ARLENE FUNKE, Canton Observer reporter, was named Woman of the Year by the Garden City Business and Professional Women's Association Thursday night. Ms. Funke is married to Westland Observer reporter Doug Funke.

OH MY, talk about bad scheduling. Did you notice the girls' basketball district competition at the Centennial Education Park included a semifinal game Saturday afternoon?

That's right, Saturday afternoon . . . the same time as the Michigan-Ohio State football game in Ann Arbor.

Our sports staffers weren't thrilled with this scheduling conflict, but you'll see those Saturday district results in today's Canton Observer sports section.

A RADIO STAR in Canton. Tom Cali of Canton and Myrna Henderson of Novi will co-host a new radio talk show, "Family Forum," which premieres on Dec. 1 on WCAR radio, 1090 on your AM dial.

The weekly show, which will air 8-9 a.m. Tuesdays, will include guest interviews on child-related issues and family-oriented topics. Special programs will talk on mental retardation and learning disabilities.

FOUR CANTON youngsters recently were honored as winners of the annual Fire Prevention Poster Contest. They were: Edward Kaiser, first-place winner in the grades 1-3 division, of Hulsing Elementary School; Jason Allan Blazek, first-place winner in grades 4-6, of Gallimore; Matthew Cifaldi, second-place finisher in grades 1-3, of Gallimore; and Eric Varton, second-place finisher in grades 4-6, of Gallimore.

The winning artists earned trophies for their respective schools. All four students received $50 saving bonds.

The contest was co-sponsored by The Canton Chamber of Commerce and the Canton Fire Department, as part of fire prevention week activities.

ERIC JONES, 3, of Georgetown in Canton recently was a winner of the "Meet Your Favorite Piston" contest, sponsored by McDonald's Restaurants.

Eric (pictured above with Detroit's center Kent Benson) was one of three children who visited the Piston locker room, received an autographed basketball and won four reserved-seat tickets to a basketball game.

MOLLY PEMBERTON, Doris White, Barb Scanlon and Sue Smith, all of Canton, will exhibit their art work at Saturday's seventh-annual Craft Carnival at Holy Innocents Academy, 23601 Ann Arbor Trail, in Dearborn Heights.

Ms. Pemberton will exhibit wood carvings, Ms. White on driftwood, Ms. Smith on pine cones and Ms. Scanlon on folk wood. The carnival is from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $1.

CANTON TOWNSHIP'S third annual Christmas Tree Lighting Festivities take place at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 7 at Township Hall, on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill.

Canton residents are invited to place an unbreakable ornament on the big Christmas tree in front of Township Hall at this time. They may personalize the decoration for historical purposes. The festivities will include singing songs, trimming the tree, refreshments and a surprise visit from Santa.

Anti-crime program stays busy

A flurry of reported break-ins is fueling activity in a crime prevention program sponsored by the Canton police department.

Officer Leonard Schemanske of the crime prevention bureau says he has talked to officials of homeowners' groups. He wants people to be more aware of possible break-ins.

"We have had a rash of B&Es (breaking-and-entering) lately," said Schemanske. "People should keep an extra eye open."

In the last couple of weeks, at least eight homes in the Ford-Sheldon vicinity have been broken into during the early evening. Only one break-in was witnessed.

Another set of break-ins occurred recently during the night, while home occupants were sleeping. Police are continuing their probe of those burglaries.

Schemanske says word about the break-ins is beginning to circulate among the victims and their neighbors.

"It (information) does filter down," said Schemanske. "Anything in crime prevention is helping us."

THE POLICE department launched its crime prevention program in 1980. One aspect is the development of a Neighborhood Watch, which encourages residents to get involved in crime prevention and to report suspicious activities.

"People are initially scared," said Schemanske. "It isn't a patrol. It's just working on different projects."

Sunflower and Windemere subdivisions were among the first to come into the Neighborhood Watch program. Now there are about 10 areas in the plan, said Schemanske.

THE PROJECT begins by blocking out a working area. Residents circulate petitions expressing an interest in the plan. Fifty-one percent must sign.

"That doesn't mean a commitment," said Schemanske. "It's just expressing some kind of interest."

Next, Schemanske meets with residents to explain the plan. Neighbors must get involved in certain projects such as bike registration and putting identification on valuables.

After one project is completed, a Neighborhood Watch sign is posted in the area. Law enforcement officials believe those signs discourage would-be thieves.

The homeowners must buy the signs, which cost $16.60. Information to residents is funneled through block captains who are responsible for 20 homes, said Schemanske.

CURRENTLY, there is a waiting list for use of the engraving instruments — used to engrave drivers' license numbers on valuable possessions. This provides indentification in case of theft.

About 400 residents already have gone through the identification program, said Schemanske.

For information about crime prevention programs, call the police department at 397-3000, Ext. 320.

Canton is largest tax provider for schools

Although Canton produces almost 45 percent of the local property tax revenues collected by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, the township also produces more than 60 percent of the student body.

An analysis of revenues per student recently conducted by the district's business office shows Canton provides 44 percent of the local tax dollars but also kicks in some 62 percent of the students enrolled in the district.

As a result, Canton provides less financial support per student than any of the six municipalities which form the school district.

Canton Township contributes $1,468 per student, the city of Plymouth $3,359 per student, and Plymouth Township $2,724 tax dollars per student.

Salem's local tax contribution is $3,339 per student, Northville Township's $3,149, and Superior Township is at $5,686 per student.

In terms of total dollars, the second largest tax-paying unit is Plymouth Township, which for the 1981-82 school year, paid out $12 million in' comparison to Canton's $15.6 million.

The city of Plymouth paid the school district almost $5 million in property taxes, while Salem paid about $681,000, Northville Township some $384,000, and Superior Township about $233,000.

Of the district's 16,878 students accounted for in the Fourth Friday Student Count, Canton has almost 10,600 students, Plymouth Township 4,445 students, the city of Plymouth almost 1,470, Salem some 200, Northville Township about 120, and Superior Township some 40 students.

The figures show Plymouth Township contributes about 35 percent of the local property tax income but has about 25 percent of the student body.

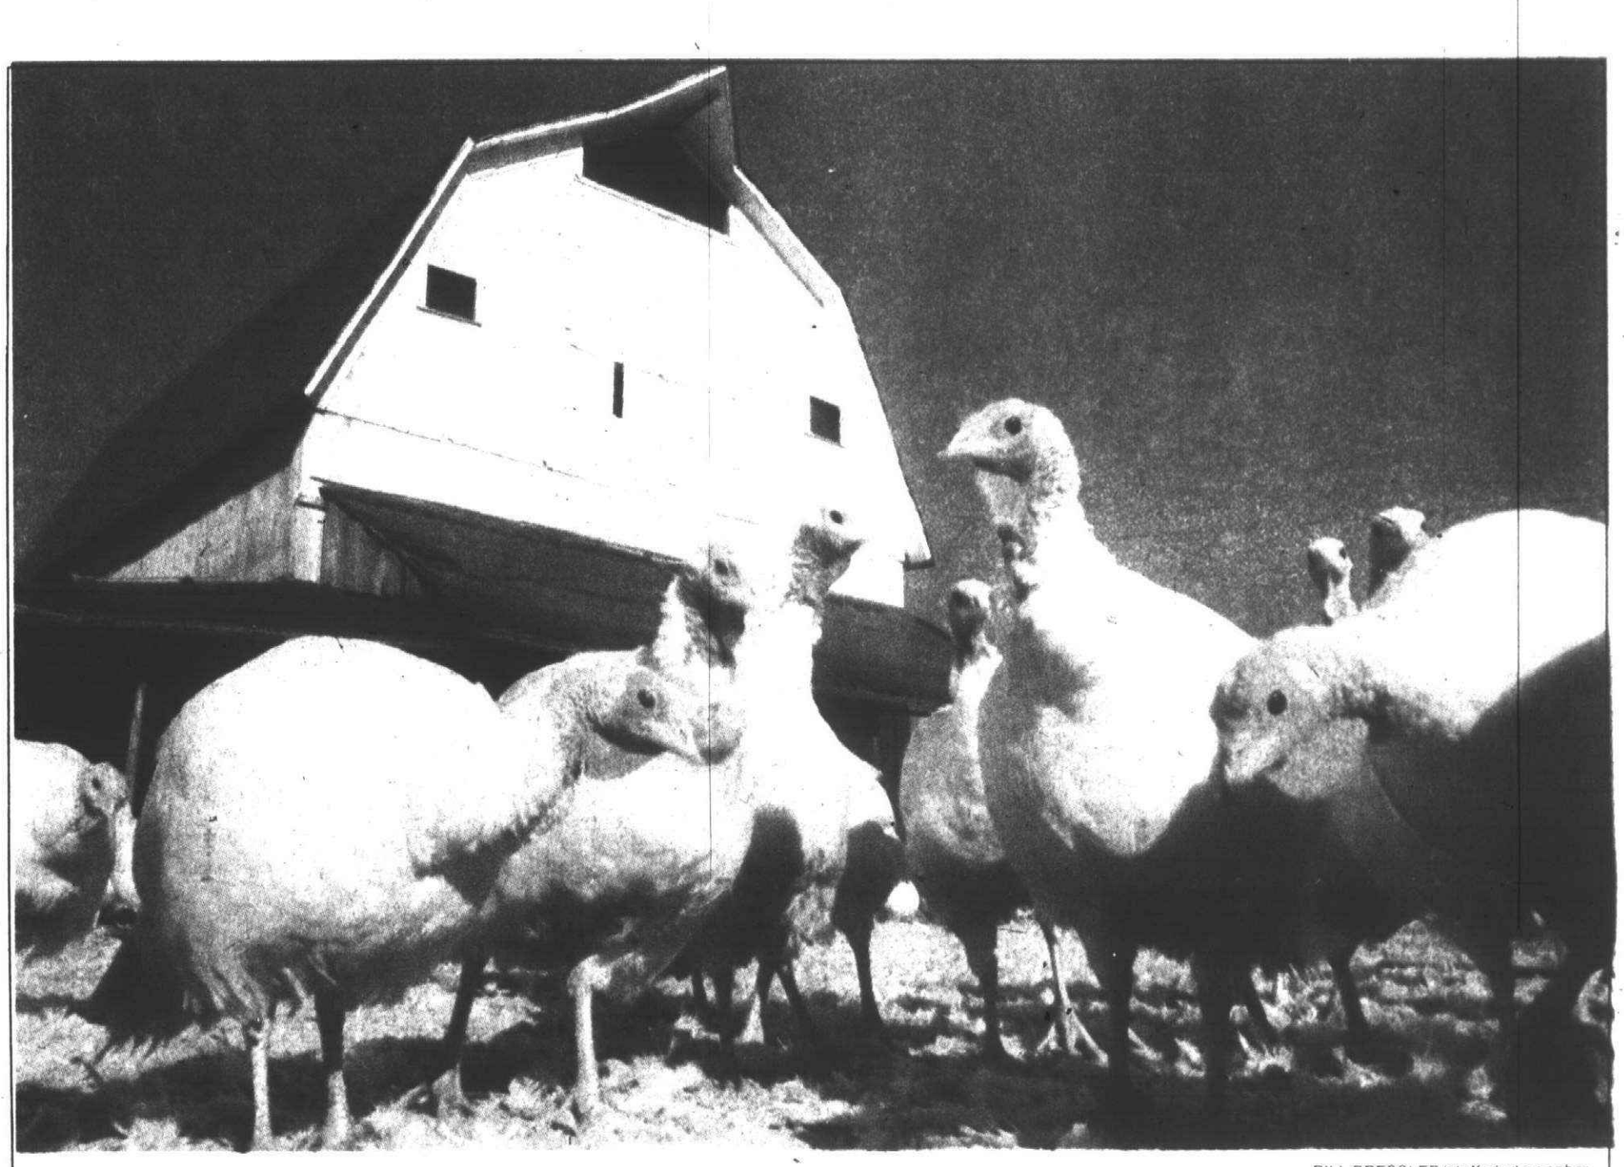

The city of Plymouth pays about 15 percent of the tax receipts and contributes about 8 percent of the total student body.

The $34 million collected from property taxes represents about 85 percent of the district's total revenue for the current school year.

If student enrollment declines and the tax base continues to rise at its present rate, administrators anticipate the district will not receive any state aid next year.

Right now state funds of almost $4 million comprise about 10 percent of the district's total income while federal dollars account for less than 3 percent of total income.

For this year, expenses exceed current income by $1.3 million.

The American turkey, which lost out by two votes of becoming the symbol for the United States, now is a traditional dish on Thanksgiving Day.

Turkey falls to all-time low-socially

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

Few creatures on the face of this earth have been more maligned than the once-proud American turkey.

It is almost forgotten that there was a time when it lost out by only two votes of becoming the symbol of the United States — a role held by the American eagle.

Now it has fallen, socially, except for one day in the year to the commoners among the creatures found piled up in the frozen food sections of the supermarket with a price of a mere 69 cents a pound. How much further could it fall?

Back in the days of the Continental Congress when our forefathers were designing our country, Benjamin Franklin, so it is written in history, nominated the turkey as the symbol of the new country. John Hancock countered with the eagle and the poor turkey finished a poor second.

IN THOSE DAYS it was a beautiful bird with his feathers fanned out in the back . And when it strode around the barnyards, it was a sight to behold.

It was designated as the main dish on the days of Thanksgiving when the Colonists gave thanks for weathering the trip across the Atlantic Ocean and the first hard winter in the new country. It was a spindly looking thing, but under the care of the Colonists, it soon developed into a much-revered favorite of the settlers.

Socially, it was tops. It was what was termed bronze (it showed that way in the afternoon sun) and its strutting would do justice to royalty in any group — human or otherwise.

Down through the years the turkey was almost worshipped. Each family looked forward to the one day in the year when it would feast on the bird. Families gathered around the festive board to watch grandfather carve the magnificent bird. It was a means of bringing the families together.

THEN, AS OFTIMES happens, the social prestige began to fade. And that came about in a most unusual way.

In most families at the Thanksgiving Day dinner, there was a plea for the white meat of the breast. It seems there never was enough to satisfy everyone. Then something happened.

Those wise in the ways of such things noticed that the white turkey that came into being somewhere along the line differed from its bronze brother and sister. It was a different in the shape of the breast bone. On the bronze bird the bone protruded at an angle and stuck out in a point, making for only a limited amount of white meat.

On the other hand, the breast bone on the white bird was more rounded and remained closer to the body.

It was then that the breeders of the turkeys decided to work on the white bird to satisfy the Americans' demand for more and more white meat.

Teachers get more training

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Plymouth-Canton teachers and administrators will be going back to the classroom for additional training, while the students get some unexpected half-days off in January and February.

The training is part of the Instructional Skills Program designed to increase the amount of learning going on in the classrooms.

A group of 65 administrators and teachers already have completed the first part of the program and will be helping as the entire staff goes through the six training session in January and February.

The group of 65 went through the training with the help of the Waterford School District, which already has put its staff through the program.

Shirley Spaniel, executive director for elementary education, declined saying when the days off will be taken as the Plymouth-Canton staff completes the sessions.

She says the schools will be notifying parents of the dates later this year.

Ms. Spaniel is excited about the program and says it has worked well in other districts.

"For the first time someone has taken the whole art of teaching and made a science out of it," she says.

The program is based on research done by Dr. Madeline Hunter of UCLA and incorporates four basic ideas, according to Spaniel. who has had extensive training in the program.

"The first goal is that the teacher teaches to an objective," she says.

THIS IDEA ASKS the teachers to focus their time and energy on getting the students to learn a specific concept.

"Then the teacher should keep the objective at the correct level of difficulty," says Ms. Spaniel.

This simply means the teacher should be teaching at a level the students can learn. The instructor is told to watch for indications that the lesson is moving too slow, too fast or that practice is needed.

"The third idea is the teacher should be constantly monitoring and adjusting," she says.

Dr. Hunter suggests in her program that the teachers have the class use hand signals to indicate if they understand. By using the signals, the teacher can immediately assess if the lesson is making sense to the students.

Teachers, administrators hit classroom

"The fourth thing is to know and consciously use the principles of learning appropriately," says Ms. Spaniel.

The four principles outlined by Dr. Hunter are the student's motivation, the rate and degree of the lesson, student retention of material and transfer.

"Many teachers have these skills in place already. This program provides them with common labels for the skills, which allows them to talk with their supervisors and colleagues about the success of their lessons," says Ms. Spaniel.

Another part of the program is teaching the instructors how to effectively observe other classrooms. Dr. Hunter suggests administrators as well as other teachers observe classrooms.

THE CLASSROOM observations are not for the purpose of evaluation, but to help reinforce the positive activities and point out areas which could be improved, says Ms. Spaniel.

"We all like to hear about the things we do well. We are encouraged to go out and do them again. It's better than just hearing about the things we do wrong."

One of the administrators who completed the first session at Waterford is Dr. Beverly Marshall, Isbister principal.

"This program gives teachers the chance to look at what they did and why certain things worked and why other things didn't work," says Dr. Marshall.

"If used as a positive reinforcement, the program can help teachers to improve while keeping their own teaching style," says Dr. Marshall.

