Officials brace for flood of tax appeals

By Dennis O'Connor and Ariene Funke staff writers

Unhappy about your property taxes?

Local officials are expecting business to be brisk when deview boards begin hearings in March.

Last year the state mandated changes in the way property taxes are computed. As a result, many residents face stiff hikes on household property taxes.

Residents may appeal assessments of their property by appearing before the municipality's board of review.

"We expect a tremendous volume (of appeals) this year." said Maria Falkiewicz, treasurer for Canton Township. Property taxes in Canton are rising an average 16.5 percent. Canton residents will be required to make advance appointments for the board of review, and "people should start now." added Mrs. Falkiewicz. Plymouth Township Treasurer Joe West agrees that more appeals are likely this year. Plymouth Township residents face a 25-percent hike in taxes. The city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township aren't requiring residents to make appointments for their appeals "It's first come, first served," said West.

before the board of review.

PERSONS PLANNING appeals should note these times and procedures:

• Plymouth Township residents must obtain a petition from Township Hall for appearance before the board. Hours for the board of review are from 9 a.m. to noon and 2-5 p.m. Tuesday, March 2 and Wednesday, March 10; and 2-9 p.m. (closed 5-6 p.m.) Monday, March 8.

Plymouth Township commercial, industrial and apartment property-owners' hearings take place from 9 a.m. to noon and 2-5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, March 15-16.

• City of Plymouth requires no prior appointments or forms. The board meets from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 2; and 3-9 p.m. Wednesday, March 3.

• Canton residents must obtain a form from Township Hall. The form must be returned prior to scheduling an appointment with the board of review. The board will begin holding meetings on Tuesday, March 2.

Real estate broker Ken Dividock of Century 21 Hartford 429 Inc. in Canton shares some assessment information with an area resident. Local real estate representatives will provide information for residents who are appealing their assessments to local boards of review.

Offer aid to residents

Realtors fight appraisals

Real estate companies in the Plymouth-Canton area are banding together to help residents fight skyrocketing property-tax assessments.

The real estate salesmen will provide information for residents who appeal their assessments to local boards of review, which will begin hearings in early March.

"I have a feeling the regular homeowner doesn't know how to fight his property-tax assessment," said Ken Dividock, a broker for Century 21 Hartford 429 Inc., in Can-

"We will help (people), and then they will have the ammunition to go in front of these appeal boards," added

THE REALTORS will help people determine the current market value of the homes.

Houses are supposed to be assessed at half the market value, based on a 21/2-year sales survey. A factor is multiplied against the assessment to obtain a state equalized valuation (SEV). The SEV is multiplied by the tax rate, given in mills, to obtain the homeowner's property-tax amount. One mill equals $1,000 assessed property valuation. Last January, the state ordered that SEVs be figured individually - by class - and not lumped with business and industrial classifications. As a result, home property

Residents in Canton are seeing a property-tax increase of about 16.5 percent. Taxes jumped 25 percent in Plymouth Township.

HOMES SIMPLY aren't selling well because of high interest rates, unemployment and a poor economy.

Dividock believes assessments now are too high and should be based on the current market value of a house. He points out that homes aren't selling at the high prices that were prevalent in 1978 and 1979.

Some participating realty firms will provide photostatic copies of sales data, for a fee, to aid in the fight.

"I was just trying to think of some way to help the public," Dividock said. "We're willing to help the public, and, of course, it's good for us because people may remember us when they want to buy or sell their house."

Dividock thinks a large number of persons going to the boards of review will give a clear message to officials.

"I just think if you get these lines long enough to the appeal boards, they'll get the idea," said Dividock.

"Hey, we're (Canton Township) dying out here," he add-

THE PUBLIC may obtain sales data information from the following participating firms in Plymouth or Canton: Century 21 Hartford 429 Inc.; Century 21 Boardwalk Inc.; Century 21 Hartford West Inc.; Century 21 Gold House Inc.; Earl Keim Realty; Realty World-Decker; Realty World-Olson; Real Estate One; Better Homes and Gardens-Schweitzer, Chamberlain Realtors, Hitchcock Gallery of Homes; Real Estate Network-John Cole; and Real Estate Network-Mall Inc.

Board mulls cutting year-round school schedule

By Emory Daniels staff writer

A series of meetings will be held next week as a prelude to making a decision on reducing the number of elementary schools on the year-round Extended School Year (ESY)

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education now is considering whether to take one or more schools off the ESY schedule

After it makes that decision, the board will determine which specific buildings will be returned to the nine-month Traditional School Year (TSY)

Before that decision is made, administrators and board members will be meeting with parents living in ESY school

The first meeting was held Tuesday night of this week at Isbister Elementary in Plymouth Township.

Other meetings scheduled, all to begin at 7 p.m., are: Hulsing Elementary, Feb. 2; Miller Elementary, Feb. 3; and Gallimore Elementary, Feb. 4.

EARLIER THE thinking of the board was that Isbister and Gallimore would be the first ESY schools to be returned to a TSY schedule if needed because they had the smaller enrollments of the year-round schools.

If the board decides to eliminate ESY at more than two schools, however, Miller and Hulsing likely would be the candidates and so meetings have been scheduled with par-

To date meetings have not been slated for parents in the attendance areas of Ericksson and Field elementaries in southern Canton - ESY schools with the largest enroll-

The push to reduce the number of elementaries is twofold declining enrollment and financial.

When the school district first began to experience declining enrollment last year one of the steps taken was to switch Pioneer Middle from an ESY to a TSY schedule.

Although ESY allows a building to hold one-third more students than the nine-month schedule, it also is more expensive to operate a year-round building.

Monday night Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, told the board the administration was working up the cost savings which would be realized by an ESY reduc-

THE SAVINGS would be in fewer teachers and administrators as well as lowered maintenance, busing and utility

For the coming school year the school board presently is looking at a budget deficit which could reach $3 million and soon will begin coming up with a list of cuts which will be made to balance the '82-83 operating budget.

The school board will be meeting in workshop budget sessions Friday night, Feb. 12, and all day Saturday, Feb. 13, to prioritize cuts.

Because the meetings with parents will be completed by that weekend, most trustees feel they will be close to making a decision on ESY reductions by that time.

The board also will be discussing whether to seek additional millage in the June 14 annual election

Monday night Superintendent Dr. John M. Hoben told the board that the district now is levying 1.9 fewer operating mills and 2.3 fewer debt-retirement mills then it did six years ago.

Hoben cautioned the board Monday that it appears quite likely that during the next fiscal year Plymouth-Canton will reach the point where it will not receive any general state aid because of an increasing local tax base

A real challenge for the new fiscal year, added Hoben, is that the board must negotiate labor contracts with seven unions in the district.

Teachers organize group to lobby for greater clout

By Dennis O'Connor staff writer

Teachers at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) want their views heard - and they are doing something to achieve that goal. Approximately 35 teachers at Plymouth Canton High School have formed the "Plymouth Canton Teacher's Guild" - a group that wants a voice in its working environment. "One goal is to try to improve the relationship of all the factions (teachers, administrators and the school board)," says Dave Seemann, a spokesman of the group. "(Teachers want) to be included in issues and be involved in decisions before they go down the Seemann, who spent eight years in industry before changing professions, says teachers are "viewed at the bottom of the rung" and aren't properly consulted on changes or decisions at the CEP.

He stresses the group is not designed to supplement the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA), the teacher's union, nor is it intended to function as an adjunct to CEP adminis-

'We know teachers that are burned out, that are depressed. They are guilty, angry, helpless.

THE GUILD, which formed last week, will meet with both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton teachers for the first time in mid-February.

Seemann says forming the guild . came from informal talks in the teacher's lounge last fall. The chief topic of discussion at that time was "burnout," according to Seemann.

"We know teachers that are burned out, that are depressed. They are guilty, angry, helpless," Seemann says.

