School board is anticipating bond decision

A final decision is expected tonight on whether Plymouth-Canton voters will be asked in June to approve an $11 million bond issue to handle student growth in the school district.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the board offices at 454 S. Harvey in the city of Plymouth.

The request for an $11-million bond proposal basically is a revision of the $14.7-million proposal defeated in the special school election in March.

Eliminated from that proposal is about $3 million to renovate Central Middle School and about $500,000 to purchase new school buses.

If approved by voters, the school district would borrow $11 million and pay off that debt for a period of 22 years. (The last bond issue request had a 29-year payback period).

The $11 million loan would result in school taxes being increased the first year by 1.12 mills ($1.12 per $1,000 state equalized valuation) or about $34 a year more for the owner of a $60,000 home.

The school board also will be asked on May 12 to approve a second ballot proposition which would give the school district permission to levy its maximum allowable levy.

If voters approve the second levy, the district will be able to levy 1.32 mills if otherwise would not be able to levy because of the rollback provisions in the Headlee tax limitation amendment.

If this second proposed ballot issue is defeated in June, the total school levy would decrease by 1.32 mills. If it were approved by voters the total levy next year would remain the same as it is this year.

The official wording of the ballot for the bond issue proposal reads as follows:

"Shall Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, Wayne and Washtenaw Counties, Michigan, borrow the sum of not to exceed Eleven Million Dollars ($11,000,000) and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefor, for the purpose of remodeling, constructing, refurbishing and re-equipping school facilities; purchasing and equipping portable classroom facilities; and improving sites?"

The school district's financial consultants (Stauder, Barch and Associates) recommended the bonds be paid back over a period of 22 rather than 29 years to make the bonds more marketable.

Two issues which were on the ballot in March will not be on the June ballot. Those are the request to earmark one-half mill for maintenance and a bond issue to convert Central Middle School to a high school and to build a classroom wing at the Centennial Educational Park.

The $11-million bond issue and the request to continue levying the 1.32 mills will be on the June 9 ballot along with the election of two trustees for four-year terms.

Other items on tonight's board agenda include: adoption of a student code of conduct; a report on proposed cut-back in state aid; and a request from Faith Community Church to use Allen School.

The huggers are ready

Special Olympics competition continues Friday with mentally and physically handicapped children and adults competing in swimming, track and field events. Friday's opening ceremonies will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) site at Joy and Canton Center roads. An important job for the Special Olympics is the hugger who greets and hugs each participant as they come over the finish line, whether they win or lose. Among those shown above are participant Beth Covington, 14 of Plymouth, hugger Louise Edwards of Westland, Joann Groeneveld of Redford with clipboard, and Bill Robinson of Plymouth with the stopwatch. Whereabouts unknown

Missing daughter sought

By CAROLINE PRICE

For David Artley, the past two weeks have been filled with what he calls a "mixture of despair and panic — despair that my daughter is with her mother and panic that she might not be."

Kimberly Artley, a seventh grader at East Middle School who has just turned 13, has been missing since April 14.

The only thing Artley has to go on is a note from Kimberly saying that she went with her mother and that he shouldn't worry.

But Artley, who has had custody of Kimberly and 14-year-old sister Sandra for the past 10 years, is desperately worried.

"I've read about this happening, but I just don't know what to do," he says.

"I just wish I knew where she was."

Artley, who has remarried and lives in Canton with his wife, new son and both daughters, says he is almost certain Kimberly has gone with her mother. But beyond believing his daughter is no longer in the state, he says he has only "bits and pieces to go on."

No one — including the Michigan State Police, Kimberly's sister, friends or her school, seems to know where the teenager has gone.

"I think everyone has done the most they could do, but it's not enough or she'd be home," Artley says.

ARTLEY, A PLANT supervisor for Dy-Dee-Service in Detroit, admits that Kimberly obviously left of her own free will.

He says Kimberly gave her sister, who also attends East Middle School, a note around lunchtime April 14 and asked her to take it home to "Daddy."

Artley's wife, Pat, opened the note when Sandra came home from school and immediately called her husband at work. He says he came home and called the state police.

Kimberly's mother, Judith Artley, was living in a trailer in Westland at the time. According to Artley, the mother, her 6-year-old son by another marriage and the trailer were missing the same day his daughter disappeared.

Kimberly did not check out of school that day, but apparently received an "emergency phone call" at the school shortly before she gave the note to her sister.

Artley said there had been no fight with his daughter before she disappeared.

"Kimberly is a loner. I'd say her best friend is her sister, but she didn't confide in her about this. I guess there were warning signs, but that's hindsight."

His daughter's disappearance comes at a time when life seemed to be looking better than it had in a long time for Artley. He and his wife Pat are the parents of 1½-year-old Matthew. He says both his daughters got along well with their stepmother. He holds a responsible job and feels he had managed to make a good home life for his family.

IT WASN'T ALWAYS the case. At the time he gained custody of his daughters in 1970, he says he was "single and unemployed."

Artley says he was separated from Judith in 1966. "In January, 1968, there was a knock on my door. I opened it, didn't see anything and closed the door. Then I heard another knock and a

A speakable honor

Gina Massaro of Canton has been honored by the township board of trustees for talking.

Ms. Massaro is a member of the Eastern Michigan University forensics team, which spent the weekend in Montevallo, Ala., in order to participate in the National Tournament there. Last week, the board passed a resolution honoring the forensics team member. EMU's team already holds a national title in public speaking.

Proud Presbyterians

Two Canton residents are serving on the general assembly local committee on arrangements for the United Presbyterian Church 192d General Assembly to be held in Detroit May 27 through June 4. They are Gene Klimeck, chairman of the equipment and supplies subcommittee and Nancy Balog. The General Assembly last met in Detroit in 1954. More than 600 delegates, called commissioners, will attend the event in Cobo Hall. The total attendance at the assembly is expected to total more than 5,000.

Agriculture Understanding

Do you think tomatoes grow on trees? Do your children know the difference between straw and hay? Greater understanding of an occupation we all enjoy the results of — agriculture — but may know little about is the focus of Agriculture Understanding Day set for April 30. According to the Michigan Farm Bureau Women organization, agriculture is the state's second largest industry, bringing an estimated $10 million annually into the economy. Canton residents should pay special interest to the day, since the township is one of the last areas in Wayne County where active farming is still conducted.

Mr. Jenkin, a member of Ward United Presbyterian Church, died April 16. Survivors include: wife, Florence; daughter, Elizabeth Welsh; sisters, Minna Rowe and May Woolcock of England; two grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Practice makes perfect

Kathy Bomback rehearses her cello solo for the Centennial Educational Park Orchestra's May 1 festival. The concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Salem High School auditorium when combined orchestras from all the school district's secondary schools will join forces. Music for the concert was selected by the orchestra staff earlier in the year. Directors include Linda Mapes, East Middle School; Judy Plester, Central Middle School; Larry Holcomb, West Middle School; and H. Michael Endres, CEP, who is coordinating the festival. Performing groups include the sixth graders, combined seventh and eighth grade ensemble, the CEP Symphonic Orchestra, the Chamber Orchestra and the combined seven-12 grade group.

Canton police contemplate going to the dogs

By DARLENE STINSON

Canton police are convinced that dogs are worth their weight in Kennel Ration.

On April 13, a German shepherd named Chris led police to stereo equipment and other property which was stolen from a home on Hanford. The dog, owned by reserve police officer Steve Keleman, traced the steps of the suspects to the site where the property was being stored.

Lt. Larry Stewart said the property was the evidence police needed to arrest five juveniles and an adult.

Police are so impressed with Chris that they plan to train two dogs as cops' "partners" within the coming year.

POLICE CHIEF JERRY Cox, who won township board approval for the canine unit last week, said the dogs will be used for a variety of purposes.

They'll track lost children. They'll assist in the recovery of stolen property and participate in public relations seminars. Stewart says dogs are particularly important for their psychological impact. If a German shepherd threatens to show his teeth, bad guys tend to become as submissive as kittens.

But muscle and snarl aren't the only qualifications for the dogs which will join the Canton force.

They must be gentle enough to work with children. Their ways must be winning in order to become public relations assets for the department.

Judy Keleman, whose husband has volunteered to train the dogs at no charge, said the canines will be reared in the Schutzhund tradition.

That type of training, used in Germany for the past 80 years, emphasizes love and affection more than anything else, Mrs. Keleman said. The dogs are trained to attack only on command or when their master's safety is threatened.

STEWART CREDITS Keleman, who was sworn into the department as a reserve last week, for making the establishment of a canine unit financially feasible for Canton police.

The cost of purchasing and training one German shepherd for police work would normally run $10,000, Stewart said. That sum would be astronomical for a department of Canton's size — one reason why large departments are usually the only ones with police dogs.

But Keleman, who lives in Livonia, said he has offered to train the dogs free of charge in order to promote the schutzhund manner of training.

Stewart said Keleman will arrange for the purchase of two puppies for approximately $350 each. Other costs include an estimated $300 for equipment and veterinarian fees and approximately $250 for annual food supplies.

Keleman, who is president and training director of the Greater Detroit Schutzhund Club, has trained dogs for the Dearborn Police Department and assisted with training for Taylor police.

He began training bird dogs when he was 12 for hunters who frequented his father's general store in Romulus. As an adult, he offered obedience training at two business establishments he previously owned — Dog World in Livonia and Alert Boarding Kennels in Taylor.

But Keleman, who now works for Ford Motor Co., said his enthusiasm for training dogs increased when he discovered Schutzhund about seven years ago. Until recently, that manner of training was not used in the United States.

Keleman said Schutzhund emphasizes the disposition of the dog. His wife said corporal punishment is not used as a training technique to avoid molding a vicious attack dog.

The puppies which will be purchased for Canton police will be specifically bred for Schutzhund, Mrs. Keleman said. Dogs which have won Schutzhund certificates after numerous tests are bred only with other Schutzhund holders.

"TO BE HONEST, 75 percent of any dog training is training the owner," said Mrs. Keleman.

For that reason, two police officers will be selected as "partners" to the dogs, according to Stewart. The dogs will live in the officers' homes and accompany them on all patrols in the township.

Because of the difficulty of transferring a dog's loyalty to another master, Stewart said the department will ask the officers to sign written commitments to the force for the next two to five years. The officers will receive a flat fee of $250 annually to cover the dogs' living expenses.

Stewart said Keleman contacted Canton police about six months ago to show what his Schutzhund-trained Chris can do.

The German shepherd impressed everyone who saw her, Stewart said.

Last winter, the dog let police know that a pair of stranded motorists on Michigan Avenue had just broken into a mobile home. Chris jumped from the patrol car and followed the motorists' scent to the nearby scene of the crime before police knew that the illegal entry had taken place.

The dog found a lost child in Riverview some years ago before she was trained in Schutzhund.

Stewart expects to place Chris on call until training of two puppies is completed in about one year.

The township's liability insurance will cover the dogs for no additional cost, according to finance director Mike Gorman.

"Usually, larger departments have dogs," said Stewart. "But it should be the other way around. A canine unit is an inexpensive way of covering the problem of having few officers."

whimpering sound, so I opened the door again and there was Sandra. I looked out the window and saw her mother pulling out of the driveway."

Artley says the mother of the two girls called him later in the year from Washington D.C. and asked him to come and get Kimberly, which he did.

"We've been together ever since. I've made a lot of mistakes but the one thing I did right was to take care of the kids."

Artley says the girl's mother did not have visiting rights when he first gained custody and added that he had had next to no contact with her for the next three years.

She returned to the area in 1973 and began to see the girls "about once a month."

Artley, who says the mother had never indicated to him directly that she wanted custody of her daughters, added that he had recently given them permission to spend the summer and holidays with her if they chose.

"I never denied them their mother."

HE ADMITS THAT there's nothing much he can do to make his daughter come home, especially since he does not know where she is. He does expect Kimberly to call eventually. "When that happens, I guess I'll let her know I'm hurt and I'm angry, but that I'm not going to punish her. Maybe we can go to counseling."

For now, Artley is mainly concerned with finding where his daughter and in learning for certain that she is with her mother. He asks that anyone who may have seen his daughter on or after April 14 to contact either the Northville branch of the Michigan State Police or himself.

In Michigan, if a parent takes a child, even if the other parent has custody, it is not construed as kidnapping, but rather as contempt of court.

If Kimberly returns, Artley said he would not seek to deny the mother visitation rights. "But I'd insist that the Friend of the Court be there."

"I want to know where she is. I want to know she's all right."

'Chris' unleashes talents

By MIKE SCANLON

In plenty of minds, the phrase "police dogs" creates a simple, instantaneous mental picture: Vicious, snarling, hackle-raised, unleashed beasts. The most brutal kind of police brutality.

A visit to Steve Keleman's Livonia house tends to wipe that particular slate clean.

In a kennel out behind his garage — his daughter is allergic to dogs — Keleman keeps a 7-year-old German Shepherd named Chris.

Don't mess around with it. It looks like a normal German shepherd. But if you so much as scratch it behind the ear, you run the risk of acquiring five shriveled prunes where your fingers used to be before it stops licking your hand.

"She's about the best dog I've ever had and I've had over a hundred dogs," says Keleman, who started training hunting dogs when he was 12.

Chris, or Frau von Christian if you must, is a Schutzhund. That's German for "protection dog." A whole system of training and competition "almost like a theology" has been built in Germany over the past 80 years around the breeding and training of Schutzhunds, says Keleman.

But few people in the United States have even heard of it. Fewer have practiced it.

Schutzhund refers both to bloodlines and skills. Six different breeds can qualify, but German shepherds are far and away the most popular.

Last week, Canton Township trustees gave Keleman the go-ahead to train two dogs for the police department. While the dogs Keleman trains — he's doing it without charge — will not technically be Schutzhunds, they will learn to perform similar feats. Or else.

"WE'RE TRAINING just like the Germans train. They take it very, very seriously over there," said Keleman, adding that in Germany it is a criminal offense to forge papers showing a dog to be a Schutzhund when it is not a Schutzhund.

The kind of dogs that Bull Connors' Selma police unleashed on civil rights marchers 15 years ago are the kind of dogs that "were trained on suspicion, fear and hate. But with the Schutzhund dog, it's based on love and affection. It's a much more dependable dog. It makes a more well-rounded dog."

The key abilities necessary for that kind of dog are tracking, obedience and protection, said Keleman, adding "we tend to downplay the protection."

"We like to train the dog at tracking first because that'll tell us if the dog is suitable for the work. Tracking is 90 percent of the job, if a dog makes a bite a year, that's a lot," said Keleman, who was sworn in as a reserve cop in Canton last week.

Anyway, except as a last resort, Keleman doesn't believe any dog is well-suited for the kind of work they did in Selma, crowd control. Panic induced by the dogs may only made the situation worse, he said.

Training such a dog is an uncertain business. It may be as long as 18 months before Canton's trained dogs hit the street for the first time.

"I don't like to put a time limit on it because every dog is different, every trainer is different," said Keleman, an engine designer for Ford Motor Co.

In general, at one to eight hours a day, it takes a year to 18 months to train a puppy, four to five months to train a year-old dog. The dogs are generally retired after eight to 10 years, and because of that Keleman said 18 months is an upper limit for a dog starting training, since "otherwise the service life would be too short."

"You're predominantly training a hooligan for the first six or eight months," said Keleman. "Everything the dog experiences in the younger stages should be pleasant. The dogs must always feel they're winners. You have establish their confidence. After six months or a year, it all starts to jell."

