Poole authorizes suit to halt group homes

By DARLENE STINSON

Township administrators plan to file a lawsuit in Wayne County Circuit Court this week in an effort to block licensing and occupancy of any more group homes in Canton.

According to figures of the Michigan Department of Social Services, licenses now are pending for five homes for the mentally ill and seven homes for the mentally retarded in a number of Canton neighborhoods.

Already licensed and occupied are three group homes for mentally retarded adults, one home for mentally retarded children and two private foster homes for the care of the retarded.

Township Attorney C. Gerald Hemming said a lawsuit filed jointly by Canton and a number of homeowner associations will seek a temporary restraining order, and then a permanent injunction, against the licensing of any more homes.

Hemming declined to specify all the legal arguments of the suit until the complaint is drawn up sometime this week.

He did indicate, however, that one argument will specifically address proposed group homes for the mentally ill. Hemming maintains that the state law which allows the placement of group homes in residential neighborhoods does not specifically mention homes for the mentally ill.

Hemming said homeowner groups also may raise legal questions concerning the placement of group homes in subdivisions with certain kinds of deed restrictions. Many of those covenants limit use of homes to single families.

In typical group homes, six unrelated residents live together.

Hemming said the courts have supported and struck down that kind of argument as it pertains to group homes, depending on the wording of the deed restrictions.

SUPERVISOR JAMES POOLE authorized Hemming to begin work on the lawsuit last Thursday. As late as Tuesday, Poole had declined to commit the township to legal action on the group home issue.

"I told people we wouldn't do anything until we knew what we were talking about it," said Poole. "I feel they

(the state of Michigan) have extended this thing beyond the scope of the law."

Poole planned to meet with a variety of homeowner association officials over the weekend in an effort to pull subdivision groups into the suit. According to Hemming, some legal questions — such as subdivision deed restrictions — cannot be raised by a municipality.

Cable bid prompts look into Omnicom

Has Omnicom lived up to its agreement for cable television service in Canton?

The Township Board plans an investigation into that question to determine if allegations of a competing cable company hold water.

MetroVision, an Atlanta-based company with a cable franchise in Redford, has asked the Township Board to reconsider its bid for a cable contract in Canton. MetroVision and Omnicom were among four firms that applied for a Canton franchise in 1979.

At last week's board meeting, MetroVision president Henry Harris attributed his firm's request to Omnicom's alleged lack of progress during its 14 months as the franchise holder. Harris maintains that Omnicom promised completion of the Canton system within 18 months and some service within six.

Only a handful of homes in Holiday Park subdivision are hooked to the cable system so far.

According to Omnicom president Peter Newell, construction in other areas of Canton should start around April 1, weather permitting.

At last week's meeting, however, Harris told the Township Board, "It's my observation that promises made have not been performed."

"I simply wanted to readdress you and indicate our sincere interest in a cable franchise in Canton. We stand ready, willing and able."

THE BOARD'S unanimous decision to take a fresh look at Omnicom and its franchise is an alternative to accepting a formal proposal from MetroVision.

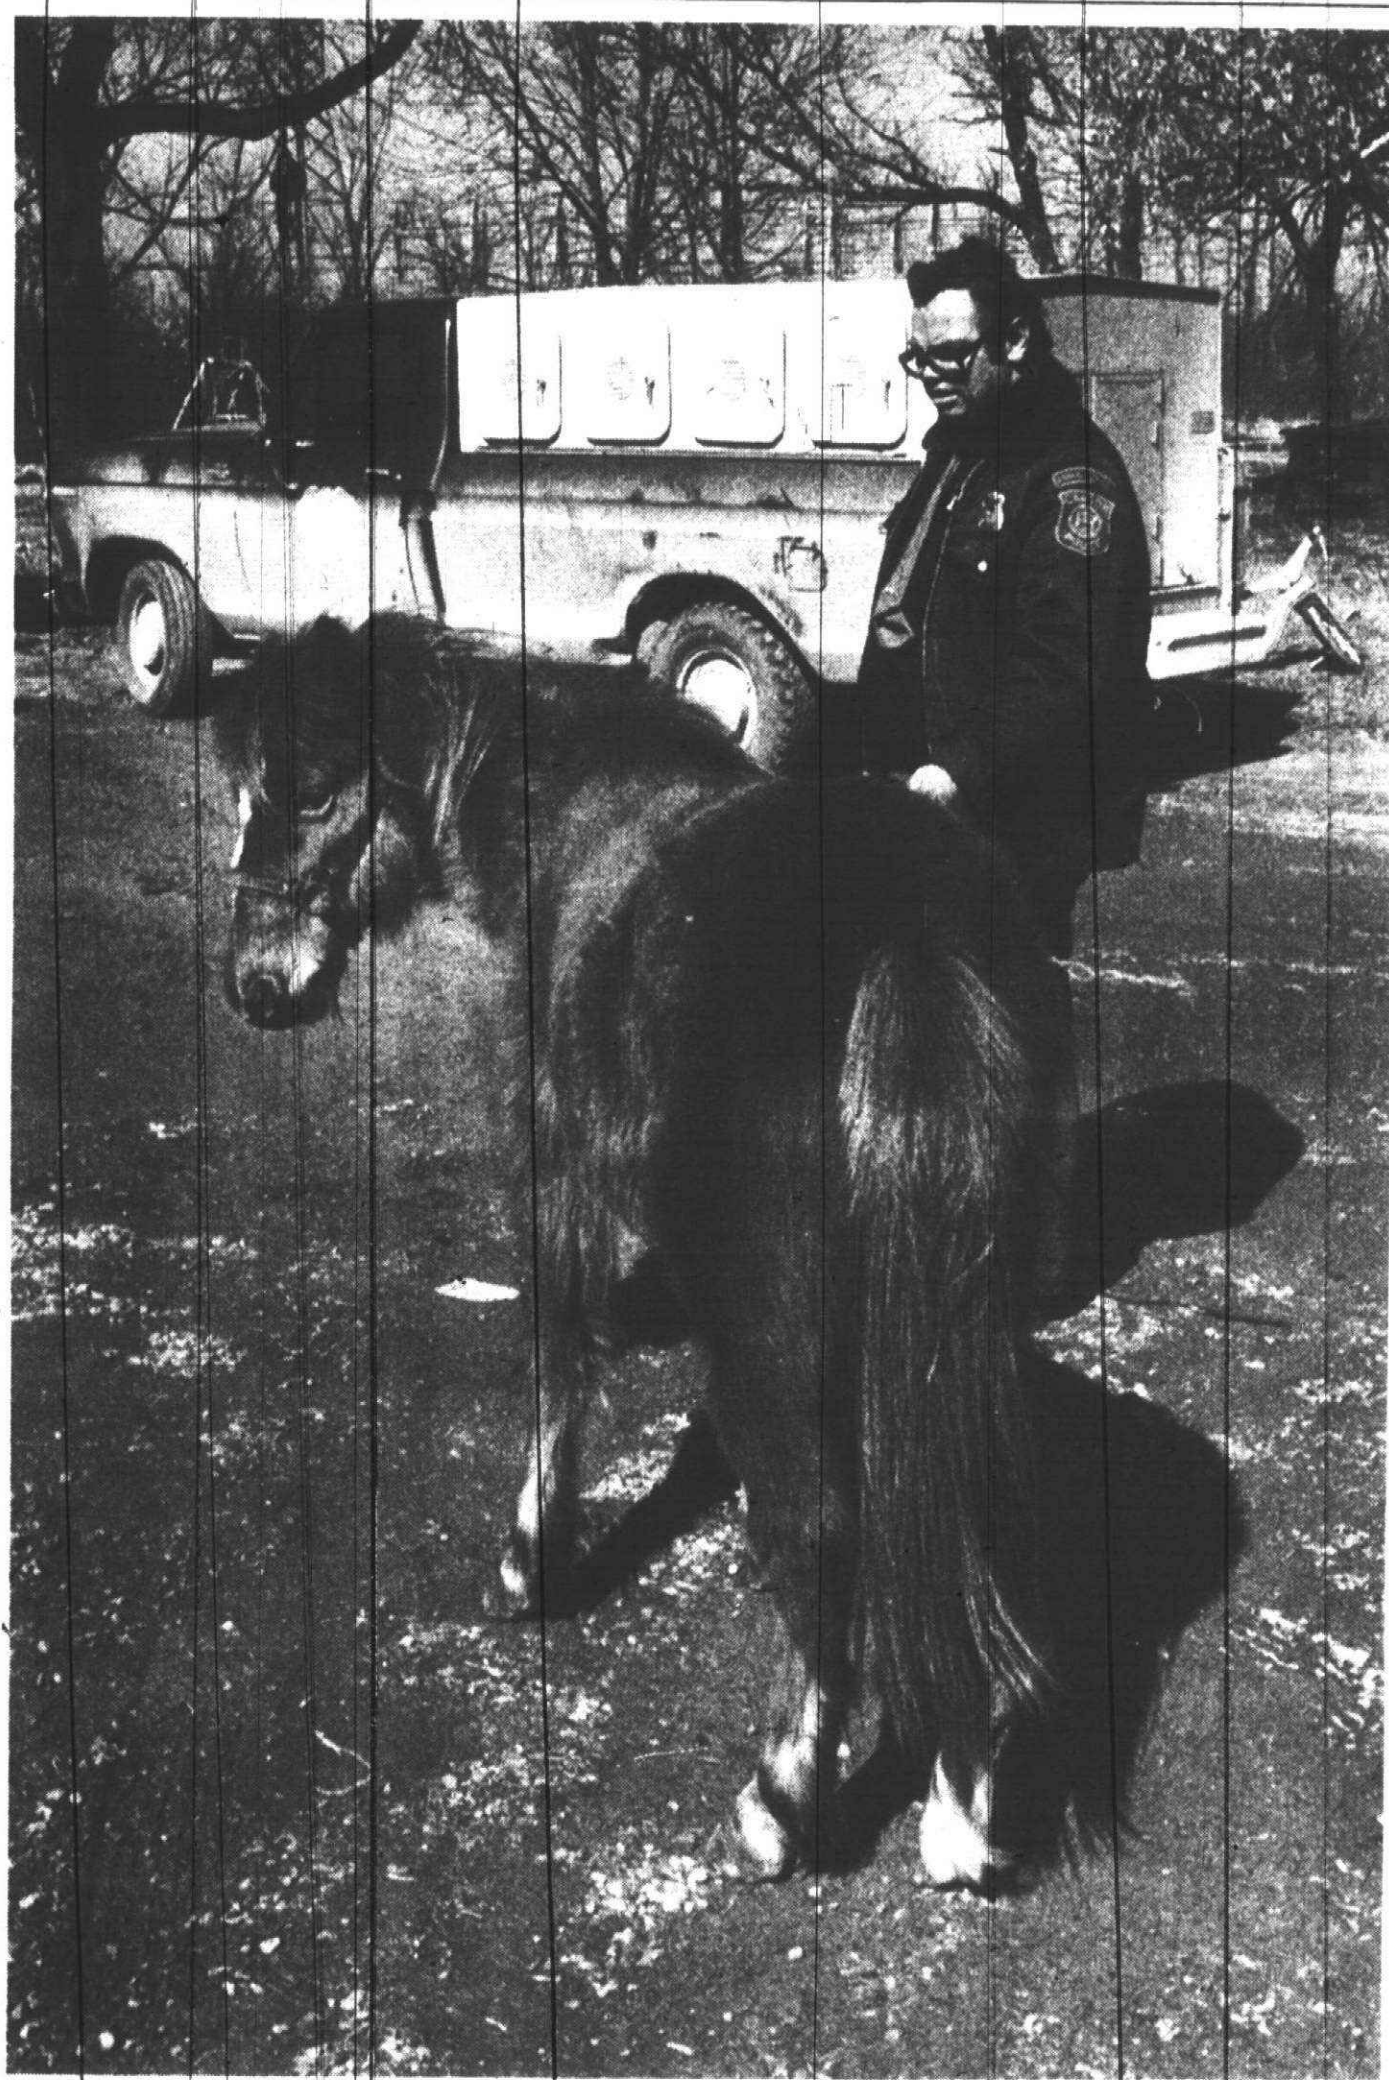

Newell, who sat silently in the audience section of the meeting room during Harris' presentation, said he was "absolutely delighted" about the board's decision.

"It's easy for someone on the outside to make allegations when they don't have the facts," Newell said of remarks from MetroVision officials.

"I'm of the belief that they're not aware of how far along we are. I think they probably believe we haven't done anything."

According to Newell, all preliminary work for construction of the Canton system is complete. He said cable com-

Little lost pony

As animal control officer John Swalley found out, ponies won't fit in a dog warden's wagon. This pony, found wandering near Lotz Road Thursday morning, was escorted by police on a two-mile trek to a temporary home. As of Friday afternoon, no one had claimed the pony at the Canton Police Department. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey.)

Officials weigh merger of police, fire departments

By ARLENE FUNKE

Could Canton cut costs by combining the police and fire departments into a single, public safety department?

Should police officers and firefighters be trained to perform both chores? Would such a plan work in Canton?

Township officials are studying those questions as they study the feasibility of blending the police and fire department into a public safety department. The goal would be to continue providing those services, while cutting operating expenses.

The Township Board last week adopted a resolution instructing administrators to research the issue. No deadline has been set for a report back to the board.

Police Chief Jerry Cox and Fire Chief Mel Paulun believe the consolidation plan is worth investigating.

"I THINK it's economically a good way to go," said Cox. "It appears to be a good movement for government in general."

Canton currently has separate fire and police departments. Budgets for those two departments are $1.3 million and $1.4 million respectively.

A full-time fire department was established in 1972, followed by the police department four years later. Each unit has its own dispatch operation.

Officials and administrators have been looking into the public safety idea within the past year.

For example, Cox, Paulun and Finance Director Mike Gorman last summer attended a public safety seminar in Lansing. Cox also visited the cities of Oak Park and Farmington to observe their public safety departments.

Paulun noted that Livonia has closed one fire station. And Westland — faced with defeat of a tax hike request last month — may lay off firefighters and police officers.

"IT APPEARS that public safety, in most cases, saves communities' money," said Gorman. "Right now, we're trying to come up with a ballpark figure to see if (the idea) is worth pursuing."

Some of the communities which have public safety departments include Wayne, Oak Park, Farmington, several of the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and Centerline. Several plans are available.

In some of the cities, police officers and firefighters are trained and able to function in both job skills. In others, duties are separate but dispatching is centralized.

Some departments retain separate fire and police chiefs who report to the public safety director. In others, administrative duties are streamlined.

GORMAN SAID initial checking will focus on the number of police and fire runs, response time, personnel and staffing. Later issues would center on insurance rates and the effect on police and fire unions.

School boundary vote due tonight

The final decision on school boundaries is expected tonight.

Last Thursday school trustees were in study session past midnight making final revisions in the modified Plan III and over the weekend those changes were being fed into the Ecosystem computers in Cleveland.

The plan is for everything to fall together today in time for the school board to give its final approval to redistricting, Extended School Year (ESY) expansion, and grade re-alignment.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the school board offices at 454 S. Harvey in the city of Plymouth. There is a chance the meeting will be moved, though, if too large of a crowd shows up.

THE SCHOOL BOARD's final public hearing lasted almost four hours last Thursday during which anyone who had something to say had a chance to speak out.

After the hearing ended at almost 11:30 p.m. school trustees decided to immediately go into a workshop study session to discuss changes which should be made based on public input.

That study session ended at 1:30 a.m. Friday with about 20 residents remaining in the audience. The public hearing opened with about 300 residents there.

According to a school source all of the changes made in Plan III involve shifts in school attendance boundaries.

The board plans to approve partial grade realignment as originally proposed in Plan III as well as expanded ESY to Bird and Fiegel elementary schools.

Another community park?

Plan hinges on OKs from 2 government bodies

A plan for the development of Canton's third community park shows facilities for soccer, softball and other sports activities.

But implementation of the $260,000 plan hinges on approvals from a state agency and the Canton Township Board.

Last week, the board authorized submission of a grant application to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for first-phase development of park land behind Township Hall.

The DNR will be asked to give Canton another commitment for monies from the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund. On Jan. 13, the Township Board rejected a commitment for 1981 matching monies which would have been used for the purchase of park land in northwest Canton.