"The park is as big as a school district in itself. The anonymity of the teacher has contributed to a lot of bad ideas being perpetuated. There should be some climate of interest, some exciting feeling at the workplace."

There are 98 teaching positions at Canton and 89 at Salem. Each building has one principal and four area coordinators, who serve as immediate supervisors to teachers. Approximately 4,000 students attend classes at the KENT BUIKEMA, Canton's principal, says he was aware that teachers were meeting, but didn't know a group was formalized. He feels teachers are "overlooking some of the opportunities and avenues they could use" to give input into decisions.

Buikema says the faculty-senate, which has teacher representation has been "quite successful in resolving problems and concerns" of teachers at the park. He adds teachers may work through their respective area coordinators in voicing concerns.

Seemann, an English teacher at Canton, says the faculty-senate is "administratively designed." He feels that group only is an advisory committee not a voice of the teachers.

Seemann adds that teacher concerns are not properly recognized by area coordinators.

Register for child care

A gasp of fresh air

Nursery may get new life

Plymouth Nursery got a gasp of fresh air Monday.

In fact the second wind might be enough to keep the nursery school running for another two decades

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education took action Monday night which could result in the preschool facility continuing to operate at its Warren and Haggerty site in

The nursery, in operation now for some 20 years, will now appear before the Canton Township Planning Commission for the second step towards a final solution.

Last fall the Wayne County Department of Health threatened to close down the nursery because of a septic failure at the site.

The nursery occupies the former Hough

School owned by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and leased to Plymouth Nursery for a nominal fee (i.e. $1 a year).

In return for the nominal rent, the nursery has agreed to handle building and site maintenance.

The only solution to the septic failure, however, is to hook-up to a sanitary sewer line in the area which would cost more than what the nursery has in its treasury.

Last fall the nursery board appealed to school trustees for help but the board said it was unable to offer financial aid because of its stringent operating budget.

Because the Hough School site is 9.9 acres, the tap-in fee to tie into the sanitary sewer would be more than $7,000.

The nursery, however, only uses two acres for its school, parking lot and playground. Someone discovered that if the lot were split into two parcels (7:9 and 2 acres) the tap-in fee charged the nursery would only be $2,675.

Jan Ryan, secretary of the nursery board, told school trustees that the nursery had the $2,675 in its treasury and would spend it for a tap-in because the parents wanted to remain at the Hough site instead of seeking another location.

Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, said if the district decides at a later date to sell the Hough School site it would simply pay a $50 fee to Canton Township and request that the lot be combined back to 9.9 acres.

Aerobic class still attractive

It may be the dead of winter, but many Canton women hope to keep fit in a "Dynamic Aerobics" class, offered by Canton's Parks and Recreation Department.

"It's a very popular class," said Bob Dates, of the recreation department. "We have four classes (60 women). The only time we don't have classes is in the summer when the response isn't as good. I guess people get exercise outside at that time.

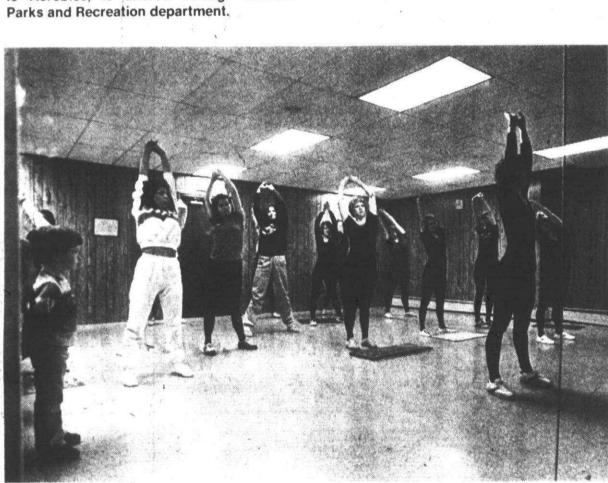

Dynamic Aerobics is more than just exercise. It's a fitness routine — and dancing —

In the past, most fitness and dance classes did not include music - and became a grind for many participants. Dynamic Aerobics. however, gives an "upbeat" tempo to exercising through music.

Bus routes shrink Seniors fight SEMTA cuts

staff writer

It became clear last week that senior citizens will put the heat on SEMTA to maintain bus services. But will they campaign for a yes vote for a tax increase to pay for them?

That question faces officials of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority as they puzzle out how to cut services and/or raise new revenue.

"I've been at SEMTA five years and have been part of expanding service. I don't enjoy cutting," Dan Dirks, coordinator of community relations, said at a public hearing last week in Dearborn.

The audience was dominated by senior citizens with a scattering of the handicapped and a couple of college students.

"We have raised fares approximately once a year. The most the market will bear is once a year and the amount of inflation," Dirks said when asked why fares couldn't be hiked instead of services cut or taxes raised.

SEMTA'S PLANS are indefinite, but the seven-county transit agency has known for a long time it would need a new infusion of revenue beginning this year.

Reason No. 1, according to Acting General Manager Gary Krause's charts, is that federal Urban Mass Transit Administration grants will be phased out. UMTA gave SEMTA $41 million in fiscal last year, intends to give $31 million this year, and is expected to grant $19 million in '83, $6 million in '84 and nothing after that.

Reason No. 2, said Krause, is that $16 million of tri-county license fee revenue has been tied up in an escrow account because of a lawsuit filed by the Oakland County Road Commission. OCRC has fought SEM-TA funding and transit planning politically for years.

SO THE TRANSIT authority has taken two steps to cut back.

Early in January, it cut $2.3 million in . downtown office operations, said Krause. These included "freezing staff positions, reducing funds for advertising, consultants, travel, meetings, supplies, equipment; also included was postponement of small bus expansion scheduled for January through June tions:

'I've been at SEMTA five years and have been part of expanding service. I don't enjoy cutting."

> - Dan Dirks, SEMTA public relations and the cancellation of an extra train that served Birmingham and Royal Oak in the early afternoons." Dirks said central office staffers are working an additional half-hour a day without compensation.

On Feb. 16 the SEMTA board will consider $3.7 million cuts. Nine routes will be dropped, virtually every other route will receive less service, and some routes will lose weekend service. The cuts would take effect in March.

Last week's public hearing in Dearborn was about those cuts.

SUE AND George Illingworth, Redford Township residents and members of the Michigan Assn. of the Blind, were unhappy at learning they might lose weekend service to a medical office at 12 Mile-Evergreen. "That's what we were afraid of," Mrs. Ill-ingworth said. John Bosch, president of the blind association, said, "We handicapped people can't drive. We are prevented from driving."

A Greenfield Village official, Robert Dawson, said, "200,000 convention people per year come by bus to Greenfield Village (via Route 200). It's inconvenient for them to rent cars and come out. We would lose 175,000 of them if weekend service were dropped. The average visitor spends $9.50 at Greenfield Village."

A host of Dearborn senior citizens and Doyne Jackson from the city administration protested cutting of service in the southeastern part of town. "That area has the highest unemployment, the lowest per capita income, the highest average age and the newest subsidized housing," said Jack-

They peppered Dirks and Bob Campbell, scheduling manager, with a host of suggestions and alternatives.

DIRKS REPLIED to some of the ques-

 On using smaller buses: The same bus is frequently used on different routes. In the morning rush hour, it may be crowded; in mid-day runs, mostly empty. It isn't feasible, however, to pay the driver to return to the depot, pick up a smaller bus (which would have to be purchased) and drive out again. "Some 80 to 90 percent of the cost is labor, not the vehicle," he added. On advertising local routes more: "We've put notices in local papers and churches. Print and radio advertising are expensive. With 50 routes, you can't advertise much."

 On placing more SEMTA signs in shopping malls: "Many mall owners don't want any." He didn't name those malls.

