State cuts slice deeper than schools planned

For the past few months Plymouth-Canton schools have been waiting for the ax to fall.

The ax fell last week.

Now the central administration is waiting to see how deep the blade has cut into the 1980-81 operating budget.

Gov. William Milliken last week announced cuts totalling $288.5 million to balance the state budget without having to increase taxes.

Among the latest cuts was $65 million to local school districts. The state already had proposed reducing educational payments by $160 million.

If the governor's latest cut is approved by the Legislature, educational funding from the state for the coming year would be about $223 million less than a year ago.

The governor's latest cut also included reductions of $20 million in revenuesharing to local cities and townships, $60 million to colleges and universities, $4 million from the state police, $23 million in general assistance welfare, $11 million from mental health, $12.4 million from the Department of Natural Resources, $500,000 from public health, and some $77 million from 19 other state departments.

Dr. John M. Hoben, superintendent of schools, believed a deep cut would be made in the local budget but was unsure as of Friday what the exact fig-

"We're not sure whether the latest $65 million reduction will come totally in state aid or whether categorial aid state aid payments would be about $2.2 also will be cut," Hoben said Friday.

"Our information, though — and it's strictly guesswork - is that about $36 million will come from state aid and $29 million from categorical."

Earlier cuts proposed by the governor in categorial include reductions in funding for transportation and special education. For Plymouth-Canton, the previous categorial cuts represented a $500,000 loss for transportation alone.

Merchants air gripes at hearing

By ARLENE FUNKE

Do some Canton Township officials need a crash course in getting along with people?

Are regulations too stiff? Or are business persons trying to blame someone else for their own shortcomings?

The answer may be a little bit of each, judging by the reactions at a recent public hearing of a small business task force.

The task force, which was formed last summer, is working with the chamber of commerce to bridge a longstanding rift between the business community and officials over ordinances.

The hearing last Thursday in Township Hall was intended to collect the gripes of small business people. But only about 20 persons, mostly business people, showed up.

Task force chairman Robert Czerniak, of Country Deli, had hoped for a large turnout and had sent notices of the meeting to more than 200 businesses of all types

Czerniak said he was "encouraged" by the interest of supervisor-elect James Poole. He urged merchants to

"We're here to gather facts," said Czerniak. "Unless you people tell us, it's going to be hard to correct it."

MOST OF the complaints were centered on two issues: Township regulations, especially the sign ordinance, and a "poor attitude" on the part of some township officials.

Fulfilling promise

Donahue returns salary

Current Township Treasurer James Donahue is making good on his pledge to return some $900 to the township.

Donahue is donating his bi-weekly treasurer's salary of $212 to the Canton Township library. So far, the library has received a total of about $850 of the amount due.

The part-time treasurer had promised in April to repay the township a portion of his $7,500 salary after turning over administrative duties to Deputy Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz.

Donahue earlier had estimated that he owed the township about $900. He retained his seat on the township board as an alternative to resigning completely because of poor health.

HEAD LIBRARIAN Deborah O'Connor confirmed last week that Donahue had submitted four checks between August-October. Donahue said he has forwarded another check within the past few days.

"I think that's pretty close," said

Donahue. "I plan to sit down and figure it all out this weekend.

Donahue said his pledge to repay the township is voluntary. No one on the township board could force him to return the money, he said.

Donahue added that state law forbids an official to cut his own salary. He said the township's attorney advised him, for tax purposes, to make a donation to a specific township fund.

Currently, the only fund is for the li-

"I've always supported the library," said Donahue.

"We have the authority to accept these donations," said Douglas Ritter, chairman of the library commission. 'We accept them gratefully.

The present arrangement of a parttime township treasurer will end this week. Starting Nov. 20, the position will be a four-year, full-time post

Lucas vows lawsuit to rescue road patrol

By TERI BANAS

Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas announced Friday his intent to sue the Wayne County Board of Commissioners over their upcoming plans to cut the sheriff's department by more than onefourth strength.

The proposed cutback of 255 officers and clerical workers would virtually eliminate the patrol of secondary roads in out-county communities as well as the department's investigation depart-

Lucas said he would file the lawsuit "in the next few days" - before the adoption of the county budget. Action on the budget is expected tomorrow.

Announcing that he would use his personal finances to fight the county, Lucas said he has secured as legal counsel a Southfield attorney who previously represented the sheriff's deputies union, Local 502.

"I cannot as a man of good conscious and as a good police officer accept the decision of the board of commissioners," he said. "That action would leave a great proportion of the county virtually without police protection and I have the constitutional responsibility to provide public safety.'

Lucas also directed his plans toward those communities which have ongoing private contracts with the sheriff's patrol, particularly Plymouth and Brownstown townships as well as the city of Romulus. The board of commissioners action would phase out those contracts within 60 days.

"I plan to live up to those contractual agreements," he said. "And this legal action will give me the ability to go to court and ask for its support to fulfill the obligation."

Lucas also chastised the commissioners action by calling it "a callous way of doing things," as the sheriff's department had no input in decisionmaking, and had rejected his suggestion to reconsider its cutback, Lucas

"We've been understaffed for many years and now we have nothing left to cut. Anymore would cripple us.'

The department's strength peaked at almost 1,200 officers five years ago. It now has a staff of about 850. In eliminating 255 persons, the department would maintain only the staff needed to man both of its jails (in Westland and Detroit) as well as supply courtroom

"This action would remove every officer from the street. What wil happen to those people who call for help and there's no one there?"

Also critical to communities in western Wayne County would be the elimination of the department's motorized and mounted patrols of Hines Park. In the past year, increased incidents of rowdyism in the park brought much public outcry from bordering commun-

According to Lucas and sheriff's deputies, the recent addition of a mounted police force was supplemented by contributions as well as Lucas' own finances.

The department presently logs about 50,000 complaints annually.

Aside from the county's present plans to reduce its deficit, previous legal battles have colored the waters of police protection in Wayne County.

Major reason given by commissioners for the cutback is a 1974 court decision that restricts the county from dropping its manpower below a "minimum-manning" level.

In addition, Wayne County townships four years ago took the county to court over the funding of secondary road patrols. In this case, the townships attempted to secure patrols without direct payment for the service.

History buffs eye land as possible site for park

By ARLENE FUNKE

Canton's history buffs are looking for a low-cost way to set up a historical park. The Canton Historical Commission may ask the township to designate about four acres of land on Canton Center Road as a historical area, or to agree to a long-term lease at $1 a year.

The land in question is south of Cherry Hill and belongs to the township. It surrounds the one-room Canton Center School, which already has been earmarked for use as a museum.

Researching the options is the Canton Historical Commission. The seven-member commission was organized last year to implement historical preservation, according to Lillian Hauk.

Mrs. Hauk is president of the historical commission and outgoing president of the historical society. She said the two groups try to "work hand in

"THAT'S WHAT we're hoping for - to use the property for a historical (site)," said Mrs. Hauk. This would have to go through the commission.

"We're biding our time, more or less," she added. "We just may go back to the board."

Mrs. Hauk said the acreage surrounding the school would be desirable "in case we get any historical homes. (But) I don't know the legal aspects about our taking the land at this time.

Mrs. Hauk said the historical society has been told it could have a small-sized "salt-box" style wooden structure, provided there is a place to put it. The society also would have to make arrangements to move it, said Mrs. Hauk.

She added that she was unsure of the present location of the structure, which was offered through a commission board member.

A salt box house is a square, plain building which was very popular in New England.

"I would surmise (the building) is in Canton," said Mrs. Hauk. "It was an early American design."

THE HISTORICAL Society last month drafted a letter asking the township board to "present" the schoolhouse and land surrounding it to the society. However, that item was deleted from the board's agenda at the request of the historical society. Mrs. Hauk said more information needed to be gathered. Attorney Eldon Johnson later said that as owners, the society probably would be liable for property taxes. Johnson, a Canton resident, is working with the historical groups.

"The way I interpret the (state) statute is that the historical society isn't included in (non-profit) groups which are exempt from paying real estate taxes," said Johnson. "A historical society really can't afford to pay property taxes.'

Johnson said the law specifically spells out which groups qualify for property property tax exemption. Groups which would qualify are Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA and colleges.

The attorney added that one option would be a 99-year lease at $1 a year, "which I think would be beneficial to the township and to the citizens as a whole." He said he is looking into other possibili-

TOWNSHIP PLANNER James Kosteva said another option would be for the township to designate a parcel of land for historical purposes.

Such is the case with the 103-acre Greenmead historical cluster located at Eight Mile and Newburgh roads in Livonia.

Greenmead is owned by the city of Livonia and operated by a historical commission. It contains houses, churches and other buildings reflecting earlier periods of Livonia's history. "Certainly the land (on Canton Center Road) could remain in township ownership and simply (be) a township decision that the land would be used for those purposes," said Kosteva.

"It would still tax-exempt property," added Kosteva. "I don't see why the historical society would have to own it at all.'

WHILE THOSE plans still are being discussed, work is continuing to restore the red brick Canton Center School for use as a museum.

Mrs. Hauk said the plumbing and furnace have been repaired, and she praised the assistance of township building inspectors.

