Gas leak sparks move-out for night

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

About 30 residents spent Tuesday night in the Canton Recreation Center, telling jokes, munching hamburgers — and waiting to get back into their homes.

About 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, construction workers with the state Department of Transportation struck a six-inch gas main at Michigan Avenue and I-275 freeway. The workers were erecting a sound barrier along the freeway, according to reports.

Residents of 60 mobile homes in West Point Manor were evacuated as a safety precaution, in a joint decision between Canton police, fire and Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. officials, residents said. There are an estimated 200 homes in the park, at Michigan Avenue and I-275.

There were no injuries, and no fires. "They (the township) sent in a bus," said Evelyn Hiddings, one of the evacuated residents. "There were so many people around, it looked like a parade. They told me one spark could (cause an explosion)."

The leak was capped about 9 a.m. Wednesday and residents were allowed to return to their homes, said Sandra Byrns, director of corporate communi-

R.F. Ryan (right) and three other officials from Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. look puzzled Tuesday night as they review stacks of blueprints to find the valve which shuts off the six-inch gas main. The gas finally was turned off at 9:05 a.m. Wednesday, according to Michigan Consolidated officials.

Officials to hire appraisal company

Canton will hire a firm to appraise the township's residential properties, in hopes of bolstering a challenge of the county tax bureau.

The Township Board last week authorized the hiring of Great Lakes Appraisal Co. of Livonia to do a three-month study of Canton's 11,000 residential properties, said Finance Director Mike Gorman.

The cost of the study is estimated at $190,000, Gorman added. A contract with the firm is subject to approval by the township's attorney.

The Wayne County Taxation Bureau assesses residential property in Canton. Township officials contend the county fails to consider the poor real-estate market, and that many houses are appraised too high.

Current residential assessments are "the worst mish-mash that you can imagine," said Trustee Robert Padgett.

"It (the study) is expensive, unfortunately," Padgett added.

CANTON OFFICIALS believe a survey is needed to strengthen the township's position in a challenge of the taxation bureau.

"There are no guarantees at all that the county or state will accept (the results of the survey)," said Gorman.

In April, Canton's tax review board lowered assessments on 7,000 properties — mostly residential. The board used real-estate figures and comparisons of house styles, in an effort to reduce overassessments.

School board faces serious budget decisions

By Dennis O'Connor
editor

It's time for the Board of Education to make some serious decisions about school staffing and services, says Superintendent John Hoben.

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools lost an estimated $1.4 million in state financial aid last week, and may have to pay another $855,971 in executive order cuts from the governor's office.

Meanwhile, the board plans to meet this weekend in a two-day workshop to discuss future philosophies and directions for the school district.

Financial problems will continue at the state level and Plymouth-Canton schools will suffer this hardship, along with other local districts, Hoben says.

"It's becoming apparent that it's not going to get any better," Hoben says. "We could have handled the million without many problems. Now the problem is coming up with the $1.3, $1.4 million."

The board passed the 1982-83 budget last June. At that time, about $1.6 million was trimmed from the $42-million budget. No services were eliminated, although some areas of school spending were reduced.

The total deficit in June was $2.7 million, however. The board avoided eliminating services by reducing the emergency fund balance from $1.4 million to only $300,000 to balance the budget — a move against Hoben's recommendation.

The board can't avoid the problem

'They are finally going to have to accept the fact that we can't offer the broad spectrum of educational services . . . unless the educational picture at the state level or local level begins to improve, and there's no sign of that coming.'

superintendent

with this latest series of cuts, Hoben says.

"THEY ARE FINALLY going to have to accept the fact that we can't offer the broad spectrum of educational services," Hoben says, " . . . unless the educational picture at the state level or the local level begins to improve, and there's no sign of that coming.

"We're going to end up with a balanced budget (by state law)," Hoben adds. "How that happens, I don't know. We're looking at any soft areas in the budget where we can generate some bucks."

Meanwhile, the board met Monday night to review its goals and objectives for the 1982-83 school year. The board also plans to meet in a two-day workshop this weekend to decide on a course of direction for the district.

The workshop is open to the public. It takes place from 3-11 p.m. Friday and 7-11 a.m. Saturday at the board office, 454 Harvey, Plymouth. Friday's discussion will focus on budget concerns and the instructional department. Saturday's initial two hours will be in executive (closed) session to discuss negotiations. The last two hours will focus on community relations.

HOBEN BELIEVES preparing a budget is like "working with a Ouija board," when dealing with the financial problems of the state.

"I think we've been fiscally responsible, but they (state legislators) keep doing thing different up there," Hoben explains. "I'm optimistic that what has been done will be changed."

The 1982-83 budget includes pay freezes for all employees, although all seven labor unions currently are working without a contract. The budget includes increment increases for teachers, however.

Libertarian candidate objects to exclusion from discussion

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Bette Erwin, Libertarian candidate for the U.S. Senate, is yelling foul after being excluded from last week's League of Women Voters discussion in Plymouth.

The topic was "American Women in the '80s: Perspectives and Prospects." Although it wasn't a candidate's night, the speakers included Mari Egbert, campaign manager for Republican gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee; Olivia (Libby) Maynard, chairwoman of the state Democratic Party, representing James Blanchard; Laura Callow, ERA-Michigan co-chair; and Glenna Davis, former state chair of homemaker rights for the National Organization for Women.

"I WAS SHOCKED they would have women who work for men (candidates) speak, rather than having a woman actually on the ballot speak," said Erwin, a resident of Oak Park.

"I offered to speak, but they told me they were having women who work on campaigns speak. I then offered to have a woman working on my campaign speak. They said no third parties," said Erwin, a practicing psychotherapist.

The league didn't intend for the discussion to be political, says Michele Howard, chairwoman of the event.

"When we first started it, we only had two speakers, which were both league members. Then we got the bright idea to get someone representing the two major parties," said Howard.

"If we would have invited Bette Erwin, we would have to invite all minor parties. You have to be very careful to invite everyone or no one. We decided to stick with the two major parties."

ERWIN SAID she was hurt that, as a woman candidate, her problems were coming from women.

"My gut guess is that at some level, they are accepting the myth that men are really superior," said Erwin, who holds a Ph.D. in psychology from Wayne State University.

Howard disagrees with Erwin's guess. "Obviously that can't be true. The league is made up of women who work very hard to elect women. We are happy to see Martha Griffiths running for office. That's just not true."

THAT WASN'T the first time Erwin and minor party candidates have been excluded from discussions.

In the Headlee-Blanchard debate before Oakland chambers of commerce in Troy, supporters of independent candidate Robert Tisch picketed in protest of the Shiawassee County drain commissioner's exclusion.

"It's a battle we're fighting this year that we haven't been experiencing in the past. I have to believe it's because we are growing in strength and offering a fresh alternative," she said.

"We will protest and raise hell whenever we are excluded."

In the spring of 1981, Erwin ran for the 4th Congressional District seat vacated by federal budget director David Stockman.

Campaigning as a Libertarian in the southwest corner of Michigan, Erwin was excluded only once — from a high school debate.

"I think something new is happening, a deliberate exclusion of Libertarians. Someone is really getting threatened by the Libertarian Party," says Erwin.

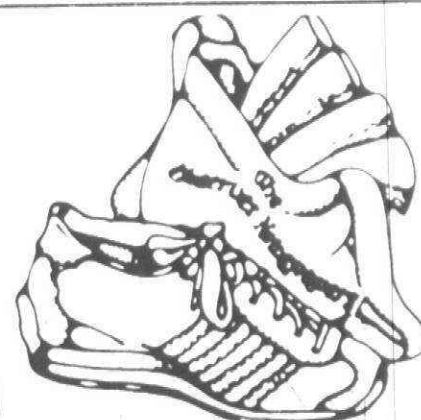

"Because of the fact that we are winning, there's a real shutdown going on. We have 23 people in office nationally."

THE SHUTOUT in Plymouth was the third exclusion in Erwin's current campaign for the U.S. Senate.

"The first big exclusion came at the National Assembly of Women's Conference in Detroit," she said.

The June 25-26 conference featured speakers from women's groups in the Republican and Democratic parties.

"We told them we would like to speak on behalf of the Association of Libertarian Feminists — a legitimate women's group within our party," she says.

Erwin said that because the Libertarian Party campaigns for less government involvement, and the women's groups are seeking government intervention, they excluded her.

THE NEXT exclusion was at the Michigan Association of Broadcasters' state convention in Gaylord.

The convention, held in late August, was supposed to feature debates between gubernatorial candidates Blanchard and Headlee and senate candidates Donald Riegler and Philip Ruppe.

"They said right from the start they didn't want third-party participants," says Erwin.

Riegler, she recalled, handled his end of the debate with a call from Washington.

"Riegler started his statements by welcoming me to the convention and said he hoped they would let me speak. Based on that, I got five minutes," says Erwin.

Co-captains Matt Santilli (2) from Canton and Kevin Urban (54) from Salem, schoolmates — but rivals, meet at the 50-yard line for the flip of the coin. Salem, the "away" team, warmed up in white jerseys but changed and entered the gridiron in its "home" blue uniforms.

Rains didn't dampen this spirited rivalry

Even the wet, rainy, miserable weather couldn't dampen the excitement and uniqueness of the first Plymouth Salem-Plymouth Canton football game last week at the Centennial Educational Park gridiron.

All the elements of what should be a great — and unpredictable — rivalry were part of this contest.

The contrasting styles of the two head football coaches — Salem's Tom Moshimer, the conservative, 16-year veteran coach, against the flamboyant Canton coach Richard Barr, who studied under Moshimer as an assistant three years earlier.

Then there were the players — many of whom are friends, neighbors and classmates during the academic day, but staunch athletic rivals after school.

And then there were the fans, parents and cheerleaders. Again, many of these people also are friends and neighbors, who watched many of the players on both teams grow up together from little league programs to the high schools.

Salem drew first blood in this rivalry. The Rocks' potent running game outlasted Canton, 18-6.

Indeed, it was a night to remember. It was the first game of what is hoped to be a competitive — but friendly — rivalry which everyone can enjoy.

Athletic Director John Sandmann keeps smiling in the rain.

Julie Yakas, a member of the flag corps, performs with the Centennial Park Marching Band at halftime of the first Canton-Salem football game.

The Chiefettes from Canton and the Rockettes from Salem danced together during the halftime festivities.

Salem student Todd Riedel gets into the spirit of the game, as he shouts his encouragement behind a blue-and-white face.

Canton plans home appraisal survey

The taxation officials said the assessments were lowered too much, and decided to multiply the assessed worth of property in Canton by a number great-

Canton officials contend the higher tax factor of 1.035 raises Canton's assessments beyond the level required by law — 50 percent of the true market value of the property.

About 30 people from West Point Manor and the adjacent Sherwood Mobile Home Park spent time at the recreation building, said police patrolman Leonard Schemanske. Eight stayed all night.

Debbie and Dale Miller showed up about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday. Earlier, both were turned away when they had tried separately to enter West Point Manor.

After searching a couple of hours for each other, they were reunited in the parking lot at Kroger's, and later arrived at the recreation center.

"It was a very cold night," said Debbie Miller. "My husband and one other person fell asleep. The rest of us sat around and talked, getting to know each other."

"They treated us beautifully," said Hiddings. "If it weren't for this, I wouldn't have met these people."

Seminar Friday on herpes

A special program on herpes, a sexually transmitted virus infection, will be presented at 6 p.m. Friday at the Oakwood Hospital facility in Canton.

The free program will be presented by Charles T. Cash, M.D., a gynecologist-obstetrician. He will explain how herpes is transmitted, treated and prevented.

Registration is required.

ACCORDING TO the Herpes Resource Center, the virus enters the body when a person comes into direct contact with someone who is infected and in an active stage.

Once the virus enters the body, an active infection may develop. During the active period, an individual may be capable of passing the virus to another person.

Typically, a herpes infection appears from two to 20 days after exposure, according to the resource center. The infection takes the form of sores on or around the lips, mouth face.

In the case of genital herpes, the sores appear around the sex organs, says the resource center. The sores may itch, burn or be quite painful, and be accompanied by swollen glands, general muscle aches and fever.

In addition, an affected person may experience a burning sensation when urinating, or a mild vaginal discharge. The sores may heal, but the virus remains present in a dormant stage.

For more information about the seminar, call the Oakwood Hospital Canton Center, at 459-7030. The center is at Canton Center and Warren roads.

A newsletter on computer fraud is launched

A monthly newsletter on corporate and computer fraud has been launched by Computer Protection Systems Inc., of Plymouth.

The Corporate and Computer Fraud Digest is intended to reach an audience of public accountants, internal auditors, audit committee members, controllers, financial executives, data processing, loss prevention, security, and risk managers.

The newsletter basically is aimed at those people in the private sector who are mainly responsible for the prevention, detection, audit and investigation of corporate and computer related frauds, waste and abuse, says Jack Bologna, president of Computer Protection Systems.

The contents of the newsletter will include:

- Digests of current incidents of corporate and computer related frauds and abuses.
- Tools, tips and techniques for fraud auditing, investigation, detection and prevention.
- Reviews of topical books and professional magazine articles on those subjects.
- Research results on white collar crime.

The first issue, released in June, focused on high performance fraud, a type of fraud in which executives inflate profits by overstating sales or understating costs to deceive their superiors, stockholders or bankers.

Bologna says such frauds are on the rise because in economic hard times pressures for high performance are felt more keenly by managers.

"What we are seeing reported in the financial media is the tip of the iceberg. High performance fraud is a serious management concern today. White collar crime goes up in hard times, very much like street crime. Both are economically motivated."

Bologna, a 30-year veteran in the fields of white collar crime investigation, fraud auditing and computer security, will edit the newsletter. He holds college degrees in accounting and law and has done graduate study in business administration.

Before entering the consulting field, Bologna spent 14 years in federal law enforcement and intelligence organizations.

Computer Protection Systems, organized in 1981, is based at 711 W. Ann Arbor Trail in the city of Plymouth.

Provost, a graduate of Alma College with a bachelor's degree in business, is a member of the Financial Resources Committee of the Board of Session for the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

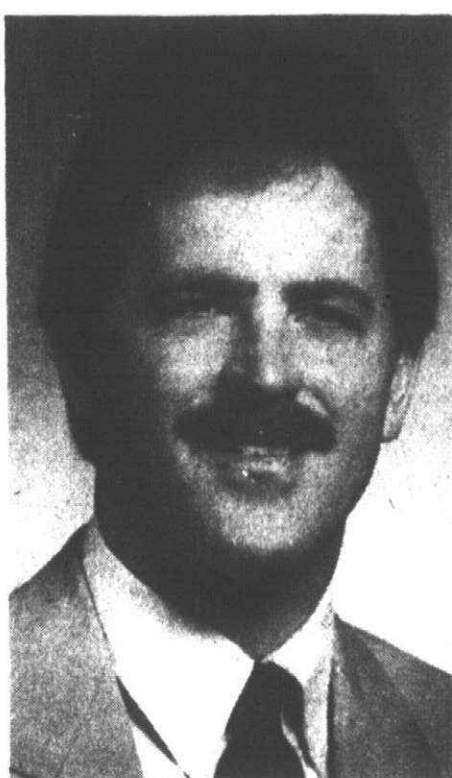

McCoy ON STAFF

Joanne R. McCoy of Canton has joined the professional staff of psychotherapists associated with Midwest Mental Health Clinic, P.C. located in Parklane Towers East, Dearborn.

Her expertise with individuals and families, including children, is an asset to the outpatient psychiatric clinic, says Ronald Jesmore, executive vice president of Midwest Mental Health Clinic.

McCoy announces that through the clinic she now can offer direct billing to Blue Cross/Blue Shield as well as to most other insurance companies for her professional services.

The Problem
You have a hole in your roof. And every cold day of the year you lose much of the precious gas heat you pay for, through that hole. The hole? Your furnace vent. Every time your furnace turns off, the warm air in your home starts escaping. Through the furnace vent. Through the hole in your roof. And on goes the furnace again. Heating the air and running up your gas bill.

Pays For Itself
Consider the many cold winter days ahead. Consider the cost of heating your home. And it's going to continue to go up and up. Now consider the amount of heat you lose through that hole in the roof. You can quickly see that the AMERI-THERM Vent Damper can pay for itself in just a matter of months. Here's another bonus. You can qualify for a 15% federal tax credit of the installation cost with your AMERI-THERM Vent Damper installation.

American Gas Association
Design Certified
Moreover, it's been proven for more than 14 terrible winters in millions of installations in Europe. And it's backed by a 5-year limited warranty from one of the best known names in the heating industry, American Metals Products Co.

The sooner you call, the sooner you can start keeping your gas costs from going through the roof. Licensed Installers Available

Who will be queen?

One of these students will reign tomorrow night as Homecoming Queen of Plymouth Canton High School. The queen will be announced and crowned during halftime ceremonies of tomorrow's game which pits the Chiefs against Livonia Churchill, beginning

State testing of students under way

The annual statewide testing program will take place in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools through Oct. 8. The tests, known as the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP), are given during the regular school day.

The purpose of the statewide testing program is to promote student learning by identifying and defining basic skills which all students should know in reading and mathematics, explained Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction.

The test covers specific reading and math skills to see how well they have been learned.

The testing occurs each year in the fourth, seventh, and 10th grades.

The tests assume that students have been taught the skills being tested in the previous school years, says Homes.

In this way, he adds, the data from MEAP is appropriate in helping teachers and principals focus on the skill needs of students in grades four, seven and 10 and other levels.

