Reagan dinner at Center Stage planned

By DARLENE STINSON
and CAROLINE PRICE

Ronald Reagan, front-runner in the Republican presidential race, is planning a fund-raising dinner at Center Stage in Canton Township, according to one of the principal owners of the entertainment complex.

Center Stage's John Sassak said he was contacted by Reagan representatives about two weeks ago, but he said a date for the event has not yet been scheduled.

Members of Reagan's office staff in California also were unable to pin down an exact date for the function.

Robin Grey, a spokesman for the Reagan campaign staff, however, says the candidate is expected to come to Michigan April 21.

Sassak said Center Stage would not charge the Republicans for anything except the liquor and food. With dinner tickets on sale for anywhere from $100 to $500 a plate, the fund-raiser is expected to net at least $250,000.

Sassak said he is a Reagan supporter, but doesn't consider himself a "party" Republican. He has sponsored other fund-raisers for George Wallace and George Romney at banquet facilities which he owns (not with other Center Stage owners) in the Detroit area.

"I'm for him 100 percent," Sassak said of Reagan.

"I don't fund-raise for people I feel don't belong in the White House."

THE NEWS that Reagan would probably be visiting Canton in the near future came as a surprise to police Lt. Larry Stewart. He said the Secret Service usually visits local police departments before such events. Although the Secret Service makes all the plans, Canton police, the Wayne County Sheriff's department and Michigan State Police may also be asked to provide assistance.

Stewart said President Gerald Ford drove through Garden City a few years ago when the police officer worked for the Garden City department. At that time, all major and side roads which go into Middlebelt Road (where the motorcade was traveling) were sealed off.

Reagan's scheduled fund-raiser may or may not serve as a campaigning visit, depending on whether Michigan holds a presidential primary.

Lawrence Verbeist, director of elections for the Wayne County Election Commission, said a judge in Ingham County issued a restraining order last Thursday morning to stop the primary, pending a hearing this Thursday.

The primary, if it is held, will be May 20.

GOP noteworthies to bunk in community for convention

By TERI BANAS

The Plymouth-Canton community is gearing up for the party of its life beginning July 14.

That's when a total of 84 delegates and alternates from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts check into the Plymouth Hilton Inn in Plymouth Township for the Republican National Convention in Detroit.

Friday, the Michigan Republican Headquarters confirmed that Massachusetts' delegates were selected for lodging in Plymouth.

Along with those delegates, assigned to 105 rooms at the hotel, will be an array of well-known national dignitaries and media representatives.

Among them are Eliot Richardson, former attorney general in the Nixon administration, Henry Cabot Lodge, former vice-presidential candidate in 1960, and John Volpe, former secretary of transportation in the Nixon Administration.

Also staying in Plymouth that week will be former U.S. Sen. Edward Brook of Massachusetts, John Winthrop Sears, Boston city councilman and descendant of the first governor of Massachusetts.

Also among the special guests will be Bruce Crane, head of the Crane Paper Co. which supplies paper to the U.S. Treasury.

THIS INFORMATION was released Friday by the GOP convention headquarters in the first round of lodging assignments arranged last week.

While the Detroit Convention Host Committee has been chiefly responsible for arranging the assignments, Massachusetts was one of only a few of the 50 states to request a particular site.

That occurred March 31 and April 1 when the commonwealth's GOP chairperson, Polly Logan, visted Plymouth.

"The charm of Plymouth is very similar to a small New England town," she said. "We felt the 25-minute ride to the convention hall would be well worth it.

"It has a historical shopping center and being from Massachusetts we were very interested in those facilities nearby." Local officials responded to the information Friday with unrestrained glee.

"We're very pleased that the state with the original Plymouth is coming to Plymouth, Michigan," said Township Clerk Esther Hulsing.

Mrs. Hulsing, a member of a chamber of commerce committee setting up highlights for the week's visit, said planning for the GOP convention has been proceeding for several weeks.

AMONG DISCUSSED activities are a band concert in Kellogg Park for delegates and their families, horse-drawn carriage rides to Plymouth's Old Village, and a fashion show featuring merchandise from local stores.

According to Ms. Logan, transportation for the delegation already has been arranged. The state's party will rent school buses from Detroit Country Day School in Beverly Hills.

This week, more assignments will be announced as Michigan GOP officials begin assigning rooms for special visitors, security personnel, finance personnel, Canadian visitors, the press and even telephone installers.

According to Republican party worker Sandy Weber, the Knight's Inn in Canton Township will be selected this week for some of those visitors. Assignments also are expected this week for Canton's Willo Acres and Plymouth Township's Red Roof Inn.

The Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth declined space for the convention activity. Canton's Swan Motor Inn and Countryside Motor Inn also declined use of their rooms.

Presidential candidate John Anderson has received the largest number of votes from the Massachusetts delegation with Ronald Reagan coming in second. Only two votes were cast for candidate Howard Baker.

School board candidates file

Seven residents will be running for two positions on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education in this June's annual school electon.

Among the seven candidates are incumbents Richard Arlen of the city of Plymouth and Flossie Tonda of Canton Township.

The five challengers are James L. Steffen, James Sinclair, Emil Hagopian, Dennie Holyoak and Glenn Schroeder.

The two receiving the highest number of votes will be elected to four-year terms.

Hagopian of 12137 Hines Ct., Plymouth Township, is a 1977 graduate of Plymouth Canton High who now is studying business adm inistration as a junior at Eastern Michigan University.

Holyoak of 42246 Hartford Ct., Canton, is an engineer for Ford Motor Company who moved to the school district last summer from Taylor.

Sinclair of 11449 Terry Ct., Plymouth Township, is employed by Ford Motor Company in Dearborn and now is studying business administration at Henry Ford Community College. An unsuccessful candidate two years ago, Sinclair long has been active in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Athletic Association.

Steffen of 7693 Admiralty, Canton, is an attorney with offices in Westland. He was a member of the Westland Planning Commission before moving to Canton two years ago.

Schroeder of 9630 Pino Ct., Plymouth Township, has been active in the school district as a former member of the citizens bond advisory committee.

Arlen, presently vice president of the school board, is an accounting instructor at Schoolcraft Community College and a lifetime resident of the city. Mrs. Tonda has served as board

With the children caught in-between

Friend of the Court picks up some enemies

"The Friend of the Court is a system that's never been challenged since 1919. How in the world can a system created in 1919 handle the needs of people in 1980?"

Alan Lebow,
Equal Rights for Fathers

First in a series

By LYNN ORR

More than a million adults and children in Wayne and Oakland counties are affected by Friend of the Court, the agency which oversees divorces of parents of minors in Michigan.

The handbook given to divorcing parents by the Oakland County Friend of the Court makes no bones about what it can't do:

"The name of our agency, Friend of the Court, confuses the public.

"The word 'friend' seems to imply that we are ready and able to assist with all court problems. We are not. . . . duties are clearly defined by statute.

"We are not a clearing house of information, we are not supposed to explain to you why your attorney is doing what he is doing. We are not a referral agency, and relief from problems stemming from your divorce does not automatically begin with the Friend of the Court."

Michigan's Friend of the Court system nationally is considered one of the best for its high rate of collections. But the system has its problems.

Divorcing parents, frustrated by the system, believe the agency aggravates rather than resolves problems of divorced families.

The Michigan Women's Commission, in its comprehensive study of Friend of the Court — "In the Best Interests of the Child" — recommends statute use of generic terms — custodial and non-custodial parents. But it's clear that wars between fathers and mothers in their roles as parents cannot be resolved with non-sexist categories.

Parents, children, attorneys, psychologists, court personnel, social workers and even judges are affected by how Friend of the Court operates and any changes that may await the agency in the next decade.

FRIEND OF the Court is the title of the agency as well as the person who heads the agency in each county. It was established by statute as an arm of the judiciary in 1919 to protect minors and enforce court decrees in divorces involving minors.

The agency investigates cases and submits recommendations of custody, visitation, child support, alimony, and other provisions to the Circuit Court judge who decides the judgment of divorce.

Contrary to what divorcing parents expect, Friend of the Court is primarily concerned with the law, rather than resolving parental disputes. The Friend of the Court usually is an attorney, as are most of the people involved in the decision-making process.

In Oakland County, the Friend of the Court estimated the caseload at more than 47,000, involving more than 125,000 children. The county's population is estimated at 1 million.

Wayne County's Friend of the Court has a caseload of 243,000 involving more than 375,000 children. By contrast, Wayne County has an estimated population of 2.6 million. Population estimates were supplied by county Friends of the Court to the Michigan Women's Commission.

Both agencies complain that lack of funding prevents them from doing a better job. Wayne County's Friend of the Court currently has 44 vacancies in a staff of more than 300 because of the county's budget freeze. But critics argue that no amount of money could humanize a basically archaic system:

"They herd people through like sheep."

"You're treated like a criminal."

"All the Friend of the Court cares about is whether I pay the child support. They could care less that my ex-wife won't let me see my children."

The complaints are common. Equal Rights for Fathers, based in Southfield and drawing from as far away as St. Clair County, now attracts 150-170 members at monthly meetings, according to Alan Lebow. Many of those are new faces coming in with the same sad story, he said.

"When I first went through it (divorce), I had the feeling that I was the only guy in the world that was causing a problem. They (Friend of the Court) tried to make me feel like I was out of step." Lebow said.

"What we've found out is that they mistreat everybody. Once we started comparing notes, we got very angry."

Not enforcing visitation is the fathers' major complaint, Lebow said. While child support payments are vigorously pursued by the Friend of the Court, fathers need to pay an attorney to simply attempt to get visitation enforced.

SURPRISINGLY, John Houghten, Oakland County Friend of the Court, agreed.

"The problems are not identical. One (child support) is of a mechanical nature with certainty, the other is shot full of holes and uncertainty.

For June ballot

School bond requests to be revealed tonight

The school board tonight will hear the administration's recommendation for a bond proposal to be placed on the ballot in June.

Superintendent John M. Hoben said the administration will recommend one ballot proposal which will be much smaller than the $14.7-million Proposition I defeated by voters on March 28.

The board also will be asked to approve a ballot proposal to seek voter approval to levy the 1.32 mills which have been rolled back by the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment.

If approved, the authorization to levy 1.32 mills would restore almost $1.1 million of the $2 million in income affected by the Headlee rollback.

The board meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

THE SCHOOL BOARD also will be asked to approve materials for reproductive health education, to approve a salary increase in the superintendent's contract, and to approve the 1980-81 county allocation budget.

Hoben noted that state law provides that six months must pass from the time voters reject a ballot proposal before the identical proposal can be placed on the ballot. Therefore any proposal for June's ballot must be substantially different than the issues defeated by voters in March, Hoben said.

The administration feels the $14.7 million requested in Proposal I is still an absolute minimum need, Hoben explained, but the district cannot afford to wait until January or February for voter approval.

Before January 1981, Hoben said, the district will need bond monies to buy equipment for Lowell Junior High and to provide air conditioning for schools going onto the Extended School Year (ESY) schedule.

THE AIM of the second ballot proposal, said Hoben, is to "regroup the monies lost due to the Headlee tax limitation proposal. The Headlee proposal did not address itself to growing school districts with unique problems of staffing and concerns relating to placement of students."

The second proposal would seek voter permission to levy all available millage during the 1980-81 school year. "This, in turn, would mean no increase in millage but would avail the district of the 1.32 mills reduction" because of Headlee, said Hoben.

The ballot proposals will be discussed again at a workshop session next Monday with a final resolution acted on at the April 28 regular meeting of the board.

The materials for the reproductive health education class have been recommended by a study committee of residents, teachers and administrators. The materials to be used are available for inspection at the board offices.

The board also will be asked to approve a resolution to increase the superintendent's salary by 6.6 percent to $50,000 a year.

The board also will be informed formally of the resignation of Dr. Barbara Bowman as executive director of elementary education. She has accepted a position as associate superintendent for curriculum development with the school district in Waukegan, Ill.

2 nominated to Academy

Two Plymouth residents are among those nominated recently to U.S. military academies by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

Nominated to the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs from Plymouth were Guy Kananen and Mark Lazarcheff.

Pursell made a total of nine nominations students from Wayne County to the naval, army and air force academies.

The nominations were made on direct recommendation of the congressman's academy advisory committee. The four service academies will make the final choice of those actually accepted for enrollment.

The Pursell advisory committee consists of six community and education leaders from the 2nd Congressional District, which includes Plymouth, Livonia, Northville, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Monroe County, and other parts of Washtenaw County.

Local traffic reports to be aired on WSDP

Conjested rush hour bumper-to-bumper traffic on Plymouth-Canton area freeways and surface streets can be a nagging problems to drivers.

That's why a new public service program is being introduced through the combined efforts of the Plymouth Area REACT Team and WSDP-FM (88.1), the student radio station. And the result should be to make travel in the area safer for motorists.

The Plymouth Area REACT Team has increased its weekend monitor ing hours from 6 p.m. on Friday through noon Sunday to include weekdays from 3-6 p.m.

DURING HOURLY updates resulting from monitoring area highways and streets, motorists are given updates on emergency conditions, conjestion and accidents. The new feature, however, is that the reports now can be broadcast to listeners of WSDP.

"We hope to make driving during these peak traffic periods safer and help drivers avoid traffic slow down areas," says Charles VanVleck, REACT president and commander.

Drivers with CB radios in their vehicles are asked to report on CB channel 9 any traffic conditions affecting the normal flow of traffic to the Plymouth Area REACT Team. The team's central monitoring base is located in the Plymouth Hilton Inn on Northville Road.

VanVleck encourages people to remember that traffic conditions are low priority emergency reports so they should "wait until the channel is clear before calling in."

Motorists with FM radios can listen to WSDP-FM for updates while driving area roads.

To get more information on how to join the Plymouth Area REACT Team, or help with community service projects, call 459-0020 from 3-6 p.m. or 453-7377.

The entrance to Lotzford Road, off Lotz in the northeastern section of Canton, doesn't look too bad after being smoothed out by a bulldozer, but residents say the road is usually in far worse condition. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Private road plagues residents

The people who live along a dirt road known as Lotzford have a problem.

The problem is Lotzford.

The road is pitted and rough in the winter and little more than a river of mud in the spring. It's dusty in the summer. The residents (some 20 of them) who live along the road are well acquainted with the mechanics who fix their suspension systems and tow their cars. They are used to not getting their mail or newspapers because the road is sometimes too bad for the carriers to brave.

The residents can't complain to the Canton Township government because Canton is not responsible for maintaining the road.

But the Wayne County Road Commission, which is responsible for maintenence of most roads in the township, won't claim Lotzford either.

LOTZFORD, as it happens, is a private road. That means the county doesn't have to have anything to do with it unless the residents choose to pay to have it brought up to county standards.

In order to have the road improved, Michigan law requires that 51 percent of the property owners of frontage along the road sign a petition requesting the creation of a special assessment district.

Jim Bostain, one of the residents who live along Lotzford, said as far as he knows, no petition for road improvement has ever been circulated among residents.

