Another plane crashes following Mettetal takeoff

By Teri Banas staff writer

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials are investigating the second case within a month of a plane crashing almost immediately after leaving Mettetal Airport.

A 27-year-old Westland man was uninjured when the single-engine twoseater plane he was piloting came down about 6 p.m. Monday.

In both crashes, pilots blamed engine

Scott Hebron attributed the crash Monday to a power failure in the plane's engine.

ACCORDING to Michigan State Police, the Tailwing W8L came down about 400 feet from the airport's sole runway in a vacant field northeast of the airport. The Canton Township airport is near Lilley and Joy roads.

Damage was minor and limited primarily to the plane's landing gear and propellor. Hebron estimated damage as under $500.

He said the 17-year-old plane, owned by his father, was last flown two days before the crash

Hebron, a quality control supervisor for Aero Marine Inc., a family-owned business, did not seek medical attention. He had X-rays taken a few hours later and they showed no sign of injury,

The Westland man said he planned to fly west from the airport on a pleasure trip when he took off

HE SAID HE noticed the first sign of trouble as he was about three-quarters of the way down the runway.

The "engine quit" as he was about 100 feet off the ground, said state police. The engine triefly started up again as he circled back to the airport and landed in a nearby open field.

"I was planning to fly west and then come back when I realized the power loss within seconds," Hebron said. "I tried to select the most desirable spot to land, one that wouldn't endanger life or property.

"I didn't have enough altitude to fly back to the airport," he added.

STATE POLICE said Monday's crash was less severe than the crash June 19 of a single-engine Cessna just north of the airport in the Gould Industrial Park.

Two persons of the four-member family riding in the plane were injured. Pilot Stephen Jakabowski, an airplane broker from Lighthouse Pointe, Fla., suffered facial cuts. His wife was hospitalized for three days with a broken nose, a broken arm and cuts. Two Jakabowski children were not injured.

Jakabowski told FAA officials a failure in the plane's propellor forced the plane down about a half mile north of Mettetal.

The FAA is continuing to investigate that crash.

School budget axes 6th-grade camp program

Schools will not be offering sixth grade camp this fall.

The school board Monday night decided to stick by its original budget cut, and eliminate the camping program.

The board earlier indicated it would consider a request to restore 6th grade camp if the program could be put on a self-paying basis.

The administration had developed a plan which would put the camp on a self-sustaining basis. But some financial risk still was involved, and so the board decided against reconsideration.

The camp remains a victim of the '81-'82 budget cuts.

The administration did not specifically recommended restoration but only furnished trustees with information they requested, according to Michael Homes, assistant superintendent.

After a lengthy discussion Monday - school farm. night, the board voted 5-2 to stay with the decision eliminating the camp. The two dissenting votes were from trustees Tom Yack and Sylvia Stetz.

AMONG THE changes recommended to make the camp self-sustaining were to change the student/teacher ratio from 15-1 to 20-1, increase the tuition fee charged parents from $35 to $45, ask service clubs to provide camp scholarships for needy students, use

Plymouth-Canton Community student teachers in place of substitute teachers, and use parental transportation in place of district busing.

Dan White, director of finance, reported that normally about 95 percent of all sixth graders attend camp each year. On an average, 90 percent pay their fees to camp.

Trustee Flossie Tonda argued that every learning experience the students have at the camp is available at the school farm program.

The only difference between the curriculum being considered for the school farm and the camp program is that students do not spend the night at the farm, she added.

A lot of families go camping these days and many other youngsters have camping experiences through the Scouts, said Mrs. Tonda, who argued the money would be better spent on the

"We could offer the program in-district and save money for the parents."

However, Mrs. Stetz said she really believed in the value of the school camp experience. "It's important for children to get away a few days from family and close friends and spend time with other adults and peers. I'd like to see the camp continue."

Noting that the farm property included woods and a nature trail, board

New center offers vocational training

Residents of the Wayne-Westland district are going to find themselves going to school to get a job in the future. The district will begin operation of its new vocational education center this summer on a limited basis.

The new center will be open this fall to all juniors and seniors in the district's high schools, as well as students in the district's adult, alternative and continuing education programs. "We're trying to make sure that the building is completely utilized," said Marlene Bruner, a placement specialist for the district. "We have offerings for the whole community. We've had a tremendous response from our post

"I've taken last year's seniors through on a tour, and they've said, 'Why wasn't this here two years ago? It's too late for us.' "

But Mrs. Bruner explained that the district is offering programs with the entire community in mind.

Officials investigate garbage bill excess

Township officials still haven't made a decision about how they will try to recover an estimated $100,000 in overcharges for rubbish collection over a three- to five-year period.

"Right now we're in the investigative stages," said C. Gerald Hemming, township attorney. "The township hasn't taken a policy. We're trying to get an accounting.'

According to finance director Mike Gorman, the overpayment is based on a bookkeeping "misunderstanding" which began in the mid-to-late 1970s, when Canton was trying to keep pace with a terrific housing boom.

Fees charged the township by the rubbish contractor are based on a master list of addresses supplied by the building department. That list was updated each month with new housing what period it started.' According to preliminary estimates there is a billing descrepancy involving about 1,300 houses, at a monthly cost of about $3,000, Gorman said.

Township officials are checking their records back to about 1975. Two companies — Municipal Disposal Company and Canton Recycling - have had contracts for garbage pickup back to 1975. The probe has been developing over

City slickers join veteran growers in farm pursuits

By Katle Kerwin staff writer

City slickers turned homesteaders and third-generation farmers are joining to keep agricultural traditions alive and to bring fresh locally-grown produce to Canton consumers.

When the Canton Farmers' Market opens Saturday at 9 a.m. at the New Towne Plaza at Sheldon and Ford, residents can buy fruits and vegetables just picked in the fields. At the same time, they can mingle with people who are trying to keep farming alive within township borders.

Some are rooted in decades of family tradition of local farming. Others carry a new-found determination to be self-

Like Betty Jakubowski, who will bring beans and cucumbers to market soon. She and her husband, Al - known to all as Jake - also grow strawberries, onions, cabbages, beets, okra, squash, pumpkins and lettuce.

THEY RAISE cows, goats, chickens and geese on their Cherry Hill farm. They keep bees and will take the honey to the market. Mrs. Jakubowski milks the goats and churns their milk to make buttermilk and cheese, and she cans garden produce over an old woodburning stove.

Former city-dwellers from Westland, the couple forsook the subdivision six years ago to try their hand at homesteading.

"If you scratch anybody far enough, you'll find a farmer," Mrs. Jakubowski said, adding that she has a particular affinity for country life.

"I'm a pioneer woman. My husband says I should have been born back in the covered wagon days."

The Jakubowskis and their five children are refurbishing the farmhouse with refinished antiques, as they recondition the farmland surrounding it. Jakubowski still runs his contracting business part time to make ends meet. Mrs. Jakubowski read stacks of agriculture books and asked her neighbors lots of questions to get the hang of farming, she said.

"THEY FARM THE hard way," said next-door neighbor Ernie Costantino, referring to Jakubowski's organic farming methods.

"It's a very difficult way," Mrs. Jakubowski conceded. "Sometimes you'd just love to pour chemicals on, especially when you're fighting with

"But when people came to pick strawberries, that was the big thing with them - they could eat the berries right out of the field. There were no sprays on them. There are no poisons on them."

This will be their first year at the farmers' market, which was organized last year by the fledgling Canton Growers Association. Mrs. Jakubowski said they have been growing produce specifically to sell in Canton.

THE HAUK FAMILY, on the other hand, has been growing and selling farm produce for over 60 years at their Ridge Road farm.

"Dad's been farming here all his life," said Mary Hauk, who with her sister Colleen and brother Ross Jr., help their parents Lillian and Ross Hauk to farm 12,000-13,000 acres of garden produce.

The Hauks sell sweet corn to Farmer Jack supermarkets and to neighboring farms and roadside vendors. But that still leaves 300 acres of corn, melons, pumpkins and tomatdes to take to the Canton market.

"I think it adds to the community," Mrs. Hauk said of the market, "because you can always get fresh produce. Even at the store, it's two or three days

The Hauks rely on family help and each year for picking and packing pro-

also employ 25-30 high school students

"We're very family oriented," Mrs. Hauk said. "That's the way we do it."

GUIDO AND ROSE Costantino run a family farm, too. Costantino, who is retired from Ford Motor Co., still does most of the hoeing and cultivating himself, despite a stroke that crippled one hand.

"We've always been farmer," he said, in an accent still ringing strongly of San Vittorio, Italy, where he grew up. "I was practically born on the field," he quipped.

Gazing around his 35 acres of tomatoes, pepper, corn, cantaloupes, squash, peas, onions and pumpkins, he commented: "We got a little bit of every-

Mrs. Constantino, who moved to the Canton farm from Brooklyn when she married in 1948, helps run the roadside stand from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. She'll even suggest recipes for using the fruits and vegetables a customer buys.

Such helpfulness is customary among the farmers who supply the market, said Ernie Costantino, one of Guido and Rose's three sons, who helps with the market business. Shoppers who can't find the fruit or vegetable they want at the market should ask vendors, he said.

"They'll tell you where you can get it or get it for you on their farm."

THE SPIRIT OF cooperation that prevails in an old-time farming com munity is part of what the Canton growers said they hope to preserve.

The Canton Farmers' Market more of a cultural exchange," Ernie Costantino said.

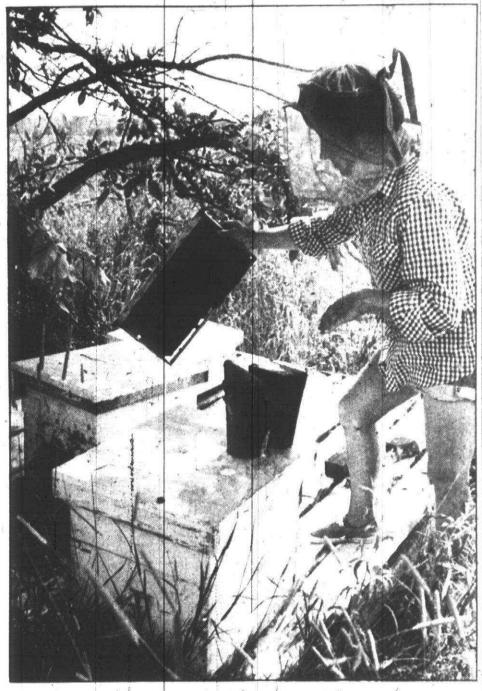

"It's helping the farmer on one side and the community on the other," he added. Farmers find a market for their goods and consumers get fresh produce at reasonable prices, he said.

"We want people to realize that farming is being done in Canton and that everything brought to market is Canton-grown. There are not going to be any other vegetables trucked in."

Eight farmers have agreed to bring produce to the market this year and five or six more are expected to join, Ernie Costantino said.

Some farmers last year did not have much produce to bring to market, since the project was finalized after planting season, he said. But this year, farmers said they planted with the market in mind and Costantino said there will be a greater variety of fruits and vegeta-

The contest, held one weekend in October, has been attended with parades, community-wide hoopla and a Fowl Ball.

The contest involves up to 200 chickens with the poultry "raced" in heats - that is, they are pushed off platforms with the one which flies the furthest declared the winner of that race.

THE BIRDS are usually barnyard poultry purchased from the chamber for $25 each and the chamber has used the proceeeds to support Christmas advertising. Following the annual Fall Festival by a few weeks, the contests each year have generated more publicity, or notoriety. Chamber president Stremich said Thursday that "bad publicity" has caused chamber members to reconsider the festival. Stremich said she was unaware of the Humane Society's investigation of the contest. She said the probe hasn't had anything to do with the chamber taking another look at the festival.

