The Canton Connection

COMPUTER PIX, a program designed to match a person's reading interests with a list of books, is offered by the Canton Public Library beginning Thursday. The program, offered for persons ages 14-18, relies on a computer that compares stored information about books with information from a short questionnaire indicating a person's reading interests. Anyone interested in this program must contact the library and fill out the questionnaire. For more information, call 397-0999.

ANY SENIOR CITIZENS interested in playing softball? Canton's seniors are sponsoring a team in the Garden City Senior Softball League, and they need persons 55 and older. The rules are altered to accommodate seniors. Price is $1 per person. League games begin tonight, and the season lasts through Aug. 30. Call the recreation office at 397-1000, Ext. 278 for more information.

GORRECTION. Canton Trustee Loren Bennett has announced his candidacy in the race for Wayne County commissioner in the new 11th District. He is not part of the county executive race, as. reported in an Observer headline last week.

JOSEPH DELAURO of Canton has designed a mammoth, decorative column to grace the entrance of a Windsor, Ont., concrete firm. DeLauro is a retired professor of fine arts at University of Windsor and a noted sculptor and designer. He works in marble, bronze and other media.

His newest work of art, called "Essence of Spirit," is 37 feet high. It arranges concrete blocks at various angles to depict a spiraling column. The sculpture was unveiled yesterday.

WILLIAM MILLIKEN has declined a final opportunity to participate in the second annual Cow Chip Fling Invitational. Gov. Milliken sent a letter of regret to Captain Art Winkel of the Canton Fire Department, tournament director of the Country Festival event. Milliken will send administrative assistant Robert Law to participate in the popular activity.

"I realize that this is my last chance to participate in an endeavor planned by the fertile minds of the Canton leadership," Milliken says in his letter. "But I fear that my talents do not measure up and that my clumsy efforts might besmirch the reputation of your community."

Milliken says Law is "a true talent" for the event.

"His (Law's) talents have made him a legend in his own mind," Milliken says. "I am sure he will do well and that you will be well served in having him."

Anyone interested in submitting information about Canton Township for "The Canton Connection" may send items to Canton editor Dennis O'Connor, 461 S. Main, Plymouth 48170. We ask that you type or print the information and include your name and phone number in case we have any questions. The column runs every Monday.

Canton OKs battered-women shelter

By Arlene Funke staff writer

Canton has given conditional approval for First Step agency to refurbish a house to shelter battered women and children.

In 1980, Canton applied for a $60,000 grant from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in behalf of First Step, an agency helping battered women. The funds would provide temporary housing for women seeking refuge and a chance for a fresh start.

The grant was approved, but no money was spent because First Step was unable to find a suitable, affordable building. Now the agency has found a house large enough to shelter six women and 12 children.

Building, funding deadlines loom County, is unpublicized to protect the occupants. The women stay an average expressed concerns about deadlines set by federal and state agencies which support First Step.

"If they're not in there (the shelter) by Oct. 1, the state funding is jeopardized." said Terry Carroll, grants coordinator. "There is a Dec. 31, 1982 deadline to spend the federal funds."

First Step, established in 1979, offers counseling, legal and financial assistance to women physically abused by husbands or live-in boy friends.

The agency charges no fees to clients. One third of First Step's funding comes from the domestic violence board, through the state Department of Social Services.

Other funding comes from federal and local grants, fund-raising efforts and donations. Supervisor James Poole hopes to meet with representatives of the state officials, and the county representative for HUD.

"That's what we're trying to clarify - what deadlines, established by whom?" said Poole. "If you can't meet the deadline, why start it? I don't want to spend any money - whether it's state or federal - if it isn't going to accomplish something."

UNDER THE plan, First Step will hire contractors to bring the shelter up to building codes, install safety win-

Bills will be submitted to Canton for payment. Reimbursement will come through the local HUD representatives in the Wayne County Office of Inter-Governmental Affairs and Management, explained Carroll. Carroll said he believes the $60,000 grant will enable First Step to obtain an occupancy certificate for the shelter. Other grants or donations could pay additional expenses.

First Step serves about 80 new clients per month throughout western Wayne County, said Mattson-Croninger.

New events added to second annual air balloon festival

A number of new events have been added to the 1982 Mayflower Hot Air Balloon Festival to be held in Plymouth July 9-11.

Among the changes is the shift in location of the launching site to the spacious Plymouth Township Park at Ann Arbor Trail and McClumpha Road about 1.5 miles west of the city.

Another will be an increase in the number of hot air ballooms entering the festivities, as some 30 are signed up thus far.

