Canton officials gripe about cable rate bid

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Are local residents getting their money's worth on promised cable TV services?

The answer to that question depends on whom you talk to.

Last month, Omnicom Cablevision came to Canton's Township Board, asking for permission to establish a new monthly rate of $3.50 for a remote control converter.

The Township Board postponed a decision on that request. But the rate bid sparked a new round of complaints among some Canton officials who think Omnicom's services simply don't measure up.

"It isn't a high-quality system, no matter what Omnicom says," said Canton trustee Steve Larson, who also serves as chairman of the township's cable advisory board.

"If they (Omnicom) were doing everything they said — in the letter and the spirit — there wouldn't be any problem at all," Larson added.

OMNICOM HAS an exclusive franchise to offer cable TV programming in Canton, Plymouth and Northville. Omnicom is owned by the giant Capital Cities Communications, whose holdings also include WJR radio station and the Oakland Press newspaper.

Several months ago, Canton's Township Board threatened to begin proceedings to revoke Omnicom's 15-year franchise agreement. Officials said they were dissatisfied with the quality of services.

Since that revocation threat, Omnicom has been developing a new lineup of programs, channel offerings and local access shows. The franchise agreement calls for a variety of local programs as well as sports, news, music, business and others.

"Omnicom is giving everything it promised," said Peter Newell, senior vice president of Capital Cities Communications.

Omnicom subscribers have use of a converter which allows them to pick up a variety of programs not available on regular TV stations. Customers pay extra for movie channels, Walt Disney stations and other programming packages.

CURRENTLY AT ISSUE is Omnicom's desire to establish a new monthly rate. Company representatives have appeared before officials in the Plymouth-Canton-Northville communities.

Subscribers to Omnicom's optional satellite service (music, continuous weather, country-western entertainment and health programming) receive a remote control converter free in their monthly extra fee. Omnicom wants to charge $3.50 to basic subscribers who want remote control but not the satellite service.

So far, neither Canton nor Plymouth Township officials have approved the $3.50 charge. Customers in those two communities cannot obtain the remote control converter unless they also subscribe to the extra-charge satellite tier. Technological changes and expensive equipment make the charge necessary, Omnicom officials say. The $3.50 fee is supposed to cover depreciation, debt retirement and other costs over a three-year period, when the current units probably will be obsolete, Omnicom officials say.

Larson and Jim Kronberg, another member of Canton's citizen cable advisory group, say Omnicom's rate structure, including various "packages, installation fees, discounts, etc., are confusing and cause subscribers to pay more for the same level of services."

The proposed $3.50 fee is too high, Larson believes.

"Whatever you do, it forces you into that satellite tier," Larson said. "Because that is where the profit is for them."

LARSON SAYS he receives phone calls from angry Omnicom subscribers, complaining about poor cable TV reception and about the sound or picture "dying" in the middle of a program.

Kronberg expressed dissatisfaction about Omnicom's failure to provide 35 channels of programming and the lack of local shows, such as coverage of high school sports.

"I personally think they (Omnicom) are exploiting this community," Kronberg said.

Newell admits being annoyed by Kronberg's criticism.

"Mr. Kronberg has a fixation," Newell said. "(He) doesn't understand our business."

"(Customers) are not just buying our program. They are paying for the capital (and) the converter that is in their house, the underground cables, studios, trucks, technical staff and personnel."

Options such as the satellite tiers allow subscribers to select exactly the kind of programming they want, Newell said.

Three new channels will be offered shortly, at the insistence of Canton's cable advisory group, Newell said. These will include a religion channel, a business station and a black entertainment channel.

If more desirable programs are available later, existing ones may be bumped, possibly angering subscribers, Newell said.

"We will abide by whatever the committee wants," Newell added. "If it's duplication, it's duplication."

Fantasy games anger parents

By Sandra Armbruster
staff writer

Despite pleas by the Wayne-Westland Area Council PTA and board Vice President Kathleen Chorbagan, trustees refused Monday night to approve a resolution that would have prohibited the fantasy game Death Quest from being played on school district grounds. Instead, the administration was directed to draw up a policy "dealing with the use of school property outside normal school related events."

Nancy Kettler, president of the area council, told the board that refusing permission to play Death Quest in the district's Sassafras Trails Nature Center would "ensure the physical and mental health" of children.

"I prompted the writing and passage of the (PTA) resolution," Chorbagan told fellow trustees in urging them to adopt the resolution. "I feel we do no justice to children when we permit such games to be played."

THE GAME first came to the school board's attention last fall when its creators, Homer Stone and Kevin Galbraith, sought permission to use the nature center area, about 55 acres located behind Wilson School on Wildwood north of Palmer. Controversy arose over the safety of the game and the potential liability of the district in case of injury.

Patterned after the board game, Dungeons & Dragons, Death Quest involves roving bands who search for spells, beginning at sunset. The last band remaining "alive" wins the game.

Players wear costumes which include armor and foam-filled weapons, and those under age are requested to sign waivers of liability for injury.

The game had been played in the area for about two years when Westland police became aware of it and asked the players to get permission from the district.

Superintendent Dr. Timothy Dyer said that after residents complained about the nature of the game, the administration decided to deny any group permission to play the game unless so directed by the board. He added that it became a moot issue when the game's creators decided to disband for the winter months.

BUT MEMBERS of the audience at Monday night's meeting said that the mild winter meant that the game was still being played, possibly by groups patterning themselves after the originators. Some also complained about Death Quest seeking members from D&D players at Adams and Franklin junior high schools.

Audience members also reported that waivers were forged, participants hung upside down during the game, and that play sometimes lasted until 3 or 4 a.m. They added that the play had spread to an area called "the flats" behind Wayne Memorial High School.

One Wayne Memorial High student said that some people are "hunting Death Quest players with BB guns, chasing them into the woods to try to shoot them."

"Police have been called several times," said Rosemary Miller. "The screams (of players) are unbelievable."

"I'd hate to test the waters of liability," said Chorbagan. "But my foremost reaction is that I do believe these children were in danger. They were being hit and turned upside down."

SOME BOARD members opposed the resolution as being too broad.

"To just say (prohibit) games such as Death Quest is wide open," said trustee Fred Warmbier. "We don't know who would come down the road. It could be someone who wants to play baseball."

"I've never seen baseball people hanging upside down," replied Chorbagan.

Warmbier further criticized the resolution on placing limits on games causing injury. He said that could include football or cowboys and Indians.

One member of the audience said that such players "don't go out to get murdered and hurt."

Board eyes shift in school uses

By M.B. Dillon Ward
staff writer

Proposed school closings being considered by the Plymouth-Canton School District are expected to ruffle some feathers in the area surrounding Starkweather Elementary School.

The Old Village historic school (Starkweather) and Tanger Elementary are targeted for possible alternative uses in light of declining enrollment. Currently, 240 students are enrolled at Starkweather, and 285 at Tanger.

Starkweather is projected for conversion in 1984, and Tanger in 1985.

The city of Plymouth has approached the district about the possibility of school buildings being sold, according to Supt. John Hoben.

Shirley Spaniel, director of elementary education and head of the elementary housing committee, made the announcement at last week's school board meeting.

Alternative uses for the schools suggested by Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction, include:

- a district-wide media center;
- a facility for day-time community education
- child care center, and a
- TAG (Talented and Gifted student) "magnet center."

Most feasible are the first two, according to elementary school principals on the committee.

AN AVERAGE ENROLLMENT drop of 6 percent over the last two years prompted the committee to consider the issue. However Spaniel said a new trend has her feeling hesitant.

"At the end of February we revisited our figures, and based on what's happening in the schools, we don't seem to be losing 6 percent," said Spaniel, who'd like to delay a decision until first Friday enrollment figures for 1983-84 are compiled.

"We're registering families every day at Isbister Elementary and will be in a tight configuration at Field, Erickson and Isbister . . . so I'm reluctant to make any recommendations."

District officials also remain skeptical.

"Are we closing Starkweather to save money, or to give Starkweather another use?" asked Flossie Tonda, board secretary.

"I don't yet have a global view of the assets and liabilities of the proposals," said Trustee Dr. E.J. McClendon. School Board Vice President Elaine J. Kirchgatter said she wants answers concerning costs involved in transferring students, hiring additional personnel and renovation.

Said School Board President Thomas Yack: "I would hate to tell the public we're closing a school just to prove the point that we saved some money. It would establish a dangerous precedent

Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Each Thursday, a question will be printed in the Observer. Readers will have until 1 p.m. the next day, Friday, to phone in their opinions to 459-2704.

All of the views on that question will be recorded and then screened by the editors to make sure the answers are not libelous and are in good taste. The opinions of readers will then be printed in the next edition on Monday. (Answers for today's questions, for example, will be printed Monday, May 16.)

A busy signal will indicate that another reader is offering his/her opinion on this week's question. Be sure to redial 459-2704 and express your view.

The line will be opened as soon as Thursday's Observer hits the newsstands and will remain open all afternoon and evening until 1 p.m. the next day.

When you dial, a recording will repeat the question. Wait for the tone and give your 30-second answer. Today's question is: What is the biggest eyesore in the community?

Readers also are encouraged to suggest questions for Oral Quarrel to MaryBeth Dillon Ward, editor of the Canton Observer, or to Emory Daniels, editor of the Plymouth Observer, by calling 459-2700 from 9-5 weekdays.

Sheriff to patrol water

The Wayne County Sheriff's Marine Safety Division is back patrolling the county's waters and assisting boaters.

Eight trained deputies will operate four boats stationed on Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River, Lake Erie and Belleisle Lake, said County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

Ficano said that two-thirds of the marine patrol's $176,000 budget is funded by the state.

"Wayne County has 80,000 registered boat owners within its borders and we have 142 square miles of water for people to enjoy," Ficano said.

"My deputies will be working closely with each city police agency that borders water in Wayne County," he added.

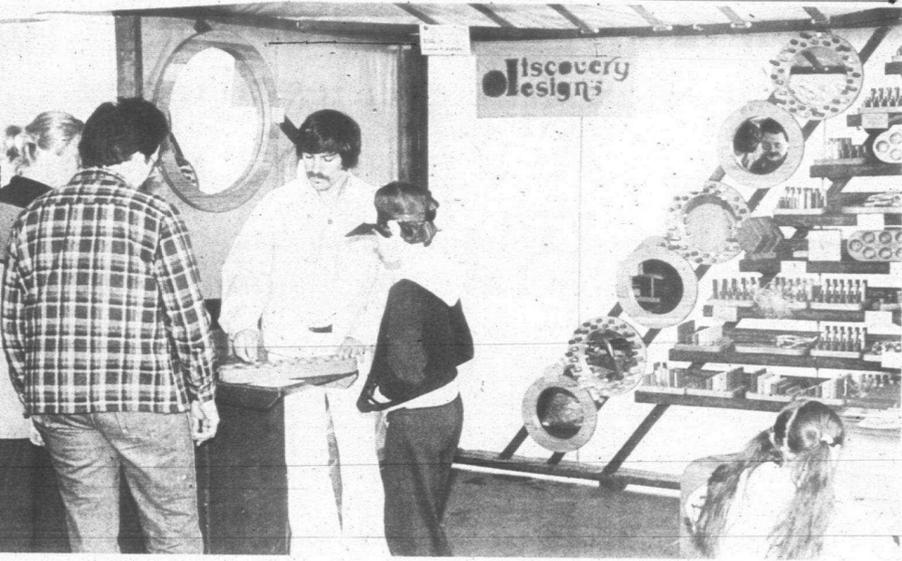

The marine division will also give attention to the increased criminal activity and vandalism occurring around the boat clubs and marinas.

In addition to patrolling, the marine deputies will hold classes throughout the county on safe boating operation, rules of the water and proper equipment requirements.

Festival featured art in all forms

Some artists actually worked on pieces at the festival. C.R. Shiefer showed off his sculpture skills to interested festival-goers.

Taking first place, the best of show award, was G. Sherer. He brought a display of wood art forms to last weekend's Spring Arts Festival.

Plenty of people partook

KELLOGG PARK was the hot spot around town last weekend as Plymouth put on its first Spring Arts Festival. An estimated 15,000 people were on hand during the two-day event which featured food, fun and finished art works.

Based on the calls from out-of-towners asking for directions, Police Chief Carl Berry said many of the people attending the festival were new to Plymouth.

Despite some unfavorable weather on Saturday, the visitors traveled into Plymouth both days to see paintings, sculptures, pottery, stained-glass hangings, photographs, carvings and many other art forms which were featured. While artists and craftsmen proudly displayed their works along the park's walkways, jazz musicians filled the air with the sounds of New Orleans.

Although the festival was scheduled to run from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, bad weather forced it to close down at 5 p.m.

The festival went on as scheduled Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Among the musicians who performed were many who have played at either Detroit's Montreux Jazz Festival or the Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland. They included Larry Nozoro, Charles Boles, Ron Jackson, Little McKinney, the Ambassadors, Chuck Robinette, Hank Warren and Bob Durant.

The festival was sponsored by the city of Plymouth and the University Artist and Craftsmen Guild of Ann Arbor.

Best of show awards were presented to G. Sherer, who took first place for "Discovery Designs"; K. Thompson, who won second place for pottery; and M. Kohl, third place winner for jewelry.

Among the many ceramics displays was this one put together by K. Yourist.

A. Ickes, a wood displayer, answered some questions about his works which included glass and wood bird houses.

There even was folk art being shown at the festival. Here the work of R. Potts gets some attention.