Last year, the Fowl Festival was picked as the Loser of the Day by popular radio broadcaster J.P. McCarthy. The humane society probe to determine if chickens were being

When the contest first got off the ground in 1977, it was met with curious interest from the Detroit media which treated it as a novel feature story. This coverage further encouraged the business community in Plymouth, which considered the exposure an asset to

PLYMOUTH MAYOR Mary Childs said McCarthy's picking the fowl festival as loser of the day was "bad publicity."

"People thought we were harming chickens, which wasn't true at all," she said. "We didn't have a dead chicken in the bunch." Mrs. Childs said the city would be willing to put up a net, to catch the chickens in, if the chamber decides to stick with the program this year. "That's so that the chickens wouldn't fall to the ground.

Lorenz said he believed the contest was a good idea when it was originated.

"The kids could just brown bag it and spend a day at the farm," said Schroeder. "Maybe if we called it a nature center instead of calling it the farm it would be more acceptable."

Yack commented that the camp site near Proud Lake had an indoor classroom and good eating facilities which are lacking at the farm.

Further, he noted, it would be better to continue the camp for one more year and then switch over to a program at the farm site. "When you have 95 percent of all sixth graders attending camp, I think that indicates tacit approval of the program. really evaluated the effectiveness of the camp and suggested it might not be much more than a babysitting service. She said there were problems in controlling students in past years with one teacher for each 15 campers, and it would be worse if the ratio were raised to 20:1.

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter also questioned the value of the camp program. "I sent my two oldest daughters to the camp but I doubt if I'd spend the money for my other two children to go."

Homes told the board there were some risks involved in the steps suggested the make the camp self-paying. When you raise tuition charged parents, he added, the participation could drop off and revenues decrease.

Mrs. Tonda noted that the newspapers more than once reported the camp program was being eliminated and there had not been any pressure from the public for restoration as there had been for the school farm and other programs.

Mrs. Davis added that only one parent and ope staff member had asked for continuation of sixth grade camp.

Yack objected to comparing a farm program with the camp. Parents paid some $50,000 in camp fees, he said, and no fees were charged when the farm was open.

"We're going to supply students here with good, basic entry level skills so that they will become employable," Mrs. Bruner said. "Many kids have a high school diploma with no marketable skills. That's a void we're trying to fill."

As a placement specialist, Mrs. Bruner said she is concerned with students who have employability skills but lose out on jobs because they don't know how to handle an interview. One of her roles, she said, will be to teach those interview skills.

Besides regular school programs, the district also is trying to arrange agreements with Rockwell International to retrain unemployed auto workers and with other union groups to use retired skilled

Schools preparing to hire a new outside food firm

An in-house food service director will not be hired by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

On Monday night the school board directed the administration to abandon the idea of hiring an administrator to run the cafeteria program and instead contract with a professional food service

The administration also was directed to come back with a formal resolution within two weeks recommending what firm should get the contract.

Based on bids received and the recommendation of the food service advisory committee, the administration is expected to recommend that a termination notice be given to the present food service firm (ARA) which is running the cafeteria program dis-

Instead the administration is expected to recommend a contract be awarded to the Interstate food service firm which now operates a cafeteria progam for the East China School District in St. Clair

For the school board, one of the main problems with hiring an in-service director is that the district would have to find warehouse space to store food and would have to pay more as its volume would be much lower than that of a firm which buys for many clients, such as ARA or Interstate.

DAN WHITE, director of finance, told the board that food purchases likewise would increase by 5 percent.

The school board has become increasingly unhappy with the performance of ARA because that firm has not met its promises to reach a break-even point on cafeteria operations.

Interstate said its costs will be 67 cents per lunch. The district is planning on charging 95 cents a lunch for elementary pupils, $1.05 per lunch for middle-school and high-school students and $1.75 for

In its bid Interstate had suggested prices of 90 cents for elementary, $1 for middle school, $1.10 for high school, and $1.35 for adult (not including beverages).

The district price increases will prevail, and any profit realized will remain in the district's budgets and not with Interstate, said Carol Davis, board president.

Representatives of Interstate promised to give monthly profit/ loss reports for each school and said they would take steps to correct any inefficiencies which might exist at individual build-

If an in-house director was hired, added White, the board also would have to hire an assistant director and a secretary for a total labor cost of $54,000, including fringes.

Interstate will offer two entree choices on each day's menu. which it did in East China and increased participation by 8 per-

A spokesman for Interstate said the budget for Plymouth-Canton's operation will be close to $1.5 million, and the firm will realize a profit of about $19,000 or about 2 percent.

The board directed the administration to prepare a formal resolution to hire an outside firm, but did not specify Interstate in its instructions.

There was a discussion, however, between White and the board about the process of accepting Interstate's bid and giving termination notice to ARA.

Roller rink plans dropped after crash to build a roller rink in Plymouth Township - near the site of a plane crash Monday night.

Woody Lynch, Plymouth developer and owner of A&J Construction Co., said feared "bad publicity" over his business venture and a persumed public "fear of flying" have caused him to build his rink elsewhere.

Lynch was to appear before the Plymouth Township Planning Commission Wednesday for conditional use approval for the site near Mettetal Airport. He said Wenesday he had taken

Plymouth car plates available

License plates reading "Plymouth Michigan" are available from the Plymouth Jaycees.

The plates can go on the front of automobiles to replace the state of Michigan plates, which no longer are required.

The Plymouth Jaycees are undertaking the plate project as a continuation of a two-year Pride in Plymouth program which began 18 months ago with the distribution of "I'm Proud of Plymouth" bumper stickers and posters.

The license plates cost $3 and are available from Plymouth Jaycee members. Persons also may call Bill Joyner. project chairman, at 455-1390 or send a check for $3 to the Plymouth Jaycees and sent to Joyner at 45951 Amesbury, Plymouth 48170.

The bumper stickers also are available at Plymouth City Hall and at Plymouth Township Hall

'The city of Plymouth is a great community in which to live and work," says Joyner. "The Jaycees want to give every resident the opportunity to show that pride in the community that we in the Jaycees feel.

"For that reason and based on the success of our bumper sticker program, we are making the license plates available."

A local developer has scrapped plans his "name off the agenda" following Monday's crash. (Related story on Page

He said he planned to build a 28,500foot single-level roller rink on a fiveacre site off Joy Road until "that damn thing came down at 5:55 p.m. Monday."

Lynch says he now plans to put the rink on another site in Canton Township, which he owns, even though he got Federal Aviation Administration approval for the Plymouth Township project.

"We found no problem with the application," said Bob DeRoeck, an airport engineer. "He had moved the location of the building so it wouldn't interfere with the air space."

The building plans were altered so that the proposed development would rest to the rear of the five-acre site rather than on its south-side, facing the

"I've never tried to do anything that wasn't up to snuff," said Lynch, somewhat embittered. "I'm a gambler. And I don't want to gamble against the possibility of adverse conditions."

Skilled trades pact reached

An agreement has been made between the school board and the district's smallest union.

The union, Local 547 of the International Union of Operating Engineers -Licensed Technicians, contains exactly five members - two electricians, one heating and ventilating technician, one plumber and one refrigeration techni-

The agreement calls for an increase in hourly rate of 8.5 percent plus improvements in life-insurance coverage and dental-care insurance.

On Monday night the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education also reached agreement with employees in miscellaneous job classifications, including security, crossing guards and substitute secretaries.

That agreement provided for an 8percent increase in salary and some fringe-benefit improvements. The pay for co-op students and substitute secretaries remains unchanged.

Consumers vs. consumers

Utility's gas rate hike request meets few happy customers

By Mike Scanlon staff writer

Helium balloons labeled "Gas Rates" leered down on the Michigan Public Service Commission Monday when Richard Douglass and Julia Finch testified in the first day of hearings on Consumers Power Co.'s 50 percent gas rate hike.

A few dozen other people also testified at a Lansing convention hall, and the crowd of about 300 was heavily laced with rate protesters. But Douglass and Mrs. Finch had unique vantage points.

Douglass, a researcher at the University of Michigan School of Gerontology, last winter surveyed 2,000 elderly people to determine the effects of rapid increases in heating costs.

"I can state without hesitation that 20,000 elderly would be giving up food to pay the gas bills if prices rise 50 percent," Douglass said.

Mrs. Finch has done no study, but doesn't need to. Mrs. Finch is old. And six days a week she eats quickly warmed up leftovers.

"I maybe cook just about once a week . . . to keep the cost down. You're going to do without something, because you're going to have to pay your utility bill. But you know, you can't go on that

THE GIANT UTILITY'S huge rate increase, already in effect for customers who pay their bills on a monthly budget plan, is the result of its virtual dependence on the Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co. Panhandle and its subsidiary, Trunkline Gas Co., together control some 83 percent of Consumers'

Natural gas is measured in units of 1,000 cubic feet. Consumers is 12 years into a 20-year contract with Trunkline that requires the utility to buy at least 209 million, one thousand cubic feet-units of gas a year. There is, incidentally, no reciprocal obligation by Trunkline to guarantee the supply.

Trunkline has meanwhile signed a 16- to 20-year agreement with Algeria for a guaranteed supply liquified natural gas at the current rate of $7.50 per thousand cubic feet. That means Consumers is contractually obligated to buy at least $1.6 billion of Trunkline gas each year until 1989.

Average Consumer Power retail rates before the 50 percent increase were about $3.50 per thousand

A little-known PSC regulation called the Purchased Gas Adjustment clause (PGA), however, allows Consumers to fulfill its contract with Trunkline by passing along the billions in added cost directly to customers.

When mingled with gas from other sources, Consumers says the $1.6 billion annual cost of $7.50 Algerian gas requires a 50 percent customer rate

THE HEARING seemed to open a Pandora's box of criticism, both for Consumer's Flower and the PSC itself. Testimony Monday included suggested elimination of the PGA clause; election of a fivemember PSC to replace the current three-member panel of two Republicans and one Democrat appointed by the governor; a requirement that interest be due on advance payments made under monthly utility budget plans; and the suggestion that Michigan corporate utilities have pursued a policy of rectifying management mistakes by passing through rate hikes.

"What if the PGA was not in effect," asked state Sen. Gilbert DiNello, D-Sterling Heights. "Would (Consumers Power Co.) management then have made the same decision (to buy expensive gas) or would they have made Herculean efforts to find other alternatives?"

"MY CONSTITUENTS no longer thust the Public Service Commission," testified state Rep. Sylvia Skrel, R-Livonia. "They no longer believe Consumer's Power . . . and they see the PSC as a rubber stamp of the utilities."

Maria Ward, representing the mayor and city council of Southfield, called the increase "totally unconscionable.'

Gas bills for Oakland County customers of Consumers' Power will rise from the 1980 average of $495 to $782 in 1981, testified Peter Eckstein, research director of the UAW's state Community Ac-

'My constituents no longer trust the Public Service Commission. They no longer believe Consumer's Power . . . and they see the PSC as a rubber stamp of the utilities.'

Her quest for a harp leads to heavenly enjoyment

By Elizabeth Roach special writer

To say Jan Poirier wanted a harp isn't quite accurate. To say she craved one with every fiber of her being is closer to the truth.

"It was this real desire, deep inside of me," says the 42-year-old Birmingham resident. "Every time I would hear a harp, something in my fingers would just . . ., ooooh, the desire I had.

"There was this gut feeling in me, a desire so deep that I would instantly have tears flowing down my cheeks whenever I would hear a harp on the radio or at a concert."

