Local units share chore project costs

By Gary M. Cates and Dennis O'Connor
staff writers

Canton Township and Plymouth Township boards of trustees have agreed to share the administrative cost of the senior citizen's outside chores and homemaking program with the city of Plymouth.

In the past, administrative cost for the In-Home Service project was financed through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA). The work was done by a senior citizen coordinator, who is part of the city of Plymouth Department of Parks and Recreation.

CETA funds have been discontinued, however, so the city of Plymouth has asked neighboring cities and townships to share the administrative cost, estimated at $6,000 per year, according to Chuck Skene, city of Plymouth recreation director.

PLYMOUTH, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville and Northville Township are included in a five-city cluster which receives senior citizen service from the In-Home program.

The cluster recently decided the admistrative cost should be spread to each community, based on the percentage of senior citizens in each community benefiting from the program.

It is estimated, according to Skene, that Plymouth Township will pay $1,764 and Canton will pay $348 for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1981.

Skene said he plans to ask Northville and Northville Township for financial help next week.

Each community will receive a financial statement every three months showing the administrative expense.

"OUR JUSTIFICATION was that if the other communities are involved in the project, then they should help with the cost," Skene said. "If it was CETA, I'd have no problem."

The program will be reviewed by each community next year for continuing funding.

The In-Home program provides free chore service to senior citizens, according to Senior Citizen Coordinator Traci Johnson. It is primarily a federally funded program.

Homemaking service includes inside cleaning for senior citizens. Chore services include outside maintenance.

Recent financial problems have limited the services of the program. Although leaves were not raked this year, snow shoveling will be available for needy seniors — as long as money is available, according to Ms. Johnson.

Residents must be at least 61 years old to receive the service, Ms. Johnson said. Information is available by calling 455-6627.

If funds aren't available to perform chores, Ms. Johnson said, the program will find the needed help — if seniors are willing to pay for services.

MEANWHILE, the five-city cluster received $2,000 from the Out-Wayne County Area Agengy for Aging, the organization which allocates funds to municipalities.

The funds will be used for homemaking services, raising the total to $10,500 for the year. The cluster receives $12,000 for the chores program.

"We have six or seven people on the waiting list (for homemaking services), so it will help," Ms. Johnson said.

The additional money comes from state funds, according to Brad Vauter, a grants manager for the Area Agency for Aging. He said $34,256 from the state was allocated to 34 service agencies in the metropolitan area.

The state does not provide funds for the chores program, according to Vauter.

Canton joined the Plymouth-Northville group this year, but the cluster did not receive additional funding from the Area Agency for Aging.

Canton split from the Municipal Services Bureau in February. It services Wayne-Westland and Garden City.

Trained canines help police track down elusive suspects

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Nitro and Rico have the best of two worlds.

The sleek, caramel-and-black German shepherd puppies have loving but firm masters with whom they spend a lot of time. The dogs enjoy playing, eating dog biscuits and being petted.

But they also have important jobs as tracking dogs for the Canton police department.

Nitro and Rico have been trained to use their highly developed senses of smell and hearing to fight crime and help the public. Police say the dogs are earning their keep.

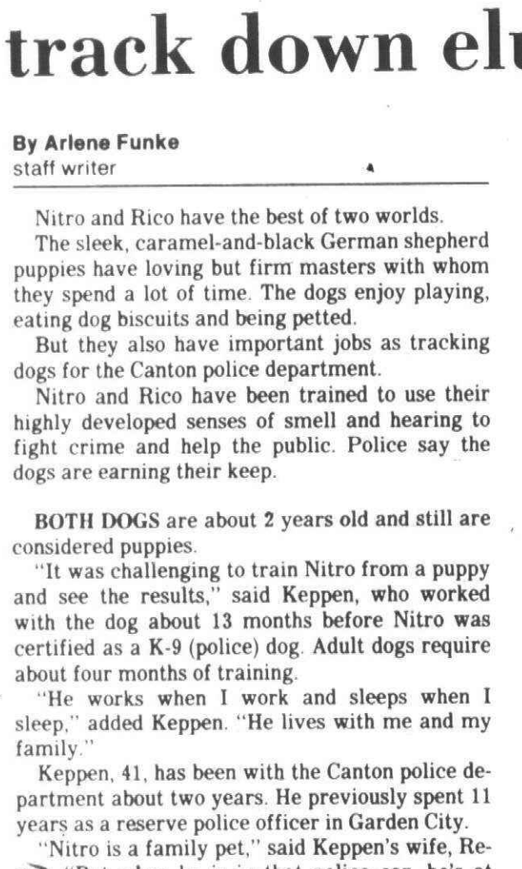

BOTH DOGS are about 2 years old and still are considered puppies.

"It was challenging to train Nitro from a puppy and see the results," said Keppen, who worked with the dog about 13 months before Nitro was certified as a K-9 (police) dog. Adult dogs require about four months of training.

"He works when I work and sleeps when I sleep," added Keppen. "He lives with me and my family."

Keppen, 41, has been with the Canton police department about two years. He previously spent 11 years as a reserve police officer in Garden City.

"Nitro is a family pet," said Keppen's wife, Renee. "But when he is in that police car, he's at work. His personality changes (and) he growls if you touch the car."

Isn't a good job worth some praise? William Keppen gives Nitro a big hug.

Officer Ernie Sayre, 28, is a four-year veteran of the Canton department. He recently began working with Rico after a female officer had to leave because of health problems.

Each officer receives about $250 a year for food and essentials. Sayre said his wife, Joan, was concerned at first that Rico might harm the couple's 18-month-old daughter.

That hasn't happened, said Sayre.

KEPPEN AND SAYRE work with Steve Kelemen, a Ford Motor designer from Livonia who has trained dogs since he was a youth.

"Dogs don't have the power of reason," said Kelemen, 43. "But they do have a fantastic memory. Their two main functions are (picking up) scent and protecting the handler."

Kelemen says a dog can pick up a scent as old as one hour, and as far away as 1,500 yards. Under certain conditions, the dog can detect a human heartbeat from about 15 feet away.

Most training is done at night because that's when most crimes are committed, said Kelemen. He uses a program developed in Germany in the late 1800s. It combines a dog's natural tracking instinct with obedience training and confidence.

Kelemen says a trained tracking dog can serve about eight years, provided the animal remains able-bodied and healthy.

German shepherds are preferred because they're "well-suited, versatile and have stamina," said Kelemen. They are bred for loyalty and can adapt to cold or warm weather.

The dogs are valuable in situations where they can pick up a scent — such as tracking a runaway suspect or a lost child. They can be used to detect drugs, bombs and stolen items.

People generally respond favorably to dogs, said Kelemen. The animals can be used to control crowds.

THE DOGS are placed in a 30-foot tracking harness and take off with the handler in tow. They may thrash through woods, fields and into ditches.

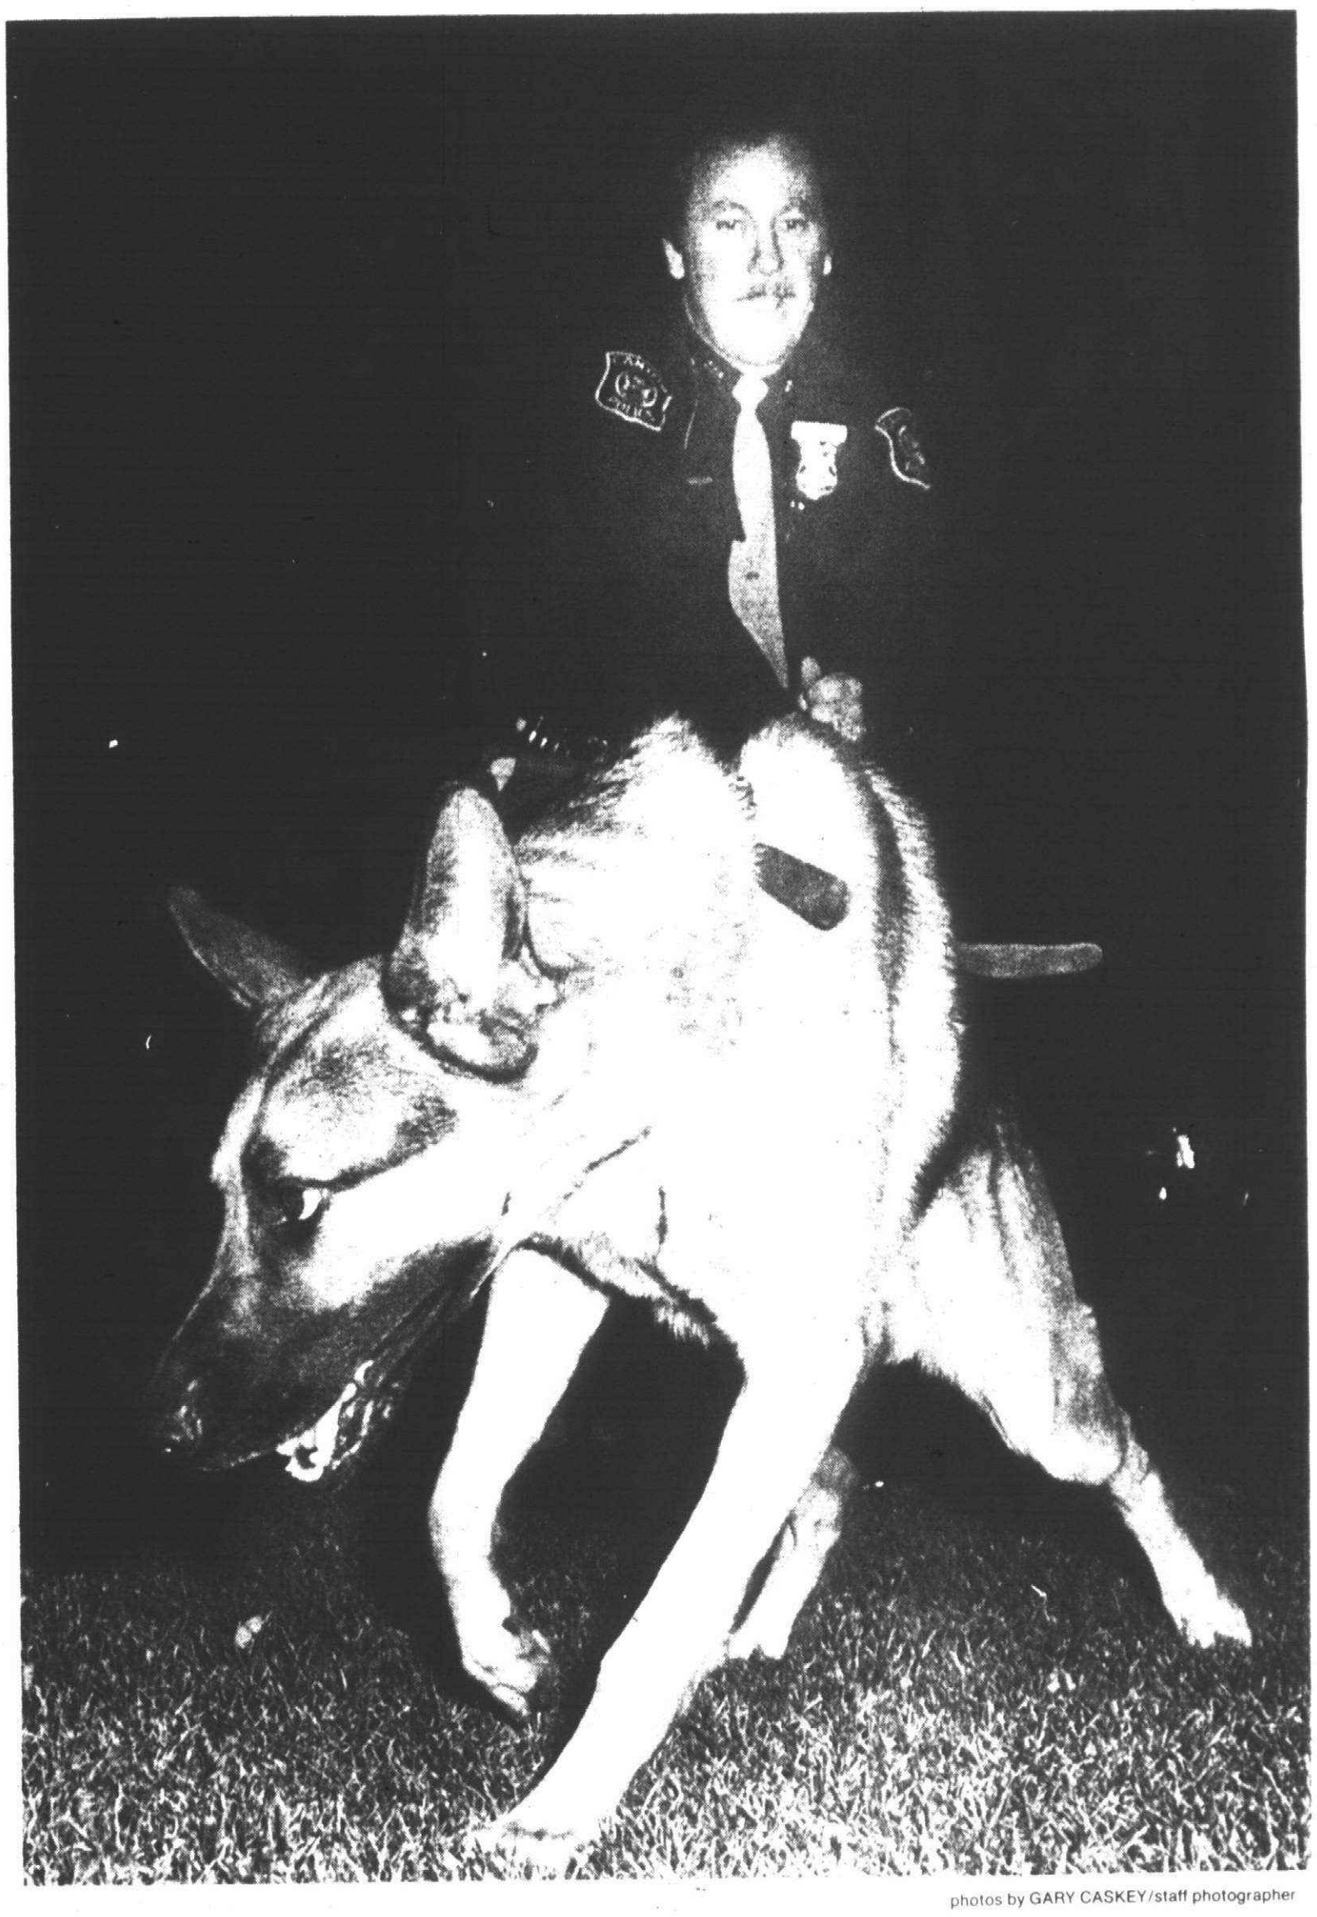

Nitro barks when he reaches his prey. Rico barks, but he also has been trained to search and bite — useful if a suspect has a gun or a hostage.

"Nitro pulls harder," said Keppen. "His ears go up. He sniffs. He hears. Without saying anything, he tells me."

Recently, Keppen and Nitro led other officers to items believed stolen from several cars in a Canton subdivision. The dog then followed the suspects' scent to a nearby wooded area. The tracking work became part of the evidence, and suspects were bound over for trial.

"We catch guys we couldn't catch before," said Keppen. "The secret of the dog being successful is being able to respond quickly to a scene — within 1½ to two hours. More (time lapse) than that is ineffective."

Will amphitheater grace school farm?

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

If present plans materialize — and the sponsors are on the optimistic side — the community will be able to boast an amphitheater next summer.

The group, with Bob Stremich as the leader, is planning to take over the school farm at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP), and convert it into what could be another Pine Knob with some of the leading attractions appearing on the stage.

At the moment, plans call for naming the facility "The Barn Yard," because it will use 90 acres of farm land that has been used by the school system for several years.

"There is no reason why an outdoor theater couldn't succeed in our area," Stremich said, when discussing the venture. "If the east side of Detroit can have a popular theater, there is no reason why the west side couldn't do the same.

"This is not going to be a volunteer project," Stremich emphasized. "We

Residents warned about break-in rash

Police have their hands full with a rash of early-evening home break-ins.

At least eight houses in the Ford-Sheldon vicinity have been broken into by someone who used a long-handled vise grip to break doorknobs. All incidents occurred early in the evening.

"It seems they are going (to a neighborhood) prior to darkness and seeing if people leave their houses," explained police Officer Davey LeBlanc, who is handling the probe.

"They are either cruising or watching," he added.

The incidents were reported between Nov. 9 and 13. All the houses were off main streets between Ford and Cherry Hill, east of Sheldon. LeBlanc said jewelry, televisions and money were taken.

THE LATEST break-ins occurred last Friday on Keystone and Fair Oaks, said LeBlanc. Police obtained their first descriptions when one homeowner heard a noise and surprised a stranger with a flashlight inside the darkened house.

Costs keep soaring

Businesses heading southward

By W.W. Edgar

What does the South and the Sunbelt have to offer that is luring industry out of Michigan?

This question was asked again last week when the Dunn Steel Products Co. announced that it was leaving Plymouth for a new location in Spencer, Tenn.

What does it have to offer? This question was put to M.T. Case, general manager of the Dunn company and he didn't hesitate to answer with facts and figures.

"The overall cost of doing business in Michigan," he said, "is much higher than these firms, including Dunn Steel, can stand and remain in business."

That was a good general answer, but what were the specific areas in which Michigan differs from other states.

"First of all, the taxes are much higher in Michigan. The wages specified in the union contracts are much higher than you find in the South. And then there is worker's compensation that is far above what is asked in the South. All of that, plus the fact that there is no sales tax and no state income tax."

Taking the items individually, the Dunn manager explained that the property taxes on shops and homes were much lower, stating that a home in the $60,000 to $70,000 range down there would be taxed at about $200 to $300 a year.

"Compare that with the taxes asked in Michigan and you have one of the reasons plants are moving."

The second reason: Wages asked in the union contracts are double in Michigan of what is asked in the South — especially in Tenneesee where the Dunn plant is moving.

"It is a matter of paying about $13 an hour up here compared to $6 or $7 an hour in the South. That is enough to cause a plant to move out of Michigan."

One of the big reasons, stated almost everywhere, is the worker's compensation law. Asked about this, Case broke it down in to the smallest denomination.

" It runs about four cents per dollar of your payroll down there, compared to 18 cents up here. Most say it is about $3.60 per $100 of payroll in Michigan compared to 80 cents in the south.

Because of these lower rates in the Sunbelt, the cost of living is much lower outside of Michigan. That means a lot to the average working man, Lower taxes. Lower contracted wages. Lower worker's compensation, lower cost of food and other services.

"Take them all," Case said, "and you have the answer to why firms are leaving Michigan."

As an example, he cited the case of the Goodyear Rubber plant in Jackson only a few miles from Plymouth . When this plant left, it stated that it cost $6.8 million more to do business in Michigan in 1980 than in any of its other plants in other states.

Case did not put all of the blame on taxes and prices. He was firm in his belief that the manaufacturers were to blame for much of the condition.

"They let themselves be talked into the high wages in the contracts. They never gave a thought to the future or how conditions might change, as they do every so often. The high wages have a great deal to do with the cost of doing business in Michigan.

The move from Plymouth to Spencer, which is 80 miles from Nashville, will not begin until the first of the year and the moving won't be completed until about next June. Meanwhile, manaufacturing will continue on a partial basis until the move is complete.

"It was a tough decision to make when we decided to move the Plymouth plant, but the figures telling of the cost of doing business in Michigan tell their own story."

New skating rink comes to area

By Dennis O'Connor
staff writer

Staff photos by Gary Caskey

Watch out, Olivia — Xanadu has come to the Plymouth-Canton community.

Well, maybe not Xanadu — but close.

"Skatin' Station" recently opened its doors, and roller skating fanatics are going ga-ga over the new facility.

The new rink, on Joy between Lilley and Haggerty in Canton, offers everthing from group skating sessions to individual and private lessons for the young and old who love to roller skate.

WOODY LYNCH, newly crowned president of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, is the owner of the $1.25-million facility which took only 86 days to construct.

"The facility has the best sound and lights in the area," Lynch says. "The security lights — we are especially proud of that."

Skatin' Station offers a variety of different skating sessions — and different music — for the avid skater.

A two-hour session costs $3 on Friday and Saturday nights and the weekend, although special sessions and particular times include different discount rates. Skate rental is $1.

Group rates for private parties cost $250 for a two-hour session in the morning or afternoon before 5 p.m., not including skate rental. There must be a minimum of 100 people for a party.

Group rates after 5 p.m. cost $275 for two hours. There must be a minimum of 150 people.

Different sessions include organ music, rock 'n roll and disco.

RULES AND REGULATIONS at the rink are basic. There is no smoking and no gum chewing in the area. Security is tight "for all groups of people so parents can feel free to have their children skate here," according to Lynch.

Two skating pros, Jim Nieman and Lynn Austin, offer private and group lessons for skaters at all levels and all ages. Lessons range from a tiny-tot program to adults.

The rink, which has a high-quality maple-wood surface, a pro-shop with a full-line of skating equipment. Skates are assembled at the pro shop, and includes everything offered in the roller skating industry, according to Lynch.

Ken Garner, former manager of the Plymouth Cultural Center, manages the new facility. Jan Olson is the assistant manager. More than 50 people are employed at the rink.

ALTHOUGH THE RINK officially opened two weeks ago, there will be a grand opening party open to all persons from 7 p.m. to midnight Sunday, Dec. 6.

There will be prizes, entertainment, food and open skating at this party. Tickets are $10 per person.

The party will serve as a fund-raiser for Plymouth and Canton area recreational programs. Lynch says he will donate revenue up to $10,000 from this party to the city of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships for recreational use.

Tickets currently are available at the recreation offices of the three governmental municipalities. The funds will be donated based on the percentage sold by each agency, according to Lynch.

Lynch hopes to make the skating party an annual event, if successful.

Skatin' Station recently opened for area roller skaing lovers. The rink is on Joy between Lilley and Haggerty in Canton.

Communities should avoid landfill bans

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Communities thinking of prohibiting or zoning out hazardous waste landfills had better think again.

