Board delays decision on video-game plans

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Buzz, whirr. Stop.

Township officials refused Tuesday to permit establishment of video arcades at two shops along Lilley Road.

Trustees voted to delay decisions until late January. They were concerned about proper land use, traffic and pedestrian safety and compliance with building and electrical codes, they said.

The Township Board plans to seek legal advice on possible changes to the current ordinance on mechanical arcades.

BOTH REQUESTS are for restaurant-arcade combinations.

Jamil Akhtar and Barbara Baldwin, employees of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, want permission to move into a 2,200-square-foot vacant building on Lilley south of Ford. Permission of the board is required because the land is zoned for highway business.

The other request is from Tiger pitcher Milt Wilcox and a partner to operate a pizzeria-arcade in the King's Row shopping center at Lilley and Warren.

"It's a business whose time has come," said Akhtar.

SOME TRUSTEES believe the current ordinance is unrealistic and possibly unconstitutional.

The ordinance says children under 17 must be accompanied by parents to play on video machines in Canton Township.

In addition, the board must approve any business that wants to operate four or more machines. The firm also must try to contact and get signatures (pro or con) from residents within 1,000 feet of the business site.

There are 118 homes or apartment units near the business location, Akhtar said. Eighty-six persons signed in favor, four said no and seven refused to sign. Others weren't at home.

However, a Keystone resident collected 32 signatures against the arcade. "Our main objection is that the parking lot is too small," said a spokesman for those people.

AKHTAR will discourage the place from becoming a safety hazard or hangout by requiring that persons eat, as well as play the video games, he said. He sent a letter to the principal of Eriksson Elementary School, offering to work with the school to discourage truants from hanging around, he said.

"We have complied with everything," said Akhtar. "What more are we to do?"

In the case of the Ford-Lilley pizzeria, Wilcox said he was taking over the business to "save (the current owner) from going bankrupt."

However, board members said they were concerned about possible violations of the electrical code in machines that had been installed in the shop.

The board needs to resolve whether an arcade is a permitted land use in the Ford-Lilley business zoning, which is geared to neighborhood shopping, Trustee Steve Larson said.

The applications for both businesses now are being reviewed by the building-ordinance, police and fire departments. The board will consider the requests after receiving the reports from those township departments.

Strict sign ordinance heads for big changes

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Canton's strict, and sometimes controversial, sign ordinance may be headed for a more relaxed future.

The Canton Planning Commission will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 14, at Township Hall on proposed changes in the current ordinance.

Plans call for permitting larger signs and billboards and "tower" signs along freeways, and for eliminating "incentives" for signs of natural materials, such as wood.

Many merchants complain that the current ordinance, adopted in 1975, is restrictive and "anti-business."

ANY CHANGES would have to be approved by the township's planning commission, the Wayne County Planning Commission and the Township Board. That process could take a couple of months, according to the planning department.

Assistant Planner Dave Nicholson, who has been working with the planning commission, said he expects response from both business people and residents at the hearing.

"Depending on the number of changes, we may have to hold another public hearing," said Nicholson. "We'll probably hear from both sides. We've had favorable response on our (existing) ordinance. Many residents may squawk."

The commission has been studying the current ordinance during recent months, and researching sign guidelines in other communities. A committee from the Canton Chamber of Commerce also has made some suggestions.

JOHN SCHWARTZ, president of the chamber, calls the proposed changes "a start — a big step for Canton.

"The changes have reduced the ordinance from 46 to 20 pages," said Schwartz, owner of Schwartz Greenhouse. He said the proposed changes will increase the sign sizes but still be smaller than guidelines in some neighboring communities. He said the modifications will attract more businesses to Canton and ease the tax burden currently carried by homeowners.

"Signs are distasteful, but they are a tool," added Schwartz. "The image of Canton has to be changed, as far as thinking anti-business. The taxpayers need help."

THE SIGN ORDINANCE has stirred anger and dismay among the business community. Minor changes were made in 1979.

In recent months, pleas for more visible signs have come from Knight's Inn motel and McDonald's on Michigan Avenue, both off I-275 freeway. Farmers have complained about limitations on signs which direct customers to their stands.

Many of the proposed changes deal with those concerns. Highlights are as follows:

- Businesses will be allowed certain portable, free-standing signs, currently forbidden.
- Increases in the number of signs for produce stands to advertise agricultural goods.
- Some signs could double in size if the changes are adopted. These include certain kinds of real estate signs, office complexes and window signs.
- GROUND SIGNS along major roadways such as Canton Center could be doubled in size from the current maximum of 18 square feet for synthetic signs and 25 feet for natural materials. The "natural" size bonus also would be eliminated.
- Ground signs on properties fronting divided highways such as Michigan Avenue could be increased from the present 18 square feet to 100 square feet.
- Businesses located within a third-mile of the I-275 freeway, Michigan Avenue and Ford Road would be permitted to erect "tower" signs up to 125 feet in height.
- Billboards up to 672 square feet would be permitted in certain industrial and highway-oriented districts.

Nicholson said the proposed changes would make the ordinance less cumbersome. But he feels "uncomfortable" about the proposal on tower signs.

"I have my apprehensions that tower signs may end up in a forest of signs in the interstate areas (of the township)," said Nicholson.

Officials trace spill

Investigators are continuing a search for the source of an oily spill discovered Monday afternoon near a storm system outflow in a Rouge River tributary in Canton Township.

Samples of a brown, foamy substance that spilled from the outflow near Michigan Avenue between Haggerty and I-75 have been sent to a U.S. Coast Guard laboratory for analysis, said Coast Guard petty officer Shelton Hall.

Hall and petty officer Calvin Richardson were sent by the Coast Guard to the outflow Tuesday morning to begin the tedious task of tracing the source of the spill.

They are being aided in the investigation by Susan Norton, water quality specialist with the Rockwood-based water quality division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

BY TUESDAY AFTERNOON, the estimated four-gallon slick, held in check overnight by absorbent padding, had been cleaned up by a Coast Guard team armed with straw, rakes, shovels and containers.

Hall described the spill as a "minor leak" and said that "this sort of thing happens frequently but this is the first time it has happened here."

DNR water quality specialist Cathy Morse said, "It is anybody's guess where it (the spill) came from. It may not have come from Canton. It would take a lot of time and manpower to go through water and sewer department plans to see where the drain runs."

MORSE SAID a "midnight dumper" could be one possible source of the spill.

"They go to a manhole in an out-of-the-way place and dump industrial waste because they don't want to pay to have it taken care of properly. The treatment for proper disposal costs so it is cheaper to dump," he said.

Hall said the oily substance could also have been either accidentally or deliberately dumped by one of the companies which connects into the system.

Both the Coast Guard and the DNR entered the investigation Monday afternoon after the Canton Fire Department called the Lansing state pollution emergency hot line. Hall said it is a federal offense to dump waste into navigable waters.

Canton Township Fire Inspector Arthur Winkel spotted the spill after a Tamarack Green apartment resident complained of an oily smell coming from the tributary.

Cops continue probe in murder of woman

The Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office said this week that Plymouth resident Janet Reynolds died from multiple injuries to the head from a blunt instrument, multiple stab wounds and strangulation.

Miss Reynolds' naked body was found in a Plymouth Township field last Friday following a police air search. Plymouth police continue their investigation into the 27-year-old woman's disappearance and subsequent death.

Miss Reynolds was last seen leaving Plaza Bowling Lanes, 42001 E. Ann Arbor Road, on the evening of Dec. 3. Her body was found about a half-mile away on the north side of Joy Road, east of Lilley Road the following day.

Two cars, one belonging to Miss Reynolds, have been taken to the State Police Crime Lab, according to Police Chief Carl Berry.

Items in Reynolds' car lead police to believe there was "more than met the eye" when they first responded to the missing person report.

Berry told the Plymouth City Commission Monday night his department still was questioning persons who saw Miss Reynolds leave the bowling alley.

As of Tuesday afternoon Berry said there hadn't been any arrests made in connection with the murder.

Miss Reynolds was a security guard at the Burroughs Corp. Plymouth Plant on Plymouth Road. She was believed to have been bowling with a league Thursday night, according to Plaza Lanes owner Frank Moceri.

Ford quits as chairman of port board

Henry Ford II has resigned as chairman of the Detroit-Wayne County Port Authority.

Chairman Samuel A. Turner said the city and county "have lost a person of his calibre with the capacity to spark the hoped-for expansion of this area as a primary port of call."

"As you may have noted," Ford's letter said, "I have accepted the chairmanship of Detroit Renaissance. I really do not have the time to chair both the Port Authority and Detroit Renaissance.

"We have a very good organization in place headed by Joseph Auwers, the executive director," said Ford.

Bernard Hanus, administrative director for the Wayne County board, said it was the first time he had received a letter of resignation from London, England, . . ."and it only cost 22 cents in postage."

Songs, lights and a jolly 'ho-ho-ho'

A jolly old time was had by all as Canton went aglow Monday.

The festive occasion was the official tree-lighting ceremony and party put on by the township officials and employees.

There were songs, refreshments and more songs.

SUPERVISOR James Poole turned the switch to illuminate the tree outside Township Hall. Residents were invited to bring an ornament to hang on the tree.

"We had a big response," said Tina Pratto, secretary to Poole. "We had lots and lots of residents. We had 160 children."

Santa wowed the kids when he arrived in a horse and carriage provided by residents Glen Hornbeck and Lonnie Sisco. Accompanying Santa were Sandy "Christmas Carol" Belanger, a police department employee, and recreation department worker Louise Hopping as an elf.

CHILDREN were treated to a short ride in the horse and carriage and enjoyed cookies baked by township employees. There were several rounds of caroling.

Enrollments boost school revenue in W-W

By Sandra Armbruster
editor

Wayne-Westland school board members approved changes in this year's operating budget adding more than $1 million in revenue and expenditures to the ledger.

The change increases the district's budget to $59.6 million in revenue versus about $59 million in expenditures.

School board members approved the changes during a meeting Monday.

While changes are made periodically during every school year, the larger-than-expected enrollment means that the district is receiving more state aid than it originally anticipated, said deputy superintendent Dennis O'Neill.

By state law, the district is required to approve a balanced budget by June 30, said John Baracy, assistant superintendent for business. The only thing wrong with that is that date comes before state aid formulas, student and staff numbers and federal aid is known.

Wayne-Westland schools
The district serves southeast Canton.

MOST OF THE additional revenue is coming from state aid. Total increase in that category is nearly $673,000. The district has 280 students more than anticipated in its kindergarten-through-12th-grade program, O'Neill said.

Another $458,500 was received in local revenue from investment income, not property taxes, Baracy said.

Also increasing was $90,000 in federal aid for an entitlement program, but Baracy added that the new budget also reflects President Ronald Reagan's budget cuts, including lunch and milk programs, and an executive order cut of $205,000 from the governor.

The district's ended the fiscal year with more than $1 million, according to its recently completed audit. Of that figure, however, nearly $436,000 was stocks, supplies and pre-paid expenses.

The $1 million, which Baracy said is a less than two percent of the total budget, is less than what he'd like to see.

"I'd like to see it a little higher, especially with what's been happening in other school districts," he said.

Other changes in budgeted expenditures include those for salaries, instructional services, maintainance, data processing staffing and instructional typewriters for both high schools.

THE BOARD also approved matching PTA and PTO contributions, up to a maximum of $1,000, at Hoover, Walker, Schweitzer and Stottlemyer elementary schools. The district's original budget set aside $22,000 to match gifts from the school groups.

That practice was reinstituted this year, after having been dropped for a number of years when the district was financially strapped.

The board also is expected to approve another request for matching funds from P.D. Graham Elementary School.

Despite all the good news, district officials are concerned about mortgage escrow practices that may force the city to abandon its trial collection of taxes twice yearly, Baracy said.

The early collection of school taxes saved the Wayne-Westland district $500,000 this year, Baracy said.

BARACY SAID he and O'Neill had met with city officials after residents complained that one mortgage company, Manufacturer's Hanover, said escrow accounts were sometimes more than $1,000 short with the dual collection of taxes.

Manufacturer's Hanover has consistently denied any irregularity in its escrow accounting system, but has declined repeated requests by both city council and the Observer to meet to discuss the issue.

Residents also had complained about not receiving adequate notice of the change.

"I don't understand the method they (Hanover) use," said Baracy. "We've checked with other mortgage companies like Standard Federal and First Federal. They've got simple escrow programs.

"As long as one-twelfth of the taxes is set aside, it doesn't matter when the taxes are collected — in August or December.

"The only reason they would change the escrow account is if assessments went up."

Manufacturer's Hanover is inconsistent with other companies, Baracy said.

"Id' like to see them explain their system to the people," he said. "They're the one company that hasn't made themselves accessible to the people."

The issue is important to the district, Baracy said, because the early tax collection means the district doesn't have to borrow as much money to meet operating expenses.

"Our borrowing costs were horrendous this year," Baracy said. "Lending institutions also are becoming very selective. It was difficult to secure bids (for the loans) this year."

Hartwig trial postponed

The trial of Ronald J. Hartwig has been postponed until the middle of January, according to the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

The delay in the trial was granted to the defense by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Roman Gribbs, said John Thompson, an assistant prosecutor.

Hartwig was expected to stand trial on Dec. 15 before Wayne Circuit Court Judge Henry J. Szymanski. Thompson wasn't sure which judge will now hear the case.

A recently completed forensic examination found Hartwig competent to stand trial for the Aug. 23 beating death of Stacey Ann Hurrelbrink. The exam was requested by Hartwig's attorney, Patrick Devine.

Hartwig was arrested by Plymouth police and charged with first-degree murder. He pleaded innocent to the charges at his arraignment.

Insurance line is toll-free

Each month, 400-500 Michigan residents call the Insurance Information to ask questions or request help in solving insurance problems.

Sponsored by Michgian Assoication of Insurance Companies, the toll-free service was established to give consumers quick access to information on insurance. Callers also get assistance when they have difficulty with their own insurance company.

The toll-free number is 1-800-292-0712. The line is open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Consumers most often call the hotline about car insurance. There is still a great deal of confusion about no-fault coverage and the new "essential insurance" law. Inquires about homeowners insurance, claim settlements and premium costs also rank high on the list.

If hotline personnel can't provide information or solve a problem on the spot, they get in touch with the consumer's insurance company. They have contacts with people in the main office of all insurance companies and can expedite handling of consumer inquiries. If there is a disagreement, the hotline will ask the company to review and reconsider the matter.

Legislators brace for workers comp showdown

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Next week Michigan will see a showdown in the legislative battle over workers compensation reform. For organized labor, it could be a test of retirees vs. the working rank and file.

Last week the Senate and House passed vastly different kinds of reforms. What happens next was outlined by Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, to a chamber of commerce breakfast Monday:

"We (senators) have sent them (representatives) our bills. They've sent us theirs.

"We may work on theirs or we may ignore them. They may work on ours or they may ignore them."

"THERE'LL BE no action this week," said Senate Majority Leader William Faust, D-Westland. "Next week there'll be a conference."

Faust will pick a group of senators, probably three, to represent the upper house on the conference committee. Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, will pick an equal number of representatives. The idea is to reconcile their differences and reach a compromise.

"It will take two persons from each house to sign (approve) the conference report," said Faust. "It would get hung up in conference. But I think public pressure will make us reach a conclusion."

In the wings, Gov. William G. Milliken keeps repeating that Michigan's high workers compensation costs are the most serious, single impediment to improving the economic climate and attracting new industry.

HERE IS HOW the packages differ:

- In the House, Democrats on a party-line vote passed a package of bills whose thrust was to require insurers to lower premiums by 20 percent. Geake branded the package "absolutely inadequate."
- In the Senate, a bipartisan group put together 26 to 28 votes to pass its own package in a session which lasted until 4:45 a.m. Saturday.

The Senate version is more pleasing to business and to Milliken because it would return Michigan to the "lost wage replacement" theory of workers compensation rather than allowing retirees to collect comp benefits on top of pensions.

Mayor raps guardians story

At Monday's City Commission meeting, Mayor Bud Martin issued a rebuttal to charges of corruption in city government leveled by the leader of a self-proclaimed Detroit crime-fighting group.

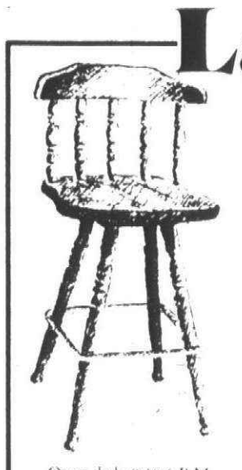

Martin referred to a Plymouth Observer story in which Keith Harvey of the Detroit Alliance of Guardian Angels announced he was forming a Plymouth chapter. Harvey said he was asked to come to Plymouth by an unnamed individual to fight crime and corruption in the city. The original story did not refer specifically to any corruption in city government.

Martin first stressed that no city official, appointed or elected, or any city employee has requested assistance from the outside.

The mayor also said there is no corruption at any level in any area of the city's government.

"I believe the story was an effort to create news, not report news," Martin said. "It was a disservice to our city and to our citizens and, in my opinion, represented poor judgment in journalism."

Reapportionment: County GOP out looking for allies

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Republicans are seeking black allies in an attempt to win at least a few seats on the reapportioned Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

"We wanted a chance at three districts," said Lyn Bankes, a Livonia Republican activist. "Killeen (County Clerk James Killeen) didn't even give us a chance."

"District 1 is ludicrous," said Arthur Carter, a black Democratic county commissioner from Detroit. "They've lumped in the Grosse Pointes with my old east side district. There's no community of interest there."

THE SHOWDOWN will come at 2 p.m. Monday in Conference Room A on the seventh floor of the City-County Building in Detroit.

The forum will be the five-member apportionment commission presided over by County Clerk James Killeen, whose staff drew up the reapportionment report that raised Mrs. Bankes' and Carter's hackles.

Other members of the apportionment commission are Prosecutor William Cahalan, Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz, Democratic spokesman Hubert Holly (who is offering his own redistricting plan) and Republican spokeswoman Patricia Ganzberger.

The lineup, provided by state law, finds Democrats with a 4-1 advantage. It also finds whites with a 4-1 advantage in a county that is one-third black.

The reapportionment job is complicated by two political facts of life: There has been a massive population loss in Detroit and only small losees in the suburbs; and the home-rule charter adopted by Wayne County voters Nov. 3 reduces the county board size from 27 members to 15.

On the present 27-member board, Republicans have three seats. On the 15-member board after next year, the GOP, by Mrs. Bankes' calculations, could wind up with zero.

THE REPUBLICAN complaint can be understood best by looking at the present 19th District, which includes most of Livonia, the city of Northville and most of Northville Township.

In the last seven elections, it has elected Republicans six times, including five-term incumbent Mary Dumas.

The staff reapportionment plant cuts off the Northville community and lumps it into a western district now represented by R. William Joyner, D-Plymouth. Joyner's district has gone Democratic in six of the last seven elections.

