

State cuts wield little impact on local finances

The stinging effect of a proposed $288 million cut in the state budget includes little venom for Canton Township finances.

Gov. William Milliken has proposed a $20 million reduction in revenue sharing money for local units of government as part of the budget-cutting plan.

But finance director Mike Gorman, who has been studying the local impact of the proposal, said Canton's $4.1 million budget for 1981 should remain intact.

Gorman expects to lose $14,000 at most under the governor's plan. The sum was not included in Canton's 1981 budget for fear that revenue-sharing money would be cut.

THE TOWNSHIP'S 1981 budget, which takes effect Jan. 1, includes expectations for $1.6 million in state revenue-sharing money.

Gorman expects to receive all that amount despite the governor's plans for cutbacks. The anticipated $1.6 million represents Canton's share of the state sales tax, the state income tax and the single business tax.

The Michigan Constitution requires giving that money to local governments, Gorman said. Milliken holds disbursement power over only two revenue-sharing funds.

Those are the intangibles tax (for trademarks, personal property of businesses and other assorted items) and the "relative tax burden," which reimburses government for inequities in the revenue-sharing system.

Last year, Canton received $322,000 under the relative tax burden classification in recognition of the township's 1975 census. Other revenue-sharing money was allocated on the basis of the 1970 census. Canton's population grew from 11,000 to 27,000 during the five-year period.

The finance director expects to receive no money under that classification next year. Revenue-sharing money will be disbursed according to the 1980 census, which showed a Canton population of 48,000.

Last year, Canton received $12,000 under the "intangible" classification of revenue sharing. The township probably will not receive that money this year, Gorman said. He estimates the probable 1981 allocation at $14,000.

"We're really not going to lose much at all," Gorman said of Milliken's proposed cuts.

"Communities such as Canton, which have minimum intangibles, won't be hurt as much as large communities, such as Detroit."

Water fee may spurt higher

The cost of water could go up even more.

"It will have to," says finance director Mike Gorman of an upcoming 28 percent increase in the fees paid by the township. "They (the Township Board) will have to pass at least part of it on to residents."

The board held a special meeting Monday night to discuss the Dec. 1 rate hike of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department.

No action was taken at Monday's meeting. But the board directed Gorman, DPW superintendent Jake Dingeldey and accountant John Sobleskie to study the issue and return with a recommendation.

Township officials have known of the upcoming rate increase for months, but never took action to amend the fees charged to residents.

"It's going to look like Poole and the new board are increasing water rates," said Supervisor James Poole, who took office last Thursday.

"But we're not going to have any choice. Where am I going to get the money?"

ACCORDING TO GORMAN, township officials last raised residential water and sewer fees in June 1979. That increase was prompted by a hike in the rate paid by Canton Township for water.

Since that time, the township has absorbed an additional charge of five cents per 1,000 gallons for sewer use. The additional cost was not passed on to residents. Sewer bills are computed on the basis of water consumption.

On Dec. 1, the township's bill for water will go up another 28 percent.

The township currently pays 38 cents per 1,000 gallons for water bills; residents and businesses are charged 85 cents per 1,000 gallons. For sewage, the township currently pays 48 cents per 1,000 gallons and charges 98 cents.

"We'll be paying out more than we take in if we don't pass on at least part of the 28 percent increase," said the finance director.

Water and sewer bills paid by residents cover operations of the township water department, depreciation and debt retirement in addition to fees paid to Detroit.

Gorman estimates the township's current debt for construction of water and sewer mains at $7.5 million. He pegged a current surplus in the water and sewer fund at approximately $3 million.

"This is a brand new board. What I'm hoping from them is some direction," Gorman said prior to the meeting.

A DECISION to raise rates could stir protest among some residents, officials admit.

In September 1979, hundreds of residents flooded Township Hall with complaints about water bills for the June-August quarter. At the time, a spokesperson for the township water department reported that the average summer quarter bill exceeded $100.

The Township Board directed Gorman to investigate possible means to reduce the impact of high bills on residents.

But most possibilities researched by Gorman were scrapped. A proposal to reduce the billing cycle from three months to two was tossed aside, for example, after Gorman determined the amount of increased administrative costs.

Gorman said implementation of a dual meter system is one possibility which warrants further investigation.

Under that system, separate meters would gauge water use inside and outside the home. Sewer charges would be computed only on the basis of indoor water use. Water used outside does not enter the sanitary sewer system.

Low water pressure has stymied adoption of that plan. On the drawing board are construction of two new water mains to alleviate the pressure problem.

"We just don't have enough water right now to let people use more water," said Gorman.

Suing over toxic shock

Memory of illness stays with her

By DONNA LOMAS

The fifth wedding anniversary next week of Peggy and Roger Crusan of Canton will be more than a celebration of their marriage. Peggy almost died last April from toxic shock syndrome (TSS).

The mother of three has drawn national attention after announcing a lawsuit against Kimberly Clark Corp. and International Playtex Inc. She is alleging negligence in the testing and design of tampons that may have led to her near-fatal illness.

She is seeking more than $1 million in damages in a suit filed in Wayne County Circuit Court. Mrs. Crusan said she used Playtex and Kotex tampons.

A spokesman at Kimberly Clark headquarters in Neenah, Wis., declined comment on the suit. Leonard Burge, director of consumer affairs for Playtex in Paramus, N.J., was unavailable for comment.

MRS. CRUSAN'S voice is calm and clear when she speaks, but her hands tremble and she begins to cry when describing the reaction of her 2-year-old daughter to the ordeal.

"My daughter didn't recognize me. When she saw me in the hospital, she shrank away from me. Every time I talk about this, all I can see is her little face."

Pictures of Mrs. Crusan taken by Wayne County General Hospital doctors during her stay in intensive care show her body swollen and covered with large open sores.

as strong as before, Mrs. Crusan said. She lost her eyesight for three days during the two-week hospital stay.

"I've stopped driving at night. My eyesight seems to be gradually getting worse," Mrs. Crusan said.

The 29-year-old woman and her family also suffered disruptive side effects in their family life, she said.

"MY 2-YEAR-OLD daughter wouldn't eat and kept asking where her mother was. Although my 5-year-old understood mom was sick, I know it upset her and she missed me."

"My 10-month-old baby was looked after by neighbors. My husband had to get back to work after being laid off, and it was hard for him, too. It disrupted my marriage and my family beyond belief."

'I was afraid, because I was dying. I knew it.'
— Peggy Crusan

Mrs. Crusan is still under the care of a doctor, who is watching closely for any side effects or recurrence of the TSS symptoms.

"According to the U.S. Center for Disease Control, there is a 30 percent recurrence rate in patients who have had TSS," said attorney J. Douglas Peters. "The risk of developing TSS continues for menstruating women who use any tampon, according to the center," he said.

TSS is likely to occur in women 30 and younger. TSS is characterized by sudden high fever, vomiting, extreme thirst, profuse diarrhea, sometimes accompanied by sore throat, headaches, chest pains and muscle aches. It progresses to a severe drop in blood pressure and shock in 48 hours. Respiratory distress, hair loss, and a sunburn-like rash that later causes the skin to peel accompany symptoms. Death is usually caused by kidney or liver failure.

THE SYMPTOMS of TSS have been around for years, although the name was only applied two years ago, the attorney said. Tampons were first marketed in 1933 — "a cotton swab with a string."

"Tampons have been made to indiscriminately soak up liquid," Peters said. "That not only includes blood, but also mucosal membranes that keep the body protected from bacteria."

One theory on the cause of TSS is that continuous use of tampons dries out the mucosal lining of the vagina and causes tiny abrasions through which the bacteria enter the bloodstream.

Mrs. Crusan cannot drink any alcohol and her lungs have also been affected, she said.

The night before she was rushed to Wayne County General by the Canton Rescue Squad, Mrs. Crusan thought she was coming down with the flu.

"I didn't know it was tampons. I didn't know until later when five doctors stood in front of my bed and said so. I was using tampons when I was hospitalized."

That night, Mrs. Crusan remembers asking her husband to buy two bottles of pop for her.

"ALL I wanted was pop, not water, I was so thirsty. When he brought it home, I downed a big glass right away."

Her husband shook her awake early the next morning after discovering that his wife had vomited in her sleep.

"I had a hard time breathing, and Man hit on ramp

Canton police have few leads in their investigation of an apparent hit-and-run accident which occurred on an I-275 exit ramp early Sunday.

Thomas Hall, 39, of Belleville Road in Belleville, was reported unconscious in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Wayne County General Hospital on Tuesday.

Police Lt. Larry Stewart said Hall had head injuries, broken legs, cuts and bruises.

OFFICER George Sharp and motorists found Hall lying unconscious on the Michigan Avenue ramp from I-275 about 5:40 a.m. Sunday, according to police. Stewart said police believe Hall had been on foot when he was struck by a vehicle.

"It's sketchy," said Stewart. "We have a couple of pieces of car parts (and) fragments. But we're unsure if it's from this accident."

Stewart added that the injuries indicate Hall probably had been hit by a car, rather than a truck.

Police still have no description of the vehicle and are not certain whether Hall had been walking on the roadway or the shoulder when he was struck.

Persons with information about the accident are asked to call the police department at 397-3000, ext. 306.

Youth faces burglary charge

Police have closed three recent house break-in cases with the arrest late last week of a 16-year-old Canton youth.

The youth was arrested last Friday, said Lt. Larry Stewart. He later was released to his parents pending action by juvenile authorities.

ACCORDING TO Stewart, the teen is suspected of breaking into houses on Beck, Haggerty and Saltz roads over a five-day period last week.

Taken in those break-ins were jewelry, money and seven firearms — both handguns and long guns. Stewart estimated the total value at $3,000-$4,000.

Stewart said six of the guns already have been recovered.

Jerry Vettese (left) and Rick O'Toole pose for a poster to help promote the sale of WRIF concert guides, Plymouth-Canton coupon books and the 1981 yearbook.

There won't be any advertising this year in the high school yearbook at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

Deaf can use tele-typewriter

Deaf persons now have telephone access at the state Education Department's Rehabilitation Service office in Livonia.

Frank Jablonsky, assistant district supervisor, said they can use a telephonic device of the deaf (TDD), also known as a tele-typewriter.

A hearing-impaired person who visits the office at 27437 W. Six Mile can use the state's leased line to make toll-free calls to 800 numbers in such TDD-equipped agencies as the U.S. Office of Civil Rights.

Sixteen Michigan Rehabilitation Service offices are equipped with TDDs, Jablonsky said.

Instead, the annual staff will be raising money by selling a Plymouth-Canton coupon passbook.

Besides the sale of coupon passbooks, the staff also will earn its revenue from selling WRIF Radio Concert Guides and through the sale of the yearbook itself.

The coupon book will be similar to Metro Book, which is sold annually in the Detroit area.

Thus far, the annual staff has signed up 100 coupons to 60 businesses. The coupon books are on sale now at $7.50 each and are being promoted as Christmas gifts. Most coupons are good through June 30, 1981.

Much of the sales work has been handled by Russ Uhl and Brad Squire, who started their work in June 1980. Also working on the project has been Cameron Graham, editor and chief, and staffers Jim Brown and Steve Culver.

During September and October the entire yearbook staff of 17 persons went around Canton and Plymouth to sign up merchants as participants.

Climbing that long ladder that leads to the Olympics

They'll come from as far away as Mississippi and as close as down the street to test their skills against competitors from seven states next week at the Plymouth Cultural Center's ice arena.

The week-long event is billed as the Great Lakes Eastern Figure Skating Championships and boasts a field of 320 young skaters who will vie for the chance to end up at the World Championships in Hartford, Conn., next March... and maybe, just maybe, some will make it to Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, in 1984 for the Winter Olympics.

Cultural Center staffers expect a crowd of more than 2,000 for the six-day event, which starts bright and early at 7 a.m. Monday.

Skaters will compete in men's and women's singles, pairs team and dance team in five different skill levels.

Tickets for the events are priced at $4 per person for the Friday and Saturday evening shows. An all-events pass is $20 and a special weekend pass is $11.

Industrial diversification: It's easier said than done

By TOM LONERGAN

With the auto industry still reeling from the second major economic slump since 1974, development of a diversified job-base in southeast Michigan has taken on a greater urgency.

The total number of jobs in the seven counties of southeast Michigan increased between 1970 and 1977. But the number of manufacturing jobs declined, according to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

SEMCOG, a government-funded regional planning agency, recently drew a summary profile of the region.

The manufacturing decline has meant increased unemployment and a shift to more non-manufacturing, lower-paying service sector jobs.

"THERE'S BEEN a switch from a great reliance on manufacturing jobs to that of the service sector," said Michael Glusac, SEMCOG executive director.

In 1970, manufacturing provided about 51 percent of the region's jobs, reports SEMCOG. By 1977, manufacturing jobs dipped to 46 percent of jobs regionally. During the same period, non-manufacturing jobs increased from 29 to 33 percent of the region's job base.

While there's no question the auto industry remains the region's largest job provider for the foreseeable future, it's not expected to return to pre-recession employment levels.

Two new automated plants are planned for early 1980s production in Oakland County and central Detroit, but they will be replacing old, out-moded facilities.

"We see (manufacturing jobs) as being a declining portion," said Daniel Luria, of the UAW's Research Department. But the union hasn't made any estimates of the loss, he added.

A RECENT study co-sponsored by the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce identified six industries "that have the best shot at surviving other than the auto industry," according to Arthur Saltzman, the chamber's vice president for economic development.

The study was conducted by two Wayne State University economics professors. Their criteria included average wages paid, the type of skilled workforce needed, capital investment required and product demand.

The industries given the best chance at survival include:

- Meat packing.
- Manufacture of plastics materials and resins.
- Industrial and organic chemicals.
- Farm machinery and equipment.
- Electronics and computer equipment.

The study will be used by the chamber, Saltzman said, to encourage similar industries here to expand and to recruit.

"None of these industries is particularly labor intensive," said Saltzman. "You've got to be in the service industry for that. These are mostly capital intensive industries."

DIVERSIFICATION of the region's industrial base is "absolutely essential," says SEMCOG's Glusac, "so we don't live or die on the auto industry."

Achieving a mix will be difficult. First, there's competition with other urban areas of the country, he said.

"So much of the decision comes from the private sector," Glusac continued. "They decide whether they'll make widgets in southeast Michigan rather than down South."

"The auto industry itself has diversified its locations" since the post World War II years, said Glusac, from a concentration of plants in the industrial midwest to the South and West.

SINCE THE 1974-75 recession, the state and local governments have attempted to keep industry in Michigan and to attract new businesses through "incentives," — specifically granting property tax breaks on new or expanded industrial plants and helping mostly smaller businesses obtain financing.

The latter is accomplished through Economic Development Corporations, which can be formed by local units of government to issue revenue bonds on behalf of businesses.

How turkey was introduced as prime dish for feast

By W.W. EDGAR

When you sit down at the table on Thanksgiving Day and glance at that appetite provoking roast turkey on the platter in the center, it may be well to bow your head for a moment and solemnly give thanks to that old Indian warrior Chief Massosoyt.

He was the Indian chief who introduced the Pilgrims to wild turkey — the great-granddaddy of the turkey we know today — and thus established a symbol of the holiday that has lived down through more than three centuries.

So pleased were the Pilgrims that a monument to the great Indian was erected in Plymouth, Mass., and it still is a tourist attraction today.

Back in 1621 when the harvest was in and the Pilgrims were in good mood to celebrate, they invited the chief to join in a feast. He accepted and brought with him 90 members of his tribe, four deer and a flock of wild turkeys. And thus was born the tradition of turkey dinner for Thanksgiving Day.

Strangely, that is the only thing about Thanksgiving on which the historians can agree as no one is quite sure who was the first to celebrate Thanksgiving.

The date of the first celebration is entrenched somewhere in the world's past, and it certainly predates the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass. It is written that on Dec. 4, 1619 a band of 39 English settlers arrived at Berkeley Plantation on the James River, which is now Charles City, Va., for a religious gathering. And during their meeting they adopted a charter calling for the day of their arrival to be observed yearly as a day of Thanksgiving.

The New England Pilgrims observed their Thanksgiving less than a year later after a dreadful winter had killed nearly half of their colony.

Out of this heartbreaking experience new hope grew in 1621. During the summer of the next year a good corn harvest brought great rejoicing and Gov. William Bradford decreed that a three-day celebration and feast be started on July 30, 1623.

Earlier in the year it has been written, the crop had been poor and a sudden rainstorm knocked down the standing crop. In fact, corn was so scarce that because of the system whereby all shared equally, it was decreed that until the provision ship arrived from England each person was allowed only five kernels of corn daily.

Then, of all things, late in the day of this Bradford decree and at the conclusion of a day of prayer, a warm rain fell and caused the corn stalks to rise again.

Because of this "miracle" that astounded the Indians, who were impressed with the power of the white man's God, it then was decided to conduct a religious service and a thanksgiving meal that autumn.

This is the day that is generally accepted as the original Thanksgiving Day of feasting and prayer.

But that was only the beginning of events that made a political football of Thanksgiving Day in the next few centuries.

In fact, after the Pilgrim Thanksgiving was held, the idea spread across the country and each group had its own day set apart for its area.

Finally, in 1789 President George Washington declared that Nov. 26 be a day of prayer and national thanksgiving.

No sooner had his decree been announced than the Protestant Episcopal Church announced that it would hold a regular day of Thanksgiving each year on the first Thursday in November.

mybody felt heavy. I was shaking. Roger tried to help me bathe, but I pushed him away.

"I was afraid because I thought I was dying. I knew it. I knew I had to get to a hospital soon," she said.

By the time the ambulance arrived, Mrs. Crusan's blood pressure had dropped, she said. She received oxygen on the way in. She drifted in and out of consciousness for the next eight to 10 days.

She was delirious and her skin was too sensitive for anyone to touch without causing extreme pain, Mrs. Crusan said. The open sores developed.

"No one yet knows what kind of residual effects TSS victims suffer from," the attorney said.

MRS. CRUSAN had chest pains, nausea, diarrhea, loss of hair and was irritable during her menstrual period for months before she was hospitalized, she said. She attributed those symptoms to her period, however, not to the use of tampons.

"My hairdresser noticed the loss of my hair, and my husband thought I was going nuts," Mrs. Crusan said. "It was a mess."

After returning from the hospital, Mrs. Crusan was just "glad to be alive."

"I was alive, and I could've been dead. I had my three babies and my husband."

She discussed the experience with her neighbors. Many stopped using tampons after hearing about her, Mrs. Crusan said, but a few didn't believe she had been poisoned.

"While I was getting better, I remembered they said it was tampons that cause this," Mrs. Crusan said. "I thought no one would do anything for me, I'm going to have to do it."

That disbelief was partly why she filed a lawsuit, she said. Mrs. Crusan was also angry that if the tampons caused her illness, she nearly died from using something she thought was safe.

She visited a legal clinic, and the people there referred her to a lawyer. Although she wanted to avoid publicity at first, now she intends to tell everyone about her near-fatal experience.

"It about destroyed my life," Peggy Crusan said. "How can you replace time or something that's been permanently damaged?"

"If I win, the money will make my life better, but it won't replace what I've lost."

Stop excusing your life away.

If I haven't got cancer by now I'll never get it. I just don't want to know. No one in my family ever had cancer anyway. My husband told me not to worry. I was going to go but I remembered the goldfish needed feeding. It was raining out, and I was sick on the way. I overslept and missed my appointment. Who cares. I don't have a doctor. I missed the bus. The canary got out so I chased it around for hours. I forgot. I had a good time. It was a nice first. The turkey was fine. I was on my feet. I played golf instead. I'm not sick, ever. I don't have the money right now. If cancer comes in the stars. I went to the doctor's. He said I was in the wrong day. I went to the wrong doctor's. Maybe next week I'll make it. It's against my religion. I'm scared. I need to lose a few pounds first. I'm too busy right now. My life would fall apart without me. My father never went to the doctor's and he lived until he was 90. I don't have to think about it. Nothing's wrong with me. The doctors are too cold. I'm too young. I don't want to be too old to care. I thought only my parents would have to stay home and fix dinner. I never heard of it. My boss wouldn't give me the day off anyway. There was a great sale on linens I couldn't miss. The car had a funny rattle. No one in my family ever had cancer. I'm not afraid of cancer. I

Everyone has an excuse for not seeing their doctor about colorectal cancer. However, every year 52,000 men and women die of colorectal cancer in this country alone. Two out of three of these people might be saved by early detection and treatment. Two out of three.

So what is your excuse? Today you have a new, simple, practical way of providing your doctor with a stool specimen on which he can perform the gualac test. This can detect signs of colorectal cancer in its early stages before symptoms appear. While two out of three people can be saved. Ask your doctor about a gualac test, and stop excusing your life away.

Couple recalls nightmare in Las Vegas hotel

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER
and MAURIE WALKER

James and Linda Boogren say Thanksgiving will seem more important this year than ever before. They have much to be thankful for.

They are home now in Westland with their three small children and they are alive. They escaped the disastrous fire at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas which killed at least 83.

For a while James, who is a teacher in Garden City, and Linda Boogren thought that they might not survive the ordeal.

They made their way out of their 10th floor hotel room at the MGM Grand at the height of the fire trying to find Linda's parents — staying on the same floor — and an escape.

They found neither. At one point, after groping down the smoke-filled hotel corridor they found the only way to safety — a stairwell at the corridor's end. It turned out to be too filled with smoke to descend. They were lucky. The stairwell became a deathtrap for many.

AT THAT POINT a hotel maintenance man who had been trying to lead them, and himself, to safety, declared that they were trapped — there was no other stairway they could use. There was no way out.

The man and the Boogrens made themselves stay calm. The found a vacant room and with some other hotel guests sealed off the room as much as possible so that the poisonous monoxide from smoke would not get in.

They waited an hour, laying on the floor with wet towels covering their faces, while glass windows fell past their tenth floor window and firemen with louspeakers yelled orders to the hotel occupants.

Finally a fireman wearing an oxygen mask opened their hotel room door and led them to a balcony where a firetruck ladder 10 stories high was waiting.

They were helped by firemen over the edge to the waiting ladder and led down the 10 stories to the ground. Hours later their anxiety over Linda's parents was relieved as the two couples met at an emergency gathering point. The parents had escaped the building unscathed.

"WE'RE VERY thankful. This season is appropriate for what we've been through," said Boogren, who teaches special education students at Vogel School in Garden City. "I've been to Las Vegas before but this is the first time I was ever happy to leave."

"The next time I stay in a hotel, I want a room on the first floor." The fire was Friday morning. The couple returned home Sunday, perhaps more fortunate than many guests, with all of their luggage and goods.

"My wife and I had gone to Vegas for a combination business and pleasure trip," Boogren explained. He said he and his wife own a small company with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scantland of Akron, and another couple from Kansas.

The Boogrens, like many guests, were sleeping when the fire broke out. "I woke up about 7:30 a.m. and noticed that it seemed cloudy," Mrs. Boogren said. "Then I realized it was smoke. I said, 'Jim, wake up. I think there's a fire in this building.'"

"I could smell smoke and told her, 'we're getting out of here,'" Boogren said.

"I didn't realize the danger we were in," remembers Mrs. Boogren. "I question if I still can realize now the danger. I was confident that my husband could get us out."

"Then a maintenance man pounded on the door. 'Get out of the room and get out of the building,' he said. His name was Ray Kirtley. He did a great job for us. He could have just run, but he knocked on doors instead," Mrs. Boogren said.

"I OPENED the door to our room and found the hall filled with smoke," her husband added. "I grabbed the maintenance man, figuring he'd know the best means of getting out."

The trio went down the hallway, looking for Mrs. Boogren's parents who were on a different wing of the 10th floor.

"In between their wing and ours was a lounge and elevators. We couldn't get beyond them. They were black with smoke," she explained. "Jim kept asking the maintenance man if there was another way to get out."

"We opened the stairwell door and smoke poured out of there," said Boogren, picking up the story. "I had mixed thoughts. I thought, 'We've had it. How can I get out of here?'"

"I had Linda by the hand and I thought maybe we could make it down the stairway if we held our breath. It was a hard thing to say, 'No, I don't think we can make it.'"

"It's a good thing we didn't try the stairs. We learned later that the stairwell door locks from the inside and once you get inside, you can't return to the hall."

Boogren said a number of persons were found dead in the stairwells of the hotel. "When we saw we couldn't use the stairs, the maintenance man said there was no way out, that we were trapped."

"We went back to barricade ourselves in our room, but the more natural, human reaction was to be active and escape. There was a lot of panic among people."

"My husband yelled down hallways as we went back, telling people to keep their windows closed. When windows were opened, the draft pulled in more smoke," added Mrs. Boogren.

"We decided to seek shelter in an empty room across the hall from our room. We found several other persons had the same idea," continued Boogren.

THE ROOM faced Flamingo Road, the main street, where most of the fire equipment had gathered.

"We had smoke in the room, but we all agreed to keep the windows closed to prevent more smoke from coming in. We could see glass falling from the floors above us where people were breaking out windows."

"We covered our faces with wet towels and laid on the floor," Boogren recalled. "There was nothing to grasp onto. We were helpless," he said.

Towels also were stuffed under the door, and when smoke started to come in through a light fixture in the bathroom, that area was closed off.

Schools liberalize policy on tardiness

provides a formula for keeping that student in class if the bulk of the student's unexcused absences result from tardiness.