She took harp lessons in her teens but for the most part did not play one since. However, the desire per-

Eventually she made her decision. She would buy a harp of her own. Mrs. Poirier and her husband, Mark, a senior analysis engineer at the General Motors Tech Center in Warren, began saving their money.

Obtaining a harp, it turns out, is not as simple as, say, running out for a pack of cigarettes. The harp scrapbook Mrs. Poirier keeps is her record of the process.

THE SCRAPBOOK, more than an inch thick, contains, among other things, correspondence between the Poiriers and Lyon and Healy Harps Inc. in Chicago, Ill., from whom they ordered a grand concert harp.

It also holds color pictures of their 1974 visit to Lyon and Healy, where they saw a harp being made.

They placed their order that summer. It takes nine months to make a grand concert harp, Mrs. Poirier However, babies are delivered more quickly than harps.

The factory makes one harp at a time. What with the backlog of orders and a shortage of trained harp makers, Mrs. Poirier didn't receive her harp until Dec. 1, 1978.

"Those last three months seemed to like three years," Mrs. Poirier said. "The time just stretched out and stretched out."

Finally, the big day arrived. "I didn't know if I could stand it,"

SHE GOT UP early that morning. "I didn't sleep all night. It felt like I was getting married. I said, 'Oh my God, what'll I wear?' I was so nervous, I was crazy.

"It came in a case as big as a closet," Mrs. Poirier said. "There she was. And, of course, I had to

Just over six feet tall, the harp weighs 78 pounds and is made of hand-carved spruce and maple. Its fluted column is covered with gold leaf. By the date of delivery, the harp's price had increased from $5,995 to $9,045.

The Poiriers invited the delivery man in for champagne with their friends. "We never quit celebrating. I bet we had 200 people just stop by the house that weekend," Mrs. Poirier said.

Like ships, she said, harps are traditionally considered female. She named her harp Desiree ("desired or longed for") Lynette ("shapely and graceful").

"I feel it's very important to name your instruments so you can have a personal feeling for them," Mrs. Poirier said.

To celebrate the arrival of Desiree Lynette, the Poiriers held an open house on Mother's Day of 1979.

The invitation, a copy of which is in the scrapbook, read, "Rejoice with me

my dream's come true I wish to share

Mrs. Poirier said

My Harp with you." They invited more than 1,000 people, and 250 came to see nine professional harpists play her harp,

"It was definitely the happiest day of my whole life. A photographer friend of ours came and took pictures all day. I have about 600 pictures of the people who came."

NOW THAT she has her harp, she has resumed harp lessons and has become secretary-treasurer of the local chapter of the American Harp Society Inc. About 20 of the area's 40 to 50 harpists are members, she

Mrs. Poirier said the main characteristic of the harpists she knows is a tremendous drive for perfec-

"They really like a challenge. The things that can go wrong with a 'It came in a case as big as a closet. There she was. Of course I had to cry.'

- Jan Poirier

Among those, she said, are humidity, which can cause strings to go out of tune, and heat, which can make strings break. Or a harpist can accidentally hit the wrong

Her goal now is to perform in "My idea is to share my music with other people. The demand for performing harpists is fantastic," said Mrs. Poirier, a substitute teacher at Montessori schools in Birmingham and Farmington Hills.

DICK KELLEY/staff photographer

The journey of Jan Poirier's harp, named Desiree Lynette, is chronicled in a scrapbook.

Jan Poirier said the day her harp arrived was the happiest day of her life.

Change lighting habits and reduce energy

It's easy to use more light than you need.

More than 16 percent of the electricity we use in our homes goes into lighting. Most Americans overlight their homes, we're told, so lowering lighting levels is an easy conservation measure.

During the summer, one of the best ways to conserve is to use "solar energy:" Get out in your yard, meet the neighbors, sit on the porch or patio, work outside.

It's silly to sleep late so you can stay up late and use lights unnecessarily. At the risk of paraphrasing Ben Franklin, early to bed and early to rise is economically wise.

Indoors, you can do a lot of things to reduce your electric bill. • Light-zone your home and save electricity. Concentrate lighting in reading and working areas and where it's needed for safety (stairwells, for example). Reduce lighting in other areas, but avoid very sharp contrasts.

• To reduce overall lighting in nonworking spaces, remove one bulb out of three in multiple light fixtures. Replace it with a burned-out bulb so someone doesn't stick his finger into a "hot" socket. Replace other bulbs throughout the house with bulbs of the next lower wattage.

• Consider installing solid state dimmers or hi-low switches. They make it easy to reduce lighting intensity in a room and thus save energy.

• Use one large bulb instead of several small ones in areas where bright light is needed. A higher wattage bulb always gives more light than several smaller bulbs that total the same watonly in hard-to-reach places. They are less energy efficient than ordinary bulbs.

· Need new lamps? Consider the advantages of those with three-way switches. They make it easy to keep lighting levels low when intense light is not necessary, and that saves electricity. Use the high switch only for reading or other activities that require brighter

Always turn three-way bulbs down to the lowest lighting level when watching television. You'll reduce the glare and use less energy.

 Use low-wattage night-light bulbs. These now come in four-watt as well as seven-watt sizes. The four-watt bulb with a clear finish is almost as bright as the seven-watt bulb but uses about half as much energy.

 Try 50-watt reflector floodlightsd in direction lamps (such as pole or spot lamps.) These flood lights provide

• Try 25-watt reflector flood bulbs in high-intensity portable lamps. They provide about the same amount of light but use less energy than the 40-watt bulbs that normally come with these

• Use flourescent lights whenever you can. They give light per watt. For example, a 40-watt flourescent lamp gives off 80 lumens per watt and a 60watt incandescent gives off only 14.7 lumens per watt. The 40-watt flourescent lamp would save 140 watts over a seven-hour-period. These savings, over a period of time, could more than pay for the fixtures you would need to use flourescent lighting.

• Consider flourescent lighting for the kitchen sink and countertop areas.

Greenhouse regulates sun to control plant sales

By W.W. Edgar staff writer

There are tricks to all trades - even the raising of flowers.

That's why the Sparr greenhouses at the corner of Lilley and Joy roads are covered with black material these sunny afternoons. It is not a sign of mourning but a way of filtering the sun.

The black cover is needed these days not only to filter the sun but also to control the growth of the thousands of mums being readied for the fall season.

"Mums flower during the night hours," Dennis Sparr, one of the owners, said, "and if we wouldn't cover them to shield the sun they would grow too tall in this period of daylight sav-

"Aside from controlling the growth during the day hours heavy black covers are used during the night. In this, manner the mums get all the darkness they need. And in this manner the flowering can be controlled so that there are fresh mums each week."

Sparr said this is especially important since mums have become a flower for all seasons.

There was a time when the mum was popular only from September to Thanksgiving Day, and it became a symbol of the college football season. But no more.

Strolling through the vast greenhouses, Sparr emphasized that some flowers need more sunlight than others for regular growth. In this case the black cover is not kept on too long. In other sections the cover is on most of the sunlight hours.

"We are not trying to fool nature, but to raise flowers properly it is important that they must get only the regular amount of sunlight," Sparr said. "In other cases too much sun would cause the flowers to grow tall and stringy and be worthless."

In some cases the plan takes an odd turn. If darkness comes too soon the lights are turned on to make the flowers feel that it is still daylight.

For instance, Sparr walked into one greenhouse and said the plants were in 64 percent shade. A few yards away, in another row, the shade measured 68

This shifting of darkness and light becomes a major operation at the Sparr greenhouses.

At the moment there are more than 5,000 mums in different stages of growth in the greenhouses. They are coaxed and nursed so that there is a new crop every week - and extra numbers on holiday weekends.

Sparr has worked in the family greenhouse most of his life. He has spent the past 18 years on the job in the series of greenhouses that occupy a huge portion of the northwest corner of the intersection.

Asked how many plants they had in some stage of growth at this time of year he answered, "I'd be afraid to count then. There are so many it might scare us.'

Bakery serves 'parent restaurant' and the public

Laura Lopez decorates a sheet cake.

All because Sam Panzica, owner of the Plymouth Landing, was dissatisfied with the type of buns and rolls he was using at his restaurant on Main Street and decided to bake his own, downtown Plymouth has a new and modern bakeshop in the heart of the business district.

It originally was intended as a bun and bread bakery, but since Laura Lopez, a graduate of Schoolcraft College's culinary arts program, was engaged to manage the business, it has turned into a specialty shop.

"Panzica always has liked such things as heavy sourdough bread and rolls, along with Russian type and pumpernickle bread. But we decided to go a bit modern and we now will bake all sorts of specialities," she

To her new position, which she has held since the place opened three weeks ago, Ms. Lopez has brought the experience gained during years in some of the best shops in Ann Arbor, and a summer at Mackinac Island. As she spoke, she iced a cake, giving it the fancy touches customers

She confided that she had been waiting two years to get this job, ever since the day the Plymouth Landing owner had first spoke of opening his own bake shop to supply his restaurant. Asked if she specialized in any particular type of cake, she smilingly handed over a list and said that there was no special one, but all were her On the list were such things as strudels, flans, croissants, tortes, napoleons, eclairs and Danish pastry. In all her years working with culinary specialties, was there any one item that gave her the most satisfaction? Admitting that raspberry chiffon was her personal favorite, she recalled that one of her most satisfying specialities was an English-style "I am fond of this because my cousin, who was employed in the House of Lords in London, sent me the recipe and it has worked out just dandy

Working with her in the baking area is Bob Kennedy, a strapping gent with broad shoulders who does all the bread making, and he knows how to handle the bread doughs.

He bakes all kinds of bread and is a master at whirling the dough around.

"We haven't done any shouting about the bakery, now known as Baker's Rack, because we are just trying out all of our new machinery. When we have that in working order, we will be ready for all kinds of bread and other specialties.

And it all came about because Sam Panzica wanted to bake his own buns and bread for the Plymouth Landing restaurant. For those searching for the new bakery, it is in Westchester Mall on Forest Avenue.

Celebration was a success

To the editor:

I would like to express the appreciation of the Plymouth Jaycees to all who helped support the annual Fourth of July activities.

This project is especially enjoyable because of the response of everyone involved. Whether it is the 10,000-meter run, bike decorating, the parade or the fireworks, there always is the feeling that everyone genuinely supports us and is having a good time. It is this feeling of support and acceptance which has always made the Plymouth community a special place and the residents a special people.

Trying to thank everyone for their support seems impossible; the only list which would be truly complete would be to recopy the Plymouth area phone book. However, there are some to whom I would like to direct special thanks:

• The Community Crier and Plymouth Observer for their tremendous press coverage, not only on the Fourth itself but leading up to the Fourth.

• Both the city and township governments' cooperation and support.

• The various municipal departments (police, fire, DPW, etc.) who saw to it that items like traffic rerouting and control, street closing and other precautions were done.

 Mayor Mary Childs, City Manager Henry Graper and Township Supervisor Maurice Breen for their unfaltering support and enthusiasm for our project.

• Budweiser and Central Distributors for their sponsorship of the fireworks. This is the kind of community involvement which shows a belief on the part of their management that Plymouth is more than just a place to distribute and sell their products.

• Burroughs Corp. for use of its parking areas.

· And the ever-growing list of contributors to this project, whether it was a $5 check or the sponsorship of an entire band.

In closing, I wish to apologize to any individuals who were inconvienced due to any of our activities or errors we may have made. The magnitude of the entire day's activities almost ensures that some arrangement, sometimes big and sometimes small, will be overlooked, causing someone not to be able to enjoy some part of the day's activities as much as anticipated. To these people I ask indulgence.