IT JELLS into a dog simultaneously "easily trained, courageous, agile, hard-biting and friendly," said Keleman.

Oddly enough, "one of the most difficult jobs we have is to teach the dog to bite properly."

Probably the other most difficult task is teaching the owner.

The dogs will be family pets for the officers named as handlers. The dogs will live with them while under training and while in service. To some extent, the dogs can be expected to develop dispositions according to how the handlers treat them, so choosing the handlers is critical.

The Canton dogs will be German Shepherds, like most Schutzhounds.

"The German Shepherd is probably not the best dog at anything," said Keleman. "But I'd say it's probably the second-best dog at everything."

Keleman is certain the dogs will be successful.

"Canton is ideal for police dogs. (The police force) is short-handed. Over half the land is undeveloped. They have many new subdivisions and people from different walks of life, different incomes, coming in. Mainly because of a lack of money, they can use a dog much more effectively than a large department."

"ONE OFFICER and a dog can be as effective as 10 officers," said Keleman.

And Keleman is equally sure that that dog should be a Schutzhund.

"I don't like to take credit for this. There are a lot of very dedicated people involved (in training Schutzhunds in the U.S.) and it's really a very concerted effort with all of us, providing work-capable dogs. Because we really feel this is the only way, the proper way, the proven way."

It's already been proven in Canton. Recently, Chris followed a scent through some woods, across a flooded field, through a marsh and finally tracked down a cache of goods stolen in a burglary.

The man who was arrested as a result will have to find a new best friend.

Lions Club plans White Cane Drive

The Lions Club of Plymouth will sponsor its annual White Cane Drive Friday and Saturday, May 2 and 3.

Some 45 Lions will be collecting for a variety of club projects in shopping centers and on street corners in the City of Plymouth and in Plymouth Township.

Charles Hoitash is chairman of this year's drive, the 32nd in which the Plymouth Lions Club has participated. Gov. William Milliken has proclaimed April 27 through May 3 White Cane Week.

The drive is one of three major projects undertaken by the club each year, and in which members raise more than $10,000 for charitable purposes.

The other two projects are the auction, set for May 18, and the fish fry at the Plymouth Fall Festival.

LOCALLY, THE members put time as well as money into projects. About a year ago, they bought the materials and built 12 picnic tables for the Plymouth Township Centennial Park. They have been asked to make more this year, reported Hoitash. They have also provided bridges for the park.

The club spends more than $1,000 each year for glasses and eye examinations and hearing aids and examinations for children and adults in the Plymouth community.

Last year, members donated a $5,000 van to the local YMCA for the transportation of senior citizens.

In recent years, they have assisted the city in providing aluminum trash receptacles in downtown Plymouth. The club make an annual donation to the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and to the Salvation Army, and sponsor a Boy and Girl Scout troop.

From time to time, donations are made to other worthwhile community projects. Recently, $200 was given to the Special Olympics, which will be at the Centennial Education Park this year. The club purchased and donated a 16mm sound projector to Opportunity House.

DONATIONS ARE made to the Leader Dog for the Blind School in Rochester. This is one of three such schools in the U.S. sponsored and maintained largely by Lions Clubs with help from the United Fund.

Members also contribute funds to the Michigan Eye Bank, the Penickton School for Blind Children and the Welcome Home for the Blind.

This year, as in past years, the club is requesting interested persons to pass along to any club member used eye glasses and hearing aids. These are re-adjusted and sent to the needy all over the world.

The Plymouth club is interested in finding new members. Interested persons may contact any of the following: Dale Dauderman, Skip Dorrington, Lou Morton, Gene Kornegay, Chet Solowiej, Dennis Siegner, Joe Gabrys, Jerry Holden, Ray Burns, Don Hay, Ed Kerstens, Mel Korte, Jim McCarthy, Bud Martin, Gene Meadows, Noble Stormant or John Roose.

Fit in a fitness session

The warm weather brings out the best in all of us. But we can be better — fitness-wise. This is the time to take advantage of fitness events offered in our area.

Alice Belfie, co-director of Creative Dynamics, is presenting a wholistic life-style workshop Saturday at Macomb College. It will include stress and time management, leisure time management, cardiovascular fitness, and yoga. For more information call Macomb College continuing education division.

A fitness weekend will be offered by Mercy Center in Farmington Hills May 9 and 10. The weekend will include swimming, diet, body contouring, yoga, dance, personal growth, and beauty techniques. For cost and to register, call 476-8010.

The YMCA is offering a mini-vacation June 22-27. The camp will be held at Camp Ohiyesa in Oakland County. During the week-long event, classes will be conducted in fitness, and dance exercise. Walk-jog-run clinics, swimming, and horseback riding will be tipping the scales

available and a fitness profile will be conducted. In addition, stress management will be offered. Movies, fashion, finances, and diet will also be discussed. For registration, cost and detail, call Jeff Sadowsky at the Livonia Y at 261-2161, or Shirley Eyster at 644-9036.

A fun run, sponsored by Better Living Seminars, is scheduled for 10 a.m. May 4. This exercise program is tailored for people of all ages and degrees of fitness. You may walk, jog, or run. The emphasis is on personal improvement and run rather than competition. The group will meet at the Plymouth S.D.A. Church parking lot at 4285 Napier Rd. You must register by calling 459-0894.

You may want to join Sue Topolewski's exercise classes in Livonia. Enrollment is already up to 300 people but she is taking registrations for overflow. Ms. Topolewski is a professional choreographer and owner of the Detroit Disco Dance Company, a group of female dancers who perform throughout the metropolitan Detroit area. Her exercise classes consist of disco slim-nastics as well as mat exercises and aerobic dancing. She loves promoting fitness and observing the overall improvement in her students. Cost is $11 for eight weeks. To register call the Livonia Community Services at 422-1200. Miss Topolewski also offers a combination class consisting of classroom experiences with experts speaking on diet, stress control, self esteem, then exercises. The 1½-hour classes run for eight weeks and cost $14. "New You" is beginning next week. To register call Livonia Community Services at 422-1200.

Cardiovascular health expert Dr. Joseph Arends will speak on health, fitness and diet at 8 p.m. Friday in the Livonia City Hall Auditorium. The talk is the final one in a series sponsored by the Livonia Family Y.

At one time Dr. Arends weighed 240 pounds. Now he is a slim, healthy physician whose practice is limited to preventive medicine. To hear his talk, call the Livonia Y at 261-2161, or tickets may be purchased for $2 at the door.

PARADE PLANNING

The Fourth of July parade and related activities are in the early planning stages by the Plymouth Jaycees. Solicitation of contributions from the business community is in progress and will run through May. For information about the parade, float applications or contributions, contact Harold Jacobs at 455-8874.

JUDO AND KARATE CLASSES

The city of Plymouth Recreation Department is sponsoring classes in judo and karate. The class costs $15 for residents of Plymouth, slightly higher for township residents. Registration is taking place at the recreation office in the cultural center. For information, call 455-6620.

CHILDREN'S ARTS AND CRAFTS

Registration is in progress for arts and crafts classes for children ages 4-12 offered by Plymouth's Parks and Recreation Department. The class teaches a child a variety of crafts that he or she can do at home. The cost is $10 for residents of Plymouth.

REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH OPEN HOUSE

April 29 — The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district will offer a reproductive health open house from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. in the Canton High School library. The program is for parents whose students are currently enrolled in health education classes at Plymouth-Canton or Plymouth-Salem high schools.

The purpose of the open house is to provide parents with the opportunity to ask questions and to preview the materials to be used. The Centennial Educational Park health education staff will provide the presentation.

EARLY SCHOOL CLOSING

May 2 — Students in Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth-Salem high schools will be dismissed from school at 10:18 a.m. in order to give the staff time to work on the North Central self-evaluation. Transportation will be provided. The cafeteria will not be in operation on that day.

DANCE CLASSES

May 5 — A variety of dance classes sponsored by the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department begin this week. Classes are available in pre-school ballet, ballet for children ages 6-13 and tap dance classes for children. A disco-jazz class is offered for children ages 7-12 years. For teens and adults, there will be classes in jazz exercise, disco and ballroom dance. Registration is now in progress at the recreation department in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

YOGA CLASSES

May 5 — Yoga classes sponsored by the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department begin this week, with registration now in progress. Call the department at 455-6620 for more information.

SMITH PTO

May 6 — Smith School's PTO will meet at 8 p.m. in the teacher's lounge. All interested persons are invited to attend.

KITE FLYING CONTEST

May 17 — The Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring its second annual kite flying contest with registration beginning at 10:30 a.m. on the township administration building grounds. Rules require that each participant furnish his or her own kite and string. Awards will be given for several categories and age groups.

One call does it all

Would you believe a turtle teaches kids to hear?

Hearing-impaired children are learning about sound from a three-foot papier-mache turtle named Myrtle and a variety of other toys created by a Michigan State University associate professor of art.

Ronald Kemnitzer emphasizes that for the hearing impaired, toys can reinforce sound through visual and tactile senses.

"Parts of sounds children don't hear can be represented by something they see or feel," he explains.

Kemnitzer, a graduate of University of Cincinnati, was an industrial designer for an Illinois manufacturer when he decided to go on for further study at Northern Illinois University.

He became interested in the special needs of the hearing impaired when his brother, an architect, was designing a school for youngsters with hearing difficulties.

During preliminary research, Kemnitzer learned that toys to accommodate the children's varied degrees of hearing were virtually nonexistent.

Quitting his job, he moved on to further research at an Illinois school for the hearing impaired, and was surprised to learn that only about 2 percent of the school's student body were totally deaf.

"Sound was an important part of their environment," he said. The school even had its own marching band.

Armed with the necessary background information, Kemnitzer spent only about six months designing and constructing his toys, which feature combinations of light, color and movement with sound.

He had very little electronics knowledge when he began the project. Using a trial-and-error approach, "I would look through catalogs and order what parts I thought were necessary," he says.

Testing the toys in classrooms of hearing-impaired students, Kemnitzer was relieved to find that, with some minor modifications, they all worked according to plan.

His designs span all age groups. For infants, there is a battery-operated crib mobile, with a ringing bell and flashing lights activated when the baby moves a lightweight plastic lever.

For toddlers and other young children, Kemnitzer made a plastic whistle that when blown lights up at the end. It helps hearing-impaired children with breath control, an important factor in learning to speak in sentences, he explains.

THE DESIGNER admits he is especially fond of "Myrtle the Tactile Turtle," who is wired for sound with a speaker under her shell. When Myrtle "hears" a voice or music, her shell vibrates and her eyes light up to the beat, much to the delight of her audience, which can feel and see the total effect.

Kemnitzer created a more sophisticated "Myrtle" for older children. Enclosed in a plastic box are three colors of lights, mirror-reflected on all sides. When music is played, the box becomes a mini-disco, vibrating to the beat, its lights flashing at different intervals as the music intensity changes. Color and movement also reinforce sound in two other toys which he designed, a child-size flute and an organ.

Kemnitzer found that his brightly lighted color mixing toy, which allows children to create new colors using a variety of primary-colored shapes, was also useful for visually impaired youngsters and those with motor difficulties.

The toys, although created specifically for hearing-impaired children, can be used as teaching aids in regular classrooms, says Kemnitzer. He notes that his son Jon, now 6, "was weaned on my designs."

Kemnitzer's lighted whistle is already in the production stage, as is his collection of alphabet wall cards for hearing impaired youngsters, which shows both letters and finger spellings.

"In general, the principles I use in designing toys for the hearing impaired are applicable to other areas," Kemnitz explains. Working with a graduate student in the MSU Department of Art, his next goal is to design some alternatives to the traditional hook prosthesis for young amputees, to help them experience the sense of touching.

Rain, rain, go away please

Rain, rain, please go away.
I don't think I can make it through another day!
I am writing this on day seven of Easter Vacation. I don't foresee surviving day eight.
After seven days of confinement with my 3-year-old and my vacationing 5-year-old, I have come to realize why some housewives might be inclined to start hitting the bottle in the early afternoons. I really could use a drink right now.
Each day my beloved offspring have managed to top themselves with stunts I never dreamed they were capable of.

FIRST THERE WAS the cat's litter box. They were playing in it — running cars and trucks over the sandy hills as if it were their sandbox in the backyard.

Naturally I went slightly berserk. I mean the hygienic aspects alone are enough to make one shudder. I screamed, yelled, spanked, and threatened. My usual routine.

The next evening they were back in that same litter box burying a doll they call "Mean Baby." They were using plastic spades to dig a grave for this imaginary offender and somehow managed to spill the contents of the box over three quarters of the back bedroom floor. I threw Mean Baby away and confined the boys to their rooms for the remainder of the evening. All to no avail.

Yesterday I gave in to their pleas and rescued Mean Baby from the garbage. I had felt a twinge of regret at disposing of one of their favorite toys. They love to hang it by its neck from the gaslight out front or throw it down the basement steps when it's "bad." Sometimes I think these kids belong on "The Addams Family."

But Mean Baby had only been back in the family for a few hours before I found her wrapped in a soaked towel on the bathroom floor. It seems they had been dunking her in the toilet. The bathmat, carpeting, towel, and Mean Baby were all drenched with toilet water.

Nancy Walls Smith

For that indiscretion, they were prohibited from watching "Charlie Brown" on television and Mean Baby was again banished to the garbage — this time forever. As for me, I started to develop a definite tic over my right eye.

TODAY I LET the boys invite friends over, thinking that perhaps a bit of diversion with other children to play with would keep them in line. Boy was I wrong on that one.

After spending less than an hour in the basement, they have managed to dismantle my husband's saw and carefully shred several huge blocks of styrofoam into millions of pieces which now cover every square inch of my husband's workroom. They know they're not even allowed to play in there. How could they imagine they would ever get away with making a snowstorm out of styrofoam without anyone noticing?

I'm stumped. I'm baffled. Where have I gone wrong?

I know it's spring, and no doubt their sap is running, but there's got to be an end to this reign of tiny terrorism, or I may have to start lacing my spiced tea with rum just to make it through till dinner time.

Let's all have a few moments of silent prayer for sunshine tomorrow.

Ramblings

By Caroline Price
Canton Observer Editor

What's in a number?

The most overused word around these days isn't even a word — it's a number.

"Ten" is the title of a movie as well as the rating of its main character. The title role was filled by a woman named Bo Derek. It has not been clarified whether the 10 rating was justified by her looks or her IQ.

Derek in real life is probably a relatively inoffensive person who just happens not to have to leave the house with a bag over her head.

But her one movie role has managed to spawn further neurosis in the hearts of females.

It's not enough to be a good provider, a good mother, a corporate whiz, a fantastic cook or whatever else women are doing. Now they have to (if one goes by the fashion mag credo) assign a number to themselves.

And, should the ghastly truth prevail and a woman finds herself to be only a six or, God forbid, a three, she can refer to said fashion magazines for advice on how to work her way up the scale. It is assumed that a one is beyond hope.

The problem with these magazines is that a woman who wants to inch her way toward 10-dom must take such drastic steps as (a) lose weight, (b) contemplate major cosmetic surgery, (c) put on makeup with a putty knife and/or (d) discover a fountain of youth.

We have compiled a far simpler approach to the 10 look.

For starters, find a has-been actor who likes to take nude pictures of his wives and marry him. Make sure the hubby is the type who wishes to totally take over your life and will decide when you may or may not eat a candy bar.

You must next invest a few hundred bucks in an intricate braided hairstyle so that people will believe you are truly sincere about the 10 look.

