Hoben OKs decision on fantasy game

By Gary M. Cates

The superintendent's decision to allow Dungeons and Dragons (D&D) to be played in West Middle School is expected to be appealed to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

"By the end of this week, we will return our appeal to the full board," says the Rev. Gregory Gentry, who filed the original D&D complaint.

Superintendent John Hoben's ruling follows an appeal of a review committee's decison to allow D&D.

D&D is an unending role-playing game in which players become imaginary characters and are led on adventures, which include battles, by a referee (called a "dungeon master"). The framework for the characters and make-believe voyages are set up in several D&D handbooks.

The game is part of a West Middle School elective course called "Games, Games, Games.

Gentry, pastor of Canton Calvary Assembly of God, claims D&D has negative spiritual effects on the student players. He filed a formal complaint with the schools on Feb. 16.

A committee was established to look into Gentry's complaint. The fivemember committee decided there was no evidence the game promotes or advances any form of religion or religious

HOBEN UPHELD the committee's decision, telling Gentry:

"It appears to me that the accusation that the game is spiritual in nature is a judgmental factor that seems to differ between those that have exposure to the activity and your concern at the other end of the continuum."

Hoben's investigation of the game included talking to Gentry, West principal Robert Smith and student players. He also reviewed materials accumulated by the review committee and talked with committee chairman Richard

"In light of the investigation and materials presented, the superintendent feels that the evidence does not support the issue that it is of a cult or spiritual nature," he said in the decision.

"The mitigating thing with me was the parental permission," Hoben said Tuesday. Students in the elective course must have signed permission

Gentry said Hoben wasn't working with the standards he should have been in making such a decision.

In the appeal to the board, Gentry hopes to incorporate the consensus of area clergy men.

"The spiritual leaders of the community need to let their opinion be known," he said.

The board will have 30 days in which to render a decision on the D&D ap-

"I've been talking with some clergy about taking it beyond the school board. However, I'm not certain about that at this point," Gentry said.

Tanger Elementary School Principal Carrol Nichols received verbal and written reprimands after slapping Swane Taddonio on March 11. Parents want the principal dismissed and may file suit against Plymouth-Canton Community Schools to accomplish that Maggie and Richard Taddonio, Swane's parents, met with school officials for more than one hour Monday before a scheduled workshop - to try to resolve the problem.

The issue was not settled, according to Maggie Taddonio.

"It was really just a waste," she said about the meeting. "Basically, they told us this was an isolated incident. They felt that (the reprimands) was

Fun and follies follies for funds

Athletic teams will do anything to raise extra funds for their programs - even if it takes 24 continuous hours

Plymouth Canton's girls' basketball team played basketball for 24 straight hours at Canton's Phase III building, while Plymouth Salem's girls' softball squad rocked in rocking chairs for 24 straight hours in the Salem cafeteria last weekend.

Both activities lasted from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 p.m. Saturday - and each event raised a lot of money to help maintain these athletic programs.

The Chief cagers raised approximately $1,500 in pledges, according to rookie coach Phyllis Cunningham. This was the second year the girls participated in the 24-hour event, which included two hours of action against a 10-member squad from the Observer Newspapers

The Rock batters received approximately. $1,000 in pledges, says second-year coach Rob Willette. This was the fourth-annual rocking event.

Thirty-five girls played basketball for Canton, while 29 Salem softballers rocked for the Rocks.

Library information on cable causes confusion

Cable television viewers beware -Omni-29, the library channel, contains information about ALL three libraries served by Omnicom of Michigan.

Area librarians are upset with Omnicom, the company which has the cable franchise in Plymouth-Canton-Northville, because they do not want to share a channel. They say it has caused confusion with residents in each respective community.

Omnicom officials said they want to service the libraries the best way possi-

Originally, Channel 29 was supposed to be the library and public access station, although librarians say Omnicom gave verbal commitments three years ago that each library in Plymouth, Canton and Northville would have its own separate station.

"I don't know about any verbal commitment," said Peter Newell, president of Omnicom, "but we'll do it any way they want us to do it.'

After meetings with Omnicom, public access was switched to Omni-8, Omnicom's channel for local/programming. Librarians still are angry, however, because they share Channel 29, causing a lot of confusion.

"We're still worried about confusion people calling us for someone else's program," said Deborah O'Connor, Canton's head librarian. A lack of communication exists between Omnicom and the libraries, said Pat Thomas, head librarian at Dunning-Hough in Plymouth

"We tried to impress upon him (Newell) that this was very confusing for people in our community," Thomas said about the combined station. "They (Omnicom) assumed some decisions without asking us what we actually wanted.

"I was very disturbed with the lack of communication.'

THE LIBRARIES have two different options, according to Newell. Channel 29 may be split so Plymouth residents see Plymouth library news and Canton residents see Canton library news, etc., but Omnicom only offers a limitedspace character generator (for messages) for a split channel, Newell said.

The libraries decided, therefore, to share the channel on an experimental basis' only — because Omnicom does offer a character generator large enough to get messages on the one channel.

Canton messages are coded in green, Plymouth in blue, and Northville in Omnicom does not have to offer any equipment to the libraries, according to its contract.

"It's really choice," Newell said 'And we're trying to do it any way they want to. They didn't seem upset at the meeting. They seemed willing to test

Rico tries to sniff out bank robbers The Federal Bureau of Investigation continues to look into a robbery of a credit union in Westland in which two armed men escaped with more than $7,000 in cash. "There are no arrests, no suspects," said Mark Codd, a spokesman for the FBI. "We have some concrete leads that have to be followed out."

Faust, Brown differ on state tax proposals

Local officials are dubious about the outcome of the governor's recent plea for a income-tax increase combined with further budget cuts to offset a state deficit estimated at more than $550 million.

Gov. Milliken had hoped that a 0.7-percent hike in the income tax would become effective April 1, but state Senator William Faust, D-Westland, said recently "that the dust hasn't settled" yet from the legislative reaction following the governor's tele-

Faust, whose district includes Canton, said that legislators would take a holiday recess April 8-19 to discuss the governor's proposals.

The governor also had proposed cuts of $58 million in state revenue-sharing funds to cities and of $35 million in state aid to school districts.

Wayne-Westland school officials are taking a wait-and-see attitude toward the plan.

FAUST, WHO is also Senate majority leader, said his personal position is that "something is

The senator said the state is paying $85 million a year on the debt's interest. Faust hopes the state can find a way to "take a short-term debt and pay it off over a long term."

The borrowing is necessary to meet the state's cash-flow requirements, he said.

"The mood in the Senate is that the budget can't be cut any more, particularly in public schools," he

Support for K-12 schools has gone from 30 percent to 12 percent of the state budget and is projected to reach zero in two years, Faust said.

Discussing welfare benefits, he said persons on general assistance receive only $90 a month.

Roller-skating fanatics - all 493 of them - skated and skated and skated for more than 19 hours at the Skatin' Station on Ronda Drive last weekend. And all their effort went to a very at 11:30 p.m., Saturday and skated thoughout the early morning hours and all day until 6:30 p.m. Sunday to help raise more than $15,000 for Easter Seals.

Skaters raised pledges before beginning the marathon session. Channel 4, WDIV-TV in Detroit, was on hand to broadcast the rink's activities to viewers throughout metropolitan Detroit.

ROBERT ZUENER, 15, of Canton was the grand prize winner, gathering the highest number of pledges. Todd Hance, 8, of Canton, topped all skaters with pledges in the 8-years-andunder age division. Jason Ward, 11, of Canton won the 9-12 division, Bonnie Waresuka, 17, of Westland was the top pledge-getter in the 17-20 category, and John Scully, 23, of Novi, won the 21-and-over division.

SKATIN' STATION officials said they would like to thank the following bands and residents for volunteering their help with entertainment throughout the marathon: Rampage; Full House; Mugsy; Ron Parker; Billy Elvis; Connie Farell and Sweet Adalines; Steve Lucas Band; Mean the Magician and Barbara; Ann Erickson; Julie Sheedy; Chuck Kazalah; Jackie Smock; Ben Hambrick; Judy Sheemann; Barb Carpenter; Sue McElray; Pat Gresock; James Briolat; Gary Haight and his talking duck; and the security force from the International Cadet Squadron, 16-6 Civil Air Patrol Security.

College money woes

Schoolcraft tuition may rise

Schoolcraft College trustees may increase student tuition and call for a small property tax increase unless the Michigan Legislature restores a $1.3 million cut in state-aid ordered by Gov. Milliken.

Final action awaits a board of trustees hearing sometime in June. The board last week gave 7-0 approval to a revenue projection required by state law. Tuition for residents of the college district could rise from $22 to $25 per credit hour, according to comptroller A.H. Raby. In addition, the board would be asked to nullify a property tax rate rollback required under the state constitution's 1978 tax limitation amendment Under this plan, the 1981-82 college property tax rate for operations and for debt service - totaling 1.894 mills - would be raised to 1.96 mills. The resultant increase would be a new tax of 6.6 cents per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

ON MARCH 10, Gov. Milliken announced that the state faced a budget deficit of more than $500 million for the current year. He ordered withholding one-quarter of the state's annual appropriations to two- and four-year colleges.

In Schoolcraft's case, the lost revenue will amount to $1.3 million, Raby said, To continue services at their present level will require $15.4 million in revenue, he said. But with the a state-aid cut, revenues will total only $14.7 million. The "shortfall": more than $700,000

A tuition increase of $3 per credit hour would narrow the gap by $450,000, he estimated. Growth of the property tax base and the 6.6 cents per $1,000 of SEV rate increase would largely close the gap.

ACTUALLY, the board would be levying only the full 1.77 mills authorized by voters over the years, Raby said. "This legislation requires the use of terms such as 'increasing property taxes' and 'proposed additional millage rate.' These terms are all misleading. New new millage is being levied," he said in a memo to the board.

"In essence, all that is accomplished is a recovery of prior levied millage because of a legislated reduction.'

The projected budget of $15.7 millon (including debt services) would come from these revenue sources: property txes, $6.9 million or 44 percent; tuition and fees, $4.4 million or 28 percent; state aid, $3.8 million or 24 percent; and other sources, less than $1 million or 4 percent.

In his original budget-cut message, Milliken talked of restoring the one-quarter state-aid cut Oct 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year. If this is done, the tuition hike could be avoided, Raby said.

IN OTHER business, the board of trustees last week: Scheduled a "planning workshop" for the board for the evening of April 16 and most of April 17 in the Holiday Inn and Holidome Livonia West, Six Mile at I-275. The sessions are open to the public under the state's Open Meetings Act.

SAT. 9-5

The Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) would like to publicly thank the Thursday night, March 4, Pinocchio ticket holders for being so understanding and flexible about coming to the make-up performance on Sunday, March 7.

When the schools closed down early that day due to bad weather, our production could not be given because everything scheduled in the schools that. for their cooperation. evening was cancelled.