I hope our activities for the remainder of the year will receive the same enthusiastic support and will be as acceptable to the community as was the Fourth of July.

Joyner backs county charter

To the editor:

Despite the many shortcomings in the proposed Wayne County eharter, I feel that the residents of the third-largest county in America would best be served by its passage.

A "yes" vote this fall would place the residents of Wayne County firmly behind a reform and reorganization that is necessary for our county.

I further urge all the voters of Wayne County to support an elected county executive over that of the proposed appointed county manager. It will be through the election of an executive countywide that we will see, for sive city/out-county split have the op- information to do so by writing to me portunity to work together for the common good of all.

The charter aboushes the board of auditors and reduces the number of county commissioners from 27 to 15. I strongly support both moves. County government cannot work efficiently with the anachronistic board of auditors or with an overweight, incestuous

With an elected county executive and a smaller board of commissioners, we will be in a better position to define priorities, budget money and operate an efficient and necessary level of gov-

My regret with the charter is that it does not abolish the register of deeds and the drain commissioner. It also does not go far enough in reforming the Wayne County Road Commission.

As one commissioner who has fought hard for county reform, I encourage every voter to help county government take the first step toward accountability. Vote "yes" on the county charter.

I welcome your comments and enthe first time, all elements of the divi- courage anyone desiring to pass along at 726 City-County Building, Detroit, Mich. 48226.

Rail report was helpful

I had an opportunity recently to read Carol Carpenter's story on rail-highway grade-crossing accidents which appeared in the June 25 edition of the Observer.

Ms. Carpenter did an excellent job of presenting the many and often complex factors associated with this problem.

On behalf of all of us at Chessie who are deeply concerned with reducing injuries and the loss of life at crossings, I thank you for helping to bring this important message to the attention of Michigan motorists.

Rotary helps asthma camp

To the editor:

Each summer the Michigan Allergy Society and the Michigan chapter of the American Academy of Pedistrics in conjunction with the Detroit Metropolitan YMCA sponsor a camp for asthmatic children from the ages of 8 through 14.

Medical and nursing supervision is provided by volunteers from the sponsoring organizations. With this camp, we are able to provide a positive expe rience for asthmatic children and integrate them with otherwise-normal children into a positive camp experi-

Some families would be unable to have their child attend such a camp because of cost, but fortunately, through generous service-club support, we are able to provide camperships to needy

I would publicly like to thank the Plymouth Rotary Club, whose generous donation will enable us to send one such child to camp this year.

Pesky fleas are no laughing matter

Unlike their fictitious and humorously portrayed cartoon counterparts, real fleas are irritating, even life-threatening parasites to pets and their owners.

Literally billions of fleas are hatched each warm-weather season (just one female can lay 500 eggs within her average six-month to one-year lifetime). and their imprints have been recorded in fossils 65 million years old.

Fleas were carriers of the bubonic plague which kiled one-fourth of Europe's population in the 14th century. The plague, from the rat flea, still exists, with 105 cases reported in the 1970s by the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia. Most cases occurred in the U.S. Southwest.

A secondary problem with flea infestation is the tranmittal of tapeworm. Check with your veterinarian if you notice rice-like segments around the anus of your pet.

With 1,200 species, female fleas lay their eggs in warm environments, including carpeting, furniture, baseboards, or cracks of wood floors, but rarely on a dog or cat.

The pearl-white, oval-shaped eggs are the real menace. Destroying a flea's ability to be born can check the problem at its source, but doing so effectively requires constant and special

The most effective and respected method to control the spread of wingless, flat-bodied creatures is via chemical insecticides, according to a poll of Michigan veterinarians. Many flea control products are available on the market. The products attainable from veterinarians are stronger and much more effective than over-the-counter typical insecticides.

Flea collars are not really effective in controlling flea infection. The collars many times provoke skin irritations and illness. The most effective deterrent is daily or twice daily vaccuuming of indoor areas frequented by pets. Veterinarians also recommend exterminators if people are unable to control the problem themselves.

Private $$ back SEMTA stop

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a new SEMTA bus station at the Northland Center were held recently, marking the first investment of private capital in public transit facilities in southeast Michigan.

A portion of the 250-capacity station's cost is being borne by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, which owns Northland Center. The company paid for the road leading to the station; the station itself was built with federal and state funds.

On a typical weekday, 8,000 to 10,000 people ride buses to and from Northland, according to SEMTA.

SEMTA also has rights to expand to an adjoining parking lot for potential future charters and park-and-ride service, a spokesperson explained.

Forget football, Tartar U. is above all that

Being a Tartar has its trying times.

A Tartar? That's correct. Tens of thousands of us are prowling the planet — especially around the metropolitan Detroit area.

Actually, Tartaes (not to be confused with the fish sauce) are just like Spartans and Wolverines, except we have equally valid degrees from Wayne State University rather than Michigan or Michigan State.

Oh yes, another insignificant difference exists.
We've never been in a Rose bowl or in the NCAA basketball championships. We never will be, either.

For the small-minded of the universe, that makes a difference. They feel that somehow WSU is inferior because it lacks a strong football program.

But true Tartars know better.
Recently, a lot of ink has flowed over the fate of the WSU football program. University President Thomas Bonner would like to see it go the way of Dodge Main. That upsets a lot of persons who have dreamed for years of Tartars rising out of the rubble to beat the Wolverines on the gridiron.

I attended a Tartar football game — once. Jeez, what a way to spend an afternoon. Like thousands, I never went back.

Sure, I know, the Tartars have had some good seasons, beating teams few persons have heard of and fewer care about.

BUT IN TRUTH Tartar football has been of little interest to the student body, and has made little impact on the world of sports.

Only one Tartar has ever played NFL football, and he's retired.

But Wayne State is a fine university, better than most everyone cares to realize — especially the Spartan and Wolverine alumni in the state Legislature who consistently vote more funds for their schools because they recall the glories of the grid-

For years Wayne State has taken an undeservedly bad rap for having an inferior football program, and suffered financially because of it.

But look at what Wayne provides — a top rate law school (MSU hasn't even got one); a medical campus consisting of five private and public hospitals plus a University Clinics Building, the largest of its kind in the nation, which serves as an educational center and outpatient clinic.

Wayne's medical school enrollment is the second largest in the nation.

WSU also is the home of the Walter Reuther Library of Labor and Urban Affairs, which contains 15 million labor union documents — one of a kind in the world.

THOSE ARE ONLY a few of the special features existing in the land of the Tartars. Naturally, we offer an entire program of business, nursing, social work and liberal arts.

A few other goodies: Ninety-six percent of those attending WSU are Michigan residents, and the university serves one of the largest populations of physically impaired students in the country.

Football? — who needs it? We've got a good team, anyhow.

Tim Richard

Cleveland makes us a major offer

Nick Thomas' name is hardly a household word, but maybe you've heard of some of the jobs he has had: director of state planning and administrative assistant to Gov. George Romney; executive officer, Dearborn Economic Development Corp.; regional associate with Kramp & Associates, a Washington public affairs firm.

He commutes from his home in Birmingham to work on an urban affairs project at Cleveland State University, which is where his idea was spawned.

Within a couple of weeks, Dr. Thomas and some Cleveland business leaders will be making southeast Michigan an offer which should generate a lot of interest.

"Top corporate leaders in Michigan and other Great Lakes states should form a new private lobbying organization to realize economic objectives."

Thomas' study also recommends that "Gov. Milliken and other Great Lakes governors initiate a bottom-to-top review of all regional public agencies aimed at consolidations, streamlining, greater focus on Great Lakes urban centers and increased political accountability."

IN THE SAME way that southeast Michigan is the only region in America without a rapid transit program, so it seems the Great Lakes is the only bloc without a multi-state political arm.

And so the Cleveland group is endorsing and selling a Great Lakes Economic Policies Council "which can unify independent political actions into collective lobbying clout."

New England has a six-state New England Council which deals with the New England Governors' Conference and the New England Congressional Caucús.

The Western Regional Council, run by board chairpersons and CEOs of 50 major corporations, takes care of Rocky Mountains' economic interests.

The Southern Growth Policies Board brings together public and private sector leaders from 13 states

In April, congressmen from 17 states formed a Sunbelt Congressional Caucus.
Anybody see a pattern?

THE GREAT LAKES states have suffered a number of major body blows.

Politically, the Midwest-Northeast bloc is about to lose 17 of its 213 seats in the U.S. House of Representatives because of population declines. The economic recession has hit heavy industry in the Great Lakes particularly hard. And when the recession ends, a lot of jobs will no longer be here because of permanent economic changes and new technology.

Most Great Lakes states rely on the outside for

In Washington we have the Reagan Administration, with its strong western orientation, and the U.S. Senate, whose new chairmen are overwhelmingly westerners. Washington has something like $780 billion to spend.

THE CLEVELAND proposal is two-pronged:

• Form a Great Lakes Economic Policies Council as a non-profit corporation and plan to engage in direct lobbying.

 Set up a companion Great Lakes Economic Research Institute which would also solicit foundation, private and public funding.

What you are getting here is a one-sided presentation. So far, the Cleveland proposal hasn't been discussed publicly or even, as far as I know, privately in southeast Michigan. There may be fishhooks — I don't know.

But I do know that this region's economic difficulties are the most serious problems we have faced since the Great Depression, and I for one am inclined to look favorably on any prospect for concerted economic action.

Let's cut legislators

Ever since the big black headlines appeared in the daily prints sounding the warning that the Social Security program was in danger of going broke, there has been a lot of wonderment among the elderly.

They are wondering what they will do if such a thing happens. They are wondering, too, why the government has allowed the program to slip and what can be done to save it.

They all agree that there has been something wrong somewhere along the line. Maybe too many programs were inserted that caused heavy expenditures. But in the main, the elderly folks are wondering why our so-called big government isn't reduced to help bring about some relief to public spending.

One of the most outspoken of the group is Perry Richwine, well-known Plymouth attorney, who has come up with an idea that could cause a lot of commotion on Capitol Hill.

At luncheon the other day Richwine, in his usual serious manner, suggested that a good start could be made by cutting the membership of Congress in half

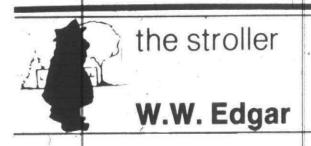

"That would be a great saving as a starter," he said, "and it wouldn't hurt our law making bodies at all."

This opinion came as a shock, but Richwine, who never backs away from a debate, pointed out that Michigan could get along with one senator — the same as any other state — and that would leave each district represented by the same percentage as it is now

"Just think of the salaries such a move would make. It not only would save the salaries of 50 senators, but their large staffs as well."

While Richwine was voicing his plan The Stroller did a bit of figuring on the table cloth. He thought of the savings such a move woud make in the House of Representatives where there are 435 members.

Not only would more than 200 salaries be saved, but the large staffs that each congressman employs would be cut in half.

When he mentioned that, Richwine, who had been listening attentively, asked, "Do you realize how big some of the staffs are?"

It was pointed out that Congressman Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, has a staff of 23. He is entitled to 26, but hasn't filled his quota.

It revealed too, that Senator Riegle has a staff of 60 in Michigan working out of seven offices. What a savings that would be if one of Michigan's senators was removed, along with his staff.

"It is just a case of having too much government," Richwine commented. "We can get along with half the number of staff members and commissions."

Then it was called to mind that the Michigan Legislature some years ago met for only three weeks in each calendar year and received the magnificent sum of $3 a day. Suppose that was the case today. Think of the money that could be saved.

For instance, it has been revealed that more than 4,000 bills were presented this year. The printing alone was a small fortune.

