Faust favors vote on 'Tisch 3' plan

By Sandra Armbruster staff writer

Voters may get another chance to

State Senate Majority Leader William Faust, D-Westland, thinks the Legislature should consider placing Robert Tisch's third tax cut proposal on the ballot since Proposal A was rejected by voters last Tuesday.

Tisch is the Shiawassee drain commissioner whose attempts to have his proposal placed on the ballot with Proposal A were rebuffed by legislators.

"One viable alternative is to put Tisch 3 on the ballot by itself in a special election this year and let voters decide if they want the consequences of a radical tax cut that would cut $2.7 billion out of a $4.8 billion (state) budget." said Faust, whose district also includes Garden City and Canton Township. "It would literally stop state services."

THE STATE is supposed to reimburse local governments for the special election for Proposal A at a cost of about $1.5 million. Faust said he thought that placing Tisch's plan on the ballot in October, although a regular election is held in November, would be worth the added cost.

"It has to be done in the next budget ecide whether they want a property year, which begins in October," he explained. "If Tisch 3 passed, it go into effect in October 1982, and that would give us an 11-month lead-in to write a new budget."

An election at a later date would mean the Legislature would only have from April until October to write a new budget, Faust said.

"Any proposal stands naked to the world on the ballot and will produce coalitions against it," Faust continued. "My feelings have changed. I don't think that Tisch-3, alone on the ballot, will pass.'

FAUST SAID he based that opinion on voters' record of having rejected tax cutting proposals four times. He admitted that one Tisch proposal got more votes than any of the others, but pointed out that none received 50 percent of

Get your garden plot now

Gardeners should set their alarm clocks for early Thursday morning if they're hoping to plant tomatoes and squash on township plots this year. Registration for the plots at the corner of Lilley and Warren is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, May 28, in recreation offices. The department is located in Township Hall on Canton Center at Proctor.

Mike Gouin, superintendent of the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, advises residents to arrive early at the registration site.

Up for grabs are approximately 200 garden plots, measuring about 25 by 50 feet. According to Gouin, about 200 residents already have called about the annual garden plot program. To register for a plot, gardeners must bring proof of Canton residency. The fee for each plot is $2.

Gouin said the garden plot area has been staked and partially disked. Residents may request a particular garden plot at the time of registration.

Developer Richard Lewiston, who owns the garden plot area, has allowed Canton Township to use the parcel for the last several years.

School candidates eye district financing

By Emory Daniels staff writer

Predictably, candidates for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education have different ideas about financing education in the school district.

The divergence of viewpoints especially can be seen when candidates discuss the need for additional propertytax millage for operation and/or main-

On June 8 residents of the district will be asked to approve two ballot issues dealing with school finances.

One proposal is a request to increase the operating levy by one mill or $1 per $1,000 state equalized valuation (SEV) for a period of eight years.

The second proposal is a request to of buildings and school property. levy the "authorized rate," which is commonly referred to as the Headlee rollback proposal.

The request for permission to levy the authorized rate in effect would allow the district to levy nine-tenths of a mill (90 cents per $1,000 SEV) which otherwise would have been reduced from the operating levy because property valuations in Plymouth-Canton have increased greater than the costof-living.

Although the June 8 ballot will not include such a request there has been, and still is, some sentiment among school administrators and trustees to seek voter approval of millage which would be earmarked for maintenance

During the recent public hearings held on redistricting and expansion of Extended School Year (ESY), some residents expressed a desire to vote for added millage for debt retirement to provide classroom space without expanding ESY or without disrupting neighborhood school boundaries.

Because of the alternative ideas about millage proposals held by parents, administrators and school trustees, each candidate was asked:

Q. Which of the following ballot proposals would you support, and why?

businesses located along the freeway. The board recently heard comments from Arthur Stiles, an official from Knight's Inn headquarters in Columbus, Ohio. Stiles said more than 70 percent of travelers decide where to stay "at least partially" because of signs and appearance.

"SIGNS ARE extraordinarily important in the motel industry," Stiles said. "Seventy-five percent of people travel without advance reservation.'

Stiles showed a film indicating that the motel's current sign is difficult to see by travelers driving 55 miles per hour along the freeway. Also making it harder to see are the motel's low-lying construction, shrubs along the roadway and the fact that it is situated behind the Bob Evans restaurant.

The 107-unit motel was constructed in 1980. Why was Canton selected, in view of its tight sign stipulations?

Stiles said a site-selection committee had been told in 1979 that the sign ordinance was being revised. But those changes didn't help. Many customers now are coming as referrals from other fully booked motels. "A SURVEY of guests indicated many didn't notice (Knight's Inn) until they passed it," Stiles said. "We're suffering, and we have to depend on our competitors to fill our motel."

Stiles said highway billboards are very difficult to obtain. He said he would like a variance to allow a freestanding sign about 50 feet high which would be more easily seen from the

Sign law sparks business woes

CANTON businessmen and businesswomen have long complained that restrictive signs are hampering their business.

In 1975, Canton incorporated into the zoning ordinance guidelines on the types and sizes of signs which could be used.

That controversial ordinance was revised about two years ago to make it less stringent. Currently, the maximum size for freestanding signs is 18 square feet for synthetic materials and 25 square feet for natural wood.

When those revisions were made, the planning commission had recommended allowing relief through the zoning board of appeals for businesses which clearly depended on freeway traffic for their survival. But the Township Board rejected that.

IN RECENT weeks, township Trustees Loren Bennett and Robert Padget have suggested taking another look at the sign ordi-

"It wasn't doing the businesses a good turn, but providing the motoring public with information they need," said Padget, a former member of the planning commission.

"Somehow, we have to be reasonable enough to let the public know the business is there. I guess nobody likes a lot of signs.

"Let's review it. Most of the sign ordinance is liveable, but it's different for the businesses along the freeway." Trustee Carol Bodenmiller said very careful regulations would have to be outlined as to which kinds of businesses would be eligible for a variance.

"I see very great difficulty," Mrs. Bodenmiller said. "I also have great sympathy for (Knight's Inn)."

Kids swap notes on novel writing

A number of elementary pupils gathered recently at Starkweather School in Old Village, Plymouth, for the 10th annual Young Authors Conference sponsored by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The districtwide event was attended by pupils from individual schools who were invited to attend on the basis of the quality of their written work.

Each young author brought with them a "published book," which was displayed along with the written works of other youngsters throughout Plymouth-Canton.