The festival is sponsored by the Mayflower Hotel in conjunction with Gordon Boring of the Wicker Basket Balloon Center and by more than 20

The balloons will ascend from the township park at about 6 p.m. Friday. July 9, and at about 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The 30-plus balloons will be visible in the sky from nearly every point in Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

DURING THE festival, many competitive events and crowd-participation activities are held.

The first event Friday is British Airway's "Hare and Hounds" Race in which a lead balloon (the hare) takes off and 10 minutes or so later the rest of the balloons (the hounds) take off and try to follow the exact flight of the hare.

The balloon landing closest to the hare will win a trip for two to England via British Airways.

Saturday will begin with a sunrise flight with the sponsors aboard. At the end of the sponsors' flight the pilot and passengers break open the traditional champagne and toast the

By 8 a.m. Saturday the festival will focus on downtown Plymouth at the Farmer's Market, where vistors can shop for fresh produce and flowers. Then the Chamber of Commerce will host the Art in the Park display, where artists and craftsmen will be displaying their works for sale in Kel-

NEARBY CAR dealers will be showing off their 1983 models in conjunction with the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union.

In celebration of the balloon festival, local merchants are planning special balloon sales and events, and storefronts will be decorated throughout the downtown area highlighting the balloon-race theme.

More than 60 merchants are participating in the balloon sales Wednesday through Saturday. Beyond sales, merchants also will have a variety of balloon games and contests.

Some 1,200 helium-filled balloons carrying special offers from participating stores will be launched from the Mayflower II parking deck on Tuesday, July 6.

A grand prize of a fantasy trip for two for four days and two nights to the Albuquerque, N.M., International Hot Air Balloon Festival will be awarded to a customer. The trip is provided through Eastern Airlines and Plymouth Travel Consultants.

THE THIRD FLIGHT on Saturday evening will be a C.N.T. race sponsored by Eastern Airlines.

The winner of this race will receive three round-trip tickets to Disney World in Orlando, Fla., via Eastern Airlines.

During the C.N.T. Race, balloons take off three to five miles upwind of a target and attempt to fly over it. As the balloons pass, a marker is dropped. The pilot whose marker lands closest to the target wins.

"For us to sit down at a common table and discuss problems is a great benefit," said Lt. William Tomczyk, commander of the state police Northville Post.

"We use to have a lot of tickets which were being brought to court and then dismissed. A better ticket cuts down on court time - we aren't using up our time on minor traffic offenses." said Wiland.

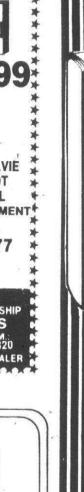

But the court isn't the only benefactor of the meetings. The police departments are given considerations in return for their cooperation.

"THE MEETINGS have helped the department solve its problems in regards to man hours. We have been able to minimize the amount of time our officers spend in court," said Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry.

Canton fans can take pride in. The Chiefs, coach by Fred Crissey, just completed another successful baseball season. Canton finished with a 25-5 overall record, another in a long list of Western Six League championships, and its usual strong finish in the state tournament.

While the Class A title continues to elude the Chiefs, Crissey's crew came up only one run short of winning the coveted award, bowing to Midland, 5-4, in the championship game last week at Mt. Pleasant.

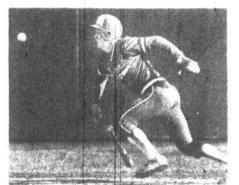

Despite the setback, it marked the third time in the last five years that Canton baseball teams have reached the final four in state tournament competition.

In 1978, it was Flint Southwestern that stopped the Chiefs' run for the crown in the semifinals at Wyandotte. Last season, it was Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher that nipped the Chiefs, also at the semifinals.

This season, Canton got past that semifinal jinx with a 10-2 thrashing of Warren Cousino - before bowing to Midland in the finale.

In all three cases, Canton lost to the eventual state champion.

The Chiefs' tournament performances against the state's very best are something to be proud of.

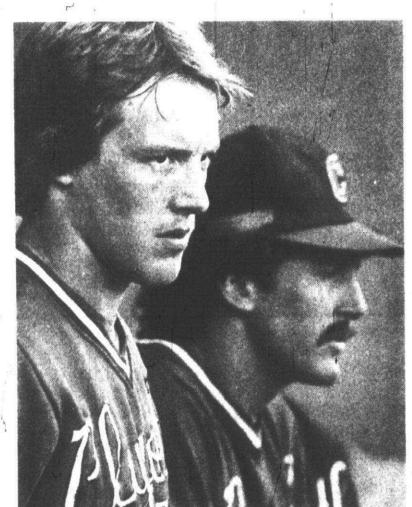

Bryan Capnerhurst lays down a sacrifice bunt in the first inning of the championship game. He was the only Chief to register a hit in the 5-4 loss to Midland.