If the revised grant application is approved by the DNR, the Township

Board must vote to accept the grant and match the federal monies with local funds. Recreation superintendent Mike Gouin has recommended the use of Canton's federal-revenue sharing funds to finance the township's $130,000 portion.

First-phase plans for the 45-acre parcel behind Township Hall call for development of six soccer fields, two softball fields and six tennis courts on a 29-acre portion of the site.

According to Gouin, a shortage of softball and soccer facilities has prevented many residents from participating in organized leagues.

BUT AT LEAST one member of the Canton Township Board has indicated that he may vote against allocating money for recreation because of the slumping economy.

DNR approval of the grant application could pit his philosophy against the spending priorities of some other board members.

Trustee Stephen Larson — the only official who voted against submitting the grant application last week — won his second term in office after campaigning for "no-frills" spending.

Larson, who gives a high spending priority to police and fire services, says he will stick to his campaign pledge.

"I find it difficult when, on the one hand, you try to cut down on government spending and then you approve something that isn't absolutely necessary," said Larson at a meeting last week.

"It's nice for a community to try to do these things. Canton is lucky. We're still in the black. But when you have people facing horrendous utility bills and horrible food bills, recreation isn't very important."

Another philosophy on the board offers the opposing point of view.

"I think recreational facilities close to home will be utilized more than ever," said Supervisor James Poole in reference to layoffs and a shortage of jobs for kids.

"The question I hear more than any other is 'what the hell am I getting for my tax dollar?'"

Trustee Robert Padgett maintains a "tremendous need" for additional recreational facilities.

"I think it's an area we've overlooked in the past. We have to live up to our obligation to provide these kinds of facilities."

ACCORDING TO GOUIN, only $39,000 of federal revenue sharing funds have been earmarked for recreation since 1978. That represents 4.2 percent of the $920,000 received.

Vietnam veterans organize plea for help

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

Clutching a pie tin, the veteran emerged from the garage where he had spent 11 years living inside a car.

It had become a ritual. Each day he would hold the pie tin up to the sun, and then return to his self-imposed confinement.

For 11 years his parents had searched for a mental health professional who would make house calls to visit their son. Finally, they found one who had agreed to stop by.

"What are you holding?" the professional asked the veteran as he held the pie tin aloft.

"It's my Purple Heart," the veteran replied.

THE STORY IS told by Cef Suarez, a 32-year-old Dearborn resident who is president and a founder of the Detroit chapter of Vietnam Veterans of America (VVA).

"It's sad to come home from Vietnam to regress to such a situation," said Suarez, a veteran who has worked for Michigan Bell for 14 years.

"We've all regressed to some degree," adds Jack Devine, a 33-year-old Warren resident. Devine, also a VVA member, works as a staff member in the satellite office of U.S. Sen. Don Riegle in Southfield.

"I know that the friends I have made (through VVA) during the last five or six months will be my friends for the rest of my life," Devine says.

But friendship and a sense of belonging have been a long time coming, according to these veterans.

"We're no different than other veterans. We want a normal life," says Suarez. "We're fragmented. We came home one at a time, and society was against us. So we'd go underground — slip under the mainstream."

"People thought we were dope heads, but everybody wasn't on dope," said Dan Monty, a 34-year-old Garden City resident who serves as second vice president of VVA. "We're not marching on everything or trying to blow up and take over stuff."

ONE BY ONE, veterans now are coming out of hiding to join groups dedicated to helping those who served in Vietnam.

The VVA is one such group. The Detroit chapter formed last October. That chapter includes all of Michigan, says

Suarez.

Suarez believes he was one victim of delayed stress syndrome.

"It closes in on you until you just want to run and take off," explained Suarez, who said he was "fed up" with media coverage of veterans. Suarez said he was having problems at home when he left his wife last year. After resolving those problems and returning home, Suarez said he talked with other veterans about forming an organization.

"I said I was willing to work. We keep the grapevine active. So we just kept bringing people in and that's how it (VVA) came about," he continued.

Now there are more than 400 on the Detroit chapter's mailing list. But there are other groups, such as the Michigan Association of Concerned

Veterans, but the veterans hope to join the separate groups by "creating an umbrella organization."

"We want to create a clearinghouse. There would be separate organizations but they would belong to a super organization," said Suarez.

"There's strength in numbers. It's an arguing point," reasoned Devine.

HIMSELF A Vietnam veteran, Devine is writing his master's thesis on Agent Orange. The chemical is a defoliant sprayed in Vietnam during the war. Veterans are now saying that exposure to the chemical has caused a number of health problems.

But Agent Orange is only one of the problems Vietnam veterans say they are now faced with. Others include isolation and alienation, delayed stress syndrome, and high rates for divorce, suicide and unemployment.

A list of needs, according to these veterans, also includes upgrading Veterans Administration facilities; improving the benefits structure to fit current economic times; and continuing outreach programs, such as the Bamboo Rap on Seven Mile near Southfield, which are now threatened by federal budget cuts.

The Detroit chapter also needs office and meeting space.

"We meet wherever we can get a hall free," said Suarez. He added that the group's phone bill amounts to more than $200 for information and referrals. Added to that are costs for postage and printing.

While dues of $18 a year are charged by the Detroit chapter, the group is planning several fund-raising events to help cover costs and to start job development programs and begin a half-way house for those veterans unable to adjust in society.

SUAREZ ESTIMATES that there are 360,000 Vietnam veterans in Michigan. But that figure doesn't include those troubled veterans who left Vietnam with "bad paper" — a discharge that was less than honorable.

"There was a lot of bad paper coming out of Vietnam," said Devine, estimating that 500,000 Michigan servicemen were in Vietnam.

Filing deadline nears for school candidates

Any resident wanting to run for a seat on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education has until April 6 to file nominating petitions.

In the June 8 election, residents will be voting on who will fill one four-year term on the school board.

The position presently is held by incumbent Stephen Harper, vice-president of the school board. Harper has not yet indicated whether he will seek re-election.

Petition forms are available from the Board of Education office at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth, and should be returned to that office.

Each petition must contain a minimum of 28 valid signatures, a figure based on the number of voters in the last election.

The regular school election will be held on June 8 with voting at the regular school election polling places.

April 9 is the last day on which a potential candidate can withdraw from the ballot.

Further information about the petitions can be obtained by calling 453-0200, ext. 422.

Treasurer's mom is working for free

By ARLENE FUNKE

Township Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz is smarting because some persons are crying "nepotism" in her choice of a deputy treasurer.

Ms. Falkiewicz on March 4 named her mother, Athena Sterlini, to be deputy treasurer on a temporary basis.

Since then, several township officials — including the supervisor and at least one trustee — have said they've received complaints that the appointment smacks of nepotism.

"I'M CONCERNED because people are upset," Ms. Falkiewicz told the Observer. "The term (name) deputy is very uncomfortable. People tend to think of it as political."

"I don't understand it," added Ms. Falkiewicz. "I guess I don't like to see anybody discredited."

State law requires township treasurers and clerks to appoint a deputy, which is a non-union position. Mrs. Falkiewicz has said that her deputy will function as an assistant department head.

Ms. Falkiewicz emphasizes that Mrs. Sterlini currently is unpaid. Any salary for the deputy's position must be set by the Township Board, but Ms. Falkiewicz said she has no immediate plans to request the board to set a pay rate.

"I am surprised (by the negative reaction) because there is no salary," said Ms. Falkiewicz. "It's unjust, but how do you prevent that?"

Under the treasurer's jurisdiction are collecting taxes, handling receipts and disbursements and making investments. The treasurer also sits on the Township Board.

MRS. STERLINI had been working without pay in the treasurer's department for several weeks while a regular employee was on medical leave. However, some members of the clerical union balked about that unpaid status.

Ms. Falkiewicz said she then made a "forced, quick" decision to make the appointment, which she described as interim. Ms. Falkiewicz — the township's first full-time treasurer — had hoped to delay naming a deputy until she could assess the department's needs.

About 20 persons had submitted applications for the deputy treasurer's slot, according to Ms. Falkiewicz. Many of those were unsuccessful candidates for public office.

Mrs. Sterlini had owned a beauty shop for many years, and recently had handled financial affairs for a family auto parts business. Her future plans may include going into a new business.

IN THE MEANTIME, Ms. Falkiewicz said she favors a full-time deputy. She said most deputy treasurers earn between $18,000-$24,000 per year. "This (position) is for internal supervision," said Ms. Falkiewicz. "It's important that the things are handled properly and efficiently."

"There should be somebody who can take over," she added. "It's important to have somebody you can trust."

These Irish folks started St. Pat's parade

By TERI BANAS

It was 23 years ago that the late Malachy O'Hare of Plymouth had a dream of celebrating St. Patrick's Day in a big way.

Then a resident of Dearborn, he banded and a couple of brothers and friends also questioned, "If New York can have a St. Patrick's Day parade, why can't Detroit?"

Together, they took the idea of a local parade to a municipal judge of Irish descent in Dearborn. He agreed with the plan and started the ball rolling.

Rose Flanagan, Malachy's sister, now lives in Westland. She recalls the day the dream took shape — a dream that would blossom into the annual St. Patrick's Day parade along Woodward in Detroit.

The local judge then was George T. Martin, now a visiting judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court.

"It was a tremendous undertaking," said Martin.

"There hadn't been one in Detroit in 50 years. People told me 'We've tried it before. It's fatalistic. It can't be done.'"

Nonetheless, Martin also recalled the grandeur of New York's event and wanted to duplicate here in Detroit.

Planning started almost a year before the event, with meetings held weekly in Martin's courtroom. The O'Hares, Flanagans and their friends, members of the Dearborn Gaels, didn't give up.

THE PARADE they had in mind would top anything tried before. Most of the earlier attempts, 50 years ago, amounted to marches by military veterans.

Martin recalls many obstacles not previously imagined. For instance, he learned, to allow a high school band to march in the parade, he needed clearance from the American Federation of Labor.

By the time the parade was to take place, they had secured 15 floats, 25 marching bands, the Detroit mounted police, a kilted marching band from Ypsilanti, "queens from every city and township in Wayne County, and an Irish Wolfhound to lead the parade."

"It was beautiful," said Martin, "that

Mayor John O'Reilly crowns Sally Flanagan of Westland as Queen of the Dearborn Gaels. With her is Shirley Lang (right), a member of the queen's court, which will lead the western Wayne County section of the parade.

dog looked like the maid of Erin."

And just like in New York City, they ran a green ribbon down Michigan Avenue to highlight the event.

A theme was developed. It was "Everybody's Irish on the St. Patrick's Day." Many nationalities participated.

On the morning of the event, held on the Sunday before St. Patrick's Day, the weather turned sour.

"It rained like the devil," said Martin. "By the afternoon, the wind blew 50 miles an hour and the wind chill factor dropped to 20 degrees below zero."

"But I didn't care what would happen. After 50 years, we were going to have a parade."

"IT WAS one of the windiest days that God ever created," said Mrs. Flanagan.

During the parade, floats were ripped apart by the heavy winds. One of those, built by students of a Sacred Heart High in Dearborn, was resurrected in time to place first in the parade competition.

"It took two men just to carry the flags and keep them from blowing away," said Martin.

Despite all the setbacks, Martin says, "I was very happy about that parade."

"When I looked down Michigan Avenue and saw all those people dressed in green, carrying green banners, I couldn't give up."

The next year, the parade was moved to Detroit, where Martin said the city brought the parade into "the big league."

Since the late 1950s, the children of the parade originators have continued in the celebration of the national holiday and their ethnic heritage.

Tim O'Hare, 20, son of Malachy and Maureen O'Hare, now runs the O'Hare Irish Dance School in Plymouth. His sister, Colleen, runs a branch of that school on the east side of Detroit.

Tim O'Hare, who commutes to Ypsilanti where he attends Eastern Michigan University during the week, runs the school for 100 students in Plymouth on the weekends.

THE SCHOOL was a natural outlet for this six-time world competition dancer. O'Hare has competed in international competitions in Dublin since 1972.

Sunday, O'Hare's school was represented in the Detroit St. Patrick's Day parade with a float built by students' parents.

"When I was younger, my father started us in the dance, and it may be that his interest in our dancing kept me going."

His school, which started with seven students in his parents' home two years ago, now operates out of the Unlimited Dance Studio on Ann Arbor Trail.

Two of Tim's four brothers, Michael, 17, and Sean, 12, also have continued their dancing.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Flanagan's daughter, Sally, participated in yesterday's parade down Woodward as the crowned queen of the Dearborn Gaels.

panies must receive permission from utilities before laying any lines. The application is time-consuming and cannot begin until a franchise is granted.

Omnicom's contract with Canton promises completion of the cable system within 18 months of receiving permits from the Federal Communication Commission (FCC).

Newell said the FCC no longer issues those permits. The practice was halted prior to Township Board approval of the Omnicom franchise.

"However, that's not uncommon terminology in (franchise) ordinances," said Newell. "Even today, many cable companies are not aware (of the halted practice)."

Newell said Omnicom "relishes the opportunity for an investigation." He attributes the board's questions concerning his firm "to a lack of communication, not a lack of performance."

"A good deal of that responsibility is ours. Constructing a cable system is a very complex and time-consuming task. In order for us to educate the board, we expect it will take several hours to explain to them all the work that's been done."

Newell said the entire Canton system should be completed by the end of this year.

AT LAST WEEK'S board meeting, however, some officials indicated a willingness to hear another bid from MetroVision.

Supervisor James Poole said Omnicom's contract is "non-exclusive." Other contracts can be awarded.

"Really, everyone will back off once the first guy gets there (and installs the cable system)," said Poole.

Trustee Carol Bodenmiller noted MetroVision's pledge for a Canton-only cable system with offices and studios within the township limits. Omnicom, which holds franchises in the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, will broadcast local programming for the entire Plymouth-Canton area.

The firm's contracts in the Plymouth communities contributed strongly to the Canton board's selection of Omnicom in December 1979.

Last week, however, Mrs. Bodenmiller noted a township drive to establish a separate identity for Canton.

"Here, we could look at a proposal that is uniquely Canton," she said of the MetroVision bid. "With Omnicom, we're sharing with all the other communities."

Other board members said acceptance of a MetroVision proposal would force the township to hear bids from other companies as well.

"I think it would be a very bad decision to ask MetroVision to come back with a proposal unless we pull the franchise from Omnicom," said Trustee Stephen Larson.

"We have a responsibility to our citizens. If we get cable, we have to make sure it's a good and profitable system."

Township and cable company officials have said a community of Canton's size cannot profitably support more than one cable company.

Last month, MetroVision attorney Abraham Singer maintained that his firm could install Canton's system more quickly than Omnicom.

At the time, Newell scoffed at those remarks because of the preliminary construction work his company has completed.

Schools gear up for final decision

There were some boundary changes made last Monday night at the regular school board meeting. Those changes were revealed and discussed at Thursday's hearing with further changes following the hearing.

The concerned parents alliance from Bird Elementary presented its plan which would have eliminated ESY at all elementary by putting the high school on half-days.

The board also heard another appeal arguing against its plans to move grade nine out of the high schools and into some middle schools.

Tonight's special meeting will be broadcast by WSDP (88.1 on the FM dial), the student-operated radio station at Plymouth Salem High School.

Richard Egli, director of community relations, said the board is pleased with the amount of input received from residents and appreciates the fact that parents were expressing matters of real concern to them.

"The board now is faced with having to make a final decision which will not make everyone happy. But that decision must be made, the time to do so is now, and the need to decide is not going to go away."

Dr. John M. Hbbs, superintendent, also expressed confidence that a final decision on approving the modified Plan III would be made tonight.

The Plymouth-Canton Concerned Parents Alliance has appealed beyond the local-school board with a letter to the state superintendent of public instruction.

That group claims its plan for split sessions at the high schools would save $1.2 million the first year compared to Plan III added costs of more than $597,000.

The alliance plan calls for juniors and seniors to attend high school form

7:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. while freshmen and sophomores would go to classes from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. A sandwich lunch would be made available to those wanting one.

Among the alliance leaders are Roland Thomas, Larry Bell, Paul Fitzpatrick and Otto Hornish.

Children need flouride

Some 50 percent of children in the United States should have fluoride supplements prescribed in their preschool years in order to have sound teeth.

