Merchants join hands in splinter retail group

In an effort to spur promotions of retail stores, about 40 merchants have formed a business organization which is separate from the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

Organizer Gary Roberts said the new Canton's Merchants Association wants "no animosity" between itself and the Canton chamber.

But Roberts, who owns a vacuum and sewing machine shop on Ford Road, admitted he is dissatisfied with chamber services for retail stores. He is not a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

"The chamber didn't have what I wanted," Roberts said. "I wanted the chamber to look at more township ordinances that affect retail businesses.

"Our main purpose is to promote retail businesses on a steady basis." Roberts said the new group will present its complaints on township business regulations to a new task force on businesses. The group, comprised of township, citizen and business representatives, was suggested by Chamber of Commerce president Frank McMurray.

ACCORDING TO ROBERTS, retailers in Canton have been discussing formation of a merchant association for the last five months.

The group was formed about two merchant association also belong to the Roberts' belief that the chamber has weeks ago and officers were elected. At 3 p.m. Saturday, members will hold a "champagne ribbon-cutting" at the Cyprus Gardens restaurant to celebrate the start of the organization.

Roberts said the group is planning a variety of promotional activities to coincide with holidays.

Books containing coupons from participating stores will be distributed prior to Halloween. For Thanksgiving, the group plans a turkey-coloring contest for kids, according to Bob Lancaster, owner of the Peacock Room and a member of the new group.

Roberts said some members of the Chamber president McMurray expressed hope that the new group will succeed despite his belief that business interests can best be achieved through one central organization, such as the

He said establishment of a splinter business organization may draw "a Mason-Dixon line" in shopping centers.

McMurray and Roberts agree that many businesses in Canton are hurting financially because of the downturn in the economic climate.

But McMurray takes exception with done little to promote and help retail stores. McMurray estimates membership of the five-year-old chamber at about 130 businesses, including about 85 retail stores.

He said the chamber has attempted to involve retail merchants in bulk advertising campaigns and other promotions. The chamber encouraged merchants to hold "midnight madness" and sidewalk sales in conjunction with the Canton Country Festival last August.

"We tried to get them involved, but the response was very limited," said McMurray.

"Gary Roberts thinks this merchant association is a new idea. For the last two years, the chamber considered a retail branch. We surveyed our members and found there really wasn't that much of a response to a retail associa-

ROBERTS COMPLIMENTS the chamber for its involvement in the community. "I don't want any problems with the chamber or to speak badly of them," he said.

Uncertainties in state aid plague school budget

The school district is growing and so is its operating budget

But there are major shifts within the proposed budget as the burden to finance education here is being placed more and more on local taxpayers and less on the state government.

That's the picture being faced by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education as it prepares to give final approval to an operating budget for fiscal year

The school board plans to adopt a budget on Monday, Oct. 13, after conducting a public hearing which will begin at 7 p.m. that night in the board offices at 454 S. Harvey, city of Plym-

THE PROPOSED budget shows an operating fund shortage of $830,000 as planned expenses exceed expected income by that amount.

The budget anticipates '80-81 expenses to reach a total of $38.66 million while total revenues are expected to reach only $37.83 million.

The shortfall will lower the district's fund equity of almost $2.2 million on June 30 to about $1.3 million in June

Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, says the major uncertainty in the budget at this point is that the Michigan Legislature still hasn't adopted the '80-81 state aid bill.

In fact, added Hoedel, the state aid legislation may not be approved until December or January.

THE REVENUES from the state included in the proposed budget represent the best guess on what will be the final state aid funding forumula, explained Hoedel.

That guess, said Hoedel, is that state aid per pupil will be $294.31 compared to $429.71 per student for the '79-80

If the guess is correct, aid per pupil will drop by $135.40 for a total state aid revenue reduction of almost $2.2 million — about a 30 percent decrease in state aid from last year.

When all state funding is considered, Plymouth-Canton expects to receive $2.6 million less income from the state than last year, or a loss of about 35 per-

Taxing plans provoke worry

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education publicly is opposing all three tax proposals.

Gorman says township officials are worried most about Tisch.

THE PLAN proposed by Shiawasee County, Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch would slash taxes by cutting 1978 property assessments in half.

The proposal requires the state of Michigan to reimburse local units of government for revenues lost as a result of slashed property assessments the basis of tax computations.

But Gorman says Canton officials are not counting on full reimbursement if Tisch passes, simply because of the enormous costs to the state.

Township administrators have asked all department heads to work out austere budgets on the premise that Tisch

Buy-American theme dominates Carter's stop at Wayne Assembly

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

Thousands of UAW members cheered President Jimmy Carter Wednesday, as he again called on the American population to buy American-made automobiles.

Carter's speech came during a hectic tour of Ford Motor Co.'s Wayne Assembly Plant, where Ford is building its world cars, the Escort and Mercury Lynx. The 30-year-old plant was recently renovated at a cost of $45 million.

"American auto workers deserve the chance to compete," Carter told employees on his campaign stop there. "I'm urging American buyers to give you that chance.'

Carter and officials from Ford and the UAW stressed what the president said was a "new spirit of

That cooperation comes at a time when more than 200,000 auto workers in the nation are still unemployed. Late August figures show Michigan's unemployment rate at

The Wayne plant employs about 5,000 people, 4,500 of whom are UAW members.

The move to cooperate also follows the Democratic party platform which calls for removal of "unnecessary governmental regulations," labor law reform and protection of workers affected by plant closings." Adding his voice was Philip Caldwell, Ford board chairman. "Consultation and cooperation is the American way of old. It's good to get together, but it's better to stay together," he said. UAW President Douglas Fraser, who is on Chrysler's board of directors, told the Ford employees that American workers "have been maligned lately." He added that UAW members "can do and will do better . . . It's not going to be easy. We'll have to work at it." Fraser also called on UAW workers to re-elect Carter in November.

IN RETURN, Carter promised that the auto industry would have "the capital it needs to re-tool, to compete, and to maintain its rightful share of the American auto mar-

Ford employees seemed to like what they heard. Some waved signs proclaiming that Carter would be re-elected this fall. Others sat on the shoulders of fellow employees to get a better view as UAW representatives presented Carter with a card and cake marking his 56th birthday.

"He's (Carter) beautiful, but I love him anyway," said Betty Gutchrie of Belleville. She said she had stayed after her midnight shift to watch for the president.

Hassan Makki of Dearborn thought the president was "all right." Lofting a sign urging people to Buy American, he added that the new cars are "the best. Buy one. I've ordered one myself. But Frank Washburn of Dearborn Heights was skeptical of Carters' statement that "I'm going to be your president when the first of stream of ships starts unloading in Tokyo

But it was a sign from Joe Barson, a Canton Township resident who is president of Local 900 at the plant, that greeted Carter on his arrival. Also welcoming Carter were committee men from Local 900 and Vincent Bruno, education director for Region 1A of the UAW

Joe Roberts, a Livonia resident who is supervisor of salaried personnel, took a group of the media on an early tour of the plant.

But they rejoined Carter as he toured the plant, pausing to shake hands with linemen Oliver Wiley and James Owens of Garden City.

Later Harold Poling of Bloomfield Hills presented Carter with a full-length white coat proclaiming him a quality control inspector.

The tour ended with Carter driving one of Ford's new world cars down the line.

Which tax plan is best?

Each is thousands of words long. Each would make major changes in the Michigan Constitution. Each requires a lot of study.

So the editors of the 12 Observer & Eccentric Newspapers invited proponents of three tax proposals on the Nov. 4 ballot to the company board room for a full morning of talks, questions and answers.

Most voters will say yes to one proposal, no to the other two - or possibly no to all three.

But what will happen if two or more pass? The sections of each plan which aren't in conflict with the others will go into effect. But where two plans change the same section of the constitution, the State Supreme Court will have to make decisions on which will apply.

Proposal C: Major shift to sales tax

By NICK SHARKEY

The so-called Executive-Legislative Tax Shift Proposal (Proposal C) will give Michigan a' more equitable tax system and "not rock the boat too

That's the view of Lt. Gov. James Brickley, a spokesman for the bipartisan proposal.

This proposal is being endorsed by a coalition of government, business, agricultural, labor, education and civic leaders, as well as the Republican and Democratic parties, who were concerned about the other tax proposals on the November ballot.

ESSENTIALLY, C will reduce the money collected in local property taxes and increase the sales and use tax rates. Proponents maintain this will result in a reduction in taxes for most Michigan residents.

Brickley argued, "We are not talking about a 'good' tax because there is no such thing. But we are proposing a system that will be more equitable while doing the least amount of damage."

According to Brickley, public opinion surveys indicate the "sales tax is the least objectionable.'

"No tax is popular," Brickley told a group of Observer & Eccentric editors. For years the property tax has been the least favored. But now the income tax is close behind. People see that the income tax is big and the one that brings in the most money to government.

PROPOSAL C would exempt the first $7,100 on the state equalized valuation of every homestead for operational purposes by local governmental bodies (this exemption would not apply to taxes levied to repay bonds).

This tax loss would be replaced by an increase in the sales and use tax from the current 4 percent to 5.5 percent.

Brickley estimated that Proposal C, if approved by voters, would ease the tax burden of the average homeowner

He also said Proposal C would specifically earmark money from the state lottery for school aid. Brickley said many Michigan residents incorrectly believe that's where lottery revenue is now going. (Lottery money now goes into the general fund).

Brickley said the tax relief offered by Proposal C would be in addition to the current property tax credit for homeowners and renters on the state income tax, known as 'circuit breaker." This credit is 60 percent of the amount by which an individual's property tax exceeds 3.5 percent of house-

Proposal C will require an amendment to the state constitution. While supporting it, Brickley had some unkind words for those wishing to make extensive changes in the constitution.

"There is an over-emphasis on ballot proposals and trying to amend the constitution," he said. "Voters should be concerned with electing good public officials and making sure they are responsive to voters' needs. Let them do the job they're paid for."

Lt. Gov. James Brickley called the sales tax "least objectionable to vot-

OTHER PROVISIONS of Proposal C

· Sales tax on residential consumers of energy products would be phased out by Jan. 1, 1985. This would apply to natural gas, fuel oil and electricity.

· Assessment of agricultural and forestry property on the basis of use value instead of market value would be permitted. The purpose is to keep farm taxes from rising on the basis of developers speculation.

· Some adjustments to the 1978 tax limitation amendment (Headlee) would be made relating to the computation of state spending requirements and the fixed portion of revenues which are returned to local government.

Proposal A: Aims to aid K-12 schools

By LEONARD POGER

State Reps. Roy Smith and Perry Bullard have a plan which eliminates virtually all school property taxes for homeowners, provides for a new state business property tax for education, and maintains local control for schools.

The plan is Proposal A on the Nov. 4 ballot -- one of three tax issues Michigan voters will decide.

Proposal A is commonly known as the "Smith-Bullard plan" for the legislators who drafted it. Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, talked to the Observer & Eccentric editorial board last week to explain the proposal and tell of its benefits. (The other half of the team is Rep. Roy Smith, R-Saline.) Bullard said Proposal A gives more local property tax relief than Proposals C and D, also on the ballot next

He said the other proposals promise more than they can deliver -- "like the Headlee (tax limitation)" amendment" approved by voters two years ago.

BULLARD SAID not only would Proposal A eliminate school operating property taxes on homes and owner-occupied farms, but it would equalize the disparities between school districts with "rich" property tax bases and those with "poor" bases

He cited the case of Bridgman School District in the southwest corner of Michigan which has nearly $3,000 of income per student (nearly double the state average) and only a six mill ($6 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) school operating levy. The reason: Bridgman has a nuclear power plant and only 1,000 pupils in school.

Bullard said educational opportunities shouldn't be based on the location of industries or businesses.

The Smith-Bullard plan would provide for a maximum 30.5 mill levy on commercial, industrial and office businesses. Local voters could still provide "enrichment" funds for schools by approving a maximum seven mill levy or a one percent income tax.

THE ADVANTAGE of Proposal A is that the statewide business property tax would benefit all schools in the state, Bullard said.

The four-term legislator insisted Proposal A "isn't a reaction to the Tisch plan," which would lower property assessments to the 1978 level and then cut them in half.

Bullard said state property tax plans for education have been discussed and voted down during the past 10 years. Those plans, however, lacked features of the Smith-Bullard proposal, he said.

Bullard said Proposal C (developed by Gov. William Milliken and legislative leaders) is really a "defense plan" against the Tisch plan (Proposal D).

BULLARD SAID Proposal A gives more state funds to school districts with a low spending per pupil because of a "poor" property tax base. The legislator said Proposal A has been endorsed by the Michigan Education Association, the largest teachers' union in the state; the Michigan League of Women Voters, and the Michigan Townships Association.

Under questioning, Bullard and Daniel Sharp, Proposal A campaign manager, defended their plan against opposition from the Michigan Association of School Boards and Michigan Association of School Administrators.