The society has held some fund-raising events to help pay for costs, and clubs such as Rotary have also pledged to help.

"The Rotary has promised $4,000 over a fouryear period," said Mrs. Hauk. "We're learning to be self-sufficient," she added

BUT CZERNIAK said all the problems can't be the officials.

Some of the business people are "their own worse enemies," said Czerniak. "They'll sit in their stores all night griping about how bad business is, but they don't come to the meetings.'

Czerniak pointed out that many small merchants hold down full-time jobs in addition to operating their businesses. He believes many don't know how of to properly merchandise their products.

"I think there's more problems than what we've heard," said Czerniak

Reaction to the public hearing was mixed. Neubauer noted the poor turnout and said he wasn't "necessarily encouraged."

On Oct. 28 — while Greenstein was vacationing in Arizona - the board approved a zoning amendment change which would clear the way for the construction of an entertainment complex near Haggerty and Ford.

The change reduced the previous 400-seat requirement for movie theaters. The requirement, which conflicted with site plans for The Center, originally was passed on the grounds that small movie theaters are sometimes profitably used to show pornographic films. But township attorney Bert Burgovne questioned the legal defensibility of the requirement.

Although the trustess agreed to new discussion on the issue at their meeting last week, a motion by Greenstein to rescind the Oct. 28 amendment lost 4-2. Trustee Stephen Larson voted with Greenstein in favor of the motion to down a recommendation by the planning commission to amend the seating requirement.

Treasurer James Donahue maintained that Apigian would retain the right to build The Center by virtue of the Oct. 28 site plan approval. Increasing the seating requirement for movie theaters would not affect those plans,

Lunch program hits deficit

The federally-funded hot lunch pro- overseeing the program decides what gram for senior citizens is losing about to spend it on.

$1,000 a day. Livonia officials, who administer the nutrition program for Plymouth, Canton and other western Wayne County communities, announced recently that the program is broke. But a state spokesperson said the apparent budget crunch is a paper deficit, created by administrative oversights and caused by a management problem.

The spokesperson said Livonia had failed to file an application for some $21,500 in federal reimbursements and failed to include some $19,000 in other revenue on its books.

"The state know's there's a deficit and I know there's a deficit, but I'm not supposed to say there's a deficit," disagreed Joan Duggan, who directs the food program for the Out-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging.

Ms. Duggan said the $21,500 in matching federal revenue from the U.S. Department of Agriculture cannot be spent until a citizen committee

The $19,000, representing voluntary donations by the seniors, is recorded in city banks at two-week intervals when daily bank deposit slips are turned in by food workers when they submit their timesheets, Ms. Duggan explained, and will be entered as an asset when appropriate.

City accounting estimates indicate the hot lunch program faces a deficit of about $50,000 for the period from Oct. 1 to 1 Dec. 31 — a period during which meals will be served on 61 days.

THE NUTRITION program provides some 9,100 meals each day to senior citizens in 26 western Wayne communi-

Another 14 sites are served by Wayne County itself but employees at those sites are paid from funds assigned to Livionia administration.

Livonia officials believe the split between the city and county has created much of the budget dilemma. Ms. Duggan said the effect of the split was to virtually double the per-meal cost paid by Livonia.

The Wayne County Office on Aging, headed by Dante DiVitto, has administered the nutrition program since federal funds for it became available seven years ago.

Earlier this year the umbrella county structure was fragmented when Detroit and a handful of eastern suburbs created an independent aging agency.

Some 34 western Wayne County suburbs responded by forming its own aging agency, Last September the western Wayne agency awarded the city of Livonia control of, and funding for, all food programs it oversees.

DiVitto filed a lawsuit against the award in Wayne County Circuit Court and won a temporary injunction guaranteeing funding would continue to

The court order also gave DiVitto control of a kitchen where state-supplied equipment is used to cook meals.

Ms. Duggan claims that Livonia, which does not have access to the kitchen, could prepare meals at 97 cents each there instead of paying a caterer $1.60 per meal.

The court order was followed by administrative appeals filed by both sides. The appeals resulted in an amended award which split the approximately $175,000 available for a single quarter between Livonia and the county, with the city receiving $106,000.

The Legislature's failure to enact a new budget by Oct. 1 leaves a portion of the food program's revenues in

A final ruling on the court appeals is expected on Friday - the same day Livonia figures the food program will

Comic's welcome hits high note with couple

By MARIE McGEE

Midway between the cheeseboard with fresh fruit and the cold vichyssoise, Dorothy and Tom Cencer made a quick trip from the dining room to the kitchen of the Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas to have their picture taken with comedian Rip Taylor.

That's when a fellow dressed in a red waiter's jacket came walking up and made like he was going to get in the picture.

The fellow turned out to be the one person they had come to Las Vegas to meet - comedian Jerry Lewis. For Lewis, the man who annually helps raise millions of dollars to combat who lost five sons to the disease, it was an important but solemn meeting.

Lewis, who was appearing at the Sahara, shook hands and spoke briefly with the Cencers before giving the dinner audience a laugh and heading back to his show preparations. The meeting fulfilled a wish of the Cencers, who have admired Lewis for his role in raising money to combat muscular dystro-

The Cencers were invited to Las Vegas and stayed in the Sahara as the guests of John P. Thompson, president of Southland Corp., parent firm of 7-Eleven stores.

The Livonia couple, who have two muscular dystrophy, and the Cencers, grown sons, neither of whom has had any problem with MD, had been invited to Las Vegas specifically to meet Lewis as part of Southland's "Oh, Thank Heavens" star awards. The event recognized the efforts of 7-Eleven managers nationwide for their role in raising more than $4 million for "Jerry's kids."

INCLUDED IN the group was Alice Stothers, manager of a 7-Eleven store on Ann Arbor Road. It was through Mrs. Stother's efforts that the Cencers received the invitation to attend the presentations and meet Lewis.

A rendezvous in the kitchen was necessary, the Cencers were told, because it would afford them an element of privacy that probably would not be possible in the busy dining room.

Anyway, a meeting in the dining room would have spoiled the surprise for the honorees, who didn't know that Lewis was going to make an appearance before dinner. The weekend schedule of events had Lewis scheduled for an appearance Friday night as part of the awards ceremony.

It was a typical zany Jerry Lewis stage entrance - and that made it all the more memorable.

"They took us into the kitchen where we had our picture taken with comedian Rip Taylor. Then all of sudden this guy in a red waiter's jacket came busting through the doors. It was Jerry," recalled Dorothy Cencer.

"He came over and shook our hands ful people."

FOR THE CENCERS, that simple handshake spoke volumes.

"We had to get back to the dining room because the dinner was about to begin. We no sooner got to our seats when we noticed Jerry enter the dining room — still in the waiter's jacket and carrying a tray of food over head on the palm of his hand. 'That's Jerry,' we began to applaud. Everyone around us couldn't figure out what we were doing. gave him a standing ovation," the Cencers said.

"We think that there wasn't enough time. He was opening his own show that night in the Sahara and he was running a pretty tight schedule. We can understand that," the couple said.

The disappointment, however, didn't stop the Cencers from enjoying a "super weekend." They went on to take in shows by country and western star told the others at our table. Then we Freddy Fender and Tony Orlando And as might be expected, they even lost "a few dollars" playing the ever-present Then they recognized Jerry and they slot machines. They also toured Circus Circus, a casino for the bubble-gum set.

Cutting a college budget 2.8 percent is tough enough. Making the cuts when more than half your money is spent is even tougher.

"We've got our work cut out for us," said C. Nelson Grote, president of Schoolcraft College, in the wake of Gov. William G. Milliken's budget cuts last week.

It was the second time this fiscal year the governor was forced by the state constitution to make cuts due to poor tax collections in a recession. The tinuation budget." college's fiscal year began July 1.

"THEY HAVE reduced the state appropriation of all community colleges to $122.4 million," Grote said.

"If we assume we'll get the same share of that as last year, we should receive $4.7 million.

"We had estimated (in drawing up this fiscal year's budget) we would receive $5.1 million. That's the figure after you take our 1979-80 appropriation and reduce it by 1.5 percent which would be a continuation budget.

Taxi cab competition increases

Competition is healthy for some businesses. But to a lot of Southfield cab owners it's an occupational bazard

Sure competition is the American way. Yet cabbies say they're finding it tougher and tougher to get along on their own four wheels in a limping economy and flooded taxi market.

Despite the jungle out there, some cab owners share a unique camaraderie — almost like a fraternal brotherhood. Then there are the "cutthroats" who'd stop at almost nothing in order to grab a fare.

Most Southfield taxi cab owners are still stinging from the added competition spurred by the Southfield City Council last summer. Council voted to raise the number of bond plates in the community from 30 to 40.

That's when 21 taxicab license holders took the city to court but lost their battle to stop the allocation of 10 more bond plates.

Disgruntled Southfield cab owners complain they're already saddled with a sluggish market and threatened by the growth of a "highly subsidized" mass transit system that's luring away riders with cheaper fares.

SOUTHFIELD Cab Co. has for many years been an association of independent owners of 24 taxis in the city. But the umbrella started to leak. Six owners of 18 cabs recently broke away and are starting their own company — Southfield Royal.