During the morning, students attended a variety of activity sessions built around the theme of "The Good Old Days." Activities ranged from early film-making, square dancing, candy and candle making, corn husk dolls, to yarn lapel pins, trains, and a study of tombstones.

This year's conference was planned by Klo Phillippi, learning specialist at Starkweather, and hosted by Starkweather Principal John Howe.

Learning specialists who helped coordinate the conference included: Vada Starr, Allen, Terry Secord, Bird and Ger; Anne Neiswander, Eriksson; Sandy Lanese, Fiegel; Luan Brownlee, Field; Barbara Schoolmeesters, Gallimore; Marion Brown; Hulsing; Connie Peterson, Miller; Tina Powell, Smith; Irene Finkbeiner, Farrand; and Paula Holmes, Tanger.

Another highlight of the conference was the presentation of an original play written Dick Johnson's fifth-grade class at Starkweather.

The young actors performing for the young authors were Joan Arcos, Gus Battaglia, Mike Bellaire, Kelly Berg. Leslie Burns, Angie Byrd, Sherri Clifton, James Coffey, Steve Collins, Jennifer Forgie, Kevin Givens, Tim Glick, Laura Grimes, John Hamblin; Wyatt Hazlett, Julie Heller, Tina Jarvis, Julie Johnson, Michelle Landin, Jane Leach, Ervie Nostrant, Greta Schnurstein, Craig Schmidt, Sandy Short, Tammi Stein, Wendy West, and Christy Zehner.

Activity leaders

A number of community resource persons as well as staff members volunteered to serve as leaders of activity sessions for the annual Young Authors Conference held recently in Starkweather Elementary School.

The activity sessions and leaders for the districtwide event, which had as a theme "The Good Old Days," were:

Senior day care centers — an alternative to institutions

By Elaine McDermott special writer

6A(C)

Mrs. McDermott is a Southfield resident, a gerontology major at Madonna College and a member of the Michigan Association of Senior Day Care Centers. For more than five years, she has been a patient advocate for Citizens for Better Care. Guest columns by other readers are welcome.

"New beginnings" is a term being used nationally to help ease the financial situation in our country.

New beginnings aptly describes the alternative offered to senior citizens living in a community where senior day care is available. Unfortunately, most individuals don't understand what senior day care means.

Senior day care is a generic term that applies to a variety of services from active rehabilitation to social and health-related care.

Based on services performed, various terms include day care, day treatment, day health care, psychiatric day treatment, partial hospitalization and day hospital care.

Nationally, more than 600 senior day care programs exist and the number is rapidly growing. In Michigan, however, to my knowledge, there are only 11 such programs in Ann Arbor, Dearborn, Flint, Grand Rapids, Hamtramck, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Manistee, Marquette and Detroit.

IN OAKLAND County, no comparable services are offered to our elderly. Yet living in our community today are countless elderly persons who are at high risk. They are unable to adequately meet the needs of daily living without some third party assistance.

One option being investigated by a number of communities as a viable alternative to institutionalization is senior day care.

In some cases, social models are used to care for seniors living in extended family homes with loved ones. Respite care, in addition to offering a congenial, pleasant atmosphere, also relieves close family members of constant 24-hour care.

a division of

When these centers are close to senior centers where many activities are offered for recreational diversity, it provides a previously homebound person the opportunity to mingle and share friendships with well peers. This can be therapeutic.

BY USING the services of local hospitals and medical personnel, the medical model helps to closely monitor at-risk elderly whose health is deteriorating. Preventive care then can alert the elderly and their families to impending physical ailments or disabilities.

Possible services for senior day care programs might be reality orientation and retraining in activities of daily living for stroke victims, recreational activities for mental stimulation, intellectual stimulation through educational experience, physical exercise and a better-rounded nutritional foundation.

The ultimate achievement would be maintenance of living standards by allowing people to live out their waning years with dignity and pride. Quality of life is a well-cherished American tradition and should continue to be high on our list of priorities.

From a cost containment perspective, day care is extremely useful in holding the line when compared to institutionalization, foster home care and chore services in the home.

The average cost of nursing home care in our state is $11,000. Foster care placements cost approximately $6,000 and in-home chore service averages $3,600 annually. Day care can be offered for $3,013 a year based on present available data.

Existing national programs have been grassroots oriented, because influential people have seen a need and acted to respond in a positive way.

We cannot avoid addressing the problems faced by our mushrooming elderly population. The time is now for us to being to make this concept a reality

'Nationally, more than 600 senior day care programs exist, and the number is rapidly growing. In populous Oakland County, no comparable services are offered to our elderly. Yet living in our community today are countless elderly persons who are at high risk.

Town names commercial and oriental

By Robert Woodring special writer

A city in Pennsylvania was named after a candy bar. It is called Hershey. A town in Iowa shares its name with a refrigera-

Michigan could easily have the only town in the United States named for a shopping center. That's The J.L. Hudson Co. chose this western Detroit suburb as its site for a second major shopping center to follow the pattern of the first of its kind in the southeast corner of Southfield, Northland Center. Hudson's development prompted Nankin Township leaders to call for a vote of cityhood to protect the property tax benefits. This isn't so unusual when you consider that other cities exist as by-products of race tracks or industrial expansion.

BEFORE IT was named for a mall, Westland had other origins shared with a couple of other Detroit suburbs.

Communities such as Pekin (now Dearborn), Canton, and Nankin (Westland) were all named for a Chinese counterpart, probably a result of British trade during the early 1800s. During that time, China was opened to trade with the West, prior to the Opium Wars.

Despite the Revolutionary War, the Michigan Territory was staunchly British until the War of 1812. When we celebrate the Fourth of July, it might mean a free holiday today, but Michiganians were loyal British subjects when Easterners signed the declaration of freedom.

During the 1825 expansion, encouraged by the opening of the Erie Canal and the auctioning of land, Detroiters probably communicated with British relatives and benefited from the Chinese trade.

CANTON WAS settled in 1825 by Perry Sheldon, David Cady and Childs Downer, becoming Sheldon's Corners

Dearborn had been called Ten Eyck, Bucklin and Pekin before being called Dearborn after the 1812 commander, Gen. Henry Dearborn.

Since most histories are seemingly recorded only after white settlers open a territory, the only major reference to the earliest inhabitants is the city of Pontiac (Chief Pontiac) and an automobile namesake.