The MEAP test scores are reported on an individual school building, district, and statewide basis.

A particular value of the testing is to point out strengths and weaknesses of the individual student, says Homes.

Teachers and counselors receive the results of the tests for each student tested and can then work to assist the student in areas where needs have been indicated by the test results.

In Plymouth-Canton the test results are shared with parents when the scores are returned, which likely will happen in November this year.

The MEAP effort began on a statewide basis in the fall of 1974. The test was extended to 10th graders in recent years.

Specific questions about the testing usually can be answered by individual building principals.

"While we recognize that any single test is only a check-point," says Homes, "in viewing a student's progress, the MEAP tests are helpful in looking at the achievement levels of our students in math and reading.

"The test results provide meaningful information which we can use to assess and promote learning by the young people in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools."

'Y' Fall Run ready to go

The Plymouth Family YMCA will stage its third annual Fall Run this Sunday in downtown Plymouth.

Each year the event attracts runners from Plymouth, Canton, Northville, Livonia and surrounding communities to participate in one of three races.

The Fall Run consists of a one-mile run, a three-mile run, and a five-mile run.

The competition is divided according to age grouping and by sex. Check-in and late registration will be from 8 a.m. to 8:45 p.m. Sunday at Kellogg Park, on Main Street between Penniman Avenue and Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth.

The one-mile run will begin at 9 a.m. while the three-mile and five-mile events will begin at 9:30 a.m. The starting point for the one-mile race is on the Penniman Avenue side of Kellogg Park while the other races will begin on Penniman Avenue halfway between Main and Harvey near the dollhouse.

The fee is $4 for the one-mile run and $6 for the three and five-mile runs. Campaign funds question in judge's hands

By Suzie Rollins Singer
staff writer

Libertarian gubernatorial candidate Dick Jacobs is awaiting an Oakland circuit judge's decision on whether his Republican and Democratic opponents can keep their state campaign funds.

Judge John N. O'Brien heard arguments Monday from both sides, promising to rule on Jacobs' request for a preliminary injunction halting major party candidates from spending their state campaign funds.

"We're not asking for a share of the funding. We're asking that all funding be stopped," said Jacobs' attorney, Robert W. Roddis of Grosse Pointe Farms.

"We have to raise all the money ourselves, while the major parties can sit back and collect state funds," the Libertarian's attorney general candidate added.

BOTH REPUBLICAN nominee Richard Headlee and Democratic candidate James Blanchard have received the maximum of $750,000 in state matching funds. Blanchard received $660,000 in the primary and Headlee collected $605,000.

Candidates must raise $50,000 before they are eligible to receive $2 for every $1 raised. State funds are collected when taxpayers make voluntary $1 donations by checking off a special section on their state income tax forms.

Attorneys representing Blanchard and Headlee said Jacobs is fighting the wrong defendants.

"These candidates have no way of determining who gets the money," said Steven J. Hitchcock, Headlee's attorney.

"He (Jacobs) should be naming the secretary of state and/or the state treasurer, who are responsible for administering campaign finance practices," Hitchcock added.

The defense lawyers noted their clients are not depriving Jacobs from securing money and that there is plenty of money in the general fund to be distributed to all candidates should the state decide to appropriate it.

GEORGE WARD, Blanchard's attorney asked that the case be dismissed, because there is no show of probability of the right to relief against Blanchard.

"This may be the only time this year that Mr. Blanchard and Mr. Headlee are in total agreement," Ward said.

"But they (Libertarians) may not be eligible (for state funds) because they didn't file for the money when they organized," he added.

Jacobs, in an interview, argued against the whole idea of state financing of political campaigns. "Money that could have been used for tax relief is being used by both Mr. Blanchard and Mr. Headlee to buy their way into office."

STATE CAMPAIGN finance director John Turnquist concurred with Ward's statement.

"Jacobs is not eligible for funds because he never filled out the required forms to designate that he would be seeking public money," Turnquist said in a telephone interview.

There are several ways a minor party candidate can collect state campaign funds, Turnquist explained.

• If the minor party was on the 1978 ballot and received 5 percent of the vote (Libertarians were not), its candidate can receive two-to-one funds based on the average percentage of the major party candidates.

• If the minor party was not on the '78 ballot but receives more than 5 percent of the vote in the upcoming general election, it can be reimbursed after the election on the same percentage basis.

• It can also be matched on a straight one-to-one basis, up to $500,000 if it raises at least $50,000.

Disburbed by group

To the editor:

An article on the subject of school discipline which appeared in the Sept. 2 Observer is particularly disburbing to me.

The focus of the article concerns a parents' group called "Parents Who Care" and the founder, Barb Timmerman.

This group seems bent on repressing student rights and backing up the educational process by creating animosity between teachers and students.

Before going further in discussing this group I would like to address the question of disciplinary problems at the high schools. Does it deserve the attention it gets? Probably not.

I have observed few disciplinary problems and most are minor, trivial ones. Parents who believe students are raising havoc and can do whatever they please at the high schools are misinformed.

Parents Who Care offers several counterproductive proposals for the supposed disciplinary problem. Timmerman states that instead of building a "pal-type rapport" with the students, the teachers should have a greater power to enforce the rules without fear of a lawsuit. Why should teachers fear a lawsuit?

Timmerman's next statement gives us a clue. "I think they (the teachers) should be able to push them down in their seats if need be," says Timmerman. In the same article Plymouth Canton High teacher Dan Chrenko implies that such actions will only lead to further violence.

Timmerman also states, "Why can't you put rules on the wall? You will act this way, you will follow these rules or else." Chrenko responds, "We need to learn to get along . . . you can't have a set of non-pliable rules and have everyone fit the mold."

We can further witness Timmerman's attitude by her statements, "Let's not let niceness get in the way of education" and "There should be a certain amount of fear to get respect and love."

How Timmerman came up with the ridiculous association that fear brings about respect and love is beyond me, but it certainly didn't come from a psychology journal.

This advocacy of a stiff, formal environment in which students are expected to conform to the finest detail and student-teacher relationships are expected to be distant will only produce counterproductive results. It would be more beneficial to concentrate on the pressing problems of student disinterest and the feeling of lack of control over one's school environment.

Resident likes Central's 'team'

To the editor:

I want to congratulate the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education and Dr. John Telford for allowing Central Middle School to have the two best middle school administrators in our school district, Gregory Owens and Patricia Moore. They already are a fantastic team. It was no easy task beginning this school year, with new staff, new kids and our new pilot-scheduling program.

In the nine years I have been at Central Middle School, this year it is the cleanest, quietest and has the best-working atmosphere. Several people have said, "Central is on its way to becoming the showcase of our middle schools." I also believe this.

For years, I've been praying for this type of administrative team, to make our building the kind of place we, the students, the parents and the staff have wanted it to be.

Thank you for giving us this superb administrative team.

Writer's remedy is 'shortsighted'

To the editor:

What we certainly don't need is Tim Richard urging the education lobby "to go after . . . its own worst enemy" — social services — for a greater share of the state's depleted fiscal resources.

There is no question that education in Michigan and will suffer from reduced state funding. But to urge that education "point the finger of blame" for this situation at social services is short-sighted, and wrong, and encourages a divisiveness that serves no purpose.

Perhaps the education lobby has risen above the vindictiveness Mr. Richard suggests because it is aware that the same children who suffer from education cuts are also suffering as grant levels and services they and their parents need have been reduced. (Sixty-four percent of ADC recipients are children). A hungry child with no heat in the home, or forced to move repeatedly because the family can't find a place to rent on the $130 to $160 a month that Michigan welfare families receive for that purpose, isn't going to benefit much from available educational programs — no matter how well they are funded.

Proposals Mr. Richard mentions to cut social services expenditures include the ballot proposal embraced by many legislators and political candidates that would reduce Michigan's welfare payments to those of surrounding states. The very legislators who have vigorously pushed this proposal voted against it when it came up for a vote in the Michigan House last week.

Instead they voted for another cut in welfare grants that will reduce Michigan's benefits below the level of surrounding states. Michigan's benefits were not out of line to begin with, being less than Wisconsin's and Minnesota's and an average of $7 more per person than the five surrounding states.

Mr. Richard also refers to a "minor party candidate" who suggests we rely on private charity to reduce social services costs. The private giving that was supposed to replace the many federally funded programs for the poor that have been cancelled or reduced, has yet to materialize. Food closets, churches, and private agencies in poorer areas are overwhelmed with requests for assistance, and the supply is not meeting the demand.

There is little evidence that the public will support additional appeals for contributions — particularly when it can mean fund-raising for nursing homes, to keep the old and infirm from being put out. Since over half of the social services funds in Michigan go to medical providers, this is where private monies will have to be targeted.

The weakest lobby in the state is traditionally the poor people's lobby (if there is such a lobby). If the education lobby has been prudent and compassionate enough not to blame its cutbacks on the unemployed, elderly, and disabled, they should be congratulated.

We have enough problems in Michigan without Mr. Richard's attempt to pit groups against one another when they are all suffering together from the state's fiscal problems.

S'craft board changes urged

To the editor:

Tim Richard's perceptive comments concerning Schoolcraft College warrants widespread attention from every citizen interested in good government.

As a suburban institution of higher education, the college is a great opportunity for citizens of every interest and of every age bracket. Truly its record of service to the wider community is outstanding.

But as Richard's editorial on the trustees clearly delineates, there is a governance crisis as the Livonia representation is disproportionate by a 6-1 margin.

I believe the big crunch will come when one of the non-represented districts votes to disaffiliate. Remember the classical American slogan, "No taxation without representation" and its impact.

To improve the college's image, the trustees could develop a plan for each of the seven trustees to be elected on a district basis, these of approximately equal population.

This could be done in time for the June election. I'd like to see it happen.

Tom Panzenhagen

"Revenge of the Pink Panther" (1978), 9 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 99 minutes.

Everyone would agree that Blake Edwards made a few too many "Pink Panther" movies. In fact, the 1964 original would have been sufficient. "A Shot in the Dark" (1966) strained credulity, while "Return of the Pink Panther" (1975) and "Revenge" strained credulity to the breaking point. Still, there's something appealing about these low comedies, and that something is the comedic genius of Peter Sellers. The "Panther" films were a showcase for Sellers, and his talents far surpass those of the films' writers and director. Inspector Clouseau lives on, and if you don't believe that, you deserve a buuump on the head.

"The Great Escape" (1963), 11:45 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7. Originally 168 minutes.

The plot is improbable and the characterizations unlikely, yet John Sturges' film is a genuine thriller because it's an escapist film in every sense of the word. An all-star cast makes us care about, and believe in, all the improbabilities and unlikelihoods contained therein. Steve McQueen, James Garner, Charles Bronson, Richard Attenborough, James Coburn, David McCallum and Donald Pleasance star.

Rating: $3.05.

"At Long Last Love" (1975), 8 p.m. Monday on Ch. 50. Originally 118 minutes.

Critics have long-winded at Burt Reynolds' and Cybill Shepherd's attempts to sing Cole Porter in this Peter Bogdanovich film. Granted, neither has the musical abilities of Lucy Riccardo. But the film's not all bad. Bogdanovich creates an aura of splendid surrealism throughout the picture, and Burt and Cybill — by their very ineptitude — fit that aura nicely. Just don't expect Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald.

Rating: $2.95.

"Twenty Plus Two" (1961), 8:30 a.m. Wednesday on Ch. 20. Originally 102 minutes.

David Janssen created a couple of memorable TV characters in his day. "The Fugitive" and "Harry O" will live on with Inspector Clouseau. But in the earlier days of TV, Janssen was also Richard Diamond, private eye. In "Twenty Plus Two," he plays another private detective. It should be interesting to compare styles. Jeanne Crain, Agnes Morehead and Dina Merrill also star.

Unrated.

Criminal lawyer to lecture at Schoolcraft

F. Lee Bailey, author and criminal lawyer, will speak at 8 p.m. Oct. 12 in the college gymnasium at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The lecture is sponsored by the Schoolcraft College Student Activities Office as part of a speaker's series on legal issues. Bailey's talk entitled "The Defense Never Rests" will cover his current and past cases, as well as current legal issues.

Bailey's speaking engagement at Schoolcraft College will be his only Detroit-area appearance in October. Tickets are $4 for senior citizens and students, in advance, and $5 for the general public and all door sales. Tickets are on sale at the college's Student Activities Office. For further information phone 591-6400, ext. 380.

Reminiscent of Clarence Darrow, Lloyd Paul Stryker and Percy Foreman before him. F. (Francis) Lee Bailey is perhaps the best-known criminal lawyer in the United States today.

"SPECIALIZING IN criminal law makes me a rebel by profession. Our system requires that mavericks stand for the defense. Otherwise, pity the poor accused," Bailey said in his best-selling book "The Defense Never Rests."

Bailey, a graduate of Boston University Law School, has represented more than 100 indicted criminals, only a handful of whom were finally convicted of their alleged crimes.

Bailey's career began shortly after graduating from law school in 1960. He was asked to testify as a polygraph expert in the highly publicized case of George Elderly. Elderly was accused of murdering his wife and dumping her dismembered body into a river. When the original defense attorney became ill, Bailey was asked to take over the case.

The Elderly trial helped launch young Bailey on his career. He went on to represent some of the most notorious defendants of the last two decades, including Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, the Boston Strangler (Albert De Salvo), Captain Ernest Medina and Patty Hearst.

Currently, Bailey has been retained by a farmer, Wayne Cryts, who has been charged with defying a judge. He stole his own bean crop from a bankrupt warehouse, then refused to name the farmers who assisted in the raid. Bailey agreed to take the case, arguing that the Federal bankruptcy law which led to Cryts' predicament is unconstitutional.

Rumplestiltskin plays

Detroit-area lounge act Rumplestiltskin returns for a one-week engagement Monday through Oct. 2 at Fanny's at the Troy Hilton Inn. The group led by Chris McCants is composed of three female vocalists backed by four musicians. Rumplestiltskin will perform from 8:50 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. There is no cover charge. • ATTACK YOUR OPPONENT

In this week's position, white has a 3-2 to play. Since white has a man on the bar, half of this roll will be used to re-enter on black's board, and he will be left with his choice of a 2 or a 3 to play.

As it makes little difference whether white comes in on the black 2 or 3 point, he should concern himself with how he might best exploit his positional advantage.

White has two reasonable alternatives — making his 10 point or hitting on his 4 point. Other plays, such as coming in with the 3 and playing from the 10 to the 8 point do nothing to improve white's position.

Many players would instinctively come in with the 2 and build their 10 point with the 3. It is another point in front of the opponent's back men. It provides a landing place for your own back men as they come around the board. It applies pressure on the 4 point. (Numbers such as 6-6, 6-4, 6-2 and 6-1 could be used to make the white 4 point next roll.) It also has the benefit of safety, as white would have only one loose man if he makes the 10 point.

On the other hand, there are a few drawbacks to making the 10 point. By allowing black the luxury of an entire roll, he might equalize the position. If black rolls a 3, he will make white's 4 point. Then the 10 point will be more of a liability than an asset for white, as it will be very difficult to break later, when white is trying to bring his men home.

If black rolls a number that includes a 4 or a 2, he will be able to make his own 4 point. Then black's home table would be as good as white's, and white should then be more reluctant to be hit.

White's other choice of coming in on black's 3 point and hitting the loose man on the white 4 point entails more risk, but is — to my way of thinking — clearly superior. White's main advantage lies in his men being well developed.

He has made his 5 point and is well positioned to make more points in his home table, while black has relatively few builders, and his position is further jeopardized by the loose man on the black 4 point.

By hitting the man on his 4 point, white almost eliminates the chances of black developing his position. First off, black is only 50-50 to hit back. If he fails to hit back, his chances are grim, and until such time that black is able to anchor up in white's home table, the chances of his being gammoned increase.

Even if black does hit back, white has little to fear from his board and is a heavy favorite to hit at least one man as he comes back in. Black's best chance after being hit is to roll 4-3 and make the white 4 point. Other than 4-3, there are only two other casts that leave black a realistic hope: They are 4-6 and 3-3, which both would hit two of white's loose men.

As a matter of style, it seems right to me to hit loose on the inner board whenever the opponent splits from your 1 point up to your 4 or 5 point. If you already have a board advantage (more points built than the opponent) or a surfeit of builders, that should provide added incentive to press the attack.

In this position, all the indicators screen "Attack."

Canton must consider professional manager

CANTON'S TOWNSHIP BOARD must seriously consider shifting to a professional manager or superintendent style of government.

This administrative change would increase the efficiency of conducting township business, while insuring implementation of specific goals and policies set by board members.

Under the plan, a professional manager, hired under contract by the Township Board, would act as the chief executive officer in administering Township Hall, similar to a school superintendent or a city manager. The manager would report directly to the board. Currently, this top manager role is the responsibility of a full-time, elected supervisor. The new structure would reduce the supervisor position to a part-time job of chairing board meetings, similar to a school board president.

Canton Trustee Robert Padgett proposed this administrative structure in early August. He wanted the issue placed on the November ballot as an "advisory" question to get residents' opinions on the subject.

Padgett's request died, however, from lack of board support. Many board members believed there wasn't enough time to properly educate residents before the voting. Others doubted the value of an advisory question.

Despite the negative vote, most trustees believed this change was worth exploring. Even Supervisor James Poole supported the new management style in concept.

NOW, IN THE WAKE of an embarrassing personnel problem between Treasurer Maria Sterlini and her employees, it would be wise for the Township Board to move seriously toward adopting this management structure. Board members have the power to implement this kind of change.