One of the principles is Bernard Wyler who owned nine taxis under the name of Southfield Cab Co. He's been in the business eight years and is one of the bond plate holders who filed the lawsuit against the city.

I was at the Southfield City Council meeting the night the cab owners protested against the 10 extra licenses. When the session was over, I got into my car and found it had died during the meeting.

Wyler and a couple of his cabbie buddies jumped the battery and even followed me home to be sure my car and I were O.K.

Wyler seems tough, rough and outspoken. But he's fiercely loyal to fellow cabbies, shares their problems and revels in their successes. He doesn't bad mouth Southfield Cab Co. but hints at "inner strife."

"SOUTHFIELD CAB is run by a lot of members of a family," he noted. "And it takes a lot of money to feed a family these days. We all understand that."

Russell Carr, who's been in the cab business 18 years, joined Southfield Royal. City Council at first refused to issue him a bondplate because he was a complainant in the lawsuit. He said he didn't see a need for more cab licenses but as long as they were being given out, he'd like to get one. He finally did.

Other members of the new company are Ben Kline, Larry Eddens, Doris Vestich and Vince Azzoli. Azzoli is a rotund, good natured guy who loves to play Santa Claus even when it isn't Christmas.

"There's nobody like Azzoli," Wyler said fondly. "He's always giving us bags of pistachio nuts and candy. We even help him deliver them to his pals and folks who are in bad economic straits. He doesn't have to dress like Santa. He is one.

Southfield Royal cabbies figure they're taking a risk. There are 38 taxis in the city owned by Southfield Yellow, Oak Park, Northwest, Diogenes, Southfield Red and White, West Oakland, Southfield and Southfield Royal cab companies.

"The city fathers wanted competition and they got it," Wyler said. "It would be a lot better if all cabs were under one central dispatch system to save costs. But since they aren't, we have to serve ourselves.

"One of the companies is going to fall by the wayside. It could be ours, so it's do or die. We wish there was enough business for all of us. But things are going to get worse before they get better."

Cabbies are a tough breed. They're knocking themselves out to hang in there — together.

Did you know that Michigan is famous for its mushrooms and for the scientific studies of its mushrooms by native resident scholars? The mushroom flora of Michigan is estimated to number more than 2,000 known species.

County government 1980

the property of the second second

There ain't nobody in charge

For the average voter, it's easy to figure out whom to vote for in the federal government. You vote for the president and vice president as a team, a couple of U.S. senators and your friendly local congressman — four altogether.

In county government, however, you have a nightmare wading through the list of persons to be elected.

The poor Wayne County voter puts up with a prosecutor, clerk, treasurer, sheriff, register of deeds, three members of the Board of Auditors and your friendly local commissioner. And even then, the voter doesn't know who's in charge.

It's somewhat better in Oakland County. A single county executive replaces the three-member Board of Auditors, and the executive is in charge of all departments that aren't under an elected chief. And the budget gets balanced.

A WAYNE County commissioner once explained why that government is in such a mess, runs eight-digit deficits year after year and has no accountability.

"A department head has no single boss to report to. He finds and cultivates 14 friendly commissioners out of the 27 and gets his budget passed.

"There's no one with overall authority to come up with a unified, balanced budget. A board of 27 can't administer county government."

Those may not have been Bill Joyner's exact words, but I have been faithful to his meaning.

HERE ARE SOME examples — half horrible, half comic — of how Wayne County government operates:

• Did you think the elected prosecutor is the chief lawyer for the county, the way the attorney general is for the U.S. government? Not so. Back in 1971, the Board of Commissioners set up an office of Corporation Counsel to handle civil matters. The elected prosecutor, as I get the picture, handles mainly criminal matters.

• The Road Commission runs county parks, but the Sheriff's Department polices them.

 The County Planning Department plans use of county properties except for parks and roads. Those are planned by the staff of the Road Commission.

• Review and approval of new subdivisions is not a function of the county Planning Commission or Planning Department. It's a function of the Plat Board, which consists of the register of deeds (as chairman), the county clerk, the treasurer and the three members of the Board of Auditors.

The drain commissioner administers the drain laws and gets into the business of storm and sanitary drains. Somewhere along the line, however, the Board of Commissioners gave the Road Commission authority over flood control of the Rouge River.

• The county clerk keeps birth and death records for all communities outside the city of Detroit. Just why Detroit, which has all its urban problems to deal with, handles its own birth and death records I cannot explain. They just do it that way.

The Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service is the joint venture of the county government, Michigan State University and the federal government.

The most important function of government—drafting the budget proposal—is handled by a three-member Board of Auditors. If you want to win some tavern bets, ask a political loudmouth to name all three. (How's this for balance: their names are Proctor, Kelly and Mrozowski. One is black, and you can guess the ancestry of the other two.)

● There is an office of the County Medical Examiner. Remember them? They lost track of the body of that Birmingham lawyer who died in a health club. Anyway, this function is under neither the sheriff nor the Health Department, but the 27-member Board of Commissioners. How's that for accountability?

The Civil Defense office, which you would think would be under the sheriff, isn't. It's under the Board of Commissioners.

 You would guess the Bureau of Taxation would be under the treasurer, wouldn't you? Dummy. It, too, is under the Board of Commissioners.
 The Office of Program Development — now

there's a logical function to be under the budgetmaking Board of Auditors, or possibly the Planning Department, right? Dummy, again. It's under the Board of Commissioners.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT is a jungle of tangled lines of authority, of little territorial claims of predators.

Perhaps the Wayne County Charter Commission

Perhaps the Wayne County Charter Commission can clean up some of the tangle, and maybe voters will adopt a county charter with a tough executive in it.

Meanwhile, the situation is like the cartoon in which a young draftee was about to become a civilian after two years of military service. His DI, a Sgt. Snorkel type, pleaded with the soldier to reenlist, using as his clinching argument:

"You don't really want to be a civilian, do you. There ain't nobody in charge out there!"

Struggle for equality binds them

If you're a woman, the fight is the same.

That's what Mavis Arnold told a group of women political leaders last Sunday. They came to the home of Maryann Mahaffey, Detroit Councilperson, because the fight for equal rights is their fight.

A diverse group, they included a member of the governor's commission on aging, members of higher education boards, a Recorder's Court Judge, members of peace organizations, educators, a former Women's Democratic caucus chair, a member of the governor's council on medical issues and an executive assistant to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

From Detroit, the suburbs and outstate they came to hear how their Irish sisters are faring politically.

Mavis Arnold is the chairperson of the Women's Political Association in Ireland and a founding member of that group. Affiliated with the Irish National Union of journalists, she has written and recorded scripts for radio, magazines and has been a columnist and interviewer for a number of publications.

She came here to learn about how American women achieve their aims in the political arena and to compare their state with that of their Irish sisters.

"THE WOMEN listened and learned from her.
"Irish men are educated, but not their sisters," she says. "Girls are not taught math, physics, or chemistry and this is improving only slowly.

"Before 1976, a husband could put his wife and children out on the streets at will.

"And we're trying to remove the title 'illegitimate' since women are increasingly keeping their babies born out of wedlock."

Ms. Arnold says there is some progress. "Now Irish women are beginning to get protection. There have been a number of Supreme Court decisions that have helped them.

"But women are still referred to as chattels under Irish law"

In a quiet voice accented with the brogue of the Dublin area, she described the growth of the female role in her country's politics.

"Women were part of the political scene, but just to make tea and lick the stamps," she said. "When the Women's Political Association formed in 1970, it had the name but just did polite things. We learned we had to politicize."

Irish women have a long way to go, just like their American sisters. In the Irish Senate today, there are 60 men and just seven women.

"And those seven are not feminists," Ms. Arnold said. "Five are definitely not; two we're working on."

REGARDING national elections, she was appalled that our recent presidenial campaign was such a marathon endeavor. "In our country, a government can stay five years, but you can call a snap election anytime.

"The election campaign would last three weeks, so you see, the difference."

Another difference is that campaign funds are supposed to be supplied by the parties in Ireland. And "I'm appalled at what I've seen on your TV. It's wrong to slam your opponent in front of millions."

Ms. Arnold said she's been impressed by every woman she's met in her American travels. "American women have great confidence and are very articulate," she said. "So many of you have possession of power and political clout."

Southern Ireland is a very Catholic country where divorce is non-existent, but annulments can be arranged.

"The Pope said we shouldn't have a vocation outside of motherhood and I was angry," she says.

Ms. Arnold says we've won many of the battles already that Irish women are just now beginning to

We may be ahead in the battle for equality, but the fight ahead may be just as difficult as the way we've come before. It may be more difficult.

THUMB-SUCKING SYNDROME

Does thumb-sucking lead to crooked teeth? Most experts don't think occasional thumbsucking in infancy causes any problems with teeth. But there is a general agreement among dentists that prolonged and intensive thumbsucking past the time the first permanent teeth erupt - at 5 to 6 years of age - can lead to misshapen mouths and displaced teeth.

Actually, the position of individual teeth displaced by thumb-sucking is of less concern to orthodontists than the effect of the bony support of the teeth - and the development of abnormal, deforming muscle activity. If, for example, the habit persists past two years, it could alter the child's swallowing pattern. Once this happens, the youngster may develop a protrusion of the upper front teeth; a narrowness of the upper dental arch; and an obvious malocclusion (improper bite) problem.

