Residents win power to OK street lighting

By Arlene Funke staff writer

In the next few months, homeowners will have to decide if they want street lights in their subdivisions.

The Township Board has amended the subdivision control ordinance, placing the decision for or against residential street lights in the hands of homeowners

Under the original ordinance, adopted several years ago, street lighting was installed as "deemed necessary" by the Township Board.

Only about 20-25 percent of Canton's subdivisions now have street lights, estimates Clerk John Flodin, who drew up the new language.

"Street lights are a very controversial issue," said Flodin, a self-described "street light advocate."

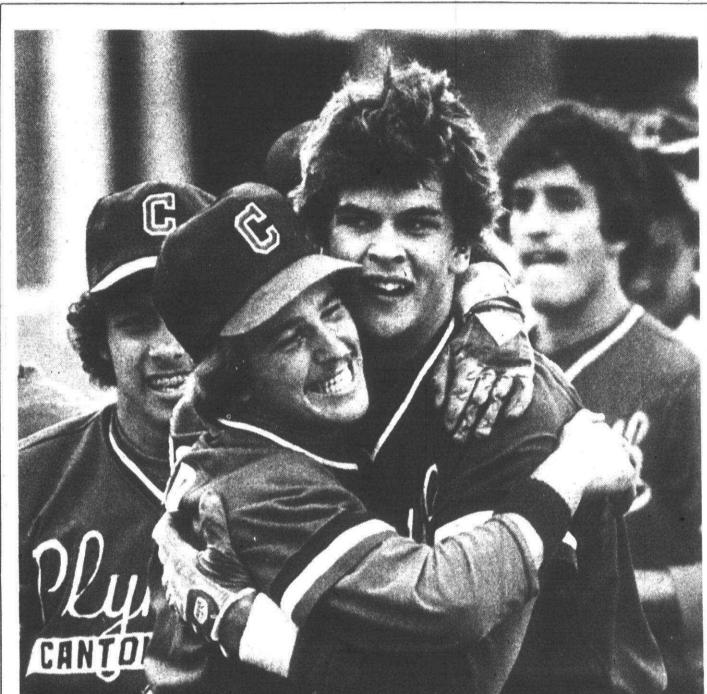

FLODIN BELIEVES lighted streets deter crime and vandalism, and promote traffic safety. But other residents may be opposed, on the basis of cost and a desire to promote a rural or semirural atmosphere.

State law allows municipalities to install street lights. The change in the local ordinance, adopted Tuesday, calls for installation to be based on an "affirmative vote of the majority of the owners" within subdivisions.

"This is a reasonable compromise," said Flodin. He estimates the probable annual cost to homeowners of $40-$50 per year. The cost appears on the yearly tax bill.

ACCORDING TO Flodin, street-light rates are set by the state Public Service Commission. The homeowner pays exactly what Detroit Edison charges, with the township assessing no extra fee

The township will hold public hearings on necessity and cost during the next few months, said Flodin. Affected homeowners will be notified of the hearings and encouraged to come and express their opinions

'Parents Who Care' seeks your support

1982 Suburban Communication Corporation All Rights Reserved

By Dennis O'Connor staff writer

Are you a parent who really cares about disciplining your child? Do you want to learn how to handle discipline problems?

If so, then "Parents Who Care" may be the group for you.

"Parents Who Care" is a nonprofit organization seeking the support of parents in the Plymouth-Canton community. The group hopes to reach the "grassroots" problems of disciplining children. It hopes to work with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools to solve discipline problems parents, teachers and principals face each day.

Barbara and Dennis Timmerman of. Canton head this group. The initial meeting drew 20 concerned parents.

"We're trying to bring the group together - parents who care, parents who will do something about their child and work with the schools and all children, parents who will stop being pals and go back to parenting," Mrs. Timmerman says.

Lowell teacher safe in drugging attempt

School officials and police are investigating a possible attempted drugging of a Lowell Middle School science teacher.

The incident occurred Friday morning, when teacher Patricia Lease, 27, of Ann Arbor, noticed a partially-dissolved pill in a coffee cup she was using.

According to a Westland Police report, Lease had placed a partiallydrunk cup of coffee in a desk drawer for a few moments while she went into the hallway during change of class. When she resumed drinking, she noticed the remnants in the bottom of her cup, said the report.

AN ANALYSIS by the Michigan State Police crime lab in Northville indicates the pill was a mild prescription tranquilizer, said principal Gary Faber and police. The pill was not identified by name in the report.

Lease, who consulted with her physician, was unharmed. School officials are investigating the incident.

"I feel this wan an unfortunate and isolated incident," said Lease, who has been with the school district 51/2 years. "I felt no ill effects."

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools leases Lowell Middle School from the Livonia School, which owns the building. Lowell is on John Hix near Joy in Westland.

meet for a second time at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at East Middle School, on the corner of Lilley and Ann Arbor Road. Plymouth. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Nic Cooper and Sally Wisotzkey, program specialists for the alternative education projects in the district, will speak at this meeting. Cooper and Wisotzkey will discuss problems concerning drugs.

Both specialists have extensive experience with troubled youngsters. A question-and-answer session will follow the presentation.

FORMAL CERTIFICATION of this group has been considered in recent months. The idea was generated by Timmerman in a March 25 letter to the editor in the Plymouth and Canton Observers. In that letter, Timmerman said parents should be stricter with their children and stop protecting them.

The idea quickly was supported by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. School officials invited Mrs. Timmerman to a cabinet meeting to discuss her thought about the group.

Superintendent John Hoben says the idea for this kind of group is "long overdue.

Vandalism sparks probe of security at school

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

School officials are assessing the security of Starkweather Elementary School following Sunday's break-in and extensive vandalism.

An estimated $50,000 of damage was done to the 50-year-old building on Holbrooke in Plymouth's Old Village. Stunned school personnel found the mess on Monday morning.

Scattered papers, lunch boxes, spraypainted profanities; broken water fountains, glass, clocks and furniture lined the halls of the two-story building.

look at the place," Superintendent John Hoben said Monday.

"It was malicious. They threw hot dogs and Jello on the floor and ripped up personal material of the principal."

The students (K-6) were sent home as they arrived Monday morning while Plymouth police sifted through the mess looking for fingerprints.

The school re-opened Tuesday following a massive clean-up by school officials, teachers and maintenance personnel

"We didn't want to give whoever did this the satisfaction of keeping us down longer than one day," says Principal 'It just makes you sick to go in and look at the place. It was malicious."

say they didn't hear anything unusual Sunday night. However, they report the building appears to be a center for late night activity.

"Kids mill around the building until late at night," says Bob Warfield, of E. Spring Street.

Because there is usually some persons around the building, Warfield said he couldn't have noticed if anyone was looking to break-in.

Karla Boze, another Spring Street resident, agrees with Warfield.

From golf-course revenues

Officials begin park development

Canton's Township Board authorized $36,500 for improvements to the John W. Flodin Community Park last week. The funds will come from revenues generated from the township-owned Fellows Creek Golf Course. Improvements include a $15,000 handicapped-accessible play center and asphalt walkway. Two baseball diamond backstops, infield dressing for the diamonds, landscaping, signs and protective fencing b bumpers for the parking lot also are part of the improvements, according to Recreation Supervisor Mike Gouin.

Flodin Park, named after current Township Clerk John Flodin, is on Saltz between Lilley and Sheldon. Currently, the park area only is a field of grass. Construction on the improvements will begin this summer.

TRUSTEE CAROL Bodenmiller was the only board member to vote against spending the funds on park improvement. She didn't like the idea of depleting any fund during these economically hard times

Gouin stressed the expenditure comes from funds beyond any reserve level in the Golf Course Revenue Park Development Account.

"We haven't dipped into this fund in four years," Gouin told the board, "because we've been waiting for development need, and we think Flodin Park is in need of development.'

The $36,500 figure actually is a small amount of money for improving a park of this size, Gouin added.

Canton currently is building its new Recreation Complex behind Township Hall, on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill. This project is separate from Flodin Park. It is funded through revenuesharing money from the federal government.

Teacher retires after 33 years

By Judy Celmer staff writer

Lorraine Hurtik has spent 33 years honing her skills into fine-tuned expertise.

She is retiring this month, after growing to love not only her business, but also her customers.

Her business is education and her clientele, first-graders.

"I think my favorite thing about teaching is teaching them how to read," said Hurtik, who also teaches science, social studies and mathematics beside language arts.

Not only does she "love phonics," but, "This particular age group is real-about teaching. And I've always wanted to go into it.

Hertik began teaching in Rochester. Five years later, she moved with her young family to Plymouth, where she taught at Starkweather, Allen, and finally Bird Elementary School.

Though she has a degree in kindergarten education, Hertik would choose first grade over any other grade simply because "I love the age. You can measure how much they learned from the beginning of the year till the end."

Hertik, 57, received her degree in education in 1946 from Michigan State Normal College, now called Eastern Michigan University.

"BACK THEN, it was strictly an education college." Colleges specializing in education were called normal colleges

Art in the park

Youthful artists and performers braved cold, rainy weather to show their stuff Saturday at a second annual Student Artfest sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Kellogg Park in Plymouth was filled with 31 booths featuring demonstrations in pottery, silk screening and air brushing.

There were dance groups, bands and singers entertaining parents, grandparents and guests.

Artfest '82 was developed in part through a grant from the Michigan State Department of Education for Comprehensive Arts in Education. The Plymouth-Canton school district was one of 19 districts state-wide to receive funding for the art show.

Other groups and private schools also participated in the affair. These include the Plymouth Community Arts Council, Plymouth Christian Academy of Canton, Our Lady of Good Counsel School, St. Peter's Lutheran School, Steppingstone School and the New Morning School.

Resident faces larceny rap

A 26-year-old Canton man faces two felony charges in connection with alleged thefts of groceries and tools from two local stores.

Mark Charles Borg of Buckingham is scheduled for a preliminary examination Thursday in 35th District Court on charges of larceny in a building and receiving and concealing stolen goods.

According to Canton police Cpl. Rob Cripe, officers arrested Borg for larceny June 1 at a Kroger store at Ford and Sheldon. He is suspected of shoplifting $154 worth of groceries from the supermarket. Cripe said police found two chain saws in Borg's car which matched the description of similar tools reported stolen from a Kmart store on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township. Borg subsequently was charged with receiving and concealing stolen goods.

Borg was arraigned June 2 before 35th District Court Judge Dunbar Davis. The court entered innocent pleas in his behalf. Borg was sent to Wayne County Jail in lieu of $3,000 bond.

In addition to teaching, Hertik has been an adviser for a Senior Girl Scout troops for nine years. In that capacity, "I think I've gotten my enjoyment away from the kids at school."

Beside, she said, scouting allowed her to lead girls to Mexico and Switzerland.

While her family was growing up, "I did things with the children instead of doing things with adults."

ARTICULATE AND optimistic, Hertik is hard-pressed to think of her least favorite aspect of her job.

"As far as working with children, there's nothing I don't enjoy about it. That's why I'm glad I'm leaving when I am — because I still feel good about it.

Unlike some teachers who may turn sour over the years, "I think I could come back next fall and still like teaching."

After 33 years in the profession, changes are likely to be seen, and one of the more notable ones, Hertik said, is a difference is attitude seen in the young students.

The Observer Newspapers once again will be operating an election hotline service for Monday's school election.

Thursday, June 10, 1982 O&E

Residents of Canton and Plymouth may call the Observer news staff at 459-2700 to find out the winners in Monday's Plymouth-Canton school board election.

Preliminary results will be given out as soon as they are received probably about 9 p.m. — and final unofficial results will be given out until about midnight. A large number of residents annually make use of the Observer election hotline service. As a result, vote totals and specific precinct results are not reported to allow time for all of our readers to phone in for results.