 On eliminating a bus drivers road-e-o at the Pontiac Silverdome: "We do this on our own time. The only expense is getting the bus from the Troy garage to the Silverdome, which isn't far away. It's a very good morale booster and makes drivers aware of the need to be good."

• On encouraging Henry Ford Community College and University of Michigan-Dearborn students to take SEMTA buses: "He have sent Henry Ford schedules for distribution at registration time. In many of the ideas you have suggested, we are dependent on the assistance of other people. Sometimes we (SEMTA) are a low priority for them."

 On subsidizing taxis for the elderly and handicapped: Farmington, Livonia and Plymouth have had them for two years. They can complement the small bus service but not replace it.

• On cutting other costs: "There's a hiring freeze. Twenty percent of the downtown jobs are unfilled. We got no across-theboard raise last year. We are all working 21/2 hours a week more without being paid

Plans continue to open community college

A date of June 1 has been set for Superintendent Timothy Dyer to make a final recommendation on whether the Wayne/Westland Community Schools should establish its own community

The Board of Education Monday approved a resolution 6-0, with President Donald Rusnock absent, authorizing school administrators to study thoroughly the local community college concept proposed by Dyer.

ONLY TWO board members commented on the resolution prior to its adoption.

"The action we're taking tonight is just one more step into deciding whether we're going to or not (establish a community college)," said Fred

"No question, the need is there," said David Moranty. "My only concern is that it doesn't affect K-12 or increase

All meetings will begin at 7 p.m. Dver said he expects to announce the members of the advisory committee at the board's meeting Feb. 1.

> Dver has said that the need for vocational re-training opportunities rather than economic conditions should be the major focus in making a decision on an in-district community college.

ConFusion got its start with a miniconvention held in Ann Arbor and attended by some 87 persons. The first full-fledged convention was held in 1975 in the Briarwood Hilton in Ann Arbor and drew nearly 350 persons.

In 1976 about 400 gathered at the Ann Arbor Inn, and the next year more than 430 attended despite a blizzard that weekend.

In 1978 about 500 persons attended the convention, and the numbers grew to 600 in 1979 when the gathering met at Holiday Inn, West Bank, Ann Arbor.

In 1980 the convention moved to the Plymouth Hilton, where it has since remained, and the numbers grew to 700 and then 710 last year.

Winter seems less frigid when you attend something like the Greater Michigan Boat and Fishing Show, which opens Saturday in Cobo Hall.

Some 750 boats, with a combined pricetag of $11 million, will be exhibited by 225 dealers. They range in size from wind surfers to canoes to 48-foot yachts to cruisers.

• HIT AND SPLIT

TABLE

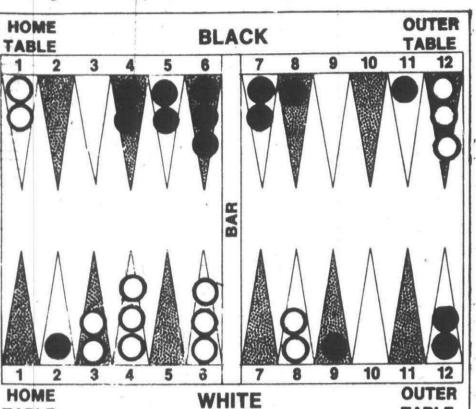

In the example, white needs to play a 4-2. What is your suggested move?

The obvious move would be to hit black on the 2 point with a checker from the 4 and 6 points. Another option which looks interesting (but may be dangerous) would be hitting black on the 9 point with a 12 point checker and slot-hitting black on the 2 point with a 4 point checker.

However, with this move, white cannot protect the 2 point blot. Thus, if black were to hit, white would find himself in grave danger if he doesn't come off the bar immediately.

Another option which plays well and is more effective would be to hit black on the 9 point with the 4 roll and split the back runners on the black 1 point to the 3 point. This move accomplishes much. With black on the bar, he may not re-enter for at least one roll. In the event black is unable to safety his 8 point checker immediately, white may succeed in hitting this one also.

White's open blot on the 9 point may be used on the next roll to close the 5 point or the 7 point to form a prime. Also, having split the 1 point checkers, white may be able to roll another two and capture black's 3 point; he will eventually be able to run much easier from the 3 point instead of the 1 point.

The hit-and-split play can be extremely effective, but there is one final thing that players should notice with this move. By hitting the 9 point blot and splitting to the 3 point, black is unable to close the 3 point on his next roll because he will be spending a half-roll to re-enter from the bar. If black wants to hit white on the next roll, he will be forced to slot-hit white on the 1 or 3 point or hope for a long shot to hit the 9 point blot.

Before this move, I would have pegged black as the favorite to win, but now the tables may easily turn.

A final word: In the event black doesn't re-enter, white may easily redouble the cube and force black out of the game. Black would be hard-pressed to accept the double because of his two outer board blots.

"Then Came Bronson" (1969), noon today on Ch. 9. Originally 100 min-

Cast in the mold of Dennis Hopper's "Easy Rider," with a lot of Marlon Brando's "The Wild One" thrown in. mumbly Michael Parks stars in this TV movie of a bummed-out journalist who adopts the open road as his home and a motorcycle as his best friend. Bonnie Bedelia provides a secondary love interest. Actually, "Bronson" has more in common with either "Mr. Novak" or "The Fugitive" than Hopper or Brando. Parks' wanderlust always results in teacherly good deeds rather than antiestablishment statements. Perhapse that's why "Bronson" made it as a TV show and not as a film. Rating: $2.60.

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" has recently been released as a major motion picture. The play is the story of Ken Harrison, a talented, young sculptor who is paralyzed in an auto accident and is kept alive only by hospital life support systems.

THE STORY explores the quality of Ken's life - the humor and wit that make him very much alive and the helplessness that reduces him to little more than a body with a brain kept functioning by means outside

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" deals with Ken's attempt to regain control of his life, first by redefining the value of that life and then, with the help of a sympathetic judge, by petitioning to terminate artificial support which is keeping him "alive."

Ken Harrison is played by Warren Reinecker of Royal Oak, who appeared in last season's production of "Bad Habits." Dr. Scott is played by Claudia Hill of Detroit, who also appeared in the guild's first season show "Everything in the Garden."

Also appearing in this production are Marion Tournaud of Farmington as the Sister, Patrick Butler of Redford as John, Ellen Aikens of Redford as Kay Sadler, Robert Closson of Detroit as Dr. Emerson, Walter Kolbe of Detroit as Dr. Barr, Karen Dean of Westland as Mrs. Boyle, Joseph Guest of Pontiac as Mr. Hill, Thomas Hinks of Plymouth as Mr. Kershaw, Stan Taylor of Detroit as Judge Millhouse, Clif Levin of Detroit as Dr. Travers, Joseph Rayes of Livonia as Mr. Eden and Roberts Pullum of Dearborn Heights as the Night Nurse. Arcade brings excitement, but location is hazardous

FTER SEVERAL MEETINGS — one in a closed session — and a battle in court, Canton Township will have its first arcade.

The arcade issue is a long, difficult question which is far from being settled. The initial action from Canton's Board of Trustees came three weeks ago with conditional approval of an arcade at the southeast corner of Ford and Lilley, in the building vacated by The Nice Slice Delicatessan.

Approval came after hours of discussion. It passed by a 4-3 margin — hardly overwhelming support for a difficult issue.

We have no objections to arcades. In fact, properly managed arcades are a welcomed addition to the Plymouth-Canton community. We see problems, however, with the Ford-Lilley intersection — the site of the proposed facility.

The Ford-Lilley corner is dangerous — no question about it. No sidewalks exist, and lighting is poor. This is hardly a corner conducive for safety of children.

THE ARCADE ISSUE is a classical question of allowing private enterprise to capitalize at the expense of public safety.

In fairness to Canton's board and the arcade operators, there seems to be an honest attempt — and awareness — to eliminate the safety problems at this corner.