"Don't go around slapping on prohibitory ordinances, or those which have that effect, or the courts will throw them out," cities and townships were advised last week.

"Negotiate," said John Sobetzer, an attorney who is executive director of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council and a member of the state Hazardous Waste Management Planning Committee.

He was one of eight speakers before an overflow crowd of 150 industrialists, waste haulers and disposal facility operators who attended an all-day conference last week at Oakland University.

Topic was state Public Act 64, the new hazardous waste management act. While the law and the planning committee gave preference to recycling and incinerating as the best methods of dealing with hazardous industrial wastes, they recognized landfills are still "a necessary evil," in one speaker's words.

STATE AND local wishes may come into conflict, Sobetzer said.

On one hand, hazardous wastes are a state responsibility. On the other, land use management is a local responsibility. Said Sobetzer: "The siting process is unique.

"Local regulations can't prohibit disposal and hauling (of hazardous wastes). The state didn't want the locals prohibiting it, but the locals have a role to play."

Sec. 20 of the state act orders the state government to "consider the impact on a community" of a hazardous waste landfill. Sobetzer said, "As long as local government engages in reasonable zoning, it can help pick the sites . . .

"Again, total exclusion will not work."

LOCAL UNITS of government should set up study committees and become familiar not only with PA 64 but with related laws such as air pollution and wetlands acts, he said.

First, he said, communities should have a "shopping list" of legitimate concerns — traffic, ground water and the like.

Second, they should plan to monitor disposal facilities and landfills for compliance with the act.

"Citizens have fear of the unknown. It's a legitimate concern," said Sobetzer. "People need to feel they can bargain to protect themselves. If they aren't meaningfully involved, they tend to get angry."

THE MANAGER of Wayne Disposal, a landfill in Belleville, said that while the public may consider landsfills "a necessary evil — or maybe just evil — I'm not signing my death warrant."

Dan Vilinus conceded the landfill operators "do have a bad guy image at this point. But we can't pass the buck. We're the low guy on the pole," meaning the landfill is the last possible link in the hazardous waste management chain.

A former employee of the environmental health section of the Wayne County Health Department, Vilinus noted that prior to the wave of environmental concern in the 1960s and '70s, "a hazardous waste was anything that exploded in your face or caught the place on fire."

Hazardous wastes may be combustible, corrosive, explosive, poisonous, or degenerative to the health of humans or beasts, by modern standards.

Vilinus warned landfill operators that "performance standards will be harder to meet than design standards. The industry needs to improve its performance in very short order."

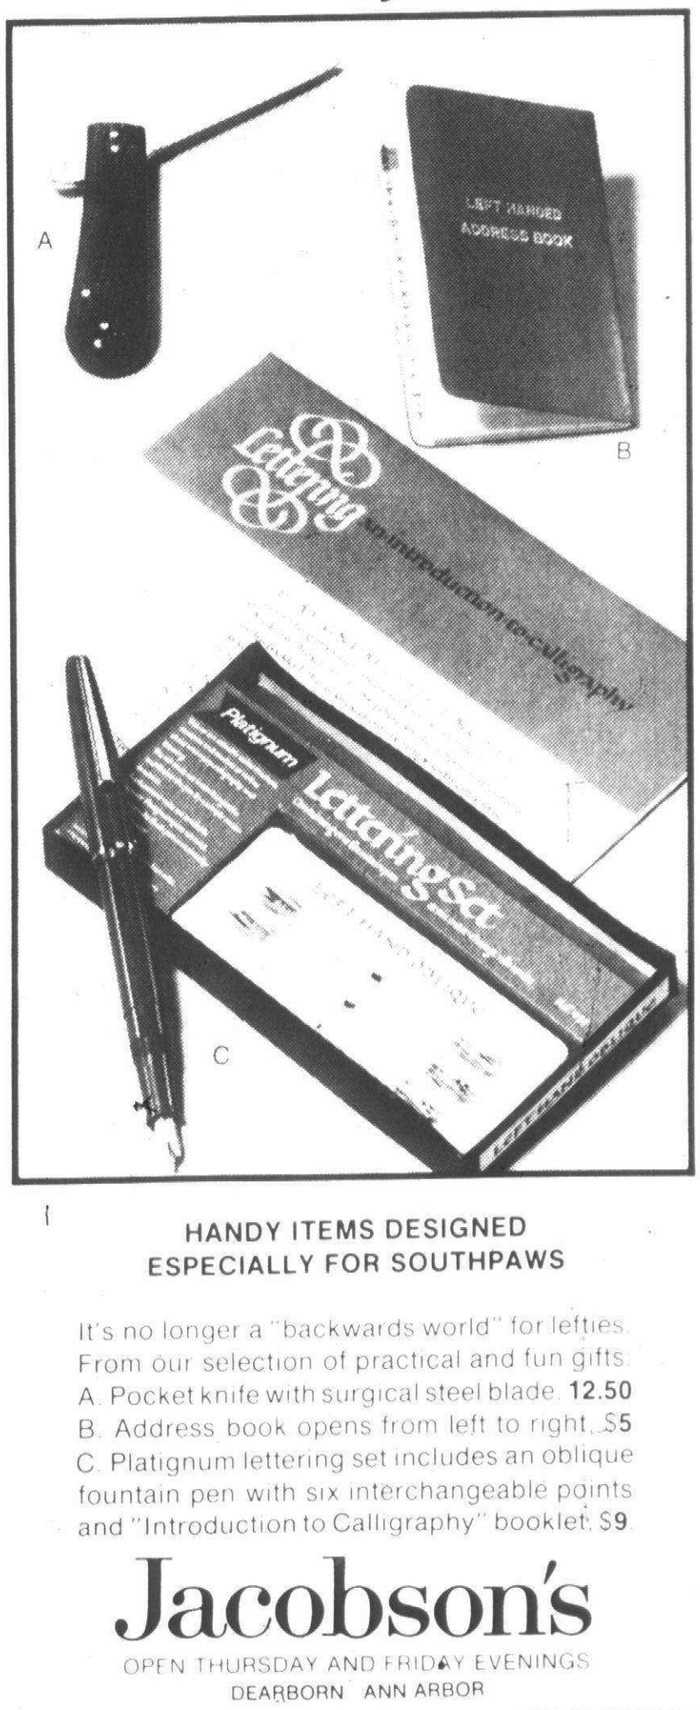

THE COMMITTEE which put together Michigan's hazardous waste management plan considered a state facility. But it decided instead to rely on private enterprise to provide treatment, storage and disposal facilities, according to one member.

Timothy A. Westerdale, president of General Oil Co., said the consensus was that "private enterprise is having a tough enough time figuring it out" without the state's stepping in as an operator.

As incentives to industry to reduce hazardous wastes, Westerdale said, state officials are considering proposing a tax credit for firms which reduce or recycle hazardous wastes.

A tax credit half as large would go to firms which incinerate their wastes. No tax credit would go to a firm relying on a landfill, he said.

Area may boast new amphitheater are so setting our plans that persons well versed in such an undertaking will handle the enterprise once it is set up."

Under the preliminary plans the profits will be turned over to the school system, with extra thought that the Plymouth Symphony will be given at least one of the stage offerings.

The amphitheater, if approved, will be a supplement to the farm. Inasmuch as the school system owns 357 acres back to Beck Road, the theater will need only 90, so it will be an added avenue of finance that will help to balance the drastic cuts made in state aid, backers of the plan believe.

The Board of Education has approved the plan in concept but final approval is pending a finalized presentation of plans. Canton Township officials reportedly also have given their blessing to the venture.

However, there still a great deal of work to be done, Stremich said.. The plans must be completed and the zoning of the property for a theater must be approved by the planning commission in Canton.

James Kosteva, Canton Township planner, said Stremich, a part owner of the Hillside Inn in Plymouth, hasn't come come to the commission with any formal plans as yet.

There was some discussion over residents in the neighboring Sunflower subdivision who might object to the idea. Sunflower's far west corner borders CEP.

Vic Gustafson, president of Sunflower Homeowners' Association, said he hasn't heard of any complaints concerning the proposed development.

Kosteva said residents' input on the project will be "a principal concern" when the plan comes up for consideration.

Nitro, Rico sniff for your protection

It may cost a police agency about $10,000 to train a dog and handler, said Kelemen.

Canton's program is much less costly. The Township Board in 1980 approved the purchase of Nitro and Rico, who cost about $350 each. Kelemen donates his time to work with the officers and dogs.

POLICE LT. Larry Stewart estimates it has cost Canton about $1,100 to buy the dogs and furnish some equipment.

"Steve Kelemen has been a blessing for us," added Stewart.

Most departments are unwilling or unable to invest the time and money for tracking dogs, said Kelemen, who has assisted police in Dearborn, Taylor Riverview and Livonia.

Keppen says he is starting to get calls for help from other police departments.

"They are going to have to justify the cost," said Kelemen. "And there have to be more qualified trainers. You can get a lot of publicity if you handle the dogs badly."

Kelemen believes other officers are learning the value of the dogs.

"The other officers are learning and knowing these people (suspects) can be caught," added Kelemen. "They are putting forth more effort."

a light-blue van which had been parked across the street, according to the report.

LeBlanc speculated the men rang the doorbell and waited a few moments, then knocked on the door. When there was no answer, they broke the doorknob.

"We had their M.O. (method of operation)," said LeBlanc. "This is the first time anybody has seen them or the vehicle."

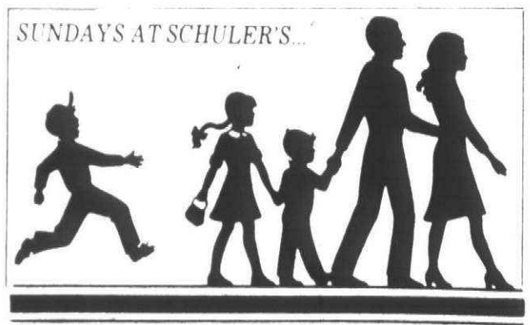

One of the men was described as about 50 years old with gray hair and an odor of cigar smoke. He was 5-feet-11 inches to 6-feet-4 inches tall and weighed between 200 and 240 pounds, according to the report.

The other man was between 18 and 25 years old, and about 5-feet-10 inches tall. He weighed about 170 pounds and had dark hair and a mustache.

Cocaine case goes to jury

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The fate of six defendants — including three from Westland and one from Plymouth Township — on cocaine conspiracy charges was put in the hands of a jury Tuesday in federal district court.

Six women and six men began deliberations after hearing testimony and closing arguments in the complicated trial, which began Oct. 19 before U.S. District Judge Avern Cohn in Detroit.

Just before giving the jurors final instructions Tuesday, Cohn denied a motion by Neil Fink, attorney for Aslan Halim, to declare a mistrial on the grounds that the judge was biased against the defendants and conveyed that bias to the jury.

The other five defense attorneys joined Fink in the motion.

The defendants, all represented by separate attorneys, were tried together.

THEY WERE accused of being involved in a cocaine ring from December 1979 through June 1, 1980. The quantities of cocaine ranged from one ounce to 6.59 pounds, according to U.S. Attorney Richard Rossman.

The defendants are:

- Robert Cox, a Westland firefighter.
- Dan Bagbey, an officer in Westland's 18th District Court.
- Glenn Gatt of Westland.
- Halim of Plymouth Township.
- Gerald Stodart of Inkster.
- Adalgiso Mancini, a citizen of Colombia who lives in Plantation, Fla.

Cox and Bageby have been suspended from their municipal duties, with pay, pending the outcome of the trial.

Key prosecution witnesses during the proceedings were Anthony Berna and Vincent Frigerio. Both had pleaded guilty and been sentenced on cocaine charges before the trial began.

BERNA, A Westland resident, pleaded guilty to distribution of cocaine and conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine in the same indictment in which the present six defendants stood trial.

Berna was sentenced to two years in prison.

Frigerio, who lives in Plymouth, pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute cocaine in another indictment and was sentenced to 3½ years in prison.

Charges against Frigerio in the present case were dropped as a result of that plea.

Bagbey's attorney, N.C. Deday LaRene, attacked the credibility of witnesses Berna and Frigerio during closing arguments.

"You are entitled to look at the objective facts about the witness, the kind of lives they lead," LaRene told the jury. "Both are three-time losers with three felony convictions, both are admitted thieves, both are desperate men."

LaRene also challenged the evidence.

"THERE IS no piece of paper that links Bagbey, no observation by a policeman or special agent, no telephone toll records, not one shred, one bit, one thing of corroboration you can add to these two folks (Berna and Frigerio)," LaRene said.

The other defense attorneys also challenged the prosecution's case during closing arguments for their clients.

However, U.S. Attorney Joseph Papelian argued that Berna and Frigerio were cedible witnesses. Papelian also argued that physical evidence also corroborated the testimony of Berna and Frigerio.

"Is Mr. Berna so sophisticated to build a story? The evidence shows you not," Papelian said. "It is often necessary to receive the cooperation of those involved to get others.

"Does the word stool pigeon connote liar?" Papelian continued. "Each has regained his honor to a degree by their cooperation. The testimony of Berna and Frigerio corroborated the evidence, shows it is believable.

"The evidence clearly shows you can find guilty men guilty," Papelian said.

"Each time a verdict is arrived at based on evidence, the quality of the criminal justice system improves," he said.

Russian import halt urged

U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor) is urging President Ronald Reagan to say "nyet" to the marketing of Russian-made trucks in the United States.

Ford said he learned from Anne Gorsuch, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, that emission standards had been certified for a Russian-made truck and that the certification of fuel economy would soon follow. These are the final steps before the Soviet vehicles can be sold in the United States.

Ford's district includes Garden City, Westland, Canton and part of Livonia.

"The American auto industry continues to suffer through the most disastrous sales slump and recession in history.

"Thousands of Michigan workers have been laid off without hopes of returning to employment in the auto plants," Ford said.

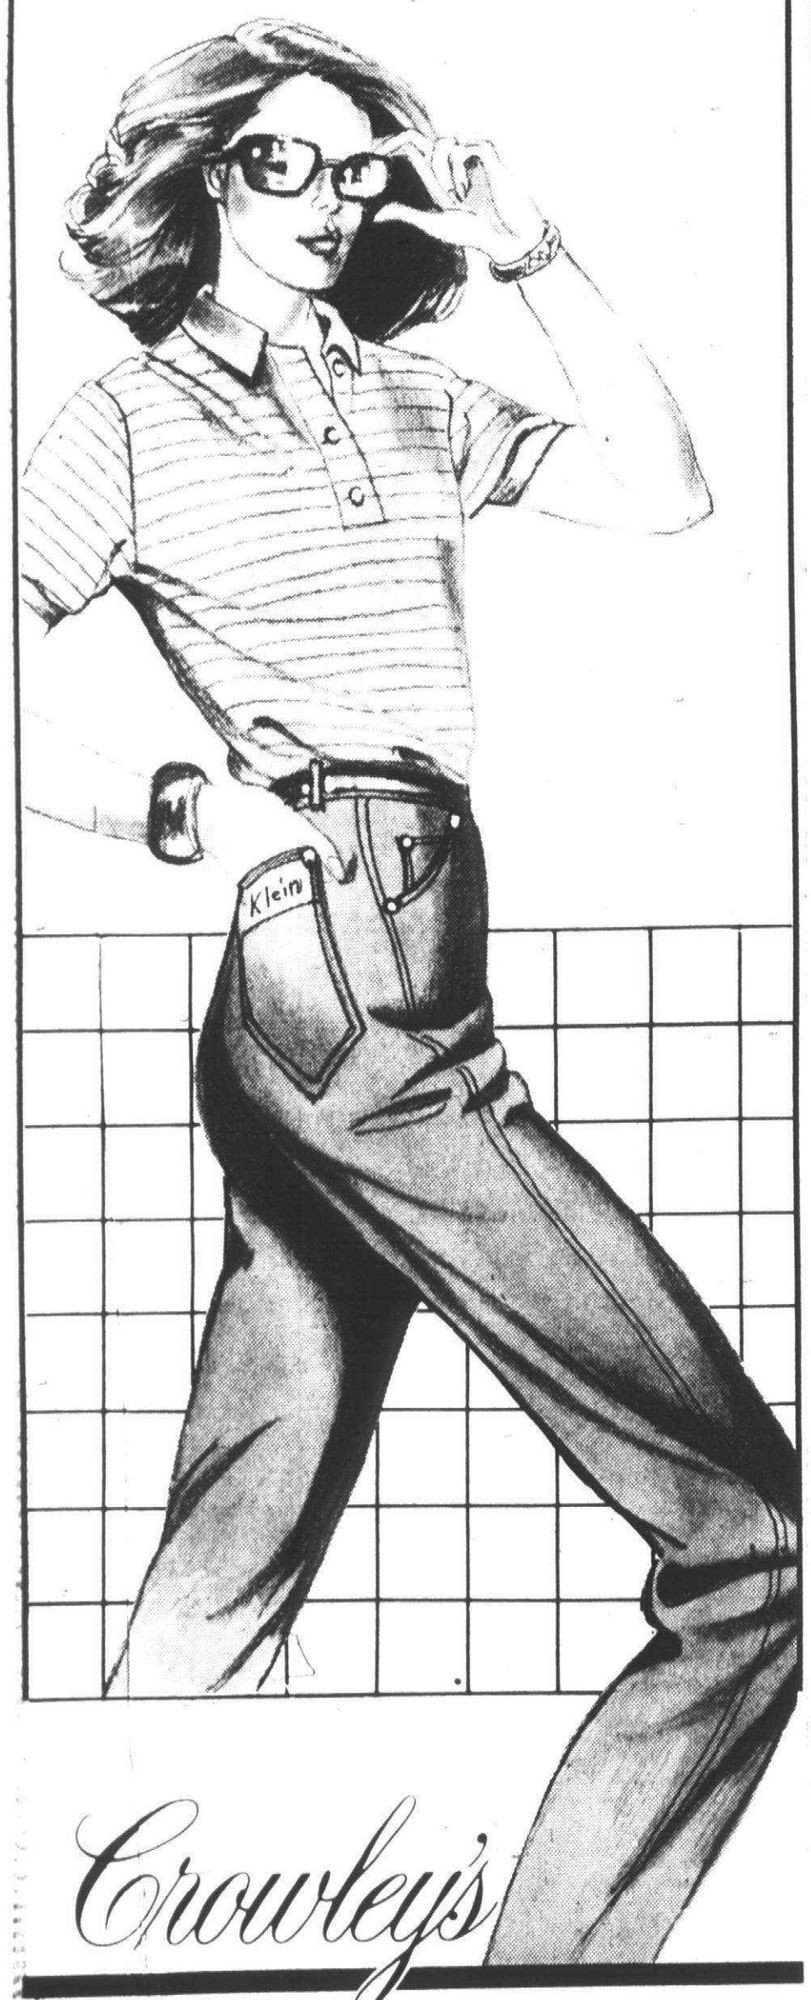

"It is simply bad public policy for the United States to sanction imports in light of this situation," he added.

IT IS inconsistent for the United States to pressure the Japanese to curtail their exports to the United States while at the same time open up auto trade for the first time to the Soviet Union, Ford said.

Clydesdale horses come to area for benefit

The world famous Clydesdale horses will put some extra kick into a special Jaycee benefit next week to help needy youngsters.

The Budweiser Clydesdales will be at Northville Downs Tuesday, Nov. 24 to help assist the Plymouth Jaycees and the Northville Jaycees with their annual Christmas For Kids campaign.

Part of the ritual of preparation for every public appearance of the Clydesdales is the polishing of the black leather and brass custom-made harnessware, worth about $35,000.

The Jaycees, in conjunction with the Jackson Trotting Association, will host a free public viewing from 3-5 p.m. Tuesday in the Northville Downs parking lot.

The Clydesdales also will be fully dressed and harnessed to lead the post parade at 7:45 p.m. and will be available for viewing throughout the evening race events.

A special feature will be the Clydesdale Cup Race which will be the fifth race of the evening. The world-famous team will lead the participants of this race in the parade and will be on hand for the awards presentation.

THE JAYCEES will be selling clubhouse admission tickets prior to the event for $2.50 each.

Jaycees also will be selling Budweiser Clydesdale collectors' steins through that day and evening.

All proceeds from these sales will go into the Jaycees Christmas For Kids fund which will be used for several holiday programs which benefit handicapped and abused children in Plymouth and Northville.

Tickets can be purchased by calling Jim Owens at 459-1597 or at the Rainbow Shop at Forest and Ann Arbor Trail or at Big Red Q Quickprint on S. Main in Plymouth.

The Jaycees made the arrangements for the arrival of appearance of the famed horses through Central Distributors of Taylor. Last July Central Distributors, through the efforts of the Jaycees and route sales manager Bill Ventola, also sponsored the Independance Day fireworks display in Plymouth.

THE EIGHT-HORSE Anheuser-Busch team of Clydesdales have been a tradition since 1933 when August A. Busch, Jr., honorary chairman of Anheuser-Busch, introduced the first Clydesdale hitch to celebrate the repeal of prohibition.

For almost 50 years now, the Clydesdales have toured the U.S. to appear at state and regional festivals, Tournament of Roses and Orange Bowl parades, the Christmas Parade in Detroit.

At Grant's Farm in suburban St. Louis County nearly 75 champion-sired pure breds make up what has become the largest band of Clydesdales in the nation. Between 15 and 20 Clydesdale foals are born each year at Grant's Farm.

All hitch horses are at least three years of age, and each must stand about 18 hands high, be bay in color, have four white stockings and feet, a blaze of white on the face plus a black mane and tail.

Three eight-horse Clydesdale hitch teams log about 40,000 miles and more than 400 public appearances each year.

The Clydesdale Operations in St. Louis receive more than 4,000 requests a year for appearances of the teams. Each 8-horse hitch is transported via a caravan in three 40-by-8-foot over-the-road vans with air cushion suspension and thick rubber flooring, vent fans, and insulation. The caravan stops every 100 miles to attend to the horses' comfort and also stops at night to give the horses exercise and a rest in spacious stalls.

