six to eight months, and everyone knows it."

But township board members don't know what else to do.

If Donahue decides to resign, Mrs. Falkiewicz' appointment as deputy treasurer will automatically terminate.

She has indicated that personal problems would preclude acceptance of a board appointment to complete the seven months remaining of Donahue's term for his part-time salary of $7,500 a year. Board members would have to raise the treasurer's wage — an action which they would rather not take in an election year.

But Culbert also maintains that appointing a new treasurer unfamiliar with department operations would

...And the rains came but basements stay dry

It rained and it poured.

That simple fact last week dampened Easter spirits for hundreds of Canton residents. And this week's rain continued to trigger memories of what became known as last year's Good Friday Flood.

Unlike the downpour on April 13, 1979, this year's spring rains only repeated history for a small number of homeowners in Brookside subdivision.

About six homeowners on Georgetown reported flooded basements after last Friday's rain, according to engineer Robert Wade.

Jake Dingeldey, superintendent of department of public works, said no flooded basements were reported after Tuesday's downpour.

On Good Friday last year, the basements of 350 to 400 homes in Canton were filled with as much as 2 feet of sewer water. Widespread basement flooding also occurred on July 11.

The township has taken precautions to guard against a replay of last year's flood, such as a $126,000 expenditure for the repair of 144 manholes.

But Wade, who was charged with explaining the nightmare to irate homeowners last spring and summer, said he was so worried Friday that he canvassed the township in search of flooding reports.

"When it got to be Thursday and it started raining, I just thought, 'This can't happen to me again,'" Wade said.

DESPITE ONLY a few flooding reports, Wade says that ground conditions and precipitation so far this spring are too different from conditions last year to predict that widespread flooding will not reoccur.

The engineer placed most of the blame for last year's flood on defective manholes in the sanitary sewer system.

He theorized that openings in the manhole casings allowed storm water from flooded streets to enter the sanitary system. The system overflowed in basements, mainly in Windsor Park, Carriage Hills, Brookside Village, Mayfair, Sunflower Village and Willow Creek subdivisions.

Kolar Contracting Co., the firm hired to repair 152 manholes, has already completed work on 144, according to Wade.

The township plans to make repairs to additional manholes and clean out sanitary pipes once the ground thaws completely. Township officials hope to finance that project, estimated at $204,000, through a grant from the federal Environmental Agency.

Wade believes other factors are contributing to the absence of flooding so far this year.

"For one thing, we've had a vastly different spring," he said.

Heavy snowfall during the winter of 1979 contributed to last spring's flood along with frozen ground which failed to soak up rain. Those conditions — which were absent this year — led to overflowing storm drains, flooded streets and the leaking of storm water into sanitary sewers.

Storm drains clogged with weeds and construction debris also contributed to last year's flood, Wade said. The drains are cleaner now because of a sharp drop in construction activity and the efforts of many residents to clean drains which run through their backyards.

The end of Canton's decade-old construction boom has drastically reduced the number of basement excavations. Wade said that many builders last year failed to plug drains in the excavations. That violation of township ordinances allowed additional water to enter the sanitary system.

"The test is yet to come," Wade said of flooding possibilities. "I would hope that it won't come this year."

Drains such as this one in Canton just didn't seem to be enough last year when residents coped with flooded basements and streets. (Photo by Gary Caskey)

Motorist forced to drive here by car hijacker

A hijacker forced a motorist to drive from Miamisburg, Ohio, to Canton Township Saturday night.

Cecil Fullen, 49, of Miamisburg dropped the abductor off behind the Rusty Nail bar on Ford Road near Sheldon about 1 a.m. Sunday, according to police. Fullen was not injured in the incident.

Canton police Lt. Larry Stewart said the case has been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, because kidnapping charges are involved.

Fullen told Canton police that a white male about 20 to 23 years old hopped into his car at a traffic light in the city south of Dayton. According to police, the abductor held his hand in his pocket as though he carried a gun and ordered Fullen to drive north on I-75.

Fullen told police that the man ordered him off the freeway at Canton's Ford Road exit. The man fled on foot after Fullen stopped behind the Rusty Nail, police said.

But preferred to unification

35th Court proposals disliked

In an attempt to reconcile other communities in the court district, Supervisor Noel Culbert has made two proposals for the construction of a unified 35th District Court facility next to Canton's administration building.

The supervisor adds, however, that he personally dislikes both proposals to finance the estimated $1.3 million building through either a federal grant or township sewer funds.

He favors keeping the one-year-old courtroom in the basement of Township Hall.

The proposals follow a township board veto of plans to build a unified court facility outside Canton Township. The plan was supported by the four other communities in the 35th District — the cities of Plymouth and Northville, and Plymouth and Northville townships.

Canton, which finances 40 percent of the district's costs, has indicated that it will secede from the 35th District rather than pay for a courtroom in another municipality.

CULBERT SAID he formed the proposals for a court in Canton at the direction of the township board. Officials indicated that they would deed the court a portion of the 68-acre township hall property in order to keep a courtroom in Canton.

Under one proposal, Culbert recommends a delay in construction plans until the township can apply for a federal public work grant. A similar grant financed construction of Canton's $2.2 million administration building in 1978.

Under the other proposal, the courtroom would be built with money from the township's $3.5 million sewer fund. Culbert said the township board would have to amend an ordinance which limits use of those funds for water and sewer purposes.

Both proposals are intended to match an offer from the city of Plymouth to finance the courtroom's construction with a city bond sale. The court would pay off the bonds over a 25-year period through rental payments.

Culbert said Canton Township officials could possibly negotiate a similar agreement for repayment.

He admits, however, that there are holes in both proposals.

Federal public works grants are triggered when national unemployment rate reaches 6 percent. Federal budget cuts could affect the program.

Culbert believes that federal officials would look favorably on a grant application for a regional court facility if the program survives budget slashes.

But he personally favors making application for a multi-purpose recreation building instead of a court facility.

Culbert called his proposal involving township sewer funds "a radical idea" which may be unacceptable to the township board.

He plans to forward his proposals to other municipal officials in the 35th District this week along with the caution that the township board has not approved either idea.

The township board is expected to discuss Culbert's proposals later this month.

A 35TH DISTRICT study committee had hoped Canton officials would support construction of a courtroom on a city-owned parcel in Plymouth. Because the property is tax-exempt, the committee favored that site over two privately-owned parcels at the border line of Canton and Plymouth Township.

But Canton board members termed the proposals an attempt to make Canton "bail out" other communities. They said their courtroom in the basement of township hall is the only one in the district which has room to expand.

Courtrooms for the 35th District are currently located in municipal buildings of Canton, Plymouth and Northville.

Officials in Plymouth and Northville townships have indicated a desire for courtrooms in their communities as well. The situation is complicated by the wishes of city officials in Northville and Plymouth to move the courts out of their municipal buildings because of lack of space.

Judge James Garber said construction of a single courtroom for service of the entire district would lead to better cost efficiency. He downplayed the idea of building the court in Canton be-

Cats pump blood for cats

By BETTY MASSON

Two felines of the breed American domestic short-haired, Dr. K and Herman, are leading a pretty soft life after a bad beginning. They were strays two years ago.

But today, they never have to worry about where their next meal is coming from, in spite of inflation and taxes.

They are earning their keep by providing a valuable service for their fellow felines.

Herman, who is a lovely shade of tan, and Dr. K, who has a glossy orange coat, live at the Parkway Veterinary Clinic on Wilcox Road, Plymouth.

They are on call 24 hours a day to give blood in case of a cat-astrophe.

Often this means a cat which has been hit by a car and needs a transfusion, according to veterinarian Cliff McClumpha.

But a cat suffering from severe anemia can also require a transfusion. This condition, caused by a virus, is fairly common among cats, said Dr. McClumpha.

Sometimes Herman and Dr. K can go for weeks, even months, without being asked to donate blood. They just lie in their cages, purr at passersby and romp with the attendants at cleaning time.

At other times, their blood may be required once or twice a week.

Although Herman and Dr. K reportedly recover very quickly from being anesthetized and having blood extracted directly from their hearts, ideally they should have two to three weeks to recover between donations, said Dr. McClumpha.

In a normal blood donation, the animals give about 60 to 70 cubic centimeters. This compares with about 500 ccs for a normal human blood donation.

The cat's blood is drawn into a syringe and, when a new needle is attached, is injected directly into the cat donor.

DOGS ALSO require transfusions from time to time, but the clinic does not keep a dog on hand just for this purpose. Instead, Dr. McClumpha calls on the services of one of his own four dogs.

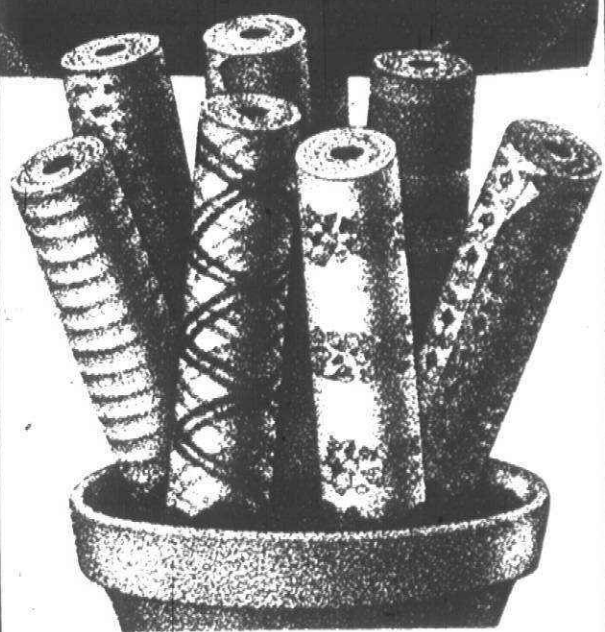

Economics enter the picture here, he explained. Cats are easy and inexpensive to keep, but a medium-sized to large dog is needed for transfusions. A dog is required to give about as much blood as a human donor. Keeping a dog just to give blood is expensive.

Again, dogs most frequently require transfusions when they have been the loser in a bout with an automobile. The process for giving a dog blood is exactly the same as for a human transfusion.

"Some veterinarians use blood expanders, plasma and other things, but I like to use whole blood," said Dr. McClumpha.

IN RECALLING some of the unusual operations he has done on animals, he said that he and two other veterinarians could have lost some blood themselves when they had to deal with a 30-pound Gibbon's ape.

Dilemma perplexes board

damage the already-understaffed office. Board members have admitted for months that the department needs a full-time supervisor.

They could contract with Mrs. Falkiewicz to carry department head duties until next November's election. Under that plan, the department would continue operating as smoothly as possible until a new treasurer is elected, regardless of Donahue's decision to stay or leave.

But Mrs. Falkiewicz says that she will probably campaign for the treasurer's job herself.

Because federal law prohibits public employees to run for office in the governmental unit where they work, Mrs. Falkiewicz would have to resign from her job June 3 — the filing deadline for candidates' nominating petitions.

analysis

She would not have to resign from her present position as deputy treasurer. Mrs. Falkiewicz was appointed deputy by Donahue, her opponent for the treasurer job in the 1978 election.

BOARD MEMBERS admitted fears that the dilemma in the treasury department will backfire as political ammunition in this year's campaign.

"You're damned if you do, and you're damned if you don't," said one trustee after the meeting.

Gary Roberts, a citizen activist who plans to run for a township office next November, accused the board of "covering up" for Donahue.

"What I see here is a complete wreck in the treasurer's department. And I don't like it," he said.

Trustee Robert Greenstein, who is on his honeymoon in Wyoming, was absent from the meeting. Trustees Daley and Carol Bodenmiller voted against increasing Mrs. Falkiewicz's salary.

"I'm voting to fill an administrative gap," said Larson. "The matter of Donahue is really a side issue right now."

Culbert offers court ideas

cause of the township's location at the southern end of the district.

CULBERT HAS SUGGESTED a consolidation of court services among the four other communities in the 35th District if the idea of building the court next to Canton Township Hall is unacceptable.

He said other communities are welcome to use Canton's court. Municipal-ties with courtrooms receive a portion of fine revenues even if the fines originate from violations in another community.

Culbert said that Canton spent $60,000 one year ago to build a courtroom in the basement of township hall.

He favors continued use of that facility.

"I have to look out for Canton Township first," he said. "I think they're trying to get us to take the monkey off someone else's back."

Car buffs turn old clunkers into gleaming show stoppers

By LOUISE OKRUTSKY

The '55 Chevy convertible which cruised the town's main drag has shifted from being the star of the strip to the darling of the showroom.

The nostalgia surrounding the Chevrolet ragtop and other cars has helped to add at least 10 percent to their value every year for about 20 years, according to Wally Donoghue.

The owner of Classic Auto Restoration, services a massive six-cylinder engine from a 1937 Bentley.

Jon Dunham, shop manager of the Plymouth branch of Classic Auto Restoration, services a massive six-cylinder engine from a 1937 Bentley.

tion in Farmington and Plymouth is among professional and amateur car buffs involved in organizing a collectors' festival and auction April 26 and 27 on the Michigan State Fair grounds, Woodward near Eight Mile in Detroit.

The auction is another extension of Donoghue's long-time interest in classic and collector cars. He became interested in the older cars during high school. In 1952, between his junior and senior years, he began restoring an antique 1920 Model T Ford in his basement.

After that experience he was hooked. Restoring classic cars, those built between 1925 and 1948, furnished a way for Donoghue to enjoy himself and earn money for college.

He turned his restoration efforts toward a Model A Ford and used the car for everyday transportation for a few years while studying engineering at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh.

HE STILL OWNS the car and takes it to road rallies. The rallies serve as a social event for car buffs as well as an opportunity for them to actually drive their cherished vehicles.

Antique cars are kept to be seen, not driven for most of the time, Donoghue said.

To drive an antique car, those made before 1925, would be tantamount to keeping a Picasso in the photo section of a wallet.

Like good paintings, antique and classic cars are bought as hedges against inflation as well as for the enjoyment of ownership, he said.

And like their treasured art, collectible cars are becoming harder to find on the market.

"Twenty-five years ago, the only cars people thought were worth collecting were antiques," he said.

"Then they began to collect classics, which were luxury cars and limited editions made from 1925 to 1948.

"But in the last 10 years, the number of those available has dried up. They're all in the hands of collectors," he said.

As the demand rose, prices followed suit. As time went on, more cars aged to the point where they became considered worthy of collection.

IT'S AT THIS point that the yen to own a Chevy, circa 1955-57, comes into play. The Chevrolets are joined on the list by Thunderbirds from the same time and Corvettes made until 1973, according to Donoghue.

And in the days of watching the gaugage, collectors have developed a taste for muscle cars, including Mustangs made from 1964-66, and cars equipped with a 427 cubic foot Chevrolet engine made during the '60's.

For those who prefer elegant occupants in their garages, Cadillac convertible limousines from 1970 and four-door Lincolns from the '60's are marketable.

But collectable cars are an individualistic predilection, Donoghue continued.

While there are persons who collect obscure cars like Mitchells made in Grand Rapids, there are those who buy Studebakers.

"The Studebaker appeals to persons with a certain kind of taste. It's style wasn't timeless," Donoghue begins tactfully.

"It didn't hold the road well, it wasn't made well," he added.

But some persist in collecting the car, which spent most of the '50's, until its demise, being looked down at.

FOR THOSE who have a car which may be collectable but which needs some restoration, Donoghue advises owners to forgoe plastering those rust spots with Bondo.

The quality of the restoration is in proportion with the price the car can command, he said. But owners shouldn't restore an old car expecting to make a profit by selling it. Most of the time the cost of a fine restoration job exceeds the total value of the vehicle.

"Don't restore it to sell. Restore it for yourself," he said.

Some restorations can cost between $20,000 and $200,000 depending upon the car and its condition.

"When you're thinking of restoring a car, you must ask yourself 'Is it worth it?' You may be better off going south to buy a car which isn't rusted.

"As soon as serious Michigan rust gets on a car, you may as well forget it."

Instead of applying Bondo, the owner should replace the rusted metal with a new sheet of metal. Since such replacement parts are readily available, the owner may be forced to have the part custom-made, Donoghue said.

A good restoration is one which approaches perfection.

"THERE SHOULD be no defects. It should be of perfect quality. If you replace parts, you should replace all of the ones you need to. There should be a clean paint job without ripples or waves and no sand marks."

If the intent of the buyer is to gain an investment, then looking at a car already in fine condition would be in order, he recommended.

These cars may have price tags ranging from $20,000 to $25,000, but the cost of restoring a Rolls Royce, Phantom II or III, made in the late '30s could reach $200,000.

"Rolls Royces are complex. They have twice as many parts. The body and chassis were made to higher standards. They're twice as expensive," Donoghue said.

Behind this drive to restore autos long passed, is a need to revive a little of the owner's past.

"People remember the good old days — the '50's. People want certain cars they associate with in their youth. People don't want to buy cars with smog controls," he said.