As long as there are infants, there will be thumbsuckers. However, if the habit continues longer than usual, it's best to have the child checked by a dentist before it causes any

Thanksgiving Blends Past and Present Traditions

Americans cherish memories of the family Thanksgiving table filled with wonderful food lovingly and painstakingly prepared over days and days. But times change, and with them, traditions. Today relatives may be 2000 miles away, and Mom's schedule may be as busy as Dad's, yet everyone still looks forward to the traditional feast of turkey, gravy, stuffing, vegetables and pie. Nowadays when daily schedules are so busy, the key to putting together a "best-ever" holiday feast is to have everyone help by making some dishes ahead.

Allow 1 to 11/2 pounds of turkey for each person. Store the turkey in the freezer and then transfer it to a tray in the refrigerator before the feast for easy defrosting.

Gravy, an essential part of the holiday feast, can be started in advance, as can Cranberry-Pear Sauce. Since it's traditional to prepare enough turkey for leftovers, make extra gravy and double the recipe for Cranberry-Pear Sauce too. The stock for the gravy can be prepared the day before the feast. To make the stock, cover the turkey giblets and neck with plenty of water, then add onion, celery, other seasonings and a small bay leaf. Simmer until the giblets are tender, then strain and refrigerate the stock and chop and refrigerate the giblets.

On Thanksgiving, move the roast turkey from the pan to platter. For easier carving let it stand 15 to 20 minutes. During this time begin making the gravy by spooning excess fat from the juices in the roasting pan; then pour the turkey stock into the roasting pan. Stir the liquid over medium heat, taking care to loosen brown bits from the pan. Stir corn starch together with a little cold liquid, add to the hot stock and stir until the gravy has thickened. The rule of thumb is to use a tablespoonful of starch for every cup of liquid. If the gravy recipe in your family calls for flour, use half as much corn starch in its place. The corn starch lets the flavor of the pan juices and giblets come through without any pasty aftertaste, and the gravy has an attractive translucent appearance.

TURKEY THAWING TIPS

preferred way to thaw a turkey is in its original wrapper on a tray in the refrigerator. Another acceptable quick method is to place the bird in the unopened wrapper in cool water. Change the water frequently. Do not thaw a turkey at room temperature.

Turkey Gravy

Turkey giblets and neck

10 cups water 3 onions, peeled, quartered

3 ribs celery, cut into sticks

2 carrots, peeled, cut into sticks

1 teaspoon salt 3 chicken-flavored bouillon cubes

2 bay leaves

1/3 cup turkey pan drippings 1/2 cup corn starch

In large saucepot place turkey giblets and neck, water, onion, celery, carrots, salt, bouillon cubes and bay leaves. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 1-1/2 hours or until liquid is reduced by 1/2. Strain broth; reserve broth and giblets. Pour roasting pan drippings into large measuring cup. Let stand several minutes until fat drippings separate from turkey juices. Return 1/3 cup fat drippings to pan; discard remaining fat drippings. Add reserved broth to turkey juices to equal 5 cups. Sprinkle corn starch into drippings. Stir and cook over medium heat just until smooth; remove from heat. Gradually stir in broth until smooth. Return to heat. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat, stirring up brown bits from bottom of roasting pan and boil 1 minute. If desired, chop giblets and add to gravy. Makes 5 cups.

Alternate Method: Follow recipe for Turkey Gravy. Return 1/3 cup fat drippings and 4-1/2 cups turkey juices and broth to roasting pan. Stir together corn starch and remaining 1/2 cup turkey broth until smooth; add to roasting pan. Stirting constantly, bring to boil over medium heat, stirring up brown bits from bottom of pan and boil 1 minute, If desired, chop giblets and add to gravy. Makes 5 cups.

Vegetable Casserole

In 5-quart dutch oven or saucepot melt 1/4 cup margarine over medium heat. Add mushrooms and onion; cook, stirring occasionally, 5 minutes or until tender. In medium bowl stir together corn starch, salt and pepper.

Gradually stir in milk until smooth, Stir into mushroom mixture. Add Worcestershire sauce. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in cheese until melted. Add potatoes, carrots and green beans; toss to coat well. Pour into 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking dish, or in 3-quart casserole. In small bowl stir together bread crumbs, margarine and parsley. Sprinkle over vegetable mixture, Bake in 325°F oven about 40 minutes or until heated through. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

1/4 cup corn oil margarine

1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced

(2 cups) 1 cup coarsely chopped onion

1/4 cup corn starch 1 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper

3 cups milk

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 pound Cheddar cheese, shredded

2 pounds potatoes, peeled, cubed, cooked (4 cups)

3 cups sliced cooked carrots 1/2 pound green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces, cooked (2 cups)

1 cup soft bread crumbs 2 tablespoons corn oil margarine,

1 tablespoon chopped parsley

2 cups diced peeled pears 1 cup sugar 1 cup orange juice

2 cups cranberries

1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger

Cranberry-Pear Sauce

2 tablespoons corn starch

1/4 cup water

1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts (optional)

In 3-quart saucepan stir together cranberries, pears, sugar, orange juice, cinnamon and ginger. Bring to boil over medium heat; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes or until cranberry skins pop. Stir together corn starch and water until smooth. Stir into cranberry mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Cover; refrigerate. If desired, just before serving, stir in walnuts. Makes 3 to 4 cups.

Note: Recipe may be doubled, and a portion used to make Cranberry Crunch Dessert.

Cranberry Crunch Dessert

1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar 1/2 cup unsifted flour

1/3 cup corn oil margarine 1-1/2 cups Cranberry-Pear Sauce

Grease 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking pan. In medium bowl stir together oats, sugar and flour. With pastry blender or two knives cut in margarine until coarse crumbs form. Place 1-1/2 cups of the oat mixture evenly in bottom of prepared pan. Spread with Cranberry-Pear Sauce. Top with remaining oat mixture.

Bake in 350°F oven 45 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbly. If desired, serve warm with vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 to 9 servings. Florentine Turkey Noodle Casserole

1/4 cup corn oil margarine

1/2 cup chopped onion

1/4 cup corn starch

2 cups milk

1 cup chicken bouillon

1 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg 1/4 teaspoon pepper

3 cups 1/4-inch noodles, cooked, drained, divided

1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped

spinach, cooked, drained

2 cups cubed roast turkey 4 ounces Swiss cheese, shredded

(2 cups), divided Paprika

In 2-quart saucepan melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion; cook 2 to 3 minutes or until tender, Remove from heat. Stir in corn starch until blended. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Stir in bouillon, salt, nutmeg and pepper. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. In 11 x 7 x 2-inch baking dish pour 1 cup of the sauce to cover bottom. Layer 2.1/4 cups of the noodles, spinach, turkey and 1 cup of the cheese in baking dish. Top with remaining noodles. Pour sauce over noodles. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and paprika. Bake in 350°F oven 35 minutes or until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

A variety of stuffings can enhance subtle veal flavor

The best veal comes from calves aged 2½ to 3 months, not yet weaned, which means, of course, that they have fed only on milk. The meat should be almost white with a slight greenish tinge. Reddish coloration means that the animal was fed solid food and was, therefore, probably older than three months

All of which should add up to meat that is quite tender, and it does. There are, however, also less tender cuts which require longer cooking but are less expensive.

One of those cuts is breast of veal, which comes from just behind the front leg where the body begins to curve round underneath. These muscles are in use when the animal walks and become firmer, or in cooking terms, tougher.

The French word for the cut is poitrine, which sometimes appears in recipe titles rather than the more familiar term, breast of veal.

The meat can be cut into roughly equalsized pieces and used in a stew. A popular method of preparation is stuffing, then braising or roasting. Sometimes it is boned beforehand, sometimes not.

Have the butcher cut a deep pocket for stuffing. After the stuffing is inserted, it will be necessary to secure the edges. This can be done with skewers, or the meat can be laced tightly with string. A piece of aluminum foil folded into four layers and inserted just inside the opening after stuffing will prevent the stuffing from escaping during the gooking process. Then skewer or lace the opening. The flavor of veal is light and subtle, so it can be combined with a number of other flavors, opening the possibility for stuffings to a variety of mixtures. A lightly spiced traditional breadcrumb stuffing is sometimes used, or a combination of sausage and breadcrumbs. A spicier version is Breast of Veal Naples, which is filled with a ground veal, spinach and tomato mixture, then roasted.