A single 2,200-pound Clydesdale will consume as much as 25 to 30 quarts of feed in two daily meals, with a few pounds of carrots. The feed is a mix of beet pulp, crimped oats, bran, minerals, salt, molasses, and water.

WHAT IS CREMATION?
Cremation is simply a step in the preparation of human remains for memorialization.
After an appropriate funeral service or memorial observance, the casket or acceptable container is placed in a cremation chamber where, through a process of heat and evaporation, the body is reduced to its original elements - bone fragments.
Cremation is generally available to members of most religious faiths of the North American Continent.

WHAT IS MEMORIALIZATION?
Memorialization is the permanent placement of cremated remains according to the family's choice.

WHAT TYPES OF MEMORIALIZATION ARE AVAILABLE?
Cadillac West provides a choice of inurnment in our Columbarium or burial in the ground with bronze memorialization. Niches in a Columbarium can normally be purchased for single or double inurnment.

WHAT IS A COLUMBARIUM NICHE?
The word columbarium is derived from the Latin word "Columba," meaning dove. The dove cote or nesting area is made up of many niches where doves make their nests. Hence, a columbarium is an arrangement of recessed niches to hold cremation urns.

Working: Changes and choices

'Women's work' is alive and well in America

This is the eighth of 15 articles exploring "Working: Changes and Choices." This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, an extension program of the University of California, San Diego, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities. © 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.

By Barbara B. Lazarus
special writer

Barbara B. Lazarus has been director of the Wellesley College Office for Careers since 1975. An educational anthropologist, she is co-author of a number of articles on career planning and of several studies prepared for the National Institute of Education, including "Women and the World of Work" and "From Liberal Arts and Science to Careers: A Guide."

More than 50 percent of all American women between the ages of 16 and 65 work for pay, most of them because of economic necessity.

But despite all the media publicity about new work opportunities for women, women in the 1980s are still defined as much by their home responsibilities as by their paid jobs.

And despite the revolutionary increase in the percentage of women in the paid labor force, there has been no comparable revolution in the kinds of jobs women hold.

The majority of women are segregated in a small number of low-paying, low-status occupations with limited opportunities for advancement.

The result is that women workers today are struggling to make a living or build careers in a world still dominated by traditional attitudes toward women and work.

THE TRUTH is, of course, that women have always worked.

But the identification of "work" with paid labor is relatively recent. Throughout American's agricultural period, most of men's and women's work was an unpaid contribution to sustaining the family.

But the Industrial Revolution took work out of the home and defined it by pay. At the turn of the century and until the late 1930s, the government defined workers as those in the paid labor market above age 6 — later restricting it to those between the ages of 16 and 65.

This definition helped to obscure the general work contributions of women, which often were not for pay.

IT WAS really the definition of appropriate sex roles that effectively removed "women's work" from the definition of working. It was men who worked at, and were judged by, paid jobs. Being a successful man — a husband and a father — meant being a good economic provider.

But regardless of whether or not a women worked outside the home, being a successful woman meant being a good wife, mother and housekeeper.

Fair or not, the responsibilities and roles were clear: managing the needs of home and family was not work; being on a paid job was.

Thus one hears, "My grandfathers were farmers, my father is a lawyer, but none of the women in my family has ever worked."

EVEN UNDER this restricted definition of work, women's roles have changed greatly over the past several generations, in large part because of increased life expectancy and changing economic and social patterns.

Today, more women work for pay for longer periods of time than in the past.

- In 1900, the average life expectancy of women was less than 50 years, most of them occupied with going to school or with childbearing. A women spent an average of only six years in the paid market. Today, when the average woman lives past 75, she spends more than 25 years in paid work.
- In 1928, the average woman worker was 28, single and a high school graduate. Today she is 36, married, and the more education she has, the more likely she is to be working for pay.
- From 1950 to 1975, 11.5 million married women entered the labor force, and the number of working mothers has increased nine times since 1940.
- By the end of the 1980s, it is expected that close to 70 percent of all women will be working.

Most women have entered the paid labor force for the same reasons as men: They need the money. Almost 45 percent of all women workers in 1979 were single heads of household — a reflection of later marriages and the fact that one out of three marriages today ends in divorce.

And almost 30 percent of working women were married to men who earned less than $15,000 a year.

ALTHOUGH THE reasons for women working are the same as men's, their roles in the labor market are very different.

Most women today work in the lowest-paying occupations. The average women's earnings are less than three-fifths of the average man's.

Less than 7.5 percent of all women earn more than $15,000, compared to 40 percent of men. And a woman is 2½ times more likely than a man to end up poverty-stricken.

More than 400 occupations are listed by the Bureau of the Census, but most women are employed in 20.

One-fourth of all women work as secretaries-stenographers, bookkeepers, elementary school teachers, or waitresses.

While women are more apt than men to be white-collar workers, the jobs they hold are usually less skilled. Women as professionals and technical workers are most likely to be teachers and health workers, mostly at the lower levels.

While women constitute more than 40 percent of the labor force, only one-fifth of managers and administrators are women, and women hold only 1 percent of top management jobs.

ABOUT ONE out of seven women workers have blue-collar jobs, compared to one out of two men, but only 5 percent of skilled-crafts workers are women. And women are twice as likely as men to be service workers.

Obviously, some progress has been made, particularly in the professions; notwithstanding, the current statistical picture does not yet reflect a dramatic change in the position of women in the paid market.

While the substantially increased percentage of women now training for nontraditional jobs in the trades and professions may change this picture in the future, it is too soon to tell whether these increases represent a permanent advance for women or will be a temporary aberration.

WOMEN'S LIVES still are complicated by the traditional understanding of "women's work."

The dramatic shift in the role of women in paid work has not been matched by a similar shift in home-based work responsibilities. Although fewer women are full-time homemakers, women are still expected to have the major — if not the sole — responsibility for home and family.

Men rarely share equally in household and family responsibilities. On the contrary, women spend approximately four times as many hours as men in home and family work.

And with the rising divorce rate, an increasing percentage of women have sole responsibilities for all home-based work. The burden of rearing children today may help explain why the birth rate in the late 1970s was half that of 1957.

TODAY WOMEN workers are faced with complicated new questions — not, "Will I work?" but, "Where will I work?" "Will I get or stay married?" "Will I have children?" And, "How will I manage it all?"

Women with the least skills have the fewest options. But even professional women face problems of role stereotypes. After all, a man who is a doctor is simply a "doctor," but a woman is a "woman doctor." Our very language highlights the exceptional nature of her work and her double responsibilities as homemaker and "worker."

Unattached professional women may have fewer daily demands on them, but they may be viewed as unsuccessful "women."

Women in high-status positions may have another disadvantage. Traditionally, a man could devote himself to establishing a career because someone else — usually his wife — provided a comfortable home and managed the social arrangements necessary to success on the job. Without a "wife," women may find it difficult to follow the traditional path to success.

Answering today's critical questions about women and work will necessitate radical changes in the definition of "men's work" as well as changes in work structures and social attitudes. Career counseling, new education and training programs, part-time jobs and flexible hours, and quality child care are only a few of the changes needed.

But one thing is clear: While the answers may not be easy and the changes they bring may be unsettling, something must be done. Jobs and home and family cannot all be "women's work." No one has the time to do it all.

Local car painting firm enjoying a healthy year

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

In these days when the automobile industry is in the doldrums and much of the blame is placed on the Japanese imports, it may be surprising to learn that there is a plant in Plymouth that is connected with the industry that grossed more than $60 million last year.

It is the Durr Company, now housed in the white building east of the Burroughs plant that at one time housed the Whitman-Barnes plant.

The company, managed by Reinhold F. Durr, is one of 18 firms that are part of a holding company with headquarters in Stuttgart, Germany. And, while the United States is suffering a slump, the Durr Company, which manufactures the sophisticated machinery needed for the painting of autombiles, does aheavy export business in Mexico and South America, aside from aiding the home plant in Germany when called upon.

"The painting of automobiles has become a highly sophisticated business in the past 20 years," said Durr, who is the son of one of the founders of the home company. "And it requires much more than a bucket of paint, a brush and a chamois cloth to polish them."

Sitting his office on the second floor of the attractive building located on 26 acres, Durr explained the change.

"THE PRESENT laws that ban the release of the paint oriented air, require special equipment to clean the air before it is released. The same is true with the releaae of water. It must be cleaned before we can discharge it into the rivers and lakes and the various other systems. And all this requires special sophisticated equipment."

In order to meet all the legal demands, Durr pointed out that an automobile must be heated at least 10 times during the process of being painted. And with each heating it must be cooled — and fast — so that no time is wasted.

" All this has changed the automobile painting activity and it now requires the construction of special booths made of sheet metal. There are other parts that are needed from time to time and we are equipped to make them here, too. So It is a bee hive of activity when the auto industry is going good."

AT THE PRESENT time the Plymouth plant is preparing to fulfill a contract with Volkswagen to construct its paint shop in Sterling Heights. And as Durr put it, " This will be a big job."

While he didn't confide the cost of the new Volkswagen paint shop, he did say that the new General Motors paint shop near Lake Orion would run very close to $200 million.

The younger Durr, who now is 46, confides that he has grown up in the automobile painting business.

He left his native Germany and settled in Mexico in 1966. After helping to establish a firm there, he came to Livonia in 1971 where he operated a plant on Globe Street in the industrial park. The firm soon outgrew that location. And when Whitman-Barnes moved from the Plymouth Road site he was quick to take over the building of 240,000 square feet and the 26 acres.

At the moment the Durr plant employs about 450 persons, one third of them in the spacious offices.

Container port business up

Though surrounded by economic gloom, Detroit's container port is enjoying one of its brightest business years ever, according to the Detroit Wayne County Port Authority.

Container Marine Terminal (CMT) reported it surpassed its total annual amount handled of 1980, and is likely to approach its record volume of 1979. CMT has been in operation on the Detroit River since 1977.

Windsor Detroit Barge Lines is spending more than $700,000 to ready three additional barges and to repower an additional tugboat. The barge company broke its own annual record in August.

"PEOPLE ARE becoming more aware of the service," said Joseph Carollo, Windsor Detroit Barge Line president. "The new port authority is getting the word out. It's a reliable, cost-effective way to move cargo and our business volume bears that out."

Containers for export are barged from CMT to Ontario and railed to ocean ports. This "land bridge" is open even during winter months and is currently more economical than either direct ship or rail to U.S. East Coast ports.

Joseph Auwers, executive director of the Detroit Wayne County Port Authority, said much of the new business going through CMT is cargo abandoning the more costly routes. "The transportation advantages we enjoy in Detroit are significant," says Auwers.

THE SURGE in exports is led by Amway Products, beans and hides.

Shipments of household products by Amway of Grand Rapids through CMT are up roughly 400 percent from last year.

Beans, destined for Europe, are the biggest single commodity handled at the terminal, and a terminal spokesman estimates their volume doubled in 1981. Hide exports have also grown steadily.

On the import side, whiskey and wine are the largest volume commodities, with brass and tractor parts also accounting for a significant share of the business. Much of the brass is for the manufacture of fittings for indoor kerosene heaters.

Total volume at Container Marine Terminal was 20,123 TEUs (20-foot equivalent units) for the 10-month period ending Oct. 31, up 15 percent from the equivalent period of 1980.

German citizens compare similar surroundings

By Kevin Rosner
special writer

The author, Kevin Rosner, is a former resident of Plymouth and a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School who now is living in Germany. The following account compares the town he is in now with his hometown.

Nikolaus Conrad arises from his bed and prepares for another day. The September air is cool, but the sun is bright and pleasant. The large trees which line the street are beginning to turn their customary reds and golds. Yes, football season is here.

But instead of rooting for a team of well-padded giants like the Detroit Lions, these players are lean, comparatively light, and dribble the ball with their feet.

Nikolaus is similar to other bright and sensitive men who work and live in Plymouth, but the aspects of his daily life as a German citizen living in Bavaria are different. Unlike many other Germans, but much like many ex-Detroiters, Nikolaus was mobile at a young age.

Instead of remaining in his northern town of Lubek, he moved south to Bavaria and, more specifically, to the Munich suburb of Fuerstenfeldbruck. Fuerstenfeldbruck is 30 km. southwest of Munich, the same respective distance from Plymouth to Detroit, and prescribes a metropolitan population bent on retaining its small town ambiance against the encroachment of the more conventional apartment complexes.

IF PLYMOUTH has strained to preserve its relatively simple, colonial architecture along Main Street, so has Fuerstenfeldbruck, with perhaps a little less effort, tried to preserve their architecture which ranges from a straight line gothic to the more elaborate baroque.

It is the architecture of a village still very much steeped in its history; and one cannot help but be struck by the fact that when Plymouth was only a coach stop between Ann Arbor and Detroit, this village of Fuerstenfeldbruck already had been in existence for more than 300 years.

Today, Fuerstenfeldbruck is a sprawling and modern village whose population numbers 50,000 for the area compared to a modest 32,000 for the city of Plymouth itself.

As in both places housing at any price is expensive, but even more painful is the high cost of land in Fuerstenfeldbruck. At $160 per square meter, a quarter acre lot would cost $162,000, the price of a comparative lot in Plymouth's city proper.

CONRAD LEAVES his house by way of bicycle to the S Bahn station (a commuter train stop).

Riding to the station he passes huge apartment villages in the process of being built. They stand on rough, unseeded ground alongside other apartments finished and neat in their sameness. Some of the apartments have been set aside for a number of Russian, Polish, and Turkish immigrants, but the for most part they are a necessary reaction to a successful capitalistic system.

In our own way, the people of Plymouth and township of Canton have reacted to this same situation. Subdivisions of houses such as Canterbury Woods stand where only 10 years ago and less the roads were flanked by fields of soy beans and corn given way to a suburban community without a center.

Call it Canton or West Fuerstenfeldbruck, it is all the same. A row here and there of shops, several churches, some small industry, and just as West Fuerstenfeldbruck depends on Fuerstenfeldbruck (several kilometers away), so does Canton depend on Plymouth for its identity.

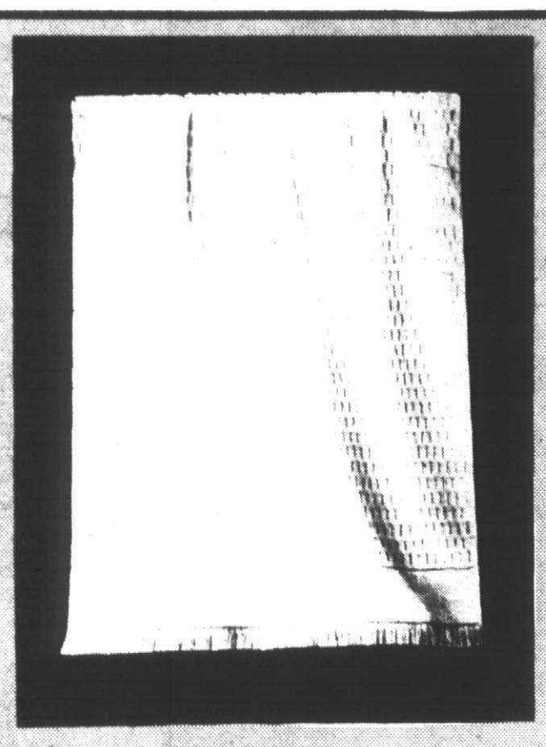

NIKOLAUS CONRAD'S train leaves at 7:20 a.m., but he neither rushes nor dawdles on his way. German trains are punctual. You can set your watch by them. Period.

Because his firm is located on the distant side of Munich, he purchases a weekly ticket fashioned to his particular wants and needs. Each commuter's weekly ticket is calculated by the number of zones he passes through and Conrad's ticket costs an inexpensive $10 for seven days of travel.

What is even more impressive is that his firm pays a portion of his commuting expense and thereby supports the use of public transportation over the private use of automobiles. This method of using a bicycle and train is by far the most distinct difference between him and his Plymouth counterpart. It is a difference developed out of need, but nevertheless a very effective system at that.

BOARDING THE TRAIN most of the businessmen and passengers are conventionally dressed in suit and tie, but there also is a good percentage dressed in traditional Bavarian dress which ranges for the women from bright printed dresses with a apron-like covering to the men's lederhose, a one-piece leather outfit consisting of suspenders and shorts.

Plymouth has nothing comparable unless one includes the special attire worn by some at the Fall Festival, but nothing on a daily bases. It is a strange sight at first for one unaccustomed to such things, and is yet another custom they strive to uphold.

Professor's hypnosis is behavior-changing therapy

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

For the fifth time Joan, a middle-aged divorcee, has fallen for a married man. She tells her friends she wants to get married. Yet once again she has settled for a relationship that probably will go nowhere.

Joan says she needs professional counseling. If she talked to Dr. Jude Cotter, social science professor at Oakland Community College, he would suggest hypnosis.

Hypnosis? That stage show gimmick where someone in the audience quacks like a duck? That movie cliche where food starts smelling like rotten eggs?

Hypnosis might make zany theater, but it is not the kind Cotter has in mind.

When Cotter talks about hypnosis, he means a therapy which he feels can make pain go away, make people stick to a diet, cure hang-ups in the bedroom and, yes, help a middle-aged divorcee stay away from married men.

"THERE IS NOTHING magic about hypnosis," said Cotter, who has a Ph.D in both sociology and psychology and teaches a popular OCC course called "Marriage and Family in Modern Society." "It is just one tool among many to get someone to change their behavior."

Cotter readily admits that each practitioner of the 250 different types of therapy currently in use in America "thinks his is the best."

And he thinks the same about hypnosis.

"My goal is to help people find a fair chunk of happiness," Cotter said. "The professional use of hypnosis teachs people the enormous amount of control they can have over themselves."

Cotter stumbled onto hypnosis 20 years ago as a Detroit schoolteacher. There were times, he said, when "something special" existed between him and his students. He later found out this "something special" was group hypnosis.

"Hypnosis is vastly different from what most people think it is," Cotter said. "Daydreaming is a form of self-hypnosis. So is losing oneself in one's work or driving down a road and not remembering the stops and the turns. Even a doctor who has a 'good bedside manner' could be using some form of hypnosis."

AFTER SENSING the "something special" classroom feeling and realizing it could be hypnosis, Cotter said he set out to learn the technique "in the proper way."

"Of course, where I say 'proper,' you have to realize this is only my own opinion," Cotter said. "Most hypnotists don't like someone to question their own credentials." To him, this meant joining the American Society of Clinical Hypnotists, an organization, he said, which only accepted for membership medical doctors, dentists and Ph.Ds.

Not until 1978 did Cotter begin to use hypnosis "formally." At that time, he began to do research on patient pain through the Southfield-based Institute for Pain Research and Control.

He now counsels patients who have suffered "catastrophic" injuries, working out of Farmington Hills Counseling Services Inc.

Patients don't come to him — he goes to them. His treatment plan covers not only the patient but the whole family. Patients, Cotter said, often "get rid of pain in a hospital setting," only to have it return once they get home.

AS A DOCTOR of psychology, Cotter said he understands the "psychological dimension" to pain.

"A guy hurts his back in a dirty, hot foundry. He goes to a hospital where 'angels' take care of him there. What is his reward when he gets better? Go back to the dirty, hot foundry."

Cotter said he gives to his patients the ability to relax, the means to withdraw into some pleasant scenario when the pain gets unbearable and the post-hypnotic suggestion that they can be whatever they want to be.

Cotter described some of the hard-to-shake fears some patients have about the use of hypnosis. "People are afraid they will do or say something they won't ordinarily do or say. They are afraid they will lose control and don't want someone to have control over them."

All these fears, Cotter said, are unfounded.

DOING MOST of the talking during a hypnotic session, Cotter tapes each session and gives the tape to patients to play.

"Anyone who really wants to break out of a pattern will play back the tape when they feel they are backsliding," Cotter said.

Solar-heated home holding open house

Ed and Peggy Stevens of Canton believe that solar energy is not "the coming thing" or something that will be big in the future but is a energy source which works today.

They have had a solar heat system on their home since December 1980 and are holding an open house this Sunday so interested persons can see how the system works.

The open house will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Stevens live at 43535 Argonne Court. Their home is found by taking Palmer Road to Morton Taylor, heading north on Morton Taylor to the first street, turning west on Fredricksburg, and then left on Argonne which is a short court. "We have had the system in our home since December 1980," says Stevens. "Actually it's a simple device. The collector is mounted a south wall. The room air is recycled through the collector where it picks up the heat of the sun.

"The air is then redistributed back to the room. It works by natural connection. What's suprising is that it will work even when the skies are cloudy or overcast."

The collector system is called an "airwall." Energy savings from the system plus the solar energy tax rebates can pay for the installation in less than five years, says Tom McMurtrie of Suntemp Solar of Novi, the installer of the system.

"The thing which most people don't realize is that solar makes sense now — today — precisely because fuel costs are at their highest level in history," adds McMurtrie.

"Solar is simply a good investment. Saving energy means saving money. As energy costs go up, your savings go up. Your investment pays for itself and after that it keeps on paying. Solar is just good common sense."

NAMED A DIPLOMATE

Dr. Steven R. Leininger of Plymouth recently was named a diplomate of the American Board of Veterinary Practitioners (ABVP), the only private practitioner in Michigan to be so honored.

Diplomate status is conferred as a result of completing a two-day examination designed to recognize those veterinarians who excel in the disciplines related to clinical practice.

The exam measures the candidate's ability in clinical and pre-clinical sciences: general medicine, surgery, anesthesiology, radiology, cardiology, and others.

The ABVP was founded in 1978 to promote the improvement of veterinary practice standards and knowledge and also to recognize clinical practioners who are qualified to deliver modern, comprehensive veterinary care.

Dr. Leininger operates Plymouth Veterinary Hospital along with his wife Dr. Mary Beth Leininger. The clinic is the only one in the Plymouth-Canton area accredited by the ABVP.

Dr. Leininger has been the chairman of the continuing education committee of the Southeastern Michigan VMA for the past four years, and recently was named head of continuing education for the 100th annual meeting of the Michigan VMA to be held this month in the Hyatt Regency Dearborn.

How one Northern city faced 'downsized' taxes

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

For a year Massachusetts residents and cities have seen the meaning of "downsizing" government in concrete terms.