"SUPERINTENDENTS (in high-income school districts) have good sala-

Rep. Perry Bullard argued school revenue shouldn't be based on geograries, free cars and perks. They're doing fine, and they don't want to risk shifting the battleground from local millage campaigns to the legislature." Bullard

Although Proposal A would shift financing for schools from the local districts to the state, it would guarantee strong local control. Bullard said it stipulates that local school boards would continue to control programs and per-

In answer to the criticism that Proposal A was a windfall for farmers because it would exempt their barns and cropland as well as their houses, Bullard said it would help preserve family farms and cropland. The exemption would not apply to corporate farms, he

SHARP CRITICIZED the conclu sions made by suburban school administrators who say that the Smith-Bullard plan would result in less funds for their school districts.

Proposal D: Tisch target is property tax

BY TOM LONERGAN

"A lot of people say I'm overly simplistic, but we're way off the track and we have to get back on the track.

So says Robert E. Tisch, who proposes to cut property taxes statewide by about $2 billion a year and require any new statewide revenues to be approved by at least 60 percent of the voters.

"We have not gotten anywhere through the legislative process," Tisch told a group of Observer & Eccentric editors and reporters last week. "No one is asking the people any longer," said the ballot, the Tisch plan, if approved, would roll back property assessments to to 1978 levels, then cut them in half. Property in Michigan is assessed at 50 percent of its true market value. Tisch would reduce that to 25 percent and limit future assessment on property to 2 percent a year. "In reducing the property tax, we will be benefitting more than two-thirds of the population," Tisch said. More than two-thirds of all property tax money paid is "on the property we live on," he added. Likened to Proposition 13, the property tax cut approved by California voters in 1978, Proposal D would be "terribly positive" for luring business to Michigan, Tisch said. His is the "only one of the three (major fall tax referendums) that reduces the tax on all property - industrial, commercial, utility, timber-cutting, agricultural and developmental," said Tisch. In a recent article for Michigan Township News,

Tisch said his proposal is "much more than just a tax cut." Michigan's "competitive edge" will be restored, said Tisch, because the amendment "will spur investment in job-creating businesses through reduction in taxation and controls."

ASKED WHAT job creating businesses he was referring to, Tisch said he couldn't answer the ques-

"I think we have to make our climate conducive." Tisch critics, a group which encompasses the state and southeast Michigan political establishment, have called the tax cut a variety of adjectives ranging from "irresponsible" to "devastating."

State officials say the proposal will cause them. to cut the state general fund budget as much as 50 Tisch responded by pointing to the effects of California's Proposition 13 as reported by conservative California economist Arthur B. Laffer and the U.S. Comptroller General. Tisch said:

• Of 1.4 million state jobs in California, 17,000 were lost due to Proposition 13.

· Some 1.1 million "new private sector jobs" were created. He said two-thirds of the property tax break in California went to business, but that wouldn't happen in Michigan.

California had a $5 billion to $6 billion budget surplus when Proposition 13 passed, Tisch conceded, but added, "fewer than half of the local governments even asked for assistance.

Tisch critics, such as Rep. Perry Bullard (see Oabove story), say the California-Michigan comparison is faulty, citing the western state's graduated income tax and still growing population.

IF MICHIGAN'S economy fails to recover from its current slump by the time the tax cut would take effect in 1982, there are options, Tisch said.

The governor "can declare an emergency or catastrophe," he said, "and I guess all he has to do is

Other aspects of Proposal D include:

· Required state reimbursement of local governments lost tax revenue.

· Persons over age 62 would be exempt from local school district operating taxes (but not bond taxes) on their principal homesteads. · A homeowner earning between $5,000 and

$10,500 a year would have his assessment lowered 75 percent, rather than 50 percent; homeowners earning less than $5,000 annually would pay no

· Funding for K-12 school districts can't be reduced below the 1980-81 school aid formula unless 80 percent of the members of the legislature vote to

Tisch has said this fall's second tax cut try would be his last. In 1978, state voters rejected the first Tisch plan, 63-37 percent, in favor of a milder tax limitation proposal pushed by Farmington Hills insurance executive Richard Headlee.

But it's unlikely Tisch will stop railing against state legislators, whom he prefers to call "politicians."

"I think we need a whole new legislature with maybe a handful of exceptions," he said.

Tisch would cut revenue, says SC president

By TOM LONERGAN

To hear President C. Nelson Grote describe it, voter approval of the Tisch property tax cut would be as welcome at Schoolcraft College as another facul-

"It certainly has the potential of putting a tremendous limitation on us," Grote said in a recent interview.

If Tisch (Proposal D on the Nov. 4 ballot) passes, it wouldn't take effect until 1982, giving the Michigan Legislature a year to determine state reimbursements for local property tax loss-

The Tisch plan would roll back property assessments in Michigan to 1978 levels, then cut them in half. Those who are 62 and older would pay no school property taxes on their principal living place. Future assessment increases on residential and agricultural land would be limited to 2 percent a year.

PROPERTY TAXES account for 38.5 percent of Schoolcraft's 1980-81 budget. The $14 million budget, which took effect July 1, includes operating and debt retirement costs.

According to Schoolcraft officials, local and state revenue for 1981-82 would be an estimated $10.4 million without Tisch and $8.2 million with it. The projected $2.2 million loss represents about a 21 percent cut.

Local taxes and state aid combined are 75 percent of the two-year college's budget. Under Tisch, college officials project a $1.3 million reduction in local tax revenue, even after the required state matching reimbursement, and a $950,000 cut in state aid.

A $2.2 million cut would lead to reductions in credit hours, programs and services, Grote said. State aid formulas for community colleges are based on the number of credit hours taught.

While Tisch backers say their proposal requires the state to reimburse local governments for property tax losses, Grote isn't buying it.

"THERE'S NO way the state can remburse the property tax loss 100 percent," he said.

Proposal D, says Grote, would require a majority vote of district voters for Schoolcraft to raise tuition and

"What it really means is we've effectively frozen tuition and fees," said

The college increased tuition this fall $1.50 to $18.50 per credit hour.

Grote was asked about skyrocketing property assessments in the Schoolcraft district, which includes the Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville school dis-

"The electorate already has reasonable protection," he said, citing the Headlee tax limitation amendment passed two years ago.

"We were not able to take advantage of all the (property value) growth that was there because of the Headlee rollback," he said.

The college's millage rate for next year was reduced from $2.06 per $1,000 of assessed property value to $1.93, but inflation-fueled assessment increases will likely make the tax bills

GROTE SAID state funding for community colleges could also decrease under the Smith-Bullard (Proposal A) plan. The plan proposes shifting funding of K-12 education from local property taxes to the state income tax. A 1.2 percent increase in the income tax is possible.

Smith-Bullard's strongest backing comes from the Michigan Education

It proposes a fixed one mill for operating for community college districts with a maximum of 2.5, if voters approve. Schoolcraft's voted operating millage is now 1.77 mills. Grote said the biggest drawback to Smith-Bullard is a lack of implementing legislation, leaving millage limits and state aid formulas up to the Legis-

"Different legislators are going to be pushed and pulled by different constituencies," Grote said.

A COMBINED property assessment cut and 1.5 percent state sales tax increase proposed by the governor-legislative coalition (Proposal C) has the "least negative impact on Schoolcraft," Grote said. If Proposal C passes, college officials expect no property tax revenue loss in 1981-82.

Future effects on state aid or local tax revenues "will basically average out." Grote said.

The plan proposes to exempt the first $7,100 from residential and farm assessments. The exemption would rise by a fixed percentage in later years.

Grote had recommended the college Board of Trustees support the coalition plan "with reservation," but the board opted to oppose all three proposals.

The Michigan Community College Association supports Proposal C.

GROTE SAID the Tisch referendum is due to "dissatisfaction with the legislative process which they are trying to

But he adds: "I'm satisfied that we get good value out of our tax dollar. I'm not one that believes there is a lot of fat in our school system."

Tax proposals in a nutshell

state ballot proposals affecting taxes A, C and D.

PROPOSAL A "Smith-Bullard" calls for cutting property taxes (residential and agricultural) for schools. Requires state to make up the loss to school districts. State income tax would have to be raised to 6 percent or more from current 4.6 percent to fund school sytems. To be phased in over five-year period under a complicated formula.

EFFECTS: A shift from property to income tax; more uniform financing of school districts. Local disticts could vote "enrichment" property taxes.

PROPOSAL C "Coalition Plan" advanced by Gov. Milliken and bipartisan leaders in the legislature: Would cut property taxes by exempting first $7,100 of residential property assess-

EFFECT: Mostly a shift from property to sales tax; probably a small tax savings as time goes on because of phase-out of sales tax on utility bills.

PROPOSAL D "Tisch" would roll back property assessments to 1978 level and then cut in half, resulting in 60 percent cut in property taxes. Would then require state to pay local governments for some of the lost revenue Any new state taxes would require approval of 60 percent of voters.

EFFECT: A tax cut and cutbacks (uncertain as to severity) in state services and facilities. Would affect colleges, local school districts, state police, state hospitals, state parks, revenue sharing with local governments.

the state," said the finance director

"Self-generated revenue, such as the sale of accident reports, is minimal. Upping those fees certainly wouldn't pay for the police department."

Gorman said the Township Board may consider a residential- user charge for fire-department ambulance services if Tisch should pass.

Other possible alternatives include elimination of ambulance services altogether. Gorman said several communities in Michigan are considering establishment of public-safety departments as a relatively inexpensive means of providing police and fire protection.

Under that plan, certified police officers also would fight fires.

"If you get your revenues down substantially, you may have to go to a public-safety department," said Gorman.

The bulk of lost tax monies in the general fund could be made up by eliminating township-paid garbage collection, Gorman said. Residents, like their neighbors in Plymouth Township, would have to contract individually with garbage collection companies. Gorman said fees for services of the recreation, building and planning departments probably would be hiked substantially.

He tempered his remarks about the impact of Tisch by observing that no one really knows how the plan would be implemented.

"I think Tisch will affect the people on the higher levels of government more than those on the local level," said Gorman.

"It's not supposed to affect Canton directly, because the state is supposed to make up the lost revenues. If the law says they must and they can't, I don't know what would happen.

Gorman said state officials still are debating a provision of the 1978

GORMAN SAID township officials know more about Proposal C, because laws to implement the plan already have been passed by the Michigan Leg-

The plan, which was drawn up by a coalition of leaders in government, business, agriculture and other areas, exempts property owners from paying taxes on the first $7,100 of the homestead's state-equalized value (SEV). The proposal earmarks a 15 percent hike in the state sales tax for reimbursement to local government.

Gorman said he believes the proposal, commonly known as the legislativeexecutive plan, would leave township revenues intact.

"The only thing it would really do, in my opinion, is make a lot of work for us," he maintains.

Legislation already signed by Gov. Milliken would require property owners to sign written affidavits in township and city halls regarding their residency, home ownership and age.

Local governments would be responsible for processing the forms in order to qualify homeowners for the $7,100 exemption. Homeowners would have until Nov. 1 to file the forms for tax bills which are typically mailed Dec. 1.

Gorman said the township usually forwards tax information to Wayne County during November.

"That means, technically, that 14,000 homeowners could come in here Oct. 30 to fill out those forms," he said. "That" procedure seems not to be workable at

"It's our feeling that if Proposal C passes, we'd have to start pushing this thing in February or March."

Canton's treasury department already has mailed requests for updated tax information in the event that Proposal C is approved.

GORMAN SAID Proposal A "seems the most workable as far as local units of government are concerned."

The Smith-Bullard plan would roll back the current five-mill limit which charter townships may levy without a public vote to two mills. The limit would apply only to general operating taxes. The plan allows voters to approve additional millages at the polls.

The state would reimburse local units of government for lost revenue through an increase in the state income

Gorman said the Michigan Township Association has endorsed Proposal A as the least detrimental of the three tax plans on the November ballot.

Township officials will not make a formal recommendation on any of the tax proposals, Gorman said

Contour Analysis involves taking a "three dimensional" picture (Called Moire photography) of the surface of the back to help detect postural distortions. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomotology, and levels of spinal tenderness. Such composite examina. tions may indicate such things as

A free Contour Analysis screening test is also being offered for people with acute or chronic pain by the chiropractic office listed below. People who suffer with backache, bursitis, arthritis, neuralgia. nerve pain, neck pain, muscle pain, bone pain, etc are also invited to receive this free examination.

These tests, including consultation with the doctor, are being offered to the public at no charge, or obligation, for the next 30 days. Anyone wishing to receive this free examination may telephone the participating office directly for information or an appointment. Investigation. James Dixon of the Detroit FBI office said it hasn't been determined if there has been a violation of federal law. He speculated that if there has been, it probably would come under the 1964 Civil Rights Acts.

"That's my opinion," said Dixon. "The gist of the thing is that the kids aren't there now. It could be just a foolish prank."

A .22 caliber bullet recovered from the house would be turned over to the Michigan State Police post at Northville for analysis, Stewart said. The shots had been fired Sunday night "from what appears to be a moving vehicle," Stewart said.

Two bullets entered the front porch window and became lodged in walls. The pathway of the bullets indicated the vehicle probably had been traveling west on Maben, he said.