We called many radio and television stations, announced it in the schools, and called the many Scout leaders who were bringing groups that night to explain the change.

Undoubtedly all ticket holders were inconvenienced, as we ourselves were, and we wish to thank all those involved

The 50-member CEP Symphony Orchetra, directed by H. Michael Endres, traveled to Saline High School where they were evaluated on concert and sight reading performances.

· All three concert judges, who are professional musicians, gave the orchestra a "I" rating while the sight reading judge gave the orchestra a "II"

The combined performance and sight reading scores added up to an overall "I" rating.

The festival is sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

Brown recently introduced House Bills 5486 and 5487 which would grant credits on residents' personal-income-

Car making affects entire U.S. economy

economic situation in this country would be in chaos, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

Continued erosion of the domestic auto industry - spurred by imports, high wage rates and high interest rates - threatens the country's entire industrial base, says AIC.

Automobile manufacturing is a major consumer of the products of the basic industries, taking 20 percent of the nation's steel production, 30 percent of ferrous castings, 26 percent of flat glass, 60 percent of synthetic rubber, 11 percent of aluminum, 6 percent of plastics and 9 percent of paint.

THEREFORE, WHEN a car is not sold, or when an import is sold, the basic industries suffer proportionately, as do the companies and employees in the component-making businesses. The auto slowdown has placed

Without automobile production, the 200,000 auto workers on indefinite layoff, and they have been joined by 400,000 in the supplier industries. In addition, more than 2,000 dealers went out of business in a year. Squeezed by high import sales and high U.S. labor rates, the auto companies have suffered huge financial losses and have had to postpone and cancel plans for new job-producing factories.

THE CAR makers, therefore, are seeking some wage relief to narrow the $8 to $10 per hour differential between the U.S. auto worker and his Japanese counterpart. That spread, plus Japanese tax exemptions, allows a Japanese smaller car to be landed on our shores for an average cost $1,500 under our Changes must occur or the U.S. auto industry, and the basic industries, will go further downhill, says AIC, and that would be felt by every American.

Far beyond goal

Students at West Middle School recently far exceeded the goal set to raise $2,000 for the Michigan Heart Association with the Jump Rope For Heart marathon when they collected $3,447.83. The funds were raised by some 80 students at West, according to marathon coordinator Rick Wilson, physical ed teacher at West. Members of the winning team, which raised $471.39, were Shawn Santo, Rich McConnell, Scott Bendickson, Dave Zdeb, Chris Rye and Kari Gran. Shown above jumping are Kim Curran (left) and Tonya Banback. Proceeds will benefit the heart association in its effort to combat heart and blood vessel diseases through research, risk factor education, CPR training, and pro-

Rep. Roy Smith unveils tax shift to aid school districts

By Tim Richard staff writer

The Michigan Education Association has been over it and likes it.

The Farm Bureau has written some of the language and likes it. The Michigan Townships Association

(MTA) will actively push it. And this time state Rep. Roy Smith, R-Saline, thinks he finally has a winner - a ballot proposal to cut school operating property taxes that can't be evaded by the Legislature and can win at the polls. "If legislators are boxed in, they'll perform," Smith said last week as he unveiled the proposal to the Michigan

Municipal League. "I have them so boxed in they'll have to perform." He added: "We would make education the state's No. 1 priority."

SMITH BOASTS the support of 30 cosponsors of his House Resolution S but admits aloud, "It probably won't go anywhere in the Legislature." So with the help of Rep. Claude Trim, D-Davisburg, and the 6,500 officials from 1,225 townships, he is seeking some 450,000 petition signatures to put his lengthy constitutional amendment on the state ballot. Main provisions:

• The first 75, percent of school property taxes would be removed from homesteads and resident farms. Limits: $1,800 for houses, $2,500 for farms.

• Persons age 62 and older would pay zero school operating taxes on homesteads.

· Farms would have to be assessed for farm use, even if in the path of a development. "The Farm Bureau attorneys wrote the language," Smith said.

• The state would have to reimburse each school district 100 percent for lost property taxes. Legislators could not take the money from other public education - universities, fouryear colleges and community colleges. Total cost: $1.5 billion.

• The sales tax would be raised to 5 percent from 4 percent, and "circuit breaker" rebates would be eliminated. Total revenue and savings: about $1 billion

• The remaining $520 million would have to be raised by the Legislature. either by cutting other non-school state spending or by increasing the personal income tax as much as 0.8 percent. (Currently, the income tax rate is 4.6 percent; the Legislature is considering Gov. Milliken's proposal to raise it by 0.4 percent.)

• Election of local school boards. now provided by state law, would be guaranteed in the constitution. Local control of schools would also be constitutionally guaranteed.

"I KNOW of no organization which opposes it," Smith said.

Renters and businesses would be unaffected by the proposals he said, although renters would still be eligible to declare a portion of their rents as a state income tax deduction.

Some of the nearly 800 municipal league members - officials of cities and townships - voiced disapproval. Said one: "The schools want the best of two worlds. Cities, villages and counties are going through strains. The schools are losing population and need to be more efficient. If we give them a 'hold hantfiless' (guaranteed 100-percent reimbursement from the state for lost property taxes), we're not doing them any favor."

Robert Robinson, MTA executive director, said in a separate announcement. "Never before have the state coffers or the school funding system been in this kind of shape. Though we would have preferred to support a cut rather than a shift, we realize that this state is in deep trouble and can't afford it right now. "We feel it's time to base school funding more on ability to pay."

PROPERTY TAXES have been almost a 27-year concern of Smith. whose 52nd House District spreads across rural Washtenaw County and into Plymouth Township.

He was co-author of the Smith-Bullard proposal, a 1980 ballot plan that would have shifted school funding to the state income tax. Though supported actively by the MEA, the proposal received only about 20-percent support at the polls.

Smith is also known as author of PA 114, which requires equalization of local property assessments by class of property. The law was aimed at such industrial communities as Dearborn and Redford Township, where it caused major increases in residential assessments. Smith argued residential assessments were far too low.

He started his political career on the board of review of Ypsilanti Township in 1955 and later became township supervisor. In 1966 he was elected to the first of nine terms in the House. After a 1970 defeat, he was briefly city administrator of Saline until he won re-election in 1974. The 58-year-old lawmaker has announced he will not seek re-elec-

Roy Smith another try at polls

BPW urges ERA passage

To the editor:

On behalf of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's (BPW) Club. I urge you to do what you can to help us put the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) over the top.

BPW has supported this amendment since 1921 because we realize it's important to women obtain economic equality in this country.

By now everyone should know that all it says is that no government may pass a law discriminating against a person because that person is of one sex or the other. It does not interfere with non-government matters.

If anyone wonders why there has been so much opposition by the extreme right, the answer is not hard to find. There is a fear among them that if women reach economic equality with the men, they can no longer be used as cheap labor. Where else can they find such good labor for only 57 percent of what they would have to pay a man?

How can the insurance companies pay women less for the same premiums if they can no longer discriminate against them because they are women? All those who are reaping the benefits from exploiting and cheating women fear equality for them.

Nevertheless, there still are a lot of us who have not given up the dream that Americans believe in fairness. We urge all of them to write or call their relatives and friends in Florida, Illinois, and Virginia and get them to put pressure on their legislators to stop the backroom brokering and get on with the ratification of the amendment.

In the meantime, we urge everyone to write to Governor Robert Graham,

Speaks out on feelings of city

To the editor:

I've been procrastinating - it's time to speak out about my feelings for "my" city - Plymouth. I'm sure most people share this feeling.

I'm quite new in Plymouth - here only five years, yet I feel as though I've been here for years. I've been impressed from the beginning with the exciting activities in our Kellogg Park, with our wonderful symphony orchestra, the festivals. I can go on and on.

It's so nice to shop in the different stores in Plymouth, like "The Joy Book Shop," "Wayside," "Little Angels Shop" - I can go on and on, too many to mention, all of our merchants are so pleasant and helpful.

I want to thank all those who make our city so charming, dynamic and a joy to live in. A big thank you to our mayor, Eldon Martin, to our former mayor, Mary Childs, and to everyone in our city hall. Each one there is always so ready to help in a pleasant, efficient, and courteous way.

Also, thank you to our police chief, Carl Berry, and his police officers. To Roy Hall and his firefighters - they are tops.

Special thanks to all who so beautifully volunteer in so many ways to help others, especially those who help Plym-

Capitol, Tallahasee, Floria 32301 and outh senior citizens. Our city cares for its senior citizens and does something about it.

A very special thank you to our postal clerks who are always so helpful, courteous and pleasant despite occassional long lines of impatient folks. A special thanks to our wonderful mail carrier, Mary Byruda, who never fails to deliver our mail despite weather, and who helps us so nicely. All this reflects the terrific job our postmaster, Mr. Mulligan, is doing.

I must not forget our city maintenance people, they do such an outstanding job helping our city sparkle, removing all the snow. Thanks to their diligence our side streets, Kellogg and Deer and many others were passable during the "big snow."

We have the finest country in the world and live in one of the best cities. Let us show our appreciation, count our blessings, and thank God.

Heartworm cases increase; dogs can take 'liver pill'

There's good news and bad news for dog owners in the Plymouth-Canton community.

The bad news is that veterinarians have noted a 30 to 40 percent increase in heartworm in dogs tested late last year into the spring season (compared to figures of two years ago).

The good news is development of a preventive medication which the makers claim dogs love - a chewable, liver-flavored tablet which is a delicacy to the more than 90 percent of the dogs who have sampled it.

Dogs in western metropolitan area show larger incidence of heartworm than on the east side, according to Dr. Mary Beth Leininger, DVM, of Plym-

She attributes this to the waters of the Rouge flood plains which are a hatching place for mosquitoes.

"It's a rule of thumb that any dog which spends more than one hour a day outdoors is in great risk," she says.

"Because owners tend to leave longhaired dogs outdoors more than the short-haired breeds, more long-haired dogs develop heartworm."

Local veterinarians discover about 200 cases of heartworm in Plymouth-Canton dogs each year.

"A wet sumemr increases the danger," said Leininger who added that preventive medication should start May 1 and be continued on a daily basis until Dec. 1.

Immature heartworms travel through the bloodstream to the heart where they grow into adult heartworms up to 12 inches in length.

Early symptoms of the disease are decreased stamina and tolerance for exercise, shortness of breath, and coughing.

It takes up to six months from the time a dog is bitten by an infected mosquito until a veterinarian can detect the disease with a blood test.

Spring is the ideal testing time for Michigan dogs, says Leininger who added that the test can be performed in the veterinarian's office with just a small blood sample from the pet. If the test is negative (no heartworms present), preventive medication may be used during the mosqui-

Dog owners having preventive medication left over from last year should not use it until the dog has a negative blood test this year, she adds, as infected dogs may have a fatal shock reaction if they ingest the medication.