The new policy states that an area coordinator can intercede in a student's behalf if the request to drop the student comes during the final four weeks of a semester, if 50 percent or more of the unexcused absences are as a result of tardiness or if the student was doing passing work in that class.

As before, if a student is dropped from a class, the student then will be assigned to a study hall or some other temporary assignment for the remainder of the term. The class, if mandatory, will have to be repeated.

"What we're trying to do is look at exceptions, rather than making blanket cuts," explained Hoben. "At least this will give the student some flexibility."

Chevy donates to local schools

Lou LaRiche Chevrolet and Chevrolet Motor Division of General Motors recently donated a van and a station wagon to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The van and Malibu wagon will be used by automotive mechanic classes at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park.

The gifts are part of a program in which brand-new passenger cars and trucks damaged by accidents, floods or other mishaps on their way to dealer showrooms have been donated to schools and other institutions.

Richard D. Good, national director of service operations for Chevrolet, says that in the past eight years schools in most of the 50 states have received these free vehicles for their vocational-education programs.

"We started this program nine years ago because we found schools could really use these vehicles which normally would be tossed into the scrap crusher," Good said.

Also included in the program are engineering-test and pilot-line vehicles not suitable for sale.

The program also includes gifts of passenger-car and truck engines, transmissions and other major automotive components used for testing or design development.

Any non-profit educational institution may qualify for the donation of a vehicle or component, Good added.

The vehicles must never be operated again, and recipients must sign an affidavit that the vehicles will not be driven. Donation tags then are fastened to the vehicles and Chevrolet removes vehicle-identification numbers.

Chevrolet's 44 zone sales offices throughout the country coordinate donations whenever an accident causing major damage occurs to shipped vehicles.

Zone service staffs maintain current lists of requests for such vehicles and when one is available the school is notified to come and truck it away.

Merit Scores Decisive Victory!

Significant majority rates MERIT taste equal to - or better than - leading high tars.

The cigarette: MERIT.

High Tars Finish Second

Latest research proves smokers prefer MERIT.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT equal to — or better than — leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

Outdoor turkey barbecue party now a tradition

By LYNN ORR

Forget modern conveniences and Thanksgiving football games.

At 7:30 a.m. Carl Hartung of Redford will be slaving over a hot fire, anticipating another Thanksgiving spent in the great outdoors.

He'll be one of the forerunners of a group of about 40 friends who will gather for the fifth year in a row to celebrate Thanksgiving in a metropolitan park.

Hartung and his sons, Scott and Brent of Southfield, will be joined by a few other men for breakfast made on a camp stove while they start three fires and the roasting of three turkeys.

The rest of the crowd, including Jim Hartsell and Nancy Farley of Redford, Sue Peterson of Livonia, Bob Sleeper of Westland, Don Buckmaster of Taylor, Joan Bagaria of Ferndale, Annabelle Simpson of Allen Park and assorted friends and children, will show up at the park around 11 a.m.

Unlike the Pilgrims, the group isn't exactly seeking uninformed guests and declined to pinpoint the location of their annual cookout.

THE ANNUAL Thanksgiving celebration began in 1975 when some of the members of Parents Without Partners decided to try something different in anticipation of the Bicentennial the next year.

"Nobody had a house big enough to hold everyone," is how Hartung explains why the parents and their children decided to move outdoors.

Hartung and his friend, Jay Farnum of Detroit, also weren't fazed by the idea of cooking outdoors. Their combined camping experience had brought them to the point they'd mastered cooking on a wood fire.

But 20-pound turkeys?

Cooking time is about the same on the fire, Hartung said. But getting caught in the dark last year provided some incentive to tackle three 12-pound turkeys rather than the 20-pounders this year in hopes of eating in the early afternoon.

Originally Hartung and Farnum decided to cook the turkeys in an open pit over a fire. In the years since, they've fine-tuned the procedure, using 50-gallon oil drums cut open lengthwise. The drums are placed over the fire with a rack on top. The turkeys, stuffed at home, are cooked on top of the racks.

In the last hour during the browning process, hickory chips are dipped in water and thrown on the fire to add that hickory-smoked touch.

"They're just delicious," is how Hartung describes it.

Most of the rest of the food, including pies and bread, are fixed at home and warmed on the fires. Hot apple cider, spiced with cinnamon sticks, stays on the fire all day for consumption. The adults simply add a little rum to theirs to keep the inner fires burning, Hartung added.

But the food and drink is only one outstanding part of the day, according to Hartung.

"The kids love it. They don't have to worry about spilling things or sitting still. Everyone works — hauling water, splitting wood, tending the fires."

WET WEATHER doesn't dampen this crowd's spirits.

"We've had rain, snow, drizzle, sunshine — every kind of weather combination possible. We're smart enough now that we prepare for anything that happens."

That includes vans for warm-ups, waterproof canvas and warm clothes. It doesn't include televisions or any other electronic that would interfere in the main program for the day — getting together for good conversation and lots of fun.

A few of the original parents without partners have remarried, bringing in new members to the Thanksgiving crowd, along with new in-laws. But everyone seems to understand that this tradition won't be relinquished for a traditional turkey dinner with the family.

"After five years, this is our tradition," Hartung said. "The families accept it."

Thanksgiving, the retarded and Chief Massasoit

This year marks the 400th anniversary of the birth of Massasoit, chief of the Wampanoags. We remember him at Thanksgiving time because of his relationship with the struggling, starving Plymouth Colony in 1621.

One day Massasoit appeared with 60 painted warriors before the startled Pilgrims. His purpose was not war but to form a friendly league with his new neighbors.

Gov. John Carver was impressed by Massasoit and accepted the offer. Pilgrims and Wampanoags concluded a treaty which was kept sacredly for 50 years.

They dined together at the end of the harvest season, as we observe Thanksgiving today.

WE, TOO, in the suburbs of southeastern Michigan, have new neighbors this year. In one town after another, group homes for the retarded have been set up.

The retarded are like our Pilgrim forefathers in many ways.

As the Pilgrims had left their native England for Holland and then the shores of Cape Cod to find a congenial home, these retarded were previously in institutions — human warehouses — run by the state.

With the help of state funds (much like the English king's charter), and under guidance of nonprofit corporations, the retarded are making new homes among us.

Like the Pilgrims, they are learning many things. They are learning to hold down jobs, in sheltered workshops and other places. They are learning to do household tasks, to take care of themselves. They are serving each other the holiday meal.

THEIR OPPORTUNITIES came quickly. Only a few years earlier, the Pilgrims had been in the process of being absorbed by the Dutch.

Only 13 or 14 years ago, the notions of special education and community homes for the retarded were just gleams in the eyes of some far-sighted people.

In the same way the Pilgrims procured colonial charters from King James, the retarded have won rights under Michigan law. To the extent possible, they will be housed in normal homes in normal communities and live in something resembling a normal family setting. There is schooling for the handicapped until the age of 26 and life services (residential placement) thereafter.

In the same way the crown found it was easier to let the Pilgrims have a new home than to oppress them in the old country, the state has found it's cheaper to place the retarded in small group homes than in institutions.

EVENTUALLY, the settlers in what is now Massachusetts ran into trouble with Massasoit's son, King Philip, and there was war.

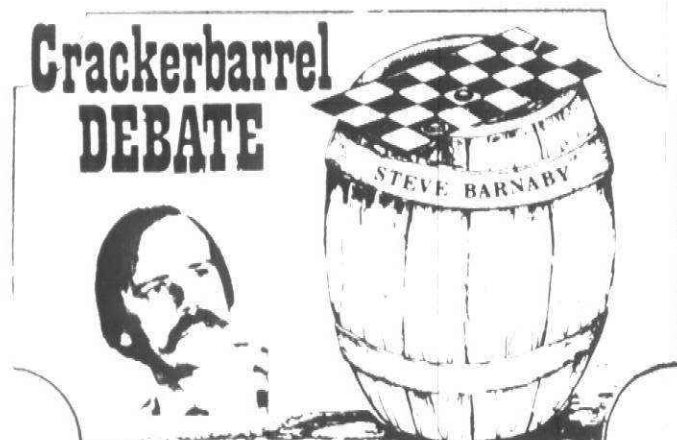

The retarded have frequently run into hostilities. Fires have been set as some of the homes were being readied for occupancy. Others have been vandalized.

Some of the hostility has been polite. Some of the native suburbanites have attempted to use the police power of the state — zoning — to keep out the newcomers. Even now, hard-hearted legislators are attempting to manipulate the laws of the Michigan tribe to effectively prohibit the newcomers.

Many good people — the legislative majority, state agencies, private support groups — have worked to make this new kind of life possible.

Last weekend, the Metropolitan Committee for Community Awareness of Developmental Disabilities chose to honor the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for its part in telling the story of the retarded citizens' struggles for a better life.

We accepted it — but with the understanding that on Thanksgiving Day we should all drink a toast to the spirit of Chief Massasoit.

American jingoism is outdated

All this rattle about buying American is poppycock — pure poppycock.

Let's take a typical shopping safari with Mrs. Middle Class American.

She runs out to her fuel-efficient American Motors Spirit and drives off to the local A&P to do some last-minute shopping. Relatives are coming for Thanksgiving, you know.

It's a nice afternoon to get a jump on the Christmas shopping, so the next stop is the nearest shopping mall. Aunt Minnie always has liked the clothes at Saks Fifth Avenue so she makes a stop to sort through the clothes racks.

Next it's a gift for the teen-age daughter. The Ups 'n Downs clothing shop seems to fit the bill.

Oops, let's not forget toys. That new F.A.O. Schwartz toy store at the Ren Cen sounds different. On the way, she passes the now-defunct Korvettes which closed down earlier this year.

Back home, she calls Mr. Middle Class American who is on a New York business trip.

Be sure to stop at Ohrbachs and Gimbels to pick up some gifts there, she tells him.

Not bad, still some time to sit back and relax before the kids come home from school.

The typical all-American shopping spree, you say. Wrong, dead wrong.

EVERY COMPANY just mentioned is either partially or wholly owned by foreign companies. And every time we purchase a product at one of these stores, some or all of the profits are going to Europe.

Realists know we live in a world-dominated market place. And that's the way it should be.

Unfortunately, too many Americans are stuck with the jingoistic notion that it's unpatriotic to buy something from a foreign-owned company. Actually, it's just about impossible to survive without subsidizing the foreign market.

In the last eight years, at least 23 major American companies have been purchased by European firms, according to the Dec. 1 edition of Fortune Magazine.

Gimbel Brothers, parent company to Saks, was purchased by BAT Industries of Great Britain in 1973. Approximately half of A&P is owned by the Tengelmann Group of Germany. Ups 'n Downs is wholly owned by Tootal of Great Britain, while Franz Carl Weber owns 95 percent of F.A.O. Schwarz.

Korvettes, which closed all of its Detroit-based stores, was purchased in 1979 by France's Agache-Willot.

One of the first major European acquisitions was made in 1962 when the Brenninkmeyer family of the Netherlands purchased Ohrbachs.

AS MOST KNOW American Motors has gone into partnership with French-owned Renault, which is on the verge of taking over controlling interest.

In short, it's time for America to face the harsh realities of the market place. It's time to throw away the isolationist bumper stickers urging us to buy American.

Sit back, relax, turn on the Sony television and pop open a bottle of Heineken.

Thanks for simple things

It was just a bit ironical that The Stroller met up with old Jim on his travels the other afternoon. It had been years since he had seen him. And when they met, the Stroller gave him the usual salutation at this time of year by wishing him a very happy Thanksgiving.

Old Jim had earned the reputation of being one of the world's worst cynics. So it wasn't surprising when he shot back:

"What have we got to be thankful for?"

"Can we be thankful for the spiraling economy."

"Can we be thankful for the long lines of unemployed workers?"

"Can we be thankful for the sickness of the automobile industry?"

"I just paid 99 cents for a loaf of bread and $2.50 for a pair of rubber heels on my walking shoes. Can I be thankful for anything like that?"

On and on he went dispelling any thought that he would have a happy Thanksgiving Day. And all the while The Stroller couldn't help wondering how Old Jim would have felt if he had experienced some of the unusual Thanksgiving Days The Stroller had in his life.

ONE OF THE Thanksgiving Days The Stroller well remembers came during the height of the Depression in 1930. At the time he was fighting poverty as a member of the sports staff of the Detroit Free Press.

Came the week before the day of thanks and a notice went up on the bulletin board notifying the staff of a 10 percent reduction in their wages (salary wouldn't be a proper name for what was paid). That was bad enough. We all read the notice and gulped.

Two days later another notice went up, notifying us of another 10 percent reduction. And, lo and behold, two days after that came another notice conveying the sad message that we would not only face another 10 percent cut, but that the wages would be paid half in cash and half in script, which the stroller

the company said it hoped would some day in the future be redeemed.

Talk about a joyful Thanksgiving Day. All the joy was taken out of it.

THERE WAS another time when The Stroller and his young bride had opened a savings account and planned a family dinner only to learn that the banks had been closed and our bank account was frozen. So another Thanksgiving Day had anything but joy.

Even in his younger days when The Stroller was a member of the Boy Scout football team back home he suffered a degree of agony on a cold, rainy Thanksgiving day.

The scouts were playing the high school team in the old creek field which was carved out of a cow pasture. For more than three quarters we slithered around in the mud without a score.

Finally, The Stroller recovered a fumble and the team went on to score and win the game. But what a shock he got the next morning when he picked up the paper to read that it was too dark and murky to determine who recovered the fumble. What an ego chaser that was. And on Thanksgiving Day.

Now, as he strolls along the river of printers ink, The Stroller enjoys any day that he wakes up, puts his feet on the floor, opens his eyes and takes a breath.

If he can do that this Thanksgiving morning, it will be a great day regardless of how high the spiraling economy may go.

So have a happy and joyous Thanksgiving Day.

Public gets a good taste of Tisch

The recession did to Michigan what Bob Tisch and his unsuccessful Proposal D tried to do. Even though voters rejected the Tisch tax cut Nov. 4, we are getting a pretty good dose of budget cuts anyway.

Remember, Gov. William G. Milliken and the bipartisan Establishment in Lansing said that if Proposal D passed, the general fund budget would have to be cut more than 50 percent.

Well, because of the recession and lost tax revenues, Milliken recently made another round of state budget cuts which "represent a cut of more than 20 percent in the activities of state government since the first of the year."

"You know what the impact would be of a cut of more than 20 percent in your household budget or in your business or farm budget. This gives you an idea of the difficulty and impact of the decisions we have had to make."

THE LESSON is this: If we look at how Milliken handled a 20 percent budget cut, we can imagine what a 50 percent Tisch-inspired budget cut would have been like.

Here are the areas which got increases over 1980 despite the budget cuts:

- Corrections (prisons) 15.1 percent.
- Judiciary (courts) 12.9 percent.
- Social services (aid to dependent children, general assistance, etc.) 8.7 percent.
- State police 7.6 percent.

Before going into the cuts, I remind everyone of what our editorial board said Oct. 23 in opposing the Tisch tax cut: "The middle class of Michiganians would suffer most from the kind of state budget cuts Proposal D would inflict."

So here are the services that were cut:

- Grants (revenue sharing with local government) 50.9 percent.
- Natural resources 29 percent.
- School aid 25 percent.
- Community colleges 7.7 percent.
- Higher education 5.1 percent.

GO BACK, for a moment, to the natural resources item.

What will remain in that area will be environmental protection programs — fighting pollution, halting toxic wastes, inspecting landfills and so on.

What will go will be some of the state parks, security personnel, maintenance personnel, lifeguards and the rescue helicopter.

In the decade of the 1970s, the number of arrests by DNR officers for violation of fish and game laws tripled. These budget cuts brought on by the recession, and the further budget cuts Tisch would have caused, are no doubt good news to poachers.

On the second day of deer hunting season, a hunter told me he had seen two dead does and a dead fawn. He showed me one doe. She had been gutted, indicating her killing was deliberate and not an accident.

We can get ready for more of that.

THE MIDDLE CLASS of Michigan should learn a few lessons before flirting with any more crazy Tisch-type proposals.

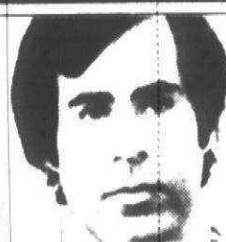

The judiciary won't get cut because you can't lay off judges. Welfare won't be cut much because you can't humanely let people starve. Prisons can't be closed, although some bleeding hearts will try to get court orders to do it.

The rich folks can send their kids to private academies and fly to Canada or the Rockies for their vacations.

Budget cuts — whether caused by a recession or a Tisch tax cut — are going to hit the middle class hardest.

Dieting alone won't keep those pounds off

QUESTION: How many calories are equivalent to a pound of body fat? Isn't diet more effective than exercise for weight control?
L.F., Farmington Hills

The body obtains calories through food and either uses them for energy or stores them. When they are stored, they become fat.

To maintain body weight, your intake and expenditure of calories must be the same. For example, if you normally consume 2,800 calories per day, you must expend enough energy (through metabolism and physical activity) to utilize those 2,800 calories.

If you have 100 calories "left over," they go into storage. Once you have stored 3,500 calories, you've gained a pound. Conversely, the loss of one pound of fat requires a loss of 3,500 calories.

Most authorities agree that a sensible weight loss regimen results in a one pound weight loss per week. To reach this goal, the caloric deficit would have to average 500 Calories per day.

While this may be achieved through diet alone, adding exercise offers three particular advantages.

First, regular exercise permits a higher caloric intake while dieting. Second, exercise can be an enjoyable leisure time activity which improves cardiovascular fitness.

Finally, weight loss through exercise consists primarily of fat as opposed to the loss of water or vital lean tissue which can occur with crash or fad dieting. The water and lean tissue losses on these diets are quickly regained upon resumption of a balanced diet.

Since the purpose of a weight reduction program is to reduce body fat stores rather than lean tissue or water, moderate caloric restriction with increased physical activity is the preferred approach.

Patience is a virtue, for a gradual weight loss (e.g., one pound per week) has been found to be more permanent than rapid weight losses.

Rev. Robert Schaden

The teeter-totter phenomenon is alive and well

Recent pronouncements by the Catholic Church concerning sexual ethics have provoked anger on the part of some and cheering on the part of others.

Liberal-minded people of various persuasions, Catholics included, have responded with a number of statements ranging from "How dare they?" to "Who cares?" Those with a more conservative bent believe that we need even stricter pronouncements geared toward whipping society into shape.

To say that we are on the front edge of a conservative backlash is somewhat of an understatement. Evidence of this swing is seen in the rise of fundamentalism on the religious front and in the reactionary leaning voiced in the political arena.

However, backlashes are, by definition, responses to what are perceived to be extremes. The teeter-totter phenomenon is alive and well.

AN OLD LATIN phrase, "In medio stat virtus," suggests that true virtue lies somewhere between extremes. Such a middle ground is at least as difficult to reach and maintain in the realm of values and conscience formation as it is on a teeter-totter.

History continues to show that the majority is more apt to ride with the tide than to put forth the effort needed to build a well-rounded personal value system.

Such a tendency to follow the tide is true whether the flow is to the left or the right. But, regardless of the direction, such abdication of personal responsibility, with its inevitable struggle, is hardly conducive to human growth.

Values in regard to human sexuality have not been immune to this teeter-totter phenomenon. The so-called sexual revolution has been fanned by cries against Victorian morality.

AND NOW the march to conservatism is fed by what has come to be known as the age of meism. Christopher Lasch refers to it as a culture of narcissism.

By whatever name, we have become a pleasure-oriented society and when pleasure and convenience become top priority, many of the important questions never get asked.

As to sexual morals, the question is not so much to go to bed or not to go to bed. It is not even adequately defined by what we do when we get there. Rather, we might do well to ask whether we love people and use things or love things and use people.

Whether in bed or at a dinner table, whether in private or in public, the validity of any human encounter must be measured by something wider than the pleasure or the need of the moment. Rather such validity or morality must be seen in terms of its effect on the growth and well-being of a person.

GRANTED THIS is somewhat ideal and we are not immune from mistakes. However, our world need not end if we make them.

The issue is whether or not we are open enough to see them for what they are to whatever extreme they may lead us. Only then can we take responsibility for who we are and what we do. And only then are we in a position to grow toward that which we were born to be.

As long as we look solely to others to make our decisions and form our consciences, we remain somewhat adolescent. However, unless we are willing to look to a wisdom outside of ourselves as a guide for the decisions we must make, our so-called values are apt to be little more than whims.

The dining table you want hasn't been made.

You want a special dining table which suits your taste and fits your home. You want a piece that is constructed of solid hardwood with the finest craftsmanship.

You want your table to be formal, casual or somewhere in between. To be square, round, rectangular, obround, or a special shape. Extendable or one-piece. In a common or uncommon size. With crisp, sharp corners or friendly, rounded edges and corners.

You want your choice of nine solid hardwoods. And a natural finish that stands up to spills and everyday use.

You want your table to be affordably priced, yet built to last a lifetime.

You want to skip over the middleman and do business directly with a company which makes what it sells and stands behind what it makes.

Falkiewicz thanks supporters of her campaign effort

Editor:

This is a tribute to the behind-the-scenes people who devoted their time, talents and energy to my campaign.

The committee of "The Friends to Elect Maria Falkiewicz Treasurer" is well deserving of recognition. Their names are too numerous to mention; however, I extend my most sincere appreciation to each and every one of you.

A Special THANK YOU to my children, John, 15 and Lynda, 7; to the officers of the committee (Tina Sterlini, Geri Marciniak and Deana Salhaney); your newspaper for your support and press coverage; to the people who put up lawn signs; to the business people and residents who contributed to our campaign; and to all voters who took the time to cast their ballots.

It has been a real pleasure working with the staff and employees of Canton Township and serving the citizenry of Canton for nearly two years as Deputy Treasurer.

I thank you all very much for your support and your sincere dedication throughout this campaign. Happiness to all!

Students deserve a good rap

Editor:

Let's support our Plymouth-Canton High Schools. I'm tired of hearing negative comments about our students in these high schools. Parents only hear about the minority of students who are troublemakers. The majority are good kids who do not deserve this reputation. Parents where are you? Both parents are too busy earning money to properly supervise homework, friends, and morals. They just blame "those schools."

Let's support the kids in our area. The majority are good. Sing their praises.

State troopers need support

Editor:

A couple weeks ago I saw the "60 Minutes" television show on police chases, and how it often causes injury to uninvolved citizens.

I saw the editorials in our local papers with people's opinions on what the police should do. I became more curious on what police really do, and this past weekend I received the opportunity to ride with some state troopers.

This occurred on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 15. The troopers were Vicki Moreau and Greg Bristol, who work at the Northville Post and are assigned patrol areas of Plymouth and Canton townships.

I wasn't quite sure what to expect, but what happened was something I never would have imagined. The first few hours were very routine and involved stopping speeders, car assists and follow-up investigation on a breaking and entering complaint.

This routine changed when we were dispatched to assist another patrol car involved in a chase. The fleeing driver was driving the wrong way on I-275, cutting the median, and eventually getting away from them near Ann Arbor Road. Trooper Moreau saw this car near Six Mile and Haggerty Road. She attempted to stop the vehicle with lights and siren, but the vehicle again fled, driving the wrong way on I-275.

The next 10 minutes are the most terrifying yet enlightening minutes of my life. In about five miles, the fleeing driver drove the wrong ways on all major roads and ramps we traveled. Often he drove sideways down roads, through medians, over poles, through fences, numerous fields, and often directly head-on at other vehicles including ours. He even drove along the I-275 bikepath next to Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

I can't believe how close myself and countless numbers of other citizens came to being seriously injured if not killed that night. This crazy driver showed total disregard for everyone's lives, both prior to and during the chase.

The question is asked: Should these troopers have continued the pursuit? In my opinion, the troopers' presence no doubt saved many lives. Trooper Moreau's exceptional driving skills and quick thinking saved all our lives. Trooper Bristol also should be commended on the fine job he did by shooting two of the fleeing car's tires out and eventually bringing that vehicle to a stop.

Granted, these troopers are trained and expected to act in this type of a situation. But the sad part is when they do react, they receive nothing but criticism. They had nothing to gain, but their lives to lose.

Trooper Bristol is one of the troopers soon to be laid off by Gov. Milliken in January. In fact, the Northville Post may lose up to 15 troopers. This terrifies me after what I experienced on last Saturday night.

The governor laid off 80 troopers a couple of months ago and said that no more would be cut. Now he is going to lay off more than 100 more, and we, the citizens of Michigan, are the ones who are going to be left unprotected.

When police officers do exceptional work which saves people's lives, they should be supported by the public they serve. I am urging other citizens who saw this incident, or any other incident involving exceptional police work, to come forth and let their supervisors know what an excellent job they are doing.

These police officers need our support.

Federal law protects the privacy of students

A federal law is in effect to protect the accuracy and privacy of student educational records.

Without prior parental consent, only parents and authorized individuals having legitimate educational interests will have access to their child's educational records.

The revised Family Rights and Privacy Act became a federal law in November 1974.

UNDER THE LAW, parents may make an appointment to inspect and review their child's records at their school.

Upon review of the records, if parents have reason to believe that any information contained is inaccurate, misleading or inappropriate, they have the right to challenge that information.

If there is agreement, the necessary steps to amend or correct the information contained in the record will be taken.

If agreement is not reached, a hearing will be scheduled.