BREAST OF VEAL NAPLES 4 lbs. breast of veal

(boned, if preferred) ground black pepper 1/2 lb. ground veal 1/4 cup finely chopped onion ½ clove garlic, crushed 5 tbsp. butter

2 cups soft fine breadcrumbs 2 cups finely chopped raw spinach ½ tsp. dried thyme leaves

1/4 cup cooked or canned tomatoes 1½ cup veal stock 2 tsp. cornstarch 1½ tbsp. water

Ask the butcher to cut a pocket in the breast of veal. Sprinkle inside and out with salt. Brown veal, onion and garlic in 2 tbsp. of the butter. Add 2 more tbsp. of the butter, the breadcrumbs, spinach, thyme, eggs, and tomato. Mix well. Add salt and pepper to taste. Spoon into the pocket of the veal breast. Close opening with skewers of lace with string. Place veal in an open baking pan or use a cooking bag, following package directions. Rub top of veal with remaining one tbsp. butter. Roast in a preheated slow oven at 325 degrees for 21/2 hours or until meat is thoroughly cooked, basting occasionally with melted butter. Let the meat rest 10 to 15 minutes. Remove skewers and string and transfer meat to a warm platter. Add veal stock to the roasting pan. Scrape up the browned bits from the bottom and boil the stock two to three minutes. Blend cornstarch with water and add to the stock. Bring to boiling point and boil ½ minute. Adjust seasonings. Slice meat and serve with the sauce. Makes six to eight servings.

STUFFED BREAST OF VEAL

1 good-sized breast of veal, about 3 or 4 lbs. 1 lb. ground lean pork, with a little fat, or ground leftover pork 2 medium onions, finely chopped 1 cup soft bread crumbs 1 tsp. tarragon 1 tsp. salt 1 tsp. freshly ground black pepper 5 tbsp. soft butter 1/2 cup chopped parsley 2 eggs

11/2 cups white wine

Have the butcher cut a pocket in the veal breast. Combine the pork, onion, bread crumbs, tarragon, salt, pepper, 1 tbsp. butter, parsley and eggs, mixing well with your hands. Stuff the pocket with this mixture and place foil in the opening to prevent it from oozing out. Skewer or sew up securely. Melt the remaining butter and the oil in a pan and brown the yeal well on both sides. When it is nicely browned, add the wine. Cover and simmer for about three hours, or until tender, or bake, uncovered, in a 325-degree oven for the same amount of time. Remove to a hot platter, skim excess fat from the pan juices and boil quickly. Correct seasoning and serve separately. Serves six to eight.

Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

Delectable fish dishes but no detectable odor

By the end of the two-hour class noses were quizzically sniffing the air and an audible murmur was passing through the capacity crowd. Finally, someone voiced the puzzlement of a good portion of the students: "Where is the fishy smell?" The corner in which we sat on the third floor of Hudson's Oakland was, indeed, remarkably free experiment, taste and then decide of even the hint of a fish odor - and rather than being bound by recipes or that was after the preparation of five rules. fish dishes and a fish glace.

The question was a good one. Too many people never get beyond the smell of less-than-fresh fish, refusing to even taste it. Still others refuse to cook it in their homes for fear of the pervasive fishy odor which can linger after its preparation. These people reserve fish for an occasional restaurant treat.

Yvonne Gill's answer to the missing fish-smell riddle might be of interest to this latter group. In addition to the obvious element of freshness, she pointed out that method of preparation is the culprit: frying or broiling fish produces the strongest odors.

THE ENTIRE thrust of the Hudson's Fish Course was, in fact, a demonstration of alternative methods of preparation. Although the recipes used were creative and appetizing, Yvonne Gill constantly stressed that specific ingredients were interchangeable.

Different herbs could be used, differnt garnishes and even different fish. The recipes were simply representative of various approaches to cooking fish. Flexibility was the key word of the evening.

In one recipe, for example, Yvonne elected to use a red wine to dispel the notion that only white wine can be used with fish. If, on the other hand, someone cannot tolerate wine at all, she suggested that they substitute fish stock made with water replacing the wine. While sauteeing some escalopes of striped bass in olive oil, she recommended replacing the olive with sesame oil and combining the fish with stirfried vegetables for a marvelous Chinese dish. The point was to feel free to

Before the actual fish dishes, a Fish Glace (a quick fish stock) and three "mother sauces" (Buerre Blanc, Vermouth and Vouvray) were prepared. About 30 different dishes could be prepared using just these three sauces.

THIS WAS FOLLOWED by a skillful demonstration of fish-filleting by Chef Dennis of Tweeny's. Although this was essentially visual, two points to keep in mind are: Keep the knife blade angled toward the bones, being careful not to slit the skin, and use a good fish-boning knife, which is more flexible than that used for meat and so is less likely to tear the delicate flesh of the fish.

Although fish fillets are readily available, three reasons were given for buying a whole fish and filleting it yourself: 1. You pay a better price per pound. 2. You get a better, fresher fish. 3. You can utilize the trimmings to make fish stock.

Having covered these basics, Yvonne Gill began to prepare the fish dishes themselves, dividing the methods of preparation into two categories. The first, called "New Ways with Fish," uses methods similar to that of the "nouvelle cuisine." These dishes consisted of lightly sauteed fish or shellfish napped with rich sauces containing ho flour, little butter, and a great deal of heavy cream. No salt is used, the flavor coming instead from acid, butter and shallots.

The second category was "Traditional Ways with Fish" and included baking in parchment, sauteeing and oven poaching.

The recipe given below for Escalope of Red Snapper or Striped Bass is taken from the first group, the Sauteed Swordfish Fillets a la Moutarde is from the second.

Since fall and spring are the best season for fish, this is a perfect time to experiment, and these recipes are mouth-watering enough to tempt even a restaurant-bound fish-lover to attempt them at home. For anyone who still prefers to leave the creativity and cooking to experts, Yvonne Gill did mention some other unusual, intriguing combinations she has created and serves at Tweeny's Cafe in Birming-

Swordfish served with fresh pineapple and tarragon sounded especially fascinating to me. Perhaps as a reward for learning to fillet a fish or as a source of inspiration - but, for those 2 tbsp. minced leek who want to get right down to business, here are the recipes Yvonne Gill shared with her students:

ESCALOPE OF RED SNAPPER OR STRIPED BASS WITH CHIVE SAUCE

2 lbs. skinned filleted fish 1 tbsp. olive oil

1 tsp. salt 2 tbsp. white wine

Slice fillet on an angle into 1/4 inch Cover the pan and simmer for 15 min-thick escalopes. Brush each side with oil and salt lightly. Preheat flat griddle to medium heat. Cook fish on one side until white and sprinkle with wine. Turn and cook on the other side and again sprinkle with wine. Cover fish with a lid or a plate and place griddle in a 500 degree oven for 4 to 6 minutes. The steam so created will continue the cooking process. Remove from oven and place fillets on a warm serving platter. Add any residue cooking juices to the chive sauce and pour it over the fish fillets. 4 servings.

CHIVE SAUCE

1/2 cup fish glace 1/2 cup heavy cream 1-2 tbsp. Buerre Blanc Juices from the fish

2 tbsp. minced chives

Combine fish glace and cream and bring to a boil. Lower heat and whisk in beuree blanc laison. Remove from heat and add chives. Pour sauce over snapper fillets.

GLACE DE POISSON (Fish Glace)

1 lb. fish trimmings

1 tbsp. sweet butter 2 tbsp. minced carrot

2 tbsp. minced onion 1/2 cup dry white wine

Melt butter in a saute pan over medium heat. Add fish trimmings and saute until white. Move fish pieces to one side. Add vegetables to the pan and continue to cook until they are soft. Do not brown. Add white wine and reduce to half volume. Add enough water to cover fish trimmings and vegetables.

utes. Remove from heat and strain through a fine sieve.

BEURRE BLANC SAUCE 8 oz. finely minced shallots (The shallots are essential - don't substitute onions!) 2½ cups dry white wine 1 tbsp. red wine vinegar 1 tbsp. heavy cream

16 oz. softened sweet butter

Combine shallots, wine and wine vinegar in a heavy saucepan. Reduce to a glaze over medium heat. (About 2 tbsp. will remain. This will take about 40 minutes) Remove from heat and dook to tepid. Stir in heavy cream. Return to a very low heat and using a whip, whisk in the softened butter a knob at a time. Store in a clean container at room temperature. The sauce will thicken after about 2 to 3 hours. SAUTEED SWORDFISH FILLETS

a la Moutarde 4 8 oz. centre cut swordfish steaks (or lake trout, white fish, pickerel, or snapper)

3 tbsp. flour Salt and pepper 1 tbsp. butter 1 tbsp. olive oil 1/2 cup white wine 1/4 cup fish glace (fumet) 1-2 tbsp. dijon mustard 1 tbsp. sweet butter 1 Northern Spy apple 2 tbsp. dired currants

Soak currants in warm white wine for 30 minutes. Drain and reserve currants and wine separately. Heat butter and oil in saute pan. Dip fish in flour seasoned with salt and pepper and add to the pan. Cook on each side 2-3 minutes depending on thickness of the fish. Remove fish and hold in a warm oven Peel, core and thinly slice the apples Add the apples to the pan and sautee over medium heat until cooked but still crisp. Remove apples and hold them with the fish. Deglaze pan with white wine and fumet. Reduce to 1/2 volume. Lower heat and whisk in mustard then butter. Add the soaked currants to the sauce. Pour sauce over the swordfish. 4