The Bay State was once reputed to have the highest state and local taxes in the nation. But in 1980, the home of the Boston Tea Party got fed up with escalating taxes and jumped on the tax-revolt bandwagon.

Instead of dumping tea, people vented their anger over taxes at the polls, cutting their continued escalation through Proposition 2½. It placed a cap on local property taxes and cut state taxes 2.5 percent, reducing state revenue $40-$50 million the first year.

"SUPPLY-SIDE" economists say the tax cut stimulated business and lowered unemployment in a state with long-standing unemployment, according to "The Almanac of American Politics 1982" by Barone and Ujifusa.

But how have local governments fared with downsized budgets?

George Colella, mayor of Revere, Mass., last week came to Mercy College of Detroit to a conference on downsizing. Sponsored by the Metropolitan Affairs Corp., the conference drew representatives from 100 southeastern Michigan local governments.

"It's a time of cost-cutting, contracting, regionalizaton and reorgahization," Colella said. "All services will diminish in the next few years. No community can deliver all services."

In spite of all the city cutbacks, Colella said "the repeal of Proposition 2½ would be neither politically nor intellectually defensible.

"It is the worst of times, but it is also the most challenging of times."

He was armed with what he called "concrete" meanings of this latest government buzzword.

"TO MAKE UP for a $6 million loss in Revere's 1981-82 budget," Colella said the city in the last 365 days has:

- Laid off 200 city employees.
- Closed two elementary schools, turning them into senior citizens' housing with the aid of federal and state funds.
- Built an energy-efficient new school with the anticipated tax revenues from the new senior housing.
- Cut back on school transportation, forcing students within three miles of their schools to walk.
- Ended subsidies to school cafeterias, putting them on a "self-sustaining" system.
- Monitored all school buildings for energy use.
- Used only energy-efficient buildings for after-school use.
- Forced athletic teams to pay for their own uniforms.
- Used senior citizens to maintain parks under a federal grant.
- Eliminated school crossing guides.
- Came up with an emergency-response plan using the fire and medical services of three neighboring communities.
- Pooled city purchases with neighboring cities to make them more cost effective.

School group shuns challenge of state formula

A group of western Wayne County school districts won't sue the state legislature to get more state aid.

A New York court recently said that state must find a new way to pay for public education. Its financing plan is similar to Michigan's.

The Michigan Association for Improved School Legislation unanimously agreed Thursdya to not sue the state — as a group.

But local school boards may still consider legal challenges to the formula on their own.

MAISL represents 10 school districts, including Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton and Redford Union.

Over the years, it has lobbied the state Legislature for more money for public schools.

several reasons were given for MAISL not challenging the state aid formula.

According to one school superintendent at the monthly breakfast meeting, if the association "appeared to be championing a cause, it may undermine the effectiveness" of Gerald Dunn, its executive director.

Another factor, said the Superintendent Michael Washburn of Garden City, was that a legal challenge may split the association membership since several districts in the group receive little or no state aid.

Other districts with a less wealthy tax base continue to rely on state aid for a large percentage of their revenues.

THE POTENTIAL civil suit discussion started several weeks ago when the New York Court of Appeals ruled that the state's aid formula for public schools in several large cities was unconstitutional.

The New York ruling encouraged Michigan school officials because the concepts are basically the same — the state ties its contributions to local schools to the relative property tax wealth of each district.

But William Bedell, Romulus school superintendent and a former longtime Livonia Public Schools' business manager, has been arguing for years that the state aid formula prevents equality in public education.

He has said that under the existing Michigan formula, school districts with a wealthy tax base with little or no state revenues spend substantially more per student than those with a "poor" tax tax and more state support.

That formula prevents equal educational opportunities, he has said in other talks on the topic.

He has consistently urged that more money be given to the poorer districts.

SEVERAL WEEKS ago, Bedell said he may want to challenge the Michigan school aid formula.

But he initated the motion at the latest MAISL meeting to avoid having the association as a group challenge the Michigan school formula.

The association's stand follows an identical recommendation made the previous week by the association's superintendents.

The law concerning Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) will change dramatically starting January 1, 1982. Anyone with an earned income will be eligible for an IRA regardless of coverage by another pension plan. And, there are other changes you should know about. For instance, you can deposit up to $2,000 ($2,250 if you have a non-working spouse) per year in a Manufacturers IRA and shelter it from your current year's tax. What's more, the interest earned on accumulated IRA deposits is tax-free until withdrawal. There is, however, a substantial interest and tax penalty for early withdrawal.

If you have an IRA now or are thinking about opening one, you should be aware of the new requirements and benefits. Manufacturers will send you a FREE brochure which explains IRAs, Keogh Plans or Simplified Pension Plans (SPP).

Just fill in the attached coupon. Manufacturers will fill you in on the details.

Tom Lulek shows a glass heat unit which emits clean, radiant heat.

Glass heating may save money

By Nancy Ferguson
staff writer

With gas and oil prices skyrocketing, consumers are being forced to seek alternative ways of heating their homes.

Scott Weimer and Tom Lulek believe Radiant Glass Heat is the answer to future heating problems. Weimer and Lulek went into the glass heating business in Plymouth about six months ago when they formed Absolute Comfort.

The concept which uses tempered glass panels operated by electricity to heat homes has been around 30 years, Weimer said.

Why hasn't it caught on before this? Because, until recently, gas and oil have been relatively low cost sources of heat, said Weimer.

But with the possibility of gas deregulation, prices could double or triple. With a radiant glass heat system, homeowners could save as much as 50 percent on their heating bill, Weimer said.

THE SYSTEM consists of four-inch-wide glass panels installed on walls, as window valances, and along baseboards. The panels operate on 220-volt household current, as do stoves.

The glass gives off heat like rays in an arc. The rays are similar to the infrared rays given off by the sun, Weimer said.

The rays heat people not air. With the glass heat, the room temperature doesn't vary more than two degrees from the floor to the ceiling. It is a very uniform source of heat, he said.

Other advantages of the system are that it is cleaner, dust free and involves no maintenance.

Weimer and Lulek will give free heat surveys to potential customers. They measure the home or business and take into consideration the contruction of the building. They can then estimate the yearly cost of using the system.

The price of installing the glass radiant heat is $4,000- $5,000. But, Weimer said, with gas and oil prices doubling and tripling, the system will prove to be much more economical in the long run.

For more information, call Weimer at 459-4720 or 453-7982.

New topics added to medical tapes

Stress, grief and depression are the topics of four tapes which have added to the phone-in library of TEL-MED, a free Plymouth-Canton area telephone health information service.

The tapes, initiating a new TEL-MED Mental Health series called "Counseline," deal with emotional problems increasing in Michigan as the economy worsens.

To listen to a tape, call TEL-MED toll-free and give the operator the number of the tape you choose.

Two tapes provide information about depression — the most widespread mental health problem today.

Entitled "What Is Depression?" (CL 431) and "How to Deal With Depression" (CL 432), the tapes describe episodes of depression ranging from "the blues" to feelings of utter despair which characterize more serious depression.

"Coping With Stress" (CL 38) discusses stressful situations and the impact of prolonged stress. The tape suggests steps to improve your handling of stress.

"Understanding Grief" (CL 85) considers the intense distress arising from various kinds of change or loss and ways to readjust to a changed environment.

TEL-MED may be called by dailing 668-1551 in Ann Arbor or 434-6120 in Ypsilanti from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The service is sponsored by Washtenaw United Way (a United Way of Michigan agency), the Washtenaw Medical and Dental Societies, and the hospitals of Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Regional group urges U.S. benefits to 'frostbelt'

By Tim Richard
staff writer

To the Reagan Administration, the Northeast-Midwest congressional coalition is indulging in parochialism.

To Diana Hamilton, regional differences are very real — and the 18 Northern industrial states are hurting.

"Those 18 states sent $160 billion more to Washington, D.C., in taxes than they got back," said the executive director of the U.S. Senate side of the Northeast-Midwest coalition.

And dipping into a stack of resesarch booklets, she produces the facts that Michigan gets back 66 cents of each tax dollar it sends to the federal government while New Mexico gets back $1.91.

"BUT WE WANT to stay away from inciting regional warfare," she said on a visit to southeast Michigan arranged for her last week by U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich. Riegle is co-chairman of the group along with Republican Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania.

Michigan is a leader in the coalition on both sides of the Capitol. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, is a co-chairman in the House.

"The Sunbelt vs. the Frostbelt plays well in the press," said Ms. Hamilton. "But our legislative victories came when we reached out and got Western votes."

She recalls it was a president from New York, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who responded during the depression to the needs of the South. "We hope," she said, "the South would remember."

One recent victory was an amendment to a defense appropriations bill funneling some contract money into the high unemployment states of the Northeast-Midwest.

"We want to work with the West to develop a national policy on water," said Ms. Hamilton, stressing that a single policy is insufficient to serve the diverse needs of the 50 states.

POLITICALLY, she said, the Senate is a key forum for the Northeast-Midwest.

Reason: As of 1982, those states will lose 17 of the 213 House seats — 8 percent of their political muscle — while their Senate seats remain at 36.

The region is defined as extending from Missouri northward to Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and all states north of them.

"There is a common economic denominator in the Northern industrial tier. In the '50s and '60s, there was increasing development in the South and West. In '76, a group of congressmen came together and realized the economic tables had turned. REA (rural electrification), TVA (Tennessee Valley Authority), canals, roads and ports had changed it.

"The Northeast-Midwest never pulled out of the recession of '73," she said. The draining of its tax money to the South and West has exacerbated the problem, she added.

"There's too much invested — capital plant, natural resources, universities — to neglect it," she argued.

Reagan's budget director, David Stockman, though he is a former Michigan congressman, doesn't see it that way. Stockman holds that national policies don't have regional effects.

MS. HAMILTON advises Michiganians shouldn't be too quick to oppose the U.S. Navy's proposed Project ELF in the Upper Peninsula, noting the extremely low-frequency radio grid is now being supported by Carl Levin, Michigan's junior Democratic senator.

"Consider the environment," she said, "but Michigan can't afford to be fussy. Michigan needs every defense dollar it can get.

"We hear rumors they're going to close down Sawyer Air Force Base (near Marquette). In order to have the Defense Department favorable to your request (to keep it operating), you have to be responsive to theirs.

Schools first, Senator says

The legislature should live up to its responsibilities in providing for the educating of Michigan's young people, says Senator Bob Geake.

Geake is the Republican senator from the 14th district, which includes Plymouth.

"If the State of Michigan is to survive, we must reorganize our spending priorities and discontinue our misplaced emphasis on social services," Geake says. "Welfare spending in Michigan is nearly 40 percent above the national level. Our welfare benefits are the fourth highest in the nation."

The higher education budget in Michigan rose only 4 percent in the last 10 years, while inflation rose 103.5 percent and the state budget increased 140 percent, says Geake.

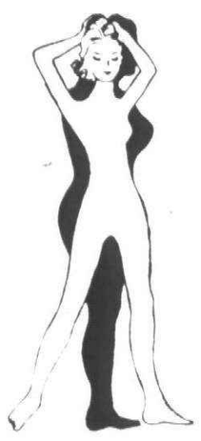

"Where has all the money gone? It has gone to fund a non-productive welfare maintenance system. During that same 10-year period, social services spending in Michigan soared 213 percent.

"As a result of reduced state funding for education the Alpena schools have closed their doors, Taylor schools are broke and will close in November and Romulus schools are $3 million in debt.

"In Rockford and my district of Livonia, youngsters are riding on dangerously over-crowded school buses, if they are riding at all."

In 1970, social services received less than 20 percent of the state's general fund. In 1981 almost 40 percent of the budget was appropriated for welfare. In 10 years social services spending has almost tripled while school spending has fallen behind the inflation rate, the senator says.

"I believe the future of Michigan rests not with a heavily funded wefare maintenance system which contributes nothing to providing an educated work force," Geake says. "Rather, it rests with a strong emphasis on educating and developing the minds of our greatest natural resource, the youth of this state."

'Alternative homes' may be the answer

Parents are quick to move children into alternative schools when they start having discipline problems or hear horror stories about public schools.

But alternative schools aren't the solution. Alternative homes are.

Charging schools with the sole responsibility for discipline is a backward approach to the problem.

When a child has a cold, a parent doesn't treat the runny nose in hopes of stopping the fever. Instead the fever which is causing the runny nose is treated.

Placing the responsibility for discipline on the schools is treating a symptom while ignoring the disease.

Behavior problems, whether at public or nonpublic schools, are symptoms of an illness. And the spreading disease is caused by the failure of parents to fulfill their responsibilities.

Sadly enough, the disease is reaching epidemic levels. The plight of school-age children is characterized with the increasing lack of respect for school rules, society's laws and even other persons.

But as quickly as the finger is pointed at the students, the blame is to be found in homes.

Just as a baby learns to talk by observing the parents, so the child learns behavior by the example set in the home.

How can children be expected to respect other persons, respect the rules of society or even respect themselves when their role model is found in a home where respect is not taught?

The truth is respect must be learned before it can be pacticed.

Today's home, in many cases, is a sad place to learn respect. Most families don't even respect each other, let alone persons outside the home.

Families often spend more time in front of the television than spending quality time with each other.

When someone cares enough about a person, there's a desire to actually know that person, who he is, how he thinks or where he is at. It's a good start in learning respect.

Think of the message a child receives when a parent is able to overlook the small annoying habits of others.

The youngsters get a good dose of respect when they can see mom and dad are big enough to get along despite disagreements. It's safe to say most of the problem areas in families start with a lack of respect. Parents and adults have failed to be examples.

It's not surprising families have lost their sense of respect. Society has lost its whole basis for it.

The humanist ideology which governs laws, practices and attitudes today has no place for absolute morals or values.

Without the absolutes there isn't a basis for determining right and wrong, good and bad, respect and disrespect.

The blame isn't society's because society starts with the individual.

And it's parents who have let this ideology creep into the way of life, not the children.

Blaming schools for discipline problems is like trying to go fishing with a shotgun. It's just not the right way to go about things if you expect to be successful.

Discipline should begin in the home. So if there are problems at school, don't change the school. Try changing the home.

Look at a home where the child learns respect from the example of the parents and other family members. It's a home where parents take an active role in the child's public education.

Think of the home as the place where parents hold the ultimate responsibility for the education and discipline, not the school.

Try putting the child in a family which has a basis for determining right and wrong, good and bad, respect and disrespect.

Start treating the cause of the illness; quit looking at the symptoms.

Poor time for local tax slash

Tim Richard

Sometimes the old ideas are best. Ask any Jew. Ask any Christian. Ask any lover of Greek philosophy.

That thought struck me as I read reporter Marie Chestney's interview with Richard Headlee, who was speaking not as an advocate of tax limitation or Reaganomics, but as chairman of the board of Oakland University.

Headlee advocated cutting out the "duplication and competition between southeastern Michigan universities." We need, he said, more cross-university cooperation and less turf defending.

"We have to take a look at duplication of efforts between Wayne, the University of Michigan and Oakland so that we are not all competing with each other," he said.

The reason, as we all know, is that there just isn't enough state tax revenue to support every university in the manner to which it would like to be accustomed.

OU President Joseph Champagne also said recently: "I believe the state of Michigan is not very far away from the establishment of a central coordinating agency for higher education . . . "

THOSE IDEAS, while excellent, are hardly original.

Michigan's first school organization plan was put together in the 1830s by John D. Pierce, first superintendent of public instruction. Modeled after the Prussian system, it had three levels: 1) a university, later established in Ann Arbor; 2) nine intermediate branches, which were to train teachers and be preparatory schools for the university; and 3) the primary schools.

There was, in short, coordination from top to bottom. The kind of duplication and competition Headlee speaks of in 1981 could not occur under the Pierce plan.

In the 1840s, however, things fell apart. Andrew Jackson's veto of the national bank charter renewal threw the economy into a tailspin. Michigan's railroad projects were aborted, its canal projects abandoned, its bonds defaulted, and its nine branch colleges unsupported. The branches became private academies or closed up shop.

THE 1850 STATE Constitution organized things differently.

The University of Michigan was given its own elected Board of Regents and independence from the legislature. A State Board of Education was set up and given oversight of the State Normal School at Ypsilanti (now Eastern Michigan University). The State Board of Agriculture was given oversight of Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State University).

That 1850 constitution made a lot of other mistakes, mainly proliferating the election of state and county officeholders, giving everyone a sacred turf and inflating their egos.

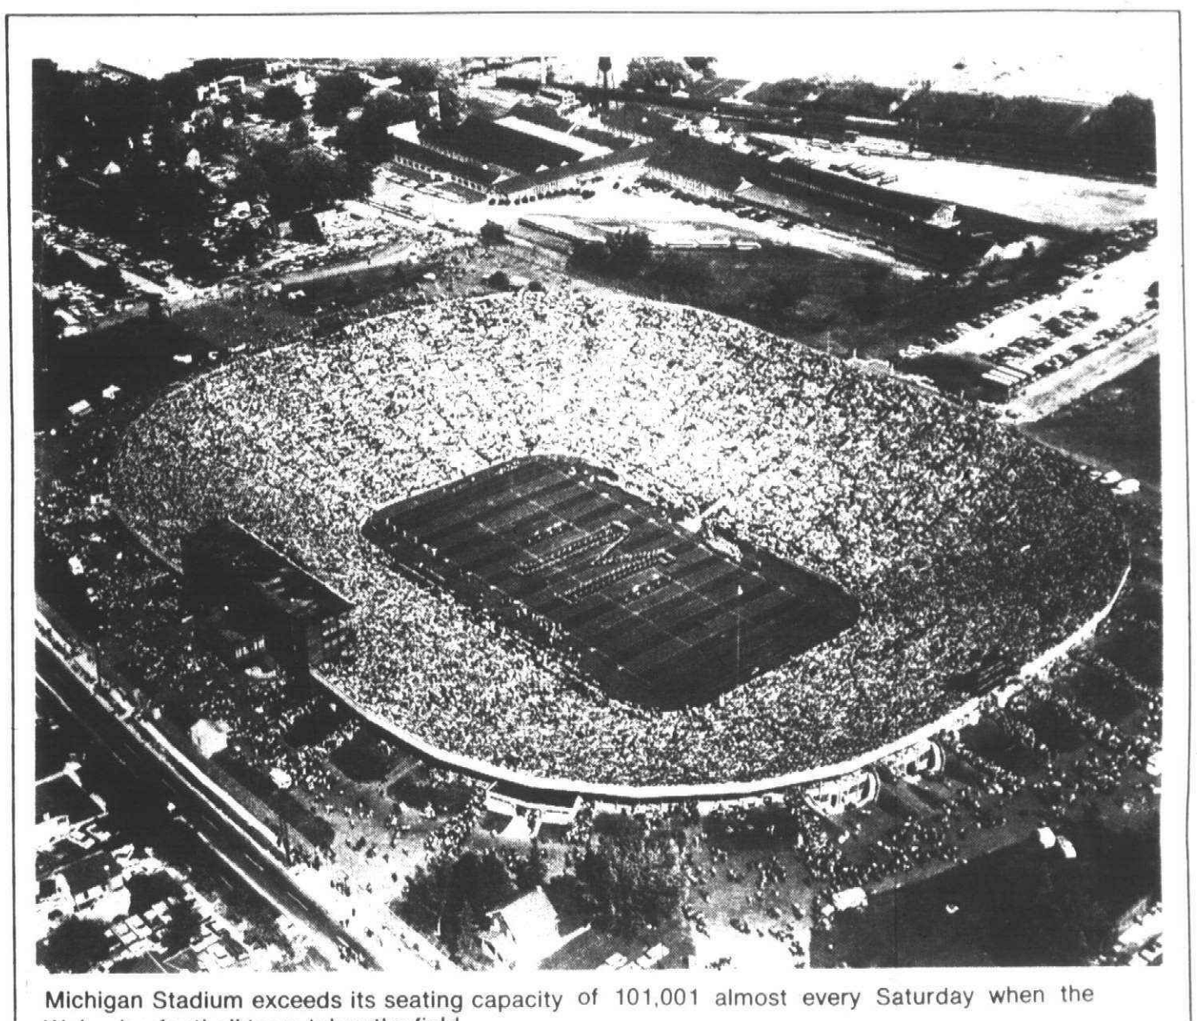

The 1964 constitution perpetuated some of the damage. It created an eight-member State Board of Education, giving it coordinating authority over all education but specifically exempting the universities.

It gave the regional universities their separate, appointed boards. It gave MSU and Wayne their separate elected boards like U-M's.

TODAY WE have come full circle, back to the classical old ideas.

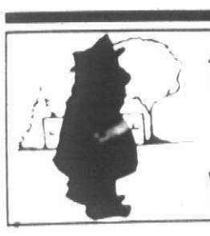

It's asking too much, perhaps, to have a single Michigan Universities Board, with authority to slaughter the sacred cows in Ann Arbor, East Lansing, Detroit, Rochester, Ypsilanti, Kalamazoo, Mt. Pleasant and all the rest. The state universities spend hundreds of millions of dollars each, and each needs campus oversight.

Instead, it seems as if some sort of cooperative arrangement will be necessary — and that John D. Pierce in the 1830s was more nearly correct than we are today.

Michigan Stadium exceeds its seating capacity of 101,001 almost every Saturday when the Wolverine football team takes the field.

While economy suffers, U-M football prospers

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

One of the most amazing success stories in this financially troubled time is being unfolded in the football stadium at the University of Michigan.

When the Wolverines take the field next Saturday to meet the Buckeyes of Ohio State in their annual rivalry, more than 100,000 spectators will be seated in the stands. It will be the 41st consecutive home game that has drawn more than 100,000 fans.

This gathering pours more than $1 million into the athletic coffers, and no other school in the country can come close to matching it.

The current demand for seats in the stadium that legendary coach Fielding Harris Yost built is so great that many fans have been asked to keep them for life and then include them in their final will and testament.

A little bit of figuring will show you the full force of this unusual story. For the past two seasons, the seats have been priced at $12. This means that the gross should be $1.2 million. The reduced rate given the students bring this down to $1 million. But even then there is a financial twist to the "gate."

WHILE NO OFFICIAL figures have been released, it has been said that there are 94,000 season-ticket holders. And if you are one of them you are asked to pay up by the June 1 prior to the opening game.