However, a new University of Michigan School of Public Health survey shows that a significant number of pediatricians and other physicians (more likely than dentists to see preschoolers) either did not receive enough training in medical school about prescribing fluorides or lacked up-to-date information of the correct dosage.

As a result of the nationwide survey conducted by the Wayne State University and U-M with the aid of the Kellogg Foundation, a new educational program has been started to provide doctors with the necessary information on fluoride.

Results of the mail poll of pediatricians and family doctors were reported by U-M researchers at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association.

Although 91.9 percent of the pediatricians and 86.5 percent of the family doctors among the 1,286 physicians who completed questionnaires said they recognized the importance of fluoride in preventing tooth decay, two-thirds of them indicated they learned little about fluoride in their medical training, the U-M researchers reported.

Convicted man faces sentence for murder of 5

A man convicted of killing two Canton Township men and three other persons in 1978 will be sentenced April 3.

Scheduled to be sentenced that date by Washtenaw Circuit Court Judge Ross Campbell will be Billy Edward Hardesty, 23, of Van Buren Township.

A jury recently found Hardesty guilty, but mentally ill, on seven charges stemming from a shooting spree in October 1978 in western Wayne and Washtenaw counties. Killed were five persons, including Hardesty's parents.

The verdict means Hardesty will be sentenced to life in prison or in a mental institution.

HARDESTY was found guilty of first-degree murder in the killing of his mother Jeannette in her Van Buren Township home, Troy Curry, 28, of Canton Township, and Timothy Schofield, 21, of Belleville, in a bar parking lot; and Daniel Wood, 38, of Canton Township, a former brother-in-law, in a Ypsilanti Township tool and die shop.

Hardesty also was found guilty of second-degree murder in the death of his father Ron; and of assault to commit murder in the wounding of Bobby J. Baker, 26, of Westland, and Tommy Brown, 29, of Tecumseh.

Court testimony during the four-week trial disclosed the following chain of events during a 10-hour period Oct. 18-19, 1978:

Hardesty shot his father six times and stuffed the body into a freezer at the family home. A few hours later, when his mother came home, Hardesty shot her four times in the face.

EARLY the next morning, Hardesty went to a bar in Ypsilanti where he shot and killed Schofield and Curry in the parking lot.

Two hours later, Hardesty went to a metal-working shop in Ypsilanti Township, where he shot and killed Wood, brother of Hardesty's former wife.

With travelogue

Switzerland to be visited Wednesday

Switzerland will be the country visited in Wednesday's travelogue sponsored by the Plymouth Kiwanis Foundation.

The Travel and Adventure Series will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School on Joy west of Canton Center Road.

The travelogue is co-sponsored by the Plymouth Kiwanis Club and by the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth.

"Switzerland — Now & Then" will be narrated by Robert O'Reilly.

O'Reilly attended the University of Notre Dame majoring in mechanical engineering. He enlisted in the U.S. Air Force, was commissioned a second lieutenant and served as an officer of the 441st Fighter Squadron, 3rd Air Force. He was vice president of an office supply company until 1964 when he organized his own photography business and motion picture firm.

He has been official photographer for the sheriff's department of Allen County and also for the Indiana State Police. He is an accredited Department of Defense photographer for WKJG-TV in Fort Wayne and has covered many overseas assignments for them.

O'Reilly has now turned to producing a travel film on Switzerland — a European fairyland.

with medieval buildings, huge gateways, fountains and the famous clock of Bern.

A visit then is made to Zurich — the financial center of Switzerland, the country's largest city, and the economic capital of the city.

While in old Zurich, which dates back to the Bronze Age, viewers will meet Karel Samal, a violinmaker who has a shop on one of the old cobblestone streets.

And then a stop to Geneva with its famous lakeside setting, floral clock, and international charm. A stop at Lucerne shows its architecture of towers, belfries and bridges.

The film also covers little mountain hamlets, the Lake of Brienz and includes a stop at an internationally famous woodcarving school.

Other highlights are the scenery of the Matterhorn and the Eiger, an aerial car ride to the summit of Mount Pilatus, the grace of alpine skiing, a trip through a watch factor, a textile school, and a clock museum, an exploration of old castle courtyards and participation in a Swiss festival.

THE FILM takes the viewers up the Alps' green valleys dotted with brown-roofed chalets, crystal lakes and quiet forests.

The viewer then can stroll through Bern and look at the old section lined

Discrimination is prohibited

To the editor:

While I've got my typewriter out, I would like to express an opinion in another more volatile area.

As an associate broker in real estate I sympathize with Robert Bake, the Plymouth broker who unfortunately had his thoughts as an individual published regarding the possible opening of a neighborhood foster care home.

As we all know most kinds of discrimination are prohibited by law in respect to the sale or lease of property. Also, it has been similar statements in the past which have caused property devaluation — rumor, then fear, which in turn has led to "block busting" in other matters — which also is held in low regard in our "profession."

Hope home works out

To the editor:

I hope the home for the mentally retarded works out well in our town.

Believing that all human beings are my brothers and sisters, I cannot say that the value of my land or property is more important than a home environment for another "less fortunate" person or group of persons. My priorities are that people come first.

There seems to be an unreal situation when retarded people are put into a mental institution and forgotten by society. It is simply not true that everyone grows up pretty and talented, and that is OK.

How to sell your auto

The Plymouth Jaycees, as a public service, are offering residents a way of selling their personal automobiles — new or used.

On two successive Saturdays, March 21, 28, the Jaycees will make space available for residents to bring their cars and put them on display.

The Jaycees will be using the property at the northeast corner of Ann Arbor Road and Main at the site formerly occupied by Bob Jeannotte Pontiac and before that by Don Massey Cadillac.

Anyone wanting to sell a car only has to pay a fee of $5 to have it displayed from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The car owner need not be present all day.

Anyone wanting additional information may contact Mike Stankov at 459-6749.

Conservative court throws a punch

Perhaps the scariest aspect of the latest U.S. Supreme Court ruling on civil rights is the eerie vacuum in which the decision was received.

In 1964, when Lyndon Johnson signed into law the strongest civil rights legislation since the Civil War, America was a different place.

Martin Luther King Jr. was around to acclaim the landmark legislation. Blacks and whites who had marched in Selma, Ala., rejoiced with their victory.

Women were just beginning to understand the kind of effect the legislation would have for them, although leaders in the women's movement were aware that it would take a constitutional amendment to guarantee them equality under the law.

Senior citizens were a much smaller proportion of the population at that time, without political clout, and most observers failed to identify the aged as victims of discrimination.

Many of us assumed the battle for equality was won in 1964, while the perceptive anticipated that the battle was just beginning.

But no one could have outlined the scenario of the next 17 years that would end in a high court decision emasculating the civil rights laws.

THE SUPREME Court's recent ruling places the burden of proof of racial or sex discrimination in hiring or promotion on the rejected job applicant. Employers have no legal obligation to hire a woman or minority when a white man is equally qualified, they said.

Affirmative action plans, in which employers seek out minority and female candidates for jobs, have been a sore point for the last decade. How the decision will affect such plans remains to be seen. But it is clear that fighting discrimination will be even more difficult than in the past.

Even the New York Times, the liberal bastion of journalism, had to be forced by a court suit on behalf of its own employees to promote women and blacks to supervisory positions on the newspaper.

After 17 years, minorities and women are only one step up on the ladder to equality, and the Supreme Court just chopped out the bottom rung.

The ruling certainly prompts some questions. Does the decision mark a clear-cut change in America's view of minorities and women? And how will the decision affect our society?

It's not difficult to see how it happened. Courts reflect society, particularly the society electing a president, who appoints the court. The Burger court is Nixon's legacy. Particularly Chief Justice Warren Burger and William Rehnquist, both Nixon appointees, render extremely conservative, even reactionary, views of the Constitution. William Douglas was the last true representative of the Warren Court, which made the landmark rulings on civil rights, criminal proceedings and desegregation.

The court today is in step with the times, perhaps even a little ahead of it, just as the Warren Court was in the 1950s and early '60s. As the pendulum swings back, we will probably see more decisions that reflect the white, male-dominated power structure in the country, which sees itself deeply threatened by the inroads made by blacks and women.

AFFIRMATIVE action has taken its lumps from critics, particularly white males who previously never had to compete with minorities and women for jobs in a tight market. Critics argue that incompetency is overlooked in the rush to bring aboard minorities and women who satisfy quotas.

I'm sure that's true in some cases. It's also true that minorities and women continue to be bypassed in favor of white men. Look who's doing the hiring?

How many personnel directors are black or female? How many General Motors' executives are Jewish? How many school superintendents and principals are women? How many elected officials, including judges, are members of a minority or are female?

For those of us who fought the battles in the 1950s, the latest ruling comes as another heavy blow, probably the first of many in the tumult of a new decade in which the power structure fights to regain control. As Hispanic Juan Trujillo said, "We were on one leg; now they've pulled the other out."

It's difficult to re-energize for another fight, the same fight we thought was won. That's apparent from the apathy that greeted the court's ruling.

How many times does the power structure have to strike before we begin to spar?

Oil boycott grows; 'energy crisis' protested

It was the president who called for decontrol, and with the extra money they now charge for gas, it will be the consumer who will be paying for new exploration of gas, not the oil companies.

We, too, protest the high cost of gas. It is the world's biggest ripoff. Right behind them are the utility companies.

Inflation would be controlled if oil and the utility companies were stopped from raping the American people.

What I can't figure out is, with the prices continuing to rise and profits steadily increasing, how come it's so difficult to find a service station these days? You're lucky to

No cuts for NASA, reader urges

To the editor:

We all realize that the nation's economy dictates that certain cuts in spending have to be made. However, we cannot afford to curtail programs which are necessary to our national survival.

One such area is NASA and the space program.

In this technological age, the old methods of dealing with the problems of national survival in the fields of economics, industrialism, the military, etc. are no longer viable.

This fact has been brought home to Detroiters by recent Japanese inroads into the automobile market. American manufacturers no longer can compete with the European or Japanese with products such as cameras, radios, sewing machines, etc.

One of the few areas in which we still maintain some advantage is the NASA program. It has been determined by the Chase Econometrics Agency that the benefits from space technologies are on the order of 14:1 for each dollar expended both in direct and spin-off returns.

Even if we disregard this fact or the benefits of job creation in this or related industries due to this program; if we hamstring these program by budget cuts we may someday find that we are at the mercy of some nation which has gone forward with these programs can now control our whole communication system and might be able to knock out our defense system in a matter of minutes.

The tremendous technology required to control missiles and guide spacecraft for years of journey to a predetermined target necessitates very special teams of experts.

If these programs are too drastically curtailed, these teams would of necessity be broken up and lost to us, perhaps forever. Certainly they could not be reassembled at short notice.

We have already scuttled the Solar-Polar Project which is causing great consternation among our allies. The Europeans are now seeking the aid of Japan and the Soviet Union so that the effort could be carried out. We can hardly afford to be thus by-passed.

I urge you to write to your congressmen and to Sens. Levin and Riegle and request that they not vote to cut the NASA programs.

Somebody bet on da bay

Last time daughter Tzviah woke us up with a late-night telephone call, it was to ask me to tape a show in memory of John Lennon.

Just after 2:30 a.m. Monday, she called again. This time we knew in advance what it was about — not a death, but a birth.

"A filly, a beautiful bay filly with a white blaze down her face," she exulted. "I saw the whole birth, even opened the bag for her. We've got it all on movie film."

For Tzviah, who aspires to a career of breeding and showing full-blooded Arabian horses, that birth was both a beginning and a culmination.

Since she was 18 months old, Jack and I have known our daughter has a special love for horses. It's an interest that seems almost inborn, and it has never waned.

Whether she indulged herself with horse figures, books on horse lore, or the animals themselves, horses were always a part of Tzviah's life.

Even in college, when she pointed toward the master's in social work she would earn. Tzviah worked at Boysville not far from the University of Michigan, caring for the boys, for more than 20 horses and teaching about horse history, anatomy and care.

FOR SEVERAL years, she has lived on a small farm in Ann Arbor, for her a special place where she can "look out my kitchen window while washing the dishes and see my own horse."

Presently, Tzviah owns several horses; two are about to foal.

But it's the one that did foal in the wee hours of Monday that's her special baby.

She found Vashti more than four years ago in an ad in the paper.

"I wanted a baby horse," she said, "and when I saw this ad that asked $200 for a 5-month-old half-Arabian filly, I couldn't believe it."

Vashti had been separated from her mother when only weeks old and was living on a small farm in Willis, Mich., near Ypsilanti. The farmer bought her cheaply because he thought his own mare too old to foal. But the mare abused the little gray foundling and he had to keep her locked in a stall.

"That's why he decided to sell her so cheaply," Tzviah said. When she first saw her, the horse was pathetic — thin, scratched and scuffed, never even wormed.

"So I had the vet out and told him to worm her anyhow and give me an opinion. I didn't think she'd live long without some basic care."

LIKE TZVIAH, the vet though Vashti was a nice specimen, well-formed and refined, a steal for $200. She paid $195 and Vashti has been her baby ever since.

She's taken some ribbons in the show ring and shaped up beautifully. Her name comes from the Purim story. Vashti is a stubborn heroine who won't give in to the evil forces in ancient Persia. And Tzviah's Vashti is stubborn, too.

Despite severe fatigue from interrupted sleep, Jack and I made the trip out to the farm and then to the Dexter farm where Vashti and her foal are. We figured our fatigue was only marginal. After all, Tzviah had been sleeping in the barn for nearly two weeks on bales of hay and in two sleeping bags awaiting the birth.

Now, my sole experience with horses came at age 12 when I mounted one briefly, fell off, and sustained a compound fracture of my right arm. That's another story, but since then I have been happier keeping my distance from horses. The few times I have approached, I found they sense my nervousness and react similarly.

For the first time in many years, I saw a horse I wanted to touch.

SHE'S a frail, bay filly, agile on long, long legs, with three white socks and that white blaze down her face. Bay is a rich, velvety golden brown color. Her coat is like soft velvet also.

Standing next to her stately gray mother, only 17 hours old, she made a beautiful sight. And the two cantered around the arena, nuzzled and posed for dozens of pictures that Jack took.

It's going to take a couple of weeks, Tzviah says, to really know what the baby's going to be like. She may change colors and could be gray like Vashti or bay like her father.

Tzviah and the trainer are betting she'll stay a bay.

An hour ago, Jack came into this office, sheepishly keeping his arms behind him. I already know that means he's brought me flowers.

Two roses, bright yellow and flame orange, were what he handed me with a card. The card says: "Congratulations on your new arrival — You're my filly, too."

He's just trying to ease the shock of my becoming a great-mother, I know.

FRITTATAS

What's a frittata? Frittata is Italian for omelet while in Spanish an omelet is a tortilla (not to be confused with the Mexican pancake which is similar to a cornmeal crepe). This type of unfolded omelet is also sometimes called a pancake or open-faced omelet.

In any language, frittatas are fun! They're fast to fix, a real flash-in-the-pan main dish for a super supper, better breakfast, nutritious noontime meal or satisfying snack. Since a frittata is just as good cold as hot, you can even pack one along in your cooler for a tailgate party or wrap up a wedge for a take-along lunch.

Some people find frittatas easier to make than French omelets since you cook a frittata's filling right along with the eggs. And, frittatas are inexpensive, too! Eggs, the main ingredient, are one of today's best food buys. If you use leftovers for the filling, a frittata can be one of the most economical entrees you've ever served.

Check the tips that follow and try one of the recipes shown or use the basic recipe to create your own fantastic frittata.

TIPS FOR MAKING FRITTATAS OR TORTILLAS

(Italian or Spanish Omelets)

• You might find it easier to slide a frittata onto a serving platter if you use a slope-sided pan. A vertical-sided pan will work well if you serve a frittata right from the pan or invert it onto a serving platter. A well-seasoned pan or one with a non-stick finish helps prevent sticking. If you finish a frittata under the broiler, a pan with an ovenproof handle is a MUST. You can make a frittata several different sizes depending on how many people you wish to serve. The chart in the following basic frittata recipe suggests pan sizes for various frittata sizes.