Some people just enjoyed looking at all the works of art. The ceramic pieces featured at this display were the work of L. Stare-sima.

School board ponders new uses for 2 grade schools and one that is foolhardy. I'd like to see us use as best we can the facilities we have.

The plan's disadvantages include:
• limited parking and lack of hand-capped access at Starkweather.

• the inconvenience for Canton residents of Starkweather's location;
• the age of the facility (which dates to the 1930s). The building, however, is solidly built and well-maintained with adequate space.
At Tanger, a much newer building than Starkweather, parking would not create as big a problem (as at Starkweather).
Any of the proposed uses would provide numerous needed services in the community, said the committee.

Hoben mirrored Spaniel's concern. "It's hard to get a handle on what new growth is. The 350-400 enrollment decline we expect next year represents an improvement over the 600 students we lost this year," he said.
"We're in a very fluid economic situation and have to be careful in making decisions too quickly," agreed Trustee Roland Thomas, who "would like to use some money to reduce class size."

"It sounds like it's time to send the administration back to the drawing board," said Yack.

Speech therapy Hospital to launch summer class

A summer speech therapy program for school children and preschoolers will be offered by the Oakwood Hospital-Canton Center's Speech and Language Department from Monday, June 27, to Friday, Aug. 19.
With an emphasis on individualized instruction, the program is designed to involve parents in their children's progress and to offer both individual and group parent-counseling sessions. Parental interaction will focus on speech and language development.
More information is available by calling the Canton Center at 459-7030.
As in last summer's inaugural program, this session will provide children of western Wayne County with a means of continuing their speech therapy during the summer break from school.

said Lorraine Zaksek, speech pathologist at the Canton Center.
"The program last year served children with a variety of communication disorders, including delayed language, hearing impairment, stuttering, and cerebral palsy," she said.
Besides the emphasis on parent involvement and individualized attention, Zaksek said the frequency of treatment the children received and the cooperation of public school therapists in providing diagnostic information and objectives contributed to the success of last year's program.
Group sessions this year will be held at 9, 10, and 11 a.m. and at 1, 2, and 3 p.m. Each 50-minute session will be scheduled two days, three days, or five days weekly for those in need of more intensive treatment.
Children will be grouped according to type and severity of disability as well as age.
The charge for students enrolled two days weekly is $128 for eight weeks of therapy; $192 for three days; and $320 for five days ($8 per session).
Each child should be referred by a public school, hospital, or clinical speech pathologist. Physician referrals also will be accepted.
A detailed assessment of each child's level of functioning, along with individual therapy plan objectives, must be submitted in order for the child to be considered for placement. Referrals must be made by Friday, May 20.
Applications will be reviewed and parents will be notified of placement by Friday, June 17.

Game raises flap

prohibited after dark.
But Dewey Combs, a trustee who also is a Westland police lieutenant, said, "They're going to play whether you give permission or not."
"There are few places in the two cities (Wayne and Westland) where they can play," he continued. "You can't legislate morality, and you can't legislate kids."

Contract renewed

Plymouth-Canton School Superintendent John Hoben received a vote of confidence at Monday's school board workshop.
The board, in capping a two-month evaluation of the superintendent's performance, voted 6-1 to extend Hoben's contract through June 30, 1986.
The action marks a break with school district tradition. In the past, superintendents' contracts have been renewed on a year-to-year basis.
No change was made in Hoben's compensation — $58,050 plus fringe benefits. That issue will be considered at a later date.
School Board Trustee Sylvia Stetz opposed the measure, saying, "I feel the most important thing we do as a board is to extend the contract of the superintendent."
Craig H. Evans has joined the Oakwood Hospital staff as director of program planning, according to Fred J. Barten, vice president and director of corporate planning.

Canton's Chris Widdick has earned distinction as the Carrier of the Month.
A seventh grader at St. Mary's in Wayne, Widdick has delivered papers to homes on Wayside Drive, Larimore Lane, Pineridge and Creston Court since January, 1981.
The award recognizes Widdick's length of service, collection maintenance and settling of accounts. Organization, record keeping and customer satisfaction also are judged.
The son of S. Raymond and Claudia Widdick, Chris has a sister Kelley, 11, and a brother, Matthew, 2.
Widdick, a B student, enjoys science and chemistry, and plans to attend the U.S. Air Force Academy and work for NASA.
His hobbies include stamp collecting and astronomy. As a member of the Canton Soccer Club, Widdick was among the 1982 GLSL Cup Champions. He was young author winner in 1981.

Trikaidekaphobiacs, beware

Trikaidekaphobiacs have a fear of the number 13, and it's a good thing Christina Lopez of Canton isn't one. She's been dressing tonight's sunset. The Our Lady of Good Counsel seventh grader turns 13 tomorrow — Friday the 13th.
Though Christina says "I feel lucky,

Christina Lopez 13 on Friday and I think it's neat" to become a teenager on such an ominous day, she admits she's superstitious and "will proceed with caution, just because it's my birthday."

If Christina's luck holds out long enough for birthday wishes to be telephoned, she'll be receiving "81,000, a telephone and TV," said Linda Lopez, her mother.
If not, "she'll settle for some new clothes and her favorite feast — ribs at Alexander's Great."

AN AVID Saturday-morning bowler, Christina is far from the "child of woe" folklore would have us believe comes into the world on a Wednesday.
The well-rounded teenager considers herself "the typical teenager."
"I love music and boys," she reveals. The fair-haired Christina also studies jazz and tap at Canton's Masters of Dance, and enjoys gym. The TV show "General Hospital" and the movie "The Outsiders."
Joey Lopez, Christina's younger brother, will note carefully what happens to his sister tomorrow. He also was born on the 13th of the month.
May 13 marks the only time this year that the 13th falls on a Friday.

Band has a new favorite tune

The Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Symphonic Band is playing a new tune these days: "Eat Your Wheaties" — the tune of $2,000. Earlier in the year, the band entered a contest sponsored by General Mills and earned a national first place, plus a check for $2,000, for its efforts. All the band had to do was play the advertising jingle, "Eat Your Wheaties," have it taped and enter the cassette in the contest. Then less of a person's disability. Both workshops run from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. and are taught by professional social workers. Fee for each is $30.

Proposes ordinance

Mack fights hiring 'outside' lawyer

An ordinance proposed by County Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, who represents Canton, is designed to have a "chilling" effect on the hiring of outside lawyers by Wayne County officeholders.

Mack cited the nearly $260,000 fee which Dennis Nystrom is attempting to collect from the county on behalf of an unsuccessful lawsuit two years ago when then-Sheriff William Lucas and the Sheriff's Department deputies union sued the Board of Commissioners over shutting down of the sheriff's road patrol.

Lucas, now county executive, wants the county board to pay Nystrom's fee. Nystrom is now Lucas's chief of staff.

THE COUNTY Commission, however, steadfastly has refused to pay the fee. Mack said his ordinance would stymie other officials from hiring attorneys to represent them with the expectation their court costs would be paid by the county. Mack's ordinance last week was approved by the public safety and judiciary committee. It will be taken up by the commission's committee of the whole this week.

The ordinance, if adopted, would require that the county executive approve the hiring of outside legal counsel by a county officeholder.

"If the CEO says 'no,' then it's no. There would be no appeal to the county commission," Mack said.

PROTESTING the ordinance was the new sheriff, Robert A. Ficano of Livonia. Ficano landed the sheriff's job after a long legal battle with Lucas and his preferred choice, Loren Pittman.

"Do you mean that I would have to get Lucas' approval first before I could sue?" Ficano asked at the committee session. "That's right," Mack replied. "Do you mean that I couldn't appeal it before the county commissioners?" Ficano went on.

"That's right," Mack replied. "Well, that's not proper," Ficano said. "I'm using myself as a prime example. I can just see my getting approval from Lucas to hire an attorney. Your ordinance would be 'chilling' to my constitutional rights. I'm concerned that it does not provide for an appeal."

Answered Mack: "That's just what I plan to do. I plan to 'chill' by centralizing everything under the county executive."

The public safety and judiciary committee for the day requests to pay attorney bills of $10,000 in the case of Ficano vs. Pittman and for the clerk's office.

IN OTHER business, the County Commission last week sought a compromise in a possible battle with Lucas over appointments to several governmental agencies.

The commission asked Lucas's office for recommendations, apparently signaling a desire to appoint the same persons Lucas wants rather than fight over who has the power to make the appointments.

The county's home-rule charter gives the chief executive officer power to make appointments to the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, Huron Watershed Council, County Building Authority, County Public Library Board and Economic Development Corp. — if permitted by law.

Meanwhile, Lucas's lobbyists are asking the Michigan Legislature to amend several laws to permit home-rule charter counties to give their chief executives power to make those appointments.

Any executive vs. commission confrontation would be avoided, however, if both made the same appointments.

William E. Kregar of Wyandotte currently serves on the HCMA board, which governs the 12 metropolitan areas of southeastern Michigan. Kregar has served since 1958. Lucas's office is considering two names for the post but won't say if one is Kregar's.

Insurance protects seller of house

By Sid Mittra special writer

More than 50 percent of the houses sold today require the seller to get involved in the financing.

Even at 12-percent interest, many buyers cannot qualify for a large enough bank loan to buy the house they want.

However, the sellers fear that if the buyers default, they may have to absorb the loss.

To ease this fear, several companies now insure seller-finance mortgages against default. You do not deal with these insurers directly. They work through banks, savings and loan companies and mortgage companies, which in turn sell the insurance to the public.

AS PART OF the package, the lender will service the mortgage for you—checking the creditworthiness of the buyer, collecting the monthly payments, going after arrears and depositing the money in your account.

You can get the insurance if the buyer pays at least 10 percent of the price of the house and is found to be creditworthy by the bank or savings and loan company.

He must be buying the house for his primary residence, not as an investment property or summer home. The deal must be drawn on acceptable mortgage forms, usually those issued by the Federal National Mortgage Association or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

The typical second mortgage calls for three to five years of modest monthly payments, after which the full amount (the balloon) falls due. But if the buyer cannot raise the balloon today, who is to say that he will raise it five years from now?

finances and you

Sid Mittra

The insurance provides that if the buyer cannot make that big payment, the seller must agree to rollover the loan at current market rate. So you might be locked into the debt for longer than you expected. If the buyer refuses your offer to refinance or cannot afford the payments, the mortgage goes into default and you will be paid.

The bank or savings and loan company initiates foreclosure. Your claim against the insurance company will include the loan's outstanding balance, delinquent interest payments and foreclosure expenses. You will be paid up to whatever policy limit you choose—on a second mortgage typically 50 percent of the amount of the loan. You are assuming that the remaining portion of the debt can be paid from the proceeds when the house is sold.

FEES VARY FROM lender to lender.

money management

Do you drop a few dollars in the collection plate at your house of worship each week? Since tithing 10 percent of your income disappeared as a common practice in the 18th century, weekly donations are the method churches and synagogues rely on to carry on a good share of their activities.

How much you give is a matter of conscience, of course, but how you give should be part of your financial planning.

Some denominations, such as the Seventh Day Adventists and the Mormons, expect members to tithe. The Protestant Episcopal Church asks its members for a "modern tithe"—5 percent of income to the church and 5 percent to other charities.

DURING THE Middle Ages, a shepherd with 100 sheep would be expected to give the 10 fattest to the church. Today's rancher need not drive sheep into the churchyard, but in today's complex society, all things should be considered. For instance, you may decide to make your contribution quarterly, annually, or "in-kind."

If you donate "gifts in kind," which might be stocks, bonds, art works or jewelry, the tax benefits may outweigh those of a cash donation.

For example, if you donate stock held for a year and which may have appreciated in value, you can deduct its full market value as your charitable donation. You won't have to pay tax on the capital gain and the church or synagogue receives full value as well.

IF YOU donate stock held for less than a year, you can deduct only what you paid for it. If you donate stock that has depreciated, you can deduct only what is now worth—and you cannot claim any loss.

When giving cash, you may want to give larger amounts less frequently. For instance, sending a quarterly or annual check may be easier on your budgeting and record keeping. Giving annually also means you can leave money in an interest-bearing account during the year.

Religious organizations are becoming more sophisticated in the ways they raise money. Many use financial analysts and professional fund-raisers. CPA members of the congregation may volunteer their expertise.

County hospital staffers ask operating 'autonomy'

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A priest and two county hospital employees testified Tuesday in favor of a proposed ordinance granting Wayne County General Hospital operating autonomy from the rest of county government.

"If the hospital is closed, the poor can be left out in the street," said the Rev. Terence Treppa of St. Norbert Catholic parish in Inkster. "A city can't operate it. The state shouldn't. And the hard, cold fact is that the business world won't take care of it."

"There has never been any question about the hospital's quality," said Ramon L. Joseph, M.D., a physician at the Westland facility for 23 years. "There are legitimate questions whether we can operate as efficiently as the one down the street."

"We take everybody in there. Lives are more important than dollars," said hospital employee Dorothy Mullinix of Westland.

THAT WAS what County Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, wanted to hear. She is sponsor of the proposed ordinance to define Wayne County General as the county's charter facility and to take several parts of its operation away from the authority of County Executive William Lucas.

Lucas wasn't present when Beard convened the county commissioners' human resources committee in the Bailey Recreation Center in Westland Tuesday morning for the first of three public hearings. In fact, Beard herself was the only member of the three-person committee to show up.

Asked if the executive's staff had anything to say, Warren Doughty, a Lucas aide, told Beard, "Not at this time."

