School board continues to lay off staff

If enough students enroll, there will be a Talented and Gifted (TAG) seminar offerred next semester for high school students at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

That assurance was given by the administration Monday night before the school board voted 7-0 to send layoff notices to eight employees.

One of the employees conducted the TAG seminar at the CEP as well as serving as journalism teacher and newspaper advisor to the CEP Perspective.

The administration also assured the board and students attending that the journalism classes would be offered next semester, but could not make any guarantees as to whether there would be a newspaper advisor as that position is a voluntary one.

Monday night the board heard appeals from parents of gifted students and from CEP Perspective staff members.

Tha layoff notices will be sent to four employees at the CEP, two at Lowell Middle School and two at West Middle School.

CAROL DAVIS, board president, explained that during budget preparation the board set class ratios for all grade levels.

School principals were told ratios could be reached through attrition (resignations, retirements, leaves or deaths) or by layoff. If the ratio could not be reached through attrition by the end of the first semester, added Davis, the board's instructions were for layoffs to be made before the beginning of the second semester.

Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for personnel, commented that it would be low seniority teachers who were getting notices they would be laid off effective Jan. 22 unless someone left by attrition before that date.

Kee commented that there now are 25 teachers with more seniority who are on layoff status and are subject to recall.

Although eight are receiving notices, Kee said it was possible only six actually would be laid off depending upon what happened between now and Jan. 22.

"This notification is a formality which must be followed and it does not firmly mean these people will be laid off when the second semester comes," said Kee, "but it definitely is possible."

Each building principal was told how many certified staff members had to be laid off, said Kee, and the principals recommended which positions would be affected.

At the CEP principals decided to reduce one position on the media staff (a person trained as a cable television resource person), one business teacher and one English teacher with the other reduction gained by the voluntary departure of a counselor who won't be replaced.

Kent Buikema, principal of Plymouth Canton High, said of the cuts made the only program in danger of elimination was the TAG seminar taught by Sue Welker.

Gerald Ostoin, area coordinator of English and TAG programs at the CEP, said the position of newspaper was a voluntary one and no one could be assigned to do that work. To date, Ostoin added, no one has volunteered to serve as advisor.

Mike Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction, said steps were being taken to find someone to teach the TAG seminar, even if it had to be the district TAG coordinator for the balance of the semester.

Dr. John Hoben, superintendent, said only nine students had enrolled for the seminar and it would take about 15 students to sign up before he could justify offering the class.

Residents voice mixed reactions to sign changes

Andrew Panda, innkeeper for Knights Inn motel, said: "I have no exposure whatsoever. People call for reservations and then go back and forth on Ford Road looking for us. (I'm the) only innkeeper in the chain with an underground sign."

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Nearly everyone — residents and business people alike — who stepped to the microphone at Monday's Canton Planning Commission public hearing agreed that the township's businesses need a big economic boost.

But the size of that boost — and just what it could realistically do or not do for the community's businesses — were questions of much debate.

At issue were proposed changes to Canton's strict sigh ordinance. Some said businesss need bigger signs and more exposure to survive. Some said the proposed changes went too far. Some feared change would lead to a Las Vegas-like clutter. Some saw change as a way to cut residential taxes.

Some saw the proposed sign changes as an economic panacea, Some viewed them as the "first step" and still others urged residents to look at "identity" and "image" problems instead.

Two statements read to the standing-room-only audience by spokespersons from the Canton Chamber of Commerce and the Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi League of Women Voters presented polar positions at the hearing.

"THE CHANGES are necessary for Canton's businesses to survive," said John Schwartz, president of the Chamber of Commerce. "Our businesses need help. All we ask is to run our businesses on an equal basis with surrounding communities."

A spokesperson for the League of Women Voters, however, cautioned the audience saying, "larger signs don't equal more business. They are a bandage when major surgery is needed."

Canton Township resident Donica Keogh said, that because of restrictions on sign size, "very few people can find the businesses we need to support.

"I drove right by a businessman's place twice looking for his place," she said. "Natural wood signs are beautiful but when it rains or is dark, they are hard to see. I don't want a cluttered landscape, but I do want to give businessmen a fair chance."

Former Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert suggested "signs have not caused Canton's economy to dry up.

"The people in Canton are not spending money because the people in Canton don't have a penny," he said. "They are hurting badly here and the biggest sign in the world won't help."

Calling his message a "sobering speech," Culbert urged business people to look at their "service and price" instead of blaming the sign ordinance for their economic woes. "A lot goes into a business other than a sign," he said. Deborah O'Connor, library director for the Canton Township Library, said she had never seen a women's clothing store in Canton until someone from the Chamber of Commerce told her there was a Winkelman's on Ford Road.

As library director, she said she had gotten to know a lot of Canton businessmen and was convinced they were "not out to make a hundred million dollars at the expense of living in a junky town."

LONG-TIME CANTON resident Bart Berg, a former Wayne County Charter Commissioner, was greeted with handclaps and applause when he told the audience, "I don't ask what I can or can't do. I just do it.

"Why should government tell business what they need?" he said.

Canton township resident Michael Lane said he was "concerned" about seeing his tax bill increasing while neighboring communities were getting Canton's business dollars.

"What are we doing to attract new business?" he asked.

Canton township resident Todd Ehrhart answered the question, saying "Canton has done nothing but discourage businesses to move into Canton for the last 15 years."

Two residents — one was Canton Township trustee Carol Bodenmiller — praised Canton for its uncluttered appearance, defended the strict sign ordinance and urged the commission members to walk cautiously in changing it.

Ms. Bodenmiller compared Canton, Michigan, to Canton, Ohio, where "they have so many large, portable, tall signs you can't find anything.

"When cities go to that extreme, businesses start to go downhill," she warned.

DURING A break in the hearing, commission member Diane Neihengen said she would still vote against the proposed changes to the ordinance, even after listening to three hours of mostly pro-sign sentiment.

Ms. Neihengen cast the only no vote when the commission recently approved 5-1 the proposed ordinance. Voting yes were Loren Bennett, John Burdziak, Richard Kirchgatter, Richard Palmer and Robert Shefferly. The seventh member resigned about two months ago and moved from the city.

The proposed changes would have to be approved by the township's planning commission, the Wayne County Planning Commission and the Township Board.

Neihengen criticized the Chamber of Commerce for "writing the ordinance" for the planning commission.

"They (the commission) adopted every single Chamber of Commerce recommendation," she said. "I want to see a healthy compromise and it has not yet come. These signs were a big issue in the 1976 and 1978 elections. If we don't compromise, before long we will have furious residents and furious businesmen fighting each other."

Businesses fight for sign ordinance relief

At Monday's Canton Township Planning Commission meeting, business persons filled the room with tales of hidden signs, dark streets and lost business.

All were willing and anxious to cast aside the current sign ordinance, adopted in 1975, and support a farless restrictive one now under consideration.

Andrew Panda, innkeeper for Knights Inn motel, drew bursts of laughter after describing himself as the "only innkeeper in the chain with an underground sign."

Panda told the audience: "I have no exposure whatsoever. People call for reservations and then go back and forth on Ford Road looking for us. This is ridiculous."

FOLLOWING ARE some of the comments made by other Canton businessmen at the hearing:

- Robert Card of McDonald's Restaurant, 40241 Michigan: "Nobody knows we are there. We are having problems, and it is getting tough."
- Woody Lynch of Skatin' Station, 8611 Ronda: "I just want a fair shot at the business market. There are no lights on Joy Road. My volume dropped $2,500 this weekend after I took down the temporary sign."
- Peter Nelson of Nelson Sign Service Inc., 47360 Ford Road: "Business depends strictly on exposure. Companies come to us for suggestions. We tell them, 'Sit tight, you won't gain anything from an 18-square-foot sign.'

'Signs will not cure the (ecomonic) problem, but we need them to get people into the business the first time . . . My business would die if I relied fully on Canton residents. I rely on people who drive up and down Ford Road.'

—Rene Hetu
Canton merchant

"I have had cash offers from businesses to ignore the ordinance and put up a sign and fight the city. If residents want to foot the bill, they can. I won't. I will move out of Canton if there is no change."

NELSON SAID he was not allowed a sign on his own sign business.

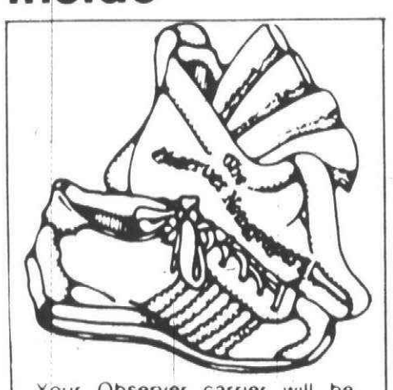

- Rene Hetu of Cracker Barrel Party Center, 41741 Ford Road: "These are hard times economically. Signs will not cure the problem, but we need them to get people into the business the first time. Then it is up to us to keep them. My business would die if I relied fully on Canton residents. I rely on people who drive up and down Ford Road."
- Brian Parsons of Poppin Fresh Pies, 5946 N. Sheldon: "Of the four Poppin Fresh restaurants in Michigan, we have the lowest volume. Everything is the same except the sign."

Proposed ordinance changes include the use of free-standing signs, an increase in the number of farm-produce signs, the use of signs double the size now allowed and tower signs along the I-275 freeway.

High taxes draw angry calls

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Angry telephone calls have been flooding the Canton Township treasurer's office since the 1981 tax bills were mailed Dec. 1.

Marie Falkiewicz, Canton Township treasurer, said the calls are coming despite a year of publicity about the tax increase due to state-ordered assessing formulas — because residents are hit hard by layoffs and recessionary times.

"The secretaries have even had to deal with threats," Ms. Falkiewicz said. "Not against their life, but the people themselves feel threatened, they want to do something and they don't know who to turn to or where to go.

"A home is your whole life. If you lose that you lose everything you have worked for."

Some 16,000 residents have received the 1981 tax bill — formal notification of this year's 16.5 percent property-tax increase.

Canton Township is one of many communities across the state now coming face-to-face with what state-mandated equalized residential assessments mean in dollars and cents on tax bills. Last January, the state ordered all state equalized values (SEVs) should be figured individually, by class, and not lumped together with business and developmental properties.

AN APPROXIMATE 4 percent township millage rollback earlier this fall kept the tax bills from going even higher, Ms. Falkiewicz said. The rollback came about after hundreds of residents protested the coming increases last spring.

The current protests are compounded by "depression times," according to the treasurer.

"When times were good here and taxes were increased, people were upset, but they were more apt to accept it," she said. "It's different today. There is in Canton a lot of

Parents protest Geer's closing

Parents of students attending Geer School are organizing a campaign to keep the historic school open.

Monday night three parents appealed to the school board not to include the closing of Geer School in its budget cuts for the coming school year. Speaking against the proposal to close Geer Elementary School were Donna Keough, Dr. Martin Hogan and John VanDyke.

They promised to return to the board regularly to inform members of the value of keeping Geer open.

MRS. KEOUGH said it was premature to make a decision now about closing the school which has "101 years of academic excellence."

Roots are important to the Plymouth community, she said, and Geer is an important reminder of the area's roots. Mrs. Keough said she gets the impression that because Geer is different and old some people view it as expendable.

HOGAN commented that the district's budget was constantly in flux, which made it "difficult for a citizen to get a handle on such an elusive budget."

He also said that the district is spending some $2,400 per student, based on the most recent budget information in early December, compared to Geer's expenditures of $1,800 per child. Geer has a certified staff ratio to students of 29:1 compared to the district's goal of 26:1, he added.

VANDYKE remarked that he has lived in the school's neighborhood for 41 years. He remembers when there was a separate Geer School District and his father was president of the Geer Board of Education.

When smaller districts were ordered by the state to consolidate with larger ones, he said the Geer board had the choice of joining Ypsilanti, Northville or Plymouth-Canton.

VanDyke argued that the "financial sheets will show that finances are not the key issue here." He urged the board to "blow away the pile of administrative gobbledygook on Geer and begin asking what are the solutions to the problems faced."

There is no insulation in the Geer building, claimed VanDyke. He said an expenditure of $500 for insulation might help lower heating costs.

Carol Davis, board president, suggested that the superintendent or another administrator meet with Geer parents at the next meeting of the Geer PTO to discuss the issues.

Illuminated by the lamp light, Plymouth's Don Schneider begins work on a new ornament at his demonstration in the Mayflower Hotel.

Hot stuff!

Schneider's an artist in glass

By Gary Caskey
staff writer

He sits in a corner of the Mayflower Hotel lobby illuminated by the flaring light of his lamp.

Plymouth resident Don Schneider is back for a second year demonstrating his creations in glass. Displayed on his work table are handcrafted glass beads, spiral and bulb ornaments, and samples of his furnace work which include paperweights and vases.

Schneider works in an art form believed to be more than 4,000 years old. He started out spending one full year at Greenfield Village under the supervision of head glass blower Bob Bourassa.

SINCE THEN, Schneider has built his own studio in Old Village, a business and residential district of the city of Plymouth. Although he has worked with glass for only six years, his efforts have gained him increased personal recognition.

Schneider recently demonstrated at the Toledo Museum of Art, which also happens to possess one of the world's finest collection of ancient glass.

The Detroit Institute of Art features Schneider Christmas ornaments in their annual Christmas catalogue. The Detroit Institute of Art as well as the Toledo Museum of Art retail his beads and ornaments in their respective gift shops.

Schneider also shares his expertise with Jim Bowman's glass blowing class in the Wayne-Westland school district. This class is one of only seven high school classes in the country.

LAMP WORKING is the basis of all Schneider demonstrations. Lamp working, a year-round activity for Schneider, is the art of remelting glass to alter its shape.

Schneider also does furnace work at his Old Village studio. Furnace work, the art of shaping molten glass on the end of steel rods, is done mostly during cold-weather seasons because of the heat generated.

Schneider is proud of his innovations in applying furnace techniques in the decoration of his glass beads. The glass used in ornament and bead making is Pyrex, a hard glass. This glass will sustain temperatures of 2,100 degrees Fahrenheit (F), while the lamp flames attain temperatures of more than 5,000 degrees F.

Visitors are encouraged to be careful around the demonstration table because of the hot temperatures.

Schneider enjoys seeing customers return. In fact, one such visitor — Kathy Williams of Canton — apparently

Tax woes plague residents

auto industry-related workers who have exhausted all their (layoff) benefits. That means a lot of people out of work and barely surviving."

Ms. Falkiewicz described the angry taxpayers as falling generally into two groups: those who are out of work and desperate and those who feel the township is callously and arbitrarily raising taxes.

TAXES ARE payable without penalty through Feb. 14 but the deadline will probably be extended to the end of the month, Ms. Falkiewicz said.

She said it is the Wayne County Treasurer's responsibility to collect all unpaid taxes. Residents have three years to pay the bill but a 4-per cent collection fee and a monthly charge of 1.5 percent is added on, Ms. Falkiewicz said.

Seniors who have trouble paying taxes, and who are expecting a property-tax rebate, can take advantage of a special two-month deferment, Falkiewiccz said. Forms for the deferment are available at the township treasurer's office.

Falkiewicz estimated 3,500 to 4,000 Canton residents pay the bill themselves while 10,000 to 11,000 are paid by mortgage companies through escrow accounts.

She suggested financially battered taxpayers call their mortgage company and try to work out alternate payment arrangements.

She also said she wants taxpayers to keep the phones ringing in her office.

"Let all of us know how you feel. Some people feel it's no use. People do'nt care. We are listening and trying to be sympathetic. And we are forwarding this information to our state representat1ves."

PARTLY IN RESPONSE to the statewide uproar over this year's raised residential assessments, State Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland), introduced a house bill September 30 which would require home purchasers to notify their local assessor when they buy a home. Included in the notification would be the selling price.

"The intent of this bill is to improve assessing practices," Brown said. "It's meant to help assessors. Assessing is supposed to reflect 50 percent of fair market price. But many properties are assessed over or under 50 percent because assessors don't have all the proper information. The responsibility now lies with the assessor to get this information. The bill won't solve all of the problem, just some of it."

The bill is now in the house and has been amended to include a property-tax decrease.

"I support a property-tax decrease but this amendment will hold the bill up now and make it more difficult to pass," said Brown, who has served 10 years on the house taxation committee.

TO HELP TAXPAYERS cope with the tax increase, Ms. Falkiewicz also made two other suggestions.

She urged residents to make full use of the "circuit breaker" tax break on their state income tax returns to get some portion of their taxes back. more

And she urged residents to "be there" when the township sets its millage rates next year.

"It does make a difference," she said. "Protests made a difference in their tax rate this year."

TAG program may be saved

Schools lay off 8 employees

DAVE CALAHAN, business manager of the student newspaper, said the transfer of Ms. Welker would be an interruption which would be detrimental to the journalism program at the high schools.

Calahan said Ms. Welker teaches three introduction to journalism classes plus serving as advisor to the journalism lab for students who work on the paper.

If no one is found to teach the classes, he added, there will not be a paper next year because the staff is losing 17 seniors this year.

Ron King, editor-in-chief of the paper, said Ms. Welker spent a great deal of time on her own over the summer studying under Denise Elliott, last year's advisor who had left at the end of the year.

As an advisor, King added, she often would work until 10 to 11 p.m. on a Friday or Saturday working with printers to get the paper out. The dedication and hours are such, he added, that another advisor may not come forth.

Sandra McClennan, speaking as a parent, said elimination of the TAG seminar at this point would effectively destroy the TAG program at the high schools.

Ms. Welker took special training to work with TAG students, she added, and for that reason is uniquely qualified and not replacable.

TAG's strength is the small number of students involved, added Dr. McClennan. Only nine signed up, she said, because the seminar has been scheduled next semester for first hour — a time when most college prep classes are being taught.

"You seem to be making it impossible for the TAG seminar to function and then will say it doesn't work so you can dismantle the entire program,"McClennan said.

TOM YACK, trustee, argued that cuts at the CEP could be made in the art departments and physical education which could support higher ratios with less harm to students.

"Physical education and music, for instance, by their very nature should have large number of students involved and higher ratios because these areas need the large numbers and require fewer academic skills."

Buikema answered that to eliminate one physical education teacher would cause a number of spinoff results including schedule changes for some 150 students.

Commenting on disruptions to students, Kee noted that some 250 teachers have transferred from the district on their own accord from spring to fall, moves which may have caused disruption but over which the administration had no control.

Trustee Flossie Tonda stressed that the board had to layoff by seniority and had to follow the rules it agreed to in the contract with the union when terminating employees.

Yack argued the board looks to the administration for recommendations but the board itself had ultimate responsibility for the curriculum in the school district.

Trustee Glenn Schroeder disagreed, claiming the board's job is to set policy and then it should allow the administration to implement that policy.

Yack, noting that TAG at the high school was in danger of being eliminated, stressed that in all the other budget cuts few classes were totally eliminated and few new programs have been given a chance to last for a trial of only one semester.

Dr. Hoben reminded the board that earlier in the year it gave layoff notices (pink slips) to 147 teachers and ended up calling back 122 to work. The comparison can be made the the current situation, said Hoben, because while eight are getting notices the number actually laid off could be two or three, or any number from zero to eight.

AFTER MORE discussion, the board finally voted 7-0 to authorize layoff notices to the eight persons as recommended by administration.

Yack than made a resolution directing administration to make a staff reduction at the CEP in some other area than in the English department. That motion failed 2-5 with Yack and Elaine Kirchgatter voting in favor.

County bucks MSU Extension choice

Wayne County commissioners want Michigan State University to know they disapprove of its choice for director of the Cooperative Extension Service here.

Commissioner R. William Joyner, D-Plymouth, was the lone dissenter as the county board asked MSU to appoint Dr. June L. Sears, a black woman, longtime resident and veteran of the staff, to head the CES. MSU had proposed Illa Harris, a white woman from Maryland, for the position.

"It's the Cooperative Extension Service's position, not ours," Joyner said of the choice of Sears. The CES is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and operated by MSU.

THE LOCAL office is at 5545 Wayne Road, Westland. The director's post previously was occupied by Donald Juchartz, who stepped down to return to staff work.

The proposal to ask for the appointment of Ms. Sears came from the human resources committee, chaired by Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster.

Joyner objected that the committee report failed even to list the names of the four candidates interviewed for the directorship, gave no reason for wanting to reject MSU's appointment and offered no rationale for substituting Ms. Sears.

The human resources committee learned of MSU's plan to appoint Ms. Harris Oct. 14, according to the committee report. The committee interviewed Ms. Harris, then asked to interview the other three finalists.

The committee report said it developed criteria for the best kind of director. The criteria included academic qualifications, experience in Cooperative Extension, knowledge of the county in light of the depressed economy and federal "affirmative action" guidelines.

But the report didn't indicate how any of the candidates matched the criteria.

THE BOARD resolution said the county board "do$s not concur" in MSU's appointment and would "approve" the appointment of Ms. Sears.

After the floor vote, Mrs. Beard said in an interview:

"Harris has a master's degree and has not worked in Cooperative Extension as long as Sears.

"Sears has been in extension most of her career. She is a longtime resident of Wayne County, someone who has lived and worked here. She has been acting director when Don (Juchartz) was out. And in these days of affirmative action, she's a black female with a PhD. She has a good background and recommendations.

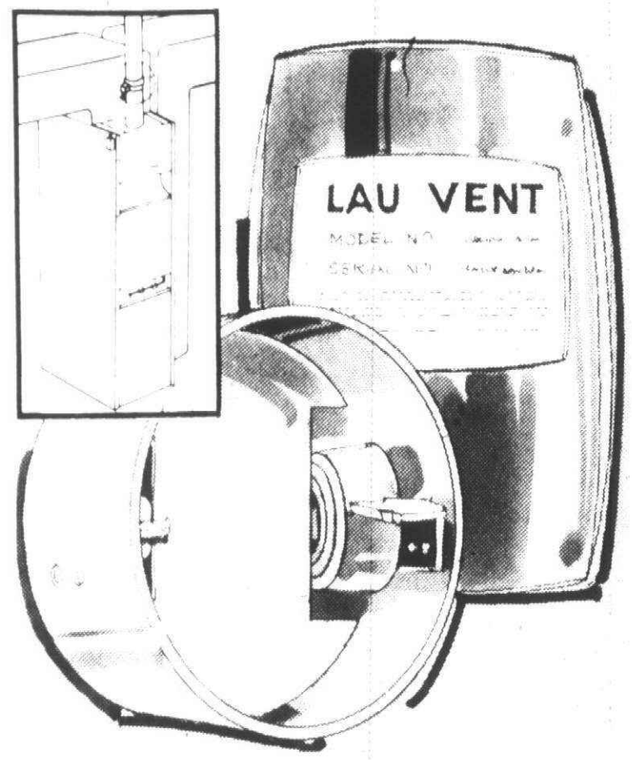

"MSU seems to think bringing people in from out-of-state lends credibility to their operation. Well, we think Michigan has been hard hit (by unemployment), and that they should hire someone who knows the area."

Cop evaders to get stiffer fines

Gov. William Milliken recently signed into law a bill which increases penalties for drivers who refuse to stop when a police officers signals them.