• One difference between a French omelet and a frittata is that you put all the frittata's filling ingredients into the pan with the egg mixture. Since a frittata's cooking time is too short to cook raw foods, saute or fully cook them before you add them to the egg mixture. The total cooking time depends on the frittata's size. Because a frittata cooks from the outside in, you can hasten a large frittata's cooking time by gently stirring the mixture to move the hotter outer portions towards the center. Try not to disturb the bottom or sides of the mixture while stirring. Use low to medium heat to avoid overbrowning the sides and bottom before the frittata's center sets.

• Another difference between a French omelet and a frittata is that a frittata is cooked on both sides. You can invert a small frittata onto a plate and then slip it back into the pan to cook the other side. You might find it easier, though, to cover the pan and let it stand off the heat for 3 to 10 minutes while steam cooks the top OR to broil the frittata about 6 inches from the heat for 2 to 3 minutes. Broiling is especially nice when you top a frittata with shredded cheese.

• There are three ways to serve a frittata. You can cut it into wedges (like a pie) and serve it right from the pan or slide an uncut frittata top-side up onto a platter. Either method is good for a cheese-topped frittata. You can also invert a frittata onto a platter and serve it browned-side up.

BASIC FRITTATA OR TORTILLA

(Italian or Spanish Omelet)

Frittatas are a great way to use leftovers creatively and you can use a bit more or less than the suggested filling ingredient/s amounts. If you use watery ingredients (like fresh tomatoes, cooked spinach or zucchini) cut down on or eliminate the liquid. Use seasonings that complement your filling ingredients and add a bit more than suggested if you like well-seasoned foods. The chart below is a general guide.

Servings	Filling Ingredient/s*	Butter	Eggs	Liquid	Seasoning/s	Pan Size
1	1/2 cup	1 Tbsp	2	2 Tbsps	1/8 tsp	6"
2	1 cup	1 Tbsp	4	1/4 cup	1/4 tsp	6-8"
3	1-1/2 cups	2 Tbsp	6	1/3 cup	1/4 tsp	8"
4	2 cups	2 Tbsp	8	1/2 cup	1/2 tsp	10"

Chop and cook any raw filling ingredient/s. Set aside. Melt butter in omelet pan or skillet with ovenproof handle over medium heat. Beat together eggs, liquid and seasoning/s. Stir in reserved filling ingredient/s. Pour into pan. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 9 to 10 minutes. Broil about 6 inches from heat until eggs are completely set, 3 to 4 minutes. OR, cover pan. Remove from heat and let stand 5 to 7 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve from pan, or either slide from pan or invert onto serving platter.

OR, sprinkle with shredded cheese, buttered bread crumbs, crushed corn flakes or tortilla chips, if desired. Broil about 6 inches from heat until cheese melts or topping is lightly browned.

Cut frittata into wedges and serve from pan, or either slide from pan or invert onto serving platter.

CARROT FRITTATA

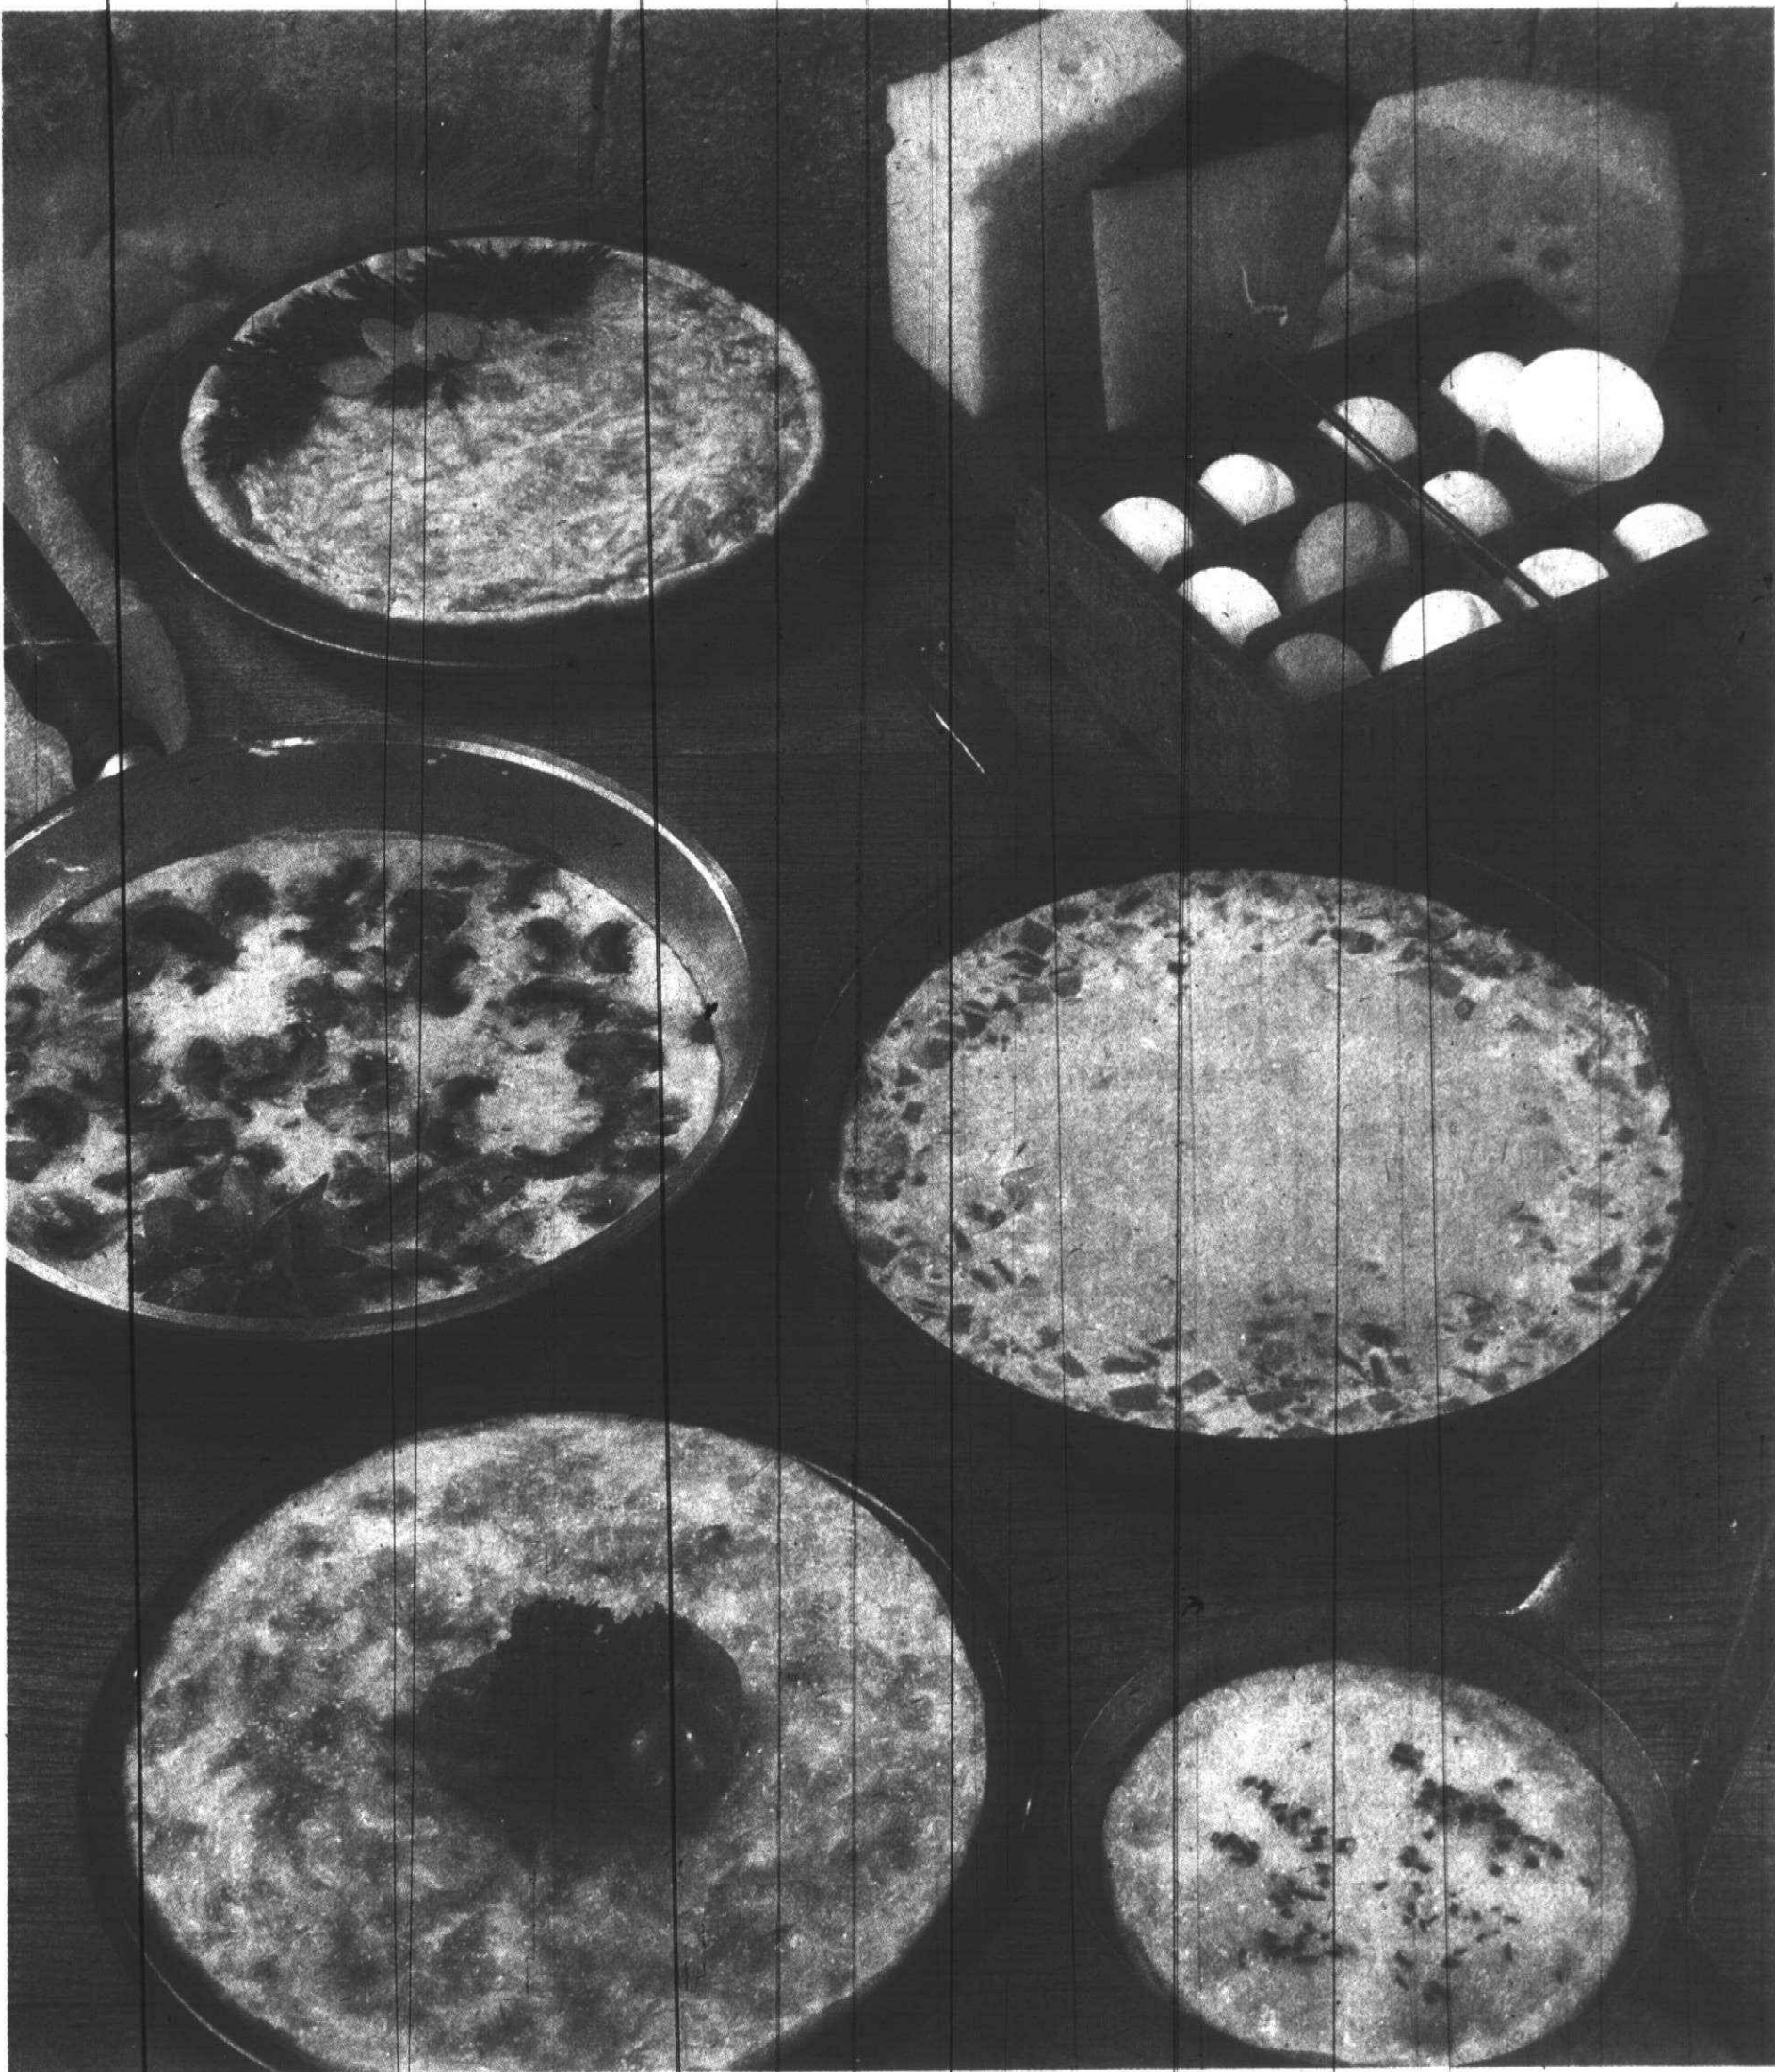

4 servings

Lunch, supper, late evening snack — this easy skillet meal is great anyplace. Let it star at a brunch next weekend.

1 cup shredded carrots	1/4 teaspoon thyme or marjoram leaves, crushed, optional
1/2 cup chopped onion	1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup water	2 tablespoons butter
8 eggs	Carrot slices, optional
1/2 cup milk	Parsley sprigs, optional
1/2 teaspoon powdered mustard
1/2 teaspoon celery salt

Combine carrot, onion and water in 10-inch omelet pan or skillet with ovenproof handle. Cover and cook over medium-high heat until carrots are cooked, about 5 minutes. Drain. Beat together eggs, milk and seasonings. Stir in carrot-onion mixture. Melt butter in same pan over medium heat. Pour egg-carrot mixture into pan. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 9 to 10 minutes. Broil about 6 inches from heat until eggs are completely set, 3 to 4 minutes. OR, cover pan. Remove from heat and let stand 5 to 7 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve from pan, or either slide from pan or invert onto serving platter. Garnish with carrot slices and parsley sprigs, if desired.

†To make handle ovenproof, wrap completely with aluminum foil.

Frittatas are fast to fix and fun to eat. Counterclockwise from top: Carrot Frittata, Zippy Mushroom Frittata, Macaroni and Cheese Frittata, Almost Instant Frittata and Incredible Rice Frittata.

ZIPPY MUSHROOM FRITTATA

2 servings

Both salad dressing mixes and bottled dressings are convenient ways to season a frittata. Try this recipe when you're in a hurry.

2 tablespoons butter	1/4 teaspoon onion salt
1/4 to 1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced	1/4 cup (1 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
4 eggs	Watercress, optional
1/4 cup bottled creamy cucumber salad dressing

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet with ovenproof handle over medium heat, cook mushrooms in butter until tender but not brown. Beat together eggs, salad dressing and onion salt. Pour into pan over mushrooms. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 6 to 8 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Broil about 6 inches from heat until eggs are completely set and cheese melts, about 2 minutes. Cut into halves and serve from pan or either slide from pan or invert onto serving platter. Garnish with watercress, if desired.