So far, information is skimpy.

The shooting was discovered Monday by construction workers who showed up to do chores. Officers hadn't had a chance to check neighbors to see if they heard or saw anything, he said.

A caretaker who had been staying at the house had been absent at the time of the shooting.

"At this point, we have very little to go on. We haven't received any voluntary information from the public.'

Stewart had recommended that a guard or caretaker stay at the house after a similar shooting occurred during the night or early morning of Sept.

That blast by a shotgun put holes in the garage door and front of the house.

Also damaged was a tractor parked in the driveway.

NO ONE was injured in that incident. James Minder, executive director of Michigan Human Services, said he thought that shooting was "just a bunch of kids fooling around.

But Stewart says he "can't remember a home (under construction) that was shot.'

Builders Barry Stone and Edwin Murphey, of Murphey-Stone Custom Builders in Ann Arbor, say this is the first time anyone has fired shots at homes they have built.

There have been minor acts of van dalism normally associated with an empty house under construction, Stone

Pupil busing now is quiet issue

By LEONARD POGER

It was nine years ago this week that one of the most controversial topics in the suburbs — school busing — first

Like the ash from Mount $t. Helena, the fallout was widespread.

It is quiet now, but reflections on the ninth anniversary show that while some things have quieted down, other aspects of the issue may erupt again.

It was just nine years when U.S. District Judge Stephen Roth found the state of Michigan and the Detroit Public Schools guilty of racial discrimination in educational decisions and poli-

Roth said that a remedy for eliminating the past discrimination could include the busing of students between Detroit and 54 suburban districts. He put that position in writing in mid-June, 1972. That ruling was overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court in a 5-4 decision in late July, 1974.

The federal court in Detroit then ordered into effect a limited busing plan which involved only Detroit.

The case isn't dead yet although there there is no direct impact on the suburbs now

ROTH DIED several years ago and Judge Robert DeMascio took over the case. Under pressure, he agreed earlier this year to have another judge handle the case. The case is now in the hands of a three-judge panel.

But the National Association for the initlated the civil suit in 1970, said that its plans include a metropolitan busing plan involving Detroit and its suburbs.

The NAACP is continuing its legal argument that the state of Michigan is ultimately responsible for all public education and can't delegate its authority to local school districts, Jesse Goodwin, education committee chairman for the NAACP, told The Observer He said there is no active motion before the federal court in the Detroit busing case to bring the suburbs into the case, "we hope to get into that very

THE ISSUE, though quiet now, was the most frequently discussed topic if not the only topic, heard among suburban residents.

Suburban homes sprouted window signs with the message This Family Will Not Be Bused.'

One state legislative dandidate was giving away the signs. His opponent was charging 50 cents each for them.

Homeowners started anti-busing chapters in their backyards or family rooms. There were large groups of parents jamming public meetings to demand that school officials promise to vehemently oppose any busing order from a federal judge.

City Councils got into the ac, adopting anti-busing resolutions and some even promising to go to jail if found guilty of failing to obey a court order on busing.

When two candidates for a post were both vigorously anti-busing, the voters made their decision on "who was the MOST anti-busing.'

BUT JUDGE ROTH, who died several years ago, commented in his 1972 ruling about the reality of busing within a single district.

He cited national and state statistics which show that a large number of pupils already get to school on a bus.

In Michigan, from 35 to 40 percent of all students are bussed, he said.

The only change under his metropolitan plan is the "direction of the bus."

"For school authorities or private citizens to now object to such transportation practices raises the inference not of hostility to pupil transportation but rather racially motivated hostility to the desegregated school at the end of the ride," Roth said.

The judge based his ruling on numerous actions of the Detroit school board, state Legislature, and past policies of the Federal Housing Administration which led to racially segregated housing patterns in Detroit and the suburbs.

The state Constitution gives general control over public education to the state government.

But during the 1971 crisis and in subsequent years, suburban school officials claimed that the local school district boundaries were sacred and couldn't be arbitrarily changed.

IN RECENT years, however, the problems of money and vacant schools dler the Redford Union programs while

One suburban school board attorney warned that vacant public schools, property or equipment shouldn't be sold, rented, or leased to church

The reason for that advise was a New Orleans busing case in which a federal judge ruled that suburban schools may be aiding "the white flight" from the central city if they cooperate in allowing private or parochial schools to be located in their com-

But some Detroit area suburbs have not followed that advice.

Detroit Catholic Central High School moved in 1979 from the northwest side of Detroit into a Redford Township junior high school.

United Christian Schools bought a vacant school in Garden City.

On a larger scale, there were other actions that show a growing scale of cooperation of public schools without regard to local boundaries.

PLYMOUTH-CANTON schools, faced with a growing pupil enrollment, have agreed to rent a Livonia School District junior high next fall to handle its overflow.

Livonia Board of Education has agreed to handle the administration of the North Dearborn Heights food and busing programs. In adult education, Livonia will hanGarden City will do the same for the Crestwood and North Dearborn Heights

School officials defend all those actions by saying that they were mutually agreed to under contract.

Dr. Goodwin of the NAACP said his group is aware of the rise of church schools in formerly public schools and it further proves the point that the state government is part of the educational decision making process.

Attorney William Saxton, who represents most the suburban school districts' in the Detroit busing case, doesn't feel that parochial schools locating in vacant public schools would have any impact on his clients' legal

The expected loss of 35 percent in state income compares to an expected gain of almost $5.7 million, or 24 percent, in local property tax income.

One of the major points of the budget is that expenses will increase by 11.7 percent while income will rise by only 6 percent, Hoedel pointed out.

Last June residents voted permission for the school district to levy the fully authorized amount of 35.26 mills for operations. If that ballot issue had failed the district would have had to rollback the levy by 1.26 mills or by almost $1.1 million.

The administration has still reduced the budget by almost $1.3 million from where it started in early summer with the first draft budget as represented by the Wayne County Allocation Budget.

If the full levy had not been authorized by voters, the reductions would have totalled almost $2.5 mil-

Insurance firm leaves city

American Community Mutual Insurance Co. will move from Plymouth to Livonia sometime next summer.

John D. Temple, president and chairman of the board of the company, announced that construction is under way this week and is expected to be finished for occupancy next summer.

Temple said the company has expanded and needs a larger building than its present quarters on Plymouth Road just east of Mill in the city of Plymouth.

The new headquarters building will be located at 39201 Seven Mile at Haggerty in Livonia.

It is being built on a 9.2-acre site, the former Esch homestead, just north of Schoolcraft College.

The 45,000 square foot structure will feature a computer-profiled exterior designed by the Livonia architectural firm of Lindhout Associates.

The exterior, and the angle at which the building will set, will enable the structure to accept the rays of the winter sun, and reject those in summer cutting fuel bills in winter and making the working area cooler in summer.

Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara said the firm is a welcome addition to Livonia.

The company's strong record of policies the company insures.

growth and its outlook for future expansion make American Community Mutual an especially attractive acquisition to the Livonia community in terms of job potential.

Temple indicated the new building will be more than twice the size of the building American Community Mutual now occupies in Plymouth.

The new location was selected because it is close to the firm's present location and the homes of the company's employees, says Temple, and was the nearest one found which was adequate for future expansion.

"Our income and our net assets have tripled during the past five years and our employment has doubled. We need more room in which to grow.'

Now in its 42nd year, American Community Mutual started in Detroit in 1938 and has been headquartered in Plymouth for the past 22 years.

"We pioneered hospital and surgical insurance in the state of Michigan almost two years before Michigan Blue Cross and Blue Shield began operations," added Temple.

He said the company does about 98 percent of its business in Michigan, insuring one of every 14 residents of the state with some form of the various

Execution & effect keys to marching band success

This is the third of a four-part seres explaining the components of a hun school marching band competition. Musical effect and musical execution are the elements of competition being explained this week.

By BETTY DeLANO

Without fight songs and marching bands, a football halftime would be pretty boring. And without music and drill, a high school marching band competition would be nonexistent.

For members of the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Marching Band, the music heard by fans each week at either Plymouth Salem or Plymouth Canton home football games is vital when performed in competitions throughout the state on the weekends.

These musical selections that are heard each week in the CEP stadium include "Carmina Burana" and "West Side Story," arranged by Joseph Laird, and "Buckaroo Holiday," arranged by Ralph Johnson.

The music performed in competition is the basis for two major areas of evaluation by a team of judges that in-

Both of these categories hold a point value of 20 points that contributes to the possible 100-point total.

Under the caption of musical effect, judges are to evaluate all those elements of a band's performance which collectively make the finest, smoothest, most pleasing and finished

A band's superior ability, originality and showmanship also are considered by the adjudicators. Audience reaction also is considered if the judge believes cludes musical effect and musical exe- it is genuinely prompted by the band's performance.

Musical performance by the band is the emphasis by the judge assigned to the musical execution category. The judging of musical execution involves consideration of rhythmic accuracy, tone and intonation, uniformity of style and expression and musical content (difficulty).

This caption emphasizes how the music is performed rather than what is performed.

The music performed by the band has been worked on since before the week prior to the start of school, a number of band graduates have assisted the current band members in learning the music.

Section leaders, as they are called, included Mary Kleam (flutes and clarinets). Mark Thrasher (saxophones), Steve Hawkins (trumpets), Lew Burton (horns), Bob Humphries (low brass), Dave Gerke (tubas), Bill Sweeney (percussion) and Meg Johnson (color start of school. While at band camp one tive start this season, the CEP Marching Band placed second in the open class with 54 points at the Clarkston Invitational last weekend behind the first place Flushing Raider Band (68 points).

The Plymouth-Canton musicians placed third overall out of the 13 bands entered in the event.

For area enthusiasts, the CEP Marching Band will host its own invitational at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct 11 on the CEP football field.

Lawmakers charge suburbs over-charged on water

By TOM LONERGAN

Are suburban water users subsidizing cheaper water for Detroit residents?

Two suburban state legislators this week made that charge during a special hearing in Livonia on new water rate hikes proposed by the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department (DWSD).

The planned Dec. 1 rate increases, approved by the Detroit City Council in August, range from less than 10 percent to more than 100 percent for suburban wholesale customers. The systemwide average is 43 percent. Detroit's increase is 15 percent.

State Reps. John Bennett, D-Redford, and Jack Kirksey R-Livonia, told DWSD director Charles Beckham that the proposed Detroit water rate of $2.75 per 1,000 cubic feet of water should be $3.07, which Beckham said is the actual cost of providing the water to Detroit residents.

"SOMEBODY IS picking up part of the actual cost of service to residents of Detroit," said Kirksey

Bennett, chairman of a special eightmember legislative committee investigating the water rate hikes, said suburban customers were subsidizing Detroit users. DWSD has 97 community water and sewer customers

Beckham and a representative of

Camp Dresser & McKee, DWSD's rate consultant, cited a 1917 state law and DWSD's "revenue requirements" as the reasons for the Detroit discrepancy.

The law, which Bennett said should be repealed, permits the Detroit-run water utility to charge suburban wholesale customers within 10 miles of its borders at least the same rate Detroit pays but no more than double that rate.

Some suburban communities within 10 miles of Detroit borders, said Les Curtis of Camp Dresser & McKee, would also be charged a wholesale rate less than actual cost. Those communities include Canton, Bloomfield and West Bloomfield townships and the city of Farmington Hills.

CURTIS SAID using a Detroit base of $3.07 (or a $6.14 maximum for nearby suburban customers based on the state law) would have led to $2.3 million more than needed in suburban reve-

Using a Detroit base of $2.75 - and a $5,50 maximum for some near suburban cities - means the suburban revenue requirement wouldn't be exceeded, Curtis said.

DWSD's revenue requirements for fiscal 1981, according to Curtis, are $31.9 million from the suburbs and $33.5 million from Detroit.

"Whether Detroit is at $2.75, $3.07, $1 or $15, the revenue requirement from the surburbs is still the same," said Curtis. "It's not affected by the Detroit rate."

"WE WANT the City of Detroit custorners to pay their share," said Ben-

"They are," Beckham responded. The water utility's revenue requirements include a 10 to 11 percent rate of return, Beckham said. "All the money goes back into the system," he said. "Money from suburban communities goes back to the suburban side of the books." He said "there is no subsidy to the (city) general fund."

But Kirksey insisted there was a subsidy if Detroit users were paying less morning in Livonia City Hall. than cost.

"When you buy a car, is the profit you pay to General Motors a subsidy of General Motors?" Beckham asked Kirksey. "It benefits the owner of the system.

"No," said Kirksey, "you're benefitting the residents of the City of Detroit, Beckham said "seven or eight" lawsuits had upheld Detroit's ownership of the system.

and they don't own the system."

"If you want to make a challenge," he told Kirksey, "don't make an emotional challenge, make a legal chal-

Skimpy preparation bogs board meetings

A heavy cloud of cigarette smoke hangs in the air.People wander in and out of the room and sip at bottles of soft drinks. Others fidget or stare into space as the hands of the clock move forward, with little getting done.