Redford wasn't official until Azarias Bell arrived in 1818. The Shiawassee, Ann Arbor and Grand River trails passed through or near this fording of the Rouge River, thus the evolution of the name Red (rouge) and Ford (fording of the river). A post office was assigned to this area and was.

A heart filled with poetry

"Writing is to prose as dancing is to walking." Ron Brasch said that. I'm not sure he said it first.

But Brasch, who writes advertising copy and poetry, means it's harder to dance well than to walk well. And for sure it's tough to write well.

Brasch's goal is to use words in conjunction which each other as they've never before been seen. To make commonplace language unique is the very core of communication, he believes.

My secret ambition is to publish a novel, a short story or a poem for posterity. I love the newspaper business. But agonizing over a 20-inch story and visualizing it wrapped around yesterday's garbage can be discouraging. Ah, the woes of fleeting fame.

It must be sheer eutopia to have reached the pinnacle in life where an adoring public clamors for your every thought, fantasy and conviction. Of course, nobody gives a damn about your opinions unless you're published or have otherwise distinguished yourself.

In my dreams, I see rapt audiences held spellbound while I dissertate on such subjects as why I hate rutabagas and adore Robert Redford. If I could only write my memoirs before I become famous.

AMONG MY memoirs are a bunch of poems I wrote about such commonplace subjects as bringing up kids, taking in a stray dog and fighting with a bridge partner.

When I read the literary gems to my friends, they shook their heads in commiseration and agreed, "How true, how true." These well-meaners urged me to mail my rhymes to womens' magazines to make the world a better, wiser place.

So like a mother hen, I sent my tender little fledglings out into the cold, cruel world of publishers where I feared my babies would be booted to the bottom of wastebaskets buried under cigar butts. But they weren't. They came home to roost along with rejection slips.

How sad it is that women everywhere are deprived of sharing my universal thoughts, nodding their heads and saying "How true, how true." But I guess I didn't achieve the uniqueness to which Brasch aspires.

The 34-year-old poet from Farmington Hills, for instance, got one inspiration when he was traveling on an island along the coast of France. How can I be inspired when I'm driving from Southfield to Birmingham in my daily travels?

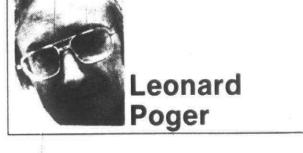

ANYWAY, BRASCH saw an old church and had an image of a deserted church in northern Michigan. He wrote the poem, "Christen," which starts, "We find this place in late summer when crops go fallow -".

And on one New Year's Eve, Brasch wrote a poem about grandmothers shopping in a supermarket. They were fondling the lettuce and talking about their grandchildren as though that's all they had. That is all they have, these women who were once young and desirable, Brasch said.

That's depressing but it's sure making the commonplace unique. It's like Brasch's poem about a photograph which captures a happy moment, never to be recaptured except in memory.

If fate decrees that I will never be a rich and famous writer, I take heart in a poem by Peter Al-

"I never dreamed of being Shakespeare or Goethe. And I never expected to hold the great mirror of truth up before the world. I dreamed only of being a little pocket mirror, the sort that a woman can carry in her purse. One that reflects small blemishes and some great beauties when held close enough to the heart."

Property taxes not fair for some cities

Homeowners like to complain about the heavy burden of property taxes.

The grumbling increased as the debate heated up over Proposal A, the property tax relief plan voters rejected by a 3-to-1 margin last Tuesday.

But a review of the property tax burden isn't complete unless there is serious study about the inequities of property taxation — both as it applies to those who pay and those in local government who

The U.S. Constitution guarantees that no one shall be denied equal protection of the law. But it is clear among neighboring suburbs that some cities with a wealthy industrial and commercial tax base have more protection than other communities.

To get into a comparison, let's take a look at how the current property tax system affects homeowners and how much public services they received through property taxes.

For purposes of example, let's assume that identical houses in different communities have the same local assessment and state equalized valuation.

That would mean two homeowners with the same. size home and amenities and the same millage rate would pay identical property tax bills. But what do they get for their taxes?

THE DIFFERENCES come about through the development of business and industry - or lack of it — at a certain point in time. A good example is the Westland-Livonia growth pattern. At one point in the 1950s, Westland (then known as Nankin Township) had a larger population than Livonia. But the housing boom after the Korean War helped Livonia's population grow a little more than Westland's.

The main difference between them was that Livonia also received industrial growth -- four major General Motors plants, two large Ford Motor facilities, several supermarket warehouses and hundreds of smaller plants along the railroad.

 Westland's major taxpayer is Westland Shopping Center.

A few miles away, Garden City notes it is the home of the first Kmart in the country. It also has a modest industrial park — and that's about it for a property tax base.

In dollars and cents, Livonia's property tax revenue is more than double Westland's, and about five times greater than Garden City's.

From the homeowner's point of view, it means that one mill ($1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) generates $1.2 million in Livonia, about $500,000 in Westland and $250,000 in Garden City.

So Garden City residents, with little industrial property to tax, pay a relatively high millage rate for city services but get a lot less for their money.

AS FOR city administration: Livonia has a planning department of 11 persons, including seven professionals. Westland has only two professionals on

Garden City didn't have a full-time planner until 15 months ago. He has no assistant, does his own drafting work, and shares a secretary

PROPOSAL A would have represented a move in the right direction, sharing the cost of the cities among all of Michigan's taxpayers...

But city and school officials were upset because such equity would mean a big drop in revenues for their institutions.

Local leaders prefer to control the destinies of their own communities, even if it means struggling along with unequal sources of money.

Life-saving kits are now available

A kit is now available here for people with chronic health problems.

The kit has been designed to assist rescue efforts during an emergency situation by supplying vital medical information on the spot.

Called "Save-A-Life," the kit is sponsored by Woodland Medical Center. The center says the kit has been endorsed by police, fire and emergency medical personnel in a number of Wayne and Oakland county communi-

"Anyone that has a chronic health problem with the potential of rendering him or her unconscious lives with the fear of being unable to communicate during a medical crisis," said Dr. John Mucasey, president of Woodland Medical Group P.C., Novi. "These individuals can have a hand in saving their own lives by having the right kind of information available for rescue personnel, and that's the purpose of a 'Save-A-Life' kit."

The kits are particularly useful for the elderly, those who are on daily medication, and persons with chronic disorders or a history of heart trouble,

More than 11,000 kits have been handed out during the first few weeks of distribution. Using the kit is easy, he said.