The hearing provides parents with the opportunity to present their views and reasons for the challenge. Parents may bring with them, at their expense, any individual who may be of assistance.

After the hearing, if agreement still is not reached, the parents may appeal the decision to the superintendent.

If the parents' appeal fails at any level of the hearing process they have the right to have entered into the record a statement of the issue as they see it.

The rights pertaining to access and challenge held by parents are transferred to the student upon his or her 18th birthday or upon admission to an institution of postsecondary education.

Directory information may be released unless a parent makes a request in writing to the contrary. Directory information includes name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, dates of attendance, major field of study, participation in recognized activities, weight and height, if a member of an athletic team, degrees and awards received.

Directory information will be released in accordance with guidelines established by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Parents have the right to file a complaint with the Family Rights and Privacy Act Office, Department of HEW, Washington DC 20201 if they think the school district is not in compliance with the law.

Parents also have a right to obtain a copy of the district's policy relative to the act. Parents with questions about student records should call their child's school or Ginnie Murdoch, pupil accountant, at 453-0200.

Land contracts popular house financing method

With mortgage interest rates climbing back to 14 percent or more, U.S. buyers and sellers are again turning to land contracts and assumed mortgages as favored methods of financing.

October statistics from the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR) indicate that land contracts were used for 30 percent of the 1,039 homes sold during the month.

Another 27.4 percent of deals were based on mortgage assumptions.

Mortgages dropped to 29.5 percent.

CHANGES IN financing methods, tied closely to existing interest rates, have been more pronounced and more sudden this year than perhaps ever before.

Use of land contracts ran below 20 percent in the early months of 1980 but climbed to more than 48 percent in April. This was the same month mortgage interest rates made a series of drastic jumps to reach 17 percent.

In opposition, use of conventional mortgages dipped to a low of 3.3 percent in April and then climbed back to a near 50 percent level in August as interest rates slid back below 12 percent.

Mortgage assumptions also have had their ups and downs through the year ranging from 16 percent use in June to a September high of 27.9 percent.

The recent gain in interest rates also reversed a trend toward improved home sales occurring in the past few months. Monthly sales totals by WWOCBR members ran above 1,200 during July, August and September

WITH THE DIP in the market, increased in average home prices also showed some signs of leveling off. Starting the year at slightly less than $54,000, they had reached $59,397 in September before dropping back to $57,376 last month.

The WWOCBR October

figures also showed a 460-unit decline in residential listings from the previous month, but a good supply remains in most areas with wide spreads in price ranges.

The sales to listing ratio for WWOCBR in October remained above 30 percent. An improved market was noted for homes priced below $30,000.

Rock girls stun Glenn in district final

Morre, Sobkow launch upset

By BRAD EMONS

Bob Blohm got an unexpected ride last night.

His Plymouth Salem girls' basketball team, ranked behind Westland John Glenn most of the season, captured the Class A district title in their own gym with a stunning 49-45 victory.

The Rocks, 19-4 overall, now roll into the first round of the regional Tuesday at Southfield.

Glenn, the area's No. 1 ranked Class A squad, fell victim to Salem's patented ball control game. The loss snapped the Rockets' 16-game winning streak.

"Your last victory is always your greatest victory," said a joyous Blohm. "The key to our victory was our ball control in the second half, and we dealt with a very good offensive team."

"It's hard to believe we stopped their tremendous offensive series."

The Rocks played relatively error-free in notching their second straight district crown.

"I'm really pleased with my girls," said Glenn coach George Sommerman. "This is the first time we've been in the district finals."

"If you're going to lose, it might as well be against a team like Salem. They are well coached and very disciplined."

Salem, down by one point at halftime, grabbed a lead midway through the third quarter it never relinquished.

The Rocks used a semi-stall in the final three minutes to hold off the hard-charging Rockets.

A basket by reserve Kelly Graham with 1:10 remaining cut Salem's advantage to 47-45.

Blohm's troops, though, maintained their poise, patiently working the ball around. The delay tactics led to a clinching layup by Jacque Merrifield with five seconds left on a pass from teammate Jan MacKenzie.

SALEM, a team which relies on a stubborn man-to-man defense, showed some life against Glenn on offense, too.

Junior guard Eileen Moore, now in her third season on the Salem varsity, gave the Rockets fits.

She handled the ball fluently and directed the offense. The 5-7 standout led all scorers with 20 points, many on nifty drives to the hoop.

"At halftime I told my girls we had to deal with their pressure," said Blohm. "Tonight we cleared and let Eileen play a bit."

Moore also had plenty of help from center Cheryl Sobkow, who finished with 17 points and 10 rebounds. Her basket with 7:16 to go in the final period staked the Rocks to a 41-36 advantage.

"We knew we had to stop Moore and Sobkow," said Sommerman. "Moore's an excellent player. She's been in these games before, and that kind of seasoning you can't have."

Sommerman's team had trouble penetrating the Rocks' defense all night long.

'Your last victory is always your greatest victory.'

--Salem coach Bob Blohm

"We weren't in our offense," he said. "Sometimes we tried to do too much. Maybe our emotions got the best of us. We've never had that kind of pressure before. We tried to get them into the positions they should have been in. Tonight we were a little excited."

The loss dimmed a fine performance by Glenn center Geri Pizzuti. She scored 17 points and grabbed 11 boards.

Pizzuti ignited a Glenn rally in the final quarter on two straight hoops in a span of 30 seconds.

RUNNING MATE Kim Cesarz added nine points for Glenn, and guard Lynda Carlson chipped in with eight.

Sommerman, seeking his first district title, was disappointed with the loss, but was still proud of his team's effort during the season.

"This was difficult to handle," he admitted, "but this team came a long way. The last time we played Salem, we lost by 31 points."

Salem, under Blohm's direction, has also come along way.

The Rocks, runnersup in the Suburban Eight League, appear to be making another tournament run.

Salem last year lost in the regional finals to Redford Union in overtime.

Krueger banks on youth movement

Coach likes team's potential

By BRAD EMONS

What is Ron Krueger going to do for an encore?

The Plymouth Salem wrestling coach accomplished a lot last season. His Rocks posted a 13-0 dual meet record, broke 16-team records and placed fourth in Class A.

Salem also won seven invitational tournaments, the Suburban Eight League and district crowns, and gained second in the regionals.

"We didn't win it last year," reminded Krueger, now in his 10th year. "When I win it all, I'll have nothing else to do."

Salem lost nine outstanding wrestlers from a year ago. They combined for an unbelievable 337-80 mark.

Most notably absent is Jeff Brown, now at Grand Rapids Junior College, who posted 128 wins in his career, a school record. The 112-pounder placed sixth in Class A.

Jim Schultz (105) is also gone. He racked up 105 career victories. Another lost to graduation was Mark Ross, now wrestling for the Air Force Academy. He went 45-7 last year, placing second in the state at 126.

Krueger must also fill the voids left by Jeff Dunson (119), Jerry Valchine (138), Scott Piper (155), Jeff Powers (185), Stan Snider (198) and Greg Gatto (heavyweight).

"I see some good things coming from our younger kids," said Krueger. "I feel I have potential like I've never had here before."

Despite the team's youth, Krueger does have some veterans to work with.

Senior tri-captain Steve Szilagyi returns with the best individual mark. He posted a 25-13 slate in 1979-80 and will return at 167.

ROB PRICE returns for his senior year at 145. He sported a 16-14 record and is a tri-captain along with Kevin Santer, who will wrestle at 155.

Sophomore Jeff Wojcek won 22 matches at 98 and will be joined by veterans Bruce Bachman (138) and Marty Piper (198, or heavyweight).

Bachman and Piper won 17 and nine matches last year, respectively.

"We're a year away," said Krueger. "If they keep working hard, they can be better than last year's team."

"I wouldn't say that if I didn't believe it."

Contesting for Schultz' spot at 105 are junior Chuck Garber and sophomore Mike Doumanian, who will be out of action for awhile with a broken jaw suffered in a car accident.

The 112-pound spot is being contested by senior Dave Lucas and junior Dave Leist. Bill Ward, a senior, and Chris Crysler, a junior, are battling at 119.

At 126 pounds, John Beaudoin, a sophomore, and junior Rob McDonald are staging a close duel.

McDonald is also fighting for a spot at 132 along with Randy Beaudoin, who gained some varsity experience a year ago.

Sophomore John Wooschuk will back up Bachman at 138, while Bruno Genrich, a junior, will do the same for Price at 145.

In the upper weight classes, Marty Piper has sealed down either 198, or heavyweight. Teammates Scott Wickens and Adam Golchuk also figure in at 185 and 198.

"We're going to be pretty balanced, although we're not as tough as we were last year," said Krueger.

Krueger knows defending the league crown will be difficult.

"We want to do well there," he said. "Belleville and Trenton are loaded up. They have everybody back."

Krueger, along with assistants Larry Phillips, Dan Ross and Ralph Morgan, will get a chance to evaluate the Rocks in the season opener next Thursday at Northville. Four teams will compete in the meet beginning at 5 p.m.

Bell likes cagers' quickness

By BRAD EMONS

Craig Bell's Plymouth Canton basketball team took a giant step last March. His squad gained the respect of area cage fans when they won the district title, upsetting rival Plymouth Salem, 68-54.

The Chiefs have posted a 34-12 record in Bell's two years.

But where does he go from here? "We'd like to maintain what we've established in the past," said Bell, "and that's through working hard."

"Our first priority is win the Western Six League crown and take one game at a time. What has pleased me the most so far is the way the players have accepted the hard work we've been putting them through. I'm super pleased with our efforts."

Bell lost three starters from a year ago — all of whom could score.

Last year's MVP, Dave Visser, is now in the starting lineup for Wayne State. At 6-foot-5, Visser was a smooth ball handler, good shooter and unselfish player. He averaged 12.7 points per game, as did Scott Adler, who is gone. The other starter was 6-4 Brad Westin, who averaged 11.8 ppg.

"That was certainly a fine group of seniors," said Bell. "They're one of the finest group I've ever worked with. All of them were above a three point grade average."

"They were just an intelligent group of young men."

Despite the losses, Bell feels he can challenge and go after his third straight Western Six League crown.

"We feel we have some fine athletes to compete for the title," he said.

Leading returnees include 6-2 guard-forward Dave Malek and 6-5 Sean Houle. Both started last year and have been elected the team's co-captains.

Houle, who transferred to Canton two years ago from Detroit Catholic Central, averaged 11 points and seven rebounds per game in 1979-80.

Bell expects the strong pivotman to play both inside and outside in the Chiefs' offense.

MALEK, who complemented Adler well at guard last year, must pick up the scoring slack. He had 75 assists last season and averaged five points per game.

Senior veteran Bill Childs will move into the point guard spot. The 5-10 quarterback is being pushed, however, by 5-9 Tommy Harris, a quick junior up from the reserves.

Other players contesting for the guard spots include seniors Jim Mills and John Buglione along with junior Claude Davis.

Ken Van Kirk, a 6-4, 205-pound senior, is after one of the front line positions. Others competing for the two vacant jobs include juniors Matt Thomas (6-2), Steve Tuttle (6-6) and Jerry Slayton (6-1).

Tuttle led the junior varsity in scoring and rebounding.

Juniors Al Blascek (6-0) and Ron King (6-1) round out the team.

"We feel we have nine players who can contribute for us right away," said Bell. "It depends on what kind of game we're in. We just have to wait and see if the team accepts their roles."

Canton will have one of its quickest teams in years, according to Bell.

"We think we'll be able to extend our defense," he said. "We're going to playing more three-quarters court. We're stressing good man-to-man principles."

"We hope to score off our defense. That's going to be the key."

Soccer, spike teams qualify

Schoolcraft College will be among eight teams vying for the National Junior Collegiate Athletic Association soccer championship this weekend in Trenton, N.J.

This will be the Ocelots' third trip to the nationals. Schoolcraft placed fourth in 1968 and last in an eight-team field in 1978.

Dr. Marvin Gans, currently athletic director who started the soccer program at Schoolcraft in 1966 and coached the team for five years, said that this squad is the best in the school's history.

"It will be tough in the national tournament," Gans said. "I look for our squad to be competitive, but we play 1978 champs Ulster, N.Y., in the opening round."

The Ocelots earned a berth by routing Belleville, Ill., 4-1 and edging Bethany, Minn., 1-0 in regional competition.

Belleville had been ranked seventh nationally before meeting Schoolcraft.

Ocelots who reaped goals in that game were Barry Detherage, a Plymouth Canton graduate, Alan Bate, a Redford Union alumnus, Nick O'Shea, Livonia Franklin, and Craig Martin, Livonia Franklin.

Russ Gans, from Northville, tended goal for the Ocelots in both games.

Schoolcraft, unranked all season, now has a record of 9-1-2. The only loss was a disputed 1-0 defeat to Oakland Community College. The Ocelots have outscored their opponents 51-13.

Fred Seyedjafari, a Northville grad, O'Shea, Chuck Scoggins, from Stevenson, and Gans all were named to the Michigan Community College Athletic Association all-state team this season.

VOLLEYBALL

The women's volleyball team at Schoolcraft is also headed for post-season play.

The Ocelots, ranked sixth nationally with a 39-10 season record, have won an at-large berth in the NJCAA Championships Dec. 3-5 in Miami, Fla. Mike O'Toole has coached the team to its best record ever.

This will be the third trip in as many years for Schoolcraft to the national finals.

The Ocelots finished second in regional competition to Kellogg Community College, which has won the national title the last two years.

Schoolcraft's players this year are all products of area high schools and many were coached by O'Toole as preps or in recreation level competition.

He terms Linda Mix, a Livonia Churchill grad and an All-American candidate, "the best defensive player in the state."

"They are good academically, good athletically and have good attitudes," O'Toole said of his charges. "It's not hard to coach with talent like that."

Mix and Linda Spicer, a Redford Thurston graduate, were each named to the first All-Region 12 Tournament team.

In Churchill girls' swim program

Young coach instills spirit

By DOUG FUNKE

You might think it wouldn't be easy even getting a team together after going winless through two consecutive seasons.

Yet, be it a new coach, a group consisting primarily of sophomores and freshmen who might not know any better or a few seasoned veterans who want to improve, Livonia Churchill has survived on the girls' swimming front.

The Chargers failed to win this season, too, but the program definitely seems to be on the upswing.

Melanie Saponic, a Churchill graduate and currently a sophomore at the University of Michigan, is the new coach.

Only 19 years of age, she has been mistaken for a high-school swimmer herself. But make no mistake about where she stands.

"I'm a hard nose when it comes to athletics," Saponic said. "I don't like babies and I can't stand girls crying and saying they can't do it. Somebody can do whatever they want to if they put their mind to it."

However, after an experience at big-time college athletics with competitive synchronized swimming that wasn't that pleasant, Saponic has come to the conclusion that winning and competition isn't everything.

That is especially enlightening when you consider that Churchill had only eight swimmers last year. The program probably could have gone either way.

"Our main goal is to go out there and have spirited workouts as a team," Saponic said. "Participation and beating the clock is the main objective now."

"One thing that has kept the team together is working on sportsmanship and comradeship," she continued. "I don't criticize them for not winning. I compliment every single one for improving their times. That's all I can ask."

Saponic had to work hard to get participants early in the season.

"We had posters all over the place, announcements in the Churchill paper," she said. "I also threatened in the beginning. We only had 14 at the first meeting and I told each of the they had to bring a friend to workouts the first week."

Five of 26 have dropped out since mid-September.

What about those who have remained?

"I go out there and think about doing the best I can, improving my times," said Kathy Curtiss.

"We're practicing more, but that's good for the team," said Sandra Locke.

"Workouts are harder," said Liz Murdoch.

Jean Pavlic, one of only two seniors on the team, has not been able to swim much due to mononucleosis. Yet she is frequently in the vicinity of the pool.

"Melanie needs help," Pavlic said. "It's more serious this year maybe because we have a bigger team."

Most of the girls who swam last year and this year agree that the team seemed closer and the swimming experience seemed to be more fun last season.

That stands to reason, though, when you consider that a group of eight will generally get to know each other better than a group of 21.

Then too, it takes time to get accustomed to a new coach who will probably have different philosophies and use different techniques.

"I can't exactly be pals," Saponic said. "I told them I can be their best friend or their worst enemy. We have a good friendship relationship, but I also have a certain amount of leadership I have to portray to the girls."

"What's good is the age bracket, mainly," Saponic said, adding that since she is fairly close in age to many of the swimmers, perhaps she can better relate to them.

Ocelot grappler changes uniforms

Lake Superior State College boasts a Farmington athlete on its 1980-81 wrestling team. Bill Kielt, who will compete at 167 pounds, is one of 15 new recruits to the Laker squad this season.

Kielt transferred to Lake Superior State this fall from Livonia's Schoolcraft Community College. While at SCC last season, he had medalist performances in the University of Cincinnati and Southwestern Michigan College tournaments.

He is a graduate of Farmington Harrison High School, where he posted a 36-13-1 record during his senior year.

"With a little more collegiate experience, Bill should develop into an outstanding performer for the Lakers," said Lake Superior coach Jim Fallis. "He'll definitely be one of our team leaders."

Kielt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kielt, will study sports and recreation management at Lake Superior State.

Chrenko welcomes 'exciting team'

Dan Chrenko remains the eternal optimist. The Plymouth Canton coach, beginning his eighth season, welcomes a team that is strong through the middle weight classes, but lacks bodies in the upper and lower divisions. Canton is coming off its best season ever under Chrenko. The Chiefs posted a 12-3-1 dual meet record and gained second in the Western Six League. "Personally, I feel we have the best returning talent we've ever had here," said the enthusiastic Canton coach, "but we're awful thin at the top and bottom.

Gone are five regulars from a year ago — Tom Harrel (112 pounds), Tim Racer (132), Dave Vaughan (167), Paul Mooney (185) and heavyweight Steve Basar. Chrenko, however, must find capable replacements for Vaughan and Harrel, who combined for 59 wins.

"It's going to be frustrating if we don't fill both ends," said Chrenko. "It's unfortunate we can't get the big kids out."

Chrenko has yet to line up a heavy-weight and is concerned about a low turnout in his program. Thirty-two hopefuls showed up for pre-season practice.

"We didn't have a middle school wrestling tournament last year and that hurts," he said. "That usually brings out some kids."

Despite the difficulties, Chrenko predicts area fans will get their money's worth.

"We should be an exciting team," he said. "The attitude in the wrestling room so far has been super. I think people will enjoy watching us. We have a good core of wrestling ability."

JUNIOR STEVE HAMBLIN is the team's top returnee. He won 27 matches last year and captured the league title at 145. He seems to be OK after a knee injury suffered in football, according to the Canton coach.

Other members of the 20-win club returning include Todd Bartlett and Dave Bennett.

Chrenko would like Bartlett, a sophomore, to wrestle the same weight as he did last year (98), but may be forced to perform at 105.

Sophomore Tom Frigge and junior Scott Rogers are also contesting for spots at 105.

Brett Haarala, a junior, returns at 126 after winning 17 matches. He will be backed up by seniors Mark Gladdeen and Barron Smith. Junior Mike Innis is also contesting.

At 132 pounds, one of the team's most improved performers, Jay Parks, will battle it out with veteran Kevin Santilli.

Bennett, who was runnerup at 138 in the Western Six. Juniors Kenny Penar and Dave Naples provide reserve help. Sophomore Marty Heaton will back up Hamblin at 145.

Another veteran, Bob Mullen, is back at 155. As a junior he won 18 matches. Sophomore Ken Pitts is in reserve.

The 167-pound spot is a question mark. Mike Dupuis, off the football squad, has the inside track but will be hard pressed by transfer student Joe Tworek, a senior with a lot of strength.

Don Page returns at 185 for the Chiefs after gaining valuable experience on the varsity as a freshman. Teammate Alex Young will most likely wrestle at 198.

Dan Riggs, Chrenko's long time assistant, will coach the junior varsity grapplers. Tom Garrett heads the incoming freshmen.

Canton opens its season Dec. 4 at Ann Arbor Huron.

Leveille sets up CMU spike win

By GRETCHEN FECHTER

Most athletes consider themselves fortunate to win one state championship.

But that's no big deal to Central Michigan University's Cheri Leveille.

A senior member of the Chippewa volleyball team, the Plymouth Salem graduate is on her fourth state championship team.

"Every year, it seems like it gets harder and harder to win," said Leveille. "You wonder if you can do it again. There's more talent every year, but we've been the best we've ever been in the last couple weeks."

Central downed Michigan State in four games to capture the title Nov. 14-15. The Chips performed last weekend in the AIAW Regional at Madison, Wis.

Leveille is a big part of CMU's success. As the team's co-captain and No. 1 setter, her role on the team is invaluable, according to coach Marcy Weston.

"Cheri has to set up the offense, which is very tedious and mentally fatiguing job," said Weston, "but she's accepted the challenge week after week."

"Sometimes it's kind of hard, like when you're trying to make the offense work," explained Leveille. "Sometimes it ever under Chrenko. The Chiefs posted a 12-3-1 dual meet record and gained second in the Western Six League.

"But I like it because it gives you a chance to have control of the game. A lot of times the hitters get the glory, so it's nice to call plays and have an important part of the game."

LEVEILLE PLAYED her prep volleyball under coach Brian Gilles.

She wasn't always one of Central's top players. Leveille became a starter only last year.

"When I graduated from high school I was just worried about making the team up here," she said.

During her freshman year, Leveille started on the junior varsity squad as a setter. She moved up to the varsity as a sophomore and was mainly a reserve.

"I was just glad to be on the varsity," she recalls. "I was the back-up setter to two seniors."

Shortly after a turnover in personnel due to graduation, Leveille earned a starting spot.

"Right now that starting role is important to me," she said. "After I got in and played, I didn't want to give it up. I just want to get in there and try my hardest."

Her coach is pleased with the results.

"She's constantly improving," said Weston. "When Cheri plays well, our whole team plays well."

Leveille is dedicated to the sport.

She coaches an area high school team in the winter. The 5-foot-7 standout, who captained Salem's team in 1977 and made second team All-Observer honors, has been playing for three years with another Rock grad, Clarisse Hartnett.

Although she loves coaching, Leveille plans on a career in records management upon graduation next spring.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

BERT AND JIM O'Day were over at Metro International Airport Sunday evening bidding farewell to Gabi Rode. Gabi was on her way home to Hanover, Germany after a three-month visit. She was an exchange student who lived with the O'Days during the 1972-73 school year.

She attended Plymouth Salem High School and was a member of the volleyball and track teams. She is majoring in English and physical education at a university. This was Gabi's second return visit with her American family since her exchange student year. She was back in 1977. This time she came with a friend and they traveled across country by bus, camping along the way.

JENNY TALLMADGE and her sisters, Margery Dobbs of Plymouth and June Hansor of Novi, have returned from their annual deer-hunting vacation. The ladies are not hunters; they just time their fall travels to coincide with the opening of the hunting season.

This year, Pat Buchan accompanied the sisters on a Caribbean cruise. They flew down to Miami where they boarded the Dolphin, a cruise ship in the

by ELLIE GRAHAM

Greek Paquet Line. They sailed to Nassau — a 16-hour cruise — and with the ship as their floating hotel, spent several days in and around the capital of the Bahamas.

DON'T FORGET the Old Village Christmas Walk on Sunday. The hours are noon to 5 p.m. with all the interesting shops open and decorated for the holidays.

The Christmas carolers will be from Frost Junior High School in Livonia. Lorraine and Bill Waun's daughter, Michele, is a member of the chorus.

NANCY PETRUCCELLI of the Green Thumb had her Christmas Cheer party Sunday afternoon. It was scheduled for 3-8 p.m. but everyone was having so much fun it did not break up until 11.

There was a wide assortment of homemade canapés and hors d'oeuvres — liver pate, bourbon dogs, meatballs, cheeses and so on. The garlic toast was a Florence Nelson creation. The children's fruit punch was on the lower level and the Fish House Punch was upstairs in the Christmas shop.

Cynthia Cummings, author of the poems in that delightful little book, "Christmas Ribbons," was there autographing copies.

More than 200 persons attended the party.

CHUCK AVIS and his crew at Wayside Pick O the Wick had their Christmas party last week. The event featured a preview of the Hummel figurines imported for the holidays.

The shipment did not arrive until the morning of the party. They still were unpacking crates and cartons in the afternoon — very carefully, of course. This observer wondered if they were going to make it.

When the guests arrived that evening, everything was spick and span. The host and hostesses were as relaxed as if they'd had a week of preparation. The candles glowed, the punch bowl and glasses glowed, and all the guests who owned Hummels must have been glowing over the nice increase in the their value.

A Hummel representative was there to answer questions and there was a slide presentation showing how they the figurines were made in Germany — each individually painted by hand.

The food was marvelous. Chuck's mother and father and Betty Stremich of Hillside Inn were responsible for the bountiful assortment.

DOUG MILLER and Ann Prevost were high scorers at last Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. There will be a two-week recess because of the arts and crafts show and the figure skating competitions. Games will resume at noon Thursday, Dec. 13.

MAXINE WILLOUGHBY and Gladys Deyo were in Fenton last week for a meeting of the Michigan Society Dames of the Court of Honor. Mrs. Willoughby is a member of the organization and Mrs. Deyo was her guest. The gathering was at the Tyrone Country Club.

Requirements for membership are by invitation and proven descent from an officer in one or more of the early American wars between 1607 and 1865.

Fred Hill dined in style as Henry Graper anticipated his every wish.