Instead they want to recapture the thrill of approaching spring with the ragtop down, the supercharged V-8 humming under the hood, and maybe a fast take-off in a race down Woodward when the light changes to green.

roll call report

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 27 through April 2.

HOUSE

RAIL CORRIDORS — The House rejected, 266-84, an amendment to kill a proposed outlay of up to $1 billion for developing high-speed passenger rail service in 13 inter-city corridors.

The money is an authorization that cannot be spent unless Congress appropriates it in separate legislation. The vote left the corridor project as part of HR 6837, a railroad bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

The 13 corridors on government drawing boards link Chicago-Cincinnati, Chicago-Cleveland, Chicago-Detroit, Los Angeles-Las Vegas, Los Angeles-San Diego, Miami-Jacksonville, St. Louis-Chicago, San Jose-Sacramento, Seattle-Portland, Twin Cities-Chicago, New York-Buffalo, Washington-Richmond and the triangle of Houston, San Antonio and Dallas-Ft. Worth.

Rep. Tom Hagedorn, R-Minn., a supporter of killing the corridor projects, said it would be "irresponsible" to approve this expenditure at a time of federal belt-tightening.

Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Mich., an opponent, said "without such a commitment our nation's rail system will not develop."

Members voting nay want to spend up to $1 billion to link certain cities with high-speed trains.

Rep. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, voted yea.

Reps. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Ford, D-Taylor, William Brodhead, D-Detroit, James Blanchard, D-Pleasant Ridge, voted nay.

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mt. Clemens, did not vote.

VOLKSWAGEN — By a vote of 341-45, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill giving a soon-to-be-abandoned missile plant near Detroit to Michigan in exchange for two office buildings the state will build for the army.

Volkswagen wants to put an automobile assembly complex in the missile plant. Ohio congressmen, who had hoped their state would get the Volkswagen plant, said the bill (HR 6464) represented favoritism toward Michigan at the expense of taxpayers.

Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., a supporter, said: "This is not a welfare bill for the state of Michigan."

Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, an opponent, said: "Let's have Volkswagen come (to the U.S.) but let's give them the same ground rules we give American companies."

Members voting yea want to help Michigan and the Volkswagen plant. Pursell, Bonior, Ford, Brodhead, Blanchard, and Broomfield, voted yea.

SENATE

RAIL FREIGHT SERVICE — The Senate rejected, 59-37, an amendment requiring railroads to take a longer time to abandon unprofitable rail freight lines. The amendment sought to keep intact the average of 30 months it now takes the Interstate Commerce Commission to complete abandonment proceedings.

Its defeat means that proceedings could be shortened to nine months. The vote came during debate on a bill (S 1946) relaxing government regulation of the railroads.

Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., a supporter, said the amendment would give communities and shippers scheduled to lose rail service adequate time to state their case to the ICC for continuing service.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kansas, an opponent, said: "Prolonging the inevitable is not only counterproductive to shippers and states but ... detrimental to the railroads."

Senators voting nay want to shorten by about two-thirds the present time it takes the ICC to decide rail-freight abandonment cases.

Sens. Donald Riegle, and Carl Levin, both Democrats, voted nay.

TAXING OIL — The Senate passed, 66-31, and sent to the White House the bill taxing the "windfall profits" oil companies are to reap as a result of the removal of federal ceilings from oil prices.

The bill (HR 3919) will raise an estimated $227 billion over the next decade, out of the one trillion dollars which decontrol will provide oil companies in additional gross revenue.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., a supporter, said the bill is "fair to the oil companies" and "in the best interests of the American people."

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., an opponent, called the bill "a fraud" which will not hinder Big Oil but "take money out of the pockets of the American consumers themselves."

Senators voting yea favor the "windfall profits" tax.

Riegle and Levin voted yea.

editorial opinion

Government must tighten belt against crunch

Predictions about the state of the economy range from mild recession to depression, depending on the person making the forecast.

No one seems to be making optimistic predictions for the coming year.

Inflation is making it hard for people to hang on to the money they do have. Tight credit is making it hard for them to borrow the money they don't have.

The last thing anyone wants is to see even more of his or her pay going to the tax collectors.

That's obvious from last year's passage of the Headlee tax limitation amendment. It's obvious, from the recent failure of any school bond proposal to pass in the Plymouth-Canton School District election, that taxpayers haven't gotten any more benevolent since the last general election.

When failed proposals go back on the ballot at the earliest opportunity (a likelihood for at least one of the local school bond propositions) taxpayers are becoming more than just tired of paying.

They're getting angry.

That's when government officials (not just the schools) had better start taking a hard look at their budgets. If they ask for more, they run the risk of getting less.

When times were better, many of our local municipalities and other governmental units began adding services for taxpayers, extending far beyond the basic necessities.

That's why you can go to ice rinks and play on softball diamonds. That's why the kids in the schools have sports programs and music classes.

All of these services are important and worthwhile. They are also expensive.

Government's basic obligations are to provide fire and police protection, collect trash and, in the case of the schools, give a reasonably well-rounded education.

Other services, such as building inspection or water and sewer service, are paid for, in part, with fees.

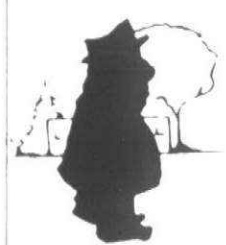

Almost any other service performed for taxpayers is gravy.

Our local governments must decide whether to stick with the important services performed well or to provide a multitude of services with money that is stretched as far as it will go.

Taxpayers must decide which services are the most important and be willing to forego or pay for anything above and beyond those essentials.

There's no room in the schools or municipalities for officials who mismanage money, but even the brightest administrator can't stretch tax dollars to cover everything taxpayers would like to have.

Just as people are discovering it is time for them to live within their means, so, too, must governments.

They bite wrong hands

When he attended public school in the Pennsylvania Dutch country, The Stroller recalls that each day there was an hour devoted to practice penmanship.

We were given what were then called copy books. Each book had a line at the top of the individual page, and we were asked to copy as near as possible the fine Spencerian model.

There was one line The Stroller never will forget. It read simply:

"Don't bite the hand that feeds you."

When he picked up the friendly morning paper recently and learned that the major league baseball players were going on strike, he remembered that copy book line.

That the players were going on strike was surprising enough, but it became even more astounding when the article revealed that the average salary in the major leagues is now more than $133,000 a year.

Imagine that. An average salary of that magnitude not being satisfactory to a player who "works" only six months out of a year and is given two months in Florida each spring to get ready to engage in his craft.

Sounds absurd. And it is.

IT IS TRUE that in the early league years, players were what they called "slaves" to the owners.

But that was taken care of with the introduction of the free agent clause — an agreement that permits a player with six years of service in the majors to declare himself a free agent and seek bids for his services.

Still that hasn't been enough. Now the players have become so greedy that they expect salaries sufficient to allow them to retire and live off the fat of the land for the rest of their lives. And, remember, a major league career seldom exceeds 15 years.

The strike gets more ridiculous when you consider individual cases such as Nolan Ryan, the pitcher who recently exacted a contract for more than $1 million dollars a year from the Texas Rangers.

It becomes silly when you figure that, at best, he will pitch only once every fourth day. How would you like a job where you got paid a million dollars a year for working every fourth day and were given two months in Florida in the bargain. You would think such an offer was only a dream.

ONE LINE in the printed story that particularly struck The Stroller quoted the players as saying: "We really want to hurt them (the owners)."

They want to hurt the men who agree to pay such outlandish salaries for so little work. That's being greedy in the extreme and again reminded The Stroller of the old copy book: "Don't bite the hand that feeds you."

It is a far cry from the old days when The Stroller was covering the baseball beat for The Detroit Free Press and the late Frank J. Navin owned the Tigers.

Well he remembers that Harry Heilmann, the league batting champion, used to leave his home in California to spend Christmas in Detroit, and on each trip, he'd call on Navin at the Tiger office, asking to see a new contract. Then he'd sign his name and say to Navin, "Put in the figures when you get around to it and send it me."

Now an average salary of $133,000 is not enough! The players are not only biting the hand that feeds them, but they are about to kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

Charge tolls

A way to get road funds

Making up a $60 million deficit is a pretty neat trick under even the best of circumstances.

For the Michigan Department of Transportation, and the county road commissions, these times could be construed as anything but good.

The department's income derives from funds raised through gasoline taxes and license plate fees based on auto weight. In the good old days, most of us drove heavy cars which guzzled a lot of petrol.

But that golden age must seem like ancient history to the transportation folks. With motorists driving lighter cars which use less fuel, the financial spigot is running dry.

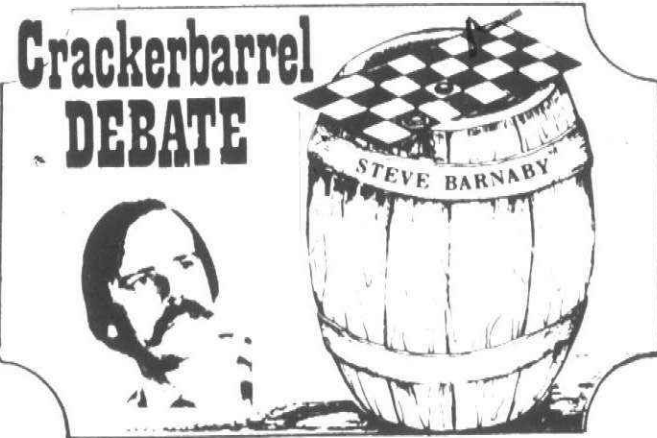

If this trend continues, which undoubtedly it will, all of us are going to be hurting.

There just aren't going to be the bucks to pay for the kind of road maintenance to which we have become accustomed. That means lots more potholes and lots more bucks for you to fork over to get the car fixed.

It also means that new road construction will suffer — not a happy thought when you're contemplating a slick new highway to whisk you to work from suburbia.

About this time, John Woodford, the state's transportation chief, is sitting up in Lansing dreaming up ways to make up the difference.

ONE IDEA is to switch from a flat rate per gallon tax to a value tax — percent of sales. Another is to raise the price you pay for license plates.

But neither idea is very popular among lawmakers, so the Department of Transportation finds itself in a real bind.

Frankly, I'm a great believer in the pay-as-you-go system when it comes to highways, which translates into turnpikes. There's got to be a lot of merit in the idea. It works nicely in other states to raise highway funds. Besides, turnpike travel is pretty convenient.

Even though the tourist industry is down because of the spiraling gas prices, we've still got a lot of folks from out of state who drive around and put wear and tear on our highways for free.

They should pay their share.

Also, we've got a somewhat inequitable highway taxing plan as it now stands. Some of us make it the length and breadth of the state at least once a year — sometimes even more.

Others never get out of the metropolitan area.

SO LET'S collect a tax, through tolls, from those persons who actually use the highways the most.

Besides, turnpikes do have their advantages when it comes to travel. Take a look at Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Gas stations, motels and restaurants are built right into the system. The traveler knows where they are and can make planned stops.

Nothing is more annoying in Michigan than getting off an exit marked "gas," having to travel on unlit roads to some town and find the gas station closed.

Turnpikes aren't the entire answer. But they certainly would go a long ways toward keeping up our much needed roads.

Security: ever more hassle

Tom Lonergan, who covers county government and politics for us, dutifully sat through a speech by Sen. Howard Baker back in the days when Baker was a presidential candidate.

Afterwards, Lonergan moved in closer as the radio guys sought to get a few extra comments on tape.

You must understand Lonergan is a clean-cut, blue-eyed, wholesome looking midwesterner and nothing at all like the caricatures in "Doonesbury."

As he moved toward Baker, he absent-mindedly thrust his hand into his pants' pocket. To his amazement, he felt his hand being pulled out of the pocket.

It was a Secret Service man, doing what he believed to be his duty.

A FEW WEEKS later, I was arranging credentials for Lonergan and photographer John Stano to cover Sen. Ted Kennedy.

I keep a file for coverage of presidential candidates with our staff members' proper names, dates of birth and Social Security numbers. I myself have covered Presidents Johnson, Nixon and Ford and vice presidential contenders Lodge and Muskie, and those three pieces of information were all I ever had to give to the Secret Service.

A day later the Kennedy people called back and said Secret Service wanted the news staffers' places of birth.

A few hours later, another call said Secret Service wanted middle names.

A third call asked even more data.

At this point I was tempted to tell the Kennedy people and the Secret Service to forget the whole blamed thing — but perhaps readers wouldn't understand.

COVERING FORD at a 1974 banquet was an eye-opening experience.

A friend who is a Republican leader procured a ticket for me to sit with the regular diners, who were quite free to wander within 15 or 20 feet of the chief executive and flash their Instamatics.

Our photographer was confined to a set of press bleachers. I do not misuse the word "confined." Photographers were cordoned off, and the Secret Service watched them like hawks eyeing a field of mice. The photographers had to use telephoto lenses.

Sitting with the diners, I was royalty. Visiting our photographer, I was growled at like a criminal.

IF YOU ENTER the Federal Building in Detroit from the Fort Street side, you encounter a convenient bank of elevators going to the courtroom floors. I used to use them.

Now a very tough looking uniformed guard asks: "Are you a federal employee or an attorney?"

My little game is to answer politely: "I'm an American citizen."

That means nothing to the guard. An American citizen is dirt.

"Sir, unless you are a federal employee or an attorney, you'll have to use the elevators at the other end of the building."

At the other end of the building is a metal detector which rings at my pocket change, my lighter, even my belt buckle. All must be removed before I may pass.

At both ends of the building, I say something to the guards that will make them dislike their jobs, something that will annoy them as much as they annoy me, though not so nasty that it gets me arrested.

Security? Nonsense. It's hassle which protects no one. And those who hassle me will be very respectfully hassled back.

Pictures come from heart

Did you know that all photographers speak a very powerful language that's understood by everyone, young and old, from all parts of the world? I'm referring to the language of the photographic image.

To effectively communicate in this language, your photographs should reflect your innermost being and be representative of your feelings. The true lens of the camera is the mind and heart of the photographer, the lens that lets us all appreciate the beauty in the world around us.

The lens that looks at a sunset, or a flower or a child, and really gets "turned on," is not the lens in front of the camera. Rather, it's the lens inside of us.

WE ALL KNOW about grammar in the English language. We know where to put the comma or the period, just as with our cameras we know basically how to set the shutter speed and adjust the lens opening.

What is important is to do as the poet does: He is not so concerned as to where the comma goes as to the words flowing from his heart.

The poet makes grammar a secondary thing, just as we have to make the mechanics of photography a secondary thing and concentrate on the importance of becoming a poet with our cameras.

We can all learn to get proper exposure with our cameras. Now let's work on getting proper exposure with our photographic feelings.

THE LANGUAGE of the photograph can be very strong indeed. A photograph can bring out a person's raw emotions — can make someone happy, sad, even angry.

A photograph can stir people to action or just make us feel good. In short, a photograph and we as photographers have the ability to reach out and touch the raw nerves of human emotions that often the spoken or written word cannot.

We have the ability to make visible what others can only sense. This is an exciting concept!

But we can only communicate effectively in the photograph language when we learn not to under expose our feelings. Remember it's not the brush of the artist that produces the painting — not the bow of the violinist that produces the music — nor the pen of the poet that writes the sonnets. Similarly, it is not the camera that produces the photograph — it is really you!

Put our "inside" lens to work for you and become a poet of the photographic language.

Potato salad? 'Unforgettable,' said Daddy

"A la ghashly" is the most descriptive phrase regarding my earliest culinary efforts.

I learned to cook in the school of hard knocks, and the results nearly jolted discriminating diners off their kitchen chairs. I began cooking at the age of 12 and never read a cook book until I was 18.

The most encouraging participant in my novice meals was my father. Despite my mother's warnings that he could be brought to trial as an accessory before the fact if some future unsuspecting diner succumbed, Daddy continued to marvel and indulge.

"UNFORGETTABLE" best describes the look on everyone's face as they devoured the initial bite of my first potato salad.

"How long did you cook the potatoes?" Mom managed to ask, gagging at the mention of the word.

"Cook the potatoes?" This truly amazed me. "Who ever heard of cooking vegetables when you make a salad?"

Daddy smacked his lips but declined the remainder of the raw potatoes on his plate, saying one taste had satisfied his appetite.

Jocelyn Krieger

A bing cherry salad was my next attempt. I set before my hungry family a magnificent molded salad submerged in what appeared to be a creamy, white sauce.

One spoonful and everyone, including myself, began coughing and choking.

"What on earth..." sputtered my mother. "What did you put in this?" She chugalugged her water glass to remove all reminders of what she had just tasted.

"The recipe said 'dressing' and I was supposed to use sour cream," I explained. "Since we didn't have a pint of sour cream, I used a pint of salad dressing."

Daddy devoured every mouthful and not until years later did he confide it was the most atrocious dish he ever had eaten.