THIS SCENE is common at Tuesday evening meetings of Canton's township board.

Indeed, people who have business with the board might be tempted to pack a thermos of black coffee, or perhaps a bedroll to curl up on as they wait their turn.

Board members must tackle important issues such as property zoning, taxes and budgets and services to residents. Obviously, these decisions should be given careful consideration.

But all too often meetings become bogged down because trustees and the department heads who supply information are unprepared.

SOMETIMES the board members can't act because they lack enough information. Other times they carry on discussions much too long.

That means delays in getting through an agenda and, ultimately, in implementing plans. It also means inconvenience for persons who have to wait their turn for the board's collective ear.

Last week's meeting offers a good example. The township board debated the rezoning of a three-acre land parcel for more than an hour, then spent another half-hour deciding how the motion should be worded.

During the lengthy discussion, information and comments were supplied by township planners, members of the planning commission and the township board.

Obviously, the board got carried away on this agenda item. Time was poorly spent.

LATER, the board decided to suspend its own rules in order to deal with several other items still on the agenda. The meeting — which started at 7 p.m. — finally ended about 12:45 a.m.

Marathon board meetings are fairly common in Canton Township, despite a board rule to cut off meetings at 11 p.m. Under a second rule, board members may vote to extend the meeting to 11:30 p.m. or resolve to suspend the rules altogether.

Canton officials need to put more oil on the wheels of government. One way would be to schedule separate study sessions so trustees can sit down with administrators or other interested persons to gain information before the item comes up for vote.

STUDY sessions, which are open to the public, are routinely held in communities such as Plymouth, Livonia and Westland. Officials can take as much time as they need to research an issue without holding up other business.

One hallmark of leadership is to be prepared. Another is to manage time in a reasonably efficient manner.

Most of Canton's officials — elected and appointed — take their responsibilities seriously. But they need to work harder to put their good intentions into action

Humor gone from political stump scene

The other night, while slumped in my easy chair, I saw something as rare as sarsaparilla soda pop—and just as refreshing.

Right there on the boob tube were politicians, presidents no less, laughing and joking in public.

Although this show was meant to be entertaining, it did make an important statement on how we, as a country, have changed in the last decade.

Our political leaders have lost their sense of humors. But then so have many of us and that's a shame.

Imagine Jimmy Carter humorously jousting at a press conference, or Ronald Reagan telling a funny tale on the campaign trail. John Anderson in all of his messianic ardor probably never has told a joke. It's disturbing

When you examine our presidents, you can see that those generally regarded as great, or even good, had the confidence to let down their hair publicly and tell a humorous story or a fast quip.

THAT PROGRAM demonstrated this.

There was a quick-witted John Kennedy, delighting in jocular sparring with the press. He smiled, they smiled and the country loved it.

an honorary degree:
"Now I have the best of both worlds," Kennedy

Recalled was a speech at Yale when he was given told the audience, "a Harvard education and a Yale degree."

There was Harry Truman doing his imitation of newsman H.V. Kaltenborn who had broadcast election night that Truman would mercilessly be beaten by Republican opponent Thomas Dewey.

"Although the prezeedent is leading by one million votes" Truman imitated the then-familiar clipped Kaltenborn tones. The public loved it.

Then there was Franklin Roosevelt in a pseudoserious tone telling how he didn't mind being publicly criticized, nor did his wife or son, but Fallah, his dog, didn't like it at all.

An ominous sign of things to come happened a few years after Roosevelt's quip when a young U.S. senator from California, Richard Nixon, used his dog Checkers to save his political career.

With a perfectly straight face, Nixon told the country that it was unjust to criticize his dog. He sold it, the American public bought it.

FDR, TRUMAN and Kennedy led the nation during threatening times. But they did it with grace and humor.

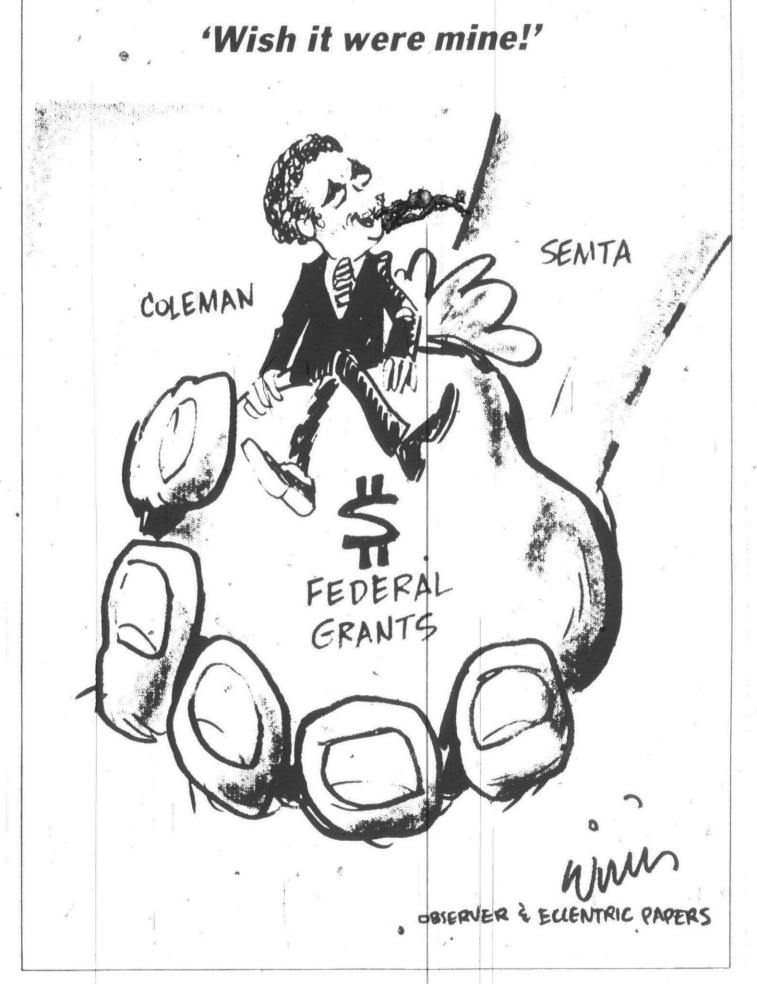

English statesmen Joseph Addison said it best: "Mirth is like a flash of lightening, that breaks through gloom of clouds, and glitters for a moment; cheerfulness keeps up a kind of daylight in the mind, and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity."

Someday, hopefully, this country will regain its sense of humor and then we will regain our serenity

Tigers missed out on Babe

Now that the baseball season is winding down and the Tigers are in fifth place – again! — the same old howl is heard: The club is too tight to give its faithful fans a real pennant contender.

So what's new? The song been sung for a halfcentury, and always with the same lyrics — the Tigers are too stingy to buy the players they need.

It's more disappointing this year because Sparky Anderson promised so much when he took over the team early last season.

Sparky made it plain the roster he inherited was not his team. He shouted loud and long that things would be different after he had his team in spring training

"That will be MY team," he told members of the Baseball Writers Association, and he went so far as to predict before the team left its southern training camp that it would win at least 90 games.

Well, you know the rest.

THE MELODY this year has a familiar ring. Years ago, when he was the rookie of the Tiger press box, The Stroller heard it.

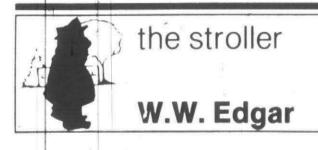

One day he had the good fortune to be the guest of owner Frank J. Navin at lunch and boldly told him the fans thought he was too tight to buy the players needed to win a pennant.

Navin just smiled. He explained some of the deals he had made that went sour over the years and vowed that he always was trying. It was just that luck was against him in dealing with human beings.

Then he shocked his luncheon guest with the remark, "I wonder what the fans would think if they knew that I once turned down the chance to get Noting the surprised look on the young Stroller's face, Navin revealed how it came about.

"At the time," he said, "we had a group of young pitchers. What we needed was a veteran to help steer those young hurlers in the right direction.

"In those days, there was no such thing as a draft. You had to play politics to get what you wanted. So, by pulling strings, I was told that the best chance of getting what I wanted was to deal with the Providence club of the Eastern League.

"At the time, Providence had a couple of veteran hurlers and I studied them. I finally picked a pitcher named Rube Oldham."

Then the Tiger owner, he was a good gambler, smiled again.

"Would you believe it," he said, "one of the pitchers I passed up was Babe Ruth. At the time he was a rookie hurler and it was a veteran I needed."

AFTER A MINUTE or two, the Tiger owner continued.

"Don't forget," he said, "Ruth didn't become the heavy hitting star until he reached Boston and was shifted to the outfield. If I had taken him, our manager may not have shifted him. He may have let Ruth pitch until his pitching days were done and then let him go."

Then, with a sigh, Navin concluded, "And if that had happened, we never would have had a homerun king who changed the entire concept of the game as Ruth did."

U.S. almost sent millions to wrong guy

Coleman Young climbed out of bed in Manoogian mansion a week ago Monday and for breakfast had ham, eggs, grits, orange juice, coffee and 18 stupid pills.

In Washington the same morning, Theodore Lutz had tomato juice. waffles, sausage, coffee and 18 stupid pills.

Actually, I don't know whether the mayor of Detroit and the administrator of the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration had tomato juice, orange juice, ham, sausage, eggs, grits, waffles and coffee for breakfast.

But by 2 p.m., it was pretty apparent they had consumed 36 stupid pills between them.

THAT WAS WHEN they announced, in the mayor's office, that the federal government was coming through with $22 million.

The money, however, wasn't going to the city of

The money, however, wasn't going to the city of Detroit, of which Young is chief executive. No official of the city of Detroit will touch a penny of it

In fact, the ceremony should have been held a few blocks north, in the headquarters of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority. SEMTA is the agency which is getting the $22 million, including $5 million for preliminary engineering on a subway surface light rail rapid transit line.

Now. SEMTA is a state-created agency whose governing board and employees come from seven counties. The city of Detroit is a minority member of SEMTA, with only one-fourth of the SEMTA region's population.

ONE COULD HAVE been misled by the TV and some of the newspaper coverage. Said the Detroit Free Press, in a gargantuan display of civic ignorance:

awarded a $5 million federal grant to begin work.

Ted Lutz announced the subway grant award during a visit to Detroit.

He said his action Monday formally awarded the grant to the city.

Now, no one doubts Young would like to see onefourth of the federal budget, two-thirds of the state budget and all the local tax money south of the Mackinac Bridge go into the Detroit city treasury, to be administered by his appointees.

Fortunately for all of us, that isn't the case. This batch of bucks went to SEMTA.

WHAT MADE Young's and Lutz's act so baldly stupid is that Young is a rather unpopular guy in the suburbs. That's one reason we have a SEMTA instead of letting the Detroit Department of Transportation run public transit for everyone.

Once SEMTA really gets going on its 1990 transportation plan, this multi-county agency will almost certainly have to come to the voters for taxing authority to raise $66 million a year. Oakland County on Nov. 4 will decide four advisory questions concerning SEMTA.

There's no way in heaven, earth or hell the region is going to vote that kind of tax if it appears only one-fourth of the region, Detroit, is going to get all the money.

Young and Lutz, with the help of the Free Press meatheads, certainly made it appear only Detroit will get the money.

The purpose of staging such a media event was to convince us that President Jimmy Carter has time to show his love to cities while wrestling with the problems of the world. That's standard election year procedure.

But those of us who support rapid transit, the subway and SEMTA were genuinely embarrassed that the head of UMTA acted as if the money were going to 2 Woodward Ave. instead of to General Manager Larry Salci in the SEMTA office up the street.

Obesity: Many fat cells vs. large fat cells

Question: Is it true that a child's physical activity and eating habits may influence his fat cell development and potential for obesity? Please ex-

-- J.K., Southfield

Recent techniques for counting and sizing fat cells have permitted researchers to better define the cellular composition of body fat stores.

These findings have led to the "fat cell theory" of obesity. Research findings to date suggest:

1) Fat cells are specialized fat storage cells that may increase in size and number by overfeeding and/or underexercising.

2) The number of fat cells in the body is established primarily during periods of rapid growth, e.g., during the first year of infancy and adoles-

3) Once established, the number of fat cells remains fixed, though their size decreases with weight loss. These cells remain for life and may exert an influence on the appetite when they are not filled.

4) A comparison of grossly obese and normal adults reveals that, in the obese, while fat cell size is slightly increased, cell number is considerably greater. Hence, the obese person's excess body fat is predominantly the result of a large increase in fat cell numbers.

THESE RESEARCH findings suggest this cautious conclusion:

Gross obesity (typically of childhood onset) is the result of abnormally large numbers of fat cells formed during growth. In contrast, recent weight gain (adult onset obesity) would appear to be due to increased fat cell size.

The fundamental question remaining is: To what extent can gross obesity (the increase in fat cell numbers) be altered before adulthood, or is overfatness predetermined by genetic code?