The kits, in a 6x9-inch envelope, may be obtained at: Plymouth City Hall, police department and fire department, all at 201 S. Main; Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main,

Celebrate with

FRESH FRUIT SHORTCAKES

With all the special days and festive occasions to honor parents, newlyweds and graduates, every family has reasons to get together and celebrate this season. For a spectacular dessert worthy of the celebration, make one of these luscious fresh fruit shortcakes.

This collection includes both traditional strawberry recipes and new versions with other fresh fruits.

The first recipe, Strawberry-Peach Shortcake Ring, looks so festive you will want to serve it at the table. The secret to its interesting flavor is the sweet orangesugar mixture glazing the golden biscuit ring.

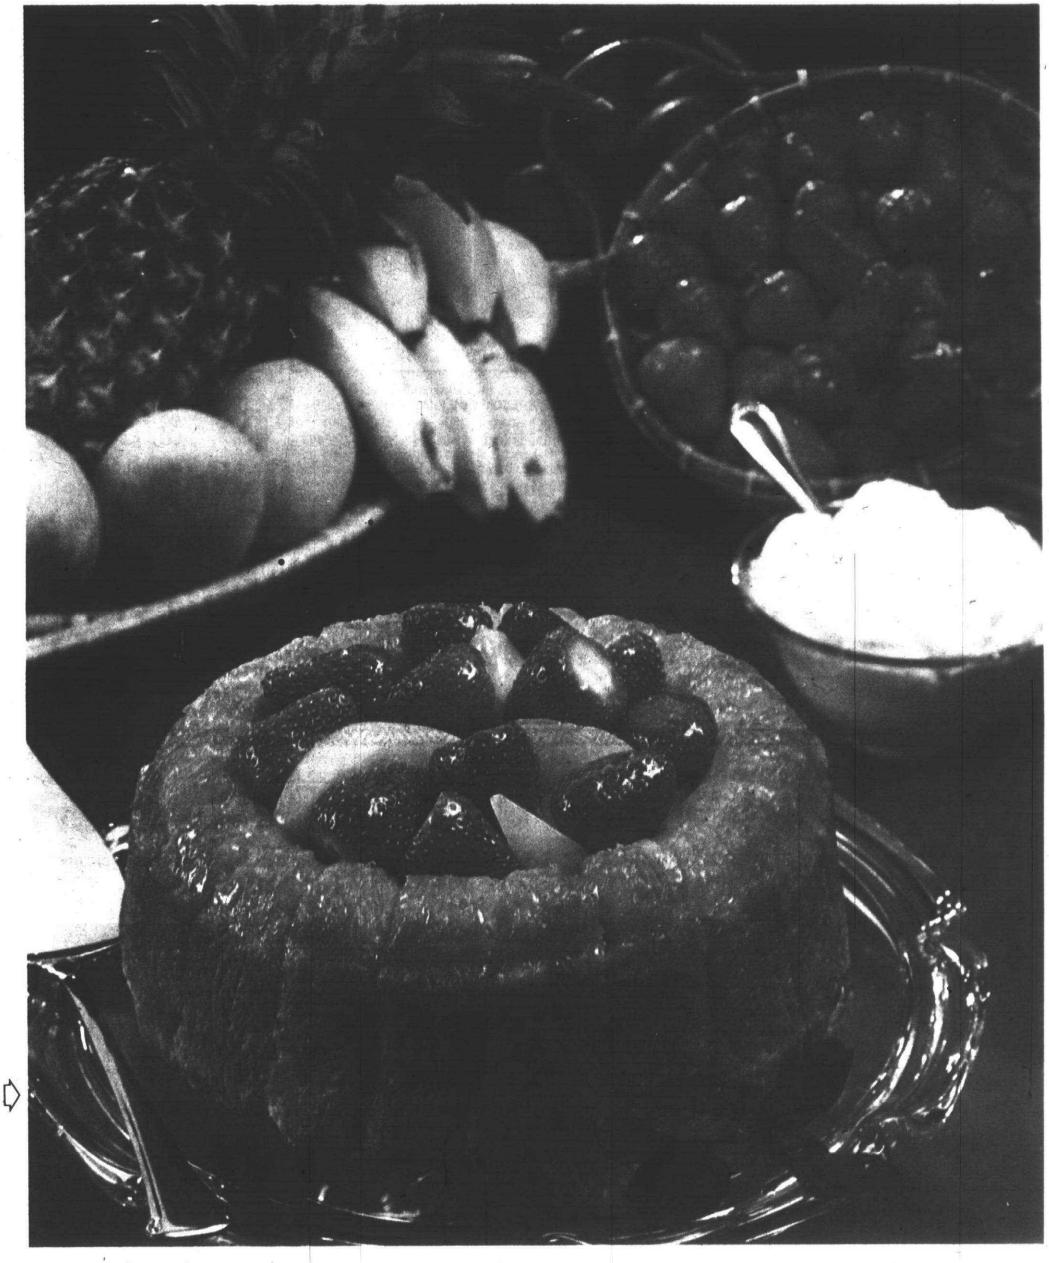

With its two large layers topped with strawberries, Very Berry Shortcake Torte is another spectacular dessert. Be sure to use the flaky biscuits called for in the recipe, because you separate each into two layers when preparing the torte.

For a change from strawberry versions, serve Lemon Fluff Shortcake. Its intriguing filling combines a light lemon cream with slices of cantaloupe and honeydew melon.

If your family includes shortcake purists, they will be especially delighted with Towering Strawberry Shortcake for celebrations or anytime. These easy shortcakes take only minutes with refrigerated biscuits, and you can use them for other favorite fresh fruits, too.

Let your guests admire this luscious Strawberry-Peach Shortcake Ring before it is cut. A dollop of whipped cream tops each serving.

Gather your own grape leaves

A few weeks ago, avocados were selling at four for $1 at a local market — an incredible bargain!

Since I had been saving an avocado salad recipe for just such an occasion, I bought four. Reviewing the recipe at home I discovered I lacked one ingredient — a special French

At least five stores later, I finally found the missing ingredient — at $6 a jar. So much for my bargain.

I often run into this kind of a situation especially with ethnic recipes. Peasant dishes, casseroles "in the manner of the thrifty housewife" - this type of fare frequently becomes expensive gourmet food in the process of crossing the ocean.

A mushroom that grows wild in France, a fish found abundantly off the coast of Ireland, a variety of hot pepper heaped high in openair Mexican markets — all become elusive and exorbitant imported luxuries outside of their native habitats.