The Pit Stop Quick Oil Change shop has opened for business at 903 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth.

The Pit Stop, a new concept in car care, is owned by Jane and Derrick Oxender. The Plymouth shop is the third Pit Stop opened by the Oxenders in the past 18 months.

The first shop opened in Ann Arbor in in September 1980, and the second opened in Brighton in July!

The new Ann Arbor Road location is the former Plymouth Auto Wash and still offers two coin-operated car washes as well as two bays for the oil

The Pet Stop is geared to fill the gap created by the increase in self-service gasoline stations by offering a 10-minute oil change, lube, and the checking and filling of all fluids,

"You very rarely hear 'May I change your oil?' anymore," Oxender said. "This quick oil change idea began in California, where a lot of new ideas

"In as little as 10 minutes the customer can pull in," he added, "stay in their car, and get their oil changed, oil filter changed, all fluid levels checked and filled if needed (transmission, brake, power steering, brake, differential fluid, and washer solvent), and get the tires checked

"These fluids often are neglected, and some never are checked."

Each "pit" in the shop is a seven-foot deep hole the motorists drives over. Technicians work in the pit and on top so work on the top and bottom of the vehicle is done at the same time to get the job done faster. Hoists are not used.

The pit is stocked with filters, tools, grease and a drain. The old oil is stored and then sold to refineries. The new oil is in bulk, which is a lot faster method than opening cans of oil.

"With people concerned about keeping older cars on the road and their new ones in top condition, the Pit Stop has proved to be a great idea," Oxender

"A lot of people can't afford to be without their car most of the day while it's at the station or the dealership for an oil change," he said. "But they can come in to our shop on their lunch hour and eat in their car, or stop in before or after work.

The Pit Stop is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. An appointment is not needed.

PRESENTS PAPER

Dr. Donald W. Weaver, M.D., of Plymouth and David Bouwman, M.D., of East Detroit recently presented a paper on their findings concerning pancreatitis at the Central Surgical Association meeting in Chicago.

"Our research paper deveoped out of a screening procedure of patients seen in the ambulatory reception center at the Harper Hospital Division," said Weaver, a surgeon from Harper-Grace Hospital. "We noted that many patients thought to have acute pancreatitis had elevation of an enzyme (protein) known as amylase.

"To evaluate this, we began to study the isoamylase pattern of patients admitted with a diagnosis of pancreatitis. These were patients who had entered the hospital complaining of upper abdominal pain, nausea and vomiting and this elevation of amylase.

Weaver and Bouman found that a number of patients admitted for acute pancreatitis were found not to have it when the source of the amylase in their their blood was checked.

SEMCOG's executive committee last week unanimously picked Amberger to succeed Michael Glusac as top staff man in the seven-county voluntary planning organization.

Amberger, 51, of Detroit, has been deputy to Glusac since 1974, occupying an office next to Glusac on the eighth floor of the downtown Detroit office building. Amberger had previously been an aide to Detroit Mayor Roman Gribbs and director of the Detroit House of Correction. Terms of his salary were left up to SEMCOG's finance

NO OTHER candidates were considered, which bothered one SEMCOG delegate, Wayne County Commissioner William Sullivan of Ecorse. "A lot of people have made application," said

Other executive committee members, however, convinced Sullivan they should hire a known, qualified person

like Amberger rather than conduct a long search for a new person.

"I have seen SEMTA (transportation authority) go through a year of agony," said Saline Mayor Donald Shelton, referring to the SEMTA board's deadlock over four applicants. The SEMTA board last week finally voted to give its acting general manager, Gary Krause, a one-year contract as general manager, even though Krause had not sought

THE MEETING was called to consider Amberger for appointment as acting executive director and to issue a call for applicants for a permanent appointment.

But Shelton argued, "People are hesitant to deal with an acting director who may not be there tomorrow. An an acting director doesn't speak with a whole lot of authority."

Glusac will leave to become Chrysler Corp.'s director of intergovernmental and civic affairs, a job he said he hadn't sought but was asked to consider.

Builders ready for turnaround

By Suzie Rollins Singer

Getting the construction industry off the ground during 1982 isn't going to be easy, area builders contend, but they're using the power of positive thinking to help their cause.

"We've had two years of extreme recession in Michigan's building business and we're responding to that by thinking positively and talking up Michigan," said Robert E. Johnson, new president of the Builders Exchange of Detroit and Michigan.

Johnson Bloomfield Hills, is president of the firm of Etkin, Johnson & Korb, Inc., Oak Park. He spoke confidently Tuesday about how the industry will pull out of the worst slump since the Depression.

ABOUT 1,000 trades workers, builders and suppliers gathered in the Westin Hotel to hear about the new "Build up, Michigan" campaign.

Sporting a lapel button with the slogan, Johnson explained the group's five-point program to help the industry build up:

 In Michigan there is a huge amount of industrial expertise which has to be promoted.

• The metropolitan Detroit area and the state should be built up as good places to stay. Businesses existing in Michigan will be encouraged to remain and tough it out until the economy turns around

• 1982 is a good time for owners and users to build or expand in Michigan because there are good construction values right now and contractors need the work.

Public officials ought to reform the state's single business tax and tighten Michigan's unemployment insurance system. · Exchange members need to utilize all services provided by the association, including the teaching of more construction services. "We're taking an aggressive stance because we believe in Michigan," John-

Critics of the "positive approach" sald it sounded as if the builders were merely talking their way out of the recession, just like the auto workers. "If we take the position that things will never get better, then they won't,' Johnson retorted. "But we're ready for the turnaround. We have 2,500 members who are anxious. Adding to the industry's woes are labor negotiations this spring with hundreds of skilled trades workers. Johnson said that while builders would like to see tradesmen accept wage rate reductions, the subject of labor negotiations is out of the Exchange's control. Nearing the end of his postive approach talk, Johnson conceded that the true hope for an upsurge in building is lower interest rates. "We've got to see lower intrest rates. and when the magical date for the eco-

Mountain Jacks Claims Four Special Steaks

Special occasions are made even more special at Mountain Jacks restaurants by four unusual house specialties. These include a Filet Mignon stuffed with seasoned mushrooms, wrapped in bacon, charbroiled and then smothered with mushrooms sautéed in Chablis wine-butter. The Crab-Stuffed New Yorker features a New York strip steak stuffed with a tempting mixture of crabmeat, mushrooms, butter and parsley, charbroiled and heaped with mushrooms sautéed in brandied-butter. And, the Peppercorn Filet Mignon, a gourmet-tender filet, wrapped in bacon and coated in freshly cracked peppercorns. The popular Beef Feast For Two offers the three cuts beef lovers prefer, top sirloin, filet mignon, and prime rib.

In addition to the house specialties, the menu offers more than 15 cuts of beef, fresh fish and seafood entrées.

The five Mountain Jacks restaurants, located in Troy, Farmington Hills, Warren, Ann Arbor, and Dearborn Heights, last fall introduced a new specialty menu. Since that time customer comments have ranged from "outstanding" to "truly unique," according to local managers. Two of the locations, Warren and Dearborn Heights, were formerly known as Stag & Hound. While ownership and management remain the same, the names of the restaurants have been changed to provide continuity and eliminate any confusion caused by restaurants of different names serving identical menus.

J. Ross Browne's... A Seafood Success Story

SOUTHFIELD...The old Shakespearian question, "What is in a name?," is being asked these days at Southfield's J. Ross Browne's, formerly known as the Dry Dock. Those who enjoyed the Dry Dock may be wondering if their old favorite by any other name would be as good.

The answer to that question, from J. Ross Browne's

SOUTHFIELD...St. Patrick's Day revelers at Carlos Murphy's Irish-Mexican Cafe found there was no blarney about the popular restaurant/lounge's "Pot of Gold" celebration held March 17-21.

Thousands of happy celebrants stole a coin from the Leprechaun's Pot of Gold during the four-day gala. As it happened, every participant was a winner! For some guests, the coin they plucked from the pot earned them a free Irish Stew dinner. To others, the coin meant a discount of food and drink or a tiny St. Patrick's Leprechaun.

Eight guests pulled genuine one ounce gold Krugerrands from the pot. The lucky winners were Richard T. McQuesten, James Gressler, James F. Vlk, Terry Berlin, Jeri Bailey, Adrianne Firsten, David Pesick and Eleanor Von Schmittou.

As the wearin' o' the green gives way to the wearin' of Easter Bonnets, Carlos Murphy's patrons will be able to participate in a special Easter Egg hunt. Beginning Easter Day, April 11, everyone who visits CM's will receive an Easter Egg hunt card. Crafty Easter Egg sleuths will be asked to peruse 6 "scratch off" Easter Eggs to determine a prize.

The best part of this hunt is that everyone is a winner! Informed sources revealed that behind each egg is a prize which could be any number of food discount prizes.

When asked to comment on the Carlos Murphy's event, the Easter Rabbit was heard to exclaim, "This will be the only place in town where I can get more bunny for the money!"

Mt. Everest, anyone? Here's your chance

Travelers start getting restless at the first sign of spring. The snow melts, and we immediately begin to think about climbing unclimbable mountains, rafting wild and scenic rivers and flying away to exotic places.

Brochures from Mountain Travel are just what we need to launch us into adventure travel. They have announced the first Mountain Medicine Trek for May 18 to June 10. It will be led by Dr. Richard Wohns, a Yale medical school graduate and currently a resident in neurosurgery at the University of Washington.

The trek is for people interested in wilderness medicine and high-altitude physiology. The group will fly from Kathmandu, the capital of Nepal, to a 9,000-foot-high mountain airstrip and then trek for 18 days to the Everest Base Camp.

On the way, they will visit Sherpa villges, Buddhist monasteries and a small field hospital established by Sir Edmund Hillary.

The second Mountain Medicine Trek will be led Oct. 10 to Nov. 6 by Peter Hackett, who has spent many years studying high-altitude physiology in Nepal and has authored a book called "Mountain Sickness: Prevention, Recognition and Treatment."

For more information on this exotic, specialized travel adventure, send $2 for a copy of the 72-page 1982 Mountain Travel catalog, complete with maps and itineraries, to Mountain Travel, 1398 Solano Ave., Albany, CA 94706.

If you'd like something just as strenuous and exotic, but not as specialized, you might be interested in one of the first off-the-beaten-path trips offered in China.

Mountain Travel fielded the first treks to China in 1980 with its trips to Mt. Minya Konka (24,950 feet) in Sichuan Province. In 1981, they were the first westerners to explore the Anyemagen Mountains in Qinghai Province.

This year, they will explore the northern side of K2, which, at 28,740 feet, is the second highest mountain in the world. It is part of the Himalayas of the Chinese Karakorum. No American has ever been there.

For an Adventures in China brochure, contact Mountain Travel at the same address given above.