The timing is perfect for this move.

First, this change of management could be the cure for settling down the administrative mess at Township Hall. Second, the board could gain back some public confidence after suffering through four closed meetings and two open sessions before acting on a management problem in the treasurer's department.

Third, such a change would not be tainted by political motives. The next local board election is in November 1984. The plan could be studied and implemented before the election.

UNDER THIS PROPOSAL, current board members would have to accept many sacrifices.

The administrative team, for example, would have to work within the guidelines set by the board and implemented by the hired manager. This setup clearly diminishes the day-to-day powers of the supervisor, clerk and treasurer in administering township business.

The board's four part-time trustees, likewise, would not have the power to meddle or direct matters with department heads. All orders would come through the manager.

DESPITE THESE LIMITATIONS, one must believe this administrative change is badly needed to improve morale and efficiency at Township Hall.

Currently, Canton's administrative team does what it chooses to do, while trustees oversee what they choose to direct.

No continuity exists. No clear direction is given. Projects are started, then lag, and sometimes are never completed. Staff members are hired without proper purpose, evaluation or objectives.

The result — no progressive movement in a young community.

Present board members were elected by Canton residents who supported their ideas and philosophies. Citizens selected these seven people to implement fresh policies and concepts to keep Canton moving forward, even in these difficult economic times.

Adopting a superintendent-style of management is one of these progressive ideas which would point Canton's governmental operation in the right direction.

— Dennis O'Connor

Educational 'partnership' is a two-way street

"Partnership in Education" is one of those buzz phrases which need to be redefined.

The cliché was liberally sprinkled about to enlist the aid of parents in the educational process (as if children don't learn things at home, independent of what occurs in the schoolroom.)

Like most clichés, its meaning changes from each set of parents and teachers as the expectations of each are different.

Many teachers (but certainly not all) extol the virtues of the Grand Alliance to entice parents into investing time at home doing homework because the work was not completed in class.

Many times I have spent an hour or more with my child completing homework sent home by the teacher, and have willingly done so to make the Grand Alliance work. After all, partnerships take effort.

THE RESULT is that the school academic day has been lengthened — from six (or 5.5) to seven hours, with the added hour being accomplished at home.

The Grand Alliance really has some advantages. First, and maybe foremost, it brings together fathers/sons, fathers/daughters, mothers/sons, and mothers/daughters to become involved in a meaningful activity — assuming, of course, that the homework is meaningful and not just busy work. Extending the academic day into the home also has economic advantages. Teachers are fairly well paid for the work they perform; the hour spent at home on academic work is "free" as the school system does not pay mom or dad.

Anyhow, I'm quite willing to be a party to this Grand Alliance. As in most partnerships, though, I would like a something in return.

I would like the opportunity to meet with my children's teachers at a time convenient to us as working parents.

As I said, the meaning of "Partnership in Education" varies from teacher to teacher. Some teachers are quite willing to come in early to meet with parents, and with these teachers the alliance works quite smoothly.

OTHER TEACHERS, however, will not come in earlier than the starting time of their working day as defined by the master contract. With these teachers, the alliance breaks down.

daniels' den

Emory
Daniels

Why is it, I mutter under my breath, that a teacher can ask parents to invest five hours a week or more at home helping son/daughter do homework but cannot give the parent in return 10 or 15 minutes once a month.

My wife needs to be on the job at 8:30 a.m. That makes it difficult to set up a meeting with a teacher when she will not come in before 8:20 a.m. My wife works until 4 p.m. and I work until 5 to 5:30 p.m. which makes it almost impossible to meet the teacher after school.

If this idea of partnership has any real meaning at all, let's restore some equity into the arrangement. Maybe we could lengthen the school day by 1½ hours and require teachers to arrive at school 45 minutes before classes begin and leave 45 minutes after classes end.

OR IF WE don't want to mandate such equity, maybe we could go on a case-by-case basis. If a teacher sends home two hours of homework, then he/she would arrive to school one hour early and leave one hour late each day. If the homework averages one hour each night, the teacher could arrive 30 minutes early and leave 30 minutes late, etc.

Now to me that seems fair. After all, my time is just as valuable as the teacher's. My family life, and the free time we spend together as family members, also has value.

Don't get me wrong. I believe in homework, moderately applied. I certainly believe in parents showing an interest in a child's education. And I believe in the Grand Alliance.

But I also believe that turnabout is fair play.

Any teacher who cannot give 10-15 minutes of his/her time (non-contractual time) to meet with parents is a difficult partner to work with.

That's my belief, at least, which is why I'm fast developing a reputation as a crackpot among those in the educational community.

Opinions are to be shared

Gotcha!

Gubernatorial candidates shut wrong door

BOTH MAJOR gubernatorial candidates get a rap on the knuckles today for their stands on openness in government. Jim Blanchard doesn't grasp the issue. Dick Headlee grasps it but is plain wrong.

Hiring a president, superintendent or city manager is the most important single thing a college board, school board or city council does. Doing a performance evaluation annually ranks as one of the other most important tasks.

Michigan's Open Meetings Act requires that both types of meetings be conducted before the public. Unfortunately, the school board types and other believers in official paternalism sold the State Senate a bad bill of goods this year. The Senate passed a bill allowing performance evaluations to be handled in secret.

Blanchard and Headlee were asked before the Oakland chambers of commerce whether they would sign or veto such a measure.

BLANCHARD CALLED it "a step in the right direction."

The Democratic congressman said, "Most all personnel matters, especially on performance which could help encourage productivity, ought to be closed."

Tim

Blanchard confused charges against an employee with standard personnel matters. State law has long made personnel matters public business.

Now "charges" can be handled in closed sessions if the employee requests a closed session. But a performance evaluation isn't a charge, like taking money or sexually harassing a secretary. A properly conducted performance evaluation addresses the questions: What were the top official's goals? How well did he/she come to achieving those goals?

After his brief and bungled answer, Blanchard used his time to ramble off about number of state jobs added by the Romney Administration, which was totally irrelevant.

HEADLEE FOLLOWED. "I still don't know whether he'd sign it or veto it. I'd sign it," the Republican nominee said. "He didn't tell us where he stood on day care or flextime either."

Headlee's willingness to conduct secret performance evaluations is troubling because he has advocated more openness in government in two other areas where I doubt it's needed.

As governor, Headlee would open his budget meetings to the public. I doubt whether opening such an administrative procedure would help.

HEADLEE ALSO advocates opening up school district collective bargaining.

Just who on earth besides the negotiating teams would sit through them all is uncertain. Then you have to recognize that there are five sets of meetings: 1) the plenary sessions of both teams, 2) the management caucus, 3) the union caucus, 4) the tete-a-tetes of the two chief bargainers and 5) the union ratification meeting.

Numbers 3-5 involve unions, which aren't public bodies under the Open Meetings Act. State government has no business telling unions to open their meetings.

As for the plenary sessions of the labor and management bargaining teams — well, I've been in them. The union chief negotiator put on a show for the union committee members. The company lawyer puts on a show for the management committee members. If the public were invited in, the grandstanding would have been intolerable, and it would have taken four times as long to negotiate a contract.

FOOTNOTE: Two years ago, the Legislature passed bills allowing secret meetings to interview top job candidates and to evaluate them. Gov. William G. Milliken vetoed both, rather emphatically. It looks as if our next governor won't begin to measure up to Bill Milliken.

All the elements of correct exposure can be found in Monte Nagler's photo of Casares, Spain. The buildings are white, the shadow areas are dark, and there are many tones in between. Note how the buildings form a backward "S" curve.

Exposing film is like getting a perfect suntan

Understanding exposure can be frustrating to many beginning photographers, who often throw up their hands in exasperation and turn over the whole thing to their camera's meter.

Unfortunately, they never will develop a knowledge of this very important step of photography. Many of my students will ask for a simple explanation of how exposure works.

Well! I'm going to make the complex world of exposure easy to understand. All you have to do is sit back, read slowly, and concentrate on the following analogy:

IMAGINE yourself sprawled lazily on the beach about to get a suntan on a hot, bright, sunny day.

Now, let your imagination go and assume two things: 1) There is such a thing as obtaining a "perfect tan", not too much and not too little sun. 2) There is an adjustable diaphragm between you and the sun over which you have complete control.

Stop for a moment and think of the many ways you can reach your "perfect tan". If you open the diaphragm wide and let the sun's rays pour in on you, you'll obtain your "perfect tan" quickly.

Just the opposite, if you close down the diaphragm to a small opening, it will take much longer to reach the "perfect tan." A middle opening will result in a time to get your tan somewhere between the quick tan and the slow tan.

The important thing to remember is that the end result is the same in each example... a "perfect tan." It just takes longer through a small opening and shorter through a large opening.

IF YOU should lie in the sun too long or let the sun in through too large an opening in the diaphragm, what happens? You get overexposed.

Conversely, too little time in the sun or too small a diaphragm results in what? Underexposure.

Further, with a given opening and a given time, some people may get their "perfect tan" faster or slower than you. What this means is that they have more or less sensitive skin than you do. You might even say that people have different ASA skin ratings.

Now, let's shift gears slightly and come back to reality. What I've actually been discussing is not getting a suntan through an imaginary diaphragm, but giving film (your skin) proper exposure (perfect tan) through your camera's lens opening. And realizing that there are many shutter speed/aperture combinations to accomplish this.

And those films that reach correct exposure more quickly than others at a given lens opening and shutter speed simply have a higher ASA. That is, they respond faster to a given amount of light just as someone's skin might.

Well, have I exposed you to enough on exposure today? I certainly don't want to overexpose your photography

mind. So I'll call it quits for now and, in a long time exposure of two weeks, will be back to discuss more about exposure and tell how you can use it to improve your photographs.

Residents can call toll-free to the Tel-Med program center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor and listen to tape recordings in 29 health categories. Tapes cover an extensive range of topics — cancer, infections, heart disease, drug use, sexuality and family planning.

Nine new tapes on plastic surgery have been added to the tape collection in recent months. They include breast reconstruction, cosmetic body surgery, surgery for rheumatoid arthritis of the hands, microsurgery, rhinoplasty, hair transplantation, chemical skin peeling and plastic surgery for scars.

Brochures listing all 261 tapes by title and reference numbers are available at Dunning Hough Library on Main Street, Plymouth. Or they may be obtained by calling Tel-Med. The brochures are available at no cost to businesses, organizations and residents.

Tel-Med telephone lines are open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Numbers are 668-1551 (Ann Arbor line) and 434-434-6120 (Ypsilanti line).

GARDEN CLUBBERS will be heading for Southfield next Wednesday for this year's international tea given by the Michigan Division of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

The state group has selected St. John's Armenian Church as the locale for its 29th international tea. Guests will have an opportunity to see the chapel and interior of the church with its unusual gold dome. Thirty display tables of flower arrangements will be created by WNF&G members for the occasion. The tables will represent ethnic, holiday and special day themes.

The teas were instigated to promote interest in an exchange program between college students of the United States and other countries through 4H Club.

BEFORE I FORGET — whoever came up with the suggestion that the intersection of Harvey and Church streets become a four-way stop during the Fall Festival deserves a pat on the back, stars in his or her crown, or a festive blue ribbon.

It was one of those simple solutions that makes you wonder why no one ever thought of it before.

AND HERE IS a correction, along with an apology to the members of the Plymouth Grange. They sold 350 pies during the festival, not 150 as appeared in this column.

THE OLD WORLD Market will open on the last day of September in the International Institute on Kirby Street, Detroit, across the street from the Art Institute.

The first fair was conceived 56 years ago as a means for new immigrants to earn a little money by selling their old world crafts, gained popularity over the years.

Both old and new immigrant crafts will be featured in this year's four-day market. It's interesting to note that the artistry of Loatian immigrants new to the Detroit area are referred to as "a stunning highlight of the market."

There also will be the colorful national embroidery offered by the Philippine community and the traditional cross stitching of the Ukrainian community.

There will be Finnish woodcarving, Estonian woodburning, Ukrainian egg painting (pysanky), English and Swedish wheat-weaving and imports from Ireland, Lithuania, Bulgaria, Africa, India, Norway, China, Germany, Korea and Austria.

Marie and Herb Wolf of Plymouth joined the festivities at last year's Oktoberfest. Marie was born in Austria and Herb in Stuttgart, Germany.

Ernest Bevins, teacher in the Plymouth-Canton schools, was chosen to dance with the Carpathian dance group at the 1981 Oktoberfest.

At Cultural Center

A traditional Oktoberfest celebration

The pretzels are on their way from Munich; the beer was brewed in Dortmund. The order for the German wine was placed months ago. As September winds down, the German-American Club of Plymouth prepares its annual Oktoberfest celebration.

Festivities begin at 8 p.m. Oct. 2 in the Plymouth Cultural Center. The Melodias will be back to provide music for dancing and singing. Club members will prepare German potato salad and bake German chocolate cakes. There will be buns, knackwurst and plenty of sauerkraut.

Admission to the party is $3.50. Reservations are available by calling Maria Mulzer, 453-5839, or Roger Feller, 420-2259.

OKTOBERFEST dates back to the early 1800s when more than 100 small principalities were united into the one kingdom of Bavaria.

The Crown Prince, later King

Ludwig I of Bavaria, set Oct. 18, 1810, as the date for his wedding to Princess Theresa of Saxonia-Hildburghausen. A crown prince hadn't been married in Munich since 1720 so the magistrate of the city decided the event called for a celebration. He decreed there would be horse races on the day of the wedding.

The prince also had some thoughts on capitalizing on the occasion. He would use it to further national unity in the newly formed kingdom of old and new citizens of Bavaria. He proclaimed a national holiday and invited delegations from all departments of government to Munich.

On the eve of the marriage, he announced that the site of the celebration henceforth would be known as "Theresienwiese" (Theresa's Meadow) in memory of their wedding day.

That was the beginning, and the Bavarians have made it an annual affair. By 1829, the magistrate took over its management and, in the course of time, costume parades replaced the horse races.

The date was moved ahead to the last week of September to assure better weather for the festival. But the name Oktoberfest was retained.

THE PARADE is the first Sunday of the fest.

Costumes vary, depicting national dress of all the original provinces of Bavaria. The parade stretches for five kilometers. Millions of visitors from all over the world converge on Munich for Oktoberfest.

The prime attraction, for many, is the beer.

Munich breweries provide beer tents — temporary buildings that are erected a month before the event and later dismantled and stored.

Food and drink are served in the tents, and there is continuous entertainment.

The bigger the brewery, the bigger the tent. Some seat 10,000; some only 1,000, but as many move around on foot. Only Munich breweries participate, but it takes a full day to visit all the beer tents.

Members of the German-American Club will wear dirndls, lederhosen and other Bavarian costumes to the Oktoberfest 8

Flowers, Kronkel win 'challenge'

Canton chatter

Kathy Freece

Pat Brown, owner of International Appraisal and Investments in Plymouth, hosted the second annual Challenge of the Sexes for Plymouth-Canton and Northville residents.

The afternoon started with the gathering of the brave participants. They were given a briefing on the events and the rules for the games. All 80, athletes were given a choice to participate in the games for which they were most qualified, but they were encouraged to sign up for every event.

The simple start to the fun day was the lawn Jart throwing contest. The crowd gathered around the two sets of players, the first one to make a ringer eliminated the other three players. The matches were interesting and the semi-finalists were Joyce Brownlee and Al Flowers of Canton. Al, the jock he professes to be, won the ribbon for this event.

On to the basketball courts, one and all. Every player received three free throws, where the women received a cheer from the crowd. The semi-finalists were our man Al Flowers and Margaret Schaefer. You have to understand Al played four years of college basketball and presently coaches two boys teams in the PCJBA. The playoff went into triple overtime and Margaret walked away with the first-place ribbon. Al was crushed, to say the least.

THE TENNIS tournaments started early in the day with men and women playing their own sets of doubles. As they finished their matches on the court, they rejoined the action of the other games continually proceeding on a nearby field.

It was not an easy task because of the over-powering urge to take a dip in the adjacent pool and then collapse.

The finalists approached the courts in the late afternoon but there was no final winner for the day. Everyone just raised their arms in defeat due to sheer exhaustion.

vided the entertainment for the afternoon.

Male and female were matched against one another and they were timed independently. The contestants started off swinging from an eight-foot chain, maneuvering through a series of steel bars, crawling under a limbo stick, jumping on a saddle of their choice and hopping on a covered wagon — in the back and out the front. They fought their way through a collapsed, cardboard box, up and down a large slide into a puddle of dirt, then fumbled into the strategically placed tires to the finish line.

Nancy Mercerter, Dee Bashor, Jerry Corwin and Dan Behrend all crossed the finish line in seven seconds or less to walk with the prized ribbons in the spectacular event.

THE 50-YARD dash was next and the speedy winners were Mary Jane Konkol and Dan Behrendt. The broad jump also was won by Mary Jane with her closest competitor being Greg Thorp. This event was one of the most strenuous competitions of the day.

Jerry Corwin won the limbo contest hands down for a simple reason. By the time this event was called, he was the only participant brave enough to volunteer.

The tricalathlon consisted of a punt, pass and kick, the broad jump and the obstacle course. The rule stated all had to enter all of these events and times were kept specifically for these mighty brave folks. Jerry Corwin and Nancy Mercerter proved to be the best of the best when the tallies were totaled.

When it came to the egg toss, every other person came up a loser. The down to the final stroke, Al won this contest with no trouble at all.

The volleyball game finished off the day's activities with Al Flowers and Mary Jane Konkol as captains of the eager teams.