But it's a shame the safety problem wasn't properly addressed before the decision reached the

The arcade operators. Jamil Akhtar of Plymouth Township and Barbara Baldwin of Livonia, gained approval from the Canton Planning Commission to open an arcade at this site.

That was a major mistake.

After this approval, the operators "signed their lives away" to finance not only an arcade, but an adjacent restaurant — similar to Chuck E. Cheese's, a highly successful operation in Westland and other cities in the Detroit area.

Doc's corner

Dennis O'Connor

AFTER FULFILLING ordinance requirements, Akhtar and Baldwin, who both work in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, were irate when they met a snag from the board.

Finally, the board addressed the safety problem, but it was too late.

It's awfully hard to keep private business out of your community after it gains planning commission approval and follows ordinance regulations.

The operators felt backed into a corner, with their investment in jeopardy. Subsequently, they filed suit against the board, backing the officials into the other corner.

A decision had to be made.

With reluctance, the board gave Akhtar and Baldwin conditional approval to open the arcade. Some of the conditions include no more than 25 machines, installation of bike racks, improved lighting and other safety precautions.

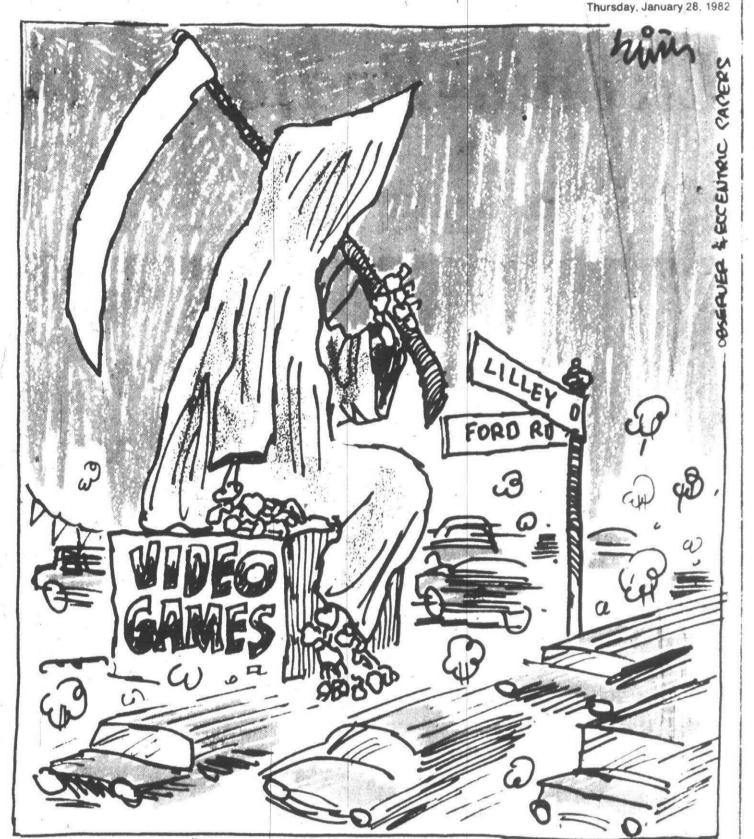

THE BOARD, WISELY, attached enough conditions on the arcade to help maintain some level of safety

We hope the management of the arcade will reflect the same concern for safety.

Likewise, Plymouth-Canton parents should be aware that the Ford-Lilley corner is not the safest spot for an arcade. They must instruct their children accordingly.

When the restaurant-arcade opens, we hope Plymouth-Canton residents will enjoy it.

But beware of the dangers linked to that site. The consequences could be serious.

'A great(?) location'

What if industry had listened to George?

Years ago, one of the favorite expressions was "Let George do it."

Anytime there was a problem of any kind, it was passed off with "Let George do it."

The Stroller got to thinking about this the other night while listening to reports of the union officials and the auto makers, and he got to wondering if the present sickness of the auto industry could have been avoided if we had let George do it.

In this case, it was George Romney, a very intelligent, sharp-chinned individual, who took over the presidency of American Motors Corp. and set out on a campaign to make America small-car conscious.

His slogan was "Get rid of the gas-guzzling dinosaurs." arguing it would be more profitable to drive a small car that used less fuel.

He put on a grand campaign. One of his cars was the Rambler. It was a rather neat-looking job, even though it lacked the frills of the larger cars.

GEORGE'S CAMPAIGN bumped into one big obstacle: General Motors. It was a one-sided battle.' The word was passed along that Romney was attempting to break GM — and that put a crimp in his campaign.

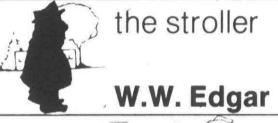

Along about the same time, the Kaiser-Frazer Co. started to build small cars and Jeeps at Willow Run, but it, too, failed to put a dent in the big-car market.

One of those who turned his back on Romney's plan was The Stroller, and now he has to smile about the morning he made the decision.

At breakfast one Saturday morning, wife Leona remarked that there was a big ad in the paper for small cars, and she suggested maybe we should try one.

At the time, she was in the market for a car. So off to the dealer's showroom we went. Parked right in the middle was one of these small cars. We were given a fine welcome.

"TAKE IT OUT and drive it a bit," the salesman said. This was unusual. But we took it out, and Leona did the driving.

From the moment she stepped on the gas pedal, it was seen that she was not well pleased. This was especially true when she had seen a nice, big, red car in the showroom. When she saw it, she said, "I always liked a red our."

always liked a red car."

As we drove the little car around the block, she started to find fault with it. It rattled. It steered rather stiffly. It didn't ride very well. And so on and Finally, we got back to the showroom. There stood the big red car. While she talked with one salesman, The Stroller made a deal with another.

When she walked away from the small car. The Stroller pointed to the big red car and said. "Go ahead. Drive it. That's your new car."

She was thrilled no end. And The Stroller felt pleased, too, not only because his wife was satisfied but because the big car looked like much the better

SO WE TURNED our backs on George Romney. And we were not alone.

When George saw what was happening, he turned to politics. He organized Citizens for Michigan, went to the Constitutional Convention and defeated Gov. John Swainson. Then he got Potomac fever, resigned as governor to take a cabinet post and turned the statehouse over to William Milliken.

And as The Stroller listened to the wrangling the other night, he couldn't help wondering if the sickness of the auto industry could have been averted more than 20 years ago if we had "Let George do it"

Gypsy moth spreads wings

Carefully, gingerly, Carl Pursell is expanding the Gypsy Moths organization from the U.S. House of Representatives to the Senate, state capitals and even city halls.

Pursell, the 2nd District congressman from Plymouth, must be careful in order not to alienate the westerners in the White House and the Republican leadership.

And he must move gingerly because after 1982, the Northeastern and Midwestern states will lose 16 representatives. Whatever they do must not seem threatening to other regions with which they must swap votes.

The third-term Republican moderate has had face-to-face meetings with Ronald Reagan and such White House staffers as Edwin Meese III and James Baker III. The message, put more bluntly than Pursell would, is: "Let's move on, Mr. President — the West has been won."

"WE'VE FORMED an economic advisory council to put together our priorities," Pursell said here recently. "They (the White House) gave me the goahead. It'll all be done from a Republican point of view."

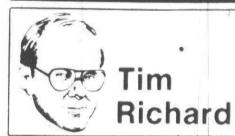

It is a typical Pursell move. Your ordinary lawmaker thinks of his level of government — be it local, state or national — and of his committee.

Not Pursell. He looks at a problem, then draws together people from all levels of government, from administrative and legislative branches, and from the private sector, when appropriate.

"You need to get the jurisdictional levels to interface," he said, tossing around a little Washingtonese.

He has had a meeting with Gov. Jim Thompson of Illinois. He has drawn the interest of Gov. Thomas Kean of New Jersey. He will receive advice from Minnesota Gov. Albert Quie, a former congressional colleague. Mayors and state legislators are being lined up.