It is advisable to cultivate friends who live by a beach so that you can practice rising magnificently out of the surf.

Have a poster made of yourself in a wet T-shirt.

The whole idea is to go about informing the world that you consider yourself a 10. Others will probably entertain entirely different (and lower) ratings of you, but few would have the guts to actually say so.

Thus, those who find such things important can live in their own happy little world of self-delusion. There's a little joke going around lately that goes something like this: 10, 9, 8, 7, 6 — what's that mean?

Answer: Bo Derek getting older.
You see, anyone who really believes being a 10 is important usually winds up with zero.

800 calories is for the birds

Have you ever been to a vacation spot where before saying "hello," everyone asks, "How much weight did you lose?"

That was my recent experience at Harbor Island Spa in Miami Beach. I survived on 800 calories a day, exercised muscles I never knew came with the rest of my equipment and felt like the leader of the 4-H movement.

Never before have I worked so hard to lose so little — five pounds of ugly fat in the wrong places. Every morning at 9 a.m. I dashed into the dining room in my leotard to gobble an egg white farmer's cheese omelet (90 calories) and a pot of coffee to drown the taste.

From 9:30 to 10 a.m., I joined the ladies' dance exercise class, a chorus line for overweight, would-be Rockettes — a mecca for twinkling toes and wobbling hips.

After that, I did beginners' intermediate and advanced exercises, pedaled a stationary 10-speed bike, engaged in water calisthenics and Yoga, got steamed and creamed, took a massage and jogged 30 laps around the pool.

I had just enough time to eat my lunch of dry, broiled chicken half before swimming 37 lengths in the salt water pool. I was already exhausted in a world of pleasure, health and relaxation — a haven for the tense and a wondrous utopia of restored beauty and firmness to maidens of matronly proportions.

LIKE THE fabled Alice in Wonderland, I was told, I would be swept into a new dimension of well-being, physical fitness and slowness "quickly and effortlessly." I was also promised a 12 inch waistline which out-fables Alice, Snow White and Cinderella who each probably weigh 95 pounds.

While on my chicken diet, I was allowed half a broiled bird for lunch and dinner and a quarter broiled cackler for a late snack. You can't imagine my gourmet delight when I was allowed to add three ounces of cottage cheese, salad with vinaigrette dressing, five calories a tablespoon, and coconut mousse prepared with diet pudding, 50 calories.

I hardly had strength to enjoy the evening entertainments of dancing, bingo, floor shows, movies, lectures and other fun and games.

But I really enjoyed every minute of it, except for the birds I devoured three times a day. Some women at the spa wouldn't admit they were gaining weight. But if they wore something red and blue, the mailman would stick letters in their mouths.

Successful dieters, I'm told, don't spend time counting calories. At the spa, you're too busy getting your cardiovascular system pumping with all that exercise. Athletes don't stop smoking and start training, a doctor said. They start training and find they've stopped smoking.

I'LL EAT chicken till it peaks out of my ears, but I won't stop smoking. After all, coughing is the only exercise I get outside of the spa. And nicotine is supposed to dull your taste buds and your appetite for hot fudge sundaes and other goodies. But how come that doesn't work with chicken?

For someone who seldom exercises, I didn't do too badly. I once took golf lessons and the instructor shook his head and quit the profession. When I bowled a perfect 300 in five games, everyone on the team suggested I take up tennis. I did and got six blisters and a tennis elbow after the first three strokes.

When I had to pass a floating test in school, my best friend held me up in the water. I tried ice skating but my ankles collapsed and my legs were repealed.

Fortunately, I developed a pinched nerve in my back so I have a perfect excuse for being a klutz. Did you ever feel like the whole world was a pair of P.F. Flyers and you were a pair of Red Cross ox-fords?

Are jobless people criminals?

Police think so

Some suburban police departments are committing mass libel against a large group of people in interpreting social factors on why the crime rate goes up.

The cops' comment on why, at times, there seem to be more break-ins, burglaries, stolen cars and the like.

Police explain the crime increase with a general remark such as, "It's because of the economy," or "it's because of high unemployment in the auto plants."

Rubbish!
If I were a laid-off Chrysler auto engineer, Ford body designer, or GM computer programmer, I'd protest.

These police give the impression that anyone out of a job (does that include laid-off police officers in Detroit?) are somewhat responsible for the rising crime rate.

But the police should realize that there have been a lot of recessions and economic good times, and sometimes the rise and fall of crime are only coincidental to the level of crime.

FOR EXAMPLE, one police chief told me years ago that there was relatively little crime, on a population basis, during the Great Depression.

Many suburban police departments reported large drops in the crime rate during the 1974-75 recession.

To attribute a boost in criminal activity to the rising level of auto layoffs is not only inaccurate, but it's also unfair to a large group of people.

I have known a lot of people temporarily out of work — black and white.

There were either neighbors or former co-workers.

But I have yet to know of any of them knocking off a party store, bar or bank to get money to feed their families.

THE POLICE departments should realize that there will stolen cars, bank robberies and store holdups in all kinds of economic climates.

Local kids are known to steal cars or auto parts even when both parents are working and there is no economic reason for the action.

The reason some persons break the law goes beyond the latest unemployment figures.

There are thousands of people out of work who never entertained the thought of stealing money or property.

I think the police departments should either apologize or keep their mouths shut about something on which they are not authorities,

Why Massachusetts?

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

When you toss a stone in to the water there is no telling just how far the ripple will go.

Likewise, when one speaks a kind word there is no telling what good it will do.

This fact came to mind when the Massachusetts delegation to the Republican National Convention in Detroit in July selected Plymouth as its headquarters during the big political show.

Why Plymouth?

That was a common question as soon as the New Englanders made known their choice.

The answer is a simple one.
Over the years there has been a general build-up of friendship between the city of Plymouth and the city of Plymouth in England.

And before that, the delegation from Michigan visited its sister city in Massachusetts for a major celebration and its showing left an indelible impression on the New Englanders.

IT IS IRONICAL that the Massachusetts delegation made its decision on the 10th anniversary of the Michigan delegation's visit to England to help its sister city celebrate the 350th anniversary of the sailing of the Mayflower.

That was the trip that forever cemented friendly relations with the cities of Plymouth. It was during that visit that the American flag was atop every flagpole in city. And the custom that was started then has been repeated each year.

It may seem strange but the American flag is flown on the government buildings in Plymouth, England, each July 4th when we celebrate our victory over the British in the Revolutionary War and the Lord Mayor of that city across the ocean sends his greetings over here.

And to further cement the friendship, the late Lord Mayor of Plymouth, England, Frank Chapman, presented the city with the bit of rock that now is on display between the city hall and the Dunning-Hough Library.

More than that, the State of Michigan has designated that bit of ground as an official historical marker and the friendship between the Plymouths is mentioned in all state historical papers.

Along with all of these things, our city of Plymouth never has lost its colonial touch. Kellogg Park has served as the "green" that is part of every community across the Atlantic. The shops have followed the colonial pattern to a great extent. And much of the old architecture has been spared.

This friendship is called to our attention each July 4th when the British Counsel pays an official visit to Plymouth to bring a message from the "home" city and to see again the manner in which the friendship has been cemented in that stone and the memorial trees in front of it.

So it wasn't too surprising when the Massachusetts group coming to Detroit for the Republican convention chose Plymouth for its headquarters.

In making the decision, the chairman of the New England group let it be known that the choice was made because of what they saw and the friendship that has been built up through the years.

The choice now is living proof that kind words can go a long way — even between cities.

He'll survive Olympic boycott

It often happens that a reporter will write a story or column he later feels uncomfortable about. My turn to stew is at hand.

In January, I said the United States — and the rest of the world — should boycott the Moscow Olympics because of the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan.

It was a direct attack on the Kremlin, and probably a haughty piece of journalism, as only weeks before I had been looking into the possibility of going to Moscow for the Games.

But I — and probably many others — had endured a gutfull of Russia's arrogance and indifference to world opinion, whether rightfully or otherwise.

THE REDS, I felt, were long overdue for a kick in the bleep, and jeopardizing the Games seemed a method of retaliation for their actions.

Now the United States Olympic Committee has voted to honor President Carter's boycott plea. Many Western allies have indicated they will join the American boycott. Others say they might. The Games are certainly in trouble.

I should be happy, right?

Funny, I'm not reacting that way.
I've been snapping at people all week, and cursing when I read about American and foreign athletes recording Olympic-standard performances.

I almost punted a shoe through the TV when a local station last week canceled an Olympic program for reasons unknown.

But it was my wife who nearly sent me over the edge after she'd learned of the president's vote of confidence.

Mike Brudenell

"You should be pleased now," she remarked. "I bet if the Games do go on as scheduled, no American newspaper or radio station will even cover the events."

I was already in great pain!
Okay, I'll spill the beans: I'm a sports nut. I consider the Olympics a hallowed institution and its desecration — by anyone — unholy. The athletes understand. They feel the same outrage.

NOW SOME sort of bastard Olympics will probably be held in Moscow this summer, and lots of countries will attend. World records will be broken, and reputations made.