Livonia, which favored Republican candidates for most partisan offices during the '70s, would be split into two districts with areas that are heavily Democratic.

Northern Livonia would be lumped with Redford Township and a half-dozen square miles of northwest Detroit. Southern Livonia would be lumped with most of Westland and all of Wayne.

In each case, the Livonia portion is so small that Republicans could be easily outvoted, according to Bankes and Dumas.

ON THE EAST side, the new 1st District draws similar complaints.

Commissioner Ervin Steiner Jr., R-Grosse Pointe, complained to the apportionment commission this week, "You've moved me in and down." He meant his district's new boundaries, instead of being expanded westward to include a suburb like Harper Woods, were moved southward to pick up the southeast corner of Detroit.

The new 1st District would have 52,000 Grosse Pointers and 105,000 Detroiters.

Commissioner Carter had the same complaint and felt the 1st District should have been squared off to include suburban Harper Woods.

Republicans urged the apportionment commission to look at Democrat Holly's plan.

THE CLERK'S staff plan had its defenders.

Robert Ficano, Killeen's deputy and 2nd District-Wayne Democratic chairman, said the Holly plan which Republicans liked actually gave Detroit nine of the 15 county commissioner seats while the staff plan awarded Detroit eight. By sheer population, Ficano said, Detroit is entitled to 7.71 seats.

"The staff plan comes closer to giving the suburbs their proportionate representation than the Holly plan which the Republicans are endorsing," he said.

The staff plan was drawn up by Larry Verbiest and Ed Carey Jr., whom Killeen described as "career civil servants."

They worked on the draft for the better part of a month, in the midst of other duties, said Ficano, adding:

"We put them in a room and said, 'Go to it.' There is no partisan political advantage to this plan."

VERBIEST'S report declared the draft plan met all statutory requirements.

Among them are that the districts be as nearly equal in population as possible (156,000 persons average with a 1.17-percent variance), be contiguous, be as nearly square as practicable and follow census tract and precincts as much as possible.

"No townships were divided, and only four cities — Detroit, of necessity; Dearborn, Livonia and River Rouge — were divided minimally to meet population standards," he said.

"Districts were drawn objectively in accordance with the preceeding guidelines with no intention to effect partisan political advantage."

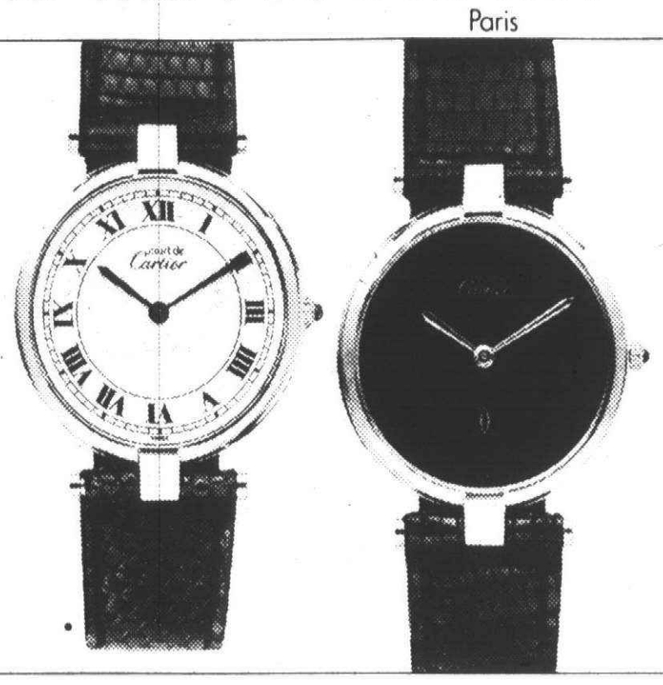

When that portion of the report was read aloud at Tuesday's meeeting, it drew an audible, bipartisan round of snickers.

Verbiest said that based on population, blacks are entitled to 5.3 seats and that the plan provides six districts which are predominantly black.

Working: changes and choices

Higher productivity through 'worker involvement'

This is the 11th of 15 articles exploring working. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, an extension program of the University of California, San Diego, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities.© 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.

Edward E. Lawler III (left) is professor of organizational behavior and founder and director of the Center for Effective Organizations at the University of Southern California. He is also professor of psychology and program director in the institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan. J. Richard Hackman (right) professor of organization and management and of psychology at Yale University. A social psychologist, he has been a frequent consultant on quality-of-work-life issues.

Worker productivity has been a subject of increasing national concern in recent years.

This concern was heightened by the decline in 1980 of the real output of goods and services and by stagnant national productivity figures. If the United States is to compete successfully in the world market, American workers must become more productive in their work.

A decade ago, the United States was surpassed by Germany as the world's leading exporter of manufactured goods.

Coinciding with reports of widespread alienation and dissatisfaction among wokers in America, and with stories about highly motivated and productive workers in Japan and Sweden, this relative decline in world trade touched off a heated debate about the quality of work life in the United states.

ON ONE HAND, some observers argued that the quality of life at work in America was in a sorry state and rapidly getting worse.

Organizations, they said, should do whatever they could to ceate more meaningful and more satisfying work experiences.

Jobs should be made safer and cleaner and should provide employees with more dignity and greater opportunities for involvement and personal growth.

ON THE OTHER hand were commentators who were frankly skeptical about the need for such changes.

They pointed out that more than 80 percent of the U.S. work force reported they were basically satisfied with their jobs, and there were few signs of a decline in that figure.

The best way to improve productivity, they argued, would be to give workers enough job security that they would be willing to accept the introduction of automation needed to meet foreign competition.

IN THE 1980s, we may have moved beyond this controversy.

There is now widespread agreement that ways to improve both the quality of employee work life and corporate productivity must be found if we are to have the kind of humane and efficient society that most of us want.

It now seems indisputable that there are many people who are underchallenged and underutilized by their work, who are neither giving as much to their work nor getting as much from it as they could.

There also is increasing dismay with how U.S. businesses are faring in the international market for goods and services, and with the quality of the products and services that are generated by both public and private organizations in this country.

HOW MIGHT organizations be changed to improve their effectiveness and simultaneously to provide workers with more meaningful and more challenging jobs.?

One promising idea that has been tried for over a decade in a number of U.S. and European workplaces is creating what we will call "high involvement" organizations.

This approach assumes that people have the right to be involved in company desicions that affect them; that people will prosper when they are involved in their work and their organizations; and that organizational effectiveness will improve when people contribute ideas as well as effort to the organizations in which they work.

The "high involvement" approach would seem to fit well with the rising level of education of the work force in our society and with the greater interest employees have these days in participations in self-development at work.

Jobs in many organizations demand more talent and more self-management from employees than ever before, and there are incresing numbers of U.S. workers who are both able and eager to meet those challenges.

HIGH INVOLVEMENT work organizations can take many forms, but most of them have the following features:

1. Challenging work that requires considerable employees self-management.

In the past, jobs — and the procedures to be used in performing them — were specified as completely as possible by management. Employees were trained to do the work in exactly the "right " way, and plenty of supervisors were on hand to make sure that they did.

There was little room for decision-making, intitiative or judgment by jobholders. Consequently, employees often felt little responsiblility for how the work turned out.

In high involvement work organizations, jobs are designed to provide a great deal of "room" for judgment and decision-making, to stretch and exercise employee knowledge and expertise, and to provide immediate, first-hand data about how well the work has been done.

Supervisors and managers serve as advisors and helpers, rather than as directive task-masters.

2. The use of teams, rather than individuals, to accomplish work.

Traditionally, work has been designed to be done by individual employees who operate more or less on their own, under the watchful eye of a supervisor.

Today many organizations are experimenting with the use of small, self-managing teams of employees to do work. In one organization, for example, groups of workers have responsibility for the entire assembly of large, complex farm machinery called grain driers — as well as for devising better ways of making these machines and even for keeping in touch with farmers about how the driers are operating and how they might be improved.

Self-managing work groups such as this can provide the chance for team members both to work together on a task they care about and to produce more effective machines mroe efficiently.

3. Participative profit-sharing plans.

In traditional organizations, rank-and-file employees usually are paid by the hour, sometimes with extra financial incentives based on the amount of work they produce. Employees in high involvement work organizations are more likely to be on salary (like managers), or to have their pay rate based on the number of work skills they have mastered.

Departmental or organization-wide bonuses often are offered, based on overall operating results. Dana Corp., for example, has installed bonus plans that reward all employees based on plant producitivity.

When productivity improves in such organizations, the employees get two kinds of rewards: personal satisfaction from contributing to something they have come to care about, and financial rewards when their efforts have helped the organization become more effective and profitable.

SPECIFIC FEATURES of high involvement work organizations vary from industry to industry and from firm to firm.

There is no single model that can be "planted" in a given organization and guaranteed to produce positive results.

Experience has shown, however, that it is much easier to create a high involvement work organization when a new plant is built than it is to convert a traditional plant.

When a new organization is created, jobs can be structured for high challenge and self-management from the beginning, employees can be recruited who are interested in assuming substantial responsibility for their work, and organizational practices (such as bonus pay plans and quality control systems) can be structured to encourage and reinforce high employee involvement.

TRW, Procter and Gamble, and Cummins Engine are among the many companies that have successfully created new high involvement plants.

ALTHOUGH IT is more difficult for existing traditional firms to improve producitivity and the quality of work life using high involvement ideas, there are numerous cases in which significant progress has been made.

The views expressed in Courses by Newspaper are those of the authors. Next Week: William Foote Whyte, professor emeritus at Cornell University, and Joseph Raphael Blasi of Harvard University consider employee ownership as an alternative to government ownership or investor ownership.

Police reserve class to hear Patterson

L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County prosecutor, will be keynote speaker at graduation ceremonies for police reserve officers at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 21 at Schoolcraft College.

The Republican gubernatorial hopeful will address a class of 59 reservists who have completed a 14-week training program.

The program, open to family and friends, will be held in the Waterman Campus Center at the north end of the campus on Haggerty Road south of Seven Mile, Livonia.

This is the ninth annual graduation for a police reserve class. The program is coordinated by Cpl. Lawrence Furtak of the Dearborn police department.

In his third term as Oakland prosecutor, Patterson, 42, has cultivated a reputation as a hard-line law-and-order man. He led a successful petition drive to eliminate "good-time" reductions of prison sentences. He is currently seeking petition signatures to place a death penalty amendment to the state constitution on the ballot.

Among his publications are a 140-page report on welfare abuses, a handbook on school administrators' rights and in 1981 "A Prosecutor's Advisory on Child Molesting."

Organized labor will battle over workers comp

THE RESISTANCE to workers comp reform comes from leaders of the United Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO. Organized labor is stronger in the House, hence the difference in what the two houses produced last week.

"There's an ideological split between labor leaders and the rank and file," said Geake. "The leaders' philosophy is 'let's get everything we can; the employers are rich; they rip the workers for everything they can.'

"The rank and file are more sympathetic to reform. The see themselves and their neighbors losing jobs. For example, Jim DeSana, the senator from Wyandotte, has seen 41 major factories leave the downriver area."

DeSana, a Democrat, was sponsor of nine of the 12 bills in the Senate package.

ANOTHER legislative source, who asked to be off the record, gave a further explanation:

In UAW politics today, retirees are the single most potent force. Retirees continue to vote for union leaders.

After retirement, retirees claim workers comp benefits for "accumulated trauma." Rather than fight, employers make lump-sum settlements, called "redemptions," for $3,000 to $15,000. The retirees look upon these claims as an earned benefit.

Union leaders who give up these benefits in the legislative battle stand to lose retirees' votes in the next election, said the source.

Geake said senators last week circulated copies of a letter from a union to recent retirees soliciting workers comp claims and providing an attorney's telephone number. In return, the union leadership expected a cut from a successful claim, Geake said.

OTHER ABUSES need to be addressed, local lawmakers said.

Geake said "it's too easy to get on (workers comp). A person can claim just about any disability, physical or mental, and collect. Workers think they've paid into it and it's a benefit. Nothing could be further from the truth."

The Republican senator also cited court decisions and referees' decisions making it easy to collect workers comp benefits.

Democrat Faust added, "Generally we felt the governor's package did not go far enough. There are abuses by workers. We admit it.

"But there are also abuses by the medical fraternity about treatment costs and abuses by attorneys who use unscrupulous practices in soliciting business. Those abuses should be addressed, too.

REP. JACK Kirksey, R-Livonia, pointed to another bone of contention:

"We (Republicans) have supported a plan whereby individuals would no longer be eligible for benefits after three years of receiving them as long as they are sufficiently recovered to be able to earn 80 percent or more of their previous wages.

"Democrats on the House labor committee, however, don't want those people removed from the system unless they are actually offered a job paying those wages. It doesn't matter whether or not the individual is completely recovered from the injury and able to do work — he or she would continue receiving benefits until a job offer came along."

FAUST VOTED for the reform package last week, admitting he may have set a record by alienating the governor, labor leaders and newspaper editorial writers in one week.

The package was supported by 18 to 19 of the Senate's 24 Democrats and eight to nine of the 14 Republicans, he said.

Bail bonds by credit card? One way to uncrowd jail

By Suzie Rollins Singer
staff writer

Inmates at the Oakland County Jail may soon be able to post bond using their Mastercharge or Visa credit cards.

Aiming to reduce jail overcrowding, a 19-member criminal justice subcommittee asked the Michigan Legislature to consider use of charge cards.

"We've found that quite a few people who were arrested on Saturday after the banks closed had to spend the rest of the weekend in jail because they didn't have the cash to post bond," said William Spinelli, deputy county executive and subcommittee member.

"We're working on getting credit card bonding approved for people picked up on misdemeanor charges."

CREDIT CARD bonding is just one method of reducing the county jail's population population to 450, Spinelli said.

According to the report, the jail has been overcrowded almost since it opened in 1973. Inmate population has increased from 400 in 1973 to 647 last year.

From the first of 1980 to October 1981, a total of 14,447 inmates have been in jail on 24,555 charges. About 87 percent were male and 13 percent were female.

Nearly 40 new persons are booked daily.

Prisoners brought suit in U.S. District Court last year complaining about overcrowding and treatment. Defendants were Sheriff Johannes Spreen, as jail administrator, and the County Board of Commissioners, as the budget-making authority.

Lawyers for the county and prisoners arrived at a consent judgment outlining improvements to be made. Commissioners signed the agreement Dec. 3. The subcommittee includes members of the County Board of Commissioners public services committee and an array of county and law enforcement officials.

IN ORDER to trim the population:

- Local police officers have been told to issue appearance tickets to misdemeanor offenders instead of arresting them and hauling them to jail.
- Friend of the Court procedures have been expedited.
- Convicted inmates are being shipped to state institutions twice a week rather than once a week.
- Mental patients are being screened and sent to state hospitals more quickly rather than biding time in the county jail, Spinelli noted.

James Stewart, public safety director in Huntington Woods, added, "The subcommittee effort has been a viable one. It's pointed out some problems, and we've advocated some changes, particularly in record keeping."

THE SUBCOMMITTEE drafted a 160-page study report of the jail and its inmates to aid in reducing the jail population to a maximum of 450.

Under the judgment, the county has until early March to implement administrative changes and six months to reduce the jail population. It addition, jailers must reduce the numbers of inmates allowed in the recieving tank from 62 to 51 per day.

Thirty-three staff persons were added to the jail, and a new coordinator will be hired in January to oversee operations in attempts to curtail overcrowding, Spinelli said.

The 1982 Sheriff's Department budget of $11 million includes $750,000 for the 33 additional salaries and about $5,000 for a jail legal library and toileties for indigent inmates.

In addition, the consent agreement calls for constructing a covered exercise yard for inmates. It will cost between $300,000 and $400,000, Spinelli said.

"We've reserved $1 million in the 1981 capital budget for that type of expenditure," he added.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE hopes that, if the county spends money on additional jail personnel and cuts down paper work to expedite releases, it won't have to construct a new building.

"We're trying very hard to utilize what we have and maximize alternatives so we don't have to go to brick and mortar," Spinelli said.

"We're going to to make a good faith effort, but it's a large undertaking that takes the cooperation of the entire criminal justice system. And there's no way we can predict if crime will increase."

If it doesn't work, Spinelli said, the subcommittee will return to U.S. District Judge Patricia J. Boyle and ask her to reopen the consent decree and consider other alternatives.

ONE SUBCOMMITTEE member, Capt. Carl Matheny of the Sheriff's Department, said he has mixed emotions about the jail study and whether its recommendations can work.

"Each segment of the criminal justice system has delay problems, and some people just have to go to jail. While the report helped identify all the problems, we still may need more beds," Matheny said.

Food mall gets extra parking

Four Seasons Square now owns 57 additional parking spaces and has 20 years to pay for them.

The Plymouth City Commisson Monday night established a special assessment district to finance the acquisition cost and improvement expenses to create the 57 added parking spaces for the new food mall under construction at 555 Forest.

The cost of $160,969 plus 10.75 percent interest will be paid by developers Rodney Sabourin and Brace Case in monthly payments of about $1,630.

City Manager Henry Graper said the special assessment will serve as a lein against the parking lot at the northwest corner of Wing and Forest until the assessment is paid.

If ownership of the property at 555 Forest changes, Graper added, the new owners still will be responsible for the city's cost.

Mayor Bud Martin said that creating the special assessment district of only the food mall and parking lot was another method of providing more parking in downtown Plymouth without any added cost to taxpayers.

Graper added that the project seems to be a success as 11 tenants have signed up for food booth space. There are 16 leases available.

IN OTHER ACTION the city commission authorized the purchase of a portable radar unit for $1,095 for use by police patrol cars.

Graper noted the widening of Sheldon may result initially in cars trying to drive faster and he wants the city's police cars ready to ticket speeders as a deterrent.

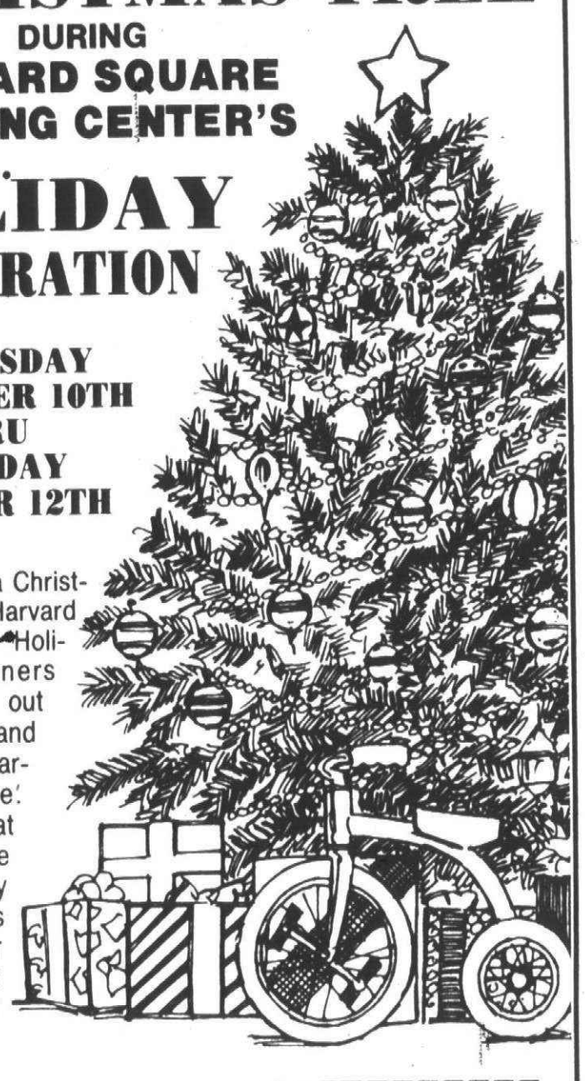

Presently the city has one radar unit which is mounted on a vehicle. The new equipment can easily be moved from car to car as it only has to be plugged into a cigarette lighter to be used, said Police Chief Carl Berry.