"We looked for constructive, long-range thinkers. We're not out to build a superstar like John Anderson. They must have the ability to become masters of policy areas," said Pursell.

WHY DOES a populous Midwest state like Michigan get back 65 cents for every $1 it sends to Washington while little New Mexico gets $1.90 — and severance tax money besides?

"The sunbelt has set its priorities," answered Pursell. "First, water. Second, defense. Third, oil legislation. All produce jobs. That's the 'southern strategy.' They build up seniority and learn where all the levers of power are.

"The Northeast-Midwest has many priorities
New England is energy-short. New York is after transit money and aid to cities. The Midwest is industry-oriented. Iowa is agricultural. We really don't have a set of priorities. We divide and go our own ways."

And so the Republican federal-state-local economic advisory council, the outgrowth of the Gypsy Moths, will attempt to set priorities and use friendly persuasion on its fellow American regions to stop the economic bloodletting.

PURSELL, BY some tabulations, can be made to look liberal. It upsets conservatives in his district.

But the tabulation done by Roll Call Report, to which this newspaper subscribes, shows him backing Reagan on key budget and tax measures six times out of nine. He's tied with William Broomfield of the 19th District and ahead of Guy VanderJagt of the 9th District — who wanted to be vice president or maybe House GOP leader.

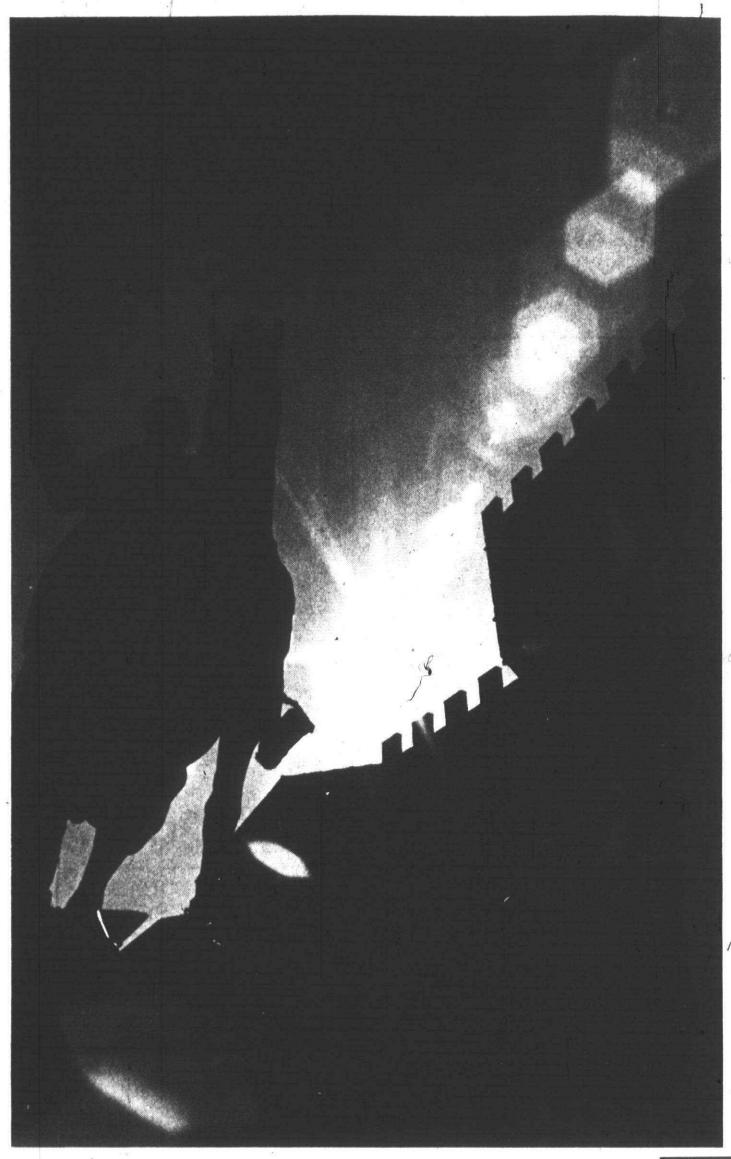

A pro-Reagan voting record on the big ones, Pursell believes, puts him in a better position to bargain with the cowboys and counterbalance the weight of the southern "Boll Weevils."

The Gypsy Moth is spreading his wings.

But, Ron, you've already won the West!

Lens flare can add flair, but exposure is tricky

Lens flare is light reflecting off the many outer and inner surfaces of the camera lens.

Most photographers avoid it. Flare produces a glaring spread of light that probably has ruined countless photographs.

But when carefully used and monitored through the viewfinder of your camera, flare can produce spectacular and exciting results and give your pictures an artistic flavor. Handled properly, lens flare can display dramatically the blinding presence of the sun in your pictures while at the same time tone down a cluttered background.

Flare can give your photo a romantic feeling and enhance an otherwise dull scene. With the sun just outside the scene, often times a misty, diffused look will be obtained in the final picture.

ALTHOUGH LENS manufacturers go to great lengths to prevent flare by using special coatings on their lenses, flare is still easy to obtain.

Usually, just having the sun or other bright light source in or just outside a scene is likely to produce flare. This is because light rays are picked up and reflected by the front glass elements of the lens.

Remember, a lens shade ordinarily is used to prevent flare, so it is important to leave it off the camera when you desire flare in your shot.

Determining exposure can be tricky.

Your camera's meter will translate the presence of bright light into an exposure that will produce a darker than normal print. But this is fine if your desire is to silhouette the main subject.

In fact, try neglecting your meter altogether by setting the aperture at f-16 and using the fastest shutter speed. All solid objects in the scene will come out jet black, and the sun will appear like a sparkling star.

IF YOU WANT to produce a morenormal-looking image, determine exposure by pointing your camera away from the source of flare.

Then manually set the exposure according to that reading, disregarding the meter when the flare reappears in Lenses: Reflect on That."

the viewfinder. With automatic exposure cameras, you'll have to use the manual override.

Remember, for your eye's safety, never look directly at the sun through the viewfinder. With a little practice, you'll find it easy to place the sun where you desire in your composition without having to look straight at it.

Correctly used, flare can add excitement and interest to your picture. So don't always think of it as something to avoid in your photography. Learn to improve your photographic style . . .with "flair."

SUNDAY'S Children's Concert is 45 minutes long — not 25 as reported in Monday's newspaper. There will be two performances in Plymouth Salem High School, the first at 2:30 p.m and the second at 4 p.m. Admission is $1 and tickets for the second concert should be available at the door

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will be making use of the new music stand lights for the first time. The lights are a recent purchase by the Symphony Society. Jean Braun, principal violist in the orchestra, has been painting "PLY SYM ORCH" on each stand light so they won't stray

There also will be a new sound in the orchestra. Bob Williams, a Canton Township resident and a regular in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will join the the Plymouth Symphony for "The Sorcerer's Apprentice." He will play his newly-acquired contra-bassoon. There isn't much call for contrabassoon solos, but the "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" has one.

Franz Harary and his "Odyssey of Illusion" troupe of magicians will perform with the orchestra. The troupe is from the Ann Arbor area where the majority of the illusionists are students at the University of Michigan. They added some local talent. Holly Quick. Brenda van der Merwe, Suzanné Chance and Katie Garard will be brooms in "The Sorcerer's Apprentice.

Those who have attended Monday night rehearsals agree this will be the best Children's Concert on record.

Girl Scouts to take cookie orders

Ruth Dostie and Doris Prosyk of Plymouth are hard at work on a sweet task.

Together with Jeanne Wood and Sue Hoffmeister of Canton Township, they are area cookie sale chairwomen for the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council's annual event, which will continue through Feb. 12.