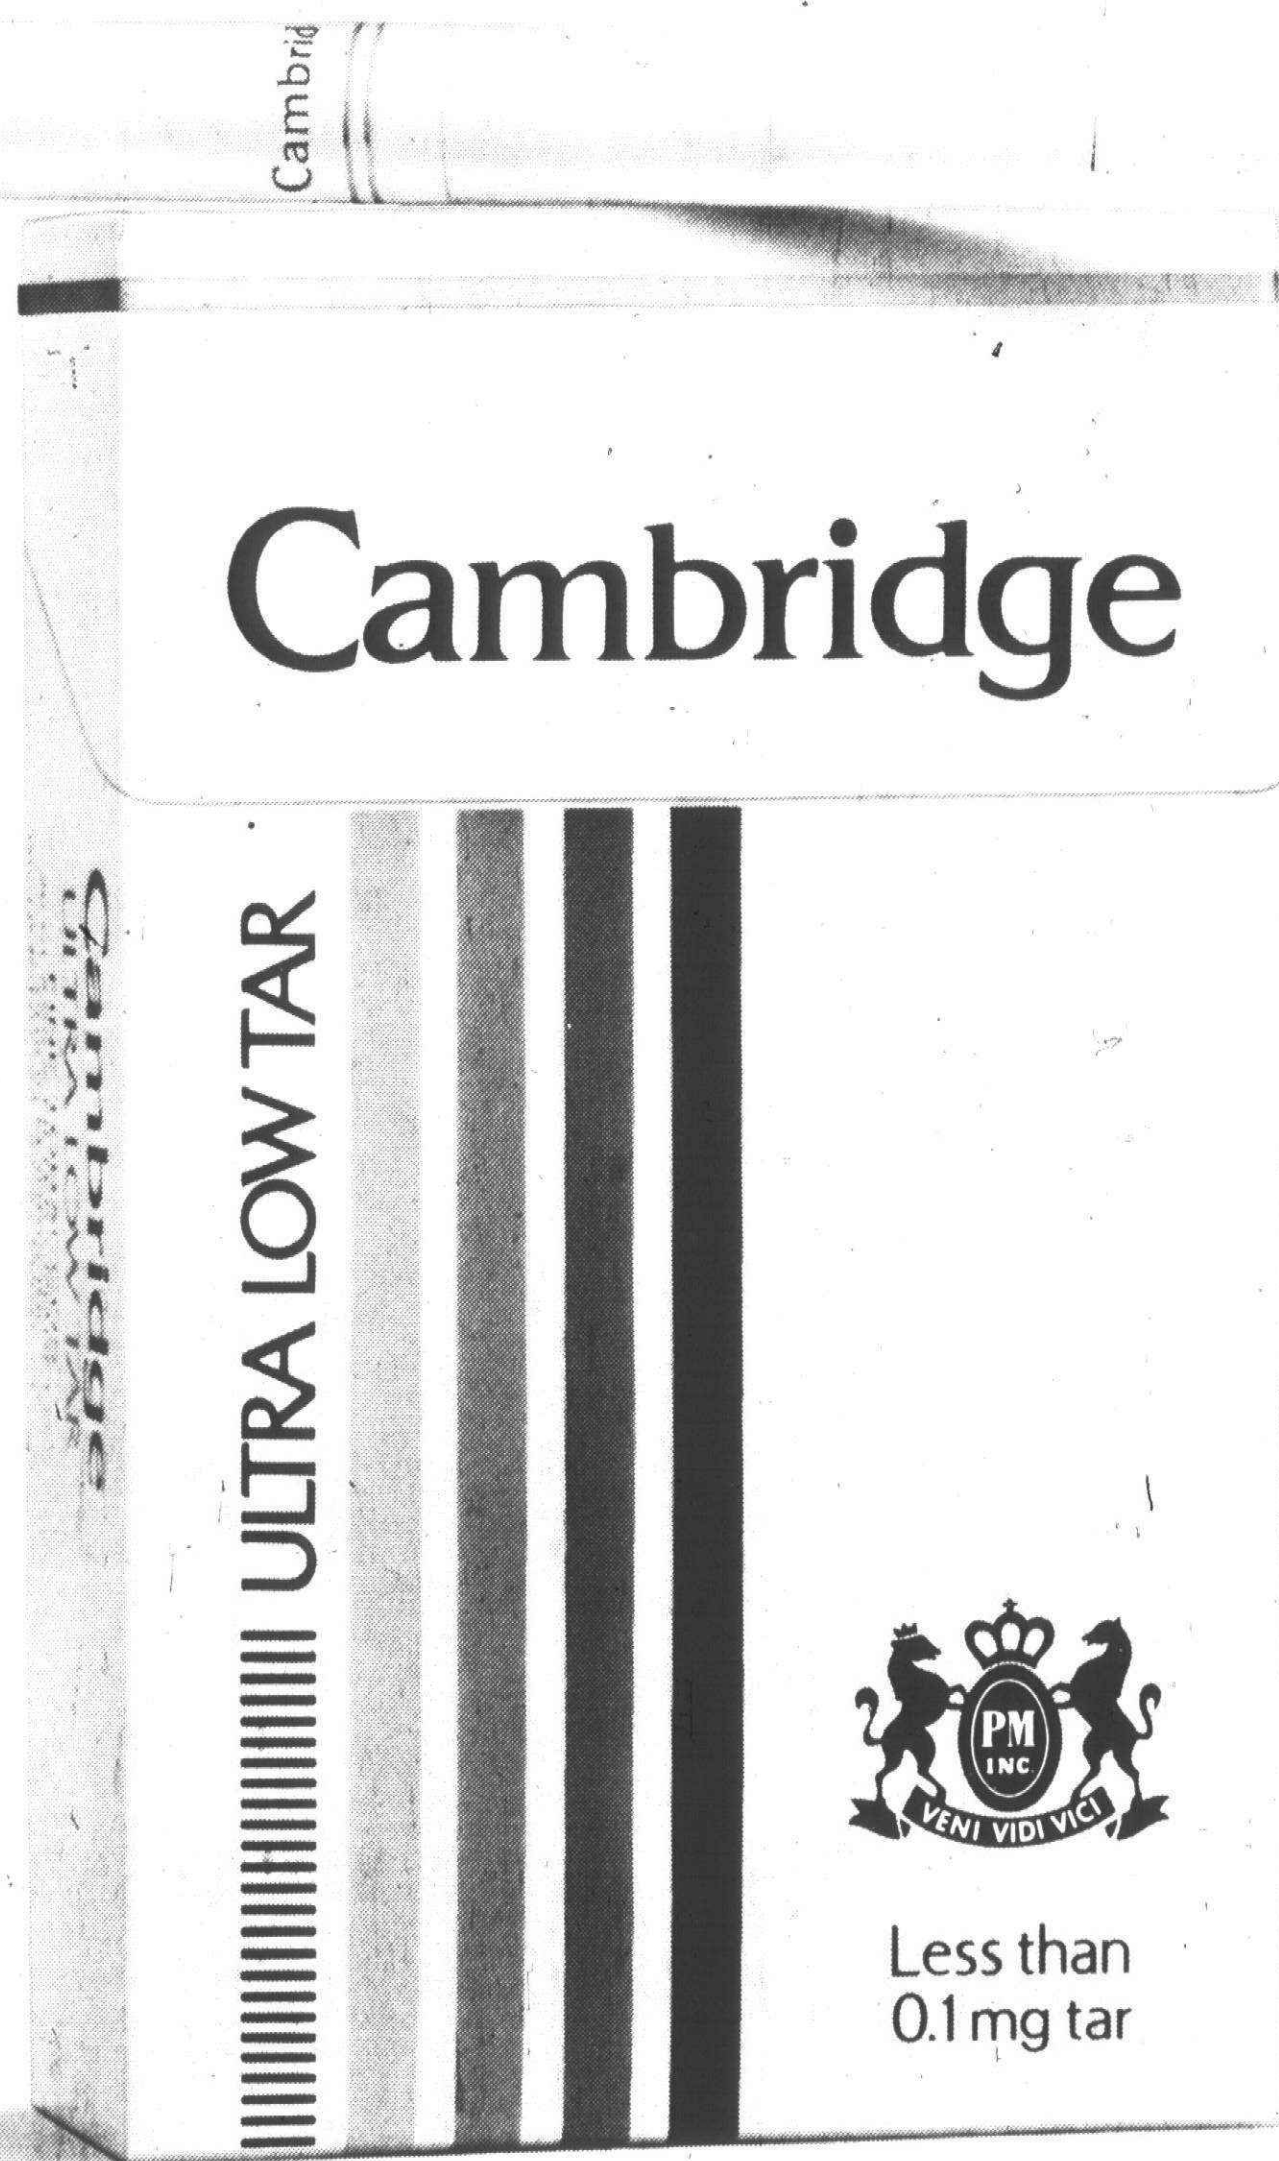

I'm certain to sulk my way through July and August and watch the Tigers lose baseball games. I don't expect to win popularity awards either at home or at work.

Yes, I was one of those who backed an Olympic boycott, and I wish now there was some other way of handling things.

But, you know, I'll probably survive the disappointment.

Why kids labor to read

By W.W. EDGAR

One of the main complaints about the school systems across the land in the past few years is based on the charge that the students are not being taught to read.

There was a time when a child's education was based on the three R's — reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. But those days are gone now and the question arises, "How come?" From time to time the educators have offered any number of reasons, yet it is puzzling that some solution hasn't been found to the problem.

When asked what has caused the present condition, Bill Brown, principal of Plymouth Salem High School, didn't hesitate to answer "laziness."

"Much of the fault lies with the student because he or she spends too much time in front of the television. Looking at the screen the students can see things as they are. They don't have to paint mental pictures through reading."

While confiding that the schools are doing all they can at the moment, Brown placed a lot of the blame on the parents. In the days before TV a mother or a father would take a child and give him the benefit of his help in teaching reading, but that old home style now, too, is fading away.

Another reason, according to Brown, is the lack of the books the young students used to read.

"When we were kids," he said, "we had authors like Horatio Alger. They wrote material that would inspire students to try to duplicate what the characters in the book accomplished."

"Who can forget such books as 'Tom, the Boot-back' or some of the other heroes? I know, in my case, I'd read an Alger book and anxiously await the next one off the press. We don't have those things any more."

In some cases complaints have been made that the school systems are wrong in allowing students who can't read to graduate.

Here again the schools have had reasonable answers.

Some time ago Tim Dwyer, superintendent of the Wayne-Westland District, was taken to task in public because one of the students who couldn't read was allowed to graduate.

Asked to explain, Dwyer answered:

"Each of us has a level above which we cannot go. You have it. I have it. Everybody has it. Well, this boy has reached his level in reading. He never will go any higher."

Krolicki selected

Kevin R. Krolicki, a student at Plymouth Salem High, has been selected to participate in this year's Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, Michigan Leadership Seminar competition.

Krolicki will participate in the competition as an ambassador from Canton. He is being sponsored by Michigan Businesses. The local competition was open to all high school sophomores. The criteria for selection included leadership ability, cooperation with fellow human beings, sensitivity to the needs of others, ability to relate to new pursuits and acquaintances, and desire to learn and share knowledge and experience with others.

Kevin will attend the Michigan Youth Leadership Seminar April 18-20 at Marygrove College, Detroit, with outstanding sophomores from throughout the state. The seminar at Marygrove is being hosted by the Dearborn Heights Jaycees.

The International Leadership Seminar will be at UCLA campus in Los Angeles July 5-12.

Salem netters snap Spartan string at 57

It's all over. Livonia Stevenson's boys' tennis streak was stopped at 57 Thursday afternoon when Plymouth Salem pulled out a dramatic upset 4-3 triumph. Salem's dual-meet win halted the longest tennis streak in the state. "That's just super," said Salem coach Tom Williams, who was informed a day later about the mark. "I was really pleased. Everybody did a nice job." With the match tied at 3, only the No. 1 doubles battle remained.

Salem's Blake Lundberg and Craig Baker held on to beat Joe Zebrank and Greg Cooper of Stevenson, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. "Craig and Blake came back tremendously," Williams said. "They really served and volleyed well in the third set." It was the duo's fifth straight win this year without a loss. Junior Scott Crespo and sophomore Dave Goodsir came through with singles wins at the No. 2 and 4 spots respectively. Crespo rallied to beat Larry Schott of Stevenson, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. Goodsir captured his second straight match with a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Jeff Doud. SALEM PICKED up its other point when Bob Jarvis and Doug Baker downed Dave Melek and Ed Kleev at No. 2 doubles, 6-2, 6-3. At No. 1 singles, Glenn Gwarda of Stevenson beat Salem's Dick Cook, 6-3, 6-1. Jeff Howell of Salem lost a No. 3 singles to Tim Ninomiya, 6-0, 6-1. At No. 3 doubles, Ron Wagner and Bill Price topped Jack Thomas and Paul Horton of the Rocks, 6-2, 6-2. Salem upped its record to 4-1 overall and 3-1 in the Suburban Eight League with a 7-0 victory Friday over Allen Park. Cook notched his first win of the year with a three-set triumph. Crespo, Howell and Goodsir all won their singles matches. Lundberg and Baker upped their mark to 6-0 in doubles. Jarvis and Baker also won as did Jack Thomas and freshman John Wimmer at No. 3 doubles.

CANTON-SALEM JV

Plymouth Canton, coached by Carol Michaels, won most of its junior varsity matches Thursday against rival Salem. Here are the results from that match: No. 1 singles, Tom Pasley (PC) d. Maurice Stebila (PS), 6-0, 6-3; No. 2 singles, Mark Sawyer (PC) d. Bob Stratton (PS), 6-2, 6-4; No. 3 singles, Drew Hoseny (PC) d. Russ Shaffer, (PS) 6-1, 5-7, 6-4; No. 4 singles, John Hurley (PC) d. Craig Flower (PS), 7-6, 3-6, 5-3 (incomplete); No. 1 doubles, Jim Steffen and Kevin Krumbach (PC) d. Kurt Schubert and Sean Rafferty (PS), 6-4, 6-3; No. 2 doubles, Ted Masteller and Charlie Ploughman (PS) d. Robert Ureangoray and Brian Flynn (PC), 6-0, 6-3; No. 3 doubles, Enver Hally and Steve Samborne (PS), 7-6, 6-1; exhibition, Rob Foley and Raj Patel (PS) d. Dave Schendel and Tim Croder (PC), 6-3; exhibition, Rob Foley and Raj Patel d. Dave Switen and Harshad Patel (PC), 6-1.

Chief track squad trips Northville in league dual

By SCOTT ADLER

Two seniors led the Plymouth Canton boys' track team to its first victory of the season Thursday.

Dan McGlinn and John Tarr combined to win four individual events and anchor the 880-yard relay in the 72-60 win over Western Six League rival Northville.

McGlinn ran for firsts in the 330-yard low hurdles (41.4) and the 120-yard high hurdles (16.5). Tarr finished first in the 100-yard dash (11.1) and 220-yard dash (24.5). McGlinn, Tarr, Mike Knierim and Randy Lee finished first in the 880-yard dash.

"It was a good meet," said Canton coach Mike Spitz. "The times were a little slow, but that was because of the rain."

The Chiefs held their ground in the field events as Ted Toll captured first place in the discus (123-5) and third place in the shot-put (35-10).

Other first place finishers in the field events were Keith Vitoratis (shot put, 40-10) and Lee in the pole vault (10-6).

Vitoratis also took third place in the discus (115-1).

Dan Malin was second in the high jump tied with freshman Ron Reinas at 5-6. Mark Bennett also placed third in the pole vault (9-6).

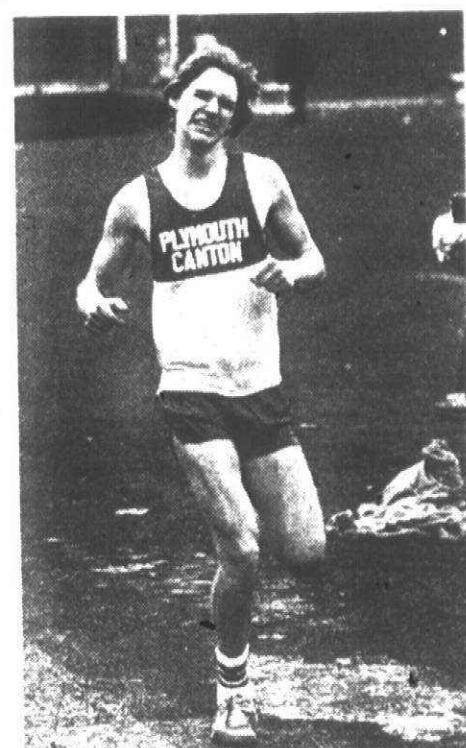

OTHER FIRSTS for the Chiefs included the 440-yard relay team of Lee, Frank Asis, Ken Jayroe and Knierim and Jack Pacente, winner of the two-mile run.

Jayroe (100-yard dash), Inloes (880-yard run) and Malin (330-yard low hurdles) all finished second for Canton. Steve West finished third in the 880-yard run, and Scott Hand was third in the one-mile run.

"We had a couple guys out with injuries," said Spitz, "but I was pleased, and it was a good victory."

"Pacente had a good effort in the two mile, and Toll was very good coming off an ankle injury. Barron Smith did a real good job for us even though he didn't place."

Canton is now 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the league.

Lipinski's pitching propels Canton

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Canton baseball coach Fred Crissey is getting a lot of mileage these days out of senior Al Lipinski.

Normally a shortstop until this spring, Lipinski has become the Chiefs' most dependable pitcher.

He hurled Canton to a 3-1 Western Six League win Wednesday afternoon at home against defending champs Livonia Churchill.

The Canton righthander allowed four hits while striking out six. He walked one Churchill batter.

"I've never had a senior who has done so much for us," praised Crissey, whose team upped its overall mark to 3-4. "I asked Al to pitch against the league champs. He's just been great."

Lipinski, 2-0 overall, had his string of scoreless innings snapped at 13 in the fourth when second baseman Bill Gavlin, a sophomore, connected for a solo homer over the centerfield fence to give Churchill a 1-0 lead.

Meanwhile, Churchill lefty Gene Medrea had little problem with the Chief lineup over the first four innings. He gave up just two singles.

But Canton won it in the fifth when junior third baseman Jeff Stemberger hit a towering three-run homer over the right field fence with two out.

Stemberger's HR deflates Churchill

STEVE SCHUMACHER scored on Stemberger's homer after he doubled with two out. Centerfielder Keith Stone followed with a walk, setting up Stemberger's dramatic hit.

In the top of the seventh, Churchill mounted a final charge. Gavin, who went two for three on the day, opened the inning by reaching first safely on an infield error. Teammate Barry Mai followed with a walk.

Lipinski then got tough. Greg Hovermale flew out and Bill Keller fanned.

Lead-off man Tom Igou then sent a line shot single to center, but Gavin was called out at the plate trying to score to end the game.

Canton catcher Frank McMurray came up the line to take Stone's throw from center. He collided with Gavin on the play and momentarily lost the ball. The Chief catcher alertly picked it up and tagged the runner, who failed to touch home as ruled by the umpire.

The play gave Canton a 2-0 league mark.

"I'll take it," said Crissey. "The throw should have gone to third base. We didn't play with a lot of intensity today."

Churchill coach Herb Osterland was disappointed in the loss.

"It's tough to battle back and lose like that," he said. "I thought we played well. We were on the bases. Gene (Medrea) did a nice job on the mound. He just got the pitch up against Stemberger."

CHURCHILL DROPPED to 0-2 in the league.

"To win the league you have to beat Canton," said the first-year coach. "They have a lot of enthusiasm and have a good club all the way around."

"We're in a rebuilding year." Canton will meet Farmington Harrison at 4 p.m. Monday in a league game on the road.

Salem thinclads nip Bentley crew

Plymouth Salem won the mile relay with a time of 3:41.1 and held on to defeat Livonia Bentley in a boys' track meet Thursday, 71-61.

"It was an exciting meet," said Salem coach Gary Balconi. "It came down to the mile relay. We held on well."

Bob Pittaway, who won the discus with a toss of 142-5, anchored the final event for the Rocks. He was joined by Mike McBride, Mike Sharp and Steve Schafer.

Salem is now 4-0 overall in dual meets and 2-0 in the Suburban Eight League.

The Rocks dominated the field events once again.

Mark Tanski and John Froozan helped Salem sweep the discus by placing second and third respectively. Froozan won the shot put with a put of 47-9. Tanski took third.

In the pole vault, Mike Perkowski won it in cold, windy conditions with a leap of 11-6. Len Czupski finished third.

Rob Neu, a senior, and sophomore Scott Fuller tied in the high jump. Neu gained first on fewer misses at 5-8.

Neu also grabbed first for Salem in the long jump (18-5). Teammate

Dave Argonis was third (17-10).

"Our field events people came through," said Balconi.

The Rocks had a rough day in the distance events. Balconi's runners were shut out in the 880, mile and two mile races.

LEIGH LANGKABEL of Salem came through, though, to win the 220- and 440-yard sprints. His time in the 440 was 54.0. McBride was right behind in second (56.7). Langkabel's clocking in the 220 was 24.0.

Senior Phil Anderson ran a strong race in winning the 120-yard high hurdles (16.2). Schafer was second (17.2).

Senior tri-captain Greg Lipka placed second in the 100-yard dash (10.7).

The foursome of Tom Kelliher, Brian Azelborn, Jim Spooner and Argonis combined to capture the 880-yard relay with a time of 1:38.4.

Bentley won the 440-yard relay.

"They (Bentley) are a strong, young team," said the Salem coach.

"They have a nice distance team." Salem was hurt by injuries to Dave Skone (pole vault), Paul Hess (distance) and Rob Hanschu (throwing events).