The old maximum penalty is raised from 90 days in jail and a $100 fine to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

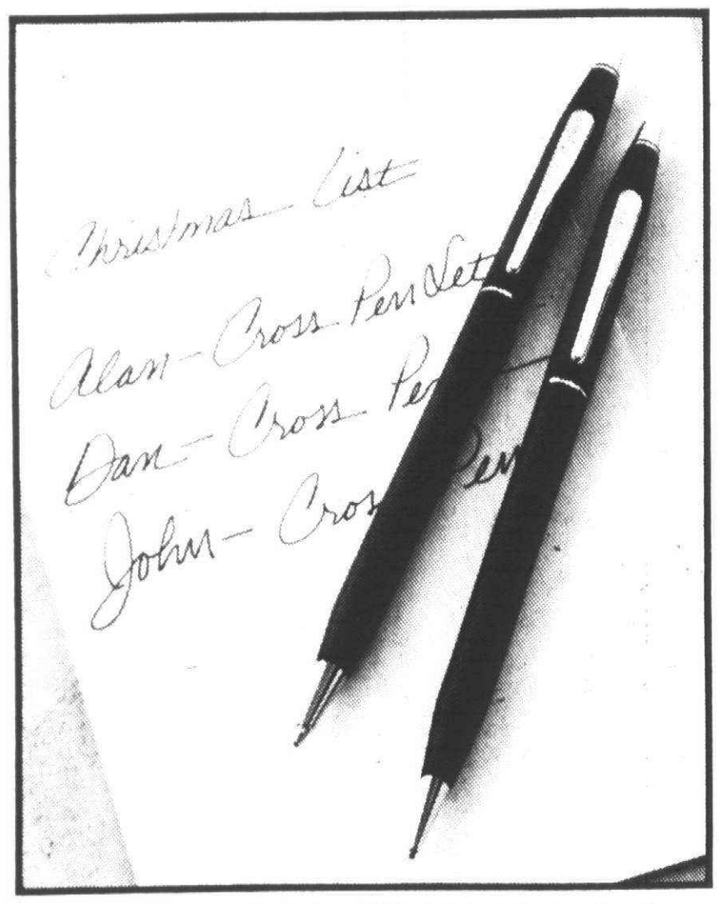

The measure also increases the assessment of points from four to six and requires the secretary of state to suspend the violator's license for 90 days to two years.

Water suit still flows through courts

By Suzie Rollins Singer
staff writer

Ninety-six southeastern Michigan suburbs are going to bat again — this time in the U.S. Court of Appeals — in hopes of ending a five-year dispute with the Detroit Water Board.

The appeal request has been filed by George E. Ward, the Detroit attorney who will represent the suburban customers. Ward has 38 days to write a brief, but it may be a year before the case is heard.

At the suggestion of Oakland County Drain Commissioner George W. Kuhn, the group also agreed Tuesday to push a petition drive to change state law to allow suburban customers to elect their own representatives to the Detroit Water Board.

Signatures of 250,000 residents are required by June 30 to place the proposal before Michigan voters on the November 1982 ballot.

THE SEVEN-member Water Board is appointed by Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

Four Detroit residents and three suburbanites serve on the water board. They may, however, be fired by Young at any time during their terms — and that is the bone of contention.

Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara was the Wayne County suburban representative on the water board for two years until he was fired in 1975 by Young for criticizing water department policies.

"No one man should have control of a water board. There are 96 communities buying its water from Detroit, and they should have representation," Kuhn said.

McNAMARA CORRALLED representatives from many of the 96 communites to report on a recent court ruling that denied the suburbs recovery of $3.5 million in interest paid to the water board since 1976.

The suburban association charges that the interest money was never used for suburban water operations, as Detroit claimed. In addition, McNamara said charges to suburban homeowners have been steadily increasing above and beyond the actual cost of pumping water from Detroit into the suburbs.

However, Wexford Circuit Judge William Peterson ruled that the court cannot say the rate of return on extra-city sales is unreasonable.

"The fixing of such rates is a legislative matter with which the courts will not interfere unless the plaintiff shows that the rate determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable," Peterson's opinion said.

BUT WARD disagreed.

"We believe Judge Peterson's findings of fact furnish an excellent record on which to appeal the issue of whether the city of Detroit breached its contracts with suburban customers by forcing them to abosorb the cost of lost interest amounting to approximately $3.5 million for each of the six years when such cost clearly is unrelated to suburban service and has no other effect but to subsidize service to another class of users," he told the suburban officials.

McNamara urged support of the appeal. 'Never before has there been a case with such technicalities. But we now have all the information we need in the circuit court case."

While most representatives favored the appeal, Plymouth Township City Engineer Kenneth West was skeptical.

"I really don't know if we can prove that the (interest) money wasn't used for suburban operations. But I will probably recomend that we participate in the appeal with our neighboring communities," West said.

So far, $130,000 has been spent on the lawsuit's legal and accounting fees. For the appeal, communities will be assessed 1.5 cents per resident to produce about $36,000.

Troy's representative Donald Spurr said the appeal is "a good idea to try and get back the money they earned on the suburbs' investments."

Southfield Deputy Assistant City Attorney Joel Saxe said although the appeal cost is high, it's necessarry.

'I really don't know if we can prove that the money wasn't used for suburban operations. But I will probably recomend that we participate in the appeal with our neighboring communities.'

"THE MUSIC MAKER"
Diameter 8½" Issue Price $19.50

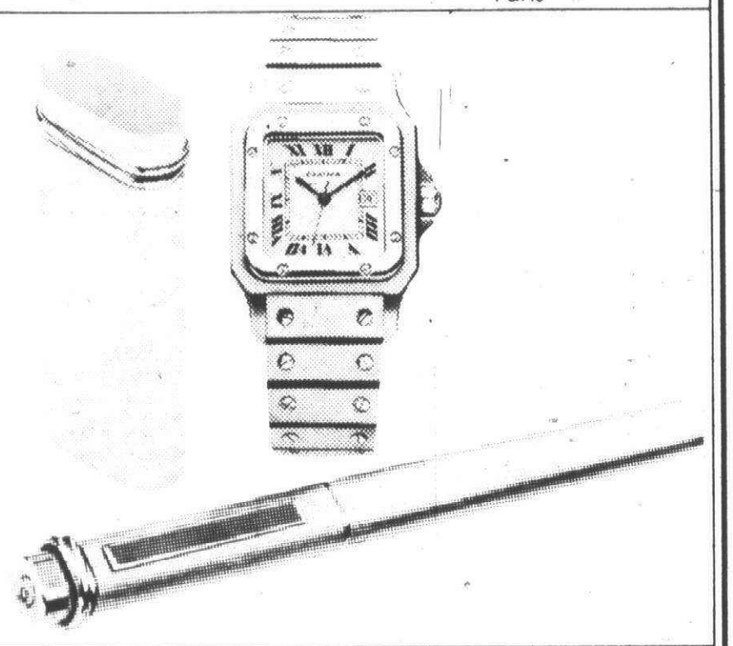

"The Music Maker" is Norman Rockwell at his most appealing. He takes an everyday happening — a shared moment between man and boy — and adds a sensitivity which is uniquely "Rockwell." The rich colors, realistic brushwork and warm, sensitive portrayals which have endeared Rockwell's work to millions are very much in evidence in this 1981 issue in the Rockwell Heritage Collection.

We expect heavy demand for this fine limited edition collector's plate bearing the hallmark of Knowels and certified as a "true Rockwell classic" by the Rockwell Society of America.

Working: changes and choices

Employee-owned firms show good rate of growth

This is the 12th of 15 articles written for Courses by Newspaper, an extension program of the University of California, San Diego, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities. © 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.

By William Foote Whyte and Joseph Raphael Blasi special writers

William Foote Whyte (left) is professor emeritus of the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University. Among his many books are "Street Corner Society," "Men at Work," "Money and Motivation" and "Organizing for Agricultural Development." Joseph Raphael Blasi (right) is a lecturer in social studies and director of the project of kibbutz studies, Center for Jewish Studies at Harvard University. He is the author of the "The Communal Future: The Kibbutz and the Utopian Dilemma," "Bibliography of the Kibbutz" and several articles on employee ownership.

Amid debates over the relative merits of government ownership vs. investor ownership, a third alternative is emerging to capture popular interest: employee ownership.

Approximately two-thirds of the Americans queried in a 1975 national survey said they would rather work in an employee-owned company than in one owned by private investors of the government.

And current evidence indicates an increasing number of workers will actually have this option in the years ahead.

OTHER COUNTRIES have experimented with firms owned neither by government nor by private investors.

Yugoslav factories, Israeli Kibbutzim and the Mondragon system of workers' cooperatives in the Basque region of Spain are examples of "socially owned" industries.

While the workers do not actually own pieces of the firms, neither are the firms owned by the state or outside capitalists. Control is based upon labor, with each worker having one vote for the governing body of the firm.

All three cases have impressive records of economic growth, although Yugoslav growth slowed down in the 1970s.

Because laws and traditions are different in the United States, here "social ownership" has taken the form of employee stock ownership or cooperative ownership.

The best-known examples of cooperative ownership are the plywood cooperatives of the Pacific Northwest. These 16 cooperatives have for decades outperformed conventionally owned firms in both productivity and earnings of their worker-owners. But until a few years ago they seemed to be isolated cases, attracting little public attention.

THE RECENT surge of interest in worker ownership is due to a phenomenon that emerged in the 1970s.

Facing plant shutdowns, workers, union leaders, local managers and community leaders mobilized to secure government and bank financing to buy the plants and convert them to worker ownership.

More than 50 plants — ranging in size from about 100 workers to more than 13,000 in the Chicago and Northwestern Transportation Co. — have thus been saved. And none of these employee-owned firms, to the best of our knowledge, has gone bankrupt.

How can employees successfully operate a plant that is abandoned by a big private company?

In the 1970s conglomerates began dumping parts of their empires. In many cases, the abandoned plants were not losing money, but the profits were not high enough to safisfy those in control.

In such cases, the employees did not need to improve efficiency to save their jobs. Initially they were happy simply to be employed.

The solution to the shutdown problem in such cases now appears to have been deceptively simple. The workers soon wanted more of a voice in management, but the managers were so occupied with their enlarged responsibilities that they gave no thought to the need for a new style of leadership.

WHEN VERMONT Asbestos Group's Board Chairman, John Lupien, was asked about worker participation in decision making, he would answer: "If you own stock in General Motors, that does not give you the right to run General Motors?"

Similarly, Richard Boulis, president of South Bend Lathe, wrote to one of the authors, "We tell our people they have all the advantages of ownership without any of the headaches of management."

IN SUCH CASES, there are often two stages of development.

At first, workers, managers and local people have struggled together to save the plant. The early weeks following their great achievement are marked by mutual respect and trust. Workers make no claims for influence or control, but they vaguely expect that they will be more "equal" and treated with more dignity.

Disillusionment can follow, however. When workers at Vermont Asbestos Group (VAG) found that ownership gave them no say on important management decisions, Howard Manosh, a respected local entrepreneur, was able to buy enough stock to gain control of the company. And now John Lupien, hero of the job-saving campaign, no longer works for VAG.

At South Bend Lathe, the underlying contradiction betwen workers sharing in ownership and not sharing in decision making precipitated a bitter strike in September 1980. However, a few months later union and management joined forces to launch "share circles," a worker participation program modeled after Japanese Quality Controls Circles.

PLANTS THAT are losing money are even more difficult to convert sccessfully to worker ownership.

Some research suggests that workers sharing in ownership leads to higher productivity. However, worker owners can hardly assume that their uprofitable company will be saved just by letting this tendency work its magic.

For this type of uphill struggle, Rath Packing Co. may become the landmark case. For a decade, this Waterloo, Iowa, firm of nearly 3,000 workers had verged on bankruptcy.

Led by Lyle Taylor, president, and Charles Mueller, chief steward of Local 46, Untied Food and Commercial Workers Union, workers decided to save their jobs by buying a controlling interest in the company.

While they were completing arrangements, they agreed to put money from previously bargained benefits into an account to strenghten the capital base of the company when the new board took over. They also agreed to a $20-per-week payroll deduction for over two years to buy the necessary stock.

A $4.6 million Urban Development Action grant ot Waterloo, which then loaned the money to Rath, completed the package.

In 1980 Rath launched a comprehensive program of labor-management cooperative problem solving. The survival of the company is by no means assured, but there is a growing conviction that Rath's future depends upon workers, union leaders and managers working together for more effectively than in the past.

WORKER OWNERSHIP is likely to grow substantially, partly as a result of government action.

Legislation passed by Congress in 1974 supporting the creation of Employee Stock Ownership Trusts has been an important stimulus. The law is being used to help employees purchase stock in thousands of firms and secure majority ownership in a smaller number of plants that would otherwise close.

The small Business Employee Ownership Act, passed in 1980, directs the Small Business Adminsitrartioin (SBA) to assist newly created or converted employee-owned firms with loans, loan guarantees and technical assistance.

In addition, the 97th Congress is considering encouragement of employee ownership as one way to preserve viable small businesses when the owner-manager retires or dies.

Though the issue has not been finally resolved, the dramatic effort of the employees of Continetal Airlines to stave off a takeover of their company through establishing majority employee ownership may have widespread repercussions.

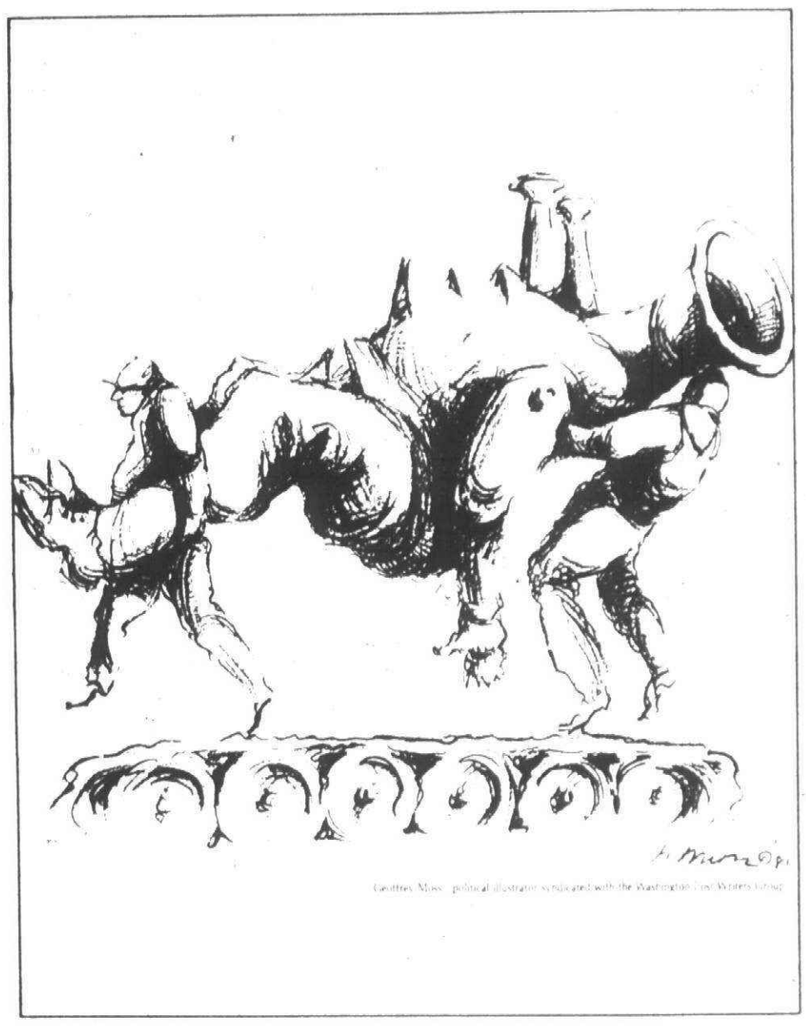

The case suggest that establishemnt of an "employee stock ownership plan" (ESOP) well in advance of the takeover threat can make hostile takeovers substantially more difficult.

THE CASE also suggests a new thrust in collective bargaining, along the following lines:

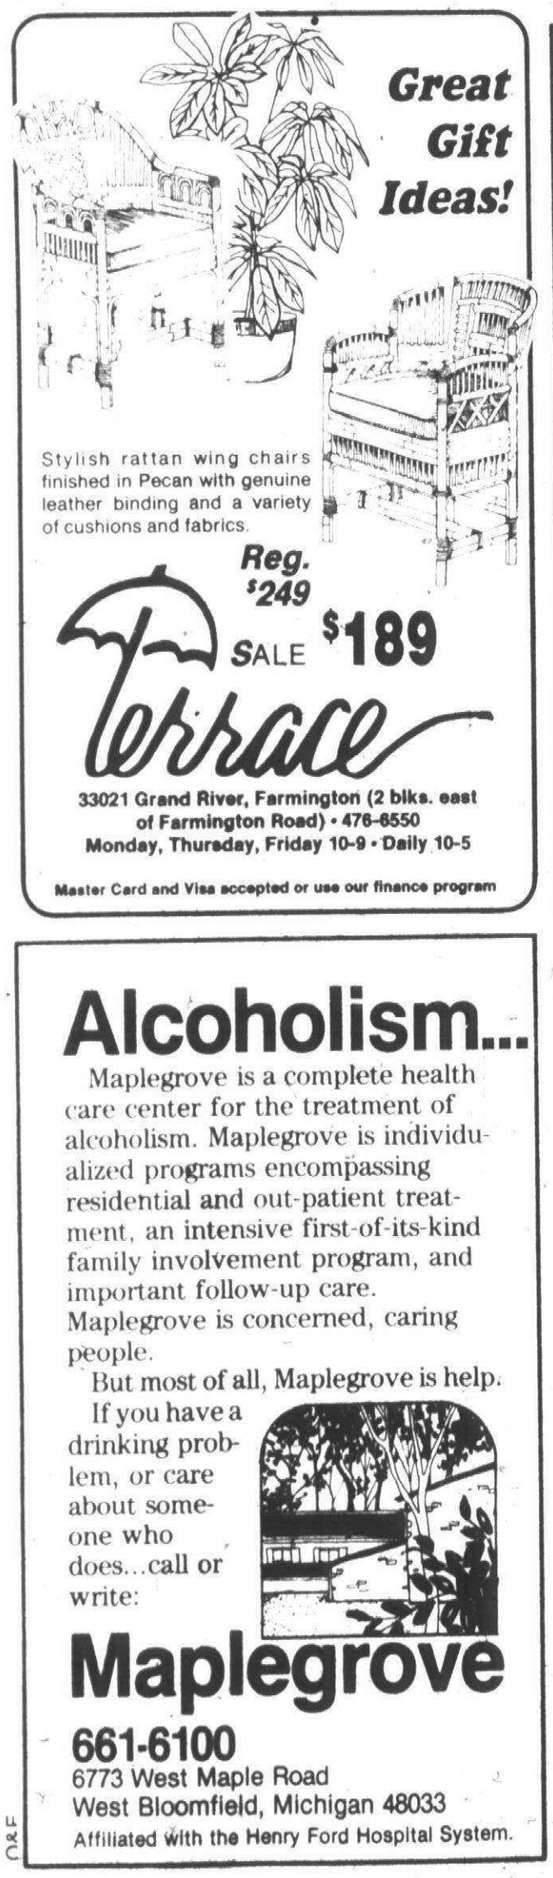

The company demands that workers take pay cuts to save the firm from bankruptcy. Union leaders respond, "If we accept your proposal, how much stock will the workers get in return?" If management is willing to negotiate on this basis, union leaders then go on to discuss worker participation in decision making from the shop floor to the board of directors.

In countering management demands for a pay cut, officials of the Pan-American Airlines Pilots Association have already taken the first steps in this new style of negotiation. And it was the example of the Continental Employee Association which gave them the idea.

The views expressed in Courses by Newspaper are the authors'. Next Week: Elliot Liebow of the National Institute of Mental Health discusses the effects of unemployment on the individual and on society.

Polish emigrants hope for news from loved ones

By Suzie Rollins Singer
staff writer

Donna Sworski, like thousands of other Polish emigrants in the United States, anxiously waits for a phone call from her native country.

Her parents, both American citizens, were scheduled to leave Poznan in central Poland Tuesday en route to Detroit for a family Christmas celebration. But Poland's martial law crackdown on the independent Solidarity labor union disrupted their plans.

"We haven't heard anything from them because Poland is completely closed down from the rest of the world," Mrs. Sworski said. "We're relying on the American mass media to tell us what's happening, but we just don't know. Reports are so sketchy."

She was one of three women in Wayne and Oakland counties with stories of life in the old country and adjustments to the new.

FOR MRS. Sworksi, America has been a land of salvation. She escaped the Iron Curtain 20 years ago and now works at WCAR radio in Garden City, producing a talk show for Polish immigrants.

Her English is brisk but slightly broken, and her voice conveys the anger of a patriot forced to run for a free life.

"I wish I could go back to Poland and help rebuild the country. But I can't. There's no freedom there, and there is so much hardship. I would go back tomorrow if it wasn't communist," she said.

"For the last year, the stores have had bare shelves and everything has been rationed. People get one pair of shoes a year, just a few pairs of underwear, one pair of nylons a season. . . ."

Mrs. Sworksi said the Solidarity Party recently discovered several of its members were actually ranking officials in the Communist government, relaying confidential information to their leaders.

Upon learning of the spies, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa organized a one-day warning strike, scheduled for Thursday.

"But the government has been saying no more strikes, so last Saturday they acted with the military," Mrs. Sworksi said.

MANY PEOPLE blame the Solidarity party for Poland's 1½-year food shortage, but Mrs. Sworksi declared those criticisms unjust.

"Even if the Solidarity Party never came about, Poland is in such a bad financial situation it would have happened anyway. After the war (World War II), Poland wanted to be a leading country in the industrial world. So it put all its efforts in industry and neglected agriculture. As a result, they don't have any food now."

While Polish citizens wait in freezing temperatures for hours for a loaf of bread, govenment soldiers hoard foodstuffs in warehouses, she said.

"Now the Solidarity has demanded the inspection of warehouses and has found food is being stored there, then sent to Russia."

ON AMERICAN LAND, Mrs. Sworksi speaks out against the Polish government, lack of freedom and government intervention. But her friend Mary is much more cautious.

Mary, 29, asked that her last name not be used. She and her husband, 42, packed their two preschoolers and left Poland last January. For the past 11 months, they have studied English, and one day her husband hopes to resume his medical career.

Mary works as a domestic, cleaning homes in West Bloomfield, Southfield and Bloomfield Hills, to help the family along. But her husband is frustrated because he's unable to practice the medicine.

"It hard for him. He loves being a doctor like he was in Poland. It may take him a few years to become a doctor here, so it's difficult," she said, apologizing for not speaking fluently.

Despite his frustrations, Mary said, life away from the Polish regime is so special that it's difficult to describe to foreigners.

"YOU DON'T have a chance for this kind of life in Poland. They (military men) watch everything you do and who you talk to.

"They make you work long hours, and they have a shortage of doctors there, so my husband worked many days on emergency calls (24-hour shifts) plus his regular work," she said.

It took Mary 3½ years to get a passport to America.

"The Polish government doesn't want you to leave. When they deny you, they just say no, and then you can't ask to go to another country because they won't let you."

SANDY ORDON didn't wait quite a long as Mary for a passport to America.

When she arrived 12 years ago, the country wasn't suffering from the same strife as it is today. Now an American citizen, she contemplates returning to Poland.

"We have family there, and my husband would like to return. We always visted every two years and during last summer we saw the empty stores and long lines."

But like others who migrated to America, Mrs. Ordon's husband was never able to find the kind of engineering job he had in Poland. He has worked at various labor jobs, but his professional training has never been tapped.

Mrs. Ordon explained that in Poland, strikers receive their full wages while walking picket lines. While membership to the Solidarity party is optional, only those workers who are Communist Party members are promoted.

FOOD IS available, she said, if your friends are grocers.

But all three women compare life in Poland to wartime. They suspect the face-off between the military and the Solidarity union will end soon, but they're unsure how.

"I don't think Solidarity will give up and that will mean an invasion from Russia because the Polish military won't be able to handle it all, Mrs. Sworski said.

Wayne County back in SEMCOG

Now that it's able to pay its dues, Wayne County has rejoined the ranks of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The state's largest county dropped out of the seven-county regional planning group in 1981 because of its tight budget. But SEMCOG dues of $174,000 are included in the budget for fiscal '82 which began Dec. 1.

"We are pleased that Wayne County has been able to resume its active participation in SEMCOG," said Daniel Murphy, SEMCOG chairman and Oakland County executive, "because Wayne has been one of our strongest members over the years. Their involvement and financial support were important factors in SEMCOG's growth and development."

Murphy said he will set his sights on persuading Macomb County to rejoin the regional fold, declaring decisions made without Macomb's voice "are not healthy either for the county or the region."

