License denial stands

Arcade developers lose suit against Canton

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Two would-be operators of an arcade-restaurant lost their legal bid Monday to force Canton Township to immediately grant them a license.

After noting that certain township approval steps hadn't been followed, Wayne County Circuit Court Judge James Mies refused the request of Jamil Akhtar of Plymouth Township and Barbara Baldwin of Livonia.

Akhtar and Baldwin have been seeking to open a 3,300-square-foot video arcade and restaurant at the southeast corner of Ford and Lilley roads.

The pair filed suit against the township after the board of trustees voted Dec. 8 to postpone the license request until Jan. 26. Lease options on the Lilley site expire Dec. 31, said Gilbert Gugni, a Southfield attorney representing Akhtar and Baldwin.

"I CAN'T do anything except give you a lot of sympathy," Mies told the two business people who, through their attorney, said they already had invested $3,000 in the project.

Mies said he based his refusal to grant the license on township ordinances that require planning commission and board of trustees' approval for both the arcade and restaurant.

After his decision, Mies said to both

'I suggest all of you
... sit down and go through all the ordinances so that they (Akhtar and Baldwin) get a clear understanding of what

sides: "I suggest all of you go into the jury room and sit down and go through all the ordinances so that they (Akhtar and Baldwin) get a clear understanding of what has to be done. 'Do this now,' continued Mies. 'Let them know of any problems they will come up against so they will know where they are going and can evaluate it.'"

The township board is scheduled to consider the license at its Jan. 5 meeting, said Clerk John Flodin. Baldwin said the pair's future plans hinge on talks between themselves and the landlord of the Lilley property.

THE BOARD last month decided to seek legal advice on possible changes to the current ordinance on mechanical devices. Members of the board also expressed concerns about proper land use for an arcade, traffic patterns and pedestrian safety in the Ford-Lilley vicinity.

Gugni outlined steps Akhtar and Baldwin had taken to comply with the current ordinance, including obtaining planning commission approval for the 1,100-square-foot arcade and getting signatures of approval from residents near the planned business.

"They were told they did not need planning commission approval for the (larger, 2,200-square-foot) restaurant," Gugni said.

According to Gugni, little resident and no board opposition to the business was voiced at the Dec. 8 public hearing before the township board, and the partners left thinking they would get the license. However, one nearby resident presented a petition with 32 signatures opposing the arcade.

Gugni said the business people had done "everything required" and had told the board of the time factor involved.

CANTON TOWNSHIP attorney David Berry said the property up for licensing was now "three times bigger" than had been originally presented to the planning commission.

Originally, Akhtar and Baldwin had planned to operate only an arcade. However, they later opted for a larger space and decided on a family restaurant-arcade combination.

Teen sketches comic characters

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Some children read comic books. Others collect them. And then there is Darren Brege, an eighth-grader at East Middle School in Plymouth.

Darren draws his own comic books.

He carefully blocks in page after page of squares and fills them with the weirdest, wackiest characters his 13-year-old mind can imagine.

"I love drawing my 'freakies' because I can make them do anything," said Darren, as he pulled strip after strip of cartoons from a thick pile on his desk and tried to show them all at once to a visitor.

When it comes to talking about his comic strip and cartoon characters, Darren is not the least bit shy. If you talk to him for five minutes you will certainly hear a lot about Frank and Sam Freaky, two of the many "freakies" that dominate his comic strips.

Long-nosed, bone-skinny Frank and pig-nosed, not-too-bright Sam do not realize how oddball they look in a world populated by Darren's other, more ordinary-looking humans. Their strange looks and shortage of brain power have them both constantly hanging on the edge of disaster. In strip after strip, the two characters experience as many perils as Pauline — yet always manage to survive to show up on another page.

WHILE DRAWING freakies like Frank and Sam is his first love, Darren also draws caricatures of his family and friends. He also sketches television and movie fantasy characters, from Fred Flintstone to Snoopy, from Darth Vader to the Muppets — most from memory.

Darren's mother, Judy, who lives on Brookpark in Canton, said that her son just "sees something on television, gets a picture of it in his mind and puts it on paper so fast" that it amazes her. Darren is the only artist in his family, although his mother said she sometimes draws model figures "just for fun."

Darren has had no formal lessons in art.

On this afternoon in his football-postered bedroom, Darren, his mother and his sister Stacey all take turns telling of Darren's growth as an artist. Looking at his accumulated artwork — from kindergarten to eighth-grade — is like looking at a boy growing up right before your eyes.

Bulging green monsters and dinosaurs jump out from his first-grade activity book. In the fifth grade, when a boy's imagination often turns to the violent and bizarre, his first freakies were born. Later came the cartoon take-offs on movies like "Star Wars" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

AND NOW IT is such football heroes such as Detroit Lions' quarterback Eric Hipple who spring to life on Darren's drawing paper. For the last three years the youth has played offensive linesman for the Plymouth-Canton Jr. Football Association's Lions' team.

One of the comic books Darren pulled from the pile on his desk is titled, "Hello, this is Howie Cosell and welcome to the world of freaky sports." Sure enough, there on the front page is a recognizable caricature of the Sgt. Don Adams, of the Canton Fire Department, explains rescue procedures to two cadets before the practice home, on Haggerty near Ford Road, is filled with smoke.

With the rescue exercises done, the firefighters move on to the fire extinguishing part of Monday's practice and training session. The men (above) prepare to enter the house to douse the flames. The firefighters used several gallons of gas (below) to ignite the house.

Firefighters start the blaze

Donated house is used for practice and training

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Canton firefighters and equipment were at a house Monday morning before it even started to burn. They were there so early they saw who started the fire — members of their own department.

Although it was a definite case of arson, nobody got into trouble. The house, on Haggerty near Ford Road, was burned for a practice and training session.

Some 17 Canton firefighters, Plymouth Capt. Tom Lenaghan and two members of the Northville Township Fire Department were on hand for the blaze.

The donated house was used to practice rescue, arson identification and fire extinguishing skills.

FIRST, A SMALL fire was set to fill the home with smoke so the newer firefighters could practice using breathing apparatus.

As black smoke seeped from the cracks and other openings, several firefighters went into the house to find a "victim."

"We had more or less hid a victim in the place and they had to find it and bring it out," says Fire Chief Mel Paulun. The victim was a bundled fire hose. With the "victim" pulled to safety, the house was then set ablaze.

Several of the men joked about the fire department setting the house on fire.

"My wife always kids me about not being able to start a fire in the fireplace," one man chuckled. He said the men sometimes get used to putting fires out but forget how to start them.

That didn't appear to be the case Monday morning, the house was filled with flames in minutes with the smoke billowing into the air.

THE FIREFIGHTERS were instructed where to enter the home and told to look for unusual circumstances in regards to where and how the fire had started.

The blaze was kept under control, but the fire department did let the house burn to the ground.

"The exercise was successful," says Paulun.

The men had rescued victims, controlled the fire, been refreshed on identifying arsons and had a cup of coffee all within a couple of hours.

Paulun said the fire department was prepared should there have been a real fire during the practice session.

Two fire cadets emerge from the smoke-filled house with their dummy victim (a bundled fire hose). They later learned the active fire-fighting hose (the smaller dark hose) should have been left behind while making the rescue.

Better to give than receive this gift

Blood supply dwindles

By Nancy Ferguson
staff writer

There's one gift you can still give this holiday season that won't cost you a penny.

The American Red Cross is sponsoring a Save-A-Life Sunday at the Livonia branch, 29691 W. Six Mile, Suite 100 in the Bell Creek Plaza, west of Middlebelt Road.

The branch serves residents in Livonia, Canton, Westland, Plymouth, Northville, Novi Garden City, Redford Township and Farmington Hills.

The Red Cross has a great need for blood during the holiday season because people are busy and they don't think they can spare the time to visit a donor center. But Clifton Taylor, director of the center, says blood is needed more than ever because there are a larger number of accidents during the holidays and because many people have operations in the first few months of the year.

MOST PEOPLE will wait until after New Year's to have their operations because they don't want to be inconvenienced at Christmas, Taylor said.

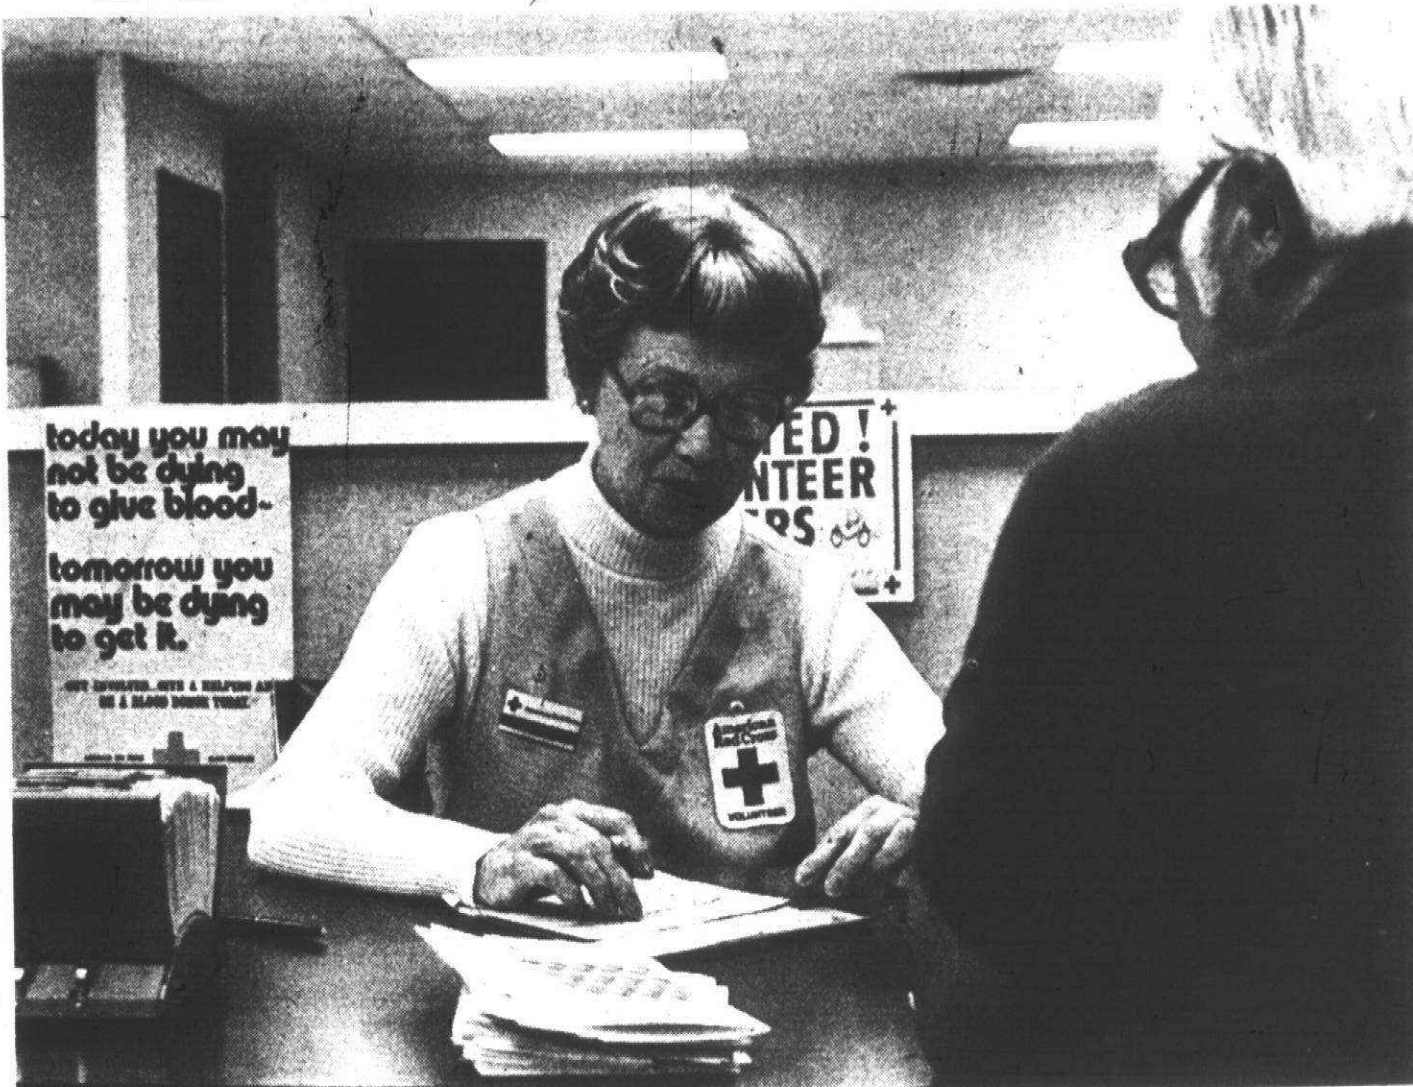

By promoting Save-A-Life Sunday, the Red Cross hopes to build up enough of an inventory to cover these operations.

Officials say that those who have never given blood and have doubts about the process should visit the donor center to have any worries relieved. The staff of nurses and volunteers are more than willing to answer any questions.

It is a painless procedure, according to the staff. All donors have their medical history taken and receive a mini-physical prior to donating blood. The donor in effect, gives a gift and receives a free check-up at the same time.

After giving blood, donors are invited to go to the canteen for home-made cookies and refreshments. The cookies are baked by the volunteers at the center.

FRANCES HENSLEY is the chairwoman for the volunteers and a volunteer for more than 30 years, started the first Red Cross branch in Livonia when it was still a township. The original office was her living room and the meetings were held at St. Michael Catholic Church and at Bentley High School.

Kathryn Dilworth, an American Red Cross volunteer, registers Earl Seaman on his arrival at the blood donor center in Livonia. Seaman was there to donate his 121st pint of blood.

Mrs. Hensley, who is from Wales, said she became involved with the Red Cross because her entire family, except one sister, was killed in England during World War II.

She said her sister told her that the Red Cross had been wonderful to her and that if Mrs. Hensley ever had a chance to do anything for them, she should.

The volunteers at the center donate more than 500 hours a year of their time. They attend training sessions and then receive "on the job" training at the center.

There is one donor at the center who has been giving blood almost as long as Mrs. Hensley has been a Red Cross volunteer. Earl Seaman of Livonia started donating blood at the age of 18 almost 40 years ago.

nors now because many auto plants are closing, officials say. A large number of plant employees used to give blood on a regular basis. Around 25 percent of all of the blood donated in the southeastern Michigan region came from auto workers. That figure is now down to 18-20 percent.

The Red Cross accepts donors between the age of 17 (with parental permission) and 65. Donors may give blood up until the age of 70 with their doctor's approval.

The Livonia center is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. this Sunday, Save-A-Life Sunday; from 2-8 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday; and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

To arrange for an appointment, call the center at 422-2787.

High School in Livonia, said he began giving blood because he wanted to help others. The first time he donated should have been enough — he passed out, he said.

Seaman decided it was just a psychological reaction and decided to try it again. Since then, he has donated 121 pints of blood. Seaman attributes his strong desire to help others to his religious beliefs. He is a Seventh-day Adventist.

