Farmers irked by restrictions on road stands

GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

The Canton Farmers' Market will continue to operate from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays in the Kmart parking lot at the corner of Ford and Sheldon.

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Township officials concerned with traffic safety are asking operators of roadside vegetable stands to keep their sheds well back from the streets.

Some farmers have complained that potential customers can't see the stands from the roadway.

Under a roadside ordinance, farmers may erect a stand on the property where the produce is grown. The stands must be kept at least 85 feet from the center of the roadway, said building official Aaron Machnik, who oversees ordinance enforcement.

That averages out to about 25 feet from the edge of the road, added Machnik.

"There is a concern about safety," said Machnik. "We're asking for cooperation from the farmers. We want to be partners, not adversaries."

A FLAP began brewing recently after the township's ordinance officer Fred Baker recently told some farmers their produce stands were too close to the roadway.

Supervisor James Poole said he received complaints that other farmers weren't complying. They charged the Ganton Farmers' Market also violates the ordinance because vegetables aren't being sold on the same site where they're grown.

The market is from open 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each Saturday in the parking lot at Kmart on Ford at Sheldon. The market was developed last year — with the support of the township — to promote the efforts of Canton farmers.

Technically, the market violates the ordinance. The Township Board overcame that obstacle Tuesday by granting a special-events permit for the market.

Board relaxes guidelines on privacy fences

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Residents along major roads in Canton Township have been given the green light to put up privacy fences in their yards.

After lengthy discussion, the Township Board members last week voted 4-3 to remove from the fence ordinance a clause which forbids opaque fences over four feet high. The effect of the board's action will be to permit privacy fences up to six feet in height.

The board's action came after homeowners who live along such roads as Sheldon, Lilley and Canton Center complained of lack of privacy in their yards because of automobile traffic. Some subdivisions are platted so that back or side yards front onto the roadway.

The action also represents a defeat of earlier attempts by township officials to limit the growth of stockade-style high fences along major roads in Canton. The board last year had placed a limitation of new privacy fences on those streets.

VOTING FOR the change to allow higher fences were Supervisor James Poole, Clerk John Flodin, Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz and Trustee Loren Bennett. Voting against the change were Trustees Robert Padget, Steve Larson and Carol Bodenmiller.

"People who back up to major roads have an intolerable situation if they can't put up a privacy fence," said Bennett.

All the board members expressed sympathy for the homeowners, but several said they dislike the appearance of large numbers of the high fences. They disagreed on how to resolve the issue

The residents brought their plight to the Township Board a few weeks ago, after several residents had unsuccessfully attempted to obtain variances from the zoning board of appeals to construct privacy fences. The board subsequently asked Township Planner James Kosteva to draw up some choices. Those choices included changing the height requirements in either height or materials requirements.

As currently defined, glass or plexiglass are the only materials which are considered non-opaque.

PADGET said he was concerned about uniformity of height and material. Larson said some residents' subdivision deed-and-covenant restrictions forbid six-foot fences.

"The problem is, by God, these people on those roadways have a right to create some privacy," said Padget. "But at the same time, that's the face to the community. We have to protect the interest of the community."

Cow-chip honoree

Queen has farm heritage

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

At 75, Ruth Thompson is a somewhat reluctant queen. But she's prepared to discharge her royal duties this weekend at Canton's Country Festival.

A committee of festival officials selected Mrs. Thompson to reign as cow-chip queen last week.

She'll wear a special outfit of bib overalls and ride on a 1912-vintage manure spreader in Saturday's parade and present a trophy to the winner of the cow-chip toss.

Mrs. Thompson is old enough to be grandmother to the other women who will make up her "court."

Members of the court include Pam Leadford, Terresa Padget, Sharon Sbec, Kathie Horning and Chris Culbert.

But — with Canton farming roots dating back to 1913 — Mrs. Thompson is royally qualified to serve in an event which highlights the township's farmland heritage.

The only requirements for competition as cow-chip queen were that contestants be Canton residents and at least 18 years old. Mrs. Thompson said a township employee urged her to submit an application.

Ruth Thompson
cow-chip queen

"I WAS reluctant," said Mrs. Thompson. "I thought they should choose a young one. I think they wanted somebody who lived in the community a long time and belonged to a farming organization."

Mrs. Thompson is 4 feet 11 inches tall, and she weighs less than 100 pounds. Words flow from her mouth as she talks about a busy schedule which includes senior citizen activities and membership in the Plymouth Grange farming organization.

CURRENTLY, Mrs. Thompson lives on a two-acre parcel of land off Ridge Road — a small portion of what once was a 300-acre farm owned by her father.

Her family moved from Ohio to Canton in 1913 and settled on the Ridge Road farm. Mrs. Thompson attended a "country" school near Joy and Ridge roads and graduated from Plymouth High School in 1924.

She married Albert Thompson and moved to Ypsilanti in 1936. Within a few years, she was left a widow with two toddler sons.

Mrs. Thompson supported her family with factory jobs. But when her sons graduated from high school, she went to Eastern Michigan University, obtaining a bachelor's degree in 1956 when she was about 50 years old.

She moved back to Canton in 1960 and taught second- and third-grade children in the Willow Run School District in Ypsilanti.

Parade highlights festival weekend

Canton's first parade looks like a winner.

More than 85 entrants will be ready to march at 11 a.m. Saturday. The event is just one of many activities at the sixth annual Canton Country Festival this weekend.

The parade will feature floats, musical groups, marchers, dancers, clowns and motorized vehicles.

Canton Township Supervisor James Poole is the parade marshal.

And, then there's Cow Chip Queen, Ruth Thompson, 75, who will participate in this first-time event riding on a manure spreader.

The parade participants will begin to line up at 9:30 a.m. Saturday on Saltz between Sheldon and Canton Center.

At 11 a.m. the parade will progress along the viewing route, travelling north on Canton Center to Ford; east on Ford to Sheldon; south on Sheldon back to Saltz. Traffic on Canton Center, Sheldon and Ford will be disrupted for approximately an hour. Viewers are asked to come early to avoid traffic jams.

Many area officials will come to Canton to participate in the parade. Expected to attend are state Sen. William Faust; former state Rep. Robert Law, a Plymouth resident and assistant to Gov. Milliken; Wayne County Commissioner William Joyner; Wayne County Charter Commissioner Bart Berg; State Representative Tom Brown; Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen; Plymouth Township Trustee Jerry Law; City of Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs and Van Buren Township Supervisor Pat Cullen.

Abduction charge dropped

District Judge James Garber dismissed charges against an Inkster man accused of kidnapping a Plymouth machinist after the man passed a lie detector test.

Acting on a motion by Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Varskin Baydarian, Garber Monday dismissed charges of kidnapping, felonious asault and possession of a gun in commission of a felony against Walter W. Walton.

Fence change

Mrs. Bodenmiller said she wanted to see requirements tightened for materials and building-code procedures.

"The subdivisons were poorly platted," said Mrs. Bodenmiller. "We're trying to correct a problem that should never have taken place. If we're going to have the six-foot fences, let's have them as attractive as possible."

Growth Works serves our youth

Growth Works is a Plymouth-based agency which provides services for youth and young adults.

The agency, at 271 S. Main, is in its 10th year of operation.

Funds for Growth Works programs come from the Plymouth Community Fund, Plymouth-Canton schools, state and county agencies, Canton Township and others.

Services include:

- Youth employment training efforts. This is a federally funded project to help low-income youth with job placement.
- Young adult employment assistance. This program, for people aged 18-24, gives unemployed, low-income people on-the-job training with area employers.
- Alternative education. This program, in conjunction with Plymouth-Canton schools, gives alternative schooling to youths aged 12-16 who have been unsuccessful in regular schools. This plan works closely with Wayne County Juvenile Court and with families.
- Turning Point. The Turning Point program provides crisis intervention and counseling services to youth, young adults and their families. This service is licensed by the Michigan Office of Substance Abuse Services.

Details about Growth Works programs are available by calling 455-4095.

Fun, games fill gap

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

There have been trips to the lake and visits to Greenfield Village.

There have been volleyball, badminton, kickball, checkers and arts and crafts — and times of quiet companionship.

A farewell picnic next week at McClumpha Field near Ann Arbor Trail and Sheldon will bring to a close a summer recreation program at Canton Commons housing complex.

This was the sixth year of the program, which is sponsored by the Plymouth-based Growth Works agency and funded by United Community Services (UCS).

Since 1965, UCS has made funds available to neighborhood and community groups for summer programs to help disadvantaged youth.

Each afternoon, children from Canton Commons gather in a large, grassy area at the complex.

Depending on the number of children on hand, they either play in small groups or take part in organized activities, under the direction of Growth Works staff Keith Bailey and Nita Hanchett.

Mrs. Hanchett, who lives at Canton Commons, said the summer program fills a need. Many of the children come from one-parent homes, and there are few recreational facilities in the immediate area.

Bailey, 22, is an assistant track coach at Plymouth Canton High School. He also is a senior at Eastern Michigan University, where he majors in physical education with a minor in coaching and recreation.

"THE BASIC thing is to spend time with (the children), to give them a chance to get love," said Bailey. "To give them exposure to games and things, field trips."

Bailey, director of the project, is in his first year with Growth Works. Mrs. Hanchett joined the program four years ago as a volunteer.

Now she's a paid member of the staff, organizing activities and supervising the children.

"I enjoy it," said Mrs. Hanchett. "I like kids."

ABOUT 25-35 children take part each day, said Mrs. Hanchett. Most are 9-11 years old. The numbers swell when it comes time for the field trips, she added.

Sometimes those trips cause unexpected excitement, said Bailey. For example, one boy was bit by an ostrich on a visit to a zoo. Another child once took an impromptu swim in a fountain.

Weather sometimes hampers the everyday activities, said Mrs. Hanchett. There is no sheltered area at the Canton Commons site where the children can play when it's extremely hot or rainy.

The program used to have a picnic table, but it was "demolished" by the ~~older~~ children, said Mrs. Hanchett.

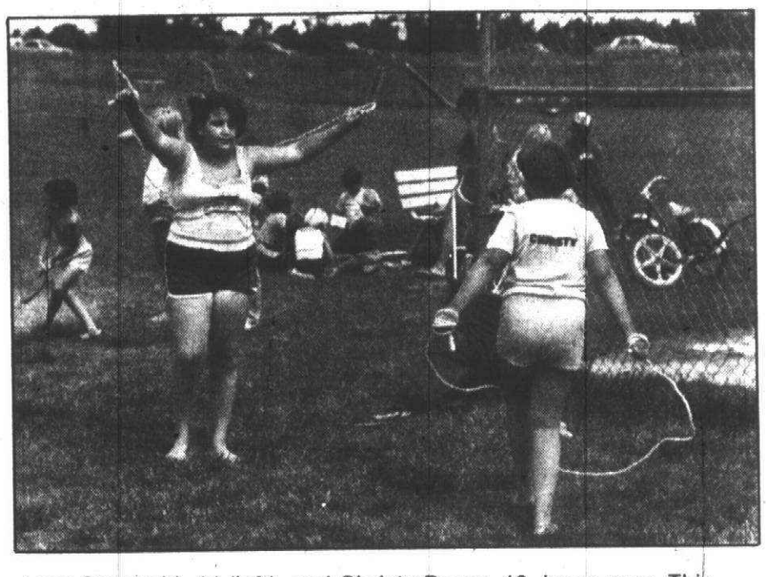

"You make do, but you use your head," said Bailey. "You teach the kids to use their heads. It's a joint effort."

About 450 families live at Canton Commons. The Growth Works staff would like more residents to send their children to the summer recreation program.

This year, the staff has circulated leaflets, visited with parents and used word-of-mouth communication.

The biggest challenge is keeping the children from becoming restless and disinterested because of summer weather, Bailey said.

"They're learning to share. They're learning to ask. They keep you hopping."

Cow-chip queen cherishes title

"THEY WELCOMED me," said Mrs. Thompson. "They said older (teachers) applied themselves.

Now retired, Mrs. Thompson keeps busy as a member of the Pioneers and Zesters senior citizen clubs in Canton and the 60-Plus Club which meets in Plymouth.

She enjoys crafts and crocheting and "I'm always in the arts and crafts displays at the 4-H Fair in Belleville."

She's also active in United Assembly of God church in Plymouth and the Canton Calvary Church.

Mrs. Thompson said her friends at the senior citizen groups were surprised when she was named cow-chip queen.

"I tell them I was surprised too," she added.

Abduction-shooting case dismissed

Walton, 30, had been held in the Wayne County jail in lieu of $50,000 bond from July 21 until last Friday. Walton was released on personal bond Friday after the machinist, Michael Kay, failed to identify him as his kidnapper and after Walton took the lie detector test.

Baydarian said the victim could not positively identify Walton. Walton also had passed a polygraph test "with flying colors," he said.

"The victim told me that the was not absolutely sure that this was the man," said Judge Garber. "That's when the polygraph test was set up."

Michael Kay of Plymouth was on his way to work July 21 when a man jumped into his car and demanded at gunpoint that Kay drive him to Ypsilanti.

Kay said he drove about six miles from the Plymouth Township intersection to another instersection in Canton Township where he stopped abruptly for a red light.

There, the pair tangled over the gun, and it dropped into Kay's lap, firing one shot into his left leg, he said. The man then jumped out of the car and ran away.

Kay drove home and called police. He was treated at a nearby hospital for a flesh wound.

Officials want traffic safety

Farmers bothered by roadside rule

In addition, the board referred the roadside-stand ordinance to the planning commission for possible revision before next year's harvest season.

ONE OF the farmers, Ernie Costantino, told the Observer some of the farmers feel the setback guideline is too rigid because the stands can't be seen from the roadway.

'There is a concern about safety. We're asking for cooperation from the farmers. We want to be partners, not adversaries.'

— Aaron Machnik building official

Duane Bordine, who has operated a vegetable stand at Ford and Ridge for three years, said location "does make a difference."

Bordine said his stand serves 30-50 customers an hour on weekends. He moved his stand back, and customers now aren't inclined to park on the roadway because it's too far to walk.

"Customers cause their own problems, but we're trying to alleviate that," said Bordine. "We don't ask people to park on the road, but they do."

Trustee Carol Bodenmiller said some of the farmers had been restricted in meeting setback guidelines because of crop growth or because of ditches.

"I think it's the duty of the farmers to (not) take advantage," said Mrs. Bodenmiller. "They shouldn't have the stand too close to the road and cause a traffic jam."

Energy open houses planned for Canton and Plymouth

Many people still may be unclear about which resources are available to help them cope with rising energy costs.

To help explain the services, the West-Wayne Energy Coalition is sponsoring Energy Help Week, Monday through Aug. 14.

At open houses scheduled at various locations in Wayne County, there will be teams of representatives from utility, government and community programs.

These representatives will be available to answer questions about energy resources and also will offer the chance to sign up for programs.

The open houses include Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer, Plymouth, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. on Monday; Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. on Aug. 14; and Westland Friendship Center, 37095 Marquette Avenue, Westland, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. Tuesday.

At the energy open house in Plymouth, volunteers from the Plymouth Energy Program (PEP) will be present to show interested homeowners infrared pictures of their homes.

These infrared pictures are the ones taken last year to give homeowners information on where their homes lose heat.

Volunteers will interpret the infrared pictures and offer some conservation ideas which other residents have used successfully in their own homes.

There also will be information on other upcoming PEP activities, including the opening of an energy office in the Dunning-Hough Library and a September tour of homes demonstrating a variety of approaches to heating and to energy conservation.

PEP is a community program organized by city staff and staffed by volunteers. It currently is being used by the state as a model for a number of new programs in other cities.

AMONG THE programs represented at open houses will be:

- The Emergency Energy Assistance, the Emergency Needs Program and the Energy Crisis Intervention Program.