And don't spare President Reagan, one of the listeners said. While he is cutting everything else he might set an example by cutting his own staff.

Well, it was a thought and perhaps Perry Richwine has hit upon an idea that could bring about some real benefits.

Elderly people across the land should not be the target of scare tactics. They are entitled to be happy along the trail as they enter the autumn of their Business can chip in for mass transit

On a hot Wednesday morning last week a group of Detroit-area politicians and media representatives gathered at Northland Center in Southfield. It was a "media event," that is, it was staged for television, radio and newspaper reporters.

Officially it was the ground breaking for Northland Station, a 2,000-square-foot passenger bus terminal to be constructed on the south side of the shopping center. The terminal will be the final stage in a joint investment in transit facilities at the shopping center, involving the owner of Northland, The Equitable Life Assurance Society, and the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

Approximately 10,000 persons travel to Northland every day on 260 buses. The new passenger terminal will service them with information kiosks, public telephones and direct telephone lines to SEMTA for customer information.

Mass transportation is fast becoming a political battleground. As more areas and agencies begin to compete for scarce tax revenue, fights frequently erupt over how to spend money on public transportation. But everyone agrees that expanded use of buses is an efficient use of tax dollars. That's why the politicians were falling all over themselves last week to praise the new bus terminal.

But after everyone buses, then the debate begins. The major area of dispute in the Detroit area is a proposed subway system that would begin downtown and stretch out into the suburbs. Tension was in the air a few minutes after the ground-breaking ceremonies were over last week.

Larry Salci, general manager of SEMTA, was telling a reporter, "Don't hold me to this, but we hope to hear within 30 days if the federal government will provide money for a subway system. The Urban Mass Transportation Administration should know by then what its budget will be for the next year."

A few feet away Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy was telling another reporter, "A subway would be too restricted. Most people would not get much help from a subway." Oakland County officials have periodically threatened to withdraw from SEMTA over the subway dispute.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN to the future of mass transportation in the Detroit area? Frankly, many knowledgeable leaders are worried. Larry Salci has resigned from SEMTA, although he will continue in his post until Oct. 2. The sheer force of his personality has stabilized SEMTA and given leadership to many progressive plans for mass transportation.

Salci is leaving at a time when federal money for transportation is drying up fast. A new conservative administration in Washington, D.C., is reducing grants given to large cities.

Although he denies it, many believe Salci's resignation is tied to the increasing frustration in obtaining federal money.

The passenger bus terminal in Southfield may be the wave of the future. It represents the first investment of private capital in transit facilities in this region. While SEMTA provided $120,000 for the terminal itself, the owner of Northland paid $280,000 for sidewalks, landscaping and lanes for the buses

The United States may well go the way of Europe where private business often works with government to provide public transportation. It makes sense when you consider that Northland merchants are making a tidy profit off those 10,000 persons delivered on buses every day.

Public transportation doesn't have to rely only on the government.

Question: Please discuss the problem of heat stroke deaths among football players during preseason practice. Why are these athletes so susceptible to heat disorders, and what can be done to minimize the potential problems?

- J.G., Farmington Hills

Dr. Edward Fox and co-workers at Ohio State University reviewed the circumstances of nine heat stroke deaths which occurred in high school and college football players.

All players were dressed in full uniform which served to increase heat production and block heat dissipation. Most casualties occurred during the first few days of preseason practice, indicating that the player's were neither acclimatized to the heat nor in good physical condition. Finally, many were not allowed to drink water during practice.

The temperature and relative humidity at the time of the nine deaths see (stars) are indicated in in the Figure. The deaths occurred under conditions ranging from either high temperature and low relative humidity to low temperature and high relative humidity.

ONE DEATH (arrow) occurred at a temperature of 64 degrees Fahrenheit and relative humidity of 100 percent. Although the temperature was low, heat could not be lost through evaporation because the air was totally saturated with water vapor.

These finding suggest several recommendations to the coach initiating preseason football practice:

- There should be one-to twoweek period of acclimitization to heat with a gradual introduction to full football equipment.
- Players should be permitted to drink cool water as desired during
- Practices should initially be conducted during the cooler parts of the day, perferably when the suns radiation is minimal (early morning or early evening).

• Both temperature and humidity should be considered when evaluating environmental heat stress. At high temperatures, the only means for heat dissipation is the evaporation of sweat. With high humidity, very little sweat is actually absorbed by the moisture-laden air. Consequently, body heat tends to rise abruptly.

Each year needless football deaths result from heat stroke during preseason practice. Most potential complications can be presvented by a well-informed coach or team physician.

Nine heat stroke deaths are designated by stars. Arrow represents one casualty which occurred at 64 degrees and 100 percent relative humidity. The combination of relative humidity and temperature in Zone A can be considered safe; for Zone C, use extreme caution when working in uniform.

roll call report

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes prior to the July 4th recess.

House

The Reagan Budget: The House voted 217-211 to follow GOP marching orders that will cause the most fundamental change of the federal government since World War II. Once the House and Senate agree on final wording, the "budget reconciliation" measure will put into effect at least $35 billion worth of fiscal year 1982 cuts in some 250 federal programs, with defense spending the only major area left

The measure is revolutionary because it forces permanent changes in scores of laws - a rewrite that the 100-plus congressional subcommittees and committees could not have accomplished on their own. The Democratic alternative killed by this vote also would have saved tens of billions in fiscal year 1982, but it stopped short of major changes in enabling legislation.

Supporter Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, said "the spending of the federal government is out of control" and noted that the $100-billion annual budget threshhold crossed in the Kennedy Administration has risen to $695 billion

Opponent Jim Wright, D-Tex., said the GOP plan will "cause egregious injuries to many millions of innocent Americans who have nobody to stand between them and those injuries except the members of this house."

Members voting "yea" favored the GOP rather than the Democratic attack on runaway federal spending.

Reps. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, voted "vea." Reps. David Bonior, D-Detroit, William Ford, D-Taylor, William Brodhead, D-Detroit, and James Blanchard, D-Mount Pleasant, voted "nay."

Budget Cuts: By a vote of 80-15, the reconciliation measure. The bill sent to conference with the House mandates $39.6 billion in fiscal year 1982 spending cuts as well as reductions for other fiscal years. Reconciliation is an interim disciplinary step between last May's enactment of the fiscal year 1982 budget blueprint and upcoming action on specific spending bills.

Senate passed its version of the budget

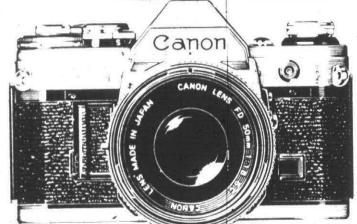

Supporter Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the bill "will cut in half the rate at which federal spending has been growing" while providing for "real growth in spending for national defense, thereby reversing a dangerous decline in that area.'

Opponent Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., maintained that while Americans "want better economy in government" they do not want "massive reductions in income security and retirement pro-

Senators voting "yea" supported the GOP-authored budget-cutting plan. Democratic Sens. Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted "nay.

WHAT A weekend! The Balloon Festival has it all over the Fowl Festival as far as I'm concerned. Those beautiful balloons had the happy effect of elevating everyone's spirits as they rose from the ground and floated along.

"When I drove into town Saturday morning to go to work, I thought, Where else could this be happening?" "Plymouth businessman Fred Hill said. "There were the balloons overhead, the farm market in full swing, a wedding ceremony being performed in Kellogg Park, and then the horsedrawn surrey came along."

OVERHEARD at the Balloon Ball on Saturday night in the Mayflower Meeting House as a lady, elbows on porch railing, watched the tethered Mayflower balloon: "I can't imagine how they can fold that balloon into that little bag. I haven't learned how to fold a fitted sheet."

TIM McKEIRNAN won the balloon-guessing contest sponsored by John Smith's Men's Wear.

Tim is the 21/2-year-old son of Mike and Ann McKeirnan of Governor Bradford Road in Plymouth Township. He guessed the exact number of inflated balloons in the shop window. Contest estimates ranged from 70 to 2,300. Tim hit it right on the nose with 396.

Each member of the McKeirnan family made a guess, mother, father and three sons - Tim, Matt, 9, and Danny, 7.

Father Mike says he intends to make use of the $100 gift certificate first prize and will give young Tim an IOU payable in a few years.

WHILE CROWDS gathered in town to watch the balloons, 12,000 persons visited the Plymouth Sports Collectors convention at the Plymouth Hilton Inn in Plymouth Township. Dealers and collectors from all over the country came to the convention with their baseball cards, old autographed baseball bats, balls and jerseys. One dealer came all the way from the Yukon Territory in Canada. He traveled by kayak, private planes and commercial airlines to the convention. He runs a liquor store in a remote Yukon outpost and also is an avid collector of baseball memorabilia.

Lloyd and Carol Toerpe of Flint organized the convention and show, which opened at 4 p.m. on Thursday and ran until 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Norm Cash and Al Kaline were among the former Detroit Tigers who visited the show. Kaline came for lunch on Saturday. He ordered a chicken salad sandwich with french fries and ate with the crowd. He also signed hundreds of autographs.

Buying and trading were brisk. According to Mike Rafferty of the Hilton, there are three companies who make baseball cards. They were sold singly and in yearly sets A 1912 Dodgers jersey bearing the number 6 sold for $700. Asking price for a 7-Up poster with Santa Claus in the center surrounded by 10 or so sports figures with their autographs was $50. Old copies of The Sporting News were in demand.

Radio station WSDP at the Centennial Educational Park had an exclusive interview with Kaline.

NEXT BIG event in the community will be the Canton Country Festival, slated for Aug. 7-

She added that anyone who finds an old yearbook and is willing to donate it to the school library, call the school, 453-3100, and leave a message for Marian West with their telephone number. She will get in touch with them.

A shy dreamer leaving Madonna

By Sherry Kahan staff writer

It is hard to get Sister Colleen Morris talk about herself.

Sure, she can talk for hours about the gerontology program she helped pioneer at Madonna College and then directed. But she might not mention that Madonna has established the Sister Colleen Morris gerontology scholarship in

And now that she has been given a new assignment by the Marist Provisional Council, she has some definite thoughts on what she would emphasize in her new job as principal of Our Lady of Peace Elementary School in Wheeling, W. Va. But she's likely to pass over any worries or regrets she may have about moving.

She had no difficulty in describing her feelings about her work in gerontol-

"It's been almost an overwhelming event in my life to have spent seven years in the creative dynamic movement of developing and completing a curriculum in gerontology," she said.

And sometimes private thoughts come through.

"I often think of Bobby Kennedy because he dreamed dreams," she said. "I always have been a visionary. When I see a need for something for humanity, I like to explore it. I always had concern for people, especially for the elderly. I have a mother who lives in senior citizen housing in Minnesota.

"Why did I decide to become a nun? I had concern for people, I wanted total dedication of my life. I first became a registered nurse, then entered the Marist Community at 25. I wanted to give my life totally to help people."

HER FIRST JOB was as a nurse in a Marist sisters orphanage in Canada. After being asked to move into education, she began teaching in a small mining town in Canada's Quebec province. By 1970 she was named principal of St. Barnabas school in East Detroit.

"When I was principal, I developed a learning center for children who were not keeping up with their class," Sister Colleen said. "I hoped to develop innovative ways of responding to the needs of the children by individual or small group instruction as well as classroom

She wonders whether the student of 1981 will be the same as he was when she left elementary work in 1974.

"I have some concerns about returning to the field of elementary teaching," she said. "Society and family life have drastically changed in the past decade. Children have changed. Elementary curriculum has changed."