THE CANTILEVER BRIDGE

The best way to replace a missing tooth (or teeth) is by anchoring the artificial replacements to natural teeth on both sides - just like a bridge over a river

There are some specific situations, however, where a bridge can be attached to only one adjacent tooth. This is called a cantilevered bridge. Such a bridge is most often found in the front of the mouth.

Back teeth, used for grinding and subject to tremendous strain (often over 300 pounds per square inch) are poorer risks for the cantilever bridge. The front teeth, used for cutting, suffer much less pressure

(about 75 pounds per square inch), Since front teeth are not employed for grinding, they can more readily chance carrying the load of the replacement tooth

However, cantilever bridges are occasionally used in the back of the mouth, mostly when the missing tooth is the farthest tooth back. The dentist may attach it to two, three or even four teeth in front of the Deputy dissents on editorial

To the editor:

The recent column by Gary M. Cates "Sheriff's patrol opting to drive law enforcement road alone?" (Observer June 21) makes me wonder about the objectivity of your paper and the amount of effort your reporters put into researching a column.

Not only is Cates misinformed about much of what he set forth in his article, he went so far as to attribute a statement to me, and to the best of my knowledge, I have never met or talked with him in my life nor did I make the statement to anyone.

Taking the statements made by Cates in the order he presented them, he first implied that the Wayne County Sheriff's Depart ment had been negligent in not filing required reports to obtain funding for its state-financed traffic safety program.

Quoting from the article: "To collect the money, the Sheriff's Department must file a quarterly report and OCJP (state Office of Criminal Justice Programs) sends off a check for a portion of the grant."

HAD CATES stopped to think, even if he had not carefully researched his story, he would have realized that no county agency funds itself or arranges for its own financing. Billing and collection of funds are handled by the Wayne County Board of Auditors, and the report he referred to does not even have a place for the Sheriff or his representative to co-sign, much less sign.

When I checked on the status of the report, I found that it had been filed by are currently using local breathalyzers.

the Wayne County Board of Auditors on June 8, 1982. Currently, as has been the case since this grant was begun in 1979, all reports which are the responsibility of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department have been properly filed.

Taking the matter one step further, according to OCJP, so long as no claim is made after the close of the fiscal year, that agency is not concerned with when funding requests are made.

BY THE tone of his column, and the title itself, Cates implies that the Sheriff's Department has refused to cooperate with, or accept assistance from other departments: "Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry has offered his breathalyzer, lock-up facilities and cooperation to the Sheriff. However, he has not been taken up on it. Canton Police and the Michigan State-Police in Northville both report the same thing. Yet Sgt. Brown, the Secondary Patrol supervisor, claims the deputies use the local breathalyzer. Somebody's got some wrong information."

The offer of assistance madeby Chief Berry was made at a meeting I had requested with him to discuss what each of our agencies could do to assist the other. Subsequent to that meeting, the Sheriff's legal adviser directed that no prisoner arrested by a deputy sheriff, on a charge initiated by him, would be turned over to another agency.

The reason for this ruling was the possibility of a lawsuit which could arise because of a circumstance over which the Sheriff's Department could have no control after custody of the prisoner had been given up. So far as use of the breathalyzers, it has been more conven ient so far, to use our own. I have stated to no one that we

CATES' STATEMENT that an officer driving by an accident scene and not stopping was a "clincher" was apparently based upon a misunderstanding by a Sheriff's officer. The officer, seeing three Plymouth patrol cars at the scene, assumed that the situation was under control and continued on with his duties. A minor problem such as this one could have been resolved with a phone call, and to publish it in a newspaper seems to me to be more in the line of nit picking than editorializ-

Cates concluded his column by declaring that "Local police departments have been asking for assistance in Hines Park. (Wayne County Sheriff William) Lucas won't patrol the park. Lucas claims it's too dangerous to send his men into Hines Park.'

Daily, members of the Secondary Roads Patrol work alone on all shifts, relying upon a radio system that has not been maintained or serviced in more than a year and which has deteriorated to the point that it does not even work in certain areas of the county.

THE POINT-TO-POINT capability that allows one department to call upon another by radio when it has an officer in trouble was lost when the Sheriff's Department was denied he use of its former headquarters over one

By working as they do, these officers assume greater risks than most officers would be willing to accept on a daily basis, and to imply that because Sheriff Lucas chooses not to expose his

The gamble Bradner and Waterman took in '62

(Part XIII)

On March 6, 1961, on his way back to Bay City from Washington, D.C., Dr. Eric Bradner stopped off in Livonia at the old Newburgh School. He had been asked to meet with the executive committee that was trying to establish a community college in this area.