That amount of money placed in the bank will draw a nice amount of interest even before the football season opens. In few other activities does such a bonanza exist. And most of it can be credited to Don Canham, the former track coach who took over the athletic directorship from Fritz Crisler in 1968.

At that time, the average attendance was about 68,000. The attendance showed some signs of growing, even to the point that Crisler enlarged the seating capacity. But Michigan's attendance still wasn't big enough to suit Canham.

He took off on a selling job. For the first time tickets were placed on sale in Detroit-area ticket agencies. Canham took to advertising the games in the daily papers and never missed a chance to boost his product. Week by week the crowds grew larger until now it is common to have a stadium filled with more than 100,000 even to see the downtrodden Northwestern team play.

Canham realized his goal of exceeding 100,000 weekly, and he has spent the money wisely. No other school in the country can match the athletic facilities at Michigan. Not only is the stadium carpeted with artificial turf, but so is the practice field. And there is an official-size football field in the new field house.

And close to $1 million has been spent to repair the cement steps and blacktop the entire area surrounding the stadium.

IF YOU ATTENDED the games in the past week or two, you also must have noticed the planting of evergreens around the entire stadium. It is a touch of beauty that will help the stadium stand apart — aside from the financial standpoint.

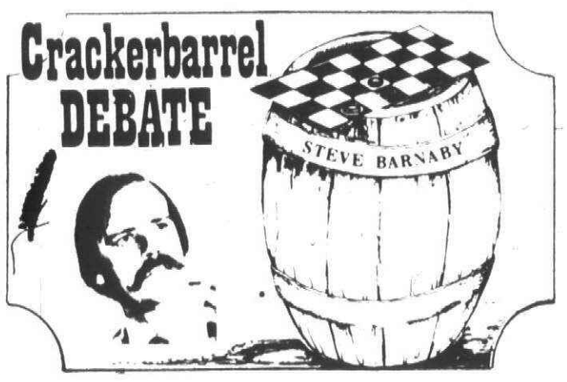

Canham also engineered another move that was a boon to the athletic finances. He convinced a few of the teams on the schedule, among them Notre Dame, that each team should keep its own gate receipts, instead of paying a guarantee to the visitors.

What a bold move that was. But it is understood now that each team gets a nice check for making the trip to Ann Arbor. While no official figures have been tallied, it is said that Navy was given $350,000 for making the trip to Ann Arbor to take a beating.

And mind you, all this high finance is being practiced in southeastern Michigan, one of the hardest-hit areas in the entire country.

You see, sport has become big business even in the colleges and universities.

Region needs diversification

Now I know how General Lee must have felt while gazing through his field glasses at the carnage left by Pickett's Charge during the Battle of Gettysburg.

Within minutes, the hopes and dreams of a lifetime were ruined.

Examining Southeast Michigan's economy is similarly discomforting.

But instead of riddled and maimed soldiers, we see a psychologically devastated populace, weary of the long battle that has hit Southeast Michigan harder than anywhere else in the country.

Even the most optimistic among us must look long and hard to find anything approximating hope.

FRANKLY, the business and politicial communities have retreated from the rhetorical bastion Hope and have retreated to the more secure Fortress Perseverance.

The bravado of out-predicting the other political party or economic theorist is all but gone. No longer do our leaders talk about quarter-year, half-year or next-year recovery.

They talk about waiting for 10 years before Michigan will have been able to rebuild its economy, before business tires of the Sunbelt water shortages, before interest rates come down, before inflation slows, before the housing industry revives — pipe dreams, all pipe dreams.

The old guard — the union bosses, business tycoons and political barons — have run out of steam. If Michigan is to recover, a new order must come to the fore.

The tutelage of those leading us in the last decade, whether on the governmental or business front, has been bad.

RATHER THAN decreasing, the unemployment rate in Southeast Michigan is increasing. Last year at this time, it was around 11.6 percent. Today, it is 12.8 percent.

We've gotten to the point where a 20 percent interest rate almost seems like a deal. Long gone are the days of the 6.5 percent rate which, believe it or not, was in effect in 1977.

The construction industry has reached the disaster stage. In the Southeast Michigan region, back in the good old days of 1972, more than 20,000 residential building permits were issued. In the first half of this year only 3,473 were issued.

Diversification is the key to our survival. But from our present leaders, we hear feeble mumblings about that. Instead, they wait for the American auto industry to recover. It never will.

Let's face it: At present Michigan has little to offer new business. This week we find out that industry brave enough to weather the storm and come to Michigan will be greeted with an invitation to help pay off a $1 billion federal unemployment compensation debt.

Next year, Michigan business will pay its first contribution on that debt — $55 million. It will increase the next year.

We all know what the hastily passed single-business tax and the harsh workers compensation rates do to Michigan business.

Now is the time for Southeast Michigan residents to retrench and demand some changes from our leaders, or we will change our leaders — pronto.

How electronic flash can help you to better photos

Monte Nagler

On Nov. 5, I discussed how electronic flash units function. Today, let's see how you can apply flash to improve your photography.

The burst of light emitted from a flash (strobe) unit is the same "color" as sunlight. Therefore, always use daylight balanced film whenever you use a flash.

Keep in mind always to set the shutter speed dial to the correct synchronization speed, usually 1/60 second and indicated in red. Any speed faster than this will give you only a partial picture.

EVER SEE flash pictures taken of pets or even people where red, beady eyes are staring back at you? This phenomenon, called "red-eye," is a reflection of the blood vessels in the eye resulting from the flash unit's being too close to the camera lens.

Buying an inexpensive L bracket, available at all photo shops, will eliminate this problem. The strobe is attached to the top of the L bracket, which in turn is fastened to the camera. Once again those eyes will look baby blue.

Always check flash-to-subject distances. If you're shooting with a manual flash, make sure you're within the distance limits of your units. With automatic strobes, note the distance ranges for each automatic mode and stay within these limits.

Most flash units do not have the capability of lighting a subject beyond 30-40 feet from the camera. Past this distance, the emitted light dissipates, and your subject will be underexposed.

Most people shooting flash pictures in giant stadiums are wasting film and flash.

Here are some flash techniques that will help you improve your pictures:

FILL-IN-FLASH: This technique is used outdoors in sunlight to eliminate harsh shadows.

For example, an outdoor portrait taken with direct sunlight will result in squinty eyes and deep, unflattering shadows. By placing the sun behind or at the side of your subject and using "fill-in" flash, you'll get a natural-looking picture with an added sparkle in the face.

It's easy to calculate the correct outdoor exposure for fill-in flash. Simply double the guide number of your flash unit and divide this result by the predetermined f-stop using your camera's meter. (Of course, make sure the shutter speed dial is set at the correct synchronization speed). The answer gives you the number of feet you should place yourself from the subject to obtain a pleasing "fill" effect.

BOUNCE FLASH: For soft, natural-looking lighting with good modeling of features, tilt your flash unit so that the light is bounced off a white or light-colored wall or ceiling before reaching the subject.

Many flash units are made to swivel, and some even have provisions for adding a white reflector card. Automatic units will adjust for exposure with bounce flash on their own. With manual units, you'll have to adjust for the extra distance the light has to travel.

DIFFUSED FLASH: To obtain a more natural look, the intensity of the flash can be reduced and softened by placing a handkerchief over the front of the unit.

Add an extra f-stop of exposure to compensate for the diffusing effect.

MULTIPLE FLASH: To give your subject maximum three-dimensionality, use more than one flash. Either two or three units placed in similar positions to photofloods will give you a very natural look.

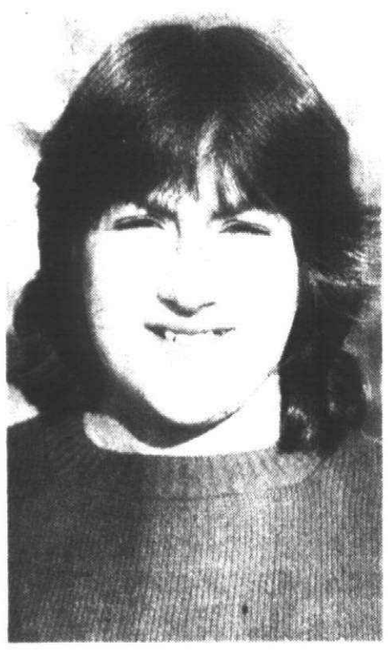

Extension cords or wireless "slave" units will trigger all strobes at exactly the same time. Exposure should be determined using the main light only, normally the one closest to the subject.

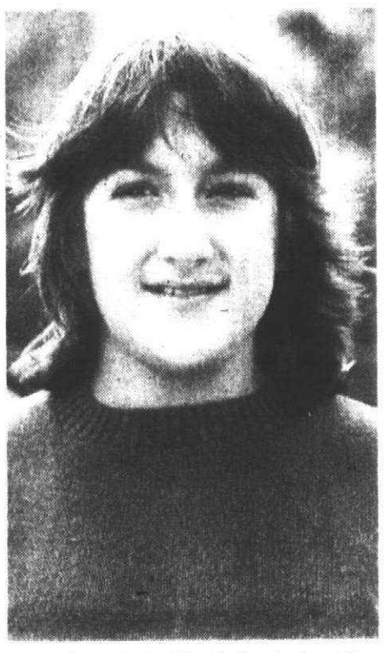

OPEN FLASH: At night or in a dark room, open your camera's shutter using the B setting while you fire the flash one or more times. (Most units have a test button to trip the flash when the unit is not connected to the camera.)

This technique can offer a variety of creative effects. For instance, when the shutter is open, the film records any image that can be seen by existing light plus those lit by bursts of flash. You can capture both blurred and sharp images in the same picture by having your subject move slowly in existing light and then firing your strobe one or more times.

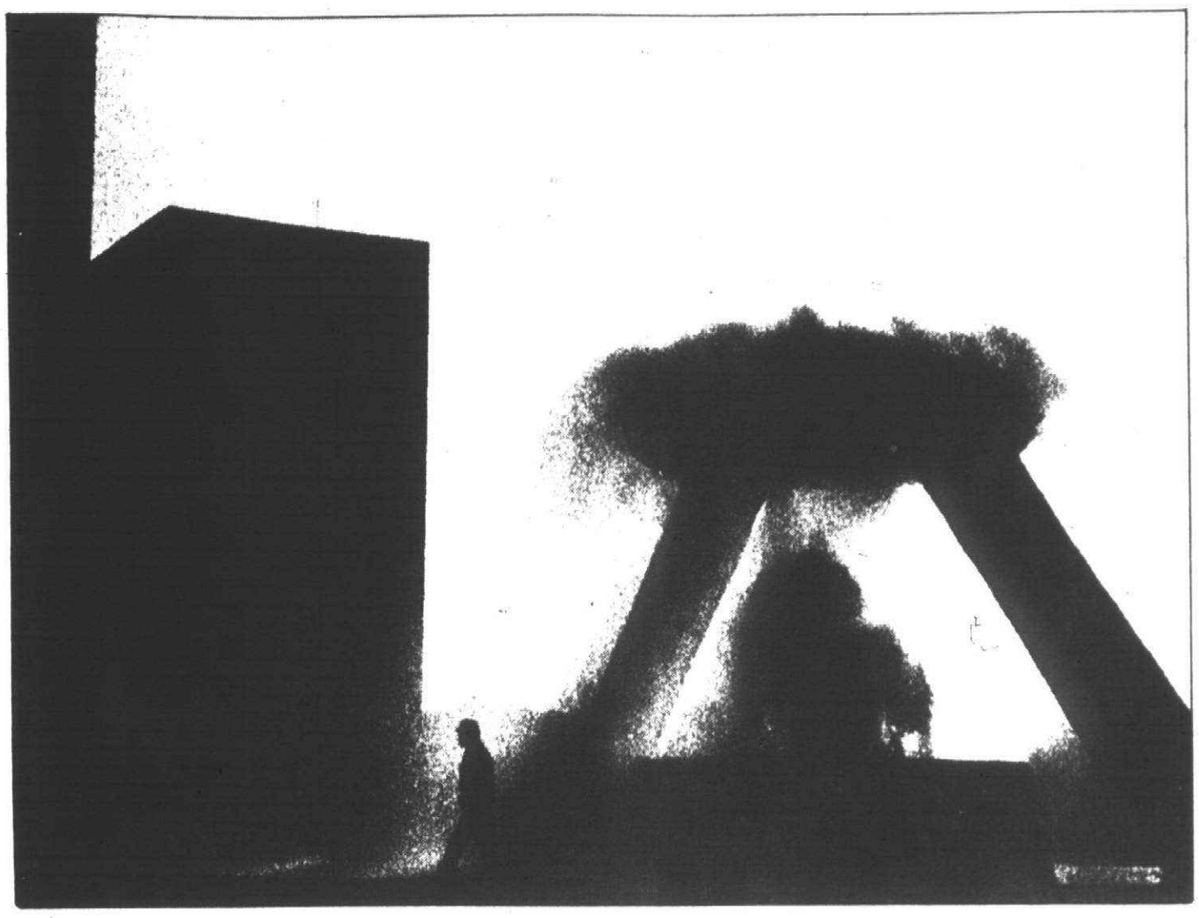

Exciting montage photos can be made using this technique. Perhaps you've seen photographs made by fast repeating flashes, called stroboscopes, typified by a golfer in many stages of his swing.

There you have it — some exciting and useful ways to use a flash. Strobe units are important and should be a part of your camera gear. And what's more, you can learn to use them in a flash.©1981, Monte Nagler

Mindy Nagler, Monte's daughter, looks unhappy in the left photo. Direct sun caused her to squint and left harsh shadows under her nose and chin. In the right picture, however, backlighting from the sun and a fill-in flash make Mindy's appearance much softer and more flattering.

"Early Morning Stroll" by James F. Wilkie shows Noguchi Fountain at Hart Plaza.

Why this one's a winner

James F. Wilkie of Warren is first-place winner in the Meadow Brook Art Gallery/Meteor Photo Co. competition called "Essence of Sculpture."

Wilkie's "Early Morning Stroll" is an impressionistic color photo of the Noguchi Fountain at Hart Plaza in downtown Detroit. His prize is $500.

Winners are on exhibit at Meadow Brook Gallery at Oakland University, west of Rochester, through Dec. 13. The exhibit will then move to Meteor Photo, 1099 Chicago Road, Troy, Dec. 15-30.

Second prize of $250 went to Cliff Brody of Kentwood for his black and white photo of the Calder sculpture in downtown Grand Rapids. Third prize of $100 went to Wilbur Lott of Union Lake for a color photo of a sculpture on the Oakland University campus.

"Everything in photographic canon comes together in 'Early Morning Stroll,'" said the contest judge, Balthazar Korab, architectural photographer. "The muted color, the exact moment and the exceptional competition combine to make this photograph memorable and worthy."

MEA lauds Sarah Power

Sarah Goddard Power, a regent of the University of Michigan, has been presented the Michigan Education Association's highest honor, the distinguished service award. It recognizes contributions to humanity and to education.

Mrs. Power is scheduled to speak on "Feminism" at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 23 in Waterman Campus Center of Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. The free lecture is sponsored by the college's Cultural and Public Affairs series.

The MEA honored Mrs. Power for her service with the United Nations, the U.S. State Department and the University of Michigan.

Sarah Goddard Power
MEA's highest honor

DURING HER service with the State Department, where she served as a deputy assistant secretary of state, Mrs. Power championed freedom of the press and sought improvement of communications as essential to the orderly development of emerging Third World nations.

She also was responsible for the development of U.S. policy toward specialized agencies of the United Nations and in such areas as international women's programs, transportation, health and drug control.

Preceding her work with the State Department, Mrs. Power chaired the United States National Commission for UNESCO. She was a presidential delegate to the conferences of UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in Nairobi, Kenya, and Paris. In 1980, she was the U.S. delegate to the World Conference for the UN Decade for Women, held in Copenhagen.

MRS. POWER is presently serving an eight-year term as a member of the University of Michigan's board of regents. She is currently the only woman on the board, and the third in the history of the university.

A graduate of Vassar College, she received a master of arts degree in international politics from New York University. She is the wife of Philip H. Power, the owner and chairman of Suburban Communications Corp., a parent company of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

More profits lure industry

To the editor:

All our Michigan papers seem to have an article or two about business leaving Michigan.

If they are not heading to Korea or Mexico they are as reporter W.W. Edgar writes in "Business heading southward" going to the American Sunbelt or to old "Dixie."

"What does the South and the Sunbelt have to offer that is luring industry out of Michigan?" The answer is more profits. Most American businessmen have repeatedly stated in moments of lucidness, "We are not into making steel, cars, etc. Our business is to make money!"

I feel it is time to re-examine our national laws that allow a business to close up in an area and move to another just to escape higher taxes and to have a non-union shop. What about so-called corporate responsibility to the community and to the people who will lose their jobs?

I am from the rural South. The workers who move down to Tennessee will find lower taxes but also will find worse schools, police and fire service, as well as find they will take up to a 50 percent cut in pay.

The cost of living down there just isn't that much cheaper.

Sure your company will get a break in worker's compensation, but just wait until you try to collect worker's compensation in old "Dixie." Then you will realize why the Sunbelt has a lower worker's compensation rate.

Blue collar improvements

Quality of life changes for factory workers

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

In Livonia's Cadillac factory, the assembly line demands that each job be done in 30 seconds. Conveyors on the ceiling rattle along, taking completed motors to the shipping point.

Tools hang from colorfully wrapped springs like jungle vines, and the noise can be exhausting.

And there, in the midst of activity that has become the accepted way of factory life, officials of the General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers are trying to improve the quality of worklife.

What this means in the plant, Middlebelt north of Plymouth Road, is mainly that workers are getting a chance to question management decisions and to make suggestions that might be carried out.

Management still reserves the right, for example, to control the speed of the assemby line.

"Participation doesn't mean a democratic vote," said Robert Stramy, plant manager. "It means having a say."

But now the management will listen to suggestions on changing the time of starting work or eating lunch, or ideas for solving the many housekeeping and production problems that come up each day.

THE DECISION to improve worklife was made in 1980 before a large addition to the plant was completed on the 38-acre Livonia site. GM officials decided that here was a good chance to put into effect the most basic change in industrial relations in decades.

By then the corporation has initiated worklife programs in half its U.S. plants. And it had found them good.

Taking over as manager, Robert Stramy made his position clear.

"The first thing we allow is a questioning of our decisions," he said. "It is essential we explain the reasoning behind the decision so people will understand."

Because methods of paying people were to change along with a number of other hallowed principles, the cooperation of the UAW was essential to the project.

Stramy got in touch with Irving Bluestone, the UAW pioneer in the area of quality of worklife, and Bill Sells of Westland, UAW Local 22 shop committee chairman at the Clark and Conners street Cadillac plants.

"Management recognized all the old ways of doing business were not working," said Sells.

"We're losing so much to foreign competition that management and union people were all concerned. Nobody wants change when things are good, but they're bad now. So if management was willing to change we were ready."

IT IS HARD to estimate how well the plan is working because it is so new. In producing 4.1-liter V-8 engines for new Cadillacs, the plant is on what is termed "an acceleration."

Many employes are working seven days a week. The machines are new and have their share of bugs that must be removed. The work situation is not typical.

But this is the quality of worklife set-up at Livonia Cadillac:

- Each worker is a member of a team about 15. The weekly one-hour team meeting paid for by the company is "where it's at," as far as the quality of work life is concerned. This is the time when a job setter like Herman Lewis of Redford Township can make his feelings known about the need for additional guarding around a machine to keep water and chips from going into the work area.

"It was unsightly," he said. "It didn't look as I thought it should."

He added: "They did it."

- Workers are paid for their knowledge. As they learn more of the jobs in their team operation, their pay goes up. The entry rate for a new hire is $9.03 an hour. In 30 days, he or she gets $9.28. When they have learned all the jobs on the team they, earn $9.77.

If they transfer to a second team, they earn $9.83, and after they learn all those job their pay reaches $10.08, the maximum rate. They can't transfer to any other teams after that. Whether a person is eligible to try to learn a new job is decided by the team.

- Each member of management was chosen for his ability to work in an atmosphere that allowed questioning of his authority and welcomed worker comment.
- Union members as well as management representatives picked plant supervision. Applications were screened by members of both groups. Numbers rather than names were used on the applications. They were rated on 1-10 scale, so that by giving an application a 3 or a 2, the union could block a hiring.

That union members could affect the hiring of management personel really impresses old union hands.

- Management officials have a more casual image. They no longer wear suits and ties. Stramy, who today uses terms like "constructive listening" and "face conflict head on in an open way," also has ideas about power.

"Power has to be shared," he said. "To say 'I am the boss and always right' is not to be tolerated."

The weekly team meeting at the Cadillac plant in Livonia is the basic ingredient of the new quality of worklife program there. It offers workers a chance to speak up about plant conditions. The new plant logo overhead combines General Motors and United Auto Workers symbols.

- Union representatives are invited to management staff meetings when day-to-day business is to be discussed.
- Absenteeism is down slightly.
- Many fewer grievances are being written. Peter Ulbrich, personnel manager, estimated grievances at about two a month.

"Usually at a plant you could expect 40-50 grievances a month," said UAW quality of worklife coordinator Ralph Fanneli. Acting UAW committeeman Morris Hayes of Southgate said, "I haven't written a grievance in two months. I go to the team meeting and try to resolve the matter without reducing it to writing."

- Management does not have its own exclusive parking lot. It shares one with everyone else, and one cafeteria serves management and workers. In the past, some U.S. plants have gone so far as to have a cafeteria for management, another for office workers, and a third for those working in the factory.
- The in-plant emblem carries both GM and UAW symbols.
- Employes are kept informed, said Ulbrich, a former Livonia resident who now lives in Grosse Pointe. Through newsletters and team meetings, they learn of problems confronting the company. They are reminded of the competition out there and of the company's interest in quality.

"IT'S A GOOD idea, but I was sceptical at first," said committeeman Hayes, who represents UAW members in the grievance procedure. "I had some problems with how it was implemented.

"But I can see now the company is serious about it. The hourly workers are still somewhat sceptical. They think it is a ruse to get more production, or they say 'What's the matter with the old way?'."