But she stressed: "I have always loved children. I respond to them and they to me."

Asked if she misses not having children of her own, she said, "No, I don't wish for children of my own." She added: "Being a sister has allowed me to use my God-given talents in a manner I might not have been able to utilize them if I had a family, Community to Madonna and she became involved in gerontology.

Those were the days of brainstorming sessions on this new educational program. Involved with her were Sister Mary Danatha, then Madonna president; Sister Mary Lauriana, academic dean, and future president Sister Mary Francilene.

"It's been an exciting, enriching experience to be among the pioneers in developing a curriculum in gerontology in higher education," said Sister Colleen. "We can creatively and proudly say it is a recognized leader in this area. Few colleges offer a bachelor of science degree in gerontology.'

Once priorities were set and a course of study developed, the program started in 1974. The first series of lectures demonstrated that there was, indeed, a need for gerontolgy education. Turning up were 274 people. Madonna's first step was to enroll volunteers in a program to aid the diderly.

"Our approach to the needs of the elderly is in a holistic manner," observed Sister Colleen. "We educate students to respond to the total need of older people - physical, psychological and social. We also stress the vital role of the family. "An important aspect of our education is the cultural implications of aging. People must think of the needs of the person regarding religion, eating habits, manner of speaking and whether they lived in the city or the country.

"We broke new ground by sponsoring workshops addressing such needs as substance abuse housing needs, mental health, hearing and vision impairment and pre-retirement planning."

THE SISTER has been pleased that many women in the 40- to 50-year-old age group have turned to the program for job training.

"They helped their chiluren grow up," she said. "Now they say, 'It's my turn. I want to do something with my PEARL AND JERRY Mahl were married recently. So what you say! People get marred all the time! First of all the bridal party consisted of the couple's seven grandchildren. The ceremony took place in St. Thomas a Becket parish with the Rev. Ernest Pocari presiding over the Mass.

The reception was in the back yards of the Mahls' home and their neighbors, Sandy and Hank Naasko.

It was a catered affair on a bright sunny afternoon in late June. Friends and neighbors helped to set things up at 7 a.m. on the day of the wedding. They happened to have some very crazy bartenders on hand to spice up the festivities - Helen Wesner, Carol Shaw, Jan Brawn and Eleanor Burton do not claim to being mixologists, but they do know how to have a good time.

How to submit news items to newspaper

News of clubs, service organizations, engagements, weddings and wedding anniversaries are printed without cost in the Suburban Life Section of the · Plymouth Observer and Canton Observer newspapers.

News items may be dropped off or mailed to the office at 461 S. Main St., Plymouth 48170. Special forms are available for club news, engagements, weddings and 50th wedding anniversary announcements.

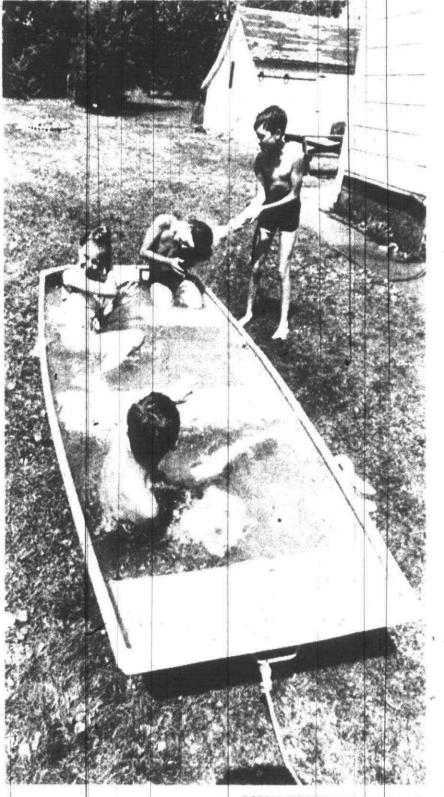

Black and white pictures are preferred as they reproduce more clearly than color photos. A self-addressed, stamped envelope assures return of the pictures, or, they can be picked up at the office a week after they have been published. Mail should be addressed to the attention of Elinor Graham, Suburban Life editor.

Activities of more major scope than regular club meetings may warrant more extensive coverage and a photograph. Call the newspaper, 459-2700, well in advance of the event to permit scheduling a photograph

Breaking news stories (and we appreciate telephone calls on these these) like fires, accidents, etc., receive on-the-spot coverage. Other events, planned for in advance, should be announced a week or so before the actual date.

Felician Sisters gather to re-evaluate their work

tion of the Blessed Virgin Mary Province of Livonia are beginning today a week of exploring their life and work. The sessions are going on in the St. Mary Hospital auditorium.

Earlier this year the 450-member community elected 38 delegates and 12 alternates who, with six members of the administration, will examine community issues according to the teachings of the church on religious life as found in recent papal and Vatican II documents.

Seventy-nine proposals regarding spiritual life, community life, the apostolate, formation and government have been submitted by the community at large for consideration at their 12th Provincial Chapter.

Among the proposals to be discussed will be the assessment of present apostolates, establishment of a house of prayer, on-going formation programs and recruitment to religious life.

Proposals which involve the entire congregation (all the provinces of the Felician Sisters) will be forwarded to

The Felician Sisters of the Presenta- Rome for action of the general chapter to be Held in 1982.

The members of the provincial chapter will also elect three delegates to the general chapter. These delegates make the choice of a new general administration for the 4,000-member congregation of four continents.

IN PREPARATION for the discussions, the Rev. James Viall, pastor of St. Rose parish in Cleveland and coordinator of the Consortium Perfectae Caritatis, is holding a day of recollection and prayer for all the delegates to-

Emphasizing the importance of this provincial chapter which is held every six years, Mother Mary Clarentine, superior of the Livonia province, said that "the end result of the chapter should be a more intense and more clear vision of what it means to live the Felician charism."

She added: "Putting our past failures behind us, with the help of God, we hope to renew our zeal and live to the fullest our Eucharistic, Ecclesiastical.

Marian and Franciscan vocation.'

She pointed out that since the chapter affects the church, "the Felician Sisters are urging their friends and all the faithful to send prayerful petitions to God almighty that this important assembly will be rich in fruitful activity for the church."

Today the congregation of the Felician Sisters is composed of seven provinces in the U.S., two vice-provinces (one in Canada and one in Brazil), and three provinces in Poland. Their generalate is in Rome.

The Sisters are engaged in the apostolate of teaching, nursing, social work and evangelism in seven countries. They staff 239 elementary schools, 39 high schools, four colleges, nine hospitals and 35 institutions for children, aged and mentally retarded.

IN THE DETROIT archidiocese. where the Felicians have served since 1876, they administer and staff 22 schools, five high schools, a Montessori Center, Maria Nursery School, Madonna College and St. Mary Hospital.

Simplistic solutious not the way to wisdom

moral perspectives

Being on the losing side of an election or a legislative decision is no fun. It would be nice to ride the wave of popular opinion. One wonders if Lincoln was right in saying we can trust the ultimate wisdom of the people.

My understanding increased in a recent national meeting of my denomination. There is both wisdom and folly in actions by a large legislative

The positive side was a contemplative thrill over the prominence of minorities. A sense of general rightness emerges as minority groups and minority issues are given a chance. Serious attention to the concerns of a few gives insights to the many. Freedom means there will be diversity. Pluralism is an essential, not a luxu-

Everyone gains pobility when there is room for advancement among those who have been deprived. Compassion leads people toward ultimate wisdom. The golden rule is just as wise for relationships between groups as between individuals.

THE NEGATIVE SIDE is a new awareness of why solutions are so often simplistic. When people are rushed to a decision or overloaded by too much to do, simplistic answers will rule the day.

We all face selecting the path of wisdom or the simplistic route. Daily news tells us we are going one way or the other in international relations, in dealing with crime poverty, education, or even family life. Quick solutions are popular.

The voice of reason is drowned out by sweeping emotion. Lessons from past struggles are swept aside by power to settle the matter. Desperation over the problems of the moment stops us from assessing the consequences of our actions.

Simplistic solutions depend on quotable phrases and moving rhetoric. They usually are not wise precisely because they are too logical. We try to answer questions and lock ourselves into propositions. Morality becomes a matter of written principles rather than the vibrancy of life. Images and flowing beauty are better motivators than right answers.

THE WISDOM of the people Lincoln must have had in mind is complex. Humanity is diverse, for we are each unique. One rule will not fit all Divorce is sometimes right and sometimes wrong: morality is in what happens to all the people involved. War is sometimes necessary but usually wrong: pacifism and militarism are both extreme positions rather than wisdom. Death is sometimes a blessing and often tragic: rules about life-saving technology or abortion can't fit every case. Even diet or exercise programs differ widely.

Creationists are right to honor a divine creator. Evolutionists are right to honor scientific probing and tentative theories. Wisdom is the marvel at the mystery everywhere rather than to insist we know everything about anything. Simplistic thinking regards mystery as an unknown or a problem to be solved.

Fear and insecurity drive us to define what we trust, to identify authority. The mind needs ideas, thoughts, and words. But ultimate wisdom is personal. The Judeo-Christian tradition has elevated this truth by insisting God is person. People will move toward wisdom if we don't lock ourselves into mere words.

THIS COLUMN IS made up of words, not pictures, but there are some ways to define morality and still be personal.

Dignity is important. Diversity, pluralism, and defense of minorities gives each of us more opportunity for fulfillment. If we demand quick answers to questions, we confine life to a classroom style. If we insist on controlling others, we limit life to rule by power If we cringe in fear, we seek defensive, protective shells. If we are controlled by impulses or emotions, we

The wisdom of the people is the golden rule operating to abhor simplistic solutions.

3 Ward teams will go forth

Alaska, North Carolina and Appalachia will be the destinations of three groups, heading out from Ward Presbyterian Church of Livonia on assorted mission type projects.

Eight college-age members will leave July 20 for four weeks at the Victory Bible Camp at Palmer, Alaska. Participants will join in the work conducted by the Arctic Mission.

A group of nearly 50 adults from the church's Single Point Ministries will stay July 31 to Aug. 9 at Jungle Aviation and Radio Service, a training base of the Wycliffe Bible Translators at Waxhaw, N.C.

They will help build an airstrip along with getting a taste jungle life at the wilderness base.

The third group involves senior high youth, who will conduct a summer day camp at Mountain Top Camp, Grundy

By sending out the teams, Ward points up its mission emphasis which puts some $400,000 annually into support of more than 80 mission projects. The trips also help the outlying bases accomplish more work with volunteer help and deepen understanding of the needs of world missions.

Ministers talk to fellowship

Lee and Nancy Thomas of Broken Arrow, Okla., will be the guest speakers at a dinner meeting Friday of the Northville-Plymouth-Livonia Chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship in Syeden House in Farmington

Ministers of gospel music, they have recorded several gospel albums. They have sung and ministered in many denominational churches' Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship meetings as well as on radio and TV.

Festival seems serene but calamity can strike

By Elizabeth Roach special writer

It was a close call last year when the tenor slated to sing in the Meadow Brook Music Festival presentation of Mahler's "Das Lied von der Erde" came down with laryngitis.

It was Saturday morning, and the performance was scheduled for that night, recalled Stuart Hyke, the festival's managing director.

Another tenor was found in New York, and the sorely needed substitute arrived at 4:05 p.m. for a 4 p.m. re-

Such are the details Hyke and his staff must attend to during Oakland University's 10-week summer cultural series. The festival, with a budget of $1.5 million, offers more than 50 events for concert-goers in metropolitan De-

Hyke said the festival draws a large part of its attendance from Birmingham, Bloomfield and Rochester.