There are times when this perverse price escalation can be thwarted, however. An example is Greek stuffed grape leaves. Imported grape leaves are available in jars — in small quantities for inflated prices.

Fresh grape leaves are also available locally for the picking in late spring and summer. You may have grape vines in your own back yard. If not, check with your neighbors, along roadsides or in parks.

The vines you are looking for are wild. Domestic vines (those which actually bear grapes) produce leaves that are tough and inedible.

THE ONE TIME I had ever picked grape leaves was from an accommodating neighbor's fruit-bearing vines. Billy Bassaras, an excellent cook - particularly skilled in his native Greek cuisine - was kind enough to explain the distinction between wild and domestic grape leaves and to share his recipe for stuffed grape leaves

Luckily, the domestic leaves I had picked were only to tuck in a jar of pickles. If the leaves had been stuffed instead, the result would have been a waste of ingredients - not too bad since the leaves were free and the rice inexpensive — and hours of work.

That's the catch. The stuffed grape leaves are delicious and inexpensive but very timeeonsuming. Your best bet would be to recruit eager (or even reluctant) family and friends for an afternoon of leaf-picking and stuffing.

This social approach must surely be the one taken in Greek villages or their women would never be willing to endure the tedium of producing the involved foods that make up the complex, wonderful Greek cuisine.

Whether alone or in good company, once you have found a source of wild grape leaves, Billy Bassaras recommends that you pick "a ton." Any surplus can be wrapped, unwashed, in foil packets and frozen. When ready to serve, simply thaw the leaves, rinse well and

The stuffed grape leaves can be served cold as an appetizer preceding an authentic Greek meal. You might want to finish such a meal with the marvelous Greek pastry, baklava. The best baklava is, of course, produced in the Billy Bassaras makes his own — far superior to anything found in the stores and restaurants of Greektown.

PART OF HIS secret lies in the use of clarified butter. He recommends Land O'Lakes as having a better flavor, higher butterfat content and less water than other brands. (This is an observation I have heard from other discriminating cooks.)

In order to keep the pastry from crushing as you attempt to slice it, he suggests placing the pan of unbaked baklava in the freezer just long enough to freeze the layers of butter. At this point, the pastry can be neatly sliced into squares and then baked as usual.

Another traditional Greek dessert commonly available for sale in Greektown is Greek wedding cookies. Again, however, Billy Bassaras claims that these cookies do not begin to compare with those made in a Greek home.

As with the baklava, part of the secret lies in clarifying the butter. The dough must also be handled very lightly in order to prevent toughening the cookies. When they are properly prepared, Billy promises that these will melt in your mouth.

STUFFED GRAPE LEAVES 1 jar vine leaves or 40-50 fresh wild grape

Bring water, butter and salt to a boil in saucepan.

Add cheese and stir until melted. Add rice, vegetables and chicken. Cover, remove from heat and let stand 10 minutes. Stir before serving. Makes 3 cups leaves

3/4 cup raw rice 2 onions, finely chopped

34 cup pre-cooked rice

1 cup cooked mixed vegetables

1 cup diced cooked chicken

1 tbsp. finely chopped parsley

1 tbsp. chopped fresh dill

Juice from 2 lemons 1 lemon, thinly sliced 1 cup water 3/4 cup olive oil Salt and pepper

If using leaves from a jar, scald the leaves with hot water and drain. If using fresh leaves, rinse well and drop into a pot of boiling water. Remove the pan from the heat and allow to stand for 5 minutes. Drain. Cut off stems carefully from the leaves and drape over the edge of the colander to further drain.

In a skillet, saute the onions and parsley in 2 tablespoons hot olive oil; add rice, dill, salt and pepper to taste. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Set aside and cool. When cool stir in juice from the two lemons.

Take a small, flat plate and brush with oil. Place leaf, shiny side down, with point of leaf facing away from you. Place 1 tablespoon of rice mixture in center of leaf. Fold each side of leaf in and roll up from the bottom as if rolling a cigar. Do not roll too tightly as rice expands during cooking and may split your Spread 2 tablespoons of olive oil in the bottom of a 5-quart pan and layer bottom with any leaves that may be torn or too small to use. Begin wrapping and layering stuffed grape leaves in pot. Lay lemon slices over each layer and sprinkle with a little olive oil. Pour water and any remaining oil over all the leaves. Place a plate on top (inverted) to weight them down and cover. Simmer over very low heat for 40-50 minutes. Remove, drain and cool before serving. To serve, arrange stuffed leaves on a large plate garnished with lemon slices and accompanied with a dish of yogurt seasoned with fresh dill.

GREEK WEDDING COOKIES (Kourambiethes)

1 lb. clarified butter

1 egg yolk

2 tbsp. confectioners' sugar

1 tsp. vanilla or whiskey

1 tsp. baking powder

5 cups sifted flour (approx.)

Refrigerate clarified butter until slightly hardened. Remove from refrigerator and, using electric mixer, beat butter until it is very white and resembles whipping cream. Stir in egg yolk and 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar, vanilla and baking powder. Add flour and mix thoroughly, but be careful that you do not "manhandle" the dough or over-work it. Do not refrigerate unless you plan on using later. If refrigerated, allow the dough to return to room temperature before continuing. Shape the dough into little balls about 34 of an inch in diameter and slightly flatten on cookie sheets and bake at 350° for 15 minutes or until golden brown. Remove carefully from sheets and place on waxed paper to cool.

Sprinkle a very little ground cinnamon or cloves over tops of cookies. Sift a small amount of confectioners' sugar over tops, when thoroughly cooled, cover with sifted confectioners' sugar. Place 2 or 3 cookies in colored paper cups (muffin type) and arrange on large serving plate. May be stored in airtight container for several weeks.

Sue Griebel gave a dazzling smile to their guest of honor.

Packed in the back of a pickup truck, the former showgirls and their guest, Russ Webster, headed for the restaurant.

Patti Centofanti and Beth DeCoster wore the costumes they donned for their routine in the arts council musical revue.

Has Beens provide dinner and surprises

Russ Webster was top bidder for the dinner date with the Has Beens, an item offered at the recent WSDP radio station auction. The group of former showgirls took him to dinner Thursday evening, and it was one surprise after another. He didn't expect to be picked up in a pickup truck. He did not antici-

Webster said, "I really had royal treatment, a really nice time." All in all, with the steak and crabmeat dinner complete with salad bar at the new Steak and Ale restaurant, the evening was well worth his $65 bid, he said.