THE NATIONAL Audubon Society is offering adventure travel at a much more moderate speed: one- and two-week summer vacations in some of the wildest and best-preserved parts of Maine, Wisconsin, Wyoming and Connecticut.

You can discover the wilderness, enjoy daily field trips and informal classes and generally enjoy nature. Meals are served family style.

Accommodations are simple but comfortable.

Small groups of adults work together to learn about plants, birds, weather, rocks or nature photography from Audubon naturalists. Optional activities include swimming, rock climbing, fishing, canoeing and just plain leafing.

It costs $575 per person for two-week sessions in a wildlife sanctuary and nature center in Greenwich, Conn., or $320 for one-week sessions in the north woods of Wisconsin or the Wind River Mountains of Wyoming. Sessions are from June 20 to Aug. 20. Contact Audubon Camps, 4150 Darley St., Boulder, CO 80303.

Mary Augusta Rodgers of Birmingham is a freelance writer who publishes regularly in magazines such as Woman's Day and Gourmet. In this article, she gives us a personal account of places explored during a recent trip to California.

By Mary Augusta Rodgers special writer

HIS IS an account of a brief and hastily planned trip to California, and the wonderful variety we encountered,— in scenery and places to stay— without really trying.

Our first stop was Los Angeles, where we stayed at the Century Plaza Hotel, one of the Westin chain; it's big, standard, full of conventions, comfortable and pleasant. Outside, there's a small plaza with flowers, a fountain and flags, and, across the street, a mall with theaters, shops and restaurants.

We liked Harry's Bar, a replica of the famous place with the same name in Florence, Italy, and recommend the Beefsteak Harry's, or Breast of Chicken "Take It Off." One block north, there's another shopping center, with stores like Bullock's and I. Magnin's.

THE STREET itself is wide, lined with palms and eucalyptus trees, and named The Avenue of the Stars.

Walk south, past Galaxy Way to Pico Boulevard, turn right and you will soon see a gate marked Twentieth Century Fox and, beyond the fence, outlines of movie sets; the rooftops of Paris, New York tenements, a New England chapel, a western stagecoach stop.

Turn left on Motor Avenue, and there's a public golf course and a onemile jogging track with 18 exercise stops. Something for everybody, as the saying goes.

The next day, we left for Santa Barbara, about a two-hour drive north. Holiday House (it's said that the song "Ebbtide" was written here) and the Chart House, both in Malibu, are good places for lunch, with splendid views, they've been used as background in so many movies and TV shows that, if you go to one and feel you've see the place before, you're probably right.

In Santa Barbara, we stayed at the Bath Street Inn, an 1873 Victorian House that's been completely redone to offer bed and braakfast accommodations. It's on a quiet residential street, not far from downtown Santa Barbara, and bicycles are available without charge. Depending on the weather, guests can have their breakfast by the parlor fireplace, in the cozy kitchen, or outside in the garden.

SANTA BARBARA is lush and lovely, the site of great estates and gardens, much Spanish-style architecture and the world's longest traffic light (a full four minutes) at the intersection of State Street and Highway 101.

The two best restaurants, we were told, are Norbert's and Penelope's. The University of California's Santa Barbara campus is actually in Goleta, which also has beautiful beaches, gorgeous young people who spend a lot of their time wind surfing, and a hillside avocado ranch that looks like the Garden of Eden

One restaurant is called the Elegant Farmer, and another, Hobey Baker's, is reputed to have the best salad bar in town. (The real Hobey Baker was a famous hockey and football star of Princeton, class of 1914, who was killed in a plane crash at the end of World War I.)

The third day, we adrove north toward Big Sur, stopping in San Luis, Obispo for lunch at the Cafe Roma. It's a cheerful crowded and appealing place with an Italian menu—the most popular place in town, a young couple at the next table told us. (They were celebrating the birth of their second child and had the three-day-old baby with them.)

Soon afterwards, the road turned mountainous, with some stomach-tight-ening turns, and the scenery spectacular. Dark clouds lifted, and the weather was suddenly sunny and warm when we arrived at Ventana, a great getaway-from-it-all place about 30 miles from Carmel.

IT'S HARD to imagine a more beautiful location, in the foothills of the Santa Lucia mountains, with the jagged rocks and pounding surf of the Big Surz coastline not far away.

There's a cluster of redwood buildings which contains the reception room — dominated by a huge stone fireplace — and 40 guest bedrooms done in cool, clear colors, with contemporary furniture, Franklin stoves, framed art posters and big, glossy plants. The restaurant is a short walk away, along a winding private road; nearby, there's a heated swimming pool and Japanese hot tubs where, as the desk clerk explained, "dress is optional."

It's a hard place to leave. A long walk along the beach the next morning, and then it was time for lunch at Nepenthe, a restaurant perched on a cliff overlooking the ocean.

The view from the terrace, where you sit at long communal tables, is irresistable, and the people-watching possibilities aren't bad, either.

WE HAD THE cheese and fruit plate with a carafe of wine, and the temptation was just to stay there forever, basking in the sun.

So we were late and arrived in San Francisco during the worst of the rush hour traffic, but it was worth it — especially the last stop at Point Lobos to see the sea lions. (No whales in sight that day, though.)

We stayed in a small hotel in a good location, the Beresford, which has small but comfortable rooms at bargain rates.

gain rates.

Friends who live in town took us to dinner at Adolph's on Vallejo Street, where we had a delicious dinner. A creation of chicken and veal, with cheese, artichokes, mushrooms and a herb-flavored sauce is one of the specialities here. (There are enough small, excellent, not-well-known restaurants in San Francisco to drive visitors crazy, and Adolph's is one of them.)

WE SPENT our last two days in Berkeley and stayed at Grandma's, a bed and breakfast inn we'd visited before. It's as charming as ever, and often filled to capacity, so we were glad to know that the owners have recently opened a new place, near the U-C campus; it's handsomely done in the modern European style, and called the French Hotel.

One restaurant in Berkeley, the Fourth Street Grill, deserves special mention; it's a bright, unpretentious place, very popular locally, and with good reason.

There's a Creole flavor in some of the selections; a good gumbo z'herbes, and a'muffaletta sandwich. coastille.

Cable TV offers little in local programming

SN'T IT ANNOYING to watch local programming on your cable television? Don't you find it irritating when the camera continually moves as it tries to focus on the set?

And isn't it frustrating when you tune in your audio, but that nagging, rasping sound stays with the person speaking on the program?

This is typical of the local programming offered by Omnicom of Michigan, the low-budget company which charges high subscription rates to residents in Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

But before you start feeling sorry for yourself—because you live in a community which must cope with Omnicom—think about those poor souls in your local governmental municipalities.

Officials were so anxious to get into the cable TV business three years ago, they forgot to do their research.

And now everyone will suffer in the long run.

It is now clear no one in these communities knew a thing about cable television when Omnicom made its pitch to offer programming to this area.

Tim Richard

If Reagan slashes aid to students...

"If financial aid is dismantled, an economically elite group will once again populate college campuses."

- A University of Michigan-Dearborn official

"I wonder if Mr. Reagan intends that minorities should study in prisons rather than colleges or universities."

— U-M student

"Currently, 12,000 of the U-M's 45,000 students now receive some form of financial assistance through five federal loan and grant programs.". The U-M stands to lose 63 percent of its current federal support for these programs if Congress approves the budget submitted by President Reagan last month."

— Michigan Alumnus magazine

College students are sweating. Lower-middle-income, low-income, female and minority students know that President Reagan is proposing 25 percent of federal funds to aid collegians be cut.

But the scare literature emanating from my beloved alma mater and other colleges addresses the problem as if federal aid were the only solution. It isn't

EVEN BEFORE the Headles amendment to the Michigan Constitution was adopted in 1978, state government was practicing tax limitation. (Those whopping tax increases were local property taxes, not state taxes.)

As a nervous legislature held tax rates down during the '70s, college boards turned to another source of revenue: tuition and fees.

Juitions were raised faster than the general price level. Since the day I attended my first class in Ann Arbor, the price level has risen about 400 to 500 percent. Meanwhile, undergraduate tuition has risen nearly 1,100 percent.

Reagan owes us a sound national defense, regulation of interstate commerce and judicial appointments. Those are in the U.S. Constitution. He does not owe us college education money.

State government owes us a college system. Willis F. Dunbar, in his landmark history of Michigan, wrote: "A system of public education beyond the common school and reaching to the college level was clearly envisioned in the act of 1817 establishing the Catholepistemiad or University of Michigan."

As college tuitions outstripped our earning power, the federal government stepped in with a myriad of programs: Pell grants, supplemental education opportunity grants, college work study, national direct student loans, student incentive grants.

Much of the money does not, of course, aid students. The students turn around and pay it to the

THERE ARE two other alternatives to making college education more affordable, if Reagan and Congress choose not to help.

First, we could consider whether colleges in Michigan have priced themselves out of the market by paying the help too much. As long as the Michigan Legislature is talking about holding welfare payments down to the levels of Ohio and Indiana, it may as well look at faculty salaries.

Frankly, I doubt much will come of that alterna-

Second, we could raise the state income tax about one-quarter of one percent and use the $125 million in new revenue to replace the federal programs aiding college students. Such an increase would cost a family with a taxable income of $25,000 some $62,50 a year or $1.20 a week.

considering that the Reagan federal income tax cut will start yielding Michiganians $2 billion a year beginning July 1, we can certainly afford to plow $125 million of that back into aiding needy college students.

Doc's corner

Dennis O'Connor

WHEN OMNICOM was busy luring government officials to buy its package, there were verbal promises galore.

Unfortunately, someone — in all three communities — forgot to put it in writing.

Take, for example, the latest flap between Omnicom and the libraries.

Everyone in the Plymouth and Canton libraries was convinced each place would get its own library station for local messages and programming.

But wait! That's right — nobody put it in writing.
Omnicom officials now don't know about any oral agreement. Originally, Omnicom asked not one, but all three, libraries to share only one channel with public access programming which features residents coming to the Omnicom studio to voice opinions

The librarians balked at this arrangement, and — after a lot of pressure — public access was switched to Omni-8, the channel which features programs with moving cameras, raspy voices and other low-budget goodies.

Now the librarians still are upset. They got public access off their channel, but all the programming remains on Channel 29 — confusing many residents in the area.

Of course, the librarians can split the channel into thirds — Plymouth receiving Plymouth library news, Canton receiving Canton library news, etc. But then there's the problem of limited space on each split.

So why doesn't Omnicom offer a channel with enough space to split each community?

Simple. Omnicom doesn't offer the high-budget equipment to split the channel.

And the sad fact remains that Omnicom by contract doesn't have to provide any equipment or other natural cable services which surrounding communities may receive from competing companies.

SO, THE NEXT time you sit down for an evening of cable television, enjoy the movie station or the 24-hour sports and music channels.