Lucas revealed his position in his budget message last week. He threatened that if hospital employees failed to make "personnel cost reductions" which would eliminate the county's need to subsidize the operation, it would "necessitate removing the hospital from county control" — indicating he might want to sell or lease it.

Eight of the 15 county commissioners would have to approve the ordinance to put it into effect. If Lucas were to veto the ordinance, 10 votes are needed to override the veto.

The county's home-rule charter, Beard pointed out, provides only that the county offer hospital "facilities," not that there be a government-run hospital.

THE ORDINANCE would make these changes in the way Wayne County General has been run over the years:

- Currently, state law provides for a board of institutions to run the grounds where the hospital is located. It has five members — three appointed by the commission and two by the Board of Auditors. But the new county charter abolished the auditors and gave their functions to the executive. Beard's ordinance would shift control of the hospital board entirely to the county commission.
- Currently, the executive has responsibility for all labor negotiations except with employees of the county road commission. The Beard ordinance would require the board of institutions to approve any contract negotiated by Lucas's office. That would be a step in the direction Beard wishes to go — giving the board of institutions power to negotiate separately with hospital employees.
- Currently, the county hospital operates as a kind of landlord over the "Eloise" property on Michigan Avenue, providing electricity and fire protection to other governmental agencies stationed there. The Beard ordinance would provide that the hospital be charged for those services like any other tenant and not be stuck with all unallocated costs.

THAT IS a tender point in county circles. Lucas's commission on county reorg-

Money exchanged at face value Canadian program gives city businesses a boost

By W.W. Edger
staff writer

An idea born in the fertile mind of Scott Lorenz, general manager of Plymouth's Mayflower Hotel, may add as much as $300,000 to the business life of the city by year's end.

Last September, while sitting at his desk, Lorenz noticed that more and more places refuse to accept Canadian money.

He pondered the thought for a few moments and then said to himself, "We'll take it at the Mayflower and what's more, we'll accept it at par value."

The idea was set into motion and after a few weeks of letting it become known, the Mayflower started receiving requests for weekend visits.

That was just a starter. Since that first busload of visitors crossed the Detroit River to spend the night in Plymouth, scarcely a week goes by that there isn't a Canadian group in the city.

So great was the response that the hotel management joined hands with the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce to make the Canadian money at par value a city-wide program. Because it has spread so widely, Lorenz feels certain that the $300,000 mark will be reached.

business people

"The one thing we stress," Lorenz said, "is that Canadian money will not be accepted on 'sale items' in any of the stores."

This is explained in the promotion brochure so that there is no misunderstanding. While Canadian money is not acceptable on sale items, it is accepted for meals, hotel rooms, gift items, clothing and accessories. As the brochure says, it is accepted on "everything from handbags to haircuts."

Word has spread around the country about the program. Never a day goes by that there isn't a phone call or letter from some part of the U.S. or Canada, with someone asking for details. In fact, only this week inquiries came in from Los Angeles, St. Petersburg and Pittsburgh.

Many national television stations have documented the plan and shown how it works, even to the point of following visitors around town.

"Nothing we ever have done has received the response of the Canadian program," Lorenz said. "For that reason, we opened the plan for the Chamber of Commerce so all businesses in the city could enjoy some of the fruits of the program."

Under the plan, Canadians arriving in Plymouth must register at the Chamber of Commerce and verify their Canadian residency by showing their driver's license. They will receive an identification card, a list of program participants, a shoppers guide and a set of rules.

Since the program went into effect several months ago, the Chamber and the Mayflower have been recipients of many "thank you" letters. These letters have expressed the pleasure the visitors had in coming to Plymouth.

One woman closed her letter with this message: "Like Gen. McArthur said, 'I shall return'."

The fund total reached $2,200 with the Rotary donation.

Offers fertility treatment

Offering infertile couples hope of having a baby, William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak announced the first in vitro fertilization (IVF) service in Michigan, to begin functioning June 1.

It joins just six others in the United States.

"The maximum success rate of achieving pregnancy using this method is presently 20 to 25 percent. Nature's rate of conception and carrying to term is estimated to be about 31 percent," said S. Jan Behrman, M.D., chief of obstetrics and gynecology at William Beaumont Hospital and IVF program director.

The past president of the International Federation of Fertility Societies, Dr. Behrman said the average cost will be about $3,500 or less for each reproductive cycle tried.

THIS TREATMENT for female infertility starts with a detailed hormone evaluation.

Next, the woman's egg is retrieved in an outpatient procedure using a specially designed laparoscope, after which the egg is fertilized in the laboratory with the husband's sperm.

Finally, the embryo is nonsurgically implanted into the wife's womb.

Available only to married couples, the service is controlled by the National Institutes of Health's approved scientific process.

Procedures follow those developed in Britain by obstetrician Patrick Steptoe and physiologist Robert Edwards, who helped produce the world's first IVF baby.

THE BEST CANDIDATES for the treatment are women younger than 38 with blocked or absent fallopian tubes.

Future Talks will be needed

To the editor:
When we spend three times as much money to educate the mentally handicapped than we do for the average child no one objects. We see a need here.
I think the talented child also should receive the best we can afford. They are the future leaders of this great country. They will lead the way for the rest of us average citizens. They will be the ones who will help solve the problems of the future.
We need many more Dr. Salks.
D. Kelsey speaks only for himself or herself. No one appointed him or her to speak for all the parents of this community.

Drug figure an unfair label

To the editor:
The Observer has in the past two weeks cited an alarming statistic on "drug use" at Centennial Educational Park (CEP).
Two stories have appeared which suggest "70 percent of the high school students at CEP use drugs." Where that data comes from and how it was compiled are not disclosed. The statement is highly inflammatory without further offers of proof. Worse yet, it may be a reckless charge without underlying statistical support.
While I don't expect journalists to conduct scientific research before stories are written, I also don't expect them to level unsupported charges about 70 percent of the high school students in our community.
No one who is at all knowledgeable would suggest that drug abuse is not a serious problem among both teen-agers and adults. But to label, by innuendo, 70 percent of all high school students as drug users is irresponsible journalism.
Is the reporter saying 70 percent use drugs of all kinds? If so, what types of drugs? Are aspirin, caffeine and nicotine included in the term "drugs"? Is the reporter's definition restricted to stimulants, depressants and hallucinogens? Is alcohol included? Marijuana? Opium derivatives — heroin, etc.? Amphetamines? Barbiturates? Tranquilizers? In what proportions? We don't know any of these answers. The reporter never bothers to make clear which drugs are being used nor whether use is tantamount to abuse?
I think the Observer should do a more thorough job of researching its stories and checking its facts before it levels such a general blast at our students. I've never seen any "hard" data (substantiated) that suggests drug use (or abuse) is as high as 70 percent anywhere in the country, including central city high schools where the problem is said to be the worst by knowledgeable authorities.
Creating awareness of a community's social problems is certainly a worthwhile objective of the print media. But creating paranoia is not exact-

Many helped Mardi Gras

To the editor:
The success of this year's Mardi Gras at Smith Elementary School was due in no small part to the support of many Plymouth merchants. Their generous donations to our prizes, as in past years, is greatly appreciated, and the money raised will help support our school's programs. As parents and students we can show our thanks by shopping at these businesses and letting them know we support them, too.

Pursell, Ford vote to reject measure to kill nuke freeze

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 28 through May 4.

HOUSE

-FREEZE — By a vote of 175 for and 247 against, the House rejected a motion to kill the nuclear freeze resolution (HJ Res 13) by sending it back to the Foreign Affairs Committee.

This was a clear test of sentiment on the freeze, probably more revealing to constituents who track voting records than the later vote by which the House passed the resolution (below).

Many lawmakers voted to send HJ Res 13 to oblivion in committee, then voted for final passage of the measure. Members voting yes wanted to return the freeze measure to committee and thus kill it.

Voting yes: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.
Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, William Ford, D-Taylor, and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

FINAL — The House passed, 278 for and 149 against, and sent to the Senate a measure (HJ Res 13) calling on the U.S. and Soviet Union to negotiate a "mutual and verifiable freeze" in nuclear arsenals, followed by reductions.

Although non-binding on the administration, the resolution is viewed by its sponsors as a strong expression of American public opinion in favor of curbing the superpowers' arms race.

The final vote occurred after nearly 50 hours of debate spread over six House sessions.

Supporters claimed a major victory. But opponents said that by weakening the "pure" freeze with several pro-White House amendments, they too had been victorious.

Supporter Stand Lundine, D-N.Y., called the nuclear freeze movement "truly a grass-roots effort" and said "I roll call report

applaud those concerned citizens who have forced this country to face the prospect of nuclear war."
Opponent Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., called the resolution "a dangerous step" because "it would perpetuate the current imbalance in strategic and theater forces, it would undercut the critical negotiations under way, and it would be the antithesis of our true objective, arms reductions."
Members voting yes supported the freeze resolution.
Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Broomfield.
REDUCE — By a vote of 221 for and 203 against, the House adopted an amendment to HJ Res 13 that would void any Soviet-U.S. freeze if, after a "reasonable" interval, negotiators failed to agree on reducing arsenals.
The vote was a major breakthrough for conservatives because it soothed President Reagan's fear that the "pure" freeze sought by liberals would guarantee Soviet nuclear superiority.

Sponsor Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., said that without his amendment "we will be left frozen into incredibly large and dangerous nuclear arsenals, and the world will be a much less safe place."
Opponent Les AuCoin, D-Ore., said: "Remember the code words. The code words for reductions mean if you settle only for that, you really are not trying to stop the technological advance of the arms race."
Members voting yes wanted a freeze to hold only if it leads promptly to reductions.

SENATE
BUDGET — By a vote of 23 for and 75 against, the Senate rejected a conservative-backed fiscal 1984 budget plan that called for severe cuts in domestic spending, a 7.5-percent hike in defense outlays, preserving the third year of President Reagan's tax cuts, and virtually no new taxes.

Although it appealed to many Republicans, the plan was not endorsed by Senate GOP leaders, who were marshaling support for a compromise budget they drafted in concert with the White House.
The vote occurred during debate on S Con Res 27, the congressional budget blueprint for 1984 and later fiscal years. The Senate Budget Committee document now on the floor envisions 1984 outlays of $488.8 billion, revenues of $686.7 billion, and a deficit of $162 billion.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, sponsor of the conservative budget, said that "by avoiding tax increases, this budget removes a huge temptation for Congress to spend more money." He defended the deep domestic cuts, saying "these federal programs are eating us alive."
Opponent Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, called Hatch's proposal "this new U.S. Chamber of Commerce budget." He added that a major flaw is preserving the administration's supply-side tax cuts that, he said, benefit the wealthy to the detriment of middle- and lower-income individuals.

Modern police station deserves top priority

BUT FOR fate's benevolence, already heavily burdened taxpayers in Canton could be hefting a legal tab, thanks to poor security at Canton's outgrown, outdated police station.

Numerous violations of state Department of Correction regulations leave Canton open to potential lawsuits, a fact openly admitted by Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox (Cox favors the construction of a $2.2 million, two-story facility next to Township Hall — as does a township committee which recently recommended just that at a legislative session.)

Safety deficiencies deprive prisoners housed in the Geddes Road facility of basic civil rights. Lock-ups cells are poorly lit and lack cameras and microphones. The set-up invites security violations and the grim possibility of prisoner suicides.

The 6,000-square-foot makeshift station is a former fire hall adjoined by an unheated mobile unit and a modular unit previously used by the township building department and a bank.

It's considered the worst police facility in metropolitan Detroit by Gerald Radovic of the Police Officers Association of Michigan.

Housed in the modular trailer, the records department receives most visitors. Also the site of the crime prevention unit, roll call area, female locker space, storage area, and a host of mice, the unit is cramped and uncarpeted. It lacks temperature controls and has faulty plumbing.

A SIDELIGHT to the logistics problem is a severe staffing shortage.

Despite the boom in Canton's population to 48,616, the department for five years has maintained a staff of only 33 officers.

The FBI recommends an ideal ratio of two officers per 1,000 residents — and a centrally-located police station. In Canton, the ratio isn't even one officer for every 1,454 persons — and its police headquarters lie undesirably close to the township's southern border.

It's true that few communities approach FBI ideals. But Dearborn, a community of 90,000, employs 200 officers. Canton's Novi counterparts had the foresight to construct a police facility more spacious than current needs call for, but one that economically could be out of reach when the city realizes its growth potential.

TO BELIEVE the crime rate in Canton isn't mirrored by the fact that a skeleton staff covers three shifts a day would be an exercise in poor judgment. It's difficult to sink teeth into crime with just two or three cars patrolling 36 square miles at any one time.

It's also something Supervisor James Poole hopes "the crooks don't find out about."

Choosing the Band-aid approach — spending a minimal amount to maintain current staffing and remodel the existing facility — would see the decision makers suffering guilt pangs by the year 2000 — when 90,000 people are expected to live in Canton. Assuredly, the township's station would retain its ranking of last on the POAM's list of police facilities.

To finance a new facility, the committee favors a 15-year lease agreement in which Canton would pay a set amount over a period of years, gaining the deed when the debt is paid. The township could either sell bonds or utilize its capital improvements fund.

While the proposed 28,300-square-foot facility would be costly to build, it's the only sensible solution.

LOCAL OFFICIALS have fallen on their faces in efforts to establish a healthy tax base with Canton's ethereal industrial complex. The township can hardly attract new business if it fails to provide law enforcement with adequate facilities and staffing.