If the line is busy, keep trying. All lines will be manned during the peak period. For results, call 459-2700; for complete details, read Thursday's editions of the Canton and Plymouth Observers.

Northville parent advocate files for House seat

Ron Fisher of Northville has announced his candidacy for the Michigan House of Representatives in the newly-created 36th District.

The 36th District, which has no incumbent, includes part of Canton Township, all of the cities of Plymouth and Northville, and all of the townships of Plymouth and Northville.

Fisher, a gauge maker and lay minister in the Open Door Church, is running on the Republican ticket in the 36th District. The only other GOP candidate to file thus far in the 36th is Gerald Law, Plymouth Township trustee.

A graduate of Livonia Bentley High in 1962, Fisher attended Henry Ford Community College, Central Bible College in Detroit, and Madonna College in Livonia.

Fisher is director of the newly-formed National Parents Coalition. Both the church and coalition are based in Northville.

Fisher is known in Northville for his constitutional expertise and legal briefs on family law and church/state conflicts as well as his vigorous defense of traditional family values and parental authority.

His indepth articles on Michigan's Friend of the Court system and child custody laws have appeared frequently in publications.

As a political activist, Fisher says he has gained a keen understanding of the proper role and function of civil government.

Fisher believes much of the conflict between Michigan's citizens and their elected representatives is the lawmakers' failure to recognize their servant role. He chides the state for failing to provide property tax reform, meaningful workman's compensation reform, and modification of the Single Business Tax (SBT)

He stresses that reform of the SBT is a must for economic recovery in the state but doubts that Lansing's weak leadership will do so in the near future.

For that reason, Fisher is calling for a massive turnover of leadership in the Michigan House of Representatives to ferret out elected representatives who serve only their "best interests and not the people."

Truckers fight planned road closing

The proposed truck closing of Beck Road between M-14 and Five Mile Road may become a hot issue.

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees was scheduled to take final action on the ordinance Tuesday night, but decided to postpone action until July 13.

The delay is due to the large amount of interest shown about the closing, from both residents and trucking companies in the area.

Approximately 10 residents of Beck Road who oppose its current truck traffic were on hand Tuesday night. Also at the meeting were representatives from a trucking company which uses the road as a main route.

The board also received a letter from LaFave Frucking, which is expected to fight any truck clos-

The board delayed action to allow the trucking companies time to prepare a presentation supporting keeping the road open to trucks. The companies argue a closing would force them to drive farther and thus increase their costs.

The residents, on the other side, argue the truck traffic is loud and disturbs their homes and sleeping.

The targeted section of Beck is used by several garbage contractors as a main route to landfills in western Wayne County.

Resident Frank Millington told the board he could live with the gravel and dairy trucks using the road, but he couldn't live with the garbage trucks using it.

"I'm not against trucks. I wouldn't mind a few trucks, but we have a steady stream of trucks. We're overburdened with trucks," Millington said.

School candidates discuss questions, issues

This Monday two residents will be elected to four-year terms on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Voters will have a field of 10 candidates to choose from when they go to the polls Monday from 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

To help inform Canton and Plymouth residents about how the candidates stood on various issues, the Observer Newspapers asked each candidate to respond to questions asked by the news staff.

Each candidate was asked four questions by the Observer and all 10 responded. The candidates are:

David P. Artley, 8350 Honeytree Blvd., Canton; Janis S. Draper, 46744 Maidstone, Canton; Lynn S. Hoehn, 13200 Haverhill, Plymouth; Rodney J. Hosman, 46164 Barrington, Plymouth; Elaine J. Kirchgatter, 48377 Gyde, Canton; Arthur Leib, 44980 Leslie, Canton; E.J. McClendon, 40742 Crabtree, Plymouth; Marilyn Rickard, 41927 Hystone, Canton; Ernest G. Rumsby, 44551 Savery, Canton; Roland Thomas, 11985 Leighwood, Plymouth.

THE QUESTIONS asked and responses of each candidate follows:

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools face a projected $2.2-million budget deficit for the 1982-83 school year. What three areas of school spending would you preserve? What three areas would you eliminate?

KIRCHGATTER: When considering budget one must carefully review all requests, and the implications of each. A cut in one area may mean an increase in another. Ex: Shorter middle school day increases transportation budget. Fewer librarians may mean more aides. The areas of school spending I will continue to try to preserve as much as possible are the areas directly affecting students. 1) Favorable student/teacher ration. 2) Learning specialists. 3) Maintain strong academic program at high school. For the '82-83 budget year we will probably not need to eliminate any area - areas will be cut, but not completely eliminated.

RICKARD: I seek to preserve personnel and materials that directly interface with children in the classroom. I would also seek to protect special services personnel, ie. librarians, reading specialists, etc. Then I would seek to protect principals, custodians, etc.

I would eliminate the food service company because the finanical losses we have sustained for three years cannot be justified; we are spending dollars on food instead of education. I would seek out areas of weak management such as double Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage for employees, and negotiate that item to the district's best interests. Re-examine district's real estate holdings.

McCLENDON: The most significant issue confronting the Plymouth-Canton Schools is maintaining quality education while coping with reduced financial resources.

A) Programs that must be preserved: 1) Basic skills in math, reading, science, health and social studies. 2) Programs for the talented and gifted. 3) Music, art, and vocational education.

B) Programs that should be eliminated: 1) Social work ervices - these services, while generally useful, cannot be defended in times of serious economic stress. 2) Yearround (45-15) school programs should be dropped as quickly as facilities which can house children on a regular school year basis can be arranged, even if this involves rescheduling and shortened school days for some students. 3) Teacher aides, while useful, can be dispensed with. 4) In addition, reductions in psychological services, instructional materials, radio station, travel budgets, reduction in course offerings at the high schools, counseling services, athletics, and unreimbursed busing for children who live within the mile and a half.

RUMSBY: On the preservation side, partial listing:

A) TAG Program: It was cut to it's lowest level last year and there is no funding for materials this year. B) Security at CEP: There are only seven positions and we need every one of them to maintain order in the CEP and it's grounds. C) Health Services: Again only seven positions, nurses perform services ranging from first aid to vision and hearing testing.

On the reduction side, partial listing:

A) Reduce driver education 14.3 percent for a savings of $18,000. B) Reduction of 6.3 percent in transporation services for a savings of $134,980. C) Eventual elimination of ESY at two remaining Canton schools for a savings of approximately $150,000.

School labor contracts expire this fall. Do you favor a wage freeze; wage increase (how much); or wage reduction? Why?

HOEHN: I favor a wage and increment freeze for all employees and a wage and/or benefit rollback for the superintendent. It is mandatory that the board and unions act responsibly in settling labor contracts that reflect . some understanding of the distressed economic circumstances of our citizens. I also support work rule concessions on the part of all staff.

LEIB: With the arrival of collective bargaining in the public school systems, attitudes toward negotiations on the part of the community, teachers and board members have been forced to change. Wage reductions would not be healthy for the district since the better qualified professional educator would go elsewhere for employment. Without all the pertinent information available at this time, it is difficult to make a decision between freeze or increase. Besides, I feel the issue should revolve around saving jobs while developing a lucrative salary schedule.

THOMAS: The Plymouth-Canton Community is suffering significantly from the economic recession and many taxpayers have given wage and benefit concessions to maintain their jobs. Our bargaining units have benefited indirectly from the economic prosperity this community has shared and now should share in the sacrifices the rest ed I have a responsibility to the community, and it would be unfair of me to recommend any pay increases in the first year of the newly negotiated contract. Michigan and the Plymouth-Canton community will rebound from our terrible economic situation and when things get better, I may recommend an increase. But for the present, I must say that there must be a one-year wage freeze.

DRAPER: Require immediate wage freeze at all levels. There are areas at the administrative level where I would institute concessions besides a wage freeze, such as, reduced expense accounts and elimination of personal use of school vehicles. In view of the fact that we are in an economic depression, I feel everyone needs to sacrifice as much as possible to keep our schools operating at optimum efficiency.

ARTLEY: All employees of the district must share in the responsibility to the current economic climate. Such items as job security and perhaps a longer contract over which expenses might be amortized must be studied. The current school board has at its disposal a total panorama of the facts which are a must in order to establish a posi-* tion on the labor contracts. As a board member, I feel I could be instrumental in reaching an affordable (to everyone) and just negotiated contract.

One reason Plymouth-Canton schools face declining enrollment is because some parents and students are attracted to non-public schools. How would you propose to make Plymouth-Canton schools more attractive to parents and students?

HOSMAN: The problem of losing students to private schools could be best approached on three fronts, which are in need of work. There should be better discipline in the schools, with administrators given the authority to exercise a more firm stance in discipline. It would be very beneficial to increase parental involvement at all levels. Finally, the schools should have full programs, extracurricular offerings, and other activities or electives which give students the greatest opportunity for a total education.

primary responsibility for discipline should reside with the parents in the home, however, when home discipline fails, the schools should have more latitude and more mechanisms for maintaining good order. If good order were properly demonstrated, some parents would return their children to the public schools.

RICKARD: The high rate of private school enrollment coupled with the poor economic climate creates a startling indictment of the public school system.

According to the private school survey, the three reasons most often cited for private school enrollment are discipline, high standards and teaching methods.

To make Plymouth-Canton schools more attractive, we must provide what the community perceives as missing and necessary. Our approach to teaching must become systematic. We must provide good curriculum, teach in a business-like manner and have high expectations.

When the community has confidence in its school system, it will again be supportive.

KIRCHGATTER: The percentage of students leaving our public schools to attend non-public schools has not changed.

Plymouth-Canton schools are good. We need to get the parents and community into the schools. The PCEA recently sponsored a "Back to School Day" which was a postive step in the right direction. When is the last time a citizen has taken the opportunity to visit a chemistry lab at the high school, a language arts (English) class at the middle school or discuss with an elementary teacher the various reading levels in his/her classroom and how each student's needs are being met?

RUMSBY: This can be done be effective public relations:

1) Plymouth-Canton schools have a librarian in every building. 2) Academically, we rate with the top of the state in educating our youth. 3) We have a band program that ranks among the top in the state, additionally, we must promote the Plymouth-Canton community as a whole. This community has a lot to offer newcomers: friendliness, cooperation, low crime rate, cleanliness and effective communication on all local levels of goverment. I would attempt with various community leaders to organize a "Say Yes to the Plymouth-Canton Community" program. More people who come here reduces any budget problems the schools and local governments may have.

DRAPER: Improve our education system through a back-to-basics approach to teaching. Students aren't earning basic skills in math, spelling, reading and writing well enough to meet basic needs. Too much time is being wasted on social programs, field trips, games classes, etc. We need to adopt some of the policies that are attracting parents to non-public schools, such as dress codes for students and teachers. Individuals dressed in play clothes come to school ready to play - not work. We need a strong disciplinary code which will be administered by the local district, not the state courts.

ARTLEY: Plymouth-Canton has one of the very best

ARTLEY: I am not firmly convinced that the deficit will be as high as $2.2 million. Further, I feel that the current School Board could greatly enhance its image with an open and honest ranking of items to "preserve or eliminate." Areas that should be preserved are those that directly affect the kids and include special education, length of the day at the (Centennial Educational) Park, and making the lunch program cost efficient and selfsupporting. Areas to be reviewed for reduction or consolidation should include central administration, approaching booster groups with shared funding and responsibility ideas, and 'investigation of computerization of records and daily communications as a cost saver.

HOSMAN: In the days ahead, schools in Michigan face very trying times. This will require decisions of courage and conviction be made. These hard decisions should be trusted to experienced educators totally committed to the quality education of the school district's students. It is difficult to indicate now if any areas could or should be totally eliminated or preserved. There are areas which can use examination for cutting back. These areas include; 1) administration and support staff, 2) transportation 3) purchasing of supplies and materials.