Some workers were upset that manufacting problems kept them from earning the extra money that comes with rotating jobs, he said. But because they have been put in the picture about work problems, they are much more cooperative about them, he said.

Victor Pastula of Westland was once called a foreman. Today he is a team coordinator.

"In the old system, the foreman gave orders and the workers followed like robots," he said.

"It was simple. But now we're able to draw from everyone's experience. Basically, I can't make as many good decisions as a gro okmmup of people can."

UAW WORKLIFE coordinator Ralph Fanneli could see the system was working well when managment brought to the line an extra piece for a storage conveyor.

"The team decided it was more practical to work without it," he said. "They decided on a system among themselves by which they could handle the situation by utilizing their own area for storage. They didn't need the piece, and saved the company several thousand dollars.

Fannelli became convinced that quality of worklife can work.

"I always felt that the people on the floor knew more about what is going on day-to-day basis than anyone else. If what they knew could be utilized, I knew things would go better."

Said job setter Herman Lewis about the worklife program: "I have a vent for my frustration. If I can talk out a problem openly, it's better than keeping it inside."

Canton area churches are growing

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

The growth in Canton has just begun as far as many people are concerned.

The influx of residents has tapered off, so many people have ended their search for a community church that meet their particular needs.

The 350-year history of the Reformed Church in America has come to join the variety of denominations available to the residents of Canton. Just like so many of us have done in past years, the worshipers have to meet in a school until their membership develops to that certain point, when the fellowship wants an establishment of its own. They meet at Plymouth Canton High School with services starting at 10 a.m.

Rev. Harvey Heneveld saw a need for the development of something new and exciting to make people aware that this church was going to create a family-like atmosphere for the many relocated families. The Awareness Family concept is five or six households put together for a period of one year to count on one another when a need arises. Dinners, small parties, and other activities are planned within the group so adult and children can develop a mutual bond.

We are oriented to think that the Dutch background of this church is strictly for the people with heritage in Holland. This is true to a small degree in our area. A variety of weekly activities are a part of the daily communication enjoyed by those who attened this church.

THAT BIG CHURCH that ties up all the traffic every Sunday morning on Sheldon Road shared another great evening with its parishioners.

St. John Neumann Catholic Church held its sixth annual "getting to know you" dance this past weekend. Larry Michael's Band supplied the great entertainment for the evening. To encourage a high attendance, the committee set the cost of the tickets at $7.50 a couple. This provided beer, set-ups, sandwiches, salads and dessert. Of course, they take a loss in the monetary aspect of the evening but the development of comradeship is much more important to the fellowship under the direction of Father Edward Baldwin.

Ann and Bill Storbeck, Joleen and Michael Rebarchik, Gene and Gerri Svec, Linda and Frank Zaremba, Donna and Bill Wertz along with Karen and Art Lambert put their heads together and planned a very special event. As the guests arrived at the K of C Hall, they were stopped and given a nametag pinned to their back. They proceeded to circulate about the hall and asked two questions of any person. They had a name of a celebrity behind them and they gathered all of the clues until they found their mystery name. It was a great mixer at the start of a fantastic gathering. There are 1,700 families attending services and they always seem to come up with something special during the year for everyone to get involved.

IN THE PAST 18 months, St. Michael Lutheran Church has doubled in membership.

Rev. Gerry Yarnell and assistant minister Kathy Batell have come up with several interesting functions that draw a variety of backgrounds to this congregation.

Every Saturday morning there is a Bible study at Rose Shores Racquetball Club for an hour. Then on to the highly competitive court game downstairs. This is an interesting way to draw the men who are involved in maintaining their faith openly and engaging the same men in a terrific activity.

The Sunday bulletins are published with everyone in mind. The children's version of the weekly publication is geared to the younger people, then the adult bulletin gives information on weekly services and meetings.

Sellman- Unterkircher

Linda Anne Unterkircher of East Lansing and John Robert Sellman of Denver, Colo., exchanged marriage vows Oct. 10 in Pleasant Hill Missionary Church in Bronson, Mich.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Warren Unterkircher of Bronson. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sellman of Hartsough Street, Plymouth.

The bride wore an Alfred Angelo gown and carried red roses. Marie Dellamora of East Lansing was the maid of honor. Karen Bucklin and Mary Botzner were bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a light-blue satin gown, and the bridesmaids wore royal blue satin. Their bouquets were red roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Gary McGee of St. Louis, Mo., was best man. Groomsmen were Jim Sellman and J.C. Petersen. The wedding reception was in the Union Hall in Bronson.

The couple live in Denver, where the bridegroom is employed by Denver Drywall Co. Both are graduates of Michigan State University. She earned her bachelor of science degree in medical technology and was employed at Sparrow Hospital in Lansing. His bachelor of science degree is in building construction.

Dumas thinks budget cuts hit women the hardest

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

"I'm worried that the budget cuts might go too far," said Mary Dumas, a lifelong Republican who knows a bit about gut-level problems like poverty, juvenile delinquency and rape.

The Livonia member of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners said the recent money-cutting efforts of the Reagan administration may make her work even tougher in the future should she decided to seek a place on the new board, which will number 15 instead of 27.

She'll wait until next year to make up her mind on the re-election question, but she is disturbed right now about the cuts in service that the budget cuts will bring.

A veteran of nine years of work at the county level, she is especially troubled about cuts that will hurt low-income women.

"I'm concerned about the ability of women to keep pace because of the economy and budget cuts," Mrs. Dumas said. "There will be an impact on women who can't help themselves."

She was "appalled at what might happen" when Congress eliminated the minimum Social Security benefit of $122. "By and large the people receiving the benefit are below the poverty level," she said. "A great percentage of them are widows over 65, who worked in low-paid employment. They are barely at subsistence level already."

An effort is being made in Congress to restore this minimum benefit. But if successful it will only be available to those who were eligible for it before November, not to those who would have received it in the future.

TURNING TO another topic, Mrs. Dumas recognized there have been abuses in the use of medical benefits.

"But to eliminate or reduce them too excessively would hurt families headed by women with small children, and it would cause future health problems," she said."It's not saving money in the long run. It could cost us more later on as these children grow up and go to school."

The Livonia county commissioner called "distressing" the number of households headed by women which are at the poverty level. "Fifty-nine percent of female-headed households have an income below $10,000," she said. "More than 70 percent of widowed females live below the $10,000 level, and 42 percent of these have an income under $5,000.

"That kind of poverty among women is bad. The salary levels between men and women are not getting any closer."

Mrs. Dumas thinks "a little bit of backlash" is now being directed against females in employment "plus a slow down in affirmative action." She added that employment statistics for Wayne County indicate that the ratio of women to men in administrative positions is one to 10.

"Bureaucracy fights moving women into high-level positions," she said.

Continuing her cataloging of Reagan budget cuts, she noted that public service employment categories have been eliminated. She added: "A good number of these jobs went to women. CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) worked well in many instances. We had CETA employes who were well-qualified and went on to take jobs in the private sector. That was how the program was supposed to work."

She is hoping that there will be greater emphasis on placing people in the private business sector and then subsidizing their training. "That's where the jobs are," she said.

THE ENERGY assistance program is continuing, she said, at a reduced rate. "If we eliminate low-income energy assistance programs, we hurt senior citizens, a major portion of whom are women."

Michigan gets back 66 percent of the money it sends to the federal government in taxes, she continued.

OCC opens gym, pool to public

Sunday afternoon is "community swim time" at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College (OCC).

OCC invites area residents on Sunday afternoons to use its pool, weight room, exercise room and racketball courts. The fee is $1 per hour for each activity. OCC's physical education building is located at 27055 Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

The pool is scheduled to be free for community use from 2 to 4 p.m. But an OCC spokesperson asked residents to call ahead to verify "open" times for the pool and all other facilities as they are subject to change without notice.

Residents should call OCC at 476-9400, ext. 377 or 381.

Name, program, pastor are new

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

The Rev. Norman P. Clere will be installed Sunday as pastor of the Livonia Pentecostal Church of God.

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

A Livonia church, newly renamed, is set to install a new pastor and launch a new program of community involvement.

The Livonia Pentecostal Church, located at Arcola and Plymouth and for a dozen years known as Trinity Full Gospel Church, will install the Rev. Norman P. Clere as its pastor at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The Rev. Charles R. Mosier, superintendent of the Michigan district of the Pentecostal Church of God, will officiate for the installation and deliver the morning sermon. Afterwards the congregation will serve a potluck dinner in honor of Clere, his wife Anna and their three children, Rosena, Norman and Brian.

Clere, who has been preaching for more than half of his 37 years, was one of several preachers invited by the Livonia church to fill a Sunday during the months since the Rev. John Parnell left in May.

"He came as a supply pastor, and people were so enthusiastic we asked him right away to stay," said Jim Beatty, one of the elders of the congregation.

"He said he h to pray about it, but we knew right away he was our man."

Clere noted that the decision took three weeks, but Beatty pointed out that "we were calling him Pastor from day one."

THE NEW ARRIVAL comes from the Pentecostal denomination's Capitol District in Maryland.

His career spans 22 years, beginning when he turned evangelist at age 16 while touring with his preacher father. It included a music ministry for a time, and he said he and his wife still put on gospel music programs and will be doing so in their new charge.

It also has involved ministries to people in nursing homes and prisons, and Clere plans to bring these activities to Livonia.

He has the enthusiastic support of his new congregation. "Now we have a man with vision and that will get us going again," Beatty said.

Clere added that "we see needs that the church should fill; we want to get something started."

He would like to start like one he launched at Mayo, Md., while pastor of a church in the Capitol district.

"We had a service every Sunday afternoon," he said. "The first year there were 87 men who made confessions of faith. That was inspirational to us, and we knew it was profitable for the souls of men."

Clere and Beatty said they hoped first to get permission to start Bible classes in institutions in this area.

Other major focuses of the church's ministry, they added, will be area nursing homes and hospitals, and special emphasis will be placed on the needs of youth and senior citizens of church and community.

CLERE WAS ORDAINED by the Pentecostal Church of Christ at London, Ohio, when he was 16.

"I used to go out with my father when he was an evangelist and pastor based at Flatwoods, Ky.," he said. "Besides his church work and evangelism, he was a plumber and electrician and worked on the railroad.

"Sometimes he worked 22 hours a day."

He added that his father, the Rev. Charles L. Clere, "now is pastor of a church I pioneered in Maryland and also owns a restaurant 55 miles away."

The new Livonia pastor also has traveled the country as an evangelist and gospel singer.

He formed a quartet known as the Kings Four and was its lead singer, and he also has appeared in gospel concerts with the Katherine Kuhlman Crusades and in Carnegie Hall, New York.

The local church is calling itself a place "where Pentecost is not a denomination but an experience" and invites those interest in its new programs to join in the activities.

Sunday schedules include church school at 9:45 a.m., and worship at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. There is Bible study at 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday.

moral perspectives

Rev. David Strong

We must debate nuclear war's reality

My son asked me a question.

"Is it true that if we have a war there will be nothing left?", He wanted to know. "Yes," I answered, "it's true."

Then what could we say? A fatalistic silence seemed to fall over the subject. Silently I said to myself,'I hope and pray my sons won't be killed in such a war. Then I realized that I was still thinking that the young men would risk death on the battlefield and that others would survive. My answer to my son and my own prayer betrayed a lack of awareness of the realities of nuclear war.

It is said that we prepare to fight the past war, not what can occur. So it is with our thinking. We have for more than 30 years been thinking as though we were arming to prevent the last type of war from happening all over again.

Only recently has a group of people in our country begun to give us any hint of what nuclear was is all about.

TWO GROUPS of medical doctors have organized numerous conferences on the subject, "The Medical Consequences of Nuclear Weapons and Nuclear War." In seven cities, the crowds have grown each time as people related to the medical profession have contemplated the result of a nuclear blast in any large population area.

Hopefully these conferences will open a national debate upon the consequences of nuclear war. The debate has been expanding in Europe especially after President Reagan has talked about the possiblity of a nuclear war limited to European soil.

We need this debate. It is mattter of life and death. We need to open up all the possible options as we face an increasing risk of nuclear war in these 1980s.

Such a debate can clarify the options we have in a nuclear age of conflict. It could also heighten our understanding of the values which are at stake.

ONE OF THESE values which we must prize the most is the right and opportunity in a free society to debate important issues. The very freedom we claim to be protecting with our nuclear arms is most clearly expressed in the freedom of speech in our free society.

Many of us remember the fear of the McCarthy era. We remember the investigations and photographing of those who marched in the peace rallies of the Vietnam era. The fear of being labeled anti-American still suppressed free debate.

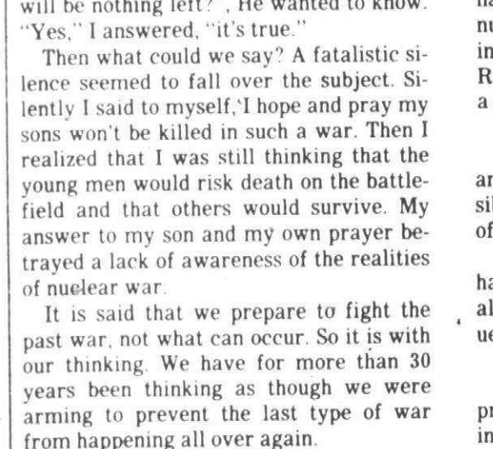

The medical profession is not hampered by these fears. It is its job to anticipate medical problems in our nation. People will listen to them.

The doctors have it all over the clergy in this debate. Few want to discuss the arms race from a moral position. Many will listen to our military leaders and our doctors, for they are charged with our physical survival.

IF A PREACHER stands up and says that nuclear war is wrong under any circumstances, even if the preacher is Albert Schwitzer, he is laughted off as irrelevant. If the doctor stands up and tells us that a 20-megaton blast in Los Angeles would kill and injure more than 6-million people, we listen with soberness. We imagine the horror he describes without medical treatment available.

The debate now opened must expand to others. Our country was born in a debate over the nature of oppression. The ultimate oppression is a suicidal march toward nuclear war in the interests of security.

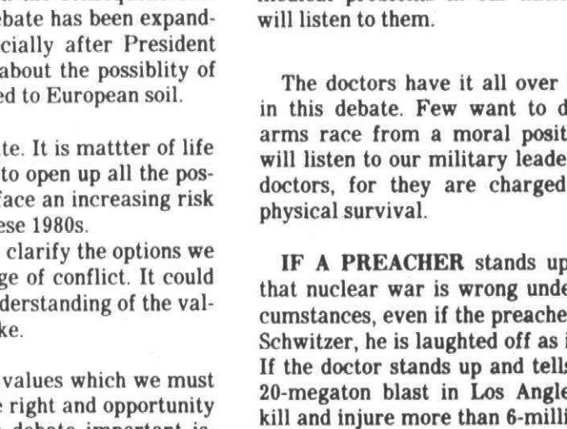

The debate is long overdue.

Theater guild stages bluegrass musical

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford's musical this season is a departure from the usual — "The Robber Bridgeroom," a bluegrass musical done in the commedia dellarte style.

The show opens Friday and continues Saturday and Sunday; Nov. 27-29 and Dec. 4-5 at the Guild Playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly Road (just south of Five Mile), Redford. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays.

Admission is $6 with discounts available for students and senior citizens. For reservations or information call 522-1526.

Alfred Uhry's book and lyrics for "The Robber Bridegroom" are drawn from a Eudora Welty novella in which a swashbuckling bandit in disguise abducts the willing daughter of a rich planter. This rambunctious fairy tale takes place in a mythical Mississippi setting amid a strange assortment of characters, including a villain who carries his late brother's talking head in a trunk, a wicked stepmother, a dimwitted talking raven and a simpleton called Goat.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The evil stepmother Salome (Pat Dorrian Sandbothe) tries to seduce the robber Jamie Lockhart (Steve Mattar).

ALL THIS tomfoolery is accompanied by bluegrass music composed by Robert Waldman. Unusual staging calls upon the performers to serve as doors, trees, furniture and animals.

Appearing as the dashing "bandit of the woods" is Steve Mattar of Birmingham. Mattar is majoring in music at the University of Michigan where he has sung with the Friars.

He is currently with a professional quartet called The Pedalers.

The eager heroine, Rosamund, is portrayed by Sandi Martin of Detroit, a familiar face to local audiences from a variety of musical and dramatic roles, dinner theater and television.

Ron Otulakowski of Hamtramck is Rosamund's father, Clemment Musgrove. Otulakowski is drama director at Cass Technical High School and has played leading roles in and directed innumerable productions. He directed the guild's production of "1776," which was sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission.

PAT DORRIAN Sandbothe of Northville appears as Salome Musgrove, the evil stepmother who chases anything in pants. She is an English teacher at Noarthville High School. "Someday, I'll play a beautiful fairy godmother instead of a wild woman," she said.

The blackguard with the trunk and head, Little Harp, is played by Pat Butler of Westland. Butler insists he is uninteresting and declares his hobby is "tending my carp collection."

Marshall Murri of St. Clair Shores is Little Harp's brother, the talking head, who is named (what else?) Big Harp.

The half-witted Goat is portrayed by David Higginbotham of Plymouth. Judith Rosati of Farmington Hills is the Raven. Others in the cast are William Bozgan of Dearborn, Wendy Milazzo of Livonia, C.M. Novess II of Royal Oak, Cathie Sharon of Bloomfield Hills and Barbara Sullivan of Troy.

Directing and choreographing the show is James Posante of Ann Arbor, who directed the guild's production of "How to Succeed in Business" and "The Shape of the World," last year's musical revue.

Martha Kuykendall of Livonia is musical director. She is a vocal music teacher at Livonia's Holmes Junior High School and has directed at Schoolcraft College and Rosedale Presbyterian Church.

Dolores Palmer of Redford is producer and Clif Levin of Detroit is the assistant director and stage manager.

backgammon

Michael Kloian

of the American Backgammon Club

● FORWARD ANCHOR

The situation is this: White is on the bar and rolls a 4-3. Considering the entire position, what is your move?

Since backgammon is basically a combination running-hitting-blocking game, this 4-3 roll allows white several options. Getting off the bar with the 4 roll and hitting black on the 10 point from the 12 point with the 3 roll is probably a player's first instinct.

However, this move may prove fatal since white will leave four open blots. Aside from prematurely breaking the midpoint (12 point), white has no open board strength to detain black, which is reason enough to pass up the opportunity to hit.

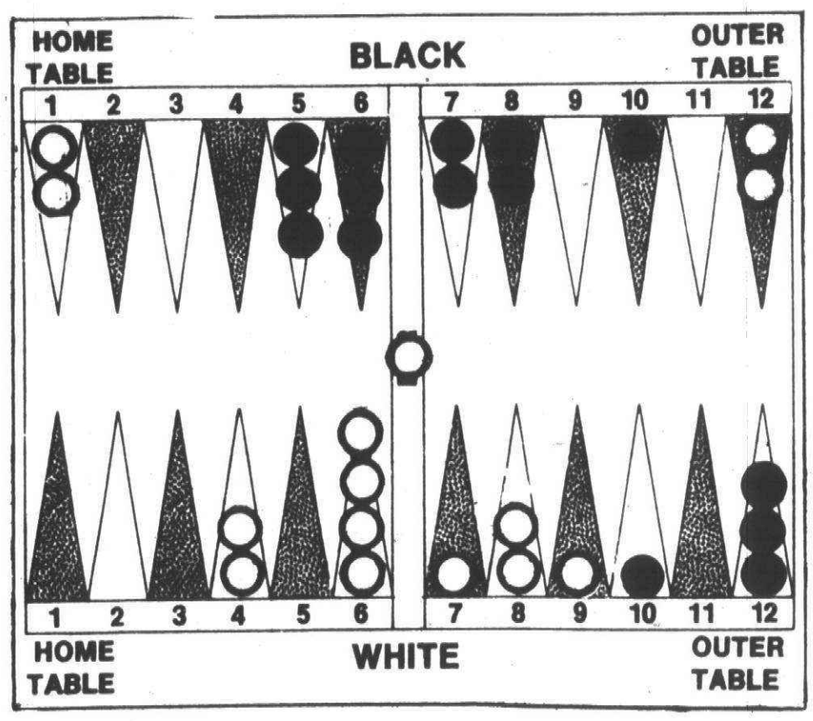

White would do best to bring the checker off the bar to the 4 point and by moving a checker from the 1 point to the 4 point in black's home board for a secure "anchor." most often in a game situation, as you find yourself losing ground, it is correct to secure a forward point in your opponent's home board. Although the 5 point is the best forward point to own in your opponent's home board, the 4 point would be the second best choice since this still allows a sure escape.

This game is far from over. With white sitting on the 4 point, black must roll perfect numbers to bring all of his checkers home safely while white can build his home board unrestricted and wait patiently for a shot. Furthermore, leaving the single checker on the 1 point prohibits black from placing a single checker on the 2 or 3 point and will force black to play awkward rolls which may eventually leave a shot.

Another reason for the forward anchor is that in the event black decides to double the cube, white may accept the cube and ride the game to the end. Realizing that if he is allowed a chance to hit and eventually force black onto the bar, white could easily redouble the cube and force black out of the game.

The importance of securing an advanced anchor in your opponent's home board is a lesson that needs to be learned.

For questions or comments regarding backgammon, contact the American Backgamon Club at Box 599, Plymouth, MI 48170, or call 459-5776.

Shown continuously between 2:45 and 4:45 p.m., the movies are included in museum admission of $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

"Flight" fuses movements of gliders with Canadian mountain backgrounds and "Floating Free" focuses on Frisbies floating effortlessly through space, soaring in midair, then finding their targets with remarkable accurace.

ALSO INCLUDED in museum admission that day are planetarium demonstrations entitled "Starbound" at 2, 3, 4 and 7:30 p.m. and observatory demonstrations from 8:30-10 p.m.

"North By Northwest" (1959), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Monday at the Punch & Judy Theatre, 21 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, phone 883-7363, $2.50. Running time 139 minutes.