†To make handle ovenproof, wrap completely with aluminum foil.

MACARONI AND CHEESE FRITTATA

4 servings

Simply delicious! This hearty main dish could hardly be easier, and it will appeal to most everyone around your dinner table.

2 tablespoons butter	1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
8 eggs	Cherry tomato slices, optional
1/2 cup milk	Parsley sprigs, optional
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 cup cooked elbow macaroni (about 1/2 cup uncooked)

Melt butter in 10-inch omelet pan or skillet with ovenproof handle over medium heat. Beat together eggs, milk and pepper. Stir in macaroni and cheese. Pour into pan. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 9 to 10 minutes. Broil about 6 inches from heat until eggs are completely set and top is golden brown, 3 to 4 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve from pan or either slide from pan or invert onto serving platter. Garnish with cherry tomato slices and parsley sprigs, if desired.

†To make handle ovenproof, wrap completely with aluminum foil.

ALMOST INSTANT FRITTATA

2 servings

When it's rush hour in your kitchen, simply open a can, beat some eggs, put the skillet on the range and the main dish is practically finished! Add a salad, some Italian or French bread and you're done!

1 to 2 tablespoons butter	2 teaspoons instant minced onion
4 eggs	1 teaspoon freeze-dried chives
1 can (7 to 8 oz.) whole kernel corn, wax or green beans or mixed vegetables, undrained	1/4 teaspoon seasoned salt
	Dash pepper

Melt butter in two 5- to 6-inch or one 8-inch omelet pan/s or skillet/s with ovenproof handle/s over medium heat. Beat together remaining ingredients. Pour into pan/s. Cover and cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Either slide individual frittatas from pans or invert onto serving plates. Cut double frittata into halves and serve from pan or either slide from pan or invert onto serving platter.

†To make handle ovenproof, wrap completely with aluminum foil.

INCREDIBLE RICE FRITTATA

4 servings

A combination of tangy green chilies, bright tomatoes and sturdy rice makes this frittata incredibly good eating!

1 tablespoon butter	2 cups cooked rice
1/2 cup finely chopped onion	1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies, undrained
8 eggs	1 medium tomato, chopped
1/2 cup milk	1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
4 to 5 drops hot pepper sauce

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat cook onion in butter until tender but not brown. Beat together eggs, milk and seasonings. Stir in rice, chilies and tomato. Pour into pan. Cover and cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 12 to 15 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Remove from heat and let stand covered about 10 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve from pan or slide from pan onto serving platter.

Byrd's Kitchen

by Vivian Byrd

Anna Banana adds yogurt, cinnamon to salad

Even a food column is allowed some occasional silliness. For instance: What do you call a yellow neckerchief?

A banana bandanna.

Or, what do you call a Far Eastern fruit peddler's place of business? An Afghanistan banana stand.

In a different mood, what do you call a cute blonde second-grader endowed with sparkling eyes and a wide smile? Since birth, Anna Hockhammer of Birmingham has been known fondly as Anna Banana.

And to quote Jimmy "Schnozzola"

Durante in reference to his most prominent feature, "That ain't no banana on my face."

Now, on to the food, what do you call bananas, oranges, cinnamon and raisins in yogurt?

Yum-m-m-y.

This delightful combination can be served as a fruit salad or a dessert. Refreshing, low-calorie yogurt is naturally sweetened with fresh and dried fruit. The ever-available banana can make the flavors of Anna Banana's Fruit Salad a habit ear round.

BANANAS and almonds kissed with rum and brown sugar bake into an easy family or company dessert that's also delicious over ice cream.

The surprise of banana turns an old standard into a new favorite. Banana Rice Custard is sure to please the rice pudding lovers at your house.

Bananas are grown in the tropics and harvested for export before ripening. While green, the fruit is almost tasteless but attains an increasing sweetness and flavor as it ripens.

Green bananas should be served cooked. However, ripe bananas may be served cooked or raw.

The calorie value of dried bananas is almost twice that of meat and is a staple in the diets of many vegetarian peoples.

Probably everyone has seen or eaten a "candlestick" salad. This is made by placing a slice of canned pineapple on a bed of lettuce then standing half a banana inside the pineapple and topping with a dollop of mayonnaise and half a maraschino cherry.

James Beard, America's foremost cookbook writer, revealed one of his food prejudices when he called this arrangement "hideous." He suggested that instead bananas be combined with other fruits, such as fresh pineapple, strawberries or blueberries.

Some other combinations you might consider are shown below.

ANNA BANANA'S FRUIT SALAD
Makes one large or two small servings.

1 orange
½ cup plain yogurt
¼ tsp. cinnamon
½ banana
2 tbsp. raisins

Combine yogurt and cinnamon. Add raisins and mix again. Peel the orange and cut the sections into small bite-sized pieces. Slice the bananas thin. Fold oranges and bananas into the yogurt.

BAKED BANANAS WITH ALMONDS

4 large bananas
1 tbsp. lemon juice
6 tbsp. butter
½ cup sliced blanched almonds
1 tbsp. rum or sherry
¼ cup light brown sugar

Peel bananas and cut into halves lengthwise. Place in a shallow baking dish. Brush with the lemon juice. Melt the butter in a skillet. Add the almonds, stir, and cook until they have turned golden brown. Add rum or sherry and pour over bananas. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in a preheated moderate oven, about 375 degrees, for 15 minutes. Serve as a dessert alone or over ice cream, or serve alone as a meat accompaniment. Serves 8.

BANANA RICE CUSTARD

3 ripe medium bananas
1 tbsp. lemon juice
3 cups cooked rice
¾ cup sugar
3 eggs
1 ½ tsp. grated lemon rind
2 cups milk
Nutmeg
Whipped cream
Sliced bananas

Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Grease lightly a two-quart casserole. In mixing bowl, mash bananas, stir in lemon juice and rice. Beat sugar and eggs until smooth, stir in lemon rind and milk. Add to the rice mixture. Mix well. Pour into casserole, sprinkle with nutmeg, to your taste. Place casserole in a pan containing about one-inch of hot water. Bake in the preheated oven for one hour. Chill for at least 4 hours. Just before serving, garnish top with whipped cream and the additional sliced bananas.

Correction in applenut chess pie

Last Monday's recipe for Applenut Chess Pie omitted the addition of the flour in the method.

APPLENUT CHESS PIE

1 7-oz. jar marshmallow creme
2 tsp. vanilla
2 tsp. lemon juice
3 eggs, beaten
2 tbsp. margarine, melted
1 cup peeled, finely shredded apples
¾ cup packed brown sugar
¾ cup chopped walnuts
2 tbsp. flour
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell
Ginger Creme Topping

Combine marshmallow creme, vanilla and lemon juice, mixing with wire whisk until well blended. Add eggs and margarine; mix well. Stir in combined flour, apples, sugar and nuts; pour into pastry shell. Bake at 425 degrees, 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees; continue baking 45 minutes or until top is firm. Serve with:

GINGER CREME TOPPING

1 cup dairy sour cream
½ tsp. ground ginger
1 7-oz. jar marshmallow creme

Add combined sour cream and ginger to marshmallow creme, mixing with wire whisk until well blended.

Pimiento adds dash to dips

Pimiento adds zip to dips and spreads.

For an onion spread, combine 8 ounces cream cheese, 1 can (10½ ounces) cream of onion soup, 1 4-oz. jar chopped pimiento and 2½ ounces dried beef, cut very fine.

A 2-oz. jar of chopped pimiento, ¼ cup cooked and crumbled bacon bits, 2 tablespoons minced onion and ½ cup mayonnaise are mixed together for a bacon spread.

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

Irish cooking stars on St. Patrick's Day

It would be fascinating to devise a history class based on various national cuisines. After all, the eating habits of a country develop less out of chance than out of geography, climate, military history, technology and national character.

The traditional foods of Ireland, for example, speak to us of the country and its people. Its island location and rich supply of lakes, rivers, and streams account for the abundant use of fish from the special sweet salmon for which Ireland is famous to the cockles and mussels peddled by Sweet Molly Malone, from the prawns, scallops, and oysters to the commonplace herring ("Thim's not company fish.")

Irish reliance on the abundance of the ocean also has included sea vegetables such as dulse, Irish moss (a vegetable gelatin used to make jellies, aspics, and beverages), and sea-kale (a delicate vegetable served like asparagus, with melted butter).

The Irish have drawn heavily on the bounty of the land as well as the sea. Even today, nearly one-third of the population is involved in agriculture. This agrarian tradition has shaped the cooking of Ireland.

Fresh butter is used lavishly rather than oil or margarine. Fresh eggs, heavy cream, cheeses, beef (including the famous corned beef), lamb and pork are staples in the diet. Portion-size and methods of preparation also reflect an agrarian economy.

MEALS ARE basically simple in preparation but hearty. High in calories, they are intended to fuel men and women for both hard physical labor and the long walks customary in a nation less dependent on the automobile than our own.

Breakfast, for example, might consist of rashers of smoky bacon, oatmeal, homemade bread, fresh butter, preserves, and tea. Some researchers claim that the vigorous life-style of the Irish has spared them from the ravages that would otherwise accompany such a high cholesterol diet.

Unfortunately, many Irish immigrants retained their traditional eating patterns after coming to this country while adopting sedentary American habits — a combination which has often proven lethal.

These substantial meals must also serve as fuel to keep the Irish warm. The country is damp and chilly and central heating is still not the rule. A peat fire warming a thatched-roof cottage is not a relic of the very distant past. Even now, a furnace might heat one room adequately, leaving the remaining rooms in varying degrees of cold.

AT THE OTHER end of the spectrum from central heating is refrigeration, also a relatively recent amenity in Ireland. Without proper refrigeration, milk frequently spoiled. Making a virtue of necessity, thrifty cooks used the soured milk to make a velvety-textured bread — Ireland's world-renowned soda bread.

Lack of refrigeration also influenced the choices of vegetables cultivated by the Irish. Root vegetables, with their superior keeping properties, have long been favored over their more perishable counterparts.

One of these root vegetables, the potato, has become synonymous with Irish cuisine in the minds of many. Actually, the potato is a relative newcomer in Ireland, having been introduced there in 1585 by Sir Walter Raleigh and not intensely cultivated until the 18th century.

In the ensuing years, however, the Irish have raised the cooking of the potato to an art form. It has been baked, boiled, mashed, and fried and included as an ingredient in soups, stews, casseroles, breads, and cakes.

The potato, although a recent addition and representative of only a portion of a varied national cuisine, can be seen as symbolic of the whole spectrum of Irish foods — simple, honest, substantial and unpretentious.

THE IRISH have never aspired to a haute cuisine. This may be because, as a people, they are less concerned with what goes into their mouths than what comes out.

It sometimes seems, in fact, that the Irish don't even pause for breath — much less anything more substantial — when they get talking.

Someone once implied to me that the Swedes include ritual toasting as a part of the smorgasbord in order to loosen the tongues of the ordinarily taciturn people. If anything were to further loosen the tongues of the Irish, they would fall out of their heads (and probably never miss a syllable in the process).

Out of this garrulous character has come a disproportional number of poets, playwrights, and novelists — Ireland's gift to the literary world.

If, as has often been said, you are what you eat, the straightforward food of the Irish, so often disdained, produces souls more gifted, creative and sensitive than the most refined and elaborate cuisines. Worse could be said of any nation and any food.

BOXTY

Boxty is a traditional Irish potato dish served on the eve of All Saints' Day, All Hallows' Eve. Boxty on the griddle resembles griddle cakes and Boxty in the pan is a kind of potato bread.

BOXTY BREAD (Boxty in the pan)

1 lb. raw potatoes
1 lb. (4 cups) flour

Salt and pepper

1 lb. (2 cups) cooked mashed potatoes
4 oz. (¼ cup) melted butter or bacon fat

Peel the raw potatoes and grate into a clean cloth. Wring them tightly over a basin, catching the liquid. Put the grated potatoes into another basin and spread with the cooked mashed potatoes. When the starch has sunk to the bottom of the raw potato liquid, pour off the water and scrape the starch on to the potatoes. Mix well and sieve the flour, salt and pepper over it. Finally add the melted butter or fat. Knead, roll out on a floured board and shape into round flat cakes. Make a cross over, so that when cooked they will divide into farls (sections). Cook on a greased baking sheet in a moderate oven (300 degrees) for about 40 minutes. This quantity will make about four cakes. Serve hot, split in two with butter.

(from "A Taste of Ireland" by Theodora FitzGibbon)

BAKED SALMON WITH CREAM AND CUCUMBER

1 5-lb. salmon
3 tbsp. heaped butter
1 medium-sized cucumber
Salt and pepper
1 cup cream
Juice of 1 lemon
2 sprigs of parsley

Put the parsley in the cleaned gullet of the fish and rub the butter over the outside. Put the whole into a fireproof baking dish, season well and pour the cream around. Cover with foil and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 10 minutes to the pound. Remove from the oven and add the peeled and cubed cucumber and the lemon juice. Baste well and put back in the oven, uncovered, for a further 15 minutes. Skin the fish before serving and pour over the sauce. The cucumber should still be a little crisp to act as a foil for the buttery salmon. It is excellent hot, but can also be served cold. Small cuts can be cooked in the same way, but should be left whole: a tail end is good for this method.

(from "A Taste of Ireland" by Theodora FitzGibbon)

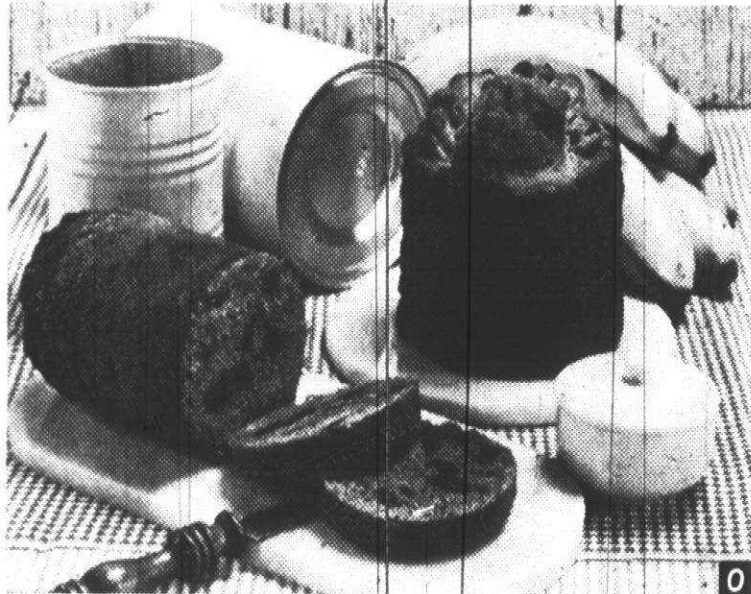

CREAMED PEAS AND POTATOES

Makes 4 servings

Delicious served with fish dishes

3 medium potatoes, peeled, diced
Cold water
1 tsp. salt
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen green peas
2 cups milk
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tbsp. flour
1 tbsp. water
Salt and pepper

Homemade Banana Bread Baked in Cans

Now that winter is upon us, nothing beats warm homemade banana bread for making the simplest supper into a full family meal. And thrifty homemakers who never throw away anything will love using empty tin cans to bake this traditional brown bread for their table.

BANANA BROWN BREAD

2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
1 cup unsifted yellow cornmeal
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup mashed ripe bananas (3 medium bananas)
1 cup buttermilk
¼ cup unsulphured molasses
¼ cup raisins

In large bowl mix together flour, cornmeal, salt and baking soda. Stir in bananas and remaining ingredients. Turn into greased and floured 1-pound cans. Bake in 350°F. oven 45 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center of breads comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, turn out of cans and serve warm with butter. Loaves may be frozen. Thaw and heat in 350°F. oven, wrapped in foil, for 20 minutes. YIELD: 3 loaves.

Wiser speaker advises

Don't repair to helplessness

By SHERRY KAHAN

Keep an eye out for trouble spots, says Steve Harris, when he gives women suggestions about fixing things around the house. The eye and the ear should be alert for a frayed wire or a grating sound.

The Canton Township resident offered this advice at a meeting sponsored by a group for widowed persons called WISER in St. David Episcopal Church in Garden City. He presented a second talk on the same general subject early this week at Schoolcraft College, also under WISER auspices.