There are some areas which should be last cut; these are 1) teaching staff 2) extracurricular activites 3) programs and offerings.

DRAPER: Preserve: A) Classroom size should be maintained or reduced. B) Special Education and TAG programs. C) Sports programs - provided they are consolidated into one program efficiently administered.

Eliminate: A) Consolidate departments in the superintendent's offices. We should eliminate at least one of the assistant superintendents and several of their executive and other assistants. B) The food service company should be replaced with cold lunches, consisting of sandwiches, fruit or vegetable and milk or juice. Very little preparation would be required. Junk food should not be made available at our schools. C) Cut the number of teachers' aids by at least one-half.

THOMAS: The three areas in the 1982-1983 school year that should be preserved are teaching staff to student ratios, the length of the educational day and required special programs including special education and TAG. The two areas that should be recommended for reductions are the four schools on ESY and administrative and clerical support personnel with minimal student contact. Other ancillary areas should be targeted for reductions, not elimination, based upon student educational and safety requirements. The use of the fund equity should be maximized, with an allowance for emergencies, to reduce the imbalance between revenue and expenditure.

HOEHN: I would preserve those items affecting the student's school day: class size, instructional materials and school-day programs. I would eliminate the public relations department and the food service company. I would also support self-sustaining extracurriculars.

LEIB: Unfortunately, the available amount of financial resources is a limiting factor in the operation of our schools today. The schools of the future will be more specialized than the schools of today. Inadequate funds could lead to few guidance services, meager instructional supof us have made and will continue to make in the foreseeable future. Therefore, I favor a wage freeze negotiated with all bargaining units by the board of education. As a board member, I will satisfy my responsibility to the bargaining units by demanding productivity from all school employees.

McCLENDON: The present budget deficits and poor prospects for improved financial resources simply say there will not be funds for increased salaries. There is no adequate rationale for cost of living increases, increased salary schedules and increased benefits. This is a time to hold the line on salaries and seriously negotiate reduction in some non-salary benefits.

RICKARD: The mood of this community does not reflect happily on the prospect of wage increases for any group. Property taxes are astronomical while the community at large has suffered wage and benefit concessions, and there is a new emphasis on value for money spent.

I would freeze wages for all bargaining units and institute salary realignment and/or adjustments among administration.

KIRCHGATTER: The board of education has formally begun negotations. As a current member of the board, I feel it would be inappropriate to state where I stand in a regard to wages for the coming year. The majority of the board has established wage parameters and I am in agreement with the decision we made.

HOSMAN: I would favor a raise for the teaching staff. Exact figures are dependent on final budget numbers. Other groups could be considered for increases if there are revenues available.

Our children's education is based primarily on the quality of instruction, best stated by columnist Sidney Harris, "Actually, no dollar amount can be put on the value of a really good teacher. A nickel a year is too much for a bad one!"

HOEHN: The major problem facing public education is consistency. Teaching standards, curricular requirements and student behavior should not vary radically from classroom to classroom. The schools should set the highest achievable standards, based on existing practice occuring now in many classrooms, and insist all others strive to attain that level of performance. Society writes laws applicable to all citizens; schools must do the same with the same consistent enforcement. Businesses do not allow employees to set individualized work standards; schools should not allow teachers to, either. The only inconsistency occuring in school performance should be that expectations for intellectual attainment of each student will be determined by his innate capacity for learning.

THOMAS: My discussions with parents and students have convinced me that there are many complex reasons why a student is placed in a private school. The two most frequent reasons mentioned are academic standards and discipline. One of my major objectives is to develop and implement a program that compares academic performance with learning expectations, establishes a system to assess the results of the program and to identify required adjustment and communicates the results to parents, staff, and community. Teachers and administrators must consistently implement methods of disciplining children to ensure that disciplinary actions are corrective and preventative.

LEIB: Parents are becoming increasingly aware that students have many different educational needs. For example, when Public Act 94-142 passed, it required school districts to improve educational opportunities for minority and handicapped students. Individualized educational programs or contemporary programs which would allow the student to be more imaginative and creative at the earliest possible age of competence. General school programming should benefit or attract the students from throughout the district that has the interest and support of the community is a viable task which must be under-school systems in the state. The declining enrollment is related to several factors like people not having children and the high cost of maintaining or even getting into a house or children going to private schools, etc. Careful study through surveys can pinpoint the problem areas and appropriate responses planned. Perhaps every person involved in the school district should act as a public relations person. The adversary relationships such as parents vs. the board, etc., must be turned around through positive interaction.

Discipline problems exist at all levels of education elementary, middle and high school - both inside and outside the classroom. How would you handle discipline problems in the district?

DRAPER: We need to develop a consistent disciplinary code district-wide; one with input from parents and teachers. This policy would have to be supported by the administration. The students know that teachers' disciplinary actions have rarely been supported. Students need limits and need to know they will be consistently enforced. Teachers need to know they will be supported in their disciplinary efforts. Students should not be promoted each year if they are not learning the required skills. The school administration needs to have the courage to stand up to special interest groups that are trying to erode discipline in public education.

ARTLEY: Discipline problems should be handled through a consistent application of policy and procedure. If a procedure does not work, find out why, review it and perhaps modify it. There has to be a de-emphasis of singular and isolated discipline problems. They must be reviewed in perspective and context along with all schools problems for similarity or pattern.

HOSMAN Some areas of the student code of conduct may need to be rewritten. The responsibility needs to be placed not so much on the schools as on the students and parents for proper conduct. We need to be less reluctant to remove students from classes if they cannot fulfill our basic expectations. If there were more expedient referrals to special services, social work, and courts for truancy, more problems could be solved more quickly.

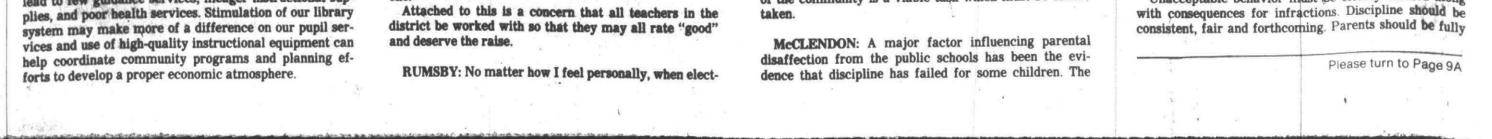

Students with special problems would receive the help they need and the incorrigible student would not be allowed in school unless they can show appropriate behavior.

KIRCHGATTER: I strongly believe discipline begins at home. When the home is supportative of discipline, our staff finds they are much more successful in dealing with a problem, should one arise. Staff needs to set good examples and have the expectation that students will behave properly. At present, the most severe discipline is expulsion from school, which has been done numerous times this year. Discipline needs to be firm and fair.

RUMSBY: Disciplinary problems should be handled according to the state laws governing them. In schools we have our code of conduct and general school laws from the state. As far as discipline in the home is concerned, parents have a responsibility to society, themselves and their children to make sure their children obey the rules and regulations that they are governed by. Teachers are there to make sure students learn. Teachers are to provide a good atmosphere for learning. Parents are to insure that their children behave themselves. Students are to devote their main energies to learning.

RICKARD: Neither teachers nor students should be required to accept vulgar, abusive language or behavior. The present student code of conduct outlines those things regarded as unacceptable citizenship. The code simply is not being applied.

Unacceptable behavior must be clearly defined along prepared to become involved in the process of discipline in conjuction with the school

Obviously, since principals and staff must carry out established policy, it is incumbent upon them to set exemplary examples.

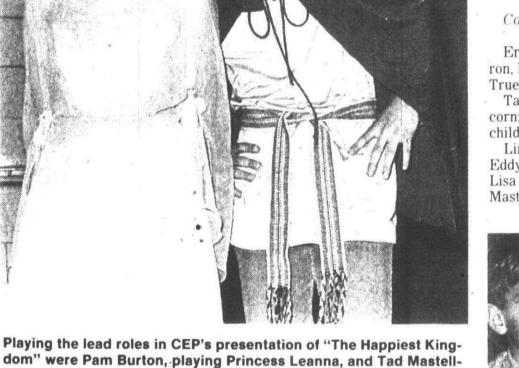

McCLENDON: The discipline problems have been exacerbated by the progressive discipline policy. When a student becomes so unruly that school work cannot proceed, this child should be removed from the classroom. Inschool suspensions should be used more often as should after-school detention and parents should not have the option to override these judgments. Schools should explore their legal authority to suspend or even to exclude children who clearly cannot adjust to or cooperate in the school environment.

THOMAS: Developing and implementing a discipline policy that defines specific behavior expectations and explains to students and parents what happens to students who do not meet the standards is one of my major objectives. A supportive atmosphere must be provided to ensure consistent and fair application of standards. A specific code of student privileges and responsibilities must be developed and each student should be graded on his/her performance with respect to their responsibilities. If students do not meet the expectation, they should lose some of their privileges. The school system should share teaching responsibility.

HOEHN: The major focus of school discipline should be to protect rights of majority to learn in conducive environment. Community and staff need to establish standards. Each building should clearly define and communicate rules and consequences. Rigorous and consistent enforcement is most important element. Emphasis should be placed on early parental involvement and protection of staff and students from abusive communicate to offending student and all other students that the nonconforming behavior is unacceptable and will not be tolerated, before dealing with the causes of such behavior.

LEIB: The question of how to respond to discipline problems has perplexed professionals for years. Students have pressed cases against school officials for dress codes, school policies and suspensions, and the courts have become involved. Disruptive behavior that infringes upon the affairs of school or puts the student, teacher or the public property in jeopardy has to be dealt with in accordance to our community standards. I believe this is a good opportunity for the community to become involved and see the problems the professional educator faces today. Cooperation between the parents and school system is the key.

O&E Thursday, June 10, 1982 Ma Bell plans to use Plymouth filming for pamphlets

By Judy Celmer staff writer

When Michigan Bell brought its television crews to Plymouth this past spring, the idea was to make a pilot commercial for national TV featuring Plymouth and a host of city employees.

That TV spot, however, "did not test well," according to Michigan Bell's Tom Hill, so plans were changed.

The taping and interviews done in Plymouth are being made into a multimedia presentation to be viewed by 400 Michigan Bell account executives, said Hill, market manager for state and local government with Michigan Bell.

THAT MEANS a two-part presentation - a 30-minute slide show and a sales brochure - will be used as inhouse sales tool by Bell account executives.

So although Plymouth residents won't be seeing themselves on national TV, pictures of Plymouth and its employees will be used in "at least 25,000 brochures," and in the accompany ing slide show, said Hill.

Michigan Bell's reason for choosing Plymouth had to do with a new telephone service installed in the city just after the first of the year, called the Horizon Com munication System.

LIKEWISE, SAID Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper, "Our decision to work with Michigan Bell was based on our belief in the Horizon system."

Even though the taping won't end up as a commercial, "When it's used as a sales tool," said Graper, "it brings a certain amount[®] of notoriety to our area.

"Any time you can get recognition, either nationwide or statewide, obviously the community is going to be the winner in the end."

Michigan Bell chose Plymouth in its effort "to select the best representative for the Horizon system," Hill said.

AFTER REJECTING two other test projects, "It was decided to use Plymouth to show how the system works so well with local government," said Hill. But there were other reasons.

"We saw Plymouth as a growing, vital community," said Hill, "with a progressive administration in the city.'

Michigan Bell pervceived a "very positive relationship between the city government and its residents," said

"FAMILY

Hill, "and the cooperative environment in the community made us feel very much at home.

"The people from the Mayflower Hotel were very, very cooperative. That was when we were filming the pilot." And after the crews "did a lot of photographs in the town, it was decided it would be a very picturesque communi-

THE NATURE of the Horizon system makes the presentation "industry specific," said Hill. It is designed to work for one segment of the market municipal governments.