EVENTUALLY, MY stupidity stupified many grocery store managers. I returned a box of spaghetti noodles and reprimanded the manager for selling stale noodles. Instead of soft, pliable noodles, he had sold me a box of stiff sticks.

A butcher sold me a "minute steak" which I cooked carefully, timer z it with an egg timer. For good measure I allow a three minutes on each side and when the meat was still blood raw, I wrapped it up and returned it to the store.

"This is misrepresentation," I insisted. "You sold me this minute steak, and I cooked it more than a minute. I cooked it six minutes and it still isn't done."

The butcher refunded my money and suggested a nice honest butcher nearer my apartment.

AN EASTER dinner marked the crowning gastronomic disaster in my parents' kitchen.

A group of naive relatives sat at the dining room table. My mother had prepared dinner, and I suggested colored Easter eggs would make a lovely addition. Mom agreed and suggested I make them.

Following the directions, I prepared the eggs. They read: "1. Carefully lower egg into colored boiling water. 2. Carefully place eggs to drain."

I did just that. Curiously, I watched the eager crowd reach for the eggs.

A loud cry was heard from the dining room. As our guests cracked the eggs, I had egg on my face while they had raw eggs on their lap.

It was my mother who shrieked the famous question. "How long did you cook those eggs?"

"Cook them?" For years Mom had always told me the Easter Bunny brought those gorgeous colored eggs. Who ever heard of a rabbit that could cook?

WSDP hosts benefit radio auction

WSDP, the student-run radio station in the Plymouth Canton Community Schools, has announced plans for a new activity to promote community involvement in its programming.

On April 24-26 the station will stage an on-the-air radio auction from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

While some services and merchandise have been pledged by area merchants, radio sponsors are still seeking more merchandise to auction during those times.

Some of the pledged items include: a dinner for two, wedding photographs, a stage band performance and even being named a celebrity for a day.

Local business owners are being contacted by school parents Kay Johnson and Chet Latka for donations. The items will be sold to the highest bidder.

The station is in its eighth year of service and broadcasts on FM 88.1.

Auction proceeds will be used to purchase remote broadcasting equipment for on-the-spot broadcasting such as baseball games, the Fall Festival held in Plymouth, and other special events. The equipment is estimated to cost $3,000.

The auction will be supervised by Jeff Cardinal, WSDP administrative coordinator, and Paul Sincok, an employee of the city of Plymouth.

"Everybody benefits — the merchants with radio promotion, advertising in newspapers, goodwill, and the bidders get an opportunity to purchase merchandise at less than retail costs," said Sincok.

There's also a tax deduction if donations are more than retail value, he added.

"This is another way in which WSDP is trying to get the community involved and thus keeps WSDP in touch with the community which it serves."

Those interested in making donations can contact Cardinal at 453-3100, ex. 266 or 453-3390.

The local station is now the most powerful school-run radio station in the Detroit area since last December when it increased its power from 10 to 200 watts.

Don't blame Easter bunny!

I would be willing to bet that there is scarcely a home where there isn't a table topped by an Easter basket filled with rich chocolate, spicy gum drops, and colorful jellybeans.

Of course, these are all goodies for the children.

I would also be willing to bet that there isn't a parent who hasn't been tempted to sneak a treat from one of those baskets.

And of those parents who are tempted to taste life's riches (or already have done so), I am sure there are some who are now wallowing in guilt because they ruined their diet.

Chances are that it was a diet that was begun in January, and renewed when spring sprung. Now that darn chocolate is tempting you again and you can't seem to leave your hands off it. You can visualize those precious few pounds lost again finding their way onto your hips, thighs, and elsewhere.

Darn that Easter Bunny!

STOP! Don't blame the Easter Bunny, the children, the chocolate, the inviting-looking confection shops, the candy advertisements or anything else. Maybe it's time to take inventory. Look inside yourself for the answers.

It's a good time to examine your external environment, too. This, I am sure, will provide some stopgap measures for you.

For one thing, the weather has warmed up and serves as a reminder that bathing suits, short shorts, and skin-revealing fashion styles are about to slip out from under winter coats.

So don't let all your effort go to pot, so to speak. If you've made diet progress, dwell on it. It may keep you from taking that jellybean or helping yourself to an extra portion of food at dinner.

Think about the family reunion picnic you'll be attending this summer. I'm sure you've been secretly thinking about the comments you could hear when Aunt Emma says, "My, honey, haven't you lost a lot of weight." Or perhaps you are the mother of the bride. This may be the opportunity of a lifetime to demonstrate that "YES, I do have willpower!"

WHEN IT seems inevitable that you will yield to temptation, just because you and the chocolate are sharing the same house, there is an alternative. Go take a walk, even if it's raining. As crazy as it may sound, a spring walk in a gentle rain is invigorating, and is an excellent time for contemplation.

A shopping trip also can cure the temptation. Looking for new clothes can be just what you need to inspire you. Or how about a drive to the Belle Isle Conservatory? The flower show is spectacular and provides a restful, pleasant atmosphere. It offers a great way to reduce tension that can lead to overeating.

Or maybe it's time to reconsider that diet group you quit because they weren't doing you any good.

Why should you rejoin if they didn't do anything for you? Think again. They can't do it for you. It's what you do for yourself while a member. All the leaders or lecturers can do is offer support and suggestions. The rest is up to you. Don't blame others for your shortcomings.

So, friends, give it the mighty college try. You can do it.

"FOOD FACTS" and fallacies which appear in this column is taken from a list compiled by The American Dietetic Association. This week's fallacy:

Fallacy: Sugar, particularly sucrose, can cause diabetes and heart disease.

Fact: There is no proof that sugar consumption causes the occurrence of diabetes or heart disease. However, a person with diabetes is restricted in the amount of carbohydrates he can consume. Table sugar requires large amounts of insulin immediately for its metabolism and contains little food value other than calories.

Persons who are obese do have a higher incidence of both diabetes and heart disease. The relationship between these diseases and the intake of excess calories is at present unclear.

Plymouth Canton netters after 1st Western 6 title

By BRAD EMONS

Jim Hayes has coached the Plymouth Canton tennis team for seven years and is still looking to wear that elusive Western Six League crown.

This season, however, could be Hayes' time to break the ice.

"I can't predict what high school kids will do," he cautioned, "but we're deeper and better than we've ever been."

Canton could seriously challenge with the return of a healthy cast of veterans. Northville, league champs in 1979, appear to be the Chiefs' biggest threat.

"I hope we are in a good position,"

Hayes said. "The abilities of our players are higher than they've ever been."

The top veteran returning is No. 1 singles player Bob Young, a senior co-captain. He played at the No. 1 spot as a junior and was around the .500 mark, according to Hayes.

"Bob has payed his dues," Hayes said. "He's become better all around. He's worked hard and could be a pretty good player in college."

Young, at 6-foot-2 inches, likes to play the serve-and-volley game.

"Bob needs to work a little harder on his baseline game," said Hayes. "He likes to keep the pressure on."

Junior Kreg Kinnel, a steady baseline stroker, moves into the No. 2 singles spot after playing some at No. 3 doubles last year.

"KREG UNDERSTANDS what he can do and does it well," said the Canton coach.

The No. 3 and 4 singles are being contested by three veterans — senior Peter Lee and juniors Kevin Johnston and Bob Adams.

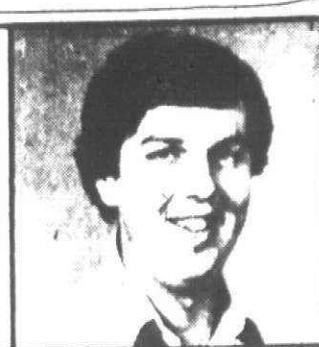

"Johnston has been a nice surprise," said Hayes. "Adams has improved a lot and Lee is a steady player."

Russians coming to empty house?

It's becoming increasingly apparent that a boycott of the summer Olympics in Moscow is fizzling.

While the Carter Administration continues to wrestle with the United States Olympic Committee (USOC), Russian teams continue to be allowed to tour in this country, competing against American national squads.

A Soviet wrestling team most recently competed against an American team in Toledo, Ohio.

Now the Russian National Junior cagers will play against the Michigan AAU prep all-stars in a game at Schoolcraft College Saturday, May 10.

It's called the Third Annual International Basketball Classic. Last year Michigan's best preps destroyed a junior squad from Yugoslavia in a two-game series at Schoolcraft and Oakland University. A sizeable crowd turned out at Schoolcraft to see a 37-point rout.

But the Russian Juniors are much better. Two years ago they pounded the Michigan stars playing under the international rules which allows more than incidental contact.

I've seen Russian junior basketball teams on more than one occasion. They're big, strong and play a style similar to the pros. They even look older than our kids which always leads me to suspect that they could be freshman, sophomores or even juniors in college.

I COULD never understand why American basketball teams have to play under international rules in our own country. And now I question whether we should even play the Russians at all with the current situation escalating in Afghanistan.

It seems the Carter Administration is talking on both sides of the issue.

I'm all for high school all-star games and believe deserving players should get a chance to show their skills in post-season events.

But you really have to wonder what's going on this time around.

Proceeds from the game go to the Michigan AAU, which needs about $3,000 to send a team down to Florida each summer to compete in the National AAU Junior Tournament. Another $3,000 goes to the Russians (transportation, food and lodging).

The game was booked by the National AAU committee, a powerful body, which received the green light from the state department, according to Ron Hall, Michigan AAU cage chairman.

Area prep basketball fans will have to pay a little more this year to see the Classic. Tickets can be purchased for $5 apiece at Hudson ticket outlets. By the way, Hudson's commands a fee for distributing the tickets.

The main event is preceded by a preliminary game between the Oakland and Wayne County prep all-stars.

IT'S IRONIC not one player has tentatively been picked from Wayne County's Observer circulation area for the preliminary game. A list given to the media this week revealed that nine players were tapped from the Detroit Public School League and three others from the Suburban Athletic Conference — David Casey of Romulus, Raymond Smith of River Rouge and Kevin Bailey of Ecorse.

The preliminary game, to be played in Livonia, is for the time being without a single player from the area.

Hall explained that several persons were involved in the selection process.

"We had input from several people," he said. "I was only involved in picking the players for the Michigan team."

Who had input in choosing the preliminary invitees?

Quinton Watkins, head coach of the Michigan team, had some input. So did Wayne County coach Randy Henry, an assistant at Highland Park Community College. Oakland County coach Leonard Cole also had a say. He is an assistant at OCC. Sid Fox, with the Michigan AAU, had great influence.

Monk tabbed for All-Star game

The United States may not be going to the Soviet Union this summer, but the Russians are planning to come here next month.

Schoolcraft College is hosting a basketball game at 8 p.m. May 10 between a Soviet national junior men's team and a Michigan AAU junior squad.

Howard Monk, from Plymouth Salem, and Barry Spencer, from Detroit Catholic Central, have been chosen for the state team.

This is the third year in succession that Schoolcraft has been the site of an international basketball game.

A team of state high-school all-stars demolished a Yugoslav national junior team last year. A touring Soviet junior team whipped a state contingent two years ago.

The game between the Soviets and Team Michigan will be the second of a basketball doubleheader May 10. The preliminary game, which begins at 6 p.m., will feature an all-star game between high-school seniors from Wayne and Oakland Counties.

TICKETS, $5 in advance and $7 at the door game night, are now available at the Schoolcraft Bookstore and at all Hudson stores. The game will be played in the gymnasium, which seats 2,100.

The Soviet team will have been together much longer than Team Michigan, said Dr. Marvin Gans, Schoolcraft athletic director and general chairman of the games committee.

Team Michigan will practice together only three times, possibly four. However, the cast representing the state certainly will be star-studded.

In addition to Monk and Spencer, both first-team all-Observer selections this season, the team consists of Tim McCormick, from Clarkston, Fred Coffield, Ypsilanti, Dean Hopson, Ann Arbor Huron, and Mike Thomas, Detroit Central.

Coffield is the smallest of that group at 6-3.

The Soviet team may have a further advantage in that the game will be played according to international rules. Significant changes include a 30-second shot clock and the fact that officials don't have to handle the ball at every whistle.

International rules generally make for a faster game.

SOME PEOPLE may be wondering why the U.S. government even allows a touring Soviet team into the country if we plan to boycott the Olympics.

"Our objection is the site (Moscow), not the Olympic spirit," said Robert Clarke, who works for the U.S.S.R. Desk at the State Department in Washington, D.C.

Clarke added that the Soviets were allowed into the United States for the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid and that athletic/cultural exchanges are welcome as long as the Soviets visit here and not vice-versa.

Gans echoed those sentiments. "We don't want to help their economy as such (by participating in the Olympics). We're not boycotting them to come here. We're encouraging them to come to our country."

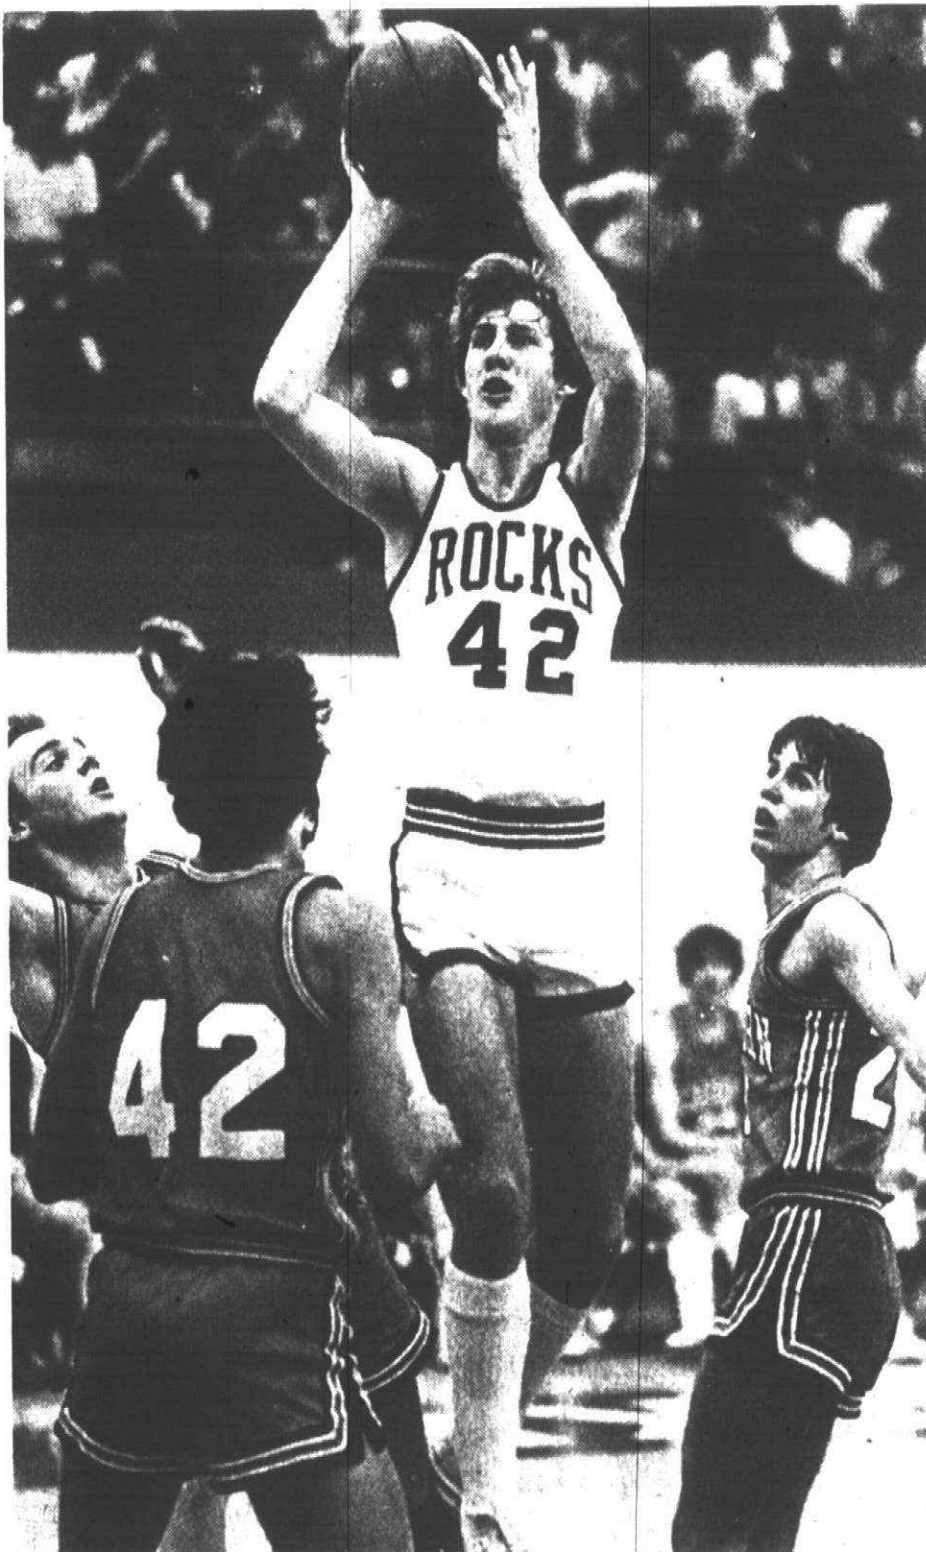

None of the players selected for the Wayne County team in the preliminary game is from the Observer & Eccentric circulation area.