"Teachers will continue their own individual styles and approaches. The program doesn't change that, it will simply insure the learning that takes place through their styles.

"I've been in the classroom practicing the teaching skills and also have done the observation," she says.

The involvement in teaching and observing has given Dr. Marshall a new sense of working together with her teachers.

"This program adds a new dimension of partnership between the principals and teachers," says Ms. Spaniel.

A TEACHER WHO went through the first session agrees about the mutual concerns of the administrators and teaching staff.

"Many times we think there are two camps, the teachers and the administrators. This program offers a brand new unity to the schools, as the teachers and administrators work together for the same goals," says Sharon Paul, a teacher at Isbister.

"The principals and teachers all have the same terms. It makes observation much more practical," says Ms. Paul, who claims she is a different teacher after going through the program.

"I don't know how they got away teaching us the way they did at college. We were only taught how to write a lesson plan, never how to present it," says Ms. Paul, who's in her fourth year of teaching.

The skills she has learned have taken the guesswork out of teaching, she says.

"It used to be hit and miss. Now we have a way of assessing if the students are learning or not."

Ms. Paul is looking forward to going through the sessions with her colleagues. She believes there is a new enthusiasm in the teachers who have been through the program.

"I don't want the enthusiasm to die on the vine."

Some of the teachers aren't too sure about the sessions, but will see the program can only help, adds Ms. Paul.

"There's no risk at all, it can't do any harm," she says.

Canton reporter honored

Arlene Funke, a Canton Observer reporter, makes it a point to know what's going on in the community — and particularly within groups in which she is active.

But the Garden City Business and Professional Women's Club managed to keep her in the dark until the announcement was made that she was named the chapter's Woman of the Year. Mrs. Funke was presented the award, which included a medal and a dozen roses, at a recent club dinner meeting.

Selected by a committee which included past recipients, she was honored for service to the club on a district and/or state level and for community involvement. The winner has compiled an active record of achievement in the Garden City and District IX activities.

Turkey gets no respect

SOCIALLY SPEAKING, this was a sad day for the once-proud, strutting bird. The breeders found a way to develop the white turkey breast until it became the Dolly Parton of its day.

But there was a heavy price to pay. The breast developed so much and became so popular that the bronze bird has become almost extinct.

That was only part of the social decline. So large did the white turkey breast become that it no longer could sit on the nest for mating,

There was only one thing to do — breed by artificial insemination and compromise the longevity of the bird.

In order to protect the heavy breasts, the breeders kept chasing the "Toms" away and, thus, the turkeys became a family apart,

But the desire for white meat continued and there was a great demand at Thanksgiving Day time for the largest and finest bird available.

ALONG WITH the social change came the decline of prestige. Now instead of going to the turkey farms such as Ropert's in Livonia and the Gottschalk farm in Plymouth for a fresh turkey dressed just a day or two before the feast and priced at as much as $1.50 per pound, shoppers head for the frozen foods bins in our supermarkets where the giant birds can be found all year long.

So when you sit down to the table on this Thanksgving Day, think about the colorful history of the bird that narrowly missed out on becoming a national symbol but in its own way signifies the technological progress that has taken place since that first Thanksgiving.

Librarian for an hour

Kids were the honchos last week, as the Canton public library celebrated Children's Book Week.

"The idea was to encourage children to use a library and to enjoy reading," explained children's librarian Peggy Kitchel.

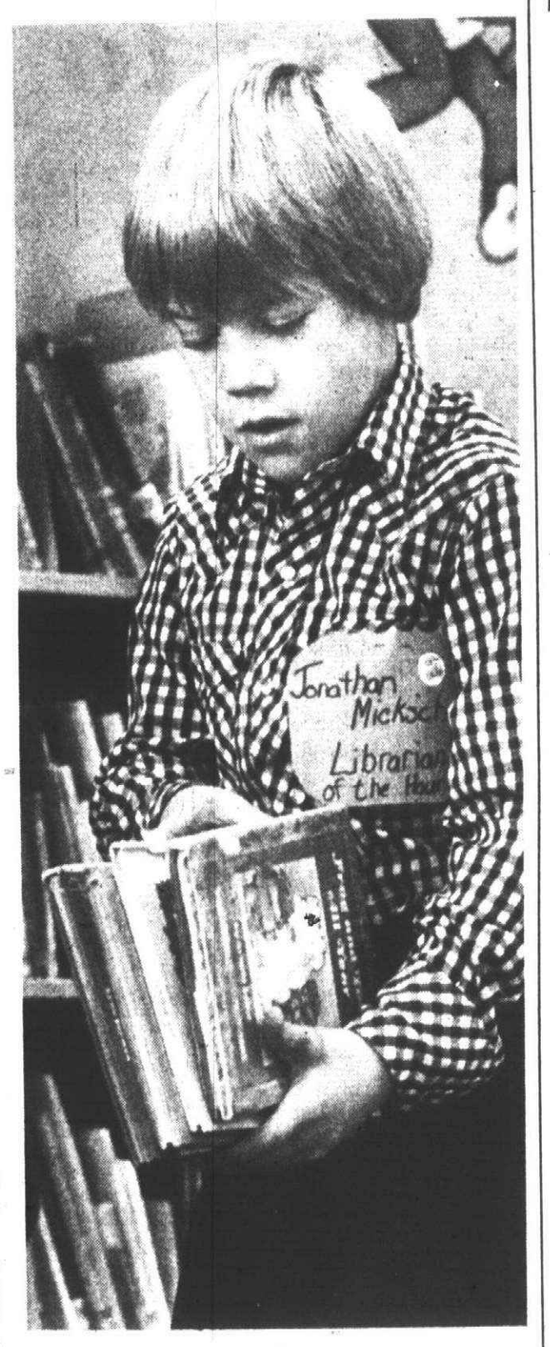

About 150 children aged 3 to 5 came to the library in pajamas for a session of bedtime stories. Other children made puppets based on book characters.

There also was a scheduled performance of "Merlin the Magician" by a children's dramatics group from the People's Theater of Ann Arbor. Pupils from Eriksson Elementary School displayed art based on the book.

A BIG HIT was a "librarian of the hour" project. Children in the fourth grade and up helped to help check out books, stock shelves and work on the reference desk.

"The response was terrific — overwhelming," according to Ms. Kitchel. "We had about 50 kids. This idea has been used in other libraries."

The Canton library is on the third floor of Township Hall, on Canton Center Road south of Cherry Hill. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Seller must bear higher financial responsibilities

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Often when the office rent shoots up, tenants start looking for buildings to call their own.

But small office and industrial buildings for sale in metro Detroit are getting harder and harder to find in these days of high interest rates, said William Gross, president of the Southfield-based Real Estate One Commercial Inc.

"Eighty percent of what we do is getting people to put their property up for sale," Gross said. "There is business out there to be had. There are a lot of buyers and sellers who want to do business and have to do business.

"BUT IN TODAY'S market, the seller has to be able to provide some kind of financing over time. We are working harder than ever trying to convince sellers to handle this financing themselves. But often they need all the money to invest somewhere else."

Just like residential real estate firms, commercial realty people are asking sellers to take on some of the financing burden themselves in order to clinch a sale.

Gross described the "dream sale" for a piece of commercial property as "25 percent down by the buyer with the building's owner financing the balance on a land contract and first mortgage."

Since 1980, when Real Estate One Commercial Inc. opened its doors nationwide, Gross said his staff has been working "200 percent harder to stay 25 percent ahead."

In more affluent times, Gross said his company — handling commercial, industrial and office buildings as well as investment properties — "could sell or lease almost anything."

"Before, buyers would capitulate to unreasonable financing because of competition. But buyers today are shrewd. There is no sense of urgency. They are looking for a better transaction and taking advantage of the market."

DAVID HOYT, vice president for the industrial division of Real Estate One Commercial Inc., said two of the "hottest" selling industrial areas in the Detroit area are along the I-75 and I-696 corridors and along the I-96 (Jeffries) freeway in Livonia.

Otherwise, Hoyt said, the Detroit area "on the whole is spotty and dormant."

He attributed sluggish industrial building sales to the current high interest rates and "Michigan's tax structure," especially workers' compensation.

Gross said most of the company's business activity today centers around the sale of small office and industrial buildings up to 10,000 square feet and scouting up investment properties for investors.

Many renters, said Gross, are trying to get out of leasing office space because costs have "increased dramatically in the last five years." He gave as an example office space in Southfield's Prudential Towne Center. He said rents there have "doubled" since 1977.

Renters also now want to take advantage of the new depreciation allowances allowed under the Tax Recovery Act, Gross said.

Taxpayers face 'year of reckoning'

Unused churches don't stand idle.

They sometimes wind up in the hands of Richard Messier, sales associate for Real Estate One Commercial, Inc.

Messier travels the length and breadth of Michigan matching churches for sale with new owners.

"Churches can outgrow their old buildings, or they can go out of business or merge with other churches," Messier said. "And congregations will buy a church because a fire damages the old church, because the old building is obsolete, for more parking space or because a church wants to have more classrooms."

MESSIER IS one of 15 sales associates with Real Estate One Commercial, Inc. who specialize in a particular type of commercial property.

"Our salesmen cannot be all things to all people," Real Estate One Commercial President William Gross said. "They specialize because one person cannot know all the intricacies of every kind of commercial property."

The company also has sales associates who specialize in office buildings, investment properties, leased buildings, property management and apartment buildings.

According to Gross, selling commercial property requires a "different kind of knowledge and more training and is much more difficult than selling a home."

Just ask Messier, who said he sometimes has to deal with an entire congregation of 500 or more members in order to put a deal together.

"You think they are with you, and then they turn around and abort the whole idea," Messier said.

Messier said he buys all the local newspapers to get leads on buyers and sellers. "If I read an article that says a church is packed every Sunday, that it seats 300 people but 325 are showing up, then I know that church has to do something. If it doesn't, then the problem will take care of itself. Pretty soon the congregation will be back down to 275."

WHILE CHURCHES can be bought for non-church use, most are bought by another church because of their residential location, Messier said.

'Finely-tuned plot' has many meanings

The other day I walked into the living room and found my husband deeply engrossed in that old Katherine Hepburn/Spencer Tracy movie, "Desk Set."

In case he had forgotten, I pointed out that he had already seen that particular movie at least two or three times.

"What difference does it make?" he replied. "This is a quality movie." "Besides," he added, "you've been watching 'Magnum' reruns all summer."

Ah, but that's different.

What my husband fails to realize is that I watch "Magnum" (and reruns) not because its star, Tom Selleck, is one of the most incredibly handsome men that I have ever seen in my entire life. Instead, I watch it for the exceptionally high caliber of writing which is exemplified throughout each script.

The finely-tuned plot intricacies, alone, are enough to keep me glued to my TV for that special hour.

And the character development. Why, virtual books, theses and dissertations could, and should, be written about such astute character development.

WHEN WAS THE last time you saw a walking enigma with the savoir faire of Higgins? A person whose complexities envelop both his sadistic qualities and, yet, his tender compassion for Magnum.

One could lie awake nights pondering the many levels of that relationship.

Not that I do — but one could.

And then there's Rick and T.C. Where did Rick get his money? What strings did he have to pull to become the manager of such an exclusive social club.

And is he a good manager? Or is Rick taking too much time away from the club to help Magnum?

Nancy Walls Smith

And what about T.C.? Why is it that he is always complaining about money to buy gas for his helicopter? Perhaps his constant protestations are giving us a symbolic clue into the deeper levels of this character's motivations.

Or maybe he just keeps running out of gas.

I'm sure the mystery of the elusive Robin Masters will never be solved. Why is he letting Magnum live on his estate?

Granted, if I had an estate, I'd let Magnum live on it too, but that still doesn't explain Robin Master's actions.

SEE WHAT I mean? There's so much more to this show that the casual viewer, such as my husband, fails to notice.

The fact that Tom Selleck (Magnum) is six feet, four inches tall, has a fantastic body, a distinctively handsome face, and a completely endearing sense of humor — well, none of that fazes me in the least.

And pigs have wings.

Nancy Walls Smith, a Canton resident, writes a column twice a month for the Plymouth and Canton Observer. Her column appears on Mondays.

It's time for golf course to pay for itself

Guess what's on Plymouth Township's Dec. 1 agenda — for the umpteenth time?

Discussion on the golf course contract.

Surprised? You shouldn't be.

The long-lived golf course issue FINALLY is expected to resurface, again, at the board's next regular meeting. The item has been tabled from board discussion for more than two months.

The discussion will focus on an updated contract on the management of the Hilltop Golf Course, at Ann Arbor Trail and Powell.

We can't stress how important it is for board members to carefully prepare for this discussion.

After three long years of living under a ridiculous contract agreement with Hilltop manager John Jawor, Plymouth Township trustees finally have a good opportunity to negotiate a contract which will begin to turn the course into a moneymaker for additional recreational activities.

A moneymaker? Well, that was the original intent of Plymouth Township officials when they purchased the nine-hole layout more than seven years ago.

Doc's corner

Dennis O'Connor

Now, after land improvements and an expansion to 18 holes, Plymouth Township has spent $1.2 million on the Hilltop project — with little return on the investment.

TRUE, HILLTOP has suffered its "growing pains" in the last three years under Jawor's management. The 18-hole expansion project and major sewer extension limited the amount of revenue produced by the course.

In fact, the sewer construction through the course resulted in a lawsuit by Jawor against Plymouth Township in 1979.

An out-of-court settlement led to a three-year exemption of Jawor's original contract, which calls for five years of service with Plymouth Township's option on the next five years.

The terms of this settlement were ridiculous — but were "rubber stamped" by last year's board. Trustee Lee Fidge was the only board member to oppose the agreement.

The settlement not only gave Jawor the three-year exemption, but also gave the Hilltop manager his option on the second five years of the contract.

More importantly, however, the revenue from the course for the township was contracted horribly low during these three years.

NOW, THE MAJOR construction is finished. Hilltop is an 18-hole public golf course that is ready for full-time business next year.

The three-year amended contract settlement also is expired. There should be no more annual revenue figures like $28,000, $35,000 or $86,000.

Plymouth Township should look for at least $100,000 revenue return in 1982, if not more.

That's the figure budgeted by Plymouth Township officials in 1982 — not an unrealistic figure considering the $140,000 figure Canton Township received from the Fellowcreek Golf Course this year.

THERE'S ONLY one catch, however. Jawor's contract must be updated to conform to 18-hole course management, as compared to his original nine-hole course agreement.

That's the reason behind the recent delay on golf course discussions.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen says township lawyers and Jawor's lawyers currently are finalizing new contract terms, although the delay approaches three months. Breens says Dec. 1 should produce the new golf course contract.

Plymouth Township's board better be ready for heavy discussion on Hilltop and those new contract terms at this time.

Hopefully, the "rubber stamp" won't be active this time around — for the good of the course and the benefit of Plymouth Township taxpayers.

Being a new daddy is trouble — but its worth it

My wife just took our beautiful, newborn baby Cecilia to the pediatrician for her three-week checkup. Believe me, she didn't need a lube job after all those ointment applications.

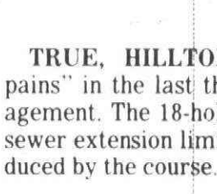

After inspecting the baby he told Louise we have a "vigorous" child. What he means is we have a healthy screamer on our hands.

We just received the itemized bill for her prenatal visits and birth the other day and, even though we only owed $14.60 after the insurance picked up the tab, at times I wonder whether she was a bargain.

In her worst moments — usually around 4 a.m. — she reminds me of the main character in a low-budget Saturday afternoon movie classic, "Little Shop of Horrors." The star of the screwy movie is a constantly growing carnivorous Venus Flytrap. The plant can talk, of course, and incessantly screams "Feeeeed me!" in a whiny voice.

You probably think I'm horrible comparing my beautiful baby daughter to a Venus Flytrap. Fine. Spend about two hours listening to unrelenting screaming despite loving feeding, burping and diaper-changing and see what you call her.

This is our first child, as you might have guessed. I don't know, but I always expected a newborn would be a sweet, sleepy, almost immobile bundle wrapped in swaddling clothes that cooed cutely when it wasn't asleep.

Little did I know infants can be two-armed terrorists capable of kicking like a mule and plucking chest hairs out with a grip tighter than any crawfish.

PLEASE DON'T WRITE me offering advice on child rearing. Everything I've heard so far has been contradictory.

Cover babies feet with booties and they'll get overheated and catch a cold. Don't cover their feet with booties and they'll catch a cold from a draft.

My brother, who is the father of a 7-month-old girl, says total strangers stop him in shopping malls and tell him he's wrong to take his daughter out in public or wrong to dress her the way she's dressed.

What's a mother and father to do? Do the best you can and remember free advice costs nothing and is usually worth the price.

People are always asking me what new trait my daughter is exhibiting. At this early stage I'm at a loss to give them news.

She opens her eyes more now and watches the surroundings when she isn't stiffening up and turning red. My mother-in-law swears Cecilia's smiled already but we're not sure if it's a grin or gas. I don't know about the smiling, but we know she's got the frown down pat.