Rock girls down Bentley

Kurtz overjoyed with track start

Scott Kurtz couldn't be more happy or proud.

His team has accomplished more already this year than in his three previous seasons of coaching the Plymouth Salem girls' track team.

The Rocks upped their dual meet mark to 3-0 Friday afternoon with a 71-52 Suburban Eight League win over Livonia Bentley.

"We've reached a new plateau," said the Salem coach. "If I were to pick a best athlete, it would be the whole team."

"This is just a terrific win for us. It's the best I've had in four years. The girls did a heck of a job. We beat a good team."

Salem captured 10 of 14 first place spots.

Senior Ann Meixner was again impressive. She posted a career best of 16.0 in the 110-yard low hurdles. She equaled her top time of a year ago in winning the 220-yard lows (31.5).

Meixner was also a member of the winning 880-yard relay squad that posted a time of 1:55.3. Other members included Carol Lindsay, Cindy McSurely and Jeanine Gray.

Carin Ford of Salem took both the shot put (32-feet-11-inches) and the discus (78-10½). Teammate Jennifer Telek, competing for the first time, took third in the discus (70-½).

Lewandowski bats Rocks to win

Plymouth Salem upped its record to 3-0 in the Suburban Eight League with an 11-9 baseball triumph over Allen Park Friday on the road.

Jim Jimmerson, the second of three pitchers, notched the victory. He got relief help from senior Paul Stevenson, who picked up the save.

The Rocks jumped out to a 6-0 lead after three innings. Allen Park, however, battled back, scoring seven runs in the fourth to take a 7-6 advantage.

Salem got five runs back in the fifth inning and held off the Jaguars in the final frame.

Outfielder Brian Lewandowski and third baseman Mike Woodard each had three hits for the winners. Greg Etienne added two hits.

"Both our guys (Jimmerson and Stevenson) were able to get the ball over the plate," said Salem coach Brian Gilles. "Stevenson did a nice job finishing up."

Pat McNamara started for the Rocks and went 3½ innings.

The victory lifts Salem's overall mark to 4-2-1.

The Rocks and Northville battled to a 4-4 tie Thursday afternoon. The game was called because of foul weather at the end of six innings.

Salem jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Lewandowski led off with a single and Mitch Wilcox reached first on an infield error.

JOHN HETKOWSKI followed with a bounding ball to first which was mis-played into two runs.

In the second inning, Etienne singled, stole second and came home on Lewandowski's single.

Northville cut the lead to 3-1 in the third and tied the game in the fifth on a Salem infield error.

Salem scored a run in the fourth when Etienne doubled home Lewan-

SALEM SWEPT the first three places in the high jump — Gray won it at 4-10 on fewer misses over teammates Diane Perpich and McSurely.

Perpich came back to take the long jump (14-1½). Linda Lybarger, a sophomore, gained third (13-11).

Lybarger won a close race and posted her best clocking of the year in the 440-yard dash (1:03.4). Grissom managed to grab third (1:06.9).

Lybarger was nosed out for first place in the 220-yard dash (27.9), easily beating her best time.

"She ran an excellent race," said Kurtz.

Distance runner Ruth Sample was clocked in 5:46.0 in the mile run, gaining first place. Salem teammate Beth Hoerner, who for the first time this year, finished second with a time of 5:50.0.

In the two mile, Hoerner place first (12:34.7) with teammate Pam Hodge capturing third with a personal best of 13:56.

Despite a fourth place finish, Marcie Granger of Salem ran her fastest 880 of the year (2:47.0).

In the 100-yard dash, Liz Carlson finished third (13.1) with April McCall gaining fourth (13.4).

Meixner, Grissom, Lindsay and Lybarger closed out the meet with a first-place finish in the mile relay (4:26.2).

steal second. Hsalo Peng then sent a screaming line drive to left field which was speared by Northville's Bob Boshoven to end the game.

"We hit the ball pretty good today," said Gilles.

Ken MacDonald started on the mound for Salem. He was relieved by Paul Stevenson.

Call in baseball results

Area prep baseball coaches are urged to call in top hitting and pitching performances to Livonia Stevenson coach Larry Ruzsas from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Monday, beginning April 28 at 422-3070 (ext. 0).

Prep statistical leaders will appear each Thursday in the Observer sports sections.

The top 15 batters will be listed each week according to average, at-bats and hits. Also, the top five home run and RBI leaders will be listed.

The top 10 pitchers will be ranked according to earned run average, innings pitched and won-lost record.

Coaches from these schools are encouraged to phone in statistics: Bentley, Bishop Borgess, Canton, Catholic Central, Churchill, Clarenceville, Franklin, Garden City East, Garden City West, John Glenn, Redford Union, Salem, Stevenson, Temple Christian and Thurston.

Mangan Relays Tuesday

Boys' and girls' track teams from Plymouth Canton and Salem will compete against each other beginning at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the third annual Mangan Relays at Centennial Educational Park.

Admission is 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults.

The field events are slated to start at 6 p.m. The running events will begin at 7 p.m.

Aggressive base running does it

Salem explodes against Sub 8 opponent, 13-4

By BRAD EMONS

Solid defense and aggressive base running enabled Plymouth Salem to defeat Allen Park in a Suburban Eight League girls' softball game Friday afternoon, 13-4.

Salem is now 2-1 overall.

The Rocks started out slowly against the Jaguars. Allen Park grabbed a 3-0 lead in the third inning thanks to an infield error and a two-run single by Nikki Koukoudian.

Salem, however, came back in the bottom half of the inning with three runs of its own.

Pitcher Jill Goodrich and catcher Nan Horwood drew walks. Laura Arnold then hit into a fielder's choice. Third baseman Kathy Gardner then hit a shot to second base that turned into an error, scoring Goodrich. Patty Weidman tied it up with a two-run single.

Goodrich held Allen Park scoreless in the fourth.

The Rocks took the lead for good in the fourth. They were helped by four Jaguar errors.

Salem looked sharp defensively most of the game, especially in the fifth when Gardner, Stacy Nicolin and Weidman teamed up for a double play.

"That was real nice," said Salem coach Livi Way. "I thought our defense held together well."

IN THE BOTTOM of the fifth, Salem sent 12 batters to the plate in a seven-run inning. Weidman, who had three hits on the day, slapped home two runs.

The Rocks were helped again by three Jaguar errors.

The Rocks also took advantage of their speed led by center fielder Sue McDowell and Horwood.

"We've been working on trying to take the extra base," said Way. "If Nan gets on, she'll run wild. We're running the bases much, much better."

Goodrich went all the way to pick up her second victory of the season. She allowed nine hits and struck out four.

"Jill has the ability to pitch," said the Salem coach. "She did not throw hard early, but got stronger in the later innings. She's not going to overpower anybody."

Shortstop Denise Zonka also contributed with three hits in the Salem 11-hit attack.

It was a complete turnaround for the Rocks, who suffered an 11-1 defeat Tuesday against Livonia Bentley.

"We were ready to play today," added Way. "Once we got going, we were sharp."

Salem will meet Redford Thurston at 4 p.m. Monday on the road.

Chief track girls saddle Mustangs

Plymouth Canton won its first girls' track dual of the season Thursday in the rain with a 64-59 Western Six League win over Northville.

The Chiefs are now 1-2 overall.

Canton clinched the meet in the two-mile run when Michelle Perrot and Colleen Crissey came across the finish line together in first place with a time of 13:36.8.

Once again, Canton racked up a number of points in the field events.

Liz Gorecki won both the shot put (30-feet-1-inch) and discus (95-5 1/2).

Teammates Diane Durocher (88-1/2) and Jill

Pedersen (71-4) took second and third respectively in the discus. Behind Gorecki in the shot put were teammates Lisa Bundarin (29-2) and Durocher (26-5).

Senior Brenda Bigelow, who injured her neck four years ago in a meet against Northville, came back Thursday to win the high jump with a leap of 4-8.

Other Canton runners taking first places included Mary Fidler, 110-yard hurdles, 18.8; and Perrot, mile run, 6:04.5.

Chief second-place finishers were LeAnne Wheeler, 100-yard dash, 13.2; Geri Shufeldt, mile, 6:14.4 and 880-yard run, 2:49.4; Gorecki, 220, 29.5; Kathy Brophy, 440-yard run, 1:10.2.

GAINING THIRD place spots for the Chiefs were Charlotte Thomas, 110 hurdles, 20.4; Perrot, 440, 1:10.6; Fidler, 220 hurdles, 37.7; Wheeler, 220, 29.9.

"The highlights again were the shot put and discus and our distance runners," said Canton coach Bob Richardson, who also notched his first win.

Canton netters win

Plymouth Cantori romped to an easy 7-0 Western Six League boys' tennis victory Wednesday over Livonia Churchill.

The Chiefs raised their overall mark to 3-1 with the win.

At No. 1 singles, Canton's Bob Young evened his individual record to 2-2 with a 6-4, 6-0 win over Ma-Dean Nascinben.

Juniors Kreg Kinnel and Kevin Johnston of Canton won at No. 2 and 3 singles respectively. Kinnel stayed unbeaten with a 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Craig Bramble. Johnston downed Jamil Monsour, 6-2, 6-1.

At No. 4 singles, Bob Adams took care of Churchill's Pete Diamond, 6-2, 6-2.

Jeff Garrity and Curt Crocker were impressive in a win at No. 1 doubles over Tim Irons and Tom Wise of Churchill, 6-2, 6-2.

"They play well together and get along nicely," said Canton coach Jim Hayes. "They are definitely our No. 1 doubles team."

Canton, which has used 13 players already in varsity competition, is strong at the No. 2 and 3 doubles spots.

Steve Jones and Mark Roberts were sharp in a 6-0, 6-0 victory over John Gallagan and John Gothard at No. 2 doubles.

Grant Crago, another junior, and Tom Pasley defeated Don Yaske and Ed Brambs, 6-4, 6-1, at No. 3 doubles to complete a clean sweep of Churchill.

CANTON WILL meet Farmington Harrison at 4 p.m. Monday on the road.

Trespassing suspect shot in township

A man with a bullet wound in his foot walked away from a Plymouth Township home last Tuesday morning after a resident shot him, claiming he did so to protect himself.

No charges have been filed against the homeowner or the suspected trespasser who disappeared immediately after the incident.

However, Edward Urban, 30, was picked up by Plymouth police just after 12:30 a.m. when he walked up to the Burrough's Street home of Danny Jordan and asked for help.

The Plymouth rescue squad was dispatched and took Urban to Wayne County General Hospital where he was treated and released that morning.

Meanwhile, Wayne County Sheriff deputies, at the same time, were looking for Urban following a complaint from Maurice Patterson, 57, of Riverside Drive in the township.

Patterson told police he spotted Urban in his truck after he was alerted to noises in his garage. Fearing the theft of his truck, Patterson told police he picked up his Winchester rifle and walked out of the house.

After telling the suspected trespasser to stop, he fired twice, once into the air and once at the ground when the other man "charged at him," Patterson told police.

The suspect was gone by the time sheriff deputies arrived. Urban told sheriff's officers he had intended to "sleep" in Patterson's truck before he was detected.

He lists his residence as Port Huron. Sheriff deputies also report Patterson's truck was missing a battery and could not have been started anyway.

By JACK BOLOGNA

Early in my career I learned that a plan, no matter how comprehensive, nor reasonable, nor rational, was difficult to sell people who would become responsible for its execution, if they weren't involved in its design and development.

I recall vividly an early afternoon in the spring of 1959 when as a special agent of the Intelligence Division of IRS I was to lead a team of federal agents and local police in a series of raids on mob-controlled bookmaking establishments on the east side of Detroit.

FOR SECURITY purposes I had my motley crew meet me at Ball Diamond 8 at Chandler Park for pre-paid instructions.

At that point, no one but myself, my partner, my boss, and an assistant U.S. attorney and a federal district judge who had issued the search and arrest warrants, knew what was about to "go down."

Secrecy was an imperative because bookies can close down and move fast, and with all their political and police connections, they seem to know what's happening before a raiding party can be organized.

Some months earlier, we had made such a series of raids on bookies who had been "tipped" off that we were on our way, so the assistant U.S. attorney made it clear that "mum" had to be the word.

At any rate, I had devised a "marvelous" plan whereby each raiding team would simultaneously "hit" the front (or rear) door of their raid establishment at precisely the same moment, so other bookies in the network couldn't be advised by their about to be "busted" colleagues.

I explained all these reasons for high secrecy to the assemblage and further advised them that when we broke for our locations in about 15 minutes, no one was to make phone calls, stop at stores, bars, restaurants, gas stations, etc., but all were to proceed post haste to the area of their assigned raid locations and wait for the command to "hit."

Because written and reproduced raid instructions would have been another potential avenue for a leak or tipoff, I carried all the plans in my head and proceeded to give instructions on raid locations, bookie identities, neighborhood peculiarities, likely obstacles to gaining entry, etc. in oral fashion and by drawing in the sand around home plate.

(It must have been a strange sight to

Clerical workers at Plymouth City Hall last Wednesday wanted everyone to know what day it was. Wednesday (National Secretaries Day) was observed by these four women in the city manager's office in cryptic dress. Just in case you don't know shorthand, Carol Bumstead (left) and Dawn Najarian (center) wear shirts which say "I'm Your Type." Also stopping for a coffee break are Dana Szanti (far left) and Carolyn Dew (right). (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

the people driving down Chandler Park Drive, seeing 30 grown men standing around home plate watching someone draw in the sand with a twig.)

I HAD HARDLY got my first word of instruction out, when a grizzled veteran of the Detroit Police Department Vice Squad asked me how long I had been an agent. I said, "four years."

Then he asked how many raids I had coordinated before and I had to admit this was the first — "but I've been on at least a dozen previous raids," I added hastily.

Well, it went from bad to worse after that, my seniors pretending to not know where certain streets were, or the characteristics of neighborhoods they had spent years patrolling and surveilling.

All instructions had to be repeated at least three times — their span of attention was amazingly short. Finally, in desperation for what was beginning to look more and more like a colossal flop, the better part of valor suggested I seek their advice and counsel.

So I said in as much humility as I could muster, under all my anger, "Is there anyone with a better plan. I'm always open to suggestion."

The grizzled veteran who had started the whole thing said, "Can I go to the bathroom before we leave. I may not have time later on." I looked at him coldly and said, "Yes, you can go to the bathroom Charlie, and you can go to hell after that."

Well that caused Charlie and the rest of the crew to break up in laughter and frankly it got me to laughing hysterically. It also got me to overcome my fears of rejection and the challenge to my leadership and authority. So I repeated, "Does anyone have any ideas or plans which can help us knock these off?"

There was a strange silence and a lot of glance exchanges but no one said a word until Charlie said, "I guess we're with you. We just wanted to make sure you knew what you were doing and had thought everything out. Now let's get out of here and hit those..."

George C. Scott portrays John Russell, a composer-lecturer who becomes enmeshed in unraveling the mystery of "The Changeling."

the movies

Louise Snider

'The Changeling' easily outpaces other thrillers

With his leathery voice and craggy face, George C. Scott demands attention. His commanding presence endows every film in which he appears with an added measure of importance — not at all a bad quality for a film about the supernatural to possess.

"The Changeling" (R) is such a film, and it's a definite cut above others of its kind, thanks to Scott, Melvyn Douglas, some fine character actors and the thoughtful direction of Peter Medak.

Too often in supernatural thrillers, the director and script succumb to the temptation to pile up garish effects. The end result is often funnier than frightening (as in "The Amityville Horror").