Helping to kick off the sale recently were nearly 500 Brownie, Junior Cadette and Senior Girl Scout contestants who participated in a clown contest.

The four women are now busily working on the sale, during which the council hopes to see 550,000 boxes of the cookies sold.

IF THIS GOAL is reached, it will mean a Girl Scout profit of $440,000. Of this amount, $137,500 will be use for direct troop costs. The remaining money will go to the council to insure quality programs for Scouts in Washtenaw, western Wayne, Monroe and Livingston counties.

The price of a box of cookies is $1.50. Orders are being taken now, with deliveries beginning March 1 and continuing until March 16. On sale will be seven tempting varieties.

Shortbreads, the first cookie offered in 1933, is still a favorite. But over the years the Scouts have added variety. They sell Thin Mints, Peanut Brittle Patties, Chocolate and Vanilla Sandwich Cremes, Peanut Butter Sandwiches, Old Fashioned Oatmeal and Caramel DeLites. The DeLites used to be called Sumores.

Thin Mints are vanilla cookies covered with mint chocolate icing. Peanut Butter Patties are vanilla cookies topped with peanut butter and covered with chocolate.

WHAT ARE Peanut Butter Sandwiches? Oatmeal cookies filled with peanut butter frosting. Sandwich Cremes prove to be an assortment of vanilla and chocolate sandwich cookies with creme frosting, and Shortbreads mean vanilla shortbread. Don't forget Old Fashioned Oatmeal or the new renamed Caramel Delites.

Last year, these caramel confections were so pupular that the bakers could not meet consumer demand. The bakery, FFV-Interbake, predicts that Caramel Delites will become the number-one selling Girl Scout cookie

The sweet discs are all made with 100-percent vegetable oil and are free from artificial preservatives.

The Scouts themselves are asked to don uniforms and find buyers because it offers them a meaningful form of service to their council and troop. It gives the community an opportunity to meet the girls and give the organization their financial support.

The sale provides an activity for troops, as members determine for themselves how they should sell, what techniques to use, what safety factors to consider and how to spend the income they will earn.

Women's leader addresses caucus

Kathy Wilson, head of the 60,000member National Women's Political fication of the proposed Equal Rights Caucus, will help the Michigan caucus Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. launch its 1982 membership drive, "Win with Women," on Saturday, Jan. 30, at a reception and dinner at the Marriott Inn, Ann Arbor.

"The caucus is dedicated to guaranteeing women their rightful participation in American politics," said Ms. Wilson. Alice Gunderson of Livonia and Melinda Remer of Lansing are cochairing the event. "We've changed attitudes about women running for office. Now we're going to change numbers," she said. "Male-dominated state legislatures have turned their backs on women's rights."

That means electing candidates to local, state and national offices and obtaining appointments to government positions at all levels, she said. The group will continue its efforts for rati-

The visiting speaker, whose reaction to the platform committee's vote on the Equal Rights Amendment prior to the Republican National Convention in Detroit in July 1980, led her to state that she fervently hoped her expected child would be a boy, will be accompanied to the Michigan event by her daughter, Casey Rose.

Separate registrations are available for the cocktail reception at $5 and the dinner at $12.50, planners said. Make reservations by calling 352-2313.

Ms. Wilson served as the Republican vice-chairperson of the National caucus for two years before she took over her present post. She has been instrumental in establishing caucuses in four states, West Virginia, Georgia, South Carolina and Virginia

Such enthusiasm!

Three busioads of fans boarded buses Sunday for Super Bowl XVI. The majority of those in the buses, arranged for by Scott Lorenz of the Mayflower Hotel were Cincinnati fans. Norm Niesen, (seated, left) of Canton was the guest of his brother-in-law Larry Dennedy, a season ticket-holder for the Bengal home games. Among the super fans (below) were Henry Felker of Eastern Airlines and Bill Habay of Ammerican Airlines, local residents who transported their parties by bus. Tom Bollander of Plymouth was the last Bengal fan to board the first bus.

It was a super Sunday in township

Everybody likes a good party! When you plan four parties in one month, there are two excuses: You are either a glutton for punishment or you hate to drive in the awful weather we are having. I am referring to Art and Sue Lawrence of Canton.

The fifth annual Holiday Coffee was first on the roster for Carriage Hills Subdivision and Sue was hostess again so as not to break the enjoyable tradition the neighbors share. As the ladies sipped vuletide coffees and a little Irish coffee they reminisced about the events of the year gone and it made the afternoon a warm and pleasant one for the friendly group. Sue keeps the spark alive among the people surrounding her. There is a gracious hello and a bright smile whenever you happen to see her. Art is either tinkering around the house or lending someone a hand with a weekend project.

Just about everyone I know was invited to their open house on Christmas Eve. Many of us who have all of our relatives in distant states, shared this special night with the Lawrence family. There were friends who came from Birmingham and Brighton just to share in the warmth of this special gathering. Sue and Art are from Wisconsin and old friends who were in the area from Kenosha and beyond stopped by for a touch of cheer. At the highpoint of the evening there were 60 strong voices. trying to harmonize.

Residents in Carriage Hills Subdivision have shared in their annual Christmas Walk for Seven Years. Sue and Art are located right in the heart of the activities and their home was one of the stops for the evening. A traditional punch and hors d'oeurves table was set for the gang to please their palate.

Believe it or not, there was also a New Year's Eve party at this very same house. Their evening began with a toast to the New Year at the home of Bob and Kathy Spencer. A crisp and delicious dinner salad was shared by friends at the home of Mary and Sherm Moore. The progressive group sat down to dinner with hosts Jan and Darryl Brawn. To add to the full evening, dessert was served by Bobbie and Mike Ryan to the delight of everyone. Great people throw great parties, so a riproaring time was had at the Lawrence home, of course. After several hours of dancing and posing for home movies, the crowd went on to the kitchen of Shannon and Jim Monro.

Last but not least there was the fourth annual Super Bowl party. Honestly, we all wait for this event to come our way each year. The entire day is spent merrily at Sue and Art's home. The only thing you are permitted to bring to the festivities is the intention of having a super time. Just because it was held in Detroit you might think that the guests would be at the Silverdome. There is no way you can have a better time than enjoying the hospitality of Sue and Art Lawrence.

JAN AND BOB Knecht are from Cincinnati. They had guests calling to make reservations for a space on their family room floor. Season ticket holders for the Bengals were very fortunate to get their tickets at $40 a seat. Aunts, uncles cousins and old college chums came up for a little fine northern reunion. Gametime saw many of their guests at the Silverdome cheering their team on to victory.

Maybe next year, Cincinnati fans. It was a great game and it was sure fun having all of you up here for a visit.

THERE IS ANOTHER reason that this past Sunday was called Super Sunday. It was Bud Magaldi's birthday, of course. After the cheering and shouting from the game died down at a neighborhood party, everyone sang a few choruses of the Birthday Song to Buddy Boy. His wife Maryellen, Dominic and Judy Cirino, Helen and Mike Wesner, Bill and Judy Justice, Diane and Bill Soules, Bob Koesel, Liz and Ron Hein were on hand for the Super Sunday

Cincinnati

Its restaurants win the Super Bowl of good eating

By Iris Sanderson Jones special writer

THEN I THINK of Cincinnati, I don't think about football. I think of mousseline of pike, Veal Pierre, or possibly a salmon filet broiled in a copper pan and served on a bed of zucchini.

Cincinnati is one of the most underrated restaurant cities in the United States. Michael E. Comisar, manager of the Maisonette Restaurant, puts it another way:

"When people think of restaurants, they think of the East Coast, the West Coast and Florida. But does anybody think of Cincinnati?"