"I think some of the younger people would sign a petition, but the older people who have lived here a long time have already seen their taxes go way up," he said.

Canton Clerk John Flodin, who has received many complaints about the road, said he "feels a great deal of sympathy" for the people who live on Lotzford and has even sent a bulldozer over to smooth the road down on occasion.

"But it wouldn't be fair to all the other people who paid in the past to have roads improved if we fixed up Lotzford," he added.

ACCORDING TO the legal opinion of Michigan Township Association attorneys Bauckham, Reed, Lang, Schaefer and Travis, if the residents signed a petition indicating the required support, the township board would, if it wants to proceed, have an engineer draw up plans and give an estimate for the improvement.

The board would have to pass a resolution expressing its intention to improve the road and designate a special assessment district. A public hearing must be held, after which the board would decide again whether to go ahead with improvement.

According to the same law firm, if the costs of improvement can't be paid by the property owners in one payment, the board could either keep collecting assessments until enough is gathered to fix the road; pay the money in advance and then collect over the following years, or issue bonds to pay for the road.

The bonds would be paid back as assesments are collected.

One other option, according to the attorneys, would be to utilize state Act 336. That act would allow the board, with consent of the Wayne County Road Commission and 65 percent of the property owners, to go to circuit court and attempt to have the road named a public highway.

The decision would hinge on whether the road had been used as a public road for at least 10 years and whether public money has been spent on the road.

Burglary suspect captured by police

A 23-year-old Westland man has been charged with the April 8 cat burglary of an apartment in Canton.

Steven Schneider, of 31650 Cowan Road, allegedly entered an apartment in the Canterbury Mews complex at approximately 4 a.m. last Tuesday while the resident, Marilyn McKendrick, was sleeping.

Police said Schneider took a purse containing $43 in cash from the living room after entering the apartment through an unlocked door wall.

Lt. Larry Stewart said Canton police arrested Schneider while he was walking behind the apartment complex with the purse in his hands. A neighbor of Ms. McKendrick notified police after seeing a man enter the apartment unit.

Schneider was arraigned on a breaking and entering charge before 35th District Judge James Garber on April 8. He was released on $5,000 bond.

Preliminary examination is scheduled for Monday (today) before Garber.

A friend indeed?

"In my opinion, I don't think judges want to use court time for a ping-pong game. There's 150,000 excuses she (the custodial mother) can concoct.

"On the other hand, if it's outright blatant violation of visition, we will attempt something."

That something involves a meeting between an investigator and the complaining father; a meeting between the investigator and the mother; and finally a three-way meeting in hopes of reconciling the situation. If the parents come to an agreement, a consent order can be entered into court.

But most of the time, Houghten said, if the situation is that tense, it's nearly impossible to resolve.

While legally both custodial and noncustodial parents can go to jail if they're in contempt of court (not following the decree), Houghten was unaware of a single case in which a mother was jailed for refusing visitation.

Lebow and Houghten agreed on another aspect of the situation: The child is the loser.

"WE HAVE grownups so concerned about their own feelings, they're destroying children," Houghten said.

"The reality is that children need the relationship with both parents," Lebow said. "Children are used as agents of blackmail and extortion by the custodial mother. The minute the mother injects the idea that 'Your father isn't paying for you,' that mother is hurting the child.

"We're producing a lot of alienated, unloved, emotionally disturbed people."

A custodial mother agreed.

"I've never denied him (her ex-husband) visitation because he's late (on support). That wouldn't be right. He's her father."

"I don't think you should ever use kids to get back at their dad," said another mother.

But she added that not all of her divorced friends share her opinion. Some urged her to deny visitation when her ex-husband hadn't paid child support.

One custodial mother wrote to this newspaper that "Ex-fathers don't have rights."

That opinion is not shared by the Friend of the Court.

"FATHERS have come a long way," said Clayton Christenson, Wayne County Friend of the Court.

"They're showing more interest in their children."

But he said "lack of personnel" prevents his agency from doing "the job we'd like to do."

Family counseling may be an answer, he said, and if there's an indication that counseling may help, Wayne County staffers will refer the parents to a local agency.

"But this all costs money — taxpayers' money."

Christenson and Houghten are convinced that reconciling warring parents to the needs of their children is a nearly impossible task. They both believe the majority of ex-spouses attempt to put their children above personal problems.

But those who cannot communicate end up trying to get help from the "arm of the judiciary" designed to enforce the divorce decree.

As the divorce statistics mount, the problems increase. Long waits, refusal to handle questions over the telephone, paying an attorney — are a few of the complaints of divorced parents.

"Friend of the Court is totally self-serving," Lebow said. "Attorneys have made a billion-dollar industry out of divorce.

"We have no-fault divorce; but we have fault in every case where custody is awarded to one parent."

THURSDAY: Sexism, inefficiency, "not caring." Critics level their charges.

WRIF crew, characters brighten mornings

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Who'd have guessed cartoons would go over big on radio?

A generation that grew up watching Popeye, and Rocky and Bullwinkle cartoons, along with Dick the Bruiser wrestling bouts, is now listening to those characters Monday through Saturday mornings on WRIF-FM, Southfield.

Recent Arbitron ratings for the 18- to 49-year-old age group put Jim (J.J) Johnson and his sidekick, George Baier, on top of the heap in the heavy competition from 6-10 a.m. In the overall ratings, WRIF ranks fourth behind WJR's J.P. McCarthy, WWJ-AM's all-news format and CKLW's morning funny man Dick Purtan with a 7.4 share of the market.

The WRIF morning crew, which sounds like a carload of characters, actually is comprised of Jim (J.J.) Johnson, 27, of Pleasant Ridge and George Baier, 23, of Beverly Hills. Baier is the voice of most of the morning crew, including Dick the Bruiser, Rocky, Bullwinkle, Popeye, Jackie Stewart, who does the traffic report, Detroit Tiger announcer George Swell, who does the "Tiger Cool-down," and Mayor Coleslaw Young, "from the thity of Detroyit."

The only other "real" characters are news person Jane Burton, who is referred to as "Miss Information" and Eli Zaret, who does the sports show.

REAL SPORTSCASTER George Kell and wrestler Dick the Bruiser reportedly are aware of Baier's audio caricature of them and don't seem to mind. In fact, Richard Aflis, who wrestles professionally as Dick the Bruiser, has even agreed to do a current radio commercial, with voice-over by Baier, promoting the station.

"His (Dick the Bruiser's) voice is actually different than the one I do," Baier admits. "But it's as I remember it — the old wrestler who'd grab the microphone from the ring announcer."

One might think King Features, which syndicates Popeye comics and Jay Ward Productions, of Rocky and Bullwinkle cartoons, would claim copyright infringement after learning their cartoon characters are reading risque public service announcements about venereal disease over the airwaves of a rock station.

But no one's complained yet, says Baier. He figures its fair game, comparing his use of the voices to that of any mimic impersonating famous voices.

"As long as the voices are a spoof," says WRIF director of promotions Ruth Whitmore, "we're on solid legal ground."

Copyright problems would come up only if WRIF produced cartoons with the name "Rocky and Bullwinkle" or "Popeye." And there's little chance of a radio station showing cartoons over the air.

The only flack they've gotten is over a recent bit where Dick the Bruiser smokes marijuana to relieve his glaucoma condition. Some callers thought the bit encouraged illegal activity among young listeners, said Baier.

"It's enough to drive you to drink," said Baier, in his Bruiser voice.

THE GOOD RATINGS didn't come overnight. Both Johnson and Baier started building their audience at another Detroit rock station, WWWW-FM.

Johnson was program director and afternoon disc jockey at W-4 before a purge at the station. Baier started out as "a free free-lancer" for Steve Dahl, whose funny format morning show was a hit at WABX-FM first, then W-4. Baier joined the show at W-4 when he was attending radio classes at Wayne State University.

"I was doing voices, writing stuff, kicking around ideas with him and eventually I ended up with a job," Baier said.

But when Dahl left Detroit for the bigger market in Chicago, he lost Baier and Johnson as friends. They don't speak to each other anymore. Dahl compares Johnson and Baier's show to an act by Elvis Presley imitators.

Baier explains the rift:

"He tried to fire me from W-4 and I wasn't included in the move to Chicago," Baier said. "Here's a guy leaving to make $1,000 a week in Chicago and here I was making $5 an hour. Before he left, he got arrogant and said 'You're fired.'"

Johnson, who was program director at W-4 at the time, said Dahl was in no position to hire or fire anyone.

"It got to the point where Steve was cutting George's microphone off," says Johnson. "It got back to Steve that we'd decided to continue the format without him because we'd decided that not only Steve, but (Baier's) characters, had developed their own identity."

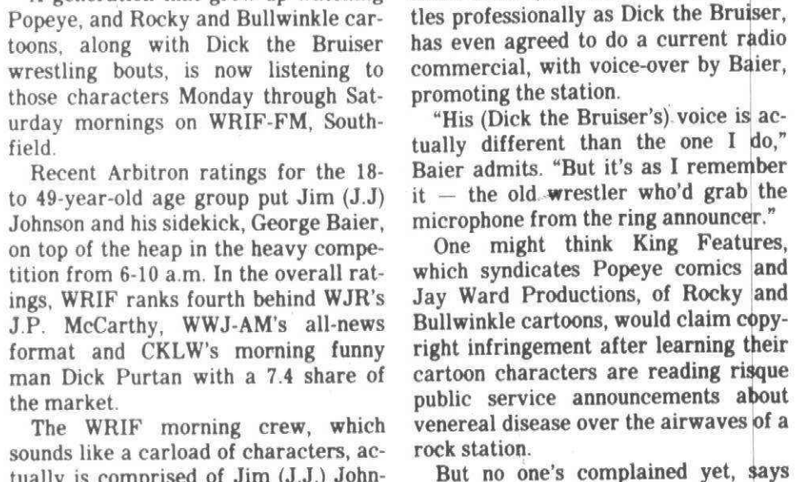

Johnson says he ordered Dahl to do the show at W-4 with Baier until Dahl left the station.

"I THINK it was basic insecurity," Baier said. "He figured if he didn't do well in Chicago, he'd come back to Detroit and take over his old job."

Instead, Johnson told Dahl to clear out his desk a week before he was scheduled to leave. And Johnson filled in for Dahl "temporarily" as the host of the morning crew. Two years later, Johnson's still at the helm of the morning crew.

Dahl, on the other hand, went on to achieve nationwide notoriety by sponsoring an anti-disco rally at Chicago's Comiskey Park last year which turned into a rocker riot forcing cancellation of the second game of a doubleheader between the Chicago White Sox and the

Detroit Tigers. He's also cut a couple novelty records called "Do You Think I'm Disco?" and "Ayatollah."

Unlike Dahl, neither Johnson nor Baier professes any great desire to strike out for greener pastures or bigger radio markets.

"I hope to stay here for a number of years, expanding our audience," says Johnson. We're both from Detroit. I can see us being the J.P. McCarthy or Dick Purtan of our generation and maturing and developing our style through the years."

Baier says that if he hadn't clicked on radio, he'd have been just as happy working at an East Detroit gas station.

"I'd have been a master mechanic by now," Baier said.

Success hasn't made George swell.

Orientation up at EMU

Orientation registration fees for new students have been increased $5 to $15 and a $25 fee for overnight orientation programs has been raised to $40 by the Eastern Michigan University Board of Regents.

The new orientation fees, effective immediately, bring university costs in line with increases in room and board rates, publication costs and student help fees which have increased since Eastern's present orientation fees were established in 1976, according to EMU.

According to the Student Affairs Division at EMU, room and board rates have increased by 35 percent, publication costs by 54 percent and student help by 37 percent since 1976.

Monday's Commentary

Cable TV

The medium could be everyone's message

Dennis Rosenblum

I'm probably in the minority when it comes to television. I shove my elderly VHF-only set in a corner and turn it on only for the evening news or when I get sick.

I loved my TV when I was popping pills after a bout with oral surgery awhile back. It's amazing what drugs can do for the human mind.

I don't even mind getting a fuzzy America Held Hostage. In fact, the fuzziness seems to fit in with the content.

So all the talk about cable TV doesn't interest me much.

But amid the rush to cable, one aspect of the technology fascinates me. And I'm afraid it's not getting much thought.

Community access, they call it.

I'm not talking about broadcasting city council or school board meetings. I sit through those things once in a while, but only because I'm not paid for it. People who have trouble falling asleep will love them.

I'm looking forward to having every character in town getting on the tube to do a little song and dance, or to criticize the council and school board for having such dull meetings.

It's a great opportunity to see some amateur talent and to hear diverse opinions. And it'll keep people like me in the newspaper business on our toes making sure we're abreast of local doings.

In this area, Plymouth and Canton have already approved contracts, with a group having the space-age name of Omnicom. Other suburbs are setting up commissions to make recommendations to city councils.

I'm worried that the local honchos — the politicians, the business interests, the educators — are going to look out for themselves.

ALL THIS COMES to mind because of a Livonia mime and satire group called the Minstrels. A couple members went vacationing in Kentucky last year, met someone running a statewide cable network who liked their work, and took off in hopes of doing their thing in everyone's living room.

It was a simple case of being appreciated.

They were looking forward to having cable TV in town, but they were also worried about the powers that be keeping the cameras out of the hands of people like themselves.

The people at Omnicom say they welcome such programming. "The very nature of access is that you don't do a great deal of censoring," says John Raines, president of the firm.

"You get some budding artists who can get some good exposure."

Obviously, such things are going to be screened for slander and pornography. And political comments are subject to the federal "fairness doctrine," requiring equal air time for all candidates.

But the "out" for Omnicom is that they set up a citizen advisory committee to set standards for what can go on the air. If the public screams about something getting on the air, the wrath comes down on the committee instead of the company.

I suppose it makes more sense for residents to determine what's considered obscene by their own standards than for some corporation with a mysterious name like Omnicom to do it.

BUT THE BEAUTY of cable TV is its diversity. Once you get wired, you can get over 30 channels to choose from, offering everything you might ever want.

While you might not look forward to seeing your next-door neighbor on the airwaves complaining about your barking dog, you might find someone on the next block who has a good idea for improving the neighborhood or someone across town who's a delightful entertainer.

You can always turn the channel if you don't like it.

But if you don't get it, you'll be missing something.

Ramblings

By Caroline Price
Canton Observer Editor

Lack of form checks deposits

The world is full of minor irritants.

What warped individual, for example, decides how many checking account deposit slips should go in the back of each pad of checks? Every week, when the paychecks are passed out, several members of our happy little office make our frantic pilgrimage to the bank in order to once again join the world of the financially solvent.

And every week, prior to this exodous, someone has run out of his or her personalized checking account deposit slips, complete with name and account number.

Without fail, this person asks if anyone has one of the blank deposit slips that have to be filled out with name and account number.

Without fail, another person (usually someone who didn't have a deposit slip last week) will offer to provide a form from his or her own checkbook.