SEMCOG, a voluntary association, engages in planning for housing, transportation, land use, public safety, recreation, open space and the environment.

In Austria

20,000 Polish refugees bottled up

By Suzie Rollins Singer
staff writer

The refugee saga has spread from Indochina to Austria. This time it's Poles who are cramming primitive camps, waiting for a chance to come to America.

Cazimer Olejarczyk, president of the Polish American Congress, Michigan Division, said more than 20,000 Polish citizens have spent the last few months in Austria biding time until they can fly to freedom.

"For the past seven years, Austria didn't require visas from Polish visitors. Now they (Poles) are going there and waiting while they apply for passports to the U.S., Canada and Australia," he said.

BUT PASSORTS are limited.

"At least half of the Polish refugees were refused. They (embassy representatives) claimed there is nothing wrong in Poland, that they aren't being persecuted and there is nothing to fear," said Olejarczyk. "They said the Polish people are just seeking economic betterment in this country."

Refugees are unwelcome in most of the world, Olejarczyk said, which is why they flock to North America. Until last year, immigration quotas have remained constant at 6,500 per year.

"Recently the president has raised the yearly quota to 9,500 who can come in from Poland," Olejarczyk said.

Poles tell stories they swear Americans can't understand. They say they are searching for freedom, but the strong Iron Curtain blocks the way.

They talk about military spies watching them in their homes, on the job and in cafes. Since the Solidarity labor union was formed, many of its 10 million members worry about safety.

Will there ever be food? Will they return to six-day work weeks?

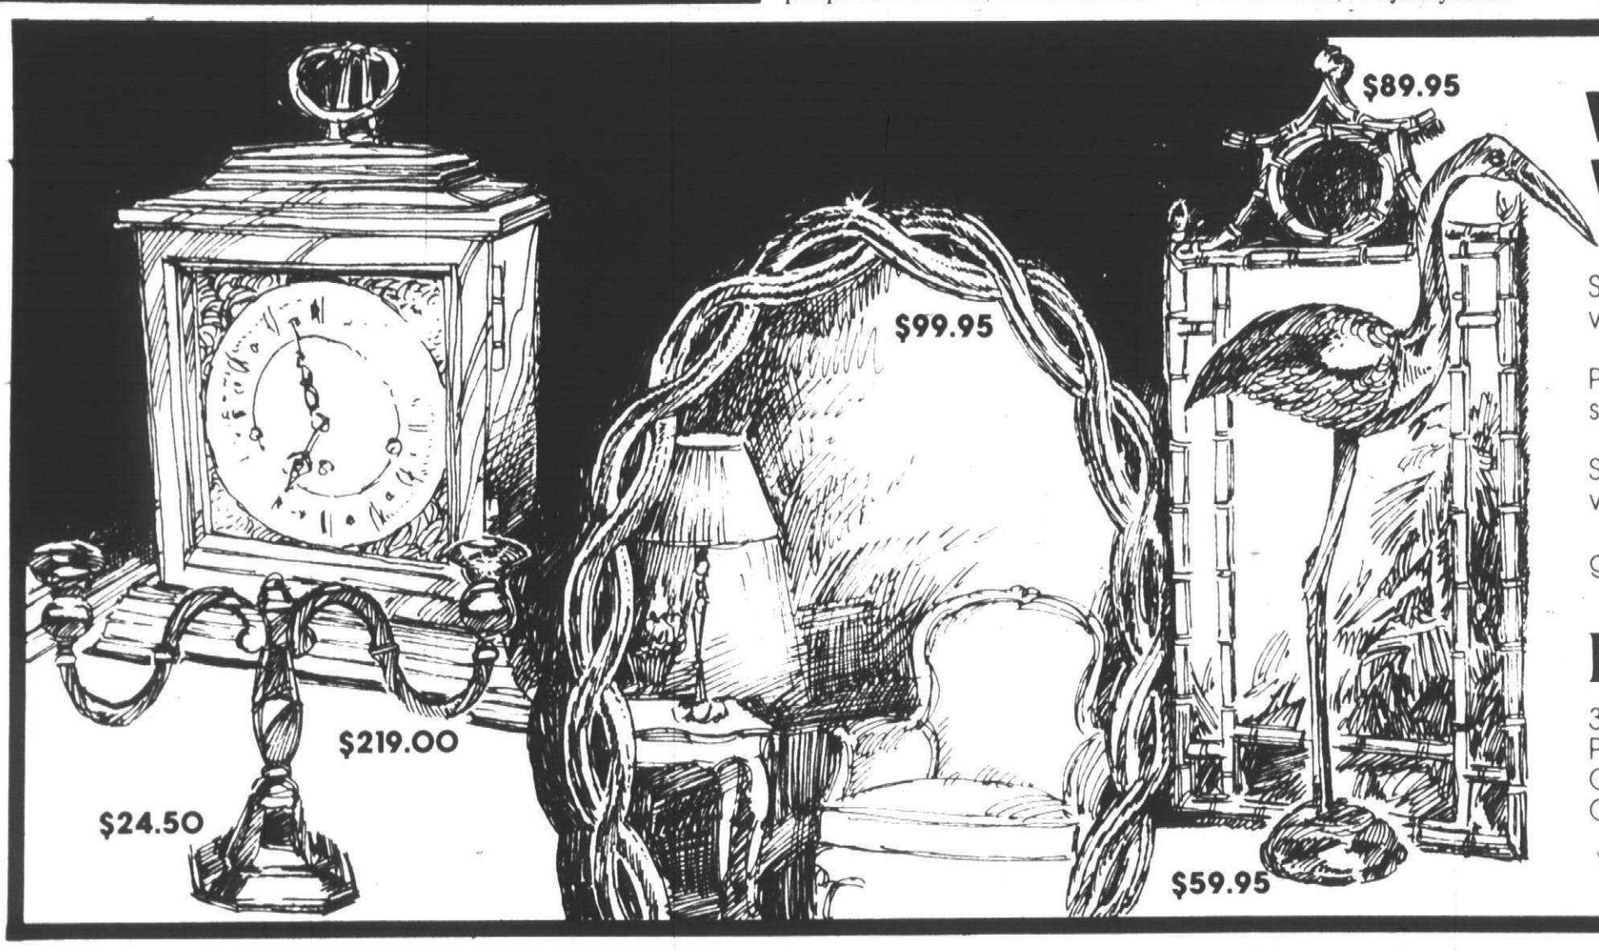

PURCHASING power is almost nil because there is a lack of goods.

"It doesn't matter how much money you have in Poland — you still can't buy anything because it's not available," said Donna Sworski, who emigrated from Poland 20 years ago and now helps others through a Polish radio program on WCAR.

It's a rough existence for the Poles who are begging to escape from the country they call home. And now Americans share their strife. Many traveled across the Atlantic in hopes of spending Christmas in their native land.

A staff representative of U.S. Rep. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, said the U.S. State Department has established a task force on Poland. The State Department said that there is no immediate danger to American citizens there.

Anyone wishing to contact the State Department task force to inquire about relatives may call (202) 632-6610.

Angel is a 5-month-old female who is housebroken and has been given her shots. She's a bit shy and prefers older people. She's looking for a good home and is available at the Michigan Humane Society's Kindness Center, 37255 Marquette in Westland.

Auto sales slump to end in 1982? Maybe, says prof

The auto industry will have an excellent opportunity during the second half of 1982 to boost itself and the state of Michigan out of the economic doldrums, says a Michigan State University economics professor.

Mordechai Kreinin, an authority on the domestic economy, says all signs point to national economic recovery after mid-1982. That recovery, combined with pent-up demand for new automobiles, should mean a strenghtened Michigan economy, says Kreinin.

"Declining interest rates, the reduction in the rate of inflation during the current recession, and the 10 percent expected cut in personal income tax are among the factors that will pull the national and state economy out of the recession," he says.

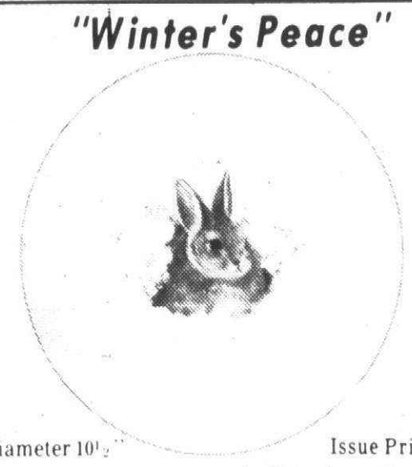

AT THE SAME time, the U.S. auto industry will potentially be in an excellent competitive position against the Japanese and other imorts, says Kreinin, for three basic reasons.

"First, the industry is tooled up to manufacture the mix of cars demanded by the consumers," he says. "The recent decline in the real price of gasoline has also increased somewhat the demand for large cars.

"Second, the exchange value of the dollar is on the decline as a result of the downward movement in the U.S. interest rates," says Kerinin.

The dollar has already lost more than 5 percent of its value relative to the yen, and is likely to lose another 10 to 15 percent in the coming months, making U.S. cars more competitive in price, says Kreinin. He thinks the U.S. industry should capitalize on this advantage, rather than raising U.S. car prices as it has in the past.

Dems prefer staff plan

Blacks, Republicans like Holley redistricting plan

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The Wayne County Apportionment Commission is studying a second plan for redistricting the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and must choose between them by Jan. 13.

The second plan was introduced Monday and seemed to please black Detroit Democrats and white suburban Republicans.

Redistricting must take into account not only Detroit's great loss of population in the 1980 census but the voters' decision to reduce the board of commissioners' size from 27 to 15.

THE TWO plans are:

- The so-called "staff plan," prepared last week by the staff of County Clerk James Killeen, who chairs the Apportionment Commission.

It's defended by Killeen and County Commissioner R. William Joyner, D-Plymouth. Blacks criticize it for guaranteeing them population dominance in only four districts. Republicans criticize it for cutting them out entirely.

- The "Holley plan," introduced Monday by Hubert Holley, a black Detroiter and Democratic Party representative on the apportionment commission. Its squarer districts were praised by County Commissioner Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, and some blacks.

If Michael Legg, a Livonia attorney and Republican member of the five-man Apportionment Commission, backs the Holley plan, it will have two votes, and only one more will be needed for adoption.

Thus, each side will try to win votes of two Democratic officeholders sitting in the middle — Prosecutor William Cahalan and Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz.

THE STAFF plan would line up western suburban districts this way:

Livonia would be split in half. The northern section would join Redford Township and northwest Detroit in a new 13th District which would pit Mrs. Dumas against former board Chairman Richard Manning, D-Redford. The advantage would be Manning's, based on past election statistics.

Garden City, Dearborn Heights, Inkster and a small part of Dearborn would form a new 12th District. It would be safely Democratic.

Southern Livonia, Westland and Wayne would form a new 14th District which would be safely Democratic. Commissioner Tom Presnell, D-Westland, would have a good shot at reelection.

Northville, which votes overwhelmingly Republican, would be split off from Mrs. Dumas' present district and be added to a western tier of townships district which has elected Democrats in six of the past seven elections. Commissioner R. William Joyner, D-Plymouth, would have a good shot at re-election in this new 15th District though Northville would dilute his strength.

CRITICISM comes from Mrs. Du-

Blacks, GOP prefer Holley plan

mas. She told the Apportionment Commission the staff plan is "blatantly partisan" and "politically gerrymandered" to split up the Republican vote in her present Livonia-Northville district.

Joyner, however, likes it. "The growing townships feel they'd best be served by being in the same district. The Holley plan doesn't serve this."

The staff plan is criticized by eastern suburbs for taking the Grosse Pointes and lumping them with a poor section of northeast Detroit to form District 1, and Harper Woods with another part of northeast Detroit to form District 2.

Commissioner Ervin Steiner Jr., R-Grosse Pointe, asked that the Pointes be lumped with Harper Woods in a new district.

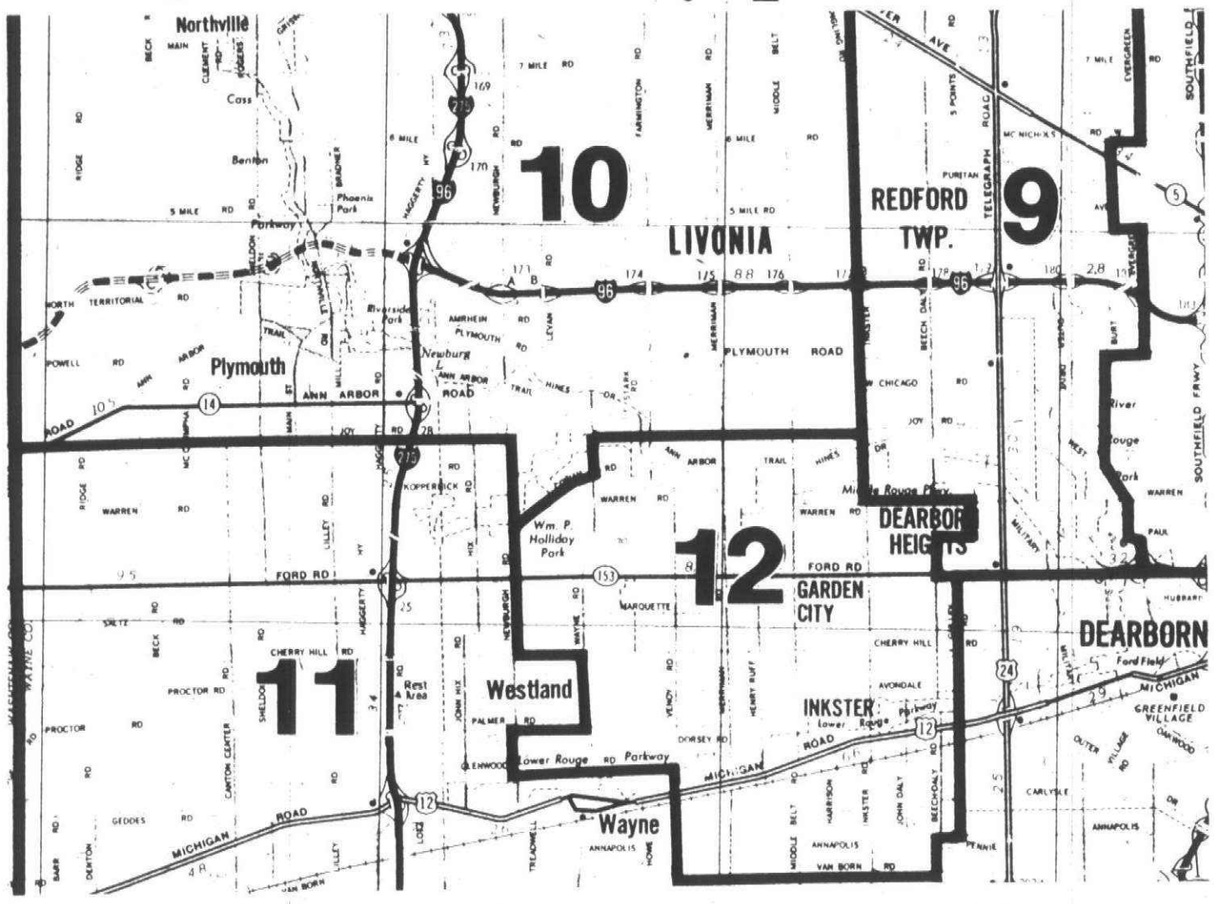

THE HOLLEY plan would disrupt fewer political relationships in the northwest suburbs.

To the current Livonia-Northville district would be added the Plymouth community, forming new District 10. The next election would feature Republican Dumas vs. Democrat Joyner, with the advantage going to Mrs. Dumas. Joyner, despite his criticism of this plan, expressed a willingness to go "toe-to-toe" with Mrs. Dumas.

Redford, a greater portion of northwest Detroit and part of Dearborn Heights would form a new District 9, not much different from the current district which sends Richard Manning, D-Redford, to the county board.

Garden City, most of Westland, all of Inkster and part of Dearborn Heights would form a new District 12. The 1982 Democratic primary could feature a contest between incumbents Tom Presnell of Westland and Kay Beard of Inkster. Presnell said he thinks he has the advantage.

Canton, a western slice of Westland, Wayne and the four southwestern townships of Wayne County would form a new District 11. If Joyner lived in Canton Township instead of Plymouth, he'd have a sure shot at carrying it.

CRITICISM of the Holley plan comes from a couple of Democrats.

Joyner said that "lumping Plymouth with a settled community like Livonia wouldn't serve their interests."

Robert Ficano, deputy county clerk and Democratic chairman of the 2nd District-Wayne organization, accuses Mrs. Dumas of favoring the Holley plan for her own partisan purposes.

Ficano charged the Holley plan was deficient for splitting Westland and Dearborn Heights into three separate districts.

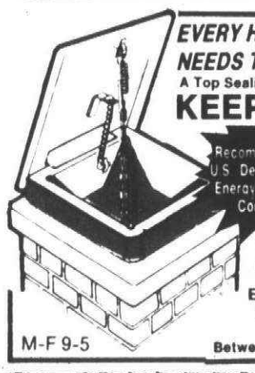

Northeast county residents like the Holley plan because Harper Woods would join the Grosse Pointes in the new District 1.

The Apportionment Commission has scheduled two more meetings — on Jan. 6 and 12. Killeen said it's possible other plans could be offered.

3 vying for S'craft student affairs VP

By mid-January, the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees expects to appoint a new vice president of student affairs.

President Richard McDowell last week told trustees he expects to make a recommendation to the board at a January meeting. A selection committee reviewed 82 applicants, selected seven persons for interview and narrowed that list to three finalists. The president's recommendation will be on one of the three finalists.

The three finalists are Barbara Geil of Schoolcraft, Frank Borelli of Illinois and Roger Ludeman of Minnesota. The new person will replace Edward McNally, an original member of the college staff who has retired.

The post reports to the president and is responsible for offices of admissions, counseling, placement, financial aids and student organizationis.

MS. GEIL has been director of admissions at Schoolcraft since 1965, a year after joining the staff as a counselor. Earlier, she taught at a Bay City high school.

Frank Borelli has been dean of student affairs at Governors State University, Park Forest South, Ill., since 1978. Before that he was acting dean of student affairs at William Raniey Harper College, Palatine, Ill. From 1968-78 Borelli served as director of student activities at the college.

LUDEMAN is vice president of student affairs at Bemidji State University, Bemidji, Minn. He has been dean of student affairs and associate professor at the University of Toledo for five years.

Prior to that, he was dean of student affairs and instruction at Pennsylvania State University's Beaver Campus in Monaca, Penn.

The vice president of student affairs job pays $40,000-$45,000 annually.

McDowell is also expected to make a recommendation to the board for a vice-president of instructional affairs later next month. There were 58 applicants for the job. Seven persons have been selected for interviews.

Is musty mildew getting you down? Government booklet may help out

"Invasion of the Spores" sounds like the title of a science-fiction movie. Picture microscopic creatures descending on all kinds of things and proceeding to munch away at them.

It goes on all the time — you know the results as mildew. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, if you understand what causes these blotchy, musty smelling stains on furniture and other objects, you'll be better able to deal with the problem.

For a copy of "How to Prevent and Remove Mildew," send $1.50 to the Conusmer Information Center, Department J, Pueblo, CO 81009.

Mildew is a living thing — a mold — that reproduces itself by microscopic airborne spores. It needs to eat — and one of the items in its diet is almost any kind of soil or greasy film. So to fight mildew, keep things clean.

Mildew tends to shrink from sunlight and fresh air. It does its festering in the dark and damp.

If you're getting mildew in your basement, you should repair cracked or damaged foundation walls that are letting the dampness in. If the problem is a lot of moisture in the air, a dehumidifier can help. You can improve the situation in dry closets by keeping the doors open and by keeping clothes separated so air gets a chance to circulate around them.

If something gets mildewed, attack the problem immediately so it doesn't spread. Brush off whatever mildew you can outdoors so the spores don't spread around the house. Then clean the item as you normally would. Give the item a thorought sunning and airing.

☆ U.S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE [¶ 515]

Think about it. Starting January 1, 1982, you can contribute up to $2000 per year to a Manufacturers Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and then deduct that amount on your Federal tax return. It's a tax shelter that's available to anyone with an earned income regardless of coverage by another pension plan. You can open your account for as little as $10 and make additional tax-sheltered contributions of $10 or more any time throughout the year.

The interest you'll be earning on your IRA is comparable to Money Market-type investments, and it's also tax free until withdrawal. Since most people are in a lower tax bracket at retirement (when withdrawals are allowed without penalty), it gives you a tax advantage then, too.

There is a substantial interest and tax penalty for early withdrawal prior to age 59½. But the benefits of an IRA have never been better or available to more people.

Individual Retirement Accounts at Manufacturers Bank. It's a brilliant deduction any way you figure it.

That's my bank.

Doctors seeking limits on lawsuits

The Physicians Crisis Committee (PCC) says it is petitioning the Michigan Supreme Court to formulate a new court rule to deter "frivolous" lawsuits and impose financial penalties on lawyers and clients who file them.

The planned petition stems from a 4-3 Michigan Supreme Court ruling that Dr. Seymour Friedman, Bloomfield Hills urologist, was not entitled to a trial for remedies he sought in countersuing attorneys Peter Dozorc of Troy and Robert H. Golden of Southfield for filing an allegedly frivolous medical malpractice charge.

The Supreme Court had deliberated over the case for more than two years. The PCC has supported Dr. Friedman's cause.

"WHILE WE LOST the chance to secure tort remedies against the lawyers, we certainly haven't lost the war," said PCC co-chairman Dr. W. Peter McCabe.

"At least five of the seven supreme court justices acknowledged that frivolous lawsuits are a major problem. Two of the four who ruled against our cause actually wrote a separate and rare second opinion that virtually invited us to petition the court for a new remedy."

Chief Justice Mary Coleman and Justices Blair Moody and John Fitzgerald held that Dr. Friedman's case deserved a trial.

Justices Charles Levin, Thomas Kavanagh, G. Mennen Williams and James Ryan formed the majority ruling. Levin and Williams wrote the separate second opinion, advocating a new remedy — a court rule — "to provide an appropriate measure of deterrence against wrongful litigation and reasonable compensation for wronged litigants."

Levin and Williams contended that "the court should ... adopt a court rule authorizing the trial judge to order the payment of the prevailing party's actual expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees and limited consequential damages, where the action was wrongfully initiated, depended or continued."

The "standard" to be used, the opinion stated, was "whether the losing party or his attorney had proceeded without probable cause and for improper purpose."

"KEYING OFF that view," Dr. McCabe said, "the PCC will ask the court to consider a new remedy and deterrent."

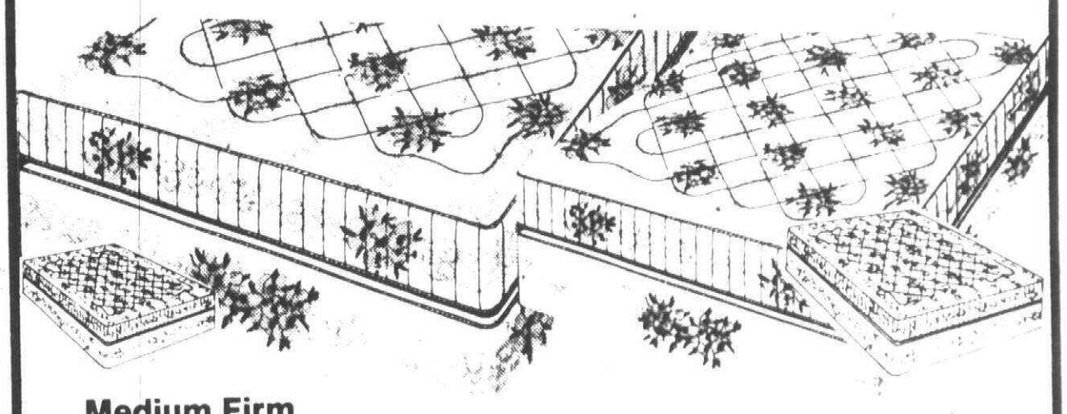

Dr. McCabe said his group long has attempted to focus public attention on frivolous lawsuits. The PCC was formed in the wake of great increases in the numbers of cases filed.