However, five players on the Oakland County team — Brian Brennan and Rob Mantilla, Birmingham Brother Rice, Glenn Cross and Milt Carthens, Bloomfield Hills Lahser, and Tim Meter, Bloomfield Hills Andover — played for schools in the Observer & Eccentric circulation area.

Players for all three squads — Team Michigan, Wayne County and Oakland County — were selected by a six-man committee.

It consisted of Sid Fox, chairman of the Michigan Amateur Basketball Association; Ron Hall, state AAU basketball chairman; Rocky Watkins, assistant basketball coach at Schoolcraft; Randy Henry, assistant coach at Highland Park Community College; Leonard Cole, assistant coach at Oakland Community College; and Gans.

Watkins will coach Team Michigan against the Soviets. Henry will guide Wayne County; Cole Oakland County in the preliminary.

Howard Monk of Plymouth Salem was selected to play for the Michigan All-Stars in a game against the Russian Juniors Saturday, May 10, at Schoolcraft College. (Staff photo)

Chiefs roughed up on spring swing

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Plymouth Canton's baseball team has experienced a rough spring trip so far.

The Chiefs are 0-3 with two games left to play.

On Saturday Canton was beaten by Moeller, 8-6. The Chiefs blew a 3-0 lead against the southern Ohio squad.

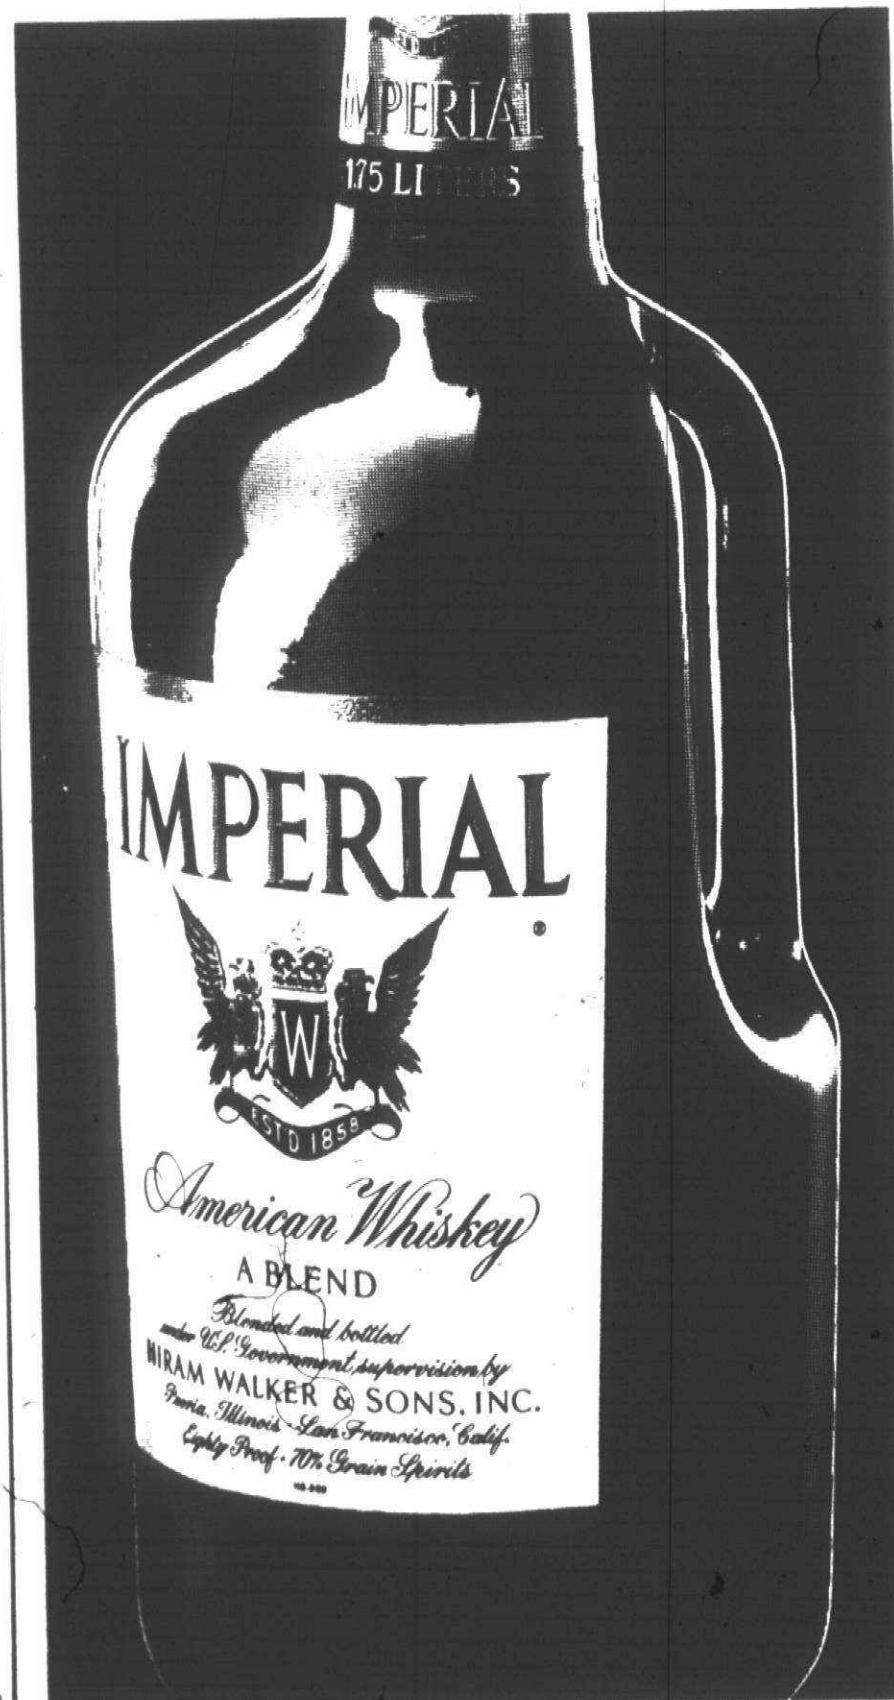

McNicholas drubbed Canton in the opener of a doubleheader on Monday, 9-0. In the second game the Chiefs fell to Oak Hills, 13-2.

Canton's second game Saturday was cancelled after four innings because of rain against Reading. The Chiefs trailed in that one, 4-3.

"Our fielding is killing us," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "Twenty-five of the 30 runs we've given up

With an entry of 831 teams, the Greater Detroit Bowling Association will open its annual tournament Saturday at Hartfield Lanes in Berkley. If past events are a basis by which to judge, the competition will be keener than ever.

Commonly known as the men's city tournament, the annual blasting at the pins is the oldest event in the area and is now looked upon as one of the most prestigious. While the regular league teams are competing at Hartfield Lanes, the 170 senior teams will be starting battling it out at Shore Crest Lanes. The main event is scheduled at 5:30 p.m. and the public is invited.

AT ITS ANNUAL Bowling last week, the American Bowling Congress delegates voted to change its sanctioning system. It will affect every male bowler in the area. The delegates voted to approve sanctions individually instead of team sanctions starting in 1981.

It was the Detroit delegation that offered the change and fought successfully for its approval.

MICHIGAN WAS HIGHLY honored in national bowling circles last week.

Raymond V. Arnold of Jackson was elevated to the presidency of the American Bowling Congress at the annual convention in Louisville. At the same time, Ed Browalski of the Polish Daily News was honored by the writers.

After serving in the line offices for several years, he was elevated to the presidency. So Michigan now boasts the top men on the lanes and in the press section. It is the first time this has happened.

WESTLAND BOWL staked a strong claim to being the "hottest" house in the area last week when five series that broke the 700 barrier were bowled in the classic.

With the wild firing Bob Goike Jr. set the pace with a 768 on games of 244, 266 and 258. Right behind him came Ken Kossick with 738, Bob Schmidt with 729, Bob Albright with 706 and Tom Gredell with 700.

On the ladies side, Aleta Rzecki showed the way with 591 and Geri Beattie followed with a 583.

CORA FEIBIG moved in to the spotlight last Monday night at Luxury Lanes when she paced the Bowlerettes with a 704 series. She put together games of 212, 269 and 223. It was her second 700 series of the year. She previously rolled with a 709.

MARGE KROPACEK, the Canton housewife, who captains the Livonia Trophy sales team, had reason to be proud this week. Her team rolled a 2867 series in a special event at Lansing and beat Penny Behn's Bonanza team by 25 pins.

A NEW NAME moved in to the winner's circle in the ladies classic at Garden Lanes when Dora Bramlett took honors for the week with a 608 series.

Her closest rivals were Mae Lackey with 594 and Rita Spaulding with 581. To complete the top six, Lee Hirsch posted 572, Jan Wright 569 and Mary Mohacs 560.

In the St. Linus League, Frank Chaganowski set the pace with 613 and beat out Dave Bazner by 15 pins, while Tony Sima landed third with 595.

In the TGIF loop, Mark Putnam had a 289 in 649 and Dave Bushey topped the county loop with 624.

ALTHOUGH SHE DIDN'T win a game, Peg Elzenber took top honors in the Livonia Ladies classic with 553-90-643. In the individual games, Georgina Kirwan won the first with 200-38-238, Pat Reid took the second with 200-27-228, and Dot Fulton captured the third with 186-31-217.

HERE'S AN UNUSUAL feat: Bowling on the same team in the trio league at Woodland Lanes, Debbie McIntyre, Sue Wizniak and Margaret Spigarelli each turned in the same score — 136. It was the most unusual triplicate of the season.

IN OTHER GOOD performances, Kay Knox paced the doubles at Merri Bowl with 595 and beat Mary Mohacs by eight pins. Dennis Drabicki set the pace in the Canton C lassie at Super Bowl with 656.

Canton netters

The group also garnered opinions from area college coaches including University of Detroit's Willie McCarter. Mick McCabe, who astutely covers prep sports for the Detroit Free Press, nominated quite a few players for the Michigan team.

All-Observer first-team picks Dave Visser of Plymouth Canton and Craig Evans of Livonia Bentley are not on the list for Wayne County.

BOTH PLAYERS deserve consideration.

When contacted at his home Tuesday night, Schoolcraft Athletic Director Marv Gans, general chairman of the Classic, did not know if Visser or Evans had drawn nomination. He said, "I'll look into the matter."

Livonia Stevenson forward Dave Hall, another first-team pick, was given consideration. He cannot play, though, because he is committed to the track season. The Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) does not allow athletes involved in spring sports to participate in post-season all-star games.

Rich Hewlett of Plymouth Salem was the area's representative on the Michigan team last year. This season it's Catholic Central's Barry Spencer and Salem's Howard Monk.

Bentley's Eric Thorderson participated in the preliminary game a year ago and gave a good account of himself.

It would be wise for Schoolcraft and the Michigan AAU to list a few area players on the roster, especially when ticket prices will be $7 apiece at the door. Local players could create a better draw.

Johnston likes to hit heavy top spin from both sides. Adams was a doubles player a year ago.

Tentatively slated to play No. 1 doubles are senior co-captain Kurt Crocker and senior Jeff Garriety, a transfer from Fenton.

"They both have good serves and play well together," he said.

Seniors Mark Roberts and Steve Jones, both regulars for three years, return to add strength at No. 2 doubles.

No. 3 doubles is up for grabs between senior Drew Hosey, junior Grant Crago, and sophomores Tom Pasley and Mark Sawyer.

Freshman John Hurley and sophomore Jim Stef-fen will also be given a look.

HOT WATER FOR A SONG.

THREE CENTS, TO BE EXACT.

If you've got a gas water heater, a good, 5 minute shower costs you about 3 cents.

And that's about 15 gallons of water.

Enough to give a body something to sing about...at least when you consider what inflation's doing to other current costs.

No, we're not saying natural gas is cheap. But the fact of the matter is that natural gas uses up less of the average family's spendable income now than it did 20 years ago.

heating homes, cooking meals, and warming the water for countless baths and showers. Natural gas — especially when you use it wisely — is still a very good buy.

Baking a turkey for 5 hours in a gas oven today costs only about 11 cents. Doing a load of clothes in a gas dryer runs you about 4½ cents. And you can shower daily for a month for under a dollar.

Yes, the cost of energy as a whole has increased considerably in recent years. But there are still forms of energy that, in relation to all the other costs of living, serve us well and at a reasonable expense.

At Consumers Power, we wanted you to know that natural gas is one of them.

And that we're trying to keep it that way.

NATURAL GAS. It's still a good buy.

New coach shows enthusiasm

Seniors provide Rock tennis leadership

By BRAD EMONS

New coach Tom Williams was looking forward to the day when he could direct the Plymouth Salem varsity tennis team.

Williams received the opportunity this spring when he was appointed to the post, succeeding Jim Stevens, who resigned after 20 years of coaching in the Plymouth-Canton School District.

"When I found out about the opening, I applied right away," said Williams, "and I was lucky enough to get it."

The rookie coach is no stranger to area tennis buffs. A teacher at West Middle School, Williams ran a program for youngsters in grades 6 through

8. He also has been in charge of the Plymouth Department of Parks and Recreation summer tennis program for the last few years.

"I'm very pleased to coach on this level," he said. "It's really exciting. It's something I've been looking forward to."

Williams is an experienced netter who played No. 1 doubles at Plymouth High School under Stevens from 1968 to 1970.

"I'm really going to stress doubles a great deal," he said. "We've been working on the talking and emotional aspects of it. I'm stressing serve and volley and doing a lot of things with drills."

Despite the team's youth, Williams is enthused about this year's squad.

"THEIR ATTITUDE is great," Williams said. "They've really worked hard."

Williams is impressed with the leadership provided so far by senior captains Dick Cook and Blake Lundberg.

"Dick keeps the ball in play," Williams said. "He is a strong server and is consistent."

Junior Scott Crespo, defending Suburban Eight League champ at No. 4 singles, moves into the No. 2 spot. He sported a 15-2 mark last year and placed runnerup in the regional. He replaces the graduated Ed Thomas, who posted a 13-4 record at No. 2 singles last year.

"Scott is like a human backboard," said Williams. "He makes very few unforced errors."

Sophomore letterman David Goodsir is penciled in at the No. 3 singles slot, according to Williams. Goodsir worked all winter long on his game and is "really improved," said the Salem coach.

Seniors Craig Baker and Bob Jarvis, regional champs at No. 2 doubles last season, return to give Salem depth. Both players could see action at the No. 4 singles spot.

Others vying for that position include sophomores Doug Baker and Jeff Howell.

LUNDBERG is tentatively slated to play No. 1 doubles. He was a regular last year at No. 3 doubles.

Williams plans to mix up the lineup until he finds the right combinations for No. 1 and 2 doubles.

Vying for the No. 3 doubles positions are 6-foot-8 junior Paul Horton, off the basketball team, sophomore Jack Thomas and freshman John Wimmer.

The No. 1 doubles spot is critical to the Rocks. Williams must fill the gap left by Craig Stevens

STANDARD FEDERAL SAVINGS HAS A PLAN FOR YOUR RETIREMENT.

If you don't presently participate in a retirement plan, now is the time to look into a tax-sheltered retirement plan at Standard Federal Savings. The contributions are tax deductible, and the interest earned on your retirement plan is tax deferred until retirement, making it possible to build a substantial retirement fund.

WHY COME TO STANDARD FEDERAL FOR A RETIREMENT PLAN?

• INTEREST RATES — Rates depend on the term of the certificate you choose. For example, the interest rate in April on the 2½-Year Money Market Account* is 12.00% for an effective annual yield of 12.94%. Other certificate programs can be used to open a retirement account as well. This would include the 26-Week Money Market Account* and the $100,000.00 Non-Negotiable Account* if the minimum balance requirements are met.

• INSURANCE All contributions made to a retirement account are insured to $100,000.00 for each individual.

• WE OFFER ALL THESE RETIREMENT PLANS:

REGULAR IRA An account which you contribute to for your own retirement. Each year you can contribute up to 15% of your earned income or a maximum of $1,500.00, whichever is less.

SPOUSE'S IRA An alternative plan which an eligible IRA participant can establish for a non-employed spouse, who has received no wages during any portion of the year. Contributions may be made up to 15% or $1,750.00 of the working spouse's compensation, whichever is less.

ROLLOVER IRA Allows the participant to contribute all or part of a lump-sum retirement benefit received from another qualified retirement plan to a "rollover" IRA and defer taxes until retirement.