(No one has ever fallen for that one, since the deposit would of course be credited to the account of the deposit slip donor.)

Although this tired joke has been repeated week after week (and it was never all that great to begin with), we never seem to fail to derive amusement from it. At any rate, the same great mind that has determined that there will never be enough checking account deposit slips in the back of a checkbook (thus forcing one to rip out slips from pads of checks reserved for future use) has also decided that blank checking account slips can not be obtained from the counter.

One can find savings deposit slips and savings withdrawal slips and brochures touting the wonders of high finance.

But a checking account deposit slip is not to be found. You have to get them from the teller.

This forces the victim to wait in line, get a form and either enrage the rest of the line by filling out the form at the window, or having to stand in line all over again after the form has been filled out.

Tellers don't seem to like to pass out the forms and are even more reluctant to give out a few extra blank forms to tide you over in an emergency.

In all fairness, it is possible to order an entire pad of personalized checking account deposit slips, which is the kind of thing organized, efficient people do.

The rest of us just creep up to teller's windows, ask for the form, and tolerate lectures on how we can order entire pads of checking account slips, etc. etc.

I'm sure that banks, for the sake of their computers and bookkeeping, far prefer the personalized checking account deposit slips, which explains why the others are given out so reluctantly.

I prefer the personalized ones for that matter, since I'm always paranoid that I'll write in the wrong account number and brighten up a total stranger's bank balance.

But these are thoughts that are thought when one has a brand new pad of checks complete with a supply of deposit slips.

One neither is, nor wants to be, rational about such matters when it's time to go to the bank and there's nothing left in the back of the checkbook but a row of perforated stubs.

It's enough to make you write a column.

Impeach class president for ducking reunion

Craig Piechura

Few people, except those who were members of the glee club, really look forward to attending their class reunion. My 10-year reunion is coming up this June, and I'm doing my damndest to stay out of sight of the organizing committee.

You fear everyone else from the graduating class is president of a multi-national corporation, while you're still being denied a Sears credit card.

People who weren't well-known in school figure they'll be ignored at the reunion. And the people who were well-known figure everyone still hates them for being popular.

I dunno, somehow I'd hoped to be a bit more matured and assured when I made my triumphant return. Ten years ago I was writing smartass columns for the Warren Observer high school paper. Today I'm doing the same for the Observer & Eccentric. No regrets, it just sounds like the plot line of a one-act existential play.

Besides, people you went to high school invariably remember only the most embarrassing aspects of your past.

Stuff like:

"Boy, remember between junior and senior year when year you got a job at that cafeteria and gained 25 lbs? One minute you were so skinny, the next time we saw you you were a blimp."

It's comments like that that made you want to stick a spiral notebook up the guy's nose when you sat across from him in homeroom.

Or they'll bring up the time you drank too much at the drive-in and recycled your Cold Duck in the back seat of somebody's Dodge Polara and on the sleeve of a coat that girl borrowed from her mother.

They'll remind me of my 1964 prediction that the Dave Clark Five would be a much bigger rock and roll group than the Beatles. Sorry, I still maintain "Glad All Over" is a better song than "Love Me Do."

They'll retell those old stories about teachers we gave nervous breakdowns, and probably ask me to do the voice of Hawkeye, the senile sister who claimed she could smell a Jujube or stick of Juicyfruit a mile away. And I'll probably oblige them to impress the same women I tried to entertain, with little success, when I was in high school.

I have this fantasy that everyone who was labeled a "nurd" in high school will be tremendously witty and fashionable, while everyone you figured had it made won't be able to attend, because they're spending the summer at the Detroit House of Correction.

Likewise, I figure those girls we dropped our pencils over will be wearing a floral print house dress, curlers and nylon anklets that curl up just below their vericose veins. And the guy who's only skill seemed to be burping on command will be working on advanced micro-chip technology at MIT.

I must confess I was senior class president, a post I won in a protest vote against the head nun's handpicked candidate. The only major piece of legislation passed during my term of office was an executive order rescinding a school ban on blue jeans.

I would never have accepted the presidency if I knew it was a lifetime post. Everytime I run across an old classmate in a shopping mall, I get asked when the class reunion will be held. I tell them to listen to the radio for the announcement, too embarrassed to admit I'm shirking my academic duty by not planning the get-together.

Some of the cheerleaders took up the slack. But they're having trouble contacting people, because they're only using the East area phone directory. So, if you are within the sound of this page, there's a St. Ann-Warren High class of 1970 reunion on June 13. There, I've done my part.

I'll go to the reunion. But so help me, the first guy who calls me Clark Kent gets a gusher of recycled Cold Duck all over his three-piece suit.

Census? Who needs it?

Mike Scanlon

in Redford and responsible for area communities.

A couple of people who work here in the office are getting married in a week or two, and a bunch of us are putting together a bachelor party for the groom. The bride already had her wingding. She got a picnic basket.

We're going to give the groom one of those inflatable dolls they keep under the counter at X-rated bookstores.

All of this set me to thinking about the U.S. Census.

This newspaper has five offices scattered around Wayne and Oakland counties. There are people who have worked here for years, spoken to each other hundreds of times, and don't know what they each look like because they work 18 miles apart.

Now these dolls range in price from $19.95 to $34.95. I was afraid to ask what the difference is, but that doesn't matter. The point is we decided to take up a collection.

No sweat. Seven or eight minutes on the phone to these various offices and we had pledges of $25, enough for a good, medium-priced doll.

Except the pledges didn't exactly work out. We collected $8.

In a place like Detroit it would not be much of a problem to call a guy up and get him to start shattering femurs until these pledgers started paying off.

But we've got what the Army calls a logistics problem here. The mileage expenses for the guy driving all over hell tracking down the pledgers would be prohibitive.

So we didn't go that route. Instead we'll probably end up using the $8 to buy more beer at the bachelor party.

NOW, if something as routine as buying an X-rated doll can cause these kinds of problems, imagine the dilemma facing the folks at the census.

So far, you can't get a peep out of them about what their return rate was on all those mailed out forms. "Very encouraging" is the extent of official comment from the northwest Detroit census bureau, which is based

Very encouraging, as you may realize, could mean anything. At first blush it sounds good. Think about it a while and you start suspecting that between the lines it may mean something entirely different. We'll have to wait awhile to find out.

Sooner or later, though, the people at the census are going track down people like me. I got the census form in the mail and threw it away even before I finished reading the instructions. Too much trouble.

What I want from them is an already-stamped 3-by-5 card with one question on the back — "How many people have you got in this place?" I'd fill that out in a minute. But I think I got the long form. When I have to start remembering my mother's year of birth, I tend to sweat and throw away the forms which ask for it.

Anyway, the census has 200 million odd people to get these forms back from, and not all of them will have filled in these forms. And many of these of these 200 million odd people are very odd.

Door-to-door is the way the census folks are going to have to go to get these folks to spring free with their stories. Belly to belly with weirdos for $4 an hour.

It might be fun to greet them at the door with an X-rated doll and a guy who shatters femurs for a living.

The best-laid plans

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

It is amazing how long it takes a good idea to become reality.

This came to mind the other morning when The Stroller picked up his morning newspaper and learned that another plan is afoot to build a series of condominiums along the Detroit River close by the civic center to match another that is planned between the two big arenas and the Ambassador Bridge.

Both plans, it was said, are designed to entice the people who rushed to the suburbs in the past decade or two to come back to the inner city and help to save it.

To the younger generation, this may sound like a new idea. But to the oldtimers it is just the rebirth of an idea that was discussed several decades ago when the Lodge Expressway was opened to the public.

As he read of the latest plans, The Stroller couldn't help recalling a visit he had with the late Albert E. Cobo, then the mayor of the city of Detroit.

Standing at the window of his office high atop the City County Building we looked at the concrete ribbon that stretched to the north and, rather kiddingly, it was mentioned that the folks now could come down shopping much quicker than before.

When he heard those words "Little Al," as he was effectionately known, turned and answered, "And they can get out of the city just as fast. We'll have to take means to stop that."

With that he turned and looked at the Detroit River as it flowed quietly on its way to Lake Erie, and remarked, "This would be a grand place to erect apartment houses (there were no condominiums in those days). Just imagine, sitting in your living room and looking into a foreign country. More than that, wouldn't it be something out of this world to sit in your own home and watch the boats from foreign countries pass in review most every month of the year."

"Little Al" was so wrapped up with the idea that he was about to start a movement that would have a two-fold effect. It not only would keep people in the city instead of rushing to the suburbs, but it would help to beautify the river front.

Unfortunately, he died before his term of office was finished and the idea, apparently, died with him. Now it is being resurrected with hopes that it will become a reality.

Until his death Mayor Cobo had reason to be disturbed about the rush to the suburbs. People were moving out in droves and it was during that rush that the city of Livonia came into being just as Canton is today.

The Stroller well remembers the rush to Livonia. He was part of it. In fact he became involved in the creation of the city of Livonia, both as a member of the charter commission and later as a member of the first city council.

The rush was so great that the first contract signed by the Livonia officials for city water was expected to last 10 years. It lasted only two years until it had to be renegotiated.

The rush later switched to Canton and much of the farm area in both Canton and Plymouth townships was turned into new subdivisions.

Now, after all these years, they are attempting to turn the tide and bring some of the people back to the river front.

It was "Little Al's" idea, but it has taken a quarter of a century to the support that may bring it about.

Maddox to head JA '80 fund drive

The Junior Achievement 1980 Fund Drive is well underway in southeastern Michigan.

George A. Maddox, vice president of manufacturing operations for American Motors Corp., will head this year's fund drive which will run though April.

The 1980 goal of JA for southeastern Michigan is $825,000.

AS GENERAL CHAIRMAN, Maddox is coordinating the activities of a team of 700 volunteer fund-raisers from business and industry throughout the seven-county area of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe, Livingston and St. Clair.

Junior Achievement of Southeastern Michigan provides economic education to thousands of high school and junior high school students each year.

Funds raised during the annual drive will be budgeted to operate and expand the 23 JA business centers, including the Plymouth Center on Ann Arbor Trail, along with the Project Business program in the southeastern Michigan area.

MADDOX ANNOUNCED that the following four unit chairmen will help in directing the fund-raisers:

- Heading Unit I is Arthur B. Connors, vice president of marketing for Ford Motor Co.
- In charge of Unit II is Robert C. Stempel, vice president and general manager of the Pontiac Motor Division, General Motors Corp.
- Unit III leader is A. Keith Ebersole, vice president of the diversified operations and supply group of AMC.
- Unit IV will operate under the direction of William Rees, vice president of purchasing and traffic for Great Lakes Steel.

Throughout Southeastern Michigan there are some 6,000 young people involved in more than 250 JA companies at the 23 business centers plus another 4,000 students participating in the Project Business program.

Project Business is an economic education program made available to school districts to supplement an existing social studies, economics or math class. Topics covered include the nature of economics, the American economy and its problems, money and banking, the U.S. market system, financial statements, choosing a career, and consumerism.

The Plymouth Center is located at 585 W. Ann Arbor Trail; telephone 453-2880.

Netters eat less

Take a small serving for a big serve. If you've got a tennis game in an hour but are starving now — eat light. A salad, or soup and piece of bread will keep your volley strong. The best time to eat is two hours before you play, allowing the body enough time for digestion.

Resident awaiting trial for vandalism

By PATTY WOODBURY
Special Writer

A Plymouth resident has been arrested and charged with a felony in connection with a flooding incident in a dormitory at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

Joseph N. Stewart of 10511 Brookwood, recently confessed to activating a fire hose connection on the 8th floor of Cobb Hall, one of four highrise residence halls on the south end of the CMU campus.

The water gushed down the stairwell into hallways and rooms, flooding all subsequent floors.

THE INCIDENT occurred during spring break when no students were allowed in the dorms.

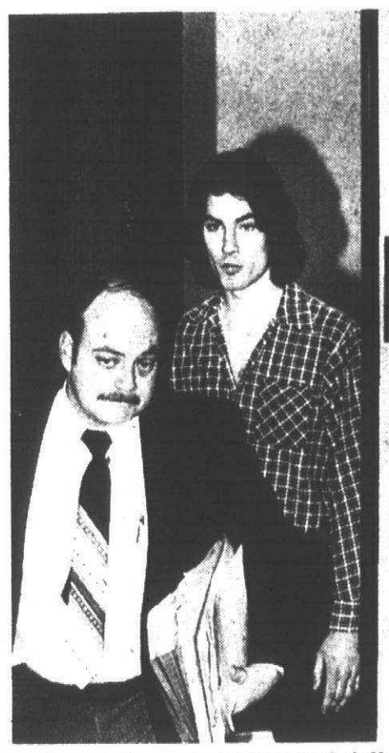

The water ran for several hours before it was detected, causing more than $11,000 in damage to university property and at least $15,000 in student losses.

Stewart, a junior at CMU, has been charged with malicious destruction of property over $100. A preliminary examination has been scheduled for April 21 in Isabella County's 76th District Court. A $10,000 personal bond has been set.

Stewart was sentenced on three misdeanor counts Wednesday in a related incident. He pleaded guilty to one count of illegal entry and to two counts of malicious destruction of property which occurred in Troutman Hall over spring break. Troutman flanks Cobb Hall as part of the Towers' quad.

Stewart was sentenced by District Judge Peter D. O'Connell to six month's probation, the first 10 days of which are to be spent in the Isabella County Jail. He was ordered to pay $291 in restitution to the university for damages and $105 for fines and court costs.

Stewart could face up to four years in prison and/or a $2,000 fine if convicted of the more serious charge.

Franklin poses opening threat

Rock softballers reach for top spot

SUE McDOWELL
Returns in outfield

Co-captains power Salem

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Salem's softball squad will be greeted Monday afternoon in their home opener by one of the strongest teams in the area.

The Rocks will entertain Livonia Franklin at 3:30 p.m. in a non-league battle.

Franklin is a veteran club with 12 returning letter winners.

Meanwhile, Salem will carry eight seniors on its roster this season with a veteran infield virtually intact.

The Rocks posted a 9-10 overall mark a year ago, but managed to capture a Class A district crown.

Senior co-captains Sue McDowell and Nan Horwood will lead Salem in 1980.

McDowell is an outfielder with a strong arm and a bat which speaks for itself. As a junior she hit .563 which included five triples and 12 RBI's. The Salem senior is in her fourth season as a regular.

Shortly after being named second-team All-Observer, McDowell broke her ankle playing summer ball, which kept her out most of the season. This year, however, she is ready to go.

Horwood, an honorable mention All-Observer choice, directs the Salem traffic from the catcher's spot. She is a power hitter who is a natural leader on the field.

SENIORS KATHY GARDNER and Patty Weidman return as starting third and first baseman respectively.

Gardner can also hit for power. She is sound defensively along with Weidman.

Salem will miss the services of shortstop Becky Crespo, who graduated and is nowplaying on a tennis scholarship at Central Michigan.

Other seniors returning include Stacy Nicolin, Sue Evans, Jill Goodrich and Pam Wojeck, a transfer from Dearborn Heights Riverside.