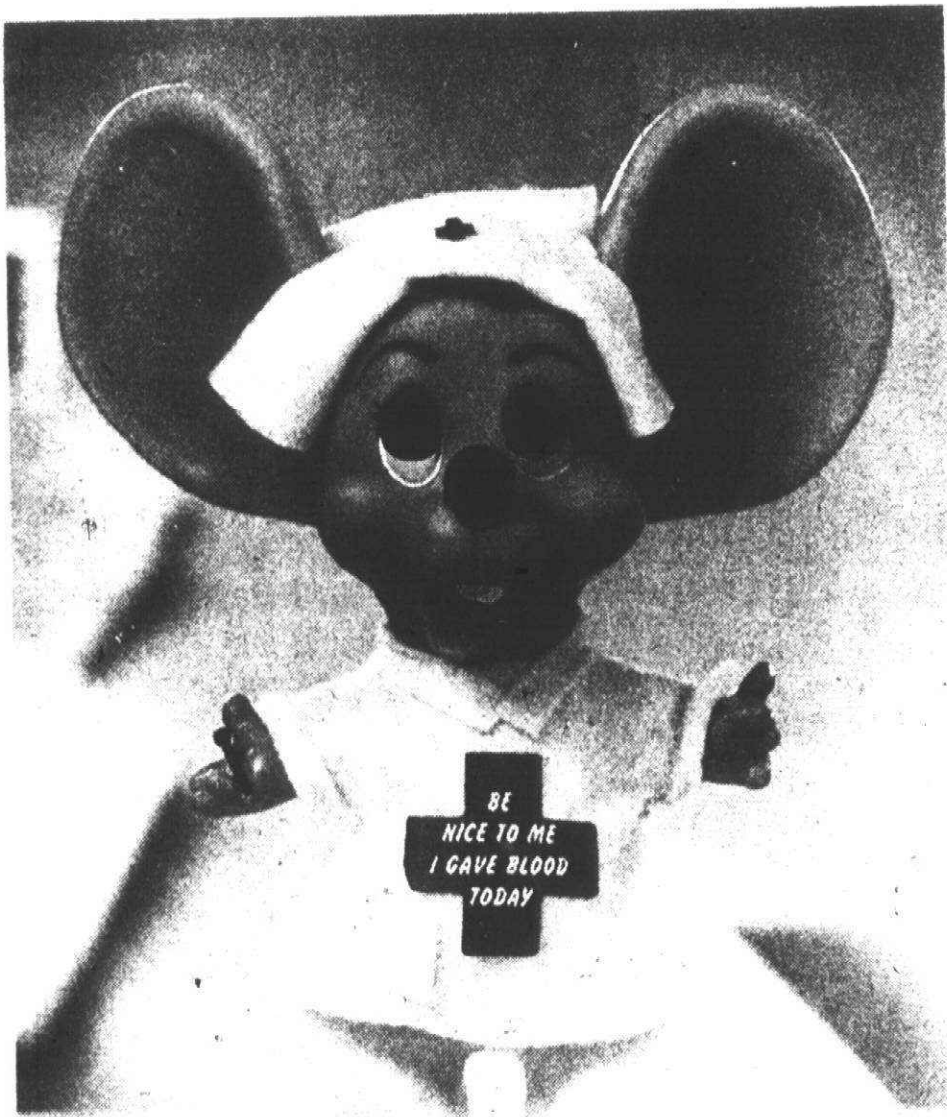

Asked if he was the top blood donor at the center, he said "Oh, no. I'm sure I'm not. But, I am not interested in figures. That's not why I do it. If even one pint has helped save a life, I'm thankful."

Seaman urges others who have fainted the first time they gave blood not to get discouraged. "Don't give up at that point. It's a common reaction," he added.

THE RED CROSS needs more do-

Teen draws comic strips

ever-talkative sports announcer himself.

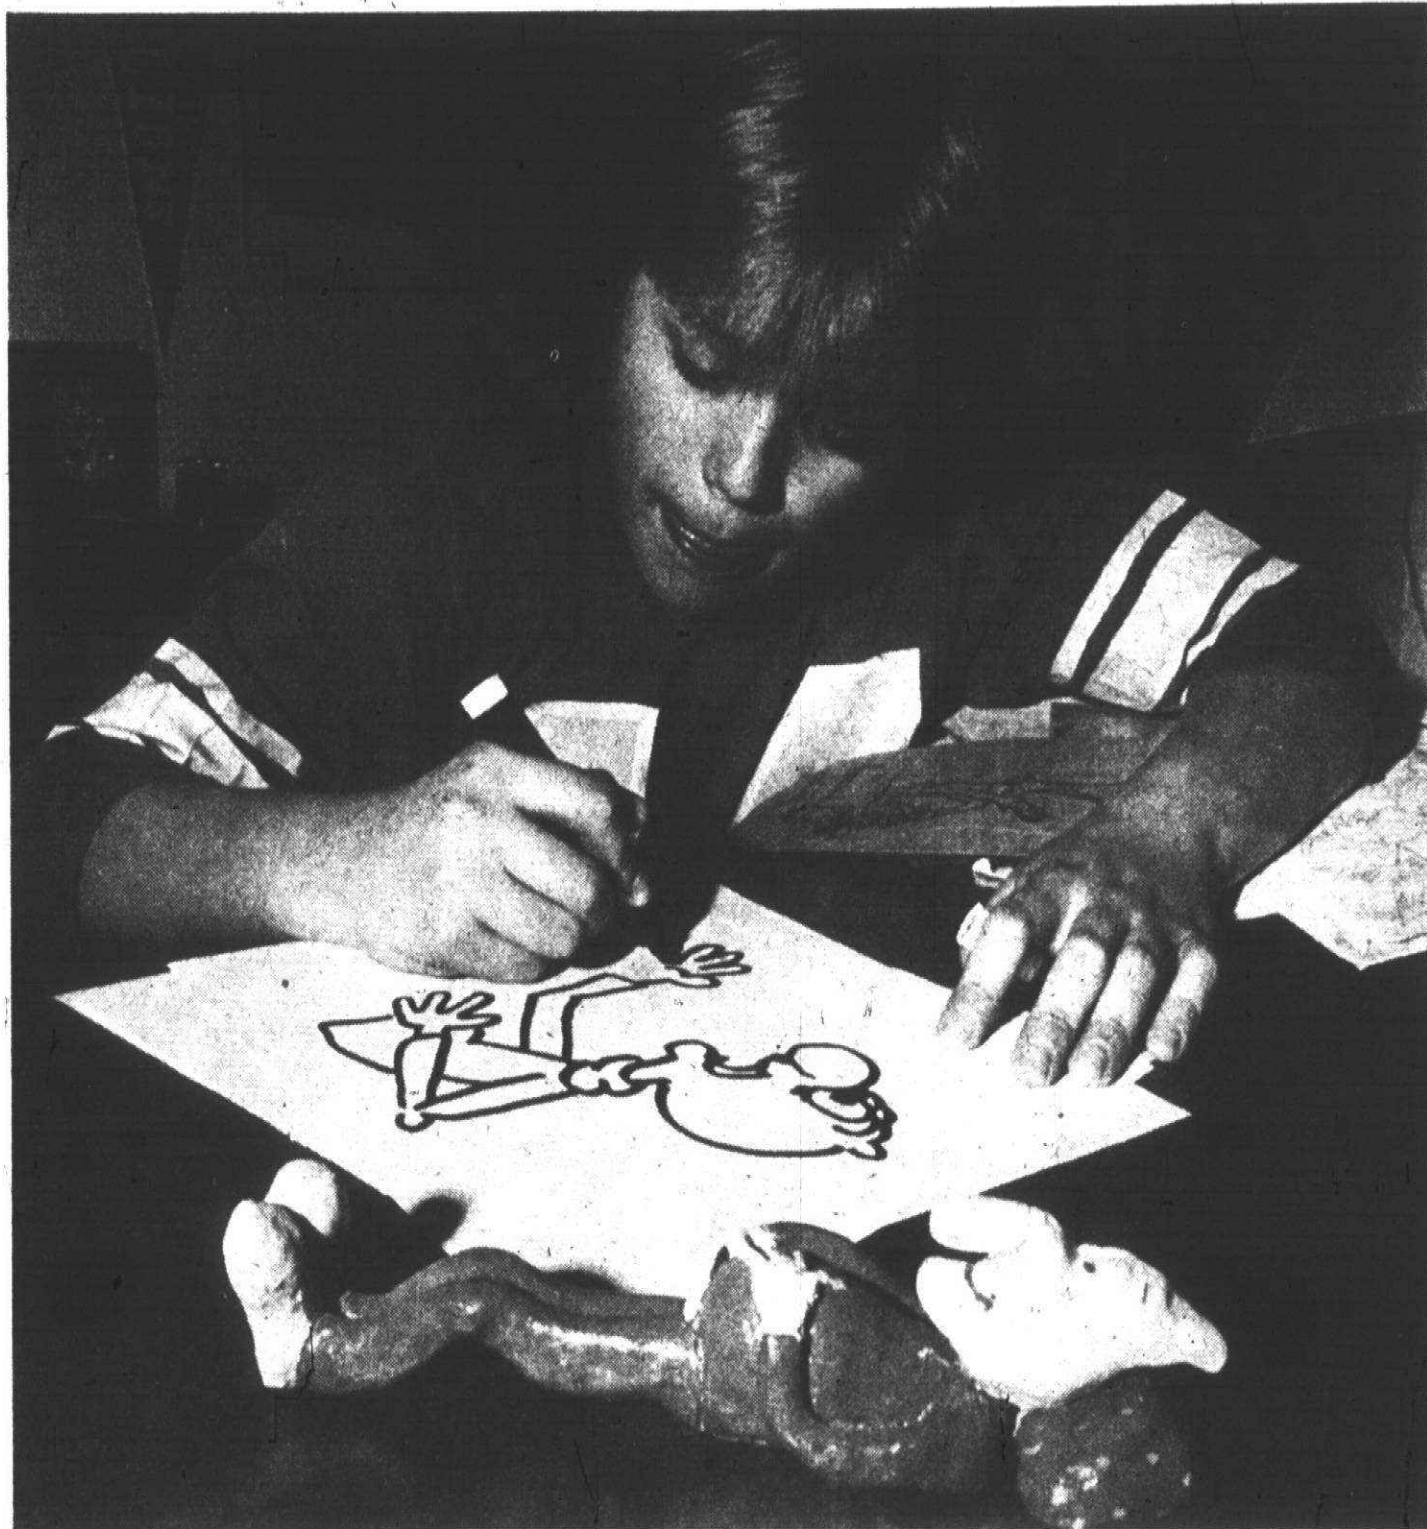

For Darren, who takes time out every day to draw, drawing is "not a chore, but fun."

"When I see something I like, I draw it," he said. "I draw so that I can remember those things I like."

SOME DAY Darren would like to be a real comic-strip artist and see his own freaky people in the newspapers. "I want to keep drawing them, I think they would be popular. I would put them in realistic situations, just like in the real world. They could be taken hostage or they could be watching the gas prices go up."

If that day should come, Darren wants everyone to know about Chris Crowder. After Frank and Sam Freaky, Chris is the third name most likely to pop up in a conversation with Darren. "We were drawing partners in the fifth grade," Darren said. "We used to draw freakies together until he moved away. We promised each other, if either of us ever became famous, we would mention the other."

Man shot at Center Stage

Police are investigating a shooting early Tuesday outside the Center Stage nightclub on Ford Road near I-275 in Canton.

Wounded was Mark Grabowski, 21, of Henry Ruff in Westland. Grabowski, a doorman at the Center Stage, was in good condition Tuesday at Wayne County General Hospital with a bullet wound in his left leg.

CANTON POLICE Lt. Larry Stewart describes the events as follows: A dispute began about 12:15 a.m.

Tuesday when Center Stage personnel tried to eject a man who refused to pay a 99-cent cover charge.

The man shot Grabowski in the right leg with a small-caliber handgun. The bullet exited the right leg and went into Grabowski's left leg, said Stewart. There were no other injuries.

The man fled in a full-sized, light-colored car, according to the police report. He is described as black, early to mid-20s, 6-2 and weighing about 160 pounds. He has collar-length hair.

Using a 2-X tele-extender, Monte Nagler converted his 200 mm lens into a 400 mm lens, enabling it to look as if sat in this winking orang-utan's lap to take his portrait.

Monte Nagler

Extend your camera lens with a 2-X tele-extender

HAVE YOU ever found yourself at the zoo or snapping the kids in the backyard and wished you could "bring things in a little closer"? And you just couldn't do it?

Well, there's an inexpensive piece of equipment which will convert your normal lens into a telephoto and your telephoto into an even longer lens.

Tele-extenders can be a valuable addition to your camera gear.

A 2-X tele-extender — or converter, as they are sometimes called — is a device which exactly doubles the focal length of your lens. For example, a normal 50 mm lens will become effectively a 200 mm lens, and a 200 mm lens will perform like a 400 mm lens.

An extender looks like a small lens. In seconds it can be easily inserted between the camera body and the normal lens. So be sure to purchase an extender designed for your particular brand of camera.

WHAT ADVANTAGES are there to tele-extenders?

First, you're getting a compact, inexpensive accessory which doubles the focal length of all your lenses. Converters should cost between $25 and $75, depending on the brand of converter and camera.

Second, extenders are designed to be compatible with your camera's metering system. This means automatic cameras still will perform automatically, and match-needle cameras still will function in the normal way when an extender is attached.

Third, the focusing distance is not altered by addition of a converter. Assume you have a 200 mm lens on your camera focused on a subject 10 feet away, but the subject isn't quite filling the frame.

Adding the converter to get an effective 400 mm lens, you'll now be able to fill the frame for greater impact, while still being focused at 10 feet.

This can be highly advantageous under certain picture-taking situations because most normal 400 mm lens lack capability of focusing at close distances.

WHAT DRAWBACKS do tele-extenders have?

Primarily, you lose two f-stops of exposure speed when using a 2-X extender. A subject which requires an aperture of f/16 normally will need f/8 when an extender is added, assuming shutter speed remains constant.

But while you do lose speed, remember that your camera's meter automatically compensates for the adjustment, and proper exposure is always assured.

Some photographers claim picture quality suffers with extenders. And they're probably right if you buy a cheap, off-brand model. But consult your photo dealer, and you'll be able to purchase a quality unit at an affordable price.

SO FAR, I have concentrated on the 2-X extender. There are 3-X and 4-X converters which will triple and quadruple the focal length of your lens, but they are sometimes hard to find.

I do not recommend them, however, because a loss of quality will be evident in your pictures, and the loss of f-stops is too great.

But 2-X converters are fine and will enable you to add impact to many shots. So extend your photographic equipment with an extender.

1981, Monte Nagler.

Profound prognostications as we enter 1982

Government revenues will continue to shrink, the population will continue to decline, but the number of lawsuits will increase.

Printing of legal forms will be a growth industry. Judges will ask for an increase in the number of judges. At all levels.

IF CROPS are good, farmers will demand price increases because of high costs.

If crops are bad, farmers will demand price increases because of scarcities.

If crops are normal, farmers will demand price increases just because.

SOME 250 local units of government will discover 18 new ways to violate the Open Meetings Act.

In every case, their alibi will be, "It was done on the advice of counsel."

In no case will local officials themselves read the law.

THE CAMPAIGN for governor will be messy.

Local campaigns will be messier. A day or two before the election, a candidate for the legislature will charge his/her opponent with libel and file a million-dollar court suit in order to get publicity. Nothing whatsoever will come of the suit.

Speaking of the Michigan Legislature, the Apportionment Commission will deadlock 4-4 and the State Supreme Court will have to decide between the rival plans.

THE WORST blizzard of the year will occur the last week of January, for that is the date of the Michigan Press Association convention.

During a heavy rain spell in June, you will discover a strain of mosquito immune to all known repellents.

Rainfall across the U.S. will be uneven. Some areas will suffer 50-year droughts, others 50-year floods. It happens every year.

Luna Pier, on Lake Erie, will be washed with waves. Residents will immediately move back and be flooded again in 1983.

One day of the Memorial Day weekend will be rainy. It will be the day you plan a picnic.