The trophies for the most-outstanding man athlete went to Al Flowers and the trophy for the most outstanding woman athlete to Mary Jane Konkol.

Pat Brown did a super job organizing the day of challenges and all who participated thank her for the time and effort to show them a great time.

OFFICER Robert VanLith of the crime-prevention division in the Canton Police Department feels the homeowners did not respond as well as he had hoped in the August Porch Light Program. He is working with the homeowner presidents of many subdivisions to improve the response until it becomes 100 percent in Canton.

Heidt-Matthews

Ann Matthews and John A. Heidt were married by The Rev. Ronald Thurner in Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church in Northville Aug. 27. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Matthews of Plymouth. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Heidt of Farmington Hills.

The bride's organza gown was trimmed with Venice and Cluny lace, fashioned with an empire waistline.

She was attended by Diane Robinson, Lori Hutchinson, Madeline Maher and Karen Stemaerger, all clad in floor-length gowns of lavender chiffon.

Keith Schooley served as best man, with ushers John Donohue, Robin Sherban and Richard Ryder.

The bride holds an associate degree from Central Michigan University. She is a student at Madonna College, studying legal administration while employed as a legal secretary for the law firm of Criag and Heidt in Westland.

The bridegroom will graduate from University of Michigan in December.

The couple received guests in Glen Oaks Country Club before leaving on a wedding trip to Cape Cod, Mass. They will make their home in Farmington Hills.

Modson-Burns

Lorri Ann Burns and Glen Allan Modson exchanged marriage vows Aug. 21 in Ward Presbyterian Church, Livonia. The Revs. Bartlett Hess and Kenneth MacKinnon officiated. Russell and Sally Burns of Crabtree Lane, Plymouth, are the parents of the bride. Rudolph and Louise Modson of Old Salem, Plymouth are the bridegroom's parents.

The bride's pointe d'esprit lace gown had a chapel train and a high lace collar with matching lace at the cuffs and hemline. She carried a bouquet of silk stephanotis and white rosebuds and wore a wreath of the same flowers in her hair. Jan Avis, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Julie Lindman and Robin Clinesmith were bridesmaids. They wore dusty pink dotted Swiss gowns with scoop necklines, and short pleated sleeves. The dresses were sashed at the waistline. They carried pink roses and stephanotis.

Paul Modson, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Edwin Meixner and William Meena were groomsmen. Andrew Avis was ringbearer, and ushers were Russell Burns, Douglas Burns and Scott Burns.

After a wedding reception in Knox Hall at the church, the couple honeymooned at Siesta Key, Fla. They are living in Redford Township.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. She is controller and office manager for Kalwas & Moon, an accounting firm in Birmingham. Her husband graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1976 and from Northern Michigan University in 1982. He is employed by WXON-TV in Southfield in sales and production.

'Toughlove' parent group organizing

By Scott Adler
staff writer

Area parents who want to learn more about the "Toughlove" method of rearing children are invited to an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at St. Edith Catholic Church, 15089 Newburgh, Livonia.

Organizing the session is Barb Donaldson, a Livonia mother of two who has been learning about Toughlove with group meetings in Farmington.

Joining her in describing the organization and its method of operation will be Marie Schneider, who teaches at Farmington's Harrison High School and has three youngsters.

Donaldson said many parents in Livonia go regularly to the Farmington group meetings and "I felt there was a need in Livonia for one (Toughlove group)."

The St. Edith Family Life committee

'It's nice to think that all you have to do is give your kids a lot of tender loving care and they will turn out all right. But there is so much outside influence, especially from the child's peer group, that it doesn't always work out that way.'

—Barb Donaldson,
Toughlove member will sponsor the meeting. Those interested in learning more about it may call committee member Barb Petroff, 464-7182.

TOUGHLOVE HELPS Donaldson personally by letting her know that she is not the only parent who has to discipline her children.

"Many times you isolate yourself as a parent by heaping all this guilt on yourself," she said. "Toughlove is showing me how to build relationships with my children."

Donaldson began attending the Toughlove sessions in Farmington after reading a magazine article about the experiences of Phyllis and David York, the founders of Toughlove. Schneider started with the organization the same way.

"I read that Toughlove is a community support group getting parents together every week to share their experiences and their ideas on how to solve problems with their kids," this teacher said. "I thought it was a terrific concept, and as an educator I felt I had things to share."

"IT'S NICE to think that all you have to do is give your kids a lot of tender loving care and they will turn out all right," Donaldson said. "But there is so much outside influence, especially from the child's peer group, that it doesn't always work that way."

Toughlove began mostly as support groups for parents who were having problems with their children. Now there are more parents who, like Schneider, go to the meetings to learn more parenting skills.

"I don't have trouble with my kids the way some others at the meetings do," said Schneider. But she does feel there is a great need on the part of many parents for the kind of advice and support Toughlove offers.

Some of the basic problems Toughlove parents face are drinking and involvement with drugs, she added.

BOTH SCHNEIDER and Donaldson like the idea that Toughlove shows parents how to make offspring completely responsible for their own actions.

"It's a way of teaching kids that for each choice there is a consequence," Donaldson said. "Rather than reward and punishment, you let the kids handle the crisis. It's a way of teaching them responsibility."

With Toughlove, the parent doesn't tell the child what to do, Schneider said. Instead, the two generations work together.

"Toughlove is a two-way thing with parents and their kids," she noted. "It helps the parent take a stand against the kids. It helps them be tough enough to say no. All parents have to face it, that sometime along the way they will have to work out guidelines for their children."

Mary Kehoe, president of the Plymouth Symphony League, had mixed reports from dealers at the league's antique mart during the Plymouth Fall Festival. Some did a booming business and some said it was slow. Attendance was about the same as the previous year.

The Rev. Joe Dailey takes his guitar into the sanctuary of St. Edith Catholic Church and music into his ministry.

Music, worship blend for priest with guitar

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

When the Rev. Joseph Dailey arrived at St. Edith Catholic Church to begin his new appointment in June, he found they were playing his song.

The Livonia church, explained the young priest and musician, was using as part of its liturgy the setting he had made for "Our Father."

"I felt right at home," he noted.

Dailey has been ministering by music as well as in more traditional ways since he was a seminarian.

"It's part of who I am," he said. "It's one of my gifts — one of the ways I can preach the gospel."

He plays the guitar and sings and writes music in a wide variety of modes. He also has made two record albums with several "Friends." That's the name, he explained, now used by the group that came out with "Happy are the Children of the Lord" in 1975 and "Speak to Your People, Lord" the following year.

Currently he is looking for a new publisher, for both recordings and written music.

"I want to publish," said Dailey, "because then others can use my music in services."

DAILEY, WHO grew up in Toledo and Detroit, served as a deacon at St. Agatha Catholic Church in Redford after graduating from seminary.

He was ordained in September 1977.

Music was part of his ministry at St. Agatha, but used less during his first appointment to St. Genevieve Catholic Church of Livonia. He did, however, participate in several concerts at Bentley High School during that relatively short appointment.

In four years at St. Thomas Aquinas in Detroit he found many ways to use music in worship.

He wrote songs for services, projecting slides with the words so the congregation could sing them.

"Sometimes I would sing as part of the homily," he added. "Sometimes I'd play my guitar as part of worship." In his first year at St. Agatha, he developed special songs for the Advent season theme, discovering light in the darkness.

"A couple of times I used secular songs, with words like 'The sun will come up tomorrow,' and 'You light up my life.' It was a way of tying the songs of the culture into the religious experience."

At St. Thomas also he wrote a series of acclamations for children's masses — "a capella so I could lead as celebrant" — and provided a special song for the school's eighth grade graduating class each spring. "It would become their theme song each year," Dailey said. "The songs were religious in ideas, but not overly so."

THIS PRIEST finds use for his music in nearly all his parish functions.

"I sing at funerals," he said. "It really helps to lift the spirits and it brings a sense of peace."

"I sing at baptisms. It quiets the babies and underlines the idea that baptism is a time of celebration."

He noted he sometimes plays his guitar at baptisms and may function as a one-man band. "That's fun especially for the less formal family baptisms," he said.

And sometimes when he is not the celebrant at St. Edith he plays and 'I sing at funerals. It really helps to lift up the spirits and bring a sense of peace. I sing at baptisms. It quiets the babies.'

—Fr. Joseph Dailey

sings as part of the service.

"The first time I played here at St. Edith, they clapped," he said. "I said later I'd go on singing later if they held off on the clapping."

"I told them I knew they liked it, but sometimes music in a worship service is part of prayer, and then clapping breaks the mood."

Dailey also mentioned then that it is perfectly fine to applaud when he participates in a concert.

Concerts are occasionally arranged with various groups, he said. Sometimes he gets together with members of the original group of "Friends," now scattered in varied service jobs.

"Or sometimes one or two of the group will just take on some new friends," said Dailey.

MUSIC AND worship is nothing new in the Catholic church, he pointed out, but for a long time "the people got left out."

Dailey noted that in the fourth century there was a major fight to get rid of heretics in the church.

"But it was the heretics who had the good songs," he said. "So Augustine began to ban singing during masses. The Gregorian chants remained, but there was little musical participation by the people."

He thinks music is now back to stay in Catholic worship.

"Music is the universal language," he said. "When it is prayer, it is hard to resist. I try to introduce it at an appropriate level."

Legitimate business may still be immoral

Quite some time ago I received a call from a reader requesting that I address the issue of morality in business.

On the face of it the issue seems rather clear cut. Employers should treat their employees fairly. Employees should put in an honest day's work for the pay they receive. Sellers should provide the genuine article for a fair price and buyers should be expected to pay what they owe.

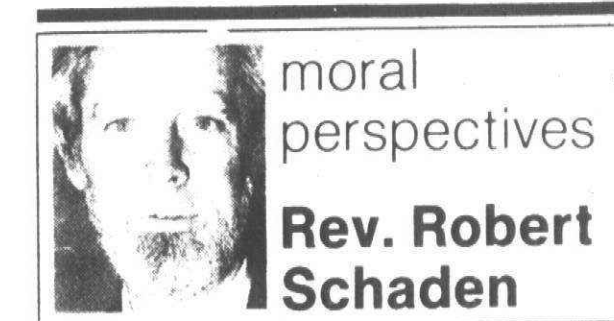

However, this simplistic list of shoulds hardly covers the issue.

In a capitalistic society, practically every moral issue of a social nature is a challenge to the business community. The challenge is clarified when we ask what are the rights and responsibilities of legitimate business in a free society. Or perhaps we should ask what makes a business legitimate in the first place.

ORDINARILY legitimate business is differentiated from the rackets in that the latter are presumed to be detrimental to society, a presumption well earned many times over. At the same time legitimate business and racketeering do have an essential element in common. Both exist for profit.

To pretend that the profit motive is diminished by the social acceptability of the business in question is to show a certain naivete.

Some would speak of the private-enterprise system as if it were a sort of sacred cow to be moral perspectives

left alone. But to leave unchallenged the unethical practices of some business, despite their size or respectability, is to leave ourselves open to become servant and even victims of those who would allow personal or corporate profit to be more important than any social responsibility.

THE FAR-REACHING dimension of morality and business is evident in the madness of the arms race. This fiasco is sold to the American people as a matter of defense.

However, it cannot be denied that the large companies that hold the contracts for the building and sale of such arms have much more powerful lobbies in government than do those groups who believe that more fire power is not in the best interest of humans and other living things.

Legislators are more dependent on big business (for campaign funds) than they are on social interest groups. Money wins.

Some government or private, testing agencies may find that certain products are dangerous to health of animals and humans, but their findings are often squelched by the industries that produce the product.

Only recently another pesticide substance is being challenged as to its safety. Now it has come to light that the substance in question has been suspect for 11 years, but again profit has been king.

A REAL MONEY MAKER at present is found in the bonanza of video games in which violence is rewarded. Despite the fact that psychological testing has shown that these and other toys of violence beget violent people, the producers of such toys pooh-pooh the test results and the sales continue.

When profit is at stake, the mental or physical health of a nation is often up against a very large giant.

Perhaps we need to redefine legitimate business to include only those businesses with a sense of social responsibility which is not pushed aside when it threatens the sales charts.

People as individuals and people together in corporations will forever find ways of being immoral or unethical under protection of the law.

Perhaps that is why there is such a difference between that which may be legal and that which is truly legitimate. Cleverness can help to keep people legal, but only dignity and a sense of the human can keep us legitimate.

The Frisians

Dutch ethnic group played role in U.S. independence

By Dick Van Halsema Jr.
National Geographic Society

When Rome's imperial army invaded northern Europe in the first century, it met an unexpected obstacle: a tribe of ash-blond, gray-blue-eyed seamen and farmers known as Frisians.

Although the tribe traded briefly with the Romans, it rebelled in 28 A.D. when Rome demanded Frisian men and materials for battles in other parts of Europe. Thirteen-hundred Romans died in the conflict.

Today in the Netherlands, Frisians still inhabit a province known as Friesland. Their pride and nationalistic determination have preserved their heritage through the centuries.

That Frisians exist is news to most Americans, yet they had a role in the United States' independence. Exactly 200 years ago, Friesland became the first of the Netherlands United Provinces to encourage freedom for the colonies, and it was among the earliest friends of the new nation.

FRISIANS HAD settled their coastal marshland home in present-day Netherlands by the first century, excelling as whalers and marsh-taming dairymen. To guard against floods and invasion, they perched their homes on hand-built mounds of dirt called terps.

At one point, Frisians dominated the coastland from what is now western Netherlands almost to southern Denmark — areas the Frisians still call East, West and North Friesland. Bold confrontations with the Franks, Vikings, Spanish, and Hollanders ultimately forced them to retreat, but Frisian culture still thrives in pockets of north-west Germany and the Netherlands southwest of Friesland.

To this day, the Frisians retain the heart of their original homeland. The 1,350-square-mile territory includes a northern corner of the mainland as well as four islands, altogether 9 percent of the Netherlands. But the province's 592,000 residents are only 4 percent of the Dutch population.

Frisians have a traditional saying: "De Fries stiet nea oan's kant fan it meartal." It means: "The Frisians are never on the side of the majority."

And their penchant for independence drew them to sympathize with 13th-century British colonies in North America. Their recognition of American independence in 1782 led on April 19 of that year to the formal acceptance by the Dutch federated states of an American diplomatic envoy, John Adams, as well as loans of 30 million guilders to help America get on its feet.

John Adams shares billing in Frisian history with Greete Pier, the selfless folk-hero who fought for his people's independence in the 16th century. Another Frisian, rather infamous, is Mata Hari, the entertainer-spy. She was born under the name Margaretha Geertruida Zelle in the provincial capital, Leeuwarden (Ljouwert in Frisian).

FRISIAN FIGURES in American history include: Peter Stuyvesant, governor of New Amsterdam, which later became New York; John Dykstra, once president of Ford Motor Co.; and Jack Lousma, Skylab and space shuttle astronaut. Groups of Frisian immigrants settle and still thrive in California, Washington, South Dakota, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and New Jersey.

Many of the 11 main cities of Friesland are situated on original first-century terps. They punctuate an otherwise flat, luxuriously green state. The landscape is peppered with black and white Frisian dairy cattle, initially bred by Frisians and now common throughout the world.

In every town, a visitor will find a tennis-court-like playing field for keatsen, or fives. The Roman also knew the game, which is played by hand with a two-inch leather-bound ball. Teams of three compete throughout the year for a berth in the tournament at Franeker, the Super Bowl of keatsen. Ten-thousand people come to see the tournament, where a member of the winning team is crowned king of the keatsers.

Six and eight-man teams pilot skutsjes, 40-ton sailing barges, in an annual series of races called Skutsjesilen. The flat-bottomed yachts, once used for hauling freight on inland waterways, often collide with each other while vying for position and can run dangerously close to the spectator-packed shore.

TEMPERS AND fistfights can flare after a match, as typically proud sailors discuss fouls committed during the race. As the sailors drink more and more berenburg, the indigenous herb-liquor of Friesland, the exchanges become less logical.

The race judges announce the winning skutsje on the basis of complaint-adjusted point totals, and the winning skipper, commonly an old-timer whose father skippered the same ship, becomes a provincial hero.

The inland canals are the homes of fierljeppen and the Alvesteddetoet. Fierljeppen is a combination of pole vaulting and long jumping in which canal-hopping contestants try to gain the most distance in the air before landing on the opposite bank.

The Alvesteddetoet, or Eleven Cities Tour, is a 120-mile ice skating marathon. Once a year, weather permitting, thousands of skaters line up in Leeuwarden for the race through Dokkum, Franeker, Harlingen, Bolsward, Workum, Hindeloopen, Staveren, Sloten, IJlst and Sneek.

SOME LINE their coats with newspaper and fill their stomachs with berenburg, but little protect the contestants from the biting cold. Expert sportsmen can complete the course in seven to 12 hours.