SIMPLIFIED EMPLOYEE PENSION PLAN (SEP) Permits an employer to establish a plan and contribute amounts to an individual employee's IRA. The employer can contribute up to 15% of the employee's compensation to a maximum of $7,500.00 per year.

KEOGH PLAN A tax-sheltered retirement plan for self-employed individuals.

*Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate accounts. Federal regulations also prohibit the compounding of interest on 26-Week Money Market Accounts.

Greens not a mirage for Oasis Golf School duffers

Knowledgeable golf people say that if you can learn how to hit a seven iron well, you will enjoy success on the links.

Participants in the Oasis-O&E Golf School, scheduled April 28-30, are requested to bring a seven iron along to the clinic.

One-hour introductory lessons about the basics of the game — grip, stance, swing, etiquette — will be offered to juniors, women and men during successive evenings.

Participants will be divided into groups of 25 or less so that they may receive more individual attention.

There is no charge for the lessons, although participants are asked to register in advance by completing the attached coupon and mailing it to Oasis Golf Center.

A drawing will be held at the end of each session and prizes awarded to those who pre-register. The gifts include complimentary buckets of range balls, miniature golf, par-three golf and a free lesson.

You must, however, register in advance to be eligible for the drawing.

While the purpose of the drawing is to encourage attendance and reward those who take part in the clinic, the real benefit will be an improved game for beginners.

It is much easier to learn correctly when you're young or just starting out than after several years of trying to make do with an improper grip, stance or swing.

The school is specifically tailored to those with limited or no previous golf experience.

"You start with the seven iron and you can hit the seven iron and putts, you are most likely to play better than 90 percent of the people you play with," said Bob Kuhn, professional at Oasis.

Why is that?

Because your goal is to develop a consistent swing. The seven iron is a comparatively short, light club which lofts the balls.

Since confidence is generally built if a beginner can get the ball in the air and because the club is generally easier to handle than a longer-shafted iron or wood, success is easier to realize.

Success breeds confidence and more success. Therefore, once the mechanics of the swing are learned with the seven iron, it should be easier to transfer the movements with slight modifications to other clubs.

Come to the Oasis-O&E Golf School and try it.

Northwest Suburban League roundup

Baseball race could go to wire

By JIM HOLLY

Another Northwest Suburban League baseball season will soon be getting under way. No team appears to be outstanding and most could have a shot at the conference championship.

REDFORD UNION, which finished with an overall record of 7-13 last season after a horrendous start, is looking for improvement from almost everyone.

"Last year, we lacked timely hitting and let down when we had leads," said coach John Colley. "We made mental errors. We lacked sharpness. This year, we have more experience. We can do better."

Senior Gary Lewandowski, second team all-league, will most likely be the team leader. He hit a hot .425 last season and will be positioned in center field.

Don Kalik, a good defensive player, will start in right field for the Panthers. Left field, according to Colley, is up for grabs.

Mike Cencer, second base, and Marty Kendall, shortstop, fill the middle of the infield for the Panthers. While both are strong defensively, both must improve with the bat. Of the two, Kendall's .237 average last year was better.

Bill James, a three-year veteran, and Rocco Rucinski will platoon at first base, while Bob Utych will pull the work at third when not pitching.

Filling out the infield will be Rob Klipple at catcher.

Colley is counting heavily on Kirk Marsh, Mark Cody and Utych for the pitching. All three were solid last year, but none could be called a stopper.

The weak point on the team right now appears to be batting. "Fundamentally, we have good hitters," said Colley. "We need to get them off to good starts. Last year we didn't."

As for the season? "It depends on if the kids are determined. If they are, we can be as strong as anybody," said Colley.

REDFORD THURSTON, is facing inexperience. Only four lettermen return to this season's team, which is laden with untried juniors and sophomores.

Seniors Rob Domenzain and Dave Langell are the returnees to the pitching staff. Domenzain was 2-0 last season and, according to coach Emil Majeski, should do well. Langell will be in the infield when not pitching.

The other two returnees are senior Scott Farquhar, third base, and senior Paul Kostegian, catcher.

Remaining starting positions are toss-ups between the juniors and sophomores. Kids who are looking good and have a possible inside track to winning starting jobs are juniors Steve Samples, first base and pitcher, Rob Simon, infielder, Rick Munson, infielder, and sophomore Tim Soucey, who would be in the outfield.

With the start of the season set for next week, the Eagles have a lot of work left to do before they can field a starting nine. Once the season begins, Majeski said he will get a better idea of what his youngsters can do and who can best fill in.

"We're a young team," Majeski said. "We'll lack some experience, but we're optimistic."

Even so, it looks like a rebuilding year for the Eagles.

GARDEN CITY EAST has many starters back this season to work for coach Len Bartlo. Bartlo, a former athletic director at East, coached baseball in the school system from 1957-63.

"I haven't seen the rest of the league so it's difficult to tell how we can do," said Bartlo. "But we look pretty good so far indoors."

The Panthers have two pitchers returning from last year in John Topalian and Tom Bonner. Both will lead the staff. When not pitching, Topalian will be at third base while Bonner will roam the outfield.

Joining the pitching staff is freshman Joe Taraskavage, a lefthander with a great deal of potential.

The rest of the infield is manned by returning players. Mark Gregor will be at first base, Billy Orr at shortstop and John Lezotte at second base. Bruce Birdsong will do the catching.

Returning to the outfield along with Bonner is Glenn Barikmo.

Filling in for the Panthers will be Tracy Bonner, outfield and catcher, Wally Bondar, third base and outfield, and Joe Bugeja along with Ron McComb, both capable of playing most anywhere.

"They look good to me," said Bartlo. "We'll hold our own."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN, league champion last year, has lost eight starters to graduation. "We lost a whale of a ball-club," said coach Gerry Cullin. "We're a young team now with an almost all junior pitching staff, but we should be decent."

Lefthander Brad George figures to be the ace of the staff, according to Cullin, but righthanders Kevin Wagner and Greg Hanson, along with southpaws Ralph Schraf and Andy Williams are just behind him.

They constitute a deep, though inexperienced, pitching staff that can come at you from either side.

The only returning starter in the outfield is Herb McManaway, all-stater and team co-captain. Last year, McManaway hit at a .494 clip and batted in 45 runs in 26 games. He is the team leader.

The other two outfield positions are up for grabs. Brian Beer, Dave Goulay, Jim Wagaman, Bob Nolan and Bill Check all have good shots.

In the infield, co-captain Doug White is at third base. He hit .250 last season, but Cullin thinks he will definitely improve. Jon McCarthy and Larry Rotter make up the shortstop-second base double-play combination while senior Dave Rettig holds down first base.

The Patriots carry two catchers in senior Dave Droz and junior Bill Yeates. Both are quick and have good arms.

"The hitting will be down mostly," Cullin said. "Because we lost some big hitters, we'll be more aggressive on the bases. We can repeat if we get pitching and hitting."

But with young players, that's a big "if."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN will also be steeped in youth this year, as only three players return.

"I couldn't even name a starting lineup right now," said coach Norm Hoenes. "There are a lot of kids who look about the same. We have four tune-up games before league play so we'll be juggling the lineup."

Senior Jeff Brosen returns to the mound after being out most of last year with a broken leg. He compiled a record of 2-2 for his shortened season.

Returning with Brosen are Toby Right, third base, and Tony Dalimonte, catcher. "These three will have to be the leaders and carry us," said Hoenes.

CC splits DH

Detroit Catholic Central split a doubleheader with Hazel Park Monday, losing the first game, 3-2, but then coming from behind to win the second game, 11-5.

The Shamrocks' wild pitching was the story in the opener. Hurlers Jeff Evans and Bill Matthews walked nine during the course of the game.

In the second game, Hazel Park had a 4-0 lead in the third when the Shamrocks exploded for seven runs.

When the foursome is Harvey Ziel, Earl Merriman, Dunbar Davis and Carl Pursell, one of the common denominators is tennis. These inveterate tennis buffs get together for a game just about every weekend.

During the winter months they play at Western Racquet Club. Last weekend was their first opportunity this spring to play on an outdoor court.

KATHY HARRINGTON, a senior at Western Michigan University, is one of five outstanding music students named winners of the 1980 concerto competition sponsored annually by the university.

Kathy, who studies with Marshall Meade, will perform the first movement of Samuel Barber's Concert for Violin and Orchestra (Opus 14) in concert with the University Symphony Orchestra at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 13. The free concert in James W. Miller auditorium on the Kalamazoo campus is free and open to the public.

A performance major, Kathy serves as co-concertmistress with the orchestra. She was chosen for membership in the Honors String Program, a scholarship funded by WMU and the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra. During her college career, Kathy has performed with the Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids Symphony orchestras.

As a high school student, she played with the Plymouth Symphony and was awarded Plymouth Symphony Society scholarships. Her parents are Earl and Joyce Harrington of Plymouth.

CYNTHIA ZEITZ, a 1975 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School is a senior at Michigan State University where she majored in theater.

She was one of four MSU students selected from the regional university theater auditions held in January to compete in the National University Residence Theater Association auditions in Columbus, Ohio. She auditioned with selections from "The Primary English Class" by Israel Horowitz and Shakespeare's "Pericles of Tyre."

She was selected to compete at the national level for her performances in the Horowitz play and in Shakespeare's "As You Like It."

Cynthia hopes to secure summer jobs and prepare for graduate work through her performances at the national competition.

"I'd like to earn my master of fine arts degree in theater and then pursue a professional career in theater," she said.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Zeitz of Brandywine in Canton Township.

ANOTHER TALENTED Canton Township resident, Susan Scott, will make her second solo appearance with the Pontiac-Oakland Symphony Orchestra this season.

The orchestra and the Oakland University Chorus will perform Mendelssohn's "Elijah" at 8 p.m. Friday, April 18 in Pontiac Central High School Auditorium. Susan has the role of Jezebel, the queen. A winner of the Oakland University Concerto Competition for 1980, she performed an aria from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Dalila" at the symphony's February concert.

While working on her master's degree at Oakland, Susan serves as choir director for the United Church of the Risen Christ in Livonia and gives private voice and piano lessons.

Tickets at $5 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and students can be purchased at the door the evening of the performance.

PARENTS INTERESTED in reading programs in the local schools will want to watch "Hooray for Reading," a special half-hour television program encouraging children to read. It will premiere at 4 p.m. Monday, April 14 on TV 50. It has been programmed to coincide with National Library Week.

The special uses an unusual approach in motivating children to read. Each segment consists of a dramatic excerpt from a popular children's book that leaves the viewers at a cliff-hanger moment in the story. The cliff-hanger moment in the story. The cliff-hanger moment in the story. The cliff-hanger moment in the story.

Tornado season spurs REACT's Skywarn system

By SHERRY KAHAN

They start whirling in this time of year, those twisting results of moist, warm air meeting cold air high in the sky. Tornadoes usually come from the southwest and at speeds ranging from 20 to 75 miles an hour.

Their black funnel clouds are ominous because those who see them know that if they touch down they mean destruction and often death.

Since 1950, tornadoes in Michigan, most of them in the southern part of the state, have killed 227 people.

The public should be more aware about tornadoes, and how to deal with them, believes the Plymouth Area REACT Team.

To educate local residents on this unwelcome spring guest, this group of CB radio enthusiasts that goes in for public service has scheduled a tornado awareness program at 8 p.m. Saturday in All Saints Lutheran Church, Newburgh at Joy in Livonia.

Films will illustrate the best ways in which individuals can respond to this threat.

TWO YEARS ago, the REACT team made a commitment to help the public learn to protect itself against tornadoes and initiated a program called Skywarn.

Group members earlier had been using their interest in CB radios to aid motorists in distress or report fires or crimes.

Skywarn works by having volunteers listen to CB radios and passing the word.

When a tornado watch is announced by the U.S. Weather Service, the members of Skywarn know it means the weather is ripe for turbulence. (A watch is different from a warning, which means a tornado has touched down in the area.)

When there is word of a watch, the REACT members drive to six positions that roughly form an arc west of Plymouth.

Should they spy a twister, they grab their radio and notify their base in the Plymouth Hilton Hotel. It quickly passes on the news to the U.S. Weather Service at Metro Airport and to local police and fire departments. The weather service sends the information to the media.

Then the Skywarners make tracks for the nearest ravine, ditch or culvert, making sure to position himself between the twister and his car. Otherwise the car might be thrown against him.

"THE DITCH MAY have some water in it," said Paul Cook of Plymouth, director of REACT operations. "But we'll use it if we have to. Husbands and wives occasionally watch together. Sometimes whole families go out. They feel safer out there."

He added that the group would like to recruit more members. "We do this as a community service," noted John Hermann of Livonia. "He added: 'I haven't really given much thought to about whether it's more dangerous to be out there or at home.'"

"We're asked sometimes how we can justify being out instead of with our families at this time," said Charles Van Vleck, commander of the group and a Plymouth firefighter. "The answer I give is that I can do more good for my family if I'm out five miles ahead of the storm giving early warning."

"Thunderstorms with severe lightning, heavy rains, destructive winds and heavy hail are the advance men for the most violent storm on earth, the tornado," reported a REACT publication.

"Tornadoes usually form along a cold front when a mass of cold air forces its way under warm, moist air,"

Paul Cook mans the base headquarters in the Plymouth Hilton Inn during a tornado watch. Pins on map denote locations of REACT members who stated World Book Encyclopedia. "As the warm air rises, a revolving motion is set up." In the northern hemisphere, it turns counterclockwise, and travels in a northeasterly direction, often turning into a twister.

"The average time for a tornado watch is from 3 to 6 p.m.," said Van Vleck. "But that doesn't mean one couldn't occur at another time. We stay out until the watch is over."

CHILDREN in all area schools are exposed to tornado information and steps to follow in case one arrives.

Each of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools practices tornado drills. Students and teachers know where to go and how to sit for protection during a tornado. School principals are responsible for the safety of each child in his or her building.

If a tornado watch is announced at the time students usually are leaving the schools at the end of the day, Schools Supt. John M. Hoben makes the decision whether to keep the children in the schools. A communication system has been set up to notify parents of this decision.

Adults are probably less informed. The Plymouth REACT team hopes to fill in this informational gap with its April 12 class.

"We'll talk about what to do to protect ourselves," said Cook. "And we'll answer questions. We've heard all the questions before and none of them are funny. People should not be afraid to ask something. We regard every question as very serious."

What to do during tornado

There have been 427 tornadoes in Michigan since 1950, most of them in the southern part of the state. Residents should therefore learn what to do in case a tornado is sighted in their area. Here are some suggestions:

- A basement offers the greatest safety. Go there and crawl under a sturdy table or some other piece of furniture. If there is no basement, take cover in the center of the house on the lowest floor in a small room such as a closet or bathroom. A vacuum created by a tornado can destroy a house, so open windows to allow air to go through. But stay away from them.
- Trailer home residents should run for a permanent building, a ditch or culvert.
- If driving a vehicle, travel at right angles to the tornado's path. If there is not time to drive away from it, get out of the vehicle. Go into a basement, ditch or ravine, away from the vehicle.
- At work or school follow the tornado plan and move into interior hallways or small rooms on the lowest level. Keep away from areas where glass could shatter, and wide, freestanding roofs.
- If in open country get inside a sturdy building if possible, or lie flat in a nearby ditch or depression and hold onto something on the ground if possible.
- Keep a portable radio and flashlight handy in case of power failures.
- Remember that the majority of deaths in tornadoes happen to people hit by debris. If you have time pick up garbage cans, bicycles and other articles that could turn into deadly missiles during heavy winds. Stay in a spot where you are protected from flying objects.
- If you are a victim — injured or otherwise — notify authorities. Photograph the damage done. Don't sign a contract for repair work, removal of rubble or new insurance without consulting authorities.

Growth Works plans gala benefit party

By ELINOR GRAHAM

There's no means of calculating the hours of hard labor, the agonies and the ecstasies involved in nine years of nurturing a fledgling Youth Inc. to Growth Works as it is today.

The need for Growth Works contributions to the Plymouth-Canton Community has remained as constant as the organization's money worries. Somehow, each financial crisis has been survived.

Proceeds of the benefit planned for April 18 will go toward debt retirement. The second annual Millionaire's Las Vegas Party will be from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Plymouth Hilton Inn. Stephanie Cooley, who is chairing the event, promises a fun evening with free hors d'oeuvres and $1 million in chips for a $6 donation.

Dan LeBlond is ticket chairman and they may be purchased from any member of the Growth Works Board of Directors or at Nawrat Pendleton Shop, Beitners Jewelry Store or Growth Works.

MEMBERS OF THE board are Ms.

Cooley, president; David Smith, vice president; Jack Bologna, treasurer; Bettie Carlson, secretary; Lynn Anderson; Len Evans; Dan LeBlond; James McKeon; the Rev. Kenneth McKinnon; Ray Mayberry; John Eberhardt; Sally Blunk; Price Watts and Jan Raison. Pete and Bonnie Schweitzer are advisory members of the board.