But don't turn on the local programming, unless you want to get dizzy from the camera movement or get a headache from the rasp in your ears.

And certainly don't turn on the government channels, unless you like messages which only give viewers partial information.

Cable television was supposed to provide fantastic local visual and audio aids for residents when it came to this area, wasn't it?

So why is it Omnicom of Michigan is doing all the

Pressure to win hits preps, too

The national college basketball tournament ended Monday night. North Carolina defeated Georgetown to become college champion of 1982.

Attention was diverted from the tournament last week when one prominent coach, Digger Phelps of Notre Dame, charged that the standard rate for paying top college players is $10,000 per year.

This bombshell alarmed college coaches and administrators. They had maintained for years the myth of the "amateur" student-athlete. They'd like people to believe that students attend classes, go to basketball practice and then rush home to prepare for the next day's classes. According to this myth, sports is just one of many extracurricular activities available to any student.

REALITY is different. Athletics at many universities is big business.

For example, the teams in Monday's national basketball finals took home more than $300,000 each. Outstanding basketball and football teams net millions of dollars in sales of tickets, concessions, parking and souvenirs for their schools. Alumni are happier about contributing money when their school has a winning program.

This emphasis on winning puts overwhelming pressure on coaches to attract top athletes. If that sometimes means athletes have to be "helped" in passing classes or paying bills, well.

IT'S EASY to criticize a distant university. But it's comfortable thinking that nothing like that is going on in our home towns. Or is it?

Two weeks ago, Bill Croteau, the coach at Bishop Borgess High in Redford, was fired. His boss, Athletic Director Ralph Owen, said at the time, "Bill Croteau is a fine man, but we wanted to give someone else a chance. It's not that we were dissatisfied. It's just that we want to see if someone else can't get the program turned around."

Translated, that means Croteau did not win enough. Doesn't that sound like the description of big-time college athletics?

From all reports, Croteau is a fine man. He loves kids and has outstanding personal qualities. He's the kind of guy any parent would want to coach his child

Yet he was fired at Bishop Borgess. Croteau's record last season was 8-13. As he says, "I just don't believe it's all winning and losing." Bishop Borgess' officials apparently think differently.

In a series of articles currently running in our sports section, writer C.J. Risak describes the life of a high school coach in this area's Catholic League.

That includes watching many elementary school basketball games and trying to persuade the parents of 12- and 13-year-old boys to send their children to the coach's school. This is permitted by the ducements such as scholarships may be offered to same thing.

But that's what happens when the "win at all cost" philosophy works its way down from the professionals, to college, to high school and now to grade school.

Don't delude yourself into believing the evil of big-time athletics is not close to home.

Moments in history

An odd month, this April

And a wacky April Fool's Day to you.

For a month that starts with a gag and tricks,

April almost always straightens out and flies right. And along the way, it has had its share of historic moments — almost unmatched by any other month.

Just for the fun of it, The Stroller did a little research, and here are some of the events that helped make April one of the most unusual months on the calendar. For instance:

On April 8, 1775, Paul Revere made his famous ride through the night with the clarion cry "The British are coming." Just how many he awakened isn't known. But it is a matter of record that he aroused someone — namely the British patrol which captured him.

On April 14, 1910, President William Howard Taft, of all people, began the custom of throwing out the first ball to open the baseball season. He did it in Washington. Walter Johnson, the famed pitcher, caught it and hurled a one-hitter.

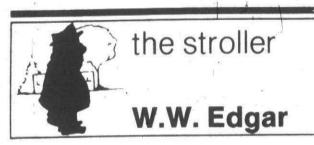

On April 5, 1915, Jess Willard knocked out Jack Johnson in Havana to win the world's heavyweight boxing title. Willard never won respect because Johnson was pictured covering his eyes to guard against the sun while laying on his back being counted out in the 26th round.

On April 5, 1980, Sparky Anderson, the Detroit Tigers manager, proudly said the club would win 90 games. It didn't, finishing fifth.

ON APRIL 25, 1792, there was an oddity in France when a fellow lost his head. Many a fellow has lost his head in gay Paree, but this fellow lost it the hard way — by guillotine.

On April 5, 1926, The Stroller got his first byline on the sports pages of the Detroit Free Press, proving that, after two years, he had made good.

On April 18, 1923, the New York Yankees opened their new home, Yankee Stadium. It was looked upon as "the house that Ruth built." The Babe did his part in the celebration. He hit a homer — the first in the new home.

On April 30, 1922, something unusual happened at Navin Field. The old-time Tiger rooters never will forget the day Charlie Robinson of the Chicago White Sox pitched a perfect game — no runs, no hits, no runner reaching first base.

roll call report

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 18-24.

HOUSE

FDR MEMORIAL - By a vote of 288-107, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill that is the first step toward creating a "living memorial" to President Franklin D. Robsevelt at Warm Springs, Ga. The federal unit would include a rehabilitative center utilizing the healing spring water that drew Roosevelt, a polio victim, to Warm Springs. The bill authorizes a study of the FDR memorial expected to cost $100,000 to $150,000.

Supporter Bo Ginn, D-Ga, said that as a former polio victim who also received treatment at Warm Springs, he "can visualize no more fitting memorial to the late president."

Opponent Larry McDonald, D-Ga., criticized the bill as "another in a growing number of bills . . . to commemorate the myth that FDR saved our free enterprise system from going socialist and saved the world from a totalitarian dictatorship. Nothing could be further from the truth.'

Members voting "yea" favored creating the FDR memorial at Warm Springs.

Reps David Bonior, D-Mount Clemens; William Ford, D-Taylor; William Brodhead, D-Detroit; James Blanchard, D-Pleasant Ridge; and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham voted "yea." Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, did not vote.

MONEY - The House passed, 299-103, a "continuing resolution" appropriating money to fund the government for the remainder of the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30. The stopgap funding is needed because the House and Senate have failed to enact most of the regular appropriations bills for fiscal 1982. Debate centered on claims that continuing resolutions abuse the budget process. Critics said stopgap funding permits committees to shirk their fiscal responsibilities and to avoid confronting tough issues like busing, abortion and budget-cutting. The bill was sent to the Senate.

A Land to be to the to be to be a good and the pass and the best of the state of the second of the s

Supporter Silvio Conte, R-Mass., said it was necessary for Congress to set definite spending levels for the next six months. "If we cannot continue . . . in an orderly procedure, at least let us let the rest of the country go on in an orderly procedure," he Opponent J.J. Pickle, D-Tex., said "we are here to continue continuing our (previous) continuing rsolution. At what point do we say 'stop the merrygo-round?"

Members voting yes favored stopgap funding through Sept. 30.

Bonior, Ford and Blanchard voted "yea." Pursell and Broomfield voted "nay.

SENATE CONGRESSIONAL VETO - By a vote of 69-25, the Senate adopted an amendment empowering Congress to void an executive branch regulation if simple majorities in the House and Senate vote to kill the regulation. The legislative veto could be used against virtually all federal agencies except the Defense Department and the Internal Revenue Service. It was attached to a regulatory reform bill that was headed for final passage and the House. Supporter Carl Levin, D-Mich. said the measure was needed to reign in the "faceless (executive branch) desicion-makers . . . who owe no allegiance to the constituents" and who are concerned with "rules rather than results."

Opponent Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the Senate should not now move into this delicate Constitutional area because "it is clear that the Supreme Court will pass on some or all of the intricate arguments over legislative veto in the near future . . . "

Senators voting "yea" favored the amendment strengthening Congress' power to counter executive branch regulations it doesn't like.

Levin, D, voted "yea." Democratic Sen. Don Riegle did not vote.

ALLOCATING OIL - By a vote of 58-36, the Senate failed to override President Reagan's veto of a bill giving him standby powers to allocate oil supplies and set prices in the event the nation again runs perilously low on oil supplies. To override the veto, two-thirds of those senators voting (63) had to vote "yea." The veto stands; a House vote is not

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., a supporter of the standby authority and foe of the veto, said that if a shortage recurs, senators siding with the president "will have a very big questions to answer with the American people. . . . "Why didn't you put a plan, an emergency plan, on the shelf when you had a right and opportunity to do so?"

Opponent Don Nickles, R-Olka., said the veto should be upheld because it fits with the president's "reliance on the marketplace, not on more government allocations and government controls to be able to solve the problems."

SEMCOG promotes Amberger to chief in the Book Building April 12 when he becomes executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Govern-

SEMCOG's executive committee last week unanimously picked Amberger to succeed Michael Glusac as top staff man in the seven-county voluntary planning organization.

Amberger, 51, of Detroit, has been deputy to Glusac since 1974, occupying an office next to Glusac on the eighth floor of the downtown Detroit office building. Amberger had previously been an aide to Detroit Mayor Roman Gribbs and director of the Detroit House of Correction. Terms of his salary were left up to SEMCOG's finance committee.

NO OTHER candidates were considered, which bothered one SEMCOG delegate, Wayne County Commissioner William Sullivan of Ecorse. "A lot of people have made application," said Sullivan.

Other executive committee members, however, convinced Sullivan they should hire a known, qualified person

John Amberger will move next door like Amberger rather than conduct a long search for a new person.

"I have seen SEMTA (transportation authority) go through a year of agony," said Saline Mayor Donald Shelton, referring to the SEMTA board's deadlock over four applicants. The SEMTA board last week finally voted to give its acting general manager, Gary Krause, a one-year contract as general manager, even though Krause had not sought the post.

THE MEETING was called to consider Amberger for appointment as acting executive director and to issue a call for applicants for a permanent appointment.

But Shelton argued, "People are hesitant to deal with an acting director who may not be there tomorrow. An an acting director doesn't speak with a whole lot of authority.'

Glusac will leave to become Chrysler Corp.'s director of intergovernmental and civic affairs, a job he said he hadn't sought but was asked to consider.

That led Shelton to quip: "Mike's going from one public agency to anoth-

Pedestrian strip needed for kids

To the editor:

After reading your article on the local teacher planning days I took your suggestion and decided to write what I think about the Centennial Educational Park, etc.

After being a roving and stationary teacher in this state since 1956 I feel qualified to mention my past 12 years of observation of the school children and community I have resided while experiencing teacher training sessions elsewhere after being a noted educator in Montreal and Detroit. I have a long personnel file of recommendations in both systems written by nonpartial observers of my worth in the schools where I was assigned.

Walking to school is a worthwhile experience where students rap about everything at home and in school. Frustrations are eased. The much-reported "new" attendance policy will not work when someone misses the bus, or there are too many snow days to encourage indolence in the young. Perhaps all east

Please drive Joy Road and note that the businesses that added edges for safer turns have no broken edges. Will not this sensible answer to one of our problems help the school-system work within a budget just as we do at home?