He, too, had performed in the Plymouth Community Arts Council's musical revue, "Shenanigans," earlier in the year. It was the revue that brought the

Has Beens together for the show and has kept them together for monthly luncheon meetings.

The showgirls recaptured the mood of their musical revue days by doing an impromptu song and dance act for the patrons of the restaurant.

Elaine Kouba was just one of the glamorous Has Beens who took Russ out for dinner.

THOSE PEOPLE who were walking around last week with their feet barely touching the ground were members of the Plymouth Community Chorus. Their spring concerts Saturday and Sunday evenings were responsible for their happiness. It was the first time the chorus had performed a concert two nights running. It was the first time they were called on for an encore. Calvin Chen's "Alexander's Ragtime Band" received a standing ovation.

Usually, when the curtain goes down on the final number, members of the chorus stand quietly in place - no noise as they quietly leave the stage. After Sunday's concert, there was a general cheer and with no hats to throw in air, they threw their

The singers adjourned to the Plymouth Cultural Center for their afterglow. There were impromptu performances.

Layne Sabourin did a monologue and pantomime. A group billed as "The Six Pack" sang "Wasn't That a Party" and "King Tut" among other songs. The Six Pack was Karen and Joe Hopersberger, Carol and Calvin Chen, Kathy Hunter and Sandi Gogan. They also discovered some talented gut bucket and guitar players in the chorus.

The concert marked the end of the regular season, but director Mike Gross and company will be making some appearances this summer at the Canton Festival, the Plymouth Fall Festival and the Westland Arts Council Festival.

school honored Mrs. Goebel, who is retiring in June after teaching kindergarten for 23 years at St. Peter School.

There was a coffee between morning services and a gift from the congregation - to help finance a retirement trip. Her family joined her for the second service in which prayers were offered for her and her children.

Seated with their mother were Philip and Ellie Goebel and children Carol and Joel of Plymouth Township; Elaine and Thomas Goebel and children Matthew and Scott of Auburn Heights; and Ellen and William D. Goebel and children David and Nathan of Plymouth

Helen Ribar Goebel has lived in Plymouth all her life. She did not start teaching until her children were in school. She said teaching kindergarten has been rewarding. Particular joys have been earning the trust of the children.

"And there are the times they have said 'I can't do it.' After urging them to 'just try,' it has been a reward to see their eyes light up when they succeed. I have always treated them as people.'

She said she doesn't plan to take her trip this year. "I have always wanted to go to Alaska. Or perhaps I will go to Scandinavia - maybe next year."

She doesn't intend to stagnate in her retirement. She will continue to give piano lessons.

'And I said I would substitute at the school. I'd like to take some classes myself, perhaps at Schoolcraft. And my 93-year-old mother is in the Martin Luther Home in South Lyon. I'm going to spend more time with her and the other residents of the home."

ALL THOSE NEAT egg cups, eggs and egg-related items in a Plymouth Furniture window display caught my eye last week. I stopped in to ask about them.

"It's publicity for the Art in the Park and Farmer's Market," was the response. Some women had been in arranging the display, and my informant didn't know who they

A call to Diane Quinn (who had suggessted the art in the park) revealed that Diane and Betty and Jerry McCully had been the women in the window. The collection came from the McCully Egg Co. on Mill Street in Old Village, with some additional items from the William

McCully and Adam McCully homes. The collection is a family project. "Almost all of them are from the lobby of the store in Old Village," said Betty. "They are displayed in an antique breakfront. We added some things from our homes. Through the years, we have collected the pictures and the egg

Kellogg Park is local landmark

The city of Plymouth's favorite landmark received official recognition on Heritage Day of Michigan Week. The Landmarks Committée of the American Association of University Women unveiled a bronze plaque designating Kellogg Park as important local land-

Prudi Westerhold, committee chairman, presented the award to Mayor Mary Childs in a brief afternoon cere-

Kellogg Park, hub of Plymouth's downtown business district, was recently rated as one of Michiganians 81 favorite places. The triangular park serves as a focal point for many community activities from summer band concerts, to the annual fall festival, to carol singing and visits to Santa's headquarters at the end of the year.

While researching the history of the park, the Landmarks committee found that the park has served as a gathering place for more than 150 years.

ORAL TRADITION maintains the Potawatomi Indians were the first to use the park area as a place to tether their horses. At that time, the park was a scrub opening lacking trees in a forested area.

William Starkweather bought 240 acres of land from the U.S. government in 1825. He paid $1.25 per acre for the holding which included the park site, present downtown Plymouth, and the surrounding residential land. Starkweather built a log cabin on the property.

The homestead was purchased in 1835 by John Kellogg. He and his wife, Eleanor, five sons and two daughters had made a long journey from Palmyra, New York to settle in Plymouth. Kellogg built an imposing brick home on the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street, the site of William Starkweather's original log cabin and now the site of the Mayflower Hotel.

Across the street, the park had become a meeting place used by the villagers for picnics and for tethering

As Plymouth began to grow, the enterprising Kellogg built the Plymouth Hotel on the northwest corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail, facing what now was referred to as the village green. The hotel prospered as a stopover for travelers using the new plank road which connected Ann Arbor and De-

IN 1840, the village green was fenced and in 1858 trees were planted.

The site became less a pasture and more a park. Band concerts and circuses were performed there.

Research by the AAUW committee revealed two versions of the circumstances under which the park became community property.

One is that John Kellogg donated the land to the village of Plymouth. In an opinion written by Edward Draugelis, city attorney in 1962, it is stated that "the conclusion one draws — is that the land now known as Kellogg Park was purchased along with other acreage about 1843 by Mr. Kellogg, and at some time prior to 1867, by a conveyance not of record, Mr. Kellogg granted the triangular piece known as Kellogg Park to the city."

Another story has it that Kellogg and his heirs allowed residents the use of the triangular park for public gatherings over so long a period, without protest, that it became public property by common consent. Both versions are noted by Sam Hudson in his book, "History of Plymouth."

The AAUW Landmarks committee agreed that whichever version is true, Plymouth owes its graditude to Kellogg and his heirs for one of the community's most popular assets.

THE PLAQUE presented by the committee will be mounted on granite and placed permanently in the southwest corner of the park.

