State slash dips beneath fears of school board

Schools officials guessed wrong and they're glad.

Central administrators of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools learned earlier this week that Gov. Milliken's proposed budget cutbacks won't hurt them as much as anticipated.

Last week the governor announced a cut in educational funding of $65 million in addition to earlier cuts totalling $160 million.

Administrators at first feared program cuts would be needed to make up for the lost funds. Their reaction was based on a guess that Gov. Milliken would spread his latest cut almost evenly between state aid and special purpose ("categorical") funding.

But Milliken proposed only a minor adjustment in the state aid formula and took most of the $65 million from categorical funds, primarily from transpor-

SUPERINTENDENT John M. Hoben told the school board Monday night that the district would lose about $16,000 in state aid and about $100,000 in categorical funds.

Half of the categorical loss, Hoben explained, will come in transportation, with the state cutting its busing reimbursement funds to Plymouth-Canton.

Anticipating further state cutbacks, the administration earlier placed the district expects to lose more than $185,000 in a contingency fund. The $2.5 million in state funding from last contingency fund will more than cover year to the current school fiscal year, the expected state cuts.

"Based on this latest information, we will end up in pretty good shape. I have to give credit to our business department for some very good fiscal administration to bring us to this point," Hoben ådded.

For 1979-80, the state general fund spent $940 million on K-12 education while the governor's latest cut will result in a 1980-81 expenditure of $709

"What really is happening is that the state is spending less money on education this year than it did last year."

The governor's proposed budget still must be approved by the state House and Senate but Hoben expects the legislative budget to be very close to the

Some of the largest cuts in the governor's latest budget are: funds to districts with declining enrollments, almost $24 million; municipal overburden, $16 million; capital outlay, $15 million; compensatory education, $17 million; bilingual education, $2 million; academically talented, $750,000; special education, $24 million; vocational education, $4 million; transportation, $48 million; media centers, $2 million; pregnant women and school-age parents program, $1.1 million; community schools, $3 million.

Counting both of the governor's cuts, which ends June 30, 1981.

Police are investigating to determine whether Thomas Ezerkis, 33, of Honeycomb Street in Canton and Michael Beckius, 34, of Hancock, Mich., were also involved in as many as six other Michigan and Ohio bank robberies this year, including two Livonia robberies.

Bandits wearing masks and white gloves were involved in all seven robberies, which netted a total of about $60,000. No charges have yet been filed against either man in connection with the other six hold-ups, however.

terms with a two-day orientation meeting which starts Friday at 9 Nov. 25. a.m. and ends Saturday at 5 p.m.

Board take office at noon today. Judge James Garber of the 35th District Court was scheduled to administer the oath of office Wednesday afternoon to ensure that officials will be at the helm in case of an emergency today.

Public swearing-in ceremonies are scheduled for 7 p.m. today in Township Hall — seven hours after the expiration of the outgoing officials' terms.

THE WORK begins in earnest Friday morning with the longest orientation meeting ever held by a new Township Board.

The meeting was the idea of incoming Trustee Robert Padget, who has served on the Canton Planning Commission for the last four years. Padget suggested the idea to incoming Supervisor James Poole, who quickly sanctioned the concept.

The new board is expected to make no decisions at the meeting, which is open to the public.

But the new officials expect to Friday morning for candidates who soak up much of the background inhave won seats on the Township formation needed to make knowledgeable decisions in the fu-They will dive into their four-year ture. Their first regular board meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday,

At 9 a.m. Friday, for example, Members of the new Township finance director Mike Gorman is scheduled to make a two-hour presentation on the township's administrative set-up, financial status and other related matters. New officials will meet with attorneys in closed session late Friday afternoon to discuss the status of pending litigation and labor-contract talks.

"I guess (the idea) comes from my organizational background," said Padget, who is a supervisor of Ford Motor Co.'s central computer opera-

"The first thing you do when you step into a new management position is to get a good briefing of what's going on.

"Obviously a couple of board members don't need this," said Padget in reference to second-term Trustees Carol Bodenmiller, secondterm Trustee Stephen Larson and 11th-term Clerk John Flodin. "But the rest of us need a rather extensive briefing to be able to handle our responsibilities.

It's moving time for Culbert

Supervisor Noel Culbert was busy emptying drawers and tying loose ends early this week as he prepared to move out of his office in Township Hall by today.

"I'm doing my job," said the outgoing supervisor. "I get paid until noon Thursday, and I'll be in."

At noon today, Culbert joins the ranks of Canton's last two supervisors, who were ousted from office after one term. He narrowly was defeated in the Nov. 4 election by Republican James Poole, a 1972-76 Canton trustee.

As he packed up his belongings early this week, Culbert shrugged off concerns about his future.

"I'm young," said the 34-year-old attorney. "I've had some offers (from law firms). But I'm just waiting for awhile. I'm going to take some time off."

Culbert doesn't rule out the possibility of some type of government job. He cited a job offer from one governmental unit, but declined to specify details. "But I don't think I'll ever run at the local level again. I think it only has a future as a stepping stone."

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, however, Culbert was immersed in the tiny details of leaving a local governmental office.

He wrote briefs to members of the new board to fill them in on ongoing projects. He resigned from a number of local and regional commissions, such as the Canton Economic Development Corp., the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEM-COG), the Michigan Township Association and the Wayne County Solid Waste Disposal Planning Commit-

"In my opinion, (those memberships) come with the territory of supervisor," he said. Above all, Culbert pledged to leave files in his office behind for incoming Supervisor Poole.

In 1978, Culbert accused his predecessor - former Supervisor Harold Stein - of taking township files, a charge which Stein vehemently denied.

Poole makes last try for boulevard made a last-ditch effort effort Tuesday to convince the state that a boulevard should be installed on Ford Road.

But Poole, who takes office at noon today (Thursday), admits that his efforts probably failed.

Poole and planner Jim Kosteva met Tuesday with representatives of the Michigan Department of Transportation to continue the township's five-

> The department's transportation committee was expected Wednesday to make a final decision on Ford Road improvements, which are tentatively scheduled for 1982 and 1983. The department's staff has recommended five-lane improvements for that stretch of Ford.

Poole is the fourth township supervisor who has lobbied for a boulevard on Ford. His efforts follow those of former Supervisors Noel Culbert, Harold Stein and Robert Greenstein.

"I think it's safer. And it's certainly a lot better to look at," said Poole, echoing the beliefs of his predecessors.

"IT WAS JUST something I wanted to pursue. I felt as long as there was a chance (for a boulevard), I'd take it.'

"It amounts to money," he said, re-

Shirley Winkel cooks up an Hungarian dish as husband, Art, looks

Goulash flavors the melting pot in Winkel home

This article is one of a series profiling the varied ethnic heritage of Canton Township residents. By ARLENE FUNKE

Shirley Winkel can close her eyes and hear the plaintive violin melodies which her Hungarian-born father loved so much.

She recalls the Hungarian folk dance which her parents enjoyed. And the next thing you know, Mrs. Winkel is in the spacious kitchen of her Canton Township home, whipping up a savory goulash to delight her family.

Mrs. Winkel is modest. She laughed when her husband Arthur, Canton Township's fire inspector, responded to a "census" questionnaire in the Observer which asked residents to share their ethnic cus-

"WRAT'S so significant about having a Hungarian wife?" wondered Mrs. Winkel. "I wasn't born in as the youngest of five children.

For Shirley Winkel, being of Hungarian descent pretty much boils down to change-of-pace cooking.

She buys large-sized cans of paprika, a spice extracted from mild, sweet peppers. Both paprika and sour cream are staples of Hungarian cuisine, says Mrs. Winkel.

Chicken paprika, goulash (thick beef stew) and flaky dessert nut rolls often appear on the menu at the Winkel household

"I prepare Hungarian food quite often - it beats the run-of-the-mill stuff," said Mrs. Winkel. "It's nice food and there is no bother. It goes far. All (dishes) include two things paprika and sour cream."

"Boy, they went nuts over her stuffed cabbage at church," interjected her husband. "Our kids go nuts over it."

AS DESCRIBED by her husband, Mrs. Winkel is a "full-blooded Hungarian." She grew up in Dearborn Township (now Dearborn Heights)

State trooper layoffs may be next

By TERI BANAS

While Wayne County Sheriff cuts face residents of western Wayne County, the services of the Michigan State Police here also are tenuous.

In Plymouth Township, both departments provide police protection for some 25,000 people, and both are facing cutbacks in patrol.

This area is served through the Northville State Police Post, which reaches north to Novi and as far south as Canton Township. What impact Gov. Milliken's proposed cutback of 126 troopers will have on Plymouth Township isn't known.

According to a representative of the Office of Management and Budget, Dave Lahman, cutbacks are not expected to be finalized until after the passage of the 1981 state budget.

Meanwhile, state fiscal officers have been meeting with representatives of the state Troopers Association in Lansing this week to reach some compromise on the proposed layoffs. At least 15 percent of the state police so far have agreed to a deferred compensation plan. According to Lahman, that plan calls for working an 80-hour two-week period of which only 76 hours would be paid for. The balance, four hours, would be paid for at a later date or "cashed in" for time off.

"ANY SAVINGS generated from this voluntary pay reduction could be used to reduce or eliminate the number of troopers laid off," said Lahman, who works on the planning of the state police budget.

"We've calculated that if everyone in the department executed this plan it would give enough of a savings that the layoffs wouldn't occur."

Gordon Gotts, president of the state troopers union, said his union would recommend that all state troopers, (2,150 as of Nov. 1), agree to this to avert the governor's proposed layoffs.

At the same time, however, he said the union wants to work with state fiscal planners on other cost-cutting measures that reach higher than the reduction of troopers.

"Do all the jobs have to come off the bottom? In return for the voluntary pay reductions we'd like to take a look at the state budget for the possible removal of some sophisticated programs that aren't fruitful at bare bones strength, such as crime prevention."

Specifically, Gotts is talking about the removal of some administrative positions so that his membership does not field the bulk of the cutbacks.

The perimeters of those talks were established Tuesday at meetings with state fiscal planners, he said.

Lt. Francisco Dion, second in command at the Northville Post, believes the action of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and its effect on the sheriff's patrol has had an impact on talks to reduce the state force.

"I don't see how it couldn't have a bearing on the state police."

He, however, has received no notice on the proposed layoffs impact on the Northville Post. "We expect to hear in a couple of weeks as to where the cuts will be made but we have no break-

The post's staffing was reduced by five troopers in October, in an earlier statewide cutback. The post, once with more than 80 officers, is down to 41 troopers. At that time 80 troopers were cut statewide.

"we have long passed the point of making easy cuts," said Milliken Nov. 12. "When we began laying off state police troopers or cutting back on some inspection programs or reducing the number of personnel in our mental health facilities, we are beyond fat and

DESPITE THE governor's proposed reduction in the state police force, the 1981 proposed budget is still a 7.6 percent increase in spending over last year's police budget.

In fiscal 1980 (ending Sept. 30) the budget was at $109.6 million and the proposed 1981 spending plan is at $117.9 million.

According to Gotts, layoffs aren't the sole factor in the drastic reduction of the state force in 1980-81. In 1980, some 156 troopers were lost to natural attrition in addition to the 80 laid off.

This year, the union projects another 90 officers lost to attrition. In total, that leaves 450 (including those cut recently) which the union eventually wants replaced.

"Our ultimate goal is to replace those some 400 officers but we recognize that that's far down the road."

County cuts road patrol, expects legal fight

By TOM LONERGAN

The future services of the sheriff's department in western Wayne County will be decided in court.

Three lawsuits are expected to be filed in response to the county Board of Commissioners' action this week to eliminate the sheriff's Patrol and Investigation Division.

The division includes the road patrol, which polices Hines Park, and contracted police services with Plymouth Township, Brownstown Township, Romulus and Metropolitan Airport.

THE COUNTY board Tuesday adopted a $300.3 million 1981 budget which will take effect Dec. 1. The board funded the patrol and investigation division only through Jan. 31 to comply with the 60-days' notice requirement in police contracts with the local communities and the road commission-operated air-

More than 240 positions would be eliminated, leaving jail staffing and guards in circuit courtrooms as the sheriff's department's only functions.