At the meeting, Bradner was offered and accepted the job as coordinator of the college drive, a position which Dr. Albert Ammerman had vacated.

To accept the position, Bradner got a leave of absence from Bay City Junior College with the understanding that he was expected to enter into a contract with the newly formed Delta College late in 1961.

When the June 1961 election to establish Schoolcraft College failed because of the defection of the two Redford school districts, Bradner and his wife retired to the north woods where he began to prepare for his coming work with Delta.

In July, however, he received a phone call from Harold Fischer asking im to return to the Newburgh School. The committee had now reorganized into four school districts and was oing to make a second try at establishing the college.

WHEN THE SECOND VOTE was a success, Bradner was offered the presidency of the college.

Now he and his wife had to make an important decision. His position with Delta College was a sure thing. But here he was being offered a possible, but not necessarily probable, position in a college that might not get funded. He was then 55. If he passed up the Delta position, and the millage to establish Schoolcraft was turned down, he would find it difficult at that age to obtain a comparable position. The Bradners thought it over and decided to take the gamble. He accepted the job as founding president of Schoolcraft College. Now Bradner had more than one reason for doing all in his power to make sure that the third vote (the millage election) to be held late that year was a success.

Having explained why Bradner pondered a week before accepting the presidency of the college, I return to the Jan. 24, 1962, meeting of the board at which he made his acceptance speech." It was at that meeting that the trustees set September 1964 as the target date for opening the college.

During the two-and-two-third years interval between those dates, the board and the new college president had to secure the funds, decide on a site, recruit a staff and faculty, develop rules and regulations, attract a student body, and construct the buildings. It was a challenge of the first order.

In February, the board spent an entire day with representatives of five architectural firms. Each firm was given 90 minutes to make its presentation. On Feb. 14, the trustees approved a rate of one mill for the election, which was scheduled for June 11. Even if the millage passed, tax money would not begin to come until January 1963. Meantime, the board had to pay Bradner's salary and other expenses from funds loaned to it by the various school boards which had been sustaining the effort from the very beginning.

ANOTHER PERSON WHO gambled that Schooleraft would succeed/was Lois L. Waterman.

Early in 1962, after his appointment as president, Bradner had attempted to get Waterman to join his administrative staff. Waterman, whom he had known at Delta College where she was dean of students, at first said no. Bradner got board member Jane Moehle to go to Bay City with him to visit Waterman, and between the two of them they persuaded her to make

On March 1, 1962, Waterman met with the board of trustees to be interviewed for the position of dean of student affairs. Her appointment was announced April 30.

Waterman had earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan and had, studied at Columbia University, the University of Denver and the University of Wisconsin. She had been associate ean at Chatham College in Pittsburgh before joining Delta. She is said to have been a big factor in getting Schoolcraft off on the right track.

Dr. Eric Bradner, founding president of Schoolcraft Col-

Waterman established and defined the courses, developed the counseling staff, helped interpret curricula to the architects, and made agreements with colleges and universities in Michigan so that when Schoolcraft College opened, its students would have no difficulty in Bradner depended heavily on her. In recent correspondence I had with him (he now lives in Scottsdale, Ariz.), Bradner refers to Waterman as "in all respects, the founder of the quality of the college.

When I spoke to Waterman recently, she said she joined the proposed college "not for financial reasons, but because it was an intellectual challenge, something new to be done.

She remembers the many talks she gave to service and other clubs in the area, explaining the purposes of the college and answering the questions that inevitably arose during the founding years.

And still further on, as far as the eye could see, was the beauty of Lake Huron on one of its better days.

Surely, this could not be the home of the young fellow from Detroit's east side who accepted a football scholarship to attend the University of Detroit 50 years ago and became one of its sports greats by the time he graduated.

BUT THERE was no doubt when he answered the bell to greet the visi-

"I don't recall how long ago it was that I last saw you," he said, "but it sure is a thrill for me to be with my old newspaper buddy of my football days."

He took a few moments to reveal the high points of his life since graduating from college. He later attended Wayne State Medical School, opened an office in St. Clair in 1938 and then retired with a medical service record of 35 years.

"THINGS WERE getting complicated in the medical field, and I thought it best to get out."

At the time, he was one of the top members of the staff at the River District Hospital in St. Clair, but he longed for a rest.

"I delivered about 2,500 babies during my career, and I just figured it was time to leave it all behind. So I came up here."

With his medical record reviewed, he turned to his days in football when the University of Detroit was gaining prestige under the coaching of Gus Dorais and Bud Boeringer.