FESTIVAL STAFFERS must be prepared for bad weather, ill or absent performers, equipment malfunctions

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

"Last summer was Michigan's worst mosquito year in history. This year, so far, we've had good luck on that," Hyke

Meadow Brook is sprayed four times weekly with a new, stronger solution to take the itch out of those evenings out-

"I never used to be interested in the weather before I came here," said Hyke, now in his third season at Meadow Brook.

Rain can cost a concert 500 to 2,000 in attendance, Hyke said. That's compared to a full house of 7,500. "We've done some concerts in the driving rain. We go rain or shine. So far we've been pretty lucky. The skies haven't opened up too many times," Hyke In 1978, however, a tornado warning delayed to about 11 p.m. a concert by pop singers England Dan and John Ford Coley, Hyke said. "Most of the people left and came back," he said. "Those who didn't want to were just given refunds."

WEATHER ALSO can affect instruments. Humidity can make string instruments go out of tune. Cold weather can crack woodwind instruments and stiffen a brass player's lips.

But Hyke said performers at Meadow Brook aren't usually a problem, since management is careful about who it books. 'We haven't had much trouble with no-shows," he said. "We try to be fairly careful. Everybody has a track record. If somebody's a turkey, the word gets out pretty fast."

Hyke added: "Some years ago, we had a performer arrive drunk. Honestly, you really couldn't tell. We haven't had a problem with a performer being impaired to the point of not being able to perform.

"If that ever happened, we'd sober him up really fast."

MEADOW BROOK seldom has audience problems, Hyke said. Its average patron is about 30 years old. The festival doesn't book heavy-rock acts, which, he said, attract more troublemaking fans in their early 20s.

We have well-behaved crowds. The facilities are never trashed. We're not interested in that sort of stuff," he said. "If you want to do a big rock concert, there's a whole list of other concerns to worry about." Hyke does recall one instance of audience disturbance in 1979. Before a performance, a member of the road tled and waved to a woman he knew. In return, the crewman was punched by a man in the audience, who mistakenly thought the whistle and wave were crew for the Judy Collins show whisdirected at his own wife. On the whole, Hyke said, the festival, now in its:18th season, hasn't had many operational problems.

"The whole key to a successful series is advance planning. In this business you hate surprises," he said.

"The Lords of Flatbush" (1974), 4 p.m. today on Ch. 7. Originally 88 minutes.

Three of the most popular performers of recent vears were thrown together in a 1974 film about NYC hoods that could have been a pilot for TV's "Happy Days." Henry Winkler, Sylvester Stallone and Susan Blakely are the principals in this wouldbe "Blackboard Jungle"-turned soap opera. Rating: $2.50.

"To Sir With Love" (1967), 4 p.m. Friday on Ch. 7. Originally 105 minutes.

Here's one of those movies, like "West Side Story," that manages to overlook totally the socioeconomic problems of the day in order to bring to us, the viewing public, the best in contemporary music. At least "To Sir With Love" does it well. Sidney Poitier plays the teacher who devotes himself to the youth of a London slum school. Any resemblance between them and the skinheads, mods or bother boys of the day is purely coincidental. Suzy Kendall, Judy Geeson and Lulu provide ample support as another teacher and students, respectively. Poitier really carries the show, though, and the music is quite good. Rating: $3.

Sea Hawk" (1940), 12:30 Friday night on Ch. 50 Originally 127 minutes.

Speaking of music, one of the best film composers, Erich Wolfgang Korngold, carries the show in "Sea Hawk." Not even Errol Flynn is equal to the score in this Michael Curtiz film that has trouble getting off the ground. Korngold did many Flynn/ Warner Brothers vehicles, including "Captain Blood" (1935), "The Prince and the Pauper" (1937), "The Adventures of Robin Hood" (1938) and "Elizabeth and Essex" (1939). "Sea Hawk" is the best of the lot for Korngold but a disappointment for Flynn. Rating: $2.60.

SLOT HITTING

During the recent fifth annual World Amateur Plimpton Cup tournament in Las Vegas, this position was observed between two professional players. White is trailing, 12-8, in a 15-point match.

White has a 3-1 to play. This position is quite common and can be played several ways, depending on the score in that match.

If you're contemplating doing anything except hitting black on the 5 point, you can stop right now. The best move is for white to enter from the bar to black's 3 point and hit black on the 5 point from the 6 in white's home board.

The reason for this is twofold. By hitting, you are stealing half of black's roll since he must get off the bar with one number. Black will be kept busy and will not be able to use his full next 1. roll and use his four builders to close the 5 or 7 point. This move also stops black from immediately taking the white 5 point on his next roll.

There are more benefits to this move. Black could stay on the bar with 6-6; black could get off the bar with 1-6, 2-6, 3-6, 4-6 or 5-6 and still have to leave four blots. If black rolls a 5-6 or any 5 to hit with, white could easily reblack's home board or hold the 1 and 3 outh MI 48170.

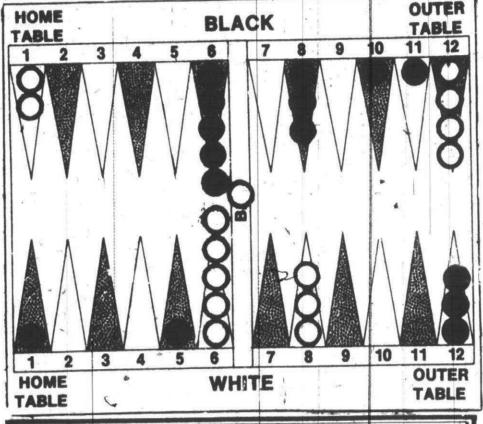

Of course, if black hits from the bar and sits on the white 5 point, white could continue to attack with 1s and 3s until his goals are achieved or, if all else fails, convert to a back game. With the score at 12-8, black will not be sending the cube with white playing a well-timed back game.

The other option, coming off the bar with the 1 and hitting black on the 5 point with an 8-point checker, does nothing for white's position and checker flexibility. Other moves don't even come close. The suggested 3-1 move is employed often during the beginning stages of a game. Each player, by slothitting, is trying to establish the point before the opponent and throw the opponent off balance. In the actual game, the open player correctly played the 3-

The important thing to note is the position of the doubling cube. With white trailing four points in the match, black will be reluctant to accept a double in a game dominated by white. Until white catches up in the match, he would do best to continue aggressive playing.

Tigers strike out once again

By Brad Emons staff writer

"A special thanks to Mr. Ralph Snyder of the Detroit Tiger organization for his help in putting the ALL STAR GAME facilities at our disposal." | Adray All Star program (July 13, 1981).

The song lyric "We're all behind our baseball team," popularized during the 1968 Detroit Tiger pennant drive, should be scrapped forever. I won't be singing it. That's for sure. Monday's pair of Adray League all-star games, slated to be held at Tiger Stadium, turned out to be a complete fiasco. And the blame lies solely with the Detroit Baseball The hopes of almost 100 amateur players, age 19 and under, were dashed. The dream of playing at Tiger Stadium went down the drain "with the best drainage system in the league."

Two games were called off because of wet grounds. A storm the night before made sure of that. Or did it really?

When I arrived at Michigan and Trumbull at 9:45 a.m., after paying a buck for parking, I took my seat inside the stadium awaiting the start of the Livonia Adray League All Stars' game against Lansing.

The rain had passed five hours before and the field was not in condition for the 10 a.m. start. The players warmed up in the outfield while a handful of stadium maintenance workers cut the infield grass and turned over the dirt at third base.

The guys working that day did not impress me with their speed. It's called "working at a snail's pace.' With a little effort, the game could have been played even though the tarp had not covered the field the night before and 20 workers have been laid off because of the

an hour. And just as the skies lightened up,

Ralph Snyder, director of stadium operations, told Adray All Star director Tom Noland that the field was "too wet." "Our workers were here at 7 a.m.," said Snyder. "More can be accomplished by waiting. It would not be wise to let the kids play on the field in that condition. It was just too humid." Snyder said also that the field was "too dangerous" and that "we could be risking

Once the game was called off, players, coaches, umpires and fans hopped in their cars and headed for Ford Field. And within an hour, the Livonia Parks and Recreation Department had the diamond ready.

"IT WAS pretty tough," said Livonia Adray second baseman Greg Alcala. "It's been my dream to play there. It was really looking forward to it. I played for Bishop Borgess and we missed playing there by one game. And this year I make the first team and don't play."

Griffin Sports manager Mike Keller was even more disappointed.

"I think whoever was in charge did a poor job of getting things set up for the kids," he said. "I don't think they were trying to be too professional. They were too lax."

"Their level of thinking (on groundskeeping) may be different," said Livonia manager Ron Hellier. "But I think they could have probably gotten it ready had they started earlier. We know what we have to do to play here (Ford Field)."

Adray's Noland, however, added, "The field was unplayable. I'm more than satisfied with what they did. Third base was very tacky and mushy.

Plymouth aces head for nationals

Chris and Wendy Gilles, the highly-ranked tennis playing sisters from Plymouth, finished seventh and 13th, respectively, last week in the Western Closed Girls 14 championships in East Lansing.

The sisters will now head to the U.S.T.A. National Junior Girls 14 Clay Court championships in Greensboro, N.C., which begins Sunday. That will be followed by a trip to the USTA National Junior Girls 14 championships at Birmingham, Ala., which begins Aug. 1.

Chris, an incoming sophomore at Salem High School, was seeded fifth in the 128-player draw.

She won her first two rounds, downing Lori McMullen of Indiana, 6-1, 6-1, and Beth Sierkes of Illinois, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

The Salem student dropped to the consolation bracket after suffering a heartbreaking three-set loss to Shawn Foltz of Indianapolis, Ind., 6-3, 1-6, 4-6.

got two each from Belhart, Rod Wells and Potoczak. Salem is now 8-9-1 overall.

In a game played Sunday, Wells blasted a grand slam homer and Cygan drove in three runs to lead Salem to a 12-3 win over Detroit Mic Mac.

Dan Knapp was the winning pitcher. He flirted with a no-hitter until one-out in the sixth. He eventually gave up three runs on two hits.

Makara, Bob Moore and Jim Rorabacher each chipped in with two hits.

Cygan, dubbed "Mr. July" by his teammates, clouted two solo homers Saturday to power Salem to an 8-5 victory over Brighton.

Pat Page, a Livonian who played tennis in college at the University of Detroit, won two titles last weekend during Redford's Open Tennis Tournament.

Page toppled Robert Daimsworth, 6-4 and 6-1, to claim the championship in men's singles. He also teamed with John Pinak to defeat Daimsworth and Peter Duda, 6-3, 1-6 and 6-4, in the men's doubles final.

Page's experience, hard serve and aggressive volleying eventually took their toll on Daimsworth in the singles final.

Daimsworth, a Redford resident, scored an impressive victory in the singles competition when he ousted top-seeded Pinak in the quarterfinals, 6-2, 4-6 and 6-1.

Cathy Tanzini, who lives in Dearborn, continues to do well on the summer recreation circuit.

She disposed of Linda Stillwater. from Southfield, 6-1 and 6-1 for the women's singles crown.

Tanzini also joined forces with Ron Huddleston, Westland, to defeat Nancy Estrada, Livonia, and Bob Deyo, Westland, 6-2 and 7-5; for the mixed doubles title.

A key in the second set of that match occurred when Deyo's serve was broken during the 10th game.

Last weekend was the second in succession that Tanzini has won two championships in one tournament. Earlier, she was singles and doubles champ at West and's Summer Festival Tournament

Champion finals slated

Michigan's most unusual bowling competition ever is scheduled for Saturday night at Thunderbowl in Allen

Sixty-one teams will take to the lanes at the same time to battle for a portion of $47,000 in prize money in the finals of the annual Champion of Champions Tournament, which originated 34 years ago.