Goodrich is the Rocks' pitching ace. She gained experience last season behind Jan Boyd, now hurling for Eastern Michigan on a softball scholarship.

Boyd was 7-1 last year with a 2.80 earned run average. Her bat will also be missed. She hit .440 a year ago.

Backing up Goodrich on the mound are juniors Denise Zonca, a returnee in the outfield, and Laura Arnold.

Theresa Cooney and Chris Brennan, both juniors, are also vying for outfield spots.

Jeanine Papa, Kelly Strautz and Bonnie Southerland are three sophomores promoted to the varsity. Papa is an infielder. Strautz and Southerland are contesting spots in the outfield.

Salem must face Franklin's All-Observer pitcher Donna Merlino, who compiled a 10-3 record as a junior.

Franklin also returns its entire outfield — Karen Phillips (.404), Nancy Gravino and Jenny McNulty.

OTHER VETERANS include first baseman Michelle Anderson, second baseman Julie Johnson and third baseman Ann Burns. Sophomore Julie Wilga takes over at short.

The Patriots posted a 13-4 mark, but had trouble scoring runs. The team, though, is strong in pitching and defense, according to fourth-year coach Chuck Hebestreit.

The big question mark for Franklin is catching. All-area pick Daun Muller graduated. Junior Maryanne Kanowski will inherit the job.

Salem's squad tuned up for the opener by participating in a seven-day camp over Easter vacation in Tennessee.

WSU lands Salem standout

By BRAD EMONS

Said Wayne State University basketball coach Vern Payne: "I'm going to savor the moment."

He had just pulled off one of the biggest recruiting surprises of the season Thursday afternoon by signing 6-foot-6 Plymouth Salem center Howard Monk.

"This is a great recruit for us," said Payne. "We're fortunate not only to get a quality player but also a quality person.

"This is by far the best recruiting year we've had."

It was a memorable event for Payne because he had won over several Mid-American Conference schools who expressed interest along with the University of Wyoming. Monk also had made visits to Michigan Tech, Hillsdale and Lake Superior State.

It appears Wayne's program is on the upswing with Monk's signing.

"Howard is a determined kid with phenomenal intensity," said Payne. "I think the transition for him will be easy. Fred Thomann (Monk's coach at Salem) and I are basically the same in our approach to the game; there's not much difference in what we teach."

Like Thomann, the Wayne State coach stresses air-tight man-to-man defense.

'This is the best recruiting season we've ever had.'
—WSU coach Vern Payne

MONK led Salem to a 17-4 record this season, which included a Suburban Eight League title. He averaged 23 points and 12 rebounds per game with his hard-nosed play.

"Wayne had what I wanted educational-wise," said Monk. "I looked at the education first."

An honor student at Salem, Monk was impressed with WSU's computer science program. He is also interested in engineering and business.

Monk should also get an opportunity to play right away. He fits into Payne's plans as a power forward.

"Howard is bigger than any of the forwards we had last year," added Payne. "He liked us because of the quality of our academic program and that we attempt to teach the game."

Payne, who was instrumental in recruiting Earvin "Magic" Johnson to Michigan State, said Monk "does a great job of thinking the game."

"Howard scored 23 points a game and was still a very unselfish player," he said. "He relies on positioning as a rebounder and has speed and quickness. He reminds me a lot of Tom Abernathey who played for Indiana when they won the NCAA."

Under Payne's direction, Wayne State enjoyed its best season in 16 years with a 14-13 record. The Tarters also ranked 13th in NCAA Division II team defense.

The Tarters finished fourth in the Great Lakes Conference this season.

PAYNE ALSO signed Royal Oak Shrine's Tom Scollin, a 6-4 forward Thursday night. Payne concentrated all winter on recruiting help up front since WSU lost all three inside players to graduation.

The WSU coach is also close to signing Plymouth-Canton forward Dave Visser, a 6-5 sharpshooter who was named on the first-team All-Observer basketball team along with Monk.

The Salem center would also like to see Visser climb aboard.

"I've always admired the way he played," said Monk. "I've always played against him and I think it would be great to play with him."

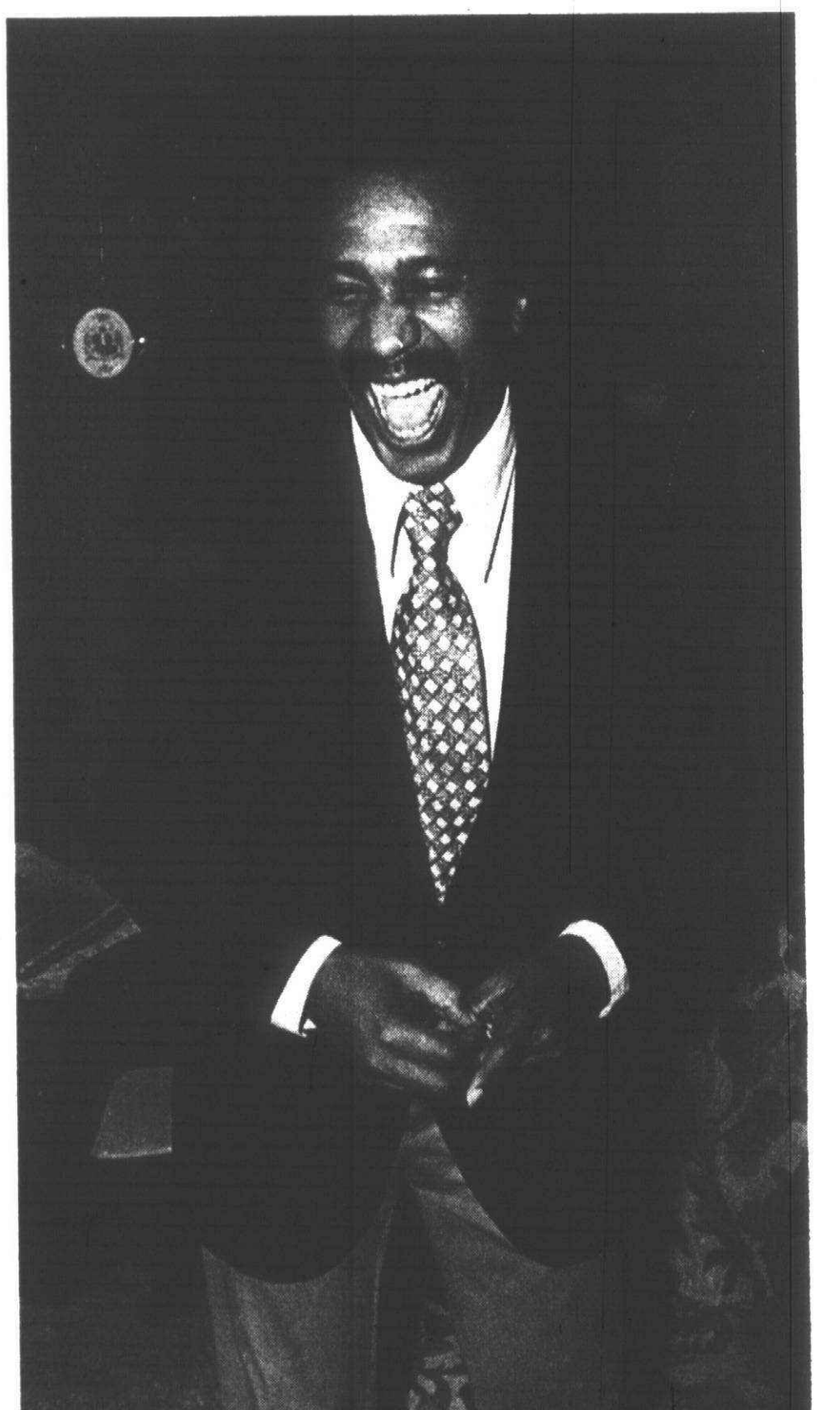

Monk, born in England, came to the United States at when he was four. Taught to play soccer at an early age, Monk first played basketball in the Plymouth-Canton Community League as a seventh-grader. The next year he played at Pioneer Middle School and then went on to Salem. As a junior he was the Rocks' leading rebounder and second leading scorer.

Monk's parents, David and Beryl, are avid soccer enthusiasts. Brother Dave, who also played basketball at Salem under Thomann, is now a sophomore at Michigan State on the varsity soccer team.

"I'm going to do the best I can to help out," said the Salem center. "People who saw me play in high school can still check up on me."

Howard Monk signed a national letter of intent with Wayne State University as his parents David and Beryl look on. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Wayne State coach Vern Payne was all smiles Thursday when Howard Monk signed with the Tartars. Payne is a former assistant coach at Michigan State and All-Big 10 player at Indiana. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

The proposal, first offered a year ago, to combine the American Junior Bowling Congress and the Youth Bowling Association has struck another snag.

After a heated debate that lasted more than an hour, the delegates to the annual ABC convention decided to delay action for further study and report back in another year.

The AJBC is the original junior group while the YBA is an off-shoot brought about some years ago by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America.

IF PRESENT rumors along the bowling front are affirmed, the great experiment of having an all-star ladies team compete in a men's league will be a thing of the past.

Several years ago, Penny Behn's Bonanza team, one of the best in the women's all-star loop, was invited to join the Thursday men's classic at Orchard Lanes.

Being invited was thought to be a joke at first. But Penny and her team accepted.

For the past two seasons they have competed against the men with dire results. While the girls bowled well, they have finished far down in the standings. As a result, it is rumored, they will not be back next season.

DICK PRESTON, one of the old timers still going strong in the classics about the area, proved that he has not lost any of his old form last Tuesday night at Wonderland.

Opening with a 199, he came back with games of 224 and 266 for a 689 to pace the entire circuit. While Dick was finding the pocket two of his teammates — Jim Davis with a 668 and Harry Fill with 643 — helped the team roll a 3169 series.

This trio had to give way to John Wodarski for high series honors. John put together games of 230, 257 and 192 for 679.

In the Wednesday night ladies league, Barbara Fegert showed the way with a 602.

FEW LEAGUES will travel any farther to enjoy the annual banquet and distribution of prize money than the group from Super Bowl in Canton.

They leave Thursday morning for Las Vegas and the entire league roster of 80 bowlers will be aboard when the plane takes off for the week-end trip.

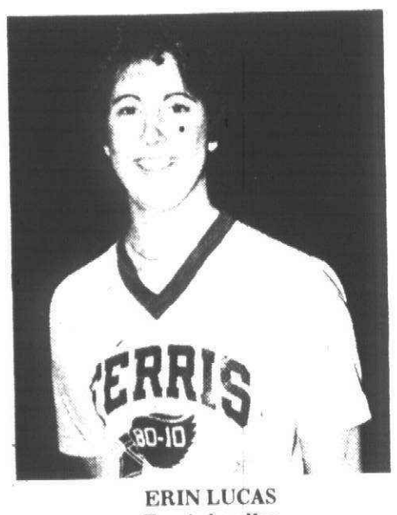

IN A BATTLE that wasn't decided until the last frame, Jerry Cole Sr. took scoring honors in the Canton Classic at Super Bowl, but his margin at the top was only three pins.

To gain top place, he linked counts of 214, 215 and 205 for 634. His closest rival was Mark Hall who had games of 234 and 237 in 631. Rick Farr landed in third place with a 248 in 617. Mike Chadwick posted a 247 for high game of the night.

CAROL POST had one of her better nights to lead the ladies classic at Westland Bowl. But she did it in a most unusual way.

She started with a 232 then dropped to 144 in the middle game and finished with 249 for 625. Right behind her came Betty New with 608, Cindy Edwards with 603, Toni Smith with 596 and Carol Sotala with 590.

IN OTHER GOOD performances, Tom Sokoloski showed the way in in the junior house league at Garden Lanes with a 241 in 637. Ed Kupawa landed the runner-up role with 611 and Wayne Novess landed third with 602.

Jodie Foster is Jeanie, a bright, sensitive teen-age girl, growing up amidst the plastic and neon of Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley in "Foxes."

the movies

Louise Snider

Powerful film bares problems of 4 teen-agers

Movie critic Louise Snider is on vacation this week

By MATT GERSON

Four sad, vital, mixed-up yet characteristically real young ladies tred the minefield of the spaced-out, "Me" generation to learn about life's values, in "Foxes."

The Gerald Ayres screenplay is directed by Adrian Lyne.

They escape wayward families amid the Coney Island, topless and burlesque-house-strewn decaying sea of East Los Angeles, where the derelicts are of all ages and dress.

The girls finally come to rest for security on their clinging but sorely tested relationships to each other. Each of them has different ideas and values already formed that unerringly points the way they are to go.

THEY CLASH OFTEN, like the best of friends do. Jeanie (Jodie Foster), is a tomboy, a low-voiced, cynical street-wise observer, the leader of the group. This role is a real change from the vulnerable mixed-up lonely child she portrayed in "Taxi Driver."

Madge (Marilyn Kagan) is a bit full-bodied and wears heavy eyeglasses. She's the kind of girl you might see later doing laundry ads, or meet at the library where she is poring over the books for her exams.

Deirdre (Kandice Stroh) tries to maintain the coquettish air of a "sophisticated" woman ready to unleash wild, repressed passions.

Last, but hardest to forget, is Annie (Cherie Currie), a blonde, curvy, screwball type, a loser's loser. She's clearly on her way via a daily series of encounters with the world of drugs, fast cars and "jerk-off" guys.

MADNESS, MOUNTAINS OF trouble for her pals and the clutches of the law await her (if her patrolman father, who chases her around boiling mad to beat some sense into her, doesn't get to her first).

The girls' parents run the gamut from such overt discipline to stifling overprotection (Madge's mother).

"All my girlfirends at UCLA slept around. That was the thing to do, but not at your age!" is the immorally pathetic example set by Jeanie's divorced mother Mary (Sally Kellerman). Ms. Kellerman has gone from the character of Hot Lips to the libido-obsessed child-woman in "Serial," she still hasn't found a moral role on screen.

Screenwriter Ayres is making it crystal clear that these girls find their survival cues from the street life they inhabit. It's a day-to-day circus of cosmic kicks from pills; heavy-metal, smoky rock events (photographed wonderfully in surreal scenes by Leon Bijou), and casual sex.

THE FILM IS FILLED WITH scenes of desolate confusion and loneliness. The girls roam by truck across vast, ugly, industrial "junkyard" landscapes around L.A.

The merry-go-round begins to spin out of control when a supposedly formal party, with their latest boyfirends, turns from laughs and rich settings to a crashed event. Local street brawlers muscle in uninvited and trash the apartment of Madge's fiancee (Randy Quaid).

These "foxes," it seems, are neither beauties on-the-make, nor smart kids wily enough to get the most out of their rough-and-tumble environment. They are outfoxed continually — by circumstances, and by their own sensual excesses and rootlessness.

At the end, one girl stumbles in a purple haze into the wrong car for a ride.

As a result of her horrible fate, in quick — seemingly the day after — succession, one of the remaining four gets married, somehow, and another goes off to college, without her mother's consent.