In part, Levin and Williams wrote:

"Groundless civil litigation is more than an affliction visited upon a few scattered individuals; it besets the judicial system as a whole...This court can appropriately devise an approach to wrongful litigation ... providing both an appropriate measure of deterrence and reasonable compensation for wronged litigants...

"Groundless litigation diverts judicial resources," they said, adding that Dr. Friedman's cause "is unmistakably a test case, brought primarily to secure a change in the law.

Playoff fever strikes area

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

If cheering and enthusiasm will help bring the Detroit Lions a victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and give them a place in the playoffs, they'll be headed for the path to the Super Bowl by sunset Sunday.

"I've got Lion fever," Russell Babut, commented as he posted signs all over the front of his home at 9904 Canton Center Road, Plymouth. "And I'm ready to cheer them on and give us something to cheer about all winter."

From front to back his home is covered with such signs as these:

Go Lions — Go.
We've got Lion Mania.
We've Got Playoff Fever.
Detroit Lions to Super Bowl, You Can Do It.
Santa, Send One NFL Title.

In trying to explain his fervent desire for a Lions victory, Babut, a 32-year-old employee of a Ford Motor Co. body shop, said:

"I've been a Lions fan since the days of Bobby Layne, the great quarterback. My dad was also a fan, and he took me to the games. So, since childhood I have followed the team through thick and thin, and this time I am hoping to pull them through."

Although he doesn't see all the games in the Silverdome, he has eyes glued to the television in his home and yells just as loud to urge them on in the tight situations.

"I was one of the loudest screamers last Sunday when the Lions beat the Minnesota Vikings, and I'll be there on Sunday to give them all the help I acn. After all, it is only a 60-mile return trip to the Silverdome and even the parking price of $6 is cheap enough for the thrill I get.

"When I watch the games at home on TV I turn down the volume and switch to my radio to listen to Bob Reynolds describe the action. He's the best."

Babut is firm in his belief that if the Lions play as well as they did against Minnesota they will conquer the Tampa team by about 8-0. "So, welcome Tampa," he yelled, "to the Lions' den. We believe in Monte Clark and his coaching staff. I don't even give a thought to the possobility of losing.

"When they lost those seven games on the road, it was mainly because they were playing on regular grass, and this time they'll be on their home artificial turf."

Does he have a favorite on the team? He hesitated a bit and then answered, "Eric Hipple, the quarterback, and the rest of of the team."

He picked Bobby Layne as his all-time all-star Lion.

Babut played a little football in his high-school days, but never had a thought of going to college. He plays golf at the Salem course. But his main interest is rooting for the Lions.

And if cheering and enthusiasm counts for anything, he is an all-time fan who feels confident he can help pull the Lions to victory.

Roger Babut is stricken with either Lion Mania or, even more serious — playoff fever! A more complete prognosis may be known after Sunday.

Sign laws must be changed

To the editor:

I feel it is very important to change the present sign ordinance in Canton Township.

There are several businesses that are not visible from the road right-of-way, day or night, and need all the help to initially attract the customers. Whether this customer comes back is solely upon the shoulders of the owner.

Fair and reasonable prices, courtesy from the employees and a good product will determine if this business person weathers the hard economic times of today and the coming months. But he/she must advertise, and this cannot be solely done through newspaper ads, coupons, radio, or television — which gets extremely expensive.

The best advertisment is word of mouth, but the customer has to find the store first.

The business cannot totally depend upon local customers to survive. They must have people from outlying areas. But these people who come to shop in Canton are frustrated by poor visibility of stores behind berms — in turn causing traffic problems. Signs would help alleviate this problem.

I DO AGREE with Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi League of Women Voters that informational panels giving directions along the I-275 expressway would be extremely nice, but why not have these in business districts in Canton? This would not, in my opinion, be a cluttered landscape.

Itwould be called "Survival of Canton.

Correct me if I am wrong, but I always understood that in their bylaws the League of Women Voters could not allow themselves to favor one side of an issue such as (is) being voiced in opposition to many of the changes in the sign ordinance.

They could always voice pros and cons, but not take a definite stand.

Could it be possible the League feels that Plymouth and Northville have adequate signs and that Canton shouldn't have its fair share of the pie?

Tax abatement is a bail out

To the editor:

In the Dec. 7, 1981 Plymouth Observer there was an article headed, "Public Opinion is sought tonight for Mayflower II tax abatement."

Being an owner of commerical property in Plymouth, I thought I should attend. The Observer reported that City Manager Henry Graper was going to recommend to the city commission to approve the abatement and the meeting hadn't been held yet, so his mind was made up before the public had a chance to voice their opinion.

An attorney for the Cloverdale Dairy voiced their objections but the commission shot his arguements down one by one. Another citizen said he didn't give a darn if the Hilton had the biggest ballroom in the State and if Ralph Lorenz wanted to dance, he could do it at his Meeting House.

No one else in the room had any objections so I rose and questioned why this hearing was being held on a project that was half finished. I was informed that Lorenz had been promised a hearing months ago and Graper admitted his timing was probably off a little.

I know these projects take a long time to get started as I'm involved in a building project that we began planning fourteen months ago and we are just getting started. I believe the abatement should have had a hearing a year ago. It now looks like a bail out but I was assured by Lorenz himself that it wasn't.

When I told the commission it looked like this project had a green light before the hearing, I was told by the mayor that it didn't. When he read his resolution to approve the project from a prepared script, I did have a doubt in my mind that he or the commission came to listen to what the public had to say.

One commissioner said he was sick and tired of the pessimists and believed we should all be optimists. I am an optimist and have been for over 20 years. When you give up a nice corporate position to start your own practice, you better be an optimist and continue to be one or you won't make it in this world. There is also a difference in being an optimist and a damn fool too.

I suppose the biggest reason that I am against tax abatements is because I think all property owners should be treated equal. If you can afford to drive around town in a Cadillac or Lincoln, live in a nice big house, you should be able to finance your own operation and not expect the little Ford and Chevy owner to help pay for the monument you want to build for your family.

There is probably a Clinker in my Thinker but that is my view on abatements.

2 articles quite different

To the editor:

Two articles from the Nov. 30 issue of your paper are extremely different in interpretation.

One appears to give credit to the police. The other shows the police to be very negligent. In particular, the citizen, John Angell, was responsible for solving the whole thing. First he reported a mangled bike on Seven Mile, which worried him. He called the police, who checked the scene that night, but found nothing.

Did the police get the search lights out? Or just drive along the road? The next afternoon Angell returned to the scene and found Robert Toms. Were the police so busy that they could not make a check as soon as morning came to double-check what happened? Give a salute for the good old police force for getting the victim to the hospital.

Didn't anyone on the Observer staff correlate these two articles? The police department has a lot to answer for. Thank God for concerned citizens like Angell.

Let's always remember handicapped people

Doc's corner

Dennis O'Connor

YOU COULD SEE the tears in Marie Breach's eyes as she asked the Canton Township Board to help Tony.

Later, she broke down in tears when I talked with her outside the meeting hall.

Ms. Breach is a volunteer who has taken an interest in 17-month-old Tony Coscia of Plymouth. Tony is affected by severe cerebral palsy. He needs financial and volunteer help to aid his chances of recovery.

The response from residents in the Plymouth-Canton community has been encouraging since learning of Ms. Breach's recent visit to Canton's meeting. The phones in our Plymouth office haven't stopped ringing. Everyone's asking how to help Tony.

MS. BREACH'S STORY struck me, emotionally, but not because of her tears.

You see, I have cerebral palsy, as well. But I've never really considered myself handicapped.

I have an extremely mild case of CP, affecting the right side of my body. Oh, I get an occasional stare from people because I have a slight limp. But it usually is shrugged off as a football injury, or something like that.

TONY'S STORY is similar to mine — and it's tragic. At least it was for my mother. I was too young to appreciate what she experienced.

When I was an infant, my mother went to doctor after doctor — and they all said the same thing.

"He won't be able to talk. He won't be able to walk. He won't be able to learn. He won't have control of anything."

Can you image what an impact that must have been for a mother who was 20 years old?

When I was six months old, however, I stood up in my crib, despite an obvious physical defect. It was then that my mother said she wasn't going to believe those doctors' opinions.

She vowed I wasn't going to be considered handicapped — that I would get an education and be given a chance to survive in this world — even if it were costly.

When I turned 3, my minor physical defect finally was diagnosed as a slight case of CP.

It never hindered my learning skills, and I received that opportunity to lead a normal life. And the doctor bills were atrocious.

BUT THAT'S where my story differs from Tony's — and many other severely handicapped people in the world.

I feel lucky because my "handicap" is minor. We all know others are not as fortunate.

So, it is encouraging, during this holiday season, that many Plymouth and Canton residents have reached out to help Tony Coscia.

And it is important to try to help others like Tony who need our help to get that chance to live a normal life.

That's what 1981 is all about — the International Year of the Disabled.

But let's always remember these people — in 1982 and years to come.

Free debate hurt by rash of lawsuits

Why would 300 journalists, attorneys and judges give up a Saturday at home two weeks before Christmas?

It happened last Saturday when they all met at Michigan State University to consider the "chilling effect on news coverage" of law suits directed against the media.

Since a landmark case in 1964 (Sullivan vs. New York Times), U.S. Supreme Court decisions have limited the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of the press. Conservative judges have created an environment in which many newspapers, radio and TV stations hesitate to publish controversial stories because of possible law suits.

It's important to say at the outset that a debate over threats against the First Amendment involves far more than the media and the legal profession. The First Amendment's protection of freedom of the press applies to those who write letters to the editor and complain about the services of local government at a public meeting.

THE EDITOR of the Alton (Ill.) Telegraph outlined what can happen to a small newspaper when it loses a law suit.

Steven Cousley said last year his newspaper lost a $9.2 million suit — but not over a published story. Two reporters wrote a memo to U.S. Justice Department attorneys who were investigating possible links between organized crime and a local developer. The memo was subsequently leaked, and the developer started a law suit against the newspaper.

The Telegraph's insurance did not cover the amount of the verdict. The verdict was more than the total assets of the newspaper. Today the newspaper is operating under bankruptcy proceedings. It is appealing the verdict.

Other recent multi-million-dollar verdicts have been rendered against the National Enquirer and Penthouse magazine.

SUCH VERDICTS, however are the exception, participants learned during the seminar.

A study conducted by Prof. Marc Franklin of Stanford Univesity revealed that in only 10 of 190 libel cases — 5 percent — between 1977-80 did the verdict go against the media.

Nevertheless, in every case the media incurred great legal expenses. "It's often not a question of who wins or loses," Prof. Franklin said, "but how quickly can the dispute be settled."

Franklin described a law suit which NBC won in the Court of Appeals, but the plaintiff planned to appeal to the Supreme Court. NBC settled out of court because it feared greater loss if the Supreme Court overturned the verdict.

It was repeated several times during the conference that the media are reluctant to take a case to the U.S. Supreme Court. When that court takes a position, it sets a precedent for lower courts throughout the nation.

The big winners are lawyers.

OBVIOUSLY, A BALANCE must be struck between the rights of a free press and other constitutional guarantees. A person's reputation should not be recklessly damaged. Defendants have a right to a fair trial.

Few journalists argue that the press has the right to publish anything without restrictions. But anyone who loves the freedoms guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution worries about attacks on the free press. A newspaper which aggressively reports on the activities of its community will offend someone. When that offended person takes his case to a court eager to spank the press, the result can be disastrous for discussion of public issues.

Our system of democratic government requires that the public be fully informed. Jefferson pointed that out two centuries ago. A newspaper looking over its shoulder at a law suit which could bring economic ruin may lose its vigor.

Everyone should share that concern. That's why 300 journalists, attorneys and judges gave up a their day at home on Saturday.

Politics is like a sewer

Politics, to paraphrase satirist Tom Lehrer, is like a sewer: What you get out of it depends on what you put into it.

Recently we've had two dandy examples of how it works. To put it in scholarly terms: If you can control the input into the political system, you can control the output.

Republicans and Democrats alike do it.

SOME 2,000 delegates were elected and appointed across the country to attend the White House Conference on Aging earlier this month.

Late in the game, the Reagan administration decided to appoint 400 delegates of its own. Now, one delegate in five doesn't seem like stacking the conference, but look again.

Joseph (Al) Rightley, a UAW retiree from Rochester, was chairman of the Michigan delegation and a man who knows politics. The conference had 15 committees, and the Reagan appointees, he said, seemed to show up on three of them.

Rightley happened to serve on one of those committees, on overall economic policy. This committee turned out lots of resolutions on inflation and economic growth.

THE SENIOR citizens movement is very, very political. You have to accept that at the beginning.

Look at it from Reagan's point of view. His priorities are getting control of inflation and improving the economy's lagging productivity.

Tim Richard

The people Reagan wants writing resolutions are those who are oriented toward meeting production and sales quotas, not professional demanders.

The purpose of the White House Conference on Aging was to write an agenda for the 1980s. While Reagan got the usual batch of demanders' resolutions, he also got what he wanted: resolutions aimed at controlling inflation, boosting investment and increasing productivity.

THE HOUSE Ways and Means Committee, the ladies and gentlemen who write tax laws, was in Detroit last week for a public hearing.

The House is Democratic. The Democrats got the kind of mileage they wanted in two ways.:

- By controlling the witness list. Said a Republican staffer: "The Democrats control the witnesses, and they said we could have only three or four slots. We had more people that we wanted to speak, but they turned down most of our requests."
- By getting first crack at television. Television news crews are interested only in "getting some footage," not in genuinely covering a hearing. If there are 30 witnesses, TV crews stick around long enough to cover two or three early witnesses and then skedaddle. This is particularly true of daytime hearings. Thus, if you can put on someone first who will really blister the Reagan administration — say, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young — you can use TV to really scorch the opposition.

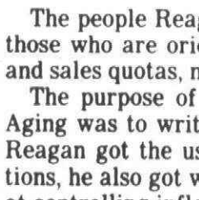

Only once did I every see a TV crew sit through an entire hearing. It was in the evening, and the crew was from WDIV. Unfortunately, there was some kind of sporting event on the tube that evening, so the news didn't come on the air until after midnight.

I REPORT this not to discredit politicians. The point is that you, the voter, need to understand what you are getting when you are treated to a public hearing.

You need to understand you are getting a fraction of the story when you see a hearing covered by television. Newspapers are a whole lot better, as a generality, but you need to read carefully to see how many persons spoke at the hearing and how many are quoted.

Politics is like a sewer: What you get out of politics depends on what you put into it.

Sparky's '82 gift for Tiger fans

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

How would you like to be promised a Christmas gift and told not to open it until next summer?

Well, that's what has been handed to followers of the Detroit Tigers. And it didn't come from the jolly old elf with the long white hair and beard.

It came from the little man with white hair who strides from the dugout to the pitcher's mound with his head down — Sparky Anderson, the manager who has made it a habit to promise things in mid-winter.

This time he has promised the team would not only be a contender for the pennant, but a factor throughout the entire baseball season.

SO CONFIDENT is Sparky that he toured the baseball meetings last week in Florida and promised all his rivals the Tigers would be a team to contend with all summer.

The reason for his optimism is the trades the Tigers have made in acquiring two new outfielders — Chet Lemon from the Chicago White Sox and Larry Herndon from the San Francisco Giants.

Tiger fans have seen little of Lemon because he was a utility man when the Chicagoans visited Tiger Stadium. And Herndon, who is supposed to be a real find, hit only .288 last year and has a lifetime average of only .267.

That's what is seen from the outside of the Christmas package. There's no telling what it will be like when it is opened next summer.

FANS CAN'T be blamed if they're a bit skeptical. If you recall when Sparky was put in charge of the team several years ago, it was in mid-season. At the time he said:

"This isn't my team. Wait until after spring training next year, and then I'll have something to show you."

He showed them. The team finished fifth — just where it was under the previous manager. Then came another season and Sparky was at it again.

He tried to improve the package by trading Ron LeFlore, a renowned troublemaker, to Montreal. This came as a shock. So did the trade in which he sent Jason Thompson, a good first baseman, to the Pacific Coast.

It seemed like a new package, and Sparky was so sure that he proudly told the baseball writers at their winter meeting the team would win 90 games and be in the flag race all the way.

You know what happened. The Tigers finished fifth again.

SPARKY LAUGHED it off when the writers gathered and predicted "we will win 37 games this season."

As he sat and listened, Jim Campbell, the general manager who takes all the criticism for the team's showing, said, "If that's the best you will do, you can look for another job."

The Tigers did better than that in the split season, but overall, the team finished sixth.

Now we are on the verge of another season, and as usual, at the yuletide, Sparky has promised a Christmas gift again — with the proviso that it is not to be opened until next summer.

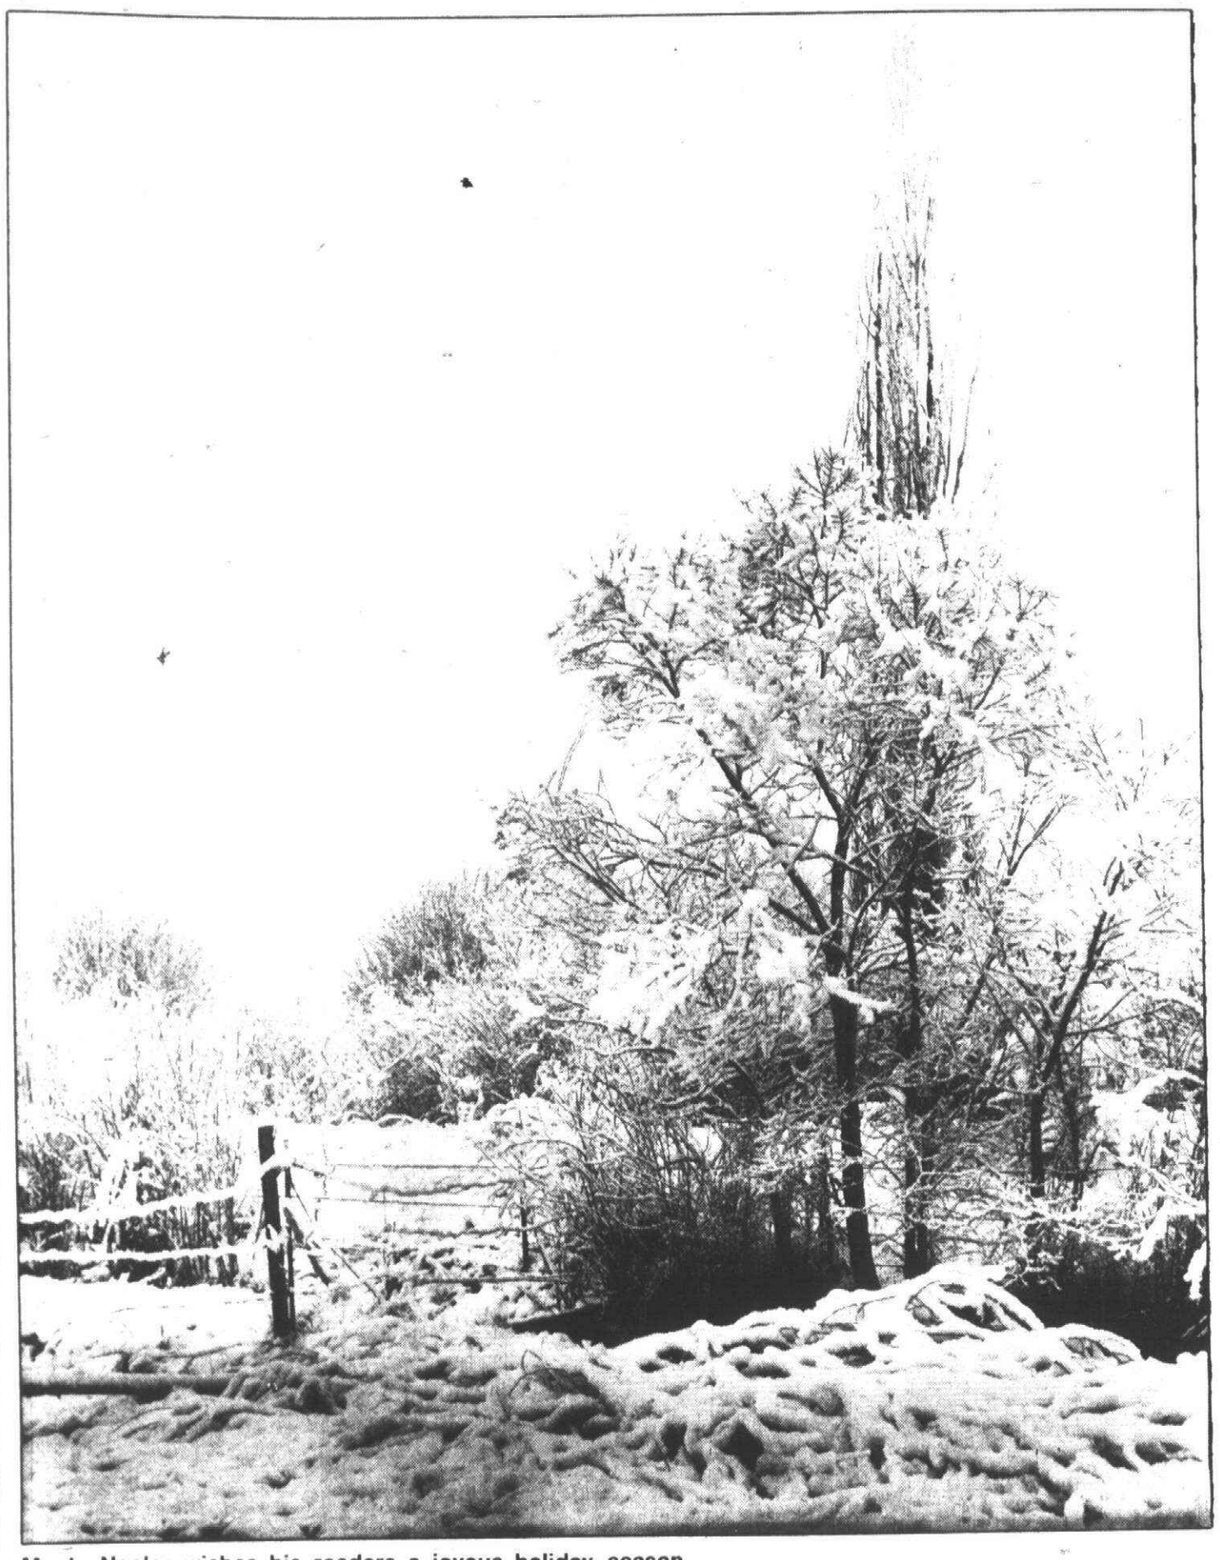

Sounds good. It even looks good in print. But here's hoping that when the Christmas ribbons are taken from the package, the contents will be what the little white-haired man has promised.

Otherwise, you will hear Tiger fans chanting the old verse: "Promises . . . promises . . . promises."

Holiday ideas for good pictures, treasured gifts

Monte Nagler wishes his readers a joyous holiday season.

No better opportunity exists for recording happy memories with your camera than the holiday season now upon us. Got plenty of film for your camera? Got fresh batteries for your flash? You're ready to record those memorable moments.

Let's begin with the kids, the main attraction at holiday time. The ideal time to snap them is on Christmas morning as they unwrap presents under the tree.

Move in close. Get down on their level to capture their joy and excitement. The expressions will be natural, too, because in all the excitement the kids won't even know you're there.

GROUP SHOTS are important at Christmas.

Getting everyone to relax is important, and this is best done by having family members sit in an informal pose rather than having them stand in a rigid row. As with the kids, get the camera angle on the group's level to obtain a more natural, flattering shot.