Keltic Lodge Dining Room Has Wraparound North Atlantic View

If fish is your fancy three times a day, you can have it at Keltic Lodge - a grand and sprawling resort set high on a promontory overlooking the North Atlantic on Nova Scotia's Cape Breton Island. There's Kippered Herring, smoked Cod or Cod Cakes for breakfast, perhaps cold lobster for lunch, and for dinner from a menu which also features Ocean Perch, Cod and Haddock - you might select Sole & Scallops au gratin. The delicate flavored seafood is poached quickly, then combined with a wine-tarragon sauce, topped with Parmesan and bread crumbs and broiled until the topping is just golden Allow fish to stand at room temperature 20 minutes unwrapped. Cut each semi-frozen block into 3 portions. In large skillet, poach fish in simmering salted water or court bouillon, 20 to 25 minutes or until fish is opaque and flakes easily with a fork. Remove fish and keep warm in an au gratin dish. Add scallops to poaching liquid and cook 5 to 8 minutes. Drain and place scallops around fish portions. Pour Tarragon Sauce over fish and scallops. Combine bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle over top, Broil 3 inches from heat until lightly

*Tarragon Sauce

4 shallots, minced 1 cup white wine

2 tablespoons water 1/2 pound butter

1/2 cup tarragon vinegar

2 teaspoons tarragon

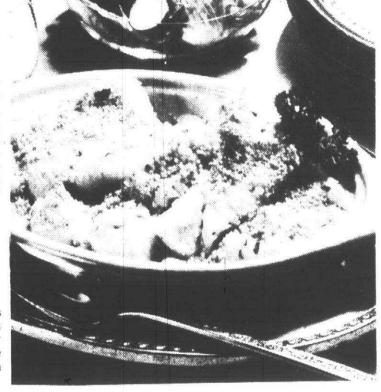

6 egg yolks

1/2 teaspoon salt Dash cayenne pepper

Cook shallots, wine, vinegar and tarragon until liquid is reduced to 1/4 cup. Strain and set aside. In double boiler, beat egg yolks and water until yolks are well mixed and slightly thickened. Gradually beat in butter, adding in thirds. Continue whisking until butter is absorbed and is thick. Remove from heat. Add strained tarragon mixture, salt and pepper.

HAVE YOU SEEN "The Miser's Touch," the calendar of tips for energy savers that is being offered by the League of Women Voters?

It is a regular 1981 calendar with plenty of space to jot down reminders. It also has energy-saving reminders every now and then. These include everything from "turn down the thermostat and wear a sweater" to "dine by candlelight." There are suggestions for the younger members of the family, each marked with a stick figure.

The youngsters in the family are encouraged to "turn off lights in unused room" and to pick up their toys because "toys and games blocking heat ducts waste energy.

Subsequently he studied with the famed Russian pianist, Vladimir Ashkenazy. Nagel has performed a program of national romantic music in the National gallery, Washington, D.C. and has given five recitals in Town Hall, New York City.

THE NEW YORK Times critics were complimentary in their reviews of Nagel's Town Hall Concerts:

"The changes of mood and color were vivid and all fit into an astutely organized conception of the work as a whole!

"His performances combined intelligence, dash, sensitivity and, when necessary, technical brilliance.'

Harriers scamper to All-Area laurels

Canton places 2 seniors on squad

By BRAD EMONS and DOUG FUNKE

This year's Observer All-Area cross country squad has the look of quality and quantity.

Area coaches assembled recently to select the area's best runners. They came to the consensus that 11 high school harriers deserved first-team recognition. Ten athletes were spotlighted in 1979.

Coaches sent in a flood of nominations to make it appear like the start of the New York Marathon instead.

Plymouth Canton, Detroit Catholic Central, Livonia Franklin and Westland John Glenn each landed two runners on the first team.

each scored 11 points each for Salem. Michelle Dawson added 10.

City East and Livonia Stevenson were also represented.

The coaches agreed that 1980 was a good year for individuals.

Four honorees are repeaters. Livonia Franklin's Paul Coburn made it for the third straight year.

Area teams also enjoyed banner sea-

Plymouth Canton went to the state meet after finishing third in the regional as a team. Franklin won the Northwest Suburban League crown with John Glenn a close second.

FIRST TEAM

Mike Nugent, Catholic Central. A four-year varsity runner, Nugent enjoyed an outstanding year.

The Shamrock senior won the Class A regional race at Schoolcraft College with a time of 16:20.7. He was also first in the Lancer Invitational and placed fifth in the Catholic League.

The CC co-captain gained fifth in the Catholic-PSL meet and finished eighth in the prestigious West Bloomfield Invitational.

Tall center sinks Rocks

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Salem ended its Suburban Eight League girls' basketball season Thursday on a sour note.

Upstart Trenton hit all the right keys in defeating the Rocks, 40-39, in overtime. Salem concluded its league season in second place behind champion Bentley (12-0). Trenton claimed third place at 8-4. Kim Nash, a powerful 6-foot-3 senior center, orchestrated the Trenton victory.

She scored 19 points, blocked seven shots and hit the winning free throw with 20 seconds left. "Trenton played a super game," said $alem coach Bob Blohm. "They shot the ball well and we're more aware of getting Nash the ball." In an earlier meeting between the two teams, Salem scored a 13-point win at Trenton as Nash was held to four points. "The difference this time was that we played a little bit better defense," said Trenton coach John Biedenbach, "and we got Kim the ball." Nash, whose brother Kevin stands 6-11 and starts at center for the University of Tennessee, rejected two shots in the over-

A stiff Trenton zone defense gave the Rocks fits in the second half.

The Trojans built an eight-point lead early in the fourth quarter. Salem regained Ross, who converted a three-point play. short.

That gave Salem a 35-33 advantage with 3:41 to go.

SALEM, however, could score thereafter in regulation time.

Both teams traded turnovers until Mattice hit a short jumper with 27 seconds left to send it into overtime.

Salem center Cheryl Sobkow stole the ball with 11 seconds left and then lost it. Trenton pushed the ball down the floor to Nash, who just missed winning the game when her short banker rolled off the rim.

In the overtime, Salem jumped out to a 37-35 advantage when Sobkow hit a short jumper. Mattice's free throw cut the lead to one. Nash followed with a three-point play to give her team a 39-37 advantage with 1:25 to go.

Forty-three seconds later, Jacque Merrifield a shot just off the free throw line to force another deadlock.

With 20 seconds left, Nash slipped inside and was fouled. She hit the first of two free throws, which later proved to be the winning margin. Salem had trouble getting a shot off after Nash's free throw. Jan MacKenzie's attempt with two seconds left was batted out of bounds by the Trenton standout. Blohm immediately call timeout to set up a play. Biedenbach followed with another timeout to check Salem's alignment. When play resumed, MacKenzie inthe lead when reserve Jeanine Papa stole bounded the ball to Eileen Moore, whose the ball and passed to teammate Carol desperation attempt from 20-feet fell

"I thought we made a good comeback," said Blohm. "We had our chances to win, but couldn't put it away.

"I'm not concerned about the shots we're getting. It's the shots we're not getting after we put it up.

"At times we forced the ball inside and passed up some good outside opportuni-Sobkow and Moore led Salem in scoring with 10 points apiece. Blohm must now be concerned with his last regular season game, Monday at Redford Union.

The Rocks will host the Class A district tournament beginning Wednesday. Salem is now 15-4 overall and has three of its last four games. The victory lifts

Hall welcomes inductees

The metropolitan Detroit area will boast another bowling Hall of Fame Saturday when the Bonanza Michigan Majors opens its mythical hall to induct two of its all-time

The new hall will be baptized at Sunnybrook Lanes as the feature of the 13th annual championship tournament and the inductees will be Dick Beattie and Bob Garrett, both veterans of the majors championship event.

The tournament in the afternoon will be dedicated to this pair in appropriate ceremonies. Kelly Campbell, the young Muskegon bowler, will also be on hand to defend the championship crown.

SCORING FELL OFF around the area during the past week and no where was this more noticable than in the ladies major all-star league at Beech lanes.

Julie Zimmerman had to roll only 621 to take high series of the night and the Jac-Ro team paced the entire league with 2804. Along with them, Cindy Wisniewski and Joyce Pursell tied for high single with games of 226.

AT WONDERLAND, only two 700 series were posted and this was a bit unusual.

Joe Dougden turned the top score on games of 215, 277 and 249 for 741 and Dean Shiffman laced counts of 206, 245 and 256 for 707. On the women's side, Sue McBrayer showed the way with a 619, made possible by a closing game of 257.

ONE OF THE week's oddities happened at Merri-Bowl when Walter Young, bowling in the Wednesday mixers loop, converted the "impossible" 7-10 split.

The odd part came in the fact that he didn't see it happen and had to be told that he hit the No. 7 and it slid over and toppled the No. 10.

While this was going on, Chuck O'Rourke set the pace with a 255 in

THE SCORES in the Monday men's league at Westland Bowl, were unusually low. Nick Hankins took top honors with 657. In the parade behind him, Jim Green had a 645 and Ray Holmes was third with 637. Jim Blake landed fourth with

In the Ladies Classic, Cyndi Edwards was high with 657 and Paula Burnette had a 234 for high game.

HIGH MAN for the week at Garden Lanes was Mike Kraft. He paced the Vinco League with a 677 that included a 244 middle game. Behind him came Al Weir with 667. Al Kowalski with 632 and Rick Aja, who was tied with Harry Totalian at

In the senior house league there was a close finish when Mike Risch. with 632, beat Ed Kujawa by two pins. And Kujawa was only three pins ahead of Pat Bartas.