LIFE, AND GROWING PAINS, in the truest sense of that word, have forced re-evaluations and new turns of the wheel. The three urgently look for something much more hopeful to latch onto.

This powerful film about excesses and their effects on behavior, humorously, yet grimly outlines the teen scene today with telling performances.

Scott Baio is their undersized maternal boyfriend, looking for a quick sexual education, blazing around on his skateboard. All four "foxes" and Baio are superior, disarmingly funny, raunchy and finally moving, to a fault.

Jeanie and Brad (Scott Baio) enjoy each other's company as they discuss difficulties encountered by today's teenagers in "Foxes," a United Artists release.

Garden expert to talk

James R. Buckler, Smithsonian Institution horticultural director, will lecture about famous world gardens at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills.

Tickets at $3.50 can be reserved by calling 645-3147. The lecture is sponsored by Cranbrook House and Garden Auxiliary, with all proceeds going to the upkeep of the 1908 Albert Kahn-designed house and surrounding 40 acres of gardens.

In addition, he will describe the plans he formed for the development of the Smithsonian Museums as horticultural showplaces.

Since 1972, the Smithsonian's Office of Horticulture has evolved under Buckler's direction to include nearly 100 employees, a 36,000-square-foot greenhouse/nursery complex, landscaping of most of the 13 major Smithsonian Museums and many Bicentennial projects.

Police puck funds help Burn Center

Michael James (far right) of the Ann Arbor Burn Center receives a check for $2,455 which resulted from two police charity hockey games. Receiving certificates from James were (left to right) Paul Sincock, Mike Elliott, James Mosher, Bob Garcia and Mike Geldmacher. (Photo by Verne Koester)

The University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor received $2,455 in proceeds from two charity police hockey games played March 22-23 at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Teams from the Michigan State Police and Oakland County Sheriffs took top honors over the Washtenaw and Wayne County Sheriffs squads respectively.

About 1,200 fans turned out to see the two games.

Proceeds from the game were turned over to the Burn Center's representative, Michael James. In accepting the donation, James said the funds would be allocated for the of new Burn Center facilities in a ceremony April 2 at the Cultural Center.

In return, officers from the four departments each received a certificate of appreciation.

Representing their respective departments were Michael Geldmacher, Wayne County; Mike Elliott, Oakland County; Bob Garcia, Michigan State Police; James Mosher, Washtenaw County; and Paul Sincock, Plymouth Department of Parks and Recreation.

This year's contributions exceeded last year's by three times, according to Geldmacher.

"This is just the beginning," he said. "We hope next year's events will be even bigger and better."

Box 700, Dallas, Texas 75221." No responsibility is assumed for lost, misdirected or late mail. Only entries received on or before June 10, 1980 will be eligible for the Second Chance Drawing to be held June 17, 1980. Enter as often as you wish, but each entry must be mailed separately. All winners will be notified within 30 days after the drawing.
ALL PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED
GRAND PRIZE WINNERS
(6) The five winners of the right to receive one of the five Grand Prize Diamonds will be invited (but not required) to travel to San Antonio, Texas, to attend the Grand Prize Drawing to be held the week of July 7, 1980, where their names will be drawn separately to determine which of the Grand Prize Diamonds they have each won.
WINNING ODDS

(a) Five Grand Prize Diamonds — 1 in 800,000 per store visit.
(b) 70 approximately ⅛ and 1/10-carat diamonds — 1 in 57,143 per store visit.
(c) 200 Photographic Merchandise Prizes — 1 in 20,000 per store visit.
(d) 7,300 Instant Winner color print film prizes — 1 in 548 per store visit.
Continuing odds will be determined based upon the assumption that all game cards issued, except those redeemed, are considered valid and eligible for all unclaimed prizes. Redemption of prizes in any category will decrease odds of winning the remaining prizes in that category. Odds of winning in the Second Chance Drawing will be determined by the total number of entries received, and the number of unclaimed prizes.
ELIGIBILITY
(8) This Sweepstakes and the Second Chance Sweepstakes are open to residents of the United States, except employees of Fox Stanley Photo Products, Inc. and their immediate families, its advertising agencies and consultants, and game card printers. A vein-glorious story of cats nipped in the blood

By BETTY MASSON

Two felines of the breed American domestic short-haired, Dr. K and Herman, are leading a pretty soft life after a bad beginning. They were strays two years ago.

But today, they never have to worry about where their next meal is coming from, in spite of inflation and taxes.

They are earning their keep by providing a valuable service for their fellow felines.

Herman, who is a lovely shade of tan, and Dr. K, who has a glossy orange coat, live at the Parkway Veterinary Clinic on Wilcox Road, Plymouth.

They are on call 24 hours a day to give blood in case of a cat-astrophe.

Often this means a cat which has been hit by a car and needs a transfusion, according to veterinarian Cliff McClumpha.

But a cat suffering from severe anemia can also require a transfusion. This condition, caused by a virus, is fairly common among cats, said Dr. McClumpha.

Sometimes Herman and Dr. K can go for weeks, even months, without being asked to donate blood. They just lie in their cages, purr at passerbys and romp with the attendants at cleaning time.

At other times, their blood may be required once or twice a week.

Although Herman and Dr. K reportedly recover very quickly from being anesthetized and having blood extracted directly from their hearts, ideally they should have two to three weeks to recover between donations, said Dr. McClumpha.

In a normal blood donation, the animals give about 60 to 70 cubic centimeters. This compares with about 500 ccs for a normal human blood donation.

The cat's blood is drawn into a syringe and, when a new needle is attached, is injected directly into the cat donor.

DOGS ALSO require transfusions from time to time, but the clinic does not keep a dog on hand just for this purpose. Instead, Dr. McClumpha calls on the services of one of his own four dogs.

Economics enter the picture here, he explained. Cats are easy and inexpensive to keep, but a medium-sized to large dog is needed for transfusions. A dog is required to give about as much blood as a human donor. Keeping a dog just to give blood is expensive.

Again, dogs most frequently require transfusions when they have been the loser in a bout with an automobile. The process for giving a dog blood is exactly the same as for a human transfusion.

"Some veterinarians use blood expanders, plasma and other things, but I like to use whole blood," said Dr. McClumpha.

IN RECALLING some of the unusual operations he has done on animals, he said that he and two other veterinarians could have lost some blood themselves when they had to deal with a 30-pound Gibbon's ape.

He was small, but powerful, and didn't take kindly to the idea of being anesthetized. He was being operated on for the removal of his fangs. "He was chewing up his owners," Dr. McClumpha explained.

The ape emerged de-fanged, but not before he had laid such a tight grip on Dr. McClumpha's arm that it took the efforts of all three to release it.

In another, more recent operation, Dr. McClumpha had to set the wings of three white geese, found in a local cemetery. No one knows how their wings were broken, whether by a dog or by a person.

Most surgery done on animals is for neutering, said Dr. McClumpha, but dogs and cats can have health problemsas varied as those of human beings.

Surgery is usually done in the mornings, except emergencies, and the veterinarians at the clinic may be found resetting broken bones, removing tumors, taking stones out of bladders and removing foreign objects from digestive tracts.

Small animals, such as guinea pigs, racoons and skunks, are not usually operated on, mostly because of economics, said the veterinarian. Most owners think twice before spending a lot on animals whose original cost was small and whose lifespan is short anyway.

But the veterinarian has removed tumors several times from a white rat from Ann Arbor.

"There's a gold-plated white rat running loose in this girl's apartment," he commented.

And it's a good thing Herman and Dr. K are in their cages when this patient calls.

Self-help is featured in YMCA's spring offerings

Self-improvement is one of the themes encouraged by the various offerings by the Plymouth Family YMCA.

One example in the spring/summer schedule of activities, for instance, is Assertiveness Training — a one-day session for women taught by Fanchette Stewart.

"Traditionally women have been brought up to be passive," says Ms. Stewart. "Unfortunately, passivity takes away self-esteem and rewards of personal satisfaction and leads to discounting self, which is even more painful.

"The world is changing. More and more women are entering the work force and many are highly frustrated. They do not know how to stand up for themselves, how to speak up or how to express their thoughts and feelings comfortably.

"These women lack assertiveness because, for the most part, throughout their upbringing 'assertiveness' was regarded as constituting 'aggressiveness' and, frankly, many women are not sure of the difference.

"There is a difference — a very real difference — and this workshop will address itself to defining that difference."

The workshop will provide a chance for role playing and sharing of ideas, a discussion of familiar fears and investigation of misconceptions, and an offering of practical tips on how to be more assertive in private and public life.

Ms. Stewart, a practicing therapist in Ann Arbor, suggests participants may want to either bring a lunch or plan to eat out.

The session will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., with a lunch break from noon to 1 p.m., on Saturday, May 3, in Geneva Presbyterian Church on Sheldon north of Ford Road in Canton.

DISCOVERING YOU is a class on successful living taught by Jean Campau.

Participants will take a personal inventory, accenting the positive in their personalities, and set a new grade for the future.

The sessions will be from 1-3 p.m. Tuesdays for four weeks starting May 6 in the Epiphany Lutheran Church. Ms. Campau has a master of art's degree in guidance and counseling from the University of Michigan.

Joyce Altoonian and Ms. Campau are the instructors for a class entitled "Coping With Older Parents Effectively," which is a weekly support and learning group for adult children of elderly parents.

Topics discussed include the normal physical and mental changes of old age, the parent/child role reversal, tensions and guilt, and an exploration of available community resources to aid the elderly.

The class will run from 1-3 p.m. on Thursdays for four weeks starting May 1 in Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton. Ms. Altoonian is a registered nurse with a degree in gerontology.

OTHER CLASSES and activities involving fitness and recreation being offered include:

- Trim class for adults from 9 to 9:30 a.m. Tuesdays for five weeks starting April 15 in Dance Unlimited in Plymouth with Anne Mininberg as instructor.
- Golf leagues for adults and youth 16 and older at Brooklane Golf Course. Women's league will start at 9 a.m. on Mondays and men and women's leagues at 5:30 p.m., starting May 5 for 16 weeks and May 8 for 18 weeks.

- Saturday tumbling for ages 5-12 will be offered at various times, according to skill groupings and ages, on Saturdays for four weeks starting May 3 at the Starkweather School field with Ann Fowler as instructor.
- A bicycle tune up workshop will be held for all ages on April 16, 17 at Jerry's Bicycle Shop on Ann Arbor Road. The workshop will be run from 6:30-7:30 p.m. for youth and from 7:30-8:30 p.m. for adults on Wednesday and Thursday.
- Tennis will be offered at various times on Saturdays and Sundays starting April 19 at the Plymouth Canton High tennis courts with Joe Brennan as instructor.

Persons interested in registering or in obtaining prices may contact the YMCA at 453-2904 or by visiting its office on Main Street near Penniman Avenue above Armbruster's Bootery.

Volunteers still are needed for Special Olympics

For many mentally retarded residents of Wayne County, spring is a time for vigorous training in stepped-up preparation for the Special Olympics to be staged here later this month.

This year, the Special Olympics will be held on Saturday, April 26, and on Friday, May 2.

The gymnastic events will begin at 9 a.m. April 26 at the Plymouth Canton High Phase III facility. The bowling competition will begin the same time that Saturday at Super Bowl Lanes on Ford Road in Canton.

The track and field and swimming will be on May 2 at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park site. The opening ceremonies and parade will begin at 8:30 a.m. with events to begin at 9 a.m.

The Special Olympics are held each year for handicapped children and adults from schools, workshops and centers from throughout Wayne County.

The event is sponsored by the Plymouth, Livonia, Wayne, Westland, Dearborn, Fairlane, and Detroit Action Civitan Clubs. The Plymouth Community Civitans will be hosting the 1980 games.

An estimated record 1,600 participants will be competing in the 1980 games, says Civitan Mike Caffery, which means the club will need more help than it ever has before.

"Our most important position to fill is the 'hugger' who greets each participant and gives a hug to reward the effort made."

Anyone wishing to donate some time as a volunteer may contact Lou Mair at 453-8446. Persons who cannot spare the time but would like to donate money may call Joanne Doyle at 459-0022.

WINNERS FROM the Special Olympics in Plymouth-Canton will then compete in the state olympics in June at Central Michigan University.

The olympics give the handicapped the chance to "develop and test their strength and coordination, to learn skills, to follow rules, to stretch the outside limits of their capabilities — phy sical, social and intellectual," explains Caffery.

"The olympics also provide an opportunity for individual competition and for team play.

"In Special Olympics everybody wins. It is a shining example for all who believe that a just and good society is one which cares for those who may be less able, but who are in no sense less worthy."

New art gallery features wildlife

By W.W. EDGAR

Life can take some odd twists.

The city of Plymouth, for instance, now boasts one of the few art galleries in the country devoted exclusively to wild life paintings because Kal Jabara picked up a magazine in the waiting room at Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., some years ago.

Jabara recalled the incident while standing by one of the modern paintings in the new Wild Wings gallery at 975 Ann Arbor Trail.

"I was up there for a medical checkup and, you know how it is, you pick up a magazine to help pass the time while waiting for the doctor.

"It so happened I picked up a wild life magazine that fascinated me. It had some of the finest pictures I had ever seen. I was so delighted with what I had come across I wrote to the company for a catalogue. That started it all and now, at last, I am in a position to share my fascination with the pictures with others."

Jabara recalled that while growing up in Mancelona, Mich., he spent a lot of time hunting and fishing. It was these trips through the area near his hometown, during hunting season, which made him a lover of wild life.

Even after he and brother James Jabara came to Plymouth and operated the tank plant on Joy Road, he never lost that love.

"From time to time I have been purchasing paintings from the firm I saw in the magazine. It is the Wild Wings firm and it is rated tops in the country.

"Even while we were busy manufacturing tanks I hoped for the day when I could have an art gallery devoted exclusively to wild life. And now I will be dealing with the Wild Wing firm."

FOR A TIME after the sale of the tank plant, Jabara dabbled in real estate. But there was always the longing for the wild life paintings.

"Many were the times I pictured such a place in my mind," he went on, " but I never saw the kind of a place I wanted until this location opened up and I saw this building. Now I have realized one of the greatest ambitions of my life."

It is ironical that the gallery is located next door to the mall his brother Jim and his associates built between Forest and Harvey Street.

The building is made to order for the type of gallery Kal has pictured since those days in Mancelona when he was just a young dreamer.

He explained that the exclusive gallery is one of the very few in the United States and he expects most of the business will be mail order sales.

To meet the expected demand, the gallery has a large showroom and a large shipping room and it is the last word in class.

Like a youngster with a new toy, Kal confided that he has close to 50 artists on his list and 30 of them are from Michigan.

THe paintings now being shown are limited works. By that Jabara explained there are only a certain number painted and copied before the original and the negatives are discarded.

"That's why you will see a number on each painting and you can tell just how many of each one have been sold.

"It is these limited numbers that help to establish their value. And it is symbol of class."