These programs provide energy assistance funds for low-income, unemployed residents of Wayne County who live outside Detroit. The programs, which have a September deadline, are administered by the Michigan Department of Social Services and the Wayne Metropolitan Community Service Agency.

Michigan Consolidated Gas also will be on hand to help make individual payment arrangements to those customers who need help in paying their gas bills. To register for assistance, people should bring their proof of income, personal identification and gas, electric or oil bills.

- Michigan Residential Conservation Service Home Energy Analyses.

For $10, any resident of the state can have a trained energy auditor thoroughly examine and evaluate a home for energy efficiency. Included in the audit will be information on low or no cost energy conservation practices, contracted conservation measures, do-it-yourself conservation measures and on how to finance energy improvements.

At the open houses, utility representatives will describe the program and facilitate scheduling of a home energy analysis.

- Wayne County Weatherization Program.

This program aims to help low-income families better insulate their homes and conserve on their energy bills. For people who meet the income requirements, workers will insulate ceilings and basements, replace broken and missing windows, weatherstrip and caulk. This is a free service performed by the Wayne County Office on Aging.

More information on the energy open houses may be obtained by calling Jim Kosteva of Canton at 397-1000; Kurt Bradenberg or John Behman of Plymouth at 453-1234; Mary LaPorte of Westland at 721-6000, ext. 282; or Sue Hanson of Inkster at 565-4100, ext. 221.

Kappler named to plan group

Wes Kappler has been named to fill an unexpired term on the city planning commission.

The appointment of Kappler was made by Mayor Mary Childs and confirmed Monday night by the Plymouth City Commission.

Kappler, who lives on Woodland Place in Plymouth, fills the vacancy left by the resignation of Art Larson. Larson's term will expire in December 1981.

Kappler is a manager in the Detroit division of Detroit Edison. His wife, Marjorie, is a school teacher.

A total of five city residents had volunteered to fill the vacancy on the planning commission.

correction

A previous story incorrectly stated that the Plymouth-Canton school board chose a new food vendor — Interstate United Food Service Company — with the recommendation of the Parent Advisory Committee.

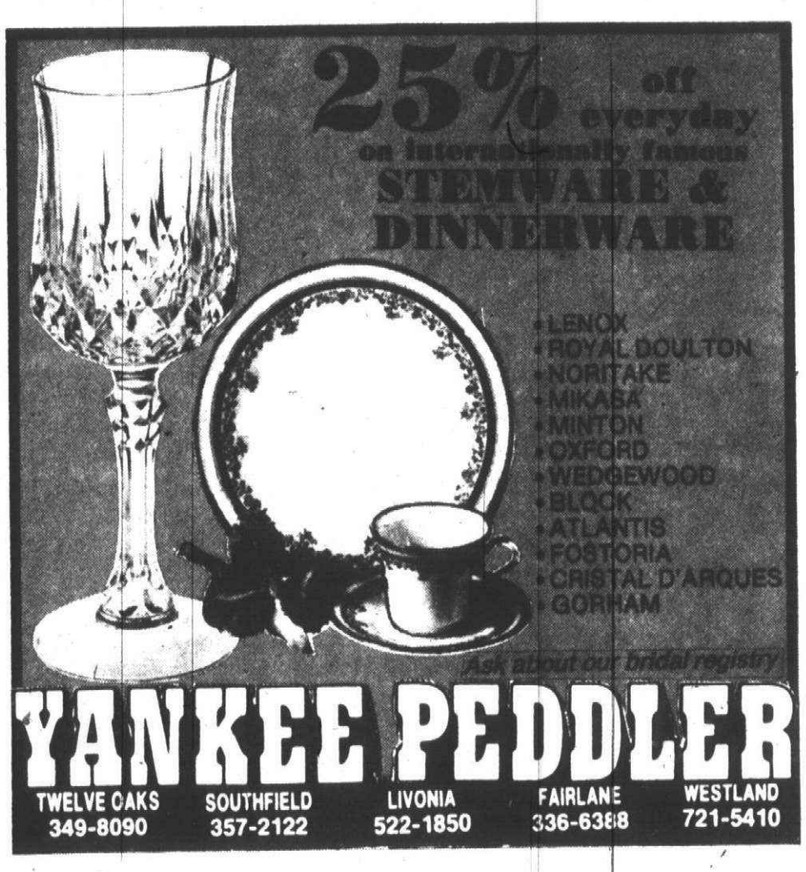

The recommendation to replace the current vendor — ARA — with Interstate was made by an ad hoc committee named the Food Service Selection Advisory Committee.

The Parent Advisory Committee is a permanent committee mandated by federal guidelines affecting operation of school cafeterias.

The Food Service Selection Advisory Committee was formed to consider one issue — food service. The committee includes two parents, two building principals, two cafeteria managers and two central administrators.

Schoolcraft candidate Robertson an 'inside man'

Promotion from within and development of staff harmony are important elements of a successful community college, according to Lyle Robertson, a candidate for president of Schoolcraft College.

Robertson, academic vice president of Macomb County Community College, was interviewed publicly Monday by the Schoolcraft board of trustees. He was the fourth of five final candidates interviewed for the presidency of the two-year community college.

The board Thursday will meet to pare down the list of candidates to two. Finalists will be brought back to campus for a second round of interviews. The new president is expected to be on board in September.

ROBERTSON PORTRAYED himself as an "inside man" — an administrator who in recent years has been more used to working with fellow colleagues than with outside contacts.

But Robertson said past posts and some exposure in his most recent position have involved more extensive out-college contacts.

"I think the person in the role of president has to be a catalyst. The PR person cannot be the sole vehicle of communication with the community."

Robertson, declaring Schoolcraft has "an excellent reputation," said anyone selected as president has the opportunity to use that reputation as leverage in gaining credibility and adding weight to his or her relationships outside the college, especially regarding state aid.

"I DON'T THINK community colleges are viewed in Lansing as a force to be reckoned with, so I don't think I'd be dealing from a position of strength.

"We don't have have Rose Bowls and some of the perks some people are interested in. So I think your greatest strength is your reputation, and as I said, I believe Schoolcraft's is solid and strong," said Robertson.

But Robertson added, "Clearly, I think one of the prime responsibilities of the president is to know the local state representatives and senators at least," and to have "working relationships with key senators and representatives on vital committees so you don't walk in and be total strangers."

Robertson was a member of the city council in Sterling Heights for two and a half years, a post to which he said he was appointed.

COMMUNITY COLLEGES can and should be an important part of a cooperative network of government, business and labor in insuring a healthy state economy, said Robertson, citing North Carolina as a state with that kind of network.

"This state I think has a pretty poor reputation nationally in the business of bringing in new industry and keeping old industry is Michigan," Robertson added.

Cooperation with industry itself can be particularly important, Robertson said, when it involves "contract education," or the use of community college staff to teach in-service training to industry representatives.

That aids both development of new college programs and contacts with potential sources of either money or equipment, he said. The college foundation could also help do those things, he added.

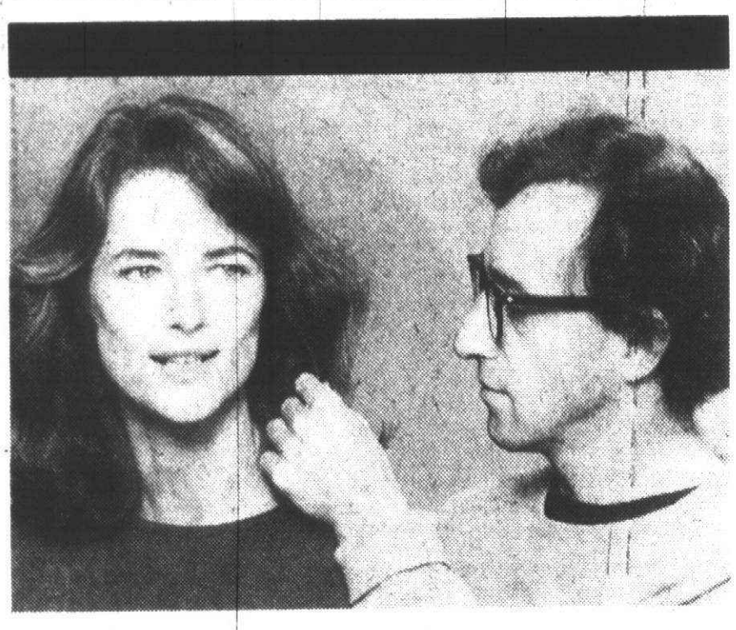

Robertson

BUT ROBERTSON said Schoolcraft's specific role in any such government-business-labor network would be up to the board to define.

Robertson stressed development of a cooperative attitude between the president's office and college staff, as well as between the president and the community at large.

He said he believed the relationship between unions and employers is of necessity an adversarial one, but "it doesn't have to be acrimonious. I think that's a critical difference."

Keeping used cars going

While car sales slump, repair field booms

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

Like the fellow with a sick headache and an upset stomach, but still able to walk, the entire automobile industry is not sick either.

While the sale of new cars is hitting new lows almost every month and the dealers see very little improvement this year, the repair business is booming.

In an unofficial survey of the repair shops in the Plymouth area, the repairmen proudly claim that their business is up well above 25 percent in the past few months and some claim the business is improving each week.

But it's a different story when you talk to auto dealers.

"I think the people are just fearful," auto dealer Lou La Riche said. "They don't know what to expect with the interest rates getting higher and higher and the price of the cars rising progressively. They are puzzled.

"If they only realized it, this is the best time to purchase a new car. They never will get any more for their old one and the new one, despite the high price, will give them twice the mileage per gallon. What's more, the prime interest rate shouldn't scare them for you can arrange loans now as much as 6 percent below prime. It is just that they fear what is in the offing."

It was a much different story with Chuck Cude, owner of Chuck's Service Station on Main Street at the railroad.

Lifting his head up from under a hood of a car he was repairing, he didn't hesitate to give his version of present conditions.

"Hell," he said, "with prices the way they are, how can anyone expect people to keep up their house payments, feed the family and buy a new car. It just can't be done."

Satisfied that the repair job on the car at hand was finished, he recalled that in the "old days when you told a fellow repairs on his car would cost about $250, he'd turn away and tell you that he'd be better off buying a new one. So a repair job was lost."

Now, with the price of cars, this no longer is the case and Crude see the repair business booming more and more each week.

After taking a breather he went on to say, "And there is no one to blame but the fellows working in the shops.

"I hesitate to say this because I was a shop worker once myself, but those fellows keep demanding more and more money and the price of the cars has to go up and up. If they hadn't demanded so much, the auto industry woould not be in the shape it is in."

The story was much the same at Ted and Ed's Place on Dunn Street where Morris Stefhetv has taken over.

"Our repair business is showing increases each week. We were in a slump for awhile, but business has picked up rapidly and the future looks even brighter.

"Even though repair costs are increasing, it still seems better to most people than to buy a new car at present prices and it looks as though they won't be getting any lower."

As he completed his comments on the repair business booming while the sale of new cars is dropping, La Riche commented:"To me it is rather silly to spend a few hundred dollars in repairs, even in my own shop. It is like throwing money away. After all, when your car is repaired, it still is an old car that never will be worth any more. It will be using twice the gas a new car will use. And that saving, alone, should make the purchase of a new car worthwhile."

Meanwhile, the repair work keeps booming even in his own shop, though most of it is servicing customers' cars.

But the survey proved beyond doubt that the auto industry still has some healthy segments.

Summer fun

The summer reading club program operated by Dunning-Hough Memorial Library of Plymouth ended recently with a special time of outdoor activities in Kellogg Park. After the time of games and contests outdoors, the club officially ended its summer season with an awards program to honor those youngsters who completed their reading assignments. In the picture above Katie Padilla, 8, works her way through the first set of obstacles in an obstacle course. In the photo at left, Catherine Kenealy, 6, takes her turn at the bean bag throw while others wait their turn and watch closely to see if there is any special tricks involved.

In 2 peninsulas

State has a wealth of nature areas

Michigan's nature areas offer both wilderness adventure in northern forests and family fun amidst acres of native and exotic flowers, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan. They're an easy drive from most cities.

Vehicles are not allowed in the Sand Lakes Quiet Area, eight miles west of Kalkaska. Some 15 miles of pathways beckon hikers past more than a dozen small lakes buffered from civilization by hardwood and pine forests. Camping is available along the trail or at one organized facility.

Two nature areas pay tribute to Michigan's once plentiful tracts of white pine.

Hartwick Pines State Park near Grayling is a 9,00-acre wilderness preserve containing the largest stand virgin white pine in Lower Michigan. It also offers camping, an interpretive center and nature trails, including one for the blind.

At the tip of the Keweenaw Penisula in Upper Michigan, Estivant Pines near Copper Harbor holds 200 acres of virgin timber crossed by hiking trails and containing Michigan's tallest white pine.

THE SENEY National Wildlife Refuge is in the eastern U.P. This 96,000-acre wilderness tract offers a self-guided auto tour with close-up views of Canada geese, mink, ducks, deer and bald eagles.

Southern Lower Michigan's many garden and nature centers offer views of native flowers and animals as well as many tropicalplant collections.

In the Irish Hills, Hidden Lake Gardens near Tipton has a plant conservatory for tropical and desert varieties as well as five miles of trails over 620 acres. It is managed by Michigan State University.

Michigan offers such things as botanical gardens, bird sanctuaries, hiking trails through virgin forests and wildlife preserves containing geese, mink, ducks, deer and bald eagles.

Augusta is home of the famous Kellogg Bird Sanctuary, also managed by MSU. It features waterfowl display ponds and shelters along beautiful Gull Lake. The grounds were the former estate of ceral king W. K. Kellogg.

Near Ann Arbor, the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens has more than 700 plants and trees native to he state as well as some species from Africa and South America.

Begun in 1899 by the founder of Dow Chemical Co., Midland's Dow Gardens contains more than 200 varieties of plants.

Sen. Faust proposes that legislators run library

The state Senate education committee will hold a public hearing today on bills which would put the state library under the control of the Legislature.

The library is now under the control of the state Department of Education.

The bills' sponsor, Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, said that the library has deteriorated and putting it under the Legislature will ensure maintaining a desired level of service.

The library, Faust said, "must continually fight for its share of the Department of Education budget, a factor that has contributed to declining services, half-day business hours and deterioriation of our once proud Law Library."

The hearing will begin at 2 p.m. today, Aug. 6, in Room 226 of the Student Center Building at Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive, Ann Arbor.

Another public hearing is scheduled for Aug. 13 in Marquette.

Officials seek answer to doggone problems

By Teri Banas
staff writer

Plymouth Township officials are getting dog tired of the growing number of unlicensed canines on the loose.

Township Treasurer Joe West says there's some 1,200 unlicensed dogs in Plymouth Tow-ship, which is more than in previous years.

Animal control officer Steven Rapson added at a public meeting recently that as many as 90 percent of the dogs he finds roaming around do not have dog tags.

In recent weeks the issue twice has reached the Township Board for its direction toward a possible solution. The board then was faced with finding some method of getting more township dogs licensed, so that if they stray, they could be returned home.

Presently, roaming animals are boarded at a local veterinarian clinic for up to four days. If the owner does not claim the dog within that time, it's destroyed.

Costs for boarding an animal run $5.50 a day. Since January, the township has spent $1,284 on this expense.

A study made by Rapson on how neighboring communities deal with strays was delivered to the Township Board last week, but it provided no satisfactory answers.

"I DON'T think any of these communities have effective answers," said trustee Barbara Lynch.

The upshot was that Township Hall soon will begin mailing notices to dog owners asking that they please register the family pooch.

There was some discussion at the time to possibly stiffen fines for violators. But trustees later decided that probably would not bring about a surge in new license requests.

Somewhat stymied himself, Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said the present licensing and boarding procedure should remain untouched.

"My personal feeling is to do it the way we're doing it now," he said. "It's a service."