UTILITY BILLS will get more complicated. Their degree of complexity will increase in proportion to their size.

State trout fishing regulations will get more complicated.

Local building and zoning codes will get more complicated.

Automobile prices and rebate "deals" will get more complicated.

Income tax forms will be more complicated. You will be ineligible for most of the new deductions.

Your son's eighth grade math book will be far more complicated than his older brother's math book, and infinitely more complicated than your math book.

Be glad you'll be retired to another state when your grandson takes eighth grade math.

COLEMAN YOUNG will think up colorful new terms to apply to Ronald Reagan. The terms will not be complimentary.

Educators will shriek that they are being ignored and demand "adequate" public funding.

Road interests will shriek that they are being ignored and demand "adequate" public funding.

Police will produce statistics proving unquestionably there is a severe outbreak in crime, and they will shriek for "adequate" public funding.

Welfare rights — whoops, human services — groups will shriek about "adequate" funding.

YOU WILL celebrate New Year's Eve saying 1982 can't possibly be worse than 1981.

A year from today, you will celebrate New Year's Eve saying 1983 can't possibly be worse than 1982.

Happy New Year!

Who would want to be governor?

WANTED EXECUTIVE

Economically devastated state seeking self-starter to look after its affairs. Four-year contract. Duties include: working with befuddled, bicameral legislature; cutting an already gutted budget; finding jobs for a half-million or so constituents (numbers change daily); praying nightly for old, worn-out American auto industry; getting along with both shortsighted business and labor leaders. Must be able to walk on water. Advisors include one big-city mayor who will be more than willing to tell you how it's done. Nice home on resort island included.

Most voters might wonder why any sane person would want that job, except for the fringe benefit of the beautiful Mackinac Island Governor's Mansion.

The guy who has held the job longer than anyone in the state's history has cast his lot with the ranks of the unemployed rather than continue ruling over this crumbling empire.

But in the next year, Michigan residents will be treated to a quest for gubernatorial power unmatched since 1962, when George Romney stormed union halls and got standing ovations from the rank and file, much to labor leaders' chagrin.

THIS POWER scramble has similarities to the last days of the South-Vietnamese government. Even as Communist troops ringed the city, Saigon power brokers bit and scratched for the remaining morsels of power.

But power — no matter what its liabilities or under what circumstances — has its devotees. They are the persons who believe that, despite all odds, they can solve the problems.

That attitude isn't bad. Someone must be either crazy or brave enough to sit in Lansing for the next four years and take the blame. We are soon to be barraged by a list of hopefuls.

SMART BETTORS will buy their tickets at the Republican window.

Nothing on the horizon shows the Democrats will ever agree on a viable choice. Once again, they will come up with a consensus candidate who will put even the most avid politics watchers among us to sleep.

The Republican primary will be the political donnybrook of 1982.

Oakland County Prosecutor Brooks Patterson will be good for a couple of laughs and some outrageous remarks. Likewise state Sen. Jack Welborn of Kalamazoo.

The real battle will be between the governor-in-waiting, Lt. Gov. James Brickley, and insurance executive Richard Headlee — that is, if by the date of filing, Headlee has decided to run.

Rumor has it that his supporters have all but ripped out their hair waiting for him to decide. My money is on the affirmative.

MY MONEY is also on the surprise of the decade — that Brickley will end up being perceived as the more conservative of the two candidates.

Despite all of Headlee's conservative pronouncements, his political roots are firmly entrenched in moderate Romney Republicanism. Romney has already come out in support of him.

Even though labor unions in Michigan have lost clout in these bad economic times, they still have power at the polls. So does Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

The candidate who will be Michigan's next governor will be the person who can best get along with these two factors.

Headlee has the potential and the charisma to forge such an alliance. He'll cream the lactiferous Brickley on the stump. He'll roll up his sleeves and face the rank-and-file ala Romney.

Like Romney, he'll win.

Besides, Headlee has got to win. Life wouldn't be fun for this curmudgeon columnist if Dick Headlee weren't around to pick on.

Tough all-around Unhappy memories of 1981

Tonight when the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" fade into the distance it will be with a sigh of relief that a new year is with us. The relief will come as 1981 passes into history, for it was a year that never will be forgotten.

In fact, it will be recalled in history as the year when the economy took one of its worst drops in a long time — when the automobile industry, one of America's greatest assets, dropped to its lowest ebb in years. It was a year when the Japanese scored another victory over us and aided in bringing about the worst slump in decades.

It was the year when interest rates went sky-high, causing a drop in mortgage lending and car sales all across the land.

IT WAS A year when the sports world went a bit screwy with its high salaries for ballplayers, and the fighters who once fought for a percentage of the gate were being paid in the millions.

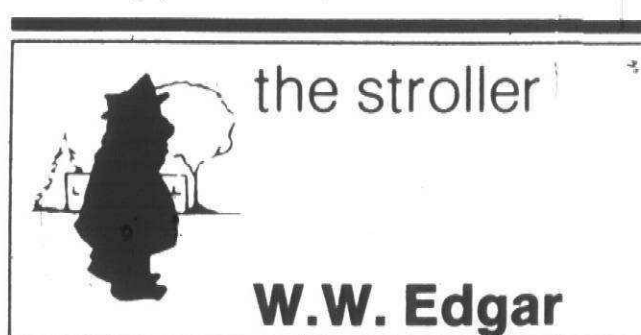

Whoever would have thought, until now, that a ballplayer would be paid $1 million for a six-month season? What's worse, they were signed to multi-year contracts so that 1981 will have an effect on salaries for years to come.

Who would have thought that a fighter would be paid a half-million dollars for appearing in a semi-final bout? But that's what Tommy Hearns, the Detroit fighter, received for a recent outing.

That's only part of the story of 1981 — a year we would just as soon forget.

FOR THE STROLLER, there's a special reason to heave a sigh of relief as he bids the old year good-bye.

It was a year that disturbed the usual run of things in the little white house with the green shutters. Leona, the lady of the house, was stricken with a case of shingles and hospitalized for three thirteen months, from February to July, and she is still suffering.

Oh, 1981, you will long be remembered for that! It was a long stretch in which The Stroller had the experience of running the house, and he's here to tell you that 1981 wasn't a very pleasant experience.

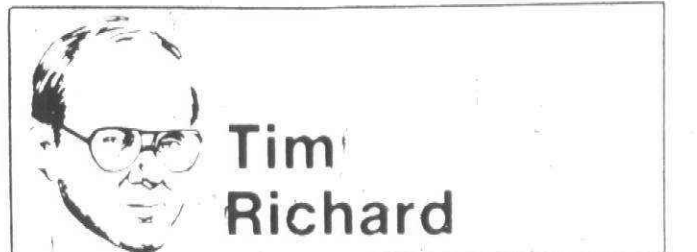

There were some joys along the way. For instance, there was a happy day when The Stroller observed another birthday in good health at an age when he is considered the oldest working newspaperman in Michigan.

That joy is little enough compensation for the disrupted economy, the upset home and other damages done along the way.

IN PASSING, there will be another change. Tonight, for the first time in decades, neither Guy Lombardo nor his band will be sounding the end of the year with the sweetest music this side of heaven.

Perhaps it's a good omen. Perhaps it means there will be a change all around in the new year. The change can't come too soon.

So, good-bye, 1981, and good riddance. But you will long be remembered.

Al's reports from the West on our taxes

Brother Al called Christmas Eve from Montana. After we got through the preliminaries — who's pregnant, who's divorced — we got down to basics: politics.

"The Montana Legislature just adjourned a 45-day special session," said Brother Al. "They couldn't agree on what to do with all the tax money coming in."

Now you may not care a whit about my Brother Al and the heir he is producing, but the Montana state budget surplus should be another matter. You and I are providing it.

Montana taxes coal at 30 percent, and our Detroit Edison Co. buys Montana coal, mined on federal leased land. Because 86 percent of its coal is shipped out of state, it follows that energy users are providing 86 percent of the surplus which the Montana Legislature can't figure out what to do with.

THE SITUATION will get worse, from our point of view, instead of better.

Nine states produce most of the oil, natural gas and coal we use. Prices of oil and natural gas are being deregulated by the federal government. As prices of domestic energy shoot up, so will those nine states' tax revenues.

Consider Alaska, which taxes oil at 12.25 percent, or more than triple the Michigan sales tax rate. The Alaska petroleum revenue division figures that oil revenue will bring in $200 billion over the next two decades.

Such a figure boggles the mind, so let's put it in perspective. That $200 billion divided by 20 years averages $10 billion a year, which is about the size of the Michigan state budget. With a population of 400,000, Alaska is less than one-twentieth the size of Michigan.

So in the years ahead, Alaska will have something like $22 per person to spend for every $1 Michigan has for state services. You and I are paying for Michigan's services. We also are paying for Alaska's.

YOU NOW SEE why these nine energy-producing states have earned the title of "The United American Emirates" from the Northeast-Midwest Institute, which is the source of most of the foregoing numbers.

Keeping in mind Michigan's 4 percent sales tax rate and 4.6 percent income tax rate, consider the taxes on these commodities:

- Oil — Louisiana 12.5 percent, New Mexico 7, Oklahoma 7.

- Natural gas — Alaska 10, Oklahoma 7, West Virginia 8.6, Texas 7.5.

- Coal — Wyoming 10.5, New Mexico 8.4, Montana 30.5.

With the exception of Kentucky, the energy-producing states get 12 to 24 percent of their revenues from such severance taxes. That is a 1978 figure supplied by the U.S. Census Bureau. As I said earlier, the situation is about to get worse.

THE CONSEQUENCES of such massive transfers of money are mind-boggling.

The industrial Midwest and Northeast pay those taxes, or 85 percent of them. Our corporations are squeezed. Our corporations relocate there to beat our business taxes. We lose jobs.

Congress has talked of capping such "severance" taxes at 12.5 percent. The problem is that if you set 12.5 as the upper limit, all energy-producing states will jack up their rates, and the maximum becomes the minimum.

Possibly the agricultural states, which include Michigan, could tax the living daylight out of food we ship. That, however, would be a destructive mess.

MY SOLUTION is to tie a state's severance tax rate to its sales tax rate. Let Alaska tax oil at 12.25 percent and Montana bleed coal at 30 percent, but let them also pay those same rates for their food, beer, clothes and cars. That will bring down the rates fast enough.

Ellie Graham

WHATEVER YOUR mood, it's time for a farewell toast to the old year. Reactions to 1981 range from "Wasn't it wonderful?" to "Thank goodness that's over" and a jaded "So what!" But if you're still here, you survived. You coped.

The brand new year stirs optimism in even the most pessimistic.

Somehow, it also brought to mind a poem that my grandmother wrote in my autograph album. Remember autograph albums? A couple of generations ago they were highly prized possessions of young females. Don't ever recall being asked to write in a boy's autograph album.

Grandma wrote: "Your future lies before you
Like a sheet of driven snow
Be careful how you walk on it
For every step will show."

Now there's an admonition to walk the "straight and narrow."

Back to the new year and good wishes to good people.

HAPPY NEW Year and good health to Harold Guenther who has been sorely missed by the community, to Betty and Don Urquhart, two very special people; to Leona Edgar, who had a miserable year healthwise; and to Fred DeLano, who says he has learned to take it easy.

New Year's greetings and continued good health to Mary Dingeldey and Bill Micol, both of whom dampened our holiday spirits last year with their ailments.

Good health to you, Tim Ford, and may you enjoy your retirement. Hope you continue your teaching career. And to Roy Hall, good health and a fine new year.

Perhaps 1982 will be the year of great discoveries and breakthroughs in the medical world.

NO ONE IS more deserving of the old wish, "A Happy and Prosperous New Year," than the merchants of the community — those who hung in there, despite the economy, and those who started new businesses.

It's impossible to single out each one for an individual greeting so this is aimed at all of you who had the faith.

ONE OF THE newer projects, Woody Lynch's Skatin Station, has been chosen for this year's American Diabetes Skate-a-thon.

Sharon Belobraidich is chairing the annual event which is a fundraiser for diabetes research. Alan Almond of radio station WNIC-FM is honorary chairman of the drive.

The skate-a-thon will be from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 31, at the Skatin Station on Ronda Drive at Joy Road.

Ann Arendsen has taped a television segment concerning the skate-a-thon for her AM-PM Show. Her interview with Sharon will be broadcast at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Jan. 4 through 8 on Cablevision Channel 13. The program will explain the project.

Other roller rinks participating are Dearborn Roller-drome, Dixie Skateland, Lakeview Skateland, Mt. Clemens Skating Arena, Riverside Arena, Ambassador, Bonaventure, The Rink and University Skating Center.

More information about the skate-a-thon will be published in this newspaper.

GEORGE POPE and Ray Gentz had high scores at the Dec. 17 party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. Players will be back in action Thursday, Jan. 7, after their holiday break.

ALL HIGH SCHOOL students are invited to enter the fifth biennial Michigan Wildlife Art Awards competition, sponsored through April 30 by Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills.

Subject matter can be realistic illustrations of any wild animal, protozoan through mammal (excluding man), from any area of the world. Black and white or color portrayals in watercolor, oil, pen and ink, charcoal, pastel, woodcut, etching, engraving, pencil, crayon, acrylic and other medium may be entered. Material should be two-dimensional (no sculpture or relief) and not larger than 26x36 inches, excluding matting.

Entry forms and awards descriptions are available at your high school. Call 645-3230 for information.

First-run film biography stars former resident

Rebecca Baker, former Plymouth resident, is featured in a leading role in "Hudson Taylor," a newly released film about the famed missionary. It will be shown at 8:30 p.m. New Year's Eve in Calvary Baptist Church, 43065 Joy Road, Canton.

Mrs. Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ottis McGuire of Palmer Street, Plymouth, plays the part of Maria Taylor, the English missionary's first wife.

The 90-minute feature film covers the life of Taylor from his arrival in China in 1854 to Maria's death — a period of 15 years. While other missionaries remained in China's coastal regions, Taylor, a medical missionary, went to the interior. He was responsible for opening the trade routes to inland China.

PRODUCED BY Ken Anderson Films of Winona Lake, Ind., the film was shot on location in the Republic of China (Taiwan) and in a studio in Indiana.

"Hudson Taylor" was released earlier this month, and the showing at Calvary Baptist is the first in this area.

Wes Baker, Rebecca's husband, plays John Burdon, a missionary who befriended Taylor when he arrived in China. Their daughter, Vanessa, makes a brief appearance in the film as the Taylors' daughter, Gracie.

The Bakers spent 3½ weeks in Taiwan while the film was being made.

"It was a tremendous privilege to play the part of Maria," Mrs. Baker said of her first film role. "One of the particular values of a biography of the Taylors is that it demonstrates how ordinary people were used greatly by God, in spite of their weaknesses. It truly is an inspirational story."

Mrs. Baker, a 1969 graduate of Plymouth High School, is a part-time instructor in drama at Cedarville College, Cedarville, Ohio. Her husband is an assistant professor in mass communication at the college.

Rebecca McGuire Baker (right) portrays Maria Taylor in the new film "Hudson Taylor." The former Plymouth resident will attend the Dec. 31 Watch-night Service at Calvary Baptist Church at which the film will be shown.

Happy 50th Scrabble becomes America's top-selling game

COUNTLESS new Scrabble players are born every day. You'll find them gathered around a small square board doing battle for hours, trying to outdo their opponents with words like quiz on a triple word score, using all seven letters for that extra bonus or adding that one remaining vowel to some other word already played to win by three points on the final move of the game.

Yet Scrabble is a game that almost wasn't.

Its inventor, Alfred Butts, tried for years to promote interest in his game. But for about 20 years, all he received in return for his efforts were rejection letters from game manufacturers.