And this latest art gallery, "Wild Wings," came in to being just because Kal Jabara picked up a magazine while waiting his turn in the doctor's office at Mayo Clinic.

A special thanks to the governments of the municipalities of Plymouth and Canton for their permission to let us approach the citizens for a contribu tion and also to the merchants who permitted our Knights of Columbus members and helpers solicit on thier premises.

A "hats off salute" and special thanks to the National Honor Society students from Plymouth Centennial Educational Park who braved the cold and rainy weather with the Knights for this worthy cause.

School principals Bill Brown and Kent Buikema should be very proud of their NHS kids. We couldn't have done it without them.

Again, thanks to all of you.

Vet responds to letter

Editor: I would like to add to the letter of March 31 from Bear of Plymouth. He seems to be misinformed as to who used used decompression chambers for the euthanasia of animals.

It was the Michigan Humane Society that used decompression chambers routinely and repeatedly for the euthanasia of animals. I do not know of any veterinary hospital which has ever used a decompression chamber.

Euthanasias at veterinary hospitals are done with an injectable pentobarbital sodium or oimilar drug which is specifically designed and approved for the "rapid, painless, and humane euthanasia of animals."

I agree that the decompression chambers should be banned in order to prevent further suffering of animals at the hands of "humane organizations."

CAN DR. GRASSAM HELP? READ WHAT PATIENTS SAY!

The Doctor Helped Me and My Baby!

When I was nearly nine months pregnant, my family doctor diagnosed me as having "bell's palsy." He sent me to a neurologist who confirmed his diagnosis and said electric shock treatments would cost me $55 each visit.

My doctor would not give me cortisone because I was planning to nurse my baby. About a week after the baby was born, a friend whose brother had benefitted from chiropractic adjustments from Dr. Grassam suggested I visit the doctor.

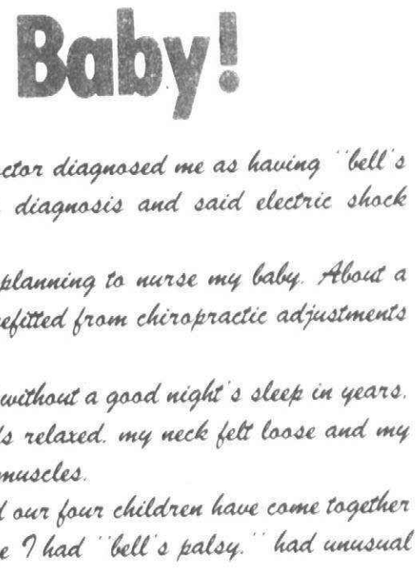

Wracked with pain, suffering from a nervous twitch and without a good night's sleep in years, I visited Dr. Grassam. After the first treatment, my hands relaxed, my neck felt loose and my looks improved as the feeling returned to my mouth and eye muscles.

Learning of the "Family Plan," my husband Gary and our four children have come together for monthly visits. My baby, who was born during the time I had "bell's palsy," had unusual "blueing" at two weeks old.

Doctors ran all kinds of tests, but found nothing wrong. Dr. Grassam gently tapped spots on her neck, her "blueing" went away and she has been a wonderful, healthy baby.

I nursed her until she was one year old. We all feel better, have better health and definitely tell everyone about chiropractic!

GOOD OLD-FASHIONED FOOD FOR TODAY

Often the most nostalgic meals are the most enjoyable. We find a favorite food from childhood. Or, there's a fragrance from the kitchen that brings back pleasant memories. Perhaps it's something that you "just love." And very often these are foods that offer sound, balanced nutrition.

Savory Salmon Patties With Dilled Cream Pea Sauce is an old-fashioned supper idea that rates tops in flavor. For the economy-minded, this nutritious entree is kind to the budget as well, stretching a 15-1/2 ounce can of salmon to make 6 servings. Accompany with hearty, home-style fried potatoes and a crisp green salad. Canned cling peaches topping quick-mix gingerbread offer added flavor in a delectable dessert.

All time favorite peach and cottage cheese salad sets the pace for good nutrition as well as tradition in our salmon loaf menu. The salad is different, though, for low calorie spicy seasoning gives high flavor that is complemented by the refreshing peach slices. It all blends beautifully with a sprightly seasoned Mexican-Style Salmon Loaf – a delightful variation of another old favorite. The loaf is baked in a decorative ring mold, either conventionally or in a microwave oven and is wreathed in a colorful blend of corn and tomatoes. Convenient canned salmon is an excellent source of complete protein and other important nutrients, and there is no waste.

Here's to good old-fashioned food, prepared traditionally or with a new twist. Enjoy it and eat well!

SALMON PATTIES WITH DILLED CREAM PEA SAUCE

1 can (15-1/2 ounce) salmon
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1/2 cup chopped green onions
2 beaten eggs
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons cooking oil

Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid. Combine salmon with bread crumbs and green onions. Stir in beaten eggs, lemon juice and reserved salmon liquid. Form into 6 patties. Fry patties in oil over medium heat until lightly browned on both sides. Serve hot with sauce. Makes 6 patties.

DILLED CREAM PEA SAUCE

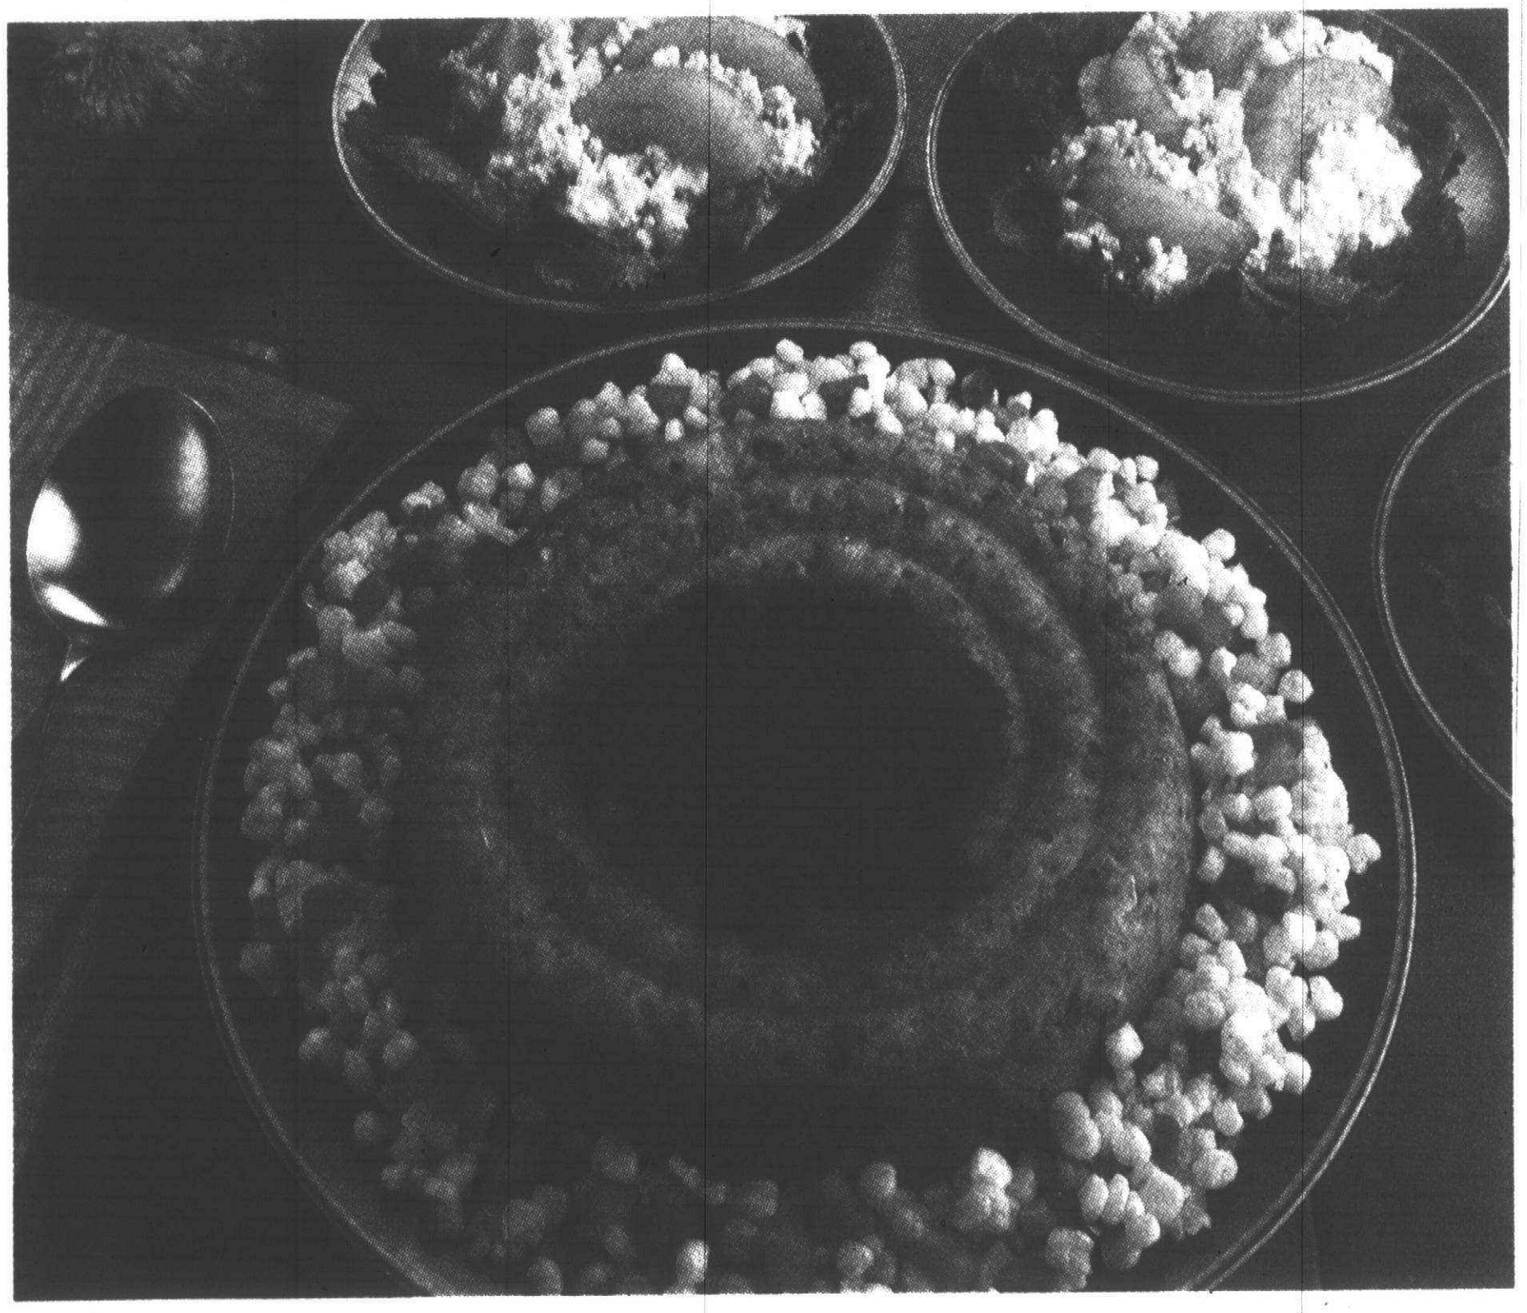

1 package (10 ounce) frozen peas
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon dill weed
1-1/2 cups milk

Cook peas according to package directions; drain. In another saucepan, melt butter or margarine. Blend in flour, salt and dill weed. Gradually stir milk into saucepan. Cook over low heat; stir until thickened. Add peas to sauce; heat thoroughly. Makes about 2-1/2 cups sauce.

PEACH GINGER CREAM CAKES

1 can (29 ounce) cling peach halves
1/4 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons syrup from peaches
1 package (14 ounce) gingerbread mix
1 cup dairy sour cream

Drain peaches, reserving syrup. Combine butter, brown sugar, nuts and two tablespoons of syrup in saucepan. Heat until butter melts and mixture is smooth. Divide into eight or nine 6-ounce glass baking cups. Place 1 peach half, cut side down, in each cup. Prepare gingerbread according to package directions using sour cream in place of water. Batter will be stiff. Divide into individual baking cups. Bake in preheated oven (350°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Let stand five minutes before inverting on dessert dishes. Makes 8 or 9 desserts.

MEXICAN-STYLE SALMON LOAF

1 can (15-1/2 ounce) salmon
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1-1/2 cups cooked rice
1-1/2 cups shredded Jack cheese
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 can (4 ounce) diced green chilies, drained
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
3 eggs, slightly beaten
Milk
1 can (12 ounce) whole kernel corn with sweet peppers, drained
1/2 cup chopped fresh tomatoes
Parsley

Microwave Method: Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid. Combine with bread crumbs, rice, cheese, onion, green chilies, pimiento and eggs. Add milk to reserved salmon liquid to equal 3/4 cup. Stir into salmon mixture. Place in 1-1/2-quart microwave-safe ring mold or glass mixing bowl with a glass center. Microwave at HIGH 10 to 11 minutes or until mixture starts to pull away from sides of dish. Rotate one quarter turn halfway through cooking time. Cover with wax paper and let stand 3 minutes. Combine corn and tomatoes in microwave-safe bowl. Cover with wax paper; microwave at HIGH 2-1/2 minutes or until hot. Invert ring onto serving plate. Surround with corn mixture; garnish center with parsley. Serve with taco sauce if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Conventional Method: Prepare salmon mixture same as for microwave version. Place in well-greased, oven-safe 1-1/2-quart ring mold. Bake in preheated oven (350°F.) 35 to 40 minutes, until slightly brown on top and firm in center. Invert onto serving plate. Surround with heated corn and tomatoes; garnish center with parsley.

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

How to brew a proper cup of tea

My father and his brother were raised by their grandmother during the Depression. In order to support herself and the two boys, she took up the "trade" of spiritualism. Some of her predictive powers came from reading tea leaves.

The current popularity of the occult, coupled with the direction of the economy, might spur a revival of such entrepreneurial endeavors. Whatever direction such a revival might take, it is unlikely to include the reading of tea leaves. The spirits would have a difficult time communicating through the powder in a tea bag.

With the advent of the tea bag, loose tea has almost disappeared and more than occult graphics have been sacrificed in the switch.

It is widely believed that a cup of tea can be made by plopping a tea bag into a mug or tin pitcher of warm water. It can't.

THERE IS a ceremony involved in brewing a proper cup of tea.

The first step is to pour very hot water into a non-metal teapot to warm it. This water is poured out and replaced by water which has just reached a boil. Tea leaves (1 tsp. for each 5 to 6 oz. of water) are dropped in and allowed to steep from 3 to 5 minutes. The tea is then poured through a strainer into another pot. If the leaves are allowed to sit longer in the tea, the result is a bitter taste. A tea ball may be used rather than the strainer for convenience.