The commission also approved the sale of a 1974 pickup truck to the highest bidder, Captain Paul Saunders of the fire department, for $700. The only other bid was $125.

At the beginning of the meeting Mayor Martin read a proclamation to honor Margaret Wilson for the 40 years of service the Penn Theater has given to Plymouth. The Penn opened on Pearl Harbor Day in 1941 and five years later was acquired by Ms. Wilson.

Car tires slashed in city

There was another rash of car vandalism in Plymouth last weekend, police report.

More than 25 car owners reported that their vehicle's tires had been slashed. During the Thanksgiving weekend more than 30 car windows had been shattered.

Most of those reporting slashed tires this weekend said the vandalism occured sometime late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

The police reports indicate the tires possibly were cut with an ice pick.

On Monday morning, Police Chief Carl Berry said the police department, currently busy with a homicide investigation, would look into the slashings later in the week.

Chuck VanVleck, coordinator of the Plymouth Area Citizen's Teams (PACT), said his group wasn't aware of the slashings. PACT is a volunteer group which patrols the streets on weekends until 1 a.m.

"The weekend before we stayed out until 1:30 or 2 a.m. because of the windshields being broken. I didn't know about the tire slashings, otherwise we probably would have stayed on later," said VanVleck.

VanVleck said the slashings probably occured later than his group patrols.

Ballenger lauds budget veto

U.S. Senate hopeful William S. Ballenger, in area speeches, called President Reagan's budget resolution veto last week exhilarating.

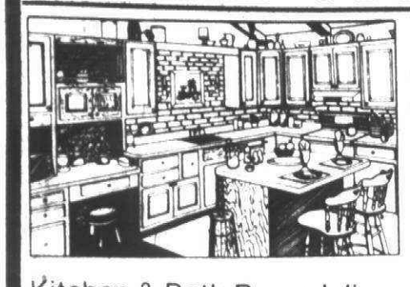

The candidate for the Republican nomination said it demonstrated that "the threat of shutting down a big chunk of Washington doesn't bring the world to an end."

Speaking to members of the Rochester Elks, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, Ballenger, of Lansing, contended it was "about time a president applied show treatment to a Congress-bureaucrat-lobbyist complex grown increasingly contemptuous of the broad public interest and popular will.

"The federal budget didn't go out of control just this month. The breakdown in congressional responsibility began as long ago as 1976, and 1981 marked the final collapse of the appropriations process and the onset of government by continuing resolution.

"A publicly owned company running its affairs in this slipshod way would deserve to be hauled before the Securities and Exchange Commission," he added. A former state senator and director of licensing and regulation, Ballenger seeks the GOP bid to unseat Democrat Sen. Donald Riegle.

Ross presents golf suggestions

To the editor:

Hopefully all the construction and delays are past and the Plymouth Township Golf Course can proceed under normal conditions.

As an interested taxpayer of Plymouth Township, I would like to recap a few items regarding the lease agreement, that was printed in the Observer on Dec. 3, 1981.

The new lease arrangements amount to the following: The lessee should generate a minimum of $5 million with a possible maximum of $7 million which would include all gross revenue, for a period of the next 12 years. I base this on my current operation. This figure would be comparable with other local golf courses.

Let me quote from the article: "I think there should be a better accountability of the receipts, more than just the reports he gives the township, said Fidge.

"Fidge suggested a monthly account of the gross receipts. Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said that would involve changing the original agreement."

In reviewing the original contract, revenue reporting procedures are outlined in paragraph 2, page 1, as follows:

Receipts of income reported monthly plus a financial report withing 60 days of year end.

Presently the lessee is in violation of this item for 1980. Year 1981 is not due until Jan. 1, 1982.

My question is why haven't Breen, Esther Hulsing or board members enforced this part of the lease?

Suggestions that could be incorporated in the new lease agreement, that shouldn't cause any hardship to the lessee:

1. Standard year end report, better know as Profit and Loss Statement.

2. Include copy of the Sales Tax Reports.

3. Payroll accounting, showing number of employees and total tax revenue paid on same.

4. Copy of Schedule C — Income Tax Report filed with U.S. Government of business receipts only.

All the above are standard business procedures and definitely should be agreed upon by lessee and lessor.

Regarding: Golf Cart Options

Breen's first option: "Purchase 40 carts at a cost of about $104,000 and split revenues with lessee."

Questions:

1. Who would maintain and repair carts?

2. Who would pay for labor, plus parts? Example — electric carts normally require battery replacement every three years, at a cost of about $12,000 (that is at present day costs) for 40 carts.

3. Who would build storage facility to protect them and to avoid the possibility of vandalism? Said facility would require about 2,000 square feet costing in the vicinity of $35,000 to $40,000.

4. Who would pay electrical costs to wire said building, about $8,000 to $10,000?

5. Why can't lessee and township purchase carts jointly, for a better share of revenues, as your neighbor Canton Township did? Parts and energy costs are on a 50-50 deal, with lessee paying all labor costs.

Breen's second option: "Let lessee buy the cars and thus collect all the revenues they generate." (With no share for the township)

Breen's third option: "Have lessee pay the township a certain amount of dollars while collecting full revenues from the carts." "He estimated such a payment at $50,000." (This amounts to $4,200 or less per year)

Fine! But instead of $50,000 for the right to have the carts on the course, why not $150,000 which would be $12,500 per year. The cart rental for the lessee should generate in excess of $600,000 minimum to possibly $750,000 maximum, for 12 years. This would be based on comparable revenues at local gold courses.

May I suggest an alternate plan:

Why not lease golf carts for a three or four year plan, until the course revenues are sufficient to purchase new carts, without raiding the general fund again. Normal leasing arrangements provide maintenance, by leasing company. Presently lease payments are running approximately $600 to $700 per unit. Thus the township and lessee could share profits.

Meanwhile the township will have spent about $30,000 for golf cart paths, presently being installed. I am personally afraid, after reading a previous article in which Breen requested the necessity of these paths, that we could have installed five miles (26,000 ft.) instead of 12,400 feet.

Question:

Are we going to be responsible for the additional 14,000 feet, in the near future, more than doubling the above cost, which amounts to a total of $60,000? This cost would exceed Breen's Estimated payment from lessee of $50,000.

I honestly feel that the taxpayers of the township did not receive favorable or sincere remuneration for the $1,250,000 investment made on this golf course, under the new lease arrangement.

I respectfully request that the above suggestions be taken as constructive criticism, in behalf of the interest of the Plymouth Township taxpayers.

A decade of choices for energy

The decade of the '80s will be the decade of energy choices, said an oil industry executive in a speech recently before the Rotary Club of Plymouth.

"Americans have a choice about their energy future," said R.D. Kimmel, district manager of Mobil Oil Corp., "We can stop where we are, accepting present events as inevitable; or we can go forward on the road to energy independence."

A graduate of Indiana University, Kimmel has been in petroleum marketing for the past 18 years — in the Detroit area the past two years.

Kimmel spoke here about producing more energy at home to lessen the nation's dependence upon foreign imports.

"America is an energy-rich country with vast reserves of crude oil, natural gas, coal, and uranium. There is more coal in this country than any other fossil fuel — the equivalent of a trillion barrels of oil."

He focused on having fewer government regulations, which would encourage domestic production. "While legitimate environmental problems must be solved, overzealous environmentalism results in a loss of energy — the kind that fuels an economy," he said.

BESIDES FEWER government regulations, Kimmel cited the need to open up more public lands for energy exploration.

He said the federal government is the country's third-largest landlord, with the equivalent of one-third of the United States being under Washington's jurisdiction.

"Geologists estimate these lands contain about 40 percent of America's undiscovered oil and gas, 10 percent of the demonstrated coal resources, and 80 percent of recoverable Western oil shale reserves," he said.

"We think America can have the energy it needs and, at the same time, protect the environment."

The oil industry had a record year for drilling and discoveries in 1980, Kimmel added, and in 1981 is exceeding the pace set in '80.

"But Americans could have a Mount Everest of energy by 1990, given proper incentives and a better business environment," he said.

Kimmel said it would be possible to stabilize production of oil and gas near current levels and get significant new production from synthetic fuels.

Doubling our use of coal and tripling our use of nuclear power could add the equivalent of 10 million barrels a day to our energy storehouse, he added.

"Getting on the right energy road could conceivably result in domestic energy providing 90 percent of the nation's needs in the near future. But to make it a reality all of us must move now."

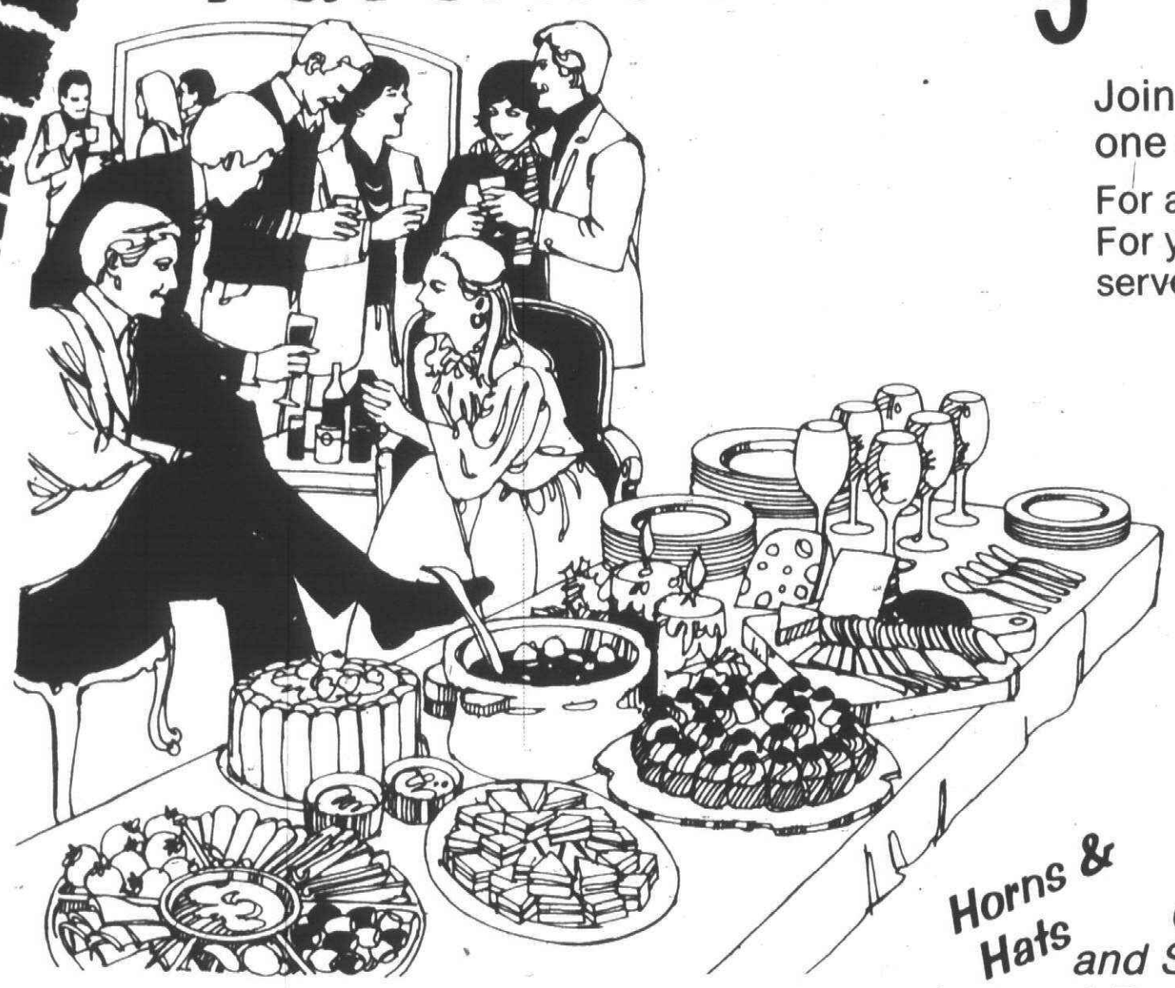

GIVING A historical perspective, Kimmel noted that two years ago it was difficult to get gasoline, there were long lines and high prices at the service stations. Now, just two years later, supply is up, and prices are going down.

The major reason for the dramatic turn-around in two years, said Kimmel, is the efforts made by individual Americans and by business/industry to conserve energy and because more energy has been produced in the United States.

Although the United States is the No. 1 consumer of energy in the world, Kimmel stressed that in the past couple of years the United States has become the No. 1 energy saver in the world.

New sign law will aid economy

To the editor:

Canton Finance Director Mike Gorman stated in your Sept. 28 issue that "Inflation and changes in the state tax are boosting taxes for Canton residents an average of 16.6 percent."

The homeowners pay 78 percent of Canton's taxes whereas commercial pays 15 percent. Our current sign ordinance, I feel, has contributed greatly to the lack of business in our township because it is so restrictive. This sign ordinance is one important reason why we, the homeowners, bear 78 percent of the tax burden.

On Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m. there will be an open hearing at Township Hall on Canton Center Road to discuss a new sign ordinance.

This new proposal has many restrictions built in. In fact, all signs will be restricted to a size less than half of those found in downtown Plymouth with the exception of signs related to the interstate highway.

This new ordinance will create a more attractive business climate in Canton and will draw the business and industry we need to spread the tax burden more equally. In these hard economic times we must be able to compete with surrounding communities for new business.

As a homeowner I urge all concerned taxpayers to attend the Dec. 14 meeting, next Monday, to support this new sign ordinance.

Loved concert by the chorus

To the editor:

My husband and I were privileged to attend the Christmas concert of the Plymouth Community Chorus at your beautiful high-school auditorium.

We are house guests of a member of the group and are now "out-of-state boosters of the P.C.C." It was a wonderful way to usher in the holidays with such an exciting and moving concert.

Michael Gross is a gem of a conductor, and this community is fortunate to have such a musical ensemble in its midst. The decorations were simply gorgeous and very professional looking.

This concert was truly a "happening" for us; brought back feelings and memories of past holidays and left us with such warm feelings and some tears. I'm sure we'll be back for their spring concert — we love Plymouth!

Make known views on signs

To the editor:

On Dec. 14, 1981, the Canton Township Planning Commission has scheduled a public hearing on numerous proposed changes to the present sign regulations.

Some of the proposed changes include:

- Increase in size and height;
- Increased use of portable signs;
- Elimination of the incentive for the businesses to use signs made of wood, brick or other natural products;
- Liberalized billboard regulations;
- And provisions for the use of tower signs along I-275.

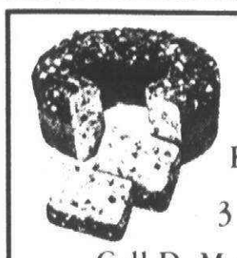

Since the information presented at the Dec. 14 public hearing will determine what will be sent to the township board for its approval, we urge the citizens of Canton to take advantage of this opportunity to express their views.

Anyone interested but unable to attend the hearing may express their opinion by writing or calling the members of the Planning Commission or by leaving a message at the Canton Township Planning Department at 397-1000.

Video games: new bogeyman for parents

"If kids are involved, it must be bad."

When I was a kid, I thought everyone over the age of 21 believed the above quotation to be true. Now that I'm an adult, I know that everyone older than 18 abides by that credo — well, almost everyone.

A few of us would like to be excluded from the ranks, thank you.

For as long as I can remember, most adults have feared things which included their children but excluded them. In the old neighborhood parents went bonkers over a teen-age coffee house. It was shut down on some zoning technicality.

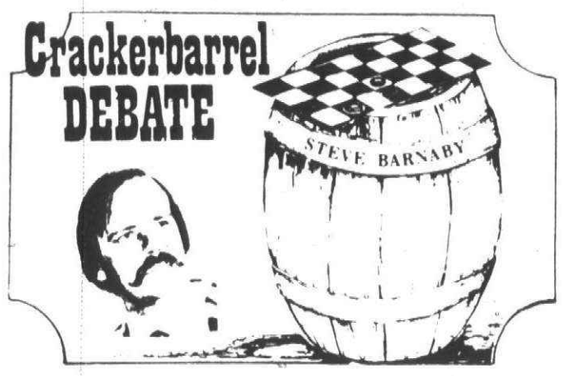

Teen-age dances, whether held in a parks and recreation gymnasium or the local church-school gym, were deemed dens of iniquity. The same went for Go-Kart race tracks and trampoline places.

Hamburger drive-in joints also got the kibosh.

Now, on the verge of the 21st century, fearful adults have one more bogeyman to combat — the video game.

They're popping up all over the place — drugstores, restaurants, department stores and roller rinks.

Some businesses are established for the sole purpose of these bleeping, blinking quarter-eating computers and the groupies which keep them nourished.

JUST AS QUICKLY, misguided adults are fighting back with city ordinances which attempt to regulate the games to extinction.

Understandably, to be any good at computer video games, one is required to have the hand/eye coordination of a 14-year-old. But that hardly is any excuse for some tweed-bedecked, middle-aged, overweight lawyer to try to outlaw the things.

What is especially disturbing is this government regulation coming from the mouths of middle American suburbanites who massed to the polls in support of a president who vowed to make government regulation something we read only about in history books.

Frankly, as time goes on, I have an easier time understanding why kids stand around parking lots smoking pot and breaking windows.

I certainly don't condone it, mind you, but I do understand it.

AT EVERY AVENUE, parents fight against activities that are youth-oriented. Unless a child cares to jump into the back of the station wagon and go to an organized activity, that youth is treading on thin ice.