"Actually, it's for the residents that we do this (require licensing)," responded Lynch. She added that without a license, a stray dog cannot directly be returned to its owner.

Rapson said his job would be easier if the dogs did wear identification, so that he immediately could take them home and avoid impounding them.

According to the latest township dog census, there are 2,800 here, of which 1,600 are registered.

A one-year dog license costs $5, and one can be bought for that price between December and May. After June, the price goes up to $7 to include a $2 late charge.

If an owner retrieves his or her stray pet from the vet clinic, the dog is released only when a license is purchased and the boarding cost paid.

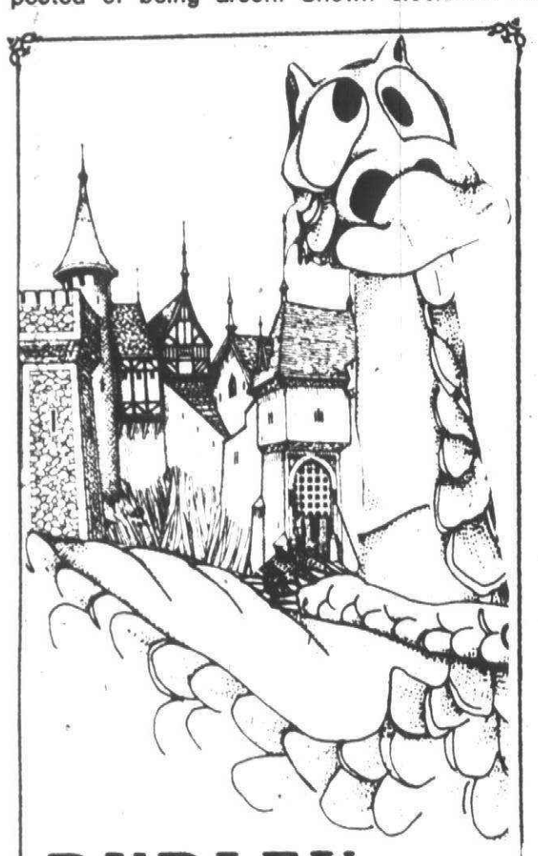

Licenses can be bought at Township Hall, 36251 Ann Arbor Road. A valid rabbies vacination record must be shown at that time.

Rapson says 27 township dogs have been destroyed since January. He also patrols in the city of Plymouth, under a shared muncipal service pact between the two communities.

Teens arrested for beer theft

Three 17-year-old youths were charged by Plymouth Police with resisting arrest following the theft of a 12-pack of beer and four sandwiches from a Plymouth party store early last Friday.

A Plymouth police officer who ordered the youths to stop was pushed into Tonquish Creek and his pistol fired into the creek bank, police said.

Two of the youths also were charged with larceny under $100, a misdemeanor, and one was charged with a third count of assaulting a police officer, another misdemeanor.

The three, residents of Plymouth or Canton, will be arraigned tomorrow in the 35th District Court.

Police said they believe two of the youths took the beer and sandwiches from the Lawson's Party Store on Penniman and ran out of the store. The pair met a third youth on the walkway along Tonquish Creek, behind Tonquish Creek Manor, officers said.

PLYMOUTH police officer Thomas Zedan saw them and ordered them to halt. At this time, one youth pushed Zedan, who fell 10 feet into the creek. Zedan's gun accidentally went off as he fell, firing one shot into the creek's bank, police said.

Meanwhile, a second officer, Thomas Bowling, arrived at the walkway and also ordered the boys to stop running. He fired a warning shot but the boys did not stop, officers said.

Lt. Dan Carpenter said one of the three boys was found by police a half-hour later at a friend's home on Penniman, where police discovered his car parked. A store clerk had described the car.

The boy was told to meet with Carpenter later that morning with his two friends and they complied, he said.

Boy run over at home

A toddler was listed in fair condition at St. Joseph-Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, yesterday after he was accidentally hit by his father's van Tuesday.

Casey Cook, 20 months old, was on the driveway at the Auburn home address about 5 p.m. Tuesday when his father, David Cook, accidentally hit him while backing out of the driveway.

Plymouth Rescue workers said Casey was conscious all the way to the hospital.

"He was hanging onto his daddy and cried, which is a good sign," said one rescue worker.

Rescue workers say the young boy may have a broken left leg, as well as cuts to his face and body.

Former cook now a success at selling chickens

Can a cook in a fast-food fried chicken restaurant work his way up and purchase the business in less then six years?

This Cinderella-type story took place in Plymouth when Joe Langkabel, cook-turned-franchisee, purchased the Famous Recipe firm on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth.

At age 25 he now is an experienced restauranteur considering expansion into other communities.

Owning a business is a position many persons twice his age would envy.

Langkabel credits much of his success to his large and loyal family.

The many Langkabels help keep the restaurant running in busy periods.

His sister Jo Anne is the manager and another sister, Ruth, helps mix cole slaw, cook chicken, run the register, and even takes her turn inside the Famous Chicken costume during specials.

Langkabel's brother, Leigh, also helps out whenever he can and expects to be named assistant manager when he gets out of school.

Brother Paul and sister Connie, and even Langkabel's parents, also have helped out at various times since he took over the store.

Langkabel even met his wife, Irene, at the restaurant as she started there as a packer while he still was a cook. Today she is the store's bookeeper.

But his ownership involves more than a story of family involvement. Since taking over Plymouth Famous Recipe, his sales volume has risen steadily — by 333 percent in four years for an average annual sales increase of slightly more than 80 percent.

"I WAS astonished, as young as I was," he says. "All we did was clean up the store a bit, worked at providing better service, and kept up the quality of an already good product."

Last year the Plymouth franchise made the list of Famous Recipe's top 20 stores.

"We went heavily into advertising, with the specials we have. And we rely a lot on word of mouth."

Last year the Lankabels ran a 2-for-1 special and the line to the store backed up down the road.

During January and February, the restaurant's slowest months, $1 dinner coupons in the newspaper kept things hopping with sales averaging about 200 dinners a day.

"I'd known the fast food business since I was a kid, so when the opportunity came up to buy this sotre, because the previous owner was retiring, I took the chance.

"We are just waiting to get the capital together to start another store."

ENGINEER SPEAKS

Georganne Ehlert of Plymouth was a speaker at a Women in Engineering workshop held recently at Michigan Technological University in Houghton.

The week-long workshop presented nine areas of engineering and technology to high school women from across the country.

Each engineering exposure session involved a lecture by a female engineer on a career in her field, followed by a laboratory experience involving work typical of that engineering discipline.

Ms. Ehlert, an engineer at Howmet Turbine Components Corp., spoke on her work at Howmet, types of jobs available in metallurgical engineering, training requirements, and advancement in her field.

2 ARE PROMOTED

Two area residents have been promoted by Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

Morris began his banking career in the bank's branch department in 1962, moving to the operations department in 1963. In 1966 he became a data processing supervisor, four years later an operations analyst, and in 1972 a space utilization planner.

Seavitt will be responsible for cash management assistance to commercial customers. Before joining Manufacturers as a corporate services representative in 1979 he was affiliated with Detroitbank Corp. Seavitt earned his bachelor of arts degree from Eastern Michigan University.

WITZBURG A MANAGER

Jeffrey M. Witzburg of Canton Township has been named a manager in the management services department of the Detroit office of Arthur Young & Co., the international public accounting firm.

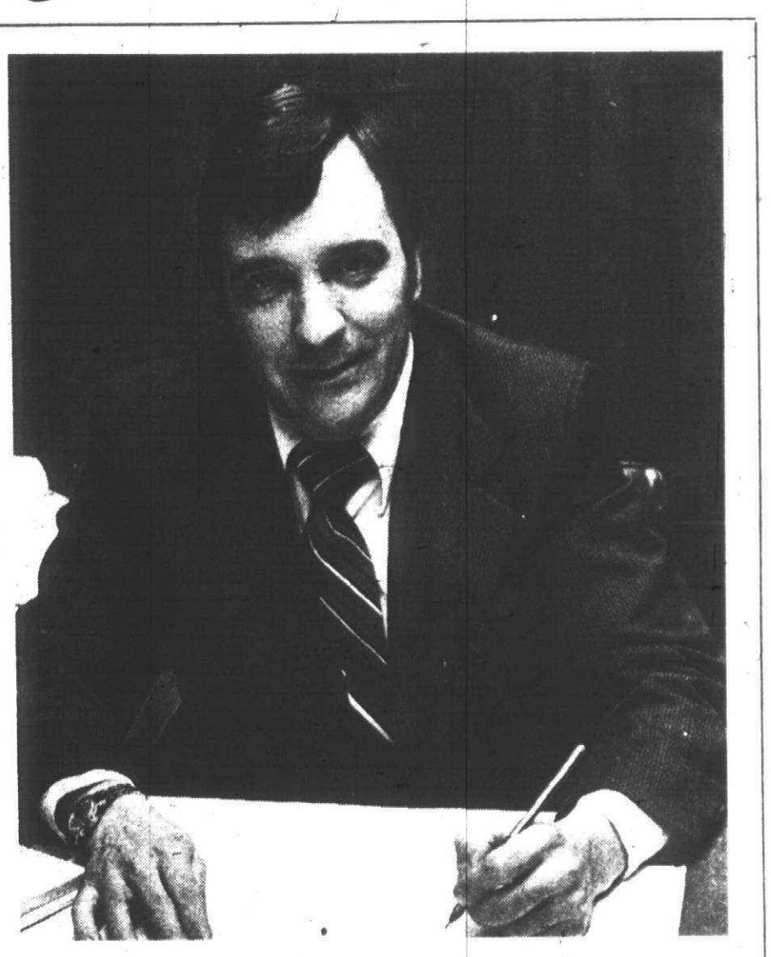

Witzburg is a consultant specializing in software development and in the application of operations research techniques.

He joined the firm in 1980, and is a 1971 graduate of Tufts University with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering and a 1974 graduate of M.I.T. with a master of science degree in management.

KAYE PROMOTED

Richard A. Kaye of Plymouth has been appointed to officer status as a branch officer for Detroit Bank & Trust, principal subsidiary of Detroitbank Corp.

Kaye joined the bank in 1966 as an administrative trainee and has held positions of increasing responsibility since then. He earned a bachelor of business administration degree in 1966 from Eastern Michigan University.

Clearing the air

Clean Air Technology of 595 Forest, a Plymouth-based firm specializing in dust-free environmental facilities, is playing an important role in a Southfield Public Schools' project. The school district, in compliance with federal requirements, must remove all asbestos-containing materials used in the construction of Southfield's 15 schools. Asbestos, in some forms, can cause serious lung diseases, including cancer. Frank X. Austin of Plymouth, president of Clean Air Technology, designed and manufactured the air filtration system and vacuum system being used by the contractor in removing the asbestos materials. Both the air filtration unit and vacuum system use filters to remove the asbestos particles, resulting in an asbestos-free environment. Southfield is the first school district in the state to comply with the federal requirements.

EDC to finance township industry

A $1 million industrial revenue bond has been approved for sale to help finance a new factory in Plymouth Township.

The $1 million in bonds were approved last week by the Economic Development Corporation (EDC) of Wayne County.

At the same time, the county EDC approved a bond sale of $7.2 million for Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc., to help finance the construction of a new cable television network for five communities in eastern Wayne County.

The new Plymouth Township facility will be built by MTI Corporation in the industrial park on Five Mile Road, between Sheldon and Beck roads, in western Plymouth Township.

MTI Corporation of Paramus, N.J., plans to construct a 30,000 square-foot manufacturing and office facility in the township.

MTI, which is part of an international conglomerate, makes precision measuring instruments for sale worldwide and has other facilities in New Jersey, Chicago, Los Angeles and Dallas.

The firm has reported it will retain a dozen workers at its Plymouth Township facility and will add at least 14 new employees once its plant construction and expansion program are complete.

The EDC of Wayne County was authorized by the Michigan Legislature to issue tax-exempt revenue bonds to keep jobs and to create new jobs in Michigan by making it possible for existing businesses to expand and new businesses to relocate in the state.

To date the EDC's revenue bond projects have resulted in the retention or creation of more than 400 jobs in Wayne County. Also, about 1,200 construction workers were employed through the projects the EDC has sponsored.

Completion of all the agency's current projects will result in the creation or retention of nearly 4,000 jobs in Wayne County. To date, the EDC has issued more than $17 million in revenue bonds.

Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc., a Michigan corporation headquartered in Grosse Pointe, expects to employ about 30 workers as a result of its development.

Jeannette Schryer marks silver year with agency

By W.W.Edgar
staff writer

Little did she realize at the time, but a chance remark made at the 25th reunion of her 1936 Plymouth High School class has given Jeannette Schryer a desk and a job in a Plymouth insurance agency for the past 20 years.

At the time of the reunion in 1961, she was the mother of four children and, told her classmate, Mary Wagenschutz, that she would like to return to work and was available for any kind of office work.

In a short time she received a phone call from Ray Fisher and before she realized it she was back at a desk. Now, after 20 years, she still is on the job, and even though the name of the company has changed to the C.L. Finlan Agency, she is delighted with the role she plays in the insurance business.

" It's funny how those things happen," she said at the desk of the new building on Main Street, "and even though I am now old enough to retire, I have no thought of leaving. I like the job too much."

The mother of the four children, two of them boys who graduated from universities — one from the University of Michigan and one from Michigan State University — she loves the insurance business because of the many types of policies and claims.

"And I have to type all the claims and benefits of all kinds of cases."

AS SHE RECALLED her business career, Mrs. Schryer revealed that upon graduation in 1936 she went to work as a bookkeeeper for Art Eckles, then owner of the Eckles Coal Company.

"I was with him seven years and then for the next 17 I kept busy raising four children. With them well along in their lives I decided I'd like to return to office work.

Jeannette Schryer

"That's when I made the remark to Mary Wagenschutz. It was one of the best remarks I ever have made . . . I sure have enjoyed my 20 years here.

"I never have done anything here but desk work. I never tried to be an agent or attempt to sell insurance to any one. But because of the many differeent cases that come up from time to time, the position is most intersting."

She especially likes her role now since her husband of 38 years, Howard, has retired from his position as a truck driver for the Rex Company, and takes only odd assignments at the Plymouth Lumber Company.

"The job keeps me active and life goes on merrily with him working, if only part-time."

Throughout her business career — and she proudly states that she took every business course there was when she attended high school — she has seen the company name change several times.

When she went to work for Roy Fisher, it was the Fisher Insurance Agency. Then, it became the Fisher-Wingard-Fortney agency.

That company operated for several years, and then, in 1978, it mrerged with C. L. Finlan. When Russell Hoisington took over the agency and built a new building on Main Street, she went along.

And now, after 20 years and a chance remark at a high school reunion, she still enjoys the insurance business.

Dentist's guide now available

A guide is now available for dentists who are considering computerizing their office.

The guide is being distributed by John Oviatt, director of marketing for Dental Office Computer Systems which is in Suite 102 at 377 Amelia Street in Plymouth.

"The Dentist's Guide to In-Office Computers" is aimed at dentists who want to make the right decision about computerizing their office.

Written especially for the dental profession, the new book is available free of charge from Dental Office Computer Systems, Inc. — a Michigan supplier of computer hardware and software.

"Our dental system consultants, who talk to dentists and practice administrators on a regular basis, felt there was a great need for this type of information because it would help eliminate much of the confusion which exists," said Raymond F. Kaminski, president of Dental Office Computer Systems (DOCS).

"The dental community now has something that is understandable to help them make intelligent computer decisions."

The 45-page booklet discusses information such as the advantages of having a computer, how to finance one, purchasing versus leasing, hardware components, importance of software, how to avoid installation and maintenance problems, and tips on selecting a supplier.

The guide also contains a unique questionnaire which will help the dentist compare various systems.