The pot should be covered with a tea cozy to retain the heat. Probably due to our national coffee bias, the tea cozy is a difficult item to locate. The best selection is probably available in Windsor. The only local store I am aware of that carries a tea cozy at all is Quinlan's Irish Gifts in Birmingham.

Savoring a properly made cup of tea is a pleasure that is peculiarly suited to Michigan's cold, damp springs. Served steaming hot with sugar, milk (never cream), lemon, or even a shot of brandy, it should banish the chill of even the bleakest late winter day.

FOR A LITTLE added sustenance, try serving some scones, fresh from the oven, with honey, jam, or an unusual strawberry butter, flavored with a promise of warm summer days to come.

If you are fortunate enough to find fresh strawberries for this delicate spread, save a few, along with some of the hot tea, to create a drink worlds removed from commercial iced teas.

The English Breakfast Tea specified for the Strawberry Tea should be easy to find, but don't stop there. Search out a source of fine teas and experiment with an adventurous variety. Try starting out with the rich Darjeeling tea of India or Chinese Keemun, the original unblended English Breakfast Tea. More exotic in taste are the smoky Souchong teas. Formosan Oolong, known as "the champagne of teas," might be an interesting change from the black teas with which we are most familiar.

The delicate green teas of China and Japan might provide yet another taste experience. Finally, it might be fun to combine various types to create your own custom blends.

SCOTTISH SCONES

3 cups unsifted flour
3 cups rolled oats
1 tsp. salt
1½ tsp. baking soda
1 tbsp. cream of tartar
2 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts
¾ cup butter
1½ cups milk

Pre heat oven to 425 degrees. Mix all dry ingredients; toss nuts thoroughly in the dry ingredients to distribute them evenly. Cut in the butter with a pastry blender. Add milk and mix, tossing with a fork to form a soft dough. Divide into 3 parts. Work with one part of dough at a time. Pat out on a floured board with floured hands to a round ½-inch thick or slightly more. Cut each round with a floured knife into 5 or 6 wedges; place on a greased cookie sheet. Bake for 15 minutes or until brown in 425-degree oven. Serve hot with butter and jam. 16 wedges.

STRAWBERRY BUTTER

1 stick sweet butter, softened (not margarine)
3 tbsp. finely chopped fresh strawberries
1 tbsp. powdered sugar

Combine all ingredients in a blender or food processor with a steel knife. Whip until light. Serve with warm biscuits.

STRAWBERRY TEA

½ cup sliced strawberries
¾ cup strong English Breakfast Tea
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tbsp. fine granulated sugar

Puree the strawberries in a blender; strain the puree through a fine sieve into a tall glass. Set aside. Dissolve the sugar in the hot tea; add the lemon juice; chill. Stir the chilled tea into the strawberry puree. Add 4 ice cubes and garnish the drink with a strawberry. Makes 1 drink.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

Savor first fruits of the season

Spring melons, strawberries and other fruits are larger and juicier, bursting with extra flavor their winter cousins lack. Peaches blush rosier and, peeled and sectioned, glisten in golden splendor on a plate.

The first of any fruit is best eaten straight from the hand, no washing, peeling, cutting, etc. Just popped into the mouth or savored bite by delicious bite.

Later, when that first craving has been eased, pile a plate with sections of half a dozen fruits and enjoy a fruit salad as a first course, main course or dessert.

Fruit salads can be tart or sweet. Choose flavors that merge or contrast to enhance each other. The colors add beauty to any meal.

Some fruits such as apples, pears, peaches and bananas darken after cutting and should be brushed with lemon juice to prevent discoloration.

Then top them off with one of the dressings below for a sunny, delightful treat. Sprinkle pine nuts or sliced blanched or toasted almonds on top for a crunchy contrast.

Rye bread is surprise ingredient in this stew

Cook up a good old-fashioned stew the easy way. Take stewing beef flavored with paprika, pepper and onions and add the surprise ingredient — torn pieces of rye bread.

Simmer for 2 hours and you will find the stew beautifully thickened.

Surprise Stew will give you a hearty main dish served over egg noodles or with a whipped potato border. Add green beans or broccoli for complete nutrition.

Ripe olives are an appetizing ingredient in any dish adding nutty flavor, firm texture and color contrast.

OLGC Parish donates 235 pints of blood

They lined up to lie down on a busy Saturday in the gymnasium at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church in Plymouth.

Supine on Red Cross cots, they rolled up their sleeves and pumped their fists for 20 minutes. Blood flowed from each donor's vein into a platic pint-sized pouch, and when it was all over the Red Cross had 235 pints of blood to use for life-saving purposes.

By Monday, the blood was available for people having surgery that day, or perhaps for some on kidney machines or those involved in weekend accidents.

This was the second time in a year that members of the Plymouth parish had responded to the need for blood.

They and members of many other area churches are filling a need for the Red Cross.

Due to lay-offs in the auto industry, blood drives have not been supplying the needs of the local metropolitan area. So the Red Cross has called on the churches. The call was answered.

Twenty churches in western Wayne County hold blood drives twice a year, and the Red Cross reports a 110 church-sponsored blood drives in Livonia, Redford, Garden City, Westland, Plymouth and Canton during 1979.

THE SUCCESS of a blood drive, according to coordinators, depends on good organization and personal contact with church members.

Larry Johnson, who recently coordinated a blood drive for Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia and plans another there this month, talks enthusiastically about the success of that church's program.

"We held our blood drive on Sunday, Dec. 23," Johnson said. "Many people were hesitant because it was so close to Christmas, but there was a festive spirit about it.

"It was very exciting. What better gift is there? This is what Christmas is all about."

Johnson donated his 80th pint that day.

"It has taken me a lifetime to donate what our church collected in just one day," he said.

Church donations are vital to the Red Cross because they hold blood drives on Saturdays and Sundays and provide supplies for the heavy Monday needs.

"Industrial blood drives held during the weeek cannot supply Monday blood," Johnson said.

GIVING A GIFT is what participation in a blood drive seems to mean to those in the churches, clergy and laity alike. That is how the Rev. Kenneth MacKinnon, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel, sees his parish's response.

"We have a stewardship program in this parish," he said. "And when we ask that people consider giving the gift of life in the context of stewardship, the response has been overwhelming.

"This is the gift of life, a life-saving gift. It is a way of sharing in the strength of our own lives."

The Rev. Robert Seltz, pastor of Holy Trininty Lutheran Church in Livonia, voiced agreement after his church and Faith Lutheran, also of Livonia, had conducted successful blood drives.

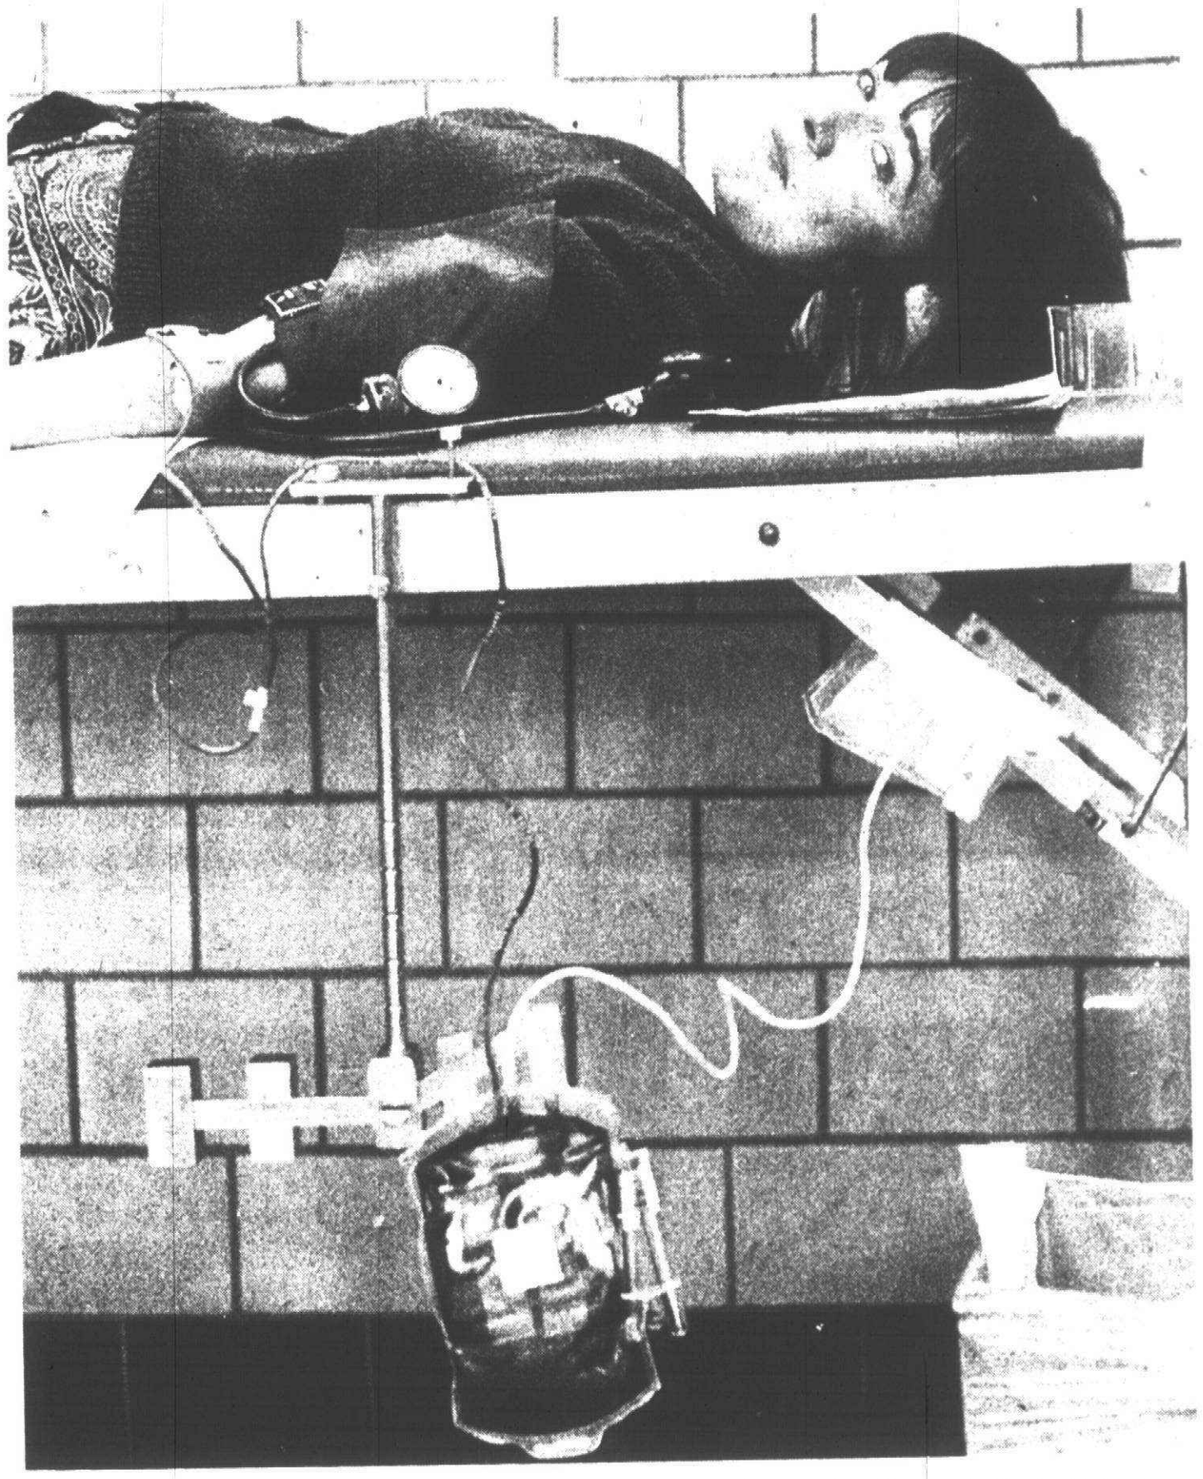

"We see this is an opportunity in a practical way to live up to the faith," he said. "It is a very visible way of giving something besides money.

"Most people just write out a check to support a church or do to a far-off mission, but this is a way of touching closer to home."

'Saturday Spring Fling' is 4-week series

The Northville Historical Society promises something for everyone in its series of four consecutive Saturday workshops, "Saturday Spring Things."

Barbara Scantlin will open the series at Mill Race Village on Gratiot Street at 10 a.m. April 26 with her day-long workshop, "All About Herbs." The history and origin of herbs, their uses, garden designs and planting will be covered. She will share recipes and directions for things to make with herbs as well as drying techniques.

After a sack lunch, topped off with herb teas, participants will accompany Ms. Scantlin on a short field trip to Cranbrook Gardens or the Matthaei Botanical Gardens.

HORTICULTURIST John Brugeman will have a "Perennial Primer" workshop May 3. Students will gain practical knowledge through digging, dividing and transplanting. All aspects of perennials will be covered from identification, planning the garden, and cold frame construction.

Entire workshop will be outdoors and students should wear suitable clothing and boots. Group will meet at Mill Race Village at 10 a.m. Participants are asked to provide a sack lunch, a trowel and a pocket knife. Beverages will be provided. Just 15 students will be accepted.

Helen Maki will lead a group of 12 in the pursuit of edible wild plants. Participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. May 10 at Mill Race for a briefing. They will follow their leader to a nearby wooded area to forage for edibles. They will return to Mill Race at noon to prepare their findings for lunch. Outdoor clothing, boots and sandwich are recommended equipment.

Jamie Hove and Lynda Neuroth will present the final workshop, "Growing for Drying," at 10 a.m. May 17. Students will learn what, where, and when to plant and what and when to pick from the fields and roadsides for preserving. Those attending should provide their own sack lunch. Beverage will be furnished.

All the workshops will last from four to five hours. Fee is $10 for each. Persons wishing additional information should call Carol Jean Stockhausen, 349-2833, or Lucia Danes, 349-6784.

Registration forms are in Dunning-Hough Library, Main Street, Plymouth. Checks payable to the Northville Historical Society should be mailed to 218 Dunlap, Northville, 48167. Include name, address, telephone number and the workshop titles.

Project on plastics wins science prize

Members of the Detroit Chapter of the Society of Plastics and Engineering were impressed with Monty Faunce's knowledge of plastics. The eighth-grader at Our Lady of Good Counsel School entered his "Exploring the World of Plastics" in the recent Science Fair at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Judges from the society awarded Monty first prize for all grades for an exhibit dealing with plastics. Students sixth through 12th grades were eligible to enter their science projects in the fair.

Monty started investigating his subject after Thanksgiving. For starters, his father, Bill Faunce, who is a shop teacher at West Middle School, gave him a book on plastics to read. Once he had digested the contents, he wrote 25 letters to plastics companies asking for information. Eleven were no longer in business. Some did not respond. But nine companies sent along fairly complete packets. By Christmas, Monty had the information.