But not all of the sheriff's employees who now work out of the patrol and investigation headquarters on Henry Ruff Road in Westland would lose their jobs. Some have contractual seniority

Before anyone is laid off, the county will have to defend its decision in court. The sheriff's deputies and sergeants and lieutenants unions are expected to file suit, alleging that the county board has violated their contracts.

"WE WILL go to court," said John Baier, president of deputies' Local 502.

"We have to. We feel they are violating our contract."

Dale Orth, a sergeant with the patrol and investigation division, said his union, which represents 84 sergeants, lieutenants and inspectors, is "anticipating" filing suit. He said an arbitrator ruled last summer that the county could lay off only for "lack of work, not lack of money." He called the board's action, "a subtle way of sneaking around the corner and attempting to solve the budget problem."

Sheriff William Lucas said last week he would also file suit. Lucas was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Dehoco administrator Bill Rucks said deer could live in the 1,000-acre site between Sheldon and Napier roads.

"There's still a lot of big thickets out here where we do see fox, racoons, pheasant and deer. The last deer I saw here was in late spring, early summer."

Meanwhile, at the roundhouse, near Pearl and Mill streets, C&O car clerk Bob Colver saw the animal racing through the yard.

"She was in good shape when I saw her," he reported. "But I think the noise from the trucks pulling in here scared her. She just froze for a second and then headed out.

Our enthusiasm and excitement over our new venture has been met with much support and encouragement, not only on a local level, but in the Detroit metropolitan area as well.

Because of the uniqueness of the enterprise, and because there are relatively few guidelines on which to go we won't be able to capitalize on someone else's mistakes - we have sought help, guidance, and advice from as many people in the private and public sectors as possible.

One of these people is our mayor, Mary Childs. My wife and I were privileged and honored last week to have lunch with Mayor Childs to discuss with her our new plans and seek her counsel in hopes of initiating our new service with as few setbacks as possible.

Stop-smoking clinic coming

Dr. Arthur Weaver has scheduled a stop smoking clinic next month for the Plymouth-Canton area.

The clinic will be Monday, Dec. 1 through Friday, Dec. 5 in Plymouth Canton High School, 46181 Joy Road just west of Canton Center Road in Helping Dr. Weaver with the clinic will be John Swanson, a health education specialist. Each session will begin at 7:30 p.m.

DR. WEAVER, a cancer surgeon, will head a group of several professionals who will donat their services for the five-night seminar.

Weaver is an associate professor of surgery at Wayne State University and has gained a reputation throughout metropolitan Detroit and Michigan for his fight against smoking.

His stop smoking techniques have been popularized by television, radio and newspaper reports.

Weaver attributes the high success rate of the program to the combined attack on both the physiological and psychological aspects of tobacco addic-

Each of the five evenings will have lectures, audiovisuals and group inter-

Every participant receives a personal "control" booklet with instructions and encouragement programmed for each day of the withdrawal program.

"Every aspect of living has become incorporated into the smoking habit," says Dr. Weaver, "and this seminar disentangles the smoker's entire life

"WE FIND that most smokers actually enjoy the week. My real pav comes when I see how grateful people are to be rid of the dirty habit."

The clinics as well as other programs on health and exercise - including seminars on vegetarianism, nutrition and weight control - are offered as a community service through Better Living Seminars.

There is no registration required for the stop smoking clinic. A donation will be asked the last night of the seminar to cover expenses.

Despite pitfalls, old board got the job done

At noon today, the hands of Canton Township government changed once again.

Terms of four Township Board members - Supervisor Noel Culbert, Treasurer James Donahue, Trustee Robert Greenstein and Trustee Eugene Daley - expired as the clock struck 12.

At 12:01 p.m., the terms of four new officials -Supervisor James Poole, Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz, Trustee Robert Padget and Trustee Loren Bennett — began. Clerk John Flodin, Trustee Carol Bodenmiller and Trustee Stephen Larson started another term in office.

IN SOME RESPECTS, the new Township Board will have a tough act to follow. We sometimes disagreed with the old board's decisions. We criticized the infighting that sometimes occurred as well as the "unprofessional" treatment of some department heads and developers.

Perhaps most important of all, the old board ran one of the most open governments in recent years. The credit for that must go to all seven members. They consistently made themselves available, no matter how controversial the issues at hand. They answered questions, although their replies sometimes were spiked with rhetoric.

Outgoing Supervisor Culbert deserves special mention. For a democracy to work, open government is a must. Citizens deserve to know the plans and beliefs of their elected officials. As far as this newspaper can judge, Culbert's administration was one of the most open possible.

THE NEW BOARD should take a cue from the merits and shortcomings of its predecessors.

Thanks to voters, a well-qualified crew officially took office this afternoon. Their work will begin in earnest Friday following a ceremonial swearing-in scheduled for 7 p.m. today.

They will face many important issues, including a final decision on farmland preservation and ways to curb rising property tax bills.

Hopefully, they will address those problems with a minimum of political fights and a maximum of cooperation and level-headed thinking. Hopefully, they will cast aside some bad habits of their predecessors and treat all petitioners before the Township Board with an equal degree of re-

Hopefully, they will continue the tradition of open government in Canton Township.

The Observer wishes good luck to all outgoing Canton officials. We hope for a progressive four years to the new board which took over the reins of Canton government today.

Richard

More suits, less service from county

There was a grim comment on American society in action taken last week by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Keep in mind that the county legislators had already ordered layoffs at the jail, youth home, morgue and General Hospital.

Keep in mind, too, that only five years ago the Sheriff's Department had 1,200 employees, that it currently has 850 and that the board intends to cut that by another 250 or so.

And keep in mind that parts of Hines Park that were once grassy hills are now overgrown with weeds because there's too little money for mainte-

IN THE MIDDLE of this budget crunch, the commissioners decided they had to add - add, mind you - nine lawyers in the civil counsel's off-

The reason is the increasing number of damage claims against the county generally and at the hospital in particular

What it tells us is that people are lawsuit-happy. In slang, it's known as the "sue the bastards" men-

No longer do Americans seek their fortunes by panning for gold in California or Alaska. No longer do they seek instant fortune in the stock market, at the gaming tables or even the lottery.

Instead, they look for any reason to file suit.

This occurs at a time when Wayne County is losing population. It occurs at a time when the medical industry is ordering tests, tests, tests on patients for everything imaginable, just to avoid lawsuits.

MY NOTION of government, gleaned from textbooks and experience, is that a legislative body must make final budget decisions. We then live with those decisions, at least until the next election when we have the opportunity to throw the bums out.

The other county officeholders, and even the judges, have a different idea. They have a "sue the bastards" mentality, too.

Sheriff William Lucas last week said he would file suit to stop the cuts in his department. Lucas said he would hire a lawyer from "personal" funds, which may mean we are paying him too much.

A year ago, the county was going through this same budget crunch, and it led Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, to write:

"The courts are hurting us in many ways. Last year (1978), the Board of Commissioners asked all elected officials and department heads to voluntarily cut back their operations by 15 percent whether through cuts in staff or programs was left up to them.

"The courts, the only ones in the county to have lump sum budgets, did not do so and knew that they would run out of money before the end of the current (1979) budget year.

"THE OTHER elected officials, except the Board of Auditors, sued us to regaln their full ap-

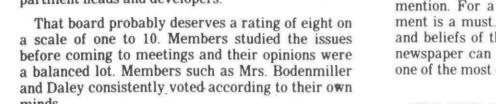

"The court allowed them to spend at the full amount - which meant that they would also run out of funds - until such time as the suits would be

"A recent (court) decision held that only the prosecutor and register of deeds would be harmed by the 15-percent cuts. However, that does not restore the money already expended by the others," said Commissioner Beard.

A FINAL ironic note: At the beginning, I noted the county is hiring nine more civil lawyers to handle the burden of lawsuits and claims.

If those lawyers didn't have to be hired, it would save the jobs of more than nine sheriff's deputies.

Thus, Sheriff Lucas' own "sue the bastards" menw tality is part of the reason we will have less law enforcement protection in Wayne County.

Young adults spike drinks despite law

OBSERVER LECLENTRYC PAPERS

She sat there with her head dangling between her legs, oblivious to the crowds around her.

She looked about 18 — maybe 19 or even 20. She obviously had soaked up more cheap wine than football on that cold, gray afternoon in a college

"And they want to lower the drinking age to 19," mumbled a thirtiesh-looking woman who stood next

She obviously viewed the young woman as a graphic example of why 19-year-olds shouldn't

But the remark struck me as totally irrelevant. After all, the drunk and very sick young woman obviously was younger than 21, the legal drinking age, anyway. I reasoned that she'd be just as drunk if the drinking age were 19, 21 — or 30.

BUT APPARENTLY, the majority of Michigan voters view the situation from a different perspective. They crushed a ballot proposal Nov. 4 that would have lowered the drinking age to 19.

Like that 30-year-old woman in the crowd, they apparently believe that limiting the legal use of alcohol to those over 21 miraculously will buffer young adults from all the horrors of the world. No hangovers, no nausea and no traffic accidents involving young drunk drivers.

You might as well hope for a universal end to

A similar approach to the problems of drinking didn't work during the Prohibition Era, when alcohol use was illegal for everyone.

The reasons for passing the law were much the same as banning young adults from drinking today. People saw winos sleeping it off in the streets and families disrupted by alcoholism. They saw heavy drinkers die young. So, they passed a law which they believed would improve society.

But people who thought the law silly simply brewed beer in their basements. They proved that you can't protect people against themselves.

I suspect that the 21-year-old drinking law will be just as ineffective in 1980.

The cold truth of the matter is that 19-year-olds no longer consider themselves children. They've already graduated from high school. They can vote, go to war, marry, apply for loans and even have kids before the magical age of 21.

Unlike high school kids only a few years younger, they're expected to begin mapping out a course for their lives in earnest. Many are on their own for the first time on some college campus. Others are working or scouring the streets for jobs.

Most consider drinking their right — no matter what the law says. If they don't want to drink they won't. But no law which they perceive as age discrimination will stop them from mixing a cocktail if they want one.

THAT CERTAINLY was the case on that recent Saturday afternoon when a young woman got very drunk at a football game.

That certainly was the case at another football game on another college campus 10 years ago, when the drinking age also was 21.

In this particular case, the drunk young woman was my roommate, Linda, age 19, who was a good student and usually quite rational and mature.

Linda went to a football game and drank a great deal of Ripple. Linda's parents drove up to East Lansing to take Linda out to dinner following the rassed to see them. She hid in the bathroom and made me — her loyal roommate — make up excuses on why their daughter wasn't around.

But Linda was too drunk, too sick and too embar-

Linda didn't like being sick. I didn't like fabricating excuses. And her parents didn't like the fact that their daughter had "forgotten" their date.

But Linda, who later apologized to her parents, learned from the experience. She had abused alcohol — like many people both young and old. I never saw her that intoxicated again.

The point is that the 21-year-old drinking law didn't cap her bottle of Ripple.

But apparently, most voters view the problem differently.

Obviously, that 30-year-old woman who attended a football game last month couldn't recall similar experiences from her own young adult years.

She probably was too busy sipping peppermint schnapps in the "adult" section of the stadium to remember that alcohol potentially can harm any-

K.O. made big success as failure

After a fellow has traveled along the journalistic trail for a number of years, he finds that he becomes a target for questions of all sorts.

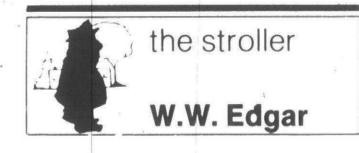

The Stroller, who has been involved the world of journalism for more than a few years, found this out the other evening when, in the midst of a discussion of the recent election, he was asked:

"Who was the most unusual character you have met in your travels along the river of printer's Figuring this was a trick question to get him involved in a debate, The Stroller asked in return, 'Have you ever heard of anyone who made a success of failure?"

This caught his questioners off guard. They looked with wide open eyes and shook their heads to think that anything like that could be possible.

BUT THE Stroller was serious. He actually met a fellow who made a success of failure, so he told them the story of K.O. Christman, an old-time fighter who billed himself as the Akron Rubber Man.

He was quite a character — and one of the oddest ever to grace the rings around the country.