IF I SOUND disrespectful toward such a glorious event, forgive me. I wasn't so cool about it three weeks ago. I handed out cigars to strangers on the street who asked me for a match or the time. Customers in convenience stores had to wait while I showed the sales clerk snapshot upon snapshot.

Even though I took pictures of the delivery of Cecilia and how she looked when they cleaned her up, I resisted writing a newspaper story on the birth. It's been done too many times before to be news. Besides I didn't want some guy calling the paper to complain that his storm sewer is clogged and how come we don't write about that but had plenty of space to devote to my wife having a baby, which is no big deal, buddy.

No big deal, to you, maybe. I used to think so, too. I criticized friends who had babies for becoming unnecessarily reclusive. Now I understand why they didn't drop everything to go get a burrito. They were up to their ears in baby work.

Boiling bottles, changing dirty disposable diapers, doing loads of tiny T-shirts and towels, feeding baby, burping baby, bathing baby, drying baby, changing baby, changing yourself after changing baby, changing baby again, putting baby to sleep, picking baby up to walk her when she wakes up half an hour later.

WHEN ALL THAT'S done you put your feet up to read a good book — one on baby care because you wonder why the kid won't burp. You find out not all burps are audible and it isn't necessary to beat a burp out of them like you see in the movies.

But it's all worth it when she tucks those bowlegged legs next to your chest, grasps your neck in the classic monkey grip and falls off to sleep. Just before that long-awaited repose she awkwardly wheels that head around and looks up at you right in the eye.

Now you can't tell me that was gas. That's a smile for sure. Aw, you missed it.

Where are you going? I've got about a million snapshots to show you. Look at all that hair. Trouble? Nah, she's no trouble at all.

The wise, old gentleman makes his 85th visit

There could be no mistaken identity when the old gent with the long, white beard, an hourglass and a scythe rapped at the door.

Sure enough, it was old Father Time. When the door was opened, he put down the hourglass, stuck out his hand and said, "Happy birthday."

Invited to sit down and rest a bit, he accepted, and soon he started to recall some of his past visits with The Stroller. But the one visit he claimed he never will forget was on the morning of Nov. 19, 1897.

"That was the day you were born, and it was your mother's 21st birthday, so there was a great deal of rejoicing in that little old frame house back in Pennsylvania," Father Time said.

STROKING HIS beard rather playfully, he recalled that most of the excitement revolved around the fact that The Stroller was the first grandchild. But later the excitement settled on the first name he was to be given.

"First," he said, "was the matter of your hair. It was red, and no one in the Edgar family had even a trace of red hair. So, quite some time was spent over that fact, and there was some wonderment as to how it came about.

"Then," according to the old gent, "your mother spoke up and let everyone know that her father — Col. Frank H. Wilson, one of the professional veterans of the Civil War — had a red goatee. That settled that bit of confusion."

Placing his scythe on the floor, Father Time chuckled a bit and said the choice of name for the new red-haired infant caused another bit of fury.

Finally, it was decided the babe should take his father's name and be plain William Edgar. "It so happened that was also 'Grandpy' Edgar's name, and your father never tacked on the 'II.' That would have made you William Edgar III.

"That quickly was ruled out, and all agreed the babe should be plain William Edgar — that is, until 'Grandpy' Wilson paid a visit that evening to see the newborn," recalled Father Time.

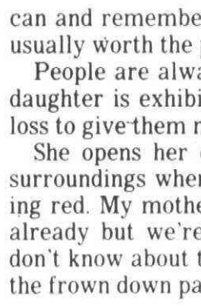

"GRANDPY WILSON asked, 'What are you going to call him?'

"When your mother told him it was a simple copy of your father's name, he looked at your mother and said:

"'Hell, Mazie, aren't we going to have any part of him? After all, you said his red hair was a throwback to my goatee.'

"There followed a quick huddle, and before long it was agreed that your mother's maiden name should be part of yours, so you became Wilson William Edgar — and the discussion ended."

So that was how The Stroller got his family name, and it helps explain why he never has liked his first name — and leaned to the use of initials.

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

FATHER TIME was growing a bit restless, but he recalled another birthday — The Stroller's 21st and his mother's 42nd.

"Your father had been gone a long time, the victim of what was called 'hasty consumption,' and your mother was left alone to carry out some of his wishes so far as you were concerned.

"He had promised you a gold watch as a gift on the day you graduated from school. But you never were able to finish. Then, on your 21st birthday, when you tried to put on your shoe, your foot stuck in the right shoe.

"Reaching in, you found a small box, and in it was the gold watch you had been promised. Your mother had taken in washing and baked hundreds of pies to get the money to buy it. It sure was a happy birthday for both of you."

With that, Father Time picked up his scythe and hourglass, headed for the door and called:

"Happy birthday, and I hope to be back again next year."

The Stroller hopes the old gent is right.

From national chains

Eye doctors face stiff challenge

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

The competition from national eye care chains has caused some optometrists to take measures to safeguard their independent practices.

Not all local optometrists feel the threat, but those who do have found a couple of ways to go.

Dr. Lee Halsted, who lives in Plymouth Township and practices in Woodhaven, recently joined an independent optometrist franchise.

He bought into First Optometry Eye Care Centers, which is set up to help independent practices survive in the eye care market — valued at $4 billion in 1980. By 1990, the eye care market is expected to reach $8 billion.

"Through First Optometry I will reap the benefits of a professionally administered advertising program which will have a much greater impact on the general public," says Halsted.

Dr. James R. Bohdan, with his office on Ford Road in Canton, joined a buying cooperative to help him offer competitive prices.

"The cooperative has 200 doctors nationally. While the co-op gives me purchasing discounts, I don't get the advertising benefits that First Optometry offers," says Bohdan.

He does point out the large capital outlay required by First Optometry, which is not guaranteed to increase or save a practice.

Although Bohdan isn't sure if First Optometry is the way to go, he does agree the national corporations have an advantage in offering eye care at lower prices.

Some of the Detroit area eye care conglomerates include Detroit Optometric Centers (DOC), Pearle Vision Center and Sears optical service.

While Bohdan and Halsted feel the need for taking the steps they did, several of the other Plymouth-Canton optometrists believe they will do fine remaining totally independent.

Dr. James Carney, on South Main in Plymouth, says there will always be a need for the quality eye care of the independent eye doctor.

"Competition form Kmart is not going to put John Smith's or Minerva's-Dunning's out of business. Likewise, the corporations are not going to put the private doctors out of business," says Carney.

"People think they are getting a bargain because of all the discounts these places advertise. The truth is, someone has to pay for the advertising,

"A lot of these places don't have a doctor on the premises. That's why they are called stores rather than offices," explains Carney.

Dr. Paul Kenzie, who thinks the alternatives are a valid way to go for doctors just establishing themselves, says the chains offer a different type of service.

"There is an emphasis to do quicker work at a chain, to produce more. The emphasis of the care is different," says Kenzie, who's office is on Forest in Plymouth.

"In some cases you are paying less, but getting less also," he explains.

Dr. L.E. Rehner, who has been practicing in the Plymouth-Canton area since 1940, recalls a similar scare in the eye care field a few years back.

"We had a lot of scare about the third parties paying for eye care and glasses years ago. We survived that alright," says Rehner, who's office is on South Harvey in Plymouth.

"There will always be room for an independent. We're holding on pretty well, only time will tell," he says.

Halsted believes the changes in the eye care business will eventually force the independents to move to a franchise or cooperative to survive.

"Because there is so much price advertising, the independents are going to need professionals in marketing, advertising and public relations," says the doctor who occassionally flies to Mettetal airport from Grosse Ile in his own Cessna Skyhawk.

Halsted says the eye doctors need professional training in advertising or else they need to hire someone who does have it.

"The professional training hasn't been provided through medical associations. We've had to go out on our own and we have been left to die on the vine," he says.

He points to the trends in the other medical fields as examples of what is happening.

"The family practitioner is going to be a thing of the past. Oakwood Hospital is taking the place of the family doctor in this area," he says.

"The industrial emergency clinics are fast taking the place of the family doctor. When you cut yourself or break something, you just run down to the quick clinic," Halsted says.

The family doctor's practices are dying because they can't compete with the prices and they don't have advertising, he says.

"The idea of First Optometry is to promote professional eye care. The chains promote the fast food approach to eye care," he says.

"In a way you give up some of your independence when you join a franchise, but you gain in the other business areas.

The franchise (like the co-op) is a pooling of resources to provide services the doctor normally couldn't get.

Hearing to discuss school rules changes

The State Board of Education will hold a public hearing in Wayne on proposed administrative rule changes giving school districts more flexibility on various programs and services for students.

The hearing begins at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 7 in the auditorium of the Wayne County Intermediate School District, 33500 Van Born. It is the only one in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Phillip E. Runkel, state superintendent of public instruction, said the hearings are being held to determine whether the emergency rules should be made permanent.

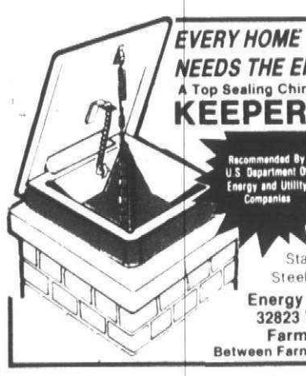

The proposed rule changes were adopted earlier this year as emergency rules by the state board. As emergency rules, they are in effect for a maximum of one year, unless made permanent. Gov. William Milliken certified them as part of an overall cost-saving program.

Earlier this year, the state board recommended nearly 40 changes in state laws, rules and regulations to help local school districts reduce expenditures. It estimated school districts could save upwards of $60 million annually if all were implemented.

Treat Williams stars as daring highjacker in "The Pursuit of D.B. Cooper."

Hijacker pulls off romantic caper in 'D.B. Cooper'

What is the American Dream? Is it a matter of personal possessions — owning your own home car, video cassette player? Is it an inheritance out of the blue — Melvin Dummar giving a lift to Howard Hughes and collecting, almost, a few million in return?

Or is it the big score — pulling off a caper that doesn't hurt anyone but brings in the money?

"The Pursuit of D.B. Cooper" (PG) makes a good case for the last view mainly because of Treat Williams. Williams plays Cooper, the hero or anti-hero, depending on how you look at the character. With his youthful good looks, boyish charm and infectious grin, he wins us over easily to Cooper's side.

Cooper is the man who hijacked a Reno-bound plane in 1971, demanded and got $200,000 from the airline. He then bailed out at 10,000 feet over a heavily forested area of Washington state. It was Thanksgiving eve. His escapade coincided with the opening of the hunting season. Consequently, the authorities were hampered in their search for him by all the hunters who poured into the woods the next day.

"THE PURSUIT of D.B. Cooper" takes up where the facts leave off — following Cooper's jump. It speculates on what he had planned, what he did.

As the title implies, this is a chase movie. Robert Duvall is Gruen, the insurance investigator on Cooper's trail. (Ultimately, it was the airline's insurer that was out the $200,000.) He is the relentless pursuer.

What makes the pursuit more interesting is that Cooper and Gruen are not strangers to each other. They were both in the same unit in Vietnam, where Duvall was a sergeant always riding Cooper. The flashback to Sergeant Gruen goading Cooper clinches our sympathies for him.

Emotionally, the deck is stacked in Cooper's favor. We want him to get away with it. We have to admire his gutsiness. He pulled off a daring exploit, got the money and didn't harm anyone.

Did he do it just for the money or the thrill? The movie suggests he also was trying to prove himself, to show his wife, his father, Sergeant Gruen and everyone else that he was capable of doing something extraordinary and not messing up.

FIRST THING he does after getting the money is work his way home to say goodbye to his father and to coax his wife to join him. Kathryn Harrold (the female lead in "Modern Romance") is the wife who knows better but joins him anyway.

There is so much good-natured fun in this adventure that it is as much a comedy as a chase film. The games the two men play with each other are as important as the pursuit. Still, there is plenty of action. The filmmakers have taken advantage of their rugged mountain setting to stage a wild chase down a turbulent, rushing river. The white-knuckle excitement of the scenes through the rapids is repeated in other perilous chases.

Whatever the ultimate conclusion in real life, Cooper still comes out looking the hero. After all, does anyone root for the insurance company to win?

Hannah (Kathryn Harold) is waiting for D.B. Cooper to arrive.

Concert offering sing-along carols

An audience sing-along of traditional carols will highlight the Christmas concert of the Schoocraft College Community Choir at 8 p.m. Dec. 4 in the First United Church of Plymouth.

Admission to the concert is free, and anyone may attend. The church is on North Territorial Road, one-half mile west of Sheldon.

Under the direction of Marilyn Jones, the choir will perform Britten's "Ceremony of Carols," featuring harpist Patricia Terry and selected soloists from the choir, and Buxtehude's "Magnificat," with harpsichord and string quintet. Choral settings of numerous traditional Christmas songs will complete the program.

The Community Choir, in its 17th year, is comprised of 60 singers of all ages representing 17 Detroit-area communities. The choir provides experienced singers with the opportunity to further their choral singing skills while making quality music available to the community without charge.

What does 33 years mean to you?

If you stop and think...it seems barely yesterday. "Tempus Fugit" the Latin scholars quote and yes, time does fly!

Yet, we mark this year as our 33rd and must measure it not by what we remember but in terms of what we see now. What we see in our everyday working life is a growth from one office to 15, a list of people we have served which, in itself, would constitute a fair sized city; and a roster which both astounds us and makes us proud.

What do these measures of Chamberlain progress mean to you? We would hope it exemplifies our stability and our ability to serve you best. We sincerely hope that it will chart your path to our door and that we may merit your confidence when next you need the best real estate counsel possible.

We are what we are because of people who needed truly personal real estate service. We expect today and in the future to continue to grow because we serve you well.

Our Basic Philosophy: Professional Service and Stability! The everyday practice of this basic philosophy benefits you first and thereby us as well.

Good will and good food–a holiday classic

Good will and good food bring warmth and glow to the annual gatherings of family and friends. Dishes that celebrate generations of holidays and time-honored tastes bring special memories and meaning to the holiday feast.