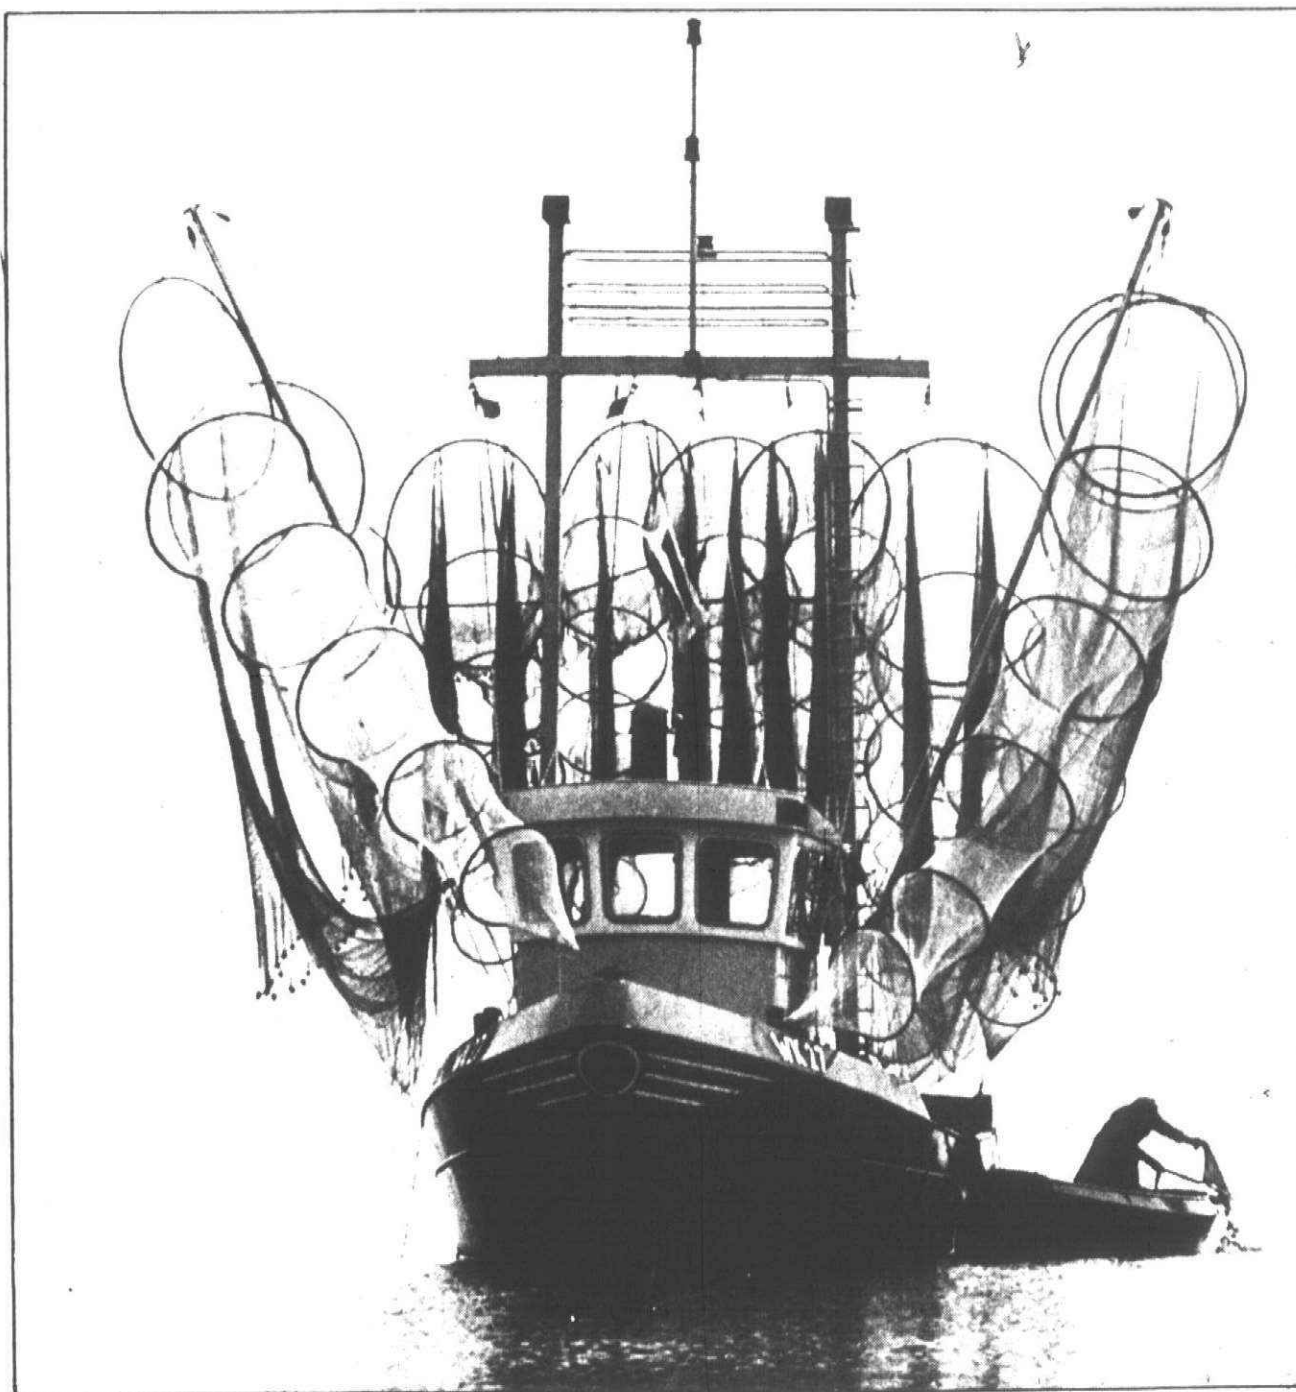

Friesland's four islands — Vlieland, Terschelling, Ameland, and Schiermonnikoog — have become havens for 20th century vacationers. Traditional, privacy-conscious Frisians regret the influx. But their annual incomes, once buoyed by whaling and seafaring, would be skimpy without the tourists' business.

During the off-season, the island residents reclaim their towns and strands. The streets are quiet; farmers and fishermen go on with their work as the North Sea's countenance grows stern.

THE TOURIST taverns and the beach houses are boarded against winter storms and one of the warmest places in the evening is the pub, where locals might spend hours talking over their common troubles. Although the gossips' woes are of modern vintage, the scene is steeped in Frisian tradition.

Friesland joined the Dutch union for defense reasons in 1579. By the late 1800s less than 5 percent of the province spoke Dutch, yet the Dutch government banned the teaching of Frisian. Concerned with the protection of their heritage, Frisians started a movement against the Dutch nationalistic laws. In 1937 the Dutch relented and approved optional teaching of the language in the elementary schools.

Today, despite the convenience of the Dutch welfare state, they still keep their age-old motto: "Frysk en frij." It means: "To be Frisian is to be free."

Carrying on the Frisians' centuries-old dependence on the sea, an eel-fishing boat (above) sits anchored in the Ijsselmeer, a lake connected to the North Sea. Alongside, the skipper stands in a smaller boat cleaning his nets. A Frisian smokes a traditional pipe (right) at a festival in the town of Joure in southern Friesland.

Friesland joined the Dutch union in 1579 for defense reasons. Today it makes up 9 percent of the Netherlands' total land area.

Salem free throws secure win; Canton slips

Plymouth Salem connected on five of six free throws down the stretch to hold off a feisty Livonia Stevenson cage squad, 41-36, Tuesday at Salem.

Salem, now 5-0, jumped out to a nine-point advantage (13-4) in the first quarter before Stevenson rallied with two layups to cut the Rocks' lead to 13-8 at the start of the second period.

The five-point Spartan deficit melted to two, 31-29, after three quarters, and Stevenson scored the first basket of the final period to knot the score at 31-31.

But the Spartans never surged into the lead, as Salem kept enough of its composure to stay on top. Three Rocks — Pam McBride, Jacque Merrifield and Dawn Johnson — stepped to the free-throw line in the last 1:05 of the game with Stevenson just a basket behind.

McBride and Johnson each hit both ends in a one-and-one situation, and Merrifield hit one of two to keep Salem in command.

"WE WERE WITHIN two points with 14 seconds left, and we had to foul," said Stevenson coach Jim George. "If they don't make them, we have a shot. But they did."

Salem coach Bob Blohm was pleased with his team's performance in the clutch, but not with its overall play.

"The last four minutes and the first five minutes of the game we played well," Blohm said. "In between, we were inconsistent, but we played hard. It was a battle. They (Stevenson) had some opportunities to win. As the season goes on, they'll get better."

"It was good for our kids to feel the pressure."

Merrifield topped the winners with girls basketball

11 points. Johnson added 10. Debbie Jurczynski was the game's high scorer, popping in 15 points and collecting 11 rebounds for Stevenson. Bev Irwin contributed eight points to the Spartan attack.

"We played well all the way," George said of his team's effort. "I'm really pleased with the effort. I've got to be. We played really hard the whole game."

The loss drops Stevenson to 3-2 for the season.

REDFORD UNION 58 CANTON 57

Plymouth Canton let a nine-point, first-quarter lead go to waste Tuesday as Redford Union, winless coming into the contest, stormed back to nip the Chiefs at Canton.

"My team did not scrap," said a disappointed Phyllis Cunningham, the Chiefs coach. "We had a good first quarter and then laid off. We started playing a haphazard offense."

"We were playing run-and-gun. We did not set up the offense the way I wanted."

RU's bench played a key role in the team's first victory of the season. Brenda Peer came into the game in the second quarter and poured in nine points to spark a 19-12 Panther scoring advantage. Peer finished with 11 in the game.

RU's second-quarter rally cut Canton's lead from nine points after one quarter (18-9) to two at the half (30-28). The Panthers tied it after three periods at 47-all and stayed on top in the final quarter.

JULIE MARCHAND was a key performer for RU throughout the contest. A 5-9 freshman just summoned from the junior varsity, Marchand came off the bench to score 11 points and grab nine rebounds. She showed her ability as a clutch player by canning two free throws with 24 seconds left that gave the Panthers a 58-55 lead.

Canton guard Sue Gerke scored 17 points to lead all scorers. Six came in the first-quarter surge. Lou Ann Hamblin added 13 points for the Chiefs, and Missy Aiken put in nine, five in the first quarter. Aiken led Canton's rebounding with seven.

Aiken fouled out with three minutes to go, which hurt the Chiefs' chances to tame the Panthers.

Jeannette Marchand topped RU with 13 points. She also grabbed 10 boards. Amy Livsey contributed 10 points.

The loss dropped Canton to 2-3 overall. RU is now 1-4, but its losses came against three state-ranked teams: Salem and Livonia Bentley in Class A and Redford St. Agatha in Class C.

Salem goalie Todd Chatman dives to make a save against Livonia Stevenson Tuesday. Chatman was tested by 30 Stevenson shots during the contest, making 27 saves. All was for naught, however, as the Rocks fell, 3-0.

Stevenson kickers stop the Rocks, 3-0

In a battle of unbeaten soccer teams Tuesday, Livonia Stevenson, a state tournament finalist last year, dominated Plymouth Salem in recording a 3-0 victory in a rain-filled contest at Salem.

Senior midfielder Louie Broccardo gave the Spartans the only goal they needed on a blast from 20 yards out with 15:03 expired in the first half. Eric Pence assisted.

Salem, trailing 1-0 early in the second half, saw a golden opportunity to tie the game slip away when Randy Johnson slammed the ball off the right side of the goal post.

Gary Mexicotte supplied the Spartans with a pair of insurance goals. The first came at the 29:21 mark of the second half, as Mexicotte headed the ball toward Salem goalie Todd Chatman. Chatman made the initial save, but lost control of the wet ball and it squirted into the net. Bill Ravenna earned the assist for Stevenson.

Five minutes later, Mexicotte beat Chatman again, this time on a rebound of Dave Wiegel's shot. The tally was Mexicotte's 14th goal in five games this season.

Spartan goalie Ken Burt got the shut-out, stopping seven shots. The Rocks' Chatman was bombarded by 30 shots.

The win improved Stevenson's record to 5-0 overall and 4-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA). Salem fell to 2-1 in the WLAA's Lakes Division and 2-1 overall.

PLY. CHRISTIAN 4 GRACE BIBLE 0

Brian Spicer punched home three goals and goalie Steve Hoover thwarted an Ann Arbor Grace Bible scoring opportunity on a penalty shot to boost the Eagles to their first win of the season Tuesday at Grace Bible.

Kent Butler netted Christian's first goal with 16 minutes gone in the first half, giving the Eagles all the scoring they would need. Spicer insured the win with one goal before halftime, on an assist by Chris Dimiri, and two in the second half, one unassisted and the other on an assist by Rob Cannon.

Christian had a 4-0 lead with 24 minutes gone in the second half when Hoover stopped a Grace Bible shot on a penalty kick. Grace Bible had six shots on goal to seven for Christian. Lance Nagy led the Eagle defense.

Tennis isn't just a singles sport

I'll never get tired of tennis. Two weeks of U.S. Open action is not enough for me.

There were some classic singles duels — McEnroe-Lendl, Connors-Lendl, Vilas-Connors, Nastase-Connors. The list goes on and on.

But some of these expected "classics" can be duds. That's when the television cameras should focus in on doubles.

This summer, I went to two pro tournaments — the U.S. Open Clay Court Championships in Indianapolis and the ATP Championships at Kings Island in Ohio.

I've learned to appreciate the sport even more by watching doubles, a totally different game which doesn't get a lot of recognition. Doubles is often played late at night, when most of the fans are headed home after watching a round of singles.

Teamwork and communication on the court is essential in doubles. In many respects, the game is tougher. It's difficult returning 120 mph serves knowing that two guys on the other side of the net are waiting to crush a weak volley. Baseline players have the most trouble. Only the players that volley survive.

WATCHING McENROE in doubles is a treat. Watching him play singles is a chore. You see another side of the hostile New Yorker in doubles. You learn to appreciate his quick reflexes and court savvy, often overshadowed by his temperamental outbursts in singles.

The knock against doubles is that it doesn't require as much stamina. You're confined to one area, and the games are decided quickly.

But who wants to see a six-hour match? Even though the McEnroe-Mats Wilander Davis Cup final was historic, it was grueling and tedious to watch.

Doubles is an alternative, and it keeps some of the old pros like Stan Smith, Bob Lutz and Brian Gottfried still in the game.

One of the most entertaining matches I saw during the U.S. Open last year was the McEnroe-Peter Flemming tangle against John Newcombe and Fred Stolle, the one-time Australian greats.

It was fantastic pairing — youth vs. experience. And the crowd loved it.

At the ATP, I saw Raul Ramirez save five match points for his partner Gottfried against 6-foot-7 Vic Amaya and 6-4 Hank Pfister.

WHILE JOSE-LUIS Clerc was matching long baseline rallies with Jose Higuera in the stadium court at Indy, I ventured to an outside court and witnessed a pair of UCLA lads, one at 5-foot-7, cutting down a duo from South America in a dramatic, emotional clash. The entertainment outside the main event was better.

Although the prize money is considerably less, pros can make a living at doubles. Sherwood Stewart, Paul McNamee, Kevin Curren, Anne Smith and Kathy Jordan have cashed in big on doubles.

Steve Denton, who upset McEnroe in a semifinal singles match at the ATP, starred with Curren at the University of Texas. The two have stayed together as a doubles team right through into the pro ranks.

Champs earn laurels in YMCA tennis open

Dan Horvath survived a challenge from Chuck Volland in the semifinals before sweeping to a straight-set victory over Kevin Johnston in the men's open division finals of the Plymouth YMCA Open tennis tournament last weekend.

Horvath and Volland, both from Livonia, battled through the first two sets of their semifinal, each winning one by a 7-5 margin. Horvath finally assumed control in the deciding set, eliminating Volland by a 6-2 score.

Johnston, from Plymouth, defeated Paul Secrist of West Bloomfield, 7-6 (7-4), 6-3 in the semis to advance against Horvath in the finals.

Horvath prevailed, beating Johnston 6-4, 6-2.

CHAMPIONS WERE crowned in five other divisions in the tournament, played at the newly resurfaced Canton High School courts.

Volland teamed with Peter Duda of Farmington to win the men's doubles, 6-1, 7-5, over Horvath and Secrist.

In the men's 35 and over division, Bob Hinshon of Livonia and Dustin Mann of Westland duelled through three sets with Hinshon emerging with a narrow 6-2, 6-7, 7-5 triumph.

Mya Johnson of South Lyon had little trouble besting Cathy Graham of Plymouth, 6-1, 6-0, in the finals of the girls' 18 and under singles division.

Johnson then teamed with sister Sara Johnson to roll to a 6-2, 6-0 win over Cathy Mein and Carol Meister in the women's doubles.

The women's 35 and over singles title was captured by Penny Wasiak of Plymouth, who withstood the challenge of Paule Anderson of Livonia, 6-2, 6-3.

Churchill sweeps S'craft titles; Salem boys take 7th

As early-season barometers go, Schoolcraft College's High School Cross Country Invitational is a fine indicator.

It serves its purpose by revealing which of the local teams is strong, which isn't, and who is the best among the area's runners.

So, according to the gauge provided by the Schoolcraft Invitational Saturday, watch out for Livonia Churchill and Redford Union.

The two schools finished one-two in both the boys' and girls' team standings. Churchill topped the boys' with 63 points, with RU totalling 85.

Wayne Memorial was a distant third (111), followed by Livonia Stevenson (146), Redford Bishop Borgess (147) and Northville (206). Sixteen teams competed in the boys' race.

THE GIRLS' meet was also captured by Churchill, with 54 points. RU's 64 points placed the Panthers second, with Livonia Ladywood third (73), Bishop cross country

Borgess fourth (127), Stevenson fifth (140) and Trenton sixth (153) among the 11 teams. (For complete results, turn to page 4c).

Stevenson junior Ken Dubois dominated the boys' race, finishing the three-mile course in 16:04, 29 seconds ahead of his nearest competitor, Jay Hunt of Westland John Glenn.