The surrey advanced toward the park.

Breakfast is served in bed, in style, in Kellogg Park

Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs and City Manager Hank Graper paid off an old debt Saturday morning. They had owed it for several months, ever since the high schools' WSDP radio station auction last spring.

Among the items up for bid was breakfast in bed served by the mayor and the city manager. Fred Hill's bid of $40 was high and he had been waiting for the payoff — with some anxiety.

Hill is an Ohio State University graduate who maintains his loyalty to the crimson and gray in a restrained manner until the football season. It reaches a fever pitch on the day of the Michigan-Ohio State game. Thus, Saturday, Nov. 22 was chosen as the day of the great payoff. Fred Hill would get his breakfast in bed at 10 a.m. in Kellogg Park.

As usual, when an event is planned in downtown Plymouth, everyone gets into the act.

OSCAR HERTZ of Plymouth Furniture on Main Street and his crew were in the park at 8 a.m. setting up a brass bed. The bedding had been chosen carefully. Mayor Mary found the red and white striped sheets. Joyce Foust provided a U-M blanket which was hidden under another sheet and an OSU blanket provided by Judy Lewis.

Heide's Flowers came up with two pots of chrysanthemums, one crimson and one (dyed) gray.

There were silver candelabra, maize and blue candles, a palm tree, a silver napkin ring and a red rose in a pewter vase. The Buckeye necklace was a Judy Lewis contribution. Sylvia Mullen loaned the white wicker bed tray on which breakfast would be served.

The winner was transported to the park in John Hopkin's horse-drawn surrey with a liveried driver. Hill wore a red nightshirt and tasseled cap with a long crimson and gray knitted scarf around his neck.

HE WAS GREETED by Hank Draper in a high silk hat and formal tails which his father had worn to the 1936 Roosevelt inauguration.

The mayor had put a lot of time and thought into the preparation of her French maid costume. She had rented the black net stockings, the tutu, cap and lacy apron.

Lorraine Jarvis provided the wig and carefully arranged the blond locks in a fetching style. As the mayor's husband, Eric Childs, watched the preparations, he predicted, "You're going to freeze."

Mrs. Childs had found a black V-necked blouse and with a black "baby-doll" nightie set from Kmart, her costume was complete.

Clutching his teddy bear (with its OSU button), Hill was installed in the brass bed.

Scott Lorenz wheeled his breakfast over from the Mayflower Hotel. There were eggs sunny side up, ham, crepes which Scott had made, coffee and champagne.

A "what's-going-on-here crowd" assembled to watch the proceedings. It was Dave Pugh, a city commissioner, who finally realized the scantily-clad French waitress was none other than Mayor Mary.

Hill was happy about their thoughtfulness in providing an OSU flag for a bedspread. He displayed horror and dismay when they whipped off the sheet and flag to reveal that he had actually been under a U-M blanket.

And later that evening, when the traditional meeting of the post-game U-M and OSU alumni took place near the fountain in Kellogg Park, Hill was the lone Ohio State representative. It had been a long cold day.

The city manager held the honored guest's teddy bear as he alighted from the surrey. (Photos by Rick Smith)

Collection of poems— a Christmas keepsake

By ELINOR GRAHAM

The collaborators are an unlikely team, but the result is a delightful little Christmas book. "Christmas Ribbons," with poems by Cynthia Cummings and illustrations by Lisa Peterson Rye, is a hardcover book that deserves a seasonal popularity along with the perennial old favorites — "A Christmas Carol," "The Night Before Christmas," and "A Child's Christmas in Wales."

It's the type of book can be perused slowly and quietly, or opened at any page for brief reading pleasure — the perfect coffee-table book.

The poems are the work of Cynthia Cummings, former World War II Army nurse who trained at Massachusetts General Hospital, was a member of the Sixth General Hospital Corps, and spent 31 months in North Africa and Italy. She and her husband, Richard Cummings, now live in West Bloomfield.

HER FIRST Christmas poem was written in Casablanca, North Africa in 1943. She had been overseas 22 months when her brother, Roger, was killed in action. Cynthia came home on leave then returned to Europe, this time to Rome.

Her brother's death brought a halt to her Christmas poem writing for many years. It was not until she was married and their son, Roger, was 10 years old that she started to make her own Christmas cards and compose a poem for each. The first was "God's Mail Box" which is in Christmas Ribbons along with the Casablanca poem and others written over the years.

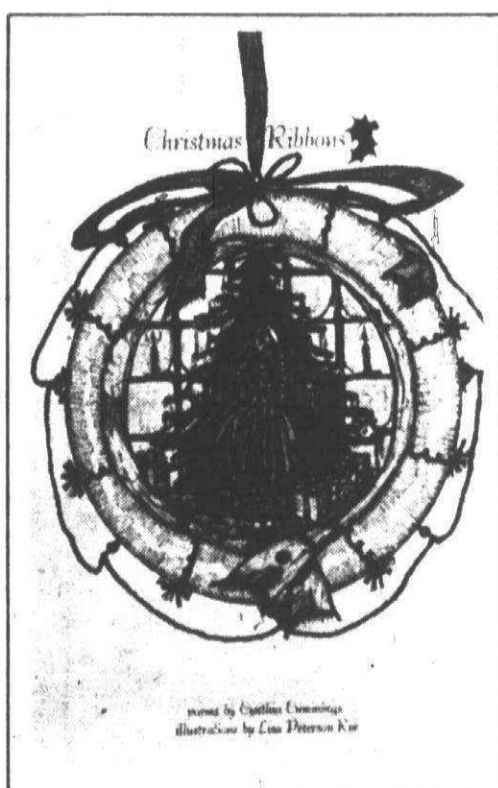

"Ballerina Snowflake," "God's Mail Box," and "I Looked Out the Window" may be familiar to some readers since they appeared in the Birmingham Eccentric.

WHEN MRS. CUMMINGS considered publishing her poems in book form, she intended just a limited edition as gifts for personal friends.

"It never would have happened if my husband hadn't backed me and persuaded me," she said.

But she needed an illustrator. The project was being discussed with old friends when they suggested, "Why not ask our daughter-in-law, Lisa?"

Lisa Peterson Rye is 23. She is a graduate of Livonia Churchill High School and received her bachelor's degree in art from the University of Michigan in 1979. She has collaborated on several children's books and is "basically interested in graphics and design."

Christmas Ribbons, a collection of poems that spans more than 35 Christmases, could become a perennial favorite.

Mrs. Cummings admits to having some doubts before she saw the artist's work.

"But her pen-and-ink drawings are perfect. They are Edwardian and the drawings, and the poetry complement each other," said the writer. "We couldn't afford color throughout the book so it is limited to the cover." The book was printed in Ann Arbor.

THE WHOLE project has ballooned.

Instead of a few copies for friends, "Christmas Ribbons" is selling like hotcakes. Winston Abbott who owns a publishing company in Windsor, Conn., was so impressed with the book that he is putting flyers about it in his publications. The Mole Holes (book stores) are handling it.

Cynthia Cummings and Lisa Peterson Rye will be at the Birmingham Mole Hole Dec. 6 autographing copies of the book. Mrs. Cummings will be at the Rochester Mile Hole Saturday, Dec. 13. She was autographing at the Green Thumb in Plymouth the Sunday before Thanksgiving.

The poet and her husband, a National Bank of Detroit vice president, have been kept busy delivering cartons of the books to keep up with the demand.

Domine-Goodrich

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Alan Domine are living in Canton Township following their Aug. 23 wedding in St. Marks Presbyterian Church, Dearborn Heights. The Rev. John Jeffrey officiated. The bride is the former Diane Mae Goodrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Goodrich of Westfield Street, Livonia. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Domine Sr. of Dearborn Heights.

The bride made her bridal gown of white Qiana with its white-lace bodice trimmed with beaded lace, and her bouquet of white-silk roses tinged with peach. She wore a wide-brimmed lacy hat. Deborah Koval, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Dawne Ingalls, Cheryl Fricker and Shawn Lewis. They wore creamy long skirts with flowered peach tops. Their bouquets were peach silk flowers with trailing fresh ivy.

Lawrence Domine Jr. was best man and groomsmen were Mark Reschke, Lee Gavin and William Crovella. Following a reception at the John Liskawa VFW Hall in Dearborn Heights, the couple honeymooned at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Livonia Franklin High School and is employed by Detroit Bank and Trust of Westland. Her husband is a graduate of Crestwood High School and is a full-time student at Wayne State University. He is employed by Montgomery Ward.

Thanksgiving and a well-kept secret

Rita McClumpha did not know about the big secret when she and Shawn Keough admired the granny square afghan before the Geer School Thanksgiving dinner. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

For 100 years, the Geer School families have gathered for a Thanksgiving dinner. They used to hitch up their horses and buggies, pack in their families and food, and head for the school on Ann Arbor Road.

The tradition continued from horses to Model T's, to the days of unleaded gas. And in time, the crowd outgrew the old school. Last week more than 200 alumni, school families, neighbors, friends and school officials enjoyed the annual feast in Pioneer Middle School.

It was a historic meal. As well as all the wonderful food, it will be remembered for two reasons: This was the year of the Geer centennial and the year of the Big Secret.

When Rita McClumpha came to teach at Geer, she also taught all the students to crochet. Boys and girls became adept with yarn and crochet hooks, making granny squares for an Afghan. One of the highlights of the after-dinner entertainment was the drawing of a name from a hat to see who won the Afghan.

This year, everyone — except Mrs. McClumpha — knew the winner. Every slip of paper in the hat would bear one name — Rita McClumpha.

THE PLAN WAS hatched last fall, when members of the PTO bought materials for the Afghan. They spent more money than usual, buying 100 percent wool yarn in three colors — rusty red, cream and colonial blue.

The students crocheted the granny squares and Betty Trowbridge, whose youngsters had graduated from Geer, sewed it all together.

Usually, the oldest Geer alumnus at the Thanksgiving party is asked to pick a name from the hat. This year, they asked Mrs. McClumpha to do the drawing.

When she selected one and began to read the name, she said, "Oh no." The words expressed the sentiments of the whole school and the parents — that the families of Geer, in appreciation of all she had done for the school, were presenting this Afghan to her. Her happy tears and the enthusiastic applause of the crowd made for some happy memories.

LOIS ANDRES chaired the dinner arrangements. The turkey and ham were provided by the PTO, and each family took along two dishes to pass. Eleanor Oliver, cafeteria manager at Pioneer, made 200 rolls for the dinner. Coffee and milk also were provided by the PTO.

Riblett-Daily

Babette Louise Daily and Craig Patrick Riblett exchanged marriage vows Saturday, Nov. 22 in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Kalamazoo. The Rev. Sears performed the mid-afternoon nuptial mass. The bride is the daughter of Genevieve Daily of Kalamazoo and the late Ralph M. Daily. The bridegroom's parents are Victor and Jane Riblett of Brentwood Street, Plymouth.

The bride's ivory knit gown had a train and high collar trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of red roses and daisies. Her sister, Marjean Taylor of South Haven, was matron of honor. Her other attendants were the bridegroom's sister, Laurie Riblett of Plymouth, and Kathleen Nutter of Benton Harbor. They wore forest green gowns and carried bouquets of carnations, daisies and roses.

Brian Riblett of Plymouth served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen were K.C. Jones of Hillsville, Va. and Chris Costantino of Plymouth.

Following the ceremony, a dinner-dance reception was in St. Joseph's Church Hall. The couple will live in Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of Kalamazoo Practical Nursing School. Before her marriage, she was employed at Borgess Medical Center. She is a member of the U.S. Army Reserve. Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth High School. He is employed by Air-Tite Insulation.

Township residents take to the airways

Nancy and Merrill Neal certainly are a welcome addition to the community. They recently moved here from Rochester and decided to open their home to new-found friends and long-time friends alike. They were celebrating a 40th birthday for Nancy, a nine-month wedding anniversary, and a new beautiful home on Spinning Wheel Drive. The most profound comment of the afternoon came from Nancy: "The year 1940 was a wonderful year for women and wine." Merrill was in the room at the time of the statement and he just gave an agreeing grin.

Marty Cohen also turned 40 last week. She lives in a neighborhood with mighty friendly people. Toni and Mike Hartke, Bob and Lynn Spielman, and Betty and Joe Hellmers hung dozens of inflated balloons all around the front of her home on the morning of her big day.

Next time you see Nancy or Marty, ask them if life really does begin at 40.

SHARON BALLIOS is certainly a lucky lady. She found a postcard on her windshield in the Kmart parking lot, and mailed it to the address shown. She won an all-expense paid trip to a Pocono mountain resort. So off she went with her husband Peter, daughter Melissa and son Peter. They had a wonderful time touring the lovely countryside in New York and Pennsylvania.

Sharon and Melissa were standing in Kellogg Park the day of the filming of the Alex Karras movie. Someone approached her and told her that they needed two extras for a scene. They gladly obliged; after all, that is what she was hoping for. While waiting for a retake of a scene, they met Karl Malden. It seems that he went to school with Sharon's mother in Gary, Ind. What a small world we live in!

SEVERAL people in Canton have taken to the sky for various reasons. Brenda Keller was born in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

She has been married to her husband Herb for 13 years and he, had never met her family.

She thought that it was about time for him to have the pleasure of meeting his in-laws. After all, the family in South Africa wanted to know who their four grandchildren really resembled.

So earlier this year Brenda, Herb and their children Florence, Jimmy, Kathy and Leticia were on their way on an exhausting 22-hour flight. It began in New York and there was only one stop, at the Island of the Sun off the coast of Africa to refuel. Planes going and coming from the Southern African coast must stop at this spot. The mountains are so high in this part of the world that the planes can carry only a limited amount of fuel due to the weight factor.

Herb was nervous almost the entire flight. He was greeted with open arms and warm kisses and hugs. They treated him like a king the entire two months that he was there. Brenda said he still hasn't gotten over the royal treatment.

While there, the family toured nature parks and coastal beaches. The skyline of this area is similar to that of Atlanta, Houston or Los Angeles. It is an extremely rich nation, with diamond mining and gold mining its major industry.

They were glad to return home because just to fill the tank of their Ford Granada was $50 there. The cities are modern and clean. The public school children wear uniforms until 12th grade.

MARY JANE and Vernon Peck decided to cure the after-summer blues by taking an exciting 15-day tour of Europe.

They began with a tour of East Berlin, and a drive through Checkpoint Charlie. Then off to West Berlin, one of the liveliest cities in all of Europe. This is the year of the world-famous Passion Play in Oberammergau. It is performed only every 10 years and the Pecks were delighted to have the opportunity to see it.

Munich was another highlight in their agenda. The Olympic Stadium and the glockenspiel at Rathausplatz are even more beautiful than portrayed by the television coverage of the Olympics. There was a visit to Lucerne on a balmy Tuesday. They missed the Oktoberfest bombing in Munich. Missing that type of adventure is no hardship.

At Ruedesheim, instead of walking up to the hotel door, they were able to take a chairlift to the mountaintop on which the hotel was built.

LINDA SEYFARTH does her take-off and landing an interesting way. She is a skydiver. Danielle Seyfarth, a student at Miller School, had the pleasure of introducing her mother to the class of Debbie Kurnick recently. The major course of study had been air and wind velocity, so Danielle thought that her mother could give an interesting viewpoint on the subject.

NOW THAT Thanksgiving is upon us and the holidays not far behind, we will be feasting on the season's goodies.

One person who won't want too much turkey is Janet Ott. She has made the long struggle of losing 50 pounds. It was the enthusiasm and encouragement of leader Geri Simmons that made the battle easier. The group called TOPS meets at 7 p.m. every Thursday in Miller School. The dues are 50 cents and the prize for weight loss is money collected from the dues.

Bazaars, crafts shows, greens marts scheduled

PLYMOUTH PARKS AND REC CHRISTMAS ARTS AND CRAFTS SHOW

Nov. 28-30 — The annual arts and crafts show will feature more than 80 craftspersons from around the state in the Plymouth Community Center, 525 Farmer Street, Plymouth. Hours are 11 a.m.-9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. For more information call 455-6620.

SALEM ELEMENTARY CHRISTMAS BAZAAR

Wednesday & Thursday, Dec. 3 & 4 — Fifth-graders and their parents are sponsoring the two-day bazaar in the school on Salem Road near Six Mile, in Salem. The bazaar includes many outside exhibitors and craftspersons. Hours will be 5-9 p.m. Wednesday and 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday. A mini-auction is planned from 7:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school library with Jerry Duncan as auctioneer.

All proceeds go to the school's outdoor education program. For information call 349-1390 or 437-1397.

PRE-CHRISTMAS ART SALE

Dec. 5-7 — The Three Cities Art Club will have its annual Christmas sale of framed paintings in the Forest Place Mall. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. All items will be original works of art by members of the club.

SWEDISH CHRISTMAS BAZAAR
Saturday, Dec. 6 — The Arpi Ladies Auxiliary, a Swedish Club associated organization, will have a bazaar in the Finnish Cultural Center, 35200 W. Eight Mile Road, Farmington Hills. When sales get underway, there will be offered homemade foods, baked goods, Swedish imports, handicrafts and attic treasures. Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and coffee will be available all day.

GREENS MARKET
Thursday, Dec. 11 — The Ann Arbor

branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will have a greens mart from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Ann Arbor Women's City Club, 1830 Washtenaw Ave., Ann Arbor. Cut greens, decorated wreaths and a do-it-yourself shop will be featured. There will be western greens such as noble fir, silver fir, false cypress and incense cedar. Handcrafted items, attic treasures and baked goods will be for sale. Luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Profits will go to scholarships and civic improvements.

TONQUICH CREEK GARDEN CLUB POINSETTIA & POTPOURRI

Friday, Dec. 12 — Tonquich Creek branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will be selling poinsettias, craft items and baked goods from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. in Westcoaster Mall, Forest Street, Plymouth. Coffee, hot cider and doughnuts can be purchased while shopping.

UM-D enrollment stable

Fall semester enrollment at the University of Michigan-Dearborn was 6,360, a slight drop from last fall.

University officials attributed the less than 1 percent student decline to a somewhat smaller graduate school enrollment, caused by the suspension of corporate-sponsored tuition reimbursement programs, and an inadequate level of funding.

Graduate school enrollment dropped by 10.3 percent, from 487 students in 1979 to 427 students this fall. Undergraduate enrollment went up. A total of 5,923 undergraduates are registered this fall, compared with 5,913 last fall.

SERRV offers help and bargains

By MAARGARET MILLER

Christmas presents that also send gifts to the Third World are the Rev. Mary Taylor's line.

The Redford resident is visiting churches all over the area with products from the Sales Exchange for Refugee Rehabilitation Vocations (SERRV). The items marketed by the agency are handcrafted in workshops throughout the world, and their sale means a step toward self-support for thousands in underdeveloped countries.

Hand embroidery from Mexico, carvings from southeast Asia, Sierra Leone and Kenya, tapestry from Ecuador and batik from Calcutta are just a few of the craft items that come out of self-help centers and then are distributed by the agency.

SERRV is administered by the World Ministries Commission of the Church of the Brethren. Its leaders work through the department of Church World Service in the National Council of Churches' Division of Overseas Ministries.

"IT IS A non-profit, ecumenical project," said Mrs. Taylor, who has been taking samples of SERRV wares to churches for the past two years.

A licensed minister in the Church of the Brethren, Mrs. Taylor is wife of the Rev. Glen Taylor of Trinity Church of the Brethren in Redford.

As volunteer marketing agent for SERRV, she has several boxes of craftwork and a slide display with cassette tape to tell the story of the project to church groups that invite her.

During a recent visit to Lola Valley United Methodist Church in Redford for a meeting of Church Women United, she filled a table with craft work from around the world.

"Fifty countries are represented in SERRV's offerings now," she told the women, and the markup on these items is extremely low.

"Thus inexpensive, quality craft work is available in this country, and its sale offers a livelihood for persons overseas who otherwise would not have sales outlets for their work."

THE SERRV program began after World War II when servicemen and mission people began bringing craft work home, Mrs. Taylor said. Slowly workshops began to be established. The aim has been to establish them in areas where the craftsmen have the possibility of becoming self-supporting.

Crafts from SERRV can be procured through a volunteer marketing agent like Mrs. Taylor, or church groups can get them on consignment from the World Ministries Commission, based in Elgin, Ill.

Some craft items still are available for shoppers this Christmas, Mrs. Taylor said. To make an appointment for a SERRV visit, call her at 937-2764.

Candles to light Hanukkah holiday

Candles will be lighted in hundreds of area Jewish homes on Tuesday, Dec. 2, the beginning of Hanukkah, the festival of lights. It will begin at sundown that night and continue eight days until sundown Wednesday, Dec. 10.

A candle is lighted on the menorah or candelabra on the first night of the holiday with additional candles lit on successive nights. On the final evening, eight candles are burning. A candle call the shamash is used to light the other candles.

During the candle lighting, blessings are chanted and songs are sung. Special prayers of praise and thanksgiving are recited during every service of the eight days.

Hanukkah is also marked by gift giving. A favorite game played during the holidays involves a four-sided top called the dreidel. The stakes for the game are usually nuts, candy and small amounts of change. Special holiday foods are latkes, potato pancakes, and cookies cut in the shape of the dreidel, star of David and the rampant lion.

Hanukkah grew out of an event that took place in Israel when Judah Maccabee and his small band of followers won a victory over the Syrians opening the road to Jerusalem.

The Maccabees gained possession of Jerusalem and began to cleanse and rededicate the temple, which had been desecrated by the Syrians. After the temple was restored, preparations began for the rededication of the house of God. However, only one container of oil could be found to burn in the eternal light which hangs over the holy ark.

This container would last only one day. Instead, it burned miraculously for eight days. Hanukkah is the Hebrew word for dedication. Since that time, Hanukkah candles have been lighted in Jewish homes in all parts of the world to commemorate the relighting of the eternal light.

Services celebrate Thanksgiving Day

Music and messages characterize the church services and other events that will take place in the area to observe Thanksgiving. Choirs and bands will perform, and pastors will speak on the meaning of this national holiday.

At the Salvation Army, 26700 W. Warren in Dearborn Heights, the 60th annual Thanksgiving program will be presented by the Dearborn Heights Citadel Band at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 26. Guest artist will be Charles Baker, principal trombonist and assistant personnel manager of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra.

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Baker is a trombone instructor at Princeton University.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under.

Dr. Bartlett Hess, pastor, will bring the message "Always Thankful" from I Corinthians to members of the congregation of Ward Presbyterian Church, Six Mile and Farmington in Livonia, at 9 and 11 a.m. services on Thanksgiving.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Dr. Jerry Smith, will present "The Heavens are Telling" from Haydn's "Creation." It will also perform "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The congregation will have the opportunity to sing traditional Thanksgiving hymns such as "We Gather Together to Ask the Lord's Blessing."

Nursery care is provided. Shuttle parking service is available in the City Hall parking lot at Five Mile and Farmington.

In its decorated sanctuary with a Thanksgiving motif, Grand River Baptist Church, 34500 Six Mile, Livonia, will hold a community Thanksgiving service for the family at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 26. The Chancel Choir will sing. The theme is "Remembering is Thanking."

Scriptures selected for the 10:30 a.m. Thanksgiving service at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Plymouth, 1100 W. Ann Arbor Trail, will point to Christ's example of gratitude as something deeply felt and lived day by day in healing, regeneration and brotherhood. First reader C. Robert Shaw will read passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. Included will be the statement: "Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

Helen Hopkins, second reader, will present a passage from Psalms.

Gene Sorensen, minister of Unity of Livonia, 28660 Five Mile, will preach to his congregation at 7:30 p.m. Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 26.

Thanksgiving service at Newburg United Methodist Church, Ann Arbor Trail east of Newburgh, Livonia, will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 26.

church bulletin

PLYMOUTH CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE, 41550 E. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, will have a speaker at 11 a.m. Sunday the Rev. Earl Morgan, a missionary to the Holy Land. He will be accompanied by his wife, who is also a missionary.

Before going to the Holy Land in 1971, Morgan served in Italy and Lebanon. His wife served in India for five years before being assigned to the Holy Land. She is a registered nurse.

Rev. Morgan is mission director in that area. The Morgans work with children, extension Bible school classes in Bethlehem and to develop Sunday schools in Taybe, Ramallah, Bir Zeit and Bethlehem.

WARD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Farmington and Six Mile, Livonia, will present a concert of the Wheaton College (Ill.) Symphony Orchestra at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 29. The 65-member orchestra, under the direction of Howard Whitaker, consists of students majoring in music and other fields.

ST. PRISCILLA CHURCH OF LIVONIA, 19120 Purlingbrook, will offer the final homily on Sunday of Agnes Bongero, associate professor and acting director of the medical technology program at Mercy College. The subject of the homilies at the church have been the implications of science on the human condition.

Her talk will discuss where life begins and ends. Mrs. Bongero is an extraordinary minister of the eucharist and a member of St. Priscilla's Christian Service Commission. She serves the parish council as vice-chairwoman.

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 701 W. Church, Plymouth, will celebrate its annual St. Andrew's Day observance during 9:30 and 11 a.m. services on Sunday. A bagpiper will participate. Kiltie dancers will perform at coffee hour between services. Worshipers are encouraged to wear tartans and plaids. Communion will be observed according to the ritual of the Church of Scotland. The Rev. Thomas H. Cook will preach.