In the early '50s, he finally scored big, and things have been booming since.

Scrabble is celebrating its 50th anniversary during 1981.

BUTTS, NOW 82, says he never dreamed the game would be as popular as it is today, enjoyed by millions of players around the world.

Butts isn't just a pragmatist, he's also an inveterate tinkerer.

The youngest of five brothers, he grew up in a house of competitive game players.

He remembers that his brothers wouldn't teach him new games because they knew he would always want them to play with him.

When the Depression brought an end to his association with an architectural firm in New York, he began looking for ways to make a living. It was during these hard times of the 1920s that he decided upon games.

"There are three types of games. Board games like chess and I didn't think I could improve on chess; card games like bridge and I didn't think I could improve on bridge; and word games. So that left me with word games," he recalls.

"I always liked playing anagrams, but I thought you should be rewarded for using difficult letters. So in 1931, I started noting how often each letter in the alphabet was used in the New York Times and created a system where players would be credited for using the more difficult letters."

BUTTS ORIGINALLY called his game Lexico. It contained 100 tiles; the distribution of letters was identical to the game today.

He made the set in his apartment, cutting each tile out of plywood sheets with a jig saw.

But the game didn't sell, and major manufacturers only sent him letters of rejection for his inquiries about marketing the invention.

So he went back to work on the game. In 1935, he added numerical values to each of the 100 letters.

In about 1938, he added a game board. "It was such an improvement," he says, "so I gave it a new name."

Butts began to manufacture his new improved model, buying checker boards, turning them over and gluing a design he made from blueprint paper on top.

Each board had 225 squares — the same as today. He made the tile racks, four to each set, out of wooden corner molding he bought from a local hardware store.

Because the architecture business was picking up around this time, and because he had a degree in architecture from the University of Pennsylvania, he spent less time developing his new game.

Players seldom achieve Scrabble expert status

Here are some other tidbits on Scrabble as it marks its 50th anniversary during 1981.

- Scrabble is now the best-selling trademarked board game in North America. It is produced for this market in French, German, Hebrew, Italian, Russian and Spanish editions as well as in deluxe, travel, pocket and Braille editions.

- The word Scrabble means to scratch, scrape or paw.

- Scrabble players today come in all shapes and sizes — from Sophia Loren, who counts Richard Burton, Peter O'Toole, Bob Schrader and Phil Peters among her defeated adversaries, to the University of Massachusetts students who built a 2,000-square-foot Scrabble game board.

- There are more than 100 Scrabble Players clubs in the U.S. and Canada, holding organized competitions throughout the year. More than 300 players have achieved the level of certified Scrabble expert, awarded on the basis of wins against quality players in supervised play.

- Among top-level competitors, a two-player score of 500-600 is considered average; 600-700 is good; and a score of 750-900 is excellent.

Public more accepting of psychological help

Americans today are much more likely to seek professional help for their personal problems than they were a generation ago, according to a University of Michigan survey.

"The stigma has decreased. Even people who do not personally expect to consult a mental health professional themselves see that as a reasonable alternative for persons facing an unmanageable crisis," said Joseph Veroff, Richard A. Kulka and Elizabeth Douvan of the U-M Institute for Social Research.

"They are more likely to select a specialized resource such as a psychologist, psychiatrist or marriage counselor than a general help source like a doctor or clergyman. But they turned to all resources much more often than persons surveyed 20 years earlier."

"Only 3 percent relied exclusively on professionals," the U-M researchers add. "Most turned also to family and friends for advice and support."

THE TRENDS are examined in "Mental Health in America: Patterns of Help-Seeking from 1957 to 1976," just published by Basic Books.

Veroff, Kulka and Douvan compared the findings of a 1976 ISR national survey of some 2,400 adults to a similar 1957 survey, "Americans View Their Mental Health." By addressing the same questions to two carefully matched populations, 20 years apart, they were able to identify important changes in the ways Americans cope with personal problems.

"In 1976, people were much more likely to mention spontaneously a professional help source as a way to cope with a hypothetical personal problem. More important, in 1957 some 14 percent of the population said they had sought professional help at some point in their lives. By 1976, that proportion had nearly doubled to 26 percent," the researchers said.

"Professional help is broadly defined in our studies. It includes any help source having expertise rather than a personal relationship to the help-seeker — for example, medical doctors, lawyers and clergy as well as social workers, counselors and psychiatrists."

DECIDING TO seek help from an outside expert requires a certain psychological readiness, a willingness to admit vulnerability in the self, the authors explain. You must admit that a problem might arise that outstrips your own capacity for managing and resolving distress.

"Certain population subgroups show a greater readiness than others to seek professional help, both in 1957 and 1976; women more than men; younger more than older people; educated more than less educated. Especially high readiness was found in people from urban areas; residents of the Pacific states; Jews; frequent church attenders; divorced men and women; adults who experienced parental divorce during childhood."

The authors suggest these groups may be more likely to seek professional help either because they experience consistent social stress in their lives or because they are part of a social milieu that endorses this way of resolving problems.

Person who had actually experienced a serious crisis, such as divorce, had more often used professionals help and were less likely to assert that they "would never face a problem they could not handle on their own." Many of these results were clearer in 1976 than in 1957, suggesting that people in really serious trouble are being much better served, the authors said.

"Cost of care no longer prevents people from using professional help as much as it may have in 1957. Programs and policies initiated by the federal government to broaden access to mental health care, especially in urban areas, have clearly been a success."

BROADER availability and more positive attitudes toward mental health care have had another effect: the U-M researchers found many adults who see professional consultation as a way to expand their potential rather than primarily as a way to alleviate psychological distress.

"We find, for example, people who consider themselves different from others, as having strong points, and see counseling as a way to explore their personalities rather than to undo thoroughly negative feelings about themselves. Although this 'self-exploration' may be a luxury available only to the affluent, it is likely to be a prevalent view as the goal of self-fulfillment continues to be high in our hierarchy of social values," the researchers state.

With the increase in the use of professional help came a decline in the proportion of adults who insisted they would work things out alone. "Self-help" responses declined from 44 percent to 35 percent over the 20 years.

"While this is a significant decrease, it is nonetheless remarkable that in 1976 a full third of society could not conceive of themselves as ever encountering such an overwhelming problem or state of stress as would lead them to consult a professional."

"ONE CANNOT help but be impressed with the size of this trenchant self-assured group," the authors remark. "They must either have great personal resources or power of psychological denial or have extremely supportive family and friends."

30 Dealers exhibit at show

Cathy Bosker of Plymouth will exhibit antique inkwells at the Glen Oaks Golf and Country Club winter antique show to be held Jan. 9 and 10 at the club on 13 Mile, east of Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

One of her inkwells is a red Loetz glass, another is a silver Indian head. She will also display two signed Steu-

"Talking to someone about troubles is Americans' dominant mode of coping," state the authors, noting the increase in self-help groups, peer counseling, and widespread community resources. "We are very social animals. Prayer, once a common response to periods of unhappiness, is less often used now than talking one's problems through."

There is a remarkable difference between the available informal help for crises experienced by men and women, Veroff, Kulka and Douvan note.

ben items, a compote and a mug. Old clocks will be featured at her booth.

Bennett Weiss, also of Plymouth, will show a pierced tin cage resembling a barn used about 1870. His display also will include old advertising items.

Hours on Saturday will be from noon to 9 p.m.; Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

Madonna plans TV course

A 15-week business course will be offered by Madonna College starting Jan. 11 via TV Channel 56.

The course will examine the way today's business community provides goods and services within the legal, ethical and economic framework of the U.S.

Offered for continuing education or college credit, the class will air from 4:30 to 5 p.m. on Channel 56 Monday and Wednesday. Students can view at home, and attend pre-arranged class meetings on Madonna's campus. Tapes of the program will be available for viewing.

For more information, call Madonna at 591-5049.

Mite hockey leagues are a mix of play and laughs

'Tis the season to play hockey. The Plymouth-Canton Mites Hockey League is hosting the annual Christmas tournament for the next two weeks. Ages of the players range from 5 through 8.

In most cases, the sticks are taller than the contestants. While watching one of the elimination playoffs, there were laughs and cheers combined from the parents and other spectators. Sometimes the children slide down the ice as fast as the puck.

Teams from the Livonia area as well as the Mic-Mac team from Detroit are joining in the competition. No child is on the ice longer than three minutes and teams rotate during the three 15-minute periods. The players usually are well-rested by the time their turn comes around again, so the action in the game is consistent. An entire game is played within one hour's time. Ice time is charged by the hour to each team during the regular season. When you have to figure weekly practice and game time, hockey is an expensive sport.

I met Jim and Sharon Smith of Canton at the Plymouth arena recently. They have four boys in hockey programs throughout our area. Tom and Jeff, their two older boys, are traveling with their teams as the Smith family doesn't sit still in any one place for very long.

Brian and Chris Smith play for the Plymouth-Canton house teams and are following closely in the exciting family tradition. Jim started coaching 14 years ago when a local team needed a volunteer. He stood right up and donated his time, even though he had no children involved in the sport. The enthusiasm spread to all of the boys as they became old enough to play.

Another family who practically lives at the local ice rink are Ray and Janet Lucska, along with their children Jamie, Fawnde and Andre. Ray is the coach of an over-30 team that is doing quite well in its own division. The team is sponsored by Rays' Maintenance Service of Plymouth. Ray also coaches his son Andre along with the help of assistant coach Gary Kistemaker. At this point, their team is one of the top four in the final elimination of the tournament.

In the game I attended, Gary's son,

Mike, scored four out of the nine goals for his team. This team is sponsored by Ed's Sports Shoppe on Main Street in Plymouth. Their mascot is tiny Billy Clos.

Every family enjoys watching, learning and growing with the child in this excellent community league. The participants develop eye, hand and skating ability while sharing in a fun sport with other children their own age. We are all lucky to have the dedicated parents who support their own children and give the time to benefit the rest of the team.

CORRINE AND Chris Newton are leaving town. Chris has been promoted to district manager for customer engineering for Californai with Memorex Corp.

Bonnie Gelaude, Corrine's sister, and her husband, Ron, decided to have a special going away party they would never forget.

They rented a large banquet room from Rose Shores Racquet Club for the occasion. Just about 100 friends and family showed up for the happy send-off. After a lovely dinner catered by the Olde Village Deli Shoppe in Plymouth, this happy-go-lucky family decided to give an "honorary roasting" to the couple.

At one point, we were laughing and crying at the same time. Singing and dancing were next on the agenda and it seemed to be the perfect way to say goodbye to this wonderful couple and their family.

Best of luck to Corrine and Chris on all of their new adventures. We will miss you both very much.

FINALLY, Jay McDowell is 30. His wife, Donna, gave him a surprise birthday party during the holidays.

Donna is famous for her unusual parties. She invites many people from different backgrounds and no one knows one another.

Usually you go to a party with some idea of the guests, but never at the McDowells. Donna is on the teaching staff at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Jay is the assistant football coach at Eastern Michigan University. Both have a wide group of friends: Lynne and Bob LaPointe, Denise and Ken Bear, and Gabe Hurrish were part of the surprise for Jay.

Working: Changes and choices

U.S. tolerates a rising rate of unemployment

This is the 14th of 15 articles exploring working in America. It was written for Courses by Newspaper, an extension program of the University of California, San Diego, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities. © 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.

By Lester C. Thurow
special writer

To achieve total employment, a society would have to create a job for everyone able and willing to work.

America has created jobs — 17.6 million in the last 10 years.

But the growth in the number of jobs has run behind the growth in the number of people looking for work.

Furthermore, as long as unemployment is used as a weapon in the war against inflation, total employment is not going to exist.

Federal policy-makers are going to be aiming for precisely the opposite — continued unemployment.

LIKE OTHER capitalistic societies (except Japan), America has decided that inflation is more of a problem than unemployment, and that unemployment should be deliberately raised to hold inflation down.

Consequently, America's employment, which averaged 4.8 percent in the 1960s, shot up to 6.2 percent in the 1970s and 7.5 percent in 1980.

Unemployment is not only high, it is also unevenly shared. Rates range from almost 40 percent for black teenagers to 5 percent for prime-age (25-55) white males. Black unemployment is twice as high as white. Almost half of those unemployed are 16-24 years of age.

Individuals are being drafted into unemployment to be "inflation fighters" for the U.S. of A. Higher unemployment is supposed to increase competition for jobs and, hence, force workers to settle for lower wage gains in fear of losing their jobs.

EDC gets 40 bids on N'ville site

Forty contractors from across the country are bidding on development of an elderly housing village on the site of the former Wayne County Child Development Center in Northville Township.

The Economic Development Corp. of Wayne County is seeking bids on the project at the northeast corner of Five Mile and Sheldon roads.

"The purpose of this solicitation," said executive director Robert FitzPatrick, "is to secure the services of a highly-qualified developer capable of financing the construction of the proposed elderly housing village according to a phased, long-term development plan."

The plan calls for dwelling units, a central kitchen, hospital clinic, medical offices, pharmacy, chapel, cafeteria, convenience retail use, and other service facilities.

Lester C. Thurow is professor of economics and management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is an economics consultant to the Los Angeles Times, The New York Times and Boston Globe, and is a member of Time magazine's Board of Economists. His publications include "Poverty and Discrimination" and "Generating Inequality: The Distributional Mechanisms of the Economy."

Higher levels of idle capacity are at the same time supposed to be holding down product prices. Producers cannot raise prices because there is "too much" idle capacity or potential competition.

THE CURRENT strategy of using unemployment to fight inflation is based on the ideal of a "natural rate" of unemployment — that is, the rate of unemployment that would make the workforce willing to settle for wage gains equal to the rate of growth of productivity (output per hour of work).

If this were to happen, higher wages would be counterbalanced with higher productivity. Thus, wages would not put any upward pressure on prices.

According to the natural-rate-of-unemployment hypothesis, inflation will decelerate if unemployment is higher than the "natural rate" because wages will rise more slowly than productivity.

Conversely, inflation will accelerate if unemployment is below the "natural rate" because wages will rise more rapidly than productivity.

To cure inflation, government must raise unemployment until wages are rising at the same rate as productivity. Or so the argument goes.

UNFORTUNATELY, the "natural rate" of unemployment seems to be drifting higher and higher.

In part, this upward drift is due to the fact that productivity is falling. Since the mid-1960s, productivity fell from plus-3 percent per year to minus-0.5 percent per year.

In order to achieve stable labor costs per unit of output, the growth in wages would have to decline by a comparable amount.

This would mean a rise in the natural rate of unemployment.

Ask yourself a simple question: How high would unemployment have to be before you would be willing to accept a 0.5 percent per year wage cut? Since, for most of us, the answer is "very high," the unemployment rate necessary to control inflation is very high.

THE NATURAL rate of unemployment is also rising because unemployment's power to discipline wages is diminishing. With social insurance payments, such as unemployment insurance, unemployment becomes more tolerable.

In addition, unemployment has become increasingly concentrated among groups which have little influence on basic wage settlements. The nation's wage structure is set by prime-age white males — the group least affected by unemployment.

True, when recessions first strike, prime-age white males are among the hardest hit because they tend to work in cyclically sensitive durable goods industries. But when workers quit, retire or get fired, prime-age white males are the most likely to get hired.

Over time, their unemployment rate gradually falls, and the unemployment rates of other groups rise, even though national unemployment is constant.

As a result, unemployment can rise only as long as inflation remains the voters' No. 1 problem and as long as policy makers use unemployment as the cure.

BUT SUPPOSE another inflation-fighting strategy were adopted. How then could total employment be achieved?

For much of the workforce, total employment is simply a matter of generating vigorous economic growth. With growing sales, businesses hire and train more labor, and unemployment falls.