Ah, the family dinner! After some overall shots of the table, be on the lookout for a particular activity such as junior's attempt to devour a drumstick or the baby with pumpkin pie smeared on his face.

Watch your backgrounds through the viewfinder and eliminate distracting objects. Be on the lookout for glare from windows and mirrors which can be reflected into your camera and spoil a treasured shot. Usually a slight adjustment in camera angle will eliminate problems.

THOSE DETAILS add interest and excitement — a colorfully filled Christmas stocking, a sparkling tree ornament, a beautifully wrapped present.

You're part of the family, too, so make sure you're in a few of the photos. This is easily done with a tripod and your camera's self-timer. If you don't have a tripod, a steady table will do.

STYMIED FOR a Christmas present for a family member with photographic interests? That tripod, or a power winder, might be the answer to their hints.

Herb Shapiro of Bel-Crest Photo in West Bloomfield offered us these gift ideas:

- Under $5 — Film, lens cleaner and tissue, blower brush, lens shade.
- $5-20 — Photo album, picture frame, filters, wide camera strap.
- $20-50 — Gadget bag, electronic flash, tele-extender, tripod.
- $50-100 — Power winder, an economy extra lens such as 28mm wide-angle or 135mm telephoto.
- $100-200 — Pocketable 35mm camera, a second body for your current camera system.

Shapiro also offered this novel and thoughtful gift idea. On the sly, "borrow" a favorite slide from your gift recipient and have a framed enlargement made for him. Imagine what a delightful surprise it will be at Christmas to receive a full-color enlargement of a very special picture.

U-D to start winter class registration

Registration for winter classes at the University of Detroit's McNichols Road campus will be held Jan. 6-8 in Calihan Hall.

Students who have not previously been admitted to U-D are advised to contact the admissions office prior to the registration dates.

Both day and evening classes begin Jan. 11.

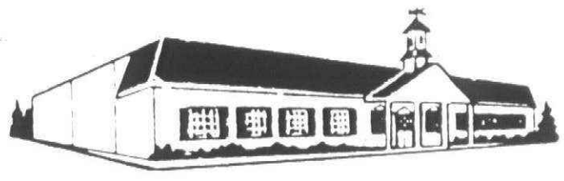

For specific registration times, class schedules and other information, call the admissions office at 927-1245. For graduate student information, call 927-1360.

U-D's winter schedule includes over 500 classes ranging from the "The Origin of Modern Civilization" to "Robotics in Manufacturing."

Students may enroll in individual classes for personal or professional development. Their winter studies can also apply toward a degree in more than 100 undergraduate and graduate day and evening programs in business administration, engineering, liberal arts, architecture, sciences, education, criminal justice and human services.

All Michigan residents stydying toward undergraduate degrees automatically qualify for financial assistance through the Michigan tuition differential grant. Other forms of financial aid also are available.

HERE'S A TALE with an appeal to all beach walkers and would-be beachcombers.

Gloria Hopfner, Plymouth Township resident, received a bottle of wine as a bon voyage present early in November when she sailed aboard the Queen Elizabeth II from New York to Southampton, England.

When the bottle was empty, she tucked a note inside, corked the bottle, and tossed it overboard. As she stood on the ship's stern, she worried about the cork popping out of the bottle, the bottle being smashed by the propeller, and the lack of muscle in her "throwing arm."

"The other couple at our table had sailed on the QE2 before — she'd been across five times and he's been three times. He'd put notes in bottles three times with no response," said Gloria.

With his record in mind, Gloria was surprised and delighted to receive an air mail letter from a couple in Sussex, England. Bob and Sylvia Wass had found Gloria's bottle Nov. 27 — the day after Thanksgiving. Gloria said she tossed it into the Atlantic either Nov. 9 or 10. She estimates that it floated more than 800 miles.

The Wasses wrote that they have taken an early retirement and now live "high on the Sussex downs." The stretch of beach where they discovered the bottle was described as remote and not suitable for the average beachcomber. It could have been there for some time before they saw it. They wrote that they, too, love to travel and had been to Spain, Italy, Greece and Turkey.

Gloria wrote her note with a ballpoint pen on a piece of cardboard from a pantyhose package. She rolled it around a pencil, forming a cylinder, before putting it in the bottle. She also offered, in the note, to reimburse the postage to the person who found the bottle and responded.

Maybe — some day — I'll find a bottle on the beach with a note in it.

THE SCHOOL Clothing Bank, which serves families in the Plymouth-Canton Schools area, is experiencing one of its busiest seasons on record.

Flossie Tonda, founder of the clothing bank and one of its most faithful volunteer workers, says they are in great need of clothing for preschoolers. She says the effect of the recession on young families is most apparent. Many of the pieces of "almost good as new" clothing at the bank will be wrapped as presents for Christmas giving.

Flossie says the need is immediate. Persons who would like to donate clothing can call Flossie at home, 453-2534, or at the clothing bank, 455-5760, Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Area families in need of clothing should contact the nurse or principal of their nearest school. The bank is at Central Middle School.

LAURETTE NITZ, a sophomore at Michigan State University, is a volunteer for MSU's Handicappers Aid Program. She volunteered as a member of Tower Guard, a sophomore honorary scholarship and service organization.

Laurette spends four hours a week reading to a blind student.

"It makes me think about how lucky I am. When I find myself struggling in classes, I think about how handicappers have to count on other people to help them," she said.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Nitz of Partridge Drive, Plymouth, Laurette is a 1980 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. Majoring in business management, she hopes to be involved in international business.

NEXT PLYMOUTH Theatre Guild production will be "The Fantasticks" by Tom Jones with music by Harvey Schmidt.

The romantic musical about young love will be presented in early March. Gregg Zellen will direct the production.

Tryouts will be in early January. Dates will be announced soon.

LISA PAPAS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stolmar of Plymouth, earned a letter in tennis at the fall sports banquet at Leelanau School. Lisa also made the dean's list at the college prep school in Glenn Arbor, Mich.

Elaine Anderson's Victorian home is nostalgic with its Williamsburg centerpiece and holly and ribbons in the dining room.

Sandra Richards' old farmhouse was on the museum tour and the Greenfield Village Christmas home tour.

Museum home tour sets holiday mood

Nancy Petrucelli contributed to the decorations in the old Plymouth Hospital building on Main Street. Red velvet and cranberries, pierced tin ornaments and tin animals brightened the all-white tree.

The Plymouth Historical Museum's first major fund-raising event was a social and financial success. Only 500 tickets were printed for the Friday-night Christmas Walk. Elizabeth Holmes, who was the chairwoman of ticket sales, sold all 500 "and just a few more."

Barbara Saunders, museum director, was the chairwoman of the tour, which involved three historic Plymouth homes and the museum.

Everyone cooperated.

Members of the Plymouth Historical Society baked dozens of Christmas cookies and served as hosts and hostesses.

Sandra Richards opened her own home and made arrangements for two others on the tour.

Ms. Richards lives in the old Adams house on the street which bears the Adams family name. She is in the process of restoring the little house, built in its present location in 1834. The old farmhouse's furnishings are authentic. Sandy Richards does most of her cool-weather cooking on her wood-burning range.

"It also helps heat the house," she said. "I scavenge wood put out at the curb on trash-collection days. My friends drop off little bags of wood." With her oil lamps and cook stove, she has no fear of power failures.

Chuck and Betty Childs and Bill and Shirley Conners hosted at the Adams House. The house was on the Greenfield Village Home Tour on Saturday.

MARGARET and Brian Kidston, Doris and Bruce Richard, and Pat and Bruce Scott were hosts at the Anderson House.

Elaine and Roger Anderson have restored the house on Ann Arbor Trail at Jenner to its original Victorian elegance. It was built in the 1940s by John Kellogg.

Third on the walk was the building known as the old Plymouth Hospital, built in 1893. It started out as a private home and served as a family residence until the early 1930s. At that time the Misses Alma and Lena Weist converted it to a small hospital. The Main Street building was a hospital until the 1950s. It now is the offices for Schweitzer Real Estate.

Sue LaSota was hostess for the tour, and guides were Diana Heames, Michelle Heames, Suzanne Loranger, Earl Philip and Marilyn Ayers. Christmas decorations were done by the Green Thumb, Heide's on Ann Arbor Trail and the Statice Shop.

THE WALKERS regrouped at the museum, where they were welcomed by Sanford Burr, president of the historical society, and Ray and Rita Maly.

Two branches of Woman's National Farm and Garden Association had pre-Christmas marts last weekend. The Plymouth branch set up shop in the Forest Place Mall where Juanita Fenkell (right) helped Heather Pinto select holly. Pat Nelson (seated), treasurer of the Tonquish Creek branch, and Jan Moore, president, sold poinsettias and handmade decorating items in Westchester Mall.

Pre-holiday parties abound

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

Residents of Westbrooke Subdivision put together their second Christmas walk recently and the response was overwhelming as 24 couples spent a warm and cheerful evening with each other.

Last year hosts' homes were chosen at random, but this year there were volunteers galore willing to open their doors for the familiar faces.

Pat Meininger and Lynn Spielman were on the agenda for the first stop. Tami Kistemaker, Nancy Luik, Loretta Sobditch and Marty Cohen assisted with hors d'oeuvres at the first homes.

After 90 minutes of socializing, everyone moved on to a fresh bowl of great punch.

Herb Maxwell and Karen Braun were all ready for the guests to arrive to their homes. Karen Sloan, Shannon Kromberg, Betty Hellmers and Kathy Buchhop supplied lovely and delicious munchies at the second stop. Walkers were rotated so different groups appeared at each meeting place.

Elaine Sands and Toni Hartke greeted everyone at their doors a little later in the progressive walk. Carol Dugan, Susan Crosby, Kathy Schettler and Cheryl Deitel had terrific hot delights for the arrivals after their brisk stroll.

Everyone says "save the best till last." Carol and Tom Luelleman are noted for their parties, so that is where the whole group ended the evening. Kathy Radabaugh and a few other neighbors with their favorite recipes, and all of the leftovers from the previous houses, converged on the Luelleman home.

Some people had not seen each other all evening due to the way the schedule was set up. There is never a dull moment when this group decides that is party time. A little of everything transpired at Tom and Carol's. Plenty of dancing, world problem solving, lots of laughter, and, of course, Tom's jokes were shared by the warm and wonderful people living in this great subdivision.

THE FOLKS in Windemere had their third Christmas walk this past weekend. This year it grew to 25 couples, a tremendous jump from last year's 12. This subdivision has the party spirit all year long and it is always topped off at the end of the year with a big bash.

Jerry Shubnell organized the blast this year and it was bigger and better than ever. Judy Justice, Helen Wesner, Mary Jane Travis and Joan Walling were on everyone's list. The group has so much fun together that they did not want to rotate to different homes, they all moved right along — one big happy family. Judy, Helen, Mary Jane and Joan all had helpers at their respective houses keeping the punch flowing and all of the guests happy.

There is something special about these neighbors. They are constantly striving to make their area a better place to live. Many of these people are very active in the community and their churches, enriching all of our lives.

FRED AND ARELYA Hughes decided they really didn't want to venture out on a winter's night. They hosted a super dinner party for several families in Parkwood Estates. Some people just love to entertain and they are two of those people.

The women all brought their favorite dishes. Plenty of snacks and desserts also were supplied to enhance the main course.

Any way you do it, sharing a special evening with those whom you care about is a lot of fun. We all have the fond memories to share the rest of the year.

Good friends, good food and good times are the best way to begin the holiday season.

clubs in action

Bricker-Calas

Douglas J. Bricker, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bricker of Ivywood Lane, Plymouth, and Candy D. Calas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Calas of Des Plaines, Ill., were married Oct. 17 in a morning ceremony.

Pam Slonecker of Columbus, Ohio, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marietta Calas, the bride's sister-in-law; her cousin Dana Davey; Becky Ahlseen of Rockford, Ill.; and Terry Hodge of Janesville, Wis.

Scott Bricker, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brothers Craig and Curt Calas, Mike Neal and Darrell Slack.

The bridegroom is a 1977 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. Both are 1981 graduates of Olivet Nazarene College, Kankakee, Ill. She earned a degree in business finance, and his was in business marketing.

After honeymooning in the Poconos of Pennsylvania, they are living in Glendale, Wis., a Milwaukee suburb. The bride is employed by Milwaukee Stove & Furnace Supply Co., and her husband is a group sales representative with Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Clark-Harner

Lori Ann Harner and Robert Clark of Belleville exchanged marriage vows Oct. 17. The Rev. James Leduc officiated in Kirk of Our Savior United Presbyterian in Westland. The bride is the daughter of Dewey and Dorothy Mack of Wayne. The bridegroom is the son of Robert Clark of Melvindale.

The bride's white gown had a lace and beaded bodice, a Queen Ann neckline and a pleated skirt. The lace on her veil matched her dress. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath. Diane Eggert of Westland was maid of honor. Karen Smith of Canton, the bride's niece, was bridesmaid. Their gowns had dusty rose lace tops and flowered skirts. Their bouquets were burgundy roses and baby's breath. Michelle Harner was flowergirl. She wore a pink satin dress and carried a basket of pink and white rosebuds.

Best man was Dino Cruz of Canton. Ross Clark and Rich Harner were ushers.

After a reception in Kosmo's Lounge, Melvindale, the couple honeymooned in Toronto. They will live in Belleville.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of John Glenn High School. She is employed by the Willow Run Community Schools. Her husband is a 1978 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. He is employed by Belvedere Construction Co.

Mattson-Craddock

Karen Lynn Craddock and Derrick Edward Mattson were married Nov. 7 in Bethseda Missionary Temple, Detroit. Pastor James Lee Beall officiated. The bride's parents are Ronald and Betty Craddock of Nantucket Street, Plymouth. Edward and Betty Mattson of Argonne Street, Farmington Hills, are the parents of the bridegroom.

The bride's white chapel-length gown had a Queen Ann neckline trimmed with venice lace and pearls. The A-line skirt's hemline was ruffled with shiffley lace and had scattered venice-lace appliques. Suzanne Nagy was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Jayne Westbrook, Linda Craddock, Marcie Roe and Michelle Papp. They wore floor-length dust-rose gowns and carried bouquets of pink roses and red carnations.

James Sobczak was best man. Ushers were Steven Mattson, Ron and David Craddock and Gary Jolley.

The wedding reception was in the temple dining room. The couple flew to Smyrna Beach, Fla., for their honeymoon. They will live in Ypsilanti.

The bride graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1979 and attends Eastern Michigan University, where she is a junior. Her husband graduated from Farmington High School in 1978 and is a graduate of Ferris State College. He is employed by Dreisback Cadillac.

Cook-Johnson

Martha Johnson and Thomas H. Cook exchanged marriage vows Nov. 28. The Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee officiated at the candlelight service in First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Johnson of Plymouth are the bride's parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William M. Follis and the late Dr. Hugh K. Cook of Bay City.

The bride's wedding gown, a Piccione original, was made of ivory organza trimmed with satin. She wore a matching satin-trimmed fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of cimbidium orchids and ivy. Cheryl Neu of Plymouth was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Patti Davenport of Ann Arbor and Sue Cook, the bridegroom's sister, of Bay City. They wore ivory lace blouses over cranberry red satin skirts and carried red roses and ivy.

After their honeymoon on Grand Cayman Island, the couple now live in Plymouth. The bride is a department manager for Lord and Taylor at Twelve Oaks. Her husband is assistant minister at First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Red Cross is counting on you.

Autographed copies

Jim Clary, Marine artist, was in town Friday autographing copies of his latest book, "Ladies of the Lake." The hard cover 192-page volume contains the history of the great ships of the Great Lakes such as the Tashmoo, the City of Detroit III, the Carl D. Bradley and the Edmund Fitzgerald. He has included a painting of each ship, photographs and drawings. Clary is to return to the Art Gallery Inc. in the Mayflower Hotel to sign copies of the book which retails at $24.95.

"Wrapped Up in Christmas"
by Norman Rockwell

This is the only 1981 Rockwell Society of America Christmas plate. Each plate bears the Society's seal and hallmark of the Edwin M. Knowles China Company — America's oldest name in fine china. "Wrapped Up in Christmas" is likely to be the most sought-after Christmas plate of 1981. So don't wait until the last minute to get "Wrapped Up in Christmas."

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

TAX RELIEF HAS ARRIVED!
NOW YOU CAN OPEN AN IRA FOR 1982.
On January 2, 1982, new laws make tax-sheltered Individual Retirement Accounts available to anyone under 70½ with earned income (such as wages, salaries, fees or commissions). Even if you're covered by another retirement plan—especially if you're not.

DEDUCT UP TO $2,000 FROM YOUR TAXABLE INCOME EVERY YEAR! UP TO $4,000 FOR A WORKING COUPLE.
As long as you qualify, you may deposit up to $2,000 into your IRA each year; a working couple may deposit up to $2,000 each.* At tax time, every penny deposited in your IRA can be deducted from your taxable income—right off the top. That could even put you in a lower tax bracket.

SAVE TAXES ON YOUR INTEREST, TOO.
The interest earned on your IRA is tax deferred. Without annual taxes, your savings will grow much faster and you'll end up with a far larger retirement fund. Your IRA funds are not taxed until you actually use them, and you may begin withdrawing them as early as age 59½.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT AN IRA.
Social Security benefits and your present retirement plan may not be able to keep up with inflation. The supplemental savings and tax benefits can make an IRA essential to a fuller retirement.

GET OUR FREE BROCHURE AND GET INSTANT ANSWERS FROM THE IRA HOT LINE: 1-800-552-0369.
Establishing an IRA is a big commitment. That's why our new brochure covers the potential tax savings and retirement income benefits in detail. Ask for your free brochure—and feel free to ask any other questions about the IRA—by calling our toll-free Hot Line any weekday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

LET OUR EXPERTS OPEN AN IRA FOR YOU.
Come in for a personal visit and we'll show you why an IRA is the smart choice for you. You'll pay fewer taxes and wind up with a much richer retirement. You really can't afford to be without one.

*Or total earned income, whichever is less. A wage earner and unemployed spouse may open separate accounts and deposit up to a combined total of $2,250.

Substantial penalties and tax liabilities are imposed for withdrawals from Individual Retirement Accounts prior to age 59½, except in cases of death or disability. Withdrawals must begin by age 70½.

Decked with choir

Nazarenes plan living Christmas tree

Christmas music will waft from the branches of a huge "tree" when the choir of the Plymouth Church of the Nazarene, 41550 Ann Arbor Trail, puts on concerts Friday and Sunday, Dec. 18 and 20.

The tree, made of plywood covered with branches and adorned with trim, will rise 25 feet and spread out across the front of the church.

Standing amid its branches to sing the Chirstmas music for programs at 7:30 p.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Sunday will be 40-50 choir members.

"The living tree is something that has been used in a few other churches but not in this area," said Bob Kring, the church's director of music and youth activities.

"I wanted to try it to enhance our Christmas program and offer it to the public. This helps our outreach."

SOME SPECIAL construction for the church's program last Easter provided a head start for the Christmas tree, Kring said.

Steps were built at that time by a crew headed by Bob Yeager, a church member who also is a master carpenter.

"What we had to add was some risers where more choir members can stand," Kring said. "There is plywood where evergreen branches can be tacked on. The young people are helping do that."

Small stuffed animals, toys and twinkle lights will be hung among the branches to make the choir's "loft" look more like a giant tree.

"And we'll be adding more each year to improve the effect," Kring added. "We want to make this an annual thing that people look forward to."

THE CLASSIC "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "The Messiah" will be the climax of the Christmas concert to be sung from the tree.

Other old and more contemporary carols have been woven by Kring into a presentation to be called "His Name: Jesus." The people gathered will be invited to join in some of the familiar yule music.

The public is invited to attend the presentation planned Friday as a gift from the church to the community.

The Sunday program is the church's regular worship service, but visitors also will be welcome, Kring said.

Plymouth Church of the Nazarene is on Ann Arbor Trail between Haggerty and Lilley roads.

Festival of Lights is Jewish Hanukkah

Hanukkah is here again.

Called the Festival of the Lights, it begins at sundown Sunday and continues for eight days until sundown Sunday, Dec. 28. It commemorates what is regarded as the first struggle in recorded history for religious freedom and personal liberty, the gaining of Jerusalem by the Jewish Maccabees.

As the Jews restored the temple for rededication ceremonies following the fighting, only one container of oil could be found to fuel the Eternal Light which burned over the Holy Ark in the temple. This container was expected to last only one day. Instead it burned miraculously for eight days. This is the miracle of the eight-day event called Hanukkah, the Hebrew word for dedication.

It is regarded as a joyous holiday with parties, games and family gatherings. A candle in the candelabra called the Menorah is lit the first night with a special candle called the Shamas, which is also used to light the remaining seven candles on subsequent evenings.

The candles are of many colors. During the candle lighting, blessings are chanted, after which songs are sung. Special prayers of praise and thanksgiving hymns are recited during every service over the eight days of Hanukkah. The occasion also is marked by the giving of gifts and the eating of special foods, especially latkes or potato pancakes.

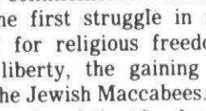

A FAVORED GAME during Hanukkah is dreidel (dray-dell), which involves a four-sided top. The stakes usually are nuts, candy or small change. Depending on the top letter showing after the top is spun, the player will either put into the kitty, take out the entire kitty, win half the kitty or pass.

The four letters on each side stand for Hebrew words which put together mean "A great miracle happened here."

The event occurred in 165 BCE, which stands for Before the Common Era and is a term Jews prefer to use instead of BC or Before Christ. The same time period is involved.

It was the result of conflict between the Jews and King Antiochus IV, king of Syria, who tried to force the Jews to renounce their faith. He decreed that any Jew caught observing Jewish customs would be killed. A man named Mattathias and his five sons allied the Jews in opposition to the Syrians. On his deathbed Mattathias asked his son Judah Maccabee to continue the fight.

The Maccabees gained possession of Jerusalem and began to cleanse and rededicate the temple which had been desecrated by the Syrians. It was then the small amount of oil burned eight days.

moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

We still have the power to challenge war buildup

If you are at least 40 years old you may remember it, and if you are younger you have no doubt read about it. Forty years ago this month, the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor and the United States became involved in a war that was billed as the war to end all wars.

But something went wrong. Since the end of that war, thousands of American combat troops have fought on shores never heard of by those who fought in World War II. Many of them have been shipped home in boxes. Others have been physically maimed or psychologically scarred for life. As the peoples of Korea, Vietnam, Loas and Cambodia will attest, wars do not end wars; they spawn more wars.

Despite these lessons which history has attempted to teach us, we are still in the process of spending hundreds of billions of dollars to build war machinery in the name of keeping the peace. Some of us may be naive enough to believe that history will reverse itself, and that for the first time ever more arms will prevent more war.

Others are not so convinced and their patriotism becomes suspect. Still others, perhaps the real majority, are simply too busy to be concerned. They leave the issues of life and destruction and death to "those who know what to do."

IT IS NO SECRET that those who are convinced of the worth of military might — and even its use — are holding the purse strings. They have the power to spend our money to build the weapons. They have the power to decide who will fight whom.

They also have the power to diminish programs necessary for the maintenance of many poor and disadvantaged in order to provide sufficient funds to keep the madness going. And they have such power because we continue to give it to them.

When we adbicate the direction and the quality of our lives to people with such power, the outcome will not always be to our benefit. The German people discovered this in the 1930s. Americans have experienced it more than once.

NEITHER CIVILIANS nor foot soldiers start wars. They simply provide the personnel. They lose their loved ones and often die themselves. Kahlil Gibran once asked, "Why do you leave your wife and children to follow death to the distant land for the sake of those who buy glory with your blood, and high honor with your other's tears?"

In the nuclear age, we may not have to go to a distant land. War can be brought to our front door at the touch of a bottom with the same swiftness that brought it to Pearl Harbor. Only this time around the results would make Pearl Harbor look like a Fourth of July picnic.

Together, however, we have a power of our own. We have the power to go along with the program or not, the power to support it in the name of patriotism or to challenge it in the name of sanity.