MERRIMAN ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH, 2055 Merriman, Garden City, will have prayer times for world missions during the coming week. The church will join with other churches to raise $45 million for world missions. At 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 1, Melanie Smith will talk on "My World." The subject of a talk by the Rev. Ray Babb, pastor, will be "My Life" at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3. Women of the church will meet at 9:30 a.m. the following day to discuss "My Witness."

Church members are signing up to pray around the clock on Friday, Dec. 5.

What Confucius say makes sense today

Is there anyone alive today who has not heard a dozen or more "Confucius say" jokes?

But do you know who Confucius was or what he really said?

This celebrated Chinese philosopher lived in the fifth century before Christ. He traveled extensively, and wrote many books and maxims.

His is the most revered name in Chinese history. He and his followers traveled far and wide, trying to persuade the feudal lords to carry out social reforms.

His ethical teaching spread their influence over Japan and Korea, as well as China.

His teachings and philosophies are best summarized in his own words. Here are some of the things Confucius really did say:

"The rule of life is to be found within yourself. Ask yourself constantly, 'What is the right thing to do?' Beware of doing that for which you are likely, sooner or later, to repent having done."

"It is better to believe in your neighbors than to mistrust them."

"The superior man does not wrangle. He is firm but not quarrelsome. He is sociable but not clannish. He sets a good example for his fellow beings. He is considerate of their feelings and their property."

"Consideration for others is the basis for a good life and a good society."

"Feel kindly toward everyone. Be friendly and pleasant. Be generous, be honest, and be fair."

"Sincerity and truth are the basis for every virtue."

These words are as fresh and meaningful today as they were when Confucius spoke them more than 2,000 years ago.

National indicator measures pollutants

When the TV weatherman says that air pollution is light, what does he mean?

Carol S., W. Bloomfield

An area's air quality is determined by the type and concentration of pollutants in the air as well as by weather conditions. Today we send tons of pollutants into the air from industrial and automotive sources, severely damaging our health and environment.

Of these, seven have been designated by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) as ambient air "criteria" pollutants.

They are sulfur oxides, particulate, nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, ozone (created by the chemical reaction of automobile exhaust in the presence of sunlight) and

A national uniform indicator, the Pollution Standard Index (PSI) has been developed to measure the amounts of these contaminants.

This is what the weatherman uses to report air pollution and to inform you whether the air is "good" or "unhealthy."

They all talk about their diets

Wherever I go, I hear people talk about dieting. It's fun to collect bits of conversation and trivia on this matter of interest to everyone. Here are some of last week's gleanings:

• "Have you heard of or tried acupressure for diet?"

Press your index finger midway between your lip and nose. Then place your thumb in the same area inside your mouth. Now stroke the area inside your mouth for about 30 seconds several times a day. It should curb your appetite, but will take about 10 days before you begin to notice the effects."

• (Husband): "What do you think of Weight Watchers? Personally, I love tuna, so it's great for me."
(Wife): "He's your typical yo-yo dieter. As for me, I get tired of tunafish."

• "Have you heard about the new liquid diet — this one is a protein diet using egg white. One person I know lost 71 pounds under medical supervision, but a lot of his hair came out, too." (If anyone has tried this diet, I'd like to hear about it.)

• "I have gained 10 pounds since I saw you last. I quit working and I'm sitting around too much."
• "I don't know what to get her for Christmas. She's always dieting."

• "The holidays always wreck my diet."

• I'll probably gain 10 pounds from Thanksgiving dinner — well, maybe not quite that much."

• Spotted in a meat market in the Eastern Market area: a small, marble figurine of a more-than-ample pig lying on a marble slab, with rolls of fat hanging over the sides of the slab. A sign was spiked into the pig which said, "Fat is Beautiful."

• When my husband checked into the San Francisco Hilton last week, a pleasant surprise was waiting. On the table was an orange on a plate with a knife and a napkin. Next to it was a welcome note from the hotel manager. It's nice to hear someone will think of fruit instead of a box of chocolates.

A Thanksgiving to remeber

Every time another Thanksgiving rolls around, my thoughts go back to 1943 and the holiday I'll never forget.

I was a brand new bride, living in a little town called, Rolla, Mo., which was nestled in the purple Ozark Mountains off Route 66.

There was no inter-urban transportation. You either walked or took a cab anywhere within its limits for a quarter.

Other than farming, its only industry was a shoe factory which enabled me to barely survive on my weekly $125 wages.

Two movie theaters and a USO Club comprised its total recreational facilities, and a dance hall saloon outside the highway was always jam-packed on Saturday nights.

My husband was stationed at nearby Fort Leonard Wood, which was a bumpy, 90-minute bus ride away. The bus was an ancient battered vehicle which even contained its own wood stove to keep its riders warm in the frigid Missouri winters.

Since I learned to live on a shoe-string and couldn't afford to eat too well, I welcomed the Thanksgiving dinner invitation at the Fort for soldiers and families and anticipated it hungrily.

THE FIRST THING that went wrong that memorable holiday was that I overslept and missed the bus that would get me to camp on time for dinner.

The next bus I caught might have deposited me in time for dessert, but it broke down in Waynesville (a little moonshine spot that reminded me of the Snuffy Smith cartoons). Eventually, we all found rides with good samaritans, but mine took a wrong turn, which delayed us another half hour, entering the huge fort at the opposite end of where my long-suffering spouse awaited me.

I was cold, tired, hungry, disgusted — and lost. It took me an entire hour of searching, begging, crying and threatening to faint before my long-lost G.I. was found and I was rescued.

Needless to say, he was not in the best of moods, since I was four hours late, and we had both missed out on the dinner.

And to add fuel to the fire, he had to report for unexpected duty within the hour.

There were no extra rooms at the Guest House where I could stay overnight, and we only had enough money for my bus fare back to Rolla.

So, we threw ourselves at the cook's mercy, beseeching leftovers from the dinner in the mess hall, reciting our sad tale of woe.

DEAR OLD COOK mustered up whatever he could find and fortified us with all we could eat. There was warm fruit cocktail, stale bread and poisonous coffee. Horrible tasting — but manna from heaven — and we ate like condemned prisoners, cherishing each minute we had left together.

Since that time, each Thanksgiving dinner has been increasingly more sumptuous, with turkey and all the trimmings; but none has ever been more appreciated that that mushy canned fruit cocktail, the hard tasteless bread and the iodine-ish coffee when I learned the true meaning of Thanksgiving.

I guess that's why I'm such a stickler today for freshly-brewed coffee, home-baked bread straight from the oven and no fruits out of a can.

Deaf education to be explored

Dennis Cokely, author and research linguist at Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., will be the main speaker at a conference to be held Dec. 5 and 6 at Madonna College.

The conference topic is "Bilingual and Bicultural Education: Implications in Deaf Education." Hours are from 7-9 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Open to the public, the conference will examine the history, terminology and implications of the multi-cultural movement on education for the hearing-impaired.

Participants may register in the science lecture hall on campus an hour before the session they plan to attend. The fee for the event is $5, or $50 if college credit is desired.

Madonna offers direct educational support services in the form of interpreters and notetakers to the hearing impaired as they study for associate or bachelor degrees.

For more information contact the department of sign language studies at 591-5128. The TTY telephone number is 591-1203.

Sandwich crowd gets sticky problem

By SHERRY KAHAN

"Due to market conditions please take only one jar of your favorite peanut butter."

Does this warning sign in an area Farmer Jack store mean the beginning of a peanut butter shortage? Will customers soon be shoving aside their neighbors to get in front of the peanut butter line? Will there be talks of a boycott to bring down the price?

Will we soon be funding a project to make a synthetic product that sticks to the roof of the mouth?

Knowing a crucial issue when we see it, this newspaper made a swift sweep through Farmer Jack, Kroger, Chatham, Agemy and Sons and Great Scott. It seemed clear that at the moment the area is not in the grip of a shortage. On most shelves there was the customary abundance of both peanut butter and peanuts.

The supplies behind the sign in one Farmer Jack were a bit skimpy. It was as though its customers, upon reading the warning found they couldn't pass up the generous one-jar offer.

There has been talk of shortage of peanuts due to a crop failure. After one TV report, Kroger briefly that panicked customers bought briefly by the case, but store manager Mike Jackson said the price had not risen in the past two weeks. Prices for 18 ounces of creamy peanut butter ranged from $1.38 for the Kroger brand to $1.68 for Jiff.

He anticipated no immediate problem because of the backlog of supplies maintained by chain stores.

BUT WHILE the brown stuff appeared plentiful, there are hints that not as many peanuts as usual may be coming out of their shells this year. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported that the peanut yield this year is 37 percent less than last year.

The states that produce the most of the first family's favorite food are Texas, Virginia and North Carolina, in that order, according to the department. Texas peanuts may have been snuffed out by the heat and drought there last summer.

The People's Warehouse in Ann Arbor, which is wholesaler for the many food cooperatives in the area, recently issued a warning to its customers.

"Because of a disastrous domestic peanut crop this year, peanut butter is going to be higher in price. Right now prices have gone up 12 1/2 cents per pound for us."

It also mentioned an expected shortage in raw Spanish peanuts.

Florence Myers, a Livonian shopping at Kroger, is already upset by the Spanish peanuts situation. What burned her up was that their cost rose from $1.44 in the last week to $2.01.

"I want to know what in the world is going on," she said. "How can people afford groceries anymore? It's terrible. You feel helpless."

But at a Chatham store two fireman who were shopping for the firehouse gang, seemed unconcerned about the peanut situation. They pointed out they had never seen a time when the store ran out of peanut butter. It was clear that they never expect to see this change.

SHOPPING AT Agemy and Sons was Jean Shazer who was the only person interviewed who was seriously bothered by the peanut situation.

"I've been having trouble finding peanuts to use in peanut brittle," she complained.

In the store both peanuts and peanut butter seemed in good supply. Some price tags had more recent tags pasted on top. At this store 18 ounces of Peter Pan Creamy was $1.45, Velvet, $1.39 and Skippy $1.43.

"We haven't seen much of a price change in peanut butter," remarked manager Ted Gruits. "That is not to say there won't be. Fresh peanuts have gone up 50 cents a pound."

Edison Institute appoints new head

Dr. Harold K. Skramstad Jr. is the new president of the Edison Institute administering Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum.

Chairman of the Board William Clay Ford said the appointment follows a six-month search to replace Frank Caddy who retires at the end of 1980.

Director of the Chicago Historical Society since 1974, Skramstad has held several management positions at the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology. He was also a Peace Corps Project director and an instructor in American Literature and Civilization at George Washington University where he earned his doctorate in history.

"He personifies the modern museum executive, well versed in both curatorial and administrative aspects of his profession and cognizant of the need for broad public and private support of an institution such as ours," said Ford. Skramstad, cited the need "to develop a strong national base for financial and attendance support" as a first priority.

Founded by Henry Ford in 1929, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village are the largest indoor-outdoor museums of Americana in the world and are the most popular private historical museums in America attracting more than 1.5 million visitors annually.

Schoolcraft plans re-entry session

Returning to school or changing careers? Possibly you're going back to work?

Shape of the world? There's lots of talent

By DAN GREENBERG
Special Writer

The Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford (TGLR) is one of the many things for which we should be grateful this Thanksgiving week. The Guild definitely is one of this area's assets.

Its current offering, a musical revue, "The Shape of the World (Round on Weekdays, Square on Sunday)" will attract the community with its enthusiastic and talented performers. The performers' energy and good grace overcome a book which obviously took its cue from the title's length and runs too long.

But in a relatively small building on Beech Daly south of Five Mile Road, the Guild has packed a very professional operation, complete with well-run audio and lighting systems. The attractive house has a relatively large stage and an orchestra "pit."

TGLR has filled the pit with accomplished musicians headed by Jack Pierson on the piano. Diana Cru, Phil Boshers, Glenn Butler and Simon Horrocks in producing a neat sound that provides strength and continuity for this production.

However, the book detracts from an otherwise pleasant evening. Who put the book together for this musical revue?

The playbill doesn't tell; but the writer overdid it and produced material uneven in style and theme. It is quite easy to be led astray by the richness of the American Musical Theater's heritage, but one needs to know the audience limits as well as those of the performers.

The show lacks coherence, that is, there is no central point or consistent theme of manageable proportions around which the show can revolve. Not only is the title too long, its concept is too broad. Some days the shape of the world is neither round nor square. Would you believe octagonal?

The evening opens with an excerpt from "Stan Freeberg Presents the U.S.A.," a satire that was outrageously funny 20 years ago — and is just clever these days. As we all settled into that frame of reference, and it was fun, the show shifts to the "Hardboiled-Broadway-Show-Biz's-Tough-Kid" routine. Being rather accommodating, we all accepted that pleasurable cliché when musical numbers about L.A., San Diego, Hollywood and Texas set the stage for an All-American Musical Revue. That's OK too, but the lengthy excerpts from "Evita" intermingled with songs of European settings further dispelled any sense of unity.

The lack of unified theme in the book is further compounded by an unevenness in the style and quality of the selections which run us up and down the emotional scale shifting from tender ballads to clever and pointed satire.

But the show is saved by eight excellent performers working well with each other and with the "orchestra" to present a pleasant series of musical numbers delivered with style and energy and well-choreographed by Jim Posante.

When the show struck to light satire it was a delight. Kay Grismer and Doug Kerr's presentation of "On the Street Where You Live" is an excellent example as was Dave Tucker's "A Muggin' Work is Never Done."

Sandi Martin's pert and pleasantly suggestive "I Never Do Anything Twice" and her humorously heavy-handed "Typische Deutsche" were great fun. The latter provided a pleasant bracket for a number of "Europea" songs that opened the second act and included Rosemarie Patanis' superb rendition of "Typically English."

Her voice, along with Ms. Grismer's and Dave Tucker's style, vaguely reminiscent of Paul Lynde, highlighted a talented, enthusiastic and energetic cast who provide a pleasant evening reviving the American Musical Theater. You will enjoy it.

"The Shape of the World (Round on Weekdays, Square on Sunday)" continues through Dec. 6 in the Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford, 15138 Beech Daly in Livonia.

Dan Greenberg is a professor of communications at Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge Campus where he teaches film history and appreciation and cinematography. Greenberg holds a Ph.D. in mass communication from Wayne State University, a master's degree in theater from WSU and a bachelor's in English from the University of Michigan. He lives in Farmington Hills. He has been at OCC since 1965. Before that he worked for Channel 56.

'Rocky Horror Show' playing in area

After a seven-year run on London's West End, "The Rocky Horror Show" has set its Michigan engagement for Dec. 4-5 at the Royal Oak Music Theatre.

The live stage production is on a tour of North America.

"The Rocky Horror Show" is presented by Michael White, who launched the original London stage show, and by Lou Adler, who with White co-produced the show's feature film version.

This production marks "The Rocky Horror Show's" first authorized tour presentation in the United States and Canada and is mounted by its original creators.

Written by Richard O'Brien, who also wrote the show's music and lyrics, the production is designed by Brian Thomson with costumes by Sue Blane, both repeating their original London stage and film assignments. Julian Hope is directing the show for its North American tour.

A SCIENCE fiction parody and romantic satire, "The Rocky Horror Show" combines original rock and roll music with spoofs of American apple innocence and an outrageous cast of stereotypical characters from Hollywood films of the 1950s. "Rocky" became an unprecedented smash when it opened in London and was heralded as "Best Musical of the Year," continuing its run for seven consecutive years.

Its film version, "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," was released in 1975 and currently continues its late-night stint in more than 200 cinemas around the U.S. alone.

Set in the heart of Middle America, the tale of Rocky's creation by his seductive decadent mentor, Dr. Frank N. Furter, has bred a fiercely loyal following throughout the world.

The "Rocky Horror" phenomenon is well known for its audiences and their offstage garb and participatory antics, as well as monthly fan club publications circulated internationally and several soundtrack albums from the film and from stage presentations around the world.

Lewis Carroll's fantasy proves difficult to stage

By SHROYER KEARNS

These pious people claim they are only thinking of Don Quixote while, in fact, their own needs dominate their actions in "Man of La Mancha," current production at Will-O-Way Repertory Theatre, 775 W.

Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Township. Sabine Ragan of Troy (left) is Quixote's niece; Birmingham resident Duncan Hursley is the padre, and Elaine Keinert of Waterford is Quixote's housekeeper.

Southfield Repertory Theatre (SRT) opened its 1980-81 season last weekend at the Southfield Civic Center Parks and Recreation auditorium. That's the good news.

An enthusiastic and energetic group of young professionals presenting children's theater in our midst is a blessing not to be taken lightly.

"Alice in Wonderland" as opener for SRT's seventh season was not a fortunate choice, however. Lewis Carroll's fantasy is simply too insubstantial to hold up well to literal interpretation.

It was a memorable film with Gary Cooper and W.C. Fields back in the days when films themselves were almost a fantasy and even the great Disney only created an also-ran with his version in 1951.

WHAT SRT invariably does well is capture the imaginations of the youngsters in the audience. Children are invited to — and usually do — sit on the carpeted area before the stage.

The action of "Alice" began with the players entering from the rear of the auditorium in search of Alice, asking individual children "Where is Alice?" "Have you seen Alice?" Having secured the attention of even the most restless, the action moved on to the stage where Alice herself was discovered behind the curtain.

It was to be a game where Alice's "wonderings" would lead the players and the audience to Wonderland.

Deborah DeCeco Sekarak was Alice to a T — her long blonde hair, blue dress and pinafore, her willowy figure and saucer eyes when attending the tea parties of Wonderland — exactly as John Tenniel, illustrator of the original editions, depicted them.

White Rabbit Michael Rose was there to demand his gloves and fan at suitable intervals, but Alice's struggles to gain them from his house were not part of the story. Even after they were supplied by magical Wonderland forces, Rabbit did not cease his dithering.

ALL THE REMAINING players assumed a variety of roles. In addition to being children at play and creatures from Wonderland, they were also stagehands and some of the scenery.

Helene E. Rahaley's Duchess was loud and obnoxious, as she ought to be, and Rahaley also proved her versatility in the smaller roles she was called upon to portray.

Kelley Crowley showed himself an experienced audience grabber. As putative leader of the children, he frolicked around the stage, mugging shamelessly and succeeded in holding the production together.

The Cheshire Cat sat high in his ladder-tree, appearing and disappearing by means of a curtain. This was Robert Cooper, but he was more imposing in the second act tea party where he was the King of Hearts. His Cheshire Cat grin tended to disappear behind the mask he wore.

His Queen of Hearts, played by Dorothy Sheldon, was appropriately shrill and impatient, ordering, "Off with their heads!" at the least provocation. No wonder the White Rabbit was nervous!

ROBERTA ANN DORN was the Duchess' cook with clanging pots, the slumbering dormouse with its head in a teacup at the Mad Hatter's tea party and a gardener for the Red Queen. She was charmingly adaptable in each of the roles.

Mad Hatter Michael D. Harris created an impressive figure in his top hat with price tag still in the band, but he conducted his party in a rather sensible fashion. The details of its madness were overwhelmed.

Several scenes were treated with especial imagination and humor. In one of these, Alice is falling down the rabbit hole. The troupe formed a circle around Sekarak and, through a series of vigorous caesthenics, created the illusion of a long and dizzying fall.

Another memorable scene was when Alice discovers that she has fallen into a pool of tears which she had wept when she was nine feet high. Her meeting with Kelley Crowley's Mouse, as they tried the back stroke and crawl while carrying on civilized conversation, was a model of invention.

Guiding genius of SRT is Ralph Valatka. Barbara Bean, who is artistic director, also handled costumes for "Alice in Wonderland."

Fleming and Associates presents the University of Michigan Marching Band in concert 2 p.m. Dec. 6 at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor.

Reserved seats are $5 each and are available in advance at Hudsons in Briarwood Mall and the Michigan Theatre Box Office (hours 2-6 p.m. Monday - Saturday).

Life-size puppets fill Music Hall's stage

By MARY DOERR
Israel's Puppet Theatre production of "The Wizard of Oz" is a show filled with many surprises.

The new production of the American classic is being presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday; noon Thursday for parade-goers; at 11 a.m., 2 and 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday; and 2, 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Music Hall Center in Detroit.

One surprise about this Israeli version of the Muppets, known as Eric's Puppet Company, is the size of the production. It requires the entire Music Hall stage. That is because the puppets are life size.

Designed by artistic director and founder of the company Eric Smith, the puppets were made and carved out of wood by the company puppeteers themselves.

SMITH HAS combined the use of string, rod and Japanese-style puppets in this production, a style rarely seen in Western puppet companies. Puppeteers who work behind the puppets are dressed in black, a type of performing known as "black theater."

From his castle-like workshop in "Little Old Tel-Aviv," where Smith does his creating, Erick's Puppet Company has toured Europe, appearing in festivals and on television.

Presently touring the United States for the first time, the company has appeared in 35 cities since coming to the North American continent Oct. 4.

"We feel right at home, here in the United States," said Smith of the reception his company has received. "The Americans are like the Israelis — enthusiastic and warm."

The company of 10 professionals is described by Smith as a "melting pot" of people from all over the world.

"ISRAEL IS just like the United States," joked Smith, who himself is a South African immigrant to Israel, where he is known as the "Prince" from South Africa.

One of the few national puppet companies in the world, Smith's company is subsidized by the Israel Arts Council. The company spends three months each year performing in Israel and doing its Jerusalem-based TV show, "Tamari's Hut." Six months the company travels. In Germany the company appeared on Bavarian TV, where Smith's idea of using live actors with puppets together on stage was employed.

"This creates an enormous technical problem," Smith said. The lighting has to be absolutely precise so the actors and the puppets are seen but not the puppeteers.

The technical tricks and the difficult staging of puppet theater is what attracts the versatile Smith, who has designed set and costumes for ballets, musicals, operas and theater productions.

"This is the hardest profession of them all because of the technical and artistic aspects of the staging," Smith continued.

ANOTHER DIFFICULT aspect of the puppet theater is the team work required of the puppeteers. It sometimes takes three puppeteers to operate one puppet.

"The company becomes a family," Smith said, about the close relationship among members of the company. "One has to be a psychiatrist to keep everyone happy."

Smith was born in Pretoria, South Africa, where he first became interested in puppets at the age of 5 while he attended an art center.

In 1963 he immigrated to Israel where he had many friends in the theater world. His many artistic creations for stage plays such as "Peter Pan" got enormous attention. Finally in 1972, Smith formed his own company doing what he likes best — making puppets.

Since then he has received much recognition for his distinctive productions. In 1979, the Israeli Council for Culture and Art selected the company as the Israeli representative to the 50th Anniversary Convention of UNIMA in London. There it gained praise from the British press.

THE COMPANY is often compared to the Muppets. Unlike the Muppets, Eric's Puppet Company does complete performances of stories, operas and fairy tales. However, like the Muppets, the company is attracting large numbers of adults in its audiences.

Of three productions being presented in the United States, its production of Rossini's "The Italian Girl in Algiers" is more for adults.

"Back to Bataan" (1945), 1 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Originally 95 minutes.

John Wayne fought the good fight of the "Flying Tigers" and "Fighting Seabees" throughout WW II, then he reclaimed the Philippines and won the war almost single-handedly in "Back to Bataan." Not surprisingly, the Duke's best World War II film, "The Sands of Iwo Jima," was made in 1949 when war hysteria and the tide of frenzied propaganda had ebbed. Rating: $2.50.

"Call Me Bwana" (1963), 4 p.m. Friday on Ch. 7. Originally 103 minutes.

Think of Bob Hope's film career and you think of the "Road" pictures. But ol' ski nose also made some pretty entertaining films without his longtime partner, Bing Crosby. "My Favorite Blonde," "My Favorite Brunette," "They Got Me Covered" were all made in the '40s, when Hope was in his prime. Those pictures usually involved spies or private eyes and Hope, who had a marvelous on-camera charisma, played the perfect foil. By the 1960s his character had become tarnished, unable to adapt to a new cinema that featured performers like Peter Sellers and Mel Brooks. "Bwana" is the last Bob Hope film of any merit. Rating: $2.60.

"David Copperfield" (1935), in two parts at 4 p.m. Monday and Tuesday on Ch. 7. Originally 133 minutes.

Director George Cukor brought to the screen most of the plot but little of the sentiment of Dickens' classic novel. Freddie Bartholomew doesn't cut the mustard as young David and W.C. Fields is dreadfully miscast as Micawber. Basil Rathbone makes for the quintessential Mr. Murdstone, but that's about all this "Copperfield" has going for it. Lionel Barrymore and Roland Young also star. Rating: $2.35.

"Brother Rat" (1938), 12:30 Tuesday night on Ch. 50. Originally 90 minutes.

No kidding, this farcical account of life at a military academy is one of our President-elect's better films (which isn't saying too much). Ronnie plays a light-headed cadet who manages to win friends and influence people, including one Jane Wyman, whom he later married. What Jane saw in the guy, we'll never know — unless the Russians kid-second runs

nap and brainwash her, then blackmail our fearless leader. But that's another story. Rating: $2.25.

"Dragnet" (1969), 3 p.m. Wednesday on Ch. 9. Originally 97 minutes. Jack Webb has been playing Sgt. Joe Friday off and on for about 30 years, so it's easy to forget that he's ever done anything else. Not that Webb is what you'd call a versatile performer, but he has taken stabs at comedy ("I Remember Archie") and pathos ("Pete Kelly's Blues"). The "Dragnet" movie and TV series of the '60s, of course, are rooted in the American conservative concept of law and order: If you're innocent, you've nothing to fear from the police. Unfortunately, history has disproved that adage. Rating: $1.05.