Committee members have laid out all alternatives and their consequences. It remained only for the board to secure funding and launch the project.

Yet dilly-dallying officials "are going to massage this around to come up with a workable plan." They've requested yet another report and further research.

The footdragging threatens to stagnate progress in Canton. Worse, inaction will result in Canton officials' appearance before the state Corrections Commission, and ultimately in a court order mandating the closure of township jail facilities.

Clergy helps us focus on nuclear issue

CATHOLICS listening to sermons in suburban Detroit churches on Sunday heard more about Mother's Day than nuclear war.

This happened despite the fact that U.S. Catholic bishops a few days earlier had overwhelmingly approved a pastoral letter which called offensive war of any kind "morally unjustifiable," saying the building of nuclear arms should be "halted."

The bishops may have ignored a fundamental principle of their meeting in Chicago, but a few miles away in Detroit, it seemed to have little immediate impact. That is, if the results of an informal survey of area pastors are accurate.

Responses were as varied as the political philosophies of local clergymen.

THE REV. Ed Baldwin, a pacifist, was enthusiastic about the bishops' stand. Baldwin is the pastor of St. John Neumann Church in Canton.

"This is the culmination of what American bishops have been doing over the past few years," he said. "They have supported any measure which relates to the dignity of human life — be that gun control, the rights of the unborn or the use of food supplies. It's proper that the bishops of the nation would support the first atom bomb now are condemning that bomb."

A more conservative view is held by the Rev. Ferdinand Wolber of St. Genevieve in Livonia. "I'm not a pacifist," he said. "I'm going to wait until I see what the diocese is going to do about it. It's pretty confusing so far."

Most clergymen came some place in the middle of the liberal and conservative extremes.

The Rev. Richard Dorr of St. Damian parish in Westland said he has "ambivalent feelings" about the pastoral letter.

It was the sentiment of the bishops that too much money is spent for arms manufacturing, Dorr said. "But regardless of that position, I would expect my parishioners to come to the aid of their country when needed."

THE CATHOLIC Church is only one of many religious organizations which has approved peace proposals.

Although they did not receive the same publicity as the Catholics, United Methodist bishops agreed last week to a disarmament statement in Little Rock, Ark.

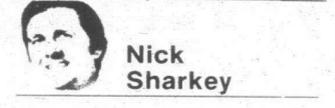

At a convention in September, delegates of the American Lutheran Church backed disarmament. The Episcopal Church has supported a gradual reduction in nuclear weapons. Both the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Central Conference of American Rabbis have called for a nuclear freeze.

In addition, the United Presbyterian Church supports a nuclear freeze.

Besides all this pressure from religious sources, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a watered down nuclear freeze resolution last week.

WHAT DOES it mean? Unfortunately, for those of us who believe nuclear weapons should be reduced, it doesn't mean much.

The Catholic bishops' letter is a teaching tool, and not Catholic doctrine. One can reject or accept the tenets of the letter without affecting one's position in the church.

1-mill hike? Reform first

WAYNE COUNTY Executive William Lucas' most often seems to be a master strategist and a competent tactician.

But Lucas' latest effort to restore fiscal sanity to Wayne County could be a tactical and a strategic mistake. Bringing up the idea of a one-mill property tax increase to a public which has just been blitzed by the state personal income tax hike, a state gasoline tax and a federal gasoline tax appears foolhardy.

Perhaps the executive was floating a trial balloon to see if there is any hope for a property tax increase. Perhaps he was signaling to the county employees' union his intent to ensure that the burden of saving county government will be shared by all. Perhaps he thinks that he needs an opening salvo in a long war to win voter approval of a tax increase.

WHATEVER his thinking, his proposal announced last week — to seek a one-mill county property tax increase for 10 years — seems to be one of those things that can begin eroding public confidence in his leadership.

A senior citizen of our acquaintance expressed her feelings about the Lucas proposal this way: "Just when you think you've got someone in government who is going to do something good, he turns out to be like all the rest."

"Like all the rest" in this statement appears to mean government leaders who see no other recourse for saving government services but to increase the public's contribution toward those services.

Lucas' contention that a tax rate increase is needed to retire the huge county debt — $122 million — that has been accumulating over the years may make fiscal sense to his economic advisors and to Lucas himself. But it probably makes little political sense given that the public is reeling from the idea of paying too much in taxes for too little in services.

The amount that would be sought — $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation — is not horrifying by itself. On a house assessed at $30,000 — with a market value of $50,000 — this would only be $30 a year. But why, asks the average resident, should I pay another $30 a year to a government which has given no indication that it wisely spends the $212 that I already am sending it?

IF LUCAS and his administration were to show ample evidence that county government is in fact cutting expenditures, and that salaries and spending were being brought into line, perhaps then the public would be willing to consider a property tax hike.

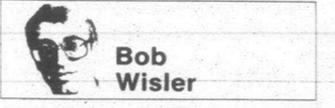

As conditions stand, Lucas intends to revamp the road commission, he is intent on winning concessions from workers, he has threatened not to pay the COLA money due county workers.

But, as yet, no actual reform has taken place, no concessions have been won, and the county is still staggering along.

It is unfair to expect that Lucas would be able to turn county government around in the space of three or four months. Undoing decades of wasteful practices is a long-term battle.

But it wasn't the public which set into motion the irresponsible spending practices which the so-called representatives of the people have made a ritual part of county government. And it isn't the public which should be called on to bail the county out — not until there is greater evidence that the money now being spent is being utilized as wisely and well as is possible.

When the county's house is in better order, it may be time to talk about a property tax increase.

Which sports do we like?

IN HIS MANY years of traveling up and down the sports trail, The Stroller often was set to wondering what the general public's attitude toward athletic events he covered. Many times he thought he was too close to the forest, so to speak, to see the trees.

True, he was with the sports element of the population every day, on the golf courses, at the baseball stadiums, in the boxing arena and at the ice rinks. His contact was with the folks who were the enthusiasts of the events.

Then the other day he found his answer, and of all places it was in the mail box. There, mingled with the usual bundle of so-called junk mail, he found a pearl.

It was the result of a poll taken to determine the public's attitude toward sports — and it contained many surprises.

The poll, taken by the Miller Brewing Co. of Milwaukee, was the most complete survey of sports The Stroller ever has seen.

TALK ABOUT surprises. The biggest came when the poll showed that pro football had surpassed pro baseball as the national pastime. It was only by a margin of one percentage point, but it was at the top of the list.

The question that was asked from coast to coast was: "If you had your choice, which of the sports contests would you prefer to see during the coming year?"

Folks stated they would prefer the Super Bowl football game to the World Series of baseball. Then, in order, came the Olympic games, the Kentucky Derby, the Indianapolis 500 auto race and a heavy-weight championship fight.

Ever since Abner Doubleday introduced baseball to the public in the 19th century, it was considered the national pastime. But that isn't the case now, because pro football leagues, which were introduced only 50 years ago, have taken over the public's attention.

ANOTHER-INTERESTING point brought out in the poll was that 93 percent of the public would read or discuss sports at least once a day.

And 74 percent would watch a contest on television at least once a week.

A major surprise: The majority of the public would participate in swimming, and that proved to be the most popular participation sport. Behind swimming came calisthenics, jogging, bicycling and baseball, in that order.

It often had been thought that swimming would finish far down the list and that baseball, bowling or golf would be the most attractive participant sports.

An interesting-point was the attitude of parents toward having their children compete in various games. The vast majority reported a wish that their children, both boys and girls, would compete in some type of sports contest, even early in their school years.

OF COURSE, some of the parental attitudes could have been influenced recently by the huge salaries paid to baseball and football players. They are becoming millionaires as soon as they leave school and join the pro ranks.

Be that as it may, the poll that came unsolicited in the mail gave The Stroller the answer to a question that has been bothering him for years.

Budget stingy to education, critic says

Gov. James J. Blanchard's first budget proposal is drawing the same kind of partisan fire his tax measure drew.

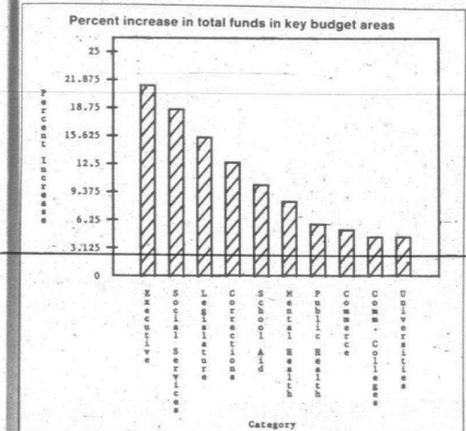

Accusing the Democratic governor of "hoopla," state Sen. William Sederburg, R-Lansing, said "the governor has not treated education as well as some would have us believe."

Added Sederburg in a memo to legislators: "The executive office, social services and the legislature are the big winners."

STATE DEMOCRATIC Leader William Faust of Westland took the floor to denounce Sederburg's analysis. Said Fred Anderson, a Faust aide: "Now he (Sederburg) is saying there is not enough new revenue for education. But if his vote had prevailed, even this money wouldn't have been available."

Faust noted that of 18 Republican senators, 17, including Sederburg, voted against a 1.75 percent increase in the state personal income tax rate in March in the House of Representatives, the Blanchard tax measure was passed entirely with Democratic votes.

"Sederburg has been viewed as a protector of the education community, where a lot of his support comes from," said Anderson. "But he didn't have the courage to vote for the tax increase. Those who put up their votes for the tax will have a lot more to say about the budget than those who didn't."

Blanchard's budget gives the highest percentage increases to the executive, social services and the legislature, the smallest to community colleges and universities, according to this analysis by state Sen. William Sederburg.

RATHER THAN giving big chunks of new money to education, Sederburg said, Blanchard's budget continues to give much the same proportion to education and social services as did former Gov. William G. Milliken's budget.

"The distribution of the new money follows the general distribution of the general fund," said Sederburg. "Twenty-six percent of the total budget was targeted for education; 40 percent of the new money was targeted for social services."

Those percentages, said the Republican lawmaker, were the same as before the tax increase was passed.

This budget continues the general decline in the percentage of state dollars going into education relative to other parts of the budget," Sederburg said. "The governor recommends 26 percent of the general fund be spent on education. This is the lowest percentage in the past 10 years, down from 44 percent in 1975-76, and is probably the lowest ever."

MANY SCHOOL districts, he went on, may actually fail to receive enough to "maintain the status quo," he said.

These are the so-called "out-of-formula" districts which receive no general state aid and operate almost entirely on local property tax revenue such as Livonia, Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Troy, South Redford and Farmington.

The property tax base is growing only 1.25 percent statewide (and is decreasing in some areas). Thus, said Sederburg, out-of-formula districts will be limited to that percentage growth of new revenue and won't receive the 7 percent increase Blanchard is calling for.

OTHER Sederburg observations: • Colleges and universities are slated to get 8.6 percent more under the Blanchard budget, but this amount is actually "$2.5 million less than that amount to maintain the status quo on Michigan campuses."

CONGRATULATIONS to Carole Brandt and members of the Sonata group of the Plymouth Symphony League who were responsible for last Saturday's pops concert.

More than 600 people attended the annual event in the ballroom of the Plymouth Hilton Inn. About 100 more were disappointed when they called for tickets after they had been sold out.

Johan van der Merwe, conductor of the Plymouth Symphony, made a dramatic entrance in formal attire topped by a flowing black cape and wearing werewolf-type fangs. It was obvious that the orchestra members had put their imaginations to work in designing their colorful costumes.

Wayne Dunlap, looking fit after three years of retirement, came from Denton, Texas, as guest conductor or the pops. Wayne conducted the symphony for 28 years so it was something of a homecoming for him.

He says he does not conduct, but some old friends have involved him in music festivals. There seems to be a colony of ex-Plymouth Symphony musicians now living in Denton. He mentioned six of them.

John Perpich, who was principal bass, teaches at Grand Prairie. Violist George Papich, violinist Don Miller, trombonist Tom Clarke, trombonist David McGuire, and bassoonist Sue Schrier are affiliated with North Texas State University in Denton.

Wayne also plays golf with some of the musicians.

DINNER-THEATER for just $2.50?

The play is the ever-popular "Scheewittchen und Sieben Zwerge." The after-theater dinner menu includes mock sauerbraten with dumplings, green beans almondiepe, paleschinken (crepes), and apple struedel.

Curtain time is 7 p.m. Friday in the auxiliary auditorium of Central Middle School, Main Street at Church, Plymouth.

The actors — all 24 of them — are members of Gerda Burnstein's ninth-grade German class. The ninth-graders rewrote the script of the play in German for the production. Theatergoers may be more familiar with the English title, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." That particular story was chosen to give more students an opportunity to participate.

Mrs. Burnstein, who was born in Austria, says she has been teaching German for a long time. This is her first year with the ninth-grade students at Central Middle.

She said the cast's acting ability makes up for whatever has been lost in translation.

It does sound like fun!

THE ORAL Majority brought home three awards from the District 28 spring conference of Toastmasters International. The conference was last weekend at the Holiday Inn in Monroe.

Phyllis Sullivan, a charter member of the Oral Majority organized in 1981, was named Toastmaster of the Year. She was one of 967 people vying for the honor. The club received the John Little Award for highest achievement in club management. Clubs earn points in this category and the local club garnered more than 9,000 points.

The Oral Majority also earned the membership achievement award for growth.