Cycling or roller skating to school should enable the student to receive soup, milk and an apple for his pedestrian efforts. The soup should be student made. We have wonderful knowledgeable young people who must move to non-traditional, transient Ann Arbor to earn a living just due to the

Attendance job is much needed

Well, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education has done it again.

I just finished reading an article in Thursday's paper, stating that 23 school administrators are getting laid

I can understand having to cut some of the people, but the biggest mistake, as I see it, is laying off Shirley Waters, who is the handler of school attendance for the school district.

With all of the problems that the schools are having with kids who aren't attending classes, or not going to school at all, and with all of the screaming and yelling from parents whose kids these are, I cannot understand why Waters is getting booted out of a very much needed position.

For awhile, I thought, from what I had heard, that things were beginning to get better with attendance problems. Now everything looks like it is going to go down the tubes.

I'm glad I'm out of high school now, and all I can say is, good luck, you're going to need it.

The subject was passion, the passion of the art collector.

And the speaker was Thomas Hoving, who wound up the Livonia Town Hall's 1981-82 lecture series with a recent'visit to the Mai Kai theater and Plymouth's Mayflower Meetinghouse.

Hoving, former director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, has been involved in international intrigue, cliff-hanging negotiations and crucial "sweatsville" art auctions, all in the name of high-level art collecting.

He spoke of the smuggling of ancient art items, the embarrassment of buying fakes and the joy of finding in a little antique store in New York "the only surviving reliquary of St. Thomas a' Becket," a treasure he was obliged to offer to the Met as part of his contract.

Hoving, serious and intense about collecting, also noted its hilarious side and was frank with his audience when when discussing the problems with fakes and fakers.

His talk ranged from analysis of the portraits of the Spanish painter Velasquez to a realistic immitation of angle. an upper-class British mumbler, comzine "Connoisseur," Hoving distinguished between being a connoisseur and having taste.

"A connoisseur is someone who recognizes quality in all its subtle manifestations, quality that lasts." he said. "Taste is now, fresh, ephemeral. It may not have a universal sense of quality. Taste sparkles for that brief moment."

He believes that connoisseurs have a mystical inborn talent in addition to their training. Both are needed, he said, to spot the art fakes which plague his business but also keep it on its toes. He admitted to having been fooled at least twice during his career.

In considering a Monet painting, he noted, you have to "look at every painting Monet did as well as those he

"Saturation" is the term he used to describe the process a true art collector must go through when confronting an object he is thinking of buying. Connoisseur has mystical inborn talent

HOVING SAID he advises the sophistiated collector to carry with him "a field kit consisting of a small flashlight, an organic solvent called xylene, cotton swabs, a magnifying glass with several lens adjustments and a Swiss army knife with blade, pick, file and scissors.'

Sometimes it takes intrigue to be able to use the articles of this kit. One of Hoving's stories concerned the interest of the Metropolitan Musuem in a portrait by Diego Velasquez, 17th-century Spanish artist. It was to be auctioned in London. The saturation syndrome started when Hoving and other Met staff members went to Italy to ed. check on a portrait the same painterhad done of Pope Innocent X.

They needed to learn everything about that painting so they could judge the authenticity and value of the London Velasquez they hoped to obtain.

Using signals and codes and some skulking around, the Met group managed to slip around the barrier when no one was looking and check the painting stuff," he said in an interview. with the tool kit they had ready

"We found the condition incredible," Hoving said. "It had never been touched by restorers."

Then it was back around the barrier and off to London for more maneuvers. The Met representatives allowed themselves no liquids for many hours before going to the place where a guard was watching the Velasquez.

They studied it from the prescribed distance, but their purpose was to wait out the guard. The strategy worked. Finally he left for the men's room and out came the tools.

The group determined workmanship on the painting in London was identical to that of the Innocent X portrait. But the intrigue wasn't over. Hoving left the building spouting negative comments, and word went out that the Metropolitan wasn't interest-But at auction time the firm doing the museum's bidding captured the masterpiece at a cost of $5,438,000. "Your typical standard day collect-

"It is because of King of the Confessors," he said. "In it I revealed that a marble relief of the annunciation had been smuggled out by an art dealer the museum used to have it smuggled."

tion of, "What did I do to deserve this?" Many parents ask, "Is there something wrong with me this time in my life?' These feelings usually, are not lasting, for the love and care for the baby is at hand and as we all know "LOVE GROWS."

The Rev. Gary Beuche of the Archdiocese of Detroit introduced Barb Gusfa to the concept of Kids On The Block. Barb and six of her friends investigated the program, took a training course and began to bring the beauty of new knowledgeinto our community.

Thanks to the time and talent of these special ladies and their families we are better equipped to deal with the need for understanding which is not prevalent in many communities.

SEVERAL BRIDGE groups meet monthly in Canton. One of the groups - stemming from the Canton Newcomers Club - has been saving pennies and nickels since last September. Tammy Brand, Barbara Hayes, Mary Solo, Linda Luke, Marilyn Orthner, Mary Jo Nott and Dodie Beckman pooled their savings and set off for a weekend in Toronto.

They tried to keep a running score on the bridge hands played while traveling on the train but the girls kept losing the Shopping at the lovely Eaton Place and dinner at Fisherman's Wharf and a few night spots filled their agenda quickly. They had so much fun together the next venture is a trip to Chicago.

SUNFLOWER Subdivision Clubhouse is a busy place but it seldom is booked for wild and crazy parties. John Beckman was greeted by friends and neighbors there for a surprise 40th birthday party given by his wife Dodie.

John's parents live in Arkansas and could not attend the shindig so they sent him a telegram in the form of Wonder Woman. It was the perfect gift for the man who has everything. Friends pooled their resources and came up with an enormous postcard of his baby picture and graduation picture and had everyone sign their names.

Neighbors Karen and Steve Crane, Marge and Jim Chmielski, Pat and Mike Dimoff, Ellen and Dan Fournier, Ann and Rich Kuner, Ann and Bob Koehl, Shirley and Ed Pelczar, Barb and Bob Percha were in on the fun creating the posters. Linda and Tim Quaine, Maryellen and Russ Roth, Bea and Ray Schibley, Judy and Fred Scipione, Barb and Andy Zarow, Candy and Dennis Provenzano added to the Canton crowd that filled the funfilled hall that evening.

We are all glad you had such a great time at your own birthday party, John.

John Belushi ran from life. So do we

The death of John Belushi has evoked a number of reactions over the past couple of weeks. There have been those who have suggested that a memorial be erected along the lines of the Presley fiasco. Others have said he was the funniest man who ever graced the screen.

In my estimation, one shrine to a drug overdose is enough for a society which worships escapism. And as for Belushi being the funniest man who ever graced the screen, that may have been debatable while he was alive but the movie is over and even Oscars awarded posthumously will not succeed in turning a tragic character into a funny man.

One columnist who wrote before the autopsy was performed suggested that so many people are affected by the death of an actor because so many people knew him and by the same token the death is quickly feggotten because no one really knew him

Perhaps many people thought they knew the Blues Brothers, but apparently no one knew John Belushi at all, at least not to his satisfaction. The man left life behind, and people do not do that by choice when they feel known and loved.

THE DEATH of Belushi speaks of the tragedy of his life, but the tragedy of his death would be increased if we were to miss the message to speak to those who attempt to run away from life or who only think they know the people they don't know at Running from life seems to be a program we are conditioned in from our youngest years. We may not be into doing cocaine or heroine. We may not even choose to blow away every weekend with pot or down it in booze, and then again maybe we do. But every branch of society seems to have its endorsed mode of escapism.

The message of Madison Avenue seems quite clear, "We have a pill for every problem." We listen, and we buy, and we swallow and swallow some more. It isn't any wonder that the pain killer producers increase the potency of their product. We are so saturated with the stuff that we require 800 milligrams to do what 200 used to do.

WHETHER IT IS a cough at 6 years of age or a headache at 36, the message is the same. "Don't face it; run from it and you may forget what caused it in the first place," it tells us. "If you are high, we boost you up. Why face life when you can run from

Perhaps there will be many runners becase there are many strangers - those people whom no one really knows at all. They are lonely and we insist that we know them even when we don because that is easier than taking the time for real thing. Thus we prefer to act for one another because that gets more play and certainly more laughs.

APPARENTLY for Belushi, being Blues Brother was more acceptable than being John, but even that grew sour after a while. How many people we meet taste such sourness every day? And we ignore them and say, "How are you?" without giv-

We may even laugh at the jokes they use to cover who they are, and only discover too late that we never knew them at all - maybe even those who

A sad man who happened to say some funny things has died. His death screams a message, but only to those who can hear. The rest will simply mourn the Blue Brothers and sit around waiting for another funny man to appear on Saturday Night

Rock coach makes demands on hurlers

By Jay Keenan special writer

Rob Willette wants his pitching staff under control. The Plymouth Salem girls' softball coach doesn't want to be pulling his hair out again this season watching his hurlers throwing change-ups, curve balls or sliders - at least at the start of the season.

Willette's first priority is "to get the ball over the plate.

Salem, victimized last season by walks and wild pitches, is coming off a 9-13 ledger. The Rocks were not a factor in the Suburban Eight League race, although they had their moments.

"I think we'll play a lot better than last year." Willette said. "Last year was my first season, and I learned a few things. I think it will go a lot smoother this year.

"I'm pretty sure we'll be one of the better teams in the Suburban Eight. Our pitching has improved."

Willette, a 1973 Salem grad, is well aware that the team's success depends on pitching even if the hitters produce a bundle of runs.

The Salem coach, however, sees potential in his top three prospects.

SENIOR fireballer Laurie Jarski, who in the past has had trouble throwing strikes, likely will get the nod to start on opening day (Wednesday, April 7) at Trenton.

"Laurie has the speed," said Willette. "If she has the accuracy, then we could have a good year."

Juniors Diane Murphy and Leslie Etienne both have good control and may see a lot of action on the hill, according to the coach.

"Diane pitched well after getting called up to the varsity squad late in the season," Willette said, "and Leslie has improved a lot from what I've seen in our practices."

Jarski is expected to anchor most of the mound duties, but as Willette cautions: "Whoever throws the most strikes will pitch the most."

The Salem offense has plenty of JARSKI, who batted almost .400 last year, is one player who could give the Rocks a lift with the long ball.

Batterymate Mary Pryslak, a junior catcher, was a terror at the plate during the final stages of 1981 and flirted with the .400 mark.

The centerfield position appears to be set with senior co-captain Bonnie Southerland, a high .300 hitter from a year ago. She has the ability to spark the Salem offense to go along with her proven defensive capabilities.

The other two sides of the outfield, however, are up for grabs.

Juniors Lisa Granger and Lynne Gamache are competing for the two vacant slots along with sophomores Amy Sidorsky and Chery Viele. All four are up from the jayvee ranks.

Jenny Papa, who possesses an Aurelio Rodriguez-type arm, returns after a full year at shortstop and serves as the team's other captain.