Animal studies indicate that caloric restriction and/or exercise early in life can lead to a permanent reduction in the adult body weight and fat cell number. If the same methods hold true in humans, it would seem possible to prevent the formation of excess numbers of fat cells during the early years.

Despite the countless weight reduction methods currently available, no major impact has been made in our current culture on the long-term control of gross obesity. Of the possibilities available, prevention of obesity in childhood may offer the greatest potential.

Come back, alumni told—and they do

If you need an expert on high school class reunions, just call me. In the past month, I have been embroiled in two.

First there was my own, the Class of 1940 from University of Detroit High School. Then during the past weekend it was the Class of 1945 of East Lansing, my wife Marilyn's bunch.

Both reunions covered two days - can you believe that? And both were marvelous experiences, jammed with excited conversation, old school tales and pictures of grandchildren.

From that, you might guess that I've concluded all high school reunions are laced with so many similarities you can hardly tell where one leaves off and the other begins. And you'd be correct.

IN THE LATE SUMMER, as the 40 committee chugged through all the preparation work for our weekend at St. Clair Inn (strictly stag), I kept telling Marilyn there was something distinctively different about our class.

"There's a closeness, an affinity that sets us apart," I'd tell Marilyn after after returning home from one of our laugh-filled planning sessions. And I firmly believed what I was saying.

But that theory sort of went down the drain Saturday and Sunday as I became part of ELHS '45. Like the U. of D. High reunion, the East Lansing affair drew folks from all around the country, including a cluster from Florida.

There was some conversation during Sunday's get-away brunch at the East Lansing Albert Pick that the next reunion ought to be held in the Everglade State. That same sort of talk popped up at the U. of D. High reunion.

A LOT OF FUN THINGS happened at both reunions, but I think the softball game staged by members of the Class of '40 topped everything. •

It pitted old homerooms against one another. Unfortunately, the Brains, the guys who took Latin and Greek en route to classical degrees, beat the less academically-minded Dreamers, 11-3.

For the record, an official protest is being filed with the baseball commissioner's office on the basis of too many men on the field.

When you watch 58-year-old men trying to look lithe and lively, well, you've seen it all.

IN POST-GAME CREDITS handed out to outstanding players, Tom Montgomery, a builder who lives at 4245 W. Newland, West Bloomfield, was awarded two. He got the first for "Most line drives caught by a shortstop." The second was for "Most line drives dropped by a shortstop."

Vic Chilson, an attorney and mortagage banker who used to live in Birmingham, walked off with a citation for "Most left-handed hits by a player from Colorado." Vic now runs his business out of Aspen and wals the only one from that state

"Most frustrated player" laurels went to Dr. Richard J. Lilly, a psychiatrist who resides at 25336 Castlereigh, Farmington Hills, first baseman for the Dreamers. The citation stated that Dr. Lilly

"walked around St. Mary's school (in whose playground the classic contest was held) and church looking for a restroom and never did find one.

BUT IT WAS LEFT to Montgomery, the 1940 basketball co-captain, who made the most poignant comment of the two days.

It came during the belly-laugh-packed Saturday evening program in which Bob Krue, 87 Nantucket. Bloomfield Hills, and mayor of that city, along with Crawford Cox, an actor from Burbank, Calif.

served as co-masters of ceremonies. Each of the 44 fellows attending was to take the floor, after suitable introduction by Krue and Cox, and spent two minutes telling of his greatest success. ("No failures. If no successes, make up something," the pre-reunion program agenda advised.) There were all sorts of outlandish — some true offerings. Our sides ached from laughing.

Then came Montgomery.

"If success is measured by the happiness I have had with my family," Tom told his classmates. "then I have led a very successful life."

Unhappy with postal service

Editor:

With the prospects of the postal rates being increased, I believe it is about time some of check was made on the deteriorating conditions now existing, namely at the Plymouth Post Office.

I do not live in Plymouth, but I work here. I have to go to the post office just about every other day for my employ-

Today, around 11 a.m., I stood in line for 45 minutes to buy stamps. People were lined up almost to the street. Of the four windows available for service, er to drive to Northville - about six only two had clerks.

Customers were furious. One man went to the office of the postmaster, John Mulligan, and knocked loudly. A woman clerk yelled out, "The postmaster is not here today." That was a lie because he had been seen there an hour

At no time does anyone with authority get off his or her duff and come to the front to see what the service is like. At peak periods, especially, more than two windows should be opened.

A woman behind me said it was fast-miles away - to that post office. But morning: Home deliveries are terrible. with these gas prices, who wants to Parking facilities are horrible - if you can find one. If one inserts 5 or 10 cents in the meter, there is the possibility of the police meter maid issuing a traffic violation.

Customers are becoming more irritated and furious all the time. Imagine a mother with 2 or 3 screaming kids having to stand in those lines!

Another fact I learned while listening to men and women complain this By the time mail is delivered, banks are closed - even some businesses. Some postal workers are actually overworked.

Please check it out.

This is only the last of September. God help us when the holiday season

The service could be remedied very simply if someone would just get off his or her duff and look at the line that is waiting for service.

Resident thanks plumbers for help

Editor:

Each year, members of the Western Wayne Masters Association get together on Richter Day to honor a former plumber who died of cancer, by using their time on this day to repair and replace plumbing in a home.

These men in recent years have visited more than 40 homes. On each their time, materials and skills to help a family who is in need of repairs.

They came to my house on Brownell Street in Plymouth Township on Saturday. Sept. 20. They arrived at 7:30 a.m. and worked until 2 p.m., making all of the necessary repairs.

I live in an older home and the repairs would have been very costly. I

They are to be commended for the good job and the time donated so I could have a trouble-free sewer and new pipes. I'd, like to thank each one of them personally. I hope each knows how grateful and pleased I am for having this done for me.

WOMEN WHO WORK have an opportunity to become charter members of the new Canton Township Business and Professional Women's Club.

The club will meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 13 in the Roman Forum Restaurant on Ford Road. Officers will be elected at this meeting and all those who are on hand for the club's first, official meeting will go down in club history as a charter member.

An organizational meeting Sept. 27 in Cyprus Gardens attracted 20 interested women. Teresa Solak, who had been contacted by a state BPW representative to "sound out" the response of Canton's business and professional women, was surprised at the enthusiastic reaction.

Meeting dates were set for the second Monday of each month.

Teresa asks that persons who wish more information or who plan to attend the Oct. 13 dinner meeting call her, 459-2840, before Oct. 10.

Doris and Neil Winters of Northville hosted the supper party at their home. Parents and young people played soccer and touch football before enjoying the cooperative meal.

Brenda Norman reports that the parents had their last official meeting of the year following the potluck. Neil Winters ended his two-year term as president of the board with a pep talk and farewell speech.

"He will be greatly missed," said Brenda. "He has done a very commendable job and has been instrumental in many good things that have come our way these past two years."

She added: "We have had a great year and wish to thank all those who have supported the corps financially and otherwise."

Anyone interested in joining the

The corps has two more performances scheduled for this year. One of these is the Fall Festival in Clinton on Oct. 5.

JUDY MORGAN will host a coffee at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 15 for prospective members of the Plymouth Symphony League. Persons interested in attending the coffee are asked to call Mrs. Morgan at 453-6099 in advance.

The Symphony League has five groups, each with a major fund-raising project. Three of the groups have day-time meetings and two meet in the evening. A good percentage of the membership comes from Canton Township. The evening coffee is aimed at women who work and women with small children who cannot attend daytime meet-

Members of the league enjoy a working and social association. As well as being the main supporter of the symphony, the league contributes to the social life of the community with its fundraisers.

Annual projects rotate from group to group and members have never complained of boredom. One year they are planning the Symphony Ball. Another year it will be the antique mart, the round robin bridge, the fall fashion show or the spring luncheon.

League members are responsible for serving refreshments during the break at Monday night orchestra rehearsals at Central Middle School. The women work in groups of two or three and each member is called upon to serve once during the season.

Judy Morgan is vice president of the league and will explain its history, its plans and its endeavors at the membership meeting.

Jane Zevalkink, professional puppeteer, conducted a workshop, "The Art of Puppetry and Its Uses with Children," for more than 130 area teachers. (Photos by CEP Yearbook staff)

Puppetry widens scope of child's imagination

Take the shyest, most self-conscious child in the classroom. Put a sock puppet on his or her hand and note the change in personality.

"They don't have to be themselves. They're not afraid," explained Beverly Winkelmann, a fourth grade teacher at Isbister Elementary School. "They're not 'them' as they become involved in a creative exercise."

Ms. Winkelmann is one of the 135 area teachers who attended the recent puppet workshop at Isbister. All came away from the workshop full of enthusiasm for the uses of puppetry in teaching the language arts, reading and other classroom subjects.

Jane Zevalickink, a leading professional puppeteer, presented two performances for Isbister pupils in the afternoon. She then conducted a three-hour workshop, "The Art of Puppetry and Its Uses with Children," using visual aids and involving participants in actual practice. The workshop covered three major areas — puppetry making, puppet manipulation and playwriting with children.

THE WORKSHOP was organized under the direction of Jean Knowles, Isbister's library-media specialist, with financial support from the Plymouth Community Arts Council and the Northwest Staff Development Council.

The value of puppetry as a teaching aid has been recognized by the arts council, which has awarded grants to Farrand, Bird and Isbister elementary, schools for the purchase of puppet stages.

Nancy Wise, media specialist at Farrand, arranged an after-school coffee Monday afternoon to explain the uses of the school's new puppet stage. Ms. Wise had a hand in designing Farrand's stage, which has special features and can be easily moved from classroom to classroom.

Isbister principal Beverly Marshall, assistant principal James Burt, learning specialist Jacqueline Whiting and library aide Dorothy McCormick served on the planning committee for the puppetry workshop. Mrs. Knowles said Jane Zevalkink had been recommended by Kathy Schmidt, media specialist at Gallimore school, who had seen the puppeteer at the Michigan state library convention.

TEACHERS FROM Livonia, Garden City, Farmington and the Plymouth-Canton schools praised the workshop and added their thoughts on how they would use the information.

The speaker began with simple, basic ideas. She showed how fingers or a fist could be used as a puppet. She demonstrated the use of a glove, a sock and even an ordinary envelope to make a puppet. She brought enough gloves and other materials for everyone to experiment with the techniques of manipulating a puppet.

From the basics, she went on to the more sophisticated marionette.

She described the three basic steps in preparing the story line or script for a puppet show.

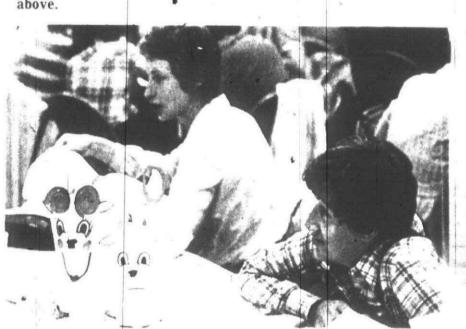

Special sound effects were demonstrated for thunder, rain, hoofbeats and the like.

REGISTRATION and hosting functions were conducted by teachers Susan Naudi, Sheila Barnes, Nancy Mather, Virginia Hunt, Robert Shurmur, Lori Manoogian, Geraldine Francis, Carolyn Kleinsmith, Cheryl Klee, Dixie Pedersen, Rosemary Alexander and parent Laurene Forster.

The majority of the participants stayed on for supper, which was prepared and served under the direction of school secretary Mary Hough, assisted by teachers Doris Zerby, Sandra Wiacek and Marjorie Harkness and others who had helped with registration

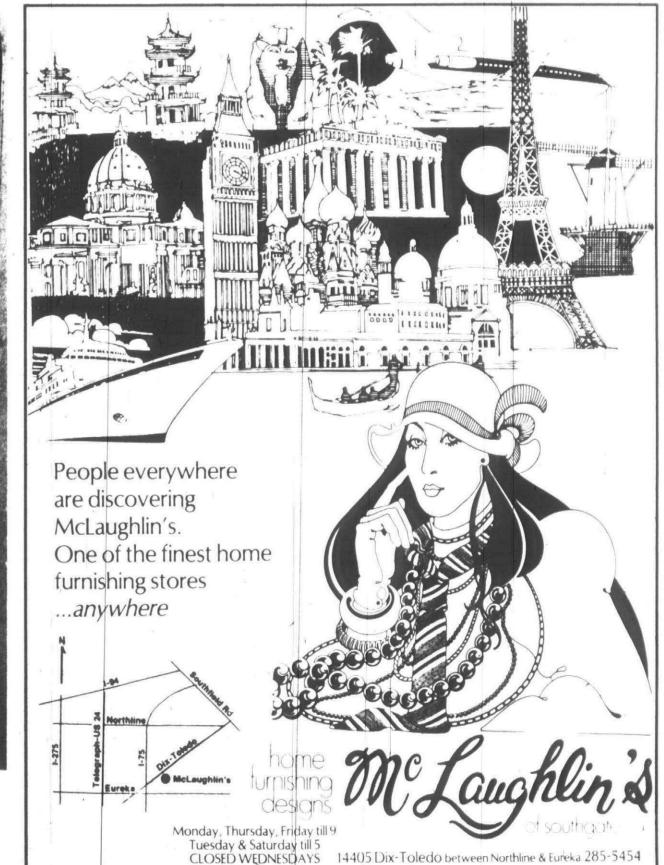

Puppets can be as simple as features drawn on fingers, an ordinary envelope or carton, or the more elaborately fashioned character

Nancy Wise, librarian at Tanger Elementary School, invited teachers to an after-school coffee to explain the uses of the school's new puppet theater. The grant for the theater came from the Plymouth Community Arts Council, and it was built by Robert Clayton of Plymouth Township. Mrs. Wise and Clayton collaborated on the design. Nichols and family have moved to the Pacific Northwest where they will be an hour's drive from their families and their own hometowns. Kathy Freece, neighbor and friend of the Nichols clan, had a few words to say about Sam.