Churchill's Don Miller took third (16:42) as the Chargers placed four runners in the top 15 and five in the first 27. Brian Boston was eighth (16:55), Al Clemens 10th (17:02), Doug Plachta 15th (17:20) and Steve Weiss 27th (17:45).

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

Plymouth High's baseball team came through with a one-hit victory in beating Northville 6-1 on April 14, 1965. Dave Troutman and John Daniel shared the pitching for the Rocks. Troutman worked the first four frames and Daniel finished up, permitting the lone safety in the fifth when Northville notched its run. A walk to Curt Irish and a triple by Mark Sutton gave Plymouth its first run in the third inning. Then in the fifth, with the score tied 1-1, a single by Terry Cosgrove, walks to Gotro and Sutton and three errors helped Plymouth count five times. The game served as the only tune up for the Rocks before they began their Suburban Six League Title chase the following week.

Strategies can beat fast players

There are generally two kinds of speedy players and they're both tough to beat. If you can identify which kind of player he is, then you can devise a strategy to beat him.

The first kind of speedy player is one who is just physically fast on his feet. The player probably has run a great deal and has a lot of endurance built into his body.

The second type of speedy player is one that doesn't necessarily have the physical speed, but rather, has played enough racquetball to read your shot before it hits the wall. This player can be ready to return your shot before it reaches him because he knew where it would go.

There are, of course, players who can do both of the above. They are called pros. I won't dwell on how to beat them. Instead, I'll try to give you a few insights on how to either beat a physically speedy player or, at least, how to lose graciously!

The player who is physically fast will be the one who constantly chases down the balls and goes for every shot. He will have the stamina to rally for a long time and will try to wear you down before he amazes you with his skillful shots.

THE BEST strategy against this player is to keep the play as short as possible. Take whatever offensive shots you can as early as you can. Kill the ball, go for the point, but don't let him drain your energy with a long rally for one point.

racquetball

Maintain these offensive actions and never surrender control of the game. The key here is to score quickly after each serve so he has less time to burn your energy.

Besides trying to score quickly, there are other ways to handle a fast opponent. Realize that if you play his game he will last longer than you. You must play your game, not his. Play to conserve energy.

If you are trying to hit kill shots and you find he is returning them all with ease, then you are wasting the energy used to hit those kill shots. Try a different shot — a lob or a Z serve — to find one that your speedy opponent can't easily return.

Find several of these shots and rotate them to give him the worst selection of shots he could ask for.

You can also manipulate the rhythm of play by changing from fast shots to slow shots or vice versa. If your speedy opponent likes a fast-paced game, this may get him rattled enough to upset his rhythm of play. Time outs can also change the rhythm and give you a rest during an otherwise fast game.

USE THE TIME outs when your opponent is serving. When things are going well during your serves, keep on playing. Never change a good thing.

Training to beat a speedy player would be a difficult thing to do since he probably keeps in shape while you would be straining to catch up to his level. But, you can always try to develop your body and improve your physical condition.

Jogging can build endurance. Sprinting can add to your speed. Jumping rope can be helpful, but the best training is to get out on the court and practice chasing the racquetballs.

What may seem obvious to some needs to be restated to others. Keep to the center of the court to lessen the distance between you and any shot. Keep up on the balls of your feet with your knees bent, ready to spring in whichever direction the ball travels.

Keep your racket centered in front of your body so you can be ready for either a backhand or a forehand shot.

Most of what I've said can be summed up in three words: Know your opponent. Think about his capabilities before you begin to play. Is he fast? Does he have endurance? Will he attempt, in a cruel fashion, to run me into the ground? Does he have favorite shots that he can return easily? What kind of shots does he have trouble returning. Does he play at a certain pace and can I upset that pace?

The next time you face a speedy player, look upon it as a challenge to try some of these strategies and thwart his attempt to overpower the game with his speed and energy. Meanwhile, you can be training to increase your own speed and increase the level of fun and excitement in your game.

Mike Yellen finished the 1981-82 season as the fifth-ranked male professional racquetball player in the world.

3 Steeler teams win to set a new record

The three Plymouth-Canton Steelers junior football teams set a record Sunday by winning all three of its games against the Westland Meteors Sunday.

The varsity Steelers got a pair of touchdowns from fullback Kirk Rentz to overcome the Meteors, 18-6. Halfback Doug Batsel also scored for the Steelers.

The freshmen squad triumphed by a 12-6 score over freshmen Meteors, with Rudy Cervantes scoring both touchdowns, the first on an 8-yard sweep and the second on a 4-yard run.

Chris Johnston capped a 50-yard touchdown drive, scoring the only TD of the game, as the junior varsity Steelers won by a 7-0 margin. Tim Ott passed to Ed Bardelli for the extra point.

Sunday's three wins marked the first time in the Steelers' six-year history that all three teams won on the same day. The previous Steeler best was two wins and a tie.

The Steelers host the Westland Northstars at Central Middle School Sunday, Sept. 26 at 1 p.m.

Lally brothers headline boxing card

The Lally brothers, Brett and Bradd, of Westland are the main attractions of a seven-bout boxing card Oct. 1 at the Melvin G. Bailey Center in Westland.

Nineteen-year-old Brett Lally, 7-0 in the 135-pound weight class and ranked fifth in the state, will battle Kirk Blakely of Grand Rapids in the eight-round feature event.

Bradd Lally, 22 years old, will meet Bobby King of Cleveland, Ohio, in a six-round fight. Bradd is 4-0 as a light heavyweight and ranked 10th in his class in the state. In a fight with King earlier this year, Bradd came back after being knocked down in the second round to win on a split decision.

OTHER BOUTS on the card are:

• Lee Lanphere (4-0) of Waterford vs. Stan White of Grand Rapids (2-0), six rounds in the 160 weight class;

• Mark Fairall of Grand Haven vs. Lavant Williams of Detroit, four rounds in the 130 class;

• John Boggiano of Grand Rapids vs. Ken Smith of Detroit, six rounds in the 135 class;

• John Puente of Defiance, Ohio, vs. John Madson of Detroit, four rounds in the 135 class;

• Charles Hollifield of Defiance vs. John, Keys of Grand Rapids, four rounds in the 147 division.

A SIDE ATTRACTION included in the evening's entertainment is that there is a strong possibility the next state 135-pound champion will be fighting somewhere on the card. The title is now vacant, and Brett Lally and Boggiano are expected to battle for the crown in the near future.

The fights will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are priced at $12.50 for all seats and can be purchased at the Bailey Center, which is located on Ford between Newburgh and Wayne roads, behind Westland City Hall.

• JUNIOR BASKETBALL

Young basketball players of all ability should keep Oct. 2 and Oct. 9 in mind.

Those are the dates to register for the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association (PCJBA), open to both boys and girls from grades three to 12.

The PCJBA is divided into five leagues: C (instructional), B, A, AA, and AAA. Registration costs vary by league. C is $20, B, A, and AA is $23, and AAA is $28. The fee includes a $5 advance payment for raffle tickets, which may be sold at your option. Anyone registering after the above dates will be assessed a $5 late charge. Maximum registration fee is $70 per family.

League breakdown for boys is: C, third and fourth grades; B, fifth and sixth grades; A, seventh and eighth grades; AA, ninth and 10th grades; AAA, 11th and 12th grades. For girls:

C, third, fourth and fifth grades; and B and AA, sixth through 12th grades.

Games are scheduled for Saturdays, except certain boys AA and AAA contests which will be played weeknights. One or two practice sessions of 1½ hours each will be scheduled per week.

High school students and recent graduates are also encouraged to register to referee games. League and referee registration is from 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m. both Oct. 2 and 9 at the Canton High School Phase III gym.

And remember, everyone plays in the PCJBA, regardless of ability.

• FALL RUN

Three different races — covering one, three and five miles — are slated for Sunday, Sept. 26, in Plymouth.

The runs start at 9 a.m. and will wind through the scenic streets of Plymouth. Prizes will be awarded to top finishers in each of seven age divisions for both males and females.

Costs for the runs, sponsored by the Plymouth YMCA, are $4 for the 1 mile event and $6 for the 3 and 5 milers if registered the day before the race. The day of the race the entry fee is $6 for the 1 mile and $7 for the longer races. Check-in is at 8:45 a.m. at Kellogg Park. Entry forms are available at the YMCA office at 292 South Main. For further information, call 453-2904.

Registration forms are available at Madonna College or at local sporting goods stores. Cost is $6 before Sept. 26, $8 after, which includes a Milk Run t-shirt and a complimentary drink.

Bigger rackets can improve game

Everyone always asks me: "Should I go to an oversize or midsize racquet?"

The trend for the past few years has been heavily toward those two types of racquets. Research by Ben Tasich, owner of Racquets Unlimited, a retail store in Livonia, shows that 75 percent of his racquet sales now come from those models.

The reasons for switching to an oversize are fairly obvious. Just look at the racquet. The oversize has two times the hitting and twice the sweet spot of a conventional racquet. It's a myth that the sweet spot is the same size as that of a conventional model.

The biggest complaint about oversize racquets is that you lose control. Much of this is a myth, too. One thing you must realize is that the sweet spot is tennis

lower on a mid- or oversize racquet.

The serve is where players have the biggest problem adjusting from a conventional to an oversize racquet. On the serve, make sure that you either reach higher or lift the ball lower to adjust for a lower sweet spot on the racquet.

YOU MUST understand that the type of racquet you buy will not make you an instant superstar. Good equipment is a must, but don't expect the racquet alone to make you a great player.

Another fallacy with tennis racquets is that racquets can cause tennis elbow. It's been researched that 95 percent of all tennis-related elbow problems are caused by improper stroke technique — not by the type of racquet being used.

However, if there is a racquet that is easy on the elbow, I would choose one of the fiberglass or composite models. They tend to absorb more shock than most racquets.

Also, gut string is not recommended for oversize racquets because of a lack of durability.

Because there are so many shapes-and sizes to racquets these days, it's difficult to know what to buy.

THERE ARE MANY reputable companies producing various racquets on the market. Head and Prince, though, are the two leading sellers at Tasich's shop, he said.

When purchasing a racquet, I recommend finding a tennis dealer with a good stringer. The racquet is only as good as the strings that are on it.

Joe Taylor is a teaching tennis professional at the Farmington Racquet Club. He also teaches during the summer months at Orchard Valley Swim Club in West Bloomfield.

NSL triple-header set in Pontiac

By Brad Emons and C.J. Risak staff writers

Friday marks the start of the football campaign.

That's because the third game of the season is the traditional start of league play for prep teams. The first two games are normally non-league, mere warm-ups for what coaches point their teams toward: a league championship.

And what better a way to start the league season than by showcasing the opening games in the Pontiac Silverdome?

That's what the Northwest Suburban League (NSL) is doing this Saturday. Livonia Franklin battles Redford Thurston at 10 a.m., followed by Westland John Glenn versus Garden City at 1 p.m. and North Farmington and Redford Union at 4 p.m.

The NSL triple-header is a great way to get out and see all six conference teams in one afternoon. There's a strong possibility that one of the winning teams will advance to the state playoffs.

THE TWO WITH the best shot at a state playoff berth, after the season's second week, are Westland John Glenn and Livonia Franklin. Both have been impressive in successive victories.

None of the other four NSL member teams survived the season's first two weeks unscathed. In fact, only Garden City (1-1) managed a win; North, Thurston and RU are all 0-2.

Also on tap is the first week of grid play in the new Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA). The 10-team, two-division WLAA features each team playing its division rivals during the season, plus one crossover game against a squad in the other division.

Last week was disastrous for at least one prognosticator. Risak took it on the chin along with several local prep teams, missing six of 11 picks. Emons had a fair week, predicting seven correctly and missing four. Risak is now 14-8 (63.6 percent right), and Emons is 15-7 (68.1 percent).

Here's how we see this week's games.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL vs. BISHOP BORGESS, 7:30 p.m. Friday at Garden City High School — What a reversal. A week ago, CC was looking very good after an opening win over Traverse City. But the Shamrock offense coughed up the ball six times Saturday, failing in a 3-0 setback to Ypsilanti.

Borgess, meanwhile, was coming off an upset loss to Riverview. It was a game Borgess should have won but didn't. Against RU last Friday, Borgess kept its poise and came away with a one-point victory.

Steve Staron, Borgess' sophomore quarterback, who has thrown three touchdowns in the first two games, will be severely tested by a solid Shamrock defense. Chuck Gregory and Ron Gasparotto lead the Borgess runners.

CC has a whole fleet of runners, led by Jeff Gatt, but the Shamrocks will have to hold onto the ball better than they did against Ypsi. RU managed just 27 rushing yards against Borgess.

Defense could be the difference in this game. And defense is why Risak is picking CC by nine. Emons likes the Shamrocks by sevnd.

PLYMOUTH SALEM at LIVONIA STEVENSON, 7:30 p.m. Friday — Salem is living up to its pre-season choice as one of the favorites in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

The Rocks won with the pass two weeks ago against North Farmington, but last Friday fullbacks Scott Jurek and Jim Sinclair combined for more than 300 yards rushing.

A team blessed with a fullback capable of gaining more than 100 yards is fortunate. A team featuring two fullbacks who rush for more than 100 yards each in the same game is awesome.

Stevenson is expected to battle Salem for the Lakes Division title. The Spartans chances to topple a powerful Franklin squad last Saturday slipped away when quarterback Pete Rose was sidelined with blood poisoning. With Rose missing the Spartans lost, 18-6. He is expected to return to the lineup for Friday's game.

The Spartans' offense will need Rose, since they will be facing another tough test in Salem's defense. How well they perform will be the key factor in the game.

Risak likes Salem by eight. Emons picks Salem as well, by seven.

JACKSON CO. WESTERN at CLARENCEVILLE, 7:30 p.m. Friday — Already, the season looks good to Clarenceville coach Ralph Weddle.

The surprising Trojans lost their whole starting backfield from a year ago, but seem unaffected in posting two consecutive wins. Beating Carleton Airport was a semi-shock; but knocking off Dearborn Heights Robichaud, 7-6, in overtime Friday, was a first-class upset.

All-purpose back Walt O'Dowd rambled for 106 yards rushing and caught three passes for 59 more. Rob McCamant is the Trojan defensive leader. Against Robichaud, he had nine tackles.

Clarenceville should win its third straight, says Risak, by a touchdown. Emons calls it for Clarenceville in overtime by seven.

LIVONIA BENTLEY at WALLED LAKE CENTRAL, 7:30 p.m. Friday — Bentley's defense was strong in its first two games, and it will be called upon again against Central, now 2-0 after a 14-6 win over North Farmington.

Without a consistent offense, Bentley will fall by a touchdown, Risak says. Central by eight, Emons predicts.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL at PLYMOUTH CANTON, 7:30 p.m. Friday — This could be coach Ken Kaestner's longest year ever at Churchill. Or the Chargers could turn the corner toward respectability this week. On Friday, Ann Arbor Huron blasted Churchill, 32-0, the Chargers' second straight loss.

Canton looked good in defeat Friday, losing 18-6 to Salem. Coach Rich Barr is trying to build a winner. He needs this game to keep the progress going.

Risak goes with Canton by eight. The Chiefs will prevail by six, according to Emons.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN vs. REDFORD THURSTON, 10 a.m. Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome — Franklin's got it all: big, strong defenders and a balanced offense, led by quarterback Rich Popp and runners Tom Lucas, Randy Hurst and Rob Drabicki.

Thurston is as poor as Franklin is rich. Coach Mark LaPointe has tried to spread out the Eagle's offense and throw the ball more, but nothing has helped in two lopsided defeats.

The winner by a landslide is Franklin (24 points), Risak estimates. Emons figures Franklin by 17.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN vs. GARDEN CITY, 1 p.m. Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome — The combining of talent from East and West was supposed to make Garden City a powerhouse. It didn't help in a 12-9 loss to Romulus Friday.

Glenn is making its second appearance in the Silverdome in three weeks. Todd Jennings went wild on the last trip, running for more than 170 yards, scoring three TDs and kicking a field goal.

Look for Glenn to make it a miserable afternoon for Garden City in the Dome, Risak says, choosing the Rock-dome by 12. Emons agrees: Glenn by nine.

REDFORD UNION vs. NORTH FARMINGTON, 4 p.m. Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome — This could be the best game of the afternoon. Both teams are better than their 0-2 records indicate. Both have young, developing teams that could be much improved by mid-season.

RU has lost two games by a total of eight points. North's defense has surrendered four touchdowns, and its offense has scored six points.

Risak takes RU by seven. Emons agrees, the Panthers come of age by five.

REDFORD ST. AGATHA vs. HAM-TRAMCK ST. FLORIAN, 7 p.m. Saturday at Keyworth Stadium — The Aggies are 2-0 after a pair of very tight wins. St. Agatha knocked off a tough Allen Park St. Francis Cabrini team, 16-14, Sunday.

Now comes the hunt for a Catholic C-D League title. It won't be easy, but the Aggies have gotten off to a good start. They won't flounder against St. Florian, 55-14 losers to St. Mary's of Redford Saturday, Risak thinks. Aggies by 17. Emons can't argue, Agatha by 20.

The Delco Freedom II Express is here!

Aggies tip Cabrini; CC loses grip

It might be a night to remember for Redford St. Agatha football players and fans.

The Aggies came away with an important victory Saturday night at Allen Park Cabrini, 16-14 in overtime, raising their season record to 2-0.

Coach John Goodard, now in his eighth season at Agatha, savored the victory.

"This is a big win for us," he said. "Cabrini is always rated. They've been to the Pontiac Silverdome (Catholic League playoffs) the last three years.