Some of the Plymouth people to be retary, the city manager, fire chief and chief of police.

Graper believes Michigan Bell's choice of Plymouth was a good one. "I think the charm of the Plymouth community had something to do with it.

"I think the fact that we use the system and are willing to stand up and say something about it had a lot to do with it."

Both parties - the city of Plymouth and Michigan Bell - seem pleased with their respective results of the project.

MICHIGAN BELL is wrapping up a multi-media sales presen tation, which, when completed, "will be distributed to 19 system companies to be presented to mayors and city managers throughout the United States," said Hill.

Plymouth's city government has nothing but accolades for the communication system they bought a year and a half ago.

"It's a very good system," said Graper. "We're very pleased with it."

Defense secretary warns

U.S. defense 'must catch up' by 1990

By Suzie Rollins Singer staff writer

It will probably be 1990 before the United States can effectively defend itself against Soviet powers, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said.

"The Soviets have an advantage in nuclear as well as conventional forces. We have to catch up - not missile for missile, bullet for bullet or tank for tank - but we have to regain enough strength so we can make a critical deterrent to attack on conventional as well as strategic sides," he said.

Speaking to reporters prior to his address to the Economic Club of Detroit Monday, Weinberger defended the Reagan defense budget, explaining why he believes the arms race is important.

"It takes a long time to do this," Weinberger added, "and it will be about the end of the decade before we ever recover what we think is sufficient strength, both strategically and conventionally."

THE NEXT few years, as the U.S. tries to catch up, will probably be the most dangerous, Weinberger conceded, saying this is the period often referred to as the "window of vulnerability."

"I hope public opinion will support and sustain, on an annual basis, the very expensive, very difficult task of rearthing the county," the defense secretary said.

"The other aspect of it is we don't think we can get a good result out of the arms reductions talks that are about to start - and some are going on now - unless we enter negotiations with a considerable and correctly perceived degree of strength," he add-

If that turns out to be true, and the arms buildup continues, Weinberger said, the White House will be able to assure Americans they will be sufficiently armed by the end of the decade.

"In the meantime, if we get a good result of the arms reductions talks, that would be infinitely better, because then we can maintain deterrence and balance at much lower levels," he said.

BUILDING UP national defense is vital to all American industries, Weinberger said.

"National defense is the only social program that permits all other social programs to continue to exist," he said.

Arms development could mean more jobs for Michigan residents, but Weinberger made no specific promises. He encouraged more firms to join the competitive bidding list and hoped the government would be a better client than it has been.

"It's important that we buy at the lowest, competitive price. We're looking in areas of high unemployment to do production. Like the (Detroit Arsenal) Tank Plant will be doing some hiring," Weinberger said.

Weinberger hopes more manufacturing companies will become interested in bidding on government jobs.

"The thing that worries me is when we don't have competition. We haven't had enough people willing to bid. Part of that problem is the government has been a very unreliable customer. It started out with big orders, then cancelled them. It hasn't paid any penalties, and that has to stop," he added.

PROTECTING the nation's technological secrets is vital if American wants to surpass Russia in power, Weinberger said.

"The Soviets strategic weapons program has benefited substantially from the acquisition of Western technology. The striking similarities between the U.S. Minuteman silo and the Soviet SS-13 silo very likely resulted from acquisition of U.S. documents," he explained. Most of the technologies transfers, he said, have occurred because of gaps in the international control system; illegally, by controlled "front" corporations; by co-opting businessmen and factory workers; through bribery and other questionable transactions.

While trying to catch up with the Russians, Weinberger said, it is important to keep the new technology a secret. He did not, however, advocate a breakdown in free trade.

"We have to be more careful in protect our technology. The administration is implementing a new program of domestic export controls designed to safeguard American technology from compromise," he said.

Takes tour of community

Students in Phyllis Mitchell's class at Fiegel Elementary School recently participated in the annual community tour conducted each year by Mitchell for her third grade students. The class is shown here arriving at the central office of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools on Harvey in the city of Plymouth. From there, the students visited Plymouth Aero at Mettetal Airport, Canton Township Hall, the Gandy Dancer in Ann Arbor for lunch, a trip from Ann Arbor to Dearborn aboard the Amtrak, and then returning to Fiegel School. The next day students visited the Renaissance Center, had lunch at Nemo's, toured the Science Center. All expenses were paid for by a fund-raiser the class had at Christmas time.

Keeping current health care levels could be costly

By Sandra Armbruster staff writer

14A(P,C)

How much consumers are willing to pay for good health may determine the level of future health care available in Michigan and elsewhere.

That's the opinion of Richard T. Young, who recently was named president of the Michigan Osteopathic Hospital Association (MOHA) and also works as vice president of Greater Detroit Community Hospitals Inc.

"What kind of health care do we as a society want and need? If we want what we've got, then it's going to be expensive," said Young, a Westland resident who has spent most of his working lifetime in hospitals.

Young, now 34, began learning about health care when he started working as a volunteer orderly at St. John Hospital, Seven Mile and Mack, at 15.

'When I was old enough to be paid, they hired me," said Young.

His study of health care systems continued at Columbia University, New York, where he received a master's degree in hospital administration in 1972.

Now he works as the general manager for Detroit Osteopathic Hospital, a 305-bed facility in Highland Park, and represents the two dozen osteopathic hospitals in the state as MOHA's president.

COST IS THE number-one issue facing hospitals, Young said.

"The cost of health care is very expensive. There are a number of reasons for that.

"The cost of technology in place in every institution to provide certain specialized skills makes health care more expensive as a result," Young said.

Young believes that osteopathic hospitals provide health care at a lower cost than other hospitals do.

"Our tendency is to provide more of a community-type service as opposed to highly specialized care. For instance, my institution (Detroit Osteopathic Hospital) is the only one in Michigan that does open-heart surgery.

"The osteopathic profession is oriented toward community medicine and family practice. As a result, our hospitals are somewhat smaller."

Richard T. Young Michigan Osteopathic Hospital Association

The lower cost-per-patient of community hospitals is one of the arguments their officials have used in bargaining with the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeast Michigan (CHPC-SEM).

CHPC-SEM, a federally financed agency, is charged with developing a plan to reduce the number of hospital beds in southeast Michigan. The number of "excess beds" in the area is determined by a state committee.

According to theory, reducing the number of beds in area hospitals will force some to either close or to consolidate. That, say health planners, ultimately will reduce the cost of health care.

THE MOHA has provided a means for osteopathic hospitals to face the issue "in unified action," Young said.

"This is probably the most significant example of our association working well. Looking at the group of 10 osteopathic hospitals in southeastern Michigan, we used their history of census (percentage of beds filled during the year) and services provided to come to a conclusion on what was our fair share (of excess beds)."

The result was an amendment to the public health act changing the formula for the number of excess beds.

But there were other practical and emotional problems with the plan to cut down on the number of available beds in the area, Young said.

"The other big issue is why do I have to leave my community to get the health care I need?" That's what would happen if the smaller, community hospitals were forced to close, Young said.

"Everyone wants the best available, highest quality, most up-to-date service when in need. That's when (health care) becomes a personal issue."

THE OVERALL cost of health care in Michigan isn't excessively high, Young said.

According to American Hospital Association statistics quoted in the March issue of Michigan Hospitals, hospital costs rose 10.3 percent for 1979-80, compared with a Consumer Price Index rise of 15.9 percent. Michigan hospitals also ranked as fifth lowest in cost increases.

Greenhouse

Community hospitals in Michigan ranked as having the third lowest cost increases for the same period, according to the Michgian Hospital Association.

Still, hospital administrators are asking "Are there ways to lower the costs and still maintain the quality of service," said Young. "The answer is probably no.

"The dilemma is what do you eliminate, costwise, that will impact quality the least."

YOUNG BELIEVES Michigan stands out in cost containment because of a Blue Cross prospective reimbursement program.

"We think it has been very effective (in holding down costs). Currently, the federal government is considering a similar program for Medicare that would reduce our payments by two percent. Therefore, we would be paid 98 percent of what it costs us to provide health care.

"It doesn't take a whole lot to figure out that's not too workable."

Young expects the federal govern-tainment that will feature many of the provisions of Michigan's program.

Limiting the growth of hospitals in the future, Young said, will be the stable population figures and possibly the emphasis of the Reagan administration on competition in the health care field.

"The competition idea is an interesting one. In essence, as a consumer, you would be given a basic health insurance package with the option of adding better coverage. Or, you could decline the basic coverage, subscribe to a lesser plan and get cash back, gambling that you won't be ill.

"Providers, in effect, would be forced to compete for consumers, but I'm not sure they can insure quality (under that plan)."

CONSUMERS, HOWEVER, can expect to see area hospitals develop their marketing strategy with new services. "Hospitals more and more feel that ment eventually to institute a reim-, with opportunities to provide health edbursement program based on cost con- ucation, health promotion and disease avoidance."

> A hospital is usually one of the largest, most stable employers in a community, he said. Peoples Community Hospital Authority, which includes Annapolis in Wayne as well as four other hospitals, is one of the 10 largest employers in the state, Young said.

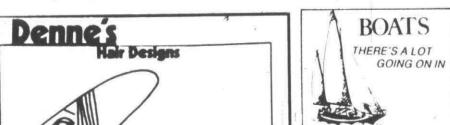

> "We're coming to grips with the social role we've got. There's more to being a hospital than being a lodging place for sick patients. If we're interested in health, we ought to do the things that insure the health of the community."

Michigan has the largest number of osteopathic hospitals, doctors and does ' more medical education for osteopaths than any other state, he said.

The MOHA will have to be involved in discussions over the cost of training doctors who leave the state and in the number of osteopathic physicians need-

The branch of the Rouge River that wends its way down from Northville, picking up all sorts of debris along the way is not only an eyesore as it reaches the bridge on Northville Road but it's also emerged as somewhat of a political football.

"We, in the township, would like nothing better than to have it cleaned up," said Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor, "b we are stymied.

"The Rouge is under the jurisdiction of the Wayne County Road Commission and the folks down there don't seem to have the desire to do a clean-up job.

"It has been that way for years, but still nothing has been done. In some years, the Boy Scouts, Jaycees and other groups lend a hand, but that help is only temporary. So here we are with about it."

WHILE PLACING the onus on the road commission, Breen was serious in his desire to see something done.

"We will do our part here in the township. But we are not equipped to handle the big jobs. We have only one truck, but we would do what we could," the supervisor said.

Breen pointed out that it is a matter of labor costs.

"I have talked with the road commission and the members claim there is no money available to do the job as it should be done.

"The county's labor costs are high," Breen went on. "We can hire men for the job at half the price, if given the right to do it, but we lack equipment."

The Northville commnity answers the labor question at times by employing some of the inmates at the Detroit

Firm's heating costs prompts its relocation

By W.W. Edgar staff writer

The heat is driving Jim Cote and his Linwood Auto Parts firm out of Plymouth Township.

"No, it isn't the heat of the sun," Cote said with a smile, but Consumers Power and its bills for heat. I just can't take it any longer."

To prove that he wasn't joshing, Cote explained, "This old building (at 42331 Ann Arbor Road) isn't insulated. It is wide open to cold weather and the conditions inside are not suitable. So I have had to find a new place."

The location he has in mind is on Ann Arbor Trail close to the railroad.

" I am just waiting for the word that the present occupant is going out of business. As soon as he leaves, I'll move in and perhaps expand our working area.

"And when it does, the name will be changed, too. With the move, we will become e Plymouth Auto Supply Co. And hopefully, we will be doing buiness on a larger scale," he said.

Cote traced the history of the company by saying that it had been on Ann Arbor Road for the past 10 years. Be-

"I can remember working with my father in the Detroit plant when I was a youngster. He was there for for 31 years and I finally closed the place last June.'