"Detroit's only full-time repertory film house' is how the Classic Film Theatre (CFT) bills its new operation at the Punch, and that's exactly what it is. Detroit has been sadly lacking in full-time film companies, but happily, that void has been filed by CFT, which also runs the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor. CFT opened at the Punch Nov. 1, and its current schedule -- available by calling the number above -- runs through the end of the year.

"North By Northwest" is another of Alfred Hitchcock's tangled tales of mistaken identity, but it's the most visualy striking and sensual of all Hitchcock films, and deserves to be seen on the big screen. Hitchcock's camera captures the turmoil of New York City as effortlessly as it mirrors the seeming tranquility of a corn fild in Iowa.

When Cary Grant and Eva Marie Saint make love in a stateroom on the 20th Century Unlimited, the camera becomes a very interested third person in the proceedings; and note how the compelling vertical lines created by trees in a woods near Mt. Rushmore, site of the film's closing sequences, reflect the conspicuous diagonals of the opening shots. These scenes, and others, pull the viewer smack into the middle of the film.

Ernest Lehman wrote the script based on Hitchcock's ideas. While events and dialogue sometimes seem forced -- a necessity if the plot is to be twisted as relentlessly as is Hitchcock's won't -- Grant manages to charm his way over the rought spots. Grant even is convincing in the rather ridiculous sequence in which a United Nations diplomat, killed by a thrown knife, falls into Grant's arms. Grant removes the knife from the man's back, turns and exhibits a look of horror, which is mistaken for frenzied quilt, and immediately his picture is snapped by a nearby shutterbug. The nature of the scene may bring chuckles, but there's no denying Grant's panache in pulling it off.

Bernard Herrmann's score is as compelling as the action, and often as staccato as the images on the screen are abrupt and pointed. James Mason, Leo G. Carroll and Jessie Royce Landis also star. LRating: $3.80.

Also at the Punch & Judy this week: Thursday, "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"; Friday, "Bad Timing (A Sensual Obsession)"; Saturday, "Breaker Morant"; Sunday, "THe Mark of Zorro"; Tuesday, "Women in Love"; Wednesday, "East of Eden." Call for Showtimes.●

"Torn Curtain" (1966), noon Friday on Ch. 9. Originally 128 minutes.

Hitchcock's "Curtain" doesn't have the tragic-romantic balance of "Northwest," nor do his stars (Paul Newman and Julie Andrews) interact as well as Grant and Saint. Newman has never come off quite so cold perhaps because Andrews appears even colder. Hitchcock always felt that he could sculpt his performers into any shape he desired, but he fails miserably her, as does the Hitchcock-Lehman script, which contains remarkably little suspense. Rating: $2.

"The Saboteur' (1942), 8:30 a.m. Monday on Ch. 20. Originally 108 minutes.

"Shadow of a Doubt" (1943), 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on Ch. 20. Originally 108 minutes.

Hitchock had come to the States in 1940 to make his first American film, "Rebecca," and these next two projects demonstrate his Americanization. "Saboteur" has more the look and feel of a British film Hitchcock's own "Foreign Correspondent," in fact -- while "Shadow" reflects more of an American slant (Thornton Wilder wrote the screenplay). Both are rather minor baubelds in the Hitchcock treasure chest, though "Shadow" displays Hitchcock's ability to create eeriness with light and shadow and camera movements at its best. Ratings: $3.

Coward comedy coming

Artistic Director Terence Kilburn will direct Noel Coward's famous London and Broadway hit, "Hay Fever," which opens a four-week run at 8:30 p.m. on Dec. 3 on the Oakland University campus near Rochester.

"Hay Fever" is a farce-comedy about a family of four zany eccentrics and the madcap complications they encounter when they each invite a weekend guest to their country home without telling each other.

Hilarious situations arise from their puzzled guests who try to feel at home for the weekend in a house of eccentrics.

Opening week performances of "Hay Fever," which will run through Dec. 27, are scheduled at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 3-4, 2 and 8:30 p.m. Dec. 5 and 6:30 p.m. Dec. 6. Performances will be offered during the following three weeks at 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays-Fridays, 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturdays, 6:30 p.m. Sundays and 2 p.m. on Wednesday afternoons. Farmington defuses Canton in 2 OT's

Chiefs nipped in thriller 68-65

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Bob Lekovish worked up a sweat and didn't even play.

The perspiring Farmington coach was glad the game was over and pleased his team finished ahead on the scoreboard Tuesday as the Falcons pulled out a 68-65 double-overtime victory over Plymouth Canton in a non-league girls' basketball showdown.

"This is the first time we've beaten Canton in seven years," said the drained Lekovish. "It was beautiful. I'd have to say this is our biggest win of the year."

It was the regular-season finale for both teams, which finished with identical 18-2 records.

It was Canton's biggest test since the first week of the season. The Chiefs performed admirably well in the unfriendly Farmington confines, but couldn't quite overcome the Falcons' superior rebounding edge. Canton was able to make a game of it after falling behind by as many as eight points in the third quarter.

Stacy Green, Farmington's 6-foot-4 tower of strength in the middle, had a memorable night. She scored 18 points, pulled down 18 rebounds and blocked 11 shots.

Her partner on the front line, 6-foot Chris Looser, was doubly tough on the Chiefs as she led all scorers with 23 points and added 13 rebounds.

But it was Mary Kuhnlein who put the game away, sinking two free throws with seven seconds left after Canton coach Mike McCauley called three successive timeouts, trying to rattle the sophomore guard.

"IT COULD have gone either way," said McCauley. "My first year of coaching about nine years ago, I had a game that went into triple overtime.

"I just wish we had been on the other end of the stick."

After trailing 16-15 at the end of one quarter, Farmington began to take charge in the second period behind the play of Lisa Borchanian, Green and Looser.

The Falcons, who started out in a man-to-man defense and ended up using a zone because of foul problems, outscored Canton, 19-12, to take a six-point halftime advantage.

Borchanian and Looser combined for 12 points as Farmington upped that margin to eight at the end of the third quarter.

Canton's full-court press began to stymie the Falcons in the fourth quarter. And coupled with Green sitting on the bench because of four personal fouls, the Chiefs eventually overhauled Farmington on Cindy Sovine's basket with five minutes to go, 52-51.

Pearly Cunningham's three-point play with 2:49 left gave Canton a 57-54 advantage.

THE LEAD then seesawed back and forth the remainder of regulation play. Canton went up by two, 59-57, on Robyn Hudgins' basket on a pass from Reggie Ruggiero. Kuhnlein sent it into overtime with a shot in the key with 12 seconds left.

In the first overtime, Looser scored off the tip, but Ruggiero, who tallied 16 points, made a steal and converted it into a layup.

Green hit a free throw with 1:41 to go in the first overtime, lifting Farmington to a one-point lead, 62-61. Colleen Crissey answered back for Canton almost a minute later by sinking a pressure free throw.

The score remained that way at the conclusion of the first OT.

By that time, Cunningham was gone because of fouls. She left near the end of regulation time. Borchanian, who finished with 15 points, fouled out shortly after. Hudgins, who shared Canton team-high scoring honors with Ruggiero (16), also exited early in the first OT.

Green and Looser scored key baskets in the second overtime, but Canton had chances to pull even. The Chiefs, however, failed to answer.

Kuhnlein then hit the two big free throws to put the Falcons up by four, ending the suspense. She finished the night with 10 points as did Canton's Sue Gerke.

Rocks ready for district

Plymouth Salem outscored Redford Union, 16-8, in both the first and fourth quarters to post a 60-39 girls' basketball triumph Tuesday night.

It was the regular season finale for both teams. Salem, 17-3 overall, will open state tournament play at 2:45 p.m. Saturday at Plymouth Canton. The Rocks will meet the winner of tonight's game between Canton and Ann Arbor Pioneer. Westland John Glenn (13-6) will meet Wayne Memorial tonight at 6. The Canton-Pioneer game will follow at 7:45.

It was was the final home game for Salem seniors Eileen Moore, Carol Ross, Eileen Moore, Sara Evans, Linda Lybarger and Sue Remer.

And with the help of their fellow underclassmates, the state-ranked Rocks were able to offset the fine shooting performance by RU guard Cathi Hengy, who led all scorers with 22 points (10 of 11 free throws).

"They (RU) hung in there pretty good," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "They kept it close. Hengy is really a fine player."

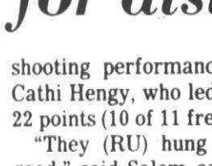

THE ROCKS, however, had more balance.

MacKenzie tallied 18 points, Moore added 16 and Jacque Merrifiled had eight. Ross had four points and seven assists. Moore also dished out six assists.

Blohm was happy with the way his team performed defensively. RU was held to just 12 field goals.

For the third consecutive year, Canton and Salem could meet early in the district.

'Electric' promoter keeps plugging

Brad Emons

He's not quite Don King yet, but Frank Allen is trying.

King, the famed boxing promoter, is slick. He smiles a lot and wears fancy tuxedos. His hairdo is avant-garde. Nobody's locks are more electric.

Frank Allen is a local guy, based in Farmington and head honcho of FCA (Frank C. Allen) Productions, who ... trying to make it big.

He promoted a six-bout card earlier this month at Canton's Center Stage, a local nightclub which usually entertains semi-famous middle-of-the-road performers.

Allen was hired by Center Stage and Detroit's Kronk Boxing Club to put on an amateur show.

On fight night, the boy promoter was decked out in a corduroy sports jacket and jeans and sported a Bobby Knight-like tie.

His first try at promoting gets an incomplete. He sold plenty of drinks for Center Stage, but not many seats. He went on the record by saying, "we sold 360 tickets and made a little money."

ACTUALLY, Allen's crowd was closer to 200. He didn't have to pay the fighters, two of whom were under 12 years old.

"I'm going to be back, probably between Christmas and New Year's," Allen said. "We're going to hype it up for the college kids on break. We'll probably sell all general admission seats for $7."

Allen is forging ahead after gaining some experience.

"I learned a lot more than I thought I knew," he said. "We'll be back — more amateurs and maybe pros in February or mid-March."

Allen sold ringside tickets for $8.50 and general admission for $5.50 on his first card.

The crowd next time could possibly be smaller, unless Allen comes up with local recognizable names for the show.

Farris Purify, one of the Kronk coaches, admitted after the bouts that some of Kronk's top amateurs stayed at the gym that night.

The main attraction was an Ohio Golden Gloves champ, Tony Biseno, who had not seriously trained since "our state fair in August," according to his coach, Gary Howe. Biseno, a 147-pounder, lost a unanimous decision to Kronk's Frank Tate.

GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

Frank Allen (pictured above) hopes to make boxing a big hit in the suburbs. The local promoter is planning another card at Canton's Center Stage during the Christmas holidays.

Without a strong, local personality, such as Livonia heavyweight Craig Payne (ranked third in the United States), Allen's chances of drawing a bigger crowd next time are remote.

ALLEN hopes to contact Payne's coach, Paul Soucey. But Kronk doesn't have any heavyweights, and Kronk arranges the bouts.

Payne is scheduled for a big bout during the first week of December in Milwaukee against the AAU's No.-2-ranked heavyweight, Michael Arms. Getting a worthy opponent for Payne later in the month is remote.

Payne, who has built a local following from his bouts at W.W. Edgar Arena in Livonia and Schoolcraft College, would draw well against a top amateur at Center Stage.

Kronk's stable of well-known personalities (Emmanuel Steward, Thomas Hearns and Hilmer Kenty) weren't on hand for the Nov. 2 card.

But despite all the obstacles, Allen, like a true promoter, believes there is hope for suburban cards in the future.

"I want to work more with suburban groups," Allen said. "My goal is to make a go of pro boxing. There's money to be made, and you can make a clean living from it."

Allen said he will try to offer some other types of entertainment to support his yuletide card.

"WE MIGHT bring in a comedy boxing match to break up the evening," he said. "We're going to go with older boxers. I want to stay away from the younger kids. We're going talk to boxers from Livonia and Inkster and try to line them up as part of the card."

After the Nov. 2 bout, Allen vowed: "We'll pack this place to the joint."

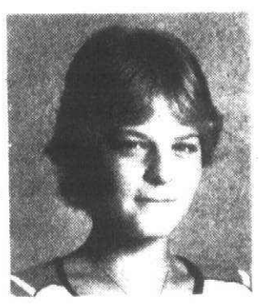

The rookie promoter is looking for another electric night of entertainment. The prospects of that happening look bleak. The only saviors are guys like Craig Payne and Don King's hair stylist.

Plymouth figures high in regional skate competition

Several competitors from the Plymouth Figure Skating Club earned high honors in the Eastern Great Lakes Regional held Nov. 2-7 at the Detroit Skating Club in Bloomfield Hills.

The top three skaters in each classification now advance to the next round of competition (Midwesterns) to be held in January in St. Clair Shores. The U.S. Figure Skating Association nationals are slated for Indianapolis in March.

Jerod Swallow gained first place in the intermediate men's freestyle division. He also took third in novice dance.

Three skaters rated high in the intermediate ladies division — Gwen Cribes, first in the initial round and third overall; Susan Moffatt, third in the initial round and seventh overall; Colleen Armstrong, third in the initial round and fifth overall.

IN THE juvenile ladies division, Plymouth's Jennifer Hirschauer gained first place. Teammates Michelle Hirschauer and Marianne Tipesh captured fourth and fifth, respectively.

Debeny Deck was second in the novice pairs while Sherry Snyder finished third in the junior ladies freestyle division.

"We had some good performances in the regionals," said Plymouth Cultural Center skating director Jim Millns. "It's at least a representation of our program as being successful."

Schoolcraft wins NJCAA Region 12 volleyball event

Schoolcraft College women volleyballers swept through the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region 12 tournament, losing just one game in four matches, to win their first regional championship Saturday at Schoolcraft.

The victory qualifies the Ocelots for the National Championship NJCAA tournament in Catonsville, Md., Nov. 26-28. It will be the fifth time in seven years the Schoolcraft team has competed in the nationals.

The Ocelots faced Lake Michigan College in the finals of the double-elimination regional tournament. The teams had met earlier in the tourney, with Schoolcraft winning in two straight games, 15-10 and 15-11.

In the best-of-five finals, the Ocelots dominated again by margins of 15-5, 15-5 and 15-13.

IT WAS SCHOOLCRAFT'S first NJCAA regional title in seven years, although the team finished second six times. Four Ocelots were picked to the All-Tournament team: Leigh Feenstra, Karen Kelley, Miki Truchan and Nancy Hughes. Feenstra graduated from Livonia Churchill, Truchan from Livonia Bentley and Kelley from Livonia Stevenson.

Schoolcraft players chosen on the second team were Kim O'Neill, a Livonia Churchill grad, and Chris Stellberger, who prepped at Livonia Clarenceville.

Schoolcraft coach Mike O'Toole was honored as Coach of the Year for his team's accomplishments.

Besides Lake Michigan, Schoolcraft whipped Lansing Community College (15-7, 15-10) and Kalamazoo Valley Community College (15-5, 15-4, 11-15, 15-2) to reach the finals.

RUNNERS ALSO-RAN

Three Schoolcraft cross country runners made it to the NJCAA national championships Saturday in Wichita, Kan., but none managed to finish higher than 92nd.

Polly Ostrander earned the highest Ocelot finish in the women's competition. Teammate Trish Mulka placed 106th in the 203-woman field.

Paul Coburn ran well until about the 3½-mile mark in the men's competition. At that point he pulled a back muscle and fell off the pace, finishing 133rd among the 256 competitors.

It was the best cross country showing ever for Schoolcraft. All three runners will return next season.

Speedy Roberts lifts MSU football fortunes

Tailback comes of age in 2nd half

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Five weeks ago, Aaron Roberts was unhappy. The team he lugged a football for, Michigan State University, was mired in last place in the Big 10, a loser in four of five contests.

What added to Roberts' dismay was his contribution to the team. Plainly put, he wasn't. He didn't start; in fact, the former Detroit Catholic Central great was the third halfback on coach Muddy Water's depth chart.

Although only a freshman, both he and the MSU coaches expected more from him this season. He didn't feel he was getting enough playing time, and reports that he might defect to Notre Dame, the school many thought he was going to sign with before he chose MSU, were more than just rumors.

Roberts was frustrated and angry. About all he had to show for his efforts in the season's first half was a wide gap in his teeth — two were knocked out in the Illinois game.

"I'M HAPPIER now," was Roberts' only comment last Saturday concerning his early-season dissatisfaction with the team.

And he should be. The 6-foot-1, 183-pound back had just played a key role in a breathtaking 43-36 victory over Minnesota.

It wasn't an easy win, but that's the way the season has been for MSU. The Spartans were unbeatable in the game's first half and seemed to have everything under control, leading 28-6 at the intermission. Roberts started, but his first-half contribution was limited to 23 yards in seven carries.

Everything fell apart in the third quarter. Four MSU turnovers were turned into Minnesota touchdowns and the Gophers added a field goal to grab a 36-28 lead going into the final quarter.

But the Spartans struck back. Lance Hawkins, who had been splitting time at halfback with Roberts, was injured. So in the fourth quarter, when MSU needed yardage on the ground, they went to Roberts.

Roberts carried on five consecutive plays and gained 29 yards, moving the ball from State's 41 to the Minnesota 30. On the next play, quarterback Bryan Clark fired a scoring pass to Ted Jones and, following a two-point conversion, the game was even at 36-all.

IN THE GAME-WINNING drive, Roberts again sparkled. Starting from the MSU 20 with 3:16 to play, the speedy back gained eight and nine yards on successive plays. But he twisted an ankle on his last carry and limped to the sidelines where he watched Clark rally his team to the win.

The injury was not expected to keep Roberts out of the season finale at Iowa Saturday.

For the day, Roberts finished with 91 yards on 19 carries, tops in the game. But the statistics don't impress the CC graduate.

"Actually we have three backs," he said, referring to teammates James Hodo and Hawkins. "Playing time depends on who the coach wants to play."

Still, since Roberts' resurgence, MSU's running game and record have improved. The Spartans' win over Minnesota boosted them to 5-5 overall, with a one-point loss to Purdue the only blemish on their record in the last five games.

ROBERTS HAS become a player MSU can build around. He broke the MSU season rushing record for freshman against Minnesota. He now has gained a team-leading 461 yards, averaging just under five yards a crack.

Glenn cagers squeak by Inkster

Westland John Glenn built up a 12-point lead but had to withstand an Inkster comeback attempt to collect its 13th victory of the season, 49-47, Tuesday at Glenn.

The Rockets scored the winning basket with 1:03 to play, then fought off several Inkster scoring attempts in the final minute. Glenn trailed in the early going, 15-13 after one quarter and 25-21 at the half, but a 20-8 third-quarter scoring splurge put them in front, 41-33.

Inkster's press rattled Glenn into several miscues in the last quarter, but the Rockets had enough to put the Vikings away.

Terri Chapo was high scorer for Glenn with 17 points. Sandy Cockrum collected 10. Inkster's Alicia Jarrett led all scorers with 20 points.

Glenn finished the regular season with a 13-6 mark. The Rockets first state district match is at 6 p.m. Thursday against Wayne Memorial at Plymouth Canton.

THE REAL SHORTAGE IS MONEY

One accusation which hasn't yet been leveled at the energy industry – and sometimes these days it seems about the only thing we haven't been accused of – is that ours is a humdrum business. On the contrary. Energy occupies center stage in virtually all of our current public debates, foreign and domestic. Small wonder, then, that misunderstandings, large and small, continue to cloud public opinion on energy matters.

The First Great Misunderstanding, of course, was whether we really face an energy crisis in this country – in the world, to be more precise – or whether the whole notion is simply a get-rich-quick scheme dreamed up in the boardrooms of the major oil companies. It took a long time – far too long – for us to reach the present consensus that Yes, whether you like the big oil companies or not, we do face a crisis in regard to energy. But even having staked out that common ground, we have another equally vital step to take before our common understanding of the energy crisis is complete.

Energy shortage. In that simple phrase lie the seeds of the Second Great Misunderstanding.

Because the fact is, it isn't energy we're short of. Oil, yes. But what about coal? We're the Saudi Arabia of coal reserves. What about uranium? We have enough of that to support a nuclear power program far larger than anything we've built yet. What about synthetic fuels liquids and gas from coal? We not only have the raw materials, we have the technology – at least on paper. And what about the sun? We know the potential of solar energy, and we're increasingly certain that that potential can be tapped, given enough time and...

Money. Capital. Cash. That is the true shortage we face. The fuel is there for the using, the various technologies are there for the testing and perfecting; it's now a matter of paying for it.

The initial bill, whether for coal, nuclear, solar or synthetics – and we need them all – will be huge. We know that. But in paying that bill we won't simply be buying new plants and new processes. We'll be buying the ability to progress, to keep moving forward, to live as we choose rather than as we have to. It's a price, then, that we should be willing to pay.

How? By supporting policies at all levels of government to encourage increased savings and investment. By insisting upon realistic environmental and other regulatory practices to ensure that the cost of developing new energy sources is no higher than it need be. And by understanding the need for adequate prices and rates for energy, because without such prices and rates the energy industry cannot attract the investment capital it must have to convert today's energy potential into tomorrow's energy fact.

We can have all the energy we need for the remainder of this century. We can begin the work today that will provide us with all the energy we need entering the next century.

But first, we have to be willing to pay for it.

Phillies' doctor speaks

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Only in America.

While countries throughout the world agonize over a lack of doctors to care for the sick, the U.S. can boast of enough doctors to allow specialization in such fields as sports medicine.

Sports medicine is one of the newest fields in the medical world. As the popularity of sports and the push to "get involved in exercise" grows, more people are succumbing to injuries that need the attention of a doctor who can both diagnose the problem and understand how the sport was related.

Dr. Phillip Marone is a forerunner in the field of sports medicine. He has specialized for nearly 20 years in an area that could be considered the ancestor of sports medicine — orthopedic surgery.

He is also the team physician for the Philadelphia Phillies.

DR. MARONE says he has seen "both the bad and the good" in his 10 years as the Phillies' physician. In the early '70s, the team lost heavily and was buried deep in the National League Eastern Division's standings.

But last year they rose out of the mire to claim a World Series championship. It was a proud moment for the surgeon, who still sports his World Series ring engraved with his name.