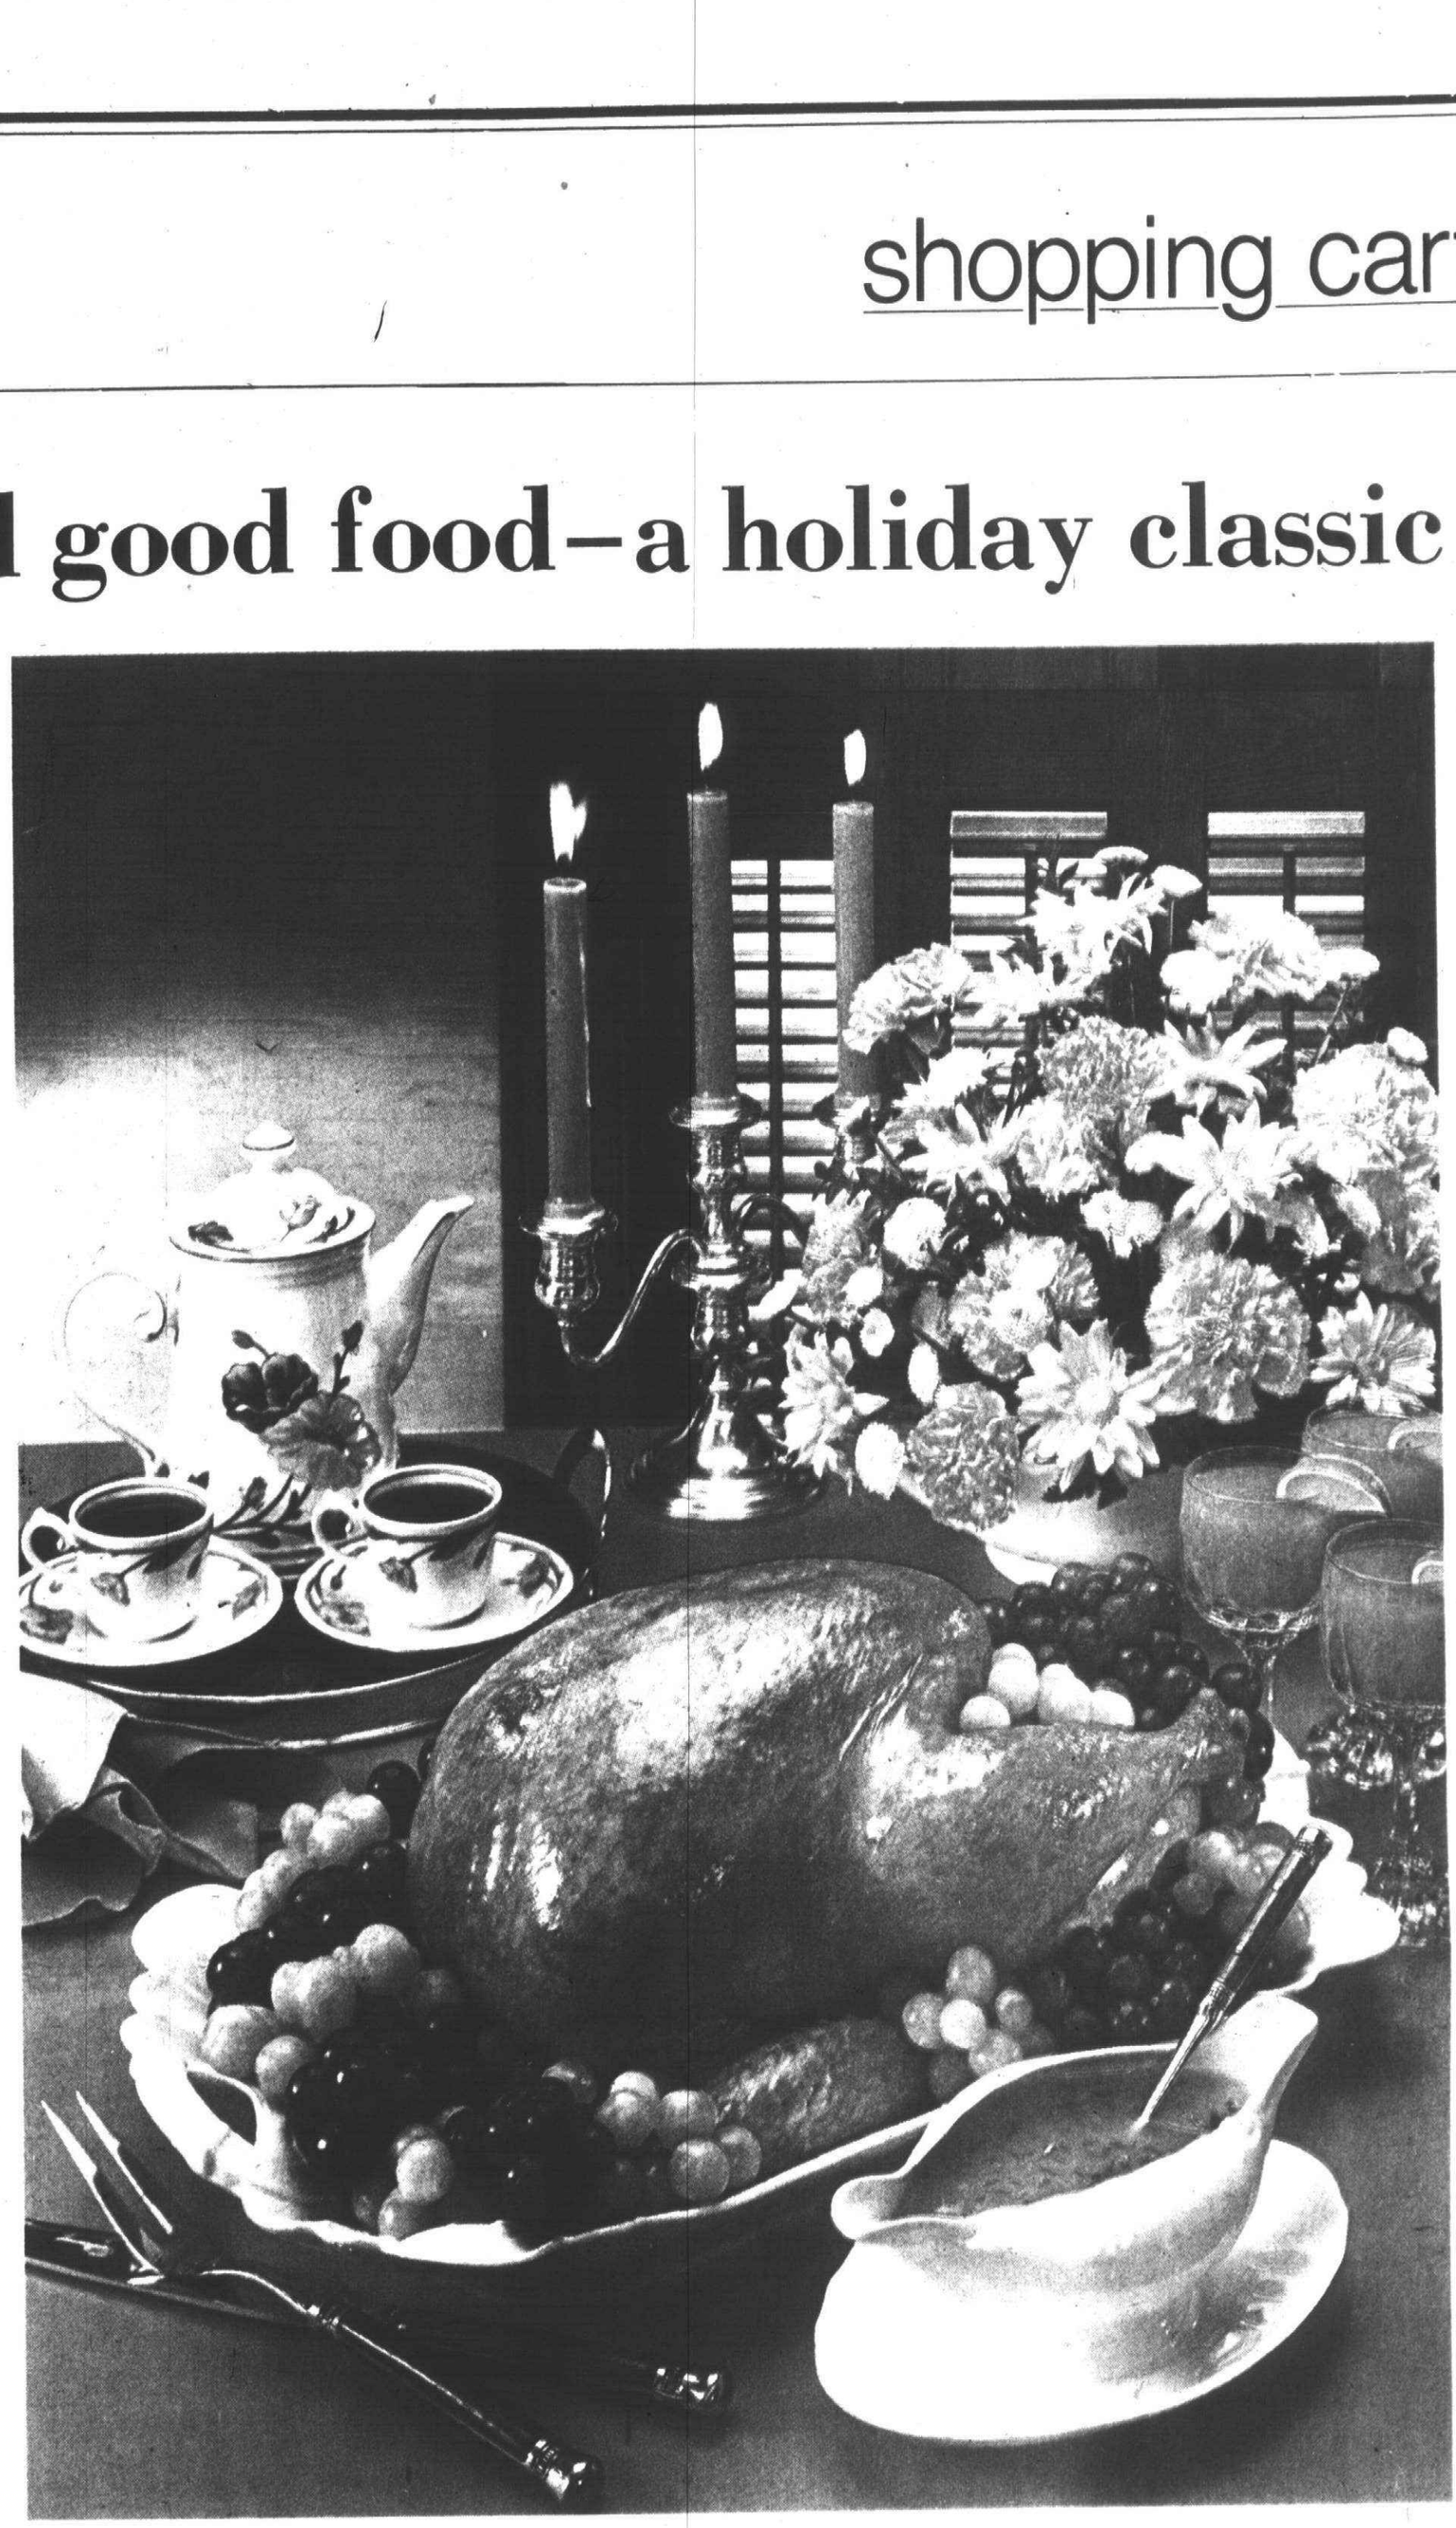

Rich traditions bear repeating — and what would a holiday meal be without the aroma and flavor of a golden roast turkey? Imagine the anticipation as the plump bird is carved to provide everyone with a favorite morsel — whether it be succulent breast slices or the fabled drumstick.

Hand in hand with the turkey is velvety smooth gravy brought steaming hot to the table. In making gravy, the easiest way to achieve smoothness and a light look and taste is by thickening it with corn starch. For an even lighter gravy, discard all drippings leaving only the brown particles in the pan.

A delight to the eye, vivid red, richly-colored, blue/black or delicate, cool green grapes provide a gorgeous tasty garnish for the beautiful bird. Delicious right off the stem, grapes are also a juicy-sweet component of flavorful salads and main dishes such as those listed below. Colorful, taste-tingling grapes lend classic appeal to holiday as well as everyday menus almost all year long.

Crisp, fresh flowers in brilliant autumnal colors are a feast to the eye and will complement the hostess's culinary talents. Festive carnations, daisy mums & pompons, as seen here, are plentiful in local florist shops. Your florist can design an elegant centerpiece for your table, or you may wish to bring the flowers home and create your own arrangement while the turkey roasts.

Adventure and creativity in festive meal planning will turn your culinary heritage into a holiday classic. After the feast, look forward to preparing the additional turkey recipes included here.

EASY HOLIDAY TURKEY

Only 6 minutes of your time to prepare the holiday bird for roasting without stuffing — and be ready for an easy, economical and nutritious turkey treat.

Whole turkeys, ranging in size from six to more than 30 pounds, are available fresh or frozen and may be prebasted. Allowing one pound of turkey per person ensures generous servings for the holiday meal, as well as welcome leftovers for special recipes.

If the turkey is frozen, leave in original bag and thaw in refrigerator for 3 to 4 days or cover bird with cold water, changing water frequently. This will take about 1/2 hour per pound. When thawed, remove turkey from plastic bag, remove neck and giblets from body cavities, rinse with cold water and pat dry, tuck legs into hock lock or under skin band, turn wing tips "akimbo" under back and skewer neck skin to back.

Place turkey breast-side up on rack in shallow open roasting pan. Place a "tent" of foil loosely over turkey to prevent over-browning. Foil may be removed during the last half hour for a final browning.

APPROXIMATE ROASTING TIME IN 325°F. OVEN°

Weight	Unstuffed	Stuffed
8 to 12 lbs.	3 to 4 hours	4 to 5 hours
12 to 16 lbs.	3-1/2 to 5 hours	4-1/2 to 6 hours
16 to 20 lbs.	4-1/2 to 6 hours	5-1/2 to 7 hours
20 to 24 lbs.	5-1/2 to 6-1/2 hours	6-1/2 to 7-1/2 hours

Turkey is done when meat thermometer registers 180° to 185°F., thick part of drumstick feels soft when pressed with thumb and forefinger or drumstick moves easily. Let turkey stand at room temperature for 15 to 20 minutes for easier carving.

°Factors affecting roasting times are variations in ovens, shape of turkeys and degree of thawing.

LIGHT HERB TURKEY GRAVY

Light in calories, this easy-to-make gravy, thickened with corn starch, has no floury taste.

Turkey giblets and neck
10 cups water
3 onions, peeled, quartered
3 ribs celery, cut into pieces
3 carrots, peeled, cut into pieces
1 to 2 teaspoons salt
3 chicken-flavored bouillon cubes
3 bay leaves
1/3 cup corn starch
1 teaspoon dried tarragon leaves
1 cup dry white wine or water

In large saucepot place turkey giblets and neck, water, onion, celery, carrots, salt, bouillon cubes and bay leaves. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 1 hour or until liquid is reduced by 1/2. Strain broth; reserve. Pour pan drippings from turkey roasting pan into large measuring cup leaving only brown particles in pan. Allow to stand several minutes until fat drippings separate from turkey juices. Discard fat drippings. Add reserved broth to turkey juices to equal 4 cups. Return to roasting pan. Stir together corn starch, tarragon and white wine until smooth; add to roasting pan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat, stirring up brown bits from bottom of pan and boil 1 minute. Makes about 5 cups.

HOT CREAMY TURKEY SANDWICHES

What better way to serve leftover slices of turkey than on toast topped with a light mushroom sauce.

1 tablespoon margarine
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons corn starch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
Dash pepper
1-1/2 cups skim milk
1/4 cup dry sherry
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Sliced Turkey
4 to 6 slices toast, cut diagonally

In small saucepan melt margarine over medium heat. Add mushrooms. Stirring frequently, cook about 2 minutes or until tender. Stir in corn starch, salt, nutmeg and pepper. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk and sherry until smooth. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Stir in parsley. Serve over sliced turkey on toast. Makes 4 to 6 servings. NOTE: Sherry may be omitted. Increase milk to 1-3/4 cups.

TURKEY CHOWDER NOUVELLE

This warming chowder is lightly thickened with corn starch and enhanced with nouvelle-style turkey and vegetables.

1 tablespoon oil
1 cup julienne carrot strips
1 cup julienne celery strips
1/4 cup sliced green onion
2 cloves garlic, minced or pressed
1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaves
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups cooked turkey in strips
3 cups turkey broth (see recipe)
2 tablespoons corn starch
1/4 cup cold turkey broth (see recipe)

In 5-quart saucepot or dutch oven heat oil over medium-high heat. Add carrots, celery, green onion, garlic, basil and salt. Stirring constantly, cook over medium-high heat 3 to 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender-crisp. Add turkey. Stir in 3 cups turkey broth. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 5 to 7 minutes. In small bowl stir together corn starch and 1/4 cup turkey broth until smooth. Add to turkey mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to boil and boil 1 minute. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

TURKEY BROTH

When the turkey has all been removed from the carcass, use the carcass to make a flavorful broth. It will come in handy for the recipes here, for extending the gravy and for making turkey soup.

In large saucepot cover carcass from cooked 10 to 20 pound turkey with water. Add 4 celery ribs cut into 2-inch pieces, 3 onions cut into wedges, 3 carrots cut into slices, 2 to 3 tablespoons salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer uncovered 2 hours until reduced by 1/2. Strain; reserve broth. Makes about 10 cups.

CURRIED GRAPE 'N' TURKEY SALAD

Juicy grapes and flavorful turkey tossed with a wonderful curry dressing — delicious!

1-1/2 cups cubed cooked turkey
1 cup halved and seeded red or blue/black grapes
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons toasted slivered almonds
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Curry Dressing
Shredded lettuce
Alfalfa sprouts

Combine turkey, grapes, green pepper, almonds, salt and pepper; toss with Curry Dressing. Refrigerate at least 1 hour to allow flavors to blend. Serve on bed of shredded lettuce; garnish with sprouts. Makes 4 servings.

Curry Dressing: Combine 1/4 cup mayonnaise, 1-1/2 teaspoons tarragon-flavored wine vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon curry powder and dash bottled hot pepper sauce; blend thoroughly. Makes 1/4 cup.

THE GREAT GRAPE AND TURKEY HARVEST

This quick stir-fry boasts the flavors of the harvest season.

2 tablespoons oil
3 cups sliced zucchini, 1/4 inch thick
1 medium onion, sliced lengthwise in 1/2-inch wedges
2 cups cooked turkey breast, in julienne strips
1-1/2 cups diagonally sliced carrots, parboiled
2 teaspoons corn starch
1/4 cup each dry sherry and water
1/2 teaspoon each crushed dried oregano and garlic salt
Dash pepper
2 cups halved and seeded green, red or blue/black grapes

Heat oil in large skillet over medium-high heat. Add zucchini and onion; stir-fry 2 minutes or until tender-crisp. Add turkey and carrots; stir-fry about 1 minute. Blend corn starch with sherry, water and seasonings; add to turkey mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and clear. Gently stir in grapes; heat thoroughly. Makes about 4 servings.

Serving tip: Excellent served over buttered or mildly seasoned rice.

Turkey leftovers

Here's some ideas for the remains

"Poultry," wrote the 19th centruy French gourmet Jean Brillat-Savarin, "is for the cook what the canvas is to the painter. It is served to us roasted, broiled, fried, boiled, hot or cold, whole or in pieces, with or without sauce, boned, skinned, stuffed and always with equal success."

As a result, a variety of versatile turkey products are rapidly becoming an integral part of Americans' weekly diets. But for the holiday feast, the whole, roasted turkey still remains the sovereign bird.

Nothing stimulates the taste buds or creates a warm, holiday atmosphere quite like the aroma and taste of a golden-brown bird laden with the family's favorite dressing.

And as for ease of preparation, homemakers are the first to say that roasting the turkey is, by far, the simplest part of making the holiday meal — "it practically prepares itself."