"She has an arm that Brian Gilles (the Salem baseball coach) would like to have," said Willette. "She has a heck

Willette said Papa can also hit for Senior Kelly Strautz batted above .300 a season ago and will occupy third

THE RIGHT side of the infield is still a question mark with Viele and Sarah

McKenna, a junior, vying at first base. The second base opening is being contested by Mary Kay Mundinger, junior Dawn Henning and Etienne. Eileen Moore, an All-State basketball performer this past winter for the Rocks, could have started in the outfield, but the senior standout decided not to compete.

She still has a chance to win a basketball scholarship and did not want to risk an injury, Willette said.

The Rocks hope to reclaim the crown they shared two years ago.

"Some of the teams we will be playing probably won't be expecting much,' added the Salem coach. "But we might surprise a lot of people."

Recruiting: Coaches scour area grade schools

This is the second in a series on the recruiting of high school athletes ..

That's the first thing one must realize and accept. Eighth-graders are recruited by high school coaches. And, by Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) standards, there is nothing wrong with it.

Strangely enough, it is a violation for a coach to talk to an athlete attending another high school. Eight-graders or younger are fair game, but once an athlete reaches the ninth-grade level; it's

Detroit DeLaSalle coach Gary Buslepp's remarks on television after his team lost the Class B state basketball championship game said a lot about what high school coaches are

"We're trying to build our program," Buslepp told WDIV-TV reporter Don

Build a program? At the high-school

To build a successful program, a coach has to have the talent. And if a coach needs talent, he has to go looking for it. He has to recruit it.

CATHOLIC COACHES have been doing that for years. They sit through endless Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) contests looking for promising basketball players.

They sponsor summer football camps for youths. Both not only help the athlete, but they serve as a tool. They familiarize the athlete with the coach.

When it comes time to attend high school, the "prospect" goes with the coach he knows.

Remember, this type of recruiting is not a violation unless a coach talks to an athlete in high school elsewhere. That, according to an MHSAA official, "is awfully hard to prove because you have to have a witness there."

But public school coaches still cry "Foul!" when one of their players switches schools. There usually isn't any violation involved.

This has forced a change in policy among public school coaches. Conducting varsity practices and roaming the sidelines during games is no longer enough. Public school coaches have to protect their interests.

They, too, must fight the recruiting

JOHN McINTYRE was a recruited player — by both Catholic and public school coaches.

John is now a freshman at Detroit Catholic Central. There was nothing abnormal about his choice, according

They remain angry, however, be- to John's father, Jim McIntyre. The

"I've been around coaches who are definite opportunitists," McIntyre said. "They entice kids to come over for a couple of years for their own benefit.

"John has a great fondness for the man," the elder McIntyre said, referring to CC coach Bernie Holowicki. "If Bernie wasn't there, John would probably be at Pierce (Junior High) right now. It's a nice, honest relationship."

HOLOWICKI WON this recruiting war because he teaches at the grade school John attended and has known him for years. But he wasn't the only coach to show an interest.

"I talked to him on the phone about our school," said Redford Thurston coach Gary Fralick. Two of Thurston's top players, Tim Fredericks and Rich Biskner, called John McIntyre to try and convince him to attend Thurston.

John was a CYO player. Former Redford Bishop Borgess coach Bill Croteau, as well as representatives from St. Mary of Redford and Detroit Benedictine, saw John at the CYO games and also expressed an interest

But, as Fralick admitted, "He always wanted to go to CC."

But the Thurston coach tried to change his mind. Fralick also runs a summer camp for youths and attends a few junior high school games. He visits the junior high schools to tell them about the Thurston basketball pro-

It was the kind of prep volleyball season many area teams would like to forget.

But for others, 1982 was a good year. Redford Bishop Borgess' season ended sadly, but the Spartans had their moments. They won the Wayne State Invitational, went unbeaten until the regional and won the Catholic-City League championship.

Borgess was ranked among the top 10 teams in Class A along with Westland John Glenn, which won the Northwest Suburban League crown and advanced to the regional final before losing to Walled Lake Western. Livonia Bentley, which acquired a No. 2 state ranking, won the tough Suburban Eight League. The Bulldogs also were second at the Plymouth Invitational and first at Schoolcraft.

Dearborn dashed Bentley's title hopes with an upset victory in the dis-bowed out of Inter-Lakes League with a first-place finish. Among the area's second place teams were Redford Union (NSL) and

FIRST TEAM

Lori Swanson, senior, Livonia Bentley - One of the state's most feared front-line players.

"Lori is an experienced, aggressive player who was dominating at the net this season," said Bentley coach Dana Hardwidge. "She aced slightly over 50 percent of her hits and was a real 'momentum-getter.' Lori was also a strong passer and good defensive player."

The 6-foot Swanson is a two-time All-Suburban Eight and All-Observer performer. She was also selected to the all-tourney teams this year at Plymouth and Schoolcraft. Swanson is one of three players from this state to receive a volleyball scholarship to Central Michigan University.

Julie Burton, junior, Bishop Borgess - At 5-11, Burton patrolled the front line for Borgess. Coach Jerry Abraham describes her as "a very intense player who can control the net with great au-

The Rock reserves carved out an 11-1 league record and 18-2 overall mark in 1981-82.

Oasis joins new fast-pitch league

By Brad Emons staff writer

Oasis Golf Center, a nationally ranked softball team, is one of 1 charter members of the newly formed Michigan Women's Major Fast-pitch Softball Association.

The team will play its home games at Massey Field in Plymouth Five league home dates have been scheduled.

"We thought it was time for Class A and open teams to form another league," said Jim McDowell, an as sistant coach for Oasis. "We had good cooperation. Everybody knew what they wanted."

Oasis, which finished second i last year's Class A Nationals at Far go, N.D., was seeking better compe tition but will continue to compete in the Livonia Women's Fast-pitch League.

"Even though we were playing strong clubs in the Livonia league, we had to change our style playing some of the high-school clubs," explained McDowell. "Playing strong teams builds strong clubs.'

The Michigan Majors will be d vided into a pair of five-team divisions. Oasis, managed by Bob Boyd, will join the Ann Arbor Bleus, Flint Jomacs, Lansing Central Michigan Lumber and Lansing Lassies to make up the East Division.

Benton Harbor, Grand Rapids Whirlpool, Kalamazoo Metros, Lansing Laurels and Wyoming Laurels compose the West Division. Each team has one date outside its

"We all unanimously agreed that we wouldn't allow ousiders for our league playoffs," said McDowell. "It makes it more competitive - more of a team concept."

It took only five years for Boyd to transform a group of high-school sophomores into a national power.

Oasis captured the Michigan Class B state title in 1980. Last year, the team came of age as it won the Great Lakes Regional "A" crown and took second in the national tournament. Five players were named to the United State Amateur Softball Association all-tournament team. Balls and Strikes magazine, a national publication, rated Oasis the second-best women's fast-pitch team in the country.

Several former area high-school standouts compose the squad. Among those playing in the collegiate ranks are Vicky Cavallaro and Sherry Kiselica, University of Detroit; Jan Boyd and Jody Humphries, University of Michigan; and Sue McDowell, Indiana State.

Grand Prix race gets capitol okay

Key legislators assembled recently in Gov. William Milliken's office for the ceremonial signing of the -five pieces of legislation that will allow the Grand Prix race to come to Detroit June 4-6.

William Faust, Senate majority leader, was on hand for the ceremony. Sen. Faust was responsible for expediting the five pieces of legislation that were essential to staging the Grand Prix this year in Detroit. Without his guidance, Detroit may not have staged the race this year, but could have lost the opportunity to another country.

The Detroit Grand Prix will attract race fans from all over the world as they witness some of the top racers from abroad. The Detroit Grand Prix will be the first time that Formula One cars will race in the Midwest.

The Detroit Grand Prix is the only event of its kind to be run on the streets of a world-class city, and marks the first time that any country has hosted three races in one year.

All-stars drop back in women's tourney

The predicted shuffling of the standings in the Women's City Tournament failed to materialize last Saturday when members of the Bowlerettes and the Ladies Major leagues went to the firing line.

The top-rated teams from the two leagues shot miserably, each missing the desired No. 1 position ..

Meanwhile, the Nick's team from Wildwood on the far west side crept into first place with 2,754 on a plushandicap of 441 for a total of 3,195. Janet Azelton captained the winners.

The best the Bowlerettes could muster was a 2,900 series rolled by a team of holdovers from the regular season. This group was captained by each posted a 696 series. Jean Pavella.

Also in the Ladies Major, another dark horse came through when Leslie try Lanes opened the doors to its 700 Szurek hit 2,774-225 - 1,999 in the all- 'club to admit two new members. And STRONG OPENING games helped two marksmen gain membership into the 700 club at Merri-Bowl.

Ken Kaplan, competing in the Legion League, started with a 288 then dropped to 202 and 236 for a 726.

In the Metro League, Ray Beaupre opened with a 268 and fell back to 202 and 224 for a 704.

Gloria Mertz paced the Invitational Doubles at Merri-Bowl with a 642 brought about by an opening 234 count.

IN CONTRAST, there was only one 700 series at Westland Bowl.

This was the work of Tom Wolfrom, who put together games of 215, 247 and 268 for 730. There was a triple tie for second place when Jim Wrubrewski, Dave Kaliszewski and Dave Lidaugi

IT WAS a different story when Counboth came in the Plumbers League, where Chuck Thompson put together games of 268, 245 and 217 for 730 and Larry Verzi closed with a 279 after two counts of 221 for 721.

Relieve stress by trying other ways

should be emphasized that there are other available alternatives to the activity which are excellent for body conditioning and rehabilitation.

I have given the matter a good deal of thought and I cannot think of any sport which, when done along with jogging, is either detrimental or harmful. In short, jogging is only a supportive aid to other sports, and, vice versa. There are, however, certain activities which are excellent alternatives to jogging which we should examine a bit

Bicycle riding of either the outdoor variety or the indoor stationery unit can be quite helpful as a conditioning or rehabilitative mechanism. Obviously, certain speeds must be attained and maintained for maximal conditioning purposes, but the activity of cycling can be extremely beneficial, particularly to the lower extremity muscula-

FROM A rehabilitation standpoint, cycling can be an excellent modality since the primary influence of weight bearing is essentially removed, and, therefore, the presence of excessive stress and strain on the lower extremity is essentially gone. The activity, when performed correctly, is by no means easy and can cause rapid fatigue in the novice enthusiast!