The physician was in Livonia last Friday, his last stop on a two-week promotional tour for Gemnisyn, an analgesic for pain. The whirlwind tour also included St. Louis, Houston, Seattle and Boston.

Different sports cause different problems, Dr. Marone remarked. And the emphasis in sports medicine is toward "education and preventative medicine.

"Seventy-five percent of baseball injuries are in the upper extremity," he explained, adding that most occur in the arm-elbow-shoulder area. "And 75 percent of those (in the upper extremity area) are with pitchers."

While the causes for arm problems among pitchers are well-known ("We know it's overuse"), what baffles medical science is "why it occurs in some and not in others," Dr. Marone said.

MOST COMMON among pitchers are problems in the elbow. "A lot of pitchers can't even straighten their arm at the elbow," he said.

Shoulder injuries are more serious, according to Dr. Marone.

And it's an area that causes team physicians to hesitate before recommending surgery. "You start playing around with the mechanics of the shoulder in a pitcher and you're asking for disaster," Dr. Marone said.

Some key members of the Phillies pitching staff seem to avoid such troubles. Steve Carlton is 36 and still one of the hardest throwers in the National League. Tug McGraw is also 36 and remains one of the league's top relievers.

How do they do it?

"They basically keep themselves in shape," Dr. Marone said with a shrug, offering no secret exercise or formula for such phenomenal success. "They're professionals. They know what's expected of them and they take care of themselves."

THE PHILLIES job is not Dr. Marone's full-time profession. He is with the team four days a week during spring training because "that's when a lot of little aches and pains crop up." But during the season he is with the Phillies only during home stands. If the Phillies make the playoffs he accompanies them on the road.

Dr. Marone has been exposed to other sports-related injuries in his regular practice at Methodist Hospital in Philadelphia.

Joggers, he noted, have problems in their knees and feet, often times caused by running on a surface that isn't flat.

His advice to the novice runner: Start slowly, go through a vigorous routine of stretching and flexibility exercises, be careful of any congenital problems (flat feet or bowed knees, for example) and don't overdo it.

Racquetball is another recreational exercise in which there can be a serious injury. "Usually it's in the knee or elbow and forearm," he explained.

TWISTED KNEES often result in torn cartilage or ligaments. The pounding a knee takes in either racquetball or jogging can lead to an arthritic change — an inflamed joint brought about from the wearing away of the cartilage covering the knee, which causes it to swell and hurt.

That pain should not be ignored. "Pain has a reason," Dr. Marone said. "It says something is wrong and you better find out what it is."

Plymouth loses 'touch'

Plymouth's entry in the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association (MRPA) state touch football tournament suffered a first-round loss to Royal Oak U.S. Equipment, 45-28, last weekend in Bay City.

Plymouth, which qualified by winning its league with an 8-0 record, couldn't hold a 28-8 halftime lead.

Dave Nelson accounted for three Plymouth touchdowns. He threw for two and was on the receiving end of a Curt Yockey TD pass.

Greg Harris scored Plymouth's other TD on a 90-yard interception return.

Bentley reels in Marlins

By Jay Keenan
special writer

Livonia Bentley and Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy couldn't have picked a more effective time to play each other during the regular season.

With the girls' state prep basketball tournament starting this week, the two state-ranked teams prepared themselves for a possible run at the Class A title by closing out their schedules against tough opponents — each other.

As expected, it was a hard-fought, physical game. Bentley managed to outmuscle the fleet Mercy squad in a 56-51 victory Monday at Bentley.

"I'm pretty happy with what the game did for us," said Mercy coach Larry Baker, whose team slipped to 16-2. "This was an excellent preparation for the tournment. I don't expect us to run into a harder situation than playing Bentley on its home court."

THE MARLINS were unable to get much consistency under the basket, as the Bulldogs' zone defense kept Mercy's inside shooters out of the middle most of the contest.

Bentley's stellar board play was another key factor in the game. The Bulldogs tore down 43 rebounds to just 19 for Mercy.

"We played a zone instead of a man-to-man to keep them from shooting inside," said Bentley coach Tom Lang. "And when we kept them outside, it helped us get more rebounds."

But in the long run, it was Bentley's strength and half-court press that made the difference.

"Our physical game and half-court press did it for us," Lang remarked. "Our press forced them to turn the ball over quite a few times. Mercy also tried to stay physical with us, but our team is bigger and stronger and its hard for someone to stay physical with us through an entire game."

THE BULLDOGS got balanced scoring, with guard Tina Ostach leading with 14 points, forward Kim Archer contributing 12 and forward Ann Roy 11. Guard Laurie Day scored nine. Archer topped all rebounders with 19 while Lori Swanson collected 10.

Mercy' Denise Basford pumped in 22 points for game-high honors. Karen Shook added 14.

The contest was tied (9-9) following one quarter before Bentley took control. With 6:56 remaining in the half, Ostach hit two free throws to put Bentley in front, 13-11, a lead the Bulldogs never relinquished.

Baskets by Roy and Archer increased a one-point Bentley lead to five (22-17) at the half.

Shook shook things up a bit for Mercy early in the third quarter, scoring her team's first seven points and cutting Bentley's advantage to 24-22. But the Bulldogs went on a 10-2 tear to open up a 34-24 lead by mid-quarter.

BASFORD FIRED in 11 fourth-quarter points in an effort to rally Mercy, but the Bentley lead, which grew to 49-38 with 3:12 left in the game, was too much to overcome. The closest Mercy got was five points in the final minute, but three free throws apiece by Deneen Clark and Peggy Fitzgerald insured Bentley's win.

"I'm happy that we played down to the final five seconds," said Baker. "We had ample opportunities to narrow the gap earlier.

Important News For Smokers:

New Merit Research Released!

New survey results prove MERIT delivers in key areas of taste, ease of switch, and long-term satisfaction.

Rigorous new MERIT research proves it.

MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing a successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Switch Clicks.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

2 Of 3 Smokers Prefer MERIT.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Main Street, USA

Heading down I-75, there's a whole world off the exits

Interstate 75 is Main Street, USA, for thousands of Michigan travelers at this time of year. A few smart travelers, with the time and temptation to stop, know that getting there is half the fun.

Here are some stopping, and some shopping suggestions along the way: the World's Fair site, hand-loomed Christmas gifts, outlet stores, Sail America and the new Aviation Trail in Ohio.

Iris Jones

THE AVIATION Trail opened in July, marking 10 Dayton-area sites which trace aviation history. Nineteen more sites will soon be added to the self-guided trail, which is marked by bright blue and white Aviation Trail signs.

You can follow the trail to the Aviation Hall of Fame, exhibits in the Montgomery County Historical Society, the original Wright Cycle Co. and Wright family home, the displays at Carillon Park, memorabilia in the Kettering-Moraine Museum, South Field, the Wright graves, the Wright Memorial and the U.S. Air Force Museum.

Also, check out the Neil Armstrong Air and Space Museum in Wapakoneta, Ohio.

Tennis buffs please note: the Davis Cup Finals will be played in Cincinnati Dec. 11-13. Tickets are $80, $65 and $50 for admission to all three sessions. Send money order including $2.25 for postage and handling to Davis Cup, Riverfront Coliseum, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202 or phone (513) 241-1818.

CHURCHILL WEAVERS Inc., a 60-year-old handcraft firm in Beria, Ky., is an often-overlooked stop where you can start your Christmas shopping. Churchill Weavers did the hanging woven sculptures in the Renaissance Center here in Detroit.

Get off I-75 at the only Beria exit. Churchill Weavers is at the edge of town on Lorraine Court. Tour the Loom House free 9 a.m. to noon and 12:30-4 p.m. weekdays, noon to 6 p.m. Sundays. Check out wool, mohair, cashmere and acrylic hand-made gifts — from $20 scarves and $45 ponchos to $100 capes.

The nearby Boone Tavern, operated by students, offers rooms for $18 single, $40 double, and meals for $5-8 for lunch and $10-16 for dinner, no tipping, no tax.

Two other worthwhile craft stops in Kentucky are at Shakertown in Pleasant Hill and at Fort Boonesborough State Park in Boonesboro.

Skiers, please note: General Butler State Resort Park, one of Kentucky's 15 such resorts with lodges, will open alpine ski slopes this winter, including "the most sophisticated snow-making machine in the nation," designed to give you a blizzard when the temperature is 20 degrees or less.

Also: The Lexington Marriott Resort, with golf and tennis courts, opened Oct. 1 on old Griffin Gate Farm, I-75 at the Newton Pike Exit near Lexington, right across from the Kentucky Horse Park.

THE WORLD'S Fair site in Knoxville, Tenn., is chugging along and worth a visit. The Sunsphere, a 266-foot tower with a huge bronze globe, is now being finished and will mark the skyline of the fair in downtown Knoxville.

The fair runs from May 1 to Oct. 31, 1982, but you can now visit the Preview Center, where there is a presentation about past world fairs as well as this one.

Interstate 75 and Interstate 40, known locally as Malfunction Junction, is still undergoing its $300 million reconstruction, so allow time for that; hopefully it will speed us all to our World's Fair destination by spring.

There are 19 international participants in the World's Fair so far, including the People's Republic of China, attending for the first time since China went to the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904.

Everybody is keeping exhibit ideas secret, but the rumors are wonderful: robot guides at the Japanese exhibit; a huge section of the Great Wall at the China exhibit; and amusement park rides never seen on the planet before, i.e. the double-shuttle loop roller coaster.

KNOXVISIT, a computer reservation system, is already functioning, using a list of rooms within 100 miles of Knoxville. Call (615) 971-1000 if you want a room on your way back from Florida in the spring.

What else in Tennessee? Stop at the Welcome Center in Jellico, just inside the state line, and check out events at Cove Lake and Norris Dam State Parks, and at the Museum of Appalachia, off the Norris exit, where John Rice Irwin has been collecting mountain lore since the 1930s.

A visit to the museum is like stepping into the woods for a moment: herb gardens, a barn-like museum full of 150,000 artifacts, dog-trot cabin, varmint traps, 30 original log buildings and fainting goats. Yep. Disturb them and they'll faint right in front of you.

OUTLET STORES in Georgia are a Christmas shopper's delight if you have clothing, carpets or other textiles on your list. Textiles represent 27.3 percent of Georgia's manufactured products.

Here is a partial list of outlets available, going north to south on I-75: Dalton has more than 50 carpet outlets that sell to the public. Dalton manufactures more than 65 percent of the 500 million yards of carpets made annually in the world, according to the Georgia Department of Industry and Trade.

There are at least six clothing outlets in Cartersville, and you can buy hosiery, clothing, shoes, coats and bedding in Marietta. Atlanta has Loehmann's Plaza in suburban Smyrna, as well as others.

South on State 23, check Thomaston Mills in Stockbridge; Towel Town in McDonough and the Jarrell Plantation in Juliette. Jarrell is an old-fashioned 7.2-acre working farm of the early 1900s; owners lead a self-sufficient life and you can observe their life style as well as buy their crafts.

South from Atlanta to Griffin on Routes 19 and 41, you will find hosiery, towels and children's clothing shops. Macon has the Westgate Outlet World, billed as the "South's only true factory outlet shopping mall," with 10 factory outlet stores and four discount retailers under one roof.

When you cross the state line, ask for a list of these outlet stores at the Welcome Center in Ringgold.

Georgia also has a spectacular new museum exhibit, a 40 million-year-old whale fossil that is highlighted in a $1 million, 28,000-foot addition to the Macon Museum of Arts and Sciences, 4182 Forsythe Road, Macon.

Its called Zygorhiza, it's 18 feet long, and the only one of its kind in the world. Zyggie was uncovered in 1973 in a kaolin clay mine in nearby Twiggs County, and will help the museum to show the geological history of the area during the Tertiary period of 60 million years ago.

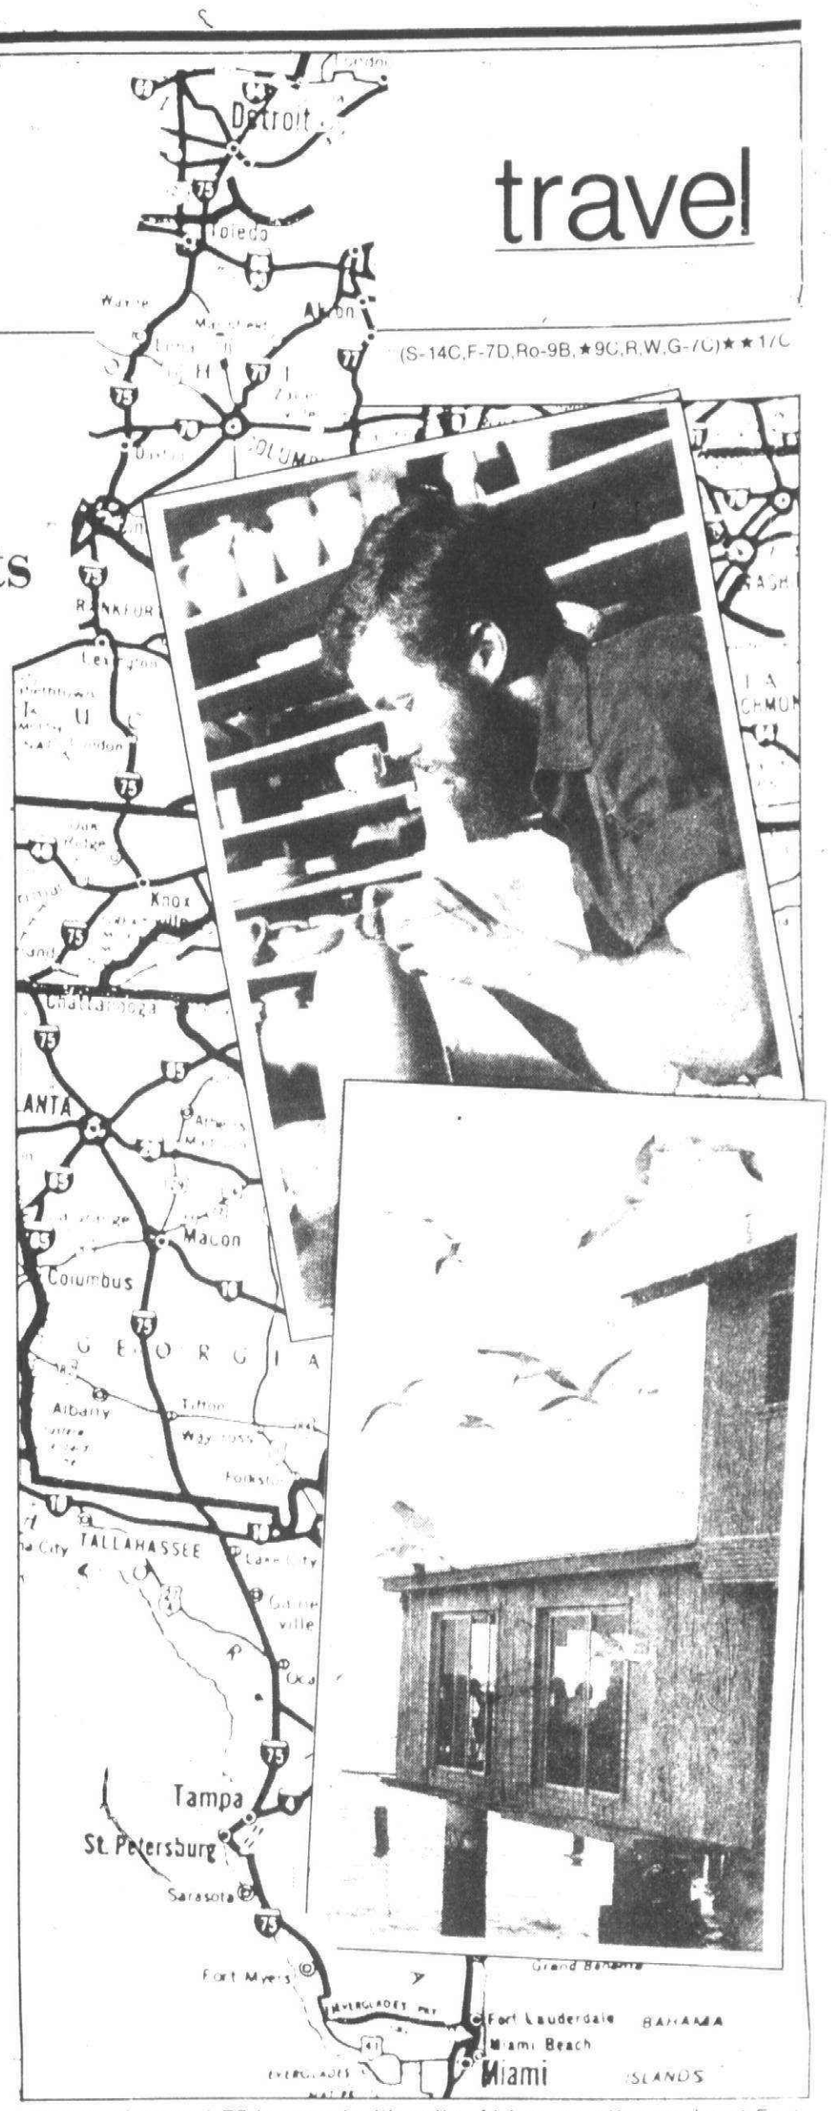

SAIL AMERICA is one of the new things going on in Florida this year. It is a service designed for British tourists but is now available to Americans.

You select the kind of marine vacation you want, and Sail America puts it together for you: self-catering hotels where you cook your own meals and have access to windsurfing, day sailing, reef diving, fishing, sailboating, etc. And that's only one of the options.

You can go flotilla sailing down to Key West, the Marquesas, Dry Tortugas. You can live aboard a yacht. You can pick a combination of a week on board and a second week of Disney World type touring.

Sail America is based at the Holiday Inn on Marathon Key. Get more information by calling (305) 289-0222. The service to Americans starts in December 1981, so your travel agent may or may not know about it yet.

Contact the Florida Department of Tourism at 107 W. Gaines, Tallahassee, FL 32301.

The road down I-75 is paved with exits. At top, a potter works at Fort Boonesborough State Park in Kentucky. And seafood restaurants dot the fishing villages of Florida's upper Gulf Coast.

TAX-FREE

All Savers Certificate

Here's what the one-year All Savers Certificate can mean to you.

- You can exclude up to $2,000.00 interest from federal income tax on a joint return ($1,000.00 on an individual return). The amount excluded is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.
- Your All Savers Certificate is insured to $100,000.00 by the FSLIC.
- Your interest rate is guaranteed for the full term of the certificate, unlike other investments such as money market funds where rates fluctuate daily.
- You can participate with a deposit of $500.00 or more.
- Funds in your Standard Federal 26-Week Money Market Certificate can be transferred to an All Savers Certificate without any early withdrawal penalty on the transferred funds.

If you elect to receive interest at maturity there is no compounding and the interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 10.770%. If you wish to have interest payable monthly or quarterly, the annual simple interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 10.229% and interest retained in your All Savers Certificate will be continuously compounded for an effective annual yield of 10.770%. These rates are available for All Savers Certificates opened through November 27, 1981. Rates for accounts opened after November 27, 1981, will be announced later. However, the rate established at the time an All Savers Certificate is opened is the rate in effect for the full one-year term of the account. You should also know that in the event of early withdrawal from an All Savers Certificate federal law and regulations require a substantial early withdrawal penalty and loss of the interest exclusion for federal income tax purposes. The All Savers rate of 10.770% is equivalent to the yields for taxable investments shown in the table. This table demonstrates how the All Savers Certificates can provide you with a higher after-tax yield than you may be earning from a money market mutual fund or on other investments.

The deposit needed in your All Savers Certificate to achieve the maximum allowable deduction is $18,570.10 for a joint return and $9,285.05 for an individual return.

Compare the Tax-Free All Savers Rate of 10.770% with Yields on Taxable Investments.

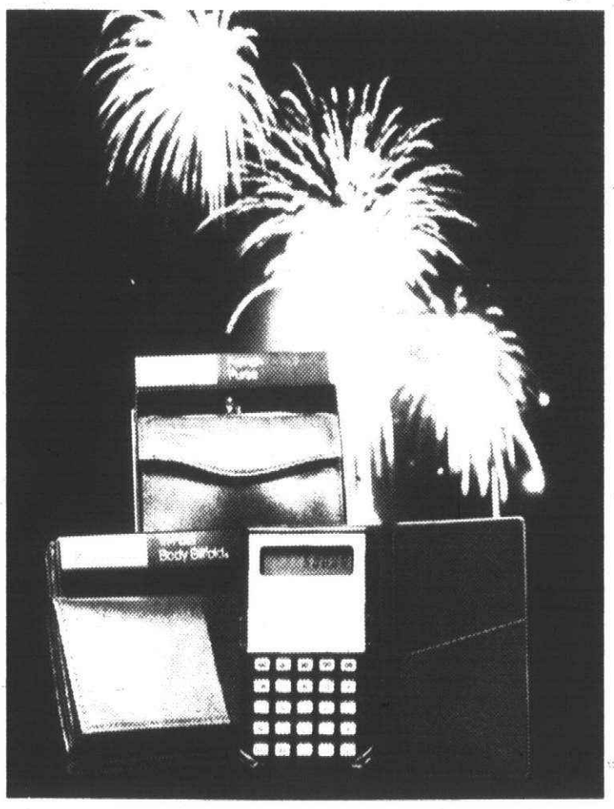

TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS	TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS
$10,000.00	13.13%	$ 70,000.00	23.41%
20,000.00	14.17%	80,000.00	23.41%
30,000.00	17.10%	90,000.00	26.27%
40,000.00	18.89%	100,000.00	26.27%
50,000.00	21.12%	110,000.00	29.92%
60,000.00	21.12%	120,000.00	29.92%

The yields shown in this table are based on 1981 tax rates but do not reflect the effects of any tax credits that may be available in 1981, nor do they take into account the 50% maximum tax rate on salary and wages. If tax-free interest is received in 1982, the comparable yield on taxable investments should be calculated using 1982 tax rates. In addition, the yield for the All Savers Certificate actually will be somewhat higher because the amount excluded from federal income tax is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.