There are none so powerless as those who fail to use the power they have. There are none so enslaved as those who wait for another to free them, and there are none so pitiful as those who choose to believe that everything is fine when it is not.

● WESTLAND CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Members of the choir of Westland Church of the Nazarene, 35245 Wallace, will sing in a Christmas cantata called "The King of Love" to be performed at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18, in the central court of the Westland Shopping Center. Joining with them will be the choir of the Dearborn Church of the Nazarene. Directing the concert will be Gene Smith, director of music at the Westland church.

● NEWBURG UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

A Christmas Feast presented by the Newburg Youth Choir will take place at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18, in Newburg United Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia. Admission is $9.50.

A bloodmobile will be at the church from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. To make an appointment, call Larry Johnson at 522-1977.

● LIVONIA MORMANS

Christmas songs and stories will be featured at a Christmas party at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18, at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Merriman and Six Mile, Livonia. A James Stewart movie, "Mr. Krueger's Christmas," will be shown.

● CANTON CALVARY ASSEMBLY OF GOD

"First Christmas," a Christmas cantata, will be presented Dec. 19 and 20 at Canton Calvary Assembly of God, 7933 Sheldon, between Warren and Joy. It begins at 7 pm. Saturday, and at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

"First Christmas" is the musical re-enactment of the Christmas story from the annunciation of the first coming of Christ by Old Testament prophets to the arrival of the wise men to worship the Christ child.

The program features dramatic segments and special lighting effects to accompany music performed by the Canton Calvary Choir. It will be directed by the Rev. Gordon Mesic, pastor of youth and music at the church.

● FAIRLANE ASSEMBLY

Five performances of "An Old Fashioned Christmas" presented by the drama and music departments of Fairlane Assembly, 22575 Ann Arbor Trail, Dearborn Heights, will be offered Dec. 19-21. The musical features soloists accompanied by Fairlane's orchestra and 70-voice choir. There is no charge to see the production, but tickets are required. To obtain them, call the office at 561-3300.

● PLYMOUTH FIRST BAPTIST

Adult, youth and children's Sunday school classes will join together to present "A Very Special Baby" at the Christmas program at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in First Baptist Church, 45000 N. Territorial.

● ALDERSGATE UNITED METHODIST

Sunday will be a "Morning of Christmas Music" at Aldersgate United Methodist Church, 10000 Beech Daly, Redford Township. At the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services, the Chancel Choir will sing the "Gloria" by Vivaldi, with soloists Bonnie Hart and Sarah Kelly. Other choirs will offer vocal and handbell music.

● CANTON CALVARY BAPTIST

The 75-voice Calvary Concert Choir will be featured in John Peterson's Christmas cantata, "Christ is Born," at 6 p.m. Sunday in Calvary Baptist Church, 43065 Joy, Canton.

Soloists include Nena Batherson, Shirley Hovermale, Peggy Williams, Lori Igrisan, Debbie Woodman, Allison Foster, Steve Gutierrez and Doug Cox. A preconcert recital of Christmas music will be performed by violinist Stacey Flowers.

The audience will be invited to join the choir in singing of the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messial."

● CANTON PEOPLE'S

There will be a signer for the deaf at the Christmas service of People's Church, 153 Corinne, Canton, at 10 a.m. Sunday in Plymouth Canton High School cafeteria, 8415 Canton Center Road, near Joy.

● PARKWAY HEIGHTS FREE METHODIST

The Chancel Choir of 30 voices will present the Christmas cantata, "A Night to Remember" by Harold DeCou, at 11 a.m. Sunday in Parkway Heights Free Methodist Church, 23705 Plymouth, Redford Township. The narrator is Al Stone, and the soloists are Debi Jensen, William Loudoh and Frances Shafer. The director is Jean Eckert.

That evening at 6 p.m., the Sunday school will present its annual Christmas program, "A Blessing Will Come Down" by Arden Mead. Geral Budd Cox directs.

● FARMINGTON CHRIST THE KING LUTHERAN

"Michael's Meaningful Christmas" will be performed by the combined Sunday school classes at 7 p.m. Sunday in Christ the King Lutheran Church, 9300 Farmington, Livonia. After the play, there will be a reception in the lounge.

Salvation Army will observe hunger day

World Hunger Day will be observed at all Salavation Army Christmas kettles on Saturday, Dec. 19.

All contributions made to the kettles that day will be used in their entirety for the Army's worldwide program of feeding the hungry. Special World Hunger Day signs will be attached to the kettles throughout the day.

In addition to the wide range of religious, educational and social services provided by the Army, a large portion of its worldwide ministry involves direct feeding programs to millions of impoverished and malnourished peoples of the world.

Adventists seek funds

Members of Seventh Day Adventist churches in Livonia and Plymouth will continue working on their 73rd annual community service appeal for funds through Dec. 31.

All solicitors in both cities will be identified, unpaid Seventh-day Adventist volunteers.

Local programs which the funds will aid include stop-smoking clinics, vegetarian cooking classes, health and exercise classes, nutrition and health talks and the fund run. Health camps also benefit as well as marriage encounter, stress control classes and seminars on family and health.

In the greater Detroit area, 6,955 persons attended 22 stop-smoking Adventists clinics last year.

China

Offering one billion waves and smiles

By Elaine Watson
special writer

FROM BILLBOARDS in China, faces with varying colors of skin and bone structure and eye slant smile at passers-by. The caption next to the smiling heads reads, "We Have Friends All Over The World."

And if China continues its current policy of wooing tourists and treating them like honored guests after they arrive, it will indeed make friends.

Travelers from the United States, Japan, France and West Germany — in that order — account for the majority of the steady stream pouring into — and mingling with — nearly one billion Chinese.

SINCE I returned last summer from a three-week visit in China that included eight cities, I have tried to get a perspective on my experience. In spite of the cultural shock, which all my reading and my talks with Chinese acquaintances had not adequately prepared me for, my most cherished mememtos are gestures of friendship I found everywhere.

Two litle boys outside a primary school on a commune in Shanghai took my hands and guided me to their classroom. Inside the room, the class sang "Jingle Bells" in pidgin English for our tourist group. (By the way, a primary classroom in each commune we visited throughout our trip sang "Jingle Bells" for us. And every time, several kids would turn and wave happily at us, their friends from somewhere else in the world).

A young woman who teaches at the University of Kaifeng (about 500 miles northwest of Shanghai) spent a half-hour with me. We looked at, among other things, the library card catalog. There were many English titles (written in English). Then we strolled through the campus and talked about her classes, her family and her dreams for the future.

The Key (top) Middle School in Tianjin (a three-hour bus ride south of Peking) was built by the French some years ago. Its classrooms still resemble western facilities of a couple of generations back. Our guide, who found out I teach English, introduced me to an instructor of English. She spent the rest of the afternoon with me.

We talked about her husband, who teaches at a university, and her two children, whose grades are not good enough to admit them to this showplace school. She spoke in a matter-of-fact way about her problems during the time of the Cultural Revolution (1964-1974), when the government closed most universities.

"I taught," she said, smiling wryly, "but I did not teach in my field. I was assigned to teach geography and propaganda."

She is enthusiastic about American idiom and American writers. "Our students want to learn English," she said. "American English."

ONE DAY outside Luoyang (600 miles southwest of Peking), I left our group still photographing the Buddhas at the Lungman caves and wandered by myself along the Li River. Local fishermen were wading into the shallow water, looking for shrimp. Dozens of Chinese tourists passed me while I walked. They stared openly at my white face, often offering me a wave and a smile.

When I stopped for moment to gaze at the mountain on the far side of the river, a young man approached me.

"You speak English?" he asked.

"Yes."

"American English?"

"Yes."

"From what part of America do you come?"

"Michigan," I said. "Detroit."

He looked puzzled. Either "Detroit" and "Michigan" meant nothing to him, or he had learned a different pronunciation. (Detroit often meant cars to Chinese conversationalists and spawned humorous comments about Japanese competition.)

"The middle of the country?" he asked.

"Yes. Near the Great Lakes."

That struck a bell. "Ah. The lakes." he said. And he named three of them, pronouncing them in his own way.

"You speak well," I said.

"I am teaching myself," he said, "from the VOM."

Now I must have looked puzzled.

"The Voice of America. It reaches us by satellite, you know," he said.

INDEED IT does. There was a short-wave radio in our room in the Friendship Hotel. We listened to an English lesson ourselves that evening, along with an international newscast. We had also watched an English lesson on the television in our room in the Peace Hotel in Shanghai.

And in Peking my most inquisitive acquaintance asked about our freedom of the press (Can your newspapers print anything they want to about your president?), race relations (He had just seen "Guess Who's Coming To Dinner"), the Ku Klux Klan "party," and what I thought about President Reagan's foreign policy.

Part of the cultural shock for me was this open attitude of friendly inquiry and an obvious interest in things American. I had not expected such response in a country that has always considered itself the center of civilization, with little need to look beyond its borders for anything of real value.

BUT I FEAR problems loom.

An outspoken woman in our group often dismayed the rest of us with her loud and constant criticism of food and service and burned-out light bulbs. Bored adolescents — and their bored elders — drift from one uncomprehended, undigested treat to the next.

Chinese in dust and heat bicycle next to air-conditioned tourist buses and wait in line in crowded cafeterias while tourists file by to eat — and complain about — 10-course meals in cool restaurants on the second floor.

And night after night, eager, enthusiastic Chinese opera buffs watch weary, restless foreigners wander in and out of front row center seats at performances of the Peking Opera.

If you are planning a trip to China, try to make it soon. Partake of the current warm welcome.

The open give-and-take between ourselves and students and teachers and guides we enjoyed in June had turned into careful courtesy when friends traveled in China late in the summer.

And the climate is changing in another area. The Wall Street Journal on Oct. 27 reported that the "aggressively capitalistic hawkers of souvenirs and tourist artifacts" had been missing in China since 1949, but now there is "rampant commercialism" everywhere. We saw the beginning of it in June, especially near temples in the larger cities.

LOCAL TRAVEL agents can handle your visa and other particular needs. Do list what you want to see, because your itinerary will probably include them, if it is possible. Hotel rooms are still limited, and plans change to fit available space.

However, China Travel Service takes over from port of entry and you literally need spend no more money — except for the tempting items at the ever-present Friendship Stores (where only foreigners shop). There you can buy jade, rugs, cloisonne, silks, sets of dishes and hundreds of other beautiful things.

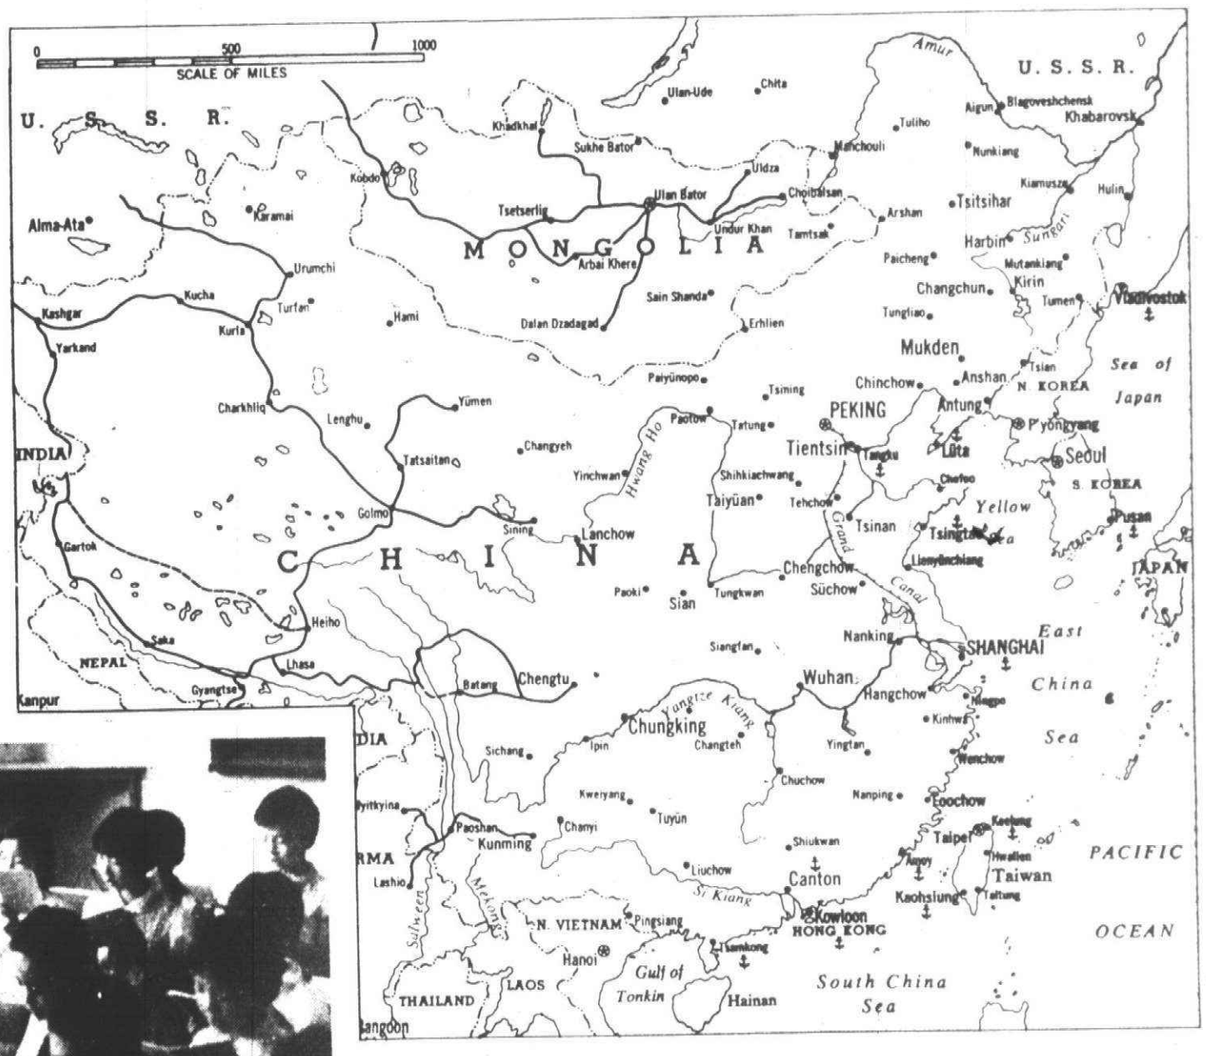

There are several good travel companies that offer China tours. The air cost is the same, but some groups spend several days in Hong Kong and Japan, so the ground travel cost varies.

We chose a tour (arranged through our local agent) that treated us to the People's Republic of China for the whole three weeks — except for our travel time and a day in Hong Kong. It is China Inter-Pacific. All expenses inside China itself are paid, except for purchases for one's personal pleasure — gifts, taxis, etc. When we got sore throats, we received an examination and antibiotics for a small fee.

The high season rate was $2,100 for the land price (for one). For $700 a week, we could not have had the same comfortable and exciting travel experience anywhere else.

Off-season rates for the same trip are cheaper.

Cranbrook sponsoring China tour

In cooperation with the U.S.-China People's Friendship Association, Cranbrook is sponsoring a study tour to China from March 21 through April 10, 1982.

The planned itinerary includes Peking, Xian (Sian), Nanjing (Nanking), Shanghai, Guilin (Kweilin) and Guangzhou (Kwangchow). Equal emphasis will be placed on observing the Chinese people in everyday life, on visiting museums and on viewing China's landscape. Because of Cranbrook's educational status, the tour will include sightseeing opportunities not usually granted to tourists.

Margaret Ayers Host, who has visited China four times in the last few years, is the local tour leader and will be joined by Chinese guides on the mainland. Participants will receive a thorough orientation.

The tour price of $4,149 includes airfare from Los Angeles, accommodations based on double occupancy, meals and visa fees.

For information and reservation forms, call Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills at 645-3635.

Rockets rule own mats; Salem is 2nd, Canton 4th

By Jay Keenan
special writer

It could be said that Westland John Glenn is not the most gracious of hosts.

What kind of hospitality is it to invite 15 wrestling squads to a meet your team is sponsoring and then outscore all of them to take your own title?

That's what the Rockets did Saturday.

Glenn totaled 189½ points in claiming the championship. Plymouth Salem was second with 174, followed by Wayne Memorial (127), Plymouth Canton (108) and Birmingham Brother Rice (104½).

Bob Lusk, Glenn's coach, noted that 10 of his 13 wrestlers placed in the top six in the meet and that was "the reason we won. It was a good team effort.

"A couple of boys wrestled better than expected and our kids gave a great effort," Lusk added. "If a kid does his best with the ability that he has, that's all I can ask of him."

SALEM, WHICH came to the meet minus three wrestlers, managed to place the other 10 in the top six.

"If we had a full team I think we would have won," said Salem coach Ron Krueger. "But we had five kids make it to the finals. We did a good job."

Salem wrestlers won two of their five final matches. Glenn also had wrestlers make it to the finals in five divisions — but the Rockets came away with four individual titles.

Tom Gibson's 8-1 decision over Scott Isaacson of Rice in the 98-pound class got Glenn its first title.

Darrell Reynolds edged Joe Colaianne of Wayne Memorial, 6-5, in the 132 finals for the Rockets second individual win, and Don Forchione's pinning of Salem's Randy Beaudoin in 4:30 gave Glenn the 155 crown.

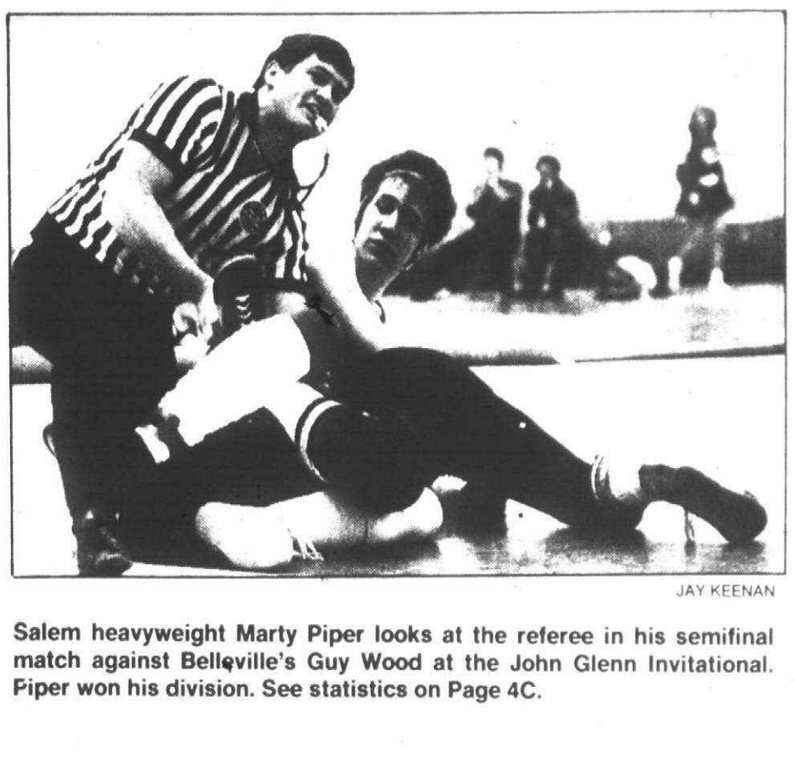

The Rockets' final individual win came in the 167 class, as Ted Badami blanked Mt. Clemens' Tim Hadley, 5-0.

THE ROCKS' Marty Piper ran his individual match record to 10-0 by pinning Randy Gillyard from Mt. Clemens at the 3:20 mark to win the heavyweight crown.

Salem's other win came in the 145 class as Bruce Bachman decisioned Canton's Steve Hamblin, 5-3. Those two will be meeting frequently throughout the season.

Wayne had three individual champs, with Paul Justice decisioning Glenn's Mike Parsons, 1-0, in the 112 final; Dan Matauch pinning Dave Stewart of Belleville in 5:34 for the 119 crown; and Joe Samples outpointing the Rocks' John Beaudoin, 7-6, for the 138 title.

Canton's Todd Barlett claimed the 105 class with a 10-0 win over Anthony Coppola of East Detroit. Bill Anglin of Farmington pinned Kevin Decker of Canton in 1:39 of the 126 final match. Rice's Mark Nichols bested Salem's Scott Wickens, 13-6, in the 185 division and Melvin Richendollar of Belleville won on a default by Riverview's Matt Polcyznski for the 198 title.

Rocks face Belleville '5' tonight

Improvement.

That's what Plymouth Salem coach Fred Thomann will keep striving for as the boys' basketball season goes along.

Although admitting "it wasn't a thing of beauty," the Salem coach saw some positive things surface from his team's 49-43 Suburban Eight League win last Saturday at home over pesky Trenton. The Rocks, now 2-0 overall, hope to reclaim the league title they possessed for seven years until Dearborn took it away last season.

Salem will entertain a quick Belleville team tonight at 8 in another league test.

"We have the physical makeup to be a good basketball team," said the Salem coach. "It depends how much we get better. You would have seen a lot of difference from our first game."

Trenton, battled the much-taller Rocks all the way. Salem trailed early, but managed to enjoy at three-point halftime lead, 24-21.

MIKE McBRIDE and Dave Miller, a pair of 6-foot-3 senior guards, propelled Salem to a 10-point cushion early in the third quarter.

But Trenton refused to fold, trimming the margin to two, 40-38, on a basket by Bryce Korowin with 3:54 remaining.

Sporting life is still Shangri-La

Tom Henderson

I'm a hired hand, a wordslinger who gets paid to write. Like a gunslinger hired on to help settle a wild and unruly town, I hired on a few months ago to help the Observer & Eccentric sports sections through a period of transition.

That isn't to say the O&E sports staffers are wild and unruly. On the contrary, they are hard-working, highly motivated, talented editors and writers. Like most people in the business, they work too hard and get paid too little. They do it because they love newspapers and words.

For a while, recently, I didn't think I loved words or newspapers. I had too much success too fast. By the time I was 29, I was an eight-year veteran of the Detroit Free Press and the hectic way of life you find in daily journalism. I was an award-winning writer and a good editor. By the time I was 30, I was burned out, divorced and retired.

Coming from the '60s generation that believed in tuning in, turning on and dropping out, I dropped out. I traveled the country, traveling by train, bus, plane and thumb. I spent winters in Jamaica, falls in California and summers in Michigan.

SLOWLY, I RETURNED to words. Two years after I quit the real world, I was writing religiously in a set of journals and yearning to return to newspapers.

That's where the O&E came in. A friend who is a boss here, Mike Arnholt, heard I was back in town looking to hire on at the Free Press or News. Come on aboard, he said. Join us. It's only temporary, but it's a job. You help us and we'll help you.

Mike, that wasn't a fair deal. What do I owe you? I gotta admit I came out way ahead on the deal.

I'm not talking money here. Oh, the cash was fine; it paid my bills and made me a professional writer, again. But forget the cash.

Forget, too, the fine people I've worked with at the O&E, forget the good stories you let me cover, the cushy assignments and the good hours while everyone else was working nights. Forget all the time out of the office when others were manning phones, laying out pages, writing headlines and pursuing stories all at once.

Forget that I was able to work on my craft, hone my skills again like an aging ball player who has been out of the game a couple of years but who is now down in the minors getting in shape for another stretch in the bigs.

FORGET ALL OF those things and I still come out ahead on the deal. Just don't take my girls basketball away from me, 'cause then I will get upset.

That's it, you read right: girls basketball. I love it. What a sport.

I've covered Rose Bowls, Stanley Cups, Tiger baseball, the Red Wings and Michigan football. I've watched the Russians slaughter the NHL in Madison Square Garden; I've skated with the Red Wings during practice in the Montreal Forum; I've poked my finger into Bo Schembechler's shoulder as he angrily jabbed his into mine while dozens of stunned national correspondents watched from behind the curtains of the Rose Bowl media chateau.