Swimming has always been one of my favorite suggested substitute activities for jogging. Perhaps no other activity, when performed correctly and diligently, can be more ideally beneficial to the body as a sport. The basic problem with utilizing swimming as a prime activity involvement are two-

First, one must have access to a swimming facility practically on a daily basis. For many, this may involve membership in a somewhat expensive club, but, at least, it does require travel usually from apart from one's own

The second problem is the skill level that should be possessed prior to gaining particular benefits from the activity. In other words, one must be able to swim at a certain level before the actual conditioning capacities can be

Although this column pertains spe- can certainly look upon swimming as cifically to the sport of jogging, it an excellent body conditioning and rehabilitative activity. What's more, basic overall body benefits derived from jogging can be reached through swimming.

Aquatic running is actually more of a rehabilitative program used by those individuals who have sustained injury. The patient is advised to actually run or jog in the water with the water providing a natural resistance to lower extremity motion.

THIS PROVIDES an excellent method of treating patients who have been in casts or bandaged for several weeks who are unable to (as of yet) return to the actual sport. Water running can certainly be a monotonous and extremely fatiguing activity, but it is usually considered as a rather short-term type of treatment and strengthening program.

Race walking is an interesting activity and one which, in the past few years, has grown in popularity. Race walkers are those individuals seen on high school running tracks - usually on weekends - with an awkward and "funny" type of gait.

In actuality, race walking is a fascinating, invigorating, and highly skilled activity requiring total coordination of upper and lower body movements. This sport is particulary good for those individuals having knee problems, since the incidence of knee complaints in race walking is practically negligable due to the hyperextended position of the knee upon foot contact with the

The last activity that I make reference to is distance walking. In this case, I am not referring to mountainous hiking, nor am I referring to after dinner strolls. I am talking about a well-planned and executed walk of moderate distance, and at such a pace, that some stress is exerted on the car dio vascular and respiratory systems.

Distance walking and its merits from a medical standpoint, I believe, have been well-documented and walking programs are presently being recommended by many cardiologists and hospital rehabilitative programs in generbor Pioneer, 130.00; 5. "Pienie" (1956), 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday at the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser at Grand River, phone 537-1133, $2. Running time 113 minutes.

Fans of William Inge, who wrote "Picnic" for the Broadway stage, usually agree that director Joshua Logan screwed up his play, that William Holden is too old for the part of the drifter and that Kim Novak simply can't act, all of which is true! Nonetheless, there's a certain, pulpy charm to this lushly photographed, '50s melodrama Only the decade that placed an Eisenhower in the White House could have delivered such a superciliously bad film. It's with some hesitation that this film gets a mention, because Channel 50 is going to cram this epic, anti-war picture into a two-hour slot (with probably 25 minutes of commercials). #### Richard Watson

The world's list of great white wines will predictably include Chardonnay, Riesling, Sauvignon Blanc, Trebbiano, Semillon and a few others.

It is about equally predictable that, in any great wine grouping, it will not include French Colombard. But, because it is not considered among the best, there is no reason to think condescendingly toward it. Indeed, in the hands of a competent winemaker, some lovely things can be done with it. And

A prolific producer wherever it is grown, French Colombard tends to develop a wine of high acidity and slight fruit. It is, accordingly, an excellent extender to white wines grown in warm climates that are fat and sweet and lack the backbone that the addition of Colombard can provide.

And it is used in this way in many of the jug and generic issues from California. Its addition provides character to otherwise sweet, dull wine.

HOWEVER, several winemakers now bottle it under its own name and issue it as a moderately priced varietal. Some do an extremely nice job of it, resulting in a very drinkable wine priced, usually, well below $6 a bottle.

At any rate, it is a respectable thing to serve and will always be priced dollars below a Chardonnay or Sauvignon esteemed vineyards in all of California, amazingly makes a small quantity of Colombard each year with purchased grapes, and their efforts have gone far in making the grape respectable, even esteemed when they make it. Sadly, very little of it gets into Michigan. Stonegate makes the best French Colombard on local shelves, if a bit expensive. It is, however, a worthy wine for a fine occasion.

Fetzer has just begun to issue it with the 1980 vintage, a clean and gentle wine of modest price, while Souverain (using the name Colombard Blanc) has long been a personal favorite, when it can be found. Parducci and Pedroncelli both offer inexpensive but inconsistent alternatives, neither as predictably enjoyable as Souverain.

THE NEWEST entry, and a truly excellent wine, is from McDonald Valley Vineyards just south of Ukiah. McDonald Valley has done more to develop fruit in the wine than has any vineyard whose wine I've tasted. This will take some finding, but it is certainly worth it.

Among the jug wines, Giumarra seems to offer the best value. The premium Gallo issue is light and offdry, tasting nothing like a Golombard but fairly decent for the money. The Almaden and now vintage-dated Masson issues both have above-average fruit in them and are decent values.

This may be the year for rockin' Missiles

By Dunne Stewart special writer

Thursday, April 1, 1982

ELED BY the creative energies of singer/songwriter Joey Pullin of Livonia, the Missiles is a rock band where the sky's the limit as far as its future goes.

"I really believe the band will get off the ground this year," said 28-year-old Pullin. "It's a matter of the business end being taken care of. I made a lot of wrong turns in the past. I wasted time and made mistakes.

"But experience is the best way of learning. Now I'm in the pilot seat and I have control of the future of the

When Pullin speaks of experience he means being practically everywhere but the moon. As early as 1969 he played bass guitar for a band called the Flaming Embers, who had recorded a 45 that was on the market.

HE DID NOT start doing serious songwriting until 1971 with a new band called Elephant. Playing at such landmarks as the Grande Ballroom and the Eastown Theatre in Detroit, Elephant opened up for many famous musiclans Rod Stewart, Eric Burden & WAR, Badfinger, Mott the Hoople, and YES, among them. Then it was the Stretch Thomas dent of the New York company saw we

- Joey Pullin of the Missiles

Band in 1975, under the management of Bob Seger's present business transactor, Punch Andrews. REO Speedwagon, Bob Seger and Mitch Ryder wre just a few of the biggies that used Stretch Thomas as an opening act.

While in Florida at the end of the rockin' '70s, Pullin joined up with the disco-funk group Great Dane. That turned out to be a real dog, so it was on to Cathouse, another band, but after two years in the Cathouse, Pullin was just about ready to quite the music

"I had a lot of bad breaks with people who weren't serious," he said. "For instance, the president of one music company in New York heard a demo tape of Elephant and came to Detroit to see us play, but this guy from our band decided to skip out to Florida for no reason at all, and when the presi-

"To make it in music you have to be dead serious. None of this diddling around. Most people think it's nothing but glamour. Underneath all that glamour, though, is strictly business. Like the Ford Motor Company."

BY 1980, Pullin was in the business of advertising in the Southfield area. He did copywriting, wrote and produced radio and TV commercials, and even made a personal appearance on a W4 television promotion.

This type of experience paralleled the music business, for he learned how to better market a product.

With the encouragement of his friends and family, he decided to cast his depression like salt over the shoulder and (knock on wood) give music one more shot. Considering the eventual outcome, Pullin definitely hit it with the previous bands, but I never had the chance to be in control and give it every ounce of blood I had. This time I wanted it all to be done right."

Don Davis, a top producer in Detroit, gave Pullin an offer he couldn't resist. Free studio time to cut demo tapes for publication rights on the music. It was

"I played bass and was co-writer for the give-and-take type of deal that can produce excellent results.

> SINCE PULLIN didn't have a band at the time, he gathered various artists from the Detroit area to back him up. Chris Campbell, bass player for Bob Seger, was a member of that crew.

Well, Pullin saw that the spark was there in the studio, so out of the recording session arose the idea for the Missiles, his own vehicle for musical ex-

Pullin first of all switched from bass to rhythm guitar in accordance with his new-found pilot position, and he wrote all the songs. He then acquired a more permanent band than the one used for the lunatic nephew who thinks he's Teddy Roosevelt. When he catapults about the stage with ebullient inanity and chortles his Woody Woodpecker laugh, the audience howls. With rosy knees when he's wearing his Panama Canal shorts, or in red drop-seat long johns, he's irrepressible.

Lynn Walker is marvelous as Teddy,

In this masterful comedy, we laugh when he know what's going to happen. Every time Teddy goes upstairs he bellows, "Charge!" because he thinks the stairs are San Juan Hill, and even though we know exactly what's going to happen, we laugh anyway.

Other times we anticipate disaster when a character reaches for a glass of arsenic-laced elderberry wine. After all, there are already 12 stiffs buried in the basement. But ingenious plotting diverts catastrophe, so we laugh because we've been cleverly fooled.

WHEN AUNTY Abby protests, "I wouldn't tell a fib," and we know she routinely kills lonely old gentlemen and calls murder one of her charities, we laugh at her cockeyed craziness.

Juanita Suchy as Abby and Diane Kremser as Martha dodder about with palsied energy just like little old ladies. Their portrayals of the benevolent murders are delightful, and if the timing of their lines occassionally lags, we forgive them because they're such dear crazies.

Jonathan Brewster, played by Joseph Guest, is hardly dear, but his hulking sinister persence is good contrast and good comedy.

Director Howard Palmer and Assistant Director Nicky Walker use slapstick style with Jonathan's sidekick, Doctor Herman Einstein, played by Glen Blankenship. Dr. Einstein acts like Jerry Lewis and talks like Cheech and Chong, but the slapstick works, and so does the "Mehico" accent, even the makeshift studio session. Thus were the Missiles made.

Pullin's faithful crew is Joe Fava of Westland on drums, Joe Poletti of Melvindale on bass and back-up vocals, Steve Stefanski of Livonia on lead guitar and back-up vocals, Karen Bohn of Midland on percussion and back-up vocals, and Vicki Damesworth of Detroit, also on percussion and back-up vocals.

Since its first gig New Year's Eve 1980 at Buddy's Rock Casino in Flatrock, the Missiles has built up a staff of hair stylists, tailors and other business people who want to contribute their talents for the good of the band.

JOHN RAPP, Bob Seger's tour director, acts as an advisor.

"About a half year ago," Pullins aid, "I contacted John and asked him for an unbiased opinion about the band. He loved us. He's been behind us ever since, guiding us with his expertise.

"He often brings important people in to see us perform. In fact, Seger himself came to our concert at the Cafe Fior a while back. He told us that he liked what he heard. 'Pistol Packin' Mama' was his favorite.

"Seger did, however, give us one suggestion. He told us we should have more slow ballads.

Missiles' music is hard-driving rock 'n' roll, generating enough vibes to cause a space warp on the dance floor. It is the music of the future, in the here and now.

IN LITTLE MORE than a year, the Missiles has already played at such prime clus as the Second Chance in Ann Arbor, Center Stage in Canton, the Studio Lounge in Westland, Traxx in East Detroit and Harpo's.

Its demo tapes have been sent to major record labels, such as RCA and Arista. Some of the companies are extremely interested in what they heard. Although there is no record contract yet, it is just a matter of patience, and hope that the right break will come.

As long as Pullin keeps on pushin,' the Missiles should get off the ground before the year 2001. It is a band that could very well be headed for the stars.