"I made the tackle position. And because we had a small squad, a fellow had to stay in there and take his bumps no matter what happened."

With that, he broke into laughter recalling the Thanksgiving Day battle against Georgetown in 1932. It still is rated one of the best games ever played in the now-defunct stadium.

Libertarian files for House seat

Keith Z. Bilby, 26, has announced his candidacy as a Libertarian candidate for the Michigan House in the newly created 36th District.

Bilby, 26, of 42489 Lakeland, Plymouth, is running in a district which includes all of the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, half of Canton, and both Northvilles.

An engineer for Detroit Diesel Allison, Bilby called for reductions in all state taxes — particularly the property tax and the Single Business Tax.

"I used to complain about taxes and big government. This year I'm going to do something about it," he said.

"If the people of Canton, Plymouth and Northville have heard enough excuses about why their taxes can't be cut, then together we can make a big impression on the Republicans and Democrats in November.'

Bilby, who is making his first try at elective office, was nominated at the Libertarian State Convention in May. He will not be listed on the ballot in the August primary but will be on the general election ballot in November if the Libertarian Party gathers enough votes statewide in August to qualify for the ballot.

Born in Traverse City, Bilby earned a bachelor of science degree in engineering from the University of Michigan in 1979 and was a member of the Michigan Band. He attended public schools in Jackson, where his parents now live.

He has served on the state central committee of the Libertarian Party. His interests include running, skiing, boating, reading, and listening to muples are that "all individuals have the right to exercise sole dominion over their own lives, and have the right to live in whatever manner they choose, so long as they do not forcibly interfere with the equal rights of others to live in whatever manner they choose.

"Governments throughout history have regularly operated on the opposite principle, that the state has the right to dispose of the lives of individuals and the fruits of their labor. Even within the U.S., all political parties other than our own grant to government the right to regulate the lives of individuals and seize the fruits of their labor without their consent."

Specifically, Libertarians support the Right to Life, freedom of speech, press and action, the right to property, and freedom in the marketplace.

State Senate OKs strip mining bill

The Michigan Senate has overwhelmingly approved a bill giving the state authority to regulate any future strip mining. Senate Majority Leader William Faust, D-Westland, the bill's sponsor, said it is necessary to protect Michigan's environment from the potentially damaging effects of strip mining. Mineral rights to thousands of acres in Michigan's coal basin have been purchased in recent months by oil and coal companies. "With today's rising energy costs, coal is once again becoming economically attractive," said Faust. "Michigan's Mine Reclamation Act is one fo the weakest in the country and lacks nearly every one of the standards and requirments of the tougher, federal

Faust said federal regulations fail to require permits, performance bonds or restoration of mined land to its previous condition.

"With recent federal cutbacks in the U.S. Office of Surface Mining and the Reagan adminstration's backing of increased development, it is more important than ever that we enact this legislation to preserve our environment." said Faust.

FAUST'S SB 819 would establish complete state statutory authority over surface coal mining and reclamation operations. The bill's provision include:

 Detailed permit procedures for surface coal mining, including postmining reclamation plans.

• Detailed environmental performance standards and requirements that mined land be restored to at least its condition prior to mining.

 A minimum performance bond of $20,000 for the permit area.

Last Hurrah

The strawberry and ice cream social was a last hurrah for Geer Elementary School, the last one-room school in Wayne County to close its doors. The students picked the strawberries in teacher Rita McClumpha's strawberry patch. In a brief ceremony on the school steps, Donna Keough presented the school flag, which had flown over the Capitol, to McClumpha. The PTO closed its books, dividing its funds among Smith Elementary, West Middle, and the libraries at the high schools.

Peter Schaldenbrand's award was admired by his father, Peter; (left) sister, Mary Beth; teacher.

Rose Marie Shilcusky; and consultant, Bob Ervin.

Peter Schaldenbrand, an eighth grader at Our Lady of Good Counsel, won the Junior Achievement-sponsored essay/speech contest. He presented his speech, "What Project Business Means to Me," to 400 business leaders and educators at the annual Project Business recognition dinner. Project Business is designed to provide students with information which will make them aware of the American economic process. Members of the business community visit the classrooms as consultants. These volunteers visit the classrooms on a weekly basis for one semester, working in coordination with the teacher. This was the second year Rosemarie Shilcusky, teacher at OLGC, had taken advantage of the project offered by Junior Achievement.

She divided her eighth graders into two classes of 22 students for Project Business. Dr. Ronald Hurley of Ford Motor Co. was the consultant for one group; Bob Ervin was consultant for the second.