"Bye Bye, Birdie" (1962), 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Hollywood Bar, 6221 Lincoln in Detroit, phone 875-

Elvis was drafted and "Birdie" — a musical about a rock idol entering the service — was born on Broadway. The film came next, with newcomers Ann-Margret, Paul Lynde and Dick Van Dyke starring along with Janet Leigh and Ed Sullivan. "Birdie" was to rock 'n' roll what "Dragnet" is to law enforcement. Still it's a bouncy, enjoyable film, thanks largely to standout performances from Lynde and Ann-Margret. Rating: $2.55.

Northland Inn offers buffet

A Thanksgiving Day Dinner Buffet will be held at Stouffer's Northland Inn, 21000 Northwestern, Southfield.

The buffet will be open from 1-8 p.m. in the Southfield Ballroom. Featured items are homemade soup, yams and apples, ham, fish, mashed potatoes, assorted relish and salad bar, turkey with dressing and assorted holiday desserts.

Theater does 'The Agent'

Image 2 Theatre will present a workshop production of Margaret V. Patton's "The Agent" at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 5-6, 12-13 in the lower level of the Barn Theatre on the Oakland University campus near Rochester.

For information and ticket reservations phone 377-2245.

The production is a mixture of fantasy and reality, mystery and drama, as it unfolds the dreams of a small-time jazz pianist in a neighborhood dive. His agent promises him the big time, but reality dissolves into liquor and climaxes into violence and death.

Marching band gives concert

Fleming and Associates presents the University of Michigan Marching Band in concert 2 p.m. Dec. 6 at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor.

Reserved seats are $5 each and are available in advance at Hudsons in Briarwood Mall and the Michigan Theatre Box Office (hours 2-6 p.m. Monday - Saturday).

For further information call 995-9066.

The sum of $1 from each ticket sold will be donated to the University of Michigan Band Fund.

Restaurants open for holiday

Wickerworks at the Northfield Hilton in Troy is adjusting its Thanksgiving Day hours and menus to accommodate football fans who are going to the Detroit Lions game at the Silverdome.

The restaurant will be open for its standard breakfast menu from 7-9 a.m. From 9 a.m. to noon a brunch will feature baked ham, fried chicken, pancakes, eggs benedict, bacon, sausage, hash brown potatoes, salads and beverages, priced for adults and for children under 12.

Starting at 1 p.m. Wickerworks will offer its traditional sit-down Thanksgiving Dinner. Roast turkey and baked ham are the entrees, which are garnished with fixin's and the Wickerworks salad bar.

Fixin's include apple and cranberry juices, potatoes, candied yams, dressing, cranberry sauce and choice of apple, mincemeat or pumpkin pie for dessert.

The special dinner is priced for adults and for children. Patrons have the option of ordering from the regular dinner menu.

Feast feeds family group

The Summit Restaurant on the 71st floor in the Detroit Plaza Hotel at Renaissance Center will offer its Thanksgiving with Family and Friends package, for parties of seven or more.

A whole turkey will be carved at the table and served with traditional trimmings. Left-overs will be packaged to take home.

The dinner will be served from 1-9 p.m.; for reservations call 568-8653.

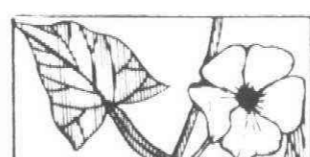

Cafe Renaissance, the Plaza's side-walk cafe, is offering a "Festive Harvest Table," with harpsichord music. Ham, roast beef, seafood, turkey, dressing, gravy, cranberry sauce, fruit, breads and fresh-baked pies will be served under the yellow umbrellas by the lake.

The all-you-can-eat buffet is priced for adults and for children and will be available from noon to 9 p.m. For reservations call 568-8600.

Michael Klolan
of the American Backgammon Club

This example was sent in by Ronald L. of Canton. In this position, White rolls double 2s. His question is: Should White move up to the 3 point with two 2s for a sure escape and move a checker from the 8 point to the 5 point and slot/hit on the 4 point or should White hit both Black checkers from the 6 point with the other two 2s (tempo play?)

ANSWER: No. Moving up to the 3 point is not a bad play. Hitting both Black checkers and leaving a shot is.

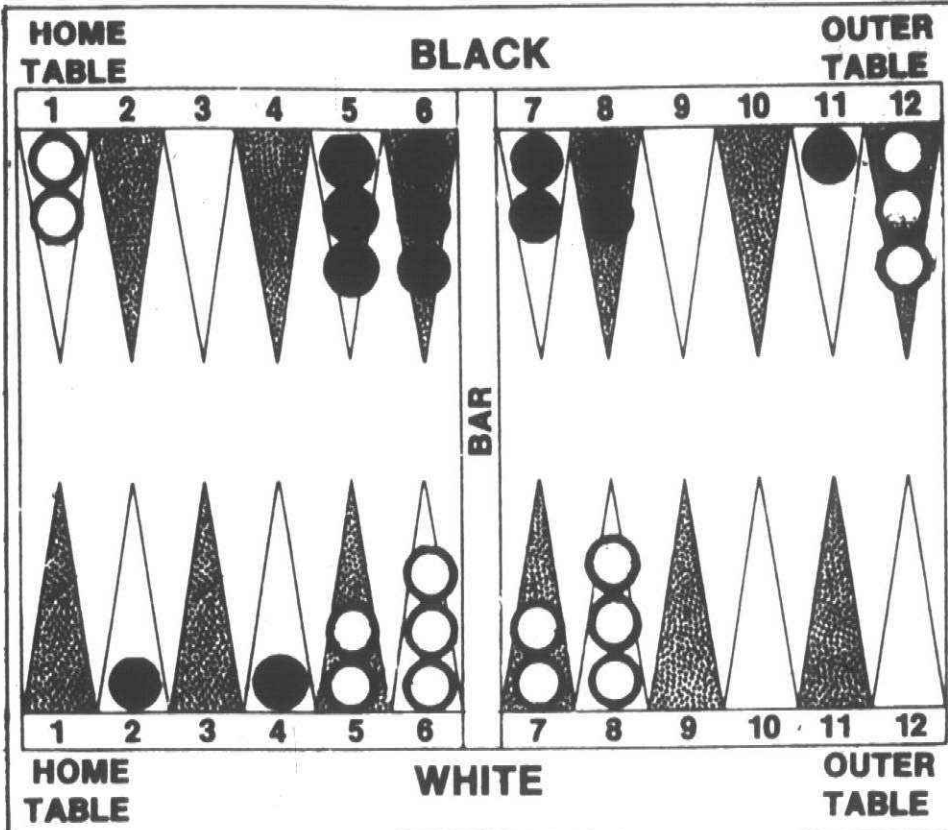

The purpose of a tempo play (tempo in backgammon refers to borrowing a unit of time — forcing your opponent to waste his next roll) is to stop your opponent from doing something drastic to you on his next roll (like hitting and covering a home-board point).

In this position White wants to accomplish two goals: 1) Move up to the front of Black's prime for a sure escape and 2) hit Black and close more home-board points.

To execute this objective, the most effective play would be to move a checker from the 8 and 6 points — hit Black and cover the 4 point. By moving a checker from the 1 point to the 3 point, White may either escape with this checker on his next roll or cover it.

Although with this play White will be using his last two spare builders on the 6 and 8 points, he will prohibit Black from running out. Also whether or not Black stays on the bar White will be in excellent shape to offer the doubling cube his next turn.

Playhouse opening drama 'Red Ryder'

William Shanks (left) of Detroit and Darrell Zink of Rochester appear in the Fourth Street Playhouse production of "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?"

"When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" by award-winning playwright Mark Medoff, opens Friday at the Fourth Street Playhouse in Royal Oak.

Performance times are at 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays through Dec. 20. For tickets and information contact the playhouse at 301 Fourth, or call 543-3666.

The cast includes William Shanks of Detroit, Jane Schultze of Holly, Bill Doehring of Rochester, George Hotz of Troy, Rosaria Cardella of Rochester, Paul Vigeant of Royal Oak, Carol Green of Farmington Hills and Darrell Zink of Rochester.

The production is directed by Vic Zink of Avon Township, with scenic design by Jim Zink and costumes by Mary Job and lighting by Darrell Zink.

"When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" takes place in an all-night diner in a small southwestern town, early on a Sunday morning just as the night attendant, Stephen (Red) Ryder turns his duties over to his daytime counterpart, Angel.

Lyle, who runs the motel and filling station across the road, and a young couple stop for breakfast. With the entrance of another couple, Teddy and Cheryl, the existing calm of the diner quickly vanishes.

Ayckbourn comedy presented at Studio

"Absent Friends," a satiric comedy of British suburban life by Alan Ayckbourn, author of "Absurd Person Singular," opens at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 10 at the Wayne State University studio in Detroit Theatre.

"Absent Friends" continues at the Studio for two weeks, Wednesday-Saturday, through Dec. 20, with a 4:30 p.m. matinee Dec. 18.

In "Absent Friends," a group of middle-class couples are gathered for a typically British tea party. This tea party is a special one, held to cheer up Colin, an old friend whose fiancée has drowned.

But Colin is a human cork. Far from being down, he is cheerful about the about the whole situation. His happy chattering reduces everyone to tears or hysterics, as he unwittingly unmasks withering marriages, blasted careers and pretentious gentility.

IN PREVIOUS plays such as "Absurd Person Singular" and "The Norman Conquests," and again in "Absent Friends," Ayckbourn uses his insight into the silliness of small talk and chatter to point out the absurdities of

today's conventional middle-class mores.

His targets in "Absent Friends" are the accepted attitudes towards marriage, love and death, putting his work in the tradition of "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "The Bald Soprano." His language also has a ring of familiarity that has caused him to be called "Britain's Neil Simon." (In Britain, Simon is known as "America's Alan Ayckbourn.")

"Absent Friends" is directed by Anthony Schmitt, with scenic design by Ralph Blasting and costumes by Vikte Jankus. Colin is portrayed by Dennis Green of Detroit. Other cast members are Mary A. Eldridge of Wayne, Edward Nahhat of Royal Oak, Kim Cook of Westland, Charles A. Sock of Redford Township and Sandra Prappas of Southfield.

"Absent Friends" will be presented at WSU's Studio Theatre, downstairs at the Hilberry, Cass and Hancock.

Some kitchen gadgets are ingenious. Clever and useful enough, they make wonderful presents to slip into a Christmas stocking. They are available in specialty shops like Kitchen Glamor or department stores, and many cost less than $5. It must be the nation's engendering genius turned to gadgets rather than the car.

Take the zester. When the in-house bartender practices the trade, the zester can be run over a lemon and, voila, lemon peel for a gin and tonic.

The tea drinker in the family might like the lemon squeezer. Shaped like a tiny funnel, it can be forced into the lemon. When the tea is hot, squirt away. The beauty saves cutting the lemon each time, and because it can be left in the fruit, the fruit won't dry out.

If you can, a tomato corer might be of use. It removes in a second the top patch when stem meets tomato.

Or try a honey server, doubtless invented by a person who resented the dribbling qualities of this sweet substance. The server looks like a spoon but it prevents honey from dripping. You can release the honey as needed with a twist of the hand.

With the season for egg nog and Tom and Jerrys on the way, a shopper may want to consider a nutmeg grater. If you want to class up the radishes turn them into flowers with a radish press.

And for those who get involved in a mad frenzy to get to work on time in the morning, there is an electrical gadget that is deep-sixed into a coffee cup to heat the water quickly.

Looking this holiday season for inexpensive stuffers?

The U.S. Post Office has kits that will delight the avid philatelist or the novice hobbyist with price tags that gift-givers can swallow.

For the seasoned collector, commemorative mints sets are available from 1978, 1979 and 1980. They range in price from $4 to $5.25. The kits include all commemorative stamps issued during those years. A folder explains the background of each issue.

Other commemorative offerings include the Olympic and women's mint sets. The Olympic set sells for $7.50. It includes a 40-page limited edition hard-bound book which contains commentaries by athletes and other observers about Olympic events.

The women's set includes a booklet which describes 40 U.S. postage stamps honoring women. The set costs $3 and includes nine mint stamps, a post card and acetate mounts.

ANOTHER GIFT idea for the avid collector is the 1980 philatelic bestseller "Stamps & Stories." The $3.50 encyclopedia of U.S. stamps offers the latest information on new issues and 1981 prices. The book also contains more than 70 new stories with specially selected historical illustrations and reproduction of every U.S. postage stamp ever issued.

For the young hobbyist getting his or her first lick in, there are 12 different kits that run the gamut of topics from sports to animals to history. Each kit costs $2 and includes an album, more than 40 stamps, hinges and a 32-page booklet "The ABC's of Stamp Collecting."

Other kits include birds and butterflies, travel through the ages, stamps from different countries, diamonds and triangles, flags, maps and coats of arms, flowers, masterworks (stamps commemorating famous art works) and United States (stamps depicting historical figures or important events).

Special stamp panels at $4 include a mint block of each stamp mounted next to a brief narrative and three illustrations. Stamp panels are featured on famous Americans such as Helen Keller and Anne Sullivan and W.C. Fields, to topics such as education, Indian masks and Vietnam veterans.

YOU NEEDN'T SETTLE FOR LESS THAN A NIKON!

The Nikon name is recognized as the symbol of supreme quality throughout the world. It means superior precision that you can feel in every Nikon camera... and see in the magnificent sharpness and lifelike color fidelity of your Nikon photographs. And now, with four great Nikon cameras to choose from, it costs less than ever to enjoy this matchless Nikon quality.

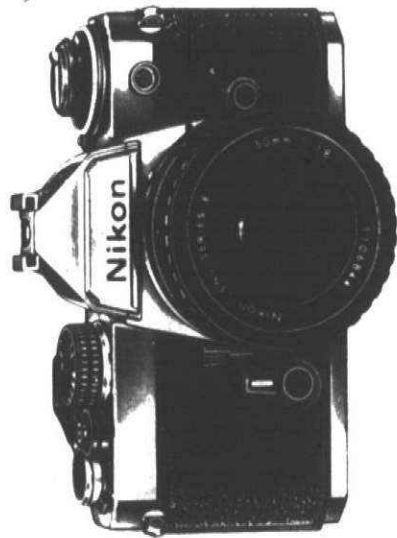

NIKON F3

Finest and most advanced Nikon ever, combining exclusive space-age technology and famous Nikon precision engineering. The first 35mm reflex to offer auto-electronic exposure control with interchangeable viewfinders and focusing screens as well as lenses, even with flash. First with 6-shots-per-second motor drive, battery-saving viewfinder LCD exposure readouts, and more. Features quartz-timed shutter speed accuracy to 1/2000th second. The Nikon F3 is so advanced and so rugged, it already has been chosen by NASA as the exclusive operational 35mm SLR for the U.S. Space Shuttle project, with only minor modifications needed for this special environment.

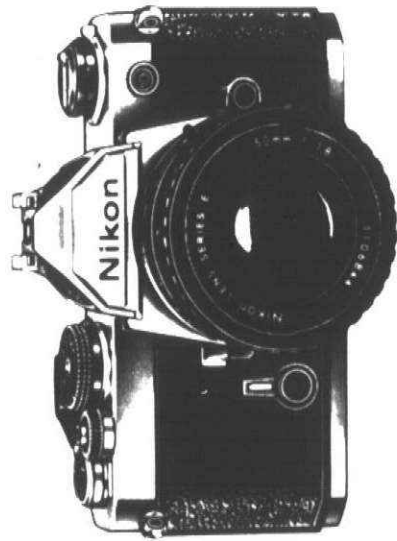

NIKON EM ULTRA COMPACT

Lowest-priced, smallest, easiest-to-use camera in the Nikon system. Its Nikon electronics assure accurate exposures automatically, even in unusual lighting situations. Special Nikon accessories include matching motor drive, auto-programming thyristor flash, and wide array of super-sharp Nikon Series E lenses. All priced to make Nikon quality affordable for everyone!

NIKON FE AUTOMATIC COMPACT

The finest Nikon automatic 35mm reflex camera — now at a new, reduced price. Provides both focus-and-shoot simplicity and a wide choice of creative exposure "override" and manual controls. Gives automatic exposures with more than 70 Nikon system lenses; accepts special Nikon motor drive; electronic flash and much more.

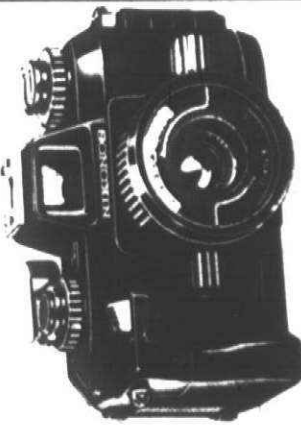

NIKON FM CLASSIC COMPACT

For those who want personal control of every exposure, aided by reliable Nikon one-step electronic metering. Offers professional capabilities and rugged performance, with Nikon system versatility, including motor drive capability. And the new, lower price makes it even more affordable!

NIKKOR LENSES World's foremost system of optics for 35mm photography. Nearly 70 lenses — from 6mm to 2000mm — featuring Nikon multi-layer Integrated Coating, internal focusing, ED glass and other Nikon-designed advances. Unmatched for consistently superb sharpness and color fidelity.

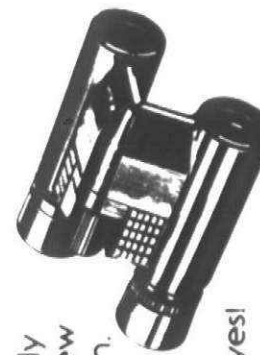

NEW NIKONOS IV-A AUTOMATIC

First automatic '35' for underwater and all-weather photography. Now, get Nikon quality photos while diving... boating... skiing... in any weather — automatically!

NEW NIKON FEATHERWEIGHT BINOCULARS

Pocket-size small, yet incredibly bright and clear — thanks to new Nikon roof-prism optical design. Ideal for travel, backpacking, boating and any outdoor viewing. Here's Nikon quality you can see with your own eyes!

Not for kids only

by MARGARET MILLER

There's a myth that seems to be a standard part of the Christmas season. It says you have to be a child—or at least be like one—to appreciate this holiday that can be the best of all days. Only children, so the propaganda goes, have the innocence for the true spirit.

Anyone with the burden of a few years or a few responsibilities is just out of luck when it comes to real holiday joy.

Well, I see where the mystique comes from because I've watched children—my own and countless others—as the magic season approaches. Their eyes tell a story no one can fail to understand.

But I also submit that Christmas isn't a For Children Only booth at a bazaar. The preparation it requires may separate the I-can't-wait youngsters from their will-ever-make-it elders, but that doesn't need to dull the appreciation.

A COUPLE of Christmas Eves ago I was sitting in church when some words in a prayer jumped out at me.

"And grant," they read, "that when Christmas morning breaks for us this year, we may have something more to show for our running about than tired feet and regrets for things not done."

My feet were tired that year, and I had indeed not completed all the Christmas preparation I had hoped to do. I had rushed too much of it into the last few days, so my spirit was tired too.

I clipped and saved those words and decided that somehow I would manage to do things better for holiday enjoyment.

But by the time the next Christmas rolled around, I realized the problem was compounded. Various schedules in other compartments of our lives had led us to set up a two-week Florida vacation that extended almost to mid-December. If I was going to be ready for Christmas, I would really have to get started early.

That's when I started learning it could be done. A monumental task was always the mailing of Christmas cards.

I couldn't give it up, as many have done, because I so much enjoy the cards and messages that pour in during December. Neither could I bring myself to send a signed card and mimeographed message.

Furthermore, it was a year when we had moved, so we knew we should have our cards out earlier than usual with the new address labels.

MY HUSBAND and I set ourselves a schedule for writing those cards, and before we headed for our Florida flight we had big bundles of cards ready to mail.

That feat encouraged me to get some shopping done before leaving, too. And we took our catalogs along with us and sat on the beach selecting edible goodies to send to some of our family members.

Back home with nearly two weeks left before the big day, I still did some mad dashing and there still remained presents to wrap the day before Christmas. But I figured I was beginning to learn and my feet were not quite so tired.

This year we're heading south even later. We'll get back exactly a week before the holiday. But I may be learning a little about scheduling.

Again the cards are being attended to with early messages. And this year I've managed to start some early shortbread so maybe I'll have homemade instead of purchased edibles to present.

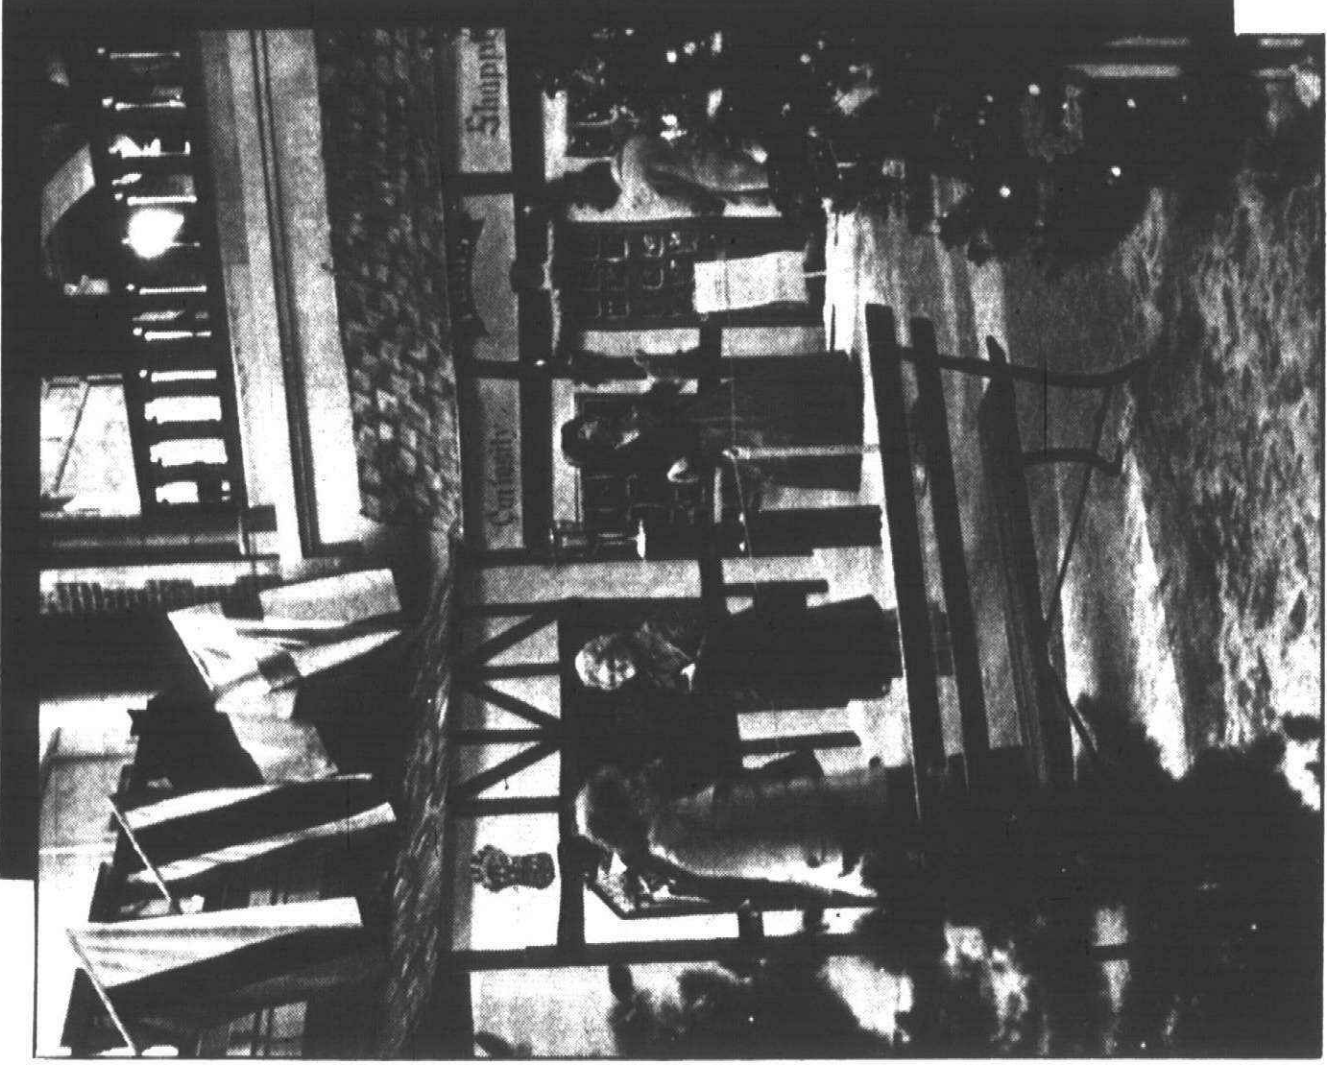

A little shopping is under the belt; most of another day has been cleared for that purpose. This year I think I'll take a vacation day to buy a few presents with a Southern accent.

That final week ought to be time enough for wrapping and getting Christmas out of its basement boxes and gathering the family to decorate the tree.

In fact, I'm already looking forward to Christmas. Who says it's just for children.

Toledo has always been a city that was taken for granted by people from the Detroit metropolitan area. Maybe it's too close to be exotic and interesting . . .