Cote said that he was happy to make the move, aside from the heat bills.

"Our new location - when we get it - will be more modern and it is possible that I can take a larger portion of the building and lease some parts of it."

He was quick to expla that the large heating bill was not the fault of the Consumers Power Co. "It was the old building that wasn't built to protect anyone against the cold weather. And at times, it got good and cold. In the new place, this will be corrected as the building is more modern.

"So you can say that the heat got me."

McClendon tops list of school candidates

LYMOUTH-CANTON VOTERS face an important decision Monday when they elect two candidates who will represent the community on the Board of Education for Voters will choose among 10 candidates for fourvear school-board seats. At least one will be a newcomer decided last March not to seek re-election. Davis said she was tired of being the "great compromiser" on a board that hasn't always 'agreed on many school issues, including curriculum, budget reductions and eliminations and discipline.

Elaine Kirchgatter is the only incumbent in this election. She has served on the board for five years and hopes to gain another four-year term.

OF THE 10 CANDIDATES seeking your vote, the Plymouth Observer and Canton Observer believe E.J. McCledon clearly is the most qualified and has the necessary insight to be a strong board member. He deserves top consideration among this year's candidates

McClendon, a school board member in the mid-1970s, has stayed active in the school district despite being off the board. He has a wealth of knowledge and the diplomatic skills that is needed when the schools face difficult decisions in the future.

McClendon, who has the credentials to match his knowledge, is an education professor at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. A former school board president, McClendon is well-versed in all phases of education, from budget concerns to discipline.

VOTERS HAVE AN interesting decision to make for the second seat on the school board. The Observer believes two candidates should receive strong consideration depending on your personal view of the current board and its past accomplish-

However, if you desire a change in direction and attitude of the present board, the Observer believes Marilyn Rickard is the better choice. She stands out among the newcomers to board activities.

Kirchgatter, a five-year veteran, can maintain the continuity of the board, if re-elected. Her experience is especially important in present negotiations with seven labor units. Labor contracts expire this fall with all school unions.

Kirchgatter has remained active in the Plymouth-Canton community. She has children at each level of schooling and has a keen understanding of the "grass roots" problems faced each day by teachers, principals and parents.

Rickard, likewise, has been active on school committees for more than five years. She has served on everything from the Eriksson Elementary School PTO to the safety, food and student-code committees. Rickard's major concerns focus on curriculum and discipline improvements. She is not afraid to offer suggestions that may change administration's priorities and benefit the district.

Rickard can add interesting viewpoints on issues that the board currently lacks. And she will insist on conducting board action in full view of the public.

FOR THESE REASONS, the Observer endorses McClendon as the top school-board candidate and either Kirchgatter or Rickard for the second seat.

The decision is important because it may affect future school boads and the direction of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for the next four years. Every vote counts.

THE BEST CANDIDATE for the Wayne-Westland school board isn't running for the four-year term to be filled in the June 14 election. That nameless, faceless candidate failed to file for the election.

Instead, voters are faced with choosing between a 16-year incumbent who has shown little leadership and a challenger with poor records in voting and in community service and with only one, real concern.

Neither candidate is one who could be singled out as a first, best choice. Since the two men present the only alternatives available, however, we think voters would be best served by again selecting Thomas Barrett for a fifth term on the board.

Barrett's opponent, Dewey Combs, claims his previous work schedule prohibited him from any continuing record of community service. That doesn't explain why he has voted only four times " ; campaign issues.

since 1973, and only once in a regular June school election, according to voting records.

Barrett best choice for Wayne-Westland schools

Combs, a Westland police lieutenant, said the "main reason" why he is running is to prevent the district from starting a community college. He also favors closed meetings for behind-the-scenes discussions with other board members, "100-percent control" over what goes on in the district, the teaching of creationism in schools and reading scriptural passages in the classroom.

CLEARLY, COMBS' ideas in many instances would violate law as well as the prohibition against an established state religion.

A school board trustee must look at all the issues, providing positive, goal-setting leadership and doing the research necessary to make appropriate decisions. Combs has yet to do his homework on

Wayne-Westland School District

The district serves southeast Canton

But Combs, 46, is in touch with the angry mood of the taxpayer - a mood that finds them asking about negotiations, teacher contracts and the need for improved communication.

Barrett could learn some lessons on those points. Barrett, a teacher in Dearborn, outdistances Combs elsewhere, however. He knows that a school board is a policy-making body which hires managers to keep the district operating. He has a better understanding of the complicated financial problems facing the district.

Records show that Barrett has voted in every election since 1960, and he has a consistent record of community involvement.

The need for effective leadership during the next four years will require Barrett to be more vocal on issues, to come up with an idea on how he'd like the district to change and to become accessible to the public more than by just listing his phone number in the book.

On the basis of experience and knowledge of the issues, Thomas Barrett is the better choice for vot-

Then maybe next year will appear the names and faces of candidates who have been involved in school affairs, who understand the issues and who have the courage to lead.

Grand Prix gave area a big boost

▼O WHAT DID it all mean?

I'm talking about the Grand Prix, which concluded on Sunday. I've spent more than a few minutes trying to sort out my feelings about it

At first, the Grand Prix turned me off. Maybe it's my not understanding international road racing. With its strong Monte Carlo tradition, the Grand Prix is associated with Europe, not the United States. Only one driver (Eddie Cheever) was from this country — and even that tie was tenuous. He was born here but has lived in Italy since he was two years old.

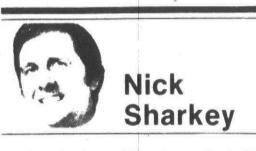

Also, the "jet set" image of the parties surrounding the event didn't add to my interest. Any environment that attracts socialities Tom and Diane Schoenith is not for me.

Reading that the city of Detroit paid $800,000 to pave the roadway for the Grand Prix made me wonder. This is the same city government that is cutting vital services to its residents. Remember the unplowed condition of Detroit's residential streets last winter?

Finally, I learned that local investors were spending about $4 million in hopes of getting a return of $2.5 million.

Something was wrong about the Grand Prix. If it wasn't good for Detroit, then it certainly would not benefit the suburbs.

THE GRAND PRIX was on my mind last week when I read a story about the retirement of Rabbi Richard Hertz of Birmingham's Temple Beth El. Hertz talked about the inner turmoil he went-for the suburbs, and he reluctantly decided he would have to follow them.

But he never lost his love for Detroit. He believes Detroit and its suburbs are linked.

"A city divided between the inner city and the suburbs will only result in frustration," he said." We're all part of Detroit. It's one city."

That got me thinking more about the Grand Prix. A city is made up of many elements - some good and some bad. The ghettos and unemployment are part of that. And so are ethnic festivals, the symphony orchestra and the art institute.

In recent years, this area has hosted the Republican National Convention, the Super Bowl and now the Grand Prix. It can reasonably be argued that the money spent in any of these efforts could have gone toward relieving some of the poverty.

Yet, these events help give Detroit a positive image among persons throughout this nation. That can only help to attract and keep more businesses and jobs.

Or here's another way to look at it: With all of the negative news coming out of Detroit because of the slump in the auto industry, what would its image be without the Republican convention, Super Bowl and Grand Prix?

BY THE TIME the Grand Prix was about to begin, I was a booster. I worried on Saturday when rain delayed the time trials and threatened Sunday's race. But the sun came through on Sunday.

Jim McKay and Jackie Stewart of ABC sports enthusiastically described the "friendly but cosmopolitan" people in Detroit to millions of viewers. ABC cameras showed the Detroit River filled with boats and the magnificent shoreline behind.

Even those familiar with the city had to think again of its virtues.

Now I can't wait for the return of the Grand Prix

Little Pete can't understand

our economy

OR YEARS, any time The Stroller was run down at the heels, he'd drop in to visit with his long-time friend, little Pete, the shoe repairman.

These visits were always gratifying, for little Pete was one of those happy-go-lucky types who always had a smile and a good word, no matter the weather or conditions. A few minutes chatting with him was like a tonic from a medicine man.

But the other day it was different.

When The Stroller dropped in on little Pete in the back area of the business district, he found the shoe repairman in a strange frame of mind - at least for him.

"No can understand," Pete said. "One time people no can afford new shoes, so Pete is kept busy. Business was fine - putting on new soles and heels and doing big with rubber heels.

"Now business is bad. No one comes to have shoes fixed. They no buy new ones. Now no fixing old ones.

Then he paused a moment and asked, rather puzzled: "Do they go to sports games in bare feet?"

LITTLE PETE was serious, even to the point that he threatened to join his son in the landscaping # . · · business.

But he is not alone with the question of how, when people are supposed to be struggling in the doldrums of a recession, they still fill various sports arenas to the brim - whether it be baseball, football or any sport.

The latest puzzler was the Grand Prix race on the streets of downtown Detroit. Just imagine turning the streets into a racetrack. It meant paving the entire area at a cost of millions. Then they built bleachers along the course at another fabulous figthe stroller W.W. Edgar

In the midst of all this — almost in private William Clay Ford, owner of the Detroit Lions. agreed to a new contract with Coach Monte Clark that called for $250,000 for five years.

Meanwhile, the Detroit Tigers are far ahead of the usual attendance figures and expect to attract two million customer by the time fall rolls around

And at long last, the Detroit Red Wings have been sold, for an unannounced sum, but one that is supposed to have been more than $10 million.

Even pro fighters are collecting millions for a single bout

ALL THE WHILE, the players are getting record salaries, and to a stranger from another planet, it would seem that all is well in the good ol' U.S. of A

But then you take a walk down near the unemployment office, and you find long lineups of jobless men and women collecting a weekly sum.

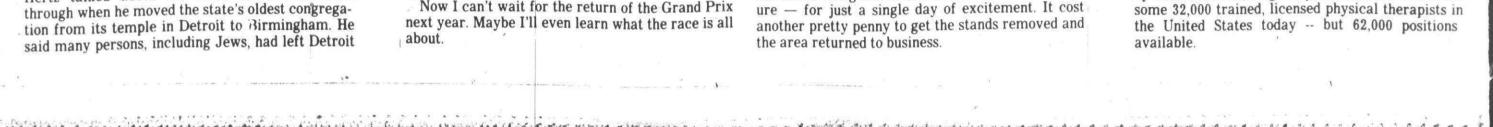

This poses a question — one which defies a solution in the present economy.

While the ranks of the unemployed increase and business shrivels, how can people pay fabulous prices for a day of entertainment?

No wonder little Pete, standing behind the counter in his repair shop, shook his head and said: "No can understand."

marters and to be a side as

William Lazer, a professor in the Graduate School of Business Administration at MSU, presented his analysis of the Japanese markets, "Insights into Japanese Marketing: Myths and Realities," recently during the annual meeting of the American Marketing Association in New York.

He says Japan is now the second largest consumer market in the free world - 40 percent larger than West Germany and 2.8 times that of Great Britain. With 32 million households, the Japanese market has become very attractive to international business, says Lazer.

"But to be successful in Japan, American marketers should recognize the fundamental, distinctive, unique characteristics of the Japanese culture, and marketing approaches of American companies should reflect them," says Lazer.

Several American companies such as Meiji/Borden, 7-Eleven Stores and Coca-Cola have succeeded in Japan because they have expended the effort to understand the Japanese marketing system and culture, says Lazer.

Japanese competition, says Lazer, is now "forcing a discipline on American management and labor which is inducing them to take the actions that they should have taken long ago on their own initiative."

Lazer says American marketers are often unwilling to modify their products and expect the Japanese to totally adopt the Western culture. Lazer calls that one of the myths about Japan.

"Japan has borrowed what applied, absorbing the borrowing into its own fundamental society," says Lazer. 'What has occurred is a massaging of things Western to adapt them to the Japanese culture, resulting in the

Thursday, June 10, 1982 O&E

Japanization of Western culture rather than Westernization of the Japanese culture.' In addition, American marketers interested in doing business in Japan must also recognize the fundamental differences in the way the two countries do business.