During Christmas vacation, he began his lab work under the supervision of his father.

HE MADE plastic fish lures — a worm and a frog. He made molded forms and studied injection molding.

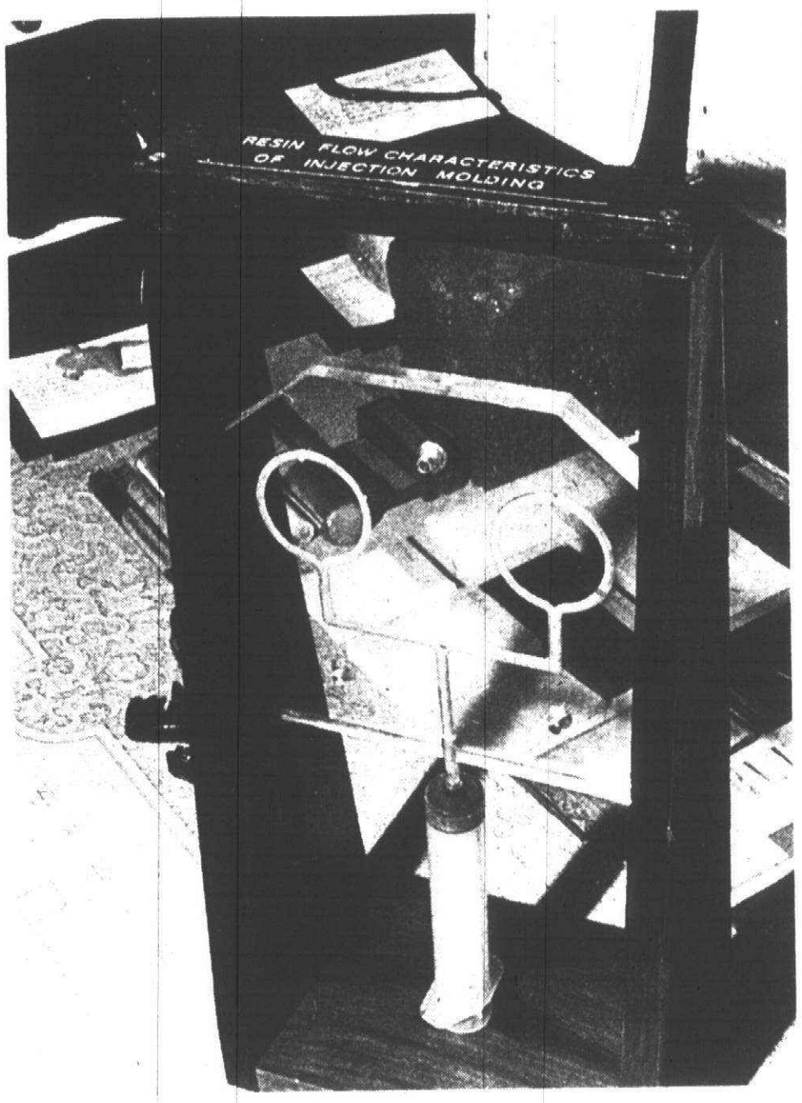

He constructed a model to represent the principle of an injection mold. After some experimention, he decided a green shampoo had the same flow as the plastic. The judges agreed with his choice.

The first-place prize included $100 and, to continue his interest in plastics, the society will send him a subscription to a national plastics journal.

Monty's parents are Bill and Violet Faunce of Harvey Street, Plymouth.

Months of study paid off for Monty Faunce when his project won a first place award at the science fair.

He used a liquid shampoo to demonstrate the process of injection molding. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Hey Detroit

Here's looking at ya

Detroit, a city rolling with the changes. Showing a proud skyline (above), the city hosts plentiful attractions. Greektown (left) boasts popular eating spots, a Trapper's Alley to browse and get lost in, an Attic Theater to challenge the imagination, and a kite shop and art gallery nearby. (Right) Belle Isle soon will begin to swarm with bike riders, joggers, sun worshippers, fishermen and women, and even cricket players near the casino.

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

You may have photographed the Grand Canyon or Yellowstone Park sometime during your traveling life. You may even have photographed Paris and Rome. Now that the spring rains are beginning to wash our driveways clean, it is a good time to explore and photograph one of America's great cities: Detroit.

If you haven't had a new look at Detroit and its suburban attractions for a while, you may not have seen some of the things that out-of-town visitors have seen.

The best view of Detroit is from the Windsor side of the Detroit River, where you have an unobstructed view of the renaissance city's skyline. The Renaissance Center dominates the view, four shining glass office and hotel towers rising 70 stories into the sky.

As you move your eyes left along the riverfront, you see the entrance to the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, Ford Auditorium, Hart Plaza, the Veteran's Memorial Building, the huge round walls of Cobo Hall Convention Center, and the new outline of th Joe Louis Sports Arena.

Hart Plaza, with its controversial Noguchi fountain, is the site of Detroit's ethnic festivals, which will highlight a different ethnic group each weekend during the summer. The fountain is computerized to change the direction of its waterspray as the wind changes, but we have all learned to stand back from the spray when we don't want to get wet.

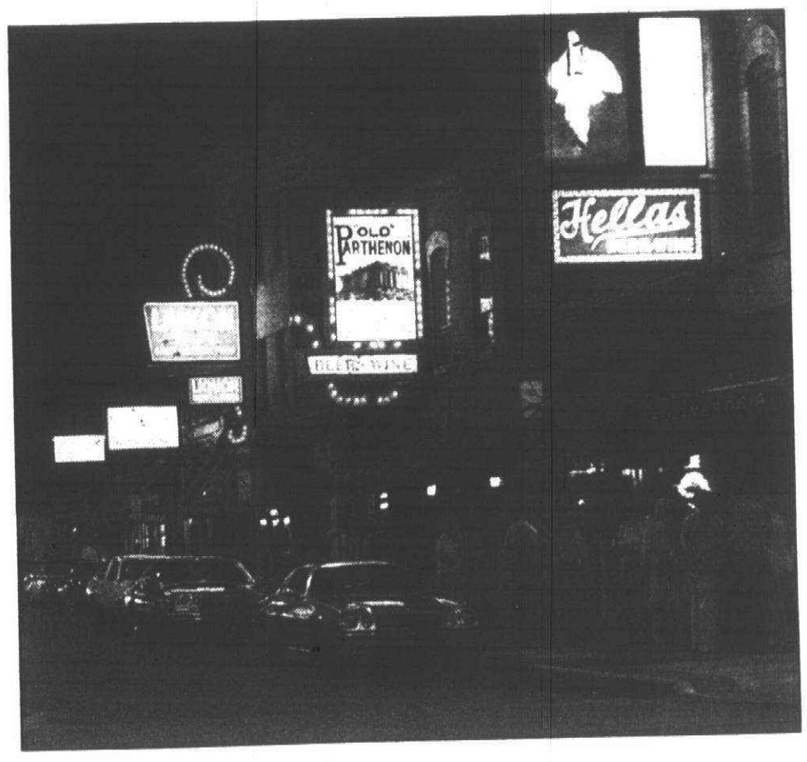

Cobo Hall, which has display space equal to 12 football fields, and roof parking for nearly 2,000 cars, is getting ready to host the 1980 GOP national convention.

OUT-OF-TOWNERS often know more about the history of a city than its residents know. For example, did you know that:

- Cobo Hall is very close to the spot where Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac founded this city in 1701 on the Detroit River. French farmers of that period followed the French-Canadian custom of land development: long narrow strips of land called ribbon farms that ran inland from the river shore.
- The roads that ran between these farms were marked with the names of the farmers who owned them. These names still mark area streets today.
- The high glass sides of the Pontchartrain Hotel mark the approximate limits of that original French settlement. The British added a new set of streets and a new fort on the higher ground behind the hotel when they governed the city from the fall of New France until 1796.
- After a major fire in 1805, Justice Augustus Woodward created a new street plan based on Pierre L'Enfant's plans for Washington, D.C; those streets still angle out from downtonw Detroit like the spokes of a wheel.
- Washington Boulevard was meant to be the main street of Detroit, but it didn't go through to the river. Traffic flowed naturally to Woodward Avenue, which became the city's main artery.

HAVE YOU BEEN on the Detroit River lately?

If you look up and down the Detroit River, you still see signs of the past and present history of the city. The Bob-Lo boat cruises downriver from the foot of Woodward Avenue 20 miles south to Bob-Lo Island, a Candadian island leased to American developers as an amusement park.

Log buildings still stand on the island (officially named Bois Blanc or white woods), marking the place where British troops fought American troops for this river land during the War of 1812.

The Candadian town of Amherstberg, which is the back door to Bob-Lo Island, has an interesting museum describing that time.

Further downriver, where the water flows into Lake Erie, a national monument marks South Bass Island in Ohio, where Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry fought the decisive battle against the British in 1813.

A riverboat ride also gives you a view of Detroit's industrial backyard: giant smokestacks from steel factories, utility companies and auto manufacturers darken he sky, and piles of coal wait on the river-bank in a surreal landscape.

A mile upriver is Belle Isle, the largest city-owned island park in the United States. Explorers and fur-traders paddled their way past this island centuries ago. Giant lake freighters carry goods along this route today on their way to the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Atlantic. More tonnage is hauled into Michigan over these waterways than by any other method of transportation.

Have you been on the lakes this year?

The Algonquin Indians called this state Michigami, land of great waters. Whatever else has changed over the centuries, the lakes and rivers continue to dominate Michigan life.

It was the great waters that brought explorers like Etienne Brule to Michigan as early as 1618, and it was the water highways that carried the fur trade when the area was part of New France.

The big waters brought the miners, the lumber barons and the farmers, and eventually it brought the iron ore that feeds the automobile factories.

Today, huge lake freighters pass the spot where Cadillac founded a city in 1701 and called it d'etroit, the straits.

Next week: Dearborn and the Old Sauk Trail.

travel log

Iris Sanderson Jones

Over the big river and into the goods

The grass may be greener on the other side of the fence, but sometimes we ignore the flowers that grow on the other side of the river.

If you drive to Windsor for an unobstructed view of the Detroit skyline, you should be aware of some advantages available to you on the other side of the Detroit River.

- Gas. Drive over with an almost-empty gas tank, because you can save a lot of money on gasoline in Windsor. Norm Ryan of the Canadian Government Office of Tourism reports that the last tankful he bought in Windsor cost 26.2 cents a liter in Canadian money.

When you convert this purchase to American money, which is now worth 20 percent more than Canadian money, the gasoline cost him about 85 American cents for an American gallon.

If you have been to the gas pump here lately, you know that is a saving of about 35 to 50 cents a gallon; quite a big saving on a 20-gallon order.

- Money. You can spend American dollars in Windsor, but you must then accept whatever exchange rate is being offered by the store or gas station where you spend it. Be smart. Change your money at a Canadian bank, where you can get the best exchange rate available for the day. But don't change significantly more than you need, because you will lose a little when you convert it back at an American bank later.

- Travel information. If you cross the Detroit River at the Ambassador Bridge and follow the signs pointing towards Highway 401, you will see a government tourist office about two blocks from the bridge in Windsor.

If you don't plan a bank stop, this is the second-best place to change your money. They will give you the exchange rate of the day, minus a small amount to cover the changes that can occur before they get your money to the bank and into their own account.

This travel office has a good assortment of travel literature for Ontario and a reasonable amount for other provinces. Ask them to give you information about Amherstberg. This historic little village is on the Canadian side of the Detroit River adjacent to Bob-Lo Island.

It has a small but interesting museum depicting the history of the area, including the War of 1812. There are also some small but tasty tea shops, bakeries and cafes in Amherstberg. Try the butter tarts, a Canadian version of a pecan pie.

In season, you can take the small Bob-Lo ferry from Amherstberg to Bob-Lo Island. The trip is short and inexpensive. Note that you must go through Candadian customs and immigration again when you come back to Amherstberg, but its mostly a formality.

BEFORE YOU HEAD home again, plan a sometime-tour of the Hiram Walker distillery in suburban Walkerville. And stop at the local supermarket. Check out tea, marmalade and honey, packaged deserts, butter tarts and some meats.

You can bring $25 worth of goods back across the American border, per person, without making a written declaration, as long as you don't bring liquor, cigarettes or citrus fruits.

On the plaza

The Noguchi fountain again provides the backdrop for Detroit's ethnic festivals at the foot of Woodward between Jefferson Avenue and the river.

Ford concept wagon

The Ford Fiesta GTK station wagon of the future was developed in Ford's Ghia Studio in Turin, Italy. The metallic-gold, five-passenger car has a 94-inch wheelbase. An on-board computer and an electronic digital-display instrument panel provide the driver with exact trip information.

Self-serve? Check these

How long has it been since you took a really good look around your car: If you had to pause to remember when you last checked your exhaust system, tires, oil, coolant level, battery and other components, you probably have put it off too long.

The advent of self-service gasoline outlets has placed an added bnurden of responsibility on the car owner, according to the Consumer Automotive Advisory Council. Even most mini-serve stations do not check under the hood. So the auto repair industry reports a mounting concern about maintenance neglect.

These are some of the check you should make periodically. If you can't do it personally, have your service dealer do it for you.

• Fluids — Check engine oil, transmission oil, power steering fluid and coolant. And as needed. Caution: Nevery remove the radiator pressure cap when the engine is hot.

• Battery — Check for corrosion on terminals, a common cause of starting trouble. Check electrolyte level and add water as needed. Caution: When working near a battery, be sure there is no open flame nearby. Do not smoke. Batteries emit explosive hydrogen gas.

•. Belts and Hoses — While the hood is up, take a look at your drive belt and hoses. Frayed or worn belts should be replaced. So should soft, brittle or bulging hoses.

• Windshield wipers — Take a look at your wipers. The rubber becomes brittle with weathering and aging and may be worn to a point where the wipers smear or streak the glass. How's your supply of washer fluid.?

• Tires — Invest in a good tire guage and use it frequently. If you haven't checked tire pressure lately, you're likely to find your tires underinflated. Even a couple of pounds of underinflation can cut tire life by about 10 percent. And four pounds of underinflation can cost up to 3 percent in fuel economy.

• Other service items — Take a look at the service sticker on your door jamb or under the hood. Is it time for a lube job, oil and filter change? One good reason for getting the car up on a service lift is that it allows you or your service dealer to check underneath the car for problems.

Here you can spot leaking shocks, exhaust system parts that are faulty or rusted through, leaking transmission seals or rear end. While the car is up on the lift, it's also an opportunity for another close look at the condition of your tires.

Finally, as part of your periodic inspection program, make a walk-around check of all your lights, including turn signals. If you have no one with you to help check brake lightrs, you can do it yourself in broad daylight when another car is behind you at an intersection. Just tap your brake pedal and look for the reflection of your brakelights in his headlights through your rearview mirror.

Self-service fillups can a great time and money saver. But they're not worth it if other improtant safety and maintenance inspections aren't being attended to. The resultant breakdown could cost you more than you're saving at the self-serve.