To The Stroller's knowledge, K.O. never won a big fight, yet he was booked in the main event in all the major boxing centers. •

What made his career all the more unusual is that while he never won a major fight, he seldom finished one in any other position than on his knees in the center of the ring being counted out.

K.O. was what they called a "trial horse" in the fight game. Any time a young boxer with any promise came along, he was matched somewhere with K.O. And by beating him — as was the custom

- the rookie pugilist had his confidence built up for bigger game.

K.O. HIT the Detroit scene in the early '30s and soon become one of the favorites among the odd characters for which the fight game is noted. He was nothing more than human punching bag, but a smart one. He saw to it that he never was hurt in any of his bouts.

'One of his queerest "fights" took place at the Michigan State Fair Grounds when he was matched with Primo Carnera, the "Ambling Alp" who went on from that bout to win the world heavyweight

Carnera was a giant of a man and the kind of an opponent who could be difficult to handle. But old K.O. didn't let this bother him. He came out for the second round and deliberately delivered a low blow and was rulled the loser on a foul. Back in the dressing room, while the crowd hollered "fake," K.O. sat on a trunk and smilingly said. "Let them holler. My end of the purse was put in a bank in Windsor this afternoon."

Current trends in photography seem to be toward more automation in cameras, lenses, strobes, etc. We no longer think.

What a "lift" it is when an area of photography comes along that enables us to put our minds in gear and fully control the situation. After all, creativity is what photography is all about.

Such an area in black and white photography is called the zone system. It was developed by Ansel Adams in the early 1940s. I don't believe an area in photography exists where more control, flexibility and creativity are at the disposal of the photographer than the zone system.

BASICALLY, the zone system is a way of seeing the world of color around us in values of black, white and gray and then placing these values, during exposure and development, in the most effective way. We then obtain the best possible negative and subsequently the optimum final print.

The zone system enables us to utilize one of the most important concepts in photography today previsualization. This means planning the final print in the "mind's eye" before the shutter is re-

To understand the zone system, imagine a scale of 10 zones ranging frem jet black through the gray values, and ending with pure white. Adams calls jet black (no detail whatsoever) zone 1 and pure white (again no detail) zone 9. All other zones would fit between these extremes. Graphically, the zones would appear as follows:

Zone 0 — Blackest black that can be produced.

Zone 1 — Almost black.

Zone 2 — Very slight tonality.

Zone 3 — First zone with noticeable detail.

Zone 4 — Very good detail.

Zone 5 - Middle gray (all camera meters read this zone).

Zone 6 — Very good detail. Zone 7 — Last zone with full texture.

Zone 8 — Last trace of detail.

Zone 9 — Whitest white that can be produced.

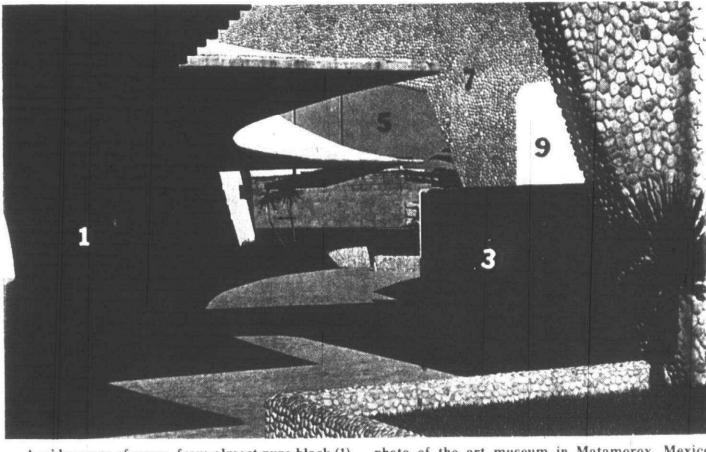

ZONES ARE directly related to F-stops. That is, any zone requires exactly twice as much exposure as the next lowest zone, anywhere in the zone scale. Each zone equals one F-stop.

All meters, either through-the-lens or hand-held, are calibrated to read resulting print of middle gray when printed normally. All other values will "fall" into their respective zones.

Of course, the zone system is much more than taking one meter reading (zone 5) and letting all other values end up where they will. There are many areas of creative refinements.

For example, average Caucasian skin falls into zone 6. So to produce an ideal negative and resulting portrait, take the meter reading off the skin (remember, always zone 5) and then increase exposure by one F-stop. This can be accomplished either by the aperture control or the shutter speed control.

What has happened is that you have just "placed"

A wide range of zones, from almost pure black (1) to almost pure white (9) is visible in Monte Nagler's the skin in zone 6 and a perfect negative is yours.

SUPPOSE YOU want to photograph your white

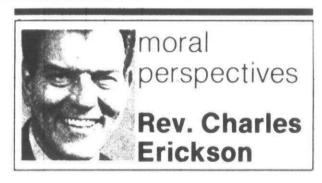

If you did what the meter says, you would end up with a negative of a gray cat (always zone 5) and would find it difficult to produce a rich looking print highlighting the white tones of your cat.

Solution: Take the meter reading, keeping in mind it is always zone 5, and then "open-up" two Fstops to zone 7. Now snap the shutter ard you'll have photo of the art museum in Matamorox, Mexico, just across the border from Brownsville, Tex.

an ideal negative to make a print of which you'll be Dark subjects work just the opposite. Your neighbor's black cat should be metered as usual (zone 5) and then the camera "stopped down" to zone 3 in order to faithfully reproduce the cat's dark tones. Are you beginning to understand the zone system? Can you see its creative potential? Cut out this column and save it. In two weeks, on Dec. 4, I'll discuss refinements of the zone system and how you can further use it to your advantage.

'Will power' want to fight or solve problems?

"Can't died 12 years ago," grandmother would retort when I resisted doing a chore. The number of "years ago" shifted with the

She was called a "strong-willed person." I realize I haven't heard anyone called that for a long time.

Americans traditionally have assumed any problem can be solved by sheer grit, the energy of will power. Along with that, we have pointed moralistic fingers at anyone in trouble and denounced him for being weak-willed.

That has changed, rather gradually, with the birth and growth of academic psychology. By now it has filtered down to most of us that our actions are caused by a variety of energy sources in and around us. We do not accomplish everything we think we will do, and sometimes very little of it.

THESE DAYS we have a wiser view of ourselves and others.

We try to look at the whole person. We respect feelings as much as thoughts. We honor attitude as much as conviction. The old division of a person into body, mind, and heart has been pulled together. Many view the spirit as the crucial power in the whole

With our enthusiasm about wholeness, we need to be careful not to slight any part. Will, which used to be our only concern in morality, is being given too little regard.

A negative illustration clarifies. When we have the will to fight, sooner or later we pick a scrap and somebody calls our bluff. This is frightening when applied to nations. One retired general has gone so far as to say "a nuclear war would only carry us back to the level of living of the 1920s, and that is not so bad." Any school child knows the aftermath of nuclear war will not be that simple.

UNFORTUNATELY, MUCH political rhetoric is a huffing and puffing about our national will to fight, and to win. Defense spending doesn't sound like peace keeping when it is touted as demonstrating the will to be superior. Some politicians sound like bullies at school recess.

Measuring defense by "spending" is part of the naive notion that problems are solved by throwing money at them. Yes, money is needed, but the measure is how people and nations are involved

We need a will to do problem-solving together. We need a will to have a security based on mutual interests. We need a bond of fighting problems instead of each other.

A study of wars between major powers from 1861 to 1965 is astounding. It reveals that "dispute preceded by an arms race escalated to war 23 out of 28 times, while disputes not preceded by an arms race resulted in war only three out of 71 times.

The magnitude of proposed defense spending has a clear result. it builds a will for war.

THE PROBLEM of terrorism is similar. Our acceptance of horror is revealed in news, saying a group "claims responsibility for the bombing" instead of "accepts blame for the destruction

Farmington puts scare in Chief girls, 53-50

By BRAD EMONS

In the midst of a long winning streak, Plymouth Canton girls' basketball coach Mike McCauley was begging for stiff competition.

He got all he wanted Tuesday night as his Chiefs held off stubborn Farmington, 53-50, in a non-league finale for both teams.

"The end of the game was a close shave for the coach," joked McCauley afterward.

Canton finished its regular season with an 18-2 record. It was also the team's 17th consecutive win. McCauley's players celebrated the win by gym. Since it was McCauley's birthday, he seemed to be the prime target.

"This is the worst shooting we've had from the foul line and out," said McCauely. "We seemed a little tight. Maybe we were too high for the game."

Farmington center Stacy Green was too high for the Chiefs. The 6-foot-3 junior blocked a dozen shots and led all scorers with 21 points.

She led a fourth quarter comeback along with freshman Mary Anp Kuhnlein, just called up from the junio

Canton blew a 13-point third quarter advantage as Farmington, refusing to spraying shaving cream all over the fold, came roaring back in the fourth quarter.

A short bank shot by Sue Carruthers with 2:18 remaining pulled Farmington to within one, 51-50.

The Falcons, who committed numerous turnovers in the first half, settled down in the final two periods to give Canton all it could handle.

Farmington had two chances to pull ahead in the final two minutes, but bad shot selection and costly mistakes enabled the Chiefs to hold on.

Pearly Cunningham and Jean Timlin, each whom paced Canton with 14 points each, hit crucial free throws down the stretch to put Farmington

"EARLY MISTAKES hurt us," said Farmington coach Bob Lekovish, whose team ended the year at 9-10. "I was pleased with our play. It was anybody's game in the last minute."

The Falcons were once again hampered by poor ball handling and passing for the first 20 minutes of play.

"Their press hurt us," said Lekovish. "It's been a problem. I told the girls we had to cut down on our turnovers. In the second half our guards we're bringing up better."

Farmington may have found it's solution to its problems with the press in Kuhnlein, who seemed to take charge in the fourth quarter. She tallied five of her eight points in the final quarter.

"We did a good job tonight," offered Lekovish. "Maybe we can gain some momentum from this loss."

The Falcons will open Class A district play at 8:30 p.m. against North Farmington at Northville. Livonia Stevenson and Farmington Our Lady of Mercy are also entered and favored to meet in the finals.

Meanwhile, Canton will tangle with rival Plymouth Salem (16-4) at 7:30 p.m. in district play at Salem.

I dropped by Canton principal Kent Buikema's office recently and came away impressed.

I quickly found out that Buikema, the head man since the school opened in 1972, is genuinely concerned about the sports scene off Canton Center Road.

He is more visible than the average high school principal. I've seen him regularly at a number of different sporting events.

"I suppose I have an interest," he said. "I enjoy being a spectator and a participant

"I feel I owe it to the students and the coaches, I hope the people in drama and music feel the same way. It's hard to be everywhere because they're are so many things going on.

Buikema has officiated high school football "on and off" for the the past 25 years. He worked on a crew of four with some "educational people" from the school district the past six years. The Canton principal plays racquetball three times a week. He is also an avid downhill skier, knocks a golf ball around and plays tennis.

BUIKEMA HAS a good perspective on sports at the high school level. He calls it "co-curricular" activities instead of extracurricular.

The key to a successful program, according to Buikema, is stability in coaching staffs.

Jean Timlin (left) of Plymouth Canton streaks in for a layup after

"Look at someone like Mike McCauley," said Buikema. "His girls' basketball program has done well. He's been the coach for a long time and his assistants have been with him awhile." There hasn't been much stability in the football program, but Buikema feels that will change with new coach Richard Barr.

"Football limped along because of the turnover in assistants," he said. "Our football record (1-8) won-lost was not better than it's been, but the games were more respectable and showed potential."

Buikema feels programs in baseball with Fred Crissey, boys' basketball with Craig Bell, girls' tennis with Cyndi Burnstein, softball with Max Sommerville and cross country with Jim Hayes, are all examples of stable programs which are also respectable.

One program Buikema is concerned about is boys' swimming

"Bill Faunce worked very hard as our coach," said the Canton principal. "We didn't know Bill Hahn (the coach in 1979-80) was going to resign until late September.

"It put us in a bind because we could have hired in a new teacher for the fall with a background in swimming."