But some groups (prime-age white males) reach total employment long before other groups (blacks, Hispanics, females, the unskilled).

This brings us to a necessary value judgment: Should the nation create total employment for those groups not sufficiently served by economic growth?

If the answer is yes, the government must go beyond stimulating economic growth and change the structure of the economy.

BUT AMERICA has never answered "yes" to this question. As a society, we have not thought total employment a goal worth pursuing.

Education and training are the traditional instruments for bringing disadvantaged groups into the mainstream of the economy.

Since the mid-1960s, both educational attainments and the distribution of education have improved dramatically. Yet unemployment has increased, and it is more unevenly shared.

The problem is that most job skills are acquired not in formal education or training, but in on-the-job training during the production process, where precisely the skills that will be needed can be efficiently taught.

THUS, THE PROCESS of allocating jobs becomes an important determinant of any group's skills and its relative employment position. Those groups which receive the best jobs and training opportunities have the lowest unemployment rates.

No one who now has a preferred position wants the good jobs reallocated to someone else.

But if job opportunities are to be reallocated, there are only two choices:

• Either government can institute affirmative action programs which pressure employers to allocate good job opportunities to different groups.

• Or government can institute a system of guaranteed government jobs to provide opportunities for those who cannot get them in the private economy.

BOTH POLICIES are contentious, since they seem to lead to government discrimination in favor of some group — and hence against some other group.

Unfortunately, this contention is unavoidable. Imagine a race run by two groups which are equally swift.

Suppose one group were forced to carry a load of rocks. It suffers from discrimination. As the race continues, the group carrying rocks gradually falls farther and farther behind.

Now suppose the rocks are removed. An equal opportunity society has been created.

But the group that has already fallen behind, being equally fast, never catches up. It could catch up only if it were intrinsically faster than the group which has not suffered from discrimination.

LOGICALLY, there are only three ways to solve the problem of past discrimination:

1) The economic race can be stopped and started over. But this means a revolution in which everyone is stripped of his or her human and financial assets.

2) The group which is ahead can be forced to carry rocks, too, until the race equalizes. This requires active discrimination against society's dominant group.

3) The group which is behind can be given special help.

None of the three is a particularly attractive option, but they are unfortunately the only options available.

Canton pastor sees opportunity for programs

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

The Rev. Larry Christianson has spent the waning months of 1981 getting acquainted with his new congregation and now is ready to lead Faith Community Moravian Church into its new year.

He moved to the Canton church in October from Lake Auburn Moravian Church in Minnesota, for the second time following the Rev. Darryl Bell in a pastoral assignment.

"He was at Lake Auburn before me," Christianson explained, "and left four years ago to start this new church. This time he is starting another congregation at Maple Grove, Minn., about 25 miles from where I was."

"Friendly, warm and good to work with" is the way the newly-arrived clergyman described Faith people, who worshipped in a Plymouth school before moving to its church home at 46001 Warren.

"This is a new congregation," he added. "There is no established way of doing things. I see it as an opportunity to develop programs, reach out, attract more people to our congregation."

His new situation is definitely a change from the one he left, Christianson said.

"That is a 125-year-old church, and it's located on the shore of a lake right in the middle of a nature preserve," he noted. "The congregation has a wide variety of ages. Here it's a suburban setting, with half the congregation 10th grade or younger."

"Whenever we have any kind of activity here, we have nursery care."

CHRISTIANSON, a native of Green Bay, Wis., went with his family to a Moravian church there. "Those were the Vince Lombardi days for the Green Bay Packers," he said, "and the church was right down the hill from the stadium."

"We used to go to church in informal clothes, take along a sack lunch and head for the games after services."

He graduated from the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh and then served in the U.S. Navy before deciding to go into the ministry.

"I had thought about it in high school, then thought more seriously during my time in service," he said. "It was a gradual decision."

He completed studies at the Moravian Theological Seminary in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1976 and then began serving a Moravian church while continuing work on a master's degree in divinity. He was awarded his degree in 1980, by United Theological Seminary.

The minister and his wife Norma, who grew up in Madison and has been a nursery school teacher, have two children, a son Andrew, 3, and a daughter Emily, 5 months.

THE MORAVIAN church is probably the earliest in Protestantism.

"It began in Kunwald, Moravia, in 1457," said Christianson, "and we had 400,000 people and 60 churches 60 years before Martin Luther took his stand against Rome."

"The Moravians were tolerated by Rome until the 1500s, when persecution started and almost wiped out the sect."

As organized today, he said, the church is "quite mainline, maybe more informal than some denominations." Of the three Moravian churches in Michigan, two are in this area, Grace in Westland and Faith Community in Canton.

The Rev. Larry Christianson

church bulletin

● PILGRIM MISSION

The Rev. Nadine Fetterman will speak during special services now through Sunday at Pilgrim Mission Church, 5737 Middlebelt, Garden City. They take place at 7:30 p.m.

● ST. DAMIAN CATHOLIC

Scripture discussion meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in room 23 of the school building at St. Damian Catholic Church, 2985 Joy, Westland. This year the readings taken up will be drawn from the writings of the minor prophets.

● HOPE LUTHERAN

The seven-week film series, "Focus on the Family" will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 7, in Hope Lutheran Church, 3640 Madison, Dearborn. The series was produced by Dr. James Dobson of the University of Southern California. The first topic will be the strong-willed child. In the following weeks, shaping the will without breaking the spirit will be explored on Jan. 14, followed by Christian fathering on Jan. 21. The subject on Jan. 28 will be "Preparing for Adolescence: the Origins of Self Doubt."

On Feb. 4 the topic will also deal with adolescents, this time about peer pressure and sexuality. On Feb. 11 and 15 the subject matter will be "What Wives Wish their Husbands Knew about Women, Money, Sex and Children." For more details call the church at 278-4810.

● PLYMOUTH FIRST UNITED METHODIST

The New Life series Bible study will begin at 7:15 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10, in First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, 45201 N. Territorial. The seven-week study is designed to be non-denominational and ecumenical. Registration is from 7:15-8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 3.

Involving basic principles of Christian faith, the study will consist of a 20-minute lecture written by Marilyn Ganskow, author of the study. Participants will then separate into small groups to talk about the topic.

Study guides are $3 and optional lesson summaries are optional.

Bloodmobile to visit 2 area churches

Those making New Year resolutions to donate blood to the Red Cross will find a bloodmobile at three locations in the area on Jan. 3, 9 and 26.

It will be stationed on Sunday, Jan. 3 at the Livonia Donor Center, Belle Creek Office Plaza, 29691 Six Mile, Livonia from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The office is also open for donations on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 2-8 p.m.

The Red Cross also accepts appointments for blood donors from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. To make an appointment call the center at 422-2787.

The bloodmobile will also put in an appearance from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9 at St. Kenneth Catholic Church, 14951 Haggerty, Plymouth. Call the church for an appointment during blood drive hours (420-0123).

Hours will be from 3-9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 22 at Faith Lutheran, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia. Call the church for an appointment (421-7249).

Class will explore drugs and alcohol

What is a teacher or a school administrator to do when alcohol or drugs come into the schools?

That is the question that will be answered at a one-day workshop from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 16, in Room 306 of the academic building at Madonna College, Livonia.

Dr. James Boyle, administrator and evaluator in the Wayne-Westland school district, and Wayne Isbell, director of alcohol education at Madonna, will lead the workshop. Their aim is to help educators develop a workable program to deal with alcohol and drug abuse in the schools.

The cost of the workshop is $25. It gives six-tenths continuing education credit. To register, call Madonna before Jan. 14 at 591-5049.

Madonna prepares career change class

An eight-week "Adults in Transition" course designed to make career changes easier will be offered at Madonna College beginning Wednesday, Jan. 13. Students should register by Jan. 11.

The course will be held from 1-3 p.m. Wednesdays in Room 103 of the administration building. Cost is $30 if not taken for credit, and $58 for one college credit.

To register, call the college at 591-5049.

Churches plan New Year's Eve events

Religious and social activities will mark the beginning of 1982 for area churches. These include services, parties and film showings.

The Livonia Pentecostal Church of God, 11663 Arcola, just north of Plymouth Road, will start what it calls its "old fashioned" New Year's Eve services at 9:30 p.m. There will be music and a message from the Rev. Norman Clere, pastor.

"More Than a Carpenter," a film filled with romance, drama and spiritual intrigue set in ancient Jerusalem and along the Mediterranean coast, will be shown at 9 p.m. Dec. 31 in Livonia Baptist Church, 32940 Schoolcraft, Livonia. Admission is free.

This new film stars Rapdy Carver, who played the lead in the World Wide Pictures release of "Time to Run." He has the role of a young archeologist named Mark, who is supervising a "dig" near the ancient city of Tyre.

Playing a friend is Josh McDowell, author of the bestselling book, "Evidence That Demands a Verdict."

Bethel Baptist Temple, 29475 Six Mile, Livonia, will show the film "Heaven's Heroes" at its New Year's Eve service. The movie starts at 8 p.m. It tells the story of Cindy Hill, wife of Des Moines police officer Dennis Hill, who was killed in 1977 in the line of duty.

How this wife of seven years and mother of two small children responds to this untimely death is the theme of the film.

Members of the Livonia Church of Christ will observe the arrival of the new year with a party for adults hosted by Roger and Joyce Anderson. There will be midnight devotional as well as a meal and games.

The youth of Memorial Church of Christ, 35475 Five Mile, Livonia, will see the old year out with an all-night party, which will start at the church at 7:30 p.m.

moral perspectives Rev. Lloyd Buss

Each moment of time is unrepeatable

It might have been my imagination. But I don't think so.

Watches were apparently in plentiful supply this year, and stores were offering exceptional bargains.

Competition for the buying public created a lot of advertisements in flyers and newspapers. The discounts were so attractive I was almost persuaded to buy a wristwatch or two for myself.

One thing about the wristwatches offered for sale this season. Almost all were the conventional watches with a clock face, minute and second hands. The digital read-outs were seldom advertised with discounts as great as the more traditional watches.

Measuring time has always been important. One surely needs a good watch nowadays. Perhaps even more so as we come to the end of another year. The tracing of time from one year to the next is not something we turn over to the setting and rising of the sun. We want to know when we move from one year to the next, and we want to know it with some precision.

Round watches can be misleading. They can dupe you into believing that life repeats itself. When one twenty-four cycle is finished, another follows. What is left undone in one day can be picked up in another.

Our celebrations of New Year's Eve suggest a different sense of time. Waiting with friends and/or relatives for the passing of the old to the new, we sense a finality to the year passing away. Time is not circular on New Year's Eve. It moves in a straight line, and we are leaving a segment of life that will never return.

Is that the reason for the increased use of alcohol on New Year's Eve? Is there a conscious or subconscious desire to dull the sense of anguish and despair over deeds left undone, for plans never carried out? Are we celebrating the arrival of the new or lamenting the passing of the old? Are we trying to drown out our finitude, our mortality?

If we could but return to days gone by, or to deeds of the past, we might wish to do things differently. But what is past will never return and whatever was left undone, will have to go with us as baggage of the past.

Time is not circular as the circular faces of our watches would suggest. There is a beginning to time and an end to time. Every moment in time is unique and unrepeatable. Every life is limited to a span of time that will some day run out.

The question of how one ought to live in this limited time is an old one. Insights and perspectives abound in the literature of the Judeo-Christian heritage. The joy and fulfillment of life comes as the person is in harmony with all creation and the One who made it. When our will and deed matches the intent and purpose of providence, then we will no longer fear the passing of the old and the arrival of the new.

Tomorrow will not be the same as yesterday, even though our watches may suggest it will be so. For some this will be a welcome relief. For others, it will be an occasion of sadness. But for us all, the morrow will offer the unique opportunity to continue in our efforts of faithfulness to the will and plan of the Creator.

Plymouth continues to overcome large setbacks

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

"When the going gets tough
The tough get going."

—Author unknown

The person who first spoke those words could find no better illustration for the message than in how Plymouth has responded to adversity over the years.

Once dealt a terrific economical blow with the departure of the Daisy Air Rifle company some time ago, Plymouth came back and continues to rebound from economic setbacks.

After recovering from the departure of Daisy, another period of economic setback hit the community.

A bank moved its main office out of the downtown business section to Plymouth Township, a national insurance company moved its corporate headquarters to another city, and other business places either left or considered leaving.

One of the great optimists at that time was Ralph Lorenz of the Mayflower Hotel who vowed he would stick it out and lead the way back.

In the first major move, the First National Bank of Plymouth was given birth in the downtown business section.

Next came James Jabara and John Thomas who helped conceive the idea of Forest Place Mall and saw that it was built.

Then came Westchester Square and the re-birth of activity in Old Village.

This was followed by the renovation of many of the old architectural gems along Main Street, and the passing of the Kresge store to be replaced by Plymouth Furniture, one of the larger furniture outlets in the western suburbs.

WITH ALL THESE changes the merchants and local organizations swung into action and introduced or expanded a number of attractions.

There were the chicken flying contests, the start of the balloon races sponsored by the Mayflower, the offer of a horse and buggy ride to families who eat Sunday Brunch in the Meeting House.

The Fourth of July parade became a bigger and better attraction with the help of the Plymouth Jaycees and service clubs which always answered when called upon.

More recently, news of economic setback to Plymouth came with the announcement that Dunn Steel Company was departing from the city after doing business here for 25 years.

But there remains signs of growth and positive activities.

After dickering for some time the Mayflower II, a project of some 30 motel rooms on the old Wiedman Parking Lot, began to take shape.

After Labor Day the Fall Festival and Plymouth Rotary chicken barbecue always has been a major attraction, but now more and more activity comes up around Christmas time.

The holiday promotions got their start when the National Bank of Plymouth inaugurated the "Shop Plymouth" campaign.

Then Oscar Hertz of Plymouth Furniture introduced a special tree trimming workshop as a fundraiser for the Salvation Army. This workshop was held right next to the Edison office which always is a treat during the Yuletide.

Other activities included a wine and cheese party at the furniture store by the Plymouth branch of the AAUW after the club visited the Plymouth Historical Museum.

The Westchester mall welcomed the Tonquish Creek Garden Club and its "Poinsettia and Potpourri" boutique and bake sale on Friday.

The Forest Square mall had the Three Cities Art Club pre-Christmas show and sale followed by the annual Greens Mart of the Plymouth branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association.

The Christmas Walk through the historic sections of Old Village was reported by planners to have been more successful than ever.

Woman's Club meets Jan. 8

Members of the Woman's Club of Plymouth have been advised not to practice their finest penmanship for the first meeting of the new year.

Lucille McKenny, handwriting analyst, will be guest speaker.

She prefers a grocery list or other scribbles when she looks for personality traits in a person's writing.

The club will meet at 12:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 8 at First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. Carolyn Loesch, president and chairwoman of the day, expects a very interesting program.

Mary Kathryn Skinner will chair the tea committee. Assisting her will be Frances Rowley, Betty Childs, Mary Derr, Julia Kenny, Rita Maly, Dorothy Lent, Marion Sober and Florence Von-Glahn.

Frances Kerr and Audrey Cunningham will greet the members on arrival.

Plymouth Plating gets approval of SBA financing

Joseph A. Valle

Plymouth Plating Works Inc. has obtained approval of financing assistance from the Small Business Administration (SBA).

The company, located at 397 Farmer in Plymouth, is planning an expansion at a cost of about $600,000. Of the total cost, the SBA's share of financing is $240,000.

The project will create 10 new jobs and preserve another 15 jobs for the firm which produces zinc and cadmium plating, barrel and rock plating, and phosphating.