Home economists have developed the following recipes for a deliciously unique stuffing designed to complement the holiday meal, as well as quick and easy dishes that makes leftovers into a "special occasion" meal.

ROAST TURKEY
WITH GRANOLA STUFFING

1 tsp. chicken flavor instant bouillon or 1 chicken flavor bouillon cube dissoved in 1 cup boiling water.
4 cups granola cereal
4 cups dry whole wheat bread cubes
3 cups coarsely chopped cranberries
1 cup chopped onion
4 eggs, beaten
½ cup chopped parsley
3 Tbsp. grated lemon rid
2 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 12-14 lb. turkey, thawed

What's the best way to carve your turkey? See page 5B.

Heat oven to 325 degrees. Combine all ingredients except turkey; toss lightly. Loosely stuff neck and body cavities of turkey; roast according to label instructions. Place extra stuffing in greased 2-quart casserole. Bake, covered, at 235 degrees, 30-35 minutes.

Makes 12 cups of stuffing.

ORIENTAL TURKEY SOUP

1 10½-oz. can cut asparagus, drained, reserving liquid
2 14½-oz. cans chicken broth
1 2½-oz. jar sliced mushrooms, drained
½ cup coarsely chopped onion
2 Tbsp. cornstartch
2 Tbsp. cold water
2 cups chopped cooked turkey
Dash of pepper
1 ½ cups shredded lettuce

Makes 6 servings.

TURKEY TOSTADOS

4 corn tortillas
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil, heated
1 15½-oz. can chili with beans, heated
3 cups shredded lettuce
1 7-oz. can green chile salsa
½ cup (2 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
12 thin slices cooked turkey
1 avocado, peeled, sliced
Tomato wedges

Fry tortillas in oil until crisp; drain. Spread each with chili. Toss lettuce with ½ cup salsa; sprinkle on tortillas. Top with cheese, turkey, avocado and tomatoes. Serve with remaining salsa.

Makes four servings.

1, 2, 3: A salad

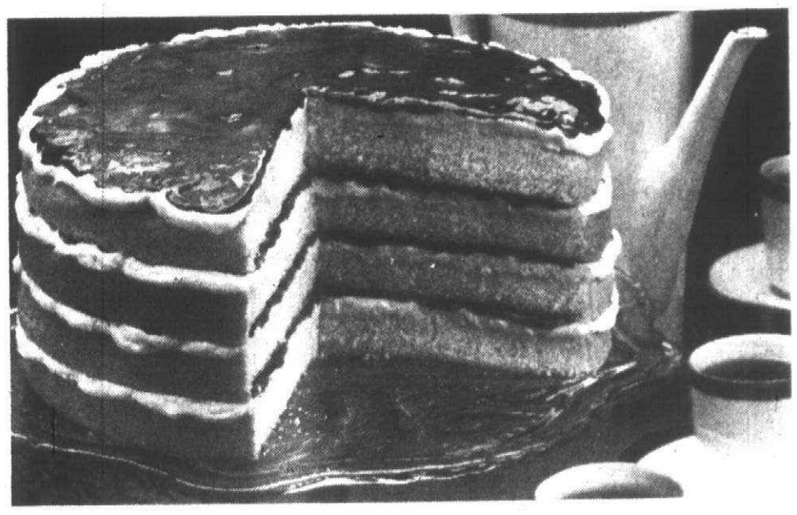

It's incredibly simple. Incredibly tasty. Just three ingredients tossed in you favorite Italian dressing. Chill and serve over crisp salad greens and thinly sliced tomatoes.

Ripe olives, cauliflower and chopped parsley make this unusual salad a colorful side dish for lunch or on the buffet table.

1-2-3 SALAD

3 cups pitted California ripe olives
1 cup minced parsley
2 cups finely chopped cauliflower
⅔ cup prepared Italian dressing
salad greens
thinly sliced tomatoes

Chop ripe olives. Combine olives, parsley and cauliflower. Add Italian dressing. Stir well and chill before serving. Serve on bed of lettuce and tomatoes. Makes six ⅔-cup servings.

Torte for all seasons

A shimmering gem of a cake, this Raspberry-Almond Torte is a most appropriate ending to a special holiday party. Each layer of white or yellow cake is spread with a fluffy almond filling easily made with ready-to-spread frosting, almond paste and rum or brandy. Holiday red resperry preserves are then spread on top of the filling.

When sliced, the bright red preserved can be seen between each layer as well as decorate the top of the cake. It's A festive finale to any celebration.

RASPBERRY-ALMOND TORTE

1 pkg. (18.5 oz.) white or yellow cake mix
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
1 tsp. almond extract
Almond filling (below)
½ cup seedless raspberry preserves

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 2 round pans, 8 or 9 by 1½ inches. Prepare cake mix as directed on package, but substitute milk for the water and add lemon peel and almond extract with the milk. Bake as directed. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pans; cool cake completely. Split cake to make four layers. (To split, mark side of cake with wooden picks and cut with long, thin knife.)

Place one layer, cut side up, on serving plate. Spread with ¼ of the Almond Filling; top with about 2 tablespoons preserves. Top with another layer, cut side down. Spread with ¼ Almond Filling; top with about 2 tablespoons preserves. Repeat with remaining layers, Almond Filling and preserves. Refrigerate until chilled. Refrigerate any remaining torte.

ALMOND FILLING: Crumble 1 can (8 oz.) almond paste in small bowl. Beat in 1 tub (16.5 oz.) Vanilla ready-to-spread frosting and 2 tablespoons rum or brandy until fluffy and of uniform consistency.

Red Cross: Ready for a new century.

Carving the bird

In cooperation with the National Turkey Federation, Armour home economists have prepared the following carving tips:

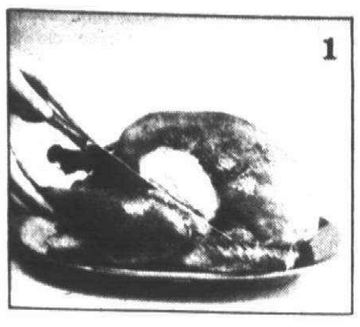

PHOTO 1 — Remove drumstrick and thigh. Press leg away from body. Joint connecting leg to backbone will often snap free or may be severed easily with knife point. Cut dark meat completely from body by following body contour carefully with knife.

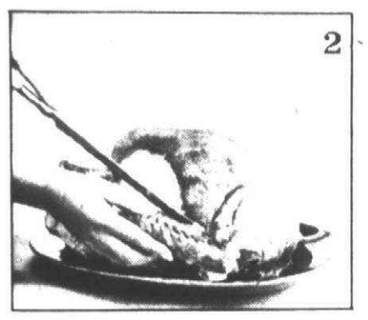

PHOTO 2 — Remove wing. Firmly pull entire wing away from body to locate wing joint. Cut through connecting joint to easily sever wing from body. (Wing may be served intact to those who prefer it or may be saved with carcass for soup or casserole leftovers.)

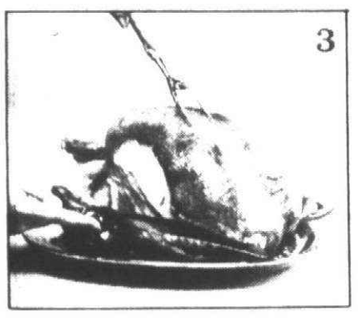

PHOTO 3 — Preparing breast. Place knife parallel and as close to wing bone as posssible. Make deep cut into breast, cutting right to backbone. This is your base cut. All breast slices will stop at this vertical cut.

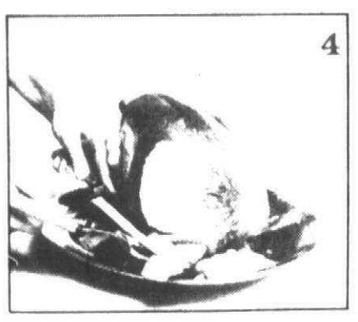

PHOTO 4 — Carving breast. After making base cut, begin to slice breast by carving downward, ending all cuts at base cut. Start each new slice slightly higher up on breast. Keep slices thin and even.

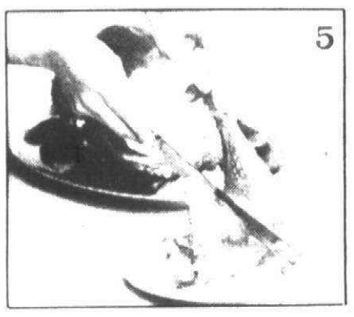

PHOTO 5 — Slicing dark meat. place drumstick and thigh on separate plate and cut through connecting joint. Both pieces may be individually sliced.

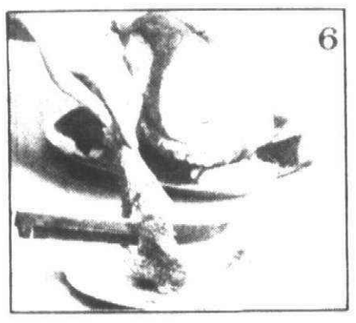

PHOTO 6 — Carving drumstick. Tilt drumstick to convenient angle and slice toward plate as shown in illustration.

Camouflage vegetables for kids

VEGETABLES. You would think that someone would have come up with a better name for the group of foods that are probably the most important and abundant sources of what is good for us.

It's no wonder that many children don't enjoy eating vegetables. Children naturally mistrust most anything that they cannot pronounce. And of course many parents only worsen the situation by pushing vegetables on their children. Refusing vegetables often becomes a child's first act of rebellion.

HOW WELL I remember pushing a pile of green beans around on my plate, hoping they would somehow magically disappear; or maybe if I spread them around it would look like I ate some of them. I actually used to remove the cabbage from around the meat of my cabbage rolls, and pick the mushrooms out of my plate of risotta (an Italian rice and mushroom meal).

The only way I would eat the vegetables in mom's stew was if she would mush them all together and put plenty of gravy on top. Of course there were those vegetables that were fun to eat. No coaxing was ever necessary to get me to eat my share of corn-on-the-cob.

I can remember when I had a loose front tooth and could not eat the corn directly from the cob. Dad would scrape the kernels off for me so I would savor the rich buttery flavor.

PEAS WERE another one of my favorites. Mom would fix chunks of stewing beef in a tomato sauce with peas and serve it over mashed potatoes. I have not had that meal for years but I still remember how good the combination tasted.

For the most part, however, I refused to eat vegetables. Not even Popeye could convince me to eat spinach. Others on my list of least favorites included broccoli, brussel sprouts, and especially yellow wax beans. An experience with yellow beans when I was very young has caused me to refuse them to this day.

Without a doubt, my fondest memories connected with vegetables when I was growing up involve my great-uncle Henry. My family lived right next door to my mother's Aunt Mary and Uncle Henry. It was like having a third set of grandparents.

Uncle Henry was an Italian immigrant who came to this country as a young man. He was a strong, handsome man, very stubborn as I recall and yet very compassionate and helpful. In the 15 or so years that I knew him best, he was a retired steelworker.

Next to his family, his greatest loves were his homemade wine, his Pittsburgh Pirates, and most of all, his vegetable garden.

SOME OF my most vivid memories have him working in the garden with his ever-present pipe clenched between his teeth, wearing his blue denim bib overalls and his wide brimmed staw hat to protect his sensitive skin from the sun.

His garden ran the width of the lot and stretched from the alleyway in the rear to within 20 feet or so from the back porch of his house. One third of the space was always occupied by several varieties of tomato plants. The rich harvest of tomatoes supplied our house with many jars of home-canned tomato sauce for the making of spaghetti the following winter.

Other vegetables that I recall were always in abundance included green beans, onions, carrots, lettuce, radishes, cucumbers, peppers, garlic and fresh parsley. Old Uncle Henry sure did have a way with that garden. It was his pride and joy. I can remember many times my brother Tom and I feared for our behinds when we accidentally let the ball we were playing catch with run into Uncle Henry's garden.

It saddens me somewhat to visit back home and look out mom's kitchen window into the yard next door and see nothing but a well groomed lawn. I guess it is just one of the little things that I had hoped would never change.

One method that sometimes works in getting children to eat vegetables is to prepare the vegetables in casseroles so that they do not look or taste so much like a plain vegetable.

TIME MARCHES onward, and now I have my own little one to feed vegetables to. I often told myself that when I had children I would never force them to eat anything they did not want to.

I honestly do now know how I will react the first time Brent refuses to eat his vegetables. Up until now he has been fairly good about eating just about everything (he's wild about corn-on-the-cob), but I am sure that as he grows older he will develop likes and dislikes.

One method that sometimes works in getting children to eat vegetables is preparing them in casseroles so that they do not look or taste so much like a plain vegetable. A very easy and common vegetable casserole is green beans with mushroom soup and dried onion rings. While I am still not a great green bean lover, I will simply stuff myself with this dish.

Another one that has become my favorite was introduced to me several years ago by my older sister, Kathy. It is a broccoli-rice casserole. This recipe has quickly become a standard at all family functions. My sister's baked corn is another casserole that kids go for.

So if you have trouble getting your children to eat certain vegetables, try creating a casserole of your own. You may even find yourself enjoying vegetables more as a result.

BROCCOLI-RICE CASSEROLE

3 cups cooked rice
1 jar (8 oz.) Cheez Whiz
1 can cream of mushroom soup
2 Tbsp. butter
2 Tbsp. chopped onion
1 box (10 oz.) frozen broccoli
1 can onion rings

Saute onions in butter until tender. Add to cooked rice in 2 quart casserole. Heat soup and Cheez Whiz until smooth. Add to rice.

Break up broccoli and add to rice. Sprinkle with onion rings. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Serves 4-5 people.

BAKED CORN

3 eggs, beaten
2 cans creamed corn
⅔ cup cracker crumbs

Emerging writing style shows creativity

Dear Mrs. Green:

The letter in last week's Observer interested me, especially the part where you said that your writing style changes until you find one that you are comfortable with. I've been aware of this from an early age, and was always experimenting with different ways of writing letters. Even now as life situations and attitudes change, I change my writing habits. There are also some letters that I hate the way I write.

I had a handwriting analysis done about four years ago by a member of the American Association of Handwriting Analysts. I am enclosing the copy that she analyzed. Are there any major differences in the two? I'm more interested in my handwriting now, and would appreciate an analysis.

Thank you. D.T.
Redford

Dear D.T.

I selected your handwriting to use in my column this week because I sensed your strong interest in graphology and also in better understanding yourself.

The total picture of your printscript style of writing is most interesting, and I feel sure I would find you the same way. Cultural aptitudes and possibly even talents are woven throughout. Creativity and intelligence also are both present. It seems apparent that you have been exposed to some of life's finer things.

Formative years, you feel, were spent with a strong female authority figure. Influence of a male authority figure seems quite limited.

Early in life you learned to keep you feelings under control. Outwardly you do not show your emotions freely. To others you seem very poised. In an emergency situation you can react calmly and efficiently. Impulsive you are not. In fact, I think you quickly assess a situation, deciding how it will effect you before you become involved.

While protocol is not always of paramount concern, you can be tactful and use charisma when you feel this is important or necessary. More often it seems you can be quite direct in expressing yourself. And friction is something you dislike.

You are neat and orderly. Your mind is well-organized. You do not assume more than you can comfortably handle. And when you do have a task to do you can get right at it without fanfare. A penchant for eliminating the extraneous is futher evident.

While I do see some signs of maturity in this writing compared to the sample you wrote earlier, I still observe feelings of insecurity which are causing you to set goals not commensurate with your capabilities.

Most other traits you mentioned from the previous analysis are still much in evidence. The secrecy and evading of issues do not appear to be as pronounced, though.

Handwriting changes reflect changes in the writer's personality. I strongly feel you are actively working on understanding and self-improvement. I am known for living by cliches. One that I feel to be quite appropriate here is, "What the mind can conceive, the body can achieve."

If you have a question about your handwriting, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, in care of this newspaper. Use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Use either black or blue ink, sign the letter, and state which hand you write with.

Tuition aid available for displaced homemakers

Tuition assistance for displaced homemakers and women seeking employment in untraditional fields is available at Schoolcraft College through a grant from the Michigan Department of Education.

Homemakers who are their families' primary income source may be eligible for the program if they lack the job skills necessary to provide adequate financial support, if they have no recent skilled, full-time work experience and if they are not receiving other federal educational assistance.

Those seeking to enter fields in which few women are employed also may be eligible to receive funds.

The program offers tuition assistance for approved courses, including traditional academic and continuing education courses; pre-vocation courses, career planning and assertiveness training; and vocational support courses.

Financial aid applications may be obtained at the Women's Resource Center, Schoolcraft College. Call 591-6400, ext. 430.

Adoption focus of meeting

Those interested in adopting children from other countries are invited to an Intercountry Adoption Forum scheduled from 7-10 p.m. today at Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard, Livonia.

Families for Children will sponsor the free program in which experienced adoptive families and professionals will share information and answer questions about adoption procedures.

Also participating will be Lorraine McKim, acting administrator of the Michigan department of Social Services intercounty adoption program, and Elizabeth Gorning, intercountry adoption caseworker in the state department.

The meeting will mark the start of National Adoption Week. Families for children is Michigan's largest intercountry adoptive parents support group.