The guide also tackles specific problems in a dental group where a computer can help improve cash flow, provide better patient service, save administrative and management time, and retain a first-rate office staff.

The book outlines the everyday clinic tasks which computers can handle, added Kaminski, and also explains how they computers can be used to answer questions about the dental practice by providing analyses of production, services rendered, billings and payments, and revenues.

Charter can keep sheriff's spending in line — Ward

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Sheriff William Lucas would have a tough time asking a court to increase his department's funding if voters adopt a proposed Wayne County charter Nov. 3.

So says George Ward, D-Detroit, who presided over the state's first county charter commission for the last seven months.

"We have improved dramatically the management of Wayne County," Ward told a news conference Monday.

Lucas' political troops put heavy pressure on the 27-member charter unit to get 14 votes giving the sheriff a broad grant of power. Lucas has been in a running battle with the county legislative body over funding and staffing of his department.

WARD, HOWEVER, said two other provisions of the charter gives the proposed county chief executive officer (CEO) and Board of Commissioners a better chance of winning those battles.

First, he said, the financial article provides: "An appropriation contained in the appropriation ordinance constitutes a determination by the County Commission that the appropriation is a serviceable level of funding."

Thus, said Ward, a court would have no room to make an independent determination of what is "a serviceable level of funding." The language was taken from court rulings, Ward said, adding:

"That ought to keep everyone within the budget."

Second, the charter's language makes the sheriff a charter officer, he said, because "the charter purports to create these offices."

In court, Lucas had argued he was a "constitutional" officer whose position was mandated in the Michigan Constitution.

Generally in law, a constitution prevails over a legislative statute, and the statute prevails over a local charter. Thus, the charter appears to reduce Lucas' legal status two pegs.

LUCAS' TROOPS won a bare majority to give him a broad grant of mandated duties in the charter.

It assigns the sheriff the powers and duties provided by state law. It also allows "additional powers and duties" to be assigned him in any reorganization plan proposed by the CEO.

"The department shall provide patrol services for the county parks system and assure the safety of county parks," the charter said in a major victory for Lucas.

The charter further allows the sheriff to make contracts to serve other units of government (cities, townships) within the county, but makes those contracts subject to approval by the Board of Commissioners.

SUBURBAN units of government, often harshly critical of the drain commission in public hearings, should approve of a charter provision entitled "Coordination of Road and Public Works Functions," said Ward.

It requires the CEO to "coordinate the project activities of the departments of Drain Commissioner, Road Commission and Public Works which affect county roads. The Road Commission and the director of Public Works shall submit an annual project plan to the CEO six months before the next fiscal year and shall notify the CEO of any change in the project plan within 30 days."

"We heard horror story after horror story," Ward said of the suburban hearings. The drain office would cut up a county road for one purpose, then a few weeks later the Road Commission would cut it up for a second purpose.

Wayne County would still have three public works agencies if the charter passes, he said, but "the charter requires that the three agencies work in unison, not at cross-purposes."

Ward said a CEO probably would not want to merge the Public Works Department, under his control, with the Drain Commission office, which by law must be separately elected, because such a move would reduce the CEO's authority.

VOTERS WILL face two charter proposals Nov. 3. They are identical except for the final page. Ward did not know how they would be labeled on the ballot.

One provides for an independently elected CEO, like a city mayor or the Oakland County executive. The other provides for a CEO appointed by the County Commission, like a city manager or school superintendent.

Appeals court won't enjoin Lucas on pay

The State Court of Appeals declined last week to rule on Wayne County's request for an injunction aimed at halting over-budget spending by Sheriff William Lucas.

Lucas continues to pay his road patrol and investigation unit, although the County Board of Commissioners struck it from the budget and ordered it disbanded.

The county board sought the injunction from visiting Circuit Judge Harvey Moes of Hillsdale, but he declined to rule. At this point, the county went to the appeals court. A county source said the county may appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Moes' decision is awaited in Lucas' suit against the county seeking restoration of the road patrol and some staff positions. Final written arguments are due this week.

The board is holding off a move to remove Lucas from office for budget violations and failure to post a personal performance bond as ordered. Lucas is under subpoena to appear before the board to explain his actions. A two-thirds vote of the board could remove Lucas from office.

Park's demise sparks flood of memories

Click, clack, click, clack.

I stood in the rain straining to hear that once familiar sound. Looming before me was a memory soon to be wiped away by changing times.

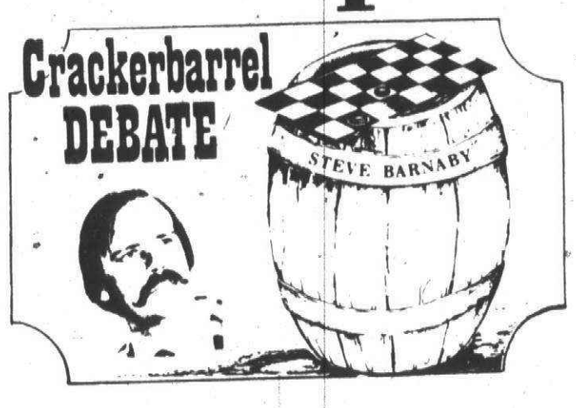

Jeez, how I loved to ride the roller coaster at Edgewater Park. To be sure, it is a relic with its wooden struts and rickety cars.

But for thousands of us, Edgewater's coaster was, and is, the supreme coaster ride. Forget the fancy stuff — the loops and weaves of the metal monsters at the big new parks.

Every thrill, every scare was built into that antique back in 1928. From the clicking chain up the first steep grade to the stomach-flipping dive down the first hill to the swooping turn th[illegible]ade a rider feel as if the car would plummet off the track into the parking lot down below.

And how about the legendary low-hanging beam where it was rumored legions of daredevils were decapitated when standing at the wrong moment?

Untrue, of course, but it sure did make for one heck of a scary ride.

It takes a lot for a grown man to get up extra early on Monday morning to pay his last respects to a memory — especially when it's raining.

BUT AFTER READING that the old amusement park was going to be demolished to make way for an apartment complex I had to take one last look.

Now, don't get me wrong. The last thing I want to be is sappy about this whole thing. After all, an amusement park is just an amusement park.

I just thought it would be fun to take a peak. And it was.

In those few minutes all the memories came back as I looked at the deserted park.

Remember the Bird Bath Club? I was a member along with thousands of other kids. Good old Soupy Sales was its leader. On designated Saturdays Bird Bath members could get in free of charge and ride all day.

Of course, the highlight was the appearance by Soupy.

How about nickel and dime day? Now that really tells the story of inflation in America. For a nickel or dime on certain Saturdays you could ride your favorite ride which usually cost a quarter.

Teen-agers delighted at the frequent visits by disc jockeys who would broadcast from the park — Lee Allen, Dave Prince, Tom Clay and, of course, Robin Seymour.

We used to hitchhike to Edgewater, all the way from Greenfield and Joy Road to Berg and Grand River. We'd walk from Grand River to the park. In those days, Berg was just a dirt road. Edgewater was on the outskirts of civilization — at least we thought so.

TODAY, of course, all that has changed. The magic of Edgewater has been tarnished by the gleam of the big parks in Ohio with their super rides.

Still, it seems strange people would drive hundreds of miles to ride a roller coaster, when one of the best was right in the area.

Well, come September the coaster and the rest of the park will be just a memory. But that's all right. It was great fun. And it was fun to remember even if I had to stand in the rain to do it.

Drill for oil? Don't shout 'no' so fast

Michigan faces some soul-searing decisions as it becomes clearer that our beautiful peninsulas have oil.

The case against allowing drilling is fairly easy to make, and my friends the environmentalists are already at it.

If the oil is located under the land, it will turn up in a place like the Pigeon River Country, where there are elk and the world's only known nesting habitat of the Kirtland's warbler. Have you ever heard a bull elk calling at night? Have you ever spotted a yellow-and-black creature you were pretty sure was the Kirtland's warbler? I have, and appreciate the argument.

If the oil is located in the Great Lakes, then we could really run into trouble. Big as they are, the Great Lakes are a fraction of the size of the oceans, where there have been drills — and spills.

Unlike the oceans, the Great Lakes are a source of drinking water and may well be our industrial ace-in-the-hole when it's discovered the Sunbelt water resouces are expensive and erratic.

Moreover, the Great Lakes drain very, very slowly, and any pollution will be with us several generations, at least.

HAVING ACKNOWLEDGED the potency of the environmental arguments against oil drilling in Michigan, I now join the side of the devils and say we had better look at the prospect again.

Any political entity with any kind of energy resource seems to be sitting pretty these days, whether the resource be oil, gas, coal or thermal. Capital is mobile, people can be mobile, but natural resources are not.

Consider the tax implications alone. Michigan individuals and businesses pay some hefty, though not intolerable taxes, but we have to look a bit enviously at some of our southern and western neighbors. Random items:

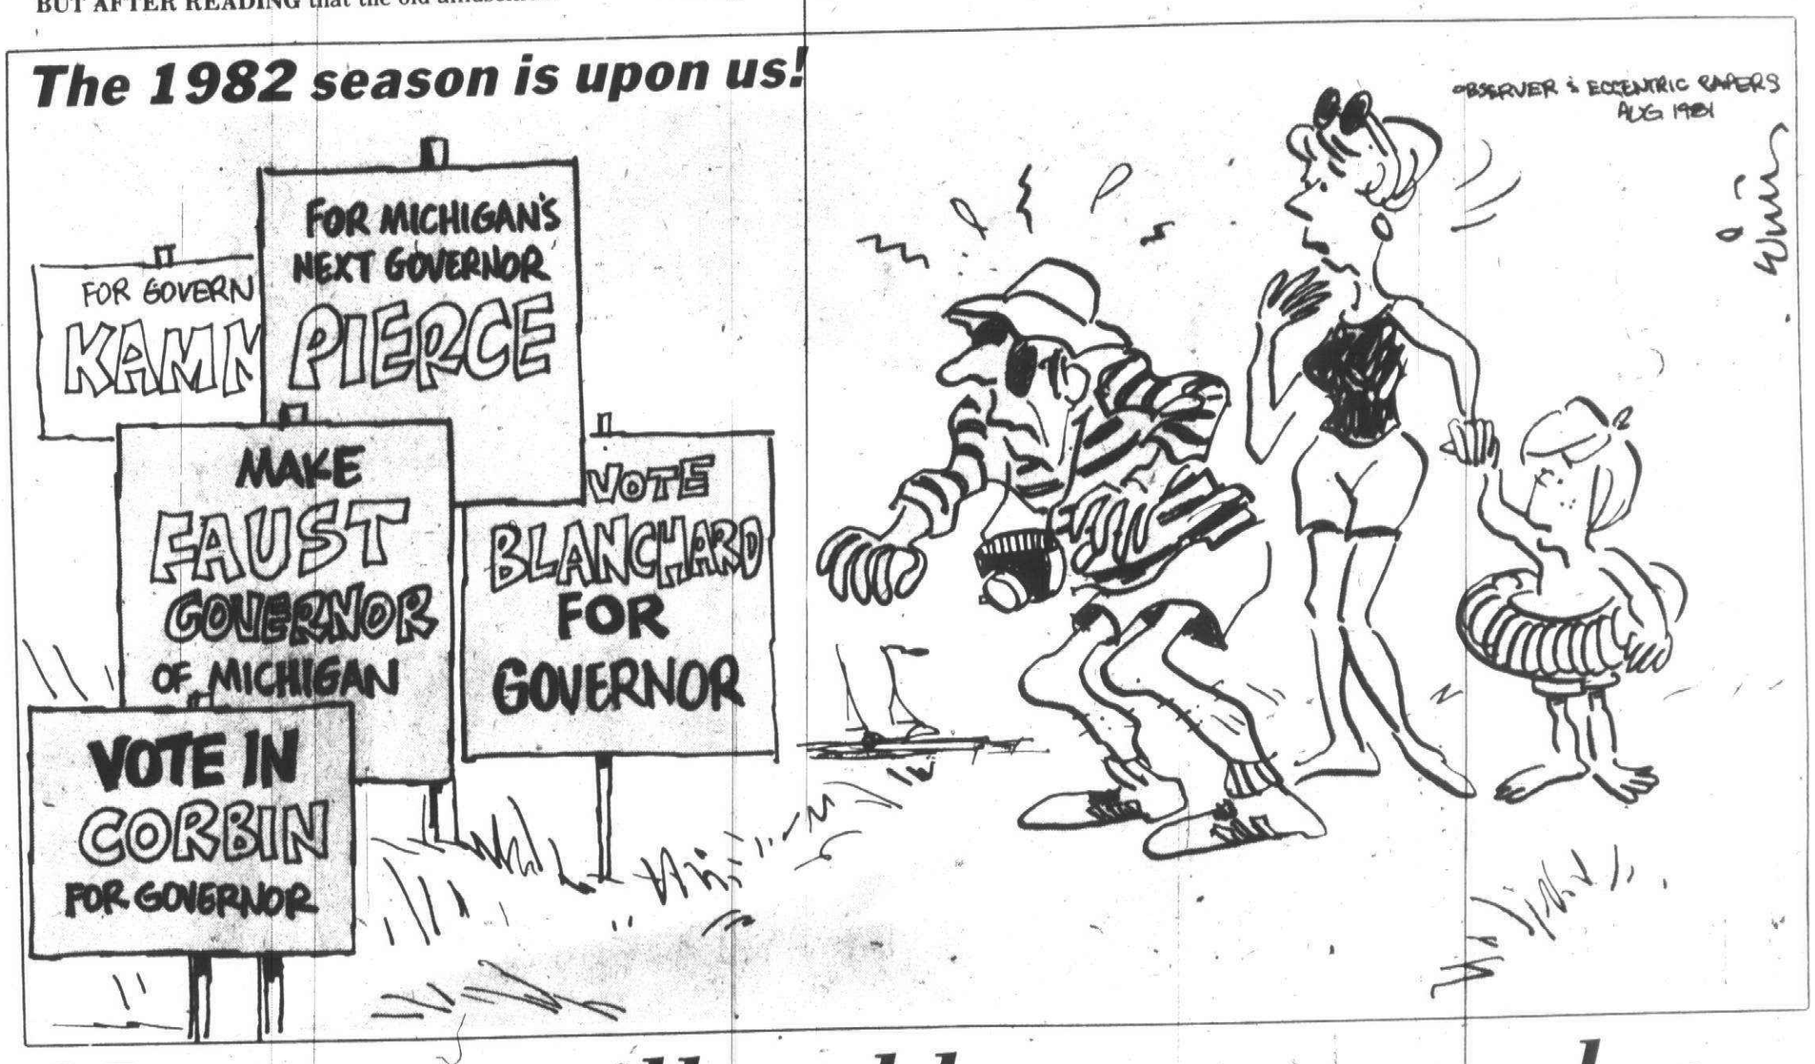

- Texas, according to a National Public Radio broadcast, covers 25 percent of its state budget with severance taxes on energy. While local community colleges in Michigan are charging around $20 a credit hour tuition, Texans pay $4 per credit hour, according to some of my friends in that line of work.
- New Mexico, its newspapers report, has a budget topping the $1 billion mark for the first time. Last year, when Michigan's governor was telling everybody in mid-stream to make budget cuts, New Mexico ran up a $300 million surplus. This year its governor recommended a $205 million package of property, business, sales and income tax reductions. He did not, however, recommend cutting severance taxes on energy sources.
- While we in southeast Michigan pay higher and higher water and sewer rates to provide tertiary treatment at the Detroit sewage treatment plant, Laramie, Wyo. is paying for its local share of a new sewage treatment plant with severance tax returns on coal and oil. While Detroit is closing libraries some suburbs which should have them aren't building them, Laramie is pumping an additional $80,000 in severance tax money into its library.

YOU MAY NOW appreciate the beauty of severance taxes: your own citizenry pays the same rate as outside buyers, of course, but the bulk of the dollars come from the outside.