THE SITUATION has temporarily been remedied with the hiring of Plymouth Salem graduate Bill McCord.

Buikema would like to see school board policy change on hiring of new teachers.

"This is one thing that has always hurt us," he said. "Teachers and coaches we could hire are not given experience. They come in and are paid starting wages - the Step I level.

"The lower dollars are driven away. It's all an individual thing. There are some without experience that are ex-

Buikema is also concerned about sagging attendance at high school sporting events. He's talked to Athletic Director John Sandmann, assistant Paul Cummings and to various coaches about the problem.

"We have not drawn well," Buikemaadmits. "It's a shame the seasons don't overlap for instance like in basketball. I was thinking in terms of a girls-boys doubleheader. "Maybe we could do more promotion. Maybe a gymnastics exhibition at the halftime of a basketball game. Or bringing in some little league teams.

"OUR PROGRAM is so vast, though, it's hard for them (Sandmann and Cummings) to keep up with that. Coaches have to worry about getting their teams ready."

Buikema said the community still looks at rival Salem as "Old Plymouth High School.

"The old sports enthusiasts still follow Salem, but I think that's diminishing," he said.

"I think our programs are close. I think it's on a par. Salem has been a winner, but we've competed favorably in a lot of sports. We'll continue to im-

Plymouth Salem cracked Redford Union's zone defense Monday night and came away with a 53-48 con-league girls' basketball win

Salem finished the season with a 16-4 overall mark. RU heads into tournament action with a 13-7 record.

Eileen was dynamite tonight," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "When the ball-is in her hands, it creates opportunities for the other players.

"She made some passes tonight I couldn't believe. She handled the ball for us, but is an unselfish player."

RU, a member of the Northwest Suburban League, jumped out to a 13-10 first quarter lead.

Salem, however, came storming back to lead at intermission, 22-19.

"Passing-wise, they were excellent." Junior guard Carol Ross tallied 10 points for Salem. Teammate Jacque Merrifield added nine.

Junior forward Jan MacKenzie paced Salem with 14 points. Pam Drury popped in 14 for RU.

"I thought we really attacked their zone well," said the Salem coach. "They gave us a lot of pressure and we were able to handle it. We used good judgment versus their zone.

"RU is a good team. They shoot the ball extremely well and have good rebounders with mobility."

After a heartbreaking 40-39 overtime loss last Thursday to Trenton, Blohm decided to give his team a rest for the regular season finale.

"We didn't practice for three days," he said. "This was the first time I saw them in awhile."

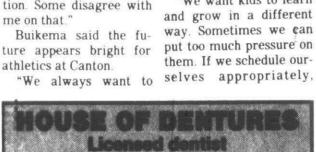

Salem will now meet rival Plymouth Canton at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in first round district play at Salem. Canton is riding a 17-game winning streak.

Laker wrestler becomes leader

By KIM DUCHANE

There weren't many people in Sault Ste. Marie who knew Kyle Heaton at this time last year. A lot of Lake Superior State College wrestling fans, however, know a lot about him now Heaton, a 6-foot-1, 177-pound junior grappler from Plymouth, came to the Lakers two years ago after a fine scholastic career at Canton High School.

He started out at Lake Superior slowly, winning just eight matches his freshman season.

Heaton began to steadily improve as his career progressed and by the time March rolled around, he had qualified for the 1980 NCAA National Champion-

"I feel more relaxed this year," said Heaton. "There's not as much pressure on me personally, but I know my work habits will be observed more, especially by the younger wrestlers. So, I've been working hard on my technique."

Heaton will compete in the upper weight classes for the Lakers this season. The Canton grad plans to go either 177 or 190, depending upon where he can help the team out the most. "I rate us very highly," the Laker captain said. "We have six regulars returning, although none of us placed in the nationals.

"We have to be consistent in our matches and we can't mistakes. With myself, Ron (Perry), Todd (Kenyon) and Mike (Hufnagel), I know we have the guys who can do it."

THE LAKER WRESTLING staff brought in some key recruits for the 1980-81 season.

Three junior college transfers, Dan Yoder and Mike Cribbs from Muskegon CC, and Bill Kielts from Schoolcraft CC, should help balance the team according to Heaton.

"Between our veterans and our newcomers," he said, "we have been really working hard in practice.

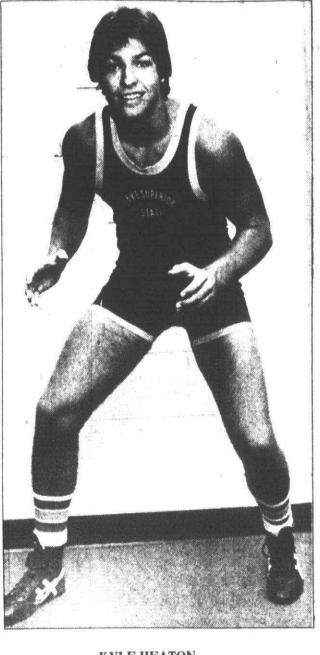

"The transfers really have added a spark to our workouts and the freshmen are learning quickly."

Heaton predicts Ferris State and Grand Valley State as the Lakers' chief competition for the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) "Ferris and Grand Valley look to be improved." Heaton said. "Oakland University has basically the same team as Since Heaton has experienced what it's like to compete on a national level, does that make him hungrier for a repeat performance in 1981?

"Does it ever!" he exclaimed.

Holy Redeemer nips Agatha '5'

The dreams of a Catholic league C-D championship for Redford St. Agatha came crashing to the ground Sunday in an agonizing and frustrating

In a contest that saw St. Agatha outplay Detroit Holy Redeemer most of the game, two things could almost be counted on to stifle their attack. High percentage shots did everything but fall through the hoop, and most every foul called was against the Aggies.

The final score was a two-point loss, 37-35.

"We outplayed them," said Aggie coach Jim Murphy. "We outshot them every quarter, but we couldn't score. We just could not put the ball in the

"The game was very poorly officiated and that hurt us too." Holy Redeemer went to the foul line 18 times during the course of the night, while St. Agatha was awarded the free toss only six times.

"Both teams played very agressive basketball, but there is no way the fouls should be so lopsided," Murphy said. "It was a poorly officiated game, but our inability to score was the big thing.'

While St. Agatha was struggling, Holy Redeemer's Lori Tennant was right on target. Tennant put up 29 of the Lion's points, and her shots hit nothing but net, according to Murphy.

"We wanted to shut everyone else down and hold Tennant to 20-plus points," Murphy added. "The kids did everything we coached them to do against Holy Redeemer, except put the ball in the hole."

In spite of poor shooting from the floor, two Aggies still managed to reach double figures. Mona Clor popped for 14 to lead the squad and Gwen Clor was right behind with 11.

Bayview Electric regin ends abruptly

The reign of Billy G's Bayview Electric team as the area's top scoring combination didn't last very long.

Two weeks ago the Bayview team fired a 3433 that included a 1231 game. It was expected that this score, bowled. at Bel-Aire Lanes may survive all attacks the remainder of the season.

But these expectations went awry last week when the Bonanza Family Restaurant team, rolled a 13ll game and a 3561 series in the Thursday allstar classic at Orchard Lanes.

Bob Goike paced the new leaders with a 785. The other members were Dick Beattie with 673, John Bennett with 681, Bob Garrett with 684 and Mike Jabczenski with 738.

The all-time record for the Detroit area is 3691 rolled by the Stroh team on Feb. 21, 1978.

FOUR NEW members were admitted to the 700 club during the past week

The first of these was Cory Nesser who paced the Bel-Aire Classic with 706 that included a middle game of 269. The next was Quintin Greene, who posted a 740 on games of 258, 256 and 226 in the mixed classic at Westland Bowl. Ken Kaplan won his admission with a 725 series in the Legion league at Merri-Bowl. He had games of 235, 245 and 245. Joining them was Dennis Kolakowski who linked counts of 275, 213 and 229 for 717 in the business and industrial league at Plaza Lanes. The 717 was 100 pins over Dennis' average.

MIKE LEE and Tom Gredell narrowly missed breaking the 700 barrier at Westland in the Friday classic. Mike posted a 698 on games of 233, 236 and 229 while Tom finished with a 257 for

In the ladies competition Julie Zimmerman was high with 612 and Carol Goike was next with 587.

WHEN KEN KAPLAN rolled his 725 he left his rivals far behind in the legion league at Merri-Bowl. The closest anyone came to him was Rick Pomaville with 672 that included a 248

In the invitational doubles Pat Gray and Claudia Mals waged a great duel before Pat won with a 582 - one in more than her rival.

In the ladies classic Mary Mohacsi took over the winner's circle with a 246 in 656 and Michael Chulmicki topped the suburban mixed league with 604. It was his first 600 series.

IN THE senior house league at Woodland Lanes Ron Cockerell set the pace with a 668 series but Jim Strange furnished the thrill when he lined up nine strikes in a row, missed on the tenth and had to settle for a 277 and a 639 series, only three pins more than Mike Biegouski.

In the senior citizens league Al Larance rolled a580 and John Hallman

AN ODDITY in the ladies classic at Livonia Lanes came about when Joan Lewis and Marion Heath finished in a deadlock for high honors at 581 each. Joan won the last game with 152-33-228 and then had 482-99-0 for her 581. Marion Heath had 470-111-- for 581.

MIKE RICH had the high score of the week at Garden Lanes when he rolled a 684 to pace the Wayne County Road Commission loop. In the other leagues Dave Moran had it easy in the Moose loop witth 642 where he beat Bill Curnow by 32 pins. In the St. Linus league John Mandell was high with 640 and Elizabeth Hall showed the way in the Ladies Classic with 615.

IN OTHER good performances, Myrna Hille had a 231 in 621 to show the way in the noon classic at Farmington Lanes

Salem-Canton battle slated

December Delirium, as it's called in Michigan, will kick off tonight as several area girls' basketball teams will be tested early.

Topping the list is the battle at 7:30 p.m. Thursday when Plymouth Canton risks its 17-game winning streak against rival Plymouth Salem at the Salem gym.

It's the second time in a row the two schools have drawn each other in the district opener. Last year Canton's 15game streak was stopped by the Rocks.

"It should be another classic," said Canton coach Mike McCauley. "Both teams should be fired up. You can throw the records out. It doesn't mean a thing.

The two teams will offer contrasting styles of play

Salem is more defensive-minded and plays deliberately on offense. Canton, meanwhile, is a run, press and shoot team. The Chiefs use all 10 players and try to wear their opponents down.

basketball rankings

"I think it's great," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "I'd rather play them right away instead of letting them get into a

"Canton has tremendous quickness and great fundemental skills. They all can play."

The key matchup will be Salem's swing player Eileen Moore against Canton's supersub Pearly Cunningham.

ANOTHER KEY matchup to watch is Salem center Cheryl Sobkow versus three Canton centers.

The winner of the Canton-Salem game will most likely draw the Observer's Class A No. 1 ranked team, Westland John Glenn

The Rockets, coached by George

Sommerman, concluded their best season in the school's history by beating Inkster Tuesday afternoon, 61-58, as Kim Cesarz poured in a school-record 34 points, breaking teammate Geri Pizzuti's mark!

Glenn must first meet Garden City West at 6:15 p.m. Saturday night.

A pair of 13-7 clubs, Livonia Franklin and host Redford Union, square off Friday with No. 2 ranked Livonia Bentley waiting to meet the winner Mon-

Livonia Stevenson, owners of a 15-game win streak, have been paired opposite state-ranked Farmington Our Lady of Mercy in the Northville district.

Jim George's Spartans appear ready 2. Redford St. Agatha for a tourney run after blasting Ann Arbor Huron Tuesday night

The Observer's No. 1 and 2 ranked Class B-C-D squads, Livonia Ladywood and second division Catholic League runnerup Redford St. Agatha, are expected to win their respective districts.

This year's early round matchups should be enough fuel for area fans.

By W.W. EDGAR

No matter what happens when Coach Bo Schembechler takes his Michigan team into the horseshoe stadium in Columbus, Ohio, on Saturday to battle the Buckeyes of Ohio State, he will have the last laugh at his critics.

When the season started, no one among the critics ever dreamed that the Wolverines would be playing for the Big 10 title and the chance to play in the Rose Bowl.