Merchants in the area have donated prizes for the party. These are Nawrat Pendleton Shop, Sportventure, Armbruster's Bootery, Wiltsie's Community Pharmacy, Engraving Connection, The Shoe Attic, the Green Thumb and Me and Mr. Jones.

There will be a cash bar throughout the evening.

THE PLYMOUTH Mail and Observer moved out of the old Mail building at 271 S. Main in 1971. Philip Power, publisher, donated the building's use to the city of Plymouth as a teen center for a five-year period.

When the agreement expired in June 1976, Growth Works attempted to raise $150,000 to purchase and renovate the building. To secure grant money, Growth Works had to demonstrate local support. Financial assistance came from the Plymouth Rotary Foundation, Burroughs Corporation and Suburban Communications, Inc. The staff of Growth Works earned additional funds through a contract with the State of Michigan, training youth and social workers and teachers. The Ford Motor Co., Sheldon Road plant, First National Bank of Plymouth and McKeon Realty assisted in this program.

Finally, the sum was realized and the building was acquired.

The crisis center operation at Our House, a building donated to Youth Inc. by Judge Dunbar Davis, was moved to 271 S. Main. The single facility now provides a central location for the many programs offered by Growth Works. These are community and neighborhood services, youth services and counseling and intervention services.

The Plymouth Community Counsel on Aging, Inc. has offices in the building. Senior citizens can call for information and referral services. For youths, there is counseling on drug abuse, a learning center which offers tutoring, on-going counseling for those with personal problems and crisis intervention.

There is a Parents Anonymous group which deals with parenting and child abuse.

THE YOUTH Services component of Growth Works is closely related to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, townships of Canton and Plymouth, city of Plymouth, and the Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Youth Service personnel cooperate with the Wayne Juvenile Court in providing help for juvenile status offenders. The participants must be willing to make and maintain a commitment to the program staff. Counseling, employment and alternative education often are combined in this program.

The Youth Community Conservation and Improvement work program provides work experience, income and educational programming. The program is aided by federal funding, Manpower and the schools.

At the end of a session, reports and forms are sent to the schools. As many as three high school credits can be earned, depending on the reports.

Goals of the program are youth employment, career education survival skills, self management, personal growth, technical skills and interpersonal skills.

Among the community projects accomplished by the groups have been painting sign posts, transplanting trees, building erosion walls along Tonquish Creek, cleaning out the creek bed, and painting the gazebo and tot lot animals in Canton's Griffin Park.

Some of the participants return to school on a full time basis. Others have developed skills which help them find employment. Many area businesses cooperate with Growth Works in this effort.

Pilot programs instituted at the center have been used throughout the country.

The April 18 millionaire's party is an opportunity for individuals in the Canton-Plymouth community to help keep Growth Works in business.

Jim McKeon (seated left) was mayor of Plymouth when he and Phil Power, publisher, signed the papers that turned the old Plymouth Mail building over to the city for a teen center. At that time, so many teenagers turned up to start working on the building, that the official signing was moved outside. (Staff photo)

The lucky ones escaped winter's last blasts

Ah... spring seems to be arriving, even in Michigan! Lots of kites are sailing gracefully into the wind to the delight of lots of kids ages 4-90. And much to the dismay of some, kite-eating trees and wires have managed to snare a few.

My family even got me out bike riding on several occasions this past weekend. And I'm sure I shared with many of you the feeling that it's great to be "out" again.

A few lucky Cantonites managed to escape winter's last blasts by retreating to Florida. Judi and Cecil Thomas, along with children Eric and Amy, spent about 10 days soaking up the sun at Marco Island. Judi reports that they enjoyed walking along the beach, building sand castles, hunting for shells and, in general, relaxing. The weather cooperated delightfully, with only about one hour of rain during their whole vacation.

MARY PAPEY returned recently from a long weekend in Ft. Lauderdale. Mary's husband, Bernie, stayed home with six of their children so Mary could visit her brother, Bill Medsker, who had just returned home from a hospital stay.

Mrs. Papey said she and her brother had a fantastic time after they adjusted to the sounds of silence. They were minus the usual sounds of 16 children — nine of them his, and seven hers!

They also had a bit of trouble finding their niche in Ft. Lauderdale. Many of the restaurants they visited were frequented by the retirement set, while the beaches were mostly taken up by the college age group.

In the former, they felt they'd better leave before everyone fell asleep, and the latter, they wished they had the energy to join in a rousing volleyball game.

Mary said it was great to get away to the land of sun and fun for a while, but just as great to get back to Canton and her family.

AND ALONG with spring comes April Fool's Day. What does one do if one's birthday falls on April 1 and one lives in a neighborhood that leaves no stones unturned in celebrating? Ask Joe Hellmers. This is the same Joe Hellmers who felt no one could surprise him because he'd heard of every sort of surprise party imaginable.

Well, imagine his chagrin upon entering his garage to go to work and first discovering his wife's car missing. Then, his eyes captured the sight of his car, stuffed with over 200 balloons and totally wrapped in crepe paper with "Happy Birthday" printed on it!

Betty Hellmers' car was not actually missing, but hidden in a neighbor's garage so Joe would have no recourse but to drive his car to work. He was only slightly late to work after unwrapping and de-ballooning his car.

Those in on the surprise and up until nearly midnight March 31 creating their auto masterpiece included Joe's wife Betty, Carol and Mike Dugan, Tammy and Gary Kistemaker, Lorretta and Joe Sodditch, Carol and Tom Luelleman and Kathy Freece. They all hope not to have to blow up another balloon for quite some time.

ANOTHER STEP forward in children's birthday parties is a theater party at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Michelle Halloran was lucky enough to have her ninth birthday party there.

Enjoying the puppet production with her were Jenny Anderson, Lisa Guzzo, Kim Grapentein, Mary Abraham, Renee and Kelly Halloran. The theater presented Michelle with a hand puppet to make her birthday even - more special.

The more I hear about children's parties the more I think I must have had a deprived childhood and didn't even realize it. Whoever coined the phrase, "Ignorance is bliss," sure knew what he was talking about!

Whatever happened to the Franks, the Manleys, the Jenkins, the Krupfs?

Panelists to discuss equal rights at SC

Sadly bidding old friends farewell and welcoming new ones to the fold has become a way of life as we whip around the globe via transfer, retirement, or simply opting for new life styles.

Moving vans pull in and out, addresses are exchanged, a "for sale" sign is firmly planted in another yard just about every day of the year. At almost every gathering, conversations start with "Whatever happened to...?" or "Do you ever hear from...?"

Several families whose departure left great gaps in the community have been heard from, and old friends have been kind enough to share the current news.

Jeanne and Bill Fronk have moved from their home in Portland, Ore., to a new condo on the river. While they have done a great deal of traveling since leaving Plymouth, they also enjoy the beauties of their lovely seaside vacation home. You remember Bill, don't you? Lots of people thought he was really odd when he predicted a school population of at least 15,000 by the 1980s. (It's already 16,698!)

JO AND DEAN Manley, who left Plymouth to live in Connecticut, now reside in Bloomfield Hills, close enough for an occasional get-together with Plymouth friends. They continue to cheer the Buckeyes, and play a mean game of golf. Jo must have been really reluctant to leave us for she managed to crack her car up on moving day just to prove it.

Carolyn and Jim Kleiber are loving St. Louis. Their smashing navy and white guest room is always ready for any Plymouthite who travels in a westerly direction. Carolyn has done a fantastic job of putting her own creative stamp on their new digs.

Paul and Ruth Malboeuf make their base in Cape Anne, Maine, when they aren't exploring just about every one of the four corners. They recently met Johnny and Gene Crosby for dinner in Honolulu. Ho hum, just another little dinner out.

Charlene and Dick Tobin are living in LaGrange, Ill., where they frequently host old friends who travel to Chicago. While they miss their Plymouth neighbors and buddies, they also delight in being within commuting distance of the Windy City. Charlene is as charming, bubbly, and busy as ever. She has her own business, and continues her very active interest in the arts and antiques.

PEG AND DICK Krupf now call Naples, Fla., home. Dick loves to sail, while Peg prefers to hold court around their screened-in swimming pool. Among the products of their very green thumbs are absolutely spectacular orchids which they display in the pool area.

Jean and Hurd DeMerritt are snug as can be in their Indian River home in northern Michigan, (except when they head for Siesta Key, Fla.) While Jean indulges her passion for cross country skiing, she also takes time to plan Linda's August wedding or muse about the future joys of being grandma to Lorna's baby.

The Rev. Peter Beckwith, who came to St. John's Episcopal Church before he was ordained, is now rector of St. Paul's Church in Worthington, Ohio. Peter and Melinda and their two strapping young sons are thriving in Buckeye Territory.

Phyl and Van Van Antwerp are soaking up the sun in their Holms Beach, Fla., home after a traumatic couple of months. Phyl's many Plymouth friends are delighted to know she is recuperating nicely after surgery in December.

Peg and Bob Jenkins still hang out in Darrien, Conn., where Peg is much involved with the Presbyterian Church. She just graduated from an extensive Bible study program and is now teaching. The four gorgeous daughters have scattered, and Peg and Bob are the proud grandparents of Cilla's darling little boy.

MARY LOU and Bill Sick left our fair city for Long Island, then Winnetka, and finally Bloomfield Hills where they now live and keep the home fires burning for their three young adults, one a recent college graduate, the other two still students. They have become avid cross country skiers and love to canoe or sail on the lake behind their house. For those of you who remember, Mary Lou is still a fabulous cook.

Does anyone know whatever happened to Jim Lee of concrete boat fame?

A gentle nudge with the toe of my galosh to all itinerants who do not write notes on their Christmas cards. And, of course, the parasol tilts to the dear souls who write long letters all year long.

A Plymouth lawyer, Jean Wagner, will participate in a panel discussion of "Equal Rights for Women: Threat or Promise?" on Wednesday, April 16, in Room B200 of Schoolcraft's Liberal Arts Building. The program will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

It is being sponsored by the Women's Resource Center of the college, and is the third in a series on "Women's Rights in the '80s."

Ms. Wagner has taught a course on "Women and the Law," at Schoolcraft for several years. She has served on the Women's Advisory Committee for the college, and has written several handouts on legal questions for use at the WRC.

She is the manager of the Plymouth branch of the law firm of Millar, Neckler, Johnson, Wagner & Clark. A member of the Michigan and Suburban Bar Associations and the Women Lawyers Association of Michigan, she is also vice president of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club and a member of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce program committee.

Joining Ms. Wagner on the panel will be Daryl Hafter, professor of history at Eastern Michigan University, and Glenna Davis, Northville homemaker and president of the Michigan Homemakers Equal Rights Association.

Open Forum programs are free to the public without prior registration.

For further information, call the R Women's Resource Center, 591-6400, ext. 430.

'Books and TV' topic at Library Week event

"Books and TV: Partners for the Family" will be the topic of a panel discussion at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 15, in Plymouth-Canton High School Little Theater.

There also will be a premiere showing of a slide-tape show produced by Charlie Jones, media specialist at Hulsing Elementary School. The show was prepared by a team of Hulsing students with help from many individuals and agencies in the area. The presentation stars the entire Plymouth-Canton community.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools libraries are celebrating National Library Week April 13-19 with this special program which is free and open to the public.

"Books and TV: Partners for the Family," is the title of the new reading encouragement program in the school district. Panel participants are Dr. Michael Homes, Dianne Desch, Penny Glazner and Hazel Gibson.

Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction, will be moderator. Ms. Desch, a Plymouth resident, is involved in TV Channel 50's "Hooray for Reading" program. Ms. Glazner, of the Detroit Free Press, will talk about the newspaper's part in the CBS reading program. Ms. Gibson, owner of Plymouth Book World, is an authority on children's books.

Bunny doesn't make good house pet

Q. I would like to buy a bunny for my son. Do they make good pets? What special care do they require?

A. There is always increased interest in unusual pets such as rabbits, chicks and ducks at Easter time. Pet stores and many farms stock up.

In general they do not make good pets. Excitement and enthusiasm over the gift often results in broken legs or crushed wings.

Although irresistibly cute and easily maintained indoors when they are young, they grow rapidly. Within a few months they must be kept outside or, tragically, taken to the Humane Society to be destroyed.

Taking a negative attitude towards pet ownership can be a very traumatic experience.

RABBITS DO require special care.

They cannot be house trained and soon grow too large to be kept indoors. Rabbits can be maintained outdoors if kept in a small building that does not get too cold in winter nor too hot in summer.

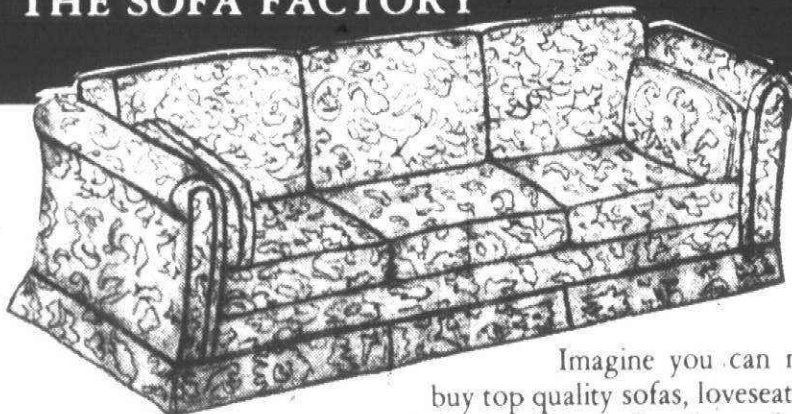

If more than one rabbit is kept they must be in separate cages because they often will fight.

The cages should be kept off the ground. Good ventilation is important. Fresh water should be available at all times.

The diet should consist of a commercial rabbit pellet (available from pet or feed stores). This should be supplemented with "greens" such as lettuce, celery, or carrots.

WATCH FOR OUR NEW CHURCH AT I-275 AND 8 MILE ROAD

Singles ministry now reaches 1,000

By MARGARET MILLER

It all started, just a little over two years ago, as a meeting of about a dozen singles in one of the rooms in an insurance building.

Now it's a ministry, encompassing four distinct groups, serving more than 1,000 single adults and still growing.

Ward United Presbyterian Church of Livonia now has a full-time staff member to direct its efforts to fill the needs of the unmarried of all ages, both on its membership rolls and living in the surrounding communities.

"It's the ministry for the '80s," said Timm Jackson, who came to Ward late last year in the newly-created position. "There are some 500,000 single adults in the Detroit area, and these days they are not in a holding pattern, just waiting to get married. Many are in responsible positions and like their life style."

"Yet many come to us and say they have not been able to feel comfortable at any church, especially if there has been a divorce."

So Jackson seeks to change patterns and create new ways to make a large sections of society find its place, both in the church pews and the church activities.

WARD CHURCH'S evolving answer to the singles ministry question takes four forms at this time.

There is Single Point, the group that grew like Topsy from the little gatherings in the Alexander Hamilton Insurance building in Farmington Hills.

Now Single Point meets twice a month in the church's fellowship hall and draws between 400 and 500 participants to each session.

It offers them, in addition to the fellowship and programs of those evening meetings, special interest groups, sports teams and occasional outings and trips.

But Single Point, while growing rapidly, proved only a beginning. It soon became apparent that the wisdom

'I came first to the singles group and then joined the church. I am absolutely not interested in going to singles bars, but I'm not interested in being by myself all the time either.'

— Nora Schroeder

among the single had special needs. "New Beginnings" is the name of the church's group formed to meet those needs.

"It's a ministry open to anyone interested in a better understanding of grief and widowhood," said Jackson. "One of its features is a 'Grief Line,' manned by members and open to those who need to call for support."

ANOTHER BREAKAWAY from the Single Point organization came early this year with the formation of "Act One."

"This group is basically for younger singles, mostly in their 20s," said Nora Schroeder, a Livonian who is one of its leaders.

Act One meets Saturday nights at the church in a party atmosphere. "It's for people looking for something different from the bar scene," said Miss Schroeder. Entertainment, both by well-known groups and by members doing the own acts, make up an important part of the social evenings.

Finally, the Ward singles ministry includes three groups that meet regularly Sunday mornings.

Jackson listed them — Emmaus Road, basically for young people aged 18-25 and still in school; Crusaders, made up of career people in their 20s, and One in the Sun, a group for older singles which numbers among its membership divorced and the widowed and people as old as 70.

IT WAS A challenge from a visiting clergyman as well as the rapid growth of the Single Point organization that led Ward church to turn more attention to singles, Jackson said.

"The group that had started in the insurance office was growing out of its quarters," he related, "so some of its members suggested that the meetings be moved to the church. Dr. Bartlett Hess, the senior minister, was very open to the idea." The move was made and the group kept growing.

Then, during an adjustment to divorce weekend sponsored by the church, there was a talk by Jim Smoke, a member of the staff of a large California church and author of the book "Growing Through Divorce."