PETER WAS in Ervin's group. The consultant is a member of OLGC parish and a retiree after working 25 years for Parke-Davis.

Peter described, in his prize-winning essay/speech, his doubts while waiting for the first class to start. He said that weeks later, he had learned how businesses struggle to survive, how companies compete and are victorious or and sharp drops in the stock market.

He concluded: "Americans are always rushing their own separate ways, but one group of Americans found time to help the youth - Project Business. For your part in introducing me to your world, I thank you.'

His class had studied personal banking, the basic economic systems communism, socialism and free enterprise. They studied the stock market and were involved in a game for several weeks in which they invested in the market. They learned about consumerism and advertising - how to recognize the propaganda technique.

DURING THE COURSE the class made several field trips and learned about job opportunities in the area.

They visited the Kroger plant in Livonia, St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor, Guardian Industries in Novi, and two local banks. They also did comparison shopping to better understand consumerism.

Project Business is available to all middle school students in the Detroit Metropolitan area. It began as a pilot program in 1977. Last year more than 6,000 students in 216 classes in southeastern Michigan were involved in the project. Peter Schaldenbrand said it made him proud of the American way of doing things. In the fall, he will attend Catholic Central High School where hopes to participate in debating. He crushed. He learned about sudden rises says that at this point, he has no definite career plans.

THE COMMITTEE which planned the reunion was composed of Diane Williams Bacon, Terese Kulick Whitten, Linda Barr Jenner, Carol Cronin DeWitt, Becky Tillotson Kro, Sue Messerly Riley and Debbie McAllister Osterhout.

They arranged a car wash, a dunk tank at Old Village's Dearie Days, and a 50-50 giveaway as fund-raisers to cut down on the cost of the party.

Classmates were happy to have their former principal, Bill Brown, and his wife come for the program. Mark McKelvey and John Shultz showed a retrospective collection of photos with a musical accompaniment.

Youth prevails on 1982 All-Area girls' kick team

By Ken McDonald special writer

Girls' soccer is a young sport, still experiencing the growing pains all new sports must suffer before taking root and flourishing. No state tournament for girls' soccer exists, and most of the teams are concentrated around the De

The state of the game in this area mirrors its young image in Michigan high schools. Seven local players were chosen to the West Suburban Soccer As sociation (WSSA) first-team. Four are sophomores and three are juniors.

The four Livonia schools, including Churchill, which was rated by th Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association as the top team in the state, relied heavily on underclassmen to build successful seasons.

CHURCHILL RETURNS nine start ers next year. Livonia Stevenson ranked fourth in the state, loses only two seniors.

Livonia Franklin started seven freshmen during the season and finished with a 10-7 record and a ninthplace rating. Livonia Bentley loses just three starters to graduation from this season's eighth-ranked squad.

Plymouth Salem reflected the youth of girls' soccer, earning a sixth-place state ranking in the school's first sea son of offering the sport. The only team that relied heavily on seniors was Northville, which placed four on the WSSA first team (Marjorie Muller, Jacque Nixon, Martina Millen and Melissa McDaniel).

In order to continue its growth, girls' soccer needs both greater involvement and development; of talent. With so many players returning next season to the local teams, both those goals should be realized.

In short, the concentration of talent on the local high school teams should make this area a hotbed for girls soccer for years to come. Since so few schools at present field girls soccer teams, the Observer will honor those picked to the All-WSSA squad. Here are the WSSA coaches' selections.

Teri Zeches, Churchill, forward - A junior. Zeches was largely responsible for the Chargers' impressive season. She topped Churchill in goals with 30 and in assists with 18. Of the Chargers' 69 goals scored this season, Zeches had a hand in 48.

Picked to the All-State first team, Zeches was voted Churchill's most valuable player and will serve as a team co-captain next season.

Shelly Stazel, Salem, forward — According to Salem coach Ken Johnson, Stazel is "a very determined player with a good attitude." Her determination paid off for the Rocks, as the sophomore accounted for 17 goals and 10

Lisa Rigstad, Bentley, forward -Rigstad has topped Bentley in scoring in each of the past two seasons, and she will be a junior in the fall. As a freshman, she scored 19 goals. Last season she scored 22 and added 11 assists.

A first-team All-State selection, Rigstad's greatest quality, according to Bentley coach Paul Scicluna, is her "nose for the ball. She likes to be around the action. She doesn't shy away from it." Scicluna rated Rigstad as one of the five best players in the state.

Andrea Bokos, Stevenson, midfielder Bokos earned All-State first team honors, scoring five goals and adding 10 assists for the Spartans. She was also the co-MVP for Stevenson.