For instance, says Lazer, Japanese retailers have severe space limitations, face exeedingly high space costs and require frequent, sometimes daily delivery

"Surely this is inefficient by American standards, but it is a requisite of successful marketing in Japan." says Lazer

Japanese companies are also more interested in the human apsects of business, not just the short-run returns, as are many American companies, Lazer says. In return, the employees exhibits strong loyalty to their employer.

American businesses do not understand and appreciate the differences between American and Japanese pricing arrangements, particularly the extension of credit, says Lazer.

Communication was non-existent

To the editor: (An open letter to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Pursuant to my conversation on Wednesday, May 26, with Dr. John Telford I felt compelled to write this letter and register a formal complaint with the administration and staff at Central Middle School.

The principal, Gus Gorguze, and assistant principal, Greg Owens, have completely failed in their responsibility concerning our son Curtis Frederick. My concerns and complaints are as follows.

First Semester: Early in the school year we caught our son skipping class. My wife called the school and talked to Owens and informed him of Curt missing class unexcused - our hope was, with the school's help, to correct this before it became a problem. My wife asked Owens to contact her at work if Curt was late or absent from school. This was not done.

SECOND SEMESTER: Curt's grades were failing, yet no one at the school contacted us. We did not find out until we received a report card. He was still skipping classes, yet we were not notified as asked. I went and talked again with Owens and asked to be kept informed about Curt's progress. Communication was non-existant.

Third Semester: When I became aware the Curt still was doing failing work, I went to the school again and this time insisted on talking with Gor-guze. I made him aware of all the problems my wife and I were having getting communication from Central. At that time he called Owens and also Roderick Minnock (Curt's counselor) into his office. Together, we agreed that a weekly progress report was necessary and that his attendance would be watched closely - again it was all talk and no action.

FOURTH SEMESTER: On Tuesday, May 25, I received a call from one of the schools secretaries informing us that our son was suspended from school for having 13 unexcused absences from his drafting class since April (seven weeks) - again we were not contacted. I questioned my son about all the days missed and his response was "Who cares, no one at school does - it's easy to skip. One day I didn't want to stay in my drafting class, so I told the teacher (Scott Kurtz) I had a dentist appointment - he said 'Leave'.'

I was told by Minnock, Curt's counselor, that lack of communication was a serious problem within the school.

I think the attitude of the administration and staff at Central Middle School is totally uncaring and unprofessional.

The school year is over and our son is failing the ninth grade. I'm convinced this could have been avoided if our cry for help would have been heard.

Females are running hard to catch up in Michigan sports.

They've had a push from Title XI, but a backward pull from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

And they've dealt, and keep dealing, with what one female coach calls "the most ingrained case of sex bias we have in the schools."

Pat Bubel, physical education instructor at Northville High School. used those words as she and Helen Connolly, co-athletic director at Pioneer High School in Ann Arbor, addressed a recent meeting of Northwest Wayne County chapter, National Organization for Women.

"Sports are the most wonderful thing people can experience," said Bubel. "Playing is an important part of growing up. It is a way to learn how to get along with others and a safe way to make mistakes.

"But in our culture it has been genderized for a long time. But athletic talent is not genderized. There is as

That was just what women had in mind.

Bubel and Connolly reminded their audience the fight is not over in sports for women. In Michigan public high schools, girls have shorter athletic seasons in most sports. This results in lower salaries for coaches.

The speakers also were distressed at the lack of female input into organization that governs public high school Farmington Hills.Her daughter attends sports in this state, the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA).

She explained that MHSAA has scheduled 50 percent of girls' sports in the fall. For female basketball players this results in no action during the winter when college scouts are looking for scholarship material.

Dickey-Price

Mary Catherine Dickey of Farmington Hills and Kevin Andrew Price of Plymouth plan a late August wedding in Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church of Plymouth. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dickey of Dynwoody, Ga. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Price of Brookside, Plymouth.

The bride-elect is a 1981 graduate of Central Michigan University. She is employed by the Detroit Region Headquarters of Xerox Corp. as executive secretary and financial control coordinator. Her fiance is a 1982 graduate of the University of Michigan with a bachelor's degree in biology. He plans to earn his master's degree in hospital administration.

She indicated too, that because most seasons are shorter for girls, the pay of their coaches is less. "Interestingly, one golf coach for boys was paid more than the girls' coach even though his season was two weeks less," she said.

"I've looked around at different systems that offer boys' and girls' golf. and have not found a boys' golf coach paid less than the girls' coach. I've never found a woman golf coach paid more than the male golf coach."

CONNOLLY EXPLAINED that a crucial part of the lawsuit against MHSAA is the effort to get females elected to posts within this organization that controls so much of high school sports.

"It has a governing body of 18 people," she pointed out. "Fourteen of these people are elected by school principals and superintendents. This council has only two women both picked by the men on the council."

According to the complaint against MHSAA, these women serve short, fixed terms in comparison to the elected males who may stay on until they are not reelected. Thus, says the com-each participant will be elected to serve in a branch of the government. At the conclusion of their stay, two students will be elected to go on to Girls' plaint, a voting system is maintained that in no way offers the possibility of electing a fully representative body of female and minority members.

She said statistics show 98 percent of Michigan's school superintendents and 93 percent of the principals are male. Only 5 to 10 percent of high school athletic director are women. Nominations for the council are mailed to superintentants and principals mainly.

"So there is not much female input into the voting process," she concluded.

BUBEL NOTED the MHSAA, not effect sex equity, "but to avoid future suits."

Taking a look back into girls sports several decades ago, she said that when she began teaching athletics to girls in the 1950s, they were given uniforms dating back to 1942. It took two years for her to get new ones.

"At that time girls were kept out of competition because it was believed They couldn't handle it," she said. "Women coaches were handed this line and believed it."

Connolly cited an athletic handbook of the late 60s which said girls could participate in "three varsity contests

Canada by train

See all the sights while crossing the country by rail

HRISTINE HELGREN of Farmington Hills is 25, single and looking for a great train vacation.

"Wouldn't it be interesting to travel by a comfortable, classy train with sleeping accommodations, meals, etc . . stopping at intervals for sightseeing, shopping and museums? An interesting, satisfying, safe trip.'

Toni Galeana of Livonia is in her 40s, divorced and exploring trips where she can travel with a group - "not as a swinging single but just as a group with common interests. I really do dislike dining alone and I love to share sightseeing excursions and adventures with others.'

These two single travelers are perfect candidates for a spectacular cross-Canada train experience on VIA Rail Canada, the national railway passenger service which offers both regular scheduled service and group tours throughout Canada.

Amtrak offers similar tours in the United States, but with less comfort and service. The reason: Canada has continued to finance and upgrade its railway service, while the United States has allowed its railway service to deteriorate over the last decade.

Amtrak made, and is making, a valiant attempt to restore the golden age of train travel. But the government provides less and less money to work with.

Most Canadians live within 100 miles of the U.S. border, so it is not surprising that Canada was developed by its railroads; they could thread through most of the population by making a single pair of lines across the country.

IT IS SUCH a spectacular trip that I recommend it to every foreign visitor who can take the time and has the serenity to enjoy slow travel.

VIA's 17-day Western Canada Dis-al Park and the city of Edmonton, and then track on home.

The tour costs $1,550 Canadian (approximately $1,240 US) through Sept. 30, less from Oct. 1 to June 1, including transportation, sleeping accommodations, most tours, but not meals. Meals on VIA trains are reasonably priced and beautifully served.

If you don't have time for such a tour, consider taking one of their shorter trips, or simply buy passage to Vancouver on your own, and fly back. The trip takes four nights and three days if you go straight through.

THE COST IS $187, plus $131 for a lower berth, Toronto to Vancouver; $202 from Windsor. I recommend a lower berth rather than a roomette because you have an opportunity to meet the other people in your car.

Here is another alternative: Get off the train and stay in the wonderful hotels built at the turn of the century by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways for an age of elegant rail travel.

They include the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, the Banff Springs Hotel in Pilgrim's Mission marks 30th anniversary

By Margaret Miller staff writer

A 30th anniversary celebration in Garden City's Pilgrim's Mission Church begins with a week of evangelism and winds up with a reunion invitation to all who ever have worshiped there.

The church at 5737 Middlebelt, just north of Ford, first will welcome the Rev. J.M. Sullivan and singers Fred and Viola Wagner for evangelistic services Tuesday through June 20.

Then on the final Sunday there will be a 2:30 p.m. service to celebrate the church's 30 years in the area and give former members a chance to visit.

"I've said that if we ever got all the people who worshiped here to come back there wouldn't be a building anywhere around big enough to hold them," said the Rev. Ethel Lucas, who helped her husband, the Rev. B.H. Lucas, organize the church in 1952 and has been its leader since he became ill five years ago.

She is hoping the celebration Sunday will be a good day for her 93-year-old husband and that he may be able to get to church, riding up to the sanctuary in the lift that has been installed on the stairway for several members of the congregation that need its help.

"We expect a good crowd," Lucas said, and added that she's sure of visitors coming from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky. "After the service, we'll have an old-fashioned basket lunch on the grounds."

PILGRIM'S MISSION is a congregation that has outgrown three meeting places, although its numbers are now

'The people here have been good to us. The business community has given us help, and we appreciate it.'

- The Rev. Ethel Lucas, Pilgrim's Mission church

somewhat down from their high levels of the 1950s and 1960s.

It had its beginnings in the home of the late Harold Nichols on Pierce Street. The Lucases, both ordained in the ministry of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, had arrived to establish a church in this area after serving ministries in Ohio and Maryland.

The young church rented a small hall on Ford Road west of Henry Ruff in June 1952. By the next February the congregation was ready to move to larger quarters at 33500 Ford Road.

That building too proved small, so an addition was built in 1955. The next year the church paid off its mortgage and dedicated the building.

The move to the present location came in 1968, a parsonage for the Lucases was purchased in 1970 and the church and parsonage were debt-free and dedicated in June 1972.

The onset of B.H. Lucas' illness in 1977 wrought some changes, but his wife, who for 20 years had "preached alongside him on the Sundays," took over full leadership.

"His heart and mind are still with the church and the work of the Lord," she said.

ETHEL LUCAS, now 63, met her husband when he led a revival in her home church at Wheelright, Ky. She was a young evangelist, having been converted at age 13, and he was married to Jessie May Lucas and father of seven children.

"If anyone had told me then I would marry him, I wouldn't have believed it," she says now.

But in 1944 she and Lucas' son were leading a revival meeting when young Lucas received word of his mother's death. "I carried on and he went home." she said.

Then followed more contact with the Lucas family and marriage to B.H. in 1947. They shared evangelism traveling and the Maryland assignment before arriving at Garden City to begin the independent congregation, licensed for Michigan.

"I didn't want to come to Michigan at first," said this southerner. "But people have been good to us here. The business community has given help, and we appreciate it.

Although a preacher in her own right and head of the congregation for the last five years, Lucas is quick to point out the work was her husband's.

"We worked together, but he was the head," she emphasized.

THIS CHURCH sets strict standards for its members and Ethel Lucas thinks that may have something to do with its somewhat diminished rolls

"The spirit of rebellion has been in the church as well as elsewhere," she said. "People don't want to conform to our standards.

"We don't believe in Sunday work, or worldly amusements like dances, television and ball games.

"And we require modest dress for the ladies, and long hair and no makeup."

But, she added, "we have some very good people."

"God has been very good to us. There were many sacrifices, burdens, tears and hard work involved. But it has been worth it."

Lucas said she had seen "a lot of changes in the area in the last 30 years."