Oh, there's no place like Toledo for the holidays

Christmas Around the World is a world of its own at the Toledo Zoo. Sponsored by the International Institute, the display is a collection of rooms, with each representing Christmas traditions of a different country.

by IRIS SANDERSON JONES
Contributing travel editor

What nearby recreation center attracts 100,000 people every year to a Christmas wonderland for children? What is the name of the zoo that offers food, music and Christmas displays in an annual show called Christmas Around the World?

Where can you see historic houses dressed in yuletide trim, and Christmas craft festivals wrapped in ribbon?

These are only a few of the Christmas attractions scheduled this season in Toledo, that city so often ignored by Michiganders because it is on the wrong side of the state line. This year, when gas is short and prices are high, Toledo is a good nearby destination for travelers who would like to explore unfamiliar Christmas events.

CHILDREN'S WONDERLAND which isn't really just for children, attracts people from all over Ohio to the Lucas County Recreation Center. Animated Christmas fantasy displays of more than 221 mobile figures rotate in 50 exhibits. They range from Santa's Workshop to 355 decorated Christmas trees.

It has been going on for 18 years, although most of us here, only an hour's drive north, have never heard of it. The Wonderland this year starts Nov. 28 and runs through Dec. 31. Admission price is adults $1.50 and children younger than 12, 50 cents. Hours are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily and 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays.

Christmas Around the World is a short drive away at the Toledo Zoo, and runs from Dec. 7-28. This free indoor entertainment has been sponsored for many years by the International Institute. Small rooms line every wall in the International Village setting at the zoo. Each room represents the Christmas traditions of a different country. Models wear the costumes in authentically decorated rooms from countries around the world.

Good food and Christmas musical entertainment from many lands is part of this event. The only charge is the 25-cent zoo admission for children and adults. It is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

IF YOU LIKE old-fashioned Christmas decorations, you have probably visited Greenfield Village in Dearborn during the Christmas season. Toledo has two historic houses dressed for Christmas. The Wolcott House, in suburban Maumee, was built in 1827 by Judge James Wolcott, whose wife, Mary Wells, was the granddaughter of Miami Chief Little Turtle. The house and nearby cabin are decorated as they would have been in the 1800s.

A collection of antique children's toys is also on display. The Wolcott House will be decorated for Christmas Dec. 7-31.

The Homespun Holidays at the Stranahan Manor House in Wildwood Metro Park, runs from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays-Fridays and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

mas Theater while you are across the line, here are two ideas:

Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by the Toledo Choral Society at the Museum of Art Peristyle at 2 p.m. Dec. 7. This is one of the better art museums in the Midwest, so don't miss the exhibits while you are there.

The Toledo Ballet will present "The Nutcracker" at Masonic Auditorium, 4645 Heatherdowns Blvd. at 8 p.m. Dec. 13, and 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. Dec. 14. Ticket prices range from $6.50-$8.50.

TOLEDO HAS ALWAYS been a city that was taken for granted by people from the Detroit metropolitan area. Maybe it's too close to be exotic and interesting. Maybe we are a little chauvinistic about the fact that it is not in Michigan. Or maybe we are still angry because we had to swap it for the Upper Peninsula many years ago.

Whatever the reason, 1980 is a good year to explore this smaller, friendly nearby city for a day or a weekend during the Christmas season. Just follow I-275 and I-75, and be sure to stop for information at the Toledo Area Chamber of Commerce, 218 Huron St.; 1-419-243-8191.

FOR JOCKS

Jog for pasta — New Year's Eve Run and Giant Spaghetti Dinner on Belle Isle will be sponsored by the city of Detroit and Hughes & Hatcher. There will be an afternoon 4-mile run for adults and a 1-mile run for kids. Last year's event drew 5,000 people. Entry blanks at all H&H stores.

Films/TOM PANZENHAGEN

Shopping around for good Christmas movies can be as rewarding an enterprise as the search for provident Yuletide gift buys.

Lest the buyer beware, he may find himself ordering oranges from New Jersey or tuning in "Christmas on the Love Boat." Both prospects guarantee indignation.

Christmas is the season when a number of new movies that have nothing to do with Christmas debut. This year there are movies due out about everything from mate swapping to Popeye the Sailor.

We'll leave those bones to be picked by the Shirley Eders and Army Archers, though, because here's a shopping guide to old movies that have a lot to do with Christmas and which are sure to be shown somewhere, sometime between now and you know when.

"MIRACLE ON 34TH STREET" (1947) is perhaps the most beloved of all the Christmas movies, and with good reason. Edmund Gwenn stars as Kris Kringle in the role of his life, for which he won an Oscar. Maureen O'Hara, John Payne, Gene Lockhart, William Frawley, Jerome Cowan and an 8-year-old Natalie Wood co-star.

The picture, written and directed by George Seaton, throws Christmas commercialism back into the faces of Macy's and Gimble's. O'Hara hires Gwenn to play a department store Santa, but what she doesn't know is that she may have the genuine article on her hands.

Gwenn sends shoppers off to other stores and lambastes store management for attempting to package and sell the spirit of Christmas. The execs protest and have Gwenn, who claims to be Santa, arrested on charges of insanity.

The ensuing trial scenes — with Lockhart as the judge and Gwenn perspicuously rebutting every attempt of a blistering prosecuting attorney to prove that he is not Kris Kringle — are pure delight. And Natalie Wood has never again appeared so young, wide-eyed and innocent (except perhaps in the 1966 film "Penelope," but that's another story).

"Miracle" was shot in New York City over Christmas 1946. Curiously, producer Darryl F. Zanuck had so little faith in the picture that he released the 20th Century Fox production in June 1947 rather than hold it for the gift-giving season.

"WHITE CHRISTMAS" (1954) is another picture that falls within the beloved category, but for all the wrong reasons. A few of the songs are OK. Vera-Ellen's legs never end and the film is flooded with a fair imitation of Christmas spirit. But the movie shows its age — it's clearly a picture of 1954 — corny, maudlin, shallow and just plain bad for the most part. Michael Curtiz did as well as could be expected directing Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye, Rosemary Clooney, Dean Jagger and Vera-Ellen through this Irving Berlin vehicle, but that's all it really is: a vehicle that capitalizes on Christmas.

Forget 'em not

Automotive executive and independent entrepreneur Bill Sturley of Royal Oak has organized a new business catering to the forgetful people of the world.
Surety Reminder Service will mail two weeks before the actual date eight postcards a year reminding clients of family birthdays, anniversaries and other important times for $5 a year.
Additional dates beyond the eight will be added for 50 cents each. Sturley said that these mind stuffers would make excellent stocking stuffers. A form for listing the desired dates will be mailed to each subscriber. Send name, address and $5 to Surety Reminder Service, 2045 Laureate Dr., Royal Oak 48073.

A homey touch

Artist Kyle Ziegler does pen and ink sketches of things people love best — children, pets and homes. This drawing of a home at Main and Rogers in Northville is an example of his work. He works from photos, but wants to see the actual subject at least once before starting. To contact the artist for holiday gift drawings, with or without color, write Ziegler, 2150 Longhorn, West Bloomfield 48033, or call 626-9127.

Ridership survey suggested

by RON GARBINSKI

On the road — that's probably the best time to ask that bike enthusiast in your life what he or she would like for Christmas.

Chances are, however, you're not around on the trip or the idea doesn't come up in later conversation. So what do you buy?

That's an easy question considering the assortment of bike-related items on the market today. Clothing, accessories, tools, books, components, shoes, touring equipment — the list goes on and on.

First, forget about buying a new bike for the rider in your life. That should be done by the individual because of the many personal considerations involved. Second, identify what type of riding the person does. Is it commuting, weekend or long-distance touring, regular workouts or just casual rides around the neighborhood.

Once you do this, you narrow your selection. And a visit to the local bike shop will provide you with suggestions on quality equipment.

A COMMUTER has special needs to make a trip safe and convenient.

The rider must be visible to motorists. So one needs a good lighting system, reflective clothing and reflectors on the bike. Carrier racks or packs to hold essentials and leg wraps to keep clothing out of the chain are handy accessories.

Two items that have proven valuable to many commuters — a helmet and tire patch kit. Helmets come in various price ranges and styles to serve different situations. These safety devices — usually less than $40 — have saved scores of riders from serious injury, especially considering that cars and trucks sometimes are a bicyclist's worst enemy.

FOR THE TOURIST, the list is almost endless. There are catalogs filled with panniers, handlebar bags, repair and tool kits, pumps, water bottles, wool and blend riding jerseys, shorts and warm-ups, tents, sleeping bags, cooking equipment, gloves and shoes.

Find out what your rider already has — and what colors he prefers — and go from there. The more expensive the items are usually the lighter and better made.

Maps and touring routes are valuable to the tourist. Many states, through the local auto club or department of tourism and transportation, have detailed touring services available.

Other groups, like Bikecentennial, offer maps and touring information to members. Membership in this nationwide organization of bicyclists is $15 for individuals and well worth the investment. The address is Bikecentennial, P.O. Box 8308, Missoula, Mont. 59807.

WHILE DISCUSSING maps and books, other great gift ideas are routes and magazines. Getting your favorite on the mailing lists of various bike shops and distributors is another worthwhile gift.

A subscription to Bicycling Magazine or American Wheelmen provides hours of reading on what's new in the industry, tours, bike reports, technical tips, riding techniques plus offering ideas on health and fitness and who's doing what in the world of bicycling.

Other books on maintenance, traveling by bike, how to ride and buying guides also are interesting and necessary additions to a rider's bookshelf.

FOR THE casual bike rider the selection is wide open.

Anti-theft devices such as chains and locks, riding gloves, water bottles, odometers, special lights, child carriers, handlebar seat bags, cushioned handlebar tape and a patch kit are just some of the gift ideas.

Sunglasses, rain gear, car carrier racks for one to four bikes, bike stands, compressor floor pumps and special components and parts are several other items to keep in mind.

The best place to start your hunt for the right gift is with the rider. One way or another, find out what he already has and needs and go from there.

The best place to end your search is at one of the professional bike shops in town. They cater to the whims of bicyclists and have the background to help you make the right selection.

Getting wired on natural wreaths

by MARIE MCGEE

HERBS AND SPICES touched off with a perky holiday bow are a nice complement if you want to spruce up your kitchen for the holidays. The aroma will speak volumes for your creativity.

Mary's favorite Christmas wreath is one done up in fruits. Last Christmas the Pulicks' federal blue front door was adorned with one using lemons — and it stayed fresh looking way into February. Apples are another good choice. Even vegetables work out well.

Popular, too, is the calico wreath that adds old-fashioned charm to any setting. They're also easy to make.

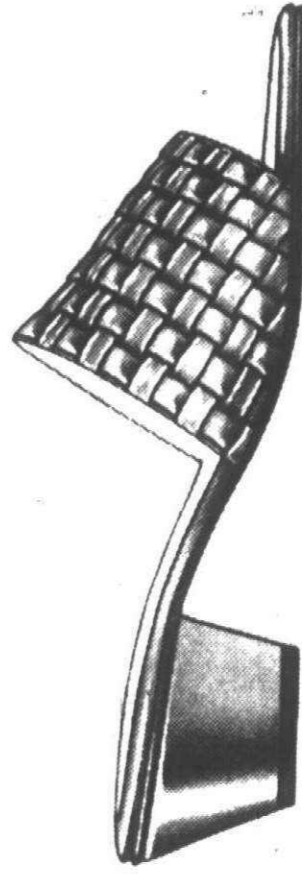

Of course, there's the old favorite: the wreath of pine or any other greenery — including clippings from evergreens from your own yard. From experience, Mary prefers cedar and pine. When you pick your Christmas tree, pick up a bundle of greens.

Or, if you don't want to wait that late, go to your favorite nursery and get some. Chances are they have some right now and you can even get some that are already wired together. But that's cheating a little and doesn't do much to vent the creativity bottled up inside.

Turned on

The city of Plymouth wears its holiday fantasy beginning at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 28. The downtown treelighting happens in Kellogg Park with the mayor pulling the switch. Santa will arrive by horse-drawn carolers and the serenading of carolers and Centennial Educational Park bands.

Don't turn your thermostat down.

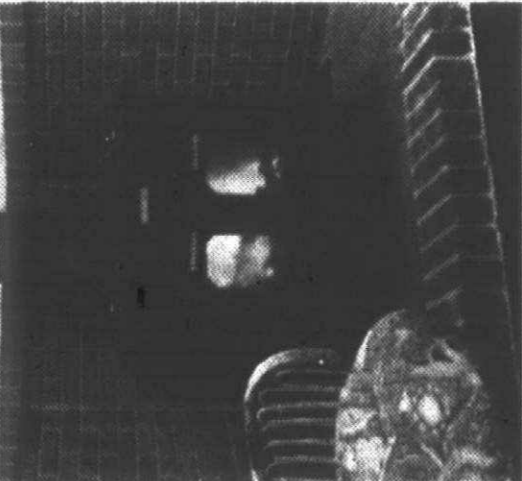

Turn it off.

It's a lot easier than you think. All it takes is one Buck Stove®.

The Buck Stove is different from most wood burning stoves. (In fact, it's a whole house heating system.) With a built-in thermostat blower, it can heat your entire house — up to 3,000 square feet.

Now we can't promise you'll never have to use your furnace. But current Buck Stove owners report savings of up to 80% on their heating bills.

That's nothing to sneeze at. Want to know more? Call or visit the Buck Stove store nearest you.

As a result, "bow hunting is really getting popular," Schmalzried said, as is target shooting.
Bows generally range from $75 to $220, although Schmalzried said he has seen bows at even higher prices. The aluminum arrows start about $2 a piece.

"THE URETHANE WHEEL has revolutionized skate boarding and now roller skating," Schmalzried said, because of its adaptability for outdoor skating.
It has turned outdoor roller skating into a viable activity for more than just little children first learning to skate, according to national statistics and first-hand sales data compiled by Dunhams.

As a result, roller skates may prove just the item for that teenager on your holiday list.

A bow utilizing a system of pulleys is making a name for itself among bow and arrow hunters. The action is more tense at the beginning with the new models, growing steadily easier the farther back the string is pulled.

That's because the urethane wheel allows roller skating over little rocks and everything," Schmalzried said. Expert skaters purchase two sets of wheels, he adds, since the plastic outdoor wheel isn't as fast on the roller rink surface as the harder wheel. Skates these days are mainly between $25-80, but he's seen them up to $200 a pair.
Want to give a gift that turns that snowbunny into a winter sports enthusiast or puts your whole family on skis?

Not having to wax has turned cross country skiing into "the number one growth sport as far as popularity," Schmalzried said. That is, of course, barring last winter when there was very little snow.

"A perfectly waxed ski probably will outperform the waxless type," he said. But for the run-of-the-mill cross country skier, the new waxless surface makes skiing pure fun. Cross country ski packages are available for less than $100.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH has changed the look of two sports classics: the running shoe and tennis racquet.

"Running shoes today look a lot different from the old time shoe," Schmalzried said. More padding and the shock absorbing characteristics are the result of "a lot

In addition that original Prince, designed by an engineer, "spawned a whole group of mid-size racquets."
The big-headed racquets start about $55 (unstrung) and don't stop until they go over the $200 mark for graphite models. It's that $200 model, by the way, that Dunham's can't keep in stock.
The large racquet craze hasn't spread to racket ball racquets or ping pong paddles, according to Schmalzried, but he won't say it can't happen.
If it does, it may relieve your holiday gifting headaches another year.

holiday dreams, but you're out of

by ARLENE FUNKE

Maybe you've lost a spouse through divorce, or a parent has recently died. Perhaps your drinking or overeating is causing family or work problems? Or you're unemployed and trying to feed and clothe a family.

UNHAPPINESS, stress and compulsive behavior are present in every season, say experts. But they may seem especially painful during holiday periods when happiness is supposed to be the norm.

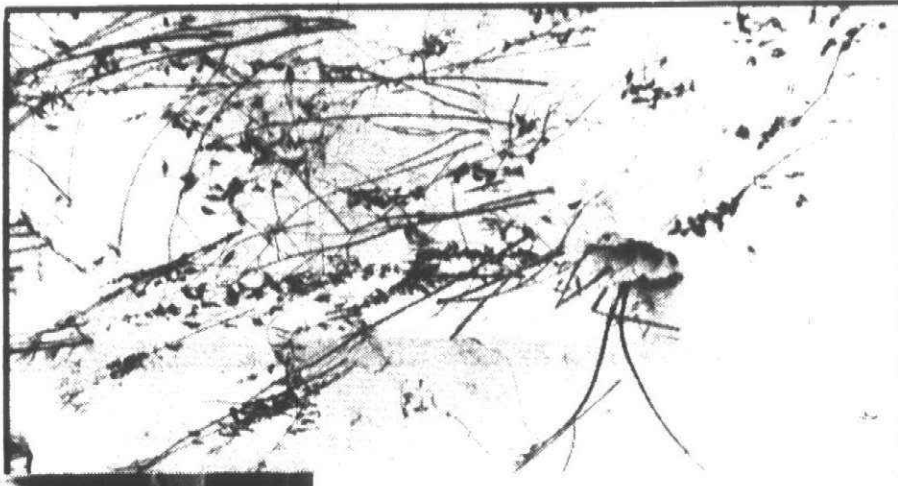

But a variety of non-profit groups are around to help out.

For example, most communities have groups such as the Goodfellows, Jaycees and FISH, which distribute canned goods and other foodstuffs, and clothing.

An emergency meal can be eaten at the Capuchin Community Center, at 1760 Mt. Elliott in Detroit. Meals are served to adults from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

But what about the battle to overcome depression and problems with coping?

Contrasting old-style bow and arrows with the new compound bow and aluminum arrow is nearly the difference between counting on your fingers and with a calculator.

"Through a system of pulleys and cables, they have almost reversed how a bow works," the knowledgeable Schmalzried said.

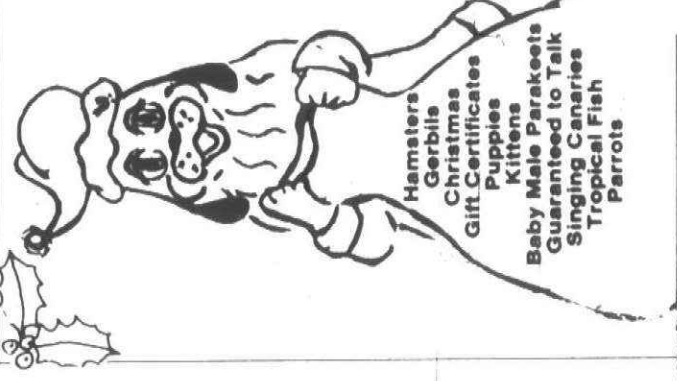

Technology has changed the whole power curve of the bow, he said, pulling back on a model to demonstrate. With the old style bow, the farther you pulled back the harder it was. With the new bows, the hardest pulling is at the beginning.

Technological breakthroughs in sports equipment over the past few years have revolutionized and expanded many sports.

Holiday giving could reflect this: Gift items for all ages could include updating or replacing old equipment or providing for someone's new sports interest.

Dick Schmalzried recently delighted in showing off the scientific advances partly responsible for the rising interest in archery, roller skating, cross-country skiing, jogging and tennis. Schmalzried is vice pres-

Blazing your own snow trails

by RUSTLE SHAND

Dreaming of a white Christmas? You can create your own snow scene in a cascade of winter white fashions. Whether home for the holidays, visiting the relatives in Cleveland or off to sunny climes, surround yourself in an aura of whites.

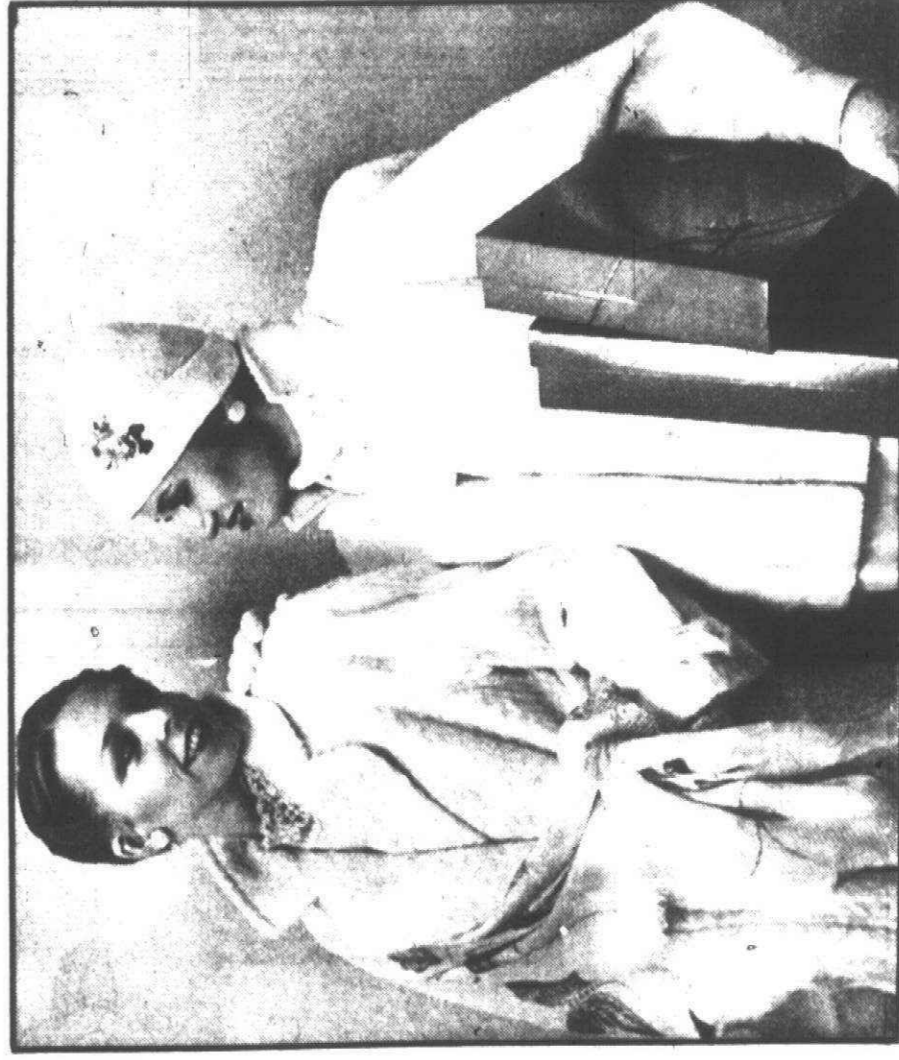

WINTER WHITE is probably the most flattering color a woman can wear. It is becoming to any figure type, looks great on blondes, brunettes or redheads and enhances the natural beauty of any skin tone. And it is the most basic color, barring black, in the fashion color spectrum.

At-home winter wrappers promise glamour and warmth in a wool mix that looks and feels like cashmere. Ecru maribou mules add a whimsical note to the feet and festive hair ornaments add necessary pizzazz.