To his credit, Medak resists these temptations as well as a host of overused devices from your standard catalog of scares. "The Changeling" doesn't even have one "dark and stormy night."

When familiar props and situations are used, they are presented in fresh and intelligent ways. The seance sequence, for example, is effective and dramatically successful because it maintains a careful balance between credibility and extended imagination.

THE STORY itself has a reverse twist. It centers about a house where mysterious things happen. However, this house isn't trying to drive people out but to communicate with them.

Scott is the harried occupant receiving the house's attentions. Following the death of his wife and child in an auto accident, he has left New York to take up a teaching position at a university in Seattle. Here he leases the house — an old Victorian mansion that has been vacant for 12 years.

The most inexplicable part of this story, assuming one suspends judgment about supernatural goings on, is why any rational, single person would want to rent what appears to be a 50-room mansion. But then, an ordinary house or apartment wouldn't set the mood for a gothic thriller.

A CRIME was committed in the house long ago, and the spirit or ghost of the child who died tries to reach out to Scott. He is specially receptive, not only because he lives there but because he has suffered through a recent bereavement.

He is a rugged protagonist seemingly able to cope with the bizarre happenings, but he is also a man who can't handle more emotional stress.

Helping him cope is Trish Van Devere as the agent who leased him the house. She becomes involved with him and his efforts to unravel the mystery of the child's death.

Melvyn Douglas appears briefly as an ex-senator of great wealth and power who may know the facts about the murder but is not inclined to reveal them.

Unfortunately, the end of the film does not match the quality of what preceded it. The disciplined structure falls apart in a rambling conclusion in which Scott is left to account for everything and set all wrongs right.

At the same time, there is a surprising change of mood from mystery to revenge. Until then, "The Changeling" is a teasing, atmospheric, well-done film.

Trish Van Devere plays Claire Norman, who rents an old Victorian mansion to Russell.

what's at the movies

NEW RELEASES

ALL THAT JAZZ (R). Tour de force by writer-director Bob Fosse. Roy Scheider plays hard-driving, fast-living choreographer (Fosse) in "behind the scenes" story of unusual imagination and energy.

BEING THERE (PG). Peter Sellers is a TV-educated economist in satire that pokes fun at our political and social conceits.

THE BLACK MARBLE (PG). Paula Prentiss and Robert Foxworth in offbeat, romantic comedy about two ill-matched L.A. cops.

BLACK STALLION (G). Story about a boy and a horse told in rich visual images. Terrific performance by Mickey Rooney as an ex-jockey who befriends the boy.

CHANGLING (R). George C. Scott in haunted house tries to unravel mystery of a child-murder that took place decades ago.

CHAPTER TWO (PG). Autobiographical Neil Simon story about a man starting over after death of his wife.

COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER (PG). Sissy Spacek is outstanding as Loretta Lynn in movie bio of country singer's grueling early years and troubled success.

DIE LAUGHING (PG). Energetic but pathetic attempt at comedy as police, Russians and a maniac chase cab driver-musician with valuable monkey.

ELECTRIC HORSEMAN (PG). Jane Fonda is a reporter and Robert Redford an ex-rodeo champion in satirical romance.

FFOLKES (PG). Adventure flick with Roger Moore heading up team of unusual underwater sabotage experts and problem of hijacked oil platform.

THE FOG (R). Horror film from John Carpenter, who directed "Halloween." Supernatural fog, associated with legend of mariners rising from their graves and seeking vengeance, creates havoc in coastal village.

'Housing industry driven to its knees,' says Bush

By TIM RICHARD

Realtors and house builders applauded George Bush's pledge to stimulate savings and investment to save their slumping industry.

Bush, the second-running Republican presidential contender, talked a popular brand of "supply side economics" in Livonia Friday at a rally of builders, real estate purveyors and mortgage bankers.

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, arranged the dialogue, which Bush called "unusual," between the industry and the presidential candidate. Students from Northville and Livonia Franklin high schools also attended.

"The housing industry has been driven to its knees," said Bush, seeking support in the May 20 Michigan presidential primary, "and the loser is the consumer."

THREE INDUSTRY representatives outlined their "crisis" prior to Bush's talk.

Charles Heidt, president of Document Processing Systems in Plymouth, said savings and loan institutions, generally the largest source of house mortgage loans, are losing deposits because "savers are protecting themselves from runaway inflation" by not saving. "The United States lags behind other industrial nations in its rate of saving."

Realtor Earl Keim said high interest rates are forcing buyers out of the market. Two years ago, a 30-year, $60,000 mortgage at 10 percent would cost the buyer a monthly payment of $526 and require an annual income of $32,500.

Today at 16 percent, the payment would have to be $807 and require an annual income of nearly $46,000, Keim's figures showed.

"Only 50 to 70 percent of those needing homes are able to buy them," he said.

Builder Henry S. Landau of Ann Arbor said housing starts have declined from an annual rate of 2.1 million in 1978 to 800,000 today, and 1.6 million jobs have been lost. "That's equivalent to letting four or five Chrysler Corporations go bankrupt," said Landau. His plea to Bush: "Some incentives."

PRIVATE INDUSTRY, not government, should provide housing, said Bush, who formed two oil companies in the Texas oil industry before his election to Congress in 1966.

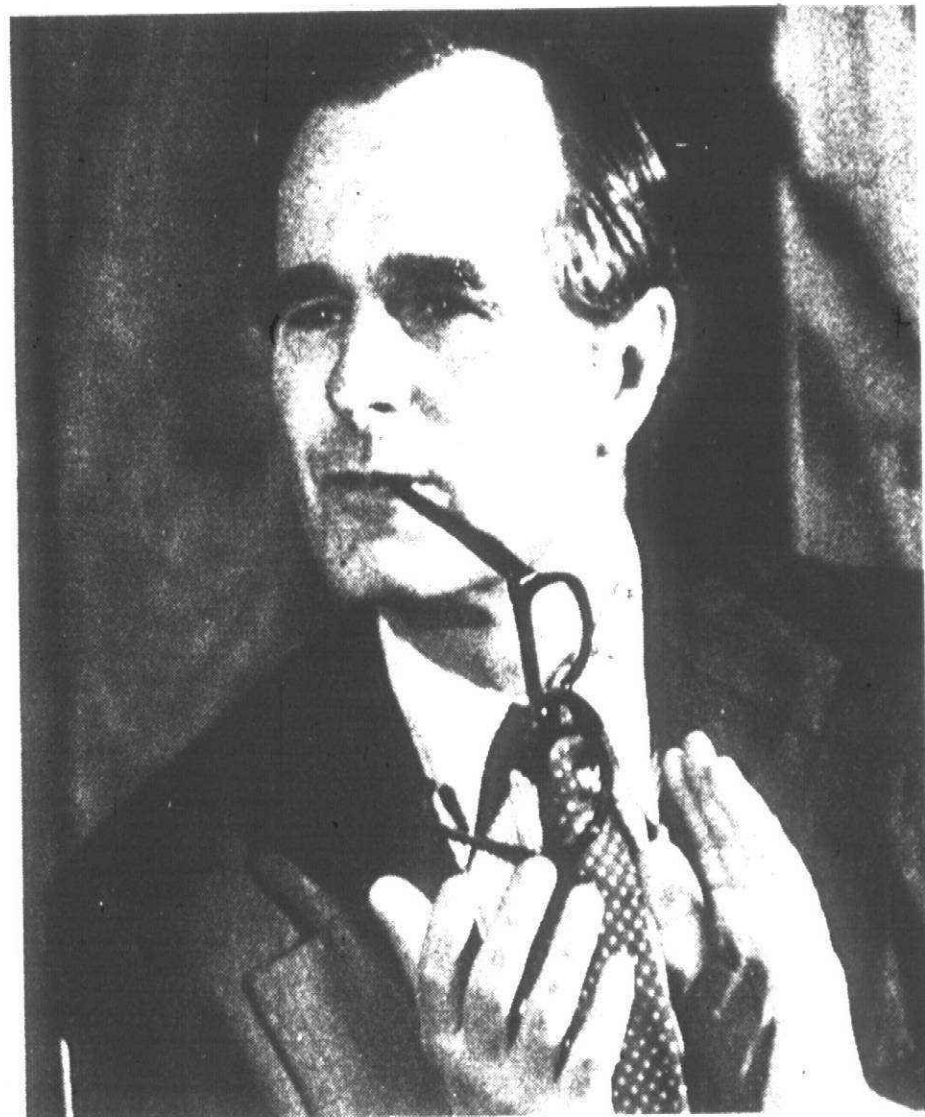

"I lived in a Communist country," said the former envoy to China, "and saw what it was like to have everything assigned by the government."

Bush said the Carter Administration "has a lot of country." But Bush put himself on the side of economic growth and listed ways government could stimulate production:

- Federal help "to the poor to revitalize existing housing."
- "Expansion of state-administered and federally funded mortgage subsidies for the middle class."
- Tax breaks for interest earned on savings.
- Tax breaks to businesses which provide job opportunities.

According to Realtor Earl Keim, left, high interest rates are forcing buyers out of the market. Two years ago, a 30-year, $60,000 mortgage at 10 percent would cost the buyer a monthly payment of $526 and require an annual income of $32,500. Today at 16 percent, the payment would have to be $807 and require an annual income of nearly $46,000, Keim's figures showed. Candidate Bush, right, would seem to agree. (Photos by Bill Bresler)

• Stimulation of investment with a $20 billion tax cut.

• A balanced budget achieved by controlled spending.

"YOU ARE NOT going to legislate interest rates down," he said. "If the rate of interest is less than inflation, you're going to have inflation."

"When Jimmy Carter was running for president, he vilified Ford by making up a 'misery index' — the rate of unemployment plus the rate of inflation, and so on. Carter got into office and quadrupled inflation. Today the economic misery index is at its worst since the depression."

To a real estate man's question about energy and inflation, Bush said, "Energy is not as big a cause of inflation as Carter says. Reagan says you can produce more oil. Well, in Alaska we're not going to. We need to look for alternative sources.

"We can mine and burn safely more coal. In World War II, Germany ran its war effort in the latter years on synthetics. We need to improve our relations with oil-producing countries.

"In his first year or two in office, Carter talked about nothing but conservation."

Headaches and Backaches Disappear

I was suffering from painful headaches and backaches before a friend directed me to seek chiropractic care.

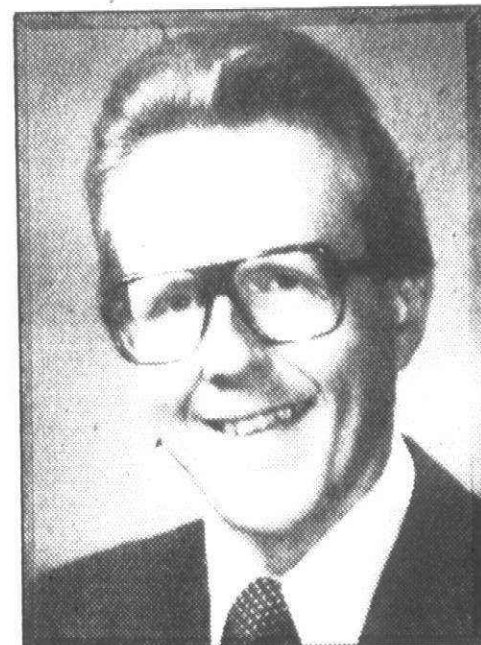

In fact I had a headache for 8 days straight before I went to Dr. Grassam's clinic in Garden City.

After one day of treatment my headache went away and back pain stopped.

I am so happy that I go out of my way to recommend chiropractic to anyone in pain.

I think it is just wonderful that we have the good doctors of chiropractic to turn to when we need help.

Thank you.

Cost fighters: eggs & skillet

Even in these days of rampant inflation you can prepare economical, easy, fast and fabulous main dishes. All it takes are eggs, a few other ingredients, and a skillet.

Egg-based skillet suppers are the answer for the busy cook who wants to serve entrees which are quick to fix, great to eat, and well within the week's food budget.

When you buy a dozen large eggs (which weighs 1½ pounds) for 90 cents, the eggs are only 60 cents a pound — a real bargain for the high-quality protein, essential vitamins and minerals received. That's why eggs are known as the original prepackaged, fast-to-fix convenience food.

Scrambled eggs is probably the first skillet supper prepared but there are many more to try, including omelets, a frittata, Eggs Paprikash, or a quiche.

Whatever variety you attempt you will find an egg-based skillet supper is easy to prepare. Usually they require very simple ingredients, and take little time and energy from start to clean up. And a skillet supper definitely is a dollar-saver. So pick up a dozen eggs or so, grab your skillet, and try out the recipes on this page or some of your own creations.

The best of the food inflation fighters still may be the egg and the skillet.

NEW ORLEANS FRITTATA

6 servings

A frittata is an easy-to-make family-sized Italian omelet that doesn't need to be folded. This one includes rice and Creole-type seasonings for flavor and color.

- | | |
|-------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1/2 cup chopped onion | 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce |
| 1/2 cup chopped green pepper | 8 to 10 drops hot pepper sauce |
| 2 tablespoons butter | 1 cup cooked rice (about 1/3 cup raw) |
| 8 eggs | 1 medium ripe tomato, chopped |
| 1/4 cup water or tomato juice | Green pepper rings, optional |
| 1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder | |
| 1 teaspoon celery salt | |

In 10-inch ovenproof* omelet pan or skillet, cook onion and green pepper in butter over medium heat until tender but not brown, about 3 to 5 minutes.

Beat eggs, liquid and seasonings together. Stir in rice and tomato. Pour egg mixture over onion and green pepper. Cook without stirring over medium-low heat until eggs are set at edges but still runny in center, 9 to 10 minutes. Broil about 6 inches from heat until eggs are completely set, 3 to 4 minutes longer. Garnish with green pepper rings, if desired. Cut in wedges to serve.

*To make handle ovenproof, cover completely with aluminum foil.

Skillet suppers you can fix in a flash are: clockwise from top, Crustless Skillet Quiche, New Orleans Frittata, Terrific Tomato Scramble, Toad-In-The-Hole and Eggs Paprikash.

CRUSTLESS SKILLET QUICHE

6 servings

Talk about an easy one-dish meal! You don't even have to stir this easy entree as it cooks — just mix, pour into the skillet and let it cook while you fix a salad and set the table.

- | | |
|------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------|
| 6 eggs, beaten | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1 can (1 lb.) mixed vegetables, well-drained | 1/2 teaspoon dried marjoram or oregano leaves, crushed |
| 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Swiss or Cheddar cheese | 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder |
| 1 cup half and half or light cream | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |
| 1 tablespoon instant minced onion | 2 tablespoons butter |
| | Fresh dill, optional |

Beat together all ingredients except butter and dill until well blended. In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over low heat melt butter. Pour in egg mixture. Cook, covered, without stirring, over low heat until eggs are almost set, about 18 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand, covered, until knife inserted in center comes out clean, 10 to 15 minutes. To serve, cut in wedges or spoon out of pan. Garnish with fresh dill, if desired.

EGGS PAPRIKASH

6 servings

If you keep hard-cooked eggs in the refrigerator, you can put together this main dish (or others, or snacks) in just minutes.