"He told about the growing number of singles and their need for a meaningful place in the church," said Jackson, "and he challenged the church that night to find a way to meet that need."

The Livonia church's response was formation of a task force, and out of its study came the varied ministry that still is in growing stages.

JACKSON, its leader, represents a somewhat new breed of clergyman too.

Ordained in the Church of the Nazarene, he had spent 11 years in youth ministry and was ready for a change in focus when he noted the growing phenomenon of ministry to singles.

Leaving his most recent assignment in Iowa, he traveled to Texas to look over several flourishing singles ministries.

Timm Jackson has been named by Ward Church to head its growing singles ministry.

"I had been involved with several churches when Ward made contact," he said. "I came up here for a weekend and joined the staff in October."

Married for 11 years, Jackson is in this respect like about two thirds of the 500 clergy involved in ministry to singles.

"I think there's a real need for a role model, especially if there have been marital mishaps," he said. "I guess for many, marriage is still the ultimate aim."

A church-sponsored singles group can be a real island of security for its individual members, said Jackson. But for the minister used to other kinds of church activity, it may be a bit unsettling.

"Single people tend to be more mobile," Jackson said, "and singles groups change their complexion 50 percent every six months. That becomes threatening, but in singles ministry you have to recognize that's how it is."

THREATENING OR not, Jackson is convinced that special ministry to those who are not married is vital to the church today.

He notes young adults like Ms. Schroeder, who says she "came first to the singles group and then joined the church."

"I'm absolutely not interested in going to singles bars," she added, "but not interested in being by myself all the time either."

There are many like her, said Jackson. "Not everyone who comes to our activities is of the church," he stated, "and I don't worry about that at all."

Some are of other faiths, and that's all right too. What we are providing is a vital part of the role of the church at this time."

Geneva church plans installation

By MARGARET MILLER

The Rev. Kenneth Gruebel will be looking back a little and looking ahead a lot when he is installed Sunday as minister of Geneva United Presbyterian Church of Canton.

The new leader of the 6-year-old congregation of 400 members thinks he may find hindsight useful because he has come to Geneva from a church which, he says, "went through 30 years ago the kind of situation Geneva knows now."

The native of Long Island served seven years as assistant pastor of the Community Church of East Williston there. During his ministry, the time for rapid growth was in the past and the older membership had more space than it knew what to do with.

"And now in Canton I see things the way they told me it used to be," he said. "Young families in a booming area, not enough space in rooms, tremendous leadership, also tremendous turnover."

Gruebel sees his unusual transition as giving him knowledge of "what not to do" in his present situation.

"What churches, like schools, should not do is build as though growth will continue forever," he said. "What they should do is be more concerned about persons than facilities."

"I'm glad to see Geneva has moved in that direction even before I came by building facilities that can be used in more than one way. The sanctuary, for example, doubles as a dining room, and everything in the room, including pulpit and altar, are movable."

THAT DOUBLE-DUTY sanctuary will see its first installation Sunday when the congregation and its guests gather to make official the call that was extended to Gruebel some months after the departure of the Rev. Jeffrey Goldsmith, founding pastor.

"I want the installation service to symbolize what this church stands for," said the new minister.

"Lay people will play a big part, because they certainly do that in the way Geneva is operated. We also will have both men and women participating and the service will be interracial."

Taking part will be the Rev. Margaret Scabich, former moderator of the Detroit Presbytery, who served as interim minister until Gruebel arrived, and James Cannon, present moderator. The Rev. Darneau Stewart, pastor of a Detroit church, member of the Detroit Board of Education and longtime friend of the new Geneva minister, also will be on hand.

GRUEBEL IS a graduate of Groves City College and Princeton Seminary. His call to the East Williston church, 20 miles from the Long Island neighborhood where he grew up, was his first.

He said he finds in the Geneva congregation "a marvelous spirit — perhaps like the spirit of the early Christian church."

"The people participate a great deal here," he added. "They make the announcements, raise their concerns for prayer and ask questions about the sermon and the service."

"There is more involvement on the part of the people than in any other church I've served or visited."

There may be a few adjustment problems on his part, he added, "but they are a very special group of people."

Gruebel and his wife, Susan, have two children, David, 6, and Melissa, 2 months.

Antiques expert at Town Hall

By JEAN DAY

In jargon of the antique trade, Lawrence Gichner is a "picker."

He scouts for antiques and collectibles that he sells to others, but his customers include institutions like the Smithsonian. One of his "finds" is a picture now hanging in the executive office in the White House.

Gichner also is a personable speaker and accomplished shutterbug. He entertained Northville Town Hall members with a slide lecture on "Collectibles" at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Town Hall members ventured on a pictorial trip "through someone else's attic" that included that most prestigious attic of all, the triangle area over the White House portico.

Here repose "barrels of canes, stacks of sofa pillows and potentate gifts."

GICHNER CONFIDED that he first had gained access to attics by being a roofer for 35 years. He now travels widely, searching out antiques and collectibles.

Because he works closely with museum curators, Gichner is aware of the kinds of things being sought. He collected patent medicine bottles that became part of the apothecary shop in the Smithsonian.

Flashing pictures of old labels, Gichner showed that three types exist: herb medicines, syrups, and dopes.

Labels promised anything and everything, one instructing, "Weigh yourself before taking." "Pink pills for pale people" is a kidney renovator.

Tichner suggested to his Town Hall audience that they "go out in the country and knock on doors."

"They'll always tell you they have nothing to sell but keep talking," he advised.

AS AN EXAMPLE, he showed a log cabin 50 miles from Washington where he was shown two handblown glass circles rescued from between the logs. They, he declared, were breast cups for a nursing mother.

At the same poor farm he paid a dollar for an old poison bottle that he said he had just sold for $125. He told his audience that he is going to "split the loot" with the cabin owner.

Knowing what to look for and what one is looking at is part of the collecting business, Gichner said. Before his lecture, he had visited Old Town Plymouth's antique shops. He remarked that such items as an old rug beater were fairly priced. "They're lower than I've seen anywhere recently," he told his audience.

"Take along a lot of hope," he advised as he mentioned old scrapbooks, letters and books often stored in attics. Sometimes, he illustrated, famous signatures were pasted inside book covers.

He warned anyone finding letters with old postage stamps not to clip them off.

OLD MAPS are collectible, especially those showing western territories and dated ones. Gichner estimated the value of an 1835 map at $250.

Dime novels, like "Pluck and Luck" that sold for five cents, now are "worth a lot of money," according to the collector.

People also are collecting old household equipment — from ice tongs to the ice box itself.

"Know what this is? It's the wooden box you bought squares of ice for at the curb and brought into the kitchen."

Gichner noted that today young couples are buying the oak boxes to hold records.

Other collectibles sometimes found in attics, the speaker suggested, include hand-colored Currier and Ives prints. He mentioned that sometimes a lucky find will be a frame with several prints behind the one displayed.

Trade cards, children's books, old catalogues all bring prices that astound, he continued. Collectible art includes old circus posters, he added.

"From 1880 to 1910, a couple wasn't officially married unless they had a brass bed," Gichner said, saying the beds today bring from $750 to $2,500.

SHOWING A PICTURE of a bottle of smelling salts marked "Ford Motor Company," Gichner said this was "standard equipment with the first Fords."

Questioned at the luncheon following the lecture about Hummel figurines, Gichner urged collectors to become familiar with their various marks. "The more valuable," he said, "are those with the mark made when Sister was alive."

Anything marked "Occupied Japan" or "Germany US zone" should be saved, Gichner stated, defining as antique "anything 100 years old or older." In England, he said, the definition is that the item be made about or prior to 1830.

What should collectors save and seek out?

Right now Gichner himself is seeking things "the immigrant brought to this country." This can include exquisite Chinese ceremonial robes brought back by missionaries, he illustrated.

"They are the bits of our past that must be preserved," said Gichner.

Lions Club plans White Cane Drive

The Lions Club of Plymouth will sponsor its annual White Cane Drive Friday and Saturday, May 2 and 3.

Some 45 Lions will be collecting for a variety of club projects in shopping centers and on street corners in the City of Plymouth and in Plymouth Township.

Charles Hoitash is chairman of this year's drive, the 32nd in which the Plymouth Lions Club has participated. Gov. William Milliken has proclaimed April 27 through May 3 White Cane Week.

The drive is one of three major projects undertaken by the club each year, and in which members raise more than $10,000 for charitable purposes.

The other two projects are the auction, set for May 18, and the fish fry at the Plymouth Fall Festival.

LOCALLY, THE members put time as well as money into projects. About a year ago, they bought the materials and built 12 picnic tables for the Plymouth Township Centennial Park. They have been asked to make more this year, reported Hoitash. They have also provided bridges for the park.

The club spends more than $1,000 each year for glasses and eye examinations and hearing aids and examinations for children and adults in the Plymouth community.

Last year, members donated a $5,000 van to the local YMCA for the transportation of senior citizens.

In recent years, they have assisted the city in providing aluminum trash receptacles in downtown Plymouth. The club make an annual donation to the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and to the Salvation Army, and sponsor a Boy and Girl Scout troop.

From time to time, donations are made to other worthwhile community projects. Recently, $200 was given to the Special Olympics, which will be at the Centennial Education Park this year. The club purchased and donated a 16mm sound projector to Opportunity House.

DONATIONS ARE made to the Leader Dog for the Blind School in Rochester. This is one of three such schools in the U.S. sponsored and maintained largely by Lions Clubs with help from the United Fund.

Members also contribute funds to the Michigan Eye Bank, the Penrickton School for Blind Children and the Welcome Home for the Blind.

This year, as in past years, the club is requesting interested persons to pass along to any club member used eye glasses and hearing aids. These are re-adjusted and sent to the needy all over the world.

The Plymouth club is interested in finding new members. Interested persons may contact any of the following: Dale Dauderman, Skip Dorrington, Lou Morton, Gene Kornegay, Chet Solowiej, Dennis Siegner, Joe Gabrys, Jerry Holden, Ray Burns, Don Hay, Ed Kerstens, Mel Korte, Jim McCarthy, Bud Martin, Gene Meadows, Noble Stormant or John Roose.

12.00% 2 1/2-Year Certificate

The minimum deposit for a 2 1/2-year certificate is $500 and the rate at which you open your certificate remains fixed to maturity. Interest is compounded daily and paid quarterly. (The rate on future IRA deposits may vary as determined monthly by the U.S. Treasury Department.) Existing Security Bank IRA account holders may "roll" their IRA deposits into the new 2 1/2-year certificate, provided six months' interest is forfeited in compliance with Federal regulations regarding early withdrawal. The certificate plan described above can also be utilized for the Simplified Employee Pension (SEP) plan.

IRA Qualifications

You qualify for an IRA tax-sheltered retirement account if you are not a participant in any employer-sponsored retirement plan. And, the contributions you make can be deducted from your taxable income, with earnings tax-deferred until retirement. By acting now and establishing a new IRA account before April 15, 1980 you can deduct your contribution from your 1979 Federal Tax Return. Full details on the contributions you can make can be explained to you when you visit your nearby Security Bank office.

Withdrawal without penalty may be made between age 59 1/2 and 70 1/2, or in the case of death or permanent disability. Otherwise, Federal law and regulation requires a substantial loss-of-interest penalty for early withdrawal. There is also a substantial I.R.S. penalty for early withdrawal.

Detroit Edison employees worked far into the night after Tuesday's storm to restore downed wires. Observer photographer Gary Caskey took this picture on Hamilton Street in Plymouth. Although there were reports of a tornado touching down in Plymouth, the community had light damage compared to neighboring areas where wind velocity reached more than 80 miles per hour.

Cole Porter comes to life

The professional touring company of the Black Sheep Repertory Theater in Manchester brings its song and dance production of "An Evening with Cole Porter" to the Livonia City Hall auditorium at 5:30 p.m. Sunday. The show includes 29 of Porter's witty tunes, including "Night and Day," "I've Got You Under My Skin" and "Don't Fence Me In." Tickets are $2.50, available in advance at the City Hall or at the door. Livonia's City Hall is at Five Mile and Farmington Road.

College musicians give a boost to new Steinway in Sunday piano concert

Three Schoolcraft College music faculty members will donate their performances in a benefit recital at 4 p.m. Sunday.

All proceeds will be used by the Schoolcraft Foundation to pay the debt on a $20,000, 9-foot concert grand Steinway piano.

"The piano received rave reviews from the performers during our mini-jazz series," said Richard Saunders, head of the college's fine arts program.

"Three of five who used it said it was the finest they had ever played on."

THE RECITAL will be held in the Waterman Center at the north end of the campus, on Haggerty north of Six Mile. Those who attend are asked to make donations.

On the piano will be Donald Morelock, who will be heard solo in Brahms' Rhapsody in B Minor and will accompany the other two performers — mezzo-soprano Wendy Gartner Bloom and violinist Derek Francis.

The college rented pianos for performances until the foundation committed itself to purchasing the Steinway.

"This will give us more flexible scheduling," said Morelock, head of Schoolcraft's piano department. "Not only will guest artists and faculty use it, but students will be able to play it in solos and honors recitals."

"This is a legitimate concert instrument," added Saunders. "Having students who are serious performers use anything less would be like asking a violinist to use a three-quarters size violin."

FRANCIS, a member of the summer music faculty, will be heard in Mozart's Sonata in B-flat Major for Violin and Piano and Prokofiev's Sonata No. 2 in D Major (opus 94a).

"The Prokofiev was written as a flute sonata and was transcribed for violin by David Oistrakh (the late Russian violinist)," said Francis. "That is why the opus number is followed by the letter a. The piano accompaniments are identical."

Francis, a member of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, is a native of London who has played in the Royal Philharmonic of London and has been concertmaster of the Royal Academy of Music Orchestra.

Mrs. Bloom is a part-time faculty member working on a master's degree from the University of Iowa. She has sung the lead role in "Carmen" and given many lieder recitals.

She will be heard in Richard Wagner's "Wesendonck Lieder." If it bears a marked musical resemblance to his first great opera, "Tristan and Isolde," it is because they were written at the same time.

For Brahms, music always came first

By TED SEEMEYER

The now internationally famous Detroit Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Antal Dorati, opens the International Brahms Festival tonight.

The festival will be patterned after the successful Schubert Festival of last year and the Beethoven Festival of the year before. The Brahms festival will run through April 26.

Tonight's sold-out opening at Ford Auditorium is just seven days after the 83rd anniversary of the great German composer's death in Vienna in 1897.

BRAHMS COVERED brilliantly almost every field of music — symphonies, concerti, chamber music, piano works, choral compositions and songs — with the exception of opera. He is a towering figure in 19th century music, considered by many to be the outstanding composer of German romanticism.

However, his is not the flamboyant romanticism of Franz Liszt, nor is it the theatrical romanticism of Richard Wagner. In his music the romantic impulse is restrained by reverence for the classical spirits and forms of the past.

He belonged to the classical school of Bach and Beethoven, who laid stress on firmness of outline, balance of structural form and satisfying completeness of polyphonic texture.

Brahms was born in the seaport city of Hamburg, Germany in 1833. His father, Johann Jakob Brahms, had left the town of Heide at the age of 20 to seek his musical fortune in Hamburg. There Johann became a journeyman musician, specializing in the double bass and ultimately playing in the Hamburg Philharmonic Orchestra.

YOUNG JOHANNES quickly showed unusual musical talent. His father wanted him to play the double bass — there was more money in it — but the boy insisted on the piano. He learned everything his father could teach him. He was an avid reader and loved to practice, covering reams of paper with counterpoint exercises and variations.

At age 10 he gave a concert, performing an etude by Herz and the piano part of Beethoven's wind quintet. A traveling impresario witnessed it and wanted to take the boy on a tour to America as an infant prodigy.

But Brahms' teacher, Otto Cossell, felt it would harm his pupil and, instead, turned him over to Eduard Maxson, the most famous and influential music teacher in Hamburg. Maxson gave him, without pay, a priceless foundation in Bach and Beethoven.

Johannes, as a youth, was small, slender, with dark blue eyes and almost shoulder-length flaxen hair. His facial features were delicate and aesthetic. He was shy, self-disciplined and self-critical. He was a perfectionist, with the spirit of determination and perseverance.

BETWEEN 14 AND 20, he was allowed to play at several public concerts but the bulk of his work was geared to rigorous practice and discipline.

His vacations were spent at Winsen, a small town south-east of Hamburg, where he taught piano to the daughter of Adolph Giesemann, a friend of his father. While there, Brahms loved to take long walks in the woods and meadows, a habit destined to inspire all his music. He composed while he walked, and he could out-walk anyone, which led to his robust health throughout his life.

When Brahms was 20, and an accomplished pianist, he went on a concert tour with Hungarian violinist Eduard Remenyi. Brahms had such a good memory he took no music with him.