Practical ways to deal with the work that needs to be done outdoors will be the subject of a spring series of talks by Harris at Forest City near Westland Shopping Center. No date has been set. Men and women interested in learning about lawn work, painting and modest home repairs can register by calling Keith Thompson at 525-0300.

"Women are mostly interested in finding someone who can correct their repair problems without ripping them off," Harris said in an interview. "They try to learn as much about repairs as they can so they will ask intelligent questions on their own. They are looking for basic knowledge so they feel comfortable with the subject. Then they'll be less likely to give the impression they are helpless."

HARRIS SUGGESTS to women that if they are handy they could probably do a number of repairs around the house. But don't get in over your head, he cautions.

"If in doubt about something complicated, don't be afraid to contact someone knowledgeable," he said. "But before you call, be familiar enough with the situation to be able to ask and answer questions. Be able to describe what is wrong."

In his talks, Harris points out that local policemen and firefighters are often a good source of help for this kind of work. "Some are willing to take on these small repair jobs," he said.

Another backup for the do-it-your-selfer is the Time-Life series on home repair, heating, plumbing and allied subjects, he said.

"The graphics are effective — there are good diagrams and explanations," he stated. "There is lots of detail, and they are easy to read. Most bookstores carry them."

Harris, who is a teacher at Truman Junior High in Taylor, studied to be a handyman at the elbow of his grandfather, a patient cabinet maker who also made furniture.

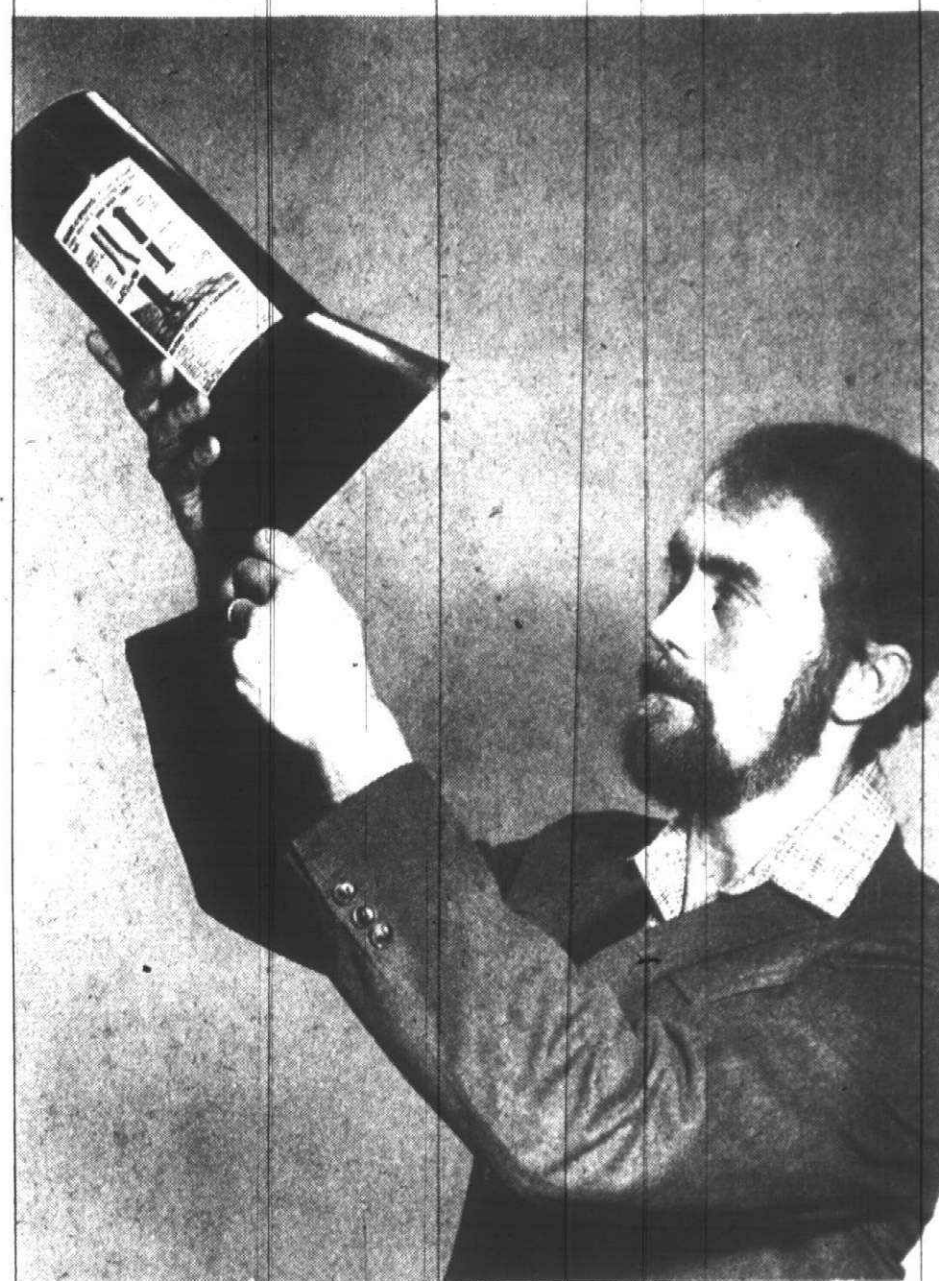

HE THINKS women should learn something about furnace maintenance, how to change filters and vacuum blower motors. They can check hot water heaters for calcium build-up which can erode the water tank and the system.

They can control water flow in a toilet tank by adjusting the float at the end of the arm. The arm is part of the shut-off valve.

"The arm can be bent up or down to stop the flow of water into the tank," he said. "When the float is out of adjustment, you will see the water level too high or too low. If you hear the water continually trickling in, it's too high. If you don't get proper flush action, it means the water level is too low."

The best way to replace broken windows is by removing the sash and frame, and taking the whole unit to the hardware store. "Their employees can put in the glass and restore it to its original condition easier than you could," he said, adding that for a slide window it is wiser to have someone come to the scene.

"The more you do, the more comfortable you'll be with this kind of work," he concluded.

The VIEW from
CANTON CENTER

Missy Moon and 11 other Michigan State University Senior Class Council members have cooked up a plan to raise $30,000 for construction of a new bandshell. Plans for a new bandshell on the MSU campus have simmered on the back burner since the old shell was dismantled 20 years ago to make way for another classroom building.

This fall, seniors voted enthusiastically to approve the council's proposal to donate the shell to MSU. The council then initiated a 15-hour call-a-thon to garner pledges for the gift from graduating seniors. Callers proposed the "Senior Class Challenge" — a plan for progressive annual donations to total $75 per donor over a five-year period.

Council members estimated that pledges during the call-a-thon would likely surpass the $30,000 goal. Any extra funds would be applied toward a canopy and other improvements for the structure.

The senior class gift-giving custom at MSU dates back to 1873, when the seniors donated the Beaumont Tower Rock, traditionally a hallmark of campus graffiti. Other gifts include the bronze "S" in front of the Hannah Administration Building and campus park benches along the Red Cedar River. The 1981 band shell looms as the largest class gift to date, and the most expensive.

Missy, a biological science major, is the daughter of Bill and Marg Moon of Hamilton Street, Plymouth. She was a 1977 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School.

IF YOU NOTICED Jeremiah Ingram's "Joy of Cheesecake" on the Book of the Month Club list, it may be of interest to note that Lee Fidge of Plymouth Township is a contributor to the cookbook.

The recipe for Frozen Cheesecake is credited to Lee Fidge of Detroit. It also recommends a basic crumb crust in a nine inch springform pan. Lee says she uses an ordinary pie tin.

Here's the recipe:
1 cup (½ pound) cottage cheese
½ pound cream cheese
1 cup granulated sugar
3 large eggs separated
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla extract
1 cup heavy cream

Place cottage cheese in a sieve and drain. In a large mixing bowl, beat together the cottage cheese and the cream cheese. Add the sugar and blend until smooth and light. Add the egg yolks, salt, and vanilla and blend thoroughly. Beat the egg whites until they form soft peaks, then gently fold them into the cream cheese mixture. Whip the cream until it is stiff and fold into the batter. Pour the mixture into the prepared crust. Place the cake in the freezer for four hours, or until frozen solid. Serve frozen.

Lee says that once frozen, it is best kept covered with a plastic wrap.

JANET ROBERTS of Plymouth, a freshman at Central Michigan University, was a member of the costume crew for the children's theater production for "The Thwarting of Baron Bolligrew." The play was performed at CMU earlier this month.

ASKED PAT Thomas, librarian at Dunning Hough Library, if she had any plans for the $700-plus donated to the library by the Plymouth Newcomers Club. Pat said the Newcomers had given the check with no strings attached — she was to decide how the money should be spent.

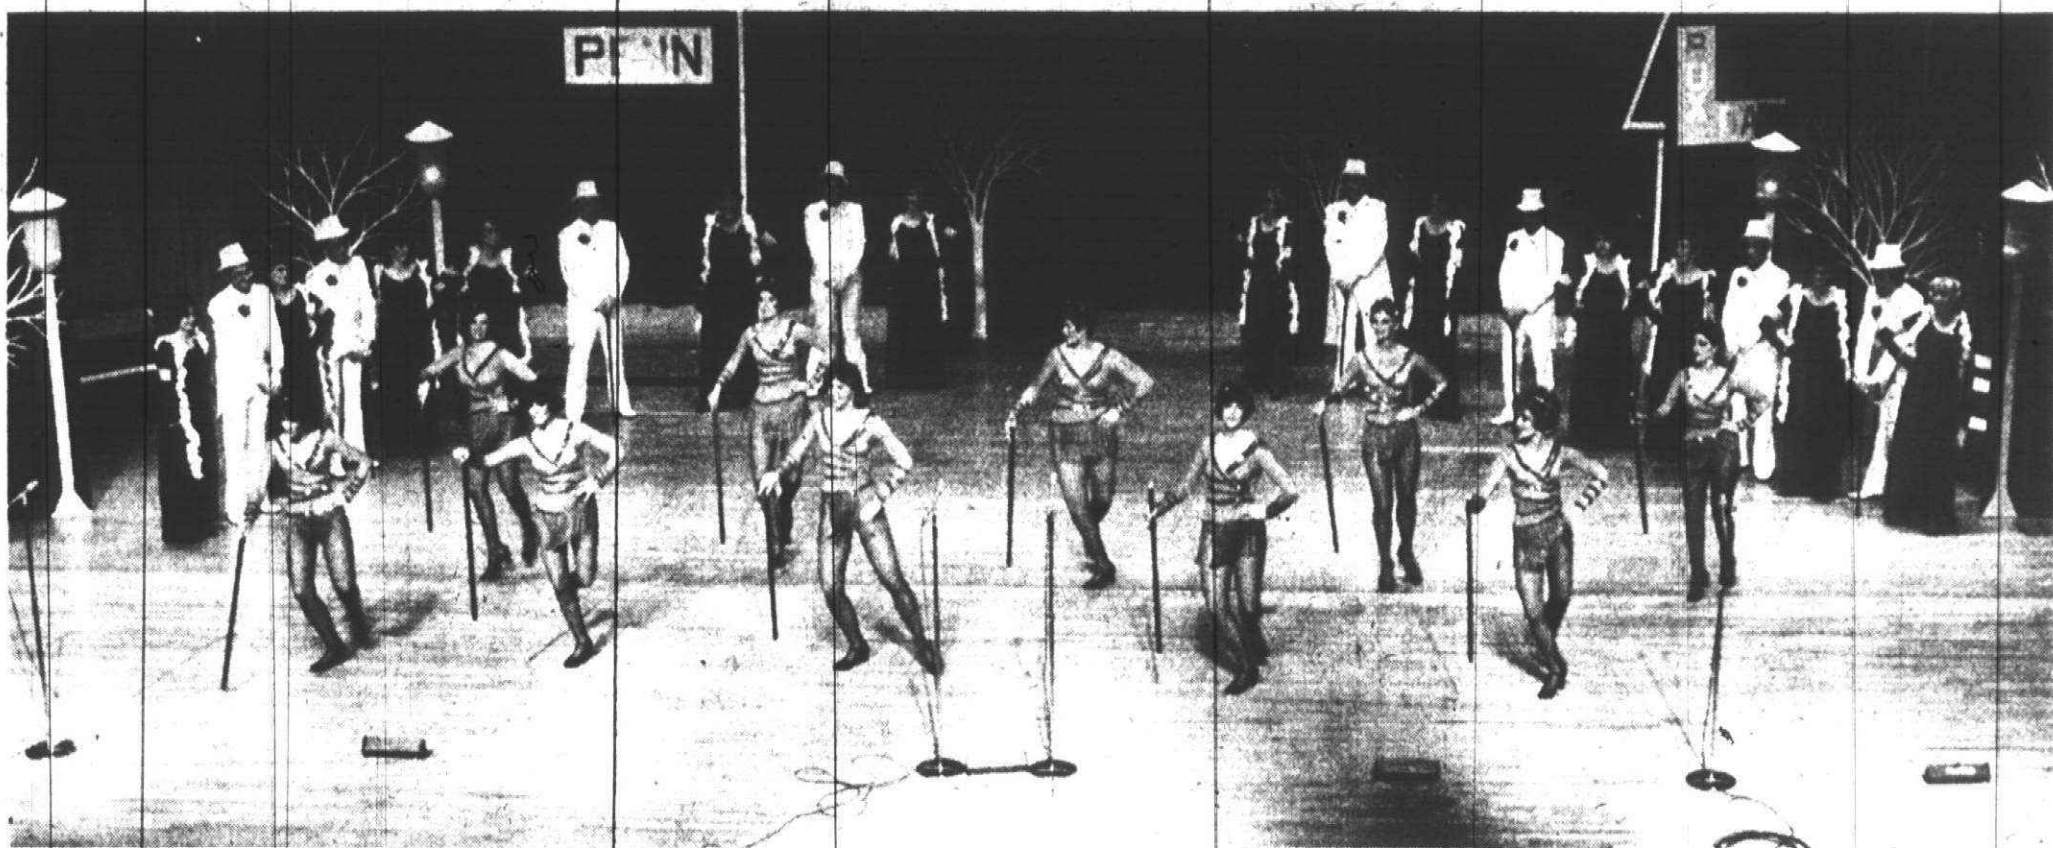

She said reference books are in great demand and some of them are very expensive. The money will be used to add to their reference library and perhaps buy extra copies of some of the most popular volumes.

The donation to the library were proceeds from the Newcomers' luncheon and fashion show, which was the combined efforts of the club members and local merchants. The show went off without a hitch and everyone thought it was beautiful.

K.C. Mueller, a coordinator of the show, still is worrying because Van Dam's name was omitted from the "Fashions in order of appearance" section of the programs.

In rehearsing the event, the coordinators had special words of praise for the Shoe Attic, which, under last-minute pressure, found the right shoes for each outfit. They also were grateful to Pat Hann and the hair stylists at the Mayflower Beauty Salon for the shining tresses and spring hair-dos of the club members who modeled.

The ramp with its ribbons and garlands was the work of Karen LeGault, who also was responsible for the garland in the wedding set and the touches of spring flowers in the decorations.

'Shenanigans'

Local arts revue leaves 'em smiling

"Shenanigans," the arts council's third musical revue, is history. With a cast of 200, it combined the glitter of the music hall with the warmth of hometown humor and talent.

The audiences that filled the auditorium at Plymouth Salem High School Friday and Saturday nights loved every minute of it.

Professional director Ed Horner of Jerome Cargill Productions of New York left Sunday for Sandusky, Ohio and another show. Before leaving, he expressed his feelings about the community and the show.

"A lot of talent," exclaimed Horner. "You have some of the greatest singers I've ever heard in my life. Not only can they sing, they are good dancers and good performers. And I appreciated the way everyone has cooperated."

This is high praise from the man who has done 12 or more shows a year during his 16 years as a director.

DONNA TINBERG, as the scrub lady, and George Coll, as the stage manager, maintained the continuity of the two-act musical revue.

Soloists, in order of appearance, were Dave Ide, Gayle Lang, Vince Currie, Gene Gulbransen, Constance Bennett Heidt, Jan Gattoni, Marsha Wignes, Jim Shannon, Janet Brass, Diane Calhoun and Donna Tinberg.