THIS IS A tribute to a woman who excels in everything she attempts to do. She started out being active in a small way, in Canton Newcomers. A year and a half later, she was president. The community activities in which she volunteered were Walk for Mankind working with the Javcees and Lions clubs, a solicitor for the heart fund, typing for Field Elementary and various functions in her church. She was secretary and vice president of her bowling leagues. Playing bridge, scuba diving, collecting trash and couponing are a few of the activities that occupied her spare time. There are

> IF YOU HAVEN'T guessed by now, this article is dedicated to Sam Nichols and her family for making her friends' lives very rich in the three years they have lived in Canton.

There are so many people that think highly of her, we had to rent a hall to say goodbye. We rented Canton Recreation Hall because no one has a house big enough to accommodate all her friends. Ninety couples were invited, so there is not space to mention all their Charlie Freece and Darrel Brawn spent five hours making a reel-to-reel tape of music so everyone could enjoy several hours of continuous dancing.

Trolls go to Old World Market

Norwegian trolls and one of their countrywomen will play major roles in the Old World Market that will fill the International Institute in Detroit this Rigmor Cuolahan, who left her homeland of Norway 27 years ago and has settled in Livonia with her husband Paul, is market chairman this year.

And she is making sure that Norwegian trolls make the scene there amid the displays that represent as many cultures as you can find in the metropolitan area.

Trolls are of Norwegian folklore.

"If you don't behave, the trolls will get you," Mrs. Cuolahan smiled. "But they are stupid, so you have a chance of getting away. There are many stories about children who were caught but escaped.

"Trolls, with their ugly faces and long noses, live under bridges, in forests and in deep, dark waters. There are five different kinds, some good and some

THIS LIVONIAN has been active in the International Tostitute for about 15 years because she knows well what it is like to be a new arrival in this country

She left Norway to marry Cuolahan, who she met on shipboard. He was on his way to see Europe, and she was returning after a visit to relatives in Amer-

Recently she returned from one of the frequent trips she makes to her homeland and found herself in the midst of all the preparations that must be made for a successful Old World Market.

Visitors to that event, scheduled today through Sunday, will find crafts, gifts, food and entertainment of many nations on display.

"You'll see items for Christmas gifts that are different from what you find in most stores," said Mrs. Cuolahan. "Most of the nationality clubs import what they sell or make them themselves. You can find quite a variety of inexpensive items."

Lithuanian amber jewelry is one of the treasures to be found. "I don't know any other place you can buy it so inexpensively," she said.

There will also be Polish paper cutouts and straw Christmas ornaments made in Lithuania and Swe-

"It's fun to see that with the same straw, they do such different things," Mrs. Cuolahan noted.

AND THRE WILL BE dolls and table runners from Bulgaria, jewelry from Africa, and Japanese dolls created by a woman who makes them from scratch, including hands made from ground byster shells. Her current dolls are samurai warriors, said the market chairman.

Old-fashioned American wooden toys will be brought in by a couple from Grand Rapids, and visitors also will see examples of Estonian woodburning, English and Swedish wheatweaving, Polish, Belgian and French lacemaking, Ukrainian and Polishh egg coloring, and Ukrainian cross stitching, tapestry making, leather carving and glass blow-

Entertainment including flamenco dancing, a tamburitzan orchestra, Ukrainian sword dancing, Israeli folk dancing and a Japanese akido martial arts demonstration, will vie with Irish folk songs and a German chorus.

Hungry visitors may sample foods of many nationalities. The International Pastry Shop will sell baked goods, and a cafe will serve Greek musaka and spinach pie, Danish round pancakes, Norwegian sausage, Arabic food, and delicacies from France, Romania, Bulgaria and the Phillippines, PROCEEDS from the event will be used by the institute to help immigrants adjust to the American way of life. Located at 111 E. Kirby, across from the Detroit Institute of Arts, the institute gives classes in English and citizenship.

"We have social workers on the staff who try to get newcomers settled," said Mrs. Cuolahan.

The forerunner of the Old World market was a big force in establishing the institute, she added. It was founded during the Depression to give immigrants a chance to sell their crafts.

Mrs. Cuolahan's early contribution was establishing a gift shop at the institute.

"It is wonderful to see so many nationalities getting along so beautifully," she noted. "We all learn from each other. When you get down to basics, we are all the same. Maybe we dress or eat differently, but we're still human beings whatever the color of

She added that participating in the planning of the Old World Market was "lots of work and lots of

An opening day ceremony today at 11 a.m. will preview some of the performances to be given by entertainers throughout the four days of the market. Hours are from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and 50 cents for children. Special advance rates for groups are available. For information, call the institute at 871-8600.

Stress

Church workshop views ways it disrupts

Coping with the pressures of life - whatever their source — is the theme of a day-long workshop Oct. 18 at St. Paul United Presbyterian Church, 27475 Five Mile, Livonia.

The 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. conference will include a keynote talk by Dr. Robert Ward, professor of medical education research and development at Michigan State University, and 14 workshops that bring community people in to discuss many aspects of

The day costs $7.50, including two general sessions, two workshops and continental breakfast and lunch, and reservations should be made with the church office, 422-0470, by Oct. 13.

"In this program, people will get for the money and time they spend something that culd be helpful for the rest of their lives," said Jane Watson, chairwoman of the event that is offered under sponsorship of the St. Paul Church and Society Committee.

"I could not be more pleased with the speakers who will be joining us," she added. "All are fully qualified to lead the workshops in their areas."

INCLUDED among the workshops will be discussions of how stress builds through employment, death of a loved one or one's own impending death, chronic illness, drugs, divorce and the economic sit-

Other topics will be the stress in marriage, religion, accepting handicaps, decision-making, the situation of adult children and retirement.

Jimmy D. Patton, director of client services for the Farmington Area Advisory Council, will lead a workshop titled "Unemployment, More than Money Problems.

Holder of a master's degree in counseling and personnel from Western Michigan University and a licensed social worker, he plans to lead discussion on unemployment, not only from the financial standpoint but also in its relationship to family and Martha Nacy, another counselor with the Farmington council, will discuss decision-making. She is a graduate of the University of Michigan and a graduate assistant in the Master's Clinical Psychology Department at Eastern Michigan University.

Jane Williams, yet another FAAC representative, will lead a discussion on drugs and alcohol

Chronic illness will be the subject for the Rev. George F. Hazler, Catholic chaplain at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital in Detroit. Dr. Marisa Keeney, psychologist and elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Ann Arbor, will lead a workshop she titles "Stand Up and Be Counted."

OTHER SPEAKERS will include June Shada, active in Catholic programs, who will lead a discussion on stress growing from handicaps; Carl Gunderson, former pastor of St. Timothy Presbyterian Church of Livonia and a counselor with the Wayne County Circuit Court Family Counseling Center, discussing divorce stress; and Jack Bradford, also of the center, taking up marriage enrichment.

Marilyn Gunther, director of education at Credit Counseling Centers Inc., will lead a discussion titled "Making Ends Meet," and two other workshops will be led by Virginia Britton and Pam O'Malley, both counselors in the Farmington school district.

Mrs. Britten's topic will be "Retire to" and Ms. O'Malley will consider the expectations and realizations of parents and their children emerging into adulthood.

MRS. WATKINS said the workshop grew out of a single-parents program that the church has run for several years.

"We decided we wanted to plan an annual event that offers people the opportunity to grow in faith and to respond to stimuli present in today's world,"

"Hopefully, we will have a program every year. This year the theme is stress, because if we can

It took the cake

Gus Evangelides, gourmet chef for the state of Michigan, spent three days in the Plymouth Salem High School kitchen baking a cake in the form of Geer School. The 24x44x18-inch cake was one of the highlights of school's centennial celebration. Donna Keough, who chaired the Geer Centennial Committee, praised Paul Seidel, food service director of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, for enlisting the chef's talents for the party. Everyone who sampled the masterpiece agreed it was a delight "to the eye and to the palate."

Preserve nation's land

When I am on the Interstate near Brighton I recall the fuss when the interchange there was first proposed. Some laughed at farmers who complained of the valuable acres they were forced to sell. Others laughed at travelers who complained about the long wait at the old intersection during deer season

That one interchange now seems a minor part of Michigan farm land converted to highway and urban use. The early complainers don't seem so ludi-

If we continue at the 1967-77 rate of converting prime farm land to urban, industrial, commercial and transportation uses, Michigan will lose 11 percent of its prime farm land before this century

A total of 77 percent of our nation's tart cherries are produced in the region around Grand Traverse Bay. In the last six years, bulldozers and chain saws have destroyed half a million Michigan cherry trees. One by one the orchards are disappearing. The micro-climate required for tart cherries simply cannot be found elsewhere.

NATIONWIDE one million acres of America's prime farm lands are urbanized each year. That equals four square miles of our best agricultural land every day.

Prime land is the best land in terms of soil quality, low susceptibility to erosion, growing season and moisture supply. These best farm lands are also the easiest to convert to urban or highway use.

Farming marginally productive land is costly. More fertilizer, more tractor fuel, more erosion. more irrigation and lower productivity adds up. We all pay

Projections of the human costs of our current land conversion are sobering. These are not guesses or predictions, but simple projections of facts. By 2000 America will consume all the food it produces and will not be able to help feed hungry people in other countries.

The price of our food will go up sharply, not to mention inflation but in straight real costs. Some foods we enjoy simply will not be grown in quantity enough to get to the stores.

Southeast Michigan may soon not be able to provide the taste of fresh sweet corn, raspberries, musk melon or enjoy cut flowers sold in markets.

WORLD POPULATION is expected to grow from four billion to 6.35 billion by 2000. Poorer nations will experience the worst crowding and food shortages. Mexico City, for example, may reach 30 million.

Poor diet will literally lower the strength and intelligence of millions. International tensions will make today's headlines seem calm.

What can we do? We can urge change in federal policies going in two directions. Economic incentives for development can make leaving prime land alone into good dollar sense. Economic incentives to farmers can get them out of the current pressure where many cannot afford not to sell.

We can do even more closer to home. One county in New York has purchased the development rights for 3,300 acres. Local government can identify prime farm land and protect it from urban sprawl.

When we hear arguments about highways or any construction we must stop thinking it is only one little project. A few more little projects promise our children disaster early in the next century.

WE NEED a new land ethic which treasures America's greatest resource.

The first step is moral and hinges on our attitudes. Beginning with stewardship convictions in worship, we must change the way Americans think about land.

WRC logo contest deadline extended

Area artists interested in designing a new symbol for the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center have until Oct. 15 to submit their designs. The center is seeking a design incorporating its WRC initials and showing the kind of services it offers. The winning design will win a $50 cash award and will be used by the center on its letterheads and brochures. It may also find a place on items like mugs and T-shirts. It also will be printed in this newspaper, along with three runner-up designs that will win $10 each. Jean Christiansen, center director, said the design should be "non-political, representing the diverse groups that use the center," and simple in concept so it can be effectively reproduced. A single color is advised.

Entries should be no larger than 5x7 inches, and they should be delivered or mailed to the Schoolcraft College Resource Center, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, before the Oct. 15 deadline. Each entry should include the contestant's name, address and telephone number. Judging will be done Oct. 24 by a panel including Glenna Merillat, Observer & Eccentric creative servces director; Laura Toy, a member of the Schoolcraft Women's Advisory Committee, and Lincoln Lao, a member of the college's art faculty.

Dr. Donald Reudinger will lead a seminar for adults on human sexuality from Friday evening to Sunday afternoon, Oct.3-5, at St. John Provincial Seminary, 44011 Five Mile, Plymouth.

The seminar includes presentations, films and small group discussions that are designed to help married couples become aware of their attitudes and feelings regarding sexuality. Each group is had two leaders under the direction of Dr. Ruedinger. The seminar does not address the moral issues of sexuality. It is intended to help people get along with themselves and their partners. To share the experience and enrich their marriage, married couples are encouraged to attend together. Cost of the seminar, including room and board, is $120 per person, $175 per married couple. To register or obtain more information, call the academic odean's office at 453-6200, ext. 68 or 71.

Ragtime

A couple share their love playing old piano music

By JIM WINDELL

Ragtime music brought them together and now it sometimes keeps them apart.