Your area can provide public services, train people for jobs and induce new industries to locate in your bailiwick either (a.) by taxing your own people; or, (b.) taxing people from the outside. Clearly, you can win more votes and lure more industry if you employ the latter method.

Michigan will richly deserve its continued recession if we automatically and continually shriek "nay!" whenever anyone mentions drilling for oil here.

The 1982 season is upon us!

Marijuana: illegal but very popular

Nick Sharkey

A group of suburban doctors gets together once a week to unwind after a day of surgery. Soon, out come some pre-rolled marijuana cigarettes, and the doctors all light up.

This scene is repeated at social events in all suburbs. People from all walks of life — even professionals like doctors, lawyers and accountants — regularly take part in an activity prohibited by law.

Let's get one point straight: I'm not talking about people smoking marijuana while performing their working duties. I've never observed that in this area. But I have seen the marijuana smoking occurring regularly among people in the most esteemed professions.

This also is not intended as a defense of pot smoking. I smoke neither pot nor cigarettes and seldom drink alcohol. I think all are harmful to a person's health.

On the other hand, I am not comfortable living my life wearing blinders. Newspapers have a responsibility to tell people what is going on, not merely to report the news people would like to know. And whether people like it or not, extensive marijuana smoking is going on among adults in our communities.

I JUST MISSED the period of heavy drug use when I went through college, and my knowledge of the subject was limited. I assumed marijuana smoking was bad because many people said so.

One of my first assignments as a young Army officer was to teach a class on drug abuse. In preparation for the class, I searched for empirical tests proving that the effects of smoking illegal marijuana were more harmful than the effects of drinking legal alcohol. To make a long story short, I couldn't find any such evidence.

The thrust of the class that I taught was: Don't smoke marijuana because there are many state and local laws which prohibit its use. I knew that was lame, but that's all I could honestly say.

Since then, I've had many conversations with friends who smoke marijuana. They maintain that marijuana doesn't damage the organs of the body as does alcohol. They also say they don't have next-morning hangovers as they do with alcohol.

An argument often raised against marijuana is that it leads to the use of other, more harmful drugs such as cocaine and heroin. Yet no scientific research has proven this.

Another argument is that if it became legal, many more people, including children, would smoke. No reasonable adult favors increased use of marijuana among children. But again, there's no conclusive evidence this would result.

When you talk privately to most police officials, they will admit they are perplexed about enforcing marijuana laws. In some "progressive" Michigan cities like East Lansing and Ann Arbor, marijuana smoking is often done in public. A police chief once candidly told me, "Marijuana enforcement is not among my top priorities." It doesn't take much sophistication to understand what he meant.

As I said, I am not arguing that marijuana smoking is healthy. Studies which are now being conducted will probably prove that it is harmful. But I'd be surprised if they demonstrated that marijuana smoking is any more harmful than the legal substances of cigarettes and alcohol.

WE LIVE in a society which is hypocritical in other ways. In a state where legalized gambling is prohibited, newspapers regularly publish point spreads of upcoming football games and the bookies' odds of the next big prize fight.

Maybe some day someone will figure out how the state can raise revenue by legalizing marijuana. Look at what happened to the numbers racket. State officials picked a new name ("Daily Lottery") and started collecting money for a previously illegal activity. In some states alcohol can only be purchased at state stores, thereby putting more revenue in the state coffers.

If government officials can make money from marijuana, maybe smoking it will someday become respectable.

Postage increase is such a little thing

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

The spiral in prices has made it almost impossible for young folks to purchase homes and made eating out a costly venture, but inflation has not been without some smiles along the way.

Most of the populace is calloused toward the rising cost of new autos and the labor charges when work is being done on their homes or on any equipment.

But the other day at our luncheon table, the protest centered on one of the smallest price increases — the proposed addition of two cents to first-class mail.

THE PROTEST was made seriously by a diner who voiced the opinion that the government must be in dire need if a mere letter had a charge of 20 cents when the price not too long ago was a mere two pennies.

The chuckle came when the protester laid down a 25 percent tip for the waitress and thought nothing of it. But his protest of the proposed postage increase stimulated some pointed discussion. The members of the Doom and Gloom Club finally agreed that the increase, if put into effect, still left mail one of the cheapest things in today's economy.

Mind you, the chap who was doing the protesting was complaining of the extra two cents, and yet the tip he left was more than double the customary percentage.

The Stroller couldn't help asking, "If you sent a message by a delivery boy and he had to travel only two blocks, what would you tip him?"

He admitted he probably would tip the messenger more than the cost of a 20-cent stamp. And it is that way with all types of mail. To The Stroller, mailing charges always have been the cheapest thing in sight.

JUST THE OTHER day, he had cause to ask charges for sending an ordinary letter to a friend in New Zealand. The postal clerk weighed the letter and very calmly said, "That will be 40 cents."

Can you imagine? An air mail letter going halfway around the world for only 40 cents. And then some folks holler because of a proposed two-cent raise on first class mail bringing the domestic price to 20 cents.

On the same day that the diner protested the proposed increase in postal rates, he didn't say a word about, or didn't even notice, the price of the roll he had just eaten going up a nickel. He evidently took it for granted. But two cents more for a letter was almost unbearable to him. There are times when rises in rates are worthy of a protest. The Stroller had one such case several weeks ago when he had a new chain put on a garden mower.

When he looked at the bill, he just had to laugh. The cost of the chain and a small gear was $6.28, and labor was $25.

In cases like these, there is little use to protest. Labor costs are far beyond what seems justified. And so it is with many other services.

But the proposed raise in the price of first class mail from 18 cents to 20 is not worth a complaint. Where else can you get such service for so little money?

Photojournalist catches essence of an event

Photographs, especially news photos, have a tremendous impact on our everyday lives. We tend to take our newspapers and weekly magazines for granted, but strip them of photographs, and their visual impact would be sorely reduced.

Throughout history, photographs have greatly affected our lives. Abraham Lincoln, for example, attributed his first election as president to wide circulation of a Matthew Brady portrait dispelling rumors that he was a rough backwoodsman.

Joe Rosenthal's World War II flag-raising on Iwo Jima was the inspiration for a high bronze statue in Washington, the only such momument ever constructed from a photograph. Many photos from Vietnam had such strong visual impact that they helped stir up the anti-war movement that changed society.

BEING A photojournalist demands a special knack.

A writer uses words, phrases, sentences and ultimately stories to convey ideas and observations. A photographer, on the other hand, has a visual language at his disposal to share what he observes.

But you don't have to be employed by a newspaper or wire service to be a photojournalist. Pulitzer Prizes have been awarded to amateurs who just "happened on the scene" at the right moment. Furthermore, recording the events of a happening in your own family or community are really of a photojournalistic nature.

A photojournalist, and you as well, must rise above being a mere snapshooter. A photojournalist must develop an instinctive insight, a sensitivity to news events and the ability to communicate through his photography.

His pictures should be direct and straightforward. They may show tragedy, happiness or emotion. They should capture the essence of an event and translate it into human terms that the viewer will appreciate.

ANTICIPATION is a key ingredient to good photojournalism. Be prepared by having your camera loaded at all times.

©1981, Monte Nagler. His photographs continue on exhibt in the summer group show in Halsted Gallery, Birmingham. The gallery, which is at 560 N. Woodward, can be phoned at 644-8284 for further information.

A high point at last year's Republican National Convention was Ronald Reagan's welcoming former President Gerald Ford to the podium; vice-presidential nominee George Bush is at left. Monte Nagler used a 400 mm telephoto to snap this photojournalistic scene from the audience — not the press gallery.

Festival board invites everyone

To the editor:

On behalf of the Canton Country Festival Board and myself, we would like to invite everyone in the Plymouth-Canton community to come to Canton Township's Griffin Park, at Cherry Hill and Canton Center roads, for three days of fun and excitement Aug. 7, 8,9.

The Festival begins at 4 p.m. Friday with the Canton Jaycees "Steak-Out" followed by an evening of dancing under the stars with a well-known live band.

Saturday, you can have breakfast served to you by the Canton Rotary from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m.

More than 100 entries will be running in the five-mile run at 10 a.m. Watch the 75-unit parade at 11 a.m., the famous cow chip fling at 2 p.m., and don't forget the pet show at 4 p.m.

The firefighters start preparing their delicious spaghetti dinner at 4 p.m. It lasts until 8 p.m.

A big thank you is in order to the Canton United Council of Churches for taking time to plan a church service at 8 a.m. Sunday morning in the park.

Please plan to join us in prayer. This is a first for the Plymouth-Canton community to worship together. At noon, we again have the opportunity to enjoy the well-known chicken barbecue dinner that Canton Chamber of Commerce so expertly prepares for us each year.

These are just a few of the many events going on during the three days — not to mention the Muscular Dystrophy Baseball Tournament, the many non-profit organizations operating booths and the live entertainment for the whole family.

Again, you are invited and encouraged to bring your family and friends to the Canton Country Festival for three days of fun and games.

We do hope you will share in our celebration.

Flossie Tonda
President
Canton Country Festival Board

Pleased to see story on Beitners

To the editor:

I was very pleased to see the article "Era closes for time-honored trade" published in your paper on July 23, 1981, because it recognizes the highly distinguished service provided to the community by Fred and Bill Beitner.

In addition to nostalgia about the days of the people of craft you can trust Beitner brothers who represent the finest among the business people in our town.

I cannot tell you that they are the very best business people in our community because I do not know everyone. However, I am sure they are the tops I have a privilege to know.

Hulsing urges camp be kept

To the editor:

(An open letter to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education).

We, the undersigned staff of Hulsing Elementary School, wish to express our support for the retention of sixth grade camp for Plymouth-Canton students.

A camp experience offers learning opportunities which are different from those of the regular classroom. It provides a chance to teach such topics as survival skills, water safety, and appreciation of nature. Science education is enhanced through investigations of the surrounding environment.

Especially valuable is the opportunity to live and work cooperatively with others for a week, something many children might not otherwise experience.

Camp gives younger elementary students something special to anticipate. As one fifth grader expressed it, "Usually what we learn is all in books. Camp would give us a chance to try out some of the things we've learned."

We urge you to give our future sixth grade students this chance.

(Signed by 30 staff members of Hulsing Elementary School).

THREE SETS of twins born in a four-hour time span July 29 set a new record for Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn. The third set was born to Colleen and Brian McCormick of Spinning Wheel Drive in Canton Township.

The twin daughters are the couple's first children. Caitlin Marie, born at 12:20 p.m., weighed 7 pounds, 4 ounces, and was 20½ inches long. Erin Paige, born at 12:27 p.m., weighed 5 pounds, 8 ounces and was 19 inches long. Mother and daughters came home from the hospital Monday, "and they kept us awake all the first night," according to Colleen.

She said that because of their difference in size, they do not look alike, but the lab report at the hospital said they were identical.

The McCormicks discovered in March after an ultra sound test that they were going to have twins. "They were full-term," said Colleen. "I spent all July in bed so they would be. Their due date was Aug. 3."

Father Brian is taking two weeks off to stay home and help look after the family. "My mother is here from Dearborn Heights and if I need help after the two weeks, I know she'll come back," said Colleen. The McCormicks moved to Canton in 1978.

PAMELA Peckham, a 1968 graduate of Plymouth High School, has a new job in Florida. She is federal grants coordinator for the city of West Palm Beach.

Pamela attended Schoolcraft College and Eastern Michigan University before moving to Florida where she graduated from Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton. Before accepting her new post, she worked with the state Department of Veterans and Community Affairs in the Bureau of Housing in Tallahassee. Previously she was a planning specialist for three years with the state's Department of Environmental Regulation, also in Tallahassee.

Pamela earned her bachelor of arts degree in social welfare and master's degree in public administration at Florida Atlantic University.

Her mother, Dorothy Dieterle, who lives in Lake Pointe Village, Plymouth Township, says Pamela loves Florida.

THE WEST Suburban Stamp Club is one of the few groups that meets right on through July and August. The philatelists continue their first and third Friday of the month meetings year 'round.

Although the meetings are in the Plymouth Cultural Center, members come from surrounding communities — some from Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, Garden City, Westland, Livonia and Northville.

The juniors meet at 7:30 p.m.; there is a business meeting at 8 and the special program begins at 8:30.

The club will have its mid-summer auction tomorrow evening. The juniors are planning their own auction for the same evening.

Members will miss David Whitesell who has resigned his duties as club librarian after 5½ years.

CAROL NAIMOWICZ had a tea Wednesday night at her Beck Road home for parents interested in the Waldorf Schools concept. The Rudolph Steiner School of Ann Arbor is the closest to this area. Carol's immediate interest is in the Indian Village Waldorf School in Detroit which her daughter attends.

Waldorf parents will have a booth this weekend at the Canton Country Festival with brochures and persons to explain Waldorf education.

Hausman gardens on rose growers' tour

Members of the Huron Valley Rose Society will conclude their annual rose garden tour in Plymouth. This year's tour will be Aug. 16. After viewing their rose gardens, society members will have dinner with Mary Beth and Gary Hausman in their Carol Street home.

Gary is the rose gardener in the Hausman family. His rose season begins in mid-April when he uncovers each bush. This involves removing cones and mulch which serve as a blanket, protecting the roses from the ice, cold and winds of Michigan winters.

Each plant is pruned and fertilized. Each is examined for basal growth and new growth which should be sprouting from each pruned cane.

In mid-May, when the plants have leafed out, a regular regimen of spraying for disease and insects begins.

THE FIRST bloom, which appears anytime after June 1, is patiently awaited. From then on, the garden is a rainbow of color.

All of his roses are of the ever-blooming type and the multi-color parade continues through the summer months and on into early autumn.

The front garden is a traffic-stopper during the summer months. It contains 60 hybrid tea roses. Five bushes each of 12 varieties are represented.

They range from the deep, velvety red of Mister Lincoln to the everlasting pink quality of First Prize. Double Delight has a rich cream center with bold splashes of strawberry on the outer rows of petals. There are the pure white blooms of Pascali and the traditional favorites Peace and Tropicana. In a separate garden are the 1980 All American Rose selection winners, Love, Honor and Cherish.

The Hausman gardens have more than 100 different rose bushes.

Rose Society members also will have an opportunity to admire Hausman's dahlia gardens.

He starts his dahlia tubers inside under lights in early spring. About mid-May, when all danger of frost has past, the individual plants are set out in two large garden areas.

These plants become tall and bushy and flower from the latter part of July until the first killing frost.

This year he is growing about 65 dahlias of 45 named varieties.

A rose by any other name — would still take a lot of care.

Dahlias will bloom in Gary Hausman's garden from now until the first killing frosts. He has 45 named varieties.

LaLeche leaguers attend Chicago convention

Twenty-five years ago two women sat on a picnic bench trying to help each other with their problems in dealing with the newborn child. It all began with the unanswered questions so many mothers and fathers have on a day-to-day basis.

It was the beginning of the La Leche League which has been the source of comfort for many families just starting out. It is also the place that many families turn to when a child is born late in life.

Barb Persensky, Patty Cincotta and Imogen Pravada attended the silver anniversary convention of the league in Chicago at the end of July. They joined 7,000 parents and health leaders from 30 nations and six continents for the eighth international conference.

More than 200 speakers addressed the delegates at the four-day conference, covering all medical, nutritional and behavioral aspects of child care which are directly related to breastfeeding.

La Leche League is the only international organization whose major purpose is to help mothers who want to breastfeed their babies. Headquartered in Franklin Park, Ill., the league's mother-to-mother network now includes more than 12,000 certified leaders and 4,500 groups in 43 countries. The league has influenced an entire generation of mothers, has changed the course of infant feeding practices, and has brought about a renewed interest in the age old art of breastfeeding.