Committee members include Prudi Westerhold, Luan Brownlee, Marilyn Carl, Mary Fritz, Joyce Foust, Bonnie Graham, Elizabeth Gribble, Jeannine Hayden, Nancy Mather, Veja Markovs, Elizabeth O'Mara, Mary Pearson, Carol Packard, Marci Theeke and Virginia Warden.

Landmark awards are traditionally presented during Michigan Week, usually on Heritage Day. The tradition is in its ninth year.

Buildings of historic value in the Plymouth-Canton Community have been selected since 1972 to receive the bronze awards. Early sites to be honored include the Shattuck-Garlett house, built in the early 1840s, and the Lyon-Moss house, built in 1829.

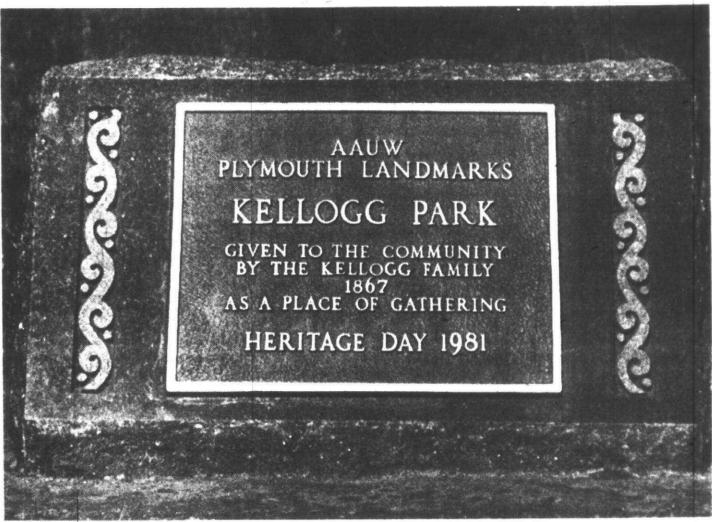

The buildings honored last year were the old Plymouth Hospital, founded in 1932 in a house built in 1890, and the Hamilton-Moon house, built in 1874 by Clarence Hamilton, inventor of the Daisy Air Rifle.

Photographs of each of the landmark homes are part of a permanent collection at the Plymouth Historical Muse-

Plymouth Township seniors to organize

Senior citizens who are residents of Plymouth Township have been invited to attend a senior-citizen's-group organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 28, in Township Hall on Ann Arbor Road east of Lilley.

The first meeting will focus on the importance of an active senior citizens' group in the township. The meeting's main point will be to get the senior citizens' comments on what they would desire in their organization.

The township is in the process of acquiring a church building on Schoolcraft Road in Lake Pointe Village to be used as a senior citizens' center for residents. The acquisition will provide a meeting place for seniors in the township, in a friendly, social atmosphere.

As preparations are made to renovate the building, which will become a regular meeting place, it is hoped the seniors will plan and work together on Supervisor Maurice Breen will address the meeting, and refreshments will be served. Persons wishing more information about the group may call Hugo Neimi at 459-2165.

All students in grades five-12 are eligible. The senior choir is especially looking for talented young men. For more information, call Linda Parr, 522-4661, or Joan Coombs, 477-1739.

The choir provides many opportunities for members to rehearse and perform in a variety of settings and locations. There are opportunities for solo performances supported by individual vocal coaching and training.

During the past few years, the choir has performed in Canada and the United States, in international competition and with area symphony orchestras and other choirs.

Dr. Maynard Klein of Interlochen and the University of Michigan and Dr. Jerry Smith - among others - will guest conduct the choir.

Chiefs, Salem announce softball date

Teams advance in state tournament

Area softball interest will be revived Saturday when Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton meet in the Class A district semifinal game at 12:30 p.m. at

That matchup became a reality Friday as both teams passed pre-district

An improving Salem team, coached by Rob Willette, won its second tournament game with a 16-6 five-inning mercy rule win over Northville.

Canton, meanwhile, had little trouble beating Milford Lakeland 12-5.

The Rocks, who struggled during mid-season, raised their overall season record to 9-11 with three victories in four games last week.

Pitcher Diane Murphy, called up from the junior varsity squad three weeks ago, ran her record to 3-0 on a six-hitter against Northville.

She got plenty of offensive help as her teammates banged out 13 hits.

Trailing 6-5 after three innings, Salem exploded for five runs in the fourth inning and collected six more in the fifth to put the game away.

Sophomore Mary Pryslak continued her hot hitting by going three-for-three. She had four RBIs.

Other Rocks with two hits included Jeanine Papa, Lori Jarski, Kelly Strautz and Chris Brennan.

Canton took advantage of numerous Lakeland mistakes in raising the team's season mark to 8-5. The Chiefs collected only five hits. Marianne Pink went all the way for

Smith's bat, arm lifts Canton

Pre-district baseball thriller

staff writer

If there ever was a thing as a predistrict "classic," Friday's game between Plymouth Canton and North Farmington was it. The No. 2 ranked Chiefs advanced to the next round in the Class A state tournament with a thrilling 3-1 victory over the heartbroken Raiders.

Pitcher Dan Smith won the game for himself and the rest of his teammates with a towering two-run homer in the top of the seventh inning as Canton raised its season record to 21-2.

Smith, a junior righthander, closed the door on North in the bottom of the seventh to give Canton the win.

With two outs and the game tied 1-1, Keith Stone laid down a perfect bunt and advanced to second on an infield overthrow.

With two strikes, Smith then crunched a Kevin Shaw fastball which cleared the fence 400 feet away in right-centerfield.

"Kevin (Shaw) threw six innings the night before," said North coach Jerry Maxwell. "He threw a helluva game.

"They played well and so did we. I'm proud of the way we played."

Shaw started and hurled all seven innings. He allowed just five hits. The team's ace, Matt Ruud, was limited to designated hitting duty. He was unable to pitch because of a bad back.

"I don't want to make it an excuse," said Maxwell, "but our pitching is hurt and their all overworked

"We beat Pontiac Catholic in the George Gary Tournament in 12 innings the night before. We didn't get back until midnight."

SMITH'S sixth homer of the year broke the Canton school record held by Chris Martucci. He also increased his pitching record to 10-0.

"The reason we won was because we were better fundementally," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "We hit the ball good, but they played super defense. We had the hit when we had to have it.

"He (Shaw) threw real well. I knew a week before that they weren't going to pitch Ruud."

Canton got on the scoreboard first in the fourth inning when first baseman Jeff Stemberger doubled, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Bill Hanis' single, which bounced into left field between third and short.