- | | |
|------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------|
| 2/3 cup chopped onion | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |
| 1/2 cup chopped green pepper | 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed chicken broth, undiluted |
| 1/3 cup butter | 9 hard-cooked eggs*, wedged |
| 1/3 cup all-purpose flour | 1 cup (8 oz.) dairy sour cream |
| 2 to 3 teaspoons paprika | Hot cooked noodles or rice |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt | Parsley, optional |
| 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder | |

In large omelet pan or skillet over medium heat cook onion and green pepper in butter until tender but not brown, about 5 minutes. Stir in flour and seasonings. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium-high heat until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Stir in broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Reserve 4 egg wedges for garnish. Stir in remaining egg wedges and sour cream. Heat just to serving temperature, but do not boil. Serve immediately over noodles. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

*To hard-cook, put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand covered in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for Large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

TOAD-IN-THE-HOLE

1 serving

This is one of several names applied to an egg fried in a bread "frame." It's a neat trick for breakfast, lunch, dinner or snacktime. Double this recipe for hearty appetites.

- | | |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 slice bread | 1 slice (1 oz.) Cheddar or American cheese, optional |
| 1 to 2 tablespoons butter | Cherry tomato, optional |
| 1 egg | |
| Salt and pepper | |

Cut out center of bread with 2-inch round cutter. In small omelet pan or skillet over medium heat melt butter. Add bread slice (and cutout) and cook on one side until golden brown. Turn bread over and break egg into center hole. Reduce heat and cook egg to desired doneness, 4 to 6 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Place cheese slice over egg, if desired. Cover and cook just until cheese melts, 1 to 2 minutes. Garnish with cherry tomato, if desired. Serve immediately with cutout.

Variation: To make a Toad-in-the-Hole Over Easy, prepare bread as above and place in pan with melted butter over medium heat. Immediately break egg into center of bread and reduce heat. Cook until bread is golden brown. Turn bread and egg over. Season with salt and pepper. Top with cheese slice, if desired, and cook to desired doneness.

TERRIFIC TOMATO SCRAMBLE

4 servings

This main dish is so simple that even inexperienced cooks can put it together. If you like, add sauteed green pepper or some diced pepperoni or summer sausage.

- | | |
|------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 8 eggs | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1/2 cup milk | 1/2 teaspoon basil, crushed |
| 1 medium tomato, chopped | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |
| 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, optional | 2 tablespoons butter |
| 2 teaspoons instant minced onion | Tomato wedges, optional |
| | Watercress, optional |

Beat together all ingredients except butter, tomato wedges and watercress with a fork, mixing thoroughly for uniform yellow, or just slightly for white and yellow streaks. Heat butter in 8 to 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. As mixture begins to set, turn a pancake turner over and gently draw completely across the bottom and sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened, but do not stir constantly. Cook until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist. Garnish with tomato wedges and watercress, if desired.

NOTE: It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

Trifle delightful dessert

The British have a reputation for being unimaginative cooks. The national cuisine involves few sauces and fewer subtle flavors.

It is plain cooking, uncomplicated, the familiar reassuring flavors of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, steak and kidney pie, lamb chops, game and sausages, Dover sole and mussels. Unadorned, stick-to-the-ribs food that warms the insides.

Then there's trifle. Wonderful, fabulous trifle. The smooth custard, tart raspberries, rich cream and sherry-soaked cake make a delightfully sinful combination to end a meal, British or otherwise. It is a dish that makes me think someone grew tired of all that plain cooking and created a dessert that is rich and frivolous to counteract it.

Some cooks get nervous about custard but all it needs is a little patience and care. Watch the heat and keep it at a point where the custard does not boil.

Judy's Trifle is an Americanized version; the other is authentically British.

JUDY'S TRIFLE

8 egg yolks, lightly beaten
 1/2 cup sugar
 4 cups milk, scalded
 1 tsp. vanilla
 24 lady fingers, or a comparable quantity of sponge cake, torn into bite-size bits
 1/2 cup medium dry sherry
 1 cup strawberry or raspberry preserves
 1/2 cup slivered blanched almonds or crumbled macaroons
 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
 Glace cherries
 An additional teaspoon slivered, blanched almonds

1. Combine the egg yolks, sugar and milk in a heavy saucepan, beating with a wire whisk to mix well. Heat over medium heat until mixture thickens and coats the back of a spoon. Do not allow custard to boil.

2. Remove from heat and pour into cold bowl. Stir in the vanilla and cool to lukewarm.

3. Sprinkle the lady fingers or spongecake with the sherry and let stand five to 10 minutes.

4. Place a layer of the soaked ladyfingers in a two-quart serving bowl, preferably glass.

5. Spread with 1/3 of the preserves and 1/3 of the almonds or macaroons. Repeat the layers until all ladyfingers are used.

6. Pour the cooled custard over the ladyfinger arrangements and chill several hours.

7. Decorate with the whipped cream, piped through a rosette tube, and garnish with the cherries and additional almond pieces. Serves 10.

TRIFLE

A piece of home-made pound cake about 5 inches long, 4 inches wide and 3 inches high, or substitute a 12-oz. packaged pound cake.

4 tbsp. raspberry jam

1 cup blanched almonds, separated into halves

1 cup medium dry sherry

1/4 cup brandy

2 cups heavy cream

2 tbsp. superfine sugar

A double recipe of custard sauce (below), chilled until firm

2 cups fresh raspberries, or 2 frozen packages (10 oz. each) frozen raspberries, defrosted and thoroughly drained

Cut the pound cake into 1-inch thick slices and coat them with the raspberry jam. Place 2 or 3 of the cake slices, jam side up, in the bottom of a glass serving bowl about 3 inches across and 3 inches deep. Cut the remaining slices of cake into 1-inch cubes, scatter them over the slices, and sprinkle 1/2 cup of the almonds on top. Then pour in the sherry and brandy and let the mixture steep at room temperature for at least 30 minutes.

In a large chilled bowl, whip the cream with a whisk or a rotary or electric beater until it thickens slightly. Add the sugar and continue to beat until the cream is stiff enough to form unwavering peaks on the beater when it is lifted out of the bowl.

To assemble the trifle, set 10 of the best berries aside and scatter the rest over the cake. With a spatula, spread the custard across the top. Then gently smooth half of the whipped cream over the surface of the custard. Using a pastry bag fitted with a large rose tip, pipe the remaining whipped cream decoratively around the edge. Garnish the cream with the 10 reserved berries and the remaining 1/2 cup of almonds.

The trifle will be at its best served at once, but it may be refrigerated for an hour or two.

CUSTARD SAUCE

1 1/2 cups milk
 2 tsp. cornstarch
 1 tbsp. sugar
 1 egg yolk
 1/2 tsp. vanilla extract

In a heavy 1- to 2-quart saucepan, combine 1/4 cup of the milk and the cornstarch, and stir with a whisk until the cornstarch is dissolved. Add the remaining 1 1/4 cups of milk and the sugar, and cook over moderate heat, stirring, until the sauce thickens and comes to a boil.

In a small bowl break up the egg yolk with a fork and stir in 2 or 3 tbsp. of the sauce. Then whisk the mixture back into the remaining sauce. Bring to a boil again and boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove the pan from the heat and add the vanilla.

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

Stuffing foods is a popular custom

It is said that nature abhors a vacuum. Cooks must share this aversion. Any food with a hollow or dent in it is an invitation to create a filling or stuffing for that void. If no void exists naturally, one may even be created by scooping out the inside of the intended shell.

Cuisines of every culture testify to the universality of the impulse to improve on nature by stuffing one food with another.

Middle Easterners stuff grape leaves with ground meats and grains. Mexicans steam spicy puddings wrapped in banana leaves or corn husks in making tamales. Greeks tuck spinach and cheese into flaky filo dough. Germans pride themselves on their savory stuffed cabbage leaves.

In our own country, apples are stuffed with raisins, nuts and sugar for a lovely dessert. Large fruits, such as melons and pineapples, are filled with other fruits to create spectacular salads. Fish and poultry with savory stuffings grace holiday tables. A specialty of our own state is the beef patty, topped with beef and vegetables baked in dough.

There is something appealing about using one food as a casing for another. At times, the appeal of this approach might be neatness and utility, making finger food out of what would otherwise require a fork, knife and plate. In other cases, the appeal might be more whimsical — a particular combination might just seem like fun. In other instances, the impetus might be purely gustatory — some flavors and textures just seem to be eaten in combination.

Whatever the reason, the concept of stuffed foods is an entertaining and challenging one for the cook, who need only be guided by the principles of good taste and a sense of adventure.

Good starting points for this culinary adventure are vegetables of almost any kind. Many vegetables form natural containers for other foods. Try creating your own stuffings for combining compatible grains (cooked rice, millet or bulghar work well), cheeses, eggs, contrasting vegetables, nuts and spices.

To get you on your way, here is a sampling of stuffed vegetables — all hearty and delicious enough to constitute a meal when served with good bread and a soup or salad.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

- 6 large green peppers
- 2 tsp. olive oil
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, chopped
- 1 cup cooked brown rice
- 1/2 cup finely diced mozzarella cheese
- 1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 1 medium tomato, skinned and diced
- 1 tsp. chopped chives
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup diced celery
- 1/4 tsp. dried basil
- Salt to taste
- Freshly ground pepper to taste

Cut out the stem portion of the green peppers and remove the seeds, being careful to keep the pepper shells intact. Briefly saute the onion and garlic in the oil. Combine with the remaining ingredients, mixing well. Spoon into the pepper shells; set into a baking dish. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Serve with hot rolls and a marinated vegetable salad.

VEGETABLE-POTATO BAKE

- 4 large baking potatoes
- 4 tbsp. butter, divided
- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup diced onion
- 3 tbsp. milk
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tsp. salt

Scrub potatoes and prick with a fork. Bake at 425 degrees 55 to 60 minutes or until soft. While potatoes are baking, melt 2 tbsp. of the butter in a large skillet. Saute the onion in the melted butter until soft, about 5 minutes. Add the mushrooms and green pepper and continue to cook until the mushrooms are just tender. Remove from the heat and reserve.

When potatoes are cooked, cut a slice from the top of each. Carefully scoop out the potato without breaking the skin; mash the potato in a large bowl. Beat in milk, egg, remaining 2 tbsp. butter and the salt. Stir in the reserved sauteed vegetables. Pile the mixture into the reserved potato shells. Bake at 350 degrees 25 to 30 minutes or until golden. Serve with Cheese Sauce (recipe follows). 4 servings.

CHEESE SAUCE

- 2 tbsp. butter
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. freshly ground pepper
- 1 cup (4 oz.) grated Cheddar cheese

We can't afford to waste it.

Melt butter in a small saucepan; blend in the flour and cook 1 minute. Remove from the heat; gradually stir in milk until mixture is smooth. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture comes to a boil. Stir in the salt, pepper and cheese. Stir until cheese melts. Accompanied by a tossed, mixed greens salad, this makes a nice, light vegetarian meal.

STUFFED ZUCCHINI, TURKISH STYLE

- 4 medium zucchini (about 7 in. long), halved lengthwise
- 3 tbsp. butter
- 3/4 cup finely minced onion
- 3 small cloves garlic
- 3 beaten eggs

- 1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese
- 3/4 cup grated Swiss cheese
- 2 tbsp. freshly chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. fresh, chopped dill (or 3/4 tsp. dried dill weed)
- 1 1/2 tbsp. flour
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Paprika for the top

Scoop out the insides of the zucchini to leave a half-inch rim. Chop the innards into little bits and cook in butter with onions, garlic, salt (a few shakes) and pepper, until onions are soft. Combine with flour, cheese, herbs and beaten eggs. Correct salt and pepper. Fill the zucchini cavities and dust the tops with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees 30 minutes or until the filling solidified. Serve with a fresh tomato salad. 4 servings.

Demure Penelope draws a lot of admiration when Mrs. Kraus displays her work at art and craft shows. She's all dressed up, but her eyes belie her angelic look.

Plymouth artist Karen Kraus is shown with some of her porcelain figures, each of which takes six months to a year to finish.

She specializes in 3D portraits

By BETTY MASSON

Next time you visit the Children's Museum in Detroit, you might want to take a closer look at "The Song Peddler" in the doll exhibit.

The artist is Plymouth Township resident Karen Kraus.

Some Plymouth-Canton school children and club members already know Mrs. Kraus's work, for she is willing to share her knowledge about creating and collecting porcelain dolls with others.

"The Song Peddler" represents an 1887 scene and features an old woman dressed in an authentic costume, as she stands on the street corner singing songs and selling music. Watching her are four "doll" children with rapt expressions on their faces.

The expressions are important to Mrs. Kraus.

"I try to get a lot of expression," she said. "I try to make my dolls interesting with real life expressions and an animated feeling about them so they are much more exciting to look at."

She succeeds so well that many of her dolls are in a way reminiscent of Norman Rockwell paintings. He is an artist whom she admires.

Sometimes she does create dolls after the work of famous artists. One of her and the public's favorite dolls is Penn Penelope Boothby, modeled after Millet's version of Joshua Reynolds' painting of the original Penelope.

Penelope is a demure little girl sitting on a log in her lovely pink and white dress, with an expression that conveys the impression that being good and being dressed up is somewhat of a trial. At least this is the way it looks in Mrs. Kraus's version.

SOMETIMES Mrs. Kraus takes her inspiration from real life. When her son, Scott David, was 10 months old and his cousin, Jennifer, 18 months old, she wanted to capture the contrasts between the two. The result is a solemn baby Scott and an effervescent Jennifer.

The real life dolls are called portrait dolls, and Mrs. Kraus began doing them about 10 years ago. She had some on display at the recent craft show and sale at the Cultural Center and plans to do more. But anyone interested in getting one should note that it is a long and arduous process and takes anywhere from six months to a year for delivery.

Interested persons should write to Mrs. Kraus, Box 625, Plymouth.

Mrs. Kraus is busy with two major projects. The first is a series on "Chil-

Work saps aggression for center residents

By SHERRY KAHAN

"If you channel excess energy productively, you will cut down on socially unacceptable behavior."

This theory voiced by Dr. Silva Gonçalves, psychologist and program director at Plymouth Center for Human Development, has been hanging around a long time. Recently Dr. Gonçalves decided to pull it down from the shelf and use it, and in the process he may have found keys for solving a couple of the center's major problems — court-ordered reduction of its population and the need for motivation of staff.

Dr. Gonçalves tested the idea with some of the most aggressive residents at the center for mentally retarded. These were the ones whose behavior had caused them to be expelled from school. These also were the ones who were often deeply depressed, or in trouble.

With the help of a $15,000 grant from the state Department of Social Services, he began a treatment program for these aggressive residents.

First, Dr. Gonçalves put them to work. Then he altered their living space so that the more difficult residents were not bunched together. Staff members began to create more activities to allow little free time for them to cause disturbances.

THE GROUP, 25 in number when the project started, then fanned out from Molloy Hall, a residence that had been one of the main problem areas at the time of the outcry about over abuse at the center.

They were put to work raking leaves and picking up refuse. At the same time, they were absorbing something about the work ethic and taking responsibility. There were parties and trips away from the center to reward those who were always on time.

"Sometimes there were fights," recalled Dr. Gonçalves, a Brazilian who earned a doctor of philosophy degree in psychology at Western Michigan University. "But the staff interrupted them. Eventually there was harmony during working hours. When residents came back in, they had better appetites and an overall better attitude."

Getting paid was a morale raiser. "Despite being retarded, they know the value of money," said Dr. Gonçalves. "On payday they were taken to stores where they could buy clothes or food. The fact that they could make money gave them a feeling of accomplishment."