Kathy Nunez, Millie Conway and Kay Williams are just a few of the busy mothers who attend the monthly in-home meetings to help area residents with their problems. The morning meetings are always on the first Thursday with leaders in attendance and the evening meetings are on the second Tuesday, also with leaders. Each group has a library which started when the leaders donated their own books for all to share.

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

To celebrate the anniversary in this area there will be a Le Leche League picnic Aug. 12 from 10 a.m. until noon at the Plymouth Township Park in the covered pavillion. Many early and retired leaders will be there. Alumni are invited to bring their children, their own picnic lunch, and a friend who may need questions answered or just a little reassurance.

ANN AND JACK Balcom had a party recently and several special people were in attendance. Ann and John belong to a group of parents called the Holden Visiting Association. They are a parent support group for Holden Perinatal Hospital at the University of Michigan.

I had no idea that there was a need for such a group, and that the group in the Plymouth-Canton area was so large.

When there are complications at birth, the child is not reinforced with the mother's touch. The mother's need to caress — the natural bond between mother and child — is lost. Many mothers and fathers refuse to choose a name for the child for fear that the child will not survive the early hours in the incubator. Many times the mother goes home while the child remains under the hospital's close watch. The wear and tear on the family with just the travel to and from the hospital can subject the household to constant turmoil. This is not always the ?-ase but it happens more often than most people are aware.

At Holden they do encourage touching and holding as soon as possible.

If you have contact with a mother who has a bonding problem you can let the professionals from the Holden Group know about their particular dilemma. Bonding is a processthat goes on over days, weeks, months and even years, not something that occurs only in the first few critical hours of existence like most people think. This is one of the philosophies upheld by the parents.

An ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness.

Wine collection introduced to Plymouth from Plymouth

Don't be surprised if the next bottle of Zinfandel you pick up is labeled as being bottled in Plymouth.

Not Plymouth, Mich., mind you, but Plymouth, Calif.

Last week, Pat Pulkownik of Plymouth, Mich., was visited by her sister, Shirley Sobon, and her family, from Plymouth, Calif. The Sobons own a small vineyard in the foothills of the Sierras.

The Sobon family was in town during a national tour to promote their collection of nine wines grown in the rolling hills of the Shenandoah Valley. Their wines are bottled under the label of the California Shenandoah Vineyards.

Some of the wines soon will be appearing on the shelves of Ann Arbor grocery stores. And there's also a possibility they may be found at the Mayflower Hotel, as well. Shirley's husband, Leon, met with Mayflower manager Scott Lorenz Thursday to talk about it.

Aside from the business trip, there was time for a family gathering.

Mrs. Pulkownik says this visit was only the fourth the sisters have had in 25 years.

The Sobon family's story, popularized in various California newspapers, has a tinge of the romantic life, though Sobon denies it.

"IT'S NOT a romantic life," said Sobon. "I tell people that I work half the time. That's 12 hours a day — half the time, right?"

Sobon, until four years ago, worked as an engineer with Lockheed Corp. The couple and their six children lived in a city near San Francisco called Los Altos.

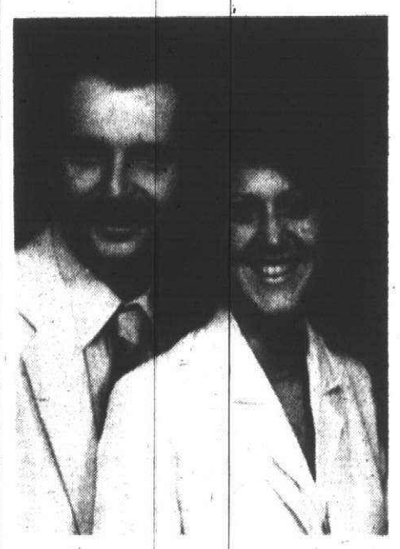

Sobon's growing amateur interest in wine making, something he did on the side in his basement, soon developed into an irrepressible desire to open his own business. He read "everything available" on the subject, and volunteered his free time on weekends to work at a local vineyard.

After much family discussion, they decided to take the plunge and they bought a former ranch in Plymouth, Calif. In time, they were in business.

Her fiance is a 1976 graduate of Plymouth Canton high. He attended Eastern Michigan University and Schoolcraft College. He is employed as general manager of B&W Insterstate Transport in Detroit.

They plan to be married in May 1982.

Lahrs mark anniversary

More than 60 friends and relatives gathered recently to help John and Elizabeth Lahr celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. The buffet reception was at their home in Plymouth Township.

The couple was married June 23, 1931, in Alderson Methodist Church near Wyoming, Pa., where they lived until moving to the Northville-Plymouth area in 1951. John Lahr was employed at the Plymouth Burroughs plants for 20 years and by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for six years. Mrs. Lahr worked in the Burroughs cafeteria for 10 years.

They moved from Northville to their present home in 1971. He enjoys his retirement with frequent golf games and yard work. while Mrs. Lahr cares for her plants and flower garden.

The Lahrs have two sons. John W. of Arcata, Calif., and Donald of Plymouth. They have three grandchildren.

Son follows father in leading Baptist church

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The Rev. Jimmie Allen (right) is turning over to his son, the Rev. Jonathon Allen, the leadership of Community Baptist Church of Garden City.

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

The Rev. Jimmie Allen and the Rev. Jonathon Allen are keeping in the family the leadership of Garden City's Community Baptist Church.

The elder Allen has been pastor of the church for 32 of its 35 years of existence, coming right out of Bible college to the young church. Now 53 and plagued by serious heart problems, he told his congregation July 22 he had decided to resign.

The next Sunday the people of the church voted to name as his successor his 27-year-old son Jonathon, who has been on the staff since 1978.

"Things went pretty fast," the retiring Allen said. It required a unanimous recommendation of the deacons and a 75 percent vote by the congregation to call a new pastor," the retiring one said. "The majority was better than that.

"The church also voted to give me the parsonage where we live as a gift to mark my 32nd anniversary as pastor. They have been far better to me than I could have expected."

And, stepping into his father's role, Jonathon Allen said he is "really encouraged by the support the congregation has given to my leadership."

THE ALLEN "dynasty" began at Community Baptist in 1949. The church that had organized four years earlier was being served on a part-time basis by the Rev. Rupert Walters, former principal of Garden City East High School.

There was a need for a full-time pastor, and the schoolman wasn't ready to fill that role, so the young graduate of Baptist Bible Seminary at Springfield, Mo., was called.

"I was not quite 20," Jimmie Allen recalls.

He came to a congregation that was meeting in a small buliding at the rear of the property the church still occupies on W. Warren west of Inkster.

"We've built twice during my ministry," he said. "We put up the auditorium in 1953 and the Sunday school area in 1958. Then we tore down the original building."

The number of worshipers has gonerom the 110-120 congregations of early years to "a high of 1015," the elder Allen said. "It has come down a bit in recent ministry, but we now have several hundred each week and more than 200 in Sunday school."

But there has been no change in the church's purposes — "to proclaim the gospel of Christ, around the world through missionaries as well as at the local level.

The church currently supports more than 50 missionaries and gives packing to Baptist Bible College at Springfield and Baptist Bible College East at Boston.

THE NEW PASTOR graduated in 1972 from Stevenson High School and later from the same school as his father.

He said he decided on the ministry as a career in his late teens.

"I never tried to influence him," noted his father, "but I noticed a new seriousness in Jonathon after his brother Timothy died suddenly of a heart disease we didn't know about.

"I think he started thinking more than about life and death."

The young man' new thinking took him to seminary and to service at a youth camp in Ohio.

On New Year's Eve, 1978 he was ordained during Watch Night Service at Community Baptist and then joined the staff.

Happily-ever-after needs society's assist

A great royal wedding has taken place before our eyes. We are thrilled not only by the spectacle and the romance of this event. We are touched by the simple trust and pledge of a man and a woman in marriage "till death do us part."

The message the bride and bridegroom and the clergyman wished to convey to the world watching this ceremony was that we are all kings and queens when we come before God's altar in marriage.

As a clergyman who officiates at upwards of 30 weddings a year, I am sometimes less optimistic about the outcome of all of these weddings.

We need to be hopeful and idealistic about marriage today. We also need to be practical in providing the means to help couples survive the difficulties that work to tear them apart. We must face the awful fact that half of the marriages currently made will not survive.

MARRIAGE HAS become a lonely affair. The newly marrieds in our society set out in a boat to weather the storms without benefit of a navigator or crew to assist.

One of the major difficulties with marriage in our society is that we isolate couples in splendid separation from resources that could help them. Can we imagine doing the same with new employees in a company? Would we assign a difficult task and then leave the persons without supervision, assistance or evaluation of their progress.

Churches, community colleges and counseling agencies need to provide workshops in marriage communication. They need to teach people how to problem solve and the dangers of certain patterns of communication. Video taped interactions between couples could be analyzed. The resources for marriage care and support are available.

Some of the churches have already begun this work. "Marriage Encounter" weekends originated by the Roman Catholic Church have had excellent results. The United Methodist Church offers weekend courses called "Marriage Enrichment" or "Marriage Communication." The offerings still are few in proportion to the need. The central theme of these church-sponsored marriage workshops is building upon the positive.

THE ISSUE we face is a more difficult one. We need to rid our society of the concept of marriage as a success or failure thing. Too often we see marriages as successful up to the moment they "fail." Two weeks earlier we considered their marriage successful. Then we suddenly find it has failed. Such a myth is simply not true. All marriages which I know about have had stress and difficulty. These take place over a period of time. Things accumulate. Decisions are made over months and years. To the outsider they may appear to be sudden. They seldom are.

It is only possible to help marriages thrive when we drop this "happily ever after" myth and find practical ways to assist people in their relationships. Only when we provide training and support for married people will we seriously affect the tragic trend of divorce. When we accept the fact that marriages can be nurtured without their "being in trouble," we have made progress. Our times call for a new approach for those already married.

Sounds go wild with New England

By Nick Charles
special writer

preview

Take a walk on the wild side with the band of the '80s. New England has just released its third album, the second for Electra/Asylum records, called "Walking Wild."

The band will be spreading the musical wealth at 9 p.m. Saturday at Redford's newest rock club, Nitro.

Two years ago, New England made its first album, on the now-defunct Infinity Records. The album contained the hit "Don't Ever Wanna Lose Ya" as well as "Hello, Hello, Hello" and "P.U.N.K."

The four-piece band is very British in sound and as progressive as tomorrow. Tightly harmonized vocals wrapped around synthesized keyboards, booming bass and amplified drums, all accented with piercing guitar, make up New England's tatented and classy sound.

Not just another thrown-together new wave band, New England has talent that will last throughout all the fads.

The band's latest LP contains 10 new songs by vocalist-guitarist John Fannon, drummer Hirsh Gardner, bassist Gary Shea and keyboardist Jimmy Waldo.

FANS AREN'T the only ones interested in New England. The band's first album was co-produced by Kiss guitarist Paul Stanley. The proof of peer admiration doesn't end there since Todd Rundgren produced the group's latest work of art as well as writing the lyrics to "L-5" and playing on "Don't Ever Let Me Go."

New England, which has opened shows for such heavyweights as Kiss, Styx, Cheap Trick and Journey, is now storming its way to the top. The band's latest single, written by Fannon, is called "DDT" (Dirty Dream Tonight).

New England, like the part of the country hails from, blends the power of the crashing waves of the Atlantic with the serenity of the seagull.

"Walking Wild" will not only strengthen the bond between the group and its fans but add many more new fans.

Musical career breezes along

From Sousa marches to pop rock isn't that much of a switch for Scott Burrows.

A 1978 Redford Union High School graduate and marching band member, Burrows plays trombone and provides lead vocals for Breeze, a promising six-man band that recently completed a two-week engagement at Slinky's, a rock and roll night spot in Redford Township.

Burrows will be a senior at Michigan State University next year, majoring in instrumental music, which is why music currently is a part-time occupation.

"Music is a large part of our lives; really an extension of ourselves," Scott said. "But practice, setting up and packing after engagements is hard work and time consuming.

"Our study time just won't tolerate it during the school year," he said.

But Breeze hopes to be back at Slinky's this Christmas during the holiday break. Until then, they plan weekend gigs at several Lansing area lounges.

THREE OTHER members of Breeze also attend MSU: Scott Culling, vocals and percussion; Mark Benson, vocals, keyboards and trombone; and Kelly Kelp, vocals, bass guitar. John Walsh, an MSU graduate, handles vocals, guitar and the harmonica. Freddie Vasquez, a grade school teacher in Lansing, plays the trumpet, flugelhorn, congas and timbales and provides the vocals, also.

The group has been together about a year and a half, playing mostly at clubs in Lansing and East Lansing such as Dooley's, the Player's Club and Wayside.

Burrows and Vasquez have done some songwriting and recording in addition to arranging some of their own music.

Their repertoire includes selections of individual rock stars such as Billy Joel, Bob Seger and Pat Benatar and rock groups such as Earth, Wind and Fire, the Doobie Brothers, the Rolling Stones and the Blues Brothers.

During Breeze' stay at Slinky's, Burrows invited his sister Stacey, a 1980 RUHS graduate now attenting MSU on a vocal scholarship, to sing a set.

Burrows' background includes his high school band, Casablanca, high school concert choir, marching and concert bands, music theory classes and several first-place prizes in solo ensemble competitions with his trombone.

Burrows sings popular or classical and plays rock or concert trombone and he credits his parents with instilling in him a desire to perform both instrumental and vocal music.

HIS MOTHER, Joan, was a professional vocalist appearing at one time with his father's band.

"Stace and I owe our vocal technique to Mom's coaching," Scott said. "Ever since we were little, her love of singing and performing became part of our lives."

Breeze is Freddie Vasquez (counterclockwise from top); Kelly Kelp, Mark Benson, John Walsh, Scott Burrows and Scott "Bruiser" Culling.

Jack Burrows, his father, played trombone for years in his own band and still plays in a group called Camoron Quintet, which performs at Camoron Hall.

"I guess I owe my love and ability for the 'bone' from my dad," he added.

Jack and Joan Burrows, long-time township residents, have four children: Wendy, Jeff and Don, all Redford Union graduates; and Ted, a Redford Union junior.

backgammon

Michael Kloian

of the American Backgammon Club

● HIT AND SPLIT

Darrell P. of Bloomfield writes:

"I am black in this position with a 2-4 to play. Instead of hitting my opponent with the 4 roll, I chose to close my 4 point for a neat five-point prime, hoping to keep the checker on the 1 point.

Two rolls later, I was stuck on the white 1 point, and white managed to get around somehow. Eventually, I lost the game. I would like your opinion on the 2-4 move."

To pass up the chance for a prime is not easy since this is one major factor of backgammon. However, you should remember there is a difference when your opponent has one or two checkers back. With two white checkers on the 1 point, your move would be correct. Then your opponent would need double ones and double sixes for a smooth escape.