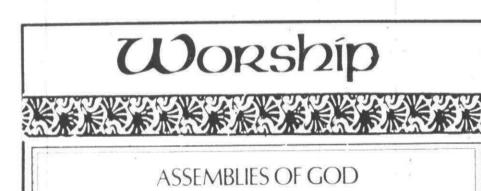

"But I am glad to say," she noted, quoting the book of Hebrews, "'The Lord has never changed.'

crying for bigger bombs and more sophisicated weapons. The have traded in their play uniforms for real ones and the cork guns have been exchanged for missiles.

Today's children are being offered the message of the cork gun game even if the games are more sophisicated. Kids from 5 to 20 are getting their kicks from war-related video games. The challenge is no longer as simple as knocking down cardboard figures. Now, if they push the right buttons, the players can wipe out missile bases and even a civilization or two

The weapons have changed, but then message remains the sames. However, now the players can be taught that killing is OK when the button pusher is far enough removed from the victims so the does not have to listen to the screams of the dying.

What will the players of today's toys for tots be playing with when they trade their "harmless toys" for the real version? Do we disbelieve the programming effect of toys, or is it simply that we know Concerned parents have always been choosy about the toys they buy for their children, and rightly so. There are physical safety factors to be considered, and the issue of programming children through their toys is a real one in terms of their healthy development.

Toys with sharp edges, for example, are not only frowned upon by parents; they are banned by groups who monitor the toy manufacturers for the physical safety of their products.

Beyond these physical concerns, educators continue to study the mental and emotional developmental impact that toys have on children. Despite the sexism that may be involved, some parents who are aware of this developmental issue choose between boys toys and girls toys. Bobby is given toys tractors, trucks and the like, while Suzie settles for dolls and the trappings that go with them. Hardly any parents would approve of the sexual toys sold in adult stores for fear of perverting their youngsters.

Most parents are aware of the pressure put on by toy manufacturers for their children to have the "in" toy of the season, and yet, despite this pressure, they remain reluctant to purchase toys that are unsafe for their children.

There is, however, a dangerous breed of toy that

Military toys are again on the march following a furlough of a few years.

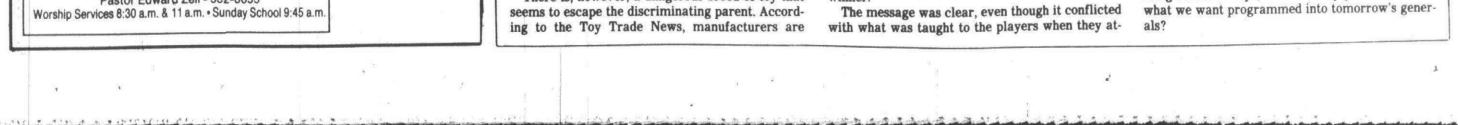

If there is any truth to the dictum that toys do effect the attitudes and values of children, and evidence points in that direction, we might well ask what the conclusion will be when tanks toy warheads, and the like make up the content of the programming.

Some have suggested that a new generation of kids is fertile ground for a rebrith of interest in the military, and that this is good for rebuilding a proud America.

Apparently these people are very aware that the values of today's children become the values of tomorrow's adults. However, there is the distinct possibility that the outcome of teaching war will reap something far more dangerous than a healthy pride.

During World War II, we had several military uniforms and toy soldiers to play with. One game on the market in the 1940s included a cork gun and three carboard targets in human form. One target was Hitler, the other two being Mussolini and Hirohito. The player who got three for three was a

Canton smokes Salem for district title

By Jay Keenan staff writer

That senior-stocked baseball team at Plymouth Canton celebrated graduation 11 days early by defending its district baseball championship over the weekend.

The Chiefs won state Class A District No. 9 after rallying to clip arch-rival Plymouth Salem. 6-4. Saturday afternoon at the Rocks' home field. Canton now advances into Saturday's Class A regional at 10 a.m. in Wyandotte where it will play Garden City East. It was the second straight year that Canton defeated Salem for the district championship. And, it was Salem's third straight loss this season to its neighboring school. Several underclassmen were largely responsible for triggering Canton's celebration. Leading the way was junior Marty McCarthy, who lifted the Chiefs with a two-run home run in the first inning. He also provided a fine defensive effort in left field. Bryan Capnerhurst, another junior, went threefor-three and tallied two runs, while junior reserve outfielder Tom Wennerberg - subbing for Steve Johnson who suffered a fifth-inning leg injury made two swift running catches in the final inning to preserve the victory. "This was an outstanding ballgame," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "We did a fine job. I thought everybody played aggressively. The defense of both sides was good."

before he reached the base. Salem lost the argument, and Canton had runners at second and third with two outs.

McCarthy then stepped up and hit a bounding ball deep to third base which was momentarily bobbled by McNamara. The junior infielder then threw wildly to first base, allowing both runners to score while McCarthy took second.

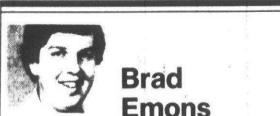

Pitcher Dan Smith followed with a single to

"He went in and did a good job in a pressure situation. Later in the game, I told him 'I don't care if they hit the ball over the fence, but just don't walk anybody."

On the other hand, Humphries abandoned his best pitch - the fastball - after Canton jumped on him early in the game. He settled down by throwing change-ups and curves, but was hurt later by his team's porous defense.

Humphries, who allowed eight hits, finished with

The Rocks disputed the call, saying Salem third score McCarthy, giving Canton its sixth run.

Salem went down in order in its last turn at bat. Wennerberg, who replaced Johnson in center field, made the final putout when he snagged a sinking line drive hit by Dave Haut.

The Chiefs then celebrated wildy as the Rocks stood motionless in the dugout and watched Canton delight in its third district title in the school's nineyear history.

"There's not much to say," said a disheartened Gilles. "We just got beat. They got the breaks when they needed them. They got the key hits in the ballgame. It could have gone either way.

"They're not a better team than us," he said. "They are as good as we are. We had a good year and so did they, and somebody had to get beat. Both sides played a good ballgame."

SMITH, WHO was shaky at the outset after entering in the second inning in relief of Jamie Chilcoff, gave his utmost in the final innings as he retired seven straight batters. Smith mixed the speed of his pitches throughout the game, but came on with his blazing fastball in the final two innings.

Smith, who allowed only four hits, is now 10-1 on the season, recording his 26th career win. That total tied Brian James' school record.

"I'm really proud of him (Smith)," said Crissey.

an 8-2 season record.

"Humphries pitched an intelligent game," Crissey said. "He found out early that he wasn't going going to beat us with his fastball."

Salem scored its first two runs on an RBI-single by Humphries and a sacrifice fly by Jeff Hubert. Canton scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning on back-to-back doubles by Johnson and Capnerhurst, and McCarthy's two-run home run.

Salem's Dave Slavin had a two-run single in the second inning that temporarily put his team ahead 4-3. That lead lasted until the fifth when Canton scored its three unearned runs.

The enthusiastic Canton team, which officially graduates 14 of its 22 players Wednesday, defeated Walled Lake Western in its semifinal game, 1-0. In the other semifinal game, Salem pounded Northville, 8-0.

Against Western, Canton's Mike Battaglia and Chilcoff combined for a two-hitter. The winning run was scored by Smith on a single by Fred Rumberger.

Salem's Bill Culver allowed only three hits in registering the win in the semifinal win over Northville. Hubert had four hits, including a three-run triple, to pace the Salem attack.

2C(P,C) O&E Thursday, June 10, 1982 East wins district; Canton is next

Garden City East's bid for a district baseball championship was delayed a couple days, but the wait was certainly worthwhile for the Panthers.

East held on to win their opening district game Saturday against Detroit Cooley, 12-7, to advance to the final game against Dearborn Edsel Ford. But that game, which was supposed to have been played immediately after the Cooley game, was rained out and postponed until Monday.

The extra day's rest didn't affect the Panthers' victory string, as Mike Krauss hurled his team to a convincing 6-1 victory over Edsel Ford.

In Saturday's game against Cooley, the Panthers rolled to a 10-0 lead and were within one out of winning via a mercy rule. But Cooley scored an unearned run and almost stole the game.

The Cardinals outscored East 7-2 over the remainder of the game. The Panthers outhit Cooley 13-7, and the winning pitcher was Joe Taraskavage.

John Bolen had three hits, including a single, double and triple, while Taraskavage had a hit and three RBI. Emery and Mike Zdebski each had two hits.

Garden City East takes a 13-6 record into regional action.

Saints blank Avengers

The Sportventure Saints made a heavenly debut in the Great Lakes Women's Soccer League over the weekend.

One of Plymouth/Canton's new entries in the B Division of the league, the Saints marched past the West Bloomfield Avengers, 2-0.

Stephanie Hancock scored both Saint goals with less than 15 minutes remaining in the game. Therese Pelchat was the Saint goalie.

Sportventure is bolstered this season by the return of nine players from last season's second-place team. They include Carol Bunch, Georgia Gramlich, Kris Griffith, Veronica Guerin, Sue Kasper, Linda Kraynek, Charline Mrekvicska, Geri Starrs and Hancock.

The team's new players are Sue Baldock, Brenda Bartlett, Leanne Gaskell, Marsha Crook, Stephanie Mills, Sandy Shaw and Pelchat.

Glenn's Graham wins in hurdles

Persistence paid off for Kelly Graham at the recent state Class A track meet.

Graham, a hurdler from Westland John Glenn, fought all year with muscle strains in her thighs. She battled to stay in shape throughout the track season, yet missed her first three meets because of injury.

And now, she sits on top of the world. Graham put aside her aches and pains for a day, just in time to win the 100- and 200-meter hurdles at the Class A state meet in times of 13.7 and 28.4 respectively. According to coach Lynn LeBlanc, Graham was disappointed that neither of the times were state records.

"She had never doubled before, but won the 100 as a junior and was second in the 200 twice," said LeBlanc. "She wanted to set the records. Actually, I was surprised to see her win."

Members of Redford St. Agatha's girls' team were set to partake in the Class C meet in Bangor, Mich., but team member Mona Clor, a state qualifier in the 440-yard dash, long jump and mile relay, pulled a muscle, and it looked as if the day had to be scrapped for St. Agatha. Yet Clor, along with Tia Littlejohn, Beth Reicha and Karen Opipari, managed to place fourth in the mile relay.

And the last chapter of heroics originates from Livonia Ladywood, which wouldn't have dreamed that its only two state qualifiers would combine for 22 points and place third at the Class B state finals.

Juniors Jennifer Rioux and Kelly Champagne were Ladywood's hopefuls for the annual June classic. To coach Mike Krafchak's delight, Rioux went on to place second in the 800- (2:15.5) and 1,600-meters (4:59.2), while Champagne was right behind her teammate in the 1,600 in a fourth-place time of 5:09.2. Champagne also placed second in the 3,200-meter run.

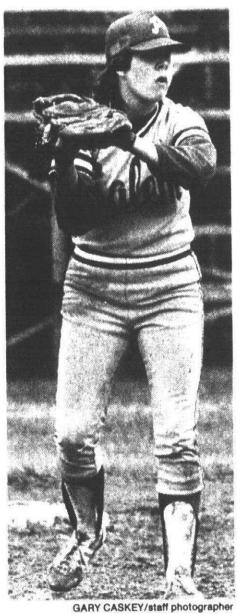

Although she did not place in the Class A state meet, Plymouth Salem's Dawn Johnson made it to the semifinals of the 200 meters, breaking a Salem record in the process with a 25.9 clocking.

then clinched the district championship with a 6-3 win over Belleville. Salem was outhit by its two opponents, 13-11, however.

Salem now advances to regional action where it plays noon Saturday against Monroe at Lincoln Park's Quandt Park (located on Dix, north of Southfield Road). The first game features Highland Park and Dearborn Edsel Ford. The final game begins approximately 3 p.m.