A co-captain, the junior is "a team leader who always gives 100 percent," according to Stevenson coach Norene Divens. Bokos' leadership qualities were evident - she was the first junior captain in Stevenson history

Dorene Dudek, Churchill, midfielder - From her midfield position, Dudek, a sophomore, managed to score eight goals and 16 assists during the season. "She has good skills and reads the game quite well," said Churchill coach Ed Dudek, Dorene's father. Dorene was a second team All-State selecton.

Cheryl Galindo, Stevenson, defender

- A sophomore, Galindo led the Stevenson defense and gained secondteam All-State recognition, sharing the Spartans' MVP award with Bokos.

Galindo possesses "excellent heading skills and a strong volley," said Stevenson coach Divens. Galindo even managed to score a goal from her defensive position.

Kim Vatca, Churchill, defender -Thanks to the strong play of this junior center fullback, the Chargers, who used three goalies during the season; recorded 11 shutouts. Vatca received All-State honorable mention and had "good anticipation" off the ball, according to Churchill coach Dudek.

Westland falls to Dearborn rally

What appeared to be a sure victory turned into a nightmare Tuesday for Redford-Westland Adray

Dearborn Vacuum tallied eight runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to shock the Livonia Adray Baseball League's second place team, 10-9.

Pitcher Brad George held Dearborn to just two hits before tiring in the sixth. Ralph Scharf came on in relief, and the flood gates opened.

He gave up all eight runs. The winning run resulted from an error. Despite the loss, Redford-Westland

Dan Smith, who led Plymouth Canton to the state Class A finals, made a rousing debut for Dearborn as he belted a two-run homer in the first and singled in the third.

Craig Money's sacrifice fly scored Dennis Meisner with the winning run as the Garden City Golden Leafs nipped Warrick Clutch last week, 4-3, in a Garden City Class A Invitational Baseball League game.

The winners, now sporting a 5-1 record, rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Elliott (Henry Thomas) confronts a strange sight in "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial."

the movies

Louise Snider

Take a pal to see compelling story of space creature

Children, grab your parents. Parents, grab your children. Anyone, grab a friend, lover, stranger off the street and go see "E.T. The Extra Terrestrial" (PG).

It's an exhilarating experience, and one that deserves to be shared with someone.

Those whose have seen "E.T." already are sharing a special mood and feeling. Steven Spielberg's movie creates an emotional high of good will that, in some strange way, even infects those about to see the movie, who share a happy sort of camaraderie Spielberg describes "E.T." as his most personal movie, but it also can be seen as a continuation of "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." The premise is, What would happen if one of the beings from outer space accidentally were stranded on earth?

"E.T." begins with the strange, frightened Extra-Terrestrial separated from his spaceship and hunted by a menacing group of men. It is the flip side of the usual scenario in which humans are terrorized by creatures from outer space, as in "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" or "The Thing."

IT IS ONE of Spielberg's great strengths as a creative artist that he is able to bring us different points of view and make them credible. Actually, in "E.T." we get two different points of view: that of the Extra-Terrestrial in which adult humans appear as anonymous and threatening creatures, and that of the 10-year-old Elliott who befriends E.T.

To Elliott, whose father has deserted the family, adults are not menacing as much as they are callous and uncaring. Elliott comes to regard E.T. as a very special and secret friend, not a scientific curiosity to be probed and dissected.

The special relationship between Elliott and E.T. is the heart of the movie. Although the plot is about an alien stranded on earth who wants to return home, the theme explores values of trust, friendship and reverence for life.

The bond of friendship that grows between E.T. and Elliott becomes so strong that they develop a telepathic rapport. Each feels what affects the other. In one of the movie's most inventive scenes, Elliptt disrupts an entire class at school when E.T., left alone at home, samples some beer with wild results. Both Melissa Mathison, who wrote the script, and Spielberg, who conceived the original idea and directed, have remarkable insight into children and animals. They do a magnificent job of capturing the nervous beginnings of introduction, as Elliott and E.T. become acquainted through a series of hesitant advances and skittish

THE PATTERN IS similar to that shown in "The Black Stallion," also scripted by Mathison, in which the boy befriends the horse. In "The Black Stallion," the boy entices the horse with seaweed. In "E.T." he does it with M&Ms.

To realize the potential of this movie, Spielberg has put together a splendid cast, none of whom are well known, but all of whom deliver perfectly tuned performances. Among them are Dee Wallace as Elliott's mother, Drew Barrymore as his little sister and Robert McNaughton as his older brother.

Henry Thomas, who appeared as one of Sissy Spacek's children in "Raggedy Man," is outstanding as Elliott. He delivers an emotional punch near the end of the movie that would put to shame the efforts of many adult actors.