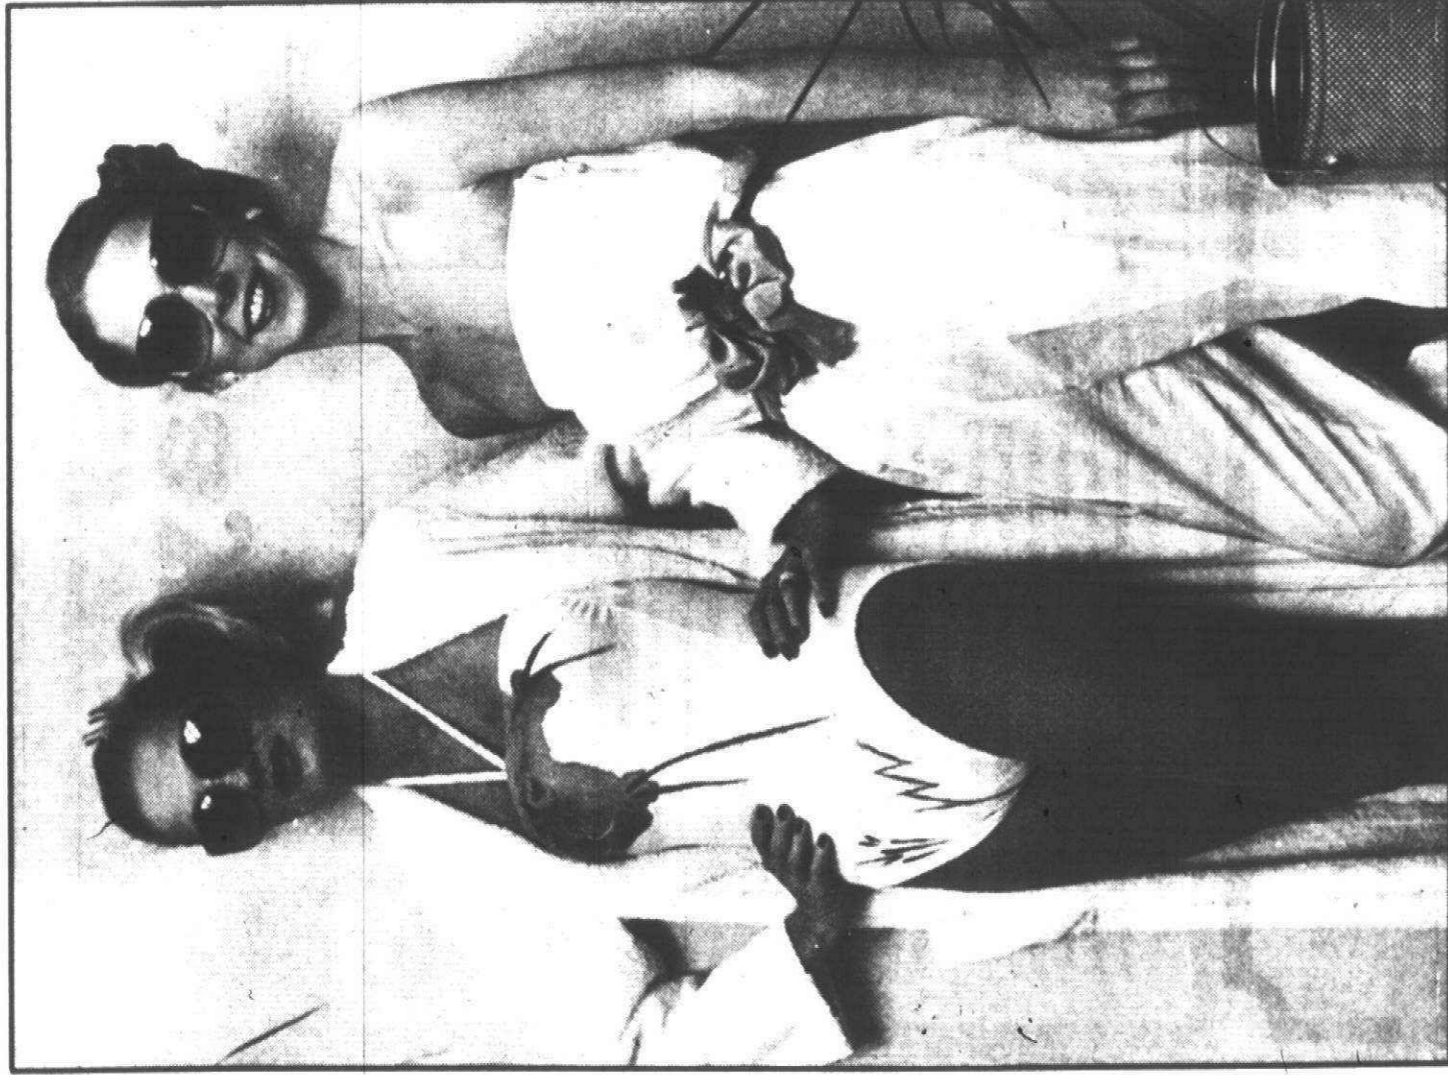

TAKING YOUR OWN snowflakes with you becomes the order of the day for making holiday housecalls. An Anne Klein winter white bomber jacket in brushed wool tops flannel trousers while hands and head cuddle in wool warmers.

The wool and mohair chevron wrap coat is sparked with a white wool chellia, gold shot stole.

Winter holidays on the beaches in the sun is a pleasure in easy care, quick-dry cottons. The all-cotton strapless jumpsuit by Willie Wear has an elasticized back for comfortable lounging. The quick-dry terry bathing suit is handpainted with tropical flowers on white, topped smartly with a white chenille beach robe.

handicapped person, why take that away too if he enjoys it?"

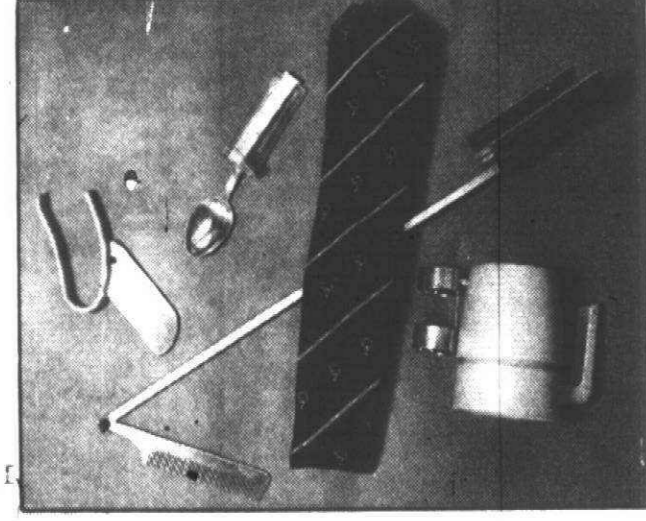

Other suggestions include talking clocks with alarms that get progressively abusive the longer you ignore them, she said with a chuckle. Then there are talking calculators, card holders, long-handled shoe horns, and drinking cups that do double duty as ashtrays when clipped onto the arm of a wheelchair.

HANDY AIDS, a non-profit shop at 6340 Brush St., Detroit, was founded to give blind persons a place to shop. Handy Aids director Ellen Milner has culled catalogs and suppliers to find more than 300 items that will appeal to the handicapped person.

During the past six years, she said she has spent hundreds of hours searching for unique, useful and attractive items that are now available to her customers. The proceeds, she said, go right back into the League-Goodwill-sponsored shop to purchase more merchandise. The shop also receives support, she added, from the Michigan Federation for the Blind and the Lions.

"I took a selection of what we have for our blind customers to a convention in Canada one time," she said. The merchandise was received with such enthusiasm that she found it difficult to refuse to sell the sample collection.

Clip-on, no-spill cup, tie with handicapped logo, comb with extender, one-handed meat cutter, spoon holder. At Rehabilitation Institute. Photos/Dick Kelley

Ms. Milner is so dedicated to her Detroit customers, however, that she said she brought everything home to Handy Aids. Among the items that caused such a stir were braille greeting cards, cookbooks, a porcelain-and-gilt pendant watch fitted with conventional and braille markings, and a dual-purpose game of Monopoly complete with standard-size cards and oversized, braille-inscribed deed cards.

BEFORE YOU START on your wreath, decide where the wreath is going to hang. That will govern size — particularly depth. Too often the finished product is disappointing because this thought was ignored.

"For instance, if it's going on your inside front door, then the wreath obviously can't be too fat or else the storm door won't close," Mrs. Pulick said.

"Also, if the wreath's to be viewed from a distance, then the selection of trims will be affected. If they're not large enough, they won't be seen. Conversely, a wreath that is going to be placed in your living room or kitchen will be seen from a closer range, and won't need oversized ornaments and trim."

A holiday wreath is probably one of the easiest decorations you can make — it's practically goof-proof. So go ahead — get wired for the holidays.

greening pins can pull top
1 yard cotton fabric
3 yards ribbon
dried materials and/or trims

DIRECTIONS:

1. Cut 1 yard of fabric into three 12-inch-wide strips the width of fabric. Seam the strips together to make one long tube. Turn right side out and press. Stitch down the center of the tube, about 3/4 inches from seam edge forming a casing for the ring. The remainder forms the ruffle.
2. Cut the ring with a sharp knife very carefully.
3. Gently ease the casing over the ring, sliding the fabric on the ring very gently to cover and form the ruffled wreath.
4. Fasten the cut edges of the ring together with greening pins.
5. Trim with desired materials and ribbon.
6. Attach can pull top for hanger with greening pins.

Wiring greens onto the frame is easier if a crinkled frame available at craft stores is used. You can use a coat hanger, but the greens will slip. Use a 24- or 26-gauge wire to attach the greens to the frame.

Grapevine wreath can be made any size. Cut, dry vines in fairly long strips, form the size circle wanted, wire the two ends and then weave each succeeding vine, wiring it at the end. Photos/Art Emanuel of items which can be gaily wrapped and presented to the handicapped person on your list.

Helen G. Lacatis, the volunteer director at the Rehabilitation Institute, likes to show visitors a tiny gift shop located on the first floor of the Medical Center facility. Inside, she said, volunteer Peg Lewis has gathered together gifts galore that range in price from $2 to more expensive items.

Ms. Lacatis said that the handicapped person should be allowed as much freedom as possible. Therefore, gift selection should be based on items which will help the handicapped accomplish normal tasks with greater ease.

Available for immediate purchase are such simple and useful items as a spoon holder that fits over the knuckles, elastic shoelaces, a one-handed meat cutter, a hair comb fitted onto an extender, a timer to remind its owner to get up and exercise, and a handsome tie featuring the international handicap symbol.

Proceeds from the sale of the tie, Ms. Lacatis said, go to the National Wheelchair Athletic Association.

Another useful item, she said, is the Smoker's Robot. "Smoking is not really a very good habit," she said. "But, if they do, let's be safe about it. We recognize the individual's right to smoke if he wants to. So much has been taken away from the

But what if you were unable to see, or hear, or touch the ingredients we so closely associate with Christmas? What if you couldn't see the glistening tree, or reach out to taste the foods that emit all those delicious aromas? Or what if no one gave you a gift because there was nothing to give that you could pick up and hold?

I wonder then if any of us would be so quick to look forward to Christmas each year? Certainly, in the manner most of us celebrate the birth of Christ, once the basic ingredients that involve sight, taste and touch are removed, there wouldn't be much to look forward to.

FORTUNATELY for those gift givers with handicapped friends and relatives, alternatives exist to traditional gifts. With imagination and the assistance of professional therapists and agencies, not to mention catalogs, there are literally hundreds

Help abounds — ranging from crisis-intervention groups to Alcoholics Anonymous and Overeaters Anonymous.

Listening to persons with varied mental and emotional problems are the Suicide Prevention and Drug Information Center in Detroit, and Common Ground in Birmingham.

WORKERS who staff the 24-hour crisis lines at both agencies face the immediate task of helping the troubled client see that help is available. Trained to be good listeners, the workers let the client define his or her problem and then to "problem solve," said Dian Wilkins of the Detroit center.

Often, referrals will be made to other agencies. For example, Ms. Wilkins said the Suicide Prevention and Drug Information Center has a list of 350 resources for persons with problems.

"There are a lot of factors (in depression)," Ms. Wilkins said. "Around holidays and right after, there seems to be some increase (in calls).

"It's hard to separate out," she added. "We get calls all the time."

Ms. Wilkins said much of the holiday depression can be laid at the door of unmet expectations. Other causes are loneliness and "just plain old economics."

"When people were very young, everything was done for them," said Ms. Wilkins. "It was a time of happiness, food and presents. We carry with us those expectations — that this should be a time of joy and togetherness."

The goal of AA members is to remain sober one day at a time, to make amends for persons whom their alcoholism has harmed and to build their respect. Phone 541-6565.

"AA doesn't keep anybody sober," said Shirley. "We give the tools."

Family members of alcoholics can obtain help through separate organizations call Al-Anon and Alateen. For information, call 527-4610 in Wayne County, and 647-0021 in Oakland County.

by KATHY PARRISH

Last year an Oakland County teacher bought both her husband and father snowmobiles for Christmas. This year it'll be ties under the tree.

"We're cutting way back on Santa," said the mother of one, laid off from her school district after 10 years. "There won't be many presents and the ones we do give will be little."

Losing a job is always difficult. But being unemployed during the holiday season is even harder to face. "Holidays are exaggerators of everything good and bad in life," said Oakland University psychology professor Harvey Burdick, who believes the emphasis on family during the season adds extra stress.

"If the parent doesn't have a job, he feels he's not fulfilling his role in the family. It comes down smashing at this time of the year."

Coping with a thin wallet when it's the season to buy, buy, buy isn't easy. But there are things families and friends can do to help make the season jolly — even when Santa is standing in the unemployment line. "said Betty Lu Spurgeon, a program director for the YWCA. "It could be a depressing time if your family isn't careful."

MRS. SPURGEON, whose husband lost his 16-year engineering job with Chrysler Corp. and was unemployed for six months, encourages family communication during rough times.

"Don't be afraid to include everyone in the family in the planning process — even the older children."

"There will be things that will have to be given up. Let the children feel they are important and have input."

She also urges family members to help shoulder financial burdens. "They can get a paper route to help out or make gifts rather than buying them."

Talking about the layoff and its consequence is very important.

"Children can make demands and make the father reflect on his lack of ability. These are things that should be talked about openly and confronted," said Burdick. The "real sadness of unemployment," he said, is loss of self esteem. "The parent must be led to understand his status is not undermined by not having a job."

PREDICTING THIS will be a difficult holiday season because of high unemployment, Joanne Jocke of Catholic Social Services agreed that talking is a great help.

"Being stoic can be destructive; it can cause a great eruption," she said. Ms. Jocke is a district supervisor for the agency. Her Grosse Pointe office offers a new program called Fighting the Unemployment Blues.

"It's best to share concerns with family and friends. In any crisis there can be real growth through improved communication."

While families should try not to make demands at Christmastime, she urges them not to "overstep."

"Doing too much for someone can be more demeaning. People still need to feel competent and responsible for managing their own lives."

Burdick also advises family and friends not to "walk around as if the unemployed person has a terminal disease. Unemployment is a societal problem, not a personal defeat."

IT'S ALSO important to keep busy during the holidays, either by exercising, housecleaning or creating gifts. "Use the time to advantage rather than sitting back," said Ms. Jocke.

Mrs. Spurgeon, whose Clawson YWCA program focuses on women, urges them not to sacrifice totally during a lay off.

"Women carry a great deal of the burden of holding the family together when men are unemployed. Everyone has to sacrifice and the tendency of the women is to feel they should sacrifice more," said the Huntington Woods resident, who found herself not wanting to go out.

"There are non expensive things to do," she added, suggesting card games with friends and other cheap activities. "Don't close yourself off. Staying in the house just makes it all worse."

POSTERIZE 'EM

by CORINNE ABATT

If your visions of sugarplums are linked with dollar signs, then it's time to think paper for gifts. Not greenbacks, but rather posters and books. And more specifically, think Michigan, and the ride on your budget could be easy.

All it takes is some traveling and the name of a friend on your holiday gift list who has a blank wall and/or an unfilled coffee table.

Posters can satisfy many a taste, there are so many and a lot of them may someday fall into the collectible category. Look what happened to posters of Paris night life by Toulouse-Lautrec. In the short span of 80 years, they've appreciated dramatically. If you don't care to wait 80 years, you might like to buy just for fun.

so are the charming folk-art items of Christmas from around the world.

One of the newest books on Michigan, published by Baker Book House and just now being distributed to the book stores, is "A Sketchbook of Michigan." It was produced by Rey Weidenaar, Grand Rapids printmaker and painter, and Anne Zeller, writer.

The Muskegon Museum of Art came into its own with the publication of a stunning catalog, "American Painting," by J. Gray Sweeney. It's on sale through the museum, 296 W. Webster, Muskegon 49440, for $6. It's full of excellent color and black-and-white photographs with a well-documented text. Grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and Michigan Council for the Arts aided the publication.

So, whether your taste is kitsch or classic, avant garde or old-time nostalgia, there's a poster out there, just waiting for a wall.

IF YOU'RE OF the "think Michigan" breed, there's a respectable selection of posters which glorify this state and, in particular, the metropolitan-Detroit area.

The Poster Gallery in the Fisher Building in Detroit's New Center area still has a supply of the elegant Mackenzie House poster which has an architectural drawing quality to it.

The gallery also has several attractive posters by the Michigan Watercolor Society, two different ones of the Renaissance Center and two of the Dodge Fountain.

One features a scene of the Detroit Institute of Arts while another has scenes of the city and its people in a soft montage with the slogan, "Meet America in Detroit."

UNFRAMED, THESE RANGE in price from $5-$15. Naturally, literally hundreds of other posters are available, from the charming Polish "Cyryk" circus posters to those designed by some of the great contemporary artists. Poland, incidentally, is one of the few countries where poster art is highly respected and consequently provides excellent schools for poster artists.

The gift shop at the Detroit Institute of Arts is another mecca for the poster shopper, who might be expected to digress from poster hopping to look at the fine selection of art books, stationery, cards and other gift items.

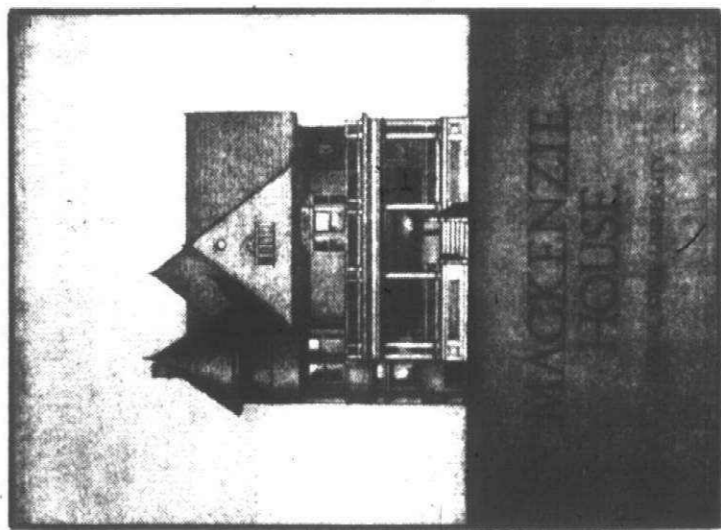

Pittman Galleries in Renaissance Center carries most of the local posters published along with a pleasant selection of graphics by Michigan artists, most of which are delightful and modestly priced.

SUBURBAN SHOPPERS will find that many art galleries carry posters as do framing shops. Among the galleries which have a better-than-average selection are: Rubiner Gallery, Royal Oak; Troy Gallery, Top of Troy concourse; Xochipilli Gallery, Rochester; Austin Galleries in Lakeside Mall; Fairlane Town Center and Great Oaks Mall; Art Alcove, Farmington; the Print Gallery, Southfield; and Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum gift shop.

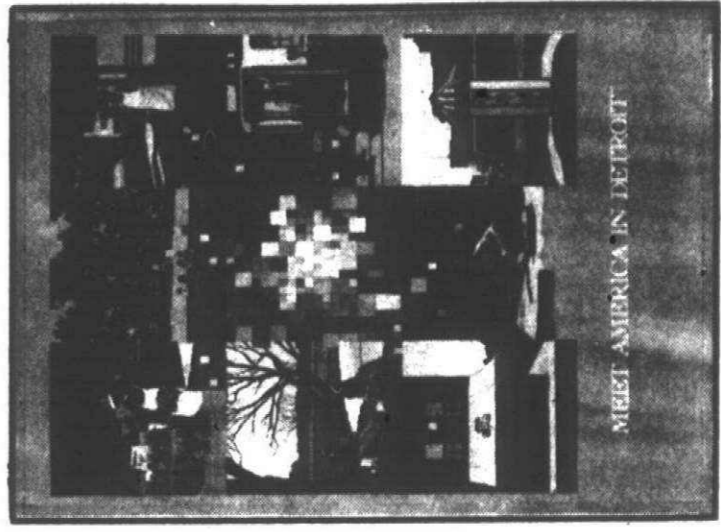

The Print Gallery, with thousands of prints from throughout the world arranged in a library-like manner, is a wonderful place to start curing the blains which come with blank walls.

Best buys in town just may be the Cranbrook posters in the museum gift shop on the Bloomfield Hills campus. The most recent Cranbrook poster sells unframed for $4 and several others are $5 or less. The gift shop also has a large selection of art books and paper gifts.

IF BOOKS ABOUT ART are on your list, then pop into Galerie de Boicourt while still in the Fisher Building. The selection there is sizable and attractive and

Dear J.L. Hudson:

Where will Santa stay?

by CRAIG PIECHURA

There are undoubtedly 100 good reasons why J.L. Hudson's needs to close its downtown Detroit store. The building is old and hard to heat. Customers are few. Supporting stores like Crowley's are gone from the area. People probably prefer shopping horizontally to vertically.

But I just want J.L. Jr. to know that if and when they do close the doors of the big red store on Woodward, they'll be slamming the lid on a lot of history.

This season, most of all, is the time to appreciate the grand old department store. As a kid, and still today, I always thought of Hudson's as the place where the "real" Santa Claus stayed.

The way it was explained to me, Santa's helpers went to Sears and Federal's. Numero Uno spent Thanksgiving to Christmas Eve inside the Enchanted Forest at downtown Hudson's. I believed it because I saw the bearded gent get off his sled at the store in the Thanksgiving Day parade every year.

That's quite a public relations coup. It makes the store a public institution right up there with the annual parade, the fireworks display and the mothballed giant flag.

My grandmother used to sell millinery on the 11th floor at Hudson's before she retired. Visiting her there was always a treat but I still think millinery is a funny name for lady's hats.

FEW PLACES, save Tiger Stadium, evoke such fond, lasting memories. The place is a sensory extravaganza.

The assault on the senses starts at the front door. Like all department stores ought to, Hudson's has revolving doors. Revolving doors scare every mother to death but delight kids who never fail to go around for an extra revolution.

After that dizzy entrance, you get a blast up the nostrils from the perfume counters near the door. It was every young boy's duty to say something like "p.U. Mom, let's go up and see the toys."

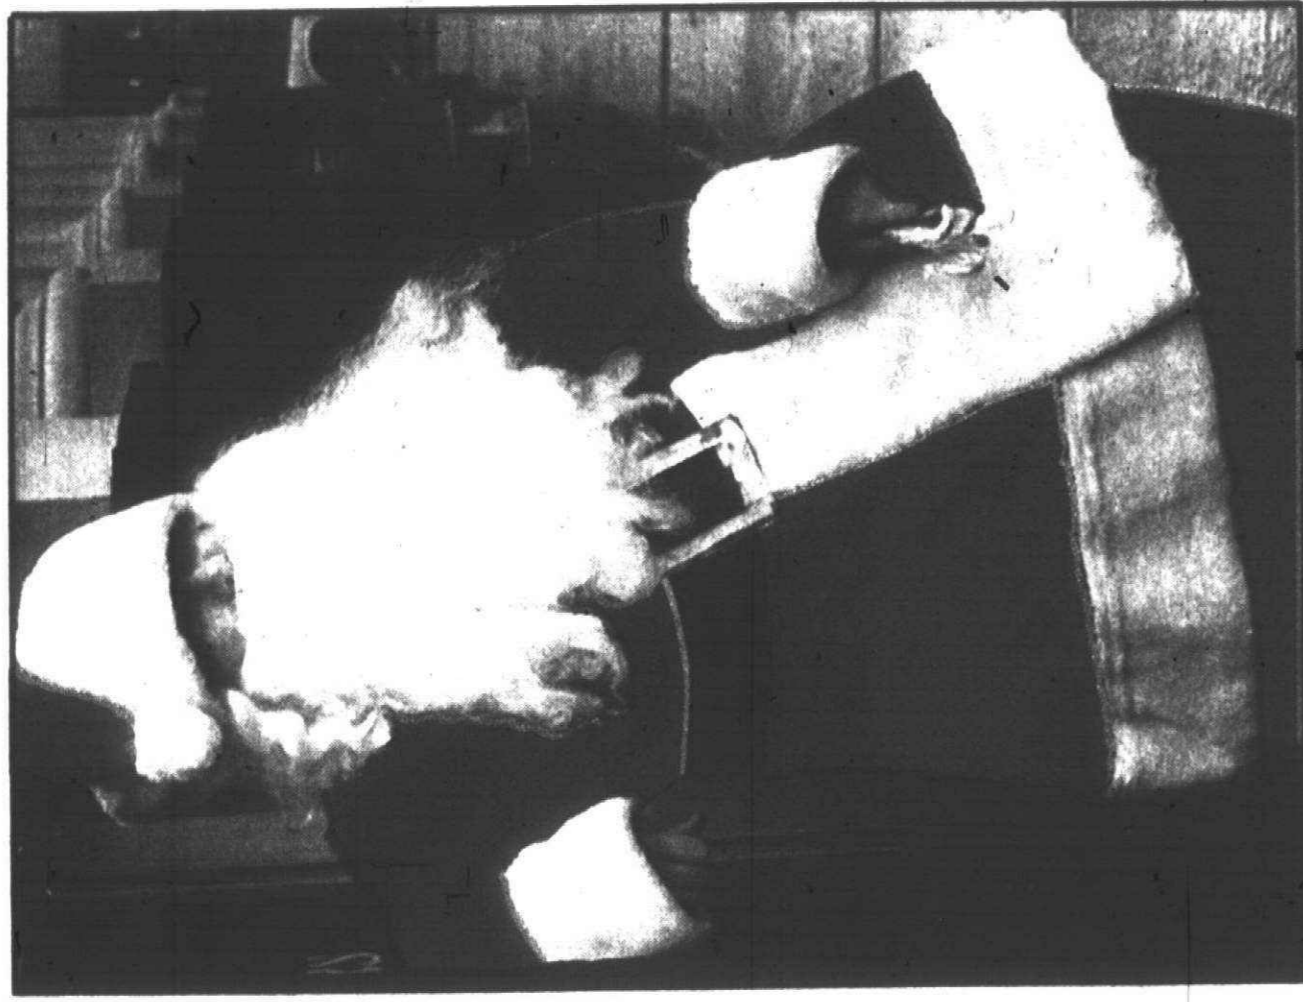

The elevator ride never failed to tickle my torso, often causing me to giggle and utter something vaguely obscene. The lady in the elevator rattled off what items could be found on what floors and then expertly pulled the brakes at the last minute.

"Please watch your step," she'd say in a friendly monotone.

PLANS FOR a downtown mall on the Kern block still are up in the air, dependent on federal grants and local matching funds.

If the mall is built, I hope it succeeds in bringing people downtown to shop. But I know it won't have touches like bronze drinking fountains.

Call me a nostalgic irrational.