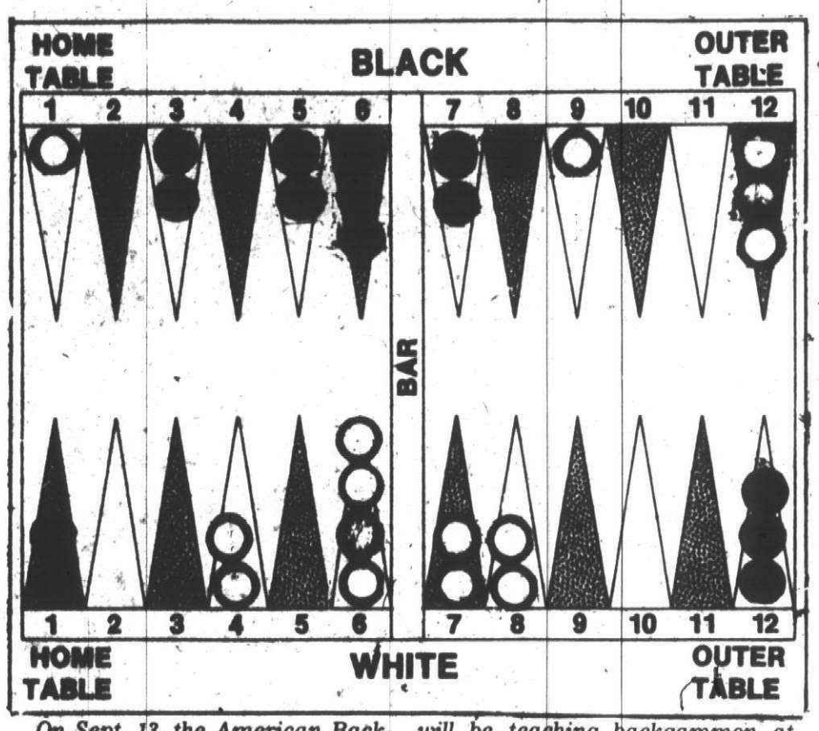

With one checker back, in this position, after white safeties the outer board blot, the minute he rolls a 1, he will be able to move up to the 2 point and wait for his first six to escape. The pressure will rest on black to escape.

The best play for this position would be for black to hit white with a 12 point checker and split from the white 1 to the 3 point. The hit and split play is very effective in possible double priming positions.

Black leaves 4-4, 2-6 and 4-5 for return shots (five out of 36 chances), with 4-4 as the only disaster roll. 4-3 is also a good roll for white, since he may advance to the black 4 point. This risk is well worth taking.

Black accomplishes several things with this move. If white gets a lucky return shot, black could easily capture a forward anchor in white's home board since he has split his checkers. If white gets off the bar and does not hit, black will have several builders pointing on white.

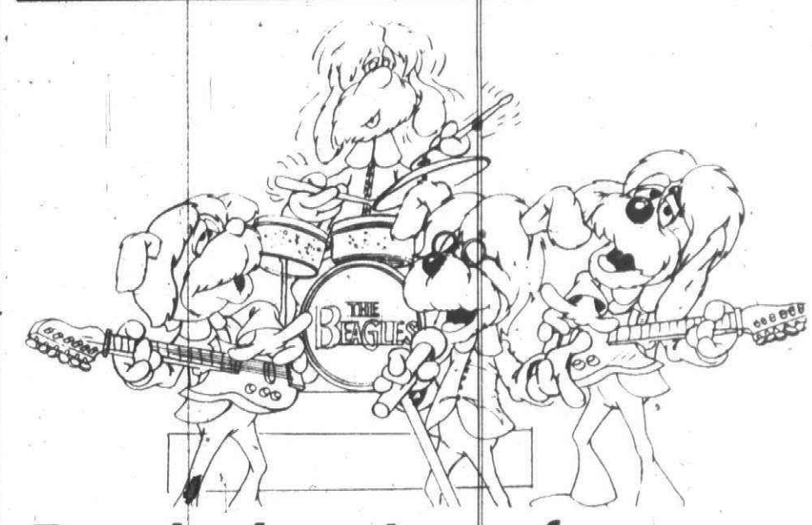

The best yet is that if white stays on the bar, black could offer white the cube and force him out of the game for an automatic victory. In any event, the hit and split play is effective and well worth the risk.

On Sept. 13, the American Backgammon Club will host a benefit backgammon tournament for the Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan. First prize is $1,000. Entry fee is $20.

In September and October, Kloian will be teaching backgammon at schools throughout Oakland and Wayne counties.

For more information on the tournament or the classes, contact the club at 459-5776

Beagle dogs to perform

A new cabaret room has been developed featuring the Beagles, at Chuck E. Cheese's Pizza Time Theatre in Westland. In late August, the Beagles will perform mechanically "live" every night at the theater. Direct from "Liverpoodle," the Beagles consists of four computer-controlled Beagle dogs that are synchronized and animated. Each Beagle sings and plays an instrument creating the sounds of pop songs. The recently expanded theater has added 150 more seats, 30 new games and kiddie rides. Chuck E. Cheese and his friends currently perform nightly.

Still the king

Yul Brynner will star as the King of Siam in the musical "The King and I," one of four shows on the premiere season of the Masonic Temple Theatre. "The King and I" is the season's second attraction, opening Oct. 29. For more information, call the Masonic Temple Box Office in Detroit at 832-2232.

Fair calls adults to further education

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Frances Worth of Plymouth puts finishing touches on the colorful wheel she made to draw attention to the Schoolcraft College learning fair at the Livonia Mall this weekend.

With a big wheel in a shopping mall, Schoolcraft College will urge adults this weekend to think about rounding out their education.

The college's first Adult Education Fair will be set up near the Sears store in the Livonia Mall 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Dominating the display will be a color wheel asking, "What Color is Your Future?" Created by Frances Worth, a retired commercial artist who lives in Plymouth, the wheel will illustrate the fair's theme that the future can be improved through more education.

The browser who stops for a look will see displays from the college's physical education, health careers, continuing education and arts and sciences departments.

There will also be a place to have blood pressure checked. Other displays planned include a model of the human body and one of Schoolcraft's writing laboratory.

Resource persons on the scene will be representatives of the college's admission and college relations offices. Persons from the various academic disciplines will also be on hand to answer questions.

The idea for the fair originated with Sue Kaplan, coordinator of independent studies at Schoolcraft. She will be among those present in the booths.

Dan Funkhouser, who pitched well for Little Caesars all season long, was a losing hurler againt Grosse Pointe Woods in the AABC district playoffs.

End of the line

Caesars ousted in tourney

By Scott Adler
staff writer

Canton Little Caesars fell victim for a second time in as many days to an all-star lineup from Grosse Pointe Woods Saturday, 5-2, in the Connie Mack baseball district playoffs at Pontiac's Jaycee Park.

Canton finished its season at 26-2, while Grosse Pointe went on to win the district title.

Once again, the Caesars had an motivational problem, according to coach Fred Crissey.

"We weren't as intense as we should have been," said Crissey. "The kids failed to realize that when you get to this point you face all-star competition.

"I really think that our downfall was our league. There wasn't any real stiff competition. It came to the point where we would just show up at the field and chalk up a 'W', and then we get out here (in tournament play) and it's different."

Grosse Pointe's roster included four college pitchers and two all-state players from the state championship team. This was the same sqaud that has been together for four years and that won the National Babe Ruth Tournament two years ago.

"WE PLAYED their socks off in the first game," said Crissey of his team's 6-5 defeat to Grosse Pointe — a loss due, in part, to a controversial call in the eighth inning. "Our problem was that we just couldn't handle their pitcher (Toby Kocik of Macomb College)."

Kocik allowed only five Canton hits, four of which came in the last inning as the Caesars attempted a comeback.

Steve Schumacher was hit by a pitch in the tailbone and was unable to take first base. Pinch runner Mike Wall moved to second on a bunt single by Darin Weise and scored on a single by Mike Fifer. Steve Johnson then walked to load up the bases.

Scott Bricker singled to score Weise from third with Canton's second run and the bases remained loaded with no outs. Jeff Cousino struck out and Bill Hanis hit into a double play to end the game and Canton's season.

"That was the only thing I was pleased about," said Crissey of his team's never-say-die finale. "(Dan) Funkhouser pitched well. He deserved a better fate than that, but I guess it just wasn't our game to win."

FUNKHOUSER WENT seven innings and allowed eight hits, but according to Crissey, "the hits didn't hurt us."

In the fifth inning with Grosse Pointe leading 2-0, Funkhouser, who ended the season with a 7-1 record, walked two batters and helped them advance on a wild pitch.

John Clem then bunted with a two-strike count and the ball caromed off of Funkhouser's glove. Two runs scored on that play; a triple helped score the final run of the inning.

"We played well," said Crissey, "we just didn't swing the bat. Bricker had two hits for us and I'd have to say he was the best overall kid in the tourney."

Don Massey Cadillac rose to the occasion Sunday and defeated the Livonia Softball Club twice to emerge as top dog in Massey's Tournament of Champions slowpitch softball tournament.

Massey clipped Softball Club, 9-6, in the finale of the double-elimination tournament. Sixteen teams participated.

Massey finished the tourney undefeated and became champion for a second time in the last four years.

"Frankly I'm a little surprized that we went through undefeated," said coach Jim 'Doc' Hauncher. "There were some awfully good teams in that tournament."

Earlier Sunday afternoon, Massey nipped Softball Club, 3-2.

Massey jumped all over the Livonia team in the championship game, scoring all nine of its runs in the first three innings, while holding its opponent scoreless.

After scoring once in first, Massey dealt the crushing blow in the second inning by scoring seven runs to up its lead to 8-0.

Chris Hannan singled and reached second base on an error. Dennis Frinfrock doubled him home and then scored himself on a single by Hauncher. Paul Woodard made it to first on another Softball Club error and Bob Falow followed with a run scoring single to make it 4-0.

Bob Green and Steve Battastone drove home Woodard and Falow with consecutive singles. Tom Guilfoyle picked up the final two RBIs of the inning with his double.

SOFTBALL CLUB finally got on the board in the fourth inning when Bob Daniels' double scored Andy Coppola from first base to make it 9-1.

In the sixth inning, Softball Club closed the gap further with four runs, thanks to an RBI-single by Daniels and a bases-loaded triple by Ron Griffin.

But Massey kept the game out of reach in the final inning.

"We did alright," said Hauncher. "We had a couple of guys that were hurt but the others picked it up. It felt good, very rewarding."

Falow, Green and Frinfrock all finished with three hits for Massey, while Guifoyle went 2-for-4.

Coppola led the way for Softball Club with three hits in three at bats. Steve Chilenko, Daniels and Bob Moreau all had a pair of hits for the losers.

The tourney's Most Valuable Player, Bob Gongla, pitched for Massey.

"We played good defense," said Hauncher, "and Bob pitched so darn well. All the credit goes to him. He just shut them down.

"I don't want to take anything away from Livonia, they had a hell of a tournament."

Last year's runner-up, Jamie's On Seven from Westland, finished in third place.

Jerry Westerland, of Jamie's, hit four home-runs in 10 pitches to win the home-run hitting competition.

All-star game is new way to launch football season

Football practice has begun unusually early for 72 prospective college freshmen who graduated from Michigan high schools last spring. Chances are that none of them mind a bit.

The select 72 — among the premier players in the state last autumn — have been preparing for the first Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football Game.

Kickoff is 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Spartan Stadium at Michigan State University. Tickets, at $3 per person, will be available at the stadium.

The game was conceived by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association (MHSFCA) in the mid-70s.

It took a couple of years to get the OK from the Michigan High School Athletic Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association and to iron out all the details.

Michigan, for all of its tradition with 654 high schools fielding football teams, with two universities belonging to the Big 10 and with a franchise in the National Football League, is one of the last states in the country to showcase a high-school all-star football game.

Don Lessner, secretary-treasurer of the MHSFCA and varsity coach at Riverview High School, is hoping for a crowd of 30,000 or more.

THE PLAYERS have been living together the past week in a dormitory on campus. Twice-a-day workouts and team meetings have occupied much of their time.

Al Fracassa, the soft-spoken coach from Birmingham Brother Rice, will help guide the East squad. He is not approaching the game as a lark.

"I want to make it a good experience rather than a fun experience," Fracassa said. "When you go out for football, it's a lot of hard work. I'm going to work my tail off on good execution.

"I love football. It's a great part of my life," he continued. "Since I love it so much, I coach it like I love it. You can't go out there and say 'let's line up.' You have to line up this way, look good, do it right."

Fracassa said that because most of these players earned all-state recognition and are college prospects, he has to assume they know the fundementals of the sport.

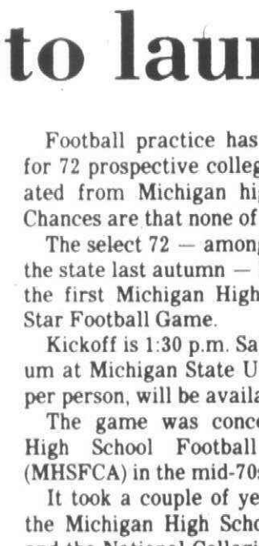

Therefore, he figured to spend much of his time on execution.

A couple of other familiar names on the Observer & Eccentric football scene — John Herrington, coach at Farmington Harrison, and Ron Holland, North Farmington — are working with Fracassa.

THE O&E area is also well represented by the stars of the production, the players.

Ten of the 36 players on the East squad have area connections. They are:

- John Penders, Plymouth Salem, offensive lineman.
- Dale Boone, Westland John Glenn, offensive lineman.
- Greg Humphties, Auburn Heights Avondale, offensive lineman.
- Steve Mazur, Bloomfield Hills Andover, offensive back.
- Doug Schulte, North Farmington, punter.
- Ken Kaszubinski, Rochester Adams, linebacker.
- Alex Clark, Bloomfield Hills Lahser, defensive back.
- Ken Granader, Birmingham Groves, defensive back.
- Mark Kuney, Auburn Heights Avondale, defensive back.
- Tim MacLean, Birmingham Brother Rice, defensive back.

Premier gridders to collide in Spartan Stadium

Penders, a two-way player at Salem, was looking forward to the festivities prior to leaving for the nine-day camp. He plans to attend Albion College.

"Hopefully, by playing in the game, I will have a little jump playing against college freshmen," he said. "Just the experience itself, just being there, is good in itself."

The comaraderie should be interesting in itself. Penders said he was hoping to enjoy off-the-field activities such as a barbecue, a dance and a banquet planned for the all-stars.

Each head coach who belongs to the MHSFCA could nominate two players for the all-star teams. A panel of 12 coaches then reviewed the credentials and finalized the squads.

Lessner said that because few coaches in the Detroit Public School League belong to the MHSFCA, few Detroit players are represented on the East team.

THE GAME will be played according to high-school rules even though all the participants have graduated and will be moving on to college ball.

"The kids are much more familiar with them (prep rules)," Lessner said. "We want to make sure there are no injuries. It can be quite hot — 100 degrees — on the floor of the stadium."

Because the players have had only a little over a week to prepare, several twists have been added.

The athletes will be platooned and play on either the offensive unit or the defensive unit but not both. Everyone must play at least half the game.

Coaches, limited to five offensive formations, had to make their playbook available to the other team in advance. Three trick plays may be kept secret.

No stunting will be allowed on defense.

THE MHSFCA seems to have risked quite a bit of money in this venture. It has purchased jerseys, which the players will be able to keep, and pants, which will be used on a yearly basis.

Liability insurance had to be purchased to the tune of $1,000, Lessner said.

It costs between $70 and $80 to lodge and feed each of the players for the nine days.

In order to receive sanction from the NCAA, 40 percent of the proceeds of the game must go to a non-profit cause or to charity. The MHSFCA has decided to establish a scholarship fund.

MSU has made its stadium available without charge, Lessner said. Twenty-two radio stations have made arrangements to broadcast the game. ON-TV has purchased television rights.

There has been absolutely no expense to the players since they arrived in East Lansing.

There may be some problems which develop in an initial venture of this magnitude. As usual, hindsight will be 20-20.

However, it seems like a good idea for the players, most of whom will get a week of valuable practice before they first report to their college teams.

It is good for the MHSFCA because it promotes a cause from which all members can work. The scholarship fund certainly is a worthy goal.

It is good for MSU, which can establish good will with high-school coaches and help its recruiting cause by making its athletic facilities available without charge.

And it seems like a great way to begin a new football season.

Oasis whips softball foes

Oasis women's fastpitch softball team certainly didn't prove to be an oasis on the schedule of two opponents over the weekend.

Oasis scored victories over Mr. H's, 13-1, and Atlas Alarm, 15-0, in the Livonia Fastpitch Softball League.