When the weather turned cold, the project moved indoors. The staff looked for housekeeping chores, even inventing some, to keep the group busy. Mainly they cleaned tiles and washed windows.

THE NEW APPROACH reached one resident who had been spending his days depressed and crying. He started improving.

"Gradually he became more functional," said Dr. Gonçalves. "Now he has very few incidents of severe depression, and a low frequency of socially unacceptable behavior."

"The ward supervisors kept records on the residents. As a result of the work activities, the tendency toward aggression and injury decreased considerably. Having to do tasks is the best form of behavior therapy."

Most encouraging of all was the reaction of parents of those involved.

"I'm really happy with the project," said Beatrice Boreo of Allen Park, whose son is in his 40s. "Richard was one of those badly abused by the staff. But there has been a big difference since Dr. Gonçalves took over the ward. It's a less aggressive ward. They keep busy, have recreation and a job program. The staff is much more helpful and keep a closer watch on attendants. I'm very happy with the new situation."

"The only thing I'm unhappy about is when they say they will close the center and put the kids in halfway houses."

WHAT IT ALL added up to was that a number of residents were on their way to becoming deinstitutionalized through this project.

Taking the institution out of the resident by placing him in a smaller facility in the community is the present goal of the Plymouth Center. It has been ordered by U.S. Judge Charles Joiner to reduce center population to 100 by 1983.

To live in the community, these mentally retarded individuals will have to modify aggressive behavior and acquire coping skills. The Gonçalves project can help show how to do this.

At its peak enrollment, the residents at Plymouth topped 1,000. Today, under the prodding of Judge Joiner, it has dipped to 524. In some of the programs the ratio of staff to residents is one to four, as required by the judge, but this is not universal.

The potential for community living rises as residents, given something useful to do, become better behaved.

Dr. Gonçalves noted that in this program "supervisors are changing from in-house treatment to treatment for de-institutionalization."

A MORE POSITIVE staff attitude is another big bonus, the psychologist said.

"What we are doing in this program is really significant," he pointed out. "Staff members can see that. The result is that their attitude has become positive. They do their job with a lot of pride; Sometimes they come in on their day off. They read about behavior at home."

They have started speaking to supervisors. They used to avoid them.

That doesn't happen now. We are including them in the solution. So they are more productive. Many of them have no college degrees. But some are doing projects at a graduate school level."

A direct care attendant, Robyn McLean, opened a class in arts and crafts. A nursing supervisor, Marzella Thomas began teach residents meal preparation. Gwen Gilliam offered practice in following more than three directions without supervision. Evelyn Williams worked on pre-academic subjects, such as counting and understanding colors.

Willie Moore, Linda Leonard and Randy Parker placed residents in situations where they could acquire manners appropriate to family dining. Rose Flowers taught survival skills such as how to cross a street safely and use a telephone. Brenda Gaines patiently worked on attendance and punctuality.

TO PASS ON to others the promising results of the project, the supervisors of Molloy Hall presented a workshop last October on ways to manage residents through work, plus other topics.

At the UMW fashion show, summer sports are on almost everyone's mind. Sharon Kozma shows what will be worn on the golf course this summer. The outfit is red and yellow.

Spring brings fashion show

Along with the robin, fashion shows are a sure sign of spring as women begin to wonder what to wear this summer for golf or tennis or luncheons. The United Methodist Women of First United Methodist Church received advice from Claire Kelly's of Northville and Plymouth at a salad luncheon and fashion show last week. Ms. Kelley was the commentator. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

She started with miniature dolls

dren at Play." She plans to cover from 1800 to the present day and uses the collection in her talks to schoolchildren.

So far, she has completed two, one of two children rolling hoops and another of a boy who is pretending to be a soldier while an admiring audience of two younger children looks on.

She also has a figure of a skater in what will be a seasonal set. "Holly" is winter; Violet will be spring; Rose, summer; and Ivy, fall.

MRS. KRAUS became interested in dolls as a small child when her grandmother gave her a doll she had had as an 8-year-old in 1908. Still in pristine condition, the doll has a German bisque head with a composition jointed body. It has real hair, just as do the dolls Scott and Jennifer.

From then on, Mrs. Kraus began spending all her allowances on dolls,

"miniatures, because that was all I could afford."

She decided she would make her own porcelain dolls about 17 years ago. It wasn't easy because there was very little written on the subject at that time. Her parents helped her search for books.

Still it was a matter of trial and error. She had to learn from her own mistakes.

Later, she studied graphic design at Western Michigan University and the University of Michigan, but she said, "None of my studies involved three-dimensional work."

While a lot of people are interested in ceramics as a hobby, Mrs. Kraus said, most are "frightened off" by porcelain. It is more expensive and more delicate, and the firing takes longer which can be a factor in these days of rising electricity costs.

MAKING ONE doll is a complicated and time-consuming process, according to Mrs. Kraus, although her tools are very simple. She uses one ordinary ceramics tool for cleaning greenware and a common straight pin with a plastic head. The latter is for details, eyes, ears, noses.

She begins with a chunk of green clay. "I just push and pull it until I get it to look just about the way I want it," she said.

Then she makes a "rough" plaster mold of this green lump of clay which, in her hands, has become a head, or a leg, or an arm.

The first casting is in wax. In fact, she makes several wax castings since each comes out a little differently. She "cleans" the wax casting, taking out seam lines, sharpening up details and adding more depth to the features and smoothing it.

Using the wax, she makes the final or finished mold, which is a lot more than two pieces of plaster divided by a line in the middle. Instead it looks like a wooden puzzle. There can be as many as five pieces in this mold just to get one leg (a little longer than an inch) exactly right.

The next casting is in porcelain (actually porcelain slip with water and a chemical so it will cast more easily.) It's available, although sometimes hard to find, at ceramic supply stores.

While this is wet, Mrs. Kraus has about 10 minutes to work on more details, and add hair, if necessary.

After this, she uses the ceramic tool to clean and sharpen the piece still more. It is rubbed with a piece of net; more detail work is done with the pin; then it is cleaned with a brush and water; and finally it is polished with a piece of silk.

Sightseeing in old San Juan

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

OLD SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — There were armies of them, all in uniform, marching beside the walls of the old fort and climbing all over the cannon balls.

You could photograph them if you were fast enough to catch them in your camera before they moved on, with their teachers urging them to form a double line and to stop talking.

The children of Puerto Rico take field trips in the spring, making colorful clusters wherever you go in this 450-year-old walled city of Old San Juan.

The students in different color uniforms gather around the cannon at El Morro. Red-and-white checked dresses and slacks and white shirts skip down the blue brick street called Calle Cristo, white green and yellow plaid scatter the pigeons at the Pigeon Plaza while overlooking the sea.

Some travelers expect hostility from the local people here because you sometimes find it on other Caribbean

History, and the remarkable Pablo Casals Museum.

Casals left his memorabilia to Puerto Rico, including manuscripts, photographs, cello and a library of video tapes that may be played on request.

The Calle Cristo runs several blocks straight down from the Plaza de San Jose to the glass wall of the Cristo Chapel (see Travelog). Here you are in a typical Colonial Spanish setting, with green plazas, creamy stucco-fronted buildings and wrought iron balconies.

Only the colorful potted flowers are missing. Agriculture generally seems to be disappearing from Puerto Rico now that it has been industrialized.

At the first crossing, marked by the San Juan Cathedral, you will find one of the island's most unusual hotels at the corner of Callejon de las Monjas.

Hotel El Convento is a former convent. The old colonial environment has been admirably restored. Stop in for at least a drink, or for lunch in either the outdoor patio or the chapel-turned-dining room. islands and because we read about conflict between those who want statehood, independence, or the status quo.

A sign of the times. Puerto Rico is on its way to becoming highly industrialized. However, pineapples, bananas and, of course, imported soda, are plentiful and enjoyed in the open marketplace. (Photo by Iris Sanderson Jones)

The children will cure you of that fear. Sit on a bench and at least one will come very close. Give that one a little encouragement and they will all come to greet you, saying "hello, I'm an American, too."

OLD SAN JUAN is an ancient walled city on a point of land guarding San Juan Bay. It is a historic zone preserved by the Institute of Puerto Rican Culture, with two massive forts, El Morro and San Cristobal, guarding the stretch of wall that faces the Atlantic.

El Morro is a massive six-level fort started in the 16th century and now administered by the National Park Service. A children's museum is under construction in the old 18th century powderhouse.

The fort is a good place to get a walk back over the old city and to plan a walk through the old blue streets. The blue street bricks are adobe, made from old mining slag carried to sea as ballast and dumped by the Spanish on the Puerto Rican shore.

Legend says "the talings from old silver mines." The guide book says "casting slag from Spanish iron foundries."

Either way, follow the blue brick road from El Morro up the Calle

Norzaragay to the Plaza de San Jose and down the Calle Cristo, which will give you the most sightseeing in the shortest walk.

The plaza hosts an elegant restored Dominican convent, San Jose Church (original burial site of Ponce de Leon) the San Juan Museum of Art and CALLEJON de las Monjas is one of two stepped streets left in the city. It will detour you briefly off Calle Cristo to Plazuela de la Rogativa, and a great view of the sea. Hardy walkers can continue uphill back to the fort.

Try to stop at Casa Blanca, a museum built in a restored 15th century house where Ponce de Leon's descendants and Spanish military commanders once lived.

Back on Calle Cristo, you will find small well-kept shops on either side, and in adjacent streets. One more cross street down which you can see the white front of the Fortaleza, and then you are at the Cristo Chapel and the Parque de las Palomas, the Pigeon Plaza.

You can see it all from the Pigeon Plaza. Children eat ice cream and feed the pigeons under the Laurel of India and the Mango trees. Their faces reflect the Taino Indians, the Spanish Conquistadores and the African slaves who settled this island wave by wave over the centuries.

Below is the Tourist Information Center, and the ferry docks where you can take a 10-cent ride to Catana, and visit a rum distillery. Across the bay of ships you can see the high-rise skyline of the new city.

Across Calle Cristo is the Museum of Puerto Rican Art and a first-class historical library, La Casa de Libro.

Those legends hold certain fascination

Legends are among the most memorable gifts to bring back with you when you travel. Especially if they're not true, and most of them aren't.

I learned this first in Bardstown, Ky., when a local guide told us about some paintings hanging in the city cathedral. The King of France had lived briefly in Bardstown, she told us. In gratitude, he sent these original oil paintings all done by famous old master painters.

What an exciting story! Why had I never heard of these famous paintings before? I bought a guide book and later sat down to tell the world about it.

For some reason, there was no mention of the famous paintings in the guide book. Perplexed, I called the city's Chamber of Commerce.

"Oh those guides are always telling that story" I was told. "Most of them even believe it."

I have since learned that tour guides around the world tell outrageous lies, most of which they believe.

I thought of this as I was touring Old San Juan, Puerto Rico, our guide told us about the Cristo Chapel.

ACCORDING TO his wonderful story, the Spanish once held horse races down this street. One day a man and horse failed to make the turn and plunged over the edge into the sea.

Cristo Chapel was built to commemorate their misfortune and to keep future horsemen from a watery grave.

I love that story. It may or may not be true, although the people of Puerto Rico certainly tell it as if they believe it. Tourists love it.

The chapel is a glittering semicircle of glass at the end of the Calle Cristo, right next to the Parque de las Palomas, the Pigeon Plaza.

Tourists take pictures every day of the child buying ice cream from the vendor who parks between the plaza fence and the chapel. Neither the tourists nor the ice cream vendor really care whether the legend is true or not. In fact, if you know something that indicates the legend isn't true, please keep the information to yourself.

Those of us who love legends like it just the way it is, with the ghosts of old Spanish horsemen flying down the blue brick street.

Play returns to canyon

It may be an unlikely place to stage a musical but then Texas does things differently.

One of the longer-running dramas on Texas returns to the Palo Duro Canyon stage for its 15th season. "Texas" is a musical romance of the Panhandle written by Paul Green and has a cast of 80 actors, dancers and singers.

It is staged in the canyon June 18 through Aug. 23, running Mondays-Saturdays, and Sunday, July 6. For information, write "Texas," Box 268, Canyon, Tex. 79015; 1-800-655-2181. Ticket prices range from $3.50-$6.

Tour Japan casually

Inter Collegiate Holidays' innovation has produced a 17-day tour of Japan, giving travelers a casual glimpse into the Japanese life and its style.

With minshuku arrangements, travelers will be provided rooms and some meals in private homes while they see the sights or explore the business or cultural aspects of the land of the rising sun.

Other nights will be spent in hotels. Transportation in Japan is by train and bus. Stops include five days in Tokyo, then to Odawara, Hakone, Nagoya, Takayama, Kanazawa, Kyoto (three days), Nara, Osaka and Narita.

The price is $1,499, including round-trip airfare from Los Angeles or San Francisco, beginning May 26. Fifteen departure dates are available. There is a $100 deposit required, and full payment is required 42 days before tour departure. Round-trip flight is via Japan Air Lines.

For more information, see a travel agent, or write: Inter Collegiate Holidays, 501 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022, 1-212-355-4705; or 1007 Buxton Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90024, 1-213-478-0228; toll-free, 800-223-0694.

Helping you cope with inflation...

With inflation plaguing the United States, the economic picture is gloomy. Not only are food and energy costs increasing, but prices on consumer goods are also soaring.

Your need for savings now is as great as ever. Take advantage of all that the market offers by reading the Classified ads. If you shop the ads for value, you'll find you can cut back on spending. Use Classified advertising as your inflationary savings strategy!

4-door Futura

Ford's new four-door Futura offers such standard features as halogen headlights, dual bright remote-control rearview mirrors and even a hood ornament. The standard powerplant is a 2.3-liter overhead-cam four-cylinder engine.

The standard transmission is a four-speed manual. These combine for an EPA average of 23 mpg city and 38 mpg highway. The interior comes with front bench or bucket seats.

Electronic components taking control of cars

The electronic controls on some 1980 model cars have so many functions and are so versatile that they make a digital watch or pocket calculator look as sophisticated as a Tinkertoy set, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

Among recent innovations are electronically controlled feedback carburetors, fuel metering, engine control systems, fuel injection, detonation suppression systems (anti-knock) and spark controls.

All of these monitor and adjust the engine functions for optimum efficiency, insuring the best fuel economy with low emissions.

Other optional electronic innovations on new cars include digital instrumentation, multi-programmed trip monitors that tell miles per gallon and estimated arrival time.

Other electronic systems include load-leveling systems, climate control and a keyless entry system whose push buttons can be set in any combination, plus headlight dimmers, speed controls and others.

Some models have warning lights on the dash that can alert the driver to a limited number of problems, such as burned-out lights, low windshield washer fluid levels and doors that have been left ajar.

In the service bay, other types of electronic diagnostics are being used.

Some cars can be hooked up to an electronic testing device that can diagnose many different functions in a matter of minutes. Another type is built into the vehicle.

A mechanic grounds a testing point and a light flashes a coded number on the dashboard. This number directs the mechanic to the proper component and service procedure.

But "You ain't seen nothin' yet," says the AIC.

As the computer capacity of these systems grows, electronics can take over more complete control of other systems. Likely candidates include the emission system, fuel flow, ignition and transmission.

As costs of computer components decline, systems such as radar braking and multi-plexed wiring may be able to do enough without costing so much no one can afford them. The electronic marvels eventually could be expanded to monitor all components.

The diagnostic system could also be programmed to tell the driver when to take the car in for routine maintenance, says the AIC. But will it be able to repair itself?