But Bob and Linda Milne like it that way. Often when they meet, it's over their own upright piano on which they both joyously toil, playing ragtime music six nights a week.

Bob and Linda may be the only husband and wife ragtime piano players in the country. Both play the syncopated music of an earlier era at Diggers restaurant on Grand River in Farmington Hills.

Bob performs 5:30-10 p.m. Mondays and 8:30-10 p.m. Tuesdays. Linda works 5:30-8 p.m. Tuesdays-Fridays and then rushes over to Charley's Crab in Troy to play from 8:30 p.m. till midnight. She works the Diggers' 6-11 p.m. shift $aturday nights and is back at the Crab 6-10 p.m. Sundays.

"I DIDN'T know anyone around Detroit was playing rags, but I went to Charley's Crab with a friend and there was Bob playing ragtime," Linda said. "He was not only playing rags other composers had written, he was playing some he had written. To me, that was amazing.

Two years later, they were married.

Both enjoy talking about their music. Linda is demure and frequently refers questions to her husband. Bob deems diffident but has a funny streak that starts to emerge when he loosens up.

Bob Milne not only plays ragtime music in an authentic style, he is also one of the few writers of original rags around today

"All my life I've been able to make up melodies in my head and remember them. I thought everyone could do that," Milne said. He played his first rag, "Flypaper Rag," for several years before he got around to writing it down on paper.

NOW, HE HAS written some 30 rags, six of which appear on his first album, "Boogie, Blues & Rags," released last year.

"I also write art songs called European lieders. This is a distinctive type of vocal composition that came into being in the 18th century," Milne said. He has written 25 art songs around the poetry of Robert Frost and Michigan poet Stillman Elwell, a personal friend.

"You don't publish art songs," he said. "Publishers can't sell them, and besides that, no one eve heard of them. I write them and enjoy them and Linda enjoys them.

Milne grew up between Rochester, Mich., and Rochester, N.Y. At age 13 he began playing the French horn and following high school, attended the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y.

During his school years there, he played the French horn in the Rochester Philharmonic. Later, when he attended the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, he played the horn in the Baltimore Symphony. He had been turned off to piano lessons at a young age. "It was all because of a little Schubert piece," Milne said, allowing his wry sense of humor to show. "It was written in minor, but I played it in major. The piano teacher was horrified, and I said I thought it sounded better. She was furious and I lost interest.'

Symphony features Barber

Maestro Antal Dorati will be on the podium for two 8:30 p.m. performances with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Thursday and Saturday

These concerts are the second of a three-week series honoring distinguished American composers celebrating milestone birthdays in 1980. This week's performances salute Samuel Barber. The featured soloist will be Italo Babini, the orchestra's principal

The program will include two works by Barber, Medea's Meditation and Dance of Vengeance with the Cello Concerto. The remainder of the program is Strauss's Ein Heldenleben. Concertmaster Gordon Staples will be the violin soloist in the Strauss work.

Guitarist and recording artist Jose Feliciano will join conductor Richard Hayman for the Friday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts this week.

The program will include the Overture to Auber's "The Bronze Horse," E. Strauss's Clear Track Polka Opus 45, Schonherr's Oktoberfest-Musik Opus 25, and the premiere of Feliciano's Concierto de Paulinho. The remainder of Feliciano's program will be announced from the stage.

 Michigan Opera Theater is looking for a dozen "supers" - non-singing extras - for its production of Verdi's "Rigoletto." Nedded are six men and six women of all ages and sizes. "The only experience necessary is an ability to walk across a room without falling down, plus a certain degree of composure under performing conditions,' says productions director Dwight Bowes.

Performances will be Oct. 24, 26, 29, 31 and Nov. 1. Supers will be needed each evening the week of Oct. 20 and four times in the week before that. For more information, call 963-3717.

Reservations Accepted

The Friday concert is at 8:30 p.m. and the Sunday concert at 3:30 p.m. All of the concerts are at Ford Auditorium. For ticket information, call 962-5524.

"Yellow Submarine" (1968) and 'Stoned," 7 and 9 p.m. today at Waterman Campus Center on the Schoolcraft College campus, phone 591-6400, ext. 380, $1. Running time 85 minutes.

The Beatles are going on 40, and they've been separated for longer than they were together, but their music remains young. "Submarine" was made near the end of the Liverpudlians' neardecade together, and it features some of their best sounds. Yet the animated movie is as worthwhile as the accompanying music in this George Dunningdirected cinematic trip. "Stoned" is a 10-minute bonus, a visual treat, that offers recordings of the Beatles' "Penny Lane" and "Strawberry Fields." Rat-

"Walkabout" (1971), 7:30 and 10 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Cass City Cinema in the First Unitarian Church, 4605 Cass at Forest, phone 832-6309, $2. Running time 95 minutes.

The film is something of an unknown quantity, but its director, Nicholas Roeg, is not. The Stone's Mick Jagger appeared in Roeg's "Performance" (1972) and his "The Man Who Fell to Earth' (1976) featured rocker David Bowie. The haunting "Don't Look Now" (1973), with Julie Christie and Donald Sutherland, was Roeg's best work. "Walkabout," a British production about two lost Australian children who must rely upon an aborigine for survival, sounds as promising as the earlier films proved to be. A young Jenny Agutter stars. Not rated.

"The Apartment" (1960), 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7. Originally 125 minutes.

Director Billy Wilder and Jack Lemmon teamed up again, one year after their smashing "Some Like It Hot," to make a slightly more serious comedy.

"Apartment" has its share of pathos as well as laughs and splendid performances from Lemmon, Shirley Mac-Laine, Fred MacMurray, Ray Walston and Edie Adams. Story of ambitious young paper-shuffler loaning his apartment key to bosses for one-night stands won best-picture Oscar. Rating: $3.25.

"Roman Holiday" (1953), 1 p.m.: Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 119 minutes.

Picture Audrey Hepburn at 24, as a princess, cutting loose for a Roman holiday - incognity. That's the focus of this William Wyler film set in Rome, also starring Gregory Peck and Eddie Albert. It's your standard princesswishes-she-could-be-a-regular-gal story, except Audrey is charming as can be, and Gregory as handsome. Togeth-'er they're dynamite. Fifties (and '60s and '70s) heartthrob Hepburn won an Oscar for her role. Rating: $3.25.

"Seven Samurai" (1954), 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Detroit Film Theatre in the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, phone 832-2730, $2. Running time 208 minutes.

Film seven of 17 in the film theater's season-long tribute to Japanese director Akira Kurosawa is "Seven Samurai," considered by many as one of the best action epics in film history. The plot, about swordsmen hired to protect a small, 16th-century Japanese village from bandit raids, was the basis of the 1960 American western "The Magnificent Seven." "Samurai," starring Toshiro Mifume, won an Academy Award as best foreign film of the year. Rating: $3.

"Jaws" (1975), 8 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 121 minutes.

Director Steven Spielberg let viewers conjure their own dark visions of the man-eating shark before exposing more than a dorsal fin to the Martha's Vinyard beach crowd. Then he tempered the terror with wit and vivid characterizations, making "Jaws" an extremely frightening and entertaining film. The scene in which old salt Robert Shaw and wise-cracking oceonographer Richard Dreyfuss compare battle scars is a classic. Roy Scheider as the small-town sheriff plays the perfect foil. Rating: $3.50.

"Murder is My Business" (1946), about 3. a.m. Tuesday on Ch. 62. Originally 64 minutes.

Running time alone says a lot about this post-war shamus story. Hugh Beaumont (the father in "Leave It to Beaver") plays Mike Shayne, private eye, and he plays it slick, fast and cool. The late 30s and '40s were the heyday of quickie American detective thrillers: The Falcon, Bulldog Drummond, Philo Vance. Not to mention the quality dicks, the $25-a-day, boys, Sam Spade and Philip Marlowe. Just don't expect the pearls of Raymond Chandler to slip from the chops of this greasy gumshoe. Rating: $1.10.

It was love at first piano rag for this couple

Milne returned to the piano in college and began blaying for sing-alongs. Moving to Detroit, he played at the Dakota Inn and at the Red Garter Saloon. "I fell into playing ragtime," Milne said.

"I started playing rags before I really knew what they were. I figured if I hit one hand sooner, it would be syncopated and more interesting. That's the way I played sing-along."

Later, he borrowed a book on ragtime music from the library and taught himself the rest of what he had failed to pick out intuitively on his own. He still hasn't returned that book.

LINDA MILNE came to ragtime through a slightly different route. Her grandmother was a Detroit church organist and a dominant influence in her life. Linda began studying classical piano at age 5. "I didn't even know about ragtime as a child," she said.

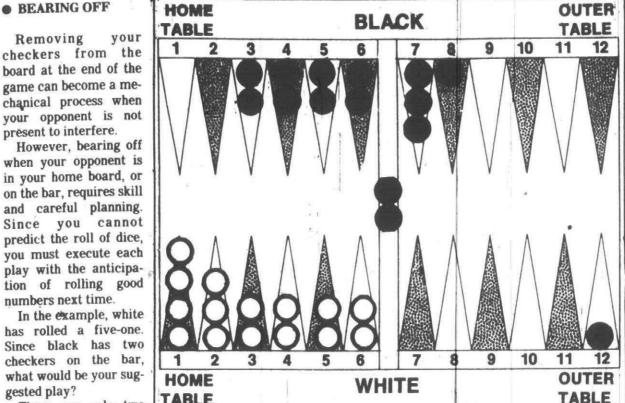

In college she majored in French with the intention of being a teacher. Hearing ragtime music changed all that.

"I happened to pick up a record produced by Mike Montgomery," she said. Montgomery is a well-known Oakland County piano player and early-sheet-music and piano-roll collector who is an expert on ragtime and other popular music of the early 20th century

"I heard Scott Joplin piano roll music. I just had to learn the 'Maple Leaf Rag.' From then on, I played rags.

After teaching herself to play rags through sheet music and records, Linda took her first professional job in 1978 at the Dakota Inn. She came to the Clamdiggers earlier this year.

quires bearing a checker off the 5 point and moving the extra checker to the 4 point. The second play involves moving both checkers from the 6 point to the 1 and 5 points.

The extreme danger with this move is that should white, on his next roll, get combinations of threes, fours, fives or sixes without the one or two, white would be forced to leave a shot. Doubles threes, fours, fives and sixes play poorly also. The odds are too great of this happening - even a second time.

Nancy Gurwin

Take the lesser of two evils. By bearing off one checker from the 5 point and moving the other up to the 4 point, your bad numbers are only five-one, six-one, and double fours, fives and sixes. Much better odds than the other play.

Defense wins for Plymouth Salem girls' basketball.

In fact, it's been the main ingredient for Rocks in all six of their victories this season. The latest win came Tuesday night as coach Bob Blohm's team beat highly regarded Ann Arbor Huron,

"This is the best defensive team I've ever had," said Blohm, now in his third year at Salem. "We played defense about as well as we've played all sea-

"We played another good first quarter," said Blohm, whose team jumped out to an early 15-8 advantage. "Offensively we moved the ball well against their zone. We hit the open man. Defensively we were dynamite. Our position and rotation helpside was outstanding."

Salem took a 25-16 into the dressing room at halftime on the strength of junior forward Eileen Moore's seven points and 10 rebounds.

"Against Huron we wanted to contain and challenge," Blohm said. "We concentrated on stopping (Kathy) Dyer."

The Huron guard Blohm spoke of led all scorers with 14 points. Moore and Jan MacKenzie, who shot well from the perimeter, tallied 12 and 10 respectively for the Rocks.

"We played nine players tonight and all of them played super 'D'. We varied our pressure and gave them a lot of different looks.

Salerh led 35-22 going into the final quarter. Huron made a late run, but had too little, too late.

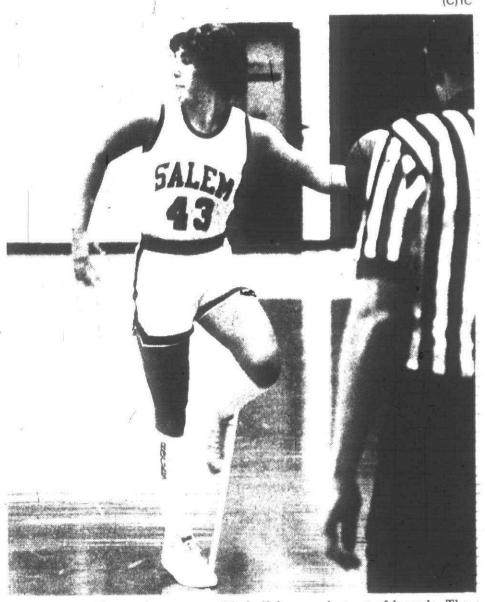

The Rocks, now 6-0 overall and ranked No. 2 in the Observer Cage poll, travel to Ypsilanti at 7:45 p.m. Thursday in another non-league battle.

Coaches' cage poll needs refining

Something quite hilarious came across my desk the other day that would interest area girle basketball

A flyer titled "Michigan High School Girls' Basketball Coaches' Poll" came out with state rankings for the week of Sept. 29. Frankly, it's an eye opener.