Never before have the finals drawn so many teams, and never before have the finals been held in one shift.

Top prize will be $15,000, and the runner-up will pocket $7,500. From there, the prize money dwindles to $5,000, $3,000, $2,000 and a series of $100 awards. The field is unusually large because the preliminaries were held in 24 bowling alleys, all members of the Bowling Proprietors Association of Greater Detroit. Another unusual feature will be that men's and women's teams will bowl at the same time

FIRST OF THE classics to report for the coming season is the mixed classic at Westland Bowl Westland's Monte Oncza reports that the loop will be as large as last season. This classic started four years ago and developed into a mixed classic that has produced some of the area's best

Other classics certain to draw the usual quota of teams are scheduled at Bel-Aire Lanes and Wonderland These neighborhood classics are the result of the growth in numbers of local first-class bowlers. In the past, top bowlers bowled in the Tuesday and Thursday All-Star circuits. Now, to accommodate the numerous top-flight bowlers, the classics have become the popular thing. DAN WILSON continues to set a fast pace in the Trio Mixed League at

Plaza Lanes In his last appearance he put together games of 245, 266, 231 and 209

ANSWERING THE MAIL: Ed Lubanski, former captain of the Stroh team, is the only top-flight bowler in the Detroit area who still uses a twofinger ball. It was with the two-finger ball that he became the first to roll back-to-back perfect games on televi-

Stone, Casper falter in golf playoff

Palmer pleases senior army

By Dennis O'Connor staff writer

Life was so different for Arnold Palmer during his visit to Oakland Hills Country Club last week.

Yes, he won Monday's three way playoff to take the second annual United States Senior Open. That was different, in itself, because he hasn't won a tournament on the regular tour in eight years, since the 1973 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

But there were other differences, as well.

"For the first time in a long time, I've done nothing this week but play golf," Palmer said. "No business calls, no building golf courses, just concentrating on golf."

It paid off. And Palmer couldn't be happier. He thought about skipping this week's British Open, but his play on "The Monster" changed all that thinking.

Palmer, called by many "The King" of golf, was in a horrendous slump, embarrassing himself at many recent tournaments with what he called "atrocious" iron play and putting. But he was recharged at Oakland

Palmer finished in a three-way, first-place tie with Billy Casper and Bob Stone after Sunday's final round.

Then, after flying home to Latrobe, Pa. Sunday night — to rearrange his schedule because of the extra round -Palmer arrived back at Oakland Hills that morning and fired an even-par 70 to take home the $26,000 first prize.

Stone, who never won more than $8,000 at one tournament during his years on the regular tour, finished with a 74. Casper, who quadruple bogeyed the famed 16th hole when he splashed two shots into the water, took 77. Both men shared second and third-place prize money taking $9,586 each.

BUT THE REAL story, as far as the 2,762 people who watch the playoff round were concerned, was the way Palmer fought back from a six-stroke deficit to Stone after only six holes.

It was classic of the many Palmer "charges" which won the hearts of golf fans all over the world in the late '50s and early '60s.

Palmer bogied Nos. 1, 4 and 6, while Stone birdied No. 2 and eagled No. 5, thanks to a 170-yard seven-iron shot that rolled in the hole. But, even though Palmer felt discouraged, he kept control of the situation - always walking in front of Casper and Stone down each fairway, as his "army" shouted words of encouragement.

"Come on, Arnie, get something going," shouted one man from the gallery at the seventh hole. "You're six down to that guy (Stone)."

"I've got to believe that he's going to make some kind of charge," whispered another fan while Palmer was putting at No. 8. Then she yelled, "Come on Arnie, you can do it!"

Arnie did it. He birdied No. 8 with a 10-foot putt and put his drive 18 feet from the flag on the 210-yard, par-3 No. 9.

"Now let's see you smile," one fan said to Palmer, as he walked down the ninth fairway. "It's (the putt) got to drop, Arnie. It's got to drop."

It dropped.

Palmer sunk the 18-footer, while Stone bogeyed No. 7 and No. 9, cutting the lead to two.

PALMER FINALLY caught Stone at No. 12, a long 560-yard, par-5. Palmer birdied the hole with a 12-foot putt, while Stone's approach shot sailed over the green. Stone settled for bogey six and the two golfers were tied.

After they traded bogeys on Nos. 13 and 14, Palmer then sank a 40-footer on the 15th to go ahead for good.

Stone bogeyed the final three holes, and Casper, who didn't have a birdie all day, was all but finished with his disaster at 16.

Palmer, criticized by some followers as staying around top long on the tour, reaffirmed that he plays for the enjoyment of the sport.

Traveling alone

Overcome your fears, meet other people and have a good time

By Iris Sanderson Jones special writer

ELEN HAMILTON of Farmington Hills wasn't afraid to travel alone. She just needed somebody to give her a

Helen Gibiser of Birmingham was terrified of traveling alone. When she

Solo travel isn't always a big risk

While I was writing the adjoining story, about widowed women who must learn to travel alone, I realized how universal our travel problems really are. All of us have some degree of discomfort about being alone in strange situations.

You don't have to be mature or widowed to be afraid of traveling to unfamiliar places, to want some reassurance about travel companions, to succumb to inertia when hit by the complexities of

I have seen it happen to the very young, to the happily married and to the swinging single, as easily as it happens to the widowed woman.

CHOOSING A trip from all the hundreds of choices available is enough to give you ulcers. It costs a lot of money to travel, and nobody likes to make an expensive mistake. Having said that, I have several pictures in my head of people who have broken through the inertia barrier and taken a chance. It seems to me that the people in those pictures have something in common. They are not afraid to make mistakes; they learn to enjoy the little incidents that occur, and they learn to have fun wherever they go.

One such picture is of a group of young women hoisting the sails on the Caribbean Schooner Cruise ship Vela, one of those do-it-yourself vacation cruises out of Nassau. .

They didn't know whether they would like the other passengers, the daily routine of morning sailing and afternoon beach life, the food. They didn't meet many young men aboard, and I'm sure that the trip wasn't perfect, but they used every opportunity available to have fun. And they are still talking about it, years later.

ANOTHER PHOTO is of a friend called Betty aboard the Oceanic Independence, a cruise ship that does a one-week run around the Hawaiian Islands

The ship itself was like a home. She could keep her clothes in one place, eat with familiar faces, have fun with friends at night. At the same time, she could get off every day and tour to her heart's delight without worrying about her next bedstop.

Good thinking for anyone a bit nervous about travel.

I also picture a young married couple sitting under a great spreading tree in a small town in France. They didn't know where they were going, they didn't have much money and they were hungry. But they had done their homework, and they knew that Europeans eat their main meal during the day and not at night.

So, eyes open, they drove into a small town, spotted a busy sidewalk cafe, checked the posted menu to be sure they could afford it and had one of the most memorable meals of their trip.

Any single traveler, male or female, or any pair of women, or any older traveler, or any couple could have enjoyed that experience without risking anything. Partly because the sun was shining, and none of these travelers need worry about whether they belonged in that restaurant, could afford it, or could go alone.

left for her first solo cruise, one of her daughters said: "We feel like we're taking mother to camp.'

Shirley Marthey of Bloomfield Township was an experienced traveler long before she was forced to travel alone, but there are some things she still won't do. "I don't like to go out for dinner at night alone in a strange city."

All three of these women are widows who were suddenly deprived of a valued travel companion. Their combined experience sends a clear message to women who are divorced or widowed or married to men who won't travel. The message is: overcome your fear of traveling alone, start with a group tour if you're nervous, and take it for granted that you will meet other people and that you will find help if you need it.

ACCORDING TO psychologist Margaret E. Backman, writing in a recent issue of The Travel Agent, a travel industry magazine, widowed women are part of a growing segment of the travel population — the person who travels alone. The travel industry is becoming increasingly aware of the special needs of such travelers.

Sometimes, like Helen Hamilton, they only need a nudge. She grew up in a large family where there was always a friend, a date or a relative to go out with. She seldom went alone, even to a movie. After her husband died, Helen went to Europe with her son Bob, who handled all the logistics of travel. After that, she stayed home.

One day, years later, Bob heard her say, once too often: "I would really like to see the Rose Bowl Parade in Pasade-

"Walk out of this house right this minute and go to a travel agency." he said. "You've been talking about it long enough."

Helen did just that - saw the Rose Parade, San Francisco and Las Vegas - and is so delighted with travel that she is mapping out her next trip - to

"It wasn't fear, it was inertia," she said. "I needed someone to give me a

During that western trip, Helen and two other single women teamed up for dinners, sightseeing and bus tours. When she joined a second tour, up the coast from Los Angeles to San Francisco, she promptly met another woman to chum around with.

"By the time I had two days alone in San Francisco, I was glad to be alone," she said. "I went to the Top of the Mark alone for cocktails before dinner. I might not have done it at midnight, but it was easy at dinnertime.'

A final three days, alone in Las Vegas, polished off the trip. By then, Helen was taking cabs or walking to the midnight show, and she has never looked back.

HELEN GIBISER of Birmingham had another problem. "I never traveled with my husband except by car with the kids to nearby locations. A year and a half after he died, I signed up with a university group to cruise on the Rhine River in Germany. I was terrified. How much money should I take? How would I handle foreign currency? What if nobody was friendly towards me?"

"I finally decided that I was a big girl and that if all else failed, I could read a book all the way down the Rhine

"My daughters drove me to the airport. I was so scared I was ready to burst into tears, when one daughter said to the other: 'I feel like I'm taking my mother to camp.' That did it. I had done that often enough." Three cruises later, Helen has some advice to share: "Most cruises have an open breakfast, so you can sit where you please. Don't choose a small table or one filled with other single women.

"I ask for the largest table, because I meet more people that way, and I often ask to sit with a couple. Every day I sit at a different table for breakfast. This allows me to meet many people, to enjoy the company of couples and not to be trapped in the singles-only group. There are always other people around on a cruise, but you may be alone in a big city. Sometimes the people I have met at breakfast ask me to join them on the city tour." Helen has also decided against traveling with a friend. "Sometimes a friend wants you to make all the decisions. Being with a special person stops you from meeting other people. You are better to go on a cruise alone."

Most mature women will tell you that they are not looking for romance, but that it is very nice to have a dinner companion while traveling. Otherwise, you must dine alone.

SHIRLEY MARTHEY of West Bloomfield is a very adventurous traveler, but she still doesn't feel comfortable going out to a fancy Parisian restaurant alone. "I eat a nice meal at noon, and just go out to a nearby place for a sandwich at night," she said.

Singles can relax on a cruise ship, enjoy a midday meal in a French sidewalk cafe, or hoist sails at sea.

Shirley was an experienced traveler when she met her husband, Don, on a trip to California. He traveled on business, and Shirley and the children went with him whenever possible.

"One day, in the spring of 1975, I was trying to plan a trip that I could take alone, because my husband couldn't go at that time. I tried to plan a sensible trip, like visiting relatives, but it just wouldn't jell.

"Suddenly my husband said, 'Why don't you do what you really want to

"I was worried about two things: Would I be safe, and what would it be like to eat alone? You are safe almost anywhere in Europe, if you don't walk down dark alleys alone at two in the morning."

Shirley took that trip, and two months later her husband was dead. She knew how to travel alone then, and she has been to Europe regularly since.

"I feel sorry for women who live less than a full life because they are afraid to take a chance," Shirley said. "Go with a group, go alone, but go."