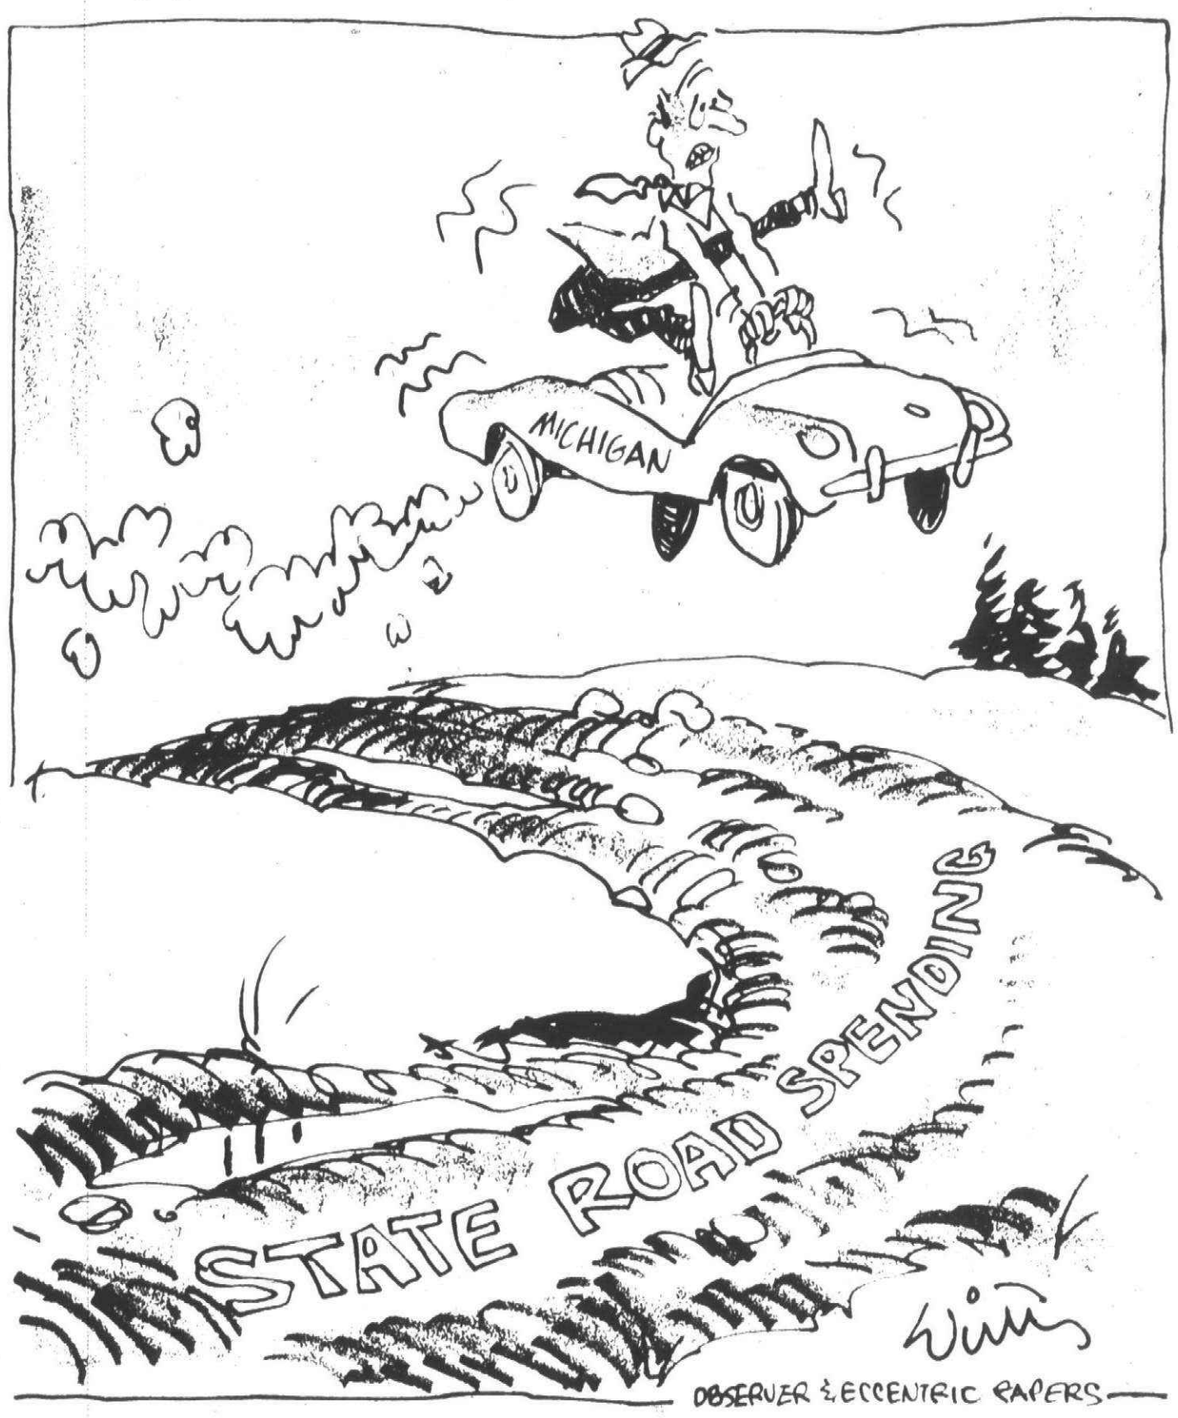

But children are just like everyone else. They need activities they can pursue on their own, with their own friends and peers. In modern parlance, we would say they need their own space.

But I'm not quite that chic. I would say that children get tired of being around grumpy parents who are afraid to try half the things they don't give a second thought to doing.

SO PARENTS and other adults, just once let us let the children alone. There is nothing inherently corrupt about video games.

Actually, they're sort of fun. Give 'em a try and see for yourself. Maybe your kid will invite you down to the video game hangout if you are good enough.

Bumpy ride ahead

W.W. Edgar

From radio to robotrics,

One recent evening, the conversation turned to the good fortune The Stroller has had in enjoying life four-score years.

As he sat back and listened a while, he recalled it had been his good fortune to see the coming of the motion picture, television, radio and Henry Ford's "horseless carriage" and the advent of the airplane to replace the railroads. And we have sent men to the moon.

These and many others have come along during his stroll along the journalistic trail, and he wondered what could happen next, if he's fortunate enough to carry on for a while.

Then it dawned on us that the computer age already is here, and the advances in the making could change the entire method of manufacturing we have known through the years.

"You haven't seen anything yet," said cousin Henry Beattie, a corporate vice president of the Reef-Baker firm in Marine City.

"I have just returned from a manufacturers show that featured the advancement of the computer age and — would you believe it? — the time is coming when men no longer will work with their hands."

We sat stunned for a moment. Then it dawned on us that the computer age already is here, and the advances in the making could change the entire method of manufacturing we have known through the years.

"I don't know whether I will live to see it," Beattie went on, "but our entire manufacturing equipment now in use could be obsolete in a few years. And the conversion to the new way of doing things could be the main advance to get us out of these depressions."

FOR A TIME his remarks seemed rather wild, but The Stroller recalled that he recently had visited the Durr Co. in Plymouth, where robot machinery is being manufactured to paint automobiles — even changing colors — without a worker in sight.

On another occasion, he was visiting a stock room in a Ford plant where trucks moved about on a small rail, loading and unloading auto parts in various bins, once again without a worker in sight. And this work was registered on the superintendent's desk as each piece fell into place.

Our auto plants today, too, have machinery which tests motors without a human being present. Motors are inspected as they pass through this contrivance, and those which fail the test are pushed aside while men stand idly by.

THE STROLLER also recalls seeing the latest assembly line in our auto plants, where welding is done by robots. And it is said the robot welders do a better job than human beings because they apply a steady pressure.

So while The Stroller has enjoyed a long life and has seen many things develop, he now wishes he can keep breathing for years to come — just to see brain replace brawn in our workshops.

But great as robot machines may be, he still feels they never can replace the human factor in any of our undertakings.

Roads, bridges decaying

O.L. Pfaffman, president of the Detroit chapter of Associated General Contractors, in remarks to the Detroit Economic Club on the 1982 outlook for the construction industry:

Next year's big loser will continue to be public works. The bulk of funding allocatioins will go to provide necessary maintenance to keep our present facilities in a functioning state of repair.

Michigan's Department of Transportation confirms our highways and bridges are in need of repairs and maintenance. Michigan Road Builders Association has recommended some legislative action which . . . would bolster sagging revenues caused by decreased auto usage and better gas mileage.

As you are well aware, all the major Detroit freeways have erosion in some form or another and are in need of attention.

This points to our growing awareness of this area's decaying "infrastructure," the interwoven system of basic public utilized facilities, pipelines, waterways, sewers, utilities, bridges, highways.

All of these areas should be receiving some consideration from both state and federal governments, particularly now with our present economic condition.

John L. Grubba, managing director of the Oakland County Road Commission, in a recent statement:

If a solution to the road funding problem is not accomplished before 1983, agencies such as the Oakland County Road Commission will not be able to meet their responsibilities . . .

Cutbacks by most governmental units are actually cutbacks of expected budget increases. Most governmental units are still getting more dollars of revenue from one year to the next, although not as much as usual.

Pfaffman

Grubba

ROAD COMMISSIONS are getting fewer dollars, and have been since 1979 . . .

The Oakland County Road Commission's revenues — not rate of growth — will be down 10.2 percent in 1982 compared to 1981.

Some might say 10.2 percent isn't much. Maybe it wouldn't be if it weren't for some things those raw figures don't show:

- The remaining 89.8 percent won't support 89.8 percent of the previous year's services. With inflation factored in, the revenue decreases translate into capabilities being about 80 percent — or 20 percent less than in 1981 . . .
- Service needs haven't changed. They've increased. People are using the roads more — and in smaller, less stable vehicles. We haven't been able to resurface pavements significantly since 1979 and are now patching patches . . .

Users are actually paying less road-support tax dollars now than in 1979 and far less than the 1979 rates expected. The road-support taxes are a flat rate per gallon (of fuel). And the numer of gallons being sold is less and less each year . . . .

Winter visit to a lake, resort town

Snowflakes bounce along the partially-frozen lake. A family usually confined to the doldrums of a winter in the city had decided to pay a visit to a remote resort area during the off-season.

In summer, the area is hustling and bustling. Boats race up and down the lake. Motorboats compete with sailboats. Water skiers try to avoid the boaters. Fishermen worry about their lines getting caught in the propellers of the motorboats. Picnickers compete for limited tables in a nearby park.

The pleasures are different during the winter months. They are subdued, but more enjoyable. Instead of a swim and a boat ride, it's now a walk in the woods or the feeling of warmth at a fireplace.

But the resort area is vastly different now. The cold wind makes the water move rapidly across the lake. The lake is deserted and without any boats. Boat docks are empty. No one is in the nearby park.

YET PERHAPS it is more beautiful than during the warm months.

The sky is brilliant as the sun goes down and gives off its red and orange hues. Bread cast upon the water still attracts ducks. Gulls continue to fly gracefully through the air.

The pleasures are different during the winter months. They are subdued, but more enjoyable. Instead of a swim and a boat ride, it's now a walk in the woods or the feeling of warmth at a fireplace. Skipping stones across the water takes the place of fishing.

Small towns near resort areas also contrast to big cities in the winter. Strangers stop on the road to say "hello." Self-service gasoline stations operate on an honor system where the driver tells the attendant how much gasoline he pumped before he pays.

The general store sells everything from groceries to a baseball glove. The post office, a converted house, has a Christmas tree in the front window and is open all day on Saturday. The only movie theater in town shows the same film for two months.

BUT MOSTLY being in a resort area during winter gives one time to catch his breath for a few moments.

It's a time to be near the trees, birds and water. In the seclusion of the cold months, it's easier to think of the important values of life — friends, home and family.

One is reminded of a speech by an environmentalist years ago: "Did you ever think that the people who go up north to 'get away from it all' are really going to where they belong?" He meant it was unnatural for man to live in congested, urban areas.

A few days away from the city in the winter are just as refreshing as during the summer.

Try it. I think you'll like it.

Did you know that Michigan has its own Niagara Falls? The picturesque Tahquamenon Falls in the Upper Peninsula between Newberry and Paradise contains the second-largest waterfall east of the Mississippi. These falls in Michigan are part of a lovely wilderness area and are sometimes referred to as "Little Niagara."

Reduce the hazard if you must shovel

fitness

Barry Franklin

Question: In the past, you have advised persons with a history of heart problems to avoid shoveling snow. Well, I don't have heart problems, but I'm not as young as I used to be. If I must do some shoveling, can I reduce the risk?

Yes. Shoveling snow can be deadly, aside from the simple hazards of frostbite and lower back strains.

It is no coincidence that there is an association between snow-shoveling and heart attack or sudden death. Shoveling is extremely strenuous, requiring seven to nine times the resting energy requirement for loads of 12 to 14 pounds. Such effort may require maximal or supreme efforts.

THE STRAIN of shoveling snow is further aggravated by other factors — the reduced mechanical efficiency associated with upper extremity efforts, superimposed isometric (static) exercise, breath holding, inhalation of cold air and exposure to cold air.

Singly or together, these factors create a disproportionate heart rate and blood pressure. They drastically increase the demands of the heart for blood and oxygen.

In contrast to isotonic (rhythmic) exercise, isometric (non-rhythmic) straining — often in combination with breath-holding — increases resistance to blood flow and restricts the amount of blood returned to the heart.

Finally, breathing cold air may set off a reflex spasm or temporary narrowing of the heart's own blood vessels (coronary arteries).

When coronary circulation is already narrowed, these manifestations may lead to ischemia (lack of oxygen to the heart muscle), perhaps with chest pain and/or irregular and possibly dangerous heart rhythm disturbances.

HERE ARE SEVERAL general and specific recommendations:

1. Elderly persons, those with a history of heart disease and those with a high risk of heart disease simply should not shovel snow. Get someone to do it for you.

2. The older you are — particularly over age 40 — the more you need to pace yourself. Adopt an interval or work-rest approach.

3. Warm up by beginning to exercise gradually. Sudden strenuous exertion may result in excessive strain on the heart. It may be desirable to warm up indoors in some instances.

4. Lift small loads more often, rather than large loads.

5. Use a short shovel with a small scoop.

6. Wear a mask or a scarf for cold weather to avoid inhaling cold air and to protect the face and neck from exposure.

7. Avoid large meals, coffee, tea, colas and other caffeine-containing beverages, both before and after shoveling.

8. Abstain from alcohol and tobacco prior to shoveling and after shoveling.

9. Make a label and attach it to your snow shovel:

WARNING: Use of this instrument for snow removal may be hazardous to your health.

Levitte agrees with Observer's golf view

To the editor:

Doc O'Connor's comment regarding the Hilltop golf course was the first good piece of journalistic work done on this piece of Plymouth Township property.

I found it a positive statement supported by the minutes and records of the township, the Register of Deeds, and Wayne County Circuit Court. I am pleased that finally a reporter is responsible enough to work, read and investigate for what is to be a small column on a back page.

Additionally, I noted the letters concerning Doc's comments which followed from John Jawor, lessor of the golf course and Robert Braun, a relative of Jawor who is employed at the golf course. These incredible, unsupported statements at best are self-serving, sales-puffing as the township and Jawor prepare for the addendum to the golf course contract.

I could argue with Jawor's letter paragraph by paragraph from fully discussing the court settlement with the board members to personal money invested in the new building; to lack of financial statements submitted; to improper employment practices; to ownership of equipment; but who would care? The board of trustees? They haven't listened to what I've been saying since the spring of 1979. The newspapers? I gave all the facts regarding the golf course including the transcript of a tape to their reporters in 1980 and I was discredited because I was running for office.

The township taxpayer who has invested more than $1 million in the course with more requests for investments lurking? Few people attend the township meetings and fewer apparently care whether our golf course contract is enforced or not.

So why should I care? The Crier newspaper called me a "self-appointed watchdog." Should I unappoint myself? Why should O'Connor care? Why should trustees Lee Fidge and Joe West care when the resident of Plymouth Township seemingly don't care about the largest non-governmental investment we have? Our next opportunity to care will be 1993.

THE QUESTION Monday night was "Can 70 Rotarians and Rotary Anns figure out how to get a 13-foot-6-inch double-decker bus through a 13-foot-5-inch opening?"

The Rotary couples traveled to and from a Christmas outing at Greenfield Village in the city of Plymouth's double-decker bus — a special import from London, England. Carol Vos planned the Christmas outing at Greenfield Village and deserves a hostess-with-the-mostest medal for her effort. Paul Sincock piloted the bus. The whole group — upstairs and down — sang Christmas carols as they wheeled along the expressway.

But when they approached an entrance to Greenfield Village, a wrought-iron arch over the roadway blocked their way. Paul tried another entrance. Another wrought-iron arch presented a problem. A young attorney (actually, Carol's husband, John Vos) scaled a wall and sighted along the roof of the bus. If the weight of the passengers lowered the bus enough, they could make it. Paul inched the double-decker under the arch and into the parking lot.

They were met by Village school buses which took them to the Clinton Inn. They dined on Cornish hens stuffed with wild rice, glazed carrots, cranberry salad and homemade biscuits. Dessert was pumpkin pie with whipped cream. Strolling musicians, a violinist and a guitarist, serenaded them during the dinner, playing requests. The musical entertainment was completed by a pianist.

Horse-drawn wagons took the guests on tour of the Village with stops at several historic homes. Pathways to the houses were lighted by lanterns, and docents explained the background of the houses, each decorated for the holidays. They returned to the gift shop, then were served cups of hot mulled cider in the gate house.

The journey home was an exercise in avoiding low-slung underpasses. The passengers on the top deck did nothing to relieve the tension of those on the lower deck. They pounded their feet on the floor at every underpass in an attempt to simulate a collision.

Carol recommends the use of the double-decker bus to other organizations. Rental rate is $150 for less than four hours with a maximum rate of $200. This includes the services of a driver. Persons wishing to rent the bus may call Deanna Bennett, 453-7737, at the Plymouth Department of Public Works. The bus seats 70 persons.

RENE LACOMBE and C.L. Cook had high scores at last Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. There were eight tables in play.

RESIDENTS of the Mayflower Townhouses and some of their friends will have their own craft fair from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12. There will be free admission to the show in the community building, 400 Plymouth Road, and everyone is welcome.

MEMBERS OF the Plymouth Community Chorus almost were euphoric over the response to their Christmas concerts. It was the first time they had attempted a repeat performance, and they hadn't really expected full houses both nights.

Judge Dunbar Davis' saying he was "proud to live in a community that could produce such a group" added to their enthusiasm.

Bob Ewald, husband of soprano Darlene Ewald, played Santa Claus in the "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" number — a real crowd pleaser. The audiences loved them all and gave the chorus a standing ovation after the Sunday-night performance.

Under director Mike Gross, the chorus will give a concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15, in Penney's Court of Fairlane Town Center. They performed Tuesday evening of this week at the Westland Mall.

HUDSON & FRIENDS will present a private showing and sale of their works from Dec. 15-24. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the back of the Finlan Insurance offices, 633 S. Main Street.

The Hudson is Jessie, and the friends are Doreen Lawton, Kitty Touhey and Bologna. The show will include weavings, paintings batiks and watercolors as well as some antiques and folk imports from Japan, Africa and South America. It will be open to the public, and admission is free.