A panel of 20 coaches vote on the top 10 teams in four different classes - A, B, C, and D. It represents a cross section of coaches from around the state.

The Detroit metropolitan area, however, the most populous in the state, is represented by just two coaches, Ed Kavanaugh of Livonia Ladywood and Diane Laffey of Harper Woods Regina.

Of course, Flint Northern, with a long winning streak, deserves the top spot in Class A. They are defending state champs two times and are 5-0 thus far in 1980.

Kavanaugh's Ladywood team is ranked No. 2 in Class B behind Flint Beecher. Ladywood's defeat came at the hands of Royal Oak Shrine, a Class C school. Shrine, however, is nowhere to be found, even as an honorable mention pick, in the rankings. I found it to be quite humorous that Redford St. Agatha, sporting a 8-0 mark, can't even gain honorable mention status in Class

Of the 20 coaches who voted last week, not one team from that group is unranked. Negaunee coach Karen Clements, whose team is 2-2, saw fit to put her team on the honorable mention list in Class C over St. Agatha. Leland coach Larry Glass' team is 6-0 and ranked No. i Class D. He is able to vote for his own team.

Livonia Bentley's, rated No. 1 in Class A in the Observer poll with 7-1 mark, can't even merit an honorable mention by the "coaches poll." Bloomfield Hills Lahser, unbeaten and ranked No. 1 by the Eccentric in Oakland County, like Bentley, failed to get any mention

And how about Plymouth Salem, regional finalist last year and upset winner over PSL runnersup Detroit Mumford. The Rocks are 6-0 this fall and were also neglected by the new

The current rankings prove one thing: $ome coaches who are voting are volunteering their services for selfserving interests. They are slapping their fellow coaches in the face with these types of rankings.

THE DETROIT metro area is neglected quite a bit in the latest coaches poll. It will remain a joke if the current process continues. This is a bad start for rankings in girls' basketball, a sport struggling to gain fan support.

First-year coach Richard Barr and his football team would like no more than to give Friday's Plymouth Canton homecoming crowd a good feeling when they leave Centennial Educational Park field.

The Chiefs will face Northville, sporting a 2-2 overall record. The Mustangs are coming off a 40-7 loss to Class B power Farmington Harrison. Canton, which lost two weeks ago to Harrison, 23-16, met the Western Six League's other power last Friday, Walled Lake Western, coming up short, 28-22.

Canton, 1-3 overall, is in good spirits, according to Barr, despite three straight close losses.

"The kids are up," said Barr. "They're looking forward to this game. They think they can win and I do, too.

takes - the penalties and fumbles." • Northville is not afraid to go the air with quarterback Dave Greer, who riddled Canton last season in a 21-6 victo-

The Mustangs also have a fine split receiver in 6-foot-5 Dave Ward.

"They'll do what they can," said Barr about the Mustangs. "They have a good tailback and Ward does a good job. They'll try to get the ball to him.

"They (Northville) will run a pro-I offensively and a slot-I. They can run power also and try to counter you off

Canton senior quarterback Billy Childs will probably start, said Barr. He missed last week's game because of an ankle injury. Junior Chris Susock was a capable replacement and is the "quarterback of the future," according to the Canton coach.

"Bill is ready to go," Barr said. "Susock did a good job under the circumstances last week. It was his first varsity start.

The Canton coach said the team is relatively healthy for Friday's game. Junior running back Steve Hamblin, however, is out with a knee problem (cartilige) and may miss the rest of the

"WE'RE NOT going to try anything different for this game," said Barr. "We have enough things in right now.

"I don't think Northville is as bad as that 40-7 score indicates. I scoutedthem against John Glenn and they're a pretty good team.

"We feel we have a chance. If we execute properly, we'll be okay." Barr has a new perspective on the game since becoming a head coach. "It's really different than being an assistant," he said. "There is a lot more responsibility, of course. "You take it more personally when you lose. I felt really bad after the Harrison game. But you learn to come down to reality. You just have to keep your way.' Barr is hoping things will hange for the better when the final horn sounds

It's not getting any easier to rate the area's top girls' basketball teams. Our poll of experts tended to disagree on the lineup of teams in Class A. The Observer sports panel agreed once again that Livonia Bentley is the top Class A team in the area with Livonia Ladywood in the No. 1 spot in Class B-C-D. Redford St. Agatha, however, is close behind Ladywood, sporting an impressive 8-0 record. Our panel also agreed that Plymouth

Salem should remain ranked No. 2 in Class A after posting victories over Allen Park and Ann Arbor Huron. The Rocks are also unbeaten at 6-0. The logjam exists for the final five ranked Redford Union, now 4-2 overall, tripped No. 3 ranked Livonia Franklin in overtime.

The Patriots, however, rebounded over Farmington, too, by one point earlier this season.

impressively, scoring a 57-52 triumph Tuesday night over a good Farmington club, the only team to beat Bentley this season. RU, however, owns a victory

Plymouth Canton, ranked No. 4 last week, continued to play well on the road, beating tough Walfed Lake Central Tuesday night, 54-52. The Chiefs own road wins over Livonia Stevenson (its first loss) and Westland John Glenn.

Bentley, paced by senior Carla Campbell and sophomore Kim Archer, beat last week's No. 6 ranked team. Redford Thurston, by 14 points Tuesday. Thurston, however, beat Plymouth Canton on the road as did Franklin. What is a sport panel to do?

Rating the teams this week was much harder than the week before.

Bowling scores sky-rocketed throughout the western suburbs during the past week and some of them may not be surpassed over the remainder of the season.

The chief marksman was 17-year-old Jeff Newsom, of Plymouth, who posted an 807 series- highest of the metropolitan area, and second perefect game in two weeks.

While he was splattering the pins in the Pile Drivers league at Plaza Lanes, Tim Detheredge, a teammate, was rolling 738. And, not to be outdone, the sharpshooters in the mixed classic at Westland Bowl produced three counts that broke the 700 barrier. Highest among these was Gary Zarick with 749, Quintin Greene with 719 and Rick Lang

But one of the real features came when Pat Lisowski broke the 700 barrier in the ladies classic at Garden Lanes with games of 267, 233 and 217 for 717. She far outdistanced the field as Barbara Garlow, her closest rival, had a 659.

ASIDE FROM his 807 series that came on games of 300, 259 and 248, Newsom's perfect game was his second in as many weeks and set him apart from the rest of the sharpshooters for the week. Newsom also did well in the Pin Busters loop where he had a 609, but trailed Randy Pope, a 19-year -old who fired a 679 and Tim Detheredge who fired a 641.

Another in this loop who sent the pins flying was Dave Kauppi with 674.

Not far behind these heavy topplers came Dennis Seeman, who used a middle game of 248 for 689. There were 58 double- century games in the league that is only four weeks old

IN THE LADIES CLASSIC at Livonia Lanes Evelyn Miller did not win a game but took the series with 482-114-

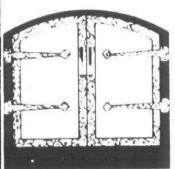

In the individual games, Loretta Maersch won the first with 191-35-226, Betty Markewardt captured the second with 156-53-209 and Lois Merriman took the third with 175-35-210

ONLY THREE PINS separated the top three marksmen in the Monday morning league at Westland Bowl Bob Granier was high with 631. Kevin Krohn was next with 629 and Bob Sloan landed third with 628./1 JAN VAN-DERWILL came back to the winner's circle in the Noon Classic at Farmington Lanes when she showed the way with a 205 in 612. In the high school league Larry Van Dyke had a 217 in the middle for 603 and Fred Neese had a 600,/1 MIKE ILEAKOFF was high man in the TGIF league at Garden Lanes with 644.

Central charged back in the second half on some timely foul shooting to make the game close. Canton, however, never relinquished the

Carter key to U-M fortunes

By W.W. EDGAR

It has been a long time since one player has dominated the football scene at the University of Michigan. But, judging from the first three games, the fortunes of the Wolverines will rise or fall on the performances of Anthony Carter, the speedy wide

This was proven last Saturday when he caught two touchdown passes from John Wangler and missed a third TD, and a winning score, when the ball tipped off his fingers in the end zone in the final minute of play.

Not since Tom Harmon raced up and down the gridiron for the Maize and Blue in the late 30's has so much depended on one player. And now many of the critics - and even some of the coaches agree that the success of the team will depend on Carter, whose speciality is catching passes, running back kick-offs and punts and being a constant threat.

ANOTHER major role he has been playing, though little has been said about it, is that he is just about forcing Coach Bo Schembechler to change his style of option football to the wide open game.

Bo just about admitted that last Saturday when he started John Wangler at quarterback in place of Rich Hewlett, the former Plymouth Salem star, and kept him in the game to the final gun.

Walking off the field, Schembechler realized what was happening and remarked, "I don't want a passing team". But that seems his only choice with Carter on the loose.

"Carter could take us to the annual meeting with Ohio State for the Big Ten title," Don Lund, the assistant athletic director, remarked in the press box. He is just that good and Bo will have to use him as he did today.

Another who places Michigan's hopes on the flashy runner is Bennie Oosterbaaan, the former ooach and Michigan's all-time All-American.

"HE IS ALWAYS a threat when he is in there," Bennie explained, " and there is no telling when he will get away and change the entire trend of a

When asked if he thought Carter would force Bo to discard the option offense, Bennie answered:

"What else can he do with a fellow like Carter in the line-up. He has to rely on Carter's speed and go for the long gains."

Bo is predicting another "knee knocker" this Saturday when California invades the stadium with Rich Campbell, another Heisman Trophy candidate. It will be the last game before Michigan returns to conference play.

And Carter will be the player to watch when Michigan tries to end the slump that brought defeat in five of the last six games three of which came in the final three last season.

Franklin cagers nip Farmington

It's like the little girl with the curl. When the Patriots are good, they can be very, very good. When they're bad, they can be just awful.

Franklin played well Tuesday and tripped Farmington, 57-52, in a non-conference game.

Julie Wilga, a guard, scored 21 points for the Patriots. Mary Kay McNall, center, added 20 and Anna Collins, a forward, nine.

"Their big girl (Stacey Green) got three fouls in a hurry. When she was out, we built up a halftime lead of 37-25," said Franklin coach Chuck Hebes-

"I think what helped us is that we pressed them most of the game. We played a much better game defensively than we did against RU (a loss)," Hebestreit added.

The Patriots also cut down on the turnovers. They had only 19 against Farmington.

Franklin won the JV game 42-40.

CLARENCEVILLE destroyed Dearborn Heights Riverside 56-17 in a non-league game.

Cherryl Ranta set a single-game scoring record for Clarenceville with 30 points. The guard made good on 14-of-18 shots from the field.

"She played her best game ever. Most of them were of close-range and layups on fast breaks," said Laurie Stasiak, coach of the Trojans.

Riverside managed only one point during the entire first quarter, five in the second, four in the third and seven in the fourth. "They weren't together tonight," Stasiak added.

Sharon Laird contributed 10 points to the Trojans' offensive effort.

LIVONIA BENTLEY kept its patience and downed Redford Thurston 38-24 in a non-conference tussle.

"It was a boring, slowdown basketball game," said Bentley coach Tom Lang. "They just held on to the ball. They didn't want to play with us or run with us, so he just held on."

The score was tied 7-7 after the first quarter, the Bulldogs led 21-12 at the half and 29-20 after three periods

Thurston made just eight field goals during the entire game.

"That was a tough game to play that way," Lang said. "You have to work hard, especially on defense. We didn't give up many easy shots at all." Carla Campbell scored 11 points for the Bulldogs, Kim Archer 10 and Tina Ostach eight. Lori Swanson snared six rebounds during the second half Donna DePerro led Thurston with 13 points. Bentley also triumphed in the JV game, 42-29.

REDFORD UNION, as expected, had little trouble with Livonia Churchill. The Panthers won the non-conference game, 61-35. Lori Pastula, a 5-11 pivot, scored 22 points for RU. Cathi Hengy and Pam Drury each added 10.

Julie Steadman tossed in 10 points for Churchill. The Panthers forged quarter leads of 18-8, 35-16 and 51-22. RU also won the JV game 43-39.

LIVONIA STEVENSON outscored Ann Arbor Pioneer during every quarter on the way to a 70-45

All nine Spartans saw action and all nine scored. Karen Kelley netted 16 points, Beth Mueller 15 and Amy Lang 10. We were determined to get back on the track here after two heartbreaking losses. We went out w there and got them early," said Stevenson coach Jim George.

Dear Friends:

Please be advised that the one and only International Chicken Flying Contest, commonly known as the "Fowl Festival" will take place this Sunday, October 5, in the heart of Plymouth. That's right—downtown Plymouth near Kellogg Park. The festivities start with a parade at 1:00 p.m., followed by the flying chickens at 2:30 p.m. This tremendous event receives exposure on all local 70 stations. So, if you're feeling "cooped up," come join us and look for our entry. The Flight Of The Century, and help us "egg" him on to win. Good flying!