Caring for alcoholics

How to care for alcoholic patients and their families is the topic of a day-long workshop Saturday, Dec. 5 at Madonna College.

Sponsored by the college's office of continuing education, the "Nursing Assessment, Planning and Management of Acute and Chronic Alcoholism" workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 307. The $20 cost does not include lunch.

The workshop will pinpoint barriers to the understanding of alcoholism, show how to assess the degree of dependence, give ways to confront an alcoholic and cite treatment plans and community resources available to the alcoholic.

It will be led by Wayne Isbell, director of alcohol education at Madonna, and Sue Plancon, a registered nurse.

It's a first for thankful sharing

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

You could call it a First Thanksgiving. At any rate, it will be a first of its kind and a special sort of dinner when children and teachers sit down to turkey and trimmings during lunch hour Wednesday in Kresge Hall of Methodist Children's Village in Redford.

They'll dine on food they've all had a hand in preparing, and that's no small thing for the 160 members of 11 classes in the Redford Union-Methodist Children's Home Society day treatment program.

Youngsters in the program, ranging upwards from 3 years old, have known Thanksgiving dinners but not the working together it takes to produce one.

They are, said Ken Johnson, director, "kids who have emotional needs beyond those of most children."

Some, for assorted reasons, live in the cottages at Children's Village, a sprawling acreage south of Six Mile between Inskter and Beech-Daly. A large number are bused in daily from an area that includes Livonia, South Redford, Garden City, Plymouth, Northville, Dearborn and Cherry Hill as well as Redford Union.

They and their teachers and counselors — the daily program involves counseling work with youngsters families as well as classroom activities — are getting involved this week in making bread, stuffing and pumpkin pie for the dinner Wednesday. Each class will produce each item. The staff will do the honors with the turkey, and there will be frozen corn.

THE THANKSGIVING dinner plan is being coordinated by Marian Nelson of Canton, who teaches the primary class in the day treatment program.

She's in her second year of a do-it-themselves structure in the study unit involving Indians and Pilgrims and the early American feast.

Last Thanksgiving, and again last week, she had her class of boys aged 5 to 8 make muffins and butter, the latter by shaking whipping cream in baby food jars.

"I wanted them to get a little understanding of how long it takes to make things and how much effort is involved," she said. "Their experience with food is that it comes from the store. I was raised on a dairy farm in the Thumb Area, and we didn't go to the store for every thing we wanted.

"For these kids, the satisfaction of doing something is important. We made the muffins and butter and enjoyed eating them. They know they can do it, but it takes a long time."

Ken Johnson saw another ingredient in Ms. Nelson edible lesson plan, and that's why the rest of the school is being included this Thanksgiving.

"It's a chance," he said, "for the children in the program to plan together and work cooperatively. And it gives the staff a chance to find out how they are progressing in the capacity to get along with others."

Children at the Kresge Hall school, he said, have average capacity to learn.

"Their problems are at other levels — how they get along with others, how they feel about themselves," he added. "Some may be passive and insecure, some lose tempers easily and get upset. It's important to have successes here so they can go on to other successes, maybe talking to other kids in the neighborhood."

THE THANKSGIVING dinner plan seemed to him a good road to successes.

Ms. Nelson's muffin project was in a way a run-through for the bigger dinner for all.

Before the boys cooked, they made Indian headbands, and they wore them for the mini-meal. "That took quite a while, too," she said. "But it was another chance for them to appreciate their own abilities.

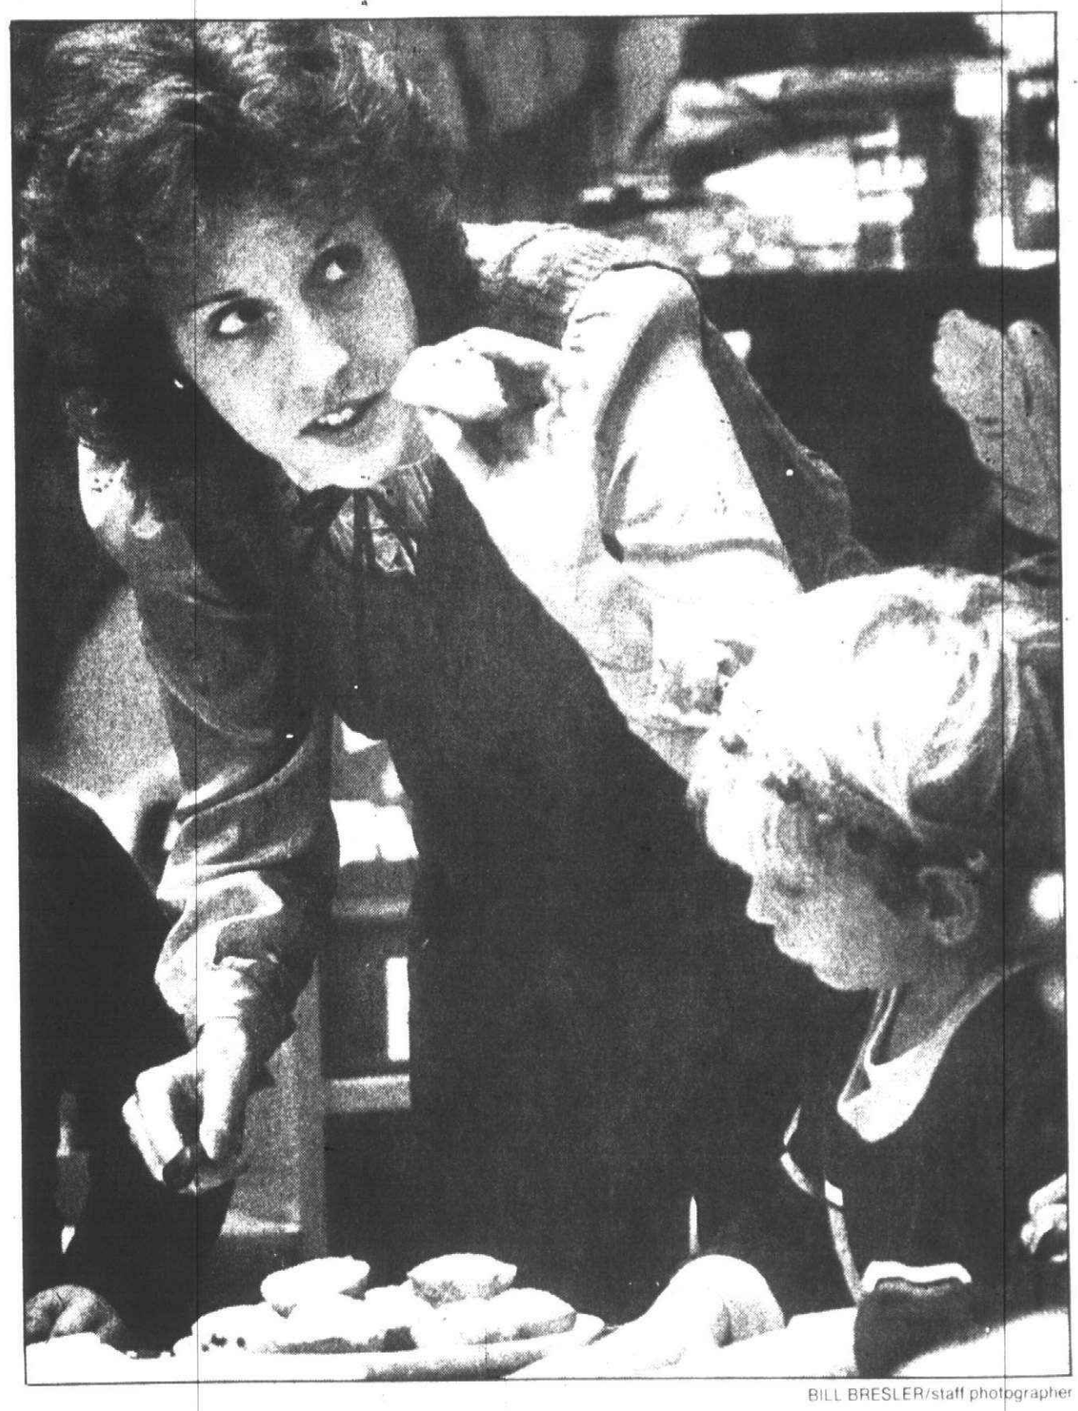

"I wanted them to do something like making the muffins and butter, because when it's time for the pie I'll need a lot of help. I'm not going to need kids acting silly."

Help is at hand each classroom session from Barbara Tober, her aide who came through Redford Union schools, and Karen Stivers, a teaching intern from Central Michigan University and a resident of Plymouth.

That is in keeping with the high ratio of staff to children that is one of the main features of the day treatment program, said Johnson.

He explained that children at Kresge Hall and their families get regular counseling. Families come regularly for discussions with staff on how the child is progressing and what will help more.

This program, begun in 1973 with Johnson as director, is now one of three classroom-counseling setups operated through the Wayne Intermediate School district.

A "thankful turkey" hangs on the door outside Ms. Nelson's classroom as a reminder of what the special education class is learning at Thanksgiving and all year.

Slow economy means more people volunteer

By Charlene Balosky
staff writer

Although Michigan's faltering economy has created budgetary woes for many state departments, it has provided a welcome boost for at least one state activity.

"Volunteer services in Michigan have become increasingly important in tight economic times," said Dr. Elizabeth Frier, the state's director of volunteer services, at a recent luncheon to honor the volunteers at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

Frier said the economic downturn in Michigan has led to a larger volunteer pool. "We have teachers who have been pink-slipped, and skilled workers who are becoming volunteers," she said. "Volunteering gives them a chance to upgrade their skills and often leads to better jobs, while it provides the state with useful skills."

Frier told the audience that volunteer workers in addition to providing valuable time also can provide an organization which its staff may not possess.

"We have volunteer workers who have trained unemployed workers to learn welding skills and other skills which are in demand," Frier said. "These are skills that most social workers would not have been equipped to teach, yet they are important in the job market."

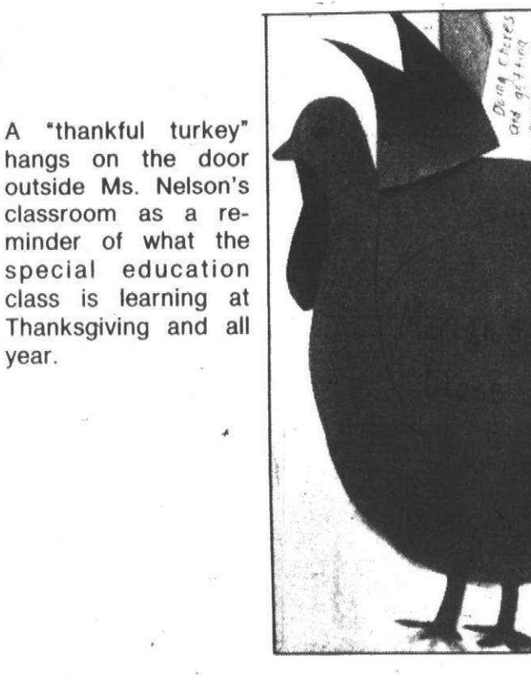

VOLUNTEERS, SHE SAID, help make the expansion of social service programs possible. For example, the recent movement toward community placement of the mentally impaired has resulted in volunteer programs to assist in adult foster care homes.

Frier is convinced that state legislators are aware of the importance of volunteer programs. "Last year, our budget was one of the few not to be cut," she said.

Responsibile for the activities of 60,000 volunteer workers in 101 programs and a consultant to volunteer coordinators in 83 counties, the speaker noted that volunteer programs cover such diverse areas as adopting grandparents, teaching money management skills to low-income families and working with families of state prisoners about to be released.

Frier said the stereotyped image of volunteer workers being "white, middle-aged women" does not hold true. "We have well-educated volunteers, and we have dropouts. We have men and women. We have all age groups, and we have blacks, whites and yellows."

Michigan's youngest volunteer, Frier said, was a three-week-old infant who accompanied her mother in the friendly visitor program (a program in which volunteers visit senior citizens). The baby became a popular addition to the program and received a community service award.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Dr. Elizabeth Frier coordinates the work of volunteers all over Michigan.

In contrast, she told about a 103-year-old nursing home resident, an avid reader who conducts daily current events classes for fellow residents. She provides international- and local-news updates, sports scores, tells them about the latest dilemma in Dear Abby, and tells them how to dress for success.

"It keeps her young and adds interest to the lives of those who attend her classes," Frier said.

WHEN SHE entered the field of volunteer development 15 years ago, Frier said, she thought her greatest problem would be recruiting volunteers. As it turned out, that has not presented a problem. "I have always been able to find someone who is willing to tackle a particular job," she said.

Frier finds the greatest obstacle to be staff hostility, which is caused by workers' fears that their jobs may be eliminated by the introduction of volunteers. She said it is important to reassure workers that their jobs will not be jeopardized and that volunteer programs balance staff needs and volunteers' interests. "We have to be careful that we use volunteers to free up people to do more of their own jobs, rather than replacing them," she said.

She told the audience that the St. Mary Hospital volunteer program is an example of what "volunteering can accomplish when staff and volunteers work together."

Rocks cut down Canton; Glenn girls ousted

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Never leave out Plymouth Salem when discussing the state girls' basketball tournament.

The Rocks proved once again Saturday afternoon that they're a team to be reckoned with as they pounded rival Plymouth Canton, 57-36, in a district semifinal game.

Salem, a Class A semifinalist a year ago, will now meet Ann Arbor Huron in the district final Tuesday at Canton.

Huron, which handed Salem one of its three regular season losses, advanced with a 50-38 triumph over Westland John Glenn in the first game of Saturday's double-header.

Canton got out of the gate fast against the Rocks, building an early 9-2 lead. But the well-oiled Salem machine responded to the deficit by rallying for a 14-11 first quarter advantage.

Jan MacKenzie, a slick shooting senior, tallied six of her game-high 20 points in the opening quarter.

In the second quarter, Salem wore down the Chiefs with an effective man-to-man defense. Dawn Johnson's rebound basket with four seconds remaining lifted the Rocks to a 10-point halftime advantage, 33-23.

SALEM LOOKED almost flawless in the third quarter as MacKenzie connected on three straight outside shots, upping the Rocks' lead to 20.

Canton was unable to make a run in the final quarter.

"I think we had a little bit of an advantage," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "We were rested and they had a tough game with Farmington on Tuesday and came back Thursday to beat a good Ann Arbor Pioneer team. Then they had to play us.

"They played super hard but I think they ran out of steam."

Eileen Moore added 14 points for Salem and played her usual sound floor game. Teammate Jacque Merrifield chipped in with nine and reserve Ann Glomski had six.

Colleen Crissey tallied nine to lead the Chiefs, who bowed out with a 19-3 record. Pearly Cunningham, who cooled off after a hot first quarter, finished with eight as did center Robyn Hudgins.

"Our approach to the game was good," said Blohm, whose team upped its overall record to 18-3. "Our offensive rebounding was sensational. We got more shots than I thought we'd get."

FOUL DIFFICULTIES cost John Glenn a return trip to the district final. The Rockets' top scorer, Terri Chapo, sat on the bench much of the third quarter and part of the fourth because of four fouls. She picked up her fifth with with 4:09 left and Huron clinging to a two-point lead.

The quick River Rats then outscored the Rockets 14-4 the rest of the way.

Huron hit 20 of 29 free throws compared with Glenn's 10 of 10.

Essie Smith led Huron and all scorers with 19 points. Chapo had 14 to pace Glenn, which finished the season with a 14-7 record.

"Their press didn't hurt us when Terri was in," said Glenn coach George Sommerman. "The kids were tense. They wanted it very much. We missed some easy shots early."

Everything clicks as Chief tankers win 1st league title

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

The difference between winning and losing can be an inch or a tenth of a second. The difference between a winner and a loser can be discovered in a person's ability to push beyond anticipated goals.

Somewhere — whether it was a coach's pep talk or fantastic individual performances by Missy McMurray and three divers — Plymouth Canton found that little bit extra to overtake favored Northville and win the Western Six League (WSL) championship girls' swim meet Thursday at Livonia Churchill.

Canton coach Hooker Wellman called it "a super team effort", and that's what it took for the Chiefs to claim the title in the closest finish in WSL history.

Canton totalled 265 points, edging Northville by just six (259). But the four-team league was separated, top to bottom, by just 12 points. Farmington Harrison rallied to edge home team Churchill by a single point, Harrison tallying 254 to 253 for Churchill.

"WE WERE just wired the whole time," Wellman said of the meet. "We told them they could do it if everything broke right.

"It was really an exciting meet. It went right down to the last event."

But it was a turn of events early in the finals that got things rolling in Canton's favor. McMurray started it. Seeded third in the 200-yard freestyle, McMurray pulled a shocker by winning the event (2:15.91).

Later in the meet, she helped Canton's upset bid further by moving up a notch in the 100 free. Seeded third, she finished second.

"That kind of got things going for us," Wellman said of McMurray's performance in the 200 free. "Things just snowballed from there."

Sandwiched in between McMurray's impressive swims was the diving, an event Canton used to virtually seal Northville's fate. Northville didn't have a diver, so it had no chance for points.