Approval of the financial assistance from the SBA was gained through Metropolitan Growth and Development Corporation, an SBA Certified Development Company (CDC).

The CDC program, commonly known as the "503" program, is designed to promote community economic development and to create or save jobs. It offers development companies, such as the Metropolitan Growth and Development CDC, a way to extend long-term financing to small businesses.

The program, begun in October 1980, has resulted in the certification of more than 100 CDCs, five of them in Michigan.

TECHNOLOGY AWARDS

Four residents were honored recently as recipients of the Henry Ford Technology Award for achievements in research, product engineering and manufacturing.

In all some 21 professionals from three continents were honored for outstanding achievements in engine design, electronics, computer graphics, manufacturing process, and alternative fuels.

Residents honored were Dr. Brian S. Edelman, Frank G. Cespino and Noel L. Pooler, all of Canton, and Ralph L. Robinson of Plymouth.

Edelman and Robinson, both product design engineers, received a joint award for conceiving and developing high-performance input/output interface for electronic engine control microprocessors which greatly expanded the capability of Ford's electronic engine control system and reduced the cost of the system. A patent has been issued for the improvement.

Cespino, supervisor of the soft-trim processing section in the Saline Plant, was honored for developing a process for manufacturing Escort and Lynx instrument panels. The process reduced production cycle time by one-half, improved quality, reduced production complexity and lowered costs. A patent application has been filed.

Pooler, a division process liaison engineer in the transmission and chassis division, received the award for developing an orbital forging process for manufacture of automatic-transaxle turbine shafts using commercially available stock instead of more costly extrusions. The process resulted in reduced manufacturing costs, better dimensional control, and higher quality finishes. The system is being adopted industry-wide.

In announcing the awards, Ford president Donald E. Petersen commented: "Technological excellence is crucial to the future of Ford Motor Company and our technological capability depends on the quality and dedication of our people — our most important competitive strength."

"As a result of recent progress in computer and robotic technologies, I'd venture to say that we are now in the midst of a 'Second Industrial Revolution.' And it promises to change dramatically the way we live and the way we do business."

LUCAS A WINNER

Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth helped make Christmas brighter for employee Ann Lucas with the presentation of a $1,000 cash award for her performance in the "Live It Up" game implemented in Wendy's restaurants in the Detroit area.

The game, which ran last summer, recently awarded prizes to employees based on sales performance throughout the year.

Ms. Lucas, now attending Eastern Michigan University, will put her winnings toward continuing her college education at Schoolcraft College.

SALES AWARD

Joseph A. Valle of Elliott Court, Plymouth, has received the Aeroquip Industrial Division's outstanding sales achievement award.

Aeroquip Corporation of Jackson is a subsidiary of Libbey-Owens-Ford Company (LOF) and manufactures fluid power and fluid system components.

The award was presented recently at an awards banquet in Jackson.

FIRM EXPANDING

Concept Analysis Corporation, founded by Pat Glance of Plymouth, has expanded to new facilities.

The corporation, formed two years ago, has been operating in Plymouth out of the Markham Building.

Ms. Glance, the corporate director, says that the firm has experienced a 400 percent growth over the past two years and will be moving to quarters in the Plymouth Industrial Park on General Court.

The new 7,500-square-foot facility will consist of 5,700 square feet of office space and 1,800 square feet of shop space.

The engineering consulting firm offers a research and development service and specializes in developing lightweight structures.

Despite the general downturn in the Detroit economy, Ms. Glance says, the research and development business has been rather strong. "This is especially true for computer-based firms such as Concept Analysis which provide problem-solving services in the area of energy related research."

The company expects to expand further its computerized finite element structural analysis service and to move into the computer-aided design field.

The new facility will allow the firm to provide an expanded prototype and testing service for its various industrial clients.

The firm's current clients include all the major domestic automotive manufacturers as well as some Japanese and European concerns.

The firm also provides service for a variety of raw material suppliers and manufacturers in the aircraft and defense industry.

Solar energy seminar slated

A free seminar on solar energy home improvements will be given Jan. 5 in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The seminar will begin at 7 p.m. in the center, which is located at 525 Farmer, east of Sheldon.

"Your home still is your best investment — it gives you a number of great returns on the money you put into it," said solar consultant Dan Rubyan.

"We all know that an extra bedroom or a new kitchen or an attached garage are 'good investments.' They can enhance convenience and increase resale value. Solar home improvements in general are smart for the same reasons, but the returns are even greater."

Rubyan, of Star Pak Solar in Novi, will discuss the solar home improvements which pay for themselves quickly in a Michigan climate.

Rubyan, a solar-industry veteran of five years, adds: "Your monthly 'utility bills' go down, you receive a substantial cut in your personal income taxes, and, of course, you add to the equity and resale value of your home. If home improvements are your best investment, then solar is your best home improvement."

"Remember that a double-pane, south-facing window will gain far more heat in a Michigan winter than it will gain in a Michigan summer. This is simple proof that solar energy does indeed work in Michigan and that it will save you expensive 'utility' costs in a short period of time."

Band show goes Disney

"Variety Is..." the variety show of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) bands, has a new twist.

The show will be having a Walt Disney theme this year.

Open talent auditions for those interested in performing are scheduled. Although high-school age is preferred, talented adults are welcomed to try out.

Auditions will be after school ends at 2:05 p.m. on Jan. 5 in Room 300 of the Phase III building between Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools.

A committee made up of James Griffith, PCEP band director, and music students will determine which acts are selected.

The acts may be musical or variety, but must be performed in a limited area because the CEP bands will be using the actual behind-the-curtains stage.

The show will be performed Jan. 15. Tickets will be $2 per person and $7 per family with all proceeds going back into the band program.

Appalled by PE teachers

To the editor:

I was appalled by the comments made by two unnamed physical education teachers regarding the consolidation of Centennial Educational Park (CEP) gym classes, thus eliminating one physical education teaching position ("Schools eliminate one more position" Dec. 24).

Their comments stated that cuts should be made in a program with less enrollment, "such as the talented and gifted seminar, which probably will be retained." The school board would be wise in eliminating those two teachers.

In my opinion, any educator who claims that physical education is more essential to society than the development of gifted minds is definitely in the wrong profession.

A single gifted child has more potential to contribute worthwhile achievements to humanity than a score of Olympic-type athletes. And that the proper care of a gifted child's initiatives should hardly be sacrificed by the fun-and-games philosophies of modern education.

That seminar should be, and must be, retained. Any society, particularly our society, is in constant need of such a vital and rare resource. We must never waste it.

Gifted children should no longer be abused by those who do not wish to understand them. For too long the gifted have been neglected, humiliated and ignored by society. And I have often wondered just how many gifted minds have been destroyed by our "educational" system, as well as by prevailing social attitudes.

LEARN HOW TO SAVE A LIFE!

As a community service, Botsford General Hospital will be offering a free training program for area citizens in Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR). The ultimate purpose is to enable citizens to perform (CPR) for heart attack victims until emergency medical personnel arrive. Certified instructors will teach the course.

The one-session, 3-hour "Heart Saver" course will be offered the first Thursday of each month at 7:00 P.M. in class rooms 202 & 203 on the second floor of the Professional Building which is located in front of the hospital.

To pre-register (required), please call the Department of Health Promotion and Development at 476-1927 or 476-7600, ext. 8091 or 8092 on Monday through Friday from 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Class size is limited, so please register early. Botsford General Hospital is located at 28050 Grand River Ave., Farmington Hills 48024 (North of 8 Mile Rd., behind the Botsford Inn).

Why you should have a Tax-Deferred IRA.

There's never been a better time than right now to start saving for the future. Thanks to a new tax law effective January 1, 1982, it is possible for anyone with a wage or salary income to open a tax-deferred Retirement Savings Account... even those who are already covered by qualified pension plans. The new rules allow a working couple, filing jointly, to tax-defer up to $4,000 of their 1982 income. These investments and any earnings on them are tax-free until retirement. Then, because income probably will be reduced from what it is right now, it's likely taxes will be assessed at a lower rate.

Here's a chance to supplement your company's pension plan as well as your Social Security benefits, and receive both a tax deduction and a tax deferment at the same time.

Why it should be at NBD.

Only National Bank of Detroit has a Retirement Savings Department staffed by experts in the field. A department that's knowledgeable about the regulations and conditions relating to various retirement savings programs. They are constantly updating information concerning changes in the laws and tax advantages.

This insures that NBD customers have the most current information necessary to make the right choices with regard to their specific retirement needs. Why is NBD the only bank in town with a Retirement Savings Department? Because NBD thinks your retirement security is that important. NBD has a variety of retirement savings accounts—all protected by the FDIC—as well as the expertise to help you choose the best plan.

At NBD, an IRA can get you more than retirement savings and a tax-deferment.

NBD is the preferred bank for tax-deferred retirement savings. And no wonder. When you open an IRA at NBD you get the benefits of the Unibank System that can make your banking more efficient and economical. With a specified minimum deposit, you'll be eligible for no-service-charge checking, no annual fee on charge cards, and no-service-charge Interest Checking. Plus, you have access to more branches throughout metropolitan Detroit and more convenient 24-Hour Bankers than with any other bank in town.

If you're thinking about opening a tax-deferred Retirement Savings Account, it's time you did something about it. Come see our experts at your nearest NBD branch today and find out which NBD Retirement Savings Account will fit into your future.

Introducing the newest IRA plan: NBD's 1½ Year Flex-Rate.

Current Rate:

11.690%
ANNUAL INTEREST RATE

NBD now offers the all-new 18-month Flex-Rate Retirement Savings Plan that lets your interest rate change weekly with the auction rate on 13-week U.S. Treasury Bills — to keep pace with the short-term money market. Rates effective Dec. 29 through Jan. 4, 1982. Minimum deposit $10,000.

2½ Year Special Savings Plan: An NBD Fixed-Rate IRA.

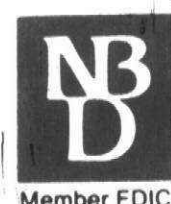

Current Rate:

12.00%
ANNUAL INTEREST RATE

Subject to change at renewal

Qualifies for no-service-charge Unibank Checking Account with $1,000 balance. Qualifies for no-service-charge Unibank Interest/Checking with $5,000 or more. Rates effective Dec. 22, 1981 through Jan. 4, 1982. Automatically renewed at maturity, at the then applicable rate.

Federal regulations require substantial interest penalties for withdrawals made prior to maturity. IRS regulations provide for substantial penalties for withdrawals before age 59½.

Hard work pays off for All-Area swimmers

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

It should come as no surprise that of the nine girls selected in individual events to the All-Observer girls' swim team are from Livonia Stevenson.

Stevenson was easily the area's top prep swim team. The Spartans finished sixth in the Class A state meet and among their dual meet wins was a victory over Bloomfield Hills Andover, state champion for the past two seasons.

But there is another team in the area that is even better.

This team consists of Gayle Gorgas, Mary Schoenle, Sue Hollman, Kim Dorsey, Mary Rozman, Beth Nolan and Leslie Martin. And those seven girls are all first-team All-Observer selections.

What is this powerhouse team? The Dearborn Dolphins, an AAU squad coached by Jack and Shannon Dunworth. The Dolphins are the defending AAU state champs in both long-course (a 50-meter pool) and short-course (25-meter).

The message is clear: Swimming is a sport that requires year-round dedication. In other high-school sports, like football, an athlete concentrates on the sport just three or four months a year. In swimming, an athlete has to work out and compete throughout the year to refine skills.

A panel of local coaches voted and chose this year's Observer team: nine swimmers in the individual events, six swimmers for at-large berths and two relay teams. Only three of the 16 honored are seniors, so many of those names listed here will probably be repeated in the future — perhaps on the 1982 All-Observer team.

Here are the athletes selected and a brief look at their seasons.

KIM DORSEY, Garden City West, 500-yard freestyle — Dorsey was picked for her performance in the 500-yard freestyle, but, like several other members of the All-Area team, she could have been chosen for another event.

Dorsey is the only state champion on the team, and she won titles in two events. Dorsey captured the 200 and 500 freestyle events at the Class B state meet, recording the fastest time in the area in both (1:56.39 and 5:09.5). She also placed first in both events at the Grand Rapids Press Invitational meet.

And she's only a sophomore. Continued improvement could make her one of the outstanding swimmers to originate from this area.

MARY SCHOENLE, Livonia Stevenson, 200-yard individual medley — Schoenle is another youthful prodigy. She had an excellent state meet, topping the previous state record in the 100 breaststroke (1:07.87) to finish second and placing seventh in the 200 individual medley (2:12.0).

Stevenson coach Lois McDonald will be happy to welcome Schoenle back next fall — and the one after that, and yet another after that. Schoenle is only a freshman.

She holds the school records in the 100 breast, 200 IM and 500 free and is being considered for All-America accolades.

MARY ROZMAN, Livonia Stevenson, 100-yard butterfly — A junior, Rozman holds school marks in the 50 and 100 freestyles and the 100 butterfly. The fly was her best event — she splashed to a second-place finish at the state meet (58.34), and that earned her a spot on the All-Area.

"She's willing to take instruction and mentally makes corrections very quickly," McDonald said of Rozman, who also is under consideration for All-America honors in the 100 fly.

TERRI EUDY, Plymouth Salem, 100-yard freestyle — Eudy is a senior, and that makes her one of the elder statesmen of the All-Observer team.

A National Honor Society member, she holds three team records and is a three-year state qualifier. Eudy was selected for the 100 free, in which her best clocking was 55.36.

She was one of the Rocks' tri-captains this year and has been the squad's Most Valuable Swimmer for the past two years.

GAYLE GORGAS, Livonia Churchill, 100-yard breaststroke — Gorgas has done just about everything for Churchill: a double-winner at the Western Six League meet (200 IM and 100 breast), school record-holder in the 200 IM, 100 breast and 500 free and a sixth-place finisher in the state meet in the 100 breast (1:09.31).

It was the breaststroke that earned her a spot on the Observer team. More records are bound to come, since she is only a sophomore. She is also an honor student, carrying a 3.95 grade point average.

LESLIE MARTIN, Livonia Bentley, 50-yard freestyle — Martin hasn't established any Bulldog records in her two best events, the 50 and 100 freestyles. Not yet, anyway. But she still has plenty of time, since she is only a freshman.

She was picked for her performance in the 50 free (25.65). Martin also competed at state meet as a part of Bentley's 400 free relay team. According to coach Keith Wright, Martin swims freestyle "at all distances."

BETH NOLAN, Livonia Stevenson, 100-yard backstroke — Nolan was part of Stevenson's contingent at the state meet, scoring an eighth-place finish in the 100 backstroke (1:03.2).

A junior, Nolan is a "team-orientated swimmer" who "shows leadership and ability," McDonald said. She also swam on both Spartan relays at state and placed among the top 10 in the Observer-area swim times in the 50 free (fifth), 100 fly (10th), 100 free (seventh) and 500 free (ninth).

CINDY MCSURELY, Plymouth Salem, diving — Elected as the Most Improved performer on Salem's swim team, McSurely, a junior, set a team record for six dives (230.9) and qualified for the state diving regionals for the second straight year.

McSurely also finished fourth in the Suburban Eight League meet, helping to boost the Rocks to a second-place team finish.

SUE HOLLMAN, Livonia Stevenson, 200-yard freestyle — Hollman led Stevenson in things other than swimming, McDonald said. She was the Spartans' "leadership and spirit person" and was a team captain.

But her swimming wasn't anything to sneer at. Hollman swam to a 12th in the 200 free at state (1:57.4) and holds the school record for the event. She also is among the top 10 swimmers in the Observer area in the 50 free (third), 100 fly (third), 100 free (second) and 500 free (third).