On Saturday, Jan Boyd had her scoreless innings pitched streak snapped at 30, as Mr. H's scored a run in the top half of the first inning. Boyd got back on track after the first frame, and allowed only one hit in the final six innings.

She walked one and fanned eight in picking up her 10th win of the season.

Allison Cole provided the offensive punch, as she collected a double and a home run and drove in six runs.

Oasis scored two unearned runs in the first inning and three more in the second, to make it 5-1 and never looked back.

Friday's contest was called after five innings when the 15-run mercy rule was invoked.

Denise Cifaldi was the winning pitcher for Oasis, as she hurled a no-hitter against Atlas. Cifaldi struck out six in gaining her second shutout of the season.

Oasis started fast in the first inning, scoring five times as Jody Humphries and Sherry Kiselica hit back-to-back doubles after two walks had been issued.

Gail Oljace followed the doubles with a run-scoring single of her own and promptly scored on a base hit by Vickie Forest.

In the second inning, three consecutive walks loaded the bases and two singles by Humphries and Kiselica scored two more Oasis runs. That set the stage for Oljace's three-run blast to deep left field, making the score 10-0.

Connie Mack tourney

Elks' bats are powerless in Flint

By Scott Adler
staff writer

The Salem Elks found the going too rough last weekend and were eliminated from the Connie Mack baseball playoffs in Flint by Ann Arbor Wendy's, 12-3.

It was the Elks' second loss in the double-elimination tourney. Their first came last week in the first round when John Smith Carpets dealt a 10-4 defeat.

"On that particular day, they (Wendy's) were there to do it all and we had our problems," said Ron Riedel, coach of the Elks. "It's not too discouraging though. We knew it was going to be tough, but maybe not quite that tough."

John McDowell was the first of four Salem pitchers and suffered the loss. He lasted three innings and gave up four of Wendy's runs.

The Elks' (16-10) bats were silent in the final with the exception of Pete Steyaert, who accounted for two of Salem's three hits. He drove in a pair of runs in the fourth inning.

Bill Culver was credited with Salem's other RBI when he lofted a sacrifice fly.

Against John Smith Carpets, the third inning spelled disaster for the Elks.

Starting pitcher Greg Chapel walked four consecutive batters and then yielded a grand slam home run, which put the game out of reach for Salem.

"THEY WERE a pretty well established ball club," said Riedel. "They really hit the ball well, but you can't afford to walk people and win games because one hit like that one can kill you."

Mick Matson and Joe Humphries were the only Salem players to get hits as Humphries went 3-for-3 and Matson collected two hits in three at bats. Humphries finished the game with two RBIs.

"The lack of hitting was our downfall," Riedel said. "It wasn't what it should be at all. We had good hitting throughout the season, but it wasn't coming through here."

After suffering their first defeat in the tournament to John Smith, the Elks bounced back and defeated Birmingham Hazel Park in extra innings, 9-8.

Matson had three hits, and John Konchel and Todd Riedel had two apiece in leading the 12-hit Salem attack.

The winning run in the ninth inning came from anything but good hitting.

Humphries ended up at second base on an error, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a balk to end the game.

"We should have had it won in the seventh," said Riedel. "It was not a well umped ball game by any sense of the word. They made bad calls both ways."

Despite losing two out of three games in the post-season tournament, Riedel still says that this was a successful season for his team.

"We were a young club. It wasn't the best season, but it wasn't bad at all," he said. "The kids did a good job this year. It was a good season."

Craiger entertains Koufax tournament

Canton Craiger, which has just come off a strong showing in the McDonald's Invitational Baseball Tournament in Kingston, Ontario, seems to be as good a choice as any to win the upcoming National Amateur Baseball Federation Sophomore Division (13- 14-year-olds) World Series.

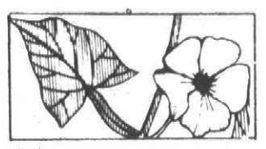

The tournament is being contested today through Sunday at Canton High School. Games are scheduled daily at 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. Admission is $1, which includes a program.

Craiger entered the tournament with an 18-4 record and, as the host team, was to meet Baltimore, Md. at 10:30 a.m. today, following the opening ceremonies.

"The Cincinnati (Ohio) team I know is always strong," said Craiger coach Dr. Gerald Ebmeyer. "All of the teams are going to be competitive. I can't really tag a top seed."

Brooklyn, N.Y. is the defending champion.

Other clubs in the six-team field are North Atlanta, Ga. and Riverview.

Defending golf champs dawdle

Ladies, this just may be the year to register for the Observer & Eccentric Women's Golf Tournament.

None of last year's medalist champions in the O&E tourney had registered by Monday for the 1981 event, which will be held Aug. 19.

Carol Trombley, who lives in Redford and who set the pace in the Championship Flight last year, has inquired about defending her title.

But she had not turned in an entry blank as of Monday, according to Gary Whitener, golf pro at Whispering Willows Municipal Golf Course in Livonia and the tournament director.

Neither have the other two medalist champs from last year — Pat Bishoff, a Livonian, in Flight 1 and Sally Stemmer of Lathrup Village, Flight 2.

Trombley carded an 82 last fall, Bishoff 94 and Stemmer 101 over the 6,265-yard course.

Time is running out for the defending champs, as well as anyone else who plans to compete in the 18-hole tournament. Entries close next Wednesday.

The tournament is open to all amateur golfers who reside in the O&E circulation area.

To sign up, just complete the entry coupon that appears in most editions of the O&E and mail it or drop it off to Whispering Willows, 20500 Newburgh Road, Livonia 48152.

APPROXIMATELY 50 men have already registered for their 36-hole tournament, which will be contested Sept. 19-20 at Whispering Willows.

Both men and women must submit their entry fees when registering. The fee this year is $27 for men, $12 for women.

5 medals earned by duo in Canada

Mary Mohacsi and Cora Fiebig, two of the veterans of the women's all-star leagues, made their presences in no uncertain way in the International Federation's interzone finals that ended last week in Winnipeg, Canada.

When the final tallies were recorded, Mohacsi has set a record of 1265 in the singles and was a member of the winning team. These performances brought her two gold medals. Meanwhile Fiebig earned a gold medal as a member of the winning team and two bronzes medals for third place finishes in the singles and in a second team event.

No other city fared as well in the competition that drew entries from 12 countries, most of them from South America.

Along with these honors, Fiebig also topped the trials in Milwaukee to earn the trip to the international competition.

THE DETROIT AREA is fast becoming a favorite for the nation's pro bowlers.

The Ladies Professional Tour is scheduled at North Hill lanes in Rochester beginning Aug.16. The men will come to West Bloomfield Lanes with their regional event Sept. 12.

Previously, the pros had bowled at Thunderbowl, Sunnybrook Lanes, Cherry Hill Lanes and Colonial Lanes. And they are due for another stop here during the winter schedule.

TOM McKAY, executive secretary of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association, has announced plans for five league officers school prior to the start of the bowling season. This is a yearly practice of the association for the benefit of the secretaries and treasurers, especially those newly elected, to acquaint them with the rules.

3rd whiffle ball marathon slated

It looks like it's that time of year again when 20 sluggers from around Plymouth will get together for their annual Muscular Dystrophy 24-hour Whiffle Ball Marathon to be held Aug. 15-16 at Farrand Elementary School.

This is the third money raising event for Jerry's Kids and promoter-organizer John Matthews is looking for another banner year.

"Our first year out we raised $550 and the interest in our event began to grow," said Matthews. "Last year we just missed the $1,000 mark and hopefully we can reach that goal this year."

Whiffle Ball is played with a plastic ball and bat and the fences around the field at Farrand Elementary School in Plymouth (located in the Lake Pointe subdivision) have been gaged so that the distance is proportionate to the confines of a regular baseball field.

"We measured the distance when the (outfield) walls were put up, so that the ratio of home runs to hits would be an equivalent to that of the major leagues," said Matthews, a sophomore at Michigan State University.

The game will run continuously over the 24 hours with teams of four players each rotating hourly.

Last year, the players got in over 300 innings. Approximately one-third of the play was under a driving rain.

Matthews, a former varsity baseball player at Canton High School, said competing in the Whiffle ball marathon is more than just fun.

"Sure we have a great time out there, and of course that helps motivate us," said Matthews, "but we feel it's for an excellent cause and I'm just glad that I can do my part and help people who are less fortunate than I am."

DiPonio eliminated in Mantle tourney

Salem DiPonio had one rough weekend.

DiPonio sustained defeats from both Monroe, 8-0, and Blissfield, 9-7, and was eliminated in the American Amateur Baseball Congress Mickey Mantle Tournament in Windsor.

Ann Arbor, the eventual district champion, defeated Blissfield, 5-4, in extra innings of the final game.

After winning its first two games in the double-elimination tourney over Windsor Mic-Mac, 5-4, and Hillsdale, 10-0, Salem ran into a brick wall against its two weekend opponents.

Blissfield bombed Rick Berberet, DiPonio's top pitcher, for seven runs on six hits in the first 1⅓ innings Saturday night before coach Joe Carlson knew what hit him and his team.

"We were down 7-0 right away," said Carlson. "But the kids didn't quit."

Salem got on the board in the third inning when Mike Cindrich singled and stole second. Catcher Andy Dimitroff, who was picked up from Northville for the tournament, followed with a run-scoring single.

In the fourth inning, Harmon McMahon drove home a run for DiPonio, and Dimitroff knocked in two to close the gap, but it was still not enough to overcome the early deficit.

Dimitroff finished the game with three hits and four RBIs for Salem.

In Friday's game, Monroe's pitcher, Steve Gray tossed a one-hitter and stymied Salem, 8-0.

Cindrich picked up the lone single for DiPonio.

"OUR FOUR errors in the first game (against Monroe) didn't help," said Carlson. "It was a general letdown. We were kicking the ball all over the place."

Despite the 8-0 score, Carlson says that his pitchers didn't do a bad job.

"We didn't pitch that bad," he said. "We just didn't get the support that we needed in the field."

DiPonio ends a successful year with an 18-9 record.

"I'm pleased (with the season). We were down in the second game (against Blissfield) and we came back. It was a good year even though we had a letdown in the tournament."

Vivians continue search for initial win

The Plymouth Salem Vivians suffered a pair of setbacks over the weekend in Livonia fastpitch softball league action at Ford Field.

Metro Merchants defeated Salem Friday night, 7-3, and the Vivians fell victim to Kane's Trucking, 2-1, in Saturday night's contest.

Diane Murphy was the losing pitcher in Salem's tough loss to Kane's. Murphy went the distance, allowing six hits, walking two and striking out two. Both of Kane's runs were unearned while Bonnie Southerland knocked in Plymouth's only run.

Kelly Strautz, Southerland and Eileen Moore drove in runs for the Vivians in their 7-3 loss to Metro Merchants.

Here's an alphabet of summer fun in Michigan

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

A Antique and flea market every Sunday four miles north of Saugatuck on the Blue Star Highway, where you can buy everything from an old milk bottle to a diamond ring.

B Bluegrass Festival at Greenfield Village, Aug. 15-16, or the Blues Festival on Hart Plaza, Sept. 25-27.

C Canoeing. Especially on the Manistee, Pere Marquette, Pine, Au Sable and Rifle Rivers. Fast water, but not too fast for comfort.

D Drum Corp International, Ypsilanti, Aug. 14. Also, ducks, deer and Drummond Island.

E Ethnic Festivals: Ukrainian Aug. 7-9; Polish Aug. 14-16; Mexican Aug. 21-23; Yugoslavian, Aug. 28-30. All at Hart Plaza in downtown Detroit.

F Fishing. You can catch them but you may not want to eat them from the Detroit River; the muskie is mean in Lake St. Clair; the perch jump into your boat in Saginaw Bay; good bass at Thunder and Squaw bays near Alpena; there's great walleye in lakes Cadillac and Mitchell near Cadillac, also Burt Lake; bass bite off Waugoshance Point west of Mackinac and. . .

Traveling alone, revisited: 'Buy a ticket, make a hotel reservation and go'

My best source of travel information is often a reader who takes time to write me a letter. Gail Ewing of Bloomfield Hills wrote this week, in response to our July 16 article on traveling alone.

Her advice doesn't need any embellishment from me:

"Many of us, men and women alone, escape winter by traveling to different places for many months. I am frequently asked if I know people before I go, and what I do with my time.

"I USUALLY don't know anyone at the destination I select, but that is soon remedied. I keep busy by being useful. You can always be of service to others.

"Decide what you are looking for and pick a place that satisfies that need. Buy a ticket, make a hotel reservation and go.

"Selecting such a destination means knowing something about it in advance. Such information is available in libraries, lectures, travel films and from people who have been there. Doors just seem to open.

"My first trip alone was a very positive experience. I was interested in the Mayan culture and planned to go to the Yucatan, Belize and Guatemala. I planned to be away over Christmas, so I decided on an English-speaking country.

"I flew to Belize City first, where I met interesting people in the hotel, at church and in the library. I saw many Mayan ruins and stayed nine weeks.

"I helped set up a teacher's reference library. No, I am not a librarian, but anyone can help to make attractive displays and posters.

"I WAS invited to speak at a Rotary Club luncheon, and had to hunt maps and information to cover my subject.

"From Belize City I went to Yucatan and Guatemala, where I decided it was time to learn some Spanish. I kept busy there, too, and was invited to return for their big Christmas celebration as a member of a family. What a privilege.

"It is all so interesting and so much fun. Incidentally, my months away are cheaper than my summers at home."

I have several responses to such a letter. My first response is "This must be a very exciting woman." I'm sure that she gets the most out of life at home, 300 miles from home or across the world.

NEXT, WHERE is Belize City? My National Geographic Atlas tells me that soon enough: It's a city in a tiny country called Belize on the Caribbean coast of Central America between Guatemala and the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico.

Next, I hit my Encyclopedia Britanica. It is 20 years old, so Belize City is listed as the capital of British Honduras, which explains why at least some of the people there speak English. Belize is described as "a crossroads of Mayan culture."

You and I may never find nine weeks to visit Central America, but we can learn a lot from this traveler. Adventure is never an accident. It happens because you make it happen when you travel.

The Observer & Eccentric

Livonia, Michigan 48150

Dear Rose:

When I became General Sales Manager at Mark Chevrolet several months ago, I saw the need for more aggressive advertising to make people aware of our location and facilities, and to increase traffic.

Our ads in The Observer have been well worth the investment. The half-page format really stands out among the other ads and lets prospective customers know how much we have to offer in terms of selection, low prices, and service. Our sales have noticeably increased as a result of these ads, and we look forward to an even better spring and summer.

You've been most helpful by giving us fine service and creative ideas. I look forward to a continued success with the help of The Observer & Eccentric.

Sincerely,

John Rogin

Is your budget house broken?

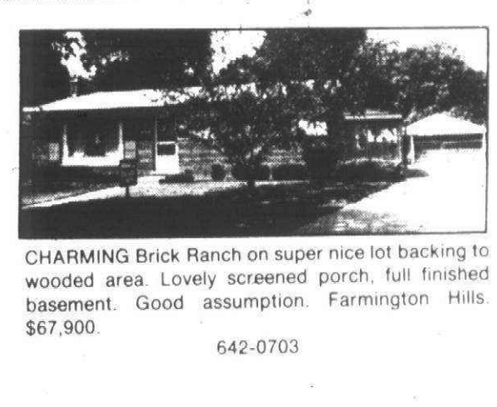

If you think there's no room in your budget for house payments ... or if financing fears are forcing your family's dreams out of the picture ...

We'd like to have a word with you.

Owning a house that's too big, too little, or too far from where you need to be, can be breaking your budget right now. Or, if you're renting, it may be costing you more than owning—and leaving you with a lot less.

So even if you think your budget's house broken ... Break down and call us.

"ASSUMPTION BUYERS." We have funds to help you assume mortgages that may be too far to reach. Call for details.