CANTON CAPITALIZED on the opportunity, with Shawn Neville finishing second, Cindy Sherwood third and Carrie Lewis fourth. All three qualified for the state regional diving meet by virtue of their top-four finish in the WSL meet.

Other outstanding performances for Canton included Kim Elliott, who placed second in the 100 breaststroke in school record time and was third in the 200 individual medley; Kathy Stern, second in the 100 butterfly; and Bronwyn Fitzgerald, third in the 100 breaststroke.

Plymouth netter among best

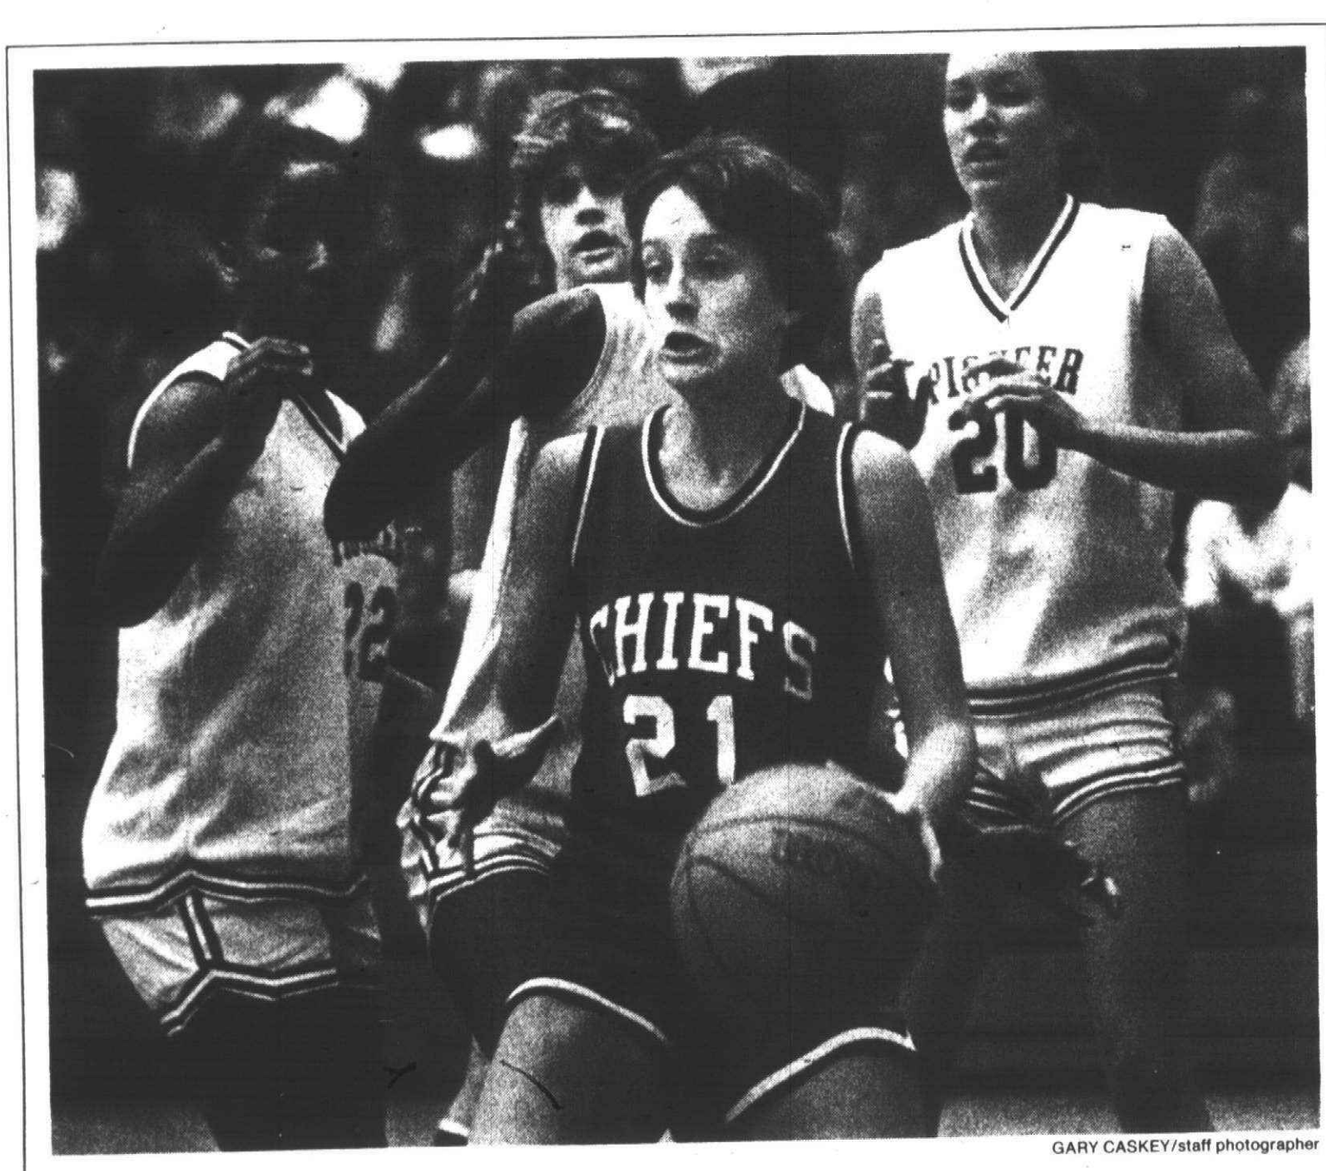

The Franklin Racquet Club will host the United States Tennis Association's 1981 girls 14-and-under championships this week.

The country's 100 top 13- and 14-year-olds will compete, with the opening games scheduled for 8 a.m. Wednesday and the finals in singles and doubles the following Monday.

Wendy Gilles of Plymouth will be one of the top seeds. She was 24th a year ago and is the No. 2 finisher to return. Kim Grace of Ridgewood, N.J., was 13th last year.

Also favored to make a run at the title will be Stefanie Rehe, who won the 12-and-under title last year. Her coach is Robert Lansdorf, who coached Tracy Austin for nine years before quitting in a dispute over prize money a year ago.

There is no admission charge to the tournament and the public is invited. For information, call 352-8000.

Canton settles Pioneers in state tourney opener

By Jay Keenan
special writer

A lengthy string of second rate competition through the middle of the season didn't seem to stymie Plymouth Canton's momentum in the first round of the state prep girls' basketball tournament.

The 18th ranked Chiefs, who haven't played very many top-notch teams, ousted No. 20 Ann Arbor Pioneer, 69-51, Thursday night at Canton's gym.

Meanwhile, in the first game of a Class A district double-header, Westland John Glenn's breakneck team posted an easy win over a hapless Wayne Memorial quintet, 67-33.

The winners moved into the Class A district semifinals (see page 1C).

In the nightcap, the Chiefs were red-hot from the field most of the evening. Robyn Hudgins and Sue Gerke each scored 16 points to lead Canton. Reggie Ruggiero added 15 and Pearly Cunningham chipped in with 13.

Pioneer had a 12-11 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the Chiefs' tenacious defense stopped Ann Arbor cold in the second period.

"IT WAS a good performance from everyone," said Canton coach Mike McCauley. "I was pleased with our aggressiveness and hustle.

"Our disciplined defense and good moves around the hoop paid off."

McCauley also added that a season-ending game against highly-touted Farmington (68-65 double overtime loss) helped.

"The competition we had against Farmington helped us get ready for tonight's game," he said. "You've got to play sharp teams in order to be sharp. But there's no way I like to lose."

The Chiefs continued to take advantage of their superior rebounding play in the third quarter, building a commanding 43-27 advantage with 3:07 to play.

But at the outset of the final period, Pioneer came right back and cut Canton's lead to three, 47-44, with 6:03 to go.

The Chiefs, however, took advantage of Ann Arbor's poor shooting and costly mistakes, outscoring the Pioneers the rest of the way, 22-7.

"That was my fault when they cut the lead," said the Canton coach. "I rotated my players midway through the second half and I should have kept my first stringers in while they were hot. But I wanted to give them a break."

PIONEER COACH Charles Jennings said turnovers cost his team the game.

"We made too many errors throughout the game and as a result, we had to play catch-up," he said. "What it boils down to is that Plymouth was ready to play and we weren't."

Glenn had also had a productilve night from the field as nine players scored against Wayne.

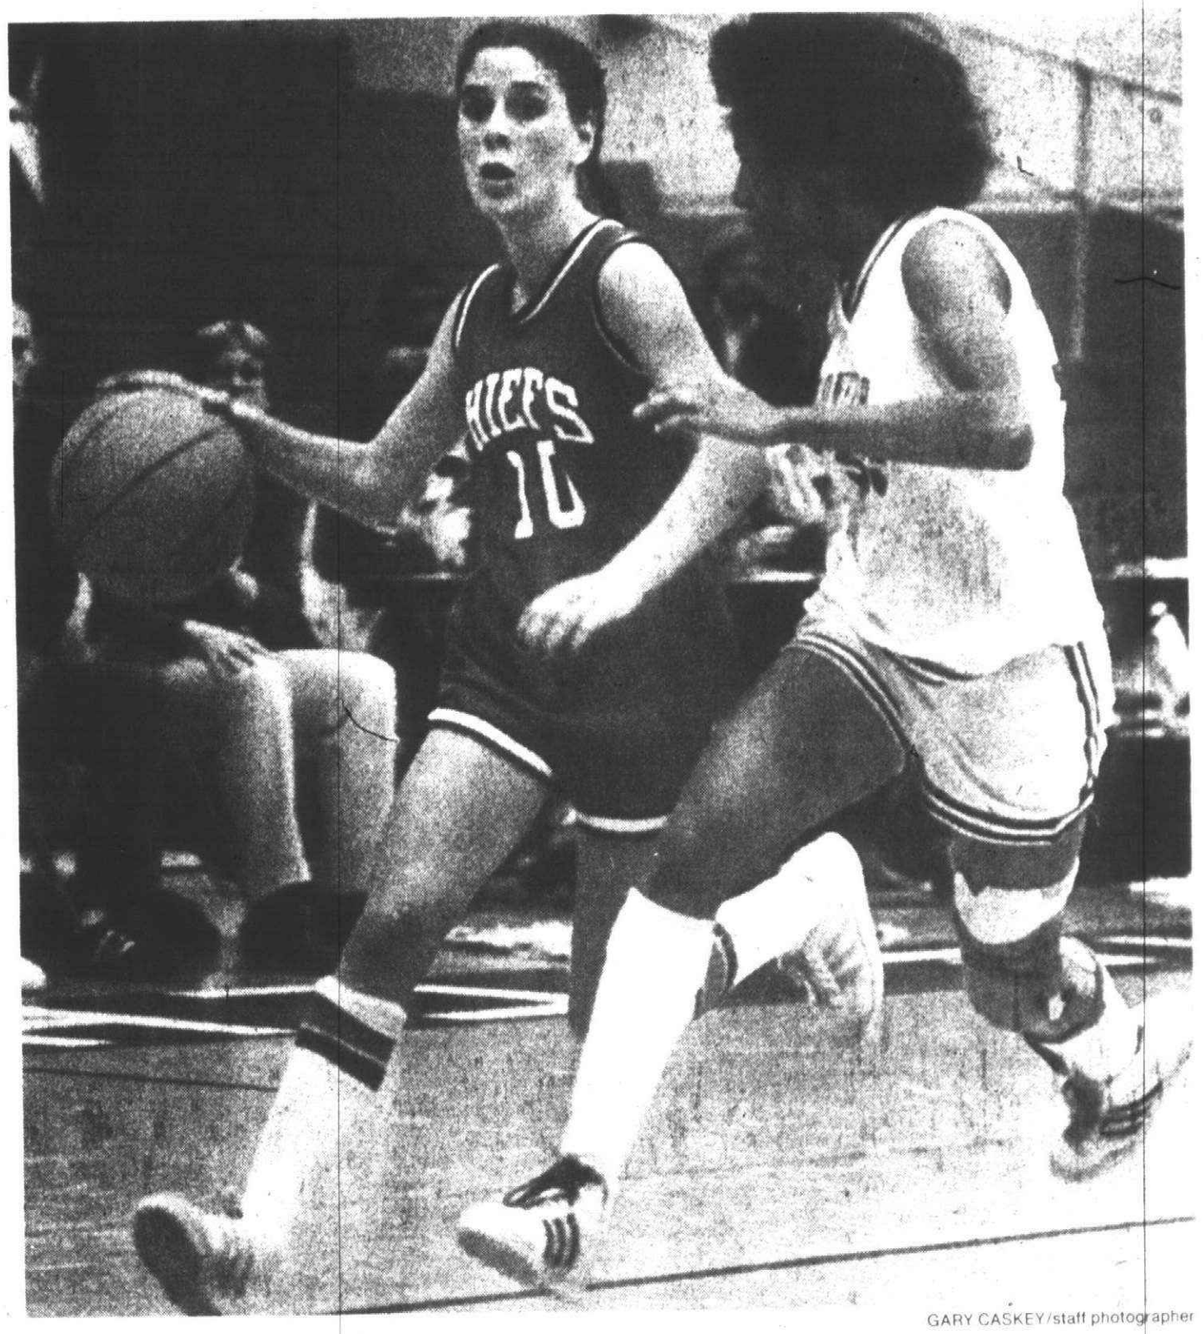

Guard Teri Chapo paced the Rockets with 24 points. Sandy Cockrum tossed in 11 and Kathy Wenzel followed with 10 and led all rebounders with 12.

"All the girls on this team did a nice job," said Glenn coach George Sommerman. "Even our subs (substitutes) coming off the bench did well.

"Teri did a nice job along the baseline. She worked real well with Kathy tonight."

The Zebras trailed by six at the end of the first quarter, 14-8, but in the second period, Wayne went cold. The Rockets then broke it open with a 19-10 surge.

Glenn increased its lead to 55-24 following the third quarter and waltzed in the remaining eight minutes.

Rock girls maintain 2nd place spot

Bentley swimmers go out Sub 8 winners

GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

Terri Eudy of Plymouth Salem checks her time in the 200-yard individual medley during Wednesday's Suburban Eight League girls' swim preliminaries.

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Livonia Bentley left its mark on the Suburban Eight girls' swimming Friday with an impressive performance Friday in the league meet.

The young Bulldogs won their third straight title with 291 team points. Dearborn was second with 208 followed by host Plymouth Salem, third, 188; Trenton, fourth, 144; Dearborn Edsel Ford, fifth, 142; Allen Park, sixth, 81, and Belleville, seventh, 73.

"You kind of like to leave the league a winner," said Bentley coach Keith Wright. "Swimming has quite a history in this league."

Bentley and Salem are dropping out of the Suburban Eight next year to join the 10-team, two-division Western Lakes Activities Association.

And it was only fitting that the league champs closed the meet in a blaze of glory with a first-place finish in the 400-yard freestyle relay. The Bulldogs' Stacy Baluch, Robin Lautz, Laura Pomeroy and Leslie Martin set a league record with a time of 3:50.19, which was also a school record.

The foursome had broken the mark in the preliminaries Wednesday with a clocking of 3:54.38.

"THEY'RE YOUNG," said Wright. "They had a lot of growing up to do, but they did it together.

"Nineteen of our girls are ninth- or 10th-graders. Most of them are on the team for the first time. Our senior captains had a positive impact in bringing them along."

Bentley also won the 200 medley relay in 1:57.33. That team consisted of Jenny Fedor, Cathy Lowry, Robin Lautz and Stacy Baluch. Salem's quartet of Terri Eudy, Amy Dunn, Debbie Darlington and Corinne Cabadas took second in 1:58.34.

Lautz, a sophomore, won the 100 butterfly in 1:02.60. Fedor, another super soph, broke her own league record in the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:04.46.

"Dearborn had more firsts," Wright said. "We weren't a team of one or two individuals. Everybody had a part."

Dearborn's Patty Sabo, also a sophomore, was again the individual star with first-place finishes in the 200 individual medley (2:13.15) and 100 freestyle (54.84). She had her legs and arms full in the latter event as Salem's Terri Eudy led until the final turn before Sabo rallied. Eudy was clocked in 55.36, her best time this season and also placed third in the 200 IM.

IN THE FINAL team standings, based on dual meet wins and league meet finish, Bentley gained first followed by Salem, Dearborn, Trenton, Edsel Ford, Allen Park and Belleville.

"They had an awful lot of first places," said Salem coach Chuck Olson of Dearborn. "It was a case of we didn't qualify as many as we thought.

"Dearborn came in and did a nice job but we still finished second. We feel the dual meets are important, too."

Sabo, who should challenge for state honors, established a new league mark with a time of 2:12.99 in the 200 IM during the prelims. The other league record was broken by Belleville's Laura Kuhr in the 50 freestyle (25.55), which was held for six years by Bentley's Lisa Bowman.

Bentley swimmers gaining high marks in other events included Chris Westhaus, third place, 200 freestyle, and second, 500 freestyle; Fedor, second, 200 IM; Martin, second, and Baluch, third, 50 freestyle; Pomeroy, third, 500 freestyle; Lowry, third, 100 breaststroke.