As a matter of fact, the Wolverines were relegated to fourth place in the conference race and there were some who claimed U-M would be lucky to finish that high.

To make the critics' position more stable, Schembechler confided that there were plenty of positions to be filled and that his team would be a question mark. He said his offensive line was good, but the defensive forwards were inexperienced and the team could be in trouble.

"But I can guarantee you," Schembechler emphasized at a press conference on Picture Day, "that the team would play good football.'

He wouldn't dispute the critics and has answered his critics.

the poll takers. He just went patiently to the job of building a team that wouldn't disgrace the maize and blue.

When the team lost to Notre Dame and South Carolina - the first time in vears that they suffered back-to-back defeats - there were many who felt the season would be a disaster.

Schembechler took the defeats in stride. But when play resumed, he uncovered a few stars in John Wangler, who returned from an injury, and Anthony Carter, the speedster from Florida. This combination, along with Stanley Edwards in the backfield, turned the season around.

When this trio got going, the offense was set and, fortunately, the young defensive line matured. Together they went on a rampage that has given Michigan seven straight victories.

The big thrill came last Saturday when the Wolverines, using a six-man defensive backfield, stretched Purdue's string of scoreless quarters to 14.

Now it is on to Columbus and, given a break or two along the way, it could be a trip to the Rose Bowl.

It is a far cry from the picture that was painted when the season started. Bo sure is having the last laugh; he

IF THE LOCAL American Legion post had any doubts about the value of its Boys State program, they were dispelled Saturday evening. Passage-Gayde Post entertained its 1980 Boys Staters and Citizen of the Year winners at dinner in the Jacob Room of Hillside Inn.

The students and their parents were introduced by Ernie Koi, master of ceremonies, and following the prime rib or crab legs dinners, each of the young people was asked to say a few words.

If the parents were beaming with pride, so was every other person in the room.

The citizens of the year thanked the Legion for the honor and for the accompanying checks. These were awarded to four high school seniors—two from Plymouth Salem and two from Plymouth Canton. The Salem students were Sandra Gottwald, who is now in the integrated pre-med medical program at the University of Michigan, and Craig Flower, who was unable to attend because he is going to school in California.

The Plymouth Canton winners, Keith Greenleaf and Sondra Gillon, were there. Keith is now a freshman at Kalamazoo College.

All three expressed their gratitude with a poise, sincerity and fluency of which many adults are incapable. It was impressive.

FOUR 11th GRADERS were chosen for the week in Lansing at Boys State.

Mike Sharp, now a senior at Plymouth Salem, said it was "a great honor and one of my greatest experiences." He described the week at Michigan State University as one of 40 participants as "fantastic." He said they were very busy and that he enjoyed the lectures on government, the associations and the friendships.

Paul Swantek of Plymouth Canton high said he wasn't sure he wanted to go to Boys State. "But it was a week I will always remember. It was filled with things I didn't know about government. I learned a lot. I made a lot of friends and I want to thank the Le-

Paul Horton, a senior at Plymouth Salem, said, "I didn't know what to expect. I learned the importance of participation and how the government is

"It is unbelievable the unity we experienced in working together to achieve a goal. We learned a lot from each other in a short time."

"It enlightened me," said Bob Gates, a senior at Plymouth Canton "I was sort of a radical and it gave me a new outlook on government. After meeting and talking to our representatives, I found there are people who care and want to make the system work."

He, too, was amazed at the fact that 40 young men could become such good friends in one week. They were divided into political parties, ran for office and held elections during their week in

ERNIE KOI told them that Mike Hoben, superintendent of schools, was a former Boys Stater. Bill Nicolas, post commander, added that he, too, attended Boys State.

Guest speaker for the evening was Judge Dunbar Davis. In his easy, inimitable way, the judge's talk was a mingling of George Bernard Shaw, his own observations and some poetry.

He said that everyone needs some winning experiences, some appreciation, some attention. He recalled great athletes of the past — Paavo Nurmi, the Flying Finn; tennis star Bill Tilden; swimmer Johnny Weissmuller; and oth-

In discussing the sports heroes of a few generations ago, he said the Flying Finn now would come in last in a college track meet mile race, and that girls in their early teams could swim faster than Weissmuller. "And one of those young Gillis girls could beat Bill Tilden on the tennis court."

His poetry had my mind going around in circles. Was it Stephen Benet? No. Robert Frost? No. At the conclusion of the party he said it was former Plymouth resident, Max Elli-

The dinner and program were arranged by Legionnaire Chuck Orr, who was unable to attend.

THE DATE OF the Mill Race Weavers Guild annual holiday sale was omitted in Monday's column. It will be from 10 a.m. to-6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 23 in the Weavers Cottage of Mill Race Historical Village, Northville.

Holiday buffet

Margaret Swartz, director of the Thursday afternoon party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center, removed the plastic coverings from the relish trays for the annual holiday luncheon. The group which started six years ago with two tables of bridge players now has as many as eight tables in play. About 50 persons attended the luncheon. Mrs. Swartz passed out directories for the coming year, the African violet centerpieces were given away as prizes, and when the tables were cleared away, the bridge players were entertained by the Canton Senior Citizens Kitchen Band. The musicians in their colorful attire and unusual instruments were heartily applauded by their audience. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Rain runoff: a pollution problem

By SHERRY KAHAN

Rain water refreshes the oil and the soil. But as it runs off the land, buildings, parking lots and streets, it carries pollutants into streams, rivers and lakes.

This situation was troubling water experts who met recently at Schoolcraft College to immerse themselves in stormwater management problems. It is a topic that several years ago may have been expected to draw 10-20 people to a meeting.

But today with reports of contaminated water in this area, plus awareness that water gets so full of sand, dirt or fertilizer and other substances that water quality is altered, the conference attracted close to 200 participants.

Among those on hand were G.E. Siemert, city engineer of Livonia; his assistant, Gary Clark; and Ken West, head of Plymouth's building department. A delegation from Plymouth Township included Lee Fidge, township trustee; Thomas Hollis, water and sewer superintendent; Mike Bailey, township engineer; and Joe Attard, building department inspector.

The event was sponsored by the Michigan State University Institute of Water Research together with the Rouge River Watershed Council, whose headquarters are in Livonia. Also involved was the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) and the Office of Research and Technology.

SPEECHES REFLECTED a new wave in thinking about water management.

"Historically, the engineering approach to storm water management has been to get the water off the streets and into the nearest stream or lake as fast as possible with little regard to the impact of this runoff on the receiving water."

These were the opening remarks of John Eastman, assistant professor of the department of civil and sanitary engineering at Michigan State University.

"In the modern era, this blind approach is no longer acceptable," he continued. "Pollutants carried by stormwater can severely degrade water quality. In some cases, stormwater pollutants may be the major causes of low water quality."

Eastman and the speakers who followed laid the blame for these pollutants on a variety of sources. As it hurries toward the storm drains, water picks up chemicals used to kill weeds and pests, and it sweeps up salt laid down for ice control.

It pulls with it oil dropped by millions of vehicles, or poured down the nearest drain by a home mechanic. Leaves, animal droppings, phosphates in detergents and fertilizers flows into rivers and lakes where they permit algae to grow. This chokes the water and causes most fish to leave.

The residue of Michigan rich industrial life also can be carried into the water system as toxic wastes. Air pollution settling down can produce problems such as acid rain.

IN HIS REPORT W. David Morrison Jr., environmental planner with SEMCOG, indicated that his organization had found "evidence that urban storm water was a major pollutant source in southeast Michigan."

He also mentioned to studies being done in the area that could be the first steps toward dealing with stormwater runoff generally and its pollutants in particular. One of these projects is in Oakland County, the other in Ann Arbor. Both are part of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Nationwide Urban Runoff Program (NURP).

The projects are examining both the quantity and the quality of this runoff "to develop integrated, comprehensive, and more easily implementable stormwater management strategies," Morrison pointed out.

The project sims to develop effective management strategies

The project aims to develop effective management strategies making use of management policies that have proved effective in southeast Michigan and other parts of the country. Morrison pointed out that policies being tested included techniques for street sweeping, catchbasin cleaning, wetland treatment and stormwater retention and detention.

Street sweepers can catch pollutants before they get into the water supply. Cities like Garden City and Livonia make use of these machines that put the material left on raods into hoppers and colletes it. Wayne County also uses them on some roads under its jurisdiction.

Detention basins are also used in the area, more to prevent flooding than as pollution catchers. One was built in Livonia when it was recognized that development in the Laurel Park area would mean that rain water would no longer be able to soak into the vacant land.

According to Siemert, it was built to hold the runoff from nearby Schoolcraft College, while the Laurel runoff made its way down the drains. He added that developers worked on the pond with the college biology department, which will study its Plymouth Township also slows up its runoff with a detention pond in Township Park. Smaller ponds exist in several subdivisons throughout the area.

TO WATER experts, pollutants can mean anything that has a bad effect on water. This could refer to suspended solids like sand and clay that can smother fish eggs, or phosphates that cause algae to grow, as well as more toxic substances.

To the public pollutants often means toxic materials. Members of the public wonder what effect these pollutants are having on our drinking water.

In an interview, Henry Lane, chief of water treatment for Detroit, said that the condition of water is from 60-75 percent better now that it was 15 years ago.

Stormwater management is conference topic

The Detroit Water and Sewerage Department supplies the area with its drinking water from three points, one in Lake Huron near Port Huron, and the others in the Detroit River. One of these is near Belle Isle, the other in the downriver area

In Lane's opinion, water users in this area are benefiting from the vast quanty of water in the Great Lakes system. Pollution is greatly diffused by the amount of water available.

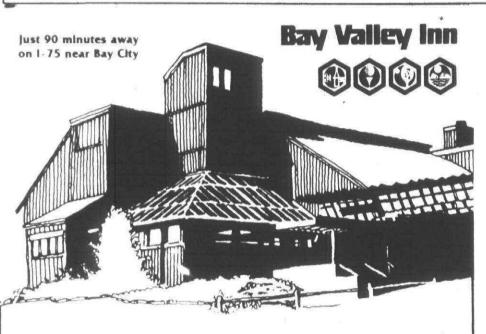

"We don't have problems in our raw water with heavy metals such as cadmium, lead, nickel or mercury," he

A NEW THRUST in water management, according to several of the speakers at the Schoolcraft conference, is regional cooperation. Richard Carlisle underlines this point in his remarks. Head of the water planning department of an Ann Arbor consulting firm, he said, "Cooperation among local units of government is essential." He added:

"Recognizing no political boundaries, water flows across municipal, township and county lines. The proper management of watersheds requires communication and cooperation among

The media centers in our area schools are the heart of the students' learning activity. After all, what would we do without books?

November is Book Month in Michigan. More children are learning the need and fun of reading than ever before. This is mainly due to the highly qualified and totally dedicated librarians and media specialists that our school system employs.

Anthony Corrigan and Helen Stepanian are the staff members that assist the children at Miller Elementary. Reading material is just one of many things that you can check out.

Corrigan supervises checking out pets for a period of three days to one week. This system enables children and parents alike to observe the habits and care of these animals. No alligators allowed out without a leash. The food and cage go along with the pets which include hermit crabs, gerbils, and ham-

Last year one of the hamsters gave birth to three babies while at home with one of the students.

The book fair at Miller School will not be until Dec. 8, because the staff feels there will be a wider selection of books available. It is a good time too to pick up a few extra gifts.

LAWRENCE, Pieczkiewicz, and Ruby Monk will be in charge of the Eriksson Elementary book fair Nov. 19-25.

The variety of material at this school will please anyone from ages 2 to 102. During the remainder of the year this library has many outstanding activities for the children.

The National Geographic Society kits are the most popular with subjects ranging from wild life, astronomy, people serving the community, power of nature, life of animals and geography and weather, to plants. All grades enjoy these kits.

All classes from kindergarten through the fifth grade come to the center as a group, or one or two may come with a library pass. Mrs. Lawrence serves 900 children during the course of the year.

JEAN KNOWLES and Mary Archbold are the two key women sparking the start of the Isbister Book Fair. They will make sure that every child will get the special book they ask for. There is an enthusiastic group of people helping at this event.