Refreshments will be served at the museum until 10:30 p.m. Tour homes are The Anderson house, Ann Arbor Trail at Jener, built in the 1840s and restored to its former Victorian elegance by owners Elaine and Roger Anderson; the former Plymouth Hospital on Main Street, built in 1893, decorated for the occasion by the Green Thumb, Heide's of Old Village, the Statice Shop and Heide's on Ann Arbor Trial; the Adam's House on Adams Street, built in the Michigan farmhouse-style of the 1830s. LeGault's Flowers will decorate the refreshment tables. Elizabeth Holmes is chairing ticket sales which are $4 in advance and $5 on the day of the tour. Call the museum 455-8940 for information.

With Rackham Choir

Symphony Christmas concert Sunday

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and the Rackham Symphony Choir will combine talents Sunday afternoon for a Christmas musical program on a grand scale.

They will present French composer Hector Berlioz' "The Childhood of Christ" (L'Enfance du Christ) at 4 p.m. in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium, Joy Road west of Canton center Road.

Four guest vocalists and the choir will appear with full orchestra under the direction of Johan van der Merwe.

The work is is an oratorio, or sacred trilogy, the first of Berlioz' works for which he wrote entire text.

Berlioz conducted the premier in 1854. Its success was immediate and unmixed after five performances in Paris and three in Brussels over a four-month period.

Plymouth Symphony program notes comment that the work "provides a most affecting picture of sacred history" and affords musicians "a rare example of an almost faultless score."

"THE CHILDHOOD of Christ" has a narrator to tell the story and, in the traditional manner, the tenor tells the tale. Orchestra, vocal soloists and choir are heard throughout the three parts.

The first section, "Herod's Dream," centers on the obsessive fears of the King of Judea and ends, with a dramatic change of scene, in the manger of Bethlehem, where a choir of angels warns Joseph and Mary to flee. The second part describes their flight into Egypt with the infant Jesus and the third section, "The Arrival at Sais," as the family seeks lodging.

"The works ends very softly, a cappella," explains conductor van der Merwe. "It is a very, very beautiful ending, not a big dramatic climax. If it is done very well, it can leave an audience really suspended, really feeling the atmosphere and the solemnity of the continuation of Christ on earth and of prophecy being fulfilled."

The "Childhood of Christ" was performed once before by the Plymouth Symphony, years ago. Van der Merwe obviously is excited about the choice for the December concert.

"The work is not done often enough. There is not too much Christmas music of oratorio length that one can do. As always, at Christmas time, especially with a body like the Plymouth Symphony, one looks for things to do will make full use of this fine orchestra."

He points out, for example, that Bach's Christmas oratorio involves two choirs and a smaller orchestra — "but that would involve only half of the Plymouth orchestra, and that would be a pity."

THE RACKHAM Symphony Choir was organized as a class in the University of Michigan extension service in 1949.

Maynard Klein, its founder, was its musical director for the next 20 years. The choir has performed regularly with the Detroit Symphony, singing many major choral works. The choir's 100 members are music majors, teachers, students and professional people. The choir's fourth musical director, John Smith, is director of the Detroit Community Music School.

The four solists are well known in this area.

Tenor John McCollum is a member of the voice faculty in the the U-M School of Music and director of the University Division of the National Music Camp at Interlochen. A long-time concert, oratorio and opera singer, he began his professional career as a newspaperman. He did not pursue a full-time singing career until he was in his late 20s. In addition to being a leading tenor with the New York City Opera, he has sung leading roles on American and Canadian television and has made numerous recordings under major labels.

Warren Jaworski, baritone, is producer and general manager of the Northern Indiana Opera Association and manager of Midwest Artist Management. He is artist-in-residence at Huntington College in Huntington, Ind. His professional singing career has included opera and oratorio engagements, appearances with various symphony orchestras, recital works, radio and television.

MEZZO SOPRANO Rosemary Russell has appeared as soloist with the Detroit Symphony, Mozarteum of Salzburg, Prague Chamber Orchestra, Aspen Festival Orchestra, and many community orchestras. Her operatic performances include roles in "Madame Butterfly," "Amahl and the Night Visitors," "The Magic Flute," "Faust," and the leading role in the American performance of "The Bear" by William Walton. Miss Russell is an associate professor of voice at the U-M.

Harlan Jennings has been a solist for six seasons in summer stock. he has been featured solist with the St. Louis Municipal Opera, Starlight Theater, Kansas City, Cincinnati Opera, Opera Grand Rapids, and the Opera Company of Greater Lansing. He has had operatic roles in "Don Giovanni," "Madame Butterfly" and "Three Penny Opera." Several recitals have been video-taped for public television. Jennings has been a member of the voice faculty at Michigan State University since 1973.

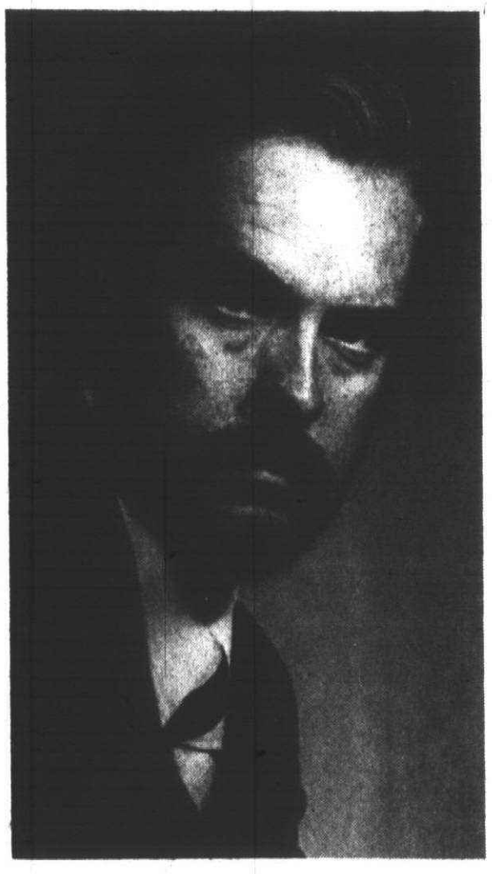

SUNDAY'S CONCERT will be presented with one intermission.

Coffee and tea will be served by the Plymouth Symphony League during the intermission.

Girl Scouts will provide free baby-sitting for preschoolers during the concert.

Senior citizens will be transported by bus to the concert and back. The bus will leave Tonquish Creek Manor at 3:15 p.m. Single concert tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for senior citizens and full-time college students. Students in 12th grade and under are admitted free.

Symphony family memberships can be obtained at Beitner Jewelry in Plymouth; Arnoldt Williams Music, Inc. in Canton Township; and the Four Seasons Flowers in Northville. Tickets for the Dec. 13 concert are on sale at those locations and at Plymouth Book World and Heide's Flowers in Plymouth, or at the box office the day of the concert.

Roots search inspires family

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

Many people derive great pride in tracing their heritage and recording it for posterity.

Mary Elizabeth Shaw Crosby and her daughters, Mandy Zumbrunnen and Sally Kirsten, have quite a story to tell that goes as far back as the famous Mayflower. The three women have been active members of the Daughters of the American Revolution for several years. In fact, Sally holds the position of historian for American Heritage for the fine organization.

Mary found a member of her chapter who is a distant relative of her family. This member also traces her ancestry back to William Brewster, the man who organized the Pilgrims to go aboard the Mayflower and Speedwell.

Mandy was thrilled with this exciting information and she proceeded to do a needlepoint of the ship. The energy rubbed off on her husband Ron, and he started researching the history of the ship.

Having no experience in building model ships, Ron bought an elaborate kit and the blue prints of a scale model. Ron and Mandy along with their sons, Ben and Danny, planned a trip east to Boston to further investigate their family tree.

THE PROJECT started in March and took 10 months to complete the model that was to be a gift to Mary and her husband, Charles. Sally's husband, Bob, wanted to get into the action, so he proceeded to build a walnut and glass case with a light inside for a beautiful showcase.

The Engraving Connection of Plymouth, engraved the stand of the ship with the names of the 12 generations, beginning with Brewster and ending with Shaw.

The ship was a heart-warming surprise to Charles and Mary last Christmas Eve. They finally found out what Ron was doing in the basement all those months.

I guess too much sawdust got under Ron's feet and he decided not to stop with the one ship. In their living room is a majestic model of the Constitution. The Mayflower had a carved hull and the new model had to be built plank by plank so it is a much more sophisticated ship to build. He estimates that the project took 350 hours to complete. This masterpiece also is enclosed in a lovely glass showcase for all of their guests to admire.

RON IS NOW in the process of building a scale model of the clipper ship, Thermopylae. I honestly never heard of this ship but its sister ship was the Cutty Sark. The two ships raced from China to England carrying tea to the harbors in Britain. I am glad that the Thermopylae did not gain as much recognition as the Cutty Sark. It would be a mouthful to order Thermopylae and soda.

Ben Zumbrunnen is carrying on the tradition by attempting to build a trading brig in his father's workshop. It is a true family room down in the basement these days.

A picture of the Constitution, handpainted by Roy Cross accents the living room of their home.

There were a lot of technical aspects of the ships that Ron needed help on so he turned to his brother-in-law, Bob Kirsten. Kirsten is an avid lover of the sea. With the many lakes at our disposal Bob has sailed far and wide. His claim to fame is having been in the Mackinac race five times. If you ask him if he has ever won he just grins and boasts that they never lost a crew member.

Mary, Mandy and Sally are part of a very special family that has been brought closer together by their individual interests and their search to unlock the past. It is very exciting for these women to pass on to their children the awareness of their ancestors.

TAX RELIEF HAS ARRIVED!
NOW YOU CAN OPEN AN IRA FOR 1982.
On January 2, 1982, new laws make tax-sheltered Individual Retirement Accounts available to anyone under 70½ with earned income (such as wages, salaries, fees or commissions). Even if you're covered by another retirement plan—especially if you're not.

DEDUCT UP TO $2,000 FROM YOUR TAXABLE INCOME EVERY YEAR! UP TO $4,000 FOR A WORKING COUPLE.
As long as you qualify, you may deposit up to $2,000 into your IRA each year; a working couple may deposit up to $2,000 each.* At tax time, every penny deposited in your IRA can be deducted from your taxable income—right off the top. That could even put you in a lower tax bracket.

SAVE TAXES ON YOUR INTEREST, TOO.
The interest earned on your IRA is tax deferred. Without annual taxes, your savings will grow much faster and you'll end up with a far larger retirement fund. Your IRA funds are not taxed until you actually use them, and you may begin withdrawing them as early as age 59½.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT AN IRA.
Social Security benefits and your present retirement plan may not be able to keep up with inflation. The supplemental savings and tax benefits can make an IRA essential to a fuller retirement.

GET OUR FREE BROCHURE AND GET INSTANT ANSWERS FROM THE IRA HOT LINE: 1-800-552-0369.
Establishing an IRA is a big commitment. That's why our new brochure covers the potential tax savings and retirement income benefits in detail. Ask for your free brochure—and feel free to ask any other questions about the IRA—by calling our toll-free Hot Line any weekday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

LET OUR EXPERTS OPEN AN IRA FOR YOU.
Come in for a personal visit and we'll show you why an IRA is the smart choice for you. You'll pay fewer taxes and wind up with a much richer retirement. You really can't afford to be without one.

*Or total earned income, whichever is less. A wage earner and unemployed spouse may open separate accounts and deposit up to a combined total of $2,250.

Substantial penalties and tax liabilities are imposed for withdrawals from Individual Retirement Accounts prior to age 59½, except in cases of death or disability. Withdrawals must begin by age 70½.

Old melodeon recalls music of earlier times

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

The sound of Christmas past will be heard in St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia during its two Christmas Eve candlelight services when Marcia Strong plays a melodeon more than 130 years old.

The music to be performed by the wife of the pastor, the Rev. David Strong, is fainter than usual organ music, but that's how it was in church services in the early 19th century when the old melodeon was in use for church every week.

The melodeon had already been used when it was purchased about 1850 in New York State by Stong's great-grandfather, Norman Strong, a choir master and singing teacher, and his wife.

"They lived on a farm south of Adrian," said Strong. "He had a singing school, and directed the choir in the Baptist church. He used to wrap up the melodeon in a blanket and put it in his buggy or carry it on his horse to the place where he would teach."

THE MELODEON is a 48-key reed organ which stands 28 inches high and is 14 inches wide.

Mrs. Strong has to pedal to maintain the sound when she plays it. "You can get a charlie horse after a while," she laughed. "Sometimes I forget to pump and the music dies out."

But Mrs. Strong, who teaches emotionally impaired youngsters in the Waterford school district, has an easier job now since the instrument's bellows have been repaired.

The work was done by Roger Mumbrue of Troy, a member of the Strongs' former parish.

"Since he was a youngster he has repaired organs," Strong said. "He used white leather, a special kind of leather for repairing organ bellows, and got it working."

The melodeon, the minister said, is "probably the smallest instrument with a piano-type keyboard.

"I've never seen an instrument like it, not even at Greenfield Village," he added. "It's like an old-fashioned parlor organ with a small sound.

THE INSTRUMENT has been used for about 15 years for the Strong family's Christmas carol singing at home, as well as being put in its special place for Christmas Eve worship.

When playing "Silent Night" in church, Mrs. Strong always uses a lighted candle on the melodeon.

Categorizing people often cheapens life

Now that the dust has setttled, what did David Stockman really do? Politicians have tried to capitalize on his conversations published in a magazine article. Some responded with glee and some with dismay. Few said the episode was helpful.

Our culture sees gossip as a negative experience that is generally denounced by moralists. The reporter was assumed to be selling gossip to a magazine until Stockman affiremed the accuracy of what was written. Then the ire turned on Stockman himself, with various derogatory labels attributed to him.

We have seen a man who didn't behave according to the category of person he was assumed to be. He is not a politician, and those who thought of him that way concluded he was stupid. He has an amazing grasp of facts, and those who thought of him as a "walking computer" were dismayed that he shared his perceptions outside the inner circle of those he works with.

THere is a positive side to gossip. Our shorthand lables, and categories are shown up as inadequate when we find out things that don't fit our narrow pigeon-holing of a person. The moral way of life requires viewing whole persons. Our habit of expecting people to stay within the limits of a title is degrading.

REPORTERS DIGGING into the personal details of someone's life are reflecting a wholesome change in our national habits. We do not know our leaders as real people.

The position they hold is only a small portion of the living truth of who they are. The change is coming upon us gradually.

It was good for America to see President Jimmy Carter walking down the avenue after his inauguration. It is good for us to think about President Ronald Reagan chopping wood and enjoying horses.

The recreation and hobbies of our leaders help us develop trust in them and in our government. Without trust, the nation disintegrates.

Fitting people into categories is a dignified way of cheapening life. The thin portion of a person that fits our generalizations and labels is not enough for building relationships.

We cheat ourselves out of a full model when we make any person into a stereotype. We limit their effectiveness, too.

We could begin to break our bad habits in ordinary encounters. It is wrong to make generalization a describing the the behavior of a 3-year-old, or an elder person, or anyone else.

We may be trying to show how well we understand a person with a problem; the generalization makes us sound like brilliant text book writers, and we become smug and miss the beauty of the whole person.

ANY EXPERIENCE reveals potential in the people and the relationship. People bring a wealth of past experiences into each moment. Each of us is vastly different and preciously unique. Lables and titles and positions hide all that.

Our changing habits can lead us to enjoy a gossip of good will. We now know Stockman much better and can applaud the contributions he is making to America. Along the way, we give up expecting him to contribute in the arena where our titles had placed him.

Morality is the struggle to deal with each other as whole persons. We start each experience with hope instead of with assumptions about character. We make the most of the event by developing interactions with priority on the personal.

What Stockman did helps us. He shattered our dependence on titles and categories. He prompted us to see the value of a kind of gossip that enables us to know each other as real people.

Trenton girls advance in tourney

Rocks ousted in heartbreaker

By Brad Emons
staff writer

An unheralded Trenton girls' basketball team beat favored Plymouth Salem at its own game last night, posting a 31-26 quarterfinal victory at Lincoln Park in the state tournament.

The Trojans, known more for their football and hockey prowess, will now meet Harper Woods Regina in the Class A semifinals tomorrow night at U-D's Calihan Hall. Flint Northern, an upset winner over Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy, and Grand Haven, also advanced to the final four.

Trenton beat Salem to the punch with more patience, fewer mistakes and a surprisingly better defense.

The Trojans throttled the Rocks with a effective 2-1-2 zone defense. Salem, usually a strong outside shooting team, was ice cold most of the night.

"We stuck with the zone and that's what we do best," said an elated Trenton coach John Biedenbach, whose team upped its overall record to 21-5. "We're happy to go. This is just fantastic."

Biedenbach's club made the most of its breaks to gain the hard-earned victory.

"Big plays win big games," said Salem coach Bob Blohm: "They dealt with our pressure well and made the key free throws.

"WE HAD a hard time scoring and didn't get any offensive rebounds off the shots we got."

Both teams were tight in the first quarter as Trenton took a 6-2 lead. That kind of play carried over into the second quarter.

The Trojans led at intermission by the shockingly low count of 9-6.

The third quarter opened up with Salem jumping out to a three-point lead. Trenton, however, clawed back to knot the score, 16-16, at the end of the quarter.

The Trojans took charge midway through the fourth quarter.

Sandy Clark, a 6-foot junior center, gave Trenton the lead for good midway through the final period when she ripped the ball right out of the grasp of a Salem player and scored inside to give the Trojans a 20-18 advantage.

Karen Soults then tallied two baskets to boost Trenton to a six-point advantage.

The Rocks never recovered and were forced to foul, hoping to make up the difference. Trenton then hit five of eight free throws down the stretch to put it away.

FORWARD Amy Welch of Trenton led all scorers with 10 points, four from the free throw line. Soults had nine and Clark added eight points and eight big rebounds.

Eileen Moore, who finished a stellar four-year career, led Salem with eight. She fouled out with 1:05 left. Jan MacKenzie and Carol Ross each had six.

"I believe we were a step further than where we needed to be against the zone," said Blohm. "Sometimes you live by the jumper and die by the jumper. And when we missed, they had the big rebounds."

"We know each other like a book," said Biedenbach. "It came down to a foul situation and we put them down. Salem is an excellent club. They never quit."

The two schools, members of the tough Suburban Eight League, split during the regular season. It was a repeat of last year's tournament when Salem won the rubber match in the quarterfinals to advance to the semis.

Bentley, the Suburban Eight champion on the past three years, was ousted in the regional by the Rocks last week.

Salem, which relied on a relentless man-to-man defense the entire season, bowed out with an outstanding 21-4 record.

"WE STEPPED out and gave them defensive pressure," added Blohm, "but maybe we didn't do as much as we wanted. Overall, I thought we played well, but our defense maybe broke down in a couple of crucial situations."