The club has had three presidents since it was formed, Mike Gresock, Mark Sullivan and Pat Gresock. It meets at 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays in Denny's Restaurant, Ann Arbor Road at I-275.

BEVERLY McAninch, president of the League of Women Voters of Michigan, met with leaders of business, industry, labor and education recently to plan the league's annual convention.

Among those meeting at the Whitney Mansion on Woodward Avenue, Detroit, was Helen W. Milliken, who has accepted an appointment to the financial advisory board of the state LWV. As well as laying plans for the national LWV convention in May 1984 at the Westin Hotel in the RenCen, they were taken on a guided tour of the historic Whitney Mansion.

Bev is a Plymouth resident and a former mayor of the city. She founded the first League of Women Voters chapter in this area.

Country colonial has three fireplaces: in the living room (above), the kitchen (right), with another in the master bedroom.

6 homes open for tour

The Plymouth Symphony League's spring home tour May 19 will showcase six area homes of varied vintage and with diverse decorating themes.

The oldest is the 120-year-old Kellogg-Cash house on Ann Arbor Trail. The present owners converted the house from a three-apartment dwelling to a one-family home plus a studio apartment. Their addition of a family kitchen with its wood-burning stove, bar and interesting accent pieces, adds to the charm of this Gothic Revival home.

Original window framing and woodwork add historical and architectural significance. Victorian gingerbread adorns all four gables and the old-fashioned lace curtains provide natural lighting for the interior and the proper aesthetic touch from the exterior.

The historical house has been featured on Greenfield Village and Plymouth Historical Museum home tours. It was awarded a Landmark Plaque by the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women during Michigan Week ceremonies.

PAT AND TOM completely gutted their older home on Sheridan and reworked it in an Asian contemporary theme. It is the perfect showplace for their oriental collection.

Oriental porcelain is displayed in the library which has an 18th century writing desk. Entrance to the great room is the first of two moon gates. Recessed lighting and a skylight eliminate the need for floor or table lamps. Large windows offer a view of the Japanese garden complete with waterfall and pool. There are oak floors in the kitchen which once was the garage.

Visiting the Olson home is like taking a walk back in time with antique furniture and accessories. The ticktock of windup clocks sets the mood in the sitting room with its stenciled walls, Eastlake cupboard, rag rug and lead glass windows.

There's a sunroom with natural wicker chairs and antique desk. The dining room has a Hoosier kitchen cupboard, a jelly cabinet and hutch with a tea cup collection. The house dates back to 1928, and after three owners, retains the original kitchen sink, cupboards, built-in ice box and floor.

The Olsons completely finished the attic themselves to provide bedrooms — with bathroom — for their two daughters.

THE ATWATERS' barn red house could be called a collector's haven.

Visitors will note the collapsible wardrobe in the foyer with its collection of toys and books from yesteryear. Three pieces of crockery were used to carry pears to the Gerber baby food company by a grandfather. There are folk art toys, old dolls and teddy bears, a plate collection and cranberry glass pickle holders.

The Atwaters installed the tin ceiling in the half-bath, a labor of love that resulted in bleeding hands. The antique tins that line the high shelves in the kitchen were discovered in relatives' attics. French doors open to a screened porch pool and deck area where more than 1,000 flowering bulbs welcome spring.

Plymouth Township's newest subdivision is the setting for a country colonial home adapted from a plan in Early American Life magazine. The spacious living room with its oversized bay window and seat, has the first of the three fireplaces. There's one in the country kitchen and another in the master bedroom.

One color scheme is walk throughout the house, navy and rust, accented by beige carpeting.

SHEER ELEGANCE best describes the sixth home on the tour, which sometimes gives the visitor the impression of walking into a Hollywood set.

The living room is formal and the dining room has an opulent chandelier. Focal point of the window-walled family room is a massive stone fireplace. The very elegant master bedroom/sitting room in soft blue and peach has two walk-in closets and an antique chaise longue.

Almost the entire basement is utilized as living space with a second kitchen, a large bath with stucco ceiling and wild animal wall covering. The recreation room features a playpit sofa and a suede bar.

Home tour hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. A salad luncheon will be served at First United Methodist Church from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Cost is $3.50. Home tour tickets at $6.50 are on sale at me and mr jones, Main Street at Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth; Book Break, Sheldon at Ford, Canton; and Four Seasons, Main Street, Northville.

All tickets must be bought in advance. They may be ordered by mail by sending check payable to the Plymouth Symphony League and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Home Tour Tickets, 12460 Beacon Hill Drive, Plymouth, Mich. 48170.

THE ALLEGRO group of the Symphony League is planning the walk.

Shirley Wold chairs the group and Meg Bombeck and Darlene Hilfinfer are co-chairing the project. Committee heads are Charlotte Viculin, program, ticket and poster design; Sarah Chance, ticket sales; Jan Gerish, hostesses; and Ann Arendsen, publicity.

They request that visitors remove shoes upon entering the homes. Smoking is not permitted and children under 6 are not allowed on the tour.

Proceeds from the tour go to support the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Good neighbors move to Boston

Canton, and particularly Eriksson Elementary School, is losing a leader this week when Toni Hartke moves with her family to Boston, Mass. Toni, a resident of Westbrooke subdivision since 1978, has been a member of the Eriksson School PTO board for three years. She served as president for two years and also organized the school's annual Fun Fair for the past three years.

But Toni's commitment to the community doesn't end there. Neighbors recall Toni's efforts to keep the children busy and productive during the teachers' strike a few years ago. She's sponsored many neighborhood parties and even invited an entire class to her home for lunch to celebrate the end of the school year last summer.

Toni, who has a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and a master's from Western Michigan University, plans to work as a private consultant for Head Start programs in the Boston area. She formerly worked with the Livonia Public Schools where she started a child care center for school employees' children. Until last week, Toni was director of the Taylor Head Start program for the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

A native of Kalamazoo, Toni is looking forward to exploring the New England area with her husband, Michael, daughter Jennifer, 10, and son Brandon, 5. Michael accepted a job transfer to become the district manager for Arbor-based Manufacturers Data Systems.

Fortunately for us, Toni won't be cutting all her ties to Michigan. She expects to return occasionally to visit friends and family and to offer workshops for Wayne County Intermediate Schools.

Toni says she's been pleased with the schools in our area. In fact, she liked the "open concept" at Eriksson so well that she looked for similar schools in the Boston area while househunting. "Children working at their own levels, learning at their own pace has been just great for my daughter. I want her to continue with that kind of educational opportunity."

Best wishes to Toni — and thanks for your contributions to our community.

A REAL, old-fashioned Southern flavor permeated one local Kentucky Derby party in Canton last Saturday. Kathy Freece, Joyce Brownlee and Jay Healey co-hosted the gathering of 35-40 people in Kathy's home in Westbrooke subdivision. The Southern flavor was provided by fresh mint (for the juleps, of course), oysters on the half-shell, crab claws and shrimp — all flown in from Florida for the party.

The guests were feasted on Kentucky fried chicken imported from the Blue Grass State itself. The singles-only party started at 3 p.m., in plenty of time for the gents and belles to place their bets before the 5:30 run for the roses. Loretta Sobidich and Roger Salo tied for the big prize by naming Sunny's Halo as the winning horse; Bill Moore won the "to place" pot, and Krista Freece took the prize for the "to show" category. When the race ended, naturally, the party had just begun. At that point, everyone switched to less exotic but not less tasty fare: ham and baked beans, salads, Hawaiian bread, apricot fruitcake and chocolate grasshopper pie.

Marcus Metz provided more entertainment with his home movies of the Thunderbird Ski Club's past camping trips. The crowd, including adults and children, partied in true Southern style until 11 p.m.

PLYMOUTH-CANTON High School has announced the new squad of Chieftesses for the 1983-84 school year. Joining veterans Linda Domingo and Laura Smith of Canton are: Kelly Cooper, Lori Keough, Kristin Krot, Kathy Nowicki, Lisa Seal, and Becky Susock of Canton; and Lisa Jacobson, Eileen McKendry, Piper Redmond, Lynn Sobczak, Whitney Steele, Joette Thomas, Kendra Whiteley, and Kathy Wright of Plymouth.

The Chieftesses provide pom-pom entertainment for parades and football games. Congratulations to the new members and their coach, Deborah Greenwood.

Ford Chorus show

The Ford Chorus will present "A Night on Broadway" with three mini-musicals at 8 p.m. May 19, 20 and 21 in the Ford World Headquarters Building auditorium, Michigan Ave. at Southfield, Dearborn. Chorus members from the Plymouth-Canton area are Shirley Beatty (left), Nola Bonandrini, Kathy Forgacs, Marg Cole and Doreen Voipe, Bill Edgar of Plymouth also is a member of the chorus. Tickets at $4 may be purchased from chorus members or by calling 453-0834. Tickets will not be sold at the door.

Pam Anderson said they had difficulty finding a mannikin with a waistline small enough for the pink satin and lace gown from the 1880s.

Reception opens fashion exhibit

The Plymouth Historical will have a reception 1-4 p.m. Saturday to introduce its "60 Years of Fashion," an exhibit encompassing styles from the 1850s to the early 1900s.

Two private collections are included in the showing. The Laura Mysona and the Beth Tarza collections are on loan to the museum.

Guests will see original gowns ranging from the bell-shaped skirts of the 1850s to a 1913 model that reveals the wearer's shoes. In the interim, there are crinolines, trains, and the appearance, disappearance and reappearance of the bustle.

Summer, day, traveling, visiting, reception, evening, home and wedding gowns will be on display. There's not a drip-dry fabric in the exhibit; the materials are natural cottons, silks and wools.

An 1889 walking suit from the Mysona collection is made of heavy cotton ribbed material. It has a slight bustle and the hem of the skirt is weighted to keep the skirt down in windy weather. Both jacket and skirt are decorated with gold-colored trim; the jacket has black satin inserts.

DURING THE reception, Maggie and Me will present a fashion show. Designer Maggie LaForrest incorporates materials and accessories from the more romantic past into her creations.

Reservations for the reception are not necessary. Admission is $2 at the door. Refreshments will be served. Tickets will tour both floors of the museum, and the gift shop will be open.

Plymouth High class of '43 plans reunion

Plymouth High School Class of 1943 will meet at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 25 in the Mayflower Meeting House for its 40-year reunion.

Plans for the reunion began more than a year ago when a group of graduates got together for the first of several meetings.

Those on the planning committee are Lois (Bowden) Merriman, Shirley (Hoffman) Appicelli, Lois (Hoffman) McAllister, Hal Young, Jack Kenyon, Clare Ebersole, Bill Keefer, Ray Kearney, who will be master of ceremonies, and Dorothy (Blunk) Foreman.

This will be the third reunion of the classmates. They met for their 20th and 30th anniversaries. There were about 140 members of the class of 1943. Claude Dykehouse was principal of the high school. It was war time and many of the young grads went into the service soon after commencement.

Six of them married classmates and all three couples plan to attend the reunion. Jean and Bill Upton of Plymouth, Mike and Lois Kleinschmidt of California and Dick and Rosie Virgo of Maryland have accepted invitations.

The planners have been unable to contact several graduates. They would appreciate help in locating Harold Anderson, Dorothy (Bennett) Colaba, Evelyn Carney, Gloria Cramer, Dan Dugan, Betty (Hepler) Walker, Shirley (Jacobson) Reinhold, Lois (McIntyre) Kotke, Joe Martin, Betty (Nagle) Lea and Ralph Nielson.

Also on the missing list are Anna (Overdorf) Barney, Ruth (Pierce) Lantzer, Beulah Beatrice Robertson, Willie Lee Runick, Jane (Scott) Farnam, Virgie (Shettler) Black, Dolores (Wilson) Nerfolk and Doris Wohlgemuth.

Anyone having clues to the whereabouts of these classmates is asked to call Merriman, 453-6666; Appicelli, 464-8426; McAllister, 420-2983; or Young, 453-7548.

Introducing a revolutionary concept in personal wealth—the Comerica Equity Loan Service.

Write yourself a preferred-rate loan for up to $100,000. It's on the house.

If you have considerable equity in your home and a substantial income, you qualify for the exclusive Comerica Equity Loan Service. You'll have a line of credit from $10,000 to as much as $100,000 for wanted and needed things such as a dream vacation, your children's education, a major home improvement, or a summer home. You can even take advantage of an important business opportunity, or make wise investments. Here's how it works. Your line of credit will be approximately 70% of the appraised value of your home, minus your current mortgage balance. You'll have instant access to cash by simply writing a check for any amount up to your credit limit.

Only 2% Above Prime.

The rate on your Equity Loan Account is just 12.5% annual percentage rate—just 2% above the Comerica prime rate. These rates were often reserved only for corporate customers. Now they can be your rates, too. The rate is subject to change on a quarterly basis. Except for the onetime initial fee, there is no charge when your funds are not in use. Visit any Comerica Bank office for complete information on the new Comerica Equity Loan Service. Or call us at 1 800 292-1300. This might be the last loan you'll ever need. And it's available only at Comerica Bank. For the financial flexibility that a major line of credit offers, come to the innovator. Come to Comerica.

Hesses co-author 1st book on marriage

By Marie McGee staff writer

No one will ever be able to accuse Margaret and Bartlett Hess of rushing into their first book on marriage. Actually, it took something like nine years to complete and is based on their own 45 years of living and loving and the experiences of many others.

During that time Margaret did a lot of research, reading everything she could get her hands on about the topic. She got further ideas from her preacher-husband who has married something like 2,800 couples and done extensive counseling.