The Our Town segment of the show was staged and directed by Joanne Hulce and Gae McCord. Frankie LaMirand wrote the lyrics for "The Die is Cast," "So Who's A Dummy" and "Plymouth Is."

Toni Grimm choreographed "The Die is Cast," and "Kellogg Kornflakes." The lyrics for the later were written by Nancy Cooper and Gae McCord. Connie Heidt composed the music for "Plymouth Is."

JAN GATTONI chaired the show assisted by Larry Janes.

Committee heads were Elise Murphy and Diane Janes, afterglow; Therese Gall and Donna Harwood, costumes; Sally Bida, extra revenue; Ann Taylor, finance; Marilyn Whittaker and Judy O'Connor, make-up; Ken Currie and Judy Morgan, patrons; Dee Schulte and Barbara Bray, program; Carol Storton and Sally Bida, program ads; Stan and Sue Hone and Guy and Mary Kenny, props; Joan Gerick and Sherri Lewis, publicity; Gene Gulbransen and Patrick Cotter, scenery; Sharon Belobraidich and Doreen Volpe, talent; Jo Hulce and Gae McCord, test flight; Dorothy Magee and Elaine Kirchgatter, tickets; and Win and Sue Schrader, and Dave and Sharon Rucinski, ushers.

There were dozens and dozens of stars and everyone who participated deserves a rave review. As well as the excitement and fun of being a part of the production and seeing everything fall into place, there is an added benefit.

The proceeds from the show will come back to the community in the form of scholarships, grants and arts council projects in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Who's retiring?

John Crosson ends teaching career

Generally bid the major suit first if they're equal. With four-card suits, open with the suit below the shortest suit. With two five-card suits, use reverse bidding.

The concentration is absolute as 14 members of John Crosson's beginning bridge class digest this information. It's the fifth week of a 10-week beginning bridge series conducted in the adult education program of the Northville Public Schools.

A few minutes later, Crosson, breaks the class into tables of four, playing with one group himself and using a rotating dummy to fill out. Between plays, Crosson hops quickly from table to table, enthusiastically encouraging players.

"That's a great hand, Joe," he observes.

"Play your jack and see what it brings out," he urges another hesitant player.

As he points out that bridge is a game of calculation, Crosson is drawing on his background as a mathematics and science teacher. He was a math teacher at Plymouth Canton High School until he retired Jan. 30, just before he turned 62 on Feb. 16.

He went to Canton High when it was brand new and was the first teacher to retire from the school after a full-time teaching career.

"I'VE PLAYED bridge since I was 12 years old," Crosson recalls.

"I was raised in the Depression. We'd play ball until it rained and then we'd go to a friend's house. His mom, and dad had taught him the rudiments that he passed on to us.

"Of course, then you bid until someone won out — and you got the points you made in the auction contract. The real challenge in contract bridge (almost universally played today) is in making the contract."

In those years, Crosson attended St. Ambrose School in Detroit and then went on to Notre Dame. He has a bachelor of science degree in science and master's degrees in education and chemistry.

If the white-haired teacher sounds as though he spends all his time sitting and reading bridge expert Charles Goren's books, think again.

He had risen early last Thursday morning — long before the 7 p.m. bridge class — to go to one of his four-times-a-week roller-skating sessions at a rink in Novi.

"It's jogging on wheels," he explains, adding that he began skating on the streets of Detroit as another Depression-era activity and has continued this exercise all his life.

Crosson also bowls with the King's Mills bowling league on alternate Sundays.

BUT CROSSON'S favorite activity is golf. For 10 years he has been heading north as soon as school was out. He manages the golf course at Lake of the North, a 10,000-acre vacation retirement development in the Mancelona-Gaylord area.

"I'd go up on spring weekends, then spend the summer there, working seven-day weeks from 7 a.m. until dark at the course and driving range," Crosson recalls as he looks forward to May 1 when he will head north and stay until mid-October.

He plans to cut down to a six-day week, however. He'll be in on plans for a second nine-hole course to be developed within two years at the site.

It wasn't by accident that he was engulfed in seven-day weeks of golf, Crosson admits.

"I was planning for retirement," he says.

He adds that he's still so busy he doesn't get to everything he wants to do even now. He was the Plymouth Canton High golf coach until a year ago. Even before giving up golf coaching, he had started to tutor math students.

CROSSON, who looks more like a professor than an athlete, also loves to dance. Not the rock and roll type, he specifies, but things like the Cha-Cha.

"I met my wife Freda at a dance at the Polish Century Club," he said, adding that they have a favorite organist at a spot near Gaylord who plays their kind of music for dancing.

The Crossons were married 12 years ago and have been King's Mills residents in Northville Township for more than eight years. Mrs. Crosson has three daughters, now "all on their own."

Just to keep the record straight, Crosson mentions that the middle initial "P" stands for Patrick, a godd Irish name.

He began his 39-year teaching career at Gilmore Academy, a private school he compares to Cranbrook. After 17 years of prep school teaching, he returned to Michigan to teach at Mumford High and then Riverside in North Dearborn Heights. During the district's strike in 1967, he came to Plymouth Canton high.

Also a duplicate bridge fan, Crosson tells his class he's going to introduce them to the boards as soon as they finish the session on party bridge scoring.

He's on a tight schedule to complete the 10-week series in time to begin overseeing the Lake of the North golf operation. He told the bridge novices who asked, that he's willing to continue into intermediate classes — but not until fall.

He's too busy now. Obviously, his "retirement" is only from teaching.

Toddler gym class to open

New Morning School is taking reservations for the second session of its Preschool Movement Education/ Story Hour. The six-week session for children 2½-6 years will begin March 26. Class will meet from 10:45-11:30 a.m. and will focus on individualized gym activities led by a staff member trained in movement education.

Parental participation in the gym is required. The fee is $10.

A new program, toddler gym, also will begin March 26. Classes will be from 10:10-10:30 a.m. and are geared for children ages 18 months to 2½ years. Parental participation is required. The fee is $10 for a six-week session.

New Morning School, located in Dearborn Heights, is a parent cooperative school for children in preschool through eighth grade. For more information, call the preschool director, 292-0760.

Orangelawn Professional Center

Dear Dr. Forrest:
My daughter has very nice straight teeth, however, they seem to be stained with yellow and grey areas. Is there something lacking in her diet, or is this the start of decay?

Can't Stand the Grey

Dear Mrs. Grey:
The discoloration to which you refer was caused during the very early formation of your daughter's teeth. High fevers and medication given to either a pregnant mother or the child herself, while the teeth were developing, are usual causes of such staining. Sometimes we can mask these slight imperfections by a Dental procedure of resin bonding.

CC cagers run out of bullets

By DOUG FUNKE

All season long, Detroit Catholic Central's basketball attack has revolved around Greg Wendt.

The 6-6 senior forward with a deft left-handed shot turned in a great individual performance Friday. Wendt hit better than 50 percent of his shots from the field and finished with 37 points. He also grabbed 12 rebounds.

But it was all for naught, as the Shamrocks were defeated by Detroit Cooley, 64-57 in the Franklin Regional final of the Class A state tournament.

Cooley, smaller than the Shamrocks, but with good speed and good jumping ability, never trailed during the game.

The Cardinals popped in the first three field goals of the contest and it wasn't until nearly three minutes had been played that CC scored its initial points. Wendt — who else? — did the honors with a layup.

Cooley utilized a man-to-man defense through much of the game, while the Shamrocks used a zone defense.

The Cardinals led 15-10 at the end of the opening quarter and by as many as 14 with just under three minutes remaining in the half.

Wendt and Joe Loidas each connected on a pair of field goals to pull the Shamrocks within six points, 29-23, but Cooley reeled off two baskets before the intermission to build its lead back to 10, 33-23.

Cooley scored most of its points during the first half from inside of CC's zone. The Cardinals also seemed to have a better transition game from defense to offense and back and also seemed to control the boards.

Coach Bernie Holowicki must have given his charges some good advice during the break because the Shamrocks came out during the second half and played much more aggressively.

Wendt notched 14 of his points during the third quarter and Dave Rodriguez contributed four, but CC was able to chip away only one point from its deficit.

Cooley converted seven of eight foul shots during the third quarter and entered the final eight minutes with a 50-41 advantage.

Wendt hit three shots in succession and Rodriguez made a basket to pull the Shamrocks within five points, 54-49, 2:15 into the fourth quarter.

A tip-in by Loidas half a minute later brought CC within three, 54-51. That's as close as the Shamrocks would come the rest of the game. A couple of costly turnovers near the end and three timely baskets by Cooley's Eddie Gill kept the Cardinals in front.

CC moved within three points again, 58-55, with 1:05 remaining in a last gasp, but Cooley was able to beat the Shamrocks' desperation press for some easy baskets.

"They (Shamrocks) played hard. Tonight, they proved they could go against anybody," said Holowicki. "When we got here, we knew we had a chance. Only 16 teams were left (in the tournament) going into tonight."

"They surpassed expectations this year, but we're never satisfied, I guess," he added. "That's the way it goes."

Holowicki said that his players did a much better job dealing with Cooley's press and rebounding during the second half.

"We felt we had to break their press, we had to rebound with them and we had to avoid streak basketball," Holowicki said. "In the first half, we did a terrible job on the boards. We got pushed out of the lane and didn't fight back. The second half was much better."

The game was rugged and only 15 total fouls were called. Holowicki picked up a technical foul during the third quarter when he stormed on the court to protest a call.

Afterwards, Holowicki would not comment on whether the officiating hurt his team's style of play.

"You're not going to get me to comment," he said. "There's always going to be another day."

And, what about Wendt, who capped his high-school career? "He's one heckuva player — one of the best we've ever had," Holowicki said. "He's a great competitor and a fun player to coach."

Loves to build, show cars

Area racer can't stay away

By DOUG FUNKE

Somehow, you would expect that an individual as obviously well-dressed, articulate and well-educated as Gary Lowndale would be a stickler for detail.

One look at his fleet of racing and show cars — 11 in all — will confirm that the Livonian is a man who enjoys his hobby.

Lowndale, 34 years of age, knows his cars from the bottom up, literally. He has rebuilt several cars and raced one — a Lotus Elan — to a national championship in 1974 in the A-Modified Class.

The Sports Car Club of America sponsored that competition during which racers competed against the clock while running one at a time around the track.

Fractions of seconds usually determine outcomes.

Lowndale purchased the Lotus Elan for $2,600. After countless hours of work, he says it is now worth $18,000.

It's a labor of love, though, and Lowndale doesn't seem to have any regrets spending so much time and money toward one pursuit.

Lowndale has done complete renovation of cars, scrupulously searching for precise, custom-made parts. However, he has come to a point where now he hires out most of the body work and does the engine and chassis work himself.

LOWNSDALE, a design engineer for the Ford Motor Co., says he first became interested in cars at the age of 6, but doesn't recall why.

"I can remember when I was real young,

I always took my toys apart," he said. "I remember my parents yelling."

He progressed steadily from there.

"When we would be driving, I would keep a log of what kind of cars we passed on the road and catalogued them as to what kind and the most popular."

Lowndale received his first car — a '57 Ford convertible — from his parents when he turned 15. "I couldn't drive it until I was 16," he said, "but I almost took all the paint off polishing it for a year."

Lowndale fine-tuned his aptitude at the University of Cincinnati. He was chairman of the university's Society of Automotive Engineers chapter and also took part in a cooperative education program with the Chrysler Corp.

He was involved in drag racing through the middle and late 1960s, before turning to solo II-type racing in the early 1970s.

Now the entire family is involved. Paulette, Lowndale's wife, also races and drives the cars in shows.

Son Charlie, 12, and daughter Larissa, 7, are fondly referred to by Lowndale as his pit crew.

Lowndale and his son are in the process of restoring a car together. "He's helping me restore it and, when he's 16, the car will be his," Lowndale said. "This way, he'll have more respect for the car. He works with me cleaning parts and welding."

The family races or shows their cars almost every weekend. Their travels range all over the midwestern, southwestern and southeastern parts of the country.

HOWEVER, it's not just cars and racing as far as the children are concerned.

"We look for historical spots along the way to learn about American history," Lowndale said. Charlie keeps a log about every state they pass through noting such things as land formations and crops.

"Whenever race weekends are, that's how I schedule my vacations," Lowndale said.

Lowndale said that learning the background and history of a particular car as rewarding as designing, building and racing it.

"It's like playing private detective," he said. "I have a card file at home with over 200 places where I can get parts. I belong to eight different sports car clubs."

Personal contacts have enabled Lowndale to find precision parts for some of his cars — three Lotuses, two GSM Deltas, a Triumph TR4A, an Austin Healey 3000, an MGA and a Jensen Healey.

Lowndale has purchased chassis cheaply through word of mouth and trade publications. He found one classic car under a pile of papers in a Detroit garage.

A couple of sponsors — British Part House in Allen Park and The Sports Car Exchange in Dearborn — help with travel expenses and obtaining parts at reduced rates.

Lowndale says the cars are strictly a hobby now, but added that someday, he will probably incorporate and use the vehicles for investment purposes.

Where does he keep all the cars? "I have some very friendly neighbors who help me out," Lowndale said.

Only league of its kind

Halfcourt hoop catches on

By BRAD EMONS

They come from all walks of life to play this abbreviated game of basketball.

And it's the only known league of its kind in the country.

Halfcourt, or three-on-three basketball, is not a new phenomenon to hit the area. But what makes this halfcourt league intriguing is the fact that all the players must be over 40 years old to participate.

During the past winter, approximately 50 diehards would meet every Wednesday night at West Middle School to learn the rudiments of the game in the Plymouth Halfcourt Basketball League.

The group consists of a cross section of professional types like school principals, salesmen, teachers, accountants, dentists and engineers.

They play for the love of the game and the camaraderie of it all.

The idea actually got started when Plymouthite's Dick deBear, John VanWagoner and Bill Moore met at a dinner party with their wives last summer.

deBear heard about the concept of halfcourt basketball through an old fraternity brother, Jack Herschlag, who lives and dies the game in New York City.

It turned out that Herschlag was quite involved in the concept of the halfcourt game. As official president of Halfcourt Basketball Inc., Herschlag authored a rulebook and was instrumental in organizing a national tournament, which was sponsored by the Michelob Brewing Co with ex-NBA star Rick Barry serving as commissioner.

HERSCHLAG sent deBear some newspaper clippings about the sport. The seed was then planted for the Plymouth Halfcourt Basketball League.

"We wrote our own rules to fit our needs," said VanWagoner, one of the founders.

"We then had three practices in November and started a 10-game schedule in December."

"It's like the old halfcourt playground, back-alley type of basketball," explained VanWagoner. "The huge difference is that every foul shot is like a technical."

On an offensive possession, all three players must touch the ball before shooting. Games last 40 minutes (running time) with four, 10-minute quarters.

Team standings are not emphasized, but individual accomplishments count. Each player on a winning team gets two points: one for attending and one for having five or more players (squad size is limited to eight). One point is received if a team wins but fields four or less players. Each member of a losing team gets one point. Players who fail to show receive nothing in return.

A typical score of a game might be 55-50.

"There were some minor disabilities and a lot of aches and pains," said VanWagoner, "but it was great fun. Virtually everybody said they'll be back next year. We expect to have more."

THE GROUP concluded their season recently with a banquet at the Box Bar in Plymouth. Every player received a commemorative mug and trophy. The top point producers (based on a number of games a team won and attendance) in the league also received halfcourt basketball T-Shirts from the national office in New York.

The Over 40 league in Plymouth has given the sport recognition. Jack Herschlag, who estimates the game is played by over 30 million people, appreciates the effort here.

skiing

Barry ZeVan

Mad scramble exists to find good skiing

The mad scramble to find optimum skiing is in full force.

Western snows fulfilled skiers' dreams of longlasting spring skiing, while New England and Quebec weather spurred optimism as well.

Michigan's Upper Peninsula seems to have it all for our state's skiers, though some areas — Boyne and the Highlands, Crystal Mountain and Caberfae — are toughing it out despite the climate's caprice.

If you're planning to go anywhere in Michigan just for the fun of it, prepare for the usual splendid craziness.

For a week beginning tomorrow, St. Patrick's Day, Crystal Mountain offers an extra hour of skiing to any skier wearing green. We've all seen some skiers turn green on the hills, but that's probably not what they had in mind.