I've been threatened by some pro athletes and I've palled around with others. Gordie Howe even sent me a Christmas card one year.

I'VE BEEN IN ARMADA, too, and Harper Woods and Hartland. I was in those three recently to cover the girls high school basketball tournament and I've never had more fun at a sporting event.

I saw tournament teams — Redford St. Agatha, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Bentley, Livonia Ladywood and Saginaw-Carrollton, the eventual winner in Class C — playing at their best, so I may have been spoiled. But the basketball was fine, the crowds exciting and the girls much, much better than I had expected.

How nice it must be to be a girl in high school now, where you can be an athlete and no one thinks it's odd. How nice it should be for them when they become women.

WHEN I WAS IN high school in the mid-'60s, there were no women's teams. Instead, there was a pathetic organization known as GAA (Girls Athletic Association) and what the girls got for the trouble of joining was rotten equipment and stupid rules.

Girls playing basketball then got the crummy balls the boys wouldn't use anymore, and they got rules that wouldn't let them run with the ball. Three steps was it, and you could only play on one side of the court or the other.

Girls didn't play softball or golf or run track, they were cheerleaders or homecoming queens or spectators.

Now, thanks to women's liberation and Title IX, the equal spending-in-sports bill that many athletic directors, in high school and college, would like to see abolished, I see things I would have thought impossible five years ago.

I see 5-foot-2 guards with pony tails who pump in jumpers from the top of the key. I see feinting forwards who can hit the base-line shot with consistency. I see turnaround jumpers and outlet passes and between-the-legs dribbles.

I SEE TEAMWORK, too, and that's the most surprising part, considering how recently girls have gotten into the act. Livonia Bentley, for example, had a well-conceived offense the night I saw them and a defense that shifted from man-to-man to press as the coach dictated.

The same week I saw St. Agatha play a beautiful tournament game, I saw a boys Class A game that was horrid in comparison. The boys ran and gunned, but mostly they turned the ball over and traveled and had no idea what they were doing on the floor or how they fit in with the movements of their teammates. They were taller than the girls, but that's all. As far as pure basketball goes, it was no contest.

Those cute little (and not so little) girls played like tigers and shattered my conceptions of what cute little girls are or can be.

Nearly 5,000 paid to see the state finals this year, a huge increase over five years ago. In five more years, they'll sell 20,000 tickets. The sport is for real.

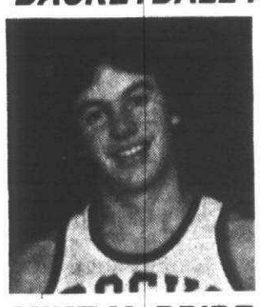

My wordslinging is done here at the O&E, the job I signed on for finished, and so I leave for other work. Thanks, Mike, for the job. Thanks, girls, for the basketball.

Guard tandem drills Trenton

The Trojans then had several chances to tie it up. Center Dave Galko appeared to have an easy layup which would have knotted the score, but he slightly changed his shot in mid-air when Salem's 6-7 center Norm Haygood came out and challenged.

Salem capitalized on the miss, responding with six points, four by McBride.

"Our kids couldn't enjoy prosperity," said Trenton coach Jim Ryan. "I've coached McBride in summer camps and He knows what it takes to win.

"That's what we have to learn how to do.

"Our inexperience hurt, but nobody expected us to play Salem that tough. I saw something positive happening — that we're better than we though we'd be at this point."

McBride led Salem with 13 points and Miller added 11. Haygood, who blocked a few Trenton shots early, added six.

The game was dominated the sound of the referee's whistles — 45 fouls and numerous three-second calls.

TRENTON connected on 19 of 29 free throws, but couldn't put down the crucial ones. Salem hit only 9 of 19.

"A lot of points were scored at the free throw line," said Thomann. "The game never had any chance to establish a rhythm. It was a dogfight. They (Trenton) weren't allowing the easy pass to go inside.

"We're not playing great yet — nobody is. It's just too early."

Thomann appears to be searching for the right combination up front from a wealth of big men.

"We played a lot of players," he said. "Maybe it was hard for them to adjust. It takes some time to fit it all together."

Trenton's Rod Scharboneau, a 6-1 junior forward, gave Salem's man-to-man defense fits with some quick baseline moves. He led all scorers with 15. Dave Galko, a 6-6 senior, chipped in with 13 and guard Devin Hart added 11.

"I wish we could have maintained some offensive consistency," said the Salem coach, "but I thought overall, our defense was pretty good."

RYAN AGREED with Thomann's assessment.

"Plymouth Salem dictated our offensive choice," he added. "Our guys probably have never seen that many blocked shots, but they kept coming at them. I think we'll be competitive in the league."

Plymouth Christian evens cage record

Mike Routledge tallied 10 points as Plymouth Christian Academy held on for a 40-39 boys' basketball victory last Friday over Genessee Christian.

The Eagles were able to withstand a 12-8 fourth quarter outburst by Genessee to post their second victory in four starts.

John Koss gave Routledge plenty of support as he scored eight points and grabbed 10 rebounds. The Eagles' Darrell Wheeler also hit for eight.

Christian will return to action Saturday at home (Pioneer Middle School) to face Allen Park Intercity Christian. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Bantam hockey club earns runner-up spot

The Plymouth-Canton Blackhawks won the Redford Thanksgiving Bantam B Division Tournament with a 3-0 triumph over Southfield in the championship game.

Goalie Terry Packer turned in a sparkling performance in blanking the Crows. He got plenty of defensive support from Ben Bonner, Brian LeAnnais and Randy Forreider.

Tom Storm opened the scoring on an assist from Tom Fifer. Dan Lough then added two insurance goals as the Blackhawks upped their overall record to 11-4-2.

The Blackhawks downed Southfield in the tourney opener, 5-2, as Tom Wheeler, Mike Jenkins, Ron Davis, Dan Lough and Storm found the net. Dan Lough had two assists. Wheeler and Scott Halfacre also assisted.

John Potts and Ron Schwartz had goals in a losing cause. Jeff Laho assisted on both scores.

In the second round, Plymouth topped Redford Big Bills, 4-3.

DAVIS recorded the first Plymouth goal on a pass from Halfacre. Redford tied it up when Jerome Burdock beat Packer with Scott Martinuzzi and Keith Williams assisting.

Jenkins made it 2-1 on an assist by Lough, but Redford answered when Martinuzzi scored from Williams and Tony Curto.

Plymouth finally broke away from 2-2 tie on goals by Jim White and Lough. Davis, Jenkins and Brian Waack drew assists. Redford then made it close when Williams scored on an assist from Gordy Theakston.

In the most thrilling game of the tournament, Plymouth edged the St. Clair Shores Spirits, 5-4, as Lough tallied the game-winner and completed his hat trick with just 53 seconds left in the game.

Storm and Jenkins accounted for the other goals. Mark DeVirgilio added two assists.

Frank Maselli and Paul Fleming each had two goals for St. Clair Shores.

Thurston rips winless Chiefs

Redford Thurston's Eagles continued to soar on the basketball floor Tuesday with a convincing 59-35 victory over host Plymouth Canton.

"We're getting there," said Thurston coach Gary Fralick, whose team's overall record is now 4-0. "I'm happy with the start.

"I think we can be legitimate contenders in our league. Right now we just want to be consistent."

Meanwhile, winless Canton ran into its third straight tough opponent (Ypsilanti and Livonia Stevenson were the others).

"We played a real good team," said Canton first-year coach Dave Van Wagoner. "We looked very flat, but we still feel we can be successful.

Thurston, off to its best start in years, dominated the boards.

Senior forward Tim Fredericks led the way with 25 points and 15 rebounds. Jim Sibel added 14 points and eight rebounds. Guard Rich Biskner had eight points and five assists.

Steve Tuttle, a senior center, led Canton with 12. Ron Rienas and Tim McFarland added seven and six, respectively.

THURSTON jumped out to a 27-16 halftime lead and never looked back. The Chiefs were guilty of some lackadaisical passing versus Thurston's 2-3 zone defense.

"We had too many turnovers," said Van Wagoner, "and they beat us up bad on the boards. We work on rebounding every day. Thurston is an aggressive team that plays well."

The schedule doesn't get any easier for Canton, which travels Friday to meet defending Western Six League champ Farmington Harrison (4-1).

Canton will then meet rival Plymouth Salem in the annual Christmas tournament at 8:30 p.m. Monday at Salem.

Canton, Salem tune up for pool dual

This year's Plymouth Canton-Plymouth Salem boys' swim duel promises to be the most competitive since the rivalry began three years ago.

Salem has had the upper hand so far, but Thursday's meet (7 p.m.) is expected to be tight.

"Canton has a real good team," said Salem's veteran coach, Chuck Olson. "There will be a lot of emotion. The question will be — who wants to win the most. We're looking forward to it."

Both Canton (3-0) and Salem (2-0) go into the meet unbeaten. The two teams have scored similiar margins of victory over common opponents — Redford Union and Ypsilanti.

"Whoever loses, it's got to be the coaches' fault," chuckled Olson.

"Each team is capable of winning. It depends on who makes out the best lineup."

Coach Bill McCord's Canton team tuned up for the neighborhood battle with a 88-78 non-league triumph over Belleville.

John Simone and Pete Stern each won two events for the Chiefs.

STERN was victorious in the 50-yard freestyle (23.62) and 100 butterfly (1:00.47). He also anchored Canton to a first-place finish in the 200 medley relay (1:49.32). Making up the rest of the quartet were Bob Simrak, Jim Luce and Ron Hurley.

Simone, a junior captain, took first in the 200 and 500 freestyles with times of 1:54.93 and 5:19.45, respectively.

Other Canton first-place spots were garnered by Simrak, 200 individual medley, 2:14.49, and Jerry Fleisher, diving, 126.15 points.

Recording second-place finishes for the Chiefs were Hurley, 50 free, 24.70; Craig Vanderburg, diving, 126.05; Pete Sickels, 100 free, 55.94; Scott Simmons, 500 free, 5:26.97; Simrak, 100 backstroke, 1:04.25, and Jim Luce, 100 breaststroke, 1:08.4.

SALEM also won Tuesday night, beating Ypsi, 91-81.

Senior Russ Shaffer led the way with firsts in the 200 IM (2:12.1) and 100 backstroke (1:02.4).

The Rocks' foursome of Paul Neschich, Jeff Kleinsmith, Bob Bowling and Ashley Long were victorious in the 200 medley relay with a clocking of 1:49.9.

Other Salem individual firsts were gained by Tim Harwood, 50 free, 23.8; Joe Rudelic, diving, 250.45; Kleinsmith, 100 fly, 58.2, and Mark Roehrig, 500 free, 5:20.1.

Gaining second-place spots for Salem were Long, 100 breaststroke, 1:08.3; Harwood, 100 free, 52.9; Neschich, 100 fly, 1:01.7, and Roehrig, 200 free, 1:57.4.

Suburban rollers gain more honors

Two of the western suburban all-stars — Bob Goike Jr. and Aleta Rzepecki — have been honored during the past week for their performances so far during the regular league season.

Goike, who is one of the average leaders in the Bonanza All-Star Classic, was named Bowler of the Year by the Michigan Majors Association.

The son of a former all-star, young Bob won the honor by outscoring his rivals in the voting by 101 points. Over the year he has averaged 210 in 103 games and is second on the money-winning list with $2,310.

Miss Rzepecki, the 18-year-old southpaw who is battling for top honors in the ladies' major leagues, has been nominated for the Woman Bowler of the Year honor on the national level.

She has captured one tournament on the pro circuit and is 10th on the money-winning list with $13,255. She is a dark horse in the balloting, but the fact that she was nominated in her first year on the pro tour is a high honor in itself. The results of the balloting will be announced shortly after the holiday season.

ANOTHER BOWLER honored recently was former Stroh team captain Eddie Lubanski, one of the few competitors who still uses a two-fingered ball.

He leads all Detroiters in lifetime averages in the American Bowling Congress (ABC) tournaments.

In the figures just released, Lubanski is in third place nationally with a 203.72 average for 305 games in 31 ABC tournaments.

The national leader is Nelson Burton of St. Louis with 206.7.

THERE WERE thrilling finishes in the some of the area's top leagues last week.

One of the most exciting was the wrap-up of the Mixed Classic at Westland Bowl, where only six pins separated the top three places.

Bob Pniewski showed the way with a 279 in 697. Ken McNabb was only two pins back with a 695, and John Wodarski landed third with a 167 in 691.

The same story occurred at Merri-Bowl, where Jerry Dow paced the Junior House League with 66, but had only an 11-pin margin over Jim Stockcon, who rolled a 239 in 655. Steve Solis was third with 648.

Some of the spotlight was focused on Chuck O'Rourke, who earned membership in the 700 club with a 742 series in the Handicappers League.

BEL-AIRE opened its doors to the 700 club and admitted two new members.

Bowling in the Classic, Tony Scepcak posted a 257 in 701, and Joe Stanloni had a 285 in 703 in the Men's House League.

IN OTHER GOOD performances, Don Prebola scored a 689 series in the Bators League at Woodland while Leandra Michalak's 605 paced the Ladies Classic at Westland.

Kitty Capaladi missed the charmed double-century series with 599 while Bruce Beyer was top scorer of the week at Garden Lanes with a 678 in the St. Linus League.

Tony Krause topped the Sunday League with 666, and Dolin Keve showed the way in the Ladies Classic with 650.

One of the most pleased bowlers at SuperBowl was Margie Brother, who had a 219 middle game in a 603 series.

Plan holiday ski parties

The dreariest time of year for many is the happiest time for southeast Michigan's 200,000 skiers.

Our ski council is part of the reason. The Metropolitan Detroit Ski Council, one of the largest bodies of its kind in the United States, and a member affiliate of The United States Ski Association's Central Division, is the umbrella organization for Southeast Michigan's most active ski clubs.

The council, and its attendant clubs are kicking off the Alpine season this year with numerous social events akin to those of past seasons.

Earlier this month, the council hosted its instructional weekend at Boyne Mountain (on the 11th, 12th and 13th), preceded by the Jim Dandy Ski Club's "Sno Ball" on Dec. 4.

Anyone making plans for New Year's weekend ski parties may have difficulty choosing which of the literally hundreds of events to attend, but here's a brief sampling for possible and recommended selection:

- The Skinik New Year's Eve Party at Thunder Mountain Lodge, from 9 a.m. to 2 a.m. at an extremely economical $3 per person. There'll be dancing, with an open bar. (Dancing with an open bar? Sounds like a lot of work!).
- Out-of-town junkets still available to individuals or couples include the Skiwis trip to Schuss Mountain, near Mancelona, by bus. Their contact number is 774-1122.
- The Chrysler Ski Club (to whom I'll have the privilege of showing ski films I produced in Chile, Iran and Boyne Mountain on Jan. 6), will be trekking to the Waterfront Inn (via car pool) at Traverse City to sample the Grand Traverse area's numerous slopes to welcome 1982. The Chrysler contact is 649-0454. Those wishing to go should ask for Fred.

Lions find path to Center Stage

C.J. Risak

It was the kind of night Detroit Lion fans had been hoping, pleading and patiently waiting for for a long, long time.

More than 200 avid fans gathered Monday night to see and applaud their heroes at the Center Stage in Canton.

"This is the best crowd by far," said Marshall Pitler. Pitler is executive director of the Wayne County Easter Seal Society, which is what Monday Night Football with the Lions is benefitting.

Monday's was the fourth and by far the largest of the series. It wasn't the football game — Atlanta vs. Los Angeles — that attracted the crowd.

It was their heroes.

FAN ADULATION is more fickle than Michigan weather, evidenced by the small numbers drawn on previous Mondays.

This Monday was different for two reasons — Billy Sims and a shot at a championship.

Sims is Mr. Detroit Lion. He is the team's major offensive talent which, as in any sport, carries with it the label of most popular player. Wherever he appears, throngs of fans both young and old flock to him.

But that wasn't the only reason the more than 200 people forked over five bucks apiece Monday. The Lions, for the first time in 24 years, have a chance to win something.

For the players, a division championship and a trip to the playoffs rides on Sunday's game with Tampa Bay at the Silverdome.

But it means much more than that to the Lions' fans.

THAT WAS PROVED Monday by both Sims and guest host Al Ackerman of WDIV-TV.

Billy was in high school in Texas when the Lions last made the playoffs as a wild card team in 1970. When Ackerman asked Sims if he knew when the Lions last made an appearance in postseason play, Sims was uncertain, saying only sometime in the 70s.

A fan knew better.

"It was 1970," he shouted from the crowd. "They lost to Dallas, 5-0."

There isn't a Lion from that 1970 squad on the current team. Few current Lions remember who quarterbacked the '70 team, who the leading rusher was or what the team's record was.

But the fans remember. Layoffs, political strife and inflation don't frustrate Detroit fans as much as a loss to the Minnesota Vikings.

WHEN THE QUESTION and answer period with the Lions started during halftime, the crowd was asked to wish the Lions luck in their upcoming game.

Of course, it wasn't going to be a quiet "best wishes," a pat on the back and some soft applause for Sims and teammates Eddie Murray and James Hunter. The crowd responded to the request with a roaring, standing ovation that lasted several minutes.

It's another of those ironies of sport — the fans live and die with the team, memorizing every statistic and play, while the players, whose livlihood depends on such things, show little concern. Many players don't seem to realize how much they mean to a community.

Sims is good example. He admitted that he doesn't watch Monday night football or films of his own games.

He didn't even watch Sunday's San Diego-Tampa Bay game, which had such a strong bearing on the Lions' fate.

THE LIONS' offensive leader did say all the right things Monday — "Once we beat Tampa Bay, we won't have to worry about who beats who," and "We already have one Super Bowl team."

The fans had heard it before, but now they can believe it. Detroit is unbeaten at home. Their hopes for a winner bring them to the Silverdome each Sunday the Lions are at home, where they yell their lungs out with cheers.

When they can't get tickets to games, they show up wherever their heroes appear to applaud them.

All they ask is that the Lions win. No more disappointments, no more heartbreaks, no more frustrations. Substitute for these a few victories.

Swim invite Saturday

The annual Plymouth Rotary Invitational prep boys' swim meet will be held Saturday at the Salem pool.

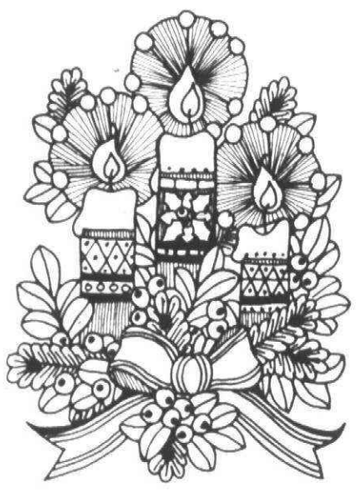

Diving preliminaries start at 10 a.m. Time trials begin at 1:30 p.m.

Admission is $1 for adults. Students will be admitted free.

Brighton, the defending champion, appears to be the team to beat again. Host Salem and rival Canton also have a good shot at winning the title.

Other teams participating include Westland John Glenn, Livonia Franklin and Northville.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

CITY OF PLYMOUTH
MICHIGAN

ON PROJECT PLAN FOR MAYFLOWER HOTEL PROJECT INCLUDING ISSUANCE OF BONDS BY THE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Commission of the City of Plymouth, pursuant to and in accordance with Act 338, Michigan Public Acts, 1974, as amended, shall hold a public hearing on December 21, 1981, at 7:30 o'clock p.m., in the City Commission Chambers, City Hall, 201 S. Main St., Plymouth, Michigan.

The Public Hearing shall be held to consider whether the Project Plan recommended to the City Commission by The Economic Development Corporation of the City of Plymouth constitutes a public purpose and the advisability of the City Commission approving by resolution the Project Plan.

Under the Project Plan the Project would consist of additions and improvements to an existing hotel facility and related improvements to be located adjacent to the existing Mayflower Hotel at the corners of Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

The Project would be acquired by The Economic Development Corporation of the City of Plymouth (the "EDC") with the proceeds of approximately $1,600,000 of revenue bonds issued by the EDC pursuant to Act 338. The Project would be leased to Mayflower II, a Michigan copartnership, (which would acquire title to the Project upon payment of the bonds) which will sublease the Project to Lorenz Enterprises, a Michigan Corporation, which will operate the Project in common with the Mayflower Hotel. The revenue bonds will be secured by the Project, and will be payable solely and only from the rental payments received from the lease of the Project and a mortgage on the Project. The bonds will not be a general obligation of the City of Plymouth and will not be payable from the general or tax funds of the City of Plymouth.

No persons shall be displaced as a result of the implementation of the Project Plan.

The Project Plan, related maps and drawings and other information concerning the Project and its financing are available for public inspection during regular business hours at the offices of the City Clerk in Plymouth, Michigan.

THIS NOTICE is given pursuant to the requirements of Section 17 of Act 338. Further information concerning the matters set out in this notice may be secured from the City Clerk's office.

All interested citizens are encouraged to attend and will be offered an opportunity at said hearing to address the City Commission concerning the Project Plan.

WILL YOU BE ABLE TO AFFORD RETIREMENT IN THE YEAR 2016?

At age 30, retirement may not seem like an immediate concern. But to maintain your current lifestyle at retirement, it is estimated that you will need between 70%-80% of your pre-retirement income when you retire. Social Security will contribute only 30% and a pension program approximately 30% more. How will you make up the difference? How much money will you need to retire comfortably in 2016?

THE FOLKS AT DOWN RIVER FEDERAL SAVINGS CAN HELP YOU SAVE FOR THE FUTURE.

You can save for the future and lower your income tax with an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). As of January 1, 1982, every wage earner, even though you are participating in an employer sponsored pension plan, can open an IRA. You can contribute up to $2,000 in an IRA. For married couples where only one spouse is employed, contributions up to $2,250 can be made in Spousal IRA. If you and your spouse are employed, you both can open separate IRA's and can contribute up to $2,000 each in a lump sum or smaller deposits throughout the year.

WHY CHOOSE OUR IRA?

Your deposits are put immediately into a high-return certificate of deposit. At the time you open your IRA, our counselor will advise you of the current high rate of interest and how it will substantially increase your retirement savings over the years. Your IRA account is insured separately to $100,000, regardless of any other funds you may have with us.

PUT YOUR FUTURE IN YOUR HANDS.

Discover how the future can be in your hands with an Individual Retirement Account. Take a good look at the future, then see the folks at Down River Federal Savings.

DECREASE INCOME TAXES NOW WHILE INCREASING RETIREMENT INCOME.

Age	Total Deposit At Age 65 (At $2000/Yr.)	8%	10%	12%

Romantics' latest album in the pink

The Romantics will appear Dec. 27 at the Royal Oak Music Theater.

By Nick Charles
special writer

Everybody knows good things come in pink packages, or do they? If they don't, they should: The new Romantics album is in pink.

The LP, entitled "Strictly Personal" (Nemperor Records), features the foursome looking as spiffy as ever in pink leather jackets. Anyway, who cares what's on the cover? It's the music that counts.

Even though the contents of the jacket are superior, it seems that some people still care what's on the outside.

"We sent out the album to the radio stations," said drummer Jimmy Marinos, "and a few stations around the country refused to add us because they didn't feel the image . . ."

"Was what the radio station wanted to put across to its audience," continued rhythm guitarist Wally Palmar.

"WE DIDN'T fit into their program," said guitarist Coz Canler.

"They didn't even take the time to listen to the album. They labeled us new wave or punk or whatever," said Marinos. "We took the time to shave and put on clean shirts and ties. Certain programmers found that objectionable. We should have just let our beards go and looked bad."

So, what happened? Well, the Romantics didn't have to stop shaving to get air play. Nemperor came up with a simple solution.

They distributed the LP in a plain white cover. Just like magic, the songs seemed to pop up on the air all over the country.

Detroit radio wasn't so picky. The band got immediate air play and just as prompt live response.

THE BAND recently played a surprise concert at Traxx, a Detroit rock club.