"This is one of the biggest wins since I've been here."

The two teams finished regulation time tied at 8-8.

Cabrini won the coin flip for overtime and opted to go on defense. Agatha, with four downs to score from the 10-yard line, crossed the end zone on Gary Jasmund's two-yard touchdown run.

Agatha then faked the extra point with holder Joe White tossing for the two-point conversion to Brad Everest, making the count 16-8.

Cabrini came back to score a TD, but failed on the two-point try, giving Agatha the victory.

Goodard's team enjoyed an 8-0 lead through three quarters, thanks to a safety and a one-yard TD run by Tracy Tonti.

Cabrini, however, scored with eight minutes to go on 22-yard pass from Terry Andrysiak to Chris Malesev. The two hooked up again for the two-point conversion.

"I can't say enough about the way the kids played," said Goodard. "The whole team grew up awful quick in a week. We didn't play like that against St. Alphonsus (6-3 victory). We played so much better."

Offensively, Agatha racked up 222 yards to Cabrini's 164.

Quarterback John Orzech hit eight of 14 passes for 104 yards. His favorite target was the 6-foot-5 White, who caught five passes for 40 yards.

Dave Lewis led the Aggie rushers with 77 yards in 16 carries.

DETROIT CATHOLIC CENTRAL was hurt by turnovers in a 3-0 loss to Ypsilanti Saturday at Livonia Bentley field.

CC gave up the ball six times.

The Shamrocks had beaten Ypsi six straight times going into the game, but this time they beat themselves. CC's defense was strong, limiting the Braves to five first downs, including just two in the second half, both by penalty.

The game's only score came with 33 seconds remaining in the first quarter on a 31-yard Steve Lawrence field goal.

In the third quarter, the Shamrocks lost the ball at their own 12 on a fumbled punt, setting up Ypsi's only other scoring threat. But the Braves lost four yards on the first three plays and a fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

CC drove to the Braves' 26 in the final quarter, its deepest penetration, but lost the ball on another fumble. For the game, the Shamrocks lost three fumbles and had three passes intercepted.

Quarterback Tom Malone completed nine of 17 passes for 111 yards, as CC collected 10 first downs. However, the Shamrocks managed just 54 yards on the ground. Ypsi collected 103 yards rushing but just eight passing, with one completion in 10 attempts.

Even though they were outgained, the Braves held onto the ball, and that proved to be the difference.

High-rollers put records in jeopardy

At the pace bowlers have set during the first month of the season, all scoring records for the Detroit area are in danger.

So far, a perfect game has been registered. That occurred on the first night of the All-Star League.

Also, the Bonanza Enterprises team recorded an eye-popping 3,574 series. That goes along with the 241 average achieved by Bob Strampe, the former national all-star champion.

The women bowlers are matching the men's high scores. During the past week, Judy Griwicki, a member of the Calvin Camera team in the All-Star League, posted a 719 on games of 258, 257 and 223.

THE 700 CLUB continues to grow. Aside from Griwicki, three male sharpshooters earned their way into the contingent.

At Bel-Aire Lanes, Ralph Zadrisny rolled a 758 series, but had a moment of disappointment connected with his performance.

With the stage set for a perfect game after 11 strikes in a row, he left the No. 10 pin standing on his final ball, settling for a 299.

At the Super Bowl in Canton Township, Rick Bingey had a middle game of 257 in 703. Meanwhile, Tom Marlow opened with a 278 for a 723 at Woodland Lanes.

THE UNUSUAL happened at Garden Lanes when a pair of triplicates were added to the honor roll.

Russ Hall of the St. Linus League posted a 171 triplicate, matching Bob Cyr, who rolled a trio of 153 scores in the Vinco League.

ANOTHER ODDITY came when Rick Redner opened with a 248 game in the St. John Bosco League, then steadily faltered to a 225 and 192. His 665 series, though, topped the league. On the women's side, Mary Porter showed the way with a 595.

SUE SCHULTZ had an unforgettable moment at Merri-Bowl when she topped the "impossible" 4-6-7-10 split. She later couldn't explain the shot.

In other good performances, Mike Guvowski, who carries a 172 average, linked games of 251, 269 and 191 for 651 in the Ford Body League at Merri-Bowl. Jamie Turner, a 12-year-old boy, posted a 234 at Woodland Lanes. At Westland, Ted Ratcliff paced the Monday men's league with a 672, and Bob Pniowski tied Leon Smith at 665 in the classic. Julie Smith showed the way in the women's division.

Mike Sharp was high in the Pinbusters League at Plaza Lanes with a 610 count. He was one pin better than Jerry Czaka.

get into pro tennis," said the tall, hard-servicing Denton.

While Coners, Lendl, Gerulaitis and Evert-Lloyd make enough dough so they won't have to play doubles, it's a way of life on the pro tour for Craig Wittus of Bloomfield Hills.

Wittus, a former Andover High School and Miami of Ohio standout, has made a comfortable living through doubles. He's also a singles player, but has not been as successful.

He failed to qualify recently for the Open in singles. At Wimbledon, Wittus lost to Johann Kriek, a top 10 player. In two other Grand Prix tournaments this summer, Kriek knocked Wittus out in the first round.

But Wittus and Steve Meister of Miami Beach, Fla., have formed a formidable doubles team. They reached the semifinals last weekend of the $200,000 Lipton World of Doubles tourney, eventually losing to Gottfried and Ramirez.

Meister and Wittus, however, won the U.S. Pro Championships doubles crown in Boston earlier this summer, splitting a $12,000 first-place purse.

"IN THE FALL we won eight tourneys together," said Wittus. "We felt pretty confident. Then we lost in the first round of a couple of big tournaments. At Wimbledon we waited 10 days to play with the rain and the scheduling. Then we lost. Steve and I weren't playing well so we said, 'Why fight it?' We tried different partners for awhile."

The two got back together just in time to win at Boston.

"You have to know your partner and know how he plays," explained Wittus. "Talking on the court is important, and you always have to know where to position yourself."

Wittus, a serve-and-volley player even on clay, said conditioning is important when playing both singles and doubles.

"I do a lot of running," he said. "I'm in good shape, and sometimes you win matches on that. I'm 25 years old, and I feel I'm still three years away from my peak. People have told me that."

Bowlers and teams needed to form short term leagues. Leagues will meet every other Saturday starting October 16 for 15 weeks. Individuals or clubs invited.

Black Market combines reggae and rock

Black Market will do a benefit for a fellow musician, in an appearance with the Automatrix, Euphoria and the Original Ditties, on Monday at Center Stage in Canton. Proceeds go to the Al Wotton Medical Fund. For ticket information call 981-4111.

By Patty Radzik
special writer

BLACK MARKET IS A Detroit-area band combining the influences of reggae and rock music. Its four members are in the midst of taking its unique sound and talent to the top of the music industry.

Success has come virtually overnight for Southfield resident Larry Duncan, lead singer and originator of the group, although his career in music has spanned 10 years.

Black Market has been together for one year, and already the band is preparing to release its first album, on a major recording label.

Along with Stuart Brady on bass, Rick Purdy on guitar and Mitch Purdy on drums, Duncan has recorded material for an album to be released in late autumn. The group is negotiating through managers/producers Mark Beznos and Jim Dudek — a recording contract with Boardwalk Records and a tour with Premier Talent.

"THIS HAS BEEN the most remarkable year of my life," Duncan said. He has just returned from Miami, where the band appeared in the first annual Miami-Caribbean Sunburst Reggae Festival over Labor Day weekend.

Mark Beznos, who handles the group's affairs in Detroit, has worked in the music business all his life. Beznos had been waiting for a reggae band worth backing since he produced a group called Rasta 12 years ago.

"When I first saw them perform, I loved them," Beznos said. "I was struck. They are the greatest rockin' reggae band in the world."

Living in Florida, Jim Dudek is associated with rock promoter Bob Bagaris, who has worked with groups like the Rolling Stones. Together, the two have been working on an arrangement

'When I first saw them perform, I loved them. I was struck. They are the greatest rockin' reggae band in the world.'

— Mark Beznos
co-manager/producer

to simultaneously release Black Market's album and tour.

Duncan's interest in music began when he was a senior at Berkley High School, singing in the choir and eventually getting involved in several bands with friends.

I NEVER KNEW I could sing before I joined the choir," he admitted. "As time went by I learned to enjoy and appreciate all kinds of music because, after being in rock bands and going solo, I found I was fairly open-minded about music, and my tastes were diversified."

A move to New York 10 years ago actually launched his career. He worked as an opening act for performers headlining at the Gaslight Club in Greenwich Village.

"It was the most meaningful experience for me," he said. "I sensed, for the first time, the professional aspects of the music business."

The same year Duncan started working in New York a movie called "The Harder They Come" surfaced. Made by musician Jimmy Cliff, the 1972 film helped popularize reggae music in America.

Reggae has its roots in the Jamaican sounds of calypso and ska, and in the '70s the distinctive reggae beat was picked up by many rock artists including Paul McCartney, Eric Clapton and Paul Simon.

BOB MARLEY, a rastafarian from Jamaica who died last year, was the most successful of all the reggae recording artists. He is labeled "the Father of Reggae."

For years since Cliff's movie, people have been waiting for the Jamaican sound of reggae to be the next rock 'n' roll craze.

"My personal belief is that reggae is the root of all music," Duncan said. "It's been around a long time, and no one has really popularized it. Hopefully, we can."

During the height of its short-lived attraction in the United States, the reggae sound continued going strong in its homeland.

Around 1975, Duncan took a trip to Jamaica upon the urging of a friend. What followed was an instant infatuation not only with the island but with the music as well.

HE MET AN OLD fisherman, in the remote village where he was vacationing, who introduced him to the music styled in Jamaican tradition.

After returning to New York, Duncan concentrated on developing his own unique sound, drawing from the Jamaican influence as well as from the music he grew up with.

"I realized afterwards how infected I was by reggae and found that I wanted to play the music badly."

He hooked up with Stuart Brady, who also had visited Jamaica and was a classmate of Duncan's in high school.

"We've never been to Jamaica together, but when we would talk we'd compare notes about the island and the music, and decided to join up and play the music," he said. "From that moment on, it was magical. It all came together so well."

Their union was immediately highlighted by a trip to Jamaica where the duo performed its version of reggae for the people there, and was met with celebrated acceptance. Soon, the two contacted the Purdy brothers, and Black Market was formed.

"WE REALIZE we're not Jamaican, but our music is magical, and they loved it," Duncan said. "We want to represent the Jamaican rhythm and put our Detroit background into it. Our sound is different from everybody else."

What sets the Black Market sound apart is the diversity of the music.

"Reggae music is a mirror reflection of American music," Duncan explained. "It incorporates different kinds of music like folk, rock, blues and jazz."

Black Market effectively composes melodies using these music styles and more. An unknown quality in the group's sound possesses uplifting attributes that appeal to people of all ages, and a message in the lyric that is affecting.

"It can be many things to many people," said Duncan, who writes lyrics as well as music. "You can pick out of it what you want."

"IT ALWAYS generates brotherhood and represents people's feelings," he continued. "My message is to present the hopeful side to the human condition."

From punk clubs to weddings, the appeal of the music is wide ranging. A friend of the group who is a kindergarten teacher uses a tape of Black Market music at nap and lunch time, to entertain the children.

With an audience ranging from preschoolers to senior citizens, Duncan stresses the positive approach the music takes. Duncan's idols are people who have transcended barriers not only in their personal lives but also in the music business, such as John Lennon, Bob Marley and Bob Dylan.

With an excellent start, Duncan may transcend a barrier himself by becoming part of one of the first bands to make reggae a household word.

Actors Alliance performs in round

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

THEATER-in-the-round hasn't been seen much in metropolitan Detroit but the new Actors Alliance Theatre Company of Southfield hopes to change that.

Artistic director Jeff Nahan of Detroit said all Actors Alliance productions will be in the round, starting with the Tony-award-winning comedy "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," which opens the theater's first season Friday night.

"It's a new feeling for an actor. You have that audience energy all around you," Nahan said, with a wave of his hand through the room.

Actors Alliance is a professional resident company at the Academy of the Arts at Lycee International, 30800 Evergreen, Southfield. In the old Evergreen School, which the Lycee leases from the Birmingham Schools, the gymnasium used as a lunchroom by day will become the theater-in-the-round by night.

LAST WEEK black curtains were being hung for temporary installation. "The theater can be put up on Friday and come down on Sunday," said Helen Lanese of Birmingham, executive director.

A small auditorium in the school building is expected to be used for other theatrical productions, while the theater

gym is where Actors Alliance action will center.

"This space gave us an area-stage format, which is much more exciting for an actor," Lanese said.

Four banks of 28 folding chairs are staggered on raised platforms, for a total of 112 seats. The seats, as well as the curtains, will come up and down with each production. A portable dance floor will be put down for the stage, and taken up afterward.

Cables and lights that were being strung last week will remain a permanent installation, however. "It's a simple light plot," Nahan said of this first endeavor.

"YOU REALLY can't do anything wrong in the round," Nahan exclaimed, optimistically. "You can't turn your back on the audience, for long." The slightly built, energetic artistic director stood in the center of the gym, gesturing.

"In the proscenium stage, down left and right have powerful positions. Here, all four corners are powerful and the center is even more powerful," he said.

Nahan, who will direct the opening production, has cast Harry Wetzel of Ferndale as Rosencrantz and Richard Buzinski of Detroit as Guildenstern. The comedy by Tom Stoppard is about Hamlet's two buddies and takes up where Shakespeare left off.

Wetzel attended the University of Detroit, where he appeared in such productions as "Elephant Man" and "Man of La Mancha." He also has performed at Greenfield Village in Dearborn, "my hometown."

At the Attic Theatre, the actor did the show "A Way You'll Never Be," and at Meadow Brook Theatre, he played in "The Devil's Disciple." He also has performed at the Actors Renaissance Theatre and the Grand Circus Exchange.

"HARRY LIKES to dress in unusual or old-fashioned clothes," Executive Director Lanese explained. The baggy tuxedo pants, blousy shirt and suspenders he wore that day at rehearsal were his own, not a costume for the show.

For the photographer, Wetzel tried tossing coins, imitating the opening of "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern," where the two characters flip coins, in a void. When the coins constantly come up heads, the men realize something's wrong. By the end of the play, they accept the fact that they're dead.

"Artistic Director Nahan said, 'I call it a comedy thriller.'"

Wetzel plays the more naive character, and Richard Buzinski the one who talks a lot but doesn't really do very much. Wetzel and Buzinski together will teach a Sunday afternoon workshop at the academy, beginning Oct. 5. "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Live!" Buzinski joked.

Actor Buzinski is a graduate of Wayne State University, where he performed in shows at the Bonstelle including "The Crucible" and played two seasons at the Hilberry in such productions as "Wild Oats."

He graduated a year and a half ago. At the Attic Theatre, he was in "Macbeth" last fall and was a steelworker in "Working." Buzinski is now resident artist, acting and stage managing, at the Attic.

NAHAN SAID, "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern carry the show. It's a burden. The roles are a challenge and a delight at the same time."

The play "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead" will continue through Oct. 31. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays and 6:30 p.m. Sundays. Tickets are $8 Fridays, $9 Saturdays and $7 Sunday. Student and senior citizen rates are available Sundays for $6.

Group rates are available for 10 or more persons. For information and reservations call 642-1326.

Attic Theatre presenting 'March of the Falsettos'

"March of the Falsettos," a musical by William Finn about the universal need for love and fear of rejection, opens the Attic Theatre's 1982-83 season Friday.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursdays-Fridays, 6 and 9 p.m. Saturdays and 6:30 p.m. Sundays at the theater, 525 E. Lafayette at Beaubien in Detroit's Greektown.

Tickets are $7, $8 and $9. Group rates are available. For information and reservations, call 963-7789.

This one-act musical has no dialogue. Its 20 songs range from ballads to jaunty melodies. Songs include "Four Jews in a Room Bitching," "Thrill of First Love" and "Marvin at the Psychiatrist."

"March of the Falsettos" was originally staged in 1981 at Playwrights Horizons in New York. That year it won the Outer Critics' Circle Award for best musical.

Daniel Yurgaitis is directing this Michigan premiere production.

Barbara Krueger decided to make her own luck. She saw a doorway where she knew her stained glass would look just right and contacted the builder. He liked it.

Hobby opens way to future

By Carol Azizian
staff writer

A "touch of old-world elegance" is how artist Barbara B. Krueger of Southfield describes her stained-glass work installed in the doorway of a Bloomfield Hills home.

The transom and sidelights, incorporating fan-shaped designs in a traditional motif, are reminiscent of installations in homes built during the 1920s and 1930s.

Rich gold and red colors are reflected in a mirrored wall in the home's foyer.

The stained glass design complements the traditional architecture of this newly built home.

The spacious home, at 232 Woodwind, was perfect for Krueger's new artistic venture.

A stained-glass artist for the past seven years, Krueger's "success" was limited to showing her small, hanging pieces in local galleries and displaying them in gift shops.

Krueger pursued her hobby while working in several jobs — first as a Birmingham school teacher, then office manager for Village AMC Jeep and later as a bookkeeper for a Bloomfield Hills builder.

It wasn't until two years ago that she decided to turn her "hobby" into a home-based business.

That's when she began looking for ways to expand her art form.

But opportunity didn't knock until a few months ago.

"I was driving by the house and thought it was perfect for a large, stained-glass work."

She contacted the builder and, after a few meetings, convinced him to commission the work.