Parent participation make all the activities so successful.

Knowles, media specialists, featured an unusual poster contest. Any child, grades 1-5, was eligible to enter. Posters were judged on use of space, neatness of lettering, color, imagination and originality.

Judges Pam Hoadley, art teacher, Dorothy McCormick, library aide and Sylvia Szilvagyi, poster chairperson, had a very difficult time this year.

This contest serves two purposes: It encourages all to submit a well-designed poster, and the winners appear throughout the school to advertise the forthcoming fair. Each winner will receive a gift certificate which may be redeemed at the Book Fair.

MARION HEATH and her parent volunteer Josephine Guzzo are cochairing the Field Elementary is fourth annual fair.

Prior to the book fair, Heath, media specialist, is conducting an election in the media center to select Field School's favorite books. Each student who wishes to participate had an opportunity to vote on a special ballot. Winning titles will be announced during Children's Book Week Nov. 17-23. Special bookmarks and "Vote for Books" pins were worn by staff members.

The winning books will be displayed for several weeks in the media center for all to discover. Extra copies of these books may be checked so students can enjoy the excitement others have had. The fair itself will contain books and posters to be purchased immediately.

TO PROMOTE the enjoyment of a home-base library, Hulsing School is holding its fifth annual fair.

Charlie Jones, reading specialist, and Helen White, library aide, are planning for plenty of parent volunteers to assist students in purchasing gifts and books for their own pleasure.

Esther and Ken Hulsing will be on hand to autograph the books that the children select. I am sure that everyone will wait until Friday morning Nov. 21 to obtain their preference so their book can be personally signed.

Children buying at an earlier time also can bring the book back for this special occasion.

Jones mentioned that the middle schools have complained that the fifthgraders are not well prepared to do research papers when entering the higher grades. He is stressing this factor by examining the planet Jupiter and its mysteries in a positive way so that researching will not be a chore at a lat-

FOR THE EVER thrifty, a "Book Swap" is the fun and free order of the day at Gallimore School.

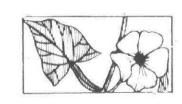

Kathy Schmidt, head librarian, and five fifth-graders will sort out the used paperbacks according to categories easy, hard fiction, animal stories, and others. They check the condition of the books as they are brought in and then issue "swap" tickets.

Only on Friday, Nov. 21, will the ticket holders be able to choose from thousands of "new" paperback books. The remainder of the time, tickets are exchanged for used paperback books.

Birthdays are something special in the library here. With parent permission. Schmidt will take the child to Plymouth Book World, along with a check from the parents, to select a book. A name plate with the child's birthdate and name is affixed to the inside cover, then placed on the book shelves for for a longer lasting treat.

ROBYN BRENNAN, Walker School librarian, of Wayne Westland district has several Canton children among her heavy readers. She entertains the kindergarten and preschool ages with story after story.

To focus on how the library functions, Brennan has 30 student helpers from fourth, fifth, and sixth grades assisting her. These students are chosen by their teachers and hold the position the entire year.

Hartdegen-Peterson

Martha L. Peterson and Bruce W. Hartdegen exchanged marriage vows Oct. 18 in Holy Trinity Student Chapel, Ypsilanti. The Rev. Larry Delaney offi-

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Peterson of Plymouth. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Hartdegen of Saline.

The bride's white Qiana gown had a lace bodice and sweetheart neckline. She carried mauve sweetheart roses and cream carnations. Her attendants were Nancy Peterson, maid of honor, and Jody Belobraidich, Penelope Peterson and Pamela Walch, bridesmaids, all of Plymouth. They wore sapphire blue Qiana gowns and carried bouquets of blue and mauve silk flowers. Susan Gilmore of Simsbury, Conn. played the flute.

Jeffrey Riddell of Westland was best man and groomsmen were James Valentine of Ypsilanti, William Walker of Westland and Timothy Mahoney of Following a buffet dinner in the Ladies Literary Club, Ypsilanti, the couple honeymooned in Toronto. They are living in Ypsilanti.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and a 1979 graduate of Eastern Michigan University. She is food service director for Lincoln Consolidated Schools in Ypsilanti. Her husband graduated from Saline High School in 1975 and from EMU in 1979. He is a marketing repre-announces the engagement of her daughter, Diana Lynn, to Daniel Patrick Peper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Peper of Plymouth. The brideelect graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1974 and from Eastern Michigan University in 1979 with a bachelor's degree in social work. She was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. She is employed by Kroger Co. in Ann Arbor. Her fiance graduated from Plymouth Salem in 1974 and is a student at the University of Michigan.

They plan a late December wedding in St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, eymooned in the lower peninsula following their Aug. 16 wedding in Our Lady of Snows Church in Hessel. The Rev. Ted Brodeur officiated at the candlelight service.

Dutcher-Greer Mr. and Mrs. Jerry P. Dutcher hon-

The bride is the former Donna Greer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Miller of Plymouth. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John R. Dutcher Sr. of Hessel. The bride wore a venice lace gown and carried a bouquet of white and pale blue roses. Her attendants, Denise Barkowski of Bellevile, matron of honor, Brenda Priest of Northville, the bride's; sister and Kim Custard of Brighton, bridesmaids, wore light blue Qiana gowns and carried bouquets of white and pale yellow

Pat Walters of Northville was best man. Groomsmen were Garth Richardson and Frank Dutcher. Ushers were Mike Greer and Jeff Dutcher.

The wedding reception was at Cedarville Community Center. The couple is living in Hessel.

Costumes dazzle hosts

Nancy Walls Smith

When you decide to have a theme party, develop a guest list, and plan a tempting menu, you hope that your guests will put forth the same effort. People attending three great local parties did not disappoint their hosts. They were clever, innovative, and put plenty of time into some zany costumes.

First, we will turn to the exciting crowd that turned up at the home of Sue and Bob Pacer, an ornery devil and Superman. Nancy and Greg Keller came as the Statue of Liberty and a Bloody Mummy. Nancy painted herself silver and arrived with a lighted torch. They received the first place prize.

A Greek god and goddess appeared portrayed by Ron Wiseman and Diane Sobczak. Booby prize went to Nicky the "Under Dog," dressed with mask, cape and underpants. Chris and Frank Nolte are the proud owners of the brave ani-

A giant size Hershey Candy Kiss was really Marilyn Wiseman. I bet there are a few markets that had to restock their foil inventory. Roch and Debbie Tolinski recreated a magician and Minnie Mouse. No wonder Roch won the limbo contest, he had a few tricks up Team games were played, and Betty Hellmers led the congo lines around the house dressed in her Mexican attire. Just like any other party no one wanted to go home, so it went on until early Sunday morning.

TOM BYRNE opened the door portrayed as a bunch of grapes. Although grapes are not in season, he managed to obtain enough of the luscious fruit to be well covered. Kathy and Greg Braun slowly entered as a Nun and a Monsignor. They had the most detailed garb of all who attended.

To project a little secrecy into the group Linda Baird and Pete Campbell came sneaking in as Richard Nixon and a Plumber. Hansel and Gretel were there too, as life-like as possible. Underneath were Chris and Mike Wulski.

Everyone had a supper time enjoying one anothers' originality and Tom's hospitality.

MARY JANE AND MIKE Travis welcomed all of the 50 people who rang their doorbell to come into their hutch. You see, they were bouncing bunnies. They literally hopped around all night. I would have to say the most outstanding display of fortitude was by Rich Hale. He was "Johnny on the Spot." Yes, a toilet with an attached seat, room deoderizer, decorator paper and decorative flowers in his hair. When he tried to sit down, people would lift his lid. There wasn't a moment's peace for

Mary and Ron Cundiff were certainly in season coming as a pumpkin and Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater. Helen Wesner began the evening as Darth Vader, and ended up as Ribbon Lady. NO ONE knows how or when she changed. Her husband Mike was dressed as Superman, maybe he took her to a phone booth somewhere. Have you ever seen a half-suited man? Ed Randolph took a two-piece outfit, along with a shirt, and tore it in half. Somehow he attched the front to his body. He looked like a businessman from the front and a flahser from the back. Jerry Fortman was celebrating his birthiday and he ended up wearing cake on his face. A truly unique gathering, everyone enjoying themselves. ADULTS ARE NOT the only ones in Canton who like to dress up. Two local childrens' parties were held. The Parks and Recreation entertained 200 children with movies, magician John Falkewicz, and then served eider and doughnuts. There were awards for best costumes, and plenty of door prizes.

CLARA BOHRER treated 95 children to scary stories of ghosts and goolies at the Canton Library party. A local farmer donated 20 pumpkins of various sizes, so several of those attending would go home with something special church bulletin

ST. PETER EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH, 1343 Penniman, Plymouth, will have as its featured speaker on Sunday the Rev. Carl H. Mischke, president of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod. His appearance will be part of a celebration of the 125th anniversary of the organization of the congregation.

The congregation was organized in 1856 in the cooper shop of Peter Gayde. A grandson of Gayde, Robert Beyer will be one of the speakers at a loyalty dinner to be held in the church parlor Sunday evening. He is the only direct descendant of the original 12 signers of the constitution who is remaining as a congregation member.

The congregation has occupied three churches in its 125-year history. The present church was built

Seminary continues its 'youth movement'

By MARGARET MILLER

St. John's Provincial Seminary, gracing the Plymouth landscape and serving all of Michigan's Catholic dioceses, is continuing its new tradition of young leadership for the priests and other students trained there. The new head man for the seminary is the Rev. Robert H. Byrne, who is 33 years old and the youngest rector ever named there. But he's only a bit younger that the Rev. Kenneth Untener, who was rector for three years before being named bishop of the Saginaw Diocese last month. The appointment by Cardinal John Dearden was announced to the St. John faculty during a morning liturgy by the Rev. John J. Castelot, well-loved elder

"Even exchange and no future draft choice," he quipped.

THE NEW RECTOR has been an assistant professor of moral theology at St. John's since September of 1978. He said he was surprised at the appointment by the cardinal. "The bishops polled the faculty here," he noted. "The faculty was very supportive of me. They know me, and that's important when someone new takes over." In his new role, he takes over leadership of a faculty that numbers 15 fulltime members and 15 more who "come in to teach a course or two." He also heads a seminary with 163 full-time students, 76 men studying for the priesthood in the master of divisity program and 87 men and women in one of three other degre programs, master of divinity, theology and religious edu-There are more students, too, who take continuing education courses at "One of the joys of our program is some of the people we have here," he said. "Those who come are ready to learn and share what they already have learned. They are a great asset."

FR. BYRNE grew up in the town of Chesaning and attended St. Paul Seminary in Saginaw. "I was there for six years," he noted, "and the rector was Fr. James Hickey, now Archbishop of Washington. Later when I was a student at the North American College in Rome he was the rector there.

"When I called him to tell him about my appointment, he said he felt a little like a new grandfather."

Fr. Byrne served as deacon in Zilwalkee, and later was pastor of St. Stanislaus of Bay City before recieving his appointment to the St. John's facul-

"But we're looking for a replacement on the faculty," he said.

In spare moments throughout his career as a priest, Fr. Byrne has included sports in his daily routine, and his time at St. John is no exception.

"I've both played and coached basketball and football," he said, "and here I've met several former classmates living in this area so we're getting together for some basketball each week in the seminary gymnasium." The new rector also is looking forward to a musical first this year singing in the chorus of Handel's "Messiah" with the University of Michigan Choral Union.

Robert Dutton youth minister

Livonia Church of Christ, 15431 Merriman, has a new youth minister. He is Robert Dutton, who will direct programs for teens and pre-teens. In particular he will direct the bus program, children's worship training, Bible study and social activities for teens.

Dutton is a graduate of the Preston Road School of Preaching in Dallas. He spent a year at the Garland Roach Church of Christ in charge of the bus program and junior high activities. He also was minister to the deaf. Later he served for two years as youth director for the Riverdale Church of Christ in Dayton, Ohio. He and his wife, Jacque, have two daughters, Alanna, 7, and Talitha, 4.

Not superior, but the water's cleaner

I've heard that all of the Great Lakes except Lake Superior are polluted. Is that true?