The idea for the book came when the couple were on vacation and was the outgrowth of nine years of material that had appeared in magazine articles.

"HE'S GOOD ON the outline," said Margaret Hess. "I do the filling in."

That's perhaps something of an understatement. Margaret Hess, on her own, has written five books. One was co-authored with her husband. All are based on the experiences of their lives.

The Hesses are well-known for achievement other than through their literary efforts.

Hess is pastor of the 4,000-member Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia, probably the fastest growing church in the northwest suburbs. His wife is well known for the weekly Bible classes she has been conducting for more than a decade.

BOTH ARE EFFECTIVE speakers. Both are world travelers and are experts on the Bible.

So when they team up in a book, it's an unbeatable combination of wit and wisdom coupled with a down-to-earth writing style enlivened with anecdotes and incidents he wryly labels "juicy stories."

The book is titled "How Does Your Marriage Grow?"

And it is imperative that a marriage grow, the Hesses agreed. A marriage

"frozen in concrete is doomed to failure."

There was a time when the couple thought the book wouldn't be published because of their democratic point of view defining the role of husband and wife.

The previous publisher favored a point of view that showed the wife subservient to her husband and called for strengthening of that focal point.

BECAUSE IT WAS contrary to what they believe, the Hesses refused to make the suggested changes. The result was they had to find another publisher.

In their book they have devoted a chapter, "Husband or Despot," in which they go into detail on that very topic. That's followed with a chapter on "Wife or Person."

They also have a chapter on quarreling. "Quarreling is a part of caring," they said. The trick is to do it constructively.

"In marriage, you don't lock your differences in a cupboard and fasten and rot. At the first whiff of a bad odor you clean out that cupboard. You can learn to fight constructively," they write.

THE HESSES ADMIT they have done a lot of squabbling - "mostly about her driving." She retaliates by pointing out he wasn't the neatest guy in the world when they married.

"Those early battles were formative in our marriage. As we came to understand each other's sensitive areas and worked out agreements, one or the other of us changed to arrive at unity," they said.

Now all the adjustments have been made, the marriage fine-tuned. Even the driving got settled. He tries to look the other way, read or nap in the back seat.

"We still enjoy a good argument now and then, but it's only that - the stimulation of differing points of view," she said.

The book is available at Dickson's Book Store on Seven Mile, west of Farmington Road, Livonia.

Rockies' glory surrounds Banff

BANFF, ALBERTA — It is springtime in the Rockies. You can still ski at Sunshine Village, but most of the winter lovers have gone, and the summer hordes haven't arrived yet.

At Banff, you can play tennis in the morning, ski all day, and play golf at night. Lake Louise will be frozen into June, but the Chateau Lake Louise, open all year for the first time, is in full swing. Non-skiers picnic beside rushing mountain streams and enjoy life tourist attractions of the mountains without bucking summer crowds.

The mountains are here in and out of season, Mount Rundle rising in a sheer rock, the Fairholm Range making a rock and snow glory against the blue eastern sky. You can still bathe in the hot springs that launched this valley as a resort a century ago, and you can still take the gondola high above the town.

When the gondola stops at the top of Sulphur Mountain, the Rocky Mountain sheep probably will be waiting, licking their lips under the sign that reads "do not feed the wildlife."

What you see below is what the Canadian Pacific Railway (CPR) workers saw when they discovered this valley in 1883. The Bow and the Spray rivers make gleaming lines across a bowl of trees, with mountains rising humped and peaked, black and white, on every side.

Nature is so overwhelming that you must look twice to see what man has added. The Banff Spring Hotel, built by the CPR to lure wealthy turn-of-the-century travelers into the wilderness, rises like a rock castle above the junction of rivers. Half a mile away, the few short streets of the town of Banff make their human marks on the landscape.

You can see the mountains but not the facilities popular among skiers. Mt. Norquay, close to Banff, is where the locals ski, but it's too tough for most tourists. Sunshine Village, a few miles north, has "the largest gondola in the world" and good snow through the end of May; the slopes above Lake Louise are 35 miles away. Beyond, the highway tracks past the Columbia Icefields and on towards Jasper, 140 miles north of Banff.

EVERYTHING you could possibly want in a mountain vacation is here now, and in October, except the crowds that jam the highways and sidewalks in summer and the in-season prices, which go up at the end of May and come down again in late September.

Heather Crosby, whose family have lived in Banff for four generations, said that by July she has given up trying to drive a car down the main street and rides a bicycle instead. It's warmer then, of course. The water frothing down Bow Falls doesn't curve through an edging of ice as it does now, and the elk have gone back uphill instead of feeding, as now, at the edge of the road.

There is seldom more than a foot of snow on the streets in Banff in winter, and it's gone by now, so the lucky few who are here walk across the golf course in slacks and sweater, or hike up a mountain trail in a jacket and wool cap.

It's not quite warm enough to eat on the terrace of the Banff Springs Hotel, but it's perfect in the Expresso bar, the breakfast room, the dining rooms or the Mt. Rundle lounge bar upstairs. The hotel was the first manmade mountain in the valley, so its public rooms faces the most glorious view: the gleaming Bow River winding through a tree-filled valley to a wall of snowed mountains, the view framed on either side by two nearer mountain slopes.

Lake Louise is high enough up-mountain to be considerably colder and snowier than Banff. The famous lake in front of the Chateau Lake Louise is frozen well into June. The Chateau is another grand railway hotel, built here early in the century. This year, for the first time, it started year-round operations.

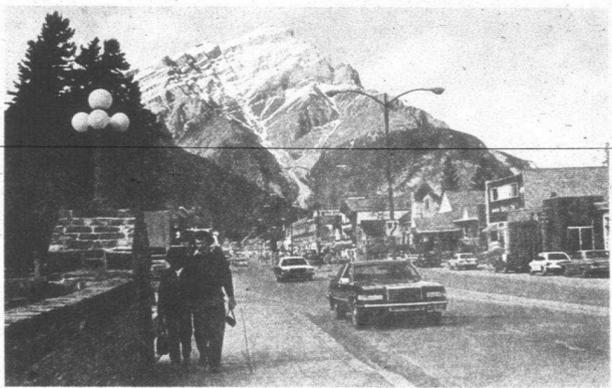

In summer, one of the favorite pastimes is hiking up to the Victoria Glacier for tea and cakes in the Tea House, but in May the skis still stand like a picket fence across the stone front of the hotel.

Some of the favorite winter pastimes are cross country skiing across the lake, tobogganing down the nearby hills, skating on a rink cleared daily on the lake in front of the hotel and hiking in the snowy woods. Tea in the lobby, beer in the pub, cocktails in the lobby bar and dinner at one of the two main dining rooms complete the day for some.

Others like to go downhill into the tiny town of Lake Louise — no more than a scatter of buildings in front of the railway tracks — and eat dinner at the charming, renovated Post Hotel or disco at the more contemporary Lake Louise Inn, which offers both regular accommodations and a four-in-a-room hostelry.

In the off-seasons of spring and fall, the streets of downtown Banff are less crowded than at other times of the year. Everything you could possibly want in a mountain vacation is there in spring, except the crowds and the in-season prices.

The Chateau Lake Louise, another of Banff's grand railway hotels, looks out over Lake Louise and the Rockies beyond. The lake is frozen well into June.

How to get there

Getting there: Fly into Calgary, Alberta, and take a car, train or bus 75 miles to Banff. Your logical airline choice from Detroit is Air Canada, which flies once a day out of Windsor through Winnipeg several times a day out of Windsor through Toronto. Canadian Pacific Air (CP Air) flies from Toronto to Calgary, you can go by train on VIA Rail Canada from Windsor.

If you drive your own car, it's easy to find your way on good highways through Calgary and into the mountains. Both Banff and Lake Louise are in Banff National Park, so you'll pay a modest park fee. You can rent a car from Tilden Canada or from any of the other well-known car rental companies.

Rates are reasonable as long as you bring the car back to Calgary.

Athletes' moms: A special breed

I KNOW IT'S four days after the fact, but I think we can stretch Mother's Day out a little more. After all, for all moms do for us, it's the least we can do, don't you think?

I never think one day out for dinner, a plant or maybe a corsage is enough anyway. I know it's not enough for my mom, and, although she's special to me, I doubt she's much different than most of the other mothers out there.

There's something about the mother of an athlete that separates her from the rest. Having a son or daughter who competes in sports gives mom added responsibilities and duties — as if she doesn't have enough as it is.

I wasn't the best athlete around. Unless you asked my mom. She'll tell you otherwise.

I've competed in athletics since the summer I became eligible in little league baseball, and I stayed with it until my final at bat in high school. In between there was little league football, junior high football and basketball, and senior high football and baseball.

AND THROUGH it all, mom was there.

Even though mom was a pretty decent athlete, she wasn't the one who gave instructions on hitting the cutoff man on throws to second base, driving to my left with a basketball or making a football spiral. That job was performed by dad.

But when it came to encouragement and some of the dirty jobs, those were mom's. And through it all, she was there.

Now, instead of playing sports, I write about them. And guess who scans every inch of the Observer & Eccentric sports pages looking for an article with my name on it? That's mom.

I'd like to share some personal memories of mom's role during my years of athletic competition. Although they are my recollections, I'm sure they'll be very familiar to you.

A MOTHER is someone who... rides to the park on a bicycle three times a week to watch you play error-plagued little league games.

...doesn't look too agitated when you come home with mud stains on the seat of your pants, a grass stain on one knee and a rip on the other. ...manages to find a way to get the mud and grass stains out of the pants, and mends the tear with a patch that matches.

...always has something cold for you to drink after a rough day on the dusty diamond. ...has something in her bag of surprises which lessens the pain when your game with the first-place Yankees has been postponed due to a steady rainfall.

...is always there with the hydrogen peroxide, gauze pads and Band-Aids to clean and dress the scuffed knees and elbows.

...carries you in her arms to the nearest doctor's office after you fell off your bike and opened a gash on your chin.

...tries to break the news gently to dad about how your field-goal attempt accidentally sailed wide right — right through the kitchen window.

...lets you know you have the best looking swing on the team, even though you were called out on strikes four times.

...helps you with your swing by pitching batting practice in the back yard (don't worry dad, it was with a whiffle ball and a plastic bat).

...always has a compliment, even if it's telling parents around her that you have the cleanest uniform on the team.

...makes sure you have the cleanest uniform on the team.

...stays up until all the players on the team who are spending the night are fast asleep, which usually is sometime around 6 a.m.

...hunts all over the house for that missing sanitary-sock the dog misplaced.

...reminds you to get her a hit as you're walking out the door.

...clips out every newspaper article with your name in it and posts it on the refrigerator door.

...smiles and listens intently to the story of your touchdown run — through all its variations — even though she's heard it a dozen times.

Cliffhanger

Rocks catch Canton in 10th

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

It was 10 innings before Plymouth Salem's frustrations ended.

The Rocks had their chances — three of them to be exact — to put rival Plymouth Canton to rest in Monday's softball confrontation at Massey Field. But some superlative Chief defensive efforts thwarted Salem at every turn until the 10th, when the Rocks pushed three runs across to post a 4-1 victory.

For Salem, the win meant a shot at the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) title is still within reach. Both Canton and Salem have one league defeat.

"If we'd lost that, Livonia Bentley would be the only tough game left for Canton," Salem coach Rob Willette said.

FOR NINE innings at least, it seemed that fate had sided against Salem. Canton scored first, blending two hits, a walk and two fielder's choices into a run. Lou Ann Hamblin started it with a bunt single, but she was eliminated at second on Marie Krashovetz's fielder's choice.

Missy Aiken walked and pitcher Janine Carpenter singled, loading the bases. Karen Schulte grounded out with Krashovetz scoring on the play.

The Rocks tied it in their next turn at the plate on the second of three hits by Terri Lesniak, a sacrifice bunt, an error on the shortstop and Mary Prysak's base hit.

That's the way it stayed until the 10th, although Salem had its chances. Twice Hamblin fired home from her center-field position to nail Sarah McKenna at the plate, the second coming in the top of the seventh.

And in the eighth, Cheryl Viele hesitated at third on Cindy Runge's grounder to Canton second baseman Sue Gerke. Gerke bobbled the ball, and Viele tried to score when Gerke threw to first to get Runge. The relay home was in time to double up Viele as Krashovetz blocked the plate and made the tag.

"IT SEEMED LIKE we couldn't score, that's for sure," Willette said. "I was afraid they'd get down, but they didn't."

Salem got its winning runs in the 10th. Pam McBride and Viele walked with one out, and Leslie Etienne was safe on the shortstop's error, loading the bases.

softball

Runge broke the deadlock with a single, scoring McBride, and Lesniak followed with another hit that brought in Viele. Etienne also tried to score and was thrown out by Aiken at the plate, but Lynne Gamache was hit by a pitch, and Debbie Glomski walked to force in the fourth Salem run.

Sue Carlson, just summoned from the junior varsity to replace injured hurler Diane Murphy, kept the Rocks in the game with a strong pitching performance. Joining Lesniak in the multiple-hit column for Salem were Viele and McKenna with two apiece.

Carpenter, who absorbed the pitching defeat for Canton, collected two hits at the plate.

Mary Prysak's two triples and three runs scored help lift Plymouth Salem to victory Tuesday at Salem.

Prysak had three hits in four trips and drove in a run in a three-run first inning rally with a single. Cheryl Viele contributed a two-run double in the second for the Rocks.

Terri Lesniak went the distance to pick up the victory.