"I prefer to do architectural works," she said. "It's a real accomplishment."

"When I'm old and grey, I can drive by this house and, hopefully, the work will still be there."

An eye for beauty — a talent for organizing

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

A home decor that "sort of grew and grew" through 20 years of family living has won for its interior designer owner her second accessorizing award in as many years.

Dorothy Wood of Livonia recently went to Washington D.C. to accept the 1982 Nora Fenton award, one of several given each year by the Interior Designers' Society of the National Home Furnishings Association.

She won it last year for a home she customized for an attorney client — "very elegant and very expensive," said the interior designer who has been with Towne and Country Interiors in Dearborn for 3½ years.

This year she entered in the competition the decoration of her own split-level home, which is filled in every corner and cranny with the fun kinds of accessories that Wood has enjoyed gathering over the years.

"It's a collection of collectibles," said Wood, surveying the domain where "people who visit say they can't take it all in at once and may they come back to look some more."

"They are the things I enjoy living with," she added. "I'm an artist, so I have used my own work, and that of friends to decorate. I don't have a lot of expensive furniture, but I've refinished old things and used them in different ways."

"I also use things people have given me — when I get something new I like I find a place for it."

ABOUT THE ONLY big change Wood made when entering her own home for the award was a complete paint job for the living room, dining room and kitchen level.

"I chose terra cotta," she noted, adding that the area had for several years been "dirty green." "I thought that deep color would be a super background. I don't often recommend a strong color for a client, though. You have to read them out."

"I'm dramatic by background, and I enjoy what that color did for the accessories here."

Wood's dramatically-organized clutter probably had its beginnings with an old oak table she bought at a garage sale 20 years ago.

It was enough to startle her husband Bill, a musician who now goes along happily with all her decorating ideas, she remembered with a chuckle.

"He said I wasn't bringing that thing in here," she went on. "But I refinished it very simply and it's been great. All the kids have done their homework and craft projects there, and it never hurts the finish."

"Everything I have in here is like

'It's a collection of collectibles. . . . People who visit say they can't take it all in at once and may they come back to look some more.'

— Dorothy Wood
interior designer

that — old and comfortable."

LOOKING AROUND the livable home, it's necessary to zero in on the decor a grouping at a time.

Near the entry is a small curved chest holding candlesticks, dried flowers in a raffia basket and a chess set. A framed picture hangs above the chest.

"I bought the chest at a garage sale," Wood said. The top was so buckled I stripped off all the veneer, and it was so badly nicked that only the drawers could be kept in the natural wood." So she painted the rest for an interesting effect.

"My son made the chess set in school," she added. "And that picture! It may be a signed lithograph that I ruined by cutting off the signature to fit it into the frame I liked."

There is a wood trunk that holds a lamp and trailing ivy. "It belonged to my husband's family," she said. "We found it in the attic. A chandelier in her dining room came from a former neighbor. "She didn't want it but was worried about giving it to me because her mother had given it to her," laughed Wood. "Finally I bought it at her garage sale. Some of the glass was broken by that time so I put in plastic."

SHE HAS a sunburst-style stained glass window hanging at the opening between dining room and kitchen, and a brick wall in the kitchen is hung with an assortment of utensils and old labels.

Two other stained glass windows have been set into the front door.

"My son Bruce bought them for me and then cut the holes and put them right in," said Wood. "He also did a lot of the structural work I wanted done to make room for the collections."

One photograph on the large living room wall is of turn-of-century vintage and shows a young family. "I hadn't known much about my family," said Wood. "Then I found this tiny picture. My mother said that was my grandparents, and the little boy standing beside the parents was my father. I had it blown up because I like to look at it."

She realizes the need for home had been with her a long time when she started collecting antiques while on the road with her husband, at first a traveling musician.

"As I picked up things, I knew I'd want to surround myself with objects that have meaning and value," she said.

DOROTHY WOOD'S career, like the decor in her home, evolved rather than being the result of planning.

A native Detroit, she studied art at Cass Technical High School and lived in Inkster while her three children were growing up. She met a painter, Rosemary Humphrey of Wayne, and studied with her for eight years, selling some of her work in events like the Ann Arbor Art Fair and the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Then she decided to get a job and worked in a small design studio. The next stop was the Montgomery Ward & Co. custom drapery department, and then the Robinson Furniture Co., doing her first designing of rooms.

Robinson's went out of business and so did Wood for a while, but shortly after she was back working for a lighting gallery. Then a friend told her about an opening at Towne and Country and she has since been on the store's interior design staff. She now has completed the examinations for all three levels of proficiency as prescribed by the Interior Design Society.

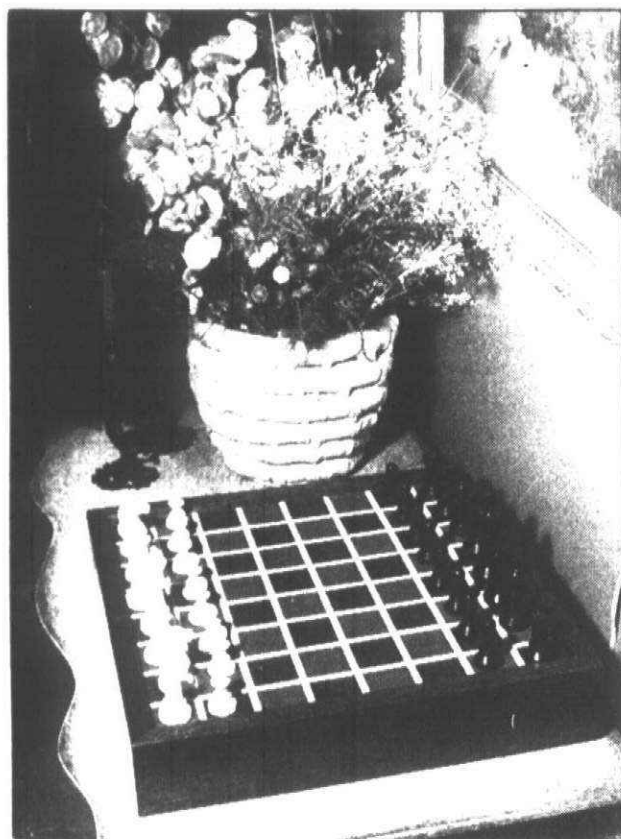

In her work as an interior designer, she said, she likes "to go into clients' homes and find out about their life style."

"By using a decorator's help, they can avoid costly mistakes," Wood added. "Accessorizing is what people often fall down on after they get their furniture. You should live with what makes you comfortable."

"And I feel very comfortable with my own environment."

Inveterate collector as well as interior designer, Dorothy Wood (above) has found many clever ways to display things she loves. Grouped together, they make her home a show place as well as a prize winner. At left is a section of her kitchen wall.

Chess set (left), made by Wood's son, is complimented by a raffia basket of dried flowers and candlesticks. Below, the sunburst stained glass adds vibrant color to the kitchen with its assortment of antique and modern utensils. She likes to surround herself with objects that have meaning and value.

Welcome to 'old time' country

Interior designers may be some of a few professionals who love to bring their work home with them

Sherri Lewis of Plymouth, design consultant at M.T. Hunter Country Store of Birmingham, lives by her own advice. She's furnished her home with the reproduction furniture which her employer, Matt Twomey, specializes in.

The wood pieces — corner cupboards, tables, chairs, dry sinks, shelves and like — are Amish made and extremely close to historic designs.

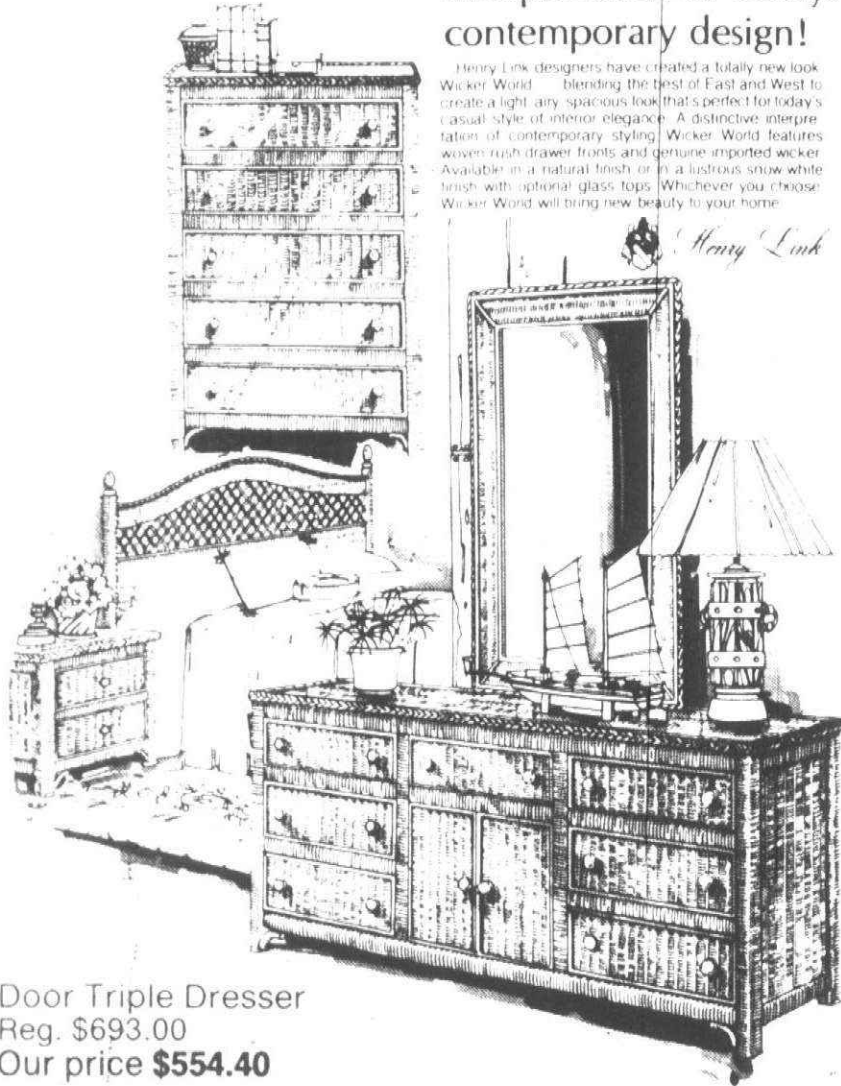

The Amish are also Twomey's source for many of the accessories that add to Early American charm — quilts, salt glaze crocks, pottery and a great deal of folk art. The upholstered furniture comes from a North Carolina firm.

In her own home, Lewis mixes some family treasures, a few choice antiques with her Amish reproductions with flair and enthusiasm.

She's active in her home community. Her home has been visited by tour groups, and Lewis likes to entertain both large and small groups.

Shirley Parkllan now has a place for everything and can make an instant inventory.

Closet clutter under attack

By Loraine McClish
staff writer

A Farmington Hills resident who has a penchant for hats and shoes solved her where-do-I-put-them-all problem with a closet designed by Clutter Control.

When Shirley Parkllan moved into her new condo it had spacious walk-in closets, which was a requisite for the fashion-conscious woman after leaving a five-bedroom home. But finding the desired hat or shoes was still demanding more time than she wanted to give.

"I went to the professionals," the interior decorator said. "I had an idea of what I wanted, but I let the pros design it. That's a rule I follow for myself as well as my clients."

What the pros designed was a plan which utilized every inch of available space, tailor-made to suit her lifestyle.

With the use of poles, bins, shelves, drawers, dividers, pull-out rods and slide-out racks, Parkllan can spot the hat or shoes she wants at a glance when standing in the middle of her closet.

"I switched around a few of the things they designed, but that's the beauty of the entire closet. Every item is adjustable. Nothing is permanent. If I ever move from here the closet will move with me," she said.

CLUTTER CONTROL clients are given a personal interview so any household storage problem can be analyzed.

The made-to-order design takes in every aspect of the client's lifestyle to accommodate hobbies, sports, or careers that require special clothing or equipment.

The initial consultation fee is returned to the client and taken off the total purchase price of items needed for the suggested design, but the plan can be carried through either by Clutter Control workmen or the do-it-yourselfer.

In the case of the design for the Parkllan home, a special need concerned packing for frequent out-of-town business trips.

"I've been able to color code my clothes with the way they've arranged things for me which makes things a lot easier for fast packing. And there isn't a piece here that is smashed or squashed together," Parkllan said.

PARKLLAN has worked as an interior decorator for 25 years, many of those years in her own studio in Detroit but now works out of her home office.

"My hats are necessary," she says. "They've become somewhat of a trademark for me."

Clutter Control is owned and operated by Marilyn Wohlman and Ann Brash who opened the business about a year ago at 22954 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills.

Their wall-to-wall and ceiling-to-floor storage designs are created to give easy access to the item stored as well as utilizing all of the space at hand.

With the use of poles, bins, shelves, drawers, dividers, pull-out rods and slide-out racks, when Parkllan stands in the middle of her closet, she can spot the hat or shoes she wants at a glance.

A garden room for all seasons

With windows facing south and east, this garden room overlooking classic landscaping will always be cozy and welcoming. Designer Irene McGraw used the existing terra cotta tile floor as the anchor color. It's repeated in the fish motif upholstery for the couch, in the muted stripe on the four chairs and in the accessories.

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

A newly-decorated garden room in a large Bloomfield Hills ranch quickly became one of the most popular areas of the home. The view, inside and out, is refreshing and relaxing. It is well-coordinated with pleasingly integrated colors and accessories, but never obviously so.

With the backgrounds already established — terra cotta tile floor, off-white painted brick walls and neutral verticals at the windows — Irene Hanslow McGraw, interior designer, worked with a narrowed palette.

In fact she was called in while her clients were considering the house. She told them she liked what she saw, especially the backgrounds which were too new and too elegant to not use. Many of the wall coverings were silk, so were some of the drapery fabrics, and with some adjustments, the house accommodates this family of young adults and parents beautifully.

name, overlooks a picturesque yard of trees with lots of very tall blue spruce, shade plantings of begonias and impatiens and steps leading to a lower terrace with fountain.

There's a wide view of this lovely landscaped area from the garden room. And since the small area behind the garden room was being used as a sort of hot house, both clients and decorator decided to extend the greenhouse ambience into the garden room with a combination of groups of large potted and hanging plants and comfortable rattan furniture.

Part of the rattan is painted a deep blue; the rest is natural walnut color. The printed fish fabric on the couch and chairs is terra cotta background with blue fish. This fabric immediately won approval from the fisherman in the family.

THESE COLORS are repeated and expanded a bit in the upholstery of the four chairs around a glass topped table. This second conversational grouping of blue rattan is an ideal place to relax for those who like bridge or other cards or just a comfortable place to sit and talk with a plate of food or a drink. The off-white background of the upholstery on these chairs is brightened by textural lines of terra cotta, blue and closely related shades.

Some lovely contemporary and antique Chinese porcelains displayed on the blue rattan etegere are the familiar blue and white pieces associated with the Orient. Mixed in with these are some contemporary pieces from Pewabic Pottery.

By the door to the garden there's an antique Chinese wedding basket and an antique porcelain vase with a dragon in shades of apricot and terra cotta.

McGraw said, "I like mixing. I love antiques and I love contemporary pieces, so why not mix them?"

She is adamant about one thing. When she picks a painting, graphic or sculpture, it's judged on the basis of its value and appeal as a piece of fine art and not because it fits into the color scheme.

McGraw, who has been an interior designer with several studios in the metropolitan area, opened her own business in Rochester several years ago.

Breakfast room, above, is completely new, and the kitchen area, below, completely remodeled. Both cooks in the family like the view from the new counter on the diagonal.

New view from the kitchen

By Corinne Abatt
Staff writer

The addition of a 10-by-12-foot eating space doesn't sound like a big change until you see what went with it.

Stephen and Linda Hayden of West Bloomfield both like to cook. And in a completely remodeled kitchen opening to a new dining area, they do it with ease and enjoyment.

The project did more than add space and convenience, it literally changed the whole back of the house. The dining space opens onto a new deck and the deck to a newly landscaped yard.

Once there was an ordinary door from family room to kitchen. With most all of the wall between them taken out, the family room character changed almost immediately.

CAREFUL planning on the part of Dennis Standhardt of Standhardt Design Associates of Berkley, provided some not-to-be overlooked aesthetic bonuses.

The placement of the double sink in a diagonal counter offers the person standing at the sink a fine view of the deck and landscaped yard.

The elimination of the wall between kitchen and family room and the design of the new addition with its window walls, sliding glass doors and two skylights in the sloped roof integrates the kitchen into the whole area, rather than closing it off from other activity.

Since Standhardt provided storage areas for everything, the kitchen, with its radiused corner, taupe cabinets and cupboards, is minus any kind of clutter.

Both conventional and microwave ovens are built into the wall, but then so's the toaster oven, not far from where those breakfasting will be seated. There are storage areas for appliances, a drawer on rollers under the ovens for pans, floor-to-ceiling pantry cupboards in the new addition and a built-in bar with marble counter in the back of the kitchen, adjacent to the family room.

IT'S ALL done in shades of taupe. Even the wallpaper in the kitchen, also used on the ceiling, has a shade of taupe in the linen-look texture. But the amount of light, the view of the garden, lush green hanging plants in the new section seem to provide plenty of color and interest.

Standardt designed the circular table of champagne formica with the brass trim and used Breuer style chairs with it. There's no need for window coverings, the back yard is nicely private.

The cedar deck was built by Dale Maskill and Eaton Nursery did the landscaping.