Despite the heartbreaking defeat, Blohm was proud of his team's effort all year long.

"They're an enjoyable team to work with," he said. "I feel they've accomplished a lot. They played hard and that's all you can ask.

"This is the first group of seniors I've worked with for four years.

"I'll miss them."

Boys' game moved

The boys' basketball game pitting Trenton vs. Plymouth Salem has been rescheduled for 7:45 p.m. Saturday at Salem. Junior varsity action begins at 6 p.m.

The game, originally scheduled for tomorrow, was changed because of Trenton's involvement in the girls' state semifinals at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall. Trenton will face Harper Woods Regina at 8:30 p.m. Friday while Grand Haven and three-time defending state champ Flint Northern square off in the Class A opener at 7 p.m. All tickets are $1.

The finals in all four classes are scheduled for Saturday at U-D.

Salem takes down mat foes

Being second best at this stage against 12 of the state's best prep wrestling teams suits Plymouth Salem coach Ron Krueger just fine.

The Rocks are looking more and more like contenders after their performance in the Temperance-Bedford Invitational last weekend.

Ron Krueger pleased with start

Host Bedford, a perennial state Class A power, took first place with 209 points. Salem was right behind with 174 followed by defending state Class C champ Montrose, third, 133; Hazel Park, fourth, 102½; Jackson Parkside, fifth, 89½; defending Class A champ Davison, sixth, 57½; Dundee, seventh, 55½; Fraser, eighth, 52½; Dearborn Heights Annapolis, ninth, 51½; Melvindale, 10th, 45; Monroe, 11th, 34, and Clawson, 12th, 32.

"Temperance-Bedford feels they have the best team they've ever had," said Krueger. "But in head-to-head competition, we won seven out of nine matches."

Salem had three individual champs and two second-place finishers.

Heavyweight Marty Piper, fourth in Class A a year ago, decisioned Fraser's Mark Wyffils, 8-4, in the finals.

"He (Piper) did a heck of a job," said Krueger. "There were seven really good heavyweights out there."

PIPER had two pins en route to the crown.

Teammate John Beaudoin, a junior, placed first at 138 pounds. He broke a 4-4 tie at 5:50 of the third period with a cradle move to pin Bedford's Rick Salisbury.

Beaudoin also won a tough semifinal match, downing Bob Smith of Fraser, 3-2. Smith pinned Salem's Billy Ward last season in the Class A final at 126 pounds.

Senior Bruce Bachman was crowned champ at 145. He pinned Bedford's Gary Tolly at 4:52 to claim the title.

At 98 pounds, Salem's Jeff Vojcek, a junior, scored two victories (both pins) before losing in the final to Parkside's Chris Ray, 11-1.

The Rocks' Randy Beaudoin (155 pounds) was also second. He was the victim of a referee's decision based on standard criteria after tying Parkside's Jeff Patterson (2-2). In the semifinals, Beaudoin downed Bedford's Dave Widmer, 7-1.

THIRD-PLACE finishers for the Rocks included Mike Doumainian (112), who had three pins; Rob McDonald (132), John Woochuk (167) and Scott Wickens (185).

Woochuk beat Bedford's Jim Shugar, 6-2, for third, while Wickens was eliminated by another Bedford wrestler, Keith Vogel, 8-7. Vogel, second in the state last season, won the match on a penalty point.

Salem's Tom Walkley (198) also gave a good account of himself as he beat Chris Lynch of Hazel Park, the No. 4 seed, in his opening match.

"This is the best we've ever started, and we've had some good teams," said Krueger, who guided the Rocks to a fourth-place finish (Class A) in 1980.

"I think we got the ball rolling," he said. "People saw that Temperance-Bedford could be beaten.

"It's going to be a heck of a duel."

The Rocks will host Bedford and Hazel Park in a double-dual meet Jan. 28.

Schoolcraft cagers win tight duels

Schoolcraft College recorded its second straight overtime cage victory with a 82-81 win Saturday over rival Highland Park Community College.

The Ocelots, now sporting a 2-1 record against junior college squads, overcame a lopsided foul differential to beat the Parkers.

Schoolcraft's standout forward Phil Blevins, who scored 49 points in a previous outing against St. Clair, sat out nearly the entire game because of foul trouble.

Highland Park, meanwhile, who collected half as many fouls, connected on 23 of 33 free throws.

Kirk Croxton hit a 20-foot jumper with nine seconds left in overtime to give the Ocelots a three-point lead. Reggie Hendricks added a free throw with three seconds left to put the game away.

Freshman forward Phil Cooper led Schoolcraft with 18 points. Pete Kennedy added 15 points and 12 rebounds. Also in double figures were Livonia Stevenson grad Bill Keyes (14), Mike Frazier (12) and Croxton (10).

Croxton also had nine steals and eight assists.

Steve Moore paced Highland Park with 29 points. James Ross chipped in with 24.

In a game played Monday night, Blevins tallied 32 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead Schoolcraft to a 91-77 win over the Siena Heights junior varsity.

Barry Vaughn added 12 points and seven rebounds, all in the second half for the winners. The Ocelots led by just one at halftime, 47-46.

The Ocelots, who met Oakland Community College yesterday, will entertain Delta CC at 4 p.m. Saturday.

LADY OCELOTS 55
HIGHLAND PARK 52 (OT)

Kathy Peck, a graduate of Plymouth Canton, pumped in 23 points, including four in overtime, to give the Schoolcraft women's team a 55-52 triumph Saturday.

The Lady Ocelots trailed 31-18 at halftime, but rallied in the second half and eventually pulled even, 49-49, at the end of regulation play,

Mary Fry's hit two free throws with 10 seconds left sent the contest into overtime. She finished with seven points. Kelly Nagy, a Livonia Bentley alum, tallied 11 points.

Cynthia Moore, who fouled out in regulation play, led Highland Park with 18.

Schoolcraft, now 2-0 overall, will host Delta at 2 p.m. Saturday.

EUDY SETS RECORD

Plymouth Salem's Terri Eudy set a Salem varsity girls' swim record last week in the 200 yard individual medley with a time of 2:18.1.

The senior standout broke her own mark with the performance in the state Class preliminaries at Michigan State University. She was unable to reach the final.

The Rocks' 200 medley relay team of Debbie Darlington, Corinne Cabadas, Amy Dunn and Eudy also failed to advance.

Prep swimmers cruise in openers

Plymouth Salem unveiled its boys' swim team Tuesday for the first time this season and were impressive, splashing Redford Union, 117-54.

Coach Chuck Olson's team, 9-2-1 last season in dual meets, picked up where it left off by winning seven of 11 events.

The Rocks got rolling with a first place in the 200 yard medley relay as Paul Neschich, Ashley Long, Jeff Kleinsmith and Jeff Walker combined for a time of 1:50.5. Teammates Bob Bowling, Scott Stinebaugh, Scott Anderson and Duncan Moshimer were second (1:59.7).

Redford Union's Jon Morgan and Jim Miloch each won two events.

Morgan was victorious in the 200 and 500 freestyle events with times of 1:50.9 and 5:03.5, respectively. Miloch was first in the 50 freestyle (22.9) and set a school record in the 100 butterfly (54.9). He also has already qualified for the state meet in the butterfly.

Salem diver Joe Rudelic also got off to a flying start with a school-record performance. His 270.80 points broke the mark held by Bill Marks since 1976.

Other Salem winners included Mark Roehrig, 200 individual medley, 2:11.2; Tim Harwood, 100 freestyle, 53.1; Russ Shaffer, 100 backstroke, 1:02.5, and Long, 100 breaststroke, 1:10.6.

ROEHRIG, Harwood, John Thompson and Shaffer teamed up to win the 400 freestyle relay in 3:38.6. Taking third were Anderson, Erik Kleinsmith, Neschich and Stinebaugh (3:49.0).

Gaining second place spots for the Rocks were Harwood, 200 freestyle, 1:58.9; Shaffer, 200 IM, 2:12.3; Jeff Kleinsmith, 50 freestyle, 24.1; Todd Riedel, diving, 187.3; Roehrig, 100 butterfly, 59.0; Bowling, 100 freestyle, 55.9; Thompson, 500 freestyle, 5:34.4, and Neschich, 100 backstroke, 1:03.3.

Third place Salem swimmers included Thompson, 200 freestyle, 1:59.2; Long, 200 IM, 2:25.3; Bowling, 50 freestyle, 24.7; Anderson, 100 butterfly, 1:06.2; Stinebaugh, 100 freestyle, 59.4; Erik Kleinsmith, 500 freestyle, 5:35.4, and Tim Ahlgren, 100 breaststroke, 1:17.7.

CANTON 97 YPSILANTI 74

Canton opened the 1981 swim season Tuesday with a 97-74 non-league boys' swim triumph over Ypsilanti.

"We swam amazingly well for the first meet," said second-year coach Bill McCord. "We swam much faster than I expected.

"We had some close races. It was a fight, but we went after it. I feel good about the way we're doing."

McCord felt especially pleased about the performances turned in by veterans Bob Simrak and Pete Stern.

Simrak won the 200 IM (2:14.37) and 100 backstroke (1:03.19). Meanwhile, Stern took first place in the 50 and 100 freestyle events with times of 23.29 and 51.65, respectively.

The two also teamed up with Ron Hurley and Jim Luce to win the 200 medley relay in 1:48.09. The Chiefs' quartet of Bob Lewelling, John Luce, Joe Gibbons and Matt Krawzak were third (1:56.95).

CANTON also won the 400 freestyle relay in 3:39.07. That team consisted of Gibbons, Scott Simmons, Pete Sickels and junior captain John Simone.

Jim Luce was another Canton individual winner. He placed first in the 100 breaststroke (1:07.83). Hurley was first in the 100 butterfly (1:01.24).

Chiefs swimmers earning second place spots included Simone, 200 freestyle, 1:55.42, and 500 freestyle, 5:26.2; Hurley, 50 freestyle, 24.0; Gibbons, 100 butterfly, 1:04.21, and Jerry Fleisher, diving, 156.25 points.

Recording third-place finishes were Sickels, 200 IM, 2:20.2, and 100 freestyle, 54.68; Craig Vanderburg, diving, 139.75; Simmons, 500 freestyle, 5:28.3, and John Luce, 100 breaststroke, 1:13.7.

The Chiefs meet Redford Union at 7 tonight in another non-league dual.

Juniors replenish All-star leagues

Few competitive sports have a better farm system than bowling.

With each passing week, more and more young bowlers are showing ability which earn them spots in the coveted all-star leagues after a year or two.

The most recent graduate is Aleta Rzepecki, an 18-year-old who is battling for the average lead in the women's all-stars. She is presently ranked 10th among the money winners in the ladies' pro tour.

During the past week another young fellow showed his skill when Gordon Tesarz, 16, rolled a 718 series at Westland Bowl. He had games of 249, 259 and 215.

Meanwhile, a sister-brother combination stole the show at the Superbowl among the juniors. Diane Meade, 13, posted a 261 game and brother Frank, four years older, found the range for a 269.

FIVE NEW members were admitted to the 700 club during the past week.

Bowling in the Holiday Classic at Superbowl in Canton Township, Tim Gray of Saginaw blistered the pins for games of 237 and 234. He then closed with a spectacular 300 for a 771 series.

Others breaking the barrier were Dave Daliszewski with a 731, including a middle count of 300, the second of the year at Westland Bowl; Jack Bohin with a 257 in 707 at Bel-Aire; Dan Luoma, 704 at Merri-Bowl, and Frank Ashcraft, 703 at Superbowl.

Luoma's count came along with a 695 in the Handicappers League at Merri-Bowl. His closest scoring rivals were Bill Presnell with 664 and Rod Durham with 650. On the women's side, Polly Cole showed the way with a 233 in 599.

TOM HENRY added his name to the new members of the 700 club when he scored a 715 in the Catholic Central Father and Son League at Woodland Lanes. He had games of 233, 259 and 223.

Jeff Anderson faltered after a good start in the Brown Family League. He opened with 290, then dropped to 172 and closed with a 190 for 652. Meanwhile, Ron Wensin paced the Senior House League with 644.

IN OTHER good performances, Dave LeZangie fired a 678 at Woodland. Mary Koss showed the way in the Ladies Classic at Garden Lanes with a 624 and came right back with 611 in the St. Linus Mixed League. Leandra Michalak was the top women in the Westland Bowl Mixed Classic with 643. Todd Bittner lost a close race with Randy Ortman by four pins when he posted a 673 which included a 242 game.

Ypsi ruins cage opener for coach

By Jay Keenan
special writer

Ypsilanti spoiled Dave Van Wagoner's debut as Plymouth Canton basketball coach Tuesday with a 66-43 triumph.

The host Braves, a perennial state power, came down a little hard on the first-year Canton mentor. The Chiefs struggled on offense throughout much of the game and according to Van Wagoner, it seemingly may have been a case of opening day jitters.

"We didn't execute offensively," he explained. "I don't think we were mentally ready tonight. We weren't in the game mentally.

"We're capable of performing well on offense, but for some reason we just didn't do it."

The Chiefs especially had problems maneuvering the ball inside against Ypsi's stubborn and sagging man-to-man defense. "Ypsilanti put a lot of good defensive pressure on us," Van Wagoner said. "They played well."

YPSI COACH Dick Ouellette also praised his team's defensive play.

"Our defense really kept them out of the middle," he said. "I think they tried to run a delay so they could try and us into fouls, which didn't play an important part."

The Braves jumped out to a 13-6 first-quarter lead as Canton was plagued by numerous turnovers.

Ypsi continued its surge at the outset of the second period and increased its advantage to 23-10 with 4:20 remaining until intermission.

The Chiefs, however, cut five points off the lead on a jumper by Tom Harris, a basket by Steve Tuttle with 1:40 showing on the clock and another free throw by Tuttle 40 seconds later.

Canton never mounted a serious threat after that as Ypsi enjoyed a 10-point halftime advantage, 27-17.

In the third quarter, the Braves extended their lead to 16 points, largely due to their superior strength on the boards and swift running game.

THE BRAVES waltzed in the fourth quarter with a 23-16 outburst.

Ypsi's Steve Lawrence and Eric Harris each tallied 14 points apiece to lead all scorers. Dave Spears had 10 and 6-foot-8 center Keith Armstrong added eight.

Tuttle, a 6-6 center, paced Canton with 11. Senior Matt Thomas and Harris chipped in with 10 and eight, respectively.

Tuttle's play drew praise from the veteran Ypsi coach. "Number 43 (Steve Tuttle)," said Ouellette, "did some good things inside for them. He played excellent and looked pretty tough."

Despite the setback, Van Wagoner said he was pleased with his team's defensive performance. "The offense usually takes awhile but if the defense gets it done, we'll be in every game and we'll be successful.

Chief grapplers rebound at tourney

Plymouth Canton's week of wrestling ended on an upbeat.

The Chief grapplers bounced back Saturday in the Belleville Invitational after a poor showing two days earlier in a double-dual meet.

Canton finished third in the Belleville tournament with 121½ points and sported three individual champs and three second place finishers. Wayne Memorial, scoring 158, came away with the title in the eight-team event. Host Belleville was second with 132. Rounding out the field were Adrian, New Boston Huron (defending Class B state champs), Northville, Romulus and Ann Arbor Pioneer.

BRIAN LEE, a 132-pounder, gained Canton's first tourney crown with a 2-0 decision over Rick Uman of New Boston. Lee had three victories on the day as did 145-pound champ Steve Hamblin, who decisioned Jack Wallace of Northville for the title, 9-6.

Hamblin, a senior, is unbeaten in six matches this season.

Junior Marty Heaton was also a champion. He won the 155-pound division with a 9-6 win over Kevin Krug of Belleville.

In other finals, Adrian's Junior Rodriguez (105) decisioned Canton's Todd Bartlett, 5-2, Dan Matauch (119) of Wayne defeated Canton sophomore Tim Collins, 8-0, and Wayne's Joe Samples (138) beat the Chiefs' Brett Haarala with a pin at 5:54.

Canton's Kevin Decker took third at 126 with a 2-0 decision over Wayne's Brian Hubbard. The Chiefs' Don Page took fifth at 198 as he won two of three matches on the day.

West cage quintet seeks improvement

Garden City West, which will close its school doors in June, won't save its best basketball team for last according to third-year coach Bob Dropp.

"Most of these kids are just getting their feet wet," he said. "We have no real dominating feature. We're a very average ballclub. We're very much in a struggling situation."

The Tigers were 9-12 overall last year but 8-6 in the Tri-River League, good enough for third place behind champion Inkster Cherry Hill and second-place Melvindale.

West is off to a rough start. The Tigers are 0-2 and were administered a severe pounding Tuesday at Livonia Franklin.

Ron Pummill, a 6-foot-1 senior guard, averaged 11 points per game last year. He is the lone returning starter.

HE IS joined in the backcourt by 5-11 senior Dave Cramton. Tom Adams, a 6-4½ senior, is the starting center. All-Observer footballer Phil Jean (6-3, 215 pounds) starts at one forward. Scott Patterson, 6-0 senior, is the other forward.

It's tough to make any kind of comparision to the 1969-70 West team.

Dropp, who was an assistant coach back then under Chris Babler, was part of a 22-1 season. Rick Drewitz, a fluid 6-7 center with a deadly outside shooting touch

Livonia boxer inflicts Payne on PAL foes

Craig Payne of the Livonia Boxing Club improved his amateur ranking in the heavyweight division last week by winning the national Police Athletic League (PAL) title in Flint.

The 19-year-old slugger scored three impressive victories which should move him somewhere among the top five spots in Ring Magazine's national heavyweight ratings.

"When you get a national rating like this, it's a good tournament," said Payne's coach Paul Soucy.

Payne opened the tourney with revenge on his mind.

He took out Andrew Stokes of Ft. Wayne, Ind., the No. 4 ranked U.S. amateur, with a technical knockout (TKO). Stokes, who took a standing eight-count, had beaten Payne last month in a bout at Elkhart, Ind.

"We had a tough draw," said Soucy, "but Craig fought a tough match."

Payne breezed through the second round, knocking Richard Fredrickson of Saginaw to the canvas in less than a minute.

IN THE FINAL, Payne hurt his hand but was able to score a unanimous decision against James Maxwell of Cleveland.

Payne is now tuning up for the Detroit area Golden Gloves competition which will be held in January at a site yet to be determined.

He will face Jamie Howe of Defiance, Ohio, the No. 3 ranked amateur light-heavyweight in a scheduled three-rounder Dec. 19 at Crowell Recreation Center in Detroit. Steve Darnell, a 156-pounder from the Livonia Boxing Club, will also be on the card.

Trojan coach happy

Livonia Clarenceville broke open a close contest with a 22-8 scoring onslaught in the final quarter to win its second straight boys' basketball game, 59-41, over Dearborn Heights Riverside Tuesday.

The Trojans led by just four (37-33) going into the final quarter but quickly erased any doubts as to who the winner of the game would be.