SALEM'S Cindy McSurely was fourth in diving (338.85 points). Trenton's Lisa Migoski rallied for first (375.65).

Cabadas was second in the 100 breaststroke (1:15.83).

TIMING AND TOOTHBRUSHING
Does toothbrushing prevent tooth decay? One has to wonder because tooth decay is widespread despite the increased sale of toothbrushes and dentifrices.
There are reasons for this paradox. One is that the toothbrush is usually not used at the time when it could be the most effective. Acid formation on the tooth surface begins within moments after sugar has entered into the secluded areas and reaches a maximum in 15 to 30 minutes. This is why the toothbrush should be used immediately after eating if it is going to exert its greatest effect in disrupting acid formation. Brushing teeth after getting up or before going to bed has a beneficial cosmetic effect and a stimulating action on the gum tissue, but is not of much help in controlling tooth decay.
If the teeth cannot be brushed promptly after meals or snacks that have a high sugar content, rinse the mouth thoroughly with water. The flushing action can remove the soluble, fermentable sugar from the sheltered areas before the acid attack takes place.

Landmark Smoker Study:

Merit Takes Taste Honors.

Former higher tar smokers acclaim MERIT "Best-tasting low tar I've tried."

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed.

Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Old car look alikes

Classic Ford Motor Co.-built cars — such as this restored 1941 Lincoln Continental cabriolet or a 1932 Ford roadster similar to this restored version — are included among the grand prizes in Ford's $10 million Old Car-New Car Sweepstakes. In addition to the classic cars, the Lincoln-Mercury winner will receive a 1982 Continental Givenchy Designer Series Sedan. Ford customers will win a 1982 Ford LTD Crown Victoria.

These keep you rolling when weather gets bad

Driving under slippery road conditions can be frustrating at best and dangerous at all times. But you can increase your odds of avoiding a fender-bender — assuming no one plows into you — or being trapped in an ice/snow rut by following several simple driving procedures recommended by, of all people, the Better Business Bureau.

- Have the engine tuned. It will start faster in cold weather and save you plenty of fuel in the bargain.
- Make sure there is sufficient antifreeze in the radiator for the coldest weather expected. You should protect your car to minus 20, at least.
- Double-check radiator hoses for wear and leaks — especially around clamps. Winter is no time to lose all your antifreeze due to a leak.
- Test the windshield wipers for streaking. New wiper blandes are worth the investment. Also make sure there is antifreeaze solution in the washer fluid reservoir.
- All lights should be operating properly; brakes adjusted; heater and defroster working; the exhaust system tight and free of leaks.
- In the car carry an ice scraper, snow brush, flashlight, small snow shovel and/or traction mats. Shingles, grit down, make good traction mats.

Arts and crafts shows and holiday bazaars offer good sales in which you can find things for the hard-to-buy-for person. They also provide great opportunities to pick up holiday home-decor items such as this ribbon Christmas wreath, made by Mickey Backer of Plymouth.

Arts and crafts for the holidays

An easy and fun way to buy gifts for the hard-to-buy-for persons you love is to attend the Christmas arts and craft shows.

One of the major sales each year, for instance, is the Christmas Arts and Crafts Show sponsored by the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department.

The eighth annual show will be presented from Nov. 27-29 in the Plymouth Community Cultural Center at Farmer and Theodore streets in the city of Plymouth.

The hours are from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

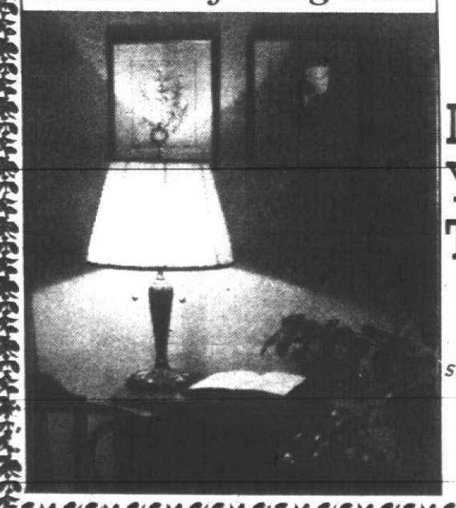

There will be more than 75 artists and craftsmen from all over the state of Michigan at the show to sell their works.

ANOTHER SPECIAL opportunity to buy special gifts for special people is to attend the annual pre-Christmas show and sale put on by the Three Cities Art Club.

The art show and sale will be Dec. 4, 5 in the Forest Place Mall on Forest Street in downtown Plymouth.

The hours are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

Yule card etiquette names on a separate line beneath the parents' names. The same treatment works in single-parent families, where a card might be addressed to "Mary Smith and Johnny" or "Jeremy Sanders, Susan and Joann." If the child's last name differs from that of his parents, you can use the child's full name, as in "Susan Overstreet and Julie Benton" or Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilson and Aaron Smith."

How does a married couple sign the cards they send? Do we use "Mr. and Mrs." or our first names? If so, which of our names should we put first?

In formal situations, or when you are not close to the recipients, it is appropriate to sign the card "Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fenton." In informal and friendship situations, it is appropriate to sign the card "Lawrence and Rose Fenton." When the recipient will undoubtedly know who you are, you'll probably want to drop your last neame altogether.

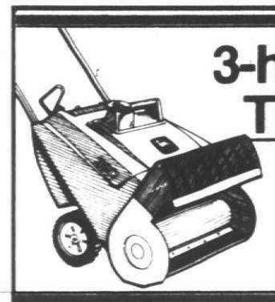

When you send cards together, the person who writes the names usually puts his or her name last. But there are no hard and fast rules. Sometimes the name of the person who knows the recipient best is the first name signed.

Is it unsophisticated to include a written, personal message with the card.

In certain formal situations, where the recipient of your card is not very well known to you (such as a business acquaintance), the card's message and your signed name would meet any social requirements. But to your friends and family, news or special touch mesages in your own handwriting are always appropriate.

This is doubly true when you are sending a card to someonw who might be lonely during the holidays. A few written words from you are sure to give the recipient a special feel. Christmas stationery with holiday design motifs are also available for this specific reason.

("The Glow of Christmas," the Plymouth-Canton Gift Guide for 1981, appears today in the homes of more than 50,000 of our readers in Plymouth, Canton, Livonia and Northville. The guide was coordinated by Rex Hatt and Emory Daniels, who were assisted by Peg Knoespel, Sue Orbach, Dennis O'Connor, Elinor Graham, Gary Caskey and Briget Lucas. The staffs of the Canton Observer and Plymouth Observer join to wish all of our readers a special glow for this holiday season.)

What cigar smokers appreciate these days

Iacocca is also promoting Don Diego cigars in thet company's advertising. "We never see the Chrysler executive," says Sobelton. "He always sends a driver to pick up his Imperial-size cigars.

According to Westland's Szymanski, "All our customers receive the red carpet treatment." State Sen. David Palwecki is a regular customer and comedienne Joan Rivers stopped by two years ago. "She didn't buy anything, though," Szymanski said.

A small percentage of Tinder Box customers are women cigar smokers. "I try to direct them to a short cigar like a cigarillo," said Szymanski. "They're usually buying cigars because they had to give up cigaret smoking for health reasons."

Inspector Paul Schnarr, a Westland police detective, frequents the Westland store, buying the best, longest largest cigar available; usually it's a Churchill shape which is 7½ or more inches long.

"I like the peaceful tranquility of enjoying a cigar," says Schnarr.

MANY CIGAR smokers are famous people such as actor Paul Newman, funnyman Red Skelton (who fondles his), U.S. Sen. John Glenn, and comedian Milton Berle.

Late greats were Jimmy Durante, John Wayne and Winston Churchill (who seemed to have a cigar perpetually growing out of his grumpy kisser).

Screen stars who allegedly smoked cigars are Greta Garbo, Anne Baxter, Elizabeth Taylor, Mia Farrow, Natalie Wood, Lauren Bacall, Edie Adams (the Muriel ad girl) and Carol Lynley. All these stars probably smoked as part of a role.

Mrs. Sargent Shriver allegedly smokes them, as does Britian's Princess Margaret and Monaco's Princess Grace.

These have got to be purely rumor. Who can picture any of those women with a wardrobe stinking from cigars?

Cigar evolved from the Spanish word cigaro or segarros. American pioneers called them "stogies" for their covered wagons built in Conestoga, Penn.

Today's housewife has other, less-fond references for these delights.

A cigar smoker can keep his wife and kids happy by buying his cigars in glass tubes. What does a glass tube do for a cigar and its smoker?

"It raises the cost astronomically while keeping the cigar fresher," says Churchill's Sobelton.

"But it's also handy to save dimes in."

Santa is arriving on Friday night

In 1977, Santa Claus arrived in Plymouth in real style — in an English taxicab. Four years later the English transportation touch returns, as Santa will arrive this Friday in an English double-decked bus.

Santa Claus's arrival in Plymouth always is on Friday night, but the means of transportation has changed drastically over the years.

Traditionally, Santa comes out of the sky with a sleigh and eight tiny reindeer, but that always has been difficult to accomplish, given the height of the trees around Kellogg Park.

And so other means of transportation always have been needed because Santa prefers to set up Santa's House in Kellogg Park — the heart of downtown Plymouth at Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

In the past, Santa has arrived by fire engine, atop a Cadillac convertible, by helicopter, and by horse and carriage.

This year, Santa has decided to be ridden into Plymouth with the bright red, double-decked, English-style bus now being operated by the city of Plymouth.

Reportedly, Santa asked to arrive via the double-decked bus because the color matches his suit better than the carriages, cars, fire trucks, and helicopters used in previous years.

THE ARRIVAL is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 27. He should be on schedule, because the city is putting snow tires with chains on the double-decked bus to make sure it can make the round trip from the North Pole without a hitch.

The Santa Fan Club of Plymouth will be arriving earlier — maybe as early as 6 p.m. — to gather in the middle of the tall pines of Kellogg Park and sing Christmas carols.

There also will be an official tree-lighting ceremony in the park with the help of the local Girl Scouts, the mayor and city officials.

Mayor Bud Martin will greet Santa and present him with a key to the city for his holiday stay.

AFTER THAT, Santa will greet children and, after getting a good's night rest, will be setting up his house. He will then start moving around town to greet fan club members.

After the tree is lit and Santa is properly welcomed, everyone gathered in Kellogg Park will be invited to the Christmas cordial in participating shops downtown. Many merchants will open their shops and be serving holiday snacks such as cookies and cider.

All the doings are sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and the city of Plymouth.

A 5-cent cigar not worth the wrapping

By Robert Woodring
special writer

What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar.

Smokers and non-smokers alike have touted this folk saying and they probably don't know what they're talking about.

While a good five-cent cigar might be nice to find, it isn't likely to be popular since most quality cigars are found to be in the 50-cent-plus price range, with the majority averaging out ot $1 per cigar.

THE FIVE-CENT cigar reference is one of the most famous developments in cigar history and it wasn't even directed at smoking but toward politics. Thomas Marshall, Woodrow Wilson's vice president, made the comment while presiding over the U.S. Senate.

A colleague had been droning about "what this county really needs." Marshall reportedly turned to an aide and said, "What this country needs is a really good five-cent cigar."

"What you'll find in today's drug store variety cigar are cut-up pieces of tobacco in a brown homogenized binder with a tobacco leaf wrapper," says Ralph Szymanski, manager of The Tinder Box at Westland Center.

If you bother to cut one open, it really looks like a bunch of floor sweepings wrapped in a grocery bag. Those homogenized binders are what cigar boxes refer to as "non-tobacco ingredients added."

"Smokers are being turned off by these artificial cigars because they're unpleasant to smoke," Szymanski said. "That's why domestic cigars are on the decrease and imported leaf, hand-rolled cigars are increasing."

Peter R. Sobelton, president of Churchill's agrees, sighting that sales of premium cigars reached 80 million last year. "Ten years ago, nine billion cigars were sold annually," siad Sobelton. "Last year, the figure was half that." Premium, hand-rolled cigars are leading the newly escalating figures.

SOME OF those former cigar smokers temporarily switched over to pipe smoking when they became dissatisfied with the currently available cigars. There was also a period in the '60s when Cuban cigars were not available after Fidel Castro's take-over of that island country. Havana cigars had been considered the Cadillac of cigars until Castro. Plant disease and exiling tobacco growers all but destroyed the mainstay of the Cuban economy.

Exiles fleeing to other countries, including Central American states, brought seeds with them and were soon producing better tobaccos than originally grown in Cuba. Legend says cigar girls rolled these cigars between their bare thighs. Such stories enhance the mystique of smoking imported leaf.

"Pipe sales are static, right now," Sobelton said. "The flavor of the tobaccos are similar and that's why a lot of smokers are coming back to premium cigars."

Pipe tobaccos contain flavor and aroma enhancers such as sugar, vanilla and whiskey, so they do smell better. Comparatively, cigars are pure tobacco leaf.

"The lack of pleasant aroma is what makes cigar smoking socially unacceptable," Szymanski comments.

OF COURSE, aroma is in the nose of the beholder. While a premium cigar might taste good, one man's aroma is another man's odor.

Sobelton's favorite cigar is the Joya de Nicaragua, a 90-cent cigar. Frequent customers of Churchill's are Joe Nederlander of Fisher Theater fame (smoking a Cuesta Rey), Lee Iacocca of Chrysler Corp. (Don Diego and others), and Bud Lynch of the Red Wings (brand not known).

Rock Hudson and Mickey Rooney acquire Churchill cigars by mail order.

Plans are made for Santa's visit

The third annual Canton Township Christmas Tree Lighting Festivities highlight the yule activities south of Joy Road.

James Poole, the township supervisor, will be this year's master of ceremonies for the early-December event.

Canton residents are invited to come to the festivities. They are asked to bring a personalized, unbreakable Christmas-tree ornament to help decorate the big tree in front of Township Hall, on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill.

The 25-minute tree-decorating ceremony will include Christmas caroling.

Last year Santa himself brightened the ceremonies with a surprise visit during the caroling.

After the tree is lighted and decorated, residents are invited into Township Hall for cake, cookies and other refreshments.

Tina Pratto, the supervisor's secretary, is in charge of coordinating this activity.

THE CANTON Library, on the third floor of Township Hall, also will have a similar ceremony inside the building. The tentative date is Dec. 7 at 7 p.m. Parents and children are invited to attend, although space is limited.

The Canton Jaycees will be busy during the holidays with their third-annual Santa Trailer — at the west side of the Meijer's shopping center on the corner of Ford and Canton Center.

The trailer will be open for 22 days — beginning the day after Thanksgiving and continuing to Christmas Eve, Jaycee member Paul Farrell said.

"We'd like to increase the insulation in the trailer this year," Farrell said. "It got awfully cold last year."

Farrell added that Santa probably will arrive at Griffin Park, on Canton Center and Cherry Hill, the day after Thanksgiving and ride to Meijer's, where the trailer will be ready for the eager little visitors.

Main, at Green Thumb in Forest Place Mall, or at Lorraine's Dolls in Old Village at 615 N. Mill.

● Plymouth Symphony Orchestra Christmas Concert. The etiquette of sending Yule cards

UNSURE OF HOW to address your holiday cards in this age of changing lifestyles and role relationships? Here's some pointers on greeting card etiquette.

How do I address a card to a married couple? Is it necessary to use "Mr. and Mrs.," or is it all right to use their first names?

When sending a card to a married couple, you'll never be wrong in using formal address. But if your relationship with the couple is close, and it seems natural to do so, the envelope can be addressed using the first names of both man and woman.

When addressing a card to a woman recently divorced, do I use her former husband's first name?

When sending a card to a divorced woman, you may retain the "Mrs.," but you follow it with her first name. It would also be correct to dispense with the "Mrs." and just use the name. In deciding whether to use "Ms.," consider the preferences of the recipient. Some women prefer to be addressed as Ms. and some are partial to Miss or Mrs. preceding their name. If you're not sure, you might want to avoid its use.

I have some unmarried friends living together. How do I address their card?

One solution is to address the card with their full names — one on each line. If one friend is a woman, you might want to write her name first, or you might want to address the card first to whichever one you know best. Or you might want to send a separate card to each.

How can I select a card to a widow or a widower especially when the loss was a recent one? Most cards speak of cheer and rejoicing. That doesn't always fit. And how should I address a card to a widow?

In this situation, you may want to select a card with the simple inscription of "Season's Greetings."

When addressing a card to a widow, use her husband's first name: Mrs. John A. Jones. If she has children, and they are still living with her, you can address the card: Mrs. John A. Jones and children.

When I address Christmas cards, I always like to include the children's names on the envelope — they seem to enjoy that. Is there any correct way of doing this?

The easiest way to include the children is to add the all-inclusive "and family" after their parents' names. However, if you want to add a special touch, you can include the children's

During a work break in downtown Plymouth, Dawn Senkbeil fills out a Christmas card to a friend so she can get the greeting in the mail for prompt delivery. Like many of us, Ms. Senkbeil finds getting the shopping done, working, and mailing cards to friends and relatives makes for a busy holiday season. This year, though, Ms. Senkbeil plans to shop early and mail early.