"Last year, the team had the talent, but the difference has been the pitching," said second-year coach Rob Willette. "We're not giving up any runs, and our people are throwing strikes."

Willette was referring to hurler Diane Murphy, who picked up the wins in both games.

Murphy was supported in the opener by Mary Pryslak, a junior catcher who powered a two-run home run in the first inning to give Salem a 2-0 lead. Mary Kay Mundinger opened the inning with a walk.

In the second inning, Salem scored its final run when Amy Sidorsky walked, advanced to second on a wild

'On Golden Pond' touches the heart

Performances of the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "On Golden Pond" by Ernest Thompson continue at 8:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday at the Theatre Guild Playhosue, 15138 Beech Daly, just south of Five Mile in Redford. For tickets at $5 call 522-1526.

By Gail Susan Mack special writer

"On Golden Pond," presented by the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford, is a touching production that promises to move any audience. This particular presentation is an example of outstanding, artistic theater offered in our community.

The script, written by Ernest Thompson, is a story of love between Norman and Ethel Thayer, an elderly couple who have been married for 46 years. It is a story that demonstrates a love of understanding when empathy is needed, a love of support when fear is in control and a love of encouragement when doubt manifests itself.

"On Golden Pond" is a play about compassion and forgiveness. When the Thayers' daughter, Chelsea, returns home for a visit, she realizes that it is time to make amends with her father over the conflicts and hurts of past vears

The love and joy of this play is brilliantly communicated to the audience through a light comic style. Laughter at the characters and the events comes easily, primarily because they are so relevant to the human condition.

PORTRAYING NORMAN Thayer is John Roberts. Blanche Graham plays his wife, Ethel. Both Roberts and Graham possess a natural acting style that makes their performances most believable. Their use of bodily movereview with each other, Roberts and Graham captivate the audience. A viewer is left with the impression of having witnessed a slice of life.

Connie Wolberg, who plays Chelsea, combines vitality and sincerity in her performance. She presents a fine character. She appears too young for the role, however. It is difficult to believe that she is 42.

Kevin Hinks, youngest member of the cast, portrays 13-year-old Billy Ray. As the son of Chelsea's fiance, Hinks plays an adorable youngster whose attempts at intellectualizing bring vivacity into Norman's life.

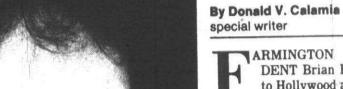

Other fine performances are turned in by Mark Solis as Charlie Martin and Tom O'Brien as Bill Ray.

MUCH OF THE success of this production is due to staging and blocking. Director Kay Grismer moves her actors about the set in a natural, interesting manner. She incorporates a lot of stage business that is subtle and totally within the reality of each character.

Grismer is also quite skilled at setting the tempos and rhythms for her show. The timing of the comic as well as dramatic portions of the script blend well, providing a nice overall pace for the play.

Enhancing the realism that is so prevalent in this production, the set, properties and lighting effects are worth noting. Combined, they set the mood and create the feeling of really being "on golden pond."

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford has a fine show indeed. In a most

DENT Brian Belanger moved to Hollywood a year ago, looking for work in the movie industry, Today, Belanger, 23, has returned to his home town to begin work on his latest film, "Calendar."

ARMINGTON HILLS RESI-

"Calendar" is a fantasy-adventure film set in modern times about a young man named Randy who is bored with his everyday life. One day a kindly old gentleman appears at his job and gives him a magical calendar as a gift. While looking through it, Randy's imagination is sparked by one of the photographs.

The film deals with Randy's adventures getting to the location in the calendar, and what happens to him on the way

"I began working on 'Calendar' back in 1980," Belanger said, "and I applied to the Michigan Council for the Arts for a grant. It would have been a meager amount, but I got turned down.

"That was the best thing that could have happened because the second time I applied for funding I got it. Now I can do the film the way it needs to be done.'

BELANGER HAS BEEN told that he is the only filmmaker currently receiving funds under the Creative Arts Program of the Michigan Council for the Arts.

"I was really looking at a calendar on a wall when the idea for the film came to me. The story has now had two years to grow and get the kinks worked out of it," he said. "It's gone from three outlines and two synopses to three in the works drafts of the screenplay to the final shooting script."

'Calendar'

Shooting of the film will begin June 19 and take about six to eight weeks to complete. Locations chosen include Franklin Village, Kensington Park, Farmington Hills and an unused portion of the Walter P. Reuther Freeway.

"We can get a lot of the film shot on the freeway without having to worry about being run over," Belanger said with a laugh

Assistance in finding location sites has come from Michigan's Office of Film and Television and its director, Bob Scott

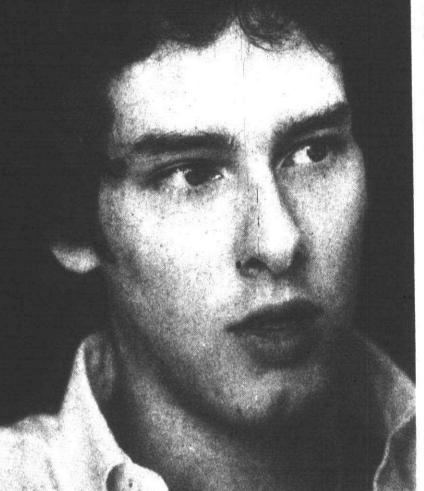

"ONE OF THE things I'm trying to do with 'Galendar' is to delegate authority to people who I feel are capable of doing their jobs," Belanger said. "I wrote, directed, filmed, scored and edited my last film, 'Suburbanites,' which was quite difficult."

Belanger is negotiating with a local cinematographer and an orchestra to work on the film. He is also seeking additional technicians to assist with the film

Professional actors are being auditioned for the roles in the movie. Belanger has hired Southfield-based Crossroads Productions, Ltd., a professional theater company, to assist with the casting.

"It's important that everyone connected with the film be good, competent and responsible or the film will fall apart," Belanger said. "I feel I'm a pretty good judge of people and that's why I've chosed a group like Crossroads to assist in the film, and that's why I'm hoping to hire the people with whom I've been negotiating.

wine

Frequently ignored, and sometimes maligned, among the premium appellations of Bordeaux is the region of Graves.

This is unfortunate, for several masterful wines are made there, many of them costing less than their counterparts from the most prestigious neighbors to the north: Margaux, St. Estephe, Pauillac, St. Emilion and Pomerol.

Both reds and white are made in the region, the former generally being the more successful. The exceptions to this are found in the far south of Graves where the luscious sweet wines from Sauternes and Barsac are grown. But those are a separate issue for now.

The word Graves (pronounced with a short "a") means "gravel" in French, and the pebbly, hard soil of the region contributes much to the earthy, bodily nature of the reds and the tart crispness of the recent whites made there.

THE WINES come from soil not unlike that found in the Medoc and Livermore but have a more elemental character to them, robust and deep at best. Finesse is not a word usually associated with Graves wine.

The flagship chateau of the region is Haut Brion, one of the five First Growths of Bordeaux and the one farthest removed from all the others (three in Pauillac, one in Margaux) by more than 20 kilometers. Great as Haut Brion is, there are no financial breaks attendant to its purchase.

These wines, along with those of its neighbor La Mission Haut Brion, are too well know, and deservedly so, to require preferential marketing. These two are among the greatest wines of the world, and one can expect to pay for them accordingly.

Of the lesser-known Graves wines, however, there are some exceptional values to be had, most of them because they do not carry the more exotic appellation names

While these wines are not inexpensive, they do, on the whole, represent good value. There can be no better illustration of this than Chateau Pape-Clement, a red Bordeaux of deep, earthy character, full of muscle and complexity. Named for its owner, Pope Clement V, the vineyards were producing in the early 1300s.

EVEN OLDER is Chateaux Carbonnieux, producer of clean, steely dry whites (Sauvignon Blanc) and straightforward reds. Not as old, but clearly superior in both red and white production, is Domaine de Chevalier. Its reds are softened by the addition of large amounts of Merlot, thus encouraging earlier consumption.

This is generally a wine of elegant breeding, more than one usually associates with Graves reds. It is not readily found in our market area.

Generally considered to produce the best wine from the region is Chateau Laville Haut-Brion, whose modest production is a blend of Sauvignon Blanc and Semillon. The latter's judicious use is responsible for the richness and distinction it attains, and only oak fermentation is used.

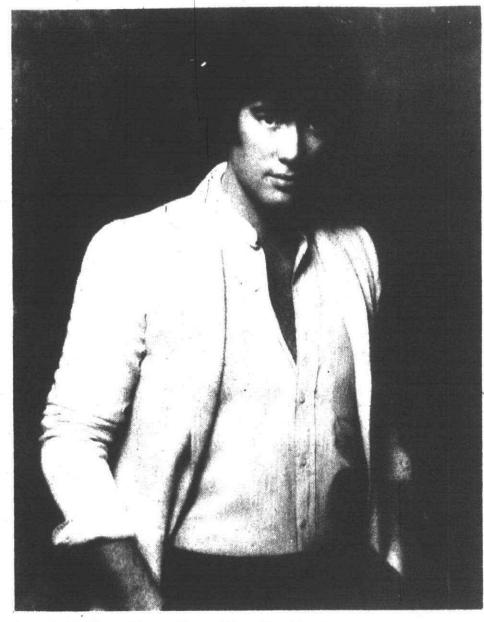

These wines require some aging to develop complexity, unlike most white Bordeaux. Worth seeking out whenever one shops.

Chateau Haut Bailly is distinguiished for its red wine only as is Chateau de Fieuzal. The former makes no white that I know of, and the latter shouldn't.

CHATEAU BOUSCANT, a winery with American connections during the 1970s, has undergone a rapid improvement program and deserves consideration here as well.

A region of historic renown until the last few decades, Graves has fallen on hard times. Its efforts to rebuild itself consist, most dramatically, in improving its white wines. These wines had, by the middle of this century, evolved into the fat, simple wines that Semillon will produce if it is not treated well.

Now the tendency is increasing toward vinifying the dry whites to be dry and letting those in Barsac and Sauternes be the sweet, lush wines they can be. A marketing stragegy involves competitive pricing to again gain the world s attention.

Ronnie McDowell is another of the attractions.

"His Girl Friday" (1940), 3:30 and 7.15 p.m., and "Bringing Up Baby" (1938), 5:15 and 9 p.m., both Monday and Tuesday at the Michigan Theatre, 603 Liberty at State Street, Ann Arbor, phone 662-8848, $2. Running times 92 and 102 minutes.

Think of Howard Hawks, and his macho-man films probably come to mind first - "Scarface," "The Big Sleep," "Red River" and "Rio Bravo" among them. Women had little place in these films, unless it was to bat their baby blues at the leading man as Lauren Bacall did for Humphrey Bogart in both "The Big Sleep" and "To Have and Have Not." Joanne Dru's characterization of a frontier woman in "Red River" is one of the most preposterously conceived roles for a woman in film history. Yet Hawks' women from his comedy films are viewed today as independent-minded forerunners of the women's liberation movement. How can this be?

Consider "His Girl Friday," which stars Rosalind Russell as a self-reliant reporter, and Cary Grant as her boss. Grant can't get the job done without the help of Russell, who proves that she can out-report and out-write any of her male competitors. But "Friday" is a remake of Hecht and MacArthur's "The Front Page," which was written for two men and originally starred Pat O'Brien and Adolph Menjou. Russell's self-reliance actually stems from a machisma initially built into a man's role.

In "Bringing Up Baby," the traditional male female roles are simply reversed. Katherine Hepburn's strongwilled socialite isn't so liberated as she

Hawks certainly deserves the label macho filmmaker more than that of women's director, not that that has anything to do with the undeniable charm of his comedies or the pungency