Avon will be worth paying to see

It was so interesting for me that I always tried to sneak in.

All I did was walk around the first-level main hall to the back of Cobo Hall — the side where you can see the circular ramp to the rooftop parking area — and wait for an appropriate opportunity.

The big, garage-like entrance was left virtually unsecured. The only persons who ever seemed to use it were the players themselves, so it was a natural free ride.

I walked in and headed directly toward the big blue curtain that separated the main court from the secondary court. I then ducked under the bleachers to blend in with the crowd.

After I successfully avoided guards and completed my undercover mission, I sat down and enjoyed some of the best live tennis I have ever seen.

Of course, I don't recommend that type of covert activity. I was a student at Wayne State University at the time, and typical college expenses like tuition and books left me permanently void of extra change.

Every day during the tournament I walked from the WSU campus down the Woodward corridor and into Cobo Hall to watch the women tennis pros. It was worth every gamble.

PLAYERS LIKE BILLIE Jean King, Rosie Casals — the original Detroit Love — Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong were tremendously inspiring tennis experts.

Others, like long-haired Valerie Ziegenfuss and blond-haired and petite Kristen Kemmer, were not as talented, but drew curious male galleries nonetheless, including me.

Marty Budner

That was when the women's tennis circuit was in its infant stages. Now that the tour has evolved into adolescence, it is suffering growing pains like typical teenagers.

In its youthful days, the tour's top attractions — King, Court and Goolagong — were happy to play in a metropolitan area like Detroit. It was good way of spawning interest in women's tennis.

But as Virginia Slims used to say when it sponsored the tour — "You've come a long way, baby."

Today, there are so many tournaments, the better players can choose the ones they want to attend. And at least for the current net stars, Detroit has not always been one of their favorite cities during winter.

Why, for instance, would Martina Navratilova want to slush through Detroit's streets when she can live more comfortably that week in Dallas?

THE DETROIT tournament, which has always been a popular draw, has suffered in recent years from the lack of big name stars.

Consequently, the Junior League of Birmingham — which has hosted the event since its inception at Oakland University near Rochester in 1971 — has faced credibility problems.

Last year, for example, after attending a press conference to promote it, Tracy Austin was a no-show in Detroit. Although it was a back injury that forced her to withdraw, her pretourney publicity and commitment to Detroit served to breed ill feelings from the public.

Chris Evert Lloyd, Navratilova and Andrea Jaeger were other notable absences last year. The lack of star players left a nasty taste in the mouths of Detroit's starving professional tennis fans.

Tournament officials are aware of the problem and, to their credit, are trying to do something about it.

"We're aware of the credibility problem in this town," said Sue Kessler, this year's tournament director.

"We've had bad luck with injuries in the past. Tracy (Austin) was committed to play last year, but she was hurt. If she would have turned around and played in another tournament a couple weeks later we would have been upset."

"Everyone realized she was seriously injured when she was out of action for some 4½ months. It bothered us before the tournament last year, but we realized it wasn't anything against our city or the Junior League.

"AVON (TENNIS circuit) and the WTA (Women's Tennis Association) both know Detroit deserves a lot this year. They realize what has happened the last couple years in Detroit, and they want to correct the feelings that have developed."

"I'm pleased with this year's draw. I'm thrilled to death to have Tracy this year, but it doesn't bother me that Chris (Evert Lloyd) isn't coming."

"People always want to know why Chris isn't coming, and it's because she hasn't played for two years on the tour. She chooses to be with her husband during those months."

"I think we'll have a super tournament, and most tennis fans are just thrilled that (the pros) are coming back to Detroit," said Kessler.

Austin, who is ranked No. 2 in the world, and Jaeger, ranked No. 5, are the top tourney draws. Hana Mandlikova and Leslie Allen — the finalists in last year's tourney — are also expected to attend.

"We tried our darndest over the past few months to have a strong field this year," said Kessler. "I wanted to have some good, solid names behind our top seed . . . and I got them."

"We have a strong, complete field," she said.

Providing they don't alter their plans, Austin, Jaeger, Mandlikova and Allen should put on a great show. It's one that you should pay to see.

Every day in every way
we hope your year will be the best ever!

Thanks to our loyal friends.

Racquetball
Mike Yellen

Use percentages in serve returns

Mike Yellen, a Southfield native, is ranked second in the world in men's professional racquetball. He has been a sponsored member of the Ektelon team for five years. His racquetball column will appear periodically in the Observer & Eccentric sports section.

Distinctions between offensive and defensive positions — so familiar in other sports — tend to blur in racquetball. The game moves so fast a player must switch from one to the other every moment.

Likewise, a shot considered offensive could actually be defensive if the purpose is not to score a point but to force a weak return in order to set up a point on the next shot.

That is the strategy most frequently used in service. Still, the server is in as offensive (and the receiver in as defensive) a position as they are likely to be at any other time in the game.

The server has two advantages: he can control the center of the court from his position in the server's box, and he can place the ball in play wherever he wants to, within the realm of his ability.

THE RECEIVER will be — in most cases — in the center of deep backcourt and the server will likely attack the weakest aspect of his game, his backhand.

For these reasons, the receiver's principal aim is to make a return which will not "set up" the server but rather will move him out of center court and get both players on equal ground.

The safest and surest way for the receiver to get back in the game is to hit a ceiling return. A proper ceiling shot will hit the ceiling just short of the front wall seam, come off the front wall to the floor and bounce in such a high arc that the server will be forced to the back wall to recover it on its descent.

This shot escalates in effectiveness if hit into one of the corners. A well-hit ceiling ball to a corner will leave the server with little else to do but try to pull out a ceiling shot of his own with little room to swing.

OF COURSE, you should not use the ceiling shot exclusively. A good game strategy is not to be predictable. But the ceiling return is a good percentage shot any time the ball reaches you above waist high.

Other options include crosscourt and down-the-wall passes and kill shots. Save most of these for low, hard serves. A poorly placed drive, in particular, offers a good kill opportunity. It will come at you low and fast as it should, but will fall farther in the middle of the court than the server intended.

It's strictly home run stuff. It's a plum that you can pick out of the air and send splat against the front wall to die.

Don't pass up a chance like that.

Generally, your frequency of returns should run ceiling, pass and kill, in that order, with a couple of around-the-wall shots thrown in for good measure.

MOST SERVERS, like my Ektelon teammate Dave Peck, will use their power serves on their first serve. If that is short or long (usually it is short) they'll go with a "safer" second serve, like a Z-serve or high arcing serve that lands in the back corner.

Of course, nothing is totally predictable. Much depends on the abilities of the players, what stage the game is in and whether the server is trying to be unpredictable.

Another thing to remember in returning a serve is to get off to a fast start. Don't wait for the ball to enter the backcourt before moving.

Get accustomed to the server's body movements on different serves and try to anticipate where the serve will go by the time he has hit the ball! Move as soon as it is hit.

AS IT IS served, note its speed and direction and where it will hit the front wall. Adjust your movements accordingly and have your racquet up in the forehand or backhand position already.

I won't tell you that this is easy to do. It's a reflex rather than a thinking response, based on experience.

But it is a necessary skill to develop. Not much time elapses from when the ball leaves the server's racquet until it reaches you, and you'll need every bit of it to get the best return possible.

At least you won't be caught flatfooted. You'll have overcome inertia, and soon you'll find that you get pretty good at predicting where the ball is headed. And you'll become more aware of your opponent's strengths, weaknesses and characteristic body movements.

This will make a big difference in your overall game. When you're the receiver, you need every advantage you can muster.

Which of these people will retire a Millionaire?

...and maybe you can too!

Retire with over $1,000,000

Just by opening a Tax-Deferred Retirement Account at a Michigan National Corporation Bank and adding to it every year, you can assure yourself of a sizeable retirement nest egg. And depending on your age, you could retire with over a million dollars!

Beginning January 1, every wage earner under age 70½ qualifies to open a Tax-Deferred Retirement Account (IRA) whether or not you are already covered by an employee pension plan.

If you begin contributing at		Your balance at age*

Tax-Sheltered income NOW

You may be years away from retirement but you can still benefit from a Michigan Money Tax-Deferred Retirement Account right away. Because you can defer taxes on up to $2,000 annually ($2,250 for you and your non-working spouse). A two wage-earner household can defer taxes on up to $4,000. Just think, for a household in the 30% tax bracket, that's $1,200 in taxes you don't have to pay right away.

Safety and high yields for your investment

At Michigan National your investment is safe. With over $6 Billion in assets, Michigan National Corporation ranks 36th largest among the nation's bank holding organizations. Your investment is also insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Hall answers Wolves' basketball cry

Reaching in the refrigerator for the Bluebonnet isn't quite the same as going for the Roses.

And watching University of Michigan basketball today isn't quite the same as it was when Cazzie, Campy and Rickey played.

Michigan, which lived up to its motto, "Champions of the West," during the '70s, is quickly reversing the trend and becoming "Ann Arbor's Team."

A football team picked to win it all must settle for a battle tonight in the Houston Astrodome against the best team money can buy — UCLA (Wichita State might argue with that).

Although Michigan's grid fortunes are not desperate, the basketball situation is unfortunate.

I went to Ann Arbor two weeks ago to view the Michigan-Detroit Titans duel. I got to Crisler Arena about 1½ hours before game-time and walked right in the place. Nobody asked for my press credential. It wasn't the same place I remember only two years ago when Jim Ellinghausen and the mighty Buckeyes visited.

Later I found out the reason. Guys out in the parking lot were giving their tickets away. And despite that, this intrastate rivalry could muster only 5,000 diehards.

TURNING MY attention to the floor, I saw Livonia Stevenson grad Dave Hall shooting hoops. Truly, he's just in the neighborhood tuning up for an intramural basketball contest.

Hall, if you have forgotten already, went to Michigan on a football scholarship. The 6-foot-4 sophomore quarterback was red-shirted this year and has yet to play a minute in the "hole Yost dug." He should, however, get his chance next year as Steve Smith's backup.

Ironically, Hall already has seen more playing time in a basketball uniform. He's also made the traveling squad.

"It was the day after the Ohio State (football) game," said Hall. "Coach (Bill) Frieder said they were short on depth and asked me to come out and help."

Greg Washington, another footballer, also plays for Frieder, but is unable to perform because of a back injury.

Hall, who electrified area fans with his talents in high school, never thought he would be playing basketball again. He kept in touch with the sport last winter as a member of a pretty good intramural team which included Plymouth Salem grad Rich Hewlett, John Wangler and Mike Jolley — all top-notch prep cagers in their day.

But the former Stevenson ace admitted that he had rarely fired the roundball since then. Frieder's call came as a complete surprise.

HALL'S EFFORTS at Michigan might go unnoticed, but he could go down as one of the school's few modern-day three-sport athletes. As a freshman he lettered in track and will continue to compete in the decathlon.

Hall saw less than a minute of playing time in the U-D game, but is not deterred in obtaining a monogram in basketball.

"I want to play," he said. "He (Frieder) gave me the opportunity, and now I want to see what I can do."

During that Saturday in Ann Arbor, Hall put in a full day. He completed a economics exam in the morning, played basketball in the afternoon and then rushed off for a full-contact football workout that night.

When Hall returns from the Bluebonnet Bowl tomorrow, it's straight back to the hardwood.

"It gets better as I go along. I'll be ready in January."

THE WAY the Wolverines are playing right now, Hall will be needed. His outside shooting could be a welcome relief for bricks thrown up of late by some of his teammates.

Michigan, sporting an uncharacteristic 1-7 record despite a respectable showing this week in the Winston-Tire Classic in Los Angeles, just might be one of the worst Big 10 cage teams of all-time.

Injuries to 6-10 Tim McCormick and 7-2 Jon Antonides plus the resignation of M.C. Burton leave the Wolves without a legitimate front line.

Frieder's coaching can't compensate for everything.

The Michigan coach journeyed this week to sunny California minus his two top assistants, Don Sicko and Mike Boyd, both whom reportedly stayed at home and were instructed to recruit. The two were last seen at Ceciliaville, scouring PSL talent.

A pessimistic Wally Wolverine recently was quoted saying: "We might not win another game this season."

It's conceivable but unlikely because Notre Dame comes into the Pontiac Silverdome March 7 for a game masterminded by athletic director-promoter Don Canham.

And things just aren't quite the same in South Bend, either. Ask Digger Phelps.

All-Observer girls blend youth with talent

JENNY FEDOR, Livonia Bentley, at-large — Fedor was the first swimmer chosen by the coaches to an at-large berth on the All-Observer team, and her overall talent is an example of why these athletes were selected.

Fedor, a sophomore, swam "all strokes and distances, wherever the team needed her," Wright said. Statistics bear out that claim.

In the Observerland area, Fedor was second fastest in the 200 IM (2:16.27), second in the 100 fly (1:01.7) and third in the 100 back (1:04.46). She holds two school records and was a state finalist in 1980.

CHRIS WESTHAUS, Livonia Bentley, at-large — Westhaus, another sophomore on this year's All-Observer team, qualified for the state meet in the 100 fly but had lots of versatility, proven by her team record in the 500 free.

Westhaus had the fourth-fastest clocking in the area in the 200 free (2:04.71), seventh in the 200 IM (2:21.7), sixth in the 100 fly (1:03.2), sixth in the 500 free (5:33.8) and eighth in the 100 breast (1:15.9). She did just about everything for the Bulldogs.

KAREN BIERMANN, Livonia Stevenson, at-large — McDonald used words like "tough, very dedicated; consistent; leadership ability; team person" to describe Biermann. A junior, she will also serve as a co-captain (with Hollman) next season.

Biermann was listed among the top 10 swimmers in the area in four events: sixth in the 200 free (2:05.4), eighth in the 200 IM (2:23.5), ninth in the 100 free (58.6) and seventh in the 500 free (5:35.5).

ROBIN LAUTZ, Livonia Bentley, at-large — This sophomore's best event was the 100 fly (1:02.4), in which she qualified for state meet and had the fourth-best time in the Observer listing.

But Lautz was also 10th in the 200 free (2:08.1) and eighth in the 100 free (58.1). She was a member of the school-record 400 free relay team.

CHRIS SCHWEDT, Livonia Stevenson, at-large — A sophomore with "lots of ability" who "swims all events," according to McDonald, Schwedt placed among the top 10 Observer swimmers in four events.

Her best were the freestyle events. Schwedt placed fifth in the area in the 500 free (5:31.4) and was sixth in the 50 free (26.0). She was ninth fastest in both the 200 IM (2:24.6) and 100 back (1:08.7).

DIANE LEMON, Livonia Bentley, at-large — Lemon was a "fine example of determination" for Bentley swimmers, Wright said, and was a senior co-captain as a diver. She started diving in 1980 and established a new school record, was a league finalist and a state regional meet qualifier, even though injuries restricted her practices.

LIVONIA STEVENSON, 400-yard free relay — The first three swimmers — Hollman, Rozman and Nolan — are listed in the first-team selections. Combined with Karen Walter, the foursome set a new Stevenson record (3:41.34) and qualified for state.

Walter was a captain for the 1981 team as a senior and was elected as Most Valuable Team Person. She was the area's fifth-fastest swimmer in the 100 fly (1:02.9) and was ninth in the 50 free (26.6).

LIVONIA STEVENSON, 200-yard medley relay — Again, the names are all familiar: Nolan in back, Schoenle in breast, Rozman in fly and Walter in free.

The combination churned to a fourth at the state meet (1:52.59), setting a new school record and earning All-American consideration.

Bob Warren puts up a shot for Clarenceville despite Ron Pummill's (35) efforts to stop him. Warren scored 20 points for the Trojans, including 10 in the final quarter, to lead Clarenceville past West. He was named the tournament's MVP.