North got a run back in the bottom of the inning when Scott Williams walked and later scored and Greg Meggas' sin-

Mark Leonetti then singled and North had runners standing on first and third.

Smith, however, worked out of the jam, picking Meggas off third base. The Raiders, who had more scoring chances, stranded runners on first and second in the third inning when Stemberger, leaping high in the air, snagged

John King's line drive. In the sixth inning, Ruud led off with a single and went to second on an outfield bobble. Smith, however, averted danger by setting down the next three batters in order.

CANTON ADVANCES to Saturday's district semifinal against Walled Lake Western in the opener at 10 a.m. Plymouth Salem meets Southfield in the second game at approximately 12:30 p.m. The winners meet at 3 p.m. with the district champion advancing June 6 to the Wyandotte regional.

In the other district semfinal, host Canton meets Walled Lake Western at 10 a.m.

In the fourth inning, Jeff Hubert singled and was sacrificed to second base on a bunt by Kevin Merrill. Hubert scored on John Hetkowski's smash, which was misplayed.

Peng, a senior designated hitter, ended the scoring with a solo homer in the fifth.

Peng and Hubert each had two hits for the winners.

BELLEVILLE 9 SALEM 8

A seventh inning rally fell short for the Rocks as Suburban Eight League co-leader Belleville held on for a 9-8 victory.

Trailing 9-2 in the bottom of the seventh inning, Salem rallied for six runs and had the tying and go-ahead runs on base.

Belleville pitcher Larry Petrowski, however, got the final out to keep the Tigers in a first place tie with Livonia Bentley. Both teams have 8-2 league marks.

"You can't make six errors and expect to win," said Salem coach Brian Gilles. "And we just stranded too many runners."

Petrowski, who increased his league pitching mark to 6-1, helped his own cause with a solo homer in the fourth inning.

Don Adkins and Jim Daniels each had two hits to lead Belleville.

Madsen, Hetkowski, Humphries and Merrill collected two apiece for the Rocks, now 5-6 in league play.

Jim Jimmerson, Salem's starting pitcher, suffered the loss. He was the victim of three unearned runs in the first inning, all on outfield mis-

Coach wins 5th league crown

Chiefs wrap up baseball title

Chalk up another Western Six League baseball crown for Plymouth Canton

The Chiefs won the title outright Wednesday afternoon with a convincing 9-1 victory over Walled Lake Western Wednesday afternoon. Canton's record with only one game remaining is 8-0.

It was coach Fred Crissey's fifth crown in the school's eight years.

"I'm very, very pleased for the seniors," said the Canton coach. "The last couple of years we come up one game short. This year we figured Farmington Harrison and Livonia Churchill would be outstanding because of the pitching.

"But we beat everybody head to head and every senior has made a contribution.'

Once again a heavy offensive assault carried the Chiefs.

Walled Lake scored one run in the top of the first inning off starter Jamie Chilcoff, but the Chiefs responded in the bottom frame when Jeff Stemberger hit a sacrifice fly to bring home Scott Bricker.

.The Chiefs took a 2-1 lead in the second on Bricker's sacrifice fly, which scored Bryan Capnerhurst.

In the third inning, Canton exploded for four runs as Steve Schumacher and Danny Smith both singled, setting up Stemberger's unusual home run blast to right field.

"He hit a shot," explained Crissey. "and the Walled Lake right fielder charged hit and lost it in the sun right before he was ready to make a

"The ball hit him square on the forehead and bounded about 70 feet away.

"The kid was knocked out cold They took him to the hospital and they said he'll be all right."

CANTON ADDED another run in the third when Jeff Cousino reached base on an error and later scored on Bill Hanis' sacrifice fly.

The Chiefs added three insurance runs in the fourth on a bases-loaded two-run single by Sean Hopper.

Capnerhurst paced the offense with two of Canton's 10 hits.

Western collected four off Chilcoff, who pitched the first four innings to pick up his fifth win of the season. He got relief help from Danny Smith, who allowed only one hit over three innings.

Despite the win, Canton made five errors.

"We just had a horrendous game in the field," said Crissey, "but we were a little flat after winning the Midland Tournament.

"That was to be expected." And so was a league title.

Comic approach looks at takeover of town's brewery

"Take This Job and Shove It" (PG) is an earthy movie about a top corporate executive whose company, a conglomerate, is taking over four breweries.

The young exec (Robert Hays, the pilot in "Airplane") is sent to one of the breweries to shape it up - to oversee the installation of automated equipment, speed up the line and increase production.

The rub is that this fast-moving young man is caught between his ambition and his conscience. The brewery, one where he worked while in school, is in his old home town: Dubuque, Iowa.

His old school chums work at the brewery, and his former girlfriend (Barbara Hershey) has returned to Dubuque, after college, marriage and divorce.

HAYS STUNS the locals (small town boy makes good) when he returns complete with three-piece suit, briefcase and sports car. His two rough-hewn friends of former days, Harry and Ray, work in the brewery and figure their old friend is going to treat them

Ray wants to be a delivery man and wear a leather bow tie. Harry, a married man with two children, just wants to be sure of a paycheck every week and decent working conditions.

You get the picture that folks in Dubuque aren't too sophisticated, at least not those who work in the brewery. Entertainment seems to consist of noisy bars, country music, mud fights and prac-

The movie is more boisterous and bumpkinish than Frank Capra might have made it, but it has the same quality of the little guy against the system, David vs. Goliath. In this instance, Hays and the brewery workers vs. the conglomerate.

Hays waffles between being the hard-nosed executive who wants to speed up the line and lay off workers and the home-town boy who sticks by his friends and community. But we really don't doubt on which side of the blue-collar line he will declare himself.

EDDIE ALBERT is the man you love to hate as the cold, fingersnapping, order-issuing head of the conglomerate who shows up for management meetings in a yachtsman's jacket and cap.

Art Carney is the owner of the brewery, who is selling out and, he thinks, remaining on. Martin Mull is Hays' counterpart at corporate headquarters, who can't figure out what he's up to.

Hays is essentially a comical character because of his dilemma and the things that happen to him when he returns home, but we end up developing some real sympathy for his old drinking buddies because their plight is much more serious.

Harry (David Keith), for example, loves his family and wants a college education for his kids; however, he feels trapped because of his dependence on a weekly paycheck. He'd like to better himself, but he doesn't know how. He'd like to chuck the job, but he can't afford to.

His very real predicament gives this movie more substance than the slapstick antics suggest.