Finally, Carlo Rambaldi must be singled out for creating E.T. His range of expression and movement is so great, and he appears so real, that you expect to find him listed in the credits like any

The result is that the Extra-Terrestrial is the kind of lovable creature anyone would like to take home. After all, you never grow too old to want a special friend. Spielberg knows that and has captured that longing in a movie bound to have timeless and universal appeal

Keys (Peter Covote) and Mary (Dee Wallace) talk about the capture and study of E.T., while Elliot listens.

A lively show, with plenty of good songs and choreography, is "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," starring Edie Adams, at the Birmingham The-

This production has lots of energy and singing voices that are pleasing to the ear. The audience on opening night loved "The Aggie Song," the musical number sung and danced by the footstompin' Aggies football'team.

The team goes from football helmets and jerseys to Texas hats and checked shirts as they prepare for a night at the "Chicken Ranch" whorehouse to celebrate their victory. At curtain time, the struttin' Aggies in their cowboy boots got the biggest applause.

Edie Adams is a good-natured Miss Mona, slightly brassy and bold, whose manner is more gentle than her appearance would indicate. She looks the epitome of a tough madam, with her overblown locks of flaming red hair and a first-act entrance costume of royal blue and marabou.

ART LUND plays the aging but relentlessly determined Sheriff Ed Earl Dodd, who runs his town like a one-man band. Lund is a big guy with a big voice, and he comes on surprisingly strong in this role that could easily become a comic second-banana for the rest of the proceedings.

Lund manages to extract a lot of sympathy, as well as humor, for his character, and almost overpowers the

The real-life "best little whorehouse' had a history of 150 years in Texas until it was closed down in the 1970s by do-gooders. In the musical, Stephen Bray is Melvin P. Thorpe, the "Watchdog" of "The Watchdog News," who leads the vigilante efforts to get Mona and the Girls out.

Bray neatly handles the role of The Watchdog, perfectly attuned to his TV audience, with a fantastic headful of hair and shining teeth. The stage production clearly takes a stand for the Chicken Ranch, which got its name because farmboys who couldn't pay in cash for services rendered paid in chickens.

AS PRESENTED here, it's all good, clean fun. In fact, one of the songs in the show reminds everybody that ain't nothing dirty goin' on. Mona and the Girls sing, "It's just a lil ole bitty pissant country place," making sex for money sound almost wholesome.

Part of the show's appeal is its mix of daring and endearing. Dora Pearson is Angel, and Rebecca Ann Seav is Shy. two girls who arrive at the Chicken Ranch, off the same bus, to ask Miss Mona for jobs. Pearson is appropriately nervy but good-hearted underneath and a a dedicated absentee mother to boot. Seay makes her little farm girl winsome as she learns the tricks of the trade.

Hypocrisy is spoofed in such numbers as "Texas Has a Whorehouse in It," sung by the Melvin Thorpe gang: the "Angelette March," danced by tapping feet of the shiny-cheeked Imogene Charlene and the Angelettes; and "The Sidestep," sung and danced by the Governor of Texas (Philip Oesterman).

The Governor neatly sidesteps demands to close down the Chicken Ranch, until he finds it politically expedient to do so.

With all this pay-sex, free love isn't left out either. Edwina Lewis is featured in the cast as Jewel, Miss Mona's personal maid, who on her day off gives away what the other Girls sell. In "Twenty-Four Hours of Lovin," Lewis belts out with abandon her philosophy of love. She's got a voice that can go from whisper to shout with gospel-like enthusiasm.

"THE BEST Little Whorehouse" is so carefully put together that each musical number has a life of its own, yet adds progressively to the whole. From the opening "20 Fans," where the Girls sing about their jobs, to the near-closing "Hard Candy Christmas," where they foresee their bleak futures, the songs have vivid color.

There are other poignant numbers. "Doatsey Mae," sung by Amy Miller, the lunch-counter waitress, shows how a good girl thinks when she'd like to be a little bit bad. Doatsey Mae has dreams, some of them spicy, but she's too respectable to fulfill any of them.

Miss Mona has a nice song, "Girl You're a Woman," which she sings to the newly arrived Shy, reminding her of life's reality. In "Bus from Amarillo" Mona sings to herself, recalling her own efforts to escape from one life into another. She never had the guts to take the bus to nowhere.

Keeping the show moving brightly onstage throughout is a country band, led by Art Yelton, who sings the saga of the Chicken Ranch. John Newton contributes to the sprightly activity in dual roles as the Senator, who brings the football team to the Chicken Ranch, and the town's part-time/Mayor, who also sells cars.