G.W., Birmingham

All of the Great Lakes, including Lake Superior, are polluted to some de-

Lake Superior, the largest of the Great Lakes, is also the cleanest. But it has been plagued by asbestos-like particles from taconite mining, which have gotten into drinking water in the western area of the lake and have caused communities there to install filtration plants, which previously were not required.

Lake Huron is the second cleanest, then Lake Michigan, Lake Ontario and finally Lake Erie, which is the shallowest and smallest of the Great Lakes.

Which uses more water - washing dishes by hand or using an automatic dishwasher?

It all depends on how each is used. The American Waterworks Association offers some figures.

It takes 30 gallons to wash dishes by hand the way most people do it. But if they are washed and rinsed in sink or pan, the amount can be cut to five gal-

An automatic dishwasher run through its full cycle takes 16 gallons. But a conservation use, involving a short cycle, would use seven gallons.

Diet dishes are packaged

I can't vouch for the flavor of the gourmet diet dishes chef Manfred Zettl creates. I haven't yet tasted them.

But now that I've heard this native of Austria tell about his work, you can be sure I will.

Unfortunately, it won't be fresh from his test kitchen in St. Louis. I will have to try them out unceremoniously in the Wonderland Center restaurant known as The Slimmery. Or I may look for them on grocery store shelves.

And even if the food turned out to fall * short of my expectations, it wouldn't dim the pleasure of talking about diet cookery with a man who loves his profession and has excelled in it to the point of winning a number of gold medals.

Chef Zettl tells about cooking for President John F. Kennedy, Marilyn Monroe, Clark Gable, and themillionaires on the luxury liner, S.S. Rotterdam. And then he really warms up to describing his latest venture, creating gourmet diet foods, now being packaged under the brand, Slimmery.

ZETTL SAID most diet foods are nutritional but "blah."

"I have left the taste in," he said.
"Many products are created where they are afraid to use salt and spices.
They are afraid to offend, so things turn out at a blah level.

"And our products are designed for not only the weight conscious, but also diabetics, hypoglycemics and those with a cholesterol problem."

The secret, says the chef, is using less sugar, less fat and cooking foods at a lower temperature. He says he is concerned about the amount of fat and sugar in foods.

"Americans consume six times more fat and 10 times more sugar than they need, so I am fighting the battle on those two fronts," said Zettl, who used to weigh 25 pounds more than he does now. He said he realized that carrying around the extra weight was a strain on the body's organs.

"I used to go down to the kitchen at 9 a.m. and taste everything," he said. "Just by tasting I could consume a whole meal. Now it is low calories foods I am tasting." He has since lost the 25 pounds.

Zettl hasn't always cooked for the weight-conscious. "I used to fatten them up," he admitted. But in 1974 his sister learned she was a diabetic. "I became concerned about her, and it runs in the family."

While researching low-calorie foods, he also learned about nutrition. "Much of the sickness in this country is caused by poor nutrition," he said.

THE SECRET to his slimming-style cooking, he explained is in using less sugar and fat for two-thirds less calories. In addition, he uses a non-digestible carbohydrate, a kind of vegetable

In creating a new recipe, he usually mulls it over for a long time but the actual first-time cooking process is quick.

"But I have baked a lot of bricks, too,
" he said. "There is a lot of trial and

One notable change on the international scene, which Zettl has observed, is that "even Europe thinks thin now." He explained that after the war, when food was suddenly available, Europeans began to eat, and eat, and eat. "Suddenly they discovered how terrible they looked," he said.

One of his great thrills came recently when he saw Slimmery Frozen Dairy Dessert being served on a luxury ship from Holland.

"It gave me such a feeling to see my own creation being served there," he said

Zettl is considering writing a cookbook, "Slim Gourmet Cooking Made Easy."

Does he have a food he craves, just can't do without?

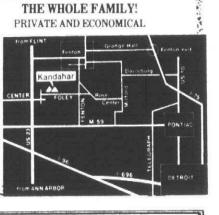

"Well, I am very happy when I can have brie cheese and a good glass of wine," he said.

The material was assembled by director-choreographer Jim Posante of Ann Arbor, producer Judy Pierson, and musical director Jack Pierson, who is also responsible for the many original vocal arrangements in the show.

Five of the eight cast members appeared in "Pieces of Eight": Howard Egan, Highland; Kay Grismer, Plymouth; Beverly Intihar, Northville; Doug Kerr, Plymouth; and David Tucker, Livonia. Sandi Martin, Detroit, Rosemarie Patanis, Redford, were seen in "How to Succeed," and Kevin McGee, of Livonia, in "1776."

Imagination sparks parties

Tom Schoenith revealed his and wife Diane's secrets of party-giving, last week at the Coffee & Conversation series at The Community House in Birming-

"Times are tough, but that doesn't mean you don't have to entertain. You can still do it with glamour," he said. Imagination more than money is called for, Schoenith said.

"I went to three steak-and-lobster dinners in a row last weekend. It was a little boring and it cost those people a lot of money. I'd rather have a great hamburger," he said.

Schoenith's illustrated talk began with slides showing ideas for party invitations, centerpieces and other creative touches.

"DON'T HESITATE to use things from around the house," he said. Paper plates were combined with Cartier baskets for decoration. Candles were set in the most inexpensive of candle holders: bright red, real apples.

One of the suggestions was to prepare a cold dinner in advance, gift wrap each meal individually and put it in the refrigerator till party time

Clever invitations includes a firecracker made from a cardboard tube (Schoenith was born on the Fourth of July), or one shaped like a crystal ball ("Now that is a party you wouldn't miss!")

One slide read: 'Our Pet Peeves. Lengthy cocktail parties. Ambiguous dress. Not enough importance given to R$VP. Don't get guests bombed." He recommends enclosing a stamped card for the RSVP.

After the slides, Schoenith took questions from the women in the audience, answering in his straightforward, amusing style.

What do you do about the guest who's late? "I serve that dinner without them. You cannot waste food," he said.

THE NEW AFTER Nine Room at Cooper's Arms in Rochester is where the Metropolitan Repertory Theatre will make its home.

After a year of truck and van shows, the repertory company will open this weekend with

Ethel Simmons

Tom Schoenith talks about parties with pizzazz.

"Sailor Beware," a musical revue conceived and directed by Robert Casemore of Birming-

Casemore and Eric Jones of Oak Park are partners in the theater group that is designed to fill a gap because "there is no cabaret entertainment in this area," Casemore said.

"We want to stress it is not dinner theater. It's a great alternative to Neil Simon.

The show, loosely, is about two American sailors who come into Amsterdam from Brussels for two weeks on the town. Musical ·numbers will include international song hits, sung in English, with snatches of some lyrics in French, German and Spanish.

ROGER KNAPP, owner of Cooper's Arms at 306 Main, has revamped the former Uncle Bela's cocktail lounge in his restaurant. The After Nine Room now is filled with tables and chairs, both on the main floor and balcony, for intimate seating

The stage area has been redesigned and a new lighting system installed. Shows will change every eight weeks.

Casemore's partner Eric Jones said, "We encourage people to eat and drink during the show." Dinners will be served before and during the cabaret theater entertainment, offered Fridays and Saturdays beginning this weekend.

Productions will start after 9:30 p.m. For reservations call 651-2266.

The all-professional cast includes Penny Masouris of Detroit, John Beem of Troy, Jeanine Head of Dearborn, Sue Chekaway of Lathrup Village, Walt Kozicki of Detroit and pianist Joe Mathia of Livonia.

GONZO THEATRE, the new satirical revue supposedly about Detroit, is at its funniest when the show actually does talk about Detroit and its environs.

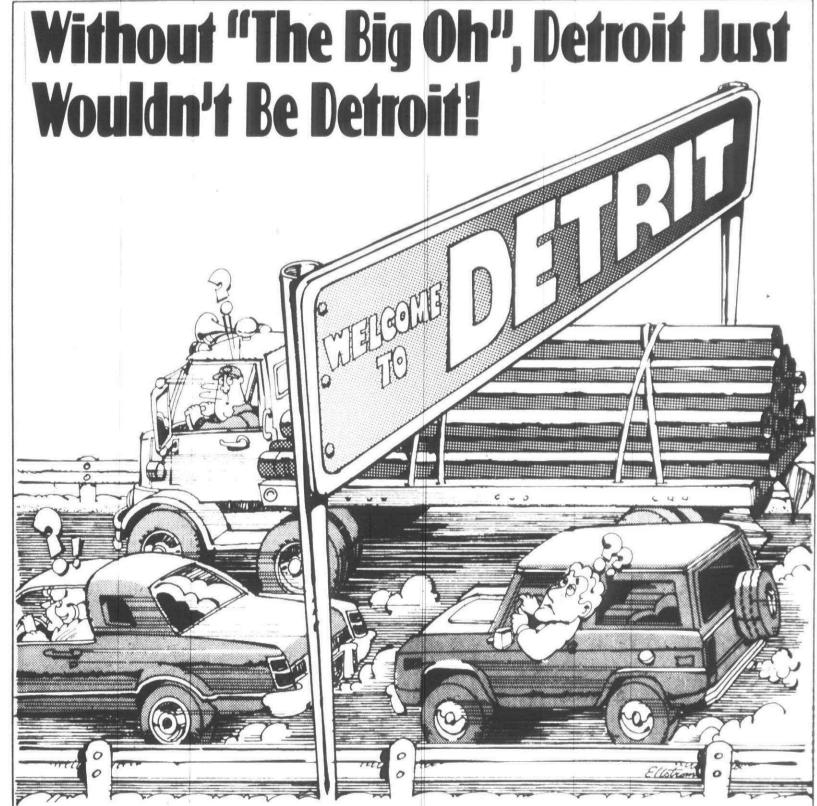

Familiar names and places bring laughs more easily than other material in this production, which opened the new Stouffer's Showcase (in the old Grogshop) at Northland Inn, Southfield.

The cast is the best asset of Gonzo Theatre. The apparent leader of the clan, big, bespectacled Ralph Valatka; curlytopped, whimsical Beth Hallo; and Hal Doyle, boyish with curls, and David Turrentine, boyish and blond, all perform with the prescribed zaniness.

But the material doesn't, in most cases, do them justice. Kind of a "Saturday Night Live," some of the bits are more tiresome than bold (such as the exhibitionist and voyeur who share facing apartments). Many blackouts go by so fast you feel like you're suffering jet lag.

The playbill says they're going to have new material every few weeks. I certainly hope so.

The better skits are the longer ones, including one about a guy from Hazel Park submitting to a bargain-priced, taped tour of paintings at the Detroit Institute

It'd be Detrit! And really, now . . . can you imagine cheering for the Detrit Lions! Or listening to the beautiful sounds of the Detrit Symphony.

Ah . . . but there is an "Oh"! It's WOMC FM 104 . . . "Detroit's Big Oh", and it has the oh-sopopular music and personalities you love.

Like Marc Avery to get you going every morning from 6 to 10. And Tom Dean to cheer you up from 10 am to 2 pm. Plus Nick Arama to brighten your afternoons from 2 to 6 pm.

Oh-Oh! We almost forgot to mention the other Detroit favorites on "The Big Oh"—Bob Charlton, Greg Russell and Steve Peck. They'll lighten up and liven up your life like nobody's business!

So turn on "The Big Oh" today—WOMC FM 104. It's the only "oh" in Detrit . . . er . . . Detroit!

'Head Over Heels' is showcased

Wayne State University's Theatre Department's Movin' Theatre will be showcased live on stage for Detroit Youtheatre's "Something Every Saturday" audiences in "Head Over Heels" at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, in the Detroit Insitute of Arts auditoriumhea-

Tickets at $2 for children and adults and $1.50 each in groups of 10 or more, may be purchased in advance through the museum ticket office and at the

Featuring the dancing, fights and falls which have made Broadway plays and Hollywood movies so popular, Movin' Theatre will run the gamut from intricate sword fights of Erroll Flynn to the up-beat disco of John Travolta in this non-stop show.

The performance surveys the various styles of movement and theatrical dances used in stage productions from medieval times through the present.

"HEAD OVER HEELS" is especially designed for families with young people 7 years old and older. Children younger than 5 years of age will not be admitted to the theatre.