Bob Warren had an outstanding night for Clarenceville, scoring 22 points, dishing out seven assists and grabbing nine rebounds. Gary Haapla netted 12 points, and Jeff Moscoe contributed 10.

Clarenceville hosts Novi Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

KENNEDY 52
JOHN GLENN 49 (OT)

Westland John Glenn made it close for the second game in a row but once again came up short, losing, 52-49, to Taylor Kennedy in overtime Tuesday at Kennedy.

"Our inexperience really showed," Glenn coach Dan Henry said after the contest. Glenn had chances to win, but sloppy defensive play late in the game cost the Rockets.

Glenn's six-point (22-16) halftime advantage was narrowed to four after three quarters. Kennedy had the lead, but Jeff Hawley's basket forced the extra period.

A Greg Gill basket and two free throws by Todd Stein gave the Rockets a 46-42 lead early in the overtime, but Taylor Kennedy took advantage of defensive miscues by Glenn's guards to score six straight points. The Eagles never trailed after that.

X-rays advantageous in healing foot injuries

Many runners with foot and ankle problems are worried about the effects of X-rays used in treatment. Although radiation exposure does have a cumulative effect on the body, the advantages in podiatry far outweigh the disadvantages.

The machines used in dental and foot X-rays are often target-type exposure units designed to contain exposure to as small an area as possible.

In addition, patients can wear heavy lead aprons or other leaded protections over sensitive areas such as the genitals.

X-rays are necessary for several reasons.

One, they identify fractures, dislocations and other bony changes subsequent to an injury. In most cases, multiple views of the same area are necessary to correctly identify or rule out a specific injury.

The X-rays also help evaluate swelling and other soft tissue signs near the bone.

Second, X-rays help determine treatments and predict the patient's response to therapy.

So, a proper and thorough X-ray analysis may well indicate to the doctor how serious the injury is, what treatment might be necessary to rehabilitate the injured area, and approximately the length of time needed for healing to occur.

ANOTHER USE of X-rays is infrequent but very significant. In this case, the X-rays identify improperly positioned bones in joints.

Such X-rays help evaluate an athlete for orthopedic devices (such as inserts in shoes) and other tratments geared to improving performance.

A final use of the X-ray is its benefit as a permanent type of record indication change or progress in the status of an injury. By this, I mean the natural sequence of events that occur involving bones, such as changes in stress and strain, bone healing subsequent to an injury and functional changes which are often progressive and worsen with time and use.

Just as the dentist uses X-rays to identify progressive changes in the jaw and the position of the teeth, so does the podiatrist use the X-ray to measure and identiy particular bone changes of the foot and ankle. Such measurements are often invaluable, since they allow the physician to institute early treatment and prevent structural damage.

Plymouth Christian victorious

LUTHERAN NORTHWEST 38
PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 37

Plymouth Christian Academy held onto a three-point halftime lead and went on to post its first boys' basketball victory of the season Tuesday, 53-45, over Warren Baptist Academy.

Brothers John and Jim Koss combined for 29 points. John hauled in 10 rebounds. Mike Routledge added seven assists.

Plymouth shot 43 percent from the field and 55 percent from the line.

The Eagles clawed its way back from a 12-point deficit after three quarters but couldn't quite catch Farmington Lutheran Northwest in dropping a 38-37 decision Friday.

Jim and John Koss fired the comeback effort, each scoring seven fourth-quarter points.

Area dancers featured

'Nutcracker' has local look

Seventeen dancers from Westland, Garden City, Livonia, Canton and Dearborn Heights will perform the full-length Christmas classic "The Nutcracker Ballet" with the Oakway Symphony Orchestra and the Northern Regional Ballet Theater this weekend.

The ballet will be presented tonight through Sunday at Dickenson Center Auditorium, 18000 Newburgh Road (between Six and Seven Mile roads), Livonia. Matinees will be given Saturday and Sunday. For box office information call 464-6767 or 464-9075.

The Northern Ballet Theater, now in its fifth season, presents seven major performances per year in its home city and numerous engagements for sponsors throughout the greater metropolitan area and Michigan.

The company consists of 35 dancers from the local area and is under the artistic direction of Michelle Wolfe, who also functions as the company's resident choreographer.

THE DANCERS range in age from 5 to 12 years old and are students of the American Dance Academy under the direction of Melva D. Stelzer. They auditioned for the roles with the ballet company in September and have been rehearsing weekly, along with their regular dance classes.

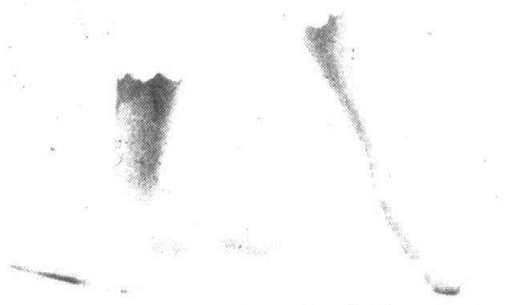

Making their first professional debut are Sheri Bird, Theresa Beyer, Angie and Alison Curlee, Rebecca Normile, Kelli Torti, Jennifer and Julie DiStefano, Wendy and Lori Zaremba from Westland; Heather Kehrer from Garden City; Dana Maguran from Livonia; Cindy and Melissa Thompson from Wayne; Sonia Sawyer from Dearborn Heights, and Kristen Nagy from Redford Township.

Also, starring in the role of Clara for two performances, is Lisa Evans of Westland. She is the daughter of Melvin and Pat Evans. Last summer she was awarded first runner-up at the National Cecchetti Ballet Conference at Michigan State University.

Lisa has been studying ballet for four years at the American Dance Academy and has traveled extensively each summer studying dance.

All the students also study tap and jazz and were first-place overall winners at the State Dancer Master of Michigan competition.

Lisa Evans of Westland will dance the role of Clara for two performances of "The Nutcracker Ballet."

Simon comedy opening at Birmingham Theatre

Dick Latessa, who starred on Broadway in Neil Simon's "I Ought to Be in Pictures," will head the cast when the comedy opens Dec. 26 at the Birmingham Theatre, 211 S. Woodward.

Latessa is familiar to TV audiences as Noel Douglas on the soap opera "The Edge of Night."

Along with Latessa as Herb, "I Ought to Be in Pictures" features Mimi Cozzens, costarring as Herb's girlfriend Steffy. Ms. Cozzens played the role of Steffy in a production of the comedy on the East Coast.

Ibbits Warriner plays Libby, the daughter Herb has not seen in many years. She was the understudy for the role of Libby on Broadway.

Performances will run through Jan. 24. For ticket information contact the box office at 644-3533.

The musical "Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?" closed Nov. 29 at the Birmingham Theatre, where it had played since March 18.

The show was saluted as the longest-running musical in Michigan history, and the theater, Mavin Productions of Chicago, cast and crew received a tribute from both branches of the Michigan legislature.

Second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"Notorious" (1946), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Originally 106 minutes.

In Alfred Hitchcock's "Notorious," espionage agent Cary Grant recruits innocent Ingrid Bergman to marry, and spy on, neo-Nazi Claude Rains. Hitch bows to the convention of marriage, but the film is unconventional in every other way. "Good-guy" Grant subverts the passions of Bergman, in effect forcing her to have sex with "bad-guy" Rains. Concepts of good and bad become blurred, and Hitchcock evokes much sympathy for Bergman and Rains; Grant, conversely, appears more chilling and distant than he has in any other role. Patented Hitchcock touches make "Notorious" one of the master's most suspenseful and lusty films. Curiously, producer David Selznik wanted no part of the project and Hitchcock had to produce it himself at RKO studios. The picture made $8 million in its first year. Rating: $3.40.

WHAT'S IT WORTH?
A ratings guide to the movies

Bad	$1
Fair	$2
Good	$3
Excellent	$4

"A Thousand Clowns" (1965), 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 118 minutes.

Jason Robards turns in one of his few fine film performances as a non-conformist comedy writer raising a young nephew in New York City. Barry Gordon, as the nephew, plays off Robards beautifully, and Gene Saks adds a virtuoso performance as a superficial host of a kids' TV show. Director Fred Coe gets credit for letting the actors enhance a just-fair script. Barbara Harris and Martin Balsam also star. Rating: $2.90.

"Going My Way" (1944), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 130 minutes.

Thirty-seven years ago, film critic James Agee wrote that "Going My Way" is a fine film, but that it's disconcerting to accept crooner Bing Crosby as a priest. Today, it's difficult to remember Bing as anything but a priest — OK, a golfing priest, then. Nonetheless, Bing and co-star Barry Fitzgerald, as the aging priest Bing is sent to replace at St. Mary's, were both nominated for Oscars and both won (Bing, best actor; Barry, best supporting actor). Director Leo McCarey also won an Academy Award for making an overly sentimental story into a well-paced and quite palatible film. Rating: $3.25

"Lonely Are the Brave" (1962), 8 p.m. Tuesday on Ch. 50. Originally 108 minutes.

Kirk Douglas plays the last cowboy in this David Miller film that's something of a landmark picture. Certainly, the wild west had been tamed long before 1962; yet Douglas manages a sense of frontier rebeliousness as a fugitive cowboy who's pursued by helicopter across the new west's super-highway. ALso, one can't help but think of the dying breed of TV westerns — so popular in the '50s — which were vanishing from our sets in the early 1960s, as America moved into the space age. Rating: $3.05

In Christmas concert

The 60-member Livonia Civic Chorus will perform in a Christmas concert "A Gift of Music" at 5:30 p.m. Sunday in the Livonia City Hall Auditorium. Participating in the concert are Joyceann Braisted of Livonia (left), Bill Hill of West Bloomfield, Phil Meyer of Livonia and Joyce Winter of Livonia. Karen McDaniel is accompanist-director. The concert is a thank-you to the city for its 15 years of support via the Department of Parks and Recreation.

String orchestra to play

The Birmingham Community String Orchestra will give a mini-concert at Somerset Mall at 7 p.m. this evening. This 17-member orchestra is an adult education program sponsored by the Birmingham Public Schools. The concert concludes the first semester of rehearsals.

The program is open to all musicians regardless of where they live. It has been offered as a class through the Birmingham Community Education Department for many years and was organized by Anne Dodge, well-known string teacher from the Highland Park Public Schools.

The present conductor is Joan G. Berndt. A Birmingham native, she formerly taught orchestra at Derby Junior High and Groves High School. She is a member of the applied music faculty at Oakland University.

For information about the orchestra, call Mrs. Berndt, 335-7160 or Howard Malwitz at the Birmingham Community Education office, 642-4012.

Jewelry being offered at sale

Christmas shoppers are invited to attend Stalker & Boos Dec. 11-13 auction, in which more than 700 lots of jewelry will be offered.

The sale will begin at the firm's auction room at 280 N. Woodward, Birmingham, at 7:30 p.m. Friday, at 11 a.m. Saturday, and at noon on Sunday.

The collection, said Frank Boos, includes birthstone rings, bridal sets, cufflinks, earrings, Seiko watches and a wide variety of gold chains. Prices, he predicts, will range from $25 to $5,000, with most items selling for under $100.

The lots may be previewed at the auction rooms on Thursday, 3-8 p.m., and on Friday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Pottery expert to speak

A potter from Santa Clara Peublo, N.Mex., Marion Rose, will give a free demonstration and explanation of the process of making the famous Santa Clara pottery at 7:30 tonight.

The program will be held on the lowel level of the Godfrey Building, Kerrytown, Ann Arbor. The address is 410 N. Fourth Avenue. Take route 23 to Ann Arbor and get off at the exit to go into the downtown area. It is just after the exit.

The program is under the direction of Lori Saginaw, owner of the Native Man Gallery of Ann Arbor.

The holidays are different this year at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village.

IN THE MUSEUM
You will see how machines began to replace mothers and dads in making toys for good girls and boys.

IN THE VILLAGE
You will see how the printing press popularized Santa and gave us the cards, the wrappings and the trappings of the holidays.

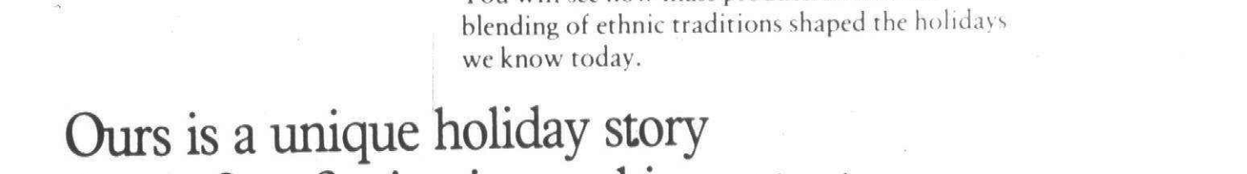

IN SHORT
You will see how mass production and the blending of ethnic traditions shaped the holidays we know today.

Ours is a unique holiday story that is fun, fascinating and important. It can't be experienced anywhere else! Now through January 3.

● BREAK THAT PRIME

Barry W. of Birmingham writes:

I was involved in a game when this strange position came up. As black, I now have double ones to play. After much thought, I felt the best overall play was to move my 7-point checker to the 4 and hit white on the 1 point, hoping to force him off the bar and break his prime.

Of course, the unexpected happened. White didn't re-enter for several rolls; by then, my home board was a shambles. Naturally, I dropped a point when white offered the cube. The game was a literal disaster.

What would have been the best alternative move?

I know exactly what you were trying to achieve. Unfortunately, it backfired. The danger of your play was the eventual outcome should white not re-enter immediately with a one. With white having only a 30 percent chance of re-entering on the first roll, you were the heavy favorite to keep him on the bar.

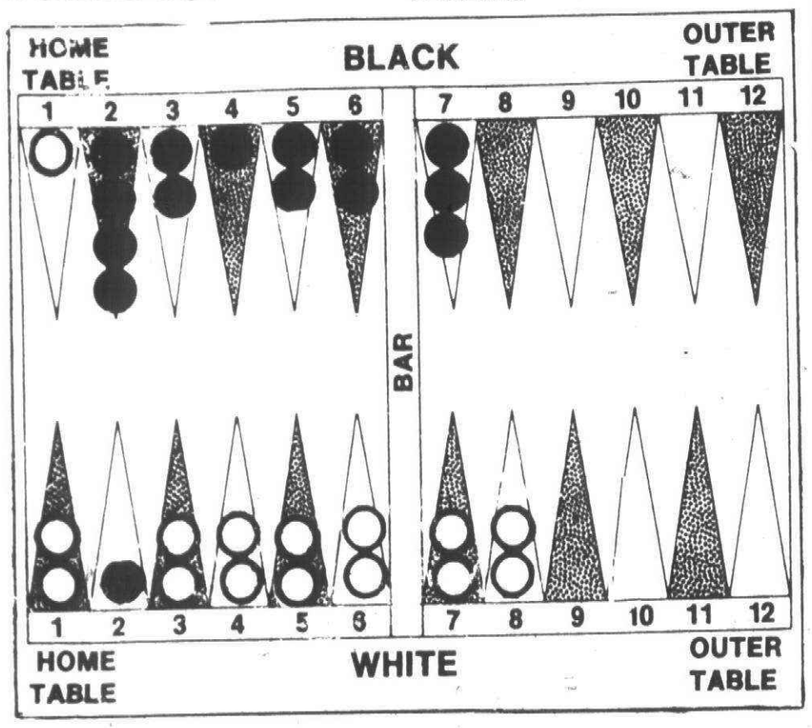

If you would have had a spare checker somewhere deep in the outer board (black or white side) and depending on the score, your move would have been correct.

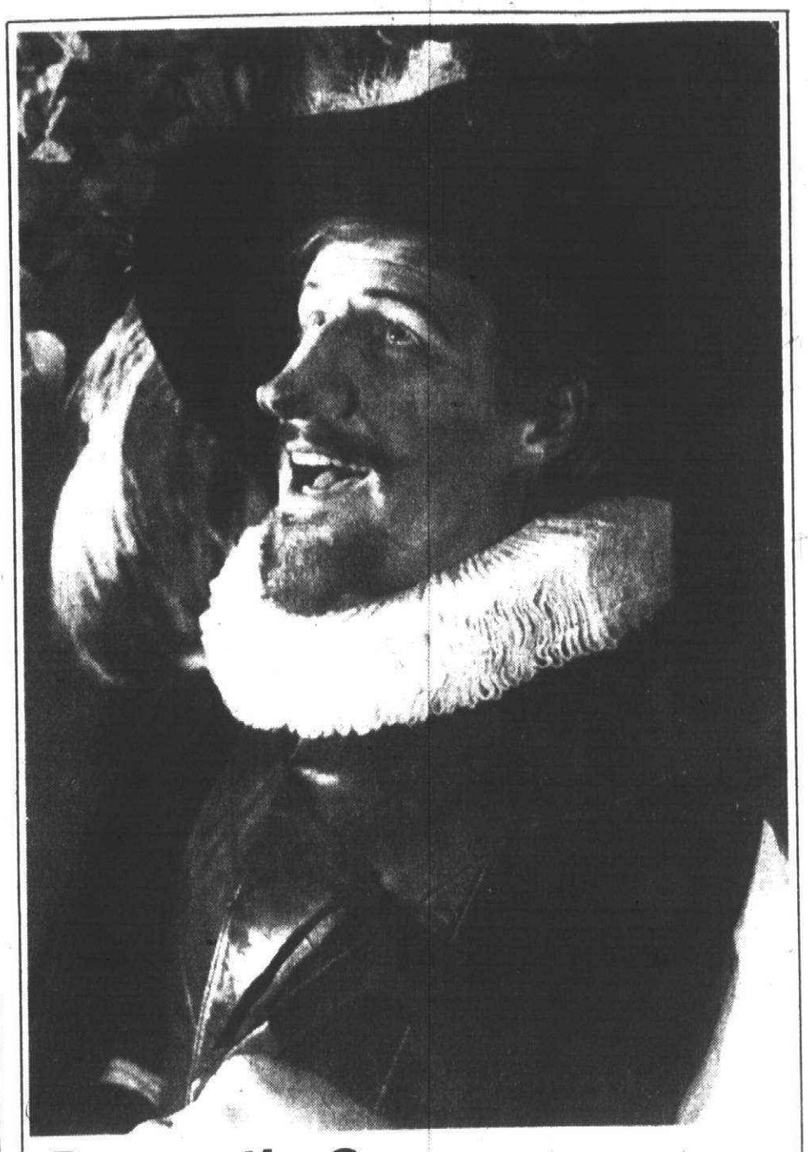

I realize that if white would have rolled a one and anything, you would have had your shot and white's prime would break.

However, there is another move that could have worked in your favor to accomplish just that. By moving your 4-point checker to the 2, and the 7 point checker to the 5, you are forcing white to move on his next roll. Of course, white could escape with 3-4, 3-5 or 3-6 (six out of 36 chances, or 17 percent) but 3-2, 3-1 and most other rolls play poorly.