They think about it at Rungis, the famous marketplace in Paris, where they pack fresh fish and send it by air every day to the Maisonette. Dover sole, brill, turbot - all stored in the fish drawers of a special ice box, padlocked and ready, just outside the restaurant's

They certainly think about Cincinnati when they pass out the prestigious Mobil restaurant ratings or Holiday Dining Awards. The Maisonette, one of several area restaurants run by the Comisar family, has won a Holiday award every year for 29 years. It earns Mobil's coveted five-star dining award, making it the champion of city restaurants.

But Cincinnati is not a one-restaurant town. The city has six four-star restaurants, according to Mobil, and lots of other interesting eating places prized by insiders.

THE FOUR-STAR restaurants cover a range of cuisines and are scattered all over town.

Staff trained by the Comisar family at the Maisonette played an important part in the developent of two of them - the Gourmet Room, at the top of the Terrace Hotel (which opens off the Skywalk downtown) and Pigall's on Fourth Street.

La Ronde, built around a real carousel, has live music and dancing in the Carousel Inn Motel off Interstate 75 on Reading Road. The Inn has several restaurants, including the Cascade, a family place built around a swimming pool within range of electronic games for the kids.

Two of the four-stars are in the suburbs: the Heritage, a 20-minute drive northeast, and Mama Francesca's, a 20-minute drive northwest Mecklenburg's tn the university area was originally a German beer garden. Two young men converted it to "delicate American cuisine" a few years ago, with spinach and cheese turnovers, salmon mousse and walnut-pecan black bottom pie.

Scott Hanely still runs Mecklenburg's. His former partner, Rob Fogel, now oversees the creation of homemade pasta and northern Italian foods at a restaurant called Edward's.

EDWARD'S IS NOT a four-star but it is a favorite among locals, as is the Sovereign, with its monthly jazz brunch, on Price Hill, and the riverboats run by Ben Bernstein.

Ben owns Mike Fink's Riverboat,

with its raw seafood bar and fun eating, as well as two cruise-food-booze paddleboats that run year-round: the Betty Blake and the Lollipop. He will put two of his paddleboats on the Tennessee River in Knoxville during the World's Fair this year.

The Bernstein restaurant that few visitors hear about is the El Greco, across the river in Covington, Ky., where Ben and his wife keep a fabulous collection of pre-Columbian artifacts on permanent display.

And if you talk about restaurants in Cincinnati, you must mention the Golden Lamb, Ohio's oldest inn, 20 miles north in Lebanon, which runs a fine nofooling-around 19th century American table.

AND WHO operates the Golden Lamb? The Comisar family, f course. The name is inextricably bound with good eating in the Queen City area.

Grandfather Comisar came from Russia with three brothers in the late 1920s. He did everything from selling newspapers to working in a sauerkraut factory before opening his first tiny restaurant.

One fateful New Year's Eve during the Depression, a man promised to bring a dozen people for dinner. When the party didn't show up, grandfather decided it was all over. He closed the

In 1932, he tried again, and in 1948 the Comisars opened the Maisonette in its present location on Sixth Street. A few weeks later, grandfather died, and Grandmother Vallie and her sons took over. Over the next decades, they courted three chefs - Maurice Gorodowski. Pierre Adrian and George Hav-

The 1950s were lean. 1965 was decisive; that's when they decided to stay downtown in spite of inner city problems. Nowadays they run the Normandie, downstairs from the Maisonette; Golden Lamb; and Chester's Roadhouse (it was supposed to be called Charlie's, but Detroit's own Chuck Muer opened a Charlie's Crab across the street.)

BUT THE Maisonette is the best. There are words for a restaurant like this: genuine, real, simple, unpretentious, as well as elegant and expensive.

The secret? Michael E. Comisar puts it this way: "Pay attention to detail. If small details begin to seem trivial, then you start thinking that larger things are trivial, and everything

Or just ask anybody on the street, about the deli food at Izzy's; the chili at the Empress, the Old Star of the Skyline; the wine-tasting-and-dinner at Meier's Wine Cellars; the Rookwood Pottery, a former pottery on Mount Adams, where they serve the classiest hamburgers in town, or. . . .

Choirs of 7 churches to sing for Christian unity

By Margaret Miller staff writer

"If the churches don't stand together in more of the major issues today, they will not have much impact. And the world needs our impact."

The speaker is the Rev. Robert C. Seltz, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Livonia, and he is discussing ecumenical plans involving seven area churches in events the next two weekends.

The churches will have a pastoral exchange for services Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 30 and 31, and then on Sunday, Feb. 7, will join their choirs and congregations in an interfaith music festival.

Joining in the project, in addition to Holy Trinity, are St. Edith and St. Colette, Livonia Catholic churches; St. Timothy Presbyterian of Livonia; Church of the Savior; a Livonia congregation of the Reformed Church denomination; and two Plymouth churches, St. Kenneth Catholic and Epiphany Lutheran.

Holy Trinity, St. Edith, Church of the Savoir and St. Timothy have been involved together in previous ecumenical projects.

The plans for this year, Seltz said, represent efforts to widen the scope of the cooperative effort, bringing in more congregations and greater representation from each.

"The leaders of the various denominations, you might call them the church bureaucrats, are coming out in favor of more ecumenical action," he noted. "And we pastors in western Wayne County have been working together more. But unless we get it down to the grass roots, it won't mean a

THE AREA CHURCHES' major ecumenical event is the musical service scheduled at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 7 in St. Timothy Presbyterian Church, 16700 Newburgh, just south of Six Mile in Livonia.

Titled "Neighborhood Festival of Music - a Celebration of Christian Unity," it will involved at least one choral group from each church and a bell choir.

Each musical group will present an anthem, and all will join in one massed number. Also included in the service will be a brief liturgy of prayers for Christian unity, and refreshments will be served during a fellowship hour after worship.

The offering to be taken will be divided between Livonia and Plymouth branches of FISH, an organization that sends volunteer helpers into the communities as needs arise.

Rev. David Strong

We can learn from confrontation

In this past month, two churches in this area have experienced worship interruptions - people coming in and interrupting the sermon and the service.

One church had five such visitors on a Sunday. Two of these people broke into the worship service to castigate the minister. They told the people worshipping that they should not listen to the sermon.

In one instance a man stood up in an aggressive manner. He pointed at the minister and said, "This man speaks words of evil. I am here to expose false prophets."

The vistors are from the conservative wing of the faith. They have decided that it is not they who speak judgment upon the church. It is God who is speaking through them to warn the people. They identify with the prophets of the Old Testament. They believe that God directs them each week where to go to witness against the ministers of the churches.

SEVERAL THINGS are interesting about this phenemonon. First we note that the people who come to interrupt worship do not wish to be identified. They do not readily give their name, nor do they sign the visitors sheet. This particular group were invited to dialogue following the worshop. They did not accept this invita-

Such a confrontation also recalls the image of the earliest Christians who witnessed in the town square. Here in early times they were faced with hecklers and opponents. Such visits of people who interrupt the sermon plunge the church into a market place type of setting.

It is healthy to face such opposition to one's faith. The Christian churches in Eastern Europe have faced constant opposition from the left. In this experience they have learned to recognize their own shortcomings. They have strengthened their faith. They have opened dialogue with their opponents.

IF SUCH DIALOGUE is possible, churches can be strenghtened from the critics of both the right and left wings.

Many remember the recent years when people appeared in the worship services to plead the cause of racial justice. Their intention was to speak a prophetic word to their own denomination. Their goal was to appeal to the social conscience of those in the pew.

During the Vietnam war, groups would. often confront their own church at conferences and in worship.

These most recent interruptors are different in that they come from outside the denominational church. They speak of judgment. When they accuse the church leaders they use a harsher language.

HOW HAVE PEOPLE reacted to such interruptions in their worship? The general reaction is that people have felt shaken and powerless. Some have felt angry. Others have confronted these interrupters by saying such things as, "Sit down, you do not speak for us. The significant thing is that the response of the congregation has not been harsh or violent. The minister in one case offered dialogue. He was accepting yet firm about the limits which they would

Elsewhere in the world we read of terrible violence done in the name of one religion against another. We can hope that such violent polarization will not occur within the country.