LAST WEEKEND, Salem traveled to the Romulus Tournament and finished third in the eight-team event, winning two before losing to the host team in a rain-delayed semifinal contest.

The Rocks bombed Flat Rock in the opener, 15-4, as Sarah McKenna collected three hits and three RBIs, and Leslie Etienne, Viele and Cindy Runge each had two hits. Sue Carlson earned the victory.

Salem rolled again in the second game, scoring an 11-2 triumph over Livonia Ladywood. Carlson was the winner again as Prysak collected a double and two RBIs, and Viele had two hits.

The Rocks led 7-3 after three innings of the third game against Romulus when rain forced a postponement. Play was resumed Sunday, but the Rocks lost their momentum in the delay and with it

Chiefs bat attack crunches Salem

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs are on the warpath.

They scalped rival Plymouth Salem Monday, showing no mercy in belting out a 15-2 baseball victory at Salem.

Perhaps the ease of the triumph surprised the most. Bryan Capnerhurst slammed a homer in the opening inning to help the Chiefs to a 3-0 lead, and from then on it just kept building and building and...

"We've been hitting the ball pretty well," understated Canton coach Fred Crissey. "But if we're going to do anything, we're going to have to get the pitching."

WELL, LET'S talk about pitching. Mike Battaglia's pitching. The left-hander frustrated Salem most of the afternoon, allowing single runs in the second and sixth.

The Canton defense helped keep Battaglia out of trouble. The Chiefs turned two double plays, the first with two on and no one out in the third and the outcome still in doubt.

"When (centerfielder Tim) Dillon caught the ball and doubled (Frank Meade) off second, it was the turning point of the game," Crissey said. Canton had a 6-1 lead at the time, but Salem seemed to have a rally brewing. Until Meade's base-running goof and Dillon's strong throw.

baseball

The Chiefs' second double play came at an appropriate time: It ended the game.

BUT IT WOULD be a gross mistake to say pitching and defense were the difference in the game, despite their vital roles. No, the difference Monday were the bats. Canton bats.

Specifically, Capnerhurst's and Don Dombey's bats. Each slammed a pair of homers, both connecting in the five-run Chief fifth. Dombey also tripled in the third and scored Canton's fourth run on a wild pitch.

Capnerhurst's two-run blast over the right-field fence in the fifth sent Salem starter Rick Berberet to the showers, a casualty of an 11-run barrage. Dave Haut relieved, and Dombey greeted him with a solo shot into the wind, over the left-field fence.

Things never improved for the Rocks.

"WE DIDN'T execute," was how Salem coach Brian Gilles summed up the lopsided defeat. "We missed cutoff men, got picked off base... things we worked on."

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

In February of 1976, rated for just one week in most of the popularity polls as the No. 1 Class A basketball team in Michigan, the Rocks tasted defeat for the first time as Belleville's Tigers posted a 63-57 triumph. Nonetheless, Salem, which is now 16-1 overall, still leads the Suburban 8 in its drive toward a 3rd straight undisputed championship with a 16-1 mark. "They beat us square up," admitted coach Fred Thomann of the Rocks, as he avoided offering any form of alibi. Belleville astounded the packed house by racing to a 13-0 lead in the first 5 minutes and from then on it was all up hill for the Plymouth troops. High scorers for Salem were two brothers, all-stater Jim and Tom Ellinghausen, Mike Primeau and Brian Wolcott.

Salem nails down 2nd at Stafford

Finishing first in three events at a 20-team track relay event is a solid showing. And as well as Plymouth Salem's girls' team performed Saturday, it wasn't good enough to overtake a powerful Brighton squad.

Brighton captured the Stafford Relay title at Walled Lake Western, outdistancing the field with 82 points. Runner-up Salem scored 48, with West Bloomfield third (40) and Livonia Stevenson fourth (32).

The Rocks' three firsts all came in the field events — including one that was on the track.

In the long jump, Dawn Johnson, Kelly Bemiss and Ann Glomski combined total (45-4½) was good enough for top honors. The discus team of Cheri Muneio, Fran Whittaker and Cindy McSurely also placed first (293-0).

girls track

THE DISCUS TEAM then added Nancy Smith to its ranks and raced to a first in the 440-yard discus relay (57.9), in which a discus is passed between team members instead of a baton.

Whittaker, Carol Lindsay, Bemiss and Johnson took second in the 880 relay (1:52.34) for Salem.

The Rocks also placed fourth in two events: Shelly Simons, Lori Swearb, Erica Bashor and Trish Donnelly in the four-mile relay (24:34.2) and Lindsay, Bemiss, Johnson and Simons in the sprint-medley relay (4:38.3).

The 440 team of Glomski, Stacy

Stojeba, Bemiss and Johnson were fifth (53.25).

LIV. CHURCHILL 79
CANTON 44

Kim Bennett won a pair of events for the Chiefs but it was far from enough against Livonia Churchill Monday.

Bennett's victories came in the 100 meter (12.9) and the 200 meter (27.4) dashes. Holly Ivey earned Canton's only other individual first in the discus (95-3).

Lisa Wood, Lori Schauder, Carolyn Nagy and Bennett combined to win the 800 relay (1:53.9).

Placing second for the Chiefs were Pat Brennan in the long jump (14-½), Nagy in the high jump (4-7) and 400 (1:03.7), Michele Adams in the 100 hurdles (17.6), Ivey in the shot put (28-9¼) and Amy Masterwak in the 3,200 (13:00.4).

Brennan established a new school record in the 300 meter hurdles. Her time, when converted to yards, was 53.9, breaking the old mark of 54.1. Still, Brennan finished third against Churchill.

LAST THURSDAY, Canton managed a few bright spots despite a loss.

A 67-56 loss to Northville was softened a bit as Brennan set a new school record.

And on Saturday, two season's-best performances were turned in by Chief relay squads at the Stafford Relays, hosted by Walled Lake Western. Canton finished 15th in the 18-team meet.

Stevenson offense stings Churchill

Livonia Stevenson ballplayers used offensive pressure to their advantage Monday afternoon, winning a hotly contested game with Livonia Churchill.

The Chargers led off the batting but were retired quickly by Stevenson pitcher Don McGinlay. But the Spartans couldn't do any better against Churchill's southpaw John Fraser, and the first inning ended scoreless.

Outfielder Bill Ullie got Stevenson on the right track in the second inning with a run on a sacrifice fly, but his team's lead was short-lived. Churchill batters opened up the game with three runs in the top of the third inning.

Charger infielder Dave Herrod began at third when Pete Rose singled, and made the dash to home on a single by catcher Tom Kovarik. Rose gave Stevenson the advantage with a run batted in by Ullie.

In the top of the fourth inning with two outs, Churchill outfielder Ron Przybylski used a cool head and a hot bat to tie the score with a home run. A single by Herrod followed by a double by infielder Matt Cross again set up a Churchill scoring possibility, but Stevenson infielders defused the threat with a well-placed grounder.

Kevin Sarafian stole second following a walk and was promptly batted home by Scott Miller, who slammed double. Miller narrowly escaped a tag.

Stevenson pitcher Don McGinlay walked, and immediately stole second.

Stop excusing your life away.

Everyone has an excuse for not seeing their doctor about colorectal cancer. However, every year 52,000 men and women die of colorectal cancer in this country alone. Two out of three of these people might be saved by early detection and treatment. Two out of three. So what is your excuse? Today you have a new, simple, practical way of providing your doctor with a stool specimen on which he can perform the guaiac test. This can detect signs of colorectal cancer in its early stages before symptoms appear. While two out of three people can be saved. Ask your doctor about a guaiac test, and stop excusing your life away.

THE SCOTTS DIFFERENCE

We make the only real lawn fertilizer there is.

Turf Builder® fertilizer is engineered just for lawns. Other so-called lawn fertilizers are crude mixes of farm fertilizers. They force-feed grass so it grows very tall, very fast. Your lawn doesn't need that, and neither do you—unless you love to mow. But Scotts® (and only Scotts®) bonds a unique, controlled-release nitrogen with other lawn nutrients, to feed your lawn safely and steadily, as it needs it.

You can't get all that from "bargain" brands. You can only get it in a bag that says Scotts. Because we don't make fertilizer that much better. And we care that much about your success with your lawn.

by W.W. Edgar

It took some great selling, but the American Bowling Congress, approved the pin in 1946, along with the plastic coating.

But Block's name is never mentioned. Surely, he belongs in the group honored for meritorious service.

IN THE CLOSING weeks of the regular season two more members were inducted into the 700 club and to others earned American Bowling Congress awards for perfect games.

Joe D'Alacqua broke the 700 barrier at Merry Bowl Lanes when he linked games of 245, 247 and 210 for 702.

At Woodland Lanes, Mike Rose went to the top of the honor roll with a 771, highest in the house this season. He used games of 234, 300 and 237.

Meanwhile at Belaire Lanes, Chuck Cassia, after posting games of 221 and 225, closed with a perfect game for 752.

THE SCOTTS DIFFERENCE

We make the only real lawn fertilizer there is.

Turf Builder® fertilizer is engineered just for lawns. Other so-called lawn fertilizers are crude mixes of farm fertilizers. They force-feed grass so it grows very tall, very fast. Your lawn doesn't need that, and neither do you—unless you love to mow. But Scotts® (and only Scotts®) bonds a unique, controlled-release nitrogen with other lawn nutrients, to feed your lawn safely and steadily, as it needs it.

You can't get all that from "bargain" brands. You can only get it in a bag that says Scotts. Because we don't make fertilizer that much better. And we care that much about your success with your lawn.

This spring get the Scotts difference—and get it for less, with this refund offer.

Archer honored

Kim Archer is a certified All-American. She's been named to the 1983 Converse National High School Basketball All-America team. From looking at her achievements, it must have been an easy decision for the National High School Athletic Coaches Association (NHSACA) to include the Bentley senior in America's best group of players.

Archer's basketball and softball coach, Tom Archer, calls her simply "the best athlete to ever attend Bentley." She was voted top player in Observerland by coaches for two years running in both basketball and softball (and to the All-State team in softball).

'I am what I am,' says actor of many roles

In high school people used to say, 'Kirk, you ought to be an actor.' I was very loud-mouthed, very typically girgeous jerk. I used to get beat up a lot!

YOUNG ACTOR Kirk Haas has managed to have a role on stage or behind the scenes in every one of the productions of current season at the Actors Alliance Theatre Company in Southfield.

At present Haas is playing one of the four characters in the Michigan premiere production of "Album," David Rimmer's nostalgic play about high school students growing up in the '60s.

The show, which opened April 22, continues Fridays-Sundays through May 22 at the arena theater at Lycee International, 30800 Evergreen.

In the office of the school's acting academy, Haas talked about what it's like to be a performer trying to get ahead in a tough business. His bright blue eyes, curly hair and free-flowing movements give him a John Travolta-like charm.

BUT HAAS apparently doesn't seem himself that way. He said, "In high school, people used to say, 'Kirk, you ought to be an actor.' I was very loud-mouthed, very typically girgeous jerk. I used to get beat up a lot."

Haas, who attended Lahser High School in Bloomfield Hills, said, "I was an avid spectator in high school. Physically, I was a runt. I did try growing in college."

His friend, Mike, helped him take up weight lifting. The 5-foot 8-inch Haas hasn't grown any taller but he has gained some needed muscle. "I'm more of a typical all-American boy right now," he said.

Partly in an effort to look older, he grew a mustache and a beard. For his role in "Album," he clean-shaven. "I am what I am," he has decided.

In March 1982, he appeared in the Stagecrafters of Clawson production of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," playing the sensitive young man who stutters.

THE PRODUCTION was one from Michigan community theaters groups that was chosen to participate in the Furay Theatre Festival held at the Lycee. It took best production, best director, and two scholarships were awarded — one of them to Haas.

At that time, Haas' work schedule didn't permit him to take advantage of the scholarship, at the Lycee's Academy of the Arts, so he turned it down. This year, he made contact with Actors Alliance, the professional theater company there, and subsequently became involved in all its shows.

The aspiring actor has held a variety of jobs, several in Birmingham. "I was a delivery boy at Noah's Down Under (sandwich shop) for a year," he said. "Before that, I was with the Birmingham Theatre in the box office. Before that I was with Richard and Elaine, the first six months it opened, as assistant manager." He also sold shoes at Lady Sherman.

During his high school days, Haas was not into theater. He was a member of the choir and the orchestra for two years until he failed a music course.

He worked for a year selling sporting goods at the Varsity Shop in Birmingham, then at the Rochester store as an assistant manager.

During his high school days, Haas was not into theater. He was a member of the choir and the orchestra for two years until he failed a music course.

"I'm not real good at auditioning," he admits. "I'm better as a practice." He had greater success at tryouts where he can be more spontaneous. "I'm good at a cold reading."

At the Actors Alliance, he appeared in the season's first production, "Rosenkrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," as one of the Tragedians playing a recorder.

HAAS, who plays guitar, said he learned to play the recorder in a week. He acquired a musical background, from his father, Don Haas of Birmingham, who played in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for 20 years.

His mother and sister both live in Troy and his brother is a Livonia resident. Haas has been doing housepainting for his family and finds this is a great job for him, what with his afternoon rehearsal schedule and evening performances.

In "Story Theatre," the second show at Actors Alliance, Haas originally was going to play guitar and be stage manager. When one of the actors, who had five roles in the show, injured his ankle, Kirk took over the five roles, plus two others, and took turns stage managing. "Story Theatre," a family show, is a musical based on fairy tales. The run has ended, but the show continues to tour, playing to groups of 400 children.