For ticket information and a Detroit Youtheatre "Something Every Saturday" schedule of shows through May 1981 call the Detroit Institute of Arts ticket office at 832-2710.

WHEN TO RUN

In this position, white rolls 4-6. What is your suggested play?

Sitting on your opponent's 1 point passively waiting for an opportunity to hit can be annoying, especially if he doesn't leave a checker open. Even if he leaves a shot, you must roll the correct number to hit. The frustration of it all comes when he leaves a checker open and you miss it, then run around the board toward home to avoid a gammon, and lose the gammon because you were not fast (or lucky) enough.

Backgammon bear-off positions constantly change. Depending on the position, you need to judge when to stay or whether you should leave the 1 point.

If you find yourself staying on the 1 point for most of the bear-off, then running and being constantly gammoned, perhaps you should leave earlier.

On the other hand, if you run one checker out from the 1 point too early instead of hindering your opponent, you may be surrendering the 1 point prematurely.

The happy medium is this: When write to Box 599, Plymouth 48170.

your opponent is down to 10 checkers in the bear-off, you should make plans to depart one checker immediately, if you haven't already

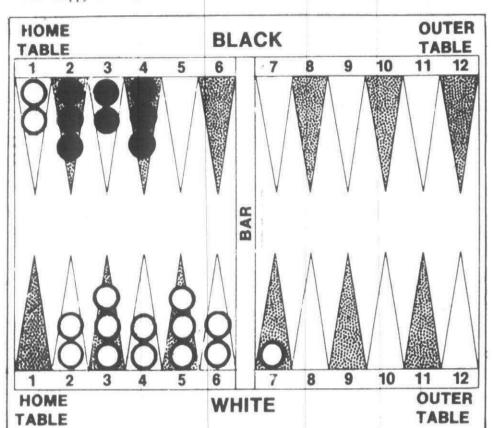

THE MOVE

If you haven't already guessed it, running a checker to the 10 point is eminent to salvage a gammon. In this position, black is a favorite to leave a shot whether or not you have one or two checkers on the 1 point.

Since bear-off positions constantly change with each roll of the dice, occasionally it would benefit you to stay back longer than necessary as long as your home board is intact.

Furthermore, if your home board is very weak, with several high points open, your hopes of containing a hit checker are nil - so run early.

On Dec. 2, 4 and 9, Kloian will teach a course in "Beyond the Basics" for persons wishing to explore backgammon in depth. For information, contact the American Backgammon Club at 459-5776, or "On the Waterfront" (1954), 8 p.m. today and 7 and 9 p.m. Friday at the Liberal Arts Theater, Schoolcraft College campus, free, phone 591-6400, ext. 380. Running time 108 minutes. 'Waterfront," the melodramatic tale of a longshoreman who battles valiently to overcome the rule of a crooked union, collected all the marbles in the 1954 Oscar sweepstakes.

The entire cast is superb, and director Elia Kazan's deft handling of Marlon Brando made his Terry Malloy character a believeable Everyman.

The screenplay should have followed Budd Schulberg's more cynical novel, which has rabble-rouser Malloy buried in a 50-gallon drum in a New Jersey swamp. But that would have been un-American in the cotton candy years of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Brando, alas, emerges a hero and victor over the forces of evil in one classic, unforgettable scene in which he arises from a near-fatal beating to lead the sheep-like dockworkers in their rebellion against the likes of union president Johnny Friendly and his coterie of semiliterate thugs "Waterfront" came only a few years after the year-long, highly publicized and oft-televised grilling of organized crime figures by the then-sensational Kefauver Crime Committee. The film seemed a dramatic and appealing extension of the Committee probe.

Compared with the gooey film concoctions pouring out of Hollywood in the '50s, "Waterfront" appeared as a bigger, more dramatic statement than it was Karl Malden co-stars as the priest; Lee J. Cobb is Johnny Friendly, the corrupt head of the union; and Rod Steiger — in one of his early roles plays Brando's brother, Charley the Gent, the educated member of the gang who eventually atones for years of neglecting his brother's welfare. The memorable scene involving Brando and Steiger in the back seat of a cab -"I could have been somebody, Charley, I could have been a contender . . . instead of a bum" - alone is worth at least the price of admission. Rating: $3.65.

WHAT'S IT WORTH? A ratings guide to the movies

"The Man Who Knew Too Much" (1934), 7:30 and 10 p.m. Friday; "Psycho" (1960), 7:30 and 10 p.m. Saturday, both at Cass City Cinema, 4605 Cass at Forest, $2, phone 832-6309. Running times 84 and 109 minutes.

"First and Last" could be the subtitle for the showing of these Alfred Hitchcock films. Although the British-born director made pictures before and after these films, together they represent his first and last great works.

"Knew Too Much" was made in England and it is not to be confused with Hitchcock's own, 1956 remake of the same film starring Jimmy Stewart and Doris Day, who, for some reason, sings 'Que Sera Sera" throughout. The original film stars Peter Lorre, Edna Best and Leslie Banks.

A kidnaping and an attempted assassination are the spools around which the tension is wound in this initial display of the inimitable Hitchcock style. Eerie sets and off-center camera angles add to the suspense.

"Psycho" was recently remade by director Brian De Palma as "Dressed to Kill," though De Palma refuses to admit it. As usual, the original is by far the better. Janet Leigh, Anthony Perkins, Vera Miles and Martin Balsam

Watching "Psycho" is like sitting in on a film class. Hitchcock does everything right. So, instead of even scratching the critical surface of the film at this time, here are a few tips on just sitting back and watching:

Look for all the references to birds in the film. People and cities have bird names, stuffed birds adorn walls, bird sounds accentuate the action and Tony Perkins actually looks like a bird from time to time.

If you've seen the film only once and know the deception on which it re-

Wayne State University President Thomas N. Bonner entertained the Hilberry Theatre's 1980-81 Sponsor at the President's Preview performance of "Boy Meets Girl" on Saturday at the Hilberry in Detroit.

The performance was preceded by a subscription dinner at McGregor Memorial Conference Center, which was the setting for "Act IV," the reception following the play for all guests and the Hilberry's graduate repertory compa-

The event also was the celebration of another record-breaking year for fund raising by the theater's 66 Understudies." the committee of Detroit area women who have assumed the task of finding sponsors to contribute to the support of the graduate students that make up the Hilberry company.

According to Mrs. Irving Dworkin, Understudies president, more than $70,000 has been raised, mostly through individual contributions of $125 or more. This is $10,000 more than the amount raised last season and in films and television. Others are on approximately $15,000 more than that raised in 1978.

MRS. DWORKIN also called attention to the hundreds of Understudies who have helped the Theater for the last 17 years, and the five past presidents, whose photos now hang in the Hilberry's foyer, with a list of the Understudies who served under them.

The President's Preview annually culminates the Understudies' fund raising drive for the support of the repertory company, this year composed of members from 20 states and the Dominion of Canada.

The group includes 23 actors and actresses, 17 technicians and six administrative assistants, who come for advanced training and intensive performance experience in preparation for professional careers.

Former Hilberry members are currently found working on Broadway, off-Broadway, in regional resident theater, the faculties of some of the nation's leading universities.

The preview's featured performance, "Boy Meets Girl," is a comedy by Bella and Samuel Spewack and will continue in the 1980-81 repertory through February. The repertory also includes

"Wild Oats," "Love's Labor's Lost," "Macbeth," "Caesar and Cleopatra," "Love for Love," "Bloody Jack," and "Tonight at 8:30."

FURTHER INFORMATION about the current season is available from the box office at 577-2972.

Jazz star Kenny Cox boosts musical endeavors

By JIM WINDELL

Kenny Cox is an articulate spokesman for jazz musicians in the metropolitan area. A smart dresser, he looks right at home at Tweeny's Cafe in Birmingham where he plays piano in a duo or trio setting on weekends.

Cox has strong interests in the economics of music and clear insight into the finances of jazz. He advocates with verbal agility the music and the music

Cox is one of the founding members of M.U.S.I.C. (Musicians United to Save Indigenous Culture). Words like fragmentation, coalesce, self-determination and grantsmanship roll off his tongue.

"I'M VERY SERIOUS that all artisans become professional business people," he said, in his clipped and quiet voice, during a recent nighttime interview.

Concerned about self-determination in the arts, Cox does not blame society as much as the individual artist for poor subsidies to the arts, especially to the musician.

"Our society gives very little merit to artistic endeavors and you need only compare the subsidies in this country with those in other countries to know this is true," he said. "We continue to decry how art is ignored and the artist economically depressed, But it boils grips with professionalism. The idea of being a martyr is unfair and outdated. The artist must become a businessman.' Cox has very little time for the artist or musician who wants the money but won't take the time to do the paperwork that goes with it. He would like to see all musicians receive a crash course in grantsmanship. But he has other plans up his sleeve.

"I THINK in the near future you will see one of the first quasi-trade associations ever in this area. The trade association will deal with musicians in terms of continuing education, health and welfare," he said.

The trade association would not replace the musicians' union. "There are unions for jazz musicians, but jazz musicians have some particular kinds of problems socially and politically other musicians and artists don't have," he said.

In addition to economic and social concerns, Kenny Cox happens to be one of the finer jazz pianists in the area. He has appeared Fridays and Saturdays at Tweeny's for more than a year. Cox will continue for a long time in the future, said Tweeny's owner Yvonne Gill.

The Cable-Nelson baby grand piano newly ensconced in the center of the downtown Birmingham restaurant suggests the class that is found in the cafe, from the food to the ambience to the entertainment.

"Very few rooms give as much time promotion," Cox said.

SOMETIMES the music, as in any restaurant, is secondary to the main business of feeding people elegantly. For Kenny Cox, this only presents an additional challenge. While he is willing to take requests, something which many jazz purists wouldn't think of doing, he is unyielding when it comes to the jazz he plays with his crisp, honed technique.

At times he is classical in his approach, but the swinging is never sacrificed, as he heats his way through a popular tune like "What Are You Doing the Rest of Your Life?" or a jazz standard such as "A Train."

In a bossa-nova standard like "Wave," the notes wash back on themselves much like the waves of an ocean, with regular bass player Melvin Jackson providing support that acts as foundation and counterpoint.

Cox's tunes are often elegantly worked-out versions that are long and lingering. Sometimes he doesn't want to let go of a number, and his style helps the casual listener feel the same way.

Cox's piano style is a product of the variegated jazz world of the Motor City of the late '40s, '50s and '60s. Despite a classical-piano background, Cox found jazz always hovered around his consciousness somewhere.

"I BEGAN PIANO at the age of 7, but I didn't want to be a piano player. I wanted to play the trumpet like Louis Armstrong and Harry James," he said. "My mother, for whatever reason, told me I could have a trumpet and even take trumpet lessons if I first took the piano for three years. I did and she kept her promise.

An insistent piano teacher, recognizing a young child with musical talent, had him study piano at the Detroit Conservatory of Music where he would remain for eight years. In addition, he also took trumpet lessons, although he doesn't really know how his mother managed both piano and trumpet lessons when there were three other children in the family.

His jazz, he said, was picked up in the streets at the time he was taking classical lessons. "I had this friend in junior high school who was a trumpet player. Before band rehearsals at school, he would stand around and play a style of music I hadn't heard before. He introduced me to the funny music being played at that time by Miles Davis and Charlie Parker," Cox said.

Playing along with his friend meant a trumpet duo, which wasn't very practical. "One day he suggested I play some chords on the piano. That started my instruction in the improvisational art form," Cox recalled.

Going on to Cass Tech High School, he finished in 1958 he immediately went on to the Detroit Institute of Musical Arts, the music college for the University of Detroit. He stayed in college for only a year, however.

"I GOT the bright idea I was going out on the road where I would make lots of money and then I could afford school. I never went back, and it seems like I've been on the road ever since," Cox said. Using New York as a base, he traveled with singer Etta Jones from 1961-66 as her accompanist.

Whenever he returned to New York City, though, he was able to work with some of the brightest lights in jazz of the '60s. He gigged with Philly Joe Jones, Roy Haynes, Joe Williams, Rahsaan Roland Kirk, Kenny Dorham and Freddie Hubbard, among others.

"New York was musical Mecca than," Cox said. "Those now-famous musicians were just the guy down the