WE NEED TO REALIZE that a revival of right wing and left wing groups within our religious scene may lead to confrontation. In some of our denominators we have recently seen increased dialogue and understanding decrease polarity. This may be the case in these new confronta-

We need to be prepared to offer dialogue and at the same time effectively stand by our own position. We can well learn from one another in such encounters.

The two premier wrestling teams in the area crossed paths with a pair of the state's top-ranked Class A teams in a double-dual meet Tuesday night, squaring off against No. 2 rated Temperance-Bedford and No. 5 Hazel

As expected, the host Rocks and John Glenn both took it on the chin against Bedford, but each managed to salvage the night with victories over Hazel Park before an excited and unusually large gathering at the Salem gym.

Salem, also ranked in the top 10, bombed the Vikings in the first matchup 46-12 while Glenn was suffering a 35-22 setback against the Mules.

In the nightcap, Bedford turned over the Rocks, 34-24, and Glenn, also a top-10 squad, bested Hazel Park, 39-26.

"There's two ways of coaching," said Salem's Ron Krueger, whose team is now 9-2 overall. "You can go out and wrestle nobody or you can go for the gusto like we did tonight. I don't feel bad about the outcome.

"I feel good about our overall performance," he continued. "This is one of the most exciting meets I've had."

ROCKET COACH Bob Lusk said that he, too, was happy with his team's effort against Bedford, but skeptical about his team's quest for improvement after a sheepish showing against

"If I have to say that I was either pleased or displeased with how we did I'd have to say that overall, I'm displeased," the Glenn mentor explained.

In the Salem-Bedford showdown, the Mules jumped out to a 28-0 lead after five matches before the Rocks made amends

Marty Piper, who usually competes in the heavyweight division, dropped down to wrestle Mike Calvin, a Class A runner-up last year at 200 pounds. The once-beaten Piper and Calvin tied on points, six apiece, but Piper was awarded the decision based on referee's criteria.

Rob McDonald (134 pounds) held off Bedford's highly-regarded Mike Keane

In one of the top matches of the night, Bedford's Keith Vogel squeezed past Scott Wickens 3-0 at 187 pounds.

ANOTHER BIG match pitted

Curtis of Bedford, a third-place finisher last year in Class A. Curtis escaped with a narrow 2-0 decision.

Bedford coach Bill Regnier, once a teammate of Krueger's on the Bowling Green State University mat team, praised his squad's ability adjust to new weight divisions.

"We had some kids up in the weight classes and they did a pretty good job. he said. "But this team has a lot of work to do. We're not anywhere near to perfection or where we want to be. DOUBLE WINNERS for the Rockets on the night were Tom Gibson (105). Rob Paciocco (138), Don Forchione (155) and Aaron Ortiz, whose second match came by virtue of a default.

Ted Badami, Glenn's standout 169 pounder, is out for the season with an injury. His potential points will be sorely missed. Salem also had a quartet of double winners - John Beaudoin (140), Bruce Bachman (147), Randy Beaudoin (157) and Piper, who wrestled one match at heavyweight and the other one at 200.

Salem matmen rule Monroe tilt

Plymouth Salem recorded four individual titles and won the team championship Saturday in the six-team Monroe Wrestling Invitational.

The Rocks, who claimed their second invitational crown of the season, tallied a team total of 1631/2 points.

Monroe Catholic Central, the No. 1 ranked team in Class B by the Michigan High School Wrestling Coaches Association, finished second with 1351/2. Rounding out the field were Ida, No. 5 in Class C, third place, 125; Monroe, fourth, 98; Tecumseh, fifth, 91; and Belleville, sixth, 84.

Bruce Bachman, Salem's standout performer at 147 pounds, continued his winning ways with a decision in the final against Ida's Steve Keister. The Salem senior upped his season mark to 33-1 with the win.

Other Salem champs included heavyweight Marty Piper, who pinned Belleville's Guy Wood in 4:45; Rob McDonald (134 pounds), who decisioned Mike Langton of Monroe, 4-2; and Randy Beaudoin (157), who defeated Monroe CC's Dean West 7-5.

lost to Monroe CC's Mike Uman in the final: John Woochuk (169), who was pinned in 2:41 by Joe Lehmann of MCC. and Scott Wickens (185), who lost to Tecumseh's Tim Connors 7-4.

THE ROCKS also took a pair of third places - Harry Walkley (200), who pinned Ida's Scott Fox in 4:57 for the consolation crown; and Mike Doumanian (114), who decisioned Tecumseh's Ernie Vargis 10-6.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

In February of 1976, rated for just one week in most of the popularity polls as the No. 1 Class A basketball team in Michigan, the Rocks tasted defeat for the first time as Belleville's Tigers posted a 63-57 triumph. Nonetheless, Salem, which now is 16-1 overall, still leads the Suburban 8 in its drive toward a 3rd straight undisputed championship with a 10-1 mark. "They beat us square up," admitted coach Fred Thomann of the Rocks, as he avoided offering any form of alibi. Belleville astounded the packed house by racing to a 13-0 lead in the first 5 minutes and from then on it was all up hill for the Plymouth troops. High scorers for Salem were two brothers, all-stater Jim and Tom Ellinghausen, Mike Primeau and Brian Wolcott.

Wolves embark on 'new' campaign

By Brad Emons staff writer

Coming off their most successful season ever, the Livonia-Wolves now are exploring a new soccer frontier.

Winners of the National Conference of the Detroit Soccer League (DSL) last fall, the Wolves now are focusing their attention on the inaugural campaign of the Budweiser Indoor Soccer Tournament (which is sanctioned by the Michigan Soccer Association).

"It's a brand new experience," said Wolves coach Joe Mancini. "You have all the players at one place. You get a chance to scout the other teams.

"It's faster moving. I love it." The season began Jan. 10 at Square Lake Racquet Club in Bloomfield Hills. Eighteen teams are divided into three divisions. The six-game regular-season schedule ends Feb. 28 with the top-12 teams qualifying for the playoffs the with American-born players, is 1-1 indoors thus far. On Sunday, Detroit Vardar held on for a 2-1 victory against the Wolves. Bill Ralph scored the lone Livonia goal in the first period.

The Wolves won their opener on Jan. 15 by beating the Warren Carpathian Kickers, 6-3, as Chuck Scroggins, Claudio Mancini, Frank Guerin, John Bartoletti, Pete Camilleri and Walt Barrett scored for the winners.

LEAGUE PLAY is held each Friday and Saturday. The Wolves' next game is Friday, Feb. 5, against the Huron Valley Scorch.

The Livonia management decided to expand its operation by forming another Wolves team (Wolves East).

The Wolves East competed in the American Conference of the DSL while the already existing Wolves West stayed in the National Conference.

The Wolves East, comprised mainly of American-born college students, compiled a modest record of 4-6-2. They were honored at the end of the season as the DSL's second-best-disciplined club, behind Warren United.

THE WOLVES fought for permanent suspension of the Yugo-Americans, but DSL officials allowed the team to finish the season after a short suspension.

Despite a black mark from the incident, the Wolves West carried on and tallied the best overall record in the DSL (10-1-1) along with a National Conference championship.

The Hellenic Soccer Club, American Conference winners, downed the Wolves last August in the DSL title match, 4-2. Livonia, however, avenged that loss the next month by drubbing Hellenic in the Pele Cup championship,

The Wolves' indoor team consists of Livonians Brett Nagy, who also tends goal for Western Michigan; Scoggins, T.J. Winters, Rich Laurie, Walt Barrett. Frank Guerin, Pete Camilleria, pola, Chris Pickard and Craig Pickard.

Cunningham is employed as a student services teacher at East and Central Middle schools in the federally financed Growth Works program.