In the Road Commission league, Joe Churchill was top man with a 623 and Pat Schmidt showed the way in the ladies house league with RAY MERRICK profited by a 253 opening game to post a 661 that was tops in the Pin Busters League at Plaza Lanes. His closest rivals were Dave Kauppi with 635 and Dan Priebe with a 628.

Cultural Center set for skaters

Supervisors of the Plymouth Cultural Center, host of the Great Lakes Eastern Figure Skating Championships. have been forced to revise their original plans.

Because of a flood of entries, 320 single skaters to be exact, city of Plymouth Recreation director Chuck Skene and assistant Paul Sincock must now find ways to expand their accomoda-

The job of hosting the championships is not an easy one. Skene and Sincock, however, are up to the challenge.

An increase in the number of skaters has pushed the event up one day. Competition will start on Monday, Dec. 1, instead of Tuesday and will run through Saturday, Dec. 6.

"We expect over 2,000 persons in our area during the six days," said Sincock. "We have an arts and crafts show which ends Sunday hight. We have to be ready by 6 a.m. Monday."

Plexiglass, used primarily for hockey games, must be removed so judges and spectators can gain a better view. Members of the Plymouth Junior C hockey team have volunteered their time to do the job.

The city of Plymouth must also provide transportation to and from Detroit Metro Airport for incoming judges, whom will be stationed at the Mayflower Hotel

Additional bleacher seating will be provided. The task must be completed in one day.

Another responsibility heaped on the city maintenance staff is the building and installing of a judges platform. Sincock said ceremonial flags, insignia painting and rearranging of rooms are other duties required upon the

"We'll have a ticket booth set up along with an expanded concession schedule," Sincock added. "Our multipurpose room will be turned into a computer room for judges' scoring."

A LOCAL cable television company will supply video equipment, to make judging a little easier, according to Sin-

"Myself, I estimate spending two to three hours a day just on this event." said Sincock. "Our job is to set up the building.

The Plymouth Recreation Department has a good track record. They've been outstanding in hosting softball tournaments and other various sporting events.

The Plymouth Skating Club, the official club hosts, must have taken Plymouth's past performances into consideration before bidding on the event.

That's a credit to the city and the Cultural Center. Since I arrived in Plymouth, I've always appreciated their help. They are well organized and will certainly be up to this task basketball

Livonia Stevenson had every reason to be flat during its Inter-Lakes League girls' basketball finale last week against Milford Lakeland.

That's exactly how the Spartans played, too, but they still managed to record a 36-24 victory.

Stevenson, already assured of a conference championship, coming off a big non-league win on the road over Redford Union and playing in front of a Parents' Night crowd, looked like anything but one of the top-rated teams in

The Spartans missed 10 of their first 11 shots and finished with an overall accuracy rating of 31 percent from the

The Spartans turned the ball over more than usual and generally looked sluggish on the court all evening long. "You saw us on a downer and we won," said Stevenson coach Jim George. "Bad teams on downers lose, good teams win.

"Their minds aren't here," he continued. "When you don't shoot, you win with defense. Our scramble man-toman defense has been our forte all Karen Kelley led Stevenson with 14 points. Beth Mueller and Wendy Jenkins each scored eight.

Stevenson, which trailed 17-15 at the intermission, limited Lakeland to four points during the third quarter and two in the fourth. Lakeland was able to launch only 10 shots from the field during the entire second half.

The victory was the 14th in a row for the Spartans, who now have a 17-2 overall ledger. Stevenson completed the conference portion of its schedule with a 9-1 record.

THE CROWD was small all right more like a cluster.

Rice coach Bill Norton attributed the small turnout to several factors.

"I want athletes in the metro Detroit area to know that I'm interested in "We've had parent-teacher meetings them - and the players do the best refor two nights in a row now," said Norton, "and considering the fact that the kids have just received their grades, I'd McCarter observed the entire game say most of them are home studying."

Norton added that Rice's trip to the football playoffs and lack of promotion for the event were also deterrents.

the movies ouise Snider

Bruce Dern is up to his neck in trouble in "Middle Age

This film needs more craziness, or maybe less

From the song came the movie, "Middle Age Crazy" (R), a middlin' film that's not crazy enough.

Director John Trent and writer Carl Kleinschmitt seem to lack the courage of any convictions. They couldn't decide whether to go for laughs or be serious, so they tried both and achieved neither.

"Middle Age Crazy" isn't funny enough to succeed as a comedy. Bruce Dern, the male lead, isn't a comic in the mold of Dudley Moore and "Middle Age Crazy" isn't a "10." Nor is the film substantial enough to succeed as a drama.

There is the occasional chuckle and thought-provoking moment, but they don't mesh in a meaningful way. They're separate incidents in a random film.

DERN IS the anxiety-ridden male who has just turned 40 and is caught up in a mid-life crisis. It is a relief to see him in something other than the psychotic-type roles which have frequently come his way, although the potential for the extreme still seems to lurk

Actually, the one serio-comic episode that holds together occurs when Dern falls apart and runs about yelling, "I don't want to be the daddy anymore." He doesn't want responsibilities; he doesn't want to deal with his family's problems.

Then, as usually happens in this film, the material things get in the way. How much compassion can you muster for a man who has a loving family, a beautiful and sexy wife, a luxurious home with a patio, pool and hot tub and, to support all this, a successful contracting business?

O.K., so he builds taco stands for a living; still, he must be the most successful taco-stand builder north of the equator.

The argument is not that wealth precludes sensitivity, but that Dern's anxiety seems to center about brand names and fashions. Consequently, he hangs up his polyester suits for jeans and boots; he trades in his Olds for a $40,000 Porsche; and he leaves his wife for a Dallas Cowgirl.

This last action is indeed puzzling. He shoves aside the pulchritudinous Ann-Margret when it seems her sole ambition as his wife is to give him sexual satisfaction. What does he expect from the Dallas Cowgirl, a discussion on nuclear non-proliferation?

After stepping out and acquiring new threads, new wheels and a new lady, is he happy? Of course not. Having acted out his fantasies, he returns to the verities - home, family, business.

It's a sequence of events which was clearly indicated from the beginning of the film. The comforting moral for would-be sinners: You can have your fling and then return to everything you you left behind. Who said, "You can't go home again?"

Homes mirror lifestyle changes

By CORINNE ABATT

In 80 years, the home, as an entity, has undergone some astounding

Many of us are aware of these changes, but to have them put into an organized perspective — to be able to look at the home from both ends of the telescope + is a special treat.

That's what the new book, published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, is all about - change, growth and development of the American home.

Mary Jane Pool, editor in chief of the magazine, was at Hudsons Northland store last week to show slides from the book, autograph copies and answer questions about interior design.

In order to have a fresh approach to the volume, which was two years in the planning. Miss Pool hired a young artist to pick out (in her judgement) the best, most interesting articles and photos from the magazine's 80-year histo-

"I wanted her point of view - a young eye," said Miss Pool, "and her taste was unfailing."

These initial choices were refined and then Miss Pool went through the entire 80 years of issues herself.

The result of these combined efforts is "20th Century Decorating Architecture & Gardens," subtitled "80 Years of Ideas & Pleasure from House & Gar-

FROM A BROAD viewpoint, the changes in interior and exterior design reflect the changes in the general way of life. In the book, each decade is given a catch phrase. The 1900s is "Living with Tradition." In this decade, change was yet to come

'Rustic furniture was the rage, and in 1906, wicker work was very stylish,"

Miss Pool told her audience.

A pleasant, attractive bungalow (called a box house then) could be built

In the second decade of the century, titled" Living with Personality," the individual began to influence the environment, at least the few with money could influence their surroundings. The great art collections were established by the likes of the Mellon family. Enclosed porches became the rage and one of the burning decorating questions, Miss Pool said, was how to cover and disguise radiators.

Central heating had become a way of life, but the unsightly radiators that came with it presented challenges to test the ingenuity of the homemaker, or in this decade, the woman who presided over the home and saw that the servants did their assigned jobs.

Modernism and the influence of the Bauhaus movement with its philosophy

'Still, decorating today is more exciting and inventive than ever. More ideas are tried, more are accepted. Rather than reach a conditioned hand for French or Italian chair, young decorators are designing a great deal of their own furniture.'

- From a chapter in the book written by Billy Baldwin, interior decorator

"Elsie de Wolfe had turned decorating into a profession. Sleek design entered the picture and the radio and telephone became an important part of the background of the home.

While the 1920s are characterized as "Living with Technology," the '30s were designated as "Living with Modernism.

Glamor productions from Hollywood and three world's fairs greatly influenced design in the '30s, as did some of the great architects and designers such as Frank Lloyd Wright and Le Corbu-

Old homes there are not forgotten

Save dollars when dialing abroad

Two years ago, a kindly European hotel manager warned me about the pitfalls of making long-distance telephone calls to the United $tates from his hotel

Americans use the telephone without giving it a second thought, but they are often stunned when a hotel cashier presents them with a telephone bill for $150 or $200.