"They love it," Haas said. "We'll probably do the show all summer long."

He had to perform a song in the show. "That song convinced me I could sing," he said exuberantly.

THE COMPANY'S next production was "The Women Here Are No Different." "That was a big success," he said. Haas stage managed and was sound engineer. A performance of the show was videotaped for the archives of Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills.

Ukrainian Festival next on riverfront

The Detroit Ethnic Festival will be held this weekend; Arab World, May 20-22, and Greek, May 27-30.

Dancers in authentic dress from their native heritages perform folk and nationally celebrated dances. All are done in accord with the history of each ethnic group and reflect the spirit and pride of national origin.

Other major events on and around Hart Plaza this summer include a Bluegrass and Country Music Festival, Detroit Grand Prix II, International Freedom Festival and fireworks, Montreal-Detroit International Jazz Festival and the Detroit River City Festival.

The River City Festival, which closes the summer season at Hart Plaza, will be a celebration of turn-of-the-century America on just a two-day weekend, Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 17-18.

Last year, festival officials estimated that more than seven million persons attend Detroit's ethnic festivals and other weekend events at Hart Plaza. It was the second year in a row that attendance went over the seven million mark.

AFTER THE Detroit Grand Prix II on June 3-5, ethnic festivals resume with German, June 10-12; Irish, June 17-19; and Around the World, June 24-26. The International Freedom Festival runs June 30 and July 1-4.

More ethnic festivals are Slovak, July 8-10; Italian, July 15-17; Afro-American, July 22-24; Far Eastern, July 29-31; Scandinavian and Festival of India, Aug. 5-7; Polish, Aug. 12-14; Mexican, Aug. 19-21.

Bertini ends tenure with brilliant touch

By Avigdor Zorump special writer

With last week's program, another rewarding Detroit Symphony Orchestra season came to an end. This program also marked Maestro Bertini's last appearance here in his capacity as music adviser.

The program consisted of two popular compositions — the Concerto No. 4 for Piano and Orchestra by Beethoven and the Symphony No. 5 by Tchaikovsky. Guest pianist was the young, Polish-born Krystian Zimerman.

The performance of these compositions, however, was far from routine. The Beethoven concerto, regarded as one of the most brilliant and impressive works for piano and orchestra, was tackled by both soloist and orchestra in a most convincing manner.

It goes without saying that Zimerman has mastered the technical challenges of the composition with ease, to the extent that these difficulties became unnoticeable by the casual observer. But he went far beyond that.

His well-rounded passages blended perfectly with the orchestra, which would unfailingly take over from the instrument without any disruption of continuity.

THERE WAS THE BEETHOVEN force and grandeur in Zimerman's playing, but without undue harshness. The crescendos and diminuendos were ideally paced and measured, so that the dynamics were in a constant state of movement and variation. It was a refined and articulated Beethoven at his best.

Many superb performances of this

composition exist, of course, and comparing between them would be meaningless. But this performance should remain memorable for a long time to come. Live performances of such quality don't take place very often.

The Symphony No. 5 by Tchaikovsky, which has its fair share of accolades, tends to be taken for granted. Here Bertini demonstrated his ability to highlight the significance of each phrase.

The outward continuity of the fact that the opening theme is stated in each movement. But it is up to the conductor and the performers to maintain the continuity of the shifting moods and emotions.

This, indeed, was superbly accomplished here. The opening theme in the introduction was stated somewhat more slowly than usual, which tended to emphasize even more the momentum in the main body of the movement.

The slow movement was expressive and eventful, not of the sleep-inducing variety. In the waltz, the right balance was struck between gloom and cheerfulness. The final movement had more than pure desecration to offer. One thing that Maestro Bertini has proven time and again is that a fortissimo doesn't have to be chaotic and unrefined.

Adam and Eve nick 'The Apple Tree'

Performances of the Will-O-Way Repertory Theatre production of "The Apple Tree" continue at 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through May 28 at Will-O-Way, 775 W. Long Lake Road, between Telegraph and Lahser, Bloomfield Township. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for older persons and children younger than 12. For reservations, call 664-4418.

By Cathie Breidenbach special writer

Expressions play over Eileen Weiss' face like light on water, and the three one-act musicals now at Will-O-Way Repertory Theatre show off the range of her skills.

The comedy one-acts billed as "The Apple Tree" begin at the beginning with "The Diary of Adam and Eve," a play based on a story by Mark Twain.

A cow will forever more be a "four-pronged white quipster" after Adam's graphically innocent description.

WHAT SEEMS not-so-funny any more in "The Diary of Adam and Eve" is the Blondie and Dagwood stereotypes of male and female. Gary Clason plays Adam to Eileen Weiss' Eve.

Adam ridicules Eve because she's forever redecorating their shelter by squeezing berries on the walls or coming home wearing hats of ferns and flowers.

chestnuts, this one-act adapted from Mark Twain by Sheldon Harnick and Jerry Book tries to resuscitate some old humor that may be better off buried in the dark ages of chauvinism.

The play does a better job with feelings. Tenderness somehow comes through, even though the songs are forgettable and Clason expresses love John-Wayne-style. Feelings cross the footlights, and some people in the audience could be seen surreptitiously wiping a bit of something out of the corner of their eyes in the dark theater.

"THE LADY or the TIGER," based on the story by Frank Stockton, is the middle offering in this evening of one-acts. The Will-O-Way company throws subtlety to the tiger and jazzes up this musical rendition that explores the same actress who played Maria with lyric innocence in "The Sound of Music" a few seasons ago. From a good actress with a lively voice, she's evolved her own distinctive style.

There's a hint of Charlie Chaplin in her walk, a touch of Carol Burnett in her expressions and a lot of her own delightful comedy style. She struts her stuff wonderfully and gets excellent help from the supporting cast and from Clason, who plays a rock star prince with a flowing mane of hippie hair.

Even when humidity plays havoc with the antiquated lighting at the old Will-O-Way Theater and the orchestra must make do with only a pianist and flutist, Will-O-Way serves up a winning evening in this collection of one-acts directed by Celia Merrill Turner.

jealous flip side of love. There isn't much question that Weiss' Princess Barbara couldn't graciously let her lover go to the arms of another woman. She exaggerates hilariously the jealous 2-year-old in us all and won't let us plead that civilization has successfully returned the barbaric side of human nature.

"Passionella" is Jules Feiffer's engaging update of the Cinderella fairy tale. Weiss and Clason again play the leads well.

It's hard to believe that Weiss is the Winning films by students shown

Students from Wayne Memorial High School, Beahan Junior High in Farmington and Brookside elementary in Bloomfield Hills are among the winners of the 14th Annual Michigan Student Film Festival.

All the award-winning films will be shown in the Friends Auditorium of the Detroit Public Library, main branch, 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Mary Seymour, a Wayne Memorial senior, produced her film, "Hell is for Children," after many months of research into the problem of child abuse.

The film, which runs about five minutes, incorporates photos of abused children, drawings by children and newspaper headlines and accounts with a soundtrack of Pat Benetar music.

BEAHAN STUDENT Colleen McGowan's film, "G.I. Magellan Sails the World," won first place in the junior high division. In the film, G.I. Joe goes play such characters as Magellan the explorer and the Queen of Spain.

"Grapes from Space," a film that tied for first place in the elementary division was made by a group of fourth graders from Brookside School. In it a bunch of grapes terrorizes a tiny village while "I Heard it Through the Grapevine" plays on the soundtrack.

The Michigan Student Film Festival, sponsored by Detroit area film teachers and the Detroit Public Library, is open to any grade school student. Entries from around the state are shown at preliminary screenings and winners are selected by a panel of jurors comprised of educators and film professionals.

Prizes will be awarded Saturday.

watch. Despite all that, the film is a must-see, at least for the first 60 minutes. Leonard Frey, Laurence Luckinbill and Cliff Gorman co-star. Rating: $2.90.

"Urban Cowboy" (1980), 8 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 135 minutes.

Debra Winger, recent best actress nominee for "An Officer and a Gentleman," records the first of two fine performances by females in otherwise mediocre films this TV-viewing evening. As the honky-tonk gal who lames both John Travolta and a raging mechanical bull, Winger manages to resurrect the "oomph girl" persona of the past.

Unfortunately, the former Sweet Hog Travolta, hogs the attention of director James Bridges and script writer Aaron Latham, whose focus is more machismo than feminist.

Rating: $2.75.

"Rough Cut" (1980), 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 112 minutes.

All good things inevitably come to an end, and the Chamber Music Society of Detroit is no exception.

Fortunately, this is only the end of this season — there will be a lot more soon. The concluding event featured the Julliard String Quartet.

The high caliber of the Julliard String Quartet is a universally accepted fact, and quiet is to be restated here. The works on this program were quartets by Haydn, Subotnick and Brahms.

The opening quartet was the Op. 64 No. 5 by Haydn, titled "The Lark." The title is based on the light, soaring main theme of the first movement.

THE PERFORMANCE highlights Haydn's masterly stroke. The character of the faster movements was light without being trivial. The slow movement was sublime, and the spirited concluding movement was ecstatic.

The one controversial work on the program was by Subotnick, "The Fluttering of Wings." The composer was born in 1935 in Los Angeles. The work is written for a string quartet and an electronic ghost, which is a silent digital control system which activates an amplifier, a frequency shifter and a location device.

learning process rather than the composition, then so be it.

THE CONCLUDING work was the Quartet in B Flat Major Op. 67 (No.3) by Brahms. To say that it is one of the lovely chamber compositions by Brahms would be redundant and meaningless — Brahms didn't write any other kind.

The performance of this composition was truly inspiring. There were no rough and harsh edges, but ideas were continuously shaped and formed.

While it isn't the only valid approach, it was very rewarding, a fitting conclusion to a truly rewarding series.

Tomorrow's masters enchant CMS crowd

By Avigdor Zorump special writer

On many occasions, one may detect a certain amount of concern about the aging, established masters — whether there will be anybody sufficiently brilliant to take their place.

One of the young talents who goes a long way toward alleviating that concern is violinist Gidon Kremer. Born in Latvia in 1947, he has an impressive list of credentials and his star is still rising.

Not to be outdone is pianist Valery Afanassiev, who was born the same year in Moscow. Both appeared recently in Orchestra Hall, in a program of the Chamber Music Society of Detroit (CMS). This program illustrated their wide and diverse areas of interest.

THE SCHUMANN Sonata for Piano and Violin was discovered only in 1956 and is seldom performed today. And only infrequently does one hear such a refined and delicate Schumann played as in this performance. The imaginative phrasing made this composition sound unique.

There seems to be a Shostakovich revival these days. It might be related to the extensive promotion of the composer's works by his son Maxim Shostakovich, who just completed two weeks as guest conductor with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

One hears some of the Shostakovich chamber compositions more frequently now. The CMS series featured three of them this season. The Sonata for Piano and Violin is definitely a beautiful composition, made even more rewarding and appealing in this performance. Every single note made sense.

The second portion of the program contained some controversial works. The first of these, a violin solo by the Japanese composer Takahashi titled "Sieben Rosen Hat ein Strauch" (Seven Roses Have One Stem), isn't the kind of music a classical listener like myself will go out of his way to hear. But at the hands of Kremer, it became an intricate and artistically, articulate piece.

ANOTHER contemporary piece was a portion of "Makrokosmos" by George Crumb, written for amplified piano. Here, Afanassiev amused the audience with his stage performance, which included an unconventional technique of plucking the piano strings while diving into the soundboard. He also yelled and growled into the microphone, which was placed above the strings. Some weird and bizarre sound effects were produced by the combination of pedals and microphone.

The one aspect that came close to conventional music was a surprise quotation from Chopin's "Fantasia Impromptu" in the first of the three selections.

Dancin' like the '50s

Kurt Meyer of Livonia and Lisa Birow of Westland rehearse a 1950s number that will be featured when the Blue Moon Dance Ensemble and Livonia Civic Chorus present their joint production, "Harmony 'n' Hues," at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday-May 20-21, at Churchill High School in Livonia. The show will feature 35 years of time in music. It will be costumed in red, white and blue, with some of the numbers pop tunes with colors in their names, other songs patriotic ones. Tickets are $4 for adults, $2 for students and seniors. For more information call 421-6691 or 525-4464.

Mozart-Salieri 'Rivalry Continues'

The "Rivalry Continues" is the theme of the Renaissance concert at 8 p.m. Friday, May 20, at Orchestra Hall.

This evening of instrumental music by the Renaissance Chamber Orchestra with Donald Baker, oboe, as soloist, will feature music by Mozart and Antonio Salieri.

The great rivalry between these two late 18th-century composers in Vienna was the inspiration for the play "Amadeus." Suspicion still lingers over Mozart's death at age 35. He suspected he had been poisoned, and the world seemed to believe that it was Salieri who did it. And while works of many lesser composers of that time survived, the music of Salieri was ignored for more than 200 years.

The concert will give a preview of the play "Amadeus," which is scheduled to be at the Fisher Theater in June.

On the program will be "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" by Mozart, Concerto for Oboe and Orchestra by Salieri, Concerto for Oboe and Orchestra by Mozart and Serenata Notturna by Mozart.

Regular tickets, reserved seating, are $15, logic and box seats, $25. Among the prizes to be awarded to members of the audience is a cabin for two on a classical music cruise to Alaska. For ticket reservations, call 62-MUSIC.