"NON-STOP EVENTS all weekend" are slated for Crystal's upcoming Spring Carnival. Loose translation: bring extra liquid for your bota bag.

Special ski club events March 28 wrap up the carnival. With lots of man-made snow and optimism, the area plans final runs for April 5.

Use that for a rule of thumb for planning Lower Peninsula snowjourns for the season's remainder.

If it remains cold for a prolonged period, areas will obviously remain open past the cut-off dates, but it's always wise to inquire by telephone prior to departure. Or be consoled knowing that after years of occasional false snow condition reports from some areas, most are now factual.

FOR RESIDENTS of the U.P., tomorrow is more than just St. Patrick's Day. It's the Finnish St. Urho's Day, and ski areas near the Gogebic-Iron Range from Wakefield, Mich., to Upson, Wis., are providing plenty of St. Urho's activities for Finns and non-Finns alike.

The special meaning of the regional holiday is good reason to create special ski races where everyone, regardless of ethnic background, crosses the Finnish line.

Wakefield's Indianhead ski area, one of Michigan's best ski areas, is luring Detroit-area skiers onto the road for a 12-hour drive by claiming the best season in its 21 years.

SOFTBALL PLAYERS NEEDED

The Plymouth Jaycees are looking for a few good men.

A slow-pitch softball team is being fielded this summer. The Jaycees need players, ages 18-36.

Those interested should attend the next Plymouth Jaycee general membership meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 26, at the Plymouth Cultural Center. For more information, call Tim Sullivan 455-1635.

FOX HILLS GOLFERS

TO HOLD MEETING

An organizational meeting for the Fox Hills Men's Golf League will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 11.

Registration for the 17-week league will begin Monday, March 31. The cost is $20 per person, which does not include greens fees. Registration can be delivered in person or by mail to: Canton Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, Mi. 48188.

For more information, call 397-1000 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

FELLOWS CREEK MEN

TO DISCUSS RULES

An organizational meeting for the Fellows Creek Men's Golf League will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 11, at the Canton Recreation Center, 44237 Michigan Avenue (near Sheldon).

The league, sponsored by the Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department, will run 12-14 weeks beginning in May.

A $20 registration fee is required (not including greens fees). Registrations by delivered in person or by mail to: Canton Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, Mi. 48188.

League play will be held beginning at 6 p.m. each Tuesday.

For more information, call 397-1000 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

POWERS EARNS VARSITY WRESTLING LETTER

Jeff Powers of Plymouth has earned his first varsity letter in wrestling from Bowling Green State University after compiling a 3-5 record this winter in the heavy-weight division.

All three of those victories by the Salem High School grad came by pins, against Capital, Central Michigan and Slippery Rock.

The former All-Observer athlete will be competing in spring football practice which begins in April.

He won five letters in wrestling and football at Salem, and was captain of both teams.

Power finished fourth a year ago in the state Class A wrestling championships at 185 pounds. He won also won Suburban Eight and regional crowns. His career record was 74-21, including a 40-6 mark as a senior. He held the school record for pins (29) in one season until Marty Piper broke the mark this year.

Lownsdale races powerful machines

In as much as he loves to tinker with cars, Lownsdale does not consider himself to be one-dimensional person. Everyone in the family is involved in scouting.

Still, he enjoys his cars and hasn't really minded the expense that necessarily goes with it.

"This is my hobby. I live in a modest house and make a reasonable income with Ford management," Lownsdale said.

"Look at golfers, for example. They probably spend as much on golf with the equipment, travel, meals and a lot of drinking. It all adds up."

"I consider myself an amateur," Lownsdale added. "This is a hobby and that's all I intend it to be. I want to be able to walk away."

Mustang squad goes unbeaten in cage league

Things turned out just perfect for the B League Mustangs of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association (PCJBA).

The fourth and fifth graders concluded an unbeaten season last Saturday with a 51-50 triumph over the Cougars in the playoff final.

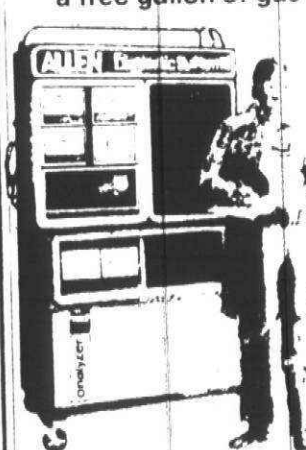

The Mustangs went 10-0 during the regular season and 4-0 in the playoffs.

Members of the team included Jamie Rama, Scott Rama, John Zdeb, Kirk Lilley, Steve Miller, Eric Turnquist, Aaron Best, Ben Mize, Mike Jakubowski, Jeff Willis and Scott Hobbs.

Gordon Rama and Stan Zdeb served as the team's coaches.

Sigourney Weaver plays a glamorous TV newscaster involved in a dangerous romance in "Eyewitness."

Talents merge harmoniously in 'Eyewitness'

Take a couple of ex-marines — one a janitor, one in hock to loan sharks — a beautiful television reporter, a mysterious Oriental and some people trying to get exit visas for Soviet Jews.

Then try and figure out how you can pull them all together into a workable plot.

If you can do that, you may have some marketable talents because that is what screenwriter Steve Tesich and producer-director Peter Yates have done in one of the best mystery films in years, "Eyewitness" (R).

"Eyewitness" not only pulls it all together but does so with style. Suspense alternates with romance. Shocks are followed quickly by humorous relief, and the sets, sounds and photographic work contribute strongly toward heightening the drama.

"EYEWITNESS" IS a classy thriller, very different in tone and content from the first film on which Tesich and Yates collaborated, "Breaking Away." However, the artistic thrust behind both these entertaining movies has produced some similarities.

One of the most noticeable is that the characters are convincing as real people. Consequently, you get interested in them. You care about the danger they confront. You become concerned for their safety.

Hand-in-hand with the development of character is the dialogue. Writing dialogue that sounds natural, yet also manages to be sharp and bright, is difficult to do, but Tesich makes it look easy and sound right.

William Hurt, who played the sensation-seeking scientist in the Ken Russell mindbender, "Altered States," shifts into low gear to play the janitor of a large office building. He's content to empty waste baskets and buff floors five nights a week.

He has a motorcycle, an attack dog and a convenient relationship with his best friend's sister. The problem is, he has a crush on a television reporter.

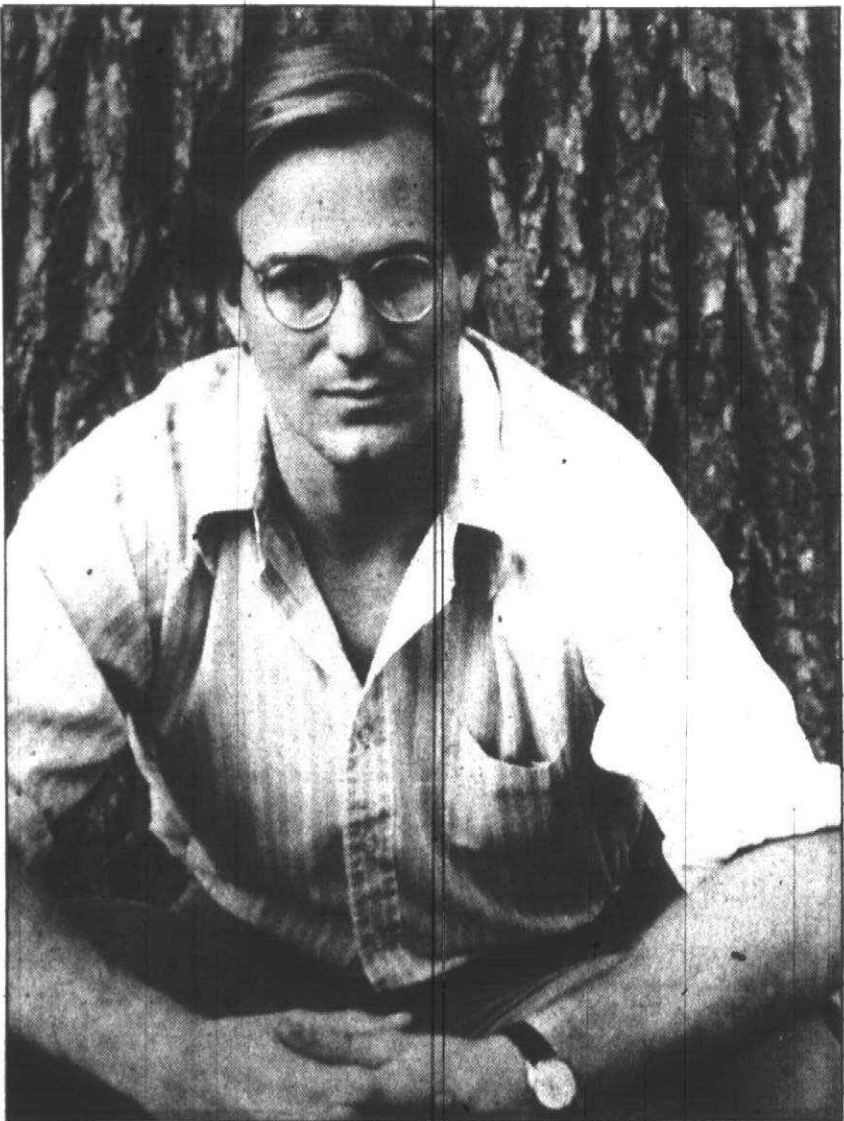

When there is a murder in his building, he sees an opportunity to strike up an acquaintance with the reporter by trading on his supposed inside knowledge.

SIGOURNEY WEAVER, who made a strong impression as the spaceship officer in "Alien," plays the TV reporter. Christopher Plummer, looking somewhat gaunt, plays her cosmopolitan lover. It is one of the few disappointing and weak characterizations in the movie — very sketchy and unconvincing.

James Woods, who has delivered colorful, effective performances in a number of movies ("The Onion Field," "Black Marble"), delivers again as Hurt's headstrong buddy.

On the other hand, Irene Worth who plays Weaver's mother is a fine actress who seems to have settled for some easy clichés in defining the role.

With these two minor exceptions, the characters in the movie, from the leads to the smallest roles, appear as individuals, not types — another reason why "Eyewitness" stands out among mysteries.

William Hurt is an unassuming janitor who may have witnessed a murder.

NEW RELEASES

ALTERED STATES (R). Ken Russell's science-fiction film about a man's exploration of altered states of consciousness. From novel by Paddy Chayefsky.

AMERICAN POP (R). Ralph Bakshi's latest animated venture tells the story of four generations of an American family whose lives turn on the beat of pop music.

ALL NIGHT LONG (R). Gene Hackman and Barbara Streisand in romantic comedy about an ordinary man who loses his job and his wife and lives happily ever after.

CHARLIE CHAN AND THE CURSE OF THE DRAGON QUEEN (PG). Mystery-satire with Peter Ustinov as the inscrutable detective, Richard Hatch as the bumbling grandson and Angie Dickinson as the Dragon Queen.

THE DEVIL AND MAX DEVLIN (PG). Elliott Gould is the manager of a rundown apartment building who bargains with Satan's assistant (Bill Cosby) for a peculiar exchange of souls.

THE ELEPHANT MAN (PG). Largely true story of grossly deformed man rescued from sordid life by compassionate doctor. Fine acting by John Hurt, Anthony Hopkins and John Gielgud balances out directorial shortcomings.

EYEWITNESS. Classy mystery in which television reporter (Sigourney Weaver) becomes involved with romantic young janitor (William Hurt) who may have witnessed a murder.

FORT APACHE, THE BRONX (R). Paul Newman and Edward Asner in powerful drama about embattled police precinct in New York's violent and devastated South Bronx.

THE INCREDIBLE SHRINKING WOMAN (PG). Lily Tomlin is a happy suburban housewife who faces big problems when she finds she is growing smaller every day.

INSIDE MOVES (PG). Unusual drama, funny and touching, concerns a group of regulars at a bar, handicapped or has-beens, and a newcomer (John Savage) who joins them and inspires them.

THE JAZZ SINGER (PG). Ridiculous remake magnifies all the faults of the first talking motion picture made in 1927. The story doesn't get any better. The songs get worse.

KAGEMUSHA (The Shadow Warrior) (PG). Director Akira Kurosawa's spectacular epic of the struggle for power among rival clans in 16th century Japan told through the story of a thief who takes the place of a dying warlord he resembles.

LOVERS AND LIARS (R). Irrepressible Goldie Hawn in romantic comedy with Giancarlo Giannini.

MELVIN AND HOWARD (R). Offbeat comedy about an unlikely folk hero, Melvin Dummar, the gas station attendant who claimed he picked up Howard Hughes in the Nevada desert and then became heir to a fortune.

THE MIRROR CRACK'D (PG). Aged but glamorous stars populate film based on Agatha Christie novel with spinster sleuth, Miss Jane Marple.

NINE TO FIVE (PG). Comedy with Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin and Dolly Parton as three secretaries who scheme to get rid of their boss.

ORDINARY PEOPLE (R). Robert Redford's directorial debut is a smash in this extraordinarily well-acted, moving film about a "perfect" family trying to cope with a son's mental illness.

RAGING BULL (R). Top performance by Robert De Niro in brutally realistic film about boxer Jake La Motta. Two-plus hours highlighting the life of a loathsome person.

ROAD GAMES (PG). A truck driver, a hitchhiker and a killer make up the threesome playing deadly games in this thriller with Stacy Keach.

TESS (PG). Thomas Hardy's classic novel ("Tess of the D'Urbervilles") of Victorian society captured in brilliant film directed by Roman Polanski.

TRIBUTE (PG). Jack Lemmon as dying father who tries to mend rift with his son, Robby Benson. Also with Lee Remick.

Bad wires can stop your car

An oil company study indicates one misfiring spark plug can waste up to two gallons of gasoline per tankful.

Spark plugs and other ignition system elements do not fail suddenly. Heat, electricity and chemical reactions combine to wear on components, eventually causing them to malfunction.

Most automobile experts can't overemphasize the importance of keeping the family car tuned up. Tune-ups, they say, are usually necessary about every 10,000-12,000 miles on today's cars to keep them running at peak efficiency.

A major tune-up involving tests of the starter, alternator, distributor, carburetor and emissions control equipment is probably best left to the professional mechanic.

BUT A minor tune-up of such items as spark plugs, spark plug wires, points (if your car does not have electronic ignition) and condenser is generally not beyond the skill of a do-it-yourselfer.

To change the spark plugs, you'll need a ratchet and socket set. To avoid burned knuckles, always work on a cold engine.

Begin the job by carefully removing the spark plug wires.

Never grasp the wires directly and pull — you're likely to break them. Spark plug wires may not be metal and may not have metal's flexibility.

Rather, grasp the boot of each wire (attached to the plug) and gently work the boot loose.

Remove each plug one at a time and replace or clean that plug. Insert the fresh plug and turn it by hand at least three turns before using your wrench.

NOTE: BEFORE tightening each plug, make certain the threads on both the plug and the engine cylinder are clean. Plugs should be tightened to the degree where the gasket is just crushed.

Lastly, insert the appropriate wire boot over each new plug and fasten securely.

Which brings up a good point: A significant part of any tune-up is the inspection of the wires leading from the spark plugs to the distributor cap.

Spark plug wires carry electricity at thousands of volts to your plugs and so it's vital that they operate efficiently at all times.

How often should these wires be checked? If you're an average driver, you should make a visual inspection at least once a year, and more often if your car gets heavy use. While you are checking the wires for cracks, check the belts for cracks and excessive wear.

LOOK FOR cracks, brittle boots and external sparking while the engine is running.

If you are going to replace one spark plug wire, you might as well replace them all. Chances are, several are beginning to wear, and the expense is not as great on a four-cylinder engine as it was on a V-8.

However, it's important to replace the wires one at a time. This is the best way to be sure the proper cylinder receives a spark from the distributor at the proper time.

Complete the connections on each before going on to the next.

Fingertip 4-wheel drive

The 1981 AMC Eagle SX-1.2 features a fingertip control to switch between two-wheel and four-wheel drive. The $150 Select Drive option allows the driver to choose between the traction of four-wheel-drive and the economy of two-wheel-drive. To switch, the driver stops the car and moves the dash-mounted control lever to the appropriate driving mode.