These outrageous bills for overseas calls occur because of surcharges and taxes added to your long distance call by hotels and governments, and because of higher foreign-dial rates.

I know that some effort has been made to change the system, but it apparently is still very much in operation.

CREDIT CARD charges are based on U.S. rates and those rates are much lower than most foreign telephone rates. The American Telegraph and Telephone Co. (AT&T) recently compared the cost of 14minute calls from nine countries, not including any taxes or hotel surcharges. Their figures show how you can save telephone costs overseas by use of the credit card.

The most dramatic comparison was a call from Mexico City to Detroit, which cost $64.43 when direct dialed and $20.56 when made on an American telephone credit card — a savings of 68 percent. Calls from France and Belgium cost $58.96 and $50.30, respectively, when direct dialed, but cost $30.15 each by credit card, for a savings ranging from 40 to 49 percent. The same $30.15 credit-card charge saved 43 percent from Norway and 40 percent from Spain.

South America showed less dramatic comparisons. A call from Venezuela showed a 13 percent savings. It actually cost slightly more to use a credit card from Argentina ($33.10 direct dial versus $34.25 via credit card).

WEST GERMANY, for unknown reasons, does not allow credit card calls.

The savings that I have mentioned are only the beginning because they only reflect the actual foreign telephone rate. Hotel surcharges can add up to 300 percent and taxes up to 50 percent to your call!.

If you plan to call home from another country, take these two steps. Get a Michigan Bell telephone credit card, which is free. Pick up an AT&T publication called "Getting Around Overseas," which lists hotel participating in Teleplan, a program initiated by Ma Bell to limit surcharge. The pamphlet is availbale from Bell Telephone.

Story and photos By DORIS SCHARFENBERG

BATON ROUGE, La. - There are loads of pretty girls in Dixie but the reigning queens of today are the restored plantation houses.

Lovely in all proportions, they stand with the assurance of born beauties, surrounded by retinues of oak trees and zealously protected by local historical societies.

More than 60 restored mansions and antebellum townhouses are open to the public in Louisiana. Although the myths of past bliss have been steadily exploding and the dreams are getting less starry-eyed, the houses built before the Civil War are showcases for incredible antiques, warehouses of historic information and examples of decorative

There is surprising variety in the architecture and most of the houses have gardens blooming with ideas for anyone with a trace of green thumb.

Many mansions are still lived in, still functioning as work centers for farms. They come in all sizes, although the wish to appear grander than one's neighbor often got out of control. The biggest houses are often the size of swank hotels.

It's an easy drive from Baton Rouge to more than half the plantation houses on the tourist department's list.

ROSEDOWN, at St. Francisville just north of the capitol, is a stunning place to begin. In 1835, when more than half the millionaires in America were amassing fourtunes along the southern Mississippi valley, a cotton planter named David Turnbull and his gardenloving wife built Rosedown.

A canopy of immense oak trees covers the driveway to the house, an approach of such length that the features of the house are not easily seen from the front gate. The mansion from that point looks like a white altar in the apse of a great green cathedral and the whole vista is, understandably, a favorite of photographers.

Guides tell you how Rosedown was the glory of its day before the decades brought hard times and decay, and then how the place was rescued in true damsel fashion by a kindly godmother from Texas who began the restoration in

Rebuilt, repaired and replaced were the hand-carved mantels, wallpaper from Paris, china, silver, and items not often seen. On one dainty table sits a checker board that folds slyly into a set of books to avoid the tax once placed

In a first-floor bedroom a 14-foothigh canopy bed glows with illusions of grandeur. It was ordered by his friends for statesman Henry Clay, to be a gift when he made it to the White House. Clay, however, never became president, the friendships soured, and poor Henry's bed was sold to Turnbull, who had to have a special wing with a high ceiling added to the house to accommodate the nightpiece. Then, to assure Rosedown's symmetry, a wing was added to the other side.

If the gardens echo Versailles, it is because the Turnbulls toured Europe, taking notes and buying sculpture.

Rosedown is open every day except Christmas. Tickets are $4 for adults for the whole house-garden experience.

CATALPA PLANTATION, just a mite south, is a cottage by comparison and one in which you can feel right at home. The house was set in the corner of about 30 acres of land - not a big layout even in those days. Its original owner, Mr. William Fort, was among the first to introduce into the parish, or county, "live" oaks, trees that shed leaves at intervals and thus remain green all year. Pathways of broken seashells and careful plantings lead to the ever-present veranda, an architectural necessity that helped keep the house cool.

Catalpa is closed in December and January, but open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from then on. Admission is $3.50.

MAGNOLIA MOUND, on Baton Rouge's south side, is thought to be the states' oldest wooden structure. Built in 1791, it doesn't reach baronial dimensions either. But it is a modest white structure with a deep porch and dormer windows set among the oak tree and, of course, magnolias across a gracious lawn. Inside are the original family portraits and gleaming tables set with heirloom china. Out back is a neat little white structure where the cooking was done Magnolia Mound is closed Mondays, but open for a small charge every week of the year.

OAKLEY PLANTATION was once the work place of master watercolorist John James Audubon, who was hired as a tutor by the owners. After giving his daily art lesson, he worked on his own priceless projects and painted many of his famed "Birds of America" pictures in this house, filled now with original Audubon prints. The owners may be forgotten but the teacher certainly

The lovely antique-filled house is part of the Audubon State Commemorative Area, an expanse of moss-dipped oak trees, nature trails, gardens, picnic sites and a giftshop. Admission to the grounds is free but there is a small donation to see the house.

NOTTOWAY is billed as the South's larget plantation home and is certainly one of the most impressive. Well-preserved compared with many homes but still in moldering shape in 1970, Nottoway was purchased by Arlin Dease, who knows what he's about when it comes to putting these beauties back into debutante form. Dease's recently opened project is an all-American castle with 64 rooms under its slate roof and 22 enormous columns along the front and side.

The house blends Greek Revival and Italianate styles, boasts a white-floored ballroom with hand-carved Corinthian columns and dazzling plaster friezework. Crystal chandeliers, white marble mantles, Gone-with-the-Wind draperies; Nottoway is more real than the movies and you, too, can enter its stately carved doors on any day but Christmas. Admission is $4 for adults.

MOUNT HOPE PLANTATION, also the south side of Baton Rouge, was built around 1817 and radiates modest magnificence. The furnishings are Federal Sheraton and Empire and the lively Mistress of the Manor is the sisterin-law of Nottoway's owner. You will find many family ties between these houses, just the way it once was. If you would like to try this life on for size. limited accommodations are available for ovenight stays. Otherwise drop by any day you choose. Admission is charged.

For the names, addresses and exact locations of more than 50 of the great old houses of the South, write to the Louisiana Office of Tourism, Dept. LTX, P.O. Box 44291, Baton Rouge, La 70804.

Soft-studded snow tires are legal in Michigan

Only tires equipped with soft studs — those made of a soft metal + are permitted on Michigan roads

Tires with hard studs were banned in Michigan in 1975 because highway studies showed they cut deep ruts into the surface. Such grooves increase the chance of water building up, which can lead to dangerous "hydroplaning" of tires.

The soft-studded radial ply tires commercially known as "Perma-T-Grippers" are the only ones known by state engineers to meet state road stand-

SOFT-STUDDED TIRES may be used on Michigan roads north of a line from Mason to Arenac counties from Oct. 1 to May 1. Below that line, they are permitted from Nov. 15 to April 1.

Michigan drivers who violate the law could face up to a $100 fine and/or up to 90 days in jail. State Police extend to out-of-state drivers traveling Michigan roads the same privileges for studded tires permitted in their home states.

However, Michigan drivers traveling on softstudded tires in states where they are prohibited can be ticketed. The Auto Mobile Club of Michigan advises drivers to avoid use of studded tires in any state banning them. Studded tires are illegal at any time in neighboring Wisconsin and Ontario, Canada.

Seven other states in which studded tires are totally banned are: Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi and Texas.

THIRTY ONE STATES allow studded tires, with varying time restrictions. The District of Columbia permits studded tire use from Oct. 15 to April 15. tories, have no studded tire restrictions

Regular studded tires are banned in Michigan. New Mexico permits studded tires, with no specific time limit, but law states they are permitted "only when required for safety because of . . . conditions causing a vehicle to skid," and the law is "subject to local interpretation." Utah allows tires with soft studs only, from Oct. 15 to March 31

Eleven states have no restrictions. They are Alabama, Colorado, Georgia, Kentucky, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont and Wyoming.

States in addition to Michigan allowing studded tires, with time restrictions are: Alaska, Sept. 15 to May 1 in the northern regions and Sept. 30 to April 15 south of the latitude 60 degrees north; Arizona, Oct. 1 to May 1; Arkansas, Nov. 15 to April 15; California, Oct. 1 to May 1.

Connecticut, Nov. 15 to April 1; Delaware, Oct. 15 to April 15; Idaho, Oct. 1 to April 15; Indiana, Oct. 1 to May 1; Iowa, Nov. 1 to April 1; Kansas, Nov. 1 to April 15; Maine, Oct 2 to April 30; Maryland, Oct 15 to April 15.