Since white is not favored to roll a 3-4, 3-5 or 3-6, he is in no position to offer the doubling cube and, depending on white's roll, black may be in a position to send the cube on the next turn and win a point by forcing white to resign without rolling the dice.

Questions or comments concerning backgammon can be sent to the American Backgammon Club, Box 599, Plymouth, MI 48170, or phoned to 459-5776.

Tickets may be reserved by contacting the box office at Cass and Hancock, phone 577-2972.

wine

Richard Watson

Circumstances recently drove me to our wine cellar to review the collection of 1974 California Cabernet Sauvignons residing there. On those bottles that still carried price tags, it was astonishing to read their values, dating back to 1976-78 when they were purchased. The 1974 was the best California vintage in a long time and it has not since been equalled.

Compared to 1981-82 prices for premium Cabernets, the costs of these bottles was startling. Here are the wines and 1974 vintage price and 1978 vintage price:

- Clos du Val: $8.50 (1974); $14 (1978).
- Raymond: $5.95; $13.50.
- Clos du Bois: $4.50; $9.50.
- Stonegate: $5.29; $13.
- Krug: $5.29; $7.
- Parducci: $5.89; $8.
- Carneros Creek: $6; $12.

There were others, but the trend is obvious. Prices for the most available vintage today, the 1978, are often 50 percent and more higher after just four years. How fortunate to have put aside a group of Cabernets for mid-1980s consumption.

Then the thought occurs: What about after these?

The only vintage approaching the 1974s is the 1978 bunch, massive of alcohol, fruit and tannin as they are. They will not mature for at least a decade.

The solution, for late 1980s special occasions, seems obvious if a bit difficult. Now is the time to bite the bullet and purchase 1978 Cabernets for laying away. Who knows how long we must wait for a savable Cabernet vintage and what their prices will be?

It is prudent to note that we are close to the time when $14 is an arithmetic average for a bottle of respectable Cabernet and not far from the time when that figure will reach $20. Given this, today's prices for 1978 Cabernet are somewhat more tolerable.

THE LONG-AWAITED appearance of Gallo's Chardonnay has finally occurred in Michigan — for some reason we were one of the last states to receive it. Costing between $4.79 and $5.59 a bottle, this is a real value. There is a hint of oak and some round, rich fruit. It is designed to be drunk now.

Within a month of each other, two pioneers of California viticulture died last fall. Ernest Wente, 91, was one of the founders in the early days of the California wine industry. Bernard Fetzer, 61, was a great force for quality and greatness of the recent wine revolution that began in the late 1960s. Both leave established institutions which will continue without them but something of the history of the California scene died with each.

all Savers Certificate

If you elect to receive interest at maturity there is no compounding and the interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 8.34%. If you wish to have interest payable monthly or quarterly, the annual simple interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 8.010% and interest retained in your All Savers Certificate will be continuously compounded for an effective annual yield of 8.34%. These rates are available for All Savers Certificates opened through December 24, 1981. Rates for accounts opened after December 24, 1981, will be announced later. However, the rate established at the time an All Savers Certificate is opened is the rate in effect for the full one-year term of the account. You should also know that in the event of early withdrawal from an All Savers Certificate federal law and regulations require a substantial early withdrawal penalty and loss of the interest exclusion for federal income tax purposes. The All Savers rate of 8.34% is equivalent to the yields for taxable investments shown in the table. This table demonstrates how the All Savers Certificates can provide you with a higher after-tax yield than you may be earning from a money market mutual fund or on other investments. The deposit needed in your All Savers Certificate to achieve the maximum allowable deduction is $23,980.82 for a joint return and $11,990.41 for an individual return.

Here's what the one-year All Savers Certificate can mean to you.

- You can exclude up to $2,000.00 interest from federal income tax on a joint return ($1,000.00 on an individual return). The amount excluded is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.
- Your All Savers Certificate is insured to $100,000.00 by the FSLIC.
- Your interest rate is guaranteed for the full term of the certificate, unlike other investments such as money market funds where rates fluctuate daily.
- You can participate with a deposit of $500.00 or more.
- Funds in your Standard Federal 26-Week Money Market Certificate can be transferred to an All Savers Certificate without any early withdrawal penalty on the transferred funds.

Compare the Tax-Free All Savers Rate of 8.34% with Yields on Taxable Investments.

TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS	TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS
$10,000.00	10.17%	$ 70,000.00	18.13%
20,000.00	10.97%	80,000.00	18.13%
30,000.00	13.24%	90,000.00	20.34%
40,000.00	14.63%	100,000.00	20.34%
50,000.00	16.35%	110,000.00	23.17%
60,000.00	16.35%	120,000.00	23.17%

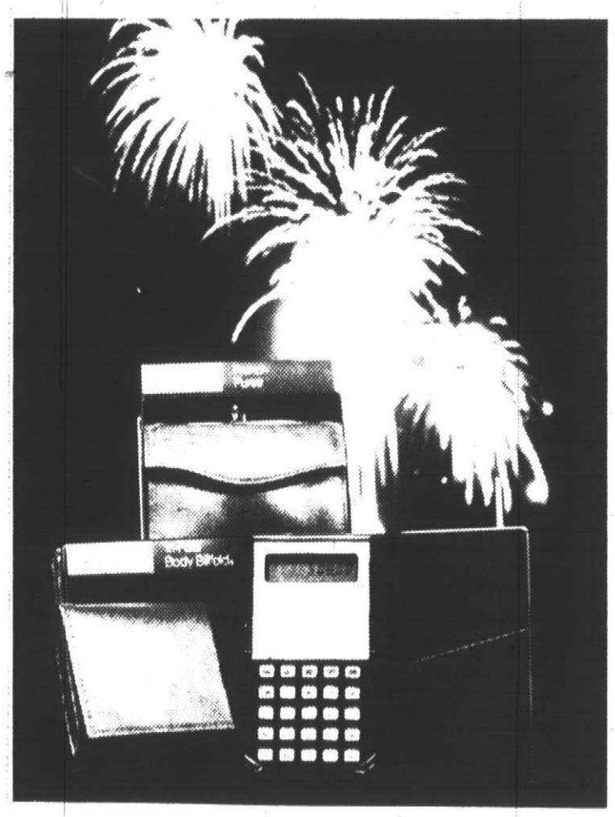

The yields shown in this table are based on 1981 tax rates but do not reflect the effects of any tax credits that may be available in 1981, nor do they take into account the 50% maximum tax rate on salary and wages. If tax-free interest is received in 1982, the comparable yield on taxable investments should be calculated using 1982 tax rates. In addition, the yield for the All Savers Certificate actually will be somewhat higher because the amount excluded from federal income tax is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.

Center symphony soloists share concert honors

By Joanne Kaye Psenka
special writer

review

The Center Symphony Orchestra, directed by Julius Chajes, presented two light-hearted concerti by musical genius Mozart and less-known Boccherini at the second concert of the season at the Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit.

Featured were two outstanding soloists Shaul Ben-Meir, flute, and Flavio Varani, piano.

In an opening comment, Chajes pointed out that Boccherini was a contemporary of Haydn and a prolific composer who was born in Italy and lived in Spain. His music isn't widely known today. Therefore, it was a treat to have Boccherini representd on the program in the Concerto for Flute and Strings, a tribute to the melodious and uncomplicated beauty of the composition.

To the delight of traditionalists, flute soloist Ben-Meir chose to recreate the composer's musical intentions in the allegro moderato with hushed clarity. In the adagio, he observed the challenge of the longer melodic lines with control and emphasis. Ben-Meir tried to render the rondo in a characteristic light crispness.

In this concerto, Boccherini's beginning seems already in the middle of the music. The plaintive playfulness of Ben-Meir's solo flute pierced the air like summer lightning. Together, string orchestra and flute wove an atmosphere of quiet elegance, suggesting a panorama of the Baroque world.

PRECISELY understated in Boccherini's streamlined manner of expression, the variation of an inverted melodic motif seemed satisfying and brilliantly done.

Ben-Meir attributes his purity of tone to "the mastery of vocal technique so similar to flute technique and to the understanding of the flute sound phenomenon as modification of an air stream." The soloist proved himself more than a knowing technician in the sensitively shadings which are the earmarks of nuance.

Equal mastery was demonstrated in the following Piano Concerto K503 by Mozart, played boldly by charismatic performer Flavio Varani.

"I attempted to explore Mozart with nuance and precision in unexpected places," he said. The success of this venture depended on Varani's mastery of independence of the hands. As the left made definitive statements, the right in contrary motion might interpret a lyrical melody.

CHAJES demonstrated an excellent ability to coordinate the voices of the more than two dozen orchestral performers and to respond to the mood references in the music discovered by Varani. The effect was a highly integrated and interesting entertainment.

Mozart's andante seemed to hang in the air as if in eloquent slow motion. The sustenato modulations were very satisfying. Upbeat arpeggios by Varani rang out sonorously.

Varani can span the keyboard quickly in repetition with fascinating versatility. He registers an absorbed concentration in his technique.

The horn section of the orchestra deserves note for charming expression on the final segment. The bass solo passage contrasted to the rest of the string section but was unified well with the total mood, again, due to Chajes strong direction.

Pottery expert to give talk

A potter from Santa Clara Peublo, N.Mex., Marion Rose, will give a free demonstration and explanation of the process of making the famous Santa Clara pottery at 7:30 tonight.

The program will be held on the lowel level of the Godfrey Building, Kerrytown, Ann Arbor. The address is 410 N. Fourth Avenue. Take route 23 to Ann Arbor and get off at the exit to go into the downtown area. It is just after the exit.

The program is under the direction of Lori Saginaw, owner of the Native Man Gallery of Ann Arbor.

travel

Thursday, December 10, 1981 (★14C,R,W,G-13A)★★7D

Greetings, world!

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

Travel is a people experience. When the last suitcase is unpacked, and the last photographed filed, our fondest memories may be of interesting people we have met in other places.

I often introduce you to people I've met on my travels, but sometimes there are memorable faces of very interesting people.

While you are working on your Christmas card list, I would like to share these Christmas cards to interesting people around the world.

Merry Christmas . . . Olga Fisch

Madame Olga. Forty-three years ago, she fled Hitler's troops in Hungary. Today, she is recognized as the leader of the folk art movement in Ecuador, commissioning the best-quality art from villages where native Indian crafts were becoming obsolete.

"If one can be grateful to Hitler for anything, I am grateful to be in Ecuador," she said. We were touring the magnificent array of ancient and modern crafts in her shop, Folklore, in the capital city of Quito.

"My privilege is that I came to Ecuador at the right time, when there was no acknowledgment of Indian art. I had beautiful Indian chest in my home, and my friends would say 'Why do you have that trash?' "

Madame Olga has been a collector since she was 12 years old. She became a pointer, weaver, jeweler, and as she puts it, "My privilege was that I had eyes."

She collected and then adapted folkloric designs and now works with 150 artists who are cottage workers. The work she sells is usually better quality and somewhat more expensive than you will find in the marketplace.

"We try not to carry airport art," she said.

Madame's neice, Gogo, designs clothing and "archaeological jewelry," ancient designs that sometimes include actual pre-Columbian pieces.

Madame Olga's collection of folk art costumes in on display in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington this year.

Greetings of the season to . . . Jimmy Rice

It takes a four-wheel drive to make the 1,500-foot drop from the lookout station down into Waipio Valley, but Jimmy Rice is just the man to take you there.

Rice was a runaway orphan from New York City when he discovered this six-mile-long, one-mile-wide hidden paradise, on the Hilo side of the big island of Hawaii.

"Sixty people live in the valley, 20 whites, the rest Hawaiians. Ninety percent of the Hawaiians are related," Rice said. "The Hawaiians came here 1,500 years ago by sea. There was no other way in and out before this road."

Some people would say that things haven't changed much, because the road is a 32-percent grade, one foot of lift for every three feet of distantce, like climbing the pitched roof of a house. Cars that try it can get down but usually need to be hauled back up . . . by Rice, of course

Even Rice and his four-wheel drive come down the steep road in low-low gear, riding down stream beds and rock roads. This is a family company, so if one person becomes ill and can't work, that person still gets his share.

There is a no-name hotel in the valley, "less than $10 a night, bring your own food." Rice will introduce you to his family, on the beach, in the taro fields, behind friendly house fences.

According to Rice, the Waipio Valley is where royal Hawaiian princes once came for their education, learning to fight, survive and rule.

If you'd like to visit the Valley with Rice, contact him through the County of Hawaii, Department of Research and Development, 25 Aupuni St., Hilo, Hawaii 96720.

I wonder where he is . . . Rick Bracken

Bracken was running a bulldozer for the gold mines in Dawson City, but when I met him at the Dawson City airport he had another problem. He was getting married that week, so his buddies soldered a ball and chain to his ankle and wouldn't allow him to take it off.

He did manage to remove it once, when his friends were sleeping off their prenuptial celebrations, but they caught him and put it right back on.

He carried it aboard the plane to Whitehorse, holding the heavy ball in his lap all the way and cheerfully planned to have it sawn off as soon as he had met his bride-to-be.

I never saw or heard of him again.

Happy holidays . . . Oswaldo Guayasamin

His name is pronounced guy-ah-sah-MEEN. It is the best-known artist's name in Ecuador. His first studio was seven meters; now, under a skylight, his 40-by-50-foot studio stretches in red tile floor past paintings and easels.

"My father was Indian and my mother (mestizo)," he said. "I came from a poor people with lots of problems, as well as 10,000 years of traditional Indian culture."

Guayasamin began painting at age 6 when he found a postcard of Santa Sophia, Istanbul, which he tried to reproduce on a straw mat. "The light in the picture was so bright that I could not paint it, so my mother took milk from her breast and mixed it with my paint."

His mother "died of overwork at age 35," but Guayasamin's father is still an honored guest at the table when people are entertained in the artist's lavish new home overlooking the city.

It is a very Ecuadorian experience to sit at Guayasamin's table. The barbecue of pork and chicken and sausage is eaten under an arched verandah with a marvelous view of Quito beyond. His guests ask so many questions that he cannot eat.

Guayasamin was 22 when he sold his first painting to Nelson Rockefeller ("He had a very good eye for art work"). The U.S. State Department took him on a tour of the United States.

Christmas greetings to . . . Alan Kinne

Kinne is a Michiganian unexpectedly discovered as manager of the Shenandoah Vineyards, in Edinburg, Va. Kinne is from Galien, Mich., and had graduated from the University of Michigan in literature and philosophy when he took a summer job in the vineyards at Tabor Hill.

Little did he know that he would end up in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, starting the first new winery that the state had seen in a long time.

People said it wouldn't work, but the vineyards have been planted for seven years now and the line is growing, working its way past the problems of humidity and insects to the day when it can produce enough wine for Virginians to drink.

Happy New Year . . . Johnny Johns

Nobody knows exactly how old Johnny Johns was when I met him two years ago at Carcros in the Yukon Territories, but he was well into his 80s even then.

He was born under a big spruce tree by the Yukon River as a member of the Tagish Indian tribe and was chef hunter and guide of the territories when he retired after 50 years on the job.

The last time I saw him, he had 18 great-grandchildren, 19 grandchildren, three children, had married four times and was thinking of marrying again.

Johns remembers stories of the gold rush days and of the days "before tents when the Russians come to trade." He went to school part of the year and hunted part of the year with his father until he was 14.

He would hunt even during school days, bringing home one moose a week for the school, traping foxes, lynx, coyotes, otter, bear, muskrat.

Johns was hunting and packing out heavy meat for 10 cents a pound when he decided to find another way to make a living. He advertised in Life magazine and Outdoor Life magazine as a hunter and guide — and never looked back.

"I didn't have an outfit, I had to borrow horses — in fact, I didn't know one end of a horse from the other — when I took my first hunter out. He was green and so was I, but we got together every year for 19 years.

Johnny has stories to tell about movie stars and royalty, about being charged by wild animals and falling through the ice with a dog sled. "I learned a lot of things in my time," he said.

"My parents taught me right from wrong and to be respectful of my elders. Hunting taught me to recognize the danger line and not to step beyond it."

If you are ever in the Yukon, ask anybody in Carcrosse about Johnny Johns.

Yuletide greetings to . . . Tom Hartig

As Dr. Thomas H. Hartig, Hartig was executive director of the Woodrow Wilson Birthplace in Staunton, Va., when we met him, but we soon learned that he was the son of Mr. and Mr. Arnold Hartig of Dearborn.

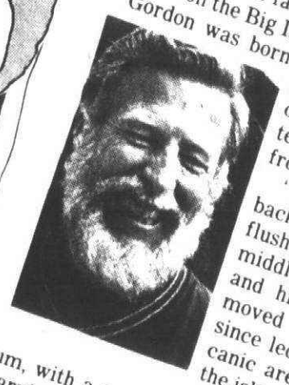

Hartig moved this year to Iowa City, where he is now executive director of the Humanities Board for the state of Iowa, but he carries fond memories of the Wilson house with him.

The reception center for the Woodrow Wilson house is in a red brick building next door, where Wilson memorablilia and 18-minute film of his life is shown. This was done so that the house itself could be kept as it was when Woodrow Wilson was born and grew up there.

The Wilson house is only one of the interesting things to see and do in the Shenandoah Valley, which starts at Winchester, runs down Highway 11, the Valley Pike, through Middletown, New Market and Staunton to Lexington.

For information on the Shenandoah Valley, contact the Shenandoah Valley Travel Association, Box 488, New Market, VA 22844.

Merry Christmas to . . . Gordon Morse

Gordon Morse was a newspapermen in Honolulu before he, his wife and family started a recreational vehicle rental service on the Big Island — Hawaii.

Gordon was born on Molokai, the "leper colony island" and was already vacationing regularly on the Big Island when the world of television and traffic finally drove him from the city.

"The straw that broke the camel's back was the night when a neighbor flushed his toilet and woke us up in the middle of the night," Gordon said. He and his wife Joanne packed up and moved to Hawaii, where they have since led RV caravans around the volcanic areas and the lush coastlines of the island.

Joanne is a fellow of Bishop's Museum, with a particular interest in petroglyphs, those ancient carvings in lava that are peculiar to this one Hawaiia island and to the southwestern United States.

Whenever she does a petroglyph rubbing, she gives a copy to Bishop's Museum. The Morse family has several hundred rubbings at home.

If you would like to meet the Morse family, contact Holo-Holo Campers, P.O. Box 11, Hilo, Hawaii.

START COLLEGE IN TWO YEARS WITH MORE THAN $15,000

How many employers today can guarantee you work for two years, let alone offer you a bonus for college? Today's Army will do both.

In fact, if you join the Army for two years, you could accumulate more than $15,000 for school. Here's how: If you participate in the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program (VEAP), the government will match the earnings you save two-for-one for a maximum of $7,200. Then, if you qualify, the Army will add on an $8,000 educational bonus. That's $15,200 in just two years.

For more information about how to serve your country while it helps you finance school, visit your local Army Recruiter. Or call Army Opportunities, 800-423-3673. In California, call 800-282-5864.