Remenyi introduced Brahms to the young German-Hungarian violinist and conductor Joseph Joachim. With a letter from Joachim, they went to see Franz Liszt, who wanted Brahms to enter the neo-German school led by Richard Wagner and himself, representing the advanced wing of German music.

BRAHMS DIDN'T TAKE to it. He disliked the extreme romanticism of Liszt and Wagner, which spurred all restraint, defied all tradition and cared less for beauty of style than for vivid and picturesque expression.

Also, Brahms' straight-laced heritage took exception to the artificial atmosphere of Weimar court life and the high society surrounding Liszt, who at the time was living with Princess Caroline Sayn-Wittgenstein without benefit of clergy.

In September 1853, with a letter of introduction from Joachim to the famous composer, conductor, writer and critic Robert Schumann, Brahms went to Dusseldorf and stayed with the Schumann family for more than a month.

Brahms fell in love with Schumann's wife, Clara, a beautiful concert pianist who was 14 years his senior. They became devoted friends. It was an idyllic situation, although after Schumann's tragic death they never married.

In October, Schumann's unprecedented eulogy of the still virtually unknown Brahms was published.

Schumann, who had for more than a decade been a leader of public opinion in his country's musical life, had with one stroke focused Brahms to everyone's attention. He also found a publisher to print his compositions.

NOW BRAHMS WOULD have to justify the faith placed in him. He would be forever striving for perfection.

In 1854, when Brahms was 21, Schumann lost his mind and hurled himself into the River Rhine. He was rescued and put away in the Endenich Asylum where he languished for two years before he died. In the meantime, Brahms looked after Clara and her seven children.

Tonight's opening concert of the Brahms Festival is sold out, however tickets are still available for many of the 19 performances in the series — including the Soiree Musicale at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 16, in Ford Auditorium with Antal Dorati, Eugene Istomin, Isaac Stern, Leonard Rose and numerous others.

For tickets and information on the festival programs, call the Detroit Symphony Orchestra ticket office at 962-5524.

Brahms fell in love many times, but, like Handel, Beethoven, Schubert and Bruckner, he never married. His music always came first.

In 1860 Brahms and Joachim published a manifesto which described the work of neo-Germans as "contrary to the inner-most spirit of music." This caused an uproar in musical circles and did more harm than good. It drove the musical factions farther apart.

In 1863, he left for Vienna to start a new life. There he became conductor of its Singakademie, and later, director of the renowned Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde (1872-75). In 1875, he retired and devoted himself entirely to creative work.

Brahms always enjoyed good health and loved to eat, and remained youthful until middle life.

AT 45, HE SUDDENLY changed in physical appearance and personality. He sprouted a Santa Claus beard, developed a pot belly and spoke in a harsh raspy voice. With his broad chest, Herculean shoulders and thick-set torso, friends who had not seen him for some time didn't recognize him. He even pretended he was someone else behind his luxuriant whiskers.

He commanded the best table in the Vienna cafes because waiters judged that from his appearance he must be someone of importance.

Brahms was helpful to young composers, provided they had talent. For Antonin Dvorak he secured a state grant for the "young, poor and talented" and two years later wrote his publisher, Fritz Simrock, strongly urging him to publish Dvorak's "Moravian Duets."

Toward the end of his life, Brahms' favorite vacation spot was Ischl. It was there that he received the news of Clara Schumann's death in May 1896.

On the way to the funeral he became ill, which turned into jaundice. His physician diagnosed the illness as cancer of the liver, but didn't tell him. He went into decline and died in Vienna on April 3, 1897. He was 64.

The music world mourned him as one of its greatest composers.

It's spring! Blackbird's mating call is in the air

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

The shrillest, most demanding bird mating call of spring is the long trill of the red-winged blackbird.

The males have been back for a couple of weeks or so. A male — black with a triangular red patch on his shoulder — stakes out a territory and invites seven or eight dull-colored females to set up housekeeping in his domain.

That red patch is more than decoration. It apparently tells potential wives and rivals that here's a good protector.

Biologists once performed a fascinating experiment to understand the patch's significance. They trapped a male and painted his patch black.

Immediately another male kicked the all-black male out of his territory and took over the harem.

When the coloring wore off and the first male's patch was red again, he was able to reclaim his ladies and his share of the marsh.

Watch for red-winged blackbirds around marshes and cattails. The nests are close to the water and will have three to five eggs which are blue, white, purple and black.

They're insect eaters. That's why they like marshes and why they migrate south in flocks for the winter.

YOUR 1979 fishing license is good until April 21. The Michigan Legislature has been unable to agree on a new set of hunting and fishing license fees, so the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has extended the life of the old licenses. It had previously been extended to March 31.

The 1980 licenses cannot be distributed to dealers until the fees are set.

outdoors

It's virtually certain they will go up, probably about 40 percent over two years.

"Tax limitation" doesn't apply to fees.

A FREE DIRECTORY of 70 private campgrounds and 101 recreational vehicle service locations is available from the RV dealers association. Send a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to: RV Directories, MARVAC, 19045 Farmington Road, Livonia 48152.

THREE NATURE programs are coming up at nearby Huron-Clinton Metroparks:

At 1 p.m. Sunday, April 13, Kensington naturalist Bob Hotaling will lead "A Spring Walk at Spring Hill." The two-hour walk starts at the nature center building. Bring binoculars. Register in advance by calling 685-1561.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 16, Kensington naturalist Dave Moilanen will lead a two-hour walk to look at "Nature's Night Life." Bring flashlights, wear boots and call in advance to register. Take the Kensington Road exit from I-96 and follow the signs.

At 2 p.m. Sunday, April 13, Oakwoods naturalists Glenn Dent and Fred Wooley will lead a leisurely stroll across woodland trails starting at the nature center. Oakwoods is east of I-275 straddling the Huron River in southern Wayne County. Register in advance by calling the nature center at 782-1255. Programs are free, but there is a vehicle admission charge of $2 a visit or $7 for a season pass.

James Dewar (left), Robin Trower and Bill Loran comprise the Robin Trower band, performing at Detroit's Masonic Temple.

Robin Trower: 'personal blues'

By NICK CHARLES

"Victims of the Fury" represents a change for the man once called "prince of the power wah." Whether it is a progression for Robin Trower or whether he is reverting to an early style is still unclear.

Fans nevertheless will be able to judge for themselves when Trower debuts his eighth album locally at Detroit's Masonic Temple on Sunday. Joining him will be faithful vocalist/bassist James Dewar, along with former Sly Stone drummer Bill Loran.

Six of the 10 tunes on the LP are co-written by Keith Reid, with whom Trower collaborated in the days of Procol Harum. The new album comes after a two-year hiatus from the recording scene and undoubtedly has the flavor of Trower's early hard rock material. It is not crowded with the classic mellow tracks that made "Bridge of Sighs" (1974) a masterpiece.

IT'S MORE tune-oriented. Short, concise songs fill the album. "Jack and Jill" and "Only Time" are the only songs on the album written by Trower alone. "Only Time" is the closest thing to the spine-tingling works of art that rock so little but do so much.

The Dewar/Trower composition

"Mad House" rocks with a powerful beat, while "Roads to Freedom" captures that live feeling in the studio.

Trower gives out with a raw, plucking guitar on the funky "The Ring." With "Fly Low," he re-creates the rhythm-and-blues-slanted feeling that pervades "In City Dreams" (1977).

Trower says he doesn't like the lyrics to take away from the music. His music is based around the guitar with heavy emphasis on the pedals, deep bluesy vocals and a timeless space concept. Trower also thinks the blues era has passed but he labels his music "personal blues."

OUTER TABLE

DURING THE BEAR-OFF

If you hold one or more points in your opponent's home board (preferably the 1 and/or 1 and 3 points) as he bears off, chances are very good that he will leave you a possible hit.

After hitting your opponent, you are faced with the problem of containing the hit checker and winning. This may be done by having at least four or five closed points in your home board, leaving only the 1 or 2 point open. Spreading your remaining checkers throughout the outer boards is also important if your opponent gets off the bar and attempts to race home.

In the example, black was hit during the bear-off and remains on the bar. White rolls five-three. White also owns the doubling cube at the two level.

There are 13 possible moves for white. Which is the best?

BEST OVERALL MOVE...

Advance a checker from black's 1 point to black's 9 point. Remember, you have two objectives: Diversify your checkers to cover all areas of outer and inner board points (in case your opponent tries to escape); and if two checkers remain on your opponent's 1 point, split them immediately.

Black must leave the bar and enter on the 1 point. If black rolls one-four or one-three, he will be forced to leave another hit.

If black remains stuck on the bar more than three turns, white should double the cube.

Imports bring welcome style to the home

We are currently under the influence of imported furnishings and designs. You have only to look around you to notice the influx of imports in every store.

We have long been incorporating the Japanese design of furnishings in our homes. It seems to be the source of much of the Oriental influence on interior and exterior architecture. Certain analogies are frequently drawn between Japanese architecture and the contemporary style we enjoy.

Sometimes a designer is completely unconscious of any outside influence on his work. However, strong parallels are apparent to anyone who knows both styles of architecture and furnishings.

The Japanese seem to have solved successfully the underlying needs that we commonly have. The work of Frank Lloyd Wright reflects the character of Japanese architecture. We think of it as contemporary. Architects and decorators have at times appropriated the best ideas of various countries and adapted them to our needs.

THE POWER of quietness, or understatement, is the Japanese approach to beauty. Lasting beauty, severe and astringent, simple restraint and an unassuming quiet feeling may be applied to a house, a person, a costume, or furnishings.

It doesn't designate high style, or correctness of taste. The appeal of the Japanese influence isn't due to falsification or applied design but rather brought forth from within by skill and materials used. It has the power of the unfinished statement.

The beauty of many of the imports is rich, serene — creating a timeless effect. It is soberly understated and unassertive. Color is uneven, shaded, and quiet.

The Japanese may have many pictures, vases, and art objects, but these are never displayed all at once or kept in view for long periods of time. Possessions are stored in asymmetrically arranged, built-in cupboards, cabinets, closets and chests. There is usually a great deal of storage space, which forms an important part of the architectural background of the rooms.

The only interior furnishings in Japanese houses are the cupboards, matting for the floor, small tables for flowers, games, writing, and eating. There is nothing extraneous to distract or provide discordant notes.

COLOR, MATERIAL, spacing, scale, and lighting, rather than applied ornaments, dictate the furnishings in an Oriental home. Decoration isn't used to mask the logic of construction. The natural beauty of unfinished wood, the soft light diffused through creamy rice-paper screens, are results from the mere choice of materials.

The Oriental colors that are uneven as they are in nature give an unassuming imperfect quality which makes the observer something to discover.

Color is always used in a matte finish, never shiny. There is no repeat of identical pattern in fabric, or wallcovering. The total effect is rich.

The sliding wall idea is being used here in America to eliminate glaring sunlight and chilly winds when necessary. It provides flexibility in room space and versatility of use.

Likewise, by means of screens, a large bedroom can be made into two smaller rooms, or a bedroom with a dressing room. Grass matting rather than translucent papers are sometimes used for screens in order to give a degree of privacy.

Occasionally, we Americans adopt the ideas of Japanese tradition. We display a single beautiful object to its fullest advantage. There is something to be said for the sense of space, the emphasis on simplicity, the neutral backgrounds, the beauty of natural woods, restraint in color, concentration of decorative interest — the "less is better" theory.

Airy spaciousness and cleanliness result from the use of light and quality. Your furnishings are wed to your home. The concept of the Oriental influence is approaching us, none too soon.

mation of a caterpillar into a butterfly before setting it free.

The films, to be shown at 2:45 and 3:45 p.m., are free with museum admission of $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

Also free with general admission that day are planetarium shows at 2, 3, 4 and 7:30 p.m. and observatory demonstrations from 8:30 to 10 p.m.

Art Institute opens new Sunday afternoon cafe

Sunday Afternoon, a new series at the Detroit Institute of Arts, debuts this weekend in the Crystal Gallery with food, drink and live piano music.

"We originally wanted our Sunday morning 'Brunch with Bach' to be just an informal little place to meet friends, read the New York Times and break-fast while a chamber music group provided background. But the music was too good to talk over and our guests started taking it seriously," says Audley Grossman, director of the Institute's performing arts department.

"We're starting over with Sunday Afternoon. We'll have champagne cocktails, mimosas, bloody Marys, capuccino, espresso, imported teas and the best brioche, scones, Napoleons and croissants we can find, along with what I call 'romantic Broadway' music — Gershwin, Cole Porter, Sondheim and others, played by Detroit piano artists.

"We're aiming for the flavor of the Palm Court of New York's Plaza Hotel."

Local pianist Matt Michaels will provide background music 1-4 p.m. Sundays through April, followed by Charles Boles in May (except the Memorial Day weekend).

There is a $5 per person minimum for food and drink. Reservations are not required. For more information, call the Institute ticket office at 832-2730.

GUSTAV LEONHARDT      RUTH LAREDO      MALCOLM BILSON

3 weekend concerts trace keyboard music

Keyboard music from the 17th through the 20th centuries will be performed by three soloists in concerts on three successive Saturdays at 8 p.m. April 12, 19 and 26, in the Detroit Institute of Arts Recital Hall.

Series tickets at $15 and individual tickets at $7 are available from the Art Institute ticket office, 832-2730.

This Saturday, Malcolm Bilson will give a recital on a copy of the fortepiano built by Anton Walter which Mozart owned. Lacking the steel frame, heavy strings and felt hammers found on modern instruments, the smaller fortepiano was the 18th century precursor of today's grand piano. The program will include music of C.P.E. Bach, Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven.

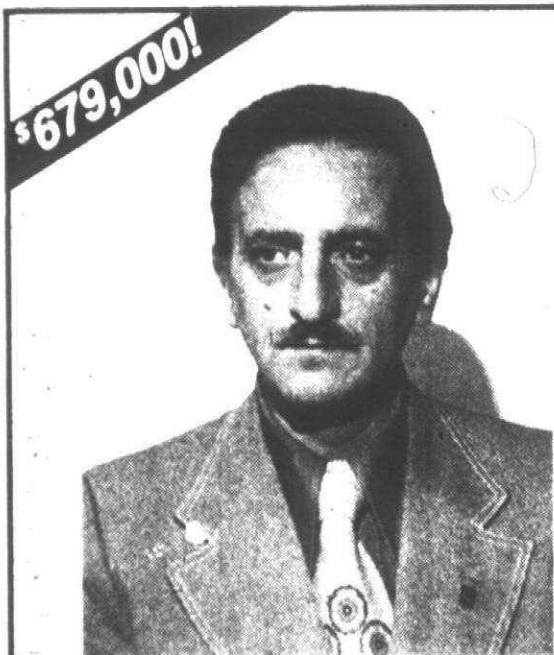

The April 19 concert by harpsichordist Gustav Leonhardt will feature compositions by baroque composers Frescobaldi, Froberger, Louis Couperin and Johann Sebastian Bach. A copy of a double-manual 1730 instrument will be used.

Ruth Laredo's April 26 performance will be a return to the stage where the Detroit-born pianist made her debut. She will play music of Beethoven, Chopin, Scriabin, Ravel and Barber on a nine-foot Baldwin grand piano.

BILSON IS the foremost exponent of performing late 18th and early 19th century music on the fortepiano. He has given recitals throughout Europe and the United States, and has recorded for Advent, Titanic and Nonesuch records. A faculty member at Cornell University, Bilson has participated in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Beethoven and Schubert Festivals.

Leonhardt in 1980 celebrates the 30th anniversary of his concert debut. The Dutch harpsichordist is a specialist in baroque music, and has participated in over 100 recordings for Telefunken, Harmonia Mundi, Philips and Seon. His 1979 Detroit debut at the Detroit Institute of Arts was well-received by both critics and audience members.

Ms. Laredo has performed with all the major orchestras in the United States. She has been included in many important chamber music festivals, and has given recitals in most parts of the world. She is the first artist to have recorded the complete piano music of Rachmaninoff (for Columbia).

Visit the Capp Homes Open House this weekend...

And discover how your finishing touch can give you more home for the money!

Since 1946, CAPP has made quality, custom-built housing affordable for more than 60,000 families. And the reason is our unique, "Finish-It-Yourself House" concept.

CAPP Homes are not pre-fab or modular. We build our homes the traditional beam-by-beam way, with the finest materials, on the lot and foundation you provide. When our carpenters, leave, your custom-designed home is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish. Or, you can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead. Either way, you'll get a home that is uniquely yours—one that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.

But don't take our word for it. Come on out this weekend and see for yourself. Look at the quality of the construction material. Feel the wood... knock on the doors... slide open the windows.

Most of all, talk to the buyers of this home. They'll be here to answer any questions... while they work. You'll see them actually finishing their home. Folks just like yourself. We think you'll discover how you, too, can save money on a CAPP Home by "finishing-it-yourself".

CAPP Homes. Your finishing touch means quality... and savings... for you. Come on out. We'll be there rain or shine.