Clarenceville stages comeback to tip West

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

With 2:35 showing on the clock, Dave Cramton banked in a layup to give Garden City West a 52-45 lead over Livonia Clarenceville in Tuesday's Clarenceville Christmas Classic final.

Sewed up, right? West has an insurmountable lead — at least against a team like Clarenceville, which at that point had been outshouted for every loose ball and outbounded by the smaller Tigers.

But something happened. West quit early, and Clarenceville came to life in the nick of time, scoring the last nine points to claim a thrilling come-from-behind victory, 54-52.

The turnaround was startling, but no one could fault the Trojans' effort when the game was on the line. The only questions about the comeback win would be how big a part West played in handing the game to Clarenceville.

"WE PROBABLY outplayed them the whole game until the final minutes," said a dejected Bob Dropp, West's coach. "We missed a lot of free throws, and then we panicked a little bit at the end."

Poor shooting from the line, notably by Jim Fisher (0-for-5, including three one-and-ones), certainly cost West, but no more than some bad ball-handling and sloppy play down the stretch.

Clarenceville's stretch drive began with a short bank shot by Tim Fox with 2:20 to play, narrowing the deficit to 52-47. Thirty seconds later, Bob Warren and Rob Soop combined on a steal, and Warren laid it in.

Now Clarenceville trailed by three, 52-49. Moments later, Fox rebounded Warren's missed free throw and scored to make it 52-51 with 1:29 left.

West tried to hurry the ball up the court, but Fox again came up with a big play, knocking the ball loose. Clarenceville's Rob Williams scooped it up, shoved it ahead to Gary Haapala, and he put one in off the glass to give the Trojans the lead for the first time since early in the third quarter.

WEST TRIED to set up a good final shot in the last minute, but some stalwart Trojan defense prevented the Tigers from even getting a shot off.

Warren led Clarenceville with 20 points. Fox finished with 16. Patterson was high scorer with 22 for West, and Ron Pummill contributed 13.

Barrier-free travel showing on the horizon

By Iris Sanderson Jones
staff writer

Many of you have written to me about traveling with a handicap. It was all theoretical information until my husband injured his foot in Mexico and had to travel for a week on crutches and in wheelchairs. I got the smallest taste of what disabled people must cope with when they travel.

The most important thing we learned was to allow a lot of extra time for every phase of the journey. There are many long, long corridors in hotels and endless distances to travel, inch by inch, in airports.

He could not carry anything, so I had to handle all the camera bags and carry-on bags alone.

Wheelchairs were available in hotels and airports, but we learned not to take them for granted. We ordered wheelchairs ahead, from the departure gate, when we left a destination, and again from the stewardess aboard the plane.

Sometimes the wheelchair was waiting when we arrived, sometimes we had to wait while it was ordered again.

In Guadalajara, Mexico, Mexicana Airlines loaned us a wheelchair to use during our five-hour layover, but in most airports a skycap came firmly attached to the chair. He would wheel us to our departure gate, or anywhere else in the airport, but he would not leave the chair with us, so we just sat and waited for departure time during long layovers.

MOST HOTELS had at least one folding wheelchair, described as portable, but heavy enough if you must lift it up stairs or into the trunk of a car. I dropped it on my foot once, and we nearly had two people on crutches.

This was a temporary situation, with a companion who could hobble on crutches when necessary. Many permanently disabled people cannot take a single step alone. Only they know how many barricades there are, and how far "a few blocks" can really be.

They need access, not only to wheelchair-wide doorways, and ramps, but also to advance information about the conditions they will meet when they travel.

A great deal of information is available for the handicapped, but it takes a sleuth to find it. Booklets of all kinds are available from federal and state government offices, tourist bureaus, airlines, hotels et cetera.

For example, part of our week-on-wheels was in San Antonio, Tex., where tourists love to wander into shops and cafes on either side of the San Antonio River. The delightful River Walk, called the Paseo del Rio, is a charming nightmare of steps and bridges for the wheelchair patient.

How can you know in advance how to travel to cities like San Antonio? Check out "Rollin' On: A Wheelchair Guide to U.S. Cities" by Maxine H. Atwater, Dodd, Mead, 1978.

You will learn that the Hilton Palacio del Rio Hotel at 200 Alamo St. has an elevator opening directly onto the River Walk, within easy wheelchair access of cafes and shops on the river.

You will learn that the San Antonio Transit system has a low cost handlift wheelchair program for travelers who obtain a certificate of eligibility in advance. A guide for the handicapped, "Access San Antonio," is published by the Bexar County Easter Seal Society, 72023 Babcock Road, San Antonio, Tex. 78229.

THE GUIDE GIVES access information about most of the buildings in the city. Many cities have such information, available through state and city tourist bureaus.

Another excellent source of information is "ACCESS TRAVEL: AIRPORTS" published by the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Administration.

'Bus drivers are the worst, and cab drivers a close second. Even when I explain it, it falls on DEAF ears. They just can't understand that some of us can't hear them . . . Airports and bus stations are terrible. None of the airlines have stewardesses than can sign' so deaf passengers can follow the necessary exit information in an emergency. Movies in flight are not captioned.'

—Diane Witte

Most hotels had at least one folding wheelchair, described as portable, but heavy enough if you must lift it up stairs or into the trunk of a car. tion Administration, Washington, D.C., 20591. This lists essential information for airports around the world: parking, ramps, elevators, doorways, accommodations, toilets, transportation, and other services.

Airlines also have booklets available. For example, United Airlines will send you "Travel for the Handicapped," a booklet listing their rules about wheelchairs, canes, walkers and guide dogs.

GUIDE DOGS, now often used by the deaf as well as the blind, are permitted in the passenger compartments of airplanes. Canes, which you were once forced to stow out of the way, may now be kept at your seat.

Another useful publication is "Access Amtrak," from the Amtrak Distribution Center, P.O. Box 311, Addison, Ill. 60101.

The one central organization for the travel industry is SATH: Society for the Advancement of Travel for the Handicapped, 26 Court St., Brooklyn, N.Y., 11242. A spokeswoman strongly recommends that the disabled make plans, well in advance, through a travel agency.

Agents who have attended SATH seminars display a SATH logo in their windows, but many other agents are well-informed on the subject, having helped the handicapped traveler before SATH was formed in 1976.

If the agent doesn't know the ropes, ask him to contact SATH; the organization is non-funded and will probably ask your agent to become a member, but that is not compulsory.

IF YOU WANT to travel with a group geared to the disabled, check out the many tour operators which specialize in such travel. A few of them are: Flying Wheels Travel, 143 Bridge St., Owatonna, Minn. 55060; Helping Hand Tours, 175 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y., 10010; All State Mobility, 26 Court St., Brooklyn, N.Y., 11242; Monte Tours, 347 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016; Evergreen Travel, 19429 44th St. W., Lynwood, Washington, D.C., 98036.

WHEELCHAIR travelers, and blind travelers, are the most visible of the disabled-on-the-move, but the most overlooked may be the deaf. Their disability is not visible and few services are offered to them.

Reader Diane Witte, who has been deaf for nine years, travels alone, without fear, but is well aware that she is being ignored, not only by organizations that offer services to other disabled people, but also by ordinary travelers who could help her if they took time to write things down.

"Bus drivers are the worst, and cab drivers a close second. Even when I explain it, it falls on DEAF ears. They just can't understand that some of us can't hear them."

"Airports and bus stations are terrible. None of the airlines have stewardesses than can sign' so deaf passengers can follow the necessary exit information in an emergency. Movies in flight are not captioned."

THE SOUND barrier has been broken for the deaf by Greyhound Bus Lines, which now offers a teletypewriter service to the 20 million Americans with speech and hearing impairments.

Anyone with access to one of the 100,000 units used by the communicatively handicapped can dial toll-free 1-800-345-3109 for Silent Information Services, which transmits the requested information through the teletypewriter system.

Both Greyhound and Continental Trailways allow a handicapped traveler and a companion to travel on a single ticket.

There are many such services out there. If you are disabled, you probably know more about them than I do. If you have a specific suggestion for a disabled traveler, send it to me, care of this newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Touring in 'Year of the Disabled'

The Oakland Handicap Association recently sponsored an 11-day Learning and Sharing Tour of England, Ireland and Scotland, so that members could master the logistics of travel and meet with handicapped people in other countries.

According to Roger McCarville, who runs Handicap Transportation in Pontiac, the trip celebrated the International Year of the Disabled, and demonstrated to members that travel is one of their options.

"We had 38 men and women on the tour, 24 of them handicapped — 18 of those in wheelchairs," he said. "We picked as many different handicaps as possible, including quadraplegics, paraplegics, amputees and people with multiple sclerosis."

McCarville confirms that the major problem for the handicapped traveler is access, especially to public washrooms.

"Wheelchair patients are the first on and the last off a plane, so they are aboard for a long time on overseas flights," he said.

MOST PLANES do not yet have accessible washrooms. There is no accessible restroom in the United Airline building at Kennedy Airport, according to McCarville, so handicapped people must use other airport buildings.

The Oakland Handicap Association raised the money for this trip through bake sales, dances, handicapped basketball games and other fund-raising efforts. It was their first trip, but not their last. They are planning a trip to Las Vegas in February.

"Handicappers learn to live and get around in other countries," McCarville said. "That experience may give them the confidence to go to school or get a job."

Today may be the last day of the "Year of the Disabled," but it is just the beginning for these travelers. "Next year will be Year Two," McCarville said.

For information, contact the Oakland Handicap Association at 857-8159.

New lines tell what's new

The Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce, has expanded its toll-free telephone information service.

Two new lines, each with a recorded message, will provide winter sports enthusiasts with up-to-date, statewide information on snow conditions and the weather.

The lines will be in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week, year-round. The number to call from within Michigan is 1-800-292-5404.

Travelers who need more detailed information or information not covered in the recorded message should call the Travel Bureau's regular WAT's number, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:50 p.m. Mondays-Fridays, 1-800-292-2520.

Travelers calling from out-of-state, should dial 1-800-248-5708 or 1-800-248-5700.

This Want Ad appeared in the St. Helens, (OR) Sentinel-Mist Chronicle. To the person or persons who stole my duck and goose decoys last weekend. "They were yours to use any time you asked. You thought it took courage to steal them. If you would like to know what real courage is, bring them back. Be assured you will be the first person I will loan them to." The ad was signed by Bill Nelson of Deer Island.

Ah, Wilderness!

O'Neill's tender comedy opens Hillberry's new year

'Ah, Wilderness!' Eugene O'Neill's nostalgically tender and sentimental comedy, opens the new year at the Hillberry Theatre at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 6.

O'Neill called the play "A Comedy of Recollection" of what he wished his youth had been. "Ah, Wilderness!" takes place in a "large-small town in Connecticut" at the turn of the century.

The story centers around an autobiographical Richard who is passing through awkward adolescence and is besieged by the pangs of young love and rebelliousness.

As the Miller family prepares for its annual Fourth of July celebration, near tragedy descends when Mr. McComber, father of Richard's sweetheart Muriel, refuses to allow any further association between the two young people because of the lurid love poetry Richard has sent Muriel.

MISUNDERSTANDINGS, mischievous adventures and reconciliation fill the play. O'Neill wrote, about the play, "To me, the America which was (and is) the real America found its unique expression in such middle class families as the Millers, among whom so many of my own generation passed from adolescence to manhood."

"Ah, Wilderness!" first opened in the Guild Theatre, New York, in 1933. George M. Cohan and later Will Rogers starred as Nat Miller. The play later reappeared as "Take Me Along," a musical by Bob Merrill, in 1959.

This is the only comedy by O'Neill.

America's first major dramatist and the first to bring American drama world recognition.

Four times a Pulitzer Prize winner, he also was awarded the 1936 Nobel Prize for Literature, the first American dramatist so honored. Among his most famous plays are: "The Emperor Jones," "The Hairy Ape," "Anna Christie," "Desire Under the Elms," "Mourning Becomes Electra," "The Iceman Cometh," "Moon for the Misbegotten" and "Long Day's Journey into Night." "Ah, Wilderness!" is the first O'Neill play to be performed by the Hillberry company.

Leading the cast at the Hillberry are Peter G. Thomson as Nat Miller, William Akey as Richard, Marian Mills as Essie Miller and Maria Tirabassi as Muriel.

Director of "Ah, Wilderness!" is Robert Emmett McGill, who directed the current production of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Scenery is designed by E. Dwight Wellborn, costumes by Johanna Forte and lighting by Randall Presswood.

TICKETS AND information may be obtained from the Wayne State University Theater Box Office, Cass and Hancock, Detroit 48202. The telephone number is 577-2972. Group orders, at reduced rates for 20 or more, may be placed by calling 577-3010.

"Ah, Wilderness!" will run in repertory through March 6.

Richard Miller (William Akey) and Muriel (Maria Tirabassi) savor a summer's eve in "Ah, Wilderness!" opening at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 6 at the Hillberry Theatre.

Those zany crazies in tutus and feath'ers are back. Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo return to Detroit's Music Hall Jan. 6-9.

The Trocks are back, fancy footwork 'n all

Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo, comic all-male ballet company, will return for its third engagement at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 6-9 at the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts in Detroit.

"The secret of the Trocks, as they are affectionately known in the dance world, is that they really dance quite well and are well-versed in the subjects they spoof," according to Music Hall general manager J. Roland Wilson.

"Their send-ups on the jealousies and vanities of famous ballerinas and their satires of such choreographers as George Balanchine, Martha Graham and Jerome Robbins are razor-sharp and right on.

"But the combination of hairy-chested, knot-ty-kneed and big-footed ballerinas and their lapses into double-takes and slapstick makes them one of the top comedy attractions anywhere."

Tickets at $8, $12 and $15 may be purchased at Music Hall or any CTC outlet. MasterCard or Visa phone orders are possible by calling 963-7680.

Holden as a screenwriter whom Norma obtrudes upon to write her comeback to pictures.

The courts had ruled in 1947 that movie studios could no longer own the theaters in which their films were shown, and, at the same time, big stars like Holden and Heston and Brando were breaking away from the studios and contracting with independent filmmakers. Many viewed these events as signaling the downfall of American cinema. Of course cinema survived, as Wilder suggests it will by depicting the depravity of its early years and by presenting a film which, in itself, hails a new age of film realism drawing from the best of the film noir and cinema verite styles. Look for cameo appearances by Buster Keaton, Cecil B. DeMille and others. Rating: $3.80.

Purtan again hosting Channel 56 auction

CKLW radio personality Dick Purtan of Bloomfield Township returns as official auction host for the WTVS/Channel 56 14th annual auction this spring.

Andi Wolfe of Birmingham is auction chairman. Dottie Doerer of Grosse Pointe is auction co-chairman.

Said Ms. Wolfe, "This year's auction theme is 'Lights, Camera, Auction!' so we're all hanging up our spurs (from the 1981 'Auction Rides Again') and donning a new look for auction 1982."

The auction will run for nine days, April 16-24, but work is already under way for the giant sell-a-thon.

Dick Purtan, who is serving his third year as official auction host, has been an Auction personality since the first Channel 56 Auction held in 1969. This is Andi Wolfe's second year as auction chairman. She has worked as a Channel 56 volunteer for nine years.

CHANNEL 56 is asking merchants in the Detroit-Windsor area to donate their end-of-year surplus inventory to the sell-a-thon.

"These donations could be made in time to qualify for valuable 1981 tax deductions and tax credits (to the extent permitted by legislation)," said Ms. Wolfe. "The auction just asks that all items be new and have a minimum value of $50."

During the auction, thousands of bidders shop by phone as merchandise is auctioned off by celebrities from the world of sports, civic affairs, press, TV and radio.