The next night found the Romantics headlining at the University of Windsor's Athletic and Community Center. It was the first show held in the auditorium, and it seems the band is just as popular across the bridge as it is at home.

Dressed all in black and leather, the Romantics sang songs from the new album as well as from their earlier two, "National Breakout" and "The Romantics." Their latest LP contains 11 new songs, with three of the four Romantics singing lead vocals. Canler, the newest member, is the only one who doesn't sing lead.

"I'm not a singer," said Canler after the show in Windsor, "I've always played guitar."

However, Palmar had different ideas about Canler's ability to communicate only through his fingers.

"We're going to get him to sing on the next album. Everyone in this band is capable of singing. Certain songs fit a certain vocal style.

"Just like the Temptations had different members who always sang. Certain songs just call for a certain kind of voice."

THE ALBUM'S single proves that Palmar is no longer the sole vocalist in the band. "No One Like You" is filled with bassist Rich Cole's hot and haunting vocals. "I also sing lead on "'Cant Get Over You," said Cole, of Rochester.

"He always sang back-ups and double leads," said Palmar of Cole.

"The new single has more mass appeal than the other songs on the album," said Canler.

"It also fits the format most radio stations are following," said Marinos.

If the reaction of the crowd is any indication, then the band is right. Anybody and everybody can like the new album.

ONE OBVIOUS difference in the latest album is its producer. The first two Romantics albums were produced by Pete Solley, but the latest LP was produced by Mike Stone, who also produced albums for Queen and Journey.

"The producer is really underestimated in the whole rock and roll business," said Marinos. "He is really the main source behind the sound. Solley tried to round out the edges, but Stone was into taking it how we are and putting it on vinyl."

NICK CHARLES

Victoria's flavors spice Village's holiday displays

The candy cane and holly traditions of Christmas took shape in the 19th century. And advances in manufacturing and mass communications turned a predominantly religious observance into the secular and family holiday we celebrate today.

Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village illustrate these origins of the modern Christmas with a "Victorian Holiday" Dec. 5 through Jan. 3.

The modern Christmas season is rich with traditions that have little to do with the Christian observance of Jesus' birth. The year-end, winter holiday that we celebrate is part religious, part Dickens' warmth, a dash of Moore's and Nast's Santa Claus, a variety of ethnic dishes and quite a bit of commercial enterprise. It took its present form in the 19th century.

GREENFIELD VILLAGE'S 19th-century buildings are a set for this colorful Christmas. The homes, shops and industries all contribute to the holiday festivities.

At the village print shop visitors see an exhibit of Thomas Nast's famous Christmas pictures. It was Nast, a noted political cartoonist, who created our vision of Santa Claus in numerous holiday pictures for Harper's Weekly. A printer uses a steam operated press to print a guide of the Christmas tour, a 19th century candy ad (available at the Heinz house) and candy labels.

The steam-operated gristmill makes cornmeal for holiday cooking at the Ford home. Cornmeal recipes are discussed and available for visitors.

THE TRADITIONAL rural Christmas of the 1870s is the focus of activity at the Ford home. The period is shortly after the 1876 centennial.

The cooking activity reflects an interest that developed at that time in early American cooking with cornmeal dumplings and muffins and various kinds of sausage. The decorating themes are patriotic, including a tree festooned with flags. The family activities reflect the Scot-Irish traditions.

The Wright house, by contrast, is an urban home of the early 20th century. Christmas is becoming standardized. The decorations are from the Ladies' Home Journal.

Christmas cards decorate a table. Recorded Christmas music is played on a cylinder recorder. Activities include tree decorating with popcorn strings, strudel making (reflecting the German background of the home) and household chores of the period.

CANADIAN AND English traditions are illustrated at the Edison Homestead, representing grandpa and grandma's house. The period is the 1870s in Canada. Decorations include a kissing ball and Christmas lamps. Activities include grandmother making plum pudding and grandfather whittling a Noah's ark for the grandchildren.

The roots of Chirstmas traditions are discussed at the Foster house while preparations are made for a party. The period is the 1840s in the Pittsburgh area. Clement Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas" is discussed. The German tree and the English yule log are also exhibited and discussed. Flute and guitar music is performed.

COOKIES ARE the center of attraction at the Adams house, an 1870s house with decorations from the period.

Making gingerbread and springerle cookies for use as food and decoration is demonstrated. Egg shells are gilted for tree decorating. Other decorations are made of popcorn balls and paper.

In addition to the home activities, the village shows other aspects of the holiday season. At the Heinz house, a commercial confection operation demonstrates the making and packaging of various kinds of confections.

At Menlo Park, the year is 1879 and preparations are under way for the first incandescent lighting demonstration on New Year's Eve. The power

They don't make 'em like this anymore

They don't make movies like they used to, as evidenced by these stills from two silent films to be shown at the Detroit Institute of Arts' Afternoon Film Theatre. Above, a scene from "Madame DuBarry," a 1919 film directed by Ernst Lubitsch and starring Pola Negri. Showtime will be 1 p.m. Dec. 29-30 and Jan. 2-3. At right, Adolfe Menjou and Marie Prevost star in Lubitsch's 1924 comedy, "The Marriage Circle" showing at 1 p.m. Jan. 5-10. Both films will be shown in the recital hall of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Light selections highlight DSO concert

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

A recent Detroit Symphony Orchestra program at Ford Auditorium featured Gary Bertini's last appearance in Detroit until his anticipated return next March.

As opposed to his other programs so far, this one consisted of works lighter in character. The selections in the first part are rather well known. These were the oveture to "The Italian Girl in Algiers" by Rossini and Gershwin's "An American in Paris."

The second part consisted of the rarely performed "The Bewitched Child" by Ravel. (Perhaps the French title "L'Enfant et le Sortileges" might ring a bell.)

The Rossini short overture was enthusiastically played with refreshing tonal quality in spite of the few imprecise notes by the flute in the first occurrence of the second theme.

THE GERSHWIN selection is a very entertaining piece of music, even though not very profound by classical standards.

This work was performed with gleeful spirit by the orchestra, supplemented with such unconventional instruments as saxophones and taxicab horns — unconventional for a traditional symphony orchestra, that is.

Bertini was seen joyfully dancing and bouncing on the podium, probably relishing the opportunity of becoming a jazz musician for a short while. At the same time, the highly professional sound of the DSO has bestowed some greatness on this work.

Thus, both orchestra and Gershwin have mutually benefited from the performance, rewarding the audience in the process.

The final treat consisted of Ravel's opera "The Bewitched Child." I found this work very appealing and intriguing, even though I had never heard it before. More listenings are necessary to appreciate its full significance.

THE PERFORMANCE was very economically staged. Bertini was in charge of the dramatic action. He had performed the work previously with this staging in Israel and in Germany. The dramatic cast this evening consisted mostly of students and graduates from the University of Michigan music department.

The role of the boy was sung and played by the capable soprano Sondra Stowe, who had earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in California. She is currently a performer of international stature.

The dramatic action made full use of the modest, low-budget staging available.

With appropriate lighting techniques, the mood of the scene came through. But some aspects tended to be awkward and ridiculous. Shortly after the beginning, Miss Stowe, while portraying the role of an unruly and destructive child, was exercising great caution not to knock over the thin cardboard fixtures.

review

The scene of the Grandfather Clock, played by Thomas Sholten was quite awkward, when he was seen pacing around with an illustration of a clock on a cardboard sheet, waving a feeble paper pendulum in front of him.

THESE ARE minor considerations, which a little more money could solve (money being, however, a major problem for the average mortal).

The text was translated into English by Katherine Wolff for the benefit of uncivilized people like myself who don't speak French. This might have been a redundant effort, since words are very seldom intelligible when being sung. The original French, even though it would not have made the text more understandable, would have articulated the singing with a more authentic flavor.

MOT's 'Mikado' cast announced

Mary Callaghan Lynch of Birmingham will portray the role of Yum-Yum in the Michigan Opera Theatre's first production ot its winter season, Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operetta "The Mikado."

The production opens Jan. 15 in Detroit's Music Hall.

MOT General Director David DiChiera noted that the operetta will combine the talents of several nationally acclaimed G&S performers with a number of other featured singers currently living and working in Detroit.

"There is an amazing amount of talent in the Detroit area," he said, "and we are very pleased to be working with so many local performers, both as principals and in the chorus."

MARY CALLAGHAN Lynch's local credits range from Zerlina in MOT's "Don Giovanni" to Becky in "Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?" at the Birmingham Theatre.

In "The Mikado," the plot of young love and political intrigue revolves around Yum-Yum.

Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner and Yum-Yum's guardian, will be played by Robert Grossman, who has been praised by Detroit critics for his performances in "Bent" and "Watch on the Rhine." Grossman also sings in several area jazz clubs.

Contralto Jocelyn Wilkes will appear as Katisha, a role she has sung in Kansas, Canada and Lake George, N.Y. Harry Danner, who has sung both opera and musical comedy throughout the country, will sing the role of Nanki-Poo. Danner has played the role of Mr. Leonard, the music teacher, on the TV series "White Shadow."

David Rae Smith, New York City Opera character baritone, will portray Pooh-Bah. Detroit singer Tom Pederson will be Pish-Tush. The Mikado himself, ruler of Gilbbert and Sullivan's improbable Orient, will be Benjamin Wakefield from Chicago.

Yum-Yum's schoolgirl friends will be Rochelle Rosenthal, a Detroit performer now working in New York, who was a member of the MOT Artist Intern Program in 1980, and Sue LaDuk Wiley, another local singer who has been featured with MOT's Overture to Opera touring company.

Victoria's influence takes the Village back system is operating, and the early lighting system demonstrated.

DOWN CHRISTIE Street, the Sarah Jordan Boarding House was the first home to be lit with incandescent lamps. The early lighting is in operation. Activities include fancy work and dress making on a sewing machine.

The McGill Shop, formerly a jewelry shop, has been turned into a late 19th century millinery and fancy goods shop. The building was once used as a millinery shop.

The front window features lavish holiday dressing. The shop is decordated in authentic style. The building has been renamed Mrs. D. Cohen's Millinery and Fancy Goods Shop.

CHRISTMAS AS an official holiday came late to many states. The official marking of the holiday started in most states soon after the Civil War but wasn't national until well into the 20th century.

This theme is presented at the Scotch Settlement School where a "teacher" discusses the fact that students were required to go to school on Christmas in the 19th century.

Many of our traditional Christmas carols are also a product of the late 19th century. A comic rehearsal of organist and choir demonstrates this theme at the Martha-Mary Chapel.

A holiday feast is being prepared in the colonial kitchen of the Clinton Inn. Foods include roast turkey, sauces and soda bread. Visitors may sample free cider and buy cookies at the Town Hall.

HENRY FORD Museum continues the theme of 19th century Christmas with a wide variety of activities throughout the museum.

The front hallways are brightly decorated. A large Christmas tree greets visitors at the main entrance to the Hall of Technology.

Three 19th century businesses are open along the row of store front galleries. In the drug store visitors learn about 19th century cold remedies.

In the milinery they see a display of fancy headwear. At the blacksmith shop, a wheelwright makes spokes and other wheel parts.

Activities are going on in each collection area. At the home arts collection focal point of four period kitchens, visitors learn how Christmas was celebrated during different periods from the late 1700s to the early 20th century. An interpreter discusses different kitchen activities for the holiday season.

AT THE Agriculture Collection focal point, visitors learn what 19th century farmers did during the winter season.

Inspector Fortescu Farquar gets his Big Bird in the "Sesame Street Live" production playing at Masonic Temple through Jan. 3.

Second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"Search for Danger" (1949), "Identity Unknown" (1945), "Hitler — Dead or Alive" (1943), beginning at 1:15 a.m. Tuesday on Ch. 62. Originally 62, 71 and 70 minutes.

Pitch camp in front of your TV screen Monday night and you'll have camp pitched back at you, thanks to a trio of the most outrageous B movies ever made.

'Search for Danger" is one of the last films in the Falcon series of low-budget detective flicks. George Sanders and Tom Conway essayed the lead role earlier, but here John Calvert stars as author Michael Arlen's slick troubleshooter. A host of unknowns also star.

"Identity Unknown" is something of an our man's "Odyssey," as returning soldier Richard Arlen, a victim of amnesia, sets out on a cross-country journey to find himself. En route, he discovers romance and intrigue, and manages to brighten the lives of people who have lost husbands, fathers and brothers to the war. You have to stay awake for the incredible scene at the end of the film in which Arlen regains his memory. Lola Lane and Bobby Driscoll also star.

Ward Bond stars as the big cheese of a group of con men who — believe it or not — decide to kidnap der Fuehrer in "Hitler — Dead or Alive." It's pure pulp and propaganda that has to be seen to be believed. Group rating: $2.62.

Borrowing from Davey Marlin Jones, here's a quick rundown of the rest of the week's best films.

"Dressed to Kill" (1946), 2 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 4. Originally 72 minutes.

It's not Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, but it is classic Rathbone and Bruce. Rating: $2.80.

"The Hospital" (1971), 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 103 minutes.

Paddy Chayefsky does for hospitals what he would do for networks five years later. Rating: $2.70.

"The War of the Worlds" (1953), 1:30 Saturday night on Ch. 4. Originally 85 minutes.

If the Army's deadliest weapons can't stop the Martians, what can? Rating: $2.85.

"Thunderball" (1965), 8:30 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 120 minutes.

Special effects began to outshine and depersonalize special agents in this, the fourth James Bond film. Too bad. Rating: $2.75.

"This Property Is Condemned" (1966), 11:45 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7 Originally 110 minutes.

Natalie Wood never did make a really great film, but she and Robert Redford are pretty to look at in this Sydney Pollack picture. Rating: $2.45.

"It's a Wonderful Life" (1946), noon Monday on Ch. 9. Originally 129 minutes.

Sappy, sentimental, delightful and captivating — it's pure Capra, with vintage James Stewart and bonny Donna Reed. Rating: $3.20.

"The Bank Dick" (1940), 12:25 Tuesday night on Ch. 50. Originally 74 minutes.

W.C. Fields walks into the Black Pussy Cat cafe and says to Shemp Howard, the bartender, "Say, was I in here last night and did I spend $20? Shemp says yes, and Fields replies, "Thank goodness — for a minute I thought I lost the money." Rating: $3.40.

backgammon

Michael Kloian

of the American Backgammon Club

● FLEXIBILITY

Carolyn Z. of Farmington asks:

With white owning the doubling cube in this position (at the 2 level), how should he move a 5-1 roll? I favor hitting black on the 8 point with the one and splitting from the 9 to the 4 point.

In order to select a fitting move, one must first understand the situation at hand.

It appears white has spread himself thin by having two checkers on the 8, 9 and 12 points and three checkers each on the 4 and 6. White's third checker on the black 7 point is a plus, though. This spare runner will allow white to hold his present position momentarily, without stripping the key holding points prematurely.

Black, on the other hand, has good timing and flexibility. With free running checkers on the 1 and 8 points, and spare checkers on the 12 and 6 points, black has reasonably good position and does not appear to be in immediate danger of spreading too thin.

RECOGNIZING the weakness of white vs. the strength of black, the 5-1 roll can be used productively to improve white's game.

Moving from the 9 to the 4 point is unproductive and cannot be correct since this move adds another useless checker to the 4 point. At this time, there is no reason to overload the 4 point when other plays could improve white's position. Hitting black on the 8 point cannot be correct either, since this play would help black's timing (by slowing him down) more than hurting him.

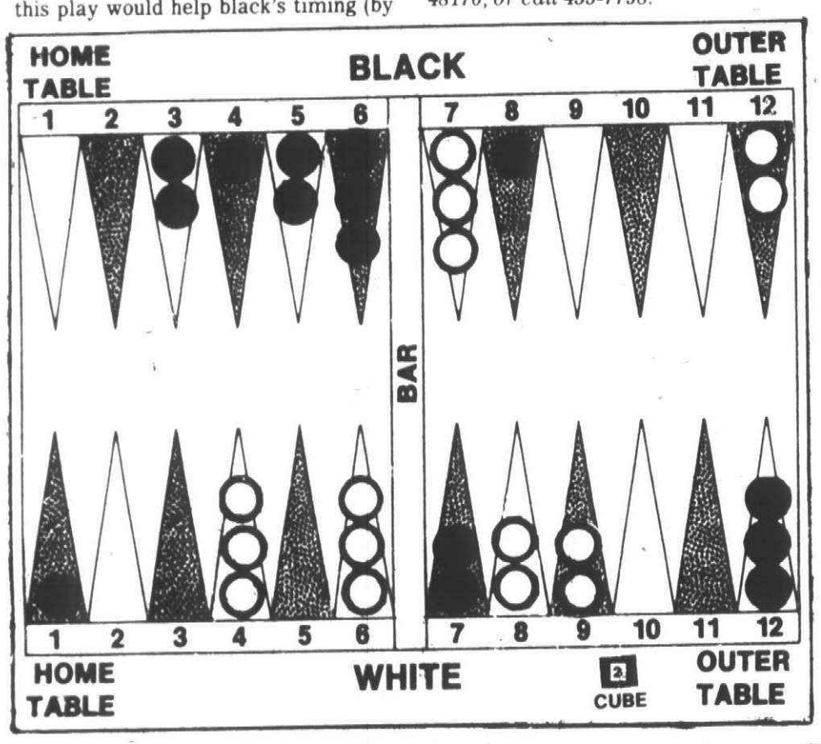

I realize that by hitting the 8 point blot, black will not have a point in his outer board (since, if white does not hit, black will most likely cover). The real reason I wouldn't hit black is that should he roll a 5 on his next roll, he will more than likely move a checker from the 12 point to the 8 and strip his 12 point in doing so.

A MORE EFFECTIVE play for white is to move a checker off the black 7 to the 12 point and slot the 5 point from the 6. The open blot on the 5 point is no concern to white. If black hits with a 4, he must roll a 4-2 — a 4 to hit and a 2 to cover his own home board blot. If black should miss, white should cover the blot on his next available roll. Building the home board with the anticipation of hitting your opponent later in the game is sound strategy.

Another move which also has some merit is to move from the 8 and 4 points to the 3 point. This play allows white an immediate closed point and may force black off the 7 point if he rolls a 1 on his next turn and chooses to hit, which could be a disaster for black, especially since white owns the cube.

Although I am one who will always say "When in doubt, hit," I also encourage "Look before you leap."

For more information or questions concerning backgammon, contact the American Backgammon Club at Box 599, Plymouth, Mich. 48170, or call 455-7798.

New winery is one to keep an eye on wine

Richard Watson

Business in the western part of Michigan in the late fall gave me an opportunity to visit our newest winery and return again to two others.

The visits were on successive Saturdays, and I learned a terrible lesson. The visits in the north, in beautiful Leelanau County, were relaxed and informative. In the south, the wineries were all jammed with tourists, making any serious evaluation of the wines impossible. Take note, travelers.

Three miles south of Leland is Good Harbor Vineyards, property of the Simpson family.

In front of the winery is the excellent Manitou Farm Market and Bakery. Behind, Bruce Simpson and his wife, Debbie, operate the winery completed just a year ago.

Both are Michigan State University agriculture graduates and are justifiably proud of their spacious facility, designed to handle 4,000 cases a year.

BRUCE GETS his grapes from various parts of the state and his fruit from his own orchards.

His two best wines won medals in the 1981 Michigan State Fair: 1980 Chelois Rose and 1980 De-Chounac Rose. Both were gently fruity yet balanced with good acid.

The apple wine was one of the most attractive I've tasted. The pear wine was a bit fleshy, while his red wine is a sop for the Lambrusco crowd. The white wine for 1980 was all gone, alas. Bruce also makes a vintage dated Baco Noir.

The wines are now available only in the Traverse City area in limited quantity, but, if you want to help our own industry, are clearly well made and worth seeking out when you are in the area.

Judging from one visit, this is a winery to watch, and its projected volume will permit distribution in the metropolitan area before too long.

SOME SEVEN miles to the east, below Suttons Bay, is S. Mawby Vineyards and Winery, whose initial efforts were reviewed in this column a year or so ago.

Its wines are now being distributed as close as East Lansing, and last summer the winery released its first vintage dated wines, a '79 red and an '80 white wine, both excellent. The red is made of Foch, light and crisply fruity, and the white is a blend of Seyval and Vignoles, a most pleasant set of releases.

Mawby, too, is a credit to the art of winemaking.

Down to Fenn Valley, now some five years old, about an hour south of Grand Rapids.

Fighting off the motorcycle crew and some benign oldsters in the tasting room, I was able to sample several of the latest hybrid releases there as well as a red issued on their secondary label, Briarwood. Unfortunately, all were quite dismal.

FENN VALLEY seems to be going the fleshy, fruity, sweet route, pandering to the local tastes. It seems they are abandoning their importation of California grapes, which in the past has produced decent Riesling and Gewurztraminer. (Good Harbor is buying those Riesling grapes, for example).

The only redeeming feature was a Blanc de Blanc (sic), a $10 sparkler that was quite acceptable. However, only something over 30 cases was made of this, so it will not be released beyond the winery's doors.

And then the real Saturday crowds closed in at Tabor Hill (including a car rally), St. Julian and Warner. Perhaps some dull Tuesday morning in February would be better.

Mitchell at Folktown

Musician Chuck Mitchell will perform at 8 p.m. Dec. 26 in the Southfield Civic Center's Parks and Recreation Building, off Evergreen at 10½ Mile.

Mitchell, a native of Rochester, both sings and plays the guitar. His previous appearances in the Detroit area include stints at clubs such as the Chessmate (with his then-wife Joni), the Raven Gallery and the Retort.

The concert is produced by Folktown, which provided a weekly series of folk music concerts in a coffee-house setting earlier this fall, and is co-sponsored by the Parks and Recreation department of Southfield.

Admission is $5. For information, call 855-9848.

The holidays are different this year at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village.
IN THE MUSEUM
You will see how machines began to replace mothers and dads in making toys for good girls and boys.
IN THE VILLAGE
You will see how the printing press popularized Santa and gave us the cards, the wrappings and the trappings of the holidays.
IN SHORT
You will see how mass production and the blending of ethnic traditions shaped the holidays we know today.
Ours is a unique holiday story that is fun, fascinating and important. It can't be experienced anywhere else! Now through January 3.

The Greatest Detroit Olds Dealer

In times like these, we still give our customers what they want.

The extra effort on our part that will keep the grey hair out of their's.

We understand the hesitancy on your part to buy a used car. You want to be sure that it will give you value for your dollar. And safe transportation for your family.

That's why we want you to know that before any used car is made available to our customers, we completely recondition and inspect every car. And, if it doesn't measure up in the beginning, we have it removed from our dealership.

We know the importance of a really good used car value. And, a car that will give you good use. Because, in times like these, good customers are important.

All our effort went into these fine values!

HOUSE-HUNTING HEADACHES?. . .THOMPSON-BROWN HAS THE CURE!

Our exclusive Homes For Living magazine can be a sure cure for your house-hunting headaches.

It shows pictures, prices and descriptions of homes currently for sale throughout this area, so you can tell at a glance which homes may be of interest to you.

And if you're moving out of town, we have hundreds of different Homes For Living magazines, showing current listings in thousands of communities throughout the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

And this magazine is just as valuable when you want to sell your home, because it reaches buyers right here, and those who are moving here from out of town. (Did you know they account for more than one third of all sales?)

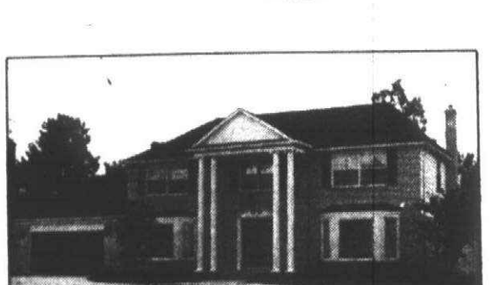

So when you feel a house-hunting headache coming on, call us.

"ASSUMPTION BUYERS." We have funds to help you assume mortgages that may be too far to reach. Call for details.
